Halmahera, Off Philippines Coast, Hard Hit

Three Jap Ships Sunk Between China, Formosa

BY J. B. KRUEGER
Associated Press War Editor

Formosa, anchor on Japan's inner water routes and only 200 miles north of the Philippines, has been attacked by U. S. heavy bombers based on China, Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

The raid, directed at one of the island's main ports, complemented heavy aerial blows which have virtually neutralized Halmahera island at the southern and opposite end of the Philippines. Docks at Takao were hit and three freighters were sunk in the narrow waterway between Formosa and the China coast.

Land-based heavy bombers stabbed again at Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands some 600 miles from Japan, said Radio Tokyo.

Two Bombers Said Downed

Twenty-two Liberators attacked the Japanese fortress yesterday and were engaged by fighters, the unconfirmed enemy rport declared. Two bombers were downed, it added.

Halmahera, big Japanese-held island lying between Allied forces on New Guinea and the southern Philippines, has been effectively neutralized under a rain of airborne explosives. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said:

"The flexibility of this great base is now gone. The enemy's airfields at Halmahera and at contiguous intermediate bases are practically neutralized, his maritime forces largely interdicted and his ground troops immobilized in their present positions."

Fires, Explosions Touched Off

Great fires and explosions were touched off during three great attacks spread over about two weeks. Halmahera is 200 miles west of New Guinea and 300 miles south of Mindanao, southernmost of the Philippines, MacArthur's great objective. Like the Marianas, it is part of Japan's inner defense line.

The Tokyo report on Iwo Jima was the only news of western

Nineteen Nazi Bases Blasted

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP)—At least 2,000 American and British heavy bombers were hurled today against Germany, Holland and Belgium while other hundreds of planes from Italy and England laid explosive carpets on the Nazis in the paths of the invasions of northern and southern France.

At least 19 German air force bases and non-operational stations were deluged with around 8,000 tons of bombs. The widespread attacks were designed to knock out what is left of Hitler's air units before the enemy can marshal his remaining strength for all-out support of the desperate German ground attacks.

Three Airdromes Slashed

U. S. Fortresses and Liberators striking from the west were escorted by up to 1,000 fighters. They slashed at three operational airdromes for the German air force and at seven non-operational stations which have clusters of workshops and various installations for maintenance and repairs.

The first announcement said the attackers landed bombs on the targets with good to excellent results.

Allied warplanes were attacking the south of France for the fifth consecutive day, leaving a path of blazing steel and explosives before the American, French and British forces swarming onto the Mediterranean beaches.

BABY IN NARROW ESCAPE

HOUSTON, Aug. 15 (AP) — Charlotte Ann Schultz, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Labe Schultz of Columbus, escaped with bruises and lacerations when she fell from a second story window here today, striking a gravel driveway 20 feet below.

France Is Near Full Freedom

Liberation Believed Matter Of Weeks; Nazi Seventh Army Faces Destruction

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15. — France stood today on the eve of complete freedom from the harsh grip of Hitler as the Allies launched a new blow from the Mediterranean to wrench German army fingers loose from territory it has held since 1940.

That freedom of France is a matter of no more than weeks is the only conclusion to be gained from a tour of the battle front in Normandy and Brittany where the German Seventh army now faces destruction.

Early reports indicated that the invasion of southern France was meeting only slight opposition. That was expectable, because Marshal Von Kluge has been steadily drawing divisions from the Mediterranean area of France in an effort to stop the offensive in the west which is tearing him to bits.

Nazis Have Few Troops

It is estimated that the Germans now have fewer than five full divisions ready to deal with any invasion from the south.

Judging from the experience the Americans had in racing over Brittany, these are scarcely enough to deal with the French underground with undoubtedly is now springing to arms along the Rivera to Spain.

Landings were made west of Toulon—a hotbed of French resistance since the French fleet scuttled itself in the harbor.

That the French alone were striking with plenty of power was seen in a report in Algiers that the French navy now has 178 ships and 50,000 men. It is no secret that Britain and the United States have been rearming the French army in Africa since early last year.

Shore Batteries Pulverized

Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker, air commander in the Mediterranean, has been turning American air power loose on the French coast for weeks and it is likely that the French and their allies are finding the shore batteries pulverized, as in Normandy. The Germans have reported for some time the presence of British and American warships in that region.

The German high command, largely through Hitler's insistence that the army never retreat but stand and die, now appears to be in an impossible situation.

Facing the Allies in the south, the enemy has the remnants of an army trying desperately to cope with new and overpowering land-

Reds Attacking Near Prussia

Forts Are Cracked Around Osowiec

MOSCOW, Aug. 15 — Russian forces started attacking freshly dug German entrenchments today in front of Grajewo, two miles south of the East Prussian border, after cracking the steel and concrete forts around Osowiec and winning a bridgehead across the Biebrza river.

Gen. G. F. Zakharov threw the full offensive might of his Second White Russian army group against the Germans' attempts to reorganize their frontier line just below the Masurian lakes.

A thundering bombardment from the air supported the Red army attack.

"The waters of the Biebrza ran dark with enemy blood today," a front dispatch to Izvestia said. Zakharov smothered a series of tank counterattacks with his high-powered drive and struck directly in the rear of large enemy forces tied up in the Suwalki triangle (which East Prussia annexed in 1939) by Gen. Cherniakovsky's divisions.

Two Cities Menaced

Not only Grajewo but Lyck in East Prussia, 12 miles to the north, was menaced by the two Russian army groups. Should these communication centers fall, a German withdrawal from the northeastern corner of East Prussia would be imperative.

Enemy casualties at Osowiec are expected to run into the thousands, a front dispatch said.

The Red army continued to squeeze the defenses of Warsaw and fought bitterly for a larger springboard west of the Vistula river in the area, threatening Krakow and Kielce 100 miles south of the Polish capital. Wide advances in the Baltic states gave evidence of the crackup of the Changes In Soldier Voting Law Passed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Senate, insisting that American troops be allowed full access to political news, speedily passed today amendments modifying the anti-propaganda provisions of the soldier voting law under which the Army and Navy have banned numerous books and magazines and some newspapers.

Senate approval of the modifying amendments came shortly after they had been recommended unanimously by the elections committee.

Senator Green (D-RI), elections committee chairman, said the revisions would permit the sale at Army and Navy stores of any newspaper, magazine or book in general circulation in the United States—subject only to the limits of available transportation.

Some had been banned under the existing law on the ground that they contained material calculated to affect the outcome of the November election. The armed services had interpreted the act to prevent their sales at Army or Navy stores, although they could be purchased outside military establishments and delivered to troops through the mails.

The amendments sponsored by Senators Green and Lucas (D-Ill), were approved by a voice vote and now go to the House.

Larger Benefit System Urged

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Immediate action by state governments to enlarge the scope of their unemployment compensation systems, "in both the duration and level of benefits," was recommended today by the House postwar committee.

Asserting this is necessary "in order to meet the reconversion problems that will come with the collapse of Nazi Germany," the committee, headed by Rep. Colmer (D-Miss), submitted legislation to create an office of war mobilization and reconversion.

Without mentioning the current congressional controversy over federalized unemployment compensation versus state controlled systems, the committee said a study had indicated "that if adequate protection is to be provided there should be increases in the duration of benefits and in the weekly amounts in most states."

Funds Said Adequate

It added that the federal social security board had estimated that funds are adequate in most states to provide increased benefits during the reconversion period.

The recommendations were filed as the House began two days of debate on another major postwar measure dealing with disposal of billions of dollars in war-accumulated surpluses.

Strong backing has lined up behind a bill drafted by the House expenditures committee and approved by the rules group. It sets up the office of surplus property administrator and vests in that

Dallas Police Search For Knife-Slayer

DALLAS, Aug. 15. (UP)—Police searched today for the knife-slayer of Lorenzo Munoz Ramirez, 45, whose slashed body was found in a patch of grass near Dallas Monday.

A belief that the man's body had been removed from the scene of the slaying was advanced by Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Decker, who based his reasoning on footprints and evidence that the body had been dragged several feet.

Ramirez had been brutally slashed at the base of the neck and had been stabbed twice.

Primary In Wisconsin Holds Interest Today

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 15 (AP)—A test of the influence of the CIO's Political Action committee shared interest with U. S. Senator Alexander Wiley's fight for renomination on the Republican ticket in today's Wisconsin primary.

The PAC backed State Senator Anthony P. Gawronski against Rep. Thad Wasielewski for the Democratic congressional nomination in the state's populous fourth district (Milwaukee). Another candidate in the fourth district was Former Congressman Raymond J. Cannon.

Voters in the fifth district (Milwaukee) had a similar choice with Clem Kalvelage the PAC-endorsed candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination in a field of four. The incumbent, Howard J. McMurray, was the party's unopposed candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination with CIO-PAC blessing.

Escape Hatch Is Narrowed

Nazi Troops Are Nearly Sealed Off

BY GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15—Allied armor and infantry narrowed the German escape hatch to a little over 10 miles today in the Falaise-Argentan gap and slashed relentlessly at the remnants of von Kluge's trapped forces in Normandy while other Allied troops invaded southern France, doubling the scale of the western European assault.

Bombs and artillery shells have sealed off the gap trapping the German Seventh army estimated to number now from 100,000 to 200,000 men.

Greatest U. S. Force

It was announced that Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley is commander of the U. S. 12th Army group, the greatest American force ever massed in battle. It includes the Third army, commanded by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., who is hitting the comeback trail after the soldier slapping incident in the Sicily campaign, and the First army, Bradley's old command now headed by Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges.

The new landings put occupied France in a 400-mile vise whose jaws were tightening as inexorably as the Normandy trap. The Allied invaders of southern France have the avowed purpose of link-

ON A B-25 MITCHELL BOMBER Over Southern France, Aug. 15.—So far as I could see from a height of 1,000 feet above the beaches where the Allies smashed ashore less than an hour ago no major fighting had yet developed.

As far as 20 miles inland a complete lack of any sign of struggle marked the rugged landscape.

From this vantage point 1,000 feet up the new Allied blows at southern France this morning seemed to be meeting almost no resistance in the preliminary stages.

There was plenty of visual evidence, however, that the preliminary stages of the Allied operation—parachute and glider landings — were carried out successfully.

We came in with the first wave of glider troops to strike southern France. Some miles inland they cut loose from C-47 tow planes and glided down into little meadows between rugged crags just within the coastline.

With the exception of a few which crashed into ditches and fences or turned over on their backs the gliders seemed to make it safely.

Nowhere was there any sign of resistance to them. We sometimes got as low as 200 or 300 feet over the treetops and not a shot was fired at us.

The first sign of movement as scores of gliders skidded to a stop in clouds of dust came from near

'Blood And Guts' Patton Leading U. S. Third Army In France; Senate Confirms Promotion

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15. (AP) — Lt. Gen. George S. Patton jr., hitting the comeback trail after the soldier slapping incident in Sicily, can point to a brilliant drive in Brittany as justification of the faith Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower held in him.

PATTON

Under the cool, reasoned strategy laid down by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who was Patton's subordinate in Sicily the colorful American tank expert has driven his Third army across Brittany and toward Le Mans with a speed no army ever made before.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (UP)—The Senate today confirmed the promotion of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton to the the permanent rank of major general after nearly a year of delay resulting from criticism of his slapping three American soldiers.

Bradley's strategic genius and Patton's driving ability accomplished a feat unique in military campaigning by creating a new army while their forces were actually engaged in an offensive.

Forces Separated

When Bradley launched the great breakout offensive July 25, all American forces were parts of the U. S. First army. Then, as the campaign hit high gear Aug. 1, a small segment was broken off the First army and placed under Patton for the push down the west coast of the Cherbourg peninsula.

New forces piled up on the beaches to the rear and Patton drove the Tihrd army through Coutances, down the coast to Avranches and famed out into Brittany.

Overnight his front expanded from a few miles to hundreds of miles, fed through the narrow corridor down the west coast of the Cherbourg peninsula.

Delicate Situation

It was a delicate military situation and no place for an excessively cautious or a faint-hearted commander. If the corridor was cut, the entire army would be stranded.

Bradley assumed responsibility for the risk and Patton, riding often at the head of his tank columns, turned the delicate situation into a solid victory.

Patton's audacity made many military men gasp. He sent his armored forces driving for Brest, Lorient and Nantes. These cut through disorganized German for-

Topics Shaping Up For Security Talks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Emerging differences between Russia and the United States over inclusion of small nations on the council of the proposed world security organization appear likely to form one of the principal points of discussion at the forthcoming four-power talks here.

Another subject almost certain to evoke prolonged discussion is the most effective and politically practical way to commit the military force of the great nations to preserving peace and fighting aggression whenever the council orders.

Along with these differences of viewpoint which, it is expected, will be resolved without too much difficulty, the Russian, American plans and British plans are understood to offer so many points of common agreement that officials are generally optimistic over the success of the meeting, which begins next Monday.

All Landings Successful; Troops Drive Inland On Wide Front Near Toulon

No Aerial Opposition, Slight Ground Resistance Are Met As Fourth Major Front Increases Pressure On Hitler

BY EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Aug. 15. — The army of France and a great force of battle-hardened Americans and British, struck Hitler on a fourth major front today, invading southern France and successfully completing all their landings along a broad section of Mediterranean beach around Toulon.

(A broadcast from one of the beachheads showed Allied troops had penetrated several miles inland.

(London dispatches said 14,000 troops were landed in the first two hours. Allied bombing operations indicated the landings were centered in the 30-mile Raphael-Cap Camarat area between Toulon and Cannes.)

A special communique a few hours after the blow was struck said beaches along a considerable length of the Rivera had been seized by mid-morning according to schedule with scarcely any ground opposition and no air opposition.

One of the greatest air-borne combat forces ever assembled paved the way for the assault and likewise carried out operations successfully far inland.

The great stab into the "underbelly of Europe," bringing the battle for France to full fury, was backed by more than 800 ships—one of the biggest fleets ever to churn the waters of the Mediterranean, which Mussolini once called his own, and by great air power.

The troops swarmed ashore with the avowed purpose of linking their Mediterranean theater with their front west of Paris where the Allies apparently were on the point of scoring a great victory which might speedily result in the liberation of most of all of France.

Invasion Highlights

GEN. WILSON IN COMMAND

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Mediterranean invasion of south France is under control of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, the Briton who commands Allied forces in the Mediterranean theater.

Sir Henry is in a position parallel to that of Gen. Eisenhower, commander of the western invasion, it was said officially today.

LANDING AREA ISOLATED

ROME, Aug. 15, (AP)—An air force spokesman said today the landing area had been virtually isolated by the destruction of every rail bridge in the Rhone valley from Valence to Marseille—a distance of 120 miles—while the Riviera rail line into Italy had been blocked for several days.

This afternoon Liberators and Fortresses bombed five highway bridges crossing the Rhone between Valence and Aignon and the road leading from the beach to Frejus, near the mouth of the Argens river west of Cannes.

Enemy airfields in the Marseille area appeared to have been knocked out or abandoned.

The Germans apparently had pulled a large part of their effectives, in southern France northward to meet the threat to Marshal Von Kluge's Seventh army.

SERVICE BASE SET UP

ROME, Aug. 15. (AP)—To support the great army which has landed in southern France a big new service and supply organization—a continental base section—has been set up.

Its work includes the rebuilding and operation of ports, operation of maintenance shops and countless rear establishments and handling of the enormous supply lines.

PROFIT BY MISTAKE

ROME, Aug. 15. (AP)—Allied air forces endeavored in their attacks paving the way for the invasion of southern France to avoid a mistake that was made at Cassino.

They used small quick-fused

DEVERS

(A London dispatch said Allied armies in southern France were commanded by American Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, deputy commander in chief of Allied forces in the Mediterranean theater.)

"The army of France is in being again, fighting on its own soil for the liberation of its country with all its traditions of victory behind it. Remember 1918," was the ringing declaration of the commander-in-chief of the invasion force, Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

Seven Infantry Waves Strike

Striking after sunrise, seven waves of infantry splashed ashore in the first two hours and seized their initial objectives with great rapidity at many places along a 125-mile stretch of the Riviera between the great port of Marseille and Nice.

They encountered only the weakest opposition, for enemy defenses had been pulverized by five straight days of a powerful air offensive.

Shortly before dawn a large air-borne combat force descended into the rugged hills which rise from the coastline and went into a grapple with the German defenders for possession of key communication points and commanding vantage points.

The invasion was accompanied by the signal from the French national committee and Allied commanders to all Frenchmen to rise up against their German oppressors and indications were that the well organized underground army of southern France had responded.

Scarcely a shot was fired at the big transport planes and gliders which put the air-borne troops down, and the first returning pilots of the massive fighter plane screen which covered the invasion said not a single enemy plane opposed the early operations.

Later, when Lightnings encountered the first German planes to be seen, three Messerschmitts were shot down without loss.

An Allied spotter plane flew 60 miles inland without sighting a single enemy troop concentration.

Bombers Strike Incessantly

While Allied bombers struck incessantly at objectives inland, the huge invasion fleet of more than 800 battleships and other warships, hurled tons of steel into German coastal defenses.

American, British, French, Canadian, Netherlands, Polish, Greek and Belgian warships covered the swarms of landing craft carrying American veterans of Italy, and French forces which had fought in Italy and North Africa. Most of the air-borne troops were believed to be British.

Experiences gained in the Sicilian, Salerno, Anzio and Normandy landings and weeks of special amphibious exercise were employed as the Allies struck along the great military avenues leading northward across France.

The prodigious invasion effort, involving hundreds of thousands of men and mountains of supplies and equipment, was not far from the mouth of the Rhone river leading northward across France.

Marseille, a city of more than 800,000 population, is 25 miles east of the Rhone mouth and at the edge of a large triangular coastal plane where many important air bases are located.

Nice is less than 20 miles from the Italian frontier. Coming down almost to the coast along most of this 500-mile stretch are the mountains and hills of Provence, and between these two points are the great naval base of Toulon, burial ground of most of the French fleet; the resort of Cannes, and many other famous resorts.

Nazis Locate Landings

(German broadcasts were more specific on what they said was the invasion sector than were Allied announcements. The Germans narrowed the landing area to a 70-mile stretch between Toulon, 30 miles east of Marseille, and Cannes.

Focal point of the strike, the Germans added, was the 16-mile stretch between St. Raphael and Cap Camarat, about midway between Toulon and Cannes.)

The Riviera coast where the landings were made is rugged with hills rising abruptly from the coast and is rockbound in many places. But between these ledges

Optimists Hear Talk On Postwar Aviation

That aviation will show the greatest development of any postwar projects in the United States, was predicted by A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce in speaking at the luncheon of the Optimist club today noon in Lubbock hotel.

Figures are astounding, he said, in what authorities expect from private planes in the future. He said there would probably be some 25,000 private planes in this country within the next few years following the war. He added that 3,500 transport planes would be able to handle all airline business for ten years following the war. He also spoke of the various airlines that have made application to the Civil Aeronautics board for permits to serve Lubbock and the South Plains.

Davis was introduced by L. D. Casey who presided in the absence of M. L. Shepherd, president.

Moderate Cost Due In New Invasion

BY GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Foreign Staff

There are reasons to hope that southern France can be wrested from the Germans without too costly a campaign.

German troops in the area, where partisan resistance has flamed strong and fierce, already were threatened with virtual isolation by the Allied drives from Normandy and Brittany to the heart of France and it was considered unlikely Hitler would have left any strong forces to be cut off so far from the Reich.

Bearing out this supposition were reports from the French-Spanish frontier soon after the Americans broke out of Normandy that the Nazis were pulling out of southwestern France.

Not Heavily Garrisoned

Even before the Normandy invasion it was generally believed that southern France was not so heavily garrisoned as the northern sections which are much closer to Berlin. After the Normandy landings Hitler pulled several divisions from the south in the futile effort to halt the Allied drives.

As an indication of German weakness in the southwestern area, for instance, several hundred maquis raided Bayonne, once one of the strongest garrisons in the region, and dynamite a bridge.

Last part of France to come under Nazi occupation, southern provinces have been partisan hotbeds, and they were counted on to aid, from the interior, the landings in the south.

Principal cities on the French Mediterranean coast are Nice, Cannes, Toulon, Marseille, Avignon, Nimes, Montpellier, Cette, Beziers, Narbonne and Perpignan.

Coast Fortified

Until November, 1942, the southern coast of France was the softest part of the "underbelly" of Europe, but when the Allies landed in Africa Hitler moved in and presumably fortified the coast, although certainly not to the extent of northern France, where fortifications proved much less formidable than pictured by German propaganda.

It is more than 700 airline miles from the Mediterranean coast of France to Berlin and if the Allies are forced to fight all along the way, the route would be difficult.

Almost the only natural avenue for an invasion from the south is the narrow, easily defended Rhone valley between the rugged Cevennes mountains on the west and the lofty Alps on the east. The route leads about 250 miles to the north before turning eastward toward Berlin. Such a route would have to contend with the one-time French Maginot line which may have been converted by now into a German defense wall.

Another river valley leads to the Bay of Biscay. This is the valley of the Caronne which rises in a valley about 50 miles from the Mediterranean and empties into the Atlantic near Bordeaux.

Biddle Denies Charge Of Rail Association

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15 (U.P.)—Attorney General Francis Biddle today denied charges by counsel for the Western Association of Railway executives that a federal department of justice investigation of railroad rates was undertaken for political reasons.

Instead, Biddle said, the association was under investigation by the Justice department's anti-trust division in connection with alleged freight rate discrimination.

Informed that Josep H. Hays, association counsel, had charged in Kansas City yesterday that Biddle would have taken his complaints to the Interstate Commerce commission if te investigation "were anything more than sheer "demagoguery," Biddle said the question was not one of rate reduction and the ICC has "nothing to do with anti-trusts."

Investigation of the freight rates is nearly complete, he added, and has been carried on with the approval of all federal departments concerned.

Layoff Underway At Dallas Plane Plant

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — The Southwest's first large-scale wartime layoff was in progress today at North American Aviation, Inc., as the plant began trimming B-24 Liberator bomber production.

By Wednesday afternoon, 3,689 employes are expected to be terminated as a result of the War department's cutback of B-24 and other aircraft production.

Plant officials said the terminations were being carried out on a seniority basis. Current releases, they said, were of employes hired after May 10 of this year.

Meantime, regional WPB officials disclosed that North American is seriously affected by the nationwide cutback on Liberator production, more heavily affected than other such aircraft builders.

Liberators, P-51 fighters and BT-Texan trainers are produced by the Texas division of North American. The other two types do not come under the aircraft cutback order.

Teen Age Negro Gang Being Investigated

DALLAS, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—Police today investigated the activities of a teen-age negro gang, one of whose members was shot while fleeing from an officer yesterday, after a young white boy was beaten severely and other negroes threatened with their lives.

Four other members of the gang were under arrest and officers sought to link them with a negro group which has attacked several white men in another section of Dallas in recent weeks.

The negro youth was shot when, while running from an officer, he suddenly wheeled and made a motion toward a pocket.

Bans Eased On Civilian Goods

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Rules which will permit business and labor to swing into civilian production when war contracts are curtailed were ordered into effect by the War Production board today.

The action by Chairman Donald M. Nelson will permit individual manufacturers — if they have workers and machinery not needed for war — to produce several hundred consumer items whose production has been prohibited since the start of the war and before.

The list, announced last night, includes a host of office and household articles, but Nelson noted that the continuing stern limitations on manpower and materials will prevent any large increase in civilian goods "for the time being."

Final Order In Plan

The action was the fourth and final order in the program announced by Nelson in mid-June. Opposition immediately flared up in the Army, Navy and War Manpower commission, leading to a major controversy over whether the civilian-goods plan would divert labor from war production.

The dispute ended with agreement that the orders would issue in staggered sequence, the climactic fourth order being deferred until now.

Subject to certain limitations, WPB field offices in all major cities are empowered to make "spot" or local authorizations to manufacturers to go into civilian goods production if they have labor and machinery not needed for war work.

Entitled To Priority

If an eligible manufacturer can make one of a long list of "preferred" items — those selected by WPB as being scarce and badly needed — he is entitled to a priority rating which will help him get materials.

The list of preferred articles includes vacuum cleaners, electric ranges, gas but not electric refrigerators, wringers and mangles but not washing machines, lawn mowers, electric heaters and heating pads, oil burners, bicycles, vitually all types of enameled and cast iron ware, metal office furniture, sewing machines, church goods, electric fans, water heaters and storage batteries.

Simpler items were named as well, including ash cans, coal hods, funnels, pails and buckets, dinner pails, wash tubs, enameled percolators, egg beaters, clothes hangers, pot scourers, carpet sweepers, wash boards, electric irons, hair pins and bobbie pins.

Trap In Normandy

ing up with the Normandy victors.

Gap Is Narrowed

As the American, British and French troops poured onto the French Mediterranean coast reportedly against little resistance, the same combination-plus Canadians—gradually was narrowed about half its size the "coffin salient in Normandy containing the remains of the Germans' main defensive effort.

Little movement was observed in the escape gap overnight and it appeared that von Kluge was assembling the remaining trapped forces—possibly in the slim hope that he could fight an effective battle but more likely because further withdrawal was impossible.

More Towns Captured

A half-dozen more towns fell as the drawstring tightened all around the Normandy pocket. The Americans invested Ger, eight miles east of Mortain, and Domfront, 15 miles southeast. Mortain formerly was the western tip of the German salient.

The Canadians, topping their 6,000-yard assault yesterday with a new surge on a two-mile front, captured Epany and Hill 184 and advanced within 2½ miles of Falaise, sweeping up at least 1,000 prisoners.

A front dispatch said the value of Falaise was all but lost to the Germans since the Canadians from positions on high ground north of the city dominated escape routes eastward to Lisueux and Paris.

Patton's American Third army on the southern side of the trap now is only a little over eight miles from Falaise. Units of this army were fighting in the bypassed town of Argentan, 13 miles south of Falaise.

Kenneth Dixon

an overturned glider which apparently was badly wrecked. A small machine moved beetle-like from under the wing of a nearby glider and headed toward the one in trouble.

"There goes the first airborne jeep into action in southern France," said Cpl. Bill Luneback of Chicago, the bomber's 22-year-old radio operator.

Gun Flashes Lacking

"Everything must be going okay," he said with a grin.

Along the coast and out at sea there was a complete lack of gun flashes or any other sign of action. Although we only traversed the northern sector of the beachhead and, due to fleecy clouds and the low altitude could not observe the entire assault area, still we were unable to note anything resembling stiff resistance.

When I last flew over this sector some two weeks ago the entire coast line was alive with flak. This morning, although hundreds of Allied planes were operating over the entire area I did not see a single one shot down.

One Glider Disintegrated

Once we thought we were in a flak zone when one glider apparently disintegrated in the air. This, however, was still far from the coast of France and there was no apparent explanation for it.

Pieces flew in all directions. The bodies of men aboard seemed like giant scarecrows as they were hurled into space, standing out starkly for a moment against the red sunrise and then tumbling down to splash into the quiet sea.

While it was impossible to check with perfect accuracy the terrain which previously had been marked out on the map, it seemed from just overhead that all troops had been landed on or near designated spots.

As we flew over the inland area every previously planned landing spot already was well-marked. However, most of the marking was unnecessary because of the thousands of parachutes outlinging the areas.

Chinese Intensify Attacks

Chinese forces intensified attacks on Japanese who took Hengyang from them last week and heavy fighting was general in the area. The Japanese are trying to close a gap in the Hankow-Canton railway south of Hengyang, and the Chinese are battling to prevent that by retaking the city.

Lungling and Tengchung in Yunnan province southwest of Hengyang were under strong Chinese attack. Their objective was to clear the Japanese out of these cities guarding the Burma road.

Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso called a special session of the Japanese diet for Sept. 5 to discuss the war situation which, from his standpoint, looked none too good.

Rep. Sumners Called Back To Washington

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (AP) — Rep. Hatton W. Sumners, (D., Tex.), chairman of the House judiciary committee, left by plane for Washington last night, summoned back to the nation's capital for congressional action on pending postwar legislation.

The veteran congressman, who won renomination last month for his 17th term from the Dallas district, cut short a Colorado truot-fishing vacation to return to his Washington post.

Sumners took back to Washington a warning from Dallas county political sources that he will face fairly strong GOP opposition in the November general election. The Republican nominee from Dallas is Charles D. Turner, past president of the Dallas bar association.

Agreement Due On French Rule

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP) — The United States, Britain and the French national committee are ready to sign formal agreements on civil administration of liberated French territory by the committee, it was learned today.

The agreements are being initialed by officials here, and dispatched to France where they will be finally signed by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, representing the United States, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, representing Britain. This signing is expected in a few days.

The United States is signing at the "military level" thus, one official explained, the agreement lacks the status of a treaty and is not subject to the time-consuming process of Senate ratification. Also this method avoids any appearance of a political committment to the French committee.

Eisenhower Top Authority

The arrangements provide that General Dwight D. Eisenhower will have supreme authority in France so long as the war continues there.

Eisenhower is to turn over to the French for civil administration all other rear areas. It is up to him to fix the limits of the military and non-military areas.

One unexpected clause in the agreements, which was written in at the insistence of American conferees, provides there should be no French censorship of Allied correspondents in France. That means that only military censorship can be applied.

Signing of the agreements in conjunction with the swift advance of Allied armies in France is taken here to mean that the French committee, under General Charles de Gaulle, may open its own capital in metropolitan France soon, moving from Algiers.

Large Navy Hospital Planned At Houston

HOUSTON, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—Construction of a new $6,000,000 Navy hospital, comprising an estimated 35 buildings, will probably begin early this fall, chamber of commerce and Navy officials announced today.

Deeds to the 117-acre hospital site—within a few blocks of a projected city-state medi al center to be completed after the war—have been turned over to the Navy and a large force of architects is working night and day on plans.

The hospital proper will have 1,000 beds, making it among the nation's largest. The Navy said the staff will include 50 doctors, 100 nurses and some 300 medical corpsmen.

Site for the hospital was purchased with contributions of $722,700 obtained from 353 residents of Houston in a drive sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

Change In Italian Cabinet Said Due

ROME, Aug. 15 (U.P.)—Well informed sources said today that a behind the scenes reshuffling of the Italian cabinet is taking place which will include the appointment of War Minister Gen. Taddeo Orlando as premier.

It was predicted that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who served as premier and foreign minister after the fall of Benito Mussolini, would be named foreign minister in the new cabinet.

There was no indication as to what part, if any, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill was playing in the reshuffle. Churchill's activities here were not revealed.

Second Place Scrap Feature In National

Pirates And Reds In Tight Battle

(By The Associated Press)

Lost in the shuffle of the St. Louis Cardinals victory sweep toward a Labor day flag clinching, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds today were locked in a second place scrap that had all the earmarks of a battle royal.

Tied for runnerup spot and second dough in the World Series split, the Pirates and Red had the field all to themselves, running due south from first place St. Louis to fourth place Chicago.

Pittsburgh took two decisions from the Boston Braves yesterday, a regularly scheduled game behind Preacher Roe's two-hit pitching, 5-0, after Rip Sewell had hurled them a 12-inning 7-6 win in a "suspended" game held over from a 5-5 8th inning tie on July 2. Red Barrett was charged with both defeats.

Reds Stop Giants

Cincinnati couldn't help themselves from being tied for second as they won on their only chance, stopping New York, 6-3 as Bucky Walters became the first National leaguer to notch win No. 17.

Mort Cooper protected the Cards' 17½ game lead by scattering nine Brooklyn hits for a 4-2 St. Louis triumph over Hal Gregg. The Phils continued to take the wind out of Chicago's second-place aspirations with Ken Raffensberger outpitching Les Fleming, 6-1. Despite the loss, the Cubs remained in the first division, thanks to the Giants' slump.

O'Neill Hurls Winner

Young Emmett O'Neill continued to do his best to ease the pain of Tex Hughson's departure by tossing the Boston Red Sox to a 4-hit, 5-1, edge over St. Louis.

New York pulled one out of the bag to trim Chicago, 2-1, in 13 innings.

Bobo Newsom spoiled Detroit's visit by pitching the A's to a 7-5 night game verdict and Washington nosed out Cleveland for the third successive time, 8-5.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP)—For the benefit of baseball teams that are wondering where they'll train next spring, we offer this report from Oklahoma U., which recently finished a summer football session and will start again in 90-degree weather in September: . . . "Trainer Ted Owen is stuck on hot weather for conditioning because (1) players can be reduced to their normal playing weight faster and get in shape faster, (2) players can recover faster from 'Charleys' and other injuries, (3) it is much easier for a team trained in heat to go North and play in colder climes than for northern teams to come South and play in our heat, (4) players who train in heat rarely contract colds. They don't chill . . . interesting, perhaps, but the ball clubs will continue to train where Judge Landis tells them, regardless of temperatures.

OPTIMISM DEPT.

Vince DiMaggio, who is having a slight argument with Owner Bill Benswanger of the Pirates over a $9.97 dinner check (the Bucs, limit is $4.50) says: "If you think I eat too much, trade me." . . . Where does he think they'll find any takers since that tab became public? . . . Ben Chapman, who hopes to manage a Brooklyn farm club when his tour of duty as a Dodger pitcher ends, reports: . . . . "I've worked under Joe McCarthy, Bob Shawkey, Miller Huggins, Bucky Harris, Oscar Vitt, Jimmy Dykes and Joe Cronin. With this experience and what I hope to obtain from Leo Durocher, the next time I manage a ball club it should be better than class B." . . . Wonder what Ben can learn from Leo that he didn't already know when he earned himself a year's suspension for belting an umpire?

MONDAY MATINEE

After signing as assistant coach of the Green Bay Packers, big George Trafton sold his managerial contract with Lightweight Willie Joyce to Charley Schuster of Hollywood . . . And Silent Sam Lampe has sold Slugger White to Benny Trotta and will concentrate on the tavern business . . . For the first time, all of the Naval academy's football games, except the Army scrap, will be broadcast under commercial sponsorship this fall . . . Ed Ray, the young Texas tennis star, will enroll at Andover academy this fall.

SERVICE DEPT.

Two of last season's Camp LeJeune footballers fought with the Second Marine division at Saipan. Lieuts. Alfred Mannino (Iowa end) and Alex Leugo (Purdue center) led platoons into the thick of the fighting . . . Roger William Smith, who rode some 200 winning horses on the West coast, is a signalman 2/c shipping out from the New Orleans armed guard center and reports he gets a bigger thrill out of his trips to sea than he ever did from booting in a longshot winner . . . A candidate for the Camp Ellis, Ill., football team is Corp. Tok Nitahara, an American of Japanese descent who played for Long Beach, Calif., junior college.

All-Stars Cop Tourney Opener Over Keith's

The Lubbock Army Air field All-Stars packed too much power for Keith's Wizzers Monday afternoon in the opening game of the city softball tournament and romped off with a 26 to 4 victory in the free hitting contest.

The winners used three pitchers during the game. The trio limited the Wizzers to four hits, one of them a home run in the first inning with none on by Hood. Head started the game for the winners, followed by Hollis and Hayes.

Markey pitched for the Wizzers and was hammered for 26 hits, one of them a homer in the fourth inning with two men on base by Massey.

Dobbs Shines As All Star Gridmen Drill

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 15 (AP)—The passing of Lt. Glenn Dobbs, former Tulsa ace whose aerials helped scuttle the Washington Redskins last year, featured today's drill by the College All-Stars for their football encounter with the Chicago Bears at Dyche stadium here Aug. 30.

Dobbs hurled long and short passes with amazing accuracy in the Collegiate squad's fifth practice session. Dobbs shared the tailback position with Sgt. Charley Trippi of Georgia and Lt. Bob Ruman of Arizona as three teams alternated in testing wide end runs and passes.

Fifty-four players attended today's workout, including such new arrivals as Pvt. Goble Bryant, Lt. Pete Layden, Texas fullback.

Odessa Golfer Gets 82 In PGA Tourney

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 15 (AP)—Jimmy Gamewell of Odessa, Texas, shot a first-round score of 46-36—82 yesterday in the 36-hole qualifying test for the 1944 national P. G. A. championship.

Other scores included:

W. A. Stackhouse, Seguin, Texas, 38-35—73.

Hampton Morgan, Abilene, Tex., withdrew.

BASKETBALL WITH PUNCH

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 15 Navy and Marine trainees at Pennsylvania State College are playing a new and so far nameless sport—a combination of basketball and boxing.

The players don 16-ounce gloves and try for haymakers when any opponent attempts to dribble or shoot for the basket.

It teaches a man "to take a punch in the mouth," says Lt. Harry Light, former William and Mary Athlete and now Navy V-12 physical director.

The harpsichord in the music room at Mount Vernon was imported by George Washington.

Norton Expects Mediocre Year

Mentor Sees No Flag For Aggies

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (AP) — Texas A. and M.'s headman, cheerful except about football prospects) Homer Norton, just doesn't look for lightning to strike twice — at least in consecutive years.

Homer says he will have a bigger team at Aggieland this year than last but it'll be lots slower.

He comes up with four lettermen, however, and that's four more than he had in 1943 when the Kiddie Korps battled to the final game for the Southwest conference championship.

Three-Way Fight Seen

Back at Aggieland will be Charley Shira and Monte Moncrief, tackles: Damon Tassos, guard, and Bob Butchofsky, blocking back.

Yet Homer relegates his Aggies to the second division. He sees Texas, Rice and Arkansas scrapping for the championship with Southern Methodist probably winding up next and Texas Christian just above the Cadets in the six-team race.

But Norton expressed surprise last year when A. and M. made a great showing with its high school alumni — and he's a guy who likes to be surpriser that way. "Nobody will beat us badly and we may win some games," he said.

Flight B Wins 4-2; Keeps League Lead

With Hayes outpitching Squires in a well played hurlers' duel, the Flight B softball team continued at the head of the Lubbock Army Air field post league race Monday afternoon by winning 4 to 2 over the Medics.

The Finance Department nosed out Flight A, 8-7, in another close battle that found Smith pitching the victory and Hollis for the losers. Baker pitched Section B to a 7-to-1 victory over the Administrative Officers, with Maj. Patton on the hill for the losers. Section E lost a free-hitting thriller from Section A in the remaining game. When the smoke of the battle had cleared away Section A was a 24-to-23 winner. Clow pitched for the winners and Moore for the losers.

Kinard, Manders To Captain Pro Eleven

ABILENE, Aug. 15 (AP)—Frank (Bruiser) Kinard and Clarence (Pug) Manders were appointed co-captains of the Brooklyn Tigers of the National Professional Football League by Coach Pete Cawthon today.

The Tigers are working out here until Aug. 26 when they play an All-Star service team before departing for a Western tour.

Kinard, all-pro tackle last fall, will play end this season. Manders is a fullback.

EXPECT BIG FIELD

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 15 (AP)—A field of more than 100 players is indicated for the annual Texas Junior golf tournament scheduled to open at Brackenridge Park course here Aug. 28, Tournament Manager Murray Brooks announces.

Brooks based his calculations on a good early registration and knowledge gained through years of handling the tournament.

'Free French' Middleweight To Stage Boxing Tour Of U. S.

BY JACK CUDDY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—Marcel Cerdan of the "Free French" navy, middleweight champion of Europe, will arrive in the United States within the next two weeks to fight Jacob Lamotta at Madison Square Garden on Sept. 22 or 29.

The Lamotta bout will open Cerdan's goodwill fistic campaign in the United States and Canada, according to Armand Vincent, Montreal promoter who has the Algerian knockout artist under contract.

Cerdan, first "European" fighter to visit the United States since Pearl Harbor, will fly from Casa Blanca, Morocco, to New York. He has a priority on transportation, since he is coming in a semi-official capacity as a representative of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's He is at Casa Blanca now.

Escaped Nazi Prison

Mauling Marcel, who amazed Jack Sharkey and Fidel la Barba with his prowess as he won the big inter-Allied boxing tournament at Algiers last February, also amazed the Nazis six months after they took Paris, when he and two Navy companions escaped from La Grande Caserne St. Denis prison camp in Paris and crossed the English channel in a rowboat, to join the De Gaulists. They spent two and a half days on the rough channel.

Cerdan, who was born in Sidi Bel Abbes, Algeria, 26 years ago, was a professional fighter before the war. He fought for the late Jeff Dickson in Paris. According to Vincent, he has had 103 professional bouts, and lost but two—both on low blows in Paris. More than half of his victories were knockouts, achieved partially by his terrific body punching.

Handsome, Well Proportioned

Vincent describes Marcel as a handsome, beautifully proportioned chap with curly black hair and large dark eyes. He registers 157 pounds on five feet 10½ inches. Despite his good looks, Vincent emphasizes, he does not try to emulate Georges Carpentier, the "orchid man," who was a fancydan with the ladies. Carpentier came over from France in 1921 and was knocked out by Jack Dempsey, after attracting the first $1,000,000 gate. Cerdan is happily married. His wife will not make the trip; however, Marcel will be accompanied by his manager, Lucien Roupp.

To insure the success of Cerdan's campaign, Vincent yesterday signed a contract giving Mike Jacobs exclusive rights to his services in the United States and Canada. Pete Reilly, veteran New York boxing manager, will act as Cerdan's American agent.

Had Many Offers

Explaining the Jacobs contract, slender, middle-aged Vincent of the small black mustache said, "I had offers or Cerdan's services from promoters all over the United States and Canada; but I thought it best to tie up with Jacobs because he did such an excellent job with Joe Louis."

If Cerdan beats Lamotta of the Bronx, as expected, Vincent is confident that the U. S. Navy will permit Middleweight Champion Tony Zale to defend his title against the Algerian in a big international goodwill bout. Cerdan's schedule will include a war-bond bout at Montreal in October or November.

Vincent concluded, "I have seen Cerdan fight many times. He is one of the greatest fighters ever developed in Europe — where he did practically all of his pre-war boxing. American fight fans will love him because of his punching and his modest personality. He will make many friends for the Free French."

Amarillo Field Set For Grid Workouts

AMARILLO, Aug. 15 (Special)—Daily workouts for football team at Amarillo Army Air Field began Monday, as the B-17 and B-29 Mechanic School gets set for first season against outside competition.

With uniforms available for the first time, rigorous workouts and tough scrimmage sessions are slated for the team, according to Maj. Douglas Fessenden, coach at Amarillo Field, and former director of intercollegiate athletics at University of Montana.

On Sept. 16, Amarillo Field opens its ten-game schedule against the University of New Mexico Loboes.

The Amarillo Field eleven is slated to meet two Lubbock service teams this year. Amarillo Field meets South Plains Army Air Base at Lubbock on Sept. 24 and Lubbock Army Air Base on Sept. 30.

JAYCEES, PURINA WIN

The junior baseball nines of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in the American loop and the Purina Mills in the National moved up in their respective races Monday afternoon on forfeits. The Jaycees were handed the game scheduled for Monday with the Kiwanis club while Purina Mill's win was chalked up at the expense of Sears and Roebuck.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says the woman has very little to worry about who worries about what she will wear.

"The average man needs a boss, a chaperone, a nurse, a guardian angel, a father confessor, a godmother, somebody to pat him on the back and somebody to kick him in the pants," declares a contemporary editor.

Well, ain't the average man married?

WHO'S COMPLACENT?

By Sophie Kerr

NOW and then I hear a criticism —in a very selfrighteous voice —that we Americans are too complacent about this war. I do not believe it. I have not found one complacent person among those I know. Certainly there is no complacency in the thousands on thousands of American homes where a service flag hangs in the window. There is no complacency among the thousands on thousands of war workers, either paid or volunteer. There is no complacency in the serious young faces of the men and women in uniform.

Miss Kerr

It is not the American way to parade our doubts or difficulties. We pride ourselves on "eating our own smoke," on "keeping a stiff upper lip," on "not beefing," and "not griping," on being "pokerfaced." We know that we will win this war, we trust our fighting men. The look of coolness and calm we wear is NOT COMPLACENCY, but a reasoned, sane and honest CONFIDENCE.

The Berlin radio recently reported: "Our troops are fighting their way backward;" and from Tokyo comes the statement, "We are luring the enemy toward us."

The Axis certainly is cooperating splendidly with United Nations efforts to carry the war home to them!

That Man on Avenue Q says to the average person, almost any question is like the moon in that he can see only one side of it.

The reason most people can stand adversity better than they can good fortune is because they have had considerably more practice in standing adversity.

WHEN a man encompassed by "the dangerous age" gets out of town and starts looking around, he may be sure his sins will find him out, no matter how far away from home he may be at the time of his meanderings.

The Plainsman hadn't intended to tell this story, but Carey Pryor, of Lubbock, who saw it all happen, gives us our choice of telling it—or letting him tell it. Naturally, we choose the former.

The whole embarrassing situation grew out of a flirtation.

Returning from Detroit by way of Chicago, we happened to have a Pullman seat facing the drawing room, door of which was conveniently open. The train hadn't gotten out of Chicago before we noticed, in the drawing room, one of the cutest girls we've seen in a long time. Despite being fat, 40 and baldheaded, The Plainsman naturally perked up at the sight of this pulchritudinous young lady.

She smiled, and we smiled. Then the smiling was repeated—and we winked.

Next thing we knew the young lady was out of the drawing room and seated at our side. Two minutes later, despite the crowded Pullman, she was in our lap, with one soft, round arm possessively around our neck, engaging in conversation.

Hot dog! The old Plainsman —The Casanova of the Cow Country!

BEFORE any of our more straight-laced readers have heart failure, let us hasten to say that the young lady, returning to her California home from a visit to her Chicago Uncle Louie, was well chaperoned. She was accompanied by her mother and another lady, whom we eventually discovered was her maiden aunt. Neither of her chaperones seemed to mind, in the least, the little flirtation which was rapidly turning into a necking party in front of everybody on the car.

So if they didn't mind, we didn't either. That is, we didn't mind until Mr. Pryor—who was in another car and had heard we were aboard—showed up to chat.

Now there's no gay Lothario like an old gay Lothario and when you get two of 'em together, with a pretty girl as the bait, almost anything can happen and usually does.

Mr. Pryor will probably deny this, but his skirts aren't entirely clean, either, in this matter of the Pullman flirtation. Although Mrs. Pryor was on the train, Mr. Pryor unashamedly unloosed all the wiles he possessed in an effort to take our girl away from us. But Bonnie—that was her name, Bonnie Balch—was faithful. She was enough of a politician to encourage Mr.

Feminine Viewpoint

BY RUTH MILLETT
(Copyright, 1944, For The Journal)

THE American soldier has been helped to understand the people and the customs of the foreign countries where he has been stationed, by booklets issued to him before he landed.

MILLETT

The booklets couldn't tell him everything he needed to know in order to get along with the ease of a diplomat — but they could point out some things he shouldn't under any circumstances say or do. And they could tell him bluntly what his attitude toward the people should be.

The Army and Navy are learning a lot about psychology of the men who are fighting this war.

Their psychiatrists know pretty well what adjustments these men will have to make when they return to civilian life. They know what effect combat has had on them. They know what they hope for and what they fear when the time comes for them to pick up the threads or normal living.

Families think now that everything will be perfect if their men just return home alive. They naturally aren't worrying about any period of adjustment, or any problems, or any difficulties in understanding.

MUST EXPECT CHANGE

BUT that is because, down in their hearts, they are expecting their men to come home to them essentially unchanged. Something ought to prepare them for the changes that may have taken place. They ought to have a little knowledge of what to expect and how to behave toward war weary service men.

It isn't really enough for them to count on their love guiding them. They'll need some expert advice — and most of them won't get it, unless Uncle Sam gives it to them.

Wouldn't it be a good idea, then, for Uncle Sam to have these experts write a booklet, not in technical language but in language Bill's mother or his wife could understand, explaining as much as possible just what the returning soldier is apt to be like and how his family should treat him, and send these booklets to the families of returning service men?

"There is nothing as lonesome as a dead tree or an empty night club," according to a Missouri editor. What about a stranger spending Sunday afternoon at a hick town hotel.

Pryor from time to time, but she was our girl.
He didn't get to first base.

EVERYTHING went swell for hours and then Bonnie loosed a bombshell that rocked the Pullman.

People who hadn't smiled since Pearl Harbor roared with laughter. For, out of a clear sky, Bonnie asked us:

"How would you like to be my Aunt Ada's boy friend?"

We gulped. Aunt Ada was fiftyish, eminently respectable, certainly with no romantic interest in us and, if we're any guesser, never has had any romantic feelings toward any member of the opposite sex.

"Er, ah—not at the moment, Bonnie," we whispered in reply.

"Answer, 'yes,' or 'no,'" insisted Bonnie, as the Pullmanites howled.

"Er, not right now, Bonnie."

"Answer me, 'yes,' or 'no,'" Bonnie pressed, and finally we brought forth a resounding "No!" which added to the general hilarity of the occasion.

Carey Pryor swears we turned red, yellow and green, alternately, like a traffic light. Probably we did. It hacked us, of course, but it was good training for what came a little later when Bonnie, in the same carrying voice, suggested we take her to the bathroom. Fact is, her latter suggestion didn't bother us—or, we suppose, Aunt Ada—nearly as much as her first idea.

Oh, yes, Bonnie, incidentally, was only four years old and as cute and as pretty as any little girl you ever saw. And smart, too. For when we were talking to her about her daddy, she gave her fellow passengers another good guffaw when she clearly remarked:

"My daddy's nice, but my mama says he is a wolf!"

We hope to see Bonnie again some day—when she's about 20, say. For we still remember the big hug and kiss she gave us when our paths divided.

Bonnie's got possibilities!

Hold Everything

"It doesn't matter how well you're doing—I was promised my old job back!"

Today's Journal Editorial

HERE IS SOME COMMON SENSE

At least one statement in the War department's announcement of an aircraft manufacturing cutback the other day may have had the sound of common sense to many people.

In fact, it may have sounded so sensible that many people may wonder whether the same idea hasn't already been tried, and if not, why not?

In a general way, the revised schedule appears to call for the curtailing of production of types of aircraft not urgently required now, and for stepping up the output of planes like Superfortresses, for which there is a great and growing need.

The announcement continued that, in carrying out one phase of this program, the plan calls for curtailing certain types of production in the Los Angeles area, where a critical labor shortage is reported, and for stepping up output in some of the plants of the Dallas-Fort Worth district, to absorb an anticipated early surplus of workers.

In other words, the idea seems to be to move the job to the workers instead of trying to move huge numbers of workers to jobs.

It may be that this plan of operation for war industry has been followed, when possible, in the past. It may be that it has been and still is impractical as a solution for labor problems in the vast majority of war industries of most kinds. On the other hand, some of the bungling in the past supports the suspicion that the scheme hasn't been tried because no one thought of anything so practical and so obvious. Certainly, suggestions have been few—if there have been any at all—that agencies like the War Manpower commission have contemplated any such plan, even at this time when curtailment is the rule in a great many industries. Instead of that, WMC still is plugging for more power via the universal labor draft, and is accused of actually trying how to put that sort of a draft into effect even now.

WMC still seems to be committed to the idea that men must be moved to jobs, even though the War department is in the process of demonstrating that it might be easier, more practical and more satisfactory to move jobs to the men who need them. The War department's program is going to be worth watching in its development.

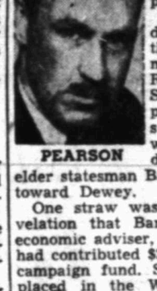

Baruch Said Veering Toward Dewey Camp

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — Friends of gaunt, grey Bernie Baruch are chuckling over how he always has a political anchor out to windward. They describe him as the cat with nine lives—always landing right side up politically. Now it looks as if he were warming up to Dewey.

When Franklin Roosevelt was up for nomination in Chicago back in the almost forgotten days of 1932, Baruch fought to the last ditch for the late Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland. Bernie was Ritchie's financial godfather. After the convention, he switched to FDR, plunked $77,000 into the Roosevelt campaign chest.

PEARSON

More recently, despite the fact that he was one month's host to Roosevelt at his South Carolina plantation, straws in the wind have indicated that elder statesman Baruch is veering toward Dewey.

One straw was the recent revelation that Baruch's long-time economic adviser, Fred Searls, jr., had contributed $2,000 to Dewey's campaign fund. Searls had been placed in the White House by Baruch as adviser to War Mobilizer Byrnes.

Last week, further persuasive evidence reached the White House regarding Bernie Baruch's next political jump. Gathering for the opening of Darryl Zanuck's new film "Wilson," came ex-Gov. James Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for President in 1920 who was defeated by Harding; also Albert Lasker, who managed Harding's campaign but who has been a close friend of Governor Cox's since.

Comparing notes on their way to the "Wilson" opening, Governor Cox remarked:

"Bernie Baruch has been trying to tell me what a great man Dewey is and what a fine President he would be. I used all the arguments on him, asking him to tell me how Dewey would be able to negotiate with Stalin and Churchill. But I couldn't convince Bernie. He had almost a fervor in his eye when he talked about Dewey."

"Yes," replied Albert Lasker, "that's exactly what Baruch has been trying to tell me."

BEST FRIEND

Best friend Governor Dewey has inside or around the White House today is not Bernie Baruch, nor even Fred Searls, jr. Actually, Dewey's best White House friend, in the opinion of other presidential advisers, is General "Pa" Watson, FDR's own closest secretary.

Pa is not for Dewey, but he is accused of playing into Dewey's hands by needling the President against Wendell Willkie.

Other White House intimates have been reminding the President how Willkie went down the line for him on taxes, on foreign policy and on every phase of the war, say that he could swing a million or so votes if he were brought closer to the White House. But their work is undone by genial Pa Watson, the man who sees the President most, who privately considers Willkie a liberal not to be trusted, and who doesn't hesitate to give the President his views.

If Roosevelt and Willkie get together, it will not be Pa Watson's fault.

Meanwhile, the Dewey camp is still sending all sort of ambassadors of good will to Willkie, trying to win him over to support for the Republican ticket. Latest report is that Willkie can be Secretary of State if he joins up. So far, he hasn't budged; but if Pa Watson keeps on, he may.

LUMBER HOLDUP

WITH lumber one of the scarcest commodities in the whole war picture, a situation is boiling to a head inside the War Production board wherein the lumber division has put obstacles in the path of developing 35,000 acres of choice pine near San Francisco.

The peculiar delays have caused tempers to boil inside the government and may result in some nasty accusations on Capitol Hill. Inside fact is that the Army and the Navy both want the tract developed; the Office of defense transportation has indicated its okay, also the throw in some adjacent government tracts.

Nevertheless, WPB lumber division officials, some of them previously with big lumber companies, continue to hold up approval.

The tract of timber is in Tehama county, California. It consists of 765,000,000 feet, chiefly ponderosa pine, the most critical of all lumber. For several years, it was in litigation, and previously the Diamond Match company, the Winton Lumber company and other big outfits tried to buy it.

Now A. B. Angle, a small businessman, is trying to cut it, and has secured the definite support of the Smaller War Plants corporation to the tune of $2,100,000.

OKAY SPURNED

HOWEVER, Smaller War Plants cannot act without the okay of the WPB lumber division, and here Angle has got nowhere. The lumber division is supposed to approve projects okayed by the Army or Navy, and in this case Capt. W. J. Hines, U. S. Navy, San Francisco office, wrote to Philip Boyd, head of the lumber division, asking him to "give early consideration to this application." Also Col. Fred G. Sherill, lumber procurement officer for the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission in Washington, telephoned H. E. Holman of the lumber division, telling him he considered the project a good one and was ready to write him a letter to that effect if desired.

Holman, however, spurned the Army's okay.

Later Holman, talking to an official of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, accidentally dropped a remark which may be the giveaway as to why the big lumber boys in the WPB lumber division don't want the Tehama tract developed.

"The competition would be too tough," Holman remarked, then suddenly corrected himself. "I mean, the competition in getting equipment."

However, second-hand equipment to cut the tract is already available, and the WPB lumber moguls know it. They have taken another delaying step by sending Huntington Taylor to make a manpower survey of the area, despite the fact that this is the business of the War Manpower commission, not the WPB.

Meanwhile, lumber continues one of the scarcest war materials in the nation, much more acute than steel or aluminum.

NOTE—Chief of the lumber division is Philip Boyd of the giant Weyerhaeuser Co., one of the biggest in the country. Assistant chief is Jack Winton of the Winton Lumber Co., which once tried to buy the Tehama tract.

BETTER BREAK

THE War department finally has decided to give GI Joes returning from overseas a real break.

For months, the War department has been deluged with complaints from returning doughboys that they were herded into camps, given brief furloughs, and then shipped out again without even so much as a physical examination. Some vets have protested that, after being overseas for a long time, they couldn't even get furloughs after returning to this country.

Meanwhile, returning Air Corps men have received magnificent treatment. Returning combat fliers have been sent to rest homes and rehabilitation centers, are handled with kid gloves, given the best of food, medical treatment and psychiatric attention.

Now, General Marshall at long last has taken steps to equalize things for the boys who fight on the ground. He has signed an order under which General Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces, will take over scores of large hotels and summer resorts where returning "dogfaces" can go for rest and rehabilitation. All members of the Army Ground Forces returning from overseas will be eligible for this special care, will also be assured psychiatric advice and reasonable furloughs.

By PAUL WHITEMAN
Famous Orchestra Leader

THIS SUMMER of 1944 happens to be my silver jubilee anniversary. Yup, I have been beating my way through the world of music for 25 years now.

Always, since that day in 1919 when my first nine-piece Jazz Band made its debut at the Alexandra hotel in Los Angeles, I have aimed at fostering the kind of music which is completely American, at glorifying the works of American composers and giving them a place in the sun. What our little band had to sell then was "symphonic jazz"—ragtime with the kinks ironed out of it.

Mary Pickford was at the Alexandra that openinng night, and so were Douglas Fairbanks, sr., Rudolph Valentino, Wallace Reid, Charlie Chaplin and many another movie notables of bygone days. They spread the good word about us and we clicked. From then on in, we were a lot less leery about doing experimental stuff. My search for the unusual and exciting in American music and musicians has led me into plenty of blind alleys and dead-end streets, but more frequently the results have made musical history.

There was the time in Los Angeles when I had an evening to kill at a movie show. Grauman's Chinese was handy, so I dropped in. I wasn't in the mood for vaudeville, and I particularly was not in the mood for the two gangling boys who ambled out onto the stage and draped themselves in front of a battered piano.

But when those kids started to sing, I listened. Two days later I had lured them away from vaudeville, teamed them with Harry Baris of my orchestra, and got them on the billboards as The Rhythm Boys. You've heard about those boys since. One was Al Rinker, the other Harry Lillis Crosby, better known as "Bing."

I found Mildred Bailey in a Los Angeles honkey-tonk. She couldn't get a decent job for two reasons: she was too heavy for a glamor-gal, and she had a way of singing a song that none of the tradition-haunted bands would touch. Her overweight certainly didn't bother your rotund correspondent. I signed her.

Rix Biederbecke, the jazz immortal, wandered into a rehearsal one day and asked if I would please hear him play. I heard him, and signed him. Bix' tragic death was a blow to the music world. We played in his home town a few years afterwards, and it was a race as to who would break down first—the members of the audience or the members of the orchestra.

THE Dorsey Brothers, Benny Goodman, Matty Malneck Jack Teagarden, Jane Froman, Henry Busse, Ramona and dozens of others were with me early in their careers.

I made plenty of mistakes, more than I care to remember. One of them, a beaut, was the time I hired a green youngster named Morton Downey, merely because he had a handsome Irish face. I had him sitting in the brass section holding a saxophone (which he couldn't play for beans) for months, merely for the glamor of it. He kept asking me to let him sing, and I kept telling him to go back and tell his troubles to the phony saxophone. He was a persuasive devil, and I finally broke down and let him warble. I should have done it a lot sooner.

It is not only the performing artists who add to the reputation of American music. The composers do more than their part, too. There used to be a fellow in my band named Grofe—an excellent musician, with only one bad habit. He incurred the anger of every restaurateur in every town the band visited by scribbling musical notes on tablecloths.

I urged him to use manuscript paper instead. He did, and out of theose manuscripts came "Theme and Variation on Noises in a Garage," which I introduced at Carnegie Hall in 1926, "Grand Canyon Suite," "Mardi Grass," and the other Grofe modern classics. Sometimes it was easy to get composers to work, other times it was tough.

IN one case, that of George Gershwin, it was just a matter of building up self-confidence in a talented boy who had been kicked from pillar to post by the hard-boiled denizens of Tin Pan Alley. Gershwin was an obscure flunky for a song-publishing firm when I met him. He turned out dozens of songs, but no one would touch them—they were too unusual, too unfamiliar to fit into the standard groove. I tried to encourage this germ of originality in the young composer, suggesting that he try his hand at something more ambitious than a sixteen-bar ballad.

The result was "Rhapsody in Blue." My band introduced this together with Zez Congrey's "Kitten on the Keys" and four original Victor Herbert Serenades, at Aeolian Hall in February, 1924. We called the evening "An Experiment in Modern Music." It turned out to be a noble experiment, one that affected the entire course of American music.

Have you noticed that no one apologizes for jazz anymore? For you like it or you don't, the same way you like or don't like anything else. But if you're open to conviction, you'll look into it, live with you don't go for it, so much the worse for you. For my money I think that Bach might be tossing off jazz fuges in this very day, if he had been born in our time, because there was a man who knew rhythm.

Normandy's Hedgerow Fighting Presents Many Strange Problems

There's No Regular Pattern On French Front

BY ERNIE PYLE
Special Correspondent

ON THE WESTERN FRONT—(By Wireless) — What we gave you yesterday in trying to describe hedgerow fighting was the general pattern.

If you were to come over here and pick out some hedge-enclosed field at random, the fighting there probably wouldn't be following the general pattern at all. For each one is a little separate war, fought under different circumstances.

For instance, you'll come to a woods instead of an open field. The Germans will be dug in all over the woods, in little groups, and it's really tough to get them out. Often in cases like that we will just go around the woods and keep going, and let later units take care of those surrounded and doomed fellows.

Or we'll go through the woods and clean it out, and another company, coming through a couple of hours later, will find it full of Germans again. In a war like this one everything is in such confusion I don't see how either side ever gets anywhere.

Front Gets "All Mixed Up"

Sometimes you don't know where the enemy is and don't know where your own troops are. As somebody said the other day, no battalion commander can give you the exact location of his various units five minutes after they've jumped off.

We will by-pass whole pockets of Germans, and they will be there fighting our following waves when our attacking companies are a couple of miles on beyond. Gradually the front gets all mixed up. There will be Germans behind you and at the side. They'll be shooting at you from behind and from your flank.

Sometimes a unit will get so far out ahead of those on either side that it has to swing around and fight to its rear. Sometimes we fire on our own troops, thinking we are in German territory. You can't see anything, and you can't even tell from the sounds, for each side uses some of the other's captured weapons.

THE tanks and the infantry had to work in the closest cooperation in breaking through the German ring that tried to pin us down in the beachhead area. Neither could have done it alone.

The troops are of two minds about having tanks around them. If you're a foot soldier you hate to be near a tank, for it always draws fire. On the other hand, if the going gets tough you pray for a tank to come up and start blasting with its guns.

In our break-through each infantry unit had tanks attached to it. It was the tanks and the infantry that broke through that ring and punched a hole for the armored divisions to go through.

The armored divisions practically ran amuck, racing long distances and playing hob, once they got behind the German lines, but it was the infantry and their attached tanks that opened the gate for them.

Tanks shuttled back and forth, from one field to another, throughout our break-through battle, receiving their orders by radio. Bulldozers punched holes through the hedgerows for them, and then the tanks would come up and blast out the bad spots of the opposition.

It has been necessary for us to wreck almost every farmhouse and little village in our path. The Germans used them for strong points, or put artillery observers in them, and they just had to be blasted out.

Most of the French farmers evacuate ahead of the fighting and filter back after it has passed. It is pitiful to see them come back to their demolished homes and towns. Yet it's wonderful to see the grand way they take it.

Little Rest For Troops

In a long drive an infantry company may go for a couple of days without letting up. Ammunition is carried up to it by hand, and occasionally by jeep. The coldiers sometimes eat only one K-ration a day. They may run clear out of water. Their strength is gradually whittled down by wounds, exhaustion cases and straggling.

Finally they will get an order to sit where they are and dig in. Then another company will pass through, or around them, and go on with the fighting. The relieved company may get to rest as much as a day or two. But in a big push such as the one that broke us out of the beachhead, a few hours is about all they can expect.

THE company I was with got its orders to rest about 5 o'clock afternoon. They dug foxholes along the hedgerows, or commandeered German ones already dug. Regardless of how tired you may be, you always dig in the first thing.

Then they sent some men with cans looking for water. They got more K-rations up by jeep, and sat on the ground eating them.

They hoped they would stay there all night, but they weren't counting on it too much. Shortly after supper a lieutenant came out of a farmhouse and told the sergeants to pass the word to be ready to move in 10 minutes. They bundled on their packs and started just before dark.

Within half an hour they had run into a new fight that lasted all night. They had had less than four hours' rest in three solid days of fighting. That's the way life is in the infantry.

Mass Pennsylvania Jail Break Foiled

MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 15 (AP)—An attempt to liberate scores of the 200 prisoners at Broadmeadows, Delaware county jail, failed Monday after leaders of the break knocked a guard unconscious and took his keys.

The mass delivery was foiled when the key to a huge steel door between the cell block and the administration offices was not found in the guard's possession.

Edward Hogan, the cell block guard, was attacked by four prisoners, Warden John J. Cain said, and knocked unconscious while leaders raced from cell to cell unlocking doors. The commotion aroused other attendants who waited with drawn guns outside the cell block door until sufficient help arrived to force the men back to their cells.

Drouth Relief Asked For Midwest, East

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (U.P.)—Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins, (R., O.), said today that he may ask congressional relief for farmers in midwestern and eastern areas who are now suffering from "one of the most devastating drouths in the history of the country."

Jenkins told the House that the Department of Agriculture is now working on plans to facilitate the movement of feed grains to dairymen in the stricken area.

In 1825, Sing Sing prison was known as Mount Pleasant pri enemy divisions in Estonia and Latvia, separated from the main German army by a corridor to the Baltic west of Riga.

Russians Advance

A German fortified zone three to six miles in depth lay littered with fire-blackened Nazi tanks and wrecked field guns behind Zakharov's vanguard.

Last Major Obstacle

Flat boggy country intersected by numerous creeks now separates the Red army from Lyck, East Prussian communications center, but the Biebrza was the last major natural obstacle.

The crossing of the Biebrza came while Moscow's victory guns, sounding for the first time in nearly a week, were marking the fall of the fortress city of Osowiec near the stream in northern Poland.

Zakharov's new menace to the Nazi province appeared likely to ease the pressure on Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army, which has been stalled a fortnight by desperate German resistance near the East Prussia-Lithuania border farther north.

Although the capture of Osowiec was the major news announced in the daily Soviet communique, Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's Third Baltic army, smashing through southern Estonia, captured Antsla and 100 other communities, further shattering lines of two German amies cut off from their homeland by the Red army corridor that was driven to the Baltic sea below Riga.

French Freedom

In middle France, the French underground is running wild and making it impossible for the enemy to maintain communications or more divisions from one place to another at any speed.

In the west, Gen. Eisenhower's forces are in the process of destroying the only powerful German army in France — the Seventh — which has been kept strong by robbing divisions from forces in Belgium, Holland and northern France. It is difficult to see how the German high command can do anything but give up France and retreat with what it can save into Belgium and Germany.

If the Germans hold to Hitler's order of "no retreat," they will be destroyed totally by faster and more mobile Allied forces which can surround and deal with army segments at leisure.

The Army stocks 142 different sizes of shoes.

PEACE STOCKS ATTRACT BIDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP) — Low-priced motors and other stocks with peace possibilities attracted bids in today's market while some war-benefitted issues suffered from mild liquidation.

Reason for selectivity was found in the overnight news of the big Allied invasion of southern France which, to Wall Street pundits, spelled the beginning of the end for the Nazis and a recapitulation of domestic psychology concerning industrial transition. The result was considerable switching of accounts and the decision of numerous customers to stand aloof pending developments at home and abroad.

Transfers for the full stretch ran to around 800,000 shares.

Among popular performers, Reo Motors jumped a point to a 1944 peak. Ahead at intervals were Graham-Paige, Hupp Motors, Santa Fe, Sinclair Oil, U. S. Lines, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda and Johns-Manville. Some of these failed to hold. Slipping tendencies were shown by U. S. Steel, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern, Western Union "A", Standard Oil (NJ), Westinghouse, Oliver Farm and Dupont.

Occasional curb gainers were Kresge department store preferred, up 12½ points on a 10-share transaction; Pantepec and American Gas. Inclined to limp were Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal and General Fireproofing.

House Starts Debate

presidentially - appointed official wide discretion to dispose of billions of dollars worth of war-created surpluses having a civilian market value.

Apply To All Sales

The committee measure outlines congressional principles to apply to all sales, including requirements that returning veterans shall be given an opportunity to make purchases and that surpluses shall be disposed of through normal distribution channels whenever practicable.

There are many members, though, who object to the bill on the ground it does not safeguard established business from speculation that might arise from sales of surpluses. Others say that a board representing business, rather than an individual, should have control of the program.

Chairman Patman (D-Tex) of the small business committee has a pocketful of amendments he said would guarantee the participation of small business in the program.

Compensation Bill Studied

While the House tackled the property measure, with a vote expected Thursday, its ways and means committee began consideration of the "states' rights" unemployment compensation bill passed by last week by the Senate.

Attached to the Senate bill is a section setting up an office of demobilization.

Surplus property matters are also on the schedule for the Senate military committee today. In the only other major business for Capitol Hill, the Senate elections committee worked to clarify legislation under which a number of books have been banned from circulation among servicemen on the ground they contained political propaganda.

SPAAF Graduation Held This Morning

Presentation of silver glider pilot's wings to four honor students highlighted the graduation exercises for another record-sized group of Winged Commandos in the post theater at South Plains Army Air field this morning.

Receiving awards as the best soldiers in the class were F/O Robert R. Johnston, Martinsville, Ind., and F/O Fred H. Alewine, Greenwood, S. C.; as best athletes, F/O David P. Morse, Pearl River, N. Y., and Stanley A. Lewczyk, Shenandoah, Pa. These awards were made by Col. James A. DeMarco, commanding officer of the field.

Capt. Joseph A. Houle, jr., assistant director of flying, presented wings to the remainder of the class.

Oath of allegiance was administered by Capt. Harry M. Davis of San Antonio, school secretary. Music was furnished by the SPAAF band under the direction of Warrant Officer Harry Dunham.

Six Texans were among the group receiving wings as glider pilots. They were Flight Officers Allen A. McArthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McArthur of 2310 Twenty-sixth street, Lubbock; Stuart Q. Crow and Billy Yeargan, both of Dallas; Joseph D. Harrison of Beeville, and Robert G. Deering, jr., and Durwood B. Scroggings, jr., both of Fort Worth.

Little "War Plants" Load Cartridge Belts

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. Aug. 15. (U.P.) — Minature "war plants" transplanted to our fighting fronts are helping solve Uncle Sam's shipping problems and keeping our warplanes supplied with ammunition every day.

They're portable machines that link-50-caliber machine-gun cartridges at the rate of 160 a minute into ammunition belts. Designed and manufactured by Package Machinery Co., they've going to advanced fighter and bomber bases in an almost endless stream.

Weighing 300 pounds, the linking machine can be carried by four men and is driven by a quarter-horsepower motor or can be operated by hand. It does the work of 20 men. Only two operators are required. One feeds the cartridges into the machine, the other funnels metal links into the magazine. Cartridges and links are shipped separately to conserve space. Now a part of regular Army equipment, the machine has been given the Army ordnance designation of M5.

Sub Production Is Halted By Strike

GROTON, Conn., Aug. 15. (U.P.)— Production of submarines at the huge Electric Boat Co. yards was halted when "75 to 80 per cent" of the 8,300 employes of the day shift failed to report for work, the company announced today.

Edward Darrow, personnel manager, said the company was waiting for the independent shipbuilding and marine engineers union, which called the strike yesterday after workers had voted against it Saturday, to "make a move" toward arbitration.

The company is one of the world's largest producers of submarines.

Philly Transit Lines Have New Troubles

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15. (AP)— Outbreaks of violence on Philadelphia Transportation company lines were reported today as the federal grand jury resumed its investigation of a strike which tied up the city's transit lines and resulted in race clashes.

A dozen negro boys, leaving a bus after an argument over payment of fares, attacked a war plant worker. Cruising police heard a woman's screams and rescued the victim and arrested one of his alleged assailants.

Redistricting To Be Submitted Legislature

AUSTIN, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson said today he plans to submit legislative redistricting to the January session of the state legislature as an emergency topic.

Removal of present limitations on pay of rural school teachers also may be submitted as an emergency.

By submitting a topic as an emergency, the governor releases it from the usual procedure requiring 60 days delay before voting on a bill before the legislature.

Polish Boy Scouts Executed By Nazis

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP) — The London headquarters of the Association of Polish Scouts and Guides said today it had received word of the execution of 32 Boy Scouts in Poland early last month by German occupation authorities.

The Germans, who had banned the Scout movement in Poland, were said to have carried out the executions after a mass arrest of young people in the town of Nowy Saez during an investigation into scout activities.

Great Allied Army Hits South France

are many beaches, some small, others extensive.

Back of these beaches are the little resort towns nestling against the hills—one of the world's best known playgrounds.

Mostly Yanks, French

The striking force was composed largely of American and French troops whose path was prepared by thousands of planes which had pinpointed guns, coastal defenses, bridges and roads since Friday.

These attacks already had sealed off the Germans in the area under attack from speedy help either from Italy or northern France.

Bombers today alone flew more than 1,000 sorties over the beachheads without opposition.

The air forces also dropped several million leaflets today, some inviting German troops to surrender, others instructing French civilians to keep off the roads and away from military objectives and yet others advising the underground what to do.

The landings were made in calm, clear weather and went off exactly on schedule, it was announced officially.

All early reports indicated that resistance at the initial stage of the operation were much less than anticipated.

Pilots, from whose planes parachutists jumped a little before dawn, said they encountered little or no ack-ack fire.

The greatest naval force ever to strike a blow in the Mediterranean — more than 800 ships, including battleships — landed the troops and backed them up with an intense covering fire. Naval units participating included American, British, Canadian, Netherlands, Polish, Greek and Belgian ships.

(Although there was no mention of specific units involved in the invasion, Donald Coe, Blue network correspondent, messaged that he could disclose that "the major part of the landing forces was composed of American troops.")

(A London dispatch said Allied armies in southern France were commanded by American Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, deputy commander in chief of Allied forces in the Mediterranean theater.)

The landings were made at several points along a broad section of the coast at places widely separated from each other.

The coast line from Marseille to Nice had bristled with big guns installed by the Germans to beat off just such an attack as came this morning, but these had been terrifically attacked by Allied air forces in an intensive four-day offensive in which thousands of tons of bombs were dropped.

An hour before the first troops were landed the beaches were left a spectacle of devastation by a final load of air bombs.

This new invasion of Europe opened up the fourth major front against Hitler, one that may well prove the death blow to the Germans.

The swarms of landing craft did not begin disgorging their fighters and armor until after daylight, but parachute, glider-born troops were streaming into southern France before dawn.

The parachutists descended on several German strong points inland.

"The assault, which was in strong force, was led by specially trained Allied troops, many of them veterans of previous invasions and campaigns in the Mediterranean theater," Allied headquarters announced.

A brief special communique announcing the invasion did not locate the landings, but returning correspondents said the Allied troops struck at many points over a broad stretch of the Mediterranean coast.

French Asked To Help

Announcement of the invasion was accompanied by an appeal from Gen. Sir. Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied Mediterranean commander, to the French people to "play their part" in the new battle of France.

Wilson declared the objective of the troops now ashore in the south was "to drive out the Germans and join up with the Allied armies advancing from Normandy."

"The army of France is in being again, fighting on its own soil for the liberation of its country with all its traditions of victory behind it," his broadcast proclamation said. "Remember 1918."

The beachhead troops were strongly supported by naval and air forces. A vast fleet of British, American and French warships protected the amphibious forces.

Text of the special communique issued by Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater, as reported by the Office of War information:

"Today American, British and French troops strongly supported by Allied air forces are being landed by American, British and French fleets on the southern coast of France."

Four Days of Air Raids

Four days of continuous Allied air attacks on targets in southern France preceded the landings.

Immediately before the landings Allied bombers in great force had loosed an overwhelming weight of explosions on German coastal guns set up to repel just such an attack as made by the Allied assault troops.

The greatest weight fell between Marseille northeastward to the Italian frontier.

The Allies have been massing men and materials for months on Corsica, about 130 miles southeast of the coast of France at Nice across the Ligurian sea, and only yesterday the Berlin radio reported large Allied convoys had been observed passing Gibraltar into the Mediterranean.

Marseille Party Evacuated

A broadcast by the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio yesterday said the German army commander at Marseille, France's second largest city, had ordered evacuation from the seaport of all persons whose presence is "not of interest to the war effort."

The landing operations in southern France opened up the fourth major front against Hitler even as American, British, Canadian and other Allied troops in Normandy-Brittany were closing in on between 100,000 and 200,000 Germans for what Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said promised to be a major victory for Allied arms.

The Allies drove into the area that Prime Minister Winston Churchill once called "the soft underbelly" of Europe just 69 days after General Eisenhower's forces invaded western Europe.

Churchill Close At Hand

Prime Minister Churchill himself was close at hand as this new blow was landed upon the enemy. He arrived in Italy last Friday. An official announcement yesterday said he was conferring with Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav partisans.

It was unclear what course into France the Allies would follow once they are firmly established ashore.

In any event, the landing forces can expect assistance from the French maquis in southern France, where the patriots had time to organize between the surrender of France in 1940 and the German move to the Mediterranean coast in November, 1942.

700 Miles From Berlin

The coast, stretching from Spain to Italy, is 700 airline miles from Berlin—farther than from the Norman-Breton sector.

The Nazis presumably have fortified the coast in the meantime; but whether they have been forced to reduce their garrisons to meet the Allied threat from Normandy and Brittany is speculative.

(A dispatch from Barcelona, Spain, on Aug. 9 said the Germans had withdrawn troops from the section of southern France bordering on Spain, but that few troops had been moved from the actual coast.)

The French Mediterranean coast is shaped like a sickle, with the handle to the right and the Gulf du Lion forming the indentation at the left.

Marseille Second City

Marseille, located on the gulf, 20 miles east of the Rhone river's mouth and about the same distance west of Toulon, is France's second largest city, with a population of 914,000, and is one of the nation's largest ports.

The naval base of Toulon was the last bit of France to be taken by the Germans. When Hitler tried to grab the French fleet on Nov. 27, 1942, there were 76 French ships in the great harbor, but French naval men scuttled 44 to 51 warships and damaged others before the Germans could lay hands on them. A few ships escaped to the Allies.

Other principal cities on the French Mediterranean coast are Nice, Avignon, Nimes, Montepllier, Cette, Beziers, Norbanne and Perpignan.

Nice, a city of 241,000 and a center of Riviera activity in pre-war days, became French in 1859 as a reward to the nation for aiding the Italians in expelling the Austrians from Lombardy.

HISTORY REPEATS

PINE CAMP, N. Y.—Ulberico Guiseppe Carrado, Italian soldier captured in Tunisia March 3, 1943, now interned here, had a lot in common to talk about when his uncle, Mario Carrado, Rome, N. Y., visited him. Mario, an Italian soldier in World War 1, also had been taken prisoner.

TROY, N. Y.—Deviled eggs are strictly an American delicacy, according to workers at the USO lounge.

Preparation of picnic-style deviled eggs to go with sandwiches this spring proved such a hit with visiting Canadian soldiers that a notice has been posted on the bulletin board to have plenty of them on hand for America's nearest allies.

A MIGHTY SMITH

HARTFORD, Conn.—Those eight pints of blood supposedly donated by two Smiths during the past year really came from one Smith. The Hartford Red Cross blood donor center said that in checking back on donors, it discovered that a Hartford war worker had used two different sets of initials in front of his surname of Smith to get around the regulation that no person may give blood more than five times during a year.

$10,000 BARK

SAN FRANCISCO — Sleep shattered by the pre-dawn barking of Dr. Hans von Geldern's spaniel, Beppo, was worth $10,000, Carl A. Rietz said in his superior court complaint asking that sum in damages from the physician.

Rietz said he had put up a howl of his own to his neighbor about Beppo's vocalizing, but when he found he was barking up the wrong tree, he took the matter to court.

General Patton

ces as if they were cheese. Often American units were surrounded by Germans and had to send out tanks to escort their supplies across the peninsula.

Nazi Forces Broken Up

Mechanized cavalry detachments of fast tanks fanned out as task forces, cutting German pockets up into smaller and smaller units and spreading confusion.

The French underground did the rest. The patriots burst into the open and rounded up the pockets behind the armored forces, in fact acting as supporting infantry. In a few days the Brest peninsula was firmly held, with the Germans corralled in Lorient, Brest and St. Nazaire, awaiting American disposal.

As late as two days ago it was possible to drive 60 or 70 miles in Brittany without seeing an American soldier. Patton had put a new meaning into lightning warfare.

Meanwhile Bradley turned the First army east to protect Patton's flank and halted a German effort to drive through to Avranches.

Although busy at the Brittany ports, Patton turned fresh troops and tank columns north toward Le Mans and Paris in a brilliant encircling move still in progress.

LOCAL MAN PRAISES SECOND ARMORED DIVISION

"The most powerful combat unit the mind of man has ever made into a fact," that was the description of the Second Armored division given in a booklet which Roy (Speck) McElroy, discharged ex-serviceman, exhibited here today.

McElroy, who trained with the Seventeenth Armored Engineers of teh division also saw action with the same outfit in North Africa before receiving a medical discharge several months ago due to illness.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., is McElroy's idol. "He's the greatest general we have on the battlefront today," McElroy, who was a private first class, declares.

"Gen. Patton, after being given command of the task force which invaded Casablanca, said to the men of his old division, "Men of Second Armored, I've always told you that I would never thank you for what you've done, but that I would praise you . . . Now I'm thanking you. . . ." and then the hard-bitten old general choked up and tears came into his eyes, McElroy said.

The booklet which McElroy has among his war keepsakes was published in 1941 following "four long months" of maneuvers.

"In American history no other division has done so much maneuvering in time of peace," foreword in the booklet said. "For more than four long months this year we have been in the field and now we are strong. . . . Four long months have made us a fighting force like nothing the country has ever seen before . . . "

"And believe you me, they're proving it on the fields of France today," McElroy said this morning.

BRADLEY PUT IN CHARGE OF NEW ARMY GROUP

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 15. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has taken personal charge of operations in the western invasion with the establishment of an American army group under Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley on an equal status with the British-Canadian command of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

Bradley's group — the 12th — is composed of at least two armies, the First and the Third, Bradley was succeeded by Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges as commander of the First army and commander of the newly formed third went to Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.

Both Montgomery and Bradley report directly to Eisenhower, who directs the operations of both groups from a command post in France.

Eisenhower Is In France

The change in the command setup took place immediately upon Eisenhower's arrival in France more than a week ago. Bradleys' force has been in operation for some time and he has been directing American strategy since the time of the "breakout offensive" along the Lessay-Periers-St. Lo line on July 25.

Originally Montgomery was Eisenhower's chief deputy in the field and as such he commanded all the ground forces, American as well as British and Canadian.

Bullitt said his offer of active military duty had been rejected twice by U. S. Secretary of War Stimson because of his age.

Lack Of Resistance Highly Significant

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The outstanding feature of the amphibious invasion of southern France by American, British and French forces—is that the first landings were made quickly and against a minimum of resistance.

That's vastly significant. It means, of course, that the Germans no longer have the strength to withstand such an attack. They're cracking up. The garrote is tightening about Herr Hitler's neck—and may he find it uncomfortable!

The Hitlerites knew that the invasion was coming. They've been talking about it for months—as who hasn't—and yesterday gave clear indication that they realized it was at hand when they ordered civilians to evacuate the great port of Marseille near the mouth of the Rhone.

Nazis Lack Equipment

With all this warning the Germans would have been armed to the teeth to defend this strategic coast if they had the wherewithal. But they lacked the men and equipment to stand off the Allies. Seven waves of infantry were put ashore on a broad front in less than two hours—an amazing feat.

This doesn't necessarily mean that southern France is stripped of enemy forces or that there won't be hard fighting. It does mean that the sixty to sixty-five divisions of troops—say three quarters of a million—upon which Hitler was depending for defense of western Europe were far too few to meet the concerted Allied onslaught. About half of this force undoubtedly was flung into the fighting on the Normandy front, and scores of thousands are either dead or prisoners.

Hitler's Chances Poor

General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre, has told the French people that the object of the invasion is "to drive out the Germans and join with the Allied armies advancing from Normandy." This indicates that the invading force will drive northward through the great Rhone valley. Hitler's chances of holding the line of the Seine and the Marne rivers, with Paris as the central anchor, are poor. Indeed, they've been fading fast under the Allied successes on the Normandy front. He will have to expedite his withdrawal to his inner fortress on German soil.

Disaster continued to clutch tenaciously at the Hitlerites in Normandy today. The mouth of the cul-de-sac which is said to surround 100,000 or more Nazi troops has been narrowed to less than a dozen miles. That must look as small as the eye of a cambric needle to the thousands of men who are struggling to escape. And even if they run the gauntlet of that narrow passage of death they will come under a deluge of bombs from the Allied air fleets which are attacking every roadway or assemblage of troops.

Along with all this sensational development on the fighting fronts at last has come General de Gaulle's call to the people of France to rise against their oppressors. To me that's one of the great moments of the war. It symbolizes dramatically the rebirth of a great nation which Hitler thought he had crushed.

Well-Wishers Cause Hero's Punishment

FT. BENNING, Ga., Aug. 15 (AP) — T/Sgt. Charles E. "Commando" Kelly, Pittsburgh's one-man army, blamed "Well-wishers" today for making him overstay a furlough and receive a court martial punishment of $90 fine and three months restriction to his company area at Ft. Benning.

Results of the court martial were disclosed in a Fort Benning infantry school announcement. Under it, Kelly will lose $15 a month out of his pay for the next six months and not be allowed to leave this military reservation.

The 23-year-old automatic rifleman, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his feats of arms in Italy, has been stationed here since July 11. Recently he was allowed to visit his family at Pittsburgh but when he failed to return within the furlough time, he was court martialed on a charge of being absent without official leave.

He explained his tardiness by asserting he was delayed all along the route by "well wishers."

Bodies Of 66 Lost Miners Not Found

BELLAIRE, O., Aug. 15 (AP) — Disappointment shrouded efforts of rescue workers today as exploration of 200 feet into the closed section of Powhatan mine failed to disclose the bodies of 66 miners who perished in an underground fire last July.

After three weeks of arduous digging, the workers broke through to the closed section today, hopeful their grim task was at an end.

But there was no trace of the bodies. Instead, they found hastily-abandoned mine equipment, tragic evidence that the doomed miners had fled the flames into the dim recesses of the tunnel.

George Strain, state director of industrial relations, said the bodies might be found at the end of the three-fourths mile-long tunnel or in any of numerous side entries opening off the route.

He added that no additional territory could be explored before Thursday.

Tear Gas Breaks Up Riot In Colorado

ALAMOSA, Colo., Aug. 15 (AP)—Tear gas was used to break up what acting Police Chief Alex Prince described as a riot involving between 500 and 600 persons at a downtown intersection last night.

The acting police chief said the riot began about 8 p. m. and lasted approximately 25 minutes, involving persons of various racial origins. He blamed it on "too much money and too much liquor."

FEAR U. S. AIR RAIDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP) — Because of the danger of United States air raids Japanese authorities in Korea have abandoned the use of a siren to summon the population for twice-a-day compulsory worship of Emperor Hirohito, it was disclosed by a broadcast over the controlled Keijo radio reported today to the Office of War information.

Laid-Off War Workers Can Find Other Jobs

AUSTIN, Aug. 15 (AP) — Workers being laid off of war jobs can find employment in other war plants whose production schedules must be maintained, declared C. E. Belk, state director of the War Manpower commission.

Because Army war jobs are still begging there is no immediate prospects for Texas unemployment, Belk added.

"If war workers, now being laid off, will remember that they must still clear through the U. S. Employment service it should become evident that the reconversion pattern is being set and that every resource is being geared to prevent any lull or lapse in production," he said.

Belk declared that WMC must certify that sufficient surplus manpower is available in any area to staff a civilian plant before that plant will be permitted to go into production.

This means that until all war jobs are completely staffed and up to production schedules that no civilian construction or production will be permissible in that area.

The formula works like this, Belk explained:

"As layoffs occur workers will be urged to take other war jobs. They may be temporary, depending upon the course of the war, but there will be no possibility for much postwar manufacturing until the war jobs are completed. As permits are granted for civilian production these jobs then will become available to workers being laid off of war jobs. Workers should understand that they should accept war jobs first and that they will be given equal opportunity to return to civilian production just as fast as the government makes that civilian production available to the country. As war plants close civilian plants will open."

Ginners Convention To Be Held In City

Attendance of approximately 300 is indicated for the annual meeting of Plains Ginners association in Lubbock hotel here Wednesday, officials reported this morning.

Ed Lipscomb, of Memphis, Tenn., is to speak and show a sound motion picture film on cotton. Other speakers are to be John C. Thompson, of Dallas, secretary of the Texas Cotton Ginners association; H. G. Johnson, of College Station, who will discuss insect control; W. J. Ely, of Snyder; Harold J. Connally, of Lubbock, who will speak on cotton grading.

A luncheon will be served at noon.

Mayor Overton Ribble will welcome the visitors.

COMPOSER SAID HELD AT THE GERMAN FRONTIER,

Aug. 15 (AP) — Composer Richard Strauss has been placed under house arrest somewhere in Austria, travelers from Vienna report. This cannot be confirmed, but it is known that a number of his public appearances recently were cancelled.

Ice Supply Here Is Short Of Demand

The supply of ice in Lubbock still is somewhat short of demand with no immediate relief in sight, according to local dealers.

Each firm, it was said, is attempting first to serve the needs of its regular route customers.

The shortage is attributed to the lack of enough labor, an increased population, insufficient capacity, demnads for ice by army installations here and, in some instances, the inclination of people with stuffed purses to buy "more."
