Plane Crashes To Carry Two Men To Death

CHARRED WRECKAGE OF TWIN-MOTORED CRAFT STUDIED TODAY BY ARMY OFFICERS AFTER PLUNGE SUNDAY; BODIES BADLY BURNED

(By The Associated Press)

BRYAN'S MILL, Tex., Oct. 26.—The charred wreckage of a twin-motored bomber was studied today by army officers as they sought the cause of a crash near here which cost two fliers their lives.

The aviators were tentatively identified as Captain Charles Howard and Corporal Edward Gibson of Langley Field, Va. Their bodies, burned beyond recognition, were removed to Shreveport, La., by planes from Barksdale Field.

Major B. B. Thompson, commandant of Hensley Field, army airport at Dallas, said he was certain Captain Howard was pilot of the plane. A key ring and papers found on the other body bore Gibson's name.

The bomber crashed and exploded on the Wallace Stewart farm near this Northeast Texas community yesterday during a heavy rain. Residents of nearby Naples said the plane flew low over that place a short time before the crash. They said the motors sounded as if they were sputtering.

Major Thompson said a plane similar to the one which crashed left Dallas at noon en route for Langley Field with Captain Howard as pilot.

The captain had been in Dallas for a visit with his financee, Miss Lorraine Sanders, to whom he was to have been married Nov. 5. Members of Miss Sanders' family said Howard had planned to fly to his headquarters at Langley Field for a few days and then return by plane for the wedding.

Howard had been flying for nearly 20 years and was considered one of the best pilots in the air service. He won national acclaim by "bombing" the Navajo Indians with food in February, 1932, when a severe blizzard left the tribe in destitute circumstances. He was a graduate of the University of Arizona.

A wallet containing pilot's license No. 210043, issued to Edward Gibson, 96th bombardment squadron, Langley Field, was found near the wreckage.

SOME ODDITIES IN THE ELECTION

ROOSEVELT SEEMS TO HAVE EDGE IN NAMES; ONE MAN PRECINCT TO STROLL TO POLLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Everyone knows that Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred M. Landon meet for the presidency in the polling booths of the nation November 3, but do you know that . . .

Voters can mark their ballots for Landon in Roosevelt, Ariz., Roosevelt, Ark., Roosevelt, Minn., Roosevelt, Mo., Roosevelt, N. Y., Roosevelt, Okla., Roosevelt, Texas, Roosevelt, Utah, Roosevelt, Wash., Roosevelt, Wis., Roosevelt Beach, Ore., Roosevelt Road, Ill., Roosevelt Park and Roosevelt Square, Mich.

But nowhere can you vote for Roosevelt in Landon, because there is no city or town by that name in the United States. However, there is an Alf, Ark., if you care for diminutives.

There are three cities named Democrat, one in Arkansas, another in Kentucky, and a third in North Carolina. There's a Republican city in Nebraska, and a Republican Grove in Virginia.

New York's one man precinct again will stroll to the polls anywhere between 6 a. m. and 9 p. m. while eight attendants at a cost of about $175 to the city solemnly register his preference. Of all the voters enjoying the secrecy of the Australian ballot system throughout the United States, this one man, a rabbi, alone is exempt. By law he must use a voting machine.

He is the only voter in his precinct, and congressional law says he can't be moved to another. It takes a full staff one week to register him. Then on election day there are watchers and checkers and clerks and all to tabulate his lone vote. There is never any question, either, of how he voted. As the rabbi goes, so goes his precinct.

Another Cold Wave Sweeps Into Texas

THREE ESCAPE FROM TRUCK

TWO OTHER PRISONERS ARE NABBED AFTER HOUSTON BREAK

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Oct. 26—The taste of an afternoon's freedom was too much for five Texas convicts and they sought to prolong it by escaping from a prison truck as it rolled through downtown Houston.

The break was shortlived for two, however, but the others, one in stripes, lost themselves in the traffic a guards and county officers pursued them.

Break From Cage

They made their daring break by knocking out the top of an improvised wooden cage as they were being returned to the Retrieve prison farm with 33 other prisoners after a Sunday afternoon trip to Huntsville to see a prison rodeo.

Clifton Davis and W. L. Morshon were re-captured a few minutes after the break.

A close watch was being maintained by officers in this section for Lonnie Jackson, Noble Guthrie and Floyd Seay, all long-termers. Jack-

REVISIONS IN PENSION LAW ARE URGED

DRASTIC CHANGES ARE PROPOSED IN ACTION REPORTED TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 26—A conference committee recommended drastic deliberalization of the old age assistance law in a report to the legislature today.

The report with the recommendation laid the basis for what was expected to be one of the bitterest controversies in years over legislation, and was made as the legislature met for the final two days of a special session.

Report On Bill

Specifically, it was a report on an omnibus tax bill which attempted to reconcile differences between the senate and the house on a wide variety of levies for old age pensions, the new financing of which was a purpose of the session.

Although the contents of the report had been known generally, copies were grabbed and read hastily by members, interested in the exact provisions and wording of both deliberalization and tax sections.

The first section declared:

Funds Necessary

"It is recognized by the legislature that it is impracticable to pay benefits to persons over 65 years of age, except those who are in necessitous circumstances; in order that the needy aged may be cared for, it is necessary that the state have funds on hand to meet the accruing obligations therefore."

It further said two incidental objectives were necessary as follows: The number receiving old age assistance must be decreased, and more revenues must be provided.

Administration would be transferred from the present three-member old age assistance commission to the board of control, mem-

BROWDER TALK IS BLOCKED

COMMUNIST AGAIN IS FORCED TO FLEE AS MEN STAGE ATTACK

(By The Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 26—Communist Earl Browder headed for Detroit today while several of his followers nursed bruises received here yesterday when a band of men forcibly prevented his presidential campaign address.

Stand Is Toppled

The stand was toppled to the ground, Browder slid off unhurt and was driven to the safety of his hotel. About a dozen men and a few women were slightly hurt in the melee.

Before leaving for Detroit, where he is scheduled to make an address Tuesday night, Browder said he had instructed his attorney to bring criminal charges against the raiders.

Celebration Plans Will Be Outlined

Arrangements for Armistice day observance and for a district convention to be held here Nov. 21 and 22 will be discussed tonight at Allen Bros. post of the American Legion at a meeting beginning at 8 o'clock.

W. O. Daniels, post commander, said a "surprise" program is also planned.

FREEDOM FOR MRS. SIMPSON IS NEAR TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

IPSWICH, Eng., Oct. 26—Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke hustled through a roster of criminal cases at Ipswich assizes today cutting short Mrs. Wallis Simpson's wait for freedom from her ship's broker husband.

Only one of the criminal cases which must be disposed of before the list of divorces is heard remained to be finished at the noon adjournment.

Two Cases Ahead

With this completed, the court will start on the civil cause list. Two cases were listed on the docket ahead of the Simpson divorce, which heads seven undefended actions.

The svelte, dark-eyed friend of King Edward, waited anxiously and in seclusion for Mr. Justice Hawke to reach her case.

CHILDREN ARE FREE TODAY

GIRLS SENTENCED TO REFORM SCHOOL BUT RECEIVE PAROLES

Five girls who have importuned many Lubbock persons to buy needles were adjudged delinquents following a hearing Sunday afternoon by Judge E. L. Pitts of 99th district court.

Although he sentenced the girls to serve two years in the state reform school for girls, Judge Pitts paroled the group to their parents on the promise that they would not permit the children to sell needles.

Spend Night In Jail

After the youngsters, ranging in age from 7 to 16 years, had spent Saturday night in the juvenile ward of county jail they told what Judge Pitts said was a "straight, courteous" story. The unwillingness to talk, evidenced when police questioned the quintet Saturday, was gone.

The 46-year-old father of the five, who has five other living children, said the older girls had been selling needles three or four years and that "on good days" they had netted from $7.50 to $9. They had, he continued, "worked" towns in Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, Louisiana, and Texas.

Promise Was Broken

He said the children had been questioned by officers in Amarillo, Abilene, Vernon, Childress, Shreveport, in Albuquerque and Artesia, N. M., and elsewhere. He said that he had promised Lubbock police several weeks ago that he would not permit the girls to sell needles here, but that he had brought them

New Charges Being Aired In Campaign

LANDON CLAIMS THAT "OVERWHELMING ISSUE" IS WHETHER PEOPLE WANT A DICTATORSHIP

(By The Associated Press)

ABOARD LANDON SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26—Gov. Alf. M. Landon said today the "overwhelming issue" of the presidential campaign is whether the American people "want dictatorship," and contended "this foreign pattern" is "becoming clearer" in the New Deal "jig saw puzzle."

The Republican nominee was treated en route for a head cold and sore throat, by Dr. L. P. Spake, of Kansas City, who expected to remain aboard the special until its return to Kansas. Dr. Spake said Landon's condition was much improved as he began the final week of his coast to coast campaign.

Conferences Are Held

The nominee based his personal bid for Maryland's support upon conferences with party leaders aboard his sunflower special, and an address at Baltimore in which he asserted:

"It is the essence of the New Deal that the constitution must go in order to give men in Washington the power to make America over; to destroy the American way of life and establish a foreign way of life in its place."

Landon planned a rear platform appearance shortly after noon at Wilmington, Del., before reaching Philadelphia for a major radio address to be delivered at 8:30 o'clock (CST) tonight.

Official Is Quoted

Landon quoted a "high official" of the New Deal as saying that "planning will necessarily become a function of the federal government. Either that or the planning agency will supersede the government . . ."

"Do you want the kind of dictatorship this New Deal leader advocates?" Landon demanded. (An aide said he quoted Rexford Guy Tugwell, under secretary of agriculture.)

Landon enumerated as New Deal policies, every one of which would be a major issue in an ordinary campaign:

"Waste and extravagance in government.

"The debauching of civil service.

"The alliance with corrupt city machines.

"The extending of Farleyized methods throughout the states with the WPA.

"And, finally, the illegal use of your money, the taxpayers money, for propaganda to build up class hatred and entrench the New Deal in power."

Another address described as non-political, to be given at the Statue of Liberty's 50th birthday celebration in Bedloe's island in New York harbor, will open the tour Wednesday night.

HOUSING PROBLEM IS SERIOUS HERE

Increasing activities relating to the petroleum industry in the vicinity of Lubbock and the scarcity of family housing facilities in the city were emphasized this morning in information from Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Approximately six months work in the area is to be started for the Magnolia Petroleum company pending establishment of the families here or in a neighboring town.

He went to a doctor, had the piece of lead removed from the flesh and returned to work.

Celebration Curb

NEW YORK—There won't be a hot time in New York on election night if Sanitation Commissioner William F. Carey has anything to do with it.

He ordered street flushers distributed to strategic points as auxiliary fire apparatus, in case of celebration bonfires.

Then he sent out instructions to cart away all lumber and refuse that might supply fuel for such fires.

Homing Ballots

ABERDEEN, Wash.—Eight votes from thousands of miles in three directions will be counted here next month.

Choosy

OMAHA, Neb.—At least one woman voter in Omaha has become surfeit with politics.

Her request for removal of her name from voters' registration records was taken under advisement by the election commissioner. She was disgusted with politics, she said, because none of the presidential nominees was satisfactory to her.

Second Death

A fall three weeks ago resulted in injury that brought death yesterday.

NEW ANALYSIS IS RELATED

SOME DISEASES BEING FOUND BY LOOKING INTO THE EYES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26 (AP) — Analysis of diseases of the heart and circulation by examinations of the eye, which is regarded by physicians as the window to the entire body, was described today before the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. William Thornwall Davis, of George Washington university, Washington, D. C., said examination of the eye by looking directly into it reveals the first sign of hardening of the arteries and clues to the occurrence of other heart troubles.

Can Be Cured

"Ninety-six per cent of all cases of hardening of the arteries show characteristic changes in the blood vessels inside of the eye, all of which can be seen readily by direct examination," he declared, and many persons who have the disease in its early stages are now being found and as a result "can be cured or the disease arrested."

The disease may reveal itself by inflammation or congestion in the tiny blood vessels at the back of the eye near the point where the optic nerve enters, he said, and the eye specialist can examine these vessels directly, measure their changes, and report to the general physician, the nerve specialist or the surgeon exactly what trouble he will find with the heart or blood circulation.

Danger Pointed Out

Considerable danger in the use of quinine by expectant mothers was pointed out to members of the college by Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, Jacksonville, Fla.

"Many persons have a marked idiosyncrasy for certain drugs," including quinine, he declared, and the administration of quinine to some prospective mothers may cause deafness in the child since it is readily transmitted and in some cases has a specific effect on the ears.

It is generally agreed, Dr. Taylor added, that such deafness is due to the contraction of blood vessels of the internal ear, localized anemia, lack of nutrition for the tissues and reduction of oxygen supply to them resulting in a degeneration of the hearing nerves.

Members of the board of governors of the college elected for the coming three years included William P. Howard, Pocatello, Idaho; Lero Long, Oklahoma City; Col. Willis B. Morse, Salem, Oregon; Arthur C. Scott, Temple, Texas; Albert O. Singleton, Galveston; J. H. Woolsey, Woodland, Calif.; E. Weldon Young, Seattle, Wash.

New election to the board of regents for the term expiring 1939 included Howard C. Naffziger, San Francisco.

He Recalls Pushing Carriage For King

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 26 (AP) —Horatio M. Reader, master mechanic, is recalling the time he pushed the baby carriage of King Edward VIII of England.

It was 40 years ago when the present king was an infant and the then youthful Reader was an apprentice carriage maker to the royal family.

Through his work, Reader says, he came to know Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, King George V, Queen Mary and the present ruler of the British empire. One of Reader's treasures is his certificate of apprenticeship bearing the seal of Queen Victoria.

INTERNAL GLAND DEFENSE AGAINST INFANTILE PARALYSIS IS RECORDED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26 (AP)—An internal gland defense against infantile paralysis, the first ever recorded in medicine, discovered in experiments on 24 monkeys, was reported today by Dr. W. Lloyd Aycock of the Harvard medical school to the American Public Health association.

One of the glands which controls growth of mucous membranes distinctly increased the resistance of monkeys to the paralysis.

One of the greatest puzzles of infantile paralysis is to find the persons who are susceptible. If that can be done, medicine already has means of protecting them. This monkey discovery, Dr. Aycock said, opens a way for solution of the puzzle.

Belief Is Growing

The belief internal glands supply the reason most persons escape serious attacks of infantile paralysis has grown rapidly among medical men. It is based for one thing, Dr. Aycock said, on the long-observed fact that infantile paralysis does not attack children who are "run down" so much as those who are "run up."

The victims most often are the healthiest appearing and mentally brightest children. They are the "run up" children, normal, but whose growth, due to glands, is a little different from the average. It has also been observed this difference "runs in families," probably due to heredity.

Full Recognition Is Given Empire

ROME, Oct. 26 (AP) — Germany gave full recognition today to Italian conquest of Ethiopia and recognized the newly proclaimed Italian empire.

The action, result of Italo-German conferences in Rome and Berlin, was a formal declaration of recognition effected July 25 when a German consulate was established in Addis Ababa.

Austria and Hungary, tied to Italy by economic and political alliances, have given semi-official recognition to the empire.

TRAFFIC FUMES GIVE STROLLERS MILD ASPHYXIA

AMES, Ia., Oct. 26 (AP) — Chonghwan Kim, Iowa State college graduate student, says pedestrians walking in streets where traffic is heavy suffer mild affects of carbon monoxide poisoning.

In a research study made public shortly after Kim left for his native Korea with a master's degree, he shows "that the amount of sugar in the blood increases proportionately as carbon monoxide gas in the body increases," says Dr. Erma A. Smith, physiologist who directed the research.

"While the increase in sugar probably is not harmful in itself, it indicates that even small amounts of the gas cause partial asphyxia."

TEXAS AGGIES STILL LEAD IN CHASE

CADETS ARE TO MEET HOGS; SMU IS TO MAKE DEBUT

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT

DALLAS, Oct. 26. (AP)—Slowed down a trifle but not halted by Baylor's Bears, the Texas Aggies encounter Arkansas' aerialists as the next steep hurdle along the unbeaten path at College Station Saturday.

Still at the head of the Southwest conference race despite a half a game woe and a half lost in the scoreless tie with Baylor, the Aggies started today to perfect some sort of a backstop for the pitches Arkansas is certain to toss.

Offense Blocked

A mud-covered gridiron left the Cadets vaunted offense hopelessly bogged down at Waco last Saturday. The timer's gun and the flying feet of "Doc" Pitner may have saved them from defeat. The Bruins, featuring Lloyd Russell's fine punting, once drove to the seven-yard stripe but the half ended there. Masters, away with a pass interception, scooted 40 yards before Pitner thundered up from behind and dropped him in a clear field.

Dick Todd, the sophomore running sensation, left the game in the fourth period with an ankle injury and it was not immediately known whether he would be in top form for the Arkansas game. He kept the Cadets out of serious trouble with sparkling punt returns.

Mustangs Make Debut

The debut of Southern Methodist's sophomores in the conference chase shares the spotlight with the Aggie-Arkansas battle. Matty Bell's charges, losers of only one game, meet a battered University of Texas Steer at Austin. The Longhorns, losers of successive games to Baylor and Rice, reach the fifth game in their killing schedule of nine with a tie, one victory and two defeats on the books.

Rice Owls had things all their way in the 7-0 triumph over Texas. Three times they threatened to score before they finally shoved over the touchdown in the last minute of play. Quarterback Jake Schuehle's "sneak" on a fake field goal attempt and "Red" Vickers' line plunge did the trick. Texas never seriously threatened.

It was the second successive victory for the Owls, losers of three straight before they dropped Georgia and Texas. They have a handfull in George Washington at Houston this weekend, the only intersectional game of the day.

Baylor, showing more each time out, goes to Fort Worth to tackle Texas Christians twice defeated and once tied Horned Frogs. The Christians, thanks to the kicking of 150-pound David O'Brien and the heads-up play of Ki Aldrich, sophomore center, fought Major Ralph Sasse's Mississippi Staters to a scoreless tie at Dallas.

The Christians missed fire on two chances to score, Walter Roach failing on an attempted field goal and a passing and running splurge bogging down on the nine-yard line. Sammy Baugh, appearing in civilian clothes for the mud battle, will be ready for Baylor.

Coach Fred Thomsen's Arkansans, despite numerous injuries, gave a good account of themselves before bowing to Louisiana State at Shreveport, 7-19. They managed for 15 first downs to L. S. U.'s 10 and outgained them on the air and ground, completing 16 of 33 passes thrown in the rain. They still pay off on the score, however.

Yanks Sit Back To Watch For Mailman

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26 (AP)—Joe Di Maggio ejaculated "Hot dog!" and Tony Lazzeri said "Ho, hum" when told today checks for their shares of the World series money were in the mail.

The two New York Yankee stars intend to do the same thing with the $6,430.55 each will receive—put it into the bank.

"My banker will provide a nice home for that money," laughed young Di Maggio. "I may invest in some kind of business later on but I haven't any idea as to what just now. Bring on the mailman."

To Lazzeri, veteran of the baseball wars, it is an old story. He has participated in five World series pools. "I'm socking it in the bank, just like I did before. You never can tell when that rainy day will come along."

EXECUTES ALL DOUBT

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 26 (AP)—The secret's out. The reason Jerry Dennerlein is rated such an "offense-killing" tackle for St. Mary's is that he trains in the off-season as executioner in a Los Angeles slaughter-house.

UNNECESSARY ROUGHNESS

TWENTY-ONE NAMES ARE LOPPED OFF LIST OF PERFECT TEAMS; 34 STILL REMAIN; ONE NEWCOMER BREAKS IN

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) — Although 21 names were lopped off the list during the past week, 34 college football teams of assorted sizes and strength remained undefeated and untied today. One newcomer, Kalamazoo college of Michigan, found its way into the records since last week.

The major gridiron powers found the going especially tough over the past week-end with Duquesne, Duke, Utah, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Texas A. and M., Purdue, North Carolina and Georgetown among those beaten or tied for the first time this year.

Three Have Honors

Major honors remained in the hands of a trio of teams that were able to chalk up victory No. 6, Western Reserve, North Dakota and Tennessee Wesleyan, and the high scoring Appalachian team from Boone, N. C., by whipping South Georgia Teachers 27-0. Appalachian brought its point total up to 218 in five games against two for its opponents. Western Reserve with 167 points was second in scoring.

The nation's undefeated and untied teams:

Western Reserve, North Dakota, Tennessee Wesleyan, Appalachian, (N. C.), Cortland (N. Y.) Teachers, Kansas Wesleyan, Santa Barbara State, Carroll (Wis.), Villanova, Eastern Kentucky Teachers, Holy Cross, St. Ambrose (Ia.), Eastern Tennessee Teachers, Kalamazoo college, Miami (Ohio), Middlebury, Arkansas Tech, Shippensburg (Pa) Teachers, Army, St. Benedict (Kan.), Buffalo, Fordham, Northwestern, Hastings (Neb.), San Diego State, Minnesota, Santa Clara, Yale, Marquette, Utah State, New York Aggies, Kirksville (Mo.) Teachers, Arkansas State Teachers, St. Anselm (N. H.).

HIGH SCORERS ARE LISTED

BOB DAVIS IS PUSHED FROM PERCH BY NEW THREAT SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—While an injury kept Bob Davis, Kentucky's touchdown ace, on the sidelines as the Wildcats played Florida Saturday, a new national gridiron scoring leader bobbed up in Len Wilson of the high-scoring Appalachian state team of North Carolina.

Wilson collected two touchdowns in a 27-0 victory over South Georgia Teachers to go one point ahead of Davis in the scoring race.

They Would Place Girls In The Home

DALLAS, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Texas Athletic Federation of College Women went on record today in opposition to girls playing in college bands or taking part in football demonstrations.

The resolution deplored co-eds participating in any activity organized primarily for men.

CHICAGO LEADING PRO CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Chicago Bears are doing quite a job of dominating the national professional football league's western section race but there's an altogether different picture today in the league's eastern division.

While the Bears topped the western section with six victories and no defeats, the New York Giants had taken first place in the eastern loop away from Pittsburgh. The Giants beat Philadelphia 21 to 17 yesterday as Pittsburgh was losing to Green Bay 42 to 10.

The Giants, trailing 17 to 14 with 1 ss than three minutes to play, won or a touchdown by Richards after a pass was ruled complete on the Eagle 15 because of interference.

New York has won 3, lost 2 and tied 1. Pittsburgh has won 4 and lost 3.

HEAVY FIRING IN PROSPECT THIS WEEK

NATIONAL HOPES WILL BE AT STAKE IN TWO BATTLES

BY HERBERT BARKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Gathering force as it goes along, the football hurricane strikes at Evanston and New York this week.

Big Ten as well as national championship hopes will be at stake in Evanston where Northwestern's undefeated Wildcats attempt to check the Minnesota juggernaut that has rolled over 21 successive rivals. At New York, Fordham's unspectacular but effective Rams tackle Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers, riding on high once more since that stunning setback by Duquesne.

Firing To Be Heavy

Elsewhere the firing will be heavy but these are the two spots to watch.

Otherwise this week's schedule lines up like this:

East—The unbeaten list among major schools now has shrunk to seven—Holy Cross, Villanova, Army, Fordham, Yale, George Washington and Georgetown.

Yale faces trouble from Dartmouth. Holy Cross tackles Temple. Army plays Colgate. Villanova meets Bucknell; Georgetown plays Shenandoah; George Washington invades the Southwest to tackle Rice.

Outstanding on the card from a traditional standpoint is the first of the "big three" classics—Harvard versus Prnceton at Cambridge.

Cats Meet Gophers

Big Ten: The leaders, Northwestern and Minnesota, top the program but Notre Dame's tussle with Ohio State's Buckeyes should draw a near-capacity crowd to South Bend. Wisconsin and Chicago, Indiana and Iowa, Michigan and Illinois are Big Ten pairings. Marquette will be tested by the touring St. Mary's outfit.

Nebraska, virtually assured the Big Six title, plays Missouri. Oklahoma and Iowa State are paired in the other conference game.

Southwest: Although held to a scoreless tie by Baylor, Texas A. and M. still tops the conference standings with Southern Methodist yet to be heard from. S. M. U. starts its conference drive against Texas, beaten by Rice, 7-0, last week. A. and M. meets Arkansas, 19-7 victim of Louisiana State. Baylor plays Texas Christian whose intersectional struggle with Mississippi State ended in a 0-0 score.

Southern Battles

South: Vanderbilt runs into Louisiana and Alabama tackles Kentucky.

Georgia meets Tennessee's Volunteers. Mississippi State plays a weak Sewanee array while Tulane eases off with Louisiana Tech.

The Southern conference games this week will pit Washington and Lee against Duke; North Carolina against North Carolina State; Virginia against Virginia Military; Virginia Tech against Richmond; Furman against Davidson and South Carolina against Citadel.

Far West: California meets Washington State; U. C. L. A. plays Stanford; Oregon encounters Washington, and Oregon State meets Montana. Southern California will be idle.

Rocky Mountain: Utah State plays Denver and Colorado university meets Colorado college this week. Other conference pairings include Utah and Brigham Young and Wyoming and Colorado Mines.

REYNOLDS SMITH IS GOLF VICTOR

TEXARKANA, Oct. 26. (AP)—Reynolds Smith of Dallas returned home today with another golf title—champion of the sour states invitation tournament.

The Walker cup star won the title yesterday by defeating a fellow townsman, Don Schumacher, Texas state champion, two up. He closed the match with a birdie. It was played in a drenching rain.

Smith advanced to the finals by defeating Jimmy McGonagill of Dallas, 4 and 3, and Schumacher by winning from Bill Clark of Gladewater, one up in 19 holes.

EDNA SAENGER IS TOURNEY WINNER

FORT WORTH, Oct. 26. (AP)—Youthful Edna Saenger of Shreveport proudly displayed today another golf championship—that of the Texas women's open.

Staging a remarkable comeback after being three down and three to go, the Louisiana miss defeated Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, the defending champion, on the 39th green yesterday at the River Crest country club.

A LOT OF GRIDIRON dust has been raised since we saw a football team as good as Centenary was supposed to be take such a thorough licking as Texas Tech dished out Saturday night.

The score was surprising only in that Centenary salvaged any points at all and that Tech's total was held to two touchdowns. It should have been closer to 40-zero.

It is "something" when a club like Centenary is held to a net "gain" of minus six yards, while the opposition shows a plus of 263. It is something else when said opposition doesn't score more than twice, at the same time giving up a touchdown to the inferior team.

But football is a game of surprizes and puzzles. Biggest puzzle to Tech fans is how in the heck Wichita university was able to beat Tech.

The pressure is off—for Tech fans; it remains definitely on for the college gridders. They've started something they can't stop now. They're big favorites to clean up the last half of their schedule, having disposed of the two toughest opponents thereon, and the fans should be allowed to rest easy.

The rest of the schedule is by no means easy. Two home games remain, three road engagements, but the Red Raiders should take them one at a time and with touchdowns to spare.

It isn't that we're getting cocky; it's just that we've seen the boys demonstrate their actual strength, win not on breaks but on superior play. They can't lose if they keep it up.

Oklahoma A. & M. is the next foe, and while the Aggies have shown constant improvement since the season started, they should not be difficult to beat. De Paul of Chicago is a better club then generally rated, but it is doomed on November 20 in the final home game. About all the coaches will have to do in the way of preparation for that contest is to remind the boys of last year's score at Soldier Field.

The game at Los Angeles with Loyola may be a bit rough, coming just five days after the Oklahoma Aggie tiff, but it shouldn't be too rough. Tech should gather ample revenge for the two previous defeats suffered on the coast, Loyola at New Orleans should be pretty much of a breeze, just an appetizer for the season windup at Tucson. Considering that University of Arizona could make only four first downs against Centenary, yet tie the score, the Wildcats shouldn't give the Techs much trouble.

So there you are, mugs. All you've gotta do is win 'em. They're all doped out. You're a bunch of sissies if you crack up anywhere along the line.

If you think this schedule is tough, look at some of the games already booked for next year—University of Texas, (well, that one's a pushover, at least) Rice Institute, (tentative) University of Detroit, Duquesne university, both the Loyolas and Centenary again, and three pretty tough teams.

We should like to see Tech book an engagement with Matty Bell's Mustangs sometime soon, provided he'd get his boys in shape and bring them up here.

It is taking Tech quite a spell to overcome the nasty criticism flung by Bell back in 1931 regarding Tech's brand of football, but gradually the Matadors are changing the minds of folks impressed by Bell's childish chatter.

Voluntarily and without reservations, Tech's opponents, coaches and players, compliment the Cawthon-Smith club as one of the best trained, best coached, best mannered football teams they've ever played against, hard hitting and emphatic on offense and defense, but by no means "dirty and underhanded."

The Tech-Centenary game the other night was pretty rough. The boys hit hard on each side, but it was an exceptionally clean game. Coach Curtis Parker of the Gents, although stunned and groggy, issued a very generous post-game statement, complimented Tech coaches and players highly for their "gentlemanly conduct" and ambitious attitudes. His speech contrasted sharply with the unwarranted rebukes which the Aggie coach of 1931, even then on his way "out," so copiously and thoroughly spread over the land.

A press box guest at the Tech-Centenary game was Herbert R. McQuillan, assistant football coach and chief scout for the Texas Aggies. He was scouting the Gentlemen, who engage the Aggies at Shreveport November 21.

McQuillan was very much impressed with Tech's team, admitting that "it's a good thing for us we don't play you this year." An affable gentleman who quite thoroughly enjoyed the game and said so, McQuillan also complimented Tech's gridiron behavior, expressed the hope that Tech and A. & M. will get together again some time.

So may it be.

DON'T FORGET the regular Monday night session of the Touchdown Club tonight at the Hilton.

The local coaches should be in better frames of mind tonight to give us Monday quarterbacks the lowdown on matters pertaining to football. Coach Weldon Chapman can tell how his Westerners beat Pampa, and Cawthon should have a pretty good speech lined up regarding the fallacy of football dope and why it shouldn't apply to the Red Raiders.

SCHOOL TEAMS PREPARE FOR OLD RIVALS

EIGHT CLUBS OF THE STATE REMAIN IN UNBEATEN CLASS

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Oct. 26 (AP)—Texas Interscholastic league football legions prepared today for traditional battles and prospective climaxes down a fading October trail of startling upsets.

Eight teams remained unbeaten and untied but the spotlight of interest did not rest on that achievement. The battle for district honors takes the center of the stage as the teams drive toward November's crucial struggles and turkey day classics.

Favorites Set Up

Conference games of the past week served to establish definite favorites in practically every district but several contests, postponed because of the weather, have distinct bearings on championships.

Poly and Paschal, two of the Fort Worth leaders, clash tonight. They called off their game last week rather than get mixed up in something resembling water polo.

Games Rearranged

The crucial Dallas Tech-North Dallas game in district eight was rearranged for November 7 and Woodrow Wilson and Forest will meet November 6.

Marshall and Kilgore of district nine also postponed their game until today.

Amarillo, North Side (Fort Worth), Dallas Tech, North Dallas, Hillsboro, Kerrville, Corpus Christi and Edinburg remained in the undefeated, untied class over the week-end. Amarillo beat Port Arthur, unscored on until meeting the Golden Sandies, 21-10; North Side downed the Mississippi champions, Kosciusko High, 18-0; Dallas Tech, North Dallas, Hillsboro and Edinburg were idle; Kerrville beat Refugio 40-6 and Corpus Christi won over San Jacinto of Houston 6-0.

Undefeated but tied are Olney, Breckenridge, Longview, Temple and San Benito, Austin (El Paso), Paris and Palestine fell from the unbeaten, untied class last week, Austin losing to Mesa (Arizona), 20-0. Paris being defeated by Gainesville 38-0 and Palestine losing to Lufkin 26-7.

BEETS AND BEATS

WINDSOR, Colo., Oct. 26 (AP)—Windsor High school forfeited its Saturday football game with Fort Collins because of a temporary closing for the beet harvest, but Windsor's record in three games to date left little doubt of the outcome anyhow. The record Windsor 9, opponents 229.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 26 (AP) — Ninety Wisconsin archers have received permits from the state conservation commission to test their skill with bow and arrow on the fleet-footed buck deer of Sauk and Columbia counties during a seven-day season beginning today.

"FATS" IS NOW ALL READY TO SMASH FOES

FOUNTAIN INN, S. C., Oct. 26 (AP)—Coach S. J. Pratt is expecting his Fountain Inn high school eleven to "go to town" from now on. Blake Garrett, 300-pound guard, is in the lineup.

Garrett had to content himself with watching his 110-pound teammates battle early season opponents because the school didn't have a uniform that would fit him. But Furman university finally dug one up and lent it to the Fountain Inn school.

DEER HUNTING YARNS TOLD

RARE INCIDENTS ARE BEING REPORTED IN THIS SEASON

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 26 (AP)—There'll be plenty of new deer hunting yarns to tell 'round the old general store this winter.

Lodge rooms and club corridors, too, will echo to tall tales of the season now at its height throughout the west. There'll be humor and strange incident—and regret over avoidable tragedy.

Death Toll Heavy

For 36 men have paid with their lives for going hunting this fall. Four hunters disappeared. Game wardens, despairing over the nation's deer-hunt death toll, predict it will exceed 50.

Sportsmen will dwell instead upon fine catches and freak kills.

They'll tell about Eldon Fowles, the Salinas, Calif., hunter who had his clothes ripped off by an injured deer before he managed to choke it to death.

Felled With Rock

Edward Davis, pitcher for the Burney Falls, Calif., CCC nine, felled his deer with a well-aimed rock.

In California also, three hunters circled for deer, fired simultaneously and found they had killed their own mule.

John Walker, Prescott, Ariz., went hunting coyotes a day before deer season opened, and was shot through the thighs by a friend. "I'm putting aside my gun for good," he promised.

In New Mexico a hunter fired three times at what he though was an elk. It was a parked automobile.

KING COTTON refuses to ABDICATE

Some of King Cotton's humbler subjects. What is to become of them if cotton-harvesting becomes a machine job? . . . At the right: the Rust cotton-picking machine in action, rear view, showing the spindles.

By Dr. Frank Thone

It has been tough going for the South's oldest industry, of late, but there are bright hopes ahead in undeveloped uses for the crop, cheaper mass production, and in the chances for a better product

KING COTTON is dead—so they say.

Economists of the more pessimistic persuasion, politicians who hope to make their own fortunes at his funeral, even some of the mournfuller kind of agricultural experts, have been holding his wake for several years.

The only thing wrong with these solemn festivities is that they have forgotten to invite the corpse.

For the white-headed monarch isn't dead yet, by a long shot. There's a scrap in the old boy yet.

True, he has had tough going, of late. He's had a remarkable array of maladies—weevil, bollworm, root-rot, and a lot more—for which the doctors have at best found only partial cures. He has seen formidable efforts at secession on the part of some of his overseas dominions, with ingrate offspring of his own setting up competing kingdoms under alien flags. He has suffered losses at home, too: men out of jobs don't need cotton overalls; women wearing less than a fourth of the clothes their grandmothers wore, and insisting that their now more visible legs shall be glossy in rayon or silk. And so on—a whole series of troubles.

But two or three troubles, or even ten or twenty, do not make a funeral. Mushroom dynasties may collapse as quickly as they arise; but King Cotton's realm, like Rome, was not built in a day, and if it falls like Rome it will most likely be as long as Rome was in falling.

Not that King Cotton's loyal retainers are letting their optimism make do-nothing standpatters of them. They realize that they are in a fight, and that as in any fight he who merely stands still with the idea of letting the battle win itself is just about as badly off as he who incontinently runs away. They are all up and doing, and in the very front rank of effectives stand the corps of scientists.

A cotton-testing machine at the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington. A little bundle of fibers to be tested is clamped in the holder alongside the operator's left hand, and pulled until it breaks. Its "breaking strength" thus determined is read off the dial.

Women wear less than a fourth of the clothes their grandmothers wore and insist that their now more visible legs shall be glossy in rayon or silk, all of which creates another problem for King Cotton.

THESE scientists in King Cotton's army, in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in State Experiment Stations all through the South, in universities and commercial laboratories and textile mills and chemical plants, fight on a hundred fronts with a hundred weapons.

Some of them seek to make cotton better and stronger than it ever was before, and thereby improve its competitive position with regard to other fibers. Others seek new uses for cotton "as is," because they realize that improved cottons must have time in which to be developed and distributed among the millions of growers. Still other scientific supporters of Dixie's ancient King are trying to find ways of cheapening mass production, especially by the use of machine methods to replace hand labor which is always expensive even at starvation wages. If even a few of these efforts succeed, the millions of King Cotton's dependents will have cause for rejoicing, and all of us will receive at least indirect benefits in returning prosperity and better cotton goods to wear and cotton things to use.

The newest move in the campaign to give American cotton new technical and economic advantages is the production of a unique and promising hybrid by scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Not only cotton technicians but leading cotton manufacturers are interested—even excited. One such manufacturer declared that for his business "It is the dawn of a new era!"

The story of the new hybrid cotton has more than a little romance in it—the romance of a Cinderella among plants. Of a Cinderella who really had little to recommend her, yet who concealed, among a lot of faults, one high redemptive quality.

Hopi cotton, raised by the Hopi Indians on their reservation and by nobody else, is pretty poor stuff. It yields only a few pounds per acre, it drops its bolls before they mature, it is pretty generally worthless. Not even the most shiftless poor white or the most "triflin'" Negro, in the cotton belt, would think of planting Hopi.

Its one great virtue, neglected and overlooked for many years, is the extraordinary fineness of its short fibers, or "staple." Fineness of fiber seems to be closely correlated with strength. The strongest cotton hitherto in common use has been the Sea Island variety, which could be raised only in a very limited area in the Southeast.

BECAUSE the staple of Sea Island cotton was longer than that of any other commercial variety, it used to be thought that its strength when spun was due principally to the great fiber length. But Dr. R. W. Webb of the U. S. Department of Agriculture disproved this notion by cutting Sea Island fibers to the length of ordinary upland cotton fibers and then spinning them. The Sea Island thread was still much the stronger of all the cotton fibers.

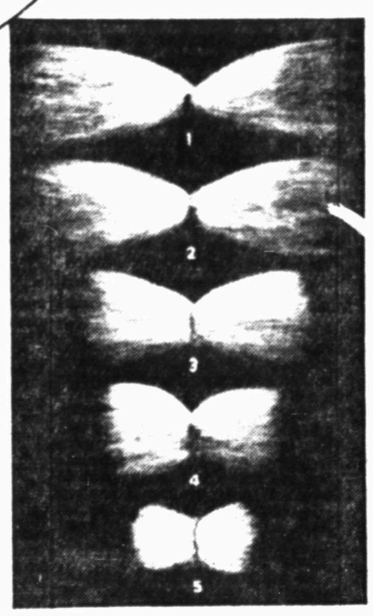

That left fineness of fiber as the alternative explanation of strength. Search was begun for a fine-fibered short staple cotton, to be crossed to advantage with the more abundant-yielding upland cottons.

Dr. T. H. Kearney, also of the Department of Agriculture, thought of Hopi cotton, fine-fibered but otherwise an agronomic outcast. From a small sample available a thread was spun. Tests demonstrated conclusively that great strength did go with its great fineness. It was almost impossible to break it in the Department's fiber strength testing machine.

For this one virtue, then, Hopi was mated with Acala, a superior upland cotton, widely cultivated all the way from southern California to the Carolinas. First crosses, now in the hands of Department plant breeders, display a high degree of the expected fine-fibered strength and high spinning quality. Crosses with other varieties are also being made, and their fibers tested.

It will be several years at best, Dr. Webb warns, before seed of the new Hopi hybrids can be available for general planting. There are very few plants in existence this year, and they will all be needed for experimental purposes, further breeding, and the elimination of the less desirable lines of descendants. But in the end, a general improvement in American upland cottons is practically assured, with resulting advantage in the battle against increasing foreign cotton competition for favorable position in world markets.

In the meantime, of course, we still have the standard kinds of cotton with us, and another group of Department of Agriculture workers, collaborating with state research men and industrialists, are searching every possible nook and corner for new outlets for cotton. Some of the possibilities are brand-new things, some are improvements of old ways, other are efforts to adapt cotton to uses now monopolized by other materials.

Sample "flocks" of cotton, combed out to show the relative lengths of their fibers or "staple." Sea Island at the top, Asiatic cotton at the bottom. Between, various upland varieties.

CERTAIN new uses in the past have not had to be hunted for. They were "naturals"—large-scale industrial demands that actually hunted for the cotton, rather than the other way around. Automobile tires, for example, have made a market for millions of bales that did not exist at all a little over a generation ago. And soon cotton in the tires was joined by cotton on the seats, as leather proved both too expensive and not particularly satisfactory. And now cotton gets a third chance at the auto industry, in dissolved form, as a base for the "plastics" that lacquer the body and coat the leather-like fabrics of the upholstery.

That new plastics industry, which makes everything from sheer hose and ivory-like toilet articles for milady to knobs and gear-wheels for factories, is using up a lot of cotton, and particularly of "linters," the once-useless downy fluff that clings to the cotton seed after the long fibers have been ginned off. Of course, this "chemical cotton" has to face the competition of chemical wood pulp, for any good grade of cellulose is grist for the plastic-maker's mill. But cotton gets its share, at least, of this business.

As the automobile made new business for cotton, so does the motor car's winged brother, the airplane. Cotton fabric goes on airplane wings and bodies, which are coated with a "dope" that may be made of dissolved cotton. Cotton parachutes are used now, where once silk was thought to be the only suitable parachute material. Cotton fabric forms the enormous "cells" in Zeppelins, that hold the lifting gas. Finally, when an airplane lands in future airports, it may literally land on a field of cotton—a field with runways stabilized and strengthened with cotton fabric under the tarmac.

THE annual campaign of cotton has always been carried on largely by what might be termed cotton infantry—a tremendous army of hand laborers in the fields, "chopping cotton" through the summer and picking it in the fall. It is back-breaking work, not too well paid at best, yet it is the sole means of support of millions of our people, both white and colored. Machinery, which revolutionized the cotton industry, had not yet touched the fields.

But now it begins to look as though cotton-field artillery were going to move into position at last. After scores of others had failed in efforts to invent a practical cotton-picking machine, the Rust brothers, of Memphis, have developed one that looks as if it will work. Instead of the complicated and expensive arrangements of hooks and barbs that made other machines failures, they use smooth wire spindles, kept moist with water, that twist the fluffy cotton right out of the pod. Two men, with a tractor and one of the Rust machines, are said to be able to harvest as much cotton in a day as a pair of skilled pickers formerly could in a whole season.

A different method for eliminating hand-picking of cotton is advocated by Dr. Frank K. Cameron of the University of North Carolina. His scheme is to cut the whole plant, stalk, leaves, bolls and all, with a mowing machine, dry and bale it like hay, and grind the whole business to pulp for the plastics manufacturers, after extracting the oil.

Of course, if the vast army of cottonfield hands lose their jobs as a result of the Rust system, the Cameron system, or any other method of mass handling of the crop, there is going to be a lot of social adjusting necessary. The Rust brothers realize this, and are trying to figure out a way of making their machine support the population instead of pressing the poorest into still worse poverty.

One week from tomorrow is election day.

On Tuesday, November 3, the nation will choose a President for the next four years and unless all signs fail the choice will fall to Franklin Roosevelt.

Why is The Plainsman so sure?

The quoted article below is the best general comment upon the state of the nation, politically speaking, that The Plainsman has seen to date. Written by Ray Tucker, former editor of Collier's magazine, long a well known and successful newspaper editor and reporter and now a Washington correspondent for The Journal, the article sums up the political feelings of Mister Average Man. It was written after Tucker took an 8,000-mile trip through the country, talking to all manner of people and seeking the pre-election truth.

Read it, remember it and check it against the actual figures next week.

"MISTER Average American" hasn't missed or gained a heart beat over problems which some statesmen profess to regard as the most fateful ever to confront the nation.

Mister Average American does not believe that his vote on November 3 will determine whether the United States will remain a democracy or become a dictatorship ruled by Washington.

"Mr. Average American does not share the feeling that his country faces a crossroads of history. He thinks the politicos who warn of revolution and communism and dictatorship are hollering 'Wolf—again!' He thinks politics is mostly 'baloney' anyway.

The 1936 voter is a new kind of man. He is extremely cynical, unutterably hard-boiled, hypercritical. He learned some tough lessons during the depression—economical and political. He lost faith in many things he had once prided—hard work, saving by for the future, individual initiative.

"He saw a lifetime of labor and savings swept away overnight. He may have seen his wife and youngsters go hungry—or worse. So spellbinders who now—again—enthrone those ancient virtues, and assail the Roosevelt administration for undermining them, make no hit with him. His economic disillusionment affects his political thinking—distorts it.

"THIS nonchalant attitude on the part of the mass of voters—there are exceptions, of course—may discourage serious, thoughtful people without regard to their political attachments. But it's reality, and the deepest impression one has received after an 8,000 mile survey through the hinterland.

"The average voter is not concerned over the sanctity of the Constitution or the President's supposed plans for packing the Supreme court. Not once was the Court-or-Constitution question raised except when your correspondent brought it up. It usually provoked a shrug of the shoulders or silence.

"The ordinary voter has no fear that the President—or his successor—will seek to establish a dictatorship at Washington. The effort to headline communism as an issue has fallen flat. Nobody will discuss it seriously. More practical problems arouse the voters even less. They don't seem to object to the administration's spending proclivities. They aren't afraid of high taxes, for few pay them directly. It's almost impossible for them to discern a connection between federal taxes and indirect levies on the things they buy.

"Mister Average Man isn't frightened by the prospect of more federal regulation of business and industry. Most of his genus think it might be a good idea. To them N. R. A. is only three letters—not a threat to their liberty.

"The fact is that the average man is living—and voting—in the immediate present. He is working, eating and providing for his family better than he was four or three or two years ago. Whether he keeps his family in food or clothing with a private or WPA job makes no difference. All he knows—or cares to remember—is that a short time ago he was in or on his way to the bread lines.

"He doesn't know—or give a hoot—whether recovery has come through the operation of natural forces or from New Deal planning, as the President insists. He doesn't know—or care—whether the system of relief and similar experiments are undermining the self-reliance and fortitude of himself and his neighbors. He doesn't think it is, though he's rather vague about it.

"MR. Roosevelt's hold is the public belief that he is for the common man. You hear that expression everywhere. No matter what else the President may or may not have done, he has sold himself as the great sympathizer.

"This cynical, mercurial people could turn on Mr. Roosevelt as quickly and as savagely as they did on Mr. Hoover. They don't like many of his policies and advisers. Sometimes they're inclined to be skeptical of him. They have been let down—sold out—so many times in late years. But up to now they

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance has a job in Atlanta. She has a considerate employer by name Blake Thornton, and she has some amusing friends. She wanted just this, and she should be happy. The only trouble is that she cannot disregard the obvious fact that Blake and his wife are not happy. Irma Thornton spends her summers in the mountains, and her winters in Florida. Blake has spent the last week-end with Irma—and he certainly did not look to Carol like a man who expected to enjoy himself when he left.

Chapter 28
BOSS FOR DINNER

Blake dropped several sheets of paper on Carol's desk.

"The Acme Cleaners have just installed the Martex equipment, and they want a quarter-page ad about it. Here's the technical information; you'll know how much of it a customer would be interested in."

She nodded without speaking and began to study the information. The hands of her watch said half-past three; she would just about have time to finish this afternoon . . .

She took it to him at five o'clock and waited while he read it. Probably she thought, without resentment, he wouldn't like it at all.

He read it through and chuckled. "You do take down your back hair with 'em, don't you?" He added carelessly: "If you don't mind waiting ten minutes I'll drive you home."

She said frankly: "I'd wait an hour to avoid that street car."

"It must be awful. Tell the other girls I'll take them too, they're off my beat but they probably feel the same way."

The four of them talked very little during the drive to Wet nd. Within the office they were at ease, bound by a common interest. Outside its walls and in Blake's presence they were strangers to each other, and their talk was shouted across a gulf of different backgrounds. At their own doorways Freddie and Laura thanked him profusely and were engulfed by their own homes.

When they were alone Carol said abruptly: "Blake, it's perfectly insane for you to work all summer. It's not even good business, because you're bound to pay for it sooner or later. Why on earth don't you go to Rockbrook for at least a week or ten days?"

He turned his head and smiled briefly at her. "Have you ever seen Rockbrook?"

"No, but I've seen several of its cousins. Even if it bores you you ought to have several days of rest. Bored people usually get fat, don't they? Fat and bored; they go together like ham and eggs."

"Maybe I'd rather be thin."

"Then go somewhere else."

"I can't afford to go anywhere, child."

"Rot. You can't afford not to."

"Well, I'm not going to—so you might as well save your thoughtfulness for a worthier object. No," he added softly after several seconds, "that I'm not flattered as the devil to have it."

She sighed and gave him up. For the rest of the way they sat wrapped in their own thoughts.

At the Sherwood he asked him impulsively, moved by the loneliness that lay so often behind his eyes, "Why don't you come in and have dinner with me?"

He shook his head. "Let you cook for me on a night like this? You're a peach to suggest it, but I wouldn't think of it." He added recklessly: "Suppose I come back in an hour or so and get you to have dinner with me."

"No. I've done that twice already. I've got food in the refrigerator that has to be fixed, and it's no more trouble to fix it for two. Maybe eating too many restaurant meals is what's dragging you down." She had seen wistfulness flicker for an instant across his face, and she knew he wanted to come. And so she insisted: "Come on, please!"

He wavered. "Oh, hell, I can resist anything but temptation. You brought it on yourself."

"I meant to. Park your car and come on."

"No, I'll go home and have a shower, and give you a chance to do likewise. I'll be back in thirty or forty minutes and set the table."

* * *

Suddenly he looked years younger, and for the first time she despised Irma Thornton. Heretofore Irma had been a shadowy subject for speculation, but a man who could be pleased with so little had obviously been given nothing. She nodded.

"That's better still. Come back whenever you're ready."

She bathed and put on a green and white voile dress that had seen better days, and then went into the kitchen to take an inventory. There was a fat letter from Jill, but she wanted to read it unhurriedly, so she put it aside.

Sweetbreads—fortunately she had ordered enough for two days. Romaine and endive for a salad. A fresh loaf of French bread. Potatoes to be boiled and then baked for a few minutes in the oven. Sliced raw carrots that had lain all day in ice-water — the lucky devils! Nothing for dessert, but Camembert and hard crackers were better than dessert anyhow.

Blake came back, in a spotless linen suit. He looked around her apartment with quick approval.

"You've got the touch, haven't you? Now where's the silver and what-not?"

"In the kitchen cabinet." It would have been easier to do it herself, but apparently he enjoyed the illusion of usefulness. "But you can't work unless you take off that gorgeous coat. I won't stand for such desecration."

He grinned and obeyed. "Now that you've seen it, I don't care if I do." He pointed at the gate-legged table. "Do we eat on that?"

"No. I hate the things; there's never any place for your knees. Put up that card table—I swear it's dependable—and move it where we can get a breeze from the fan." She went back to the kitchen and left him to fend contentedly for himself.

"Say," he demanded from the doorway, "why not move the fan in the kitchen while you're working?"

"Because there is a trick ventilator." She began on the cream sauce.

He leaned against the kitchen door. "What next?"

"Nothing. Sit in that chair by the fan and read the evening paper. It's on the table."

"Why can't I talk to you?"

"Because I've got a one-track mind. I'd put ice in the sweetbreads instead of the coffee."

He went back and opened the paper, but the headlines were meaningless. He was too lazily content to read of the heat wave and the European situation.

Blake and Carol have a disturbing dinner, tomorrow.

TODAY'S JOURNAL EDITORIAL

THE PUBLIC IS NOT BEING FOOLED.

Joshua Bryan—but better known in West Texas as just plain 'Josh'—Lee, Democratic nominee for the United States senate from Oklahoma, struck a potent campaign chord the other day in discussing the presidential race.

"The Republicans", said Josh Lee, who has spoken several times from a Lubbock rostrum, "are deriding the Democratic program but are not offering anything in its place".

That statement, aptly remarked the Houston Chronicle, "sabred the Republican figurehead and from the wound poured sawdust".

If the reader will only look back on the campaign to date he will realize the truth of Mr. Lee's statement.

Aside from putting an O. K. on the C. C. C.—a New Deal agency—and agreeing with the President that some form of crop insurance might be just what the farm belt needs, our Republican friends have done nothing but prate about taxes—an old campaign stunt—and preach a gospel of fear.

Mr. Landon and his backers might have had a chance to win the election had they started from the campaign's opening with a plan for the nation's salvation and, from border to border and coast to coast, explained it to their listeners.

If they had offered a depression-beater and a recovery-procurer of their own, so voters might have had an opportunity to compare them with the Democratic plans, they might have convinced the nation that a change is needed.

But still as fumbling and as uncertain about public problems as they were in the dark days of the Hoover regime, the Republicans were forced to go into the fray with nothing but flag-waving oratory—and very little of that!

Mr. Lee is right. The opposition to Mr. Roosevelt has neglected to remember that an enlightened public will not be fooled by platitudes.

From Hollywood MOVIE SIDELIGHTS

Behind The Scenes With The Stars Of Talkietown

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26. — Short takes: Actresses have had male doubles for stunts, but Sonja Henie is the first to have a male stand-in. He's Bert Clark, former Canadian champion, and his job is to flit around the ice, whirling and stopping to spin on predetermined spots while cameras and lights are focused.

WHY SHORTS ARE TERRIBLE

Maybe you have wondered why comedy shorts are so uniformly terrible. This department has wondered, anyway, and got to asking around. The answer is that whenever a fairly good short is turned out, by accident or genius, executives scream: "That's marvelous! Terrific! Stretch it into seven more reels. Make it a feature!"

You'd be surprised to know the number of program pictures that were born as lowly shorts.

Clark's former exhibition skating partner, Margot, appears in this picture, "One in a Million." She's now the wife of the refrigeration engineer who built the studio rink.

There's a report around that Greta Garbo never will make another picture. Probably wrong. She has refused to discuss plans, but the other day she slipped and said, "When I come back to Hollywood—" then halted.

* * *

The Robert Taylor - Barbara Stanwyck romance has been fired, apparently, to the welding point. There's talk of a wedding when their pictures are finished. Incidentally, she'll surprise you in "Banjo on My Knee" with a tap dance—her first on the screen, although she used to be a Follies girl.

New Catastrophe

Tallulah Bankhead made a secret color screen test, and may star in "Gone With the Wind." Biggest musical of the winter will be a new edition of the "Goldwyn Follies," with George and Ira Gershwin coming to Hollywood to do tunes and lyrics. Darryl Zanuck, envious of "San Francisco's" success, will unearth another civic catastrophe for flicker material and will call it "The Chicago Fire," or "Hot Time in the Old Town," or something.

* *

Kiddie department: And speaking of catastrophes — Shirley Temple has lost another tooth. There's a new head man at the Pat O'Briens—an adopted youngster to be christened Patrick Shanahan O'Brien. Associate producer of the Dionne Quintuplet picture "Reunion" is Earl Carroll, of all people. Still cornering the cutie market.

May Produce

Constance Bennett has completed her contract and presumably is looking for a job. She could retire now, with a fortune. Or she may turn producer, as Mary Pickford has. Intimates of Norma Shearer say that she, too, is likely to make motion pictures.

She is the wealthiest woman, and perhaps the wealthiest individual, in Hollywood. And this is the only life she knows. Miss Shearer probably will want to use her money in the film capital.

Blood-will-tell notes: Gloria Blondell, youngest sister of Joan, has been screen-tested and may land the lead in a Victor McLaglen feature. She has been getting some stage experience, but hasn't yet faced a camera. Bobby Crosby, 22-year-old brother of Bing, and a warbling orchestra leader, is talking picture contracts.

Benefit Picture

Theater people have raised millions of dollars for old ill, and unlucky troupers by staging benefit shows. Director George Cukor now is proposing a benefit picture to help needy members of the movie craft. It would be released nationally, and should make a lot of money.

Each studio would contribute something — story, sets, use of equipment, technicians, supporting cast. Such a picture would be jammed with stars. Cukor, whose distinguished services usually are worth about $125,000, offers to work for nothing.

Speaking Of Sweeping The Country

Michigan, Normally Republican, Is Rated Doubtful Now After Visits From Roosevelt And Landon, Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—Michigan, where the Black Legion has flourished and where most of the automobiles are produced, seemed slightly better than an even Republican bet before Landon and Roosevelt came campaigning into the state.

Memory of tremendous crowds which greeted Roosevelt in Detroit and other cities has colored all subsequent guesswork. A reorientation of political judgment has led to many private predictions of a Roosevelt victory and has persuaded nearly everyone that Michigan is just another of those large and very doubtful states which Landon must carry to be elected.

Despite a record of political independence and a singular freedom from boss rule, Michigan has gone for a Democratic presidential candidate but twice since Lincoln's time.

Roosevelt took her 19 electoral votes by a plurality of 132,000 in 1932, but there has been a backswing—especially in rural areas and small towns—and in the Democratic landslide year of 1934 Republicans elected Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald by 84,000.

If Landon loses the state by a small margin, he can blame a state organization which sacrificed him to its candidate for governor, a bandwagon psychology arising from the unprecedented ovations given Roosevelt, or Landon's own course on his Michigan visit.

Republican billboards are plastered over the state, but they say so much more about Fitzgerald than Landon that Chairman John Hamilton is said to have protested.

Ford Doesn't Help Cause

Roughly speaking, Landon seemed to come to Detroit as the candidate of the automobile manufacturers and Roosevelt came as the candidate of the automobile workers. There just happen to be a lot more workers than manufacturers.

The president, according to political experts on pro-Landon newspapers in Detroit, scored heavily by patting the former on the back and mildly panning the latter.

Top men in the automobile industry greeted the governor. But the worst thing that happened to him, one is informed, was his endorsement by Henry Ford.

Ford's labor policies are unpopular in Detroit.

Ford backed Hoover in 1932 and in politics his endorsement is believed by many to be more of a handicap than a help.

Landon left the lesser automobile men and Michigan politicos who were clamoring to see him, had lunch with Henry and Edsel Ford, and returned at 5 p. m. to go to bed—according to the story that one gets in Detroit, along with the report that the politicos didn't take it well.

F. R. Draws Huge Crowds

The Republican candidate was met by a few hundred persons at the train and, with a bad weather break, pulled only from 8000 to 14,000 people—estimates vary—for a big speech in a ball park which can hold 44,000. He did much better upstate, but even at Lansing the pro-Landon newspapers say the Roosevelt crowd of 35,000 was twice as large as the Kansan's.

Police estimates of Roosevelt crowds seem almost fantastic—450,000 to 500,000 in Detroit, 150,000 in Flint, as many in Grand Rapids, and 25,000 to 30,000 at minor stops.

All this may not be decisively important, but it explains why some of the most seasoned political observers are betting on "Roosevelt by 50,000."

On the other hand, this is one state where Roosevelt is definitely menaced by the Coughlin-Lemke vote. If Lemke polls anywhere between 5 and 10 per cent of the total vote, the state is more than likely to go for Landon.

Democrats, agreeing heartily with most neutral observers that Father Coughlin's political influence is on the wane, admit he pulls a much larger vote from them than from the opposition.

Religious Issue Enters

Michigan has never elected a Catholic governor and it looks as if the "religious issue" would be a large factor in defeating handsome, red-haired Frank Murphy, erstwhile high commissioner to the Philippines. Murphy's friends say the Black Legion is much stronger in Michigan than anyone supposes and that it has the knife out for him and Roosevelt.

Murphy is a glamorous campaigner, one of the few men who can visibly make votes by campaigning, and he is working fast and vigorously on a liberal New Deal platform. But the idea that Roosevelt would have to ride on his coat-tails is evaporating.

Offsetting Murphy's oratory is that of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, who is cramming in as many Republican speeches as he can.

The rural and small town vote usually just about balances the big urban vote, making Michigan a tough state to predict. Most polls aside from that of the Literary Digest have slightly favored Roosevelt, but may not have been suffi-

WHAT IS PUPIL DILATION AND HOW IS IT PRODUCED? Nature provided muscles to regulate the size of the pupil to control the amount of light entering the eye in proportion to the intensity of the light. Excessive light is very injurious. Reaction of the pupil is to contract, reducing the amount of light entering the eye. Light of less than normal intensity necessitates more light entering the eyes, to maintain normal or near normal vision. These muscles act involuntarily.

Fixed abnormal pupil dilation is produced by a drug instilled into the eyes which paralizes the muscles hence Nature is interfered with, preventing the regulation of the size of the pupil as required by light stimulation. In this condition, eyes cannot be used for near work. Remember this, no drug can refract light or the human eye. Our Modern Scentific Optometrical Eye Examinations Are Safe and Free From Pupil Dilation.

LEGISLATURE

Amendment To Bill

The section was in substance the amendment to the omnibus tax bill sponsored by Senator Clint Small of Amarillo, who was chairman of the conference committee.

It would instruct the old age assistance authorities in determining eligibility of applicants to consider "all facts and circumstances" concerning the applicant, "including his earning capacity and opportunity to obtain support from other sources."

Appropriate Millions

A total of $7,000,000 would be appropriated for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1937, for pensions. Senator Small had estimated the annual cost would be $8,500,000.

The commission would be instructed to review the applications of all persons to whom grants have heretofore been made and anyone found ineligible under the new act would lose his pension forthwith.

Tax provisions were in accord with reports previously made public by the conference committee.

A provision attracting attention, in the section increasing the tax on horse race bets, also would transfer administration of the jack and stallion fund from the agriculture department to the board of control.

Purchases Provided

Part of the proceeds of the tax for several years has been used to purchase blooded jack and stallions for the upbuilding of Texas farm stock. The animals are quartered at various places over the state.

Opinion as to what the house widely, some members saying it would be adopted near the end of would do with the report differed the session tomorrow midnight and others declaring the house never would agree to deliberalization.

Rep. George Moffett of Chillicothe said the tax on mutual insurance companies would meet strong opposition.

Governor Allred expressed confidence the legislature would approve deliberalization and some sort of tax bill but said he did not plan to appear before it again to urge such action.

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, unchanged to 5 lower on large ginning figures and under hedge selling. Dec 11.68; Jan 11.66; Mch 11.76; May 11.80; Jly 11.77; Oct 11.30.

Commission house liquidation was credited to the census bureau figures on ginnings of 8,5 7,676 running bales prior to October 18th as compared with 6,590,402 in 1935 and 6,743,904 in 1934 for the corresponding period. The trade regarded the figures either as representing an unusually large percentage of the crop ginned or as indicating that the crop was larger than the October government estimate of 11,609,000 bales.

Liverpool was also a seller at the opening but later was credited with buying. The trade, the continent and the far east also bought. The forecast for freezing or near freezing temperatures in north portions west of the Mississippi may have checked more active selling and early fluctuations were limited to a range of 1 to 4 points. December sold off from 11.68 to 11.64, prices close to the lows at the end of the first hour or about 3 to 7 points net lower.

Liverpool reported a quiet but steady market.

Additional selling came into the market as the news of the large ginning figures circulated in the trade. However, after selling off to net losses of 8 to 12 points, Dec. declining to 11.60, the market encountered renewed trade buying and prices at midday were up a point or two from the lows. Cotton goods markets were reported to be less active although prices held firm.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26 (AP) — Minor losses ranging from 2 to 4 points characterized opening prices on the cotton market here today.

Some hedge selling that accumulated over the week-end came in during the opening minutes and the early losses were extended a point or two.

Dec. opened at 11.68, then dipped almost immediately to 11.63. March at 11.73 and May at 11.77 were a few points under the previous close.

The trade was the main supporting influence and took contracts only on the decline.

Foreign markets today were steady. Liverpool reported quiet trading within a narrow range. The English market advised that opinions there seemed to agree that an expected 12,000,000 bales American crop had been sufficiently discounted.

The weather over the week-end and the immediate forecast showed little important change. The western belt had showers overnight, but only in those sections where the crop was pretty well made.

When the government ginning report was issued during the morning it induced more liquidation in the market. Losses ran to more than 50 cents a bale in active operations, with the trade showing little interest on the buying side.

December dipped to 11.57. Jan. sold at the same figure. March changed hands at 11.65 and May was sharply lower at 11.67.

Showing an exceptionally high total as compared with last year the government reported that ginnings to October 18 totalled 8,567,676 bales. This compared with 6,590,402 bales in the corresponding period of 1935. Many in the trade interpreted this high figure to mean that this year's crop was going to be bigger than current government estimates.

There was no speculative buying on the decline, and the trade was the only supporting influence on the dip.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP)—Influenced by a closing bulge in Liverpool and by a relatively stronger tone at Winnipeg, Chicago wheat prices averaged higher late today.

Traders here sharply watched the securities market as a result of nervousness over the European political situation. Most of the Chicago buying of wheat was in the December delivery.

Wheat closed firm at the same as Saturday's finish to 5-8 higher, Dec. 1.15 3-8 to 1-2, May 1.13 3-4 to 7-8, corn 3-8 off to 1-2 up, Dec. 94 3-4 to 7-8, May 90, oats unchanged to 1-4 advance, and provisions 5 to 12 cents down.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—It was blue Monday in the stock market today as leading issues in virtually all departments fell back fractions to 2 or more points.

A few shares managed to weather the squall, but there was little comeback discernible in the majority of issues around noon. The activity was comparatively small following a lively opening.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol was a lone performer on the upside for more than 2 points. Cerro De Pasco and Douglas Aircraft were a shade ahead and American Telephone was about even.

Principal losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Deere, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Standard Oil of N. J., Shell Union, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Paramount first preferred and U. S. Rubber common and preferred.

LOCAL AFFAIRS MORE INTERESTING TO LOCAL RESIDENTS THAN ROWS OF EUROPE; VARIED OPINIONS OFFERED

Local affairs have prominence over the Spanish revolt and the general European situation for Lubbock residents. The average man or woman of Lubbock is more interested in events here than in foreign wars and disasters. The average person is interested only because of effect on the United States and the consequent effect on himself.

To determine what European war threats meant to Lubbock men and women, a number were interviewed as they were met on the street this morning.

Keep Out Of It

J. J. Donosky, Dallas, said, "All we want is to keep out of it; we should be smart enough to profit by the World war."

A. L. Burdine, 1714 Broadway, believed that France will send troops to Italy as soon as Russia declares war on Germany.

Miss Evelyn Perry, women's dormitory, said, "It's all right as long as they stay at home to fight."

There are varied opinions as to the outcome of the present crisis in Europe.

Opinions Are Varied

Mrs. Woodine Dagley, 1603 College avenue, expected world peace in the near future, while Mrs. J. H. Hackfield, 2101 Sixteenth street, said she thought the present state in Europe is bordering on another world war.

B. H. Cobb, Mayfield, Kentucky, said, "It doesn't look good to me; I am fearful that the United States is going to be drawn into the conflict."

Miss Doleene Taylor, 913 Avenue M, believed that Russia is going to send Spain some allies very soon.

Give It No Thought

Mrs. Garland Nystel, 1419 Tenth street, and Miss Minnie Morris, 1514 Thirteenth street, have not given any thought to the situation.

"Spain will lose its romance and glamor when the cathedrals and castles have been destroyed," declared Miss Frances Mayhugh, 1621 Avenue Y.

Sunday A Busy Day Along Cotton Row

Sunday was a fairly busy day down "cotton row," for local and visiting buyers and brokers. Sales were estimated at between 4,000 and 5,000 bales.

Church Conference Being Held Today

Opening session of the Northwest Texas Methodist conference cabinet with Bishop H. A. Boaz, Fort Worth, started at 10 o'clock this morning in the First Methodist church with the nine presiding elders present.

A continuous meeting was expected for the remainder of the day, lasting until late tonight. It was not known whether Bishop Boaz and his cabinet would complete their work tonight or not.

Conference matters will be discussed. It is expected that most of the district affairs can be handled here, thus eliminating a considerable period at the annual conference in Houston starting November 4, Rev. W. M. Pearce, host presiding elder, said.

A number of ministers from over the conference was also on hand for the meeting.

THEY GIVE PRIZES FOR EVERYTHING ELSE SO WHY NOT ONE FOR BABIES?

BY DALE HARRISON

TORONTO, Oct. 26 (AP)—They give prizes for dogs and squashes, for homemade pies and for statues made of soap, so why, inquired Mrs. Lily Kenny, shouldn't there be a prize for the mother who excels at bearing babies?

That was her answer to the blast of criticism Premier Hepburn set off when he called the mothers' marathon a "racket" and a "disgusting, revolting exhibition."

No. 1 Claimant

Mrs. Kenny is the No. 1 claimant to the $500,000 which Charles Vance Millar bequeathed to the city's most prolific mother.

She put it this way:

"People with large families don't get divorces. More large families mean less divorces. Mr. Millar must have thought of that, so he sat right down and did something about it.

"He knew there were prizes for almost everything — fo bathing girls, perfect cakes, and shapeliest fingernails — prizes for everything but children. So he took care of that."

No General Support

Mrs. Kenny's enthusiasm for the late lawyer and his postmortal interest in increased population did not find general support. Most of the opinion heard today endorsed the statement of Premier Hepburn who said it was the duty of the government to "stop this fiasco."

The Toronto Globe, seeking a cross-section of opinion, found only one person out of 12 to say a good word for the stork derby. Some of the comment was:

"A disgrace to Ontario."

"Scandalous. Don't you think they've gone the limit."

"Perfectly awful."

"This method of promoting childbirth is little short of criminal."

Last night the stork, virtually on the verge of a nervous breakdown, missed a big chance to create a sensation. He found his weary self flying around with a load of triplets—enough babies to turn the contest upside down.

Instead of taking them out to Mrs. Grace Baffato, a leading contender for the Millar money who is "expecting," the stork dropped the babies at general hospital to Mrs. Sidney MacLean, heretofore childless.

Advance Is Rushed

The lumbering insurgent advance against the capital shifted into low gear at three points in the offensive line. One column operating around El Escorial pushed its outposts three miles closer to Madrid.

Fascist commanders on the Maqueda-Madrid highway, with operating headquarters at Navalcarnero, surveyed the war map as strong reinforcements poured into their camps ready for the order to begin anew the attack against the capital's strong entrenchments.

Two American newspaper men, caught in bitter machine gun fire near Aranjuez, were released after being held for a short period by their insurgent captors. An English companion was also set free.

Floyd Carmon, 11, and Olander Carmon, 15, also died of exposure. The bodies were found in a pasture near Nocona.

Traffic accidents took three lives at Palestine. Mrs. Carl Johnson was killed when the car in which she was riding struck the trailer of a lumber truck. Dan Hale died when an automobile crashed into a power pole. Jim Kirkhart was the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

LANDON AND FOLLOWERS SET OUT TO PROVE THAT ELECTION CAN BE WON IN THE LAST MONTH OF A CAMPAIGN

By NEA Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—In the face of growing belief among politicians and students of politics that Roosevelt has an edge in the presidential contest, Gov. Alf Landon and the Republicans have set out to prove that an election can be won in the last month of a campaign.

Landon himself, according to those who have been with him daily since his nomination, is more confident of victory than at any previous time. At one period, they say, he felt there wasn't much hope.

Although most of the political writers who are darting around the country with the candidates or on tours of their own are betting on Roosevelt at the can leaders, ugh moment, Republican leaders, though varying widely in the degree of their expectations, continue hopeful.

LANDON
mark the boys make when they take their hair down.

"We've got a good chance!"

Enough of the political map has jelled to enable the Republican high command to boil the situation down to one nutshell formula. Here it is:

Landon must carry New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and New Jersey if he is to be elected. If he loses a single state among the first five—the "Big Five"—he is sunk. He might win them all and still lose the election, but no such thing has ever happened.

If you care to take out your pencil and play the game which everyone, down to the youngest office boy, at major party headquarters is now playing, you can have herewith the latest confidential figurings among the Republican big shots, whose Chicago offices are spread through three large downtown buildings.

New England Held Sure

New England, they are sure, will throw the 41 electoral votes of her six states to Landon.

Add that to a possible 47 from New York, 36 from Pennsylvania, 29 from Illinois, 26 from Ohio, 19 from Michigan, 16 from New Jersey, and 14 from Indiana. The total is 228. A majority in the electoral college, requisite for victory, is 266.

Republicans say they are sure of Kansas and Wyoming—nine and three votes respectively — which makes 240.

Then there are some "good chance" states—Minnesota 11, Iowa 11, Nebraska 7, Colorado 6, South Dakota 4, and Delaware 3, which would bring the Landon total to 282.

The only other states which the most realistic Republicans say they consider as possibilities are West Virginia 8, North Dakota 4, and Idaho 4. But in current computations, these states are being left out of the theoretical G. O. P. column.

Need New Jersey

It would be possible to lose Indiana and still win the election for Landon, since Indiana has but 14 electoral votes. The figurers can see how, mathematically, they might lose New Jersey and still nose out ahead—but it takes no sixth sense to tell them that loss of New Jersey could be little else than indicative of a strong national trend to Roosevelt.

The obvious deduction is that it becomes important to know how things political are going in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan—and this writer is taking a trip through these and one or two contiguous states with the idea of finding out just that.

It will be observed that Republican leaders privately concede to Roosevelt the "Solid South," everything on the Pacific coast, the states of Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Wisconsin, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah, Nevada, and Montana.

That's a theoretical Roosevelt nest egg of 233 electoral votes and might be taken as an indication that the president is far closer to victory than his opponent, who must carry nearly all doubtful states to win.

Big States May Swing Back

Until 1932 at least, the "Big Five" states always were considered "normally Republican." There appears to be a trend back to the Republicans this year and it may take all these states back into the G. O. P. fold.

Pennsylvania was the only one which cast her vote against Roosevelt in 1932 and she has since elected a Democratic governor and a Democratic senator. Previously, all five went consistently Republican except in 1912, year of the Bull Moose split, and in 1916, when Ohio went to Wilson instead of Hughes—an essential factor in Wilson's election.

Large elements of guesswork enter into any attempt to decide how the nation would vote at various periods of the campaign if the election were to be held forthwith.

But it usually is accepted that the result has on two or three occasions been changed by developments or new trends in the last month or two, even though decisive last-minute trends are often pure imagination in the minds of party leaders who are destined to lose.

Lincoln Expected Defeat

Abraham Lincoln believed at one point in the 1864 campaign that he would be defeated by General McClellan. Many historians believe that it was only a succession of Union victories under General Sherman and others which turned the tide in his favor.

It also is likely that William Jennings Bryan could have been elected over McKinley in September, 1896. But millions of Republican dollars and a vast propaganda campaign won that fight—two factors whose importance should not be forgotten in the present campaign.

The first months of the 1916 campaign found Hughes a heavy favorite over Wilson, but Wilson's campaigning, the "kept us out of war" slogan, and Hughes' snub of Hiram Johnson in California elected the Democratic ticket by a narrow majority.

Incidents may be as important as late trends. This campaign might yet produce something equivalent to the "Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion" incident which elected Cleveland over Blaine.

DUTCHER

ciently weighted with rural ballots.

Both Have Strongholds

The upper peninsula, a mining-industrial area where Emil Hurja of national Democratic headquarters goes and talks to the boys in Finnish, and the south-eastern part of the state are heavily Democratic. The northern and southwestern sections of the lower peninsula contain the Republican strongholds.

This county (Wayne) casts about a third of the state's vote and will give Roosevelt a plurality of 150,000 if experts quizzed by this writer are correct. One basis for the prediction is that the considerable Negro vote, registered 86 per cent Republican in 1932, is this year registered 63 per cent Democratic. Murphy's relief policies as mayor of Detroit and Roosevelt's as president are credited for the switch.

The pro-Roosevelt Negro sentiment, heavy rural antagonism to the New Deal, enthusiastic labor support for Roosevelt, and huge registration figures are familiar factors found by your correspondent in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, and Michigan—which will undoubtedly be found also in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York.

Count On "Hidden Vote"

Registration for the primaries in Detroit is open. Voters are impressed with the belief that their bosses know which party preference they indicate. So the Democrats allege a huge hidden vote for Roosevelt and Murphy and Republicans charge Negro WPA workers registered Democrat for fear of losing their jobs, but will "vote right" in November.

Michigan's primary vote Sept. 15 did more than anything else to convince Governor Landon that he had a chance to wi... In the gubernatorial primary Republicans polled 508,000 votes and Democrats 377,000. Ex-Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, anti-New Dealer, beat liberal, independent Couzens in the G. O. P. senatorial primary by 315,000 to 199,000—and it was believed many Democrats voted for Couzens.

Claim G. O. P. Vote Drop

As against this, Democrats point out that although Republicans got 58 per cent of the primary vote this year, they got 68 per cent in 1932, only to see the Democrats sweep the state in November. They contend the G. O. P. primary vote this year was 200,000 less than in 1932 and the Democratic vote 170,000 up.

Furthermore, less than 50 per cent of the registered voters went to the primary poll, leaving possibly a million others to be heard from in November and meanwhile unpredictable.

WPA has been free from scandal in Michigan and its projects haven't aroused much criticism. Republicans are plugging "waste" and "Communism" out in the state and the Social Security Act's 1 per cent payroll tax in the cities.

Democrats, aside from ballyhooing the New Deal, are stressing the slogan: "A vote for Landon is a vote for Hoover!"

"That's the present state of the public mind. Key anti-New Deal figures recognize and deplore it. Alfred P. Sloan of General Motors denounces the New Deal, but 80 per cent of the men in his shops are for it. E. T. Weir, who smashed N. R. A., is giving thousands of dollars to the G. O. P. and the Liberty league, but his workers are dropping dimes and quarters into the Democrats' cash box.

"America may go up in smoke—in a New Deal conflagration—as Messrs. Sloan and Weir contend. But so long as the smoke twists upward through the chimneys of their factories, their workers will let tomorrow take care of itself and vote for the smoke they can see."

Whether it is pleasant reading, or not, depends upon the individual, but The Plainsman is of the opinion that the great majority of readers will agree with him in the statement that Mr. Tucker's writing above is as intelligent a piece of pre-election literature yet seen.

Father Sentenced For Slapping Baby

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (AP) — Frank Provost, 23, was sentenced to 180 days in jail and fined $500 after he pleaded guilty to striking his one-month-old daughter so hard she was sent to the hospital.

Judge E. P. Woods expressed regret he could not punish the young father more severely. Provost pleaded guilty to unjustifiable punishment to a minor.

The baby, Virginia, is in the general hospital. X-Rays have been taken to determine if her skull is fractured.

Captain T. P. Gordon of the sheriff's office quoted Provost's wife, Bertha May, as saying her husband, irritated because of Virginia's crying slapped her so hard last Sunday that the baby fell to the floor.

BLACK-DRAUGHT HIGH IN QUALITY WITHOUT BEING HIGH IN PRICE

Black-Draught is "easy to pay for" because it is so economically packaged and so reliable.

But as to quality, there's nothing "cheap" about it. For instance, its principal active ingredient is the leaves of a certain species of plant that are brought 10,000 miles from where they grow to the factory where the medicine is made. These leaves from far, far away, help to give Black-Draught its well-known "laxative reliability." They could not be left out, or substituted, with out real loss of good medicinal quality.

For a good, purely vegetable laxative, insist on Black-Draught. About 25 doses in each 25-cent package.—Adv.

JIM MOLLISON TELLS STORY

SILLY THOUGHTS ARE NOTED WHEN MAN FACES DEATH

BY DEVON FRANCIS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Captain James Mollison, fresh from a test flight in the new airplane he will fly to London observed today:

"A man facing death can have some silly thoughts."

Hunched behind an ailing motor or lost in a storm, a flier thinks it would be fine to be lying at that moment on a palm bordered beach with his eyes closed.

His Favorite Bar

"Or," supplemented Mollison, "he thinks about his favorite cocktail bar."

Mollison has had some tight squeaks. He conceded he might have one next week, when he will try to put New York within 15 flying hours of London with a plane turning up 248 miles an hour at cruising speed.

"I guess my tightest squeak was in 1929 when I was flying a transport between Melbourne and Sydney. We bored into a storm, bounced around for hours. My co-pilot got panicky and grabbed the controls.

Fought For Ship

"We fought for the ship. Behind us were eight passengers, panicky, too. I finally got the control sticks. My air speed indicator was frozen. The compass was going in circles.

"I thought what a fool I was ever to have hopped off. I thought of home, of the warmth of my favorite cocktail bar. I thought nebulously how nice it would be not be where I was.

"Then, suddenly, we flew out of it."
