California Town Is Rocked By Earthquake Shocks

All Buildings Of Brawley Damaged By Tremor Series

One Serious Injury Caused As Bricks And Debris Are Scattered About Streets Saturday Afternoon

Aid Is Requested

Several Fires Started By Violent Earth Movements In Section; No estimate Of Damage Available

(By Associated Press)

BRAWLEY, Calif., March 1.—(AP)—Residents of Brawley have taken to the streets tonight, after a series of twenty earthquake shocks, which have damaged structurally nearly all of the business buildings, scattered bricks and debris in the main thoroughfares and caused one serious injury.

The Brawley News building, police headquarters and other buildings suffered varying damage. Bricks falling from the coping of a hotel caved in the roof of an adjoining structure, and a woman was hit on the head by the falling debris.

The first shock was felt at 3:40 p. m. and stopped the presses of the News and broke a large plate glass window. The second shake was light and apparently did no damage, but the third was heavy.

Aid Requested

Aid was requested from surrounding towns by the Brawley police as the shocks continued after 4 o'clock.

No estimate of the damage was available, as the earth rocked for the fifth time at 4:07 p. m. Many automobile tops were broken in by falling brick, cement or tile copings and other debris.

Police said several fires had started by 4:30 p. m., but that they had no reports of any major damage to buildings.

Telephone connections were not broken, and reports from surrounding Imperial valley towns indicated the shocks had been felt slightly at El Centro and Calexico, but not at

Caverns Highway Group Plans Meet

While Frank Ernest Nicholson, famous author and explorer, is deep within the unknown depths of the Carlsbad Cavern, J. H. Hankins, president of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association, and committees, are busy planning for a meeting of the organization to be held on March 10 at Matador.

Interested parties from all points included on the route of the highway have been invited to be present at the meeting at which time plans for paving and getting Federal designation will be discussed. It has been pointed out by officials of the association that Federal designation for the route will mean a great deal to those counties involved in that one-third of the cost of paving will be paid by the government when such action is

Constables Found Guilty Of Taking Bribe At Wichita

Charges Brought By Crow, Admitted Lubbock Bootlegger, Result In 2-Year Sentences For Two Men

(By Associated Press)

WICHITA FALLS, March 1.—C. P. Wilson and Dan Ellis, deputy constables here, were convicted on charges of accepting a bribe and sentenced to two years' imprisonment by a jury in district court today.

The jury reported 25 minutes after it received the case. Attorneys for the convicted men immediately moved for a new trial, but the deputies cannot be removed from jail under bond until the motion has been passed upon.

Wilson and Ellis were charged with having accepted $85 to forego reporting a violation of prohibition laws. Disposition of the case was probably the speediest in the history of Wichita county district courts. The charge was filed Feb. 20, the grand jury indictment returned a week later, and the trial started the following day, with ten days between filing of charges and conviction.

J. J. Crow of Lubbock, admitted bootlegger, brought the charge, saying he was released after the deputies caught him with liquor. The defense contended the deputies were framed, and that they were not present with Crow in the places he designated. Thhe frame-up resulted from their activities against bootleggers, the defendants contended.

LOCAL WOMAN HELD

Bertie Brooks Charged In Liquor Law Violation

Arrested Friday night when county and city officers raided her home and confiscated a small quantity of whiskey, Bertie Brooks, charged with violation of the prohibition law, is being held in the Lubbock county jail.

No bond had been set late Saturday.

She was sentenced to one year in the State penitentiary on a similar charge last fall and was out on an appeal bond at time of her arrest Friday.

Jail Guarded After Dozen Saw Blades Found In Cell By Sheriff; Accomplice Testifies For State

(By Associated Press)

MEMPHIS, Tex., March 1.—The death penalty was assessed Hess Tyler by a jury here today which convicted him of the slaying of Bryan Nall, storekeeper of Eli, Jan. 30.

The case was given to the jury late yesterday. It was reported that one juror held out for a 99-year prison sentence instead of the extreme penalty. Attorneys for Tyler said a motion for a new trial would be filed.

Nall, according to testimony, was wounded fatally when he resisted being held up. Granville Ray, charged with Tyler for the slaying, testified for the state. It had not been determined whether he would be tried.

Tyler did not take the stand, and no evidence was offered in his behalf.

TO DISCONTINUE

CHICAGO, March 1.—(AP)—The wheat stabilization corporation, adjunct of the Federal Farm Board, was ordered late today to discontinue paying the loan basis value for what after grain leaders and Farm Board members met with Arthur Hyde, secretary of agriculture. The corporation, however, may continue to buy at the market.

Moody Hopeful Of Action On Prison

Optimistic Chief Executive Seeks Compromise On Two Different Views Held By Lower House And Senate

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, March 1 (AP)—Governor Dan Moody is an optimistic chief executive. He has not given up hope that the 41st legislature will do something about reorganizing the penitentiary system along lines suggested by him.

There are 16 more working days left in the fifth special session, and Governor Moody is hopeful that some sort of a compromise can be effected between the two houses—now apparently irreconcilably divided on what to do about the prison situation—that will give him an opportunity to demonstrate that his cure for existing evils is the lasting one. He had appealed to the people to make their representatives in the legislature see his solution as the proper one, but if the people heard, and hearing, wrote to their legislators to take the governor's way out, they paid no heed. The house again voted to go no further in prison reorganization than rehabilitate existing properties to the extent of $400,000, leaving Huntsville the central plant. The senate again favored the governor's plan to set up a new central prison equipped for industrial occupation and place it near Austin.

With Committees

The differences will be passed on to a free conference committee at the proper time—probably Monday—and there remains the almost

Texas to Observe Ninety-Fourth Birthday of Independence Today

(AN EDITORIAL)

WITHIN the uneven boundaries of the Union's largest state more than 5,000,000 persons should pause today in commemoration of the sacrifices which have made possible a heritage of liberty, industry, and education.

Ninety-four years ago today Texas declared independence amid turbulent and ominous conditions. During the months which followed our forefathers wrote a chapter of Texas history which shines with undiminished effulgence of bravery through the gathering mists of accumulating years.

Those who died at Goliad and in the Alamo have challenged the spirit of unity which should characterize our solemn observance of the day.

Lest phrases of praise fall platitudinously among a busy generation, we should but remember the chronicled incidents of tragic suffering which gave birth to our great state.

Scarred veterans who survived those conflicts of 1836 have been silenced by death. But they left a message which speaks to present and future generations—"Be Sure You Are Right; Then Go Ahead."

Proudly, nobly, and, if God permits, peacefully we should go ahead.

Sixteen-Year-Old Youth Killed In All-Day Fight With Posse Of 200 Men

(By Associated Press)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. March 1.—Bonifacio Torres, 16-year-old youth who shot and wounded three peace officers of Valencia county this morning, was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff this evening as darkness was settling over the home where he was barricaded and had held off a posse of 200 men all afternoon.

The youth kept up a continual fire on the posse until Deputy Sheriff Reymendo Lovato leaped through a first floor window and shot the boy through the heart while other members of the posse were firing on him from another direction.

Tear Bombs Used

Tear bombs and dynamite were used in vain during the afternoon attacks upon the youth and it was finally decided to attempt to rush him in his barricade before darkness settled down.

Rag torches were made, saturated with gasoline and thrown upon the house. The smoke and fire drove the boy outside for air and then members of the posse advanced from several directions, forcing him back into the burning house. He was blazing away at the possemen when Deputy Sheriff Lovato leaped through a window and shot him.

Three Wounded

The three officers shot by the youth when they first sought to arrest on complaint of his mother that he was drunk and incorrigible and that she wanted him committed to the reform school, are:

Sheriff Ignacio Aragon, of Belen, shot through left lung.

Ministers To Be Presented To President Doumergue Today By New Premier Of France

PARIS, March 2. (Sunday) (AP)—Andre Tardieu announced early this morning that he had formed his second cabinet and would present the ministers later in the day to President Doumergue.

Premier and minister of the interior, Andre Tardieu; foreign affairs, Aristide Briand; justice, Raoul Peret; war, Andre Maginot; marine, J. L. Dumesnil; finances, German Martin; budget, P. Reynaud; commerce, P. E. Flandin; agriculture, Fernand David; posts and telegraphs, Andre Mallarme; air, Laurent Eynac; pensions, Champetier De Ribes; public works, G. Pernot; merchant marine, Louis Rollin, and labor, P. Laval.

Seventeen under-secretaries will also be named and two new posts will be created, one for "tourism" and another for national economy. The creation of an under-secretaryship for the encouragement of tourist travel in France has been advocated for a long time.

Nation Saddened By Taft Illness

Former President Regains Consciousness For Short Time; Death Held Matter Of Only Few Hours

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 1.—With the nation saddened by his critical illness, William Howard Taft seemed as cheerfully untroubled during one of his conscious moments today as he so often did in the heights of those political struggles on which depended his immediate future.

The certainty that death is but a matter of time, perhaps of hours only, has failed to overwhelm his courage or good nature—if, indeed, he is even aware of the fact. Today, for the first time in three days, he was able to speak and to give a handclasp.

Hoovers Call

The President and Mrs. Hoover called at the Taft residence for five minutes this afternoon to express their solicitude to the family. With them was their son Herbert. It was the President's second call at the house of illness, while Mrs. Hoover had visited Mrs Taft twice before.

Aged Confederate Veteran To Meet His Civil War Buddy At Monroe Today After Sixty-Five Years

BY CHAS. C. WATSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer.

JACOB MATHENY has found a pal.

After years of search, the veteran of many Civil war battles has located a comrade of his youth. Eighty-six years of age, with long flowing gray beard—deep wrinkles creasing a suntanned face—shoulders slightly bent, Jacob Matheny is still young.

Sixty-five years ago, when the war of the states had ended, two young men clasped hands in Tennessee and bid farewell. No word passed between them and, as months lengthened into years and years into the span of a lifetime—each supposed the other to have gone the way of the fast-thinning ranks of Confederates.

To Meet Today.

But—today they will meet. Jacob Matheny, of Munday, and Charles Reagan, of Monroe, the two boys who said good bye 65 years ago will be re-united this morning.

The two were buddies of Company C, Eighth Tennessee Cavalry, and just one other of that company survives, George Judd, who is still a resident of that state.

Mr. Matheny was a visitor in Lubbock Saturday, en route to Monroe. While here he was guest in the homes of A. Judd and O. C. Babry, both of this city. He came to Texas in 1889, a resident of the western section since that time.

Amarillo Woman May Stop Broadway Hit Taken from Story

BY GENE HOWE
Editor of the Amarillo Globe-News
Written for The Associated Press

AMARILLO, March 1.(AP)—A weary, grief-worn, grey-haired mother in Amarillo, wondered today whether she should close a show, which admittedly is one of Broadway's biggest "hits" or whether she should permit it to continue as a protest against capital punishment.

The mother is Mrs. Ella Blake. Robert Blake, her son, died in the electric chair at Huntsville, April 29, 1929. Blake was convicted of killing Fred Conner, Tulia automobile salesman, in 1925.

Decision Reached.

Mrs. Blake reached this decision today—she will go to New York, and see the play herself. If it is "real," if it in any way creates sentiment "against these murders committed by the states," she indicated her final decision would be to allow it to continue.

Her son's copyrighted article, published in the American Mercury, is the theme and setting of "The Last Mile" by John Wexley, running in New York. The article was appropriated bodily by Wexley without consent.

Mrs. Blake, who has eight grown children living in Amarillo, is about 60 years old. She is a sweet-faced, soft-speaking woman, who looks and is a good mother. Robert was the only child touched by tragedy.

Injunction Possible.

"Would it be possible for me to close 'The Last Mile?'" she asked today. The reply was that attorneys here say Wexley took something which did not belong to him, and it was their opinion the courts would sustain an injunction.

"I am going back all the way to New York to decide," she then said. "I have made up my mind. If it is terrifying something that attracts crowds because it is gruesome and

U. S. Commission Arrives At Haiti

Hoover's Group Meets And Overcomes Opposition In Investigation Of Conditions In Country

(By Associated Press)

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI, March 1.—President Hoover's commission to investigate conditions in Haiti met and conquered its first opposition today on the very morning after its arrival on the U. S. S. Rochester.

When the commission opened its first session this morning to hear testimony from all Haitians, who had been invited to come freely and without fear in the statement issued yesterday, no one arrived to testify. The mystified commissioners finally were informed that the opposition today on the very morn- people to stay away, believing the present commission was only "a second McCormick commission."

Misdeeds Heard

The opposition leaders consider that the McCormick commission, which investigated conditions in Haiti and the Dominican republic in 1921 under Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, did no more than hear "all the past misdeeds of the occupation and threw their books into the ocean without remedying the situation."

The boycott ended during life day after the commission had issued a statement amplifying that of yesterday, and saying:

Look To Future

"We are not another McCormick commission, but are here looking to the future and not to the past. We want to find from the people how and when the occupation can cease and national institutions are re-established."

Aiken Likely To Be Refused Bond In Lamesa Death

District Attorney Arrives For Investigation After Fatal Shooting Of Cafe Operator Friday Night

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, March 1.—Bud Aiken, charged with murder of D. I. Cox, Lamesa cafe owner, probably will be refused bail, according to a statement here this afternoon by District Attorney T. L. Price, of Post, who has arrived for an investigation of the shooting.

"Although the investigation is not complete," Price stated, "I do not believe that Aiken had any legal justification in this case."

Makes No Statement

Aiken has made no statement since his arrest last night on the charge of murder and is being held in the Dawson county jail.

Cox was killed last night about 7 o'clock, following an alleged argument over the municipal primary with Aiken.

The shooting, according to witnesses, occurred in Cox's cafe after the argument. Aiken was said to have left the cafe about 6:30, stating that he "would be back."

Dies After Shooting

At time of the shooting, Cox was in the rear of the building while Aiken was in front. Cox was found lying on the steps at the rear door shortly afterwards. He died twenty minutes later.

Examination of the body revealed that he had been struck by two bullets. One entered the left side of his back, penetrated the body and passed through right breast. The other bullet took effect in the right wrist. He made no statement to officers before he died.

Missing Necklace Of Queen Is Found

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—The missing diamond necklace which Napoleon gave to his empress, Marie Louisa, more than a century ago, was located today intact, in the safe of a Fifth Avenue jeweler.

The Archduchess Maria Theresa of Vienna, erstwhile owner who valued the jewels at $400,000, was reported planning legal action to recover them. The jeweler, D. M. Michel, refused to reveal what he paid for the necklace, but the price was said to have been only $60,000.

Finding of the necklace ended a search by agents of the archduchess in which the aid of the United States attorney's office had been enlisted.

Woman Employe Of Company Critically Hurt; Probe Is Started After Dynamite Theory Given

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANGELO, March 1.—Mrs. J. A. Nellon, Western Union employe, was critically burned and five other employes were less seriously injured in an explosion which wrecked the telegraph company's office here tonight.

Seven persons were extricated from the wreckage, but only six of them were hurt seriously enough to remain at a hospital.

A number of other persons walking by the office were cut and bruised by fiving glass and debris.

Cause of the explosion was not definitely ascertained, although John Parker, fire chief, said it appeared to have resulted from a charge of dynamite. An investigation was under way. No reason could be assigned for the apparent dynamiting.

The blast raised the floor four feet off its foundations. The injured were extricated only after firemen had worked nearly half an hour clearing away the debris.

The Western Union established temporary offices in San Angelo Standard-Times building.

The other injured were:

Amy Joyce Sweden and Mrs. Eugene McCrohan, operators; J. B. Tomlinson, night manager; William O. Stamps, a traveling salesman, and M. L. Reed, all of San Angelo. Stamps and Reed were sending messages.

Predict Passage For Tariff Bill

Duty On Long Staple Cotton Will Be Considered In Senate; Solons Weary In Two Night Sessions

By D. HAROLD OLIVER.
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP)—Passage of the tariff bill by the end of next week was predicted today by Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, after the senate had listened listlessly for two hours to a speech by Senator Goff, republican, West Virginia, who charged the coalition opposition with delaying the measure for political purposes.

By pre-arrangement, the senate was to have considered an amendment by Senator Shortridge, republican, to transfer long staple cotton from the free to the dutiable list at seven cents a pound, but when Goff concluded, the senators were willing to call it a day. Two successive night sessions which saw the defeat of attempts to place tariffs on lumber and oil evidently has taxed the strength of the already weary legislators.

Annual Automobile Show Is Assured By Dealers Here

Affair Is To Be Held, March 20, 21 In Uptown Hall

Details For Show Are Not Complete; Nine Dealers Sign To Approve Second Annual Event

LUBBOCK'S 1930 automobile show was assured last week when nine motor car dealers of this city put their names on the dotted line for entry in the second annual exposition of this nature.

Sponsored by the Lubbock Automobile Dealers association the event is likely to be staged again this year at the Uptown Dance Palace on March 20 and 21, it has been announced by Geo. P. Kuykendall, president of the association.

To Show Values.

"The real purpose of the show is to give the motorists and prospective motorists of this section an opportunity to see the remarkable values that have been placed on the 1930 automobile market," said Mr. Kuykendall yesterday. "I am convinced that those who invest in modern-day motor cars are getting more value received for their money than any other class."

Last year approximately 10,000 visitors filed through the doors at the Uptown Dance Palace on Texas Avenue. This two-day gathering included citizens from practically every city in Lubbock's trade territory.

Details Not Complete.

Although details for this year's show have not been completed, various committees have been appointed to look after additional plans for the event.

J. E. Dickey, D. P. Massey and M. T. Birch constitute the finance committee; W. W. Royalty and Ted Tipps are in charge of arrangements and the advertising committee is composed of Hub Jones, Frank Kent and George Benson.

Following along the line of arrangements in last season's show, the visitors this year will likely be entertained by orchestra music and special skits. The doors to the dance pavilion will be open to the public both afternoon and night on the two days the show is held.

Engineers Gather In Annual Confab Here On Saturday

Two Hundred And Fifty At Banquet Of Tech Society; E. C. H. Bantel Is Main Speaker On Program

E. C. Bantel, assistant dean of the engineering school of the University of Texas, was the principal speaker for the fourth annual banquet of the engineering society of Texas Technological college Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Matador room of the Hilton hotel. More than 250 persons, including club members, engineering faculty members, engineering graduates and the board of directors, attended the function.

Professor J. H. Murdough of the civil engineering department, was toastmaster for the occasion, and class speakers included Al Van Dyke, senior; John A. Davis, junior; W. C. Cotton, sophomore, and Theo Hazelwood, freshman.

Dialogue Given

A comedy dialogue was given by Mose Witherspoon and Walter Burns, followed by a quartet, composed of Frank Stone, W. A. Wardell, Louis Lahm and Harold Bettersworth. Dean Wm. J. Miller spoke briefly to those gathered.

Simultaneously with the banquet held in this city last night, two others were being held in widely separated states. One, with eight graduates of Texas Tech engineering school attending, was held in Youngstown, Ohio, while another, with three graduates, was held at Chattanooga, Tenn. Telegrams were exchanged by all three cities and read at the programs.

Officers Given

Officers of the engineering society include R. J. Candler, president; W. A. Wardell first vice-president; R. C. Brummett, second vice-president; and Cary H. Lodal, secretary-treasurer. These, together with a committee, composed of Jno. A. Davis, Harvey Spencer, Walter Burns, R. T. Campbell, W. C. Cotton, Donald Boggs and Frank Emison, had charge of arrangements for the banquet.

Band Concert To Be Given Monday

Complimentary to the people of Lubbock and surrounding country, and the students and faculty of Texas Technological college, a free band concert will be given in the gymnasium Monday night, March 3, Prof. Harry T. Slumbering Of Church Members In Pews Only Static Worry To Pastors

Radio Sermons Fail To Bother Local Services

BY MARGARET TURNER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE ONLY static that worries pastors in Lubbock is the snoring of some church member who inadvertently slumbers in the pews. In other words sermons over the air are not cutting down on church attendance in the local churches.

Ministers when interviewed last week agreed that, while radio messages were a good thing to aged persons or shut-ins, man is much better off when he worships with his fellow beings in a place where the speaker is seen and music is not mechanical.

Not Affecting Jennings.

To quote Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the First Christian church: "I am sure that my congregation has not been affected by sermons on the air. While I agree that many wonderful messages have been broadcast I do not feel that they will ever take the place of sermons from the pulpit. The personality of the speaker is lost and much of the inspiration missing that comes from the pews. Good listeners make good speakers."

"It is true, however, that some people who will not come to church do listen to Sunday services over their radios."

Given As Excuse.

Rev. H. L. Munger, pastor of the First Methodist church, says "Radio sermons may take a few people from my congregation but very few. I have heard that given as an excuse for not going to church but I'm of the opinion that they would probably not have gone if we did not have radios."

"Then, too, the western stations broadcast so late that those who feel they must listen to a radio sermon may do so after attending services."

Rev. Munger believes that man needs the fellowship that worship in a gathering place affords.

"Religion has much of the social nature in it and man as a rule seeks companionship when he tries to attune himself to the Deity," he said.

All Come To Church.

"Not a bit, I haven't a member who stays at home and listens in rather than coming to hear me preach," declared Rev. G. P. McCollom, pastor of the Asbury Methodist church.

Dr. Jack M. Lewis of the First Presbyterian church, denies that any of his congregation are slack in their attendance.

"For the past two months when static has been less and the messages were coming in the best I have had a larger attendance than ever before," he says.

Hold No Appeal.

Ministers also deny that absence of collection and financial obligation hold an appeal to listeners. Within the past few months it has been found necessary to make several financial campaigns and the response has been quite satisfactory they say.

Rev. C. J. McCarty, pastor of the Nineteeth Street Baptist is of the same opinion as the other ministers regarding radio sermons while J. D. Carroll, director of church activities at the First Baptist church, points out the fact that recently an auditorium has been built to house Baptist congregations and this seems to be evidence that there is not a lessening in church attendance there.

CAPA Y ESPADA

Harry Le Maire and his saxaphone quartet were the featured part of the program at the last meeting of Capa y Espada. Several Spanish and Russian selections were played.

Mary Louise McNeal spoke on the "Cultural Advantages of Studying Spanish" and Lloyd Croslin discussed the practical advantages of studying the subject.

A decision was reached to have a banquet for the club on Cinco de Mayo, the date celebrated by the Mexicans as a national holiday. Two other parties are also to be held in the spring term.

ENROLL NOW

New students may enroll in the extension class of business English which is being taught by Cecil Horn, in the chamber of commerce rooms at the city hall, at the meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The first lesson of the class will be given then. Meetings will be held for two hours once a week for 12 weeks. A study of the principles of English usage in business correspondence and every day problems of letter writing will be made. A charge of $10 is made for enrolling. At present there are 11 students.

FIGURES GIVEN

In 11 months, which include April 1, 1929 to March 1, 1930, a total of 1038 students have been given correspondence or extension work from the college. Exact figures, which include the students taking one or more courses, show that 1,857 have received instruction in this way within the past 11 months. Of these 856 were correspondence and 701 extension class students. The figures were given out from the office of Mr. J. F. McDonald, head of the department of extension.

EXHIBIT TUESDAY

Under the direction of the physical education teachers, Misses Zella Riegal and Johnnye Gilkerson a demonstration of various phases of women's physical education will be given Tuesday night in the gymnasium at 8 o'clock. No admission will be charged and the general public is invited to attend. The program will consist of clogging, tumbling, folk dancing, exhibition games of volley ball, singing games, and a flag and calesthenics drill which involve 80 students.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE"

"The Great Divide," a three-act drama, is to be presented by Sock and Buskin and Alpha Psi Omega, dramatic organizations, at 8:15 o'clock Friday night in the high school auditorium. The following students have parts in the cast:

Mrs. Dorothy Lacey is cast in the leading role as Ruth Jordan, and Orval Burroughs plays opposite her as Steven Ghent, the Californian. R. V. Willis takes the part of her brother, Phil, and Melbris Priest is Polly Jordan, his wife. The part of the mother is played by Kate Pressley, Dr. Newberry by Cecil Kersey and Winthrop Newberry by Ameral Payne. Other characters are: Lon Anderson, Red Brooks, Bert Williams, Warren Huff; contractor, Hal Lary; Dutch, Jack Durham; Mexican, Byron Clannch messenger boy, John Louis Cook Bert, Warren Huff; and the architect, Wayne Castleberry.

Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the speech department of the college is directing "The Great Divide." Sets are being constructed for the play by members of the Sock and Buskin club, and of stagecraft classes.

Official Flag Of Texas Given Tech By J. W. Carpenter

President, General Manager Of Texas Power, Light Company Makes Donation To Institution Here

Announcement was made Saturday by President Paul W. Horn of Texas Technological college, of receipt of a present from J. W. Carpenter of Dallas, president and general manager of the Texas Power and Light company, in the form of an official state flag of Texas.

Mr. Carpenter, in presenting the flag, wrote: "As you know, I have long been active in promoting a proper appreciation of Texas. Not only do I hope for a wider understanding of the state's marvelous natural resources and her unsurpassed opportunities for industrial and agricultural development, but I would bring about a more general love and respect for the sacrifical examples, the traditions and ideals of our noble forefathers.

"You are doing a notable work in training for good citizenship. I congratulate you and express the hope that this bunting which I am sending you may help to keep before our fine young men and women the hallowed memories of early Texas."

The flag will be unfurled today, Texas Independence Day, on the campus of the institution.

Vesper Services To Close Today

The series of vesper services, which have been held on Sunday evenings at Hotel Hilton for the past several weeks, will be brought to a close following a similar program today, Dr. John C. Granbery, one of the sponsors, said yesterday.

Declaring that the services had been well patronized, Dr. Granbery issued the program today, set for 5:30 p. m., as the parting announcement concerning them. It is as follows:

Bowen Purchases Hilton Drug Store

The Hilton Drug Store, formerly owned by Hilton Hotels, Inc., was purchased Saturday by F. M. Bowen of this city and his brother, R. I. Bowen of Coleman, it was announced late yesterday.

Under the new ownership, the store will be known as Bowen's Hilton Drug store, and J. O. Smith, present manager, will remain in charge of the firm.

The Bowen brothers are owners of the Bowen drug store, located at 1021 Broadway.

F. M. Bowen entered the drug business in Lubbock seven years ago. He and his brothers are associated in ownership of nine stores, two in this city, two at Waco, two at Sweetwater and one at Breckenridge.

Greyhounds are perhaps the oldest known type of dog. Stone carvings dating back to about 4000 B. C. shows figures of these graceful animals.

"Please, How Many Is A Book"

Remedial Reading Class Conducted In Local School Proves Beneficial To Youngsters In Work

"How many of you have read a book since the last time we met?" A wild flourishing of hands is given in response with one small girl hesitating.

"Haven't you read as much as a book?" asks the teacher.

Given Remedial Reading

This scene took place Thursday afternoon in the K. Carter ward school, when several pupils from the second grade met in a remedial reading group directly after school closed for the day. Mrs. J. T. Shaver, primary supervisor in the local public schools, teaches the class, which meets in a general assembly once a month.

"I have discovered that there are a great many grown people who read aloud very poorly," said Mrs. Shaver. "Children taught to read correctly seldom have trouble when they are older.

Various Methods Used

Various methods are planned to give an incentive for reading. For instance, Thursday afternoon each child was given a paragraph with four sentences printed on it. The idea was for him to match the reading with pictures which had been placed around the blackboard, and having done so to take both the card and the picture to his individual teacher and read it aloud to her. Then he was given a new descriptive paragraph to hunt a picture once more.

The children like to read aloud and are quite eager to show visitors how well they could accomplish their directions.

Youth Shows He Can

One small boy who was not in the reading group was nevertheless interested and wanted to give an example of his ability to read aloud. Picking up his much worn primer, he hurriedly read, "The Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat." An unusually attractive child, with an apple blossom complexion and great hazel eyes, W. J. Egelston, while only seven years of age, is in group one of the high second grade.

Reading circles are formed in each school with teachers keeping account of the books which the pupils read. Their names and a list of books are on a large chart which hangs on the blackboard.

Contests Held

Opportunity groups are matched against each other in the different schools, and points are kept in a record book.

"We can see the improvement which has taken place already," remarked Mrs. Shaver. "Since pupils read eight or nine cards in a meeting now when they only read two or three when we first began the group."

Is Popular Course

Perhaps one of the main reasons that this course, which would be looked upon with disfavor by many pupils, is so popular with the children may be traced to the method of approach which Mrs. Shaver uses. Directions are given once, and the youngsters feel that it is a business proposition and intermingled with the work is enough suggestion of a game to retain interest.

Second grade teachers who assisted Mrs. Shaver in the reading group were Mrs D. J. Wilhelm, Mrs. E. A. Watson, Miss Zada Walden and Miss Bernice Phippe.

Lamesa To Stage Minstrel March 6

"Our Merry Making Minstrels" Is Name Of Show To Be Given By Chamber Of Commerce

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, March 1.—With a cast of more than 100 citizens of Lamesa and Dawson county, 'Our Merry-Making Minstrels," a blackface musical comedy sponsored by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, will be presented here Thursday, March 6. An added attraction during the local talent stage presentation will include a chorus of over fifty farmers, directed by Owen C. Taylor.

Latest songs and jokes will feature the evening during the "county-wide" minstrel, which is being directed by Mrs. Phillip Yonge and Mrs. W. D. Arnett.

Special effort is being made by the Chamber of Coommerce to have as many farmers cast in the play as possible, as well as a large representation of farmers in the audience.

Elbert W. Smith has been chosen as interlocutor for the minstrel, according to the directors, and he is well versed in his part, it is reported. A crew of black-face cotton pickers will support Smith, during the main part of the minstrel. Among the local business men who have been cast in the show are O. B. Norman, W. D. Arnett, V. B. Wilson, W. B. Collins, Aubrey Thomas, M. Q. Martin, W. K. Crawley, Guy Weekes, Lewis Eager, Geo Canon, J. A. Brown, J. E. Barron, Wm. A. Wilson and Elbert W. Smith.

Shallowater Will Organize C. of C.

Organization of the Shallowater Chamber of Commerce will be completed at a meeting in that city tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, it was announced here Saturday.

A tentative chamber was formed last week when L. E. Baker was elected president and Fred Fite was elected secretary.

A representative of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce will explain the functioning of such an organization at the meeting tomorrow night. The representative had not been named Saturday.

Shallowater, located 12 miles northwest of Lubbock on Highway No. 7, has a population of about 700.

WORK IS RUSHED

New Barn Near Completion For Dairy Show

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, March 1.—Work is being rushed on the new addition to the dairy barn of the Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy Association at Plainview in order to be ready for the third annual dairy show, which will be held in this city on April 7, 8, 9 and 10. The contract for the new building was let last week for $3,100, and workmen immediately began the construction of the building.

The new building will be sixty feet wide and 120 feet long, and will be used to house the entries that are expected this year. Officials and directors of the dairy show believe that the number of entries will be increased 30 per cent over that of last year, and that the attendance will reach 50,000.

Growth Shown In Annual Report Of Local Sanitarium

Over 4,500 Patients Are Admitted During 1929 To Lubbock Institution; Few Deaths Are Reported

Rapid growth, reflected by an increase from 551 patients in 1928 to 4,564 during the past year, was shown in the annual report of the Lubbock sanitarium which was released here yesterday.

Since the sanitarium was erected in the latter part of 1927 and opened in January of 1928, two wings have been added. The structure is now three stories in height and has a capacity of 100 beds. It is operated in connection with the Lubbock sanitarium clinic.

Of the more than 4,000 patients admitted in 1929, 3,163 were given anesthetics with no fatal results. Nearly 12,000 laboratory examinations were made and 3,541 x-ray examinations given.

In 1929 there were 1,733 general surgical operations with a total number of 31 deaths, included in these operations were 84 cases of ruptured appendix with 79 patients recovering. One hundred and fifteen radium treatments were administered during the year just passed and 1,722 operations performed in the ear, eye, nose and throat department with three deaths following.

The report states that there were 918 cases in the medical department and 85 deaths. These include serious cases from Lubbock and the surrounding territory. Eight hundred thirty-three were discharged.

There were 104 obstetrical cases with 60 male and 44 female babies being delivered.

PLAN AMERICAN TRIP

Monterrey Auto Club Will Stage U. S. Motorcade

MEXICO CITY, March 1. (AP)—The automobile association of Monterrey is projecting a good will tour of business and professional Mexicans to visit Washington March 21 to 23. The tourists will likely go by automobile as good motor highways connect Monterrey with Washington. One purpose of the tour, it was announced, is to repay visits recentlymade by increasing numbers of American tourists to Monterrey and other Mexican cities.

New Road Group Formed In Dawson

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, March 1.—Proponents of Dawson county's $600,000 paved highway bond issue met here recently and formed a new organization to sponsor the hard surface program in this county. The Dawson County Paved Highway association, with M. C. Lindsey as chairman, will map out a program of education soon for the road bonds. No organized opposition has presented itself toward the latest paved road election, which will be held April 8. The new association is composed of proponents of the issue and opponents of a former $1,250,000 issue, which was defeated in December. If the issue carries favorably, the two state highways in this county will be hardsurfaced.

Mustangs Clinch Third Place In Southwest Cage Race

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

As the 1930 track season nears, the need of a major relay event for West Texas high schools comes to mind with new force. Texas Tech athletic officials have dreamed of an annual Texas Tech Relays since the institution was established in 1925, but have had neither the financial backing nor the moral support to put over the venture.

Fort Worth, Dallas and Austin are the only cities in the vast expanse of Texas that are hosts to annual relays and neither of these can boast a larger territory to draw from than Lubbock and Texas Tech. An annual Texas Tech Relays would be of limitless benefit for the school, city and section. Hundreds of high school athletes can be brought here each year to compete for honors on the cinder path. The event would bring about good will for the college and for the city of Lubbock, not to mention the business the visitors would furnish local concerns.

But the greatest benefit the relays offer is the opportunity of bringing the section's star athletes here to see Texas Tech and eventually get them in a Matador uniform. The time has come to extend all possible efforts to attract West Texas athletes to the section's largest state institution. To do this no better plan can be adopted than the annual relays.

At the present writing, the Tech athletic department is in somewhat of a financial jam. To inaugurate the relays this year it will be necessary for some outside organization to underwrite the initial venture. The gate receipts will likely take care of the money spent on awards, but nevertheless, there must be some guarantee or financial backing.

In order to stage four relay events and a half-dozen special events, it will be necessary to invest in at least 17 awards. This would give members of the winning relay team individual prizes and the high point man of the meet a handsome trophy. Tech coaches and varsity track men can be used as officials in the meet.

The time to start work on this idea is now. There's no reason why Texas Tech cannot hold its first annual Relays here during the first or second week in April. Here's an opportunity for a civic organization of the city to take a hand in something that will mean something big within a few years.

Reports have reached as far west as Portales, N. M., that Dee Puckett, rotund cafe owner here, is the manager of the Lubbock baseball club. Although this is news to us, we have suspected it for some time and now have Puckett's word that he's liable to blossom forth with a manless baseball nine at any time.

Proof that Puckett is accepted in the Sunshine State as Lubbock's manager comes in the form of a telegram from M. C. Welch, a catcher, who wants to get lined up with the local club. Dee can at least give the backstop three square meals a day at his coffee shop. But Joe Chisum, Dutch Luenberger and Red Terry aren't so sure that Puckett will be the Hubber boss. Personally we're for having some sort of elimination contest for this bevy of baseball masterminds that are nursing managerial ambitions.

Which reminds us of the old-reliable tune:

"Oh, the managers that bloom in the spring, tra la,
Have nothing to do with the case."

We might suggest that the rival managers draw high cards, roll high dice or even match for the job. If it happens to be an eating contest, we'll lay our money on the "well-rounded" Puckett.

Joe Chisum, 1929 Hubber business manager, has just returned from San Antonio where he passed judgment on the training tactics of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox. Chisum was in the Alamo City four days and eight hours of each day were spent at the ball park watching the major leaguers perform, we are told. John McGraw, the New York manager, was encountered one afternoon and this is the conversation that followed:

"Hello, Jawn," says Joe. "My name's Chisum and I'm manager of the Lubbock Hubbers. You've probably heard of me and my ball club. I'm good too. Got a swell nine here, haven't you?"

"Chisum, huh?" McGraw grunted as he peered out from under heavy arched eyebrows. "Where did you say you're from?"

"Lubbock."

"I've never heard of that, either," Jawn retorts, and as he turns away, "Hey, Shanty, let's see a little hustle behind that plate."

Chisum listened to McGraw's verbal attack on the husky catcher and ambled off muttering, "I knew he'd be like that. Imagine a bird that never heard of Lubbock."

A hot race looms between two members of the Lubbock High school track team during the coming season for high scoring honors. Last year Yancey Price, the Westerners' speed king, was the most dependable point winner for Coach Lowrey's aggregation. Mina Watkins is the lad who is certain to give Price a run for individual performance this year. He is given an edge over Price at the outset because of the fact that he is entered in more events than Yancey. Price runs the 100, the 220 and throws the discus while Watkins is practically assured of placing in both the low and high hurdles, the javelin, shot and broad jump. The hurdles, however, are the strong event for Watkins. Mina is entered upon his third year in track but has decided to come back next year for another season in football and track.

It's an unusual thing for a high school boy to cinch a place on the track team on the first day, but Dalton Blagg did this very thing Friday afternoon. Blagg has been in training with the high school football forces during spring training. He put on his first track suit Friday afternoon, went out to Tech Field and lined up with the broad jump candidates. A leap of 19 feet, 8 inches was enough to show Coach Lowrey that he had discovered another promising trackster

Phillies May Be Troublesome In National

Pitching Is Only Need Of Shotten To Bid For Title

Philadelphia Nationals Find Themselves Among Prospective Contenders For Pennant

By JAY VESSELS

PHILADELPHIA, March 1 (AP)—Give the Phillies' cannonading corps some pitching support this year, and watch Burt Shotton's club climb into the National league pennant scramble.

This is not quite the leading thought in connection with the 1930 major league campaign, but it will become that if Shotton has any luck at all in uncovering new hurling strength in the training camp.

Club Has Punch

It had been so long since a Philadelphia National league team led in any major part of the year's play that the 1930 Phillies find themselves among the prospective pennant contenders, all because of the batting punch shown by the 1929 lineup.

That 1929 outfit will be back this year, and it will have the same men who blasted the way to six new batting records. There are promises of new batting power, the strong fielding force remains intact, and if that pitching help is forthcoming there's going to be some pennant chatter in and around Baker field.

Besides leading the league in club hitting with a team average of .309, the 1929 Phillies piled up these records:

Most total bases (modern record)—2,559. Best previous record since 1900, set by Cards, 2,411, in 1922.

Most long hits—909. Old record, 489, by Pirates in 1925.

Most home runs—43, by Chuck Klein. Old record, 42, by Rogers Hornsby in 1922.

Manager Shotton, perhaps with greater limitations, has approached the brilliant record of Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs.

Shotton had little more than a league franchise when he came to the Phils three years ago. By smart trading he acquired O'Doul, Tommy Thevenow and Pinkey Whitney and picked up for remarkably small sums such budding stars as Chuck Klein, Don Hurst, Tripp Sigma, and others.

Pitchers Lester Sweetland and Claude Willoughby, who combined to win 29 games in 1929, are ready for another hard campaign and with more help than they have been accustomed to probably will do some constructive work.

Shotton has a park full of rookie pitchers at Winter Haven, Florida, and expects to find two or three dependables among them. The best young prospect is Harry Smythe, who pitched well in several games near the close of the 1929 season.

A spurt by the Phillies would be a great tonic to National league baseball and certainly would be welcome to a club which hasn't won a pennant since 1915.

County Meet Set For March 28-29

The annual Lubbock county meet will be held here March 28 and 29, it was announced yesterday, following a meeting of the county executive committee of the Interscholastic league.

Further details for the annual event will be worked out Monday night, when the committee meets for final discussion.

Brownfield Will Hold Wolf Rodeo

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BROWNFIELD, March 1—Sportsmen from all sections of the west are represented here today as they gather for Brownfield's first big wolf rodeo.

Thoroughbred dogs from all parts of West Texas and some from Oklahoma have been entered. Approximately one hundred wolves will be released from chutes one at a time and entries will be timed by their chase, time of catching and killing. Large cash awards are being offered.

The rodeo is a novel event in western sporting circles and hundreds of people have gathered for the events.

Young Horton Smith May Lead Pro Golfers In Winter Circuit

HORTON SMITH

Win Over Jones Is Latest Feat of Detroit Ace

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sport Editor

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—Consistency—the ability to strike a fine average and keep it—is paying big dividends this winter to one Horton Smith, otherwise known as golfdom's "heavy sugar baby."

Operating over the Dixie courts with the methodical precision of a human clock, Smith has mowed down all opponents at Pasadena, Berkeley, Portland and Savannah. And at Savannah the great Bobby Jones, a golf machine of near perfection, fell before the young Missourian's relentless drive!

Didn't Rattle Him

Bobby did some brilliant shooting at Savannah, but it failed to rattle Smith. He went on to win when it looked as though he could not stand the pace. This feat should give him enough confidence to become one of the most dangerous men in the National Open next summer.

The victory over Jones is undoubtedly Smith's greatest achievement of the winter season. But its not all by any means.

Smith has been in the money seven times in 11 major winter tourneys this season. He won four titles, was second to Craig Wood in the Hawaiian and tied for second with Al Espinosa at Agua Caliente. His winnings are well over $10,000.

On top of this, Smith has averaged less than 73 strokes per round in tournament golf this winter. This is the way to his success. Consistency is paying off at the victory window.

There is one big tournament remaining for Smith—the Miami Beach La Gorce $15,000 open. Smith has a great chance to take that event. If he does, it will add $5,000 to his winnings and give him the palm as the heaviest winner among the pros this winter.

Smith's greatest rival for money honors is Gene Sarazen, who smashed his way through to victories at Agua Caliente and Miami, and was fourth at Hawaii. But Sarazen has not been playing in as many tourneys as the young Missourian, who realizing he has yet to win his spurs as a great golfer is out to win them in jig time.

Auto-Lumbermen Take 1st Lead In City Golf League

THE MILLION-DOLLAR GATE

When Jack Dempsey retired from the realm of boxing, the million-dollar gate went into seclusion with him. The last great spectacle at Soldiers' Field, with its slightly less than $3,000,000 in receipts, remains not only as a high-water mark but a memory as well. Tex Rickard "never seed nuthin' like it," and judging from the heavies you see around nowadays the rest of us may never behold the likes of it, either.

Despite Dempsey's retirement, however, Tex used to insist that the million-dollar gate would return.

"There'll be some more big fellers come along that can punch like Dempsey," Tex used to say. "That's just you got to have to bring them —the big fellers."

BUT ALL BIG FELLERS, THOUGH

Evidently, from the figures at hand, it is going to take more than men of the Sharkey and Scott caliber to "bring them out." A ton of heavyweights presented to the dear winter public at Miami brings out only a wintry response from the "nice people." Maybe on the next card, acting on the tenets left by Rickard, the Garden ought to present two tons of heavyweights on the theory that they will draw twice as much.

In this connection, the wires out of Chicago have been burdened with some strange tidings these last few days. Mr. Dempsey has been looking at his knuckles after reading the current reports of the Carnera killings. You can't blame a person like Mr. Dempsey for inspecting the maulies under such conditions. If the Primo can pile up the piasters in three figures by nudging bums of the rank he has been meeting, Mr. Dempsey might well reason that anything would rather more than likely to happen if he could entice the Dinosaur of the Dolomites into the same ring with him.

A match between Dempsey and Carnera would not afford a million dollar gate, perhaps, with the status of the Dinosaur such as it is now. The Carner is still merely a museum attraction wearing oversized boxing gloves. If Primo can push over a few gents whose names we have heard before, he will reach the proportions of a card of the sort Tex dreamed of.

MEAT FOR THE MAULER

This is the kind of meat that Dempsey likes. Since he has retired he has been flitting around here and there, and to all reporters' questions as to whether or not he would fight again, he has given out replies that were the very quintessence of coy diplomacy. He might fight; he might not—the sports writers who go to interview him on the subject could get just as definite a conclusion by "picking petals off daisies."

Jack intimates that Carnera's is a skin he would love to touch. Looking back to that other man mountain, Jessica, and Dempsey's treatment of him, it would seem to us that Jack could do worse than emerge from retirement and sock the diplodocus a couple of healthy belts on the mustache.

It might bring a million-dollar gate, at that.

Second Week Opens At Club Today For Teams

Auto-Lumbermen played but two matches last week but this team in the Lubbock Golf league gained a sufficient advantage over its opponents to top the standings in the local loop at the end of the first week's play.

The leaders piled up a 53-point advantage in the two matches for a percentage of .736 while their nearest rivals, the Real Estate-Insurance golfers, were second with 62 points won in three matches for an average of .574.

At the close of match play Friday afternoon, officials in the league here adopted a strict ruling concerning the necessity of all championship matches to be played over the full 18 holes. This came after several contestants had turned in cards over nine holes by agreement. These, however, were not counted in the official standings.

May Start Forfeits.

Since a number of scheduled matches were not played last week, it may be necessary in the future to force teams who fail to appear at the Lubbock Country club course on scheduled time to forfeit to their opponents. No action has been taken on this point.

Schedule for the second week's play will start this morning at 9:30 o'clock. The following teams are matched: Real Estate-Insurance vs. Department Stores; Cotton-Hardware vs. Auto-Lumbermen; Clothiers-Newspapermen vs. Doctors-Druggists; Bankers-Lawyers vs. Barbers-Tailors.

Standings of the eight teams in the league at the end of Friday's play follow:

Team—	Pct.
Auto-Lumbermen	.736
Real Estate-Insurance	.574
Doctors-Druggists	.514
Barbers-Tailors	.486
Clothiers-Newspapermen	.470
Lawyers-Bankers	.435
Cotton-Hardware	.407
Department Stores	.264

All Pirates Will Be on Deck Today

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 1. (AP)—The batterymen of the Pirates of Pittsburgh completed a full week of training today, and with the arrival of the second squad on Sunday were looking forward to some real competition between the regulars and the yannigans. Manager Jewel Ens said there would be nothing official on the program for tomorrow "but we will jump off with a bang on Monday morning."

Burleigh Grimes, spitball hurling ace, is still a holdout.

BROWNWOOD, March 1. (AP)—Southwestern university kept its Texas conference basketball record clean tonight by defeating Howard Payne, 35 to 18. McDaniel led in scoring with 11 points.

Paper Picks Rose And Schoonover As Most Valuable

Texas And Arkansas Forwards Are Unanimous Selections On All-Conference Cage Teams

DALLAS, March 1. (AP)—Calling Wear Schoonover of Arkansas and Alfred (Big Un) Rose of Texas the outstanding players this season, the Dallas News tomorrow will print its selection for an all Southwestern basketball team, as well as the selections of five coaches of the conference. They follow:

Dallas News team: Schoonover, Arkansas, and Rose, Texas, forwards; Eury, T. C. U., center; Skeeters, S. M. U., and Keeton, Texas Aggies, guards.

Coach Jimmie St. Clair, S. M. U.: Schoonover and Rose, forwards; Eury, center; Creighton, Arkansas, and Skeeters, guards.

Coach Francis Schmidt, T. C. U.: Schoonover and Hess, Rice, forwards; Eury, center; Rose and Skeeters, guards.

Coach Charles F. Bassett, Arkansas: Schoonover and Eury, forwards; Holt, Arkansas, center; Rose and Prewitt, Arkansas, guards.

Coach John Reid, Texas A. & M.: Schoonover and Rose, forwards; Holt, center; Keeton and Prewitt, guards.

Coach Fred Walker, Texas: Rose and Schoonover, forwards; Hoke, Texas Aggies, center; Strickland, Baylor and Eury, guards.

Challenger Wins Every Round Over Lightweight King

Mandell Twice In Distress But Welterweight Unable To Upset In Thrilling 10-Round Go At Chicago

CHICAGO STADIUM, CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight challenger, defeated Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, in their 10-round fight tonight, winning every round. He twice had Mandell in distress but could not upset him. It was the most convincing defeat ever suffered by the lightweight champion.

McLarnin chased Mandell all over the ring the first two rounds, nearly dropping him with heavy lefts and rights on the head just as the bell ended the second round. He drove the lightweight champion into the corner four times in the first round.

Continues Rush.

He continued his rushing tactics in the second, driving Mandell into the ropes with Sammy attempting to outbox him. Just before the round ended McLarnin ripped a left hook into the jaw that sent Mandell staggering across the ring into the ropes, with the Rockford boy plainly in distress.

McLarnin centered his attack to the body and in the third driving Mandell to the ropes. In the fourth the lightweight champion began to make McLarnin miss by spearing him with lightning lefts to the face. McLarnin, however, began to get the range near the close of the session, driving Sammy to the ropes under a left hook to the jaw and a barrage of punches to the body. Sammy was bleeding from the mouth.

Mandell Hammered.

McLarnin hammered the lightweight champion in the fifth and sixth, keeping him in full retreat and forcing him to go to the ropes and corners to escape. Mandell's left eye was cut in the sixth. He was knocked reeling into the ropes with a right to the jaw, and smelling salts had to be applied when he walked reeling to his corner at the end of the sixth round.

Disregarding Mandell's left hand thrusts, McLarnin waded in as in the seventh and eighth, carrying the fight and forcing Sammy to strictly defensive tactics.

Mallini Beats Evans.

Buster Mallini, New Orleans middleweight, coming from behind in the last three rounds, defeated Dick Evans, of Akron, O., in a six-rounder.

Mandell made a courageous finish in the tenth round after McLarnin had piled up more points in the ninth. In the face of vicious left hooks and right crosses to the head, Mandell fought furiously in the closing session, throwing his defensive tactics to the winds and banging away with both hands, bringing the crowd to its feet with a thunderous roar.

Fort Worth Cats To Start Spring Training Monday

FORT WORTH, March 1. (AP)—Approximately 30 players are expected by President Ted Robinson of the Fort Worth baseball club to report for the Cats' first spring practice session at Mineral Wells Monday, Manager Frank Snyder, Jack Tavener, Dick McCabe and Vincent DeVaney are already in the resort city.

"So far as I know only two or three will be missing the first day," said Robinson. "Dick Sullivan has been given permission to report Wednesday or Thursday, and some of the others have indicated they will be late. We are taking it for granted that some of those we have not heard from will be coming in Sunday or Monday."

Starting Blocks Given Approval

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—Starting blocks used by sprinters in place of the old fashioned holes dug in the track were given conditional approval of the Intercollegiate association of Amateur Athletics of America today.

The hurdles were eliminated from the annual cross country race to make it less arduous and the way was cleared for holding the 1932 inter-collegiate track and field championships on the Pacific coast for the first time.

PITCHERS IN FOLD

Two More St. Louis Hurlers Sign Contracts

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 1. (AP)—Two more star pitchers of the St. Louis Browns, Walter Stewart, left hander, and Sam Gray, signed contracts today. Two others still out of the fold, Rip Collins, and George Blaeholder, are expected tomorrow or Monday when infielders and outfielders report for spring training.

Reports today were that Red Kress and Heinie Manush still are holdouts, dickering with club officials for fatter contracts.

St. Louis Cards Head Southward

ST. LOUIS, March 1. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals started their migration south tonight to prepare for the 1930 flag chase. Eleven players left union station headed by President Sam Breadon, Gabby Street, new manager; Coach Clyde Wares, and Secretary Clarence Lloyd.

DENTON, March 1. (AP)—The Denton high school cagers defeated Wills Point high tonight, 36 to 12, winning the right to enter the state basketball tournament at Austin, next week.

Texas Net Team Wins Bermuda Go

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 1. (AP) — Berkeley Bell and Bruce Barnes of Austin, Texas, won the men's doubles title at the annual Bermuda tennis championships today. Bell and Barnes defeated John Doeg and Herbert L. Bowman, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, in the final round.

The Suez Canal, in Egypt, is the longest in the world. It is 100 miles in length.

Horned Frogs End 1930 Campaign With Four Wins And Eight Losses; Texas Aggies Swamp Longhorns, 42-20

Inspired Farmer Quintet Runs Circles Around Supposed Second Best Team In Conference; Baylor Bears Nose Out Rice Owls In Thriller

DALLAS, March 1. (AP)—Clinching third place in the Southwest Conferenre basketball standings, the S. M. U. Mustangs defeated the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University tonight 25 to 22. The game gave the Mustangs a total of six games won and six lost, while T. C. U. ended the season with four wins and eight defeats.

The Mustangs, despite the small margin of victory, maintained their lead through most of the game, and were in the lead in the last five minutes of play.

Eury, T. C. U. center, added eight points to his total, giving him 104 for the season. He tied with Atkins, T. C. U. guard, for high scoring honors in tonight's game, Johnson leading the Mustangs with a seven point total.

A. & M. Cagers Trim Traditional Rivals

COLLEGE STATION, March 1. (AP)—An inspired Texas Aggie basketball team swamped their traditional rivals, the University of Texas, 42 to 20 tonight. The Aggies ran circles around the apparently bewildered second best team in the Southwest conference.

The brilliant play of Shiro Hoke, pivot man, had much to do with the Aggies' unexpected victory. Sinking five shots from the field and six free throws, Hoke took high point honors, and played almost perfect basketball.

The Longhorns gained a slight advantage early in the game, but lost in the middle of the first half.

Defeat Shoves Owls To Last Position

HOUSTON, March 1. (AP)—Defeated by the Baylor University Bears 39 to 37, the Rice Institute Owls were shoved to the bottom in the Southwest conference basketball race tonight, ending the season with four wins and eight defeats. Baylor and Texas Aggies had been tied for this place but their victories tonight gave them a season's record of four victories and six defeats.

Thirteen Compete In 20-Mile Jaunt At Houston Today

National A. A. U. Marathon Attracts International Stars; Clarence Demar And Billy Agee Favored

HOUSTON, March 1. (AP)—Thirteen men have signed to compete tomorrow in the National A. A. U. 20-mile marathon here under auspices of the Elks club.

Clarence Demar of Boston, internationally famous, and Billy Agee of Baltimore, who has scored in some of the major events over the country, were considered favorites.

The start will be at the San Jacinto battle rounds and the finish at the Elks club building.

The official entry list:

Buster Bonneau, Southern Pacific A. A., Houston; Bill Kennedy, Cygnet A. C., Port Chester, N. Y.; Charles Manson, Y. M. C. A., New Orleans; William Nevil, Houston Y. M. C. A.; Austin Parbosa, Dallas Athletic club; William Agee, Emerywood A. C., Baltimore.

Barney Corey, Southern Pacific A. A., Houston; Clarence Demar, Melrose Post American Legion, Boston; Warren Main, Southern Pacific A. A., Houston; Fred Ward, Jr., Millrose A. A., New York; James Savage, New Orleans A. C.; Bill Leiterite, Dallas Playgrounds; Percy Raberry, Southern Pacific A. A., Houston.

Shires Honored In Parade At McAllen

M'ALLEN, March 1. (AP)—Arthur (The Great) Shires had a parade in his honor today, his car stalled in the traffice, and the populace forced him to make a speech. He didn't want to—because he wasn't getting paid for it.

"I hadn't," he murmured as he arose to comply with shouts of "speech," "oughta do this for nothing. If you've got anything to give away—" The car stalled as the baseball player was being escorted down main street with the mayor and chamber of commerce officials, led by fife and drum corps.

Shires said he would leave tomorrow for San Antonio for spring training.

Perryton Man Would Organize Baseball Loop

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PERRYTON, March 1.—W. B. Irvin, superintendent of Perryton public schools, is taking the lead in an effort to organize a baseball league for the high schools of this section.

Supt. Irvin reports that he is receiving hearty support from other schools and that an organization of this nature will likely be perfected within the near future.

Those sponsoring the movement plan to arrange a schedule of games and formulate rules and regulations that will be fair to all contestants.

Turnesa Leads In West Coast Open

New York Golfer Sets Pace For Select Field At Bel-Air, Florida, With Brilliant 138

BELLAIR, Fla., March 1. (AP)—Putting together rounds of 67 and 71, for a total of 138, Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., led a select field of professional and amateur golfers here today in the fifteenth annual Florida West Coast open championship for the Morton Plant Trophy and a purse of $4,500.

Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, who went into a commanding lead on the morning round with a 65, fared poorly this afternoon, to finish with a 74, and establish himself in second place with a total of 139.

Three Tie For Third.

Two strokes behind Cooper came Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, former national open titleholder whose consistent playing rewarded him with rounds of 70 to 71, Whitty Cox of New York, with scores of 69-72, and Gene Sarazen, another New Yorker, who added an afternoon 73 to his brilliant 69 of this morning.

Al Espinosa of Chicago, who burned up the short number one course this morning with his 67, could do no better than 76 this afternoon to go into a deadlock with Herman Barron, of New York, who accounted for rounds of 71 and 72.

Vincent Eldred of Bradenton, Fla., and Tony Manero, of New York, were next in line with 36-hole cards of 144. Craig Wood, New Jersey, checked in with 145.

"Just because Detroit has a rookie named Bill Akers, does that mean that he'll cover lots of ground?"

"Are the White Sox expecting Smead Jolley to be the life of the party?

"Does the Boston Red Sox pitching rook, Frank Bushey, have long hair and a beard?

"Will they plant Bob Seeds, Cleveland fielder, in the outer garden?

"Will they take Arthur Herring, Detroit right-hander, for a pool fish?

"Can Mickey Finn— —"

LaFollette Sees Stiff Battle Over Judicial Veto

Court Usurping Of Congressional Power Must Be Halted, Solon From Wisconsin Declares In Own Story

Campaign Staged Against Appointment Of Hughes To Head Supreme Court Has Begun Determined Effort To Halt Judicial Veto, Young Senator Believes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is the youngest senator, but an outstanding leader of the Republican progressive group. He was one of the foremost in the fight to block confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the U. S. supreme court. In the following article La Follette both explains the opposition that arose to the Hughes appointment and gives his idea of the significance of what happen in the Senate.

By SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE
Of Wisconsin
(Written for NEA Service, Inc.)
(Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The liberal and progressive forces of this country won a tremendous moral victory in the fight to prevent confirmation of Mr. Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States supreme court.

Now that the contest is over, the utmost significance lies in the fact that for the first time in many years the usurpation of power by the supreme court has been under fire in the Senate. The court has been considered so sacrosanct that no man could criticize it without himself being attacked, even if he placed his criticism on the high ground of disagreement with the legal, economic and social views of a majority of the court.

I am not discussing the question of the court's right to declare acts of Congress which are repugnant to any particular clause of the Constitution null and void. I am referring to decisions of the court which bear internal evidence of the fact that the court has usurped power to declare laws enacted by Congress unconstitutional because the majority of the court did not believe in the social or economic ends which Congress sought to achieve by the enactment of such legislation.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

As we look back over the history of this nation we find that some of the most important political crisis have developed because of decisions of the supreme court.

Mr. Hughes, of course, was confirmed. But to my mind the fact that this fight could have taken place in the Senate and that 26 men, including some of our outstanding lawyers, should have voted against him is evidence that the judicial veto and the practice of legislating by judicial decree—practices in which the court has indulged in more and more during the last few years—has created a smoldering resentment and discontent on the part of the people. This was fanned into expression during the recent fight.

Begins a New Era

I feel that this was the opening gun in another historic struggle by those who believe in democracy to prevent the supreme court exercising an unwarranted power under the guise of declaring laws unconstitutional and thereby thwarting the will of the people as expressed by Congress through legislation.

It is important to note that there has been placed in the Record a review of the decisions of the court which clearly demonstrates that it is deciding these pressing economic and social questions on the ground of its approval or disapproval of the objectives sought by legislation.

In the future no nominee to this high court will ever again be considered by the Senate until there has been an investigation of his acknowledged position.

The Hughes fight isn't the last fight on the confirmation of a justice of the supreme court. It is only the first. If the legalists, those who are lawyers or who have the legal point of view, watch with alarm this new development, the responsibility rests squarely on the court itself because of its exercise of the judicial veto and its usurpation of the legislative power by judicial fiat.

People Now Aroused

Meanwhile, using the word in its highest sense, it may be said that the Hughes fight had immense political significance. The people have been aroused and made aware of the tremendous influence of the supreme court on their social and economic welfare. We have brought to the forefront an issue of great public interest and it will be impossible to avoid its discussion. Meanwhile, we can only hope that what took place in the Senate will have a salutary effect on the future deliberations of the supreme court.

Home Demonstration Club Members in Inter-Club Meet Visit Local Hotel

Seventy-five members of home demonstration clubs of Lubbock county visited the Hilton hotel on a trip of inspection as a feature of the inter-club meeting here Saturday.

Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, had charge of the program.

The dining room ,witchen, bridal suite and mezzanine floor of the hotel were visited by the club women.

To Study Gardens.

Gardens will be a subject for study at the April inter-club meeting. The county council will meet in the courthouse March 18.

By virtue of their work during last year's yard contest nine women of the county will be awarded prizes of shrubbery and trees, which have been grown at the state experiment farm, by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Miss Baird announced. The winners are: Mrs. R. L. Stewart, New Hope; Mrs. J. C. Stanford, Southwest Ward; Mrs. R. O. Moore, Acuff; Mrs. E. R. Davis, Acuff; Mrs. R. M. Middleton, Hardy; Mrs. Bryan Landers Wolffarth; Mrs. Victor Cade, Union; Mrs. J. L. Coleman, Woodrow, and Mrs. O. F. Corley, Wolffarth.

Members Cooperate.

This year, instead of a county contest, the yard improvement will be carried on by means of cooperation between all club members and demonstrators. There is a special demonstrator for each club. The aim in this work for this year is for each club member to make some permanent plantings, and for each club to have a special demonstrator.

The Garden club of Lubbock has voted to cooperate in getting these demonstration yards well planted this year. A committee has been appointed to work out a plan with the county home demonstration agent. This committee has not met yet, however.

The following places have been visited by the class, in company with Mr. Mowery, for the purpose of practice judging during the term: Hereford, Tulia, South Plains, Hale Center, Sweetwater and Merkel.

The team will leave next Thursday night for Fort orth where, on aturday, March 8, it will participate in the intercollegiate judging contest in which Oklahoma, A. & M., Texas Tech and probably Louisiana State, will be represented. A contest also is to be held at Oklahoma City on Monday, March 17, and plans at this time call for the team to participate in this.

Question: Is Muenster A City?

Supreme Court Must Decide On Legality Of Township Of Cooke County Municipality In Oil Suit

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, March 1—Is Muenster, in Cooke county, a city or merely a collection of stores and residences?

That is a question the State Supreme Court has been asked to decide in a suit against Mayor B. A. Hellman and other officials of Muenster. The Second Court of Civil Appeals referred three questions on the legality of the township to the higher court.

The State of Texas, suing for the oil operators Trust, which has oil wells in the incorporate area of Muenster, challenged the validity of the town's incorporation and the right of its officials to levy taxes for municipal purposes on property within the incorporate limits. The petition also asked that the officials be ousted and the incorporation dissolved.

A district judge of Cooke county heard the case on September 21, 1922 and denied plaintiff's plea. The case was appealed to the Second Court of Civil Appeals here.

"In view of the public importance of the case," the appellate court certified these three questions to the Supreme Court:

1. Was the evidence in the district court sufficient to show that the tract of 640 acres was incorporated for strictly municipal purposes?

2. Was the evidence sufficient to prove that a meeting of the city council on July 25, 1927, when a resolution was passed to incorporate a regular meeting?

3. Was the evidence sufficient to prove that the town had as many as 600 inhabitants at the time of incorporation?

INDEPENDENCE DAY FOR TEXAS

MARCH 2ND,

1836 - 1930

Ninety-four Years

When we pause to consider the progress made by the commonwealth of Texas since it declared its independence from Mexico in 1836, it is interesting to realize that today Lubbock has more native white people than were in all Texas at that time. Those sturdy pioneers who fought for, and won, our independence are looked to with a spirit of patriotism today, March 2, Independence Day for Texas.

But the greatest way to celebrate Independence Day is in checking ourselves for the spirit of progressiveism expressed at the Alamo. The Great South Plains, where once the meandering cow-paths met at isolated trading posts, is today in the hum of busy cities and the operation of prosperous farms. The Great South Plains, with Lubbock as the "Hub" is keeping up with the times, and truly living the spirit that won our Independence.

Career Wrecked

Man Held After Wreck Claim

CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—The "accidental" career of A. Aloie bumped against an obstacle in municipal court today. Aloie claimed that he had been a wreck and that he was a wreck.

Attorney A. J. Graham, counsel for the North Shore line, contended Aloie had been in too many wrecks—approximately 50 of them in the middle west during the last several years.

Aloie's career as a "wreck victim" was wrecked. He was ordered held under $10,000 bond while authorities reckoned whether he really had been as reckless as charged.

Attorney Graham told the court Aloie had presented a claim for $100 damages allegedly suffered in a recent wreck of the North Shore line near Kenosha, Wis. The trouble was, the attorney testified, Aloie was "two miles and 24 hours off" in his claims.

Lockney Section Getting New Homes

Wholesome Condition Over Area Is Reflected In Construction On Farms; Crop Outlook Good

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LOCKNEY, March 1.—The building of new farm homes in Floyd county during the past two years reflects a wholesome financial condition among the agricultural interests of the county brought about from a good wheat crop the past year, supplemented with the adoption of a balanced program of farming, together with a bright outlook for a fair yield from the coming harvest. Practically all of the farm homes built within the past two years are regarded as permanent and a large number are equipped with all conveniences that are incorporated in the modern city home.

Contractors say that in practically every instance the erection of Floyd county farm homes has been a cash proposition.

Among those who have built modern farm homes in the Lockney trade territory during the past two years are: W. A. Whitlock, W. J. Casey, Hilburn Casey, Clyde Hutsell, C. A. Gloyna, M. H. Curb, Roscoe Lackey, Albert King, Oliver Holmes, T. H. Boedecker, E. M. Lawson, Tow Weeks, Lockview Farm and C. A. Seagraves.

Besides the completion of many new farm homes in this section, lumbermen say that permanent improvements such as modern poultry houses, hog houses and live stock shelters, have been built on a large number of Floyd county farms. Bankers declare that the farmers of this section are well equipped for scientific dairying, livestock and poultry raising.

No Need To Ask Boys Where Dog Hospital Is In Lubbock; Dr. L. B. Hodges Conducts Mercy Animal Hospital Here

ASK any boy in Lubbock who owns a dog where the dog hospital is and he will give you the address promptly enough. Not only that but he can tell you what to do for your dog in a case of light poisoning or automobile accident. All the world realizes that a boy knows and loves dogs.

Dr. L. B. Hodges, head of the Mercy Animal hospital at 423 Avenue M, probably knows more about dogs than any other man in Lubbock because for the past several years he has specialized in that line and conducted a hospital for dogs and larger animals.

Many Dogs There

Stalls are arranged in a well lighted and ventilated room and when a visit was made to the hospital last week the cages were filled with dogs of every description.

"Most people bring their dogs here for a diagnosis rather than asking me to make a call to their home," said the doctor. "This is really better because I have medicine and implements at hand to attend to pets of all kinds."

The dogs do not always remain in the hospital because many times the ailment does not justify it. Hospitalization cases as pointed out by Dr. Hodges are instances when dogs are hovering between life and death, surgical cases and times when skilled nursing and feeding are necessary.

Methods Similar

"Dogs are doctored much the same as human beings," said Dr. Hodges. "The medicine is similar and method of treatment does not differ to a great extent. Every day the dogs are exercised and special care is paid to their diet. Fully 93 per cent of sickness among dogs is due to a faulty diet."

"The first few nights that dogs are in the hospital they are nervous and homesick. However the animals soon become accustomed to the routine and respond to our care."

Must Tap Plate

Some canines are very particular about their eating habits and will not taste food during their stay in the hospital, according to the doctor. At times it has been necessary to send for the owner to place the food on the plate and urge the dog to eat. German police dogs when convalescing will eat if you tap the plate, Doctor Hodges has discovered, but the instant you cease tapping they refuse to eat.

"It is necessary to study dog psychology much the same as we do people and just as many persons respond to kind treatment, while firm dealing is necessary with others, so it is with dogs.

Bitten Only Once

"In all the animals that I have handled I have been bitten only once and that was when I was attempting to put a collar on a dog which I knew to be vicious."

Many family pets are sent to the hospital during the summer months by people leaving on their vacations who do not have accomodating neighbors. Recently patients have been sent from Amarillo, Hobbs, Littlefield, Amherst, Slaton, Lamesa, Big Spring and Tulia to be treated at the Mercy hospital.

Many interesting incidents happen in the animal world and at times it seems that one is almost dealing with human beings. Doctor Hodges told of a family who moved to Lubbock recently from Fort Worth and immediately after coming here brought their dog, a brown and white bird dog, to the hospital. He remained there for a period of two weeks and then was taken for the first time to his new home. Apparently satisfied with his surroundings, he nevertheless returns each day to visit the hospital and afterwards goes home.

"I have had an interesting experience recently with my dog and cat," said Dr. Hodges. "They were brought up together, eating and sleeping and playing with each other since they were young. The cat manifested the greatest confidence, not only in my dog but in all canines. A few days ago upon hearing frightful screeching I hurried outside to find my cat fighting a strange dog. As he ran I noticed that he showed symptoms of hydrophobia. No fear was felt for my cat since he is vaccinated against rabies but I was surprised to discover that the cat was afraid of my dog for a time and now although he has regained his confidence he is still afraid of other dogs."

Census Work To Start Here Within Next Few Days

Dr. Barr To Send Out Enumerators On Business Data

Enumerators For Section Are Named; Complete Data To Be Asked In Questions Of Census

THE CENSUS of Distribution and Manufacture is to start within the next few days, according to Dr. I. E. Barr, supervisor of the census of this district. All enumerators for this work have been chosen, and are:

Mrs. Mary M. Scogin, Jayton; Charles W. Word, Whiteface; James T. Buck, Crosbyton; Isaac C. Byerley, Ralls; Mrs. Clara E. Faulk, Winslow J. Beckham, Lamesa; Malachi E. Tree, Spur; Allie F. Hardin, Willard A. Baker, Rotan; Mrs. Edna McMahon, Mrs. Alta E. Hanchey, Post; Mrs. Albena M. Lindsey, Rule; Mrs. Anna Maud Southern, Haskell; Charles Hauk, Levelland; Miss Alice I. Barr, Watta H. Vaughan, James H. Roles, Lubbock; Howard T. Swanner, Slaton; Jack Alley, Aubrey C. Weaver, Tahoka; Mrs. Kate N. Thrane, Mrs. Gladys M. Anderson, Snyder; Joe Fletcher, Swenson; Olie W. Stice, Brownfield and Lee O. Greenfield, Plains.

Kept Confidential.

In the census of distribution and manufacture all information is kept confidential and no one will be permitted access to the files. This information is for statistical use only and no individual facts are permitted to be given to anyone except as they apply to totals of cities, counties, states or other sub-divisions.

Discription of establishment and of the business, class of business, number and salaries of employees, expenses, amount of business each day, stock on hand and many other questions will be asked. "It is hoped all business men will be ready and willing to cooperate to get their home town fully represented in the distribution and manufacture census," stated Dr. Barr.

To Ask 75 Questions.

What class of worker, whether employed yesterday, if he has a radio set, his age at first marriage, the language spoken in his home before coming to the United States are new questions which will be asked in the census of manufacture and distribution. About 75 questions will be asked in this connection.

Those applying for census enumeration work are required to have at least a common school education. They must be able to write a good, legible hand, must have proper conveyance if appointed for a rural district. Honesty, good moral reputation, pleasing personality, in fact a rather superior type of person is required to make good in this work. One whose presence would not be objectionable in any home is required and no other type will be considered.

Must Pass Test.

Applicants for enumeration work must pass a population test, or examination, and in order to have their test graded their formal application must be endorsed by two reliable citizens of their community. Their test papers are graded in Washington and they must make at least a passing grade in order to be considered for the list of those eligible for enumerators. All of those who are to be employed in rural districts are required to pass a satisfactory test on those questions necessary to taking the agricultural census in addition to the population test. Both the agricultural and population census are taken at the same time by the same enumerators and this census will begin April 2.

"Enumerators for the population and agriculture census will be chosen within the next two or three weeks," stated Dr. Barr.

To Benefit Farmer.

"The farm census is taken primarily for the benefit of the farmer, and while very few of them make personal use of the farm statistics of the census, it should be borne in mind that the data provides the agricultural colleges and the great body of writers for the agricultural press and for economic periodicals with the facts upon which their most valuable studies and analyses are made," explained Dr. Barr.

"Upon accuracy of the information given by the farmer depends to a large extent the value of the statistical work to be carried on in the farmer's behalf, not only by the Federal and state departments of agriculture, but by students of agricultural conditions in all parts of the United States.

Costs To Be Determined.

"To what extent the very marked increase during recent years in the cost of living and especially in the cost of certain kinds of farm products is due to shortage in production, is a question of vital importance to a vast number of people. A complete and accurate census of farm areas and products will furnish data which, when studied in connection with the revised population figures, should throw light on the great question of our national food supply," further stated Dr. Barr.

Those who are operating farms should apply to their county agent or to Dr. Barr for sample farm schedules in order that they may be prepared to answer questions promptly when the enumerator calls. No information of any nature concerning their report will be permitted to come into the hands of other than the enumerator. Sample copies which are filled out should be given to the enumerator and not sent to Washington.

The place of abode, name of each person in the family, their relationship to one another, personal description, age, education, place of birth, mother tongue if foreign born, citizenship, occupation and many other questions will be asked in the population census. Those who refuse to give their age or give it incorrectly, will be forced to give it later and will be penalized under law for their negligence.

The farmer will be obliged to answer more questions than any one else. There are about 250 actual questions and then others that will have to be asked in order to get all available information. Farm operator, farm acreage, rotation, terracing, drainage, tenure, values, debt, taxes, expenditures, machinery and facilities, cooperation in marketing and purchasing, domestic animals, irrigation, harvesting, value of products, movement, are the main heads under which the farm questions will come.

There are absent family schedules, schedules for those who are unemployed, and schedules for different types of manufacture and distribution. Dr. Barr has requested that those who know they and their families will be absent during the whole census period or all of April have absent family schedules sent them to be filled out.

College Professors Not Strange

Most Of Tech Professors Purchasing Homes And Taking Part In Activities Of Town; Serious Minded

"Are "college professors" as strange a set of people as most of us think they are? Authorities of the Texas Technological college state that they are not. Here is what some of them have to say about it:

"The business abilities of the college professor vary just as much as they do in any other profession," said Dr. P. W. Horn, president of the college. "It all depends on what kind of interest is considered as business. Most all of the professors own their own homes, and the majority manage to save enough money to invest in something or other.

"I nearly always distrust the people who offer investments to college teachers as people who want to get rich quick and who think that the teachers will be easy marks. Some of them are, and some of them are not.

Carry Insurance

"The fact that most all of the professors carry as much insurance as they can afford is evidence that they are people of prudence. I have known a few college professors who got rich in oil, but their situation was what enabled them to do so.

"If a professor gets a doctor's degree, he usually attends school about eight or ten years after he finishes high school. It takes four years to receive a bachelor of arts, two extra ones to receive a master of arts, and from two to four more to receive the doctor of philosophy degree. Of course, this intensive training will affect the interest of the professors. They tend to do away with the foolish amusements of life and prefer the country in their cars, attending lectures and listening to good music. A few enjoy golf if they have the time for it."

Just As Human

"The college professor is just as human as is a banker or a merchant, but the majority of people do not think so. Some of the best and some of the worst people can be college professors, but as I see it the percentage of good and bad is as small as it is in any other professional class."

A. H. Leidigh, dean of the School of Agriculture, says:

"If the college professor is a good business man, then he is a chump for not going ahead and being one. He is in his present line only because he excels at that work. Due to the low rate of pay, they do not show that they are practical business men by staying at their professions. On the other hand, some of them are merely teaching until they get a start and then turn out to be excellent business men.

"In the School of Agriculture our employees are prohibited from carrying on business that competes with existing services in the town. This prohibits most of them from having any outside business activities.

"Our professors all have at least a master of science degree, and several of them the doctor's degree. All of this education only affects a professor by making him a more normal human being and gives him a wide viewpoint.

Re-Elect Museum Society Officers

Officers of the Plains Museum society were re-elected at the close of the association's first annual meeting at the Tech yesterday. R. A. Studhalter of Lubbock was re-elected president; Dr. W. C. Holden of Lubbock, first vice-president; Dr. Ophelia Wesley, Amarillo, second vice-president; Miss Vivian Johnson of Lubbock, third vice-president; Dr. E. L. Reed of Lubbock, fourth vice-president; R. C. Burns of Lubbock, fifth vice-president; Mrs. Mary Dale Buckner of Lubbock, secretary; F. A. Kleinschmidt of Lubbock, treasurer; Dr. M. A. Stambrook of Lubbock, curator and H. B. Carroll of Lubbock, assistant curator.

The society voted to issue a publication some time during the year, in which the addresses of the various speakers on the convention program will be included, along with other material. The society is to encourage collections and exhibits during the year. The next session will be held in Lubbock in January or February of 1931.

YOUR VERY BEST OPPORTUNITY

There are people in Lubbock who own their homes clear of debt, and who want to sell them. Maybe they have to leave on account of health or business changes. Or maybe they want to change their investment. Yet they can not sell and perhaps can not for several years. Houses that are worth $5,000 and $6,000 are bringing when sold $3,500 and $4,000; houses that are worth $10,000 to $12,000 or $14,000 are bringing $6,000, or $7,000 or $9,000. Raw lands are selling well, for they are still cheap and in demand, and the folks who are coming now are nearly all farmers. The very best, easiest and quickest way for you to turn your property into money is to trade it for our clients' lands in Hockley county. It is worth $30 per acre and with fair crop and decent prices this year will go to $40. It has small debt of $12.78, long terms at 6 per cent. Not leased, no blue weeds, fine school, fine water. Lets talk it over.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDINANCE NO. 464

AN ORDINANCE ORDERING AN ELECTION IN THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS, TO BE HELD ON THE 1ST DAY OF APRIL 1930, FOR THE PURPOSE OF SUBMITTING TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK FOR ADOPTION OR REJECTION PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE EXISTING CHARTER OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, DESIGNATING THE PLACES AT WHICH SAID ELECTION IS TO BE HELD, AND APPOINTING PRESIDING OFFICERS THEREOF.

WHEREAS, on the 23rd day of January, 1930, a resolution was duly passed by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas, providing for notice of its intention to pass an ordinance submitting amendments to the existing charter of said city; and

WHEREAS, notice of the intention to pass such ordinance was duly given by publication in the manner and for the length of time required by law; and,

WHEREAS, the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas, deems it proper to sumbit proposed amendments to the present charter of the City of Lubbock, as is hereafter provided; and,

WHEREAS, the charter of said city has not been altered, changed or amended for more than two years prior to this date;

THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS:

SECTION I

That a general election be held in the City of Lubbock, Texas, on the 1st day of April, 1930, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city for adoption or rejection the following proposed amendments to the existing charter of the City of Lubbock:

AMENDMENT NO. 1:

To amend Section 3 of Article 2 Chapter 1 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock, Texas, so that the same shall hereafter be and read as follows

Section 3. "The style of all ordinances of the City of Lubbock shall be: 'Be it ordained by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock'; but the same may be omitted when published in book or pamphlet form under authority or by direction of the governing authority of the City of Lubbock."

AMENDMENT NO. 2:

To amend Section 8 of Article 2, Chapter 1 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock, Texas, so that the same shall hereafter be and read as follows:

Section 8. "The City shall not be liable on account of any claim for specific performance, breach of contract or damages to the person or to any property, or for any character of tort, unless the person asserting such claim shall give the City written notice of such claim and of the facts upon which it is based within 30 days from the time it is claimed such cause of action arose, and no such suit shall be instituted or maintained on any such claim until the expiration of 90 days from the time such notice shall have been given."

AMENDMENT NO 3

To add Section Four of Article 5 Chapter 1 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock, as follows

Section 4 "The City of Lubbock shall have all other remedies for the levy and collection of city taxes as are given by the Constitution and Statute of Texas to state and county for the levy and collection of state and county taxes."

AMENDMENT NO. 4

To amend Section Twenty-four of Article 9, Chapter 1 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock so that the same shall hereafter be and read as follows

Section 24. "No warrant voucher or check for the payment of any claim shall be issued by the City unless such claim shall be evidenced by an itemized account, filed with the City Secretary, approved by the City Manager, and sworn to if required by such City Manager or the City Commission. No time warrants shall be allowed or issued by the City Commission in excess of $50,000 for any one fiscal year. All warrants shall be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the person acting as City Secretary."

AMENDMENT NO. 5

To amend Section Twenty-six, Article 9, Chapter 1 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock so that the same shall hereafter be and read as follows

Section 26. "The City Commission shall cause an audit of the books, records and accounts as well as all transactions pertaining to the administration of the affairs of the City, at least once each year, embracing each fiscal year, by a competent certified public accountant. The duty of the public accountant shall include the certification of all statements required in Section 25 of this article; such statements shall include a general balance sheet, and statements, showing income and expenditures, also comparisons in proper classification, with the last previous audit; such balance sheet and statements shall be published in some newspaper regularly published in the City of Lubbock at the time within 10 days after the completion and acceptance of the audit at least once each year."

AMENDMENT NO 6

To add Section 24, Article 2, Chapter 1 of the City Charter as follows

Section 24 "Sale of Electric Light System and Water System and Plant to be voted on by people. The City of Lubbock shall not sell the municipal light system or the municipal water system of the City of Lubbock or any real estate owned by the City unless such sale is authorized by two-thirds vote of the qualified tax payers at a general or special election held in accordance with law."

AMENDMENT NO. 7

To amend Article 2 of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock, Texas by adding at the end thereof a new article to be known as Article 2-A which shall read as follows

Article 2-A. "Section 1. The terms, powers and provisions of an Act relating to street improvements and assessments therefor passed at the First Called Session of the Fortieth Legislature of the State of Texas, and shown as Chapter 106 of the General and Special Laws of said Session of the Legislature are hereby adopted as and made a part of the Charter of the City of Lubbock.

Section 2. It is the intention and purpose hereof to write into and make a part of the Charter of the City of Lubbock all of the powers, terms and provisions of said Act, and such powers, terms and provisions shall exist, be in force and may be exercised as alternative to, and independently of, other powers, terms and provisions of the Charter of the City of Lubbock with amendments thereto, and of the law in force in the City of Lubbock, and which in anywise relate to the same subject matter. The Governing Body of the City of Lubbock may proceed either under and in accordance with said Act or under and in accordance with any other law, Charter provision or amendment now or at the time in force."

SECTION II

That the poll places and presiding officers of said election shall be respectively as follows:

Said election shall be held in the office of the City Recorder on the first floor of the City Hall of Lubbock, Texas, and W. E. Ballew, C. A. Burrus and H. G. Love are hereby appointed as judges to hold said election.

SECTION III

That said election shall be held under the provisions of the Statutes of the State of Texas and the City Charter of said City of Lubbock, and all persons qualified to vote in said city under the laws of this State regulating general elections shall be allowed to vote therein.

SECTION IV

That the manner of holding said election shall be governed by the general laws of the State of Texas regulating general elections, when not in conflict with the provisions of the law referred to in the last preceding section.

SECTION V

That the form of ballots to be used in said election shall be respectively as follows:

"Ballot"

Sale Is Schedule During Dairy Show

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, March 1.—The auction sale of pure bred registered dairy cattle at the third annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy show has been set for Thursday, April 10, the final day of the show. This announcement was made by S. J. Payne, Jersey breeder of Tulia, who with P. R. Phillips, of the agricultural department of the West Texas State Teachers college, and D. F. Eaton, county agent of Lubbock county, compose the sales committee.

Prospective entries in the sale must be listed with the committee by March 15, and Maury Hopkins, manager at Plainview, is now receiving these entries. They will be passed on by the committee before being offered for sale.

How much protection can I get in Lubbock-Mutual Aid Association? Answer: THREE POLICIES of $1,000 each. Each one paying full amount. Adv.

Cotton Quiet; Stocks Continue Climb

Prices Take Drop After Gain Early In Saturday Mart

New York Fails To Respond To Improvement In Liverpool Cables And Wheat Market Opens Lower

NEW ORLEANS, March 1. (AP) —Cotton was quiet with prices tending downward after a few points gain at the start owing to somewhat better cables than due. New York did not respond to the improvement in Liverpool and the wheat market opened lower which promptly started long liquidation and prices eased. May, after gaining 3 points at the start, trading at 15.33, declined and closed at 15.12, down 18 points from the previous close. The general market closed steady at net declines of 18 to 21 points.

Liverpool came in 2 to 4 points better than due and first trades showed gains of 3 points to a loss of 1 point. Prices improved 4 point in the early trading but soon turned downward, closing at the lowest with July at 15.38, or 18 to 19 points net lower.

Port receipts 9,448, for season, 7,738,636, last season 8,505,308. Exports 36,871, for season 5,324,616, last season 6,090,470. Port stocks 2,207,812, last year 2,020,075. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 113,456, last year 137,735. Spot sales at southern markets 8,685, last year 8,340.

Cotton Is Lower Under Liquidation

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP) —Cotton was lower today under renewed liquidation which was promoted by declines in wheat and accompanied by talk of a slightly easier technical position following recent rallies. May sold off from 15.52@15.29 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net losses of 20 to 28 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 3 points. There was some buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and further covering, but the demand was light, and prices soon turned easier under week-end realizing. March sold off to 15.00, and October to 15.65, with active months showing net losses of 20 to 28 points and the close was at the lowest prices of the day.

Liberal Movement of Fed Lambs With Price Slump Feature of Mart Circuit

KANSAS CITY, March 1 (AP)—United States Department of Agriculture).—Livestock trade around the eleven market circuits today was featured by a liberal movement of fed lambs with prices slumping to new low levels for the season. Fat lambs generally were 75c@1.00 under a week ago, while mature classes of sheep shared a portion of the decline in lambs. Chicago had a late top of 10.85 on choice lightweight lambs. The supply approximated 324,000, an increase of 38,500 over last week and 46,500 heavier than the same period a year ago.

Hogs closing values unevenly 25@45c under a week ago, with a late top of 11.15 at Chicago. Offerings, 594,400, against 573,651 last week and 580,756 a year ago.

Fed steers strictly choice, along with fat light yearlings held steady. Other killing classes weak to unevenly lower. In-between grades of steers at most centers closed 25@50c lower, and material losses were taken by slaughter cows and bulls. Receipts 167,000, exclusive of 44,000 calves, a decrease of 7,000 from last week, but 17,500 heavier than a year ago.

Purchases Cause Rallies in Wheat

By JOHN F. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—Rallied by purchasing operations ascribed to farm board allies, prices of March and May wheat contracts here recovered sharply today from early severe downturns. July and September contracts finished at material losses. The chief apparent source of today's weakness in wheat values was heavy deliveries on March contracts at Liberpool, together with dearth off new export demand for wheat from North America.

Chilcago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1-8@15-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1-4c higher, oats 1-8@3-4c up, and provisions showing 7@10c decline.

The outcome for the market as a whole was largely determined by purchasing of about 2,000,000 bushels of May wheat for government sponsored agencies.

Cattle Too Light For Values Test

FORT WORTH, March 1. (AP) —Not enough cattle here today to test values and the market as a whole remained nominal. A downward trend to values has been observed during the week in the market for slaughter yearlings and she stock but other classes of cattle have held generally steady. Some increase has occurred in the marketing but mixed butcher classes continue to form the big bulk of the cattle supply.

Packer demand on most days lately has been dull and bearish, resulting in rather late clearances. Most of the slaughter steers, short feds $9. The week's top on good fat yearlings $12.25, was paid Wednesday for medium weights. Butcher cows 6.00; trashy low cutter cows 3.75 and less. Good to choice heavy stock calves 11.25@11.75. Choice stock steer calves 12.00. Good to choice fat calves 11.00@11.50; plainer grades of slaughter calves 10.50.

Medium to good mixed rail hogs 9.80; best truck hogs 9.65; packing sows 8.25@8.50.

Sheep and lambs values developed no change at the week-end but fat lambs closed about 75c under a week ago, other classes around a quarter lower.

Movement Becomes Lively Toward End Of Day's Session

Bears Who Had Sold Due To Anticipation Of Heavy Week-End Profit Taking Scramble To Cover

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Wirter

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—Stocks continued to climb in today's short market session, the movement growing lively toward the close, as bears who had sold short in anticipation of heavy week end profit-taking scrambled to cover their commitments at increasingly costly levels. Week-end realizing was moderate and was quickly absorbed by speculators for the rise.

The price index of 90 leading stocks rose a little more than a point to a new high for the year at 186, as compared to the previous peak of 185.3, recorded Feb. 13. Trading was ony moderately active, sales aggregating 1,856,700 shares.

The market remained wholly a professional trading affair. Week-end business reviews continued to describe conditions as "spotty."

Moderate firming in credit is expected next week, as March 1 disbursement checks reach the banks for collections. Although credit rates for commercial loans have not come down in proportion with the rates for the more liquid funds used by the stock market, it is believed in banking sources that the course of credit rates generally is still gradually downward.

Mrs. Blake

terrifying. I will close it if possible. If it is real and if in any way it may create a sentiment against these murders committed by the states, it will be different. I am not thinking of money, although I need it badly."

When Mrs. Blake speaks of her son she does not become hysterical or sob, but her eyes fill with tears. "Robert," she said, "was such a good boy to me. Every mother whose son is in trouble says this, of course, but Robert really was. He begged me not to spend the little money I had in trying to save him, and I know he meant it. He was only 24 when they strapped him into the chair and burned out the life I had given him. He wasn't a man, but a child, almost. Would that I could make a million from this play in New York and spend every cent of it in stopping this barbarism.

Tells of Last Moment.

"I saw him at Huntsville up until the last moment when he was taken away to the death row.

"'Mother,' he said, as he placed his arms around me for the last time, 'I am not going to tell you I am not guilty, as you know I am not, but please tell the others that this is my last message to them.' He meant his sisters and brothers. 'Good bye, Mother, good bye,' he said.

"I could feel his arms as they clutched me for a moment. They weren't the arms of Robert the man, but Robert the boy as he used to reach for me when troubled. I wake up nights now dreaming of his baby arms holding on so gently.

"He tried to smile and did smile as they led him away, but think of what was going on inside. Where did I go? Where else could any mother go but to see the governor? I hastened to Austin where I begged and pleaded with Governor Moody. I had to be led away. That night I was on the train carrying me to Amarillo and home. At midnight, or when I thought it was midnight, when they were destroying and mutilating my boy, I screamed for the first and only time in my life. I woke up everyone — would that I had awakened the world.

"Robert had no experience as a writer. He attended high school, and was an honor student before he acquired the drug habit, until the third term when he began to make his own living. When arrested he began writing articles for the local newspapers about the horrors of prison life. He was only 22 when charged with the crime he did not commit.

"His article, 'The Law Takes Its Toll,' was not something written, but something lived and heard and recorded. Those were his spoken words and the spoken words of others. They did not attempt to joke and did talk about the 'midnight special, which travels in two sections; one toward Heaven, the other toward Hell.' Could any torture be worse, or as bad?

"I hope I am the last one who ever sits in the electric chair,' he wrote in the article for Mencken. 'Tell my mother my last words were of her.' They tell me those were his last words."

The mother paused, hardly able to continue.

"When I go back to New York, I will not see reporters or anyone, I have no friends there. I will go see Wexley's or Robert's play, and God give me strength to keep from screaming out as I did on the train that hideous midnight. If I approve I later will see Wexley. He is only 22 or 23, I am told. I have seen his picture and it looks so much like Robert's.

"If this play is not right, and if it is doing more harm than good, I'll make them take Robert out of it. These words were Robert's own, and he gave them to me to save others from the fate that came to him."

When Mrs. Blake goes to New York, within the next week or 10 days, she will travel alone, and talk to Mr. Wexley alone.

"I know Robert would have me be kind to him, and I know he will be kind to me. I have felt differently toward him since I saw his photograph.

"Like Robert, I don't believe he would purposely do anything that wasn't fair and just."

led with 343 points, this team receiving three pairs of overalls. Tahoka also won in grain sorghums, with 395 points, team members being given three maize head knives for prizes.

All prizes were given by the Floydada chamber of commerce and merchants.

The six high schools sending the 22 contestants in this contest which offered opportunity for training in preparing for the West Texas Vocational Agricultural judging event to be held at Texas Tech on March 24, were Post, Tahoka, Floydada, McLean, Lockney and Snyder. Team members and their instructors are listed as follows:

McLean: A. A. Tampke, instructor; A. B. Black, M. Windom, E. Cunningham and B. McCoy.

Lockney: Donald Turner, instructor; H. Griffith, F. Corder and A. Moore.

oPst: J. M. Bird, instructor; E. A. McCrary, W. T. Ferguson, K. P. Lofton and Vernon Thompson.

Snyder: J. P. Jamison, instructor; O. Sturdivant, C. W. Pettit, O. Graham and B. Green.

Floydada: O. T. Williams, instructor; T. Puqua, R. Palmer, L. Dorrell and D. Pondy.

Bower In Charge

H. J. Bower, head of the agronomy department of the Texas Tech school of agriculture, was in charge of the contest and acted as judge. He was assisted by three students of his department, H. L. Hershey, Robert L. Burdette and John W. Wherry.

All visitors were guests of Floydadaites at a luncheon given in the high school, which was prepared and served by the girls of the home economics class. Clayson Fuller, president of the Future Farmers of America club at Floydada, acted as toastmaster. Talks were made by W. E. Patty, superintendent of the Floydada schools; O. T. Williams, Homer Steen, editor of the Floydada Hesperian; S. W. Ross, secretary of the chamber of commerce; O. P. Rutledge, merchant; H. J. Bower, Taylor White, J. P. Jamison, J. M. Bird, Donald Turner and A. A. Tampke.

Started Wednesday

This section was rocked by numerous earthquakes, beginning last Wednesday evening and continuing for hours. No serious consequences resulted at that time.

Checks with surrounding localities indicated the tremors were localized in the vicinity of Brawley, Calexico and El Centro and centered at or near Brawley.

Yuma, Ariz., to the east, and San Diego, Calif., to the west, did not feel the quakes, nor did Indio, in the Coachella valley north of here.

Police roped off the main business street while the fire department set to work to pull down loosened bricks, as the situation apparently quieted after the fifth shock.

There was no panic, although occupants of all the business section buildings went promptly into the streets after the first jolt.

DENVER, Colo., March 1. (AP)—Father Armand Forstall, seismographer at Regis college tonight announced his instrument showed a series of deep seated earth shocks of the fourth degree of intensity starting at 4:49 p. m., mountain time and continuing in lesser degree until 8:30 tonight.

relatives, the grave of J. W. Pendergrass, which had been unidentified for 67 years. Matheny charged side by side in a battle of '63 when Pendergrass fell, mortally wounded. He returned hours later and with comrades buried the body.

The aged veteran, though the weight of years have taken their toll, is clear of eye and his mind recalls with ease happenings of his youth. "I could sit for hours and recount details of incidents, all of them interesting to every son of the South," he said. One of his favorite stories dates back to the time of the first Confederate reunion held in Nashville.

Fitted His Notion

"Thousands of us were there," he told. "The ranks have thinned now and it won't be long until survivors will remain only in memory. But to the story—we could appreciate it then more than others might now. It happened that a Yankee arms and legs were gone, toll of beggar sat on a corner. Both the war. I chanced to be standing near one day when a Confederate passed and dropped a $5 bill into his hat. He passed down the street, got a drink, returned to drop another $5 bill. Again he went in search of a drink and on his third trip placed a $10 note in the Yankee's battered head piece. Joyous at this seeming stroke of luck, the beggar became curious and asked him why, when he had only asked for a ten cent piece, he had been given $20. 'Because,' the donor replied, 'you are the first Yankee I have ever seen trimmed up to my notion'."

Following his visit today with his old buddy, the veteran will return to his home in Munday. He is anxious to get in touch with other friends and asks that they write him at his home.

RECOMMEND SEATING

Daughter Of W. J. Bryan Is Contested In Senate

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP) — A house elections committee today decided to submit a unanimous report to the house to recommend the seating of Ruth Bryan Owen as member from the fourt Florida district.

A contest against the seating of Mrs. Owen was brought by William C. Lawson, a republican, on the ground that she was ineligible because of her citizenship. Mrs. Owen is the widow of a former British army officer who died in Florida several years ago.

Mrs. Owen, the daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was elected to the house in the November elections of 1928, by a majority of 2 to 1 over the republican candidate.

The report will be submitted to the house next week.

PRAY FOR SUCCESS

Accomplishments By Naval Parley Sought By Many

LONDON, March 1 (AP)—The prayers of thousands of sincere men and women were raised impressively in England today for the success of the London naval conference.

While Andre Tardieu in Paris hastened to complete his new cabinet, and while the American and Japanese delegations in London rested their important negotiations over the week-end preparatory to resuming full conference deliberations next week, services oof intercession for naval disarmament filled two places of worship to overflowing.

certain refusal of the house to give the Austin-site advocates a "toehold." That is, the house contends to give in even to the extent of letting them fit up a small unit away from Huntsville would mean ultimate removal. However, there is a possibility that enough senators may give in to the idea of renovating the present system as the best that can be done now, to get that body to support the house bill rather than have the legislature do nothing at all about relieving over-crowded conditions behind the walls and improving the farms. There were apparently two or three senators who were sold on centralization near Austin, but who would vote for some kind of relief rather than get none.

Taft

Taft had spoken his first words in more than seventy hours. As customarily, Dr. Thomas A. Clayton tapped gently on the sickroom door for the regular morning call.

"Come in," Mr. Taft whispered so faintly that it was barely heard, and Dr. Francis H. Hagner entered softly to find their distinguished, diving patient more at his ease than during the days immediately past.

Grasps Hand

The physicians bent over the wasted body to look into Mr. Taft's eyes. He reached out a hand and weakly grasped that of Dr. Clayton for a second. Then his hand fell back.

The doctors feelingly told of the episode later, adding that the former President and Chief Justice had also said some practically indistinguishable words to his son, Robert A. Taft. They did not say these acts by Mr. Taft gave any hope for his recovery. It has been recognized for several days that any improvement would be only temporary.

Wavering some of the time between consciousness and unconsciousness, Mr. Taft spent most of today in a coma. He is suffering from a weakened heart, aggravated by impaired blood circulation and a sudden turn for the worse might bring death.

Besides the President and Mrs. Hoover, numerous other friends and officials have called at the Taft residence to express their solicitude to Mrs. Taft. Vice-President Curtis was there early today and was followed by Monsignor Pietro Fumasooni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

CAMPAIGNS PLANNED

Republicans Preparing For Vigorous State Drives

ATLANTA, Ga., March 1 (AP)—Despite their Virginia experience last fall, republicans in several Southern states are making plans for vigorous state campaigns this year and have issued cordial invitations for democrats who voted the republican presidential ticket in 1928 to join them.

Texas republicans, through their state executive committee, passed a resolution inviting democrats who supported Hoover to become permanent members of their party. The democratic committee had voted to bar as candidates such democrats, but welcomed them back as voters. Texas was one of the Southern states that went for Hoover.

Fire Destroys Building At Early Hour Today

Fire of undetermined origin early this morning completely destroyed the garage, car and fishing tackle of Dud Germany, 1117 17th street.

The Lubbock fire department answered the call at about 1 o'clock, but the flames had gained too great a headway to prevent the destruction of a new Ford car, fishing tackle valued at about $75 and other articles stored in the building.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, 70 per cent of the gross farm income of Nebraska is derived from its livestock and products.

Nine Plainsmen Listed In Who's Who In America

Lubbock Leads List With 5 Names, Amarillo Three And Canyon One; Tech Professors Included

While representatives of Texas listed in "Who's Who in America" range from Mercedes on the south to Amarillo on the north, El Paso on the west to the Arkansas line on the east, only 78 towns and cities of the state have persons of sufficient repute to be included.

Of this number, only three cities on the Panhandle and South Plains are included: Lubbock, Amarillo and Canyon. Lubbock boasts five names, Amarillo three and Canyon one.

"Retreat" Gives Different Angle Of Story Of War; Clergyman Is Hero Of Writing By English War Veteran

Mystery Story Will Make You Rather Goggle-Eyed

THE AMAZING thing about the never-ending flood of war novels is that none of them duplicates the others. Each one tackles the war from a different angle; and many of them are extremely good.

One of the very best of the lot is "Retreat," written by the English war veteran, C. R. Benstead. It flames with a terrible bitterness which is, perhaps, all the stranger in that its author is still a military man, being an officer in the British navy.

Hero Is Cultured

The hero is a cultured, intense clergyman of the Church of England, orthodox and passionate, who joins up as a chaplain and lands at the British front just half a dozen hours before the opening of Ludendorf's last great drive of 1918. What happens to this man in the ensuing turmoil is not pleasant. He loses first his faith, then his reason and finally his life — a tragic casualty if ever there was one that could be marked as more tragic than any other.

Are Unnecessary

His whole trouble is summed up in the comment of one of the line officers: "All chaplains are unnecessary at the front. Some are just more unnecessary than others." This chaplain discovered that he belonged in the latter class. There was nothing whatever for him to do. Nobody wanted him—except to pass around cigarets and do similar odd jobs. The knowledge was too much for him, and he broke.

"Retreat" is more than just another war book. It is literature of a high order. The Century Co. is publishing it, at $2.50 the copy.

Clergy Differ On Views

NEW YORK, March 1.—Statements issued this week by some of the foremost ministers in the United States indicate that there is a wide difference of opinion among the American clergy concerning C. R. Benstead's new war novel "Retreat", which has been published by The Century Co.

This story of the great retreat of the Fifth Army in 1918 has as its chief protagonist an Anglican clergyman and depicts his utter moral and spiritual collapse when confronted with the horrors and hardships of war.

While the more conservative clergymen resent "Retreat" as an unfair representation of army chaplains in the World War, the book is being championed by the liberals as a devastating indictment in fiction form of the "tragic inadequacy of the church in war time," to quote the words of Charles Francis Potter, minister of the newly organized Humanist Society of New York.

Many of the more conservative churchmen are quite willing to acknowledge the literary importance of Benstead's book despite the fact that they resent many of its implications.

Keeler Writes Of 'The Amazing Web'

ALL you can do when you finish "The Amazing Web" is lay the book down gently and say "Whoooeeeeee." It's that sort of a book.

This mystery story, written by Harry Stephen Keeler, is—to be blunt—the doggondest thing of its kind ever published. It is as complicated as half a dozen ordinary mystery tales. Plot revolves within plot. The long arm of coincidence reaches everywhere. One puzzle is solved, only to reveal another.

Yet—and this is the amazing thing—the author never loses the main thread, and the reader never gets confused. By a baffling freak of skill, Keeler makes the whole thing seem simple and understandable. You never give the job up as too complicated. You knit your brow, light a new cigaret, cuss a trifle in awed wonder—and go on with it far into the night.

In other words, the book is a lulu. When you finish it you discover it is wildly improbable from start to finish. But it's corking entertainment. If you have any fondness for detective stories, don't miss this one.

It's published by E. P. Dutton and retails at $2.50.

CROP VALUE UP

The 50 principal crops of the United States, according to the U. S. Crop Reporting Board increased in value during 1929 $85,000,000 over that of 1928. They were worth $8,580,528,000.

DONATES TREES

LAMESA, March 1. (Special)—Five Chinese elms were planted here on the grounds of the Lamesa Women's club house by Mrs. J. Lon Teal this week as a parting gift before she moved to Rochester.

BOOSTS MUSHROOM GROWING

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Frank D. Kriebs, South Dakota secretary of agriculture, is urging farmers to grow mushrooms in abandoned barns, ice houses, caves and mines, pointing out that the yearly production is less by 6,000,000 pounds than the demand.

LIKE THEIR FARMS

Farming in Nevada is increasing in popularity as well as in number of farms despite the aridness of some portions of the state. In four years, from 1920 to 1925, the number of farms in the state increased 23 per cent.

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

IF anything is certain in this insecure world, it is that two of this month's biographies will very speedily become best-sellers, Rupert Hughes' "George Washington" and Emil Ludwig's "Lincoln" seem destined for that fate beyond the slightest doubt.

There is a sound reason for it, in each case.

We'll start by considering Hughes' book.

This volume takes Washington from the battle of Trenton, at the close of 1776, to the end of the Revolution.

Fully Documented

The book is fully documented. Its author evidently has put an enormous amount of research into the writing of it. He gives chapter and verse for all of his iconoclastic outbursts.

On top of that, the Washington that he paints emerges as a greater character than the Washington of the old school books. In fact, he rises to colossal proportions. Hughes makes it abundantly clear that the Father of his Country was that, in sober truth. He held the revolution together through long, dark years. He was the revolution.

You Wonder

Reading this book, you find yourself wondering how on earth the United States ever gained their independence. In retrospect the job looks impossible.

The answer, of course, is clear—Washington. This man, sadly harassed and perplexed, the prey of a thousand doubts and difficulties, playing a lone hand month after month, made the revolution a success simply because he was one of the great figures of all history.

It is issued by William Morrow and Co., and sells at $5.

Something Else

Ludwig's "Lincoln" is something else again. It derives its interest largely from the fact that this German biographer's intense admiration for the son of the western frontier is so obvious.

There is no critical analysis here. None is attempted. Ludwig's one big virtue, in this book, is that he "gets the feel" of things. He goes back, almost in person, to the Sangamon river country in its infancy, and if he seems to be gripped by a belief that Lincoln, from the cradle, was set apart, marked by some mysterious force for great events and a high destiny—well, others have had that feeling, too.

Patternson Utopia

"When I retire, and I wish I knew when," says Isabel Paterson, well-known critic and author of The Road of the Gods, to be published in March by Horace Liveright, "I intend to have a small house in the country with a large lawn and several trees, under the latter I intend to repose in a hammock most of the time, eating watercress sandwiches, drinking jasmine tea, and reading The Loeb Classical Library, Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, the Summa of Thomas Aquinas, if I find I can read it—the Tale of the Genji and the Memoirs of Saint-Simon. Also any other books of equal length and substance."

Another Coming

"Tattered Loving", a new novel by Phyllis Bottome, author of "Windestraws", is announced for early summer publication by Houghton Mifflin company.

A Wanderer

Richard L. Masten, author of "Saint Udo" a new novel to be published on March 12 by Houghton Mifflin company, has never stayed very long in one place or one country. "One thing," he says, "that my wanderings abroad awakened in me was a sense of wonder about the differences in philosophy and in religion which separate individual from individual and race from race. Hence a good deal of reading in comparative religion and comparative philosophy which has resulted in the conviction that faith without tolerance is likely to be more of a vice than a virtue and that a love of truth is a very dangerous thing if it is not tempered by a love of mankind. This, of course, is the basis of "Saint Udo," but the character of the old priest and the way he solved his difficulties with his patron saints came as the result of a dream—the first idea I ever got from a dream that would stand the light of the following day."

Temple of Solomon

There is one passage in the Bible that is never translated. It has been carefully omitted from all translations even as far back as the Syriac translation, two thousand years ago. The only modern attempt at a translation of the passage which is in Kings: 1, 7, 26 is found in a commentary, which gives the meaning as "Hebrew nakedness." B. Z. Goldberg traces the original meaning of the words in his book, THE SACRED FIRE, The Story of Sex in Religion, just published by Horace Liveright, and shows in his explanation that Solomon's Temple contained the same erotic symbols in its decorations as were found upon the walls of sacred buildings throughout the pagan world. Even the pillars at the porch of Solomon's Temple were symbolic of the great life-giving force in nature as were the similar symbols adorning the old pagan temples.

DICTATORSHIP BACK

Spain Under Same Rule As Before Overthrow

MADRID, March 1. (AP)—After the downfall of one dictatorship only a few weeks ago, Spain today returned to virtually the same form of government.

The government of Premier Damaso Berenguer, which promised at first to be a new broom sweeping clean after the De Rivera dictatorship, has within the past two days gone back to the rigid censorship and restraining of free political assembly and public expression that characterized the regime of Primo De Rivera.

Handsome Appointments of Gold and Black Employed In Lu Beta Tea

First Phase Of South Plains Music Festival Closes Saturday Afternoon And Successful Contestants Named

Well-Known Organist, Mrs. H. D. Carsner Of Abilene, Delights Music Lovers With Recital At First Methodist Church On Friday Evening

MARKING the beginning of the music festival sponsored by the South Plains Music Teachers association was an organ recital given Friday evening at the First Methodist church by Mrs. H. D. Carsner of Abilene, and the piano contests held Friday and Saturday for pupils between the ages of 11 and 15, inclusive. Winners were announced at the close of each contest.

Local music lovers were delighted with the recital given by Mrs. Carsner. The program ranged from Bach to Elgar, and each number was played with clarity and good registration.

The first group included "Toccata in D Minor" by Nevin, the well-known "Largo" by Dvorak, and a "Minuet" by Handal. The arrangement was unusual but effective.

Opening the second group was a "Prelude and Figue" by Bach. This was followed with "Dreams" by Hugh McAmis and "Lamentation" by Alex Guilmont, which brought forward another side of organ playing, that of a soulful melody with a beautiful accompaniment as a background. An encore followed this group.

The third and fourth groups were more varied, "The Squirrel" by Weaver, and "Evening" by Edward Johnson were outstanding in originality and style. Mrs. Carsner graciously responded to an insistent audience with a second encore, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Contest Winners

Reservations To Be In Today For Monday's Banquet

Ex-Students Of University Of Texas Will Hear J. W. Calhoun Speak; Musical Program Also Is Planned

Invitations have been sent to ex-students of the University of Texas who are living in Lubbock and near-by towns to attend the annual banquet which will be held by the ex-students association of that university Monday evening at the Hilton hotel. George W. Dupree, president of the association, has asked that all reservations be made by Sunday afternoon. Miss Elizabeth West, 2309 10th street has charge of reservations for Tech students, and Mrs. E. L. Klett, 1802 Avenue M, is in charge of all other reservations.

Dr. J. W. Calhoun of the State university will be principal speaker for the occasion, and a musical program will be given under the direction of Mrs. Richard Douglas and Edgar Shelton. Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe will be toastmistress for the occasion.

Officers of the association are George W. Dupree, president, Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe, vice-president, and Mrs. Tom Duggan, secretary. James H. Goodman is chairman of the program committee.

Forty-Four Attend Gay Dinner-Party

Baloon Bouquets, Confetti, And Novelty Hats Add To Carnival Spirit Friday Evening; Enjoy Dancing

The carnival spirit prevailed at a delightful dinner-party held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Hotel Lubbock. Forty-four guests attended the function.

Three private dining rooms were thrown open for the occasion, and the table was made unusually lovely with balloon bouquets, pot plants, and ferns. Gay hats were used as favors.

After the dinner, the guests attended the carnival dance at the hotel, which was featured by a balloon dance by Lucille Walker, dressed in a white satin clown suit. Members of the orchestra also were dressed in clown suits for the occasion, while novelty hats, confetti, a soda pop stand, and all other details of the function contributed to the carnival spirit.

MATINEE PARTY

Miss Gladys Pryor Favors Room At School

Miss Gladys Pryor was hostess to pupils in her room, high third grade at the George M. Hunt school, Friday afternoon at a matinee party.

Suits And Printed Frocks Lead Spring Style Parade

Courtesy from Bergdorf Goodman, N. Y. First, choose a little suit for spring—then pick a printed frock. The suit may be either a tailored suit, such as a close-fitting oxford gray, double-breasted (left), with a felt hat trimmed with two-tone feather fancy and a handsome fox scarf for accessories. Or it may be a jaunty dressmaker suit (right) in the new blue with a violet hue, made with the new peplum coat of youthful cut, a novel collar trimmed with white galyack and skirt with unpressed pleats. The hat for this should have similar verve in its cut, such as a little blue felt, manipulated to have a perky bow on top. A printed frock with new chic (center) is fashioned of blue flat crepe, with white flowers, and affects the new short sleeve, the fitted body lines with a deep flounce for fullness and a novel half collar.

By JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, March 1.—Beating the Easter fashion parade by at least a month is the wardrobe schedule smart women must set for themselves this spring.

Everything promises an exceptionally early spring and with Easter coming so late this year, no one should expect the twain to meet to decide what's what in chic for 1930.

First choice for the season's wardrobe should be a suit. Suits really are the crocuses of the fashion world, fresh, appealing, bobbing up here and there unexpectedly to tell a world grown tired of winter that spring is here.

Nothing could be more appropriate to the season than the jaunty youthful verve of the spring suit. For now that that particular type of apparel has been pinched out of the lifeless, complex that the ubiquitous long-waisted ensemble's gain, then the suit emerges as the most piquant apparel for spring, positively topnotch socially and sartorially.

The Distinction in Spring Suits

There are many types of spring suits, but they may be classified roughly as sports suits, regulation tailored suits and elaborated dressmaker suits. It is from the second and third classification that the wearable suits should be chosen because practicality this year should be essential for either spectator or participator sports wear.

No suit is a good choice this year that does not take cognizance of the waistline and the curved body silhouette. The most refreshing aspect of the new styles is their rediscovery of the human figure's lines.

Tailored suits are semi-fitted or close-fitted, single-breasted or double, but the most correct ones are restrained both in their lines and in the cut of their peak or notched lapels. The style is in the perfection and fine tailoring. Skirts are wrap-around or gored, cut with yokes with pleats below or with pleats below or with godets that give fullness below a hipline. Belts come with each suit and the sweetest and daintiest blouses in many a year tuck into the skirts.

Fine twills, tweeds, gabardines, covert cloth, corded worsteds, novelty featherweight woolens from abroad and plain finish soft fabrics fashion these suits. Blue is outstanding. Oxford gray is the chicest thing one can buy if it is becoming shade, black is excellent with flesh-colored, pale green, maize or white blouses. This type of suit cries aloud for a handsome fur neckpiece.

Smart in The New Mode

Illustrative of a lovely interpretation of this type of suit is a little Oxford gray twill, with wrap-around skirt, and a close-fitting jacket finger-tip length, cut double-breasted with notched lapels and the sleeves buttoning with three buttons like the coat.

A close-fitting spring turban, with manipulated brim, in the dark gray of the suit's color, tops it. This little hat has a silver and dark gray feather fancy for its brim. A stunning large silver fox scarf, pale gray suede gloves in pull-on style and a gun metal suede purse are the other accessories.

Totally unlike this suit in everything but full measure of style is a piquant little dressmaker suit of the new blue with a violet hue. This suit is the very latest entrant in spotlight fashions, because it features the flaring peplum line that is giving a fillip to spring styles.

There are two kinds of peplum, flaring suits the belted and the unbelted, and which is the more youthful and pleasing, 'tis hard indeed to say.

This little suit in blue has a very new collar with the back line of it edged in white galyack, that favorite "heatless" fur trim for warm days. Its blouse is white satin, cut very smartly with an extremely feminine yoke and tie effect. The coat is belted with a narrow band of the blue worsted, which ties in a soft bowknot in front.

The skirt contributes its full quota to chic by its yoke line, its deep, unpressed pleat at the side front and the side back and its new longer length which is quite the distance from the floor that all well-behaved dressy little suits should have. A young looking little hat, with a perky bow of its own blue felt frames the face becomingly and suede oxfords, with an unusual application of kid, are dressy and effective.

Second choice for spring surely would be a little printed frock. Top it with a jacket, a long coat or a cape. It is all the same thing so far as fashion is concerned because in a year when there is such beauty abundant, it's each woman to her own taste so far as ensembles are concerned.

Lightweight Prints for Travelers

As for the silk, there are charming necktie prints which are so lightweight as to be an imperceptible addition to one's luggage for week-end trips, flat crepes, embossed taffetas, crepe Elizabeths and foulards. Dark backgrounds with light figures are the best for spring, and blues, green and yellows have high favor.

Every little print frock, however, should follow one of three signposts to chic, or be exceedingly spirited and follow all three.

These three are: Fitted waistlines, flounced skirts, elbow sleeves. Collars there are too, and bolecos. A wide choice indeed.

Extremely spring-like is a rich blue flat crepe with a big floral design in white, made with a wide yoke that fits up to a high waistline which is marked by a tied sash on one side. There is an irregularly cut deep flounce which makes a full skirt. The neckline is one of the new heart-shaped cuts, with a collar over one shoulder and a little flower at the front of it, made out of the floral pattern of the material.

Jaunty waist length jackets are being worn with evening frocks.

Local Parks Are Discussed Friday

Conference In April Also Considered At Meeting Of Federation Of Women's Clubs At Baptist Church

At a meeting of the City Federation of Women's clubs Friday afternoon at the First Baptist church, Mrs. Mary Doak discussed the international relations conference which is to be held here April 5, 6, and 7, and it was voted to cooperate in every way possible to make the conference a success. The president, Miss Mae Murfee, presided for the meeting.

A discussion of plans for the city parks as being worked out by the city park committee was given by Mrs. A. H. Leidigh, president of the Garden club and by Miss Delia Wilkinson, and each member present expressed a willingness to work wherever assigned in the park program.

Mrs. O. K. Peters, who is familiar with civic and educational affairs both in America and in Switzerland, will be principal speaker for the next meeting, which is to be held Friday afternoon, March 28. For 25 years Mrs. Peters was a leader in civic activities in Galveston.

B. And P. W. Week Will Be Celebrated In April

Clubs Over Nation To Have Dinner At Same Hour Thursday

Fifty-five thousand members, representing 1,110 Business and Professional Women's clubs throughout the United States, are planning to observe March 10-16, inclusive, as National Business and Professional Women's week. This will be the third annual observance of the week.

Under the direction of Miss Mattie Randolph as president, members of the local club, which was federated one year ago, have planned a special program in observance of the week.

A dance to be given in the Hotel Lubbock ballroom from 9 to 12 o'clock will be a feature for Monday, which is known throughout the nation as "thrift day." Miss Louise Baird is chairman of the dance committee and will be assisted in preparations by Miss Beatrice Padgett and Mrs. Townsend Davis. The St. Patrick theme will be emphasized in all details.

Another special feature for Monday will be a lecture delivered over station WJR, Detroit, from 12:45 to 1:00 o'clock by Mrs. Marion H. McClench, national president of the Business and Professional Women's clubs.

An article on "Thrift" written by Miss Ruth McCormick will be published in newspapers Tuesday.

On Wednesday, known as "educational and vocational days," an article on "Education and Vocational Guidance" will be published.

The feature entertainment of the week will be a public relations dinner at 7:30 o'clock at the Hotel Lubbock. A dinner will be given at the same hour by clubs throughout the United States.

Employers of the local Business and Professional Women's club and a representative from every other club in the city is invited to attend the dinner, and a number of civic activities will be discussed.

On Friday, known as "health day", an article on health by Mrs. G. T. Scales will be published.

RECITAL MONDAY

Miss Lula Mae Cravens Will Present Pupils

The first rehearsal for "The Messiah" will be held in the choir room of the First Methodist church Monday evening, March 10, at 7:45 o'clock.

"The Messiah" is sponsored annually by the Lubbock Music club but all interested are invited to take part. It will be presented this year on Sunday afternoon, April 13.

AAUW President Will Arrive Today

Mrs. Sellards To Speak At Executive Meeting This Afternoon; Will Be Given Tea At Five O'clock

Mrs. E. H. Sellards of Austin, state president of the American Association of University Women, is expected to arrive at noon today and to remain until Monday morning as the guest of Mrs. William Dingus, 2502 21st street, president of the local branch of the A. A. U. W. Mrs. Sellards will be accompanied by Miss Mary Shipp, also of Austin, president of the state department of rural education. They are making a tour of the state, visiting the various branches of the A. A. U. W.

Both guests will be speakers at an executive meeting of the A. A. U. W. this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Matador court of the Hilton hotel, and will be honor guests at an informal tea at 5 o'clock in the home of Miss Bonnie K. Dysart, 2309 16th street.

Regular Meeting

Regular meeting of the A. A. U. W. was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of Miss Alma Girand, 2219 16th street, with Mrs. W. D. Girand, jr., as joint hostess.

A program was given by the two book review groups, and the president, Mrs. Dingus, presided for a business session.

Arrangements were made during the session for a tea to be given honoring the senior girls of the local high school the latter part of April, and Mrs. Mary Doak reported on the City Federation meeting which was held Friday afternoon.

Announcement also was made concerning plans for the international relations meeting which is to be held here in April.

Miss Ruth Pirtle And Mrs. Holland Present Miscellaneous Program At Attractive Function For Delphians

Charm Of Entertaining Suite In Home Of Mrs. Snyder Enhanced Through Use Of Candles And Floral Decorations; About One Hundred Attend

RICHLY emphasizing gold and black, official colors of the group, members of the Lu Beta Delphian chapter entertained with a seated tea Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Fred Snyder, 2701 19th street. Miss Ruth Pirtle, reader, and Mrs. I. F. Holland, vocalist, favored the group with a miscellaneous program, and about 100 persons attended.

Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. R. S. Rodgers, president greeted the groups as they arrived, and the following women were ushers and served in the dining room: Mesdames D. K. Bondurant, Richard White, Ray Grisham, R. T. Canon, Fred Standefer, Miss Johnnye Gilkerson and Miss Sue Bryan.

As guests were seated, Mrs. Rodgers gave a few words of welcome.

The following numbers were included in a sparkling, miscellaneous program: "The Afternoon Tea," Pisk, and "A Telephone Romance," Hickman, read by Miss Pirtle; "The Wind's in the South," Scott, sung by Mrs. I. F. Holland with Mrs. C. G. Stinson at the piano; "How Beautiful Were Once the Roses," Turgeness-Arensky, and "Bits of Philosophy" by Miss Pirtle; "The Swallow," Cowen, by Mrs. Holland; "The Words of a Stranger," Stokes, by Miss Pirtle.

The artists were given lovely bouquets of flowers at the close of the program, with Mrs. Calvin Henson making the presentation speech.

During Tea Hour

Guests then were invited to the dining room, where the table was covered with a Venetian lace cloth and centered with a silver basket filled with yellow jonquils. Black and gold china was used, and the glow from four tapers completed a lovely effect. Mrs. Rodgers and Mrs. J. E. Hamilton, vice-president, poured tea, which was served with sandwiches and mints. The mints were colored gold and were decorated with the initial "D" in black.

Those present were Mesdames C. J. Norton, E. L. Robertson, W. B. Price, Mary Lovell, V. R. Dockray, R. S. Rodgers, W. G. McMillan, O. W. English, N. S. McBride, A. B. Davis, O. K. In Maedgen Home

The tea of Saturday afternoon was given in the home of Mrs. C. E. Maedgen, 1823 Broadway.

Rooms of the reception suite were attractive in St. Patrick decorations, and in the dining room, the table was centered with a miniature bride and groom. Sweet peas furnished the floral decorations for this room, where a lovely ice course was served by Mrs. Joe Bennett, sister of the bride, and Mrs. J. C. Street, mother of the groom.

Irish girls wearing green hats formed the chief diversion of the afternoon and prizes were given for high and low scores.

Coming as a surprise to the honoree was a shower of lovely gifts from the guests presented in a green hat, and a set of sterling silver spoons from the hostesses.

Guests were Mesdames Vaughn Wilson, Joe Bennett, J. C. Street, Henry Frnka, B. R. Ferguson, J. B. Acton Elizabeth Hailey, R. M. Chitwood, W. B. Elegance Demanded For Trousseau

This age of elegance influences wedding finery for spring. Left to right: Regal dignity has an off-white satin bridal gown of princess line, with modern design to its skirt that cuts its train in one with the garment. There is a rose point yoke and arm holes and bands of the lace in the sleeves. The maid of honor wears a pale yellow frock with drop yoke and lace puff sleeves and a matching hat that pleat its brim. The bridesmaids' frocks are pale green, made in quaint style of many ruffled skirt, high waist and puff sleeves. A lace and crin hat of green top this frock.

BY HENRI BENDEL

Written for NEA Service

NEW YORK, Mar. 1.—Spring weddings this year will have both the picturesqueness and formality that the all-important "day" The 1930 sprin bride will be The 1920 spring bride will be an elegant, not a flapper. Long, molded lines, with trains cut in one with the gown itself, add height and dignity to Her who is the cynosure of all eyes. She will be distinguished looking, a bit remote because of the statliness that her costume crystallizes.

Satin is the first choice for spring, though it is quite in keeping with the season to choose one of the more fragile fabrics, ninon, chiffon, lace and tulle, that summer brings to the altar. Lace is used in conjunction with satin, either Alencon or some priceless heirloom that bestows a regal touch to the bridal gown.

There is a wide choice of designs for spring wedding gowns, but most of them are modified princess lines, with long sleeves. There must be a train, for formal weddings, and to be correct it is an essential part of the gown, intricately cut but giving the effect of sweeping simplicity.

Peplum Skirts Seen

There are some peplum skirts used, below an intricately cut and beautifully molded bodice, and when such is the case, a skirt may have a double peplum, with the lower one fashioning a second train. Round necklines give a demure look appropriate to the occasion, and this year, when lace is not used, a cowl collar, or some old-fashioned drop yoke effect, is quite in good taste.

Dead white is less popular than off-whites, which obligingly run through dozens of tones, from antique, which is a rich cream, to bride's blush, which is pinkish. Veils are dyed to match the precise off-white of the gown, and the sheerer the veil, the smarter—for this season nothing must hide the svelt beauty of the gown's long slender lines.

Vionnet is responsible for one of the new wedding gowns which has clinging lines of the Princess frock, with the satin cut on the bias. The bodice runs to a deep point below the knees. Two triangles of satin form the sides while another joins to fashion the train, making this gown distinctly new and modern in its angles. A Rose Point lace yoke that also outlines the armholes is a distinctive feature and triangular bands of the lace enrich the long, tight sleeve. The sheer tulle veil hangs from a bandeau of cloth of silver and ropes of pearls.

Flower tints are the choice for bridesmaid's colors this year with fresh young greens, in the "bud" shade and delicate yellows, of the forsythia tone, and soft pinks and blues very good.

Attendants Chic, Too

Attendants' gowns take all manner of quaint and lovely cuts this spring, many of them featuring the new short sleeves. They may be picture frocks but many a bride is considerate enough to select a gown from the season's chic afternoon or dinner frocks so her attendants can wear the costumes again.

For a maid of honor, a smart choice is a soft yellow georgette frock with quaint drop-yoke from under which little puff sleeves of Valenciennes lace flare. It is essentially a frock of youth, having high waistline, and manipulated skirt that follows the slender body lines well below hiplength, then swings to fullness. Above it she wears a chic neora straw hat in matching delicate tone, with its brim pleated fancily on one side.

Suitable for the bridesmaids' gowns at the same wedding is a model in pale green marquisette made over a satin slip, that was inspired by the slender, ruffled frocks of long ago. It has tiers of ruffles, girdled at almost Empire line by a soft cash, and it has the soft puff sleeves of its own era. It is topped by a crin and lace hat in the same green, with the lace gracefully falling to wide side width.

"The Great Divide" To Be Given By Sock And Buskin Club Here Friday

"The Great Divide", a three-act play by William Vaughn Moody, will be presented Friday night, March 7, at the Lubbock high school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock, by members of the Sock and Buskin club, dramatic organization of Texas Technological college. This is the first public performance to be sponsored by this club during the year.

This drama, "The Great Divide" is classic among plays by American writers and is studied in college English courses. The plot of the play is an entertaining story of Western romance, centering around the struggle of a New England girl in the West, to overcome the traditional belief of her forefathers that one must suffer to be happy.

The story opens in Arizona, where the girl and her brother have invested their money and are trying to make a success with a cactus fibre business. One night the girl is left at home alone on the ranch and three drunken passersby come. She goes away with one of them, a rough Californian who has fallen in love with her, promising him her life in return for his protection from the other two. Later the girl's family locate her and take her back to Massachusetts. The rest of the plot deals with struggles between love and conscience, because she loves the uncouth California miner.

Characters who are in the play are Miss Dorothy Lacey who takes the leading role, that of Polly Jordan. Miss Lacey has done work in Little Theatres in Amarillo and the University of Colorado.

Orval Burroughs has the leading male role, that of Steven Ghent, the Californian. R. V. Willis, who plays the role of the girl's brother, Phil Jordan, won a scholarship last year in a regional one-act play tournament as the best actor participating. He is president of the Sock and Buskin club this year.

Miss Kate Pressley has been active in college dramatics for four years. She takes the part of the mother, Mrs. Jordan.

Miss Melbria Pirtle is Polly Jordan, Phil's wife and the part of Dr. Newberry, an old friend of the family, is played by Cecil Kersey, while Ameral Payne is Winthrop Newberry, his son.

Warren Huff is Bert Williams. Hal Lary is cast as a contractor. Wayne Castleberry is an architect, and other characters are Dutch Jack Durham, Mexican Burt, Staunch and a messenger boy, Jodie Louis Cook.

Miss Ruth Pirtle, sponsor of the club and head of the speech department at Texas Technological college is directing the play.

Sets for the play are being constructed and arranged by members of the Sock and Buskin club and stage-craft classes of the college. They will consist of Arizona desert scenes and interiors of mountain cabins.

SQUARE DANCE

Proceeds Will Be Used For Tennis Courts

In order to raise money to buy hard surface tennis courts for Texas Technological college, members of the athletic department are to sponsor an old-fashioned square dance Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Tech gymnasium. The dance is under the direction of E. Y. Freeland, Marvin T. Warlick, and Miss Johnnye Gilkerson. Music will be furnished by a three-piece orchestra from Tahoka.

Several contests will be held and prizes will be awarded the winners.

Sophomore Hodge Podge Attended By Five Hundred Students Here Friday

Collegians in corduroy trousers and college girls in sport frocks were hosts at a gay affair Friday evening when members of the Sophomore class of Texas Technological college gave the annual Hodge Podge at the Uptown Dance Palace.

Students from the freshman class were honor guests on this occasion and invitations were sent to several town people.

W. C. Cotton sang popular songs with Frank Stone at the piano and a tumbling act was given by ten students from Dr. F. G. Harbaugh's class. Other numbers included a group of songs by Earl Jones, Theo Blazelwood, Fish Lockridge, Fred Jordan and Houck. William Wayburn gave a clogging act with Johnnie Cook playing the piano and Jewell Brooks, president of the freshman class and R. V. Willis favored the group with duets.

The grand march began at 10:30 o'clock with 150 sophomores leading and as guests filed by they were presented favors of caps, horns and confetti.

Arrangements were in charge of James Whitesides, class president, Miss Mary Lois Gamel, Miss Zella Riegel and Ellis Heineman, sponsors.

Texas

Independence Day

March 2nd

Since 1836 when Texas declared its Independence from Mexico the change in the business life of this great empire has been phenominal. In 1836 Texas had 23,000 people. About the same number in the whole state as Lubbock has today. Today Texas has almost seven million people. Recognizing these facts, we pay our respects to those sturdy pioneers who made possible our prosperity and happiness.

The Citizens National Bank has faithfully served Lubbock and the South Plains since 1903.

AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC

—and thus Bonnie Dundee met a man he would have traveled many miles to look upon. For the true story of Seymour Crosby and a certain night in London was one of a score of mysteries he'd have sacrificed much to solve.

CHAPTER I

"A note for you, Mr. Dundee, delivered by a snooty young chauffeur in a limousine and a plum-colored uniform," Mrs. Caroline Rhodes announced, when admitted to the choicest room on the second floor of The New Rhodes House, successor to the boarding house which had won sensational fame as the "Murder Mansion," the scene of two particularly horrible murders by strangulation.

"Thanks, Mother Rhodes!" Bonnie Dundee took the big square envelope and slit it open without due reverence.

"I hope it's not another warning that a murder is to be committed," Mrs. Rhodes commented. "Though if that note's from Abbie Berkeley, I wouldn't be a bit surprised to hear that she's yelling for help—and I can't say I'd be sorry either!" she added grimly.

"Whew!" You ARE bloodthirsty!" the novice detective grinned at his landlady. "Sorry to disappoint you, Mother Rhodes, but this is nothing more exciting than a written confirmation of an invitation to spend a week-end at 'Hillcrest,' which, I if that note's from Abbie Berkeley, feudal castle. I ran into young Dick Berkeley on the street today, and he very impulsively urged me to lend him the moral support of my presence over a week-end which he seems rather to dread. . . . But why all the animus against Abbie, and just wha[illegible]bbie?"

"Abbie is [illegible] Berkeley, who used to be plain—and I mean plain!—Abbie Smith, before she married George Berkeley, who got to be a millionaire about ten years ago," Mrs. Rhodes elucidated acidly. "How she got a fine man like George Berkeley is more'n I or anybody else can see, but got him she did, and lately she's been putting on dog like nobody's business! Spent a year in Europe with her oldest daughter, Clorinda, and then come trotting home with a penniless 'high society' woman from New York for a 'social secretary,' all primed to take Hamilton's social citadel by storm."

"How poetic you are, Mother Rhodes!" Dundee gibed fondly. "Has Hamilton a 'social citadel,' really?"

"I'm only quoting the society editor of The Morning News," Mrs. Rhodes defended herself. "She used those very words this morning in her write-up of the big dinner and dance Abbie Berkeley is giving tomorrow night. 'To meet Mr. Seymour Crosby of New York, Palm Beach and Newport,'" the landlady quoted further in a bitterly mincing voice. "Believe me, Mr. Dundee, if Hamilton's Big-Bugs have lowered themselves to accept one of Abbie Berkeley's invitations, it was out of curiosity to see this Mrs. Lambert and because somehow she's managed to get a real swell like this Mr. Crosby roped in to help Abbie's game along."

"Just who is Mrs. Lambert?" Dundee asked cheerfully, as he set about packing his dressing-case for the week-end.

"Mrs. Letitia Lambert, of course. I guess everybody that can read has heard of the Lambert family," Mrs. Rhodes informed him scornfully. "Real society people since before the Revolution. This Mrs. Lambert was the beautiful Letitia Cavendish, who refused the hand of a prince and an earl to marry Van Rensselaer Lambert—"

"As well she might, if he had a name like that," Dundee chuckled. "Still quoting the society editor, I suppose?"

"Well, if I am, I suppose she knew what she was talking about," Mrs. Rhodes retorted. "She had a big write-up of Mrs. Lambert when Abbie Berkeley and Clorinda brought her home with them from Europe, like a prize dog on a leash. If you ask me, I think Abbie Berkeley's got an awful nerve, hiring a secretary who couldn't have been bribed to ask her to sit down at her table when she was queening it over New York society!"

"Slightly involved, but not entirely obscure," Dundee murmured. "Now, Mother Rhodes, be a lamb and help me check this junk to see if I have enough glad rags to last me over a Berkeley week-end."

Mrs. Rhodes bent over the dressing-case. "Tennis flannels. That's right! They've got a court. . . . Golf breeches, woolen stockings, sports shirts. They'll be dragging you over to the Country Club to play golf, and I'll bet my new fall hat Abbie'll apologize because her own private golf course ain't laid out yet! . . . What's this? Just a Tuxedo? Haven't you got a swallow-tail coat? I told you the big blow-out tomorrow night is to be formal. . . . Well, if you haven't, you haven't, and I guess they ought to be glad to have you, even in a business suit."

"What about a little low comedy to liven things up tomorrow evening? I might pin my detective badge on my coat and flash it nonchalantly—" Dundee suggested, his blue eyes wicked with amusement at his landlady's horror.

"Abbie Berkeley'd have her butler throw you out, and then she'd disinherit Dick Berkeley for having invited such low-life scum," Mrs. Rhodes assured him.

"A crook disguised as a lady or a gentleman might pinch the fair Abbie's pearl necklace, and it would come handy to have a detective on the scene," Dundee reminded her. "After all, I'll have to give Cl[illegible] Strawn some excuse for being off duty for a whole week-end. Not that anything ever happens in this town, since Dan Griffin was removed from circulation," he added gloomily. "Not a single, honest-to-God murder mystery for two and a half months. I've a good notion to move to Chicago!"

"Now who's bloodthirsty?" Mrs. Rhodes mocked. "And where's your bathing suit? There's a natural lake at Hillcrest that's been enlarged and deepened—"

"Swimming the last week in September?" Dundee shivered in anticipation.

"Won't do any harm to put your bathing suit in." Mrs. Rhodes was implacable. She got the suit herself and tucked it in firmly. "If the temperature ain't below zero, Abbie Berkeley will make you try out her swimming pool, if she has to push you in."

"You do love Abbie, don't you?" Dundee grinned. "I take it she must be rather poisonous. Perhaps if her guests or her family feel as you do about her, my week-end won't be wasted—speaking from a professional standpoint!"

"When you see Abbie Berkeley I guess you'll understand," Mrs. Rhodes assured him grimly. "If there's anything I can't abide, it's a nobody putting on airs like she was the queen of Roumania. I went to high school with Abbie Berkeley when she was Abbie Smith and didn't have three whole dresses or a real friend to her name, and now she stares at me through lorgnette as if I was a strange species of insect she hadn't happened to run across before."

"Perhaps," Dundee suggested gently, "she was [illegible]-hatted so thoroughly when she was a nobody that she is getting a sweet joy out of high-hatting others now."

"Hunh!" Mrs. Rhodes snorted. "She'd a-had friends if she'd been worth anybody's time making friends with. A silly little sneak she was and a silly, over-dressed fat woman she's grown up to be! But where did you know Dick Berkeley? At college, I suppose?"

"Right!" Dundee agreed. "He was a freshman when I was a senior at Yale. I didn't know him very well but naturally we greeted each other like chums when he bumped into me on Grandt street today."

"Did he tell you he got expelled from Yale for drinking and girl-chasing?" Mrs. Rhodes demanded from the door. "The papers said he'd left college on account of illness, but it didn't take long for the true story to get around."

Dundee grinned, but said nothing. He was remembering the shame-faced bravado with which young Dick had confessed. "Kicked out in my sophomore year. Drunk and disorderly. Particularly disorderly. The girl's name was Clara. It turned out she was nice—just as she'd claimed to be!"

"Well, I'll be going, if there's nothing more I can do for you," Mrs. Rhodes said. Then she added, her voice quivering, "I suppose you think I'm nothing but a bosh-tongued old gossip—"

"You know I think nothing of the sort," Dundee protested. "I appreciate your giving me an introduction to my hostess, and to prove it, I'm going to ask you to tell me something more: Have the papers hinted at the real reason for Seymour Crosby's visit to the Berkeleys'?"

"The society editor said in the paper this morning: 'A little bird tells me that a very interesting announcement may be expected by those fortunate enough to be among Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley's guests on Saturday evening. Mr. Seymour Crosby, who was a fellow-passenger of Mrs. George Berkeley and Miss Clorinda Berkeley when they returned from Europe on the Mauretania in August, is said to have been markedly attentive to the beautiful young heiress.' . . . She might just as well have come right out and said that Seymour Crosby is marrying Clorinda Berkeley for her money."

"I wonder," Dundee said, carefully casual, "if the well-informed society editor said anything else particularly enlightening about Mr. Seymour Crosby?"

"There! I knew there was a nigger in the woodpile!" Mrs. Rhodes periled triumphantly. "I'll you your next week's board bill it wasn't till Dick Berkeley mentioned Seymour Crosby that you agreed to fritter awa[illegible] a week-end playing society! Maybe you'd better put that badge in your suitcase!"

"I'm afraid that, as usual, I'll have to pay my next week's board bill," Dundee confirmed her suspicions obliquely, and he took her suggestion—pinning the silver detective badge securely inside a cretonne pocket of the dressing-case.

"The society editor didn't dare say anything about—that!" Mrs. Rhodes nodded her severely coiffed black head emphatically, as her eyes narrowed. Then annoyance chased away the look of mystery. "Oh, there's that Tilda! She stands right in the middle of the downstairs hall and bawls when she wants me. . . . I do hope you'll have a nice time, Mr. Dundee. Don't worry about the parrot. I'll feed him myself. . . ."

And if Abbie Berkeley [illegible] you, just tell her you heard a mighty funny story about her and the high school janitor. Sly Caroline Rhodes, who used to be Caroline Banker, told you, and THAT will put a crimp in her!"

The parrot, Capin, who had belonged to the murdered woman, Mrs. Emma Hogarth, and who had been of very real assistance in bringing her murderer to justice, stirred on his perch, flapped his green-and-yellow wings, and obligingly rewarded Mrs. Rhodes with a hollow cackle of mirth for her exit line.

"I hate to leave you, my dear Watson," Dundee told the parrot, reaching into the cage to scratch the brilliant head.

The parrot cocked his head then slowly dropped a paperish white lid.

"Eh? What's that?" Dundee demanded. "You mean to imply that we shan't be separated long? That I may be sending for 'my dear Watson'? Let's hope not, but I am sure you that if business looks [illegible] at Hillcrest, this particular Sherlock could not get along at all without his Watson. . . . So long, old top. I've got to rush to get there in time for dinner. And I rather wish I had time to look into a newspaper file of a year and a half ago, or [illegible] I had as good a memory as a astute landlady."

"Feeling rather sorry for Mrs. Berkeley that one of her guests should not be able to arrive in a suitably impressive car of his own, Bonnie Dundee betook himself and his suitcase, by means of a taxi, to Hillcrest, the 30-acre estate of Hamilton's richest manufacturer.

The house was a huge three-story affair of rough-hewn white stone, with gables and turrets and even a respectable imposing tower at one corner. Portions of the walls were mantelled with ivy. Encircling the rolling acres was a high, wrought-iron fence, with formidable spikes designed to keep out intruders, but the pair of stately gates was not locked nor had the Berkeleys yet achieved the dignity of a gate-keeper.

As his taxi swept around the curved drive Dundee caught a glimpse of the lake, which lay to the east of the house. The setting sun turned it into a broad pool of molten gold, and for the first time since he had received the urgent, impulsive invitation from young Dick Berkeley to "stand by, old man, or I'll not be able to bear up under all the la-de-da," Dundee felt a thrill of anticipation. The place, at least, was good to look upon, with its landscaped lawn, its flower gardens, its golden lake, its big, gracious house. Certainly, it would offer a welcome change from the clamor and friendly familiarity of the boarding house. And he had not played for rather too long, considering how young he was and how much he liked to play.

Maybe there would be a pretty girl. Or would it be just his luck to fall in love with Clorinda, who was already engaged to be married, if the "little bird" was to be relied upon? His last love, Norma Paige, was now Mrs. Walter Styles, and though she and her husband were still members of the Rhodes House family, he was ashamed to confess that he no longer suffered even a pang of what he had once felt sure would be a life-long grief.

And then he remembered Mrs. Rhodes' bitter remarks about "Abbie" Berkeley. If Clorinda were at all like her mother, his heart would not be in danger. His taxi driver was holding open the door. Dundee hesitated before descending. Had Mrs. Rhodes frightened him? That was absurd, of course. He was here to make a keen, close study of Mr. Seymour Crosby, for certain sinister reasons. . . . Besides—and he tipped the driver generously—if Mrs. Berkeley high-hatted him, he was armed with a weapon against her. And he chuckled.

But such tactics as Mrs. Rhodes had suggested proved to be uncalled for. Indeed, the young detective, whose official connection with the homicide squad of the police department of Hamilton was known to a very limited number of trusted people, found himself embarrassed by the effusiveness of his welcome.

Dear Mr. Dundee! the mannish-ly proportioned, [illegible]-haired Mrs. Berkeley cried, [illegible] with young Dick, he made his first appearance in the drawing-room at the dinner hour that [illegible] eve-ning. "You don't know how delighted I am that my darling Dick has found a congenial [illegible] friend in this [illegible] boy, has been [illegible] for intellectual companionship. Dick tells me that since you graduated from Yale you have been studying in Europe. Don't you find America frightful! crude, bourgeois, somehow metallic, if you know what I mean?

Production Cost Higher Than Price

AUSTIN, March 1. (AP)—The average cost of producing cotton in Texas is about 7 cents a pound higher than the price received for the commodity, a survey of crop conditions in 91 counties, recently completed under the supervision of George D. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, disclosed.

According to the report the average cost is 23.9 cents while the average price received is only eighteen cents. Central Texas leads the list in districts where the production cost is highest, the average cost per pound being 30.8 cents. Northern Texas with 16.2 cents has the most favorable production costs with the other districts ranging between these two.

Although the average production cost is 23.9 cents per pound, in some districts it cost $1.16 per pound while the lowest cost of production is listed at 6.7 cents per pound.

The variations in the producing cost is attributed by Commissioner Terrell to the partial or complete crop failure in some sections of the state.

James Melton, tenor, and the Nathaniel Shilkret concert orchestra will present the better known works of Rubenstein and Kreisler in their program on WEAF and stations Wednesday evening.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness.

And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.—St. John, xiii, 46, 47.

THE CITY'S PROPERTY

SINCE making public the announcement that a part of the city's ground, lying between Texas avenue, Avenue J, Ninth and Tenth streets, would be turned over to the Allen Brothers post of the American Legion for a building site, the City administration has received requests from other organizations for similar plots of ground.

The administration feels that the American Legion is more entitled to public ground for its building than any other organization and in that particular The Morning Avalanche agrees, en toto. Members of the legion were representatives of this country and its individual citizens in 1917 and 1918 and are still representative of every group today. There is no doubt that the average man favors donating city ground for a legion building where, for some individual reason he might oppose a similar action on behalf of say the Boy Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, the City Federation of Women's clubs and kindred, other organizations. Since the average man is, in the final analysis, the owner of the city's property, he is the one to be pleased in the matter.

It so happens that the idea of donating either city or county land—part of the city's block or the courthouse square, in particular—to the legion post for its building site was original with the Avalanche-Journal publications three years ago. These newspapers continue to support the project and expect to pursue that policy until the building is finally constructed. However, we feel that other organizations might be similarly aided to the satisfaction of the great majority of the public if this, or succeeding administration so rule.

The city's block, admirably well located with respect to the downtown section, offers an opportunity for a community center equalled in few cities. There has been no publically announced plan concerning what the city expects to do with the three-fourths of the square block not now filled by structures. Until there is such a plan decided upon and published The Avalanche-Journal can see no earthly reason why the community center plan should not be seriously considered.

The city could set aside enough ground on that square block to assure plenty of room for expansion of the City hall, jail, police and fire stations and still have room enough for at least two buildings available for civic organizations and public enterprises such as a legion building and a community auditorium with adjacent rooms. Or, on the other hand, it could with adjacent rooms. Or, on the other hand, it could study could be seen as more feasable—all depending on the point of view.

One thing is certain. The city's ground should be put to work, either on a community center plan or another more peculiar to officialdom's needs. It's doing little good as it now stands with a City hall on one corner, a turnip patch on the other and nothing but a few square miles of ozone topping the rest.

VALUE OF A NAME

What's in a name? The answer for generations back has been "nothing." True a rose by any other name would smell as sweet but try to sell it under a different name if you would better estimate the value of a name.

The name of Alexander, Hannibal, Caesar and Napoleon evacuated walled cities, turned whole armies into disastrous retreat and conquered empires. Those names obtained their magic from the deeds of their owners.

Because his name might have been Smith would not have prevented Shakespeare from writing his classic tragedies and in spite of their common names George Washington and Abraham Lincoln won immortal fame. Genius is as accidental as its name.

And yet American manufacturers spend millions annually on names. For the purpose of establishing a trade name business enterprises conduct nation-wide and even world-wide advertising campaigns. To many manufacturers the name of their product is their fortune, a fortune which could not be amassed without the aid of advertising.

Modern business has learned that the three essentials for success in merchandising are a worthy product, a trade-mark and an adequate advertising campaign. Advertising is as essential to retail business as to the manufacturer.

LIBERTY

When a man exclaims that he is a free man he speaks in particularities rather than in generalities. In the United States all men are free in so far as they can not be bought and sold as chattels or slaves and to the extent that they can hold public office and possess the elective franchise.

It is right and proper for men to seek and glory in freedom, but absolute liberty is incompatible with civilization. Every law takes away a liberty, and congress, legislatures and municipal governments are enacting new laws momentarily. Customs are laws which cannot be violated with impunity. Employers and employes are master of each other. Men who take unto themselves wives and acquire progeny are not at liberty to do and act as personal wishes dictate. No man is at liberty to operate his automobile as he will because there are traffic rules, the rights of others and statutes to be observed. But to continue in this manner might convince us that there is no freedom, that the black slave had more freedom than our first citizens.

But there are two ways of looking upon the restrictions of civilization. One is that every restriction is a denial of an inalienable right of the individual. The other is that every restriction liberates each individual from the trespassing of other individuals. Legislation is a concomitant of civilization. We enact, enforce and obey laws not for our restriction but for our protection.

We believe this is the wrong time of year for people [illegible] at its worst. Hardly anyone asks, "Is it [illegible] for you?"

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.—Tangling up one's vis-a-vis' at a diplomatic conference, until they have no idea whether they are going or coming, always has been recognized as masterly statecraft.

The theory is, however, that the negotiator of the first part must not tangle up, too, and begin falling over his own feet.

If he does, as appears to have happened to Secretary Henry L. Stimson, in his role as chief of the American delegation at the five-powers' naval confab in London, the situation becomes more embarrassing for him than if he had not attempted anything slick however.

To be sure, it is denied that Secretary Stimson meant anything Machiavellian, but it cannot be disputed that he made a mighty awkward mistake.

This mistake, supposing that a mistake was what it was, had its genesis in the Washington naval conference of 1921-'22, when our then secretary of state, Charles Evans Hughes, as America's head negotiator, agreed to sink all the battleship Uncle Sam was building at the time, while consenting to let John Bull finish the ones he was building.

As a result of this bargain Uncle Samuel scrapped the strongest vessels he had ever planned and John Bull owns the two newest, most powerful fighting craft afloat, the Rodney and the Nelson.

It was a dicker which has struck in many an American craw ever since.

True, there are authorities who insist that the day of big battleships is past; nevertheless, naval fans on this side of the Atlantic have considered, ever since, that the United States was hornswaggled.

Secretary Stimson seems to have this notion in the back of his own head when he went to London, or maybe he thought it would be good politics to slip a provision for an American Rodney into whatever compact might be arrived at in the course of the still-pending negotiations.

At any rate, he suggested it to Premier Ramsay MacDonald of England, who is understood to have said he did not believe there would be much British objection to it. What made him think so is a mystery.

Presently the moment arrived for Secretary Stimson to inform the British public what the United States is prepared to limit its navy to, and Mr. Stimson did so—but he omitted to include the little matter of a new battleship of the Rodney class to be awarded to Uncle Samuel on condition of his promise to discard four instead of three old, worn-out vessels.

The trouble was, Mr. Stimson had neglected to tell the other American delegates to keep quiet, and they began wondering (out loud) why the proposed concession to Uncle Samuel had been left off the American schedule.

The London Times overheard them wondering, and published the story—wondering energetically, on its own account, "What about it?"

The news promptly was cabled to Washington where numerous correspondents streaked it to Acting Secretary of State Joseph P. Cotton, beseeching enlightenment.

Now, it appears, certain that Mr. Cotton could not have been in Mr. Stimson's confidence or he surely would not have said what he did. He might indeed (for diplomacy) condones certain technical inaccuracies, have expressed his conviction that "investigation would show the report to be untrue," but he hardly would have added that such a thing would be entirely "against the spirit of the conference" if he had known it to be the very thing Secretary Stimson was trying to accomplish.

Naturally the cables carried Mr. Cotton's comment back to London and Secretary Stimson really had to explain himself.

The London Times was correct, he admitted.

Why had he not said so sooner?

Oh, it was an oversight.

A lively screeched British public opinion of an oversight! A 28,000-ton, $30,000,000 battleship! An oversight!

Well, added Secretary Stimson, it was extremely unlikely Uncle Sam would build such a ship anyway. All he wants is the right to build one if he feels like it.

The British laughed raucously.

Incidentally it came out that Premier MacDonald was mistaken also. There is a lot of British opposition to the Stimson plan.

OPERATION SUCCESSFUL IN RELIEVING FOOT ILL KNOWN AS "HAMMER TOE"

Hammer Toe

"Dear Doctor: Is there any way of correcting the so-called hammer toe? My toe next to the large one of each foot is doubled under so that I walk on the end of it. The bone in the second joint is pushed up to the extent that it is becoming very sore. Can this be corrected by having the cord or muscles under the toe cut? MISS L.

Yes, Miss L., an operation cutting the tendons is successful in relieving hammer toe. After this is performed the toe has to be kept in short splints held on by adhesive plaster, for some months.

Sometimes hammer toe is congenital, that is, a baby is born with it; and sometimes it is due to too small shoes. When a baby is born with one it can be easily remedied then by strapping and splinting.

While we are speaking of abnormal toes, I might as well tell you of another type—Morton's toe. In this condition, the toe nerve is jammed between the heads of the toe bones. This is usually associated with flat foot. Mild cases are cured by wearing a properly fitting shoe and massage. Sometimes they are so troublesome that they have to be amputated, and this is also true of hammer toe.

Practical Nurse: You failed to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope (or even your name and address in your letter) with your coin, so we couldn't send you the article on Common Eye Troubles. Please write again, correcting your mistake?

The article on Common Eye Troubles takes up the question of Styles, but I will tell you now that where there are constantly recurring crops of the pets, it shows that some of the germs from the previous styes have continued to linger and multiply, infecting the oil glands of the eyelids again. It may be possible that you have some underlying general condition that lowers the tissue resistance so that these germs are not killed off, so you had better have a general physical examination, including a blood examination.

Meanwhile, wash your eyes with the following solution, every day, and then also get tube of one per cent yellow oxide of mercury and run a little into the lids every night. Continue to do this even weeks after the first stye goes.

Alkaline Eye Wash

Take a moderately heaped teaspoonful each of bicarbonate of soda (ordinary baking soda), borax and table salt; dissolve in a quart of boiled water; add a full tablespoon of glycerine and filter. (You can filter by pouring solution through cotton-stuffed funnel.)

(This wash is good for washing the eyes after exposure to the wind and dust, after automobiling or golfing, and is much to be preferred to the various eye washes that are sold in drug stores and which may contain ingredients that may injure the eye after continuous and prolonged use.

R. I don't know: anything about the grapefruit "cure" for diabetes, nor have I seen anything of it in the scientific literature. But you should be doubtful about any advertised cures for any disease. If you have diabetes, you must be under the control and management of a scientific physician who understands the disease.

TO SPONSOR FIESTA

BIG SPRING, March 1.—The City Federation of Women's clubs will sponsor "The Fiesta of Progress" celebration to be held here May 7-10. The organization plans to make this an annual event and one of the biggest festivals of its kind in West Texas.

The first events of the program will be the coronation of the queen and the queen's ball, with visiting princesses from other West Texas towns attending. Other features will include a presentation of "Texas Under Six Flags" and a sham battle.

Well folks, according to what we have read, Napoleon was the heroic. After he had gone over into Egypt and turned up quiet a rumble at the Pyramids he issued a press report that an army traveled on its stomach. Well, anyway Bonaparte said his travelin' stomache decided to go into the wholesale investment business and did a land office big job of it, but about the time he had the axe on everybody he told Josephine one morning at the breakfast table that he wanted Moscow which, by the way, was a bad error on Napoleon's part for some of those Cossacks remembered what he had laid over at the Pyramids and hid all the wheat, so when he arrived in the land of eternal snows not a mother's son would recognize any of Nap's travelers checks, consequently, the invasion was a flop and Josephine had to do without the crown jewels—which goes to prove that sometimes it pays to keep the tongue in the cheek.

Today's Poem

MEDIOCRITY IN LOVE REJECTED

Give me more love, or more disdain;
The torrid, or the frozen zone
Bring equal ease unto my pain;
The temperate affords me none;
Either extreme, of love or hate,
Is sweeter than a calm estate.
Give me a storm; if it be love
Like Danae in that golden shower
I swim in pleasure; if it prove
Disdain, that torrent will devour
My vulture-hopes, and he's possessed
Of heaven that's but from hell released.
Then crown my joys, or cure my pain;
Give me more love, or more disdain.
—Thomas Carew (1589?-1639?)

Public Opinion

THE RESOLUTION THAT WAS NOT PASSED

I was very much interested in the report of the bankers, ginners and business men of this section, Monday, Feb. 25.

The meeting was very conspicuous in that no farmers were in attendance. The meeting was a very important one and the suggestions therein made are worthy of all acceptation.

Of course some of the suggestions were threadbare, that of "Diversification." I have heard that for the last 40 years and the other choice phrase of "Cow, Sow and Hen." Right now this last suggestion is slightly at a discount as the market for those products is at a very low ebb. But it is still sane and right that these things should be produced right along for there is sure to be a reaction in the prices of the dairy and poultry products.

Acreage reduction is very necessary at present, not that the world does not need about all the cotton that would likely be produced under ordinary season.

I was very much amused at the suggestion of one of the speakers when he expressed fear that any effort to reduce the acreage would result in an increase as many farmers would think his neighbor would reduce and he himself would increase to get the benefit of any reduced acreage. This was a display of the lack of information on this great and important subject, for the facts show that wherever there had been a demand for reduced acreage the farmers have, most of them, reduced liberally. Note 1917 and other years. Now it is very timely and pertinent that what the Dallas banker said be carefully considered.

In October, 1926 when the big crop began to be known I was with The Avalanche, and netering the reports of the meetings called in different parts of the country I said the south was headed for a loss on that crop of a half billion dollars.

I was criticized at the time for making such assertion but as the Dallas banker has stated we lost not only the half billion. The loss was at least $600,000,000. I said at the time that this loss was avoidable and showed how it could have been avoided. If at that time, the bankers, business man and ginners had rallied to the support of the farmers and had said to the consuming world, "This crop is as good as last year's crop, which was sixteen million bales and a little over. Fifteen million bales of that crop brought the growers the snug sum of $1,425,000,000. Now why take such a loss on that great crop?" At that time every trade condition was as good and better than the year before. Now is the bankers and business men had said this crop is as [illegible] the 1925 crop and had required [illegible] that the producers did not [illegible] or less and if there is any [illegible] fell over when all are supplied, [illegible] take care of the surplus [illegible] in all probability would [illegible] had to take up a the [illegible] for the farmers would have received the 15c instead of 11c they did take. The crop gave them the loss of the amount mentioned by the Dallas banker. There is a great deal more that could be said about that crop that space forbids me mentioning here but now we want to mention the resolution that was not made in the meeting here.

If that meeting had passed this omitted resolution, and had said "Resolved, that when the farmers have taken our suggestions and resolutions above, and the crop is about ready for harvest we will call a meeting of this same bunch, with the same class of business men, farmers and bankers of the entire south and arrive at about the size of the crop and the world's probable demand for it and we will announce a price the crop should bring and will recommend that no cotton be sold for less, even if we stop all sale for a short time.

"Be it further resolved, that we think the time has fully come that we, who grow the crops, and we who do now and have for the last 25 years aided the growers in producing the cotton crops, have a better right to say what this and all succeeding crops shall bring a fair price to our beloved Southland rather than the gamblers on the exchanges, who have nothing in common with our people, except to so manipulate the markets that they can hoard up great wealth at the expense of the honest toiler of the south.

"Resolved further that we think the time has come that every true Southerner should go his full strength of ability to stop this wicked and pernicious practice."

Lubbock Man Is Descendant Of Daniel Webster

Almost every properly tutored boy has been admonished some time during his life to emulate the standards set by some poet or distant relative.

Few, however, have shared the pride of general who have been encouraged to follow in the footsteps of their distinguished ancestor—Daniel Webster. Among such a select group is T. T. Garrard, Lubbock attorney and member of the State Board of Education.

Mr. Garrard's grandmother, Mrs. James Garrard, who before her marriage was Miss Margaret Webster, was a second cousin to the American statesman.

Recalled Childhood

"I have a vivid recollection of an early boyhood when grandmother would relate many experiences of Daniel Webster, whom she knew personally," said Mr. Garrard. "She had among her treasured collections a locket of the hair of Daniel Webster.

"One of the familiar sketches of the statesman, as found in history textbooks, was among the prized pictures of the family.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

What's a stack of hotcakes got to do with a GARDEN?

HOTCAKES just off the griddle are at their tenderest. Then's the time to eat them—when they're hot. And vegetables just from a garden are at their tenderest. Then is the time to eat them, too—when the radishes are solid, crisp. When the tomatoes sparkle as you peel them, and you can slice them smooth and thin.

Have a kitchen garden and enjoy all your vegetables at their climax-time, when they are most tender and sweet. Plant Ferry's purebred Seeds. These have abundant life inside. They are what their name says—purebred. Generations of the seeds that finally became these seeds produced vegetables and flowers approaching perfection.

Ferry's Seeds are at the "store around the corner." A few packets will show what your own yard can grow—but you will want more than a few packets when you look over Ferry's Seed Annual. With this, your garden can produce from early-radish time till frost, when crisp, white celery can last clear on till spring again! For the Annual, write to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Michigan.

P. S.—THE GARDENER HAS NO SECOND CHANCE. PLANT THE BEST.

Pecan Orchard Is Being Developed In Llano County

Large Grove Is Improved By Llano Couple; Over 2000 Trees To Be Included In Group When Completed

(By Associated Press)

LLANO.—The 100-acre improved pecan orchard of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Seaholm of Llano is attracting much interest in Llano county and other counties in this section.

Last year the first unit of the project, located near here, was finished, including the clearing of 92 acres of land and the planting of 600 young pecan trees of choice papershell varieties.

Others Are Planned

The second unit is now under way, with extra laborers at work clearing the remaining eight acres and planting 600 additional trees. Next year the extensive planting program will be completed, when the total number of trees will be increased to some 2,000.

Provision is now being made to irrigate the large grove, the pumping plant to be ready for use by April.

The pecan trees used in stocking the orchard are approximately five years old at the time of planting and vary from nine to twelve inches in height. About six paper shell varieties are being grown.

Only Seven Die

Of the first unit of 600 trees planted last spring only seven have died. It is Seaholm's plan not to allow the trees to bear for several years in order to concentrate on vegetation.

Two hundred fruit trees have been planted between the pecan trees, as well as several varieties of grapes and berries.

A modern stucco residence has been built on the grounds for the family of the foreman. Eight men are employed permanently, while from 20 to 25 are used when special work is under way.

The large experiment is expected to demonstrate the fitness of the soil for pecan culture.

Executives To Aid In State Session

August Meeting Of South Plains Group Is Called Off In Order That State Meet May Be Attended

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, March 1.—The South Plains Commercial Executives association will not hold its semi-annual meeting in Lubbock next August according to schedule, but instead will co-operate closely with the annual convention of the Texas Commercial Executives association to be held in Plainview June 6 and 7. It was announced here today by I. A. Wilson, secretary of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and president of the South Plains Executives.

"Our decision to dispense with the August meeting was reached after officers and directors of the association had agreed on that course believing that all officials of chambers of commerce in the South Plains section should attend the convention in Plainview, and that the August meeting of the South Plains body would be unnecessary," Mr. Wilson said. "If desired, a group meeting of the South Plains officials may be arranged during the Plainview convention," he added.

Held In Lubbock

Chamber of commerce workers of the South Plains area will have the second opportunity in four years to attend a state convention of T. C. E. A., the 1926 meeting having been held in Lubbock. It was pointed out by Mr. Wilson. He declared Plainview is already making plans to entertain the convention in fine style, and that a large attendance of chamber of commerce executives from all parts of Texas is expected at the June meeting in Plainview.

Other officers of the South Plains Executives are: Faye Guthrie, Lockney, vice-president; A. B. Davis, Lubbock, secretary; and Martin, Tulia, Maury Hopkins, Plainview; C. C. Williams, Tahoka; and B. W. Ross, Floydada, directors.

Tung Oil Trees Growing In Texas

LIBERTY, March 1. (AP)—Through cooperation of H. M. Madison, agricultural agent of the Southern Pacific railroad, Liberty county may become a productive section for tung oil trees.

The trees are a native of China, but 20 years of experimenting in this country prove that they are suitable for growth in east Texas. They have been grown for years in Florida, and Jefferson county has several tracts on which the trees are being successfully grown.

The cutover pine land of this section is considered ideal for growth of the trees.

Nancy Carroll In "Dangerous Paradise" At Lindsey Today

Love In Alluring And Balmy Tropic Islands Pictured

Richard Arlen Is Popular Leading Man In Cast

LOVE in the balmy, alluring tropics where men fight boldly for wealth is the theme of the exciting melodrama which brings Nancy Carroll forward as Paramount's new star. The picture is "Dangerous Paradise" and it will show, all-talking, at the Lindsey Threatre, for three days, startin today. Richard Arlen is the popular leading man.

Characters which have been vivid personalities for readers of Joseph Conrad's novels will live and act and talk from the screen in "Dangerous Paradise." The drama was adapted from incidents in the Conrad story by William Slavens McNutt, well-known Saturday Evening Post writer, and Grover Jones, veteran screen writer. William Wellman, director of "Wings" made the picture.

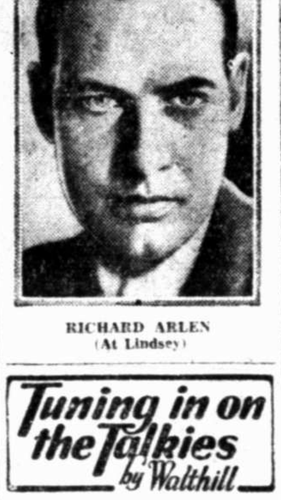

Nancy Carroll has an especially able supporting cast for her first starring role in which she is seen as a girl musician in a South Sea hotel, a rendezvous for uncavory characters from the underworlds of all the great cities of the earth. Menaced by her ruthless employer, she seeks safety on a tiny island where Richard Arlen, an embittered recluse, is living and working, alone. Friendship turns into hate, when Nancy resents Arlen's suspicious coldness. However, when three desperadoes trail Nancy to the island and menace Arlen's life, her love is revealed in one great, dramatic scene.

"Dangerous Paradise" is an unusual picture in many ways. It is one of the first all-talking pictures to be filmed largely at sea, and its swiftly moving climactic action is thrilling and logical. Warner Oland, remembered for his masterly characterization in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," has an important role, and Gustav von Seyffertitz, Francis McDonald and George Kotsonaros portray a trio of villains it would be difficult to match anywhere. A master of dynamic action, Wellman maintained a speed in action and filming which keeps the suspense mounting in tremendous crescendo until the final surprise episode.

"Tide Of Empire" Coming To Lyric

Story Of Peter B Kyne's To Open Run Today

Echoes of great names that have come down in the history of the West are revived in the graphic representations of famous characters which make up the cast of "Tide of Empire," Peter B. Kyne's vivid story of the California gold rush, which will be at the Lyric Theatre today. It is a Cosmopolitan production and is presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Not only are Wells, Fargo and other celebrated characters of the "Days of '49" reproduced, by actors so startlingly like the originals that it seems those historical characters have actually come to life, but many descendants of those pioneers are among the actors playing their roles.

The vivid drama, which Allan Dwan directed, has among its characters such celebrities as "Bejabers" Harmon, jailer and prospector. The name Harmon is today perpetuated by the great Harmon Gymnasium at the University of California.

Among the actors in the huge picture are many descendants of old Spanish settlers and former gold seekers. One of the most interesting is Buck Cody, who plays a bandit. He is the son of Vasquez, the famous bandit hung in Salinas in 1861 and "Loco Mary," a historic character who is still alive, at the age of 103. His name was changed by law.

Renee Adoree and George Duryea play the principal roles in the new drama, as the Spanish heroine and her gold-prospector lover. William Collier, jr., George Fawcett, James Bradbury, sr., Paul Hurst, Harry Gribbon, Fred Kohler and others of note are in the cast.

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walthill

In "Hold Everything," talkie version of the stage musical piece, Winnie Lightner, the comedienne, is interested in the subject of marriage. As part of the dialog she asks:

"A Woman's Fight" offers no inducements to peace makers.

Raquel Torres

Raquel Torres will be one of the stars disclosed "Under a Texas Moon" when Frank Fay comes to the speakies as a new star in Warner Bros. firmament.

The movies know everything. There is a title that declares "Love Makes Women Wild."

"The Silent Driver" makes a great hit in the back seat.

Fence-Rail Talkies

Farmer Silo says: "These new fangled speakies are too enticing to women. They always give the wife the smart get-back at her husband."

Terse and to the Point

"The Sin Flood" will be dammed by Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

"Disraeli" was voted the best picture of 1929 in a poll of press critics.

Alice White will star in "Sweet Mamma" while Al Jolson contents himself as star of "Mammy."

Famous Waring's Pennsylvanians To Be Heard Here

"Syncopation" Will Be Presented At Palace Theater

THE screen appearance of Fred A. Waring's Pennsylvanians, one of the most noted and versatile organizations of its kind in America, now scoring a tremendous success in RKO's musicomedy film extravaganza, "Syncopation" and which comes to the Palace Theatre, affords an unusual opportunity to analyze the distinctly American form of musical expression of which they are acknowledged masters and ranking favorites.

A study of the instruments and combinations used by the young men is a revelation. Waring, the director, invents much of his own enthusiasm and gives his men and conducts in a manner that produces maximum results.

The brass section is prolific in bizarre and beautiful effects, the three trumpeters using a dozen kinds of mutes, derby hats, mufflers and other unusual devices and the rich, cello-like tones of the trombone often are mellowed and beautified by the clever use of the megaphone. The bass player, foundation of every orchestral effort, plays every form of bass instrument,— brass, string and reed. The banjo player, indispensable to rhythm, also plays a violin on occasion, adding to the string choir. Each member of the saxaphone section is equally capable on flute, oboe and clarinets as well as the whole family of saxaphones, from the shrillest soprano to the deepest baritone. Drums, traps and tympani are presided over by an expert percussionist.

In addition to Fred Waring's Pennsylvanian's in "Syncopation," the producers of this first of the Radio pictures have woven exquisite new melodies into the texture of this moving story of Broadway hoofers, seeking fame, fortune and love along the street of make-believe, three of which are sung by Morton Downey. Others in the cast are Barbara Bennett, Bobby Watson, Ian Hunter, Osgood Perkins, Mackenzie Ward, Veree Teasdale and Dorothy Lee.

With the porter of the Law Courts as best man, a notorious burglar and a factory girl were married recently at Versailles Prison, in France, which is the present residence of the thief, who is the head of a gang with 50 robberies to his credit.

Because prisons of Finland have 2,000 more prisoners than the capacity of the prisons, the Finnish government is contemplating giving instructions to the police "to postpone to some extent the tracing of criminals until the spring, when the number of prisoners is usually smaller than in the winter."

Gary Cooper Will Be Seen In 'Seven Days Leave' Here

Palace Feature To Begin Three-Day Run Tuesday

Gary Cooper in his four years as a motion picture actor, beginning in the extra ranks and climbing to stardom, has made "proposals" to dozens of women on the screen.

They have been beauties, young, red-lipped, fascinating: beauties with blue, black and brown eyes; beauties with blond hair, brown hair, black hair; beauties sophisticated and sleek, coy and dimpled—Clara Bow, Evelyn Brent, Nancy Carroll, Mary Brian, Florence Vidor, Esther Ralston, Colleen Moore and Lupe Velez.

Cooper has made his proposals from balconies, on desert sands, in the saddle, over a caf etable—but it remained for the tall young Montanan to make his most unusual and dramatic proposal of all his screen career in the talking picture "Seven Days Leave," which comes to the Palace Theatre for three days beginning on Tuesday next.

In this production, based on J. M. Barrie's stage success, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," Cooper on bended knee asks an old Scotch scrub woman, played by Beryl Mercer, to be his mother.

Authorities Say So-Called New Crop Is Proso, Millet

There Is No Such Recognized Seed As "Hershey", They Claim; Say It Has Been Tested On Plains Before

As Forage Or Pasture Crop It Is Inferior To Ordinary Millets; Best Use Is For Stock Feed

BY AL HILL
Farm Editor

While the press of West Texas has been devoting considerable space to the subject of "Hershey", following action taken in Scurry county to have the seed brought into that region by the carloads, it is learned from Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment station, here, and Dean A. H. Leidigh, of the Texas Tech school of agriculture, that there is no such recognized seed as "Hershey."

According to Dean Leidigh and Mr. Jones, the word "Hershey" is the German name for millet. Both of these authorities contend that the plant is a species of Russian millet, known as Proso, a grain-producing millet. Backing up these two, J. D. Tinsley, agricultural agent for the Santa Fe railway, has written that, after an inspection of the seed, he recognizes it as Proso.

Claims Are Listed.

Claims made for "Hershey," so-called, are to the effect that it is a new feed and forage crop, particularly adaptable to West Texas.

"This species of millet," declares Dean Leidigh, "is sometimes known as hog millet or broom corn millet. It is Proso, nothing more nor less."

Proso ripens in a very short season and, in the extreme north it is used as a substitute for corn and grain, while perhaps the most common use of it throughout the nation is as a bird seed. Dean Leidigh further states.

Was Grown Here In 1907.

"I raised it in experiments for the government at Channing and Amarillo from 1904 to 1907, and found it almost useless as a standard grain crop on account of the fact that if hit by a dry season it would not wait for rain but would go ahead and mature regardless," continues Leidigh.

"In a dry season, if rain comes at the right time Proso would make a small crop a good catch-crop. As a forage or pasture crop, however, it is much inferior to the ordinary millets. It has been found to have some value in the Dakotas, but apparently is only useful in Texas under exceptional conditions. The fact that an attempt is being made to introduce it in Texas under the name of Hershey, whereas its well-known name is Proso—hog millet or broom corn millet—seems to indicate to me that somebody has some seed to sell.

"I could recommend that it be sold if a person has a contract to sell hog seed at a contract price. I would not recommend anyone on the Plains planting more than an acre or two to try it out and, if they do plant it, to plant exclusively for grain. I would be greatly surprised if it made more than 20 bushels per acre, under any conditions, here on the Plains."

Government Bulletin Quoted

From Bulletin 1162, of the United States Department of Agriculture which was exhibited to the writer by Mr. Jones, the following was taken:

"Proso is an early maturing millet, the seed of which is used for grain. It is best adapted to the northern prairie and great plains sections of the United States, where it is grown to a limited extent as a late-sown catch crop.

"Proso produces fair yields of seed with a limited supply of moisture, but cannot withstand severe drought. Other grains usually yield more than Proso, but they must be sown earlier.

"Turghai, Red Russian, Tambov and Black Voronezh are the highest yielding varieties of Proso.

Time of Sowing Proso Told

"Proso should be sown with a grain drill at the rate of one to three pecks per acre, from a few days to two weeks after corn-planting time, but it will usually mature seed if sown even as late as July 1. It is harvested and threshed like other small grains. In the United States Proso is used chiefly for stock feed."

In a letter from J. D. Tinsley, Mr. Jones is told that the Santa Fe railway company was responsible for Proso seed being distributed extensively throughout the Panhandle-Plains and New Mexico semi-arid regions several years ago. Many farmers planted the crop, but only a very few kept it up, finding other grains better.

It is Mr. Jones' opinion that many of the newspaper articles appearing recently about "Hershey" have been rather misleading. This crop was grown at the State Experiment station here about 1915, at which time it failed to produce anywhere near the amount of seed that our grain sorghums produced.

Sudan or Common Millet Best

Mr. Tinsley's opinion is that common millet and Sudan grass will give better results than Proso." says Mr. Jones, "and our records show that the grain sorghums give better yields of grain. The only place that I can see them, that it would be useful, would be as a catch crop to plant when it is too late to mature out the grain sorghums.

"They have had fairly good results feeding hogs with Proso in Colorado.

In 1915 Proso, grown in close drills at the Lubbock experiment station, made an average yield of 12.62 bushels of grain to the acre, so Mr. Jones said, while in 36 inch rows it made a yield of 8.25 bushels per acre. The acre was sown on May 5 and harvested July 26. Some loss was experienced, due to birds and handling, before threshing. In the same year, Dwarf Yellow Milo made an average yield of 46.62 bushels of grain to the acre.

Knows Cotton

While most people associate the name "Earl Carroll" with show beauties, folk of Gilbert, La., attach it to cotton fame. The reason is Earl Carroll, Gilbert youth, who won first place in the Pelican state's cotton production contest of vocational agricultural high schools for this season. He produced 1863 pounds of lint and 2800 pounds of seed to the acre.

Shifting Of Farm Population During 1929 Not So Rapid

Government Bureau Avers Movement From Farm To Cities, While Slowing Up, Is Continuing

The movement of farm population from farms to cities and from cities to farms declined in 1929, according to the estimates of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture.

The bureau's figures show that 1,876,000 persons moved from farms to cities last years as compared with 1,923,000 in 1928; 1,978,000 in 1927, and a peak of 2,155,000 in 1926. The city to farm movement was also smaller, being placed at 1,237,000 persons last year compared with 1,347,000 in 1928 and 1,347,000 in 1927.

Farm Population Decreases

Births on farms last year are estimated at 631,000 and deaths at 281,000. Taking these figures into account along with the movement to and from farms, the bureau places the total farm population on January 1, 1930 at 27,222,000 compared to 27,491,000 on January 1, 1929 or a decrease of 269,000.

The bureau's figures for the past year show that in the New England states 67,000 persons left the farms and 50,000 returned to farms; Middle Atlantic states, 139,000 from farms, 110,000 to farms; East North Central 275,000 from farms, 204,000 to farms; West North Central 327,000 from farms, 225,000 to farms; South Atlantic, 292,000 from farms, 162,000 to farms; East South Central, 204,000 from farms, 136,000 to farms; West South Central, 331,000 from farms, 204,000 to farms; Mountain states, 127,000 from farms, 78,000 to farms; Pacific states, 114,000 from farms, 88,000 to farms. Births on farms were 23 to the 1,000; deaths were 10 to 1,000.

Terry County Man Has Good Profits In Poultry Work

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BROWNFIELD, March 1.—As an example of profits that can be made in the poultry provided that the fowls have the porper care, the following record made by John W. Chisholm, who owns a poultry ranch within the vicinity of Brownfield is presented.

Mr. Chisholm has 370 chickens of record bearing strains about equally divided between Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns. During the month of January and in the coldest part of this winter, they produced an average of 240 eggs daily, under a 30 day test, that were marketed for $288 with a feed cost of $77.20, leaving a net profit of $210.80. Mr. Chisholm says that his houses are not as good as they should be but that his fowls get plenty of the right kind of feed, the grounds are kept in a sanitary condition and an ample supply of clean water available at all times. His flock is early summer hatched and all of it has not reached the heavy laying stage.

NATIONAL FARM OUTLOOK

BY ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal, Written For Central Press

Agriculture is watching with interest and some anxiety the latest developments in important divisions of the business.

The first of these is the decline in the price of milk and dairy produce in general—or it would be better to say, the decline in milk products and butter, resulting in the cheapening of fluid milk.

This new cloud in the sky has been foreseen for some time, as more and more farmers, dissatisfied with profits in other lines, have turned to the relatively prosperous dairy business.

Increases in stocks of butter, evaporated and condensed milk and cheese, have shown that production has been running ahead of consumption. And the fluid milk market, held up with some success by the efforts of the powerful milk co-operatives in important consuming territory, finally had to submit, and bring its milk prices into a more normal relation with the price of butter.

The dairy interests are now engaged in trying to build up the consumption of butter, a small increase in which would have magical effects in using up stored surpluses.

And at the other end of the problem, dairymen are urged to send their least productive cows to the butcher, thereby decreasing the production of milk and increasing the income of the cow owner, at a single stroke.

While the dairy world thus grapples with its problem, the grain and cotton divisions are watching the course of prices in these great markets. Both cotton and wheat are selling below the prices supposed to be "pegged" by the federal farm board through its loans to the co-operatives.

The question is, therefore, were the farm board experts wrong in their judgment of the real value of these commodities, or will prices climb back later to or above the levels that prevailed a couple of months ago?

Whichever happens, the result is bound to be embarrassing to the board. If prices fail to come back, the board will be criticized for lack of information of supply and demand conditions, and bad judgment. If prices do rise again, many people would credit the board with an infallibility that it does not by any means claim to possess.

However, it is unwise to get excited over these affairs, no matter how exciting they are in themselves. Such situations become unavoidable as soon as the marketing act was passed and the farm board went into action.

As long as the farm board functions — and that may be a long time—we may confidently expect just such economic wars and rumors of wars as we are now seeing.

All business is like that, and a semi-governmental body mixing into business need not, and does not, expect to be an exception.

BY FRANK I. WELLER

Associated Press Feature Service.

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP) — Vice-chairman James C. Stone and Carl Williams of the Federal Farm Board, reviewing the relation between agriculture and the stock market, said that futures trading exerted a stabilizing effect on the market for farm crops.

In the same connection, they said, speculation serves a useful purpose. It continues throughout the year, whereas the actual marketing period of crops such as grain and cotton covers only from five to seven months.

"By expansion of sales," they said "speculation keeps prices from going down as sharply during the actual marketing period and rising as sharply thereafter as would otherwise be the case."

Explaining that national commodity marketing associations set up by the farm board would sell hedges to protect their purchases of farm commodities, the spokesmen said that the operation passed on to the speculator the elements of chance and the gambling features of futures trading.

In its simplest terms, they said, hedging amounted to the purchaser of a bale of cotton selling a bale on the futures market at the price he paid for the cash cotton. If the price of the cotton dropped, he was protected by the hedge. If the price rose, he could sell the cash cotton at the higher price and buy in the hedge.

Under the commodity marketing set-up, both wheat and cotton will be handled on an optional or pool basis. On the optional basis the owner may specify the date and price at which the cooperative sells his product. To protect itself, the cooperative will hedge its purchases. The seasonal pool leaves the sale entirely up to the cooperative and hedging will not be necessary.

The board members said seasonal pools would be favored because they gave the cooperative a greater bargaining power. They said that if the time should ever come when all cotton or all grain were marketed on a cooperative seasonal pool there would be no need for a futures market.

Dairy Development In Swisher County

Tulia Chamber Commerce And County Agent Started Campaign In 1922 That Is Going Strong Now

Several years ago, about 1922, the Tulia Chamber of Commerce and county farm agent realized the importance of dairying in Swisher county. It was observed by this group of citizens that the farmer, who has a small dairy and was selling cream, was paying his bills. At this time the cream receipts in this county ran about a quarter of a million dollars a year. It was decided that something should be done to stimulate interest in this enterprize or business.

Pondering this situation, the bull circle idea sprouted in the mind of P. C. Bennett, at that time county agent of Swisher county. The purpose of the bull circle was to introduce pure bred Jersey sires to breed up the Jersey cattle in Swisher county. This move was sponsored by the local chamber of commerce and 20 bulls of the very best breeding were shipped into this county and put into bull circles. This was the starting of the bull circle move that has spread throughout Texas, and has meant so much to dairy development in theh South.

Now Have Best In South

After pure-bred Jersey sires were brought into the county, several farmers bought pure-bred cows, and now we have some of the very best Jersey breeders in the South. These breeders are selling pure-bred sires throughout this section of the state and adjoining states.

This dairy development has continued to progress with Swisher county now showing 5000 head of good producing Jersey cows, both pure-bred and grades. As has been stated above, Swisher county showed less than one-fourth million dollars income a year from dairy products when this move started. At the present time Swisher county can boast of having an annual income from dairy products of something over one and one-half million dollars. This is proof enough that it pays to use pure-bred sires with grade cows.

Made Dairy Show Possible

The dairy development in this county is responsible for the organization of the Plainview Dairy show. Since the organization of this show, Swisher county has won the bulk of the honors awarded there.

In order to continue this dairy development, the dairymen of Swisher county were encouraged to enter the Master Dairy Farmer contest sponsored by the Amarillo Globe-News, and twenty-two dairymen of this county entered the contest. Out of the ten places of honor offered in this contest, Swisher county wone four. This distinction was won for this county because the entries from the county had the best improved herds and dairy barns, and fed balanced rations of home-grown feeds. In this contest Master Dairy Farmer S. JJ. Payne of Swisher county proved that butter fat could be produced for 17 cents per pound.

This section of Texas is especially adapted to dairying, and the possibilities are unlimited for developing this industry. We have an ideal climate for this business, abundance of feed, good rich soil, an abundant supply of water, and year-round green pastures.

EVEN IF THEY LIKE IT

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Cod liver oil is harmful for cows, it was discovered by experts at the state college of agriculture here. Although recommended for other farm animals, it was discovered that, fed to cows, the oil reduced the butter-fat content of the milk.

IRISH START COW TESTS

DUBLIN (AP)—The Free State has established a cow-testing service among dairy farmers to increase milk production. President Cosgrave estimates the additional milk from the state's 1,250,000 cows should add $30,000,000 to Ireland's farm income.

SAY PHEASANTS AID

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—Experts at the Oregon state college declare China pheasants aid agriculture by eating weed seed and insects.

Re-Routing Circles In Swisher County

TULIA, March 1.—The Swisher County Bull Circle No. 1 had their annual meeting in the office of the county agent Monday, Feb. 24, for the purpose of re-routing the bulls and dealing with other business pertaining to the success of the circle. D. T. Simons, secretary of the Texas Jersey Cattle club met with the circle and outlined for them the Jersey breeding program for 1930-31. P. C. Bennett, former county agent of Swisher county and now with the board of city development of Amarillo, was also in this meeting.

The new routing of the bulls in the Circle No. 1 is as follows: John Adams, Cowslip's Premier of Caprock; Joe Richardson, Fern's Oxford of Oakland; Rube Adams, Dameel's Marigold Premier; Joe Vaughn, Beautiful Vesta Masterman; A. Ruland, Queen's Nobel Masterman; S. J. Payne, Oxford Carrier; J. T. Corder, Jolly Noble's Masterman; A. S. Miller, Rawleigh Handsome Sid; extra, Joe Vaughn, You'll Do's Lady's Masterman.

The following men were present at this meeting: D. T. Simons, P. C. Bennett, Ross Noland, Mr. Edwards, J. T. Corder, S. J. Payne, A. Ruland, Joe Vaughn, Bill Edwards, V. L. Harmon, Rube Adams, Joe Richardson, Foster Klous, John Adams, C. B. Martin.

The U. S. Forest Service recently celebrated its 25th birthday.

County Library Given New Books

Ludwig's "July 1914" Heads List Of Additions To Library; Non-Fiction And Fiction Included

Although the Lubbock county library is still congested and its shelves are filled almost beyond capacity new books are being received each week.

Among the books that were added to the circulation recently include fiction and non-fiction.

"July, 1914" by Emil Ludwig, which is a resume of the events that happened at the beginning of the World War.

"Ten to One in Sweden" by Sylvanus which is an entertaining account of a winter spent in Sweden as the governess in a Swedish family.

"Choice Candy Recipes" is a book of 165 candy recipes compiled by L. Allen. These recipes are especially adapted to the requirements of the home candy maker.

"Pearl Diver" is a stirring narrative of a young Swede who tells his experiences in all quarters of the globe, with particular references to his development as a pearl diver. This book is written by W. Birge.

Among the fiction received are: "Heirs" by Cannon; "Yukon Drive", Case; "Isles of Illusion", Gibbs; "Candles in the Sun", Graham; "Cavers of Sunset", Haworth; "Miss Welby at Steen", Marshall; "Road to Santa Fe", Morris; "Man with the Squeaky Voice", Walling; "Hudson River Bracketted", Wharton.

ROLL CALL

The church clerk of the Baptist church called the church roll Sunday at the morning preaching hour. A large crowd was present to answer when their names were called. Two hundred were present for Sunday school and with the newly organized choir a splendid service was enjoyed.

LEAGUE HAS WEENIE ROAST

The Junior League of the Methodist church together with Mesdames Hyatt, McCarthy, Collier and Kidd went to the Silver Falls canyon Wednesday afternoon where they roasted weenies and had supper and a jolly good time in general the only complaint the youngsters made was that they didn't get to stay long. When the days get long and the weather warms up a bit they are going again and stay longer.

ROTARIANS PLAY BALL

One of the most humorous ball games ever played on the Ralls court was played Wednesday evening between the fats and leans of the Ralls Rotary club. The fats were attired in large loose bloomers with white stripes running around the body while the leans wore tight legs with stripes running around the trousers. Jimmie Rankin dressed in red flannels with hip boots and gas mask referred the game assisted by Bill Romane of Crosbyton who wore black and white. R. M. Read was coach of the fats while M. L. Penn was the lean coach. The teams made their rules as they played and amid screams of applause from the grand stand they tackled took the ball away from their opponents and put it in the ring according to their own liking. The first few minutes of the game it looked as if the leans were going to have things their way but when the fat men got warmed up they changed the outlook and after much manuevering the game ended with the score of 22 and 20 in the fats favor. The gate reciepts amounted to near one hundred dollars which will be put in the charity fund to be used when the occasion arises.

BRIDGE CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Sadler entertained the Thursday Bridgie club last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cooper on East Tilford avenue. Dr. Thomas Clyce, Austin College Head, Opens Two Weeks Revival For First Presbyterian Church Today

Prominent Churchman Is To Preach Twice Daily Here; Project Is Part Of Wide Campaign Over Synod

DR. THOMAS CLYCE

Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, president of Austin college, Sherman, will begin a series of evangelistic services this morning at the First Presbyterian church and is to preach twice daily for two weeks according to an announcement from Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the church.

Dr. Clyce is one of the most prominent ministers of the Presbyterian church and has held the highest office in the church, Moderator of the general assembly. At present he is on several important committees of the assembly, the most important of which are the advisory committee of Christian education and the committee on organic union with all of the other Presbyterian bodies in America.

In Wide Campaign

A Synod-wide campaign of evangelistic services is being made in the State of Texas and between now and Easter Sunday meetings will have been held in all of the churches, according to Dr. Lewis.

Dr. Clyce has recently conducted services in Colorado City and Westminster church, Dallas, and splendid meetings have been reported from both campaigns.

Dr. James M. Gordon will lead congregational singing and there will be a chorus choir. The services will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning and 7:30 each evening according to officials.

The general public is invited to attend.

City Serves As Wholesale Marketing Center for Area

One Hundred Or More Merchants Here Each Week

Thirty-Five Sample Rooms Are Available In Hotels Of City; Over 5,000 Orders Made Yearly

ONE hundred South Plains and Eastern New Mexico merchants buy in Lubbock every week-end, local hotel men say.

These retailers come to local sample rooms at seasonable periods throughout the year and many of them depend entirely upon the vast displays which are brought to the "Hub of the Plains" for re-stocking their shelves.

Thirty-Five Firms Here

One representative alone attracted 60 retailers during a recent 8 days' showing of hats in this city.

Novelty, general, shoe, millinery and ready-to-wear lines are the chief commodities represented among the displays.

Many Orders Made

Local hotel men estimate that approximately 5,000 orders are sold annually in sample rooms of this city. Many of the merchants find the wholesale displays so complete that trips to Eastern markets have been eliminated. A sizeable number of those who shop here, however, make annual and semi-annual trips to the big marketing centers, depending upon local displays for their refills.

Lubbock, with hotel and transportation facilities which peer those of any city of 25,000 population in the state, is established as one of the principal marketing centers of West Texas. Eight railway and seven bus line outlets give this city advantageous conditions for the vast territory it serves.

Due to adequate transportation facilities, it is said that in case of an emergency a wholesale representative could appear in Lubbock during any business hour and could assemble all his customers in this city's territory within four hours' time, granting that invitations were responded to favorably.

Located within the largest undeveloped agricultural section in the United States, Lubbock is considered the capital city of the South Plains and Eastern New Mexico.

ON AUTO ROW

AUTO SHOW ASSURED

Plans for Lubbock's second annual automobile show were under way on Auto Row last week with the entry of nine dealers assured. This year's event, which will be held at the Uptown Dance Palace on March 20 and 21, promises to outdo in every way the exposition held here last spring.

PLAN ENTERTAINMENT

While the showing of the 1930 models will hold the center of the stage, local dealers are planning a full round of entertainment for the visitors that go to the two-day show. More than 10,000 motorists and prospective motorists filed through the doors of the dance pavilion last year to view the cars on display, and an even greater number is predicted for the 1930 show.

WORK ON DETAILS

G. P. Kuykendall, W. W. Royalty and Hub Jones are in charge of arrangements for the automobile show. These men will have all details worked out by the end of this week. There is a possibility that one or two more dealers will line up with the venture.

ENTERS CAMPAIGN

Davis Oldsmobile company of this city will take part in a nation-wide used-car campaign, which is to start March 8 under the supervision of the Olds Motor Works. Members of the local sales force are casting greedy eyes on the gold prizes offered the leading salesmen during the month campaign. A total of $14,900 in gold will be awarded Oldsmobile salesmen throughout the country, and Lubbock men have a splendid chance to share in the regional and zone prizes. All entries in the race are assured of some useful awards.

Lubbock and Amarillo, the two leading distributing points in the Oklahoma City zone of Oldsmobile sales, have been running a cio carrying out the George Washington theme.

"Bump Absorber" of Rubber

A rubber bumper demonstrated in New York is said to prevent damage to a motor car in a crash. It is the invention of Captain Franzcarl Schleiff, shown in the picture, formerly of the German air force. It consists of a three-inch rubber bar attached to two scissors-like arms fitted to the classis. On meeting a flat object, the bumper acts as in figure 1 of the inset. Collision with an irregular object is shown in figure 2, and figure 3 shows a collision with a tree.

Low Repair Cost Shown By Pontiac

Further proof of the stamina built into the Pontiac Big Six is revealed in the low maintenance cost of the Pontiac which recently led the Goodrich Silver Fleet of 15 tire-testing cars back to Akron, Ohio after a gruelling trip of 30,886 miles which included some of the worst roads in 43 states, Mexico and Canada.

The 15 cars, all of different makes, were carefully serviced during the long tour on which they encountered ice and snow, loose gravel, hub-deep mud, blistering sand and ever conceivable variety of road and weather conditions.

Commander H. R. Schaefter, in charge of the tour and his group of trimly-uniformed college student drivers were on the road for 263 days and spent a total of 1,800 hours at the wheel. They kept an accurate record of maintenance expense which has been compiled into a final report showing that the mechanical repair cost of the Pontiac Big Six averaged only .0036 per mile for the entire trip. This figure, according to Goodrich executives, is one of the lowest registered by any of the Silver Fleet cars.

The Pontiac's valves were ground once during the trip. The mechanical repair expense charged against the Pontiac included the replacement of two windows, a set of tires, inspection for brake adjustment and perfect wheel alignment and other details which the average motorist seldom encounters.

Marmaduke, a tortoise in the London zoo, is said to have been alive in Queen Anne's day.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

When something goes wrong with locating the cause, remember one locating the cause, re-member one important point—leave the carburetor for last.

Although the immediate cause of engine trouble most likely will be found at some other spot, it has become a habit among many motorists, and even garage mechanics, to meddle with the carburetor first. This instrument is the heart of the automotive system. It has been properly adjusted at the factory and is so designed that it requires very little further adjustment to keep it operating properly.

The carburetor, therefore, should be the last instrument to touch when looking for the source of motor trouble. Before looking at it, it might be advisable to check up the following possible sources of engine break-down:

1—Compression — if that is low there is a leak somewhere and very litter power results. Compression may be tested by hand, by turning over the engine cylinder by cylinder with the crank, while the ignition switch is off and the hand throttle slightly open. If the resistance on the compression stroke is slight, and the engine turns over rather easily, there is a leak through valves, around pistons that are loose or cracked, or through loose spark plugs. The valves may need grinding and reseating, perhaps piston rings are worn or broken, the cylinders may be worn or scored, or some spark plugs may be cracked. These should be checked over, if compression is loose, before another source of trouble is sought.

2—Spark plugs—may need cleaning, or replacement. Gaps should be the thinness of a worn dime in width.

3—Timing—should be checked.

4—Breaker points — should be cleaned and adjusted.

5—Gasoline line—should be free from dirt and water.

6—Intake gaskets may leak. Check these by putting water, or oil, around edges, and seeing if bubbles arise.

7—Spark control — should be checked if operating properly.

If, after all these points have been checked up and corrected, the engine trouble persists, then the carburetor may be suspected. Possibly the only difficulty here may concern the proper adjustment. That's not so hard a job, but even this requires knowledge of the particular carburetor in use.

This can be ascertained from the instruction book furnished with the car. Besides telling how the carburetor is made, it gives instructions for adjustment.

Some carburetors have only one point of adjustment, others have two and some have even three adjustments. It would not do to tamper with the parts of the carburetor until you know what each means and how it should be adjusted.

All carburetors, however, have an adjustment for idling speed. It is this, in most cases, that has to be readjusted in order to get the motor operating properly from idling to high speed. This is rather simple.

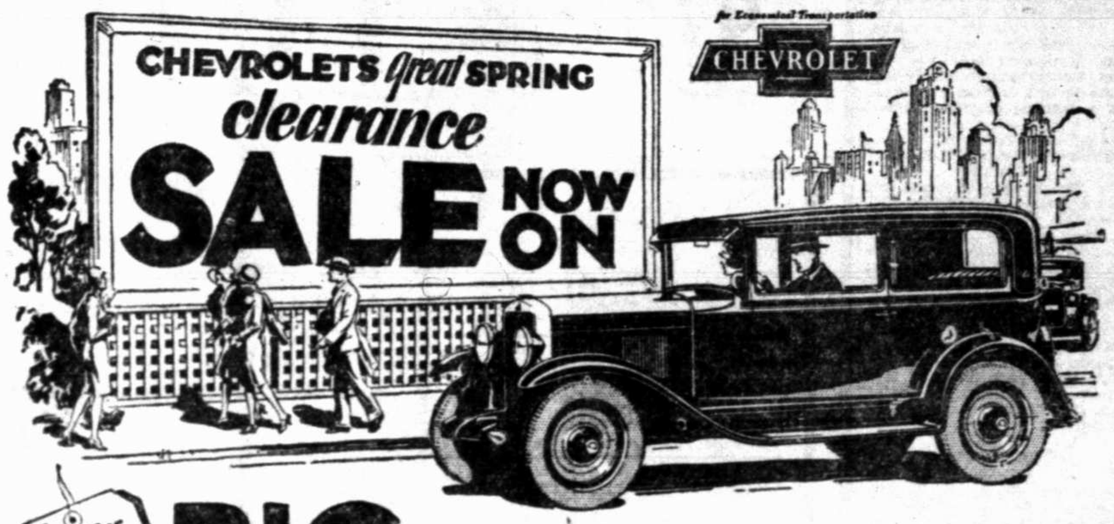

First retard the spark all the way and close the throttle completely. Now turn the idling screw toward the lean and watch the movement of the fan. Keep on turning toward the lean until you notice the fan falter. Then turn the same screw back a notch or two until the fan is rotating steadily.

While doing this, open the throttle momentarily in order to clear the carburetor of accumulated gasoline, and so as not to choke up the engine entirely.

Scientists have declared that the maximum population the world can support is 6,000,000,000, and that this limit may be reached in two centuries.

How soon is a policy in effect in Lubbock Mutual Aid Association? Answer: As soon as issued, policy often issued same day application is received. Claims frequently paid before the funeral of the member. Adv.

Lubbock's City Plan Efforts Attract Much Attention

Copies Of Report To Be Distributed Throughout Nation

Secretary Of Kessler Plan Association Compliments City On Work; Needs For Campaign Cited

DUE TO national publicity which has been given Lubbock's proposed city plan, hundreds of copies of the report of the city planning committee of the local chamber of commerce have been issued for distribution among interested persons, it was announced Saturday.

Extra copies have been made in response to suggestions and requests of many authorities on city planning over the Southwest.

Surratt Praises Work

Typical of one of these suggestions is a letter recently received from the Kessler Plain Association, of Dallas, one of the outstanding organizations in the South.

"I am delighted with the way Lubbock is going after her city planning program," writes John E. Surratt, secretary of that association. "The city planning committee is due congratulations for the splendid report presented in the name of the City Plan committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. This report is clear, concise and convincing. If you have not done so, let me urge that you publish the report for distribution and announce through your papers that any citizen of Lubbock desiring a copy may have same by writing your office.

Story Is Good

"The story entitled "City Planning Lubbock's Greatest Need" on the front page of the February issure of your magazine is fine and will be very helpful. However, many of your citizens would apreciate the opportunity of studying your full report.

"When I read the article in the February issue of the American City entitled "Let The Plan Grow Up With The Town," I immediately recognized a description of Lubbock. Thus you are breaking into national publicity simply and solely because you are taking hold in a real way to help yourself.

"Just to show you how your fame is spreading, I attach carbon of a letter which I wrote August 20th to a man in a distant city who was gathering the low down on Lubbock."

The report of the committee reviews the study the committee has given the subject, the findings of this study, together with recommendations for immediate action.

The recommendations cover three projects, a major street plan, a zoning plan, and a master park and recreation plan.

These projects form the foundation of all city plans and other projects can be added to the structure as they are needed.

Members of the city planning committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce are: Chas. A. Guy, chairman, H. N. Roberts, N. L. Peters, C. H. Mahoney, George E. Benson, and J. B. Maxey.

A copy of the report will be mailed to any interested citizen who will write a letter or postal card requesting a copy.

"Buying a master plan for a small city is like buying a man's suit for a little boy," the article in the American City magazine referring to Lubbock's work toward a city plan, says.

After stating that a town of from 10,000 to 20,000 generally does not have funds to purchase a complete plan and likewise has little need for the complete plan at the time, the article reads:

"To these towns or cities of 10,000 to 20,000, then my recommendations are usually about as follows:

"1. Call in some consultant in whom you have confidence; a man who will not try to sell you the world, but who will sell you just the service that will be of the greatest value to you not only as a starter, but year by year, as your plan develops and becomes a reality.

"2. Find out with his help which one of your basic planning needs requires first attention, and start work on this, making a specific program and outlining the steps of its accomplishment. Budget this planning for the first six months or year. 'Sell it to the community.'

"3. For the next six months, take up the next most important essential. Make plans for it. Get a program of accomplishments started. Then go on to the next step.

"By the time the second or third division of a general city plan is reached, the citizens and officials will begin to get a new conception of good planning as consisting of the orderly tying-in, one by one, of each problem as it arises, which the basic city design. When they have reached this point, they realize:

"That planning for a city of 10,000 to 20,000 is valuable, reasonable, almost indispensable;

"That plans made in scale with the needs of the town are actually capable of accomplishment;

Just a letter, a postal card, or a telephone call to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce will bring the report of the city planning committee to any interested person.
