Occupation Officers Retain Nazis in Key Positions

By CURT RIESS
Copyright, 1945, NEA Service, Inc.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, June 25—By a weird mixture of "practicality" and "logic," our military governments in Germany are making anti-nazis wonder whether they made a mistake and got onto the wrong side of the ideological fence.

The "practicality" consists in retaining active nazis in key governmental and industrial posts because, as a result of experience they knew how to get administrative results. The illogic apprears in many guises. The net result is that those who were active nazis before the surrender now occupy distinctly preferred poisitions under our occupation rule.

Touring occupied Germany I have talked with many Germans as well as with Allied officers, and here are a few examples of the things I have found:

In "Landkries Rosenheim" — that area in Southern Bavaria extending from Munich to Chiemsee, there are about 50 towns. Only 11 new anti-nazi mayors have been installed, while about 40 nazis continue to function. Not because we haven't got around to tossing them out. We did remove many of them —then reinstated them.

RE-INSTALL UAZIS

In Bad Rastenberg and Blankenhain towns, not far from Weimar, the well known socialist anti-nazi governing president of Thuringia, Dr. Herrman Louis Brill, installed new anti-nazi mayors. Our military government promptly threw out

Finance Chairman Urges 'Buy Bonds'

"Are you helping win this war, or have you been coasting along on other people's efforts?" Judge S. D. Stennis, chairman of the war finance committee, questioned today.

"We in Gray county have been assigned an objective of $525,000 in E bonds,' Judge Stennis said. "Our quota must be made by the 5th of July as the purchases must be in Dallas by the 7th. This means we must buy $97,006.25 additional bonds as only $427,997.75 have been purchased.

"We aren't asked to carry a gun and endure the tortures of war, but we are asked to send our dollars to get behind these guns."

Judge Stennis also pointed out that individuals have a personal interest in the war.

Concluding, Stennis urged all of Gray county to work together and "put over the job."

Truman Prepares To Formally Close Historic Meeting

PORTLAND, Ore., June 25—(AP)—President Harry S. Truman flew into Portland at 9:40 a. m. PWT today for a 90-minute celebration in his honor.

He was met at Portland army air base here by Governor Earl Snell, Portland's Mayor Earl Riley and democratic national committeeman Lew Wallace, and taken on an eleven-mile automobile tour through crowd-lined streets.

The President stopped at the Portland veterans' hospital to chat with patients there.

Truman will fly into San Francisco, arriving at 2:30 p. m., for a reception, including the 21 gun salute and full military honors.

He will bring the historic meeting formally to a close with a 17 minute speech Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

Between times, he will meet with all the delegates of the 50 nations who have been at work for many weeks at San Francisco drafting a formula under which it is hoped all men eventually may live in peace.

Convinced that opponents of the peace charter he will submit to the senate July 2 for ratification will muster less than a dozen votes, the President faced the critical period ahead bristling with optimism.

Even if he is unable to obtain a formal vote of ratification in advance of his mid-July meeting with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, the President is confident he will go to the "Big Three" meeting with definite proof of congressional support for a basic program of international collaboration.

Through June 23, Texans invested $122,044,233 toward their $168,000,000 Seventh War Loan E Bond goal, state war finance committee headquarters said today.

Saturday's E bond purchases brought the state to within 72.6 per cent of its total quota.

Lend-Lease Supplies Are Shipped to Siberia; German Spearheads in Argentina Claimed

Nazi Economic Penetration Not Eliminated

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—A senate committee received state department evidence today that Argentina has failed to eliminate a single case of suspected German economic penetration.

Appearing before a military subcommittee studying nazi plans for a third world war, assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton submitted documents summarizing results of a department campaign to stamp out Axis spearheads in Latin America by supplanting enemy control of various business enterprises with friendly ownership.

Clayton said that in the case of Argentina—most recent western hemisphere member of the United Nations—there are 104 such spearheads "in which no action or non-elimination action has been taken to date." Four others are in the process of elimination, he said, but none has been eliminated completely.

Brazil, on the other hand, has eliminated completely 48 listed spearheads, has 70 others in the process of elimination and has none in which no action has been taken.

The spearheads, Clayton said, are "companies which are known centers of espionage or other aggressive activity. Elimination means that the company has either been liquidated, seized and operated by the local south American government in question, or sold to non-nazi interests."

Haiti showed 35 complete elimina-

Bond Issue Faces Voters Tomorrow

A $453,000 bond issue, for sewer reconstruction and the building of a storm sewer, will face qualified voters and property owners of Pampa tomorrow.

The polls, located in the commission room of the city hall, will be open from 8 o'clock tomorrow morning until 7 in the evening.

Two bond issues, of different types, are being presented to the city voters for rejection or approval.

The first, a $390,000 sewer reconstruction bond issue, will be a revenue bond, meaning that the funds to be used in the reconstruction will be taken from the revenue of the water and sewer departments of the city.

The second, the $63,000 storm sewer issue, will be a tax bond and will be paid by the levying of additional taxes.

A consulting engineer's report has shown that Pampa's sewer system is inadequate.

Several cave-ins in the past months have brought about the action taken by city officials on the sewer question.

Girl Scout Camp Ends This Week

Brownie day camp will start its last week tomorrow and will end Friday, according to Miss Marie Stedje, executive secretary of girl scouts in Pampa.

Last week the girls were very active making numerous articles such as lieupons and sunhats.

Unit Three went on a hike to the park and cooked their lunch in typical outdoor fashion. They have at times cooked lunch on tin can stoves at the little scout house.

Wednesday will be a special day for the scouts as they will go on an all-day outing to Camp Sullivan.

Another specialty will be Friday when Unit Three holds a "fly-up" ceremony and the members become full girl scouts," Miss Stedje said.

Stettinius' Future May Be Decided

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25—(AP)—President Truman's arrival today to help wind up the United Nations conference in a brilliant round of ceremonies and speechmaking may also lead to the speedy windup of another situation—the future of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as secretary of state.

In the American delegation and other diplomatic groups here there is considerable speculation that the President may indicate either publicly or privately his future plans for Stettinius before he leaves here tomorrow night. There are two main reasons cited for this view:

1. The prolonged speculation that Mr. Truman may intend to replace Stettinius in the secretaryship with James F. Byrnes, former director of war mobilization, is weakening Stettinius' official position in addition to being personally embarrassing to him.

2. No that the conference has come to a successful conclusion with the charter of a new world peace organization ready for final formal approval and signing, Stettinius' immediate task is done, and a breaking point has been reached.

A Big-Three meeting is close at hand but it is another job; if Stettinius is to prepare for it, as secretary, he may want to know without delay. If Byrnes or someone else is going as secretary—with Stettinius possibly in some other capacity—that also will have to be decided without delay, since the time is short.

It seems evident that persons close to Stettinius here do not know what the answer is, even though they refuse to discuss the situation on the ground it is a White House matter.

Some members of the American delegation predict that since the secretary's part in the conference and the conference itself have ended in success, the President will be inclined to keep him on. This is in sharp contrast with predictions in Washington political quarters that he will be given a foreign assignment, as leading American official in the projected United Nations setup, and replaced as secretary.

President Truman and Stettinius have not met since late May, when the secretary paid a flying visit to the White House. Prior to that they had been associated for a few days immediately after the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt in April, but in the hectic events of those days no thought was given to change.

Two months to the day after the

Twelve Killed as Bus Strikes Cow

JOPLIN, Mo., June 25—(AP)—Twelve persons were killed and 28 injured today when a bus, loaded with soldiers, struck a cow on Highway 71, four miles south, swerved from the highway, plunged down a 10-foot embankment ond overturned.

Ten of the killed and all of the injured were soldiers who were returning to Camp Crowder, 25 miles south, where they were stationed after a week end in Joplin. There were 41 passengers aboard.

The top of the bus collapsed as it overturned, pinning the passengers inside. Rescuers worked two hours removing the dead and injured.

J. C. Schug, superintendent of transportation for the Crown Coach company who aided in the rescue work, said he believed at least half of those killed died of asphyxiation from gasoline fumes.

Gen. Mark W. Clark has been chosen to command United States occupation forces in the American zone in Austria and may begin to move Allied units into sections of Vienna within three weeks, it was learned on good authority, the AP reports today.

Yanks Kill 30,632 Japs in One Week on Okinawa and Philippines

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Emperor Hirohito lost more soldiers last week than in any comparable period of the Pacific island war, American communiques disclosed today.

Yanks killed, 30,632 Japanese troops on Okinawa and in the Philippines. Another 7,705 surrender—an astounding figure in view of the traditional Nipponese willingness to fight to the death.

The fate of about 20,000 more was sealed by a paratroop landing near the northern tip of the Philippines. Those elements of the 11th airborne division joined guerrillas near Aparri and began to squeeze Japanese in Cagayan valley against 37th infantry and guerrilla forces to the south.

Tokyo talked of an attempted Australian amphibious landing at Balikpapan on southeastern Borneo, across the island from the valuable Seria oil fields captured by Ninth division Aussies.

Chinese forces moving up the east China coast were reported to have reached a point 175 miles south of Shanghai. Others were said to be fighting inside Liuchow, one-time southeast China airbase.

American bombers and fighters patroling the China coast sank 15 small ships and 40 junks. The junks were wrecked by Mitchell bombers from the Philippines which pounced on 1,500 juns and fishing craft in the Hong Kong-Canton area.

In the air war raging from Japan to Okinawa, 128 Japanese planes were accounted for. About half of them were wrecked by Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima. The balance were shot down in a skillful suicide plane attack on U. S. shipping around Okinawa ending last Friday midnight. Altogether the Nipponese have lost about 4,000 planes in the Okinawa operation.

Japanese ground casualties jumped to 101,853 killed and 7,902 prisoners of war by Saturday night. Both are records for island warfare, with the possible exception of Luzon in the Philippines. The increase during the final week of organized fighting was 21,394 killed, 6,222 surrendered.

Nipponese losses in the Philippines reached a total of 413,084 with

House Approves $125,000 Fund for FEPC Liquidation

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—The house appropriations committee today approved a $125,000 fund for liquidation of the fair employment practices committee.

The committee's surprise action if approved by congress, would mean that operations of the FEPC, long the center of a congressional controversy, would be limited to liquidation after July 1.

Committee members said the amount would allow FEPC to wind up it's affairs in three months, since it represents one fourth of the $599,000 the President had requested to permit the agency to perate for a full year.

Amarilloan Is Charged With Manslaughter

NEW CANAAN, Conn., June 25—(AP)—Mrs. Imogene Stevens, 24-year old attractive wife of an army major, was sent to the county jail today in default of $50,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the fatal shooting of Albert Kovacs, 19, a sailor.

(Mrs. Stevens is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Dumas, of Pampa, it was learned this afternoon. Mr. Dumas is a member of the Pampa police department.)

Mrs. Stevens, the former Imogene Duumas whose home was near Amarillo, Texas, told authorities she fired in self-defense. Kovacs was a veteran of submarine service in the Pacific.

Police chief Otto Schmidt quoted Mrs. Stevens as saying she shot the sailor with a .35 caliber pistol after she had gone to see what the youth and his brother, James, 26, were doing in a neighbor's house. The gun, she said, had been given her by her husband, Maj. G. Ralsey Stevens III.

52 Senators on Record Favoring 'Frisco Charter

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Senate ratification of the United Nations charter became largely a question of timing today with 52 senators already on record for it.

Some of the warmest advocates of American participation in the international peace preserving organization want to take full advantage of the momentum built up by the San Francisco conference and rush the ratification resolution through the foreign relations committee and on to the senate floor.

Others consider that unhurried deliberations in both places. They say it would be almost impossible now to ratify the charter in time for President Truman to take it with him to the Big Three meeting. They also believe the American people as well as the senators would profit by a thorough study and discussion of the document.

The disclosure that at least 52 senators are committed openly to ratification, in addition to several developments, was made public by the Associated Press poll.

Five more senators said they probably would vote for it and not a one came out flatly against it. Eighteen reported they did not and 20 could not be reached by interviewers.

Decision on the timing of the senate procedure awaits the return of Senators Connally (D-Texas) and Vandenberg (R-Mich.) from the conference where they have served as United States delegates. Both plan to talk to the senate about the charter late this week.

More Meat for Nation Predicted

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Clinton P. Anderson today forecast more meat for the nation's dinner table in the senate gore along with new slaughtering rules written by the house into legislation extending price controls.

The New Mexico democrat who moves next Monday from his house seat into sweeping control over food as secretary of agriculture said the change "hands be a weapon to deal with the black market in meats and to channel more meat to the dinner table."

Anderson, however declined to discuss in the same interview another house amendment designed to give him even greater authority in his new post, including veto power over OPA price and rationing orders.

Both were adopted during day-long debate Saturday before the house finally approved a one-year extension of price and stabilization controls, although in widely different form than the senate's extension bill.

Democratic leaders undoubtedly will attempt to eliminate the house-approved (211 to 155) amendment by Rep. Andresen (R-Minn) making the secretary of agriculture all-

U. S. Military Advantage Is Reason Given

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Lend-lease supplies — cut off to western Russian when Germany surrendered—are being shipped into Russian Siberia on the threshold of the Japanese war.

Leo T. Crowley, lend-lease administrator, told the house appropriations committee the Siberian shipments are being made at the request of U. S. military leaders. The fact became public today when the committee released the text of his testimony made earlier in the month.

Crowley disclosed that the previously announced "review" of Russian lend-lease actually stopped all requirements which were not then in transit to Russia or being loaded on ships. The Russians were given the choice of paying cash if they would, of previously-promised lend-lease supplies to finish uncompleted ships and the like.

There is, however, a program that is sponsored by our military under which we are supplying aid to Russia that is going to Siberia," Crowley testified.

"My understanding with the chief of staff is that this aid will be continued until such time as the President and his highest military advisers advise us that they think it should be discontinued.

"All of the things that are being included in this are items that our military feel are necessary."

Crowley testified that highest military strategists regard the Siberian lend-lease "of military advantage to the United States," and explained:

"The possibility of Russia's entry into the war against Japan acts to pin down in northern Manchuria large numbers of Japanese troops which might otherwise be diverted against X X X Allied forces in the Asiatic theater."

Crowley told the committee European lend-lease was cut back drastically with Germany's defeat and said it may end completely for such countries as Belgium, Holland and France by the end of the year. He expects loans from the export-import bank to take up where lend-lease ends.

Detailing the Russian clamp down, except for Siberia, Crowley said, "All of the lend-lease shipments to them have been discontinued and all of the items in the process of manufacture that were not related to the Far East were either cancelled or they were given the opportunity of taking them up on a payment basis. X X X

His testimony disclosed that lend-lease help is finding its way into Italy although that nation—classified as a co-belligerent rather than a full ally—is not eligible to direct lend-lease.

BETTER THAN THE OLD:

ARMED MIGHT REALISM IN CONERENCE PRAISED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25—(AP)—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa believes that the United Nations conference, in adding the realism of armed might to the idealism of the old League of Nations covenant, has written four major improvements into the new world charter.

The 76-year-old South African prime minister, who played a leading role in the drafting of both the covenant and the charter, told the Associated Press that the new document is better than the old in recognizing these points:

"1. That force is necessary to maintain peace.

"2. That only the combined force of the great powers can guarantee the world against total war, and that therefore, great power unity is a necessary condition for world peace.

"3. That the other nations according to their measure should bind themselves to supply forces against aggression.

"4. And that smaller defensive groups should be encouraged under the world organization to help in maintaining the peace in their areas, so long as the organization itself

BLACK MARKET PROTEST:

HOUSTON MEAT DEALERS JOIN IN CLOSE-DOWN

HOUSTON, June 25—(AP)—Many independent meat markets in Houston were closed today, while others said they will close as soon as the meat held over from Saturday is sold. Pat S. Stone, secretary of the retail grocers association, which called the close-down, said that by midafternoon 700 markets will be closed.

In Pasadena it was reported that about half the markets will be closed; other places in the county are expected to join the Houston grocers in the close-down strike in protest of black markets and tie-in sales.

Decision to close all markets was made by the retail grocers last week after the grocers declared black market conditions and tie-in demands of wholesalers had become unbearable, making it impossible for them to buy or sell meat within the OPA ceiling.

OPA has announced an extensive investigation drive will be launched this week, with close scrutiny of all meat sales made by markets that are doing business.

Meat market operators who did not open today said they had told their butchers to take two or three

Oilers Lose To Amarillo Giants

Frank Leder's Pampa Oiler baseball team dropped a 14 to 2 decision to the Amarillo AAF Sky Giants yesterday. It was the Sky Giants' 24th consecutive win, 16 of this year.

The Giants' Lefty Satterfield won his eighth game of the season as he scattered six Oiler hits, three of them made by Bob Bailey.

The Oilers held the Amarillo team scoreless in the first inning and to one run in the second, but the Giants got out of hand in the third chasing Pate, the starting Oiler hurler from the mound. He was replaced by Bob Bailey.

After the third-inning dust had settled, the Giants had scored eight runs on four hits, four walks and two costly erfors by the Oilers.

The Oilers' runs came in the fifth and in the eighth, the first on a single by Baily, a walk and an error and the second on a single, an error and a ground out.

Water Safety Course Opens at Pool Today

A Red Cross water safety course, with Life Guard Bernie Brown, as instructer, was scheduled to begin today at the municipal swimming pool at 12 o'clock.

The classes will be held each day from 12 to 1 o'clock for approximately 20 days and will be open to boys and girls from 12 to 16 years of age. The students must know how to swim.

Brown returned recently from the National Aquatic school at Ingram, Texas, where he took an intensive course in water safety.

There is no charge by the Red Cross for the instruction and pool prices have been reduced for the benefit of prospective students.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Professional tennis, which hardly rates as a big time sport these days although there'll be a tournament right in Manhattan this week, is trying to get away from the thing that gave the game its biggest publicity . . . That feature is the court "tours" which lured such players as Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Fred Perry and Frank Kovacs into the pro field . . . Welby Van Horn, a transplanted Californian with a southern accent who now rates as America's No. 1 pro tenniser, figures these barnstorming affairs did the game more harm than good because competitive elements became lost in the shuffle . . . "What we're after now," the young Atlanta, Ga., pro explains, "Is a tournament schedule like the professional golfers have—say 30 events a year—with enough prize money that all the players could have a decent living."

REASONABLE REASONS

If such a schedule could be arranged, Van Horn says, there would be more inducement for good amateurs to turn pro . . . The reason that top-flight amateurs don't try to cash in on their ability now is that by remaining amateurs they can travel for four or five months a year, with no cost to themselves, and play as much tennis as they want . . . Under Welby's ideal pro setup, they'll still be able to travel and play and make money in the bargain.

AROUND THE WORLD

Another pro tennis project that still is in the visionary stage is a world championship in post-war days . . . The world pro tennis association, headed by George Lyttleton Rogers, one-time Irish Davis Cup player, did stage one championship at San Francisco in which Frank Kovacs meat Van Horn, 14-12, 6-4 . . . It has something like $100,000 with which to promote international pro tennis in the future, but for the present there'll be no title match unless some logical contender for a world crown turns up. Then he'll be pitted again Kovacs in a challenge match.

Dodgers' Win Streak Broken By Beantown

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southpaw Hal Newhouser of the Detroit Tigers has a chance to become the major league's first 30-game winner in 11 years.

Not since Dizzy Dean won 30 for the 1934 St. Louis Cardinals has a big league hurler reached that figure. Bob Grove, while with the Philadelphia athletics, was the last American leaguer to reach the 30 victory mark, rolling up 31 in 1931.

Only last year, Hurricane Hal came closest to joining Grove as the majors only 30-game winning lefthander, missing the elusive figure by one.

Newhouser gained his 11th triumph of the season yesterday as the Bengals retained their game and a half first place lead over the New York Yankees by taking both ends of a double header from the St. Louis Browns 5-1 and 4-3.

A home run by Mark Chrisman in the ninth spoiled the Tiger Lefty's shutout who until then had pitched 23 scoreless innings. Dizzy Trout, who teamed up with Newhouser to set a new modern major league record for two pitchers on one club by winning 56 games, received credit for the nightcap victory. He relieved Walter Wilson in the seventh and hurled three scoreless rounds to register his seventh triumph.

Nelson Potter, who went the route for the Browns, lost his sixth straight when Eddie Mayo and Roy Cullenbine singled in the ninth, Mayo scoring on Rudy York's fly.

The Yankees remained on the heels of the Tigers by sweeping a double header from Philadelphia 13-5 and 6-3 before 35,272 fans, extending the Athletics losing streak to seven straight. Hank Borowy, aided by a pair of homers by Bud Methény, gained his ninth decision in the opener, while teammate Ernie Bonham won his first game of the campaign in the nightcap, after five reverses. Bobo Newsom dropped the first contest for the A's, his 10th of the year and his ninth in succession.

Brooklyn's Dodgers ran up an eight game winning streak before they were finally stopped by the Boston Braves in the second game of a double header. The Dodgers won the opener 9-6 and bowed in the nightcap 3-1, to retain their three-and-half-game lead over the second place St. Louis Cardinals who split with the Chicago Cubs, winning the opener 8-2 and dropping the nightcap 5-3.

Dixie Walker, who was notified before the game that he was fined $75 for his row with Ewald Pyle of the Braves in Saturday night's contest, sparked the Dodgers attack in the opener with three hits, drove in two runs scoring two others. Nate Andrews, rejoining the Braves after an absence of three weeks, outpitched Curt Davis in the nightcap. Teammate Tommy Holmes hit safely in each game to extend his consecutive hitting streak to 21 games.

After Charley Barrett had won his seventh for the Cards in the opener, before Wrigley field's largest crowd in six years, 43,108 paid, Claude Passeau pitched and batted the Cubs to an even split. The Cub veteran hurlers hit a three-run home in the fourth inning. Johnny Hopp was hit on the head by a Ray Prim pitch in the opener and fell unconscious. Doctors said it was only a "severe bump" and would be back in the lineup in three days.

After Dave Ferriss gained his 10th triumph by pitching Boston to a 6-5 victory over Washington, Mario Pieretti bested Clem Hausmann 5-2 to gain the Senators an even split. New York's Giants won two from the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 and 5-1 as Bill Voiselle finally won his first game since May 20, although he was taken out for a pinch hitter in the sixth of the opener.

Joe Bowman gained his fifth victory as a Red when he pitchd Cincinnati to an even split with Pittsburgh, winning the second game, 4 to 3, after Rip Sewell had won his ninth for the Pirates in the opener, 7 to 5. Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox split. Steve Gromek won his eight for the Indians in the opener, 7-3 and Ed Lopat his fourth for the Sox in the nightcap 7-4, the Sox scoring all their runs in the third inning.

Three League Softball Games Are Scheduled Here Tonight

Three games are on the schedule of the men's senior softball league tonight, two at Roadrunner Park and the other at the Magnolia diamond.

At Roadrunner, the Cargray team will meet the Junior Oilers at 7:00 and the Pampa Merchants will play the Kimboys at 8:30. On the Magnolia diamond at 7 o'clock, the Knights of Pythias will play the Squadron B club, with whom they are tied for first place.

The Oilers dropped a 4 to 2 decision to the Squadron B team yesterday afternoon.

Should the B's triumph over the Knights and the Kimboys win from the Merchants, the two teams would go into a first place tie. The Cargray-Oiler game will have almost no bearing on the first division race as both are virtually out of the running for the first half title.

Standings of the teams:

Team—	W	L	Pct.
K. P. Lodge	5	1	.833
Squadron B	5	1	.833
Kimboys	4	1	.800
Odd Fellows	3	2	.600

Flyers Win 2 From Midland Bombardiers

Every member of the PAAF Flyer baseball team boosted his batting average Saturday and Sunday as the local nine beat the Midland AAF Bombardiers 11 to 6 and 14 to 5.

Homer Durden blasted two home runs over the week-end to bring his total for the season to five, leading the team, and Malcolm Mick garnered five hits in 10 official times at bat to boost his average considerably.

Marty Knell, who has been in the throes of a batting slump, regained his old form and blasted the Midland pitching for five hits in ten official times at bat.

Tony Reis and Mike Greek were the winning pitchers for the Flyers, although neither finished their games. Greek started the first but retired in favor of Petrisky in the ninth and Petrisky also relieved Reis in the eighth of the second game.

Petrisky is the latest addition to the Flyer hurling staff, replacing Ray Johnson.

The Flyers will play host to the Midland team here next Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday game is to start at 4:30 on the post diamond and the Sunday go-around will begin at 2:30.

The Flyers, in 18 games, have won nine and lost the same number. Two of the losses were to the undefeated Sky Giants of Amarillo field.

Zaharias' Golf Drive Would Put Average Male Golfer To Shame

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias today stacked away a precendent-shattering third women's western open golf crown, having demonstrated:

First, that she is a lady of iron-will and courage on and off the fairways.

And secondly, that she can put aside her long-driving game which would shame the average masuline golfer and rake in the chips by pitching and putting.

Babe scored her second straight western open triumph over Dorothy German of Philadelphia, 4 and 2, at Indianapolis' Highland golf and country club Saturday to take her third championship of the 16-year-old meet. She won her first from Mrs. Lucille Robinson Mann in 1940.

Summers Contrast

By EPSIE KINARD
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—Count among your best wardrobe bets for snubbing the heat simply-styled pastel frocks, which, if sharpened by bold contrasts of black or brown give you drama at no expense to summer comfort.

Calculated to keep you cool when the thermometer climbs are two styles shown above in heat-defying shades of blue. Narrow bands of black border the skirt and edge the loose open sleeves of the peasant-type dress, left, of ice-blue tegra cloth. Designed by California's Louella Ballerino, as background for summer-fun jewelry, this frock is shown accessorized with chunky jewel-toned "plastone" bracelet, matching necklace, earrings and comb.

Brown appliqued arrow braid, asymmetrically balanced at neckline and at side of skirt, supplies summertime drama for the simply-styled dress, right, of turquoise blue rayon crepe.

Panhandle Working To Incorporate Areas

PANHANDLE, June 25—Definite steps have been taken by the city council to bring 18 residences and two vacant lots into the Panhandle city limits.

An ordinance must be formally passed before the areas can be brought into the city limits.

Areas included are the four blocks west of Oak street, and 100 feet of the two blocks from the H. J. Hughes residence.

"The extension of the city limits will not prevent other persons living north from making applications to enter the limits," said City Manager J. S. Harrison, "and plans are being made to get water and sewer connections as soon as possible."

Jewelry Needs a Simple Cost ume for Background

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

When you wear a print dress—ditto a striped or checked suit—you need conspicious jewelry about as much as you need an extra thumb.

Combine busy fabrics with noisy daubles and what you get is a confusion of detail that shrieks and spoils your costume, says Edward Stevenson, RKO designer whose rules many best-dressed movie gals obey, and who begs you to leave off all the jewelry save earrings and maybe a bracelet.

Stevenson also rules out added ornamentation—except perhaps earrings—for wear with a gown which comes lit up with its own sequins or jeweled buttons.

Mustn't Compete

When, for heaven's sake, may our jewelry shine? When we wear simple background clothes of solid color which offer no competitian—exaple is June Duprez's white gown, used as "backdrop" for a wonderful show-piece necklace. So simple a dress, says Stevenson, invites a big hunk of glitter, which could be a bracelet wound almost to the elbow, or a flock of pins, lodged like a birds in flight, over a shoulder.

JUNE DUPREZ: Effective.

Now, for tricks in handling, your jewelry with the knowing skill and artistry of an expert. This designer uses necklaces to fill in necklines or to spill over a high-throated frock like a waterfall. He plants a giant clip of dominant color, metallic splendor or striking design on a pocket, shoulder strap or cluster of hip pleats. He sometimes says "no" to every guad but a barbaric bracelet if a movie gal's arms are beautiful and the sleeves of her gown are brief.

Unusual Effects

For unusual effects, he likes to hang a multiple-strand pearl choker to the neckline of a dress—anchoring it with two jeweled pins—instead of hanging it around a girl's neck. He weaves velvet ribbons into necklaces to match the color of gowns with which they're worn. He hunts around for old copper, handcrafted doorhinges, relic keys, collector's coins, regimental insignia, royal decorations and medals to turn into unsual pieces of comment-making jewelry for stars to wear.

More Sugar for West Texas Asked

Action taken by Congressman Eugene Worley has prompted the OPA to ask the sugar refinery at Sugarland to increase shipments of sugar to West Texas.

Worley was requested to investigate the situation in wholesale supplies of sugar.

Congressman Worley said price ceilings and freight rate structures were not a factor in the shortage of sugar supplies.

When rationing was set up sugar distributing districts were created. This district was to be served by refineries in California.

Ample supplies were received until just before the first of the year. At this time California stopped sending sugar to the Panhandle.

Merchants report that industrial users are hardest hit because they use a lot of powdered sugar of which a small supply is given the merchants.

Blonde Shortage Is Reported in British Isles

By DOROTHY FOE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, June 25—Blondes are scarce in England since the war, but British girls have more nylons than Americans do.

So says Pat Kirkwood (herself a brunette), London musical comedy star who has arived in America to co-star with Van Johnson in a super-colossal Hollywood production.

The blonde shortage is caused by the disappearance of hair bleaches from the market, explains the sparkling Pat. The nylons are gifts of American soldiers.

Pat's first act on arriving in New York was to go on a gleeful shopping spree. Chattering enthusiastically of the wonders of American shops, she said:

"It's simply marvelous, you know, to be able to buy as many dresses as you want without a ration coupon. And the clothes fit so well. And they're so pretty, and so inexpensive.

"Thank goodness, you don't have utility clothing here. That's about all you can get in England, now, and one does get tired of going about in a sort of civil'an uniform."

Another shortage which has worried British girls, says Pat, is lipstick. She says:

"You can't get any good lipsticks at all, really. The ones they do have are simply horrid, spread all over your fact, sort of. I've bought a lot of American lipsticks since I arrived, too. I've been splurging on all kinds of cosmetics, as a matter of fact. They're all so bad in England that it's a treat to be able to find things that realy make you look glamorous."

There could be no criticism of Miss Kirkwod's glamor, with or without lipstick.

Known in London as "England's first wartime star," Pat won fame on the British musical comedy stage in four hit shows, all of wartime vintage. The first, "Black Velvet," ran 18 months during the early part of the war. The second, "Lady Behave," ran ten months. Her next starring vehicle, "Top of the World," opened with the blitz, and closed four days later when a bomb struck the theater.

She is the first of Britain's exchange stars to reach this country, and Hollywood has big plans for her.

Pat, too, has big plans for Hollywood. She says:

"I've seen pictures of Hollywood swimming pools, and those beautiful beaches. It all sounds like wonderland. And I'm a very happy Alice, who has come out of the rabbit hole of London air raid shelters."

Small Grain Harvest Moving Toward Peak

The Texas small grain harvest is moving rapidly toward its peak with labor and some combines and tractors needed in several areas.

Although the demand for labor and harvesting machinery is not as acute as last year, reports to the farm labor office at college station show that harvest labor is still needed in about a dozen counties.

Nearly all the requests for farm labor have been met by the local county agent's office. A number of combines are arriving for wheat cutting but five more combines are needed to meet the demands.

County Agent J. P. Smith advises all farmers who want wheat cut to get their requests to his office soon as a surplus of machines is expected by next Tuesday.

Future German Thinking

As our people are being made more familiar every day with the awful facts connected with the German atrocity camps—which they called the concentration camps—we hear more and more each day the natural questions: "What caused the nazi to do these things? What caused naziism?"

Of course, if we can find the answer to the second question, we will consequently have found the answer to the first. For the fruits of naziism are an effect—not the cause. We must see what laid the ground work for naziism—which is murder itself.

It would do no good to destroy the proponents of the system if we did not destroy the condition which created it. What created naziism is as shameful as the disease of stateism itself.

We wonder if it was a lack of education that prepared the German mind for acceptance of nazi hideousness. But we can answer that by stating the fact that there is no better educated people in the world than the Germans. Among those who engineered this ghastly plot against humanity were countless university Ph. D's.

Was there lacking the refining influences of civilization, those influences which are such enlightenment to civilized nations? We think not. For in the very heart of the country where these crimes were perpetrated once lived such illustrious men as Goethe, Schiller—and Heine and Beethoven. It was here the world had given fruition to the most cherished culture of Christendom.

It was here in the land of such world-renowned men that these crimes were committed—crimes which exceed in horror and crass animalism those of Attila, Cawnpore, and Genghis Ghan.

What was the seed of naziism? Of fascism?

Here is the answer, and we in America might keep it in mind. It could happen anywhere—even in America. Naziism, with all its attendant crimes, was made possible and inevitable when Germany eliminated all spiritual values from education and made gross materialism the sole objective and working principle of its educational system. She discounted—denied, in fact—immortality by leading the people to believe, through a process of inculcation, that the epitaph was the end of life. By resolving all belief in the sanctity of conscience, the "masters" created a system of thinking among the people which led them into subservience to the state and its aims.

The people came to realize that if they did not serve the German state, they were as animals in the fields and just as readily could be eliminated. The German as a man, therefore, had no dignity, and his being put to death for recalcitrance was not believed to be a crime.

Inasmuch as the German people are trained to such thinking, it would be useless to tell them that they should not do those things they had been taught in 20 years. We must point out to them the sordidness in seeking only those things with material value—which is materialism, Babbittry, as you please. To have failed to teach them the universal brotherhood of man, that a man, indeed, is his brother's keeper—to have failed in this will be to have failed in the whole task of reconverting the German mind.

We in America cannot say these things as a people "holier than thou," predestined to a place of moral and social cleanliness. Our own education system at times has its seepages—seepages containing the seeds of revolutionary trend, leading away from the spiritual and the civilized.

THE BUREAUS HOPE TO STAY
(Columbus (O.) Evening Dispatch)

The conniving and the jockeying which was bound to come among all the burocrats to justify their jobs and project themselves and their hordes of office holders over into the time of peace has begun.

In all seriousness Man Power Commissioner McNutt said the other day that the United States employment services, which he heads, had a definite place in the future peace picture of the nation. Employment, he said, is a national question, and the federal government therefore should keep and exercise control over it.

Elmer Davis, head of the unwieldy, the often exasperating, and even more often ridiculous office of war information, assumed, wrongly, that upon him and his bureau had fallen the task of censoring the ideas of the beaten Germans.

The OPA, of course, has many times flatly asserted that its control over prices and the distribution of goods must continue until the fires of inflation and scarcity are quenched. And now it proposes a formula of mass production at low prices and high wages, which it no doubt hopes will need OPA direction long into the peace years.

Obviously, the war for the American people will not have ended even with the victory over Japan, for there still will remain for them the battle of the bureaus.

Good and Bad Monopolies

We hear a lot of complaint about the harm that comes from monopolies. But few people realize that there are both good and bad monopolies.

Monopolies are permanently sustained only by the government. It is the duty of the government to maintain and protect certain monopolies. In fact, that is the primary purpose of government. Whether or not a government is performing its proper function will be determined by the kind of monopolies it fosters.

A good monopoly is the individual's monopoly on what he produces. The business of the government is to maintain that monopoly for the individual.

If a man builds a home, it is the duty of the government to maintain a monopoly on that home for the owner. If a man builds a business, it is the duty of the government to maintain that monopoly. If a man raises a cow or grows oranges, it is the duty of the government to protect that man in his right to the benefits that come from raising a cow or growing oranges.

On the other hand, it is also the duty of the government to prevent anyone from getting a monopoly without earning it or by fraud. The government should never pass laws that give one man an advantage over another, such as tariffs, immigration restrictions, progressive taxation, labor legislation that permits men to combine with the idea of preventing other men from having equal access to raw materials or jobs.

Our unemployment, rationing, price ceilings, are all attempts on the part of the government to give certain classes of people semi-monopolies not enjoyed by others. When the government does this it is being a party to plunder when its sole purpose is to prevent plunder or predation.

So the next time someone condemns all monopolies, remind him that good monopolies are beneficial. When land was owned in common or by the king, as it was in England up until a couple of hundreds years ago, there was not much grown on it. When individuals were given a monopoly on the land, production greatly increased and the amount of starvation was greatly reduced. Monopolies can be either good or bad depending upon whether they are natural and earned or whether they are seized by fraud or force or by discrimination of the government.

Ship Is Damaged Heavily by Japs

The light cruiser Nashville suffered heavy loss of life and extensive damage when struck by a Japanese suicide plane in the Philippines last December.

Explosions and fires cost the lives of 133 officers and men and wounded 190 others. The Nashville was screening a convoy en route to the Mindoro invasion when hit.

Only about seven weeks earlier, the Nashville had proudly disembarked Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Leyte for his triumphant return to the Philippines.

With her deck plates and structure amidships buckled and blackened by fire and her smokestacks riddled from bomb fragments, the Nashville came home to the Puget Sound, Wash., navy yard where civilian workers and navy ship repair trainees quickly put her back in condition. She already has returned to service.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

UNEMPLOYED—President Truman's request for legislation providing twenty-five dollars a week for twenty-six weeks for war plant workers laid off during the reconversion period will die a quiet death in the house ways and means committee. Although the honeymoon of the White House and Capitol Hill has not yet waned, even his own leaders don't want to touch this proposition.

Piled on top of military and other necessary expenditures, the cost appalls the men who must raise the revenue. They figure that the total number that might be eligible for the bonus would approximate six million. It consists of men and women in factories which cannot shift overnight from manufacture of tanks, planes, ships and heavy artillery to peacetime production. Many concerns can convert in a few weeks after they get materials.

If the committee's forecast of six million applicants for the unemployment subsidy is accurate, the government would have to lay out more than four billion dollars at one time or another. And the canny legislators believe that the offering would be an inducement to laziness. They fear that the jobless would make no attempt to find other work during the period of the payment.

A proposal for financing people laid off during the changeover from peace to war production was once advanced by Justice Frank Murphy, then governor of Michigan. He asked for no more than three hundred million dollars.

Now the ways and meaners feel that there is less need for such a cushion. If highly paid war workers have not saved enough for a rainy day, the tax raisers figure that they deserve no help from Uncle Sam.

KNUDSEN—Lieutenant General William S. Knudsen has quit Washington with only slight acclaim as production manager of the defense effort in the early pre-Pearl Harbor days. But his fellow workers maintain that the former general motors executive's accomplishments, to use their own words, "shortened the conflict by from six to twelve months."

He came to the Capital in the Spring of 1940—before the fall of France—as head of the old national advisory commission. As an immigrant and a frequent revisitor to Europe, he had an excellent background of its historic clashes and how they spread.

But he had little authority or money, and he was shunted into crowded offices in the federal reserve system. He and Jesse H. Jones, the big leader, did not let those things worry or stop them. They worked together as closely as the telephones which linked their desks.

Every so often Bill would call up and ask in a semi-whisper, "Got any money today, Uncle Jesse?" When the answer was yes, the next question was: "Do you want to spend a little—about fifty million?" After another affirmative reply Knudsen would say, "Well, I am sending so-and-so to see you right away."

JONES—"So-and-so" would be a manufacturer known to Knudsen from his general motors days. The "Greant Dane" knew in detail the applicant's abilty, his production capacity, his labor situation, his proximity to raw materials and railroads.

On the basis of his associate's knowledge and assurances, "Uncle Jesse" shelled out cough even before congress had authorized specific expenditures. It is probable that technical indictments could be returned against the production manager and the spender.

But by mid-1940 they had promoted the construction of $300,000,000 worth of plants for the manufacture of munitions. The figure rose to $2,600,000,000 in the early Spring of 1942, a few months after Pearl Harbor, and to $4,000,000,000 by the end of that year. It is now $11,000,000,000. But without that advance production Britain and Russia might have fallen too early for our entry to have counted.

So a valued decoration was given to the "Great Dane." In his acceptance speech, he turned to "Uncle Jesse" and commented, "You should get this medal, not Knudsen!"

COMMANDERS—America's three top military commanders in the European theater—"Ike" Eisenhower, Omar N. Bradley and George S. Patton Jr.—were a curious study in contrasts during their recent visits to the Capital. As topnotch evidence of the melting pot character of the American army, no three more different figures could be tapped in the United States.

General Eisenhower is a typical Kansas boy—smiling, unaffected, extremely plainspoken. In discussing any problem from destruction of the German general staff to defeating Japan, he was practical, sensible, hard-boiled. But in mufti he might have been a businessman in his native state. These characteristics explain why he has been made

General Patton is the showman, the two-gun and two-tank man. He was also an armor-clad Puck, throwing steel at the foe with the impish glee of a small boy tossing Halloween pebbles against a neighbor's window. So it is hard for Mr. Truman to find a new assignment for him.

Is Russia Going To Be 'The Wave Of the Future'?

Churchill is in a desperate effort to stop the communist tide in Italy, Belgium, Holland and France. Certainly only that motley crew which wants stateism to triumph first in western Europe and then here, is definitely rooting for him to lose out. But those who have no sympathy with either communism or the hypocrisy of a lot of its elegent promoters in Europe and here, can and do deplore the bad and stupid position which British statesmanship has got into and which sticks out a most vulnerable neck for the master-schemers of Marxist revolution to seize and squeeze.

The first thing these boys are getting their fingers on is Churchill's king-loving complex. He is a worse legitimist than his ancestor, Marlborough, who loved royal lines for their usefulness and nothing else. But Churchill has made Britain the backer of the discredited and utterly useless House of Savoy in Italy—come hell or high water—and he is equally backing Leopard II in Belgium despite the two-to-one bad record of that ruler's house,, which flared in the notorious Congo-enslaving and exploiting Leopard I, produced a world war I hero in his son Albert, but a weakling in Albert's son, the present Leopold II. And he backs equally Queen Wilhelmina, about whom not so much is yet said openly, but who is quite as roundly detested by the Dutch Marxists, of whom there are a great many more than you hear about in the respectable press—particularly in the great, suffering cities of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague. Even Dutch conservatives — such burghers as are not already starving to death the peasants whose land escaped the salt flood let in when first nazis and later liberating armies broke the dykes—have little hope in Queen Wilhelmina, realizing her age and overweight. They have no confidence at all in her daughter, the Crown Princesses, whom they regard in the non-fleshy sense as a lightweight. As for her German princeling husband, he is tolerated and despised. All in all, Churchill has got about as pathetic and futureless a collection of royalty under his wing as any king-protector who ever lived. I am quite sure his ancestor, Marlborough, would have chuckled them all over!

Churchill has made the cause of anti-communism synonymous with keeping rulers on their thrones; thus the wide and natural disguest with them plays right into communists hands. On the issue of monarchy he split so widely with Count Sforza in Italy that now when he desperately needs this anti-monarchist liberal and natural friend of Britain and America he can't get him. Solid western Europeans are thoroughtly disgusted that nowhere in the doomed days of Germany nor in all the Bigwig palavers nor finally at San Francisco did Roosevelt or Churchill fall back on the one device which could have brought promise to them and created a defense in depth to a pushing Russia: Namely, a federation of western Europe.

This could vary in proposed form all the way from a federated republic to a federation of republics. Yet, now in place of such active statesmanship we have a Britian illogically supporting worn-out crowned heads, supporting them even with armed force, and a United States in its turn just sort of blindly supporting British policy—although with no heart in it, and often condemning with words what we support physically.

And so the whole way is opened up for the Marxists—the only people with a program in western Europe. Meanwhile, the only nation left that could alone be a bulwark at all to Britain, namely France, is split away from her over a British action in the Near East which to the French soul is a deeper insult and injury than was even the naval raid on Dakar.

It gives us to wonder! Never in hismtory was a nation handed so much through the sheer ineptness of its rivals as Russia has been handed since Hitler's forces began to collapse.

In the Arab world, Churchill is, according to reliable reports, playing king trouble with Farouk the sovereign (in name) of Egypt. Farouk is virtually, say these reports, a prisoner in his palace, kept so by British troops and a British-appointed prime minister. But Farouk's men sufficiently control Egypt's revenues to annoy the British overlords, and so a new king may have to be put in his place. Tampering with kings in this part of the world is exceedingly touchy. Russia now seems to be moving into complete dominance in Persia, and just two easy leaps would take her to Suez, with Turkey a tidbit enroute.

At the eleventh hour, Churchill has tried to meet the inevitable in India. He seems to be entirely out of tune with it elsewhere. China is wavering between Anglosaxondom and Stalindom. A friend cables from London: "The business world is in complete election jitters over here." The jitters go deeper than that. The lord of the Kremlin is ruthless and heartily believes in a ruthless statesmanship, which involves pushing every advantage. Just now, he has all the advantages—plus a lot of devotees here who consider him the wave of the future.

We know what the Jap soldier will do when he is at close quarters with his enemy. He will fight to the death. But we don't know what he will do, or what the civilian population will do, when they are under constant fierce attack by a foe who isn't facing them but is striking from such a remote position that they can't come to grips with him—that is to say, by bombing. It's one thing to fight hand-to-hand, and quite another to cower on the ground when lightning strikes about you from the heavens.

General Arnold, chief of the United States army air forces, says that what Germany saw in the way of bombing was "only an amateurish effort compared to what Japan is going to get." He forecasts that 2,000,000 tons of bombs will be let loose on the Mikado's home islands in the coming year, and that Japan will have little industry left by the coming autumn.

In short, what's going to happen to Japan is that this deluge of death and destruction will render her largely impotent before an invasion is attempted. The Germans are brave enough on the battlefield, but they cracked when Allied bombers blasted the factories, supply centers and communications of the reich and made it imposible either to maintain the Hitlerian war machine or provide the civilian population with the necesities of life.

Tight little Japan, with her flimsily built cities, is far more vlunerable than was Germany.

I think we have a right to believe that we won't have to kill every Jap before we force capitulation. That's net an invitation to over-confidence, but looks like a logical conclusion.

Peter Edson's Column:

'IKE' STILL HAS A BIG JOB LYING AHEAD

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — If he doesn't get a couple of days off pretty soon, says General of the Armies Dwight Eisenhower, there's going to be a rebellion.

If anybody deserves a vacation it is General Ike. But when it is over and he goes back to Germany he faces another tough job in putting that ex-nazi country in its proper place and making sure it will stay there. The general talked turkey about that job at a press conference during his day in Washington. He admits at the outset that he doesn't know the German people well, though he has studied and used every facility he could to know them better. This in itself is a hopeful sign, for when a man admits he doesn't know all the answers he is making an intelligent approach to his job, and not one dictated by emotional and blind prejudices.

If any man is entitled to hate the Germans and want to see them crushed duthlessly, it is Eisenhower.

For the members of the 12th S. S. Korps, who killed captured American prisoners in cold blood during the battle of the bulge, he will show no mercy.

He regards every nazi storm trooper as a potential war criminal—at least putting the burden of proof of innocence on the accused.

WANTS GENERAL STAFF SEGREGATED

We would utterly destroy the German general staff. How, he is not sure. But he mentions the possibility of rounding up every German officer with general staff training, segregating the whole lot of them, destroying all their archives.

He is convinced the Germans deliberately starved American prisoners.

The first German murder factory he saw made him madder than he has ever been in his life.

And yet he says simply, "Peace can't be built on hate."

He divides the German problem into two phases.

First is the emergency problem. The cities of Germany are destroyed beyond everything he has ever seen. Berlin is London multiplied 100 times. Transportation is dislocated. The Germans face actual starvation.

The job is to get the German local communities started again. To screen the people. To prepare a case history on every one. To find the anti-anzis or the neutrals and make them responsible for policing the country and getting labor started on the farms.

The problem of getting displaced persons back to their homelands is well along. Already two million French and Russian slave laborers have been liberated and 200,000 British and Americans held as prisoners-of-war have been freed.

This highly necessary screening of every individual is the reason behind General Eisenhower's order that American soldiers must not be permitted to fraternize with the German people. It must continue in force, he says, until every last element of nazism is eliminated. How long this will require he cannot estimate. But he is determined to find every war criminal and not let a single one escape.

"This is the only way," he says, "to show the German people that crime does not pay."

TOMORROW'S GERMANY ANOTHER JOB

The second phase of General Eisenhower's new job is the long-range problem of Germany's future. This is the political problem where policy is determined by statesmen and where men like Eisenhower become the mere executors of their governments. This is the period where the mistakes can be made.

General Eisenhower will probably have more free advice on this phase of his job than he had from all the arm-chair strategists who tried to tell him how to win the fighting war. But he won the fighting war in spite of all the long-range experting from the amateurs at home. Acting as he talked in Washington, he can be trusted with full authority on the postwar job in Germany if his hands are not tied and his style is not cramped by the politicians. How long his new job will last, how long an American army of occupation must remain in Germany, he does not know.

THE MAN WHO SOLD TIGER TEETH

XIII

THREE elephants stood in the driveway, one behind the other, and on their backs were strapped huge canopied chairs. Behind the chairs were rolls of bedding and great folds of canvas tenting and mosquito netting. Moving around near the animals were six native boys, or "bearers," who jumped at the orders of the Number One Boy, a tall, dark-skinned fellow of middle age whose authority over his helpers was never questioned. Under his supervision the sacks and boxes of food and ammunition were carefully checked over and loaded on three of the boys' backs. The other boys helped Gingiss and Tony and myself to climb up on the elephants, then they handed up our weapons—fine big .30-.30 rifles—and gathered up their own bows and arrows and Ghurka knives and spears.

"Teek hai?" the Number One Boy called.

"Achcha," I replied, and the boy prodded my elephant with the point of his spear to start the safari on its way.

OUR luck was bad during the four-day hunt, for we found nothing to shoot at in all that time except a few wild boars. But in the afternoon of the last day, when we were just a few hours from the lodge, we suddenly heard a low growl off to our left. The boy leading my elephant, which was first in line, made a signal and the rest of the troupe stopped. We stood there a moment listening, but the growl wasn't repeated.

We had gone about 100 yards from the spot where we thought we had heard the growl when Gingiss, riding directly behind me, let out a yell. The native boys jumped, bringing their weapons into shooting position. (Later my boy told me that yelling in the jungle was an excellent way of getting killed. It scared hell out of everybody in the party and amounted to a direct challenge to any animal within earshot.) But that didn't alter the fact that Gingiss had yelled—and the next thing I knew there was a crashing in the underbrush and a big, lean streak of brown came hurtling through the air with its two clawed paws reaching for Gingiss. At the same time Al's native boy crouched; there was a zinging sound; the tiger twitched violently in mid-air, and his leap fell short. But he was within four feet of Gingiss, and the arrow in his shoulder didn't seem to be troubling him as he crouched for another leap.

Then there was a terrific report as Gingiss' .30-.30 went off, and the tiger leaped a good three feet off the ground and fell in a heap in the tall grass.

EXAMINATION of the tiger's pelt showed that it wouldn't be much of a prize to take home. The fur was quite thin in spots (very large spots) and Gingiss' bullet had gone through the best part of one side and out the best part of the other. The native boy's arrow had cut a jagged hole in the only other really nice section of the skin, so the whole affair was rather disappointing. Al's boy, however, told us that there was a man near the lodge who made a business of capturing tigers and leopards just so he could get their teeth. He cared neither for their pelts nor their meat, but he made a nice living selling their teeth to the natives to wear as charms.

"Well, that's swell," Gingiss said generously. "I don't care about the pelt anyway. We'll just bring the beast back to the lodge and make a present of him to Vince's neighbor."

So we did. We made rather a ceremony of it, in fact. That night, after we had returned to the lodge and had supper and got cleaned up, we set out for the neighbor's place. Three of the native boys carried the tiger between them. When we arrived in front of the neighbor's cottage the boys laid down the huge carcass and we called out a greeting to our host. In a few minutes he appeared, a tall, bearded fellow with three or four women and a swarm of children at his heels. It was obvious enough that he didn't know what we were there for, and Gingiss, instead of letting one of our boys explain the nature of our visit, bent down and opened the jaws of his prostrate tiger. "Teeth—teeth!" Gingiss exclaimed.

The old fellow stared at Gingiss, then nodded violently with a huge grin. Obviously he understood. He walked up to the tiger, glanced briefly at the pelt, and bent down to examine the teeth. Slowly his hand went to his long black beard. He tugged at it thoughtfully for a moment. Then he stood up, puffed out his chest, and glared at us. For fully a minute he just stared, his glassy black eyes going from Tony to me to Gingiss. Then he rattled off a line of chatter that would fill half a dozen pages in small script; after which he turned on his heel and disappeared into his cottage.

"What the hell is this?" Gingiss demanded, turning to the Number One Boy.

The boy was obviously embarrassed. He was the one who had suggested this neighborly overture. "Teek na hai, Master," the boy said. "Sahib say tiger, he so old he teeth no worth damn. He say you shoot tiger so old you shame you self. He say maybe you find tiger dead some place. He no like Yankee joke."

1—Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation for the many kindnesses and the beautiful floral offerings in the loss o four beloved husband and father, Vestal Mosley.
Mrs. Mosley, John, Kathryn and Betty.

We stand ofttimes in the deep shadows of grief, linging for comfort, yearning for love. While Christ is close beside us, closer than any human friend can be. If only we will dry our tears, and look up into His face, believing, our soul shall be flooded with His wonderful love and our sorrows shall be swallowed up in the fullness of joy. There is never the least doubt about the presence of Christ in our times of trouble; it is only because we remain unaware of the presence that we are not comforted.
The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms.—Deuteronomy 33:27.

Truman Confident About Approval Of Peace Charter

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 23—(AP)—President Truman was authoritatively reported today to have counted less than a dozen potential votes against the peace organization charter he is expected to submit to the senate July 2.

Sources close to the chief executive said he has talked personally with virtually every member of the senate and that he is optimistic over prospects for overwhelming ratification.

He is even hopeful that ratification, far above the necessary two-thirds majority, can be accomplished without undue delay. He would like to see it done before his forthcoming meeting with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill in mid-July.

In his "temporary White House" here the President is reported to have gone over the list of senators repeatedly. He is said to be in the confidence of many senators whose votes supporting the peace charter may prove surprising.

Affection for him on the part of senators among whom he served before Franklin D. Roosevelt's death sent him to the White House is said to be a big factor in the ultimate decision.

It was generally understood that he will submit the charter to the senate a week from Monday.

Meanwhile, Chairman Connolly (D-Texas) of the senate foreign relations committee and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) are expected to pave the way for the charter's submission with speeches in the senate next Thursday and Friday.

The President and those who accompanied him on a 90-mile automobile ride to Mt. Rainier yesterday were still talking over the thrills of their "January in June" treat.

The men from heat-swept Washington, D. C., revealed in the joys of snowballing, the President tossing a few himself at the request of photographers.

Horse Show Meet Set for Thursday

A meeting of the horse show committee of the Top O' Texas Rodeo and horse show association has been set for Thursday night at 8 in the county agent's office, J. P. Smith, horse show superintendent, said today.

The committeee will discuss classes of horses to be shown, premiums to be awarded, and rules to be set up for the show, for which tentative dates, August 15, 16, and 17, have been set.

Smith said that temporary plans have already been made to establish the Pampa event as an official quarter-horse show, as recognized by the American quarter-horse association.

Besides the quarter-horse show, special events will be open for children's horses, palominos, and exhibition saddle horses.

A committee, to be selected, will meet with an authorized committee of the American quarter-horse association at a later date to seek official recognition of the Pampa event.

Members of the horse show committee are John Sims, Roy Sewell, Mel Davis, Orval Christopher, N. L. Welton, Harold Osborne, Quentin Williams, Clayton Mathes and J. P. Smith, all of Pampa, John Haynes, Miami, and Arlie Carpenter, LeFors.

powerful over food, with OPA required to clear its food orders through him.

There was hardly any doubt, however, that the conferees would accept the Patman (D-Texas) meat amendment which the house adopted 372 to 3.

This permits unlimited slaughter in all plants, large and small, certified by the agriculture department as sanitary; sets aside restrictions of interstate transportation of meat not federally inspected, and permits the army to purchase meat without such inspection if it comes from plants certified as sanitary.

The final version of the price control extension will embody an amendment offered in the senate, and accepted by both houses, to guarantee profits to meat processors.

Anderson carefully avoided any discussion of the house action except to applaud the Patman amendment. He remained off the floor while that body voted on the proposals to give him unprecedented wartime food powers.

Saying the Patman amendment "gives me affirmative proof of the destination of every carcass of beef," Anderson expressed the opinion that "if you go back to those slaughterers who are forcing the small retailers to get these illegal prices, you can force meat into legitimate channels."

"I intend," he added, "to revoke the license of any slaughterer furnishing meat for the black market."

9,238 killed and 1,483 giving up last week. U. S. casualties for the week were 223 killed, 589 wounded.

Paratroopers landed with pack howitzers and for the first time in the southwest Pacific were accompanied by supply-carrying gliders. Joining guerrillas who previously occupied Aparri, original Japanese invasion point in the Philippines, they swept 11 miles south to capture Lallo.

This is 53 miles north of Tuguegarao, strategic valley town held by American-led guerrillas who have have been under heavy Japanese artillery, tank and motar attack. The 37th (Buckey) division rushing north to relieve the guerrillas, covered 22 miles in two days reaching a point eight miles south of Tuguegarao.

Australians met virtually no opposition as they pushed through flaming Seria oil field, potentially the biggest oil producing field in the British empire. Allied reports again told of daily bombing of Balikpapan, another oil center, which Tokyo radio picked ten days ago as the next invasion spot with reported shelling, mine sweeping and finally attempted landings which the Japanese said were repulsed.

Chinese were reported engaging Japanese rear guards at Hwangyen on the east China coast. This is 175 miles south of Shanghai, toward which the Nipponese are retreating from advanced Wenchow.

Occupation

Brill's men and reinstalled the old nazi incumbents, acording to Dr. Brill.

In Laucha, Brill wanted to eliminate a particularly vicious nazi mayor and install a well-known anti-nazi who had the support of the entire anti-nazi population. But Brill's candidate had been a political prisoner for years. Our local officers declined to confirm him on the ground that "we don't want a jail bird for mayor."

Dozens of similar examples could be given in the field. For example:

One military government outfit in central Germany told me that it had found three nazis planted as receptionists and intepreters. They were retained until convicting proof against them had been accumulated, along with valuable information about those behind them. Evidence indicates that there are many more such plants inside militularly in the smaller towns.

MISTRANSLATE EVIDENCE

There have been many cases in which second-grade nazis have been employed as interpreters by our military governments. This is far from encouraging to anti-nazis who, coming to give us information, find that it must reach us through the mouths of known nazis.

In Weimar a wholesale vegetable dealer named Kloetz became official interpreter. This Kloetz happens to be the closes t friend of the Thuringian Gauleiter Saukel, who is one of the worst nazis for whom we still are searching. I am told by a source in which I have confidence that Kloetz constantly mistranslated, for reasons that seem obvious.

In Weimar and Jena at least half a dozen gestapo men still wander freely around the streets.

There are three principal reasons why we are maintaining nazis in authority and using them in confidential relationships.

One is, to paraphrase closely the praise that once went to Benito Mussolini: They make the trolleys run on time.

We are anxious to get utilities functioning in Germany. We have adopted a point system for judging German administrators. There are so many points for making the street cars run on time, so many for re-establishing a public utility. The more quickly a job is done, the more points are given. Points count toward promotion.

It is the military government's idea that the old nazi mayors can and will contribute more to quick rehabilitation. They have been accustomed to bossing and they are almost grovelingly happy to carry out orders, superficially at least, without argument. Anti-nazis, on the other hand, sometimes have ideas of their own to express—if they didn't they wouldn't have risked remaining anti-Nazi.

A second reason is that 13 years of deadly persecution have made anti-nazi Germans nervous and excitable; they are liable to be poorly clothed and less presentable. They aren't so smooth, so pleasing, so agreeable to be around as the nazis who, through that period, were sitting on top of the world acquiring "front."

FREQUENT SHIFTS

The third principal reason is the continual shifting of military governments, particularly in the smaller towns, as armies move about. As important a city as Weimar has had five. By the time officers begin to get acquainted with a city or town, they move on and strangers begin all over again.

This applies also to counter-espionage setups. In Munich, for example, a particular intelligence group had just completed checking and screening all potentially dangerous nazis when it was replaced after another moves on before by a new outfit that started the same job all over again. Nazis in some cases remain in office indefinitely while one intelligence unit anything effective can be done.

Underground propaganda is using this situation to spread hints that it isn't wise to be too strongly anti-nazi.

does not take defensive action."

Because he stands as the principal living link between the men who created the League of Nations and those who drafted a new world order here, Smuts was asked by The Associataed Press to write an analysis of the two and of the San Francisco conference itself.

Following are the main working units of the future world security agency and what it is proposed that they shall do:

SECURITY COUNCIL—Its eleven members, including the Big Five, will have the main responsibility to see that peace is kept, and order out force if necessary.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY—All the United Nations will be represented in this "town meeting of the world" as Sen Vandenberg (R-Mich) calls it. The assembly can discuss international problems and make recommendations to the council.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—Its eighteen members can investigate and make recommendations about the world's economic and human welfare troubles in order to stamp out the roots of war.

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE—Disputing nations can take their legal arguments to court, where a panel of fifteen judges from as many countries may settle the quarrels peacefully and by rules of justice.

MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE—Under the security council, it will make strategic plans for throwing United Nations armed might against any aggressor.

TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL—Under the general assembly, it is responsible for internationally-held dependent areas throughout the world which are outside of the strategic class.

Axis Spearhead

tions, Chile 22 and Ecuador 19.

Clayton said results have been "encouraging," adding:

"It seems a safe prediction X X X to say that Germany economic and political penetration in this hemisphere has, for the most part, been dealt a blow from which it will probably not recover; and that the prospects are reasonably bright for the substantial elimination of Axis spearhead firms even in the areas where they still survive."

Noting that victory in Europe has brought an end to such former problems as blockade, shipments of suplies from Germany to dangerous firm in this hemisphere and re-established trade relationships, Clayton added:

"What we do to worry about are those persons who may be hiding nazi loot or flight capital, and about the control of German investments in all of the republics."

The subcommittee, headed by Chairman Kilgore (D-W. Va.) ordered its hearings on the basis of secret German documents showing how the nazis hoped to hide behind a front of postwar industrial progress while maneuvering toward a new attempt at world domination.

Clayton, detailing Allied efforts to thwart axis war-making possibilities in any field, told of nazi looting of wealth and property, including art objects in countries overrun by the German armies.

The latter he said, "because of the ease with which they can be concealed and smuggled, constitute one means by which the nazis could transmit property abroad to be converted into cash for use in armament research and development, espionage, or propaganda."

But flight of capital, Clayton said "is not of treasure alone; the brains and skills of men are also the subjects of German efforts to save potential strength for another war."

Saying this is particularly true of German scientific and managerial personnel, the witness recited instances in which he said Germans sought to set up businesses in foreign countries by supplying their own equipment and the men to run them.

"In a certain neutral country," Clayton said, "the German electrical company, Telefunken, bought a plant in the summer of 1943. The plant was immediately modernized and enlarged. It now has complete facilities for testing the most intricate short wave radio equipment, and magnificently equipped laboratories for research on the ulta short wave and tone frequency field."

House Approves

mittee laid the rgoundwork for a new congressional fight over OPA today by recommending a $174,500,000 budget for the agency for the coming fiscal year.

Legislation to give OPA another year of life passed the house only Saturday after a brisk battle and now is before the senate for action on amendments.

The OPA fund, $6,000,000 below budget estimates, was included in a $3,134,481,456 deficiency supply bill which also contained $1,975,000,000 for lend-lease, $753,769,000 for the navy and $16,654,860 to finance a treasury department drive against tax dodgers. Smaller amounts were included for more than a score of other agencies whose previously allotted appropriations were inadequate.

The bill, $17,404,173 below budget estimates, also continues available for another year an unexpected balance of $58,946,102 in the President's emergency fund.

While cutting OPA's overall request, the committee boosted by $2,712,195 the agency's enforcement fund to finance a campaign against ration coupon counterfeiters. Inquiries by both the banking and the appropriations committees, the latter reported, "amply justify the continued financial support" of OPA.

Nevertheless, foes of OPA who sought to curb its activities in last week's house fight, said privately they would seek to pare the new appropriation sharply.

Black Market

Super markets and chain stores announced their meat markets will be open as usual, selling such meat as they are able to get at OPA ceilings. Members of the Houston independent grocers association, rival organization to the retail grocers, announced their markets will be open.

Stone said the retail organization represents about 500 independent grocers, most of whom have meat markets. He has stated that the close down will be 100 percent, and that a number of stores not members of the association will close along with them.

B. C. Guy Diskens, president of the retail group, said he did not open today and that all members with whom he had talked over the week end had told him they did not intend to open.

Directors of the grocers' association met Saturday night and declared the conditions had not changed and it was impossible to buy meat from wholesalers within the ceiling.

Stone said a survey revealed that meat wholesalers were offering the independents meat within legal ceilings and without tie-in restrictions.

Reports of a mass meeting about Wednesday, to which the general public will be invited, were circulating today. Stone said the grocers had discussed such a meeting as a means of telling the consuming public the whole story about black market meat deals in Houston.

Tie-ins are same as black market deals, he said, and work just like cigarettes or liquor where the purchaser has to buy something he does not want to get what does want.

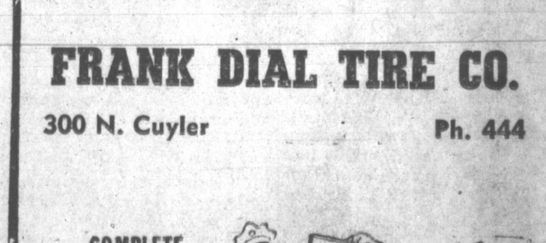

"Meat is offered with so much bologna or tongue or other meat by-products. You may want only one, but you have to take them all if you want to get the meat to sell to your customers," Stone said.
