WASHINGTON
By GEORGE DUBNO
C.C.C.

Practical politicians are beginning to scent a new wind in the Civilian Conservation Corps as a julep patronage outlet. As a result, President Roosevelt may get some unwanted help and advice next January when he moves to have it made a permanent institution.

In addition to the 300,000 young men enrolled in the CCC the Corps maintains about 30,000 civilian employees. This includes 18,000 to 20,000 foresters and 1,200 school teachers. Skilled labor is constantly at work on the many camps. There's a strict rule that enrollees may NOT perform such labor themselves.

About 850,000 enrollees and employees have obtained unemployment relief from the CCC to date. Not less than a million dependents have benefited from the $120,000,000 in checks sent home by the boys. About $275,000,000 has also been spent in the purchase of supplies.

FDR is very proud of the CCC. It came into being as his own special brain child. It succeeded in taking many thousands of boys off the streets and highways who came out of high school to find no jobs open to them. The President has announced his determination to perpetuate the Corps and it seems likely the one New Deal project which has failed to draw the fire of political opponents.

But some of the avaricious gentry within and without his own party have just waked up to all the jobs that are floating around in the organization. The clique thinks patronage could be stored more effectively if the CCC were placed under the wing of one of the established departments of cabinet rank. At present it is a separate emergency setup.

The natural place to put it would be the Interior Department. Secretary Harold Ickes has convincingly demonstrated that he isn't very strong for spoils patronage but the schemers are looking into the future. The Democrats among them figures to come running to the aid of the Republicans when the Democrats won't always be in power.

Resources
When a current survey is completed there will probably be a movement to create a Bureau of National Resources under the Interior Department which would rule the CCC, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the national park system, oil control, etc.

The National Resources Board which is conducting the survey is understood to favor a central authority in Washington. It has very definite ideas about scrapping the old road barrel system.

Spoilsmen are expected to twist this Board's report to their own advantage. It will be up to the President's adroit young brain-trusters to draft a bill for the next Congress that will keep clutching hands out of the cash drawer.

Hours
Organized labor bit off a mouthful when the American Federation of Labor went on record for a universal 30-hour work week at its recent San Francisco convention. It figures to take some time to get the idea nationally masticated but labor big shots might be persuaded to admit privately that the delay won't make them sore.

Back in 1918 the A. F. of L. finally cut over the 8-hour day. Years of bitter fighting preceded the victory. Since then they have had no similar objective and objectives are what keep movements moving.

Now that the die has been cast for a new phase of the struggle between capital and labor, the latter's leaders at least find themselves starting off with more success than they had several decades ago on the 8-hour scrap. Many economists in and out of the administration—to say nothing of a number of politicians—are ready to testify that unemployment will remain chronic in this advanced machine age unless work is spread by a material reduction in hours.

Piccards Fly In Stratosphere; Drifting South

DETROIT (AP)—On trail of mysterious cosmic rays, Dr. Jean and Mrs. Jeannette Piccard soared aloft Tuesday and surmounted the first hazard of their stratospheric balloon flight by drifting safely across Lake Erie, and Tuesday afternoon, drifted lazily southeastward from Akron at a height of more than 40,000 feet.

P. B. Montgomery Succumbs Here

Pleasant Bartley Montgomery, 73, father of Mrs. J. J. Troop, 1511 Johnson street, succumbed to a long illness here 9 a. m. Tuesday. Born in Georgia October 31, 1862, he had come to this state many years ago. His wife died and was buried at Decatur 13 years ago. For the past three years he has been spending his time with his daughter here. Most of the time he has been ill.

The body will be shipped 11:45 p. m. Tuesday and will arrive at 11 a. m. in Decatur. C. L. Christian of Decatur will have complete charge of arrangements and the Decatur Methodist minister will be in charge of services 3 p. m. Wednesday.

Interment will be beside his wife. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Troop, Mrs. G. D. Hare of Plainview, Mrs. L. L. Letcher of El Paso, and Mrs. T. H. Collins of Ocala.

He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Ellis of Texarkana, Oklahoma and Miss Sally Montgomery of Big Spring. One brother, E. L. Montgomery of Floyd county, Georgia, survives.

Lamesa Man Slain Near Waco Ranch

Parker, Ranch Foreman, Is Held On Bond, Charged With Killing

WACO—Bailey Whitley of Lamesa, was killed last Monday on the Holloway ranch, east of here, and Fagan Parker, ranch foreman, was charged with the slaying and placed under a $2,000 bond.

Officers said Whitley drove to the ranch house, got out of his car and walked 500 yards to where Parker was busy working in a clump of mesquite trees. The shooting followed. Officers said Whitley was unarmed.

Parker surrendered to Sheriff W. B. Mobley.

Legion Committee Fails To Agree On Bonus Resolution

MIAMI (AP)—After a two-hour debate Tuesday, a sub-committee on adjusted compensation of the American Legion reported it had failed for the present to agree on the type of bonus resolutions to be presented to the convention here.

The Colored Holiness church is holding a revival meeting on the north side near the lake. White people are invited to attend. The meeting will continue about ten days. Rev. V. D. Rhodes, pastor, said Tuesday afternoon.

Roosevelt Asks People Of Nation To Aid In Relief

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt called upon the people of the nation Monday night to lighten the load of government expenditures for unemployment relief through the 1934 mobilization for human needs.

In a radio address opening a campaign for private charities, headed by Newton D. Baker of Ohio, Mr. Roosevelt said the government counted upon a continuation of private contributions to private organizations. He called for a "decentralization of relief."

"I hope that you will well realize," he said, "that it is contrary to a sound public policy to transfer more burdens to the shoulders of government if it can possibly be avoided and, therefore, that private charity should, as a matter of good citizenship, be maintained at least at current levels."

"The other point I would make is that one of us wants to eliminate the personal factor in taking care of human needs. Surely none of you want to centralize the care of relief either in Washington or in your state capital or in your city hall."

Mr. Baker joined the radio program inaugurating the 1934 private relief campaign.

The need for the fullest efforts of private agencies of relief was set forth by the former secretary of war, introducing the president.

Mrs. Eberly Attends National Convention Funeral Directors

Mrs. Charles Eberly returned Tuesday morning from New Orleans where she attended the annual convention of the National Funeral Directors association.

She was one of about 50 funeral directors from Texas. Approximately 4,700 registered for the convention which goes to Cleveland next year.

It was the first national convention which she had attended and reported that numerous competent authorities appeared on the program which continued for a week.

Mrs. Eberly said one of the best displays of funeral equipment was shown at the convention. "Every director present said the display far exceeded that of any other convention. It consisted of all types of funeral home equipment from hearses and ambulances to the sundry goods. It certainly was interesting," said Mrs. Eberly.

Mrs. Pauline C. Brigham has returned from a visit with her husband, J. E. Brigham, stationed by his company in Pine Bluff, Ark. She stopped off Monday evening at Abilene to attend the autumn meeting of the Oil Belt Teachers' association.

Park Committee Cites Advantages Scenic Mountain Park To Big Spring

Fox Striplin, chairman of the park committee, which took the initiative in formulating a specific program for obtaining additional acreage for the state park here, Tuesday reviewed some outstanding points as to why the committee favored voting of bonds with which to buy the land.

Overtures Refused By Justice Department Chief J. Edgar Hoover

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Washington Evening Star says Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd a few weeks ago made to the Justice department the fourth of a series of proposals to surrender if promised immunity from execution.

The Star said the overtures were rejected by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation.

"He killed one of our men; he must take the consequences," Hoover said.

"Moreover, we don't deal with gangsters."

(Copyright by The Associated Press)

EAST LIVERPOOL, O.—Violent death at the hands of eight pursuing officers ended the crime career of Charles Arthur "Pretty Boy" Floyd on an isolated farm near here late Monday.

He was shot to death in a burst of fire from two machine guns, pistols and rifles, as he made his final effort to escape the relentless clutches of the law. The rays of a setting sun were falling upon the wooded, hilly landscape.

Fourteen bullets struck him in the back, and another in the side, as he fled. He died in 15 minutes.

An automatic pistol with its safety catch released was in the hand of the No. 1 public enemy when he fell, but it had not been fired. Another pistol with a full magazine was found in an inside shoulder holster.

A few moments before Floyd was shot down, Stewart Dyke, a brother of Mrs. Ellen Conkle, owner of the farm, had refused to drive Floyd to Youngstown, where the fugitive hoped to find safety in a more populous section.

"I'll not take you there tonight, I'm going home," Dyke said he told Floyd.

Saw Officers' Auto Coming
Dyke asserted, however, that he had promised to take him to Clarkson, a nearby village.

"I backed up the car. Floyd was in the rear seat. Mrs. Dyke was in the front seat with me. I saw the two automobile loads of officers before Floyd saw them and wondered who they were. When Floyd saw them his face paled and he ordered me to drive back of the corn crib."

"After I backed up he said, 'Get going!' and called me a nasty name. He pulled out his gun and jumped out of the car and then crawled under the corn crib. An instant later, he darted out and came toward the car. Then he started across a pasture."

"When he was about 500 feet away, the officers started shooting. First he fell on his face, rolled over on his back, and then on his stomach. He got up on his knees and then fell down again."

"By that time the officers reached him and put handcuffs on him."

ABLE TO SAY FEW WORDS
Floyd, the sick-haired phantom of the Ozarks, was able to say only a few words.

MIDWEST SCoured FOR KIDNAPER

This map shows major spots involved in the manhunt for Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., named by the department of justice as the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll of Louisville. After Robinson clues had been variously reported from Canton, Ill., Chicago, South Bend, Toledo and Lima, the search shifted to Springfield, O., where the car Robinson was believed to have used was found there, abandoned near a rooming house where he presumably stayed.

Bankers Receive Assurance From U.S. Government

WASHINGTON (AP)—American banking received positive assurance from the Roosevelt administration Tuesday that the government "is here to aid you—not to run your business."

The statement came from Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, in an address before the sixtieth convention of the American Bankers' association.

Crowley also declared his belief that the present limit on bank deposit insurance—$5,000 for each depositor—should not be raised. Some bankers had been fearful all deposits would be insured.

West Virginia Girl, Believed Kidnaped, Is Found By Police

CHARLESTON, West Virginia, (AP)—Dorothy Marie Henshaw, 14, Huntington, believed by her parents kidnaped, was found Tuesday by Charleston police, who said she told them she left home to "hitch hike" to Florida.

RETURN FROM DELEON
Mr. and Mrs. Ben R. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Carter returned Monday night from DeLeon, where they attended the funeral of Frank Carter, brother of the local men, who died Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, with burial following in a DeLeon cemetery.

C-C Directors Meet Tonight

Directors of the chamber of commerce have been convened for an important meeting which will be on Tuesday evening, October 30.

It is necessary for the board to do some definite work prior to our open meeting which will be on next Tuesday evening, October 30.

Dr. Hardy urged upon each director the importance of attending the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Boynton Martin and daughter, Mary Elizabeth, have returned to Big Spring to reside, after having made their home in Las Vegas, New Mexico, for over a year.

English Fliers Win Air Derby

Nearest Competitors, Dutch Team, In Narrow Escape From Death

MELBOURNE (AP)—Two Englishmen, Charles Scott and Tom Black, won the $50,000 speed race from England to Melbourne Monday but their nearest competitors, the Dutch team, K. K. Farmenter and J. J. Mill, won a fight for their lives early Tuesday.

The Dutchmen, with five other persons in a big plane, hours ahead of their pursuing rivals, Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn at midnight became lost in rainstorms over the Australian uplands, wandering aimlessly in circles. They dropped flares and finally sent S.O.S. after radio messages were sent to guide them. They landed safely at Albury, 200 miles northeast of the finish line.

Open Meeting Of C-C To Be Held Tuesday

Entire Membership And Public Urged To Attend At City Auditorium

Elaborate plans for the open meeting of the membership of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, together with the entire citizenship of Big Spring, are being made, according to C. T. Watson, manager of the local chamber.

The principal speaker of the evening will be R. L. Thornton, president of the Mercantile National bank of Dallas.

Chairman of the various committees of the local organization will make brief reports concerning the work of their respective groups.

Prizes offered by the chamber of commerce in the Housing Poster contest, conducted recently in the public schools will be awarded at the meeting.

The Big Spring high school band will be on hand to enliven the occasion with special numbers.

Each adult present showing any symptom of civic billowness will be given a prescription designed and formulated to cure the ailment, Mr. Watson said.

It was pointed out that the meeting will be open to the public, and a large turn-out of citizens is expected. The meeting will be called to order promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Japan Advances New Naval Treaty

LONDON (AP)—Japan advanced a far-reaching plan for a new naval treaty Tuesday, based upon the principle of equality in defensive armaments and substituting maximum tonnage limitation for present ratios.

The program revealed a bilateral conference with representatives of Great Britain.

The Japanese will meet the Americans Wednesday.

First Presbyterian Men Meet Tonight

Men of the First Presbyterian church will hold their regular monthly meeting in the church basement today 7:30 p. m. the church women serving dinner.

Rev. John G. Thomas, pastor of the church, will bring an informative message on church history.

Carl Young will be heard in vocal selections.

Graveside Services For Scott Infant

Grave side services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harman Scott were held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at New Mount Olive cemetery.

Dollar Oil Is Smashed By La. Firm

Reduction Ends 12 Months Of $1 Oil; Hot Oil Sells For 30 To 50c

TULSA (AP)—The long expected break in the price of crude oil came Tuesday as the Atlas Pipeline Company of Shreveport, affiliate of the Spartan Refining Company, cut East Texas petroleum from $1 per barrel to 60c. The firm purchases between 5000 and 6000 barrels daily.

The reduction ends twelve months of dollar oil, the longest period in the mid-continent area without official change.

Considerable "hot oil" has been selling from 30c to 50c per barrel.

"Hot oil" from East Texas and failure of the administration to cope with violators there, were given as the blame for unsettled conditions.

Oil Operators To Meet Here Wednesday

Important Proration Meeting To Be Held At Crawford Hotel

A proration hearing of vital importance to Howard and Glascock county producers will be held 10 a. m. Wednesday from the Crawford Hotel.

Matters of great importance to the field will be taken up at the meeting.

Gordon Griffin, chief engineer of the railroad commission, will be present for the meeting.

It was authoritatively learned that producers of this field would seek an increase in allowable since new wells have steadily increased potential to 125,000 barrels while allowable has been reduced to 14,000 barrels.

Every operator in the Howard-Glascock field is urged to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Frances Robinson Enters Plea Of 'Not Guilty' In Kidnaping

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Mrs. Frances Robinson entered a formal plea of innocence Tuesday to kidnapping Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll. Tentative plans were made to try her in federal court here October 29th.

Charlie Heard Expects to Take O'Shea

Eddie Banking On Crab Hold

Charlie Heard and Eddie O'Shea are expected to put on a fast match here tonight in the main event of the Big Spring Athletic Club's mat card.

Both Heard and O'Shea are fast and tricky and masters in their line. They go two out of three falls with no time limit.

O'Shea, who has been in Gus Kallio's training camp at the Grand Canyon for the past few weeks, will be banking on his own specialty, the crab hold.

Heard is a clean, fast grappler, and will be depending on his speed and skill to make Eddie pat the mat.

The semi-final brings together Claude Swindell and Gorilla Pogi. Swindell arrived in town Sunday, and says he's in great shape and expects to take Pogi for a cleaning.

The pile-driving Gorilla hails from Argentina, and claims the middle weight championship of South America.

The matches start at 8:30 p. m., 403 Runnels street.

committee made him prove Louis Woehe eligible, and that he didn't believe Gentry could prove Hare eligible. We hastened to inform McLain that we didn't believe he could prove Hare not eligible. He said no, but there was still some doubt, and he thought the situation should be cleared up. However, he made it plain that he doesn't intend to protest.

Mr. Mack said he had it all figured out how Sweetwater could still win the district. He said Big Spring will lose to San Angelo and Sweetwater will take the Cats under to make it a three-way tie.

Then, San Angelo could be eliminated without any argument because they have already said that they positively will not flip to break a tie. After that McLain said he could dispose of Big Spring easily in the court room.

Badger Team In Top Shape

McCahey Figuring On Walloping San Angelo Entry

SAN ANGELO—San Angelo high school's football squad launched preparations Monday for the invasion of McCahey where Friday night the Bobcats battle the Badgers in a game that near grudge proportions as well as has a sharp bearing on the district 3 titular scramble.

JUNIOR CENTER

LESTER

Darrell Lester, 210-pound junior center for the T.C.U. Horned Frogs, is again displaying the same fine all-around type of play that made him an all-conference selection last year and caused him to be listed as potential all-American at the opening of this season. Against the Aggies last Saturday, it was the great linebacking of Lester that was a principal factor in leading the Frogs to three first downs. In every game to date he has intercepted at least one enemy pass. On offense he passes the ball accurately and surely and can do his part in opening up the opposition if the play calls for it.

Football Game To Aid Children

BRECKENRIDGE, (Sp.) — An original idea of a football game celebration and a small fund to buy glasses for school children with defective eyesight had developed into a city-wide affair which now not only promises to give Breckenridge its most largely attended fete in many years, but a general homecoming which will find hundreds of former residents here greeting each other.

The date is October 26. About five thousand former residents have been contacted with invitations in distances as far apart as Alaska and Florida and scores of letters have been received, accepting the invitation and saying that parties were being formed to make the trip.

The football game is the annual Cisco-Breckenridge meeting but a program has been worked out offering entertainment continually through Friday and Saturday and extending over to Bible classes on Sunday. Tickets for the game are practically all sold and hotel reservations have been going like hotcakes.

No estimate in figures could be made of the crowd to be expected, but it is a foregone conclusion that Buckaroo stadium will be filled at the game and the streets lined with visitors at all times.

Horned Frogs And Centenary To Mix

FORT WORTH, (Sp.) — The Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University and the Gentlemen of Centenary College fought a hard battle to a scoreless tie last season.

The 1934 Gentleman squad has lost 11 lettermen by graduation. It totals 38 men, with 20 of them sophomores. The 1934 Horned Frog squad is short 10 lettermen by graduation. It totals 37 men, with 21 of them sophomores.

It looks like another scoreless tie! Centenary has no P. Geisler, all-American end; no Shorty Oulin, with his hair-raising broken field runs; no Manning Smith at quarterback.

T. C. U. has no Charlie Gasper to race the length of the field for touchdowns; no Wallace Myers and Jack Graves at ends; no Bud Taylor at guard.

Both schools have new coaches. In place of the Homer Norton-Curtis Parker tie-up that functioned for half dozen years, the high command at Centenary this year consists of Parker, elevated to head coach when Norton went to Texas A&M. At T.C.U. Leo R. "Dutch" Meyer, freshman mentor for 11 years, is at the helm.

Traffic Held Up On Viaduct When Two Cars Collide

Traffic was jammed for 30 minutes midnight Saturday when two cars collided head on on the Gregg street viaduct.

Advance! Not Retreat!

"GOOD FOR YOU"

Considerable space was given recently in the daily press, to the case of a man who had been practicing medicine without a license and who, it was said, had probably been the indirect cause of a number of fatalities.

It was merely just that he should be prosecuted for activities which were so detrimental to the life and welfare of the people with whom he had to do. The Government is within its rights when it demands a certain amount of prescribed preparation before a person is allowed to practice medicine or law. Those who do not follow such rules deserve to feel the heavy hand of justice.

But if this is true of the lawyer or medical man, why should an advertiser be allowed to "tell the world by radio or press that a certain make of alcoholic liquor is 'good for you' without regard for age or sex or physical makeup of 'you'?" That is precisely what a display advertisement of a certain foreign liquor declares in so many words, while another (also of an imported liquor) advertises a specific brandy as "an important part of the medicine cabinet in the homes of those who fully realize that emergencies can and often do arise in the night. 'What to do?' while awaiting medical aid. Brandy, of course."

Why should not the state deal with that method of business ethics?

Even those few physicians who still prescribe alcoholic liquors are usually loath to let themselves go as far as to say that liquor is "good for" an indeterminate "you" whether well or ill. And the scientific modern physician usually asserts that the only procedure really "good" for anyone is to let alcohol severely alone.

If "truth in advertising," even liquor, were insisted upon, would not the reader or listener be warned that brandy not merely might completely stop the breath of the invalid, but that it would be sure to do so under some conditions; that it should by no means be a part of the home medicine cabinet; that the only person for whom liquor is "good" is the one who reaps a monetary gain from its sale and that it is altogether likely that in the end his profit will be found to have turned to ashes in his grasp.

Perhaps the advertisers are endeavoring to carry out the instructions given by R. T. Lang in a lecture on "Advertising and the Brewing Industry," at a recent meeting of one section of the Institute of Brewing:—

"Concentrate all your advertising on the young men and women;

"Draw your customers from the lighter to the stronger drinks;

"Remember that your advertising is to create a taste and not to sell direct;

"Cultivate the editorial side assiduously, thoroughly and earnestly."

Whether the liquor be native or imported the Pure Food and Drug Laws should include medicinal and beverage alcohol and should be strictly applied and interpreted in regard thereto.

How much Light do you have to read by?

Does reading your evening newspaper tire your eyes? Does type look blurred when you get over in the fine-print of the financial page or the classified page? Are you tempted to skip through and look only at the pictures? If you do, it may be that eye fatigue from reading in poor light is the cause.

Scientists agree that more light is needed to read a newspaper because newsprint is duller than the white paper used in most magazines and books. The type is smaller, and the printing is not as distinct.

When reading the fine print in this newspaper under artificial light, see how much more clearly the type stands out and how much easier it is to read when a stronger light is used. Once you use a better light, you'll find that you can read longer with less eye strain.

OR GROCER WILL HELP YOU KEEP HEALTHY AND HAPPY

Delicious Cereal Promotes Regular Habits

The right kinds of foods form the basis of health. You need nourishment for strength and energy. And you need "bulk" to prevent constipation.

Otherwise, this ailment may cause indigestion, loss of appetite and general discomfort. Usually, a good source of "bulk" is found in leafy vegetables, the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN adds gentleness to your daily menu. This "bulk" is similar to that found in leafy vegetables, the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN adds gentleness to your daily menu.

ALL-BRAN is a cereal with bran, or cook into fluffy breads. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with only necessary ingredients. It contains much "bulk" than part-bran. Get the red and green your grocer's. Made by Battle Creek.

First Baptist W.M.S. In Business Meeting

Approximately 116 intermediates and adults of the First Baptist church enjoyed an evening of good fellowship Monday at the church. Halloween colors and designs were carried out in the motif, and a typically autumn menu was served.

Charles Scoggin entertained with two vocal selections. Following his appearance, a musical melodramatic skit was staged with Mrs. George Gentry playing the part of Pa. Miss Eloise Hatley, Little Nell; Joe Pickle, the villain; and Wayne Matthews, the police force.

Negro spirituals were offered by "Snowball" who played his own accompaniment. After a recipe was given for preparing a superintendant, George Gentry, church superintendent responded with an impromptu address. Mrs. Harry Stalcup paid tribute to Mrs. J. C. Douglass, department superintendent. Mrs. Douglass responded briefly and in turn introduced her corps of teachers and officers. Mrs. Douglass lauded the intermediate students and Bobby McNew responded in behalf of the young people. Miss Reta Debenport entertained with an arrangement of melodies. The meeting was opened with a singing, with guests marching to their places around the huge horse shoe table.

Freddie Sellers Is Wed In Odessa

Miss Freddie Pearl Sellers and B. N. Hammer of Odessa were married Friday evening in Odessa by the Rev. R. E. Day, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Big Spring, who was holding a revival in Odessa last week.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sellers of Big Spring and has made her home here with her parents for the past ten years. She was graduated three years ago from the high school. Since that time she has worked with her father in the Shady Rest Grocery. The groom is the brother of Mrs. Wayne Ballew of Big Spring. He was employed by the T. & P. railroad for several years and has been lately connected with the Noble Oil Co. He came to West Texas from Abbott, near Ennis, which was the home town of the Sellers before they came to West Texas. Mr. Hammer was transferred to Odessa oil fields about a month ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammer are now making their residence in Odessa.

HOME TALENT PLAY TO BE AT AUDITORIUM

The play "Oh Professor" which will be given tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Municipal Auditorium is in readiness, announced Miss Sue Lamb, director. Its last rehearsal will be given tonight. Costumes are on hand and the ticket committees are active throughout the city.

This is the first home talent show to be given this season and is really the biggest home talent play ever put on at the auditorium. The town's best talent is being drawn on, with Ray Simmons and Mrs. Ray Lawrence in the lead. Miss Dorothy Jordan, Arthur Middleton, Reuben Williams, Miss Martha McCluskey, Little Jacqueline Paw and George Nell are also taking parts.

The college boys and girls choruses are being furnished by high school boys and girls. A junior chorus has been formed, the details of which will be announced Wednesday.

Those who took part in the business man's chorus Monday evening were: Coulter Richardson, Carl Young, Joe Galbraith, Arthur Middleton, Gordon Graham, Pete Sellers, Keller and Reuben Williams.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter 15 LIFE HISTORY

Lon was waiting for Marian in the lobby, and after helping the boy stow the boxes in the rear he tucked her under a huge, woolly bear as if she were something fragile. He even cautioned Hero not to crowd her.

As the shining nose of the car headed along Virginia street and on to the transcontinental highway they laughed together. There was a sense of adventure in this running away from the gently determined Silver.

And then, rolling over the white pavement and through mountains where blazing stars seemed to have slipped from the sky to become tangled in the high ridge of pines, Lon began to talk; talked seriously, personally.

"Jan, I said I had a lot to talk about," he began. "You'll probably laugh when I tell you that I am the subject. But, you see, you don't really know anything about me, and I want you to know everything."

"You know I come from Al's town, Cleveland. And you know that before I went to Cleveland I came from further south and that I have a few relatives down Missouri way. That's about all you know I came out here to go into business for myself, but you don't know where my money for that business came from nor anything of the real name, so here goes."

"I was born and grew up in St. Louis. My people were poor, and I mean poor; you have no idea of what poverty can mean. My father was Irish, a happy-go-lucky fellow who worked when he couldn't find anything else to do. My mother was a Canadian, and, like most Canadians, worked all of the time."

"Dad had the wanderlust. The reason the family settled in St. Louis was because mother refused to go any farther. There were three of us then, a sister and brother older than myself."

"When I was four, the other two contracted some kind of fever and died. A few years later Dad wandered off and forgot to come back."

"By that time mother had paid a small amount on the old house in which we were living. It was large, a regular barn of a place and as inconvenient as a church would be for keeping house. However, she did the only thing she could do to make a living, started taking in boarders and roomers."

"My earliest memories were of mother, trotting (she never walked, always moved on a little half-trot) across that big kitchen, table to pantry. She walked miles every day. The dining room and living room were as bad, but the bedrooms were like ovens.

She used to fall into bed, dog tired every night. I'll never forget that stuffy little room, one window opening out on to a brick wall, hotter than Hades in the summer and damp as a swamp in the winter.

"She used to talk to me a lot because, I guess, there wasn't anyone else to talk to; complained about the way men built houses in which women had to work."

"I used to promise her that when I grew up I'd build the right kind of places for mothers, and she'd laugh a bit, but she'd let me build toy houses and that sort of stuff."

"When I was ten I began helping a carpenter who lived near us, and by the time I left grammar school I had a regular job."

"I spent my spare time doing the old house over. I cut down the kitchen and enlarged the bedrooms. I painted the dark woodwork in buff and papered the walls in green."

"And then, just as we had the place looking fine, mother's health broke. She went to the hospital for an operation. That took all the savings we'd managed to scrape together. I was only fourteen and didn't earn enough to keep up the payments, small as they were, and we got behind."

"She came home, but wasn't strong enough to work as she had before, and about that time some industry wanted the land our house was on. The city condemned the property, the owners were paid the price allowed, and we were told to get out."

"It was too much for her. She lived just one week after we moved into some furnished rooms."

He paused a few moments, and Marian stared straight ahead, not wanting to see the furtive movement of his hand, as it went up presumably to pull his soft hat to a different angle.

"And here comes the laugh," he resumed. "The only job I could find was working on the building that was erected on that site."

"The old carpenter I'd worked with consented to act as my guardian, and that kept me from going into some institution."

"Because I was such a kid and pretty bitter at that time, I talked a lot, and the men on the job egged me on. I used to spend my lunch hour orating about what I was going to do when I grew up. I was going to build homes and fix it so they couldn't be taken away from honest folk, without money enough to fight for their rights."

"One day in the midst of my harangue I noticed the men around me motioning me to shut up. I looked up. The contractor in charge of the job was listening. He motioned for me to join him and tell him why I was so bitter. I told him, plenty."

"That night he took me to dinner with him. I was too scared to be as tough as I'd been with the men, so I told him about mother and the things I've told you. Somehow it interested him. I saw a lot of him during that summer, and in the fall he went to the authorities, had himself made my guardian and took me to Cleveland with him and put me in school."

CENTER LEADS INDIANA GRIDDERS

Jack Sprauer, center and captain of Indiana university's first eleven, under Coach Bo McMillin, is the bellwether of the Hoosier line. He hails from Louisville, Ky. (Associated Press Photo)

"He was a bachelor, had plenty of time to give to me and gave it. He gave me money as well. He saw that I had a chance to see all sides of life. Think he wanted to test my ambition."

"Each summer I worked on the job with him, sometimes building factories, sometimes working on the little houses that had become my hobby."

"And out of this experience I evolved an idea. I decided I wanted middle class people, the white collar crowd, to have a chance at home owning. I wanted these men and women who'd never be able to collect enough money for a down payment on the kind of home they'd like to have, to be able to pay their rent into their own bank accounts."

"My guardian agreed it was worth trying. I figured I'd buy a tract of land, cut it up into lots large enough for a good vegetable garden and chicken yard in the rear and a flower garden in the front."

"Of course, there have always been cheap places but they looked it and the kind of people I was thinking about would rather do without, than live in them. I wanted attractive houses with the grace of good architecture and the assurance of substantial building. No shacks nor shanties."

"Before we could try out this idea, my guardian died. That was last year. He left me a lump sum of cash, for my personal use, the rest he left in a Building and Loan Society which he had headed, to be used in my experiment. 'Experiment in human nature,' he called it."

"He had suggested I try the was where good property at a reasonable figure could be found within a short driving distance of industrial and commercial centers. "I bought this car, my only luxury. Gave out to visit Steele and see you."

"I was pretty sure of myself all along the way. I thought when I found the right girl she wouldn't mind keeping house for me without servants, doing without a lot of things. And then I met Silver Hondon. He paused."

"And then I met Silver," he repeated, "and I realized what a luxury a wife might be. And I wondered if I had the right to ask any girl to give up the beauty that is bought with money."

"There are other kinds of women," Marian ventured.

"You're one, and that's why I'm getting up nerve enough to ask you if you'd be willing to be poor with me?"

FOUR OUT OF EIGHT REASONS FOR ATTENDING "OH PROFESSOR"

MINNIE BELLE WILLIAMSON

EDYTHE RAY LEES

EDITH DOW CORDELL

ALTA MARY STALCUP

Four of the eight high school girls who will appear as the college chorus of the play, "Oh Professor," which is being given at the Minny Auditorium Wednesday afternoon and evening. Reading from left to right, they are Minnie Belle Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williamson; Edythe Ray Lees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lees; Edith Dow Cordell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Cordell; and Alta Mary Stalcup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stalcup. Photos of the other four will appear Wednesday.

serve was more servant than master.

As the central bank battle has developed it has appeared to be a clash between advocates of full control on one side and privately owned commercial banks on the other—with the Federal Reserve banks themselves simply inactive pawns on the chessboard.

This concept is no longer accurate. Federal Reserve leaders are busy concocting a bank reform program of their own which by no means coincides with the ideas of member banks. Their plan involves utilizing the present banking machinery with the government having a much larger voice in its management than at present—although it does not go as far as the central bank project in handing complete authority to the government. Insiders understand that the Federal Reserve's recommendation will carry weight where it counts in administrative circles.

Governor George Harrison of the New York Reserve bank is an important factor in current deliberations. Harrison has several times been reported on his way to the nearest exit but has staged a strong comeback. The informed predict he will be a headline in whatever revised set-up is adopted. Ex-Chairman Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve Board is also a key man among the alteration architects. He is thoroughly familiar with the views of both government and bankers and has done some skilled reconciling in his time.

Shipping—

The cabinet is split on Secretary Wallace's proposal to throw business to foreign shipping so that foreigners can buy American goods. Wallace has won support on the plea that his proposal is practical if his objective is borne in mind "in its entirety."

Vice President Edmund A. Walsh of Georgetown University has made an economic study of the proposal and reaches conclusions exactly opposite to those voiced by Mr. Wallace. It shows that British shipping in 1929 made $136,000,000 more than American shipping out of American trade, and yet British purchases in the American market did not materially increase.

Oil—

The latest report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which says that the Federal Reserve Administration—shows a considerable purchase of oil liver oil. Quite properly, this has been used for under-nourished children but it didn't prevent the wage from speculating on increased appetites.

Notes—

Labor leaders are suspicious of the new draft bill for a revised NRA now being drawn up by Henry H. Hartman, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. An expert figures that more than $200,000,000 in U. S. currency is floating around in Europe. Ambassador Lullitt will look into the Far Eastern situation on his way home from Moscow. Nelson T. Johnson, Minister to China, is returning to Washington to report.

Lindbergh's plea for early disposal of air mail controversies is having its effect. Clark Howell, chairman of the aviation commission, says that air problems grow bigger as they are studied in all their ramifications.

NEW YORK

By JAMES MCCULLIN

Architects—

Federal Reserve officials have begun to play a very active part behind the scenes in shaping the future of the banking structure. They have been singularly close to the sidelines until recently. It is noteworthy that when the senate committee was probing abuses nobody thought it worth while to call as witnesses the men who were supposedly in charge of the banking system. Up to March, 1933, the New York Federal Reserve bank—by all odds the most influential, following policies which reflected fairly closely the views of the big member banks in its district. Since FDR took office all Federal Reserve banks have headed Washington's wishes without argument. In both situations the Federal Reserve lantic almost you may have been surprised at that story of a line across the Pacific. Why the sudden interest in the bigger and tougher pond when the rich Atlantic plum is ready to hand? Observers here point for answer to persistent reports of the ambitious plans of Great Britain's Imperial Airways. The story is that a trans-Canada line will be linked at each end to service across the oceans and thus complete Imperial's span of the globe.

"Those British may mean business. Maybe it wouldn't be so dumb to get there first in case, and don't forget the sobering influence on the Japanese of seeing American planes dropping into their backyards once a week on schedule."

only a few words before he expired.

"Who in the hell tipped you?" he demanded as the officers led him to the morgue.

Meivin Purvis, head of the Chicago office of the U. S. division of investigation, approached him.

Purvis immediately questioned Floyd concerning the machine gun massacre of five men at the Kansas City union station in June 1933, but to his dying breath, Floyd refused to admit participation in that crime.

"He wouldn't admit it," Purvis said.

Just before his death, the desperado admitted his identity to the department of justice officer. "I am Floyd," he said, and it was apparent he knew that death was near.

A moment before, "where is Eddie?" Floyd asked the officers.

Apparently he referred to Adam Richetti, captured Saturday near Wellsville, Ohio, when he and Floyd engaged a posse in a gun fight.

Died Fifteen Minutes Later

Floyd died about 15 minutes after he was shot while officers were carrying him to a nearby road where they had an automobile waiting to take him to a hospital.

Death came to Floyd in the same violent manner by which he had lived. At the time he was slain, he was the principal object of a nationwide search, being sought as the trigger-man in the Kansas City Union station machine gun massacre in which five men were shot to death in June, 1933.

The officers who finally caught up with Floyd were led by Purvis, the same federal operative who tracked down the notorious John Dillinger.

When the officers came upon Pretty Boy he was talking to S. L. Dyke, a farm hand, employed by Mrs. Ellen Conkle, endeavoring to persuade him to take him to Youngstown where he thought he might find refuge in the more populous city.

Makes Last Frenzied Dash

As the officers approached, Floyd hid under a corn crib, but changed his mind at the last minute and started running for an automobile. Then he turned and ran across a pasture toward a wooded ridge.

Purvis commanded him to halt. The command went unheeded.

The officers pointed their guns and a volley burst forth. Floyd continued, however, to run until additional bullets found their mark.

Purvis hurried to the prostrate form, eager to catch the man's last words, some of Floyd's final words were heard by several of the others, but some were heard only by the department of justice leader and these Purvis refused to reveal.

Later, Floyd's body was brought to a mortuary here and placed on a slab.

The body had hardly arrived before a crowd of at least 500 persons collected outside, much as another crowd gathered a few months ago when Purvis led the raid that ended in the death of Dillinger at Chicago.

Floyd had only $120 in his pocket when he died. The magazines of the two automatic pistols he was carrying were fully loaded.

Tipped Off By Farmer

Floyd had appeared at the farm Monday afternoon where he was warned by Arthur Conkle. Previously named, as were all farmers in that section, to be on the lookout for strangers, Conkle notified the department of justice men.

Quick action by the officers followed. In just a few minutes they had raced from their headquarters several miles away, closely followed by the four East Liverpool policemen, to the Conkle farm. The shooting began almost as quickly.

At noon, Floyd had asked Mrs. Alma Conkle to cook a dinner for him. She prepared the meal while the desperado questioned her about newspaper stories she had read.

After the meal, Floyd asked Mrs. Conkle if she could arrange to get him an automobile ride to Youngstown. She replied he would have to wait for the men to return from work in the fields.

Floyd was only about 200 feet away from the officers when the burst of gunfire brought him down. At that distance, it would have been almost impossible for him to have escaped.

The first shots that struck him apparently produced a numbness for although he was hit at least eight times, one of his dying remarks was "You got me twice."

The trail of the much-hunted hunter ended in a man residing near Wellsville, Ohio, reported to Police Chief J. H. Fultz, there that two suspicious-looking men were staying in a ravine near his home.

Greeted By Lead

When Fultz and another officer investigated they were greeted with bullets.

They were convinced they were dealing with desperate characters although not realizing one was Floyd. Fultz summoned a posse to aid him before proceeding further.

When the posse arrived, a general gun fight ensued in which Grover Potts, 35, a deputized posseman was shot in the arm.

Nine Years of Crime

While Richetti was being captured, Pretty Boy kidnapped James H. Baum, 55, a florist, and forced him to drive him away in Baum's automobile.

The officers, however, were in hot pursuit, and finally overtook Baum's car.

Floyd ordered Baum to jump out and then fled to a nearby woods while the officers fired at him. One of the shots struck Baum in the leg and he was unable to move.

Then the officers temporarily lost the trail and although they scoured the countryside it looked for a while as if the Pretty Boy had made good another of the sensational escapes that have marked his long career of crime.

Five Years of Crime

The trail of crime which Floyd placed across the country started in St. Louis in 1925 when he was given a sentence of five years for highway robbery.

In 1930 he showed up in Akron, Ohio, and was arrested for questioning in connection with the killing of a policeman. Bert Walker was arrested with Floyd and went to the electric chair.

Officials could not find sufficient evidence to bring Floyd to trial and turned him over to Sylvania, (O.) police for bank robbery. After escaping jail and being recaptured, Floyd was sentenced to from 10 to 25 years in the Ohio penitentiary.

He escaped that term by jumping from a window of the train which was taking him to Columbus.

Killed Patrolman

At Bowling Green some time later, officers recognized him, but Floyd shot his way out, killing Patrolman Ralph Castner. Floyd then returned to the familiar Okmar and in April, 1932, he shot his way out of another police ambush, killing E. Kelly, a veteran peace officer.

At least seven murders were attributed to his gun and six were policemen. His favorite hideouts were in the mountains of western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma and in the Seminole oil fields.

Purvis Monday night issued the following statement:

"The killing of Charles Arthur 'Pretty Boy' Floyd brings to a close the relentless search and efforts on the part of the department of investigation of the United States department of justice."

"The search was directed by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the department, from Washington and I have been in constant contact with him by telephone and telegraph."

"Mr. Hoover and all of the special agents were particularly interested in Floyd because he killed one of our men in the Kansas City massacre of June 17, 1933."

Missing Since Saturday

After escaping the officers at Wellsville, 10 miles southwest of East Liverpool Saturday, Floyd was not reported seen again until he appeared at the Conkle farm about seven miles north of East Liverpool Monday.

Police Chief Fultz Monday night continued to hold Richetti under close guard in the Wellsville town jail, but after refusing all day to turn him over to federal officers, he said he would surrender the prisoner to them Tuesday.

Richetti was not immediately advised of Floyd's death, but the Wellsville police chief said he would tell him later.

With Richetti in jail, the death of Floyd came only a few hours after a federal grand jury in Kansas City began delving into the union station massacre in which both were accused.

The third man named by the government as having participated in that mass murder in which four officers and a convict were slain, was Vern C. Miller, who some months ago was slain by gangsters near Detroit.

Deputized Citizens

The Wellsville police chief had from 105 to 115 specially deputized citizens, armed with rifles, guarding the jail there Monday night. Richetti claimed that in no event should Richetti escape.

Richetti, however, gave no indication of intending to attempt an escape, and his general demeanor was as if he was satisfied to stay behind the bars at least for the present.

He hasn't given me a bit of trouble since he was captured," Chief Fultz asserted. "And there isn't a chance of his getting away."

Sportsmen To Meet Friday

Local Organization Of Game Protective Association To Be Effected

Meeting of the Howard county chapter of the state Fish and Game Protective Association, scheduled for Wednesday evening, has been postponed until 7:30 p. m. Friday in the city hall.

Postponement of the meeting was made in order to prevent conflict between the meeting of the home talent production slated for the municipal auditorium Wednesday evening.

A crowd shoot will be held Wednesday in the Highway community. Dewey Martin will act as captain and field marshal.

Big Spring sportsmen are asked to meet at the Big Spring Hardware company at 1 p. m. Wednesday and to go from there in a body to Highway.

All shooters are urged to wear dark, khaki colored clothes.

Residents of the Highway community have said that it is impossible to estimate the number of crows in this particular roost. Sportsmen have expressed a desire to see all the pests killed.

Personally Speaking

Rev. M. C. Stearnes of Garden City left Tuesday for San Antonio to attend the annual conference of the pastors of the Methodist church.

Mr. Stearnes expects to be transferred to a church in the Rio Grande valley. He has been pastor of the Garden City Methodist church for several years.

Miss Pauline Decker of Menard who has been visiting in Ft. Worth is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. W. D. Williams.

J. D. Phillips of Big Spring flew to New Mexico Sunday in his new plane. While there Sunday evening and after he had taken several persons for rides he had the misfortune of striking a small bush with the landing wheel, causing the plane to tilt over and break a propeller blade. No one was injured. The landing was made in a pasture.

Charles M. Close of Lubbock was a business visitor here Tuesday.

Martin Tatum, San Angelo, was here on business Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Tatum until recently resided here.

Scouters Report Increases In Membership, Leaders; Financial Status Reflects Improvement

Increases in membership, leaders, and improved financial status were reflected in quarterly reports of the Buffalo Trail council made public here Monday evening when scouts of the area convened in regular executive board meeting.

Membership showed an increase of 117 over the same time last year. A gain of 22 in leadership was also recorded to show a total increase of 13.5 in aggregate membership. The council has thus far operated on a cash basis and has managed to stay under the budget for the period to the extent of $915. The area enjoys a $700.47 cash balance.

For the first time in years, Big Spring is leading in subscription to the council budget. The report of Dr. M. H. Bennett, finance committee chairman, showed. Receipts disclose $1,000 received from Big Spring to October 22, 1934, $209 above Sweetwater, next largest contributor. Receipts for the entire council amounted to $2,448.70 from January 1 to October 22. Sweetwater outstripped Big Spring in November and December of 1933 in rallying to the 1934 budget by $300.

One hundred and forty-eight more new scouts and 135 new ones of the 12 year old variety are needed to reach the council ten year program objective. Before the end of the year the council will exceed its objective of 4 year scout trained men.

Dr. W. B. Hardy, Big Spring, Dr. C. A. Rosebrough, Sweetwater, and Claude Crane, Midland, were appointed as a committee to nominate a candidate for the Silver Beaver award, highest compliment the council can show to a boy worker.

A committee to nominate council officers was appointed and composed of B. Reagan, Big Spring, J. C. Smythe, Snyder, John P. Howe, Midland.

Charles Paxton, Sweetwater, president of the council, presided over the meeting held from the Settles hotel.

Attending were: Winston F. Borum, Claude O. Crane, John P. Howe and Wallace Wimberly of Midland; J. C. Smythe, W. B. Lee, E. E. Weatherbee, and J. E. Shipp of Snyder; Charles E. Paxton, Dr. C. A. Rosebrough, E. L. Lagley, and A. C. Williams of Sweetwater; and George Gentry, Dr. M. H. Bennett, Nat Shick, Dr. Lee O. Rogers, Dr. W. B. Hardy, Jack Cummings, Clarence Day, Ray Cantrill, Carl Blomshield, and B. Reagan of Big Spring.

Local Men Encounter Difficulties On Return Trip From Oaxaca, Mex.

Floyd Wason and Coulter Richardson, who have been engaged in mining in the state of Oaxaca, in the southern part of the Republic of Mexico, returned to Big Spring Sunday night after an absence from the city of about four months.

They reported several experiences which nearly cost their lives on the return trip, which approximated some 1000 miles. The trip was made by automobile, and required seventeen days in all to make the distance. They left Santa Catarina, a small village in Oaxaca late in September. Arriving in Mexico City, some 300 miles northward, they remained there for several days before continuing their trip

Elbow Basketball Team Downs Forsan Junior Team
Friday afternoon the Elbow basketball team played the Forsan Junior team at Forsan. Elbow was the first to score and continued to remain ahead throughout the game. Forsan boys put up a fair fight but they had to leave the score at 20-15 in favor of Elbow. Mutt Scudaday is coaching the Forsan Juniors and we hope they have better luck next time. Those playing on this team are Eldred Prescott, Buckel Adams, Westley Yarbrough, Talmadge Liles, Hollie Parker, Fred Theime and Boyce Hale.

The Elbow girls were to have played Forsan girls, but for an unknown reason, they failed to come.

Sport Plants
BY ALAN GOULD

British sports followers, roaring like lions a few weeks ago, must stand aside these days to let someone roar who can and who has something to roar about—namely, John Q. Fan, American citizen.

In swift succession American men, women and money have successfully defended the two most prized trophies, the America's Cup and the Seawanhaka Cup, crushed a British women's team in the Curtis Cup golf matches, and defended the women's national golf title.

Add to those the British amateur golf crown, the American amateur golf title, the women's national tennis title, the Canadian amateur golf championship, the Walker Cup and three important British polo trophies and you have a collection of silverware John Bull can't match. Britain had prominent contenders in all this array of cups and titles the British empire can boast only the Wimbledon, Australian and American men's tennis singles trophies—all won by Fred Perry—the Wimbledon women's title, their own British Open and a triumph for Oxford-Cambridge over Princeton-Cornell in track.

In purely inter-empire warfare Great Britain lost its most prized sporting trophy, the historic cricket "ashes", to Australia.

The defeat of Notre Dame by his Texas longhorns must have been both sweet and bitter to Jack Chevigny, the Texas head coach.

A great Notre Dame back and an assistant coach there in 1929-30-31, Chevigny left South Bend with any but pleasant memories at the end of the 1931 campaign when he and Hunk Anderson came to the parting of the ways and Hunk got the head coaching job he wanted.

After Rockne's death he and Hunk were given a division of authority, Anderson taking the title of "senior" coach and Chevigny that of "junior." Obviously such a state of affairs couldn't and didn't last.

It must have been pleasant for him, therefore, to show his critics that perhaps Notre Dame had been mistaken when it let him go.

It also was the first major start
