

Rambles Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

Bill Cherry

Monday morning, September 28, we rambled to the little city of Quail. We ate dinner with jolly old Bill Cherry. Mr. Cherry and his boys were busy picking cotton. Mr. Cherry has 110 acres in cotton and is counting on sixty bales.

After dinner we took a ramble over the city. There has been some changes at Quail in the last few weeks. W. F. Hogan has enlarged and remodeled the Quail Garage. He now has more room and a nice building, and has supplies for other makes of cars. At the Quail Garage you will find a blacksmith shop, also a corn mill. Mr. Hogan gave us a two years subscription for the Leader and we present him with a History of Collingsworth County and Other Stories.

We met Sam Weaver who had just returned recently. He bought a farm at Ashtola. He reports plenty of rain in that part of the country.

W. J. Petty and Benton Shields have remodeled the old store building of the Quail Mercantile Company and have opened up a new garage which will be known as the Petty and Shields Garage. They have a nice location and are running a nice line of supplies. He has a nice line of Ford supplies. They gave us a nice order for job printing.

The Depau Grocery has moved to the old Daves stand and his former place is occupied by the Quail post-office.

The Quail gin was running and several bales of cotton were ginned while we were there. A big percent of the cotton is being put up in round bales which is a new thing in this county. The Starr Brothers are ginning a higher price for cotton put up this way than in the square bale.

People all over the country are busy in the fields picking cotton and everybody hoping that the weather stays dry.

POSTMASTER ATTENDS POLITICAL MEETING

Postmaster Wade Arnold accompanied by his wife attended a meeting of the Republican Party in Amarillo last Sunday. Leonard Withington, director of the republican party of Texas was the principal speaker of the occasion and that a two party system was needed in Texas and that its development would keep so many incompetents from gaining public positions in this state.

He said that the genius of the American government was in its control by the people; its working safely lives in the checks and balances the fathers of the republic put in the constitution. One party government removes the check and balance from our government and in Texas it has resulted in an appalling lack of interest in their affairs by the people.

DR. CHAS JONES LEAVES TO TAKE UP WORK IN DALLAS

Dr. Charles Jones, who is doing interne work in St. Paul Sanitarium in Dallas, left Tuesday to take up his work again after spending a week with relatives. Dr. Charles Jones contemplates practicing in Wellington after he finishes his interne work. During his student days, Dr. Jones made good scholastic records and gained recognition by the thoroughness with which he did his work. He will make a valuable addition to the medical profession of Wellington.

CHAS. BARNES HERE ORGANIZING TRADE

Chas. M. Barnes of Childress was in Wellington last Monday placing his automobile specialties with various Wellington concerns. He is pushing a carbon remover. He has given this a thorough test and says that it is guaranteed to cause the motor to run smoother and with less noise and more power. He says that many firms of Wellington will be handling this product within the next few days.

DRAW YOUR OWN CONCLUSIONS SAYS RAMBLING EDITOR

J. W. L. Cook says that in rambling around Monday morning he rambled into the Sheriff's office. They had in their possession a negro boy and two large jugs that were picked up in a deep hollow not far from Wellington. Mr. Cook says the readers can form their own conclusions.

For local interest the best book of the year is "A History of Collingsworth County."

WELLINGTON LEADER

For Seventeen Years a Builder in Collingsworth County

VOLUME XVII

WELLINGTON, Collingsworth County, Texas, Wednesday, September 30, 1925

NUMBER 19

VALUATIONS OF COUNTY INCREASED

Collingsworth County Is Worth Half a Million More Than Last Year

Collingsworth County tax values show a gain of over a half a million dollars in the past year, according to tax assessor H. B. Duke. After compiling the assessment rolls for 1925 Mr. Duke says these values will total $6,135,788. This is an increase of $531,935 from the valuation of last year which was $5,603,853.

Part of the increase in valuation has been due to the valuation assessment which was made by the Commissioners Court in the summer and the rest has been due to the new buildings and improvement in buildings which have been made in Wellington.

Collingsworth County is fortunate in its low tax valuation, but many people think that the county would be more prosperous if the valuations were slightly higher and this additional money spent on good roads and other needed public improvements. Collingsworth County has a lower valuation than any county of its resources in the Panhandle. A good part of the low valuation is due to cattle grazing land that is lying idle, because it is more profitable to hold it and let the developments in the county increase it in value.

The new businesses in Wellington have increased the county valuation on property in Wellington almost a third according to the authorities on this question. The additional revenue will be used by the commissioners court in an attempt to carry out the road building program which they want and which the county needs.

From the assessed valuation it will be seen that an investment in Collingsworth County is worth the money, for the County produced last year, something over seven million dollars. It did not make this much clear, of course, but enough of it was clear to provide good returns on the money invested in land and property.

CHILDRESS FAIR GIVES PROMISE OF MANY ATTRACTIONS

The Childress State Fair which will be held from October 6 to Oct. 10. Every day there will be thrilling automobile rides on a dustless tract. One of the features of the fair will be the Royal Pageant in which 400 costumed characters will participate. It will also have nine feature open air acts. The Bill H. Hames shows consisting of seven rides and twenty shows will furnish carnival entertainment. The noted Childress fireworks and a tight football game cap the many attractions. Many Childress people came to the Collingsworth County fair and an equal number of Collingsworth people are planning on attending the fair at Childress.

WELLINGTON IS REPRESENTED AT AMARILLO FAIR

Wellington people who attended the opening of the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo say that there were over 32,000 people attending the fair. This was the largest crowd that this fair of the Panhandle ever enjoyed. Although the Ringling Brothers Circus was a great attraction, the football game between Clarendon and Carvon drew an enormous crowd. The visitors from Wellington says that although his team was beaten that Lee Powell of this city put up an excellent game in the backfield. Those who went from Wellington were Judge and Mrs. C. C. Small, Mrs. Lee O'Neil and Mr. and Mrs. Duard Scott. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Horn went up Sunday.

COUNTY FEDERATION TO MEET AT LILLIE SATURDAY P. M.

The County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at the Lillie Church next Saturday afternoon, according to Mrs. Lee O'Neil, secretary, in a business meeting. Every woman who is interested in this work is urged to be present she says. Although the whole program could not be given out, part of it was announced. Mrs. J. A. Hilburn will give a piano solo. Miss Bernice Woods will give a reading. Miss Viola Hudson will also give a piano solo, and Miss Faye Bartlett will give a reading. In addition to this there will be talks by the club members and other interesting numbers.

Work of Remodeling Methodist Church to Be Finished by Nov. 1

Drive For Finances Going Forward Steadily, Says Rev. J. T. Hicks

The work of remodeling the Methodist Church of Wellington will be completed by November 1 if the shipments of materials are received on time, says Rev. J. T. Hicks, pastor. This structure which is being erected at a cost of $20,000 is a building of which all Wellington can be proud when it is completed. The work is already sufficiently advanced that services can be held in the new part of the building and this will be done next Sunday. Rev. J. T. Hicks will preach at the morning services and Rev. E. L. Sisk will conduct the services at the evening hour. Everyone in Wellington is invited to come to the services Sunday.

The seats for the entire building will be installed about Nov. 1 in order to have them ready by the time for conference. After the inside work has been arranged, the whole structure will be stuccoed on the outside. The Sunday school rooms are being finished up now and what will remain to be done to them is the painting.

The Methodist Church building will be not only a house of worship for the Methodist congregation, declared Rev. Hicks, but it will be a building that the whole community can use. When it is finished it will be large enough to take care of practically as large a crowd as Wellington can produce. It will be used for public, banquets, etc. The basement has been arranged so that it can be converted into a banquet hall that will accommodate 300 people.

The drive for finances is progressing steadily, and the committee is meeting with success in raising funds. It is the ambition of the building committee to raise all of the money needed to the building without solicitation, time and to have the building free from debt when the year ends. Rev. Hicks says he thinks there will be no trouble in raising all the money that it needed if all the members come through according to their ability, and he says he has confidence in his members contributing liberally. Rev. Hicks says that one of the most gratifying things of the whole drive has been the manner in which some non-members have stepped up and donated to the building without solicitation.

This makes the twenty-seventh church that Rev. Hicks has been instrumental in building. This year he has not only planned the style of the building and directed the raising of the finances, but he has worked every day that is with the exception of Sunday's helping the workmen with the physical work on the building. Some of the elders of the Church say that the only possible time he could have had to prepare his sermons was at night.

SENIOR CLASS OF WELLINGTON HIGH ELECTS OFFICERS

The Senior Class of the Wellington High School held a short meeting last Friday and organized for the coming year. James Gillentine was elected president and Julius Haralson was selected vice-president. There were the only officers that were selected at the meeting Friday, but other officers will be chosen soon. While they were together the Senior class also selected the class rings for the coming year and order their invitations. The Senior class this year is the most promising in many years considering the class as a whole.

The members of the senior class are: Lottie Frances Morrow, Nora Coker, Lorraine Curry, Lois Sherwood Lodenda McCommas, Willie J. Jones, Mava Glenn, Nadine West, Texana Kesler, Idabelle Carter, Helen Brantley, L. C. Young, Mittie Young, Rama Camp, Corinna Graham, Lena May Smart, Robbie Wells, Mable Goodson, Juanita Slay, Louise Willie, Ruth Ross, Vicie Burkhalter, Buelah Williams, Fay Messick, John D. Glenn, J. L. Anderson, Sam Dick Coker, Julius Haralson, Vernon Stafford, Leon Keithley, James Gillentine, Richard Coker, Floyd Shields, Billy Leach, Manry Brantley, Boyd Barjenbrook, Jones Singley, J. B. Williams, Ray Wells, Zeddie Edgar, R. V. Kelley, Stacey Clement, J. R. Brayboy, Allen Nece Fletcher Curry and Marshal Porter.

VERNON YOUTH TO PEN

DALLAS, Sept. 26.—Emmett Williams, 18 years old, of Vernon, Texas, was sentenced to a year in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth here today upon his plea of guilty to transporting stolen automobiles.

POST OFFICE BUSINESS IS NOW GROWING

Receipts Enough to Give Town City Delivery If It Had Side Walks

The Wellington Post Office is now doing enough business annually to enable the city to secure city delivery provided there were enough sidewalks and street crossings in town. The business last year totaled over $14,000 and it has already passed the mark that was established at this time last year. It takes something like an annual business of $10,000 to get city delivery in a town, but there are certain other requirements that must be met as well as the amount of Post Office business.

The business of the post office is also a good barometer of the business condition of the town. From the returns at the local office it would seem that Collingsworth County is in better financial circumstances than she was at this time last year.

The Wellington Post Office is going to be able to care for the rush season work better this year than they did last year. Claude Savage will probably be put on as a regular, Lee Gragg says, and this will keep the force from having to work as hard as they did last year. He also said that all people who wanted their mail to go to Shamrock and over the Rock Island should mail it before noon on the day they wish it to leave.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH CLOSES SUCCESSFUL MEETING SUNDAY

The meeting at the First Christian Church came to a close last Sunday night. The Rev. Deatherage of Sayre, Okla., was in charge of the services. He is also the pastor of the First Christian Church of that place.

The meeting was a wonderful success in many ways. Mr. Leggett says there were many seed sown that will probably come forth and bear fruit later.

The members of the church were so well pleased with the preaching of Rev. Deatherage they will make an effort to secure him for this place. Mr. Leggett says despite the inclement weather the attendance was good. Good interest was manifest in the salvation of souls.

COMMISSIONERS OF COUNTY GO TO AMARILLO MEETING

B. F. Ford, W. I. Cagle and W. L. Cooper, commissioners of Collingsworth County left Sunday afternoon for Amarillo to be at the County Judges and Commissioners meeting which will be held in Amarillo this week. These men are making a study of the best methods of administering a county government, and they think that many points of interest and suggestions of value will be picked up at the Amarillo meeting.

L. W. GRIBBLE AND DAUGHTER RETURN FROM LONG TRIP

L. W. Gribble, who is one of the old citizens of Wellington, and his daughter, Mrs. R. H. Coker, returned this week from an extended trip to the Great Lakes region and to Canada. Mr. Gribble says that it was the best trip he ever took. He thought that his two trips to the Pacific Coast were the best, but the northern trip is better, he declared. While they were gone they visited Ontario, Buffalo, St. Paul, Chicago, and many other large cities. Mr. Gribble is planning on taking a trip to New York within the next year or two.

TEST WELL DOWN OVER 2,300 FEET

The test well of the Continental Oil Company that is being drilled in the Coon Creek pasture is down something over 2,300 feet, according to the workers. This lacks a little over a thousand feet being down as far as the contract stipulates. The drillers are absolutely non-committal on the strata that they have passed through and the likelihood of finding oil.

Collingsworth County Gins 563 Bales to Date

Collingsworth County has ginned 563 bales of cotton up to Tuesday at noon, according to estimates received at the Leader office. Of this number 338 were ginned in Wellington. At this time last year 691 bales had been ginned. The greater amount of last year's ginning over this years was due more to the fair weather during all the month of September last year and to the rainy weather in September this year than it is to a difference in the amount of crops. However, Collingsworth County will be unusually well off if the production can stay as close to last years record throughout the year as it is now. That will insure a crop of over thirty thousand bales and that is the amount the general public is predicting.

At this time last year it was predicted that the county would make thirty thousand bales which was judged a big estimate for it was seven thousand more bales than had ever been produced before in this county. After all the cotton had been ginned over forty-four thousand bales were ginned. It is not expected that the County can possibly make anything like that amount this year, for the flats do not have the cotton that they had last year, but a good yield is assured.

SUNNY DAYS START THE COTTON IN

Fair Weather Brightens Faces of Farmers and Merchants Alike

The fair weather that started last Saturday and continued without interruption with the exception of a few clouds Monday, has done much to cheer the people of Collingsworth County. Although little cotton came in Saturday, for the ground has not dried enough to pick much, it began to come in fairly steady Monday. It was not enough to brag about, but it was just enough to be a good promise of thousands of bales that will be rolling in in the next few weeks.

Although some people think that the county will not make 30,000 bales of cotton, most people believe that the county will produce well above that amount from the crop of 1925. One banker, who is a pessimist by nature, says that it won't reach thirty thousand. One ginner, who is an experienced ginner, says that the county will make over forty thousand bales. Neither of these men have ever been known to guess the correct number before; so it is fairly safe in predicting that the crop will range in between the two.

The latest government estimate shows that more cotton will be produced over the entire south than was at first predicted, but the increase is not enough to materially reduce the price of cotton. Taking it all in all the prospects look mighty good for the people of Collingsworth County.

CATALOGS OF THE MAIL CONCERNS ARRIVING DAILY

People who transact business at the Post Office are impressed with the great stacks of mail order catalogs that are arriving daily. People outside of the Post Office but who were in a position to know estimate that during the busy season last year $2,000 went out of Wellington every day to the mail order concerns. It seems a pity for so much money to leave town where it cannot be used in developing the town or county. It would make little difference if the prices paid to the mail order people were really lower, but there are merchants in Wellington who are selling merchandise at cheaper prices, the quality and freight or parcel post considered than people can buy from the out of town concerns. Still it is not the fault of anybody but the merchant if some people send off for stuff, for the home papers offer an advertising medium that will keep nine tenths of that business at home and one fifth of that business will pay for the advertising.

The Pigg-Alley Ford Motor Co. of this place have just received a straight car load of one ton Ford trucks, of which part are sold. Mr. Alley says they are selling a car of automobiles and trucks each week.

HEDLEY AND HOME BOYS TIE FRIDAY

First Football Game of 1925 Season Ends In 0 to 0 Score

Wellington High School played its first game of the season last Friday afternoon against Hedley. The final score was 0 to 0. Although Wellington got the ball on Hedley's ten yard line at one time they were never able to get any closer. Hedley gave the Wellington boys a real scare in the last part of the game when a recovered fumble gavethem the ball on Wellington's one yard line. It was first down and one to go. That is a handicap that has caused many much more experienced teams than that of Wellington to lose their fighting morale, but it was just enough handicap to make the local players show their real mettle. The line was a rock wall during those few seconds of play and the backfield was air tight. Wellington showed its real defensive strength in the last part of that game.

They have men to make an excellent team this year but it will take hard and regular practice to bring out their offensive strength. In the game Friday Lloyd Powell was the chief ground gainer. He is heavy and fast and you can't hurt him. Vernon Stafford and Billy Leach started as halfbacks and Paul Williams substituted. Each of these men is the type to make a good half. They are fleet and can think on their feet. In James Gillentine, Coach Boston has one of the brainiest quarterbacks that Wellington has ever had. He is well equipped for material for this position, for Bill Leggett is also showing up unusually well as quarterback. On the offensive Bill is a triple treat man. All he needs to be flawless is a little more practice tackling.

Although they are somewhat light for that position Raymond Powell and Frank McInnis are good material for ends. They go down well under punts and are rapidly learning that no runner must circle their side. In Julius Haralson and Raymond Bowen, Mr. Boston has a pair of tackles that will show up well during the coming season. Raymond is a veteran and is a sure tackle. Virgil Watson at Guard, John D. Glenn at center, and Raymond at guard make up the center of a line that is hard to get through. Virgil Watson has never been mad enough to use all of his great strength, but some day they are going to get him started and the opposing team can watch out when they do. But even then he won't have much on the center and other guard who are fighters by nature. Lowell Wells, Jess Hanley, Richard Coker and Ralph Long are going to be called upon for service during the coming season, too. Ralph showed up well during the time he was in the game Friday.

Those who saw the Hedley game say that it was very clean and sportmanlike. When Hedley comes over here Wellington is going to show them the same sportsmanship but a better fighting team.

LOCO GIN WILL BE RUNNING BY OCTOBER FIRST

The Loco gin owned by Westworeland, Joyce and Wilson has been overhauled generally and will be ready to operate by the first of October, according to the owners. They now have in five stands of 80 saws each. The power is 110 horse power and all the machinery is ball bearing. This plant which was bought by the new owners last summer is expected to do a good business during the coming year and will get a good amount of ginning business that has been going to Childress.

RICHARD WISCHKAEMPER SENDS IN SOLUTION TO FARM PROBLEM

In next Saturday's issue The Leader will publish the continuation of Mr. Wischkaemper's article which was carried last week. This gives a possible solution to the problem that is weighing down the farmers of the nation and it will be of interest to every citizen of this community since this is primarily an agricultural community and the prosperity of everyone depends upon the welfare of the farmers. Mr. Wischkaemper mentions to give you in his next article. Watch for it.

POULTRY

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF HIGHER PRICES

The high egg market last fall was in the latter part of November. The records indicate that the tendency is for the high spot in the market to advance earlier in the fall. The problem of the person who is interested in making his poultry pay, is how to prepare to take advantage of these high prices.

Pullets which began laying late in October frequently lay during the entire winter. Pullets which are developed too early begin laying early in October and then begin to molt, and unless they are exceptionally well fed they will not begin laying again until spring.

If Leghorns are hatched before April 1 and are well grown they will likely start laying early in October. Under good growing rations a Leghorn will mature in about 200 days. Some growers can carry their early hatched pullets along more slowly and prevent them from laying much before the first of November. In order to do this they feed very little meat scrap and other high protein feeds and feed considerable ground oats and other bulky feeds which grow a good frame but which do not hasten the maturity of the birds.

The heavy breeds which are slower maturing will lay better in the fall if hatched earlier than April. February and March pullets of the breeds such as Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes will be about the right stage of maturity for November eggs if they are grown on a good ration.

One trouble with a good many producers is that they do not feed their pullets so that they mature quickly enough so as to start laying in the fall. In other words you have two sources of trouble in getting pullets to lay in November. One is the hatching of Leghorns too early and thereby having them go into a molt, thereby losing production in the winter from that source. The other trouble is on account of late chicks and slow development which results in the pullets not laying until the greater part of the winter is over and the period of high egg prices has passed.

Hens Should Be Fed So

That They Molt Quickly

The old hens should be fed so that they will molt quickly. Eggs will be high in price this fall and winter and we should feed the flock so as to obtain every possible egg, suggests D. H. Hall, extension poultry husbandman at Clemson college.

The molt is a natural thing and the hen must be allowed time enough for it. We can help them through the molting stage by feeding. The mash feeds are very beneficial in growing feathers, therefore, these hens should have all the mash they want. A pound of sulphur added to each 100 pounds of mash will also aid the hens in growing new feathers. Sulphur is also a mild tonic and aids in keeping the hen's body in condition.

During the molting period, the hens need a large amount of grain feed for the upkeep of the body. The molt is a severe drain on the hen and a good strong body, with plenty of extra energy should be kept by the hen. The hen is also laying up surplus energy for next year's laying. The best feed, care, and attention should be given them at this time. It will always pay you to send your hens to roost with a full crop each night.

Potassium Permanganate

Good as Water Purifier

Dr. S. Erikson of the Mountain Grove (Mo.) experiment station has carried on experiments to determine the value of permanganate of potash as a purifier of water for poultry, and has found that it is very efficient. The germs of cholera and of other intestinal diseases are destroyed in a few hours. The quantity to use is 14 grains per gallon of water. This quantity can be measured with sufficient accuracy with a ten-cent piece as measure, about 14 grains being carried on it. Permanganate soon loses its strength, which is indicated by loss of the purple color. When this occurs a new solution should be made up. Erikson's experiments show that small chicks are not injured by drinking permanganate water over a period of nine weeks. It can be safely used when sour milk is being fed, but it is not recommended to be added to milk.

Poultry raisers should not place dependence on permanganate as a cure for any disease. Its use is not intended as a cure but as a destroyer of germs that gain entrance to the drinking water from sick birds, thereby lessening the chance of the disease spreading in the flock.

Egg-Eating Habit

The habit or vice of egg eating is difficult to break, once it has been established. It usually starts from the birds getting a taste of a fresh egg when it is broken. Sometimes fresh egg shells thrown to the chicks without being heated gives them a taste of the raw, fresh egg. Darkened, large, roomy nests, the frequent removal of eggs and the immediate removal of any broken shells are the most dependable methods for breaking up this trouble.

It's pleasanter to set one in the right path and persuade him to stay there than to beat him for getting out of it.

With Cheerups and the Quixies
By Grace Bliss Stewart

PATH TO CHEERUPS' DOOR

"NOW just look at that path, Brighteyes," called Cheerups to a little brown Quixie who was peeping out of a bush near by.

"You couldn't really call it a path, could you, sir?" asked Brighteyes, "Hardly a blade of grass is worn off."

"No, that's just the trouble, Brighteyes; there's no one to wear it off," replied Cheerups. "Nobody comes to see us. Maybe they can't find the way."

"I Have an Idea," Called Cheerups to His Companion.

It must be that, for I'm sure they would like us if they could get here. "I'll go once more and look," cried Brighteyes. "I'll climb the very tallest tree on the tipmost top of the mountain and look as far as I can to see if anyone is coming," and he jumped aboard a passing breeze and flew away through the air.

There sat Cheerups in the doorway of his little house. It was only a hole in the side of an old hollow stump, but this jolly little fairy liked his home and was so happy that it would have made you laugh just to look at him.

But even if the rest of the world hadn't come to Cheerups, he had friends. Anyone so jolly and kind couldn't help it. There were four little Quixies who were his faithful companions, and they were called Brighteyes, Quickear, Softfoot and Sniffsniff.

These Quixies lived up in the Great Pine Tree which waved its whispering branches over Cheerups' hollow stump, and they were so much alike that you couldn't tell them apart unless you knew them very well. They were as slender and brown as Cheerups was, plump and green, and being so slender and brown, they looked like brothers to the pine needles which fall from the great pine trees and feel so soft under your feet in the woods.

Brighteyes could see very well indeed. His eyesight was so wonderful that he could almost see around a corner. Quickear said that he could hear the grass grow. Softfoot stepped so lightly that even Quickear couldn't hear him, and Sniffsniff could smell a violet a mile away.

Of course, with such good friends near him, Cheerups couldn't be very sad about the lack of visitors. It was really because he was so glad that fine morning that he wanted to share his good spirits with every one.

"Yes, I'm sure they would like us if they could only get here," murmured Cheerups to himself. "I would so love to broaden my acquaintance. They say travel does it. That's it, we'll travel! Oh, Brighteyes, Quickear, Softfoot, Sniffsniff; I have an idea!"

"Yes, sir, here I am, sir; I couldn't see anyone from the top of the mountain coming this way, sir," cried Brighteyes, as he fluttered to the ground.

"Never mind that now," shouted Cheerups excitedly. "I have a wonderful idea. We'll go to them!"

"To them?" piped Quickear.

"To whom?" chirped Softfoot.

"To where?" sputtered Sniffsniff.

For they had all dropped down from the Great Pine Tree at Cheerups' first call.

"We are going to travel," chuckled Cheerups. "Isn't it exciting?"

"But please, sir, when do we start?" chimed the Quixies in chorus.

"We begin here and we start now," cried Cheerups gleefully. "All aboard for Somewhere," and he hopped on a passing leaf and rose into the air. The four little Quixies were most too astonished to move but they didn't want to be left behind, so each grabbed a bit of thistle-down and followed Cheerups on his voyage of discovery.

NINE VITAL FACTS

Here, in brief form, we present for your information nine vital facts underlying the success of Dodge Brothers, Inc., and the goodness and value of their product.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., consider these facts so fundamentally important to the motor car buyer that they will be repeated, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in America may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brother, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90 per cent of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brother have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in unanimously adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills.

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The purchase of an automobile is a serious and important business. The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth.

A few of these essentials are clearly outlined above. They go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IS GREATEST WEAPON IN FIGHT AGAINST PEDDLER

ST. LOUIS.—Good advertising, especially newspaper advertising is the greatest weapon of the retail merchant in eliminating the house-to-house canvasser. T. K. Kelley, of Minneapolis, told the American Retailers Association in semi-annual session here.

"The bell ringer," he said, "is selling thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of merchandise in each community in the country that should be sold through the established retail stores. The bell ringer is a growing competition to the retail stores, because the house wife is ignorant of the economics of distribution and she believes the unsupported claim that he can sell better and cheaper than the retail stores."

Referring to the remedy of newspaper advertising he said:

"It has become the habit of the American people to do practically all their shopping through the newspaper and the newspapers in America today have too great an economic force to need any recommendation."

He told of a movement sponsored by the chamber of commerce of Austin,

Texas, against canvassers. This was in the distribution of a door card, warning canvassers that they were not desired, which, it was reported, were placed on 90 per cent of all front doors in the city.—Randall County News.

Autumn

How bravely Autumn paints upon the sky
The flame of summer which is fled.—Hood.

THE PEOPLE of the Panhandle are now enjoying one of the two most delightful part of the year. The other is the late spring. The exquisite beauty of each of these seasons makes them kin, but how different are the sensation they produce. Autumn in her dress of gold and brown brings tiding of the bountiful harvests, but whispers of a growing season that is past. Spring in her fresh frock of green gives the news of a new opportunity, but tempers it with the anxiety of the unknown. It is a joyous season, synonymous with youth and laden with adventure. Autumn suggests comfort and peace, for the crops are gathered in the fall, but it also causes sadness for the grass withering, the leaves falling, and the summer dying brings thoughts of the swiftness of time and the inevitableness of death. Women remember they are getting older in the autumn—never in the spring. Spring is the time for hopes, and Autumn is the time for memories. Spring is young, and autumn is mature. Spring is twenty years old and autumn is forty. Men who are forty are harvesting their rewards, but the pleasure of their victory is confined by the knowledge that their principal development period is over.

And those are the sensations and thoughts Autumn produces, but far more beautiful are the pictures she paints right here in Wellington. The humming gins, the wreaths of smoke and steam, the wagons of white cotton, the misty haze at sunset, the golden glow at dawn, the moonlight nights, the feeling of fall in the air are things to be remembered and loved.

Not So Wise

THERE ARE MANY smart people in this world, and among the smartest are those who are employed by large concerns to get free publicity into the most valuable of all mediums—the county paper. This week The Leader received the cleverest story from the publicity department of a certain hotel in Texas. The man who wrote the story has had newspaper experience, for the story has an enticing lead—a lead is the first sentence in case you are not familiar with newspaper parlance. The story told of how many plates the hotel had, how many carpets. It even told of how the editor of this paper would be the guest of that hotel for the small sum of $3 or $4 a day in case he was in the city at a certain date, and after he had run that strictly advertising story free of charge. The writer of that story was smart—even talented, but the management of the hotel was not so wise or it would have realized that the best way of getting advertising matter before the readers of the country papers is to pay for advertising space.

Being a Parent

PRACTICING PARENTAGE is an art that few men and women follow successfully during the life of the child. Almost anybody can be a mother or father, and almost everybody can be an ideal parent at some stage in the child's development; but it takes a versatile person to be a good parent during the various ages of the offspring. Some mothers who are exceptional efficient in raising their children in the proper ways when they are under ten fall down when it comes to inculcating in them a love for books, a respect for work and a sense of duty in after years. Other mothers who are ideal from this standpoint fail to provide the proper social contacts for their children, because they do not care for society themselves. Some fathers ruin their sons by giving them too much money, and other fathers retard the development of their boys by stinginess practiced under the guise of economy. Some mothers make their daughters useless as wives by paying too much attention to dress, and some mothers humiliate their daughters by paying too little attention to their personal appearance. Some parents work themselves too little and their children too hard and others work themselves too hard and their children too little. Some parents fail in their duty to their children by not spending enough money. To live under your income is just as bad as to live over it.

All of which is true, but it brings us no nearer the solution for there is scarcely any solution. The only parent who could be entirely successful during the entire life of the offspring would be one who had a thorough knowledge of the needs of children, and then kept growing as the children grew. And even then, even if they were perfect, there would come a time when everything they could do would not hold the children at home. In a way it is a tragedy just as is death, and you can do just about the same to relieve either—nothing.

For Widow Ladies

THAT VERY RESPECTED group of men known as the City Council, who have done more to advance the public interest in Wellington than ever their progressive predecessors, have passed a special ordinance permitting industrial concerns outside of the city limits to use the city water and lights. The Leader thinks this is a good move for it promotes the development of Wellington, but The Leader has a little proposition of its own that it wants to make. There is a widow lady living about a hundred yards north of the compress who has been trying to get city water for her home for two years. Now Mr. Councilmen, how about just passing a little special ordinance to let this widow lady, who by the way pays as much city taxes as the compress would if it were located where Bill Renner's hotel now stands, have a few bucketsfull of water every week. It won't cost much. The Leader will print the ordinance free of charge since the editor lives in that house. It might make some people feel that there was a discrimination, but they could be told that it was just a special ordinance for widow ladies, and they would understand. How about it?

For the Whole Community

THE NEW METHODIST Church building will be for the use of the whole community. In making this statement, Rev. J. T. Hicks, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Wellington, aligned himself with the progressives in the church work. He may call himself a fundamentalist or whatever he deems appropriate, but he has branded himself as a progressive, and in the opinion of The Leader is not anything similar to the mark of Cain. I working for the interest of the whole community while at the same time furthering the interests of his Church, Rev. Hicks has done a work that is truly Christian. He attributes it to his elders, to his building committee, and to anyone else upon whom he can shove a little worthwhile recognition, but that doesn't lessen the fine spirit of the thing in declaring that the church building will be for the whole community. This community has needed such a building for years, and everyone should take an interest in its completion.

The Collingsworth County Fair of 1925

By Leroy Stafford

THE FIFTH Collingsworth County Fair is now past and now becomes a record of past history, in many respects the fair of 1925 was the best that we have ever had, for with out a question of doubt the agricultural exhibits proved that Collingsworth County could produce good crops with very little moisture. And the livestock exhibited was not as large probably as has been, but the stock of all kinds was an inspiration to all who visited the different pens, though there was a number of vacant pens, the quality of the stock at the fair of 1925 in Collingsworth County was excellent. I doubt very seriously that there has ever been an exhibition in the pens of the fair park a better showing.

The poultry department had a good showing, there was one hundred and thirteen chickens and nine turks in the poultry department, besides nineteen birds from the Memphis Poultry Farm which were excellent individuals. There were nine different breeds all of which in the words of the judge of this department were well bred birds with proper care and treatment would be a good showing at larger fair and that he was also delighted to know that we not only had the grade of chickens that we had but that Collingsworth County was to have as good a hatchery as they had in any country, a place where the people of this country could buy their chicks and save the large percentage of losses which resulted in ordering of chicks from long distances.

And also the possibilities of the custom hatching of this industry was heartily indorsed, where a person could bring their eggs to the hatchery as one would take their corn to the mill.

I believe the fair of 1925 will result in lasting good for the county and the management has done every thing they possibly could to give the people of Collingsworth a fair that in the true sense would be an inspiration to the possibilities of this county, and I believe they should be complimented for their untiring efforts, and responsibilities, of course we are all human and make mistakes.

I want to show a day come when the people will not want the shows of the type that we had at the fair this year, but the management of the fair try to please the general public in this respect.

Let us as a people begin now for the fair of 1926 and try to have a higher type of amusement, and keep the thousands of dollars that are carried away by carnivals, at home.

Again I say hurrah for the fair of 1925, and let's make our plans to have a bigger and better fair for the year of 1926.

THE HISTORY

Came to our desk this week, a copy of "A History of Collingsworth County and Other Stories," written by the staff of the Wellington Leader. The volume of near three hundred pages is neatly printed and bound and contains much valuable history of the early days of our neighboring county and throws many interesting side-lights on the development of the Panhandle country. The history is used as a premium with each subscription to the Leader, and we very much appreciate the courtesy of Editor Wells in remembering us with a copy, which now holds an honored place in our library.—Clarendon News

A WESTERN COUNTY'S STORY

The Star-Telegram has received a copy of "A History of Collingsworth County, and Other Stories," published by the Wellington Leader, at Wellington, Texas, written by members of the staff of that paper and compiled by H. Deskins Wells, editor. The attractive volume preserves some interesting historical data relative to the period of big cattle ranches in the Panhandle and the coming of the homesteaders. It likewise summarizes well the development of Collingsworth County and Wellington, its seat, from their founding until the present time. Many of the stories are well written accounts of pioneers and eyewitnesses to the stirring events of the early days of civilization in that section of the early days of civilization in that section.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

BADLY RUN-DOWN

Lady Was Very Depressed on Account of Poor Health.

Mrs. H. S. Miller, of Spindale, N. C., says: "Five years ago I was very much run-down in health. I would give out with the least exertion. At times I would have to go to bed."

"I read of Cardui. . . My husband got me a bottle and encouraged me to take it. I was almost a skeleton, I was so thin. I was run-down and my general health was very poor. This was very depressing and I was in low spirits. My husband had to help me around. He did all he could for me and had me keep up Cardui."

"I continued taking the medicine for several months and it was wonderful the improvement I made. I gained over twenty pounds in weight, and I felt so much better besides. This gain was permanent, too. I have never lost it and my general health has been much better since I took Cardui."

At all drug stores.

JOHN WEST NOW OWNER OF AGENCY

West Buys Out Interest Of Eustace Allen in Dodge In Collingsworth Co.

John West, well known business man of Wellington, who has been in partnership with T. Eustace Allen in the Dodge Brothers Agency in Collingsworth County, has purchased Mr. Allen's interest in the agency and in the Dodge Agency moved a short time back into its new home on Barton street south of the square. This new building has been arranged as a display room for the new automobiles and the back part is equipped as a repair shop and service station.

Mr. West is not only making a striking sales campaign, but he is also putting on a service program that is due to attract attention from the Dodge owners over Collingsworth County. He has employed Joe Turner, a special Dodge mechanic to do his repairing and he says he can guarantee every job. He has a set price for every job. This guarantees every customer that he will not be overcharged, and that he will know just what job is going to cost when he brings it in the shop.

In speaking of the cars, Mr. West said that 90 per cent of all Dodge motor cars made in the past eleven years are still in service, that Dodge Brothers do not build yearly models, that it has never given "free service" which is really paid for by the customer and that because of these and other value giving policies that the Dodge people have never had on off year.

COMPRESS GOING AHEAD RAPIDLY WITH BUILDING

Although the Traders Compress Co. will not be able to finish the compress by Oct. 10 as was originally planned, the work is progressing so rapidly that it is believed that the compress will be in running shape sometime during October. The shed for the cotton is being erected now, and part of the machine has been installed. The foundations for the heavy machinery have been run and it will only be a short time until the work is completed.

A special effort is being made to rush the job to completion in order to get the cotton that would otherwise go out of town to be compressed. The cotton buyers of Wellington say that they will be glad when the compress starts working.

Here and There

Dr. E. W. Jones: That History of Collingsworth County certainly has many things of interest in it. I enjoyed reading it very much.

J. A. Hilburn says he once worked for an old German who was editing a paper. On Press day the old gentleman would get his long shears, pick up a few of his exchanges and say: Well, I must write a nice long article now.

W. H. Goforth says that some business men are advancing the argument that lots in Wellington are now as high as they will be in the next five years. Mr. Goforth on the contrary believes that the ever growing scarcity of lots in Wellington will cause them to increase steadily in price.

Dr. Charles Jones: Send me the Leader for a year and I'll just take a copy of that history. I need to know what is in the history and I can't do without the Leader.

C. J. Baker: Collingsworth County will make close to forty thousand bales of cotton this fall.

O. B. Crawford: Things are looking mighty nice since the weather cleared up. There ought to be lots of business in Wellington before long.

DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL SHOWS THURS. NIGHT ONLY

Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, starring Mary Pickford will be shown at The Rialto Theatre Thursday night only. This picture which played for over a year in one house in New York and for six months in one place in Los Angeles is due to attract a large crowd to the matinee and night performances. It is a drama literally full of romance and adventure and everybody who likes rich stories of the old days cannot afford to miss this picture.

J. A. Duke to Move to Plainview

J. A. Duke of route 2 came to the Leader office and had his subscription extended one year and received a history of Collingsworth County. He ordered his paper sent to Plainview, Texas, as he is moving there. Mr. Duke says he has been a reader of the Leader for many years, and can't afford to miss a copy, he made the statement that he came to this country 13 years ago, and had endured many of the hardships of the early days, he was told of the history of Wellington and Collingsworth County he bought one at sight.
