Britain, France And Russia Rally In League's Support

Conquest Of Ethiopia Not To Be Upheld

Italian Annexation Of East African Empire Is Not To Be Recognized; Smaller Nations May Withdraw

Faith Is Voiced

Day Is Filled With Developments; Italian Newspapermen Are Exiled For Scene During Selassie's Speech

BY WADE WERNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

GENEVA, July 1. — Three of the world's greatest powers rallied in support of a Fascist-shelled League of Nations structure tonight in the face of veiled hints of withdrawals by smaller nations.

The three were Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia. Spokesmen for the first two said their governments would not recognize Italy's annexation of Ethiopia and all voiced continued faith in the league's future.

Wreckage Surveyed

These expressions of hope alternated with notes of bitter disillusionment as the statesmen surveyed the wreckage of their attempt to save Ethiopia from what they branded as aggression.

Eight Italian newspapermen, arrested for "creating a scandal" by heckling and cursing Emperor Haile Selassie when he addressed the assembly yesterday, were released from jail and immediately expelled from Switzerland.

Developments Seen

A day filled with oratory—to be continued tomorrow—saw these developments:

1. Foreign Secretary Eden of Great Britain advised the assembly not to recognize Italy's conquest, to drop sanctions, and called for the continuance of mutual assistance pacts in the Mediterranean.

2. Premier Leon Blum of France intimated he would oppose recognition of the new empire and expressed faith in the future.

3. Foreign Commissar Maxim Lit-

Court Defines Dry Precinct

Mandamus Denied Tom Green Man In Ruling Handed Down By Supreme Court; Reasons For Action Given

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 1. — Provisions of the prohibition repeal amendment preserving the dry status of certain areas were construed today in an opinion by the third court of civil appeals.

A justice precinct embracing San Angelo was dry, it held, because its boundaries coincided with a commissioners precinct which had voted dry prior to state prohibition. The repeal amendment preserved the dry status of areas defined as counties, justice precincts, cities and towns.

Roy E. Talley was denied a mandamus to force the liquor control board to issue him a package store license. He contended the area became wet upon repeal because the justice precinct had not voted prohibition.

As a second issue, he contended an election last January by the

AUSTIN, July 1. (AP)—Officials of the state pension organization said they were unable to complete mailing of July pension checks last night and that some of the checks were not placed in the mails until tonight.

They expressed the opinion, however, that nearly all of the approximately 40,000 warrants would reach the pensioners by tomorrow afternoon.

U.S. And Mexico Join Hands In Dedication Of New Road

Great Pan-American Highway Is Officially Opened; Vice President Participates

By P. D. ELDRED
Associated Press Staff Writer

LAREDO, July 1. (AP)—The nine-year-old dream of far-sighted Mexican officials, the Pan-American highway, came true today as the $17,000,000 thoroughfare was opened to traffic with Vice-President John N. Garner and Mexican dignitaries clasping hands in an international bond of friendship.

Cited as one means of carrying out the "good neighbor" policy initiated by President Roosevelt, the highway, linking the picturesque Texas border with Mexico's scenic interior, was officially turned over to knights of the road in impressive ceremony.

From Washington President Roosevelt congratulated the Mexican people "on the auspicious occasion of the opening of the Mexican City-Nuevo Laredo highway."

The ruddy vice-president, whose Uvalde home is not far from the first mile of the highway, said "a great link has been forged in the chain uniting in freindliness these two republics. We as peoples shall come to know one another better and from that new knowledge our mutual understanding and respect will continue to grow.

Great Highways Of Peace

"May caravans of friendship and peace ever pass in every direction over these great highways of peace."

The United States representative said Mexico had made "invaluable contributions to the progress of civilization."

Gen. Eduardo Hay, Mexican secretary of foreign relations, said "It is self-evident that a nation without highways cannot grow and that its progress, both material and intellectual, necessarily must be slow.

Contribute To Understanding

"But if a nation is traversed by useful highways, these increase in importance when they serve as arteries of communication with neighboring countries. . . . International highways contribute to clear understanding and knowledge of citizen sof such countries and, for that reason, served to weld their spiritual, social and political relations."

Gen. Hay said completion of the highway showed his government's policy of promoting friendly relations with neighboring nations "has

His address, to be delivered over an open-air loud speaker system, will be given in the city park just west of the city hall, at the corner of Tenth street and Avenue J.

Mr. Hunter is expected to arrive from Abilene, where he spoke last night, between 2 and 3 o'clock, it was said. He will make the Lubbock hotel his headquarters and it is expected a number of visiting delegations and many friends from over this territory, will call on him.

Showers Received Over Some Areas

Scattered sections of the South Plains Wednesday night were wetted with heavy and light showers, at conclusion of a typical June day that brought temperatures that ranged upward to 98 degrees at Lubbock.

Littlefield reported a quarter-inch fall late in the night and said there was indication of continued fall. Rain, said Bob Cannon, Tech student employed there on a newspaper, started falling there at nightfall. He said the surrounding territory, except to the eastward at Yellowhouse Switch, had received rain, as had Sudan, Pep and Amherst.

Panhandle and Santa Fe Railway company dispatcher here said a light sprinkle had fallen at Texico.

A brisk wind blew most of the day, averaging approximately 25 miles an hour, said Municipal airport, which said a wind shift from east to west at 10 o'clock that night made for cooler temperatures. Sand blew at times.

Main line station of West Texas Gas company reported minimum temperature of 70 degrees, 82 degrees at 10 o'clock that night.

Court Rules On Refunding

Supreme Court Says State Board Of Education Without Power To Prevent Refunding Of Bonds In School Fund

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 1.—The Supreme court today held the state board of education was without power to prevent refunding of bonds owned for the permanent school fund by counties and municipalities.

Charley Lockhart, state treasurer, was directed by a mandamus to accept a tender of Dallas county of $14,000 cash and $194,000 refunding bonds for $208,000 of a 1905 issue. Lockhart declined to accept the tender of new bonds as the board refused to grant permission.

The court held that statutes gave the county authority to issue refunding bonds and did not restrict the power to redeem bonds to any patricular method. The treasurer contended the bonds could be redeemed only by proceeds of an ad valorem tax.

Statutory option of the board of education to purchase county and municipal bonds, it ruled, applied only to original bonds. For the board to have such an option on refunding issues, it observed, it would have the power to prevent refunding or bonded indebtedness even when original bonds were held by private investors.

France Plans Top Strength

Provisions Of Two-Year Conscript Service Is To Be Retained By Government In Face Of Troubled Situation

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, July 1.—The French government, bent on keeping its army at top strength in troubled Europe, announced tonight it would retain provisions for two-year conscript service.

Edouard Daladier, the minister for national defense, told the army committee of the chamber of deputies any shortening of the length of military service was "out of the question."

Early in 1935 the term of conscription was doubled to span the period when Frenchmen born in the World war's lean years were called to the colors.

To Be "Democratized"

Daladier, however, said the army would be "democratized." This was taken as an indication he might try to reduce the bridge of class distinction between officers and men, without endangering discipline.

The senate army committee tonight decided upon a detailed study, to be carried out by French military experts, of potential defense positions along the Swiss border.

Daladier characterized the 60,000 troops along the Maginot line of steel and concrete and at other points on the eastern frontier as "sufficient to insure the security of the border."

Governor Urges Safe, Sane Fourth

AUSTIN, July 1. (AP)—Governor Allred by proclamation today urged Texans to cooperate in a precautionary manner for the observance of a safe and sane Centennial Fourth of July.

"Civic organizations and public spirited citizens have aroused themselves," the proclamation stated, "to the urgency of impressing the seriousness of the situation upon the minds of those who might by careless act endanger the safety of themselves and others."

Bette Davis Says "I'm Ready To Quit For Good" In Squabble Over Contract

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 1.—An ultimatum, "I'm ready to quit for good," was laid down today by Bette Davis, crisp blonde movie star, who has been warring with Warner brothers over her demand for a new contract.

"There are certain things I'm entitled to, and I'm darned well going to get them—or else," she said.

Miss Davis admitted she had refused to report for work on a new picture, and said she would go to court for relief, just as James Cagney did several months ago, if she feels the circumstances warrant such a step.

Her salary, reported to be $2,000 a week, is not the only difficulty, she said.

"It's a mess of little things that need adjustment," she continued. "They've been wrong for a long time. I'd rather not go into detail just now. If the situation can't be straightened out, I'm ready to quit the screen for good. I won't go back to work as things stand."

Studio executives pooh-pohed the situation.

"It's all being fixed up amicably," one said. "Nothing serious at all. She'll be back."

Morgenthau's Report Given In Broadcast

Treasury's Deficit Placed At $4,400,000,000, Largest In Peace-Time History; Debt Is $33,750,000,000

Income Is Rising

Payment Of Bonus And Voiding Of AAA Taxes Threw Budget Estimates Out Of Line; Detailed Report Given

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Speaking in round figures, Secretary Morgenthau tonight placed the treasury's deficit for the fiscal year ended last midnight at $4,400,000,000—the largest such red ink figure in the nation's peace-time history.

His statement, made in a nationwide radio address and couched in non-tehnical terms, also fixed the public debt at the financial year-end at $33,750,000,000.

Lists "Offset" Figures

Against this he listed figures termed as "offset," or "recoverable assets," which added to $8,750,000,000.

Apparently important items are to be revealed on the treasury's daily statement tomorrow as of the close of business June 25. Today's statement, dated June 29, showed a deficit of $4,727,000,000 and a gross indebtedness of $33,841,000,000.

Morgenthau likened his speech to the chairman of a board making his annual report to stockholders.

Would Have Been Lower

The plans of government as well as business, he asserted, are "subject to unforeseen and extraordinary events." In this connection, he declared at a later point that if the funds for paying the bonus were left out of consideration, the deficit for the fiscal year would be $2,700,000,000.

"We may derive real encouragement and satisfaction from these facts," he said in conclusion. "National income is rising, as a result federal revenue is increasing; federal expenditures are on the decline."

Five Die In Bus Accident

Huge Bus Crashes Into Bank And Overturns Near Famed Natural Bridge In Virginia Early Wednesday

(By The Associated Press)

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va., July 1. — Death came swiftly to five of thirty-four persons aboard a huge bus which crashed into a bank and overturned early today only a few yards from the 215-foot gorge spanned by the famous natural bridge. Seven others were injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

J. J. Olderson, of Roanoke, the driver, died as he made what some believed was a deliberate effort to wreck the skidding bus and prevent its plunge into the chasm. It stopped with the wheels in the air against the big fence advertising the bridge, the top crushing Olderson and four persons in the forward end.

Farmer Whose Clothing Was Wet By Shower Victim Here

His clothing wetted by a shower when he was working in his fields early last week, W. E. McElroy, 49, of Monroe developed pneumonia and at 8:10 o'clock Wednesday night died in a hospital here.

McElroy's condition was not serious until Friday, when he was forced to desist from work and go to bed. A physician diagnosed his condition a day later as pneumonia and, Tuesday, he was brought to the hospital.

Funeral services will be read at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at Abernathy, probably from the Baptist church, said Sanders Funeral home. Burial will be there.

The widow; three children at home, Lucille, Maurine and Truitt; two other daughters, Mrs. D. H. Long of Littlefield and Mrs. H. O. Walker of Monroe, and four brothers, R. I. McElroy of Denton, Henry McElroy of Timpson, Phillip McElroy of Long Branch, and Kelly McElroy of Clayton, survive.

J. P. Morgan Ill At Home

Head Of The Almost-Legendary House Of Morgan Lies Afflicted In Great Estate On Long Island

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 1.—The head of the almost-legendary house of Morgan lay ill tonight in his great, rambling country estate on secluded East Island, off Long Island.

John Pierpont Morgan, whose family more than any other has written the story of financial empire in America, was brought home early today from West Manchester, Mass., suffering, said physicians and members of the family, with an attack of neuritis which although painful was not regarded as serious.

Transferred To Home

At Mill Neck, Long Island, Morgan, who is in his 69th year, was transferred from his special railway car by stretcher to an ambulance and taken away over a narrow concrete bridgeway to the island where he and his parents live under a picked guard of former U. S. marines.

He was pale, but waved languidly to a small group awaiting him at the station. The stretcher was employed, it was said, to save him the pain of walking.

Late today the Morgan mansion was all but inaccessible. Inquiries as to the financier's condition were referred to his Wall Street offices, where associates said emphatically he was in no danger.

Henry A. Wallace Reveals Fears Of "Weather Change" In United States

(By The Associated Press)

EVANSTON, Ill., July 1. — Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace paused in his tour of the drouth stricken northwest tonight to reveal a fear of a possible "weather change" which might make the United States an arid land.

Threats of the "change" were carried in the long, dry spells of 1934 and 1936, and in otherwise "freakish" weather of "the past seven" years, the secretary asserted.

Wallace brought up the subject while addressing a class in contemporary thought at Northwestern university during a stop on his drouth tour.

After describing the present lack of rainfall as "almost as bad" as the disaster of two years ago, the director of the New Deal's farm program said:

"It is conceivable that this problem may be enormously complicated by changes in climate. The great migrations of history to some extent were caused by soil depletion, to some extent by changes in climate, and to some extent by social and political disintegration. If the weather of the United States really is changing, it is essential that we study it as a great national problem.

"Of course it is premature to say

Swollen Streams Devastate Area

Heavy Rains Cause Rivers And Creeks To Go Out Of Banks In Wild Rampage; Homes Pounded Into Driftwood, Cattle Drowned, Million Dollars In Crops Are Damaged

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, July 1.—Twenty-one persons were drowned and at least 14 other were missing tonight as devasting South Texas floods pounded homes into driftwood, drowned hundreds of head of cattle and did more than $1,000,000 livestock and crop damage.

After 12 lives had been counted earlier, rescuers and rehabilitation workers reported late in the day that four members of a prominent family near Nixon had been drowned when flood waters crushed their home and that the bodies of four Mexicans had been recovered from the swollen Plum creek 15 miles southwest of San Marcos.

The death list:

Clarence Warnette, his wife and two children.

Walter Wiley Teague, 10, Fort Worth.

An unidentified Mexican.

Antonio Gonzales, his wife, Monsuelo, and baby Eulalio.

Ignacio Hernandez.

Zabino Hernandez.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Haynes and Baby Haynes.

Monico Valdez.

Private Benjamin A. Castro, Mexican army.

Mrs. Jesus Garza and two daughters.

An unidentified child.

An unidentified Mexican near Buda.

The Warnette family was drowned in a Big Sandy creek near Nixon; the Teague boy and the unidentified Mexican were drowning victims in the wreck of a Missouri-Pacific train; Private Castro was drowned in Piedras Negras across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass and the others were drowned in Plum creek near the train wreck southeast of San Marcos.

Shifts To Below Austin

Heavy rains first were reported two days ago in the area in Southwest Texas along the Mexican border and the Rio Grande. Eagle Pass, Del Rio and Laredo were some of the points reporting downpours.

Yesterday the storm area suddenly shifted to a circular sector below the state capital, Austin, in the south-central part of the state. The country about San Marcos, between Austin and San Antonio, deeper to the south, bore the brunt of the waters' violence.

Believe 6 Others Killed

Two survivors of the train wreck said they believed six others were killed. Six more were believed drowned when the Antonio Gonzales home collapsed and a hunt was being continued for two bodies of three children drowned in Plum creek.

The children were Pedro Gonzales, 5; Italia Gonzales, 3, and Rodrigo Garza. One of the bodies was found but was not identified immediately.

Six Mexicans and three negroes were drowned in the Sandy creek when flimsy houses gave way before the surging waters. Six others, swept downstream when the An-

New Rules Given On Bar In Texas

AUSTIN, July 1. (AP)—The Supreme court today added difficulties to the paths of those who aspire to become lawyers in a revision of rules governing admittance to the bar.

New rules required that candidates must pass at least one-half of the examinations on 20 subjects at the first trial. The remainder must be completed within the year.

If a candidate failed to pass in two trials, he would be required to pass all of the courses in subsequent examinations. A second failure would necessitate a three-year study. A third failure would disbar the candidate.

Eligibility rules were altered to require one year's residence in Texas and attainment of 21 years of age. Previously those who had the disabilities of a minor removed were admitted.

Desolation, Death, Horror And Thanksgiving Go Hand In Hand In 200-Mile Strip In South Central Texas

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lloyd Price, Associated Press staff writer and James Laughead, Associated Press staff photographer, made a quick aerial survey of the Texas flood area Wednesday. Price's story of what he saw follows:

By LLOYD PRICE
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, July 1. — Desolation, death, horror and thanksgiving went hand in hand over a 200-mile strip through South-Central Texas today in the wake of rains varying from two to fourteen inches.

While mourners wept for the 21 known dead, frantic relatives sought bodies of 12 others missing, some haggard-faced farmers surveyed crop losses which rendered a year's work worthless and others watched needed moisture refivify yellowed fields.

Standing In Fields

An airplane tour of the area revealed water standing in the fields as far north as Ennis and Corsicana, roughly 50 miles south of Dallas. Tiny figures were visible with boards and chains endeavoring to move stalled automobiles on sodden country roads, but they were happy. They waived enthusiastic greetings as the plane circled over them.

The burned and parched fields had taken on hues of deep green. Plants looked strong and healthy.

Corn Levelled

Southward evidences of heavy rainfall became more apparent. Water was standing three inches deep about the corn and cotton east of Mart, 50 miles southward. Near Marlin corn had been levelled in patches by the driving downpours. A small creek 10 miles northeast of Cameron, Milam county, was a half-mile wide, flooding farmlands on either side.

Here ravages of the torrential rains was plainly visible. In some spots only tops of the cotton stalks could be seen. Farms were isolated by roads running with water. A strong wind blew great gusts of rain on the already deluged countryside.

The San Gabriel river, just west of its confluence with the Little river, had backed up over thousands

Bridges Is Given 25-Year Sentence

STINNETT, July 1. (AP)—A term of 25 years in prison faced Monte Bridges today following his conviction on a charge of murder in the slaying Feb. 1 of Fred English, Borger hotel proprietor.

The jury deliberated 16 hours before bringing in a verdict.

Bridges' counsel in their arguments had pleaded self defense on the grounds that the slain man had made a threat to kill the defendant. In reply, the state argued that English could not have made a move toward Bridges at the time of the shooting because the wound was in the hotel man's side.

From The Woman's Angle

BY MARGARET TURNER
Avalanche-Journal Woman's Editor

THE Fourth of July may be safer than it used to be, but it is not yet by any means entirely safe and sane. There is always a list of accidents to be recorded, most of which could have been avoided by the use of common sense and a few ordinary precautions.

Children should be taught how to use fire arms, they should be taught the danger of explosives. One cannot get one's training by experience, since one accident may prove fatal. The excellent rules for the Fourth of July laid down in one family many years ago have been handed down for four generations without an accident by observing the following set of rules faithfully:

1. Woolen clothes are worn by all celebrators.
2. Jokes with fireworks, such as tossing them about, are forbidden.
3. An adult must be at hand if little children are in the group.
4. There must be no pretense whatever of shooting anyone even though the gun be only a stick.
5. Any child caught doing a stupid or careless trick with fireworks, even if no accident results, has his fireworks confiscated and is forbidden to celebrate any more that day.

The rules may seem hard, but they are better than a life time of remorse.

WHAT IS LIBERTY?

WE have a lot to say this time of the year about liberty. What is liberty? The Supreme Court of the United States has defined it as meaning the right of the citizen to be free in the enjoyment of all of his faculties—that is, his talents, gifts and abilities, whether natural or cultivated, to be free to use them in all lawful ways, to live and work where he will; to earn his livelihood by any lawful calling, to pursue any livelihood or vocation—that is, calling occupation, profession or employment, and to enter all contracts necessary and proper in carrying out these rights.

OH MR. TAYLOR!

IF we had our choice of places to go on the Fourth it would be to Dallas just long enough to see the object displayed below, none other than the movie hero, Robert Taylor. Yes sir the women in this office are that way over this young Adonis.

Even if this week's Liberty did refer to young Taylor as "self centered," it softened the criticism by admitting that he is "expressively handsome." It also conceded him to be "pianist, cellist, hunch player, curly haired, sun hound and theater fanatic." Need we say more?

AS FOR THE MEN

THE men don't seem impressed by this beautiful guy. Said one scornfully "What if he can wear clothes, so could I if I had 'em." "I wouldn't want to look like him and have all the dames rushing me," said another. Well, not that it matters, but Robert Taylor has something besides looks and the ability to wear clothes. He has a remarkable voice and personality, but why go on with this? He'll be in Dallas and we'll be out here and even if we were in Dallas, as far as he is concerned we may as well remain here, so there you are!

Slaton Rites Said Tuesday

Miss Lois Stallings Becomes Bride Of Robert Klinger Of Pampa At Home Of Her Parents This Week

SLATON, July 1. (Special)—In a morning ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stallings, Miss Lois Stallings became the bride of Robert M. Klinger of Pampa Tuesday. The Rev. C. G. Sewell, Baptist minister, read the service in the presence of a score of relatives and close friends.

The couple stood beneath an arch formed of fern in the double doorway and flanked by floor baskets of yellow gladioli and candelebra holding yellow tapers. Yellow dahlias, gladioli, and Shasta daises completed the room decorations.

Miss Stallings was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn Stallings, and Mr. Klinger by D. C. Hartman of Pampa. The bride's dress was of powder blue sheer, and her arm bouquet of tiny yellow rosebuds tied with white. The bridesmaid wore a two-piece dress of pale pink lace and a shoulder bouque of cream roses.

Mrs. Hagerman Plays

Miss Vida Wood lighted the candles while Mrs. L. R. Hagerman played a piano selection, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," (Saint-Saens). She accompanied Mrs. C. F. Anderson, who sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond) then played the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin (Wagner) as the wedding march, and "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell) during the ceremony.

An informal reception followed. The bride cut the white and yellow wedding cake which centered the candle-lighted dining table, and Miss Eunice Florence served it to the guests. Miss Ruby Catching poured coffee.

Guests registered in the bride's book where Miss Cora Sealy presided. Those present from out of town included the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Cowart and Ruth Cowart of Lubbock; Miss Sue Vinson of Pampa, and E. E. Hartman of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Attended Tech

Miss Stallings has taught public school music in the Pampa system several years, and formerly taught at Slaton. A part of her college training has been received at Texas Technological college, Lubbock. Friends both in Pampa and Slaton complimented her with several parties and showers after her engagement was announced last month.

Mr. Klinger has been office manager for the General Atlas Carbon company at Pampa the past three years.

After a trip to the Rockies, the couple will be at home at 814 N. West Street, Pampa.

Bid For Support Of Holiday Association Is To Be Made

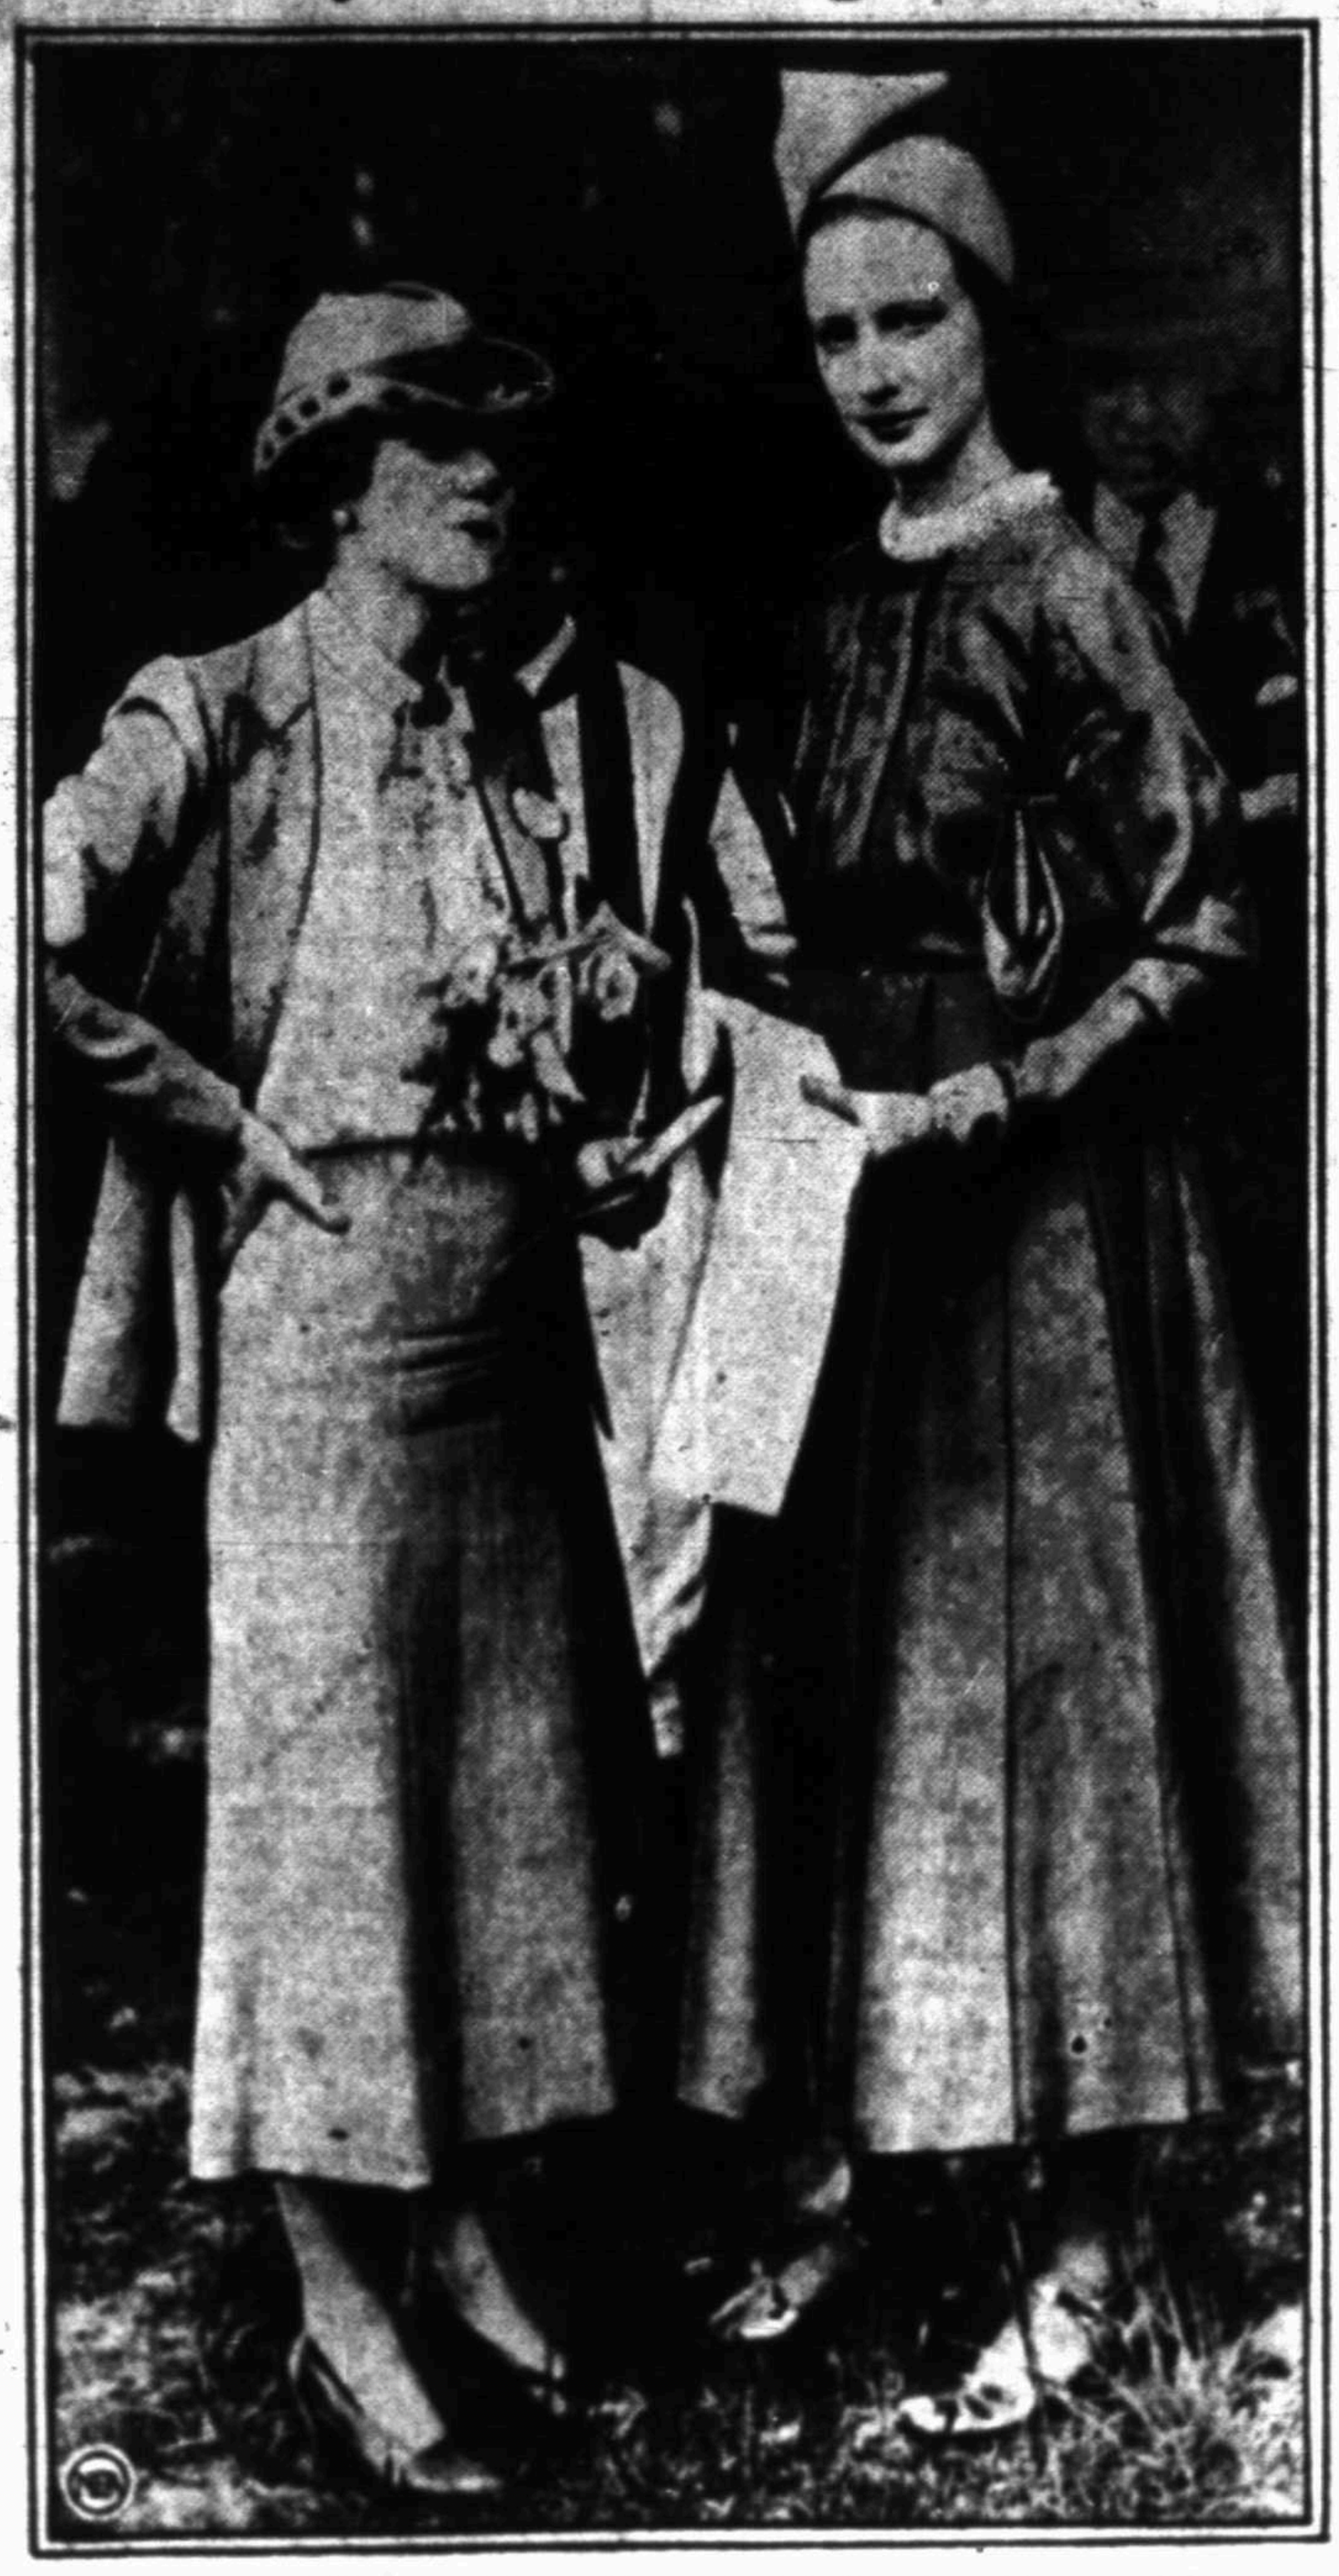
ST. PAUL, July 1. (AP)—A bid for support for the presidential candidacy of Congressman William Lemke of North Dakota was shaped for presentation today to the National Farm Holiday association.

Congressman Usher Burdick of North Dakota, campaign manager for the Union party's standard bearer, carried the appeal to the annual convention of the organization, sponsor of the midwestern farm strikes several days ago.

Burdick and Oscar Brekke, farmer-labor candidate for governor of South Dakota, shared the speaker's platform.

As much power goes over Niagara Falls daily as is contained in a day's mining of coal all over the world.

Two Styles Presenting Contrasts



Two extremes of the current mode seen side by side at a society event near New York were worn by Mrs. Stanley W. Burke (left) and Mrs. Sidney B. Wood, Jr. Mrs. Burke is in a trim, strictly tailored suit, Homburg with veil and soft white blouse, while Mrs. Wood's dress with full skirt and Gibson Girl ruching at the neckline is feminine to the nth degree.

Slack In Oil Drilling Seen

Encouraging Sign In Producing End Of Oil Industry Given; "Tools Stacked" Until This Fall

By ALFRED WALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

TULSA, Okla., July 1. (AP)—A distinct slackening of drilling activity was an encouraging sign today in the producing end of the oil industry.

Many of the major companies had orders out to "stack the tools" in the field until autumn, a development which marked the end of the feverish exploratory work of the springtime and early summer.

To Protect Leases

Most companies planned for the next two months only necessary drilling to protect their leases. Lease brokers here reported little or no interest in their line as the industry went into the summer doldrums. The vacation period was in full swing.

The tendency to curb drilling was cause for rejoicing in most quarters. Although the summer had produced an unprecedented demand for petroleum products, the industry, through equally unprecedented drilling activity and refinery operations had built up a huge reserve to supply that demand easily.

The combination of decreased state allowables and curtailment of drilling through the hot summer gave every indication today that the industry, despite its 10,000,000-barrel excess of refined gasoline at the beginning of the heavy consumption season, would find itself in a very comportable position by fall.

METEOROLOGIST DIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 1. (AP)—John D. Blagden, 76-year-old retired meteorologist, died today.

He joined the signal corps of the U. S. Army in 1888 when that branch of the service did the work now done by the weather bureau.

After working at Cape Cod, Mass., and Cape Hatteras, N. C., he was transferred to the Memphis weather bureau in 1899 and remained here until his retirement six years ago except for a six-months period in Galveston, Tex. He was cited for courage in staying at his post in the Galveston storm in 1900.

Gives Gly-Cas All Credit For Her Good Health Today

Mrs. M. M. Tedford Says She Had Needed Gly-Cas For Ten Years. Dizzy Spells, Indigestion Now Gone, Lumbago Pains Eliminated

"After seeing the action of Gly-Cas on so many other people I decided it was at least worth a trial—and I like so many other people pronounce it remarkable," said Mrs.

MRS. M. M. TERFORD

M. M. Tedford, 517 Pecan St., Abilene, Tex., "For ten years my stomach had simply failed to function properly. Gas, bloating or indigestion was sure to follow most every meal I ate. Dizzy spells were so frequent and headaches were with me continually. There were foods I had to leave from my diet and even then I could not eat anything without severe suffering afterwards. To make my condition worse rheumatism settled in my limbs, aches and pains were with me continually and I was gradually becoming a nervous wreck. I could not get a full nights sleep and before I realized it I was practically a cripple with lumbago. I tried everything I thought would help me but the more things I tried the farther away relief seemed to be. Upon hearing so much praise for this new Gly-Cas by seemingly everyone, I decided to put it to a REAL TEST in my case and found it truly a medicine of MERIT."

"Gly-Cas was the medicine I should have had ten years ago," continued Mrs. Tedford. "And I would have saved myself all these years of suffering. My stomach is now fine. I eat and enjoy the foods I wish without any distress afterwards. That rock-like feeling has left entirely and indigestion and bloating is now over. Even those dizzy spells and headaches have gone, those dreaded rheumatic pains have vanished and that crippling lumbago has been eliminated. It is wonderful to be able to eat and sleep good and again enjoy the blessing of such good health. And to think a single medicine, Gly-Cas, brought about this remarkable change in my condition after all else tried had flatly failed to bring results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

Gly-Cas $1.00 per box—6 boxes $5.00. Add 2c postage for each box ordered. Send money orders made payable Mark Halsey Drug Store. Don't send cash. Checks not accepted—No C. O. D. Mail Orders.—Adv.

Protest Is Made On RA Transfer

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—The office of Senator Carl A. Hatch of Clovis, N. M., protested today to the Rural Resettlement administration against a proposed transfer of accounting officers for rehabilitation work in New Mexico from State College, N. M., to Amarillo, Tex.

D. W. Williams, president of the board of regents of the New Mexico State college, informed Hatch's office the transfer "would not only add to unemployment but would create confusion and increased inefficiency as well as increased operating expenses."

The Hatch office was advised the Resettlement administration was transferring the accounting work of the treasury department and that the order to consolidate the work at Amarillo was made by treasury officials.

The air in a room 18 by 12 by 9 feet weighs about 165 pounds.

Concessions Are Being Sold At Steady Clip; Children Under 8 Years To Be Admitted Free At Gate

Concessions are being sold at a steady clip for the July 3 and 4 VFW-sponsored Texas Centennial and Independence day celebration to be conducted at Panhandle-South Plains fairgrounds.

A. I. Glassman, commander of the post, said children under eight years would be admitted to the grounds free. Admission charge for others will be 25 cents, with no extra charge for the rodeo or other contests.

Everything Ready Today

All rodeo stock will be here Thursday morning. Bleachers, arena, chutes and corral are up. The W. S. Dudley shows have been operating since Tuesday night.

Thousands of persons from throughout the South Plains are expected to attend the celebration. A big crowd from Littlefield is expected Saturday.

One of the most attractive features of the event is a district 2 boxing tournament of the Texas Amateur Athletic federation. That event, as well as numerous others, will be free. Each county is urged to send contestants, who are to register with Dr. B. F. Stevens at 1705 Broadway. Winner in each class will be given a trip to the Texas Centennial celebration at Dallas to participate in a Centennial boxing tournament, Aug. 17 to 22.

Financial Report

and the nation's business is continuing to show steady improvement."

Events Not Foreseen

After noting at the outset that events that could not be foreseen had thrown budget estimate made nearly two years ago out of line he continued:

"Scarcely had the present congress met last January when two events completely changed the budget outlook. First, the prospective revenues were cut down as a result of the decision of the Supreme court that the Agricultural Adjustment act was unconstitutional. This meant a loss to the treasury in 1936, of nearly half a billion dollars.

Bonus Ordered Paid

"Second, prospective expenditures were increased by an act of congress directing the immediate payment of the veterans' adjusted service certificates. To provide for the payment of these certificates which, under their original terms were not due until 1945 the expenditure program for 1936 was increased by $1,700,000,000."

Morgenthau said actual receipts during the year amounted to $4,116,000,000 while expenditures during the year were $8,500,000,000 excluding debt retirement.

"As we have seen," he said after some breakdown of the latter figure, "ordinary operating expenses accounted for $3,500,000,000 of which national defense took three-quarters of a billion; annual continuing payments to veterans, nearly $600,000,000; interest on the public debt another three-quarters of a billion, agricultural aid one-half billion and the other ordinary operating expenses of the government $900,000,000. Direct relief required under half a billion. In addition, we provided about a billion and a quarter for work relief in the form of smaller public works, most of them of permanent value, and nearly half a billion for CCC camps. Aid to home owners and other miscellaneous expenditures took more than $250,000,000."

Great Promise Cited

Garner told the throngs jamming the international bridge that the United States had been pleased to send representatives to the opening of "what promises to be the greatest highway in the world."

Other Ameircan officials present included Ambassador Josephus Daniels and Senators Tom Connally of Texas and William McAdoo of California.

The Pan-American highway extends from Canada to the Mexican capital, Mexico City, but in time will be built through Central America to Argentine in South America completing a 12,000-mile unit.

The notables at the ceremony moved to Nuevo Laredo, just across the Rio Grande for a brief celebration before piling into automobiles for a 763-mile tour over the highway to the southern republic's capital.

Cortes Herrero, sub-secretary of Mexican communications, provided 30 automobiles, baggage trucks and even two ambulances for the caravan. The party stopped tonight in Monterrey for another ceremony.

Garner planned to return to his home at Uvalde by train tonight from Monterrey but Ambassador Daniels, Senators McAdoo, Connally and Chavez of New Mexico intended to continue with the motorcade to the capital.

Sixteen-Inch Guns May Be Used On New Battleships

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP) — Indication that 16-inch guns would be used on any new battleships constructed by the United States were given today by Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary of the navy.

Asked at his press conference whether Japan's reported refusal to adhere to the 1936 naval treaty meant that the United States would employ 16-inch guns in place of the 14-inch guns now used, Standley replied:

"That will all depend on decisions to be made when designs not yet finally completed are finished."

Standley added the United States had felt generally that "16-inch guns were more advantageous for our uses than the 14-inch size."

Delbert Green Loses "Last Move" To Escape Firing Squad

SALT LAKE CITY, July 1. (AP) — Delbert Green, beady-eyed triple slayer, lost today in his "last move" to escape a Utah firing squad. He will be shot July 10.

The state board of pardons flatly refused to commute the 28-year-old killer's sentence to life imprisonment.

Attorneys said there would be no further move in Green's behalf.

Thus apparently was concluded a six-year legal battle in which the convict twice won stays as he trembled in his death cell on the eve of scheduled execution.

COOLER WEATHER REPORTED

ATLANTA, July 1. (AP) — Cooler weather spread into the parched south today but the section was far from comfortable.

In Rhodesia, Africa, during 1930, total deaths caused by lions, elephants, crocodiles, rhinos, snakes, domestic cattle, buffaloes, suicide, lightning, and drowning was 350. During the same period, 8000 persons were killed in London by motor cars alone.

tonio Gonzales house collapsed, were believed drowned.

Nine Carried Away

Huddled in Antonio Gonzales' home, a few hundred yards away from the train crash, were nine Mexicans. Creek waters finally swept the shack lose and all were carried away. Mrs. Jesus Garza and two children and three other members of the Gonzales family are still missing.

Several miles downstream the creek surged into the home of Hanes, a negro, and Valdez. The Mexican's wife and three daughters and sons escaped and sought refuge in a tree but Valdez, and Ignacio and Gabino Hernandez were trapped. His family was later rescued.

Gonzales Flooded

At Gonzales, 60 miles east of here, water poured into the residential and business section after a second cloudburst struck the town during mid-morning. Water stood a foot deep in stores and sections of the residential section were inundated.

The Guadalupe rive, five feet over flood stage at 33 feet, was rising at two feet an hour and thousands of acres of cotton and corn crops were ruined. Hundreds of head of cattle were reported lost by cattlemen unable to drive herds out of lowlands because of suddenness of the flood.

12.15 Inches Reported

At Rockdale, farther north, 12.15 inches of rain fell during the night, the heaviest precipitation since 1900. No loss of life was reported although volunteers rescued several lowland families.

Old timers at Gonzales feared the possibility of the Guadalupe and San Marcos rivers, which converge near there, joining to flood the city and surrounding section for the first time in history.

Sections to the west of Gonzales reported rainfall reaching maximums of 14 to 16 inches.

Much Land Flooded

Rough estimates by farmers placed the inundated land at 300,000 acres, meaning almost total lost to cotton and corn crops in that area. No lives were reported lost in the Gonzales sector but many farm homes along the river bank were feared either under or surrounded by water.

Two men, two women and four children were rescued from a tourist camp on Tinsley creek when the water had reached a depth of two feet in thier cabins. Many residents in the southwestern portion of the city were forced to flee their homes. Men carried wives and children from houses in neck deep water.

Cattle Loss Tremendous

The cattle loss was tremendous. One stockman said he stood on a hill near the city and watched the water close in on 200 head of cattle he had herded into a pen near the river before the cloudburst broke.

County officials feared the crop loss would exceed $1,000,000 and the water damage in the town will run into many thousands of dollars.

Highest In History

Plum creek, little tributary which took the largest death toll, was at the highest point in history as all highways leading out of Gonzales were under water.

Potions of Cuero, where the Guadalupe was 25 feet above normal and steadily rising, were under a foot of water and torrential rains in the Luling sector put the San Marcos river on a 25 foot rise.

Beneficial In Some Areas

Some sections, however, reported the rainfall as beneficial, such as Kerrville, where crops were benefitted and highways remained open. At Comfort and Fredericksburg, where floods in the past have proved disastrous, heavy rains, hitting a high of 10 inches in Gillespie county, were reported. Highway traffic was opened after flood waters of the Pedernales and Barons creek started receding.

Fredericksburg was cut off from train service until at least Thursday, said Frank Goodale, chief engineer of the Fredericksburg and Northern road, after a bridge over Grape creek washed out. The slow rain in some sections did untold good to corn and sorghum crops.

The Guadalupe neared the flood stage at Victoria as outlying sections were covered with water. Cotton farmers feared one of the greatest crops in the history of the county would be ruined.

making arrangements with local leaders of the Hunter forces. He said the candidate had been addressing large crowds on his tour. From Lubbock he goes to Brady, instead of Big Spring as first announced.

To Stress Proposal

The candidate will stress his proposal for administration of the old age pension fund by the commissioners courts and county judges of the state.

His gross income tax program is expected to come in for considerable attention in the Lubbock address. "This tax will fall largely on those monopolies which exploit our natural resources," the candidate has declared," and this tax will exempt the man of moderate means up to and including wages, earnings and profits of $4,000 per year."

Much literature has been received here for distribution at the rally. An attendance from many other towns besides Lubbock is expected by the local committee.

Copies of the platform, copies of the Plain Dealer, a newspaper devoted to the Hunter candidacy, and other matter, is to be distributed.

Sonja Cuts Figure On Screen

Sonja Henie, blond Norwegian figure skater who holds world and Olympic honors, now is cutting quite a fancy figure on the screen, having gone to Hollywood in a big way. Max Baer Seeks Braddock Fight

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Ancil Hoffman manager of Max Baer, stepped into the muddled heavyweight picture today. By wire he asked Joe Gould, manager of Champion Jimmy Braddock, whether he would be interested in a title match between Braddock and Baer at Dallas, Chicago or some California city in September for a $200,000 guarantee.

Gould said he would hold the offer in abeyance until he saw whether Madison Square Garden and Promoter Mike Jacobs could get together on a title bout between Braddock and Max Schmeling.

Flood Description

of acres of rich farmland. Plants were left bent and twisted. Roads were inundated and washouts could be seen frequently. Many bridges were under water, and their approaches showed the effects of the ripping waters.

Near Rockdale in Milam county, farms were a picture of desolation. Cornstals in the fields had become so entangled the nature of the crop was hardly distinguishable.

Five miles west of Lexington, Lee county, a stream so small the map did not show it, was a vast, dirty torrent, a half-mile wide.

Dead Cattle Seen

Now and then bodies of dead cattle could be seen where waters had receded.

Southward over the mostly wooded areas of Lee and Bastrop counties damages were not apparently so great. The Colorado river west of Smithville was within banks though near a flood stage.

Like Huge Lake

Twenty miles north of Gonzales the vista of ruin began again. For miles the rich farming country presented the appearance of a huge lake. In some low areas only fence posts marked the boundaries of cultivated fields.

Gonzales showed the ravages of the torrential rains, with a portion of the business section, including the power plant, standing in water several feet deep. The Guadalupe river stretched two miles wide in places. Farm houses along its banks were lonely little islands in vast, dirty, muddy stream.

The race track was an oval of posts in a lake.

Cattle On Bridge

Twenty miles northeastward two white-faced steers surveyed a marine world from sanctuary on a bridge which once spanned the San Marcos river.

At Kyle, between Austin and San Antonio, where Plum creek became a roaring torrent and swept 12 persons to their deaths, the splintered remains of a freight train which fell through a weakened trestle, had drawn hundreds of curious.

Near Austin and Northward, evidences of teh downpours became less and less marked. White wash floated in sunlight on lines. Fields were moistened with welcome rain, but not washed or harmed.

Throughout the flight one evidence of man's ingenuity in conquering nature was unmistakable. Fields with contour plowing were rarely harmed. Those with straight rows were washed and ruined.

POLICE ON EDGE

DALLAS, July 1. (AP)—The third Dallas taxi drivers strike kept police on edge tonight as they investigated first reports of violence.

Moving into its third night, the walkout of cabbies demanding a "closed shop" had the first stigma of violence marked against it when Vining Bogard, 27-year-old restaurant cook, said he was beaten by three men wearing chauffeurs' caps.

Eavesdropping is against the law in Oklahoma.

that our weather has definitely changed but if we have during the next seven years weather as freakish as that which we have had during the past seven, it may well be that the people of the United States will call on the federal government in no unmistakable terms to aid them in making certain profound adjustments."

Complexity Cited

Even were the climate to remain as it is, Wallace said "people in eastern United States and in Europe do not appreciate the violence of the extremes of weather in central United States."

"Our rains are much more dashing than those of western Europe," he went on, "and a much higher percentage of our land is under the plow."

All this, the secretary continued, adds complexity to the New Deal's efforts to conserve the soil, a problem of which he said "until recent years not one farmer in a thousand and not one city person in 10,000 had an adequate understanding."

Administration Defended

Already 50,000,000 acres had been destroyed by water erosion and 150,000,000 more "seriously damaged" by "our carelessness," he declared.

The secretary defended the Roosevelt administration's farm program on the grounds that prosperity in agriculture is inevitably hitched to prosperity in industry.

Idaho Senator To Make First Pronouncement Of Parties' Monopoly Planks In Speech At Twin Falls, Idaho

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 1.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho intends to make his first pronouncement of the Republican and Democratic monopoly planks in a speech July 4 at Twin Falls, Idaho, he said in an interview today.

"I shall likely say that both parties have been converted," the senator said as he stopped between trains en route to his home. He added:

"The worry is, will they carry it out?"

Whether or not he decides to run for reelection, Senator Borah said, he would not discuss personal affairs in his first two addresses upon his return to Idaho.

Asked if he planned to continue discussing national issues, the senator said:

"Under whatever circumstances I speak, you may safely predict that I will discuss the issues of monopoly, money, and international relations."

Zioncheck Terms Candidacy Of Rep Lemke "Ill Advised"

MINNEAPOLIS, July 1. (AP) — Marion A. Zioncheck, fun loving Democratic representative of Washington, en route to Seattle, today termed the Union party presidential candidacy of Rep. William Lemke (R-ND) "ill advised."

"Lemke is sincere," he said upon arrival here by train, "but he told me once the depression would end when the soldiers' bonus was paid and the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinance plan went through."

Rep. Zioncheck struck out at the airplane company which refused him passage from Chicago and promised he was "going to be a model boy."

But, he added, when his primary campaign opens, "things are going to start popping and a lot of people will have trouble sitting down. I might get beat but a lot of people will know they've been in a fight."

Highlights Of Demo Session To Be Given By Dr. Jackson

Highlights of the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia will be discussed by Dr. W. A. Jackson, who was a state deelgate, tonight at 8 o'clock on the lawn south of the administration building at the college. The meeting will be open to the public.

Doctor Jackson is head of the government department at the college.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, Tech president, will preside at the meeting, which will be sponsored by the college.

Stamford Is All Prepared

Thousands Of Visitors Expected For Annual Texas Cowboy Reunion, July 2,3 And 4; Events Scheduled

STAMFORD, July 1. (Special) With decorated streets and festooned buildings Stamford is ready to receive and welcome the hundreds of contestants and thousands of visitors expected here for the seventh annual Texas Cowboy reunion, July 2-3-4.

Sidney Johnson, Snyder, has the distinction of being the first contestant to enter the 1936 rodeo. Johnson with his mount "Sport" will take part in the cutting horse contest. Another performer to qualify early is Simpson Johnson of Gun, winner of the 1935 prize in the Oldtimer's calf-roping contest, although not eligible for the money this year, Johnson wrote that he wanted to enter just for the fun of it.

Others Entering Rapidly

Other entries are coming in fast, according to Rudie Swenson, assistant manager of the reunion and chairman of Rodeo events. Swenson stated that present indications are that there will be as many contestants this year, and possibly more, than in any former year. Six o'clock p. m. on July 1, is the deadline for filing in all classes except the riding events which will remain open until 11 a. m. on the opening day, July 2nd.

A new string of stock, including a carload of 4 and 5 year old Brahma steers, 75 husky, fast calves, several head of broncs with an established bad reputation, and a herd of range cows for the wild cow-milking contest, promises to the contenders and spectators alike that they will get their money's worth at all performances.

Plan Fast Program

John Selmon, arena director, assisted by the judges, Frank Rhodes, Throckmorton county rancher; Jess Slaughter, rancher and sheriff of Howard county; and George Humphries, wagon boss of the 6666 Ranch plan to have all the events move off at a fast pace. Sound equipment has been intalled and spectators will be given detailed information on all entries at every performance. The elimination of dust in the natural amphitheater arena is expected to aid materially in speeding up the show as well as add to the comfort of everyone.

Numerous other attractions will entertain the visitors in between rodeo events. There will be a parade every day, the sponsor's parade on the morning of the first day, the grand parade on the second day beginning at 11 o'clock a. m. and a final parade, headed by Governor James V. Allred, at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the closing day. The cowboys will have a square dance nightly at the bunkhouse, and the sponsors will be honored with a dance each night at the Stamford Country club Oldtime fiddlers will stage a contest for first, second, third and fourth prize money at the City Auditorium, Saturday morning, July 4, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

Wilson Plans Fourth Event

Ball Games, Rodeo, Dances, Barbecue And Speaking By Candidates Scheduled In Lynn County Town

WILSON, July 1. (Special)—Residents of this community and their neighbors are planning a wide variety of entertainment for July Fourth.

Ball games, a rodeo, two dances, addresses by candidates, and free barbecue are planned, said Doc Cook, general chairman.

Stamps To Cross Border By Rockets

McALLEN, July 1. (AP) — Rockets containing American and Mexican stamps will be fired across the Rio Grande along the Mexican border south of here July 2 in a stunt conceived by American legionnaires of McAllen as an aid in paying for their new $10,000 building.

Two thousand covers will soar over the international boundary—from the United States to Mexico and return.

The event, in connection with the dedication of the building, will be held near the international bridge at Hidalgo.

The tubes crossing from the United States to Mexico will carry covers bearing the new 40-centavo airmail stamp designed by the Mexican government to commemorate the opening of the Mexico City to Laredo highway tomorrow.

Rockets to be shot from Reynosa, Mex., to the American side will carry covers bearing the United States 16-cent special delivery airmail stamp.

The legionnaires hope stamp collectors will buy enough for the covers to defray much of the expense of the new building.

Building Permits Now At $329,905

Building permits for June totaled third highest among the first six months of this year, records at the office of city building inspector show.

June totals were $58,714, from 46 permits. The half year totals were $329,905, more than $100,000 above the aggregate for 1935.

February, with $136,438, and March, with $70,117.50, were months with higher totals.

July totals reached $1,122 the first day with four permits filed this morning by D. A. Forbess, building inspector.

Appreciation Is Secret Of Pat Malone's Record

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Down the sports trail and into "murderers' row" with the larruping New York Yankees:

BLUBBER

Pat Malone was the first man of the high-flying, power-mad Yankee crew to enter the clubhouse and, as he jerked on his socks and spat big streams of tobacco juice, he told what was making him click this season.

"Everything I have in this wide world I owe to Joe McCarthy," said the big right-hander who likes to refer to himself as Blubber. "He gave me my chance with the Cubs, keeping me when I looked terrible at the start of my big league career there. He gave me my last chance in the winter of 1934 when the Cardinals told me I could make a deal for myself. Now my one burning ambition is to lend a hand in helping the boss, a real father to me, win the American league pennant, and win it easy."

Malone's success in baseball is due strictly to McCarthy's confidence. In 1928, Minneapolis sold him on option to the Cubs, managed then by Marse Joe. When the time came for the Cubs to send him back or buy him outright for $25,000 and three players, Malone had lost six straight games. It looked like he was going back to Minneapolis, but McCarthy recommended his purchase.

Pat rewarded him by winning 60 games for him over the next three years.

So far this season Pat has won 7, lost 2 and saved four. Never in his long career as a star and a problem child had Malone worked as hard as he has this year.

"When I told Joe I would not turn him down this time, I meant what I said," said Malone, a veteran at 32.

GOOD OLD DAYS

Lou Gehrig and Tony Lazzeri, big cogs in the original "murderers' row" of 1927, admit the current Yankee edition of fence busters is a great one—but hardly up to the 1927 model.

"No, I think the old one was far stronger, was more powerful and faced better pitching," said Lazzeri. "We're looking better this year because the pitching is very poor. Give me that 1927 club anytime over this one."

"Yeah," said Gehrig, "That was the better club by a mile."

"I'd like to have watched that one," joined in Joe Di Maggio.

Bud Ecton Shoots Out Todd And Is Dark Horse Favorite

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 1. (AP)—Bud Ecton, Oklahoma City golfer, loomed tonight as a dark-horse favorite in the Western Junior Open Golf tournament here after eliminating an outstanding star, Harry Todd of Dallas, one up in a second round match.

Todd played perfect golf in the morning round to down Maurice Hankinson, tourney medalist of Oklahoma City, 4 and 3, but he found his shots wilder in the afternoon. Three up and four to go, Ecton dropped two starignt holes and had to one-putt the 17th to keep the match from being all even. He halved the final with a 5 to take the match.

Ecton meets slender Tommy Lutts, Oklahoma City, in the upper bracket of the quarter-finals tomorrow. Lutts scored a 2 and 1 victory over his brother, Merle, in the morning and won by the same margin in the afternoon over Garland Collier, another Oklahoma City shotmaker.

Fans will be admitted to the ball game and the rodeo for a single admission ticket.

Wilson takes on both the Tahoka teams this week-end. After playing Skip Taylor's outfit Saturday, the local club will invade Tahoka for a game with Prentice Walker's young club.

Marvel Takes Dick Trout In Straight Sets

Sailor Watkins Humbles But Doesn't Pin Matsura With Rough Outbreak; The Mask Employs Fist To Win

The Man with the Mask mauled himself to another mat victory last night, victimizing the clean and clever-wrestling Dick Trout of California with a knockout punch eight minutes after the second fall of their main event started.

There wasn't any third fall, because The Mask had won the first canto, a rousing 33-minute affair in which the easy-going Trout gave Mister X more than one dose of bitters.

Marvel Out-Boxed

The straight falls victory, first in several weeks here, left the free-minded fans shouting, with reservations, the praises of the apparently unbeatable Marvel, and caused the more tender-hearted to increase their hatred for "anybody as mean as that guy in the hood."

Trout, one of the better scientific grapplers but slow to anger, made the Marvel back off three times last night in fast exchanges of fisticuffs. The Trout boy can handle his dukes. He crouched like a professional boxer, lambasted the heck out of the Marvel when the latter chose to make it a fist fight. It was the first time on record here that a wrestler has made the Mask go in reverse at his own game.

But it was a straight right-handed punch, a fist to the button, that finally stopped Trout. He wasn't looking for it. They had engaged in a rapid exchange just a few minutes earlier, but at the time they were indulging in a bit of flying tackling and dodging. The Mask drew Trout into him, sidestepped niftily and clouted him one. Trout fell like Joe Louis, and was easily smothered.

Trout Wears On Mask

The Marvel won the first stanza with a Japanese crab, one of the few wrestling holds he applied all evening. Trout had been bothering The Mask more than somewhat with a series of head scissors. He put these on as fast as the Mask could get out of the last one. After getting out, The Mask would tear for the ropes, but Trout would tear right after him, grab a headlock over the rope and yank him back inside, throw on a head scissors and methodically apply the pressure.

These things were beginning to wear on The Mask, who didn't tire too much to watch his chances, however. Finally he saw the break. Trout laid himself open by never changing his attack, and when he elevated his posterior section to swing his legs around the Mask's neck his legs were caught in a bear-like grip, and he was turned over in the terrifying Jap crab.

Matsura Takes Lesson

And speaking of Japs, your Mister Matty Matsura took himself a licking last night.

There was no fall, but for thirty minutes of the special event Sailor Tex Watkins, at his best, or worst, so punished the Oriental that the flags in Japan should have dropped to half-mast of their own accord.

It was the most feeble showing Matsura ever made here. It seemed he could never get going, although he had 30 minutes to do it. Sailor Watkins swarmed over him like a hive of hornets, and the sting of a hive of hornets probably would not have been any more severe than Watkins' ungentlemanly tactics. They wrestled for a while, maybe 10 minutes, then the Jap took a lesson in United States navy rough stuff. He was initiated most thoroughly into the order of rough and tumble, as Watkins wound up his act with a game of blind man's buff, Matsura being the fall guy and the blind man.

Watkins so applied things to the Jap's eyes that Matty didn't know from which direction the storm would come next. He was a pitiful sight, groveling on the floor, asking for mercy, his eyes streaming tears brought on by constant application of a foreign substance.

Sailor Fights Two

Watkins whipped two men last night, Matsura and Referee Big Train Clements. He indulged in fisticuffs with the referee just to pass the time away while the Jap recovered from the last spilling. When it was over, Watkins and Clements were bleeding freely from the eyes. Clements opened a one-inch cut over Sailor's eye that required medical attention, and the sailor did practically the same for Big Train. Oh, it was quite a mussy affair.

Buck Lipscomb and Jack Hagen engaged in a bar brawl to start the proceedings. It was almost an exact duplication of their scrap two weeks ago, only this time Hagen got the better of it. He played Lipscomb's game, chased him all over the ring when he got angry enough. Trouble was, he didn't get angry often enough. They were fairly well tuckered when the 20 minutes were up, however. Each had spilled the other out into the lap of third row ringsiders more than once, and it was something to bring the fans, all of them, from their chairs.

Better'n The Babe?

Texas' Babe Didrikson (left), star of the 1932 women's Olympic Games, has been supplanted as the world's track queen. Now holding the throne—and the limelight, as Olympic tryouts approach—is Missouri's record-smashing Helen Stephens (right) an eight-event star.

Muleshoe Plays Lubbock And Ropes Meets Anton Saturday In First Round Of Baseball

Fourth Of July Series Stacks Up As Hot Attraction Here Saturday And Sunday; Two Games Each Day

The South Plains' most attractive Fourth of July baseball blowout was definitely lined up last night with managers of four teams, enthusiastic over prospects of a big two-day celebration, agreed to terms and schedules for the Saturday and Sunday series.

The four clubs are Muleshoe, Anton, Ropesville and Lubbock, and baseball fans of these four towns are in for a merry double round of the national pastime if indications mean anything.

The fireworks will begin to pop at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Ropesville and Anton tie into each other at the College Avenue field.

Everything In Baseball

When that game is over, the Hubbers of Lubbock will clash with the classy Muleshoe team, and anything in the way of baseball that the first game doesn't bring out is pretty sure to be pictured in the second game, which should begin about four o'clock.

Ropesville came into the series yesterday, supplanting Shallowater, whose players wanted a vacation for the Fourth. Ropesville, one of the stronger clubs of the section directly southwest, and Anton are due to tangle in an old-fashioned grudge battle, there being little good feeling between the clubs.

Lubbock and Muleshoe originally were scheduled to play Sunday, but when the July 4th series was arranged, the date was moved up one day. Fans of Muleshoe, confident their revamped team will take the Hubbers to a cleaning, are due to move in in large numbers. Muleshoe will bring a strong setup to Lubbock, Manager D. O. Smith having made arrangements to bring a club here he believes will walk away with first place money.

Order Reversed Sunday

On Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the two losing teams of Saturday will clash for third and fourth place, and the second game of the double bill, Saturday's winners will do their stuff.

Each of the four teams will receive cash awards, winners in each game sharing equally, losers also sharing equally, although in less quantity. Each competing team is sure of winning something, even the team which loses both games.

Admission to the double headers each day will be 25 cents for adults, 15 for youngsters.

Von Cramm To Meet Perry In Tennis Finals

German Baron Beats England's Bunny Austin While Champ Perry Takes Out Don Budge Of California

By GALE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 1. (AP)—Defending Champion Fred Perry and Germany's fair-haired Baron Gottfried Von Cramm today gained the final round of the All-England tennis championship for the second straight year.

After dropping the first set, Perry, striving for his third straight title, hauled up his heaviest artillery to blast out a 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 victory over America's brightest star, red headed Donald Budge.

Briton Is Favored

Von Cramm's high-kicking service proved the decisive factor in his hard won 8-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 triumph over England's stylish Davis Cup star, H. W. (Bunny) Austin.

Thus the final on Friday will be a repetition of the 1935 championship round, which saw Perry vanquish the German ace in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Notwithstanding that Von Cramm has improved since then and holds a victory over Perry in the finals of the 1936 French hard court tournament, the wing-footed Briton ruled the 3 to 2 favorite tonight.

Lubbock Women's City Open Starts Next Wednesday

All women golfers of Lubbock are expected to qualify Wednesday of next week for the annual women's city open tournament, all of which is to be conducted at Meadowbrook Golf club.

Mrs. Sid Thrash, director of publicity for the tournament, announced yesterday members of two committees who will work in connection with the affair. The tournament committee proper consists of Mrs. C. E. Dean, Mrs. W. P. Helwig and Mrs. Charles Hagler. The prize committee is Mrs. J. H. Stiles, Mrs. T. B. Duggan, jr., and Mrs. Leland Mast.

Match play will start Thursday, and continue through Saturday, when the finals are scheduled.

Mrs. Thrash said that all women golfers of the city were invited to play practice rounds at Meadowbrook anytime between now and the tournament. Meadowbrook officials are making a special green fee for players who wish to practice.

The tournament routine was changed this year, all of it to be played on one course. Meadowbrook will be host this year, with Country club getting the 1937 tournament.

Farley Issues Quiet Warning

Democratic National Chairman Is Of Opinion Campaign To Be "Horse Race"; Not So Sure Of Victory Now

BY RAY TUCKER

PHILADELPHIA, July 1. — Although he did not broadcast his fears for headlines, national chairman James A. Farley solemnized the national convention with a private warning to state, city and county leaders that the Roosevelt-Landon presidential contest looks like a "horse race."

Openly the Democrats profess no fear of the outcome in November. Privately they concede that they are not so sure of victory as they were a few weeks ago.

Rows Have Developed

Unpublished but bitter internal rows have developed into fullest fighting flower here. Mr. Farley discovered that his party is not so united as he thought it was. The so-called old guard faction in the party is sore at the neglect which has been shown it in many states.

The resolution was a shock even to highest party chieftains who thought they had been in touch with partisan thought. They learned that fences throughout the Middle West —where the candidacy of Rep. Lemke will prove most powerful— have broken down in the last four years. Beneath optimistic claims of triumph lie brooding suspicions that 1936 will be a different story from 1932.

Inside Is 297 Votes

Some time ago President Roosevelt told friends that he expected to win 325 electoral votes. Now the inside figure is 297, the decrease resulting entirely from the Democrats' dread that disaffection in the west and east may cost them many slates which they had counted in their column. The new figure is only 31 more than the number necessary for election and the turnover of a few states could easily upset these calculations.

The drop from happy estimates of 325 to 297 just about measures the lessened confidence which Democratic insiders in the November outcome as a result of developments at Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Gain Only Temporary

Despite the hoopla and the headlines which a party convention always generates, and the seemingly psychological advantage which the Democrats have now, smart politicians recognize that this gain is only temporary.

Mr. Farley privately as well as publicly, believes that his hero, FDR, will win in November. But the chairman is too realistic a politician to think that he has the same sort of "pushover" that he had four years ago.

He and the president are more afraid of over-confidence among party workers than of Landon's positive strength. They are worried lest "the boys" fail to bring out that 20 per cent vote which shows up at the polls only as a result of personal solicitation.

May Not Ring Doorbells

In many states, notably New York, New England and other eastern sections, party workers are so lukewarm and their fingers are so stiff from not cashing federal checks that they may not ring many doorbells on a certain Tuesday after a certain Monday next November.

It's because of the unexpected exhibition of deep-seated party soreness here that Chairman Jim has been holding these secret and ominous powwows.

He has sent every precinct worker and postmaster home with the idea that their bread and butter may be taken out of their mouths. That's the most effective way, he figures, to get out the vote.

Legend Of Massacre Of 1757 Of Old Fort-Mission Recalled

MENARD, July 1. (AP) — Local legend blames the 1757 massacre of the occupants of the Presidio de Las Amarillas, one mile above Menard on the San Saba river, to objection of Indians of advances to their women by the hundred or more soldiers stationed at the old fort and mission.

This mission was founded 200 years ago by the Catholic missionaries and Spanish troopers. It contained about 100 soldiers and five or six priests. It is generally believed that from this presidio was operated the old Bowie silver mine and that Indians did most of the mining. Across the river from the presidion was an encampment of Apache Indians.

The missionaries built a dam, remains of which can be seen, ran irrigation ditches out through the fertile grounds and grew many kinds of crops. A part of the old vineyard is still visible and outlines of the irrigation ditches can be traced. The mission was operated out of the San Antonio diocese.

The earth rises and falls from 13 to 23 inches daily in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, according to scientists.

Bits Of News Gathered On Oil Development In Area

RESULTS NOT KNOWN

SEMINOLE, July 1. (Special) — Results of a second treatment of 3,000 gallons of acid to the W. H. Kirk No. 1 of the Landreth Production Co., south of here, will not be known until swabbing has been finished.

The Gaines county pool opener, a first county producer, was shot with 3,000 gallons Monday night, beginning at 10:30 p. m. and ceasing at 4:30 Tuesday.

Tubing is set at 4,820 feet, the bottom, with the bottom joint perforated. Seven-inch casing was set at 4,270 feet.

First acid treatment, Saturday, of 1,000 gallons, failed to materially increase the oil flow that was previously given as three barrels per hour. Gas was increased, however, to 250,000 feet, it was estimated.

Congressional Efforts To Aid Farmers Branded As Failure

ST. PAUL, July 1. (AP)—Congressional efforts to solve farmers' problems were branded as a failure by Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R-ND), in addressing the National Farm Holiday convention today.

"I am not particularly proud of being a member of congress," said Burdick, campaign manager for Rep. William Lemke (R-ND), the Union party's presidential candidate.

"We brought home only a 'lame duck' bonus, a soldiers bonus by taxation to show for our efforts. They just refused to issue money for it," he said.

Trips At Tech Are Arranged

Visit To Grand Canyon National Park And Caverns To Be Taken; Reservations Are Needed To Complete Groups

Plans are being completed for trips to points of interest to be sponsored by Texas Technological college this week-end and Dean James M. Gordon urged that students who plan to go enroll as soon as possible so that hotel reservations may be made.

A trip to Grand Canyon was practically assured last night, although several reservations still may be taken.

At least one bus and perhaps two will go to Carlsbad caverns, 50 persons having enrolled. One bus will leave at 2 p. m. Friday and one at 4:45 a. m. Saturday. Both groups will return Saturday.

Cost of fare to Grand Canyon by chartered bus will be $10, hotel room will cost $1.25 and food will be the only other expense. The group would leave at 2 p. m. Friday, arrive in Williams, Ariz., about noon Saturday and would leave Sunday afternoon for home.

Among enrollees for the Grand Canyon trip are Gene Benham, Julia Cruse, Mrs. S. B. Haynes, Nora Smith, Faye Rogers, Bonnie K. Dysart, Gussie Teague, Agnes A. True, Carolyn Cason, Mrs. L. C. Cason and Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Strout, Robert Graham and Lucile Liljedahl.

Graduates and ex-students of Tech may enroll for the trips.

A faculty member will accompany each group. T. C. Root will go to Carlsbad and Dean Gordon or some other official or faculty member to Grand Canyon.

Mr. Root said last night that registry for students making the Carlsbad trip was not complete until they have presented activity tickets at information office to be certified for passage through the cavern without charge. This must be done before Friday noon.

A trip to the Texas Centennial has been postponed to a later date, probably in three weeks, it was said.

Two Groups Of Checks Received

Two groups of United States checks from the AAA were received yesterday, bringing an additional $15,000 to Lubbock county farmers and land owners, said County Agent C. C. Jobson in announcing receipt of nearly 600 checks.

Four hundred and thirteen second cotton payment checks, amounting to $12,528.34, were in one lot. Cards for those to whom the checks were made out were mailed. A number yesterday had called at the office for the checks.

One hundred forty second corn-hog payment checks also were received. They amounted to $2,529.13. These were the last payment under the old contract, the agent added.

Mexican Grins When Questioned And Reveals Six-Foot Plant Has Been Growing Unmolested On Courthouse Square

"Any marijuana growing in this secton?" a Journal reporter asked in Mexican town Wednesday at conclusion of a random browse for news.

The Mexican he had been talking with grinned.

"No, but I know where some is," he said.

Still grinning, he informed the reporter he would find a luxurious six-foot plant in the middle of the city—in a place where several hundred persons had passed in touching distance without recognizing it.

"Where?"

"On the courthouse lawn, near the sidewalk on the south side."

The reporter couldn't believe his informant. Enlisting assistance of a parks department employe he found the plant of the ribbed trunk and serrated leaves, growing under the eyes of officialdom.

"I didn't know what it was," said the parks employe. "I left it because I thought it was pretty."

Sheriff Tom Abel inspected a leaf of the potent narcotic weed and identified it as marijuana.

Orders to destroy the big plant, the leaves of which when mixed with tobacco would be of sufficient quantity to give wholesale headaches and nearly as many pipe dreams as an opium den, were given.

Titian, the artist, obtained inspiration from a bunch of grapes which he kept hanging in his studio as an example of beauty of form and line.

Wheat Surplus Predicted Low

Total Is Said To Be Smallest In Nine Years; Carryover Of World Is Also Placed At Similar Figure

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 1. — The world wheat surplus was estimated today by the bureau of agricultural economics at 388,000,000 bushels—the smallest in nine years.

This surplus as of July 1 in Argentina, Australia, Canada and the United States, the principal exporting nations, compared with 532,000,000 bushels a year ago, 741,000,000 in 1934 and 789,000,000—an all time peak—in the summer of 1933.

Carryover Also Smallest

The bureau added the world carryover also would be the smallest in nine years—a total of 635,000,000 bushels as of July 1 compared with 856,000,000 a year ago and 1,109,000,000 two years ago.

The United States carryover was reported at 125,000,000 bushels, the smallest since July 1, 1928. This compared with 152,000,000 in 1935, 286,000,000 in 1934 and 393,000,000 on July 1, 1933, which was an all-time high.

Whisky Confiscated Here By Officers; 43½ Gallons Taken

Eighty-seven half-gallons of corn whisky were seized early Wednesday afternoon by officers who staged a raid.

The officers raided a residence and its outbuildings about six miles south of Lubbock on the Slaton highway. The liquor was found in a cowshed in half-gallon jars.

Raiders were Deputies Sheriff Bedford F. Carpenter, Cap Moore, and Grady Harris; R. L. Wicker, Slaton police chief, Ragan Reed, Slaton constable; Lewis Kittrell and Bill Mabray, city motorcycle patrolmen.

One man was arrested. Officers had not determined whether he would be charged in county court or in federal court.

The first man John North arrested when he became a member of the Los Angeles police force 25 years ago was William Tobin, booked for drunkenness. North recently retired and his last prisoner was William Tobin, again booked for drunkenness.

Confidence Shattered

LITTLE Emperor Haile Selassie, whose empire has been gobbled by Italy, spoke straight from the shoulder when he addressed the League of Nations assembly.

"I could not believe that 52 nations—among them the most powerful in the world—could be defeated by a single aggressor," he said.

Thus he squarely placed the failure of the league upon that assembly itself. Mussolini's conquest had been the league's supreme test—and the league faltered.

We cannot believe that a better league will rise, like the Phoenix, from the ashes of the old one. The confidence of the smaller nations in such an organization has been shattered.

Even should the league fail to recognize Italy's claim to Ethiopia, are there any so naive as to believe that Mussolini will restore Haile Selassie to his throne? Or that members of the league will send armies, navies, and airplanes to enforce its mandate?

Haile Selassie may well have written his speech with index finger on the walls of the league's hall. His words are that prophetic.

OIL FOR THE FUTURE

A few days ago we started losing sleep again because we had been told that our oil resources are being used up, and in a short time we might have to lay up the car because the price of gasoline would be prohibitive. Small comfort was found in the reflection that this situation would do away with the political movement to put two cars in every garage. We saw, as in a nightmare, huge automobile factories folding up because people could no longer afford to run even one.

To be sure, we had heard the prediction often enough before; just as we had heard that the world's coal supply was dwindling at such a rate that in a few decades human life would be practically extinct in all but the tropical zones. But for some reason, coal continues to come out of the ground. Oil, however, is another matter. The fields seem all to have been located. There is a lot of waste. If we use up our own resources, we may have to annex Venezuela.

We now find, however, that someone has invented a long, slim motor, which, inserted upside-down in an oil well, kicks to the surface oil which has hitherto refused to flow. If that makes the recovery of such oil commercially profitable, we may rest easy for a long time, since it is estimated that in many fields as much as 50 per cent of the oil stored in the rocks far underground has not been recovered, because it is too far down to be pumped up, and there is not enough pressure to force it to the surface.

So maybe some day there will be two cars in every garage, raising the problem of what to do with the hose and the lawn mower.

DEBT-FREE NEBRASKA

Citizens of Nebraska evidently posses a unique political insight. They know how to make their lawmakers call a spade a spade.

The state has a constitution that limits the state debt to $100,000. Nothing less than a war justifies Nebraska in borrowing money in excess of that amount.

About five years ago some members of the legislature who thought it time to make Nebraska like other states, all balled up with debts, thought up a way to do it. They proposed issuing $25,000,000 in "negotiable instruments." They knew the word "bonds" wouldn't be popular, and anyway, it would be unconstitutional to bond the state.

But negotiable instruments on the security of gasoline taxes earmarked for the purpose might get by.

They have some good civic associations in Nebraska and some good newspapers, and the vigilant taxpayers, using these, got busy. They pointed out that "negotiable instruments" might not be bonds but they would have to be met when due and, however the act was worded, it obligated the State to make good at the due date. And they said that a moral obligation in the State was not different from any other debt and was unconstitutional. The bill was defeated and Nebraska stayed out of debt.

Many a bad principal of government has been concealed under a tricky name in lawmaking.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE GRANDEST RECOGNITION

In the evening of April 30, 1917, the German submarine U 93 sighted what looked like a harmless sailing ship on the surface fo the sea. The submarine proceeded to sink it, the crew apparently left the sinking vessel and the submarine approached to watch the destruction. As soon as the submarine came within range, a concealed crew on board of the sinking schooner opened fire, disabling the submarine. The schooner was the "Prize," commanded by Lieut. Com. W. E. Sanders.

The Commander of the "Prize" was awarded the Victoria Cross upon the recommendation of Baron von Spiegel, commander of the German submarine, who was captured. It is believed to be the only time that the highest British decoration was awarded on the recomendation of an enemy.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton, investigating the murder of old Arthur Burdett, has found only two unusual circumstances so far. One is Captain Reeves' admission that he quarreled with the old miser an hour or so before he was clubbed to death; the other is Dale Shipley's exceeding interest in the conversation Hylton had with Reeves. Shipley, waster and relative of Burdett's, is annoyed that Hylton caught him in his eavesdropping. He sees a figure approaching him over the fields.

CHAPTER 13

TEA FOR TWO

"Hallo, Nancy — here, Ranger, here."

Ranger bounded up and made ecstatic questing with his lovely nose of all the agreeable horsey smells on Dale's leggings and boots; whatever difficulties might exist in the way of conversation for his divinity happily did not trouble him.

Nancy Featherstone felt embarrassed, there was only one reason why she should have chosen the path by Fielden Cottage for her afternoon walk, and she was certain that it was screaming itself aloud to high Heaven.

"It's going to freeze again," Nancy said. "If it goes on there won't be any hunting."

Dale cocked an eye round the black winter woods and the sombre sky.

"Won't be much frost tonight," he said optimistically.

"Are you going out on Friday, Dale, if they hunt?"

"I expect so."

"I hear you've bought a new horse."

"Who the devil told you that? You can't do a thing in this place without everybody knowing it in five minutes."

Nancy flushed. "I heard Saunders talking about it, that was all," she said.

Dale laughed unpleasantly. "That groom of yours knows everything, doesn't he? As a matter of fact I haven't bought it yet. At least I haven't paid for it."

"Nobody ever does pay for anything nowadays, do they? At least not on the nail."

"Depends how much money you've got, I suppose," Dale said gloomily. "I know I don't."

"Ranger, Ranger."

"What's the matter with the dog?"

"I'm afraid he's gone into your garden, Dale."

Ranger, impenitent but wary, duly came to heel.

"My Gad, Nancy," Dale laughed, "you've got a voice on you just like a man."

A queer look crossed the woman's face for a moment as she bent over Ranger to snap his lead on. "I suppose you think that's a compliment," she said as she straightened up. "Well, it must be getting on for tea time for Ranger and me. Come on, Ranger."

"Why not come in and have a cup of tea with me?" Dale suggested. "I daresay Mrs. Somers will knock something together for us."

"It's very kind of you, Dale."

Fielden Cottage was almost exactly twenty times as old as its owner and, many people would have said just about twenty times as secure and dependable. It had been built by simple homely men of simple homely materials, with the result that it still stood firm after some five hundred years, and fitted with perfect appropriateness into its surroundings.

"Mind your head," he said as he opened the front door and stood to one side, and Nancy duly ducked her head and crossed the threshold.

She had been in Fielden Cottage before, of course, and the boyish untidiness of everything, the entire absence of flowers and a dozen other details always curiously teased her heart. A log fire was smouldering in the brick grate and Dale, unearthing a pair of bellows from somewhere said in his casual way: "Nancy, see if you can get a bit of life into the fire whilst I dig out old Mother Somers, will you?"

Nancy knelt on the hearth rug before the tantalizingly unswept hearth and, like a priestess at some strange rite, proceeded to induce the miracle of flame into the reluctant logs.

An odd business, she thought, the human heart. Of all trivial things Dale could have asked her to do this business of mending his fire was the one which hurt her most and the one which she would have first chosen.

"Hallo, how's the fire going?"

"Reviving splendidly."

"Good. You're a marvel, Nancy. I told Mrs. Somers to dig out something special for tea as a lady had called on me and she said it was high time I had a lady to look after me all together. What do you think of that?"

Mrs. Somers, flurried by the unusual excitement of company, had risen nobly to the occasion, and as much food as six people could have comfortably eaten arrived in great style.

"Good afternoon, Miss."

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Somers."

"I 'ope you be keeping well, Miss."

"Yes, thank you. How are you, Mrs. Somers?"

Mrs. Somers put the tea tray down with careful deliberation. Here was a matter which warranted close attention. At the age of sixty-eight she had as much resiliency, toughness, vitality, spirit and general healthiness in her body as most townswomen of half her age. But she did not think so.

"Well, it's my legs, Miss," she said.

Nancy nodded. She knew practically all there was to know about Mrs. Somers' legs. At the Women's Institute and other places she had grown used to hearing long and dramatically detailed accounts of them.

"It's my legs, Miss," she repeated firmly, "they don't seem to be what they used—"

"Go and see if you can find that dog of Miss Featherstone's, Dale cut in loudly, "and give it a bowl of milk in the kitchen."

"Yes, sir."

Mrs. Somers and her legs, retired in a state of somewhat ruffled dignity, and Nancy, though she could not help laughing, was forced to expostulate with Dale.

"You shouldn't have cut her short so rudely, Dale, she loves talking about her legs."

"But I don't love hearing about them. Have some tea, Nancy; here, you pour out, you're better at this sort of thing than I am."

"Have you heard anything more about the business at the Court?" she asked.

"No," Dale answered shortly. "Why should I?"

"I just wondered. Everybody seems to have a new theory."

"I don't go in for theories," Dale answered virtuously. "As a matter of fact, I shouldn't be surprised if Pat Reeves weren't the last person to see the old miser alive."

Nancy has a thrill tomorrow

All Candidates List Expenditures

Initial expense accounts had been filed as required by law by 72 candidates for nomination for 23 offices in the July 25 primary, reports at the office of the county clerk indicated Wednesday.

The number represented those who are in the race for offices in or affecting Lubbock county. Two other candidates, Homer L. Pharr, for 72nd district judge and Tom H. Carter, for state representative 119th district, reported their expense accounts filed at Austin, and George S. Bond of Crosby county and Crede J. Rhea of Hockley county, candidates for the district state representative, were not required to file their accounts here.

All Accounts Filed

A check today with district and Lubbock county candidates and the clerk's office indicated that all accounts had been filed. Candidates for 16 other offices were to file their accounts at Austin.

While previous press reports had indicated that Tuesday was the last day for filing, the secretary of state's office today answered a query by the Evening Journal saying they interpreted election laws to mean that today is the last day for filing expense repotrs.

Those who filed Wednesday morning: Edgar T. Neal, for sheriff, $158.43; D. F. (Dave) Owens, for public weigher precinct 2, Slaton, $3.50.

Mount Everest, along with many other of the peaks surrounding it, once was known only by a number on the trigonometrical survey charts in the Indian government offices. Then it was discovered to be the world's highest peak, and named for Sir George Everest.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON

By Ira Bennett

G. O. P. pundits have been X-raying the Democratic platform, hoping to find weak joints and splintered planks that might give them an opportunity to knock it to flinders. They find it an extraordinary piece of workmanship, contrived by a cunning brain. If it isn't "horse-high, bull-proof and hog-tight" it at least stands firm against first assaults.

The hand of Franklin Roosevelt is visible all through the platform. Delegates who served on the platform committee, back in Washington, insist that there was genuine disagreement and honest compromise on many planks—but the general opinion is that what Senator Wagner carried in his pocket from the White House emerged victorious at Philadelphia.

By what it implies, in its glimpse of bold future developments if its champion is kept in power, the platform is regarded by national observers as a crossroads sign pointing to an entirely new system of life in America.

SPEED: Inquiry among keen, experienced and detached men, including jurists of eminence, brings the opinion that the platform declaration concerning possible change of the constitution is advance notice of a national battle. The president's acceptance speech sharpens the issue by making clear his determination to drive forward with laws which may be overturned by the judicial power, in which case he will demand amendment of the Constitution as duly provided, but swiftly.

"Can Mr. Roosevelt, if elected, drive through the laws giving increased power to the federal government, and not meet another Waterloo when his laws go up against the Supreme court?"

This question is answered in the negative by most of the non-partisan observers who have been consulted.

ALTERNATIVE: The point is made that the personnel of the Supreme court in all probability could not be made over during the next four years to such an extent as to reverse the court's fundamental position.

The court was not 5 to 4 on the crucial test of the New Deal—the proposal to assert federal control over business within the states. It was unanimous in voiding the NRA. It reiterated its position, taken many years ago and often embedded in precedent cases, that production, manufacturing, mining and commerce not interstate in character cannot be controlled by the federal government. The appointment of even four new justices would not change that position, in the opinion of many experienced jurists and lawyers.

Hence they believe that, if Mr. Roosevelt should continue efforts in that direction, he would be forced to sound the battle-cry for alteration of the Constitution to bring about his proposed new order of American life.

CONFIDENCE: Observers comment on the skill with which President Roosevelt has pressed his cause in spite of the collapse of vital New Deal laws. Those reverses would have baffled and defeated a less resourceful President. The opposition would have gained the upper hand by merely pointing to the ruins. But the President has turned discussion away from his laws that failed and held attention by driving forward his plans for enlarging federal power for the sake of the underdog.

Something of this audacious spirit permeates government agencies, particularly the new ones. A semi-religious fervor animates directing officials. They seem to be incapable of the thought that Roosevelt might be beaten. Practically all of them reinforce their spoken confidence by work which bears the stamp of joyous expectation that the country will reward them with victory.

New Deal agencies drive ahead. They are freshly supplied with money and authority.

VIGOR: Four months! What giant strokes of fate may smash campaign plans of both parties! Fate with the abhorred shears has slit the thin-spun life of many a man since Jan. 3, when Congress began its labor. Several "key men" in the House are retiring, notably John J. McSwain of South Carolina, chairman of Military Affairs. The Speaker died—hence a new alignment. Several Senators passed away. New faces appeared. The vision of the presidency faded for Borah, Vandenberg, Steiwer, Dickinson. The vision dawns for Speaker Bankhead, already proclaimed by admirers as a "sure winner" in 1940.

Many "key men" in the government are old and of brief expectation of life. But the two champions—Roosevelt and Landon—are comparatively young men, vigorous in health. President Roosevelt worked as hard as any draymen during the session—yet he is fresh for the fray.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

GOVERNOR Paul V. McNutt of Indiana is to head up an organization of veterans to support the Democratic ticket. New Yorkers in close touch with veteran sentiment call him an excellent choice. He was one of the most popular national commanders the American Legion has ever had and has kept up friendly contacts with Legion leaders.

Both parties always name committees to try to win veteran votes for their respective causes, but these groups have rarely obtained any noticeable results. Usually the committee members have confined their activities to hanging around the headquarters of veterans' organizations and glad-handing the boys. McNutt won't work that way. One reason he took the job was because it will give him a chance to tour the country and make speeches. He has definite aspirations for 1940 and he feels this is the best way to become nationally known. He is an exceptionally effective speaker—one of the best the Democrats will have.

McNutt has a good record as governor. Keen New York observers who have studied mid-western conditions first hand say that Indiana is the only state in that sector where you don't hear a lot of talk about graft at the state capital. McNutt's career is worth watching for the future.

AMBITIOUS: Another rising young Democrat who is likely to be a national headliner four years from now is Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania. He got around very actively during the convention and registered well with the delegates.

A Pennsylvania veteran proposed Earle for the veterans' committee job which was given to McNutt, but the governor made it clear that he didn't want it. He pointed out that the itinerary he has planned for the campaign would leave him no time for extraneous chores. He intends to take the stump in every county in Pennsylvania at least three times between now and November. His ardor for the cause made a strong impression on national party leaders.

Earle is another man of wealth "gone wrong." His former conservative friends speak bitterly of him as "that crazy radical." He is ambitious, he is learning the political game rapidly, and there are plenty of indications that he is going places.

PICK-UP: Eastern railroad traffic has picked up sharply since the passenger fare cuts went into effect. The roads hate to concede that the Interstate Commerce Commission may have been right in its contention that lower fares would stimulate revenues, but so far the indications are that way.

Even the New York taxi drivers have noticed the difference. Where they used to pick up an average of one or two customers a morning at the Pennsylvania Station, they now often average as high as four.

SIDELIGHTS: Friends of Theodore Roosevelt have started to boom him for governor of New York. . . That's a hardy perennial . . . . Wayland Brooks—G. O. P. candidate for governor of Illinois—made a fine impression when he spoke in New York last week . . . Some of the boys want to bring him back for the big Landon rally in Madison Square Garden.

Montfort Rites To Be In Amarillo

Montfort, who left here Jan. 9, 1910, at 11:10 o'clock with a two-driver, coal-burning locomotive for Sweetwater, died about 7 o'clock last night in the railroad hospital at Clovis, N. M. He had received treatment there for the past four months. A leg had been amputated last Friday.

A son, Frank W. Montfort of 1916 Fourth street, and two grandchildren, Frank Montfort, jr., and Marthalea Montfort, live in Lubbock. Other survivors are a son, Herbert Montfort of Sacramento, Calif., a foster daughter, Mrs. Ida Call of Springfield, Mo., and a third grandchild, Mrs. Homer Brumley of Hereford.

Airmen To Take Off July 18 On Hop Over Atlantic To Paris

DALLAS, July 1. (AP) — Clyde E. Pangborn and Monty Mason have announced they would take off from Love field here July 18 on the first lap of their flight to Paris.

After flying from here to New York, they would span the Atlantic in their "flying wing" and return from Paris in what they said they hoped would be the first non-stop flight from Paris to Dallas.

The ship will be renamed on the grounds of the Texas Centennial exposition, which is sponsoring the flight, at a ceremony Saturday. It will be titled "The Texas Centennial Sky Ranger."

Indians of pre-Columbus days used ipecac as a medicine, and Europeans derived their knowledge of the drug from them.

Being Only 12 Years Old Is No Reason For Viney Ruth's Not Trying To Learn Steno

Being only 12 years old does not interfere seriously with the intention of Viney Ruth Rogers to become a stenographer and bookkeeper.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Rogers, who live in a hotel here, filed application Tuesday night for entry to a government-sponsored class in shorthand, typewriting and bookeeping.

"I want to be a cashier for my grandpa," she said. It developed "grandpa" has a business establishment at Kerens.

Viney Ruth said she is in the "high fifth grade—and I'm not too old, am I, to get in the shorthand class—but I don't know whether I'd like to see my name in the newspaper. I never did see it there before."

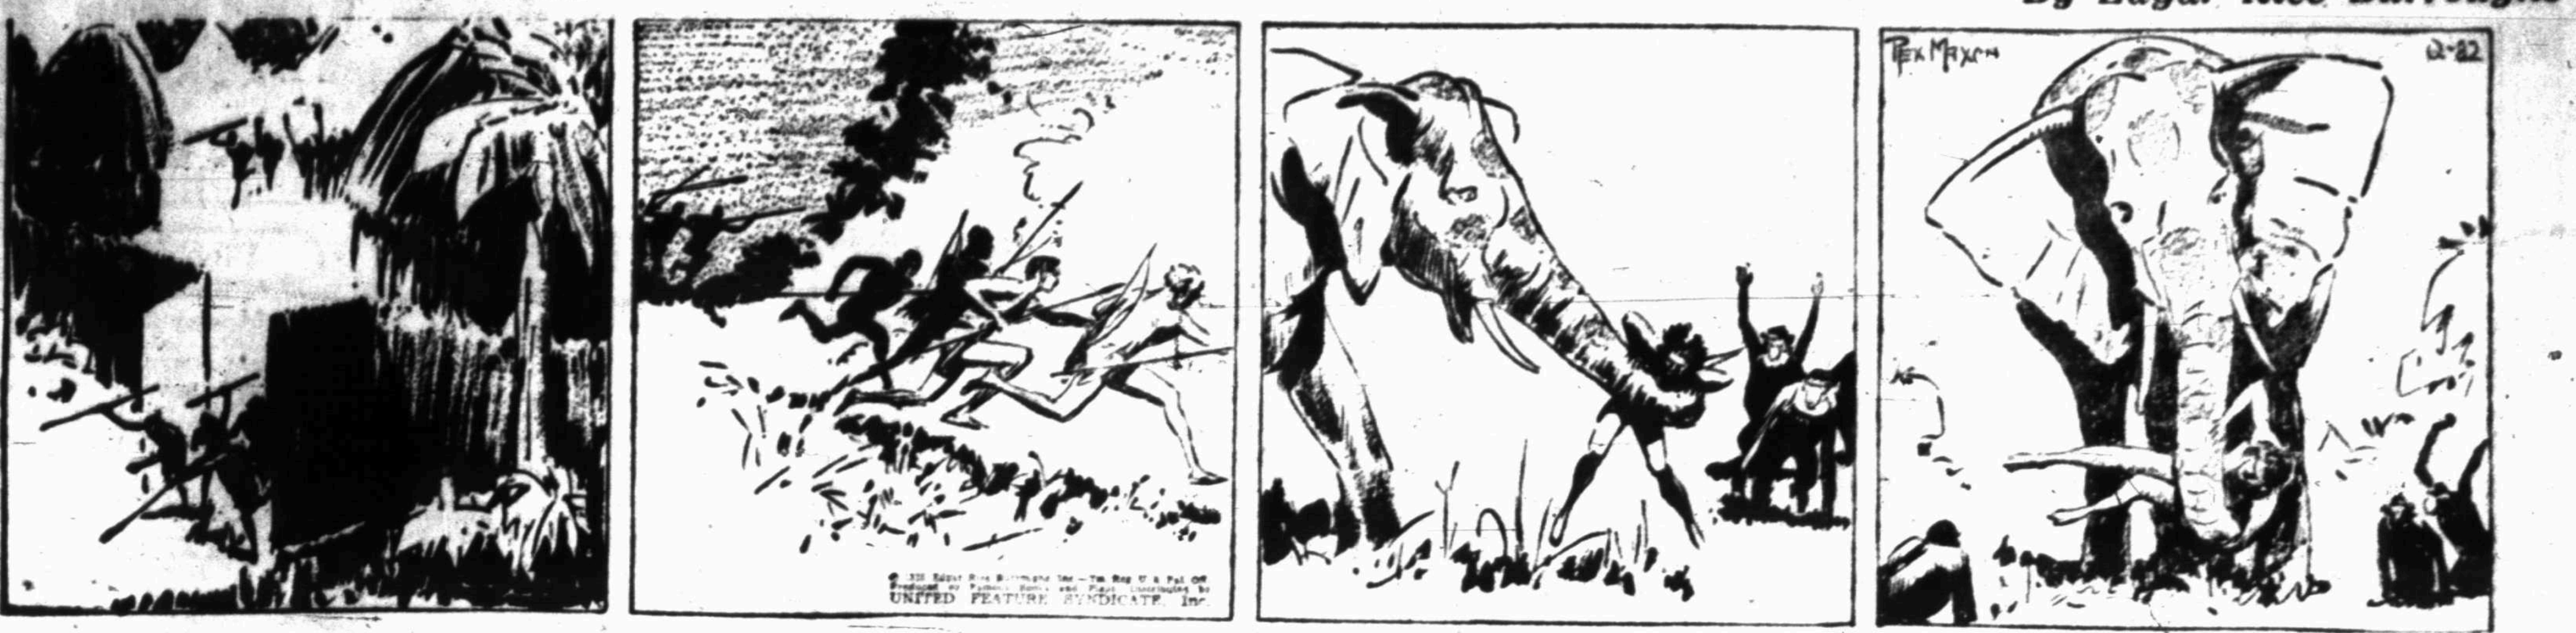
THE TARZAN TWINS, No. 82

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



As the howling, bloodthirsty warriors bore down on them, Doc urged his companions to another concerted attack on the gates. In a frenzy of hopelessness they hurled themselves upon the barrier. This time it gave way and released the four fugitives.

Swiftly they sped across the clearing toward the black shadows of the jungle, for their feet were winged by terror of the hideous death clutching so close behind to drag them back into its awful embrace. But no less swift were the fiendish cannibal warriors! . . .

. . . The white boys and the Bagalla tribesmen had long believed that Tarzan was dead. When they had received the news, it was false; but it seemed now that the mad elephant Gudah had been appointed by fate to translate that fiction into the ghastly substance of reality.

While the apes shrieked in frenzy, the huge brute held Tarzan helpless in the coils of his great trunk. Apparently Gudah was savoring each moment of the ape-man's distressing ordeal before making an end to his victim by dashing him to the floor of the Vale of Death!

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, July 1. (AP)—Moving upward briskly in the last hour, cotton futures gained from 18 to 20 points today as a heavy demand returned to the market.

After opening narrowly higher and fluctuating in a small range for most of the day the maket stepped ahead in the closing minutes to the best prices of the day. Oct. finished up 19 points at 11.65 while Jan. closed at 11.68 bid, compared with a previous final price of 11.45 while May gained an even dollar a bale to 11.66.

While the weather map today showed considerable rain in Texas, the weekly report on temperature and rainfall by the government spoke of the western part of the belt apprehensively. The crop was said to be withstanding the drought, however.

Today's map showed some weather stations in Texas with plenty of rain, Luling, Texas, receiving 7.74 inches in the past 24 hours. The eastern half of the belt needed more showers. The government's report said some acreage was being abandoned for other crops.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP) — Cotton was higher today on reports of smaller private estimates than expected and a scarcity of contracts.

October sold up from 11.51 to 11.70 and closed at 11.69, with the general market closing steady, 17 to 20 points net higher.

After opening steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points in response to steady cables, the market eased back to about yesterday's closing quotations under liquidation which was attributed partly to Wall Street sources. There seemed comparatively little cotton for sale and the market reached the best prices of the day in late trading.

The first three of the private end-June crop reports issued today showed acreage figures ranging from 30,881,000 to 31,154,000, averaging about a million acres less than estimated by the same authorities last month.

Mother Of Lindbergh Deeds Her Home In Detroit To Him

DETROIT, July 1. (AP) — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, filed a deed today giving title to her $17,000 home in Grosse Pointe park here to the famous flier.

Mrs. Lindbergh, who has been a chemistry instructor in Cass Technical High school here for a number of years, could not be reached for comment.

Harold E. Stoll, register of deeds, said revenue stamps attached to the deed indicated the home is valued at $17,000.

The most carefully made rifles and shotguns in the world are manufactured in London and in Sheffield, Eng., although the average low-cost American gun is superior to any other in the world.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Buyers put their weight behind selected utilities and specialties in today's stock market while permitting many of the recent leaders to shift for themselves.

Preferred power and light company issues duplicated their strength of the preceding session and a late spurt in Westinghouse added a touch of the spectacular to th day's somewhat erratic performance.

Favored equities generally responded to individual business developments portending larger earnings and more generous dividends.

Power stocks were especially buoyant as consumption of electricity jumped to another historical peak and hopes were renewed of a resumption of payments to share holders, adjustments of accumulations or early reorganizations.

Westinghouse took the play for a net advance of 5⅝ points at 122¾, a new top since 1930, upon reported short covering and investment buying. There was also gossip of a sizable foreign sales order for the company. General Electric was a sympathetic follower with a gain of 1 at 38⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 equities worked up 3 of a point at 63.9. Transfers totaled 965,430 shares against 822,265 yesterday.

Koen said he had plowed the field for five years and nothing unusual had come out of the ground until he noticed an inch of the pistol after turning a furrow.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 1. (AP)—Indications much of Canada's wheat area is threatening to duplicate the drouth havoc in United States spring crop territory whirled all grain values skyward today.

Almost 5 cents a bushel rise was scored by wheat at Minneapolis, wheat in Chicago skyrocketed 3⅛ cents, and corn, oats and barley here outdid previous high price records for the season.

Two Talks Given At Rotary Club

Rotarians yesterday were urged by Rev. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in a Fourth of July address, to do more than "talk," about improving conditions in the nation. The address was delivered at the regular luncheon in the Hotel Lubbock at noon.

First Vice-President Don L. Jones presided, in the absence of the new president, Kenneth E. Oberholtzer, who is out of the city. Jack M. Randal was program chairman.

Jay B. Slaughter, Post, president of the Rotary club there, was a visitor. Subject of the talk, according to the program chairman, was "Sense and Nonsense Thoughts about July 4." Dr. Lewis told the Rotarians that they "ought to think a litle bit at this time about some of the things that are for our benefits." He referred to the coming observance Saturday of the 161st birthday anniversary of the independence of this nation.

"Sinister Forces" Cited

One of the "sinister forces" that the nation today is facing is, "the element of hatred that is expanding in too large a degree in the country." He termed it as "detrimental to both individuals and communities.

"Vice conditions in our country are absolutely in need of the attention of good citizens," he pointed out. Conditions are much more serious than the general public is aware of, he added.

Inroads made on American life by "red" or Communistic propaganda were cited. He quoted Dr. William W. Beiderwolf, noted evangelist and lecturer, on the number of Communistic workers, party members, newspapers, etc., together with funds spent and the number of clubs and groups formed in colleges and schools.

Dr. W. A. Jackson, one of the district delegates to the National Democratic convention, last week in Philadelphia, spoke on the convention. "FDR sends his best regards to all your Rotarians," he added. He spoke of having visited the old State House in Philadelphia, where the declaration of independence was signed and where congress first met. He contrasted the building with the present capitol, and the present Supreme court building in Washington and added: "Problems facing us today are just as much greater than in those days as the difference in the size of the buildings of 1776 and 1936."

Plant buds are not "warm-blooded." They are covered with scales, not to keep warm, but to prevent evaporation.

Contempt Action Not To Be Dropped

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—Contempt citations voted by the house more than a month ago against Dr. F. E. Townsend, old age pension leader, and two of his aides will not be submitted to a federal grand jury until next fall.

In disclosing today that it would be impossible to present the cases at this session of the grand jury which expires next Monday, Leslie C. Garnett, United States district attorney, emphasised there was no intention of dropping the action.

Dr. Townsend was cited for contempt after he walked out on a special house committee investigating his old age pension movement and refused to testify further.

The Rev. Clinton L. Wunder and John B. Kiefer, members of the Townsend organization's board of directors, were cited with the doctor when they failed to answer committee subpoenas to appear and testify.

Water Survey To Be Made In Area

Prof. E. G. Plowman, Denver, member of the faculty of the school of business administrtaion of the University of Denver, visited Lubbock yesterday enroute home from a trip to Austin where he conferred with Major E. A. Wood, engineer and director for the state planning board.

In Lubbock Mr. Plowman contacted Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Tech, and Judge R. C. Hopping, chairman of the land use committee of the planning board.

"We are making plans to study the water resources of the state, especially in this section," he explained. "The work is being done by the National Resource council by whom I am employed.

"Just as soon as I can, I plan to return to this section and begin to work."

Mr. Plowman is a water counselor with the national group. He has been engaged in the work for some time.

HUNTSVILLE, July 1. (AP) — Future Farmers of America in Texas returned to their homes today after selecting winners in the organization's contests in a meeting which closed here yesterday.

A. B. Yearwood, jr., Stephenville, won first place in public speaking for his discussion of "A Live 'At Home' program as a farm relief measure." Edwin Gerlach, Livingston, was second and Jack Jones, Graham, third. In the chapter-conducting contest Rochelle was first, Comyn second and May, third.

Debate honors went to Cleveland Griffin and Gordon McClendon, Atlanta.

More than 700 species of mushrooms have been proved edible, and many others doubtless will be found fit for food, according to authorities.

Constitutionality Of Labor Relations Act Is Challenged

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP) — Constitutionality of the 1935 Wagner labor relations act was challenged in the Supreme court for the first time today in a suit brought by the Bradley Lumber company and its affiliated sales organization, of Warren, Ark.

The act recently was declared invalid by the fifth circuit court of appeals in another case brought by the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation.

Two Bills Are Disapproved By President On Wednesday

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—The White House said today that President Roosevelt had disapproved a bill which would have exempted publicly-owned interstate highway bridges from state, municipal and local taxation.

Another bill disapproved would have enabled the state to take over a number of toll bridges and make them into free bridges.

In giving his reasons for not signing the taxation measure, the president said:

"The effect of this bill would be that, by declaring publicly-owned interstate highway bridges to be federal instrumentalities, such bridges would thereby be exempt from all state and local taxation.

MUSTARD INDUSTRY SOUGHT

Performers In Opera Strike

Additional Worries Added To French Socialist Government Troubles; "Grave Events" Are Threatened

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, July 1.—Striking opera performers danced on the stage of the closed opera comique today with police guards for an audience.

The entire company voted last night to begin an "occupational strike" shortly after the curtain fell on the last performance of the season.

Adds One More Worry

The professional walkout added one more worry to the harassed socialist government, whose decision to dissolve rightist leagues was upheld by the chamber of deputies after vociferous debate.

The chamber approved the government decree against the four nationalist organizations by a vote of 375 to 192.

Employes of the state-owned opera demanded the resignation of the director and new wage agreements. They will occupy the theater, they said, until their demands are approved by the management.

Threats of impending "grave events" rang through the parliamentary chambers during arguments of rightists and government supporters. Charges by Roger Salengro, minister of the interior, that rightists plotted to assassinate Premier Leon Blum brought a storm of protest from the right wing. Salengro named the plotters as members of the "francistes" blue-shirted nationalists.

Peasant agitation in Algeria is starting, Salengro warned, adding "grave events are to be feared."

Tech Team Is To Be Entered In Contests At Exposition

Eligibility rules of the National Dairy Science association have been changed so as to admit a team from Texas Technological college in contests in Dallas this fall, Ray C. Mowery has been informed by W. L. Stangel, head of the livestock division of the Texas Centennial Central exposition.

Stangel is on leave of absence from the college and Mowery is acting head of the animal husbandry department during his absence.

Tech is to be the only college in America other than regular land grant colleges to be represented in the contests.

Once upon a time there was a kind ruler named King Paranay. He held sway over the Kingdom of Machines. His subjects worked hard every day, but they sang and laughed as they worked, because they were well and happy.

One day in the busy harvest season many of the machines stopped their work. King Paranay sent a courier to ask his subjects why they stopped working at such a busy time. The courier was gone three days and nights.

Finally the courier returned to the palace and told a very strange story. He said that four terrible demons called Friction, Heat, Wear, and Waste were loose in the country and were making the machines very ill.

Farm Income Is Increased

Gain Of 90 Per Cent Between 1932 And 1935 Is Reported By AAA Administrator; Total Now Is $6,900,000,000

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP) — An increase of 90 per cent between 1932 and 1935 in the total cash income from cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and hogs has been reported by the AAA.

The report prepared by Chester C. Davis, former AAA administrator, said the income of the commodities rose from $1,365,000,000 in 1932 to $2,397,000,000 last year.

Increased To $6,900,000,000

Cash income from all farm production increased from $4,377,000,000 to $6,900,000,000 in the same period, the report said. The five specified products were the first ones for which crop adjustment programs were put into effect in 1933.

"The price recovery of farm products for which production control programs were in effect amounted to 120 per cent as against 46 per cent for prices of those commodities in which there were no production control programs," said the report.

The average price in all groups rose 66 per cent during the three years, moving from 65 per cent to 108 per cent of the pre-war level, said Davis.

Rental and benefit payments, the report added, contributed about 25 per cent of the amount of the cash income increase during the period when such payments averaged $451,000,000 annually.

Second Class Scouts May Be Allowed To Sign For Camp

Unless registrations of first class scouts with endorsed camping experience boost the number to 30 within the next day or two, second class scouts with camping experience may sign up for the final summer Boy Scout camp to Sacramento mountains in New Mexico, announced Earl M. McClure.

A maximum of 30 scouts may make the trip, which starts July 12 for 10 days at a cost of $15 each. Only 10 registrations or notifications were reported Wednesday at the scout office in City hall.

Proposed extension of the camp privileges to second class scouts would necessitate a policy of "first come first served," McClure said.
