IRRIGATION IS PROOF POSITIVE OF GREAT YIELD

"Seeing is Believing" Result Of 32-Mile Expedition In the Valley

COTTON—MORE COTTON

More Wealth in Lake Kemp Than All the Oil That Lies Beneath

By A. M. McPHERSON,
Consulting Engineer.
Written Especially for The Record News.

"Seing is believing."

Those who went on the chamber of commerce inspection trip through the irrigation project Wednesday saw, and they must believe. They must believe that irrigation is a success in the Wichita valley because they saw with their own eyes what it would do.

If the combined evidence presented by the Robison, Jeter, McFall, Greer and Ferguson farms is not enough to convince, then nothing can.

Cotton and more cotton, long staple and short staple, but such cotton as this valley never saw before. Each field seemed better than the preceding. Each one a triumph for irrigation. Each place distinctive and representative of different soils separated by miles from each other but covering the whole project from almost the city limits to within a short ride of the diversion dam. It proved beyond question that the whole project is extremely fertile and that irrigation farming in the Wichita valley is a highly profitable business.

No Sign of Alkali.

At the Robison and Jeter places the first visited, lying just outside the city limits, the visitors saw cotton growing on land that had been irrigated for 16 years. Not a sign of alkali, not a sign of water logging and such a crop of cotton. Waist high, just filled with big bolls. Robison said he had already picked 300 pounds of seed cotton to the acre and expected to get about a bale and a half in all. An old cotton raiser after inspecting the cotton and hearing Mr. Robison's statement said he would estimate at least two bales more per acre.

Then McFall's place out in the Denny neighborhood, that big broad valley of fertile land in a bigger valley. A model farm. Everything up to date with 192 acres of cotton. Planted and owned by an enthusiast on irrigation, Mr. McFall. Watered once in the latter part of July. It was waist high to a tall man and covered with bolls. Again our cotton expert looked it over. "About a bale," he said as he walked into the first patch. A little further on "Maybe a bale and a half." Then he began to scratch his head and walked farther. "That cotton is late. If frost holds off until November 1, I wouldn't be surprised to see two bales. Anyway it's some cotton. Lots of money in cotton like this."

What Irrigation Does.

McFall's place was a living example of what irrigation will do. In some parts of the field the irrigation water had not penetrated. There the cotton was about a foot high. "Bumblebee cotton" said the expert. "Take 10 acres to make a bale like this." Irrigation surely pays.

This is Mr. McFall's first experience in irrigation. Next year there won't be any "bumblebee" cotton.

A mile or so to the west lies the Hodges place where Jas. D. Greer, the cotton breeder, is growing his own brand of cotton. He has been in the business for 30 years. An east Texan. Raised cotton three years under irrigation at Carlsbad, New Mexico. Came here because he felt this was a better cotton country. He still thinks so. Long staple cotton, acres and acres of it. Again the cotton expert sized up the situation. He tested the length of the staple and found it from one and three-eighths to one and a half inches long. "This cotton will yield just as heavy as any we have seen," he said, "and the length of the staple is such that will bring $30 more to the bale. This is the kind of cotton to grow here. There is more money in it."

Then the Watermelons.

Greer's watermelons the seed lead up by himself. The crowd sure rushed that patch. And such watermelons, great big glossy green ones that broke wide open when struck with a knife, exposing the reddest, sweetest meat. The crowd voted them the best ever and gave them lots more attention than the long staple cotton.

Greer is the kind of man this project needs. An expert in cotton, a breeder of long staple varieties worth more per acre than the other kinds and especially adapted to this irrigated valley.

A few miles more to the west and the crowd landed in the biggest cotton patch they had yet seen. It belonged to W. P. Ferguson. The man who planned the trip. A big bluff farmer who has had the nerve to try. The kind of a man who does things.

Acres and acres of heavily laden cotton. "Half and half" they called this kind. It is a very short staple but is a good yielder. The patch was so big no one tried to estimate the bales per acre. The more you looked and the further you travelled the better the cotton. One man said a big patch off to one side looked like two bales. Another guessed even more. Anyhow it was wonderful cotton. The kind that puts money in the bank.

Trip of 32 Miles.

This was the final demonstration. The speedometers on the cars showed 32 miles. Thirty two miles from Wichita Falls. Thirty two miles through the heart of the project and every place we saw where cotton had been irrigated, the estimate was a bale or better to the acre. A bale or better compared to the best dry land cotton on the same soil estimated at a quarter of a bale and from that on down to 15 acres to the bale. Does irrigation pay? Is it a success? Ask any of the 200 who took the trip.

Now what does it all mean? What

McFaddin's Brahmas At Henrietta Rodeo Already Wild And Getting Wilder

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Sept. 24.—Henrietta is alive today with cowboys and cowgirls who have come here to compete in the various contests at the fourth annual Henrietta rodeo which opens tomorrow and continues through Friday and Saturday. Extensive preparations have been made for this year's rodeo, which will eclipse all former shows in the number of contestants, in the variety and character of events in the amount of prizes, and, it is expected, in attendance.

Over 150 Contestants.

There will be more than 150 contestants in the various events according to Glenn Cunningham and Will Neville, producers of the show, including some world champions. Twenty-five hundred dollars in cash prizes will be given, according to announcements by the producers. The large prize offerings have attracted contestants from several states. The program each day will be done with a parade beginning at 1 p. m., headed by the Henrietta chamber of commerce band and ending at the rodeo grounds in the northeast part of town.

Rodeo in Afternoon.

The rodeo program beginning immediately after the parade will last through the afternoon. In the evening a big street dance on the pavement down town will be an entertainment feature continued from former rodeos on account of its extreme popularity. A herd of wild Brahma steers from the McFaddin ranch in south Texas has been in a pasture near here for several days "growing wilder" and awaiting the opening of the show.

Gather Outlaw Horses.

Outlaw horses have been gathered with great care and the rodeo producers state that they have the best herd ever assembled in this section for a rodeo.

Extensive improvements and additions have been made to the rodeo grounds and everything is in readiness for the opening tomorrow.

Neff Is Agreed Irrigation The Thing in S'West

By The Associated Press.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 24.—Governor Pat Neff arrived here late today to attend the International Exposition. Tonight he attended a dinner given for the governors of Texas, and New Mexico, Chihuahua, Sonora and Nuevo Leon, Mexico.

Governor Neff travelled by train from Austin to Sierra Blanca, where he spoke to a crowd of 200 persons at the court house before joining an El Paso delegation for a motor trip through the Rio Grande valley to El Paso.

Conserve Every Bucket

He advocated conservation of "every bucketful of water in the Rio Grande, much of which now goes to waste," he said.

Three stops were made at ranches. At one place he saw cotton that will make two bales to the acre and at another place he ate fruit for 45 minutes and then looked at [illegible] the vineyard.

"The El Paso valley is wonderful" he declared. "By [illegible] it is prettier than anything in [illegible]. It is a concrete example of what I have been preaching.

Raised in Cotton Patch

"By impounding flood waters that now go to waste and rain drops on the lower Rio Grande, we can turn arid stretches into a paradise. I am a believer because I saw the best cotton today I ever saw in my life, and I was raised in a cotton patch."

He made the trip through the valley to determine the amount of water that will be needed to irrigate lands in Texas under the Elephant Butte project, as Texas has been invited by Colorado and New Mexico to enter into a compact disposing of the waters of the Rio Grande.

The place of the meeting has not yet been decided on but will be arranged for within the next few days.

New Trial Asked In Griffin Case; Motion Is Filed

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 24.—A motion for a new trial was filed here today by counsel for Herbert Griffin, found guilty of the murder of Hugh Reilly and sentenced Tuesday night to 25 years in the penitentiary. The motion was presented to Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court and hearing set for Saturday morning at 9:30.

Await Amended Motion.

No special allegations were made but it is understood that an amended motion will be filed some time this week, setting forth alleged errors of the court on which the plea for a new trial will be based. In case the motion is overruled, it is understood that an appeal will be taken to the higher courts.

Filing of the motion Wednesday was the only development in the murder case which has occupied over a week in court here. Griffin, unable to gain freedom on bond, because of the law denying bail to any one under sentence of more than 15 years, is in the county jail here.

Tremendously Surprised.

He did not appear unduly depressed Wednesday although it was still evident that he had been tremendously surprised by the verdict.

Most of the attorneys and court attaches that have been here attending the case were still in Graham tonight.

LaFollette's presidential campaign. A Wichita County LaFollette for President club was organized with Jack Barnes as chairman and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox as secretary.

Various committees, including publicity, finance and reception were appointed.

Davis Assailed.

The principal denunciation of the evening was directed at John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, who was characterized by one speaker as "a wolf from one of the deepest dens of Wall street." His connection with the Morgan banking firm and his activities in behalf of other financial interests were pointed to as making him unacceptable to union labor.

C. P. Goodrich, editor of the Southwestern Railway Journal, Fort Worth, was the principal speaker of the evening and devoted most of a spirited address to outlining Senator LaFollette's place in public life. He traced his political career and declared the Wisconsin man had always been fair to the laboring classes. Completed Ford Factory Called Greatest in the World

The Ford plant at River Rouge.

It's the greatest factory in the world, this plant completed by Henry Ford at River Rouge, just outside of Detroit.

Only superlatives can describe the River Rouge plant, which rears its lofty smokestacks and towering tanks, mammoth storage bins, huge conveyors and broad roofs, on an area of 1,100 acres, where half a dozen years ago there was only wind-swept prairie and swampland.

Electric steel furnaces each having a capacity of fifty tons, are just one of the new achievements at the Rouge.

These and smaller ones, combine with two giant 600-ton blast furnaces, each capable of delivering 600 tons of foundry iron a day, form a foundry unit such as has never been seen before in combination in a single plant.

The Rouge power plant, even now a marvel, will, when completed, have a total electrical capacity of 30,000 kilowatts, generated at 13,200 volts by eight turbo-generators. These units were designed by Ford engineers and have been built from the start by Ford workmen in Ford shops. Three turbo blowers supply 120,000 cubic feet of air a minute. The new generators are powered by a battery of the eight largest steam boilers ever built. These boilers are adapted to burning pulverized coal, blast furnace gas and tar. Incidentally, they are the first boilers to burn pulverized coal successfully.

Indict Hill For Beverage Content After Cider Fete

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24.—Representative John Philip Hill was today indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of manufacturing and unlawfully possessing wine and cider at his home here, and with maintaining a public nuisance thereby.

The indictment, which contains six counts, is a result of his avowed efforts during the past two years to obtain a definition of the term "intoxicating cider and fruit juices" in section 29 of the Volstead act. Mr. Hill contended that under it farmers were allowed to make cider with an alcohol content of more than one-half of one percent, while city dwellers were restricted to beer of just that percentage.

Tried it Before.

In September, 1923, Representative Hill manufactured fruit wine in his residence on West Franklin street, after notifying Prohibition Commissioner Haynes of his intention and requesting that he be informed when to stop fermentation. Following this, a temporary injunction upon his home was secured. No date however has been set for a hearing on the petition of District Attorney Woodcock for a permanent injunction.

Experimenting again, Mr. Hill several weeks ago decided to make cider. He did so, from apples grown on his property, he said, and allowed it to attain an alcoholic strength of 2.75 percent. This cider was served to several hundred friends at a "party" last Saturday night, and the indictment today is the outcome.

Not to be Arrested.

The congressman has not been arrested, and will not be, federal authorities said, until the day of his trial, as they are certain he can be found whenever they want him.

When informed of the grand jury's action today, Mr. Hill expressed himself as "delighted".

"At last I have forced action, and we shall now get decisions on section 29 of the Volstead act, which I have been demanding for two years," he said, adding that he was ready at any time to stand trial.

Today was the last day of criminal trials in Baltimore until the case of Charles R. Forbes comes up on November 10. District Attorney Woodcock said he would bring Mr. Hill's case to trial as soon thereafter as is possible.

25 Gallons of Wine.

The indictment returned today charges Mr. Hill specifically with manufacture of 25 gallons of wine at his home on Sept. 27, 1923; unlawful possession of wine on the same date; manufacture of 30 gallons of cider at his home on Sept. 15, 1924; unlawful possession of cider on the same date; the last two counts charge him with maintaining a common nuisance at his home by manufacturing the wine and cider.

Natives in South Africa Unable To Keep Up Their Payments

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Many natives of Pondoland, South Africa, are likely to lose wives purchased on extended credit during the last three years because they claim to be unable to complete their payments.

The purchase of wives on credit is not usually allowed among the natives as there is too much inclination to return the wives in lieu of the purchase price, but a matrimonial moratorium has been in effect during the period of mourning for the death of a paramount chief. This period is now over and natives who obtained wives on credit must pay up or return the women to their parental kraals.

Giants Win, Also Solons; Need 3 of 4

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Giants and Senators, by winning today, need only to take three of the four games each has to play in order to clinch the pennants in their respective leagues, even if the Robins, Pirates and Yankees win their remaining contests.

New York maintained its one game lead over the Robins and shaved Pittsburgh to three and one half contests behind first place by beating the Pirates today 4 to 2. Pittsburgh now must win its six games to play while the Giants are losing two of their four to take the flag. Brooklyn, by winning its two with Boston, could tie the leaders if they lost two of four, but cannot win unless McGraw's team loses three of their four. The Robins won from Chicago today six to five.

Washington maintained its lead of two games by beating Chicago six to three, while the Yankees defeated Cleveland two to nothing. The world champions can now win the pennant only by taking their four games while Washington loses three of four. The Senators can tie by winning two.

"UNCLEAN HANDS"

Charge Made that Plaintiff Seeking Equity, Has Not Done Equity

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—A charge that the plaintiff had not come into court "with clean hands" in bringing the suit testing Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's qualification to be governor, was made by Beeman Strong of Houston, attorney for the state democratic committee, in arguing for Mrs. Ferguson this afternoon.

The suit is an attempt to deprive the democrats of Texas from electing a governor and a step designed to thwart the will of the voters, said Mr. Strong.

Standing within a few feet of the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson, and hurling his charge at him and his attorney, Judge I. W. Stephens, Mr. Strong declared that the case had purposely been delayed until it would be too late to name a democratic nominee should a temporary injunction be granted.

Charges Case Delayed

"This plaintiff has waited until no one could be substituted," said Attorney Strong. He could have brought this suit before the first primary had he wanted to be fair. He has not come into this court with clean hands. It is a well established principle that he who seeks equity must come to court himself with clean hands, that he who wants equity must do equity.

"But what have we here. Consider the irreparable injury to the dominant party and to at least 500,000 voters of this state if Mrs. Ferguson is denied a right to have her name on the ballot. If this injunction is granted you have said to 500,000 voters that they cannot express their choice for governor. The plaintiff says the voters shall not have a chance to vote for the nominee of the dominant party of this state, it simply will deprive the democrats of a governor.

No One Injured If—

"On the other side, what injury can be done to the plaintiff if Mrs. Ferguson is elected governor? Can he possibly show a single iota of injury to himself? Everyone in Texas is convinced that women can hold office but this plaintiff. But if this injunction is granted a good woman will have been done an injustice and a great party will have been deprived of its rights."

At the close of Mr. Strong's argument, Judge Stephens asked for a recess until tomorrow so he could have a rest before starting his closing address. He said he had been worn out by the long arguments of the defense attorneys and thought he should not be asked to start his talk while wearied.

Two Hours' Argument

The plaintiff has consumed only about two hours in argument, while the defense had used two days. Judge Stephens said he could complete the case in less than two hours. Court recessed until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

A wife's salary and a husband's rights in community property were discussed by Judge Ocie Speer of Fort Worth, one of Mrs. Ferguson's attorneys. The plaintiff has made the charge that Mr. Ferguson, who is denied the right to draw any salary from the state, nevertheless would share in his wife's salary as governor on the common law theory that a wife's earnings are controlled by her husband.

Judge Speer said it was none of the government's business who gets the salary after it is paid to the proper party. He showed that under the present law during marriage a wife's earnings are under her control alone.

Sins Not Upon Her

"If under the impeachment decree, Ferguson could not have any salary from the state, how can the plaintiff contend that he could have an interest in his wife's salary as governor?" the attorney asked. "I have heard of the sins of the fathers being visited on the children to the third and fourth generation, but never have I heard of the impeachment of the father being visited on the wife."

Love Murderers Denied Bail By Coroner Jurors

Hight and Woman He Loved Must Await Action Of Grand Jury

PROPERTY IS DISPOSED

Mrs. Sweetin Fails to Eat Meals and Presents Sad Appearance

By The Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, Ills., Sept. 24. A coroner's jury at Ina today ordered the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, confessed poison plotters, held without bond to the October grand jury here.

As to the death of Wilford Sweetin, the jury found he came to his death by means of poison "wilfully and maliciously administered by his wife at the instigation of Hight, in conformity with an agreement between them to murder Sweetin."

Mrs. Hight, the verdict stated, came to her death by poison "administered with malice aforethought by her husband."

Mrs. Sweetin was a forlorn figure when she awoke this morning in the cramped and gloomy old jail at Salem.

Apparently she had slept in her clothing last night. Her gray dress was rumpled and her brown hair hung in ragged strings. Dark circles appeared under her eyes.

Breakfast had been brought to her from the sheriff's kitchen, but she had not touched the food.

In the jail at Nashville, the Rev. Mr. Hight appeared calm and resigned to his fate, after a restful night.

He gave instructions as to disposition of the small amount of property he owns, in a letter written yesterday to his daughter, Mrs. Mary Eaton of Tamaroa, Ills., it was reported today.

"I'm sorry for what I did, but it's too late for that now," Hight is quoted as having written.

Action by the southern Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which the Rev. Mr. Hight is a member, will be delayed until the pastor has been dealt with by the courts, the Rev. C. C. Hall, district superintendent, announced.

Church officials said if Hight were found guilty he undoubtedly would be expelled from the church, while if mitigation resulted from an insanity plea he would be given a retired status.

County officials expect pleas of guilty from the Rev. Mr. Hight and Mrs. Sweetin, when they are brought to trial here next month. The preacher repeatedly has declared his willingness to pay the penalty, even to march to the gallows.

Mrs. Sweetin has not considered such a penalty for herself, but today tried to arrange for attorneys.

In the meantime, county officials here today expressed interest in announcement of the identification of a photograph of a young woman found in the pastor's home as that of Grace Elliott, who died at her home at Centerville, Illinois, Oct. 15, 1922, after seven weeks' illness pronounced as typhoid. The young woman's father said there was nothing suspicious in her death but he could not understand why the Rev. Hight, her former pastor, had forgotten her name. Grace was an organist in the church and Hight preached her funeral sermon.

WORRIES FOR HER CHILDREN

Mrs. Sweetin in Salem Jail on Verge of Nervous Breakdown

By The Associated Press.

SALEM, Ills., Sept. 24.—The strain of an all-night questioning, coupled with the worry and care of a mother over her children and a subsequent loss of appetite tonight had brought Mrs. Elsie Sweetin who has confessed that she poisoned her husband in a plot with the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight of Ina, on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Her condition has become such that upon instructions of her physician, Dr. S. A. Thompson, nobody is permitted to see her in her little cell in the quaint old jail building here, unless she requests it.

Has No Appetite

"Another case of the woman paying," remarked Sheriff H. E. Vogt in talking of the prisoner. "I have offered to get her anything to eat she desires, but she always replies she has no appetite, she cannot eat. She is also becoming very reticent."

Tonight Mrs. Sweetin received a note purported to be from her mother and brother assuring her of their assistance, and promising to take care of her three children who are now with their grandfather at Ina, the home of Mrs Sweetin. She was also advised in the note to employ counsel and not to worry over the future.

Remorse Upon Her

Remorse is fast overtaking her, the sheriff said, in speaking of the prisoner's reticent attitude and added that in his opinion the worry over her children was pressing more on her mind than the circumstances that brought her to jail.

In a lengthy interview this morning, Mrs. Sweetin related how her relations with the minister started and how they gradually grew more intimate until she realized that she had fallen in love with the clergyman, who lived only two blocks from her home.

Tells of His Love

"One night in April," she said, "he won my confidence. I thought he was a great religious man. After he had won my confidence I yielded to his suggestions in every way."

When asked whether she was sorry that she had poisoned her husband, as she has confessed, she answered:

"Yes. I am sorry, very sorry. I certainly am sorry."

Secret, Love Blamed As Pastor Is Held As Wife Slayer!

Above: Mrs. Elsie Sweetin and (right) the victim, Mrs. Lawrence Hight. Below: Hight and the Hight home in Mount Vernon, Ill.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Sept. 24.—"I am just as near heaven in jail as I am out of it," avers the Rev. Lawrence N. Hight, Methodist minister, held here without bail on the charge of killing his wife with poison.

Hight freely admits all the grave circumstances.

The motive assigned for the murder by authorities is the pastor's secret love for Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, 31, a member of his congregation who has confessed to killing her husband.

Sweetin also died recently of poisoning, after being attended by the pastor for two evenings, and now authorities allege that the preacher fell in love with Mrs. Sweetin while praying with her and endeavoring to convert her, and took the only method he knew of removing his wife and the man who stood in his way.

Little is known of the Rev. Mr. Hight, and no one in Mount Vernon had ever heard of him before his arrest. It is stated the preacher formerly was a "race horse man" of the type which follows state fairs with their horses, but that he had said he "got the call" 12 years ago and then became a Methodist minister. He is a "circuit rider," with four churches.

YOU HATE TO LOOK AT A PIMPLY FACE

There is perhaps nothing more distressing to people who are bothered with them, and surely nothing as displeasing to others who see them, as pimples, blotches, humor rash, scrofula, eczema, "breaking out" and similar skin disfigurers.

But now that Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are proving to be so dependable in quickly getting rid of these diseases of the skin, it seems foolish for people to neglect using them and making themselves attractive to others instead of being slighted all the time.

All dealers have Black and White Ointment, and Soap, in the convenient, low-priced, liberal packages. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the liberal 25c size. —Adv.

Government, However, Has Issued Summonses for Long List of Testifiers

By The Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 24.—The Mammoth Oil company and Harry F. Sinclair will use the testimony of Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, in their fight in the United States district court here next month against annulment of the leases of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Mammoth company, as sought by the government, according to information made public today. Denby is the only witness subpoenaed by the defense thus far.

The government's list of witnesses called by subpoena was increased to 38 today when summonses were issued for the First National bank of El Paso, Texas; I. T. Rule, Pueblo, Colo.; Miss Grace M. Jones, Carrizozo, N. M.; and K. C. Heald of Yale university.

The case will come to trial October 7, before Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy of the United States district court of Wyoming. From two to three weeks will be required for the trial, it is said.

Atlee Pomorene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the government and Albert D. Walton, United States district attorney for Wyoming, will act as counsel for the plaintiff.

Greatest Yet Say Fliers of Crowd At Santa Monica

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—After a day of rest following what they said was the greatest reception in all their aerial trip around the world tonight found the six aviators of the army world flight ready to start tomorrow morning from Clover Field, Santa Monica, near here to Crissy Field, San Francisco, they announced.

In Fit Shape

The three great world cruisers are in fit shape and weather permitting the globe girdlers will take off about 10 o'clock in the morning to fly over Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo, Paso Robles, Salinas and San Jose on the third from the last leg of the official flight around the world, terminating at Seattle.

The airmen under command of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith carefully inspected the three cruisers at Clover Field this afternoon after having rested in hotel rooms until noon. The night program was an informal dinner in Hollywood and then a motion picture, providing a few quiet hours with their relatives and close friends.

Smith Will Lead.

Lieut. Smith will lead the three planes over territory that he knows so well that he will feel like running around in his own back yard, he said.

Many times the flight commander has flown between here and Seattle, making some records in these cruisers, the last trip however in March when the world cruisers sped to Seattle from here, in preparation for the world flight.

There was considerable "shop talk" today at Clover Field as the aviators convetsed with some of the men who made the planes, and extended congratulations for the performance of the first heavier-than-air machines to circumnavigate the earth.

Heavy Fog Indicated.

Should weather reports tomorrow indicate heavy fog or clouds over the coast range mountains making flying along the coast route hazardous, the fliers will take the inland route over the Tehachapi pass and up the west side of the San Jonquin valley, it was announced. They plan to land in San Francisco about hree o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Camels Were Once Used in Texas As Beasts of Burden

By The Associated Press.

RANDERA, Sept. 24. — Camels once were used in Texas as beasts of burden.

Camp Verde on Verde Creek, three miles north of Bandera Pass, was established in 1846 for frontier protection and as a camel post, according to the Pioneer History of Bandera county, compiled by J. Marvin Hunter, who also is editor of the Frontier Times, a publication devoted to the preservation of frontier history.

The idea of using camels for transportation on the Texas frontier, the history relates, was fostered by Jefferson Davis who induced congress to pass the act establishing the post and sending to Egypt to secure them. Eighty were brought to Texas with 12 Armenian drivers.

COMPLIMENTS DAVIS

Praises Demo Candidate For His Reply to Letter From Daugherty

By The Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 24.—Before a noon gathering of LaFollette supporters today in Minneapolis, Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, complimented John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee for his stand on findings in the senate investigation of the department of justice and renewed his attack on General Dawes, republican vice presidential candidate. He recited again his story of the Lorimer bank failure in Chicago, and criticised General Dawes' banking conduct.

Refers to Davis Reply

"Progressives should read and appreciate the letter of John W. Davis to Harry M. Daugherty, made public today," he said. "For myself, I appreciate, not merely as an act of courtesy to myself, but as an act of intelligence. And I am even more pleased to have this note of intelligence struck in one of the opposing camps than I am to have Mr. Davis single me out for an expression of confidence in the work I undertook to carry through in Washington.

"I do not care to review for this meeting the case against Mr. Daugherty. He is out and he will never be in again. What the country has now to do is to see that no national political organization is permitted to foist another Daugherty upon the people.

Davis Is Attacked.

"I want to show you why you are in danger of getting another Daugherty if ill-fate should give you this man Dawes. The men in their possibilities at least, are too much alike. Their sympathies are alike, and their careers are not essentially different. Dawes rushed to the defense of the notorious Daugherty injunction. Dawes' brother, comptroller of the currency refused to aid the senate committee in its efforts to obtain information resting in Daugherty's brother's bank in Ohio. Davis was treasurer of the republican national committee in 1896 under Mark Hanna's leadership, and for his services, he was appointed comptroller of the currency. When he retired from that office, he started a bank in Chicago."

Police Think They Have New Clue to Kidnaping at Austin.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—Discovery by local police of a grocery list in the home of Mrs. Lillie Mae Turnbull late Tuesday with penciled handwriting similar to that contained in an anonymous letter sent to Mrs. Trumbull threatening her personal safety is expected by officers to solve the authorship of the mystery letter.

Police suspect a person whom they believe to be the author of the letter and an arrest may follow further investigation, Police Chief J. N. Littlepage stated here today.

No other arrests had been made at noon today in connection with the kidnaping of Howard Denise Turnbull, two-year-old daughter of Mrs Turnbull, which occurred last Wednesday night.

RANGE SHORT, RAIN NEEDED

400 Reports on Cattle Conditions Supplement 80 Pct. Normal

Supplementing the reports to H. H. Schulz, statistician, department of agriculture, showing the September 1 condition of cattle to be 80 per cent of normal, experts from about 400 reports of individual correspondents in Texas show the range is short and rain badly needed, except in a few localities.

The Armstrong county area, according to the correspondent, is in excellent shape. Rains have been fine, he says, grass is good and cattle are in splendid condition. The report comes from Claude. From Panhandle, Carson county, in the same territory, comes a similar report. "Range conditions are better in this locality," the correspondent writes, "than last year, with probably about the same movement to market." Childress asserts cattle there are getting fat. Ramsdell, Collingsworth county, sounds a different note. "Rains came too late," the correspondent says, "to make much winter grass. Calves are all late and show the effects of dry weather. Heifer calves and all she stuff which became fat will be shipped." He adds: "Everybody anxious to get out of the stock cattle business."

In Cottle county, reporters say the range is short due to the ravages of grasshoppers but cattle look good. Rain however, is needed quickly to make grass good for winter.

WHEAT POOLING A "FALLACY."

Rural Economist Not In Sympathy With Co-Operative System.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—Wheat pooling is an "economic fallacy and can succeed only on a rising market," Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy, Cornell university, today told the Grain Dealers' National association in convention here.

Present wheat pools, he declared, "are not co-operation, but a substitute for it and enemy to farmers' elevators."

Dr. Boyle asserted that local farmers' elevators were "true co-operation and had saved money," but, he added, "they are not spectacular enough for leaders." He characterized the formation of the United States Grain Growers' Inc., as a "dramatic gesture of these leaders." He declared it "spent $750,000 of the farmers' money in three years and then died without marketing any grain."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Service and mutual consideration were set up today by President Coolidge as the guiding principles in relation between the government and business in a talk to delegates to the convention here of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

The president again pledged himself to an administration guided so that "there may be reduction of taxation and harmony in our foreign relations, that here may be peace and prosperity."

MAY SPEND A BILLION.

Postoffice Department, Says New, Sees Great Days Ahead.

By The Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 22. The day when the postoffice department will spend a billion dollars a year is not far distant, Postmaster General New today told members of the National Association of First and Second Class Postmasters at the opening of their convention here today.

He disclosed that the revised rates for the fiscal year 1926 to be submitted to congress in December will call for $838,540,000 for the postal service. That is $25,000,000 more than appropriated for the present fiscal year of 1925.

New Zealand In League Warning As To Americans

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—If the league of nations wants to conserve the hope that America may some day rally to the protocol of arbitration and security it is now trying to get adopted, then the drafting committee must not make the sanctions too binding. This warning was voiced by Sir James Allen of New Zealand, before the disarmament commission this evening at the close of a rather fruitless day of wrangling over the details of the protocol text.

Speaking for the British dominions, Sir James said they would regard a moral obligation to lend aid to any attacked state as far more binding than any merely legal obligation, and they were sure that America would feel the same way if the protocol was put up to her. If the jurists in the league commission persisted in framing a text which would tie the hands of the member states unduly as regards bringing sanctions to bear, he declared that New Zealand would have to make serious reservations and he indicated that the other dominions might well do likewise.

DAWES AND LA FOLLETTE.

General Charles Gates Dawes is on the road again. He is delivering smashing blows to the right of him, to the left of him, before him and perhaps behind him. According to one of his admirers, General Dawes is a hundred percent brains, a hundred percent guts, a hundred percent efficiency and six hundred percent vocabulary.

This political smasher has taken the play away from the quiet man at the White House. General Dawes invaded Maine. He aired his views without reserve. He invaded Milwaukee the other day and he unloaded on Senator Robert M. La Follette. He branded La Follette as the master demagogue of America, the most subtle and the most dangerous of all American demagogues.

He declared the Wisconsin senator a menace to constitutional government. Senator La Follette wishes to dehorn the supreme court of the United States of all its power and to make way for the election of the federal judiciary by direct vote of the people. This is the Dawes viewpoint:

"The courts of the United States are the guardians of the inalienable rights of individuals, including the freedom of the press, the rights of property and religious tolerance. They interpret laws passed by congress in their relations to those rights upheld by the constitution. What kind of a government would this be if congress had the right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he shall go to church and undertaking to encroach upon the individual rights recognized by all civilizations?"

John W. Davis, the democratic nominee, said it first. He said it as a member of the West Virginia legislature; he said it as a democratic member of the American congress; he said it as solicitor general of the government; he said it as president of the American Bar association; he said it before he was the democratic nominee for president and he has been saying it ever since. Regardless of this, General Dawes pounded the La Follette platform and its nominees. Speaking of reactionaries, he said:

"The most dangerous reactionary is the man attacking the constitution of the United States. Such a man would open the way for a condition of things under which again, in poverty, confusion and misery, the people must evolve among themselves constitutional instruments of stable and free government, under which the inalienable rights of the individual are protected from the aggressions of the majority and from government itself. Let us not deceive ourselves. The doctrines of the socialists of the United States headed in this campaign by Robert M. La Follette, are the reactionary doctrines."

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin has the floor. It is his move. The gladiator of the Coolidge-Dawes combination spoke his mind freely and the standpatters of America applauded his words. Really the heavy punchers of the campaign are Davis, Dawes and Wheeler, but it may be different later along.

ILLINOIS.

Illinois is the home of the Chicago Tribune which advertises itself as the world's greatest newspaper. Chicago is the home of Hell-and-Maria Dawes. Chicago is the home of Boss Brennan.

Now it is said that Illinois has eight times as many bank robberies as New York and Pennsylvania put together. Who says it? Why the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. Illinois has Herrin. Illinois has Williamson county.

Mexico would disown Herrin and Soviet Russia wouldn't permit Williamson county to remain on the map.

Herrin must be within speaking distance of Hell and Williamson county can not be far removed from the main entrance of the infernal regions.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

LIBRA.

Today's planetary aspects are quite adverse, and indicate danger, disagreement and loss. Under these conditions, it is very essential to abstain from any effort of a radical nature, and to maintain poise and equilibrium. Duties of a routine and customary character should receive careful attention and no new enterprises should be attempted. Speech and action must both be controlled so that nothing should be said or done of an impulsive and ill-considered character.

A child born today will pass successfully through an uneventful babyhood, without any physical setbacks. During the stages of adolescence it will be subject to, at least, one serious sickness, which will demand great care and patience. Its character will be impulsive; its disposition attractive and magnetic; its mentality quite normal. This child will be restless and active, and every effort must be made to teach it to acquire poise and calm. Whenever, however, it does that which it should not do, impelled thereto by impulse, it will soon secure forgiveness by sincerity of regret and charm of character.

If today is your birthday, you are continually bemoaning your lack of friends, as you full well realize that if you were able to make more friends, your progress would be commensurably greater, on the principle that if you make friends, your friends will make you.

"Your friends can do little for you; you must carve your own path," is a truism. Yet no more of a truism than that, without friends, no man can reach and long stay at the top.

The self-made man is an unfinished product, but no man is a finished product who, in making himself, has neglected to make friends. To have sincere friends, you must be a sincere friend. The real friend is he or she who can halve our sorrows and double our joys.

Friends are essential to success. They are still more essential to happiness. Success without happiness is not true success.

True friendships cannot be bought with money; true friendships can be bought only by friendship.

SUB ROSA

ON THE "Q T"

By MIMI

Now just between ourselves, we'll discuss the married men, and try to find out if we can, what is the matter with them.

The wives tell me that their husbands act so bored that they are restless and ill tempered, when they are at home.

Some of these have been married a short time, and some over a long period of years but the wail is the same—"I don't seem to satisfy him."

These wives who know they are mated intellectually, spiritually, and physically, send up the same cry—so the reason isn't that man has not found a perfect mate.

The fault is not with the wife—it is just because they are very different creatures—a man's a man, and a woman is a woman. What will satisfy the one will not satisfy the other.

Realizing this is the first step in clearing up the situation.

Take a man's viewpoint and look things over—would you be satisfied with the present circumstances if you were a man?

Get the man's perspective on the whole proposition and you will realize why husbands are restless and bored at home.

Look at your friends and acquaintances from the man's point of view, then think of the kind of people he would choose for guests.

For a month play being a fellow instead of a girl and see how differently you would run things.

You can work the problem out, I am sure, with this key I have given you. Use it.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

POOR LO!

In the days when this nation was young,
So trustworthy history tells,
The Indian would often give tongue
To wild and demoniac yells.
In peace, round the glow of the campfire he made
Unending and eloquent speeches,
And in war-time a part of the fighting man's trade
Was uttering hideous screeches.

But mute are the terrible yells
That the Red Man was noted for once;
His thoughts, which are simple, he tells
In a few brief and gutteral grunts.
No longer he's moved on the war path to go,
And to murder and pillage and riot;
No more he permits any language to flow,
But is sternly and utterly quiet.

Yet soon may his echoing call
Rouse the land with its rhythmical beat
For an Indian is seeking this fall
To gain a congressional seat.
And the people who dwell on the limitless plain
May leap before long from their pallets,
While Lo, with a war-whoop conducts a campaign,
To get him the requisite ballots.

Here's hoping the Red Man may win,
For he's certain to feel quite at home
'Mid the shouting and turmoil and din
He will find 'neath the capitol dome.
But though he may howl like the chieftains of yore,
If he hopes to disseminate terror,
When some of the statesmen 'round there have the floor,
Poor Lo will find out he's in error!

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

THE REVENGE OF FRANCE

France has suffered a good deal from Americans, especially from advertising. It is because of American advertising methods that French billboards are plastered with the alluring attractions of soap and medicine. It is because of American advertising methods that, while riding in the Paris subway, you cannot tell the name of a station because it is concealed among advertisements of various kinds.

But the French have their revenge in their own way. They are the best, the longest and the fastest, to say nothing of being the most tiresome, speech makers in the world, and they sure did rub it into the advertising men while they were their guests in Paris. Early in the morning they attended the American pro-cathedral, the American church, and the Catholic church of St. Joseph's, and listened to speeches by Dean Beekman and Dr. Joseph W. Cochran, who told what they knew about modern publicity.

Then they went to the unknown soldier's grave where they listened to a band and were addressed by speeches from Senator Paul Dupuy and others. Mr. Neal spoke of the traditional friendship between France and America and other worn-out topics. He was followed by Mr. Kirwin, of Texas, who afterwards pronounced a prayer for the dead of France, and the whole performance ended by a band playing the Marseillaise and the Star Spangled Banner.

Afterwards, at 10:45, they went to the Avenue George V where they listened to more talks by Bishop Kinsolving and Dean Beekman.

Following this they had another speech at the Battle Cloister for the memory of American soldiers who died in the war.

Then they drove out to Versailles where they were bombarded with speeches by Senator Paul Dupuy again, also by M. Bonnefoy-Sibour, prefect of Seine-et-Oise, M. Saint-Mieu, mayor of Versailles, and M. Petitpas, president of the committee of Versailles fetes.

Afterwards they went to the hall of mirrors, at Versailles, where they were addressed by M. Bonnefoy-Sibour, and Mayor Saint-Mieu. M. Marcel Knecht also made a few remarks that were replied to by Mr. Fred B. Smith, of New York.

Then there was a banquet at the Trianon palace in their honor after which there were short speeches by Mr. Neal and others. The occasion wound up with a display of fireworks and the play of fountains, and the delegates, who were sufficiently speechified by this time, came back to the Place de la Concorde after midnight. They felt that the French had taken their revenge.

GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

BY CLARK KINNAIRD

SPEAKING HIS MIND

Thomas Huxley, thinking seriously about what life had to offer that was worth having, came to the conclusion that the chief good, for him, was freedom to learn, think, and say what he pleased when he pleased.

Here are some of the things he learned, though about, and said when he pleased:

There are three great products of our time. One of these is that doctrine concerning the constitution of matter which, for want of a better name, I will call "molecular"; the second is the doctrine of the conservation of energy; the third is the doctrine of evolution.

The doctrine that all men are, in any sense, or having been, at any time, free and equal, is an utterly baseless fiction.

History warns us that it is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions.

Next to being right in this world, the best of all things is to be clearly and definitely wrong, because you will come out somewhere.

There are men who are counted great because they represent the actuality of their own age, and mirror it as it is. Such a one was Voltaire, of whom it was epigrammatically said, "he expressed everybody's thoughts better than anybody." But there are other men who attain greatness because they embody the potentiality of their own day, and magically reflect the future. Such a one was Descartes.

"Learn what is true, in order to do what is right," is the summing up of the whole duty of man for all who are unable to satisfy their mental hunger with the east wind of authority.

Time, whose tooth gnaws away everything else, is powerless against truth.

The higher the state of civilization, the more completely do the actions of one member of the social body influence all the rest and the less possible it is for any one man to do a wrong thing without interfering, more or less, with the freedom of all his fellow-citizens.

UNCOMMON SENSE

THE DANGER ZONE.

Modern parents do a great deal of unnecessary worrying about their children.

Most of this is due to the fact that, although they know they are far from perfect themselves, they expect their children to use them as patterns.

No two people exactly alike have ever been born into the world.

It would be foolish for a boy to try to be an exact copy of his father, or for a girl to be a replica of her mother.

All life changes in many ways in a generation. Manners of twenty years ago would be as out of style now as would the clothes of the same period.

Children perhaps run more risks than did their parents, but they are better able to protect themselves.

Even if they do "run wild" now and then, there is no reason to believe that humanity is going to perdition.

All that is necessary is to take them safely through the danger line, which is the formative period between 12 and 20, when the judgment is undeveloped and undependable.

In taking them through that stage of existence, it is not necessary to take them over the exact course that was followed in 1900.

Bar a few slumps back to barbarity—none of which seems to be now impending, humanity has gone ahead pretty steadily since civilization began, each generation improving a little over the one before.

Always have there been moralists who have held up their hands at the waywardness of youth, and have declared that children were going to the dogs. But for the most part the dogs have been baffled of their prey in the end.

If the average parent would sometimes go to a farm and watch a hen which has been forced to be the foster mother of ducklings run up and down the bank of a pond in which her charges were swimming, he would get a pretty fair idea of the part he plays in life.

Give a child a good education, conduct him through the safety zone, and convince him that he is not going to the devil, but has a far higher destination, and you have done all you can do as a father or mother.

Nag and hector him all the time, and try to make him exactly as you imagine you did in your youth, and you will be pretty sure to start him on the downward way.

HOW IT STARTED

THE PROOFREADER

Today every editorial room and every printing office of significance has its proofreader who is employed to do nothing else but read the proofs of the material which goes through the office, line for line and word for word, to correct mistakes in typography, matter or punctuation.

But there was a time in the history of printing when proofreader's office did not exist and his work was supposed to be done somehow as the proofs went through the hands of the various other workers. Then came the man, the first recorded proofreader, Giovanni Andrea, who created the job for himself.

In the year 1450 the large printing firm in Rome by which Giovanni was employed published what up to that time was their most pretentious volume. Andrea, an employee in the press rooms, handling the proofs as they were about to go to press, called attention to the fact that they were still full of errors. A score of workers had passed on the sheets—and had not detected them. So Giovanni Andrea was commended for his sharpness, and made official proofreader—and the first of his craft!

Dorothy Dix

Does a Man With a Mean Disposition Ever Make a Good Husband? Can a Husband Overdo His Attentiveness After Fifteen Years of Happiness? Shall She Marry Widower Whose Family Objects?

My dear Miss Dix—What do you think of the advisability of a girl marrying a man who has a mean disposition? He has a violent temper and surly nature. Worst of all, he seems to like to wound people's feelings, particularly the girls, and he takes a cruel revenge for even the slightest thing that any one does to him, or he thinks they do, to anger him. He admits his fault, but says that he cannot help it. It is just his nature. The girl has tried to help him in vain. She herself is always sunny, and of a particularly even disposition. He is young, and the girl realizes that he might have worse faults. Still she believes that a good disposition in wedded life is an important factor toward insuring its success, since it can turn mountains into mole hills by mere laughter. What do you think? JOY.

Answer:

The very worst fault that a husband can possibly have, bar none, is to have a mean disposition. Personally, if I had to choose between a rounder, a drunkard, a shiftless, no-account, and a man who was a model of all the virtues, but who had a mean disposition, I would take the philanderer, or a sot, or the loafer, every time in preference.

For a man cannot always be chasing petticoats, nor inebriated. The most constitutionally tired man can sometimes be made to do a bit of work, and they all have times and seasons when they are pleasant and agreeable. But a mean disposition is with you every day and hour. You can never get away from it. It is like a thorn in the flesh, a pebble in the shoe, that goads you to madness.

Furthermore, a man's sin is often just his weakness, and along with his faults he often possesses noble and lovable qualities. But a mean disposition comes from a mean heart. It is born of selfishness of arrogance, of cruelty, of jealousy and spite, of every evil thing.

The man who grouches around his home and sits up in sullen silence for days at a time, or who flies into a rage about everything that doesn't please him, and whose family walk on tiptoe for fear of offending his augustness, and who live in dread of doing or saying something that will precipitate a scene, is a grinding tyrant who could have given points to Nero and beaten him at the game.

The man who says cruel things that stab his wife to the heart has the spirit of the wife-hater, and the only reason that he doesn't give her a black eye instead of a bruised soul is because one shows and the other doesn't.

He delights in tormenting her. He enjoys seeing her suffer, but he is too big a coward to come out and strike her openly. He resorts to sneaky, underhanded methods of indulging his lust of cruelty.

No man or woman with a mean disposition can make a happy home no matter what other good qualities they have, so my earnest advice to all contemplating matrimony is to look out for the disposition first. Marry a man or a women with a sweet, generous, cheerful, kind nature, and the balance will take care of itself. It is the disposition with which we have to live. DOROTHY DIX.

Riders In the Fog

The rough code of chivalry, however, did not extend to the point where they were willing to give up their own property. There came about, later and over at the county seat, an interview between Lathrop and Sugden at which I was not present, but which I heard described by the jailer who witnessed it. On this occasion my father-in-law made over to the outlaw the real estate which belonged to the gang. Both the jailer and Sugden's lawyer, who was also present at the conference, said that the two men seemed to get on amiably enough; but I know that Lathrop showed up after the affair, decidedly the worse for wear, as one who has passed through an ordeal. I never saw Sugden myself from the time when they carried him limp, and half-strangled, up the winding trail. Nor do I know what became of him in the end. For soon after a federal judge had sentenced him to a life term he managed to escape, and made his way into some wilderness where no one has tracked him yet.

The sun came out the day after the capture; and on that day Barbara and I rode up the hill trail to the deserted home where I had lived as a boy. What of sadness there was there for both of us was mellowed by the happiness that had come into our lives. That happiness, after what had taken place, was like the brightness which now hung over the whole coast line, with its grass ridges and its dark, redwood canoes, its brown rocks where the breakers leaped snow-white without resting, and the golden poppy patches stirring in the breeze.

That day was the last we saw of the country where we had lived as children and grown to plight our troth. We rode out before evening, leaving to Manuel the management of my ranch; and we have never gone back since.

THE END.

THE CHAMPION

BY KING LARDNER

Midge Kelly scored his first knockout when he was seventeen. The knockee was his brother Connie, three years his junior and a cripple. The purse was a half dollar given the younger Kelly by a lady whose electric had just missed bumping his soul from his frail little body.

Connie did not know Midge was in the house, else he never would have risked laying the prize on the arm of the least comfortable chair in the room, the better to observe its shining beauty. As Midge entered from the kitchen, the crippled covered the coin with his hand, but the movement lacked the speed requisite to escape the brother's quick eye.

"Whatcha got there?" demanded Midge.

"Nothin'," said Connie.

"You're a one legged liar!" said Midge.

He strode over to his brother's chair and grasped the hand that concealed the coin.

"Let loose!" he ordered.

Connie began to cry.

"Let loose and shut up your noise," said the elder, and jerked his brother's hand from the chair arm.

The coin fell onto the bare floor. Midge pounced on it. His weak mouth widened in a triumphant smile.

"Nothin', huh?" he said. "All right, if it's nothin' you don't want it."

"Give that back," sobbed the younger.

"I'll give you a red nose, you little sneak! Where'd you steal it?"

"I didn't steal it. It's mine. A lady give it to me after she pretty near hit me with a car."

"It's a crime she missed you," said Midge.

Midge started for the front door. The cripple picked up his crutch, rose from his chair with difficulty, and, still sobbing, came toward Midge. The latter heard him and stopped.

"You better stay where you're at," he said.

"I want my money," cried the boy.

Doubling up the fist that held the half dollar, he landed with all his strength on his brother's mouth. Connie fell to the floor with a thud, the crutch tumbling on top of him. Midge stood beside the prostrate form.

"Is that enough?" he said. "Or do you want this too?" and he kicked him in the crippled leg.

"I guess that'll hold you," he said.

There was no response from the boy on the floor. Midge looked at him a moment, then at the coin in his hand, and then went out into the street whistling.

An hour later, when Mrs. Kelly came home from her day's work at Faulkner's Steam Laundry, she found Connie on the floor, moaning. Dropping on her knees beside him, she called him by name a score of times. Then she got up and, pale as a ghost, dashed from the house. Dr. Ryan left the Kelly abode about dusk and walked toward Halstead street. Mrs Dorgan spied him as he passed her gate.

"Who's sick, Doctor?" she called.

"Poor little Connie," he replied. "He had a bad fall."

"How did it happen?"

"I can't say for sure," Marga but I'd almost bet he was knocked down."

"Knocked down!" exclaimed Mrs. Dorgan.

"Why who—?"

"Have you seen the other one lately?"

"Michael? No, not since mornin'. You can't be thinkin'—"

"I wouldn't put it past him, Margaret," said the doctor gravely. "The lad's mouth is swollen and cut, and his poor, skinny little leg is bruised. He surely didn't do it himself and I think Helen suspects the other one."

"Lord save us!" said Mrs. Dorgan. "I'll run over and see if I can help."

"That's a good woman," said Doctor Ryan, and went on down the street.

Near midnight, when Midge came home, his mother was sitting at Connie's bedside. She did not look up.

"Well," said Midge, "what's the matter?"

She remained silent. Midge repeated his question.

"Michael, you know what's the matter," she said at length.

"I don't know nothin'," said Midge. "Dont lie to me, Michael. What did you do to your brother?"

"Nothin'."

"You hit him."

"Well, then, I hit him. What of it? It ain't the first time."

Her lips pressed tightly together, her face like chalk, Ellen Kelly rose from her chair and made straight for him. Midge backed against the door.

"Lay off'n me, Ma. I don't want to fight no woman."

Still she came on breathing heavily.

"Stop where you're at, Ma," he warned.

There was a brief struggle and Midge's mother lay on the floor before him.

"You ain't hurt, Ma. You're lucky I didn't land good. And I told you to lay off'n me."

"God forgive you, Michael."

Midge found Cap Collins in the showdown game at the Royal.

"Come on out a minute," he said. Hap followed him out on the walk.

"I'm leavin' town for a w'ile," said Midge.

"What for?"

"Well, we had a little run-in up to the house. The kid stole a half buck off'n me, and when I went after it he cracked me with his crutch. So I nailed him. And the old lady came at me with a chair and I took it off'n her and she fell down."

"How is Connie hurt?"

"Not bad."

"What are you runnin' away for?"

"Who the hell said I was runnin' away? I'm sick and tired o' goin' picked on; that's all. So I'm leavin' for a w'ile and I want a piece o' money."

"I ain't only got six bits," said Happy.

"You're in bad shape, ain't you? Well, come through with it."

Happy came through.

"You oughtn't to hit the kid," he said.

"I ain't astin' you who I can hit," snarled Midge. "You try to put somethin' over on me and you'll get the same dose. I'm goin' now."

"Go as far as you like," said Happy, but not until he was sure that Kelly was out of hearing.

Early the following morning Midge boarded a train for Milwaukee. He had no ticket, but no one knew the difference. The conductor remained in the caboose.

On a night six months later, Midge hurried out of the "stage door" of the Star Boxing Club and made for Dunne's saloon, two blocks away. In his pocket were twelve dollars, his reward for having battered up one Demon Dempsey through the six rounds of the first preliminary.

CHILDRESS FAIR LOSES

Bad Weather Causes Deficit Despite Big Attendance.

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Sept. 24.—The Childress State Fair association have a deficit this season, due to the bad weather. Although it had rain insurance, it did not rain between the hours the insurance was carried, so they were unable to collect. On the last day when the auto races were run the attendance was around 10,000, the largest crowd that has ever gathered in Childress. In spite of the big crowds the bad weather Wednesday and Thursday, which prevented the program being given caused the financial loss.

IRRIGATION

of the future? Every where except on the Robinson and Jeter places it was the first trial of irrigation. The lands are owned by men who never irrigated before in their lives. All in a new country so far as irrigation is concerned. Everything in the experimental stage. Every one learning, still in the kindergarten of irrigation. And yet yields 4 or 5 or even 15 times more than on the dry land farms.

Is there a chance for improvement? Will it be better next year and the year after that? This is an oil country. Everyone understands oil. Let us make a comparison from the oil fields. Suppose you put a man on an oil driller, who had never been in an oil country, who had never even seen an oil derrick, what chance would there be of him making a well? Mighty little, but give him five years experience and he ought to be a good driller. So it is in irrigation here. Orrigation is new. The land owners are inexperienced. It is natural and reasonable to expect better yields in the future, to expect other crops as valuable or even more valuable than cotton to be developed.

Irrigation Is Proven

Wednesday's trip proved that irrigation is a success throughout the length of the valley. The next step is the colonization of the surplus lands. We must have more people, more farmers. We have the land, the water, the climate, the markets, the paved roads, the railroads, the towns and city, everything is here except the people, the farmers.

With more farmers the valley will be one huge garden spot. It will be known far and wide as the spot where the best crops in North Texas are grown. Where there is never a drouth and where more money is made per acre than in any other place.

There is more wealth in Lake Kemp and the first three feet of the soil on the irrigation project than in all the oil that lies beneath. Irrigation wil make this a solid city a substantial city. The best city in Texas.

STERLEY BOOSTS IRRIGATION.

Fort Worth and Denver Head Says City Has Rare Opportunity Ahead.

Wichita county has, in the form of its irrigation system, an opportunity seldom presented a city of this size, according to W. F. Sterley, vice-president of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway system, who was in the city yesterday. Mr. Sterley, affectionately referred to sometimes as "the daddy of the Denver" and is the highest official of the road in Texas, came up at the urging of M. B. Oates, agricultural agent for the road. He made the tour of the Wichita valley with the motor crowd yesterday.

In a brief address on the W. P. Ferguson farm yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sterley recounted a few of the early struggles of J. A. Kemp to bring about a realization of his dreams for a vast irrigation system. He stated that he had watched with interest the steps by which the plan eventually came to fruition, and predicted that Wichita county was destined to leap to the forefront in agricultural lines if the most were made of the irrigation possibilities.

Unusually heavy bookings of cotton combined with the relatively low ocean freight rate for grain, has caused a dearth in ship space available for grain. Wheat receipts so far this season have been more than 12,500,000 bushels, with shipments of 5,037,000 bushels in August alone.

City and Irrigation Tourists Discuss 25 Year Term for Murder

Considerable interest in the outcome of the Herbert Griffin case was shown here yesterday morning when it became known that the Dundee rancher had been given a 25 year sentence for the murder of Hugh Reilly Jr. last May. Interest in the case was at a high pitch throughout the trial.

Members of the party which made the irrigation tour yesterday visited the scene of the shooting. The route from the W. P. Ferguson ranch carried them within 100 yards of the spot where Reilly fell and directly past the fence which caused the trouble between he and Griffin.

A brief stop was made at the point.

Chicks Scrap Panthers to 3-3 Tie in Series' Opener

Warmoth Locks With Joe Pate In Hard Mound Duel

Darkness Calls Halt After But Eight Innings Of Play

KRAFT GOES HITLESS

Memphis Hurlers' Wildness Nearly Gives Cats Game

MEMPHIS, Sept. 24. — Memphis and Fort Worth, Southern association and Texas league pennant winners, battled today to a 3 to 3 tie in the inaugural game of the Dixie Series for premier baseball honors of the south, darkness halting the fray at the end of the eighth inning.

Under the rules governing the series today's game will be played off in addition to the second game of the series originally scheduled for tomorrow before the teams journey to Texas for the opening game on the grounds of the Texas league champions.

Today's game was a battle of left handers with Cy Warmoth, Memphis hurler, matching his wares against Joe Pate, Ft. Worth ace, and holding the advantage in every inning except one—the fifth—when his wildness started Fort Worth on a scoring bee that piled up enough runs before it was checked to make the game a dog-fall.

Memphis Scores First

Memphis started the scoring in the first inning when "Doc" Prothro drove out a long double, the only extra base hit of the game, and scored Gleason from first. Neither team scored after the opening marker until the fifth when Warmoth started off by walking Edington and Tavener on eight pitched balls. Bischoff bunted safely down the third base line and Warmoth let go a wild pitch that struck Umpire Kane who was behind the plate, on the leg and allowed Edington to score. Tavener raced home with the second Fort Worth run ahead of the throw-in of Pate's fly to the field and Calvo hit a liner to Prothro which the Memphis infielder knocked down but could not field in time to stop Bischoff from crossing the plate.

Chicks Come Back

Memphis tied the score in the same inning when Prothro and Carlyle singled and both scored—Prothro on Kolpbecker's single and Carlyle when Anderson hit a sharp grounder to second that bounced off Palmer's leg into the field.

Warmoth allowed seven hits and Pate nine and the Memphis pitcher had seven strike outs to his credit and Pate four. Clarence Kraft, whose 55 home runs for the 1924 season set a new minor league record, struck out twice and failed to get a hit. Each pitcher allowed two bases on balls.

The game was started at 3:45 o'clock to avoid conflict with events scheduled at the tri-state fair, now in progress, but under an agreement reached tonight advancing the fair events, tomorrow's game will start at 3 o'clock. The score:

ROBINS WIN CUB FINAL.

Grimes Goes Route, but Is Poled For 13 Safe Clouts.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 24.—Brooklyn won the final game of the Chicago series today 6 to 5 after a third strenuous battle. Grimes went the route but was always in difficulties, the Cubs making 13 hits, including a home run by Adams. Grimes pulled himself out of several tight holes by fanning the third man to retire the side. Faultness fielding helped him at other time. Alexander started for Chicago but was taken out in the fourth.

Legion Glovesters Wind-up Open Air Boxing Season Tonight

YOU KNOW ME AL — The Adventures of Jack Keefe —By Ring Lardner

Pat Corbett To Step 12 Rounds With McMullen

Joe Denton Mixes it With Rube Murray In Ten-Rounder

LEE BATTLES MOKO

Jack Denton and Jimmy Riley Billed For Four Rounds

Legion glovesters will strut their wares this evening in the Legion arena at Tenth and Ohio on the final program of the Wichita Falls outdoor boxing season. There will be no matches next week by way of co-operation with the Texas-Oklahoma fair association which will stage its annual fair here then. Week after next the bouts are to be held indoors, stated Promoter Don Wofford, Wednesday.

Thirty-four rounds of milling are carded for tonight's program, and legion officials beleive each match, four in all, will carry thrills in abundance.

Pat a Clever Boy

Pat Corbett, welterweight formerly of the Pacific coast, Dallas and now of Holdenville, Okla., will step with Elmer McMullen of Dodge City, Kan., in the 12-round main event. Wichita Falls fans are well acquainted with the Kansas battler and know that he is the type of scrapper who always bores in and ever lets up regardless of how much punishment he may be receiving. Corbett probably is one of the cleverest welterweights to appear in this city. Besides kicking the well-known Hamp Brown of Oklahoma all over the ring he recently battled our own Joe Denton to a draw. This should be sufficient introduction for Pat.

Rube Murray, also former Pacific coast welter but now of Altus, Okla., and the lad who several weeks back stopped the slugging Moko Carpenter in one round here, expects to send Joe Denton down for the count. The two are billed for a 10-rounder. Dopesters are of the opinion that Denton is too classy a miller for Murray to accomplish much with, however, and believe that Joseph possibly will punch his way to a victory before the alloted 10 rounds have passed away.

Jack Denton and Riley

Carpenter and George Lee of Holdenville, another light heavyweight, are scheduled for eight rounds. Lee, as carried in The Record News Wednesday morning, declares that Carpenter doesn't stand a chance. And he is backed in this belief by Corbett, who is well acquainted with him. Carpenter's friends, and he has many of them, of course, can't see it that way.

Jack Denton and Jimmy Riley of Altus will mingle over the four-round route in the curtain raiser. In this attempt to wind up the summer season with a flourish, Promoter Wofford believes that this program will more than fill the bill.

Cotton Winner, Not Mayfield.

A. R. Cotton was victor 2 up in the recent Art handicap golf tournament over J. L. Mayfield instead of the opposite, which was announced Wednesday. Cotton receives a handsome thermos bottle as prize while Mayfield gets a medal for being runner-up.

PIRATE HOPES GONE

McGraws Outgeneral And Outgame Buccos At All Angles

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Battling forward with an irresistible offense and with their fourth straight pennant in sight, the New York Giants today sent Pittsburgh down to defeat for the second successive time 4 to 2. It was a crushing and probably decisive blow to the pennant hopes of the Pirates, who now are three and one-half games behind the champions. They have a slim chance only to catch the leaders. Behind the fine twirling of Virgil Barnes, the Giants played in sparkling fashion. The Pirates were outgeneraled and outgamed at every turn.

McFARLAND IN MEXICO.

Featherweight Boxer Wants to Visit Wichita Falls Soon.

Frankie McFarland, featherweight battler who appeared in the legion arena twice several weeks back, is in Mexico at present. McFarland in a letter to the Record News sports editor Wednesday, declared that he is boxing regularly and winning right along. Frankie hopes to return to Wichita Falls soon, and is desirous of again appearing on local cards.

In his letter to the Record News McFarland inclosed several posters announcing his bouts, but these will not be produced for the Wichita Falls public because they were printed in Spanish.

Mexican laws prohibit women from appearing in public in knickers. The anti-knicker measures probably are found in all states where it is still deemed necessary to safeguard against frightening horses.

Grange Not Only Star of Illinois Grid Squad Now

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 24.—"There will be someone else in the field for them to watch this year besides Red Grange," is the prediction of Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois in his own words.

Just who he meant he would not say, but from the practice sessions thus far this season, several are possibilities. Ray Gallivan, sophomore quarter from Urbana, has been playing a consistently strong game and it is a question as to whether he or Harry Hall, last year's pilot, will call the plays against Nebraska, October 4. He may have been in Zuppke's mind.

Zup may have meant Bennie Leonard, 187-pound back from Forrest, who was a bright light with the freshman squad last year. Leonard gets punts away for 50 yards and he can run and dodge as well.

Or the coach may have been thinking of Dancey, a former schoolmate of Leonard, who is a hard hitter both on offense and defense. He has stopped Grange several times in scrimmage.

The work of Rodman, a lineman from Bement has pleased Zuppke and Bernie Shively should give spectators and opponents something to watch at left guard, Jim McMillen's old berth. Bernie is one of the two biggest things in suits hereabouts, overshadowing Earl Britton, who is no weakling, and rivaling Dick Hall.

Golf

As Champions Play It

What are some additional points in getting good tee shots and good brassie shots?

Answered by
Bill Strachan
Wichita Falls Golf Club Professional

I recommend that the average golfer "take these tips to heart" if he wishes to improve his work with the wooden clubs. Some of the pointers alap hold for the irons.

As the right elbow and left knee bend for the upward swing, pivot slightly on the left ball of the left foot and a little at the waist. However, in doing this, do not exaggerate it so that the left foot feels "shaky." The left foot should always hold firmly to the ground, and at the end of the swing this foot should not have moved appreciably from its original position. As a last pointer, practice until you can bring your club down in the same arc which you use to complete the upswing. If you master this last point you will notice a decided tendency for hooks and slices to die out of your game.

Yanks Shut Out Redskins In Fast Contest, 2 to 0

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Washington closed its American league season here today by taking the final game of the series from Chicago, 6 to 3, and making a clean sweep of the series. The victory enabled them to retain their two game margin over the Yankees, who shut out the Indians. The league leaders bunched their hitting in three innings off Thurston, White Sox ace, and while sensational ball behind Zachary, had little trouble staying out in front.

Favorites Survive Second Round National Amateur

ARDMORE, Penn., Sept. 24—Experience counted in the second round of the national amateur golf tournament today. The eight survivers comprise a former open champ, the present amateur champ, the inter-collegiate champion, two former amateur champs, one of whom once held the open title; two former trans-Mississippi champs, and a former New York state champ.

In the feature match which attracted a gallery of hundreds, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, former open champion, defeated D. Clarke Corkran of Philadelphia, winner of the qualifying medal in the record breaking figures of 67-75-142, by 3 and 2. A spurt by Corkran when he was five down with five holes to play carried the match to the 34th green.

Rudy Knepper, Chicago, who won the trans-Mississippi title when he was a student at Princeton, eliminated Ellsworth of Cleveland, four and two.

Francis Ouimet of Boston, former open and amateur champion, defeated Eddie Held of St. Louis, 4 and 3.

Dexter Cummings of Chicago, intercollegiate champion, eliminated the last foreign survivor in the tournament, W. L. Hope of the British Walker cup team by 7 and 6.

Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, who is defending his title in the present tournament at the Merion Cricket club, defeated his fellow townsman, J. Wood Platt, 7 and 5.

George Von Elm, former trans-Mississippi champ, formerly from Salt Lake City and now represents the Rancho club of Los Angeles, defeated Lawson M. Watts of St. Louis, 6 and 4.

E. H. Driggs, Jr., New York, former state title holder, eliminated C. N. Paul, also of the Metropolitan district, 6 and 4. It was a triumph for the Long Island section over Westchester county.

Tomorrow's matches will be:
Jones vs. Knepper; Ouimet vs. Guilford; Cummings vs. Marston; Von Elm vs. Driggs.

Bobby Jones was outdriven by Corkran, but superiority with irons and putting won the match for him. Corkran led after the first hole, where Jones topped his drive, but Jones immediately squared the match at the second. Thereafter Jones was never behind. He was 3 up at lunch. A par thirty-six for the first nine holes of the afternoon made Jones five up, an advantage he retained with six holes left to play. A spurt by Corkran involving two birdies by him and Bobby's only six of the day prolonged the match. Jones had only one three putt green all day and on nine greens needed only one putt.

The cards for the afternoon round:
Jones, out 453 545 442-36.
Corkran, out 455 554 444-40.
Jones, in 454 246 4.
Corkran, in 445 235 4.

Accuracy with irons and better putting were likewise responsible for Francis Ouimet's victory over Eddie Held. Three up at the eleventh, Held then went over par on four holes in succession and Ouimet took the lead by shooting perfect golf.

Billy Whiskers

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY.

Yesterday you remembere, the moving picture people wanted Billy for their pictures instead of being angry because he spoiled the screen.

"But where did he come from and to whom does he belong?"

"We don't know or care," replied the director. "He is the goat we want to work with. If he is a stray goat, so much the better. If he belongs to someone, buy him at any cost. You will never find another with such sweeping horns and long, flowing beard."

"No, indeed you won't," chimed in the animator."

"I see your finish, Mr. Billy Whiskers. You are about to be added to our troupe of performing animals and I for one am delighted for it certainly will seem good to me to have an educated, traveled goat as a companion instead of a pack of trained dogs, cats, bears, seals, monkeys, pigs, ducks, and so on."

"You don't mean to tell me you have a trained duck among your performers do you?" asked Billy. "I should think a duck or a goose would be the last thing anyone could train. I always looked upon them as having no brains whatsoever."

"Don't you believe it! Our lily-white duck is a wonder. Now put on your best manners and don't butt or buck the president or either of the other men, for they are coming over here to inspect you."

"All right. I'll put on my company manners so they will take me over to the big studio where you can introduce me to the troupe of animals you belong to. If I don't like it, I can easily make my escape and run away."

And this is how Billy Whiskers became a moving-picture actor.

While the men were still talking, one of the animal trainers opened the back gate to the yard and called out, "Come on, you fellows! And mind, no monkey-shines when you get out on the street, or I'll cut your supper down to half! So you are the new member of the troupe, are you, Mr. Billy Goat? Your name on the billboards should be Mr. Billy Whiskers (little did he think that that was Billy's right name!) because you have such an unusually long, thick beard. Come over here and let me pull it and see if it is real."

While talking the man had been walking toward Billy, and when he reached him he stretched out his hand to pet him, as Billy supposed. Instead, he caught hold of Billy's beard and gave it a vicious pull. The next thing the man knew he was flying over the back fence and he landed in an ash barrel, heels up, where he stuck fast and had to call for help. Luckily for him, at that minute a ragman was driving down the alley and he hastened to the fellow's assistance.

(We will hope that the man learned a lesson from Billy's rought treatment of him, and will treat animals more kindly after this.)

Color Cut-Out

"Today is such a nice, sunny day," said Aunt Kitty, "that I think we will put the baby out on the porch for a short while. It has been so very cold before that I didn't like to put her out there."

"I think that would be fine," said Betty Cut-out importantly, "and I'll stay out and watch her. Nancy is coming over to see my new little cousin anyway, and we'll both of us play with her."

"Oh, but she has to take a nap," replied Aunt Kitty.

"Then we'll be very quiet," promised Betty, and ran to meet Nancy.

The baby's little silk coat and bonnet are pink. Her teddy bear should be colored light brown. Tomorrow you can cut out some new playthings for the baby.

WHAT OKLAHOMA MAKES

Statistically Inclined Traveler Puts Cotton Crop to Pencil

Special to the Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. — A statistically inclined traveling man was observed figuring in the depot here while waiting for a train today. When asked what he was wearing his led pencil out upon, he said, that he was trying to get at the amount of money the Oklahoma cotton grower had made during the day.

Here are the final figures of the knight-of-the-grip statistician:

"Oklohoma has a crop of cotton amounting to 1,500,000 bales. That's 750,000,000 pounds. The market closed two cents a pound higher today. Being long on cotton, and not having sold his crop as yet, the Oklahoma planter is just worth $15,000,000 more today than he was worth yesterday.

"Considering the sparse population of the state and particularly the south and western section, where most of the cotton is grown, I should say that the fifteen million is distributed among 100,000 people, or to analyze it more thoroughly not to exceed 20,000 ranchers get the $15,000,000.

"I'll tell the world that business is going to be good in the great state of Oklahoma this year and right up and around Wichita Falls, too."

People are funny. The more they learn to value fresh air, the more they try to build their house air tight.

Correct this sentence: "It is a great privilege," said the husband of ten years, "to kiss your dear hands."

Mothers

AND THEIR CHILDREN

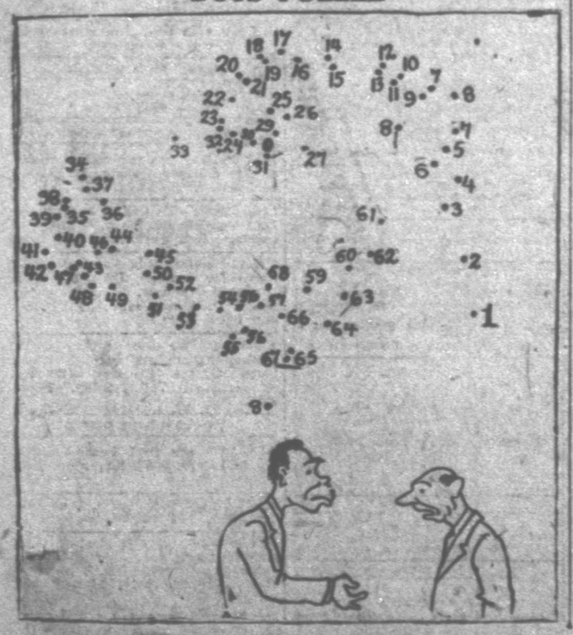

Selecting Clothes.

One Mother Says:

I am always careful to let my girls help in the planning and selection of their clothes, even when they are very young. Often young people are terribly afflicted by being obliged to wear something they do not themselves like, or something not approved by their playmates. The older taste should be better, of course, but it ought never to be arbitrarily imposed on the child.

Wells-Guiberson Will Deepen To Heydrick Sand

Tubing Pulled and Rig Ready to Start Up This Morning

HAVE 12 FEET TO GO

Planned to Make Well Producer from Both Sands If No Water Trouble

Wells and Guiberson are making arrangements to deepen their No. 1 Wharton, southeast corner of section 99, H&TCRR block 14, south of Vernon, to the sand encountered in the Bridwell-Heydrick well, east offset. The Wells-Guiberson well has been producing about 110 barrels a day from sand at 1,994-2,000 feet, while the well to the east got only a slight showing of oil in this sand and brought in a 400-barrel well from sand lying about 20 feet lower, at 2,012-20 feet.

The rig was put in order to go deeper yesterday and tubing pulled and it is expected to start drilling this morning.

This well was drilled with cable tools.

It is planned if possible to make the well produce from both sands if water does not break in, and this is not considered likely, there having been practically no water found in the well since it was drilled.

Personals

Jack Clark, Major Oil company, Fort Worth, spent a few hours in Wichita Falls yesterday in his customary a la mode method, arriving here from Fort Worth in one hour and ten minutes, via aeroplane, and stopping on the return trip to glance at the lease down in Jefferson county school lands subdivision.

C. H. Featherstone is spending a few days in Kansas City.

W. E. Campbell, Panhandle Refining company, is back in the city after a short absence.

Murchison-Fain, Wilson

Murchison and Fain are skidding the derrick 300 feet east for their second test on the Wilson land, their 40-acre lease, lot 6, section 28, AT NCL, Archer county.

Jones, Kunkel

Edwin M. Jones is rigging up for a test on the J. A. Kunkel land, block 4, Thomas McCoy survey, northeast corner of the west 25 acres of the block, southwest of the Carey well, south Archer county.

White-Sessums

White Brothers and Sessums are ratholing ahead since 1,080 feet on their No. 1 Andrews, block 138, abstract 101, Robert Carson survey, and last night were down to 1,282 feet.

There is a 21-foot difference in elevation between this well and the Texas company well, this well being lower by that much, on account of which it is reckoned the sand will be picked up at nearer 1,449 feet than the 1,468 feet in the Texas company No. 1 Andrews.

South Vernon

Sherwin and McKamy are in Vernon and expect to get started immediately in the work of placing a new standard rig over the South Vernon Oil company's No. 1 Richardson, shut down at about 1,200 feet with a spudder. A deal closed some time ago with the Southern Vernon people will require this hole to be finished up by Sherwin and McKamy.

It is also understood that these two Cisco men will take over the Dunn and Ellis test, southeast of the Church grocery, and finish it up.

Murchison-Fain-Marland

Murchison-Fain-Golding and Marland Oil company of Texas are drilling at about 1,000 feet on their No. 1 R. Echols, southwest corner of block 2405, abstract 584, north offset to the Harmel No. 1. Mart-Staniforth have spudded and are drilling on their No. 1 T. L. Griffin, block 2400, abstract 485. P. F. Gwynn is building a derrick on J. A. Woods land, block 2406, abstract 585.

The producer on the Harmel land is pumping between 75 and 100 barrels a day, 20 hours consistent pumping Tuesday producing 70 barrels of oil.

U. S. OUTPUT STANDS STILL.

Oklahoma Shows Increase of 2,908 Barrels Over Week Before.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 24.—The estimated daily average crude oil production of the United States for the week ending September 20 as compiled by the Oil and Gas Journal of Tulsa was 2,032,030 barrels, a decrease of 264 barrels under that of the previous week.

The decrease was the fourth in the last month, the journal says.

The total for Oklahoma was 546,-965, an increase of 2,908 barrels; Arkansas 134,640, decrease 750; mid-continent 1,078,214, increase of 5,741, and California 608,500, decrease 4,500 barrels.

W. P. B., who shows signs of turning from a steady, reliable copyreader into a theatrical press agent, says "The Deluge" is greater than "Rain."

ARTESIA PIPELINE ASSURED.

Pipe On Ground and Actual Work Expected to Start Soon.

Special to The Record News.

ARTESIA, N. M., Sept. 24.—Practically all of the pipe for the pipeline to the Artesia field is now in Artesia and actual work on laying the line is expected to start soon. Practically all the money needed for the line has been raised and no difficulty is expected in raising the remainder. The erection of a skimming plant of about 2,500 barrels capacity is also assured.

The Pitcher Oil and Gas company's No. 1 in section 12-18-27 has been drilled deeper and is still making occasional heads. Illinois Producers company has been drilled in at a depth of about 1,950 feet with a probable production of around 200 barrels. No. 3, same company, is drilling at about 1,400 feet. There are four wells drilling in the practically proven area below 1,000 feet, 16 rigs up or drilling and 27 locations including three by the Ohio Oil company, two by Benedum-Trees interests, and three by Union of California.

Total production from the deep sand in this district is now more than 600 barrels a day.

Drive in Corn

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—With ideal weather prevailing, and with crops auspicious, sellers began another aggressive drive in corn today and forced prices down, making wheat also decline just before the finish. Corn closed heavy 2¼ to 2⅝ cents net lower December 102⅝ to 102¾; with wheat easy ⅛ to 1⅛ cent off, December 134⅝ to 134¾ and May 140⅝ to 140¾, unchanged to 1 cent down, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 15 to 17 cent gain.

Rye was the only grain to close higher.

Oats average lower, governed by the action of corn.

Packers' buying of lard strengthened the provisions market.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Stock prices made further recoveries in today's market with sales exceeding a million shares for the first time in nearly three weeks. Easy money rates and the circulation of favorable political forecasts had a bullish effect on sentiment.

The upward movement in today's market, unlike some of the previous session, embraces virtually the entire list.

Two score issues, of which ten were public utilities and six rails broke through their previous high prices for the year.

Steel shares showed little change on the day, U. S. Steel touching 109⅝ and then falling back to Thursday's close of 109. Merger rumors and the favorable showing made by August earnings statements and September traffic returns contributed to the strength of a number of popular railroad issues. St. Louis-Southwestern was run up more than three points to 44⅝. Net gains of 1 to 2½ points were recorded by New Haven, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Chicago and Great Western preferred and Missouri-Pacific preferred.

Call money again renewed at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates reflected a better tone.

Cattle Trade Slow

FORT WORTH, Sept. 24.—Cattle and hog trading was slow today. Receipts included 3,000 head of cattle, 1,300 calves, 1,200 hogs and 600 sheep. Yearlings and bulls failed to develop any quotable decline, the market was dull, and prices were inclined toward weakness. Canners and fat cows were mostly 15 to 25 cents lower. The calf trade was weak, with spots showing a 25 cent decline. The stocker situation was uninteresting.

The hog trade was very uneven, mostly 5 to 10 cents lower. The top was 9.85 and bulk 9.50 to 9.75. Pigs were about steady at 8.50 to 8.75.

Sheep were active, some fat lambs bringing 11.25, feeders 10.50, wool wethers 7.25 and yearlings 8.50.

Cotton Reacts

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—The cotton market today had a fairly good reaction from yesterday's big advance and at one time was 52 points below the close of yesterday on December. Although there was a good rally later it did not hold and final results showed net losses of 44 points on October and 43 on December.

The market was rather weak at the start owing to the poor response made by Liverpool to the big advance in American markets yesterday. With first trades showing losses of 27 to 33 points the market gradually eased off until October, December and January traded 50 to 52 points below the previous close. There was a good rally around the middle of the morning which carried prices up 38 to 40 points due to the rains in the southeastern portion of the belt and fears that the tropical storm believed to be off the south Florida coast might do damage by causing further rain. This rally carried October up to 22.76, December to 22.90 and January to 23.00, which proved to be the high levels of the day. Nearly all the recovery was later lost on reports that southern mills were not buying spots but there was a slight rally again in the final trading and close showing net losses of 42 to 53 points.

The main cause of the reaction was said to be liquidation and more or less short selling on the theory that yesterday's advance had been too rapid and that a sizeable reaction was due.

Fifth Graders Of Wichita Learning Of Texas' Heroes

New Book by Katie Daffan A Departure from Usual History Course

CROCKETT OR FANNIN

Periods of State's Development Told in Order That Chapters Appear

Heroic characters and important events of Texas history have been drawn on to teach school children of Wichita Falls lessons of sacrifice and service by adoption by the state textbook commission this year for fifth grades, a book called "Texas Heroes" to be used for this purpose during the current school year. This book was written by Miss Katie Daffan of Houston for the express purpose of bringing before the youth of the state some of the fundamental principles of life through the precepts of their great forbears.

Before the school children take up the actual study of Texas history they will learn the lessons of patience and valor to be found in the lives of the great men and women of Texas.

For Love of Texas

"It has been my purpose," is Miss Daffan's foreword, "to create within the minds of the children a love for our great characters and to stimulate a desire to study our remarkable history. Our history offers splendid opportunity for the teaching of patriotism. Children soon receive the lesson that brave hearts, through self-denial and diligence, may overcome all discouragements and conquer dangers."

The several periods of the state's department are indicated by the order in which the stories appear. "The Home Mission," one of the stories, for instance, gives an account of the endeavors of the Franciscan priests to establish missions which were fort, church and home. Home life in these missions, the care of the Indian children there, and the instruction, are described.

"How A Woman Kept the Fort," gives a vivid account of the daring and courage of Mrs. Jane Wilkerson Long, wife of Dr. Long. Under the most trying circumstances this pioneer woman proved her faith and courage.

"Our First Inhabitants," gives account of the habits, customs and home life of the early Indians.

The Story of LaSalle.

The story of a "A Brave Soldier of France," tells the adventures, the great accomplishments, and the noble sacrifices of the French soldier La Salle.

"The Pioneer," gives an account of Moses Austin. His successful journey to Texas is described, also his visit to the governor in San Antonio, then the capital of the province of Texas, his return to his home in Missouri to make plans for his second trip, and his death caused by exposure on his Texas trip.

"The Father of Texas", gives an account of the work of Stephen F Austin, together with a biography of his life. This story includes the important incidents of Texas history at this vital period.

"The Story of Bowie," is an account of the fearlessness of this man of initiative "who found a fight in Texas and who gave his life unflinchingly when Texas called for it."

"The Hero of San Antonio," places before the child the seige of the Alamo. James Butler Bonham, the young hero from South Carolina is introduced in the "Sign of the White Handkerchief." His life and his death for Texas are forcibly portrayed.

Battle of the Alamo.

"Be Sure You Are Right Then Go Ahead," is impressed upon the children through the story of the backwoodsman, David Crockett. Fannin's Heroism at Goliad is described in "Remember Goliad." "The Hero of The Alamo" gives account of the determination, the persistence and the sacrifice of William B. Travis at the seige of the Alamo. In this story the world-famed battle is described in detail.

"The Hero of San Jacinto," gives the story of the romantic life of Sam Houston. "March 2, 1836," is an account of the writing and the signing of the Declaration of Texas Independence at Washington on the Brazos.

"The Texas Ranger" is a story of the heroic work of the early rangers in protecting the frontier

The stories bring the book down through the Civil War period, telling of the large number of young Texans who sacrificed everything in that conflict.

Miss Daffan is her own publisher and wrote the book to enable children to draw out of the wealth of the past something practical for the needs of the present.

THE ELEPHANTS

Here is one of the Hindu elephants, in all his pristine glory, as he appears in the fireworks spectacle, "India" which will be the feature of the night show at the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

The trapping of these elephants are of all the colors of the rainbow. Each one has a certain religious significance in the old Hindu ceremonials which feature parts of the spectacle.

Wichitans View Valley Of Promise in 32 Mile Trip Toward Lake Kemp

"I hope for and confidently expect the day to come when Wichita county takes its place with those others which yield 100,000 bales of cotton in a season. The wonderful change we have seen this section undergo in the last year is full justification of my belief in its possibilities; and it is a promise that we are soon to have the garden spot of Texas at our door."

Thus did J. A. Kemp express the sentiments Wednesday of over 200 Wichitans who toured the fertile Wichita valley to see a few of the things irrigation has wrought, and to learn of others that it is to bring. Coming from the man who, more than any one else, has brought about the building of the vast irrigation system, the prediction carries special significance.

Speaks at Ranch.

Mr. Kemp's remarks were made early in the afternoon during a short program at the W. P. Ferguson farm where the motor caravan of Wichitans stopped for lunch.

Leaving the city at 9 o'clock the motorists stopped first at the farms of Bill Jetter and W. B. Robinson, four miles out on the lake road.

From the outskirts of the city the caravan traveled straight west 19 miles to the J. M. McFall farm of 192 acres where, with irrigation water turned on it twice, the waist-high Rowden cotton stand will make well over a bale an acre.

What is probably the most highly specialized field in the district was viewed at the Will Hodges place, just a half mile from Mr. McFall's farm, where James D. Greer is developing his own variety of "Greer's Prolific Bib Boll Staple." acres under irrigation and is specializing on a long staple plant adapted to this soil and climate. A cotton producer for the last 30 years, Mr. Greer has for the last 18 years been experimenting with his special brand. He has now brought it to a state where he commands a premium of over $22 per bale on his crop. He expects a bale and a quarter per acre.

Mr. Greer is a native Texan but has spent considerable time in other parts of the country in search of an ideal spot for the development of his staple. Prior to coming here, he was located atCarlsbad, N. M., but with the Wichita system a reality, he began operation in this section and believes it far superior to any he has thus far found.

Watermelon Parties.

A diversion not on the books was furnished by Mr. Greer when he stopped the 35 cars in the vicinity of a watermelon patch.

The last cotton inspection of the day was at the Ferguson farm five miles east of the diversion dam, where Mr. Ferguson has 450 acres of land under cultivation.

A feast for kings which came at an opportune time was provided by Mr. Ferguson on his farm after his fields had been inspected. An ample supply of lucious barbecued beef, roasting ears, potato chips, pickles, cheese, pie and coffee was spread out on an improvised string of tables and the bread line formed speedily until 1 o'clock and spent an hour and a half devouring heaping plates of provender.

It was here that Mr. Kemp's address was given. He was preceded by Guy R. Jones, county demonstration agent who acted as pilot for the tour and who, in a short but timely address stold his hearers what irrigation was doing for the valley. He touched on the alkali question and cited the cotton seen on the Jetter and Robinson farms as proff of the fact that continued irrigation resulted in no harmful alkalinity. He stated that water from Lake Kemp contained an unequal part of calcium and sodium, three toone in favor of calcium, which made a "hard" water that brought "soft" land.

Experiments by the United States department of agriculture have shown this condition is not only harmless, but in reality helpful. He ridiculed the idea that alkali water in the irrigation ditches ever had yet or ever would hurt crops.

Mr. Jones also touched on root rot, a cotton plant growth that has caused considerable trouble in some parts of the state but which seems to have been bested in irrigated lands here. A few spots were found on the McFall farm where rot had killed the plants, but it was noticed on non-irrigated lands that the ailment was much more severe. It was explained by experienced cotton men that the irrigated cotton, being more hardy, was able to resist the growth.

Mr. Jones was followed by Mr. Kemp, who spoke of the satisfaction he was deriving from seeing his irrigation dreams coming into actualities. He ended by thanking Mr. Ferguson for his generosity in providing the noon-day meal and pointed out that Mr. Ferguson, Mr. McFall and others were working untiringly for the advancement of the project.

W. F. Sterley, vice-president of the Fort Worth and Denver railway also spoke briefly on the possibilities of the irrigation system.

From the Ferguson farm a few of the tourists returned to Wichita Falls but the greater majority went on to the diversion dam where the big wall canal and control gates were explained. Possibly half an hour was spent here, after which the return trip began.

Trip is Success.

That the trip more than justified itself was the conviction of every member of the party. To some of them it was nothing ney. Theq had seen the fields before, were acquainted with irrigation and its possibilities and knew what to expect.

To many others, however, it was a revelation. Cotton of the yield and quality being produced was, to them, little short of amazing, yet when they thought about it it did not seem so unusual. It was in this point that the real success of the trip lay, for it accomplished just what it was intended—the awakening of those who had not had opportunity to find out what is really in store for the Wichita Valley.

Circus Due Here Friday; Parade's Time Is 12 Noon

Historical Sketch to Feature Production of Robbins Four Ring Show Here

KIDS ARE ANXIOUS

It Will be a Great Day For Youngsters, With Elephants Aplenty

Tomorrow the big circus comes to town. It is the biggest day of the year for the kids. It is a real holiday — beats Christmas, and even Fourth of July so far as Young America is concerned. That is the day when thrills are common and the pent-up feelings of youth find an outlet.

Many Animals.

In addition to the vast collection of animals, there is given by the Robbins Brothers, for the special benefit of the children, a wonderful spectacular production entitled "A Historic Review of America." This gives a pantomime reproduction of such characters as Paul Revere, The Spirit of 1776, Geo. Washington, General U. S. Grant, General Robert E. Lee, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and the boys from "Over There." The finale brings in "Columbia" and the whole affair portrays a wonderful picture that wins the audience.

A Historical Sketch.

It is the historical sketch and the animals that the children really enjoy, and get much food for thought and reflection.

The circus arrives over the Denver and Fort Worth railway at an early hour tomorrow morning. The parade is at 12 o'clock. Tickets may be obtained and reserved at Tipton's drug store. The price is same, whether purchased at the grounds, or at the uptown place.

SPEAKERS CLUB MEETS.

High School and College Club Holds Regular Session

A number of interesting addresses and readings were given Wednesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Speakers club of the local high school and junior college. The meeting was held at the school building after classes.

The following program was rendered: Piano solo, Floyd Ard; address, "Books," by Dr. J. W. Cantwell; address, "The Correct Use of Speech," Sam Bashara; series of quotations by Lester Prothro, William Atkinson, Clyde McCulley, Elanor Fleming, Shumake Faber, John Kerr, Dorothy Skeen, Fred Smith, Isador Cohen, Dorothy Newman; "My Vacation in Colorado," Fred Couper; "Things of Interest in California," Dorothy Read; reading, "A Social Parish," Emmet Bauksmith.

Absence from the city for the next two weeks will compel C. A. Rogers, elected last Monday night as chairman of the Butte for Governor club to decline that post.

In a letter to the club, declaring he has never had any connection with the ku klux klan, Mr. Rogers asserts he does not recognize any allegiance to a party and with the exception of governor he will support all democratic candidates in the general elections.
