J. B. POOL MAKES STATEMENT TO CITIZENS

I want to be your Representative in the 48th Legislature and, as such, help to frame laws under which you must live and help to spend $400,000,000.00 of your money. You are entitled to know my policies.

1. First and above all, I shall support our National Government in the War Emergency with everything Texas has. There is no middle ground. My policy, both personally and publically shall be: Victory or Death.

2. I make no promise to reduce taxes. State expenses cannot be materially lowered. Federal taxes will be enormously increased. In my work as County Judge of Hamilton County I have learned to discriminate between public spending that is a pure expense-money gone and nobody better off and public spending that is an investment—the objects accomplished self liquidating in value to the public. When I vote to spend public money, I shall seek to make it an investment. In line with this I shall support schools, roads, soil conservation, the development of farm, ranch and mineral resources, seek new uses and new markets for our products, favor the expansion of parks and wild life, and actively seek to secure industries, pay rolls, and capital investments for Texas. When War is ended, I shall be alert in every way possible to retain in operation in Texas the factories that were set up into our laps, and to maintain the employment both in farms and factories necessary to furnish the commodities the starving and war-torn nations will need.

3. The attitude of Capital and Labor threatens the American Way of Life. On this I hold that Public Welfare is above every other consideration. Capital and Labor are necessary. Either is helpless without the other. One must behave as well as the other. Capital must be content with a reasonable profit, and be so regulated by law. Neither must the mob spirit of strikes brow beat and thwart the public good. I strongly favor the Anti-Violence Law of the 47th Legislature. (See POOL on page 3)

FRIENDS ANNOUNCE ROAD PAINTER FOR COMMISSIONER B. 4

TO THE VOTERS OF CORYELL COUNTY:

As friends of Oad Painter, Commissioner, Beat No. 4, we wish to place his name before the people of Coryell County as a candidate for re-election to that office. We are also taking the liberty of announcing him in the columns of this newspaper for that office.

It is our understanding that Mr. Painter has made the statement in the past that he did not intend to be a candidate for re-election, hence the reason he has not announced. We are asking Mr. Painter to re-consider making the race for a number of reasons, some of which are as follows:

1) In this time of National Emergency we feel that the interests of the people of Coryell County could be best served by retaining Mr. Painter as a public servant in his capacity as Commissioner of Beat No. 4. The coming of the Army Camp to Coryell County and the general defense program has created many serious problems which Mr. Painter is already familiar with and which he is prepared to deal with in the future. He is already in the harness and any change would bring about confusion.

2) Mr. Painter's record as a Road Commissioner speaks for itself. He is a competent road man and is well qualified to help work out the many re-adjustments that will

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER
Domini Enfielden, in mourning for the death of her father, seeks solace in the quietude of the Algerian desert. At the station of El-Akbara a stranger brushes past her rudely. She feels, however, that his rudeness is unintentional, and is struck by the sorrow of his expression. Later he calls on her to apologize. Domini, on a sightseeing trip, is caught in a riot in an Algerian cafe, and rescued by the stranger.

Chapter Two

The paths of Domini Enfielden and Brother Antoine, who now called himself Boris Androvsky, as he had before he entered the monastery, crossed at El-Akbara, where Domini's train stopped and where she got her first taste of the desert sun.

As she attempted to reboard the train to proceed to Beni-Mora, a man brushed by her rudely, followed by a porter who pushed her aside as the train started to move. It was only with great difficulty that she was able to get on in time. Indignantly, she sat down in her compartment. Across from her was the man who had so inconvenienced her.

As she glanced at his face, she seemed to realize instinctively that he had meant no offense. He seemed so absorbed in some great problem of his own as to be unaware of what transpired about him. Something in his face aroused her curiosity. I was an extraordinarily keen and virile countenance, evidently troubled by some secret anguish. All the way to Beni-Mora, both of them remained silent.

When they arrived at their destination, Domini assigned her bags to Batouch, a native, who combined the functions of porter, guide and poet. As they started toward the hotel, Father Roublier came forward to meet them. He was a very old man, but his enormous frame was still erect and there was great strength in his bronze face. They greeted each other, and then Domini proceeded to her hotel.

A few hours later she stood on the balcony outside her room, drinking in the beauty of the African evening. Below her an Arab was singing a love song. She listened, enthralled by its beauty, as an old Arab gardener with his arms full of flowers passed behind her on the balcony.

"That song — what does it say?" Domini asked him.

"It is the song of the freed slaves — 'No one but God and I know what is in my heart.'" He shuffled off.

Domini repeated to herself the words, "No one but God and I know what is in my heart."

"Madame! Madame!" he shouted. "You wish to see the village? I'll show you the dancers! You should see the beautiful Irena. She is a reed in a storm! She is a sullen pool!"

Domini answered him eagerly. "Yes, I want to see everything." Batouch and Hadj, his cousin and co-guide, escorted Domini to the dance hall, the leading attraction in Beni-Mora. It was a hot, crowded, colorful, smoke-filled room. Five girls were dancing as they came in. In the middle of the dance Domini happened to look across the room and was surprised to see there the stranger who had shared her compartment, sitting alone and looking as if he was drawn there against his will.

The feature of the evening's entertainment was the unique dance of Irena, a fiery Arab girl who, Batouch explained, was in love with Hadj but at the moment furious at him because he would not marry her. At the height of her dance Irena suddenly caught sight of Hadj sitting behind Domini. In a mad rage she flung herself at him, stabbing wildly with the daggers which were a part of her costume.

Instantly all was confusion. The lights went out, the crowd broke into an uproar, knives were drawn, a riot followed. Domini became hopelessly mixed up in the swirling mob. Frantically she strove to escape but could not. As she was about to sink to the floor she saw the face of the stranger making his way through the crowd. Even in her terror she marveled at his strength.

From the center of the swirling, raging mob he grasped her and shoving his way to the door, led her to safety.

Outside the air felt refreshing and something on the bare flesh of her arm felt protective and reassuring. The stranger was holding her firmly, but as she looked down at his hand on her arm, he drew it back suddenly as if he had been stung.

"Thank you for helping me," said Domini. Then, receiving no answer, she added, "Good night."

"Good night," he said, embarrassed. As she started to walk toward the hotel, he followed her.

"I can look after myself now." "I'll go with you, Madame."

"I'm not afraid."

"I'll go with you," he repeated stubbornly.

"But if I prefer to be alone?"

"Then I'll follow you, Madame."

Domini smiled her resignation.

"Well, come with me, then."

As they arrived to the door of the hotel, the stranger spoke again, awkwardly.

"Pardon, Madame, for today — it's hard for me I'm not accustomed to —"

"It was nothing."

"Madame — Please! Whatever I have done — it was not done out of rudeness. That's all I can say. It was not done out of rudeness!"

"I shall forget it, from this moment," Domini paused, started up the outside stairway of the hotel, then turned back. "I am Domini Enfielden."

"My name is Boris — Boris Androvsky."

"Russian?"

"My mother was French, my father a Russian. That is my name." He spoke as if he did not expect to be believed.

"Perhaps we'll meet again. I'm riding tomorrow to the Oasis of Sidi-Zerzour." She waited for some reply but none was forthcoming. "Good night."

Domini rode alone the next morning. The Oasis of Sidi-Zerzour was a few miles out of Beni-Mora, a haven in the open desert. Some children playing in the stream crowded about her as she arrived, calling for money. She was amusing herself with their antics when she noticed out of the corner of her eyes that Boris was standing a little way off watching her. He came up to her.

"I hope I'm not intruding, but I didn't know whether you meant me to ride with you or not."

"I practically asked you to."

"Oh, I didn't understand that — I couldn't believe it. I've lived so long out of the world, I don't know the right things to do."

"Those things are unimportant, anyway. Really they are."

Boris looked at her gratefully and sat down beside her. They talked, more easily now, of the desert and its people.

The sound of a group of horses splashing their way through water interrupted them. They looked up to see a group of men in Arab costume riding toward them. Batouch put down the coffee he was bringing them.

"It's Count Anteoni," he cried.

"An amazing man, Madame. Twice a year he dashes away into the desert on a pilgrimage. He rides like the wind ripping through the Sahara." Batouch ran out to meet the leader of the group, "Count Anteoni! You are as welcome as rain-drops pattering upon a parched city. The flowers droop in your absence —"

"The flowers may droop, but never you, Batouch," interrupted the Count, dismounting. He walked toward Domini and Boris. Batouch made the introductions.

"I'm happy to meet you," said Anteoni. "I trust I haven't disturbed you, but one heads toward an oasis as toward Heaven."

lature. If a man wants to quit a job, he may quit. He must lay no hand on him who wants to work.

4. As to Social Obligations, I consider that H. B. No. 8, commonly called "The Omnibus Bill" as completely provided for these matters as can now be done. If I had been in the Legislature I would have voted for this Bill. On all issues that seek to better the conditions of the less fortunate citizens, I shall be strong to help any man who is trying to help himself.

Home with home ownership is a base rock in the foundation of civilization. I shall favor setting up a land bank similar to, and perhaps in connection with, the Federal Farm Security Administration to encourage and to aid men to own homes. I hold that this should extend not only to farms, but to 3 to 5 acre tracts near towns for laboring people. In my thinking the FSA is the most helpful of all the new activities of the Government in that it provides not only financial assistance, but financial guidance to its clients. Its benefits ought to be extended.

Our Social Security laws are on the right track. I shall favor working out through these laws a broader form of Retirement Insurance whereby a man in his earning years may provide his own Old Age Security. This would probably require 5 to 10 years to come into full operation. It would not effect nor disturb any old age assistance now in effect. The Federal Government has such Insurance now in successful operation, but it reaches only rather a high income bracket. Its benefits ought to be extended to farm people and to workers in the lower incomes.

5. In Hamilton County I have done all I know how to do in road work. My Commissioners set up a system of road work by machinery so that without bonds or debt-strictly on current tax funds—in 3 years we have made more all weather graveled roads than could have been made in 50 in the old way. In the past 3 years Hamilton County has been allotted from the State Highway Department $1,058,000.00 for State Highways. I promise to be just as active in the interests of roads in Coryell and Hamilton counties and, as your Representative I will be in a position better to help.

6. Since entering this race I have found that in Coryell County the State Juvenile Training School is a burning issue. I plainly tell you that I do not know the solution of this problem. I do not know enough about conditions there to formulate a policy toward it. I am in no way concerned with any job or person, past or present, connected with the institution. If and when I am elected your Representative, I shall consider it my duty to give the matter my closest study and best thought. I can do this with an open mind. I am not biased for or against any man or policy, past or present. I shall bear in mind that the entire set-up has for its purpose to reclaim erring boys not yet hardened criminals, from lives of crime and to make them into useful men. If the School is failing in this, something must be done about it. If the School is succeeding in a reasonable degree in this purpose, it must be protected from ill advised outside meddling and from politically minded Legislative interference.

It is my PRESENT opinion that conditions have arisen over which the School has no control and these conditions have in a measure thwarted the purpose of the institution. The law sends criminal youths up to 17 years of age here. J. Edgar Hoover, Chief of FBI says that age 19 has more arrests for crime than any other year. He further says, and I quote: "It is a disgrace to our Nation that so many of our most deadly outlaws have not reached the voting age". Thus we are sending to this School, the criminally inclined boys of the State up to within 2 years of the most criminal age.

A PROBABLE solution to this Training School problem is to amend the law that boys over 16 be sent to the penitentiary. Then continue the work of reformation here on boys 15 and down. If that plan is not wise, then separate buildings, shops, fields, and schools, together with more rigorous control must be provided for the criminal and dangerous class.

ABOVE ALL and this decided and determined stand I do take the peace of mind and the security of the lives and properties of the citizens of Gatesville and surrounding territory must not be disturbed nor jeopardized by the frequent escapes, the consequent stealing and dangerous running at large by the desperate and criminal element among these boys. The rights of law abiding citizens are superior to the whims of criminals. Your lives and peace of mind must be protected from this menace, no matter what means are required nor the costs.

I shall discuss these and other issues with you as the campaign progresses. If my policies are in line with your ideas, I very earnestly solicit your support.

J. B. POOL

LAUNDRY—

The demonstration is particularly timely right now, according to C. H. Wallace, power company manager, because of the urgent need for conserving wearing apparel, cotton, linen and woolen goods. The washing methods recommended by Miss Nicholson not only prolong the life of fabrics, but also enable homemakers to reduce their cleaning costs, thereby helping them to offset rising living expenses.

In the course of her demonstration, Miss Nicholson will cover such matters as sorting clothes, soaps, water temperatures, washing and rinsing methods, fugitive color tests and stain removal. She will give valuable hints on how to save time and work. After her talk she will answer any questions about specific washing problems put to her by members of her audience.

Useful favors will be distributed to all in attendance.

FOOD CONSERVATION URGED
Pledge Against Waste Asked by Consumers Division
U. S. to Supply Allies Millions of Tons of Food
Revealing that the this year must one quarter of the nation of England as well as supply millions of tons of food to Russia and other allies of the United Nations, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard called upon the nation's 60,000,000 farmers to grow more food.

Consumers all over the country are being asked by the Consumers Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C. to pledge themselves to buy carefully, to take better care of things, and waste nothing. In calling on the nation's consumers to enlist in the campaign against waste, the Government says:

Food builds the muscle and health of your family. Food gives you the strength of your arms. We can't afford to waste it. Buy it. Buy it. Buy it.

Your Electric Refrigerator

A Powerful Weapon in the WAR AGAINST WASTE

A campaign against waste of all kinds—particularly of food—is being launched by the Consumers Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C. "Buy food wisely, cook it carefully, stop and think before you throw away even a single tablespoonful of leftover potatoes," is the plea of this organization, which is asking consumers all over the nation to pledge themselves to a program of rigid conservation.

Saving food is not only a patriotic duty; good household management demands it in these days of rising prices. Your electric refrigerator can be a big help to you in your personal program of food conservation. It prevents spoilage . . . permits you to utilize every scrap of leftovers . . . enables you to buy in quantities at bargain prices . . . and does all these things at the cost of a few pennies per day.

There was a time when a certain amount of food spoilage in the home was unavoidable, but today, thanks to cheap electricity and your dependable electric refrigerator, you can prevent this waste . . . make your food and food dollars go further . . . and contribute to the war effort by helping to conserve an essential national resource.

Miss Schloeman And Mr. Cole Wed In Denison Thursday

A wedding of interest to many in this section was that of Miss Mary Ella Schloeman of Denison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Schloeman of Gatesville, and Bayard McIntosh Cole of Denison, son of Mrs. DeWitt Clinton Cole, Sr. of Marietta, Georgia, which took place Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Denison. The Rev. Raymond S. Ottensmeyer, rector, performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with white carnations and snapdragons. Miss Lulu Mae Hayes, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied John Marshall Brumbaugh, who sang "Oh Perfect Love". The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a white gown, styled with an elongated bodice of Chantilly lace, a small Peter Pan collar and finished with a short flared peplum over a bouffant skirt of marquisette. Her shoulder length veil of tulle was caught to a shirred pompadour cap, and she carried a white prayer book, with an arrangement of white sweetpeas and bouvardia showers.

Miss Elayne Meador of Denison was the bride's only attendant. She wore an azure marquisette frock, fashioned with a fitted bodice, shirred shoulders and sleeves, trimmed with matching lace, and a bouffant skirt. Her cap of flesh maline was fashioned in halo style, and she carried a muff of multi-colored sweetpeas. Jack Colligan of Denison served the bridegroom as best-man, and Vernon Gibson and Frank Van Auken were ushers. Acolytes for the service were, Billy Bauder, Tommy Foster, Billy Bird Jackson, and David Ottensmeyer. When the couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride was wearing a Jablow two-piece soft suit of gray, styled with a short jacket and pleated skirt, trimmed with antique pearl buttons, and her accessories were blue.

A reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents on the Arnett road Sunday, February 15, from 2 until 5 o'clock. The couple will return to Denison February 17 and will be at home at 1030 West Bond.

Mrs. Cole was graduated from Texas State College in Denton, and is a member of the Junior Delphian, Players Club, and the Business and Professional Women's Club, all of Denison. She is librarian of the Denison Public Library. Mr. Cole attended Georgia Military Academy at College Park, Ga., and was graduated from the University of the South at Sewanee, Tennessee. He is connected with the Denison district United States Army Engineers.

Among those from Gatesville who attended the wedding were, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schloeman, John Dayton Schloeman, Miss Nettie Davidson, Mrs. J. D. Brown Jr., and Miss Mary Sue Brown of Belo Horizonte, Brazil.

Hornets Take Title Series Opener From Groesbeck By 33-29 Score

Locals Unable To Stop Durham, Goat's Star

By JOHN FRANK POST
News Sports Editor

A tense, over-anxious Gatesville Hornet five, whose usual smooth efficiency was cut down fifty per cent by nervousness, took the lead in their district championship series with Groesbeck Tuesday nite when they shaded the hustling Goats 33-29 in a stirring, stormy court battle that was close all the way and left the Hornet supporters limp and exhausted.

Offense Fails to Click
The local quintet was never able to get their fine offense in smooth working order, but scored in spurts. When their attack did click, they would pull four to six points ahead of the never-say-die Groesbeck boys, only to have this lead quickly nullified by a sharp-shooting Goat forward named Durham, who was Groesbeck's only scoring threat. This smooth little performer gave the Hornets plenty of trouble, almost more than they could handle. He sank nine field goals to score a large majority of his team's points. He used a one-handed shot that was dangerous from any point on the floor, and three times he neatly stole the ball from Hornet ball-handlers to dribble the full length of the floor for a cinch crip. Without the fine services of this little star, the Goats would not have held the score close.

Manning Hornet's Star

Durham's fine work failed to dim the star of the Golden Boys' Bill Manning, who tallied twelve points, four of which came in the final minute of play to clinch the win for his club. His aim was deadly on free shots, his defensive play was above par, and he was a star in handling the ball. He had speed to burn and was knocked down several times as he dribbled away from the red-shirted Groesbeck guards who could not stay with him. He was slammed to the floor and bounced off the wall but still kept going full speed till the final whistle despite the terrific pounding he took. Cotton Blanchard had been sick all day, and was unable to perform in his brilliant style, but the slack was taken up by Pete Giebler, a reserve who played a nice game. Although he scored only four points, these tallies came when the Hornets badly needed them. He was also a star on defense, while Gordon Thornton came through in great style to more than hold up his end of the burden on both offense and defense.

The Hornets' chief trouble for the night was their failure to make their passes connect, a department of play in which they usually excel. Fumbles were numerous, and many times the alert Goats would take the ball away from one of the nervous Golden Boys.

Hornets Score Early
Thornton and Manning scored four points each and Blanchard chipped in with a pretty long shot to give the locals a 10-7 lead at

IRELAND WINS FROM EAGLES; PLAY AT JONESBORO TONIGHT

The brilliant redshirts of Ireland scored their way to a 23-19 win over the Jonesboro Eagles to take the lead in the red hot County Class B playoff in a nip-and-tuck battle Wednesday night at Ireland.

The Cardinals held a slight lead during most of the game, but never were they more than four points ahead of the Jonesboro lads. Nice goal shooting by Cofer and great floor play by the speedy Lemmer gave them a two-point lead at half-time. Cofer roped twelve points to cop the scoring honors, for he took full advantage of the fact that the Eagle defense was heavily concentrated on Lemmer. Lemmer scored but five points, but his floor play, passing, and defensive work were sensational.

For the Eagles, little Drake again led them with nine points and was a thorn in Ireland's side throughout the fray. This little lad always seems to be at his best when pitted against the Cardinals. Voss scored six points to help the Eagles' cause.

at the end of the initial period. Giebler and Blanchard collaborated to score seven points between them in the second quarter, but this was offset by some beautiful goal shooting on the part of Groesbeck's Durham, and the Hornets were only two slim points ahead at half-time, 17-15. Both teams had meshed the same number of field goals, seven, but the Hornets had bucketed three gratis throws to their opponent's one.

The third quarter saw tight defensive play on the part of both teams, but the Goats scored four tallies to the Hornets' three to trim the score to 20-19. In the final frame, Manning got hot and scored eight points to pull his team through, 33-29.

Play in Groesbeck Tonight.

These two fine clubs tangle again at Groesbeck tonight in the second game of the series, and will meet again there Saturday night if a third game is necessary to decide the champion.

Play At Jonesboro Tonight

These two evenly matched quintets will meet again tonight at Jonesboro in the second game of their championship series. If the Eagles win tonight, the time of site of the third game will be decided after the contest.

Jonesboro will rule as a very slight favorite in the battle tonight, as the Cardinals have not beaten Lemmons' boys on their home court this season.

Jonesboro Sextette Win Coryell Class B Girls Title

By GEORGE LEONHARD

A fast moving little sextette sporting the black and gold colors of Jonesboro swept aside all competition to win the County Class B girls championship last week end at Copperas Cove thereby earning themselves a place in the district tournament, which will be held at the Gatesville gym in the near future.

Copperas Cove advanced to the finals with the Eagle sextette, but were unable to cope with the Jonesboro girls' speedy attack and were defeated 35 to 24. Little Ernestine Schwalbe, star forward, paced Jonesboro's attack, bucketing long shots consistently thruout the fray to lead her mates to victory. Johnson, Jones, J. Hale and Patsy Hale also looked good for the winners, while Doris Teinert led the Cove attack with 9 points and Doris Murphy scored eight. Other stars for Copperas Cove were Luker, Morse, Behrens, and Walker.

The games were exceptionally well officiated by Rabon Balch of the Gatesville State Training School.

SPORT SCRAPS

By POST

The Hornets, after winning the first game here Tuesday night, journey today to Groesbeck to meet the Goats in the second title of their two-out-of-three game series from the championship of this basketball district. Although the Hornets won by only a slim four-point margin here, they are still heavy favorites to win at Groesbeck, as the boys are not due to be as tense and nervous as they were Tuesday. Th locals are capable of playing much better basketball, and will probably do so tonight. Team captain Blanchard had been sick in bed the entire day before the first fray, but will be in to pshape for the battle tonight.

The district tournament to decide the girls champion of this section will be held soon in the local gym. Jonesboro won the Class B meet at Copperas Cove last week and gained a berth in the district tourney. Gatesville automatically takes a spot in the meet, but the entries from the other surrounding counties are not yet known.
