Topsy-turvy Kauai

LIHUE, Hawaii — Military police cleared roads of palm fronds, telephone poles and roof shingles Monday, and residents whose homes were smashed by nature's whim wondered when their lives might return to normal. Hurricane Iniki had turned the tropical paradise of Kauai topsy-turvy, and an approaching storm threatened to add to the disorder./7A

Health-care costs

WASHINGTON— The American College of Physicians, the largest medical specialty group in the United States, said Monday that there should be an overall national limit on health-care spending, with new restrictions on the amounts charged by doctors and hospitals. The proposal signals a turning point in the debate over the future of the American health-care system because it indicates that significant numbers of doctors now support an approach favored by many labor unions, big businesses and Democratic members of Congress./7A

A royal pay cut?

LONDON — Could it be belt-tightening time at Buckingham Palace? Prime Minister John Major's visit with Queen Elizabeth II and the recent royal family controversies fired media speculation Monday that the royals may face a cut in their allowance. With a recession hitting British families hard, the issue of royal finances, including the queen's income tax exemption, has been the subject of much debate. Reports of marital troubles among the queen's children has raised questions about how many of her relatives should be on the public payroll. Press Association, the national news agency, reported Monday that members of Parliament believe the queen has expressed readiness to take a cut from $14.9 million a year.

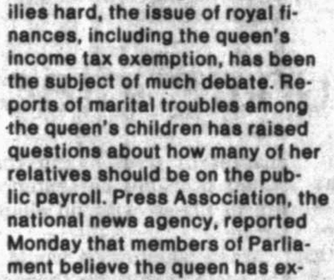

Vonnegut is ill

NEW YORK — Writer Kurt Vonnegut was hospitalized with chest pains after canceling a scheduled appearance in his home state of Indiana. Ball State University spokesman Marshall Collins said the school was notified that Vonnegut wouldn't be able to give a lecture Monday because he was in a New York hospital. Vonnegut's wife, photographer Jill Krementz, said Monday the illness was "not serious, he just had chest pains."

Gore campaigns in Texas to counter GOP's inroads

Election 92

ARLINGTON (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Al Gore emphasized protecting jobs Monday during a campaign stop in Tarrant County to counter recent visits to Texas by President Bush and his wife.

Gore told about 300 workers at Bell Helicopter Textron, which jointly develops the V-22 Osprey with Boeing Helicopter, that Republicans have opposed the tilt-rotor aircraft "tooth-and-nail," threatening jobs in Tarrant County.

Aging weather-satellite fleet poses risk to U.S.

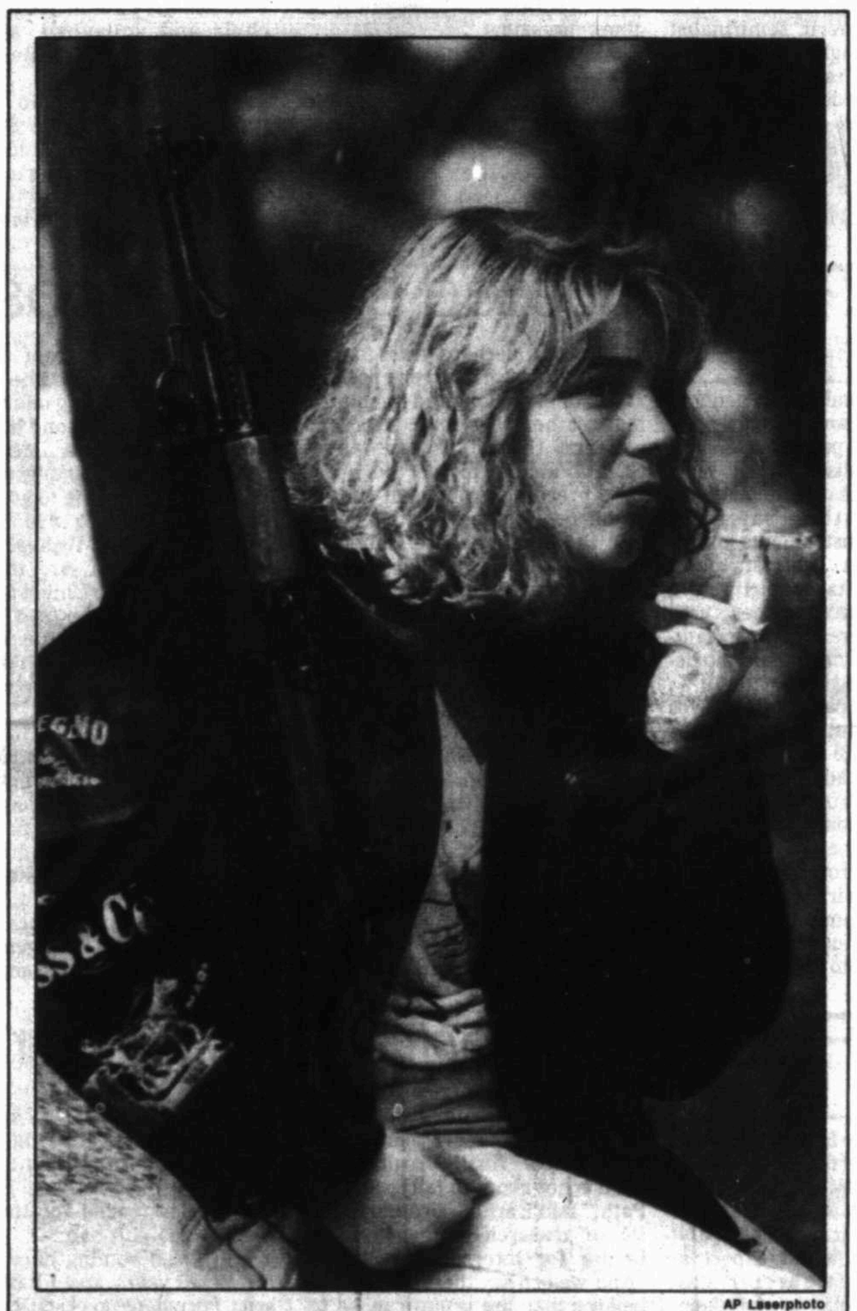

By William J. Broad
N.Y. Times News Service

The United States is facing heightened danger from hurricanes because delays in modernizing its weather satellites are forcing the use of spacecraft so antiquated and poorly positioned that they are raising the risk of forecasting errors, federal scientists say.

The new limitations were driven home when a satellite instrument that helps gauge a hurricane's likely path was unable to view the critical area around Iniki, which took an unforeseen turn Friday as it bore down on Hawaii.

Because Hurricane Andrew moved in a straightforward way, experts say, it posed few challenges to forecasters, and timely warnings and evacuations were possible despite the

Sparks fly in 'diploma, lies' debate

■ Railroad Commission's Guerrero, candidate Williamson trade accusations

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Republican candidate Barry Williamson accused Railroad Commission Chairman Lena Guerrero of a "second big lie" Monday over a claim that she was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa academic honors society.

Williamson said Ms. Guerrero showed an "appalling lack of credibility and integrity" by claiming for 12 years to hold a college degree she didn't have, then by denying that she ever took credit for the scholarly honor.

"That web is starting to grow of deceit and misrepresentations. And that's unfortunate in a public official of this state," Williamson said after he and Ms. Guerrero taped a joint television appearance.

Responding, Ms. Guerrero said she had believed she was a graduate and never personally claimed to be a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

She accused Williamson of using an honest mistake about her college record to divert attention from his family's oil and gas holdings, businesses the Railroad Commission regulates.

The Democrat described Williamson, a former U.S. Energy Department appointee, as "a guy who spent five years in Washington, D.C., whose wife has oil and gas holdings, and whose father-in-law is in the oil and gas business. And now he wants to be the fox to go guard the henhouse.

"It was very clear to me in this debate today that as long as he can keep bringing up the academic record, then he

City eyes facelift project at Dennis the Menace Park

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

At 33, Dennis the Menace Park is in dire need of a facelift.

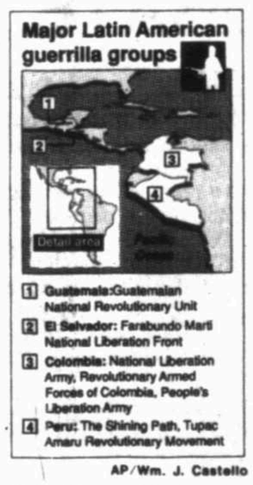

Safety concerns — including platforms as high as 12 feet without guardrails — and outdated materials have prompted the overhaul of one of Midland's oldest parks, located at Garfield Street and Brunson Avenue.

But the city wants opinions from neighborhood residents before going ahead with the project, which has an estimated cost of $20,000.

The park officially opened in 1959 after a local couple anonymously donated about five acres of land to the city. Today the playground area encompasses about 2½ acres of the property.

According to officials, building the park was one of the

Arrest cripples Shining Path political arm; military intact

LIMA, Peru — Peruvian officials said on Monday that with the arrest on Saturday of Abimael Guzman Reynoso and at least three other senior leaders of Shining Path, much of the rebel movement's upper echelon had been captured or killed in the last few months.

But experts on the Maoist guerrilla group said that other leaders remained at large and that there could be years of continued violence before Peru can say that it has quelled the insurgency, which has so far cost more than 25,000 lives and damage to property totaling more than $22 billion.

To underscore the point, Shining Path members set off a bomb on Monday on the Pan American highway north of Lima, wound-

City boasts 5 'Merit' semifinalists

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Public schools offer top challenges for students willing to take the risk, according to this year's five National Merit semifinalists from Midland.

The students are five of 15,000 semifinalists who vied for the honor with 1.8 million of their peers nationwide.

The merit scholars edged to the top of the heap with their academic achievements including scoring high on the PSAT/NMSQT multiple choice math and language test.

Thomas Fleming was the only merit semifinalist from Lee High School. The four Midland High School honorees are Sean Eckerty, Lezli Herman, Jason Whiles and Justin Merritt.

All the students said they didn't undergo any special preparation for the test. Most attributed their success to challenging curriculum in the honors and advanced courses offered in both high schools.

"Success depends on the student a lot," said Sean, who plans to study engineering at the Colorado School of Mines.

"If a student doesn't want to learn, he is not going to learn. No matter what a teacher tries, it's not going to work," he said, noting that teachers also have to make an effort to reach the student.

Clouds to roll this afternoon

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for early morning low cloudiness, becoming partly cloudy by late morning, and a less than 20 percent chance of afternoon showers and thunderstorms. The high should be in the mid-80s with south winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a less than 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms and a low in the mid-60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

On Wednesday, the morning is expected to be cloudy, becoming partly cloudy by noon, with a high in the upper 80s.

After an overnight low of 64, Monday's high reached 88, compared to the record high for that date of 99 set in 1965. The record low was 50 set in 1989.

MERIT: Five students are national semifinalists

(From 1A)

Force Academy and a career with NASA, said "I was never grade-conscious. It just happened (excelling in school). If I learned what I was supposed to, then I guess I accomplished what I was supposed to."

"I feel like I am getting a real good education," said Lezli, who is ranked No. 1 in her MHS class of 478 seniors.

The future premedicine student said she has experienced positive peer pressure when it comes to excelling in the classroom.

"In my group of friends, we all help each other out," she said.

Lezli said "you can't really study for the (PSAT/NMSQT) test. God has given me a talent — a gift. I can't take any credit for it."

"You have got to have a good background in English and math (to do well on the test)," Sean said. "Then everything else falls into place."

Jason, who plans to major in engineering at Texas A&M University, gave credit to his parents for his success on the vocabulary portion of the test.

"They always encouraged me to read, even when I was very young."

And like Lezli, he attributed success on the math and logic portion of the test to "God-given skills." And it is those skills he hopes to utilize as an engineer. "I really enjoy math and physics," he said.

Justin, the merit semifinalist who has set his sights on attending Rice University, said he attributes much of his academic success on getting a broad education and "not limiting myself."

"If you stick with any one thing it's too limiting," he said.

Proving he follows his own advice, the young scholar lists "academic decathlon" — a team competition featuring several subjects — as his favorite subject.

Justin hasn't limited his pursuits to only the academic. Well-known as one of the "bottle dancers" in Midland Community Theatre's musical production of "Fiddler on the Roof," Justin also has performed with the MCT youth troupe, the Pickwicks, and is a band student at MHS.

Because of his talent for performing, he is considering a double major in business and music. "Performing is a fun thing. There is not much demand for it. I would not do it as a profession," he said.

Justin said the real challenge, in today's economy, "is to get a job I will enjoy. My biggest concern is finding a job I really want to do."

Thomas, who is taking honors courses and whose favorite class is physics, said "the Air Force Academy offers the field (astrophysics) that I want to study."

He said after an Air Force career, other career possibilities exist, "or if I can I'd like to get into NASA."

Lezli, who is enrolled in honors calculus and physics courses, said she is secure in the field she has chosen. "I want to be a radiologist. There is always a need for doctors and medical professionals."

Sean said he is optimistic about his chances to find a job after college, despite the depressed economy. "And it's five years down the line," he said.

All the scholars interviewed said they were relieved to get the news they are semifinalists, but it won't mean that they can rest on their laurels.

"Colleges look seriously at grades too," Sean said.

And for Lezli, she has the pressure of keeping her top ranking with the No. 2 ranked student close on her heels.

Nonetheless, Justin said being named a merit scholar semifinalist "feels great. Some sort of real recognition feels really good."

The semifinalists will now compete for National Merit status. Every finalist will have a chance to win one of 1,800 national merit $2,000 scholarships.

Background on the semifinalists follows:

■ SEAN ECKERTY — is the son of Don and Julia Eckerty. His favorite subject is physics and he is enrolled in various honors and advanced placement courses. He is a three-year member of the All-Region Band, a two-year member of the All-Area Band and has served as MHS drum major for three years. He has participated in the Academic Decathlon, the Texaco Star Challenge and is a member of 4-H Horse Club and the Boy Scouts of America.

He plans to study engineering in the Colorado School of Mines or at Texas A&M University.

■ LEZLI HERMAN — the daughter of James and Carol Herman, is enrolled in honors courses and is a member of the National Honor Society. She is student council secretary, Posse secretary, a member of D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth in Texas), and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. She also is involved in Mexico Missions, First Baptist Church Youth Group, choir and volleyball, and is a DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) role model. She was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students, Outstanding Spanish Student and to the Texas Governor's Honors Program.

She plans to study premedicine at Texas A&M University.

■ JUSTIN MERRITT — the son of Wayne and Eddie Merritt, is enrolled in honors courses and has received the United States National Science Award. He has participated in band, the Academic Decathlon and the Texaco Star Challenge. He is church youth-group president, a member of Pickwick Theatre Youth Group, and was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students.

He plans to major in business or music, or both at Rice University.

■ JASON WHILES — is the son of David and Debbie Whiles, lists his favorite subject as physics. He is enrolled in various honors courses and has been named to Who's Who Among American High School Students. He is a member of D-FY-IT, DARE, the National Honor Society, Disciple Life, Serendipity and First Baptist Youth Group, where he was a member of the Mexico Mission Team. He has also participated in the Academic Decathlon.

He plans to study engineering at Texas A&M University.

■ THOMAS FLEMING — is an LHS student and the son of Terry and Sharon Fleming. His favorite subject is physics and he has received the Rennsalaer Math/Science Award. He is enrolled in honors courses and is the president of the LHS Speech Team. He also has participated in the Academic Decathlon, the Texaco Academic Star Challenge and the University Interscholastic League Math/Science Team. He has received numerous academic awards and is the District 4-5A Lincoln Douglas Debate Champion.

He plans to attend the Air Force Academy and pursue a career in astrophysics.

FLEET: Antiquated satellites pose risk to U.S.

(From 1A)

satellite shortcomings. In general, hurricanes' zigs and zags are notoriously hard to predict.

Federal scientists say the new danger arises because the nation is short of weather satellites equipped with instruments known as sounders. In contrast to an imager, which takes pictures, a sounder measures temperatures in the atmosphere and, importantly, the steering winds that help determine a hurricane's path.

Of two American weather eyes normally on duty 22,300 miles above Earth, one satellite with a sounder has already been lost. The other, GOES-7, is on its last legs; in February it passed its five-year predicted lifetime.

GOES stands for Geostationary Operational Environmental Satellite. The government hopes that GOES-7, out of maneuvering fuel and beginning to drift, will last months and perhaps years longer.

In any case, its current position at 112 degrees longitude, monitoring weather over the central and western United States, leaves GOES-7 unable to see the hurricane breeding grounds of the Atlantic or, for that matter, deep into the Pacific where Hurricane Iniki hit the Hawaiian Islands.

In normal times GOES-7 would be positioned farther west at 135 degrees west longitude, giving it a better view of the Pacific. But the equipment crisis has forced officials to shift satellite positions.

Five replacement satellites, known at GOES-NEXT, costing a total of $1.7 billion, have advanced sounders but their development has been stymied by a string of technical failures, delaying the first launching from 1989 to 1994.

To avoid an emergency in which forecasters have no pictures from high-flying spacecraft, the Bush administration is borrowing old weather satellites from Europe, which has a surplus. The United States is already using one of these backups, Meteosat-3, and has negotiated to use another, Meteosat-4.

Meteosat-3 is at 50 degrees west longitude and unable to go farther westward until a $10 million ground station at Wallops Island, Va., is completed late this year that will allow the United States to take direct control of the European craft. Normally, the nation's Atlantic weather eye would be stationed at 75 degrees west longitude.

In any case, neither European craft has an atmospheric sounder, leading to fears that important forecasting tools are being lost.

"It's worrisome," said Dr. James S. Lynch, a top satellite official at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which runs the National Weather Service, adding that the agency was looking for ways to compensate.

Max Mayfield, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., said, "I don't want to say it's killing us. But everybody agrees that to improve the models, the only hope we have is good sounding information." He added that such data over the years had proved very useful in predicting the path of hurricanes.

Dr. Christopher S. Velden, an atmospheric scientist at the University of Wisconsin at Madison who helped pioneer new uses of sounding, said, "Forecasters had a good handle on Andrew. But when you get a storm in the future that isn't so well behaved, it might be crucial."

Velden noted that forecasts for Hurricane Iniki, whose path took an unforeseen shift just before landfall in Hawaii, were unaided by the GOES-7 sounder because the weather systems controlling the storm's movement were out of range.

city's first joint ventures with private citizens.

"We've had active neighborhood groups in the past helping provide capital and assisting with the planning," said Chuck Swallow, assistant director of Community Services. "We're looking for volunteers for this project as well. We're calling it a rededication."

Swallow announced the project at a town hall meeting Monday night for District 4 residents. The meeting was the second hosted by council member Claudia Egan.

"It's probably one of the most-used parks in Midland over the last 30 years," Swallow said. "And it's showing obvious wear. It's definitely time to fix it. We're dedicated to making it a safe place for our children."

Revitalization efforts will include sandblasting, repriming, rewelding and repainting. City officials encourage any interested civic groups to help out with the repainting.

"All of the equipment was manufactured by the park people when it was built. It's getting old and now we need to make it strong," Swallow said.

One targeted area at the park is the wading pool. Sand-clogged drainage pipes causing algae created problems with keeping sanitary water in the pool.

"We don't want to change the theme of the park just the materials," Swallow said. "Small equipment here, the replacing of outdated things there."

The work is slated to begin Oct. 15. Swallow encourages any volunteers to contact the city.

"We had a lot of people come out and help with other parks, including Essex Park and Cowden Park. We hope to see a similar interest with this project," Swallow said.

CRIPPLES: Shining Path's military unit's intact

ing eight people. In another incident, three guerrillas shot and killed a police officer in a poor section of the city. Police and army officials warned repeatedly that the public should expect a wave of such violence as guerrillas retaliate for the capture of their 57-year-old leader.

At best, the experts said, the capture of Guzman and the others was a signal that Shining Path was not about to take over the country, and that the government had developed at least some of the counter-insurgency tools with which to win the 12-year war.

"We now finally realize that Peru is not about to fall to Shining Path," said Enrique Obando, director of research at the Peruvian Center for International Studies. "And we can say there is reason to believe that the group can be totally destroyed over time."

The reaction of Lima residents suggested another obstacle to Shining Path. The mood in this capital city, which has been the focus of repeated bombings and assassinations by Shining Path for more than a year, was buoyant, with residents gathering in the streets to join in rousing choruses of the national anthem. Many of the revelers called for the death penalty for Guzman.

"I've been coming here on and off for 22 years, and I have never seen Peruvians so ecstatic and optimistic," a Western official said. "People had forgotten they could feel that way."

At a news conference on Monday, President Alberto K. Fujimori said that Guzman would be tried by a military tribunal on charges of treason and that he would probably be sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole.

Asked whether he would favor the death penalty for Guzman, Fujimori said: "Putting aside my official duties, I would be in favor of it." In Peru, capital punishment is reserved for those found guilty of treason in a war with a foreign country.

Fujimori said that the guerrilla leader would be kept at a maximum-security prison and permitted only one visitor a month.

DEBATE: Williamson, Guerrero spar at taping doesn't have to deal" with conflict of interest questions, Ms. Guerrero said.

(From 1A)

The two clashed during and after a taping of the program "The State of Texas," to be aired by Austin's KLRU-TV Thursday.

It was their first face-to-face meeting since Ms. Guerrero acknowledged last week that she wasn't a 1980 University of Texas graduate.

"Until Thursday, I really believed in my heart that I had completed my course work at the University of Texas," she said.

But during the debate and a news conference Monday, Williamson accused her of other exaggerations in her resume.

He gave news reporters a 1984 biography from Ms. Guerrero's state House campaign, in which it was stated she belonged to Phi Beta Kappa.

Ms. Guerrero told a news conference that she hadn't written the campaign biography Williamson distributed. "I did not" prepare it, she said.

She also said she was unaware of a 1985 Texas House biography which claimed the academic honor.

Williamson called those statements "the second big lie she's perpetrating on the people of Texas. ... We can't have someone leading $60 billion worth of industry that is not honest with the people of Texas," he said.

Williamson said he has achieved a bachelor's degree and law degree from the University of Arkansas and offered to make public his college transcripts. He called on Ms. Guerrero to do the same to prove her statement that she needed only four more hours to earn a degree.

GORE: Candidate blasts GOP

(From 1A)

e," said Gore, who was flanked by Democratic Reps. Martin Frost and Pete Geren.

In Lubbock, Gore blasted Republican campaign officials for distorting his comments to make it appear he opposes oil and gas drilling off the coasts of Texas and Louisiana.

Energy Secretary James Watkins issued a statement last week under a Bush-Quayle campaign letterhead, saying Gore had called for a total ban on offshore drilling.

"I'm in favor only of a moratorium on new rigs in environmentally sensitive areas that have been designated, such as those off the California coast and Florida coast," Gore told The Associated Press.

"This would have absolutely zero effect on rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, except around the Florida Keys and the west coast of Florida, which has already been an issue acted upon."

Gore added, "Of course those Republicans who support Bush and Quayle want to twist words and take them out of context and make them appear to say what I did not mean."

In Lubbock, Gore was greeted by about 1,500 people and the rousing tunes of Buddy Holly, a native of the West Texas city that President Bush has referred to on occasions as his "pulse of America."

"I have often heard that President Bush says he listens for the pulse in Lubbock. Well, I am just wondering if he is listening today. Because I want to ask you if it is time for Bush and Quayle to go," Gore said.

The crowd cheered, "Yes!"

Gore said the domestic oil and gas industry has experienced its most difficult and devastating period ever during the Bush administration.

"Hundreds of thousands of people have lost their jobs, and our dependence upon Middle East oil has increased to record levels," the Tennessee senator said.

He said he and Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton believe oil and gas markets can be expanded by pushing the sale of compressed natural gas.

vintage Harley-Davidson with sidecar. Neiman Marcus promises to find and restore any model from 1939 to 1942.

"Well it's certainly unusual," said Diane Plotkin of Dallas, watching Santa and Neiman Marcus president Terry Lundgren circle by. "I don't think it would fit in my garage."

Lundgren said the motorcycles are fun and easy to ride.

"They're not just for the traditional bikers anymore," he said. You'll see executives, Hollywood types, everyone."

Last year's his-and-hers gift was an LTV Hummer, selected in the spirit of Operation Desert Storm. Other items in the popular his-and-hers category have been Chinese junks, submarines, camels and mummy cases.

"It's wild and crazy, and it wouldn't be the Neiman Marcus Christmas book without that," Lundgren said.

Transportation gifts seemed to dominate the viewing party.

Guests climbed in and around an electric golf car that boasted a television, cellular phone and compact disc player. Cost: $9,700.

"Isn't that fabulous," one woman said, laughing. "Think of all the soaps you can watch."

Others admired a tiny gem-studded electric train that chugs around 41 feet of track. The yellow gold train carries wagons of diamonds, sapphires, rubies and emeralds. Cost: $100,000.

"Too many zeros," one man muttered.

Browsers squeezed the kid-sized red boots ("darling"), pointed at the pickup truck cuff links ("just great") and poked at the golf balls packed in recyclable egg cartons.

The Gatlin Brothers sang "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire."

Lundgren was quick to note what he called an emphasis this year on variety in price and selection. The catalogue includes several pages of gifts under $25.

"This open up to a wider audience those who want Neiman Marcus gifts, but don't want to splurge," he said.

Armed U.N. troops arrive in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Young rifle-toting Somalis watched warily Monday as the first armed U.N. soldiers arrived in Mogadishu, the vanguard of a 500-strong force to guard humanitarian relief shipments in a starving nation.

The 40 Pakistani troops arrived amid fears that their presence could trigger new violence in a capital already devastated by civil war and inter-clan fighting.

The U.N. Security Council has authorized sending 3,500 armed troops to Somalia, but only the initial force of 500 Pakistanis have been approved by the country's main warlord, Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

The troops are needed to guard against the theft of food meant for up to 2 million Somalis facing starvation from drought and conflict. Hundreds are dying daily despite aid efforts that include a U.S. airlift.

By the time a U.S. C-130 military transport touched down late Monday afternoon with the first 20 Pakistani troops, about 100 young men believed loyal to Aidid had gathered along the airport tarmac, some with rifles slung casually over their shoulders.

A second C-130 arrived 45 minutes later from Djibouti with another 20 Pakistanis. A third flight with the last of the 60-member advance party was scheduled to arrive today, said Brig. Gen. Imtiaz Shaheen, the Pakistani commander of the U.N. force.

Five U.S. Air Force troops based in Rheinmein, Germany, took position around the green camouflage aircraft.

If voters ratify treaty, Paris vows to cut interest rates

PARIS (NYT) — Moving quickly to capitalize on a reduction in German interest rates, the French government on Monday offered wavering French voters a deal: it, too, hopes to lower domestic interest rates — if they ratify a treaty on European union in a referendum on Sunday.

With the latest polls showing the electorate to be evenly split, opponents of the treaty have been arguing that France's need to match German interest rates is already driving this country into recession. And under the treaty, they say, France will lose all control over its monetary policy.

But Prime Minister Pierre Beregovoy responded that the German Bundesbank's decision to reduce interest rates by one quarter of a percentage point on Monday showed that the spirit of the treaty had prevailed over national interests. "They have put the interests of Europe ahead of their own interests," he added.

He said that France could not follow suit immediately because, "if the no wins, there will be a monetary shock and a stock market shock."

Until now, with little to offer in exchange for a yes vote, the government had been focusing on the dire political and economic consequences for France and Europe if the no wins. After Monday's news, the price index of the Paris Bourse rose by 3.97 percent to its highest level since late July.

In recent months, France has had to follow German interest rate hikes in order to maintain the value of the franc against the mark within limits permitted by the European Community's system of linked currencies. And this has discouraged investment and slowed domestic growth here. Lower German interest rates could therefore reverse this trend.

It may be difficult to gauge how the prospect of lower interest rates influences voter intentions, not least because both supporters and opponents of the treaty give a wide gamut of reasons for their decisions.

Russia admits breaking germ weapon treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — Officials on Monday admitted that the Soviet Union and later Russia had been violating a 1972 treaty banning germ warfare until at least March.

Bowing to pressure, Russia also announced Monday that it has cut the number of personnel engaged in military biological projects by 50 percent and slashed their funding by 30 percent.

The moves were detailed in a joint statement by senior Russian, U.S. and British officials, who met in Moscow on Sept. 10-11.

The United States and Britain repeatedly have voiced concerns that the Russian government has failed to act on its promise to shut down the Soviet Union's extensive program for making illicit bacteriological weapons.

The debate over alleged treaty violations was one of the last vestiges of the Cold War and an irritant in relations between the United States and President Boris Yeltsin's government.

Until Monday, Russian officials denied the accusations. As recently as last month, the Defense Ministry described the charges as "absolute lies" and asserted that all work on biological weapons was stopped in 1975.

But speaking to reporters Monday, Deputy Foreign Minister Grigory Berdennikov admitted that "activities banned by the (1972) convention were in progress from 1946 until March 1992. They were discontinued by the decree of the Russian president."

In the special decree dated April 11, Yeltsin promised to comply with the 1972 convention on biological and chemical weapons, signed initially by the Soviet Union, United States and more than 40 other nations.

The difference in dates could not immediately be clarified.

The joint statement Monday said Russia confirmed "the termination of research into offensive germ weapons, the dismantling of experimental technological lines (laboratories) to produce biological substances, and shutting down of a germ testing site."

Maj. Gen. Valentin Yevstigneyev, also speaking to reporters, said the site was in Aralsk, a town in central Kazakhstan.

However, neither the speakers nor the statement said how many people remained at work in weapons facilities. Nor did they say whether Russia still possessed any germ weapons.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The business outlook is highly promising. Separate fact from fiction when evaluating proposals and resumes. In December, a sensitive family matter will be resolved in your favor. Count on new friends to enliven your leisure hours early in 1993. Next March brings you a wonderful opportunity to cement a powerful alliance. Romance holds many happy surprises. Someone who has been straddling the fence could decide on a summer wedding.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: country singer Roy Acuff, actors Jackie Cooper and Tommy Lee Jones, director Oliver Stone.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone may be trying to use your talents for free. Authors and songwriters hear the sweet ring of the cash register. A close relationship could undergo an abrupt change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Mingle with the crowd at a business luncheon. You could make an important contact or pick up helpful information. Refuse to compete if someone changes the rules after the game begins.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A wonderful time to pursue a dream or write your own love story. Your arguments are highly compelling, drawing both strangers and close ties into your corner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A partner or friend surprises you with a thoughtful gift or clever business suggestion. You will be riding the crest of popularity tonight. Others admire your enthusiastic approach to life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A good day to refine your plans. Household designs take shape, romance has a new look, and events at a distance arouse your curiosity. Someone who is in the spotlight admires you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Good fortune lies in many directions. You want your relationships to grow — and they will if you keep the lines of communication open wide. A misplaced item turns up when you clean house.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready to make changes in your daily schedule. A new, more exciting, project is coming your way. Coworkers will be especially friendly and have a lot to say.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Widen your horizons. Making a long-distance phone call will start a new chapter in your life. Travel or a chance to reach a larger segment of the public is at hand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is vital that an alliance be handled in the most diplomatic way possible. You want to consolidate recent gains, not shake the foundations of your future financial security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Guard against forcing issues on the job. Good things come to those who patiently perform their duty. Romance inspires you to try new things. Distant horizons beckon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be on guard if you enter unexplored territory or an unusual relationship. You will be best off among close friends this evening. An emotional relationship deepens if you say the right words.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Bar the door to ideas and people you instinctively distrust. Instead, focus on home, family and what you know best. An older person offers good advice.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are energetic, detail-oriented and eager to do the right thing. They sometimes become so focused on minor issues that they lose sight of the larger picture. Concerned parents will encourage these bright youngsters to keep their ultimate objective in mind. Although these Virgos give freely of their time and energy, they tend to keep their emotions under wraps.

The bidding:

5 ♡	Pass	Pass	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠

Here's another curious deal from the recent Summer North American Championships held in Toronto. Can you find the card that is essential for East to hold if South's five-heart contract is to be defeated?

West's two-heart bid was a takeout for the black suits. We do not have the stomach for that action with such a weak hand when not vulnerable, let alone at adverse vulnerability. East's double was based on the reasonable expectation of finding a somewhat stronger holding in the opposite hand.

Declarer won the spade lead in dummy and cashed the remaining high spade for a diamond discard. Declarer ruffed a spade, then came an avalanche of hearts. On the first trump West discarded the jack of clubs, a discouraging signal in the East-West methods. So East, Marty Bergen of Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., knew he had to keep the king of clubs guarded at least once. East had to make three discards. Which three cards would you let go?

Unlike experts, most average players hate to part with high cards. Move to the top of the class if you worked out that the one card East must hold at all costs is the six of diamonds! If you don't, declarer will exit with a diamond and you will eventually be forced to lead away from the king of clubs, handing declarer the contract. Bergen discarded the two of clubs and the king and queen of diamonds! When declarer exited with a diamond, Bergen was able to take the ace and exit with the six of diamonds to West's jack, and the club return made sure that the defenders would get a club trick.

Fans make mad dash for free tickets to concert by Pearl Jam

SEATTLE — Motorists jumped medians and drove on sidewalks for free tickets to a concert by the rock band Pearl Jam.

The dash began Sunday when radio stations announced the giveaway for the concert next Sunday at Magnuson Park.

Shortly after the announcement, Interstate 5 through the city ground to a halt and major roads leading to the Seattle Center Coliseum, where the tickets were given away, were so clogged that some motorists zoomed onto sidewalks.

Others raced to the coliseum on foot.

All 10,000 packets of two tickets each were gone in four hours, coordinator John Hoyt said.

"Pearl Jam is a local band gone big," he said. "The band is giving something back to the community they grew up in."

The Pearl Jam album "Ten" is platinum and among the top four albums on Billboard magazine's latest chart.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Garth Brooks, Clint Black, Kathy Mattea and nine others in the country music elite are featured in the 1993 Country Music Hall of Fame calendar.

Black

George Strait, Emmylou Harris, Ricky Van Shelton, Hank Williams Jr., Randy Travis, Alan Jackson, Marty Stuart, Dwight Yoakum and Vince Gill will round out the year.

The calendar features full-page photographs of the stars. Each monthly page also includes photos of country greats Porter Wagoner, Minnie Pearl, Charley Pride, Ricky Skaggs and others.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — King Carl XVI Gustaf used to be a heavy smoker until his daughter told him to quit, news reports said Monday.

Now he is a party smoker who occasionally sneaks out for a smoke, when Crown Princess Victoria is not watching, the Expressen newspaper reported.

On learning in school about the dangers of smoking, the 15-year-old princess started a campaign against smoking in the castle, nagging her father as soon as he lighted up a cigarette.

"The king listened to Victoria. He really cut down," the king's press officer Elisabeth Tarras-Wahlberg was quoted as saying.

As a result, the royal residence Drottningholm castle outside Stockholm now is virtually smoke free, news reports said.

It was not disclosed how many cigarettes per day the king used to smoke or how long it took for him to cut down.

TACOMA, Wash. — The Most Rev. George Carey, archbishop of Canterbury, will visit the world's only Cambodian Episcopal church on Wednesday.

The archbishop, head of the Church of England and spiritual leader of 70 million Anglicans, is on his first U.S. tour.

He asked to see unusual ministries, which led him to the Holy Family of Jesus Cambodian Episcopal Church in Tacoma.

Sroun Ly, lay leader of the church, said word of the visit has uplifted its 100 members by showing that Carey and the Anglican Church care for people who are often neglected, like Cambodian refugees.

Carey began his tour last week with a House of Bishops meeting in Washington, D.C., followed by trips to the dioceses of Maryland and southern Ohio. After spending three days in the Seattle area, he will stop in Albuquerque, N.M., and New York.

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W.Va. — Actor David Selby will lecture and conduct seminars next year at Shepherd College as a visiting artist, the school's president said.

The Morgantown native will be in residence in the spring semester and serve as executive director of the school's Contemporary American Theater Festival.

"We are grateful that Mr. Selby will join the college community as a distinguished artist," President Michael Riccards said last week. "We are equally as pleased that a well-known West Virginian will work so closely with our fine students and theater faculty."

Selby played Richard Channing on "Falcon Crest." He has bachelor's and master's degrees from West Virginia University and is a member of the education committee of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

PRINCETON, N.J. — Veteran actor Pat Hingle, who played police Commissioner James Gordon in "Batman" and "Batman Returns," says he knows why the sequel didn't do as well as the first film.

"'Batman Returns' was too gross and violent for children," said Hingle, who was interviewed at McCarter Theatre in Princeton while rehearsing for his role as Big Daddy in "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" with JoBeth Williams.

"It wasn't the kind of movie you could take your kids to," he said. "But I did enjoy working with Tim Burton and Michael Keaton. I'm not sure about a sequel since this didn't do as well."

"Batman Returns" has grossed $159.6 million in 12 weeks, far below its 1989 ancestor "Batman," which grossed a total $251.2 million.

Slovakia should quit snarling at rights

Defenders of Slovak separatist Vladimir Meciar claim that the foreign media are unfair to him, fastening on his being an ex-communist and an ex-prize fighter. That misses the point. Alexander Dubcek, who led Czechoslovakia during the Prague Spring of 1968, is also a Slovak and an ex-communist, yet he is uniformly praised by the foreign press. No one would ever confuse him with the Meciar known to the world as a slavish supporter of the old hardline communist regime.

Meciar wants to end the 70-year-old Czechoslovak federation in a fast, painless divorce. If that doesn't happen, the Slovak prime minister adds ominously, "spontaneous developments may set in and we wouldn't be able to keep them under control." Human rights monitors in Bratislava are already getting a taste of those "spontaneous" acts in the form of blunt warnings, even death threats.

A Slovak official last week told the Human Movement, which along with Charter 77 monitors rights abuses, that it was high time to "shut up." Augustin Marian Huska, deputy chairman of the Slovak National Council, charged in a warning letter that the movement acts "as a fifth column to foreign interests, a fifth column that has the audacity and cheek to continue verbal provocations."

In Slovakia's communist years, words like that signified an imminent purge. In Slovakia's earlier incarnation, as a Nazi puppet state, such talk prefigured detention and murder. There are hardly any Slovak Jews, but the republic does have 600,000 ethnic Hungarians, as well as gypsies and ethnic Ukrainians. When Meciar insists that the Hungarian-speakers should enjoy no special rights, it sounds to them very much like a warning to assimilate, or else.

Perhaps the world misunderstands. Slovaks have long yearned for greater respect, especially from sometimes-overbearing Czechs. Meciar's would-be state seeks — and will need — foreign good will and investment. But the way to gain that respect is to stop snarling at human rights advocates, and to stop threatening "spontaneous" protests unless Slovakia gets its uncompromising way.

OTHER VIEWS

Carter's compassion made the difference

Former President Jimmy Carter received much criticism for his wanting to link human rights concerns to American foreign policy.

In his view, if a country wanted American dollars, it would have to pass the human rights litmus test.

He felt it was the moral responsibility of America that it should not reward regimes that abused their own people.

Now, Human Rights Watch, a monitoring group, says that every major famine in this century has a link with human rights abuses.

It cited China in 1958-'61, Sudan in 1984 and 1990 and Ethiopia the past decade among countries where "needless famine" was allowed to develop because authoritarian governments could pursue and conceal wrong policies without accountability to people's basic needs.

"Respect for civil and political rights can enable a country to become free from famine, even though subject to the same economic and climatic pressures that lead to famine elsewhere," the report said. For example, it said, India prevented severe food shortages from reaching famine proportions in 1966, 1973 and 1987.

That was done because democratic principles, a free press and free exchange of goods allowed resources to be focused to meet the problems.

Look at Somalia now, where government has broken down so much that gangs wantonly kill, rape and pillage, preventing relief workers from distributing food while people starve.

In some instances, might can make right; but right makes might much easier to bear on common concerns. Carter knew that, though his detractors tried to make him "soft" because of it.

Compassion can come in a "tough love" package, too.

Sale of jets to Taiwan can't be called 'pork'

President Bush . . . is authorizing the sale of 150 advanced F-16 fighter jets to Taiwan. This is a sound decision that will benefit both the United States and our old friends in Taipei.

The announcement . . . was made at the General Dynamics plant in Fort Worth, where the F-16 is made. This has led some Democratic partisans, whose leaders in Congress are unchallenged masters of pork barrel politics, to claim that the announcement amounts to the White House's very own pork barrel.

Well, the president was on a campaign swing, and the timing of the announcement was helpful to . . . Bush. But the distinguishing feature of pork barrel projects is that they waste taxpayers' money on programs that have little or no usefulness. The $6 billion sale of the F-16s to Taiwan is entirely different: It promotes the security of an ally, which has been seeking to upgrade its jet fighter capacity for several years, and it doesn't cost U.S. taxpayers a red cent.

CHARLEY REESE

Cynicism can make life worthless

Cynics ought to get off President Bush's back about visiting hurricane-damaged areas.

Nothing is more cynical than creating an artificial no-win situation. If the president doesn't go, he's uncaring; if he goes, he's political. Bull.

Reese

This hurricane is the largest catastrophe, measured in dollar-damage, in American history. Any sitting president would visit the areas whether there was a campaign on or not. Any president would offer whatever help the federal government can offer.

What would these cynics have the president do? Say, "I'm not going to offer any federal aid because if I do people will just say I'm trying to win votes." Get real.

We ought to be careful about losing our balance and perspective. Extreme partisans have a tendency not only to canonize their own candidate as a living saint but also to demonize the opponent.

There are no saints or demons on any American ballot and never have been. Let's remember that. George Bush and Bill Clinton are plain old human beings. Both have positive and negative traits.

I'm a frequent critic of President Bush's policies and statements. There is plenty about his administration and his campaign that justly deserves criticism. But for anyone to suggest that this man does not genuinely feel compassion for Americans made homeless by a killer storm is vicious nonsense.

Dogs and children are an outstanding radar-system for detecting decent human beings, and the Bush grandchildren and the family dog are all over this guy. What that tells you in all seriousness is that whatever faults he may have as a president he is a kind person.

President Bush grew up in an age when people, especially men, were taught that you do not let it all hang out. Men of his generation were raised in the stoic mode. That means never any public show of deep emotions.

This is probably a factor in Bush's communications problems. In his public persona, he's fine being authoritative or angry, but when he has to talk about subjects that produce a strong emotion of sympathy in him, he has a little trouble expressing himself.

Ronald Reagan, being a professional actor, had spent his career allowing his face and voice to reflect emotions, and so he is much more at ease in public communications. But Bush has that New Englander's reserve and doesn't verbalize his emotions easily. But that doesn't mean they aren't there.

This presidential campaign, already too long to suit me, is nasty and will get nastier, and a lot of the nastiness will come from the candidates themselves. Both of these men are intensely competitive, driven individuals. They wouldn't be the nominees if they weren't.

But if the two of them lose their perspective that doesn't mean the rest of us have to do the same thing. After all, we're the ones — not them — who have to arrive at a judgment as to which of them should be the next president. We ought to keep our cool and our perspective regardless of what happens to them in the heat of the campaign.

And, for heaven's sakes, let's give both of these guys credit for the good human qualities they do have.

People ought to fear cynicism as much as they do cancer because it will certainly eat up your soul and ruin your life. Life is good and there is goodness in most people. When we lose the ability to see it — and worse, believe it — then life becomes worthless.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 15, the 259th day of 1992. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 15, 1917, Russia was proclaimed a republic by Alexander Kerensky, the head of the provisional government that came to power following the abdication of Czar Nicholas II.

On this date:

In 1776, British forces occupied New York City during the American Revolution.

In 1789, the U.S. Department of Foreign Affairs was renamed the Department of State.

In 1821, independence was proclaimed for Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and El Salvador.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Bush should not want to be Truman

What's all this Harry Truman business — both presidential candidates trying on his mantle, jostling each other to bathe in the still-potent Truman aura? Labor Day found George Bush, who voted against Truman in 1948, nevertheless praising his "decisiveness," while Bill Clinton lauded his Democratic predecessor as "the working people's president."

Murchison

Among the advantages of middle age, I can attest, is historical memory. Out of memory comes the oddest data, such as that, during much of the Truman era, Truman was about as popular as acne.

Unkind cuts abounded in those days. A cigarette slogan, "L.S.M.F.T.," stood for "Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco," except when it stood for "Lord Save Me From Truman." In my own nuclear family, one parent referred to the president as "Harry the Horse"; the other thought the word "horse" not sufficiently anatomical.

Ideologically, Harry was a mixed commodity. He initiated — and rightly so — the Cold War with the Soviet Union but threw over chances for winning the hot war in Korea when he peevishly fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur. At least Truman had been courageous enough to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, thus sparing William Murchison Sr. and several million other uniformed Americans the necessity of invading Japan.

Truman integrated the armed forces and supported (without obtaining) creation of an equal employment opportunity commission. But not long before his death, he called Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. "a troublemaker." When a reporter pointed out that King had won the Nobel Peace Prize, Truman snorted, "I didn't give it to him." Somebody try that one at the next NAACP convention!

Everyone who was sentient in the Truman Era remembers the flap when Paul Hume of The Washington Post made bold to criticize, on purely musical grounds, the singing of the Trumans' daughter Margaret. In Missouri mule-skinner language, Harry informed the critic what he could do with his criticisms.

All this Labor Day seancing with Harry Truman has its ironic side. In 1947, Truman vetoed the Taft-Hartley Act, whose purpose was to control the wild and woolly unions. The act included the famous and wholesome "right to work" provision, allowing states to protect a worker's right to refuse union membership. "The do-nothing, good-for-nothing 80th Congress," as Truman liked to call it, passed Taft-Hartley over his veto. Among the beneficiaries are Bill Clinton's fellow Arkansans, citizens of a right-to-work state.

For all this, the Truman myth lives on and probably will get stronger and stronger. The heart of the myth is the plain Joe doing his best against the odds. We Americans like this sort of thing. Often it doesn't matter how good or logical or consistent that "best" turns out to be. We like underdogs who bite back — Jimmy Cagney types. We like it particularly when they bite the big guys. We're not big on big guys, even those who got that way honestly and perspiringly, by grasping the opportunities available in a land of freedom. Envy is as much a part of the American tradition as is that liberty that produces the things we envy.

Truman's sharpest opponent wasn't poor drunken Joe McCarthy but Ohio Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Taft-Hartley fame, who saw liberty as the "traditional American heart of things." Said Taft: "We have got to break with the corrupting idea that we can legislate prosperity, legislate equality, legislate opportunity. All of these good things came in the past from free Americans freely working out their destiny."

Taft spoke to half of the sorely divided American mind; Truman, the anti-big-guy guy, to the other half. Truman wanted to legislate various things Taft said couldn't be legislated and, guess what, still haven't been, notwithstanding spectacular attempts by his successors to do so. No wonder Bill Clinton gushes praise of Truman. It takes one paternalist to appreciate another. As for Bush, what a pity that on Labor Day he should take as his inspiration, not Bob Taft, but rather Taft's arch-adversary. Possibly a parable lurks here — that of a presidency in decline, a party in intellectual disarray.

Atlanta takes first place for crime rate

ATLANTA — Atlanta's criminals, here's to you.

For weeks I knew the latest FBI crime statistics would be released soon, and I was wondering if the city could capture the number one spot as it has in the past.

Grizzard

And it did. Atlanta is number one in the National League West, number one with the '96 Olympics selection committee and right there on the top of the heap in crime.

The City Too Busy With All Sorts of Other Stuff can look down on New York, Detroit, and Los Angeles and say, "When it comes to crime, we're the big kid on the block."

You've heard of the program "L.A. Law"? How about "Atlanta Lawlessness"?

"Matlock," a TV program about an Atlanta-based lawyer, former Mayberry Sheriff Andy Griffith, is a popular show, too. That's because there's so much crime, he's always got a great case going.

And where is his crack deputy, Barney? It appears Atlanta needs every available gun. So Barney only has one bullet. That's one more than we had before.

The Braves needed bullpen help. So what did they do? They went out and hired a stopper, Jeff Reardon, from the Boston Red Sox.

Atlanta's losing to the criminals. Getting creamed. It needs a stopper. Maynard Jackson, the mayor, doesn't appear to be the one. Neither does Police Chief Eldrin Bell.

They refused to admit there's a problem.

When the city was named number one in crime, they said, "Blah, Blah, Blah, Blah," which is cover-your-butt speak for, "The statistics are misleading."

What's misleading? The FBI made this stuff up?

Speaking of crime. Is that Treasury Department gangbuster, Eliot Ness, still alive? I always liked the way he handled things in "The Untouchables." He never smiled. Not in all those years I watched "The Untouchables" on television, did I see Robert Stack, who played Ness, smile.

That's because he wasn't trying to put on a happy face and tell everybody in Chicago the statistics on how many people were getting rubbed out by Capone, Moran, Nitti and the boys, were misleading.

We could use somebody like Eliot Ness to fight crime in Atlanta. This is Dodge City. We need a Matt Dillon, an Earp, or Jim Hardie, who rode around on a horse seeing to it that the Wells Fargo stages got through without being robbed and, in case you haven't noticed, Wells Fargo is still in business today because it hired its own personal crimebuster.

When the Atlanta mayor gets back to work after his by-pass, I suggest one, or all of the following be hired as Atlanta's Eliot Ness:

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, Gordon Liddy, Charles Bronson, Oliver North, Rush Limbaugh, Colin Powell, or that woman who does State Department briefings on TV. She never smiles either.

Do something, Your Honor. We're number one, and damn tired of it.!

Kauai relief effort braces for long haul, approaching storm

LIHUE, Hawaii (AP) — Military police cleared roads of palm fronds, telephone poles and roof shingles Monday, and residents whose homes were smashed by nature's whim wondered when their lives might return to normal.

Hurricane Iniki had turned the tropical paradise of Kauai topsy-turvy, and an approaching storm threatened to add to the disorder.

But there were some bright spots.

Neighboring islands in the Hawaiian chain were ferrying in field kitchens and portable showers, bulldozers and generators, engineers and carpenters.

Limited phone service was restored for some of Kauai's 52,000 residents. About half the island had running water. And electrical power was expected to be restored to the largest town of Lihue by next Monday.

"I'm really surprised at the speed at which they are doing it," said Hawaii civil defense planner Glenn Soma. "They have so much aloha spirit from the other islands, people sending in equipment, supplies, everything else. It's incredible."

Iniki, the most powerful hurricane to hit Hawaii this century, roared across the lightly populated western end of Kauai on Friday, leveling sugar plantations and churning up the eastern and southern shore where most people live and where luxury hotels and tourist bungalows abound.

Federal officials said 10,000 of the island's 21,000 homes were badly damaged by sustained wind of 130 mph and 160 mph gusts. Most of the 70 hotels sustained serious damage. More than 7,000 people were crowded into shelters.

The hurricane was blamed for at least three deaths, including one in a town east of Honolulu on Oahu Island, which lies across the 80-mile-wide Kauai Channel. About 100 people were injured.

The Coast Guard searched between Kauai and Niihau, a small neighboring island that sustained only minor damage for two people reported aboard a sailboat that sank as Iniki hit. A 50-year-old Kauai man who also was on the boat was rescued Saturday after clinging to an ice chest for 21 hours.

Authorities said later that the search was suspended indefinitely.

Federal and state officials planned to begin ground surveys of the damage, which Gov. John Waihee estimated at $1 billion.

Bush, Clinton use spotted owl to press differences

By Susan Yoachum
N.Y. Times News Service

President Bush and Democratic challenger Bill Clinton picked on the notorious spotted owl to symbolize their sharp differences over the environment and the Endangered Species Act versus jobs and the economy.

Speaking in Washington state, Bush declared that environmental laws should be changed to "make people more important than owls," and he vowed not to sign an extension of the Endangered Species Act until it is rewritten to put more emphasis on economic priorities and timber harvesting.

In Oregon, Clinton said he was the candidate who could best promote economic development while at the same time preserve the environment. "I know that you can be pro-growth and pro-environment," the Arkansas governor told a crowd in Portland, some of whom tossed rose petals his way to show their support.

At a lumber company near the Canadian border in Colville, Wash., Bush asserted that the balance between the environment and jobs has been lost.

"It is time to make people more important than owls," he said Monday. "It's time to put the mills back to work."

Protection of the rare Northern spotted owl under the 20-year-old Endangered Species Act and other federal laws has required millions of acres of federal forest to be placed off limits to logging and has thrown thousands of timber workers out of jobs.

The act is up for reauthorization this year, but Congress is expected to simply approve funds for the coming year and wait until after the election in November to debate possible amendments. The law will not expire unless action is taken to eliminate it.

The Endangered Species Act, one of the nation's toughest environmental laws, prohibits any action that would kill or harm a species listed by the federal government as threatened or endangered. About 650 species are listed nationwide, about 100 of them in California.

Doctor group supports limit on health fees

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON— The American College of Physicians, the largest medical specialty group in the United States, said Monday that there should be an overall national limit on health-care spending, with new restrictions on the amounts charged by doctors and hospitals.

The proposal signals a turning point in the debate over the future of the American health-care system because it indicates that significant numbers of doctors now support an approach favored by many labor unions, big businesses and Democratic members of Congress.

Under the proposal, all employers would be required to provide health insurance for their workers or to pay a new tax to finance a public health plan in which the employees could enroll. Private and public health insurers would offer a uniform set of benefits, covering "all medically effective and appropriate care." Hospitals and doctors would negotiate payment schedules with insurers and others who pay for their services.

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, the Democratic presidential nominee, also favors a comprehensive budget for all health-care spending, public and private alike. President Bush vehemently opposes the idea, saying it will lead to stringent rationing of health care, and he regularly denounces the idea in campaign speeches.

Historically, doctors have opposed efforts by government, insurers and businesses to regulate their fees.

Florida students return to school

N.Y. Times News Service

MIAMI — Outside the classrooms at Coral Reef Elementary School, pupils and parents arriving for the first day of school Monday morning hugged and kissed each other in relief.

For many of them, still without electricity and telephones three weeks after Hurricane Andrew swept through here, it was the first indication that their friends and neighbors had also survived the most expensive natural disaster in the nation's history.

Classes in the Dade County School District, the nation's fourth-largest system, were starting two weeks later than originally scheduled, and the storm was to blame for that delay, too. Coral Reef, in the heart of the disaster zone, was hard hit: 22 of the school's 42 classrooms were damaged and 9 of 11 portable units were left unusable, a situation that forced five fifth-grade teachers to hold classes in the cafeteria Monday while a new roof was being put on that building.

Sierra Blanca group rallies, supports plan for sludge deal

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of Sierra Blanca residents rallied at the Capitol on Monday, asking Texas Attorney General Dan Morales to stop his attempts to block the spreading of New York City sludge in West Texas.

Morales has asked the Texas Water Commission to reconsider a permit for the massive sludge operation in Hudspeth County, about 90 miles southeast of El Paso.

MERCO Joint Venture has a six-year contract to dump sewage sludge from New York on arid rangeland.

H.A. "Speedy" Virdell of Sierra Blanca said the operation provides jobs to the area, while the process of spreading the sludge will replenish the land.

"We welcome MERCO into our community," Virdell said.

About 50 people aboard two buses took the nearly 500-mile trip to Austin for the rally. Referring to Gov. Ann Richards, they chanted, "We love Ann. Please stop Dan."

Tony Parada, a Hudspeth County rancher, said Morales was "messing with our livelihood, our jobs. I have seen nothing but positive results from the work on this project."

But Morales said he doubted the sludge would have a beneficial environmental impact. "If this New York City human feces is so great, I don't understand why they don't want to dump it in New York City."

He said Oklahoma-based MERCO had orchestrated the rally to defend its $170 million contract with the city of New York.

"I do not want to see Texas moving toward becoming a garbage-based economy," Morales said, adding that the operation near the U.S.-Mexico border had also raised concerns with Mexican officials.

Rally leaders denied that MERCO had put together the rally. Virdell said about eight of the people at the rally were MERCO employees.

Virdell said state officials showed no interest in the past when the land MERCO is using was abused by others.

Capitol orders 90 $900 trash cans

AUSTIN (AP) — Trash cans costing $900 and ashtrays priced at $400 are among nearly $1 million in furnishings being purchased at taxpayer expense for the new underground annex to the Capitol, a newspaper reported Monday.

The Austin American-Statesman reported that 90 cast-aluminum trash cans, costing $901.46 each, plus 74 matching "sand urns" at $400.56 apiece, are among furnishings on order for public areas of the office building.

In all, officials said, the trash cans will cost more than $81,000 and the urns more than $29,000. The dark-green, ribbed receptacles will decorate public hallways.

"We're buying things that will last for the next 100 years, so that's why we're not buying cheaper items off the shelf," said Capitol curator Bonnie Campbell.

"Commercial-grade things like this cost more, yes, but they'll last much longer. And being in the Capitol, they're going to get a lot of use."

Darlene Marwitz, who is supervising the Capitol purchases for the State Preservation Board, said the trash cans and sand urns were chosen because they match the new building's decor — specifically, the pattern on the stairway railings. Unlike the railings, they won't display the Lone Star.

Ms. Campbell noted that the outdoor waste cans along Congress Avenue — similar in design to the containers to be used in the Capitol extension — cost $650 to $750 apiece six years ago.

The new trash cans and ashtrays will cost several times the price tag of the ones currently used in the Capitol. However, officials said the items are not comparable in design or durability.

Officials have applied the same principles to their buying decisions for the rest of the furnishings in the new building, the American-Statesman said. Some examples:

Two types of long wooden benches — 72 straight ones, 10 curved ones, each decorated with the Lone Star — have been ordered for public corridors alongside the trash cans and sand urns. The straight ones will cost $787 each, the curved ones $2,480 each.

Eight long tables have been ordered for conference rooms at a cost of $2,683 apiece. Chairs, 112 of them, will run $816 each.

Need rises for deaf interpreters

AUSTIN (AP) — Demand is growing rapidly for those able to interpret for the deaf.

It's a skill that soon will pay more than $20 an hour to those proficient at it, says Deborah Drummond, supervisor of interpreter services for the Travis County Council for the Deaf.

The need for deaf interpreters is expected to skyrocket as the federal Americans with Disabilities Act takes effect this fall. Among other things, the law requires large employers to hire interpreters for deaf employees and clients.

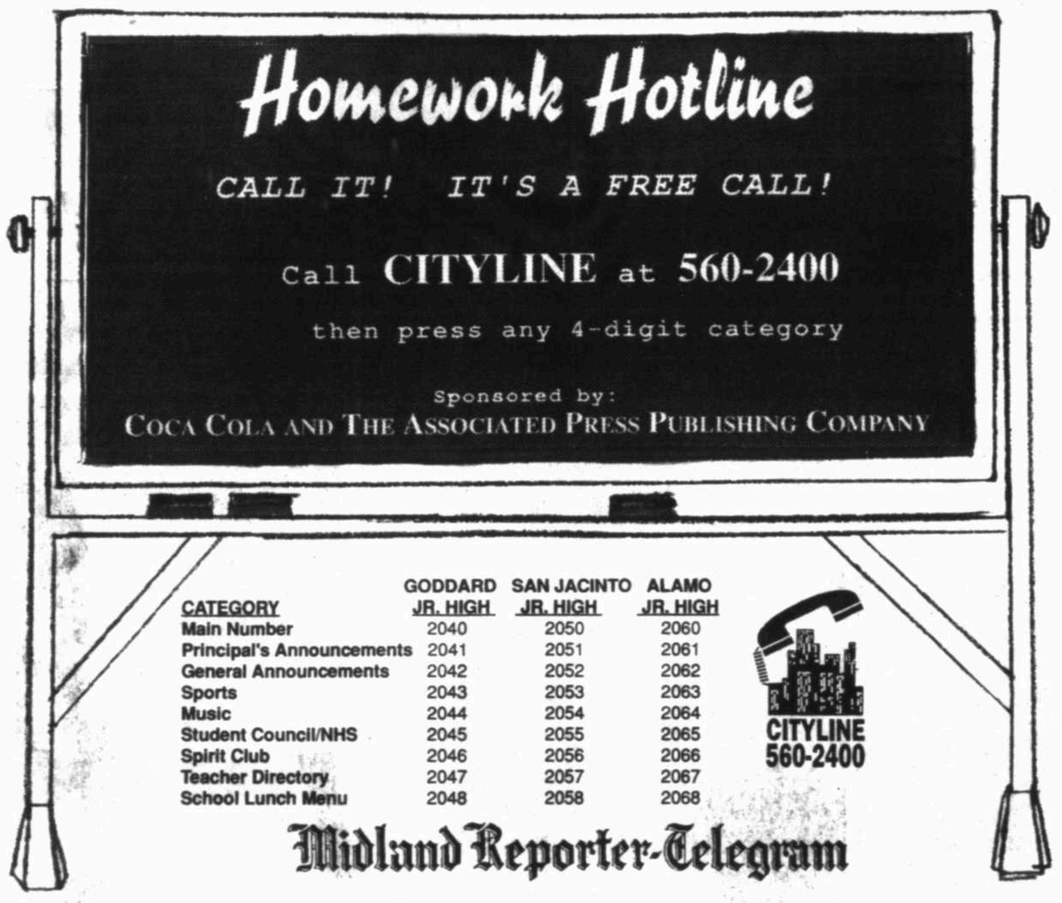

Ms. Drummond's agency provides part-time interpreters for 600 groups and businesses. Interest in the service has picked up, she said.

"We've seen about a 30 percent increase in requests for the first quarter of this year over the first quarter of last year," Ms. Drummond told the Austin American-Statesman. "We're recruiting from all over the state."

Controversial before the mid-1950s, when it was dismissed as incoherent gesturing, signing is recognized now as a visual language, comparable to spoken languages in intricacy, subtlety and power.

Learning "Sign" is no snap, and interpreting for the deaf can have its hazards.

The hardest thing to learn may be the grammar — it's not just in the hands and fingers but in the eyes and face as well.

Panel tackles ethics, election law queries

■ Officials give opinions at forum sponsored by League of Women Voters of Midland.

By Katherine Poteet

About 60 residents heard the opinions of state and local officials on everything from campaign ethics to election laws during a Monday panel discussion of the political campaign process.

The panel, sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Midland, included Bettye Calvert, Midland County Elections administrator; State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland; Chris McCormick, Midland County Democratic Party chairman; and Midland City Councilman Bill Morrow.

Each panelist was provided a list of questions before the discussion and was asked to speak on them.

Craddick and McCormick discussed the same six questions with predictably different answers.

On the subject of what in a campaign encourages or discourages someone to vote, Craddick said the problem is not the campaign but voter apathy and the media's distortion of what a candidate does or does not say.

"The press tells the voter what you think you have just heard," he said. "You saw a lot of this during the conventions. After a speech, the stations would tell the viewer what they just heard."

McCormick, on the other hand, blamed low voter turnout on slick media campaigns with little emphasis on real issues.

"It's not the media's fault, it's just that the candidates have sought this means to sell their campaign," McCormick said. "Voters feel frustrated and apart from their parties because no real issues are brought up. People are turned off when their questions are not being answered."

On the question of limited terms, Craddick said that a lot of positive changes would come about if political offices had time limitations.

"With a larger turnover, real issues would surface," Craddick said. "You wouldn't just accept the person you've always known."

McCormick said he saw limited terms as a quick fix to larger problems.

"The real problem is money," he said. "How much and who is putting it into the campaigns."

Ms. Calvert discussed the issue of campaign and election laws.

She said she was in favor of uniform election dates but said they were only effective if there are not a lot of exemptions.

"Exemptions are costly," she said. "Everytime the school board has a special election or someone else does, it costs."

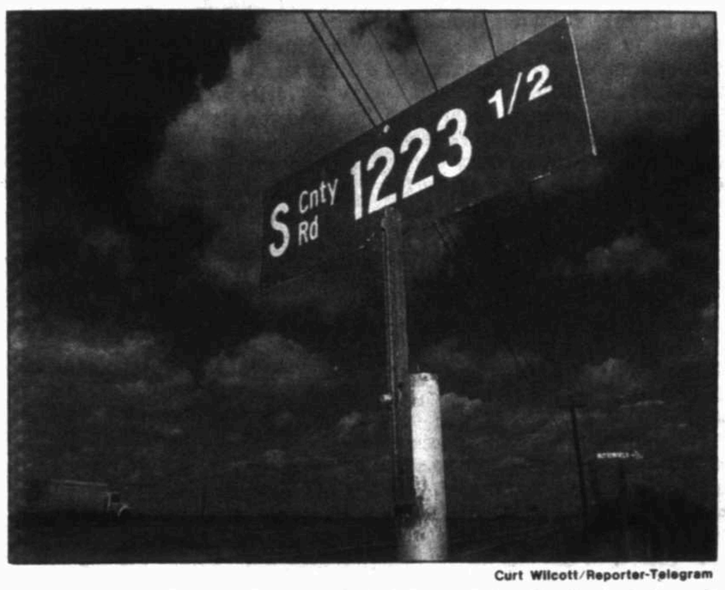

Ms. Calvert said she thought there was too much time between the primary elections and the general elections.

"People who moved here from out-of-state can't believe that we have from March to November to make up our minds," she said.

Morrow discussed ethics in campaigns and government. He said he was very interested in speaking on the topic because he is on a committee working on a code of ethics to be adopted by the city of Midland.

"It is a characteristic of our age that we think we can legislate anything," Morrow said. "When we see scandals on Wall Street, in baseball or in politics, we want

County color-codes public, private roads

■ Blue street signs denote public roads; brown ones indicate private roads.

By Ed Todd

Whether or not you call rural Midland County home, you may be driving down a country road marked by blue or brown road signs bearing white numbers and letters to help you figure out where you are.

A blue sign indicates that the road is public, dedicated and maintained by the county's Road and Bridge Department; a brown sign indicates that the road is private, not dedicated and not maintained by Superintendent Johnny Williams' road-and-bridge crew.

"You will know (by the colors) when you are on a public road or a private road," County Commissioner Win Brown said.

"The general public will know that" the color brown denotes you are driving on a private road, "and you are there at the invitation of the property owner ... if you are paying attention," Brown said.

For sometime now, the county has adopted a numerical grid system, keyed to north-south and east-west, so that people can find their way around rural areas.

"If you've got a fire out there and can pinpoint your address, you can call 911, and the fire department can find the shortest, most accessible route (to the fire)," Brown said.

While the blue road signs are already established, the brown signs are being posted.

Identifying letters and numbers are to be in reflective white.

The numerical system is replacing many of the traditional road names, such as County Road 140 West for Davis Road or County Road 140 East for Roberts Road. Rankin Highway, or U.S. Highway 349, divides County Road 140.

Cotton Flat Road is to be known as County Road 1200 South.

Midkiff Road, which is a mile west of Cotton Flat, is to be County Road 1210.

However, Commissioner Durward Wright said, some rural residents would rather keep the road's original name, such as Cotton Flat or Butterfield Trail.

In past years, the Commissioners' Court has allowed people to retain the name posted along their roads.

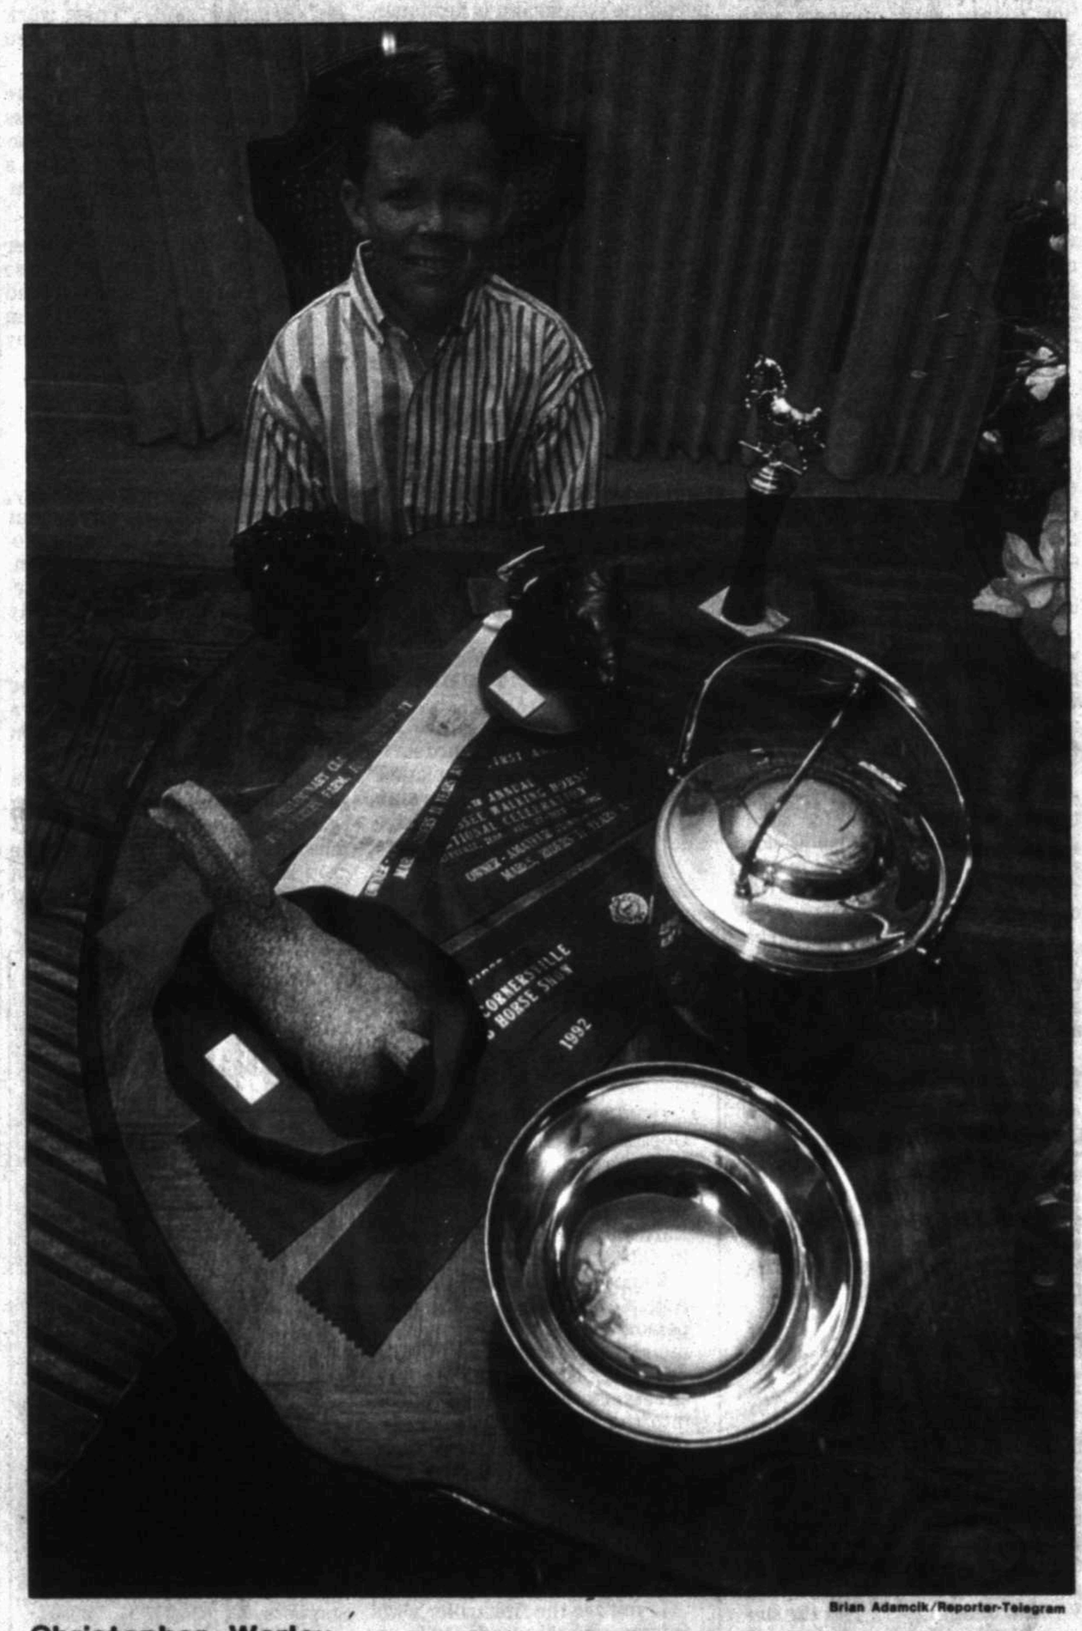

"We have in the past permitted" the often-sentimental names on sign posts, Brown said.

Even though the commissioners are discouraging using the traditional names, for now they are allowing a duality of road identifiers: the numerical system and the Student rides high with world title

Christopher Warley, 11, and his 6-year-old mare Gen's Country Girl, recently won the title World Champion Tennessee Walking Horse in the Juvenile Division.

■ Christopher Warley wins World Champion Tennessee Walking Horse competition.

By Allen E. Howland
Assistant city editor

Being a world's champion at age 11 is a tough act to follow, but Christopher Warley is undaunted by the challenges that lie ahead.

Riding high on his success at the Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration in Shelbyville, Tenn., the Trinity School sixth-grader has set his sights on repeating his feat next year — in a higher age bracket.

Chris and his 6-year-old mare Gen's Country Girl walked off with the title World Champion Tennessee Walking Horse in the Juvenile Division, for riders 11 and younger, at the 10-day equestrian extravanganza that ended last week.

Judges evaluate both the horse and rider in choosing the winners, which Chris and Country Girl have been named with astounding regularity in their year-long partnership. From across Texas and the South, the pair have brought home blue ribbons and trophies by the armload, but last week's crown was the topper.

"It was special because it was in the rain, and I won the World Championship," Chris said shyly. But a winning smile betrayed a deeper pride and excitement.

Does his infectious smile help win over the judges?

"I don't think so because when I'm up on the horse I'm usually not smiling, I'm concentrating."

But appearances are the key to success in the show ring. Although popular sentiment does not factor into the judges' decision, a knowledgeable crowd like the one in Shelbyville will let its opinion be known, especially if they disagree with the placings.

"But sometimes they just go for 'cute,'" Chris said, referring to popularity of tiny girls he often must compete against.

Author's workshops target commitments to self, career, goals

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

"Every result in your life is the evidence of a kept commitment," according to Noel McInnis.

The author of several books and the cofounder of the National Science of Mind Center in Washington, D.C., McInnis defines a commitment as a "nondivertible intention — something that one intends to do from which one cannot remain diverted."

"We have lots of intentions, promises and agreements. Only the non-divertible ones are commitments. They are the things you may get away from for awhile, but you will always be drawn back on course to them," he said.

The author will lead a series of workshops in Midland this week that focus on the subject of commitment — to oneself, to one's career and to managing personal objectives so that they don't become compromised by others.

McInnis will lead the workshop "Commitment in the Workplace" at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth Ave. The workshop is open to the public free of charge.

"The workshop will allow people to look at how to get away from the things that are in the way of being productive," McInnis said. "Basically, the secret of life is getting out of the way of what we would like to have happen. We need to see what has to take place to have the things we want to happen — as soon as we can get ourselves out of the way.

"Whatever is in your life, you have some commitment for it to be there if it stays in your life. Although you are not solely responsible for everything that happens, you cannot have an experience which you have not agreed to participate in," McInnis said.

"The important thing is to find what your real commitments are to keep from becoming overwhelmed. This holds in business as well as in life," he said.

McInnis will also conduct the seminar "The Power of Commitment" 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night at PCRS. It is also open to the public free of charge.

He will offer a preview of the workshop "Taking Command of Your Commitments," 7:30 p.m. Friday at the church.

INS revamps employment eligibility verification form for foreign workers

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

The Immigration and Naturalization Service hopes to clarify rules and regulations dealing with foreign workers in the United States.

The INS has just unveiled a new version of Form I-9, the Employment Eligibility Verification form to be filled out by all employees when they start work. The form was instituted by the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

According to Art Moreno, public affairs spokesman for the INS in Harlingen, employers must begin using the new I-9 by November or face fines for record-keeping violations. The forms are available from the Employer Sanctions Unit of the area INS office.

Moreno, in Midland Monday to discuss the changes at the invitation of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, said the new form deals with discrimination and simplifies the eligibility verification process for both employers and employees.

Elvia Hernandez, president of the MHCC, said she brought Moreno to Midland because the changes would have an impact on the city's sizable Hispanic population.

Moreno said the new form clearly spells out what documents an employer can and cannot request. Employers cannot require more or different documents than are required by the INS nor can they specify which documents they will accept.

In addition to a revamped I-9, the INS has unveiled a new resident alien card or "green card."

"There are 17 different versions of the green card," Moreno said. He said the different versions can cause confusion among employers.

The new card has the employee's photograph, fingerprint and signature. Moreno said cards issued before 1977 should be replaced. He said cardholders have until August 1993 to get a new card, which is good for 10 years.

Moreno said the new card will ensure that resident aliens remain eligible for employment, social benefits and speedy entry back into the United States after traveling.

One reason for the revamped card, he said, is to discourage document fraud. "With the new card's formats and security features, it should curtail illicit operations," he said. "We're trying to weed out those working illegally or using borrowed documents. We want to remove the unauthorized worker."

Moreno said cardholders should not be afraid that applying for a new card would cause their status to be revoked or cause them to be deported.

"Deportation is not a factor. We realize their card is not outdated as a result of their actions but of an initiative the INS took to help employers and to address document fraud."

Further information about the new green card is available by calling 1-800-755-0777.

DEATHS

Jeanie Kelley

Services for Jeanie Kelley, 32, of Midland are to be 3 p.m. Wednesday at Kelview Heights Baptist Church with the Rev. Frank Johnson officiating. Burial is to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Kelley

Mrs. Kelley died Monday at a local hospital.

She was born Oct. 6, 1959, in Munich, Germany. She graduated from Lee High School in 1978. She had worked for Wagner and Brown since Aug. 25, 1979. She was a member of Kelview Heights Baptist Church, where she taught the 3-year-old class.

Survivors include her husband, Kent Kelley of Midland; two sons, Nathan Kelley and Luke Kelley, both of Midland; a daughter, Heather Kelley of Midland; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hendricks of Midland; two brothers, Chris Hendricks and Michael Hendricks, both of Midland; a neice and five nephews.

Memorials may be made to Kelview Heights Baptist Church, Jeanie Kelley Fund, 402 West Scharbauer, 79705.

Pearlie McDonald

RANKIN — Services for Mrs. Pearlie McDonald, 77, of Rankin will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the First United Methodist Church in Rankin with Rev. Wes Massey officiating. Burial will follow at the Rankin Cemetery with Richard W. Box Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. McDonald died Monday morning at a Rankin hospital.

She was born July 1, 1915, in Madill, Okla. She married Archie James McDonald on Nov. 30, 1939, in Rankin. He died May 13, 1991.

Mrs. McDonald had been a Rankin resident since 1950, and had owned and operated the Highway Grocery from 1951-'76.

Survivors include one daughter, Linda Nicholson of Rankin; one son, James McDonald of Crane; one sister, Minnie Gray of Lovington, N.M.; one nephew, four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Blantye Copeland

LAWN — Services for Blantye Copeland, 96, of Cisco are set for 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Lawn Baptist Church. Burial will follow in McBee Cemetery under the direction of Fry-Bartlett Funeral Home of Tuscola.

She died Monday at an Abilene hospital.

She was born Feb. 5, 1896, in Valley Mills. She married Paul Copeland in 1924 and they moved to Lawn that year. Her husband died in 1975. She moved to Cisco in 1981.

Survivors include two sons, Gilbert Copeland of Cisco and Cecil Copeland of Midland; a daughter, Eddie Lou Papasan of Midland; seven grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Torres Gardea

Rosary for Torres Gardea, 36, is to be recited at 7:30 p.m. today at Thomas Funeral Home Chapel. Services are to be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. Henry Leanen O.M.I. officiating. Burial is to follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Thomas Funeral Home.

Survivors include his father, Manuel Gardea; his mother, Ventura Gardea; a brother, Manuel Gardea; and a sister, Maria Luisa Amparan, all of Midland.

see, Chris shunned what he called the "dumb-looking" rain gear that could have protected him from the torrential downpour that the remnants of Hurricane Andrew dumped on the show, in favor of a traditional riding outfit.

Nattily attired in suit, tie and fedora, Chris — accompanied by his parents Gene and Robbie Warley and 16-year-old sister Sharon — was drenched but beamed in the front page photo of the Shelbyville Times-Gazette.

Both his parents also show the flashy Southern horses, known for their intelligence, even temperament and smooth gait. Currently a four-horse family, the Warleys have owned as many as 13 Walkers at a time.

Family members have their eyes out for a new horse for Chris to help achieve his goal of taking the 12-to-17-year-old division at a future Celebration.

A bigger, showier mount is needed to compete in the larger classes of older, more-experienced riders, Chris' father explained.

Although a successful mare and proven winner even before teaming up with Chris, Country Girl is smaller than the more powerful horses ridden by many of the teenage competitors. Size and conformation both contribute to the grandeur of the Walker's distinctive, powerful prancing gaits — the flat walk, running walk and canter.

The Shelbyville show has grown from a three-day show on a high school football field to a 10-day festival filling more than 105 acres with a 4,500-seat indoor arena and a stadium that seats 30,000. More than 3,700 horses were entered in the Celebration's various classes this year, and attendance topped one-quarter million at the show, which is comparable to the Kentucky Derby for thoroughbreds or the All-American at Ruidoso Downs for quarter horses.

'Horses are a great experience for kids. They get very involved and learn a lot about responsibility.'
— Gene Warley

Even with her boarded more than 300 miles away in Salina, north of Dallas, Chris and Country Girl have spent a great deal of the last year together.

"During the summer, he absolutely lives and breathes horses," his mother said. During the remainder of the year, the family usually enters at least a show or two per month.

"Horses are a great experience for kids. They get very involved and learn a lot about responsibility," Warley said. When Chris is around the stables, he is involved in all phases of Country Girl's care — from mucking out stalls to hauling hay and grooming.

A massive, four-legged best friend like her doesn't leave much time for other hobbies for the soon-to-be 12-year-old math honors student, who enjoys soccer and tennis.

A fan of the Dallas Cowboys, Chris expects to keep riding as a hobby for life but doesn't necessarily envision making a living around horses.

As for his future occupation, last year it was a horse trainer; six months ago, a scientist. But, now "I just don't know," he said.

original names.

The county's numerical grid system was developed by the county, the U.S. Postal Service, the 911 Midland Emergency Communication District (MECD), the city of Midland and the utility companies.

Catalysts for the grid system were the urgency to establish the 911 telephone emergency system, the Postal Service's need for address uniformity to deliver mail, and the convenience of people traveling on county roads.

"It's one of the things you do for the betterment of the whole community," Brown said. "We are following a pattern that's going on nationwide."

Joyce Britcher, director of communications for the 911 system, said MECD's role is "to get emergency-response vehicles to a location as quickly as possible.

"Once they get out in the county, there's no way to do that without county road numbers with signs and without the numbers on these houses," Ms. Britcher said.

Rural residents are to post assigned numbers on their homes and businesses.

The grid system is "invaluable as far as responding to emergencies and can save a lot of time when you are trying to reach a residence where a person is injured or hurt or having a life-threatening situation," said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

"When 911 came into being, we wanted to make sure everybody had an address,"said Midland Police Chief Richard Czech.

MECD, which is an independent district funded by telephone users, maintains the 911 emergency telephone system and is headquartered at Loraine Center, where the Police Department is based. The 911 users' fee is 36 cents a month for a home and 85 cents a month for a business.

It is not a tax, Ms. Britcher said.

"Nationwide, there is a push to have 911 service: One nation, one number," she said.

"Texas jumped on the (911) bandwagon back in '85 or maybe a little earlier," she said.

Midland voters approved it in 1987.

The blue and brown signs are being put up and maintained by the county's Road and Bridge Department, "which has been right there anytime we had a customer's request, whether it is a dedicated or a non-dedicated road," Ms. Britcher said. "They work with us to get everything taken care of."

"Everyone benefits" by the county-road numerical address system, she said. "The delivery-service business benefits. It is just a snowball effect. Your utilities benefit, and the customers benefit."

With the grid system, "Rather than saying, 'I'm the third house after the red barn,' there is a road sign," Ms. Britcher said. "And then there are problems when they paint the red barn."

Cotton season turns out better than expected

HARLINGEN (AP) — Rio Grande Valley cotton farmers ended their season in better shape than expected, but 1992 was yet another bad year for the region's growers, an agriculture official said Monday.

Figures released Monday show farmers in the four-county Valley region produced 268,306 bales, down from more than 340,500 bales in 1991.

The average yield was slightly higher than a bale, or 500 pounds, per acre.

"While these yields are better than what we anticipated, they still weren't enough for a lot of growers to escape financial problems," said extension agent John Norman, who tracks the economic impact of cotton in the region.

Farmers throughout Texas have had similar problems.

Everything from the Valley to the Coastal Bend to just south of Waco has been disappointing, said Carl Anderson, an economist with the Texas A&M Agricultural Extension Service.

"It's just not a good year for cotton," Anderson said.

Norman said the Valley's crop was worth an estimated $79.8 million in gross sales. The crop was worth about $260 million to the region's economy and accounted for some 5,500 jobs.

"It's still below what we consider to be a normal crop for us," Norman said. "In fact, for some growers it was too far below normal. . . . A couple will have to stop farming this year. This cotton crop was the reason."

Growers faced trouble early, with unusually heavy spring rains delaying planting in some areas and later destroying some fields altogether.

An estimated 43,000 acres of the 303,000 acres planted in the Valley were lost to the weather — particularly in Cameron County and southern Willacy County — costing farmers about $13.2 million. Growers in Hidalgo and Starr counties generally escaped the battering rains.

Farmers also lost money fighting off unexpected infestations of the tobacco bud worm.

And low cotton prices are expected to add to their burden.

"So it's not a pretty picture we're painting here," Norman said, adding that farmers have faced several difficult years recently.

Last year, Valley growers lost some $30 million as a direct result of the sweet potato whitefly, which ravaged crops throughout the region. The loss to the economy was upwards of $100 million.

Before that, farmers were struggling with a drought that entirely shut down some crops in the dryland areas.

The worst-hit area will likely be the South Plains, which produce a quarter of the nation's cotton annually.

Preliminary estimates show a $321 million loss for the crop with related industries and local economies losing up to $1 billion. The crop is estimated at 1.370 million bales, the smallest since an output of 1.180 million in 1986.

COMMITMENT: Workshop by author begins today will be offered 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday at ClayDesta's Plaza Club. It will include lunch and will be offered free of charge to the leadership of Permian Church and prospective members.

McInnis will give the 11 a.m. Sunday service at PCRS, which is open to the public. He will conclude his series of workshops 2-5 p.m. Sunday with a seminar for PCRS leadership and prospective members.

"The whole intent of the workshops is to demystify commitment," McInnis said. "There is a lot of fear and misunderstanding about the nature of commitment. People have transformed their relationships, their work and their personal well-being by accessing their power to commitment. . . . It goes beyond ordinary psychology, beyond coping with and managing the stress that distracts or deters us from self-fulfillment.

"Commitment has the effect of moving your perception to the other side of whatever deterent stands between you and a wanted result," he said. "Oddly enough, some people are committed to failure because it has meaning to them. They become committed to doing things to prove that they are a failure. The basis of commitment is what has meaning for us."

McInnis said the workshops will offer tools of self-empowerment, which results in taking the responsibility to make changes in one's life. He said knowing what needs to be changed isn't enough, but steps must be taken to make changes.

"There has to be positive action to go with the positive thinking. Positive thinking and affirmations aren't enough. There has to be a release of negative thinking," he said. "Saying to oneself, 'I am worthy,' while thinking deep down inside 'I am not worthy,' is like spraying Lysol on garbage. We have to release the negative in order for the positive to do its work."

One way to discover what one is committed to, is to examine life patterns, according to McInnis. "Everybody's life or experience will show patterns. The pattern of your experience is the shape of your commitment."

The workshops will be offered free of charge. Donations will be accepted, however.

Odessa Crime Stoppers seeks tips on burglary case

ODESSA — This week the Odessa Crime Stoppers is seeking information that could help solve a burglary of a building, which occurred at Daniel's Hardware Store, 619 W. 2nd St., in Odessa.

Sometime between Saturday, Aug. 29, and Monday, Aug. 31, a person or persons removed a metal plate from the rear of the building, broke through the sheetrock and gained entry into the building. Once inside, they pried open the metal door in the rear of the building and took entire displays of hand tools, power tools and air tools valued at more than $7,500.

They then exited through the rear door of the business.

If you are the first caller with information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons involved in this crime it could be worth up to a $1,000 cash reward this week only.

Call Odessa Crime Stoppers at 333-TIPS or Midland Crime Stoppers at 694-TIPS. Callers may remain anonymous.

Police jail man for assault

Staff report

A Midland man was in jail Monday after being charged with three counts of assault on police officers.

Ronald DeGraw, 37, was being held on $6,000 bond for the assault charges and $500 for unlawfully carrying a weapon, according to police. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Officers responded to a disturbance call at 3217 Kessler at 7:58 p.m. Sunday, according to the police report. The suspect had already left the scene and was located at the 200 block of Midkiff. Officers saw that the suspect had a pair of nunchucks in the car. While attempting to arrest the suspect, three officers were injured, according to the report.

Van Pearcy helps MISD employees with retirement savings

Wouldn't it be great to have a retirement plan designed just for MISD employees?

Wouldn't it also be great if that same plan allowed MISD employees to contribute more of their own money than a regular IRA does — and then the school district would match contributions up to 2½ percent of contract salary, enabling employees to accumulate more money than a conventional savings plan?

Van Pearcy's E.D. Jones & Co. office is working with hundreds of teachers and school employees to help establish their retirement savings plan.

"My background of having parents, uncles, aunts, my brother and my wife in the teaching profession lends itself to understanding what school employees are looking for in their retirement savings picture," Pearcy said. "School employees want conservative investments that will grow predictably. They also expect good, knowledgeable recommendations. That is why so many school employees turn to us for help."

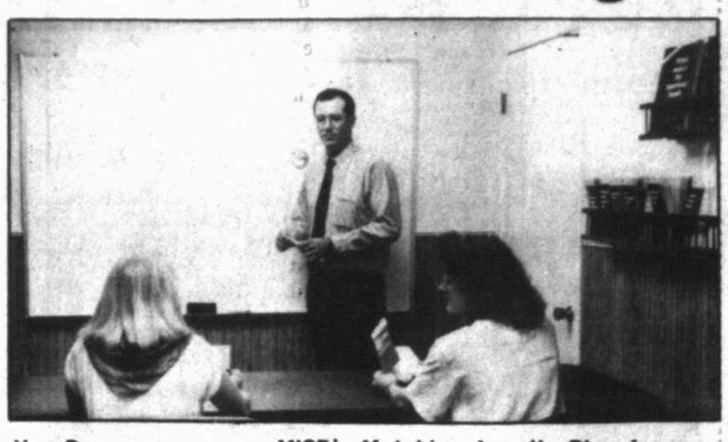

The MISD Matching Annuity Retirement Plan is designed for MISD employees who wish to put aside before-tax dollars and defer taxes on those earnings. As a school employee, you can put away up to $9,500 a year and reduce your current federal tax liability — plus save for your retirement.

"School employees understand that a good education is one of the keys to success. Here, in my office, we understand that knowledge is one of the keys to helping our clients manage their investment dollars. Just as there have been improvements in teaching techniques and aids over the years, there have also been improvements in school retirement plans and investments," Pearcy said.

Van Pearcy's E.D. Jones & Co. office has been in the area for quite some time. It is located at 2020 W. Cuthbert. Not only does Pearcy's office offer a quality, competitive investment for the MISD employee retirement plan, but he is here in the community to serve a variety of different clients with other types of investments and services.

If you're like many school employees, you're depending on your past and future retirement contributions to provide a sizeable portion of your retirement income. That's why it makes good sense to evaluate your current investments. Pearcy's office invites you to bring in your account for a free, no-obligation analysis. Also, from 5 to 5:25 p.m. Sept. 21 through 24, Van Pearcy will be holding an MISD Matching Annuity Workshop. He plans to go over the current plan for new and existing MISD staff. The workshop will be held at Pearcy's office, 2020 W. Cuthbert — just across from the football stadium.

Seating is limited. Those interested in attending are asked to call 683-1516 for a reservation.

Van Pearcy goes over MISD's Matching Annuity Plan for new teachers during his annual workshop. For 1992, the workshop will be held from 5 to 5:25 p.m. Sept. 21 through 24. Those wishing to attend should call 683-1516.

Imperial Flag introduces bright, new, exciting merchandise

Imperial Flag & Banner is introducing shirts custom-made from acutual flags, a huge assortment of bandanas, decorative collectibles and lots more new merchandise.

Imperial Flag & Banner owner George Leach is very proud to announce he's offering all manner of bright, new merchandise. One of the items lots of Midlander's are sure to be excited about are flag shirts. That's right, terrific shirts made from actual state flags. Choose a flag from any state or country you like and Imperial Flag can custom produce a stylish, finely-crafted, weather-proof overshirt from it. And the price is right, too. These shirts star at only $50.

Also new to Imperial Flag & Banner is a collection of bandanas. They come in practically any color or combinations of colors and motifs you could possibly imagine. Drop by and have a look. Bandanas start at $2.50.

Imperial Flag is also introducing hand-crafted collectibles. They come in mixed and multi-media and are perfect decorator accents for home or office. They start at only $19.95.

Don't forget to look for new a line of T-shirts and jackets that can be embroidered with individual logos. In fact, Imperial Flag just delivered 61 of them to Channel 7 — all emblazoned with the "Big 7" logo.

And that's not all. Imperial Flag is now introducing a line of Afro-American and Mexican Fiesta banners.

Of course, Imperial Flag & Banner has long been know for its superior selection of quality-made flags and flag accessories. Including Halyard rope in a variety of sizes, tassels, all sizes of poles. Also brackets, bases, snaps, balls and eagles (for outdoor poles). Then there are stars, crosses and other religious symbols for indoor poles.

History buffs will enjoy United States flags from the past, Texas flags, Confederate flags (up to 5-feet by 8-feet in stock) and others. Also license plate covers, patches, decals, stickers, lapel pins, balloons, belt buckles and buttons.

Those with large indoor flags for church or school auditoriums can look to Imperial Flag & Banner for a custom base. Impressive wooden bases are also available to display a complete set of miniature United Nations flags, a United States flag set or a set of flags representing the Organization of American States.

To promote special events such as garage sales and grand openings, Imperial Flag & Banner has attention-getting pennants in a variety of colors, including metallic and safety-glo. These come in lengths of 100, 60 and 30 feet. They also stock sturdy nylon 3-foot by 5-foot blank flags in just about any color imaginable.

Imperial Flag & Banner can manufacture custom flags and banners with company logos and elementary school names. Custom embroidery and applique is done on the premises. Professional-quality kites and windsocks are also in stock.

Quality and friendly, hometown service are Imperial Flag & Banner trademarks. Permian Basin residents know to turn to owner George Leach for dependable service after the sale. After all, considering the severe wind conditions in West Texas, most any flag will eventually become torn or frayed. Imperial Flag & Banner can repair holes and tears, replace grommets and even flag poles and ropes.

Imperial Flag & Banner honors Visa and MasterCard. It is located at 1613 S. Main St. in Midland. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 682-3562 for more information.

New director makes mark on museum

■ McNay Art Museum changes course.

By Dan R. Goddard
Associated Press writer

SAN ANTONIO — After a year at the McNay Art Museum, new director William Chiego is putting his stamp on the private San Antonio institution in many ways.

Chiego, who in August 1991 succeeded the McNay's only director for the past 35 years, John Palmer Leeper, has given the museum a new look.

He's hired seven new staff members including a curator of education, a public relations director and a chief of security.

"Things seemed to move pretty slowly for the first six to eight months I was here," Chiego said. "But things are definitely picking up. We're going to have an exciting fall. I've tried to bring in people with both national museum experience and people with a knowledge of the community. I think we've made a lot of progress."

This fall the McNay will begin construction of a $2 million auditorium that Chiego said will enable the museum to greatly expand its education programs, particularly for adults.

And a new gift shop is being installed on the ground floor of the Southwest Gallery area.

For the first time, reflecting the economic slump, the McNay will charge admission for a major exhibit: "Duncan Phillips Collects: Paris Between Wars," which opened Sunday. General admission will remain free and members will get into the exhibit free, but the McNay's reputation as a doggedly private museum that never applied for grants is changing.

Another first, the McNay will have a major touring exhibit of theater design to complement the outstanding Tobin Collection.

Opening Dec. 6 at the McNay, "Theater in Revolution: Russian Avant-Garde Stage Design, 1913-1935" and has been highly lauded in San Francisco and New York.

New staff members include education curator Rose Glennon from the Toledo Museum of Art in Ohio, security chief Douglas Emery from the Armand Hammer Museum of Art in Los Angeles and development assistant Michele Callahan from the Children's Museum in Austin.

Judson Taylor, who worked for the Atkins Agency, is the new public relations director; and Heather Hornbuckle, formerly a merchandise manager at Kathleen Sommers Inc., is the acting collections manager. Lyle Williams, from the University of Texas, has recently been hired as the assistant curator of prints and drawings — which represented about 60 percent of the McNay's collections.

'I've tried to bring in people with both national museum experience and people with a knowledge of the community. I think we've made a lot of progress.' — William Chiego

Liz Davis, who has worked for craftsman James Avery, will operate the new gift shop, which will open at the same time as "Duncan Phillips Collects." Along with T-shirts, postcards and reproductions of famous works of art, the shop will stock fine art books and catalogs that have been hard to find in San Antonio.

"Any museum shop should serve as an educational arm of the collections," Chiego said. "Our shop will buy or create items to sell that support our exhibitions and the permanent collection."

Chiego, who came to San Antonio from Oberlin, Ohio, where he was director of the Allen Memorial Art Museum at Oberlin College, himself has assumed most of the responsibilities of chief curator. The McNay and its grounds have undergone a thorough sprucing up; the fish ponds have been cleaned for the first time in memory. Inside, Chiego has spiffed up the galleries and reinstalled the permanent collection to offer new insights and relationships.

For example, one of Chiego's most popular mini-exhibits features several outstanding floral still lifes in one of the museum's upstairs galleries. Besides masterworks by Pierre Renoir and Edouard Manet, there's a contemporary still life by Jane Frellicher. All are from the permanent collection, but Chiego's "fun summer show" offers new ways of seeing these familiar paintings.

He's also dismantled the regional gallery that featured Texas artists and is displaying the work in context with the rest of the permanent collection. San Antonio artists such as Reginald Rowe and Robert Wilson are now being displayed with the like of Larry Rivers.

"It is pointless to view (regional paintings and sculpture) in a vacuum or quarantined to one area, as if they are really different from the art produced elsewhere in the United States or abroad. These Texas artist are best understood in the context of their contemporaries elsewhere rather than segregated in a separate gallery," Chiego said.

Chiego is also stressing the link between folk art and modern art. He connects one of the most important paintings in the museum's collection, Marsden Hartley's "Portrait Arrangement," with German folk painting, one of the artist's earliest influences. Hartley also traveled to New Mexico and absorbed the lessons of Mexican folk art, represented by a retablo of Our Lady of Guadalupe by Rafael Aragon.

The museum's founder, Marion Koogler McNay, had a large collection of santos and native American decorative arts in addition to her European masterpieces, but folk art has always taken a back seat to fine art at the McNay.

"Mrs. McNay loved bold color and form, a thread that connects such diverse objects as Raoul Dufy's 'Golfe Juan,' Diego Rivera's 'Delfina Flores' and the vivid retablos and bultos of the Southwest," Chiego said. "We live in a multicultural city, and the McNay can use its collections to show the connections between cultures."

Construction will begin by November on the Blanche and John Leeper Auditorium, a 300-seat facility that should be completed by September 1993.

Most of the $2 million construction cost was raised during the museum's capital campaign in 1986.

Conservation, both of the museum and its collections, is another major concern of Chiego's. The McNay, in a major change of policy, applied for and received an $8,000 grant from the National Endownment for the Arts to remat and reframe works on paper in the McNay's collection. This fall, the McNay will undergo a survey by the Baltimore firm Art Conservation and Technical Services.

DEAR ABBY

Women tell of losing their breasts and finding their self-esteem

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to share my experience with "Inhibited and Embarrassed," who lost a breast to cancer.

Van Buren

I am a 41-year-old divorced mother of four — I am also a grandmother. I, too, had a radical mastectomy (last year), have undergone six months of chemotherapy and am facing a bone marrow transplant and radiation.

Abby, I lost all of my hair — including my eyelashes. Needless to say, I was not a very pretty sight.

I have been dating a handsome, successful, 41-year-old bachelor for two years, and he never once made me feel that I was ugly or repulsive. I can tell by his touch that he still finds me attractive — and even sexy.

Yes, there are men out there who see beyond physical perfection and will love you for what you are — inside and out. I hope you find one of them. — LUCKY AND LOVED IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: By my 47th birthday, I had had a double mastectomy. There were only two things my surgery prevented me from doing: (1) becoming a topless dancer and (2) a nursing mother. I should add, neither would have been likely regardless of the surgery.

What I didn't realize, however, was that for many years I subconsciously remained in a marriage that was increasingly unsatisfying and hopeless. It was the fear of being alone that made me settle for this kind of marriage.

Finally, the situation got so bad that I took action and divorced. I am here to tell "Inhibited and Embarrassed" that I was amazed to find that I had many dates and one relationship before meeting and marrying a wonderful man. (We just celebrated our 10th anniversary.)

A real man is interested in the person the woman is. If all he wants is a pair of "boobs," what kind of woman would be interested in him?

When I asked my husband if he thought I should have reconstructive surgery, he replied, "Please don't do it for me — I love you just the way you are."

I'm age 63 and "breastless," but he makes me feel more like a beautiful, sexy woman than I ever have before. — TOPLESS WINNER IN CINCY

DEAR ABBY: I had a mastectomy at age 38, and thanks to modern plastic surgery, I look better now than I did at 18!

I had a reconstructive surgery on my left breast, and an uplift on the other one. The results have done wonders for my morale. The surgeon used a saline solution implant, so there is no reason to worry about leakage.

If "Inhibited and Embarrassed" hesitates to date because of fear of rejection, she should consider reconstructive surgery. She could very well end up looking better and feeling better than before. I did. — SHEILA B. IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: To "Inhibited and Embarrassed," who was worried about the effect her radical mastectomy would have on suitors: You have the greatest built-in screening test a woman could ask for. After the man really gets to know you as a person, tell him. If he runs, you got rid of a real jerk, and it didn't take a divorce to do it. You may say "adios" to a lot of frogs, but you won't have any trouble recognizing a prince when he comes along.

Hang in there — not all men are looking for wet-nursing; some of us are grown up. — LARRY IN ANN ARBOR, MICH.

READERS: I'll share more of the letters I received on this sensitive topic tomorrow.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. AT WIT'S END

Get your head out of the sand and your body in for a checkup

By Erma Bombeck

On Thursday, April 23, I checked my calendar to find two notations: Andy's birthday present (my son) and teeth cleaned: 2 p.m. I crossed off both of them and penciled in, "Modified-radical mastectomy: 12:30 p.m."

Bombeck

I was home by 10 a.m. April 25 — cancer-free, with a 95 percent chance of staying that way.

Talking about my cancer is not something I want to make a career out of. You would never be reading this column were it not for the fact that I attended a cancer benefit luncheon (before my surgery) where a woman confessed to having a lump on her breast, but was terrified to find out whether or not it was malignant.

We all know about fear. We know it lives within all of us. We know it doesn't listen to reason, paralyzes your ability to think and expands upon command. We know it's contagious and can be spread from one person to another without physical contact.

I had a great advantage. Three years ago I wrote "I Want to Grow Hair, I Want to Grow Up, I Want to Go to Boise," a book on children surviving cancer. For a couple of years, I walked in their world with a notebook and a tape recorder. I wrote down what they told me, but their courage and their optimism unnerved me, and I knew if I were faced with what they had, I couldn't do it.

I was wrong. The voices of those little people sustained me. "Don't get so comfortable dying that you forget to live." "Would you be happier if we cried all the time?" "If you don't have humor, you won't survive. It'll bother people, but use it anyway."

They were right about that. It's people on the outside who have problems with cancer. Some can't even use the word. A friend called and said, "I hope that cancer mess is all cleaned up and behind you." I broke up. "It's not an oil spill, for crying out loud."

Because I am limited by space in a newspaper, I set down in story form some raw, unexpected feelings I had just after the surgery. It is scheduled to appear on the pages of Redbook magazine in the October issue. It should come as a surprise to no one that the humor that has sustained me all these years through marriage and raising kids kicked in. Call it black humor. Call it anything you want, but it got my family and me through 20 miles of bad road.

My reason for going public is twofold. First, cancer is a reality that begs for perspective. A breast was not something I listed on my resume, and I defy any reader to point out a column written since April 23 and say, "That one has a single-breasted feel to it." Second, don't kid around with your health. Get your head out of the sand and get a mammogram regularly. Early detection could save your life.

When I finally made my dental appointment, I said to Kay (a hygienist who recently had a double mastectomy), "Notice anything different about me?" She scrutinized me carefully and said, "New roots?"

Now, that's depressing.

MINNEAPOLIS — Ten unsigned NFL players on Monday asked a court to declare them total free agents in the wake of a jury verdict last week striking down the league's Plan B system.

The players, led by Philadelphia tight end Keith Jackson, claim the league is using the Plan B rules to restrict them from negotiating or signing with any other NFL clubs. Their request will be heard by Judge David Doty on Wednesday.

The players are D.J. Dolphins rally to beat Browns

■ Quarterback Dan Marino drives Miami 84 yards in 68 seconds to pull one out of the fire.

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — The Miami Dolphins gave hurricane-weary south Florida a welcome distraction Monday night, overcoming a furious Cleveland rally and beating the Browns 27-23 on Mark Higgs' 1-yard touchdown plunge with seven seconds left.

Dan Marino drove the Dolphins 84 yards in 68 seconds to the winning touchdown, setting it up with passes of 22 and 18 yards to Fred Banks. A roughing-the-passer penalty was tacked onto the first reception.

Higgs' touchdown, his second of the night, wrecked Cleveland's three-touchdown fourth quarter. The Browns, trailing 20-3 early in the quarter, came back to lead 23-20 on David Brandon's 32-yard fumble return and Bernie Kosar's touchdown passes to Michael Jackson and Mark Bavaro.

Bavaro, who missed all last season with a knee injury, caught the go-ahead pass on Kosar's dumpoff with 1:18 to play, setting the stage for Marino's heroics.

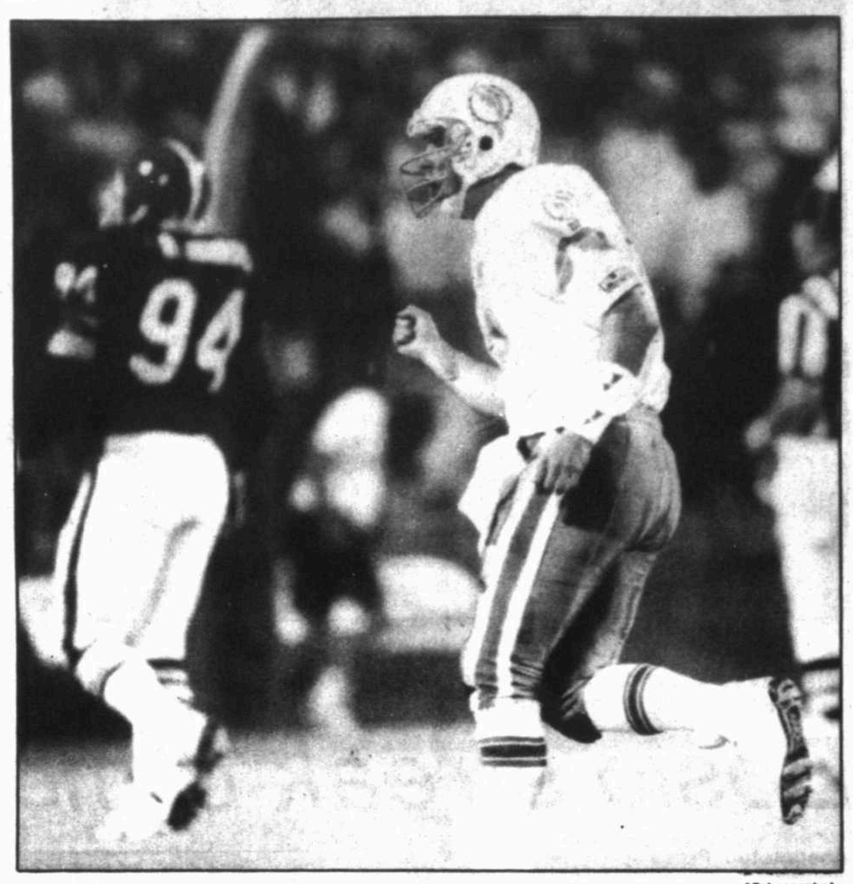

The Dolphins' scheduled opener against New England was postponed last week while south Florida struggled to recover from Hurricane Andrew, which ravaged the area south of Miami three weeks ago.

The extra week off didn't seem to bother Marino, who had used some of his free time to help his teammates distribute food and supplies to hurricane victims. He completed his first seven passes, including a perfect 25-yard scoring pass to Mark Duper and a 45-yard pass to Robert Clark that set up Higgs' 7-yard TD run.

Marino also passed 47 yards to Tony Martin in the third quarter, setting up the first of Pete Stoyanovich's two field goals.

Marino completed 25 of 35 passes for 322 yards, leaving him eight completions away from passing Johnny Unitas for

Heiting has 4-5A debut against Lee

■ The district team tennis season kicks off today with Bulldogs traveling to Lee at 4 p.m.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

Until this summer, Tom Heiting had spent the last 11 months of his life as a producer at KPEJ-TV in Odessa.

Then, Midland athletic director Jack Tayrien called offering Heiting the opportunity he had been awaiting for quite some time.

"I love tennis," Heiting said. "It's my life."

Today, his life will entail stepping onto the tennis court for the first time as a head coach, as his Midland High team visits Midland Lee to open District 4-5A team play. Action begins at 4 p.m. at the Rebel courts.

At just 23 years of age, Heiting was hired this summer by Tayrien to take over the MHS program after the resignation of Cindy Vogel.

His tennis background in these parts is established, something that should help the University of Iowa graduate in his first year on the job.

Heiting played tennis at Odessa Permian before his days as a junior college All-American at Midland College. Before his graduation from MC in 1989, Heiting was also a member of the Chaparrals' final men's national championship team in 1988-89.

Even with those impressive credentials, Heiting knows stepping into immediate success with Midland High is not inevitable.

"Right now, fundamentally they're average," Heiting said of the 1991-92 Bulldog netters, "but I think mentally, which is the main factor in tennis, everybody has got what it takes to make us a real good team."

The Bulldog boys are led by No. 1 player Kevin McIlvain, a sophomore who Heiting says has a future in tennis, and seniors Allan Neighbors and Tim Dodd.

On the girls team, leadership comes from seniors Shannah Burgen, Jennifer Burkett, Abby Geltemeyer and junior Bonnie Terrezas, who plays No. 1 singles.

"I think (my) age factor is a plus, since I can still associate with being in high school, and the pressure and work that comes with it that I understand."

It comes as no surprise that Heiting's role model is Joe Williams, former MC tennis coach who won numerous national coaching awards and was known for his strict but highly effective and successful coaching methods.

"Knowing what discipline is," Heiting said was what Williams stressed and what he himself will teach. "I use that as a motivational factor. If a player has control over his tennis game, they'll be a better person in the long run."

At Midland Lee, Steve Buck starts his third season as coach of the Rebels. Both his girls and boys started the season off with 3-0 records, but as always, the toughest play comes with the start of district play.

Although the Rebels were roughed up during a weekend tournament in Odessa, the playing experience will help.

"Coming in here with seven matches under us before we start district is different for us and gives us a much needed edge," Buck said.

The Rebels are loaded with sophomore girls and senior boys, although there are exceptions.

Matt Thompson, a senior, starts at No. 1 singles for Lee, while junior David Stark, the only non-senior in the Top 6, is the No. 2 singles player.

Fischer's chance of winning appears slim

Ten reasons why Bobby Fischer won't win his chess rematch with Boris Spassky:

10. Gets emotional about old love affair every time he moves the Queen.

9. Too many steroids at his age rots ability to think clearly.

8. Color blindness limits ability to judge between black, white.

7. Everytime Spassky moves, Fischer spits on him.

6. Thinks the term "check mate" is something sailors say after dinner.

5. Illegal bishop-castle move cost Fischer crucial 15 yards.

4. Infighting between pawns creates anarchy in Fischer camp.

3. Yugoslavians in audience constantly yelling Soviet version of "Two bits, four bits, six bits, a dollar ..."

2. Fischer's king suffered serious head injury after being slam dunked to win Game 5.

1. Admits he can't solve most "Wheel of Fortune" puzzles when only vowels are left.

It's always great to listen to the profound wisdom of college football announcers every fall. During last Saturday's Alabama-Vanderbilt game, the color analyst — who shall go nameless since his name escapes me, frankly — said that a certain player on the Alabama team was so smart that he thought he just may have a "photogenic memory."

Most irritating thing on CBS football coverage? The Coaches' Clicker. That stuff is great for coaches and players in the locker room. But for us couch potatoes trying to keep melted chesse dip from dripping onto our shirts while watching a game, it's useless stuff. As is John Madden. Sure he's knowledgable, but how many times this year are we going to have to look at people eating greasy barbeque off the tailgates of cars, and how many times do we have to hear Madden marvelling over a defensive linemen simply because the guy has blood on his pants?

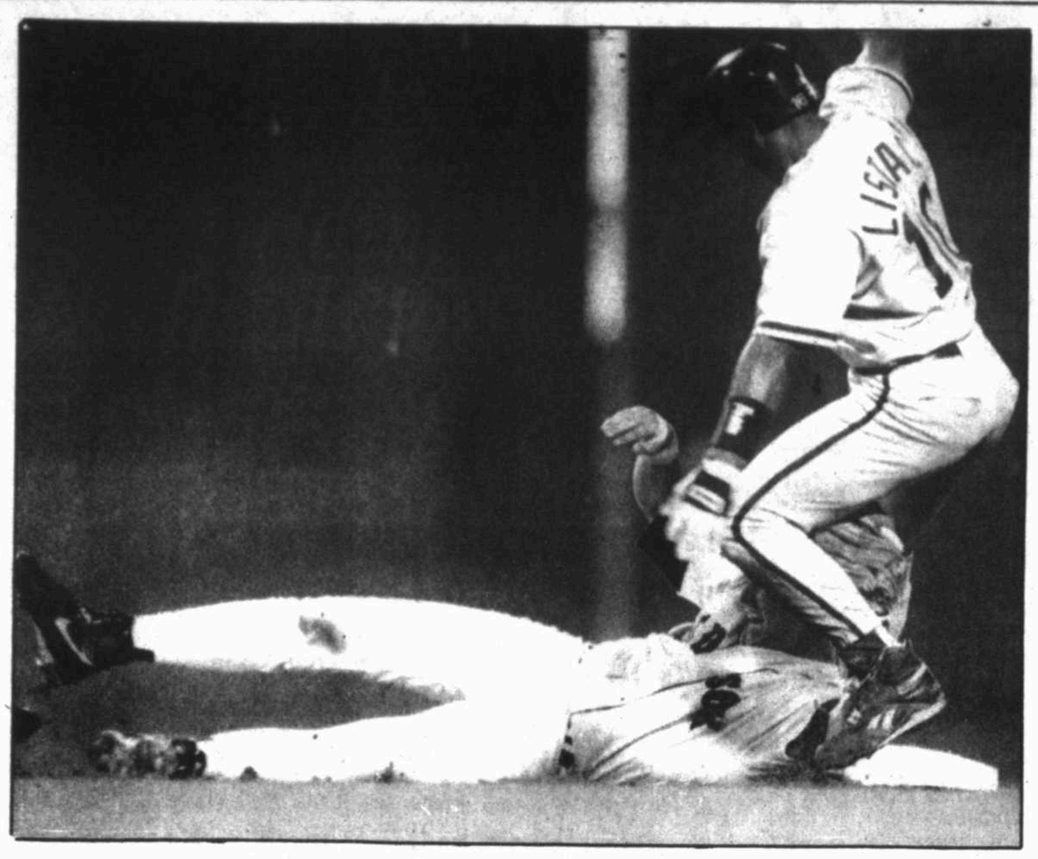

Jackie Sherrill pulled some pretty stupid stunts in his days as head coach at Texas A&M, but his latest motivational technique at Mississippi State — involving the castration of a bull in front of his team before the Bulldogs' game against the Texas Longhorns — was pathetic. In other words, something that could be fully expected from a guy like Jackie.

Swallowing worms and raw eggs are one thing, but Jackie's stunt — even though he insisted it was done for mainly "educational" reasons — was not only unecessary, but made little sense given Jackie's players seem as dumb as he is. He admitted when he asked his team what a steer was, no one could come up with the right answer. So why confuse the boys any further by castration for motivational purposes?

Just when you think Jackie has reached the pinnacle of his ignorance, he goes out and surprises us one more time.

Milwaukee's Pat Listach steals second base against the fallen Boston Red Sox' Tim Naehring during first inning action Monday night.

Bosio streak climbs

Associated Press

BOSTON — Chris Bosio tied a Brewers' record by winning his eighth consecutive decision, pitching four-hit ball for eight innings Monday night to lead Milwaukee over the Boston Red Sox 6-0.

Milwaukee's first four batters all singled off Danny Darwin (8-8), giving the Brewers a 2-0 lead. Greg Vaughn added a sacrifice fly in the first and a two-run homer in the sixth as the third-place Brewers closed within five games of AL East-leading Toronto.

Bosio (14-5) is unbeaten in 12 starts since July 9. He struck out three, walked none, didn't give up an extra-base hit and didn't allow a runner past first. He threw just 71 pitches — 52 for strikes — as he matched the club record for consecutive victories shared by Mike Caldwell, Pete Vuckovich and Moose Haas.

Dwayne Henry finished with a perfect ninth. Robin Yount had three hits, raising his career total to 3,004. Milwaukee won its third straight, while last-place Boston lost for the fifth time in six games.

Darwin gave up all six runs and 10 hits in seven innings, struck out four and walked one.

Orioles 2, Royals 1

BALTIMORE — Cal Ripken ended his 73-game homerless streak as Baltimore beat Kansas City and closed within four games of first-place Toronto.

Rick Sutcliffe allowed two hits in 7⅓ innings and Brady Anderson also homered for the Orioles, who won for only the second time in eight games. Baltimore has scored only three runs in 28 innings.

Ripken, the defending AL MVP, entered the game in a 3-for-29 slump that had dropped his batting average to .239. But he went 3 for 3 off Rick Reed (2-7), including his first home run in 292 at-bats since June 23. The solo drive to center, his 11th of the season, gave Baltimore a 2-0 lead in the sixth.

Sutcliffe, who leads the majors with 33 starts, walked three and struck out three. He outpitched Reed, who gave up two runs and six hits in six innings. Reed has lost his last four decisions and has not won in 11 starts since July 6.

American League

Indians 2, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Jose Mesa pitched four-hit ball for 8⅔ innings as Cleveland beat Toronto, cutting the Blue Jays' lead in the AL East to four games over second-place Baltimore.

Glenallen Hill homered for the Indians, who beat David Cone (2-2) and matched their season high with their fifth consecutive consecutive victory.

Mesa (7-10) struck out four and walked one before Derek Lilliquist came in following a single by Johbn Olerud. After Candy Maldonado hit an RBI single that left runners on first and third, Steve Olin relieved and walked pinch-hitter Roberto Alomar, loading the bases. Olin then got pinch-hitter Rance Mulliniks — batting for just the second time this season — on a groundout for his 26th save.

The Indians, who also won five straight from Aug. 18-22, have won eight of 11 and are 32-23 since the All-Star break.

Cone (2-2) allowed five hits in eight innings, struck out eight and walked four.

White Sox 8, Yankees 6

NEW YORK — Lance Johnson tripled twice and drove in two runs as Chicago beat New York in a game interrupted by a bench-clearing incident in the eighth inning.

White Sox designated hittter George Bell thought reliever Greg Cadaret was throwing at him and took a few steps toward the mound as the benches and bullpens came onto the field.

Yankees batting coach Frank Howard, who stands 6-foot-8, walked to the plate and challenged Bell but the player was held off by teammates and order was then restored by the umpires.

Houston blanks Giants

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Willie Blair held San Francisco to an infield single over six innings to lead the Houston Astros to a 5-0 victory over the Giants on Monday night.

Blair (5-6) was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth after striking out seven and walking two. It was Blair's first win as a starter this season in five starts. Xavier Hernandez allowed three hits over the last three innings for his seventh save.

San Francisco rookie Kevin Rogers (0-1) gave up four runs on six hits in five-plus innings. He struck out five and walked one.

The Giants' only hit off Blair came when Darren Lewis beat out a slow roller to lead off the fourth. Lewis' roller was fielded by third baseman Ken Caminiti, whose throw barely missed getting Lewis.

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Jeff Bagwell hit his 14th home run of the season.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 4

ST. LOUIS — Pittsburgh victimized Lee Smith again, beating St: Louis and their relief ace 5-4 on Cecil Espy's RBI single in the 10th inning to take a four-game lead in the NL East.

The Pirates have beaten the Cardinals 11 straight times and 13 of 15 this season. They picked up a game on Montreal, which lost 6-2 to Philadelphia.

Smith (3-7) leads the league with 38 saves but is 0-3 in three games with two blown saves against Pittsburgh.

Alex Cole reached on a fielding error by second baseman Geronimo Pena with one out in the 10th and went to third on pinch-hitter Dave Clark's single. Espy followed with a single to right to give Doug Drabek his third straight victory.

Drabek (13-10) worked nine innings and gave up eight hits, striking out five and walking one. He's 3-1 against the Cardinals this season and has allowed eight earned runs in his last seven starts at Busch Stadium, covering 56 innings.

National League

Phillies 6, Expos 2

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia damaged Montreal's NL East title hopes as rookie Braulio Castillo's first major league homer, a three-run shot, led the Phillies over the Expos.

Montreal began the game three games behind first-place Pittsburgh, which played at St. Louis after losing two of three to the Phillies over the weekend while the Expos swept the New York Mets in Montreal.

Expos starter Brian Barnes (6-6) had a perfect game and a 2-0 lead until the bottom of the fifth when Dave Hollins opened with an infield single and Darren Daulton walked. Castillo, who entered the game in the second inning after Stan Javier left due to tightness in his back, then homered to left field.

Philadelphia's Tommy Greene (3-1), making his second start since coming off the disabled list, allowed two runs on seven hits in six innings to earn the victory. He struck out three and walked one.

Mike Hartley pitched one scoreless inning and Keith Sheperd worked the last two for his first major league save.

Mets 10, Cubs 8

CHICAGO — Charlie O'Brien's three-run double with two outs in the top of the ninth gave New York a victory over Chicago.

Chris Donnels opened the ninth with a double off Bob Scanlan. Chuck McElroy (4-7) stuck out pinch-hitter Vince Coleman, but walked Eddie Murray. Pinch-hitter Kevin Bass got credit for a single when right fielder Andre Dawson misplayed his fly ball, loading the bases.

Robinson replaced McElroy and struck out Jeff Kent. But O'Brien, a .194 hitter, ripped the first pitch he saw up the gap to clear the bases.

fourth place on the all-time completion list.

Despite the loss, the fourth quarter marked an encouraging turnaround for a Cleveland offense that had allowed 11 sacks in a 14-3 loss at Indianapolis last week.

Kosar completed 19 of 28 passes for 230 yards and was sacked twice — on consecutive plays that stalled a drive to the Miami 30 in the second quarter. His 60-yard pass to Jackson set up Cleveland's first touchdown of the season, Jackson's 6-yard catch midway through the fourth quarter, and got the Browns back in the game.

Miami's final drive was aided by the knowledge that a field goal would tie the game, because Matt Stover missed the extra point following Bavaro's touchdown.

The Dolphins lost punter Reggie Roby in the second quarter when he twisted his left knee while helping out on punt coverage. Stoyanovich filled in the rest of the way, punting twice for a 45-yard average.

Higgs rushed the ball 25 times for 90 yards. Rookie Tommy Vardell led Cleveland's ground game with 16 carries for 84 yards.

Miami Says
"We Will Rebuild."
Will You Help?

In the early morning hours of Monday, August 24, Hurricane Andrew devastated a huge swath of Dade County, Florida, in the region just south of Miami.

The catastrophic result: 63,000 homes destroyed, close to 300,000 left homeless, losses of more than $20 billion.

It was the costliest natural disaster in American history.

Now, the people of Miami and Dade County are digging out, caring for each other, rebuilding their shattered community.

It will be a Herculean effort. No American community has ever faced physical destruction on such an epic scale. And we are determined to build a better, more just and promising community than before, not just restore the world that Andrew's ferocious winds swept away.

The civic and business leaders of Miami and Dade County have come together to get this job done. We have formed a new organization called WE WILL REBUILD, led by many of our most committed citizens, drawn from all sectors of our wonderfully diverse community.

This broad-based effort has the full and active support of President George Bush, Governor Lawton Chiles and many, many Miamians dedicated to binding the wounds of today and building a better tomorrow for all our citizens.

WE WILL REBUILD needs your help. Now.

Don't expect Switzer or Ford to be at Arkansas

By Harry King
AP Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK — All you folks who are playing "Name the Coach" need to put a muzzle on it.

Understand, the job is Joe Kines' to win or lose.

Hours after Jack Crowe was fired and Kines was named interim head coach, the guessing began.

One caller from South Carolina breathlessly reported that Danny Ford was in line for the job. A couple of guys piled in a golf cart and bolted for No. 6 tee to meet some media members — they wanted to make certain that Athletic Director Frank Broyles knew how to reach former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer.

Last week, Switzer said he wasn't interested in Arkansas. The flip side is that Arkansas, uh, Broyles, is not interested in Switzer. Nor is he interested in Ford, who was fired at Clemson.

Sports Analysis

Back to Kines, the longtime assistant who got his chance because of the Razorbacks' 10-3 loss to The Citadel of Division I-AA.

Word is that Broyles likes Kines because he's a holler-guy motivator. In fact, if Kines fails as head coach, he could remain on the staff as defensive coordinator.

There is no win quota for Kines; it's not as if he keeps the job at 6-5 and loses it at 5-6. Perception will play a big part — is the team making progress, are the players motivated, are they competitive in the Southeastern Conference, does the style excite the fans and sell tickets?

That decision is probably weeks away.

In the first place, few people expect Arkansas to beat Alabama this week and most people expect Arkansas to beat Memphis State the following week. It could be the Georgia-Tennessee-Ole Miss-Auburn October — even later — before Broyles decides Kines' fate.

For the sake of argument, say that Kines is out. Where does Broyles go?

He won't be able to hire what the fans perceive as current top 10 coaches, guys like Dennis Erickson at Miami, Don James at Washington, Bobby Bowden of Florida State, Steve Spurrier of Florida and R.C. Slocum at Texas A&M.

That doesn't mean he won't hire a future top 10 coach.

Think back. Who would have thought about Lou Holtz in 1976? He was 60-21-2 in seven years.

About the only reason Arkansas fans were aware of Ken Hatfield's success at Air Force was because of his Arkansas background. He was 55-17-1 in six years.

Did the guy-on-the-street have a clue about Creighton or a coach named Eddie Sutton when Broyles named him to build the basketball program in 1974?

Most likely, Broyles has started talking to a select group of people whose opinion he respects. And, he's probably compiled a short list of prospects.

If Kines doesn't get it done, look for Broyles to act quickly. The Razorbacks end the season Nov. 27 and he probably would have a replacement on board by Dec. 1.

If that happens, the new man is likely to be a relatively unknown, certainly somebody from a winning program, somebody who is untainted by scandal.

For now, though, Kines has the best winning percentage in college football.

'VINcredible' Bucs no longer NFL joke

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers awakened to headlines Monday that heretofore would have been considered cruel jokes on the NFL's least successful team of the past decade.

One proclaimed "VINcredible!" Another read "First-place Bucs."

Sunday's 31-3 victory over the Green Bay Packers, directed by a near flawless Vinny Testaverde, left the unbeaten Bucs (2-0) alone atop the NFC Central for the first time since 1981.

The team is off to its best start in 12 years under new coach Sam Wyche and is brimming with confidence after outscoring its opponents 54-10 and getting two solid performances from Testaverde.

The Bucs much-maligned quarterback is 36 of 50 for 530 yards and three touchdowns. But what's surprising is the sixth-year pro with a reputation for making crucial mistakes hasn't thrown an interception or lost a fumble.

Testaverde was so good against the Packers that he briefly owned the NFL single-game completion percentage record (hitting 21 of his first 23 attempts, 91.3 percent) before losing the mark trying to make one more big play.

He finished 22 of 25 (88 percent), which is a team record but a shade behind Kenny Anderson's 18-year-old NFL mark of 20 of 22 (90.9 percent).

"I messed him up right there," Wyche said. "I actually knew — I hate to even admit this — I knew that he'd set an NFL record. ... He broke Kenny Anderson's record, and nothing would please me more than to break Kenny Anderson's record. He's a close friend of mine.

"But we had a chance to go deep on what we thought was about blitz time. We called a blitz pass and Courtney Hawkins was tripped up. I think you could've argued it might have been interference."

Oilers see happy ending

HOUSTON (AP) — A week of unrest and change had a happy ending for the Houston Oilers.

"When you're still making roster moves on Saturday morning, it's very disruptive," coach Jack Pardee said Monday, breathing a sigh of relief at his team's 20-10 victory over Indianapolis on Sunday.

"That would have been fine if it was a preseason game. Now that we've got the squad set, we're ready to improve and become the kind of team we can be."

The Oilers started the week red-faced after a 29-20 loss to Pittsburgh. It got complicated when holdout veterans Cris Dishman and William Fuller signed their contracts and Sean Jones reversed his retirement.

The final decision came on Saturday when Pardee waived cornerback Richard Johnson and defensive end Willie Peguese, both starters against Pittsburgh, to make room for the newcomers.

"We had a lot of turmoil during the week and with the roster changes, we were lucky to have the big plays that we did," Pardee said. "We'll have to play better against Kansas City if we expect to win."

The Oilers big-play man, Warren Moon, recovered from his five interceptions against the Steelers by completing 29 of 39 with two touchdowns. Curtis Duncan caught eight passes for 94 yards, his second straight eight-catch game.

Fuller, Dishman and Jones all contributed to the victory.

"Do I think training camp is overrated? Yes I do," Jones said. "I just kept it simple for myself. I didn't try to know what they were going to do. I tried to know what they weren't going to do."

Ashe condition is unchanged

NEW YORK (AP) — The condition of former tennis great Arthur Ashe, hospitalized after a heart attack, remained unchanged Monday and there was no word on when he might be released, a spokeswoman for New York Hospital said.

"Arthur Ashe remains in stable condition and is resting comfortably," Myrna Manners, the hospital's assistant director for public affairs, said.

Ashe, 49, was admitted last Thursday after suffering what doctors called a minor coronary.

The Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientists will meet Wednesday at the Midland Country Club beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Charles Kerans of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texa at Austin. His topic will be "Integrated Characterization of San Andres and Grayburg Reservoirs: Insights From Outcrop Studies."

Dollar climbs

NEW YORK — The dollar climbed Monday against most major currencies after Germany lowered its high interest rates that had sent the dollar to historic lows in recent weeks.

Though the dollar gained strength on the German move, it retreated a bit by the end of the trading day in New York. Some currency traders said the dollar's initial response may have been an overreaction.

In New York, the dollar was quoted at 1.4845 German marks, up from 1.4485 Friday.

In New York, the dollar was quoted at 124.30 Japanese yen, up from 124.25 late Friday.

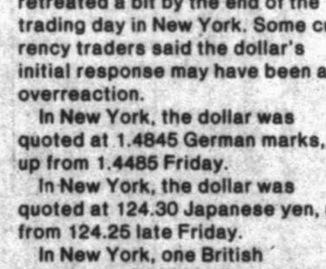

In New York, one British pound cost $1.8935, cheaper than $1.9225 late Friday.

Other dollar rates in New York compared with late rates Friday included: 1.3145 Swiss francs, up from 1.2875; 5.0310 French francs, up from 4.9270; 1,177 Italian lire, up from 1,108.50; and 1.21315 Canadian dollars, down from 1.21585.

T-bills fall

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest levels in nearly 30 years.

The Treasury Department sold $10.6 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 2.89 percent, down from 2.91 percent last week.

German cuts prompt worldwide rally

Investors seize small reduction of interest rates as cause for optimism

N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — Germany's powerful central bank cut its high interest rates slightly Monday — less than many political leaders and economists had hoped — but even the small cut was enough to provoke a strong worldwide rally in stocks.

The modest cuts, a half-point in one rate and a quarter-point in another, were the Bundesbank's first in five years and seemed as much a nod to the French vote Sunday on the treaty on European unity as a change in Germany's long-term strategy.

Because the high German interest rates have drawn off money from other countries and stifled business investment, even the small step Monday was seized on by investors as cause for optimism — that rates might come down more but certainly would not go higher.

After the announcement, the German stock market rose 4.4 percent, and the French, Belgian and Italian markets gained more than 3.5 percent each. In the United States, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 70.52 points, or 2.13 percent. Bonds and the dollar also rallied in world markets.

But the gains Monday and the optimism surrounding them would almost certainly evaporate if the French reject the unification treaty.

And even with the cuts, German rates remain high. The Lombard rate, the Bundesbank's ceiling on short-term rates, was cut to 9.5 percent from 9.75 percent; the discount rate, at which commercial banks borrow from the central bank, was cut to 8.25 percent from 8.75 percent.

These cuts by themselves are not sufficient to jumpstart the economies of Europe or the United States, economists said. Rather, they said, it will take a series of interest-rate reductions, in Germany and in other nations, at a time when most governments are grappling with large fiscal deficits as well as their monetary problems.

But the symbolism seemed as important as the actual size of the cuts. The Bundesbank is famed for its tight-fisted, anti-inflationary policies and its independence from political pressures, and it has been willing to hold German interest rates at high levels with no regard for the effect on its fellow members of the European Community and the rest of the world economy.

The high German rates had been blamed for snuffing out any chance of economic recovery in Europe by forcing other nations to keep their rates high to defend the value of their currencies. Even the modest drop in German rates gives other nations more flexibility to lower their own rates, or at least avert an increase.

In the United States, for example, the Federal Reserve might feel it has the freedom to nudge the already low interest rates lower, hoping to stimulate the economy.

Because lower rates improve the outlook for economic recovery, they foster optimism among investors, rallying the stock markets.

Report: Four bankers seek First City buy

HOUSTON (AP) — Four prominent community bankers are among a group interested in bidding for some of First City Bancorporation of Texas' banks under its recapitalization plan, according to published reports.

The group has submitted a preliminary proposal to First City, indicating an interest in bidding for some of the banks, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday. The proposal is necessary to gain access to detailed financial and loan records at the banks.

The Chronicle quoted sources as saying the group includes Don Adam, owner of First American Bank and AmWest Savings Association in Bryan; Jerry Finger, chairman and chief executive of Charter Bancshares in Houston; D. Kent Anderson, chairman and chief executive of Post Oak Bank in Houston and owner of American Capital Corp. of Centerville; and William McNinch, chairman and chief executive of Community Bank in Kirbyville.

None of the four men has confirmed his involvement in the deal, but Adam earlier last week praised First City's banks.

Winn-Dixie chain to lower prices

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Winn-Dixie Stores announced Monday that it has lowered prices on more than 1,000 health and beauty-care products at its 1,185 stores.

Winn-Dixie lowered prices after cutting expenses and realizing buying efficiencies, said James Kufeldt, president of the Jacksonville-based supermarket chain.

"This is a significant step in our mission to continually lower our prices and to provide convenient, one-stop shopping for customers," Kufeldt said.

Mickey Clerc, vice president and director of advertising, said the price reductions will vary throughout the 12 divisions of the company.

"We don't disclose our cost figures," Clerc said. "Our intent is to have the lowest price."

In April, Winn-Dixie cut prices on several thousand grocery items.

Economists expect Clinton victory, study finds

DALLAS (AP) — Many of the nation's economists expect Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton to win the presidency, despite what they consider better economic proposals promised by President Bush, according to a study released Monday.

A survey of 243 members of the National Association of Business Economists shows 67 percent expect a Clinton victory and 33 percent expect Bush to win re-election.

But 60 percent of those surveyed said they believe Bush's economic policy proposals are better for the economy.

The NABE, convening in Dallas this week for its annual meeting, released the annual political and economic survey Monday.

"Our members feel by a 2-to-1 margin that Clinton would win the election," said Joseph W. Duncan, NABE president-elect.

On the economic side, the group said the median forecast of the 49 professional forecasters surveyed in late August projects the gross domestic product will expand by just 1.8 percent this year.

The new projection was down from a 2 percent GDP growth forecast in a survey last May. The GDP is the total output of goods and services produced in the United States and the broadest measure of the nation's economic health.

Economic growth slowed to a 1.4 percent annual rate during the April-June quarter, less than half of the 2.9 percent rate in the previous three months. Many analysts believe the economy remains stagnant during the current quarter.

But despite the slackening pace, the NABE forecasters don't see the economy coming to a complete stop.

"While the consensus for growth has moderated, it does not call for a recession," said Duncan, vice president and corporate economist for The Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

The latest survey found that the forecasters believe the economy will expand by 2.7 percent in 1993, down from 3 percent in the May poll.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Some banks use smoke, mirror 'FDIC adjusting'

By Bill Doyle

Q: I read the newspaper article in which two consumer advocates were quoted as calling credit life insurance a "rip-off." Well, when I make a deposit in a savings account, part of my money doesn't draw interest but is used to buy life insurance, health insurance and other things for the bankers.

Doyle

What is the difference, except I don't have a choice?

A: Not much. The banking situation you cite can also be termed a rip-off. It's called "reserve adjusting" or "FDIC adjusting."

Some banks do not pay interest on a portion of your account equal to the reserve they are required to set aside, either as cash in their vaults or as non-interest-paying deposits with their district Federal Reserve Bank.

Some other banks do not pay interest on a portion of your account equal to the premium they must pay to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Both of these things cost banks money. To compensate for those costs, a fairly large number of banks do what you complain about, thereby reducing the actual interest you receive.

Those banks would be far more straightforward if they simply lowered the stated rate of interest, without going through the smoke and mirrors of reserve or FDIC adjusting.

Many banks do just that. See, you do have a choice. You can shop around at different banks.

Credit life insurance is another story. Consumers often buy those policies when obtaining mortgages or when purchasing autos or other things on credit. Such a policy pays off the debt if the consumer dies. The rap against credit life insurance is that it's terribly expensive. People going into debt and wanting to protect their families would be far wiser to buy less-expensive term life insurance.

Q: I opened a 10-year, 8.25 percent certificate of deposit in 1989. For 1991, the bank gave me $8 less interest than I received in 1990.

They said the reason was they have a "new system." But I thought they had to honor a contract once it was made. I couldn't shorten the CD's term to, say, nine years and six months without paying a penalty. So, how can they do this?

A: They can't. At least, they shouldn't be able to.

You are correct about that CD being a contract — between you and the bank. You agreed to leave your money on deposit for 10 years; the bank agreed to pay you a fixed rate of interest for every day of that time. Neither you nor the bank has the right to alter the contract's provisions.

The "new system" dodge doesn't hold water. The bankers, no doubt, were referring to a spanking new computer system. It's amazing how many errors are blamed on computers nowadays.

Tell the bankers to credit the $8 missing interest to your CD, as of the date it should have been credited. If you get no results, complain to your state banking authority if it is a state-chartered bank or to the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency if it is a nationally chartered bank.

Q: Interest from my CD is supposed to be transferred to my checking account at the same bank on the 24th of each month. I arranged it that way so I can use the money.

In the seven months I have had the CD, the interest transfer has been one, two or three days late every month, for a total of 14 days.

Am I wrong in being unhappy?

A: Not at all. The bank is wrong for not living up to its agreement. If you wrote a check in anticipation of CD interest reaching your checking account, only to have that check bounce, you could have been terribly embarrassed.

It's past time for you to say some strong words to your not so friendly bankers and even do some desk-pounding. If necessary, take your story to bank regulatory authorities, as mentioned in this column's previous answer.

U.N. votes to send more peacekeepers to Bosnia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council voted Monday to send up to 5,300 more U.N. peacekeepers to Bosnia-Herzegovina to protect humanitarian aid convoys and Muslims and Croats released from Serb-run detention camps.

The council voted 12-0 to accept a report from Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali recommending that the U.N. peacekeepers commanding convoys in Bosnia be allowed to use force if attacked or if their mission is blocked.

Disagreements among Britain, France and the United States killed a proposal to allow allied planes to bar Serbian warplanes from the skies above Bosnia. But Sir David Hannay, the British ambassador, said the no-fly issue would be the council's next order of business.

China, which abstained Monday night along with India and Zimbabwe, said that while supporting the resolution's goals, it could not vote in favor because it used language referring to Chapter 7 of the U.N. charter, which explicitly permits force.

"We are concerned that we run the risk of plunging into armed conflict," said Chinese Ambassador Li Daoyo.

Boutros-Ghali recommended that the current U.N. peacekeeping force in Bosnia be expanded from its current level of about 1,500 to as many as 7,500 troops, with the new troops coming from Europe and Canada.

The Europeans and Canadians have offered about 5,300 extra troops, which would bring the force to 6,800.

Italy has also offered about 1,200 troops to act in a support capacity from outside Bosnia.

Under the resolution, four or five infantry battalions will be stationed in Bosnia, in addition to two armored reconnaissance companies, two armored infantry companies, an engineering unit to clear roads and remove mines, missiles, bombs and shells, and support staff.

A committee of senior military officers from the troop-contributing companies will go to Zagreb shortly to meet with the top U.N. commander, Lt.-Gen. Satish Nambiar of India, to finalize plans for the new units.

In a departure from usual funding practices, the countries sending new troops — Britain, Canada, Spain, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Norway and Denmark — will pay their own share of the extra cost of the force.

That lifts a major expense off the United States, which under traditional peacekeeping funding guidelines would have paid about 31 percent of the cost of the mission.

The Europeans offered to pay their way to avoid time-consuming delays customary when the Security Council tries to arrive at a budget for peacekeeping forces.

The council also authorized U.N. peacekeepers to protect 4,000 prisoners upon their release from Serb detention camps at Manjaca and Trnopolje in northern Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The International Committee of the Red Cross has expressed concern for the Muslim and Croat prisoners' safety upon release, so they are to be taken to transit facilities in Croatia.

A ban on Serbian flights over Bosnia is mentioned, but not demanded, in the resolution passed Monday night.

France, which had two French peacekeepers killed in combat last week, supports an aggressive policy under which allied planes could fly missions to defend convoys on the ground in Bosnia, and attack hostile artillery.

But Britain favors a looser aerial surveillance plan, under which allied planes would escort Serb warplanes out of Bosnian air space and use only defensive tactics.

The United States is divided, with the State Department favoring the air cover idea, but the Defense Department reluctant to become involved, according to council diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity. They said Washington had decided to let the Europeans resolve the issue.

The ban on flights would apply only to military aircraft, so it would be less restrictive than the two exclusion zones enforced over Iraq to protect the Kurds and Shiites from attacks by Saddam Hussein's forces.

The flight ban proposal was motivated by two incidents this month.

An airlift using Western air force planes to ferry humanitarian aid was suspended Sept. 3 after an Italian cargo plane was shot down while approaching Sarajevo.

Also, Croatia and the United States accused Serbia of using U.N. relief flights as cover for its fighters to fly into Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Officer: Iraqi jet downed Navy plane during gulf war

WASHINGTON (NYT) — An Iraqi warplane shot down a U.S. Navy fighter in the Persian Gulf War, a senior Navy intelligence officer says, contradicting Pentagon claims that no American aircraft were lost in aerial combat in the 43-day war.

Moreover, a Navy pilot, Cmdr. Mike Anderson, says that his request to superiors to attack the Iraqi plane before it fired on the Navy plane was denied because an American airborne surveillance plane did not detect the Iraqi aircraft.

In an article today on the Op-Ed page of The New York Times, the intelligence officer, Capt. Carlos Johnson, said "we were pretty sure at the beginning" that the Navy F/A-18, piloted by Lt. Cmdr. Michael S. Speicher, was shot down by an Iraqi MiG-25 on Jan. 17, 1991, at the beginning of the air war. Speicher was killed in the crash.

Johnson's remarks are quoted in the article by Mark Crispin Miller, professor of media studies at The Johns Hopkins University and the author of a coming book on the war.

The remarks contradict the official military record that American aircraft shot down 28 Iraqi warplanes, with no American losses in air-to-air duels. Thirty-eight American planes were lost from ground fire.

A spokesman for the U.S. Central Command, in Tampa, Fla., Capt. Bob Prucha of the Navy, said on Monday that he had no information to support Johnson's statement. Navy officials say there is still a division among senior military officials over whether the F/A-18 was destroyed by an Iraqi plane or ground missiles.

Since the end of the gulf war, the military has significantly revised the glowing performance records of weapons like the Patriot missile, leading to accusations that the Pentagon misled the public to support its war aims.

Much of what military briefers presented, particularly in the early days of the war, were preliminary estimates by field troops that could not be subjected to closer scrutiny until after the war.

U.S., Israel work on military deal

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The United States and Israel are negotiating a major military cooperation package that would help compensate Israel for the sale of top-of-the-line F-15 fighter aircraft to Saudi Arabia, Israeli and American officials said on Monday.

The package focuses on how to provide Israel with more access to American satellite intelligence and military equipment, especially high-technology items that would enable Israel to improve its own weaponry.

President Bush and the White House chief of staff, James A. Baker III, have been discussing the details by phone with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in the last two weeks, and on Friday Israel's ambassador, Zalman Shoval, and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney set up a framework for negotiating the deal.

If all of the strategic and military ideas being considered are actually put into effect the deal could greatly enhance Israeli-American military cooperation and Israel's advantage over its Arab neighbors, the officials said. But each one of the areas under discussion is complicated, either because of Israel's financial limitations or American laws barring export of sensitive technology. As a result, no one is certain what the final shape of the arrangement will look like.

"Israel is in a period of shrinking defense budgets and so are we," a senior administration official said.

Such a deal would also serve the Bush administration's interest in appealing to Jewish voters in an election year, and administration officials made it clear that they hoped to tie up these new arrangements quickly.

At their meeting on Friday, Cheney and Shoval agreed to establish five negotiating committees, made up of technical experts from both countries, to work out the different aspects of the package, officials said.

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in addition to the regular monthly route profits. A $100 deposit is required. The route is in Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".
