Solons Ponder Civil Service Abuses Probe

WASHINGTON, April 3 — UP — Two Senate Republicans said Friday they might launch an investigation of "abuses" of the civil service system involved in former President Truman's reorganization of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Chairman Joseph R. McCarthy (Wis.) of the Government Operations commitee, and Frank Carlson, (Kan.), of the Civil Service committee, wanted to look into the congressionally - approved plan which put top-level jobs in the tax bureau under civil service.

Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.) told the Senate Thursday the plan had been a "dismal failure" in removing politics from the scandal-shaken bureau because it was used to provide lifetime jobs for "pet stooges." He asked that his complaint be referred to McCarthy's and Carlson's committees.

TIDELANDS

Full-scale Senate debate on the controversial tidelands bill will get underway next week after lawmakers return from their Easter recess. The intensity of the preliminary debate on the administration-backed bill indicated the arguments will be heated in the real battle next week.

TRADE

A drive by some high-tariff House Republicans to clamp new restrictions on the reciprocal trade slowed down Friday. The reason was President Eisenhower's statement he favors a one-year extension of the present trade agreements law. The existing law expires June 12.

VAN FLEET

Gen. James A. Van Fleet is "considering" the offer of a job as senior military adviser to the Senate Appropriations committee. Members of the committee expected his answer within a few days and believe he will accept. Van Fleet testified before the committee that there were serious and often "critical" shortages of ammunition while he was in Korea.

What'll I wear Sunday? Mom's out so I'll see what looks best on me for Easter.

Oh no, that's not for me. Looks slick on mother but it's strictly not my type.

Boy, wouldn't I wow 'em at school with this. I'm afraid, though, it's too sophisticated for little Mary Ellen.

Now that's for me. This dreamy little number has everything. I'll take this for my Easter bonnet.

PERENNIAL PROBLEM — Mom was out for a while so 9-year-old Mary Ellen Williams decided to try a few of mother's hats — maybe she could find something new for Easter. After all, it's quite a problem. After much shopping around, Mary Ellen finally came up with a fetching chapeau. Real cute, we'd say. Mary Ellen is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward S. Williams, 1204 Charles. (News Photo)

Full Tideland Talks Pending In Senate

WASHINGTON, April 3 —UP— Full-scale Senate debate on the administration-backed tidelands bill will get underway next week immediately after the lawmakers return from their Easter recess, GOP leaders said Friday.

Slowed by constant questioning by opponents, sponsors of the bill required two days this week for a section-by-section explanation of its terms.

The intensity of the preliminary sniping indicated the real battle will be a lulu when it breaks.

Sen. Spessard Holland (D-Fla.), chief Senate sponsor of the measure, will lead off the fight on Tuesday. He will be followed by Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.), an outspoken advocate of state ownership of the off-shore lands.

Thursday, the Senate ran into the complex problem of what will constitute the seaward boundaries of the coastal state if the measure becomes law.

Generally, the bill would put the seaward limits of the state at three miles. But it leaves the way open for individual states to fix their boundaries further out to sea if the claim was made at the time the state came into the Union or if Congress has approved it.

Under this provision, Texas and Florida claim their seaward boundaries extend 10-1-2 miles (three leagues) into the Gulf of Mexico.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) said he thought this provision in the bill would leave the way open for further conflict between some coastal states and the federal government. He wanted to know what would keep Texas from extending its boundary "70 or 80" miles into the Gulf.

Lions Ready For Finale

Pampa Lions Minstrel show cast was ready today to present the 1953 production finale at 8 p.m. in the Junior High School auditorium after a "most successful opening" Thursday, according to B.R. (Bunny) Shultz, director.

The 16th annual Lions Club "extravaganza" is a return to old-time minstrel style replete with the affable interlocutor (played by Shultz), six endmen, 60 - voice minstrel chorus, Dixie-land band, and singing, dancing, and specialty acts.

A capacity crowd saw the opening performance Thursday in the auditorium which, according to Ed Myatt, show business manager, seats approximately 1,250.

An annual event of the local Lions Club, proceeds from the show are used to finance the club's entire year's operation.

The organization contributes support to a number of charitable organizations, including the Lions' Crippled Children's Camp, only summer recreation camp in the southwest for handicapped youngsters.

Red Cross Leaders Sending Out Second Series Of Letters

E. B. Bowman, chairman of the 1953 Red Cross Fund drive, announced today second letters will be sent out to those persons who have not yet contributed in an attempt to add to a $7,000 total which is still approximately $5,000 short of the $12,30 goal.

The $7,000 figure is not a complete drive report, however, he reported as some business and residential districts' envelopes are not yet turned in and no report has been received of the Lefors campaign.

Mrs. F.W. Shotwell, Pampa Chapter Red Cross executive secretary, urged all districts with envelopes out to turn them into the office as soon as possible.

She expressed appreciation to all workers in the drive for their "active and interested support of the Red Cross."

Working in the residential areas of the campaign were 110 local women and active in the business and industrial solicitations were 63 Pampa men.

"We promise to put the money to the best use according to Red Cross procedure and policies," she said.

Of the money collected, 52 per cent will be remitted to national headquarters, she said. This is a raise from the 38:3 per cent turned in in 1952. The larger percentage required to go to national, Mrs. Shotwell explained, is based on a new rating of the Pampa Chapter in an industral area.

Easter Spell . . .

Cold Front Loses Punch

Clear skies and warmer weather were predicted for Pampa Easter Sunday as a cold front lost much of its punch in a sweep across Texas. No rain was forecast for this area over the week end.

The front which brought tornado warnings to Central Oklahoma and thunderstorms to parts of Texas Thursday night, passed the Fort Worth-Dallas area early today and was expected to reach the coast by nightfall.

United Press reported there still was a "possibility" of some scattered showers over parts of the state today and tonight, but the chance of their falling was diminishing.

The chilling weather front plunged the mercury below freezing for an overnight low of 28, a swift drop from the Thursday high of 79 degrees.

Temperatures dropped to a cold 25 degrees at Dalhart early Friday, and it was 31 at Amarillo. In contrast, the low at Laredo and Cotulla was 65, and Brownsville's low was 63.

Seasonal fog was scattered all along the Gulf Coast early Friday from Lafayette, La., to Brownsville, and San Antonio reported a light drizzle.

The front pushed through Central Oklahoma Friday night, causing the Oklahoma City weather bureau to issue severe storm warning, and said there was a possibility of one or two tornadoes over that area from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The Oklahoma City weather office said an observer at Lindsay, Okla., sighted a tornado funnel in the air late Thursday night, but it failed to touch the ground.

The forecast said cooler temperatures were expected for most of Texas Friday night, and called for a low of 28 degrees in the Panhandle, and freezing or slightly below readings in the upper portion of the South Plains area.

New Probe Into Canadian's Murder Case Moves To Pampa

Machine Shops Are Recognized

Texas Industrial Week observance went into its third day today with Clinton Evans, Kiwanis Club president, featuring the subject in a talk at the club meeting.

Other activity throughout the week has included talks by L. N. Marquam, Texas Manufacturers' Association regional representative; an inspection tour of Cabot shops and ordinance plants by an Amarillo businessmen delegation; and daily publishing of pictures of local industries in The Pampa Daily News.

Today area machine shops are being recognized in a picture layout of Lunsford Bit Shop, Baash-Ross Tool Company, Pampa Machine Co. Maurer Machine Co., Jones - Everett Machine Co., Cabot Shops Inc. and Boynton Tool Co.

Renewed investigation of Canadian's death-dealing poker party shifted it locale to Pampa today with the arrival of a Texas Ranger and Hemphill County's sheriff in town and the expected arrival of Canadian Ministerial Alliance members.

Both District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich and District Attorney Tom Braly were expected to be in Pampa most of the day. And Braly said:

"If the Ministerial Alliance members want to discuss the matter, it's OK with me — I'll give it my careful consideration and attention."

Either Braly or Tom Abraham, Canadian's grand jury foreman, can call a special session of the grand jury (next scheduled meeting: April 13). And both have said they are willing to do so if the situation warrants it. Of course, they would have to check with Goodrich first.

Punishment Charges Filed On Principal

NEW ORLEANS, April 3—UP— A parish school board Friday considered what action to take in the case of a principal accused of forcing children to kneel bare-legged on a floor covered with rice as punishment.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carver, superintendent of the Protestant Orphans' home here, testified at a board hearing that one girl attending the Live Oak school collapsed in her arms after two hours of such punishment.

Mrs. Carver was one of 52 witnesses scheduled to testify at a hearing on charges of incompetency against Mrs. Herbert S. Lea, principal of the Methodist school. Children of the orphanage are among pupils of the school, Mrs. Carver said.

'Can Do' Beats Off Red Assault . . .

Regiment Lives Up To Name

SEOUL, April 3—UP—Americans of the U.S. 15th "Can Do" regiment lived up to their motto Friday and beat back a 200-man Chinese Communist assault in a tough two hours fight near Jackson Heights on the central front.

The American infantrymen stopped the Reds and leaped from their trenches in a counterattack. They chased the demoralized Reds down the slopes of the advance hill northeast of Chorwon.

It was one of the heaviest ground actions along the 155-mile battlefront since the Reds stepped up their "peace offensive" three days ago.

"Contact along the rest of the Eighth Army's 155-mile front showed a marked decrease," an Army briefing officer said late in the day.

The Chinese hurled nearly 4,000 rounds of artillery and mortar on American and adjacent Greek positions. One thousand rounds alone showered down on the advance positions near Jackson Heights, which guards the eastern edge of the Chorwon Valley invasion route to Seoul.

At 1 a.m. (11 a.m. cst Thursday), the Reds attacked the "Can Do" positions and tried in vain to crack the American defenses. Two hours later the GIs were re-inforced. They counter-attacked and scattered the Reds in a seven-minute drive.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said "six or seven" Communists fought their way into the trenches and met the Americans in hand-to-hand combat. The abortive attack cost the Communists 35 men killed or wounded.

'Important' Questions Face Red Truce Leaders

First Stop . . .

Marines Build POW 'Village'

MUNSAN, Korea, April 3—UP—United States Marines worked feverishly Friday to complete construction of "Freedom Village," the hoped-for first stop in the free world for sick and wounded Allied prisoners of war.

Leathernecks and medical units put up the first tents for an Army surgical hospital in a field near the Allied truce delegation headquarters at Munsan.

Across the dusty road, South Korean troops set up a medical tent for their soldiers. Marine engineers had cleared both fields during the day.

Freedom Village rapidly was taking shape to house the prisoners who would leave Communist rule by passing over Freedom Gate Bridge, a long timber bridge spanning the Imjin River.

Inside the Munsan camp, UN officials prepared for Monday's meeting with the Reds to arrange for the exchange of the sick and wounded prisoners.

The site of the mobile surgical hospitals was a beehive. One group of Marines erected a tent, while others graded the site and installed power lines on three electric light poles within the compound.

Next to the hospital was a similarly cleared area where it was believed a prisoner of war processing center would be established.

Other workmen worked feverishly to repair roads in the area and to install communication and power lines.

President Maintains Truce On McCarthy Ship Promises

WASHINGTON, April 3 — UP — President Eisenhower maintained an uneasy truce between his administration and Joseph R. McCarthy Friday with a conciliatory stand on the senator's controversial ship agreements.

He told his weekly news conference it was all right with him if McCarthy wants to obtain informal promises from Greek shippers not to trade with Iron Curtain countries.

He said he did not believe the Wisconsin Republican intended to negotiate formal agreements on behalf of the government which he had neither the right nor power to conclude.

For Party Harmony

Mr. Eisenhower made the statements late Thursday in an obvious attempt to prevent an open break with McCarthy that might damage Republican Party harmony and the administration's relations with Congress.

McCarthy drew charges that he was invading the foreign policy field when he announced last Saturday that his Permanent Investigating subcommitte had obtained an agreement from Greek shippers in New York not to trade with Communist countries. He revealed Thursday that another ship-owner "from abroad" had come through with a similar pledge.

Even if these deals were a mistake, the President said he doubted they undermined American foreign policy because they were not backed by the full power and prestige of the federal government.

Mr. Eisenhower conceded he might be differing with his foreign aid chief, Harold E. Stassen, who

Communists Arrest Three Americans

BERLIN, April 3—UP—Soviet troopers and Communist East German police Friday arrested two American soldiers and an American woman who "trespassed" on Soviet occupied territory.

The three were seized by the Russian soldiers and Red police when they strayed into a short stretch of East German territory which cuts across the highway connecting the American sector of Berlin and the American checkpoint on the super-highway from West Berlin to West Germany.

The Americans were identified as Master Sgt. John Albright, Sgt. Hugh Owens and Mrs. Susie Owens. Their hometowns were not known.

They were arrested by the Communist patrol when they made a wrong turn after passing the American checkpoint at the entry to Berlin.

They had come to Berlin from Frankfurt.

School Board Vote Saturday; Go To The Polls

Voters Pick School Men

Pampans today were all set to go to the polls and vote for two school board members who will serve for the next three years.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday in the corridor of the junior high school.

Three candidates are in the field—John Harnly, wheat farmer; Herman Whatley, funeral director; and Rex Rose, auto associate. The latter two are running for re-election.

Voter interest in the school board race has been indicated in the 103 absentee ballots cast in the five-day period that such voting was permissible.

Though the winners will be known shortly after the polls close, an official canvass of the vote will be taken at the April 13 meeting of the school board. And the winning candidates will take office at that time.

Area Wheat Below Normal

Wheat conditions around Pampa and other areas in the Texas Panhandle are reported generally below normal due to drouth and high winds by the Wheat Harvest Control office, Amarillo, and crop prospects are rapidly deteriorating.

Many fields in the local district, Amarillo, Dalhart, Perryton and elsewhere in the Panhandle have been chiseled or plowed up in order to stop blowing dust and wind erosion, the office said.

If rain is received within the next few days the outlook in this area could be changed, the report continued.

No insect infestation, plaguing other scattered wheat areas, has been found in Gray County, according to Ralph Thomas, Gray County agriculture agent.

In the rest of the North Texas wheat and small grain producing counties predictions are brighter as some moisture has been received throughout the last two weeks causing considerable im-

Lewis Controversy Dies Down; Payment Expected Next Week

The Lewis controversy took a holiday today with no further developments coming up as County Judge J. B. Maguire Jr. took the day off to show his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Maguire Sr., Shreveport, La., aroupd the county.

The judge's parents arrived in Pampa late yesterday.

In the meantime Wesley Lewis, who was fired as manager of Perry LeFors Field March 18, said he felt sure his delayed $400 salary check would be paid him sometime next week.

He reiterated a former statement that he would not surrender his personal airport records to the county as they are all he has to prove his claims are right in the controversy over the airport's financial operations. The original records, Lewis said, are not at the county, although County Auditor Ray Wilson has copies of state gasoline tax exemption certificates, daily work sheets and others.

He said he would not submit to another audit by Wilson, but would sit down and go over the books with a special auditor if the county wishes to hire one.

"I've gone over these records two times with Wilson and we agreed on them. I won't go over them again because it would result in the same thing. I admit there was a gasoline shortage every month. In fact there will be a gasoline shortage every month for any airport due to the high evaporation of aviation gasoline, especially in the winter and colder months. In the summer months it

POW Exchange Discussions Slated First

TOKYO, April 3 — UP — United Nations negotiators, who go to Panmunjom Monday to discuss the return of sick and wounded prisoners, said Friday they have important questions to ask the Communists before full-dress armistice talks can be reopened.

Gen. Mark Clark was expected Friday to send a formal reply to the Communists agreeing to the Panmunjom meeting Monday. The first order of business Monday will be arranging for the exchange of the sick and wounded.

The communists then want to discuss resumption of armistice talks.

Want 'Satisfactory' Answers

But, the Allied negotiators, headed by Rear Admiral John C. Daniel want satisfactory answers from the Reds to [illegible] questions" before they agree to hold plenary sessions on the armistice.

The questions are:

1. What do the Reds mean by turning down the "principle of voluntary repatriation" of prisoners of war while agreeing that the [illegible] no be returned to their homelands against their will?

2. What did Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai in a broadcast and an offer to the UN early this week mean by a "neutral nation." Some 38,000 Red prisoners held by the Allies have said they do not want to return to Communist countries. Under Chou's proposal they would be turned over to a "neutral nation." The Allied negotiators want a clear definition of a "neutral nation" in Communist plans.

Slight Criticism of Press

He objected to the suggestion in some of these accounts that the joint statement issued after the meeting indicated Dulles had warned him against interfering in foreign policy matters.

He said he had a strong feeling "much of the misrepresentation" was deliberate. "Certain elements" of the press and radio, he said, are trying "to create a split in the Republican Party over matters where there should be no disagreement."

By way of reply, Dulles sent a brief letter of acknowledgement saying that the joint statement stood for itself.

Zales Holds Open House

The doors opened at Zale Jewelers for the company's 29th anniversary at 9 a.m. today on a completely redecorated store.

Work on the redecorating has been going on the last several weeks under the guide of Earl Nelson, interior decorator, El Paso.

Irving Schwartz, Pampa store manager, announced the theme of the 29th anniversary as the "Buys of Your Life."

The new store appearance includes a new motif for windows as well as the interior.

"The whole setup is different," Schwartz said.

The Zale company was founded in 1924 in Wichita Falls by Morris B. Zale. Pampa store was opened in 1940.

Officials say the 29th Zale year marks expansion in importation, design and manufacturing. And the company maintains diamond buying offices in the center of the diamond-cutting industry, antwerp, Belgium.

The company is noted for a tremendous advertising schedule on radio and in newspapers and for a liberal credit policy.

'Business Climate' Helped Texas, TMA Official Says

M. L. Marquam, Texas Manufacturers Association official, attributes Texas' "business climate" with putting the state far head in the nation's 1952 private and industrial construction.

Marquam, TMA regional representative, Lubbock, speaking at the local Lions Club Thursday noon luncheon - meeting as part of Texas Industrial Week observance, said, the state "climate," consisting of low per capita cost of state government, low per capital tax collection and fewer business-discouraging taxes, invites industrial progress over other states.

"Such things cause Texas' industrial future to look bright," Marquam said.

Special guests of the Lions and Pampa Chamber of Commerce industrial and good will and reception committees were 35 Amarillo businessmen making a "good-will" tour of Cabot shops and ordinance plants.

Marquam listed three principal approaches insuring the state's industrial growth, calling attention first to public relations. Industry must tell its story to employed and the public through such programs as Texas Industrial Weeks, and the TMA programs.

A second point is true good employer - employe relations, the TMA official said, and third is legislation.

He issued a warning to the state industrial leaders to guard against hand - out legislation.

"More and bigger hand - outs mean more and bigger taxes and that is the way to kill jobs," he prophesied.

He said, "As competing cities, counties and districts add new demands, appropriations snowball and taxes to match. All of which causes business to go somewhere else.

"Please remember," he asked "that tax dollars don't create jobs, they just change bosses.

"And that tax dollars cannot be used for plant expansion or building new factories or creating new wealth."

New Lions Club Sweetheart, for April, voted by the Pampa High School student council, is Carol McCune, daughter of Jimmy McCune. McCune was the originator of the Lions monthly sweetheart idea during his term as president.

Ed Myatt and B. R. (Bunny) Shultz, business manager and director respectively of the 1953 Lions Club Minstrel, reported show activity and previewed the production for Lions members.

Rufe Jordan, specialty performer in the production, sang two show numbers, accompanied at the piano by his daughter, Miss Ann Jordan.

Frank Helvey, Amarillo good will and reception committee chairman and leader of the touring group, expressed "appreciation to Pampa, the Lions Club and the local Chamber of Commerce" for the group's day in Pampa.

Introducing the speaker was Jimmy McCune, who was in charge of the program.

Revised City Maps Are Received Here; Available For Sale

Copies of the 1953 revised city map became available for sale this morning in the city engineering office, Director of Public Works Ray Evans announced.

The revised map is up to date as of today, Evans said, and is broken down to the last subdivided lot inside the city limits, including that portion of the latest 80 acres added to the city that have been subdivided — the Green-Novotny Subdivision.

Work on drawing in the lots on the master map, and keeping up with new additions took more than a year, engineering officials reported.

The maps are availabe in paper or linen and have been priced at cost to the city — $10.00 for the linen maps and $2.25 for the paper maps. The maps are four feet by five feet.

Evans said the first order consisted of 20 linen maps and 50 paper maps. "If the supply runs out we can have additional copies within five days," Evans said.

To keep up with the city's growth the engineering department will prepare scale copies of the new additions or resubdivided areas and sell them at cost to map owners to glue or paste in place.

EXCHANGE

if the exchange takes place. The Marines cleared areas for hospitals and brought in medical supplies. Laborers patched roads and the single rail line leading to Munsan.

It was learned plans were approved for emergency speed construction of a processing center, and hospitals for American and South Korean prisoners.

Clark, with Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, flew back to Tokyo Thursday night after a visit to Korea.

Fighting Flares on Front

Earnest Hoberecht, United Press Vice President for Asia, accompanied the party and said he was told by a general officer:

"This thing still isn't in the bag. Don't forget we are dealing with the same Communists who have stalled and stalled in the past over some very minute points."

Fighting along the 155 - mile battleline flared increasingly Thursday and Friday. The Reds threw their biggest attack since the opening of the "peace offensive" against the South Koreans on the central front Thursday.

Simultaneous Fires Hit McLean

McLEAN (Special) — Damages have been estimated at $3,400 in two fires that were reported at the same time — 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

A trailer hooked to a passenger car en route from New York to California caught fire on U. S. Hwy. 66, just east of the city limits.

And a storehouse owned by J. G. Messer on North Main, near the city limits, was also damaged.

Fire department officials figured the damage to the trailer at $3,000 — mainly to clothing, furniture and silver.

Though only $300-$400 damages were calculated in the house fire, firemen were hampered in controlling that fire because of the high winds.

Early settlers on Cape Cod built the barn on to the house so that they would not have to wade through snow in winter to reach it, hence "Cape Cod" house.

LEWIS

will not be as great, sometimes expanding in volume" Lewis said.

Lewis siad he expected to receive his checks next Wednesday, but later Judge Maguire said he did not know of any special call meeting of the county commissioners on Wednesday.

And, there the matter stood late this morning.

Methodist Speaker Announces Sermon

Dr. Caradine Hooton, Washington, D. C., First Methodist Church holy week revival leader, is slated to talk on "The Greates Promise of The Bible" at 7:30 p.m. today in the church sanctuary.

Men's Fellowship dinner and song for choir is to provide special music.

The final revival "Hour of Power" service is scheduled at 7 a.m. Saturday. Evening service at 7:30 will conclude the revival program.

Hooton, according to Roy Johnson, First Methodist music director, will also conduct Easter Sunday services.

NEW PROBE

this morning whether Texas Ranger Kelly Rogers, Amarillo, and Sheriff Clyde Risley, Canadian, would contact eitherr Braly or Goodrich today on the murder March 8 of Arthur Burnard Smith, 58, of Sanford, and the suicide three days later of Leonard Woodward, 42, of Canadian.

According to Rev. Tom Gray, First Christian Church pastor, Canadian, members of the Alliance were scheduled to be in Pampa sometime this afternoon for a conference with Braly on possible grand jury action.

But, Gray, said, "we won't contact Braly about a meeting till after we get to Pampa."

Kick-off of the renewed investigation came Wednesday morning at the regular meeting of the Canadian Ministerial Alliance in which a resolution was drafted, urging an examination of the Smith killing and of the conduct of the investigation of that killing.

Both ministers and others in Canadian were convinced that there was a tie-up between the two poker deaths and the county's bootlegging problems.

Another Alliance member, Rev. Taft Holloway, First Baptist Church pastor, said Thursday that "the Smith murder might have been a climax to county bootlegging," adding that "I think there's a connection between the two — although I don't know what it is."

Gray, too, pointed out that "I'm interested in the grand jury investigating into the whole deal."

Other members of the Alliance are Rev. Carter McKemy, Presbyterian Church pastor; Rev. Hugh Adkisson, Central Baptist Church pastor; Rev. Arthur Kendall, Methodist Church pastor; and Rev. Olan Beauchamp, Assembly of God Church pastor.

SCHNEIDER HOTEL DINING ROOM WILL BE OPEN SUNDAY STARTING APRIL 5th From 8 a.m. to 2 P.M.

JOHNSON ★ IN HOLLYWOOD ★

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Jane Wyman's following in the dramatic footsteps of Colleen Moore and Barbara Stanwyck in Hollywood's third remake Edna Ferber's famous novel, "So Big," but she isn't worried about disturbing the sands of time.

"It was a great role and it's still a great role," says Jane.

"I know acting comparisons will be made but I'm not worried. Our screenplay has taken new things out of the characters that were never used before. The role is more challenging to me than 'Johnny Belinda.' "

A television series for Jane now that all the big stars are becoming home - screen attractions?

"I've got news for you," she smiled, "Television is NOT for me."

There's an eye - popping parallel to the front page papa-and-son wrangles of Edward G. Robinson and Eddie, Jr., in "Showdown," the forthcoming U-I flicker that will co-star the elder Robinson and Tony Curtis.

Robinson will play a wealthy man and Tony will be the wild son who spends money recklessly, falls in love with a girl of whom papa disapproves and tangles with his old man over and over again. Hmmmm.

Elliot Nugent's pals are begging him to seek psychiatric care and blame his front - page didos on a case of jangled nerves. His estranged wife and daughter have been asked to help him.

He Shall Return

Shelley Winters, slated to return to the screen in "Tacey Cromwell," is fuming over the new crop of hints that all is not well between her and absent - in-Italy Vittorio Gassman.

"I talk to him every week," Shelley, down to 135 pounds, told me at U-I's "Walkin' My Baby Back Home" press party. "Let them gossip. I'm not going to 'schlep' myself to Italy just to stop the talk. He'll be back in April."

Spike Jones' hefty singer, Laverne Pearson, nixing an opera offer:

"I prefer the smell of Spike's gunpowder to that of garlic."

Chill Wills, on the set of "Three Were Renegades," about one of his recent films: "The cameraman shot the back of my ears until I came out looking like a loving cup with hair."

Producer Sol Lesser hasn't started the big ballyhoo, but Stereo - Cine, the three - dimensional process he's using on his "3-D Follies," will be an eye-opener. It's the best easy - on-the-eyes 3-D I've seen yet. The Eastman color film will be billed as the first musical revue in 3-D, with everything from Lili St. Cyr, and the Lester Horton Dancers to Ben Hogan and Gussie Moran.

Fair Trade

Ezio Pinza, packing 'em in at a Las Vegas nitery, read the crowd this telegram:

"If you insist on singing in our upholstered saloons, I shall sing Figaro at the Met." It was from Jimmy Durante.

It may be only a coincidence, but Lana Turner and Lex Barker will be in Cannes for the Film Festival when Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas are there . . . Phyllis Kirk, femme star of the 3-D "House of Wax," left Warners to free-lance and next day had offers for four films and three TV series. . . Alex D'Arcy has joined Gilbert Roland in the BIG comeback league. He's in "Man On the Tight Rope" and "How to marry a Millionaire" after living for eight years in France.

Red - haired Cara Williams is so determined to keep her marriage to John Barrymore, Jr., out of stormy waters that she's broken off relations with her own mother!

"My mother has been the cause of all the trouble so far," she confided. The Barrymores couldn't be nicer. Ethel invited us to dinner and kised me. I talked to Lionel over the phone. Dolores Costello, Johnny's mother, has been wonderful to me."

Cara's on the stardom ladder herself as Red Skelton's leading lady in MGM's "The Great Diamond Robbery," but she's sure that nothing will stop her young husband from reaching the heights of his famous father.

Communist 'Peace' Move Tops Good News In U.S. This Week

By PHIL NEWSOME
United Press Foreign Analyst

The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

THE GOOD

1. Communist "peace" moves came thick and fast. No one knew for sure what la ybehind the Russian moves nor had the Communists yet backed up their words with deeds. There were three main developments. The first came las Saturday when Red Chinese Premier Chou En Lai suddenly disclosed in a broadcast that the Chinese now were willing to exchange sick and wounded war prisoners on a voluntary basis in accordance with the Geneva Convention.

2. The second surprise Communist move was the offer to resume over-all Korean truce negotiations on terms which seemed to meet UN conditions. The Communists said that for the sake of an early peace they would agree to UN demands for voluntary repatriation of war prisoners. Prisoners who did not wish to return home would be placed in the hands of a "neutral state." UN officials received the offer warily. They said details of the exchange of sick and wounded must be settled first.

3. On the other side of the world, in Berlin, came another Russian move which some observers believed might be the key to the whole Red "peace offensive." This week, at the suggestion of the Russians, British and Russian representatives sat down to try to end the "hot war" in the air over Western Germany. Suddenly the Russians suggested that the United States and France also be included. At week's end, it appeared the Reds were trying to expand the meeting into a full-dress discussion of an over-all peace conference for Germany.

THE BAD

1. After the first surpise at the Russian peace bids, suspicion began to set in. What, for example, did the Red Chinese mean by a "Neutral state?" Once before, during the Korean negotiations, they had tried to bring in Russia as a "neutral"—a condition the UN would not accept. Construction of military airfields in North Korea also was still an unsolved issue. And there also was speculation that the Reds might try to make admission of Red China and North Korea to the UN a further price for peace.

2. Whether real or phony, the Red peace offers were bound to have an effect on defense plans for Western Europe. The French who have been cool to the European Army plan anyway, admitted that now it would be even more difficult to get atification through the French assembly. And while complacency settled over Europe, there was growing suspicion that Germany continued to be the main target in Russian grand strategy.

3. The hopes and fears brought on by the Red offensive over-shadowed most other world developments. But Burma was accusing the United States of aiding Chinese Nationalist irregulars infesting Burmese territory along the border with Red China. And in Kenya, the white-hatingMau Mau were setting new records of death and destruction in their campaign to drive the white man from Africa.

Sticks To His Trolley

LOS ANGELES, April 3—UP—Trolley Motorman Michael C. Baker, 62, has decided to stick to his trolley.

Thursday Baker was teaching a friend to drive an automobile on one of the steepest hills in town. Suddenly the motor stalled, the car shot backward down the hill, struck a curb and overturned.

Baker said from now on he'll do all his driving on tracks.

Student's Ticket Paid Long Distance

DETROIT, April 3—UP—Traffic court officials Thursday received a letter from Bangkok, Thailand, containing a $5 bank draft for payment of a parking ticket and a note from Prida Kornasut.

Kornasut explained that he was a senior at the University of Michigan last Oct. 14 when his automobile was tagged.

"I hope this makes everything all right," he wrote.

Judge George T. Murphy answered his letter and thanked the former student for "one we didn't expect to collect."

Weeks Family Gets Housekeeper From Former Cabinet Secretary C. E. Sawyer

By PATTI SIMMONS
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Living dangerously would hardly be the way Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Sinclair Weeks would label their new life in the nation's capital. Still, it's easy to see how some foreign governments might get this idea.

There are places today where the incoming powers would think twice before sitting down to a meal dished up by a trusted chef of the ousted regime. Happily, the U.S.A is not one of them.

After his appointmnt to the cabinet was made known, Weeks bumped into Charles E. Sawyer, outgoing Secretary. Sawyer, relates Mrs. Weeks, promptly offered the Weeks his capital apartment and put in a good word for Mrs. Sawyer's housekeeper. The wives, thought it was a fine idea, too, so the Democrat-Republican deal was on.

April is sugaring time on the Weeks' Cat Bow Farm in New Hampshire. So it's a good guess capital friends will soon be adding New England maple syrup to their breakfast table, courtesy of Secretary Weeks.

His blue - eyed, Tennessee-born spouse is ready to don her farm duds the minute the sugaring begins. This year, because of Washington business, sugaring for the couple will most likely be limited to a week end.

It's on this same farm, by the way, that the Secretary exercises his culinary capabilities —his wife proudly vouching for his lobster and clam specialties.

The Weeks' country-living also includes raising cattle and tending gardens, both flower and vegetable. Right willing to take credit for her accompishments with the hoe, the new Washington wife is modest at mention of her artistic brush-wieding.

Back when the children were growing up she pitched in to help the Junior League Children's Theater, doing everything from dabbing grease paint on self one day, to scenery the next. The latter talent just popped out after several years' art training in pastels and oils.

MRS. SINCLAIR WEEKS

"No, I don't have any of them here." None of her paintings are good enough for that, she insists "In fact, some of them are rather outrageous."

In official Washington there isn't much time for other group activity, but during Lent Mrs. Weeks set aside time for a once-a-week Bible class at historic St. John's Episcopal Church, just across from the White House.

Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897 was observed with fireworks displays throughout the British Empire on an unprecedented scale. Fireworks sent from London to Blantyre, Nyasaland (Southeast Africa) traveled through wilderness 300 miles from the mouth of the Zambezi River by cart, canoe, and on the heads of porters to be fired on the scheduled night before a huge crowd of astounded tribesmen.

Sen. Holland Hits Tideland Opposition

WASHINGTON, April 2—UP—Sen. Spessard Holland charged Thursday that proponents of "big federal government" are sparking the fight against state ownership of the tidelands.

The Florida Democrat told a reporter he planned to discuss the "political philosophy" behind the opposition to the tidelands bill in a Senate speech Thursday. Holland is the chief sponsor of the Senate bill to give coastal states title to off-shore oil lands out to their historic sea boundaries.

The Senate swung into what is expected to be lengthy debate on the tidelands bill Wednesday after the House passed its own submerged lands measure 285 to 108. The two bills have important differences which will probably have to be ironed out in a conference committe.

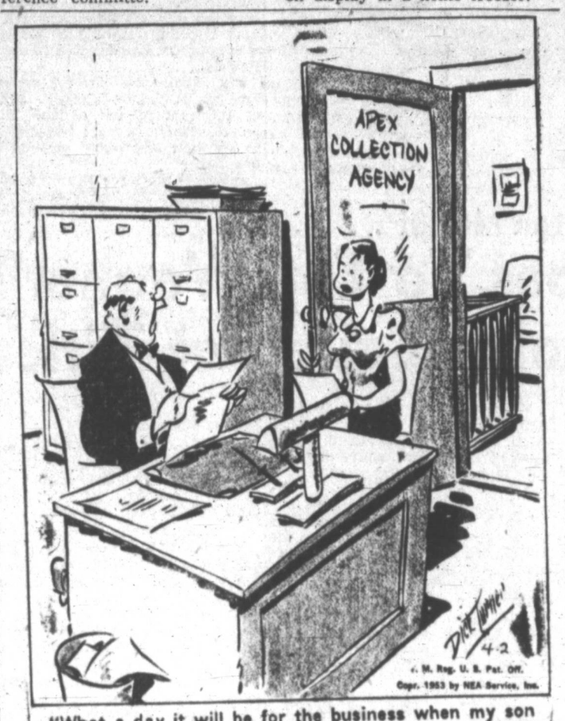

To Start Daily Sessions

Senator Taft announced that the Senate will start holding daily sessions next week for the first time this year. He said after tidelands it will take up extension of the defense production act, Hawaiian statehood and the appropriation bills.

Holland said the Republican platforms of 1948 and 1952 called for state ownership of the offshore lands and the Democratic platform both years "was silent" on the question. He said those who attempted to say that the Democratic party has endorsed federal ownership of the lands "are just wrong."

"The only party declaration in which anyone who favors federal ownership of the submerged lands can find comfort is the 1948 platform of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party," Holland declared.

But Not Walcott . . .

Rocky Happy That Battle Postponed

HOLLAND, Mich., April 3—UP—Champion and challenger folded their training tents Friday and headed home while boxing fans argued how the five-week postponement would affect the outcome of their heavyweight title fight.

Champion Rocky Marciano was scheduled for a morning visit to the doctor whose advice led to the postponement of his April 10 bout to May 15 because of "ulcerated blood vessels in his nose. Then he was slated to fly to New York, en route to a vacation at his Brockton, Mass., home.

Challenger Jersey Joe Walcott left his camp swiftly after the postponement was announced, flying Thursday night to Philadelphia on the way to his Camden, N.J. home.

Called A 'Bad Break'

The 39-year-old former champion called the postponement "a bad break," but declared that he'd be "ready" whenever the fight is staged. Marciano, on the other hand, had been afraid his damaged nose would cause him to lose on a technical knockout, so he said it was "just as well" the fight had been set back.

But, fans wondered, would the delay hurt the chances of either fighter? If so, which one—the 39-year-old Walcott, a veteran warrior unlikely to spend the time fretting away his chances but perhaps harmed because of the upset of his training schedule, or the 28-year-old Marciano, who may perhaps worry overlong about the first injury-delay of his career?

Marciano was sure the delay "won't hurt" his chances.

"The doctors said I would be taking a very great risk with the title if I went in there with the bad nose," said the champion. "They said three or four good punches with the small gloves might cause it to bleed so much the fight would be stopped."

Trainer Charley Goldman was emphatic that the delay wouldn't hurt Rocky—"it might help him."

Walcott wasn't saying much, under orders from manager Felix Bocchicchio, but he allowed that he was "bitterly disappointed." As he headed back for home he said he'd go "right back into training," but added "I guess I'll taper off a little and build back up. It's a bad break."

Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club, promoter of the fight, scorned the notion there might have been a financial reason for the postponement, that is, a slow sale of tickets.

Tickets Still Good

Gibson declared that $334,545 out of a possible total gross of $712,000 had already been sold and that over $70,000 had been spent on publicity, "and much of that will be wasted."

Gibson said all tickets already sold would be honored at the gate on May 15, although refunds would be made where requested. Meanwhile, of course, "the sale will continue."

Oilers Find Dim Outlook For Rookies

SWEETWATER (Special) —Business Manager Jim Hamilton of the Pampa Oilers arrived her Wednesday determined to have his lost ball players in the camp immediately.

With two of his boys reporting for army duty and Uncle Sam breathing down the collar of Rookie Roger Aldridge, the rookie situation looks dark.

Hamilton lost no time in his efforts as he sent numerous telegrams and telephone calls were on the menu until midnight. He went to bed with assurance he would have ball players filing into camp today and every day until the club roster is complete.

Ted "Porky" Pawelek Wednesday went through the regular workout with the addition of batter-pitcher plays to second and third bases. The pitchers could be in shape and ready to go. They all had two to three weeks training before joining the camp here.

Man Molberg and Tommy Thompson are bearing down and are both ready for the first try at Plainview.

Hughes and Aldridge both are coming along fine and are classified as rookie even though Hughes has four or five years of pro baseball behind him. Just returning from Korea any player, regardless of his status, is a rookie.

Washington Skipper Claims Improved 9

(This is another in a series on the 1953 prospects of the major league clubs).

By LEO H. PETERSEN

GREENWOOD, S.C., April 3—UP—Bucky Harris terms his 1953 team the best since he returned to Washington for his third hitch as manager in 1950, but he isn't predicting any pennant.

"The league is so evenly balanced the way I see it," he said. "That we can go up or we can go down."

He is hopeful it will be up, but he lacks reserve strength, is weak in the catching department and his pitching is spread pretty thin.

"But there isn't a club in the league that hasn't got a weakness so there's hope for all of us," Harris claimed. "We're going to be tough, but after all it's a long jump from fifth to first place and I've been in the game too long to forecast anything like that. But in baseball anything is possible."

Last year, the Senators were picked by most experts to finish in the cellar, but he fooled them by coming home fifth—just one game out of fourth place, three out of third.

His strong points are one of the best fielding outfields in the league and a good, sound inner defense. He hopes to make up in speed and defense for what he lacks in the power hitting department.

In Jackie Jensen, Jim Busby and Gil Coan, Harris believes he has as fine a defensive outfield unit as there is around. But Busby has league pitching—he hit only .244 last year—and Coan fell off to a miserable .205.

For outfield reserves he has Ken Wood, who hit only .238 last year but led the club at bat in Griffith Stadium, and Frank Campos, who batted .259 in 1952.

Harris isn't worried about his infield with Mickey Vernon at first, Wayne Terwilliger at second, Pete Runnels at short and Eddie Yost at third. Terwilger won the second base job when rookie Leroy Dietzel had to be sent back down to the minors to recover fully from the broen leg he suffered last season. For infield spares there will be Floyd Baker, Mel Hoderlein and Gene Verble.

Two rookies, Bob Oldis, who hit .277 at Chattanooga and Les Peden, a .280 hitter at Los Angeles, are pressing Mickey Grasso for the No. 1 catching post.

With Frank Shea and Charles Stobbs on the shelf with re-current arm trouble, the pitching staff is uncertain. They will both be in the starting rotation if they recover along with Bob Porterfield, ace of the staff with 13 victories last season; Walt Masterson (9-8) and Connie Marrero (11-8). Shea won 11 and lost seven last season while Stobbs won seven and lost 12 with the White Sox.

Others sure to stay are Julio Moreno (9-9) and two rookies, Al Sima, 2-game winner at Chattanooga and Sonny Dixon, who is from the same Southern Association club.

Possibilities include Sandy Consuegra, who has to win his spurs despite his imposing record of six victores against no defeats last season; Ji mPearce, a 12 - game winner with Chattanooga and Lou Sleater, who won four for the Senators and lost two after being obtained from the Browns.

Young Heavyweights Will Clash Tonight

NEW YORK, April 3 —UP—Dan Bucceroni of Philadelphia and Dave Davey of Seattle, Wash., two tall and talented heavyweights with championship ambitions, square off in a 10 - round return tussle Friday night at St. Nicholas Arena.

The bout, which will be broadcast and televised nationally, provides Davey with a chance to avenge a defeat by Philly "butcher boy" last October. But Buccerni is favored at 2-1 to repeat.

Big Hitters Boost Hopes Of Detroit

LAKELAND, Fla., April 3—UP—The Detroit Tigers, whose total of 10s home runs ranked them fourth in the American League last season, believe their new-found power will propel them into the first division this year.

Led by first baseman Walt Dropo, who has hit six, the Tigers have smashed 29 home runs in their 19 exhibition games this spring. Owen Friend ranks second with five—his fifth coming Thursday as the Tigers defeated the Cincinnati Reds "B" team 9 to 7.

GREENWOOD, S.C., April 3—UP—Julio Moreno, who had a 9-9 record for the Washington Senators last season; extended his string of scoreless innings in exhibition games to eight Friday.

Moreno, who has allowed only six hits in the eight innings, pitched the eighth and ninth innings Thursday as the Senators beat the Cincinnati Reds 8 to 5 to snap a two-game losing streak. Third baseman Eddie Yost hit a three-run homer in the ninth off Clyde King to break up the game.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 3—UP—Rookie outfielder Frank Thomas' big bat was overshadowing Ralph Kiner Friday and winning the 23-year old Pittsburgh native a regular job in the Pirates' outfield.

Thomas, who hit .303 for New Orleans last season, hammered two doubles in Thursday's intra-squad game and now has connected safely in 11 of his last 20 trips to the plate for a .550 average.

LUBBOCK, Tex., April 3—UP—The Cleveland Indians sought their ninth straight triumph over the reeling New York Giants Friday as the teams continued a spring series which has turned into a massacre.

The Indians made it eight straight and pinned the ninth straight loss on the Giants 3 to 0 Thursday as Bob Lemon and Lou Brissie combined to limit the losers to six hits.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 3—UP—The New York Yankees were relieved Friday to learn that Vic Raschi had escaped serious injury when hit on the right knee by a line drive as they broke camp and began their barnstorming trip north toward the Yankee Stadium.

Raschi, a 16-game winner in 1952, was hit by the line drive in Thursday's 6 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, and was forced to leave the game. X-rays, however, disclosed no fracture and doctors predicted that Raschi would be able to take his next turn on the mound.

SAN ANTONIO, April 3—UP—Two sluggers who could hold the keys to the success of their respective teams were red-hot Friday as the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Browns continued their spring series.

Preston Ward, slated to open the season in center field for the Cubs, had hit four homers in three days while Vic Wertz, the Browns key slugger, led the club with a .405 batting average and 26 runs batted in. Both starred Thursday in the Browns 9 to 4 victory.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3—UP—The one-two punch of Stan Musial and Steve Bilko, dreamed of by St. Louis Cardinal managers the last three years, may become a reality this year.

Musial, belting away at .340, leads the team in home runs while Bilko, 245-pound perennial disappointment at first base, has hit four homers and is hitting .300. Both have driven in 19 runs.

Musial hit his sixth homer of the spring Thursday as the Cardinals, who meet the New Orleans club Friday, defeated the Birmingham Barons of the Southern Association 6 to 3.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3—UP—Fear that Gil Hodges career might be interrupted or ended by arthritis subsided Friday in the Brooklyn Dodgers camp following an encouraging report from club physician Dr. Herbert Fett in New York.

Dr. Fett's report indicated that Hodges is suffering from an inflammation of the joints in his knees and feet but that the ailment will be cured by rest and the big first-baseman reported he "felt very optimistic."

FORT WORTH, April 3—UP—The Chicago White Sox hope to square matters with the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas League Friday, but first, they'll have to cool off a couple of "hot" Dodger farmhands.

Jim Baxes, third baseman just farmed out by the Dodgers, and Ray Cucchiarini, outfielder just released from the Army, each whacked two homers to give the Cats a 6 to 4, 10-inning victory over the Sox Thursday night. Baxes second blow, with one man on jh the 10th, broke up the game and ended a string of 16 scoreless innings for pitcher Harry Dorish.

WT-NM Sports Writers See Major Exhibition Game At Lubbock Today

BY THE TIME THIS is printed, we'll be enroute to Sweetwater where we'll get a first hand look at the 1953 edition of the Pampa Oilers

Before reaching the scene of the Oiler training camp, we'll stop off at Lubbock to attend the West Texas New Mexico League sports writers and sports casters meeting and the major league exhibition game between the New York Giants and the Cleveland Indians, to be played at Rosenthal Field in Lubbock, this afternoon.

More about our Lubbock visit later.

We hope to find several more Oilers in camp when we reach Sweetwater Saturday morning than has been working out this week.

As you have probably read in the daily roundup stories from Sweetwater on the Oiler workouts, only the pitchers have reported to the training site plus playing-manager and catcher Ted "Porky" Pawelek.

It's usually the custom anyway for the pitchers to report ahead of the rest of the squad. The moundsmen have more conditioning to do than any other position on the team.

Business manager Jimmy Hamilton is in Sweetwater now and he reports that some of the Oilers are having trouble getting into the states. These are the fellows who winter South of the Border, in Cuba, Puerto Rico, etc.

Just before leaving for Sweetwater Wednesday Hamilton said he had received a wire from the immigration authorities in El Paso that some of the Oiler players were being okayed and would join the team shortly.

They should be in in time for the opening exhibition game at Ballinger Sunday against the Plainview Ponies, the newest member of the West Texas-New Mexico League. Incidentally, we're going to follow the Oilers down to Ballinger during our stay in the southern end of the league.

Well, we hope to be able to bring back some good news concerning the Oilers and from all indications, we will.

HERE AT HOME, we are still getting entries for the Batboy Contest but we're sure that there are many others who plan to enter but haven't done so. The contest closes a week from tonight so you 13-16 year old boys who would like to batboy for the Oilers this season had better get your entries in as soon as possible.

You'll note the entry blank elsewhere on this page. The blank will tell what you need to do to enter the contest.

..WE HATED TO PASS up the Harvester - Borger series starting today but it's just the case of not being able to be at more than one place at a time.

Anyway, we hope the diamonders luck in the series. They haven't had much luck yet this season. I believe they'll be OK once they get a victory under their belts.

CONNIE MACK, the grand old man of baseball, has named his "all great" team and no present day player is listed on the team. These old timers continue to overlook the modern players in picking their all-star teams.

Certainly one player in the game today needs to be mentioned on the all-star lists. We're speaking of Stan Musial of the Cards.

But, we're proud to say, we can't argue the point of how Musial compares to the old timers since we weren't around then.

Without further ado, here is Macks all-great team: First base—George Sisler; second base—Eddie Collins; third base — Harold "Pie" Traynor; shortstop — Honus Wagner; outfield — Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth. The pitchers are Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson, with Bill Dickey and Mickey Cochran, the catchers.

ART BOWLAND, the popular Abilene Blue Sox catcher, is reportedly headed for the Midland Indians of the Longhorn League.

Art told an Abilene scribe that this is his last year in baseball. He plans to return to his home in New Jersey at the completion of the 1953 season.

FROM THE WENTWORTH academy public relations office comes word that three more former Pampa athletes have been awarded letters, Bobby Seiz in basketball; Joe C. Williams, Jr., in swimming; and Donald Hicks in intramural basketball.

Seitz is the son of Grover Setiz, former Pampa Oiler manager, who is now piloting the Clovis Pioneers.

Stan Hopes To Top Wagner's 8 National League Bat Titles

—Fifth of seven dispatches written for NEA Service

By STAN MUSIAL
Six-Time Batting Champion
As told to Harry Grayson

Being a champion batter, I most certainly want to stay there.

They don't remember the guy who finishes second.

My goal now is to top Honus Wagner's eight National League titles. I have six, the last three in a row. Rogers Hornsby had seven.

Veteran baseball men tell me that outstripping Wagner would be the greatest batting feat in history, one of even greater magnitude than Ty Cobb's 12 in the American Legue, nine of them in succession.

Wagner, Hornsby and Cobb, you see, played ball in the sunshine, in an era during which the umpire, Tim Hust, cracked: "Think of the hours!"

Ball players think of the hours in another sense today. We play the bulk of our games under the arcs and are up until the small hours. The worst feature of night baseball is the irregular meals. The player doesn't really know when to eat.

Pitching has improved since I broke in with the Cardinals in 1942.

And I can't tell you why, but there are not as many good all-the round ball players.

Making things tougher on the batter today is the fact that a pitcher is taken out at the first sign of losing his stuff. The result is that the pitcher is throwing hard all the while.

.300 Hitters Disappear

The elimination of the sacrifice fly rule is another reason for the fewer .300 hitters. It saved some players 50 or more itmes at bat during a campaign.

Twenty years ago there were 25 .300 hitters in the National League, 21 in the American. Last season there were only nine in the National, eight in the American.

With any kind of a break I might have had eight batting championships now. I played throughout the 1947 season while taking shots of penicillin for an infected appendix and suffering from a sore throat. I took the best care of myself, but was everlastingly tired and had no strength. I was batting a measly .122 in June, had to hit like a madman from there on in to finish with .312, by far my lowest mark in the majors.

Looking back, it was a foolish and dangerous thing to do, but the Cardinals had won their last pennant and World Series the year before, and I tried to hold the club together. I had the appendix out and my tonsils removed the day after the season closed.

I have related how my 39 home runs in my finest year, 1948, had me pulling for the stands and fences, throwing off my timing until mid-season of '49.

Late Getting in Stride

The result was that Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers beat me to the batting championship by four points, .342 to .338. I was hitting no more than an even .300 at the time of the All-Star Game, so picked up 38 points during the second half of the season.

I didn't get back in full stride until I started just meeting the ball again, which convinced me for sure, that this was as good a way as any for me to hit home runs, too, for I wound up with 36.

Had I won the batting championship in '49, I would now have five straight. Wagner had four in a row, Hornsby six.

I haven't a complaint in the world, however, for good fortune has been with me all the way along the line. The Navy called me for only one year, '45, for instance. A number of superior players — Bob Feller, for one—put in four years in the Armed Forces.

Imagine the record Feller would have compiled had he been available those four peak seasons!

You get some idea when it is recalled that Feller broke Rube Waddell's all - time major league record striking out 348—think of it!—winning 26 games with an earned run average of 2.18 upon his return in 1946.

Harvesters At Borger

The Harvester baseballers are in Borger this afternoon meeting the Borger Bulldogs in the first of a three-game series. After a single game today, the two teams will clash in a doubleheader Saturday afternoon. All three games will be at Borger.

The seris with the Bulldogs will open the District 1-AA schedule for both teams.

Joe Tynes was due to take the mound for the Harvesters in today's tilt. The starters for the Saturday twinbill will be announced after today's game.

The Harvesters are winless in four starts but have gained a lot of needed experience in the games to date.

Borger will be favored to win the series from the inexperienced Harvester nine.

In other District 1-AA action, Lubbock's Westerners will battle the Amarillo Sandies at Amarillo. The Westerners and Sandies will play one game today and a twinbill tomorrow.

Amarillo will be the favorite in this series. The Sandies are the defending champions and have several holdovers back this year. No one in the district will likely be able to unseat the talent - laden Sandie team.

Dallas Eagles Face Court Suit

DALLAS, April 3 —UP—A suit asking $46,200 damages was on file in district court Friday against the Dallas Eagles of the Texas League.

The suit was brought by Umpire John W. (Ziggy) Sears, a former big leaguer, accusing the Dallas club of negligence in an April 6, 1951, exhibition game with Milwaukee.

Sears said in a petition filed in Dallas district clerk Bill Shaw's office that his vision was impaired when he was struck in the eye when a player missed a throw to first base during the game.

Sears, who said his injury forced him to discontinue umpiring, said the club was negligent because it allowed the game to continue in rainy weather and failed to provide him with medical attention.

Hundreds Of Thousands Of Christian Pilgrims To Greet The Promise Of The First Easter Dawn

By UNITED PRESS

"And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun."

So Mark wrote of a small group of Christ's disciples on a Sunday morning more than 1,900 years ago.

When the sun rises—at 5:33 a.m. —on Sunday morning, hundreds of thousands of Christian pilgrims will greet again the promise of that first Easter dawn in services on mountain tops and shore lines, in natural and man-made amphitheaters across the nation.

In the 75,000-seat Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex., worshippers of all Christian faiths will gather in predawn darkness before a purple-lighted cross of Easter lilies.

Tenor James Melton and the 60-voice cadet choir of the Pensacola Naval Air Training station will lead them in the Easter anthems.

"And they said among themselves, who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the

At Old Salem, N.C., the flat white gravestones in the Moravian Cemetery have been scrubbed and polished and decorated with flowers. Sunrise services at the home Moravian Church have been conducted since 1772.

The bishop will proclaim: "The Lord is risen."

From the congregation—50,000 worshippers are expected — will come the full-voiced response: "The Lord is risen indeed."

At the edge of the Grand Canyon in Arizona, in the Red Rocks Amphitheatre near Denver, in Colorado's Garden of the Gods, tens of thousands will greet a gaudy-colored dawn amid natural wonders that were old when Christ was born.

"And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away; for it was very great."

New Yorkers will great the Easter sunrise with song and prayer in Central Park, on the river-edge bluff of Stevens Institute of Technology campus in Hoboek, N.J., indoors at the Radio City Music Hall and at many metropolitan churches.

Philadelphians will watch the dawn at services in Broad Street and City Hall Plaza.

The amphitheatre of Arlington National Cemetery will be the scene of another service of worship.

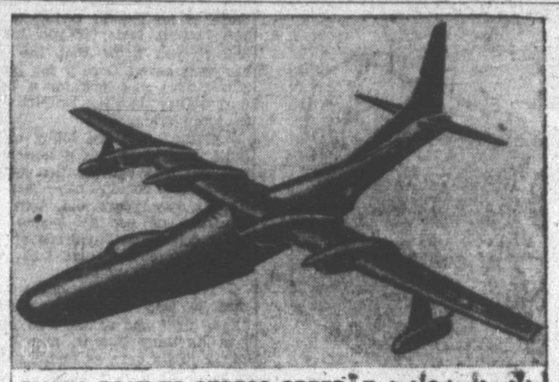

"And entering the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted."

The Easter anthems will rise from a floating stage on Lake Springfield, Ill. In San Diego county, California, Christians will ride to greet morning in the mountains and join in services from horseback.

At Mount Rubidoux, near Riverside, Calif., thousands will climb a twisting path to the rugged Sierra cross for services which have been held there annually since 1909. Many will climb the mountain in the evening, carrying blankets for an all-night vigil.

Dawn comes last in the nation on the floor of Yosemite Valley. The a cappella choir on the shores of Mirror Lake may hear their anthems ring against the towering granite of the Sierras.

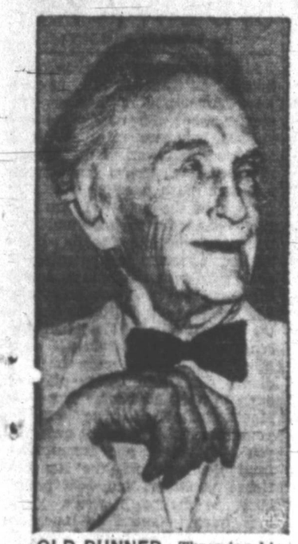

"And he said unto them, be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen: He is not here: Behold the place where they laid him."

FLYING BOAT TO STRESS SPEED—Fastest flying boat in the 40-year history of water-based aviation is expected to be the Convair R3Y-1 "Tradewind," shown in artist's sketch above. Its top speed will be more than 350 miles per hour. The 80-ton transport, equipped with air conditioning and high altitude pressurizing systems, is the first water-based transport fitted with rearward-facing passenger seats. The plane is being tested at San Diego, Cal., and will be ready for trans-Pacific Navy service early in 1954.

Good Friday Observance

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 3—UP—Radio station WBRK will go off the air for one hour and 15 minutes today, Good Friday. The station said it hoped listeners during the time would "attend the church of their choice."

OLD RUNNER—Throwing his hat into the mayoralty race in New York City is Bernarr MacFadden, 85-year-old health culturist. He made a bid to be a U. S. senator from Florida in 1940 and ran for the governorship of Florida on the Democratic ticket in 1948, but lost both times. He was also a candidate for President in 1936.

Canadian Gets Near Sweep Of League Literary Contests

CANADIAN (Special)— Canadian students came close to making a clean sweep of the Literary Division of the District 2-A Interscholastic League contests here for the second straight year, winning fourteen first places, three second places and one third out of twenty events on the program.

Canadian's school total was 196½ points; with Wellington students running second with 87 points; Memphis third with 35; Shamrock fourth with 23½; and Lefors fifth with 17. Childress, Clarendon, and McLean entries failed to place.

The local schools walked away with the District Literary Trophy, and took a commanding lead in the District 2-A contests for the all-events trophy which will be awarded after track and field, volleyball and tennis matches are completed.

The Canadian High School one-act play cast, coached by Mrs. Paula Cloyd, started the landslide taking first place in that event with "The Rock," a religious drama. Members of the cast were Gary Gray, Danny Conklin, Jack Matthews, Jan Waters, Aladelle Williams and Roberta Schoenhals.

Only two other schools, Memphis and Wellington, presented plays. The Clarendon high school cast cancelled its scheduled production at the last minute.

Canadian entries in Saturday's events, and their placings in the various contests were:

Senior girls declamation: Aladelle Williams, 1st place.

Junior girls declamation: Shirley Oliver, 1st place.

Junior boys declamation: Phil Waters, 2nd place.

Typewriter: Claudette Sporks and Barbara Norvill, 1st and 2nd place respectively.

Senior high spelling: Nona Dale Snyder and Clata Bettis, 1st place.

Seventh, eighth grade spelling: Eleanor Owens and Jacqueline Sharp, 1st place.

Fifth and six grade spelling: Judy Jackson and Andrea Jackson, 1st place.

Senior ready writers: Phyllis Yarnold, 1st place.

Junior ready writers: Texa Peterson, 1st place.

Grade school number sense: Nan Rivers and Malouf Abraham, 1st place.

Girls extemporaneous speaking: Nancy Williams, 1st place.

Shorthand: Stan Douglass, 3rd place.

Grade school girls declamation: Sandra Waters, 1st place; Carol Pinson, 2nd place.

Picture memory: John Rogers, Judy Ereman, Betty Lee Abraham, Kathryn Bennett, Jane Etheredge and Carolyn Sutton, 1st place.

Story telling: Weldon Walser, 1st place.

No district schools entered debate teams this year. Canadian schools placed in every contest except senior boys declamation, slide rule, high school number sense and boys' extemporaneous speaking.

Canadian students topped their 1952 record in the district contests. Last year, local students won ten first places, scoring a total of 140 points.

Spurn This Type Of Bridge Bid

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Don't blame me for the bidding of today's hand. I don't recommend North's second bid, but that's the bid he actually made.

The hand took place in a team match in England, and the North player couldn't think of a good rebid at this second turn. He chose to rebid his clubs, and South, logically enough, went to game in no-trump.

West opened the queen of diamonds, holding the trick, and continued with the jack of diamonds. East dared not cover with the king, for then South would be able to win two tricks with his ace and ten. South could therefore hold up his ace of diamonds a second time and thus compel West to shift to a new suit.

West shifted to the jack of clubs, and South won in his own hand with the ace. He led a heart and played the king from dummy to force out East's ace. East returned a diamond to declarer's ace, and West discarded a low club.

South led another heart towards dummy, and West discarded a low spade. This discard told declarer nearly everything he needed to know.

West had showed up with only two diamonds and only one heart, consequently had ten black cards in his hand. If these had been divided 6 - 4, West would have made two discards from his six-card suit in order to keep protection in both black suits.

Since West had acutally discarded one club and one spade, South concluded that West had started with five cards in each of the black suits.

Having arrived at this conclusion, South cashed the king and ace of spades, gratefully noting the fall of East's ten of spades. He then cashed dummy's king and queen of clubs, after which he put West in with the last club.

West then had to lead spades away from his jack up to South's queen - nine. This cleverly - executed end play gave the English declarer his game contract.

Comedy Star Hits The Top; Signed To TV

NEW YORK, April 3—UP—The career of Tom Ewell is in what might be called an "interesting condition."

This young master of the difficult art of stage comedy is in that state known as having "been signed for television."

Now, that is no ordinary phase. It is uttered in upper case tones and is weighted with much more significance than appears in the bare words. It is synonymous with big money, a long-term contract, and special concessions to the performer, including the right to add the word "no" to his vocabulary.

What To Do?

Having reached this state after a struggle through an undergrowth of legal thistles and clauses, an actor finds it pleasant to relax on the plateau of achievement. Unfortunately this period is brief. It ends when someone utters the inevitable question, "now that we've got him, what are we going to do with him?"

This, of course, does not apply only to Ewell, but to most of the stars signed or in process of being signed these days by the networks. Those terrifying words, "material," "format" and "programming," plague the field.

"I do not sing like Pinza—or you might just say I do not sing," Ewell said. "I do not dance like Ray Bolger. I do not do a trampoline act and the only panel work for which I am qualified is concerned with cabinet-making.

"I am an actor, or, what is even more disconcerting, an actor whose forte is comedy. This means that on television I am supposed to be nothing but funny. That is quite an assignment."

Ewell signed with the National Broadcasting Co. this week, close

Pro-Red Profs

The abdication of most American universities from the traditions of American freedom to an affinity for collectivism in general and communist ideology in particular is well explained by Professor Smal-Stocki in his book, "The National Problem of the Soviet Union and Russian Communist Imperialism."

Professor Smal-Stocki is unusually qualified to appraise this situation since this Ukranian scholar served freedom in the face of a concentration camp. He now teaches at Marquette University.

In the introduction to his book, he writes:

"In the course of the past decades we had not received, in our fight for academic freedom in the Soviet Union, one single spontaneous word of encouragement from the American universities; on the contrary, many books of American scholars glorified the regime which killed academic freedom, independent thought and all free intellectual creation."

He continues: "We found here in the U.S.A. a scientific Iron Curtain, with the emblem of a 'red herring,' regarding all matters connected with the Soviet Union, and a very active staff of a 'Soviet-Russian occupation zone' in American intellectual and academic life. These facts explain for us the kind of censorship and thought control which exist especially in the American liberal press and converts this country into an intellectual colony of the Soviet- or Pan-Russian ideology. Some of the DP professors, after a couple of months in the U.S.A., had the feeling that they were trapped here by Stalin's 'Second Front' against the fight for academic freedom . . ."

He writes of "Soviet bandwagon intellectuals (who) by their pseudo-sophistication created in some classes and on campuses this moral and cultural vacuum into which the Russian Communist pest penetrated, infecting youth . . .; these teachers have propagandized on their campuses amongst successive groups of American youth a sloganized 'leftist' thinking of a deadly mediocrity, with a worship of the authoritarian stars of Marx and Lenin, and of everything 'Soviet Russian' as 'social progress'; they are still creating that climate of thought, that 'Soviet Russia worship' and 'Russia mania,' barring all objective research, and fostering the opinion among American university professors that a certain 'fellow-travellerism,' of many different shades, is an absolute necessary make-up for any scholar in the U.S.A. who wishes to be regarded as a 'progressive' or 'liberal.'" And this could not (he says) "have happened by chance," but only as a result of careful planning and clever infiltration by clear-minded enemies, because "the U.S.A. constitutes for Russian Communism the chief target and last obstacle."

The foregoing explains a serious situation which has been obvious to all except those who are too "sophisticated" to view reality.

The evidence is abundant in the outpourings from America's "educators" who give forth with blanket and absolute condemnation of McCarthy, Velde, Jenner, Buckley, ad infinitum. On the other side of the coin, of course, they felt deep sympathy for poor Alger (he was just a confused lad), they offer their moral support to Owen "I can't remember" Lattimore in his "ordeal" and so forth.

The pattern is apparent. Those who find these observations a bit irritating should re-read Professor Smal-Stocki's words to see if they might not have had their ideas moulded by Soviet sympathisers in cap and gown.

Desocializing

A recent Saturday Evening Post editorial began, "Of the 1,117 bills and resolutions dropped into the hopper of the House of Representatives on the opening day of the 83rd Congress, few are of more potential significance than an item identified as House Resolution 12."

This resolution, introduced by Representative Coudert of New York, authorizes the House to conduct an inquiry and recommend to Congress ways and means by which commercial businesses now owned and operated by the government can be sold to private citizens, cooperatives, or corporations.

Going on, the Post said, "Some weeks before the election, Charles E. Wilson — the former Defense Mobilizer, that is — proposed specifically that the country consider the possibility of 'selling our national dams, generating equipment and distribution facilities to the people.' Mr. Wilson suggested that the switch-over could be accomplished simply by authorizing holders of government obligations to exchange their bonds for stock in TVA, or what have you.

"This is a tempting idea . . . Wilson estimates the value of government-owned businesses at about $27,000,000,000. If they were sold, three things would happen. First, the debt itself would be reduced. Second, interest payments on this much of the debt, some $500,000,000 per year, need no longer be paid. And third, these properties would yield taxes for federal and local government.

"The whole idea of de-socializing is likely to become unpopular. In any event, there is nothing wrong with Coudert's proposal to make a study of the whole matter. The road away from socialism must be charted or it will never be completed."

Endless discussion is now being given to the problems of debt reduction and tax reduction. How could a better start be made than by getting government out of debt-building, tax-eating commercial business?

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Are Persons Who Adocate Socialistic Measures More Dangerous Than Members Of Communist Party?

I recently heard a talk by an ex-Communist member. She was an emotional speaker but did not really understand what Socialism and Communism are. She believed that Communism was very dangerous and was based on hate and she thought that there should be great effort devoted to fight the Communist Party.

She thought she was opposed to Socialism, but she really didn't know what socialism is. When she was asked whether tax supported schools were a form of Socialism, she did like all Socialists do — she evaded answering the question. She said she believed in tax supported schools because they were part of the American heritage. She seemed to think that because a certain practice has been followed in America that it is American. But Americanism is based on moral law. The moral law was set down in the Declaration of Independence that respected human initiative where all people were equal before the law.

This ex-Communist was continually telling how much she loved people now that she had renounced being a member of the Communist Party. I remarked to her after her talk that it was a strange kind of love that permitted an individual to advocate sending a policeman to make people be charitable. I said that I didn't know any place that Jesus ever advocated running to the state to get the state to help Him make people love or to be charitable. Her answer was that St. Paul said:

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God.

"Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation."

Of course, if that means that every individual should obey every ruler no matter what he stands for, then our Founding Fathers were receiving to themselves damnation. Then the subjects of a dictator form of government would have no moral right to resist.

I should have told the lady who quoted St. Paul in defense of obeying boards of education without criticism that St. Paul also said:

"Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law.

"And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church."

When one starts to prove moral law by St. Paul it is well to remember that Thomas Jefferson said that St. Paul was the first corrupter of the teachings of Jesus. If they want to find out what Christianity is, it is best to go to the statements made by Jesus rather than to other men.

I have never yet found anyone who would cite quotations accredited to Jesus that advised Christians to seek the police power of the state to make men love or to be charitable. Remember Jesus said:

"Greater love hath no man than he lay down his life for another."

He didn't say greater love hath no man than he lay down another person's life. And the man who advocates public schools is in effect contending that the parents do not need to love their children enough to be willing to lay down their life for them. They are advocating in effect that they have the right to make other people lay down part of their life for them.

It is a well-known fact that our danger from Communism doesn't come from the destitute or the humble, but it comes from the individuals who regard themselves as intellectuals but who do not even know what Socialism and Communism are. And they cannot oppose from a rational standpoint something that they do not know the essence of.

So one wonders whether a reformed Communist who believes in State schools is not more dangerous, as far as spreading Socialism and Communism is concerned, when she advocates mob rule schools than she was when she was a member of the Communist party. It is the people who are advocating Socialism and who don't know it that we better try to awaken. That to my mind is more important than trying to run down a few misguided members of the Communist Party.

Ike's Administration Marked By Aggressive Foreign Policy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — An Eisenhower success in current negotiations over European unity with Konrad Adenauer, the German chancellor, will mark another advance in the more aggressive foreign policy inaugurated at Washington under the new administration.

In so many seemingly unrelated ways that the pattern is difficult to assemble, the Eisenhower-Dulles combination has strengthened the United States position in many key sections of the anti-Russian front.

Unlike the Truman administration, Ike has wrested substantial gains for this country in return for every concession he has granted. He has shown himself to be a sharp trader for America.

In short, he has substantiated doubts expressed in foreign capitals during last year's campaign and since the election. European statesmen and editorial writers, who favored Stevenson in the main, did not conceal their fear that Eisenhower, with an intimate knowledge of their economic and military potential, would be a harder taskmaster than Truman.

BARGAINING WEAPONS — In the negotiations with Churchill and Eden, for instance, he won their promise to cut off all trade with China in British ships. In view of the fact that London has formally recognized the Communist regime at Peiping, this was an extremely important diplomatic victory.

The visitors obtained only a White House assurance that Eisenhower would not extend the sphere of conflict in the Far East or use the atomic bomb without first consulting 10 Downing Street, since Ike has no intention of resorting to such extreme action, he was giving away nothing here. On question of further financial, monetary or commercial aid, Churchill was told to put his house in order before holding out his hat again.

It was, so the records show, the first time in many years that Washington utilized its military and financial supremacy as bargaining weapons. More important, it was the first time that an administration demanded that our allies assume heavier responsibilities in the cold war.

FRANCE OUR STRONG OUTPOST — Eisenhower followed this same quid pro quo procedure in his negotiations with Rene Mayer, the French premier. Even shrewder trading was required here because of the fact that France is, until Germany enters the European Defense Community, our strongest outpost in Europe.

The White House simply recognized in these talks what has been an obvious fact — namely, that the resistance to Communist expansion in Korea and Indo-China is an "interdependent operation." Indeed many military and diplomatic experts regard the French front as far more important than our fight on the peninsula. Therefore, Ike will increase from $400,000,000 to about $600,000,000 the annual amount of aid and arms to Indo-China.

But, speaking as a military man as well as President, Ike insisted that Mayer submit a blueprint of a plan to achieve victory over the Red invaders. He also asked that Mayer speed up his parliament's ratification of treaties on behalf of economic and military unification of Europe.

When Mayer tried to win a promise that the U.S. support him in his clash with Bonn over future ownership of the steel-and-coal rich Saar, he was told that this was a problem for him and Adenauer to settle.

MEIADTION IN MIDDLE EAST — Eisenhower and Dulles have also acted to increase American prestige in the strategic Middle East. They have taken a firmer attitude toward difficulties in Iran, Egypt and the Arabian area generally. Their historically friendly nations had lost confidence in us during the Truman-Acheson regime.

Mossadegh, for example, had held out against an oil settlement with the British in expectation that we would force London to surrender to his excessive demands. But when he rejected a fairly generous concession worked out between London and Washington, he was informed that he could expect no further asistance from us.

Our mediation in Egypt has apparently won agreement between Cairo and London over the Sudan problem Ike has assured the Arab League of our friendship in an attempt to form an anti-Moscow coalition in that sphere. Dulles will soon visit this area in an effort to win them permanently to Washington instead of Moscow. It will be another major move in the strategy of tightening the blockade against a Soviet explosion and expansion.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M.D.

With increasing frequency this column is receiving inquiries concerning a disease known as lupus erythematosus, which is commonly classified as a skin disorder even though it affects other parts of the body.

Lupus has been considered a rather rare disorder, but like others which may be uncommon for years, there is always a possibility that it will crop up more frequently as time goes by. Let us hope not.

Lupus erythematosus is a strange and peculiar disease which has been known for more than 80 years. As yet, however, the cause has not been discovered, nor is there a thoroughly satisfactory treatment, though the possibilities for treatment have looked up with the appearance of cortisone and ACTH.

The disease seems to act on a certain tissue of the body which is the binding substance for the blood vessels. This tissue is called collagenous tissue. It has been studied a good deal in recent years, but our knowledge of its functions and diseases is incomplete.

Weakness, fatigue and fever are common early signs of lupus. Unlike many diseases accompanied by fever, there is a low white-blood count — that is, a smaller than average number of white blood cells in the blood. Joint pains are fairly common. Although the skin symptoms have long been considered characteristic, they may not appear at first and sometimes the skin signs are completely absent.

Lupus erythematosus is much more common in women than in men. It may start in children as young as six or eight years old. Its diagnosis has been simplified by a rather new and ingenious laboratory test.

The fever and joint pains are generally improved by using drugs like aspirin which contain salicylates. The sulfa preparations, or at least one of them, may have some value also. Male hormones have been tried but have not been shown to have any definite effect on the course of the disease.

The skin of patients with lupus erythematosus is frequently sensitive to light and may have to be protected against the sun. ACTH and cortisone have brought some good results.

TREATMENTS ARE TRIED

Other kinds of treatments which have been tried include well - balanced diet, but not too much food. Adequate amounts of vitamins, particularly "B" and "C," have been recommended, but these do not appear to influence the underlying condition.

It is encouraging that lupus erythematosus is now receiving some concentrated study. This has been made possible in large part by the development of the rather new and quite accurate diagnostic test. Also, cortisone and ACTH have brought forth the possibility of new kinds of study of the disease, as well as treatment.

Hank Gets Sure-Cure For His Ills From Strange Old Woman

By HENRY McLEMORE

LAS VEGAS — If you don't think Las Vegas is a town that exists on the outer fringes of the world, please listen to what happened to me today.

When I woke up I was suffering the tortures of the damned with bursitis in my right shoulder. If you've never had bursitis there is no use in trying to tell you how it feels; if you have had it you know that the pain has won seven Oscars for horror and makes you look for a building higher than the Empire State to jump from.

I walked into the lobby of the hotel, bought myself a newspaper and fell into conversation with a woman who couldn't have been less than ninety years old. Ten feet in front of us the casino was going full blast. Hundreds of people were playing blackjack, roulette and shooting craps.

I remarked to the old woman that it was an amazing sight. "Yes, sir," she said. "I've never seen anything like it, and I am happy to be here — and I wouldn't be here if it weren't for cuckleberry tea."

She then told me that up until the last six months she had been unable to walk a foot because of arthritis, but that cuckleberry tea had straightened her right out. I told her about my ailment and asked if she thought cuckleberry tea would do me any good.

"A gallon of cuckleberry tea would cure you completely," she said.

"Got any on you?" I asked.

"Didn't bring any with me, son, because I feel frisky enough now without it, but don't you let a day pass without getting yourself some."

I asked her what cuckleberries were and she said that surely I must know all about cuckleberries, but if I didn't know I should write to her daughter-in-law in Amarillo and she would send me some.

"How do you make cuckleberry tea?" I asked.

"Simple as all get-out. Just drop a cup of 'em in boiling water and drink what happens," she said.

I wanted to know where she found this cure for arthritis and other miseries of the joints. The old lady told me that it was her great-grandmothr's recipe and had kept the Hinkleys healthy for a century and a half.

I am now in the market for cuckleberries and if any of you readers has any cuckleberries hanging around I'd be glad to buy them from you, because bursitis is a real mean thing.

I remember the last time I had it. It was in Boston, where I was covering the National Tennis Doubles Championships, and I was advised to see a Boston doctor who was reputed to be the world's authority on the ailment. I called his office and the receptionist said I could not see the doctor.

I explained to her that it was urgent. She still said that I could not.

I argued with her for twenty minutes and finally found out why I couldn't see the doctor.

The Nation's Press

HOW NOT TO BALANCE THE BUDGET

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

The house has taken up President Eisenhower's proposal to glorify the federal security agency by making it a cabinet department withthe usual quota of high salaried burocrats, including an undersecretary and some assistant secretaries. Except as it may gratify Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, the present head of the agency, the proposal has little to recommend it and a great deal to condemn it.

Regardless of original intentions, the principal duty of most of the present cabinet members is to serve as political lieutenants of the President, charged with cultivating, rewarding, and winning the support of certain segments of the nation's vote. The secretary of agriculture is assigned to winning the farm vote, the secretary of labor to running errands for and lining up the labor bosses, the secretary of commerce to winning the support of business, the state department to winning the Anglophil vote, etc.

Thus, creation of a department of health, education, and welfare can only be regarded as a disposition to put welfare in politics and keep it there on a permanent, organized basis. The fact that this is a continuation of a Truman policy does not, of course, commend the Eisenhower action. Except for political purposes, Mr. Truman had no need of Oscar Ewing as federal security administrator. Running social security is a routine administrative job that has been performed since the system was established by Arthur J. Altmeyer. Mr. Altmeyer, in fact, was able to give time to other governmental tasks, like the refugee programs. Mr. Ewing was just a political propagandist.

The very title of the proposed department thrusts it into fields that the administration cannot enter without breaking faith with Republican voters. No cabinet voice is needed on health problems unless the administration wants to socialize medicine. No secretary is needed for education unless the New Deal objective of federal support and control of education is to be made a Republican goal.

The Eisenhower administration is committed abstractly to economy in government, but opposes tax reductions "at this time." The argument is that the budget should be balanced first. Creation of a new department, with functions assigned to it which the government has so far been wisely kept from assuming, is a step away from economy. The history of every government department is that it grows as fast as it can talk Congress out of funds for expansion.

Sen. Taft has come forth with a curious defense of the scheme. He says that only thru reorganization can Mrs. Hobby get her own staff, replacing New Dealers in policy making posts who were blanketed into civil service in the Roosevelt - Truman administrations. The cure isn't worth the cost of the remedy. To get rid of the present useless burocracy of the agency, we would have to pay for a larger burocracy in the proposed new department.

LOOKING SIDEWAYS

By WHITNEY BOLTON

About two years ago, convinced that not all travelers to Europe were American millionaires, no matter what the natives of the various countries might think, I sat down and worked my brains, maps and telephones for a week and then did a front-porch tour of Europe in the hope of making things easier for the man and family onthe short end of folding money. People seemed to appreciate it and some even wrote in and said they had saved a lot of money and seen a lot of things not in the guide books. If Ihad had any sense I would have taken it from there and made a cozy buck. I didn't, but David Dodge did and early in April his book, "The Poor Man's Guide to Europe" can be yours for $2.95. It might even get you a bonus of a pleasant note from Bennett Cerf, the Random House publisher, but he's pretty busy, so maybe it won't. You may have to spend as much as $5 to get a note from Cerf.

Mr. Dodge is a formidable man at the gentle art of squeezing the most action out of any given dollar bill. He knows how to squeeze it, tease it and make it cry "Uncle!" He knows, for example, that it is cheaper to buy national currencies in Switzerland than in the countries of the moneys' origins. You can save $50 on the way to Spain by importing your money, for example. If you have a flighty wife, take out a Family Passport. That way she can't leave you to elope with an Italian count. She would have to have a personal passport and, once the Family type is issued, personal ones aren't easy to come by.

No matter how long you intend to remain in a country — enter as a tourist. You benefit a dozen ways, even if you remain there 15 years. Try to learn as many foreign languages as possible. You get actual cash benefits by being able to sling a few words around with poise and authority. I've tried that myself. I get more butter in Italian restaurants in New York by learning, with a good Italian inflection, how to ask for more butter. An Italian waiter will give you not even the time of day if you say in English: "Some butter, please." But if you don't look up from your plate and growl: "Di burro, di burro!" you get it swiftly and in quantity.

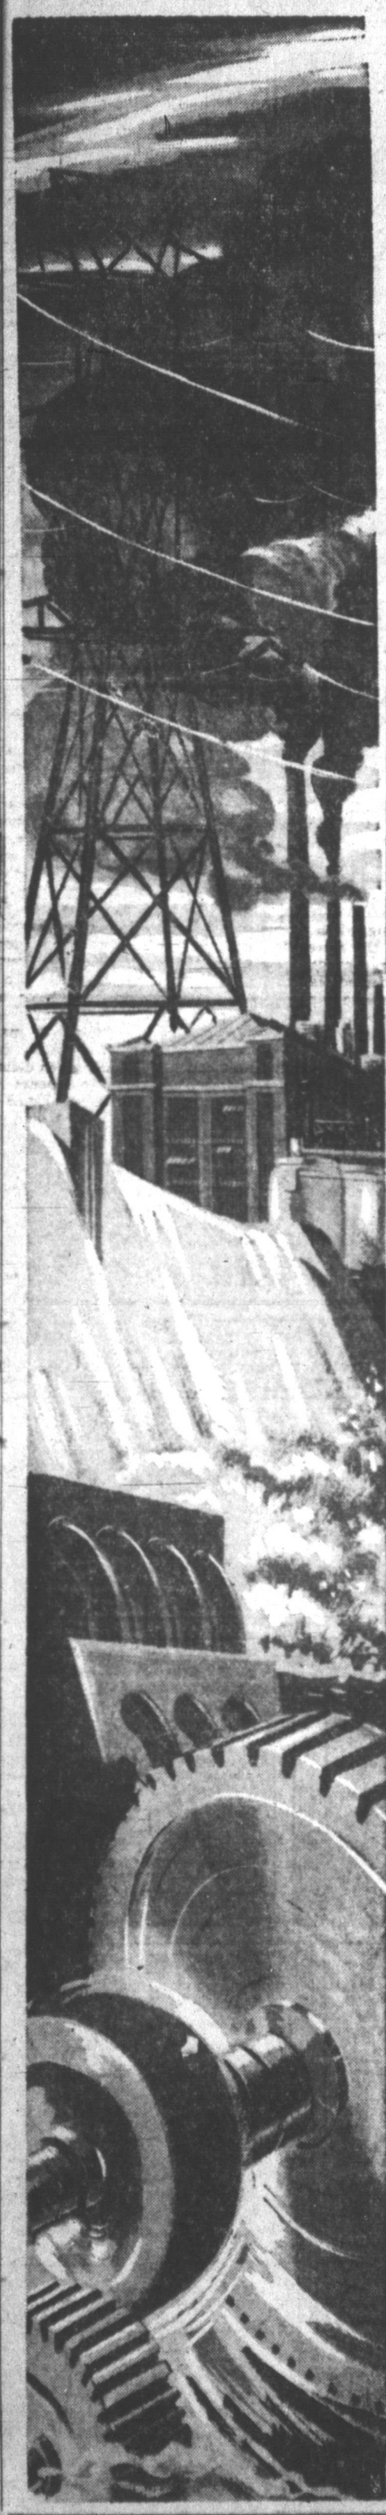

Mr. Dodge, fooling around the British Isles, discovered that Irish pounds can be acquired more cheaply than British pounds—and they will buy more. That alone is worth a week-end of free, costless travel. Don't ever argue with a customs man in Europe. Just smile and say nothing. In England, don't even smile. Just stand there and look honest. If you lose your temper and fan the air with your arms you will only get the short end of matters. But if you want to be sick run for England as fast as you, a Channel steamer or an airplane can get you there. Travelers get free medical treatment in England, although this is not supposed to include gall bladder operations or other serious illnesses.

France has a neat dodge: you buy French francs cheaply in France—and spend them at face value in other countries. Mr. Dodge, again, offers a nice, legal way to bolster your travel dollar. And if Mama gets a splurging bee and decides to stock up on clothes, hustle her to Rome or Madrid as fast as you can. She can buy Italian or Spanish high fashion garments, recognized the world over as the best, much cheaper than in Paris, where they are coasting on past repute.

Lastly, thank Mr. Dodge for informing you that if you fly trans-Atlantic to Switzerland you can, as your own pleasure and discretion, see seven other European cities for the price of one. Read the small stop-over type on your air ticket. It's right there. Most people don't bother and keep buying air ticket. It's right there. Most people don't bother and keep buying air tickets from place to place.

County Picks Hwy. Board

Members of the county commissioners court today were independently considering names of "disinterested" county residents to appoint to a two-man bargaining board in obtaining rights - of - way along U. S. Highway 66 west of Alanreed.

The decision to name a four-man board — acting unofficially —was taken early this week during a joint meeting of the Donley and Gray County commissioners' courts. Two disinterested men from each county will be appointed to the board to bargain with landowners along the 91.1 miles in Gray County and 6-plus miles in Donley County.

The State Highway Department is asking for 100 feet of additional right - of - way north of the proposed extension of the four - lane highway from five miles west of Alanreed to the Carson County line. The road zig zags from Gray to Donley counties along the stretch.

The board's powers will be limited only to talking with all the landowners of 21 different tracts of land in Gray County, comprising 107.93 acres, and arriving at are paid. If the counties and land- The two men will report to the Gray County Commissioners as will the two men from Donley County report to their county comissioners before any rights-of-way damages are paid. If the counties and landowners cannot get together, then condemnation proceedings will have to be taken, as is the usual procedure.

A total of $30,000 — $20,000 for this year — has been set up for rights - of - way purchasers in the county, but none of it earmarked for any specific part, Judge J. B. Maguire, Jr., reported. when the two Gray County men

The judge said he did not know will be appointed because several will have to be approached first and two will have to agree to serve.

"We do know that in Gray County neither of the men who will serve will come from Precinct 3 where the right-of-way is involved in our county. That way we believe both the county and the landowner will get a fair and reasonable figure. Donley County will not pick its two men from Precinct 1, where their right-of-way is involved. At least that is what we decided between us yesterday."

Further consideration of the Gray County appointees will be taken up at the next meeting unless the court should have a special session.

The agreement between the purchase of a strip of Mexican territory in Northern Sonora and United States and Mexico for the Chihuahua, known as the Gadsden Purchase, was signed Dec. 30 1853.

Try Playing Liar Dice; It's Fun

By OSWALD JACOBY and ALFRED SHEINWOLD
Written for NEA Service

This is not a game that will enthrall you for an entire evening, but it's a very pleasant way to spend twenty minutes or to settle who pays the dinner check. It calls for a slight knowledege o. poker, a good knowledge of your opponent, and your share of good luck.

In the way of equipment you need one opponent and, preferably, a few specators who can keep straight faces. Each of the two players needs a dice cup and five ordinary dice. A screen may be rigged up by slightly opening a large book and resting it upright on the table.

The first step is to decide who calls first. This is done by rolling one die each. High man calls first. (In case of a tie, roll again until the tie is broken.)

Each player now rolls all of his dice, being carful to keep close to his own side of the screen. The idea is to see your own dice but not to see those of your opponent.

The first caller announces a poker hand, which he claims he has just rolled with his dice. For example, he announces, "Three ones, a three and a four." This claim may or may not be true.

If your opponent, as first caller, announces such a hand, you must do one of three things. You may immediately announce a higher hand; you may roll some or all of your dice and then announce a higher hand or you may say, "You're a liar" and lift up the screen to see your opponent's dice.

If you announce a higher hand, your claim may or may not be true. Your opponent then must take one of the three steps just mentioned.

If you call your opponent a liar, he wins if he has the hand he has represented or better. He loses if he has less than the hand he has claimed.

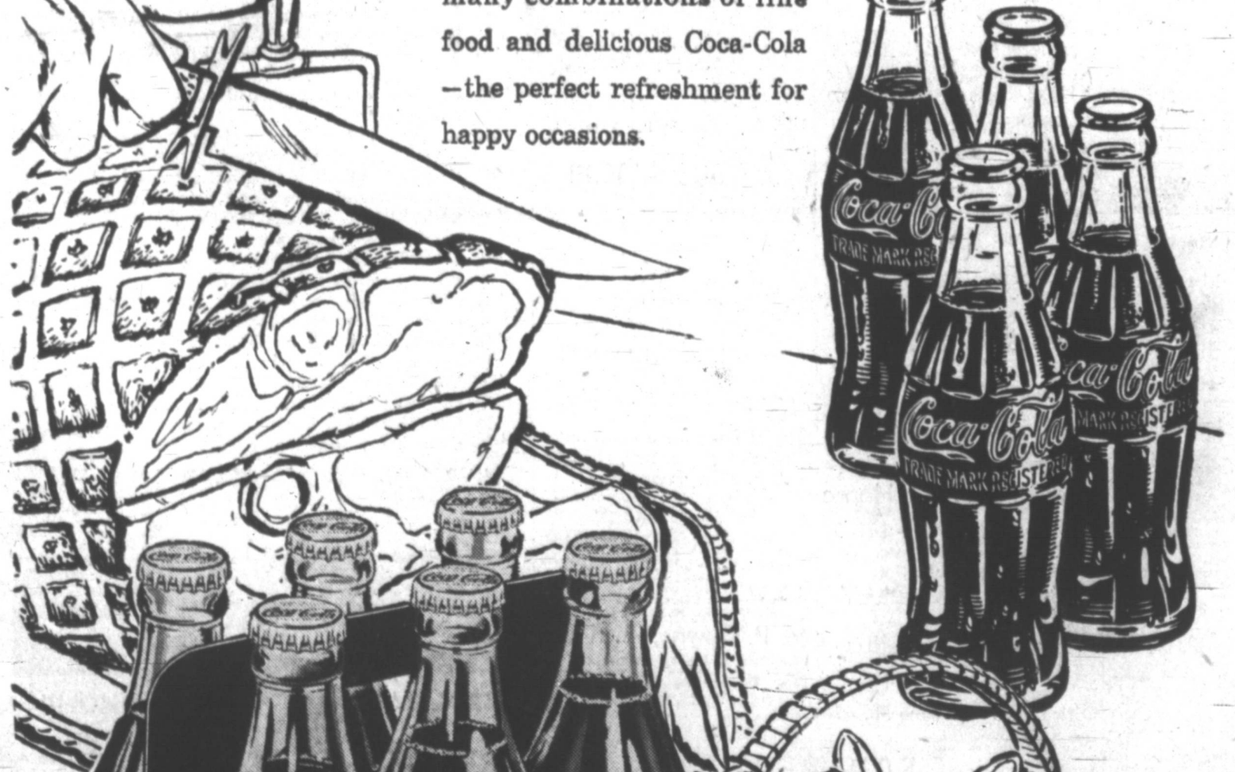

The hands rank much as in poker. Five of a kind is best; four of a kind is second best, followed by full house (three of a kind and a pair), three of a kind, two pairs, and one pair. Straights and flushes are usually not played.

A player is allowed only three rolls per game. After the third roll he must make a higher claim.
