ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY FOR MISS ELSIE TYSON

Mrs. J. U. Fields, Clyde F. Fields and R. V. Robertson, entertained a reception Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. U. Fields, when announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tyson of this city, to Mr. M. Hughes. The date of the wedding was announced as June 6.

The party was an especially pretty affair with the reception hall and living room suitably decorated with flowers and set with the rainbow colors. The guests on arriving were greeted by Mrs. R. R. Grissom, in rose frocks and J. E. Grissom, in blue crepe de chine. The guests were then regaled by one of the charming hostesses, J. U. Fields, in a gown of blue and silver lace, heading the line with the honoree, in a gown of changeable green taffeta. In the receiving line were Mesdames Tyson, mother of the bride-to-be, costumed in purple taffeta, with grey trimmings, M. O. Shook, costumed in pink georgette, and S. A. Hughes, mother of the groom, in a gown of blue and white taffeta.

Entering the living room, the guests were greeted by Mrs. C. B. Long, in a costume of white and pink crepe, and Mrs. R. C. Montgomery, in a dress of white crepe de chine, where they were in turn presented to Mrs. C. F. Elkins, another charming hostess in a costume of blue taffeta, who presented the guests to Mesdames Musser, Abilene, wearing a gown of white taffeta, painted taffeta, Lewis Sherrill, Abilene, in a costume of white taffeta, dotted organdy, Joe Jones of Abilene, in a gown of white taffeta, and in a changeable blue taffeta. The guests were then given favors of cupid heads by the coming wedding, by Miss Nancy Fio Grissom, costume as cupid, assisted by Mesdames J. E. Grissom, in rose frocks and J. E. Grissom, in blue crepe de chine. The guests were then regaled by one of the charming hostesses, J. U. Fields, in a gown of blue and silver lace, heading the line with the honoree, in a gown of changeable green taffeta. In the receiving line were Mesdames Tyson, mother of the bride-to-be, costumed in purple taffeta, with grey trimmings, M. O. Shook, costumed in pink georgette, and S. A. Hughes, mother of the groom, in a gown of blue and white taffeta.

After four years in the Confederate service Mr. Hemphill took his bride to Bastrop county where a large family was raised. She had already started right by joining the Methodist church after conversion at twelve years of age. She was determined not to rest until her life partner was on the right way of living, and he did, each joining the same church, where they have both labored so well together. It was her special delight to minister to the chosen leaders of the church. All work and everything laid aside to attend quarterly conferences, Sunday schools, the preaching services. A more zealous Christian was hard to find. A loving tribute from a grandson in a letter says: "I have been thinking all the morning of how Grannie used to teach us children in her Sunday School class. She surely has done her part in this world and if anyone ever goes to Heaven, she will."

Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill spent the major part of their lives in Williamson county where they raised ten of their twelve children to be grown. Mrs. Hemphill leaves a husband, five sons and three daughters, four sons preceding her into the Unknown. She was very proud of her large family, thirty-one grand-children and twelve great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill lived several years in Haskell county, only moving to Belton last September, where they would be more centrally located and near their children.

The gentle spirit of this noble mother was called to rest Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

In Memoriam

The following is taken from the Belton Journal of May 19th, concerning the death of Mrs. Jacob Hemphill, who with her husband formerly resided in Haskell county:

Mrs. Emily V., wife of Jacob Hemphill and daughter of John and Caroline Jarnigan, was born in Ft. Gaines, Ga., November 20, 1843. Her parents moved to East Texas when she was six years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill were married at Cold Springs, San Jacinto county, Texas, in 1862. This aged couple lived in sweet companionship for almost three score years, and each to pass the seventy-seventh milestone of life there being only three months difference in their ages. They lived in their boyhood and girlhood lives through the frontier days of Texas.

The New Doctor Prescribes

BOTH BOND ISSUES CARRY BY LARGE MAJORITY

In the city election which was held here Tuesday on the question of issuing $30,000 in bonds for permanent street improvements and $20,000 for waterworks improvements, both issues carried by a majority of about six to one.

The Street Improvements Bonds carried by 144 to 23.

The waterworks improvement bonds carried by 140 to 24.

A very light vote was cast in the election, which is due probably to the fact there was no opposition developed to the issuance of the bonds and the voters were confident they would carry by a large majority—hence the people did not take the interest in the question usually manifested in an election of this kind.

The City Council has already begun work on the city wells and expect to rush same until the wells are placed in a sanitary condition. A filtering plant will be purchased and installed and some extensions in the mains made as soon as the bonds are sold.

The paving committee states that they expect to begin work on paving the square as soon as they can let a contract and the successful bidder get the material on the ground.

SCHOOL MAY DAY FETE A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Haskell's second May Day fete was given at the North Ward building Wednesday evening, in the open air. Haskell's appreciation of the efforts of grade teachers and pupils was evidenced by the large crowd present. Many beautiful drills were given. The May Pole dance given by girls in beautiful costumes certainly showed untiring effort and a great amount of work on the part of teachers and pupils. The pretty and appropriate costumes showed that the parents had a hand in helping to make this affair a grand success.

Miss Ida Mae Fox had the honor of being crowned Queen of the May and both Queen and attendants were charmingly attired in dainty gowns suiting the occasion.

May Day in Haskell has become an annual affair anticipated by the entire county and the teachers and pupils are to be commended in making it a success.

THERE IS A SKELETON IN YOUR CLOSET, TOO!

It hangs on a hook in your closet, or it may be hid away in the attic, or in an old unused trunk somewhere about the house. You call it perhaps your "spare suit"—a coat you have outworn, a dress that is no longer in style. You call it that—because you do not understand.

Over in Armenia, little helpless children, and tottering old men and women are desperately covering their emaciated bodies with strips of old rags and burlap bags. You cannot help but feel that these extra clothes of yours—clothes that you do not now need and may never wear again—are "skeletons in your closet."

Then bundle them out! Phone either one of the ladies auxiliaries of the different churches of the city and they will be glad to include them in a box that will be sent from Haskell next week.

PERCENTAGE OF HIGH SCHOOL HITTERS GOOD

The high school baseball season ended after their victory over Goree Wednesday. The team comes through with a fine record. They have not lost a game to any other high school. Out of five tries at the City Team they won three, which gives them the championship of the town. The boys feel that they could give Abilene a hard fight for the District Championship, but cannot do so because of the lack of money to arrange for the game.

HASKELL DEFEATS GOREE WEDNESDAY 27 TO 4

Last Wednesday Haskell swamped Goree in a very loose game by a score of 27 to 4. The Goree boys, having lost to Haskell the week before 13 to 1, promised to bring over a strong team. They were to play four high school boys, including a pitcher, and five of Goree's salaried team. Under these conditions the Haskell fans were expecting a fast game but no doubt they were disappointed, unless they enjoyed seeing the diamond used as a track. Goree's high school pitcher lasted two innings, during which time he was hit for a total of 8 safeties. Then a Goree town player went in and was hit for 13 safeties during the remainder of the game. Kimbrough, pitching for Haskell, allowed 6 hits, all of which were scattered.

Summary: Struck out by Kimbrough 5; by Martin 1; Thornton 1. Walked by Kimbrough 2; by Thornton 1. Two-base hits: Killingsworth 2, Lonnie Griffin 2. Three base hits: Kimbrough, T. Griffin, Heard, Thornton. Home run: Stewart.

Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Guest are the proud parents of a fine son which arrived May 20.

HASKELL DEFEATS ANSON IN FAST GAME MONDAY

Last Monday the Haskell boys, playing partly high school and partly town boys, won from Anson 4-5. Anson used men not in high school also.

The game was the fastest played here this year and a good crowd was out to see it. West from Knox City, did mound duty up to the seventh when he was released by Stewart. Haskell scored first in the third; Anson tied in the fourth; Anson scored one run in the fifth, one in the sixth and one in the seventh. With the score 4 to 1 in Anson's favor the game went up to the last of the ninth without further scoring. Then Haskell staged a hitting rally and ran across four scores. Stewart led off with a single to left, stole second, and advanced to third when Anson's shortstop booted Kimbrough's hot one. Stewart scored and Kimbrough advanced to third on Kemp's slow grounder to the infield. Kimbrough came home when Anson was contesting a decision, making the score 3 to 4. Kemp took second; Whitnair walked and Kemp scored on Anderson's clean hit to the infield. Summary: Struck out by West, 7; by Kennedy 2; by Stewart 3. Hits off West, 6; off Kennedy 6; off Stewart 2. Walked by West, 3; Kennedy 1. Two-base hits: Griffin, Van Buskirk, White.

However he states that he has not forgotten Kouri No. 1, and expects work to continue until the world knows that Kouri No. 1 is a real oil well. The letter was written for Mr. Kouri by his little thirteen year old daughter. He also sent his best wishes to his many friends here.

The Phonograph

That Amazed Haskell

Can Be Bought!

There is a rumor abroad that the instrument which triumphed in the drastic comparison test, made on May 3rd, at Dick's Theatre, was a special exhibition model. That rumor is false. The instrument was a regular Official Laboratory Model,—taken from the home of Chas. McGregor and had been in use for some time.

Every Official Laboratory Model in our stock is guaranteed to sustain the same test.

If you were one of those in the audience who wistfully exclaimed: "Wouldn't it be wonderful if I could buy a phonograph like that"—know that you can. Know that it will perform this miracle every day for you in your own home.

The New Edison

"THE PHONOGRAPH WITH A SOUL"

Come in and hear for yourself the Official Laboratory's marvelous realism. Find out about our Budget Plan, which enables you to own an Official Laboratory Model for a small down payment, the balance on a gentleman's agreement to suit your convenience.

Note:—The test at Dick's Theatre was made by Miss Helen Davis, gifted mezzo-soprano and Sibyl Sanderson Fagan, popular whistler, the world-famous soprano. They compared their living art with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. There was no difference between the living performance and the RE-CREATED performance.

The New Edison stands absolutely alone in this achievement; no other phonograph has ever sustained the test of comparison.

A Few Instruments Certified by Helen Davis and Sibyl Sanderson Fagan

Every one who selects his Official Laboratory Model now, receives one of these handsomely engraved documents, which certifies over the signatures of Helen Davis and Sibyl Sanderson Fagan that such instrument is the equal in every respect of the instrument used in their test. The artists have personally inspected all the Official Laboratory Models in our store.

Judge J. D. Parker of Cisco, Texas, Announces His Candidacy for Senator of the 28th Senatorial District

"To the Voters of the 28th Senatorial District:

"I take this method of soliciting your support in the coming election on June 4th, at which time the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator John A. Russell will be filled.

"To those who do not know me, I will state that I am a native Texan, born in Collin county, forty-four years ago. In 1899 I made my home in Fisher County. For the last three years I have resided in Cisco, Eastland county.

"I know the needs of West Texas; I know the people of the West—their hopes and aspirations. The time has come when the West should assert herself, when she should demand justice in the solution of her pressing social, economic and industrial problems; when she should demand less of politics and more of plain business and common sense; when she should demand leaders who know her needs and are capable of giving her adequate representation.

MY OPPONENT.

"What can West Texas gain by electing my opponent to the office of senator? He is now representative from this district, and has the same opportunity to serve the people in the house as in the senate. He has refused to resign from his present office. Should one man try to hog all the offices in the district at one time?

"If he should be elected, he would have to resign from the office of representative. The special session is called for July. After June 4th, it will be almost impossible to elect a man to fill such a vacancy and West Texas will be minus a representative during that important session. And, God knows, she will need every vote she can get at that critical time, when so many issues will arise that will vitally concern her interests.

SOME PROPOSALS FAVORED.

All measures designed to advance the rural free schools and of the entire public school system.

Immediate re-districting of the representative and senatorial districts of Texas.

An amendment to the suspended sentence law, with the aim of restricting its use and preventing its abuse.

Protection of our citizenship from criminality by more rigorous enforcement of the present law, rather than by multiplying the number of laws.

Economy in state government by the elimination of unnecessary officials and by the consolidation of duplicating departments.

In view of the fact that West Texas practically donated the capitol building to the state and built the asylum for the blind, by contributing its fertile prairies, and that she has given thousands of acres to the railroads of the state, at the same time, she has borne an unequal share of the burden of taxation, I THEREFORE, FAVOR A MORE UNIFORM TAX LAW THAT WILL RELIEVE WEST TEXAS FROM THE PRESENT UNEQUAL BURDEN.

Immediate and substantial relief for all soldiers wounded or otherwise incapacitated during the World War.

If elected I will concentrate my untiring efforts to the policy of less politics and more business in the administration of government and strive sincerely to forward the interests of the farmer, laborer, stockman and business man, to the end that all classes may have a part in developing the unlimited resources of the West and of the entire state.

Sincerely yours,

J. D. BARKER.

JUDGE BARKER ISENDORSED BY BAR

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 28th SENATORIAL DISTRICT OF TEXAS:

We, the undersigned attorneys of the Cisco Bar, take this method of expressing our approval and endorsement of the candidacy of Judge J. D. Barker of Cisco, as the logical man to fill the responsible position of state senator of our district. He is upright; an exemplary citizen, a sound lawyer of broad judicial experience, and is a man qualified in every respect to represent the people of West Texas in the senate. Having resided in this district since 1899, he is thoroughly conversant with the industrial and economic problems of the west, and will be a fearless advocate of her legitimate legislative requirements, yet a conservative in procuring and presenting those measures which will best subserve the demands of our section and of the entire state.

APPLES FROM ANCIENT TREE

Said to Have Been Planted Ninety-Five Years Ago, It Still Bears Delicious Fruit.

Two apples were picked by A. A. Quinberg at Vancouver recently from what is said to be the oldest apple-tree in the Pacific Northwest. The tree is 95 years old, and is a living monument to the romantic days when the Hudson's Bay company ruled over a vast territory within the United States.

Sailing around Cape Horn in 1826, a Hudson's Bay company employee ate an apple. It seemed such a delicious apple after his long sea diet of salt horse and hardtack that he planned to raise other apples like it in his new home in the wilderness. He dropped the seeds in his vest-pocket and forgot all about them. But they were discovered by the tailor at Fort Vancouver, to whom he turned over his clothes to mend. The tailor gave them to the gardener, who planted them, and the trees that grew from them were the ancestors of the flourishing orchards which have since made Oregon and Washington famous.

The ancient tree, now standing alone on the site of the old fur post, has lived through many changes that made history. Fort Vancouver was founded on the Columbia river in 1824 by the Hudson's Bay company as the rival of John Jacob Astor's pioneer American fur post of Astoria. For years under Chief Factor John McLoughlin, known as "the king of Oregon," it was the company's transmontane capital, and its fur brigades swept as far east as the Rockies and almost as far south as the borders of modern Mexico.

When at the close of the "Fifty-four forty or fight" excitement, Oregon was ceded to the United States, the company abandoned the fort and withdrew north of the international line. When Fort Vancouver was at the height of its prosperity, the company was supreme lord over three-fourths of North America.

JUST ONE OF TWO THINGS

"Bill" Would Make Reputation, Or There Would Be a Bad Time for Employer.

Bill Blythe was really a gardener. But he was a generally all round useful man, who had never been known to say "No" when he had been asked if he could do a thing.

One day the chauffeur, who usually drove the motorcar in which Bill's employer journeyed, was taken ill.

Bill's employer had very important business engagements for that day, and it was essential that he should be driven in the car unless he was to miss some of them.

So Bill was sent for and asked if he would undertake to drive the car.

Bill had never driven a car before, but he had helped the chauffeur to wash the machine.

That was good enough for Bill. He said: "Yes."

Remembering the little theory talks he had had with the chauffeur, Bill managed to get the car round to the front door, and his employer got in.

With some maneuvering the car was driven out onto the main road, and then, gritting his teeth, Bill threw the clutch into top gear, and muttered: "Now to make a reputation or kill the boss."

Iron Ore in Philippines.

The finest unworked iron fields in the world have been discovered in the Philippines, according to a report from government experts recently received by the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The quantities of ore adjacent to good harbors, they state, will be sufficient to assure the future of iron and steel production in the United States for generations.

Already land believed to contain more than 500,000,000 tons has been surveyed. Deposits on the island of Mindanao are believed to be without a rival. They contain 275,000,000 tons close to good harbors and 130,000,000 tons within easy transportation distance of Dajkin bay, perhaps the best natural harbor on the islands. Only crude iron work in primitive smelters is being carried on at present.—From the Argonaut.

Darwin's Stand on Income Tax.

The mayor of Darwin, Australia, has become noted by his refusal for two years to pay federal income tax on the ground that Darwin had no representation in the federal parliament. In spite of official warnings, Mayor Toupain has adhered to his determination—No Taxation Without Representation. For a time, while it was understood that the northern territory would have representation in the federal senate, no steps were taken to coerce the Toupainites of Darwin, but when it became known that the mayor was leaving Darwin official action was promised. Praise and presentations, however, not penalties, have marked the departure of the mayor. Whether the tax collector will catch him when he sets foot in southern Australia is a point which will be speedily settled.—Christian Science Monitor.

Backfired.

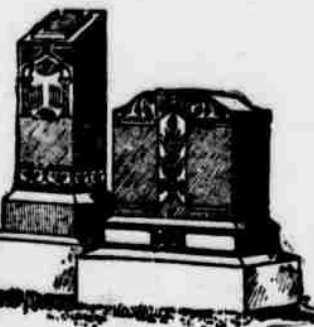

When the clock struck "12" the other night rather came to the head of the stairway and in a rather loud tone of voice said:

"Young man, is your 'self-starter' out of order tonight?"

"It doesn't matter," retorted the young man, "as long as there's a crank in the house."

WHICH?

By DOROTHY I. DUFF.

(Copyright 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

We were seated on the hotel piazza, four former classmates who had not met for a year. It was a glorious reunion, and of course each had a story to tell. Kitty is a teacher of languages. Nell is now Eleanor Marsh Whitney, authoress; Alice, the class beauty, is married; while I am a settlement worker.

"My story?" asked Nell, in answer to Kitty's question. "Well, yes, I have a story to tell, but it is about someone else."

"Let's hear it," we all cried, and so she began:

"When Billy Appleton struck New York he had with him a suitcase containing his clothes, $200 and a picture of Elsie Hill, in a silver frame."

"Billy was a designer of ability. He loved the work, much to the disappointment of his father, who thought the boy would quickly live of art if left to himself, and would return home ready to enter business."

"Back in Portland, Conn., where Billy was born, Appleton & Co. was the leading dry goods store, and Mr. Appleton was Portland's most prominent citizen. Proud of the fact, Mr. Appleton had his mind all made up that his only son should follow in his footsteps. Billy, however, had other plans. He wanted to be something more than a big head in a small middle—he wanted to be famous. And so, with only $200 in his pocket and his father's anger on his head, he struck out for New York."

"Of course, he hated to leave Elsie, but a fellow had to have his chance in business before he could get married, anyway. Billy, with the confidence of youth, assured Elsie that he would soon make his fortune and then she could come to New York and they would live happily ever afterward."

"But Billy soon discovered that life in New York was very different from life in Portland. In Portland he lived in a big white house with a lawn in front; he had two horses and a little runabout; he had an adoring mother whose whole time seemed to be taken up in doing things for Billy. In New York he lived in one small hall bed room, without a cheerful thing in it except Elsie's pretty face. The elevated train rattled by night and day and made him wish with all his might for Portland. And the landlady seemed to be ever present with her hand out to take some of Billy's precious cash."

"In Portland he had been the one and only designer; but here in New York! Well, here in New York everybody seemed to be a designer."

"At last, however, Billy found a job—not a very good one, but at least a job which would feed him and pay his room rent with a little to spare. He was set to work designing borders and figures which were to be used on the beautiful windows made by that firm for churches and public buildings."

"About this time the firm offered a prize to their employees for the best design for a window. Billy had many ideas, and he worked all his spare time on that design. He wrote to Elsie about it; all his work was for her. Every girl he saw he compared with her, much to the stranger's disparagement."

"And then he met Adele. It was quite unexpected, and Billy's heart thrilled as it had never thrilled before. Adele's eyes were as black as midnight, and she had straight black hair, quite a contrast to little golden-haired Elsie with the blue eyes. Adele was a wonderful girl. She liked to dance and Billy liked to dance, and it took all of his spare change to pay for the dinners and the theaters and the flowers which Adele demanded. Billy himself was in the seventh heaven of delight, and time flew for him much faster than ever before."

"At last came a day when Billy was awarded the prize for the window design. He was wild with joy, for with it he also received a substantial increase in salary. Now Elsie could come to the city, was his first thought, now they could be married and be forever happy."

"But did he want to marry Elsie? What of Adele? He loved Elsie, oh, yes, nobody could doubt that; but didn't he love Adele? Elsie seemed like a dream, while Adele was an ever-present reality."

"And then Billy Appleton had the hardest day of his life. He was at his wit's end. He sat down and looked at their pictures. When he looked at Elsie he was sure that he loved her and no one else; but when he looked at Adele he was not so sure. Would quiet little Elsie be happy in the noisy city? Would Adele be happy in quiet Portland?

"About midnight Billy wrote a letter of proposal. Should he send it to Elsie? Or to Adele? Then slowly, slowly he slipped it into the envelope and just as slowly addressed it. He put on his hat and coat and went out. After a moment's thought he dropped it into the letter box. And then—"

"But to whom did he address it, Nell, you didn't tell us?" broke in Alice.

"Well," said Nell, absently, in her sweet drawing voice, "that's just what I don't know myself. I've been working on that story for a month, and I can't make up my mind whether Billy marry dear little Elsie and lead a safe and sane life, or enjoy the glamor of the red lights with Adele for the rest of his days."

"What would you do?"

THE AWAKENING

By GERTRUDE ALLEN.

(Copyright 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Rosamond was in that delightful state which is neither sleeping nor waking, and was vaguely aware that it was morning, for the town was becoming vocal. A dim suspicion of dawn made the windows faintly visible, but it surely could not be time to get up.

A wave of thankfulness swept over her at the thought that she was safely in her own little white-and-pink bedroom, and then she slipped back into dreamland and found herself walking along a brookside, a little buff spaniel running in and out of the water beside her. A rainbow arched the brook and revealed as she advanced. Suddenly she heard an ominous growl, which resounded itself into the rumble of a passing drag.

"Hush!" she murmured, sailors' voice warning, "she repeated drowsily. She was back in dreamland, where a queer old woman sat pecking, singing in a raucous voice, "John Anderson, my Jo!" and as she sang she changed into a lovely young girl with a spinning wheel, who seemed inclined to speak when Rosamond became aware that the hum of the wheel was really made by a street car two blocks off."

She stretched lazily and smiled a little, thinking sleepily of the small white-and-pink room—her very own room—the "apple blossom room"—so called because, when the house was built years and years before an apple tree stood in front of the east window of the room, and in its flowering season filled the little room with its fragrance. Ah, she could smell it now, though the apple tree had long since disappeared.

She began to realize that it was morning and time to wake up, and then dozed off once more. Now she was in a sleigh rapidly approaching a vertical precipice, but on the very edge, the catastrophe was averted by Ray Randall, who suddenly appeared from nowhere, remarking, "Dreams always go by contraries."

Now she was really awake, but lying with closed eyes, trying to induce another visit from Morpheus. She was contentedly happy that she had firmly resisted all the pressure brought to bear upon her when she refused to marry Mr. Comstock, the aged millionaire.

At least he was aged according to her standards. She was nineteen and he was forty-four. To be sure, he was tall, erect, elegant and learned, but there were indications of a bald spot, and he wore spectacles, the kind with big, round lenses, and he was not slim. She had always thought of him as one of her father's cronies, and the idea of marrying him made her shiver.

Once more she dozed, and this time was part of a confused dream of apple blossoms and music, and Ray Randall, and then she was suddenly wide awake, thinking of Ray.

Poor! To be sure he was. Young? Just twenty-four. Ambitious? Certainly; he already had plans about the United States senate. But she was willing to wait, willing to work, willing to efface herself, if only she might do it for Ray. In the meantime she had her own little white-and-pink room—her sanctum sanctorum—her haven in all times of stress.

Suddenly she opened her eyes and looked straight into the eyes of Mr. Burton Comstock. She was certainly in a white-and-pink room, a very large and luxurious room; a room decorated with apple blossoms, and Mr. Comstock carried a wonderful branch of them in his hand.

"My rose of the world," he said, "a penny for your dreams; they surely must have been pleasant ones."

"And Rosamond," continued her husband, "didn't Ray Randall use to run around in your set? I see by the morning paper that he has won the election; and also his engagement to that rich widow, Mrs. Stevens. At one time I was almost jealous of him."

"And at one time," replied Rosamond, "I almost thought I did not even like you."

"Burial Place of 'Mother Goose.'"

Near the center of the older part of Boston is a large graveyard in which are buried many notable persons of the colonial days. It is a very interesting place and the old gravestones have been well-cared for. One small stone marks the grave of "Mother Goose," to whom many thousands of children have been indebted for much innocent enjoyment.

Soldier Earned Furlough.

Private James Cunningham won a 90-day furlough from Camp Dix, N. J., when he shinned up a 90-foot pole to replace a pulley that civilian workmen said could not be replaced without lowering the pole. Maj. Gen. C. F. Sumner, commanding officer, was so pleased that he gave Cunningham a day's leave for every foot he shinned.

HIGH QUALITY Is The MAIN-SPRING

The high quality of merchandise we carry all the year round is the dynamo of power we turn on to make our business go. It is the MAINSPRING that drives the whole machinery of our business, together with fair and reasonable prices.

In selecting our stock, we have our customers' interest uppermost all of the time. We know that what is good for our customers is mighty good for us in the long run; for there is no better advertising than satisfied customers, for they become living, walking, trade getters, for the store who pleases them best.

We would like to establish our business in every home in West Texas, and to do this we must have an army of satisfied customers. To gain this army, there are two things absolutely necessary: FIRST, the Right Quality of good, goods of the better sort. SECOND, Our Prices on these High Grade goods must be as low or lower than our competitors are getting for the ordinary kind. We may also add kind and courteous treatment of our customers. To accomplish this, it requires very careful buying by an experienced buyer, who can pay spot cash to the wholesaler. We believe we can come up to this high standard and give our customers superior goods for less money.

Our stock now is very complete in every line of goods. We can please you both in quality, style, and price in most anything you may want in the dry goods line.

Many new numbers have been received this week in Ladies Summer Dresses, Skirts, Blouses, Silk Underwear, and Silk Hose, also some new numbers in Slippers.

For Men, extra Trousers, Shirts, and Shoes. Many items for Children, besides new dress goods.

If you are interested in good standard dry goods at reasonable prices, you will make no mistake to give us a trial. We will appreciate your trade, and you will get your money's worth, and then some.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to certify that I strongly endorse the candidacy of Judge Joe Burkett, of Eastland, Texas, for the Senatorship of the Twenty-Eighth Senatorial District of Texas.

As County Judge of Eastland County and District Judge of the old Forty-Second Judicial District of Texas, Judge Burkett at all times stood in favor of a rigid enforcement of very law on the Statute books, and especially concerning the laws against immorality and desecration of the Christian Sabbath. I want to especially endorse his positive stand for aid for the Rural schools, for a West Texas A. & M. College, and that portion of his platform in which he favors laws to restrict, if not prevent the immigrant laborers from flocking to Texas and the United States, to compete in the labor market with the American-born, American-raised and American-educated citizens.

Should the people of the Twenty-eighth Senatorial District send him to the Senate, in my opinion, the District will be ably, honestly and efficiently represented.

Very truly,

CYRUS B. FROST.

Ex-County Attorney and Ex-County Judge, Eastland County, Eastland, Texas, May 21, 1921.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It is with pleasure that I endorse the candidacy of Judge Joe Burkett for State Senator from the 28th district. Judge Burkett has been known to me for many years, and he is a man of known integrity, intellectual attainments, strong personality, and in every way especially qualified for such office.

He has, as district judge for Eastland and other counties, been for the enforcement of all laws, and has at all times advocated those policies of government which, if carried out, will be to the best interest of every class of people alike, and result in economy in the administration of the affairs of our government.

If elected to that office I feel confident that he will be faithful to the trust imposed and true to his constituents, having uppermost in his mind their best interests, and I cheerfully recommend him as worthy and in every way qualified.

Very respectfully,

EARL CONNER, Attorney.

Eastland, Texas, May 23rd, 1921.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I have known Judge Joe Burkett something like two years, and practiced before him while he was district judge of the 42nd judicial district of Texas. I was in a position to learn of his qualifications as a judge, and found him to be one of the very best district judges in the State. He possesses a keen intellect for right principles, fairness, and justice between his fellowmen.

In my judgment, he is well qualified and fitted for the position of State Senator from this district, and will ably represent the people of the district if elected.

Respectfully,

JNO. D. McRAE, Attorney.

Eastland, Texas, May 23, 1921.

CORRECTING DAD

By JACK LAWTON.

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Arthur had received another of Aunt Sarah's letters, and a letter from Aunt Sarah usually spelled trouble. These missives were the one irritant in his college career. Aunt Sarah had complained of everything in the family household, and now, the last—and greatest offender—was old dad himself. Arthur gripped his chair and scowled. It was all right to bowl over the chauffeur or the last house decorator, but dad—he wasn't going to stand for that. Then Arthur's frown changed to amusement. His father, infatuated with a young silly nobody, and contemplating marriage again? Surely, this was impossible. Aunt Sarah's imagination had run away with her. He would go straight home and ascertain the fact of the matter; so Arthur packed and went. His father was alarmingly frank and regardless.

"If I choose to marry," he coolly asked his indignant son, "whose affair is it? And as for the girl being young and not in our station, those small matters trouble me not at all. If Maise can overlook the difference in our ages, I am sure that I shall make no objection. And when it comes to station—well, she evidences a natural talent in the clever expenditure of money. I have money to spend, and I rather think that it will give me more pleasure buying things for a pretty, grateful girl, than for an indifferent son who takes the spending of money as a matter of course. I will certainly marry Maise."

Arthur leaned forward with an incredulous stare.

"Maise!" he repeated unbelievably. "Maise?"

The older man nodded.

"She sings in musical comedy," he explained, "the name is, I believe, a variation of Mary."

"Musical comedy?" the son again repeated, parrotwise.

"Why not?" Tower, the elder, demanded impatiently.

"That is where I first saw her, in musical comedy. A pretty rural act that quite took my fancy. So did the girl, I got Simpson, the manager, to introduce us. Found out later that Mary Field, Maise, that is—had made her debut into stageland through embroidering frocks for a leading lady; made handwork a specialty in order to support herself.

"If you have any objections, it does not make the slightest difference. I intend to ask her to be my wife, and will even hold out wealth as an inducement. And there is no love in my case—that is, not as the meaning of the word goes. 'You left me, a lonely old man in a troubled prison—for Sarah's iron rule and Sarah's complaints are no relief to the loneliness. If Maise can cheer, and help me in a measure to forget past sorrow—Well, that is all I ask of her.'"

The young man, seated at the old mahogany chair, gazed over at the old man across the somber room. Arthur had never noticed before the lines of sadness beneath the weary eyes; neither had he been fully aware of that recently whitened hair. So old dad had been lonely, deserted.

The big house, in all its luxury, was most depressing—poor dad! But he must not let this scheming little actress annex so easily his father's fortune. He would see her first, and consider dad's problem later. Arthur got out the car and drove in the direction Aunt Sarah gave him. "It was written on the back of a pink letter from the girl," she contemptuously told him.

Maise was at home; domestically at home in a tiny flat, with a singing bird in the window.

"Come in," invited Maise, "but please excuse me if I go on sewing." She was as charming as Arthur had indignantly fancied, with a refined superior sort of charm, however, which he had not fancied at all. The sewing upon which she busied herself was a gay covered cushion for his father's favorite chair.

"In place," she sympathetically informed Arthur, "of those gloomy dark green things that are all about."

And as they talked she confided, softly, her regret concerning his father's desolate life, and her own helpless desire to brighten it. "For, what can I do?" asked Maise hopelessly, "and Mr. Tower is such a dear, good man."

The mercenary idea of marriage had evidently not entered the girl's pretty head. Arthur returned home thoughtful. His father thereafter was gratefully aware of his son's kindly interest and attentions. Then one day Arthur sprang the news.

"I am going," he announced, "to marry Maise."

The elder Tower stared, then with an odd expression, more of relieved satisfaction than of chagrin, he sank into his chair.

"Maise never would have married for money," Arthur declared, "and, of course, now she knows that dad will cut me off for being a traitor. But Maise and I love each other. Our sorrow is in leaving father alone."

Arthur's father came slowly forward, with outstretched hands.

"Why alone, Art?" he asked smiling. "There's lots of room in this big house for my son and his wife. And it looks to me as if this were the end of our problem."

The Midget Cafe

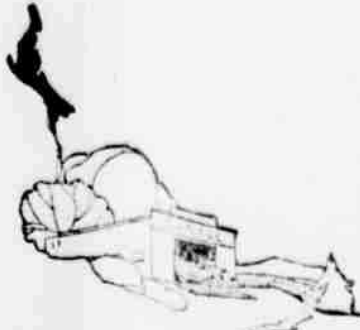

"As in the greatest cities so in his own home town—the U. S. Tire user gets fresh, live tires of current production."

THE U. S. CHAIN TREAD

One of the few tires of which it may be said that they deliver economy year in and year out and tire after tire.

The U. S. Chain Tread gives sufficient traction on all ordinary road surfaces. It is probably the handsomest, and by all odds the most popular, of the whole U. S. Fabric Tire line.

Economy rides on U.S. Tires—

IF you could get together all the car owners you know, you'd probably find that their tire experiences had been much the same.

Most of them have taken their fling at "job lots," "discontinued lines" and "surplus stocks." Soon or late, nearly all settled back on quality first as the one sound assurance of tire value.

As soon as a man forgets the cut-price tag, and comes to the dealer who concentrates on a full, completely sized stock of U. S. Tires—he learns what it means to get fresh, live tires—not once in a while but every time.

Not merely for the heavy car, but for the medium and light-weight car—a full selection of size, tread and type.

Your U. S. Tire dealer can give you this service because of the service he gets from his neighboring U. S. Factory Branch. There are 92 of these Branches. Each gets its share of U. S. Tires, so that the dealer is always supplied with fresh, live stock.

U. S. Tires sell as fast as they are made.

Magazine Club Notes.

Friday May 29, marked the closing of one of the most successful years in the history of the Magazine Club, not only financially, but in Club spirit, and aims attained as was proven by the splendid reports from officers and chairman of the various departments of the Club.

The retiring president, Mrs. J. F. Posey, very beautifully expressed her appreciation for the splendid co-operation which has been so manifested throughout the year, and her pleasure in serving the Club. In her parting mention to the incoming president, Mrs. Posey said:

"Lower and prestige belong to those who venture. The pioneer gathers the fruits of men while the timid, in fear of pitfalls and dangers decay with possessions held as the buried talent, upon the common places of life we build higher things step by step, if we are willing to risk loss and suffer for joys we hope to gain."

So we would say: be brave enough to try for the goal of your hearts, keep your hopes still mounting higher, even though you sometimes tire, never be afraid to fail, for in the words of your motto, there is no failure save in how aim."

Mrs. Marchison very graciously assumed her new duties and that the club may know some of the things for which the club stands and the aims of the new president, we are giving you her splendid address.

"Members of the Magazine Club: It is indeed for me to say that I feel greatly honored by your action which makes me the second of your number, to be twice your president, but with this honor comes a feeling of double responsibility. In the beginning I desire to state that unless you give me more assistance than I can possibly give you, I can not attain that success that I desire to measure up to. But it is not of my work, but of your work that I desire to speak of."

There are certain definite ends that we should strive to gain.

This year will be an epoch in the school history of Haskell. Bonds have been voted to build the High School building. In planning the building, in making it a place beautiful as well as useful, and in planning its play ground, we should dedicate our services in every way possible to assist those directly charged with such duties. We can be of great assistance in securing the co-operative help of all, getting the most benefit for the money invested.

One crying need of Haskell is an auditorium sufficient to accommodate our school entertainments, public amusements, etc., and it should be one of our prime duties to co-operate with the school board, in seeing that this be one of the features of the new school building.

This year will prove an epoch in the affairs of the city of Haskell. Bonds have been and will be voted for paving the streets and improving the water works. In these matters we should take an active interest. Fences, flower adorned and chicken protected home yards should come with paved streets, improved water works and more side walks and in this we should work as never before.

Our Magazine Home should continue to be the home of young people who believe in being young ladies and young gentlemen. It should be closed to brazen and midnight revels.

Our library should be enlarged and a special effort should be made to interest the children of our town who have few books in their homes to avail themselves of our reading facilities. We should see to it that the common complaint that libraries benefit only those families which already have many books is not true as to Haskell.

In appointing committees, the chair has appointed but few, much is expected of these committees. However, each woman in the club will be expected to do much and serve willingly when called upon. The chair wishes and expects to work on all committees. With such an efficient corps of officers, committees and members we can do many things.

In the spring we are to have District Federation and we work as never before to promote ourselves and our town worthy of an honor.

This must be the year within our debt covering the cost of home is paid. Today we owe $1,500 and we expect to pay amount provided all things are improved to our home and grounds. The best way for an individual or an organization to improve their debts for improvements is to pay them off. This gives us a motive to work.

Last but not least, and we do work as a unit. We will do if we keep in mind our common aim to make Haskell a better place to live and raise our sons and daughters we will not let the aim of our differences.

"God made us to do things, and is no tonic like that which comes doing things worth while. Realness with out the achievement of aim is unthinkable."

After a short business session the Club adjourned. Mrs. C. R. L. Mrs. John H. Oates had a surprise in store for all in the delicious plate luncheon of salad, sandwiches, olives and

ARKANSAS FARMER IS NOW IN FINE SHAPE

Bennett's Health Restored by Tanlac Two Years Ago, and He Continues Well and Strong.

"It was two years ago that Tanlac set me right and put me into shape where I gained thirty pounds in weight and I have been in the best of health and retained my weight to this good day," said Oliver P. Bennett, a well known farmer of Union Township, R. F. D. No. 4, Little Rock, Arkansas.

"I have been a farmer all my life," he continued, "But two years ago I got so I wasn't able to work and was beginning to think my farming days might be over. My stomach was all out of order and my appetite was well nigh gone. My nerves broke down and I couldn't half sleep. My shoulders and chest hurt something awful, and I got so weak and all run down I was beginning to wonder where it was all going to end. I had been under treatment for two years, but in spite of it all I was growing worse and gradually losing in weight."

"Finally I took a notion that Tanlac might fit my case. Well, sir, I never will forget how I commence to pick up. Why, I never saw the like. I took six bottles and actually gained thirty pounds, as I said, and felt so well and strong I could go out and work from sun up to sun down. Ever since then I have been feeling fine and I have this good old Tanlac to thank for it all."

Waking Sleep-Walkers.

Some sleep-walkers may be awakened by being gently touched or called; others by a flash of light, by stumbling in their wanderings, or by setting their feet in water. Others remain so heavily asleep that it is necessary to shake them vigorously before they show signs of waking. But sometimes it is not wise to wake the sleep-walker at all and there have been cases where sudden rousings have proved fatal.

Spines of Porcupine.

The spines of a porcupine, in the usual position, lie nearly flat with their points directed backward, but when the animal is excited they are capable of being raised. The quills are loosely inserted in the skin and may, on being violently shaken, become detached, a circumstance which probably gave rise to the purely fabulous statements that the animal possesses the power of actually ejecting its quills like arrows or darts at an enemy.

Kangaroo Farms.

Kangaroo farming is an important industry in Australia. The hides are valuable and the tendons extremely fine; indeed they are the best material known to surgeons for sewing up wounds and especially for holding broken bones together, being much finer and tougher than catgut.

First American Savings Bank

The first savings bank of America was opened in Boston Dec. 13, 1818. In the same year an institution called the Philadelphia Savings Fund society was established. The first institution of this kind in America was founded in New York in 1819. Her Sulking Room.
