Report blasts UT hydraulic fracturing study

Study's leader accused of being an industry insider; research ethics questioned

By Vicki Vaughan
San Antonio Express-News

A review panel that examined conflict-of-interest charges against the leader of a University of Texas at Austin study on hydraulic fracturing released a report Thursday that harshly criticized the study's findings and the university's ethics rules for research.

The panel called for UT to adopt "rigorous" policies governing conflicts of interest and financial disclosure for all university personnel.

The university formed the panel last summer when it came to light that the study's leader, Charles "Chip" Groat, was an industry insider. He served as a director and held stock in a company that did hydraulic fracturing.

Groat retired from his faculty position at the university last month. The director of the UT Energy Institute, Raymond Orbach, though he had no direct role in overseeing Groat's report, resigned Monday, the university said in a statement.

The hydraulic fracturing study, which was presented in February at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said it didn't find any evidence that hydraulic fracturing polluted groundwater.

With hydraulic fracturing, drillers use water, sand and chemicals to blast shale formations deep underground to free oil and natural gas.

The review panel said the study wasn't "fact based," that little scientific data was presented as part of the report, and that its conclusions were distorted as it moved through various drafts.

The study "fell short of contemporary standards for scientific work," the panel said.

Another key problem, the panel continued, was the failure of Groat to disclose his conflict of interest, and a university policy on conflicts that was "poorly crafted and even less well enforced."

When he participated in the hydraulic

Straus promises $2B in extra school funding

Associated Press

Houston Chronicle

Texas House Speaker Joe Straus answers questions from the media during the 2012 Texas GOP Convention on June 8 in Fort Worth. Straus said Friday he's committed to pumping billions of dollars back into the state's public schools, even though the Legislature approved historically deep cuts just last year.

AUSTIN — Texas House Speaker Joe Straus said Friday he's committed to pumping billions of dollars back into the state's public schools, even though the Legislature approved historically deep cuts just last year.

In an interview with The Associated Press, the San Antonio Republican said, "We will fund enrollment growth going forward," which he estimated will be a $2 billion item when lawmakers head back to work Jan. 8.

"The good news is we're dedicated to doing that, committed to doing that," Straus said.

Texas' booming population means its current 5 million-plus public school enrollment increases by as much as 80,000 every year. But the 2011 legislative session failed to provide enough new funding to keep up with enrollment, instead passing $5.4 billion in overall cuts to public education and classroom grant programs for things such as pre-kindergarten programs — sparking the state's first decrease in per-student spending since World War II.

Straus wouldn't say he will push to find the additional $5.4 billion necessary to roll back all of those funding cuts. He did say, though, that since Texas' economy has weathered the recession and is strong again, lawmakers have more options.

"Growing economy, growing revenues, growing population," Straus said. "There's an ability to keep up now, but how far we can go in restoring certain decisions that we made last time remains to be seen. I hope we can. We're certainly going to try to do everything we can to improve public education."

More than 600 school districts have sued the state for failing to meet Texas constitutional mandate to fund public schools. Most observers expect them to win, but it could be years before the case works its way through

Lawyers to inspect components of crash

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Lawyers representing two couples involved in the Nov. 15 fatal train-parade float crash announced Friday they will inspect multiple components of the incident.

The Glasheen, Valles and Inderman law firm reached an agreement with Union Pacific Railroad to inspect the tracks and signal system on Dec. 17. and the locomotive and horn in Fort Worth on Dec. 18.

The firm also reached an agreement with Smith Industries to inspect the truck on Dec. 17.

The Union Pacific inspections will determine why the system gave a 20-second warning instead of a 30-second warning as designed, according to a press release from the law firm.

"We predict the reason why is because the mechanisms to activate the system were not adjusted when the speed limit was raised," said Kevin Glasheen, an injury lawyer from the firm.

Houston firm plans five new office buildings

From staff reports

Houston-based Satterfield & Pontikes Construction Inc. has announced plans to build as many as five 100,000 square-foot office buildings in Midland west of the Scharbauer Sports Complex and just east of where Chevron plans to build its new campus.

The four-story buildings, which will be known as Energy Plaza at Westridge Park, will be located in Westridge Park, a 100-plus acre master planned development. The new buildings are expected to be ready by mid-2014 and will be leased by CBRE's Houston office and Bill Scott of Real Estate One Midland.

Arthur Dennis

Arthur Eugene "Junior" Dennis departed this world on December 7, 2012 to be with his Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. He was born on August 16, 1926 to Alice Womack and Clyde Dennis in Snyder, Texas. He attended school in Cisco and Snyder until joining the United States Army to defend his country during WWII. From 1944 to 1946, he served honorably and with distinction in the European Theatre of Operations earning the Africa, Middle East, and Central European campaign ribbons as well as numerous other medals as a member of the 1st Armored Division, 6th Armored Division, and the 86th Calvary Reconnaissance Division.

After returning to the states, he met and married Jo Fern George in 1947 while working for his uncle in Albany, Texas. Arthur and Jo had three children while he worked as a tool pusher for Sharp Drilling Company and Cobb Well Services. Later, he started his own business, A.E. Dennis & Company Oil Field Services. In 1978, Arthur closed shop and accepted a position as the production superintendent for Julian Ard Energy, Inc. where he remained until he retired in 2005.

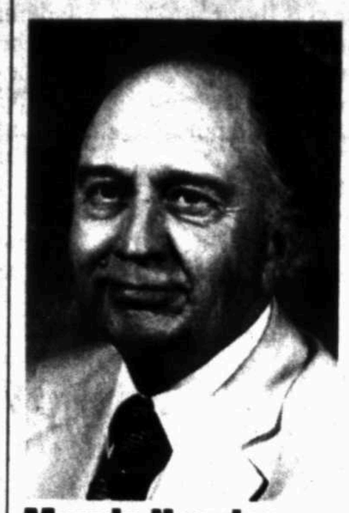

Arthur was a member of the Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite, York Rite, and Knights Templar. He belonged to the faithful and attended the Baptist Church. Although he never attended an institution of higher learning, he was a strong proponent of a college education. He insisted his children be educated and lovingly, and at times, not so lovingly, "nudged" each to start their life's journey with a college degree in hand.

Arthur is survived by his wife, Jo Dennis of Midland, his daughter, Connie Lee of Amarillo, his sons, Jeff Dennis of Midland and Todd Dennis of Austin, and a sister, Helen Bolin of Colorado City. He was "Papaw" to seven grandchildren, another seven great grandchildren, and three great great grandchildren. He took great pleasure in spending time with his grandchildren and was known to "spoil" them on occasion.

He was preceded in death by his mother and father, four brothers, and two sisters. A memorial service for Arthur Dennis will be held on Sunday, December 9th, 2012 at 2:00 pm at Lewallen-Garcia-Pipkin Funeral Home in Midland, Texas. Honorary pallbearers for the service will be Trevor Lee, Trampus Lee, Geoffrey Dennis, Dustin Dennis, Trey Stone, Zackry Mills and George Aguirre.

Funeral service is under the direction of Lewallen-Garcia-Pipkin Funeral Home and Chapel. Family messages and condolences may be emailed to: pipkin@ntsonline.com or you can visit our website at www.lewallengarciapipkinfh.com

Marvin Harrison

Marvin Harrison, 96, of Midland, passed away Thursday, December 6, 2012.

Marvin was born on the family farm, May 15, 1916 in Otto, Texas, a town named for his grandfather. He was the middle child between James and Ruby Jean.

He went to a one-room schoolhouse up until the 8th grade, when he and his brother went to high school in Waco, Texas. He was a graduate in the class of 1934. After high school, Marvin became a mechanic working at the Ford dealership and the Oldsmobile dealership. He later moved up to being manager in the parts department. He and his uncles were deer hunting in Three Rivers, Texas when Pearl Harbor was attacked. Upon hearing this, he enlisted in the United States Army Air Forces. He shipped out at midnight December 24 headed for basic training at Camp Walters, Texas. From there he went to A&E School at Sheppard Field in Wichita Falls, Texas. After graduation, he went through various schools and achieved the rank of Staff Sergeant. An opportunity arose for Marvin, while he was in Georgia he was able to get into the cadet program. He received his pilot's wings on December 23, 1944. He then went on to fly B-24, B-25, and B-29 bombers. He remained in the Army Air Forces until February 1946, where he was honorably discharged at Fort Douglas, Utah.

Marvin returned to Waco where he worked at the Ford dealership until November 1947, at which time he went to see his uncle Butch Boyd in Jal, New Mexico. He interviewed for a job while there with El Paso Natural Gas. He was hired and spent 35 years as their employee.

During that time he would spend time between Jal, McLean, Texas and Midkiff, Texas. This is when he met Mary Edith Clements. They married on March 24, 1951 in Carlsbad, New Mexico. They resided in Jal. Eight years later, while living in Midkiff, their only child, Martin Neal, was born.

Marvin retired from El Paso Natural Gas in 1983 in Midland, Texas. He had a gas consulting business and worked in his shop. He was very active with the El Paso retirees coffee group until he fell ill in the summer of 2010. He spent the remainder of his life in Lamun-Lusk-Sanchez Texas State Veterans Home in Big Spring, Texas.

He is survived by his loving wife of 61 years Mary; son, Martin Neal and wife Teresa; grandson, Zachary Neal and wife Mallory; step grandchildren, Amber (Bobby) Buck of Midland, and Joe (Critter) Brooks and wife Candace; great grandchildren, Austin, Gavin, Victoria, Colton, and Cutter.

Funeral services will be held at 11:00 am, Saturday, December 8, 2012 at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Chapel in Midland with Rev. Kathryn Boren, officiating.

The family would like to thank Marvin's caregiver Andrea Laing, and the "D" wing staff at Lamun-Lusk-Sanchez Texas State Veterans Home. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to one's favorite charity.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland. Online condolences can be made at: www.npwelch.com

Bryan Burgin

Bryan Bradford Burgin, 16, went to be with his Lord and Savior on Thursday, December 6, 2012. Dale Akin

Dale Wayne Akin, 24, of Odessa, passed away on Tuesday, December 4, 2012 in Stanton, Texas. He was born on June 9, 1988 in Odessa to Stan Akin and Wendy Spencer. Growing up Dale was what you would call "The All American Kid", he played outside till dark, climbed tree's and played baseball. You always knew where to find Dale as a child, all you had to do was look in the back yard and there he was. Dale loved his parents and would do anything for them; he also was the best brother to his sister. He graduated from Richard Millburn. Dale struck gold as he put it when he met and fell in love with Jessica. They were perfect for each other and were starting their happy family. He was a proud daddy when they welcomed their daughter, Isabella Faith Akin on April 12, 2011. Dale was also a very proud daddy to his step-son, Kaden Moore, which in Dale's eyes was his son. He was the best daddy and husband anybody could ask for. Dale was a kid at heart and loved to play with any kid. Like his wife would say, "I have to take care of my three kids". There is not enough words to describe who he was, all we can say is how amazing and caring he was. He was our HERO and everybody that knew him looked up to him. Dale was extremely proud of his job and died doing what he loved. He loved his line man family as he would say. When football season came around, Dale was faithful to watching the Dallas Cowboys and The University of Texas. If we only had five minutes that day you passed away, we would have had time to tell you all the things we needed to say. We never got to tell you how much you mean to us. Or that you were the best dad, son and husband, better than any man could be. The last time that we talked to you we wish we would have known. We would have said I love you, and kept you on the phone.

He was preceded in death by his grandparents, Richard and Jo Crump; grandfather Billy Akin and cousins, Ricky and Randy Thiebaud.

Those left behind to honor and cherish his memory is his wife, Jessica, a daughter Isabella Akin and a son, Kaden Moore; his parents, Wendy Spencer and Stan Akin; sister, April Akin; grandparents, Dale and Nancy Spencer; a niece, Addison Powell and nephew, Christian Hill; mother-in-law, Mary Kirk and father-in-law, Kenneth Kirk; sister-in-laws, Brooke Hill and husband Clint and Summer Hiett; aunts, Sherry Jenson, Alex Spencer, Sylva Martin, Stephenie Green and Sharon Sawyer; uncle, Chris Jensen; cousins, Gage Spencer, Robert Green, Ryan Green, Robyn Green, Ross Johnson, Rig Johnson, Richard Thiebaud, Amanda Thiebaud, Berry Keefer, Sean Rigs, Laura Moomey and Christopher Martin, Mattie & Emma Jensen. He also leaves behind numerous friends and all his family at Electrical Maintenance and Construction.

Family will receive friends on Friday, December 7, 2012 at Hubbard Kelly Funeral Home between the hours of 6:00pm-8:00pm. A funeral service has been scheduled at 2:00pm on Saturday, December 8, 2012 at Hubbard Kelly Funeral Home Chapel with Mark Ritter officiating.

Sheridan W. "Bill" Tift

Sheridan W. "Bill" Tift, age 87, died Monday, December 3, 2012, at Midland Memorial Hospital, surrounded by his family.

Bill was born on August 27, 1925 in Bowman, North Dakota to Stephen W. Tift and Ora Warner Tift. Both parents were from pioneer families who homesteaded in southwestern North Dakota in the early years of the twentieth century.

Bill attended public schools through high school in Mitchell, South Dakota. He enjoyed all sports, but excelled in track and baseball. Bill's ambition was to fly for the Army Air Corps. After the December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, he volunteered for the Army Air Corps at the age of 17. He trained as a flight engineer on B-29's. Bill earned his wings and graduated just as the war ended.

College was made possible by the G.I. Bill, and he earned a B.S. in Geological Engineering from the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology at Rapid City, South Dakota in 1952. Immediately following college, Bill married Mary Ryan in Redwood City, California and the two moved to Ozona, Texas where Bill began his 39-year career as a geophysicist, first with The Superior Oil Company and then Anadarko Production Company. He spent the last 20 years working as a consulting geophysicist - work he thoroughly enjoyed.

As a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Bill was active in many church programs. He served as an usher for approximately 30 years and was a caseworker for the St. Vincent de Paul Society for 25 years serving the poor of Midland.

Bill had many hobbies. He enjoyed reading, hunting, and building and flying model airplanes. He collected vintage model airplane engines and was a published author on the subject. He designed and built target rifles and enjoyed competitive shooting.

Bill is survived by his wife of 60 years and his four children: Barbara Truitt, Steve Tift (wife Mary), Maureen Watts (husband Lane) and John Tift. Also surviving him are 8 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

A visitation and rosary will be held on Friday December 7, 2012 at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. The visitation will be from 6pm-8pm with the rosary beginning at 7pm. The funeral service will be at 10am Saturday December 8, 2012 at St. Ann's Catholic Church with Monsignor Larry Droll presiding.

Memorial donations may be sent to St. Vincent de Paul Society c/o St. Ann's Catholic Church, 1906 W. Texas Ave., Midland, TX 79701.

Canutillo plans to fire ex-El Paso administrator

An ex-official at a West Texas school district where the state has taken more control amid a testing scandal is being fired after an audit showed possible cheating attempts at his new job.

Canutillo Independent School District trustees on Thursday night suspended superintendent Damon Murphy without pay in the dismissal process. An audit found alleged evidence of tampering with student classifications.

Murphy, who was hired in 2010, declined comment. He's a former associate superintendent in the El Paso Independent School District.

Ex-EPISD superintendent Lorenzo Garcia must serve more than three years in prison for fraud. Prosecutors say the conspiracy involved improving test scores by removing low-performing students from classrooms.

Texas Education Commissioner Michael Williams earlier Thursday appointed a board of managers to assume the duties of El Paso ISD trustees.

Newborn found dead in Walmart restroom

KILLEEN — Police have ordered an autopsy on a newly born infant found dead in a restroom at a Central Texas department store near Fort Hood.

A Killeen police statement said an employee at a Walmart Superstore in Killeen found the newly born child not breathing in a women's restroom at the store Friday afternoon.

Bell County Justice of the Peace Bill Cooke pronounced the child dead shortly after 2 p.m. Friday. Police spokeswoman Carroll Smith didn't give any information on the infant or the child's condition. However, she said police are appealing for the mother to seek medical attention immediately or contact police, who will help in getting her medical attention.

Texas man linked to Anonymous faces more charges

A Texas man who has described himself as a spokesman for the hacker-activist group Anonymous faces new charges over data stolen from the private intelligence firm Stratfor last Christmas, federal prosecutors said Friday.

Barrett Brown, 31, was indicted in Dallas this week on a dozen charges that include aggravated identity theft and device fraud. He is accused of making public an Internet link providing access to credit card information stolen from Stratfor, which had emails taken during that same hack released by WikiLeaks.

The charges are the latest against Brown, who already was in federal custody before a federal grand jury indicted him this week in Dallas.

He was charged in October with allegedly threatening an FBI agent on the Internet.

Brown was a de facto spokesman for Anonymous, willing to speak for a movement that prides itself on anonymity.

The Stratfor breach claimed by Anonymous ravaged the company's servers, leading to the disclosure of thousands of credit card numbers and other information.

Former officer guilty of killing common-law wife, gets life

Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI — A South Texas jury has convicted a former police officer in the 2011 fatal shooting of his estranged common-law wife.

Jurors in Corpus Christi convicted ex-Alice police Officer Jose Gonzales III of capital murder. Prosecutors did not seek the death penalty, so Gonzales received an automatic life prison term after being convicted Thursday.

Judge Angelica Hernandez also sentenced Gonzales to life in prison for his conviction for burglary of a habitation to commit aggravated assault in the same incident. The sentences will be served concurrently.

No timeline for former President Bush leaving hospital

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Former President George H.W. Bush remains in stable condition two weeks after entering a Houston hospital for treatment of a lingering bronchitis-related cough.

Methodist Hospital spokesman George Kovacik said Friday that the 88-year-old Bush continues to improve, but doctors are being cautious with his care.

Kovacik said physicians have provided no timeline for when the 41st president will be discharged.

His doctors have said Bush became more physically active this week.

Cornyn, Abbott celebrate new Child Protection Act

Associated Press

AUSTIN — U.S. Sen. John Cornyn and Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott celebrated a new federal law to fight child pornography, sexual predators and human trafficking that President Barack Obama signed Friday.

Cornyn sponsored the Child Protection Act, which increases the penalties for child pornography, protects child witnesses and gives U.S. marshals new authority to obtain time-sensitive documents.

The law also extends federal funding for regional Internet task forces that focus on cybercrimes.

"It also allows the task forces to prioritize cases where there is strong evidence that the suspect has engaged in human trafficking for the actual production of child pornography," Cornyn said. "I'm glad to see the president quickly signed this measure into law to bring greater justice and protection to victims and allow law enforcement to take immediate steps to stop child predators."

Sen. Richard Blumenthal, D-Conn., co-sponsored the measure.

U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, and Democratic Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz sponsored it in the U.S. House.

Cornyn said the president's signature showed that common sense still trumps partisanship.

"Bipartisanship is living and thriving on many issues like this, where I think we can all agree this is not a controversial matter unless you happen to be a child pornographer," he said.

Abbott said the bipartisan law will increase the effectiveness of his Cyber-Crimes Unit, which is a national leader in finding and prosecuting child predators on the Internet. Since 2003, the unit has arrested 304 suspects for using child pornography and the Fugitive Unit has arrested 1,247 sex offenders for violating parole.

"Predators that are prosecuted federally are now going to face tougher sentences," Abbott said.

The Attorney General's Office operates the Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force for 134 counties in southern Texas, using federal funds to help local law enforcement agencies that do not have enough money to operate independently.

US tests explosives underground at Nevada proving ground

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Scientists successfully completed an underground experiment that detonated high explosives around plutonium to test the effectiveness of the nation's nuclear weapons, an official with the National Nuclear Security Administration said Friday.

There was no nuclear reaction and no radioactivity was released with the subcritical experiment, dubbed Pollux, site spokesman Darwin Morgan said.

The detonation was conducted Wednesday in a vault about 1,000 feet beneath the Nevada National Security Site by researchers from the Los Alamos and Sandia national laboratories in New Mexico, Morgan said.

Don Cook, NNSA deputy administrator for defense programs, said in a statement that the single test yielded more data than all other previous subcritical experiments.

Pollux was the 27th experiment since 1997 at the vast federal reservation 85 miles northwest of Las Vegas. The last, on Feb. 2, 2011, was called Barolo B. The procedure uses explosives but stops short of critical mass, the point at which a self-sustaining nuclear reaction occurs.

"This type of data is critical for ensuring our computer simulations can accurately predict performance, and thus continued confidence in the safety and effectiveness of the nation's stockpile," Cook said.

Morgan said the experiments provide information for researchers to certify that the U.S. nuclear stockpile remains safe and reliable.

Anti-nuclear groups criticize the experiments as contrary to the spirit of a comprehensive test ban treaty on nuclear arms that was approved by the United Nations in 1996. The U.S. Senate rejected the treaty in 1999.

The test site hosted 928 full-scale nuclear tests involving 1,021 nuclear detonations from 1951 to 1992, when the U.S. agreed to a moratorium on full-scale nuclear testing.

Voter turnout dropped in New Mexico

Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. — Fewer New Mexicans participated in last month's general election than four years ago, with about 63 percent of eligible voters turning out to cast ballots, according to official figures released Friday.

About 786,500 people voted in the November general election — nearly 47,000 fewer than in the hotly contested 2008 presidential election year when New Mexico was considered a battleground state.

Hanukkah begins at sundown

Hanukkah (sometimes transliterated Chanukkah) is a Jewish holiday celebrated for eight days and nights. It starts on the 25th of the Jewish month of Kislev, which coincides with late November-late December on the secular calendar.

In Hebrew, the word "hanukkah" means "dedication." The name reminds us that this holiday commemorates the re-dedication of the holy Temple in Jerusalem following the Jewish victory over the Syrian-Greeks in 165 B.C.E.

Today in history

Today is Saturday, Dec. 8, the 343rd day of 2012. There are 23 days left in the year.

Today's highlight:

On Dec. 8, 1941, the United States entered World War II as Congress declared war against Japan, a day after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

On this date:

In 1962, the first session of the Second Vatican Council was formally adjourned. Typographers went on a 114-day strike against four New York City newspapers.

In 1980, rock star John Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City apartment building by an apparently deranged fan.

In 1982, a man demanding an end to nuclear weapons held the Washington Monument hostage, threatening to blow it up with explosives he claimed were inside a van. (After a 10-hour standoff, Norman D. Mayer was shot dead by police; it turned out there were no explosives.)

In 1987, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed a treaty at the White House calling for destruction of intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

In 1992, Americans got to see live television coverage of U.S. troops landing on the beaches of Somalia as Operation Restore Hope began (because of the time difference, it was early Dec. 9 in Somalia).

Today's Birthdays: Political commentator Ann Coulter is 51.

Ex-school secretary jailed for violating probation

From staff reports

A former secretary for Bowie Fine Arts Academy is now in jail after violating her initial punishment of five years probation.

Laura Leyva pleaded guilty on May 16 to depositing 17 checks from the school's activity fund into her personal checking account without the school's authorization. She admitted to embezzling $7,800 between September 2009 and August 2010, prosecutor John Klassen said.

She faced a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine up to $250,000.

The U.S. federal court sentenced Leyva to five years probation and a $9,439.81 restitution on Aug. 10. The restitution had a minimum $200 payment and was to start Oct. 10.

She violated her probation on Oct. 19 by drinking alcohol, breaking her 6 p.m. curfew and getting arrested for trespassing, Klassen said.

A week later, her probation was revoked.

Leyva was sentenced on Nov. 28 to nine months in prison with a 24-month supervised release period.

Klassen said it is rare in federal court to receive probation as an initial punishment.

"The dollar amount Leyva embezzled, on a federal scale, was not much for her to go to prison," he said. "But it must have been a large amount for the school."

The Midland Independent School District was unavailable for a comment.

This film image released by Warner Bros., shows Ian McKellen as Gandalf in a scene from the fantasy adventure "The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey." Filmmaker Peter Jackson's decision to shoot his epic three-part J.R.R. Tolkien prequel in the super-clear format that boosts the number of frames per second to 48 from the current standard, 24, has some unintended consequences.

Super-clear format can puncture 'Hobbit' fantasy

By Ryan Nakashima
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — One thought struck me as I watched the new "Hobbit" movie in the latest super-clear format: "The rain looks fake. It's not hitting their faces!"

That is just one consequence of filmmaker Peter Jackson's decision to shoot his epic, three-part "Lord of the Rings" prequel with a frame rate of 48 images per second, double the 24 that cinemagoers have experienced for the past century.

The higher frame rate is supposed to make fast action scenes look smoother, without strobing or other cinematic flaws. But the image is so crystal clear that it can dispel the illusion of the fantasy world.

Jackson used his own money to pursue the new technology, covering the higher production costs involved with adding special effects to twice as many frames.

The studio also backed the format because it creates something new and different that can only be seen in theaters at a time when movie ticket sales in the U.S. are stagnating. For the time being, the new format isn't compatible with Blu-ray discs, DVDs or Internet video. Many people will buy movie tickets just to see what it's like.

"The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey," the first of three movies based on J.R.R. Tolkien's "The Hobbit," opens around the world starting Wednesday and in the U.S. on Friday. About 10 percent of U.S. theaters that carry the movie will offer the higher-frame format. U.S. theaters aren't charging extra, though the format is offered only as part of 3-D screenings, which cost a few dollars more than regular tickets.

In the screening I attended, the higher frame rate did smooth out the staccato effect common in action-packed movies. I thought some scenes using computer-generated images looked more realistic. The format brought out details that might not be noticeable with just an increase in resolution.

These are benefits for fans of the kind of heart-pumping fight scenes that are peppered throughout the movie.

Sometimes, though, the images can look too good.

In the rainy scene I mentioned, the intense clarity made it look as if actors with wet hair were moving between carefully placed artificial rain-makers instead of suffering through an actual downpour. So-so acting was more noticeable, and swords that were swung too easily looked like props. Flickering flames and other quickly moving objects sometimes appeared to race along in fast forward, even though that wasn't the intent.

The Hollywood Reporter's Todd McCarthy said the high frame rates appeared to him like "ultra-vivid television video." The Associated Press' David Germain said the extra detail "brings out the fakery of movies." Variety's Peter Debruge said the benefits of high frame rates come at "too great a cost," adding that "the phoniness of the sets and costumes becomes obvious."

Home allegedly intentionally set on fire

From staff reports

A Midland residence was intentionally set on fire Friday morning after it was burglarized, according to a press release from the city's public information officer.

The Midland Fire Department responded to a structure fire at 5:53 a.m. on the 300 block of East Maple Avenue. The home, which was being remodeled, was not occupied.

The fire was intentionally started in the front bedroom, which was severely damaged by fire, smoke and water used to put out the fire, according to the report. Smoke damage was noted throughout the home.

Nine fire units responded to the blaze.

The owner reported a 60-inch screen television, assorted tools and two new toilet fixtures were missing.

Midland Police Department detectives were notified and are assisting with the property burglary investigation.

Anyone with information is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 694-8477 or 1-800-756-2587 and A Texas Advisory Council on Arson (ATAC) at 1-877-434-7345.

Man charged with assaulting officer

From staff reports

A 35-year-old Midland man remained in custody Friday after allegedly kicking an officer in the face as he attempted to get out of a patrol car.

Salvador M. Acosta, 35, is being held on a $50,000 bond for the third-degree felony of assault on a public servant and the first-degree felony of burglary of habitation with intent to commit assault.

Midland police were dispatched to the 1700 block of Checotah Street at about 2:23 p.m. Thursday in reference to a disturbance in which a man was vandalizing a woman's vehicle, according to the arrest report.

When they arrived, Acosta was not at the scene but pulled up in his truck shortly afterward. He was detained and placed in the back seat of an officer's patrol car.

The woman told officers that Acosta and she were in a relationship but broke up two months ago. Acosta arrived at her home Thursday and tried to go inside but she did not let him.

He then rammed her trailer with his truck and threw a beer bottle at her front door, according to the arrest report. Acosta then kicked open the front door as she ran out the back side. He then left the residence.

At one point, Acosta said his handcuffs were too tight, and then attempted to get out of the vehicle after an officer opened the car door. As police tried to put him back inside, Acosta kicked an officer in the face, according to the arrest report.

CRASH

From 1A

The speed limit for trains at the crossing increased from 40 mph to 70 mph in 2006, according to previous Reporter-Telegram reports.

The warning signals were designed to turn on 30 seconds before the train enters the intersection, according to Texas Department of Transportation documents released last month.

The TxDOT documents are outdated and do not reflect the current conditions of the Garfield Street train crossing, said Raquel Espinoza, spokesperson for Union Pacific.

Espinoza said the Federal Railroad Administration mandates the signal systems are to be activated between 20 and 25 seconds before a train crosses. The arms are then lowered to a horizontal position 15 seconds after the signals are activated. She said the arms have a delayed deployment to allow vehicles still in crossing to go through.

"Ten seconds before the system activates, the signal lights at Garfield and Front turn red," giving drivers a total of 30 to 35 seconds warning before a train enters a crossing, she said.

Smith Industries, employer of parade float driver Dale Hayden, would not comment on the inspections.

The crash left Hayden "highly traumatized" and he has received hate mail, said Dallas-based lawyer Douglas Fletcher — who represents Smith Industries — in an interview with the Los Angeles Times.

Fletcher said Hayden had been placed in a VA hospital in Big Spring within 72 hours of the crash, according to the Times' report.

As for Union Pacific's role in the inspections, Espinoza said they are cooperating with the plaintiff's attorneys. Union Pacific will stop train traffic in the area during the inspections.

"We want to be as transparent as possible," she said.

Glasheen said the information gathered from the inspections will help prove the claim that Union Pacific failed in its duty to maintain the designated warning time.

REPORT

From 1A

fracturing study, Groat, then associate director of the Energy Institute, was a paid director of Houston-based Plains Exploration and Productions Co., held shares in the company and received stock awards. In May, when the company's proxy was sent to shareholders, he owned shares worth more than $1.58 million based on the company's per-share price at the time.

The reviewers said Groat basically assembled a team whose white papers became the basis of the fracturing study, and the papers weren't subject to "serious peer review." In addition, the team included only one active scientist.

The panel recommended that the study be removed from the Energy Institute's website, and a university spokeswoman said Thursday that had been done.

Kevin Connor, director of the Public Accountability Initiative in Buffalo, N.Y., called the 42-page report — the product of a three-month review — "damning."

"It sheds some much-needed sunlight on the whole process of the original (fracturing) report, and it's not a pretty picture," said Connor, an early critic of university's hydraulic fracturing study.

But he praised UT and the review panel, saying, "They deserve a lot of credit for taking a stand on academic integrity and agreeing to follow the recommendations in the report."

In addition to more stringent conflict-of-interest rules, the panel said the Energy Institute should demand annual disclosure of relevant financial relations of all those involved in its projects. Also, the institute should develop a rigorous quality control framework, and the role of all participants in its projects should be "thoroughly documented."

The university said it agrees with the panel's conclusions and will adopt its recommendations.

The University of Texas System adopted more stringent conflict-of-interest policies related to research that went into effect on Aug. 23.

In addition, University Provost Steven Leslie said the university is working to put in place a "compliance audit" of personnel, but exactly what the audit will require remains under discussion, he said.

A high-level official on campus will ensure that all researchers on campus are complying with the new conflict-of-interest rules, he said.

The panel examined the ethics policies of several highly regarded organizations, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Institutes of Health. All have policies that say manuscripts should be accompanied by clear disclosures.

STRAUS

the appeals process.

Straus said his other top priorities will be increasing investment in state infrastructure and resources such as reservoirs to ensure Texas has enough water for the future. He also wants to put an end to accounting tricks that have for decades let lawmakers claim to have balanced the budget by simply moving money around, and to pass legislation that will encourage growth in the state's manufacturing sector.

The speaker said he was encouraged by a number of water proposals, including Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst recently floating the idea of taking $1 billion from the state's rainy day fund to start a water infrastructure development bank, which would help cities and counties pay for environmental studies, permits and other groundwork for new construction.

In the past, maintaining the rainy day fund's $8.1 billion has been a top priority for Gov. Rick Perry and many tea party-backed lawmakers who often oppose Straus. Last session, Democrats called for spending some of the fund rather than cutting public education so much — but many Republicans said doing so was fiscally unwise.

Even though 2011 was perhaps the Legislature's most conservative session ever, Straus has been criticized by some grassroots groups for failing to get behind a few of their pet projects. Now, he faces a challenge from the right for the speakership by Rep. Bryan Hughes, a tea party favorite from Mineola. Straus has spent weeks traveling the state and meeting with lawmakers, however, and said he has broad bipartisan support for a third term.

BUILDINGS

"Business is booming in Midland, and we want to be a part of helping build the foundation for their next chapter in the city's history," said George A. Pontikes Jr., S&P's president and CEO. "The demand for space is up-and-rising, and we're excited to have the opportunity to help provide a community with a second-to-none facility that delivers the resources to meet the area's current demands."

New office buildings are under construction for Fasken Oil and Ranch and EOG Resources and planned for Pioneer Natural Resources and Chevron. Concho Resources refurbished the former Hightower Building for its own use.

Pearl Harbor dead remembered on 71st anniversary

Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii — More than 2,000 people at Pearl Harbor and many more around the country are marking the 71st anniversary of the Japanese attack that killed thousands of people and launched the United States into World War II.

The USS Michael Murphy, a recently christened ship named after a Pearl Harbor-based Navy SEAL killed in Afghanistan, sounded its ship's whistle Friday to start a moment of silence at 7:55 a.m., marking the exact time the bombing began in 1941.

Crew members lined the edge of the Navy guided-missile destroyer in the harbor where the USS Arizona and USS Utah, battleships that sank in the attack, still lie. Hawaii Air National Guard F-22 fighter jets flew overhead in a special "missing man" formation to break the silence.

"Let us remember that this is where it all began. Let us remember that the arc of history was bent at this place 71 years ago today and a generation of young men and women reached deep and rose up to lead our nation to victory," Rhea Suh, Interior Department assistant secretary, told the crowd. "Let us remember and be forever grateful for all of their sacrifices."

About 30 survivors, many using walkers and canes, attended the commemoration.

Edwin Schuler, of San Jose, Calif., said he remembered going up to the bridge of his ship, the USS Phoenix, to read a book on a bright, sunny Sunday morning in 1941 when he saw planes dropping bombs.

"I thought: 'Whoa, they're using big practice bombs.' I didn't know," said Schuler, 91.

Schuler said he's returned for the annual ceremony about 30 times because it's important to spread the message of remembering Pearl Harbor.

Ewalt Shatz, 89, said returning to Pearl Harbor "keeps the spirit going, the remembering of what can happen."

Shatz, who now lives in Riverside, Calif., was on board the USS Patterson that morning when the alarm sounded. His more experienced shipmates were down below putting a boiler back together so Shatz found himself manning a 50-caliber machine gun for the first time. The Navy credited him with shooting a Japanese plane.

"That was some good shooting," said U.S. Pacific Fleet commander Adm. Cecil Haney who recounted Shatz' experience in the keynote address. "Thank you for your courage and tenacity — our nation is truly grateful."

Online, Pearl Harbor became a popular topic on Facebook and other social networks, trending worldwide on Twitter and Google Plus as people marked the anniversary with status updates, personal stories of family and photos.

The Navy and National Park Service, which is part of the Interior Department, hosted the ceremonies held in remembrance of the 2,390 service members and 49 civilians killed in the attack.

Friday's event gave special recognition to members of the Women Airforce Service Pilots, who flew noncombat missions during World War II, and to Ray Emory, a 91-year-old Pearl Harbor survivor who has pushed to identify the remains of unknown servicemen.

The ceremony also includes a Hawaiian blessing, songs played by the U.S. Pacific Fleet band and a rifle salute from the U.S. Marine Corps.

President Barack Obama marked the day on Thursday by issuing a presidential proclamation, calling for flags to fly at half-staff on Friday and asking all Americans to observe the day of remembrance and honor military service members and veterans.

"Today, we pay solemn tribute to America's sons and daughters who made the ultimate sacrifice at Oahu," Obama said in a statement. "As we do, let us also reaffirm that their legacy will always burn bright — whether in the memory of those who knew them, the spirit of service that guides our men and women in uniform today, or the heart of the country they kept strong and free."

Shadowy donor behind record 'super' PAC checks

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lawyer in Tennessee who is mysteriously linked to millions of dollars in campaign contributions steered to congressional candidates doubled his investments in the weeks before Election Day and quietly funneled $6.8 million more to a prominent tea party group, according to new financial statements filed with the government.

William Rose, of Knoxville, previously told The Associated Press that his business was a "family secret" and he was not obligated to disclose the origin of what now amounts to more than $12 million that he routed through two companies he recently created. Rose did not immediately return phone calls from the AP on Friday. He previously complained that phone calls and emails from reporters were irritating.

The money went to the tea party's most prominent "super" political committee, FreedomWorks for America, which spent it on high-profile congressional races. The $12 million accounted for most of the $20 million the group raised this year.

FreedomWorks did not respond to requests from the AP for an explanation, although CEO Matt Kibbe told Mother Jones magazine Friday, "I don't know about these (donations). It's the first time I've heard." When AP asked FreedomWorks weeks ago to explain the source of Rose's earlier contributions, a spokesman for the group declined to discuss the money and said his group adheres to the law in disclosing information about donors.

The contributions are a glaring example of the murkiness surrounding who is giving money to politicians in modern elections, shaped by new federal rules allowing unlimited and anonymous donations. The law has allowed wealthy executives, corporations and other organizations to establish shell companies and mail drops to disguise the source of the money they give to political groups and politicians. But the mysterious donations linked to Rose by far eclipse any suspicious amounts paid to support the campaigns of President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney.

Rose made the latest $6.8 million in contributions, even as the AP and Knoxville News Sentinel were jointly investigating $5.2 million in suspicious donations traced to one of the two companies during October. That company, Specialty Group Inc., filed incorporation papers in September less than one week before it gave FreedomWorks several contributions worth between $125,000 and $1.5 million each. Specialty Group appeared to have no website describing its products or services. It was registered to a suburban Knoxville home.

Rose last week renamed the company Specialty Investments Group Inc. That firm and Kingston Pike Development Corp. — which Rose also registered and owns — were used to steer the latest $6.8 million in contributions to FreedomWorks. Among other amounts, FreedomWorks spent more than $1.8 million of the money on Connie Mack's unsuccessful Senate campaign in Florida and a similar amount opposing Tammy Duckworth, who was elected to Congress in Illinois.

Financial statements that FreedomWorks filed with the Federal Election Commission did not cite any business address for Kingston Pike, but business records indicate that Rose registered the company one day after he created Specialty Group.

Under U.S. law, corporations can give unlimited sums of money to outside groups supporting candidates, but not if their sole purpose is to make campaign contributions.

Rose said in a statement last month that he formed Specialty Group to buy, sell, develop and invest in a variety of real estate ventures and investments. He declined interview requests from the AP over three weeks and complained in his statement that reporters had contacted his ex-wife and business colleagues. He also disputed any characterization that his company was "shadowy."

"The business of Specialty Group is my family secret, a secret that will be kept — as allowed by applicable law — for at least another 50 years," Rose said in his statement.

FreedomWorks is among the most prominent organizations supporting the conservative tea party and was headed for years by former GOP House Majority Leader Dick Armey. Armey recently left the group in exchange for $8 million in payouts over 20 years from an outside benefactor, Richard J. Stephenson, according to a confidential agreement obtained by the AP. Stephenson is a prominent fundraiser and founder and chairman of the Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

The source of the money linked to Rose is unclear. Rose identified himself as Specialty Group's chief executive, president and general counsel, but there was no evidence that the company or Rose could afford to give away $12 million. County register records indicate a William S. Rose Jr. listed at one of Rose's former addresses owes $69,881 in federal back taxes, which a county official said Friday hasn't yet been settled. Property tax records show Rose's current home is appraised at $634,000.

Armey, in a previous interview with the AP, said he didn't know Rose and wasn't aware of where Specialty Group's donations may have originated.

HOPE OF GLORY

CHRISTMAS AT THE DOWNTOWN MIDLAND CENTER

First Baptist Church will be having a Sunday morning service each week in December at 10:00 am at the Midland Center in downtown Midland and we are looking forward celebrating the Christmas season with your family and our Community.

This week, we will celebrate our advent season with a fun family-style service featuring our Children's Christmas program, "Three Wise Guys...and a Baby". We'll all gather from 10-11:30 am in worship. No Childcare or Sunday School this week, just family worship & fellowship.

There will not be a PM service or any evening activities at the FBC campus this Sunday.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

HOUSTON

US oil, gas exploration rigs drop this week by 11

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. fell this week by 11 to 1,800.

Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,382 were exploring for oil and 417 were searching for gas. One was listed as miscellaneous. A year ago, Baker Hughes counted 1,987 rigs.

Texas was down two rigs this week at 853.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Arkansas, Colorado and Pennsylvania each gained one rig.

Alaska lost four rigs, while North Dakota dropped by three. New Mexico decreased by two rigs. Louisiana dropped one rig. California, Oklahoma, West Virginia and Wyoming were unchanged.

The rig count peaked at 4,530 in 1981 and bottomed at 488 in 1999.

NEW YORK

Oil prices fall 3.4 percent this week

Benchmark oil dropped 33 cents to finish at $85.93 per barrel in New York Friday, which marked the fourth consecutive day of price declines. Oil fell 3.4 percent this week.

At the pump, the average price for gasoline fell nearly a penny to $3.37 per gallon, according to AAA, Wright Express and the Oil Price Information Service. That's nearly 9 cents more than a year ago.

Canada OKs CNOOC's takeover bid for Nexen

Associated Press

TORONTO — Canada approved China's biggest overseas energy acquisition, a $15.1 billion takeover by state-owned CNOOC of Canadian oil and gas producer Nexen, but vowed Friday to reject any future foreign takeovers in the oil sands sector by state-owned companies.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the government would only consider future takeover deals in the oil sands by state-owned companies in exceptional circumstances.

"To be blunt, Canadians have not spent years reducing ownership of sectors of the economy by our own governments only to see them bought and controlled by foreign governments instead," Harper said.

Harper's Conservative government has been studying whether CNOOC's deal and a smaller foreign takeover, Malaysian state-owned oil firm Petronas' $5.2 billion bid for Progress Energy, represent a "net benefit" to the country. The Harper government also approved the Petronas deal on Friday.

The prime minister's comments shed light on Canada's policy toward foreign takeovers in the oil sands, particularly when the foreign company is owned by the state.

Concerns have been raised that approvals could lead to a flood of deals that put control of Canada's vast energy resources in foreign hands.

"I do not believe that any major industrialized country would allow a major sector of its economy to be transformed into the property of a foreign government through a couple of transactions," Harper said.

The prime minister said 15 companies dominate production in the Alberta oil sands and the sector represents 60 percent of all the oil production around the world that is not already in state hands. He said he wants to keep it that way. Alberta has the world's third-largest oil reserves after Saudi Arabia and Venezuela: more than 170 billion barrels. Daily production of 1.5 million barrels from the oil sands is expected to increase to 3.7 million in 2025.

"The government's concern has been that very quickly a series of large-scale controlling transactions by foreign state-owned companies could rapidly transform this industry from one that is essentially a free market industry to one that is effectively under the control of a foreign government," Harper said.

CNOOC and other big state-owned Asian energy companies have increased purchases of oil and gas assets in the Americas as part of a global strategy to gain access to resources needed to fuel their economies. Chinese companies have moved more carefully since CNOOC tried seven years ago to buy Unocal but was rejected by U.S. lawmakers who cited national security fears.

WVU mascot told to stop firing musket at wildlife

West Virginia University Mountaineer mascot Jonathan Kimble is seen during an NCAA football game between WVU and University of Maryland in Morgantown, W.Va., on Sept. 22. A video showing Kimble using his mascot rifle to hunt bear has gone viral.

Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The musket toted by West Virginia University's Mountaineer isn't just a prop — it's a bona fide weapon, and mascot Jonathan Kimble demonstrated that when he brought down a black bear with it in the woods.

Now WVU has ordered Kimble to stop using his university-issued weapon on hunting trips after a video of this week's kill was posted online. He said hunting with the gun is a Mountaineer mascot tradition.

The 24-year-old Franklin resident accompanied more than a dozen friends and family on the trip in Pendleton County on Monday. In the video, Kimble is shown firing the musket at the bear in a tree.

"Let's go Mountaineers!" Kimble yells afterward. He also posted a photo of himself with the bear on Twitter.

The WVU mascot wears buckskin and a coonskin cap and fires the musket — loaded with black powder but minus ammunition — at home athletic events and other sponsored activities. Hunting isn't one of them.

"While Jonathan Kimble's actions broke no laws or regulations, the university has discussed this with him, and he agrees that it would be appropriate to forego using the musket in this way in the future," said WVU spokesman John Bolt.

Kimble said Friday that he has hunted all his life and that this was the first black bear he has ever killed. He said all his friends have congratulated him for that.

Kimble said taking the musket on hunting trips has become a tradition with the mascots.

"Other Mountaineers have gone and shot multiple deer with it before. I've taken it with me deer hunting before, also."

Some WVU fans stood behind Kimble on Friday.

"This is a smart young man from West Virginia who did nothing wrong, who was celebrating who he is," said Robert Hickman, who holds two degrees from WVU and lives near Fairmont.

"If you're from West Virginia and you love the outdoors, or if you hunt or don't hunt, or if you fish or don't fish, it is a celebration of this state. As a WVU graduate, I'm thrilled to death with him. Happy as can be."

Library freezes bedbugs off infested books

Associated Press

SEATTLE — The University of Washington's libraries are checking for bedbugs after some of the little blood-suckers were found making a home in architecture books.

Staffers at a library in Gould Hall were checking in books in August when they spotted some small black dots. The bugs had crawled into the space that opens along the spine of hardcover books.

Concerned about an infestation, the staff took those books and others around them and quarantined them in plastic bags.

After bugs turned up at the same library a second time that month, they de-bugged about 45 books in a natural history museum freezer.

A temperature of 18 degrees below zero killed the pests.

Midland High's Catarina Rendon (33) puts a shot up in traffic as Amarillo Caprock's Brooklyn Artis (3) and Akwal Maywin (50) defend Friday at the Tall City Oilman's Tournament.

MHS opens Oilman's Tourney with 2 wins

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

Midland High was happy to have some young legs on the roster Friday.

The Lady Bulldogs faced the task of playing two tough games in a six-hour period during opening-day play of the Tall City Oilman's Tournament at Chaparral Center. The Lady Dawgs passed the day's two tests, picking up wins against Amarillo Caprock and Grady, thanks largely to the presence of the freshmen and sophomores on the roster.

"I know these girls' potential," MHS senior Catarina Rendon said of the younger Lady Dawgs. "I know they play on the varsity level like we all can."

Midland High (9-5) started the day with a 51-43 victory against Amarillo Caprock with freshman Alexandrea Washington scoring a team-high 16 points to lead the Lady Dawgs. Midland High trailed 13-9 after the first period, but started to click offensively in the second with Washington scoring 10 points in that frame alone, allowing the Lady Dawgs to take a 30-26 advantage into halftime. Washington scored six more points in the third period as MHS took command with a 44-35 lead.

"It's not just one person, it's the team. My team was getting me the ball and I was making shots," Washington said. "We all did it together."

Teamwork was a theme for the Lady Dawgs against Caprock as they accumulated 12 assists in the game. Washington's twin sister Alexis had four assists to lead Midland High.

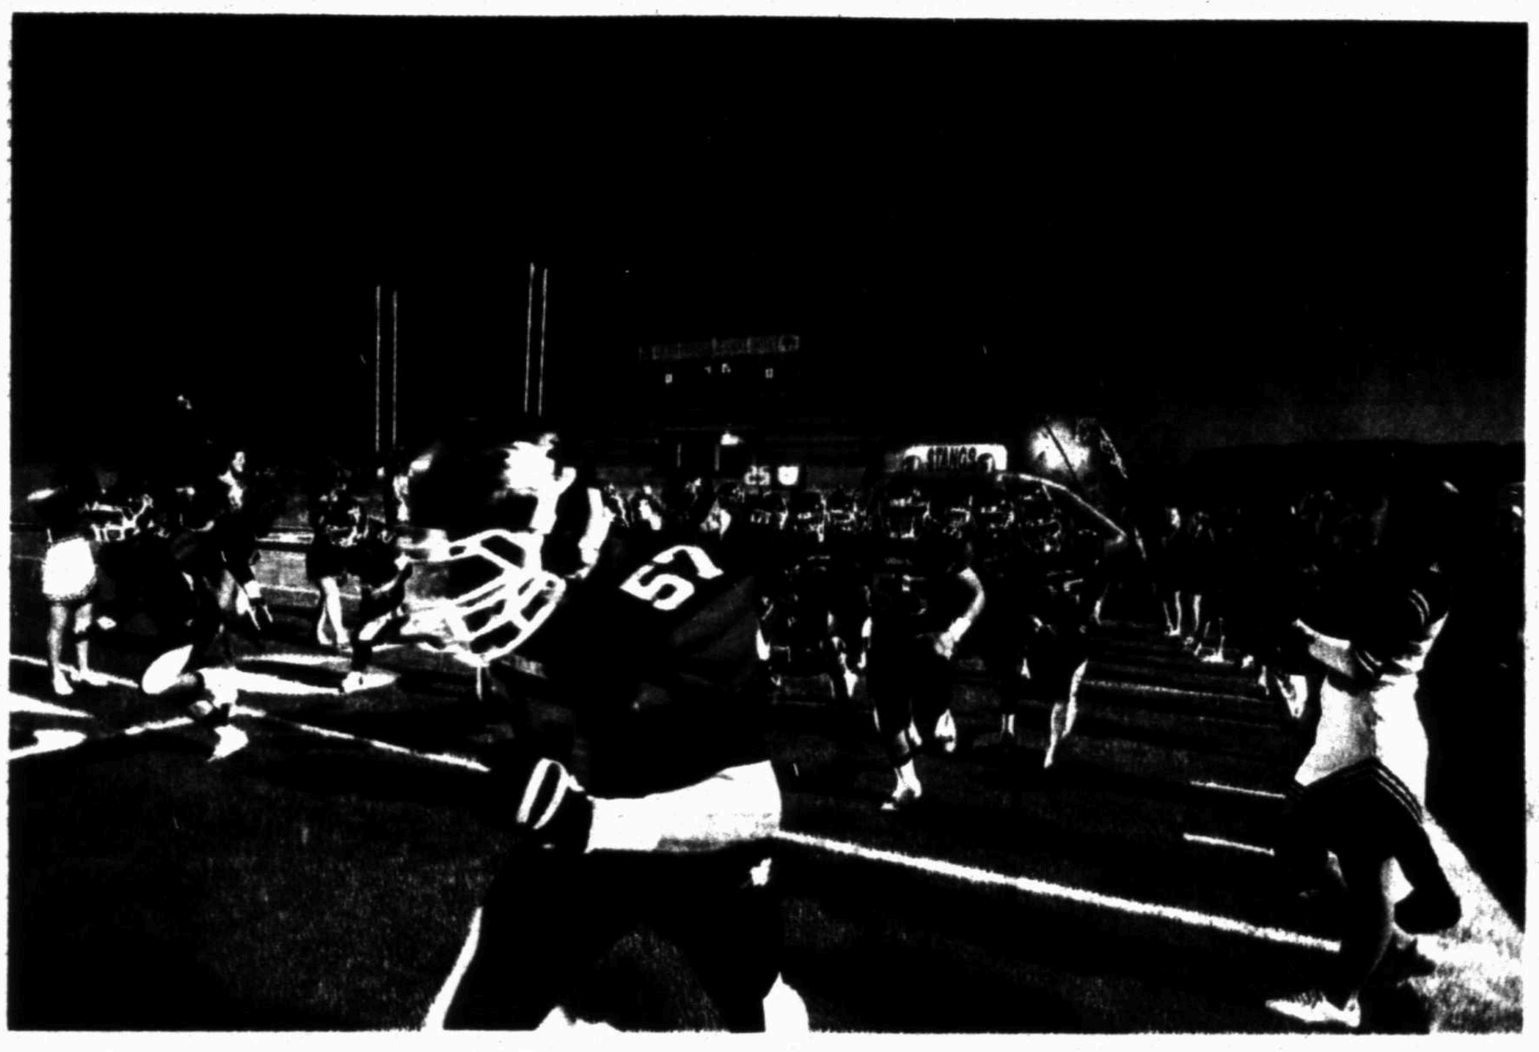

"We seemed to get into a groove in the second period and I think that's a case of the familiarity these girls are starting to have with each other," MHS coach Ron Berry said. "It's a lot of fun to watch. They've played together enough they're seeing more and more on the court."

About three hours after their win against Caprock, Midland High was back on the court, and managed to pull out a 45-32 victory against Class A Division II 16th-ranked Grady (8-3). The fact the Lady Dawgs were playing their second game in a short period of time appeared evident in the opening period as they struggled with Grady's full court press and left a number of good looks short on the rim.

The Midland Christian football team runs out onto the field before its Dec. 1 game against Dallas Christian at Shotwell Stadium in Abilene. The Mustangs play Houston Northland Christian in today's TAPPS Division II state championship game.

TAPPS DIVISION II STATE FINAL
MIDLAND CHRISTIAN
VS. HOUSTON NORTHLAND CHRISTIAN

When: 11 a.m. today
Where: Floyd Casey Stadium, Waco
Online: www.mywesttexas.com/sports and www.midlandchristianschool.org

Midway through the season, outside observers to the Midland Christian football program thought a second straight state title might not be in the cards this year.

The Mustangs had lost star running back Christian Whigham to a season-ending knee injury early in the district season, and district tests against Fort Worth Christian and Arlington Grace Prep were coming.

But inside the Midland Christian program, the goal never changed and a successful senior class that at times has been overshadowed by Whigham's exploits made sure that a state championship was still a reality.

Those nay-sayers only added motivation for the Mustangs, and today this year's senior class, and the team in general, has a chance to cement their legacy into the private school's rich tradition.

Midland Christian will go for the school's sixth 11-man state championship at 11 a.m. today against Houston Northland Christian at Floyd Casey Stadium in Waco, and will also go for the school's first back-to-back titles since 2000-01.

And that fact alone has this year's seniors thinking they have a chance to cement their legacy in the program, and separate themselves from other classes.

"Honestly, it would be awesome for us to go back-to-back," said senior safety Matt Ramirez. "This grade, coach (Greg McClendon) looked at us in the eighth grade and said this is going to be a class to win. We had so much attention on us in the eighth grade, and this year just kind of proves that this is why he was excited."

Getting to this point, though, has been an interesting ride for this senior class.

As freshmen, many of them watched on the sideline or in the stands as Whigham wowed crowds with his ability both as a running back and kick returner. But that 2009 team's season ended in the first round of the playoffs.

As sophomores, some were starters or part-time players on a team with a strong-willed senior class that was expected to win a state title, only to see their dream end in the state semifinals against district rival Fort Worth Christian.

The players had gone through half their tenure at the school after the 2010 season and hadn't had the experience of even playing for a state title, let alone winning one. And they wanted to change that.

"I feel like, my sophomore year, that was one of the best overall athletic classes this school has ever had, but that class went four years without ever playing in a state championship," Taylor said. "It just goes to show you that when everybody comes together, you may have a weak link here and there, but overall the team is much stronger than if you have a bunch of individuals."

There were lessons learned, though, in those two years. Some were put into play last year by a senior class that was determined to get Midland Christian back into the title game and win it.

Cowboys' defensive boss can't boast as his crew on the decline

Tom Orsborne
San Antonio Express-News

Rob Ryan isn't afraid to admit it: His trademark swagger was all but sunk after watching rookie quarterback-running back tandems shred the Dallas Cowboys' defense the past three games.

"Oh, yeah, there's no question," the outspoken coordinator told reporters Friday in Irving. "I was beat down every way you can be beaten."

The good news for the Cowboys (6-6) and Ryan entering this weekend's game against Cincinnati (7-5): Bengals quarterback Andy Dalton and running back BenJarvus Green-Ellis aren't rookies. The bad news: They're still darn good.

Dalton, the second-year pro from TCU, has passed for 10 touchdowns and just two interceptions during the Bengals' four-game winning streak. For the season, he's completed 63.4 percent of his passes for 2,980 yards with 24 TDs and 13 interceptions for a 91.3 passer rating, good for 12th in the NFL.

Green-Ellis, a fifth-year pro, is 11th in the league in rushing yards with 885 after gaining more than 100 yards in the last three games.

Both must be salivating after watch Philadelphia's Nick Foles (22 of 34 for 251 yards with one TD and no turnovers) and Bryce Brown (169 rushing yards and two TDs on 24 carries) become the latest rookie duo to embarrass Ryan's short-handed crew.

The other rookie pairs to torment Ryan were Cleveland's Brandon Weeden and Trent Richardson and Washington's Robert Griffin III and Alfred Morris.

Playing without six injured defensive starters, the Cowboys managed to edge the Eagles 38-33 after rookie cornerback Morris Claiborne scooped up Brown's fumble in the fourth quarter and returned it 50 yards for a TD.

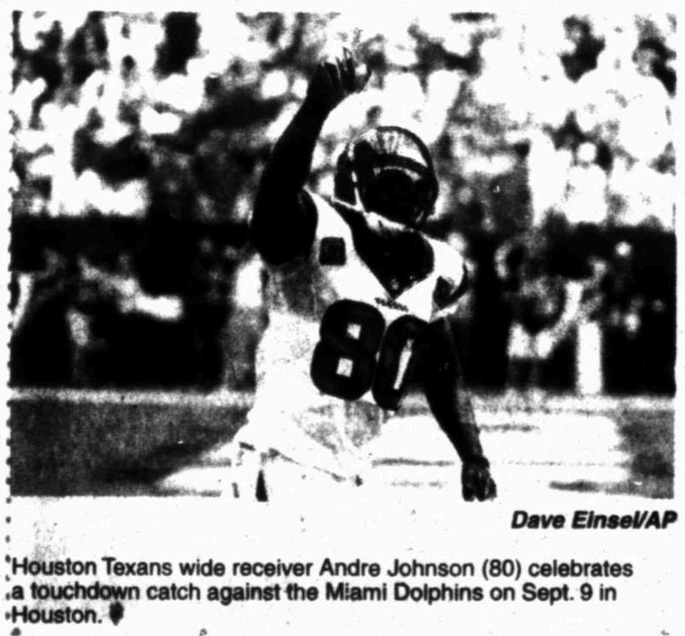

"No excuse, we didn't play worth a crap," Ryan said. "We haven't played great the last three weeks, obviously. We haven't even played good the last three weeks, and that's on everybody."

Ryan learned Friday he will be without Pro Bowl nose tackle Jay Ratliff (groin) for a third straight game. It's yet another blow for a defense preparing to face a Bengals offense that's 10th in the NFL in scoring, averaging 25.2 points per game.

"We've got to play better," Ryan said. "We can't count on our offense scoring 40 points every game."

Ratliff has missed seven games and is on pace for a decline in sacks for a fifth consecutive season. In his six games, he has only 10 tackles and no sacks.

Houston Texans wide receiver Andre Johnson (80) celebrates a touchdown catch against the Miami Dolphins on Sept. 9 in Houston.

Johnson asks teammates to push for more

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Andre Johnson sometimes has to tell his teammates how lucky they are to be on one of the NFL's best teams.

For years, Johnson languished on terrible Texans teams. Now, the star receiver shares stories of the tough times, a reminder to appreciate this season and keep working for more.

Johnson is the only player currently with Houston (11-1) remaining from its franchise-worst 2-14 season in 2005.

"Enjoy this part of it, because the times that I went through, that's something you don't ever want to experience," he said he tells his teammates of that season. "The season was super long. There were times I didn't want to get up and come to work. It's hard because you come in and you're working your (tail) off, and you just can't get the job done."

Johnson has 1,114 yards receiving to bounce back from an injury-filled 2011 season where he had a career-low 492 yards.

He probably appreciates where the Texans are now better than anyone. Johnson joined the team after being drafted in the first round in 2003, and went through eight seasons of missing the playoffs in a stretch with just one winning season.

There were times he thought about playing elsewhere, but he forced himself to think about the big picture.

"You find out a lot about yourself, if you're going to be loyal or if you're just going to run away from it," he said. "My thing was I wanted to stay. I wanted to be a part of something special. I wanted to help this organization to where it is right now and even help it achieve more."

Bulls run past Odessa

From staff reports

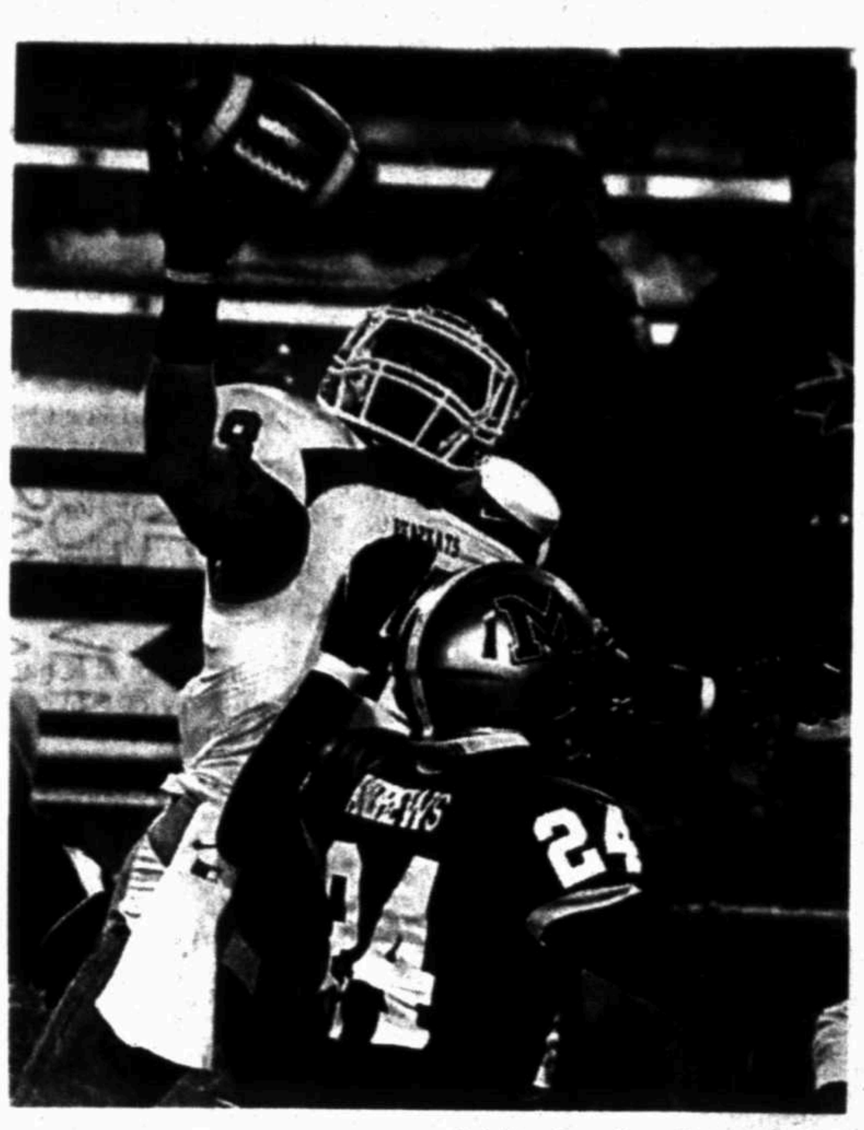

ODESSA — The Odessa Jackalopes were unable to overcome an early deficit as the Amarilo Bulls coasted to a 3-1 road win on Friday.

Geoff Fortman put in the Bulls' first goal at the 10:34 mark in the first period, the first of two power-play goals by his team.

The next came 2:47 into the second period on a TJ Sherman goal that Fortman and TJ Sarcona assisted.

The Bulls (19-3-3) went up 3-0 on a Mike Davis unassisted goal at the 6:05 mark in the third period, and despite a goal by the Jacks' Lawrence Cornellier later in the period, Odessa was never able to make up the lead.

Amarillo goalie Paul Berrafato had 29 saves in the game as Odessa (4-19-2) lost its ninth straight contest.

Sam Houston State wide receiver Brandon Wilkerson tries to make the catch under pressure from Montana State cornerback James Andrews (24) during the first half of a quarterfinal playoff game in Bozeman, Mont. on Friday

Sam Houston State beats Montana State

Associated Press

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Brian Bell threw for 254 yards and three touchdowns and Sam Houston State cruised to a 34-16 FCS playoff quarterfinal win over Montana State on Friday night.

The Bearkats (10-3) took advantage of Jon Ellis' fumble on a first down reception to take control of the game late in the third quarter. Montana State (11-2) had cut Sam Houston State's lead to 20-9 on its first drive of the second half only to see the turnover set up a short field and a touchdown pass from Bell to Chance Nelson giving the Bearkats a 27-9 lead.

The Bobcats were dealt a blow early when senior linebacker, and Big Sky Conference defensive player of the year, Jody Owens was injured and didn't return.

Montana State was also without the services of its leading rusher Cody Kirk for most of the game.

Bearkats running back Tim Flanders had 106 yards on 31 carries.

Richard Sincere scored on a 12-yard run for the Bearkats in the second quarter. Trey Diller scored on a 56-yard touchdown pass from Bell, and Miguel Antonio tacked on a field goal to complete the first half scoring and give the Bearkats a 20-3 lead.

Sam Houston will face the winner between Eastern Washington and Illinois State.

Sam Houston State eliminated Montana State in the quarterfinals for the second straight year. Last season, at home in Huntsville, the Bearkats routed the Bobcats 49-13.

OILMAN'S

allowed Grady to take an 8-4 lead heading into the second period.

"It was tough. I think our legs were a little tired and our legs were a little dead," Alexandrea Washington said. "I don't think we played as well as we could because we were tired, but we did win, though."

A 3-pointer with 15 seconds remaining in the first half by MHS senior London Edwards tied the game at 17 for halftime. Midland High came out of the locker room for the second half on fire. The Lady Dawgs opened the third period with a 12-0 run with Rendon, who had 10 points and 15 rebounds in both of Friday's games, and Desare' Allen each scoring four points in the frame.

Midland High had a 29-20 lead heading into the fourth period, but Grady senior Ellyn Avery wouldn't let the Lady Dawgs put the nail in the coffin right away. Avery scored 12 of her game-high 24 points in the final stanza, but was never able to get the Lady Wildcats closer than six points in the frame.

Just as Grady pulled within 32-26 with 6:07 to play, Midland High freshman post Claire Lancaster answered with five straight points, including a 3-point play, to put the Lady Dawgs back up 37-26 with 5:21 to go.

"I went down to the end of the bench later in the period and told Claire I thought this was a breakout game for her," Berry said. "The twins and (freshman guard) Miranda (Mast) handled the ball well and really responded well to a tough start."

Grady takes on Lovington, N.M., in the consolation bracket at 8 a.m. today.

The road only gets tougher for the Lady Dawgs as they face Class 3A No. 3 Lubbock Cooper at 12:30 p.m. today. After winning their last nine games since starting the season 0-5, Cooper is the type of measuring stick the young Lady Dawgs need to discover just how far they've come in a short period of time this season.

LADY REBELS OVERCOME ROUGH 3RD PERIOD TO WIN: Lee coach Morgan Moylan-Fowler was hoping the Lady Rebels could make a run at the Tall City Oilman's Tournament title since its the last year of the tourney. They had to overcome a bit of adversity to keep those hopes alive Friday.

The Lady Rebels appeared to be on their way to a comfortable first-round victory against El Paso Soccoro, but a scoreless third period forced Lee to rally in the fourth period to pull out a 50-42 victory at Chaparral Center.

"We shouldn't have even come out of the locker room since we didn't score any points," Moylan-Fowler said. "We were absolutely nonexistent. We've got to come out with more fire. We've got to have a leader come out to put them away in the third."

The Lady Rebels had built a 33-19 lead by halftime thanks to some sharpshooting from 3-point land. Lee drained seven 3-pointers in the first half alone, including four from sophomore guard Daija Stanford.

"It was a big time game for Daija," Moylan-Fowler said. "She needed this game and hit some big-time threes."

Lee didn't even attempt a free throw in its scoreless third period while the duo of Paulette Diaz and Pamela Herrera combined to score 13 of Socorro's 16 points in the frame. Herrera, who is just a freshman, finished with a game-high 18 points in the game.

Lee trailed 35-33 heading into the fourth period, but focused on getting junior post Jackie Rivas involved early in the frame. Rivas scored every point for Lee during a 6-1 run to open the fourth, allowing Lee to retake the lead, 39-36.

"When you're struggling like that, you have to get the ball into the hands of your best scorer," Moylan-Fowler said. "Jackie responded for us."

Stanford's fifth 3-pointer at the 3:08 mark sparked a 12-3 run for Lee to end the game and seal the win for Lee. Stanford finished with 17 points, while Rivas added 11.

The Lady Rebels play Lubbock Estacado at 11 a.m. today in the semifinals.

JOHNSON

From 1B

When Houston finally made the postseason for the first time last year, the moment was bittersweet for the five-time Pro Bowler because he missed a career-high nine games with various injuries.

"I was excited, but at the same time I was down because you're just like: 'Man, I know I could be out there helping the team,'" he said. "Those would be the times that I would kind of get down on myself and try do things and hope that I could hurry up and come back."

Johnson had a groin injury in training camp, and that combined with his age (31) and the nagging injuries that slowed him for a good chunk of last season had some wondering if he could still be an elite receiver.

He had 119 yards receiving in Houston's opener, but didn't crack 100 yards again until Week 9. It was then that Johnson said he was finally starting to feel like himself again, and two weeks later he showed just that.

Johnson grabbed 14 passes for 273 yards — both career-highs — and the winning touchdown in Houston's 43-37 overtime win against Jacksonville. He followed that performance with 188 yards receiving a week later.

He's been so good this season than even those who have watched him for years have been left shaking their heads.

"Every day is a marvel," offensive coordinator Rick Dennison said when asked about Johnson. "To me, it's amazing to see somebody work that hard and do that many things because usually you break down or a guy will ask for a day off, but he never does that. I think that's very, very impressive about Andre."

Matt Schaub, who joined the Texans in 2007, said just when he thinks he's seen the best from Johnson, he'll outdo himself. Schaub values Johnson's leadership to the team, and said he can't overstate what he's meant to him individually.

"(He's) the ultimate security blanket," Schaub said. "I know as a quarterback if push comes to shove and we need a play, I know I'm going to go his direction. We see all types of coverages. I'll still go his way because I know he's going to make a play on the football."

COWBOYS

From 1B

Fortunately for the Cowboys, backup nose tackle Josh Brent is coming on strong in Ratliff's absence. It was Brent, a third-year pro from Illinois, who forced Brown to fumble.

"He's really matured as a player," coach Jason Garrett said Brent, a third-year pro.

Cleveland Browns wide receiver Josh Cribbs runs the ball on a kickoff return against the Baltimore Ravens during a game earlier this season in Cleveland. Cribbs doesn't like the possibility that the NFL will replace the kickoff.

Browns' Cribbs not in favor of banning kickoffs

By Tom Withers
Associated Press

BEREA, Ohio — Kickoffs have defined Josh Cribbs' career in the NFL, and made him an invaluable weapon for the Cleveland Browns.

So the thought of the league abolishing the exciting play irritates the return specialist.

"They need to call it a different league if they do that," Cribbs said. "It'll change the game drastically."

Earlier this week, Commissioner Roger Goodell said the league's competition committee will consider eliminating kickoffs in the offseason. In an effort to reduce head injuries and protect players, the league previously moved the kickoff from the 30 to 35-yard line to cut down on violent collisions.

Tampa Bay coach Greg Schiano has suggested that instead of kickoffs, teams would have the option of punting from the 30-yard line and going for a first down in a fourth-and-15 situation. While he coached at Rutgers, Schiano witnessed one of his players, Eric LeGrand, get paralyzed on a kickoff in 2010.

Goodell has called Schiano's idea "interesting."

Browns kicker Phil Dawson believes it's illogical.

"I'm all for player safety," said Dawson, in his 14th season with Cleveland. "I do think the NFL has done a good job in the past — like with the wedge rule. This suggestion doesn't add up. It doesn't address what they say the dangers are because punts are just as violent. There aren't going to be any touchbacks. How many times have you seen a punt returner waiting for the ball to come down and the gunner just kills him?

"It doesn't make sense to me."

Cribbs, who shares the league record (8) for kickoff return touchdowns with Seattle's Leon Washington, can't envision the game he has played since he was a kid not having kickoffs.

"I couldn't ever see that," said Cribbs, sixth on the career kickoff yardage list. "That's like taking the goal post out of the stadium, taking the whole post and uprooting it. Only play offense and defense, just like intramurals. Then play indoors and put flags in our pants."

Dawson believes recent rules changes like banning the blocking wedge, moving the kickoff up five yards and limiting the number of players that can line up on one side of the ball for an onside kick, have lessened the number of violent collisions in games.

However, there are plenty of other plays when hard hits are common. He cited punts as a prime example.

"When the ball is 50 yards down the field, guys are running full speed and you get a lot of cross blocks and guys getting knocked out," Dawson said. "I still wouldn't say it's any more dangerous than any other play. I watch wide receivers get concussions each and every week in the NFL, yet we're going to pick on kickoffs? That doesn't add up to me."

Dawson said taking away the kickoff — and it's only a suggestion at this point — would also remove other elements that help make pro football special.

"There is so much scheming, personnel matchups, strategy that goes into each and every kickoff that people will never understand," he said. "All they see is a guy run and kick the ball. But there's a lot that goes into it and it would be a shame to see that much thought be removed from the game.

"And hey, I'm probably someone who would benefit from this rule, so I don't have a vested interest. I'm known as a field-goal guy, so if anything it would help me, so I'm not saying this because I'm mad, I'm a kicker and I'm going to lose. I don't think this suggestion makes sense."

The argument that taking away kickoffs would cost players jobs isn't a sound one, Dawson said. Most teams use the same players to cover punts and kickoffs and only two teams have kickoff specialists.

For both Cribbs and Dawson, the kickoff is as much a part of pro football as the handoff or forward pass. It is engrained in the sport's deepest roots.

"From when I was a little kid I dreamed about having the opening kickoff in the Super Bowl and all the flashbulbs go off," he said. "I want to be that guy. There's so much that can be accomplished on that play for both sides. To think a guy like Josh Cribbs wouldn't have the opportunity to have the career he's had because of all the excitement he's brought the game.

"I can remember Desmond Howard returning a kick for a touchdown in the Super Bowl and what a game-changing play that was."

Cribbs also applauds the NFL's efforts to make the game safer, but thinks it's becoming too muted. Stripping away the kickoff would make things worse.

"It's getting to be too much of an entertainment business instead of a sport," he said. "I know it's a sport and entertainment and there's a lot of revenue involved, but it'd be straight entertainment and no sports. We won't even be on NFL Network, we'll be on MTV.

"It'd be a made-up sport."

Vols hire Cincinnati's Jones as new football coach

By Steve Megeree
Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Butch Jones was pondering whether to leave Cincinnati this week to coach Colorado when he received a text message that inadvertently foreshadowed his eventual destination.

It was from Denver Broncos quarterback and Tennessee great Peyton Manning.

"He was selling me on Colorado," Jones said. "He said it was hard for a person from the University of Tennessee to be selling somebody to come to the University of Colorado. I wanted to text him back, 'Come on, I want to go to Tennessee.'"

That's exactly where Jones ended up.

Tennessee introduced Jones on Friday as its successor to Derek Dooley, who was fired Nov. 18 after going 15-21 in three seasons. Jones called Tennessee his dream job and said he was taking over "the best college football program in America."

It hardly mattered to Jones that he wasn't Tennessee's first choice.

"I think I was my wife's third choice, and it's worked for 20 years," Jones said.

The 44-year-old Jones has a 50-27 record in six seasons as a head coach. He went 27-13 in three seasons at Central Michigan and was 23-14 at Cincinnati the last three years. He now faces the task of rebuilding a former Southeastern Conference power that has posted three consecutive losing seasons.

Jones agreed to a six-year contract worth $18.2 million, ending a tumultuous couple of days for both himself and his new school. Colorado had offered him a five-year deal worth at least $13.5 million.

Tennessee went after at least two other candidates before hiring Jones.

During the 19-day search to replace Dooley, the Volunteers contacted ESPN analyst and former Super Bowl-winning coach Jon Gruden, who indicated he wasn't interested. The Vols then pursued Charlie Strong, who said Thursday he had turned down their offer and would stay at Louisville.

No contact between sides in hockey fight

By Ira Podell
Associated Press

NEW YORK — NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly said Friday that he is out of ideas how to get negotiations back on track to save the hockey season.

Talks fell apart on Thursday night amid back-and-forth accusations, and the fallout was still being felt Friday. The two sides had no contact with each other on the 83rd day of the owners' lockout of players.

"I have no reason, nor any intention, of reaching out to the union right now," Daly said in an email to The Associated Press. "I have no new ideas. Maybe they do. We are happy to listen."

If the players do have a suggestion, they haven't offered it yet. Their most recent proposal was turned down quickly on Thursday by the NHL, which wanted a yes or no answer on three specific conditions the league said were non-negotiable. When the union tried to bargain the points, the meeting ended abruptly.

That has left the NHL's labor situation in limbo.

All games have been canceled through Dec. 14, which is only a week away, so more games will surely be wiped off the schedule soon. NHL Commissioner Gary Bettman said Thursday that he won't allow a season to be played that contains fewer than 48 games per team — the length of the season that was played after a lockout ended in January 1995.

If there isn't a resolution soon, Sidney Crosby appears ready to find a place to play elsewhere.

The Pittsburgh Penguins star wants to get back to work. He said Friday the prospect of lacing up his skates in Europe is growing more appealing as the lockout nears the three-month mark. The breakdown in negotiations left Crosby "disappointed" and considering other opportunities.

"I just want to play hockey," Crosby told reporters after an informal workout with some of his teammates on Friday morning. "As far as whatever option is best there, I'll start thinking of it a lot more because this stuff is getting ridiculous."

MLB average salary up 3.8 percent to $3.2 million

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball's average salary increased 3.8 percent this year to a record $3.2 million.

According to final figures released Friday by the Major League Baseball Players Association, the rise was the steepest since 2007. The boost was helped by an increase in the minimum salary from $414,000 to $480,000.

The New York Yankees had the highest average for the 14th consecutive season at $6.88 million, rising after consecutive declines from a peak of $7.66 million when they won the World Series in 2009.

The Los Angeles Dodgers rose from 13th to second at $5.55 million and Texas from 15th to fifth at $4.89 million.

At nearly $685,000 Houston had the lowest average since the 2006 Florida Marlins.

NBAROUNDUP

FROM WIRE REPORTS

SPURS 114
ROCKETS 92

SAN ANTONIO — Tony Parker had 17 points and seven assists, and San Antonio never trailed in a win over Houston.

The Spurs had six players score in double figures while matching their season high with 33 assists.

GRIZZLIES 96
NEW ORLEANS 89

NEW ORLEANS — Rudy Gay tied a season high with 28 points and the Memphis Grizzlies maintained their NBA-best winning percentage with their second-straight victory, 96-89 over the struggling New Orleans Hornets on Friday night.

New Orleans put up resistance, though, despite losing for the 11th time in 13 games, and Memphis needed Gay's 3 with 2:10 left to get some breathing room.

76ERS 95
CELTICS 94, OT

PHILADELPHIA — Evan Turner had 26 points and 10 rebounds and Thaddeus Young added 17 points and 12 rebounds to lead Philadelphia past Boston in overtime.

Turner drove past Courtney Lee and tossed up an off-balance, right-handed shot for a 95-94 lead with 3.9 seconds left. Boston guard Rajon Rondo slipped and his ankles buckled on the last possession, costing him a chance to hit the potential game-winner, a dud ending to his sizzling triple-double.

NUGGETS 92
PACERS 89

INDIANAPOLIS — Andre Miller scored eight of his 15 points during a late 10-0 spurt, sending the Denver Nuggets to a 92-89 victory over the Indiana Pacers on Friday night.

The Nuggets (10-10) have won 13 of the last 16 in this series, including seven of the last nine in Indianapolis. The 36-year-old Miller was the big reason this time.

BULLS 108
PISTONS 104

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Joakim Noah had career highs of 30 points and 23 rebounds, to help Chicago beat Detroit for the 16th straight time.

WARRIORS 109
NETS 102

NEW YORK — David Lee had 30 points and 15 rebounds, Stephen Curry scored 28 points, and Golden State gave coach Mark Jackson a winning return to Brooklyn.

TIMBERWOLVES 91
CAVALIERS 73

MINNEAPOLIS — Kevin Love had 36 points and 13 rebounds to lead Minnesota past Cleveland.

HAWKS 104, WIZARDS 95

ATLANTA — Josh Smith had 23 points and 15 rebounds, Al Horford also posted a double-double and the Atlanta Hawks beat Washington 104-95 on Friday night to keep the Wizards winless on the road.

BUCKS 108, BOBCATS 93

MILWAUKEE — Ersan Ilyasova scored a season-high 21 points and Marquis Daniels had season highs with 18 points and six rebounds as Milwaukee took command early and cruised past Charlotte.

Weather forecast: Partly cloudy with a game time temperature of 66 degrees expected with a 10 percent chance of rain.

Directions to the game: From Midland, take SH 158 east through Garden City and Sterling City, approximately 66 miles, and follow 158 to Ballinger, which is about 120 miles. Once in Ballinger, take US 67 north and proceed to Brownwood, about 116 miles. Once in Brownwood, go to US 84 east and follow it into Waco, going through Goldthwaite, Gatesville and McGregor. Once in Waco, turn right on TX Loop 396/North Valley Mills Drive for just over a mile, then turn left at Dutton Ave., and the stadium is on the corner of South Valley Mills and Dutton Ave.

Notes

■ Today's game is the second meeting overall between these two teams as the Mustangs won a TAPPS Division II regional round game in 2010 in Kerrville.

■ Midland Christian opened up a 34-0 lead on Dallas Christian in last week's game as it held the Chargers to 138 yards of total offense, including minus-5 yards rushing. Midland Christian coach Greg McClendon said that he won't be able to totally figure out where the win ranks in his career at the school but he knows it was a big win. Plus it helped to forget a 52-28 loss to the Chargers in 2008 at Shotwell Stadium.

"There's games that I remember that stick with me for a long time, and this is going to be one of those," McClendon said. "But it's just going to be after this week."

■ Houston Northland Christian rebounded from a rough first quarter in its state semifinal as the Cougars were down 10-7 but rebounded to outscore Houston Second Baptist, 35-7, over the next three quarters. Coach David Nelson said he knew that Second Baptist would be ready to play, but he was happy with how his team rebounded. "They came out and gave us all we wanted, we weathered it and went on to beat them," Nelson said.

■ Nelson said what impresses him about Midland Christian is how much the Mustangs keep pressure on a team during a game. He said they do it in all three phases, on offense, defense and special teams.

"They always put you in a high-pressure situation, and once you make mistakes they are great at capitalizing on it," Nelson said. "There's always pressure and we have to be ready for that."

■ A handful of Midland Christian individual single-season records were set last week against Dallas Christian. Junior quarterback Mason McClendon set the single season record for passing yards with his 151 yards. McClendon has 2,530 yards for the season, which is 1 yard more than the 2,529 Cory Burleson threw for during the 2007 season.

Matt Ramirez's two interceptions last week helped him set a school record for interceptions in a season as he has eight this season. Ramirez broke Reid Redman's record of seven from 2006.

■ McClendon said that sophomore running back/linebacker Justin Fender has been cleared to play in today's game after suffering a hip pointer in last week's game. He said he was not sure how much Fender would play, though.

Also, sophomore defensive end Reid Talley suffered a knee injury in last week's game and was on crutches during Tuesday's practice. His status is still uncertain for today's game.

SCOUTING THE COUGARS

Record: 12-0

MCS coach Greg McClendon on the Cougars: "They are 12-0 and they've got a good football team and they are very aggressive defensively. They put a lot of people in the box, and they have a lot of speed on offense."

Northland Christian coach David Nelson on today's game: "Midland Christian has been the standard for the past few years, at least according to me. Anytime I think of winning the state championship, I think the road goes through Midland Christian."

About the Cougars: The Cougars won TAPPS Division II District 3 this season and have done it with a spread offense that likes to run and an aggressive defense. Carter Odenweller leads the team with 1,734 yards rushing and 20 touchdowns, while quarterback Walker Whitehorn has completed 59 of 103 passes for 765 yards and 13 touchdowns. Defensively, the Cougars run odd-man front and stack linebackers behind those linemen. Nelson said they run that front because they have more linebackers than lineman.

Midland Christian's Jarrod Koym (28) tries to break free of several Dallas Parish Episcopal tacklers on Nov. 23 at Brownwood.

And the biggest lesson was that a team, no matter the class of the player in their positions, is what wins titles. Senior linebacker Matt Counts said that the leadership of last year's team showed them how it needed to be done this year.

Yes, he said they have done some things differently this year, but the foundation was set a season ago, and it showed this year's senior class how they needed to lead.

"They really molded us and helped us out a lot," said Counts, who is a two-year starter at middle linebacker. "Every year has it's own things, but for the most part they helped give us an example for what (the seniors) are supposed to be like this year."

The most recognizable name in the senior class, though, is Whigham.

Even last year, Whigham's name stood out above everyone else as he set a number of school records on the way to a state title and began this season as the private school cover boy in Texas Football.

But within the program, Whigham didn't separate himself from his teammates as a star athlete might, and that didn't go unnoticed to his fellow seniors and his teammates.

Whigham is the first to congratulate his teammates on a job well done, and he may be the name that those outside the program know but they also know that he is one part of their team, but not the main part.

"Coach (McClendon) always stressed that one person doesn't make a team," Taylor said. "Christian is a heck of an athlete, and he's gotten a lot of attention from the paper and the news, but you know it's been pretty much the same for us for four years, especially on the offensive and defensive lines. We've always been told we set the tone for the game, and when we make plays other people get their names in the paper. I've never really had a problem with that."

The strength of the class was shown earlier this season when Whigham was lost for the season with a knee injury. To those outside the program, the Mustangs still had plenty of talent, but they didn't have state championship potential without Whigham.

That was something that essentially motivated the team, especially the seniors, to prove the Mustangs could win without their star and show they were more than just Whigham. And in the six games since Whigham has been absent, the Mustangs are 6-0 and have outscored their opponents 238-72. Now they have a chance to win a state title, and prove the doubters wrong even more.

"Christian was a big part of us winning, but at the same time since he's been hurt we knew people were going to doubt us anyway because that's what people do," Ramirez said. "That was a big deal to us to come back and show people that just because Christian got hurt doesn't mean that the class as a whole is an awful class. That was not our main goal, but it was on everyone's mind."

Today, this group of 12 seniors have a chance to cement their legacy in a program where it's a state title or bust. And even though at times they may have been overshadowed, and doubted, in their careers, this group of seniors will be front and center if they hoist a state title trophy today.

"Early on in the season, we were talking if we didn't win state, people would say we couldn't get it done our senior year, but if we win, it would only add to our legacy because we've been working for four years," said senior offensive and defensive lineman Bryson Taylor. "Winning back to back would be a great legacy that we've left for Mustang football."

Woman overcomes disability, but eligible suitors can't

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old female working on my associate degree in paralegal studies. Most people I know tell me I'm attractive, and I do get some second looks from men, but there is one thing I think — although I'm not sure — that scares them away. I am disabled.

I dress well, am an average weight for my height, independent-minded, although not quite independent physically. I get around on crutches.

I live with my parents. I enjoy and participate in physical activities. I don't have a lot of friends, which is fine with me, but I do have a number of special ones. I try to make the best of my disability, and everyone I know, even strangers, tell me I do well and admire me for my courage and strength.

I should be happy with that, but sometimes it bothers me that I haven't found one man who can see past whatever it is that keeps them from liking me. I know a number of grumpy, unhappy, ungrateful women who abuse the men in their lives, and sometimes I can't help but wonder at how "blind" their partners are.

I am not desperate. I like my alone time. But it's a big, beautiful world out there, and I'd like to share it with someone. — AT A LOSS IN OHIO

DEAR AT A LOSS: You need to widen your circle of acquaintances. Once you have completed your studies and have more time, make it your business to join local and state groups associated with your profession. While some people may be put off by your disability, not everyone will be. Many people with physical disabilities have romantic lives and good marriages to partners who see past their disabilities and recognize all of the things they CAN do.

P.S. I know I have said this before, but you should also consider volunteering some of your time to a cause that interests you because it's a great way to meet people.

DEAR ABBY: Last night I received a call from my almost-5-year-old granddaughter asking me for Santa Claus' phone number. It seems she is very angry at her daddy for calling her a brat because she wouldn't give him a hug. She wants to tattle on her daddy to Santa.

Her parents are not together. Her daddy's involvement has been only within the last year. She seemed very upset about the incident, and I want to make sure "Santa" gives her a good answer. I asked her to write a letter instead of phoning Santa to give me time for an answer. Did I do the right thing? — GRANDMA T., PACIFIC GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR GRAMDMA T.: Yes. Once your granddaughter has written the letter to Santa you may find that she no longer dwells on what happened. However, if she continues to look for a reply, "Santa's" response should be that her daddy was hurt when she refused to give him a hug because daddies need love just as little girls do. But name-calling is wrong, no matter how old you are, and he shouldn't have called her a brat — which is why he'll be getting a lump of coal in his stocking at Christmas.

TO MY JEWISH READERS: The eight days of Hanukkah begin at sundown. (I cannot believe how early it has fallen this year.) Happy Hanukkah, everyone. A joyous Festival of Lights to all of you!

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Dec. 8, 2012:

This year your priorities are your friends and expanding your immediate world. From summer on, you will be favored in the area of love, whether you're single or attached. You have a fiery temper, and you often diffuse your anger through spending or by indulging in some other type of activity. If you are single, you have an opportunity to change your status. A potential sweetie is right around the corner. If you are attached, you could be unusually romantic. Many of you might choose to take a second honeymoon. You will see your significant other become more upbeat. LIBRA can tell you off, but you rarely realize it until hours later!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ You will do everything you can to get together with a friend you might not have seen for a while. Frustration could translate to anger, if you are not careful. Be patient, and you will achieve your desired goal. Tonight: Out with a favorite group of friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ Listen to others. You might have decided to complete a certain amount of chores or must-do holiday errands. You will be spending a lot of money, but you also choose gifts that have an emotional investment. Tonight: Choose a local spot for dinner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Tension could be high. Someone you care about might be demanding in a way that is important to him or her but irrelevant to you. Still, put yourself in this person's shoes, and try to understand where he or she is coming from. Tonight: Enjoy every moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ You might opt for a lazy Saturday at home, but be aware that a partner or dear friend simply wants to spend time with you. This person's idea of "doing something" could be very different from yours. Just keep an open mind. Tonight: You value this person; act like you do!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Zero in on what is important to you. You have a tendency to minimize your needs in order to satisfy others. Once in a while, you will need to indulge yourself. Do not hesitate to ask for what you want over a hot cider. Tonight: Out, but not too far from home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Be reasonable. Get your shopping done on a reasonable schedule in order to enjoy yourself more. A child or new friend could be very difficult. Do not let someone who is unhappy trigger a reaction from you. Detach yourself from the situation. Tonight: Your treat.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Your smile attracts many people. Clearly, you are irresistible. A family member could be on the warpath; step back and just let this person be. Understand what is happening with him or her, but focus on enjoying yourself. Make the most out of the moment. Tonight: Happy at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ If you need to get away from all the stress someone brings into your life, do just that. Those in your immediate circle will appreciate you taking time for yourself. Don't internalize your frustration; instead, consider other ways to express it. Tonight: Let others wonder.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Put your best foot forward. When you do this, you'll discover how supportive a key person is of you. Do not minimize this person's role in your life. Enjoy the easy exchange, but know that a serious conversation might be necessary to clear the air. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ Follow through on a commitment involving a co-worker or a family member. This person appreciates your efforts, and you'll feel much better afterward, too. Curb a tendency to be grumpy and difficult. You do want to get along with others, don't you? Tonight: Out and about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Consider those at a distance. You can't always stay on top of everything, but certain people really do count on you. Listen to a child or a fun loved one. Together, you can create a lot of fun. Do not let a former grievance dominate your day. Tonight: Be spontaneous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Try to be more sensitive to others. A special person needs your time and attention. A friend chimes in with a similar request. You have to make a judgment call. You know who is more important, as this person might need you more right now. Tonight: Add some romance.

McColloch closes Texas State season with big game

Greenwood grad Blake McColloch goes into the end zone during a game against New Mexico State earlier this year in San Marcos. McColloch, a Greenwood grad, started for the Bobcats this year.

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Blake McColloch hadn't scored a touchdown since 2008 when he helped Greenwood to a share of the district title and earned 3-3A MVP honors that same season.

Back then, McColloch was more of a skill player, seeing time at quarterback, tight end and defensive end for the Rangers. As a junior defensive tackle playing for Texas State University, McColloch thought his days of scoring touchdowns were over, or so he thought.

On the last regular season game for the Bobcats against New Mexico State University on Dec. 1, McColloch had one of his better games at defensive tackle with four tackles, a sack, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery that led to McColloch scoring from six yards out. The score came as part of a 35-point second quarter in a 66-28 rout of the Aggies in San Marcos.

"It was a good one," said McColloch about the last game of the 2012 regular season. "I had never gotten a touchdown in college before, and I just managed to scoop it up and score. It was a lot of fun to end the season on that note."

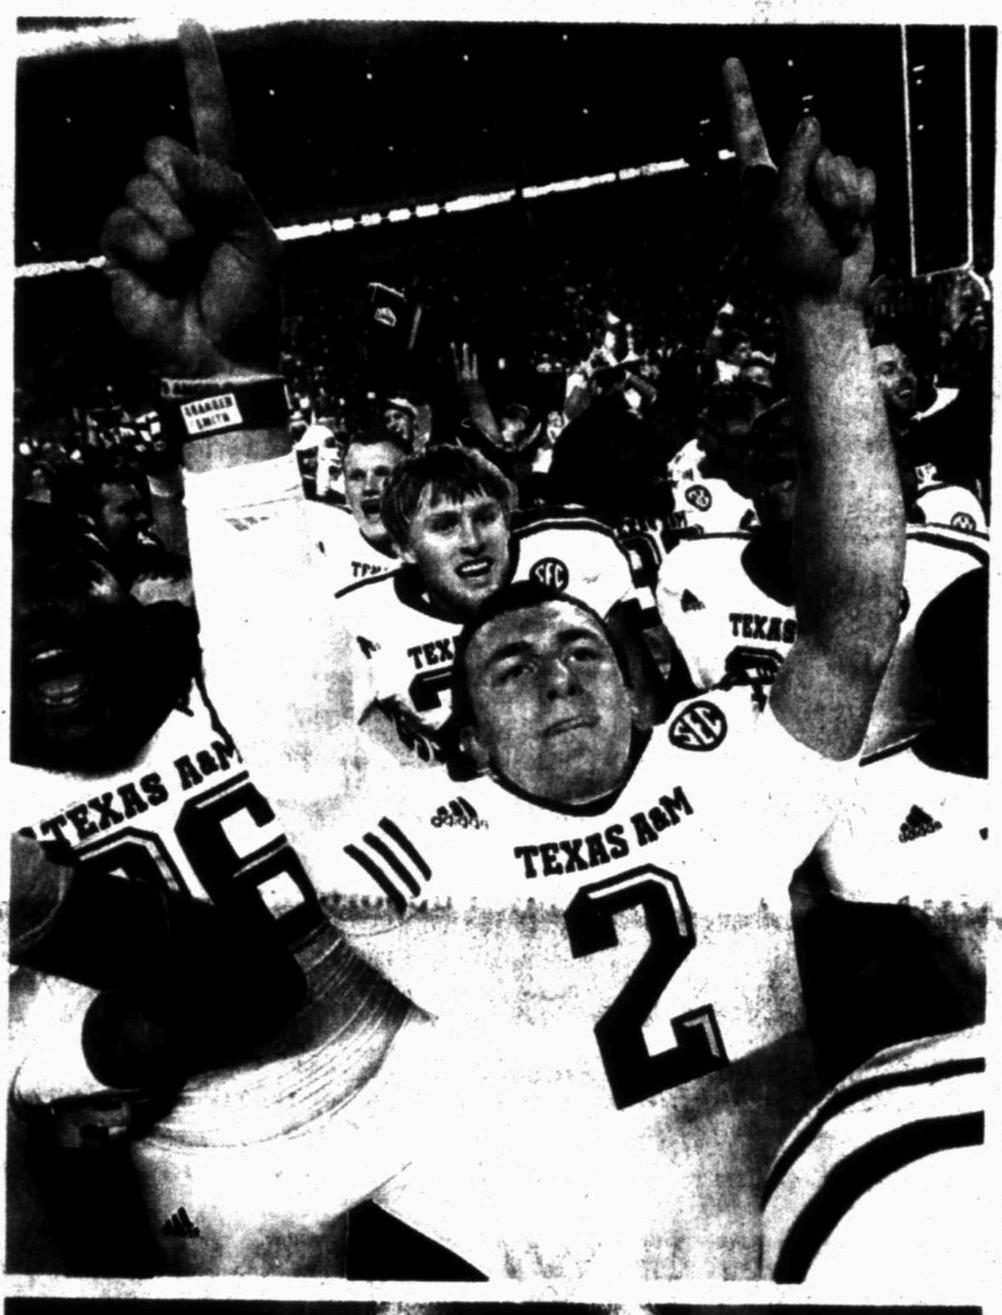

McColloch was actually in on two defensive scores in that game. Three plays after McColloch scored, he sacked NMSU quarterback Andrew Manley and forced a fumble, which was returned 32 yards for a score by Jamie Clavell-Head.

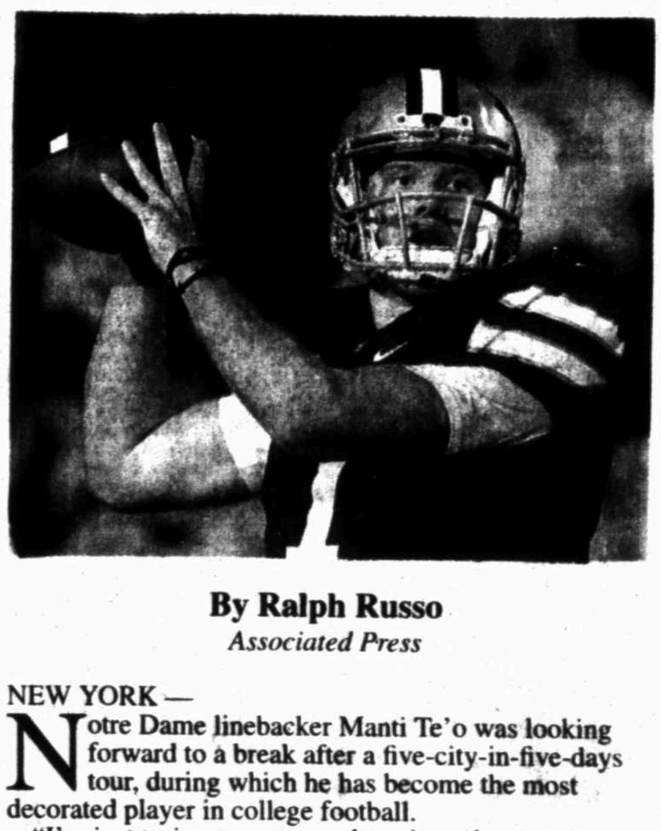

The Bobcats finished the year 4-8 and

Klein, Manziel, Te'o vie for college football's biggest award

NEW YORK — Notre Dame linebacker Manti Te'o was looking forward to a break after a five-city-in-five-days tour, during which he has become the most decorated player in college football.

"I'm just trying to get a workout in and get some sleep," he said Friday about his plans for the night.

Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel seemed to have more energy when he arrived at a midtown Manhattan hotel with his fellow Heisman Trophy finalist. In fairness, Johnny Football's week hasn't been nearly as hectic, though this trip to New York city is different from the first time he visited with his family when he was young.

"It's just taking it up a whole 'nother level, but happy to be here," he said.

Manziel and Te'o spent about 30 minutes getting grilled by dozens of reporters in a cramped conference room, posed for some pictures with the big bronze statue that they are hoping to win and were quickly whisked away for more interviews and photo opportunities.

Manziel, Te'o or Collin Klein, the other finalists who couldn't make it to town Friday, each has a chance to be a Heisman first tonight.

Manziel is trying to be the first freshman to win the award. Te'o would be the first winner to play only defense. Klein would be Kansas State's first Heisman winner.

Manziel and Te'o were on the same flight from Orlando, Fla., where several college football awards were handed out Thursday. The 6-foot-1, 200-pound quarterback was just happy the 255-pound linebacker didn't try to record another sack when they met.

"He's a big guy," Manziel said, flashing a big smile from under his white Texas A&M baseball cap. "I thought he might stuff me in locker and beat me up a little bit."

The two hadn't had much time for sightseeing yet, but they did walk around Times Square some, saying hello to a few fans. They probably weren't too difficult to spot in their team issued warm-up gear.

"We've just been talking about goofy stuff. Playing video games. Playing Galaga. Just some things from back in the day. Messing around with each other," Manziel said. "Kind of seeing who is going to take more pictures. He's definitely taking that award right now."

Te'o is already going to need a huge trophy case to house his haul from this week. He has won six major awards, including the Maxwell as national player of the year. He'll try to become Notre Dame's eighth Heisman

Navy dominates its rival but reveres it as an equal

By Dave Caldwell
New York Times News Service

PHILADELPHIA — Brye French, a senior inside linebacker for Navy, spent a few of his teenage years in Deatsville, Ala., so he has heard plenty about football rivalries in which emotions can boil over.

"When you talk about the Alabama-Auburn rivalry in the Iron Bowl, yeah, that's a big rivalry, and there's hatred and a little history to it," French said this week. "But that's in-state."

He added: "When you talk about Army-Navy, you're talking about guys and gals serving our country around the world. If you watch it, you can see a difference. It's not based on hatred. The rivalry is based on the love of the game. We're not going to be signing contracts after the season to play in the NFL. We're playing because we love the game, and we're playing for our brothers. We have the utmost respect for them. We're very similar."

The Game

ARMY VS. NAVY

When: 2 p.m. today
Where: Lincoln Financial Field, Philadelphia
TV: CBS

Army and Navy, which will meet today for the 113th time, do have one big difference: Navy has beaten Army 10 straight times, the longest streak in the series. Army has won two of its last 15 games against Navy and enters today's contest as a 7-point underdog.

Army has dominated the series for stretches, too. The Black Knights went 8-0-2 against Navy from 1922 to 1933 — the teams did not play in 1928 and '29 — and 7-3 against the Midshipmen in the 1990s. But the rivalry has become so one-sided recently that Navy coaches and players approach the topic with a certain sensitivity.

The Midshipmen still want to beat Army just as badly as Army wants to beat them. Navy coach Ken Niumatalolo, who is 4-0 against Army, jokes that plebes at the U.S. Naval Academy are not permitted to say much more than "Go Navy. Beat Army."

After Navy won last year's game in Landover, Md. — by 27-21, the closest margin in the past decade — many in the Brigade of Midshipmen raised two gloved hands, fingers extended, and chanted, "Ten more years." Navy coaches and players were much more subdued.

"We know what their guys go through," Niumatalolo said. "They're us. They have the same lifestyle. It's a very demanding life for any young man or woman. But it's hard for a football player to go through the rigors of

McColloch

From 1C

2-4 in the WAC, which may have been disappointing to McColloch and his teammates, but considering that Texas State was making the transition from playing FCS opponents to FBS, it was a stepping stone for the program.

"Obviously, it didn't end the way we wanted to, but for the first year of technically playing an FBS schedule, we competed well," McColloch said. "We had a tough stretch of games going from California (to play San Jose State) to Utah (Utah State) and then two weeks later all the way to Maryland (Navy). We played six bowl-eligible teams this year. There were some tough games against some good teams, but it was a lot of fun to get to go and play those teams."

After spending all of last summer in San Marcos working out with fellow teammates, McColloch enjoyed a productive second year as a starting defensive tackle as he finished with 32 tackles, 6 1/2 tackles for loss, a sack, two forced fumbles, two fumble recoveries and two pass breakups.

"I think I grew up a lot this year," McColloch said. "I'm a lot better football player than the year before. After a full year of starting experience, I was able to put more time into the weight room to fit into a defensive tackle's body."

Playing defensive tackle is not something McColloch thought he would be doing when he first got to Texas State. He was originally recruited out of Greenwood to play either tight end or defensive end. But since there was a need for defensive tackles and he had a 6-foot-5 frame to add more weight, coaches made the decision

> "I prepare 365 days a year for 12 games. I'm up here all summer, working out, running every day and then go through spring ball and offseason workout programs.
> Blake McCollcoh, Texas State

to move him. He arrived weighing around 245 pounds, but after his sophomore year he was 255. McColloch says he is now around 285.

"I didn't know how I would handle being inside, but it's been good," McColloch said. "I didn't do anything special to add on that weight. I give a lot of credit to our strength and conditioning coach (Blake Cundiff) for helping me through the process and working with me to put on that weight."

McColloch, who is also working toward a construction science management degree, said he's excited to get back to work in the offseason on improving even more as a defensive tackle and help his team make more strides playing at the FBS level.

"It takes a toll playing 12 games and you have to prepare for a long grind," he said. "I prepare 365 days a year for 12 games. I'm up here all summer, working out, running every day and then go through spring ball and offseason workout programs.

"Going into next spring, I can't believe that I have been here for four years. It's been a great experience for me. I just want to continue to get better."

Heisman

From 1C

winner and first since Tim Brown in 1987.

"I can only imagine how I would feel if I win the Heisman," he said.

Charles Woodson of Michigan in 1997 is the closest thing to a true defensive player winning the Heisman. Woodson was a dominant cornerback, but he also returned punts and played a little receiver. That helped burnish his Heisman credentials.

Te'o is all linebacker. He leads the top-ranked Fighting Irish with 103 tackles and seven interceptions.

Klein was the front-runner for the Heisman for a good chunk of the season, but he played his worst game late in the season — in a loss at Baylor — and the momentum Manziel gained by leading Texas A&M to victory at Alabama has been tough to stop.

Manziel's numbers are hard to deny. He set a Southeastern Conference record with 4,600 total yards, throwing for more than 3,000 and rushing for more than 1,000.

Klein, by comparison, averages about 100 fewer total yards per game (383-281) than Manziel.

A freshman has never won the Heisman. Oklahoma running back Adrian Peterson came closest in 2004, finishing second to Southern California's Matt Leinart.

Manziel is a redshirt freshman, meaning he attended Texas A&M and practiced with the team but did not play last year. Still, he'd be the most inexperienced college player to win the sport's most prestigious award.

"It's surreal for me to sit here and think about that this early in my career," he said. "With what me and my teammates have gone through, with how they've played and how they've helped me to get to this point, it's just a testament to how good they are and how good they've been this year.

"Without them I wouldn't be here and that's the real story to all this."

Dykes officially takes reins at California

By Antonio Gonzalez
Associated Press

BERKELEY, Calif. — At the urging of athletic director Sandy Barbour, Sonny Dykes pulled out a white California cap from underneath the lectern and popped it on his head to accent his blue-and-gold tie and dark suit, drawing cheers from department staff who filled the Memorial Stadium room.

Dykes

On his first day as Cal's coach, Dykes definitely looked the part. The Golden Bears just hope he can garner the same reaction on game days.

Cal formally introduced Dykes as its football coach Thursday, replacing the fired Jeff Tedford after three years at Louisiana Tech. Dykes takes over a proud program with a refurbished stadium and training facilities, but also one that has failed to make a bowl in two of the past three seasons and has the lowest graduation rate (48 percent) in the Pac-12 Conference.

"We will turn it around," Dykes said. "It's going to be a long, arduous process. How many years is it going to take? I don't know. Is it going to be next year? I don't know. What's the future hold? I can't answer that question. But I do know that's what's going to drive us every day. Every single day we get in our car and come to work, our goal is going to be to get to the Rose Bowl."

The decision to hire Dykes was easily the biggest one Barbour has made in her eight-year tenure.

Barbour said she interviewed between six and 12 candidates. She said the school and Dykes have agreed to a "term sheet," but she will not release the contract details until it's officially signed by all parties, which Barbour expects to happen in the coming days.

Dykes also had been vetted by a search committee, and Vice Chancellor John Wilton said Dykes was the school's "first choice." Barbour and Wilton met with Dykes in New York on Monday in the final stage of the interview process.

"When he walked out of the room I said to myself, 'I think that's the guy,'" Barbour said.

More than anything, Barbour and the search committee cited Dykes' discipline and offensive ingenuity — which has sorely lacked in Berkeley in recent seasons.

The 43-year-old Dykes had a 22-15 record with the Bulldogs, improving their victory total each year. The Bulldogs averaged 35.9 points and 452.5 yards per game in his tenure.

He takes over a Cal team that went 3-9 this past season and went 34-37 in Tedford's final 5 1/2 years, leading to his dismissal. Dykes inherits a roster that has some talent, most notably heralded quarterback recruit Zach Kline, who did not play as a freshman but is in line to win the starting job next season.

RIVALRY

the military, the academic requirements, to play football at a Division I level — and know that you'll serve after that."

Navy (7-4) is bound for the Kraft Fight Hunger Bowl against Arizona State on Dec. 29 in San Francisco. Army (2-9) has had just one winning season since 1996.

"It's a constant irritant to all of us," Army coach Rich Ellerson said of the losing streak, adding: "What happened 20 years ago or 10 years ago or last year doesn't follow you into the stadium. We can leverage some of that history in our preparation, both emotionally and physically, but once you get to the game, you better play the game."

What sets the Army-Navy rivalry apart from almost any other is that these opponents will soon be allies. French was one of 28 seniors on Navy's football team who received their service assignments last week. French and Bo Snelson, Navy's offensive captain, will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps.

"There are countless joint operations that happen all the time with the Marine Corps and the Army, or Navy and Army," said Snelson, a slotback from Pasadena. "Maybe one day, one of those guys is going to depend on us, and we're going to depend on them the same way, and then, it's not going to be at a football game for a mark in the win column. It's going to be for someone's life."

This is the biggest game of the season for both teams. Because Navy and Army beat Air Force this year, the Commander in Chief's Trophy will be on the line in this game for the first time since 2005, though these teams do not need extra incentive.

"It just brings chills to you: here are guys who've been playing football against each other, and they could be side by side," Niumatalolo said, referring to possible overseas deployments. "What one person does could affect another person. That definitely does add some significance to the game. You don't really realize it until you hear the stories of the men who come back."

French and Snelson would love to become part of the eighth consecutive class of Navy seniors to go 4-0 against Army. But they have too much respect for the Black Knights to take the game lightly.

"The streak is in our mind; it plays a part in our preparation," Snelson said. "Most people might grow overconfident or grow complacent during that streak. That's something we definitely have not done. Army has always played us really, really close, and regardless of any type of schedules or records, they're a good football team."

He added, "For us to think that they're going to come in there and roll over and give us another one, that would be a huge mistake on our part."

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
My wife and I recently found out we're going to be first-time grandparents. That was enough to make us finally clean out the spare room so our new arrival could come visit. In the process of cleaning, I came across an old desk that I inherited from my grandfather many years ago. Now I've watched enough episodes of Antique Road Show to know that it is either destined to be a great antique or just a pile of old firewood. I want to take out an ad and sell it to make room for our new grandson and his toys, but I don't know how to tell if this desk is valuable or not. Do I need to find an expert who can tell me or can I do it on my own? I need to figure this out soon because my wife is threatening to put it in the garage in place of my car.

Cash: Sounds like time is running short, so pull up a chair and we'll figure this out.

Carry: Determining whether or not a piece of furniture has value can be difficult. In many cases, a reputable dealer can be very helpful in appraising the desk for you. However, by first looking at the furniture's construction, you can quickly evaluate if it is worth calling one.

Cash: You first want to determine if the desk was handmade or machine cut. Handmade desks tend to be much more valuable.

Carry: Look for a manufacturer's name or builder's signature on the underside of the desk or any drawers. Any markings or information that you can find will help you track down it's origin and potential value.

Cash: You can also evaluate the construction of the desk, giving particular attention to the joints. A handmade desk will typically have dovetail joints that are very wide and uneven. Having made them by hand, most craftsmen wanted to make as few as possible. You can also look at any spindles or slats to see if there is any variation in their construction that would indicate they were made by hand.

Carry: Machine cut furniture came around 1860, so you can imagine that a handmade desk may be quite old. If you determine the desk is handmade, then consider calling a reputable antique dealer to appraise it further.

Cash: Although regardless of its value, maybe it's something you want to incorporate into the playroom since it is a family heirloom. After all, your new grandson will need a place to color with his crayons.

Volley for Serve

There's no doubt that furniture can be expensive, but imagine paying over 36 million dollars for a single piece. That is the current record for the most expensive non-pictorial work of art ever sold at auction. With the tap of a gavel at a London Christie's auction in 2004, a badminton cabinet, built around 1720, broke it's previous sales record of 15 million dollars. Made by the Henry Somerset, third Duke of Beaufort, the cabinet is considered more a work of art than a piece of furniture. Today it is on display at the Liechtenstein Museum in Vienna.

Sitting in Style

When it comes to furniture, many of us have our favorite chair in the house and most of us recognize the brand name La-Z-Boy. Designers of the first reclining chair, Edward Knabusch and Edwin Shoemaker created their invention in the late 1920's. Originally designed as a wooden slatted chair, they began covering it with upholstery at the request of their customers. However, the final name for their invention was the result of a contest. Although entries like "The Sit and Snooze" and "The Slack Back" made the list, "La-Z-Boy" ultimately won out.

Like many boys his age, my six-year-old son forgets to use the bathroom during the night and occasionally wets the bed.

Hoping to motivate him to get up, my husband and I bought him one of those beds molded like a racecar. He was so excited when we brought it home that he even went to bed early.

The first few nights he was good about getting up and using the bathroom. However, then one night he forgot again. When I noticed it in the morning, I asked him, "Why is your bed all wet?"

Obviously still excited about his racecar bed, he innocently replied, "I don't know, Mommy. Maybe I drove through a puddle."

2005 Volkswagen Jetta sedan/wagon

By Neal White
Motor News Media Corporation

For those in the market for an economical compact vehicle that delivers both spirited performance and respectable fuel economy, one model worthy of consideration is the 2005 Volkswagen Jetta. The five-passenger, front-wheel drive Jetta was produced in both sedan and wagon body styles for a shortened 2005 model year. Volkswagen replaced the Jetta in mid-year 2005 with a completely redesigned (2005.5) Jetta sedan. (a wagon model was not offered).

For the 2005 model year, consumers had their choice of a number of engine choices: 2.0-liter I-4 (115 horsepower), 1.8-liter turbo (180 horsepower) and 1.9-liter turbo diesel TDI (100 horsepower) and produced in GL, GLS and GLI trim lines. All engines are mated to a five-speed manual transmission or the available four-speed automatic, with 2005 EPA fuel economy ratings in the range of 22 city/30 hwy.

Standard safety features include anti-lock brakes, daytime running lights, driver and front passenger airbags, seat-mounted front seat side impact airbags, side curtain protection airbags and security system.

In the cabin, the look and feel of quality and precision are everywhere. The manual adjustments for the driver's seat are excellent. Displays and controls are easy to read and use. Rear seat passengers enjoy good leg and head room. The 60/40 split rear seat back folds down flat with the floor to increase the useable space of the square cargo area.

Published monthly in nine regional editions across the country, the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA) Official Used Car Guide is a handy reference tool to determine an approximate value for a vehicle depending on the condition and mileage. The retail price listed is the base value by specific model and trim level, with average mileage, usually about 15,000 per year. Consumers can expect to pay more for models with less than average mileage and/or better than average condition.

Likewise, a model will be worth less than guide value when a vehicle has high mileage, extensive wear, minor body damage or needs mechanical attention.

The NADA Official Used Car Guide bases mileage ranges on averages from information received from the automotive marketplace. The information used in this column was derived from the March 2008 Midwest Edition of the NADA Official Used Car Guide. For 2005 models, average mileage ranges from 45,001-50,000.

The NADA guide lists the average retail price for the 2005 Volkswagen Jetta: GL sedan, $12,700; GLS sedan, $14,500; GLS TDI sedan, $17,600; GLI 1.8T sedan, $16,400; GL wagon, $12,800; GL TDI wagon, $16,025; GLS wagon, $14,600; GLS TDI wagon, $17,700; GLS 1.8T wagon, $16,075.

As with all pre-owned vehicles, expect the average retail price to increase if vehicles are equipped with extra features like: Sport Package (standard on GLS 1.8T) ($625), aluminum alloy wheels ($300), automatic transmission ($700), leather ($450), power seats ($225), power sunroof ($550) and/or theft recovery system ($125).

Most new vehicle dealers will check to see if a vehicle received in trade has any outstanding recall notices. Whether purchasing from a dealership or private party, always have a mechanic inspect the vehicle prior to signing an agreement.

Government Report Finds Stability Control Saves Lives

Published Dec 5, 2012

From Edmunds.com

edmunds.com

WASHINGTON — A new federal study says that more than 2,200 lives were saved by electronic stability control technology over a three-year period.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration study estimated that electronic stability control "saved the lives of a growing number of passenger vehicle occupants each year between 2008 and 2010."

It said there were 634 lives saved in 2008, 705 lives in 2009 and 863 lives in 2010.

As a result of the study, federal safety regulators are urging consumers who are in the market for a used car to buy one with stability control.

"NHTSA research has consistently shown ESC systems are especially effective in helping a driver maintain vehicle control and avoid some of the most dangerous types of crashes on the highway, including deadly vehicle rollover situations or to keep drivers from completely running off the roadway," said David Strickland, NHTSA administrator, in a statement.

Electronic stability control helps keep a vehicle on its intended path during a turn and helps it avoid sliding or skidding.

The time frame of the study looked at stability control before the technology was mandated in new vehicles for the 2012 model year starting on September 1, 2011.

Edmunds says: The feds say the number of lives saved per year is expected to increase as more vehicles with stability control end up on the roads.

* The Car Care Council recommends changing your vehicle's engine oil every 3,000 to 5,000 miles depending on the vehicle's make and model, how you drive the vehicle and the conditions in under which you drive. Always consult the owner's manual.

Vehicle System/Component Service Notes

Automatic Transmission Fluid
Check fluid level with engine running and transmission in park. If low, add the type of automatic transmission fluid specified in the owner's manual and/or on dipstick. For maximum performance, change every two years or 24,000 miles, or as directed in owner's manual.

Battery and Cables
Battery should be securely mounted. Battery connection should be clean, tight and corrosion free. If the battery is three years old or more, it should be tested and replaced if necessary.

Belts
Check V-belts and serpentine belts for looseness and condition. Replace when cracked, frayed, glazed or showing signs of excessive wear. Replace timing belt per interval specified in owner's manual. Typically this is 60,000 to 90,000 miles. Not replacing the belt as required could cause a breakdown or serious engine damage.

Brakes
Check the entire brake system every year, including brake linings, rotors and drums.

Cabin Air Filter
Replace annually, or more often in areas with heavy airborne contaminants or whenever heating or cooling efficiency is reduced.

Chassis Lubrication
Many newer cars are lubed-for-life; some still require this service. Check owner's manual. Replacement steering and suspension components may require periodic lubrication.

Check Engine Light On
If light comes on while driving or remains on, your vehicle may have an emissions or sensor problem and should be analyzed. If light flashes, the condition is more severe and must be checked immediately to prevent catalytic converter damage.

Cleaning & Polishing
To prevent stripping the vehicle's wax finish, use only automotive car wash products, not dishwashing liquids. Polish at least twice a year to maintain and protect the finish.

Coolant (Antifreeze)
Check level at reservoir. Never open a hot radiator cap. If low, add 50/50 mix of approved antifreeze and distilled water. Change coolant annually on most vehicles.

Engine Air Filter
Inspect filter at each oil change. Replace annually or when leaking, torn, water or oil soaked, dirty or showing other signs of wear.

Engine Oil and Filter
The Car Care Council recommends changing your vehicle's engine oil every 3,000 to 5,000 miles depending on the vehicle's make and model, how you drive the vehicle and the conditions in under which you drive. Always consult the owner's manual.

Exhaust
Inspect for leaks, damage and broken supports or hangers if there is an unusual noise. Exhaust leaks can be dangerous and must be corrected without delay.

Fuel Filter
Inspect filter at each oil change. Replace if restricted or water contaminated or once a year on cars with carburetors. On cars with fuel injection, replace filter every two years or 24,000 miles.

Hoses
Inspect hoses at each oil change and replace when leaking, brittle, cracked, rusted, swollen or restricted.

Lights
Replace bulb immediately if light is out. Check fuses first.

Oxygen Sensor
Replace at interval as recommended in owner's manual or when other conditions dictate, such as failing an emissions test. Some cars have an oxygen sensor replacement light that appears when oxygen sensor replacement is needed. 1996 and newer cars have more than one oxygen sensor.

Power Steering Fluid
Check the fluid with the car warmed up. Add correct type of fluid if low. If frequent topping off is required, inspect for leaks and replace if contaminated.

Spark Plugs
Typical replacement intervals range between 30,000 and 100,000 miles, depending on the vehicle and type of spark plug. Always consult your owner's manual for your specific vehicle.

Steering and Suspension
Inspect system annually, including shock absorbers, struts and chassis parts, such as ball joints, tie rod ends and other related components. Replace if leaks, damage and loose mounting hardware are found. Symptoms of worn suspension include uneven tire wear and excessive bouncing after bumps.

Tire Inflation and Condition
Check the pressure of all tires, including the spare, at every oil change. Check the tread for uneven or irregular wear and cuts or bruises along the sidewalls. Inflate tires and maintain at recommended pressure. Replace tires if worn or damaged.

Windshield Washer Fluid
Check fluid level monthly. Some vehicles have two reservoirs. Do not use water. Use washer fluid only.

Wiper Blades
Replace every six months or when cracked, cut, torn, streaking or chattering.

A Word to the Wise: WINTERIZE

Winterizing your vehicle is a wise idea, says the Car Care Council. An investment of an hour or two to have your vehicle checked is all it takes to have peace of mind and help avoid the cost and hassle of a breakdown during severe weather.

"The last thing any driver needs is a vehicle that breaks down in cold, harsh winter weather," said Rich White, executive director, Car Care Council. "A vehicle check before the temperatures drop is a sensible way to avoid the inconvenience of being stranded out in the cold and with the unexpected expense of emergency repairs."

The Car Care Council recommends the following steps for winterizing your vehicle:

* Have the battery and charging system checked for optimum performance. Cold weather is hard on batteries.

* Clean, flush and put new antifreeze in the cooling system. As a general rule of thumb, this should be done every two years.

* Make sure heaters, defrosters and wipers work properly. Consider winter wiper blades and use cold weather washer fluid. As a general rule, wiper blades should be replaced every six months.

* Check the tire tread depth and tire pressure. If snow and ice are a problem in your area, consider special tires designed to grip slick roads. During winter, tire pressure should be checked weekly.

* Be diligent about changing the oil and filter at recommended intervals. Dirty oil can spell trouble in winter. Consider changing to "winter weight" oil if you live in a cold climate. Have your technician check the fuel, air and transmission filters at the same time.

* If you're due for a tune-up, have it done before winter sets in. Winter magnifies existing problems such as pings, hard starts, sluggish performance or rough idling.

* Have the brakes checked. The braking system is the vehicle's most important safety item.

* Have the exhaust system checked for carbon monoxide leaks, which can be especially dangerous during cold weather driving when windows are closed.

* Check to see that exterior and interior lights work and headlights are properly aimed.

Motorists should also keep the gas tank at least half full at all times to decrease the chances of moisture forming in the gas lines and possibly freezing. Drivers should check the tire pressure of the spare in the trunk and stock an emergency kit with an ice scraper and snowbrush, jumper cables, flashlight, flares, blanket, extra clothes, candles/matches, bottled water, dry food snacks and needed medication.
