FIRST FLURRY OF SNOW MAY FALL TODAY

Bash Speaks At 10:30 In Union Services of Churches

GRID SEASON CLOSES

All Wichita Falls To Join City's Day Of Thanks

For the fulfillment of the past and the hope of the future Wichita Falls will join a grateful nation in thanksgiving today. There were promises late Wednesday evening that the traditional activities of the day might be enacted against the background of the year's first flurry of snow.

Before the altars of its churches, around the loaded tables in its homes, and upon the muddy grounds of its athletic field, the city will give itself up to the varying aspects of the Thanksgiving festival.

One Evening Service

Formal observation will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday morning with high mass in the Sacred Heart church. At 10 o'clock comes the services of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Episcopal), and at 10:30 the union services, held under the auspices of the Ministerial alliance, will open at the First Methodist church. At the same hour is the Thanksgiving program at the St. Paul's Lutheran church. Members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, will gather at 11 o'clock in the morning. The only evening service will be held at 7:30 at the Trinity Lutheran church.

Between the rites of the morning and the play of the afternoon will come the hour of feasting, when thousands of roasted turkeys, steaming and aromatic, will be offered up on the altar of family rejoicings.

Feature Grid Game

The sporting event of the day, at Athletic field at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, is the contest between the Wichita Falls and Amarillo high school football teams, whereby the Amarillo team will either win or lose a championship. The hundreds of Maskat temple Shrine visitors, which will add so much to the festivities of the day, will attend the game in a body, and the thousands to whom a football match is just as necessary to Thanksgiving as cranberry sauce are expected to overflow the field.

In homes all over the city dinner parties and small dances are celebrating the day. The R. J. R. club is giving its annual formal dance at the Kemo hotel and at Maskat temple the Shriners will enjoy their Thanksgiving ball.

Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor of the First Christian church, will deliver the sermon at the annual union services at the First Metho-

FoardCountyPromisedDeep Oil By New Discovery

Fain-McGaha and Shell Petroleum Company Find Oil at 2,040 Feet in Test Northeast of Thalia

The likelihood of a new deep oil producing area being opened up in Foard county to the northeast of the town of Thalia is looked for in the showing of oil made in the Fain-McGaha and Shell Petroleum company joint test on the Mathews farm.

The test which is located in G. C. & S. F. survey, section 3, abstract 117, encountered the sand at 2040 feet and is showing considerable oil. The hole is now being underreamed to set six inch casing when the sand will be tested.

The completion of a producer in this sand would make the second pay horizon to be uncovered in Foard county. The other sand was picked up by the same interests about a year ago at 1490-50 feet in No. 1 Mathews. This well for several months produced 50 barrels daily and went on record as the county's first oil producer. Later in an effort to pick up a deeper pay the well was junked and the county's first producer went into the discard.

That considerable importance is attached to the outcome of the well is evidenced by the interest manifested by the other major companies who hold plenty of leases in this section of the county.

It was just a year ago that Foard county was constantly in the oil news and much leasing and some drilling resulted from the first discovery of Fain-McGaha and Roxana. The first well found gas sands at several levels and until the hole was abandoned the gas was used as fuel for other operations in the vicinity.

2,500 Shriners Join in Fall Ceremonial of Maskat Temple

Initiation and Parade Feature First Day's Program; Entertainments Today to Close Meeting

The first section of the ceremonial which was held at the auditorium from 7 until 8:30 o'clock was featured by a showing of the Shrine picture, "The Equal Chance," and other entertainments.

The ceremonial opened officially at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning with registration of the novices. A business meeting was held at 11 o'clock while a dance was given from 2 until 4 Wednesday afternoon.

The Shriners held their ceremonial parade at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon through the down town section of the city. The Shrine officials, drum corps, divan officers, Maskat band, patrol, and a large number of visiting and local nobles were included in the line of march.

CHEST FUND HITS $25,000

Workers Fill Out First Red Heart in Drive

"One down and six to go."

In football parlance, that is the status of the Community chest campaign, contributions of $25,000 having enlarged the center heart of the four bulletin boards erected at the Busy Bee, McCrory's, Freear Furniture store, and Renfro Drug company, to the first red outline. The big red hearts must be painted to the six other marks of $35,000, $45,000, $50,000, $55,000 and $60,000 until the $65,000 goal is reached.

One-third of Fund

Wichita Falls' heart is growing, and coll continue to do so, if the challenge issued at Wednesday's rally by A. E. Kelly, campaign director, strikes fire. His talk was broadcast during the noon hour over KGKO. At this time, the audited reports of pledges and cash stood at $22,158.32, approximately 33 1-3 per cent of the total amount sought in the drive.

Mr. Kelly called upon citizens of Wichita Falls to stand by and see the $65,000 drive to the end.

"We'll keep going until we get it," he declared. "Wichita Falls will not fail the Community chest, I know. We have a band of workers of business men and women who are devoting a week's time and intensive effort to this drive. We must not only have their cooperation, but that of every citizen in Wichita Falls, and I feel safe in saying that we are getting it. The little pessimism we are meeting with only serves to bolster up the optimism that keeps us going."

The $65,000 quota sought calls for a fraction more than $1 per

Terse Report on Illness Of Monarch Shows Little Change

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

LONDON, Nov. 28.—It is safe to say that the world's spot light never burned more fiercely than it does today upon that blonde, blue-eyed, well set up sportsman, aged 34, named Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David Windsor. He was born Guelph, but for family reasons the last name was changed during the war to Windsor, which is neither here nor there, when a man has so many names.

A better known alias for this young man is the Prince of Wales, and there is every reason to suppose that he has knocked off shooting lions and other African varmints to head homeward to be "by the Grace of God king of Great Britain and Ireland, and emperor of India."

He Must Marry

All that. And he will be all that reluctantly. More than reluctantly, he will marry.

Perhaps in all English history since the original Britons painted themselves blue and cracked one another's skulls with soup bones, there never has been an heir apparent who held himself ready to ascend the throne of old England at so much "sacrifice." Yet it is an open secret, not only in Britain but to all the world—a world in which the prince has danced and played—that when the time came he would accept the responsibilities of the kingship very reluctantly. Particularly reluctantly will he accept that responsibility involving marriage.

His Tumbles Over

This lion killer knows as he hurries homeward that he has shot his last jungle king and broken his collarbone for the last time in hunting, and danced his last dance with sprightly American girls.

When he arrived at Dodoma from the African jungle yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, full of spirits and laughing, he was shown a decoded London cable, unquestionably from Prime Minister Baldwin which wiped the smile away and opened for him a vista of responsibilities which in these latter years he has tried to forget. A Dodoma dispatch to the Evening News says the dispatch caused the prince "the deepest concern." He did not eat any dinner, but made a brave effort to maintain a normal manner. He even resolutely refused to permit the cancellation of an informal dance in his honor.

Truth Before Him

In other words, the heir to the throne read in that dispatch what the subjects of the British empire

She's Plenty Thankful Today

Whether it's because she's the richest young lady living today or because a good hearty laugh enables her to show two brand new teeth, doesn't matter, but the person pictured above must be full of happiness this morning. Payne Whitney Payson is her name, one year is her age and $178,000,000 is her fortune because she is the co-heir of the late Payne Whitney, New York sportsman and financier.

Trumbulls Make Known Daughter's Coming Marriage

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 28. (AP)—Coincident with the celebration of their 35th wedding anniversary, Gov. and Mrs. John H. Trumbull tonight formally announced the engagement of their eldest daughter, Florence, to John Coolidge, son of President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

It was indicated that the marriage would not take place before summer, thereby eliminating the possibility of a White House wedding. The ceremony probably will take place at the Trumbull home in Plainville.

Young Coolidge hurried from the general offices of the New Haven road to Farmington to be present at the wedding anniversary of his future parents-in-law.

THEFT SUSPECT UNDER ARREST

Negro Pelted by 111 Shot Found by Police

His shirt pierced by 111 bird shot and his back peppered by the pellets, a negro was arrested late Wednesday at a servants' house in a residential district in connection with an alleged attempt to steal gasoline from a truck belonging to E. A. Holder, 2004 Polk street, Tuesday night.

Police Chief Frank Burns, who directed the 19-hour search for the suspect, stated that most of the 111 shots which made a sieve of the negro's shirt entered his back and his condition was believed to be serious. Chief Burns and Detective Chris Jensen arrested the negro and left him in charge of a physician. The officers did not disclose the clues leading to the negro's arrest.

Owner Awaits Thief

Officers started their investigation of the case when Mr. Holder reported Tuesday night he had laid in wait for some one who had been taking gasoline from his truck.

When a man approached the truck, Mr. Holder said, he gave the order "hands up" but instead of halting, the man fled. Then Mr. Holder said he fired twice with his shot gun, loaded with bird shot.

Six suspects questioned in connection with nine house robberies which occurred in Wichita Falls Tuesday night were "picked up" by police Wednesday, Chief Burns asserted. Three of the men were released shortly but three others, who were arrested by Officer Jensen, were being held for further investigation late Wednesday evening.

Lunatic Held

A man who told the police he had escaped from a prison in Canada was identified Wednesday as an inmate of the state insane asylum who escaped more than a month ago.

He was captured by two young men while prowling in their rooms at 3202 Buchanan street after a brief struggle Tuesday night. He was returned to the state hospital here Wednesday.

Dying Man Rushed to Altus Hospital; Accident Unavoidable

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Nov. 28.—The first automobile fatality indirectly caused by blinding fogs which have fallen nightly over North Texas and Southern Oklahoma resulted tonight with the death of Charley Pair, 60, who was fatally injured when struck by a car early this evening.

Morris, it was related, leaped from his car after the collision and carried the victim to a nearby house. He called an ambulance, and Mr. Pair was rushed to the hospital for medical aid.

Bear Skin Suits Provided For Trip To Pole in Search For Santa Claus

Big furry, warm bear skin suits and seal skin coats and caps received direct from S. Kimmo, the very best maker of warm clothes in all the north pole country, by Fulcher Armstrong Wednesday afternoon are almost the final touch of preparation for the departure of the special plane which will leave Wichita Falls Friday afternoon in search of Santa Claus.

This expedition to the north pole for a personal call on Santa Claus himself all came about as a result of The Record News and Daily Times "Why I Believe in Santa Claus" contest. So many boys and girls in the city wrote letters telling their faith in the white whiskered old Christmas visitor that it really will take a special visit from him to satisfy the boys and girls who expect so much from the old fellow.

For that reason the two papers communicated with Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt, famous arctic explorer, who was about to take off from New York for another journey to the north pole, and Capt. Kleinschmit consented to lead a Wichita Falls expedition into the polar country. The plane, which leaves here Friday afternoon will carry all the letters written by Wichita Falls boys and girls, so that they may be shown to Santa Claus, just to show him how many children here are awaiting his visit.

Holly Berry, representative of The Record News and Times, will be aboard the plane to send back stories every day of the progress of the expedition. The plane is to be piloted by "Red" Garland, well-known local flyer. Before leaving Friday at 4 p. m., Mr. Garland will fly over the city for some minutes so that the children here may see the plane and wave the Santa Claus ship goodbye.

PLANE TO HUNT FOR NOAH'S ARK

Man Believes Flood Ship Can Be Found

By W. F. SULLIVAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Noah's ark was built of gopher wood, the Bible informs us, and if so, it still rests on the summit of Mount Ararat where an airplane expedition is planned to search for the historic craft.

"Gopher wood," William J. H. Strong, a Mayflower descendant and sponsor of the proposed expedition, said today, "is a species of cypress, which is not subject to the attack of the fungus of decay. The ark was grounded on a mountain where the rareness of the air would check decay."

Corporation Planned

Strong, former president of the Aviation club of Chicago, graduate of Harvard and other colleges and a member of the Moody Bible Institute Alumni association, offers to organize a corporation to finance an expedition to bring the ark to Chicago as an exhibit for the world's fair in 1933.

Strong, in his offer addressed to Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's fair, said the possibility of the elements destroying Noah's haven for the righteous ones, were slight, despite the thousands of years that intervened. He plans to raise funds among Christian fundamentalists, if President Dawes approves.

"I am not planning the trip for any pecuniary profit," Strong said. "All I would undertake would be to raise sufficient funds to finance the trip. The effort is as legitimate as hunting for some stone ax heads in the Sahara desert."

Plane Only Hope

He pointed out that only by airplane could the summit of Mount Ararat be crossed and that cameras would be taken along to assist in the search.

"Wooden chariot wheels have recently been unearthed at Kish, Mesopotamia, from a depth of 45 feet by the Field-Oxford archeologists." Strong explained in support of his venture. "The age of these wheels was estimated at 5,000 years and they were in good condition."

"IT SURE DOES THE WORK," HE SAYS

Well Known Wichita Falls Katy Switchman Elated Over the Results He Obtained From Orgatone

Mr. N. A. Burnside, a well known switchman for the M.-K.-T. railroad, residing at 1500 N. Ninth St., is another well known Wichita Falls citizen who comes forward with his unqualified endorsement of the remarkable new treatment, Orgatone. In a recent conversation with the Orgatone representative at his home, Mr. Burnside said:

"I am pleased to indorse Orgatone because it is one preparation that really does the work, at least it has for me. Before I took Orgatone I was suffering from stomach and liver troubles and an occasional touch of dull headaches. I had been in this condition for about five or six years and while I spent many a dollar for different kinds of medicines none of them seemed to hit the spot. I had a hot burning sensation from the gas that would form in my stomach and was continually having to take some kind of harsh cathartics to get the proper bowel action. I would take doses of soda, and other temporary relief but of course that only helped me for the time being. I sincerely think Orgatone fulfills its claims because since I started taking it I am feeling like a different person altogether. You can put me down as a friend of Orgatone. I believe it will do anybody good and I am glad to tell anybody about it."

Commenting upon the above statement the Orgatone nurse at Allison's Drug store said:

"There is no season of the year when Orgatone can be taken to better advantage than right now. Especially after weathering the hot summer months and a great many have their system run down from dysentary and other summer complaints. There is nothing more invigorating to a run-down system or that will render the intestinal tract more antiseptic than Orgatone treatment. It will prove invaluable, as hundreds of cases have shown in Wichita Falls in the last few weeks. Orgatone is a powerful reconstructive preparation entirely new from the usual kinds often offered to the public as it contains no alcohol or other stimulating drugs and it produces most gratifying results."

Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana Ave., under the personal direction of a special Orgatone nurse who is meeting the public daily. All mail orders filled promptly by mail, upon receipt of price, $1.25 per bottle or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

First U. S. Army Had Beer Ration On Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. (UP)—United States soldiers who sit down tomorrow to consume $90,000 worth of turkey might or might not want to change places with General Washington's ragged troops at Valley Forge. It would all depend on whether the soldier liked beer better than turkey.

War department files disclose on Dec. 17, 1777, when General Washington issued his famous Thanksgiving proclamation to his army at Valley Forge, the revolutionary troops were provided with a four-cent meal over which to be thankful. The Thanksgiving ration for the troops was as follows:

Fresh beef, flour, dried peas, rice, fresh milk and beer.

The foregoing plus a bit of soap represented the daily allowance to each man at Valley Forge and the cost to the government per man was about 12 cents a day or 4 cents a meal.

The army of 1928, wherever the various outfits may be, will feast differently tomorrow. Approximately 19,500 turkeys are being stuffed by army cooks. Each man was his own cook at Valley Forge.

$25,000 ASKED IN RAIL SUIT

Court Action Follows Iowa Park Crash

In the name of her grandson, age 6, Mrs. Lizzie Greathouse Wednesday filed suit for $25,000 damages against the Fort Worth and Denver railroad as the result of an accident in Iowa Park on Nov. 2 in which the child's mother and two other occupants of an automobile truck were killed.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that the boy, J. D. Greathouse, was entirely dependent on his mother, Mrs. L. V. Greathouse, for support. The mother was 21 years old at the time of her death, the petition states.

The accident occured just as a truck bearing the Greathouse household goods and occupied by five passengers was crossing the Denver tracks in Iowa Park. The younger Mrs. Greathouse, Lee Hagglestein, and Ray Patton were killed. Mrs. Lizzie Greathouse, the plaintiff, was injured.

capita, the director pointed out, in calling attention to Waco's quota of $92,000, with a per capita of $1.50.

"Dallas, in spite of its hard luck," he said, is still going hard toward its goal of more than $500,000 and the workers are within a few thousand dollars of it. Houston went over the top in three days with its $500,000 assessment, and St. Louis went over with $1,600,000 quota. I don't believe that Wichita Falls will be outdone, and am sure we'll go over successfully."

Firms Aid Drive

Several firms were thanked by Mr. Kelly for the interest they have taken in the campaign and the assistance they are giving by handling solicitations of their employes. The example of the Wichita Falls Window Glass company was especially commended. The company advanced money for donations of its employes to the Community chest, the amount to be taken from the pay checks for a period five weeks.

"This plan is a practical one," Mr. Kelly stated, "and is of great assistance to the movement of the campaign. The Continental Oil company, the Panhandle company, the Texas Electric Service company, Ball Brothers, Saul's store and Perkins-Timberlake are soliciting their own employes by committees, and railroads are following a similar plan, which is of much assistance to workers."

Pledges amounting to $295, covering 60 per cent of the $500 which negroes of Wichita Falls are raising as their quota of the Community chest fund, were secured at Tuesday night's meeting of the negro community club, which Willie Lee is chairman. The colored population expects to go over the top with their quota by the end of the week. The $500 is to be added to the apportionment from the chest fund which goes to the Colored Day Nursery and charities, a part of the chest organization.

100 Per Cent

Now 100 per cent contributors to the chest fund are as follows: Victory Motor company, Wichita Falls Foundry and Machine company, S. H. Kress Store, Security Motor Sales company, County Clerk's office, County Tax Collector's office, Sheriff's office, Wichita Falls Window Glass company, Charles E. Watson Paint company, City National Bank, Perkins-Timberlake and P. B. M. company.

Employes of the city of Wichita Falls in the Memorial auditorium and the old city hall have subscribed $1,000 to the Community chest drive, it was revealed Wednesday night when a check of the envelopes of the city departments was being made in the offices of W. E. McBroom, the city clerk.

RANCHER WINS $349 VERDICT

Pollution Damage to Land Ruled Out

The Empire Gas and Fuel company was held responsible for 60 per cent of the saltiness of Beaver Creek and liable to the extent of $349.20 for the cattle, milk and butter losses of M. L. Banta, Wichita county rancher in a verdict returned by a federal court jury at 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

$10,000 Claim Filed

Banta was suing the oil company, operating in the South Electra field, for the recovery of $6117.75, alleged to be 75 per cent of his losses from the saltiness and pollution of the stream since July 1, 1926. His petition claimed a $7125 deterioration in land value, a $450 loss from the inability to irrigate his orchard, $256 for the cost of hauling water to his stock when the cattle refused to drink the salty beverage, $176 loss in weight and value of his cattle, and a $150 decrease in the value of the milk and butter produced by his stock. The plaintiff contended that the oil company "wrongfully and illegally" allowed the salt water and waste oil from its wells to drain into Beaver creek through its tributaries, Bluff and Rough creeks.

In his charge to the jury late Wednesday afternoon, Judge Atwell instructed them to determine the percentage of the responsibility of the Empire Gas and Fuel company and to apoly that percentage to the cattle, milk, butter and water hauling losses alone. Claims for land deterioration and for losses from failure to irrigate were ruled out.

On Cow's Habits

Much of the evidence offered in the afternoon session turned on the exact reaction of a cow to an addition of salt to her drinking water. G. B. Ansell, testifying for the defense, admitted under crossexamination that a cow is inclined to literally turn up her nose at the first taste of salt in the water, but testified that the "sniffing" decreased with custom and the animal is inclined to become more or less addicted to "supping around" a salt pit.

The question of the permanent injunction restraining the company from polluting the water in the creek, asked in the petition, will be argued before Judge Atwell at the time he signs the judgment Friday morning. Court will not convene Thursday, Thanksgiving day.

The question of the pollution of streams, among them Beaver creek, is involved in half a dozen damage suits now pending before the state courts here. Among the actions brought is the suit of D. G. Whitney, et al, against the City of Wichita Falls, et al, asking $212,500 damages.

But Arson Case Reversed On Account of Prosecutor

AUSTIN, Nov. 28. (AP)—The sheriff of Morris county acted within the law when he asked for a drink of water, and was given permission to enter appellant's home, and there found a pair of shoes which connected Sam Traylor with an alleged crime, the court of criminal appeals held today.

However Traylor's case, charging arson, was reversed and remanded because of improper argument of the district attorney before the jury.

Traylor was accused of and indicted for having set fire to the Mount Mariah church for negroes and given two years in the penitentiary.

This was officially announced today by the German air ministry. Two flights will be made, one ranging the polar regions around known lands, and the other around the north pole itself.

The United States will be asked to construct an anchor mast at Nome, Alaska, and the Soviet government to build one at Leningrad. The most expert scientists from the 11 nations to be represented will be picked for the expedition and the most modern equipment will be taken along.

A number of minor alterations are needed to prepare the Graf Zeppelin for the trip, Dr. Eckener told Universal Service today.

PRINCE KNOWS FUN IS OVER

have been denied—the truth about the imminent probability of his succession to the kingship.

Dodoma is far from the frontiers of the empire and little is known about it except that it is a collection of sheet iron huts where less than a thousand Europeans live amid the blacks and where the ants build their houses six feet high.

And yet, thence the Prince of Wales started his journey which is very likely to end at the throne.

The night bulletin from the sick room at Buckingham palace, timed at 8:15, and signed by Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's physicians, said:

"His majesty has passed a fair day with some sleep. Otherwise conditions are unchanged."

The King's Words

It is reported here that when late last night Buckingham palace's sick man was told that the Prince of Wales was hastening homeward, he said:

"I did not want him to return but I knew that he would if he thought it was necessary."

The most fragmentary reports reach here and will continue to come in concerning the prince's progress homeward, because Daressalaam, on the East African coast, near Zanzibar, which he reached at 8:10 tonight after a tedious railroad journey, is little more metropolitan than Dodoma. A dispatch from there says that the prince descended from his train garbed in his safari kit short sleeved shirt and tope. He was met by the Governor of Tanganyika territory and motored without escort to the government house.

It appears that the prince is domed to wait in that scurvy town until the swift cruiser Enterprise, dispatched from Aden reaches there Saturday.

It was learned today that the air ministry has been ordered to "stand by" in case the presence of the Prince of Wales in London is imperative before that time. The ministry has a squadron of 12 "Fairey 3-F's of 530 horsepower" at Aden and the main Egyptian airbase at Heliopolis, near Cairo.

TOPEKA, Nov. 28. (INS)—Fair ladies who work in the state capitol building may continue to buy and eat sweet popcorn balls while on duty, but when they go to wash their hands they must continue to use the new fashioned cloth roller towels.

The state executive council today in solemn assembiage decreed that an old man who had been selling popcorn balls in the capital and who had been ordered from the building by the custodian might continue to peddle his popcorn.

But in the same session the council refused to approve payment for paper towels which had been bought for the building by Secretary of State Frank J. Ryan to take the place of the slot-machine roller towels that have been in use for some time.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—Adv.

Blood Stained Wrench Is Clue To Disappearance of Louisville Woman

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 28. (INS)—A blood-stained monkey wrench, a fragment of what is believed to be a charred human bone and a piece of a bar pin were the sole clews police had here today in their investigation of the mysterious disappearance 51 days ago of Mrs. Ella McDowell Rogers, widow of a Louisville newspaperman.

The clews were taken last night from a furnace in the Baringer Manor apartments where Mrs. Rogers resided. Detectives still believed today that Mrs. Rogers had taken her life because of an alleged broken love affair between herself and Hal Harned, a banker of Dawson Springs, Ky. Harned, who was the last visitor in the widow's apartment the night she disappeared, denied that he had quarreled with the missing woman.

Cab Driver Talks

Detectives found Ernest Tennil, taxicab driver, who told of driving Mrs. Rogers to the union station, Oct. 7 to catch a train for Chicago. He said the woman read two letters during the drive and complained she was in trouble.

Although Philip Haines, negro janitor of the apartment building, is under arrest upon an old charge, police denied today he was being held in connection with the disappearance of the widow.

Brothers Arrive

Two brother of the missing widow arrived in Louisville today. Wallace McDowell, Cincinnati undertaker and a brother today asked Commonwealth Attorney Clarke Ott to arrange a temporary curator for the widow's estate which is valued at $25,000. He asked that she be declared officially dead. J. B. McDowell, another brother of Cincinnati, also wishes his sister to be declared dead, police stated.

Detectives this afternoon began searching the city dump heap for the body of Mrs. Rogers.

Tulsa Sale Gives Rise To New Merger Rumors

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. Although none of the interested parties would discuss the possibility, it is believed that acquisition of the holdings by a banking house indicates that some such merger is contemplated.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (US)—A lady who loves to give big parties, with just endless strings of people coming in and going out, gave one a few nights ago. A couple arriving late met their hostess, who, taken up with so many details of such a big party couldn't know that they were just arriving, so she gave them a fond goodnight and said she hoped they had enjoyed the party and would come again.

A Chicago man's family lives in Pee Wee Valley, Ky. His mother didn't exactly like voting because the polling place was in the jail. But when she got there, considering it her civic duty to vote, she came out of the polling place, handed her ballot to a judge standing nearby and asked sweetly: "What do I have to do to vote the Democratic ticket?"

An Arkansas girl told me that she and her mother lived in the community so long they loved everybody in the town. So when two men they knew ran for the same office this year, they just decided to go to the polls and one vote for one of them, and the other vote for the second man. "Then," argued Daisy, "there won't be any partisility shown, and we will feel better about it."

Peggy is as bright as she is pretty, and talking with a young man the other night she informed him: "Well, I may not be a one-man woman, but I certainly am a one-woman-man woman."

And aren't we all?

"Oh, don't you remember me?" said a lady, calling up an old friend in New York. "I am Susie Gray who later became Mrs. Harris and then married Sam Reichman and am now Mrs. Louis Harting."

Then he remembered!

The man who got the Nobel prize for medicine this year got it for discovering an infectious fever germ that was so minute it filtered through unglazed porcelain.

"But," said Dumb Dora, "wouldn't you hate to spend your life straining out gnats?"

After looking her over I'd say she rather "swallow camels."

What can you call a girl besides "hurlh" or "doll," said a collich kid.

"Well, there's nestling, sapling, kitten, nymph, wench, hoyden and papoose."

You're welcome.

A Los Angeles man gets a divorce from a woman who is too noisy, and a man in Chicago got one because his wife didn't speak to him for two years.

If you have been up in the attic looking for an excuse, use one of these.

The king of Afghanistan won't allow any women to attend state balls unless they wear skirts to their knees if they are married, and two inches above the knees if they are single.

I'll bet the king likes to make whoopee, even if he doesn't know what it means. There is something about the influence of short skirts that adds materially to the gaiety of nations.

CHIC CHERIE

The first open fire of the season is blazing in the fireplace, though you can't see it because there wasn't room to draw it in. Emily and Sue and Dina and Cherie are making the most of it and of their most attractive negligees. Emily's, to the left, is of a soft crepe satin with draped sleeves and fitted hips.

Sue's, next in order, is a formal hostess gown of coral velvet and metal lace with shirrings all down the front that drape the material in curves from a dipped back. Complicated to explain, but you see what we mean. The sleeves have shirred panels for trimming. The belt is made of the velvet with a metal and stone clasp.

Dina's lounging pajamas are of satin and have a long coat of printed transparent velvet to make them into an ensemble. Cherie's black velvet hostess gown has panels, bow and cuffs of peach colored velvet for contrast. Everyone is giving Cherie advice about her picture budget contest and how to run it. Have you heard?

Cherie's picture budget contest: For the best winter wardrobe to cost not more than $200. Three $50 prizes: (1) best college girl's wardrobe, (2) best business girl's wardrobe, (3) best wardrobe for girls at home. Cut the fashions from the ads and make a scrapbook. Send your picture budget to Cherie, care of this paper, by Dec. 1.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (UP)—Miss Rebecca West, British author, has discovered that the American leg is the most beautiful in the world.

She describes her "discovery" in the December issue of The American Sketch.

Describing legs of her own country, Miss West writes:

"The legs behind British footlights have a robust quality that is in harmony with the national ideals implied by the song, 'Hearts of Oak,' 'Rule Britania,' and 'The Roast Beef of Old England.'"

There Are Cases in Which Husband Should Help With Caring For House

Should Husbands Help With the Housework?—Why Sympathy Is Needed for the Foolish Forties—The Engaged Girl Whose Interest Centers on Herself.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What other duties besides being a good provider has a man toward his home? Should he help with the housework? My husband never thinks of assisting me in any way. He likes a lot of company and for me and the children to be dolled up, but he doesn't seem to realize how much work this takes.

Don't you think he should help me instead of reading all the time? Don't you think married life is 75 per cent for the men and 25 per cent for the women?

—MAY BE WRONG.

Answer: What a man should do about the house depends altogether on the individual case and the individual man. You cannot lay down a hard and fast rule on the subject If the wife is frail and delicate and the husband husky and strong, and no servant is to be had, it is obviously the husband's place to help with the housework and do all that he can to lighten his wife's labors.

There are also many men of a domestic turn who enjoy household tasks. They are born cooks and get a real kick out of concocting new dishes. They like to putter around the house and mend broken faucets and put up shelves and scrub the bathroom and turn out the attic. There are other men, however, whom household tasks irritate and who never hang a picture or drive a nail unless they are nagged into doing it, and in such cases it is less wear and tear on a woman's constitution to do the work herself than to have a row with her husband over it.

Speaking by and large, I do not think that a healthy, strong woman should expect her husband to help with the housework, unless, as I said, he enjoys doing it and volunteers his services. He did his part when he brought home the bacon. It's up to her to cook it.

The homekeeping woman who has never earned her living in the outside world hasn't the remotest idea of how hard her husband works nor what a strain he is under during all of his business hours. To her going downtown is a lark and to save her life she can't regard her husband's going to work every day in any other light. Her conception of a business day is of a reception with refreshments, where he meets all sorts of interesting people, hears a lot of good stories and has luncheon at a restaurant.

She does not see his office or store or shop as a place at which he toils to the limit of exhaustion, where he has a million worries, anxieties and exasperations that tear his nerves to fiddle-strings, so that when he comes home at night he is worn out body and soul, too tired to talk, too tired to do anything but slump down in a chair and try to pull himself together under cover of reading the evening paper.

To make such a man superimpose the work of a cook or a housemaid on his labor as a bread-winner is to lay upon him the straw that breaks the camel's back. It's only his rest at home that enables him to gather together enough strength to go on with his job. Deprive him of that and break his night's sleep by making him take care of the children and you precipitate upon him a certain nervous breakdown.

Of course, married life is 75 per cent for the men and 25 per cent for the women, but all life is that way. This is a man's world. And there is nothing that we women can do about it.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am 37 years old and my wife is 40. We have one boy of 12, a fine lad, and a good scholar. We are in comfortable circumstances and have been happy until lately, when I found a dozen love letters that my wife had received from a preacher whom she used to know when she was young. My wife professes to be sorry that she has been writing love letters to this man and promised not to do it again. What must I do, as I don't want to break up my home? Shall I sue the man she was writing to for alienation of affections or shall I have him come before the elders of the church?—A READER.

Answer: At 40 a woman reaches what we call the dangerous age. She gets abnormally sentimental, because she realizes that she is growing old and that her days of romance are numbered. It is the last call to the dining car, you know.

So many women who are really good women at heart and who have a very sincere love for their husbands go on a sort of romantic jag at this time of their lives and do silly and compromising things that they are ashamed of ever after.

So I think that if you will forgive your wife her folly you need never be afraid that she will repeat it. She will have had a lesson that she will remember and she will quake in her shoes when she recalls how near she came to losing her husband and her home and her child.

So I should advise you to forgive and forget; it will bring you much more happiness than breaking up your home. Perhaps you can recall some little sidestepping that you have done that was quite as blameworthy as your wife's silly love letters.

For pity sake, don't sue the preacher and so drag your wife's momentary weakness out before the public and make a scandal of it. Don't disgrace your child by having his mother publicly branded that way, because people always believe the worst of such cases. Keep it all to yourself and nobody will be any wiser.

Of course, you feel in your anger that you would like to revenge yourself on the preacher and drag him from his pulpit, but you can't do that without bringing shame on your wife and child, so refrain from attempting to punish him.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Don't you think that if my sweetheart loved me he would be willing to come and live in the town that I live in and where all my family reside? He lives in a distant state and I do not want to go away from home. He has a good business that he would have to give up, but he is clever and capable and could get something else to do here.—TED.

Answer: I don't think you love him much or you would be willing to go where he lives and where his interests are. Unless a girl is willing to follow a man's fortunes she should stay single. A true wife says to her husband, as Ruth said to Naomi, "Whither thou goest, I will go, and thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

Women are unreasonable. The very woman who will make a man give up a good business in order to live where she wants to live, so that she may not be separated from her family and old friends, will be bitterly resentful because he fails to succeed and can't make her all the money she wants to spend.

Chicago Schools Can't Borrow Cash

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. (UP)—The Chicago school board is looking for a $12,000,000 loan to meet its deficit of that amount, but has little collateral to offer for security, it appeared today as bankers, city officials and school heads conferred in an effort to find a way out of the financial dilemma.

The board has only enough cash to meet the Dec. 4 payroll. After that the future is dark, school officials said. They insist that it is unthinkable that the schools close to a half million Chicago children.

Several bankers, who refused to be quoted, said there was no legal way for the banks to advance the cash, as the board has borrowed to the limit of the law. No more tax money is forthcoming until Feb. 15, or later.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects and why they are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—"Well," the man from the city opines, "I know when I'm licked. I thought I could 'take' you, but I got took myself. Have a good time on my dough."

Turning to his new "friend," the country gentleman asks for his investment in the game and his half cut of the winnings. Just as the "friend" is about to peel several crisp bills from his wad, a new man appears on the scene.

"I am a detective," the man announces. "I have watched you fleecing this young man who just left. You'd better tell your story to the judge. Come with me."

As they start for the station house the "friend" speaks up.

"Perhaps if you got a cut of the winnings you would feel better about this? How about it?"

"Well—perhaps something could be done for $50," the "policeman" replies.

Glad of an opportunity to escape the clutches of the law, the victim chips in enough money to make up the fifty-dollar pot for the "detective's" bribe.

In the privacy of his hotel room the sucker makes a check-up. He is out about $60. In the game he lost about $35 to "bait" the "city feller" and to the "detective" he gave $25.

In the privacy of another room three men meet to divide the $60.

Texas Guinan is pursuing her usual course of being surrounded by attorneys. The West Coast Theaters, Inc., wants $1,500 from her for complaint of breach of contract for not appearing in one of their theaters for a week, while she also has a suit pending against the Los Angeles railway for a collision between one of the company's trucks and her limousine. Miss Guinan carries her limelight with her in her travels.

She was hurrying from the Long Island railroad terminal to the Pennsylvania subway station with an armful of dahlias. As she paused near the turnstile and fumbled in her pocketbook, a "red cap" gazed admiringly upon the lightly-colored flowers.

"Very fine," he murmured.

Whereupon the girl plucked a brilliant one from the array.

"Have one," she said, smiling.

He took it with a bow and she went tripping on her way.

Nashville and Memphis, Tenn., and Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and Galveston, Texas, as well as a number of other southern cities have endeavored to have the wing permanently stationed in their locality. At present the nucleus of the wing is located at Fort Crockett, Galveston, but that site has been declared unsuitable.

126,000 Alcohol Deaths

DR. CHARLES NORRIS, chief medical examiner of New York City, declares in the current North American Review that the nation's list of deaths due to alcohol this year will exceed 126,000. The mortality rate from drink, he says, instead of declining with the advance of prohibition, is actually gaining.

The greater number of these deaths, says Dr. Norris, are not due to what we call "poison liquor." They come because all liquor now being marketed contains highly injurious elements which, in the long run, have an extremely harmful effect on the health.

Statistics, adds Dr. Norris, do not show the increase in deaths due to alcoholism, because most private physicians will not list alcoholism on a death certificate. But he insists that his estimate is accurate.

Dr. Norris' figures, to say the least, are not exactly reassuring.

Taking Genius Apart

FRANZ SCHUBERT, the Viennese musical genius whose centennial is being celebrated now, was "a self-satisfied, humdrum individual, a harmless little school master, conscious of his own deficient ethics and moral qualities and of the inferior value of his soul."

This unusual statement comes from Dr. Robert Lach, professor of musical history at Vienna university. Dr. Lach adds that Schubert realized his inferiority, and that the suffering which this realization brought him eventually made his music more lofty.

Genius is always hard to understand. Shelley was erratic as a school boy. Wagner carried on scandalously with his friend's wife. Poe was a crabbed drinker. Villon was a pickpocket and a footpad. Whitman was a sponger and a loafer.

In other words, the genius often does things which would cause the ordinary man to be set down as a plain scoundrel. It is a bit incomprehensible; so the rest of us, if we are curious, keep trying to dissect the genius' mind and personality, to see if we can find the reason for his great ability.

Dr. Lach, evidently, thinks he knows all there is to know about Schubert and he is not impressed. Schubert was "conscious of his own deficient ethics and moral qualities and of the inferior value of his soul"; his inferiority complex tormented him, and eventually drove him to write some passable music.

It all sounds very clear when a modern professor explains it. The whole world is reduced to a set of crossed wires in an unhappy brain. There are no mysteries, no high places, no inspirations. Everything is made clear by an inferiority complex," or something equally glib and handy.

The only trouble is that genius has a way of answering back that cannot be refuted. A Viennese professor can talk as prettily as he pleases about "deficient moral qualities"; Schubert's C Major Symphony remains to make that prating look ridiculous for eternity. That music is an argument that defies refutation. It not only reveals the greatness of Schubert's soul; it proclaims that the entire race, capable of rising to such heights, is something more than an accident, something higher than an enlivened clod.

Our men of genius are wandering stars. We cannot understand them, we cannot dissect them. They are our greatest reason for hope. The psychologist can talk of mechanism and complexes until they are blue in the face; there remain, eternally, Wagner's "Tristan," Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," Shubert's "C Major," Shelley's "Adonais," to prove, once and for all, that our birth is, after all, "but a sleep and a forgetting." These things were produced from a wisdom that is beyond the wisdom of the schools. They prove to us, beyond denial, that we are immortal spirits.

This Prosperity

VIRGIL JORDAN, chief economist of the National Industry Conference board, tells a New York audience that our present prosperity is "rather a state of mind than a fact susceptible of demonstration."

The word, prosperity, has had less real and definite meaning this past year than in any year since the war, according to Jordan. It is, for the most part, he says, "an illusion created by extraordinary financial conditions."

These are not exactly pleasant words. There will be plenty of people to disagree with them. Doubtless we shall be able to assay them more wisely when the present astounding stock market boom has run its course. Its climax may reveal to us whether conditions are fundamentally sound or otherwise.

Still Unchecked

ANOTHER flood on the Mississippi has its value in that it will show that nothing material has yet been done to rob these devastating floods of their terrors. More than a year has passed since the angry waters of 1927 scattered ruin and death throughout the reach of the great river, but none of the plans formulated at that time has been carried into effect. The fertile acreage of the valley still lies subject to sudden and recurrent devastation.

Naturally it has been a lack of time to carry accepted plans into effect that leaves the valley lands and cities defenseless. The magnitude of the problem rendered it impossible to cure the evil in a single year, however wise and promising the accepted prevention plans might be. But the waves of water now sweeping down toward the sea serve imperative notice on the country that this national problem must be solved without any unnecessary waste of time. Effective flood control has taken a prominent place among the great questions confronting the country and will maintain its prominent position until the Father of Waters has been mastered.

DAIRY PROSPECTS AT CHILDRESS

No part of the state is better fitted for dairying than the territory tributary to Childress, and no part of Texas has made greater advance in recent years in these lines.

We must, however, increase our pace if we are to stay at the head of the procession. It is moving in the right direction, because it will be increasingly true as the market becomes more stable, that in that direction lies profit for farmers.

FREE SPEECH AND THE COURTS

In Minneapolis, Minn., a newspaper that charged official graft has been suppressed by court injunction. If that isn't cutting out free speech we do not know what it is. The case is attracting nationwide attention and the American Newspaper Publishers' association is said to be preparing to fight the case, although the paper is not a member of the association.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

(Copyright, 1927, Dodd Mead & Co.)

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

(Copyright, 1928, Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York)

During the summer, Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Bleiweiss on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess, on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerane. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth, but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Droon, who was made an outlaw many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogative as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a gypsy-tot, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Droon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Moscow. On his way home, near the Asphain border, the stage-coach is held up—not by his men however. The arrival of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with his picked men, is in the Forest of Droon to run down the Darrow band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companion,

John Crispo and Jonifer Davos quietly disappear that night and make their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

Jonifer's return puts an end, for a time, at least, to Peter's thoughts of rebellion. The chief's next move is an attempt to capture Starcourt in a surprise attack at night. He is defeated, however.

Later, coming upon Starcourt while he is swimming in a mountain pool, Jonifer captures him. The colonel's men believe him to be drowned.

Meanwhile, he is among the robbers in the valley, free to do as he pleases, but unable to escape.

Jonifer tells Gerane that he has captured Starcourt as a birthday present for her. The bandit chief takes it for granted that the soldier will fall in love with his daughter and that they will marry. He is amazed when Gerane, in a fit of rage, says she will marry Peter—anybody but the soldier.

When Starcourt at last makes friendly overtures, Gerane repulses him.

Jonifer, acting on a suggestion of one of his lieutenants, who informs him that Gerane has killed a hawk that Starcourt had hoped to train as a carrier-bird, and thereby get into communication with the outside world, tells his daughter that he is going to have Starcourt executed.

INSTALMENT XXII

All that evening Jonifer waited for Gerane to speak to him about the message. She sat opposite him, sewing. Matilde, who was mending a frock, occupied a bench near the fireplace, a short distance away. Jonifer sighed a great many times.

"Sleepy, father?" inquired his daughter once—and only once. She appeared to be occupied with her own thoughts.

"Not at all," said he dourly.

Above the fireplace hung a portrait of Gerane's mother, the beautiful Louise. It was done in oil and was sadly in need of cleaning and a reviving coat of varnish. Gerane's resemblance to her mother was startling, although a marked difference was to be noted in the color of the hair and eyes. Louise's hair was flaxen, her eyes a pale, almost grayish, blue. The story of this portrait as it was afterwards told to Starcourt by Matilde, may be given here and now.

Some time after the marriage of Jonifer and Louise, the former fell in with a young artist who was spending a few weeks at the Dieman Inn. He was from Vienna; his purpose in coming to Graustark was to paint the picturesque men and women of the region, with a view to exhibiting the canvases in the Austrian capital. He had completed several brilliant studies of farm and woodland maids when Jonifer made his acquaintance. So entranced was the chieftain by these pictures, that he decided to have Louise's portrait painted.

One day the artist left the inn for a hut up in the forest, where he had an appointment with a model. He carried his easel, paint box and canvas. He never returned to the inn. Jonifer's men fell upon him. And that was how he came to the valley to paint Louise. Now the strangest feature of the story lies in the fact that not only had he seen her many times in Vienna, but actually had met her. At first he was obdurate and refused to obey the commands of Jonifer. In the end, however, he succumbed. The portrait was the result. He put his heart and soul into its execution, for he fell in love with his subject.

There came a day when he tempestuously blurted out his love. Louise spurned him. He snatched up a knife, and, in a frenzy of despair, rushed over to slash the portrait. With arm upraised, he stood gazing at the beautiful thing he had created—his masterpiece. The knife dropped from his hand. He could not destroy it.

"It is alive," he sobbed. "It lives. It is a living thing, a beautiful, living thing!"

"What are you doing here," exclaimed her father. "Where is he? Stand aside, girl . . ."

Then he turned on his heel and rushed from the house. Outside the door he met Elsie, the servant. He shouted to her, "I love your mistress. Now, go and tell her husband, you—! Tell the scoundrel! Tell him I love his wife!" And Elsie told Jonifer. Jonifer went in and looked at the portrait. "It is finished?" he said stonily to Louise. "Yes," she replied. "It is finished, Jonifer." "There is nothing more for him to do to it?" he went on grimly. "Nothing. But, oh, Jonifer, I am sorry for him. Be merciful." That night the artist disappeared. He was never seen again. There are men in the valley who could speak of a duel in the shop of Julius Broadaxe, but, up to now, not one of those men has spoken. There is a grave somewhere in the forest that has no headstone.

And now, as he waited for Gerane to unbosom herself, Jonifer's gaze sought the painted face of her mother, as if for guidance or inspiration or, more than either of these, some sign to show that she consented to his taking Gerane by the shoulders and giving her a sound shaking. Then he would look furtively at his daughter and shake his head. As serene as a May morning! Women were beyond him.

He got up and opened the door to look out into the night. A storm was coming up. Closing the door, he came over and took his stand with his back to the fire. He could hold in no longer.

"Shot any hawks lately, Gerane?" he inquired.

She started. "Hawks? Why, I—yes, father—day before yesterday," she replied, and, to cover her confusion, sucked her forefinger, on the pretense that it had been pricked by the needle. She was conscious of the steady gaze he fixed upon her.

"What have you done with the message that was tied to its leg? Where is it? Produce it at once, my girl."

She sighed. Then she looked appealingly into his stern eyes.

"Would you be terribly angry, if I told you I had destroyed it?" she asked.

"Yes," he said. "Because I would know you were lying. And I have brought you up to always speak the truth. I hate a liar."

"Well, then," said she, "please sit down, father."

"Sit down? And why should I sit down?"

"Because it is impossible for me to sit on your lap while you are standing up."

He hesitated a moment and then sat down, glaring at Matilde, who had her hand over her mouth.

"I hate conspirators," he muttered, darkly.

Gerane came over and sat upon his knees, leaning her shoulder against his breast. He could see nothing but the crown of her head. To save his soul he could not keep his eyes from softening.

"Who told you about it, father?" she asked.

"Now, I do not intend to be questioned about this—"

"Was it Colonel Stargourt? He was the only witness, I am sure."

"I repeat, once and for all, I do not intend—"

"If it wasn't Colonel Starcourt, then who did tell you?"

"I will say this much and no more. It was not Starcourt who told me."

"But you are not a mind reader, father."

"Well, then, since you must know, he told Julius Snook," blurted out Jonifer. "Now, where is the paper?"

She reached up and gently scratched his chin. "Don't you love me any more, father?"

"Oh—now, by the saints in—" His gaze went up to the portrait, as if for help. He put his arm around Gerane. "See here," he growled. "If you do not care to show it to me—why, just say so, and we will speak no more about it. All I want to know is that it is in safe hands."

"I vowed I would never show it to any one, father. It is locked away in the chest with my—But," she broke off to say submissively, "I can remember every word of it. Shall I tell you what it said?"

Just here it occurred to Jonifer that this was a good time to make a direful announcement. He decided she was in the proper mood for it.

"It is not necessary," he said, hardening his voice. "No harm can come of it now. We have come to the conclusion that we made a mistake in bringing him here. You have no use for him, and the rest of us have none, so this afternoon—yes, and I may add that he swears he would sooner be dead than alive—so this afternoon we decided to get rid of him in the only sensible way we can think of. We are going to shoot him tomorrow at dusk."

He felt her body stiffen. It seemed to him that she stopped breathing. Dead silence followed. He looked at Matilda. She was staring at him, with horror growing in her eyes—or was it disdain. He waited a moment and was vastly relieved when she relaxed and began to breathe again. So he continued:

"He is a care and a nuisance to everybody. And, as it would be madness to set him free—well, you see how it is, Matilde." He weighed the next sentence carefully. "Dead men tell no tales, as the saying goes."

Gerane surprised him by quietly asking:

"Have you told him of your intentions?"

She was looking at her fingernails—with what appeared to him to be the most serene interest in their condition. He could not believe his ears—or eyes, for that matter.

"We—er—we thought we would not tell him until just before the—the execution. It would be more humane, don't you think so?"

"It is too bad you did not decide on this before you climbed all the way up to the cave to get the furs for him," said she, apparently more concerned for him than for Starcourt. "It would have saved you a great deal of trouble, father dear. I am so sorry I asked you to get them for him. If I had had the slightest idea you were going to shoot him tomorrow, I should never have insisted upon it. But you see, I was trying to be humane myself. The winters are so cold—"

"Go to bed!" he roared, setting her upon her feet as he arose. "I am going out for a while. I have got to think, and I cannot think with you—"

"But, father, listen! The storm is upon us. O—oh! Did you hear the wind—"

"Curse me!" gasped Jonifer—or would it be better to say that he bleated? "Have you no heart? Are you willing to have that poor fellow shot? Are you—"

"I have been brought up to respect your word as law," said she. "And, besides, why should I expect you to regard property rights as sacred?"

"What's that?"

"I merely reminded you that you have no regard for other people's property."

"And what has that to do with this case, may I ask?"

"Isn't he my property?" she asked coolly, and left the room.

Speechless, he saw the curtains close behind her back. Then he turned to Matilde. She was smiling.

"If I were you, Jonifer," said she, lowering her voice as she came to his side, "I should go ahead with your preparations to shoot him."

He swore between his teeth. "But, curse you, woman, I do not want to shoot him. What is the matter with you women? Have you no—"

"Sit down," she commanded. He obeyed her, much to his own surprise. "You are a great simpleton, Jonifer. Now, listen to me."

And so it came to pass that when Jonifer and six of his men, armed with rifles, appeared at Starcourt's cottage late the next afternoon, they found Gerane standing in the doorway.

"What are you doing here?" exclaimed her father. "Where is he? Stand aside, girl—"

"He is not here, father," said she, calmly. "I warned him. I told him what was afoot."

"You did!" gasped Jonifer. "But he cannot escape. We will chase him down—"

"You will not have far to go, father. He is sitting in the big room over at our house, waiting for you to return. Take your guns and go home, all of you. I have decided that I can make some use of him, after all, and as he belongs to me I must ask you to keep your hands off of my property."

The executioners stared, wide-mouthed. An observer would have detected vast relief in their eyes. It was Broadaxe who spoke:

"What use can you possibly make of him?" he demanded, suppressing a chuckle.

"Yes!" boomed Jonifer. "What use can you possibly—"

"I have given him his orders," said she, loftily. "He has his instructions. He is to teach me English this winter. Five or six months will be enough, he thinks. After that, I shall probably have no further use for him. So you may shoot him in the spring, if you like."

Farmers Charge Turkey Conspiracy

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28. (UP)—The Pioneer American eliminated the middleman by using his trusty gun to bag a Thanksgiving turkey, but the farmer went to court here today in an effort to provide the Kansas City housewife with producer-to-consumer service in the purchase of the festive bird.

On the big shopping day previous to Thanksgiving, the farmers were losing their battle to reach the consumer, and they charged a political conspiracy was in operation to force the prices of dressed poultry up for the holiday trade.

In municipal court today, the test case of Arthur Hem, Platte county farmer, was continued until Saturday—after the Thanksgiving rush. He was charged with violating city food ordinances but on the outcome of the case rested the right of the farmer to sell his dressed poultry in places other than in the city market house.

Textile Officials Vote for Strike

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (INS)—Officials of the United Textile Workers of America today were authorized to endorse strike action in the Rhode Island mills, at a meeting of the emergency board of the union.

If the local unions vote to walk out in the Blackstone valley, the chief center of the industrial unrest, 15,000 men will be affected. A number of the larger plants in that district announced a wage reduction plan which will go into effect Monday.

In sanctioning a walkout, the emergency board characterized the wages in the Blackstone valley as "miserable and not sufficient to provide for necessities of life."

Manufacture of Velie Car Is Discontinued

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Nov. 28. (UP)—Manufacture of the Velie automobile has been suspended, reports here said today, but the making of the monocoupe cabin airplane will continue. Officers of the company are located in Moline, Ill.

The decision to stop the manufacture was made following the death of W. L. Velie Jr. several weeks ago. It was stated the plant likely will be sold to some other automobile manufacturer.

Costa Ricans Urged to Snub Mr. Hoover

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Nov. 28. (UP)—Handbills calling upon the people of the city to abstain from the welcome ceremonies for President-elect Hoover were distributed here today.

The people were urged to remain at home because of the presence of American marines in Nicaragua.

Celebrating With Feasts

The harvest days are ending, and the treasures of the field and garden have been stored away for use through the winter months. At this time in the year all over the world from the earliest times certain days have been set apart for thanksgiving to the Deity or to the Higher Power manifested through what we call Nature.

The ancient Romans held thanksgiving feasts in honor of the goddess Ceres, and the Greeks, at the same time, honored Demeter. The Feast of the Tabernacles was celebrated by the Israelites, and this is perhaps the oldest religious thanksgiving day known. The Hollanders set apart a Thanksgiving day in October, 1575, for their deliverance from the Spaniards in the siege of Leyden, England, 13 years later, celebrated Sept. 3 as a day of thanksgiving for the defeat of the Spanish. In 1872, Edward, Prince of Wales, was restored to health, so this furnished another occasion for thanksgiving. Still another was celebrated in 1887 at the Jubilee of Queen Victoria's 50 years' reign.

The first Thanksgiving in the United States was held in November, 1621, and this was truly a religious ceremony to give the settlers an opportunity to express their gratitude to God for the perils they had passed through. The fall Thanksgiving days were held irregularly until 1863, but are now always celebrated on the last Thursday in November throughout the United States. In Canada the governor general annually proclaims this holiday which is now fixed as Monday of the week in which Nov. 11 occurs.

Undoubtedly the early Thanksgiving days were true religious celebrations, with much praying and sincere demonstrations of thankfulness to the Deity. Of course, the feasts were also an important part of the celebration. But with all of our sermons in the churches and the noble sentiments expressed in editorial articles, Thanksgiving day is as are all of the other holidays, mainly celebrated now as an occasion for gastronomic gymnastics.

I am in favor of plenty of holidays, but I do not believe that any of us should use these days as an excuse for stuffing orgies. These are good days for the gathering together of scattered family circles and the renewing of old friendships. Mirth and jollity around the holiday table perhaps increase the digestive powers to such an extent that slight deviations may be made from the regular fare without experiencing any discomfort or harm, but most holiday feasters carry their gorging to an extreme and besides the resultant unpleasant symptoms for a day or two, these feasts often serve as the start for more serious chronic disorders.

If my millions of readers this years will take my advice during the holiday season and be as merry as they can without overstuffing themselves at the table, I will guarantee that there will be thousands of less calls at the doctors' offices this winter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Osteomyelitis

Question: Miss A. C. writes: "I have had trouble with an abscess on my hip for four years. Have tried everything, nothing helped. Lately I had an operation. A piece of bone was taken out of my right sacroiliac joint which was examined showing that it could very well represent residues of chronic non-specific osteomyelitis. Would you advise a fruit fast?"

Answer: The fruit fast would bring about marked improvement in the condition of your blood and might prevent further trouble in your hip. Your surgeon may be forced to remove more pieces of bone but you can help yourself a great deal by occasional fasts and living on a good bone-building diet at other times.

Large Nose

Question: L. N. writes: "I am 16 years old and have rather a large nose. It is two inches long and a little over 2½ inches wide. Do you think it safe for me to try a nose adjuster? If so what kind would you advise of those advertised in the magazines?

Answer: Unless you are an actor it would be foolish for you to try to change the shape of your nose. If there is anything in physiognomy a large nose indicates strong mental powers. It has been pointed out that the largest majority of our great men and women have been well blessed with generous sized noses.

Vitamin B

Question: M. E. J. asks: "Which foods contain most of the vitamin B?"

Answer: Vitamin B is present in nearly all fresh foods. Tomatoes and spinach are rich in this vitamin. Potatoes, turnips and lettuce are also good sources. It is not found in sugars, fats, oils and highly milled starchy products, as white flour, white rice and cornstarch.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK H. NICHOLSON

By MASHA KAVELINA

From sunny Italy, mother country of the arts, comes Masha Kavelina, who, in that land, is one of opera's brightest stars. She recently arrived in this country and is expected to shine here with even greater brilliancy.

Masha Kavelina

"I like so much the story," said Kavelina, with a delicious accent, "of the man who was coming home one night after having taken too many cocktails. He approached a corner where the Salvation Army was holding a meeting, and stopping he stood reeling a few moments listening to the speaker plead with wayward ones to come up and be saved.

"The thought of these people being saved made a deep impression on the man, and he pondered over it as he staggered on to his house.

"Reaching there he sat down and meditated on the thought. Finally he went to the telephone, and called the Salvation Army.

"'Do y' save people?' he said.

"'Yes,' was the reply.

"'Do you really save men?'

"'Yes.'

"'An' do you save boys?'

"'We do.'

"'An' girls—do you really save girls?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Well, then, I'll tell you what you do. You save me a blonde for tomorrow night!'"

WICHITA FALLS AND AMARILLO ELEVENS SET FOR GRID DUEL

COYOTES READY TO FIGHT HARD

Dope Favors Sandies to Win By Decisive Margin

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Storm warnings were hoisted last night in Wichita Falls. A Sandstorm from Amarillo is due to hit our city this afternoon at about 3 o'clock and will center its fury on a bunch of Coyotes out at Athletic park.

The mighty Golden Sandies, unbeaten leaders of the district, are in our town, and as this was written, Coach Smith, his gridders and hundreds of rooters from Amarillo were camped in the Kemp hotel, anxious for the start of the grid joust today. They are out to win by a decisive and as overwhelming score as is possible, are those Sandies, to show the good folk of Wichita Falls that they have as bright a football team as it is alleged and rumored.

We will not dispute that fact, however. Our Coyotes are engaging a potential championship team this afternoon on the turf of the ball park. The Sandies have established such scores in conference and other games as to indicate they will be foremost contenders for the state title.

Sandies Win Easily

The Sandstorms won all their conference engagements by huge scores, defeating Plainview, 95 to 0; Quanah, 102 to 0; Lubbock, 32 to 6; Vernon, 55 to 6, and Electra, 34 to 0, a total of 318 points to 12 for their opponents.

They have quality and quantity on the Sandy team. Coach Smith is embarassed with a richness of backs, with two quartets of ball luggers of about equal worth. Too, he has two complete sets of linemen.

Bob Walker, a great prep halfback, probably is the foremost back, though Travis, the signal-caller, is another outstanding star. As is Doebler, the fullback, a power on the defense as well as the offense.

Nunn and Larsen are a pair of superb ends in all departments of play. Fred Nicklaus, a guard and the line captain, is probably the outstanding forward, and rates as one of the best in his position in the state. But the Sandies' entire wall is one of weight and speed and power.

How can the Coyotes, with their lighter and inexperienced team, match such an aggregation? The answer is—they can't. That's the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me Spalding. I don't think the most ardent admirer of the Pack accords the Wichita Falls team a chance to win. But they CAN hold the Sandies to a close and respectable score, and only through unceasing and indomitable FIGHT.

Here's More Dope

The dope, if you go in for that sort of stuff, gives the Sandies a 40 to 50 point edge over the Coyotes. In contrast to Amarillo's easy victories in conference games, is the Pack's poor record, of defeats sustained by from Vernon, 12 to 7, and Lubbock, 21 to 0, and close wins over Electra, 12 to 7, Plainview, 24 to 6, and their easiest game, a victory over Quanah, 43 to 12.

Playing their last game of the season, and for several of them, the last of their prep careers, the Coyotes are keyed up to a fighting pitch. With no game last week the lame and the halt have recovered. They realize the odds against them, but are determined to score a moral victory by holding the invaders to a low score.

Coach Bud McCallum and Bill Morris, assistant mentor, are pleased with their reserve strength. More and better substitutes will be available today than in any previous games—and reserves are going to be needed to halt the bruising attack of the big Sandies.

Pack Reserves Back

Jud Bell, a star guard, out with an injury since the Electra game several weeks ago, will be able to play today. West, at end; Bains and Hambrick in the backfield also will see much service today, as will some of the other lads not announced in the starting lineup contained elsewhere in these columns.

As final and conclusive evidence in their case, the Coyotes point to the fact that the fighting Electra lads held Amarillo scoreless the first half of their game, until the exhausted Tigers were routed in the second half.

"They're just boys, like my boys," Coach McCallum summed it up last night. "They figure to beat us, and probably will. But we'll give 'em a fight. They'll know they have been in a football game."

Well, Coyotes, there you are. And I believe you'll do just what your prince of a coach says you will. Don't take it too hard, you know, before or after it's over. It's just a football game. But while you're in there, give 'em what Sherman said war was.

And then the Golden Sandstorm WILL know it has been in a football game.

The Amarillo squad and many rooters arrived yesterday morning. The Sandies and Coyotes went through a brief but brisk drill at Athletic park in the afternoon. Several hundred Amarillo grid enthusiasts and band will arrive today.

Prospects of good football weather for the players loomed last night. The forecast was probably snow and colder. The largest crowd to see a football game this season will attend this contest.

250 Irish Gridsters Will See Action Today

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 28. (UP)—Two hundred and fifty Notre Dame football players will be in action Thanksgiving day either playing on gridirons or en route to games, schedules today disclosed.

Seven reserve teams will leave here Wednesday night to play games in Fort Wayne, Ind.; Chicago; La Porte, Ind.; Norwalk, Ohio; Kendallville, Ind.; Elwood, Ind., and Fostoria, Ohio. The varsity team will be at Tucson, Ariz., limbering up for the Southern California game, Dec. 1.

Kansas City Hockey Team Beats Tulsa Oilers, 4-0

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28. (UP)—Making two points each in the first and third periods the Kansas City Pla-Mors defeated the Tulsa Oilers, 4 to 0, in the opening game of the American Hockey association scheduled here tonight.

McCormick made the first two points in the first period and Dutkowski made the other two points in the last period.

AGGIE IS ONE OF STAR ENDS

Petty an Outstanding Wingman of Season

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (AP)—No feature of this year's all-American football cross-examination is any more difficult than that of getting any general agreement on the ends.

It is a conspicuous development of the campaign that the ends have been somewhat below the standard of other years. There unquestionably is a fleck of good flankmen in all parts of the country, but whether it just happens to be an off year in some respects or due to changes in the style of play, it is obvious that no wingmen stand out in the fashion that Winslett of Alabama, Oosterbaan of Michigan, Hanson of Syracuse and others have done in recent years.

Pacific coast critics say there isn't a better end in the country than Ike Frankain of St. Mary's.

Franksin is big, fast and durable.

Other Western Stars

Captain Phillips of California and Tappan of Southern Calfornia are two other far western entries with excellent qualifications. Haycraft of Minnesota and Fesler of Ohio State are two of the best in Big Ten circles while Brown of Missouri generally is picked as the best flankman in the Big Six. Collins, Colrick and O'Brien have had their big moments for Notre Dame, but they haven't been consistent. Phelan of Detroit is a star.

The Pittsburgh area, pretty well supplied this year with gridiron talent, has two Panther stars in Donchess and Guarino. Some of Carnegie's outstanding achievements have been featured by the work of Rosenzweig, whose specialty is the old end-around play.

Princeton has a fine pair of ends in Stinson and Lawler, when they are in shape. And so has New York university in Barrabee and Nemece. The Army's crack end, Messinger, has been on the receiving end of many of Red Cagle's longest heaves. When it comes to bagging 'em at long range, Messinger is a reminder of the palmy days at Dartmouth three years ago when Tully and Sage, bare-legged, were running wild as they speared Swede Oberlander's long-distance tosses.

Good Eastern Ends

Captain Barna of Hobart and Coane of Norwich have been good enough to attract unusual notice in the East.

The South and Southwest have had all-American ends in the past two years but the Dixie crop, as elsewhere, is not quite up to standard. The difference between the Georgia Bulldogs of 1928 and those of 1927 is just about summed up in the loss of Captain Shiver and Tom Nash. These two wingmen upset most everything last year until they struck the mud of Grant field and the fury of Tech's tornado.

Florida's juggernaut has a crack end this season in Van Stokel. Abernathy of Vanderbilt is adept at spearing passes. So is Trigg of Southern Methodist. Alley of Tennessee, Petty of Texas Aggies, Jones of Georgia Tech and Smith of Alabama are other star Dixie wingmen.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

GAMES INVOLVING sectional titles, meetings of ancient rivals and intersectional battles will form the appetizing menu today for the football enthusiasts. Except for a few games Saturday and Saturday week, the gridsters who did not finish their schedules last week wind up play today, with the usual host of outstanding Thanksgiving contests carded. While there are important games in the East and Middle West, the real battles are to be staged in the Southwest and South.

◇ ◇ ◇

The championship of the Southwest conference will be at stake at Austin. The annual grid classic of Texas, the meeting of the Longhorns and the Aggies, therefore, takes on added significance. Victory will give the Steers the conference championship. A defeat for them would enable Arkansas, engaging in a non-conference game today to claim the title. The meeting of the Aggies and Texas is a toss-up. All their games are, for regardless of what sort of football they play previously, they give all they have in this scrap. The Aggies, off to a poor start, have been coming along fast in recent weeks, as shown by their tie with S. M. U. But the Cadets will meet a powerful Orange machine, with a mighty defense and stashing offense. I do not underestimate the fight and class of the Aggies nor the coaching skill of Dana X. Bible. But I do believe the Longhorns will win today, by not more than the magin of a touchdown.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANOTHER TRADITIONAL battle that is growing in state interest will be fought at Dallas, with the Southern Methodists meeting Texas Christians. Here are two excellent teams, also apparently about evenly matched. Indications are that Redman Hume, ace of the Ponies, will be back in the lineup today. With Hume leading the way, I anticipate a Mustang victory, but this also to be by a low score.

◇ ◇ ◇

BAYLOR AND RICE will have it out in a third conference tilt, and this looks like nothing but victory for the Bears. Rice has not won a conference game, though they played one or two good exhibitions of football, notably against Texas. Baylor upset T. C. U. and administered the only defeat sustained by S. M. U. Baylor should beat Rice by two or three touchdowns, though the Owls may muster their resources to hold the score down closer, particularly if it happens to be their "day."

◇ ◇ ◇

Arkansas should have little difficulty in beating Southwestern down at Memphis. Tulsa and Oklahoma Aggies meet in their annual game and the Oil City boons as the winner, to repeat their triumph of last year.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE THREE UNBEATEN teams of the South engage foes of more or less class today. Tennessee will have a hard fight from Kentucky, though the Vols are given the edge. Georgia Tech should beat Alabama Poly, which also is known as Auburn, and Florida will defeat Washington and Lee, both by decisive scores. Although each has been defeated and is out of the race for the southern championship, the real battle of the day in that section probably will be fought by Alabama and Georgia. The Crimson Tide of Alabama is favored to win this one. Vanderbilt should have little difficulty in disposing of Sewanee. Louisiana State and Tulane are well matched, with the odds in favor of the former. North Carolina probably will beat Virginia, and Virginia Poly is doped to outclass Virginia Military.

◇ ◇ ◇

MISSOURI AND OKLAHOMA clash at Norman in the feature game in the Missouri valley area. A rah for Oklahoma and a vote for Missouri. Nebraska doubtless will run a crusher over Kansas State.

◇ ◇ ◇

OREGON AGGIES journey to Gotham to meet New York university in what the East is pleased to call a test of east and west football. It is not. The Aggies are not representative of the best football played in the far West, rating inferior to four or five teams of the Pacific coast conference. New York is one of the best, if not the best team in the East. However, the intersectional flavor of this game makes it of importance, though the Violets are rated three or four touchdowns the better team.

◇ ◇ ◇

Pennsylvania and Cornell renew rivalry of half a century standing. These teams are not of usual class this season, indeed. Cornell is below average, and the Franklin team should win decisively. Pittsburgh is rated superior to Penn State. A hesitant vote for Colgate over Brown. Columbia and Syracuse. Nothing to choose. West Virginia should trim Washington and Jefferson, the Presidents being below their usual strength this season.

◇ ◇ ◇

DETROIT'S UNBEATEN team meets Georgetown in an intersectional affair that features the day in the Middle West. Detroit has defeated some good football teams in compiling its all-victorious mark. But the Michigan club probably will be defeated by the strong Georgetown team, which has engaged some powerful elevens and sustained only one reversal. Two games are viewed as toss-ups, with my votes for Marquette over Iowa State and Drake over Creighton.

◇ ◇ ◇

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA seems pointed to "take" Oregon. Washington and Washington State indulge in their annual shindig and if you can forecast that one you are a better prognosticator than I am.

SEVERAL PREP GAMES TODAY

High School Teams of This Section in Many Tilts

Numerous high school football teams of Texas are concluding their season's schedules with Thanksgiving day games. Several interesting games will be offered grid enthusiasts in this section, including a few which will decide titles or are of championship bearing.

Three district No. 1, Class A games will be played. The most important is to be fought here between the Amarillo Sandstorm and the Wichita Falls Coyotes. The Sandies are sole unbeaten leaders of conference A and are regarded as certain to win the game here and cinch that title.

Of interest also is the meeting of Lubbock and Vernon at Lubbock. Indeed, this promises to be one of the hardest fought games of the district this season. It will decide second place in class A, as both Vernon and Lubbock are tied for that title.

Except for defeats by Amarillo sustained by each team, Lubbock and Vernon won all their other conference engagements.

Electra at Plainview

Electra plays at Plainview in a third conference engagement. The Electra eleven, on the dope, is favorite.

Megargel and Olney clash this afternoon on the latter's gridiron at 2:30 o'clock in another outstanding game. It will, in fact, settle the class B championship of district No. 3. Each is unbeaten, Olney, the champion of the southern half, and Megargel, champion of the northern half of the district.

Two more unbeaten teams also meet today for a class B title. They are Hereford and Memphis. They meet at Memphis for the championship of district No. 1.

Lamesa and Big Spring battle at Lamesa in their annual game. Burkburnett plays at Henrietta, and this contest, incidentally, is to be held this morning at 9 o'clock. Floydada and Slaton resume an old rivalry at Floydada.

Other Interesting Games

Turkey and Quitaque will meet at Turkey to settle their scoreless tie played in October. Paducah and Crowell meet on the former's gridiron. Over in Oklahoma, a feature game is the meeting of Frederick and Grandfield on the latter's field, this game is to decide the county championship.

Other prep games in Texas today as announced by Roy Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas league bureau, follow:

Breckenridge at Ranger, Abilene at Cisco, Polytechnic (Fort Worth) vs. Stripling, Cleburne at Corsicana, Temple at Waco, Denton at Gainesville, Terrell at Sulphur Springs, Greenville at McKinney, Athens at Nacogdoches, Tyler at Marshall, Texarkana vs. Texarkana, Ark., Galveston at Beaumont, Laredo at Harlingen, Alamo Heights vs. Harlandale (San Antonio), Dalhart at Clayton, Littlefield at Olton, Taboka at Brownfield, Paris at Commerce, Bonham at Honey Grove, Royse City at Rockwall, Mineola at Winnsboro, Gilmer at Longview, Gladewater at Troup, Odessa at Stanton, Pecos at Midland, Colorado at Snyder, Comanche at De Leon, Rising Star at Gorman, McGregor at Gatesville, Timpson at Center, Jasper at Kirbyville, Junction at Kerrville, Victoria at Beeville, Corpus Christi at Robstown, McAllen vs. San Benito at Harlingen.

Floydada, Slaton To Renew Rivalry

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Nov. 28.—Two ancient rivals, the Floydada Whirlwinds and the Slaton Tigers, will meet here Thursday in their annual Thanksgiving clash. Heretofore the two teams have met to decide the championship of this district, class "B", but this year both teams having suffered defeats there will be no championship at stake.

A special train bringing 400 or 500 Slaton boosters will be run from that city, according to L. A. Wilson, secretary of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce.

Although having no bearing on the district race the game here Turkey day will be a hard fought contest due to the rivalry of the two teams and a crowd of 1,500 is expected to witness the encounter. For four years the Tigers and Whirlwinds have met on Thanksgiving on the gridiron and three times the Tigers have emerged victors, but each time the game was a thrilling contest, being won and lost in the closing minutes of play.

The local eleven after getting off in bad form has shown wonderful improvement and while the Tigers are still favored to win there is an even chance that the locals will be in the fight on their home ground. Floydada lost to Paducah and Crosbyton and tied the Post and Ralls teams, while Slaton won from Ralls by forfeit and lost to Slaton and defeated the Paducah eleven.

Hereford Plays Memphis Today

Class B Elevens to Meet For Championship

Special to The Record News

HEREFORD, Texas, Nov. 28.—"On to Memphis" is the cry heard in Hereford, where the district No. 1 championship of class "B" football will be decided Thanksgiving day.

Losing the toss, and with the game to be played in the Hall county capital, Hereford fans, backers of the brilliant "Whiteface" high school team, immediately began plans for running a special trail to Memphis to accommodate the hundreds of fans who are clamoring to go, and see their favorites in the championship game.

Remembering the special recently run to Panhandle, the committee in charge are making arrangements to care for from 300 to 500 fans on the train. Coming as the date does on a holiday, it is pointed out that even more than made the Panhandle trip will go to Memphis.

In addition to the train of rooters, plans are being made to take the high school pep squad and high school band. Hereford has one of the finest high school bands in West Texas.

Burkburnett Volleyball Teams Start Schedules

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 28.—The volleyball teams at Burk appear to have a sufficient amount of material for the county championship this year as there is a large number qualifying for positions on both the senior and junior teams.

The senior team took their first game of the season when they defeated Cashion by a score of 17-21 in favor of Cashion, 14-21 in favor of Burk and 15-21 in favor of Burk.

The junior team was defeated by the Cashion junior team. The following game Clara defeated Burk which was played at Clara. The Burk senior team is composed of the following: Thelma Mitchell, captain, Louise Woods, Viola Crittendon, Lucille Dilbeck, Ina Fay Norville, Susie Campbell and Mable Duke.

MEGARGEL AND OLNEY READY

Unbeaten Teams Play Today for District Title

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Nov. 28.—Everything is in readiness for the Thanksgiving day football game here, when the Megargel and Olney high schools clash for district class B honors. Neither team has lost a game this year and have both made unusual records in the games already played.

Officials in charge of arrangements predict a record crowd of 1500 to 2,000, providing the weather is favorable. Announcement has been made of the officials for the game as follows; "Dummy" Deems, Wichita Falls, umpire; R. L. Blankenship, Decatur, referee; George Morris, Seymour, head linesman.

All hope for Olney's two star backfield men, Atchley and Ellis, being able to play in the game has faded away. These men were both injured in the game with Bowie three weeks ago. The boys have turned in their suits, and as both graduate this year, have played their last game for Olney high.

According to present dope, the Cubs will start the Thanksgiving game with practically the same lineup that played Archer City two weeks ago. Olney's line, that has been the talk of the conference thus far this season will be given their real test Thursday. Megargel has a heavier line than the locals, and is reported to have a heavy but fast backfield.

Coach Acker has been putting the boys through some stiff workouts this week. The Cubs are using every possible precaution to protect their line defense against the Megargel running attack.

C. Gilmore, Olney's star end who has featured in the Cub passing machine, has been ill during the past week and may not be able to start. Probable lineup:

OLNEY	Position	MEGARGEL
B. Gilmore	Left End	J. Cross
O. Ellis	Left Tackle	Kunkel
Perkins	Left Guard	Colgan
O'Brien (c)	Center	C. Cross (c)
Wells	Right Guard	Kintes
Bess	Right Tackle	Bryant
C. Gilmore	Right End	Abousie

Arkansas Students Give Porkers Rousing Sendoff

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 28. (AP)—More than 1,000 Arkansas university students gave Coach Francis Schmidt and his squad of 24 Razorbacks a sendoff as they started for Memphis, Tenn., where they will meet Southwestern university in their closing game Thanksgiving day.

FROGS READY FOR MUSTANGS

Injured Captain Williams And Toler to Play

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28. (AP)—Pennants waving and the band playing, T. C. U. marches on Dallas tomorrow to end the 1928 season, in a game with Southern Methodist university.

Most of the T. C. U. student body is expected to be in the rooting section and backing them will be hundreds of Fort Worth citizens, called by the rivalry between Fort Worth and Dallas, a rivalry as keen as that existing between T. C. U. and S. M. U.

The Frogs, taking a brief drill today, were sent to quarters early to get their rest on the eve of the game.

T. C. U. goes into the game in good shape with but two regulars ailing and both of these, Captain Jake Williams, tackle, and Merlin Toler, back and punter, are able to play. In fact, both are in the starting lineup.

The Frogs' starting lineup has Alexander and Robertson at ends; Williams and Moore at tackles; Reynolds and Brumbelow at guards, Atkins at center; Grubbs at quarter, with Toler and Morgan, halves, and Griffith, fullback.

Texarkana Claims State Junior College Grid Title

TEXARKANA, Texas, Nov. 28. (AP)—The Texarkana Junior college Bulldogs, undefeated and untied by any Texas college, claimed the state junior college title after defeating the Decatur Baptist college 51 to 0 here today.

The Texarkana backfield, with perfect interference, cruised at will through the Decatur tackles and Deloach Mullin, Texarkana quarterback, tossed nine successful passes which gained 179 yards. Decatur made only three first downs to Texarkana's 13.

California Will Play Georgia Tech Jan. 1

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 28. (UP) University of California's football team will represent the West in the annual Tournament of Roses contest at Pasadena New Year's day, the executive committee of California's Associated Students decided late today.

Georgia Tech probably will be the opponent of the Golden Bears.

CONFERENCE TITLE AT STAKE IN TEXAS-AGGIE CLASH

VICTORY GIVES STEERS HONOR

Ponies and Frogs Battle At Dallas

DALLAS, Nov. 28 (AP).—Football will make its final gesture tomorrow before toppling from the throne where it has held sway since October, when seven Southwest conference elevens take parting shots at their opponents before packing away cleated shoes and grimy sweaters until next autumn.

From Austin, where Texas university engages the Texas Aggies in the 35th annual meeting, to Memphis, Tenn., where Arkansas plays Southwestern, conference squads will make their last bids for a place in the football sun.

Texas Christian university journeys to Dallas for a clash with Southern Methodist and Baylor university and Rice institute end their schedules at Houston.

All Eyes on Austin

Although each of the other games will have their following, all eyes of this section will be turned toward Texas Memorial stadium, where the conference title, almost within the grasp of the Longhorns, is at stake. If the Littlefield-coached squad is able to down its time-honored rivals, it will win the championship. A clear-cut victory would establish them without dispute as the monarches of the section, while a draw would throw the team into a tie with Arkansas, which already has finished its conference schedule. Should the Aggies outscore their foe, Arkansas, with three conference victories and one setback on its record, would end the season topping the percentage column for the first time in history.

Because of the team's powerful reserve strength, Texas has been favored to cling stubbornly to its margin of triumphs, but the Aggies' offense has reached such heights that a victory over the conference leader would not be surprising.

Around the wizardry of Davis, Farmer quarterback, who has risen from humble substitute to that of an uncanny passer in a few brief weeks, Coach Bible has moulded a threatening attack. Aided by such ball carriers as Conover, Zarafonetis, Dorsey, Mills and Burgess, the Aggies seem certain to make deep sallies into Longhorn territory.

Weather Important

Weather conditions may figure importantly in the final outcome. A heavy field would slow down the fleet Aggie backs and prove a handicap to Texas' line-smashing game.

The southwest's record crowd of between 30,000 and 35,000 spectators was expected for the fray.

Such gridiron impresarios as Redman Burns of S. M. U. and Captain Jake Williams of Texas Christian were due to make their final curtain bow in the Mustang-Frog clash. Although both teams were eliminated last week from championship consideration, interest was keen in the game due to an ever-increasing rivalry between the institutions, and 25,000 spectators, eager for a final glimpse of the squads, were due to crowd their way into Ownby stadium.

The task of directing the Ponies apparently was to fall on Gerald Mann, resistant varsity mentor, who played the final game of his college career against the Horned Frogs last year, since sickness has placed the Mustang coaching staff out of action.

Baylor's Bears were expected to defeat Rice easily. The Owls, however, have constantly risen up in other games and fought stronger opponents with a spirit that branded them as dangerous.

HIGH STUDENTS STAGE PARADE

Big Rally Held On Eve Of Amarillo Grid Game

A damp, misty night failed to dampen the ardor of Wichita Falls High school boys and girls last night, as they staged a big pep meeting and parade on the eve of the Coyotes' football game with Amarillo.

The whoopee, the largest staged in Wichita Falls for several seasons, gave notice to Amarillo that Wichita Falls hasn't conceded victory on the gridiron today to the Sandstorm. It started out at the Junior college and high school building with a bonfire and singsong. If the mist prevented the blaze from leaping high, it had no effect on the hearts of the lads and lassies, as they sang the school's songs dear to them.

The preps, hundreds of them, then invaded the downtown section. Led by a band, they paraded the main streets of the business part of town. Before the procession broke up, several of the band boys staged an impromptu concert of their own on a street corner. If there was an occasional false note there was nothing lacking in the sincerity and earnestness of the musicians in attacking their instruments with a vim and vigor.

Searchlights lighted the parade and fire candles added striking illumination. The football queen, whose identity is to be revealed today, rode in the parade, but she was veiled.

Stars of Intersectional Tilt

These four stars are expected to shine at their best when Notre Dame and Southern California meet at Los Angeles, Saturday. The Rocknemen won the 1926 game, 7 to 6, and the 1927 contest, 13 to 12.

Important Grid Games in South

Unbeaten Leaders to Face Formidable Foes

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 28. (UP)—Twenty-two Southern conference teams play tomorrow and several games of lesser importance are also scheduled.

The holiday atmosphere of the games will be enhanced by the color of Thanksgiving crowds.

Though Auburn, for example, has been the underdog of the South this year, enthusiasm over the game here with Georgia Tech has not suffered.

Greater interest probably will be evoked by the Florida-Washington and Lee encounter at Jacksonville. Tennessee and Kentucky will draw the spotlight beams to Knoxville, also.

Ole Miss and the Mississippi Aggies, Starkville; Sewanee-Vandy, Nashville; Alabama-Georgia, Birmingham, and Tulane-L. S. U., New Orleans, will be big items, too. Added color has been lent to the North Carolina-Virginia game by the visit of the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Other games are: Furman-Clemson, Greenville; Southern-Wofford, Lakeland; Duke-Davidson, Durham; Richmond-William & Mary, Richmond.

Centenary To Play Texas For 2 Years

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 28. (AP)—Centenary will play the University of Texas Longhorns at football in Austin in 1929 and 1930, it was announced today by Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, to become director of athletics at the university Dec. 1.

The first game will be played here on Oct. 5 next year and the 1930 contest is booked for Oct. 4.

The Shreveport Gentlemen will come here with teams eligible under rules of the Southwest conference.

ODDS AGAINST HIM

ST LOUIS, Nov. 28. (UP)—While picking himself up from the street after being hit by one automobile, Warren Baadsley, 22, was struck and knocked down by another. Altogether he suffered a broken leg and multiple body bruises.

Take the "Guest" out of the question of Christmas shopping. You can make all your selections at home now through the Classified "Christmas Gift Suggestions." Beginning Dec. 1.—Adv.

SOONERS MEET TIGERS TODAY

Missouri Game Homecoming For Oklahoma

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28. (UP)—Two big platters of Thanksgiving football will be offered to holiday fandom in the Big Six conference Thursday when Nebraska meets Kansas Aggies at Lincoln and the Missouri Tigers journey to Norman to play the Oklahoma Sooners.

The contest at Norman will be the "drum stick" of the day, for it is the homecoming celebration for Oklahoma university.

Nebraska, assured of the conference title by virtue of no conference defeats, will attempt to take the measure of the Kansas Aggies in short order and is favored to win.

Iowa State will end the season with a game against Marquette university at Milwaukee. The Iowa Farmers have had a very disastrous season and in the Turkey day game Marquette is conceded the edge over the eleven from the "tall corn country."

Tia Juana Racing Season To Get Under Way Today

TIA JUANA, Mexico, Nov. 28. (US)—With prospects bright for the best season of racing in its turf history, the Tia Juana Jockey club, opens its 12th annual winter meeting here tomorrow.

Hotels in San Diego and Agua Caliente, the winter sport resort near here, were teeming with visitors, including many Hollywood film celebrities. At the race course some 1,500 thoroughbreds are stabled.

Tuffy Griffiths Makes Debut in Eastern Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (UP)—Gerald Ambrose Griffiths, Sioux City light-heavyweight, better known to the boxing world as "Tuffy," made his first public appearance in an eastern ring today.

"Tuffy" held open house at his training quarters where he is preparing for his Friday bout with James J. Braddock, Jersey battler. Braddock also worked out today. Both appeared to be near fighting condition.

Central League Plans Expansion

Loop's Enlargement Deferred to Toronto Meet

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 28. (UP)—Officers and club presidents of the Central Baseball league in session here today deferred the proposal to enlarge the circuit from six to eight clubs until the Toronto minor leaue meeting early in December.

Only routine business was considered today. The negotiations are under way with several Ohio cities and at least one Indiana town, South Bend, for additions to the league, President L. J. Wylie said.

The league's finances are in good condition, Wylie said, although the 1928 season was not an attendance record breaker.

Dayton, Canton, Akron, Springfield, Ohio, Erie, Pa., and Fort Wayne, Ind., were represented.

CARDS SIGN COLLEGIANS

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 28.—D. B. Apple of the Indiana university baseball nine, will go with the St. Louis Cardinals as pitcher next year. He was a member of the Hoosier diamond squad three seasons and besides being a star mound man, was a dependable hitter.

The children will choose real presents if you let them look over the Shop-O-Scope first. Beginning Dec. 1.—Adv.

Record Crowd to See Longhorns And Farmers in Annual Shindig

More Than 41,000 to Watch Scrap; Both Squads in Condition for Game, With Ideal Football Weather Forecast

AUSTIN, Nov. 28. (AP)—The A. and M. Farmer boys came to town this afternoon and turned in early tonight, determined to send the Southwest conference championship to Arkansas tomorrow. If the Aggies can out-football the University Longhorns tomorrow they will confer a great favor, as well as their first championship, on the Arkansas razorbacks.

If Texas bowls over the invading Cadets, there will be a flag raising at the stadium, for it will be the Longhorns' first conference victory in eight years. If the annual "family" brawl should result in a draw, Texas and Arkansas will be knotted at the top of the heap.

Texans evidently realize the importance of the Thanksgiving day scramble, for they have been coming into Austin in steady streams all day, and tomorrow 17 special trains will discharge thousands.

Officials are predicting that the greatest crowd ever to assemble for a football game in Texas, if not in the South will pile into Memorial stadium to occupy all of its 41,000 permanent seats and some improvised stands devised to accommodate at least 5,000 late comers.

The gate receipts are scheduled to dump some $90,000 into athletic coffers.

Both teams are in what some call "the pink" of condition. Coach Bible and Coach Littlefeld are as confident on the eve of the great battle as any general could hope to be with a well trained army about to do battle.

Zarafonetis, star half and punter for the Cadets, is "under the weather" but even his condition is not such as to preclude his going over the top with his buddies. With this exception, all members of both casts are hitting on all eight.

Both teams went through light workouts today. The visitors rushed out to St. Edwards university upon arrival and there they took the kinks out of their legs after a long ride from College Station, interrupted by a two-hour delay near Taylor, where a train wreck hampered railway traffic.

Prospects are good for ideal weather tomorrow. The official prognosticator says it will be cloudy, but no rain. It did not rain here all day and the field ought to be in perfect condition. Probable lineups:

A. and M.: Petty, left end; Cuthrell, left tackle; Richter, left guard; Brown, center; Van Zandt, right guard; Bartlett, right tackle; Tracy, right end; Davis, quarterback; Conover, left halfback; Dorsey, right halfback; Burgess, fullback.

Austin is bedecked in holiday attire from cellar to garret. Tomorrow, when the Cadets come in from College Station, there will be a big parade, with Governor Moody, President Benedict, President Walton of A. and M. and other notables occupying a reviewing stand. The occasion will be more than a football game between 35-year rivals. It will be a farewell demonstration for L. Theo Bellmont, for the past 16 years director of athletics at the university and prime mover in realization of a long-time dream—construction of an adequate football stadium such as the Memorial stands are.

With the season at an end, Bellmont relinquishes his office as director.

Mat and Boxing Season Starts

Big Crowd Sees Alex Ross' Pleasing Show

A near-capacity house saw the opening of the wrestling and boxing season last night at Alex Ross' new sports emporium, 821 Indiana avenue. Ross put on an interesting mat and ring card that was appreciated by the fans and was the forerunner of other good shows to be staged this indoor season.

Teddy Waters took two falls from Billy Lundos in a three-fall wrestling match in the feature attraction. Lundos substituted for Young Strangler Lewis, who was overweight.

Walters won the first fall in 19 minutes with a Japanese toehold. Lundos grabbed the second fall in eight minutes with a reverse headlock. Waters came back and took the third fall in a display of aggressiveness and skill, with a reverse half Nelson, in two minutes. It was a fast match.

Spike Stewart outfought Country Boy Owens in six corking rounds of boxing in the meeting of the outstanding ringsters of Wichita Falls. Spike outboxed Country Boy and floored his adversary for a count to make his victory decisive. Owens, as usual, boxed aggressively and was always dangerous with his knockout right.

Harry Adams knocked out Kenneth Adams in the fourth round and Little Boy Blue stopped Little Boy Kennedy in the third round.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28. (AP)—George Magerkurth, Pacific coast baseball league umpire, has been sold to the National league for a sum said to be $2,500, one of the largest ever paid for an arbiter.

Mr. Fletcher says he has rolled under so many triumphal arches that he feels like a croquet ball.

After 15 speeches, 20 dinners, fireworks and parades all over South America, Mr. Hoover enjoyed a sleep on the Maryland.

Speaker Praises Lions For Work For Zoo

A varied program of entertainment in which the only serious number was that given by the youngest Lion present was heard at the weekly luncheon of the Lions club at the Y. W. C. A. rooms Wednesday noon.

Jack Krauss, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Krauss, was the heavy orator, addressing the club on "Why I Like the Lions club," and declaring the establishment of the zoo "the finest thing any club ever did."

Conscientious burdens accumulated during the recent political campaign compelled Roy E. Carter to address a humorous political speech to the club. A burlesque on grand opera was presented by E. F. Bohmfalk.

"The Stars and Stripes Forever," played by J. S. Pitman, and a singsong lead by Mr. Bohmfalk, concluded the program.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (AP)—A considerable volume of pre-holiday realizing was absorbed on moderate reactions in the cotton market here today and after selling off to 20.43 early, January advanced to 20.73 in the late trading on covering and a renewal of trade or speculative demand, which appeared to be promoted by small private crop figures and favorable reports from the cotton goods markets. January closed at 20.69 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 18 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 10 points with prices selling off to 20.50 for December and 20.40 for May under liquidation by recent buyers, while there was some Southern and local selling which was influenced by relatively easy Liverpool, and a disposition to take profits in advance of tomorrow's adjournment. The initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying or covering, however, and the market steadied up later in the morning on a private report estimating the crop at 13,675,000 bales.

Advances of 8 to 10 points from yesterday's closing quotations met further realizing, but it was in no great volume, and after rather a quiet and irregular middle session the market developed increased activity in the late trading. It looked as if recent sellers for a pre-holiday reaction were covering, or rebuying, while there also appeared to be a renewal of trade and speculative demand.

Prices sold up to the best figures of the day, with December advancing to 20.81 and May to 20.66, or 18 to 21 points net higher, and the close was within 4 or 5 points of the best on active months. The market was fairly active at the start and showed increasing activity during the last half hour, but trading was comparatively quiet during the middle of the day, when much of the business was attributed to evening up. December seemed relatively steady late in the afternoon and at the close was 9 points over January compared with a premium of 7 points at the close of Tuesday.

Private cables said there had been London, local and continental liquidation with a lack of speculative offtake in the Liverpool market but that more trade in cotton goods was improving with increased sales of yarns. Port receipts today 71,954. S. port receipts, 1,308,150. Exports today, 28,955, making 3,498,987 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28. (AP)—While the influence of tomorrow's holiday induced considerable realizing and liquidation in today's cotton market, forcing prices well below yesterday's close, sufficient trade buying and covering developed to absorb offerings and advance prices 10 to 17 points for the day. January contracts after easing off to 19.85, rallied to 20.19 and closed at 20.07, or 16 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 10 to 16 points.

The market opened easy in response to lower Liverpool cables than due and first trades showed losses of 3 to 5 points. Although prices eased off a point or two additional after the start in sympathy with New York, good trade buying developed on a bullish private estimate which induced a belief among traders that the government would reduce its next estimate, due Dec. 8. By noon January contracts sold at 20.06, March 20.15 and May at 20.16, or 18 to 21 points over the lows and 12 to 16 points above yesterday's close.

During the early afternoon the market encountered some pre-holiday realizing and liquidation by the large long interests and prices declined to about parallel with the previous close. Offerings seemed well absorbed at the decline and traders rebought on more favorable reports from the goods trade forcing prices to new highs for the day. January traded up to 20.10, March 20.20 and May 20.13, or 23 to 25 points above the lows. There was last minute flurry of offerings, evidently an attempt of longs to even up for over the holiday and finals were 9 to 5 points under the top with March closing at 20.16 and May 20.08.

All Groups Close Higher in Fast Pre-Holiday Stock Market Trade

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (US)—Radio was the outstanding skyrocket of another strong market on the stock exchange today, in which trading increased to 6,300,000 shares.

Call money rate of eight per cent, heavy pre-holiday realizing of profits and a ticker that was 40 minutes behind during the afternoon failed to halt the advance and all groups closed net higher on the average.

Return of its sponsors to the city was responsible for the further soaring of Radio that closed it for a net gain of 22½ points at a new high record price of 387.

Packard gained 10¼. General Electric 7⅛, Wright added 11½ to its climb, and Consolidated Gas jumped 8⅝.

American Smelting held leadership of an advancing Copper group, gaining two points while Sinclair was most active of a generally higher oil department. Oils were somewhat more irregular but Missouri Kansas and Texas, St. Paul, Baltimore and Ohio and others gained sufficient to more than make up losses elsewhere.

Sinclair Interest Revived

Revived interest in Sinclair was generally attributed to the announcement that $20,000,000 six per cent notes will be retired. This, of course further strengthens the financial position of the company and brings closer the expected dividend payments to stockholders.

The main reason for the added demand, however, was realization that the report of a purchase of a substantial block of Prairie Oil and Prairie Pipe line stock from Rockefeller trusts by local bankers had to do with the expansion of the new interests in the Sinclair organization.

Until the last period is made on the agreements there will be no official announcement thereof, however. The taking over of Prairie stock, it is further declared, is but the first step in the plan to put Sinclair in the leading position in the Independent oil industry.

Mexican Seaboard Strong

Mexican Seaboard was strong again with activity attributed to the same interests who were most prominent in the market when the prospects of the stock were first outlined here over two months ago. A wire received by one of the largest exchange firms from California tells of the almost unheard-of high grade oil being produced in the Kettleman's hills district by the company. Trucks working in the field were declared to be using the oil just as it was taken from the ground.

Nash responded to continued operations of the group that first took an interest last week in expectation of higher returns as a result of increasing income. Kroger reflected the report that it would add to its chain soon by acquisition of two important retail food store organizations.

Bush Terminal

Bush Terminal's move to new high price territory was not a surprise to those familiar with affairs of the company who have been accumulating for more than two weeks as told of here several times.

Anaconda's further rise was attributed to operations of the Cutten group who reputedly had taken over management of the market therein. Gotham continued to display quiet strength, coincident with private advice that earnings this quarter would establish a new record. Electric Boat's recent strength, it was learned, was due to the expectation of favorable decision from the supreme court soon in connection with tax suit.

The Cutten group also were credited with responsibility for increased activity of "The Fair," one of the leading department stores of the group's home town.

Yellow Truck Jumps

Consistent advance of Yellow Truck has revived all the old expectations of what will result from General Motors management of its affairs.

The dominant interests in motors decided almost a year ago what they would do with Yellow. General Motors Truck will go into the organization and it is expected that it will gradually assume the leading position in the truck and bus field. The business will be built up around the new plant of the Yellow company and distribution made possible and profitable through the chain of General Motors dealers.

The hand of General Motors in the management is already evidenced in the black figures now shown as a result of operations, it is stated.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. (AP)—Rains which ended drought in southern Argentina eased wheat values today, but the effect largely was counterbalanced through evening up to prepare for tomorrow's holiday. Another influence helping to steady the wheat market was talk that convening of congress Monday would be likely to focus trade attention on farm relief.

Closing prices for wheat were easy, ¼c to ⅝c net lower, with corn ⅛c to ⅝c up, oats showing ⅛c to ½c advance, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 17c.

Prices for all grades of domestic wheat in practically all markets were shown to be lower than a year ago, and the assertion was made that farmers generally are in better financial condition than they were then. Under such circumstances, statements attracted widespread notice that the "hold your wheat" movement advocated by Secretary Jardine is likely to keep the grain on farms until prices improve or money is needed for spring work. Meanwhile, general export demand today for wheat from North America appeared slack but Winnipeg dispatches said Europe continued to be a heavy buyer of Canadian low-grade wheat.

Prevailing moist conditions throughout the greater part of corn belt territory gave an incentive for purchasing of corn future deliveries.

Provisions sympathized with upturns in the value of hogs, but near-by deliveries of lard tended to decline on account of expectance that about 12,000,000 pounds of lard will be delivered on December contracts.

Tariff Change Gains Support

Sentiment Grows for Congress to Revise Structure

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Sentiment for tariff revision during the coming year is growing rapidly as members arrive for the opening of congress today.

Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee, announced today he would confer with Republican members of his committee as to what action should be taken with regard to tariff revision.

Pending further discussion Hawley is not certain whether to advocate tariff revision at the coming short session of the old congress or at a subsequent meeting of the newly elected congress after March 4.

"I feel confident, however, the tariff will be revised during

TEXAS TURKEY RAISERS HAPPY

Farmers Get Good Prices For Holiday Birds

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28. (INS)—As the national appetite was being whetted today for the annual Thanksgiving day turkey dinner tomorrow, farmers of Texas who have specialized in turkey raising are congratulating themselves on a very successful year. Although Thanksgiving shipments are estimated to have fallen about 30 carloads short of those last season, the turkey raisers have had a very profitable year.

Approximately 525 carloads of Texas turkeys have gone to meet the Thanksgiving day demand of the American appetite, it was estimated today. Probably 500 carloads more will be shipped for the Christmas holidays. There were about 1,700,000 birds weighing an average of 10 pounds constituting the pre-Thanksgiving day movement, according to W. D. Googe, assistant marketing specialist of the government market service at Fort Worth. Farmers have received about $5,000,000 for the birds on the basis of November shipments.

Sold for Cash

What contributes mostly to the gratification of the turkey farmer in Texas is that his product sells always for cash. Compared with the cotton and grain crops, turkey production is a veritable gold mine for Texas raisers and many realize enough from the birds to pay the entire purchase price of their holdings.

The birds in Texas this year brought an average estimated price of 30 cents per pound, or $3 per bird. This was cut somewhat with the cessation of freight shipments.

The quality of Texas turkeys this year has been the occasion for criticism, Googe stated. Oklahoma birds brought on an average two cents per pound more in the Chicago and New York markets than did their southern neighbor.

Cuero Shipment Low

Cuero, Texas, generally supposed to be the center of the turkey industry in Texas, this year shipped only 7,200 birds. They were all of fine quality, however.

San Angelo farmers realized approximately $80,000 from their Thanksgiving day crop.

Lampasas shipped 28,000 birds in 14 carloads this year and realised approximately $84,000 for the early crop.

Ballinger realised $50,000 from a single shipment of three carloads of dressed and four of live birds. Other centers of turkey production reported proportionate movements.

Poor Seamanship Blamed for Sinking

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (UP)—Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the Federal Steamboat Inspection service, today blamed poor seamanship for the sinking of the liner Vestris on Nov. 12.

Hoover has been conducting a hearing here to learn whether the Vestris was properly inspected before she left port and said that while he had not reached his final decision on what made the Vestris go down, he believed the boat was in good shape and properly equipped. He blamed mismanagement of the Vestris for the disaster.

Hoover's hearing was adjourned today and he with other members of the commerce department committee attended the inquiry which U. S. District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle is conducting.

VOTE PROBERS TO ALAMO CITY

Rio Grande Investigation Is Completed

M'ALLEN, Texas, Nov. 28. (AP)—Investigation of bruited election irregularities in the 15th Texas congressional district having been completed, the house campaign expenditures committee today recessed for a short rest preparatory to consideration of another dispute, in the 14th district at San Antonio.

After a tour through the lower Rio Grande valley to Brownsville, the committee was to go to San Antonio, where it will resume its work Friday. In the 14th district, Harry M. Wurzbach, Texas' only Republican congressman, has refused to accept defeat by Augustus McCloskey, Democrat, and his allegations have been brought to the attention of the grand jury, before which the Republican representative appeared today.

Meanwhile, District Attorney John A. Valls announced that Sid Hardin, unsuccessful candidate against Congressman John M. Garner in the Democratic primary, would be given another opportunity to appear before the Webb county grand jury to clarify his election irregularity claims as presented to the congressional committee.

Hardin's testimony was a reversal of his statements when he last was before the grand jury, Hardin having said then that he was anxious to clear election officials of his charges, Valls declared. The district attorney added that there would be no prosecution against Hardin for libel. Hardin told the committee yesterday he had withdrawn his election fraud charges, which contributed to the committee's decision to investigate, because of threatened libel indictments.

Little testimony was presented to the committee today.

Thanksgiving theatergoers will have their choice of shows, for every theater in the city is presenting a brand new bill Thursday.

◇ ◇ ◇

Because it is the season's first road motion picture show, "White Slave Traffic" will open at 11 o'clock Thursday morning instead of the usual opening time at the Mission theater. The admission price for the engagement of this picture is 35 cents. It was made in Berlin in conjunction with the League of Nations.

◇ ◇ ◇

Norma Talmadge fans in Wichita Falls may now have their inning and that means the Strand will have more than its share of patrons for the week's showing of "The Woman Disputed" starting Thanksgiving. The show has a notable cast including Glayds Brockwell and Gilbert Rowland, and tell a dramatic story of a wartime love in Europe. It is a sound picture released by United Artists.

◇ ◇ ◇

Lillian Murry, Elmer Wright and the whole company at the Olympic promises to make a big whoopee for their friends on Turkey day. They have a special bill which they say will bring laughs where laughs have never before grown.

One of the finest vaudeville shows on the road is announced by the Majestic for the Keith-Orpheum Interstate bill.

Alma Neilson and company share the headline honors with Syd Moorehouse. Neilson is noted in the vaudeville world for her excellent exhibitions of terpsichore, and carries with her Dan B. Ely and Billy Atkins, both of whom are announced as being superior artists. Syd is an English comedian who appears as a tramp with a line of chatter and travesty. Jack Merlin and Lois Evans have a trick act, Morgan Davis and Lulu McCoy are seen and heard in "Boobology," and the King Brothers have a strong man act said to be one of the finest on the vaudeville stage. Leatrice Joy is seen on the screen in "Man Made Woman." An Inkwell Imp cartoon and the Paramount newsreel complete the program.

Al Smith May Get Two of Texas' 20 Votes Due to Ballot Jumble

AUSTIN, Nov. 28 (AP).—It is possible that two of Texas' 20 electoral votes will be cast for the Democratic presidential nominee in spite of the apparent 25,000 margin given the Republican electors by popular vote.

On the face of returns so far tabulated by the Texas election bureau, it may be that only 18 of the 20 Republican electors show a larger vote than the Democratic electors.

Returns showed that many votes were accredited to Arch Campbell and W. S. Drake as candidates for Republican electors. Campbell and Drake were never certified by Mrs. Jane McCallum, secretary of state, she said tonight, and she believes that in many counties the vote given Charles G. Smith and John R. Drake were listed on incorrectly printed tally sheets for Arch Campbell and W. S. Drake.

Campbell and W. S. Drake were first selected as Republican electors and then resigned. Smith and John R. Drake were appointed as their successors.

Some of the printing firms had sold sets of tally sheets bearing the names of the electors first chosen, Mrs. McCallum said. She expressed opinion that ballots credited in many counties to Campbell and W. S. Drake were in fact cast for Smith and John R. Drake but tallied erroneously. She said she had never certified the names of Campbell and W. S. Drake.

SPLIT OF TAX BILLS URGED

Raley Will Allow Installment Payments

Work of clearing the delinquent tax rolls of Wichita county is going forward at the rate of about 50 suits for collection a day, Guy Raley, county tax collector, announced Wednesday. The entire time of the members of the collector's staff is being devoted to the preparation of statements for delinquents up to and including 1926. At least 1500 suits will be filed when the work is completed, Mr. Raley said.

Wayne Somerville, county attorney, working with the collector's office in clearing up delinquencies, Wednesday urged that taxpayers take warning from the suits now beng filed and meet the current assessments promptly.

Installments Urged

"The 4.47 rate, which includes city, county, state, water and irrigation taxes, is high," he explained, "and it will not be easy to pay all in a lump sum. I advise the tax payer to begin making installments on the 1928 assessments now, to avoid the penalties that begin growing after Feb. 1."

The collector's office is keeping the constable department busy with citations as the hundreds of delinquents are being served. Mr. Raley explained Wednesday that the collection of old taxes made the $10,000,000 reduction in valuations for 1928 possible, and declared that the tax payers would find their burden reduced by 10 per cent if the payments were made completely and on time.

Checks Barred

"When our suits reveal to us unfortunates who, because of illness or ill fortune can not pay the taxes, we will be willing to accept installment payment. But the budget must be met and everybody must share in meeting it."

The collector served notice that no checks for automobile licenses will be accepted this year except from applicants personally known to the department.

"We have received hot checks for between $1,000 and $10,000 in previous years and I am determined to save the department that time and expense this year," he said.

Court Approves City's Warrants

AUSTIN, Nov. 28 (AP).—A city has the right under charter provisions to issue negotiable warrants in payment for public improvements, without submitting the proposition to the tax payers for ratification, the supreme court held today.

The court reversed judgment of the court of civil appeals and affirmed the district court of Cooke county in dissolving a temporary injunction against J. Z. Kell, mayor of Gainesville.

A. T. Pulte, a taxpayer of Gainesville, sought to enjoin the city from issuing warrants aggregating $16,000, payable $1,000 annually, in payment for a garbage incinerator. A temporary injunction was issued and later dissolved on motion of the city. The court of civil appeals reversed the dissolution order and reinstated the temporary injunction.

The court held that the city had the right to pass an ordinance authorizing issuance of "incinerator warrants" to evidence indebtedness. While bonds are considered negotiable, indebtedness warrants may not be sold, it was stated.

City Issues Nine Building Permits

There was Thanksgiving Wednesday in the city engineer's office, for nine building and repair permits were issued. This, more than on any single day in several months, and marked what building experts say is the end of a long period of drouth in building and repairs in the city. These permits followed by only one day the issuance of a $58,000 permit for an addition to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital. None of Wednesday's permits was large.

The permits follows: H. A. McCarty, 1005 Fillmore, $600 repairs, L. Ort, contractor.

SEWER FUND "OUT OF RED"

$33,000 Overdraft Cut By City Manager

Wichita Falls has retired its $33,336 sewer fund overdraft since the city management form of government was voted here effective April 1.

This was revealed Wednesday by city records which show that slightly more than $40,000 has been collected this fiscal year which also started April 1.

Members of the city council and other city officials expressed their opinions at that time that the sewer rental collections would run about $15,000 during the present fiscal year.

Constant effort has been spent by the water department in the collection of the sewer rentals with the result that almost three times as much has been collected to date as was anticipated for the entire year.
