Prominent French Aeronaut One Of Victims In Crackup At Jersey City; Pilot Was World War Ace

(By Associated Press)
JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 18.—Three passengers and the pilot of a Colonial Airways plane bound from Albany to Newark, were killed today when the plane crashed into a power station on St. Paul's Avenue and was consumed by flames.

The bodies were recognized as those of three men and a woman, but burned beyond identification.

Lost In Fog
Harry Lehman, a watchman at the public service power station saw the plane apparently searching for a landing place 10 minutes before it crashed. It was flying low and just missing the tops of houses, he said, and the pilot appeared to have lost his way in the fog.

The power plant is not far from open meadows, where a safe landing might have been made.

All power in Bergen county was cut off for 20 minutes after the crash.

Several Hundred Imprisoned In Flaming Building During Easter Vigil Service In Rumanian Town

(By Associated Press)
BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 18.—Dispatches from the village of Chioesti, near the town of Pitesti, 40 miles northwest of Bucharest, said tonight that at least 150 persons were burned to death or severely injured in a church that took fire during an Easter vigil service.

Several hundred persons were imprisoned in the flaming church. It was not known how many had escaped. Meager reports said fire brigades desperately were fighting the flames and endeavoring to break in the church doors, jammed by the pressure of the crowd within.

During the vigil service tonight, wind carried a curtain across the flames of lighted candles. The curtain caught fire and the flames were quickly communicated to the altar and the pannels.

In a panic that followed the increased congregation pressed against the doors, which opened inward, and thus cut off their own escape. Among the dead were two priests, a notary and the burgomaster of Chioesti.

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—Asking members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors to support prohibition as long as it stands, Chairman Wickersham of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission told them today that while modification might be desirable, he would express no opinion on that point.

"To secure the maximum abstinence from the use of liquor," he said, "it may be found desirable to modify the Eighteenth amendment on the national prohibition law."

New Oil Town To Be Host To Crowds Of Two States

By SUTTON CHRISTIAN
Avalanche Staff Writer
HOBBS, N. M., April 18.—Its pulse quickened like that of a child awaiting a coveted gift, Hobbs spent a restless night on the eve of the scheduled arrival today of the first train over the Texas-New Mexico rail line from Monahans, Texas.

Through the night the noise of hammer, saw and motor gave evidence of sleepless preparation for the two-day celebration, Saturday and Sunday.

Into this virgin oil town, now boasting a population of 3,000, will come the first passenger train this morning at 11 o'clock.

Dillon Is Engineer
Governor R. C. Dillon of New Mexico and Corporation Commissioner Hugh Williams, both of whom visited here several hours Friday afternoon, will be engineer and conductor, respectively, of the train.

Thirty-first stands constructed last night, riddle the streets. The town is flashily dressed in welcome bunting.

Vanguards from cities of the South Plains and New Mexico arrived last night. Hobbs Chamber of Commerce officials say that at least 5,000 visitors will arrive today.

Preparation for the celebration has been characterized by frenzied effort of the town builders. Their faith in the future Hobbs is paralleled between rival miner factions. The state does not ordinarily concede the drama of life which is accepted with no comment by those who develop new towns. Pulsating the life veins of this new town are the sanguine men whose bronzed faces are bathed in sweat of daily toil. They ROYALTON, Ill., April 18.—Five men were wounded, one critically, in a shooting affray here this afternoon between rival miner factions. Approximately 25 shots were fired.

The most seriously injured was Barney Davis of Ziegler, who was taken to the hospital at Ziegler.

Others wounded were Constable John Hicks and Adams Ivanich of Royalton, Roy Groves of West Frankfort and Ray Edmonds, address undetermined.

The trouble arose when Alexander Hoyal, president, and Adolph Oemer, vice president of the insurgent group of the United Mine workers, attempted to address a meeting. Nearly 100 automobile loads of adherents of John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W. A., came here from West Frankfort, and Ziegler and proceeded to break up the meeting. Nearly 500 were in the crowd.

Expect Recovery Of J. C. Anderson

Condition of J. C. Anderson, who submitted to an emergency operation here yesterday morning, is regarded as "satisfactory although critical." It was reported last night at West Texas hospital.

Mr. Anderson, head of the jewelry firm which bears his name, was rushed to the operating table shortly after 10 p. m. Friday, victim of a ruptured appendix. Members of his family and other relatives were at his bedside throughout yesterday afternoon and last night. Barring complications, his recovery is expected.

Hermit Is Given Haircut, Bath

KANSAS CITY, April 18. (AP)—Tilden Taylor, the hermit of Swope Park, today realized how Samson felt after Delilah's scissors had finished their unholy task of shearing off his strengthening locks.

Taylor, who had indicated he would rather be the hermit of Swope Park than president of the United States, was taken into custody by police who found him perched on a rock overlooking a lake in the park. He was treated to a bath by city firemen using a fire hose. A police officer near the country club police station cut off his long hair and his red beard and police gave him some new clothes after burning his wardrobe of four suits of overalls, all worn at one time.

Young Speaks Friday Night On Candidacy

Ample Appropriations For Educational Institutions Favored By gubernatorial Candidate In Talk Here

Declaring for ample appropriations for all Texas educational institutions, as well as the state's eelystomy institutions; lowering of the state ad valorem tax rate and taxing of sulphur, oil, gas and pipe line concerns; a more complete sense management of state prisons and prison farms; and against a state-wide bond issue for highways or any other purpose, James Young of Kaufman, candidate for governor, spoke to a crowd of between 150 and 200 Lubbockites at the courthouse here Friday night.

R. J. Murray, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, introduced the speaker, calling attention to this section as gaining more and more attention politically and socially and of fairer representation at Austin.

Service In Congress Cited
In opening his speech, Mr. Young explained that he had served in congress 10 years from his home district. While at Washington he was on the House agricultural committee and acquainted thereby with problems of Texas livestock and farming interests. He referred to his work for tick eradication legislation and the curtailing of power from the Big Five packers, who several years controlled refrigeration cars, switching facilities and stock yards banking institutions.

"I know the problems of the wheat and cotton producers," he said.

Thieves Get Oil and Gas In Thursday Night Robbery

The Canyon store, property of J. J. Barban, located about 8 miles east of Lubbock, was entered and robbed Thursday night of oil and gasoline, according to a report to the Lubbock county sheriff's office Friday.

The thieves were said to have gained entrance to the building by breaking the lock to the front door. Included in the loot taken was 15 gallons of lubricating oil and about 80 gallons of gasoline.

The charge, constituting murder in the first degree, carries the death penalty for conviction unless the trial jury should incorporate in its verdict a recommendation for life imprisonment.

Son Of Episcopal Bishop Charged With Murdering Aged Man While In Drunken Frenzy; Denies Guilt

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 18. (AP)—James Matthew Maxon, Jr., 21, Episcopal son who appeared to be a writer of detective stories, tonight found himself in a predicament quite as unusual as any he had ever devised himself, with vicious thrills for characters in his fictional plots.

White and shaky, as the scribe cleared from his brain, Maxon, son of Bishop Matthew Maxon of Chattanooga, bishop coadjutor of Tennessee, sat in an up-town police station, accused by fellow boarders of having killed in a drunken frenzy, a shabby old man he had never seen before.

Charged Ledgers
The boy ran amuck, they said, in the cheap Brownstone rooming house on West End avenue, where he had lived only a few days, charged the landlady and the other lodgers all over the place, and finally beat the life out of David Paynter, 73.

One of the roomers, who said he had fled in terror before the young man's fury, told police that through a window he saw Maxon knock the old man down and then bring a chair crashing down over his head.

Maxon, who earlier in the day had appeared lightly impressed by his plight, police said, and had only said reproachfully: "It's not good sportsmanship to question a man while he's drunk," grew more and more serious as the afternoon wore on.

Smoking many cigarettes and drinking water in huge gulps, he sat in the station while police and men from the district attorney's office waited for him to sober up.

Blames Drinking
"I suppose if I didn't drink—if I hadn't been drinking—I would not be in the predicament I'm in now," he told a police inspector.

Then he protested that he had not killed Paynter—that he couldn't have killed Paynter.

Possible Candidate For Governor On Program In Last Sessions Of Two-Day Meet; Old Officers Retained

(Special To The Avalanche)
TAHOKA, April 18.—El Paso won the next meeting of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners association in a vote taken at the close of the two-day meeting which ended here this afternoon. Pampa was the only other contestant.

Senator Clint C. Small, Wellington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for governor delivered the closing address of the convention, drawing much applause. Judge Small pledged his support to West Texas throughout his official life and said he would use his influence to put over the legislation asked by the judges. He urged the selection of capable, conservative men to head our county and state governments. He advocated a more just equalization of taxes, stating that West Texas was not receiving fair play at the hands of the rest of the state.

He stressed the fact that Texas is badly in need of the forming of a new constitution, that the present one is obsolete, conditions under it archaic, and advocated the calling of a constitutional convention.

Denver Army Medical Major To Be Tried For Murder Of Wife In 1929; Bond Is Set At $20,000

(By Associated Press)
TOPEKA, April 18.—Plans for the return of Major Charles A. Shepard to Kansas for trial on a charge of first degree murder were announced by authorities late today after a federal grand jury had indicated the Denver army medical corps officer for the alleged poisoning of his second wife.

L. E. Erskine, Wyman, assistant United States District attorney, said the government would seek return of the 39-year-old surgeon in the near future and it was likely he would be tried in federal district court at Kansas City, Kas., December 1. The grand jury fixed his bond, pending trial, at $20,000.

Charged With Murder
Major Shepard was charged, in the true bill returned by the grand jury today after hearing testimony from some of the score or more government witnesses subpoenaed for questioning, with the willful and premeditated murder of his wife, Mrs. Zenana Shepard, 37, at Fort Riley, Kas., June 15, 1929.

The charge, constituting murder in the first degree, carries the death penalty for conviction unless the trial jury should incorporate in its verdict a recommendation for life imprisonment.

Tech Government Authority Succeeds Mayor Clements; Guy And Duross Chosen As Club's Vice-President

Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the department of government at Texas Technological college, was elected as next president of the Lubbock Rotary club here yesterday afternoon as directors of that organization prepared to vamp a new administration.

Dr. Jackson, first college man to receive the honor, will succeed Mayor Jerry J. Clements on July 1st, when the latter's term expires.

Homer Grant Retires
Immediately after selecting the new president the club directors also balloted on vice-presidents. They chose Charles A. Guy, newspaper editor, and George Dupree, attorney, as first and second vice-presidents. The former succeeded Homer D. Grant, construction firm executive whose term as a director expired, and Mr. Dupree succeeded Mr. Guy.

The newly elected civic club chairman has resided in Lubbock since the opening of Tech college in 1925 and has been closely identified with community affairs. He has been active in International relations work, a topic of interest to Rotarians throughout the world who have as one of their objectives the furthering of world peace through better understanding.

To Temple Conference
In his capacity as president elect, Dr. Jackson will accompany President Clements to Temple Tuesday, to attend the annual conference of the first district of Rotary International. In addition to his civic and academic attainments, Doctor Jackson is also recognized as an authority upon governmental and parliamentary matters.

Dr. R. C. Campbell, pastor and J. D. Carroll, education director of the First Baptist church here, to the convention that opened Tuesday.

Lubbock, Dawson And Hockley Counties Each Place Two Winners In Interscholastic Events Held Friday

To Continue Today

Lubbock, Dawson and Hockley counties Friday were tied for honors in literary events of the district two interscholastic league meet, which opened yesterday morning at Texas Technological college. All three counties last night had placed two winners among those of the Three R. extemporaneous speaking and declamation contests.

Opening yesterday morning at 9 o'clock with registration of contestants, hundreds of entrants were recorded in the administration building at the college. Officials last night stated, though no official check had been made, that 900 contestants had been registered during the day in literary and athletic events.

Two Thousand Here
The contestants, however, make up a very small portion of those assembled for the meet. Approximately two thousand persons from all sections of the South Plains, representing 18 counties, were arriving all day yesterday while many more are expected today for the final and big day of the meet.

Eighty students in only three contests had been decided last night.

Lubbock Will Make Bid For 1931 W.T.C.C. Confab

Drive Started To Land Next Session Here

Delegation Will Present Invitation At Abilene Meet According To Plans Made At C. C. Meeting Here

When the opening gun of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention is sounded at Abilene on May 20, Lubbock will have a delegation present to make a strong bid for the 1931 meeting, according to plans made and announced yesterday by directors of the local chamber.

A committee for the purpose of circulating campaign plans will be named in the near future by President R. J. Murray. Numerous expressions have been heard from West Texans favoring this city as the next convention city, directors indicated yesterday.

Little Expense
Very little expense is required now for entertainment of the West Texas convention, many of the elaborate features of the event having been cut to a minimum.

A. B. Davis, manager of the local chamber, also was requested by the directors to attend group meeting next week at Childress, Memphis and Wellington when C. O. Moser, vice-president of the American Cotton Cooperative association will speak in those cities in the interest of the cotton marketing organization, in view of the fact that Lubbock is to be the concentration point for marketing of cotton in district 2, which includes 65 counties.

Ask Investigation
The directors voted to ask officials of the Lubbock Automobile Dealers association to make an investigation into alleged reports to the effect that State highway officials are enforcing the law in this county "in such a manner that traffic is being directed around this city." According to reports, enforcement has not been as severe in other counties of the area, a matter which is hurting this city, a statement of the board read.

Preservation Of America's Oil Is Asked

Keeping Markets For American Producers Designated As Keynote of National Convention At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, April 18. (AP)—Preservation of American oil markets for American producers has been designated the keynote of the national convention of the Independent Petroleum association of America, preliminaries of which began here today.

Wirt Franklin, Ardmore, Okla., the president, said an effort to obtain a favorable oil tariff would be continued. A tariff bill recently failed of passage in the senate by one vote.

Franklin indicated the association's battle might be broadened to include an effort to change existing national treaties. He asserted the foreign owned Royal Dutch-Shell company was filling the country with stations through which it sold foreign produced and refined oil, in the face of alien land and property laws in various states.

Today's session was concerned with determining a permanent form of organization, a new setup being necessary because of expansion of the association during the tariff fight.

TO APPEAL TO VOTERS
WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—Senator Heflin of Alabama, issued a statement today asserting he would go to Alabama immediately to appeal to the voters from the decision of the Supreme Court upholding the ruling of the democratic state committee that those who failed to support Alfred E. ## Organization Of New Cotton Co-Op District Starts Soon With Overstreet In Charge

Efforts Will Be Centered In And Around Lubbock First According To Plans; Every Farmer Member Is Goal

R. E. Overstreet will be director of organization in this district for the Texas Cotton Cooperative association and organization work will start immediately, according to an announcement received in this city yesterday. "Every cotton farmer signed up as a member," is to be the working motto and goal of the association in district two, with headquarters in Lubbock.

It is probable that efforts will be made to work the area around Lubbock first, though no definite plan of action has as yet been announced. Committees from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and representative farmers will more than likely be in charge of community meeting in school districts over the area, at which information regarding the cooperative will be given and members signed up.

"It looks like the unanimous support of the bankers of this district is being offered the Texas Cotton Cooperative association," Mr. Overstreet declared this morning.

4,000 Easy
"Our aim is to have every cotton farmer on the Plains sign up. We believe that it will be possible to have more than the 4,000 members needed to wipe out the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce guarantee for that number signed up in our own immediate South Plains counties, here above the crop.

"With the fight that is being made upon the Federal Farm Board by the grain and cotton exchange operators, farmers of this district should answer that challenge by signing up 100 per cent back of the Farm Board."

Interest in the cooperative is increasing throughout the south, Mr. Overstreet said, and officials of the American Cotton Cooperative association appreciate the way Lubbock has put over organization beginning for the first district office in the cotton belt.

"Mr. Moser said," continued Mr. Overstreet, "that in all the many years of experience he has had in cooperative marketing work, the splendid manifestation of cooperation among Lubbock business men and farmers of the Plains section far exceeded anything ever to come under his notice. He was enthusiastic over Lubbock's showing."

C. O. Moser, referred to above, is secretary and vice president of the American Cotton Cooperative association. He will be in Childress next Thursday, Wellington on Friday and Memphis on Saturday, to assist in organizing local branch offices of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association. All three of these cities are in Lubbock's district and every member signed up under a branch organization is credited on the 4,000 underwritten by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

It is planned to send a committee of representative business men from Lubbock and representative farmers from Lubbock county to one of more of the cities above mentioned next week.

On May 16, Mr. Moser will be at Plainview and on May 16 at Lamesa to help in establishing local branch offices in those two cities. Other cities mentioned as possible branch office centers are, Slaton, Sweetwater, Levelland, Littlefield, Paducah, Colorado. Each branch center needs an assured delivery of members' cotton of 10,000 or more bales.

Overstreet will be director of organization in this district for the Texas Cotton Cooperative association and organization work will start immediately, according to an announcement received in this city yesterday. "Every cotton farmer signed up as a member," is to be the working motto and goal of the association in district two, with headquarters in Lubbock.

It is probable that efforts will be made to work the area around Lubbock first, though no definite plan of action has as yet been announced. Committees from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and representative farmers will more than likely be in charge of community meeting in school districts over the area, at which information regarding the cooperative will be given and members signed up.

"It looks like the unanimous support of the bankers of this district is being offered the Texas Cotton Cooperative association," Mr. Overstreet declared this morning.

4,000 Easy
"Our aim is to have every cotton farmer on the Plains sign up. We believe that it will be possible to have more than the 4,000 members needed to wipe out the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce guarantee for that number signed up in our own immediate South Plains counties, here above the crop.

"With the fight that is being made upon the Federal Farm Board by the grain and cotton exchange operators, farmers of this district should answer that challenge by signing up 100 per cent back of the Farm Board."

Interest in the cooperative is increasing throughout the south, Mr. Overstreet said, and officials of the American Cotton Cooperative association appreciate the way Lubbock has put over organization beginning for the first district office in the cotton belt.

"Mr. Moser said," continued Mr. Overstreet, "that in all the many years of experience he has had in cooperative marketing work, the splendid manifestation of cooperation among Lubbock business men and farmers of the Plains section far exceeded anything ever to come under his notice. He was enthusiastic over Lubbock's showing."

C. O. Moser, referred to above, is secretary and vice president of the American Cotton Cooperative association. He will be in Childress next Thursday, Wellington on Friday and Memphis on Saturday, to assist in organizing local branch offices of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association. All three of these cities are in Lubbock's district and every member signed up under a branch organization is credited on the 4,000 underwritten by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

It is planned to send a committee of representative business men from Lubbock and representative farmers from Lubbock county to one of more of the cities above mentioned next week.

On May 16, Mr. Moser will be at Plainview and on May 16 at Lamesa to help in establishing local branch offices in those two cities. Other cities mentioned as possible branch office centers are, Slaton, Sweetwater, Levelland, Littlefield, Paducah, Colorado. Each branch center needs an assured delivery of members' cotton of 10,000 or more bales.

Vengeance Is Given Reason In Kidnaping

Ransom Never Mentioned By Mexican Bandit Gang Says Leonard Cassidy After His Release By Abductors

VERA CRUZ, April 18. (AP)—Leonard B. Cassidy, American citizen kidnaped by Mexicans near the village of El Hule, Oaxaca, Tuesday morning, feared during the 30 hours he was a captive that a fate more terrible than that of unpaid ransom victim was to be his lot.

Cassidy, who arrived here last night by railroad from Tuxtepec, Oaxaca, near the Puebla state border, said the men who captured him he believed were motivated with desire for a gruesome revenge for labor difficulties they had had with him as manager of the Transcontinental Fruit company in that section.

Victim Exhausted
Cassidy was exhausted from his experience. He understood that six men had been arrested by General Gonzalez at a place near Esperanza, not far from the Sabastopol banana ranch, and that one of them had been executed. The other five were held as intellectual authors of the crime. Another report said all had been summarily executed.

Cassidy said he was talking on his telephone within his house Tuesday morning when six men appeared, one snatching his pistol while the other five beat him and seized the telephone. They led him into the rough country, where after several hours pursuing federal troops captured the leader, "El Liengo," who had separated from two companions to look for food.

Bandits Frightened
When the others heard of El Liengo's capture they became frightened, and released Cassidy.

Cassidy said three men stayed with him during the day light hours he was a captive and two with him at night. Not once during his captivity did they make any mention of ransom, he said, but instead gave him the impression they sought vengeance for what they considered unjust treatment of banana workers. Cassidy's home is in Peabody, Mass.

At one time during his stay with his abductors Cassidy thought they were going to kill him, and he asked

Church Political Activity Scored

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 18. (AP)—Alleged political activities of the Federal Council of churches were under fire today in an overture of the Mecklenburg Presbytery to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States.

The Presbytery urged the general church body to withdraw from the Federal council of churches, because it was asserted, the council "is now being investigated by the congress of the United States for its political activities on questions which Christ did not commission the church to settle."

The overture was adopted yesterday at the Presbytery's meeting at Mint Hill. It will be presented at the Southern Presbyterian general assembly at Charlottesville, Va., May 22. The Presbytery embraces 94 churches.

All Churches of Rome and Throughout Catholic World Commemorate Death Of Christ In Good Friday Observance

ROME, April 18. (AP)—Before altars stripped of their ornaments and surrounded by veiled crucifixes, with the tabernacles in the center standing open and empty, black-vestmented priests, solemnly prostrating themselves, today commemorated the death of Christ in all the churches of Rome and throughout the Catholic world.

Rome's commemoration of Good Friday was as always, particularly impressive because of the number of purported relics of Christ's passion and death to be found here. A great "procession of penitents" composed of thousands of clergy and laymen, wended its way to Santa Croce in Gerusalemme, where a comparatively large piece of what is said to be the Cross of Calvary has been kept for centuries.

Seven Centuries Of Tradition And Development Represented In The Freiburg Passion Play

Four Hundred Years Of Inheritance Add To Performance To Be Presented At Tech Stadium May 2 and 3

Seven centuries of tradition and development and four hundred years of inheritance are represented in the Freiburg Passion Play, of Freiburg, Baden, Germany, which will be produced at Tech athletic stadium on May 2 and 3. The Passion Play is on its first American tour.

Adolf Fassnacht, who portrays the Christ during his week of passion, suffering, death and triumph, is the eighth Fassnacht in direct descent to portray the role. Since 1760 A. D. the role has been jealously guarded as a Fassnacht heritage, each successive generation striving to bring a deeper spiritual and artistic significance to the presentation of the triumph of the Ma nof Sor-tow.

36 In Company

Mr. Fassnacht is supported by a company of 36 principals, members of the original German company which 18 months ago began the American tour. Many of these have, in like manner, inherited their parts from preceding generations. Because no company could possibly carry the huge number of people necessary for the mob and crowd scenes which make so colorful a background for the acting of the principals, scores of Lubbock actors will be given an opportunity to appear with the noted German cast. Skilled stage directors from the company will train these "extras" well in advance of the presentation.

Authentic costuming of the ancient orient, elaborate lighting and scenic effects and acting of rare power make the Passion Play a colorful pageant of magnificent proportions. Telling the age-old story of Jesus, simply and sincerely, its theme carries an appeal to all kinds and classes of people.

CAR DRIVER SOUGHT

DALLAS, April 18. (AP)—Officers here today sought the driver of an automobile who last night escaped after Bob Greenlee, policeman, had been hurled from the car, said to have contained whiskey. Greenlee opened fire on the speeding car but none of his shots were believed to have struck their mark. The driver threw to the pavement several jars of whiskey as he sped away.

Claim Hoover Doubts Prohibition Enforcement

Belief That Chief Executive Beginning To Doubt If Prohibition Laws Enforceable Voiced In Hearing

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—An expression of belief by W. H. Stuyton, chairman of the board of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that President Hoover "is beginning to doubt whether prohibition can be enforced" was received today by the senate lobby committee.

The opinion was contained in a letter written last February by Stuyton to Charles S. Wood of Philadelphia, vice-president of the wet organization.

"My own feeling is, as I talk to senators, members of congress, and public officials here, that Mr Hoover is beginning to doubt whether prohibition can be enforced."

It added that Mr Hoover "wants to take plenty of time to consider it, but he is being abused a little too much."

Wichita Spudders Take Top Rung In Texas Loop Race

SHOOTING WITH SHUTE DENNY SAUTE

Given the opportunity to put a few thoughts on paper for the first time, there is one thing that strikes me as the most important of all to say to golfers generally. That is about their tendency to slug.

Perhaps my choice of an opening subject comes because it has affected my game so vitally and so recently, but nevertheless I shall feel that if I can only make it emphatic enough, I shall have accomplished my mission at the outset.

The last three years of my career, I think, will illustrate the point.

Back in 1927, when I was 24 years old, I was just a pretty good golfer. I had won the West Virginia state amateur twice and been runner-up once. That year, when I moved to Columbus, I won the Ohio amateur.

Wasn't Satisfied With Game That was all very fine, of course. People said a lot of nice things about me and my future. But I wasn't satisfied. I wasn't getting very far in the national tournaments.

At Okmont, in the national open, I had 325. Not a round under 80. I lost to Max Marston at Minnikahda in the first round of the national amateur. The year before Eustace Shroyer had put me out at Baltusrol, also in the first round.

I always qualified, but I didn't last. I was pretty good, but not nearly so good as I wanted to be and not nearly so good as I felt I could become.

So that winter, helping my father run an indoor golf school, I decided to change my game. All I did was move my right hand over on top of the shaft of the club a bit. And it worked wonders.

When you're wild off the tee, or with your irons, either, for that matter, chances are you are trying to hit the ball too hard. Move your right hand over on top of the shaft just enough to see the knuckle of your little finger. It worked for me and thousands of others I have seen would be greatly improved if they'd try the same thing.

Believe it will give an insight into one way to straighten out your game.

Johnny Doeg and Gregory Mangin Go To Finals in North-South Net Meet

PINEHURST, N. C., April 18. (AP)—Johnny Doeg, California wizard, and Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., Georgetown University sophomore, today won their way to finals of the United North and South tennis tournament.

Mangin staged a comeback to defeat Emmett Pare, of Dayton, Ohio, in a five set struggle today after losing the first two sets. The score was 4-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Doeg trimmed Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4, in the other match.

Except in the first set when Bell played him on equal terms, Doeg was master of the situation. His service was so swift as to be almost unplayable, and his returns for the past were accurate. Doeg lost only two services during the match.

The Texan's service was erratic, and he rarely was able to place his first ball in the court.

During the third set Bell gained a lead of four games to one but appeared tired and dropped the next five games in a row.

Sunday-School Lesson
BY DR. J. E. NUNN

For April 20, 1930
General Topic:—Jesus Teaching
Scripture Lesson:—Matt. 18:21-

in the third year of Christ's ministry.
Place:—Capernaum.
Introduction

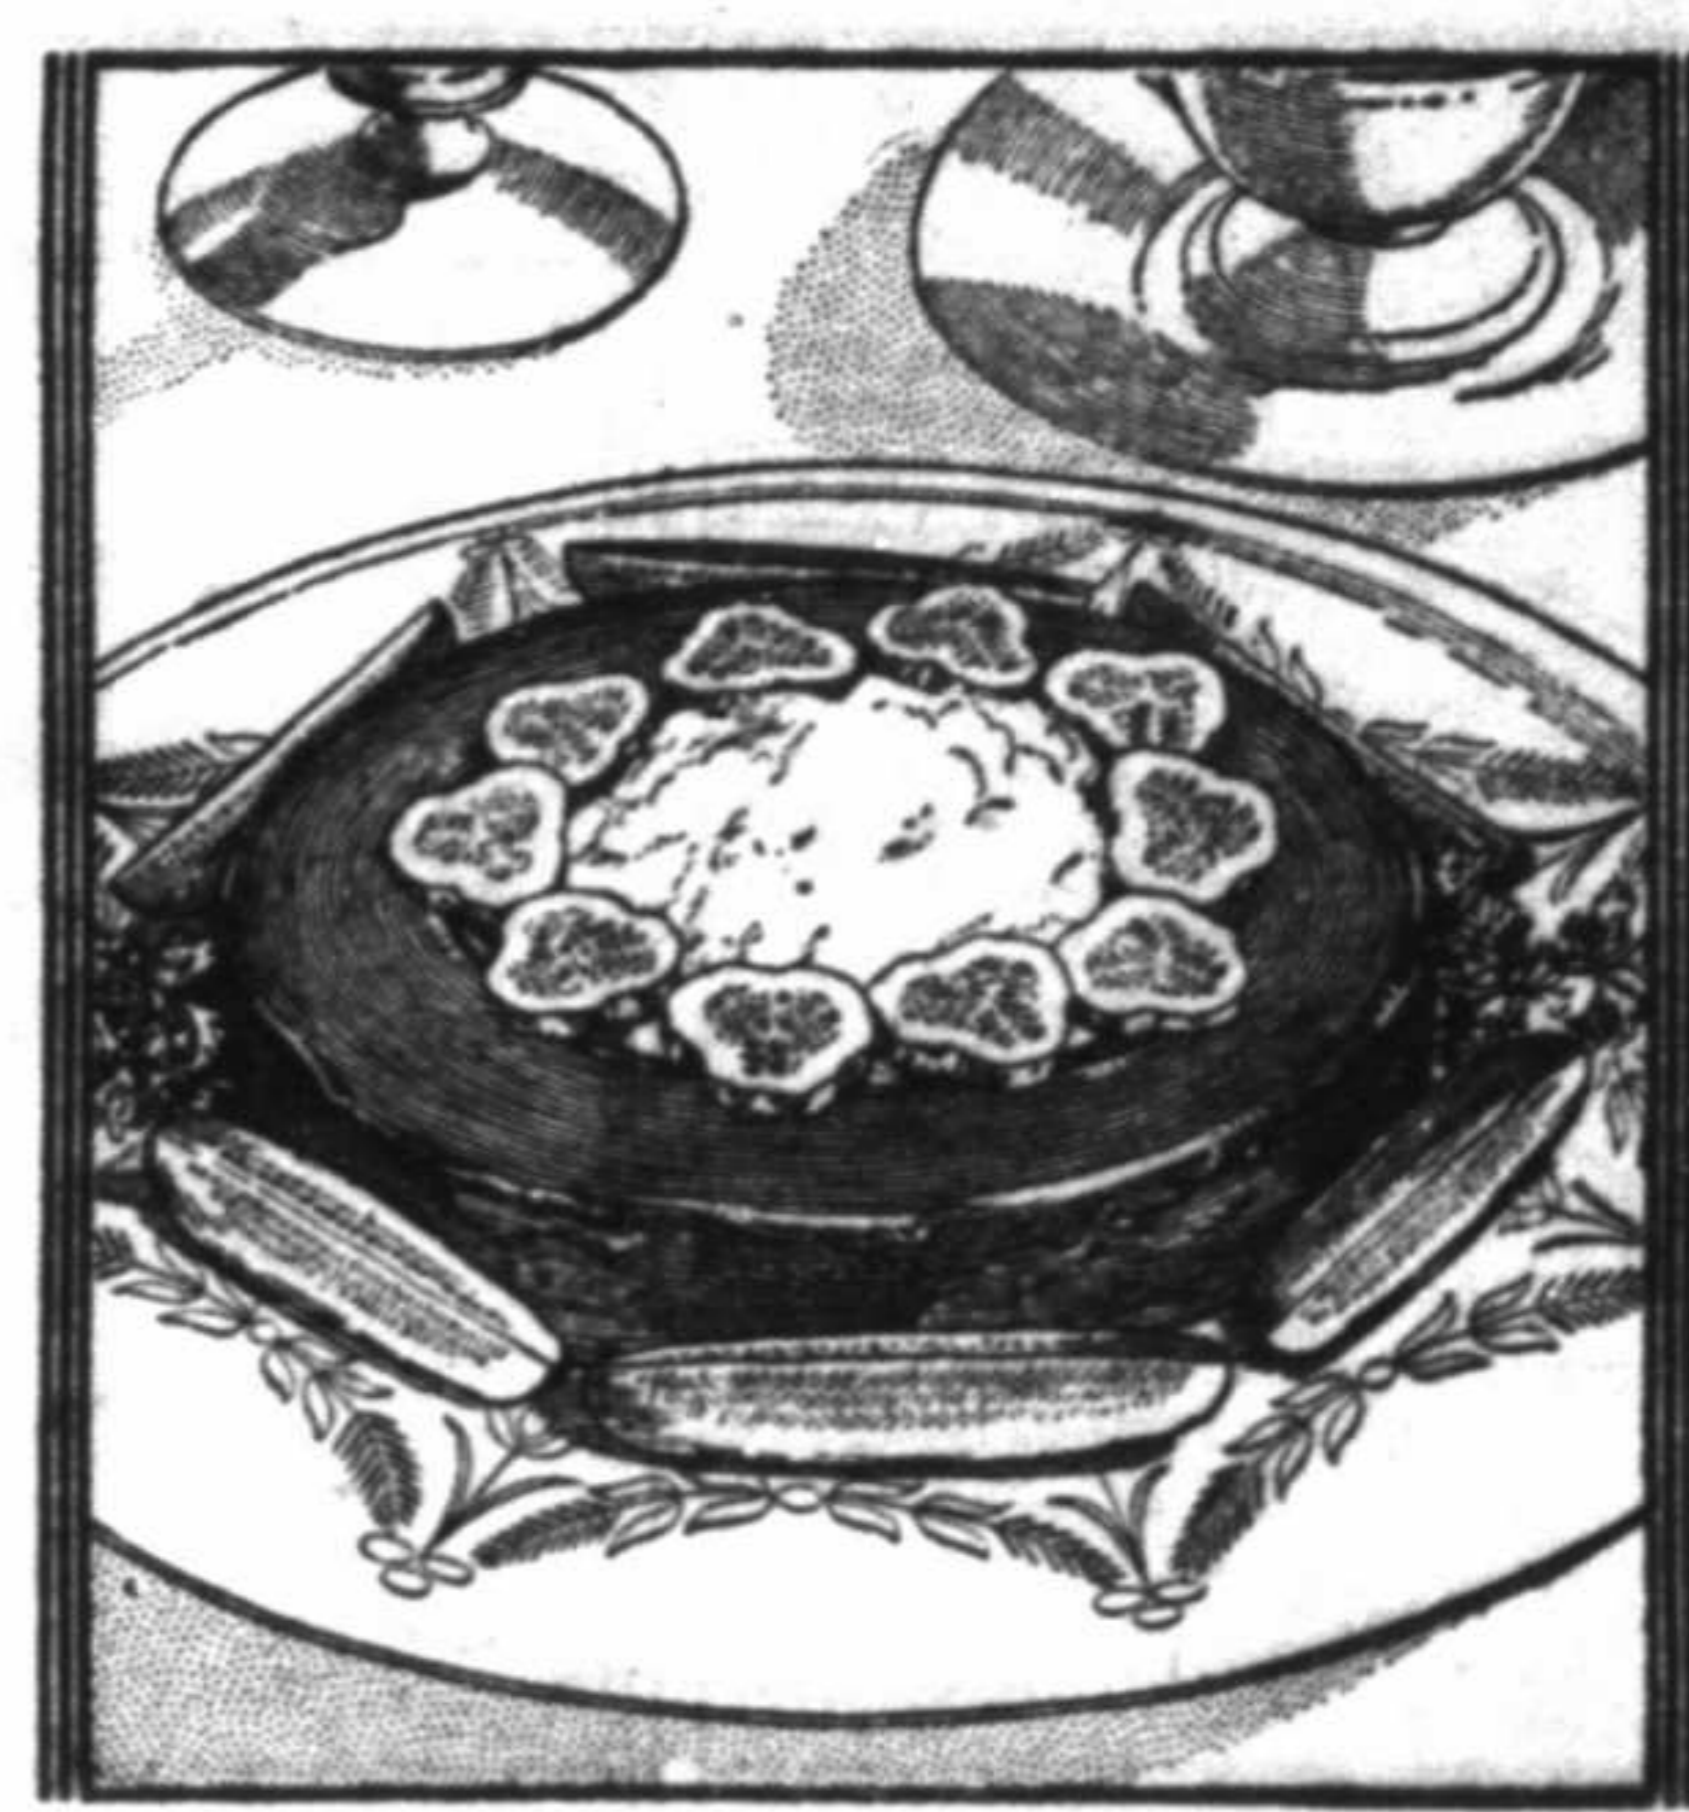

The most solemn lesson of this parable is that one who is unwilling to forgive his brother has no right to expect forgiveness for himself. This is in harmony with that earlier declaration of our Lord: "But if ye forgive not your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses." "No man can cherish the malicious disposition that treasures up offenses against himself, and at the same time feel that the divine love is wrapping him round in its warm folds. If we are to retain our consciousness of having been forgiven by God, and received into the amplitude of his heart, we must, in our measure and degree, imitate that on which we trust, and be mirrors of the divine mercy which we say has saved us."
"Until Seven Times?" v. 21
Our Lord's teaching had required patient love beyond what the rabbi's requires, for their teaching was that the offender should go to the man he had wronged, confess his fault, and seek forgiveness; but Christ had commanded that the wronged man should take the initiative in seeking a reconciliation. Peter was startled, and wanted to know more about the matter.
"Then came Peter and said to him, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him?" Impetuous Peter was likely to bring down much criticism on his head, and become involved in many disputes with his brethren. He was hard hit by Christ's command of ready forgiveness. "How long must I keep this thing up?" he anxiously inquires. "Until seven times?" Peter thought that to be a sufficiently liberal offer, since the rabbi required only a thrice-repeated forgiveness, basing their rule on Job 32:29 and Amos 2:4. Probably Peter expected to be praised for his "seven times."
"There was a mystical atmosphere about the number seven; it symbolized perfection. Three being the number which spoke of heaven, seven gave the ideal of completion—the union of heaven and earth."
—Rev. John Henry Hopkins.
"Seven Times Seven" v. 22
"Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times; but, Until seventy times seven." The translation is uncertain here, and the marginal "until seventy times seven" may be correct; but whether Jesus said four hundred and ninety or seventy-seven makes no difference, since our Lord plainly meant that one is to forgive an indefinite number of times. Forgiveness does not go by the count but by the spirit. It is not a matter of arithmetic or of bookkeeping, but of love; and love has no limits. Peter was shown how low was his estimate of forgiveness compared with Christ's. The true Christian's forgiveness is not to be limited to any particular number. "If a person remembers wrongs enough to keep count of them, he does not really forgive them."

"A Day of Reckoning" v. 23
"Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, who would make a reckoning with his servants." The king stands for the Saviour himself, who is some day to sit in judgment upon all men, making a reckoning of the deeds done in the body. "And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, that owed him ten thousand talents. A talent was not a coin, but a weight of gold or silver. These were probably talents of silver, each worth three thousand shekels or twelve thousand denarii, and the denarius was the day's wages of an ordinary laborer! In our money the sum would be between nineteen and twenty million dollars, a sum impossible to pay. If these were Greek and not Hebrew talents, the total would be about half this sum—probably more than the whole annual revenue of Palestine at this time." (Cambridge Bible). Such is the debt which the sinner owes to God; he can never pay it or hope to pay it.
"The Bankrupt Debtor" v. 24
"But forasmuch as he had not wherewith to pay." "Do we, any of us realize, as we all of us ought to do, the infinite number, and the transcendent greatness of our transgressions against the Father?"—Alexander MacLaren. "His lord commanded him to be sold." The Mosaic law authorized the selling of a man into slavery for theft (Ex. 22:3) or for debt (Lev. 25:39, 47). "And his wife and children." "A man's wife and children are his property. The order is also in accordance with the idea that the whole of a man's family is responsible for his acts." (Josh. 7)—Alfred Plummer. See 2 Kings 4:1. "And all that he had, and payment to be made." The sale would go only a little way toward paying the enormous debt, but it would amount to something.
"The servant therefore fell down, and worshipped him." "Worship" is in the perfect tense in the Greek, implying worshipful prostrations repeated over and over. "Saying, Lord have patience with me, and I will pay thee all." In the strength which God will supply.

Forgiving and Forgetting
When anyone says, "I will forgive his injury to me, but I will never forget it," he usually reveals his intention to remember it, and thereby he reveals an unforgiving heart. So long as he tries to remember the wrong, he does not really forgive it. To forgive is to dismiss, to put out of sight, to treat as if the wrong did not exist. That is what we want God to do with our sins. We pray with the Psalmist, "Blot out my transgressions." "Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions." Spurgeon says pithily, "Forgive and forget. When you bury a mad dog, don't leave his tail above ground."

Clear Weather Predicted For Easter Sunday

Army Of Children Expected To Take Part In Traditional Easter Egg Rolling On White House Lawn

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—A clear weather Easter for the East New England and a part of the South was promised today by the weather bureau.

Observers prophesied fair skies and moderate temperatures for most of the Washington forecast district, but it was added conditions in the South Atlantic and Gulf states were likely to be unsettled.

With the prospect of sun and rain, an army of children was expected to take part in the traditional Easter egg rolling on the White House lawn.

It will be a day for children only—as Easter Monday has been in the past for their parents, grandparents and even great grandparents. Adults are to be admitted, as the capital has come to phrase it, only if "a little child shall lead them."

HEADS TWO IN YEAR

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Margaret Cunningham of Decatur, Ga., is president of her second class at Georgia State College for Women in a year. Last fall she was elected president of the junior class, became a senior at mid-year and recently was elected president of the seniors.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens.

THE ANNUAL CLEAN-UP COMMUNITIES looking about at this time of year for ways of expressing civic pride can find no better vehicle than a "clean-up, paint-up" campaign.

It is the little thing that counts. A rusty can may mar a yard; a new coat of paint can "make" a house.

Every property owner, householder and business man should sense an overpowering duty in the spring of the year to make his buildings and grounds fit into nature's picture of cleanliness and freshness.

Consider its neatness and location, Lubbock is a bright, clean looking city. But don't for a moment fool yourself into thinking that there isn't plenty of room for improvement in every section of the Plains' Hub.

All of Lubbock, from "The Plains of Little Africa" to "Slick Stocking Row" (if we have such a vicinity) can and will profit by the city-wide campaign if it is greeted as enthusiastically as it should be.

Plan now to clean up that back yard, paint that garage, fence or house and do a bit toward making Lubbock the Show City of the Plains as well as the industrial and commercial center. Remember the dates, April 28 through May 10, and lend a hand!

SHOOTING THE MOON Something is wrong with the academic logic of Dr. John Q. Stewart, of Princeton. Arguing from the rate of increase of human travel during the past century, he figures that by the year 1950 men will make their machines go 1000 miles an hour and a century later will visit the moon in three days of rapid transit through space.

As an accredited scientist Dr. Stewart should know better. He should know, for instance, that though a baby grows half a pound a week during its earliest infancy, nobody expects it to keep it up indefinitely. He should know what happened to the logic of Malthus and other pessimists in population figures, who reckoned the arithmetical increase of nations without allowing for the mysterious law which knows when enough is enough and levels off the curve of increases to a stable density. He should consider all that is argument means to other advances of the past hundred years. Including the height of office buildings, the annual consumption of safety pins and the popularity of motion picture actors. None of these things go on getting bigger forever; all of them grow quickly in their youth and settle down at last at a certain limit of increase. And though we have learned quickly to travel faster and faster, we may be nearer the limit than most people suppose.

Another possibility deserves the doctor's attention. It may be that disinclination to travel to the moon in a glorified firecracker may also increase according to some ratio to the point where nobody wants to do it. Or else we may become steadily more bored with scientific fantasies and romances and will be content at last to let the moon attend to its own business while we attend to ours.

CALL WILL NOT WEAR 'EM Burning issues, cries, platforms, planks, parties, policies, pasts and prejudices play their part in public life, making and unmaking public figures; but capable of counteracting them all is the little personal thing, the commonplace trademark of character.

Millions of citizens were inseparably drawn to Calvin Coolidge when it was learned that pajamas are anathema to him. That peep into his private life made him a blood brother of a generation still able to kick both figuratively and literally.

He is old-fashioned, and neither wealth nor the pressure of modernity can alter his principles. He is the fashion's master, not its slave. He was brought up in a nightshirt; he was wearing one when he was informed that he was president of the United States; and he will not desert his nightshirt constituency now.

When he discovered that no sleeping garment had been packed in his Florida bag, he tried one night in pajamas because the old reliable was unavailable. The morning after another immortal saying was added to his collection: "I do not choose to wear pajamas again."

CONSULTATIVE TREATIES LIKENED TO CLANDESTINE HEART AFFAIRS, CLOUDING FUTURE WITH DOUBTS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 18.—"The young woman," philosophizes Senator Henrik Shipstead, "who, while seemingly adamant against some ardent suitor's importunities to elope with him, nevertheless is willing to discuss an elopement, may fairly be expected to land at Gretna Green sooner or later in that woeful company."

"Personally," admitted the Minnesota statesman, "I have a prejudice against these clandestine affairs. They cloud the whole future with uncertainty. Those nearest and dearest to the girl ought to have an opportunity to meet the individual who is promising to make her so happy—to look him over—to investigate his antecedents thoroughly. He may have a past not at all in his favor."

"I have the same feeling," continued the Minnesotan, "concerning consultative pacts in the realm of international matrimony. It is object to an alliance, tying the United States to any other country. I even object to having the United States agree to consult with any other country on the subject of an alliance, for I am afraid that an alliance is what a consultation will lead us into."

"In fact," said the senator, "I am suspicious of the company that our American representatives have been keeping lately. When a group of delegations get together to discuss naval limitation, in the interests of world peace, and immediately fall to discussing their respective nations' naval requirements in the event of possible (or, shall I say, probable) future war, it does not sound peaceful to me."

"Indeed, I go so far as to question the desirability even of a peace bargain, if its obvious purpose is to keep the peace in order to enable the bargainers to hang onto what they grabbed in the last war."

For example—Senator Shipstead recently pointed out in some interesting literature on the subject that Europe's Holy Alliance, now regarded as one of history's ugliest frame-ups (so much so that America's well-known Monroe Doctrine was promulgated, as a warning to it to keep out of the new world), was as highly thought of at first as today's League of Nations.

"And doubtless," says the senator, "it was just as altruistically meant by the idealistic Czar Alexander, who inspired it. Unfortunately, more practical and unscrupulous experts promptly fixed it over to suit themselves, precisely as the same sort of folk denatured Woodrow Wilson's concept of an international league a decade ago."

"No, a peace agreement to consolidate war gains," said the Minnesotan lawmaker, "is too contradictory to promise well. I would have more hopes of a treaty to prevent war acquisitions."

"Of course it is true enough that the winners, as well as the losers, lose by war, as it is fought in this generation, but nations do look forward to plunder when they take up arms—or at least look to plunder in part to offset their losses. If all plunder could be barred, by previous arrangement, which subsequently could be made effective, perhaps a real step in the direction of peace would have been taken."

"But a consultative pact!" concluded the senator. "If it is proposed that we are to have some sort of share in future international trouble, delay and concern us, I want to know in advance just what share is proposed for us. I do not want to wait until trouble begins and then have our share agreed on by consultation."

WHAT'S IN A NAME? The custom of travel and the wide range of modern business have made the native names of the world's cities reasonably familiar to their neighbors in other lands. But there are still marked differences in some cases between the proper name of a place and its version in other languages. According to the Ocean Traffic Bureau of the Port of Philadelphia, this causes some confusion and delay in freight traffic. Since the destination of a shipment is more important to its safe delivery than its point of origin, it is urged that addresses be written in the form agreeable to the recipient rather than in the spelling current in other countries.

Some cities have changed their names but have not been able to persuade the rest of the world to admit it. In some cases local and foreign names for a city have nothing in common, as in the case of San Salvador—known in this country as Bahia—and Nidaros, which is Trondheim to Americans. Sometimes it is a matter of spelling. Gothenburg being properly Goteborg and Venice being more accurately Venezia, while Copenhagen is known at home as Kopenhaven and Leghorn as Livorno.

Your Health COLLEGE STUDENTS SHARE IN OLD AND EXPLODED SUPERSTITIONS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBREIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It has been argued repeatedly that education will cure superstition. However, investigators find that educated people have not infrequently superstitions as ridiculous as those held by the most ignorant.

Recently A. G. Gilliland studied two groups of students in Northwestern university to find the effects of education on their superstitions. He found that a study of psychology tended to lessen the number of superstitions and the character of the superstitions held by the students.

It is interesting to look over the list of superstitions and to see how the average man will react to them. Among some of those listed were: "A child comes into the world with an instinctive knowledge of good and evil. This is his conscience and is born in him. Actually ideas of right and wrong are matters of education and appreciation of custom."

"Certain lines in a person's hand foretell his future." The idea of palmistry has not the slightest basis in established fact. "If you stare at a person's back you can make him turn around. This is a form of telepathy." Whenever this result occurs, it is due to coincidence. It is due also to the fact that few people sit absolutely quiet at any time, but constantly turn around.

"People born under the influence of certain planets show the influence in their characters." The ideas of astrology are thousands of years old, and are no better established now than they were among the ancient Persians. "Beginning an undertaking on Friday is almost certain to bring bad luck." This is another superstition that is based on ancient legend and on theological relationship.

"Any physical or mental disease can be contracted by thinking about it." Such a notion is the basis of faith healing cults and has not the slightest basis in fact.

Murder Backstairs by ANNE AUSTIN

CHAPTER XLIII "Phyllis Benham" the prisoner echoed blankly. "I've never known a girl named Phyllis Benham." "Phyllis Crosby?" Dundee suggested. "Never heard of her," Conway retorted. "Kin to that guy I was hired to work for?" "His dead wife. You stole her miniature," Dundee replied quietly. "I took everything that was in a jewel box, without bothering to open some of the cases," the prisoner explained frankly. "Doris Mathews told one of the maids that she had seen you somewhere before," Dundee told him, trying a new tack. "Yes, in the dining room of the Stuart House Thursday night," Conway answered promptly. "I was having dinner with a man. I met him Friday night at the servants' dinner. Arnold, the chauffeur, and he was. He didn't see me Thursday night, because his back was toward me, but I nearly got the girl's coat staying at her. She was a peach. Of course I had on my glasses and my hair was parted in the middle, not on the left side as it was Friday night. But I saw it had her bothered—where she'd seen me before." "And you weren't taking any chances, were you, Conway?" Strawn inquired in a sly way. "You knew the girl might remember and give you away. That's why you killed her? Didn't I tell you so yesterday, Dundee?" "I didn't kill her," Conway retorted, with amazing calm. "And I can prove it!" "Alibi, eh?" Strawn sneered. "I'll take some alibi to get your neck out of this room, my man!" "And I've got it," Conway assured him coolly. "Don't you think I know from the papers when she was last seen alive? Listen: I finished my job at the Berkeley house before 10 o'clock. I could have stowed the junk in my pockets, but I took that black pugskin bag of Crosby's just to throw dust in your eyes." "What did you go with it?" "Chucked it on my way to the interurban stop," Conway grinned. "If you can find out who owns a big coupe parked at the curb in front of No. 4312 Fairview Road Friday night and will tell him to lift up the back seat, he'll find the bag, unless he's found it already and has been afraid to turn it in. It's got Crosby's tennis shoes in it, as well as the velvet boxes that all the loot was kept in." "Check on it, Sergeant Turner!" Strawn flung at his subordinate and Turner left the office on the run. "That was about 10:15," Conway continued coolly. "By that time I'd put on my own shoes, which I'd carried out in the bag, buttoned up my topcoat to the collar, put on my glasses and parted my hair in the middle, like I always wear it. I strolled on to the shed where passengers wait for the interurban and in about six minutes a car came along. Just as I knew it would, because I've been catching the interurban at that stop off and on for six months and I know the schedule." "So you've been planning the haul that long, eh?" Strawn growled. "No. This was a jumped-up affair. But I've got a girl friend that lives not a million miles from the Berkeley house. I take her home in a taxi, but I hop the interurban back to town." "What's her name?" "I'm not telling that," Conway retorted, and meant it. "But the conductor and motorman who were on last night have seen me often enough the last six months to feel pretty well acquainted. Friday night, on the 10:22, there was only a handful of passengers and I stood up front, talking to the old boy who runs the car. Motorman No. 65," he supplied obligingly. "Got it all down pat, haven't you?" Strawn condemned sourly. "Yes," Conway agreed. "He told me Friday night he had a fallen arch that was hurting like the devil and he'd be glad to pull into Hamilton and turn the car over to the motorman that was to relieve him at 10:44. The old boy usually goes off duty at 11:56, but he'd arranged for relief an hour ahead of schedule Friday night, because of his swollen foot." "Check it, Payne!" Strawn flung over his shoulder at the detective loitering in the window. "Well, what's the rest of your yarn?" he snarled at the prisoner and Dundee felt a surge of genuine sympathy toward his chief, who had counted so heavily upon "Johnson" to solve the murder. "I left the interurban at the Stuart House corner at 10:42," Conway went on calmly. "I asked for my key and chatted a while with the night clerk." "Get hold of the night clerk of the Stuart House," Strawn wearily ordered Detective Burns, who was also listening in on the confession. "The night clerk looked at the clock and asked me if my girl and I had a row, since it was so early." Conway went on cheerfully. "Well, I went up to my room and stayed there till Saturday morning. I carried the jewelry in my pockets while I made my rounds of the shops Saturday, but this morning I stowed it away in my sample case, because I was afraid some of it might drop out of my pockets on the golf course."

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

Illustration of a man and a woman in a room. The man is sitting at a desk, looking at a woman who is standing and looking at him. The text below the illustration says 'We've decided to train him for the radio instead of the stage.'

I was planning to call on the trade as usual all day Monday, then to leave Monday night for Chicago, per schedule. I aimed to get rid of the stuff there, through a fence who's been bothering me to go back to the old racket. "Why didn't you get rid of the shirt and necktie?" Dundee asked. "Just try to think up some way of getting rid of an incriminating bundle and see if you wouldn't have done what I did," Conway retorted reasonably. "I thought of a dozen ways, each more dangerous than the last, and finally I just left 'em around, as if they didn't mean a thing in my young life." "Good psychology, which didn't happen to work this time," Dundee sympathized. "The chambermaid brought them in this morning." "You can't crack a safe without taking a chance," Conway shrugged. "But if I'd tried to sneak out and chuck 'em in an ash can, the chance would have been 10 times bigger and as it turns out later, if I'd left the hotel I wouldn't have had an airtight alibi on this murder business. I didn't even know a murder had been committed out there until I saw an extra Saturday morning and at that time you didn't know there'd been a burglary, so we were quits!" "And when you did learn of the murder?" Dundee prodded. "God, I nearly lost my head!" Conway admitted, with a shudder. "But I knew I had an alibi if worst came to worst and Hubert Cartwright was connected with Harvey Johnson, so I kept right on with my program of setting natural and taking orders for silk stockings." "You say this Berkeley job was a jumped-up affair," Strawn began sourly, after a long minute of silence. "What's the yarn?" "Friday morning nothing was further from my mind than to try the old racket again," the prisoner answered earnestly. "But when I was showing my line to a buyer in a shop on Grand Avenue I heard Mrs. Berkeley talking to Mrs. Lambert. Shooting off her mouth to impress people, I guess, I heard her say, "Dear Mrs. Lambert! Don't let me forget to go to the safe deposit vault for my jewels and right after we've had a bite of lunch, you must dash over to the employment bureau and try to get a valet for dear Mr. Crosby." Even Strawn grinned appreciatively at the excellent imitation of Mrs. Berkeley's gushing speech and manner. "Well, I needed sudden money was intensely occupied with vital matters.

At the end of the hour every detail of Harold Conway's alibi had been checked and verified. The rest of the couple joined with the clerk and with the interurban man in elineating the thing that promptly volunteered the information that he had left No. Fairview Road at five minutes past ten.

And Doris Matthews was alive at that time.

Miss Brede, the stenographer, preparing a statement for Commissioner, Dundee drew Captain Strawn aside and asked in a low voice:

"What next, chief?"

"I'll keep out of sight of the bridge friends till you get here," she promised.

"Can you spare me Payne and a car?" Dundee asked his chief. "We'll need him later anyway and he might as well be on hand. Thanks!"

Detective Payne liked and admired Detective Dundee, but on the ride out to Hillcrest he found his young associate very poor company.

"Park here, Payne," Dundee ordered, as they slowed down outside the gates of the estate. "Stop anybody that tries to leave the grounds."

Who the devil could be cleaning clothes on a Sunday afternoon?

But before he tore down to the basement, from whose open window the fumes were pouring, Dundee was sure he knew the answer.

Cattle Supplies Insufficient Friday To Test Values Around Market Circuit

KANSAS CITY, April 18. (U. S. D. A.)—Cattle supplies around the 1-market circuit were insufficient to make a test of market conditions today. Shippers in Chicago competed for the few of good choice, strong weight steers offered were strong to higher with 14,000 head for head of 1,194 lb. weights. Trade this week has been marked by weak to unevenly lower prices on most all killing classes with heavy steers and low grade cows the only offering to find a dependable outlet. Especially sharp declines were in force on light steers and yearlings. Receipts 7,500, or 1,000 less than a week ago and 4,000 short of the corresponding day last year. The hog top of 10.80 was realized at Chicago and St. Louis. Offerings 28,300 against 26,402 last Friday, and 72,224 the same day a year ago. Arrivals of sheep 38,180, a decrease of 11,000 from a week ago and 15,500 less than a year ago. Fat lambs were in demand. Firm to 25c higher prices was the most advance shown at Chicago. But desirable brought 9.25 @ 9.50 with the top at 9.75.

He used statistics to show that 130 counties comprising West Texas are paying an average of 60 per cent of the oil tax, he said. "Tariffs are placed on many articles of import by the government, of which West Texas is rich, remains on the free list. Every state of the union except ten or twelve have state equalization boards. Valuations in Texas range all the way from 15 to 90 per cent of the value of the property assessed. For this reason West Texas is paying her unjust share." Mr. Babinet urged that West Texas insist on a state board of equalization. Report on Resolutions Judge Horace Holley, Snyder, Judge Phillip Young, Lamesa, Tom Yonck, O'Donnell, and Simpson, of Fisher county, composing the resolutions committee, reported this morning. The body voted in favor of the law, on account of the failure on the part of many citizens to pay personal property taxes on automobiles, requiring that motor vehicle owners be required to present certificates showing payment of such personal property tax before license would be issued. In order to aid the county general fund, now overburdened because of legislation of recent years and growing expense of county government, a change was urged in the constitution setting the county tax at 25c on the $100 valuation, to read "not exceeding 25c on the $100 valuation."

This Man Says Improvement Has Been Wonderful

"Money Couldn't Buy The Good Orgatone Did Me," Says Lubbock Farmer "I have not only gained in health and strength since taking Orgatone, but my recovery has been remarkable," said J. W. Claunch, of Rural route 5, Lubbock, Texas. "For eight long years I have suffered with my stomach and digestive troubles. My stomach was always full of gas and I was badly bloated and it was hard for me to breathe at times on account of the gas pressure. I thought I had heart trouble. I was also bothered with kidney trouble and severe pains in my back and shoulders. And at times I would have hard lumps in my stomach until I would hardly die. "Sometimes I would have severe spells of indigestion and would be in misery for hours and would cramp until I could hardly stand it. I got to where I could only eat light foods and even then it hurt at times. I tried all kinds of medicine but nothing seemed to do me any good. Orgatone was recommended to me and I decided to give it a try. My improvement has been wonderful. I feel fine every day and eat anything I want without the least trouble afterwards. The gas and bloating spells have left me and the hard lumps have quite formed in my stomach and I haven't had the cramps since taking Orgatone. I sleep fine every night and get up every morning feeling fine. Money couldn't buy the good Orgatone did me and I know any one who was suffering as I was will be benefited by it." Genuine Orgatone may be bought in Lubbock at the Bowen Drug Store.—ADP

Remanded To Jail

KERRVILLE, April 18. (U. S. D. A.)—Ernest Young, charged jointly with Hether Edwards with slaying J. W. Bradshaw, was remanded to the Kendall county jail today when Judge L. C. Brucks overruled a plea to return him to the San Antonio state hospital. Young and Edwards were arrested after Bradshaw's mutilated body was recovered from the Guadalupe river near Waring last week. Attorneys for Young, who escaped from the hospital, had filed a habeas corpus writ, alleging the defendant, because he was insane, cannot be prosecuted for murder.

(Continued From Page 1) the delegates favorable to coming to Lubbock, however, the committee on time and place recommended Abilene and as the custom, the convention upheld the decision of the committee, Sheffield said. Even with the report of the committee, the Lubbock delegation attempted to secure the convention, J. D. Carroll and Dr. R. C. Campbell, both making short talks before the general convention before the vote, inviting the Baptists to Lubbock. Efforts Cited Members of the committee that attended the convention brought back a clipping from the Austin American that related of Lubbock efforts to secure the meeting from the floor. It read: "Texas Baptists proved why they are one of the most powerful religious denominations in the world Thursday afternoon, when, after the committee on time and place had announced the selection of Abilene for the 1931 meeting, they stood by their committee in the face of a determined move by Lubbock to take the convention to the West Texas Plains. "It was with fear and trembling that Dr. Andrews took the stand to announce the decision of the committee. He explained that the committee members agreed to hear representatives from Lubbock, Dallas, and Abilene each for 10 minutes. At the conclusion of these conferences, he explained a vote was taken which resulted in unanimous choice of Abilene. "As the Lubbock representative, Dr. R. C. Campbell, moved the substitute, it appeared as though an old-fashioned wrangling session was about to take place, but Bob Coleman saved the day when he said he believed he could sweep the convention with a proposal to take the next meeting to Dallas, which he wanted to stay with the committee's decision. "When the vote was taken, only a handful stood up, and Dr. Campbell then moved it be made unanimous for Abilene. Held Spot Light The Lubbock delegation held the spot light all during the convention, clippings from Austin papers show. Literature was distributed at each session and the 2,500 delegates were constantly reminded that Lubbock wanted the convention and that they would find here a live locality with a progressive and hospitable citizenship. Officials of the First Baptist church here declare that Lubbock should have an excellent chance to secure the convention for 1932. Those from Lubbock, who attended the convention included: Dr. R. C. Jim Young

(Continued From Page 1) "I am a farmer, myself, having every dollar invested in farm lands. I come to you to make a good old-time Democratic speech." He stated Texans had not, in the past 19 or 23 years, been accustomed to hearing questions confronting them discussed by candidates for state offices. "Religious, prohibition and Ku Klux Klan propaganda, personal abuse and other things have been talked, but few governmental problems." Lifetime Prohibitionist A lifetime prohibitionist, in preference and example, he claimed the prohibition question a closed one. He appealed to party loyalty by Democrats, claiming the democratic party stands for the average man, decentralized government and places the individual above the dollar, "while the republican party stands for the dollar against the individual, for monopolistic classes and a centralized government." He said "it is to the democratic party that I pledge my allegiance. I believe in the principles of this party and in an organized democracy." "I believe in enforcing statutory laws guaranteeing our right to life, liberty, property and the pursuit of happiness. We must enforce law if these be protected." He urged electing officials who believe in law and order. False Policies Blamed False government and false policies are responsible of the state's neglect of its educational institutions, he said. "I believe in keeping and in protecting the state's landed interests," he declared. "We have been experiencing mismanaged government. "I favor the state keeping its prison farms and properties as they now are. It's funny they discovered down at Austin that we have had a prison problem. When we have had prisoners and criminals all these many years. He intimated state prison lands near Houston were both rich in soils and minerals and that this was reason why certain folks wanted the state to sell them, in order to have the state buy more lands near Austin. He would operate prisons and prison farms for the benefit of those institutions and for creating things to sustain other state institutions, particularly electrolytic ones. Would Retain Land "If elected," he stated, "I would never sell any state lands. The state is noted as both a poor stiler and a poor buyer. I am against either buying or selling, but for keeping what we have and using what we have." "The state has been ruled by professional politicians for the past 15 years. I say do away with them and with factionalism." And he pledged a business administration "that Texas may be what Texas should be." Mr. Young leaves early this morning for Plainview, where he speaks at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Monday he will speak at Abilene, Tuesday at Sweetwater, Dallinger on

"GOOD TO TAKE IN THE SPRING"

Black-Draught Is A Cleansing Medicine That Should Help You As It Did This Lady.

Oklahoma City, Okla. "The first of the week I was feeling bad, was dizzy and felt bilious," writes Mrs. L. P. Moyer, of 408 North Lee Street, this city.

"I took a dose of Theodor's Black-Draught every night for three nights, and now I am feeling fine.

"I can always tell when one of these attacks is coming on. I can't see good and everything dances in front of me. As soon as I begin to feel like this I take Black-Draught, for it always helps me. All this trouble seems to come from constipation.

"My father had used Black-Draught in his home and often told me I ought to try it, but up until two years ago I had not. Then I began taking it for constipation and indigestion. I found it to be the best home medicine I had ever used. I take it as often as I need anything for constipation. I feel fresh and have more pep after I have taken a course of Black-Draught. It is a good medicine to take in the spring of the year."

Costs only 1 cent a dose.
