COMING SUNDAY

A World on Wheels

Increased housing costs have forced many Midlanders to take flight to suburbs on wheels where streets are lined row upon row with mobile homes. Read about the rising demands for manufactured housing in Sunday's Lifestyle section.

Take It From the Top

Congress is on the threshold of a New Beginning, says Tom Loeffler from the 21st District. Loeffler, whose district has been temporarily drawn to grab Midland in the re-districting shuffle, speaks on that new political era in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Open and Shut Case

Gov. Bill Clements vetoed a bill the Legislature felt was necessary to keep the state's open meetingslaw from becoming a paper tiger. Increasingly, governmental bodies find loopholes in the act. Read about it Sunday in The Reporter-Telegram.

High court upholds Carter's hostage deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court unanimously upheld Thursday the financial deal that freed the 52 American hostages from Iran, clearing the way for the U.S. release of frozen Iranian assets by July 19.

The high court ruled that then-President Carter acted within his powers by agreeing to turn over billions of dollars in Iranian assets, and to yield to an international tribunal the claims waged in U.S. courts against those assets.

Working with unusual dispatch, the court issued its ruling just eight days after hearing oral arguments.

The hostages were released from Iran last Jan. 20, after more than 14 months in captivity.

Thursday's ruling clears the way for the United States to meet a July 19 deadline set out in the accord. That deadline calls for the transfer overseas of about $2.3 billion in Iranian assets now held by U.S. banks.

Under the agreement, $1 billion of the assets is to go to the jurisdiction of the tribunal for claims settlements.

In New York, Eric Lieberman, the attorney who represented the Central Bank of Iran before the Supreme Court, declared "Of course, we're pleased. I can't say we're surprised."

The Supreme Court appeared to leave some opening for those who feel their claims against Iran aren't handled fairly within terms of the accord. It said that at some future point, such claimants may be able to seek relief in the U.S. Court of Claims.

The Justice Department had said there could be "potentially serious diplomatic and financial consequences" if the court blocked the July 19 transfer.

The decision was among several announced on the last day of the court's 1980-81 term. In other major cases, it ruled:

— That states rich in natural resources can impose major taxes on out-of-state sales. Specifically, the court upheld, on a 6-3 vote, Montana's 30 percent severance tax on the sale of coal mined in that state.

— Cleared the way for the nation's cities to ban, if they desire, all "commercial" billboard advertising. The court, however, struck down as unconstitutional a billboard ban imposed in 1972 by San Diego, because it included prohibitions against "non-commercial" advertising such as political or personal messages.

The court declined, meanwhile, an appeal from former Budget Director Bert Lance to halt a Federal Election Commission investigation into how he financed his unsuccessful 1974 campaign for governor in Georgia.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, writing the court's opinion in the hostage case, reviewed a number of congressional acts in concluding that Congress had in effect authorized the extraordinary actions Carter took.

"In light of the fact that Congress may be considered to have consented to the president's action in suspending claims, we cannot say that action exceeded the president's powers," Rehnquist wrote.

The transfer of the assets is one of a number of aspects of the agreement Carter signed last Jan. 19, in the last hours of his presidency.

The agreement was supported by President Reagan, but it was challenged by a number of U.S. companies with claims against the Iranian assets.

Bank deposits still climbing

Midland bank deposits continued their upward climb in the total amounts of deposits and loans for the second quarter of 1981.

Total deposits from the six Midland banks — First National, Midland National, Commercial, Western State, Metro and Texas National — totaled $1.63 billion, up 30 percent from last year's second quarter total of $1.14 billion.

Compared to the first quarter of this year, deposits rose 9 percent from $1.5 billion.

Total loans also have climbed during the last year. City banks reported almost $1.3 billion this quarter, up 39 percent from the same quarter a year ago which saw $772.8 million in loans.

Loan totals from the first quarter were recorded at $1.09 million, 14 percent lower than the sum for this quarter.

Midland's largest bank, The First National Bank, tallied a 33 percent increase to an all-time high of $1 billion in total deposits from last year's figure of $744.5 million. Compared to the first quarter, total deposits rose 10 percent from $989 million.

First National's amount of loans also increased. This quarter's total of $916 million was 40 percent higher than last year's sum of $549.8 million and 13 percent higher than first quarter's $796.9 million.

Midland National Bank reported total deposits for this quarter of $359.5 million. This figure is 25 percent higher than last year's $269.6 million. It is also 7 percent higher than the sum of $335 million reported for the first quarter of this year.

Total discounts and loans for this quarter were reported at $238.58 million, a 35 percent increase from last year's sum of $154 million. It was also 25 percent higher than first quarter's figure of $197.8 million.

Commercial Bank's total deposits of $105.9 million were higher by 29 percent than last year's figure of $75.8 million. However, there was a 1 percent drop when compared with the first quarter's $106.6 million in deposits.

Total loans and discounts climbed at Commercial. This quarter's total amount of $78.6 million is 36 percent higher than last year's $50 million and 6 percent higher than first quarter's $74 million.

Total deposits at Western State Bank went from last year's $21.4 million to this quarter's $26 million, a jump of 19 percent. Compared to first quarter, the bank showed an increase of 6 percent from $24.7 million.

Western State also showed an increase in total loans and discounts. This quarter's total of $15 million was 31 percent higher than last year's total of $10.6 million and 16 percent higher than first quarter's $12.9 million.

Metro Bank continued to show marked growth. Its total amount of deposits were slightly over $16 million, a leap of 59 percent over last year's $6.7 million. Compared to first quarter's total of $14.5 million, Metro Bank increased its total deposits by 11 percent.

Loans and discounts skyrocketed 68 percent from last year's $4.46 million to this quarter's $13.7. Furthermore, Metro's total amount of loans compared to first quarter jumped 22 percent from $10.6 million.

Texas National Bank's total deposits for the quarter were $24.9 million, comparing favorably by 13 percent to last year's $21.75 million. However, the total was a 21 percent drop from the first quarter's $31.15 million.

Loans and discounts at Texas National rose 57 percent to $5.8 million from last year's $3.3 million and 11 percent from first quarter's $5 million.

Scarpa sad to leave 'suffering' police force

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Politics and police work don't make good bedfellows.

Political interference in the day-to-day operations of the Odessa police department is at the heart of the massive morale problem its officers are suffering, according to George Scarpa, former assistant chief of police of the once widely-acclaimed force.

And it's the reason Scarpa has resigned for a job in the private sector after a lifelong career in law enforcement, with 11 years on the Odessa police department alone — six of them as second in command under former Chief of Police Jack Tomlin, who was fired last March after more than 30 years on the force.

"I'm leaving sadly," said Scarpa. "It's sad to leave after all those years. The reason is that I wasn't allowed to adequately do my job. More than 80 percent of the interference with the department is political in nature."

THAT INTERFERENCE, he said, ranges from manpower deployment being dictated by City Hall to certain city officials meddling in internal investigations the department undertakes in checking alleged improprieties on the part of its officers.

Last fall, for instance, Scarpa says news stories about the turmoil and discontent in the department were highly damaging to the force, and a particular officer was being investigated for giving reporters access to confidential files.

"Political pressure was used to thwart the investigation," said Scarpa. "I don't know why, but I do know the news stories embarrassed Tomlin and were used as a tool to oust him.

"Jack was a strong chief with a lot of public support. He always fought for his people. The department had a hell of a good reputation nationwide in the early 1970s. Now it's held up to ridicule."

Back in the late 1970s, Tomlin was taking issue with city officials over the need for a new police station: The city advocated converting the old phone company building next to the station, while Tomlin was publicly urging that a new station be built.

"Their (city officials') attitude seems to be, if you've got an opinion, keep it to yourself. I start popping off about the Crime Prevention Unit (CPU), and I wind up on their list."

IN WHAT OFFICIALS said was an economy move, the city dismantled

Begin, Peres fighting for control as Israel awaits official vote count

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin and opposition leader Shimon Peres courted Israel's religious parties Thursday in their rival efforts to head the new government.

The 67-year-old prime minister met with leaders of the ultra-orthodox Aguda Israel Party, while Peres conferred with Interior Minister Yosef Burg, head of the National Religious Party.

New reports placed the unofficial tally of votes from Tuesday's election at 607,916 for Peres' Labor Party against 607,511 for Begin's Likud bloc, a difference of just 405 votes. This would give each 49 seats in the 120-member parliament, the Knesset.

The official vote tally will be published next Tuesday.

Another report put the Labor Party ahead by 4,000 votes, and Israel Television added to the uncertainty of the close race by reporting that two splinter factions thought to have won only one seat each could end up with two apiece and give the Labor Party a boost in its attempt to pull the leadership away from Begin.

Burg said he told Peres he favored a "national unity government" in which Likud and Labor would put aside their bitter differences and serve together under Begin.

Peres disagreed. "A national unity government can lead to a lack of national decisiveness," he said.

Midland's growing pains can't dim glowing future

EDITOR'S NOTE: From the Wall Street Journal to the nation's leading business magazines to the wire services, Midland's phenomenal growth is attracting attention. The following incorporates interviews with several Midlanders.

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — If there ever was a boomtown, this is it.

Spurred by a dramatic upsurge in the price of crude oil, the city skyline is sprouting upward like an untended patch of weeds. Midland's office space will have doubled by the end of next year and will increase another 43 percent by 1984.

"And it's not any Mickey Mouse stuff either," said Grady Bennett, a 30-year employee of Mobil Oil Corp. "This is long-term, permanent construction that they're doing." Bennett, whose father retired after 45 years with Mobil, shakes his head in wonder at what is happening here on the flat, dusty plains of oil-rich West Texas.

The two biggest banks in town will start work on new high-rise office buildings before the year is out. First National's twin towers of 40 stories each will lead the way for more than two million square feet of new high-rise office space.

Southwestern Bell representatives have apologized to the City Council because installation of telephone service has run as much as three weeks behind.

All rental property in Midland is completely occupied. Commercial campgrounds are filled to capacity. Most motels hang "No Vacancy" signs and some individuals have pitched pup tents on vacant lots, just to have someplace to sleep.

The city's work force has exceeded 50,000 for the first time ever, with 50,090 Midlanders holding down jobs in May. But even though more people are at work than ever before, unemployment stays right at 4 percent because "Yankees" keep arriving looking for work.

So, total population spirals upward. Midland, like most other Texas cities, believes it was short-counted in the 1980 census and depends on the Texas Employment Commission for population estimates. TEC thinks Midland's 1980 population was 82,600 — 26 percent higher than in 1970 — and believes it is even larger today. The Census Bureau said Midland's population in 1980 was 70,525.

In fact, every statistical category — airline boardings, postal receipts, tax revenue, bank deposits, utility connections, you name it — points to a dramatic boost in the city's economic health.

And all this good news springs from one source. It's the same source that produced Midland's first growth spurt in 1924 and its second in 1953 — oil.

The oil has always been here. Midland is in the middle of a geologic formation known as the Permian Basin. It was once an inland ocean where dinosaurs and prehistoric plant life flourished in great numbers, then decomposed to become crude oil.

The Permian Basin covers about 100,000 square miles of West Texas and eastern New Mexico. It has provided at least 18 percent of all domestic U.S. oil production every year since 1955.

But the value of that oil has fluctuated wildly. When wildcatters first,

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Partly cloudy with scattered afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms through Saturday. Continued warm afternoons. Lows Friday night mostly in the 60s except low 70s Big Bend valleys. Highs Friday and Saturday mostly in the 90s except near 104 Big Bend.

North Texas: Partly cloudy and warm with widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms Friday through Saturday. Lows Friday night 71 to 76. Highs Friday and Saturday 92 to 99.

South Texas: Partly cloudy and warm Friday through Saturday. Scattered thundershowers east and central Friday and Saturday. Lows Friday night mostly in the 70s. Highs Friday and Saturday upper 80s to mid 90s.

Upper Coast: Wind southeast near 10 knots Friday and Friday night. Seas 2 To 4 feet and Friday. Wind and seas higher in scattered showers and thunderstorms.

Despite slim chance in forecast, rain shouldn't dampen weekend

For the first time in a while, there's rain in the forecast. But the 20 percent forecast for today and 30 percent for tonight shouldn't mar the July Fourth holiday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, winds should blow at 10-15 mph today from the south and southeast. The temperature will be in the mid-90s today, with the low in the mid-60s tonight.

High on Thursday was 99, not far off the record temperature of 104 degrees set on that date in 1964. Overnight low was 66 degrees, a tad warmer than the record low of 61 set in 1942.

Thunderstorms roamed from Beaumont to Wichita Falls and some rain fell in the mountains of West Texas Thursday afternoon, but most of the state experienced warm temperatures under partly sunny skies.

Fish kill probed

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Scientists went to sea and their laboratories Thursday to find what is killing hundreds of redfish along 140 miles of South Texas coast from Port Aransas to Port Isabel.

Marine biologists called the fish kill unusual because its only victims appear to be fully grown redfish between 36 to 45 inches long and weighing 30 pounds. The dead fish started washing ashore Tuesday.

DEATHS

Streun infant

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry D. Streun of 1706 Camp St. died at birth Tuesday in a Midland hospital.

Graveside services were Wednesday in Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Gayle Reeves officiating. Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Other survivors include the grandparents, Mrs. Russell Streun, Glen Stalling and Jean Murray, all of Midland.

Iola Weckter

BELLAIRE — Mrs. Norman (Iola) Weckter, 79, of Bellaire, sister-in-law of Mrs. August Wenck of Midland, died Thursday in a nursing home here after a lengthy illness.

Services are pending at Earthman Funeral Home in Bellaire.

Problems can't dim city's future

found oil in the Permian Basin, in the 1920s, towns literally sprang up overnight and Midland became headquarters for many of the street-corner millionaires buying and selling oil leases as though they were raffle tickets.

The Great Depression ended that boom. Texas oilfields did not recover until after World War II, when an industrialized world began burning oil and natural gas in tremendous amounts.

So it was in the early 1950s when Midland began a strong recovery from the first oil bust. The number of drilling rigs in operation soon hit 500 in the Texas part of the Permian Basin.

Independent producers and major oil companies needed someplace from which to operate. Midland — sitting on a major highway, bisected by a main railroad line and dotted with office buildings from the first oil strikes — was the logical choice.

Things were rosy until about 1965, when huge amounts of easily accessible oil were found in the Middle East. That oil became much cheaper than crude pumped in the United States and, as a result, the domestic oil industry slumped again.

"In 1967, this was not a good place to be," said Grant Billingsley of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "You can still see some empty lots on Main Street where there used to be houses. The people packed up and moved away and left them. There wasn't any work here.

"So the city offered those houses for sale at ridiculously low prices, with the provision that they be moved out of town, 50 miles or something, so we wouldn't be reminded of the blight."

As grim as that story is, a tale from the 1930s — which the locals swear is true — tops it. The downtown Shell Building was so bereft of tenants during the depression that its owner, desperate for income, rented it out for storing hay.

Within the oil industry, the best current guess is that the Permian Basin's oil will be completely played out in another 25 to 30 years. What guarantee is there that the sparkling new office buildings of 1982 will not be the expensive hay barns of 2012?

Put simply, the answer is: oil. Prices for domestic crude have climbed steadily since the 1973 Arab oil embargo, and relaxation of government controls has pumped prices even higher.

"It's strictly a matter of supply and demand," said Winston Barclay, division manager for the local electric utility and a Midland resident since 1955.

He and Billingsley believe Midland must use its current oil-fueled growth as the foundation for a deliberate, well-planned broadening of the city's economic base.

Right now, oil and natural gas provide 70 percent of the wealth available to Midland and its sister city of Odessa, some 20 miles to the west. The goal is to reduce that percentage considerably by the time the oil and gas are gone.

But first, Billingsley said, Midland and Odessa have to get big.

"When you're a town of 50,000, or 80,000, you don't get much play," he said. "Hopefully new technologies will keep the oil industfy strong and it can remain a base for this area and continue to bring more people in here."

But until that happens, until the Midland-Odessa region — which calls itself the "Petroplex" — becomes a true metropolitan area, Barclay remains skeptical about convincing non-oil businesses to relocate to the Permian Basin.

"These communities do a lot of talking about (economic) diversification, but the truth is something else. What do they have to sell? How can they convince a company to come here?

"I think they (manufacturers) are a little scared of this Permian Basin area," he said. "They're not sure about the work force, for one thing. They ask, 'Who can I hire,' 'Where can I put my plant,' and so on. It's a tough game — for every company ready to move there are 50 to 100 communities after them."

To further cloud the issue, both Barclay and Billingsley admit the oil production so dominates local attention that industrial expansion is on a back burner.

"We know it (diversification) is good but right now, it's on a little bit of a hold," Barclay said.

"Short term — 18 months to two years — we don't need to sell any more diversification," Billingsley concurred. "We're in a terrific boom. We need to be able to handle what we've got. But as we cope with this tremendous growth and maintain our quality of life, then we'll become more attractive to manufacturers simply because of our size.

"There seems to be a critical number — a critical mass — that a city has to have to provide the diversity you need to support businesses. I don't know that we're there yet."

And city leaders are convinced the only way to get there is by pumping more oil.

Scarpa bows out on politics

the popular CPU last fall — despite highly vocal protests from officers and the public alike.

"When I started criticizing it (disbanding the CPU), the mayor (Bob Bryant) told me if I didn't like it I could quit," said Scarpa.

Among the officers who've been a part of the high turnover rate at the police department is Houston Seabolt, a detective with eight years' tenure on the force.

Seabolt resigned in tears before an open meeting of the City Council early last winter, then successfully ran for a seat on the council in the spring elections.

But, the police force isn't the only city department to undergo personnel problems.

In the past three or four years Odessa has lost a city manager, public works director, purchasing agent, city attorney, personnel director, traffic engineer, finance director, tax assessor-collector, two data processing managers and an assistant city manager.

"The tone, attitude and the way things are run at City Hall changed," said Scarpa, "and those people left. It's like hiring a carpenter to build a house and then telling him you want a nail here and a board there. You might as well build it yourself.

"In my case, when you can't grow as an individual or manage effectively, the only thing to do is go where you can do things. You're better off getting out."

ONE OF SCARPA'S most discouraging episodes, he said, came on the heels of his criticism of the city's decision on the CPU:

"I was told my presence wasn't wanted at the budget hearings. These were open hearings with the press and public invited.

"For an administrator not to be allowed to attend budget hearings involving his own department directly prevents his being able to oversee an important part of the organization's administrative process."

Tomlin also has made public statements regarding undue political involvement in police affairs. And both men say they were never told specifically why they were getting the cold shoulder from City Hall.

"All I know," said Scarpa, "is that it communicated down through the ranks and had an adverse effect on how (our) leadership was perceived by the officers. It lowered morale even more. It also filtered into the streets and made their job harder, compounding the problem."

Since Tomlin's dismissal four months ago, the department has been run by Chester Nolen, an assistant city manager with little background in police administration. Commenting on the process of hiring a new chief and what it will take to get the department back in shape, Scarpa said:

"Whoever the new chief is, he'll have to be left alone to run the department as he sees fit. He'll need to have a strong personality and he can't be slapped down for disagreeing with City Hall.

"Even then, it'll take five years to put the force back on its feet. But it seems apparent they don't want a strong chief. For whatever reasons, they want one they can control. They'll deny it, but just look at the history of the police department and other departments in the city.

"The people who stood up for what they thought was right are gone now. I'll be accused of sour grapes, but I'm not bitter. I told them when Jack left that I wouldn't be a candidate for the chief's job. I'd like to see the department upgraded, is all."

Asked to comment on Scarpa's allegations, Odessa City Manager Kerry Sweatt said:

"I'm sorry when any employee who leaves takes it as an opportunity to make comments about the organization. But he's no longer with the organization and I wish him well in his new job."

Screams were nothing new; Neighbors listen as four killed

BY LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four people killed in a house where screams were so commonplace that neighbors ceased to notice were beaten in a struggle that left "blood all over the floor," the coroner said Thursday.

Several neighbors said they had heard screams, moans and cries of "Please don't kill me!" in the early-morning hours Wednesday, but had paid no attention.

A 25-year-old woman who survived the attack lay alone in the house for 12 hours before some neighbors became curious enough to call for help.

She was in the intensive care unit at Cedars Sinai Hospital in critical condition Thursday, her head and neck torn and bruised and the tip of one finger cut away in what hospital spokesman Larry Baum called "a classic defense wound."

The woman was conscious and spoke to detectives in afternoon, a spokesman said.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said one of the dead women had been charged earlier with posession of illegal drugs, including heroin and cocaine.

Twenty-nine hours after the slayings, the coroner's department began to remove the bodies of two men and two women from the three-story stucco house nestled against the edge of trendy Laurel Canyon, haven for the well-to-do but not-quite-orthodox. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. owns a house a few blocks away.

Deputy Coroner Richard Wilson said the bodies were left in the house so long because, like the 1969 Sharon Tate murders which took place about four miles away, there was so much to investigate at the scene.

Coroner Thomas Noguchi said autopsies would be performed on the victims perhaps through the weekend to find out "exactly what caused the deaths and what weapon might be involved."

He said molds or casts would be taken of the wounds in an attempt to match them with a weapon.

Noguchi declined to comment on speculation that illicit drugs may have been found in the house, and also refused to say whether the victims were clothed or nude, whether they were bound and whether evidence indicated the struggle took place among the victims themselves or if there was an outsider who fled.

Noguchi indicated a sharp instrument was not the likely murder weapon, but refused to elaborate. He also said there were no g7nshot wounds. Police said initial reports that an ax was used were wrong.

Police Lt. Ron Lewis said, "On the cause of death, we're not certain yet. On injuries and IDs we're not certain yet."

But District Attorney spokesman Al Albergate said police had confirmed to him that the lessee of the house, Joy Miller, 46, was one of those killed. He said she and two other people, who are still alive, were scheduled for a pretrial hearing July 20 on felony drug possession charges.

He also said police told him that one of the dead men was named Bill Deveral, 53.

Albergate said Ms. Miller was accused of possessing cocaine and heroin, and possessing the sedative methaqualone for sale. The two other people charged in the case also were charged with receiving stolen property.

Ms. Miller was not charged in connection with the stolen property, Albergate said, but a police report said "stolen fur coats and stolen jewelry" were confiscated from her house, along with drugs.

Investigators carried away four medium-size boxes of evidence Thursday morning and seemed intent on gathering more. A metal kitchen stool too large for a box was also carried out of the house, at least one leg smeared with blood.

One woman who lived across the street and heard the screams early Wednesday, said "If it had been any other house, we would have taken notice." Neighbors ignored those cries because "you hear that kind of thing coming from that house all the time," said the woman, who like the other neighbors asked not to be identified.

Another neighbor said she was not alarmed by the screams. "Police have been there before because of the violence."

But when a neighbor not8ced the wrought iron gate to an adjoining property was open, she went over to the house at 3:30 p.m. and heard someone saying "Help me."

She and several neighbors entered the house and found the first of the four bodies on the living room floor.

The owner of the house, Rachel Rybicki of Ojai, said she had leased it in December 1979, to Ms. Miller, ex-wife of a Beverly Hills attorney.

Burglary, auto fire reported

In light criminal activity reported to police Friday, an employee of Disco Sounds at Lamesa Road and Scharbauer Drive said the front door glass had been kicked in and $1,550 worth of stereo equipment was missing.

City firemen reported heavy damage to a 1974 Ford that caught fire about 3:30 p.m. Friday at 4001 Tanner. The car's owner is Linda Farr. Cause of the blaze was listed as a leaking gas tank.

New York, Chicago commuters to pay more

By The Associated Press

As transportation officials in Chicago and New York weighed raising fares for the nation's two largest transit systems, travelers in both cities grumbled or resigned themselves to shelling out more for subway, bus and rail service.

"Now it's going to be the same old ride for a larger fare," said Jeffrey Ketterer, a New York City subway rider. "I really wouldn't mind paying $2 if conditions were improved."

Ketterer and other commuters would pay 15 cents more for bus and subway rides if the Metropolitan Transportation Authority approves a 75-cent fare today. A second hike, to $1 a ride, could go into effect July 17 unless state legislators appropriate more money to meet a projected MTA deficit of $300 million for the current fiscal year, which began today.

FARES ON the Long Island Rail Road and several Conrail lines operated on MTA contracts are expected to rise 25 percent now and 25 percent on July 17 if lawmakers fail to come up with more money.

The Chicago Transit Authority, meanwhile, voted Wednesday to raise the basic fare for its 750,000 daily bus and subway riders from 80 cents to 90 cents. The increase will take effect if approved by the Regional Transportation Authority, which oversees and subsidizes transit in the six-county Chicago area.

Fare increases of 75 percent hit Milwaukee Road rail commuters Wednesday in Chicago's northern suburbs, raising the cost of a typical monthly ticket to $106.50 from $60.75.

"That's entirely too much," said commuter Viola Thomas. "What can I do? I just make enough (at work) to pay expenses and put a few nickels in the bank."

Some Milwaukee Road straphangers dodged the fare boost Wednesday by riding another commuter railroad, the Chicago & North Western. But that solution may be short-lived because the RTA also is considering a 50-percent fare increase for that line.

IN RECENT weeks, the RTA rejected fare hikes, but that was before the Legislature failed to come up with financial aid for the agency, now $95 million in debt. Chicago-area Democratic lawmakers on Tuesday rejected Gov. James Thompson's latest proposal on grounds that it didn't provide enough money.

The RTA ran out of money in late May and managed to stave off a systemwide shutdown in June only by distributing and advance payment of sales tax funds to penniless commuter lines. Four suburban bus lines shut down in May and early June after their subsidies stopped.

The next infusion of tax money, about $20 million, will not come until mid-July.

Meanwhile, in Atlanta, transit officials blamed rising fuel and labor costs as they raised the cost of bus and rail fares by a dime to 60 cents on Wednesday. The Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority said the fares could go higher, depending on the outcome of negotiations with the union representing the system's drivers.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey met with Democratic and Republican state legislators without success Wednesday on appropriating more money for the MTA. Upstate Republicans, who are unwilling to burden their constituents with paying for mass transit deficits in New York City, hold the balance of power in the state Senate.

ALTHOUGH Carey signed into law a long-range finance plan providing $5.4 billion for statewide public transportation improvement, the funds included only $100 million for the MTA, a third of what is needed.

The MTA, which handles 4.4 million daily fares, allowed commuters to purchase only two 60-cent tokens on Wednesday, fearing that tokens would be hoarded by the public when the boost in fares is announced.

"The worst thing about the fare increase is that you pay more for less," said Jeffrey Nichols, a Long Island commuter.

Hot dogs choke more children

Dear Dr. Solomon: I used to hear other mothers complain about all the things their children would put into their mouths, but I really didn't appreciate what they meant until I had a child of my own. Short of nailing everything down so that an inquisitive youngster can't handle it, are there any safety measures or guidelines that would help a parent keep a child out of danger from choking? — Cleo

Dear Cleo: The characteristics of an object most likely to cause death by choking are smallness, roundness, and pliability. And, according to researchers from the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, this best describes a hot dog.

Dr. Susan Baker, an associate professor of health services administration at the school, says that hot dogs were responsible for six of the 20 deaths due to choking that were investigated. Two of the six children were seven and 11 months of age, while the others averaged two to three years. Other food items that resulted in death included a gumdrop, a cashew nut, and candy, among others.

Nonfood items that were responsible for death included a pacifier, a rattle, wooden balls from toys, screws, and balloons.

Parents can best assure their children's safety by keeping in mind the three critical variables for an object to cause death by choking — and making certain to keep such objects out of the reach of their children.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had to wait several days before writing to you because I was too upset to write any sooner. I recently had occasion to visit a close relative in an intensive care unit, and I was shocked by the atmosphere. The room was brightly lit and noisy and, in my opinion, not a good place for a healthy person, let alone someone who is critically ill. Is my experience the exception, or are all intensive care units the same? I certainly hope not. — Doris

Dear Doris: Your description of an intensive care unit is not unlike many I've seen. These units generally are brightly lit and noisy, the privacy is often lacking. In addition, some of the technology that must be kept available within these units can be frightening to both the patients and their visitors.

One element of the intensive care unit that you do not mention is the personnel. Skilled and caring nurses and doctors can do much to alleviate the harshness associated with many such units. Individual attention and explanations of the equipment and procedures can be reassuring to patients whose condition permits them to understand. In addition, those whose medical conditions permit may be given tranquilizers if they are anxious, or analgesis if they are in pain.

I am not suggesting that being in an intensive care unit can ever be all fun and games. But a considerate and compassionate staff can make up for an environment that may appear to a visitor to be quite harsh.

Fireworks will light up evening at Cubs Stadium

By DORIAN MARTIN
Staff Writer

Baseball, music and fireworks, courtesy of the Midland Cubs and the Kiwanis Club, will fill Cubs Stadium and the adjoining air space with color and excitement this evening.

The 1981 display marks the sixth year the club has offered the show. The program is being scheduled on July 3, instead of the traditional July 4, to provide a chance to advertise other Kiwanis Independence Day plans and as an alternative for a program on July 4 in case of rain.

This year's program will include "big bombs, lots of aerials, a grand finale, ground displays," said Ron Dill, a Kiwanis member. The exhibition is expected to rival the one that was presented during the Bicentennial.

The Kiwanis Club started planning the Independence Day exhibition earlier in the year. "You have to start out around February," explained Dill.

The group ordered and received their fireworks from Western Enterprises, an Oklahoma firm that specializes in putting on firework shows. "They also supplied fireworks for Six Flags" during its anniversary, remarked Dill.

When the explosives were received, they were stored in crates at Southwest Explosives Inc. and won't be brought out until tonight.

Another step in having a fireworks display is getting the fire department's approval. "You have to have the location approved," said Dill. "You have to have it in a facility where there's not much population (living in the surrounding area)."

The application is submitted to the state fire marshall along with complete plans for the program.

Furthermore, the shooter must be licensed in demolition by the fire department. These men are "usually ex-firemen or have been in the military," said Dill.

The shooter, who will also be supplied by Western Enterprises, will, according to Dill, "be in charge of the whole program and the sequence of firing the fireworks."

These are not just any bottle rockets. The explosives are measured by inches in diameter. "They start at 4 inches in diameter and go up to 14-20 inches in diameter," said Dill.

The gala will cost $3,500. "The price of the fireworks is split 50-50 between the Midland Cubs and the Midland Kiwanis," Dill explained.

The fireworks display is scheduled after tonight's Midland Cubs game against the El Paso Diablos.

Tickets for the evening's events are on sale at Cub Stadium. They are priced at $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Dill warned that Hogan Park Municipal Golf Course will not be available for people to watch the fireworks from.

The festivities will also feature a 45-minute program by "Origin," a Lee High School choral group. Their program will include "Celebration," "All the Gold in California," and other top-40 songs. Then the group, under the direction of Walter Wright, will lead the spectators in several patriotic songs.

Free programs will be distributed by the Kiwanis Club. The money from advertisements in these flyers will be used to finish construction on the Kiwanis Park located at Whitney Street and Haynes Avenue.

The celebration will continue into Saturday when the Kiwanis Club will sponsor a Kids Day on the Museum of the Southwest grounds. The program will include games as well as a mini-parade.

Concerts, parades planned

Concerts and parades will mark Midland's July Fourth.

The day starts with the 19th annual Sidewalk Parade, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, and concludes with an evening concert presented by the Midland Community-College Band.

The Sidewalk Parade, composed of costumed children, will begin at 10 a.m. at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

Registration for the parade begins at 9 a.m. in front of Lancaster House, 1705 W. Indiana Ave. Participants must be on a sidewalk vehicle, such as a tricycle, bicycle, wagon or stroller, with awards being given in each category for the most decorative entry representing Independence Day. The categories will be pre-school, grades 1-3 and grades 4-6.

Families are invited to bring their lunches and enjoy a picnic on the museum grounds.

The Midland Kiwanas will be in charge of games, which include foot races and Frisbee throwing, for the children and adults.

The museum staff is also sponsoring a sidewalk art contest open to children. Categories are the same as for the parade and the staff will provide the chalk. Drawings will be done on the front driveway with prizes being awarded for the most creative works in each category.

Currently on display at the museum is the 15th annual Southwestern Area Art Show. This competitive, juried exhibition includes all media in the visual arts. It will be hanging through Aug. 2.

Music for the event will be provided by the 60-member Midland Community-College Band beginning at 9:45 a.m. The band includes musicians from local high schools, Midland College, other area colleges and the general community.

This same group will perform at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the downtown park located at the corner of Loraine Street and Wall Avenue. The evening concert will feature partiotic music as well as popular selections.

Those attending both events are asked to bring their own food and blankets or lawn chairs for their seating comfort.

All events are free and open to the public.

CPR programs to be aired by local television station

A series of special programs on cardiopulmonary resuscitation begins at 5 p.m. Saturday on KMID-TV, Channel 2. These programs are a major effort by the Midland Red Cross Chapter and KMID-TV to make lifesaving training more accessible to the public.

In addition, July has been proclaimed CPR Month by Mayor G. Thane Akins.

According to James Roberts, chairman of the Midland Red Cross chapter, the need for CPR training remains strong. The public is becoming aware of this, and is increasing its demand for opportunities to learn CPR. Through television, large numbers of people can become familiar with the basics of one-rescuer, adult victim CPR, and can even follow up by visiting special Red Cross checkout centers during July and August to increase their skills and to earn a CPR certificate.

American Medical Association figures show that of the 700,000 annual deaths from heart attacks or other events resulting in cardiac arrest, 350,000 occur outside the hospital If CPR is applied within minutes after a cardiac arest, the victim's life may be saved.

"This is the crucial period of emergency cardiac care," said Roberts. "The first responder to a cardiac arrest must know how to provide an artificial heartbeat and artificial respiration while waiting for medical help or the victim will die."

The series of programs will be broadcast every Saturday this month at 5 p.m.

The Midland chapter will be ready to provide follow-up training and evaluation that is necessary for certification, said Roberts. Details of the follow-up programs will be announced later.

California begins bracing for another medfly war

SAN JOSE (AP) — The war on the Mediterranean fruit fly may go to court today as state officials, saying the pest could devastate the state's $14 billion farm industry, try to overturn local bans on aerial pesticide spraying.

The announcement came Wednesday from Jerry Scribner, medfly project coordinator, in the wake of evidence the pesky insect has resurfaced in Santa Clara County, scene of a year-long, $22 million eradication effort.

Officials have confirmed the presence of hundreds of medfly maggots in at least 46 properties in a 20-square-mile area known as the Mountain View-Los Altos gap, a region untreated during the initial round of ground spraying and stripping fruit trees in the county.

Scribner, of the state Food and Agriculture Department, said in Sacramento the required five-day notice of intent to administer aerial spraying of malathion was issued to affected cities Tuesday. Any aerial spraying would begin within the next two weeks, officials said.

"Aerial application appears to be the best procedure," Harvey Ford, chief U.S. Department of Agriculture official working on the medfly eradication project, said Wednesday.

Radical masectomy unnecessary

BOSTON (AP) — Women faced with a minor case of breast cancer could benefit from the removal of only part of the breast plus radiotherapy as much as from a radical mastectomy, a study of Italian cancer patients has found.

The study, conducted from 1973 to 1980 at the National Cancer Institute in Milan, focused on women's breast cancers measuring less than two centimeters in diameter.

It found no difference in survival rates of the 349 patients who underwent a radical mastectomy and 352 who received radiotherapy plus a more conservative operation called a quadrantectomy, according to the study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

There is a "pressing demand" among women with breast cancer for "less mutilating procedures and increasing requests from patients to be informed of the various possible treatments, including the conservative techniques," the study noted.

If women realized they had a chance of saving their breast by discovering cancer early, "it would represent a tremendous tool for publicizing self-examination of the breasts and alertness in seeking medical advice at the first appearance of a lump in the breast," the researchers said.

With a radical mastectomy, surgeons remove a woman's entire breast, plus adjoining fat and pectoral muscles. The 10-year survival rate for patients undergoing radical mastectomies in the United States has been less than 50 percent, medical authorities say.

In a quadrantectomy, only a section of the breast is removed. Many doctors believe women have fewer psychological problems adjusting if the entire breast is not removed.

Twenty-eight of the 701 women in the study had died by 1980. Of those, 14 had undergone the radical mastectomy and 14 received a uadrantectomy.

Doctors also found some form of cancer recurrence in 38 of the patients who lost an entire breast and in 36 of those who lost a section of breast and underwent radiotherapy.

The Italian researchers noted that none of the patients had been examined more than 7½ years after the various operations. But they said most local or regional recurrences of cancer come within three years of treatment, and said "it appears unlikely that a longer follow-up time will introduce further changes."

One of every 11 women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime during life, medical authorities say.

Irish leaders oppose plan for advisory panel

LONDON (AP) — In a new attempt to end Northern Ireland's crisis, the British government announced plans Thursday to create an advisory council with Protestant and Roman Catholic members representing the embattled province.

Leaders of both religious communities rejected the idea.

"There is a pressing need to re-engage the people in Northern Ireland in politics and in the bread-and-butter social and economic issues that most directly affect people's lives," British Northern Ireland Secretary Humphrey Atkins said in the House of Commons.

Atkins proposed creation of a 50-member council of Northern Ireland's 11 members of the British Parliament, its delegates to the European Parliament and its local district councilors, to convene "around the turn of the year."

He said the panel's decisions would not be binding and power over Northern Ireland would continue to reside with the British Parliament.

Gerry Adams, vice president of Sinn Fein, political wing of the almost exclusively Catholic Irish Republican Army, attacked the proposal, calling it "the latest in a long round of maneuvers by the British government. Mr. Atkins ... knows full well that such a move provides no solution."

Protestants objected, too.

"The government is about to embark on a very foolish move," said James Kilfedder, an Ulster Unionist member of Parliament. He told Atkins, "You are just tinkering with the situation in Northern Ireland."

The British Parliament has had direct control over the province since March 1972, when the Northern Ireland provincial parliament, or Stormont, was dissolved amid rising sectarian violence.

Britain said at the time it hoped to bring order to the province. But since 1969 when fighting flared between the Protestant population of one million and the community of a half-million Catholics, the violence has claimed at least 2,123 lives.

Atkins' proposal is the latest in a series of British efforts to persuade the two sides to share power. In the past, Protestant leaders have torpedoed such plans, but the secretary said that would not deter him.

"We will not be influenced by the doctrine of despair," he said.

"Just because there is no easy answer and the going gets rough, we're not going to give up," he said in an apparent bid to reassure increasingly restive Protestants that Britain does not plan to pull out of the province.

Some Protestants fear that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's efforts to improve relations with the republic's government is the first step toward eventual unification of Ulster with the republic.

Syrian troops, tanks still surround Zahle

ZAHLE, Lebanon (AP) — Four wooden crosses and a wreath of wilted flowers mark the hastily dug graves in front of the Christian militia headquarters in Zahle. They are grim reminders of the fierce fighting that engulfed the east Lebanon city for three months and spawned the Syrian-Israeli missile crisis.

Two Western correspondents who entered the city of 200,000 Thursday, saw Syrian troops and tanks in the fields and hills surrounding the town. Christian militiamen still roamed the streets at will, carrying their U.S.-made M-16 rifles despite a token withdrawal 48 hours earlier.

Henri Lahoud, the portly mayor of the predominantly Christian city, expressed a cautious optimism that a truce mediated by Arab foreign ministers would bring peace.

"I hope there will be peace and I think it will be so," Lahoud told reporters as he sat on the balcony of the Kadri Hotel near the city center.

Since the fighting began April 1, more than 30 cease-fires broke down and Lahoud estimated 150 people had been killed and an equal number injured. Christian militia spokesmen said 5,000 apartment buildings, offices, hotels and stores had been damaged in the tank and artillery barrages.

"It took 2,000 rounds to bring down this building," said Nicolas Absi, the pajama-clad owner of a five-story modern apartment building that was collapsed by tank fire April 4, killing 35 people and injuring a number of others, including Absi's 9-year-old son.

"I lost millions of dollars but I am not going to leave and the Syrians should understand that," he said.

Damage was worst at the southern and northern edges of the city, 25 miles east of the apital of Beirut. Bullet-riddled cars lined the streets, storefronts were charred, jagged holes gaped in sides of apartment buildings.

Fresh bananas, apples and eggs were for sale in produce stalls and most stores were open for business despite the damage.

Checkpoints leading into the city were manned by Lebanese police. Lahoud said about 300 police and gendarmes moved in after 95 Christian Phalangists left Tuesday and surrendered their arms to the Syrians.

But scores of Christian Phalangists in olive drab uniforms and black t-shirts patrolled the streets. "We have turned over the checkpoints to the government's forces but we will keep our guns," said a Phalangist spokesman, who identified himself only as Nicolas and said he was a philosophy professor at the city's college.

Soviet navy may be preparing for amphibious landing in Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) — American intelligence sources said today that Soviet naval forces in the Mediterranean are at their highest level in about four years and may be preparing an amphibious landing on the Syrian coast.

Any maneuvers, the sources said, would be carried out jointly with the Syrians.

Presumably, the maneuvers would be designed as a warning to Israel against taking any direct military action against Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Southern Lebanon.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has warned that Israeli forces may move if diplomatic efforts to resolve the dispute fail.

More Iranian leftists executed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's firing squads shot 17 more leftists Thursday and 50 others were rounded up for allegedly plotting to blow up Parliament, Iranian radio and officials reported.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ordered an all-out nationwide manhunt for "counter-revolutionaries" in order to "purge America's and Russia's leftovers" from Iran, Tehran Radio said in a broadcast monitored here.

Uganda soldiers storm mission

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A band of "uncontrolled" Ugandan soldiers stormed through a Roman Catholic mission and killed 60 unarmed civilians, many of them young girls, in a massacre that left dozens more injured, government sources and a Swedish Red Cross worker confirmed Thursday.

Lars Astrom, who made photographs of the June 24 incident available when he returned to Stockholm on Thursday, said "there were still dead bodies from the massacre on the road" when Red Cross workers left.

Astrom, assigned by the Red Cross to East Africa, said in a Stockholm news conference that he saw a woman carrying her mutilated 3-month-old baby and "I was told a soldier accused her of being a spy and therefore her child was killed."

At least 23 dead in Indian floods

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Flooding from heavy rains in northern and eastern India has killed at least 23 people, news reports said Thursday.

All but one of the deaths were reported in Uttar Pradesh state, the country's most populous region.

Twelve people drowned in Agra, city of the famed Taj Mahal, the news agency United News of India said. Eight died in Mainpuri, a flooded town 150 miles southeast of here where policemen manned boats to rescue marooned people.

ON THE ROAD

Stop as quickly as possible if steering is lost

By SUE ALFORD
Traffic Safety Planning
Midland College

The checklist from "How to Deal with Motor Vehicle Emergencies" is continued this week. It is part of a series you may want to keep for future reference.

LOSS OF STEERING: When the steering mechanism or its related components break, fall off or jam, a driver has no control of the car's direction.

In such a situation there is little you can do except to come to a stop as quickly as possible. When applying the brakes, some warning to other motorists and pedestrians may be possible by turning on your emergency flashers, using your headlights, blowing your horn and using hand signals.

When you have stopped, the car must be moved from the travel way. Though difficult, the wheels can be turned by hand to guide the car while being pushed...not driven.

That's all you can do until the car is repaired on the spot or a wrecker moves you to a repair facility. While parked, it would be wise to raise your hood and/or attach a white cloth to your antenna to let others know you need assistance.

It is important to note that this problem usually has warning signs, so we shouldn't ever find ourselves in this position. The warning signs: Tightness in steering or extreme looseness.

FIRES: Fires under the hood or dash are generally caused by a fault in the electrical system or by leakage in the fuel system, which may cause raw gas to leak onto a hot engine. When such a fire develops, pull off the roadway just as soon as it is safe to do so, turn off the ignition, and get out of the vehicle in a safe manner and try to put out the fire. Every vehicle should have a fire extinguisher for emergencies. If you don't have an extinguisher, fires in the engine compartment can sometimes by put out by throwing dirt on them. You can also try smothering the fire by using a heavy cloth. Be careful when raising the hood to get at such a fire — use a rag to cover your hand when releasing the hood latch so that you don't get burned. Also turn your head aside as the hood is released to prevent facial burns from flashing flames.

Assistance from passing motorists should be sought...especially from truckers who usually have fire extinguishers. Have a passer-by notify the fire department for you if you're within the city limits.

Finally, don't attempt to drive the car until the cause of the blaze is determined and the problem corrected, including any damage caused by the fire itself.

Fires in the rear of the car are potentially the most hazardous since most cars have their gas tanks in the rear. The biggest danger here is explosion of the gas tank. If you notice smoke and flames coming from the rear of your car, immediately pull off the road to a safe spot. Get all passengers out of the car and remain at a great distance from it. Warn motorists and passersby of the danger, and have someone call the nearest fire department.

LOSS OF POWER-ASSISTED BRAKING AND STEERING: A malfunction in the system providing the power may make you think that you've had a complete braking and steering loss because of difficulty in steering and unresponsive brakes. However, you can still steer and brake, it will just take considerable effort. If you experience this problem proceed with caution only as far as the nearest service center.

LOSS OF LIGHTS: This emergency has two forms: Total power loss and bulb or circuit problems. The total power blackout is caused by a burned out fuse, a fused wire or a loosened battery cable. If your lights go out pull over as soon as possible. Find your fuse panel and replace any blown fuses with good ones...which means we all need to carry spare fuses. If the fuse dosen't solve the problem or if the new fuse blows, the problem is more serious and requires repairs by a competent automotive electrical systems repairman.

Loss of one light is a minor emergency suggesting there is just a bulb burned out. In this event cautiously go to the nearest service center for a replacement.

If the headlight only goes out, the problem may be a circuit breaker which has opened. This may be a problem which comes and goes in the course of a trip; and, with a lot of caution, can provide enough light for you to "limp" into a service area for repair.

In light loss situation, the key is making yourself and your intentions visible to other motorists by whatever safe means are available to you.

Lawmakers probe Sulzer impeachment

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The only New York governor to be impeached may not have been so bad after all, some New York lawmakers say.

The state Assembly gave final approval Wednesday to a bill calling for a commission of legislators and historians to investigate the 1913 impeachment of William Sulzer.

The 11-member panel will determine whether Sulzer was guilty of three charges of misappropriation of funds during his successful 1912 gubernatorial campaign or was guilty only of running afoul of the powerful Tammany Hall political machine.

The resolution's main sponsor, Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, thinks Sulzer's "only 'crime' was his deep conviction."

"Through independent appointments traditionally reserved for the 'bosses,' and by the introduction of progressive reforms, Sulzer angered, was a threat to and may subsequently have been victimized by the powerful leaders of the day," Hinchey said. "We think this commission ultimately could find that the governor was innocent of charges of which he was convicted."

The commission, for an estimated $50,000, will make a recommendation to the state Legislature on its findings once the study is completed.

Hinchey said that, as far as he has been able to determine, Sulzer has no close relatives still living.

Sulzer, a Democrat from Manhattan, first was elected to the state Assembly in 1889. He later entered Congress and became chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Sulzer defeated two opponents to win the governorship in 1912 by a 200,000-vote plurality, a record at the time. He was ousted from office on Oct. 17, 1913, and died in New York City on Nov. 6, 1941.

In a legislative guide published in 1913 before his impeachment, Sulzer was described as having "sandy hair and steel blue eyes that look straight into yours." He also was known for his flamboyant "Henry Clay style" manner of dress that was outdated by nearly a century.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DISAGREE: BUT DON'T BE DISAGREEABLE!

Paul and Barnabas stayed at Antioch to assist several others who were preaching and teaching there.

Several days later Paul suggested to Barnabas that they return again to Turkey, and visit each city where they had preached before, to see how the new converts were getting along.

Barnabas agreed, and wanted to take along John Mark. But Paul didn't like that idea at all, since John had deserted them in Pamphylia. Their disagreement over this was so sharp that they separated. Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed for Cyprus, while Paul chose Silas and, with the blessing of the believers, left for Syria and Cilicia, to encourage the churches there.

Paul and Silas went first to Derbe and then to Lystra where they met Timothy, a believer whose mother was a Christian Jewess but his father was a Greek.

Timothy was well thought of by the brothers in Lystra and Iconium, so Paul asked him to join them on their journey. In deference to the Jews of the area, he circumcised Timothy before they left, for everyone knew that his father was a Greek (and hadn't permitted this before). Then they went from city to city, making known the decision concerning the Gentiles, as decided by the apostles and elders in Jerusalem.

So the church grew daily in faith and numbers.

You asked

By MINNIE BERNARDINO
The Los Angeles Times

Q: Help, I'm desperate. I've just made peach preserves and overcooked it. The jam is so thick you can hardly spoon it out, much less spread it on bread. Is there anything I can do at this point?

A: Sometimes preserves that are too thick can be salvaged by returning them to the pot and cooking with more liquid. This is not always feasible but it's worth the try.

Work with a small batch at a time, say about 3 to 4 cups. Place the mixture in a wide saucepan starting with very low heat to slowly melt the jam. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Gradually stir in enough liquid (juice or water) until you get a desirable consistency — slightly thickened but not runny. Boil hard 2 minutes, then test for gelling.

Insufficient amounts of sugar also may cause a stiff preserve so sugar can be added with the liquid. When commercial pectin is not added, 3-4 cup sugar to 1 cup juice is the right amount for most fruits. Underripe fruits also can produce tough preserves from lack of sweetening as well as too much natural pectin from the fruit. Too much commercial pectin added to the mixture is another possible cause.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Comfort in the driver's seat

DEAR HELOISE:

I use an inexpensive car cushion to sit on in the summer to allow air circulation between me and the vinyl upholstery in my car.

When the cushion became worn and the metal coils and rough edges began to snag my clothes, I decided to make a cover for it instead of purchasing another one.

I made the cover pillowcase fashion with a zipper on the end, though you could just fold it under the edge. I used a remnant of light-colored cotton material as it never seems to get too hot to sit on.

The cushion still folds in half easily and the cover has lasted several years, in spite of the fact that my son replaced the cushion with a new one. — Cool Mom

Helps keeps that cushion clean too since you can zip that cover and run it through the wash cycle every so often. — Heloise

HANDY SCRAPER

Dear Heloise: To clean mud off shoes, cut both ends out of a small tuna fish can or flat cat food can.

Keep it at the back steps and you have a fun tool to clean muddy shoes or steps.

Safer than a knife or sharp tool. Great for gardeners, and it's easily replaced. — Vera Heinrich

R-E-C-Y-C-L-E

Dear Heloise:

Reserve all fruit juices for gelatin desserts.

End garbage mess — use old bread wrappers to hold it.

Combine leftover crackers and chips to freeze and then use to top future vegetable casseroles.

Yarn leftovers make gift ties and pompons.

Chop and freeze "saletable" green peppers, celery, onions to have for seasonings.

Leftover vegetables frozen in same container add up for soups and stews.

End each day telling your family you love them— since love is the best thing.

RECYCLE! — Sue Mace

HANDY OIL CAN

Dear Heloise: Men and women will enjoy this hint. It means no mess, no spills, no funnel and always clean hands.

Clean out a liquid detergent bottle well, let it completely dry, then pour motor oil into it.

Pull up the knob on the detergent to fill a lawnmower, tiller, chain saw, or other small machinery. — Mrs. Louise Coen

\+ + +

Just be sure and properly label the container as to contents and store in a safe place. — Heloise

EASY MARKING

Dear Heloise: I have many cookbooks and I'm always trying new recipes.

But until I came up with a simple solution, I would sometimes forget if I had tried certain recipes and if they were hits with the family.

Now, if my family likes a recipe, I draw a small star next to it. If it's a thumbs-down recipe, I draw a circle or zero by it.

This way, when going through my cookbooks, I can tell at a glance which recipes I've tried and which ones my family enjoys. — Bonnie Knighten

GARAGE SALE

Dear Heloise: When your church or club group serves a luncheon, or you have a garage sale and you need a lot of display shelves, here's an easy solution.

Place two folding step ladders a short distance apart and place boards between them, resting on the steps.

A handy place for setting pies and cakes, or miscellaneous items for easy viewing. — Mrs. Roy Lairmore

The designer fraud on bargains abroad

By BERNARD D. KAPLAN
Hearst Feature Service

PARIS — Americans shopping for bargains abroad this summer should, as they say in commercials, beware of imitations.

More often than they would suspect, tourists making the rounds of foreign shops are likely to be palmed off with dubious Dior, sham Chanel or counterfeit Cartier.

Faking has become big business. It is the flip side of the enormous postwar growth in de luxe trade names in everything from traditional items like jewelry and champagne to latter day examples of snob appeal like designer jeans.

Companies with luxury brand names are now spending tens of millions of dollars annually to expose and prevent the fraudulent use of their labels. The amount spent on this kind of detective work has tripled within the past decade. But, it seems, the more they try, the more forgeries spread around world markets.

"In the old days, fraudulent imitation of well-known products was small-time, an artisanal affair," explained Alain Thrierr, who heads the Manufacturers' Union for the Protection of Industrial and Artistic Copyright. "Today, it is completely organized with a network to supply the needed raw materials and a wholesale-retail distributing system that is exactly modeled on that of the authentic manufacturer. It's a thieves' market but it operates like the big time."

Some would say that it is big time. In some cases, the counterfeiters are believed to sell more items and clear bigger profits than the firms whose goods they are counterfeiting.

Last year, Italian police — strongly prodded by the French — raided a factory in Milan which was discovered to be making copies of Dior handbags, Louis Vuitton luggage and leather accessories bearing the imprint of such renowned designers as Yves Saint Laurent. This was no hole-in-the-wall, backstreet sweat shop, but a modern plant employing more than 200 people and turning out an estimated $25 million worth of falsely labeled products annually. Needless to add, the factory's owner paid not a penny in royalties to the companies whose goods he copied.

"It was a win for us," said Thrierr, "but it merely scratched the surface."

Fakery is estimated to cost the French economy alone more than $400 million annually and about 20,000 jobs. However, it is their own employment problems which make countries like Italy, Spain and Greece — where, along with Japan and Taiwan in the Far East, much of the counterfeit production is carried on — usually reluctant to crack down.

The Milan case was exceptional because Thrierr's people had themselves tracked down the culprit and more or less forced the Italian authorities to act. But, even so, the factory's owner, instead of being imprisoned, was fined a derisory $300.

The truth is that famous firms like Cartier and Dior get little sympathy from governments other than their own — and even less from the public. Chanel perfumes, for example, currently is pressing more than 300 lawsuits around the world against alleged false use of its name. Vuitton is suing in more than 250 cases. Several of the latter's suits are against American importers who, the firm claims, have knowingly been selling phony Vuitton luggage.

Woman honored by church group

Janetta Eaden

Janetta Eaden, 1615 English Drive, has been crowned queen of the Youth Conference of the Abilene District of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church. The Abilene district is composed of churches in Colorado City, Lubbock, Odessa, Pecos, San Angelo, Breckenridge and Midland.

Janetta is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eaden, who are members of St. Paul CME Church, 409 S. Lee St.

Janetta is a sophomore at Lee High School, and her interests are music and sports.

'Living contacts' may offer hope

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A "living contact lens" made from a freeze-dried donor cornea may offer hope to cataract sufferers, researchers at Louisiana State University say.

The technique, developed to combat progressive protrusion of the cornea, may also be a safer and more effective treatment for cataracts — clouding of the cornea that can cause blindness.

Doctors say there have been no tissue rejections among the 18 patients and few infections. The only failures have resulted from post-operative injury to the eye. Seventeen surgeons have come here to learn the technique on pig corneas.

DEAR ABBY

Widow's 'knowledge' bothers her

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Roy and I had a long and happy marriage. Shortly after we were married, I asked him if he had ever had sex with anyone else. He said yes, before he knew me. Then he told me her name was Maggie. He said he had gone to her home to take out her sister, but she had stood him up, so just to get even, he took out Maggie, and that's when it happened. Roy said they were both in their teens.

Roy is dead now, and I recall that there was a basket of flowers at his funeral with a card signed, "From a friend." I have a feeling they were from Maggie. It never bothered me while Roy was living, but it bothers me now. Maggie lives near me. She is also a widow. Whenever I see her I have this nagging urge to tell her that I knew what happened between her and Roy, even though it was before he knew me.

Is there any way I can get rid of this nagging urge? — TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Try not to dwell on it. And if you find yourself painfully preoccupied with this incident, which has absolutely no significance or importance now, see a therapist and talk it out of your system. No purpose would be served by telling Maggie that you "know."

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow (63) who would like to marry again, but I'm not desperate. I met a widower two years ago who begged me to go out with him. At first I wouldn't go because although he is good and kindhearted, he is very careless about himself. He finally broke me down and I went out with him, but I had to ask him to please take a bath because we were going someplace special. Before I accepted another date with him, I bought a deodorant and asked him to use it. Even though he says he bathes regularly, I can't believe it. If he does, he puts the same dirty socks and underwear on, because the man is just not clean, and he smells terrible!

When he wears a suit, there are stains all over it. He says he loves me and wants to marry me, but how can I marry a man who smells so bad nobody wants to sit down next to him?

If it weren't for this one fault, he would make a good husband because he is good company and a kind person. I told him several times what is wrong with him, but he refuses to believe it. Maybe if you print my letter he will take the hint and clean up. He's in his middle 60s — too young to be going senile. What is wrong with him, Abby? — FUSSY WIDOW

DEAR FUSSY: He is either lazy or stingy. (Maybe both.) Don't expect this letter to work a miracle. If you've told him and it made no impression, he's a lost cause. Pity. Worse yet, a dirty shame.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from WEAK IN ILLINOIS, who went from one adulterous affair to another, could have been written by me. I am an honest and decent woman in every other aspect of my living, so the only explanation I have for my promiscuous sexual behavior is that I am oversexed.

Women who are undersexed (or frigid) are at least socially acceptable, but the oversexed woman, referred to as a nymphomaniac, gets absolutely no sympathy. Worse yet, she is looked down upon as the lowest form of humanity, to be shunned, ridiculed and despised.

I have been this way since my teens. I tried psychotherapy for several years but it didn't help. I wish I could control this terrible sex drive.

The idea of an Adulterers Anonymous is a good one. Just being able to talk to someone who has the same weakness would be a big help. — ALSO WEAK IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading you for years and put a lot of stock in your advice, but lately I have soured on you because you keep recommending "counseling." My experience with counseling has been as follows:

My wife and I are both 34. We've been married 11 years and have three great kids. We both work and have a nice home, cars, etc.

Three years ago my wife told me she had fallen in love with a fellow at work and she wanted a divorce. She admitted to sleeping with him. I was heartbroken. A friend recommended a marriage counselor.

The wife and I both went, and he turned out to be a very handsome guy. He didn't take his eyes off my wife. He listened to our story, then announced that I could not prevent my wife from divorcing me. He made no attempt to solve our problems — just told her what her "rights" were. A few days later he called my wife at work and asked her for a date! She started seeing him regularly and they had an affair.

I went to my pastor and he got her to listen to reason. She was fine for a few months, then she got moody, clammed up and wouldn't talk. Finally she announced that she needed to "find herself," and she moved to an apartment.

I begged her to see another marriage counselor. We went, and this one was even better looking than the first one. The same thing happened. He directed all his conversation to her, and as we were leaving he called her back to tell her he would like to see her alone. Now she is seeing HIM.

I'm waiting with the kids at home for her to "find herself." I still love her. The kids and I miss her. How can I get her back? Please hurry. — CONFUSED IN CALIF.

DEAR CONFUSED: Ask the pastor who got her to listen to reason once if he will try again. But don't turn thumbs down on all counseling because you pulled two duds. Next time, choose a female counselor.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HEARD IT ALL IN HOUSTON": You are mistaken. I have no ex-husband. I have been married for 41 years to the same man.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

The beauty of a puff-patch bedspread

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service

For centuries, women have relied on stitchery to beautify their homes. Sometimes a limited budget has made do-it-yourself projects the only way to new curtains, cushions or bed covers, but often today, women sew simply to make a home more their own.

The beauty of a home is in what we do to make it prettier, more comfortable, and more welcoming, according to Joanne Schreiber, author of "Sewing to Decorate Your Home" (Doubleday-Dolphin Publishers). To help people make their homes prettier, her book offers decorating tips, information on buying fabrics, and projects such as the puff-patch bedspread described below.

Some of her decorating tips show how to use color to create optical illusions. They include the following:

— A room appears larger when you dress windows in a fabric that blends with the walls.

— A small home seems more spacious when variations of the same color flow from room to room.

— Warm a cool room with warm colors, cool a warm room with cool colors.

— Lengthen a square room by painting two opposite walls in a paler color.

Where color is concerned, Schreiber's advice is to use it lavishly, imaginatively, and creatively. Her puff-patch bedspread, for example, is a checkerboard of bright, contrasting, polka dot prints.

To make patches puff, each square is filled with stuffing and then pieced together.

The value of freedom

As this Fourth of July observance rolls around, the inherent rightness of this republic's form of government stands indisputable throughout the world, a shining example for people of the world.

During the 205 years since the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, the United States has been tossed and pummeled by world events and the inescapable pressures, domestically and internationally, that mold both the nation and the world. The U.S. has survived world wars, droughts and famine, political corruption, economic collapse and social upheaval. Undoubtedly there are those who will claim the best lies behind the United States and that the road ahead will be on a downhill grade. We don't agree.

This nation was founded in the interest of allowing free men and women to live in a free society unafraid of political or religious persecution. The right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is guaranteed by our forefathers' Declaration of Independence.

Other nations around the globe may be uncertain of what the United States stands for today. They may fail to see our unity of purpose, our oneness as a people dedicated to liberty, for all mankind, but first and foremost for Americans.

There is a common thread that joins us. It's called independence. It is the foundation upon which the nation is constructed and upon which no repressive government can exist.

The United States and Americans are living examples that people, with the assistance of their Creator, can rule their own destinies. The ideals espoused in the Declaration of Independence are alive in the United States, living testimonials that tyrants can be cast aside by those who desire to control their own lives and who are willing to pay freedom's high price.

Many American lives have been given in the belief that freedom truly is worth the price. Could it be that all those died in vain? Were they all wrong?

Find a flagpole today and take a few moments to watch Old Glory waving in the breeze. Then think what it would be like if all your freedoms were withdrawn. If your life, your property, your religious worship, your happiness, your family, were subject to the whim of another human being, a man no better than yourself but still your master.

Then ask yourself again the value of your freedom. The answer should be easy.

More power to Egypt

Nuclear energy, like fire, can be an enemy of mankind or a friend. It is always hoped that the latter will turn out to be the case whenever the United States government makes atomic material or reactors available to other nations.

The latest such deal was made the other day between the United States and Egypt. If the agreement signed by Egypt's minister of electricity and our secretary of state is ratified by the Congress within 60 days, Egypt will be authorized to purchase from the U.S. two reactors and fuel to generate electric power.

Every effort has been made to guarantee the use of the fuel and facilities for peaceful purposes. Egypt, as a member of the International Atomic Energy Agency, has agreed to a program providing for periodic inspections, and safeguards to make sure the power is kept out of the hands of the military.

The United States had bad luck in India. The Indira Gandhi government has not allowed inspections of the use of nuclear materials shipped from this country. And worse, it detonated a nuclear device.

Egypt is expected to be more trustworthy. It is a nation sadly in need of more electrical energy, and the government of President Anwar Sadat has shown every indication that it is willing and able to keep its nuclear facilities properly harnessed.

Secretary Haig said at the signing ceremony: "This is precisely the kind of agreement that we need in the Middle East." He called it a "model" of a cooperative pact made in good faith.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Thurmond saga raises nagging questions

WASHINGTON — The FBI's performance under Director William Webster deserves high marks. But I have been disturbed by evidence that the G-men arbitrarily "targeted" certain members of Congress and then tried to snare them in the ABSCAM bribery trap.

Jack Anderson

Both the FBI and the Justice Department deny there was any attempt to entrap innocent politicians into committing crimes. But there is evidence that someone on high gave the ABSCAM investigators approval to go after Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., with a bribe offer.

What makes this disturbing is that not even Thurmond's most vehement opponents — and there are plenty — have ever questioned the old curmudgeon's integrity. There is no rational way he could have been on anyone's list of political suspects who might sell their office for a satchelful of greenbacks.

Yet there he was on the Justice Department's prospective hit list. None other than Philip Heymann, former head of the department's criminal division, has testified under oath that U.S. Attorney Chuck Ruff asked him to authorize payment of a bribe to Thurmond. Heymann said he made the decision to OK the bribe offer "within 15 minutes" of Ruff's telephone call.

When asked how Ruff and the FBI proceeded against Thurmond, Heymann said: "I don't know exactly what they did, but they proceeded, and Thurmond, I think, did not respond."

Ruff declined to say why Thurmond had been selected or whether a bribe had actually been offered to him. But in a telephone interview, Heymann told my associate Indy Badhwar he stands by his account of the proposed bribe offer.

At the same time, Heymann insisted that Thurmond was never a "target." He explained this apparent contradiction by saying it was then-Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., who had boasted that Thurmond would take a bribe.

Jenrette, who was convicted at his ABSCAM trial, insists, however, that it was FBI undercover agent Anthony Amoroso and ABSCAM middleman Mel Weinberg who first brought up Thurmond's name.

"Maybe I did wrong, and I'll pay for it," said Jenrette, "but they first asked me about Thurmond."

According to Jenrette, Amoroso and Weinberg thought Thurmond was susceptible to bribery because of what they described as Thurmond's questionable purchase of a Myrtle Beach condominium in his wife's name. Beyond their alleged suspicions, there is not a shred of evidence that Thurmond's condominium deal was less than aboveboard.

"They kept pressuring me to get to Thurmond," Jenrette said. "They kept telling me, 'We know he'll do it.'" He said they used to call him early in the morning, "when I was still in bed, to talk about Thurmond."

Jenrette said he never made an approach to Thurmond but admitted that he misled Amoroso and Weinberg into believing that he had; he told them Thurmond was willing to cosponsor immigration legislation for the supposed ABSCAM Arab sheik. After that, he said, they kept pressuring him to "produce" Thurmond for a meeting in a Washington hotel or in the Georgetown rowhouse that had been rigged with hidden videotape cameras.

Jenrette said he recommended a meeting in Thurmond's office, "but they told me it would be risky to carry a suitcase of money to the Hill."

Heymann still insists Thurmond was not considered a target. "We were trying to call Jenrette's bluff," he said. "As we now know, he lied about Thurmond."

The FBI supports Heymann's version of the story, and a spokesman said, "Our policy in ABSCAM was never to suggest names or target individuals."

The G-men had better hope Thurmond believes them. As chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the crusty South Carolinian is one of the last persons on Capitol Hill the FBI should antagonize.

WATCH ON WASTE — The U.S. Forestry Service has embarked on a nostalgia trip that could cost up to $25 million. It wants to bring back the dirigible as a commercial vehicle. Only this time the lighter-than-air craft would carry trees instead of people. The "helistat," as Forest Service backers call their concept, would consist of a 343-foot blimp that could hover over difficult logging terrain and be fed timber by four helicopters attached to it. The airship, say the bureaucrats, will be able to carry as much as 25 tons of felled trees to lumber mills or transfer points. The helistat is being built at the Naval Engineering Center in Lakehurst, N.J. — site of the fiery crash of the German zeppelin Hindenburg on May 6, 1937, in which 36 persons died. The logging industry is skeptical about the helistat, but the Forest Service notes that the loggers also resisted two of its earlier innovations — the bulldozer and the use of parachutists to fight forest fires.

— Paperwork is the government's biggest single product, and the bill for producing this never-ending blizzard is staggering. Just to operate the Government Printing Office, its six field plants and 14 regional procurement offices, plus 300-odd printing plants in other federal agencies, costs some $40 million a year. The bureaucrats have known for years that it's cheaper to have their printing work done by private contractors, but fully half the government's printing is still done in the convenient in-house plants.

INSIDE REPORT:

Marxist-Leninist economic failure is Poland's great heresy

GDANSK, Poland — The method of selecting the managing director at a small yacht-building shipyard in this cradle of Poland's democratic revolution is intended to start an economic reform no more tolerable to the Soviet Union than the free political expression now pervading the country.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

In replacing the shipyard's ailing superintendent, the selection was made by workers and managers collaborating with the Solidarity Union. The man chosen by the ruling Communist Party, who came to the shipyard acting as though he already had the job, was turned down flat.

That small incident reflects determination by Solidarity's economic reformers to solve Poland's economic crisis by decentralized self-management unchained from central planning. The result might be stretched to still be called Marxism, but it surely violates Leninism's supremacy of party rule.

Therein lies the true ideological confrontation between communist doctrine and Solidarity. Despite all the bellowing from Moscow and Polish communist hard-liners, no serious Solidarity leader disputes that the Soviet-Polish alliance is a geopolitical necessity. The real issue is the Communist Party's dominant role here, especially in setting economic policy.

Since settlement of the Gdansk strike last September, Poland's economy has descended further toward chaos and stagnation. In every city we visited, Poles stood in endless lines seeking consumer goods from empty stores. Since chances to buy anything rise dramatically if the purchaser has dollars, Poles desperate for hard currency drive down the zloty's value in black market exchanges. Meanwhile, declining production of coal, Poland's key export, aggravates a severe trade imbalance.

The Polish communist apparatus attributes this crisis to higher wages and lower hours negotiated by Solidarity, a view shared by Western diplomats here and West German bankers terrified of Polish default on massive loans. Their remedy for the economy is more work and a lower living standard for ordinary Poles — in short, austerity.

Such is the habitual remedy of government, East or West, for misery inflicted on the people by government. Some Solidarity leaders blame the deteriorating economy on Soviet tampering ("premeditated sabotage," one told us) to turn workers against the union. All agree that government policies created the mess.

But since the Gdansk labor agreement nine months ago, not one step has been taken by the government toward its promised economic reform. The situation was summarized for us by Dr. Rafal Krawczyk of the Polish Economic Society's national board: "The old system doesn't work. The new system doesn't exist."

To devise a new system, economist Krawczyk in Warsaw is meeting with managers of Polish enterprises and workers representatives. And what about the Communist Party? "You overestimate the role of the party in economic reform," Krawczyk told us, without blinking an eye. In Gdansk, Solidarity leader Wojciech Gruszecki echoed the need to act independently of the party. "It is the only way out of our predicament," he added.

This reflects pessimism among Solidarity's leaders about internal party liberalization. Their analysis of secret-ballot election of delegates to the forthcoming party congress, a process arousing fear in the Kremlin: Although most delegates are new faces, they look much like the old faces. Solidarity's leadership also believes that the survival, under Soviet attack, of party chief Stanislaw Kania at the recent Central Committee meeting actually strengthened the party's center, reinforced standpat policies and may have been what Moscow wanted all along.

But if economic reform is devised without party guidance, what shall it be? Certainly more than decentralized management while continuing central planning under party direction as practiced in Hungary and now advocated by the Polish regime. Although there is talk about copying Yugoslavia's worker self-management, eyes of Solidarity leaders brighten when they talk of Swedish social democracy. Lech Walesa in public speeches expresses affection for "free enterprise" and "the Japanese model."

Specifically Dr. Krawczyk in discussions with management and labor not only opposes all state-owned enterprises but wants to use the free market to allocate resources and set prices. He is a Communist Party member, an avowed atheist and a button-wearing member of Solidarity. Is he also a Marxist? "One year ago, I would have said yes," he replied. He clings to Marxism by contending that wealth generated by his free market model must be distributed evenly.

That surely is not orthodox enough for Kremlin ideologists. Polish economic reformers are saying the failure here has not been mere incompetence and certainly not worker indolence, as the government contends, but inherent inability of Marxist-Leninist methods to run a productive economy. From Moscow's viewpoint, there is no greater heresy in Poland's democratic revolution.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, July 3, the 184th day of 1981. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 3, 1962, Algeria became independent after 132 years of French rule.

On this date:

In 1583, Russia's Czar Ivan the Terrible killed his son Ivan in a fit of rage.

In 1775, George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1944, Soviet forces took Minsk — capturing 100,000 Germans — during World War II.

And in 1950, U.S. and North Korean troops clashed for the first time in the Korean conflict.

Ten years ago: Indonesians voted in their country's first national election in 16 years.

Five years ago: Italy's Communist Party won a major victory when the major parties agreed to give the Communists the job of president, or speaker of the Chamber of Deputies.

One year ago: Egyptian and Israeli officials at a Washington meeting agreed to reopen talks on Palestinian autonomy. The talks had been suspended by Egypt for two months.

Today's birthdays: President Jean-Claude Duvalier of Haiti is 30. British film director Ken Russell is 54. Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz is 72.

Thought for today: The folly of one man is the fortune of another — Francis Bacon, English writer-philosopher (1561-1626).

CHARLEY REESE

Columnist laying cards on the table

Someone called me an anachronism the other day and I suppose they are right. I'm not about to adopt the contemporary standards of most of the intelligentsia. This name calling, however, raises an important point.

Charley Reese

From time to time, columnists should 'fess up to their readers and spell out explicitly what their beliefs are so the readers can place that writer's opinions and commentaries in proper perspective. There is nothing sneakier than a writer who pretends to be neutral when he's really writing from an ideological perspective. Whether you are a socialist or a capitalist, for example, makes a big difference on how you view an economic program.

I am a capitalist, even though I only own a mortgaged house and a few personal possessions. Capitalism is that economic system in which the government stays the heck out of the way while a free people pursue their own versions of happiness as best they know how. It is the only economic system consistent with personal freedom and it is the only economic system which has been proven capable of providing the greatest number of material benefits to the greatest number of people. It is usually referred to by timid types as the free market economy or free enterprise. Incidentally, we no longer have a free economy in the U.S. Government meddling, begun in the New Deal, has created a hybrid mix of socialism and capitalism. I'm against it.

I am also a nationalist. I love the United States. I live here, have my home here, and plan to stay here. I am not a citizen of the world and don't care to be one. I do not believe that the necessity to trade with other nations or, for that matter to form temporary alliances, in any way requires a weakening of sovereignty. I am unalterably opposed to globalism and internationalism and to any attempt under any guise to dilute or to abolish the sovereignty and independence of the United States.

I am an American revolutionary. The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are gospel to me. I do not exist or enjoy any rights by permission of any government. I am a free man. The government exists only to serve me and, like our forefathers, I reserve the right to change it — peacefully or violently — if it becomes a danger to my liberty. If more Americans understood that that is the proper relationship between an American and his government, the government would soon be a great deal less arrogant.

I also believe, like our forefathers, in the rule of law. That means you reserve revolution as a last-resort measure and work within the system to effect changes. It also means you accept peacefully some laws and rules you don't agree with and go to the streets only when it becomes clear beyond a shadow of a doubt that the government has gone totally bad. There is a tendency today among some people to run out in the street every time the government disagrees with their personal opinion. This is bad nonsense.

I am an optimist. I do not believe that either the planet or mankind is doomed. I believe both are remarkably adaptable and resilient. I believe the adventures of man will continue for a long time and I do not live in fear of nuclear war, population explosions, famines and other apocalyptic events. The worst any of those things can do to you is kill you, and the old body is going to croak one day anyway. I think sometimes people forget that people are mortal. The manner and time of an individual's croaking is not all that important. It's how you live that counts.

I am a registered Republican but not a partisan one. I deserted the Democratic Party when the Russians built the Berlin Wall and we didn't do anything about it. President John Kennedy should have knocked it down. Instead, he backed down and I got so mad I changed my party registration. Neither party, however, has a monopoly on virtue and both parties have their share of nincompoops, opportunists, and scoudrels. Party registration is really only a convenience and everyone should guard against believing that the nation's interests and political party's interests are identical. They almost never are.

Finally, I'm a believer in absolutes. Moral values are absolute. So is justice. A person is either honest or he isn't.

An adult flamingo feeds its offspring while standing atop one of many mud nests on an island recently at Miami's Hialeah Race Track. For the first time in 10 years, the race track's flock of 400 flamingos have nested, laid eggs and hatched them. So far, three young chicks have been spotted. But experts at the park say many more are on the way, citing the presence of 50-60 eggs in the nests on the island.

Budget-cutting plans may dash dreams of captain

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 17 years, Capt. James J. Rooney has dreamed of retiring from the Coast Guard and returning to his modest house in East Lyme, Conn. Now he is afraid his dreams won't come true because of President Reagan's budget-cutting plans.

Rooney, 45, who runs the Coast Guard search and development program, and his wife, Ceil, have four children to put through college and federal student loans have been eliminated for people in his income bracket.

He also is worried about providing medical care for his family once he is retired.

"I love the Coast Guard," he said. "I'm very fond of what I do, but it has literally become a luxury I can't afford. Captains today don't live like captains did when I was a junior officer. The money isn't there even if you make admiral."

So he's resigning from the Coast Guard next year and looking for a job in the private sector. And he's put his beloved house up for sale.

The Rooneys expect their children — Jim, 20, Kevin, 18, Colleen, 16, and Sheila, 13 — to help pay their way through college, but even so they'll have to come up with extra cash for tuition bills for at least nine straight years.

"Now medical support is deteriorating for families, and student loans are going to be based on need defined by income, not by family," Rooney said. "If you're earning over $25,000, you are ineligible for student loans. That's a big chunk of Middle America."

Through 11 moves in 21 years, Rooney said he used to think of the day when he would be a retired senior officer and he and his family would settle in Connecticut.

In 1964, the Rooneys spent all their savings on a new house in the Black Point Beach Club in East Lyme, Conn., even though they had been transferred to California. "We always intended to go back," Rooney said.

Over the years, they rented the house and reminded themselves often that the mortgage would be paid off in 1989.

He still dreams of Black Point, of living near the briny sea, of building a cottage out back so his children and future grandchildren can visit.

Town would look right at home in Denmark

By JOHN SINOR
Copley News Service

We were finishing our kringlers and coffee when my wife leaned across the table and whispered, "Those people at the table behind you are all speaking Danish."

I said, "Honey, this isn't a theme park. This is a real Danish community."

But the whole town of Solvang and much of the rest of Santa Ynez Valley could be transferred to someplace like Disneyland and it would look right at home.

It would also look right at home in Denmark, except the wooden storks on the shop roofs would be replaced by real storks, the good-fortune bird of the Danes.

This Danish-American town is in the heart of Santa Barbara County, Calif. Besides being a living settlement for Danes, it is one of the most popular tourist attractions in California, drawing nearly 2 million visitors a year. Many of them stay overnight or longer in lodges with names like Dannebrod Inn, Svendsgaard's Lodge, King Frederik Motel, and Hamlet Motel.

Solvang got its start in 1911, when a group of Danish educators from the Midwest came to the coast looking for a place to establish a Danish colony and college.

They decided on the Santa Ynez Valley. And they did build Atferdag College. The college is long gone now, but the Danish colony is still growing.

Solvang's major attractions are shopping, eating and excellent professional live theater. But the real moneymakers may be the companies that manufacture film. Miles of it must go through visitors' cameras each year.

Gifts from around the world can be bought here in shops that often resemble windmills or old Danish cottages.

They carry Norwegian pewter and enamelware, Copenhagen porcelain, Irish lace, Texas cowboy wardrobes, jewelry, hand-knitted sweaters, fine imported luggage and much more.

The cheese shops have imported natural cheeses such as Danish blue, Tybo and Norwegian goat cheese.

The only trouble with eating is trying to decide where to do it. If you want to try Danish food but don't know how to order it, your best bet is to go to one of the many restaurants serving Danish smorgasbord and take what looks good.

Can collector snares bonus

DALLAS (AP)— A 9-year-old Hurst boy with a keen eye for discarded cans is $100 closer to getting a dirt bike he wants because a recycling company gave him a bonus for pushing its salvage total past the 20 million-pound mark.

Roger Rippy began collecting the cans more than a year ago and Wednesday turned in 81 pounds of cans and collected the penny-a-can payment of $24.40.

But Paul Myer, manager of the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Center in Dallas, added $100 to that figure because Roger's bundle sent the plant over the 20 million-pound mark.

The money was a big step toward the bike, which carries a $200 price tag.

Roger, who began picking up the roadside litter so he could have some pocket money, summed up his feelings about the bonus in three words: "I feel rich."

Staubach may be drafted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Draft Roger Staubach for the U.S. Senate organization says 237 Republican precinct chairmen have agreed to join its steering committee.

The Draft Staubach movement is a project of a conservative political action committee called Alamo Pac.

Staubach has said he is not interested in running for the Senate.

"As more precinct chairmen respond in the next few days, Alamo Pac will be ready to present Mr. Staubach with the first 50,000 petitions asking him to be a candidate for the U.S. Senate," said James Meadows, a director of Alamo Pac.

Case not considered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court will not consider the petition of an illegitimate 5-year-old girl trying to force her attorney father to visit her regularly.

In a brief order issued late Wednesday, the court rejected the request of Kimberly Anne Olpin of Los Angeles.

The court action lets stand a ruling; by the 2nd District Court of Appeal in Los Aneles, which said there is no law or precedent that can be cited to force Owen C. Olpin to see his illegitimate child.

Fitzgerald back in form

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ella Fitzgerald, introduced as "one of the principal singers of this century," gave two Kool Jazz Festival concerts Wednesday night at Carnegie Hall.

It was her first festival appearance since 1973. The news is: She sounds exactly like the great Ella Fitzgerald.

Her trio, Jimmy Rowles, piano, Skeeter Best, bass, and Bobby Durham, drums, came on first. When Miss Fitzgerald joined them, looking svelte in an orange gown with gold stripes, she had trouble getting started over the tidal wave of applause.

But "back to work," not bask in acclaim, is her motto, and singing soon prevailed. She brought voice, phenomenal energy and something inventive to every song but one. "Quiet Nights" was alone among the 16 songs she sang for just being well sung, not inspirational.

The scatting in "All of Me" drew applause. Her voice was satin itself on "Satin Doll." She displayed her remarkable range and there was humor in the instrumental arrangement of "Birds Do It." Her delivery was sincere enough to convince any man on "Ain't Misbehavin'" and she ended on a high note, then bent notes to bring the ending down about two octaves.

One noticed the vocal control and edge Miss Fitzgerald can put on her voice as she did "After You've Gone." She ran through it again, top speed. She caressed the words of "The A Train." "Body and Soul," with piano, was perhaps the most memorable moment of the evening.

An elaborate "Meditation," with sung imitations of various instruments, concluded in another wave of applause and Miss Fitzgerald saying, "I Wish I had that on a record." She followed that all-out vocalization with a serenely floating "Blue Moon," with piano.

She jived "Straighten Up and Fly Right." For an encore, she combined a rich "I've Got a Crush on You" with "People," ending that with, "As they would sing on 'Soul Train,' yeah, Yeah, YEAH." The audience went wild and she returned for a broadly swinging "Mack the Knife," including one chorus capturing the voice of Louis Armstrong.

The evening began with a short instrumental set led by saxophonist Zoot Sims, trumpeter Clark Terry and pianist Jimmy Rowles.

Alvin Van Black, a Houston radio talk show host, gestures as he chats with a caller. Van Black says the key to success for his program is letting a few people entertain a great many.

He's living on the air...in Houston

EDITOR'S NOTE: Alvin Van Black says he doesn't even like to talk on the telephone. Nevertheless, he's taken some 130,000 phone calls as one of the most popular and controversial radio talk show hosts in the country.

By ANDREW M. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A man telephones Alvin Van Black to complain about being summoned for jury duty the day after he took his 85-year-old uncle to the hospital, and thousands of people are eavesdropping.

The thrill those people get from listening in on someone else's conversation, Van Black says, is what has kept him in the radio talk show business for 13 years.

Van Black says the key to success with a phone-in program is letting a few people entertain a great many. He says there is a very distinct difference between his callers and his listeners.

"Only a tiny few will call," he says. "Why, you'd burn in hell before you'd call."

With that comment, Van Black begins to warm to his subject. His voice rises to near a yell and he waves his arms about.

"I just can't imagine stopping my car and getting into a tiny phone booth and spending a quarter just to yell about some topic," said Van Black, a large man who spends much of his time sitting. But because he moves about in his chair so much, he could not be called sedentary.

About a quarter of the approximately 50 people he talks to each day are regulars, Van Black says, "people who just can't let a day go by without putting their two cents in."

"I don't know how, with 2½ million people in this town, I keep talking to the same people."

Talking or listening, people are turning to talk radio. Jack London, program director for KPRC, says his hosts Van Black and David Fowler lead Houston's mid-day AM ratings.

Talk is KPRC's mainstay. Van Black's three-hour afternoon show is part of 9½ hours a day of phone-in programming.

One single, technical fact is largely responsible for all this chatter, London says. AM radio's relatively poor sound quality makes it difficult to compete with FM stations for music audiences.

Van Black figures he's talked to as many callers as any talk show host in Texas.

"I've got 130,000-something calls now — that's approaching three full Astrodomes," he says.

Before any of those callers talked to Van Black, they talked to the show's producer, who determined they were coherent — not too drunk, not too crazy.

Don has passed the producer's inspection. "Don is on line three," the producer says to Van Black, who hears him in one side of a headphone set. In the other ear, a man has been complaining that he was not allowed to pay cash for a traffic violation in a Houston suburb.

Van Black advises the man to talk to the attorney general's office, then turns to his new caller.

"Hello, Don," Van Black says, and Don begins to criticize a previous caller, a woman who had been upset by the NAACP's reception of President Reagan.

Van Black agrees with Don. Earlier, he had lambasted the woman after she suggested there is too much freedom in this country when blacks are rude to a Republican president after Lincoln set them free.

Through all of this, a six- to seven-second lag between talk and broadcast lets Van Black act as his own censor. His conscience is his guide, and what gets bleeped depends partly on who the caller is.

"A lot of old men can't talk without putting 'damn' in all the time," he explains:

Fame has its drawbacks, especially when it is gained largely by arguing with strangers.

Van Black, who shifts in his chair and flails his arms even when speaking mundane sentences, fairly shrieks when he talks about "Crazy people! I get thousands of letters from crazy people!

"There are about 50 boxes of these things around here — they're a horrible fire hazard, they're a storage problem...."

Some of the letters are threats. "You know, burn your house down, punch you out...."

Many of the callers are crazy as well.

"They sound just as lucid and clear," Van Black says, shaking his head.

"There's one little old lady who's wrapped her house in metal foil because the Chinese Communists are bombarding her with microwaves to get secrets out off her brain. That's a pretty common one.

"You can't believe how many CIA operatives we have here," he continues, sarcastically.

Daniel custody battle resumes

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Jean Daniel Murph, sister of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., is making a second attempt to get custody of her brother's two small sons.

Mrs. Murph's lawyers filed a motion Wednesday asking for a new trial in the courtroom fight for Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Last April, a jury rejected Mrs. Murph's claim that Vickie Daniel was an unfit monther. Mrs. Daniel, 33, is accused in the Jan. 19 shooting death of her husband and is expected to be tried on the charge in October.

Joe Namath, former star quarterback of the New York Jets, goes through some fancy steps with Susan Scott, left, during the opening night performance of "Damn Yankees" Wednesday at the Jones Beach Theater on Long Island. Namath plays shoeless Joe from Hannibal, the devil-sent savior of the Washington Senators, in a smmer revival of the 1950's Broadway hit.

Off-Broadway Joe performing again

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — He made a few forgettable flicks, lasted a month as a coach in NBC's "Wavery Wonders" did summer stock in "Picnic" and "Li'l Abner," and now they call him Off-Broadway Joe.

So Joe Namath finally has learned to sing, dance and act? No, no and no. But he's starring anyway as a mysterious young baseball phenom, in a summer revival of the 1955 hit, "Damn Yankees."

He's in it near the ocean, at the open-air Jones Beach Theater on Long Island, 40 miles from the Broadway that loved him in the halcyon years he quarterbacked the New York Jets. Back then, his idea of good training consisted of ladies and late hours.

It's said he now has emphasized stage training, particularly in song, for his off-Broadway debut — held Wednesday night — as Shoeless Joe from Hannibal, Mo., the devil-sent savior of the hapless Washington Senators. But he's not so good, to put it gently.

His preview performance Tuesday, held amid a heavy mist and attended by wind-chilled critics and sportswriters, indicates that only a miracle during the show's run can make any day his Brut day.

As you may recall, the show, its tunes by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, the book by George Abbott and Douglass Wallopp, is a breezy Faustian caper about a die-hard Senators fan, love and baseball.

Our fan, married and middle-aged, hates the champion New York Yankees so much he'd sell his soul to the devil if that would get his team a slugger who'd help them win.

Enter the devil (played by Eddie Bracken with great comic grace under pressure). A deal with an "escape clause" is struck. The devil transforms the fan into that slugger, 22-year-old Shoeless Joe (Namath).

Yes, Joe helps power the Senators to the championship, even makes a pennant-saving catch before returning — gratefully, as things turn out — to middle age and the loving, unsuspecting wife he left behind.

But the woes he endures during all this would try Job — a nosy female sportswriter; the difficulties of staying faithful to one's mate; a seduction attempt by slinky Lola, the devil's aide; her unexpected love for Shoeless Joe, and a baseball scandal that questions whether Joe is for real.

CBS wins Nielsens again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS topped the A.C. Nielsen Co. national prime-time ratings for the sixth straight week with the help of "MASH" and its spin-off series, "Trapper John, M.D."

"MASH," a comedy about the Korean War, had only slightly better ratings than "Trapper John, M.D.," which is about Trapper John's adventures nearly 30 years later. "MASH" seemed to be keeping the ratings in the family. The fourth most popular show of the week ending June 28 was "House Calls," which stars Wayne Rogers, who was Trapper John in "MASH." All of the shows are on CBS.

"MASH" had a rating of 20.2, which means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 20.2 percent saw at least part of the show.

The rerun of another episode of the ABC mini-series "Roots: The Next Generations" again landed near the cellar. Only the NBC Friday Night Movie "Buck Rogers" placed lower.

Fifteen intervenors scheduled for Bell rate hike hearing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fifteen intervenors — including an airline, several cities, a water authority, the state of Texas and other telephone companies — lined up Thursday to complain about Southwestern Bell's request for a $469.8 million rate increase.

Public Utility Commission Hearing Examiner Carolyn Shellman spent 90 minutes sorting out the intervenors and making plans for the rate hearing, which will start Aug. 24. Last year's Bell rate hearing took about two months.

The commission has assigned two examiners to hear Bell's request, the largest ever filed. The telephone company wants to raise residential rates for most Texans by $5.45 a month.

Seventeen parties filed as intervenors, but Ms. Shellman refused to allow a private citizen and General Telephone to enter the case. GTE lawyer Ward Wueste said his company wanted to contest the formula used to determine how much GTE gets on long distance calls that involve GTE and Bell phones.

Several lawyers at the crowded table said it was too complicated a matter to be involved in the rate hearing. Ms. Shellman agreed.

WTCC committees seek passage of 'meaningful' water legislation

ABILENE — Passage of meaningful Water Trust fund legislation during the upcoming special session of the Texas State Legislature has been tagged as the number one objective of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Water Development and State Affairs Committees.

WTCC officials are confident there is a good chance that a Water Fund Bill will be enacted that will be of major importance to future water resource development in West Texas and across the state.

"The Water Fund issue is not just a West Texas issue," stated WTCC President Burvin Hines of Arlington. "This is a statewide issue and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will work to develop a solid base of support for its passage during the special session."

Meaningful Water Fund legislation could be espcially helpful to communities throughout the state. The major thrust of the Trust Fund concept would be to guarantee bond issudes allowing local governments to obtain lower interest rates and would raise the interest ceiling on bonds guaranteed by the state from 6 to 10 percent or greater with legislative approval.

Currently, the State Water Development Board can't sell $50 million in authorized bonds, which would provide cash to finance local projects, because of the constitutional 6 percent limit on interest it can pay.

Borg cames back; McEnroe beats tantrum

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg came from two sets down and John McEnroe overcame bouts of court tantrums Thursday to reach the men's singles finals at Wimbledon.

Borg wore down Jimmy Connors 0-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4 in a 3½-hour thriller — one of the greatest tennis matches seen on the Wimbledon center court in recent years.

McEnroe overcame Rod Frawley, the unseeded Australian, 7-6, 6-4, 7-5. The fiery left-hander clashed several times with the umpire and was given a public warning and assessed a penalty point.

McEnroe had already been fined $1,500 and warned about his behavior earlier in the tournament. He faced another possible fine by the tournament committee.

So the stage was set for a repeat of last year's final, in which Borg overcame McEnroe in close five-set thriller.

The 25-year-old Swede is aiming for his sixth straight Wimbledon title. That would equal the feat of Willie Renshaw, an Englishman who won Wimbledon in successive years from 1881 to 1886. Renshaw, however, only had to play the title match for his last five crowns. In those days, the defending champion was seeded into the championship match.

THE CENTER court has seldom seen such excitement as when Borg and Connors played out their final set in fading light at the end of the day.

In the fourth game, Connors scored with two spectacular lobs and had two break points. Each time Borg responded with an ace.

The game ended with an astonishing rally — the two men swapping volleys at the net. Borg won the point and game, levelling the set at 2-2.

The Swede broke service at 4-3. In the next game, Connors was twice within a point of breaking back, but Borg held on after acing his rival three times.

That was, for all purposes, the last act of the drama. Connors' challenge, which had looked so menacing earlier, faded and Borg dropped only one point in the last two service games.

The crowd of 14,000 stood and cheered as the players went off court.

Borg's game was characteristic of him — a slow start and a series of dazzling shots on the big points when he needed them. In the whole epic match, he won only three more games than Connors.

The McEnroe-Frawley match was one of the rowdiest ever seen on center court. McEnroe argued with the umpire, Wing Commander George Grime, about several line calls.

He was warned for unsportsmanlike behavior in the first set, when he lost a game and stamped up and down at his baseline shouting at the top of his voice.

IN THE THIRD set, with the score 4-4 and 40-30 for Frawley, there was another blow-up. McEnroe lost an argument over a line call and was heard to say, "You're a disgrace to the human race."

Grime announced: "Penalty point, Mr. McEnroe, for unsportsmanlike conduct."

The point gave Frawley the game.

McEnroe stormed to the umpire's chair, shouting: "I was not talking to you, I was talking to myself."

"Do you hear me?" McEnroe yelled as the umpire took no notice. "I was talking to myself."

It took McEnroe three hours to overcome Frawley, who is 112th on the world computer rankings. The 28-year-old Australian, who has never made much of a splash in any major tournament previously, played well, while McEnroe struggled to bring his game under control.

Frawley never faltered until the next-to-last game, when he double-faulted three times and eventually lost his service after six deuces. Even in that game, McEnroe disputed a line call.

McEnroe served out to love and finished the match with an ace.

After the match, McEnroe was involved in an amazing scene at the press conference. He continued to deny he was addressing the umpire when he had talked of "a disgrace to the human race."

Then a reporter persisted with questions about his relations with Stacy Margolin, his steady girlfriend, and McEnroe blew up.

"IT'S NONE of your business," he shouted. The reporter continued asking about Margolin, and McEnroe walked out.

A scuffle between journalists followed. Later, the All-England Club announced that for the rest of the championships, only newsmen with priority badges would be allowed at the interviews.

Some 800 journalists are covering Wimbledon, but only selected newsmen have badges for the center and No.1 courts.

Before he left the press conference, McEnroe said he had no idea how many complaints he made.

"My complaints probably took about two minutes altogether," he said. "I thought the umpire was provocative, and this has been general."

Throughout his trouble-strewn Wimbledon campaign, McEnroe has alleged that officials and press are prejudiced against him.

"I can't even breathe," he said Thursday. "It seems the umpires want to show their force. They don't give me a chance."

Few semifinal days at Wimbledon have lasted so long. The two matches lasted more than 6½ hours.

The defending champions in the men's doubles, Peter McNamara and Paul McNamee of Australia, were beaten in a five-set semifinal, 6-4, 2-6, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4 by Stan Smith and Bob Lutz of the United States.

Smith and Lutz, for years the No.1 doubles choice for the United States in the Davis Cup, have twice been runners-up at Wimbledon but have never won the title.

They were scheduled to play top-seeded McEnroe and Peter Fleming in the final Friday, following the women's singles final between Chris Evert Lloyd and Hana Mandlikova.

Cubs topple Diablos, 5-2

Wild pitches aid victory

BY TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Mike Thompson might still be hooked up in a pitching duel with El Paso's Tom Candiotti if the Diablo righthander hadn't suddenly turned scatter-armed in the seventh inning.

Candiotti wild pitched two runs home as the Midland Cubs took a 5-2 victory at Cubs Stadium. As a result of the win, Midland will be shooting for a split of the six-game Texas League series in the 6 p.m. finale tonight.

Lefthander Thompson, who went the route for his fourth win in five decisions since reporting to Midland from Hagerstown of Carolina League, and Candiotti, who wound up in Milwaukee Brewer livery as a result of an off-season clerical error in the Kansas City Royals front office, were 2-2 into the last of the seventh.

DAVE OWEN led off with a single, but was picked off first and it looked like another inning of offensive futility. Then Mel Hall singled to left and stole second as Candiotti, now 5-3, walked Javier Fierro. Two wild pitches let Hall score as Jack Upton walked and then, with Fritz Connally at bat, Candiotti uncorked his third breaking pitch into the dirt to let Fierro trot home.

Rookie Joe Carter then gave Thompson a little more breathing room when he led off the eighth with his first Texas League homer, an authoritative shot to left off lefthander Chick Valley.

Thompson, who has flirted with a shutout in all six of his Midland starts, lost this one early when John Skorochocki singled to right with one out in the first and then Thompson uncharacteristically walked the next two batters, John Hanson and John Evans, to load the bases. As it turned out, they were the only two walks of the game by Mike and he paid the price when Stan Davis' routine hopper to second plated the run.

FRITZ CONNALLY rifled his seventh homer over the left field fence with one out in the second and it remained 1-1 until the sixth when Candiotti issued the first walk by an El Paso pitcher in 20 innings and it cost him a run. Upton got the pass and raced to third on Carter's double that rattled the timber in left, scoring on a sac fly by Randy LaVigne.

The Diablos got it right back when Al Manning's grounder hopped over Upton's head at first for a single, his third hit off Thompson. He then stole second and scored when Irvine singled over second. Hall's throw to the plate was in time, but catcher Mike Diaz couldn't find the handle to make the tag.

So while Thompson was tagged for two runs, again he was within shutout range but for the two walks and a tag that might have been.

Thompson knocked his earned-run-average down to 2.36 with his third complete game and despite the two walks shows only eight walks for 49 2/3 innings. Manning tagged him for three hits and Irvine two, but Mike gave up only seven in all, pitching a four-hitter (including a bad hopper single over Upton's head at first by Manning) over the final seven innings.

No ball on 4th

By The Associated Press

The major league players strike reaches a significant milestone this weekend when, for the first time in this century, America will be without baseball on the Fourth of July.

The Independence Day holiday has always been regarded as a logical breaking point in the season's schedule, a time to pause and reflect on what has taken place for the first three months of the season.

Baseball meeting short but not very sweet

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball will mark the Fourth of July, traditionally one of the biggest dates on the sport's calendar, with strike negotiations instead of ball games.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett has recessed until Saturday, July 4, stalemated talks in the players strike, which entered its fourth week today.

THE TWO SIDES met at the bargaining table for about 90 minutes Thursday with no discernable progress on the issue of free agent compensation.

"We're going around in circles," said Mark Belanger of the Baltimore Orioles. "It's the same stuff every day. It went as you might expect. Certainly, there was no progress."

But Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees, preferred a more positive view of Thursday's talks.

"Nothing happened, but it seemed as though they were saying, 'Let's hear what you have to have and we'll tell you what we have to have,'" he said. "At least today people were saying, 'Where can we go from here? Can we do anything?' It doesn't mean we're near a settlement, but it seemed they wanted to listen more today. I didn't feel they listened before. Listening and hearing are two different things."

JACKSON SEEMED hopeful that a breakthrough could be achieved.

"I'm looking for good things from them, something to build on," he said. "I'm like the fans who keep asking when it's going to be over. I'm enjoying the time off, but I feel guilty. I should be playing ball."

Donald Fehr, general counsel of the Major League Players Association, smiled at Jackson's description of the meeting.

"If he means people were not screaming at each other, he's right," the attorney said. "That happens often. But the tone of the meeting was no different as far as I was concerned. Their position is 'Please accept our proposal that the number sixteen player be used for compensation paid for by the club signing the free agent.' I don't detect anything that happened that we're one step closer to a settlement. Maybe I'm wrong. I'd love to be wrong."

THURSDYA'S MEETING was scheduled to start at 10 a.m., but it did not get underway until 11:30 because owners' representative Ray Grebey requested a delay.

"I was late, the association knew I would be, and the meeting started at the new time it was set," Grebey said.

The two sides talked until about 1 p.m. when Moffett announced a recess for lunch until 2:30. When the talks were suppose to resume, Moffett received a call from the Player Relations Committee saying management's bargainers would not be back.

A source familiar with the negotiations said that it would be unreasonable to read any special significance into Thursday's events.

Grebey said, "As far as what went on or how I feel, I have no comment."

Today is the 22nd day of the strike with 13 more games canceled pushing the toll to 274 since the walkout began June 12.

Pooley leads Western on last shot

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Don Pooley was shocked when he holed a 60-foot bunker shot on the final hole Thursday for a 1-shot lead in the opening round of the 78th Western Open.

"I couldn't believe it," said the 29-year-old Arizonian after his spectacular finish capped a 4-under-par 68.

"IT TOOK three bounces and popped right in the hole. I was just trying to get it up and down, to save my par. That's the longest bunker shot I ever made."

It climaxed a wild finish for the 1980 B.C. Open champion, a finish in which he saved par four times in the last six holes, passing Greg Powers, Jim Simons, Bill Rogers and Joe Inman.

Only Inman was a late afternoon finisher with his 69. The other three all had posted 69s much earlier on the sunny, windy day, long before these reseeded greens at Butler National Golf Club were tracked up.

"I scrambled well all day long. I shot the best score possible," said Pooley, trying to shake a slump that saw him miss the cut in his last two starts.

"I hadn't been hitting the ball well. I hadn't been putting well. I haven't concentrated well. I hope things are turning around now," said Pooley, who won $157,973 in 1980, 18th best on tour. His winnings this season are just $32,251.

POWERS, MEANTIME, converted unusual strategy — 10 1 irons off the tees — into his 69, a move that drew Lee Trevino's criticism.

Trevino, playing for the first time here since being struck by lightning in the 1975 Western, posted a 71, good for a seven-way tie with J.C. Snead, Jim Colbert, Mike Peck, Andy North, Mike Reid and Tom Jenkins.

Told of Powers' uncustomary tee shots, Trevino cracked, "He got away with it today. If he hits that many 1 irons the rest of the year, he'll wind up the size of Chi Chi Rodriguez.

"He'll starve."

Powers, 35, a former club pro trying his second fling at the tour, defended his strategy.

"I can hit a 1 iron 240 to 250 yards," he said after the club helped him to two of his four birdies. "I hit it very low, very straight. It's a good club for this course."

BUTLER NATIONAL, a different test for the professionals this year with its new greens and fairways, proved a difficult opponent for some of the game's glamour names.

Jack Nicklaus, entering the Western for the first time in 12 years, struggled with a balky putter and finished with a 75. The sport's all-time money champion may have trouble making the 36-hole cut Friday.

He didn't look at that way, saying, "My objective is not to make the cut, but to get back into the tournament. A good round can put you right back on a tough course. And this course is tough."

Masters champion Tom Watson, the game's leading money-winner this year, took a triple bogey 8 on the seven hole, turned in 41 and settled for 78.

Jerry Pate, last week's winner at Memphis, had difficulty with the back nine, shooting a 40 for a 75.

SCOTT SIMPSON, who won with a course record 281 last year by putting on dirt greens, posted a 76.

Only 12 players of the field of 156 could solve par of 72 over the 7,097-yard course in suburban Chicago.

Rogers opened with three straight birdies. Still, it didn't over-excite the 29-year-old Texan.

"Even with a start like that," he said, "you can't lay back, feel comfortable and cozy. This course is known to fight back."

Simons, 31, a two-time winner in 10 years on the tour, also took advantage of a swift start. He birdied three of his first four holes and said his tiredness may have been of benefit.

"I'm so worn out, I was really relaxed today," said Simons, playing in his fourth consective tournament.

An all-time weekday Western crowd of 26,200 turned out, breaking the old mark by almost 6,000.

"I think the baseball strike has a lot to do with it. We've got the only game in town," said Trevino. "You could have 140,000 fans here this week."

The winner will pick up $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 in this, the second oldest tour tournament.

Portions of the final rounds Saturday and Sunday will be carried by CBS-TV.

Valenzuela receives honors in Mexico

By Melvin Durslag
Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES -- Just about the time the American public was getting to know him, Fernando Valenzuela was interrupted by an unaccountable work stoppage -- the cue for our hero to take off south of the border on business vital to the fatherland.

The mayor of Mexico City was anxious to give him the key to the community, and the President, Senor Lopez-Portillo, then decided to welcome him as a guest at the National Palace, making Fernando the first nine-game winner in history to be accorded such an honor.

AT A CLINIC in Mexico City where Fernando was presiding, some 25,000 youngsters turned out, dredging advice from the venerable old pro, who told them (a) to get an education before thinking too seriously about beisbol, and (b) not to throw the screwball and curve prematurely for fear of wrecking a good pitching arm in the event the kids fail to stay in school.

The following morning, it was the pleasure of the Mexico City police chief to entertain Valenzuela, dispatching a helicopter to bring him to his home for breakfast.

"Then we had dinner at the home of my sister, Berta, who lives in Mexico City," says Antonio DeMarco, the manager of Valenzuela who now does business in Los Angeles. "My sister is a marvelous cook. I mean, sopa de fideo, carne asada, guacamole, fruit, cakes and flour tortillas -- the kind enjoyed by Mexican people of the north."

OTHERS, IT seems, prefer their tortillas made of corn meal .

"Well, while the family dinner was taking place at my sister's," continues DeMarco, "word got around the neighborhood that Fernando was dining with us, and 100 kids surrounded the house, starting a chant 'Val-en-zue-la, Val-en-zue-la.' Fernando went outside to talk to the kids and throw the ball around with them."

Then, by motorcycle escort, it was the airport, where a large mob waited to bid Fernando goodbye, and it was back to Los Angeles, from where he would depart next on the infamous trail to Tijuana and Mexicali to participate in two semipro games declared outlaw by the Dodgers and a sin against nature.

Would the Dodgers fine him?

"If they do," Valenzuela told his manager, "We'll pay it."

Which, of course, was a tactical error in a trade-out situation. What he should have told the Los Angeles management was, "I'll pay you what I owe on that fine -- and you pay me what you owe for all those ticket sales."

AT THE LAST survey, Valenzuela was said to be drawing some $40,000 a year from the Dodgers, meaning he hasn't been suffering during the strike as, say, Dave Winfield has.

And assuming the conflict ends and the players go back to tilling their oars, DeMarco promises that Valenzuela will not ask for any contract renegotiation this season.

"We Mexicans respect our word," says DeMarco, "and our word in this case means that there will be no changing of a valid contract. Next year, we will have something to say about new terms."

"But, to date, your pitcher has won only nine games," the manager was reminded.

"That's true," he responded. "Others probably will win more than Fernando. But I take the position that a singer doesn't have to be Caruso, as long as he fills up the place. And Fernando is doing a good job of that at all parks. He will be worth good money."

DeMarco won't say publicly how much, but outsiders are guessing that if Valenzuela returns successfully to the pits and finishes out the 1981 season as he started it, he will make a modest request of upward of $700,000 to perform his art in 1982.

"Things have been going very well commercially for Fernando," says DeMarco, the English-speaking voice of the pitcher who turns 21 on Nov. 1. "While we were in Mexico City, Fernando did an endorsement for a bread company, which paid him $10,000, tax free."

Coles leads Jackson Classic

DORION, Quebec (AP) — Golfers normally try to avoid water like the plague, but Janet Coles spent 12 holes looking for some in the opening round of the Peter Jackson Classic.

"I ran three miles this morning before teeing off, and I got extra dehydrated," Coles said. "I couldn't find any drinking water on the course for 12 holes.

"I was just dying out there. It was starting to bother me and give me a headache."

Her parched throat satisfied, the fifth-year touring pro birdied three of the last nine holes and finished with a 4-under-par 68, good for a share of the lead after Thursday's play in the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at the 6,287-yard Summerlea Golf Club course.

Sandra Haynie, an LPGA member since 1961, posted a 68 earlier in the day and seemed destined to be the leader until Coles completed her round.

"I hit the ball better as I went along," said Coles. "I finally started playing well the last couple of rounds last week.

"I'm much more consistent now on the back nine. I feel I've gained confidence."

Special Effort takes step toward Rainbow Futurity

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Special Effort took an easy win and his first step toward the estimated $600,000 Rainbow Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The expanded 27-race card Thursday was devoted entirely to first-round eliminafion trials for the Rainbow Futurity.

Special Effort made his Rainbow bid in Thursday's 23rd race and boomed to an extremely impressive 2 3-4-length win. Jockey W.R. Hunt obviously kept a snug hold on the colt - since the win was virtually assured when Special Effort stormed into an early lead. Despite the tight reins, Special Effort kept opening up his advantage. His clocking of 20:31 seconds was one of the best of the long afternoon.

Here are Thursday's results:

Stockers for Foyt?

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A.J. Foyt says it appears that he'll be a stock car driver for at least the rest of this year.

The four-time Indianapolis 500 winner has found himself wedged firmly in the middle of the Indy car sanctioning dispute between the U.S. Auto Club and Championship Auto Racing Teams.

So far this season, Foyt has driven in only two Indy car races — the Indy 500 and the Pocono 500, which he won. Those happen to be the only two championship car races sanctioned by USAC this season.

The rest of the Indy car schedule — 10 races — is under the auspices of CART. Foyt has skipped the first three and the 46-year-old Texan figures he'll also miss the rest.

"It don't look like I'll be at Michigan (for the 500-mile race on July 19)," Foyt said Thursday after qualifying his stock car for Saturday's Firecracker 400 Grand National race at Daytona International Speedway.

"It don't look like they need me," he added. "I'd hoped they'd recognize my NASCAR license, but they say I got to join CART. And I don't want to do that."

Foyt has been a member of both USAC and CART, but quit both organizations during the long battle between the two of them for control of the Indy car circuit.

Asked if his problems with CART meant he'd be strictly a stock car driver the rest of the year, Foyt replied, "It kind of looks that way. I'm hoping to run at Talladega and Charlotte and maybe a couple more."

Looking at the ongoing feud between the sanctioning bodies, Foyt said, "This has got to be solved ... I've got mine, but it's the little boys trying to come up in racing who ain't got a shot.

"It's like the baseball strike; it's hurting the little guys the most."

CART levied 60-day suspensions against several drivers who participated in the Pocono race on June 21. Two of them, Tom Sneva and Dick Simon, then went to court to try to get an injunction to race last weekend in the CART program at Atlanta.

The judge found for the drivers, but kept them out of the twin 125-mile Atlanta races for what he called "safety reasons."

"I sure wanted to be there (Atlanta)," Foyt said. "But I didn't want to go to court over it. They're acting like kids, the whole bunch of 'em.

"They (CART) have got to open their eyes. I won $100,000 at Pocono. What'd they make at Atlanta?

"The sponsors are definitely sick of the fighting," Foyt added. "They like to go to the big 500 miles races where they get some recognition."

Everything but baseball

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

It's Saturday afternoon and you turn on your TV set looking for baseball's Game of the Week on NBC. What do you find? Drag racing, boxing, motocross — but no baseball.

It's Monday night and you remember that ABC shows baseball in prime time until Monday Night Football gets underway. So you turn on your set, only to find made-for-TV movies and series pilots — but no baseball.

THE PLAYERS' strike is causing considerable scrambling along network row as executives from NBC and ABC dig up replacement programming for the baseball games that aren't being played.

NBC has come up with another one of those sports anthology shows for Saturday afternoon, with an update on the baseball strike situation taking the place of the usual pre-game show. ABC, meanwhile, has gone to entertainment programming to take the place of its Monday night prime-time baseball.

Both networks are losing some money, although it's too early to estimate how much, because of the two-week-old strike as sponsors seek their own alternatives to baseball.

"There's been a fallout," conceded Tom Merritt of NBC Sports. "Some sponsors have stayed with our anthology program while others have decided to put their money into other things. I'm sure the strike has to have cost some amount of money, but I don't think the difference is all that great."

NBC showed a videotape of Game 6 of the 1975 World Series, between Boston and Cincinnati, on the first Saturday of the strike, then went to the anthology show last week. ABC, which has contracted to show 10 Monday night games and eight more on Sunday afternoons, showed the movie "Elvis" on its first strike night, then went to a pilot for the TV series "Breaking Away" and a made-for-TV movie called "A Last Cry for Help" this week.

"AT THIS stage there's no way of determining how much money this strike will cost us," said Irv Brodsky of ABC Sports. "We've offered four alternative plans for our baseball sponsors, including time on other sports programming or on our entertainment substitutes. Right now we're sitting and waiting, just like everybody else."

Well, not quite everybody else. One network that didn't sit and wait was ESPN, the 24-hour sports cable network whose baseball coverage before the strike had been limited to the college World Series.

"We got involved immediately," said Dave Ogrean of ESPN, which is based in Bristol, Conn., and now boasts more than 10 million subscribers. "We felt this was a terrific opportunity for us to respond to a situation and carve a little more of a niche for ourselves. We decided to fill the void for the baseball fan by providing the best Class AAA minor league baseball we could find."

ESPN JUMPED right into the breach, replacing a scheduled rodeo show on Friday June 12 — the first night major league games were canceled — with an International League game, Tidewater at Columbus.

"The consensus was that it was the best game in town, so let's see what we can do with it," said Ogrean. "Our switchboard lit up with several hundred calls and our viewer mail has been uniformly positive. I can't think of any single spontaneous incident we have done that has generated the volume of reponse this has."

The sponsor response has been fairly positive, too.

"There hasn't been a pell-mell rush of advertisers from other networks to get on our minor-league games," said ESPN's Bob Jeremiah. "But most of our own advertisers were happy about the switch to baseball and I think we did add a couple of new ones."

ESPN has shown six minor-league games so far, using former New York Yankees manager Dick Howser as one of its commentators. It plans to do two more this weekend — Rochester at Syracuse on Sunday night and Richmond at Tidewater on Monday night, both from the International League — and another on July 4. And while ESPN had orginally intended to show Triple A baseball only until the major leaguers came back, Ogrean said the positive response "may force us to rethink that decision."

Of course, the rights fees paid by ESPN to the minor league teams are only a tiny fraction of the estimated $200 million which ABC and NBC have invested in their contract with major league baseball.

BOWLING BEAT

Darrell Hopkins makes youth bowling jump

By Randy Isenberg

On June 21, Darrell Hopkins rolled games of 243-288-212 and 214 for a 743 three-game set and 957 four-gamer to pace bowlers in Midland. Hopkins, one week out of the youth bowling ranks where he has been an outstanding competitior, graduated in style while bowling in the tough Dellwood Scratch Trio League.

Bowling in the same league, Duane Robertson continued his torrid pace with a 269 game and 900 four-game series. Robertson rolled 267-852 on June 14, and he has rolled 900 series in three of the last four weeks.

Mark Land, also bowling extremely well, rolled the highest three-game series this summer, when he rolled a 779 series in the Thursday Nite Mixed League. Land's scores of 253-269 and 257 came while bowling in five person team play, a prestigious accomplishment.

Dot Fielding paced the women bowlers with a 655 three-game set and 852 four game-set while bowling in the Dellwood Scratch Trio League. She rolled games of 226-236 to pace her through the fine series.

Karen Jordan rolled a 606 series on a 257 game while bowling in the Air Park Wednesday Ladies Scratch Trio League.

Rosie Urias, bowling in the Thursday Nite Mixed Five League, rolled games of 195-194-193 for a 582 series.

Tournament Results

Martins Tree Service will represent Air Park Lanes in the Million Dollar Tournament to be held in Las Vegas in August. The team, paced by Terry Armendariz with a 643 series in the second set of the finals, lead a field of six finalists in the six-game bowl off. The team of Armedariz, Martin Villareal, Joe Guzman, Alex Rocha and Paul Armendariz finished 500 pins ahead of its nearest competitor.

Jim Newton edged Duane Robertson to win the June 27 Air Park Scratch Singles Classic.

In the Permian Basin Mixed Handicap Association Tournament held in June, Joe Tidwell won the $200 first prize over Diane Hasseltine. Larry Heffelfinger finished third, Peggy Sweat, Travis White, Terry Pettit, Don Wallace, Gary Leek and Mary McDonald rounded out the top ten finishers.

The next tournament at Air Park will be July 12.

King wields mic not tennis racket

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King is back at Wimbledon with a microphone in her right hand instead of a tennis racket. And she's maintaining a low profile.

"I miss playing, of course, but broadcasting is a fascinating busines and I am tryng to learn it from the ground up," said the 37-year-old former monarch of the ladies' game during a break in her day-long schedule.

'WE START staff conferences at 10 a.m. and we're on the move until 9:30 p.m. or so, nearly a 12-hour day," she said.

Billie Jean is sharing broadcast duties with Dick Enberg and Bud Collins for NBC-TV, which is beaming the final rounds back to the United States.

A familiar and dominant figure at Wimbledon for two decades, during which time she won a record 20 titles, King has been virtually inconspicuous this year.

She slips into the press interview room, takes a seat in the rear of the room and takes voluminous notes. She never joins in the questioning, although the principals in the interrogation are longtime playing companions such as Chris Evert Lloyd, Martina Navratilova, Virginia Wade and Wendy Turnbull.

"I am a novice. I just listen and learn," King said. "Of course, I do interviewing in the studio for TV. I am enjoying it."

SHE IS joining commentary on the men's match as well as the women's, thus setting a TV precedent.

Normally out front and outspoken, King has elected to remain in the background here probably because of the publicity which surrounded the revelation that she had a lesbian afair with a former secretary.

The British tabloids, which normally tend to sensationalism, have kept her discreetly out of the headlines.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 4, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Advice columnist twins Ann Landers and Abigail ("Dear Abby") Van Buren share this birthday with you. Also born on this date: former song and dance man and U.S. Senator George Murphy. Do not allow yourself to become discouraged if professional jealousies seem to slow you down at times. Eventually you will emerge on top, receiving the accolades of friends and competitors alike! Good luck favors the efforts of those involved with the land or real estate. The financial picture reflects steady progress. Romance becomes more exciting than in the past. Realize that no one can always live up to your exalted ideals and make allowances.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Family relationships get a shot in the arm as a result of today's celebrations. You are likely to be more aggressive than usual where romance is concerned. Avoid issuing ultimatums.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain more self-confidence. Family members offer valuable support. Many successful people followed the plan you are outlining for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friendship and fun dominate this Independence Day weekend! You gain a new lease on life, thanks to new social and romantic developments. An old friend may show up unexpectedly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Use your head! Do not snap and crackle at others when under pressure. Heed an old friend's advice regarding a private matter. He or she has your best interests at heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Devote more time to the personal side of your life. A romantic interlude will be the highlight of the day. Make an important change in your lifestyle. Tend to older person's needs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Replace bad habits with good ones! Associate may confirm something that you feared too good to be true. Do not crow! Reach a compromise with someone whose views differ from yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Financial picture shows improvement, thanks to a determined effort to hold down spending. Relatives or neighbors may reveal a secret. Keep confidences. Do not shortchange loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Outdoor activities hold special appeal today. Spend more time with small fry. Romance can be both happy and exciting. Cancel a journey to accommodate the needs of a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A family picnic or dinner may be an important turning point for you and your loved ones. Older person could have something important to say. Be a good listener.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A festive holiday mood takes hold. Young people enjoy experiencing an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic. Romance is favorable. You have much to celebrate!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This is a day for sharing, and for experiencing what it really means to be an American. A new rapport exists between you and loved ones. Your heart is filled with joy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Independence Day cheer is in the air! Include both the young and the old in your celebration plans. If vacationing, enjoy fresh experiences and the company of new friends.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

The presence of high trumps in the dummy often suggests a dummy reversal. Sometimes, even one high trump can be enough.

After North showed the equivalent of a one no trump opening bid with his overcall, South cue-bid the opener's suit in an attempt to locate a 4-4 major fit. When North denied a major, South introduced his long suit, then went on to game when North raised.

West led the king of diamonds and, when dummy appeared, declarer thought the contract would be an absolute cinch. It seemed that one or two spade tricks would be the only losers. But declarer received a rude jolt when, after ruffing the opening lead, he laid down a high trump from his hand and West showed out.

Now declarer could not draw all the trumps, for that would strip both his hand and dummy of trumps and leave him with only ten tricks. Nor could he play on a crossruff, because he might not be able to cash enough hearts to guarantee eleven tricks, and he might get overruffed in spades.

Declarer found a neat way out of his impasse. He crossed to the king of hearts and ruffed a diamond with his remaining low trump. After cashing the queen-jack of trumps, declarer reentered dummy with the ace of spades and used the ace of clubs to draw East's last trump. From his hand, declarer discarded a spade.

It was now a simple matter for declarer to cash the ace of hearts and take two more heart tricks with his queen-jack. That left him with just two spade losers, which he happily conceded to the defenders.

What South did was to increase his trump tricks to six by using two of his trumps as ruffers and scoring four high trumps — the three honors in his hand and the ace in dummy. Added to four heart tricks and the ace of spades, that brought his total to eleven.

Brown seeks help in effort to control fly

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Thursday he is asking other southern states to pressure the U.S. Department of Agriculture to allow aerial spraying to halt a Mediterranean fruit fly infestation in California.

Brown renewed his threat to impose a quarantine to keep unfumigated California produce out of Texas if the infestation is not controlled.

The commissioner is president of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture and said many of the 15 member states run the same risks as Texas of Medfly larvae arriving on fruits and vegetables from California.

The fly destroys citrus and other fruit and vegetable crops.

He said Texas Department of Agriculture field inspectors soon would begin cutting into citrus from California to determine whether Medfly larvae are present.

"We're pushing very hard for California and USDA to begin aerial application to blanket the entire quarantined area. The state of California has spent $22 million trying to control the pest but their hands have been tied," Brown said.

"Aerial application is the only proven method that will work," he added.

A department spokesman said the USDA has prohibited aerial application of pesticides in California.

Brown imposed a quarantine on unfumigated California fruit earlier this year after Medfly larvae were discovered in the Santa Clara and Alameda areas.

California challenged the quarantine in the U.S. supreme Court, which let the quarantine stand. Texas lifted the quarantine after the Medfly outbreak was controlled.

Fruit fly infestation 'uncontrollable'

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The Mediterranean fruit fly infestation of fruit trees was declared "out of control" Thursday and helicopter pilots awaited authority to start spraying a pesticide on orchards.

Threatening letters have been sent to project operators. Some are apparently from Vietnam veterans threatening to "blow those damn helicopters up" before being "sprayed with malathion at home like you got us with Agent Orange in Nam."

"I'm afraid it (the infestation) is uncontrollable from the ground now," said Wayne Granberry, highest ranking member of the eradication project to rid the peninsula south of San Francisco of the insect. "A reasonable person couldn't say it any other way."

Granberry's warning came after word that the fly's larvae have been found in fruit from trees inside areas already heavily treated, meaning officials are losing ground in the rapidly escalating war against the pest in the second year of its outbreak.

The insect thrives on 200 different varieties of fruit, including California's major crops of oranges, peaches, nectarines, figs and apricots.

AGRICULTURE

The state has spent $22 million in the past year trying to fight the infestation, considered a threat to all of California's $14 million a year agricultural industry, although its immediate threat is to a 50-square-mile quarantine area in Santa Clara County, south of San Francisco.

If Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. authorizes aerial application of malathion, spraying would start July 13, officials said. There was no indication when he might make a decision.

Helicopters flying at about 300 feet would release droplets of malathion mixed with a syrupy bait. Twelve ounces of fluid, including 2.4 ounces of malathion, would be applied per acre.

Deputy Attorney General Rod Walston planned to ask a federal judge to invalidate aerial spraying bans by Santa Clara County and several cities in the infested zone.

The number of new larvae discoveries has mounted steadily since discovery of a new Medfly breeding cycle a week ago. More than 45 sites harboring hundreds of larvae have been reported.

The state has begun preparing to handle medical and property claims expected after aerial applications of malathion.

Malathion, described as a "widely used yard and garden pesticide," would be sprayed between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. in six applications a week to 10 days apart. The spraying would last up to two or three months.

The insecticide would fall as "large droplets," and will damage auto paint, according to the Medfly project director Jerry Scribner.

"We do expect some health claims," he added.

But the state Food and Agriculture Department said the spraying would pose "virtually no toxic hazard to individuals" touched by the spray or who are in contact with "residues which would remain for a short time after applications are completed."

The department said the chemical would settle rapidly and the possibility of breathing harmful amounts would be "insignificant."

Consumer group critical of sugar price supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director David Stockman was accused by a consumer advocacy group Thursday of abandoning his free-market philosophy for a few Democratic votes on President Reagan's budget cuts.

Joanne Weistling of the Consumer Federation of America said the administration's agreement to accept a sugar price support program in return for those votes could cost consumers $2 billion next year and as much as $8 billion by 1985.

"Before he cut the sugar deal, Stockman used to call requests for price bail-outs what they are — dog-eared claims," Ms. Weistling said. "Stockman was right before he switched sides."

Record world coffee crop brewing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A huge world coffee crop is in the works, a record harvest expected to total 92.4 million bags for the 1981-82 year, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The estimate was the first by the department for the coming year. It would be a 14 percent increase from the revised estimate of 82.7 million bags produced in 1980-81.

Exportable production, which represents total harvested coffee minus domestic consumption in producing countries, was estimated at 73.2 million bags, a 17 percent increase from 62.6 million in 1980-81.

Officials said that much of the increase will be the result of newer, higher-yielding varieties of coffee trees that were planted because of the high coffee prices of recent years.

Wimbledon fans greet Lady Diana with applause

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Lady Diana Spencer received a standing ovation when she made a surprise appearance Thursday at the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

The 14,000 fans awaiting start of the semifinal matches clapped, cheered and stamped their feet as Lady Diana, fiancee of heir apparent Prince Charles, walked into center court and took her seat in the royal box.

It had been rumored that Lady Diana would attend the final matches of the famed tournament, but there had been no official word of a visit.

Lady Diana, who turned 20 on Wednesday, marries Prince Charles July 29.

•

TORONTO (AP) — The marriage of pianist Paul Drake and Princess Marie Christine Daphne of Belgium hit a sour note after little more than a month.

The couple, who married secretly in Florida on May 23, separated this week, and Drake says "it's over."

The 43-year-old pianist said he didn't know why the marriage failed. "You'd better ask her," he said Wednesday.

The 30-year-old princess — whose step-brother is King Baudouin — moved into the home of a well-known art dealer and left a letter asking that she and her husband "remain good friends," according to Drake.

"I don't want a friend," said Drake, the widowed father of three daughters. "I wanted a wife."

"Whether we get a divorce, a separation, or an annulment, I don't know. But it's over."

•

RUSSELLVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Carter aged 20 years during his four in the White House, says his brother Billy.

"I spent a good bit of time with Jimmy this past weekend and again Monday," the younger Carter said Wednesday.

"He hated to lose, but I think he's adjusting baek to normal life, if you can call a man with seven or eight Secret Service men following him around still a normal life," Carter said of his older brother.

"He's relaxing. He's writing a book and doing a lot of trout fishing."

Carter said the rigors of the presidency aged his brother 20 years, 10 in the final five months.

Carter, who recently moved to Haleyville, Ala., to work for a mobile home manufacturer, was in Russellville to serve as grand marshal of a Fourth of July weekend parade.

•

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Height does not mean anything. The only space barriers you maybe have to conquer is the one between your ears," says actor Billy Barty, the first "little person" to get a star on Hollywood Boulevard.

Barty, 56, who stands 3 feet 9 inches, has been acting, singing and dancing for more than half a century in several hundred television shows and some 150 films, including "Day of the Locusts" and "Foul Play."

Lady Bird loses shopping rights

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson, widow of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, said Thursday she will obey Air Force instructions that she stop shopping at the Bergstrom Air Force Base commissary.

The Air Force Commissary Service says its facilities, which offer products at prices generally below retail, are reserved for active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents. They are off-limits to former presidents and their families unless they otherwise qualify.

The former first lady, who has just returned to the LBJ Ranch from a trip to China with fellow directors of the National Geographic Society, said in a statement issued Thursday by her Austin office:

"When Lyndon and I began to use Bergstrom's commissary, I understood it was a privilege we were entitled to.... Although I have used that privilege less frequently in the past few years, I regret very much to learn that it was not authorized. The information that this privilege was withdrawn reached my office just two weeks ago, and I will certainly abide by that regulation."

Last month, there were reports that former President Carter's staff had inquired whether he was entitled to privileges at military bases. However, Jody Powell, Carter's spokesman, said Carter was inquiring only about the policy for former presidents.

"We had no idea of the practice, but apparently it has been going on for several years," Lt. Col. Julius DuBois, a commissary service official at Kelly Air Force Base here, said of the Johnson family's commissary shopping.

DuBois said it was confirmed that a kitchen maid for the Johnson household had been making monthly trips to the Bergstrom facility in Austin, about 70 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

He said that several years ago, while still in office, Johnson had asked an aide to procure a "green card," authorizing personal use of such military facilities as barber shops, post exchanges and commissaries.

After he left office in January 1969, both Johnson and his wife would travel to Bergstrom to stock up on such sundries as groceries, paper goods and soap, DuBois said.

Apparently after Johnson's death in 1973, the card was used to permit purchases by family members or household staffers, he added.

DuBois said the practice came to light as a result of a directive issued March 19 ordering a halt to reissuance of the green cards.

He said the practice eventually would have surfaced, but the process was speeded up by the recent denial of shopping privileges to Carter.

Bar not enough to cover airing of bare backsides

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials of independent station KHTV inserted a line to cover the bare backsides of a nudist group interviewed on a syndicated morning talk show, but that wasn't good enough for some irate mothers.

"We had about 35 calls. Most were from mothers who said they didn't want their children to watch that kind of program," said Gene Jacobsen, general manager of Channel 39.

The nudists were guests Wednesday on the "Stanley Siegel Show," broadcast locally at 8:30 a.m. Station officials had been showing situation comedy reruns in that time slot until Monday's debut of the 30-minute show.

Ann Odre may soon be released

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Ann Odre, the 59-year-old widow who was wounded when an assassin tried to kill Pope John Paul II, may be discharged from Buffalo General Hospital next week, a hospital spokeswoman said Thursday.

"Mrs. Odre is doing fine and probably will be released next week," said Bonnie Cotter, assistant director of public relations.

Mrs. Odre was on a group pilgrimage to European religious sites when she was wounded at St. Peter's Square in Rome during the attempt on the pontiff's life May 13.

Sawyer new head of UT-Tyler

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Sawyer has been named acting president of the University of Texas at Tyler, succeeding James Stewart Jr., who resigned.

Sawyer is now vice president for fiscal affairs at UT-Tyler. UT System Chancellor E.D. Walker said Tuesday that Sawyer will serve as acting president until a new president takes office.

"The list of candidates has been narrowed to three," said Walker, who did not identify the candidates.

UT regents were to meet Wednesday to select the new president.

Tattoo art attracting women

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — It takes all kinds to keep a tattoo shop in business, and "Harpoon" Barry Welch, a 33-year-old tattoo artist, says that's just what he takes: all kinds. But these days there are more and more women.

"It's not all just sailors and foreign people. Nowadays, your everyday person is walking into a tattoo parlor — your middle-aged housewife, your secretary," Welch said.

"I even had a 65-year-old retired schoolteacher. She said the only reason she wanted a tattoo was for conversation at her bridge party."

Young girls often get small tattoos on their buttocks so their parents won't know they have them, he said.

"Some people want them in the wierdest places," Welch said. "One guy wanted a bird on his ankle."

Most women who come into Harpoon Barry's Tattoo Parlor ask for a rose or a rosebud, he said.

"Usually, they want it on their back or on a breast," he said. "I had four girls come in one day, and each one wanted it someplace different."

To complement a peg leg, Welch, a former ship crewman, is himself adorned with images of dragons, parrots and eagles.

Herzik to retire

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — G.R. Herzik, deputy state health commissioner for environmental and consumer health protection, is retiring after 44 years of state employment.

David Cochran, chief of the health department bureau of environmental health, will succeed Herzik.

Herzik joined the state health department in 1937, after teaching at Texas A&M and working for the state highway department.

Syphilis cases rise

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The number of reported cases of syphilis in Texas is up by 41 percent, according to the Department of Health.

State officials said Tuesday that 2,039 cases of syphilis were reported in the first five months of 1981, compared to the 1,444 cases reported in the same months in 1980.

The 1981 figures were the highest in the nation.

Clements names aide

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has named former Rep. Hilary Doran of Del Rio as his executive assistant.

Doran, 44, has been on Clements' legislative liaison staff the past two sessions of the Legislature.

Doran, who served in the House from 1967 to 1975, will continue on a leave of absence from the law firm of Doran, Gulley and Etzel in Del Rio.
