Club seeks peak experience for '88

Associated Press

Millions of Americans welcomed the new year Friday in outdoor chill and indoor warmth with parties, colorful parades and college football bowl games. Thirty members of a Colorado club even climbed 14,000-foot-high Pike's Peak in howling winds and set off fireworks visible 60 miles away in Denver.

Crowds along the 5½-mile route of the Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif., estimated by police at "just under a million," watched the 60-float procession festooned with nearly 15 million flowers, 22 bands and 275 horses. Four spectators, a parade mechanic and another person were injured in parade accidents.

In downtown Dallas, thousands of spectators braved temperatures in the low 30s to watch the Cotton Bowl parade.

On the East Coast, Philadelphia celebrated in traditional fashion with the Mummers Parade featuring comics and string bands strutting in sequins and feathers. Early morning rain caused an hourlong delay.

"If you don't march on New Year's Day, it's not the same," said Tim McShea, 32, who was wearing a chicken suit and orange claws. Last year the parade was postponed twice because of inclement weather.

President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev exchanged optimistic New Year's greetings, each expressing hope that they will reach a second arms control treaty in the first half of the new year.

In Los Angeles, random gunfire from New Year's Eve partygoers killed at least two men and officers seized a small arsenal while arresting seven shooters.

Reports of shots heralding the end of 1987 were widespread in Southern California, but law enforcement agencies said the practice, which had become a kind of ritual in recent years, appeared to have fallen off slightly.

In Detroit, police said no injuries were reported as a result of random gunshots.

"I had planned to go to my basement, but this year the shooting started before midnight so I hit the floor and sat away from any openings," said Jeffery Waters, who said a bullet came through the roof of her sun porch.

Despite chilly weather, large crowds gathered in New York, Boston and Washington, D.C., to ring in the new year.

An estimated 350,000 people jammed into New York's Times Square, raucously counting down the final seconds as a glowing ball in the shape of a "Big Apple" descended a flagpole to begin 1988.

In Boston, some 500,000 people crowded into the area around the Common for the city's 12th annual First Night celebration, highlighted by a parade, outdoor art events, performances and a 15-minute burst of midnight fireworks.

Tens of thousands filled The Old Post Office in Washington for the fifth annual New Year's party in the nation's capital. At midnight, a lighted prototype of the Postal Service's 1988 Love Stamp was lowered from the tower of the landmark building.

On New Year's Day in Boston, the L Street Brownies turned out for their 84th annual swim in the 40-degree water of Boston Harbor, some reminding the well-bundled onlookers that they take the plunge every day.

Not to be outdone, 100 members of the Newport, R.I., Polar Bears club jumped into the 36-degree Long Island Sound to raise money for a group that looks for missing children. At least 1,000 onlookers donated or pledged $3,000.

Texans brave chill to watch Dallas' Cotton Bowl parade

Associated Press

Thousands of spectators braved temperatures in the low 30s to watch marching bands, majorettes and miniature horses at the nationally televised Cotton Bowl parade in downtown Dallas.

The hour-and-a-half New Year's Day parade preceded the 30th annual Cotton Bowl football game, where a sellout crowd watched Southwest Conference Champion Texas A&M defeat Notre Dame 35-10.

At least one Notre Dame fan at the parade found the Sunbelt weather a little too much like home.

"This is like South Bend, Indiana," said Dave Overdorf, who made the trip to the Cotton Bowl with his family. "It's quite cold. It's clear, of course, but it could be a little bit warmer."

Attractions at the parade ranged from a giant, gold-decorated cotton ball and miniature horses to the new Maid of Cotton Angela Herbert of Phoenix, Ariz., and an antique carriage bearing the father and sister of Notre Dame's Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown, a Dallas native.

The parade also included such traditional units as the Kilgore, Texas, Junior College Rangerettes, a U.S. Army horse-drawn field artillery group from Fort Sill, Okla., square dancers and numerous high school and college bands, including the Texas Aggie military band and the Notre Dame Fighting Irish.

In Wichita Falls, residents gathered up their dried out Christmas trees for the annual New Year's Day bonfire fueled by the trees.

And many Texans kept the Southern tradition of eating black-eyed peas for good luck in the New Year.

Tom Verstuyft's family has grown black-eyed peas on their Bexar County farm for three generations, but he said he would be eating frozen legumes in the traditional New Year's Day custom.

"We don't have any fresh black-eyed peas," he said. "They are out of season. We harvested the last ones about three weeks ago. And this year we even had a long season because of the warm fall. But we'll eat black-eyed peas on New Year's. We put some up in the freezer."

For the fifth year, a coalition of organizations joined to sponsor efforts to keep drunken drivers off Texas streets New Year's Eve.

More than 1,000 Houstonians who had a little too much to drink New Year's Eve took advantage of free cab rides from the Yellow Cab Co., a spokesman said.

Lloyd Fitch, communications manager for the company, said 47 cabs handled 1,080 calls New Year's Eve.

"We were extremely busy," he said. "It was highly successful."

Jerry Johns, president of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said thousands of bars, hotels and restaurants participated in a program to serve non-alcoholic drinks to designated drivers.

State's 29 traffic fatalities include 4-year-old killed by runaway car

Associated Press

At least 29 people, including a 4-year-old child killed by a runaway car, have died on Texas roadways in New Year's holiday traffic accidents, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said Friday night.

The DPS predicts 35 people will perish on the state's roads before the tally that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday ends at midnight Sunday.

"We've still got two full days to go, so this is a pretty high count for being only about halfway through the period," DPS spokesman Mike Cox said. "A great many of them involved people not wearing seatbelts. The level of alcohol-related accidents is about the same as usual — about half."

Among the latest accidents reported Friday, Ashley L. Standridge, 4, of Watauga, was killed in auto-pedestrian accident at 6:44 p.m. Thursday in the Fort Worth suburb of North Richland Hills, Cox said.

Two Midlanders killed in separate traffic accidents

Two Midlanders were killed in separate traffic accidents over the New Year's holiday, the Department of Public Safety reports.

Dimas Juarez Gomez, 21, died when his pickup truck veered off Farm Road 1053, 21 miles north of Fort Stockton.

The truck Gomez was driving overturned around 3 a.m. Friday. He was not wearing a seatbelt, DPS officials said.

In a separate accident, a Midland teen was killed and another remained in critical condition late Friday night at Midland Memorial Hospital after they were thrown from a pickup truck New Year's Eve.

Thomas Gordon O'Briant, 17, was killed around 10 p.m. Thursday after being thrown from a 1974 Ford pickup he was driving about 4 miles east of Midland on Farm Road 307, according to DPS reports.

O'Briant was pronounced dead at 10:50 p.m. Thursday by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine at the scene.

Reagan, Gorbachev exchange optimistic new year's greetings

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev exchanged optimistic New Years' greetings Friday, expressing mutual hope they will reach a second arms control treaty within six months.

But Reagan also insisted he will pursue his Star Wars missile defense, a program that has continued to evoke fierce Soviet opposition.

"Perhaps we can have a treaty ready to sign by our meeting in the spring. The world prays that we will," the president said in his address, taped for broadcast on state-run Soviet television. "We on the American side are determined to try."

The two leaders have agreed to hold their fourth summit in Moscow during the first half of 1988.

Gorbachev echoed Reagan's positive tone, saying, "We are ready to continue fruitfully the negotiations on reducing strategic arms, with a view to signing a treaty to that effect, even in the first half of this year."

Three U.S. networks, ABC, NBC and CNN, carried the Soviet Communist Party general secretary's five-minute remarks. CBS declined to carry it in its entirety, saying it would use portions in its newscasts.

Reagan spoke from the White House's Roosevelt Room, with the Nobel Peace Prize that was awarded to President Theodore Roosevelt visible on the mantelpiece in the background.

The Soviet leader appeared in a wood-paneled office, with a traditional Russian New Year's tree — a "Yolka" — adorned with glass ornaments in the background. Before and after he spoke, a picture showed the huge Red Star that is perched atop the Kremlin and then panned to showed the entire ornate building brightly lit at night.

In his remarks, Gorbachev said he was willing "without delay" to address the problem of cutting conventional forces in Europe, and that he was "ready for interaction" to resolve other differences, including those involving regional conflicts.

With the televised exchanges, the two leaders renewed a goodwill gesture first accomplished in 1986. But the Kremlin vetoed Reagan's attempt to repeat the message exchange last year in the wake of bruised superpower relations after the failed Reykjavik summit.

Despite sore points over such issues as the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, or Soviet demands that Reagan drop his space-based missile defense, the good feelings in the wake of the latest summit propelled the new exchange.

Both men said they looked back on the past year, and their December summit in Washington, as a first step toward a world with fewer nuclear weapons. Both nations, once allies, could work to resolve other differences as well, they said.

"The past year ended with an event which can be regarded as a good omen," Gorbachev said. "We are entering the New Year with hope for continued progress, progress toward a safer world."

Reagan called the accord banning intermediate-range nuclear weapons "a history-making step" toward reducing nuclear arsenals, but added that it was "just a beginning" since the knottier problem of cutting strategic, or longer-range weapons, was still on the table.

The pact to slash by half the strategic weapon arsenals is seen as more troublesome to achieve because it requires stringent verification, or anti-cheating, measures.

The president inserted in his address a promotion of his space-based Strategic Defense Initiative.

"Both American and the Soviet Union have an opportunity to develop a defensive shield against ballistic missiles, a defensive shield that will threaten no one," Reagan said. "For the sake of a safer peace, I am committed to pursuing the possibility that technology offers."

Unicorn hunters not 'on a roll' despite plentiful game

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — People who think they're on the "cutting edge" of society by practicing "safe sex" in "alternative lifestyles" should relearn the English language, a group of word sleuths said Friday.

Those are examples from a crowd of words and phrases that made the 1988 New Year's Dishonor List of Words Banished from the Queen's English, developed annually by the Unicorn Hunters of Lake Superior State University at a big party on New Year's Eve.

Also on this year's list were redundancies, including "secluded privacy" and "free gift," and government lingo like "trickle-down effect" and using "task" as a verb.

The group said the "oxymoron for the 1988 campaign year is 'political science,'" and wondered what kind of car is there other than a "road car."

The Unicorn Hunters, a nationwide group of thousands of people who pay $5 for a lifetime membership, have been publishing their list of banished words since 1976. The word sleuths take written submissions from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15.

Peter Skinner and Trudie Mason of Montreal nominated "safe sex." They suggested that the phrase be sentenced to life in prison with Dr. Ruth Westheimer, a syndicated sex adviser.

Also on the list this year are:

— "Womanizer." The hunters wondered if anyone could be a "manizer."

— "Alternative lifestyle." John C. Sherwood of Marshall, Mich., wrote: "Every way of life is an alternative. This phrase is just a safe description of something we'd rather ignore."

Waco activist relates problems suffered by refusenik with tumor

WACO (AP) — When Evelyn Hoffman learned that Soviet Jewish refusenik Izolda Tufeld had arrived in the United States for medical treatment, she was elated — for about 10 seconds.

That's because the local Jewish activist then discovered that Ms. Tufeld can stay only three months and that the woman's ailing husband, Vladimir Tufeld, remains in Moscow.

The Tufelds have been petitioning to leave the Soviet Union and join their son, Igor Tufeld, in Israel since 1977. Both suffer serious medical problems — she has a brain tumor and her husband suffers from gallstones and urological and back problems.

Mrs. Tufeld, who arrived in Virginia Wednesday, will be treated free of charge by Johns Hopkins Hospital neurosurgeon Dr. Henry Brem in Baltimore, Md.

The Waco Hadassah, a Jewish women's group, has been working for the Tufelds' release about seven years, along with other U.S. groups. Ms. Hoffman is a member of an Indianapolis, Ind.-based group called The Tufeld Committee.

Her first reaction to the news was happy surprise, she said, until she heard that Mrs. Tufeld's stay will last only three months.

"That already dampened my spirit, and then the final line" — that Vladimir remains in Moscow — "was the last blow," she said Thursday.

The Soviets, in essence, said "you must come back, and to make sure you come back, we'll keep your husband," Ms. Hoffman said, adding that she believes the action is cruel.

Sandra Goldberg, co-chairwoman of the Soviet Jewry Task Force in West Palm Beach, Fla., told Ms. Hoffman Thursday that Ms. Tufeld "was crying and carrying on, she did not want to leave her husband...because she didn't know if she'll ever see him again."

Three things contributed to the limited release, Ms. Hoffman said — her son's activities in the United States on behalf of his parents, interested U.S. groups and summit pressure.

The Soviets are sensitive to pressure, Hoffman said, urging interested people to join a mail campaign to get Tufeld out of the Soviet Union.

The Tufelds were labled refuseniks in 1977 after their son, a vocal dissident, was granted permission to leave. Tufeld, 60, is a former electronics engineer. Mrs. Tufeld, 57, was jailed three times for activism. Refuseniks in the Soviet Union are "nonpersons," Ms. Hoffman said.

Three years ago, Mrs. Tufeld started losing muscle skills, but local physicians did not treat her for more than a year.

"They kept telling them the CATscan machine was broken and it took more than a year to get it fixed," Ms. Hoffman said. Computerized Axial Tomography scans examine the soft tissues of the body.

"It was because she was a dissident. That's the way they treat them," she said.

Mrs. Tufeld was operated on in the Soviet Union and the tumor was benign.

Brem, who will operate on Mrs. Tufeld in a two-stage procedure, obtained the Soviet CATscans and told Goldberg the apple-size tumor "had grown back, and he didn't think they got it all out the first time," Ms. Hoffman said.

FATALS

The child's mother was carrying her and walking behind a car that had been left parked with the motor running. A 6-year-old inside the car knocked it into reverse, sending it crashing into the pair. The mother was in critical condition Friday night.

Billy Paul Lyon, 57, of Axtell was killed at 2:05 Friday morning when his car was involved in to two-car broadside collision in Waco.

Mary Evelyn Edson, 64, of Othello, Wash., was killed when her motor home ran off Interstate 10 about two miles north of Balmorhea and overturned at 3:15 p.m. Friday.

James E. Pike, 17, of Richland Hills was a passenger in a vehicle that was hit head-on at 10:58 p.m. Thursday in North Richland Hills. Denese M. Davis, 19 of Fort Worth, was also riding in that vehicle, and like Pike, died.

The vehicle's driver was in critical condition Friday night, and the other vehicle's driver was arrested for driving while intoxicated, Cox said.

William Burden, 15, of Jacksonville, died at 9:05 a.m. Friday in a Tyler hospital of injuries suffered in an accident that killed Tawnya L. Harrison, 16, also of Jacksonville.

The two were passengers in a pickup that ran off U.S. 69 on a curve and struck two trees about four miles south of Jacksonville at 3:15 a.m. Friday.

Other accidents included DPS trooper Ernest L. Smith, 24, of Beaumont, who was killed early Friday when a pickup truck driven by his brother, Haywood C. Smith IV of Port Arthur, went out of control and struck a concrete pillar on I-10 in Chambers County.

Cox said DPS investigators believe Haywood Smith, who also died in the accident, may have fallen asleep at the wheel. Neither man wore a seat belt.

In the 102-hour DPS traffic death count over Christmas, authorities had predicted 42 fatalities, but reported 36 deaths.

DEATHS

Darla Graham, 15, also of Midland, remained in critical condition Friday night with head injuries at Midland Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Another truck passenger, Midlander Robin Banks, 15, was treated and released from the hospital Thursday night, DPS reports said.

Ms. Banks was not thrown from the truck, a DPS official said.

The truck was traveling westbound on FM 307 when a right rear tire blew out, reports said. O'Briant drove the truck about 700 feet with the flat tire before losing control and veering to the left and causing the truck to roll three times, DPS reports said.

None of the individuals was wearing seat belts, DPS officials said.

In other law enforcement reports, a house south of Midland was heavily damaged by fire Friday, according to Midland Fire Department reports.

Fire officials said fireworks ignited grass, and the resulting blaze spread to a house — located on State Highway 349, about 1½ miles south of U.S. Interstate 20 — around 11:49 a.m. New Year's Day.

Four fire department units responded to the fire at the home occupied by Luis A. Suacedo.

About a dozen cold-water lovers in Kenosha, Wis., made their annual foray into Lake Michigan, which was 30 degrees, and in Chicago, scuba-diving members of the 12-Fathom Dolphin Club took their annual plunge in the lake.

Several fatal fires marred the new year, including one in Los Angeles where firefighters were unable to save a woman and three children in a burning apartment even though they could hear scratching through a door that was secured by deadbolts.

New federal regulations limiting carry-on luggage went into effect with little fanfare. United spokesman Joe Hopkins said in Chicago that the new regulations only slightly modified the airline's practice.

Six college football bowl games were being played Friday.

There were other New Year's celebrations:

— Near Colorado Springs, Colo., 30 members of a climbers club reached the summit of Pike's Peak and set off a 20-minute fireworks extravaganza that could be seen in Denver, 60 miles to the north.

"It was terribly cold," said David Kosley, the club's newest member. "We figured the wind chill to be between 65 and 80 below zero. The actual temperature was about 10 or 15 below."

— In Philadelphia, about a dozen people gathered at the Betsy Ross House as officials laid an evergreen wreath with a red, white and blue bow at the tomb of the legendary flagmaker on the 236th anniversary of her birth.

— In Kansas, two Army lieutenants from Fort Riley jumped out of an airplane over the prairie at the stroke of midnight. The two, carrying flashlights visible for three miles, landed safely at the Wamego airport.

"It just seems like a good way to start a leap year," said Lt. Bryan Welch.

UNICORN

— "On a roll," as in "That's his third touchdown tonight. He's on a roll." Being on a roll is fine for hamburgers, hot dogs or sesame seeds but not people, the hunters said.

— "Irregardless" for regardless. The group called use of irregardless "an irritating irregularity."

— "Cutting edge" as in "the cutting edge of fashion or research." Jack Dietrich of Albuquerque warned, "Excessive use suggests banishment before someone is slashed to ribbons."

— "To grow cut flowers." The group said, "If this is a scientific breakthrough, banishment is revoked."

— "Orientate." The group said "orient" is the correct word. "Orientate is another example of the trend toward polysyllabificationizing," according to the hunters.

— "Garageable," as in "the new Chevy Astro is roomy inside yet fully garageable."

— "Task," as a verb. The hunters said the word was "first heard in Washington, D.C., and quickly transmitted in grant applications and legislative directives to the rest of the country."

— "Living in poverty." The phrase was nominated by Linda Flusher of Ohio, who said: "I am not living in poverty. I am poor and living in Columbus."

STATE

State bars, nightclubs and restaurants had to be extra careful about allowing people to overindulge because of a new law which clears the way for lawsuits to be filed against those who sell alcohol to intoxicated people involved in accidents caused by drunkenness.

On New Year's Eve in Houston, football fans at the Astrodome watched the Texas Longhorns upset Pittsburgh 32-27 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Dallasites enjoyed the coming of the new year with concerts and celebrations around the city. Some senior citizens celebrated the event with a traditional countdown but held it at noon on New Year's Eve.

Veola Davis said she and her husband preferred the party to a late-night celebration. "I guess we've gotten too old for that," she said.

Some people in Dallas were thankful just to greet 1988 with a full stomach.

A New Year's Eve dinner of beans, rice and sausage for the homeless that had been threatened with cancellation for lack of money was saved by last-minute donations of more than $2,000 from churches and individuals.

The dinner has been sponsored by Bigheart Ministries for eight years, but donations were half what they were in 1986.

But on Wednesday, the ministry received pledges from several groups after a story about the canceled meal appeared in the Dallas Morning News.

GREETINGS

Although the Reagan administration contends the 1972 Antiballistic Missile Treaty permits the testing and development of certain technologies for SDI, the Soviets have continued to express their opposition to such tests. However, the two sides agreed at the summit to pursue the strategic arms agreement while leaving their arms negotiators in Geneva with trying to resolve the dispute over SDI.

For his part, Gorbachev cited the growing number of person-to-person exchanges that have occurred during the past year.

"Like thousands of strands, those contacts are beginning to weave into what I would call a tangible fabric of trust and mutual growing understanding," the general secretary said.

But his tone was not entirely rosy, either.

After noting that his nation was grappling with "profound changes" in perestroika, or reconstruction of its economic and political system, Gorbachev said, "We know that you Americans have quite a few problems too."

He did not elaborate, but said the two nations must strive to "spare no effort to affirm peace on earth" because human life, in the Soviet Union or in the United States "is equally priceless."

Gorbachev lamented the fact that he had little chance to see America during his three-day summit visit.

Romanian defector dies of lung cancer

AUSTIN (AP) — A Romanian seaman who walked off a Romanian freighter docked in Houston and was granted asylum in the United States two years ago died New Year's Day of lung cancer, officials said.

Paul Firica, 46, had fought the cancer for three months before he died Friday, said Firica family spokesman Ken Kissman.

"In the past few weeks, he just went down steadily and at a very rapid rate. At least he was not in a great deal of pain, and we're thankful for that," Kissman said.

Following his 1985 defection, Firica was adopted by an Austin church, The Central Assembly of God, which also helped arrange to bring his family to the United States.

Firica's death leaves his wife, Ioana, and daughter, Violeta, unsure of their future, Kissman said. They were allowed to join Firica here in August, after two years of negotiations.

"They don't know what the future holds for them at this point," Kissman said. "Paul was their link to America."

Truck loaded with propylene overturns

BEAUMONT (AP) — A tractor-trailer rig loaded with propylene overturned on a city street Friday, prompting authorities to detour traffic and briefly evacuate five families from a small area.

Rescue workers freed the driver from his cab about 8 p.m. after he was trapped inside for nearly a hour.

Girl's parents sue church, ex-minister over fondling

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — An Odessa church and former youth minister have been named in a lawsuit seeking $2 million for past anguish, expected future pain and punitive damages for a teen-age girl who was allegedly fondled several times over a two-year period.

On Feb. 17, 1987, Nathaniel Brent Pugh, 27, one-time youth minister at the First United Pentecostal Church, 1700 N. Texas Ave., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of indecency with a child and received a 10-year probated sentence from 244th District Judge Joe Connally.

Connally also ordered Pugh to pay for the then-13-year-old girl's visits to a counselor. The minister also was directed to seek counseling.

The judge could have sentenced Pugh to 20 years in prison and fined him $10,000.

Odessa attorney John Green filed the lawsuit Thursday for J.D. Harris and Sue Melton on behalf of their daughter.

Since being sentenced, Pugh has left Odessa and now resides in Grand Prairie.

The lawsuit contends the fondling incidents occurred while Pugh was employed by the church as a youth minister and that the church failed to properly supervise him after giving him the responsibility that included counseling young girls.

Fire claims one victim in Odessa

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A fire in a mobile home in north Odessa early Friday afternoon claimed the life of one man and critically injured a second.

Firefighters responding to a fire at 3506 Mesquite, about a block west of Andrews Highway, about 1:30 p.m. found the body of Little Lod Barnes after extinguishing the blaze that swept the mobile home. Barnes' body was taken to Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

A second man, Jim Hammond, was found slumped near a window and was transported to Medical Center Hospital. An MCH nursing supervisor said late Friday night Hammond was in critical condition in the intensive care unit suffering from smoke inhalation.

According to an Odessa Police Department spokesman, investigation of the fire is continuing. A faulty heater is the suspected cause of the blaze.

Map expert to testify at sergeant's hearing

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Defense Department expert on map secrecy has been asked to testify at a hearing involving an Air Force staff sergeant accused of stealing a classified document while on duty in Turkey and disclosing its contents to an unauthorized person.

Staff Sgt. John Cason of Lackland Air Force Base also has been charged with buying a classified document, Lackland spokesman Jim Sandefur said.

Harry C. Ketts III said Thursday he has been contacted by government prosecutors about appearing at a Jan. 19 preliminary hearing, indicating that the classified document was a map of an area in Turkey.

"I do know that the Turks are very sensitive about their maps," Ketts told the San Antonio Light in an interview from his home near Washington.

"That's a sensitive area of the world," said Ketts, a Defense Mapping Agency official who advises senior officials on whether particular maps should be classified.

The action by military authorities is similar to grand jury proceedings in civilian courts; the hearing is to determine whether officials will convene a court-martial against Cason, 42, of Arlington.

The hearing will be closed to the news media, and officials say if a court-martial is held, it too will be closed.

If convicted of the charges, Cason, a 20-year Air Force veteran, could be sentenced to up to seven years in prison.

Air Force officials have declined comment on case, saying it involves sensitive material. They have said, however, the case does not involve espionage.

Cason was ordered to Lackland in November from a base in Turkey to undergo a psychiatric examination at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center.

Cason's civilian attorney, John Economidy, said Cason was reassigned to the United States to avoid political embarrassment.

"The accused was reassigned from Turkey to the United States to preclude a political embarrassment to the United States from the Turkish government," Economidy said. "If the Turks knew what had happened, the Turks would be pretty upset."

After being charged Wednesday, Cason returned to the Lackland housing office where he has been assigned temporarily as an administrative clerk. He refused to talk to reporters.

Sources who asked not to be identified told the Light that Cason, a history and archaeology buff who took frequent trips outside the air base where he was stationed, tried to obtain a classified map for personal use.

A spokesman for the Air Force Office of Special Investigations, which conducted the probe into Cason's alleged activities, described the case as unusual.

"It is not a common case by any means," Tech. Sgt. Michael Grinnell said in a telephone interview from Washington. "Everything we've got (on the case) is classified."

Joy, sorrow part of aiding aliens get amnesty

By JOE OLVERA

EL PASO (AP) — Helping people get amnesty can be a heart wrenching dilemma, or it can become a joyous event, says a woman who has experienced both through her work as an amnesty processor for the Catholic Diocese of El Paso.

Maria del Carmen Guerrero, 30, a technical reviewer and case worker, said her office has seen more than 1,600 people hoping to become citizens since the amnesty program started May 5, 1987.

Ms. Guerrero said her toughest case, so far, was the woman who was afraid she wouldn't qualify for amnesty and would be deported back to Mexico with her U.S.-born children.

"How can you tell this woman to not be afraid?" Ms. Guerrero said. "She doesn't want to see her family separated and she doesn't want to go back to Mexico."

Ms. Guerrero said her clients run the gamut of emotional expression, but the happiest event for her was when a family of 10 was granted amnesty.

"Everyone, from the mother to the father to the eight kids got amnesty," Ms. Guerrero said. "The day they were to be processed, they all showed up in their Sunday best. When they got their temporary residence cards, they were euphoric. They were so happy, all of us were crying and hugging each other."

Ms. Guerrero said the biggest problem she sees is that people simply are not applying.

The Catholic Diocese of El Paso is one of the agencies designated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to help people apply for amnesty.

"People are not taking advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," Ms. Guerrero said. "That's unfortunate, because the amnesty program ends May 4, 1988."

Ms. Guerrero said some people are so scared their application won't be approved by the legalization center, they break down in tears. "Others are so overcome with happiness because they got amnesty, they break into tears too," Ms. Guerrero said.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, those who can prove they have been in the United States continuously since Jan. 1, 1982, are eligible for amnesty.

That would give them the right to stay in the United States legally for up to 18 months, apply for permanent residency and eventually become citizens. Those who arrived after that date are not eligible and face deportation.

Ms. Guerrero, who holds an associate's degree from the El Paso Community College, said her most heartbreaking cases are the ones with large families, where not every family member qualifies for amnesty.

"I strongly support making a special amendment to the immigration reform bill that would allow families to stay together," Ms. Guerrero said. "We encourage clients to write their Senator and insist the Roybal Amendment be adoped."

Denial of funds to Bishop may be end of black school

DALLAS (AP) — A U.S. Department of Education staff recommendation denying Bishop College's request for about $400,000 in matching funds for student financial aid could spell the end of the Dallas school, officials said.

"The consequences are terribly severe," said Michael Goldstein, a Washington lawyer retained by college.

Without the money, Bishop will have to scrap its plans for voluntary reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws and submit to Chapter 7 proceedings, Goldstein said Thursday.

Under Chapter 7, the 106-year-old school would have to liquidate its assets because it has no hope of paying its creditors, he said.

An appeal of the recommendation will be filed with the office of the assistant undersecretary of education next week, Goldstein said.

If the appeal is rejected, he said, he will sue the department in federal court to force it to release the money.

The department cited Bishop's longstanding financial problems as the reason for the rejection, but the school had met other criteria that should have qualified it for the funding, Goldstein said.

"Those are funds that the school has laid out on behalf of the federal government," he said. "We feel we have a valid appeal."

Bishop lost its accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools earlier this year because of mounting debts.

The United Negro College Fund and U.S. Education Department withdrew financial support totaling almost $1 million because of the accreditation loss.

College president Levi Watkins said last month he would not ask for reaccreditation for at least a year because of the school's severe financial problems.

In April, Bishop sought the Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from more than 400 creditors it owed $12.6 million.

This fall, the college pinned its reorganization on getting federal student aid funding by enrolling 400 students, most eligible for assistance, and deferring $400,000 in tuition payments.

A provision in the Education Department's eligibility rules allows a college without accreditation to receive student aid funding if three accredited institutions agree to accept its transfer credits, Goldstein said.

At least three institutions, including the University of Texas, have said they will honor Bishop credits, he said.

An Education Department spokesman said officials familiar with the Bishop case were unavailable for comment. Bishop is closed for the holidays, and Watkins and other officials were unavailable for comment.

Earlier this week, an attorney representing Bishop faculty and staff filed a motion in federal bankruptcy court asking that a trustee be appointed to run the college.

Judith Swift, the attorney retained by the faculty and staff, said she was seeking protection for college employees who have been paid late for the past two months.

New law will mean old one can be enforced, officials say

AUSTIN (AP) — A state law prohibiting sale of alcoholic beverages to people under 21 hasn't been enforced for about six months because of court rulings putting a nearly impossible burden on prosecutors, state officials say.

But a new law which went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Friday allows law enforcement officers to prosecute offenders and to seek either a suspension or revocation of stores' beer and wine or liquor licenses, officials said.

"We've been running strictly a bluff," said Willie Pribble, a Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission district supervisor based in Austin. "We haven't filed a single case (for sale to minors) since July.

"Now, we haven't run out and told people that," Pribble told the Austin American-Statesman. "What we've done is file a lesser charge in those cases, but the deterrent simply hasn't been there.

"Now, after about six months, people are beginning to realize that we're not filing," he said.

The old law, part of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code, read that "a person commits an offense if he knowingly sells an alcoholic beverage to a minor."

During the last regular session of the Texas Legislature, the law was revised to read that "a person commits an offense if with criminal negligence he sells an alcoholic beverage to a minor."

Under the new law, prosecutors no longer will have to prove what the store clerks or waiters were thinking when they sold the beverage to underage people, Pribble said.

Instead, they will have to prove that the store or restaurant employee was not careful enough in verifying a customer's age in cases where a reasonable person could think the customer was not 21, he said.

The old law's problem came in the use of the word "knowingly," Pribble said.

Downed copter actually hoax

DALLAS (AP) — A prankster suspected of having made false reports of helicopter crashes in several U.S. cities apparently picked Dallas for his latest hoax, prompting more than 30 rescue workers to race through downtown searching for wreckage, authorities said.

Dallas Fire Department Capt. Arlie Edwards said the call was received at about 10 a.m. Wednesday. The fire department, the FBI and the Federal Aviation Administration were trying to find whoever made the bogus report, he said.

The caller identified himself as an official with the air-traffic control tower in Springfield, Ill., and said a large helicopter transporting a medical patient had crashed in downtown Dallas, Edwards said.

Five fire trucks, three ambulances and a police squad car immediately went to the scene but found nothing, he said.

Many Texas savings and loans face possibility of unhappy new year

DALLAS (AP) — Texas thrifts face a tough new year in a depressed economy that has left them with customers unable to repay loans, few prospects of generating profitable new lending, and federal regulators poised to cull their ranks, officials say.

"To be vital, an institution has to generate new loans," said George Barclay, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas. "One of the big problems facing the industry right now is that there's not enough demand for new loans."

The 281 savings and loans in Texas closed only $9.9 billion of mortgage loans during the first 10 months of 1987, a 39 percent decline from the same period in 1986 and a 55 percent drop from the same period of 1985.

The state's thrifts entered November with $13.8 billion of delinquent mortgage loans — 23.7 percent of total mortgage loan holdings.

Texas S&Ls can expect little help from the state economy in 1988. "Next year isn't going to be very different from 1987," said economist Harold Gross, associate director of the Southern Methodist University Center for Enterprising. "There aren't many signs saying things will improve."

The new year also will see federal regulators begin a long-awaited industry cleanup, officials said. Congress strengthened the thrift insurance agency with $10.8 billion in extra funds over the next three years.

At least 87 Texas thrifts have gone broke, and the FHLB has targeted an unknown number of the institutions for closure, sale or reorganization in 1988.

Barclay said the FHLB wants to deal first with the most deeply insolvent Texas thrifts, which are causing the greatest financial damage to the thrift insurance fund.

The FHLB will allow well-managed S&Ls to acquire various numbers and sizes of failing institutions, he said.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. will provide assistance for the deals, which are designed to eliminate the weakest institutions from the market, strengthen acquiring institutions and permit cost-efficient consolidations of overlapping facilities, Barclay said.

A second approach will consist of FSLIC-assisted acquisitions by outside investors, Barclay said. "We've been inundated with people wanting to get into the savings and loan industry," he said.

FHLB forms panel to advise it on troubled thrifts

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas has formed a 12-member panel that will advise the bank as it works to clean up of the FHLB's Ninth District.

The 487 savings and loans in the five-state district together recorded $5.7 billion of losses and writedowns during the first 10 months of 1987 and finished the period with a negative net worth of $4.3 billion.

On Dec. 3, FHLB Board chairman Danny Wall hired thrift consultant Ellis T. Gravette to study the district and consider ways to close, merge or reorganize a number of failing institutions. Gravette is working on the so-called "Southwest Study" from an office at the Dallas bank.

Despite trashy complaints, city dumps cans for bags

New York Times News Service

DALLAS — The start of the new year means goodbye to battered curbside trash cans here, and many Dallasites are reluctant to see them go.

"It is amazing how deeply people care about their garbage," says Mayor Annette Strauss, who has received thousands of letters protesting the new trash rules.

Starting Monday morning, the Department of Streets and Sanitation will refuse to pick up any trash that is not in plastic bags meeting city standards. The rules, which specifically prohibit the storage of trash in metal or plastic cans, are intended to lessen the number of back injuries among workers, to speed trash collection and to reduce labor costs by an estimated $600,000 a year. (The savings have been earmarked for improvements at the Dallas Zoo.)

But those benefits have not swayed Mary Lou Kochanski, for instance, an East Dallas woman who works only periodically, cleaning houses. She says she barely has a paper supermarket sack full of trash by collection day, and that plastic trash bags are an extravagance she cannot afford.

To ease the burden, the city is selling regulation 33-gallon bags at a bargain price: 50 for $3.

Cost is not the main concern for Randol Berry, a retired railroad employee. He says his East Dallas neighborhood is filled with stray cats and dogs, and the animals delight in shredding plastic trash bags.

On Thanksgiving, when he had more trash than his cans would hold, he said he put several plastic bags at the curb and by morning, their contents were all over the street.

Supporters of the plan, though, say it will work as soon as residents become used to it.

Similar laws are in place in jurisdictions surrounding Dallas, and "the people there hated it at the beginning, too," said C.A. Bushnell, the superintendent of sanitation.

The Dallas City Council has approved the rules for a six-month trial period and will review them in June. But at least one local institution seems confident that they will remain in effect.

Nieman-Marcus is advertising its own bright red trash bags that meet the city's regulations — and fulfill the Texans' penchant for the famous store's cachet. The price for the N-M logo? Twenty bags for $6.25.

Released murderer surrenders

HOUSTON (AP) — A convicted murderer who was accidentally released from the Harris County Jail even though he had threatened to kill his wife has surrendered to police, authorities said.

Oscar Burnett Collins, 46, who had been awaiting a transfer to prison to serve a 15-year sentence for slaying his girlfriend, surrendered Thursday while a nine-deputy squad was out searching for him.

"He didn't have any place to go," sheriff's Capt. J.K. Mendenhall said. "We have every avenue blocked off."

Two deputies had maintained surveillance on Collins' wife, Ida Louise Collins, while the search was under way, Mendenhall said.

Collins will be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections to begin serving his sentence for the Sept. 9, 1985, murder of his live-in girlfriend, India Cross, 27.

She was shot in the back with a high-powered caliber rifle.

Collins' accidental release came after his threats against Mrs. Collins prompted State District Judge Norman Lanford to increase his $20,000 bond to $100,000 on Dec. 22.

Lanford's court coordinator discovered Collins had been released when she received a routine "booking and releases" notice from jail officials Thursday morning.

STATE IN BRIEF

Mayors want action delayed

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Mayors of seven southeast Texas cities want the Texas Public Utility Commission to hold off granting a rate increase for Gulf States Utilities Co. until after a similar rate case is settled in Louisiana.

"If in fact Gulf States Utilities Company is interested in rate equity between Texas and Louisiana, we challenge the company to request the Texas Public Utility Commission delay any decision of rate increases until such time as the Louisiana case is resolved," the mayors of Port Arthur, Nederland, Port Neches, Groves, Rose City, West Orange and Bridge City said in a statement released Thursday.

The Texas commission is scheduled to meet next Wednesday to consider a rate increase in Texas. The company had asked for a $144.1 million increase in Texas while a hearing examiner has recommended a $86.8 million increase.

A spokeswoman for Beaumont-based Gulf States said the beleaguered company can't wait for the Louisiana case to be settled.

Man dies in church fire

FORT WORTH (AP) — A fire that erupted soon after parishioners ended their New Year's Eve service gutted a church Friday and killed a Kentucky man who had been invited to spend the night there, officials said.

The blaze at Gospel Assembly is believed to be arson-related and did $1.8 million in damages, Fort Worth Fire Capt. R.C. Knight said. The church has no fire insurance.

"Preliminary evidence reveals forcible entry into the church so we're suspecting either vandalism or burglary, but there's nothing definite," Knight said.

Darrell Eugene Spencer, of Livermore, Ky., died of burns and smoke inhalation in the fire that began at 1:44 a.m., Knight said.

Five staff members lived in quarters at the church's rear, and one of them had invited Spencer to attend the New Year's Eve service and stay overnight rather than spend the holiday alone, officials said.

PTL trustee will try to recover 'excessive' payments to Bakkers

NATION

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — PTL's trustee will take action to recover what the Internal Revenue Service says is $9.36 million in excessive compensation paid to Jim and Tammy Bakker, an attorney for the television ministry's trustee said Friday.

R. Bradford Leggett, an attorney in Winston-Salem, said he and David W. Clark, the ministry's Chapter 11 bankruptcy trustee, are conducting their own investigation of the excessive payments.

"Subject to whatever the trustee authorizes, based on what we might recommend, we could start with demands for repayment and, if not complied with, begin taking whatever court action might be indicated," Leggett said.

The IRS filed reports on excessive compensation Dec. 16 in U.S. Bankruptcy Court to support its argument for revocation of PTL's tax-exempt status. The IRS claims PTL owes $62 million or more in taxes from June 1983 to June 1987.

The IRS filing, reported by the Winston-Salem Journal, said that top PTL officials received $14.86 million in excessive compensation between 1981 and 1987, of which $9.36 million went to the Bakkers.

The IRS report said the "amounts paid to or assets transferred to or for the benefit of Jim Bakker more nearly resemble the distribution by a wholly-owned corporation of its net earnings as a dividend to its shareholder rather than as a compensation for services actually provided."

In return for the privilege of tax exemption, federal law prohibits churches and charities from allowing individuals to take money except as reasonable payment for goods or services.

Leggett said the Bakkers, who founded PTL and resigned last year, collected the excessive pay and benefits without the approval or knowledge of the PTL board.

The Bakkers are spending the winter in a house in Palm Springs, Calif., where a telephone call was answered by a man who identified himself as a family friend named Bob. He relayed a request for comment to the Bakkers, then said they did not want to discuss the matter.

James Toms, an attorney in Hendersonville, N.C., who represents the Bakkers, said Friday he had not seen the report and could not comment on it.

Judge Rufus Reynolds approved a reorganization plan on Dec. 22 that divides the television ministry and Christian theme park in Fort Mill, S.C., into for-profit and non-profit corporations.

He also issued a preliminary injunction that prevents the IRS from revoking PTL's tax-exempt status through May 1.

"We are in the process of making application for a new tax-exempt status for the reorganized PTL," Leggett said. "When the reorganized PTL goes in May 2, we want to make sure it has tax-exempt status."

The IRS said the PTL board did not always know what was going on, but said it was the board's responsibility to see that the ministry operated in a way consistent with its tax-exempt status.

The IRS said the Bakkers received at least $10.86 million from PTL during those years, but only $1.5 million could be considered "reasonable" compensation for what they did.

For example, in 1984 IRS listed more than $1.36 million in payments to Bakker, of which it considered $133,100 to be reasonable. Bakker's salary alone in that year was $228,486.16. His bonuses totaled $640,000, the IRS said.

In 1987 Bakker received more than $2.97 million, including $278,158 in salary and more than $1.16 million in bonuses. The IRS said $177,156 was reasonable.

Bakker, who resigned last March after being caught in a sex scandal, received $8.28 million his last four years as the head of PTL, the IRS report said. The agency said $7.66 million of that was excessive.

Mrs. Bakker, who appeared with her husband on the PTL television show and helped in his appeals for donations, collected $1.28 million in those four years, $728,215 of which the IRS said was excessive.

David A. Taggart, Bakker's administrative aide, got $2.7 million from 1984 until 1987. The IRS said that was $2.26 million more than he was worth.

The Rev. Richard W. Dortch, who was the PTL executive director, got $1.25 million, but the IRS said that was $754,909 more than he should have gotten.

The IRS also added up the costs of Mrs. Bakker's plastic surgery in 1985 (more than $4,000); Bakker's payments of hush money to Jessica Hahn, the other central character in the sex scandal ($363,700); and Taggart's lodging at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

State law forces travelers to blow smoke elsewhere

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A law banning smoking on all commercial plane, train and bus trips beginning and ending in California took effect Friday, but some airlines blew smoke at the law, saying superseding federal regulations allow smoking sections.

Several smokers among airline and bus passengers traveling New Year's Day said they agree with the law and think it will help some people quit smoking.

Amtrak spokesmen said the railroad is not bound by the state law and would not enforce the ban, so train passengers were not immediately affected.

"You're kidding," said Karen Jones of San Jose, a smoker about to return home on a plane from Los Angeles International Airport, when told about the new law. "That's OK. I need prodding not to smoke anymore. I feel for the non-smoker. It's a good thing."

The California law, the first of its kind in the nation, calls for fines of as much as $100 for passengers who smoke in defiance of the ban, and up to $500 for third and subsequent offenses. Enforcement is up to the carrier.

American Airlines and Alaska Airlines were among the carriers ignoring the law.

An American statement read by reservations agent Olivia Wentworth noted that on April 22 a federal law goes into effect banning smoking on all commercial flights of two hours or less.

United Air Lines also had threatened to ignore the law, but spokesman Rob Dowdy in Chicago said Friday that United "voluntarily agreed to comply with the law, while maintaining that California lacks jurisdiction to ban smoking on commercial flights."

Pacific Southwest Airlines first said it would not honor the law, then announced it had reversed its position. However, PSA said it would wait until Tuesday to begin applying the law.

The law carries no penalties against carriers for non-compliance. The law's sponsor, state Sen. Nicholas Petris, has said he would support a lawsuit aimed at forcing airlines to comply.

But Petris also said that by the time such a case could be argued, the issue probably would be moot because of the federal no-smoking law.

Airline passenger Cathy Allen of Tukwila, Wash., flying to San Jose from Los Angeles, said she hadn't heard about the state law.

"It's a good thing. I'm quitting today," she said while smoking near the airline gate. "Well, I'm quitting after this weekend. I've quit quite a few times. I'm serious about quitting this time, and maybe a ban on smoking on airliners will help people to decide to quit."

Among the first people to observe the new law were bus passengers on a morning trip from Oregon to San Francisco. When the Greyhound bus entered California the driver announced that smoking was illegal and asked passengers to put out cigarettes. No one objected, passengers said.

"I enjoyed not smelling that smoke," Augustina Sota of San Jose said of the non-smoking part of her trip from Bend, Ore.

At San Diego's Santa Fe railroad station, non-smoker Doug Simmons was beginning a short excursion to San Juan Capistrano with a non-smoking companion. "We paid this money for a nice ride and I'd like to be sure to be able to see the scenery without having to wave away any smoke," he said.

"You know, some smokers are inconsiderate. They brought a lot of this on themselves," he added.

Amtrak officials at the depot declined comment. Amtrak separates smokers from non-smoking passengers by designating smoking cars or smoking sections of cars.

Christmas tree fire kills boy in elevator

NEW YORK (AP) — A Christmas tree caught fire in an elevator Friday, killing a boy and critically injuring two others, officials said.

Elton Harris, 13, died after becoming trapped in the elevator in a housing project in the Bronx, said Housing Authority Police Sgt. Rufus Green.

Michael Carter, 14, and Frederick Jacobs, 13, ran from the elevator, Green said. They were listed in critical condition at Jacobi Hospital.

One survivor told police Harris was playing with matches when the tree caught fire, said Green, although he added police were still investigating.

Rose Parade's pomp marred by accident

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The sun-splashed pomp of the 99th Rose Parade pushed aside superpower TV messages, but the New Year's spectacle was marred by six injuries, including a parade mechanic crushed under the wheels of a float.

A teen-ager was also hurt in the accident involving the mechanic, and four spectators were injured by a runaway horse.

The parade lineup included 60 floats festooned with 15 million flowers; 22 bands; 275 horses, and such float-riding celebrities as actor and grand marshal Gregory Peck, former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and ex-astronaut Buzz Aldrin.

"I've been watching the parade since I was 6 and to have the best seat in the house is beyond my wildest imagination," Peck said.

Some Tournament of Roses spectators waited up to 24 hours for prime vantage spots for the 2-hour, 10-minute parade, which preceded the Rose Bowl football game between the University of Southern California and Michigan State.

"Camping out on the street all night is an experience. It's fun," said Tom Gonzalez, 19, a Yorba Linda resident on leave from the Navy in Virginia. "You can't do this every day."

Crowds along the 5½-mile route down the sun-struck, palm-studded streets 10 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles bundled up to ward off temperatures that dropped to near-freezing at dawn.

The cold apparently kept the crowd to slightly below the predicted 1 million, said Lt. Lynn Froistad.

Police said more than 450 people had been arrested on the parade route, mostly for public drunkenness.

Because of timing conflicts, the White House agreed to an earlier release of pre-recorded New Year's messages from President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to avoid upstaging TV coverage of the parade.

The injured mechanic, a 21-year-old whose name was withheld, was working on a 55-foot float carrying three mechanical dancing pigs when it lurched forward and ran over him, said parade spokesman Ken Veronda.

Morton Thiokol disputes 'failure' of rocket test firing

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — Morton Thiokol Inc. is insisting that the recent test-firing of the redesigned space shuttle booster rocket was generally a success despite NASA's announcement that there were problems.

NASA officials at first joined Morton Thiokol in praising the Dec. 23 test firing, the second for the revamped engine. But Tuesday the space agency announced that a component in the "boot ring" on the rocket nozzle had failed.

The announcement came just hours after a flash fire killed five Morton Thiokol employees working on the first stage of an MX missile.

NASA said the ring would have to be redesigned, delaying the scheduled June launch of space shuttle Discovery. That launch was to be the first U.S. manned space flight since a faulty seal on the rocket booster leaked super-hot gasses, triggering the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion that destroyed the Challenger and killed its seven-member crew.

Morton Thiokol spokesman Rocky Raab said the Chicago-based aerospace company still considered the test firing at its Wasatch Operations plant 25 miles west of Brigham City "highly successful."

Reporters have painted the problem in the 126-foot-long rocket as being more serious than it is, Raab said Thursday.

"It's not anywhere near as bad as has been suggested," he said, adding the company shunned a formal response to NASA's announcement Tuesday because "I don't want to give these reports the dignity of a full-blown press conference."

The outer boot ring, made of carbon-phenolic composite with a ceramic-like hardness, anchors one end of the nozzle's boot to the nozzle. The ring is about 2 inches thick and 7 inches wide.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said about half of the 25-foot circumference of the ring was missing and had apparently broken away. About a third of the missing material later was discovered inside the motor.

Raab said no comment or decisions regarding the redesign will be made until a thorough study of the cause of the ring breakup is completed by NASA and Morton Thiokol over the next two to three weeks.

He said it was too early to say how long the setback would delay the shuttle program.

Further examination has shown that there seems to be no heat damage to the ring or any other part, he said.

The carbon-phenolic composite utilized for the ring is the same material successfully tested on a similar redesigned booster last August, except that a different manufacturing process was used, Raab said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Flooding forces 600 from homes in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — Flooding caused by heavy rain forced nearly 600 people from their homes Friday, and schools, churches and a shopping center were turned into evacuation shelters.

"It's been a long night," said Joe Reed, a disaster specialist for the Oahu Civil Defense Agency. "We've had reports of people stranded in 4 to 5 feet of water."

Reed said 589 people were counted in evacuation shelters.

The National Weather Service said 5 to 12 inches of rain fell over the Koolau Mountains and surrounding areas on the northeast side of the island beginning Thursday. A flood warning remained in effect Friday.

The rain in the mountains produced severe runoff, causing streams to overflow and filling streets with water and mud.

Child caretakers earn little

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adults who care for children earn less on average than janitors, cleaners and garbage collectors, according to a study by the Child Welfare League of America.

The league said Friday it examined salaries for more than 50 occupations and found that people who care for children were near the bottom of the pecking order.

It said the median salary for garbage collectors was $14,872, while child care workers earned $12,800. The median pay for janitors and cleaners in the study was $12,844.

Median salaries for the staff in day care centers was even lower: $12,700 for teachers with bachelor's degree; $11,300 for teaching assistants, and $10,800 for day care teachers without a college degree.

The league said the median salary for social workers with a master's degree was $21,200, or $848 less than the $22,048 pulled down by auto sales people.

The study, carried out every two years, was based on data provided by 250 agencies employing almost 25,000 child welfare workers.

Louisiana folk artist dies

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Folk artist Clementine Hunter, whose childlike visions of rural life brought her international fame in her old age, died Friday. She was more than 100 years old.

Mrs. Hunter, a daughter of slaves, reportedly began painting in her late 50s with a visiting artist's discarded brushes and oil paints. She had no formal art training.

Her age was unclear. Lottie Campbell, charge nurse at Natchitoches Parish Hospital, where Mrs. Hunter died, said she was 101.

Church records show that Mrs. Hunter was christened March 19, 1887 at two months, but she celebrated her 100th birthday in March 1985. Because she didn't like cold weather, friends had started celebrating her birthday in March about 10 years earlier.

Mrs. Hunter dropped out of school after three years to work in the cotton fields of a plantation outside Natchitoches. She labored there for nearly 75 years, working her way up from field hand to the laundry and then the kitchen.

In 1955, she had to sneak into the Northwestern State University art gallery because of her race to see an exhibit of her paintings.

Scientists claim first motor based on superconductors

ARGONNE, Ill. (AP) — Scientists at the Argonne National Laboratory have developed what they say is the world's first electrical motor based on the properties of new superconducting ceramics.

The unit, called the Meissner motor, operates at 50 revolutions per minute.

"It's too small for practical use and produces negligible power, but it demonstrates for the first time that these motors are possible," Roger Poeppel, an Argonne ceramics specialist, said Friday.

"We're all very excited about it. It has great potential," he said.

Superconductors are little-understood materials that transmit electricity without energy loss.

If the process can be controlled and the right materials developed, superconductivity offers the promise of cheaper electrical power, faster and more efficient electronics, and powerful magnets that can be used for everything from levitating high-speed trains to building new atom smashers.

Superconductivity had been known in certain materials, but only when they were cooled to 459.7 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Achieving that temperature required costly and hard to handle liquid helium.

But recent research has produced materials that become superconductors at higher temperatures.

The Meissner motor built at Argonne consists of an 8.5-inch circular aluminum plate with 24 small electromagnets mounted around its circumference.

The plate rotates above two disks of yttrium-barium-copper oxide, a ceramic material that becomes a superconductor at 290 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, Poeppel said.

The motor is based on the Meissner effect, a property of superconductors that causes them to expel magnetic fields. When a magnet comes near a superconductor, the superconductor repels it.

"It's the same repulsion you feel when you push north poles of two magnets together," Poeppel said. "They want to fly apart."

Poeppel said the motor wasn't designed to work any better than a traditional engine, but to demonstrate the superconducting properties of the material could be used in building a motor.

When the material is cooled with liquid nitrogen below the critical point to make it superconducting, the motor begins to run, he said. When the liquid nitrogen evaporates and the material warms up above the critical temperature, the motor stops, he said.

WORLD in brief

Palestinians quiet on Fatah Day

JERUSALEM (AP) — A big deterrent force of Israeli soldiers prevented a surge of Palestinian riots Friday to mark the anniversary of the first attack carried out by the PLO's main guerrilla group.

The army's promise to release some Palestinian detainees was also seen as a factor contributing to the relative quiet in the occupied territories, where Arab youths had been expected to demonstrate violently to commemorate Fatah Day.

Soldiers confronted stone-throwing demonstrators in a half-dozen incidents, but no shooting was reported and the Israeli military command said no one was injured. Most shopkeepers in the occupied territories observed a commercial strike.

The Palestine Liberation Organization had called on Arabs to demonstrate against the 20-year occupation on Friday, the 23rd anniversary of Yasser Arafat's Fatah guerrillas. Fatah fighters launched their first raid on Jan. 1, 1965.

Rioting in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Arab east Jerusalem last month left at least 22 Palestinians killed by army gunfire.

The army repeatedly warned it was ready for more trouble and poured thousands of troops into the West Bank and Gaza. Police stationed four armored vehicles in the Arab eastern sector of Jerusalem.

It was believed to have been the first time armor was used for riot control there since the formerly Jordanian half of the city was captured in 1967.

Moslems jam mosque

JERUSALEM (AP) — Five thousand Moslem worshipers jammed the Al Aqsa mosque in Arab east Jerusalem Friday to hear a sermon predicting divine punishment for "aggressors" and "colonialists."

Sheikh Mohammed Hussein, the preacher, used indirect language but his anti-Israeli message was clear to all who gathered at Al Aqsa, one of Islam's holiest shrines. The mosque is only feet away from the most sacred site in Judaism, the Western Wall of the ancient Jewish Temple.

"God does not like oppressors, and God gives you a promise that followers of Islam will achieve their objectives if they adhere to the right path," Hussein proclaimed.

"If you die, you will go to heaven. If you stay alive, you will be victorious," he added.

His sermon reflected the tension and hatred stemming from riots in December in which 22 Arabs were shot to death and 167 wounded by Israeli gunfire.

"They (Israelis) forget that all human beings are brothers," he said.

USSR stops jamming

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish-language broadcasts by the Voice of America and the British Broadcasting Corp. were loud and clear New Year's Day after the BBC said the Soviet Union stopped jamming its airwaves.

In Munich, West Germany, Radio Free Europe said jamming of its broadcasts to Poland also was suspended Friday.

Polish officials were not available in their offices on the holiday to comment on the apparent end to the radio interference, which took the form of a high-pitched whistling sound or low buzzing static.

A U.S. diplomatic source noted improved Voice of America reception in recent days.

"We've been watching the situation and it's been improving quite a bit," said the diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity. But he said that by Thursday, jamming had not completely stopped on the six or seven frequencies used by Voice of America to broadcast programs to Poland for several hours daily.

The jamming in recent years did not completely block out Western Polish-language broadcasts, and some Poles still tuned in for news not subject to government censorship.

Waldheim denounces Nazis

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Kurt Waldheim, accused of former Nazi affiliations, today denounced his nation's Nazi past and admonished fellow Austrians to avoid racial hatred and intolerance.

In a New Year's Day address, Waldheim said efforts to stimulate the economy and secure social achievements require "a new form of solidarity of people toward each other and of citizens of our country toward our homeland."

He added, "If we want to achieve this, we must avoid sowing discord, envy and hatred."

But the president ignored the ongoing controversy surrounding his wartime past which is being investigated by a panel of foreign historians.

The annual New Year's speech on national television noted important anniversaries in 1988, which marks 50 years since the Anschluss and 70 years since the Austro-Hungarian empire collapsed and Austria became a republic Waldheim said was "born in pain."

Casualty figures released

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas said Friday they killed or wounded 8,875 soldiers of the U.S.-backed government in 1987.

In a broadcast on their clandestine Radio Venceremos, the rebels said they also caused $43.8 million in damage to the nation's economy and infrastructure last year.

The rebels have been fighting a civil war against the government for eight years.

Counties forecast

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Saturday cloudy with a 20 percent chance of light freezing precipitation morning becoming partly cloudy afternoon. Highs upper 30s. Light mostly east and southeast wind. Saturday night partly cloudy with lows mid 20s.

Temperatures to stay near freezing mark

From Staff and Wire Reports

Temperatures will continue to hover near freezing during the day with a high expected only in the upper 30s, according to the National Weather Service at the Midland International Airport.

Today should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of light and freezing drizzle. The afternoon will continue to be partly cloudy.

Winds will be light, blowing east to southeast.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-20s.

Sunday will also be partly cloudy with a high in the mid-40s.

Friday's high of 34 degrees was 39 degrees cooler than the record high of 73 set in 1939.

The overnight low of 19 degrees was 14 degrees warmer than the record low of 5 set in 1979.

STATE

Cloudy skies spread across the entire state Friday, bringing a few showers to the coast and some light snow and freezing rain to western parts of North Texas.

A cold front that moved through Texas was responsible for the showers along the coast. Meanwhile, a weak upper-level disturbance moving across North Texas caused inclement weather from Stephenville to west of Abilene and San Angelo.

Most of its snow was not reaching the ground, but earlier in the day, light freezing rain had glazed roads.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 30s and 40s across the state as cloudy skies kept the sun from warming things up. The 3 p.m. extremes ranged from 31 degrees at Amarillo to 50 degrees at Beaumont-Port Arthur and Houston.

NATION

Temperatures dropped below zero Friday across the north-central states and in the Rockies, and strong northerly wind made it feel even colder.

Early afternoon temperatures were still below zero across northern Minnesota and were generally in the single digits across the northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley.

Wind chill readings during the morning were 30 degrees below zero or colder across parts of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Hibbing, Minn., had a low of 18 degrees below zero, and Marquette, Mich., had a wind chill temperature of 41 below zero at late morning.

In the Rockies, Alamosa, Colo., was the coldest spot in the lower 48 states with a record low of 31 degrees below zero.

Notre Dame's Tim Brown tackles Texas A&M kickoff team member Warren Barhorst (11) after Barhorst started off the field with a towel belonging to Brown. A bench-clearing incident followed as Aggies Brian Edwards (16), Ronnie Glenn (9) and John Roper (83) close in.

Aggies miss out on Brown's towel, settle for victory

Cotton Bowl

DALLAS — It was to be Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown's triumphant return to his hometown, but the 52nd Cotton Bowl Classic will be remembered as his day of infamy and 13th-ranked Texas A&M University's 35-10 rout of No. 12 Notre Dame.

A frustrated Brown lost his poise in the fourth quarter and ran across the field to tackle from behind a member of A&M's "12th-Man" kickoff team who had tackled him.

The Aggies' "12th-Man" team consists of non-scholarship players from the student body.

Brown, who was penalized 15 yards for the flagrant personal foul, never returned to the field from the fourth-period incident involving Warren Barhorst.

Alex Morris's critical interception late in the second quarter triggered the A&M rout but it was overshadowed by the incident involving Brown, who went to school only 15 miles from the Cotton Bowl at Dallas' Woodrow Wilson.

Brown, who left the field early just before the end of the game, said an A&M player held him down while another stole a towel with his initials on it.

"I hate it that I cost the team 15 yards but they had no right to take my towel," Brown said. "My intention was to take the towel away but I guess I tackled him (Barhorst). I believe they planned this on the sideline."

Brown had 238 all-purpose yards and after he left the crowd of 72,006 chanted "We want Brown. We want Brown."

Brown said the towel was given to him by a teammate's girlfriend.

"The towel was special to me," said Brown, who got it back.

Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz said he wished Brown hadn't done it.

"I felt bad because I looked up and it was first and 25," Holtz said. "He (Brown) made a mistake. But he has had a great career at Notre Dame."

Texas A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill said "There was no excuse for what Brown did, but frustrations build up. It was certainly out of character. He should have been ejected."

Miami wins crown, 20-14

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

MIAMI — No. 2 Miami ended two years of frustration and won college football's national championship by defeating No. 1 Oklahoma 20-14 Friday night in the Orange Bowl behind Steve Walsh's two touchdowns and a dominating defense.

The win ended two frustrating postseasons for Miami. It also gave it a 12-0 record for the first time in its 62-year football history and left little doubt that the Hurricanes, the only unbeaten-untied team in the nation, will be crowned national champions for the second time in five years when The Associated Press releases its final poll on Sunday.

The Sooners finished 11-1 and had the nation's longest winning streak snapped at 20 games.

Greg Cox, Miami's career scoring leader and the 12th player in NCAA history to pass the 300-point mark, sent his long-distance field goal, the first of two, soaring well over the crossbar at 6:08 of the third period for a 10-7 lead.

Miami's defense bottled up the potent Oklahoma attack, which averaged nearly 500 yards per game during the regular season, including 428 on the ground.

Walsh, whose 30-yard pass to fullback Melvin Bratton opened the scoring just 3:28 into the game, added a 23-yard touchdown pass to flanker Michael Irvin at 12:23 of the third quarter, sealing Miami's third victory over Oklahoma in as many years.

Cox kicked 48-yard field goal with 3:41 left in the game to make it 20-7. Oklahoma's second touchdown came on a trick play known as the "fumblerooski" —a 29-yard run by All-American guard Mark Hutson with 2:05 remaining after center Bob Latham left the ball on the ground.

Oklahoma, the nation's highest scoring team with a 43.5-point average, scored on halfback Anthony Stafford's one-yard run with nine seconds left in the first half following Miami's only turnover, a school record-setting ninth interception this season by Rickey Dixon, Oklahoma's All-American free safety.

Miami, which won its only national title in the 1984 Orange Bowl, duplicated the feat minus three starters. George Mira Jr., the Hurricanes' all-time leading tackle and middle linebacker and offensive tackle John O'Neill were suspended by the NCAA for failing drug tests. Matt Patchan, the Hurricanes' other offensive tackle, is injured.

Bernard Clark replaced Mira in the most important position a stopping Oklahoma's wishbone attack.

Cox's first field goal and Walsh's second touchdown pass came on Miami's first two possessions of the third period.

Meanwhile, the Hurricanes' defense held Oklahoma without a first down on five of its seven second-half possessions. The Sooners only invaded Miami territory twice in the second half.

Early in the third quarter, Miami moved from its own 34 to the Oklahoma 39. Cox then drilled his 56-yard tie-breaking field goal, which broke the Orange Bowl record of 53 yards by Oklahoma's Michael Keeling against Florida State in 1981 and was one yard shy of the school record.

Miami's drive included passes of 15 yards from Walsh to split end Brian Blades and a 13-yarder to Bratton, who tied an Orange Bowl record by catching nine pasees for 102 yards.

Spartans snap Pac-10 stranglehold, 20-17

Rose Bowl

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. — Coach George Perles said he hopes his Michigan State Spartans have made Rose Bowl visits a little less scary for Big Ten teams.

"I don't know if we proved anything, but I hope it clears up a lot of anxiety for the people who come out here in the future," Perles said Friday after the eighth-ranked Spartans beat No. 16 Southern Cal, 20-17, to release the Pacific-10's stranglehold on the Rose Bowl.

The Spartans' victory snapped a six-game losing skid by Big Ten champions in the Rose Bowl, and the Pacific-10 representatives had beaten the visitors from the Midwest 12 of the last 13 New Year's Day meetings in Pasadena.

"People talk about the jinx," Southern Cal Coach Larry Smith said of the Pac-10's previous domination, "but maybe now they'll forget about it and just play the game."

Lorenzo White gained 113 yards on 35 carries and scored twice for the Spartans, and John Langeloh kicked the game-winning field goal with 4:14 remaining.

THE TROJANS, victims of five turnovers in a season-opening 27-13 loss to Michigan State at East Lansing, also had five costly turnovers in the Rose Bowl rematch.

Southern Cal quarterback Rodney Peete threw three interceptions and lost a fumble in Friday's defeat.

The lost fumble, coming on the snap from center, was recovered by the Spartans' Todd Krumm and snuffed a Trojan drive at the Michigan State 23 with 1:33 left.

Then John Miller's interception of Peete's "Hail Mary" pass at the Michigan State 13-yard line with three seconds left sealed the victory.

The Spartans committed no turnovers.

"It was a nervous game," Perles said. "The thing we did, have done, is not have turnovers."

"I'm disappointed in the way we lost," Smith said. "We made more mistakes and that's why they won.

"We ended up No. 1 in the nation in turnovers (only 25 total, but 10 in the two games against the Spartans). We don't turn the ball over normally."

SPARTAN QUARTERBACK Bobby McAllister threw just seven passes completing four for 128 yards. But he came through at important times — including the key play on the drive to Langeloh's winning field goal.

With the game tied 17-17 and the Spartans facing a third-and-8 at their own 30, McAllister made a spectacular 36-yard completion to Andre Rison.

Forced out of the pocket, McAllister jumped and was sailing out of bounds when he unleashed the key pass.

"It was a broken play. It (the completion) was strictly on the ability of Bobby McAllister and Andre Rison," Perles said.

A 55-yard pass from McAllister to Rison earlier set up the Spartans' second touchdown.

MICHIGAN STATE, 9-2-1, had not played in a Rose Bowl in 22 years.

White carried 35 times for 113 yards and scored on runs of 5 and 3 yards as Michigan State took a 14-3 advantage in the second quarter.

But Southern Cal came back on a 33-yard touchdown pass from Peete to Ken Henry in the third quarter and a sensational fourth-quarter TD grab by Henry.

Henry's touchdown catch in the back of the end zone and Quin Rodriguez's extra point kick tied the game 17-17. Henry leaped high and pulled down the 22-yard pass from Peete, barely getting a foot down in the back of the end zone before he was shoved out.

The touchdown came after Kevin McLain, who had cost the Trojans a possible three points earlier by bobbling a snap on a field goal try, ran 8 yards on a fake field goal when Southern Cal had fourth-and-4 at the Michigan State 30.

Langeloh kicked a 40-yarder earlier in the final period to put Michigan State ahead 17-10.

Southern Cal drove to the Michigan State 30, but Peete fumbled a snap and Michigan State's Todd Crumm recovered with 1:33 left. Southern Cal took over again on its own 25 with 31 seconds left after a punt, but after two incomplete passes by Peete, Miller got his second interception of the game, allowing the Spartans to run out the final three seconds.

Seminoles edge Huskers

McManus' record day paces 31-28 win

By WALTER BERRY
AP Sports Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. — Quarterback Danny McManus knew what his final pass of the game did for Florida State. He just didn't know what it did for Danny McManus.

McManus capped a record-setting performance with a 15-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Ronald Lewis with 3:07 to play, giving the third-ranked Seminoles a 31-28 victory over No. 5 Nebraska in the 17th annual Fiesta Bowl Friday.

The pass not only gave Florida State the victory, which McManus knew. But it also gave McManus Fiesta Bowl records with 375 yards in the air and 51 attempts, which he said he didn't know.

"When we got the ball, I knew it was going to be for the last time," McManus said. "We were all thinking that if we were going to win, it was going to be now. We all said 'Let's go' in the huddle, then went out and did it."

The Seminoles drove 97 yards in 11 plays for the winning score after defensive tackle Eric Hayes recovered a fumble by Cornhuskers reserve running back Tyreese Knox at the Florida State 3.

Knox's 4-yard run with 40 seconds left in the third quarter had given Nebraska a 28-24 lead.

The Cornhuskers' final drive ended at their own 39 with Florida State taking over on downs and running out the final 1:19. Nebraska had a 56-yard pass play to the Seminole 2 wiped out by an illegal formation penalty with 2:41 to go.

"The tight end lined up on the wrong side of the formation, which made him an ineligible receiver. It was a tragic play as far as we were concerned," Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said. "Obviously, losing the ball at the 3-yard line also hurt us very badly, and for them to turn around and go 97 yards was impressive.

"I also thought McManus threw the ball well," Osborne said. "The last touchdown pass really killed us. We just didn't get enough heat on him all day."

McMANUS HAD 28 completions and a bowl record-tying three touchdowns passes with one interception.

"I don't even throw 51 times in practice. I haven't thrown for 300 yards since high school," said McManus, whose previous best college game was 275 yards in the 1987 season-opener against Texas Tech. "I was just glad our receiver (Lewis) was wide open on the last play. That was the easiest pass I had."

McManus, named the game's most valuable offensive player, broke the record of 347 passing yards set by Florida State quarterback Gary Huff in the first Fiesta Bowl in 1971.

Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde set the previous record for attempts with 50 in last year's national championship game here against Penn State.

Florida State wound up 11-1 this season and now is 1-1 in the Fiesta. The Seminoles also took a 3-2 lead in the series against Nebraska with this meeting being the first outside of Lincoln, Neb.

"We were very lucky to win the ballgame," said Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden. "Nebraska was down at our 3 and ready to score when they fumbled. That's doesn't happen too often. But sometimes it's good to be lucky like that."

The Cornhuskers ended the year at 10-2 with their third loss in three Fiesta appearances.

THE SEMINOLES took a 24-21 lead on a 32-yard field goal by Derek Schmidt — the NCAA's all-time leading scorer — with 7:49 remaining in the third quarter.

Nebraska quarterback Steve Taylor's 2-yard sneak 3:52 earlier forged a 21-21 tie in a game watched by a standing-room-only crowd at Sun Devil Stadium of 72,112, third largest in Fiesta Bowl history.

Florida State, down 14-0 after the first quarter, rallied to take a 21-14 halftime lead behind McManus's passing.

McManus, who was 16-of-30 for 199 yards in the first half, hit wide receiver Herb Gainer with a 10-yard touchdown pass 4:30 into the second period and found him again on a 25-yard strike with 44 seconds left.

Dayne Williams scored on a 3-yard run for the other Seminole touchdown 4:48 before halftime.

Nebraska had taken a 14-0 lead on Keith Jones' 3-yard run 6:10 into the game and Dana Brinson's 52-yard punt return with 1:15 remaining in the first quarter.

Nebraska tackle Neil Smith was named the Fiesta Bowl's most valuable defensive player.

SHERRILL SAID the game turned on Morris' interception in the A&M end zone with Notre Dame leading 10-3.

"That put us back in the game," Sherrill said. "Our defense controlled the line of scrimmage. Brown hurt us early but the game wasn't won by the skill players. It was won by the defenders."

Sherrill said "This victory should give our program creditability. When you beat Notre Dame everyone notices."

Morris was out of position when he made the critical interception.

"I was suppose to be on the other side of the field but I saw the quarterback roll out and I ran to that side and he (Terry Andrysiak) threw it right to me," Morris said.

Andrysiak said "That took the wind out of us."

A&M noseguard Sammy O'Brien said the Aggies lost respect for Brown because of what he did.

"The guy who has the Heisman should epitomize the Heisman, then he goes and chases a guy 20 yards across the field like that and it shouldn't be allowed," O'Brien said.

NOTRE DAME, 8-4, led 10-3 and was about to widen the margin when Morris intercepted Andrysiak in the Aggies' end zone on a one-handed catch.

Texas A&M, the Southwest Conference champions at 10-2, drove 80 yards for the tying score, producing two touchdowns in a span of 76 seconds to take an 18-10 halftime lead.

Halfback Darren Lewis threw a 24-yard scoring pass to a wide-open Tony Thompson to tie the game with 1:42 to play in the half.

On the Irish's next play, Tony Jones recovered a Braxton Banks' fumble at the Notre Dame 21. Four plays later, A&M's Larry Horton scored on a two-yard run with 26 seconds left. Wally Hartley scored a two-point conversion run.

Brown's 17-yard first-period scoring pass from Andrysiak, who missed the last seven games with a broken collarbone, gave Notre Dame a 7-0 lead and both teams traded field goals before A&M's late first half explosion.

ROSE

The Spartans came up with a pair of interceptions in their own territory to keep the Trojans out of scoring range in the second period.

Miller picked off a Peete throw at the Michigan State 24 on the first play of the quarter, then Kurt Larson intercepted another errant Peete throw at the Spartan 25 with five minutes left in the half.

The last time a Big Ten team won the Rose Bowl was in 1981, when Michigan downed Washington, 23-6.

Michigan State is now 3-1 in its Rose Bowl appearances.

Peete completed 22 of 41 for 249 yards, while Michigan State quarterback Bobby McAllister was just four of seven for 128 yards.

McAllister, however, was not intercepted and the Spartans had no turnovers.

And he set up their second touchdown with his only completion of the first half, a 55-yard pass to Rison, then put the Spartans in position for the game-winning field goal with another long pass to Rison.

WHITE GAINED 89 yards on 24 carries in the first half and, on Michigan State's first touchdown drive, he carried 10 times for 51 yards.

Southern Cal scored on its second series of the game, marching 52 yards before Peete threw three consecutive incompletions and the Trojans settled for Rodriguez's 34 yard field goal midway through the first quarter.

Dorsett, Landry plan to discuss back's future

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dissident Dallas Cowboys' running back Tony Dorsett said he will meet with Coach Tom Landry in January to discuss his future with the NFL team.

"My thinking right now is being traded but if that can't happen, then I need to know what the other possibilities are," Dorsett said.

Dorsett lost his starting tailback job to Herschel Walker during the Cowboys' recently concluded 7-8 season. Dorsett didn't play in the season-closing game against St. Louis because of chest problems.

"I'm not going to retire so I need to see what my situation is going to be," Dorsett said. "I'm not sure Coach Landry will try to persuade me one way or the other."

Dorsett said he doesn't believe the Cowboys have given him respect.

"My situation could have been handled more tastefully," Dorsett said. "Management in Chicago gave Walter Payton his proper respect. They let him go out gracefully."

Dorsett, who has a $1 million a year price tag, said he would not be a disruptive force if he had to finish his career with the Cowboys.

"Why would I be a disruptive force?" Dorsett said. "I wasn't this year."

Any team getting Dorsett in a trade also would have to pay two-fifths of his $6.8 million annuity.

"I don't know if my price tag would scare anybody off," Dorsett said. "Things can be restructured."

Dorsett became the NFL's fourth 12,000-yard rusher this year. He is only 95 yards away from becoming the third leading rusher in NFL history.

"I've still got some goals I want accomplished so I will play at least two more years," Dorsett said. "I will be 34 years old but I can still play. I'm in good shape."

Dorsett said he enjoyed his backup role in a Monday night 29-21 victory over the Los Angeles Rams. He got to carry 12 times.

"That role was good for myself and good for the team," Dorsett said. "I was able to get into the flow of the game."

Knicks 115, Clippers 96

NEW YORK — Kenny Walker scored a season-high 25 points for the second straight game and Gerald Wilkins added 20 as New York handed the Los Angeles Clippers their fifth straight loss.

Ann Jillian braves fear of heights to rescue robin from hungry hawk

Jillian

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ann Jillian, whose story of a battle with cancer will be shown on television next week, needed to summon up some more real-life bravery to come to the rescue of a robin.

Walking outside of her home last week, she saw a hawk attacking the small bird. She managed to drive the hawk away. Meanwhile, the stunned robin flew onto the roof of Miss Jillian's backyard dance studio, the Daily News of Los Angeles reported.

The actress, whose portrayal of Mae West once earned her an Emmy nomination, climbed to the roof to rescue the bird before she recalled that her fear of heights makes her dizzy. Her husband and manager, Andy Murcia, came to her rescue.

Jillian's fight with breast cancer and recovery from a mastectomy performed in 1985 is the subject of Monday night's NBC television movie, "The Ann Jillian Story."

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford was on her feet Friday, less than two days after surgery, her surgeon said.

"Mrs. Ford spent New Year's Eve with President Ford and daughter Susan, welcoming in the new year at midnight accompanied by the nursing staff, ushering in the new year with sparkling cider," said Eisenhower Medical Center cardiac chief Dr. Jack Sternlieb.

Mrs. Ford, who Sternlieb said "feels very well," may be released from the hospital as early as this weekend, officials said.

Mrs. Ford entered the center Tuesday feeling weak and bleeding from sutures left after her coronary bypass surgery in November. Sternlieb operated on her Wednesday night to reclose a slow-healing incision left from the earlier surgery, which he also performed.

The surgery forced Mrs. Ford and the former president to cancel plans to join a gala opening Saturday of the Bob Hope Cultural Center in Palm Springs to be attended by President and Nancy Reagan, who are vacationing in the desert resort area.

• • •

CHANHASSEN, Minn. (AP) — Homeless people in Minnesota will be a little better off thanks to a New Year's Eve benefit thrown by rock star Prince, who got to jam with jazz trumpeter Miles Davis.

"There's a lot of things I could say about 1987, both pro and con, but mostly pro," Prince said before starting a three-hour performance Thursday night. "But I'm not a speech-maker, so I'll just do what I do best."

The invitation-only, $200-per-person fund-raiser for the Minnesota Coalition for the Homeless was held at Prince's new Paisley Park studio in this Minneapolis suburb.

At midnight Prince sang "Auld Lang Syne." Davis left his table to join Prince on an extended post-midnight encore that began with "It's Gonna Be a Beautiful Night."

"You all expect an awful lot for your $200," Prince teased the crowd.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Josh Mostel, son of the late actor Zero Mostel, says he only once took advantage of his famous name.

"I had a small part in a television special he did, and I thought, 'Enough of this,'" said the younger Mostel, who is appearing in the off-Broadway play "The Boys Next Door."

"It wasn't much fun, and I didn't enjoy it because I clearly got the job because of Father," he said.

In fact, said Mostel, the name can be a hindrance.

"It may get me an audition but I'm not going to be hired because of it," he said. "It's burdensome in some ways because the critics are always making comparisons, usually unfavorable to me."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former Gov. Lamar Alexander says his recent 16-day ocean voyage to Australia enabled him to use the solitude of the sea to nearly complete a book.

"When I left, I had 30,000 words written. When I finished the trip, I had 100,000 words written," he said.

The Republican leader, who spent six months in Australia with his family after leaving office last January, said he plans to give the manuscript, tentatively titled "Six Months Off," to the publisher by Feb. 1.

He took the ocean trip in December at the urging of Pulitzer Prize-winning "Roots" author and fellow Tennessean Alex Haley.

They both booked space on a cargo ship traveling from California to Australia on the theory that there was little to do on a freighter but write, eat and sleep. There were only six other paying passengers.

Alexander, who had never been to sea before, said his daily routine included eight to nine hours of writing although he spent much of his first day on his bunk with a case of seasickness.

Biden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph Biden says he intends to clear the record of the plagiarism issue that sank his 1988 presidential bid whether he runs for president again or not.

In an interview published Friday in the The Washington Post, Biden also said he is amazed at "how naive I was" about the demands of a presidential race.

The Delaware Democrat said he rejects the charge of plagiarism involving several of his campaign speeches and an earlier paper when he was a law student.

"At some point, I'm going to address that issue again, because there are things there that have to be corrected for the record whether or not I ever run for president again," he said.

The article did not indicate whether Biden elaborated on the plagiarism allegations.

But he said even if that issue had not come up, "my campaign would have been in trouble" because "I just messed up, frankly," so many aspects of it. "I got mired in personalities," he said, "not my opponents' but my own political operatives."

The 45-year-old chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee said he considered leaving politics after he pulled out of the presidential race on Sept. 23. "But I have an opportunity to do something I like a lot — being a senator. And that's what I'm doing."

Biden said the work he did in the last four months of 1987 as chairman of the judiciary panel's hearings on the Supreme Court nominations of Robert H. Bork and Judge Anthony Kennedy was "the first marker" he laid down on his new path.

He added that he thinks the hearings began to answer the doubts of those "who questioned whether I could discipline my temper and my mouth...whether I could prepare substantively."

Biden said he got into politics "because of my concerns about issues, because of my beliefs. People in Delaware, I think, know that. But people here (in Washington) didn't know me, and they didn't know what issues were important to me.

Clemson defensive tackle Richard McCullough (96) and linebacker Duane Walker (47) celebrate a Citrus Bowl victory over Penn State.

Citrus Bowl

ORLANDO, Fla. — The problem in preparing for Clemson's run-oriented offense is that it isn't run-oriented.

That was Penn State Coach Joe Paterno's observation after Rodney Williams passed for 214 yards, setting up three Tracy Johnson touchdowns and leading 14th-ranked Clemson to a 35-10 vitory over the 20th-ranked Nittany Lions Friday in the 42nd Florida Citrus Bowl.

"They're a one-dimensional football team when they want to be," Paterno said, but "they can throw the ball.

"The last quarter and a half, we just weren't able to hang in there with them," said Paterno, who coached Penn State to the national championship last year. "I just don't think we were as ready to stop as good of a passing attack as they had today."

Williams, resurrecting an air attack that produced only 91 yards in a regular season-ending loss to South Carolina, completed 15 of 24 passes and set up Johnson touchdown runs of 7, 6 and 1 yards as the Atlantic Coast Conference champions finished with a 10-2 record.

"Our plan coming into the game was to throw the ball on first down to keep the Penn State defense off balance," said Williams, the game's most valuable player.

"It was a good game plan, and I concentrated on it," Williams said. "This was a very big game for us. I'm lazy by nature, but I do a lot better job of concentrating during the big games."

WILLIAMS' PASSING was supported by a powerful rushing attack that produced 285 yards against the nation's 12th-ranked defense against the run.

Terry Allen led the way with 105 yards on 11 carries and scored on a 25-yard run that gave Clemson a 28-10 lead with 12:38 left in the fourth quarter. Tigers flanker Keith Jennings caught seven passes for 105 yards.

"Needless to say our football team is proud of what they have accomplished," Clemson Coach Danny Ford said. "We happened to have the hot hand today. I'm excited for the players."

Penn State, finishing an injury-filled season, had an 8-4 record.

"Turnovers were a factor, but that doesn't take anything away from Clemson," said Paterno, whose biggest loss in postseason play before Saturday was by 15 points to Oklahoma in the 1986 Orange Bowl. "They played with intensity. We blew our plays.

JOHNSON, CLEMSON'S third leading rusher this season, scored on runs of 7 and 6 yards in the first half when the Tigers enjoyed a 2-to-1 advantage in time of possession and built a 14-7 halftime lead.

Williams, who completed 12 of 19 passes for 169 yards before halftime, set up the TD's with passes to Jennings and Gary Cooper, who had four catches for 56 yards.

Johnson's 1-yard TD run capped a 76-yard drive midway through the third quarter and gave the Tigers a 21-10 lead. Joe Henderson, a third-string tailback, scored Clemson's last touchdown on a 4-yard run with 25 seconds left in the game.

Penn State, which played without star tailback Blair Thomas, who was sidelined with a sprained knee, struggled on offense all afternoon.

Matt Knizner threw a 39-yard touchdown pass to Michael Alexander in the second quarter, but he was intercepted twice. One of the interceptions stopped a Penn State drive inside the 10-yard line, and Penn State also lost a fumble after driving to the Clemson 3 late in the first quarter.

Eric Etze kicked a 28-yard field goal in the third quarter to account for the rest of Penn State's scoring.

CLEMSON, WHICH averaged just 123 passing yards per game during the regular season, finished with 499 yards total offense.

The Tigers' powerful rushing attack produced 285 yards, with Johnson gaining 98 on 18 carries, Henderson adding 54 and Wesley McFadden contributing 38 in addition to Allen's game-high performance.

Freshmen Gary Brown and Leroy Thompson replaced Thomas in the Penn State lineup. Thompson gained 55 yards on six carries and Brown had 51 in 13 attempts. Knizner finished with 13 completions in 22 attempts for 158 yards.

Johnson's first touchdown capped an eight-play, 56-yard drive after McFadden returned the opening kickoff 42 yards to the Clemson 44.

Williams began the march with a 23-yard pass to Jennings, McFadden carried three times for 25 yards and Johnson ran three times for 11 before scoring on his fourth carry of the drive.

Clemson improved its record in bowl games to 4-2 under coach Danny Ford. Penn State, making its 19th postseason appearance in 22 years under Joe Paterno, is 12-6-1.

Lyle's field goal lifts Tigers into tie with Orangemen

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS — Auburn played for the tie and Syracuse lost any chance for the national title.

Win Lyle's 30-yard field goal with one second remaining gave sixth-ranked Auburn a 16-16 tie with No. 4 Syracuse in the Sugar Bowl Friday, ending the Orangemen's hopes of a perfect season and a national championship that might have gone with it.

The tie left Syracuse with an 11-0-1 record and was as bitter as a loss since the Orangemen needed a victory to be one of only two possible teams with perfect records this season.

"Why would you not go for the tie?" Auburn Coach Pat Dye said. "Our kids played just as good as their kids. If they wanted to win, they should have blocked the field goal.

"If I hadn't felt we got a few bad calls early in the second half, I probably would have gone for the win."

Syracuse Coach Dick MacPherson said he wouldn't have thought twice about trying to win in the same situation.

"I would not have gone for the tie," MacPherson said. "Absolutely not."

Dye said kicking the field goal was not a split-second decision.

"I don't let my kids talk me out out of anything on the sideline," Dye said. "I had already thought about it. It's not the way I wanted it to end and not the way coach MacPherson wanted it to end."

Jeff Burger completed 11 of 12 passes for 63 yards in the tying drive that got Auburn to the Syracuse 13, where the Tigers spent their final time out with four seconds remaining. Dye chose to go for the tie.

SYRACUSE, WHICH had never led, took a 16-13 advantage with only 2:04 to play on a 38-yard field goal by Tim Vesling.

Vesling's field goal came at the end of a 64-yard drive sparked by All-American Don McPherson, who completed four of five passes for 46 yards and added six yards on three carries.

McPherson, who was sacked five times by an intense Auburn rush, was still the key man for the Orange, completing 11 of 21 passes for 140 yards.

The tie left Auburn, the Southeastern Conference champion, with a 9-1-2 record.

The Orangemen had gained a 13-13 tie with 8:53 remaining on Vesling's 31-yard field goal. That capped a 61-yard drive immediately after Auburn had broken a 10-10 deadlock on Lyle's 41-yard field goal with 13:27 left in the contest.

Both kickers had earlier field goals — a 40-yarder by Lyle in the final minute of the second quarter that gave Auburn a 10-7 halftime lead, and a 27-yarder just over five minutes into the third period by Vesling.

THE TIGERS opened the scoring on Jeff Burger's 17-yard pass to Lawyer Tillman in the first quarter, a score set up by wide receiver Duke Donaldson's 58-yard pass to Tillman that carried to the Syracuse 10.

The Orange got that score back on the first play of the second quarter on McPherson's 12-yard pass to Deval Glover.

Vesling missed a 46-yard field goal try in the second quarter, coming up a little short.

The game had been billed as one matching Auburn's tough defense against the all-around talents of McPherson, the Heisman Trophy runner-up who mastered Syracuse's option attack throughout the season.

The big defensive plays were expected from All-American linebacker Kurt Crain and outside linebacker Aundray Bruce. But the major pressure came from tackle Ron Stallworth, who had three of the sacks for 33 yards in losses.

Auburn's offense had trouble moving throughout most of the game.

The Tigers caught the Orange off guard on their second possession when Burger lateraled to Donaldson, who fired to Tillman on the Syracuse 22, with the receiver lugging it to the 10 to set up the game's first score.

The touchdown came after a procedure penalty and 2-yard loss, with Tillman leaping behind two defenders to make the catch.

McPherson had runs of 19, four and seven yards before completing his 12-yard scoring pass to Glover to get the Orange even. That 58-yard drive had been set up by David Holmes' 20-yard interception return of a Burger pass.

The Tigers got their halftime lead on a 72-yard drive in which Burger completed five of six passes for 45 yards.

Robert Drummond rambled for 32 yards on six carries in the third-quarter 54-yard drive to the 27-yard field goal for the Orange, setting the stage for the fourth-quarter field goal shootout between Lyle and Vesling.

Land office develops new fees

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Traditionalist family ranchers and preservation-minded environmentalists have been forced to lay down their rhetoric for the second round of the debate over grazing fees on state trust land.

But while the emotional debate has dwindled, the technical data has mounted, and the official "record" of task force meetings and two public hearings now stands about four inches thick on a shelf in Bill Humphries' bookcase.

"We have much more detailed, factual information this time," says Humphries, New Mexico's elected commissioner of public lands.

When Humphries took office Jan. 1, 1987, he inherited a controversy over grazing fees that began when his predecessor, Jim Baca, enacted a phased 250 percent increase in grazing fees in 1985. Baca's fees drew criticism and a class-action lawsuit from ranchers.

"There was a high degree of emotionality" in the debate over Baca's proposed fees, says Humphries. Ranchers were arguing that they were paying too much in light of their economic situation, and environmentalists objected to the bargain-basement rates the state was giving to trust land lessees.

"The old battles used to have basically our side giving the emotional, family-farm side, and the environmentalists on the other side were saying the land was being raped," says Denny Gentry, executive vice president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association.

In October 1986, shortly before Baca left office, a Santa Fe district judge threw out the proposed fees. The judge said Baca had failed to account for economic conditions.

In A.D. 155 Polycarp, Bishop of Smyrna, declared: "My God, in what a generation thou hast caused me to live!" Of course, it was a day of persecution for the good Bishop and many of his people. Fact is, not long after that, he was burned at the stake. Yet, in his opinion and experience, it was a great day in which to live.

The greatness of life is determined not by ease but by how creative we are in times of hardship. We decide what we see in life and about life; that's what makes life real and exciting—our faith in what is and our hope in what can be.

We need to grasp the faith and vision of the young Frenchman standing amidst the ruins of his little town caused by the Nazis. "How can you be so optimistic in the middle of so much gloom?" someone asked him.

"The world is being wrecked but I am going to have the privilege of helping build it back."

The Apostle Paul would have applauded such faith and commitment. Said he "for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." (Phil. 4:11)

Minister doing what she thought she should

RELIGION

The Rev. Debbie Measells has served for the past two years as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Brazoria. The 36-year-old Measells has a husband and 6-year-old daughter and has to walk a fine line between job and family.

AP Laserphoto

BRAZORIA (AP) — Debbie Measells says she is a plain, ordinary woman who, in her own words, was something of a wallflower as a teenager.

But the 36-year-old Mrs. Measells also is a woman of the cloth, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Growing up in Illinois, Mrs. Measells says she was always active in church, but did not decide she wanted to be a minister until she was a junior at Indiana University.

"I wanted to be a social worker," she said. "It was in the '60s, and that was just what women did."

Mrs. Measells said she deliberated about her career options for six or eight months before she made up her mind.

"You hear ministers use the term that they are 'called.' It sounds kind of corny, but there really is a feeling that that's what you should be doing," she said.

She took her religious training at Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Kentucky.

She had the support of her home church, Mrs. Measells said, and it did not occur to her that some people might find it strange that a woman wanted to be a minister.

"I guess I was naive enough to think that people would not think anything about it," she said. "But at seminary the first day, there were people who were suspicious."

It was the fall of 1973, a time when women felt pressure to be different and to pursue equality, but for Mrs. Measells, there was nothing to prove. "I just wanted to do what I thought I should do.

"At times it was a little uncomfortable being a woman, but people have always been accepting," she said.

Her personality has been one of her greatest assets, Mrs. Measells said.

"I have very strong opinions and views and convictions, but I have a subtle, non-aggressive way of dealing with people," she said.

One of the best lessons she learned came at the first church she pastored.

Mrs. Measells said there was a woman at the church who she could not seem to get along with, but her supervisor pulled her aside and reminded her of her duty.

"He told me, 'I don't care if you like her or not you're going to serve her,'" Mrs. Measells said. "It was a good lesson. I am their minister, and if I can't meet their needs, then I'm not doing what I should."

When she came to Brazoria two years ago, she remembered that advice. Mrs. Measells said she has never received anything but support from her congregation of about 130 active members.

She said she tries not to schedule too many meetings and activities so that she is available for the community.

"When people want a minister, it's because they're hurting, and if you can't help them when they're hurting, hurt goes away and then they don't need a minister anymore," she said.

"I want to be available and serve them where they hurt."

And Mrs. Measells said she always tries to walk that fine line between job and family, leaving quality time for her husband, Jerry, and 6-year-old daughter, Phoebe.

Her biggest challenge, Mrs. Measells said, is making sure that she meets the needs of her congregation and not just her own.

"For me, it's my life, my job," she said. "But sometimes I have to remember that I have to do what is best for my church."

Religion in '87 tainted by some 'shady doings'

NEW YORK (AP) — As in politics and finance, a lot of shady doings turned up in religious circles in 1987, mostly individual but sometimes institutional.

Except for the Jim Bakker sex-and-money "televangelism" scandal, rated the year's top religion story, few of the other instances made that list.

Nevertheless, hanky panky surfacing in a field stressing morality was extensive and often jarring, as it was in politics and on Wall Street.

Such proliferation of transgressions in the public arena, including religion, led the Religion Newswriters Association to rank signs of general ethical malaise as fourth among the year's major religion stories.

In second place was Pope John Paul II's U.S. visit, his warm mingling with Protestants and stern admonitions against dissent. Ranked third was the unexpectedly strong showing of former religious broadcaster Pat Robertson in the bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

While only the Bakker case made the list of top stories, embarrassing affairs in religion were numerous and varied in 1987. Numerous ministers were involved in sex scandals, while other religious figures were linked to other shames.

Among the cases:

— A Greek Orthodox bishop, Anthimos of Denver, resigned after an inquiry by the church's highest tribunal in Constantinople (now Istanbul, Turkey) into claims he had kept a priest's daughter in sexual servitude for three years.

— The head of the Vatican bank, Illinois-born Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus, became a virtual prisoner in Vatican City after it refused to extradite him to face Italian arrest warrants charging complicity in a 1982 bank scandal.

Italy's top court nullified the warrants, ruling a treaty forbade interference in Vatican affairs, but a prosecutor is challenging the provision's constitutionality.

— Southern Methodist University was suspended from intercollegiate football after disclosures of banned payments to players and charges of an attempted cover-up by former board member Texas Gov. William P. Clements Jr.

Santa Busy Making Lists? Your Lifescope Says, "Guess Who Else Is?"

Daniel's vision: "I watched till thrones were put in place, and the Ancient of Days was seated; His garment was white as snow, and the hair of His head was like pure wool. His throne was a fiery flame, its wheels a burning fire; a fiery stream issued and came forth from before Him. A thousand thousands ministered to Him; ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him. The court was seated, and the books were opened."

John's vision: "I saw the dead, small and great, standing before God, and books were opened. And another book was opened, which is the Book of Life. And the dead were judged according to their works, by the things which were written in the books. And anyone not found written in the Book of Life was cast into the lake of fire.

"And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. And the city had no need of the sun or of the moon to shine in it, for the glory of God illuminated it, and the Lamb is its light. And the nations of those who are saved shall walk in its light, and the kings of the earth bring their glory and honor into it. Its gates shall not be shut at all by day (there shall be no night there). But there shall by no means enter it anything that defiles, or causes an abomination or a lie, but only those who are written in the Lamb's Book of Life."

Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life, but whoever rejects the Son will not see life, for God's wrath remains on him.

Jesus said, "If you keep My commandments, you will abide in My love, just as I have kept My Father's commandments and abide in His love. You are My friends if you do whatever I command you."

Landmark churches threatened

CHICAGO (AP) — Generations of immigrants built churches as symbols and focal points of their tightly knit neighborhoods, but congregations are dwindling and Catholic officials have announced plans to close two of the landmark buildings.

And the archdiocese intimated as many as 25 other inner-city churches with deteriorating structures and shrinking flocks may share the same fate.

"We don't want to be left sitting on museums," said John Philbin, director of finance for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago.

"It really is an emotional thing for a lot of people, and we hate to see churches go down," he added, "but who is going to pay the tab to keep them up?"

Last Sunday the Jesuit Order announced that Holy Family Catholic Church, a stone edifice which survived the Chicago Fire of 1871, is scheduled for demolition next year.

The Jesuits, which own and operate Holy Family, considered the estimated $3.5 million cost of repairs an unrealistic burden for its 250 parishioners, mostly aged Italians on pensions and poor black and Hispanic families.

In 1895, Holy Family boasted a congregation of 25,000 and the contribution of even pennies per family totaled a considerable sum. Weekly donations now average only $350.

For the past two years, the city's 435 parishes collectively have spent more than they have taken in.

The archdiocese said Wednesday that similar problems required the closing indefinitely of St. Mary of the Angels, one of this country's finest examples of Roman Renaissance architecture. The church is capped by a terra cotta dome modeled upon the one created by Michelangelo for St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

LDS preparing for first service in new chapel

The first worship services in the new chapel of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Midland will be held Sunday. The new chapel is located at the corner of Crestgate and Gateway, north of Loop 250.

Previous members of the LDS church met at the chapel at 2101 Tarleton; however, that chapel was serving four congregations with a total of 1200 members and more room was needed. The Midland First ward and Midland Second ward consisting of 700 members will now meet at the new chapel, while Midland Third ward and the Llano Branch will continue to meet in the chapel on Tarleton.

The new chapel is 26,000 square feet and is located on three acres of land. The chapel seats 300 people, but can be expanded into the cultural hall with a seating capacity of 1,500 people. There are 50 rooms which include 30 teaching stations, a full size gym, stage, kitchen, library, chapel and administrative offices. Church leaders are all volunteers who have professions other than clerical and are not paid to perform their church services. The chapel was built by a local construction firm and was entirely paid for before construction began, as are all LDS buildings.

Sunday worship services at the chapel include Sunday school classes, additional meetings to meet the needs of women, men, youth, and children plus a Sacrament meeting. Classes and the Sacrament meeting are each about on hour long. Visitors are always invited to attend.

An open house will be held at the new chapel from 1-9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23 for community members. Displays and presentations will be set up throughout the building including geneology, food storage, bread making and family home evening.

Altar Society to meet

St. Ann's Altar Society will meet at 10 a.m. Monday in the parish parlor. Nursery will be provided if notified prior to the meeting.

Level of ethics on 'decline'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Despite indications of spiritual hunger in America and a surge of interest in religion, there has been a decline in the level of ethics, a Southern Baptist leader says.

The Rev. Roy Edgemon, director of the denominational Sunday School Board's church-training department, told a meeting of state leaders:

"The No. 1 trend of religion in America is the spiritual hunger for depth and meaning in the lives of Christians. But at the same time, the level of ethics is declining."

Iraq claims first tanker attack for 1988

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes launched their first tanker raid of 1988 Friday, attacking a ship off Iran's coast hours after hitting another in the same area.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit said 1987 was the most dangerous year for Persian Gulf shipping since the Iran-Iraq war began seven years ago.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei repeated warnings that the gulf, a major world oil route, would be off limits to others if the United Nations imposed a naval blockade on his country in an effort to end the war.

The official Iraqi News Agency reported "accurate and effective hits" against "two big naval targets," one at 10 p.m. Thursday and another at 10 a.m. Friday.

One communique said such raids "aim at destroying the base of aggression and cutting off oil supplies of the evil gang ruling in Tehran."

Neither Iran nor shipping sources in the region confirmed the claims, but delays of several days are not uncommon for confirming such reports.

Iran usually answers each Iraqi attack with one of its own, concentrating on ships trading with Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, which it accuses of aiding Iraq's war effort.

According to Lloyd's, there were 178 attacks on merchant vessels in the gulf last year.

The pace of attacks escalated as the year ended. October and November each saw 21 attacks, but there were 34 in December, Lloyd's said. The worst previous year was 1986, when 107 attacks on commercial shipping were recorded.

The Iranian president told worshipers at Tehran University on Friday that if a naval blockade were imposed on his country, "the Persian Gulf will not only be closed for us, but for all the regional states of the Persian Gulf."

His remarks were carried by Tehran radio and monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani in December made a similar threat to choke off the gulf, which carries about 20 percent of the non-communist world's oil supplies.

Pope implores leaders to heed world's 'yearning for peace'

Associated Press

WORLD

Muscovites smashed champagne bottles on Red Square and throngs of Japanese entering the Year of the Dragon bought charms against misfortune in worldwide New Year's celebrations Friday, the start of Australia's bicentennial and Dublin's second millennium.

The pope sent joyful greetings to the faithful in the Soviet Union who this year celebrate 1,000 years of Christianity, and he implored world leaders to "listen to men's yearning for peace."

In the Philippines, at least 11 people were killed and 1,225 injured in a frenzy of pyrotechnics, gunshots and drunken brawls. And in two West German cities, scores of anarchists pelted police with rocks, smashed windows and cars and plundered stores.

President Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev exchanged optimistic greetings in broadcast addresses to each other's people, expressing mutual hope they will reach a second arms control treaty within six months. The two leaders have agreed to hold their fourth summit in Moscow during the first half of 1988.

New Year's Day is the year's biggest holiday in the Soviet Union, whose atheist Communist authorities have transferred to it most Christmas traditions, including gift-giving and decorated fir trees.

Most Soviets celebrated the new year with family and friends around tables laden with "zakuski" — snacks of all kinds — and wine and liquor that showed up in state stores just in time.

Several thousand Muscovites trekked to Red Square in the biting cold minutes before the clock on Spassky Tower chimed midnight, when toasts and cheers rang out and people smashed empty bottles on the cobblestone expanse.

The official Tass news agency said Friday was the 41st birthday of cosmonaut Vladimir Titov, who spent the day working aboard the Mir space station with Musa Manarov in the first days of their year-long mission.

Early morning hotel fire claims at least 13 people in Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — An early morning fire raced through a Bangkok hotel Friday and killed at least 13 people, including an American and a woman who lost her grip on a ladder from a rescue helicopter, authorities said.

Police said 36 other people were injured in the blaze, which broke out a 4 a.m. at the nine-story First Hotel in central Bangkok.

Lt. Gen. Manus Krutchaiyunt, commissioner of the Metropolitan Police Bureau, identified the dead American as Daniel James Ryan.

Hotel guest Leo S. Roland of St. Louis, Mo., said Ryan, 27, was from Jacksonville, Ark..

Roland said he and Ryan were aircraft mechanics for Boeing Co. and had worked during the last year in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. He said the two had arrived in Thailand on New Year's Eve on vacation.

Ryan went up one flight to Roland's ninth-floor room to tell him of the fire, Roland said. Both men tried to go down the stairs but were turned back by smoke. They entered a utility room and Roland climbed out a window, but Ryan didn't follow him, he said.

"I went back to see if he was OK," Roland said. "He had passed out. I pulled him to the window but I couldn't carry him. I couldn't help him at all...the fire eventually got to him."

Roland, 26, said he scaled the side of the building and made his way to the roof, where he climbed down a ladder of a fire truck.

Shiao En-Lo, from Singapore, said two of her young daughters and her mother were killed in the blaze. She said she rescued her baby boy but became separated from the rest of her family when smoke engulfed the sixth floor. Her husband was missing.

A Singaporean Embassy official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said four of the dead were Singaporeans and another was an ethnic Vietnamese woman who held an Australian passport.

Vichien Sae Tang, a rescue worker for the Ruam Katanyu Foundation, said the woman died when she fell off a ladder dangling from a police helicopter that tried to rescue her from the hotel roof.

Vichien said the fire was still blazing when the woman plunged to the roof of a house about 150 feet from the hotel and broke her neck and legs. The Ruam Katanyu Foundation assists in disasters.

Police said most of the dead, all hotel guests, succumbed to smoke inhalation and lack of oxygen. Reporters saw the bodies of five women, three men and two children at the Metropolitan Police Bureau. Most appeared to be ethnic Asians.

Three more bodies were found later as rescuers searched the fully-booked, 218-room hotel.

Police said nine people admitted to hospital included four Singaporeans, two West Germans, two Indians, and one Thai.

The estimated 400 hotel guests were evacuated and the fire was put out after four hours.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Apichart Sungsithiveth, the hotel's night manager, said the fire began at a switchboard of a second-floor room usually used for parties.

New Year's Eve festivities in nearby rooms had ended a few hours before the blaze began, he said. Initial reports said the fire started during a New Year's party.

Apichart said he and other hotel workers tried to put out the fire with water and a hand-held extinguisher, but the flames kept spreading.

Firefighters smashed windows to get to people trapped in their rooms. Policemen quoted some hotel guests as saying they heard no fire warning.

Witnesses said they saw guests climb out of windows, race to the roof, or rush out of the lobby.

Joseph Williford, from Fayetteville, N.C., said he was awakened by the sound of breaking glass and an onrush of smoke.

"I got my family together in the room but soon was separated from my son and wife and sister-in-law," he said. "I managed to strap my daughter to my stomach with a bedsheet and we crawled down the balcony.

"I grabbed a pole and managed to climb to an adjoining building where some people helped us to the ground."

Williford said he later learned a Norwegian man helped the rest of his family climb onto a second-floor balcony, where firefighters rescued them with a ladder. Williford, an engineer who works in Brunei, was vacationing with his Thai-born wife and their children.

Time catches up with 'Peter Pan'

By LESLIE SHEPHERD

LONDON (AP) — Time has caught up with Peter Pan, the boy who wouldn't grow up.

The copyright on the classic children's story, bequeathed to London's Great Ormond Street Hospital For Sick Children, expired Thursday — 50 years after the death of author J.M. Barrie.

Barrie's story of a boy who never grew up, but who could fly and fight pirate Captain Hook in Never Never Land, grew out of tales he spun for five orphaned boys.

The play was first performed in 1904, followed by a story, "Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens" in 1906 and the play in book form in 1911.

When he died in 1937, Barrie willed the copyright to the hospital for the maximum 50 years permitted by British law — with the provision it never reveal how much it earned in royalties.

"It's made a considerable contribution to the life and well-being of the hospital," general manager Sir Anthony Tippet, said Thursday in typical British understatement. "It leaves a gap."

British news reports speculated the royalties from fans of Peter Pan, Tinker Bell and the three Darling children amounted to several million dollars over the years.

The money helped the 146-year-old hospital provide up-to-date medical equipment and treatment, giving it a world-class reputation attracting young patients from far and wide.

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, had his appendix removed there as a child.

"Peter Pan" is playing to packed house at the Cambridge Theater in London's West End, and British singer Lulu, who plays the leading role, said the audience is not made up entirely of children.

"In the evenings it's mostly grownups, funny enough," she said in a British Broadcasting Corp. television interview.

"It's become sort of a cult. It's fascinating the number of people that just love it and know practically every line. You know, you hardly get it out of your mouth and they're laughing."

George Cole, the actor who plays Captain Hook, says theaters performing "Peter Pan" in the future should continue to make contributions to the hospital, which is trying to raise $56 million to expand and modernize.

"I think one must prevail on people who do 'Peter Pan' from now on to contribute something to Great Ormond Street," Cole said.

"And if they don't, we'll label them rat finks."

Tippet said Barrie, who was knighted in 1913, had no particular ties to the 333-bed hospital, which treats 9,000 in-patients a year and another 70,000 as out-patients.

"Because he had spent a great deal of his life thinking and writing about children, it was a natural association," Tippet said.

U.S. joins rights activists to protest Salvadoran law

By JAMES LeMOYNE
New York Times News Service

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — The U.S. Embassy and human rights activists are strongly criticizing a blanket amnesty law here that has pardoned several gunmen accused of killing both Americans and Salvadoran civilians in recent years.

American officials learned this week that a Salvadoran court has released two soldiers who were convicted of murdering two American advisers on land redistribution in 1981. The gunmen were released even though they were convicted as criminals charged with murder, rather than having been charged with a political offense by a special military tribunal here.

Human rights activists contend that the amnesty law, passed this fall to comply with the terms of a new Central American peace treaty calling for amnesty for political crimes, is unnecessarily broad. They argue that the law weakens the feeble official effort here to punish abusers of human rights.

The punishment of suspected killers, especially in the army and the police, was a major promise of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, one he repeated often.

Government officials argue that the only amnesty that made political sense was one that offered a pardon for all political crimes, whether committed by leftist rebels or rightist gunmen or army soldiers in the bitter civil war.

But critics of the government say the National Assembly passed a broad amnesty law as a convenient way to avoid having to prosecute powerful army officers accused of human rights abuses. They contend the government knew it could not fulfill its pledge to prosecute army officers and so decided to let them off.

Human rights officials argue that there is nothing either in international law or in the new Central American peace accord that requires the pardon of convicted killers of civilian non-combatants.

They point out that a partial amnesty granted in Nicaragua has not included convicted people or those strongly suspected of being killers.

Americas Watch, a New York-based human rights organization that has long monitored human rights violations in El Salvador, said in a recent statement protesting the Salvadoran amnesty law that it was difficult to see how the cause of peace or human rights was served "by an amnesty law that forgives murderers of noncombatants."

"The law sets a terrible precedent," said a leading international human rights official here. "Basically all the government's promises to prosecute human rights violations have been forgotten."

American diplomats, who have backed the amnesty law as a way of wiping the slate clean in the eight-year civil war here, are now finding reason to complain as well.

The U.S. Embassy issued an official protest Friday when it learned that the convicted killers of the two American advisers had been pardoned under the amnesty.

"We are concerned and indignant," the State Department said in an statement on the pardon. "Given this situation we intend to review the level and type of assistance that we are giving to the Salvadoran judicial branch."

American officials say they now fear that three suspected leftist rebels accused of involvement in the killing of four American Marines and nine civilians at an outdoor restaurant in 1985 will also be pardoned soon.

"I feel sick thinking the guys that machine-gunned a restaurant full of people could walk free," an American official here said.

The embassy is appealing in the courts to try to prevent the release of the three men accused of killing the Marines. But it appears that the suspects will almost certainly be eligible for a pardon under the amnesty law.

The amnesty also covers leftist guerrillas who have executed hundreds of suspected government informers, several local employees of the U.S. Embassy, assembly deputies and business people since the 1970s.

The law is believed to have led to the release of more than 400 political prisoners accused of being leftist guerrillas, according to human rights officials. They say the numbers are not precise because no one has verified how many political prisoners went free under the amnesty.

The amnesty law has two exceptions. It does not cover anyone involved in the 1980 slaying of the Roman Catholic archbishop here, nor anyone accused of involvement in kidnapping for profit.
