All Troops Called to Halt Special Election

HUGE ARMY NOW CALLED TO BAR VOTING TUESDAY

Mobilization of All Troops With 75,000 Volunteers Ordered

WALTON FEARS RIOTS

Opposing Forces Declare Election Will Be Held As Scheduled

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept 30.—A statement declaring that a special state election to be held Tuesday at which a measure would be voted on to permit the legislature to consider impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton is valid and that "every qualified voter should quietly and peaceably go to the polls and cast his vote as his conscience may dictate", was issued here early today by George F. Short, state attorney general.

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30.—The entire force of arms of the state will be thrown into the field Tuesday to prevent the holding of a special state election at which a measure would be submitted providing a way for the legislature to consider impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton, and to curb rioting that might result from closing of the polls, it was announced by the governor tonight.

Huge Army Involved.

The governor said that mobilization orders for the entire Oklahoma national guard, numbering approximately 5,000 men, had been issued today and that tonight 75,000 volunteer militiamen will be called to designate strategic centers for an emergency. He declined to reveal details of the mobilization plans.

In addition the executive said that he had instructed his special corps of secret service operatives, which he said numbered 22,000 men, to assist regular county authorities to keep the polls closed.

McBee Directs Defi.

Meanwhile, plans directed by W. D. McBee, member of the state house of representatives, and other legislative opponents of the executive, went forward rapidly to ensure an attempt by the public to vote. Following a proclamation early today by the governor postponing the election, the leaders of the movement to override him, established communication by telegraph and telephone with every county in the state, and tonight they announced that meetings were in progress in virtually all sections at which speakers were urging citizens to attempt to vote in defiance of the governor's proclamation.

More Stringent Laws.

Simultaneously the governor declared that he was on the verge of proclaiming more stringent martial law throughout the state.

"I have been very patient," he said. "But one more crack and I am going to put this state under martial law that will be martial law. I am going to make them go to bed at six o'clock, and there will be very few passes issued after that hour.

"I have no doubt there will be many vacant houses in Oklahoma soon."

The executive made it plain that only the civilian arm of the enforcement machinery, consisting of regular county officials and his secret service operatives, would be used to prevent the casting of ballots, and that the military would be held in reserve for use in event of rioting that might result from the closing of the polls.

He explained that he did not intend to order the arrest of persons seeking to vote. His whole action, he said, would consist in keeping the polls closed.

Governor Walton made no effort to minimize the seriousness of the situation.

May Be Bloodshed.

"There may be bloodshed," he asserted, "but there will be no election."

"This is my election. I called it, and I certainly have the right to

FIRE DESTROYS RESIDENCE HERE

Occupants Forced to Flee From Flames in Night Clothes

Fire of unknown origin almost completely destroyed a six room residence at 1107 Seventeenth street at nine o'clock last night, the blaze having gutted the building before it was brought under control by firemen from the Central station.

The residence, which was owned by the Wichita Mill and Elevator company, was occupied by the families of F. A. Oldham and F. F. Rice. The flames originated in the room where Oldham was sleeping, and speedily scattered to other rooms forcing the occupants from their home, dressed in sheets and what apparel they were able to find. No furniture was saved, due to the swift destruction of the fire, the cause of which could not be determined.

Education week is held each year under the joint auspices of the National Education association, United States bureau of education, and American Legion, co-operating with more than a hundred other national organizations, the purpose being to bring the people closer to their schools.

LIQUOR PLAYED RIOTOUS PRANK ON THIS FAMILY

The modern jelly bean son of 1922-23 is known to hit the "corn" at times when hours grow small; his post-war sister and running mate, the eight cylinder flapper, is said to touch the vile "white lightning" in stretches of wild speed; but—when the old boy and the missus take one of the youngsters on a liquor party that must be whispers from 1914.

A man, a woman and a girl were picked up last night on the edge of town in a car, which was in the ditch, with the evidences of a strong stuff also there. The three were taken to the police station by night chief Allen, where they gave their names as being husband, wife, and daughter. Whether or not this was true or was only a freak result of the intoxicant, will probably be determined in city court today.

POLICE PAINTING THE TOWN WHITE

Four men in a Ford car were not painting the town red late last night, but that doesn't mean that they were'nt painting it. They took time out at very corner down town, and stopped to put a coat here and there.

It was night Chief Allen and three city officers, Ike Poole, Hocker, and Griffith, putting down the white lines appearing on the streets today. These were placed for the protection of the public afoot, at which they will be supposed to halt until the traffic has passed. When the traffic policeman gives the "stop" comand, that means stop, being the traffic law for pedestrians.

TROOPS HAVE CAPTURED CITY

French 75s Announce Their Arrival

Bang. Whir-r-r-r.

Six times with but a few seconds intervening, the deep "Boom!" resounded with resonance throughout the city, followed by the returning echo. Window panes rattled. Sleepers were awakened. Hundreds wondered where the deep detonating sounds originated.

It was the firing of French 75 mm pieces in the heart of the business district.

Wichita Falls was being invaded by soldiers. The city was actually captured this morning at 5:30 o'clock by Major Frank Monroe and 15 government troops sent here from Ft. Sill, Okla.

The detachment after proclaiming the city captured and under the command of Major Monroe, departed for the fair grounds of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition association and expect to capture the fair grounds during the day.

Many of the city's citizens were awakened by the firing of the French 75's and for awhile the police department telephones were busy giving explanations to parties living in the residential section. The sound of the firing was heard for miles, according to reports received by the police department.

The firing of the cannon was unannounced and created a furor of excitement among the early risers who were on the streets. Many thought the sound came from the refinery section north of the city, where it was thought a battery of tanks had exploded. It was sometime before the rumor was corrected.

A few thought a hostile group of soldiers had actually invaded the city and that martial law had been declared. Those questioning were usually answered with:

"Not by a damp sight, we will have no martial law in Wichita Falls."

Major Frank Monroe when pressed for an explanation of his action in firing the French 75 mm piece stated he was heading a recruiting force out of Ft. Sill, to spend the week at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition, and had such a little time to let the fair visitors know of it that he believed the unique plan to bring the desired publicity needed, and hence carried out the plan. At the eleventh hour he secured the permission of the city officials and the fair association.

The recruiting part also has a display of war equipment which will be put on exhibition at the fair grounds. Many things of interest in new and improved artillery will be shown, as well as trophies of the late world war.

"We had such a little time to get the information out that the fair association officials readily agreed with Major Monroe's plan," C. H. Verschoyle, secretary, fair association stated early this morning.

GRAY DECLARES HIS INNOCENCE

Had No Connection With Ballard Murder He Tells Police

TEXARKANA, Texas, Sept. 30.—"Thorough investigation of the killing of Otis Ballard will reveal the fact that I am not guilty of any connection with the murder," G. C. (Clem) Gray declared here today while he was enroute in custody of Bowie county officers to some secret place of safe keeping.

Gray was removed from the Bowie county jail at Boston about midnight last night after the receipt of advices from Mount Pleasant that rumors were current an attempt would be made to take Gray from the Boston jail.

Gray added that he had no reason for running away from Mount Pleasant, saying that he yielded to the pleadings of his wife to let the officers bring him to Bowie county, because of reported feeling prevailing against him in Titus county.

Ottis Ballard, the Titus county youth who was murdered last Monday night, is said to have been the state's principal witness in the mail burglary case which was pending against Gray in the county at the time of Ballard's mysterious death.

20 GERMANS DIE IN A MASSACRE IN DUESSELDORF

French Troops Rush In To Restore Order After Riot

BLAMES GREEN POLICE

Women and Children Trampled In Rush From Flying Bullets

By The Associated Press.

DUESSELDORFF, Sept. 30.—The great separatist demonstrtion here today terminated in a massacre. A score of persons are known to have been killed and the wounded are believed to be numbered in the hundreds. Duesseldorff is still seething with excitement and more trouble is feared tonight. The French occupation authorities hold the German green military police—the security police—responsible for the outbreak, declaring that they started the shooting, in which the communist groups later joined. The hospitals and police barracks are filled with wounded and French military doctors are rendering all possible assistance.

The French authorities late this evening sent out patrols to round up all the security police they could find in the streets and place under arrest all those still held in reserve at headquarters. The city awoke early today, teeming with excitement; thousands were abroad in spite of an appeal addressed to the population to remain indoors.

Street cars, automibiles and other vehicles were absent from the streets and hotels and stores had all lowered their iron and steel grating. About 11 o'clock the first of the 25 trains bearing the manifestants to Duesseldorff arrived and was received by a company of Rhineland public militia, which had just sworn allegiance to the green, white and red flag.

Soon after noon all the manifestants from points in the "Rhineland republic" had reached the city and a procession formed and marched behind innumerable green, white and red emblems to Hindenburg Strasse — a thoroughfare 200 feet wide by one thousand feet long, adorned with heroic size statue of William I. Bismarck and von Moltke.

The procession filed by in impressive march order to the number of about 15,000 republicans, but, with curiosity seekers, the asembly totalled 40,000 when the open air meeting place was reached.

Standing directly under the statue of William I, the separist leader, Joseph Matthes, began speaking.

"The separists," he declared, "are animated by hatred toward none, but only desire peace, security and tranquility."

Suddenly, without warning, several shots were fired from behind a lowered steel curtain protecting the plate glass plate entrance to a store. In the panic that ensued a small group made a concentrated rush for the speaker. The security police fired a fussillade and the shooting became general. The police being especially active in smashing their way through the crowds and taking prisoners, many who were transferred to headquarters.

French military forces were rushed to the scene and ordered the green police to cease using their revolvers but, according to the French, the police refused and continued to fire. The cavalry seized many of the police and surrounded their barracks, quelling the disturbance in a few minutes.

The trouble began at four o'clock this afternoon when forty thousand persons, including fifteen thousand manifestants, had assembled in the square. The panic-striken crowd fled for safety immediately the shooting began, trampling down women and children. So rapid was the flight that in thirty minutes Hindenburg Strasse was deserted.

French troops later occupied the barracks of the security police and arrested all mebers of the German police inside the building. It was asserted by the French that an investigation had convinced the occupational authorities that the police were responsible for the rioting.

French cavalry and armored cars are patroling the streets of Duesseldorff.

The shooting began while the separist leader, Joseph Matthes, was delivering an address at the foot of the statue of William I. A small party of men whom the French say they later recognized as members of the Duisberg police force, although they were dressed in civilian clothes, made a concerted rush for the orator, giving the security police an excuse to start.

It is asserted that a group of communists also began firing at random into the crowd, which was stampeding for cover, causing a great number of injuries.

Crowds Arriving From All Points Bound to the Fair; Hotels and Rooms Overflow

All incoming trains last night and early this morning were loaded with fair visitors. All roads leading to Wichita Falls were teeming with humanity during the night. Visitors were coming in every conceivable vehicle. The influx is fast filling all hotels and rooming houses, and at an early hour this morning many were seeking for rooms in the resident section, according to railroad conductors and hotel clerks.

Ticket agents for a hundred miles northwest, southwest, southeast and south, reported a heavy sale of tickets, round trip, to Wichita Falls and return at the excursion rates, fare and one-third, that are being offered by the various railroad companies.

Vast Crowds Detrain.

At the central railroad station last night during the arrival of trains there were vast crowds getting off trains and many townspeople were meeting friends whom they will entertain during the fair.

The second annual Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition will open at 8 o'clock this morning under most favorable conditions. The weather is ideal. There is a cooling breeze from the south, and according to the evening report the day will be cool, fair and partly cloudy in northwest Texas and southwest Oklahoma.

Displays Arranged.

Exhibitors at the fair have arranged their displays attractively and each of the many exhibitors have sufficient amount of space alloted to make an excellent showing of their products.

The fair association has done all possible to make the opening day one of the most auspicious of the exposition. Nothing has been left undone to have visitors see the many features, in all departments.

Dedicated to Kiddies.

The day is dedicated to the children.

It is also Congress of Mothers Day, Press Day, Manufacturers and Wholesale Merchants Day.

At 9 o'clock the judging of the exhibits in the women's building will be started. The women's building contains all those features of women's activities, in every line and department. Many of the exhibits in the women's building are unique and interesting to all women.

Parade at 10.

The doll and buggy, kiddie kar, velocipede and bicycle parade will start promptly at 10:30 o'clock this morning. E. S. Goodner and Mrs. Homer McGregor will be in charge of the parade and juveniles. This event will attract parents and will be of unusual interest. The parade will start at the flagpole near the women's building. The route will be down the principal avenue and then to the grandstand where county and city officials, and the juvenile officials who are in charge of the city during the day will review the children. Approximately 500 children under seven years of age, will participate in the event.

The bicycle parade will follow the baby buggy, kiddy kar and velocipede parade. Approximately 500 entries will be in the bicycle parade.

Boy Scouts.

The boy scouts will stage a demonstration in front of the grandstand at 9:30 o'clock this morning. All the boy scouts of the city will participate according to reports from the boy scout headquarters.

Grandstand Free.

During the morning events the grandstand will be free to all visitors. No charge will be made for any seat during the hours of 8 to 12 o'clock noon.

Children Ride Free.

The Wichita Traction company, through its president, Frank Kell, has agreed not to charge children for rides on its line to and from the fair ground during the hours of 8 to 10 o'clock this morning.

Practically all children of the city and county, and many of the surrounding towns will attend the morning events at the fair. A holiday having been declared for school children in Wichita and Clay counties and many towns in other counties have suspended school for the day.

School Co-Operation.

The fair officials have had the heartiest co-operation from the school heads of the various schools throughout the territory of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition. Thousands of tickets have been distributed to the various schools in all towns and districts within a radius of 100 miles of Wichita Falls and a mammoth juvenile crowd is expected to be present on this, the children's day, of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition.

TILLMAN COUNTY ORDERS A VOTE

McBee Tells Kin That Election Positively Will Be Held

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 30.—The special election in Oklahoma, set for October 2, positively will be held Tuesday, according to information received by Representative H. R. King of Tillman county from Representative W. B. McBee, leader of the anti-Walton legislators, Sunday.

This announcement contradicts press dispatches from Oklahoma City carried in Sunday morning papers, which stated that court procedure would delay preparations for the election until it would be impossible to hold the special election Tuesday.

McBee's telegram did not state upon what grounds he based his positive instructions, but said: "Election positively will be held. Ignore Walton's obstructive tactics."

Representative King immediately turned the matter over to leading anti-Walton democrats in Frederick who sent forth a call Sunday afternoon and planned a whirlwind campaign for Monday. Printing of the ballots for the election in the county was got under way Sunday.

At the special election Tuesday interest centers principally in the initiated petition of Campbell Russell, formerly chairman of the state corporation commission, which provides for the assembling of the legislature upon written request signed by a majority of the members of the house of representatives, for the purpose of investigating the conduct of state officials subject to impeachment.

Other amendments and petitions to be voted on are:

A proposed amendment authorizing amplification of the workmens' compensation measure.

A proposed amendment lifting the age limit of 30 years for candidates to the office of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, attorney general, state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, state examiner and inspector and providing that the candidate shall have been an elector in Oklahoma three years prior to assumption of office.

The soldiers' bonus bill, which provides for a bond issue of 55 million dollars and carries with it home and farm aid provisions.

The better schools amendment, limiting the ad valorem tax to 31 and one-half mills and providing state aid of $15 per pupil per year.

A propose amendment to rehabilitate the depositors' guaranty bank fund.

Indications are that unless an unexpected hitch ocurs later today or Monday all will be in readiness in this county for the election Tuesday. McBee's statement was so positive and unexpected that it caused excitement among local politicians who have taken him at his word and are making every move to be in readiness to hold the election. The ballots will be distributed to the various polling places in the county by volunteers from the chamber of commerce. This organization has openly backed the anti-Walton faction.

As Tillman county politics has the appearance of being largely dominated by the ku klux klan it is believed that the election will overwhelmingly favor the Powell amendment.

6 INCHES OF HAIL FALL IN OKLAHOMA

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 30.—Northwestern Oklahoma, barely recovered from the deluge of two weeks ago, was visited by "the most disastrous rain and hail storm in 20 years" according to reports to general offices of the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railroad here, early this morning.

The heaviest precipitation was in the vicinity of Woodward, where three inches of rain fell within two hours, this being followed by 6 inches of hail.

Many bridges are out on the Northwestern, and train crew reported that water came up to the beds of cars at several places.

No train has reached the northern terminus of the Nethwestern railroad in the past two weeks, due to a washout on the Canadian river that carried away 30 sections of the road's bridge over this stream. Officials had hoped to restore service this week until they learned of tonight's cloudburst.

Due to the fact that all telephone lines are down in the section, it is impossible to ascertain whether there has been loss of life, or to what extent property has suffered.

QUEEN RECEIVES CROWN TONIGHT

The most gorgeous event of the evening will be the coronation of the second queen of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition. The pageant will be held at 8 o'clock this evening at the Maskat Temple, fair grounds.

Elaborate gowns and jewels will be displayed by the various participants. Splendidly beautifully gowned princesses will take part. Charming misses, bedecked and in unique costumes, and a court of gold will all take principal roles in the crowning of the queen.

A program composed of variety dance, interspiced with music of numbers, featured by a Turkish stringed instruments will start immediately after the coronation of the second queen of the T-O kingdom.

Cats Swamp Pelicans With Swats; Take 4th

PATE HOLDS NEW ORLEANS WHILE TEAM MATES KNOCK TWO PITCHERS FROM BOX

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 30.—The Fort Worth Panthers today swamped New Orleans by a score of 10 to 1 and chalked up their third victory of the four games played so far for the Dixie baseball championship. The Panthers succeeded in knocking "Rube" Robinson out of the box in the fifth inning, sending to the showers the hurler who had won the only game of the series for the Pelicans. Joe Martina fared little better and in the sixth Carl Thomas was sent in to pitch.

Pate, who lost the only game the Pelicans had won, held the locals almost at his mercy. He allowed only six hits while his teammates got to the trio of Pelican pitchers for fourteen.

The Panthers started scoring in the second inning. Kraft, the first man up beat out a slow roller. Hoffman walked and Haworth sacrificed. Rapp went out and then Tavener, the next man up, singled to right, scoring Kraft and Hoffman.

The fifth inning was the big one for Fort Worth. Pate was hit by a pitched ball. Calvo doubled into the right field crowd for two bases, and Pate went to third. Sears drove a ball into the rightfield crowd, scoring Pate and Calvo, and scored on Edington's double to right a moment later. Edington's hit sent Robinson to the dugout and Martina took up the task of heading off the Panthers.

He fanned Kraft, but Hoffman, the next man up, drove the ball over the right field fence for a home run, scoring Edington ahead of him.

Fort Worth fans thought enough of Hoffman's hit to pass hats among the crowd and collected $208. This was split, $100 going to Hoffman, $100 to Pate and the balance into the Fort Worth pennant fund.

The Panthers scored another run in the sixth on Pate's double into the right field crowd and Calvo's duplicate to the same spot. In the seventh Kraft walked and stole second. Two outs followed than Rapp doubled to left center, scoring Kraft. It was Rapp's first hit of the series. The last run was put over in the ninth with Thomas pitching. Kraft doubled to left. Two outs were followed by Rapp's single to center, scoring Kraft.

The Pelican's only run was scored in the third inning. After Mitze had flied to Calvo, Robinson flied to left. Bogart flied out and Gilbert walked. Ewoldt singled to left scoring Robinson. The crowd that witnessed the contest apparently was a record for New Orleans. Every stand was packed and standing spectators were so numerous behind the ropes that ground rules were necessary. Most of the heavy clouts were in the crowd and under the rules went for two bases. Several of them would have been good for three bases and possibly the circuit on a clear field.

Another victory for the Panthers wins the series as the games were scheduled on a seven game basis. Should the Pelicans win tomorrow the teams will go to Fort Worth to play Thursday.

SPORT THROUGH EDGREN'S EYES

—By Edgren

By ROBERT EDGREN

Edgren Tells Dempsey's Own Story of Firpo Fight.

Here is Jack Dempsey's own story of the great fight with Firpo of the Argentine.

It is dramatic, and in spite of the millions of words written about the fight by men who looked on, it shows a completely new angle that will astonish many other people as much as it astonished me.

Dempsey's own story of his sensations and of what happened in the ring has not been printed before and there are many things in it that no one but Dempsey has known up to this moment.

The champion told it to me as we sat in his room at the Belmont hotel in New York, Monday morning, the third day after the battle. He was looking in perfect trim except for a slightly discolored left eye, and as he talked he chuckled over his own description of his experience.

"You didn't know I was knocked out in that fight, did you?" asked the champion. "Well, I was knocked out by the first punch Firpo hit me, and what kept me on my feet and fighting I don't know. I just remember things in spots. I was nearly out all through the first round and I didn't know what was happening half the time.

"I never went into a fight before with the same feeling that I had in this one. All the other fights, even for the championship at Toledo, were just business. I was thinking of the money I could make by winning. I thought about the money in this fight at first, when I was up at the training camp. Doc and I had my fight all figured out. I thought I knew all about Firpo."

Planned To Start Fast.

"A funny thing happened to me when I got into the ring. Nobody razzed me. I wasn't used to that. Then Joe Humphreys gave me that fine introduction, and the crowd cheered for me. It's the first time I've heard a cheer like that since Toledo—a cheer that sounded as if everybody meant it.

"All of a sudden all thought of money and success and what it meant to me to win, for myself, went right out of my head. It came over to me that here was a big, powerful fellow who had come from another country to beat me and take the championship away from America. I was the American who had to beat him.

"It was all up to me, and those people all around as far as I could see were with me and wanted me to win. I never thought whether I was fighting for nothing or for a million dollars, and it wouldn't have made any difference. I just had to win. I couldn't lose and let the fellow from the other country go back and say he'd beaten the American champion.

"My plan was to start fast, but watch Firpo's dangerous right, get an opening as soon as I could, and every time I got a sure opening drive a hard punch through without letting him reach me with a counter.

"Now, I added to the plan. I concentrated my mind on driving the knockout punch through the first opening. I would knock him out with one punch in the body—that's the surest knockout punch if you can get it in right.

"The bell rang and I went out fast. Firpo came out and I saw an opening for a left hook at the body—just what I wanted!

"I dived in and hit with all my strength. Firpo circled a little bit to my right and I missed him.

Fought Through A Haze.

"Just as I realized I was missing, he hit me with something! I don't know what it was. Don't know where the blow came from or where it landed.

"They say it was a right uppercut. I never saw it. My knees hit the floor and in the same motion I was up and my rush carried me on and against him.

"That's all I knew for a while. I was out on my feet. I don't know what was in me that kept me fighting. I was in a haze.

"Then, through the haze, I saw Firpo, and he was on the floor. I don't know how he got there. His eyes were shut.

"I saw him on his knees again, and rolling on the floor, but I don't know how many times he was down except what they tell me. I was still almost out myself.

"I can only remember it in little flashes. The rest is a blank. Firpo must have been as bad as I was, or he'd have taken a count. I don't take any stock in the story that he had to get up because he didn't understand the count in English.

"He's been here a year and he isn't a boob. I could learn to count ten in Spanish in a year if I was in the Argentine and that's all he'd need to know.

"In fact, I can count ten in Spanish now. I studied some Spanish when I thought I might fight him down there, and Firpo isn't 'dumb' any more than I am.

Just Traded Blow for Blow.

"I just remember hearing the referee tell me to go to my corner when Firpo was down, and every time the ring was all in a haze and whirling around and it looked to me as if there were a million corners, all sliding past!

"I'd start for one and get hold of the ropes so I could stay in it, but I didn't know if it was my corner unless I saw Kearns' white face through the ropes.

"I want to see the pictures and they gave me a great laugh. Once I stepped right over Firpo to get to a corner.

"Of course in a fight you always try to get where the other fellow can't see you when he's down. It puzzles him to find you when he gets up. That's part of the game.

"In the pictures I saw that I wasn't trying to dodge his punches when he socked me. I was just taking them and trading blow for blow. I was too near out myself to know anything except that I was in there to fight until something dropped.

"Next thing I do remember was that I wondered when Firpo was going to stay down—and he got up and swung an awful punch. Maybe that was the one that gave me this eye, but I don't know where it landed. Everything got nearly dark and I didn't know where the corners were or anything and I couldn't see Firpo, but I could feel him socking me.

"The blows didn't hurt. I just felt them kind of throwing me back. Blows never hurt in a fight.

Describes His Fall From Ring.

"Next I felt the ring ropes across my back, and my hands wouldn't come up. Firpo was swinging on my jaw, but I didn't know it.

"After that there's another blank. I felt the back of my head thump on something. Lucky I didn't go clear over the press box to the ground or hit my head on a typewriter or a bench. Everything was pitch dark—I don't know how long, but it could not have been more than a couple of seconds.

"Then something began to shine in my eyes and I was lying on top of people who were wriggling around under me and I saw the ring ropes waving and shaking up above me. They looked white even in the glare from the lights.

"Then I saw a big black blurred blot against the lights, moving close to the ropes. That was Firpo looking down on me. The blot swayed a little, but stayed right there.

"I began to hear a kind of a dull roar, like Niagara Falls a mile way. It grew louder and I could hear voices and all of a sudden I knew where I was. I knew I'd been knocked out of the ring. I thought the crowd was calling to me to get up and I thought: 'Gee, I'll have to get back in there quick to win this fight!'

"I think I said: 'Push me back in there somebody!' Whatever was under me kind of heaved me off and I caught a rope or something and pulled myself into the ring. The big black blur that was Firpo was right over me and I had to slide out sideways along the ropes to get up.

"Then I was up and I thought I was swaying fast from side to side to duck the blows that kept knocking me back. I was just moving slow, 'punch drunk,' but I didn't know it. I couldn't see them come but I knew they were coming, and I couldn't lift my hands to hit.

"I wanted to hit him and knock him back, but I was fighting in the dark.

"I've worried sometimes over whether I was game or not, but now I know I don't need to bother over that. When a fellow is as near out as I was and comes back to win he's game. Firpo is dead game too. They don't make 'em any gamer."

"All Fooled About Firpo."

Here Dempsey stopped, and his face flushed as if he'd been caught in some foolish trick.

"We were all fooled about Firpo," he said. "I never dreamed he could move so fast or hit so hard and I never dreamed he'd get up fighting after seven knockdowns the way he did. I wonder how Firpo felt after the knockdown? Probably he was as goofy as I was."

Dempsey went on with his story:

"I began to come back enough to see Firpo through a haze, and I began to fight again.

"Then the next I remember is in my corner. I didn't know the round was over or how I got there. Kearns had the smelling salts under my nose and the whiff I got nearly lifted me out of the chair.

"My head began to clear right away. I could see all right and I looked over at Firpo. I could feel my strength come back and when the minute was up I knew what had happened and what I had to do."

"I went right out after Firpo and this time I made him miss me and picked my openings and knocked him out.

"I knew I had him when I knocked that right to his chin after the left, and saw him drop. I didn't have to look back and that time I knew the way to my corner.

"When the count was up I was glad to run out and lift Firpo to his feet. He was the gamest fellow and the best fighter I ever fought.

"You might say I was lucky to beat him, but it wasn't luck as much as good legs. I trained nearly four months for this fight, counting in Shelby, and I did a lot of roadwork. My legs saved me when my head was gone. When I couldn't lift my hands my legs still carried me through.

"It's great to have good legs. If Firpo's had been as well trained as mine he wouldn't have been down so often, and he might have won the fight when he had me going."

Will Be Careful Next Time.

"I suppose you expect a hard fight if you meet Firpo again next year, when he's knocked out two or three other fellows and had more experience," I suggested.

"I don't know," said Dempsey thoughtfully. "It may not be as good a fight. I'll be more careful if I fight him again and I shouldn't have so much trouble getting him.

"Then I don't know if Firpo will ever fight as well again. He didn't think he could be knocked down and he didn't think anyone could stand up under his punches. I took all he had and came back. He was knocked down nine times and was knocked out. That may shake his confidence next time he fights.

Dempsey grinned.

"It was a sort of a shock to me to know I could be knocked down," he confessed. "I've been knocked goofy and dizzy a few times, but my legs always held me up. But I'm better off than Firpo. After what I got through I think I must be pretty near punch proof.

"Anyway, I'm not going to fight any more for a while," the champ concluded. "I'm going to have a little fishing and hunting and take a rest for a few weeks before I even begin to think about it."

DISCH WORKING FOR 12TH FLAG

Longhorn Prospects Are More Encouraging Than Last Fall

By The Associated Press.

By MOULTEN TY COBB.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 30.—While Jakey Atz and his Texas leaguers are battling the New Orleans Pelicans in the Crescent city and the New York Yanks and Giants are figuring out how they are going to spend their world's series money, Billy Disch, coach for 13 years of University of Texas baseball, is hard at work making plans to win the twelfth championship.

Ranger park in Austin resembles a major league training camp in March every afternoon. Coach Disch has a small army of his 1924 prospects working out every day.

Longhorn prospects are more encouraging this year than they were last fall, it is stated. It is a well known fact that pitching is four-fifths of any baseball team, and at present it seems that the Longhorns will have a good pitching staff next spring in Emmanuel Ponsford of El Paso, Otto Clements of Austin, John Mulcahy of El Paso, Oscar Eckhardt of Austin, Dick Bivens of Amarillo, and Burnett of Stephenville. Ponsford, Mulcahy, and Bivens are portsiders while the other are right-handers. Ponsford was the best college pitcher in America in 1922, establishing a record when he won 10 Southwestern conference games. He defeated A. & M. college three games and Baylor university twice.

For first base, Coach Disch has two excellent players in Ed Carson of Waxahachie, and Collie Falk of Austin. The dopesters, however, believe Falk will play the initial bag and Carson will be shifted to the outfield. Carson was rated as the best pitcher in the southwest this spring.

Captain Herman Odom of Rusk, probably will play second base again. He is peerless as a fielder and a good hitter.

Dewey Smalley of Yorktown, and Horace Kibble of Fort Worth, may be seen again at third and short, respectively.

In the outfield, the Longhorns will probably be weak. Newton King of Alamagordo, N. M., will occupy one of the positions and Carson another, it is thought.

DRASTIC NEW RULE ON IMPORTED MAIL

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The treasury and postoffice departments tonight announced drastic new joint regulations governing importation of merchandise through the mails designed to prevent such packages from escaping tariff duties.

Among the rules which will become effective November 1, is provision that all sealed packages will be returned to the country of origin unless their bear endorsement that the seal may be broken for customs examination. Shipments "tainted with fraud," are to be confiscated.

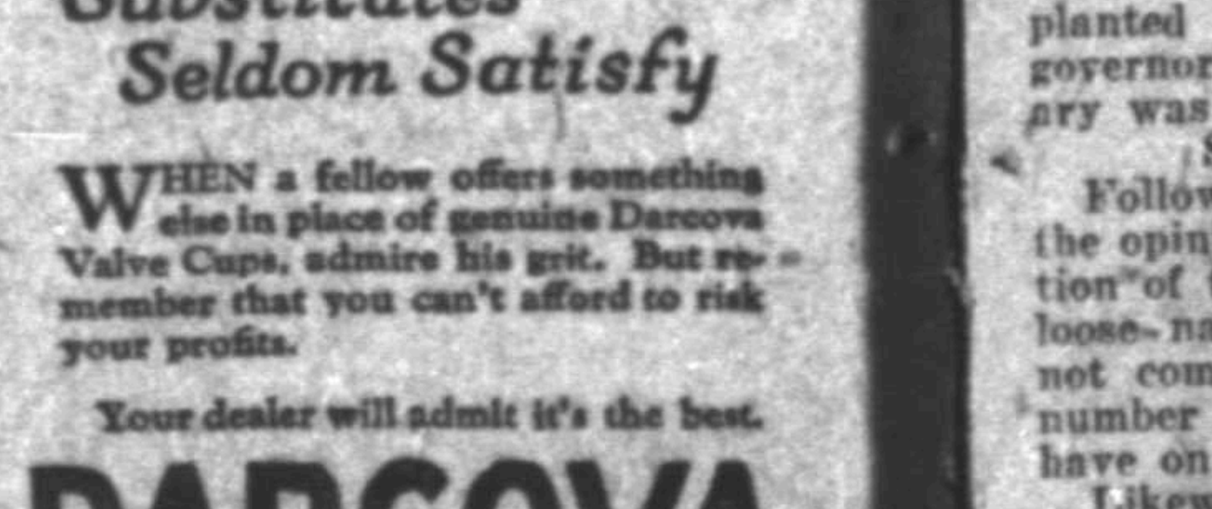

Packages must contain an accurate invoice of the contents and if the articles are intended for re-sale, definite statements of their value must be included.

Revision of the regulations was made necessary, a statement said, by the "enormous increase" in imports coming by mail and particularly by parcel post an consequent delay under the present rule at import ports.

Hospital Extension.

HUGE ARMY

postpone it. Furthermore, it would be illegal to hold it now, for the reason that the law has not been complied with through proper publication of the questions to be voted on."

The executive declared that W. C. McAlister, secretary of the state election board, by whose orders, machinery of the election was put in motion, was "playing with that klan crowd." Mr. McAlister, following the announcement of the governor's proclamation, declared that he was powerless to stop the work that had been started, and that if the election was to be prevented, the burden would be on the governor alone.

Today, ballots were being printed in every county in the state.

Governor Walton again bitterly assailed the Oklahoma press, declaring that the opposition of newspapers to his program in the state was alone responsible for conditions in the state.

Blames Newspapers.

"If the Muskogee Phoenix, the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and its echo, the Oklahoma City News, and the Tulsa Tribune had been locked up, and the keys to their doors thrown into the river six weeks ago we would not be having trouble in Oklahoma today," he asserted. "If there is bloodshed, you can lay it at their door, and there may be bloodshed, although I dread to say it."

No Precedent.

George F. Short, Oklahoma attorney general: "There is no precedent for the governor's action in the postponement of the election. Text book writers, however, in discussing the general subject, are unanimous in the opinion that the date of an election, when once fixed, cannot be changed."

Walton Determined.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30.—An unofficial opinion of George F. Short, attorney general of Oklahoma, that there is no precedent authorizing the changing of an announced date for an election will not alter plans to stop a special state election Tuesday at which a question will be submitted opening a way for the legislature to hold an impeachment session, Governor J. C. Walton declared tonight.

The executive asserted that his program launched earlier in the night to use he entire military and civil enforcement powers of th state to prevent opening of the polls and curb rioting that might arise as an aftermath was proceeding as originally outlined.

"The attorney general has been asked for no opinion by the chief executive," Governor Walton said. "His unofficial opinion is immaterial and has no legal weight whatsoever. George Short is a member of the ku klux klan and that is to be expected from any member of the klan."

The governor's proclamation postponing the election was issued after the legal maneuvering had revolved back virtually to its starting point. Several barriers were erected to prevent the election, all of which were subsequently removed, the final action coming late last night when two opposing pleas in state district court were dismissed by agreement of counsel. One sought a writ of mandamus to compel the state election board to put the legislative question on the ballot. The other prayed a restraining order to keep it off.

Governor's Strength Surprise.

Followers of Governor Walton's administration was surprised at the strength he claimed for his state police.

The governor's police constituted an innovation in the law enforcement machinery of the state. The policies represent an enlargement of a plan which the governor had in operation while he was mayor of Oklahoma City, immediately before becoming chief executive. At that time he issued hundreds of "courtesy police cards," which extended to holders certain prerogatives not held by citizens in general. While they did not constitute an actual police commission, political opponents of the executive waged a constant attack on the "Courtesy cards," alleging that many persons were using them as authority for bearing arms and that the holders had been subsidized for political purposes.

Special Commission

Upon becoming governor, Walton began the issuance of "special state police commissions." The commissions were given freely. Newspaper men had no difficulty in obtaining them, and, it was charged, that virtually any one who applied could obtain them. Opponents of the governor declared he was building up a political army, as well as extending authority to thousands of persons to bear arms. The first state commissions were attested by the secretary of state and a copy of the commission kept in the files of the secretary's office. After several thousand had been issued, however, the acknowledgement of the secretary of state was left off the commissions and his seal was supplanted by the notary's seal of the governor's private secretary. No salary was attached to the commissions.

Skeptic About Number

Followers of the situation expressed the opinion to night that the organization of the state police was of such a loose nature that the governor could not command the services of a large number such as he declared he would have on duty Tuesday.

Likewise the announcement that 75,000 volunteer guards would be called out, created a stir in the ranks of those who have kept in close touch with the situation. Following his declaration of martial law, throughout the state, the governor called upon all "citizen soldiers between the ages of 21 and 45 to stand ready for summons to duty." Last week he announced that 35,000 men had volunteered their assistance in the fight upon the ku klux klan and to help him carry out his intention to bar an impeachment session of the legislature. The announcement of the increased number of such men who placed themselves at his disposal was greeted with frank skepticism was [illegible] quarters.

Such a branch of the national guard had never been known in Oklahoma until Governor Walton made his first announcement that their strength had been recruited to 35,000.

Tonight he declined to indicate what plans had been pursued in arming and officering such an aggregation of volunteers.

Tulsa Prepares

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., 30—McAlister's letter was mailed from Oklahoma City early this morning.

The county election machinery, embracing 107 precincts will be ready by 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, Mrs. Halturner, assistant to Secretary Smile, declared. The ballots will be ready for distribution by Monday noon, it was learned at printing establishments which suddenly threw off the Sunday quiet at noon today to prepare the voting slips. Pressmen and typsetters were hurriedly called from the ball game, parks and automobile jaunts to their work rooms and by nightfall the thunder of high speed presses roared defiance of Governor J. C. Walton's proclamation, still not a day old, postponing the election.

Sunday afternoon election headquarters officials were busy reorganizing the county polling machinery which had been inoperative since the state road bonds election several months ago. Clerks and judges in every precinct were ordered to prepare for balloting Tuesday and in numerous localities premises were rented for the polling places.

There was feverish activity throughout the city and county tonight as leaders of various factions strove for advantage in the naming of inspectors and clerks of election.

The registration of the last general election will stand for Tuesday, the county commission announced.

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 30.—More than one hundred "armed citizen voters" pledged to prevent voting in Tulsa and Osage county Tuesday were commissioned shortly before midnight tonight by R. R. Stevens, head of Governor J. C. Walton's intelligence operatives attached to the local military commission here, as county officials prepared for the election. "Several hundred more citizens will be in the force by Monday morning," Stevens said.

"I hope it will not be necessary to use armed forces in carrying out the governor's instructions, but he has authorized me to call upon the national guard if necessary. I say now that the special election shall not be held in Tulsa and Osage counties."

At midnight a body of the civilian guards was placed around the county courthouse to guard election supplies and prevent their distribution at precinct polling places.

Stevens declared he had been authorized by Governor Walton to see "that no ballots are cast in Tulsa and Osage counties."

The governor has proclaimed the proposed election and it is the duty of every peace officer and member of an election board to see that his proclamation takes effect.

AUTO POLO AT THE FAIR

FAIR AUTO POLO CARRIES THRILL

Of all the thrills you can get at the fair, auto polo promises by far the most breath taking event on the program. The Greys and Blues will be the opposing teams and the keenest rivalry among the players, who are recognized as of the best in the world, is certain to put an added punch into the game that will suit everybody. To those who have never witnessed an auto polo game a word of explanation will not be amiss. The players instead of using horses, of course use specially built autos, as the name implies, two men comprising a team which consist of a driver and a mallet man. The mallet man attempts to drive the ball between the goal posts which are situated at both ends of the field, and each team also tries to prevent the opponent from scoring against themselves. This may seem to some a simple matter but as a matter of fact the opposite is more than true, for the cars attain a speed of 40 miles an hour in their mad dashes and the drivers in attempting to gain a favorable position not only slide and skid all over the ground but break wheels—ride over each other's cars—and turn their own and the opponents cars completely upside down, throwing the players in all directions regardless of their own safety.

The opening game is today. An idea of how full of thrills and crashes the game really is may be gained by information that each team has several cars on hand to replace those broken so that the game is not interrupted by the smashing of one or two cars.

SPEAKING OF SECOND PLACE.

A vice-presidential nomination will be a great honor next year. It is within the range of possibilities that one of the candidates for vice-president will be declared by the senate president of the United States. This will certainly happen should the election be thrown into the house. If thrown into the house there will be a deadlock and the senate will name the winner and the winner will be either the republican or the democratic candidate for vice-president named by the conventions of the two great parties next year.

It is possible for the election to be thrown into the house? It is if Henry Ford should be the standard-bearer of the third party as it is almost as certain as fate that he would win the electoral votes of a group of states in the northwest and perhaps pick up votes elsewhere. Mark Sullivan predicts that it will be impossible for Henry Ford to capture either the republican or the democratic nomination.

Mr. Sullivan is rather late in the game. It would be impossible for Henry Ford to win the republican nomination. It would not be impossible for him to win the democratic nomination, although at the present writing the democratic bosses of the country have thoroughly convinced themselves that Ford will not be a disturbing factor in their convention next year.

If Texas had a presidential preferential primary election law the name of Henry Ford would be placed on the ballot and after the ballots had been counted many of the old-time democratic politicians would be given the surprise of their lives. Party labels don't seem to mean much now.

Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania who thinks he is a republican and was elected as a republican nominee is about the best democrat in Pennsylvania.

COTTON

Is the world coming back to normalcy? It must be admitted that the textile manufacturing world if if the figures furnished by the International federation of cotton spinners are correct. This association estimates a world consumption of 20,885,000 bales compared with 18,809,000 last year. Consumption of American cotton for the year as estimated by the federation was 12,286,000 bales compared with 11,750,000 last year.

Three or four famine crops in America have caused the world reserves of cotton to melt away. Now the bears of America and Europe are predicting that if cotton goes to 35 cents the price will be prohibitive and the millers of the world will be compelled to curtail production of cotton goods.

Why not pass it on to the wearers of cotton goods? Isn't it legitimate for the ultimate consumer to stand some of the blunt? High priced cotton calls for high priced cotton goods and uness the wise men of the cotton industry are mistaken this is what is coming in the near future.

PORK PRODUCTS

Corn sold at the highest price of the year 1923 in trading on the Chicago board of trade Thursday, September 27 when September sold at 90 3-8 cents per bushels. A year ago the American corn grower was desperate. Many threatened to burn their corn for fuel. Then the demand for corn began to grow and corn exportations to Europe made a new high record. This is one of the reasons why farmers in the corn belt states are not clamoring for the president to call a special session of congress for price fixing. It is the man who is hit the hardest who makes the loudest noise and the wheat farmer is the victim this time. Kansas and Missouri and Illinois corn growers are hog raisers. They feed their corn to the pigs and the pigs make porkers and there is a growing demand everywhere for hog products.

WAR COMES HIGH

Congressman W. R. Green of Iowa is the chairman of the house Ways and Means committee which originates tax bills. After surveying the field Congressman Green declared the outlook for tax reductions by the next congress is unfavorable. This isn't news. All men who read and think know that the outlook for tax reductions by the next congress is unfavorable.

There is a war debt to be paid and after the war debt has been paid, say 25 years hence, there will be $2,000,000,000 pension bill to be paid every year. And this regardless of politics or politicians. A change of administration will not lower the American tax rate. It cost billions to win the world war and the American people must pay the bills.

NATURAL GAS

Texas ranks seventh among the states of the union in the production of natural gas and natural gas consumption now exceeds 51,000,000,000 cubic feet per annum and the total number of consumers are 117,843 domestic and 1,500 industrials. Over seven percent of the natural gas consumed in Texas is utilized in the production of electric power. It may interest the consumer to be told the average cost of natural gas per thousand cubic feet is 26 cents while manufactured gas costs approximately one dollar. Some day the supply of natural gas may be exhausted and then the gas consumers of today will find themselves face to face with a knotty problem.

DEPORT THE UNDESIRABLES

A bill for the registration of all aliens in the United States will be urged upon the next congress. This bill will be accompanied by a measure making it a crime to conspire to overthrow the national government by force and violence. There is said to be 5,000 communists in America. If they are irresponsibles, why not deport them if they are alien born or place them under restraint if they are native born?

National Committeeman Thomas B. Love is in Washington telling the press representatives that Texas is solid for McAdoo. And T. B. L. sincerely believes it.

A Romance of the Redwoods

"Few men know the forest as Stewart Edward White. All the mystery, romance and lure of the great woods is in this adventure story that keeps you "On Tiptoe" of excitement from the first page to the last.

CHAPTER I.
"We're Stuck!"

This is a swashbucking story of pirate days. It has as leading characters the Buccaneer and his sinister second in command; the fair damsel in distress; the bright-shining hero and those great intelligencies by whose caprice—or by whose ordered law our tiny world carries on among its millions of sister worlds. Follow and you shall see brave adventuring, and dastardly plots: and a fool exalted and cast down as his little affairs were swept into the mighty onward-flowing currents of fate. So upanchor and away!

At the moment our story opens the Pirate, appropriately named Grimstead, was leaning back in the stern-sheets of his craft smoking a cheroot. He was a large, square built man, with thick bushy eyebrows.

Gardiner, the second in command, was much younger and slenderer, dark in complexion, with clean shaven face and an inscruptable eye.

Neither of these men were paying the slightest attention to anything but each other. Indeed, the man at the wheel alone seemed to be at all aware of his surroundings. For the only other human being visible on the craft was the damsel in distress, and she was completely occupied with her own thoughts, which seemed to be resentful and unpleasant.

As beseemed her position in the story she was young and beauteous and as daughter to the Pirate chief, caparisoned in costly garments.

The bright-shining hero had not yet appeared.

Suddenly and most unexpectedly a loud bang sounded under the port quarter. The craft staggered.

"What is it, Simmins?" cried the Pirate chief. "Are we damaged?"

"Blowout, sir," replied Simmins.

He walked around to the rear of the car, and uttered an exclamation of dismay.

"When she blew she slid into the rut and let us down pretty hard on one of these little stumps in the middle of the road," he answered Grimstead's inquiry. "The gasoline's leaking."

Gardiner joined the chauffeur.

"Its buckled the tank," he announced briefly. "Were stuck."

"The gasoline is all run out," replied Gardiner calmly.

"We're stuck, all right," Grimshaw agreed. "How far is it to help?"

"Nearest garage is about 20 miles."

It was agreed that Grimshaw should pick out a shadier place to wait while Simmins, after changing the tire, walked the 20 miles and got help.

Now to be considered is the damsel in distress. Her distress was heartfelt, but not too serious. It consisted in the fact that she had been ravished away against her will: which is the usual and proper reason for the distress of females aboard pirate craft.

At this moment she should have been listening to the dulcet strains of a jazz orchestra, or mayhap bossing about infatuated youths in any old haunt where sport clothes are correct and numerous.

Instead of which she was here! Atop a stump! On a barren California hillside of high brush and an occasional tree! Stranded! Hot! Uncomfortable! No wonder the lines of her figure were unbending; no marvel that her eyebrows were level and that the regard below them was—sullen?

Out upon you! This damsel is young and beauteous. Smouldering is the word. Of ten thousand people the younger half would have sympathised heartily with Burton, by gad! dragged off into the sticks right in the middle of the Del Monte tournament; and the other half would have muttered things about spoiled brats and an indulgent father and would have regretted that she was too old to be spanked.

And none of this would have affected Miss Burton in the least. When her father insisted, in face of her first careless refusal, that she join him on this trip into the backwoods, she was vastly surprised, though not greatly put out. But when at the last minute she found that this Gardiner person was to be in the party, she saw—and resented—it all.

Burton had met Gardiner before. She did not like him; and she did not care whether he was the second in command of the piratical craft, part keeper of the loot, principal deviser of stratagem, or not. There would seem to be no reason why one should not like Gardiner. He is tall, slender, very dark, with regular movie-queen dark eyelashes, a sleepy well-bred supercilious expression on his thin long face. All his movements are languidly graceful. He is exceedingly well-dressed.

His ability is enormous. He knows all about electricity, and water power, and oil wells, and Diesel engines, and railroads, both theoretically and practically, for these things are some of the loot the Pirate chief has captured. Burton said she didn't like him because he played no bridge nor golf; but that was not it. She had other reasons—no, not reasons, instinct.

At the present moment the second in command did not attempt to approach the aloof young goddess. Instead he gave needed assistance to the chauffeur, and when the job was finished he was just as hot and dirty. There were qualities to the man, besides those necessary to boarding and scuttling!

By the time the job was finished, Grimstead reappeared.

"Found a great place!" he announced, and partly on the little "gas" in the vacuum tank and partly by gravity the car glided around the corner of the mountain.

CHAPTER II.
Enter the Hero.

As often happens at skylines in California, the nature of the country there changed. Burton had seen redwood trees before, but never had she seen one of the redwood forests of the north. The sullenness in her eyes was replaces by a startled and somewhat awed look.

The car coasted slowly for a half mile and came to a little stream where a tiny patch of green had won for itself a tiny patch of unobserved sky.

"Stop here, Simmins," Grimstead commanded, and all debarked.

Simmins hustled out the lunch basket and the thermos cases and proceeded to lay things out in seemly and proper style.

Simmins was an engaging person. The natural self within him would have carried him through life skiptlously, like the giddy goat—but it wasn't done, you know. He loved playing up to his part, which was solemn, eminently correct, terrifically imposing, and he could do it in such a manner as to make self-conscious all but the most conventional.

When at home Simmins became a house man. In this capacity the one fatal misfortune of his professional career overtook him.

Burton, unseen herself, had witnessed his answering of the door bell. He came down the hall cakewalking, a wonderful double shuffle, snapping his fingers, his head thrown back, his eyes closed; but all quite noiseless. Then he turned the door knob and instantaneously a wonderful transition took place. His elbows snapped out at an angle, and his inflexible sing-song voice declaimed impersonally that he could not say, madame, but that he would ascertain.

O fatal day! Next time he tried to come it over Burton, as usual he ran against a snag.

"Look here, Simmins," she said decidedly. "I wish you'd come off the perch and be human. I like friendly looking people about me.'

"Sorry, Miss," said he non-commitally in his best manner. "I was not aware of giving offense. It is pawsibly the results of my training, miss."

Simmins was enjoying himself thoroughly. He knew just when to put the accents and yet avoid impertinence. It was his last shot.

The next instant he exploded. Miss Burton had seen!

For a long time his world was in chaos. He never did quite recover the integrity of his attitude toward Miss Burton. It wasn't done, you know; but he rather liked it.

After supper, Simmins most reluctantly began the long journey to the nearest garage.

Burton brought to the camp fire a small covered basket and removed the contents, a Pomeranian dog, half-size even for that breed, named Punkety-Snivvies. The men surveyed the creature in silent disgust. Burton adoringly fed him slices of chicken and then he curled up in a small fluffy ball and went to sleep.

Burton reclined on cushions, looking straight up, still within her inscrutable silence. Gardiner was clever enough to realize that this was the time for effacement. Grimstead dozed.

But now the peace of the night was broken by the approach of something metallic and loose. Three of the watchers sat up.

"Can't hear any engine," puzzled Gardiner; "must be horse-drawn—a wagon load of milk cans."

But the doubt was almost immediately resolved by the dancing glare of headlights through the trees, and an instant later a small light car swerved off the road and came to a stop. Enter the bright-shining hero!

The thing he rode was one of those nondescript home-made things of galvanized iron by which the youthful attempt in vain to disguise and render sportful a certain otherwise jokeful brand of inexpensive car.

The occupants of this craft were three. The young man at the wheel, a pleasant-faced youth, with short light hair, and what had been a fair complexion darkreddened by much exposure. Behind him, seated atop a canvas-covered pack, was an Irish terrier dog. The third occupant was Simm'

Our understanding has been, that under the eighteenth amendment there never was any such thing as "good liquor."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

That "Dawdling" Problem

One Mother Says:

Almost all mothers must have, at some time, shared my exasperations at the constant disturbance of the household routine caused by the children's dawdling over their dressing. Seeing how they dressed quickly when some pleasure promised or when a playmate called, I searched for other ways than nagging to hurry their dressing. The ownership of prized pets needing regular care and feeding in the morning caused one child to appear promptly; a limit of 20 minutes to dress, with a forfeit of some pleasure for failure, hastened another, and the most stubborn case was cured by the youngster being sent to bed early at night, the time being in proportion to the time lost in the morning by useless dawdling.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LIBRA

Today is of fortunate outlook for travel and change. However, final action on projects inaugurated this day should be postponed until a specifically favorable day.

A child born today will be generous, affectionate and meditative and always older than its years.

You should have a fine and meditative temperement, if today is your birthday, and a character of fine patience. Indeed you have been endowed by the stars with a gracious high-mindedness which is truly not of this earth.

Whether the life you lead measures up to the high standards of righteousness which fate has offered you will depend upon your seizure of the great opportunity of your life, which will come to you between the age of 30 and 33.

You have keen psychich power and intuition and an instant comprehension of the views and methods of other people. There is no position in the business of human adjustment and direction which you could not control with your intellect, sympathy and unfailing kindness.

You are lacking in the ability to adapt your efforts to your own ends, and on the whole you are apt to "hide your light under a bushel." Your disposition is too solitary to enable you to use for mutual profit your fellow beings, no matter how you might edify them from a distance. You should be more "of the earth" lest you become a recluse.

Your spiritual understanding of people and events arises at times almost to mediumship, and it does not surprise you when you see things happen that you have foreseen for some time.

You are independent and fond of travel, and although you may not change your occupation very often it is certain you will be fond of changing your abode.

Yours is a nature through which you will develop into a saint or a sinner, but never into more mediocrity. Your nature is excitable, responsive and amorous, and rather better for the companionship of the opposite sex.

But don't mistake your own character. You are not primarily emotional. No matter how successfully you might be married, too much intimacy will drive you to distraction.

Successful people born on this date are:

Henry Clay Work, composer.
Michael deYoung, journalist.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE UPLIFTERS

("The chief object of the dramatist is to better the health and the morals of the public."—One of Them.)

How noble the playwright, how lofty his soul;
He toils not for lucre or laurels,
But labors through life with the laudable goal
Of helping our health and our morals!
If the world he depicts from its evilest side,
It isn't to cause a sensation,
But to teach us in virtuous ways to abide—
A purer and happier nation.

The oily and unctuous bucket-shop man
Abandons the flimflamming ticker;
The bootlegger knocks into flinders the van
In which he's been peddling bad liquor;
As soon as they see on the uplifting stage
That the knave in the end comes a cropper.
And the callings in which they were prone to engage
Are really most highly improper.

The invalid needs but to witness a play
Poking fun at the marital question,
And he'll weaken revived and refreshed the next day
With good nerves and a perfect digestion.
Why run up a big doctor's and hospital bills,
Which often are far beyond reason,
When it's easy to cure the most troublesome ills
By seeing the hit of the season?

These things are the dramatists' object and aim—
They work till they wilt down their collars
Without any purpose of laying up fame,
Or raking in mere sordid dollars.
Sometimes, it is true, they do make some small gain
And annex quite a large bit of credit,
But they tell us that profit is futile and vain.
And gosh! how the poor devils dread it!

INHARMONIOUS HARMONY

The Balkan national anthem should be, "Yes, we have no peace!"

WHAT DOES SHE MEAN, A "SORT"?

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont warns girls against marriage on the ground that it is "a sort of slavery." Right! But we had always supposed that the man played the role of Uncle Tom.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

"AMERICA SETTING STYLE IN ARCHITECTURE," SAYS EUROPEAN ARTIST.

The world of art is looking for a new means, of architectural expression, and America is destined to supply this need, according to the Hungarian sculptor and painter, Alexander Finta, who has arrived in New York from Rio de Janeiro.

Finta has been in Brazil for three years, where he was director in chief of the sculptural work of the Rio de Janeiro world exposition. He is accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Kathe Finta, an interior decorator.

"The new type of architecture, which is rapidly developing," said Finta, "will be called the American style. It will be a modernization of the Gothic. The chief characteristic of this style is slenderness in form and adequate light in the structure.

"For the full realization of the American style there is an enormous field in New York and other big cities in America. You have a vast number of people living in small spaces. Every office worker requires more light. Houses and factories with the new architecture will also be lighter. Already I see countless buildings have been pulled down and replaced with buildings which for sheer simplicity of style and symmetry of form have no equal among modern structures in Europe. European architecture today is too massive and gloomy. When in two or three generations the distinctive American style has permeated throughout all the large American cities I venture to say that British, French and Central European architects will visit this country for their models."

Although Finta and his wife come from Budapest, where some of the most beautiful women in the world are to be seen, they both believe that the American woman is a perfect type. "If you stroll down Fifth avenue or Broadway," they said, "you will see far prettier women than on the Rue de la Paix or Boad street."

Mrs. Finta thinks, too, that in regard to interior decoration this country has a style of its own, which in some respects is better than foreign models. She terms the American idea of interior decoration as "clean, bright, wholesome and sane."

SIMMONS NOW HAS CRANE COLLECTION

ABILENE, Sept. 30.—Through the interest of Judge R. C. Crane, of Sweetwater Simmons college has become into possession of the valuable Crane library and collection, the latter including rare documents on Texas history and especially the history of the western part of the sinte. Rare newspaper files and unusual and very complete collection of coin and paper money dating back several centuries before Christ are also in the group. Letters signed by almost all of the prominent men of American history and other items of the Crane collection can not be duplicated. Of special interest is Mr. Crane's assemblage of bank checks covering all phases of the check in the history of American banking.

Judge Crane is a pioneer citizen of west Texas; he is the son of Dr. William Carey Crane, prominent in the state for many years, president of Baylor University for a long period. Judge Crane was for several years a member of the board of trustees of Simmons. He has spent the greater part of his lifetime and gone to much trouble in making the collection; it has long been his intention that the Crane library should eventually become the property of Simmons.

Have You A Dream House?

By GERTRUDE FISHER

Every woman has a dream house where she goes and lives once in a while. Here everything is the way she always planned it, and she goes about singing to herself because it is so lovely.

I'm going to take you with me on a trip to my dream house. It stands on an attractive plot on the outskirts of Wichita Falls, far enough out to avoid the noise of the city, and only a 10-minute ride from town. This little home of mine is not wonderful so far as massive or elegant architecture is concerned, but wonderful in its simplicity and completeness; in its bringing together the magic workers of science to make a home that every woman has dreamed of—little hoping that her dreams might someday be made possible—a home in which all of the work can be done, and still leave plenty of time to play; a home in which the word drudgery is obsolete.

Picture a green lawn in the springtime and the apple orchard which surround it at "apple blossom time," with its buzzing bees and humming birds flitting through the fragrant atmosphere.

The spacious living room covers the full length of the house and extends a cordial greeting of hospitality to you my friends, as you cross my threshold. The polished hardwood floors are perfect; the heavy beveled French plate glass doors are oval shaped and produce an artistic effect, with their heavy brocade drapes of Chinese blue.

A gas fire sends forth its cheering rays from out the brass andirons, this cool autumn day, and lights from parchment shades make bright spots in the room.

Notwithstanding the fact that my prime thought of this little cottage has been labor saving and convenience, worked out by mechanical servants, you can tell at a glance that the other furnishings have been planned to make it the "Dream come true home" of the modern Eve. Soft upholsteries, deep cushioned comfy winged chairs, oriental rugs whose richness makes one forget that there is anything in all the world—save velvet.

The victrola, end tables, consoles, mirrors reflecting oil paintings and beautiful wall paper, artistic drapery effects, and peeps beyond the living room into the dining room with its snowy linen and silver, or revealing beyond parted tapestries glimpses of a rose itnted bedroom and a baby blue nursery. On my dressing table, there is every little convenience, electric curlers, violet rays and massages. A peep in the drawer discloses an electrical heating pad to warm my tired, cold feet when I happen to get in late from the the show and yet want to raise the windows to let in the required oxygen.

After inhaling as it were, these vitalizing breaths of comfort, you catch a vision of whiteness given out by my tiled bath, the detailed accessories of which are too numerous to mention, so let us slip into my kitchen which is just a dream of delight, with its white walls and tile floor, built to have a thousand steps. The kitchen cabinet places everything at elbow reach. The immense electrical range is big enough to cook the biggest turkey in the land or roast the fatted calf.

Now we'll trip down stairs to the basement. You'll learn the secret of the "ways and means" of the workings of my household. A Thor electric washer with its swinging electric wringer, stands near two built-in tubs; at close range is the Thor electric mangle; next come hangers to dry the clothes. You will note that I merely have to toss the soiled clothes down the chute and "press the button."

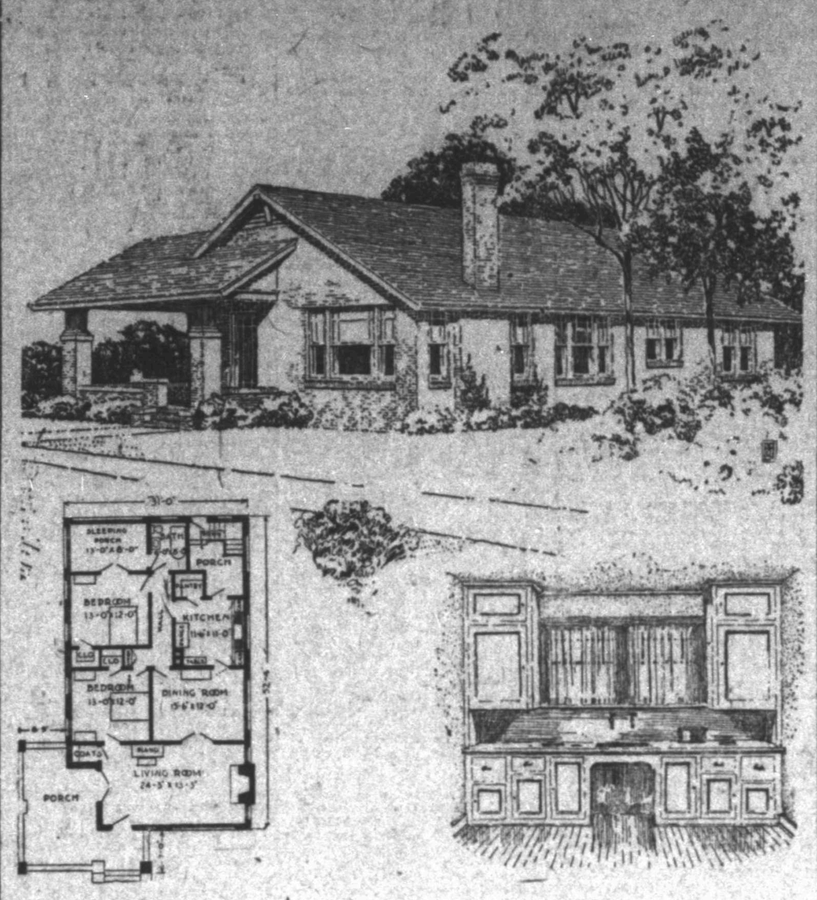

If Benjamin Franklin, (bless his dear old soul) whose scientific plunderings resulted in our reaching up into the atmosphere, and chaining the lightnings for man's luxurious comfort, could but come back across the years and stand upon the threshold of my dream home, he would scarcely believe his own eyes. Methinks he would have to stretch of imagination quite a bit to fancy his red flannels bubbling in an electric bath, or to find himself warming his toes by Nokol furnace heat, operated automatically while "listening in" by radio to a concert going on in Frisco.

I can imagine too, the light in his Quakerish eyes, as he steps into my car, to ride back to the Wichita Falls Record News where I picked you up.

Proud of Your Home?

This is your home. It is where you make your money, where you raise your family, where you enjoy the society of your friends, where you spend the hours of recreation and where you reap the greatest joys of life. What are you doing for the community that does so much for you? Is your house a credit to you and your town, or it is only the place where you park your clothes? If it is make it a "Better Home."

A Well-Planned Bungalow With A Splendid Exterior

The living and dining rooms in this bungalow are very large and comfortable. There is a cozy brick fireplace at one end of the living room, while French doors at the opposite end open to a fine, large porch. The part of the porch on the side of the house, where the French doors open on it, may be screened, or glazed and used as a room, while the small portion in the front serves as an entrance only. An always useful coat closet is found conveniently near the front door.

The bedrooms are well lighted, have good closets, and are connected with the bath by a convenient hall. The kitchen is exceptionally complete and convenient. The sink is set beneath a group of two windows flanked by cabinets. The table is so placed with a serving door above it that things may be passed directly from the kitchen to the sideboard of the dining room.

The rear porch is large and has space for the ice box. It is enclosed and contains the basement stairs. The attic is not high enough for living rooms but affords good ventilation and makes an excellent storage space.

There is a fine basement with heating plant, fuel bins, laundry and drying space, vegetable cellar, and storage room. The ceiling height is 9 feet and the contents 31,800 cubic feet.

With this type of house, simple in outline and detail, much thought should be given to the type of brick to be used and how it should be handled in the wall. The color of the mortar, the treatment of the joint, and the kind of bond are things often overlooked, but which, if given careful consideration, will greatly enhance the beauty of the brickwork, much to the advntage of the whole house.

A 50-foot lot would be required on which to build this bungalow, but the porch may be easily moved to the front of the house, making it adaptable to as small a site as 37½ feet or, in case of wider lot, thus permitting a driveway on the side. The house may be built on a sloping site by slight changes in the front or rear steps.

One and a Half Million Babies Born This Year

One and a half million babies born this year in our country! The original infant industry still is the largest. A million couples are married each year in America. That requires a million new homes annually. But death makes vacant a majority of the needed dwellings.

We are like flies, swarming by the millions. Before we realize what it is all about death beacons us to make way for the newcomers. Life is a journey, too short to be taken too seriously. The destination will be more satisfactory to some.

Building Homes Is Best Remedy Lowering Rents

Conditions Over Country Best For Many Years in Building and Trade Centers

MORE HOUSES NEEDED IN ALL SECTIONS

With the largest building program in history in full swing at the end of 1923, it will be interesting and profitable to take an inventory of conditions prevailing.

Housing Shortage—The continuation of the nationwide housing shortage is of course the incentive for the large amount of residential construction in progress.

General Business Normal—Disregarding price levels and considering only volume of business done, industry returned to normal last October and has recorded one to three per cent above normal every month since.

Industrial Construction—Normal business accounts for the resumption of a large volume of industrial construction which was suddenly stopped when the business depression struck the country in the latter part of 1920.

Inflation Averted—Were it not for the depression that business has just gone through, there would be a strong tendency toward inflation at this time. Governmental, financial and industrial brakes are being effectively applied with a view toward assuring that period of healthy industrial activity lies just ahead.

Away With Ugly Fixtures

In those rooms which it is necessary to light from one central source there have been designed recently quite a number of splendid efficient fixtures, and choice may be made in harmony with both financial limitations, if these exist, and with the character of and furnishings of rooms under consideration. It will cost little to install in living room or dining room something which will take the place of the faulty and frequently glaring ugly conglomeration of glass and metal so frequently seen there, and with these as a backbone, logical lights for kitchen, bedroom and bath may be added at a cost which is really trifling; or more elaborate ones may be chosen in accordance with individual conditions. After the initial changes are made, and as the householder studies illumination sensibly, he will find dozens of ways in which a fixture or a lamp here and there will add to his scheme of illumination.

In the central fixtures recently perfected, the indirect system is largely used; frequently with an additional feature comprising some direct lighting. For extended reading or work, indirect lighting is conceded to be kindest to the eyes. Indirect lighting is thrown from source to light-colored ceilings and upper walls, thence diffused through the rooms, and thereforc must be quite strong in order to provide sufficient illumination in every part of the room. Direct lighting may be used in lesser intensity in lamps or other fixtures for individual areas, if shades of silk, parchment, opaque glass or other material be used to shield the eyes from contact with lamp filament or from reflections from light sources.

These fundamental facts are sufficient to open to the inquiring mind wide activities in home lighting. The homemaker will find, when she startts shopping for lamps that these have been made in many forms, shapes, sizes and degrees of efficiency; and may be astonished and somewhat bewildered at the outset by the beauty and diversified coloring and ornamentations provided.

PERFECTION IS LOVED BY GOD

So Says Judge Kay in Brilliant Adress to Bible Class

Judge John C. Kay delivered the following address at the Kay Bible class at the Strand theatre yesterday:

I think I said to you once that if we understood God, we would be one ourselves. Isaiah makes Him say here, in this lesson, "Your thoughts are not my thioughts, and my thoughts are higher than your thoughts." I like to think that His greatness, and His glory, and His wonderful knowledge is, as this book says, too great for us to know; too great for us to bear the knowing.

Isaiah takes up the lesson of nature, and tells about the rain falling that the trees may grow, and laugh, and sing, and the hillsides sing. They may do that. Tennyson writes about the brook talking, and the poet Miller heard the Mississippi river talking where it sweeps around the great crescent at New Orleans. There is much going on that we do not know about; much that is not dreamed of in our philosophy; things that we cannot know.

I have a little chunk of amethyst crystals which came from more than a mile deep in the great rugged mountains. The crystals are exquisite, and shining and perfect in their blue and purple. It is infinitely beautiful, almost. Now, men, I do not know why He placed that in the great depths where there was hardly a chance that any eye would ever see it, except that He loves perfection, and He loves beauty, and perfection gives Him pleasure; else, whence come these flowers that bloom on every hillside, and these singing birds, and the exquisite touch of the evening sky, and the glory of the dawn?

God never intended for you to be an indifferent, careless, unthinking, common, ordinary man.

And, if you are marching through His world, and through His life, just to eat bread, just to slumber at night, just to serve your own purpose by day, without an ear for the songs that surround you, without any eye for the flowers that bloom about you, without any gratitude for the rain-fall, and the flowers, and the trees, and the fruits, then you have failed, and you are failing to measure up to a citizenship that ought to be becoming in His world,—not your world, but His. He says the cattle on a thousand hills are His. I know that is so because I see fellows die and leave them still grazing on the hillside. They don't take them with them.

My lesson here, and I say to you that it embarrasses me to come here before you men the fine, the immense at all, but my lesson here is to get in important thought that life is a fine, big thing. That it is a wonderful thing to be here and see the manifestations of His creation, and His beauty, and His strength, and His perfection, and a much more wonderful thing to think that you are His children, because it is written that the man, Jesus Christ, is our elder brother.

Man has a great element of divinity in him, himself. He doesn't belong here on earth. He is not here to stay. He is restless and discontented. He is entirely out of line and out of harmony with all of the other animals that walk the earth. The gap that separates you from the other creatures on earth is a gap that is so wide, it is beyond the power of mathematics to fathom it, or to measure it. Somewhere! Somehow! Sometime! At some place! The Master has for you a more precious fate, and a more important life, and something greater for you to do, than you can ever do here.

These old prophets believed, and I believe, that the earth is a mere preparatory school and, if that is true, what shall we say of that man who lives here and goes to a higher school without preparation?

His thoughts are higher than our thoughts. That idea runs through the whole Bible. It runs through all nature. All of His forms are exquisitely perfect, and none of ours are. All of His thoughts are righteous thoughts. Now, He tells you here in his lesson how to think. Now, does that mean that a man has got control of his thinking? We are going to try to get that worked out here so that we will understand it a little better. Can you keep out of your mind evil thoughts? Are you strong enough, beautiful enough, righteous enough, that you can drive away permanently from your mind evil thought? You will hear men say that a man cannot keep guard over and that he has no control over his thinking. Is that true? Or, is it not true? It is just true in a limited sense, and only insofar as you make it true. I think it is true that I cannot keep the evil thought of today from coming into my mind today as one transaction, but will go a little step farther back, a man's thinking is according to his planing, and, if your plans are evil, if you have got this goal or that goal toward which you seek to come at last, if you plan to do evil, or if your plans necessarily involve the doing of evil, then it is that you cannot and will not keep evil thoughts out of your brain. And, that is what the prophet meant, so far as I am able to put it before you, so, young man, make your record clean, and make your plans clean, and then your thinking will be clean. But if you seek some empty wish, if you seek some foolish reward, then the thinking must be evil.

What does God think about us? He says that all this beauty, all this perfection, all this wealth was meant for us, and He asks us to win it. How? Like that old Roman who said "we may not win success, but we will do more. We will deserve it."

This is His world, and it is your world, and you are His tenant here, keeping His house here for Him, and responsible to Him for the care of the house and for the conduct of the tenant.

These are great thoughts that the prophet is talking about here. He is leading up to a much greater thought, which He predicts right in this chapter, that the reason that God regulates man, or seeks to regulate man—the reason that He gives them laws, the reason that He desires that they keep the laws, is the very motive that causes Him to send at last His Son for the salvation of man. And, he comes, in the second part of this lesson with the angels announcing to the poor shepherds that a king is born in the city of David.

Now, why does He do all of this for man? I do not know. I come right there to a door that is shut, and, as it seems to me, will never be opened to humanity in this world. But, if He does do this thing, and these things for you, to me it is a sign, to me it is proof that somewhere you have got a very high destiny, if you will only deserve it. That's the reason that He sends the rain. That's the reason that He sends the sunshine. That's the reason that He makes the fruit and the grain to grow, because He is running His school here to prepare us for a destiny that is beyond our imagination. He makes everything.

I said that man was different from the other animals. That is because man is the only animal that breaks his own law. Man is the only creature on earth that will set up and publish a standard for right living and for conduct, and then go out and violate it himself. That is the only thing here that God does not seem to control—is conduct of humanity.

That great power, that infintely great power to regulate your conduct rests in your hands, for your character to be made or broken by you. Now, man does not do this in a day, or a week, or a month, or a year. It takes a life time of infinite care, and toil, and intelligent effort to make a good man. And, it takes a long time to make a finished bad man. These things are not done in a moment. It that is true, how important it is that we set about cleaning house, now.

We do not understand His plans, I said. In the churches, we disagree about what God's plans were; some say one thing, and some say another. All that I can say to you is that there is much of it that I do not understand; much of it that I fear I shall not understand in this world, but there is enough of it that is clear to me to meet my needs and my uses here. And, if that is true, that is sufficient. He says that "My grace is sufficient for you." And this same Isaiah, one of the mightiest minds in all the tide of time, stopped long enough to write that the way was so plain that a wayfaring man could not err therein. There is much of it that we can understand. There is some of it that I think we are not to understand; not here, but some other time and place.

A star mist and a planet,
A crystal and a cell,
A jellyfish and a barren rock
And caves where the cavemen dwell
Then a sense of law and beauty
And a face turned from the clouds
Some call it evolution
And others call it God.

A mist on the fair horizon,
An infinite, tender sky,
The rich, ripe gold of the cornfield,
And the wild geese flying high.
Over all the upland and lowland,
The charm of the goldenrod,
Some call it autumn
And others call it God.

Like tides on a crescent sea beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Our hearts high yearnings come
Welling and surging in light waves
From an unknown origin,
Whose rim no foot hath trod.
Some call it Consciousness,
And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty,
A mother starved for her brood,
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
Jesus on the rood.
And of all the untold millions
Who the straight, hard pathway trod
Some call it consecration,
Others call it God.

—Lilyan A. Ward.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE SARGE'S DOG?

Sergeant-major Monroe, who is here in charge of a recruiting party from Fort Sill, likes our city alright, but his dog evidently didn't.

Sergeant Monroe came here to establish a recruiting booth at the fair grounds. He brought with him a collie dog who answers to the name of "Lad." The dog is missing.

If you find the sergeant's dog he requests that you return it to the recruiting booth at the fair.

San Antonio's Grown-Together Twins

One of the big features at the Texas-Oklahoma fair are Violet and Daisy Hilton, the famous grown-together sisters from San Antonio. These young women are joined just above the waist by a flesh and spinal connection. To attempt to separate them would bring death to both. They do not consider themselves handicapped, and are quite content with their lot in life. They come with Wortham's World's Best shows as one of the outstanding features. The shows will arrive early this morning and will be ready to open with the fair.

Waurika
NEWS AND PERSONALS

Building Rig.

Rig builders are busy this week constructing the rig of Hutton Brothers which is located on the John Embry farm southwest of Waurika in sw. ne. sw of Section 5-5-7. The drilling will be in charge of Hugh Hutton and a rotary rig will be used. This test will be of vital importance as it is near the location of a favorable test made some years ago.

Set Casing.

The casing in Seay well number 1 in the south part of the county in Section 33-6-5 has been set in cement and will be drilled in early next week. In event the water is not shut off a new well will be begun immediately, within a few feet of the present well.

One of the roads recently designated by the commissioners and county engineer as a state highway begins at the O. W. Seay home and runs north between sections 32 and 33 to the Waurika-Ringling road. The people of that community are asking that it be opened and placed in first class condition.

A. C. Burger, Jefferson county's member of the legislature paid no heed to the call for a special session last Wednesday but was in Waurika with some cotton on that day. Mr. Burger feels that it is a continuation of an old fight and that the governor stands, perhaps, for what the common people want.

Charles King, a former Waurikan, is a member of Governor Walton's famous bodyguard. A Kansas City Sunday paper carried the pictures of Charles King, Zack Mulhall and Buck Garret, all members of the governor's personal bodyguard.

The postoffice will be moved Saturday night after closing hours so that patrons will receive their mail Sunday morning at the new office located on West Broadway. The same lock-box numbers will be retained that were used in the old office. Waurika's new office is very citified and occasions no small amount of pride among the citizens of Waurika.

Ford L. Marks has enjoyed such a fine business in his new brick building on South Main street since the opening two months ago that he is already compelled to enlarge the building and has workmen extending it to the building 140 feet deep.

N. S. Figley, government reporter for the U. S. Census bureau for this county, was here from Hastings Wednesday, on his regular monthly rounds. As to the number of bales of cotton ginned in the county, there were 414 bales ginned in the county prior to Sept. 1, at which time the cotton picking season had scarcely opened.

The secretary of the D. C. D. highway has sent notices to the proper authorities that the next state D. C. D. convention will be held in Waurika November 14 and 15 and these dates have been accepted by the Business Men's club. Delegates will be here from all Oklahoma towns along the way from Guymon in the northwest to Ardmore in the southwest.

A membership committee was appointed at the Business Men's club meeting which was held on Tuesday of last week, with instructions that a big drive be started for members. It has been brought to light that the retail merchants of the city have not been giving the club as great support as they should, and the drive follows to gain new members. The club has been meeting regularly for the past two years and has brought a good many things to the town. There is a big program ahead of them for the ensuing year, but more members are needed to successfully carry out the club plans.

Delegations from Wichita Falls, Byers, Ringling, Wilson, Ardmore, Walters and Lawton will meet with the Business Men's club next Tuesday at the Stuard hotel at the luncheon hour, which will be for the purpose of getting action started in regard to the Waurika-Ringling railroad.

A. E. Landon, F. J. Kelly, J. L. Morgan, and C. S. Storms were the committee that visited Ringling, Ardmore and Wilson Friday of last week. F. P. Dawson, A. E. Landon, Guy Green, Donald Stuart and F. P. Dunkin were the committee to visit Wichita Falls and Byers on last Wednesday, while Walters and Lawton have been communicated with by phone and letter. The meeting will be for the formation of plans to start the immediate building of the proposed road.

Royal Spradling of Waurika, and Grady Epperson of Ryan, backed by the Ryan business men are advertising their third annual rodeo to be held in Ryan at the fair park, October 11, 12 and 13. $2,000 will be offered in prizes.

Mrs. Mary Cutris, the wife of Leonard Curtis, died very suddenly Wednesday night following the birth of a baby daughter. Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon, conducted by the pastor of the Presbyterian church from Walters. The tiny baby that survived the mother is getting on nicely.

Following is the program for the Patron's club meeting which will be held Tuesday, Oct. 2, at 3:00 p. m. at the Central school building.

T-O LUSTIEST FAIR INFANT
Place On Fair Map Is Now Reality

"You have seen a great many of the nation's biggest fairs, so tell me what you think of the Texas-Oklahoma fair at Wichita Falls?"

This question was put to Beverly White, advance agent for Wortham's World's Best Shows, who for several years has made the big fairs of the north, the Oklahoma State fair, and the State Fair of Texas at Dalias. Replying enthusiastically to the question he said:

"There is no other fair in America more in the limelight now than is the annual Wichita Falls event. This is due to many causes. One of them is the 'pep' characteristic of the Wichita Falls people.

"On short notice they stepped out to have a fair. In less time they possessed themselves of the ideal fair grounds of the country. Things that other fairs have worked for years to get were at hand. Buildings, water, light, roads, location, and everything else was there.

"The executives were more or less new at the game and they turned to C. H. Verschoyle, the present secretary, because in other years he had been an intimate associate of William H. Stratton, secretary of the State Fair of Texas. Both were trained under the greatest fair man the south ever knew, the late Captain Sidney Smith, often referred to as 'the man who made the State Fair of Texas.'

"From the jump the Texas-Oklahoma fair got on the map as one of the fairs of the country—not one of the coming fairs of the country. The spirit of progress was behind it and the fair world sat up to take notice, not to criticise, but to learn from the infant in the fair world. The first fair was offered last year.

"It sent to the meeting of the fair secretaries at Toronto a crew of boosters. These are men from the north who had attended the fair. The Texas-Oklahoma was welcomed by the secretaries association. In February, when the secretaries met again—this time in Chicago—the infant in north Texas made its debut as one of the fair entities of the nation.

"In all the throng at that meeting there was not a "knocker.' All that saw the fair last year had horns—they were boosters. The spirit of the Texas-Oklahoma aggregation was contagious. Nothing was too good for the youngster. Its representatives who went north found a hearty welcome. The latch string was on the outside. Men old in the fair game gladly answered all questions asked, and put themselves out to help the Wichita Falls delegation.

"The foundation being the first fair, the first story was on the concrete. The structure of the Texas-Oklahoma fair was an assured thing. The spirit that prompted the crowds last year to pay their way through a hole in a piece of canvas, instead of walking to the end of the canvas and looking on free at the show, proved this community wanted a fair and was willing to aid in building it.

"The cattle displays were remarkable when one considers the short time the fair promoters had to get it together. The exhibits would have been welcomed at any other fair in the country. And so with all other exhibits.

"These things travelled by the grapevine route to other sections of the country. Every man who spoke of the Wichita Falls offering stopped, a willing listener, to the latest from the Texas-Oklahoma.

"In shorter time than any other fair in history the Texas-Oklahoma took its place among the fairs of the two nations. Fair men, and others directly interested in fairs, felt satisfied that they had picked and boosted a winner. Everyone likes to be with a winner and fair folk are like all other humans.

"Rather than give credit to any one particular man in the fair association the boosters from without give it to the fair association. Every man connected in any way with the fair was putting his best foot forward. Last year the fair was caught in a jam for ticket takers. In the volunteers who stood in the sun and helped to get the crowds in, were men who could buy the whole fair outright and hand it back to the association without noticing the difference in their bank accounts. This showed 'community' interest, and that is what makes fairs a success.

"This year the fair has not had to contend with many annoying details dispensed with last year. It is a husky youngster that will hold its own. It is on the fair map and in another season it will be a material part of the general scheme of the fair universe. Its success is assured. It has already taken its place in the universe of fairs, and it is a constellation of stellar magnitude.

"Fair men all over the country are watching the 1923 fair at Wichita Falls. They, somehow, seem to take a pride in it. No others in the world would more enjoy favorable reports from the fair this year than would the big fairs of the north. The Texas-Oklahoma fair has stepped from a new organization into the ring as one of the big fairs in Dixie. Give it two or three more years and it will be firmly established as one of the big fairs of the continent. This includes the justly famous fairs of Canada.

"I am for the fair; every man who has come in contact with it is for the fair; and what we are watching now is the gait with which it will step, and we all believe it will be a fast pace. It is no longer an experiment. It is a stern noticeable entity in the fair world. Texas and Oklahoma are not the borders that hold it justly earned position in the fair world. Improvements can be made; improvements will be made—in the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Watch it grow."

Perhaps It's Carnival Spirit
Fair To Be Big Honeymoon Resort

Get married and spend your honeymoon at the fair.

Taken either as a suggestion or a command, 12 couples have evidently decided to heed the above.

As predicted six weeks ago by the cupid clerk in the county clerk's office, the fair has already resulted in the marriage license bureau being swamped.

Whether the carnival spirit produces recklessness or abandon is a nice subject for the psychologists. At any rate 12 licenses were issued here by 3 Saturday afternoon. The marriage clerks predict still more to be issued before the fair is over.

The ministers, justices of the peace, the contracting parties themselves are all thankful for the fair if it is responsible for the marriage market ticker going up.

Some lawyers, hardened in their profession, are said to be rejoicing also on the theory "no marriages, no divorces."

TEXAS RANKS 7TH IN NATURAL GAS

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 30.—The state of Texas ranks seventh among the states of the union in production of natural gas based on the latest available statistics, according to a statement made today by Burt C. Blanton, industrial director of the Texas chamber of commerce, who is making a state-wide survey of natural resources and manufacturing industries.

"Natural gas consumption in Texas may exceed 75 thirty-one billion cubic feet per annum," Mr. Blanton said; "and the total number of consumers in the state may be enumerated approximately as follows: domestic 117,843; industrial, gasoline and other manufacturers: 105; other industrial consumers 1,404."

Industrial Consumption of Natural Gas in Texas

The industrial consumption of natural gas in Texas was divided by Mr. Blanton as follows: (1) manufacturing: 4,183,000,000 cubic feet; value at point of consumption: $670,000; (2) Drilling and pumping: 31,114,000,000 cubic feet; value at point of consumption: $3,383,000; (3) Gasoline: 1,572,000,000 cubic feet; value at point of consumption $150,000; and (4) other operations: 4,383,000,000 cubic feet; value at point of consumption $537,000.

Natural gas consumed in Texas in production of electric power:

"In excess of seven (7 per cent) per cent of the natural gas consumed in Texas is utilized in the production of electric power by public utility plants," Mr. Blanton said.

Cost of natural gas versus manufactured gas:

"Based on current prices prevailing in the United States in the year 1921, the cost of natural gas per thousand feet averages approximately twenty-six (26c) cents as compared with the cost of manufactured gas per thousand cubic feet averaging approximately: one($1) dollar.

Total consumption and value of natural gas in United States:

"The total number of natural gas consumers in the United States is approximately three (3) million," Mr. Blanton said; "and the value of natural gas consumed per annum in the United States based on the latest available figures, aggregates approximately $175,000,000."

Per cent of waste of natural gas:

"Approximately 30 per cent of the natural gas produced in the United States is wasted. And the average waste in the state of Texas is approximately eight per cent per annum."

By-products of natural gas:

"The two principal by-products of natural gas are natural gas-gasoline and carbon black," Mr. Blanton said; "another product from the treatment of natural gas that has attracted a great deal of attention during the last few years is helium."

This rare gas is the only non-inflamable gas that is lighter than air. Thus, far, only a few million cubic feet of helium gas has been isolated. This has been accomplished in this state, there being three helium plants in Texas, all owned by the U. S. government."

"Although thus far little has been done in the commercial recovery or manufacture of other natural gas products, many such products have been suggested," Mr. Blanton said; "some of them can be made by the fractional separation of those constituents of the crude gas that are heavier than methane and ethane, (the principal constituents of natural gas, or lighter than petane and hexane (the principal constituents of natural gas gasoline.) Some of these intermediate hydrocarbons and the products that may be made by the chemical treatment of them are of great industrial importance."

"The products of chlorination of natural gas are also chemical compounds of wide industrial use, such as methyl chloride, chloroform, carbon tetrachloride, ethyl chloride, and compounds like formaldehyde, formic acid and other oxidation products derived from the chlorine compounds directly or indirectly," Mr. Blanton said. "As yet most of these compounds are produced only on a minor scale in one or two establishments in the United States, but the interest that has been shown in some of these processes suggests a large industrial development of chemical products made from natural gas, or its constituents."

"In view of the fact that the state of Texas contains unlimited quantities of natural gas, why should not Texas' business men become interested in the manufacture of by-products from natural gas? The opportunity exists and Texas should have these additional industries," Mr. Blanton declared.

In conclusion Mr. Blanton said that between 30 and 40 per cent of natural gas consumed in the United States is used by domestic consumers; the remainder is used for industrial operations of various kinds.

JOCKY BARNHAM ARRIVES FOR FAIR

E. Barnham, known in all high racing circles as being a clever jocker, will ride either Bee's Wing or Horse of the Desert in the coming races at the T-O. fair. He arrived here yesterday from Omaha. A heavy rain sheer caused his party to be late eight hours getting in, he stated. In regard to the prospects for the races here, Barnhain said that everything looked fine.

Reclamation Meet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The first meeting of the committee recently appointed by Secretary Work to investigate the government's reclamation policy has been called for Washington, October 13.

DEMOCRATS ARE OUT OF MONEY

National Committee Now Feels Wolf Constantly At Door

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The latter prospects appear to grow for the election of a democratic president in 1924 the scarcer funds get for the democratic national committee, whose work is to make more certain that election.

Strange as this may appear, it is absolutely true as testified by Chairman Cordell Hull, ex., proven by the condition of books of the committee treasurer. Financial condition of books of the committee treasurer. Financial condition of the committee is so bad that the wolf is constantly at the door, and there have been numerous times when the committee would have ceased to function had it not been that party loyalty of Chairman Hull caused him to advance funds from his own bank account.

The condition is the more disheartening to the workers, because with the meeting of the republican ways and means committee here this week it developed that republican national headquarters were very well off indeed, with the possibility that they would again be rolling in wealth by the time another campaign came round. Captains of industry on the republican ways and means committee have seen to it that the old debts were liquidated, and that the coffers were given a sufficient reserve fund to keep large activities going. Now arrangements have been perfected to repeat the work of the large fund-gathering army of Will Hays in 1920, and the "get the money boys" will soon begin their quadrennial bush beating.

The democratic national committee still has left a large portion of the last national campaign debt. While that debt was but a fraction of the amount hanging over the republican committee, there is still unpaid $163,000 of it, and the committee has no working capital. It has had contributions from time to time, but these have not been sufficient to carry on the usual work of the off season between elections.

When George White was chairman of the committee he succeeded in paying off only a small portion of the debt, and did that only by cutting activities of the committee to the bone. One of the attacks made against him was that because of his connection with the last campaign, money givers who might desire some candidate in 1924 other than the man Mr. White had favored would not make contributions to him. But Cordell Hull, who succeeded Mr. White, has been little more successful. After the 1920 campaign, when headquarters were moved back to Washington from New York, only a part of the old headquarters here were occupied. Soon it became necessary to curtail most of the "peace" time activities, and finally to keep operations going, headquarters were moved into a cheaper locality. The financial situation continued so critical, however, that independent financing of the last senatorial and congressional campaign had to be employed. Then state committee men were asked to pledge funds for their respective states to reduce the standing debt, but most of them failed in their pledges. Even the victory campaign, designed to promote organization primarily, has been disappointing in its fund raising features, though highly successful in instilling enthusiasm.

Meanwhile the republican committee has been moving steadily along. It has continued to occupy large and complete quarters in the most expensive office building in Washington, and, while paying off an immense debt, has been able to expand organization work, including the holding of regional conferences for both men and women workers. Of course the control of patronage help in the general result, but receipts from that source were small as compared with the free will offerings of those of large wealth, who were interested in republican success.

In the past it has been comparatively easy for the democratic committee to finance itself when the outlook was good; but now, when committee agents and others assert the outlook could not be better, the committee coffers are empty.

The reason assigned is that there are too many candidates actively at work, whose organizations divert funds from the general to a specific cause. There is also a loss to the committee in that the non-partisan committee to promote the league of nations has been financed by those who otherwise would aid the democratic organization, and further in the fact that democrats, proverbially poor as a rule, have not yet recovered from the drain they made in creating the Wilson memorial. But the organized candidatures of prominent individuals forms now the chief competition for general committee solicitation.

DO YOU OWN THIS PROWLING COYOTE?

Let the night owls have their mornings after, and the dogs their days before, but give the cats and coyotes their nocturnal seasons when they can howl and prowl to their hearts' content. So say officers Johnson and Griffin, who are used to picking up erring humans of the species, but are seldom called upon to look after the welfare of the canine persuasion.

It was a pleasant looking young coyote dragging a wire and chain which Johnson and Griffin brought in to police headquarters last night. Followed a short examining trial after which it was decided to hold the wayward prowler for further evidence. The youngster was as tame as a kitten, seeming pleased with his new home, contrary to general opinion.

Mr. Coyote was taken in when seen going down an alley in the downtown district. When caught he was in the diverting game of trying to lose himself behind boxes and cans. He will be held until called for by the owner.

DRUG STORE FIRE DOES NO DAMAGE

No damage was done when a small fire broke out in the rear of the Owl Drug store at Ninth and Indiana yesterday afternoon.

The blaze started in a trash can in the prescription department, and spread no further, despite a misleading cloud of smoke which issued from the front entrance for a few minutes. It was quickly put out by the aid of a fire extinguisher.
