Icy roads kill five in Panhandle

From staff and wire reports
At least five deaths were blamed on a storm that brought snow and ice to the Panhandle after triggering violent thunderstorms and tornadoes across Texas.
Snow still was falling in Pampa and Amarillo in the Panhandle this morning, and a brisk wind was blowing it across roads, making driving conditions extremely hazardous.

Big Spring escaped the storm's fury as only light rain and a slight temperature dip were noticed by area residents.

Forecasts for today for a 20 percent chance of rain mixed with snow and a high temperature in the mid-40s. Some light snow was evident during early morning hours.

However, reports in the Panhandle were much more grim.
The winter weather was blamed for at least five traffic deaths in the Panhandle.
Two Dumas men were killed Monday near the Panhandle town of Stunnett when the station wagon in which they were traveling skidded on ice and collided head-on with a truck, the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

Three people, including two young children, were killed and three others were injured Monday night when a car skidded out of control and slammed into another vehicle on U.S. Highway 60 near Farwell, state troopers said.

Pay-TV networks to 'protect broadcasts'

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Recent stories in the Wall Street Journal and CableVision magazine revealed that Home Box Office and Showtime pay-TV movie networks will soon begin scrambling their signals to protect their broadcasts from unauthorized reception.

The signal scrambling is directed toward users of home microwave satellite dishes who receive the HBO and Showtime signals without paying for the privilege, according to the stories.

Locally, Big Spring Cable TV Vice President Jim Lancaster, whose company carries Showtime, and C.L. Carlile of Mutex Sound and Electronics, a marketer of satellite dishes, commented on the move by the cable networks.

Carlile said he doesn't believe that most customers buy dishes primarily to watch HBO or Showtime.

He said most of the dishes were sold to rural residents who could not normally subscribe to cable and were buying the systems to increase viewing opportunities.

"People in the rural community usually only have one or two channels to watch and those are often snowy," Carlile said. "With a dish they can get 75 channels, so it's a super opportunity for them."

Carlile added that the loss of HBO would not dent the popularity of satellite dishes because of the large number of channels available with the system.

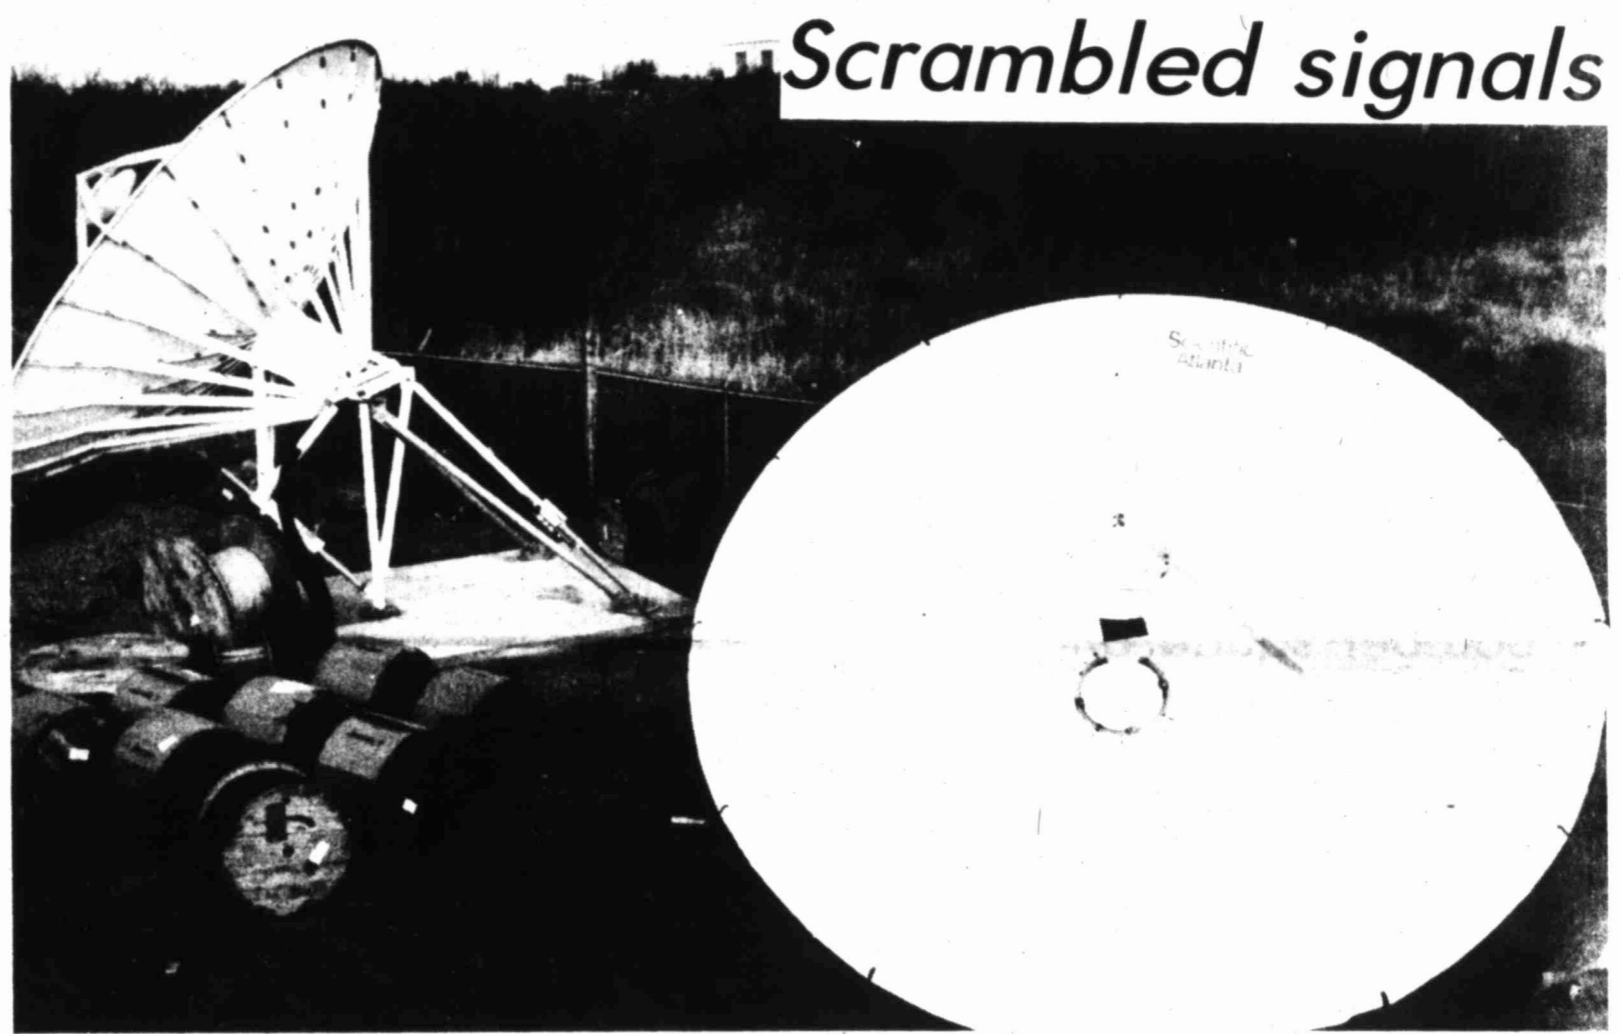

Lancaster, who said he was not a spokesman for Showtime, believes Showtime is justified in its actions.

"HBO and Showtime have a product they pay money for," Lancaster said. "They go and buy the use of films to project to the public for a fee and if you have someone with a device picking that service up for free — then they (HBO, Showtime) have a reason to approach the situation as they are approaching it."

Lancaster said as a purchaser of Showtime, he felt it was "past time" that the pay-cable companies begin to protect themselves from unauthorized use of their product.

According to the Wall Street Journal, the volume of unauthorized

City approves change in election format

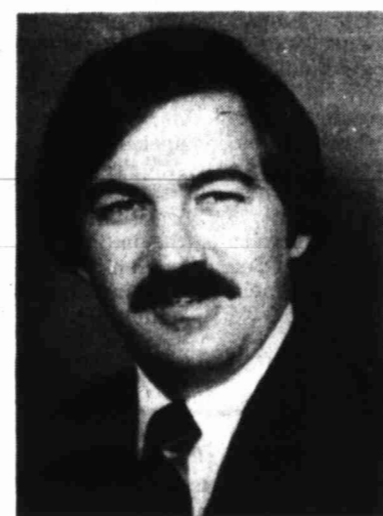

Big Spring city councilmen passed on final reading yesterday an ordinance that changes the city's election format in April from at-large by-place to at-large.

Those who file for candidacy by March 2 will vie for two seats now filled by Councilmen Russ McEwen and Jack Y. Smith. The top two vote-getters will win the election.

City Secretary Tom Ferguson said McEwen has filed for candidacy. Smith says he probably will run for re-election.

Candidates must be at least 18-years-old or over and a Big Spring citizen for two years. Councilmen are paid a $50 per month salary.

The council reverted to pre-1973 at-large elections because the Voting Rights Act requires the U.S. Attorney General's approval of election format changes enacted since 1972. For reasons no one seems to know, that regulation was not followed in 1975 when it became applicable in Texas.

Farmers evaluate PIK plan

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County cotton producers are "still out there with their calculators" to determine if they will participate in the Payment in Kind farm program, according to Tim Hall of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

Producers have to determine if the PIK program will be beneficial to them as well as compute the level of participation that is best for them, Hall said.

Registration for the voluntary acreage reduction program began Jan. 24, and some Howard County producers have already signed up, Hall said.

However, the greatest number of participants will probably sign up closer to the March 11 deadline, Hall said.

Hall said his office would be unable to release the number of participants in the program until March 18.

Since the project is designed to raise prices, producers not participating would be able to benefit by planting full crops if they knew others were setting aside land, Hall said.

"It just wouldn't be fair to those who had already signed up," Hall said.

The PIK program pays farmers to reduce planted acreage in commodities rather than in cash. In return for taking crop land out of production, farmers will receive the crop they normally would plant from the government's Commodity Credit Corp. surpluses.

In addition to the voluntary PIK diversion program, all producers are required to reduce planted acreage by 20 percent this year, according to the 1983 farm act.

One aspect of the PIK program allows producers to submit sealed bids to reduce their whole base acreage for harvest to zero.

Action/reaction: No Queens

Q. Why is there no radio broadcast of the Hawk Queen games?
A. According to Winston Wrinkle of KBST — currently carrying Howard College basketball — the Queens' playing time of 6 p.m. is prime radio time usually already sold. Another point is advertisers — Wrinkle said they were difficult enough to obtain for the boys, traditionally with a bigger following. However, the Region V tournament will be broadcast.

One driver killed in truckers' strike

By The Associated Press

A nationwide strike by independent truckers turned bloody during the night with one driver shot to death in North Carolina and at least seven injured by gunfire or flying rocks as they wheeled their rigs through the darkness.

A teen-ager suffered a fractured skull Monday when a brick bounded off a tractor-trailer into her family's car in Pennsylvania.

Since the strike began at 12:01 a.m. Monday, with others joining the shutdown early today, trucks have been fired at, sabotaged or hit by rocks in at least 17 states.

The strike, a protest against higher fuel taxes and highway user fees, appeared to have little immediate effect, except in some isolated cases. A cattle auction Monday night in Pavilion, N.Y., near Buffalo had to be canceled because no trucks were available to haul away the cows.

Officials in many states reported near-normal truck traffic. Some drivers expressed more fear of militant strikers than any desire to stop work themselves, and shippers reported no major problems moving their goods.

George Franklin Capps, 33, of Clayton, N.C., was shot in the neck and killed by a sniper about 11:30 p.m. Monday just outside Newton Grove, N.C., as he was driving a truck along U.S. 701, said Sampson County sheriff's deputy Gerald Tadlock.

Six other trucks were hit by gunfire and two other drivers were slightly injured elsewhere in North Carolina.

Four of a kind

Galveston quads shunned publicity

HOUSTON (AP) — Forty-four years after their birth created a sensation, the Badgett quadruplets have found the privacy they wished for throughout their childhood.

Joan, Jeanette, Jeraldine and Joyce, whose birthday is today, plan to spend their birthday quietly, probably extending best wishes to each other on the telephone.

All now lead ordinary lives as housewives away from the limelight. They wouldn't have it any other way.

"We liked some of it, but after a while we got tired of it," Joan Trocheset said of the publicity the rare multiple birth created in 1939.

"We got to where we hated to have our picture taken," said Mrs. Trocheset, who works as a librarian at an elementary school in Galveston. "You couldn't go out anywhere without being pointed at."

When news of the quadruplets' birth spread, crowds gathered at the hospital to see Ellis and Esther Badgett's new family.

Celebrities sent greetings. Mae West sent a telegram to Mr. Badgett, which read "Come up and see me sometime."

The Texas Legislature sent special greetings and Baylor offered the four newly born girls college scholarships.

All that just for being born.

As the quads grew, so did their list of associations with celebrities. They rode in a parade with Johnny Weissmuller, who appeared as Tarzan in the movie serials, became honorary Texas Rangers and even appeared on television game shows.

There were other frustrations, along with the pleasures of being four of a kind.

"We were always looked at as a group and not as individual," said Mrs. Trocheset. "At least I was taller than my sisters so that helped me to be different."

Over the years, the spotlight dimmed. The sisters married and went their separate ways. They never accepted the scholarships to Baylor.

"We just all grew up and got married young," Mrs. Trocheset said. "That's the way we wanted it. We don't really want too much attention any more."

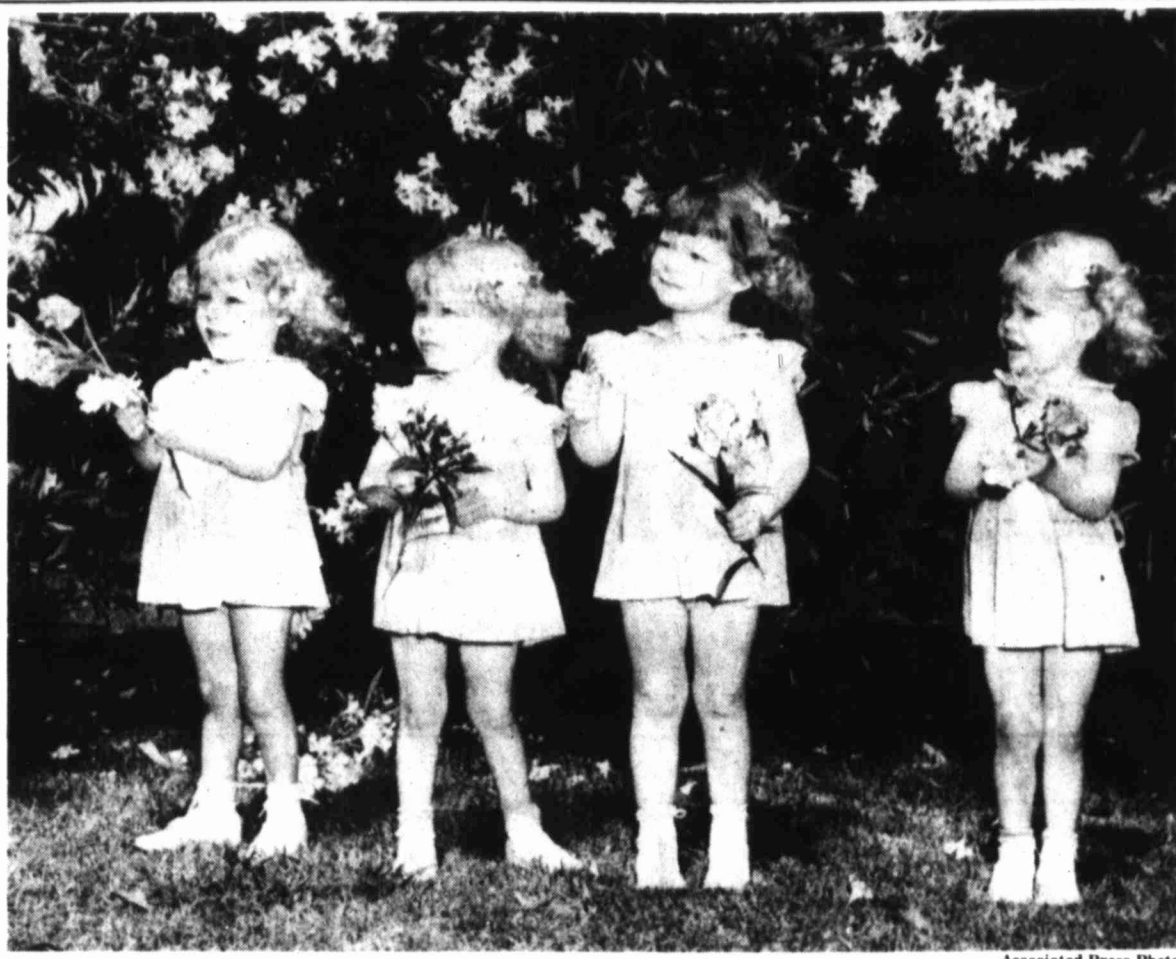

But there's always something to remind the quads of their past.

"My son came home from school all excited one day because he'd read about us in an encyclopedia," Mrs. Trocheset said. "He thought it was neat that we'd be in a book."

Jeanette Shukanes also remained in Galveston and works at a private school. The other two sisters, Joyce Davidson and Jeraldine Tallet, moved to North Texas. Joyce settled in Duncanville and Jeraldine moved to Irving.

Although they remain private citizens now, their notoriety occasionally returns, especially at birthday time.

"It sure makes it hard to keep your age a secret," Mrs. Trocheset said.

Stenholm named to 5 agriculture panels

Congressman Charles Stenholm was named recently to five subcommittees of the House Agriculture Committee, including the Conservation, Credit and Rural Development Subcommittee.

"A seat on the conservation and credit subcommittee was one of the first goals I set for the 98th Congress," Stenholm said. "I'm excited about this new assignment because so many of the most crucial problems of agriculture fall under jurisdiction of this subcommittee."

Stenholm cited the Farmers Home Administration, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. and the Farm Credit System as agencies which the conservation and credit subcommittee oversees.

Besides the conservation subcommittee, Stenholm will serve as a member of the Cotton, Rice and Sugar; Livestock, Dairy and Poultry; and Tobacco and Peanuts subcommittees.

Enraged lover sprays church with gunfire

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — Parishioners hid under pews after a man opened fire in a church here, shooting one teen-ager in the back of the head and spraying other shots toward the altar, police said.

Gary Wayne Willingham, 29, of Corsicana was charged Monday with attempted murder after he allegedly barged into the Corsicana Full Gospel Church Sunday and began firing a .22-caliber rifle.

Steven Sykes, 19, was shot once in the head when he tried to shove aside the gunman's 22-caliber rifle, witnesses told police.

Police Sgt. J.L. Palos said Willingham was trying to find his ex-girlfriend when he burst through the front door during a Sunday night musical service at the church.

After shooting Sykes, police said, the gunman fired wildly at the girlfriend's 13-year-old daughter, who stumbled while running down the church's center aisle. As the gunman walked down the aisle, he stepped over the girl, witnesses said.

Justice of the Peace Aubry Smith ordered Willingham held on $25,000 bond on a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. The charge later was changed to attempted murder, Palos said.

Sykes remained in critical condition Monday night in Navarro Memorial Hospital, a nursing supervisor said. Palos said doctors told him that Sykes was being kept alive by life-support equipment.

Pastor Roy Tumlinson said Willingham came through the church doors and shouted, "Don't anyone move. If you move, I'm going to kill you."

Tumlinson said the 50 people in the church dove for cover beneath pews when the shooting began. Several people began sobbing as police arrested the man. The former girlfriend, 38-year-old Nelda Pendergraph, and her daughter, Laurie, were not injured, police said. Sykes is Ms. Pendergraph's nephew, authorities said.

Tumlinson said the gunman confronted Ms. Pendergraph, who was in another room preparing to sing a solo, and yelled, "It's not worth it, is it? It's not worth all this killing and dying."

Police, called earlier by a woman who spotted the man outside the church with a gun, arrived and told the man to surrender, which he did, Palos said.

Palos said the witnesses included a woman who taped the shooting on a cassette recorder she was using to record the musical service. The woman turned the tape over to police, he said.

Abilene first to get B-1 bomber squadron

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene will be the first base in the country to receive the new B-1 bomber, according to Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas.

Stenholm was informed by the Air Force that 26 B-1B bombers would be stationed at the base by mid-1985, a spokeswoman for Stenholm said Monday. The result will be an additional 510 military personnel and 20 more civilian personnel employed at the base, she said.

President Reagan's proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 includes $8.4 million for new construction at the base to house the B-1, said the spokeswoman, Jamie Clayton.

Ms. Clayton said 13 B-52 bombers currently operating from the base would be transferred elsewhere.

Try-outs scheduled for Wilder's 'Skin'

Try-outs for "The Skin of Our Teeth" will be held at the University of Texas Permian Basin in Odessa Wednesday through Friday, according to Sharla Rees, UTPB theater teacher.

The Thornton Wilder play calls for eight men and eight women. Persons who wish to audition should bring a one-minute memorized selection from a comedy and be prepared to read from the script, Miss Rees said.

Auditions will be held at 4:15 p.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Globe Theater on the Odessa College campus. Auditions Thursday will be at 7 p.m. in classroom 383 at UTPB. Call-backs are slated Friday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Copies of the play are available in the UTPB library. Miss Rees may be reached in classroom 375 at UTPB.

Truck

A tank truck driver received minor cuts about 4 a.m. today when a sniper's bullet shattered glass and metal just behind his head while he was driving his rig near Baltimore, police said.

In Utah, truck driver Howard N. Adams, 45, of Riverside, Calif., was shot in the chest Monday afternoon as he unloaded his rig in Brigham City. His condition was upgraded from critical to serious today. Authorities said they were uncertain if the shooting was strike-related.

Reports of violence also came from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Alabama, Mississippi, Oregon, West Virginia, Michigan, Tennessee, Florida, Arizona, Idaho, Indiana, and Connecticut.

State police in Pennsylvania and Michigan said two truckers suffered minor facial cuts when rocks or bricks were tossed through their windshields while they were rolling down interstates. Nails were spread on an Oregon highway, police said.

In Arizona today, bullets hit five trucks near Casa Grande but no injuries were reported. Police said two men were arrested for questioning but were booked on unrelated charges.

Gunshots fired from a pickup truck hit five trucks in southern Florida near the Everglades town of LaBelle and one driver suffered a minor wound. Arson investigators were investigating a fire that heavily damaged one 18-wheeler in Loughman and one rig had its tires slashed in Lakeland.

One driver was slightly injured when a rock thrown from an overpass shattered his windshield near Southington, Conn., and another driver was slightly injured by a rock in Portland, Ore.

Man kills father, turns gun on self

HOUSTON (AP) — A self-employed building contractor confronted his father with a briefcase full of weapons and a list of complaints, then shot and killed his parent before turning a gun on himself, a sheriff's investigator says.

Donald Vanderhider, 27, killed his father then himself in the Monday morning confrontation, Sheriff's Detective Anthony Rossi said.

Rossi said Vanderhider was upset over past arguments with Lawrence M. Vanderhider, 53, a supervisor for Allied Industries here.

The younger man, who had not seen his father for some time, called early Monday and asked to visit, Rossi said. The detective said when Donald arrived at his father's home, he pulled a .44-Magnum pistol and a list from his briefcase and began reading the complaints.

Rossi said the briefcase also contained another pistol and several rounds of ammunition and said investigators found more boxes of ammunition and a bow and arrow in Donald's car.

Paula Corkins, 46, a neighbor in the Prestonwood Forest subdivision, said the elder Vanderhider's wife, Margaret, said her husband was elated at the prospect of seeing his son and had made coffee and assembled Christmas gifts Donald had never picked up.

Deaths

Rachel Jumper — MIDLAND — Rachel (Memmie) Jumper, 80, of Midland died Sunday afternoon at her home. Services will be Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. G.A. McGee of the Bellview Baptist Church officiating. Graveside services will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at Simpson Cemetery in Gorman under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She was born Dec. 9, 1902 in Colony, Texas. Raised in Gorman, she moved to Midland 24 years ago. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include one son, Gene Jumper of Midland; two daughters, Ernestine Childers of Big Spring and Betty Waters of Odessa; 10 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Cable

reception by dishes is hard to measure; however, HBO officials feel that declining prices for the systems will accelerate the availability of satellite reception in the next few years.

Lancaster doesn't see the dishes as a threat to Big Spring Cable TV. "We see dishes in private use," he said. "However, it's not a problem for us, it's a problem for Showtime to solve."

Showtime and HBO are predicting that scrambling equipment will be in place by late 1984 or early 1985 if suitable hardware can be found for the job.

Two arrested for prostitution

Police said they arrested two Odessa women last night on suspicion of prostitution at the Melba Hotel at 813 E. Third.

Peace Justice Lewis Hefflin set bond at $1,500 each for 24-year-old Kimberly Sue Rice and 35-year-old Brenda Joyce Adams, police said.

Police reports also showed the following: Tony Lee Shortes, 18, of 1606 E. 25th was arrested yesterday on suspicion of simple assault.

Michael Walker, a student at Big Spring High School, told police someone stole a $230 stereo yesterday from the school's theater sound room.

A 30-year-old Houston man was taken for a ride yesterday and robbed of $71.

Larry Hartley accepted a ride to the bus station from two white males in a small, yellow pickup. The suspects drove Hartley on the Interstate 20 north service road to a mile east of Highway 350 and told him to get out. Then one man grabbed Hartley's billfold, pushed him away from their pickup and drove away, police said.

T&P Federal Credit Union at 104 Main reported that someone forged a co-maker's signature on two notes worth $10,670.

Someone broke into Howard Junior College Book Store Sunday night and stole an undetermined number of items.

Bill Westbrook of B&B Auto Sales at 700 E. Fourth told police that a white male who took a 1977 Ford to test drive for two days did not return the car at 1 p.m. yesterday as he promised.

Kellye Powell of 2206 Lynn told police someone stole her purse from a Malone Hogan Hospital waiting room on Jan. 21. Contents included a diamond necklace, a watch and a checkbook. Ms. Powell estimates her loss at $200.

Reagan says Americans feeling recovery

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Reagan, expressing confidence that the long-sought economic recovery is underway, said today that Americans "are beginning to receive the payoff we have all been waiting for."

Speaking to an audience of businessmen on a one-day trip intended to demonstrate his awareness of the nation's economic problems, Reagan also sought to counter an interpretation of his State of the Union address that hinted at a change in his economic policy.

The president, who said a week ago that government should take the lead in restoring the economy — a speech line that brought Democrats in his congressional audience to their feet in cheers — said today "some people seemed to think I was advocating a return to the old ways. I didn't mean anything of the kind."

"I meant, government was largely responsible for creating the economic mess of recent years; now it must recognize that and start un-doing the damage it has done."

The president made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery to the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association at the Cervantes Convention Center.

Before the speech, the president toured a nearby Chrysler Corp. plant, where workers are being rehired as part of the closed facility's reopening. Unemployment in the St. Louis area is above the national average.

The trip, one in a recent series of one-day excursions, was intended to alter the impression that the president "doesn't know how bad it is out there," said his chief of staff, James A. Baker III.

Today's trip comes just a day after Reagan submitted to Congress a fiscal 1984 budget proposal totaling $848.5 billion, with the entire increase devoted to Pentagon spending and higher interest charges on the national debt.

In the speech to the businessmen's luncheon, Reagan sought to tackle declining support for his handling of the economy by drawing attention to economic good news.

"We are beginning to receive the payoff we have all been waiting for — the reward for painful but essential steps to cure a disease that was crippling America and undermining our security," the president said, echoing forecasts from his economic advisers that the recovery will be evident in the next few months.

Reagan told his audience that "we still have a mountain of challenges to surmount," but added that the "evidence of recovery continues to build — leading economic indicators up eight of the last nine months; housing starts and permits up; real wages growing; auto sales strengthening; construction contracting rising; unemployment claims headed down...."

The president sharply criticized efforts to remove from his tax plan a provision intended to keep taxpayers from being pushed into higher brackets by inflation and cost-of-living raises.

"Repealing indexing is just a sleight of hand," he said.

"Rather than bring spending down closer to revenues," he added, those who would do away with indexing would "simply raise revenues the sneaky way — by using inflation to push every working family in America toward higher and higher tax brackets."

Reagan, who this week proposed standby tax increases to take effect in October 1983, if the spiraling national debt is not brought under control, said, however, "We aren't reducing tax rates in 1981, '82 and '83 just so we can turn around and raise the rates in '84, '85 and every year after that."

"Tax rate cuts and indexing are vital to our strategy for lasting growth through greater saving, investment and production. That strategy is beginning to work."

He added that "those who would destroy the incentives to reduce projected deficit will, instead, sabotage recovery and make deficits much worse."

Weather

Light snow falls around Lubbock

Light snow was falling near Lubbock in the South Plains, according to the National Weather Service. Temperatures dipped into the 20s and 30s before dawn, prompting travel advisories because of icy roads.

Heavy rains fell throughout Monday in Houston, Beaumont, Dallas-Fort Worth and south of Wichita Falls.

One twister ripped through a large apartment complex in Beaumont on Monday, causing widespread damage, but only minor injuries, according to the DPS.

DPS spokesman Gary Haag said four or five people were injured by broken glass or flying debris from the tornado, part of a storm that brought 3.6 inches of rain to Beaumont in only a few hours.

The twister cut a path through the Town Oaks Apartments at about 2 p.m. and damaged 15 of the more than 100 units, said Haag. The storm also caused minor damage at two other nearby apartment complexes, he said.

An elderly woman was hospitalized in Sealy, about 35 miles west of Houston, after a tornado demolished her small frame house.

The Austin County sheriff's office said the tornado also destroyed a mobile home, a barn and a garage near San Felipe. Three people were inside in the mobile home, but the residents escaped injury, according to authorities.

Officials in Montgomery County, north of Houston, believe the same storm later touched down in Spring, knocked a radio station off the air and downed power lines.

Early morning temperatures today were mostly in the 30s, 40s and 50s. Winds were generally from the northwest at 15 to 20 mph.

The forecast called for the possibility of snow and freezing rain in the Panhandle and South Plains into tonight. Mostly cloudy skies were expected statewide today, with a clearing trend beginning Wednesday.

TODAY AND WEDNESDAY
West Texas — Travel advisory Panhandle and South Plains through Wednesday. Partly cloudy far west, cloudy with a slight chance of rain south. Occasional snow north with additional accumulations of one to three inches Panhandle and one to two inches South Plains causing hazardous driving conditions today. Decreasing cloudiness Wednesday. Colder most sections. Highs near 30 Panhandle to near 60 Big Bend. Lows 15 Panhandle to 32 extreme south. Highs Wednesday 35 Panhandle to 65 Big Bend.

THURSDAY THROUGH SATURDAY
West Texas — Generally cloudy and cold. Scattered snow north and scattered rain or snow south Saturday. Highs mid 30s north to mid 50s Big Bend. Lows upper teens Panhandle to low 30s extreme south.

Inmates free 15 hostages

WAUPUN, Wis. (AP) — A three-day lockdown was imposed at Waupun State Prison after 140 rebellious inmates took 15 people hostage and then released them unharmed, officials said.

The hostages were freed Monday after riot-equipped police stormed one of two buildings occupied by the protesting inmates.

Most of the penitentiary's 1,228 inmates will be confined to their cells for at least three days during the lockdown while prisoner grievances and other reasons for the 7 1/2-hour disturbance are reviewed, authorities said Monday.

The disturbance, the worst in a series that began Jan. 19, seems to have been in reaction to congested living conditions and in demand for investigation of an inmate's suicide Saturday, assistant warden Carl Manthe said. The 132-year-old facility was designed for 810 inmates.

"We are going to go over the demands of the prisoners," Manthe said. "The only assurances we gave the prisoners is that we would look into their demands."

"We really did not negotiate," Linda Reivitz, secretary of the Department of Health and Social Services, which includes the Division of Corrections, said in Madison. She said the only weapons found were sticks.

Participants in the disturbance will be disciplined, Manthe said.

Inmates set fire to furniture and broke windows, Manthe said, but vandalism was not extensive.

"The main thing is the hostages walked out and were uninjured," Manthe said.

The incident began about 8 a.m. Monday. About 200 policemen and deputy sheriffs, wearing gas masks and shields, were called to the scene. They rushed a two-story building used as a school where an estimated 100 inmates surrendered without a struggle about 2 p.m., freeing three guards and nine teachers who had been held hostage.

About 3:30 p.m., about 40 remaining participants in the disturbance surrendered in a dormitory, releasing two guards and a civilian hostage.

POLICE MOVE INTO POSITION — Riot-equipped police move into position inside the Waupun State Prison in Waupun, Wis. Monday afternoon as inmates held 15 hostages. The police stormed the prison school where 12 hostages were being held. They persuaded the inmates to release the other three, ending a 7-hour ordeal.

Bush pushes Reagan's weapons ban proposal

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN — Vice President George Bush urged the Soviet Union today to accept President Reagan's invitation to sign a pact banning medium-range nuclear weapons. He said U.S. negotiators will continue "pounding away" for Soviet acceptance of Reagan's proposals.

"I believe the Soviet leadership should seize the moment and join us in banning the weapons," Bush said at a news conference. "Ours is a moral position and we (NATO members) stand together in this position."

But Novosti, an official Soviet news agency, today denounced the Reagan offer to meet with Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov "wherever and whenever he wants" to sign a disarmament pact. The agency called the proposal a rehash of the "zero option," which the Kremlin already has turned down.

Bush on Monday night responded to Soviet overtures to Western European officials and peace groups by reading an "open letter to the people of Europe" in which Reagan made his offer.

Novosti commentator Vladimir Alexeyev said "Mr. Bush's statements so far indicate that the Reagan administration continues to be oblivious of the fact that people expect of it not pompous but empty eulogies on the need to reduce arms, but concrete deeds to further the same."

Bush, who visited the Berlin Wall today before going to Amsterdam, acknowledged that Reagan's offer to ban all land-based, intermediate-range nuclear weapons amounted to a restatement of his "zero option" plan.

"That is no reason that we should not in Geneva be pounding away" to try to get the Soviets to accept the proposal, he said, referring to U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks in Switzerland.

"What Reagan has done, I hope, is laid to rest the argument that he is unwilling to meet with Andropov," Bush said. "This extends a hand, reaches out, so that we can have a meeting to ban an entire new generation of nuclear weapons."

The Netherlands is Bush's second stop on a 12-day European tour intended to win popular support for NATO policies and offset opposition to the planned deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

About 8,000 Berlin leftists marched in a cold rain Monday to protest U.S. foreign policy. Most of their placards were directed against U.S. policy in Latin America, but the marchers also demonstrated against the NATO missile plan.

Reagan said in his message that he asked Bush, "in the city where East meets West, to propose to Soviet General Secretary Andropov that he and I meet wherever and whenever he wants in order to sign an agreement banning U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range, land-based nuclear missile weapons from the face of the Earth."

Heavy snow falls in Kansas, Midwest

By The Associated Press

A snowstorm approaching blizzard ferocity had dumped a foot of snow in northern Kansas early today and tornadoes and icy roads were blamed for seven deaths in Louisiana and Texas.

One of the half a dozen twisters that skipped across southern Louisiana on Monday hit a house at Lillie, killing a woman, and moments later ripped apart a mobile home, killing a child.

In the Texas Panhandle, where five traffic fatalities were blamed on slick roads Monday, snow and freezing rain continued to fall today, closing major highways and stalling trucks with 4-inch accumulations.

The tornadoes, spawned by a thunderstorm that brought heavy rain today to parts of the Gulf Coast, also injured at least six people in Texas on Monday.

Snow today spread from northeastern New Mexico, where a winter storm warning was in effect, to northwestern Missouri, where 7 inches was on the ground in St. Joseph. In Kansas, 11 inches of snow fell in Blaine, with 10 inches measured at Blue Rapids.

Meanwhile, the cleanup continued in California where destruction last week from four Pacific storms caused an estimated $100 million in damage, killed 11 people and prompted officials in 14 counties to file for emergency disaster help.

In Spokane, Wash., the international airport was closed by fog today, and only six planes were able to land or take off Monday when the fog cleared for about 90 minutes.

Minorities try to block Gramm election

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin federal judge has been asked by a group of poor and minority voters to block a Feb. 12 special election in which former Democratic U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm seeks to return to Congress as a Republican.

The voters, represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid, filed a request for an injunction Monday. They were turned down last Saturday by three federal judges meeting in Beaumont, who said the suit was not in their jurisdiction.

After Democrats in Congress removed Gramm from the House Budget Committee, he resigned his seat on Jan. 5 and announced he immediately would seek reelection as a Republican.

The former Texas A&M economics professor was elected as a Democrat in 1978, but had drawn the ire of his fellow party members by supporting Republican budget proposals.

A clerk in U.S. District Judge H.F. Garcia's office said Monday that the judge would decide later this week when to hold a hearing on the request for an injunction.

The group asked that the election be halted until state officials comply with the Voting Rights Act.

The suit contends the election, which was set by Republican Gov. Bill Clements just before he left office, is illegal because it was not approved by the U.S. Justice Department in accordance with the Voting Rights Act.

The election had to be approved by federal officials, the voters contend, because the date is not one of four statutory dates for special elections listed in the state election code. Whenever an election is set for a non-statutory date, they argue, it must be approved by the Justice Department.

The group also contends the election date would tend to shut out minority candidates because it allowed only five working days for candidates to file.

Poorer potential candidates would have had less time to gather names on petitions, which they could file instead of the $500 filing fee, the suit said.

Economy may decide next Senate

The next congressional election offers Democrats a fair chance to recapture control of the U.S. Senate — if President Reagan doesn't win another sweeping presidential election. In 1984, 19 Republican terms expire and only 14 Democratic — the reverse of 1982.

Democrats were lucky their larger number of seats expired in 1982, an off-year for the party in power. Republicans, too, could be lucky if President Reagan runs and is elected by a big margin. (In most states presidential voting influences the outcome of U.S. Senate races.)

The key to which party gains control of the Senate may lie in economic conditions. If the economy hasn't staged a recovery, Democrats will have a good chance to capture a majority in the upper legislative body and the White House.

The South and the Midwest will see most of the 1984 Senate election action. The East will see more Democratic terms expiring than Republican. Here is the schedule:

SOUTH: Democratic seats expiring: Boren (Okla.), Heflin (Ala.), Huddleston (Ky.), Johnson (La.), Nunn (Ga.), Pryor (Ark.), and Randolph (W.Va.); Republican: Baker (Tn.), Cochran (Miss.), Helms (NC), Thurmond (SC), Tower (Tex) and Warner (Va.).

MIDWEST: Democratic seats expiring: Exxon (Neb.) and Levin (Mich.); Republican: Boschwitz (Minn.), Jepsen (Iowa), Kassenbaum (Kan.), McClure (Idaho), and Pressler (SD).

EAST: Democratic seats expiring: Briden (Del.), Bradley (N.J.), Claiborne (RI), and Tsongas (Mass.). Republican: Cohen (Me.) and Humphrey (NH).

WEST: Democratic seat expiring: Baucus (Mont.); Republican: Armstrong (Colo.), Domenici (NM), Hatfield (Ore.), Simpson (Wyo.) and Stevens (Alaska).

Much can change between now and November, 1984. But one can see that the Democrats, by gaining a net five seats, can regain control of the U.S. Senate (now 54-46 Republican). On the other hand, should Reagan carry the country with a heavy majority, the G.O.P. could hold its own, or better.

Hello out there

There is a communication revolution going on in the world right now. New technology has made it possible for people to communicate with each other by everything from satellites to car telephones. The only problem is that although scientists have made it possible to think up ways of keeping in touch with each other, no one seems to know if it's a good thing or a bad thing.

I came to this conclusion when I was riding with a friend in his car the other day. He had one of those new telephones attached under the dashboard.

"What do you need that for?" I asked him.

"I couldn't do without it. Look, all I have to do is hit this button and I can get my office." I heard the buzzing and a voice picked up the phone.

"Thunderbird and Thunderbird," the lady said.

"This is Mr. Thunderbird. Do you have any calls for me?"

"No I don't, Mr. Thunderbird."

"No calls at all?"

"No, Mr. Thunderbird. The phone hasn't rung since you left the office."

"Well, I'll be driving in my car for another 25 minutes. If anyone calls put them through to my car telephone."

"Business must be slow," I said.

"We're hurting like everybody else," he said.

"When did your recession start?"

"Come to think of it, just about the time I put the phone in the car."

"That's tough. Just when it's possible for you to communicate by car phone with a client, there are no clients."

"You have to be ready for the turnaround in the economy," he told me. "When it comes I'll be able to handle all my business from my car."

Just then the phone buzzed.

"There you are," said Thunderbird. "You see the importance of the phone? If I didn't have it, someone else might have gotten the business."

He picked up the receiver.

"Thunderbird speaking."

"Is that you, darling?"

"Yes, dear."

"Where are you?"

"Massachusetts Avenue and Western."

"Would you stop at Wagshal's and bring home a pound of roast beef, dill pickles and a case of beer?"

"I've already passed Wagshal's. Why can't you send Tommy?"

"He's out driving somewhere, but he doesn't have a phone in his car."

Thunderbird muttered something and turned around.

"I guess there are pluses and minuses to having a phone," I said.

"I should have never given my wife my number."

The phone buzzed again. It was Thunderbird's secretary. "Mr. Thunderbird, Father Brooke of Holy Cross just called and said he needed the $10,000 you pledged for the new science building."

"Did you tell him you couldn't find me?"

"Yes. But he said to call you in your car. I didn't tell him you had a phone in your car."

"I did," Thunderbird said. "I thought he'd be happy one of his alumni had made good."

We picked up the roast beef at Wagshal's and started back out of Bethesda. The phone rang again.

Mrs. Thunderbird again. "Darling, be a dear and pick up Johanna at Holton-Arms. She seems to have missed her car pool."

Thunderbird almost threw the phone out the window.

It buzzed once more.

Thunderbird brightened up when he heard the voice.

"Hey, Eddie, where are you calling me from?"

"My car. Where are you?"

"I'm in my car. I can hear you loud and clear. What's up?"

"Nothing. I just wanted to say hello."

"Well, Hello, hello and hidee ho!"

"Roger and out."

"Now you see the true value of a car telephone," Thunderbird said.

"If I didn't have one in my front seat, I wouldn't have been able to talk to Eddie until I got home."

Around the Rim

A dreadful mess

In the world of economics... there is nothing. No hard facts, no sense, no fun, and precious few absolutes. Nothing but theories, maybes and concepts.

For that reason, economics is a rotten thing to try and teach students. I was forced to take such a course in college and I hated it. We met at 8 a.m. twice a week for three, count 'em three, hours.

It was a huge class that filled a huge hall. And it got off to a terrible start. Here's the first thing our economics professor said when he entered the hall that first morning:

"Good morning, class. I'm Dr. Wilson and this course has a deserved reputation for being boring."

Great. Here's the second thing:

"Also, class... (BANG, BANG, BANG, he knocked the ash out of his pipe. This guy used tobacco that smelled like frying bologna)... you will discover that nothing in economics is what it is believed to be. It is therefore required that you read your text carefully as assigned and then prepare to forget it all, for we will shoot down every concept, every theorem, every belief in class. Good luck."

I got a C-, which I thought was pretty OK in a class with an intro like that, taught by a guy who said his wife takes care of the checkbook because he'd make "a dreadful mess of the thing."

But... What started me off on this nightmarish trip down memory ditch was, this news: The Reagan administration's 1984 budget foresees a fiscal 1984 deficit of $189 billion, down from the 1983 deficit now estimated at $208 billion. A deficit of $194 billion is predicted for fiscal 1985.

In simple terms, that means the United States is planning to spend $189 billion more than it will have to spend. This is between October 1983 and September 1984. Between October 1984 and September 1985, the United States thinks it will spend $194 billion more than it will have.

In even simpler terms, it means that in taking care of the nation's checkbook, politicians have made "a dreadful mess of the thing."

Yes. And I see that the current administration has cut the deficit from $208 billion. That's good, even though, talking in these numbers, it's not saying much.

I DON'T WANT to get into politics. That's for professors to discuss while they sit around the lunch table, smoking bologna.

What interests me is, how did we get into this fix? Money has come to mean nothing to the federal government.

President Reagan has said repeatedly that he does not like the deficits, but it is part of his economic philosophy that defense costs be escalated and social services costs be cut and taxes be sliced.

Even in the so-called law of economics that doesn't make sense. But it's part of one of two prevalent economic theories: Keynesian economics and supply-side economics.

Keynesian theory says that the economy is not able to exist on its own with fairness to all; it needs government intervention. This is the idea that was the basis for the New Deal.

Supply-side economics says that government always messes things up, that the way to make the economy work is to stimulate business and industry and not give hand-outs to those who can't make the economy work for them. This is Reaganomics.

AT LEAST that's how I remember it all from college. There is also Marxist philosophy, but it has fallen into doubt in recent years. Many, in fact, now believe that Marx and Engels composed the "Communist Manifesto" in the midst of one of those all-night cocaine frenzies popular at the time, and were a little embarrassed that it somehow got published.

Which is proper humility, I think. Surely there is a solution to the mess, but economists only "speculate" on "concepts." I can do that, but I got a C- in the course. You need a higher grade-point average to save the nation.

ABSCAM coverup continues

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators managed to spend nine months in the ABSCAM closet without disturbing the skeletons.

The investigators couldn't help stumbling over ABSCAM abuses, which are duly noted in their report. But they ignored their own evidence when they drafted their conclusions.

I have a special interest in this investigation since I started it. I offered evidence of the government's misconduct in the ABSCAM case to the Senate. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., laid out the evidence before the Senate on March 3, 1982.

He inserted in the Senate record 33 columns that I had written exposing the ABSCAM abuses, together with backup documents. "This material is very important," he said, "to gain a full understanding of the extent of government misconduct... and the extent to which the government itself was a victim of Mel Weinberg's personal ABSCAM."

The columns described how Weinberg, a convicted swindler, flagrantly violated the law while he was on the FBI payroll. He set up politicians who accepted bribe money from undercover FBI agents. Then Weinberg slipped around behind the FBI's back and collected cash kickbacks and expensive gifts from the targets.

He manufactured phony securities and collected bonuses from the FBI for "recovering" them. Then he covered up his sleazy profiteering by perjuring himself at the ABSCAM trials.

Cranston demanded a Senate investigation, and a select committee was formed to investigate the misconduct. The committee was given subpoena powers even more extensive than the Watergate committee's. Its chairman, Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., assured me personally that he would leave no stone unturned.

His investigators turned over stones all right, not to uncover new evidence, but to obscure the evidence that Cranston had already cited. The unavoidable findings of misconduct were buried deep in the committee's report, like gemstones in a mountain of slag.

Then the committee concluded, incredibly, that its own findings of government wrongdoing did not mean the ABSCAM defendant's rights had been violated seriously. It was almost as if the report's conclusions and its findings of fact were written by people who had nothing to do with each other.

Scattered throughout the report were findings which, taken together, confirm my original charges. Yet the committee not only obscured these findings but almost aborted the investigation. Here are the specifics:

— Early in the Senate investigation, I sat down with Chairman Mathias and offered to provide his investigators with taped interviews, sworn statements, names and witnesses and other details that my associate Indy Badhwar had spent several months gathering. I never heard another word from the committee.

— Instead, the committee's investigators established a close working relationship with the Justice Department and the FBI whose misconduct they were investigating. The closeness between investigators and the investigated can only be described as cozy.

— The committee never used its subpoena powers to obtain crucial Justice Department documents which were arbitrarily withheld from the Senate. These included a report on ABSCAM abuses and their coverup written by the department's own internal watchdog, Michael Shaheen. Instead, committee investigators often accepted oral briefings about the contents of these documents.

— Key witnesses weren't even called. Robert DeTouff and William Robertson, former New Jersey prosecutors who handled the early ABSCAM investigation, would have decimated the ABSCAM methods. They would have testified, for example, that at least one defendant was indicted because of improper pressure from the Justice Department. And Joseph Sylvestri, an ABSCAM middleman, was willing to offer evidence of political targeting of defendants.

— Witness interviews were conducted with unprofessional disregard for standard investigative techniques. For example, ABSCAM prosecutor Thomas Puccio and chief supervising agent John Good were interviewed together, though they should have been meticulously cross-examined separately. Individuals critical of the FBI were interviewed in the presence of FBI official Michael Wilson.

— Defense attorneys were not given an equal opportunity to tell their side of the ABSCAM story. At least one defense lawyer, who is listed in the Senate report as having been interviewed, actually pleaded

Billy Graham

Now I feel unclean

Dear Dr. Graham: All my life I've wanted to be loved. I thought I could find love by lowering my moral standards, but now I feel unclean and of no use to anybody. Please help me deal with this problem.—A.T.T.

Dear A.T.T.: One reason I am thankful for your question is that there may well be some who are reading this who are tempted to go the same road you have traveled. They are searching for love and acceptance, and believe that they can get it by giving in to someone who is urging them to lower their moral standards. But true love does not come in this way, and (as you have found out) in the end it only brings unhappiness and shame. Perhaps your experience will help point someone in the right direction.

The most important thing you can do is find God by accepting Jesus Christ into your heart by faith. Why do I stress this? First of all, Christ can cleanse you of your sins by forgiving you. One of the greatest joys any human being can know is to go to bed each night and know beyond doubt that your sins are forgiven, and this can be your experience as well. You see, God loves you and you are very valuable to him—no matter how you may tend to look at yourself right now. He loves you in such a deep and lasting way that he wants you to spend eternity with him in Heaven, and he has made it possible by sending his Son to die on the cross for your sins. Confess your sins to God, and ask Christ to come into your heart and forgive you. He has promised—and he cannot lie—that "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1:9).

Then Christ can help you every day, as you walk with him and practice his presence through reading the Bible, fellowshiping with other Christians and praying. He can help you resist temptations, and he can help you rejoice in his love for you. He also can help you discover his will for your life so you can know you are here for a purpose—a divine purpose. Leave the past behind, and let Christ help you establish your life on a solid foundation—the foundation of Christ.

Footnotes from Howard County Library

Tax information service available

By REBECCA TAYLOR
Howard County
Reference Librarian

Tax time is once again upon us and a number of changes have occurred this year to affect your filing. Many of the rates, exclusions and forms have been altered.

As in the past, the Howard County Library maintains a complete tax information and form service. The tax information includes all federal taxes and is updated weekly. The forms are all tax forms required by the federal government and are updated monthly or more frequently if needed.

As soon as a change is proposed in the tax law, we receive a notice. When a law goes into effect, it is already in our files.

selected set of forms from the IRS. These are the most frequently used items and are copy-ready. All forms must be copied for use in filing. They have a special imprint on the originals which does not show on copies. This imprint identifies the original as a library copy. The copies of forms and instructions are 10¢ each.

The library last year had copies of the IRS publications to lend. We have the publications again this year, but the IRS bound these publications all together. Since all the publications are together, we cannot check them out, so plan to use this material in the library. We will try to get some of the publications separately to lend, but it may not be possible in time for this year's taxes.

The new EZ form for those who are unmarried with no dependents and who have only salary and less than $400 in interest income is quick and easy to fill out. Instructions for this form are included in the 1040 A booklets.

We have a limited number of 1040 and 1040 A instruction booklets. These will be given out on a first come, first serve basis. After this supply is exhausted, copies must be made of any instructions needed.

Remember, the Howard County Library has all federal tax forms and most IRS publications plus the six-volume CCH Master Tax Guides. Copies may be made for 10¢ a sheet.

Judge approves Braniff flight plan

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH — Former Braniff International workers who are interviewing this week for not-yet-created jobs moved closer to employment when a federal bankruptcy judge approved a plan to put some of the grounded airline's planes back in the air.

Braniff Chairman Howard Putnam said the laborious process of reorganizing the airline's debt and winning approval for a deal with Pacific Southwest Airlines came closer to conclusion Monday when U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers backed Braniff.

Flowers approved Braniff's plan to lease 30 planes to PSA, which hopes to hire up to 2,000 former Braniff employees, and cleared an agreement to partially repay creditors owed an estimated $1 billion.

PSA, the nation's 14th largest airline, began interviewing former Braniff pilots, stewardesses and ground personnel Monday for its planned Texas division in anticipation of the venture standing up on appeal.

"I think this means that the interviews the employees are going through have new meaning," Putnam said. "We are within days or weeks of a decision firm enough to start converting airplanes."

Nearly 8,500 employees were out of jobs when Braniff shut down May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors the next day. About 4,580 of those employees were based in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, where PSA hopes to rehire 1,650 former Braniff workers.

Flowers' ruling faces opposition from the federal government and Braniff's competitors, who said they probably would continue to challenge the deal in higher courts.

Flowers stayed his order until Wednesday so it can be scrutinized by U.S.

District Judge Eldon Mahon. Putnam said he was "hopefully assuming" Mahon would certify the Braniff-PSA plans, and that the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans would decline to stay it in the allotted 10-day period.

Justice Department attorney William White asked Flowers to stay his court order allowing the PSA agreement until it is upheld on appeal. Flowers declined that motion.

Flowers rejected arguments of airlines and unions opposed to the deal, and said his conclusions that PSA would succeed "are more than adequately supported by the objections of competitors."

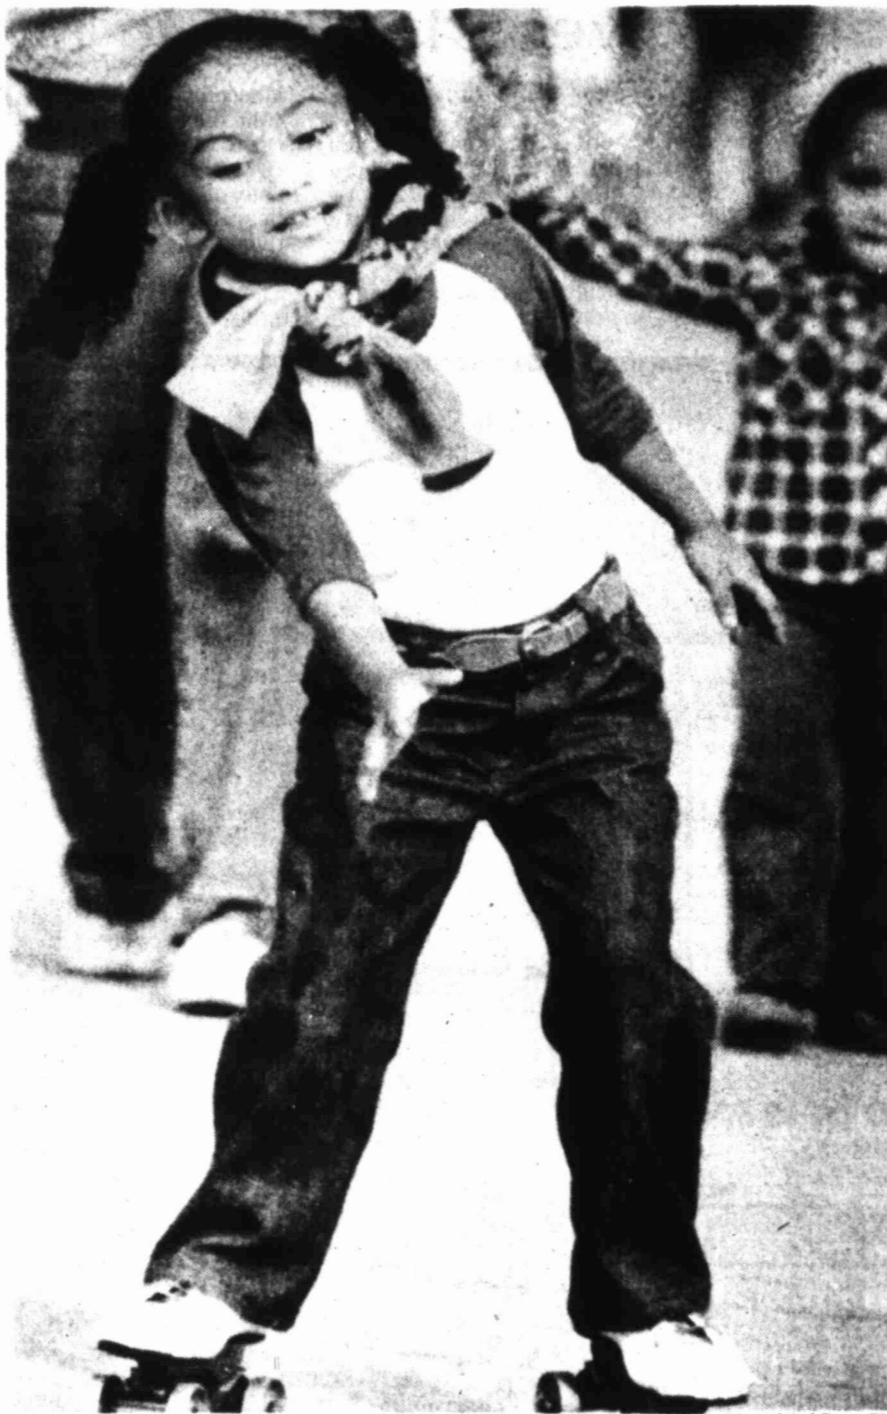

"I am convinced this is the best that can be achieved under the circumstances," Flowers said. "The PSA agreement offers Braniff its estate and its creditors a deal at least 25 percent better than liquidation and would eliminate lengthy and costly court proceedings."

Putnam said Flowers' ruling moved Braniff and PSA ahead in the labyrinth of obstacles to the deal.

"We've kept our fingers crossed all along," he said. "When we shut down, we had a commitment to get something back in the air. To get 30 planes and 2,000 employees back is really something. As the years go by, I imagine we'll look back and say that was more than we ever dreamed possible."

Flowers said creditors could expect about 9 cents on the dollar if Braniff was liquidated. Under the PSA agreement, he said, creditors could be paid 12 cents for each dollar, even if no profits were made by PSA.

Landing slots at major U.S. airports were rationed when President Reagan fired striking air traffic controllers. The FAA temporarily distributed the slots to Braniff's competitors after the then eighth-largest U.S. carrier shut down.

Ex-CIA agent sent explosives, executive claims

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — A shipping executive has testified former CIA agent Edwin Wilson asked him to arrange for the shipment to the Mediterranean of some 40,000 pounds of explosives disguised as oil field drilling mud.

Prosecution witness Reginald Slocombe testified the shipment was arranged through Houston after he and Wilson talked for weeks using a system of codes because they feared their telephones were tapped.

Wilson, 54, is on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy and smuggling 21 tons of the plastic explosive C-4 from Houston to Tripoli, Libya, in October 1977.

Slocombe testified that in 1975, while he was employed as a shipping agent in Houston, he received a phone call asking if he would come to Washington to discuss forming a new shipping company.

He said he went to Washington, met with Wilson and agreed to organize a freight forwarding company called Around the World Shipping. The firm, he said, made many shipments to Libya for Wilson.

Slocombe said Wilson later asked him to arrange the shipping of some 40,000 pounds of explosives to the Mediterranean "and points beyond." Wilson insisted Slocombe turn the job over to someone else, but said he was to supervise the project, the witness testified.

Slocombe said he gave the job to a Houston employee of Around the World, Ed Fraser, who then made contact with Jerome S. Brower, who was to furnish the explosives.

Asked why his own company didn't handle the shipment, Slocombe said, "If something went wrong, as it did, we didn't want to take our company down with it."

Slocombe said that when problems developed, he flew to Houston and Miami and then back to Houston to personally supervise leasing and loading of an airplane. When the shipment left the Houston airport, he said, he phoned Wilson in Libya and reported in code: "The bird has flown the coop."

The explosives were packaged in five-gallon drums that had to be loaded individually aboard the craft, he said.

Slocombe said he did not know the explosives were bound for Libya, only that they were being sent to the Mediterranean area.

Howard College forfeits 4 Queens wins

DELLA BROWN
...ineligible Queen

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Howard College has forfeited four Hawk Queens basketball victories in 1983 because of the participation of an ineligible player Don Stevens announced after Monday night's game against Frank Phillips College.

Della Brown, a freshman from Stanton, did not pass the required 10 hours during the fall semester. She played in Western Junior College Athletic Conference victories over Odessa and Clarendon and Odessa Classic wins over Western Oklahoma and South Plains.

The Queens thus drop to a 14-7 season record and more importantly to 3-4 in WJAC play. After Monday's victory over Frank Phillips Howard would have stood 18-3 and 5-2.

"It's all my fault," said a somber Don Stevens in his office. "I have always checked that the first thing. This time I asked for it verbally. I took the lazy way out."

The forfeits dash almost any hopes for a repeat of the WJAC championship for the Queens and force Howard to struggle to even gain the annual conference tournament.

"The bottom line is we can't possibly win the conference," Stevens said. "And now we've got to finish above two other teams to get into the tournament. We have an excellent shot of getting into regionals but if we lose two more games, it will be difficult to get in."

Stevens made the announcement to his team just prior to the Frank Phillips ballgame and his team responded with its largest victory of the season, a 109-53 decision over the winless Prairie Dolls.

The seven-year head coach made the discovery at 2 p.m. Monday and "I turned ourselves in at 2:30 p.m." to the National Junior College Athletic Association.

"I didn't check the grades. It's part of my job to do that and I didn't do it," Stevens admitted. The Queens played in the Odessa Classic Jan. 6-8 before the spring semester began at Howard. Stevens had a meeting with his players and asked for verbal assurance that all his players had passed the minimum requirement.

Brown passed only four semester hours in the fall.

"I don't want to place any blame on Della. It's my fault. I should have checked the grades," Stevens emphasized.

"The players are very disappointed. I told them right before the game that we can forget about conference. We had a slow start but they picked it up. I think they'll be up to it (making the Region V tournament)."

Brown sprained an ankle last week and did not play in the Queens' 58-57 victory over Amarillo.

Queens shellack FPC Dolls, 109-53

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

After the shocking pregame news delivered by coach Don Stevens, it's surprising the Howard College Hawk Queens played the enthusiastic ballgame they did against Frank Phillips.

The Queens learned of the forfeit of four games — two of those WJAC conference victories — prior to Monday night's tipoff but recovered from the bad news to batter the Prairie Dolls 109-53 in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The victory now puts the Queens 3-4 in conference play and to 14-7 for the season. Wins over Odessa and Clarendon in league play and South Plains and Western Oklahoma in the Odessa Classic have been reversed to losses because freshman Della Brown participated after not passing the required amount of hours in the fall semester.

But with all the disappointment weighing them down, the Queens turned in a stellar performance against winless FPC as six players reached double figures and all players scored for Stevens' crew.

"The players are very disappointed," he said after the game. "I told them right before the game that we can forget conference. We had a slow start but they picked it up. I think they'll face up to it fine."

The Queens made a stride in the right direction with impressive shooting, passing and defensive play. The final 35 seconds of the game were played with eight players on the court after two Dolls fouled out. Faced with only four girls on the court, Stevens pulled out guard Janene Berry to save FPC from further embarrassment.

Nell Haskins played only a half against the Dolls but scored 40 points, the third time the 5-10 sophomore has topped that barrier this season. It was the first time the Queens have surpassed the century mark and the 56-point spread was their largest of the year.

Despite scoring 50 points in the first half, the Queens shot just 35 per cent. A 28-for-48 second half improved that percentage to 47 for the game. Meanwhile, the Dolls could sink just 24 of 80 shots for 30 per cent.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The Dolls reached the scoreboard at the 16:51 mark of the first half and a 14-10 deficit at 12:48 was the closest FPC would come the rest of the night. With Haskins scoring 23 first half points, the Queens took a double figure lead at 9:31 on a layup by their top scorer and went ahead 35-14 on a pair of Pam Roberson free throws at 6:29.

How well was Howard playing? After a few early mental mistakes, the Queens played solid defense and did foul until the 4:21 mark of the half. FPC went almost six minutes without scoring and Howard built a 25-point lead at intermission.

The second half followed the same pattern.

A basket by Pam Pate at 15:04 finally put points on the FPC side of the scoreboard. By then, the Queens had built a 64-27 lead. Haskins sat out the first seven minutes of the half, re-entering the game with her squad on top by 35 points.

She played sporadically after that but her three-point play and 12-foot jumper brought Howard to within two of 100 with 2:57 to play. Moments later her basket from inside the lane pushed the Queens over their goal.

Although Haskins put on a show, the greatest applause was reserved for the Queens coming off the bench: Andrea Fowler scored 10 points, hitting four outside shots, and pulled down nine rebounds; Angela McGraw hit five mid-range jumpers; and Kari Robinson handed out eight assists to go along with her 11 points.

Pam Roberson and Susan Cordell, both playing limited roles, joined the double figure attack with 11 and 14 points respectively.

Ruth Maxwell scored 16 points for the Dolls while Jeanne Davis, the No. 2 scorer in the conference, was held to just 12.

MHS bops Lady Steers

The Big Spring Lady Steers suffered a 72-41 defeat last night at the hands of a Midland High team they had beaten by 10 points earlier in the season.

The loss dropped the Lady Steers out of a three-way tie for second in District 4-5A play.

"We really didn't play that bad," said coach Annette Fowler. "But a lot of our shots didn't go in."

"It was a frustrating night," she said. "We were doing some things well — it just wasn't our night. I can't explain losing to team by 30 we beat by 10 the last time we played them."

Midland showed some surprising bench strength to the Lady Steers. Fowler said, as the Midland team doubled the Lady Steer's point output in the first quarter and never looked back.

The teisty Lady Steer coach was whistled for two technicals, both in protest of the officiating.

"I didn't think the refing was too good," she said. "It wasn't that they were just calling fouls on us — they just weren't calling the fouls that were there."

The loss drops the Lady Steers to a 7-4 record in district play. They host Odessa High in Steer Gym Thursday. JV play gets underway at 6:15 p.m. and varsity tip-off is at 8.

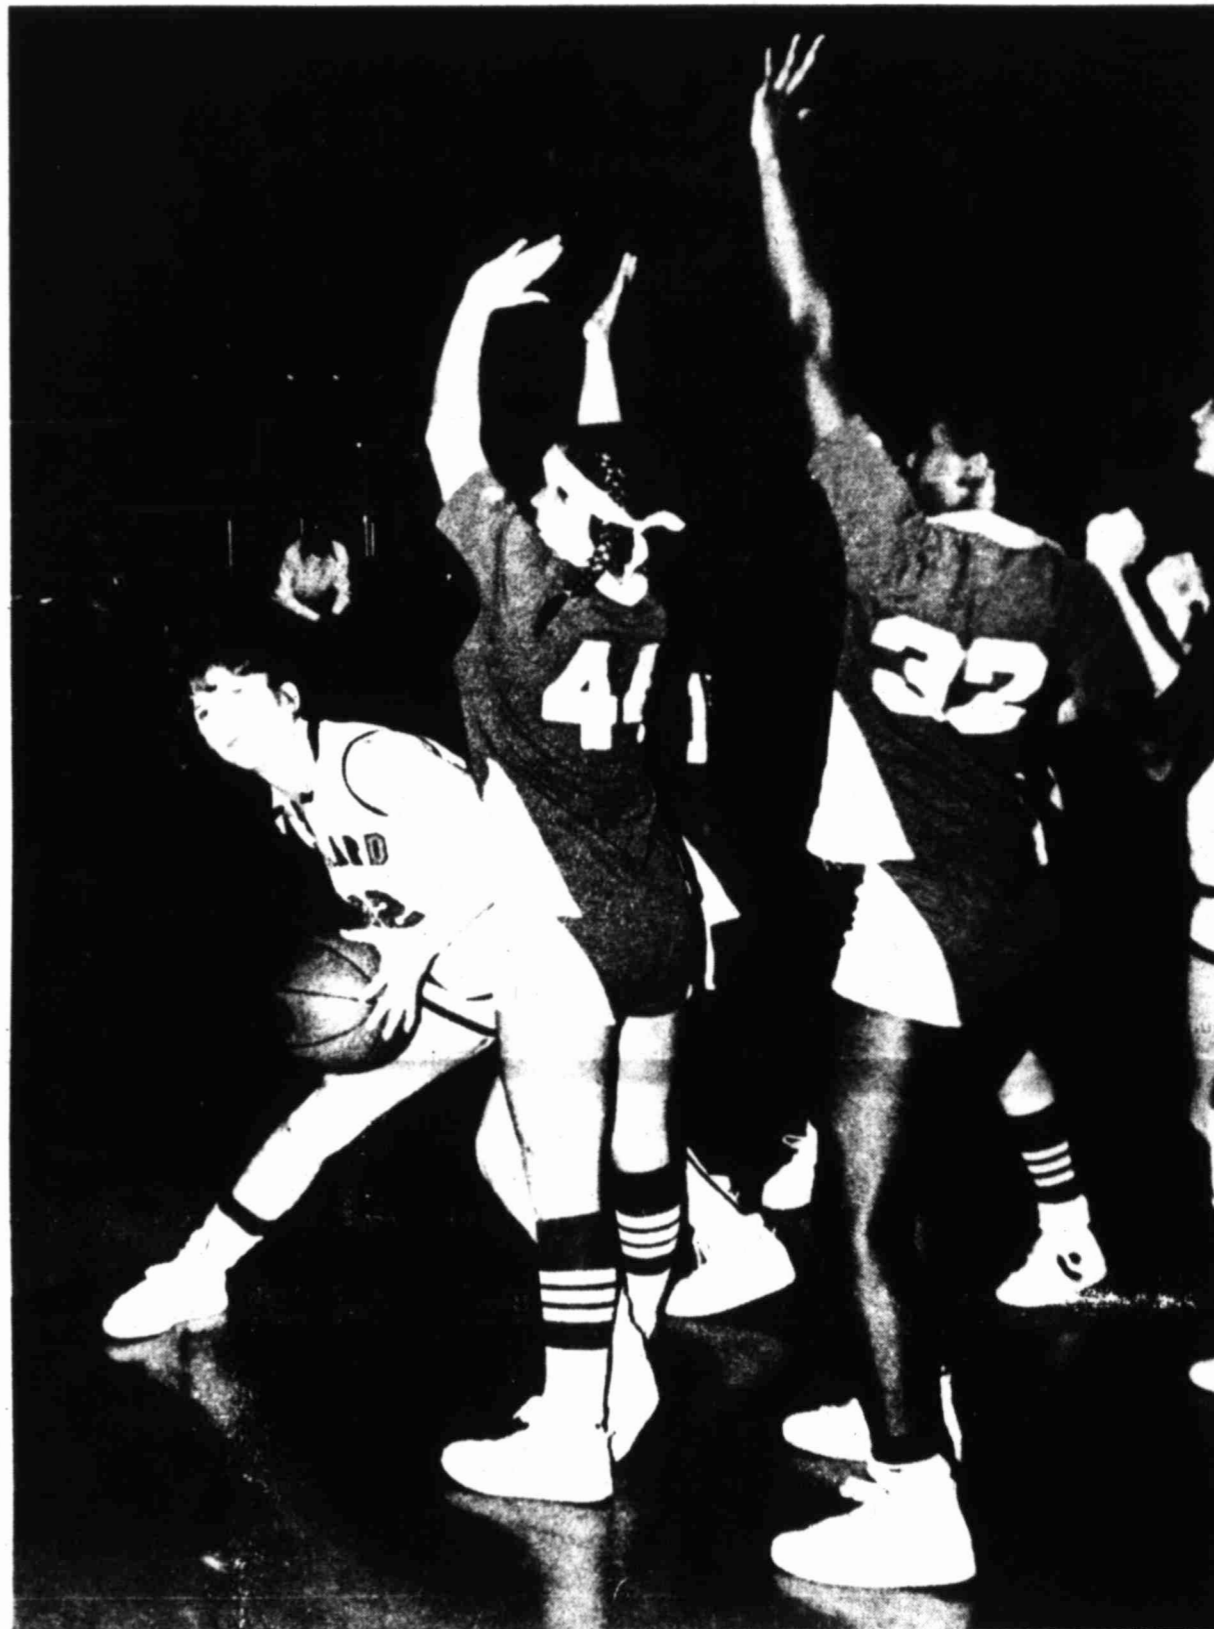

A last-minute score by Midland led to a two-point loss for the JV Lady Steers.

The score gave Midland a one-point lead, but a foul gave Midland their 37-35 victory.

Tar Heels back on top of poll

By The Associated Press
 It's been a rollercoaster year for defending national champion North Carolina which started the season ranked third and then dropped out of the college basketball rankings after losing three of its first six games.

The Tar Heels are back on top now, ranked No. 1 in the weekly Associated Press poll for the first time this season and riding a 14-game winning streak.
 North Carolina received 34 first-place votes and 1,073 points from a panel of 56 sports writers and broadcasters, becoming the fifth team to top the poll this year, succeeding Virginia, Indiana, Memphis State and UCLA.

"There are too many good teams to say someone is the best," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith after the rankings were announced Monday night. "Since we're such a young team, maybe this will be good for our confidence."

The only unbeaten Division I team, Nevada-Las Vegas, moved up to second place in the latest rankings, receiving 13 first place votes and 1,017 points, and that made Coach Jerry Tarkanian happy.

"This is great for the university, great for the community and great for everybody," he said.
 It marked the loftiest spot in the history of the school, surpassing the No. 3 ranking achieved in 1976 when the Rebels went to the NCAA finals.

Another happy coach was George Raveling, whose Washington State team broke into the Top 20 as No. 18 this week.

The Cougars squeaked past California and Stanford last weekend by a total of six points to run their record to 15-2, 7-0 in the Pac-10.

Raveling was not surprised at his team's performance: "I said before the season started that people were downplaying us when they shouldn't be."

UCLA, first for two straight weeks, lost Friday night to Alabama and dropped to seventh. It still managed two first place votes.
