Government running short of cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government opened for business today with its line of credit gone and Congress unable to approve new borrowing because of a Senate tangle over a budget-balancing amendment.

The Senate held its first Sunday meeting in nearly three years and, despite a third straight day of prodding from President Reagan, refused to choke off debate and make a decision on a plan to eliminate deficits by fiscal 1991. The amendment is a proposed addition to the bill raising the national debt above $2 trillion.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he would continue to press for the balanced-budget amendment, even if it began to disrupt government finances.

"This is probably the last chance we'll have here for a couple of years to deal with the deficit and we shouldn't let it go by," Dole said, refusing Democratic requests for short-term debt hike to allow time to review the budget-balancing plan.

Reagan, in a statement released from Camp David before Sunday's Senate session, called on the Senate to "seize this moment of opportunity,"

The president warned that quick Congressional action was needed.

The government has already borrowed up to its limit of $1.824 trillion. The bill before the Senate would raise the limit to $2.078 trillion.

Treasury officials said late Friday that federal employee pay checks would be issued as scheduled today, that that would be the last major expenditure possible under the current debt ceiling.

However, White House spokesman Albert R. Brashear said Sunday he could not say what specific problems would be caused by failure to enact the debt limit measure.

The Sunday session was the first by the Senate since December 1982.

Council to hear of CRMWD plan to hike water fee

Snyder city council members are expected to be told Monday night of plans by the Colorado River Municipal Water District to increase the cost of water sold to the city some 5 cents per 1,000 gallons.

The increase — to become effective Jan. 1, 1986 — is tied to the recent approval of the Stacy Dam project. It is part of cost increases being passed along to all user cities of CRMWD to help finance the new lake and dam construction.

Councilmen are to meet with CRMWD Manager O.H. Ivie at their regular October session. The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

In a letter addressed to the council by city officials, it is recommended the CRMWD cost increase be passed along to local water customers.

This would see the base cost for 2,000 gallons go from $4 to $4.10. In addition, for every 1,000 gallons used from that point, the cost would go from 95 cents to $1.

To a water customer using 10,000 gallons per month, the charge would rise from $11.60 to $12.10.

If the water increase is passed along by the council, the new fees would go into effect simultaneously with the CRMWD increase Jan. 1, 1986.

The council will meet also with Dr. Harold Miller, a supporter of forming a Snyder-Scurry County Emergency Medical Service organization locally.

This plan was discussed in a meeting Sept. 24 by local representatives of the hospital, city and county. In concept, such an organization would oversee local emergency medical services.

A primary goal of such a plan would be to set up "protocols" or standing orders from physicians regarding what types of advanced life support techniques paramedic-trained ambulance personnel could perform on patients.

In addition, the council will meet with Jim Leonard of Arthur J. Gallagher and Company of Dallas to discuss renewals of city insurance policies.

Kidney ailments won't stop player

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

You could call Pam Nagel a fighter.

Since her teenage years when she had both kidneys removed, she has fought to stay alive and to lead a normal life.

She has just completed a year's cosmetology training at Western Texas College and as soon as she completes her state boards she will become a licensed beautician.

And she is fighting equally hard these days to perfect her tennis skills to the point she will win at the Fort Worth tryouts for the Kidney Transplant Olympic games to be held on the Texas Christian University campus Oct. 26.

The sixth International Kidney Transplant Olympic games will be held in Insbrook, Austria next summer. And if Nagel has her wish, she will be there competing.

He coach, local WTC instructor Stan Weathered, said Nagel is tackling this current goal with the same "life and death spirit with which she has used to help conquer her medical problems."

Weathered, who is the construction technology instructor at WTC and a private tennis coach the past four years, has been coaching her for a month. Nagel, a native of Sweetwater, lived locally while enrolled in the college's cosmetology program.

"Winning in Fort Worth would be a great birthday present for me," she said. She will turn 26 Oct. 31.

In Brief

More guards

HOUSTON (AP) — If the Texas Department of Corrections had more guards, incidents such as the Darrington Unit's triple homicide over the Labor Day weekend could be avoided, an inmate who witnesssed the slayings says.

The Sept. 8 killings led to the lockdown of more than 17,000 inmates for about three weeks. During the lockdown, prisons were searched for weapons and TDC officials tried to identify members of inmate gangs.

Prison officials, who say there are enough guards, think the bloodbath stemmed from warfare between two Hispanic gangs, the Texas Syndicate and the Mexican Mafia.

While unarmed guards sought help during the incident, three prisoners were slain in the unit's dayroom near Rosharon.

About 7:38 p.m. on Sept. 8, the inmate witness, who is serving time for murder, said he "heard lots of commotion going on in the dayroom ... I looked out of the bars to my cell and I seen a lot of inmates running around in the dayroom, trying to get out of the way of the inmates that were attacking other inmates in the gang stabbing."

Second week

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A nursing consultant specializing in care of the elderly has been highly critical of the treatment Autumn Hills nursing home gave to 87-year-old Elnora Breed, who died at the facility in 1978.

Dolores Alford, who spent three days on the witness stand in the nursing home's murder trial last week, said the staff at the Texas City facility abandoned and failed Mrs. Breed.

Mrs. Alford was to be on the witness stand again today as testimony enters its second week.

Congress jumping into AIDS debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years ago, more than a dozen senators wrote Sen. Orrin Hatch asking him to look into AIDS, a disease they said was causing grave fear among the public.

Hatch, a conservative Utah Republican who heads the Committee on Labor and Human Resources, never followed up on the suggestion because, he said last week, congressional hearings would be "sensational" and, "I haven't wanted to popularize it."

With AIDS cases multiplying across America, and the disease last week claiming its first celebrity victim, actor Rock Hudson, Hatch and others have changed their minds.

There were 2,513 victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome when the senators wrote their Oct. 26, 1983, letter; today AIDS patients number more than 13,000. Over half the victims have died from the virus, which apparently is always fatal, blocking the body's ability to fight infection.

House and Senate members moved last week to dramatically increase the Reagan administration's request for AIDS research money; the disease was discussed at length on the House floor, and Sen. Edward Kennedy's staff said the Massachusetts Democrat is toying with the idea of sponsoring an educational forum on AIDS.

"It's been much too slow," Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said of Congress' entry into the AIDS arena.

"People are very concerned," said Cranston, one of the 11 Democrats and four Republicans who wrote to Hatch on Oct. 26, 1983.

"Our number one priority on AIDS has to be an emergency research and public health effort — even more effective that we have been able to mount so far," Kennedy said in a statement. Kennedy is the ranking Democrat on Hatch's committee.

The National Gay Task Force contends that discrimination against homosexuals — who comprise a majority of the AIDS patients, along with intravenous drug abusers and recipients of contaminated blood — led to some congressional dallying.

The realization that a few women, primarily intravenous drug users, have contracted AIDS, as well as have children born to women with AIDS "has driven home that this never was just a gay disease," task force spokesman Ron Najman said.

Hatch says his views on homosexuality have never interfered with his views on AIDS. "As much as I disagree with that lifestyle, they are human beings and they have certain rights, too."

Federal health officials say there is no evidence that the disease is transmitted through casual contact; only through sexual union or blood.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., said last week: "It should be noted, however, that in other parts of the world, it is members of the heterosexual community who through sexual contact have been the prime targets of this dreaded disease."

The House has approved $186 million for AIDS research in fiscal year 1986, an increase of about $40 million over the administration request.

And the Senate Appropriations Committee has upped the research money to $221 million, including money for an AIDS hotline.

Mexican officials watch hotel fall

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The demolition of an old hotel where the late Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt made some of his biggest oil deals may help Mexican officials in their work in toppling earthquake-damaged buildings in Mexico.

A Mexican official said he was impressed by the use of explosives to topple an old hotel here Sunday morning and said the technique may be used in Mexico.

The explosive demolition technique has never been used in Mexico, but a team of Mexican engineers and construction specialists appeared impressed by the split second demolition of the Blackstone Hotel.

"There were some persons who were skeptical of using explosives. It is very soon after the earthquake, and people are nervous," said Roberto Ocampo, a civil engineer in Mexico City's civil works department.

"But we are convinced the result of using explosives is very fast and clean and safe for our citizens," Ocampo, one of 14 Mexicans who traveled to Tyler to observe the detonationm, told the Dallas Morning News.

Hernia surgery needs monitoring

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A friend was recently told he had to have a hernia operation. Then he was told that his medical insurance would only cover the operation if it was done on an outpatient basis. Wouldn't it be dangerous to send him home the same day he had abdominal surgery?

DEAR READER — I find it a little bizarre that an insurance company would reimburse a subscriber for hernia surgery done only on an outpatient basis. This coverage is certainly not common.

From a medical standpoint, hernia patients could go home to a restful situation, after the effects of anesthesia have worn off, on the day of the surgery. But I've never met a patient who was the slightest bit interested in leaving the hospital that soon. Hernia repair is just too painful. Most post-op patients need a day or two of observation to make sure, at least, that their bladders are emptying properly and they can attend to themselves.

In my opinion, insisting on same-day discharge following hernia surgery is a barbaric practice that reflects badly on the insurance company and on any authority that mandates such a proposal. Perhaps your friend should scream bloody murder or look for other, more civilized insurance coverage.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that autistic children don't feel pain, or at least have a much higher pain threshold than normal kids?

DEAR READER — Each of us has a varying threshold for pain. These thresholds may be modified by many factors and may even change, from moment to moment, within us. Sometimes people tend to confuse pain threshold with lack of communication — the "stiff-uppper-lip" syndrome. We all feel pain, however, despite the fact that we may be unwilling or unable to communicate to others about it.

I think it is risky business to "assume" that another person is not feeling pain just because he or she may not complain about it or wince. Even more risky is the practice of pigeonholing an entire class of people as "non-pain-feelers." I don't treat autistic children, but I am sure that those with intact nervous systems feel pain. Some autistic children, like normal youngsters, may seem to exhibit lower pain thresholds. I think each case has to be judged individually. I would welcome comments from experts who may hold contrary views to my own.

Dear Abby

Fire Prevention Is A Task for All Seasons

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Last year in the United States, 5,240 people died in fires. The total loss in property alone came to $6.71 billion.

This is Fire Prevention Week, and although fires occur throughout the year, each season has its own special fire hazards. Here are some tips for all seasons:

Fall: If you enjoy camping, select a tent made of flame-resistant fabric. Pack a reliable flashlight with plenty of extra batteries to light the inside of your tent—never use matches or candles. When building a campfire, place it downwind of your tent. And never try to hasten the burning by using gasoline or other flammable liquid starters.

If you use your fireplace, have your chimney professionally cleaned in the fall to make sure it's in good condition for the coming season.

Winter: More fires occur during winter than in any other season. The reasons: home heating and the holiday season.

If you use a portable heater, be sure it is placed away from combustibles—draperies, furniture, paper, etc. Remember, the surface heat of some portable heaters may reach 500 degrees, so keep a careful watch on your children and warn them to keep away from heaters. Hospitals are treating an increasing number of patients with burns resulting from contact with the outside surface of some portable heaters.

For a merry Christmas, choose a Christmas tree that does not have shedding needles, and keep it standing in water while it is in the house. If you choose an artificial tree, choose one that is flame-resistant.

After holiday parties, before retiring, check your ashtrays for smoldering cigarette butts, and carefully examine all upholstered chairs and sofas to make sure that no "live" cigarette butts have fallen between the cushions. Remember, most house fires occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., when people are sleeping.

Spring: Take spring cleaning seriously—clean out your attic, basement, garage and workshop. Throw out trash, especially combustibles such as rags, newspapers, magazines, boxes and scraps of wood. Never smoke while fueling gas-powered lawn mowers or chain saws. If you must store gasoline, store it in a ventilated area in a can designed especially for that purpose. And store oily rags and paint in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Summer: When cooking out, never use flammable liquids near live coals. An explosion or flash fire could result. When you've finished cooking, soak the coals with water and make absolutely sure they're out when you leave. Smoldering coals that appear to be "dead" can reignite as much as a day later. If you use a propane gas grill, always have the lighted match in position before turning on the gas.

Some tips for all seasons:

— Never smoke in bed.

— Never leave invalids or small children alone in the house—not even for "a few minutes."

— Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.

— Have periodic fire drills in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

— Keep easy-to-use fire extinguishers in your kitchen, cottage, back bedrooms and on your boat. Invest in smoke detectors, and be sure that they are kept dust-free and in working order.

— The telephone number of your fire department should be taped to every telephone in your house. If it isn't, should a fire occur, don't waste time trying to find it; get out, and call from a neighbor's house. And once you are out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life for.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

Egg-breakers uproar over the egg king

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried that someone with a newfangled machine is poaching on their market, the nation's egg-breakers are scrambling for protection under the 1985 farm bill.

What alarmed the United Egg Producers, which represents those who break and process eggs for bulk users like restaurants, bakers and institutional kitchens, was a three-foot-high, canister-shaped device called the Egg King.

Developed by Mike Maynard of Tustin, Calif., the machine uses centrifugal force to break eggs and separate out the shell and membrane at a rate of a case a minute, relieving cooks of the laborious job of breaking eggs one at a time.

But it also means the 700 large egg users who so far have bought the machine can buy fresh eggs to use in their foods, rather than the liquid, frozen or powdered product marketed by the egg industry.

So the egg producers, based in Decatur, Ga., hatched a plan.

They persuaded their home-state member of the House Agriculture Committee, Democrat Lindsay Thomas, to add an amendment to the emerging farm bill that prohibits processing of eggs "in any manner that does not allow examination of the content of individual eggs being processed" or lets shells mingle with the liquid during processing.

The producers argue that use of the machine opens the possibility of contamination and health problems, such as salmonella poisoning. The Agriculture Committee agreed, and passed the amendment.

When Maynard heard about the action, he asked his own congressman, Robert Badham, R-Calif., to come to the rescue. Badham plans to offer an amendment this week to the farm bill that would undo the anti-Egg King language.

The Thomas amendment "is patently an attempt by processors of low-quality eggs to monopolize the marketplace," said Maynard, who came to Washington to lobby for his machine and enlisted the help of the Retail Bakers of America, the National Restaurant Association and the American Hotel & Motel Association.

"They hope to destroy a competitor through legislation, and force food-making establishments to substitute inferior products for healthful, fresh eggs at the expense of the American public," the inventor said.

The complaints about the proposed change in the law have prompted the Agriculture Department to look more closely at the egg-breaking machine, including seeking the views of health officials and scientists. The department initially supported Thomas' change.

Maynard contends the machine is clean and safe if used only to break clean, high-grade eggs. The liquefied eggs produced by the machine are restricted for use only in products that will be cooked or baked, processes he says kill any possible bacteria.

Their opponents get no respect

The youngest effective bridge partnership on the American tournament scene is that of 17-year-old Martha Benson of Milwaukee and 16-year-old Tricia Thomas of Las Cruces, New Mexico. The young ladies became friends and partners two years ago at the North American Bridge Championships in New Orleans. Tricia caught her opponent napping on this deal from the Oklahoma City Regional last July.

The two-spade opening by East was unorthodox, but some players are very loose in their third-seat requirements for such a bid. Tricia, South, tried two no-trump, her most descriptive bid. Her partner, Martha, was happy to raise to three. The opening lead certainly sacrificed a trick in the spade suit, but it had the devastating effect of removing dummy's entry for the long clubs. But that was true only if East defended correctly. Tricia put him to the test right away.

She won the spade ace and quickly called for the club king from dummy. East instinctively played the ace and declarer unblocked the queen. A later finesse against West's club 10 brought in more than enough tricks for the contract.

And now some good news for those of you who don't like being beaten at bridge by teenagers. Now that it is fall, both young experts are back in school.

Two U. S. wines pulled off shelves

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Two United States wines have been pulled off shelves at Alberta Liquor Control Board stores because they contained traces of a pesticide that exceeded Canadian standards.

Bill Rae, the board's assistant stocks director, said the specialty wines were a 1981 Gewurztraminer from Associated Vintners in Washington state and a 1981 white Riesling from Stag's Leap Wine Cellars in California.

Both wines contained the pesticide Mesurol, which the United States allows in wines at up to 80 parts per million. The Canadian limit is .1 part per million.

A corollary to Murphy's Law could be written to say that flat tires occur most often when you are late for an appointment or in the middle of a thunderstorm. To avoid such predicaments, race car driver Lyn St. James says it's wise to carry a can of an aerosol tire inflator in your car's emergency kit.

How to make the best of unsatisfactory living space

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The apartment is too small, but it's all you can afford so you take it. Or, the living room is a disaster, but the house is in a good neighborhood. Or, the rooms are characterless, but it's a five-minute walk to work.

These everyday reasons for choosing less than optimum living space are why so many individuals are looking for answers to the question of how to make the best of unsatisfactory quarters.

One creative way of dealing with the problems is by painting them away, say Dena and Stewart Stewart of New York. The two paint murals on walls. Using acrylic paints (which can be easily covered) and primitive colorful motifs, they visually expand the space in small rooms, provide a focal point in characterless rooms, and create a "view" where none is present in acutality.

The idea is far from new; it is part of the venerable tradition of trompe l'oeil (literally fool-the-eye) decorating. But the Stewarts have given the old idea a new twist. They paint their scenes using heavy perspective and starting at floor level so the walls of the room literally seem to recede. They figure that just because you don't have the space or view you want doesn't mean you can't create some imaginary space.

After using up the walls and ceilings of their three-room apartment in New York, they began doing the scenes for others. It started six years ago when Dena, a part-time office worker and aspiring writer, received a set of paints from her husband as a birthday gift.

"I was not an artistic child and never had any lessons or experience, but it looked like fun." One day, instead of using canvas or paper, she decided to try to improve the looks of an unsightly closet door. She painted a house plant on it. Both agreed it looked good and soon Dena was adding details. A floral design of a forest wilderness materialized in the couple's small foyer.

Three years went by. In that time, Stewart, an actor and man of part-time jobs between engagements, saw Dena having so much fun that he decided to paint as well.

Soon friends were admiring their blossoming apartment. "One said that something like our foyer would look good in his own apartment. 'Would you pay for it?' I asked him," recalls Stewart. A bargain was struck for $250 and the fledgling business was born.

Since then, the couple have done other trompe l'oeil scenes, which they call "atmospheric wall illusions." Slides of their work are in a file at a New York gallery specializing in trompe l'oeil and their canvases are shown by Jay Johnson's America Folk Heritage Gallery in New York. As untrained artists, they employ a primitive and colorful style.

Among scenes they have created for others have been some unusual ones geared specifically to the client's interest. For example, a New York Yankees fan asked for and got a pictorial representation of Yankee Stadium. He watches the ball game on television against a backdrop of a portion of the stadium complete with hog dog vendor, fans and bleachers. The crowning touch is a real box seat in which to luxuriate.

They are currently talking to a potential client who wants them to recreate on his bedroom wall a Spanish town where he spent some happy times. "He wants to wake up and pretend he's in the Spanish town, not New York," said Stewart.

For a real estate office that opened onto a dingy alley, Dena painted an imaginary park full of colorful flowers and trees on the exterior wall of the building. A few real park benches were added and the small "park" added some charm where once there had been only an eyesore.

Mayhan all-around champion...

Western wins SRSU rodeo

ALPINE – Western Texas College came up with strong performances from all-around champion Bliss Mayhan and roper Keith Hudson to win the Sul Ross State University Rodeo here Sunday.

The Westerners polled 255 total points to New Mexico Junior College's 245. Tarleton took third with 235 points. Ironically, host Sul Ross State University managed only 125 points.

"That's probably the first time that's happened since I've been coaching that somebody else (besides Sul Ross) has won the men's rodeo (at Alpine). Things worked well for us, for Bliss and Keith anyway," said WTC Coach Bob Doty.

Mayhan rolled up 155 of WTC's 255 points and took all-around honors. Hudson had the other 100 points for Western.

Mayhan got 90 points in the bareback where he won the long-go with a 73, took fourth in the short round with a 69 and won the average with a 142. He added 65 team points in the saddle bronc. The Kim, Colo., cowboy was third in the average with 135 points after a second-place 69 in the short round. He also tied for fourth in the long-go.

Hudson got his points in the calf roping. His 9.3 won the long-go and his 12.1 in the short round gave him a 21.4 which was good enough for second in the average.

"Bliss, he really did an excellent job yesterday. He had two rank horses and made two good rides on them. And Keith, he was 12.4 in the back end of the arena. He made a super run for as far as he had to chase the calf," said Doty.

"Even though just two team members placed we had some others who gave a real good effort," said the coach. "Adam Brewster nearly rode a real rank bareback ride. It was one of the best rides I've seen."

Western's women dominated the goat tying to take third place in their division with 105 points. Tarleton won the division with 155 points. Sul Ross was second with 135.

"I was especially pleased with the girl's goat tying. We took three of the first five places in the long round. It was a definite improvement," said Doty.

Mistri Davis took second in the average with a total 19.1. She had placed third in both the long-go (9.6) and the short-go (9.5). Shelly Eldridge won second in the long-go but did not place in the short-go. Niki Moist tied for fourth in the long-go.

Wendy Lunsford placed second in the average in the barrel race competition but was unable to contribute points since she was not a designated member of the three-woman WTC team. The Snyder native clocked times of 17.58 and 17.48 for a 35.06 overall.

Next action for Western Texas will be Thursday at the Vernon Regional College Rodeo in Vernon.

WTC places fifth...

Midland wins 2nd WJCAC golf event

MIDLAND – Host Midland College fired a 302 despite cold winds of up to 40 miles per hour here Friday to win the second Western Junior College Athletic Conference Golf Tournament of the season.

The tournament was held at the par 71 GreenTree Country Club.

Western Texas College struggled in its second outing. The Westerners shot a 311 for fifth place. The Westerners are currently tied for fifth place in the conference standings with 3 total points.

New Mexico Military Institute won second here with a 303. New Mexico Junior College shot a 306 for third place while Odessa was fourth with a 308. South Plains took sixth with a 315.

Midland took over the WJCAC standings lead with the 6-point win. The Chaparrals now have 11 conference points. NMMI and Odessa are tied for second with 9 points while NMJC has 7 for fourth place in the standings.

For Western, Adolph Garza shot a 75 and was the team leader. Garza now has a 149 total for two tournaments and is in the top 10 in the conference. Bo Kay shot a 77 and Matt Smith a 79 for Western. Other scores were an 80 from Pat Fitzpatrick, an 82 from Mike Harrison and an 83 from Barry Fletcher.

"The weather played a big factor in the tournament," said WTC Coach Dave Foster. "The wind blew 30 to 40 miles an hour and the temperature was 63 to 67 degrees all day long.

"Overall, the team did not play too badly. It is hard to keep the mistakes down in windy weather conditions. As a young team, we're still making mistakes."

The Westerners will travel to Las Cruces, N.M. for the Coca Cola New Mexico State University Golf Tournament on Oct. 10-12.

Lady Tigers rip Monahans; lead district volleyball race

Snyder kept chipping away until defending state champion Monahans finally cracked completely here Saturday afternoon, giving the hometown Tigers sole possession of the District 2-4A volleyball lead.

The Lady Tigers won the hard-fought first game, 15-10, then came from behind with 11 straight points to win the second, 15-5.

"It was a great win for us, a real nice feeling," said the coach. "To beat the defending state champions is really great. They have that kind of awe about them when they walk in the gym. It's a poise they have that you can feel."

Snyder trailed 4-5 in the second game when Shondra Robinson took the serve. She never relinquished it.

Snyder got the tying point on an ace serve from Robinson, then went in front on a kill by Donna Anderson. Backed by a solid defense, good passing from Karlene Thompson and some fine sets from Robinson, the 5-9 senior accounted for three more points. She blocked a Monahans spike-attempt for point number 7 and got 8 and 9 on another pair of kills.

"Once we get a good block like that it emotionally sets us up," said Nelms.

The result was complete domination of the highly-touted Loboettes, who broke under the pressure. Most of the rest of Snyder's points came not from the home team's good play, but Monahans miscues. Point number 15, for instance, came on a net foul committed by the visitors.

There was no denying the passes of Thompson and the front line play of Anderson, particularly in the second game.

"KT (Karlene Thompson) comes to mind. her defense and her passes were unbelievable," said a joyful Coach Vicki Nelms, afterward. "Donna Anderson comes to mind, too, and we got great serving from Pam Casias and Shondra Robinson."

Snyder had also trailed in the first game, but Casias got the tying point on a low serve the visitors couldn't return. Minutes later, Leslie Ward got the same type of serve off, and Snyder led 7-6. The score reached 8-6 on a block by Anderson and 9-6 when Monahans failed to control a serve delivered by Robinson. Kima McLarty helped out with a kill-shot for the Tigers' 10th point.

Later, Monahans pulled within two points, 12-10, but Snyder took the game from there, with McLarty doing the serving honors.

Anderson was 14 of 15 hitting with 4 kills for the afternoon. Thompson was 10 of 10 with 3 kills. Both had two block-assists and two solos. Robinson was 16 of 17 serving while Casias was 8 of 9.

The victory left Snyder with a 19-4 season record as they prepare to bus to Sweetwater on Tuesday. The contest with Sweetwater will mark the final match of the first round of play.

Snyder junior varisty also won over Monahans on Saturday. The Cats lost the first game, 9-15, but came back to win 15-5 and 18-16.

Cards win homecoming, 23-0

HERMLEIGH – Hermleigh's Cardinals scored twice in the first quarter, then held on to blank Grady 23-0 in a junior varsity six-man game here Saturday afternoon.

The win highlighted homecoming festivities for the Cardinals, who did not field a high school program last season.

"It was a good win for our boys. We had been walked on pretty bad," said Coach Roy Grant, whose young team was shutout in two of three previous games this season. "I know Grady doesn't like to lose anymore than we do but I'm sure they welcomed the chance to get their younger players some experience. That's what it is all about for us. We're just trying to get experience," he added.

Hermleigh has forfeited all of its varsity district games and is playing a junior varsity schedule.

Hermleigh scored with 6:49 left in the first period when Rodney Foster hit Ben Smith on a 13-yard touchdown strike. Joe Mireles' kick-after provided an 8-0 advantage.

The Hermleigh drive was set up when Jeff Roemisch recovered a Grady fumble at the 37-yard line. Daniel Ramey provided much of the workload on a 17-yard run later from the 27 to the Grady 10.

Hermleigh's second touchdown began at the Cardinal 25 and ended on a 21-yard pass from Foster to Ramey with 3:59 left in the quarter. A block attempt on the conversion left Mireles without a chance to kick the two-point try, but he alertly picked up the ball and passed complete to Smith. The toss netted the Cardinals a single point under six-man rules, and they led 15-0.

The remainder of the contest - save for one more Hermleigh touchdown in the fourth quarter - was a defensive battle. Hermleigh threatened after Bobby Brown recovered a fumble at the Grady 20 and Foster found Arthur Sanchez on a strike to the 6. Grady held, however, and got the ball back on downs.

The Cardinals' final score came on a 27-yard pass and run play. Foster found Jeff Roemisch open on a 19-yard strike and he in turn lateralled to Ramey who took in the touchdown carry.

Hermleigh had 93 yards rushing and 125 passing. Foster was 13 of 18 for 118 yards. Smith led the Cards in rushing for 63 yards.

Grady got 91 yards rushing and 85 passing. The Wildcats fumbled five times and lost four of them.

Kotrla was introduced as the Football Hero during halftime activities. Patricia Jones was chosen as the Hermleigh Sweetheart.

The Cardinals are idle this Friday.

AIDS creating Houston havoc

HOUSTON (AP) — The case of a male prostitute with AIDS who was ordered to refrain from having sex is fanning the already intense fear surrounding the disease, officials say.

Fabian Bridges' case prompted state health officials to consider adding AIDS to the list of diseases requiring quarantine to give them leverage over someone whose actions pose an "immediate threat" to public health.

Bridges, 30, a transient with AIDS, said last week he would disavow an order issued him by City Health Director Dr. James Haughton to refrain from sexual encounters.

He was hospitalized briefly but later released, and his actions prompted the Houston police vice department to assign four undercover officers to follow him.

"What's the future for this person?" asked Haughton. "Is he going to go city to city with a television crew following him? Society has no mechanism for dealing with this. We have to realize this may not be the last of Fabian Bridges ... And Fabian Bridges may not be my only problem."

Haughton said he's even thinking about AIDS screening for all men and women picked up for prostitution. He said he plans to discuss the issue with the city attorney.

"There is this continuous drumbeat from all sorts of sources that AIDS is entering the general population," he said.

The fear of AIDS has permeated the political arena as well. Dr. Steven Hotze, who actively opposed Houston's gay job rights referendum in January, has launched a group called Doctors for Health Cards asking that food handlers be screened for AIDS.

A doctor with Hotze's group recently told City Council members that AIDS could be spread by shaking hands, but one local AIDS researcher called such statements "absolute balderdash."

AIDS, a deadly disease which has afflicted more than 13,000 Americans, depletes the body's immune system, leaving a person vulnerable to a variety of infections. The disease is most common among homosexual men, intravenous drug users and hemophiliacs.

Studies show AIDS is usually transmitted through blood and semen — primarily from sexual contact or contaminated hypodermic needles — and not from casual contact.

Smoke 'curtain' causes pileup

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Smoke from a brush fire hung "like a curtain" over California's major north-south freeway, setting off a 33-vehicle chain-reaction smashup that killed 10 people and injured more than 40, the highway patrol said.

"We hit the car in front of us and then all hell broke loose," one of the victims, Kenneth Shockley said after the pileup Sunday.

Shockley, a passenger in a van that ended up in the middle of the pack of mangled cars and trucks, said his vehicle was hit six or seven times and bounced around "like a ping pong ball. We were scared to death."

The smoke socked in the freeway's northbound lanes "like a curtain being drawn," said Shockley, who received a cut on his head, a black eye and a bruised shoulder.

The pileup involved 33 vehicles — including two large tractor-trailer rigs — shortly before 4 p.m. on northbound Interstate 5 north of downtown Sacramento, said California Highway Patrol spokesman Dick Fridley.

The highway, closed until early today, was still littered with damaged vehicles several hours after the crash. One small sedan was smashed beyond recognition, and crumpled automobiles were strewn across all the northbound lanes and onto the shoulder.

One of of the two large truck cabs was on its side and two cars were blackened by fires.

"One minute the freeway was clear. Then suddenly the wind shifted" and the crash occurred, a local television station quoted a motorist as saying.

Other influences may bring about changes

BOTHA'S HILL, South Africa (AP) — Author Alan Paton says outside influences excluding economic sanctions can help speed change in South Africa.

"A great deal can be done without sanctions," he said in an interview. "To destroy an economy to bring about some noble end is absolute rubbish."

Instead, the 82-year-old writer said, Americans and Europeans should encourage South African leaders who want to regain Western values they once rejected. Paton, still writing and battling apartheid at 82, added: "Nationalists are beginning to realize what a chunk of Western heritage they threw away, such as the rule of law. ... Americans, Europeans should come here: the more academics, pressmen, lawyers, clerics, the better."

Also, Paton said, more South Africans now realize the intransigence they face. He said one hears, for example, less self-justification based on the American treatment of Indians.

"I think the Americans broke the Red Indians' heart. We have never been able to break the heart of the blacks. We haven't come close to it."

He added, "I don't know whether the blacks here realize the future cannot be bad for them. But the joy they get out of life absolutely beats me. It is some kind of tremendous gift."

Paton spent months in the United States writing on race relations for Collier's Magazine in the 1950s, shortly after his novel "Cry, the Beloved Country" brought him international acclaim.

K. Hance announces for governor's race

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Democratic congressman Kent Hance today announced what's been obvious during months on the campaign trail — he wants the GOP nomination for governor.

He offered himself as the candidate who can salvage the state's "climate of opportunity."

"There are problems in this climate that, if not faced by strong leadership, could change our state into a burdened Texas with overwhelming taxation, overspending, crime and stagnation," Hance said in a Senate chamber news conference.

The Hance candidacy touches off a three-way fight for the gubernatorial nomnation and control of the Republican Party. Tre former Lubbock congressman is backed by U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, another former Democrat.

Confiscated vehicles bids to be accepted

Bids will be opened by county commissioners Oct. 21 at 11 a.m. for two automobiles confiscated by the sheriff's department.

The date was set Monday morning by commissioners meeting in regular session.

These vehicles were seized under Texas law which allows such seizures for property used in connection with drug trafficing. They are currently parked behind the county jail facility and may be viewed there.

In addition, bids will be opened the same day for miscellaneous oil field equipment.

In other action Monday, commissioners granted a request for $350 from the Texas Association of Counties. The money will be part of funds from other counties used as legal fees to fight an appeal in the case Bush vs. Viterna.

If such an appeal was successful, counties could be required to pour additional funds into upgrading jail facilities.

The court approved also a pipeline easement between the county and Cockrell Production Company, Inc. on County Road 3141.

Attending Monday's meeting were County Judge Preston Wilson and Commissioners Duaine Davis, Pct. 1; C.D. Gray Jr., Pct. 3; and Ted Billingsley, Pct. 4. Hassie Sneed, Pct. 2, was absent.

Two little words are causing furor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A legal hassle over the use of two little words may wind up in the U.S. Supreme Court, where a decision could either free a man or send him to prison for life for aggravated rape.

Cipriano Almanza Jr. was convicted here two years ago of raping a mentally retarded woman. But the conviction was thrown out because a judge used the word "or" instead of "and" in his instructions to the jury.

Since then, dozens of lawyers, legal experts and district attorneys have taken sides on the issue. At least 16 of the state's top judges have studied the case.

Almanza has popped in and out of jail as appeals courts in Fort Worth and Austin have affirmed his conviction, overturned it and then affirmed it again.

It all started when State District Court Judge Tom Cave told a jury they could find Almanza guilty of rape "or" aggravated rape.

If jurors found Almanza guilty of rape, he faced a maximum of 20 years in prison. But a conviction for aggravated rape meant a life sentence.

Almanza and another man who was never caught were accused of raping the woman in her home in 1979.

Lee Ann Dauphinot, Almanza's court-appointed lawyer, claims it was the other man and not Almanza who held a gun to the woman's head. Therefore, she says, Almanza could not be guilty of aggravated rape since that charge requires the use of a deadly weapon or threat of bodily injury.

Dauphinot said the use of the word "or" was a fundamental error that told the jury they should find Almanza guilty of the more serious charge no matter what the facts were.

Prosecutors call her line of reasoning absurd.

"I think the courts were just wating for the right case to come along on this issue and the Almanza case was it," said David Crump, a professor at the South Texas College of Law in Houston.

The case has drawn so much attention, Crump says, because it is a place for prosecutors to draw the battle lines against what they call "silly technicalities" that they claim have preoccupied Texas appeals courts since the mid-1970s.

The Texas District Attorneys Association asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to consider the consequences of their ruling when the case was before the court.

Chris Marshall, a Tarrant County prosecutor, says he has spent nearly three months preparing the case and arguing it before appeals courts. His file on the case already weighs several pounds and has generated nearly 2,000 pages.

"This is one of those cases that you look and say, why has it taken so long to decide and what is really common sense," Marshall said. "It is a sad commentary."

Defense lawyer Dauphinot has a different outlook on the case.

She says she has worked on the case almost to the point of exhaustion. At one point she asked the appeals court for more time so she could consult a doctor about severe eyestrain from writing the legal briefs and studying law on the issue.

"Look at the difference between guilty and not guilty. Those are just a few words. But they make a big difference," Dauphinot said.

The first time the case was heard by the Second District Court of Appeals here, the judges agreed with prosecutors that there was overwhelming evidence against Almanza and the judge's mistake made little difference.

The next time around, in January of 1983, they changed their mind and overturned the conviction, saying the error was "fundamental."

But this March, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overruled the lower court action and let the conviction stand.

Nagel seeking tennis crown

Besides Weathered, Nagel is being coached also by David Jones, recreational director of TSTI in Sweetwater. Since her kidney problems caused her to suffer 90 percent hearing loss in both ears, Weathered said Nagel needs two coaches to work with her.

To compensate for her hearing loss, Nagel wears a hearing aid and reads lips.

Nagel has been practicing about 1½ hours daily but she said she plans to increase this. Besides being coached by Weathered and Jones, Nagel also works out on her own.

The Region 4 tryouts in Fort Worth are for people with kidney transplants who live either in Texas, Arkansas, New Mexico, Louisiana or Oklahoma.

And the training she is undergoing in preparation for these is only the latest "discipline" she has exhibited through a long line of medical problems, including many painful operations and years on dialysis machines.

Until 1½ years ago, Dialysis had been her lifeline since she was 15.

Nagel's medical problems began early in life. She said she had suffered from kidney infections since she was a small child. At age 14, doctors in Abilene found she had an extremely dangerous infection and that her kidneys were badly damaged.

She said she was put on medication for a year but that it didn't help. Doctors then performed a technique called reflux surgery which consists of putting a flap into her ureter tubes so that fluids would not back up into her kidneys.

A year after this surgery, she developed high blood pressure. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davenport of Sweetwater, were told that dialysis would be the next step. The then deteriorating condition of her kidneys was causing the high blood pressure problem to get worse.

Doctors then placed fistulas in Nagel's arm to prepare her for dialysis, weeks of tests and special diets. The family then commuted to Abilene for dialysis.

Nagel's hopes were raised in April of 1979 when she received her first kidney transplant. But it lasted a disappointing three months.

Nagel then had to go back on hemodialysis in June of that year and in August, a catheter was inserted to enable her to receive peritoneal dialysis treatment.

A second planned transplant with her father as donor had to be postponed indefinitely when Nagel became anemic. Doctors in Houston also discovered that she had developed antibodies against a transplant.

For a time she did well on peritoneal dialysis — a process that could be completed at home.

Then in the spring of 1982, Nagel had to have her parathyroid glands removed because they had enlarged due to overactivity to compensate for the loss of her kidneys.

Finally, in March of 1984, Nagel underwent a successful kidney transplant. She has lived since then without dialysis.

Nagel continues to fight for the things that are important to her whether it's for her own health, finishing a year of cosmetology training or getting ready for the Olympic tryouts.

When asked what has kept her going throughout her medical ordeal, she said, "I wanted to stay alive bad enough. I did want to give up at times, but I would never let myself."

chamber office. Entry fee is $1 per person and the deadline is one hour prior to the contest.

Set for 1 p.m. Saturday, the contest will feature four age divisions and two divisions in team dancing. First, second and third place awards will be given in each division. Contestants must supply their own music and record or tape player. They must also provide their own props if needed.

Council agenda for tonight told

Other "new business" items facing the council Monday include:

—The city's nominations for the five-member Scurry County Appraisal District board of directors.

—A first reading of a new ordinance regarding the operation of wrecker services "on-call" to city police when accidents occur here.

—Allowing bids for an upgrade of the city's computer system.

—Allowing bids for a new fire truck and four new police cars — items budgeted for 1985-86.

—Adoption of a resolution in support of the Texas Water Plan to be decided by statewide vote at the Nov. 5 election.

In addition to approval of minutes for past meetings, one "old business" item faces the council, a second reading of a zone change requested by Jonisue Stiff. It would change from R-2 (multi-family residential) to C-1 (commercial) a strip of property just north of Cogdell Memorial Hospital.
