Police 'mismanaged, overstaffed,' study says

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Police Chief Wayne Gideon declined to comment this morning on a consultant's study which described the Midland Police Department as poorly organized, mismanaged and overstaffed.

"I'm still studying this thing," said Gideon of the $75,000 study delivered to the City Council Tuesday by a Washington, D.C., consultant firm.

The city could pare 28 officers and four civilians from the department roster — at an annual savings of $1.2 million — and still provide better police service "by putting people on the street when they're needed and having them not on the street when they're not needed," said Bill G. Evans, a vice president for Cresap, McCormick and Paget.

The consultants recently completed a five-month study of the department. Among their findings: The department's statistics on the percentage of crimes it clears have been deliberately inflated.

"The department manipulates statistics so the public will view its performance in the best possible light," the report said.

The department's reported clearance rate for serious crimes was 31.2 percent in 1984, while the national average was 20.6 percent. According to the consultants, the difference is due to Midland police using a much broader criteria than the standard FBI definition of a cleared case.

"Whatever figure they've been giving out is too high," said Evans.

According to Councilman David Godfrey, the council ordered the study because it was concerned about possible problems in the Police Department but lacked a method "of putting a finger on it."

Boundary compromise OK'd

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees on Tuesday accepted a compromise plan and approved what is to be the first change in its high school boundaries since 1975.

Trustees, perpetually committed to maintaining two equal high schools, voted unanimously to redraw the boundaries with amendments to a staff plan that originally had been unveiled and approved last month. The boundary changes will go into effect at the beginning of the 1988-89 school year.

Trustee K. Michael Conaway called the amended plan a "compromise" in that it tries to further balance socio-economic differences between the two schools and also includes a grandfather clause that would allow students in the same family, who would be in high school at the same time, to attend the same high school.

MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi Jr. said the amended plan balances more closely socio-economic differences between the two high schools by allowing Crestgate residents to remain in the Lee High School attendance area. Rural students residing in the area bounded by the city limits north of U.S. Highway 80 also would remain in the Midland High School attendance area. The net reduction of students involved in the amended plan would be 325.

Artukovic sentenced to death

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — The 86-year-old former interior minister of the Nazi puppet state of Croatia was found guilty today of ordering the massacres of hundreds of thousands of people during World War II, and sentenced to death by firing squad.

Andrija Artukovic, who was extradited by the United States on Feb.12, was found guilty by a five judge panel of ordering the killings of 231,000 Jews, Gypsies, Serbs and political prisoners.

The judicial panel, headed by Milko Gajski, said Artukovic was guilty of "crimes against humanity" as well as crimes against international law and war crimes.

The state-run Tanjug news agency said, "Thus the month-long trial of the Himmler of the Balkans, responsible for the death of several hundred thousand people and for the suffering of millions of Yugoslavs, finally ends."

Artukovic, who fought extradition for 36 years while he lived in Seal Beal, Calif., previously had been declared senile and legally blind in the United States.

The five-judge panel earlier had rejected a defense motion that the court allow an outside medical opinion on Artukovic's ability to stand trial.

It ruled today that during the trial that began April 14, prosecutors had proven all four specific charges in the 32-page indictment that accused Artukovic of ordering the massacres.

Before the trial started, the government repeatedly accused Artukovic of being responsible for at least 700,000 deaths, but the indictment used the 231,000 figure.

The death sentence in Yugoslavia is carried out by firing squad, but there was no immediate indication when it would be carried out.

Under Yugoslav law, the former Croatian security chief has the right to appeal the verdict to the Supreme Court of Croatia. If that is rejected he is entitled to appealing to the Yugoslav Supreme Court in Belgrade.

Last Wednesday, the prosecutor demanded the death sentence for Artukovic, who oversaw police and concentration camps in wartime Croatia. A day later his defense attorneys demanded that charges against Artukovic be dropped because they had not been proven in court.

Nebraska sets up historic gubernatorial campaign

By ED HOWARD

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraskans guaranteed themselves their first female governor while "creating a little history" by setting the stage for the first woman-against-woman gubernatorial campaign ever in the United States.

Republican state Treasurer Kay Orr and former Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis, a Democrat and the first female mayor of a U.S. city of more than 100,000, were picked Tuesday from the state's largest gubernatorial primary slate ever.

"We're creating a little history," said Mrs. Orr, 47. "It's an exciting opportunity for us to make people aware of what Nebraska's all about."

"That has never happend in the history of our country, and I think that says something for Nebraskans," said Mrs. Boosalis, 66.

Orr

Boosalis

In other elections Tuesday, Kenneth Gibson — the first black mayor of a major Northeastern city — lost a bid for an unprecedented fifth term in Newark, N.J., to Councilman Sharpe James, also black and a former Gibson supporter. In Atlantic City, N.J., Mayor James L. Usry failed to win his first full, four-year term, and will face Assemblywoman Dolores Cooper in a June 10 runoff.

In West Virginia, U.S. Rep. Harley O. Staggers swept the Democratic primary, defeating Charles Wood, a coal miner and Lyndon LaRouche supporter who doesn't live in the district, and former state Rep. D.P. "Sheriff" Given.

There were seven Democrats and eight Republicans on the Nebraska gubernatorial primary ballot Tuesday, all vying to succeed Gov. Bob Kerrey, a Democrat whose style and long-time relationship with actress Debra Winger kept Nebraskans captivated for four years. Kerrey didn't seek re-nomination.

Both Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Boosalis grabbed early leads Tuesday and never trailed on the way to victories that were easier and more substantial than newspaper polls or party regulars had predicted.

On the Democratic side, with 1,837 of 1,910 precincts reporting, Mrs. Boosalis had 61,921 votes or 44 percent, compared with attorney David Domina of Norfolk with 37,053 or 26 percent, and former state Sen. Chris Beutler with 30,513 or 22 percent.

Trailing were state Sen. Marge Higgins of Omaha, Robert Prokop of Wilber and Mina Dillingham of Omaha.

Mrs. Orr had 73,008 votes or 40 percent of the Republican votes. Next were Omaha attorney Kermit Brashear with 57,797 votes or 31 percent and Nancy Hoch of Nebraska City with 40,659 or 22 percent.

Trailing were Paul Rosberg of Wausa, the Rev. Everett Sileven of Louisville, Monte Taylor of Omaha, and Roger Yant and Chuck Loos of Lincoln.

The two winners said issues, rather than having two women involved, would decide the outcome of the November general election.

The race "is going to get a lot of attention at first blush ... but I don't think that will be a sustained thing," said Mrs. Orr, who was the first woman elected to statewide office in Nebraska, in 1982. She had been appointed to fill a vacancy in 1981.

"I am proud for Nebraska and for my party, much more so than personally," she said.

"This election is about one thing, Nebraska's future, and which one of us candidates has the vision for that future," said Mrs. Boosalis, who served two four-year terms as Lincoln's mayor beginning in 1975. She also was chairwoman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"I will continue in the next five months to present my vision for our state on economic development, on agriculture, education and the role of state government," she said. "I believe that by Nov. 4 the people of Nebraska will understand and agree with my vision and together we will make a difference for our state."

Gorbachev address to be broadcast

MOSCOW (AP) — The official radio said today that radiation in the evacuated city of Chernobyl, 11 miles from the site of a nuclear power disaster, was no longer dangerous, and a government official said levels were once again normal at most observation points.

Meanwhile, state television's Tuesday evening news said a speech by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev would be broadcast tonight, but did not indicate what the subject would be. Gorbachev so far has made no public statements on the accident.

A report today on Radio Moscow said the "consequences of the accident at the Chernobyl nuclear power station are being stamped out at a growing rate."

It quoted decontamination experts as saying that radiation in Chernobyl "is no longer hazardous to people" but did not say if or when residents would be allowed to return.

No population figure is available for Chernobyl, but the city is thought to have about 30,000 residents.

The Soviets have said 92,000 people were evacuated from an 18-mile radius of the plant following the explosion and fire April 26 in the No. 4 reactor of the nuclear power plant 80 miles north of the Ukrainian capital Kiev. The official casualty toll is six dead and about 200 injured.

An invisible cloud of radioactivity from the stricken plant spewed over the western Soviet Union and Europe, and has worked its way gradually around the world.

Deputy Premier Boris Y. Shcherbina, head of the government investigation into the accident, held a briefing Tuesday for diplomats from 15 nations.

Diplomats said Shcherbina told them readings Tuesday at five of seven monitoring stations in the western Soviet Union showed radiation had dropped to normal background levels, but that levels at two stations southwest of the plant remained slightly above normal.

They also reported conflicting statements about emissions from the plant. "First they said emissions stopped, then they said emissions practically stopped," said one diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Shcherbina also said a French-made polymer was being used to cover ground contaminated by radiation, the diplomats said.

The government evening newspaper Izvestia on Tuesday said workers were covering up to 200,000 square yards each day, but did not indicate the size of the area to be sealed.

Tuesday night's television news carried brief footage of cleanup crews at work in Chernobyl and an interview with Boris Gudaspov, a radiation control expert directing decontamination work.

Fallout traces detected in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Air monitors in Texas have detected trace quantities of radiation from the Chernobyl nuclear reactor accident in the Soviet Union, the Texas Department of Health said Wednesday.

Joseph F. Thiel, director of the division of environmental programs, said the radiation levels were so low that they are of no public health significance.

Thiel said trace quantities of radiation were detected from air samples in El Paso on May 10 and in Austin on May 12.

He said the latest analyses of milk samples showed no detectable radiation activity.

American expelled by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union ordered a U.S. Embassy defense attache to leave the country because he was caught spying, the official news agency Tass said today.

Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner said the diplomat, Erik Sites, left the Soviet Union on Saturday. Verner declined comment on the espionage allegations made by Tass.

The Tass report was attributed to the KGB secret police.

It was the second time this year that an American diplomat was ordered out of the Soviet Union.

U.S. should insist on human rights, Shcharansky says

By TIM AHERN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should insist on Soviet acceptance of human rights as part of any U.S.-Soviet arms control agreement, Anatoly Shcharansky, freed Soviet Jewish dissident, told Congress today.

"I don't think we can have any serious agreements without some basis for control," Shcharansky said, adding that "the only real base for control are human rights agreements."

Shcharansky, speaking in heavily accented English, explained that when he referred to "base for control," he was talking about the ability of the United States to monitor Soviet compliance with any agreement.

Shcharansky also said public pressure from the United States is needed in addition to the "quiet diplomacy" advocated by President Reagan as the best way to improve the Soviet human rights record.

In his second day in Washington, Shcharansky repeated his message that the United States should keep up its public criticism of the Soviets for refusing to let 400,000 Jews emigrate.

Shcharansky testified before a congressional panel, including members from both the House and Senate, which was set up in 1976 to monitor Soviet compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accords, the agreement in which the Soviets promised to respect human rights.

He told the panel "it is a mistake" not to push the Soviets to live up to standards required by the Helsinki agreement.

He also repeated his praise for Reagan, whom Shcharansky spoke to Tuesday in a private, 30-minute meeting at the White House.

Throughout appearances Tuesday at meetings, news conferences and a ceremony in the Capitol rotunda, the 38-year-old mathematician stressed that the fate of Jews who wish to leave the Soviet Union is, to a great extent, in the hands of Reagan and the United States.

"I am released, but 400,000 other Soviet Jews are prisoners," he told an audience of legislators and invited guests during the Capitol ceremony.

He told reporters after his 30-minute meeting with Reagan, "I am sure my release would be never possible if there wasn't such a strong, open campaign and if President Reagan personally didn't take such a strong open position on my behalf. Of course, I am very grateful to him for this and I expressed this to him."

"Quiet diplomacy, in my point of view, can help only if it is supported by strong public pressure, strong public diplomacy.... In the Soviet Union there will be no illusions that the question of human rights, the question of Soviet Jewry, the question of free emigration, are very closely connected with their basic economic and political interests," Shcharansky said.

He told a news conference later that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev "understands better than his predecessors" the role of world public opinion and appears to be more sensitive to what the world thinks about Soviet actions.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said that during the meeting, Reagan "reiterated his commitment to do everything possible to support the people in the Soviet Union who are striving for their human rights."

According to the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, about 400,000 of the 2.5 million Jews there want to emigrate. Last year, only 1,140 were permitted to do so, and in 1984 only 896 Jews were allowed to leave.

During the day, Shcharansky urged that Congress not repeal the "Jackson Amendment." The law, which was sponsored by the late Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., prohibits the United States from granting most favored nation trade status to countries which fail to respect human rights. That status permits lowered tariffs and trade barriers.

Shcharansky said some Jewish leaders say it should be stricken from U.S. laws so as not to tie the emigration issue to U.S.-Soviet trade.

About half the 534 members of Congress appeared to have attended the Capitol ceremony, held on a makeshift podium built in one corner of the soaring rotunda.

Shcharansky, speaking in heavily accented English, was interrupted several times by long and fervent applause as he thanked U.S. leaders for backing his release.

He was introduced by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

Dole praised Shcharansky as "an authentic hero," but added that "in celebrating his release, we also shine the light on thousands of others who remain imprisoned by a godless state."

Afghan boys to be treated in Houston

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK

HOUSTON (AP) — Nine Afghan boys who left their war-torn homeland are now in Houston where they will receive medical treatment for injuries blamed on Soviet bombs.

The youths, ranging from 7 to 18, each had injuries to arms or legs. Some were rolled off the airplane in wheelchairs, while others limped through the aiport terminal after their arrival Tuesday.

"He's very happy to be in the United States," an interpreter said of the youngest child, known only as Bakhtiar. The 7-year-old displayed a deformed knee allegedly injured when a wall fell on him during a bombing attack.

"His parents are in Pakistan, his brothers are fighting," said interpreter Mohammed Zia Jahed. "He is one of the most fortunate ones."

Since late 1979, Soviet troops and the Soviet-backed government have been fighting against Afghan rebels. Afghan people trying to escape the fighting and Soviet-developed bombs have been fleeing to Pakistan.

"These things (bombs) are attached to toys, to food, even to leaves," said Joanne Herring Davis, the Pakistani consul based in Houston. "They want children to suffer. This is planned torture."

The nine boys, who were selected by the International Red Cross from hospitals or refugee centers in Pakistan, were greeted at the Houston Intercontinental Airport by two dozen Afghan supporters carrying signs critical of Soviet military attacks in Afghanistan.

"Certainly there is no more worthy cause we can dedicate ourselves to," said Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, who helped organize the aid effort. "Hundreds, thousands, are in need. You go through hospitals there and see thousands who have had hands blown off by toy bombs."

Originally, a dozen youths were slated to be treated in Houston-area hospitals. But the conditions of three deteriorated and they could not make the trip, Wilson said.

Wilson said he hopes to eventually have 50 children participating in the treatment program and expand the effort to hospitals in Dallas.

It's uncertain how long the youths will remain in the U.S. since each has a different medical problem, officials said. Eleven Houston hospitals have volunteered treatment.

The boys will recuperate at the Victoria-based Devereux Center, about 125 miles southwest of Houston. Then they will be returned to their families.

The children were flown from Pakistan to Washington, then to Houston.

"For these children, the plane they are arriving on is only the second airplane they have ever seen that hasn't been trying to kill them," Wilson said. "We're grateful for their fight. They're all our heroes."

Five Connecticut hospitals will provide free treatment to the seven children who are part of a group of 24 brought to the United States by Heal the Children, an international non-profit group based in Seattle, said Angeles Glick, director of the group's Northeast chapter.

The children, who arrived at Bradley Airport in Windsor Locks, have injuries ranging from bullet wounds to bad burns.

An official at the State Department in Washington, D.C., said the McCollum Amendment, passed by Congress this year, allots $10 million for the transportation of human goods and patients affected by war.

Bakhtiar, an 8-year-old Afghan boy whose arm and leg were mangled when a wall fell on him during Soviet attacks on his homeland, appears a little bewildered by the interviews taking place over his head as he arrives at Houston Intercontinental Airport. Bakhtiar is one of nine Afghan youths to receive medical care in Houston.

BOUNDARY

In addition, Baressi said families affected by the boundary change, who would have children in different high schools at the same time, would have a one-time option to choose which high school their children will attend.

Trustee Joe Reed, who voted against the original staff proposal, said the modifications "take care of the socio-economic concerns that I had.

"I don't find anything that would cause me not to support the amended plan," he told the more than 100 persons in the audience.

In studying the boundary issue, trustees have faced opposition from concerned citizens who asked that they postpone their decision until current economic conditions stabilize.

Tom Johnson, spokesman for the Midland Parent Action Committee, appealed to trustees saying "Nobody is going to point a finger at you and say you did not act wisely in postponing a boundary change in the face of chaos."

Calling themselves the silent majority, supporters of the boundary changes also addressed the issue, urging trustees to act and let the healing process begin.

"If the boundary change is not made soon, we'll have a situation like the one in Odessa where the score board at Ratliffe Stadium reads Panthers and visitors," she said.

Conaway conceded that a decision to change boundaries is a painful one, but he said "The issue needs to be decided now. The healing process will not begin until the decision is made.

Trustee Ron Britton, who reviewed the question of board's scheduling in the matter, said the board did not promise anybody that it would refuse to fulfill its commitment until next fall.

"We have taken much longer to deliberate on this issue than any other issue in my six years on the board," said Britton. More open meeting time and outside study time has been devoted to it. There have been more citizens making more public statements to the board, more citizens seeking out individual trustees in person to express their views, more citizens expressing opinions by letter, more citizens presenting alternative plans, more all round study, discussion, debate and thougtful consideration than on any other five issues combined, during my six years on the board.

"In my opinion," said Britton, "it would be altogether wrong for us to postpone doing what we all know needs to be done — indeed what fair play demands must be done — because some citizens have the mistaken belief that the board somehow implied a promise not to act until next fall. We did not so imply, and we simply should not be governed in conducting the school district's important business because of some citizens' mistaken impressions, however sincerely held."

Britton also addressed complaints that the board should not make a decision during periods of economic and population instability, because, they say, MISD's projections are bound to be wrong.

The answer to that complaint is two-fold, he said. "Midland has never in the last 40 years had a protracted period of economic and population stability, and there is no reason to think that we will have any such luxury at any time in the future. Second, both our short-term and long-range projections have been consistently accurate throughout the years despite the instability and the fits and spurts of gains and losses of population."

The important thing to remember, said Britton, is "If we don't make decisions for the future based on projections made by sound methods that have proven accurate in the past, then we cannot plan at all for the future, but must merely resort to guesses."

STUDY

"I think (the consultants) did a good job," he said this morning after the council emerged from an executive session during which they discussed the report.

"It's now in the council's hands," said Mayor Carroll Thomas.

The council will meet again in executive session at 4 p.m. Thursday to discuss the study further, said Thomas.

The mayor said he was surprised by some of the things in the study, but would not comment when asked if Gideon's job was on the line.

"If we accept this, we will start running this department in a different way," he said.

Among the consultants' observations and recommendations:

— A lack of leadership and a perceived bias toward the detective division have led to morale problems among uniformed patrol officers, who should be given more responsibility to make preliminary investigations at the scene of the crime.

— The detective division is overstaffed in general and especially at the supervisory level, and detectives spend almost as much time investigating relatively minor crimes as they do looking into major crimes.

— The detectives do not work effectively with the District Attorney's Office. The study recommends that detectives be assigned to month-long tours of duty at the DA's Office to learn what prosecutors need to bring a case from an arrest to a conviction.

— The department should be reorganized, with three assistant chiefs and a lieutenant in charge of planning reporting directly to the chief. (At present, only a single assistant chief reports directly to Gideon.)

The three assistant chiefs should be in charge of Patrol Operations (including traffic services, which would no longer be a separate division); Support Services (including the former Administration Division) and Criminal Investigation (the detectives and the identification officers).

— The airport police should be transferred from the police to the Aviation Department.

— Shifts should be re-organized so that more officers would be on duty during busier times.

EXPEL

In March, the Soviets expelled Michael Sellers, an embassy second secretary.

Asked if Sites held a military rank, Verner said, "I don't have that." He said Sites was a member of the staff of the defense attache's office but declined to say how long he had been in Moscow.

"A member of the military attache's office in the American Embassy in Moscow, Erik Sites, was detained while conducting a conspiratorial meeting with a Soviet citizen enlisted by American intelligence," Tass said in a Russian-language dispatch.

"A major espionage action of the U.S. special services against the Soviet Union was frustrated," it said.

Anniversary of bombing remembered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quiet vigils, marches and speeches marked the first anniversary of the confrontation between MOVE members and police that ended in 11 deaths and the destruction of a neighborhood.

With tears streaking their cheeks, two sisters of MOVE's founder walked silently with some 40 people Tuesday to the west Philadephia neighborhood devastated by fire on May 13, 1985.

Louise James, Laverne Sims and their supporters lit candles to mark the time that police dropped a bomb on the radical group's fortified rowhouse, setting off the fire. Sixty-one homes were destroyed and 276 residents displaced, and 11 people died in the MOVE house, including founder John Africa and five children.

"Long live MOVE, long live revolution, long live John Africa," the women chanted, fists clenched, and the crowd joined the family in repeating the slogans. Some shouted, "Murderers, murderers. No more."

Organizers of the event asked former MOVE neighbors to join the march but few of them did so.

At nearby St. Carthage Catholic Church, 11 white ones for the dead, 61 red for the destroyed homes and two dozen gold for the rest of the community.

In another ceremony, about 50 people marched to a noon rally across the street from City Hall.

"Don't misconstrue our numbers with our dedication," said community activist Novella Williams. "We will not stop until people have been brought to justice."

Speaker after speaker attacked the city's handling of its effort to evict MOVE members.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode, who took responsibility for the bomb and said he was sorry that people died, did not attend the observances. In a statement Monday, he called the anniversary "a time of healing and renewal."

Goode said his first priority is completing restoration of the neighborhood, a goal originally fixed for last Christmas but now expected to be realized by May 31. Only 22 row houses have been completed.

District Attorney Ron Castille has ordered a grand jury investigation into whether there was criminal wrongdoing in the MOVE confrontation.

Meanwhile, officials said the remains of three children who died in the fire have yet to be claimed by members of the group.

The bodies of Tamasa "Boo" Africa, 9, Phil Phillips Africa, about 12, and Delicia Orr Africa, about 12, are being held at the city Medical Examiner's Office, according to Dr. Robert Catherman, acting medical examiner.

Reagan nominee faces House panel hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's nominee to head the Social Security Administration went before a House subcommittee today to answer allegations she mismanaged a discretionary grant program by passing out millions in federal funds virtually at whim.

Dorcas Hardy, now an assistant secretary at the Health and Human Services Department, was testifying before a House Government Operations subcommittee that has been investigating her handling of an $11.7 million grant program for child and family welfare research and development projects.

The chairman of the House subcommittee, Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., says many of the decisions to approve grants "are based on the whims of the assistant secretary, who overrules the recommendations of experts in the field."

Weiss has written Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, contending that "serious irregularities" in Ms. Hardy's handling of the grant program and her refusal to cooperate in the inquiry "are relevant to the Senate's confirmation process."

The Finance Committee is scheduled to hold hearings Thursday on her nomination to become Social Security commissioner. Finance Committee staff members will be watching the House inquiry closely.

But some committee aides, speaking on condition of anonymity, said today's hearing did not appear to pose a serious threat to Ms. Hardy's confirmation chances unless more damaging information was forthcoming.

Ms. Hardy now is the assistant HHS secretary for human development services, which oversees programs such as child abuse prevention. A significant portion of the program involves paying for research projects and pilot programs in the area.

Weinberger attempts to bulldoze Libyan contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has made "a political judgment" that the Pentagon will not award a contract for combat bulldozers to the Fiat-Allis Co. because it is partially owned by Libya, Pentagon sources say.

Defense Department attorneys are still investigating how to deny the contract to Fiat-Allis since it was the low bidder on the program. But Weinberger has personally intervened in the case and is now "taking a real hard line," the sources added.

"The more he's looked at it, the more concerned he's become," one ranking official said of Weinberger. "There is still no determination as yet that we have the legal authority (to block the contract), but a political judgment has been made by the secretary that there will be no contract until this issue of Libyan ownership is cleared up."

The sources spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, declined to discuss Weinberger's role in the matter Tuesday but confirmed the Pentagon had sidetracked the $7.9 million deal.

The Pentagon, Sims said, "is concerned that no profits (from defense contracts) are paid to Libya."

"This contract has not been awarded," he continued. "The Department of Defense does not intend to award that contract until our concerns regarding the Libyan ownership of Fiat-Allis have been satisfactorily resolved."

The disclosure that the Pentagon was backing away from a deal with Fiat-Allis follows earlier testimony to the contrary on Capitol Hill. It also came on the same day that the House voted without dissent to approve a resolution asking Weinberger to delay award of the contract.

The resolution said U.S. anti-terrorist efforts against Libya "would be undercut by the inadvertent transfer of United States tax dollars to the government of Libya."

The sources said Weinberger had personally intervened in the case following testimony on Capitol Hill by Fred C. Ikle, the undersecretary of defense for policy.

Ikle informed a Senate Armed Services subcommittee on May 1 the Defense Department did not appear to have the authority to reject a valid low bid from Fiat-Allis, even though it is a subsidiary of Italy's Fiat SpA, which is 15 percent owned by Libya.

"The (Pentagon) attorneys are busily searching for ways to avoid awarding that contract," one official said Tuesday. "And I can assure you they will find a way. It's being held up now because they found a technical reason to do so."

According to Ikle, the Pentagon has awarded contracts totaling $23.6 million to Fiat or its subsidiaries since 1984. The government-owned Libyan Foreign Investment Co. has held a 15 percent interest in Fiat SpA since 1977 and has two seats on the company's 15-member board of directors.

Chernobyl photos in doubt

NEW YORK (AP) — Two U.S. television networks say they are investigating the authenticity of photographs they broadcast that purportedly showed the burning Chernobyl nuclear plant in the Soviet Union. An Italian network that used the same film said today it was a fake.

Spokesman from ABC and NBC said they obtained the film from a Yugoslav tourist who said he took them during a recent visit to Kiev, which is 80 miles away from the nuclear plant.

The pictures were broadcast on Monday, though both networks said they purchased the photograph a day after the nuclear disaster.

The possibility that the pictures were a fraud arose when the Italian television network RAI, which also showed them, began getting calls from viewers in Trieste. The viewers said the picture looked much like one taken during a recent cement factory fire.

"On the basis of a report from our correspondent in Trieste who looked into this matter, we are certain that this (film) was a fake," Filippo D'Onofrio, a RAI official, told The Associated Press today.

In Moscow, Radio Moscow today reported that the networks had broadcast "falsified film."

NATION IN BRIEF

War criminal list found

NEW YORK (AP) — Lists naming more than 36,000 war criminal suspects and witnesses, whose files have been kept secret in U.N. archives since 1948, have been found by accident on an open shelf of a military records center in Maryland, according to a report published today.

The New York Times said the names, with brief comments, were contained in 80 mimeographed lists.

Former U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appears on the 79th list. He was described as wanted for murder and taking hostages, the Times said.

According to the Times, archivist Richard L. Boylan, was looking for something else when he came across the master lists on a shelf in the basement of the Washington National Records Center in Suitland, Md., last week.

The master lists contain names ranging from Hitler and Mussolini through lesser military, political and business figures down to small fry known only by one name or nickname.

Brazilian mosquito in U.S.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A hardy Asian mosquito that may carry a disease that has struck more than 300,000 people in Brazil could establish itself all over the United States after its recent arrival, a scientist says.

Dr. Chet Moore, an entomologist with the Centers for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., said the insect, previously unknown in this country, has been found in Memphis, Houston, Jackson, Miss., and near New Orleans.

Laboratory tests on the species show it can carry several types of encephalitis that can affect humans, Moore said. And officials primarily worry that the mosquito can carry dengue virus, a potentially fatal fever related to Yellow Fever, he said.

"None of them as far as we are aware have the virus," he said. Moore.

He said the last known outbreak of dengue in the United States was in 1980 in Texas. No one died, but a 1981 epidemic in Cuba killed 156 people.

Bus, truck crash kills one

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A pickup truck slammed head-on into a Greyhound bus Tuesday, killing one person in the truck and injuring at least 20 aboard the bus, police said.

The pickup was headed west on Interstate 4 about 7 p.m. when it veered across the median and into eastbound traffic, said Orlando Police Sgt. Sam Ings.

The bus careened off the highway and down an embankment onto an on-ramp, Ings said.

Officials at the Greyhound terminal in Orlando refused to give any information about the accident, including the destination or origin of the bus.

Ings said there were more than 20 people hurt on the bus. The injured were taken to several hospitals, but their conditions were not immediately available.

The name of the dead person was not released, police said.

Sisters cities announced

CANNES, France – When the mayor of Beverly Hills pushed through a resolution making that city and Cannes sister cities, the only dissenting vote came from a councilman reportedly angry with France for not allowing U.S. warplanes to fly over it to get to Libya.

At the 39th Cannes Film Festival, relations between French and Americans couldn't be more convivial. But so far, the local and international press still feel compelled to question whether Yankee and Gallic feelings are hurt, either over the raid on Libya or the no-shows at Cannes.

Firefighters keep watch

HAMPSTEAD, N.C. (AP) — A handful of firefighters kept watch early today to make sure containment lines held a 73,000-acre wildfire while other emergency workers got a good night's sleep for the first time since the blaze began over a week ago.

The stubborn fire has been racing through eastern North Carolina since May 5, but firefighters now think they have the upper hand. Twelve departments in the state sent reinforcements to battle the blaze.

Forecasters called for a 50 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms today. But firefighters feared that strong ocean winds could ignite a fire over the lines on the western and northwestern flanks, said Tom Hegele, a spokesman with the state Division of Forest Resources.

Carter should leave Amy out of politics

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — There's no reason to expect Jimmy Carter to like Ronald Reagan but he might want to consider leaving Amy out of it.

Carter tried once before, using Amy to make a point against Reagan and it was a political faux pas.

Now he's done it again.

This time the former president was criticizing the U.S. bombing of Libya. Carter was one of the few politicians who chose to second-guess the raid.

His former vice president, Walter F. Mondale, supported Reagan's decision to bomb Libya. Mondale, who ran against Reagan in 1984, said he believed the U.S. action might prod European democracies into greater cooperation to combat terrorism.

When Mondale was asked about Carter's position on Libya, the former vice president said simply, "I disagree with him."

Carter argues that the Reagan administration's preoccupation with Col. Moammar Khadafy had transformed the Libyan leader from an outcast to a hero. On that point, he'd find plenty of support among politicians and many experts on the Middle East and terrorism.

The former president describes Khadafy as "an abominable person," and said, "There's no doubt in my mind that Khadafy has plotted and carried out terrorist acts against innocent people, the same as murder."

But Khadafy's 15-month-old daughter was said to have been killed in the bombing raid and that set Carter thinking about his own daughter.

"If 17 years ago someone had killed Amy it would have been the worst blow that could be delivered to me," said the former president. "I would have sworn as long as my life existed, I would retaliate."

Was he suggesting that retaliation by Khadafy would be justified? It sounded that way.

Amy was a week past her 13th birthday as the 1980 presidential campaign entered its final days and her father, the incumbent, was battling Reagan's challenge. The two men debated on Oct. 28 and a key issue was arms control.

In response to a question about the SALT II treaty which Carter supported and Reagan opposed, the Democratic president said, "I had a conversation with my daughter Amy the other day before I came here to ask her what the most important issue was. She said nuclear weaponry...and the control of nuclear arms."

No doubt Carter thought the reference to his daughter would strike a sympathetic chord with parents across the nation. Instead, many in the audience appeared more to wonder if Carter really had been discussing his priorities with a daughter just entering her teens.

Like most former presidents, Carter has kept a low profile since he left office.

But he occasionally critieizes the man who defeated him.

Carter told The New York Times two months ago that when Reagan talked about his predesessor's military spending he was saying things "he knows are not true and which he personally promised me not to repeat."

The former president went on to say that some of Reagan's statements were "almost more than a human being can bear." Reagan phoned the Times to credit Carter with initiating the boost in defense spending.

Arms control remains an issue that brings strong comments from Carter.

Weeks before Reagan's meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Carter said the president's proposal for a space-based missile defense system was "ill-conceived, a total waste of money, and counterproductive for our nation and for nuclear arms control."

Carter's criticism shouldn't be surprising. Presidents who are forced from office aren't inclined to like the people responsible.

Former President Ford was cool toward both Reagan and Carter after the 1976 campaign. Reagan had challenged Ford for the GOP nomination and then Carter beat him in the general election.

During the 1980 campaign, Reagan and Ford had a peacemaking meeting at Palm Springs, Calif., at which the former president endorsed Reagan while conceding he had once held serious reservations about him.

The Ford-Carter relationship warmed markedly after they joined former President Nixon to head the U.S. delegation to the funeral of slain Egyptian president Anwar Sadat.

Despite their cool personal relations, Carter, while president, did consult with Ford and got the Republican's help on such issues as ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

Donald M. Rothberg is the chief political writer of The Associated Press.

Indonesian bombings reported

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Police said bombs exploded today at a national monument and outside an office building, but that three primitive projectiles fired at the Japanese and American embassies failed to blow up.

No casualties were reported in any of the incidents.

Police said a Japanese suspect was arrested, and that they also were seeking three Libyans.

Intelligence sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the attacks appeared to be the work of a small extremist group with possible support from Libyans. They said some Indonesians were being sought in the bombings.

The sources also said there were unconfirmed reports that the Libyans were three who were denied permission to visit the island of Bali a week before President Reagan's arrival April 29 for talks with President Suharto and the Association of Southeast Asian Nation foreign ministers.

The first bomb exploded at a national monument about half a mile from the American Embassy, police said. Two unexploded homemade devices also were found at the site and were defused.

The second explosion destroyed one car and damaged five others at the Wisma Metropolitan building about three miles south of the Japanese Embassy, near the Australian and Soviet embassies.

A police spokesman said bomb traces were found in the trunk of the destroyed vehicle. The building belonged to Chinese businessman Liem Sioe Liong, a close friend of Suharto, police said.

Gerald Huchel, a spokesman for the American Embassy, said one homemade projectile about 2 feet long landed in the embassy's courtyard at 10:55 a.m. (11:55 p.m. EDT Tuesday).

Huchel said a "large noise" was heard before the projectile fell, and part of the missile had broken off. He described the projectile as a taped, or fused tin can.

Police said they had found a crude launching device about 200 yards north of the embassy.

Black property rights bill introduced in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The white government introduced a bill Tuesday that would give black citizens the right to own property in their segregated townships rather than leasing it.

President P.W. Botha had promised land-ownership legislation more than a year ago.

Two private business groups praised the legislation.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Everything is starting to come together for you! A long-sought goal moves within reach. Love becomes more vivid. Exciting, new business opportunities will present themselves in autumn. Set aside money for investment purposes. A well-written contract will protect your interests for years to come. You enjoy belonging to various social organizations and derive great pleasure from helping people. Look for new outlets for your administrative skills. A small business or charity would profit greatly from your leadership.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: the Kansas City Royals' George Brett, country singer Eddy Arnold, Katie Rich of "Another World," actor James Mason, photographer Richard Avedon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Financial worries will soon be a thing of the past if you seize the unusual opportunity that comes your way. A practical, long-range approach works best.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A ticklish domestic situation requires delicate handling. Lay your cards on the table when talking with mate or partner. A professional counselor is quick to offer assistance. A teen-ager receives a scholarship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An attempt to catch up on work at home will prove highly successful. A message could get garbled; check it out before making plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tie up the loose ends of a recent project. The domestic urge is strong. You are eager to fix up your home. Making plans is more important than springing into immediate action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Socializing with friends who share your interests is very important to you now. Get better organized at both work and home. An attractive stranger pays you an unusual compliment. You feel romantic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A practical joke could backfire. Avoid acting on impulse. Group gatherings have more appeal than one-on-one meetings. Caution is needed in your dealings with your co-workers. Steer clear of arguments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Consternation at work could lead you to seek new employment. Friends and agencies can help you with job leads. Do not reveal confidential information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Show that your word is your bond but listen attentively to constructive criticism. You need to be more patient with your co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pursue your personal plans but avoid all forms of gambling. Problems at work could force you to compromise. Making concessions will not cause you to lose face with higher-ups. Follow your instincts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Watch out for that green-eyed monster, jealousy, at place of employment. Someone may be after your job. Make financial security a top priority. Neither a borrower nor lender be. Romance sizzles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Little gestures mean more than you know, especially to that special person in your life. Sign contracts and agreements only after you have read the fine print. The evening is great for socializing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Continue to promote your ideas but make certain you have done your homework. An older person's advice will come in handy in a tricky situation.

MINE THOSE TRICKS

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ A J 8 7 ♡ Q J ◇ A 9 8 5 3 ♣ K 4
WEST ♠ K 9 4 2 ♡ 6 4 ◇ 10 2 ♣ 10 8 7 3 2		EAST ♠ Q 10 5 3 ♡ 5 3 2 ◇ Q J 7 ♣ A Q J
	SOUTH ♠ 6 ♡ A K 10 9 8 7 ◇ K 6 4 ♣ 9 6 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣

Here's an opportunity to demonstrate your technique. Cover the East-West hands and see how you would play a contract of four hearts after West leads a low club to his partner's jack and East returns a trump to dummy's queen.

The auction was uneventful. Your jump to three hearts was invitational, not forcing. Partner's two heart honors were more than enough to raise to game—on this type of sequence, even two low cards in your suit would have been sufficient.

The defenders have not been cooperative. As a result of West's lead and East's return, you are in danger of losing three club tricks and a diamond. If you continue by leading another club in the hope that whoever wins won't have a trump to return, you are the type who is disappointed when your two lottery tickets don't take the two top prizes.

Since the defenders have taken away your club ruff, you must find another way to take care of the third club. The obvious way to accomplish that is to dump it on a good diamond. So you must set up the diamond suit while you still have a trump on the table to control the third round of clubs.

After winning the trump return, duck a diamond immediately! Now if the suit follows the percentages and breaks 3-2, you contract is safe.

About the best the defenders can do is to win the diamond, cash their club winner and revert to trumps. You win and draw the rest of the trumps, and when both defenders follow to the king of diamonds, you claim. The ace of diamonds draws the last card in that suit, and you can take a club discard on one of the board's long diamonds.

UT student chosen for competition

AUSTIN (AP) — One of the youngest musicians selected for the 1986 International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow is a junior cello student at the University of Texas at Austin.

She is Hai Zheng, 19, from the People's Republic of China. Her parents are both physicians in Shanghai.

At UT-Austin, Ms. Zheng is a student of Professor Paul Olefsky, who equates the Moscow event with "qualifying for the Olympics."

The cello Ms. Zheng will take to Moscow was loaned to her by Olefsky, who got it from his grandfather, a native of Chernobyl, Russia. The cello was made in Italy in the early 1700s.

"Now, this cello continues its international tradition," Olefsky says. "It started out in Italy, went to Russia, came to the U.S. and now is going back to Russia to be played by a Chinese national who studies in the U.S."

The Moscow competition starts June 16.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Judy Carne, known for her role in the 1960s television series "Laugh-In," has lost an appeal against a three-month jail sentence for drug possession.

Miss Carne, 46, former wife of actor Burt Reynolds, dabbed tears from her eyes when a judge announced the decision Tuesday in the Court of Appeal.

She has been in jail since April 23, when she started serving the sentence handed down in Northampton Crown Court for two drug charges. The court suspended an additional six-month sentence.

Miss Carne pleaded guilty to possessing cocaine and amphetamines at her home in the village of Church Brampton last October and to trying to bring cocaine and marijuana through London's Heathrow Airport in December.

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (AP) — Deacons of the United Congregational Church made it clear they frown on witches, but say they won't stand in the way of Jack Nicholson making a movie about them.

In a letter to congregants, the deacons said Warner Bros. would be allowed to use the white-steepled church as a backdrop for the filming of John Updike's racy novel "The Witches of Eastwick," starring Nicholson.

But they said the movie company first must get approval from the Town Council, which has scheduled a May 22 vote on whether to allow the filming in the picturesque town of 3,200 this summer.

Petitions for and against the filming are circulating. Supporters say Little Compton would benefit from the influx of attention and tourists, but opponents say the quiet town could be overrun by the movie-makers.

Hamill

HONOLULU (AP) — Ice skating queen Dorothy Hamill says that after 10 years on the road she's tired of touring.

"I don't want to say I'm retiring, because I might change my mind," said the 29-year-old former Olympic gold medalist. "I'm just tired of touring, of living out of suitcases."

Hamill, who is engaged to Los Angeles fitness expert Ken Forsythe, is giving her final tour performances here in "Festival on Ice." The show opened Tuesday night and continues through May 18.

Hamill said she hopes to conduct skating clinics, and wants to teach blind people how to skate.

"I'll always skate, because it's therapy for me. I can get away from everything, from home problems, professional hassles," she said.

Rivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Joan Rivers, who had canceled an appearance on NBC-TV "Late Night With David Letterman," burst onto the set during taping and drew loud applause from the audience.

Miss Rivers on Monday canceled an appearance on the show because it is co-produced by Johnny Carson's production company, and Miss Rivers is planning her own late-night show to compete with Carson.

On Tuesday, while "Letterman" was being taped, Miss Rivers suddenly walked onto the set and stayed about 90 seconds, said NBC spokeswoman Virginia Holden. "I was in the control room and I assure you this was not expected.

"Letterman, of course, was real cool, but the audience was hysterical — hooting, clapping."

Miss Rivers explained to Letterman: "I just wanted to invite you to the NBC employee party because I don't think I will be going. Bring me back a sandwich."

Just before she appeared on the "Letterman" set, Miss Rivers had been interviewed by a news program in the same building about her new talk show.

BOSTON (AP) — Apple Computer co-founder Steve Wozniak says the development of personal computers has become less rewarding for inventors since the industry moved from the garage to the corporate laboratory.

"It's so planned now and structured that the feeling you get out of it isn't the same," Wozniak said Tuesday. Wozniak, who now runs his own small computer company, left Apple last year, saying it had lost its soul.

"The feeling from the motivations point of view is different when it was just a bunch of kids scrambling around. We had a place of importance in the world," said Wozniak, who was in Boston to judge a contest for the most significant pioneering personal computers.

Wozniak and his partner Steven Jobs assembled the first Apple computers in a garage in 1975 before they linked up with a business manager and raised capital. The company grew to a half-billion-dollar-a-year business six years later.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — The Kirov Ballet chose its performances for its first North American tour in 22 years to demonstrate its classical purity and ever-changing modern artistry, the artistic director says.

The Kirov begins its North American tour tonight with "Swan Lake," which was created for its predecessor, the Maryinsky Ballet, in 1895.

It also will perform a new Soviet ballet, "The Knight in the Tiger's Skin," before bringing a classical collection to Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Montreal and Ottawa.

A Kirov performance of "Swan Lake" will be televised June 7 on public television stations.

LONDON (AP) — An American Presbyterian minister says he will donate the $265,200 Templeton Prize he was awarded for theological education to post-graduate research at a Princeton, N.J., center he founded.

The Rev. James I. McCord on Tuesday received the prize created by U.S. millionaire and Presbyterian elder John M. Templeton to recognize progress in religion.

"We are all pilgrims in quest of that which will not only reveal but also transform," McCord said during a ceremony at London's historic Guildhall after receiving the award from Britain's Princess Alexandra.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Show that your word is your bond but listen attentively to constructive criticism. You need to be more patient with your co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pursue your personal plans but avoid all forms of gambling. Problems at work could force you to compromise. Making concessions will not cause you to lose face with higher-ups. Follow your instincts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Watch out for that green-eyed monster, jealousy, at place of employment. Someone may be after your job. Make financial security a top priority. Neither a borrower nor lender be. Romance sizzles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Little gestures mean more than you know, especially to that special person in your life. Sign contracts and agreements only after you have read the fine print. The evening is great for socializing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Continue to promote your ideas but make certain you have done your homework. An older person's advice will come in handy in a tricky situation.

MINE THOSE TRICKS

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ A J 8 7 ♡ Q J ◇ A 9 8 5 3 ♣ K 4
WEST ♠ K 9 4 2 ♡ 6 4 ◇ 10 2 ♣ 10 8 7 3 2		EAST ♠ Q 10 5 3 ♡ 5 3 2 ◇ Q J 7 ♣ A Q J
	SOUTH ♠ 6 ♡ A K 10 9 8 7 ◇ K 6 4 ♣ 9 6 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣

Here's an opportunity to demonstrate your technique. Cover the East-West hands and see how you would play a contract of four hearts after West leads a low club to his partner's jack and East returns a trump to dummy's queen.

The auction was uneventful. Your jump to three hearts was invitational, not forcing. Partner's two heart honors were more than enough to raise to game—on this type of sequence, even two low cards in your suit would have been sufficient.

The defenders have not been cooperative. As a result of West's lead and East's return, you are in danger of losing three club tricks and a diamond. If you continue by leading another club in the hope that whoever wins won't have a trump to return, you are the type who is disappointed when your two lottery tickets don't take the two top prizes.

Since the defenders have taken away your club ruff, you must find another way to take care of the third club. The obvious way to accomplish that is to dump it on a good diamond. So you must set up the diamond suit while you still have a trump on the table to control the third round of clubs.

After winning the trump return, duck a diamond immediately! Now if the suit follows the percentages and breaks 3-2, you contract is safe.

About the best the defenders can do is to win the diamond, cash their club winner and revert to trumps. You win and draw the rest of the trumps, and when both defenders follow to the king of diamonds, you claim. The ace of diamonds draws the last card in that suit, and you can take a club discard on one of the board's long diamonds.

UT student chosen for competition

AUSTIN (AP) — One of the youngest musicians selected for the 1986 International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow is a junior cello student at the University of Texas at Austin.

She is Hai Zheng, 19, from the People's Republic of China. Her parents are both physicians in Shanghai.

At UT-Austin, Ms. Zheng is a student of Professor Paul Olefsky, who equates the Moscow event with "qualifying for the Olympics."

The cello Ms. Zheng will take to Moscow was loaned to her by Olefsky, who got it from his grandfather, a native of Chernobyl, Russia. The cello was made in Italy in the early 1700s.

"Now, this cello continues its international tradition," Olefsky says. "It started out in Italy, went to Russia, came to the U.S. and now is going back to Russia to be played by a Chinese national who studies in the U.S."

The Moscow competition starts June 16.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Judy Carne, known for her role in the 1960s television series "Laugh-In," has lost an appeal against a three-month jail sentence for drug possession.

Miss Carne, 46, former wife of actor Burt Reynolds, dabbed tears from her eyes when a judge announced the decision Tuesday in the Court of Appeal.

She has been in jail since April 23, when she started serving the sentence handed down in Northampton Crown Court for two drug charges. The court suspended an additional six-month sentence.

Miss Carne pleaded guilty to possessing cocaine and amphetamines at her home in the village of Church Brampton last October and to trying to bring cocaine and marijuana through London's Heathrow Airport in December.

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (AP) — Deacons of the United Congregational Church made it clear they frown on witches, but say they won't stand in the way of Jack Nicholson making a movie about them.

In a letter to congregants, the deacons said Warner Bros. would be allowed to use the white-steepled church as a backdrop for the filming of John Updike's racy novel "The Witches of Eastwick," starring Nicholson.

But they said the movie company first must get approval from the Town Council, which has scheduled a May 22 vote on whether to allow the filming in the picturesque town of 3,200 this summer.

Petitions for and against the filming are circulating. Supporters say Little Compton would benefit from the influx of attention and tourists, but opponents say the quiet town could be overrun by the movie-makers.

Hamill

HONOLULU (AP) — Ice skating queen Dorothy Hamill says that after 10 years on the road she's tired of touring.

"I don't want to say I'm retiring, because I might change my mind," said the 29-year-old former Olympic gold medalist. "I'm just tired of touring, of living out of suitcases."

Hamill, who is engaged to Los Angeles fitness expert Ken Forsythe, is giving her final tour performances here in "Festival on Ice." The show opened Tuesday night and continues through May 18.

Hamill said she hopes to conduct skating clinics, and wants to teach blind people how to skate.

"I'll always skate, because it's therapy for me. I can get away from everything, from home problems, professional hassles," she said.

Rivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Joan Rivers, who had canceled an appearance on NBC-TV "Late Night With David Letterman," burst onto the set during taping and drew loud applause from the audience.

Miss Rivers on Monday canceled an appearance on the show because it is co-produced by Johnny Carson's production company, and Miss Rivers is planning her own late-night show to compete with Carson.

On Tuesday, while "Letterman" was being taped, Miss Rivers suddenly walked onto the set and stayed about 90 seconds, said NBC spokeswoman Virginia Holden. "I was in the control room and I assure you this was not expected.

"Letterman, of course, was real cool, but the audience was hysterical — hooting, clapping."

Miss Rivers explained to Letterman: "I just wanted to invite you to the NBC employee party because I don't think I will be going. Bring me back a sandwich."

Just before she appeared on the "Letterman" set, Miss Rivers had been interviewed by a news program in the same building about her new talk show.

BOSTON (AP) — Apple Computer co-founder Steve Wozniak says the development of personal computers has become less rewarding for inventors since the industry moved from the garage to the corporate laboratory.

"It's so planned now and structured that the feeling you get out of it isn't the same," Wozniak said Tuesday. Wozniak, who now runs his own small computer company, left Apple last year, saying it had lost its soul.

"The feeling from the motivations point of view is different when it was just a bunch of kids scrambling around. We had a place of importance in the world," said Wozniak, who was in Boston to judge a contest for the most significant pioneering personal computers.

Wozniak and his partner Steven Jobs assembled the first Apple computers in a garage in 1975 before they linked up with a business manager and raised capital. The company grew to a half-billion-dollar-a-year business six years later.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — The Kirov Ballet chose its performances for its first North American tour in 22 years to demonstrate its classical purity and ever-changing modern artistry, the artistic director says.

The Kirov begins its North American tour tonight with "Swan Lake," which was created for its predecessor, the Maryinsky Ballet, in 1895.

It also will perform a new Soviet ballet, "The Knight in the Tiger's Skin," before bringing a classical collection to Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Montreal and Ottawa.

A Kirov performance of "Swan Lake" will be televised June 7 on public television stations.

LONDON (AP) — An American Presbyterian minister says he will donate the $285,200 Templeton Prize he was awarded for theological education to post-graduate research at a Princeton, N.J., center he founded.

The Rev. James I. McCord on Tuesday received the prize created by U.S. millionaire and Presbyterian elder John M. Templeton to recognize progress in religion.

"We are all pilgrims in quest of that which will not only reveal but also transform," McCord said during a ceremony at London's historic Guildhall after receiving the award from Britain's Princess Alexandra.

Let's move ahead

The Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees acted wisely, we believe, in including in its high school boundary change plan what were called "compromise" provisions that Superintendent Joseph Baressi said would provide more balance in the socio-economic differences between the two schools.

One action involved allowing Crestgate residents to remain in the Lee High School attendance area. Rural students residing in the area bounded by the city limits north of U.S. 80 would remain in the Midland High School attendance boundary. A second amendment would permit those families affected by the boundary change, who as a result of it would have children in different high schools at the same time, to select which high school their children would attend.

Both actions hopefully have been and will be of help in resolving the controversy which has surrounded the boundary change plan as it always does when such issues are involved.

While we had believed that delaying actions until the total effect of current conditions on neighborhood and school populations could be determined this fall was the best approach, board members chose to bite the bullet, take the heat and move ahead with the job for which they were elected.

As with other posts, the job of members of local school boards is an almost thankless one and certainly that applies when emotional issues such as school boundary changes must be faced.

Action toward resolving the Midland-Lee disparities, to take effect in the 1988-89 school year, has now been taken. Hopefully, citizens, realizing board members have the best interests of all Midland schools and all students at heart, will support the decision.

LETTERS

Support for H.O.S.A.

We are always giving acknowledgements to area sports, bands and other clubs and organizations who achieve goals of excellency in our schools. As Midlanders we let our young people know that we recognize their efforts and achievements in our city. This is a great idea because it lets our young people know that we are proud of their efforts and it encourages them to pursue greater success in their careers and community leadership when they become adults.

In that line of thought, we would like to give credit to Health Occupation Students of America. These young people, future medical professionals, have achieved high ratings at local, area and state competitions. We feel there is little knowledge of their representation of our city because there hasn't been any coverage of their achievements.

H.O.S.A. was organized four years ago for those high school students who plan to pursue health-related careers. The last three years these students have represented our city at all the competitions, always putting their whole hearts into it, bringing back awards for their knowledge and achievements. They represent our area in a serious and professional manner.

This year they will be representing our city and Area IV, which also encompasses El Paso and Amarillo, in national competition July 4 in Philadelphia, Pa. Let's give these kids our support, too! They're from our city representing a large area of West Texas.

Let's congratulate Linda Leps, H.O.S.A teacher; Lori Burns, H.O.S.A. senior representative; and Hope Soria, H.O.S.A. junior representative. Go to Philadelphia and show them the spirit of Midland, Texas. We're cheering for you! We're proud of you!

Matter of choice

This letter is written to inform the public how the wrecker service here in Midland is handled unless one knows they are going to have an accident ahead of time and have one waiting.

Recently my teenager was involved in an accident which incapacitated the car she was driving. After talking with the officer, she immediately called me to call a wrecker service. I called one immediately. When she had gone back outside right in front of the place called from, there was another wrecker there. It was B J Wrecker which took my car to City Impound. The car had to be brought back to the wrecking service of my choice.

I am hot about this, as there are two big factors involved not including principle. The vehicle (which is new and fully equipped) would be left in the open for "stripping" by thieves of radios and whatever. Also, it cost double to have the towing charges all taken care of. It might have been quite a different story if no one was available or able to call.

People of Midland, we are getting the ax and someone has got an unfair monopoly on this service. This does not seem like American freedom or good West Texas manners to me.

Soviets' '84 bragging turns to fear

WASHINGTON — The Soviet government's appallingly cavalier attitude toward the dangers of nuclear power came as no surprise to us. Two years ago this month, when we reported secret details of earlier Soviet nuclear accidents, the Soviet Embassy here responded with a smart-aleck letter ridiculing our revelations.

Jack Anderson

The wisecracks of the embassy information officer, Eugene Zykov, must have turned to ashes in his mouth since the nuclear disaster at Chernobyl last month. His letter's tone of mingled sarcasm and braggadocio was tragically inappropriate in light of what is now confirmed about the Soviets' shocking failure to build and maintain nuclear reactors with a rudimentary concern for safety.

One grim disclosure we made two years ago, citing secret and top secret CIA reports, was that many hairless sailors were in Soviet veterans' homes, suggesting overexposure to radiation leaking from faulty nuclear submarine reactors.

This evidently tickled the embassy flack's funny bone. Our story on the "radioactive nightmare" in the Soviet Union, he wrote, "could cause even those 'hairless sailors' supposedly in Soviet veterans' homes to have their hair stand on end."

With the gall of a true propagandist, Zykov continued: "Being too engrossed in his macabre narration, the author failed to mention one more point. No organizations such as 'National Campaign for Radioactive Waste Energy,' 'Supporters of Silkwood' or 'Musicians United for Safe Energy' exist in the USSR. ... They do not exist because we have not had the same problem that the nuclear power industry in the U.S. seems to have had."

Without trying to match Zykov's sarcasm, we suggest that there may be other reasons that anti-nuclear protest groups don't exist in the Soviet Union. Ask Andrei Sakharov or the hapless monitors of the Helsinki Accords how the KGB treats outspoken critics of the Soviet regime.

The embassy letter proceeded to point out — correctly — that the world's first nuclear power plant was completed in the city of Obninsk, 60 miles from Moscow, in 1954. It claimed that all Soviet nuclear power stations must have "at least three or four fail-safe systems for protection against radioactivity," and that about half the construction costs go into the protection systems. The letter then lists three government agencies responsible for "overseeing the strictly required safety measures," and added:

"That's why it stands to reason that Soviet experience in nuclear power engineering wins recognition among many prominent foreign experts."

The embassy letter then descends to a flat-out lie, stating that "within the last 30 years, the prestige of the Soviet stations has never been undermined by tragic accidents like the one which occurred at Three Mile Island in May 1979."

As we had pointed out two years ago and is now widely known, the Soviets had two serious reactor shutdowns in the early 1980s, and a near-holocaust in 1957, when carelessly stored nuclear wastes exploded at a plant near Chelyabinsk, rendering an area of hundreds of square miles uninhabitable to this day.

Referring to Three Mile Island, Comrade Zykov wrote: "With the proper safety measures the probability of such an accident, a Soviet scientist estimates, is one every 10,000 years of the reactor's operation." He then stated that people living within two to three miles of Soviet nuclear plants get an annual dose of radiation equivalent to "a few hours on the coast of Miami Beach," and added:

"That is why the USSR plans to construct more stations close to major industrial cities in the European part of the country, to provide heat and energy."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Accused Nazi war criminal John Demjanjuk, extradited to Israel after living half his life in the United States, continues to claim mistaken identity. He claims he is not the notorious "Ivan the Terrible" who tortured prisoners and operated the gas chamber at the Treblinka death camp. And his lawyers have produced witnesses who claim the real Ivan was killed in a brief uprising To complicate matters further, there is a Demjanjuk ID card which indicates he was a guard at the Sobibor death camp. His attorneys say it is a forgery.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The Supreme Court has delivered another body blow to the Bill of Rights. In a recent decision that was little noticed, the court held that a tape recording of a criminal conspiracy, in which a "wired" informant took part, is admissible without the informant's presence in court. This effectively guts the Sixth Amendment's guarantee that an accused has the right "to be confronted with the witnesses against him." Without cross-examination, an informant's taped conversation could be seriously misleading.

JAMES RESTON

First week in May highlighted cooperation

WASHINGTON — In the first week of May 1986 there were some glimpses of common sense in the world, even some signs of cooperation between the quarreling nations and politicians. It may not last, but it was a week to remember.

James Reston

The Senate of the United States, for example, in a remarkable sign of bipartisan support for long-overdue tax reform, voted for it 20 to 0. The president and leaders of the business community meeting in Hot Springs, Va., gave it their blessing, almost as if they were voting for Mother's Day.

Also, in one of the most moving tributes to the judgment and integrity of one of its members, the Senate voted unanimously in support of Sen. Barry Goldwater's motion for the most sweeping reform of the Defense Department in 39 years.

For those in this corner and elsewhere who have been inclined to think in recent years that personal, political and special concerns always dominate the national interest, these two events are reassuring.

For most of his long and distinguished career in the Senate and as his party's presidential nominee, Goldwater has been the most faithful and even fierce defender of a strong military defense. But he has come to believe that Pentagon reform is as important as tax reform, and has devoted his last term in the Senate to that objective.

He convinced his colleagues, against the judgment of the president and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that reform was necessary, and when they backed him unanimously and moved to pass the Barry Goldwater Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1986, he stood on crutches in the well of the Senate and protested.

The Senate overruled him. "Damn!," he said. "The hell with it. When you get old, you get to the point where you can't say thank you. I'll just shut up and let you do what you want."

Later, he settled down and told a few reporters that his Pentagon reform bill was the best thing he had done in the Senate. "Now I can go home happy, sit on my hill and shoot jack rabbits."

There's a popular complaint these days that the people are helpless against the power of events, that institutions are beyond their control, and that personal convictions and voices don't mean much. But there's at least some evidence on the other side.

The tax reform bill is a case in point. For years, all across the political spectrum, there has been general agreement that the old system was a complicated and unfair mess, but that nothing could be done about it against the power of the special-interest lobbies.

But a few stubborn characters kept hammering away quietly for tax reform. Among them were Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri. Sen. Bob Packwood, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, finally took up the battle and persuaded his colleagues that they had more to gain by defying the lobbyists and voting the public interest.

It's this idea that has gained some ground — namely, that maybe more progress is to be made at home and even abroad by cooperation than by fierce competition.

American industrial leaders are beginning to understand that Japan's success is the result of cooperation between government, management and labor. General Motors, for example, is now experimenting with a joint management agreement with labor to produce a new car in Tennessee.

And even the leaders of the industrial nations, meeting on the first week in May in Tokyo, agreed, not much but some, that they couldn't deal with world terror or finance or trade alone, unless they consulted together and cooperated more than they had done in the past.

Unfortunately, at first the Russians didn't understand this unavoidable relationship among the nations when their nuclear reactor blew up in the Ukraine; they couldn't control the deadly cloud drifting across their borders so they tried to control the news, and found they couldn't control that either.

So lately, they have been blaming the West as usual, but also calling for its help to put out the fire and help with the children.

Both at home and abroad, then, maybe it was useful this week that some problems came to a crisis and a few politicians faced up to them and called for correction. We may now get a little more cooperation on tax reform, defense reform and terror control, for it's increasingly obvious that none of these basic problems can be resolved only by party or even national policy. In the first week of May, that idea seemed to be making progress.

ART BUCHWALD

There's not much lost in canceling Europe!

This is the best year we've had for not going to Europe in a long, long time.

It's even better for those who weren't going there in the first place. The reason is it is now very chic to say you're staying home. Last Sunday I overheard the following comments at a party.

Art Buchwald

"Gloria and I have cancelled our plans to go to Venice because of terrorism," Sherman said.

Davidov said, "We cancelled all of Scandinavia because of the Soviet fallout. Too bad, because we could have met up with each other."

"I think terrorism is a better excuse not to go to Europe," Clinton piped up. "You never know where it's going to strike next."

Lincoln told us, "We have a better reason than either terrorism or fallout. We're not going because of the French. When they would not let our fighter planes fly over France I said to Myra, 'That does it. Scratch Paris and the Riviera too.'"

Arch Trinkle said, "We're not going because our children begged us not to go. They said they wouldn't be able to enjoy their summer if they knew we were touring abroad. Ordinarily we don't let our children tell us what to do, but we made an exception for this trip to Europe."

Sumteen was holding a hot dog in his hand. "I wasn't going this year because everyone else was. Now that no one's going I'm telling everbody I cancelled because I didn't want to be over there alone."

I tried to bring some sense to the discussion. "If you don't go, the other side will feel they have won the battle."

"You mean the Russians who let their nuclear plant melt down outside Kiev?"

"No, I mean the terrorists who have been trying to drive all the Americans out of Europe. Your job is to show them you are not afraid."

"Why do you say 'your' job instead of 'our' job?"

"Since I wasn't planning to go in the first place, I have no reason to cancel. The way I see it the American tourist who was planning to go to Europe should still go, if for no other reason than to show the Flag — like in the song, 'Over there, over there, send the word, send the word we'll be there.'"

"It's easy for you to say we should go because we're the ones who have to take the fallout. You know why I'm not going to Europe?" White said. "Not because of terrorists or nuclear accidents, but because the dollar has lost a third of its value and you can't get bargains anymore. I can handle a nuke accident and terrorism, but I fall apart when I can't get a decent rate for my traveler's checks."

John Haskell, who has always been a travel name-dropper said, "Let me tell you the places we're not going this year: the Villa D'Este in Italy, the Palace in St. Moritz, the Grand Hotel du Cap on the Riviera, the Ritz in Madrid and Claridge's in London. Now let me tell you the restaurants we cancelled."

"Enough, Haskell. You don't have the money to stay at any of those hotels. You don't even have the money to cancel them. There is nothing worse than a tourist who says he's not going somewhere he never intended to go to in the first place."

He replied, "It's the truth — so help me. I could never live with myself if I lied about cancelling the Ritz Hotel in Madrid. I have to look at myself in the mirror every morning."

"There is too much defeatist talk at this party," I said. "The Russians are laughing in Kiev at our panic. The terrorists are gloating in Libya and taxi drivers from Dublin to Budapest are slashing their wrists because Americans are cancelling their trips. Are we going to spend the entire summer sitting around in wicker chairs telling each other where we didn't go this summer?"

"I am," said Sumteen. "But it won't be dull because I have the slides from my previous trip to show everybody."

"You can buy anything from Europe at Bloomingdale's," Mrs. Haskell said.

"Besides," Trinkle added, "all the European artwork worth seeing winds up at the National Gallery anyway."

Shultz says Marcos is a troublemaker

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz publicly rebuked former President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines Tuesday for using his safe haven in Hawaii to foment trouble for the new government of President Corazon C. Aquino.

"He is causing trouble," Shultz said, adding that what Marcos was doing "goes beyond just argument" with the Aquino government. This was the believed to be the most direct criticism of Marcos' behavior from a senior Reagan administration official since his arrival in Hawaii in late February.

Shultz's remarks were echoed by Cardinal Jaime Sin, the archbishop of Manila, here to receive an award, who accused Marcos of trying to cause disunity in the Philippines.

Sin, a long-time critic of Marcos' rule, said Marcos and his "loyalists" were paying people to demonstrate against Aquino, and dressing some of them as priests and nuns to attract favorable press attention abroad.

Sin told a news conference that recent pro-Marcos and anti-Aquino demonstrations in Manila were financed by Marcos' followers and "maybe by him because he still has money in the Philippines."

"We found out they are being paid," he said. "If you go there and demonstrate, you will receive 100 or 150 pesos ($5 or $7.50). And to prove this, we sent some men to join the demonstration and they were paid." He said there seemed to be nuns and priests in the group "but then we found out they wore habits that are made by them."

Speaking of the demonstrations, which he said were directed by Marcos, the cardinal said, "This is sad because he interferes with the present administration."

"It seems he has no love for unity, nor love for his country," he said.

Shultz, who was in Manila last week to consult with Aquino, was asked in a televised interview Tuesday whether Marcos was meddling in the Philippines, and he replied, "Yes."

"He is causing trouble, and some of it goes beyond just argument," he said on the NBC News program "Today."

During his talks in Manila, Shultz repeatedly expressed the administration's support for the Aquino government, even though it was unable to provide the full amount of aid sought by the new government.

The United States has pledged $150 million in new funds, making a total of $500 million available this year, if the total is approved by Congress. Shultz said Tuesday that the Aquino government "inherited a real mess from President Marcos" and their economy is "in a lot of trouble."

He said they need more — "there's no doubt about it" — than the $500 million from the United States. He said that Washington would help Manila get the money from other governments and lending institutions, but "the budget picture" does not permit additional American funds.

During his visit to Manila, Shultz ran into questions on why the United States permitted Marcos to be so active politically, even though he was supposed to be in exile.

His answer generally was that the United States could not limit Marcos's exercise of free speech. But aides to Shultz said the problem was larger than that. They said President Reagan felt considerable sympathy for Marcos and had avoided criticizing him.

Reagan had planned originally to meet with Marcos when he was in Hawaii late last month on his way to the Tokyo economic summit, but was prevailed upon by his advisers to do no more than telephone him. In that conversation, Reagan affirmed his support for the Aquino government, and apparently rebuffed Marcos' contention that he was the legitimate president.

Because of Reagan's friendship with Marcos, Shultz felt constrained on how far he could go in criticizing the former leader, aides said. The administration, however, was concerned that Marcos' political activity, while not seriously threatening Aquino, was distracting the Aquino government from attacking its economic, political and military problems.

Moreover, because Marcos is carrying on his partisan activity from the United States, this was causing problems for Washington in convincing Philippine public opinion that it was genuinely supporting the Philippines, officials said.

For that reason, the Reagan administration would prefer if Marcos moved his place of exile to some other nation. But the Aquino government, believing that it would be easier to keep track of Marcos in the United States, has sought to prevent Marcos from being given permission to live in any other nation, State Department officials said. It also believed that it would be easier to recover some of the funds it maintains that Marcos took out of the country illegally if he stayed in the United States.

"He's welcome to stay here in the United States," Shultz said, "He has said he doesn't want to be here in the United States, and our attitude is, as a country, that we don't want people here who don't want to be here, but no other country will take him at this point."

Cardinal Sin, at the news conference organized by Foreign Policy magazine, said Filipinos were "gratified" that Reagan has thrown support behind the Philippines.

However, he said, "the people remain somewhat apprehensive when Reagan has not completely broken off his ties with Marcos."

Sin was here to receive an award from the International Human Rights Law Group.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Youths killed in crash

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bus crammed with 176 schoolchildren overturned, killing 31 youths and injuring the rest, authorities in the South African homeland of Transkei said today.

The accident Tuesday night was the second bus disaster in the black homeland in two days. A bus crashed on a mountain road in Transkei on Monday, killing 30 of the 97 passengers.

The homeland's prime minister, George Matanzima, said he had asked the Transport Ministry for an explanation of why so many children were packed onto one bus.

Matanzina said the bus overturned on a road in the Engcobo district, in the western part of the homeland, as it was returning the children from a sports event.

The crash Monday occurred in northeast Transkei when the gears and brakes of a bus failed as it was driving up a steep incline, police said. The vehicle rolled backwards, struck a van, then overturned off the road.

Transkei, one of four black homelands considered independent by the South African government but not recognized abroad, lies along the Indian Ocean coast between the cities of Durban and East London.

Group demands supplies

LONDON (AP) — The Band Aid relief organization has demanded the return of 51 tons of medical supplies that were confiscated at gunpoint by the Ethiopian government, spokesman Bernard Doherty said Tuesday.

He said the organization also was holding back $900,000 earmarked for Ethiopian aid.

Doherty said the shipment of drugs, hospital equipment and blankets was "destined for the starving and dying" in Eritrea province, where rebels are fighting for independence from Ethiopia's Marxist government.

It was confiscated in the Ethiopian port of Asab about two weeks ago when a shipment of seed potatoes destined for a government-controlled area was being unloaded from the Band Aid Star, one of the relief group's five ships, he said.

"Band Aid was outraged and demanded the return of the cargo," Doherty said. "We are awaiting a response."

Cambodia claims victory

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Communist Cambodian guerrillas claimed today they had repulsed a 4½-month Vietnamese offensive aimed at a key guerrilla stronghold in western Cambodia.

The radio of the Khmer Rouge said four Vietnamese divisions backed by tanks and artillery met with "complete failure" as they tried to strike guerrilla positions in the Pailin area from November to mid-April.

The Pailin area is in Battambang province, close to the Thai border.

Vietnam's aim, the radio said, was to cut off supply lines from the border area to guerrillas operating inside Cambodia. Vietnam last year overran all major guerrilla strongholds near the Thai border.

The Khmer Rouge, with an estimated 50,000 fighters, is the strongest of three major guerrilla groups contesting Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia.

Its claims rarely can be verified independently.

Korean prisoners set free

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Justice Ministry announced today that 769 exemplary prisoners will be released on parole on the eve of Buddha's birthday.

Officials said no dissidents or political prisoners would be among those released Thursday.

The South Korean government usually grants paroles to model prisoners on such occasions as National Liberation Day, Christmas and Buddha's birthday.

Poland gives U.S. blankets

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland, piqued by U.S. Senate stipulations on powdered milk for Poles affected by the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, announced Tuesday it will give 5,000 blankets and sleeping bags to the homeless of New York City.

In New York, Mayor Edward I. Koch called the Polish offer foolish.

Mid-90s high anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for Thursday's high to be in the mid-90s. The NWS is also calling for partly cloudy skies and a less than 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms.

There is a 20 percent of thunderstorms tonight. Under partly cloudy skies, the low will be in the middle 60s with winds out of the south at 10-15 mph. Winds will shift to the southwest at 10-20 mph on Thursday.

Tuesday's high of 97 was five degrees below the record high set in 1960. This morning's low was 26 degrees above the record low of 41 set for this date in 1953.

STATE

A high-pressure ridge pumped moisture into southern and eastern sections of the Lone Star State today, bringing light fog over the lower Rio Grande Valley and the upper Gulf coast, and thunderstorms were expected later.

Storms moving through North Central and West Central Texas on Tuesday spawned at least seven tornadoes within a 40-mile radius of Abilene. But no injuries or damage was reported.

Low-level cloudiness today swept northward from the Gulf into Central and Southwest Texas, the National Weather Service said.

A weak, stationary front curved from the Red River valley near Wichita Falls through the Permian Basin and into a low-pressure system centered near Guadalupe Peak.

Skies were mostly fair to partly cloudy across the rest of the state.

Winds were west and southwest across the Trans Pecos and south to southeast elsewhere at 5 to 15 mph, the weather service said.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the 60s to 70s. Extreme readings were 60 degrees at Amarillo in the Panhandle and 81 degrees at the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi.

NATION

Rain and thunderstorms were widespread across the nation today and temperatures dipped to near freezing in Montana.

Thunderstorms stretched across north central Texas and south central Oklahoma while showers and thunderstorms spread from southeast Missouri across northwest Kentucky into southern Illinois and southern Indiana.

Showers ranged from eastern and northern Illinois into Wisconsin and southeast Minnesota.

Rockets level Lakers to even series

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — While Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has shown no sign of slowing down on offense in recent years, he has been especially effective against the Houston Rockets since the "Twin Towers" came into being.

But the NBA's all-time leading scorer was anything but effective Tuesday night as Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson combined to limit him to only nine field goals in 26 attempts and a total of 21 points and four rebounds.

Meanwhile, guard Lewis Lloyd of the Rockets scored 10 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and Olajuwon and Sampson combined for 46 more points along with 29 rebounds and 11 blocked shots against the defending NBA champions.

The result was a 112-102 victory by the Rockets, which evened the Western Conference finals at 1-1.

The 7-foot-4 Sampson has been in the NBA for three years and the 7-0 Olajuwon for two seasons. Before Tuesday night, Abdul-Jabbar had averaged 32 points per game in leading the Lakers to nine victories in 11 games against Houston since the beginning of the 1984-85 season.

That includes the 31 points the 39-year-old center scored in the Lakers' 119-107 series-opening victory over the Rockets last Saturday.

"The big guys (Sampson and Olajuwon) created a lot of havoc," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We're going to have to be stronger with our moves to the basket. You can't be tentative with these guys."

Sampson had 24 points, 16 rebounds and five blocked shots while Olajuwon had 22 points, 13 rebounds and six blocked shots. Many of those blocks were on shots taken by the 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar.

"One time I thought they dropped someone out of the ceiling to block my shot," Abdul-Jabbar said. "They had me hitching on my shot and looking for people. The ball just would not go down for me. It was a rough night."

The best-of-seven series now shifts to the Summit in Houston for the third game Friday night and the fourth game Sunday. The Rockets are 41-5 at home this season, including a perfect 5-0 during the playoffs.

"This game gives us a lot of confidence going back to Houston because we can't lose there," Olajuwon said. "We'll do whatever it takes to win. It's going to be tough, but I know we can do it."

Lloyd scored only four points in the series opener and got off to a slow start in Game 2, missing several times early in the game.

"The first game I had a slight cold, it kind of slowed me up," he said. "When it's money time like it was tonight, I feel like I'm at my best. They were giving me the outside shot the whole game and I think I proved it was a mistake."

Los Angeles, which had beaten Houston in 22 of the last 25 games between the teams before Tuesday night, is now 6-1 in playoff games at the Forum this spring.

"I think it (the win) gives us some confidence, but they've been through this before," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "Hopefully, we'll go home and not tighten up ... I don't think we will."

Rodney McCray added 16 points and 11 assists for the Rockets. Earvin "Magic" Johnson led the Lakers with 24 points, 19 assists and eight rebounds.

The Rockets outscored the Lakers 10-4 in the final 2:18 of the second quarter to take a 54-53 lead at halftime, and they were on top the rest of the way. Los Angeles led 25-18 after the first quarter and 34-20 early in the second period before Houston got its game together.

The Rockets extended their advantage to 83-69 late in the third quarter, but the Lakers narrowed the gap to 87-77 entering the final period, and closed to within two points at 92-90 with 8:47 left to play.

But the Rockets were equal to the challenge and held Los Angeles to only 10 points after Maurice Lucas' layup with 8:14 to go made it 94-92.

Led by Lloyd and a tough defense, the Rockets pulled away steadily in the closing moments. A jumper by Lloyd with 1:59 left made it 108-99.

"They definitely have the advantage now," Lakers forward Kurt Rambis said. "We have to get at least one win down there (at Houston). Our work is definitely cut out for us."

MHS' Bramlett-Legg run for state 5A doubles title

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

It's a long line of family tennis tradition that Jill Bramlett will try and live up to this weekend in Austin.

Luckily for the Midland High junior, she has help. That help comes in the form of senior Laura Legg as her doubles partner in the state tennis meet.

Jill, the youngest of four tennis-playing Bramletts, and Legg are one of eight doubles pairs vying for the state title this weekend in the Class 5A meet. They earned the trip by taking the Region I title two weeks ago in Lubbock.

If Bramlett's family line is any indication, it could be a very successful weekend for the MHS pair.

The family line may as well begin with Jill's older sister Cindy Hazen, now an assistant coach at MHS. Hazen, formerly Bramlett, won four state singles titles while playing at Seminole, but the eldest is Barbara Starns, nee Bramlett, a three-year state titlist at Seminole.

Eventually the family moved to Midland, where brother Jeff made the trek to state a pair of times. Jeff Bramlett is now a tennis pro at Westwood in Austin.

NOW JILL, only a junior, and Legg, a senior, will make their run for state glory.

"I think they're ready, I think they've got a good chance to make it to the finals, of course, I expect them to win it," said Hazen, who has been working with the pair exclusively the past two weeks.

Bramlett and Legg eased through the regional play two weeks ago with a 7-6, 6-2 win over Ann Donnell and Tonya Hamilton of Lubbock Coronado, a team that had beaten them twice this season. So it looks like they are reaching their peak at the right part of the season.

For a team that was just matched together for the first time this season, the road has produced nary a bump. Last season, Bramlett and Legg were the top two singles players at MHS.

"We both kind of fizzled out at the same time playing singles last year," said Legg, making her first trip out of district as a senior.

"We mesh pretty well together, we haven't had any problems getting along," said Bramlett. "This district is just too tough for us to get anywhere in singles. We thought we'd have a better chance of getting out of district if we played doubles."

THE MOVE has more than paid off for Hazen and Bulldog coach Pete Barizon. The record speaks for itself: 28-3 in match competition; District 4-5A champions; Region I champions, and now a trip to Austin.

"There will only be 18,000 people out there, but who's scared," said Legg, who plans to attend Oklahoma University next season.

"That won't bother her, she never hears what anybody says while she's on the court anyway," Bramlett teases her partner.

The teasing will stop on Friday when competition begins, however. And Hazen feels that on the court is where Bramlett and Legg will show their competitiveness.

"We're taking them down there (today) so they can get used to the humidity and the heavy ball," said Hazen. "If we can get by that first day, we'll be in the finals. When they concentrate, they really play well. They did that in regionals and didn't have much problem."

Mims game caps spring

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The final showcase of the 1986 spring football season for Midland High is a matter of hours away. The preparation work for this fall has been started and a little fun is all that remains.

The 1986 version of the Bulldogs will run onto the turf at Memorial Stadium Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for the Purple and Gold meeting in the annual Bill Mims Game.

Mims, a 50-year-old quadriplegic, suffered his crippling injury in a scrimmage game in 1953. Since that long-ago tragedy, the Bulldogs have been playing their spring showcase in his honor.

"This game is played for a good cause, Bill Mims, and we'd like to get a lot of people out for the game," said Midland High head coach Doug McCutchen of the game that raises money for Mims' day-to-day care.

From a coaching standpoint, it's a way for the players to wind down their two-week training session, something to look forward to other than the routine workouts.

"I look at it as more of a fun-type thing," said McCutchen. "We divided up the team about equally and we expect it to be competitive but also something for the players to go out and have fun. I let the coaches have a draft and I sat back and watched."

This is McCutchen's third spring training at Midland High and each year he's had more and more players to work with. This year, as many as 69 players (next year's juniors and seniors) have been working out and that leaves McCutchen with an outlook of 130 to 140 players next fall when the sophomores come in.

"We'll suit up about 62 or 63 players for the scrimmage," said McCutchen, "and we'll be looking for about 130 or 140 in the fall if grades work out right."

With the numbers, McCutchen has been happy with the spring training and feels next year's varsity got some good experience in last week's scrimmage with the outgoing seniors.

"It's gone real well this spring," said McCutchen. "We've had a real good two weeks of practice. I think we've had real good intensity and the attitudes have been great.

"It was a great scrimmage against the seniors. They did a heck of a job getting ready and competing in the game," continued McCutchen. "We got to look at a lot of kids and at least two teams got into the game."

The Bulldogs have come through the spring season without too much injury trouble. Three battered players are all expected to miss the scrimmage. They are linemen Toby Box and Gilbert Rendon and running back Jeff Garza, who is recovering from knee surgery from an injury back in seventh grade.

A Midland High booster club supper will be held prior to the game at Sam Houston Elementary cafeteria at 6 p.m.

De La Garza, Cumings bag MHS spring sports honors

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland High honored its 1986 athletes with the annual spring sports banquet at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Center Tuesday night with none standing taller at the end than Amy Cumings and Kenny De La Garza.

Cumings was selected as the most valuable female athlete while De La Garza received that honor among the boys.

Cumings is one of the rare juniors to receive such an honor, but the facts support the choice. In basketball, Cumings has lettered two years, being named sophomore of the year in 1985, All-District and third team All-Region this year. Cumings was also All-District in volleyball in her first season last fall and was the first MHS girl to earn Region I track berths in five separate events (3200, 1600, high jump and two relays) in her first two years. As a sophomore, she was also an outstanding cross country runner before giving that up for volleyball.

De La Garza, too, seems worthy of selection. The senior helped hurl MHS to its first baseball playoff berth in 13 years with a 10-6 record and a 2.88 ERA with over 97 innings of pitching. He will be the starting pitcher Friday when MHS starts the state playoff road at Angels Stadium against Lubbock Monterey. He also hite for a .343 average with five homers, 20 RBI and 13 stolen bases. De La Garza was also an All-District receiver in football and seems assured of landing a baseball All-District berth when that team is named later this year. In football, De La Garza caught an amazing 33 passes for 458 yards, averaging 13.9 yards per catch. He also caught three touchdown passes.

Each sport also gave out individual awards and they are in banquet order as follows:

Girls Basketball: Posted a 19-10 record for second place in 4-5A before losing to Amarillo High in bi-district playoffs. Cumings and Nadine Hill earned All-District honors and Cumings was named as the team's MVP.

Boys Basketball: Placed third in district, but won 24 games, forcing a district playoff with Midland Lee for second place. The team gave several awards, including Matt Sears, MVP; Damon Thorpe, best defensive player and most improved player; Shannon Stokes, Fighting Bulldog Award; Terry St. Peters, Teddy Terrazas Award.

Girls Golf: Finished sixth in district with no seniors, but all players will be back next year. Individual awards were not given.

Boys Golf: Placed sixth in district with Wade Sale named as the team's MVP. sophomore of the year went to Mike Johnson and Karl Brown received the team's academic award for best grades.

Girls Volleyball: Sixth in district, but two players earned college scholarships with Laura Martin, Angelo State and Nadine Hill, West Texas State. Liz Pratt was the team's MVP and Cumings was first team All-District and most improved player.

Girls Tennis: Jill Bramlett and Laura Legg won Region I doubles title to qualify for the state tennis tournament this weekend in Austin. They won five tournaments and had a 29-2 doubles record. Legg was named outstanding female and outstanding senior female while Stacy Powell was named as the most improved.

Boys Tennis: Chris Jauz was named the outstanding male while James Widener was the outstanding male senior.

Girls Track: Qualified two individuals (Cumings and Ethel Edwards) and two relays to the Region I meet. Edwards, one of the state's high ranked 200 meter runners, was the team's MVP.

Richards joins Tris, Rogers

After Paul Richards' death a week or so ago, a Dallas writer ruffled the feathers of the purists by labeling the one time catcher as "the most well-known figure in Texas baseball history."

Sorry about that Nolan, Tris, Rogers, Clint and you other guys. Move back to the end of the line, please.

Paul didn't see it quite the same way at his induction into the Texas Sportswriters Hall of Fame back in 1960.

"It's especially gratifying for me to enter the Texas Hall of Fame and take a place along side such hitters as Rogers Hornsby and Tris Speaker," he declared back then. A pixieish listener might have supplied his own "where I belong" to the quote, but that's not really what Paul had in mind.

IF HORNSBY and Speaker carried big sticks as their claim to fame, Richards' owes his immortality to the big glove.

It was Richards, who when confronted by the vagaries of the knuckleball, did something about it besides chasing the ball to the backstop. He enlarged his catcher's mitt to cope with the fanciful flights of some dipsy-doodler's offerings.

The behavior of the knuckleball exasperated batters. What it did to the guys who had to catch them remains X-rated.

The big glove worked to an extent and there's no telling how big it might have become if the commissioner's office hadn't established an outer limit at somewhere around 45 inches. There's no substantiation that Richards' mitt became the seed from which the satellite dish emerged.

But Paul's real impact on baseball came from his managerial and front office days where he earned a reputation as a hard-bargainer and a shrewd judge of talent. He simply was years ahead of his time. He saw things others looked right by.

Watching the kid second baseman take a couple of grounders in infield, he observed, "That kid could become the greatest third baseman of all time." which many feel is precisely what Brooks Robinson became.

CHATTING with the press after his 1960 induction into the Hall of Fame, Richards labeled Robinson, who had reported late in the 1959 season from Vancouver, as the best hot corner sentinel in the American League by the season's end.

"Let me show you the type ball player Brooks is," Richards' audience was all ears by now. "If you compare anybody with Frank Malzone in Boston, they won't even listen to you, but we were playing the Red Sox in a late season game.

"It was a pitcher's battle largely because Malzone and Robinson were turning everything hit their way into routine outs. It was as though they were staging a duel between themselves."

Richards went on, "It came down to the ninth inning. Somebody hit a foul pop up toward the stands. Malzone went for it, but stopped short of a collision with the barrier and the ball fell in the stands. It gave us life and we went on to score the go ahead run."

"In the last of the ninth, Robinson had the same type play. He didn't stop, however. He crashed the barrier, caught the foul and we won the game, but Brooks came away without some of his teeth after making the play."

Richards wasn't recommending that a ball player shed a few teeth every time he made a game-saving defensive play, but he was emphasizing the intensity and desire with which Robinson played the game.

Robinson went on to live up to everything predicted for him by Richards, who had rescued him from a career as a journeyman second baseman.

Richards, 77, long out of baseball except for an occasional advisory role, died on the Waxahachie golf course, where he was as hard to beat as at the bargaining table.

Waxahachie was his life long home. He pitched Waxahachie to the state baseball title in 1923 and amazed fans by shutting out Waco in a playoff doubleheader...pitching both games.

What's more amazing, he pitched the first game righthanded and pitched the second game lefthanded.

I don't know, Nolan, just maybe the Dallas writer has a point.

Angels still in first after dropping Tulsa finale

From Staff and Wire Reports

TULSA — Tulsa managed to score all the runs it needed in the first inning Tuesday night to salvage one game of a five-game set with the Midland Angels in Texas League action.

Despite the loss, the Angels remain one game ahead of the pack in the West Division, heading into a five game set with Arkansas beginning tonight. The Angels took four of five from the Drillers in their series.

Javier Ortiz laced a two-run double to pace a four-run first inning off Midland starter Don Timberlake, 2-2. Timberlake settled down to go seven innings on the night and not allow another run, but it was too late.

The Angels could only manage a solo homer by Kevin King, his seventh, and a lone run in the ninth on a hit by Mark McLemore, his third of the game. McLemore also stole his 25th base of the season for the Angels.

ALAN CARTWRIGHT belted a two-run home run in the third inning to help El Paso grab a 5-2 nightcap victory over the Arkansas Travelers to secure a doubleheader sweep for the Diablos in other Texas League action.

The twin-killing pulled El Paso within one game of West Division leader Midland.

Cartwright also singled in the second inning of the opener, when the Diablos shut out the Travelers 3-0.

Both sided tossed four-hitters in the opener, but three Traveler errors helped give the Diablos the win.

El Paso scored all its runs in the second. Jesus Alfaro and Cartwright both singled, and Mark Gillaspie walked to load the bases. Charlie O'Brien's sacrifice fly scored Alfaro and moved Cartwright to third.

The Travelers' shortstop missed a grounder by Bob Nandin, allowing Cartwright to score. Center fielder Lance Johnson then bobbled the ball, letting Gillaspie advance to third. Brian Finley's followed with a hit forcing Nandin out at second and allowing Gillaspie to score.

Tim Crews got his third win in six decisions. Paul Cherry dropped to 1-3 with the loss.

The sweep gave the Diablos a 3-2 edge in the five-game series. It was the first three-game losing streak of the season for the Travelers, 20-12 and a game-and-a-half ahead of Shreveport in the East.

In San Antonio, Jackson whipped the Dodgers 9-4 as Greg Olson and Randy Milligan homered for the Mets.

San Antonio starter Barry Wohler, who fell to 1-4, allowed six runs in the two innings he pitched. Jackson starter Wray Bergendahl, 2-2, allowed nine hits in six innings for the win.

The Mets grabbed a 6-0 lead in the third inning after Milligan's three-run homer.

SHREVEPORT SCORED single runs in the second and fourth innings, adding the clinching two in the top of the seventh to knock off the Beaumont Golden Gators 4-3.

Shreveport's Ed Puikunas hurled a one-hitter in recording the victory.

The Captains' Angel Escobar doubled home Charlie Hayes with the game's first run. Hayes reached base when Gator starter and loser Mike McClain hit him with a pitch.

Two Beaumont errors provided Shreveport with an unearned run in the fourth and the Captains scored another unearned run on a throwing error by the Gators in the seventh.

The Captains managed eight hits off McClain and reliever Mark Poston. Paul Mancuso finished up, keeping the Captains hitless and scoreless over the final inning.

McClain allowed six hits and four runs in pitching six innings. He walked five and struck out eight.

Bucks win tap, nothing else

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks won the opening tap. They scored the first two points. Unfortunately, they still had to play 46 minutes and 40 seconds of basketball against the Boston Celtics.

"No one has said that they are not the best team," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson said. "They pretty much prove it every night."

The latest bit of overwhelming evidence was presented Tuesday night. The Celtics charged into a 29-point lead with less than five minutes gone in the second quarter and blasted the Bucks 128-96 in the opener of their NBA Eastern Conference final series.

"After a week off, we needed to come out and get a good tempo going and put in a strong performance," Boston forward Kevin McHale said. "I think we did that tonight. We did everything we wanted to do."

The Celtics led 29-12 after one quarter as Milwaukee tied six other teams for the fewest points scored in the first quarter of an NBA playoff game. The Bucks hit just 29.8 percent of their field goal attempts in the first half, which ended with Boston in front 60-38.

The Celtics outrebounded the Bucks 67-51. They outpassed the Bucks, 39 assists to 17. Milwaukee's top regular-season scorer, Sidney Moncrief, was sidelined, but the next three on the list — Terry Cummings, Paul Pressey and Ricky Pierce — hit just 8-of-34 field goal attempts for 23 points.

Celtics-Bucks

"We did a lot of good things on defense," said Larry Bird, who led Boston with 26 points. "Robert (Parish) and Kevin did a good job on Terry and when he would make a move, we would help pick him up."

"They were bigger, but we were quicker," said Cummings, who sank 3-of-13 shots and scored eight points. "We could get by the first man so easily but once we were in the paint they collapsed on us."

Moncrief has missed five of Milwaukee's last eight playoff games with an injured left heel. Nelson said he may be able to play when the best-of-seven series resumes here Thursday night.

"I'm glad I didn't waste Moncrief in this game," he said. "Nothing could have helped us."

The victory was the Celtics' 25th in their last 28 games. It was their 37th in a row at home where they are 46-1 this season. They are 6-0 against the Bucks this season.

Ashby fired as Red Raider baseball skipper

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech baseball coach Gary Ashby was fired Tuesday, Athletic Director T. Jones announced.

"It is regrettable that a change had to be made," Jones said. "But, it is in the best interest of the baseball program that a change be made."

Under Ashby this season, Texas Tech finished sixth in the Southwest Conference with a 7-14 record. The Red Raiders were 34-25 overall.

'Hogs, 'Horns pace SWC all star team

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Arkansas' Ralph Kraus, who led the Southwest Conference with a .475 batting average, has been voted the league's player of the year by SWC coaches.

Joining Kraus on the all-SWC team were fellow Razorbacks Jeff King, a third baseman; first baseman Dave Patterson and pitcher Steve Parker.

Texas also placed four players on the team — starting pitcher Greg Swindell, shortstop Coby Kerlin, utility infielder Todd Haney and utility outfielder Scott Coolbaugh.

Texas A&M, which finished the regular season as co-champions with Texas, placed three players on the team — pitcher Dale Barry, shortstop Ever Magallanes and outfielder Mike Scanlin.

Texas Tech followed with Johnny Vidales as the designated hitter and second baseman Kevin Lowery.

SWC Baseball

Baylor placed outfielder Mike Malinak on the all-conference team, which was rounded out by Rice relief pitcher Steve Blackshear and Houston catcher Pat Hewes.

Texas A&M's Mark Johnson was a unanimous choice as Coach of the Year. He led the Aggies to a 16-5 conference mark and a share of the SWC title in his second year as a head coach.

Two left-handed transfer pitchers, Arkansas' Steve Parker and A&M's Dale Barry, tied for Newcomer of the Year honors. Parker transferred from Crowder Junior College, while Barry joined the Aggies after Texas-El Paso dropped its baseball program.

Stevenson two fights shy of another gold

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Cuba's Teofilo Stevenson needs to beat two more opponents to win his third world amateur boxing championship and join a growing list of aging superstars who are still standing in 1986.

The 35-year-old Stevenson, a world champion in 1974 and 1978, but beaten in the quarterfinals in 1982, punched his way into the super heavyweight semifinals Tuesday with a first-round knockout of Peter Stoimenov of Bulgaria. Stevenson is also three-time Olympic champion.

Two of the six U.S. boxers, who gained the quarterfinals at the Reno-Sparks Convention Center, also advanced to Friday's semifinals. They were super heavyweight Alex Garcia of San Fernando, Calif., and 165-pounder Darin Allen of Columbus, Ohio.

Garcia landed some hard body shots then bombed away at the head to stop Azis Salihu of Yugoslavia at 1:49 of the second round. The punch that ended it was a smashing left hook that hurt Salihu, who walked toward his corner. The referee then stopped it.

"The body shots softened him up a little bit," said Garcia, whose semfinal opponent will be Biagio Cianese. The Italian slugger beat Nelson Rosa of Puerto Rico 5-0.

Stevenson's semifinal opponent will be Vycheslav Yakolev of the Soviet Union, who used a hard left jab to score a 5-0 decision over aggressive John Zarenievia of Poland.

Allen landed some solid head and several stiff jabs to gain a 4-1 verdict over Nusret Redzepi, also of Yugoslavia.

"I was bothered by his being a southpaw," Allen said. "The Cuban is a southpaw. I fight better against better competition."

Allen's semifinal opponent will be Julio Quintana of Cuba, who narrowly beat Carlos Herrera of Venezuela. Herrera got a 3-2 judge's decision, but the jury voted 4-1 to reverse it and make Quintana the winner.

Three other Cubans advanced to the semifinals, but one finally lost. The other six Cubans were to bid for semifinal berths today and tonight.

The Cuban who lost was 139-pounder Eduard Correa. Vasili Shisov of the Soviet Union, used a solid right jab and accurate counterpunching to score a 5-0 victory.

At Stevenson's post-fight news conference, Alcides Sargarra, head coach of the Cuban team since 1964, was asked if this is the strongest team, he's had.

"Si (yes), si, si," said Stevenson, who understands and speaks English but uses and interpreter at news conferences.

"The results show the strength of the team," Sagarra said.

Three other Cuban winners were Juan Torres, 106, 156-pounder Angel Espinosa and Adolfo Horta, who won world titles at 119 pounds in 1978 and at 125 pounds in 1982.

Hagler-Leonard possible

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Undisputed middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler said Tuesday night he will announce next month if he will accept a challenge from "Sugar" Ray Leonard and give the former welterweight champ a shot at his title.

Hagler, appearing on "The Tonight Show," made his first public comment since Leonard said he wanted a bout with Hagler earlier this month.

Leonard, the 1976 Olympic light welterweight champion, retired in 1982 with a 32-1-0 record after he was diagnosed as having a detached retina. He returned to the ring in 1984 for one fight when he knocked out Kevin Howard in the ninth round.

"Basically, he has an ego trip or something," Hagler said of Leonard. "Little jealousy. He's missing the limelight a little. But the way I look at it, I'm just going to sit back and lick my chops. And just wait.

"Next month we'll hold a press conference and I'll answer Leonard's challenge. And the answer might be yes," Hagler said. "I'll let you know."

Hagler said Leonard's detached retina would definitely influence his decision.

"I'm a very humanitarian," Hagler said. "I'm going to bring in my own doctors and let them check him out."

Watch out Larry! Texas' Larry Parrish ducks a high throw as he gets back in to second base in Tuesday's game with the Indians.

Braves, Sutter earn 'split'

Associated Press

A comeback by Bruce Sutter would be a big relief to Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner.

Sutter, who led the National League in saves five times in six years on the strenght of his 'split-fingered fastball,' before developing shoulder problems last season, allowed two hits and struck out three in three innings of shutout relief as the Braves defeated the New York Mets 6-3 Tuesday night. It was only the sixth loss in 27 games for the Mets.

"He's the whole key to our staff," Tanner said. "When he told me to get him the lead and give him the ball, it made my day."

Sutter, who earned his second save of the year, hadn't pitched three innings in a game since last June. He underwent off-season arm surgery.

Now, however, Tanner said, "I'm going to use him every time we're ahead. I plan on using him as if he's 100 percent. I think this is a tremendous leap over what he's been able to do. He threw free and easy out there."

Atlanta trailed 3-2 after six innings and had been held to three hits by New York starter Bruce Berenyi and Rick Aguilera, but the Braves got to Aguilera, 0-3, for three runs in the seventh, highlighted by Claudell Washington's two-run homer. It was the ninth homer Aguilera has allowed this season.

Dale Murphy made it 5-3 with a single later in the inning and Washington added an RBI double in the ninth.

Sutter entered the game in the seventh inning and got the Mets 1-2-3, but he had to escape a threat in the eighth when New York loaded the bases with one out. Tim Teufel hit a hard grounder to third baseman Ken Oberkfell, who turned it into a double play.

NL Roundup

The Braves' rally and Sutter's relief made a winner of Joe Johnson, 4-3, who worked six innings and gave up three runs on six hits, including an RBI single by Keith Hernandez and a two-run double by Howard Johnson.

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 5

Los Angeles snapped a four-game losing streak and won for the first time in seven extra-inning games this season on Mike Marshall's two-run homer in the 13th inning.

Marshall's hit, which gave him eight homers and 25 RBI, both tops in the NL, came off St. Louis reliever Ken Dayley, 0-2.

Ken Landreaux, who singled, scored ahead of Marshall for a 6-4 lead. The Dodgers needed the additional run as the Cardinals scored a run in the bottom of the 13th on Andy Van Slyke's double off winner Rick Honeycutt, 2-2, who was making his second relief appearance of the year.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Denny Walling, who has eight hits in 15 at-bats during a five-game hitting streak, singled in the winning run for Houston in the 11th inning.

Phil Garner doubled with one out in the 11th off loser Dave Rucker, 0-1. After an intentional walk to Glenn Davis, Walling bounced a game-winning single off the right-field wall.

Julio Solano, 2-0, the Astros' fourth pitcher, worked a hitless 11th to gain the victory. Starter Mike Scott, Charlie Kerfeld, Frank DiPino and Solano held the Phillies to five hits, one of them Glenn Wilson's first homer.

Giants 6, Cubs 5

Candy Maldonado hit a two-run homer, his third pinch-hit home run of the season, off Lee Smith with two outs in the ninth inning, carrying San Francisco past Chicago.

Maldonado, batting for winning pitcher Greg Minton, hit a 1-0 pitch over the left-field wall for his fifth home run of the season in only 57 at-bats. Smith, 2-3, gave up a single to Bob Brenly before Maldonado homered.

The Cubs, trailing 4-0 against Giants starter Scott Garrelts, rallied for a one-run lead with a five-run eighth. Gary Matthews and Ron Cey keyed the comeback with a two-run homer and a two-run single.

Expos 4, Reds 2

Montreal won for the 11th time in 13 games, with Andre Dawson providing the key hit against Cincinnati with a two-run single in the fifth inning.

Dawson put the Expos ahead 3-2 with his game-winning hit, which followed singles by pitcher Floyd Youmans and Mitch Webster. Youmans went to third on Webster's hit and Webster stole second.

Youmans, 2-3, worked 5 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits for the victory. He gave up both Reds runs in the fourth inning on an RBI single by Buddy Bell and a sacrifice fly by Bo Diaz.

Padres 4, Pirates 2

Dane Iorg, batting only .190, hit a three-run homer, his first in the NL since 1981, lifting San Diego over Pittsburgh.

Eric Show, 2-2, walked seven but allowed only three hits and struck out eight in six innings for the victory. Lance McCullers got the final four outs for his first save.

Kevin McReynolds walked and Graig Nettles singled in the second inning before Iorg hit Mike Bielecki's first pitch over the right-field wall. Bielecki, 3-1, gave up all four Padres' runs and five hits in four innings.

Indians turn tables; edge Rangers in 10th

Associated Press

There's nothing like being on the wrong end of a rout to get your feet back on the ground.

The Cleveland Indians proved that Tuesday night, returning from a 19-2 loss the previous evening to edge the Texas Rangers 3-2 on Pat Tabler's 10th inning home run.

"Maybe getting smoked last night helped," Tabler said after connecting off reliever Greg Harris. "It made us start all over again — look at every day as a new day. The thing about baseball is, you've always got another game the next day."

The Indians had dropped four consecutive games after a 10-game winning streak ended last Friday. The first three defeats were close games. Then the Rangers collected a club-record 22 hits Monday night.

"They scored 19 runs ... maybe they were tired of swinging the bat," said Indians starter Don Schulze, who held the Rangers to one hit in 7 2-3 innings.

Schulze allowed only a line-drive single by Gary Ward in the fifth inning before leaving in the eighth after issuing a pair of walks. Scott Bailes allowed a game-tying RBI single by Pete O'Brien.

Joe Carter gave the Indians a 2-1 lead in the sixth with his fifth home run of the season, a two-run shot to left-center that followed a one-out walk to Tabler. It was the first home run allowed by Texas starter Ed Correa in 39 2-3 innings this season.

Rich Yett, 2-0, got the victory, striking out four in 2 1-3 innings of two-hit relief. The loss snapped the Rangers' three-game winning streak.

Mariners 8, Brewers 5

Four hits by Danny Tartabull, including two triples, and superb relief by Pete Ladd — plus a triple play — were the keys for Seattle.

Tartabull tripled and scored in the first inning. He also tripled in the eighth to drive in two runs but was thrown out trying for an inside-the-park home run.

Ladd relieved starter Mike Morgan in the sixth after Morgan had yielded five runs with two outs, on Rick Manning's two-run single and Bill Schroeder's three-run homer. Ladd had 3 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Ladd has a win and a save in five games since Dick Williams took over as Mariners manager.

Seattle's triple play in the first inning came after Randy Ready and Ernie Riles walked to start the game. Cecil Cooper grounded to first baseman Alvin Davis, who threw to Domingo Ramos at second to force Riles. Ramos' relay to first was too late to get Cooper but Ready strayed off third and was tagged out by catcher Bob Kearney in a rundown. Kearney then threw to second baseman Tartabull, who tagged out Cooper.

AL Roundup

Orioles 3, White Sox 1

Chicago first baseman Bobby Bonilla bobbled a dribbler by pinch-hitter Larry Sheets and then made a wild underhand toss to pitcher Gene Nelson, allowing John Shelby to score the winning run in the eighth inning. Shelby, in a 3-for-25 slump, singled in the third and advanced to third on two stolen bases, giving him 9-for-9 this season. He scored on a high hopper by Alan Wiggins.

Shelby also threw out Ron Kittle at the plate in the fourth inning when he tried to score on a single by Tim Hulett.

Yankees 6, Twins 4

Tommy John, who rejoined the Yankees as a free agent earlier this month, won his second straight decision and 261st of his career to move into 31st on the all-time victories list. The 42-year-old John left with a five-hitter through seven innings and Dave Righetti finished for his 10th save, most in the majors.

Ken Griffey's RBI double snapped a 4-4 tie in the eighth in a game featuring five homers, including the third of the year by Don Mattingly and Winfield, and Rickey Henderson's sixth for New York. Ron Washington got his first and Steve Lombardozzi his fifth for the Twins.

Royals 4, Tigers 2

Hal McRae followed a single by Frank White with a two-run homer off Willie Hernandez with one out in the 11th inning. Hernandez also surrendered a bases-empty home run to Steve Balboni that tied it 2-2 in the ninth.

Detroit starter Jack Morris allowed only four hits in eight innings, striking out nine and giving up four walks. Bret Saberhagen of Kansas City gave up eight hits and struck out seven while walking two through nine innings.

Angels 5, Red Sox 4

Rookie Wally Joyner hit his major league-leading 13th homer and knocked in his 35th run, also tops in the majors. Doug DeCinces also homered for California.

A's 6, Blue Jays 3

Dave Kingman's three-run homer off Dennis Lamp with one out in the 10th won it. Kingman broke an 0-12 slump when he hit the first pitch from Lamp over the left-center field fence for his seventh homer, breaking a three-game Oakland losing streak.

Lloyd Moseby had a homer and two singles for Toronto. Moseby raised his batting average to .346 with a 3-for-4 game and is 13-for-23 over the last six games.

Off road work important in preparation for Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There was more action in the garages than on the track at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as many of the already-qualified cars and several that could still qualify for the Indianapolis 500 were being rebuilt.

"A lot of the guys that have qualified are just trying to get the cars ready to race, putting in their race engines and checking every nut and bolt," Johnny Rutherford, a three-time Indy winner, said.

Rutherford, who was among the 28 first-weekend qualifiers for the 33-car field, earning the starting spot on the outside of the fifth row at 210.220 mph, added, "The ones that haven't qualified are trying to find some more speed on the track or in the garage. They're gonna need it."

The average speed of the first 28 qualifiers stands at 210.651 mph. It appears that it will take a four-lap, 10-mile qualifying average above 207 just to make the field for the May 25 race.

In all, 21 cars were on the 2½-mile oval Tuesday. Among them was Pancho Carter, an Indy veteran and last year's pole-winner.

"The whole car needs to be taken apart and checked out to see if it will stay together," Carter said. "It has 800 to 900 miles on it without being torn down. We'll have to get the race set-up on the car."

Carter, whose top speed Tuesday was 206.422 mph, said he would also practice today, sit out the next couple days while his Cosworth-powered Lola was being rebuilt, then get back onto the track over the weekend during breaks in the final two days of qualifications.

Joyner more than just a fill-in

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Wally Joyner is becoming much more than merely the rookie who replaced Rod Carew at first base for the California Angels.

It's the tag Joyner has worn since last winter when California decided not to sign seven-time American League batting champion to a new contract.

Now, though, he is establishing a reputation of his own, and it is the stuff that legends are made of.

Joyner, who turns 24 next month, had never played in a big-league game before April 8 when the Angels began the 1986 season at Seattle. He has been in the lineup ever since.

The baby-faced 6-foot-2, 185-pound left-handed hitter blasted two homers, added a single and drove in four runs Monday night to lead the Angels to a 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

That performance helped veteran California right-hander Don Sutton win the 297th game of his career and raised Joyner's batting average to .326.

JOYNER, WHO hit another homer Tuesday night, now leads the major leagues with 13 homers, one ahead of Minnesota's Kirby Puckett. He also has a big-league leading 35 RBI to go with his 47 hits and 27 runs, all in 34 games.

"I'll take the limelight for a while now," Joyner said sheepishly after writing the latest chapter in his storybook-like debut to the majors. "Then I might turn it over to someone else.

"Then again, I might not."

Joyner was selected by the Angels in the third round of the free agent draft in June of 1983. He played 54 games for Peoria of the Midwest League that year and hit .328 with three home runs and 33 RBIs.

The following year, Joyner played for Waterbury of the Eastern League and hit .317 with 12 homers and 72 RBIs while playing in 134 games.

Last year, with Edmonton of the Pacific Coast League, he hit .283 with 12 homers and 73 RBIs in 126 games.

Joyner gave an indication of what was to come last winter while playing for the Mayaguez Indians of the Puerto Rican Winter League, winning the triple crown with a .356 average, 14 homers and 48 RBIs in 54 games.

"I WORKED hard in the off-season," Joyner said. "I played winter ball and I worked out with the weights.

"I've always worked out with weights, but it wasn't until this past off-season that my body accepted it. I was lifting three days a week in Puerto Rico, working out on Nautilus. My body started to develop and it was exciting.

"It has really helped. Balls I used to hit that went to the warning track are now going out. I've got more bat speed, too."

Perhaps Joyner's longest home run so far came at the Metrodome on April 19. The Angels had a runner on base and two outs in the top of the ninth inning when Joyner came to the plate to face hard-throwing Minnesota right-hander Ron Davis.

California had already scored four runs in the ninth to trim the Twins' lead from 6-1 to 6-5.

The count went to 3-2 before Joyner fouled off four straight pitches. Then, he connected, driving the ball high and deep into the right field seats, giving the Angels an improbable 7-6 victory.

Joyner's 12 home runs are as many as Carew had in the last five seasons. And the 40-year-old Carew had a season total of 39 RBIs in 1985.

"I've seen some very talented people who I thought would have great careers, but I don't think I've seen a guy with the grace, ease and maturity of Wally Joyner," Sutton said. "All we need to do now is keep the 'geniuses' away from him. He's going to have a great career. It's a pleasure to watch him play."

Asked how he would pitch to Joyner, Sutton replied, "Reluctantly."

McEnroe a likely no-show at Wimbledon

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe, who has not played in a Grand Prix tennis tournament since January, probably will skip Wimbledon, a Grand Slam event he has won three times, his father said today.

"It's unlikely (he will play) ... for the same reason he won't play in the French (Open) and for the same reason he hasn't played for the last four months," John McEnroe Sr. said. "There are a lot of things going on in his life.

"Wimbledon is a major tournament, with a tremendous amount of pressure," added the elder McEnroe. "For anyone who has been off (from competition) the way John has, it would not make sense that his first event to come back would be Wimbledon.

"As a matter of timing, it just wouldn't work.

"John is about to become a father."

Actress Tatum O'Neal, McEnroe's girlfriend, is expecting a baby in June.

McEnroe, ranked third in the world, behind Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Mats Wilander of Sweden, has not played in a major tournament since January, when he was upset by Brad Gilbert in the Nabisco Masters tournament in Madison Square Garden.

Shortly after that setback, he took a break from competitive tennis, saying he needed time to "rejuvenate" himself.

He was not specific about the length of the break.

"Whenever I feel like I'm ready to come back and play the way I feel I am capable of playing, I'll come back," he said.

Foster inks pair for UH cagers

HOUSTON (AP) — Michael New and Randy Brown, all-city basketball players from Chicago, have signed athletic scholarship agreements with the University of Houston, the school announced Tuesday.

New, 6-8, averaged 22 points and 12 rebounds and Brown, 6-2, averaged 18 points last season in leading Chicago Collins to a 24-5 record and a district championship.

Dollar gains

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar shot up against the Japanese yen in Tokyo and continued on the upswing in early European trading today. Gold prices were mixed.

The increases came after U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker III said in Washington that unwarranted interpretations were put on his recent statement that the U.S. has "no target" for the dollar's value.

The dollar had fallen 15.65 yen and set seven post-World War II record lows in the 15 trading days before Tuesday. It jumped 3.05 yen today on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market, closing at 164 yen compared with Tuesday's close of 160.95.

To help keep the dollar up, traders said, the Bank of Japan also intervened in the Tokyo market, buying an estimated $50 million or more. Later in London, the dollar fell back slightly and was trading at 163.45 yen.

Baker's comments also pushed the dollar up in Europe against all currencies except the British pound. But Frankfurt dealers said some skepticism about Baker's remarks set in, pushing the dollar down from its opening levels.

Gold prices were mixed in very quiet trading.

In Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, gold was selling at a bid price of $343.70 a troy ounce at noon, down from $344 late Tuesday.

In London, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended gold price of $342.75 at midmorning, up from Tuesday's closing bid of $342.

Earlier in Hong Kong, gold fell slightly, closing at $343.39 compared with $343.61 late Tuesday.

Silver bullion prices were lower on the London market where the metal was selling at a bid $5.085 a troy ounce, down from $5.14 late Tuesday.

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Dennis B. Levine was arraigned in federal district court in Manhattan Tuesday, less than 24 hours after the U.S. Attorney's Office had arrested him on criminal charges stemming from the largest insider trading case in the history of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Levine, who was arrested at 7:30 p.m. Monday, was charged with illegally obstructing and impeding an SEC investigation into his insider trading activities. The commission says those activities, which took place over the last five years while he was employed at three investment banks, netted Levine at least $12.6 million in profits.

In an early-afternoon hearing that lasted just seven minutes in a crowded third-floor courtroom, U.S. Magistrate Kathleen A. Roberts set Levine's bail at $5 million, to be posted no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday, and said that a preliminary hearing had been set for June 3.

The bail, in the form of a personal recognizance bond, will be secured by $100,000 in cash, Levine's cooperative apartment at 1185 Park Avenue and its furnishings, and his shares in Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., the firm where Levine served as a managing director since February 1985. On Monday, the SEC froze about $10.2 million in assets held by Levine in the Bahamas.

In addition, Levine and his wife, Laurie, were asked to surrender their passports. The maximum penalty for obstructing an SEC investigation is five years' imprisonment and a $250,000 fine.

Levine also faces civil charges filed on Monday by the commission relating to his insider trading activities. If found guilty of those charges, Levine could be forced to return $12.6 million in profits and pay in penalties as much as triple the amount of any illegal profits earned after Aug. 10, 1984, the effective date of the Insider Trading Sanctions Act. According to commission documents, Levine earned $7.6 million in profits after that date, so penalties could run as high as $22.8 million.

Levine, who is 33 years old, appeared in court accompanied by his wife and his attorneys, Arthur Liman and Martin Flumenbaum, partners at Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison. As he appeared in the corridor outside the magistrate's court, Levine said that "we have been advised by counsel not to comment" on the charges. Mrs. Levine also declined to comment.

The presence of Liman, one of the legal community's most respected experts in white-collar crime, suggests that Levine plans to spare no expense in his defense. In the past, Liman has represented such well-known corporate clients as the Union Carbide Corp. and the Pennzoil Corp.

The criminal charges against Levine center on allegations that he ordered a Bahamian financial institution that was under subpoena from the SEC to destroy records that would have revealed his identity as an account holder.

Levine was asked to come to the U.S. Attorney's Office Monday night to receive a subpoena. At that time, he was arrested and handcuffed. He spent the night at the Metropolitan Correctional Center.

In court Tuesday, Levine was dressed in a navy blue suit, white shirt, yellow tie and black Gucci loafers. He and his wife, whose royal blue dress was set off by her long blond hair, appeared composed in the courtroom, holding hands and whispering occasionally to each other as they waited for the case to be called.

Level of consumer debt blamed for meager retail sales increase

By The Associated Press

A 0.5 percent increase in retail sales was half the expected gain, according to analysts who say the performance indicates that high consumer debt levels are keeping Americans from buying.

Nonetheless, the increase reported Tuesday by the Commerce Department was the biggest since a 1.2 percent rise in December, and followed declines of 0.9 percent in March and 1 percent in February.

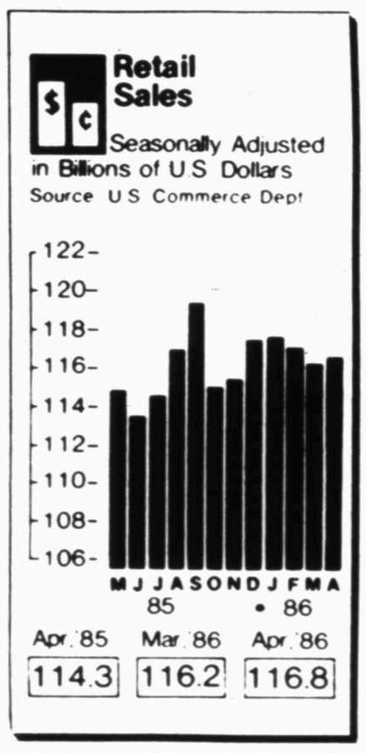
Analysts said that without a gain in auto sales last month, overall retail sales would have fallen by 0.4 percent.

"The consumer is largely spent out," said David Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass. "Lower oil prices just are not going to give us the kind of consumer boom that some people were looking for."

Wyss said consumer debt rose in March at its slowest pace in nearly three years. Sluggish sales figures indicated that Americans were using extra cash to pay off loans rather than incur new debt, he said.

Consumer spending is a vital component of economic growth, accounting for two-thirds of all economic activity.

Sales figures during the past three months have been generally sluggish for the nation's retailers, although J.C. Penney Co. — the No. 3 U.S. retailer — said Tuesday its profits during that time rose 24.9 percent as sales grew by 8.7 percent.



Nevertheless, a survey of small business owners by the National Federation of Independent Business indicated the group's optimism about the economy was at a two-year high, even though weak consumer spending and high levels of personal debt were seen as hindering growth for small businesses.

The group's quarterly index, which had a 1978 base of 100, rose to 105.7 in April from 101.2 in January. The previous high was 109.8 in April 1984.

The San Mateo, Calif.-based National Federation of Independent Business has 560,000 member companies and prepared the survey based on responses from 2,048. Small businesses employ about half of the nation's non-farm work force, so many economists regard the survey as significant.

In other economic news Tuesday, the Labor Department said Louisiana led the nation with 13.1 percent unemployment during March. The unemployment figure was 0.3 percent lower than Frebruary, reflecting the continued havoc wrought by the steep drop in oil prices over the past several months.

Trailing Louisiana was West Virginia, with 11.7 percent unemployment. Among other oil patch states, Texas had an 8.4 percent jobless rate and Oklahoma 8 percent.

The lowest jobless rate was 3.8 percent in New Hampshire.

Norway willing to help stabilize prices

OSLO (UPI) — The new government of Norway, in a shift of policy towards OPEC, said Tuesday it was willing to help the oil cartel stabilize world oil prices "at a reasonable level."

Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland, who formed a Labor minority government last Friday, pledged to cooperate more with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries the center-right coalition of Kaare Willoch which resigned two weeks ago.

"If the OPEC countries agree on steps that can stabilize oil prices at a reasonable level, this government will contribute to such a price stabilizing, which in turn will secure future oil and gas deliveries," Brundtland told parliament in a policy statement.

A government official explained Norway would now take a more open stance towards the 13-nation cartel but cautioned the change "should not be overdramatized."

Brundtland invited the opposition parties to cooperate in getting the nation's economy back on its feet through austerity measures that would not increase unemployment or harm social welfare.

On Sunday, Brundtland devaluated the krone by 12 percent as a first step in solving Norway's economic crisis, caused by the sharp fall of world oil prices in recent months.

With offshore oil and gas accounting for 20 percent of the nation's gross national product, the Finance Ministry has estimated total 1986 state revenues will drop 10 percent from 1985.

The Willoch government, which took over when Brundtland's former Labor government collapsed in 1981, had rejected OPEC demands that Norway cut its oil output to help prop up prices in the glutted world market.

Oil prices have fallen to the $14 range from an average $28 a barrel in December, when OPEC abandoned production controls in a bid to force outside producers to rein in their output.

Brundtland, 47, in her policy statement did not indicate Norway was contemplating a cut in its oil production. An oil ministry official said a reduction in Norway's oil output would have no long-term effects on the international market.

Egypt announces crude price cuts

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt, a major non-OPEC producer, Tuesday cut the price of its crude oil by between $1.25 and $1.35 a barrel for the second half of May in a move that lowered its best quality oil to $12 a barrel.

It was the fifth round of price reductions on Egypt's oil exports since the the first of the year.

An announcement by the Petroleum Authority said the price of Suez blend, Egypt's top grade crude, has dropped to $12 from $13.25 a barrel.

Egypt trimmed the medium Balaim crude by $1.25 to $11.25 a barrel and the Ras Badran crude by $1.35 to $11 a barrel.

The heavy Ras Ghareb crude, which sold for $11.25 a barrel in April, now is priced at $10, the announcement said.

Hammad Ayyoub, director of sales at the Authority, said the new prices reflected the "instability on the world market" as well as the "wish to safeguard the interest of the national economy."

In January, Egypt cut the price of its Suez blend by $3 a barrel, in February by $3.70, on March 1 by $5 and on March 15 by 75 cents.

President Hosni Mubarak has said Egypt stood to lose $700 million in the fiscal year ending June 30 and $1.2 billion in the new fiscal year beginning July 1 as a result of falling oil prices.

Egypt, which does not belong to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, produced an average of 870,000 barrels daily last year.

Williams has upbeat view of natural gas market

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

Signs of stability in the natural gas spot market have given Midland independent oil and gas operator Clayton W. Williams Jr. a more "upbeat outlook" for that side of the business, he told members and guests of the Trans-Pecos Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers. Williams was guest speaker for the group's annual community relations banquet Tuesday at the Odessa Country Club.

"The fact that some major natural gas producers are finally beginning to resist further cuts in spot market prices by holding back production from those buyers, is an encouraging sign that we've seen the bottom of that market," Williams said. As one of Midland's most colorful and quoteable figures, the entrepreneur is seldom at a loss for a story, but sprinkled among the anecdotes in Tuesday's speech were words of warning and wisdom.

Aside from the immediate pressures on operators from mounting loan repayments, the greatest danger in the oil industry is the deterioration of the service infrastructure. "We must never lose sight of the fact that wells are drilled by people, not machines. That rigs and equipment are operated by people; and that those people are, and will continue to be, needed to maintain a healthy industry," he said.

Clayton W. Williams Jr.

"To be prepared for any type of recovery when it comes, we must have the quality people on the service side of the industry available."

For operators who are able to hold the banks at bay and stay afloat, Williams says the times are rich with opportunities to take advantage of bargains in seismic data acquisition, acreage rentals and lower drilling rates to add significant reserves at economical costs.

Petroplex Savings names new president

From Staff Reports

The Petroplex Savings board of directors has announced the election of Fred C. Homeyer as president and chairman of the board of directors.

Homeyer returns to the Permian Basin from Houston, where he was senior vice president and manager of the mortgage banking unit for First City Bancorp. Associated with the holding company since 1969, he had also served as senior vice president and manager of the parent bank's real estate department, and president and chief executive officer of a subsidiary bank. he also served as president of the Northport Federal Savings and Loan, Long Island, N.Y.; Home Savings, Odessa from 1955-1966, and Austin Savings and Loan, Austin.

"We really felt like we never left West Texas, though," Homeyer said, "because the children grew up here and attended Texas Tech, San Angelo State and the University of Texas."

"Rejoining the financial community here in the Basin is a challenge not a great deal unlike the Houston economy dictated," Homeyer pointed out." While Petroplex Savings experienced an unprecedented deposit growth in its first two years of operation, the emphasis will now be on a high quality loan portfolio," he continued. "While still commanding a competitive savings rate, we will accelerate our residential lending."

A Texas A&M alumnus, Homeyer is also a graduate of the Savings and Loan graduate school, Bloomington, Ind., and Data Processing School, San Jose, Calif. He serves in the U.S. Army Retired Reserve as a Lt. Colonel and holds multi-engine and instrument rating pilot's licenses.

He has served and chaired various committees for the Texas Savings anbd Loan League, the United States Savings and Loan League, and was Texas governor for the National League of Insured Savings Associations from 1963-1965.

A former president and director of the Odessa Rotary Club, he was also very active in the Boy Scouts of America and holds the distinguished Beaver Award.

Borden's Dairy is now offering Midlanders calcium-fortified milk to combat the lack of sufficient calcium in the American diet. The new products are called Hi-Calcium Milk and Hi-Calcium Lowfat Milk.

"Studies show that American adults consume about half as much calcium as the U.S. recommended dietary allowance (U.S. RDA)," stated Dallas nutition consultant Alice Zimmerman. Specifically, the U.S. RDA of calcium for adults of 1,000 milligrams is provided by one 8-ounce serving of Borden Hi-Calcium Milk or one 12-ounch serving of its Hi-Calcium Lowfat milk. More daily calcium is needed for teen-agers, pregnant women and women who have undergone menopause.

Borden is the first dairy to introduce a milk containing the U.S. RDA of calcium in one serving. The product has been in development for more than a year and a patent is pending on the manufacturing process.

LL&E to gain gas reserves with Inexco stock swap

NEW ORLEANS — Louisiana Land & Exploration Co. (LL&E) said Monday it will buy Houston-based Inexco Oil Co., a move that will significantly boost its reserves of natural gas.

A definitive agreement has been signed, but Charles Fleet, vice president and corporate secretary of New Orleans-based Louisiana Land, said it could be late summer before the merger is completed.

Both companies are engaged in oil and gas exploration and production, but Fleet said the merger would help ease Louisiana Land's dependence on oil production.

The agreement calls for LL&E to issue .18 of a share of its stock in exchange for each share of Inexco stock. Louisiana Land stock presently is worth $29.25 per share, Fleet said.

Some of the stock purchase may involve cash payments rather than stock trades, officials of the two companies said.

The merger must be approved by Inexco shareholders and go through regulatory clearances before it becomes effective. Inexco Chairman Erving Wolf indicated the merger was supported by his company's leaders.

"Our board of directors, after long and careful consideration, has unanimously approved this transaction," Wolf said.

Wolf and his family, which own about 32 percent of Inexco's outstanding common stock, have entered into an agreement with LL&E giving the Louisiana oil and gas producer the right to vote such shares in favor of the merger.

Louisiana Land also has an option to acquire those shares prior to the merger for cash amounts equal to .18 of a share of its stock for each share of Inexco.

E. L. Williamson, Chairman of the Board and CEO of LL&E, stated, "With this one transaction we will achieve several of LL&E's strategic objectives: we will add at least 437 billion cubic feet equivalent of domestic, primarily long lived, natural gas to our proved reserves; LL&E's reserves to production ratio will be lengthened; the portion of our proved reserves that are domestic will increase; and the natural gas component of our proved reserves will grow. Moreover, this transaction exemplifies our overriding strategy of building value for our shareholders while remaining strong during this period of depressed energy prices."

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Bogert first half earnings set revenue record

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) — Bogert Oil Co. announced record earnings for the first half of fiscal 1986. Revenues for the six months ended March 31, 1986 were $10,924,712, up 30 percent from the same period last year. Net income was $ 1,130,451, or $.53 per share, up 15 percent from $980,303 ($.46 per share) for the first six months of fiscal 1985.

Revenues for the second quarter of fiscal 1986 were $4,763,594, an 11 percent increase over the prior year's $4,297,113. Earnings for the three months ended March 31, 1986, were $395,012 ($.19 per share) down 16 percent from $469,699 ($.22 per share) reported for the corresponding period in the prior year.

Richard D. Bogert, chairman of the company, attributed the results to increases in oil and gas production. He noted that second quarter oil and gas prices were down 26 percent and 30 percent respectively, from the year earlier period.

Second quarter oil and gas production increases of 29 percent and 40 percent respectively, substantially offset the price reduction effects resulting in only a slight decrease in oil and gas sales and earnings for the three months ended March 31, 1986.

Snyder write-down estimated at 30 percent

FORT WORTH (SWN) — Snyder Oil Partners (SOI) announced that pursuant to the recent decision of the Securities and Exchange Commission, a significant reduction in the carrying value of its oil and gas properties will be required. The amount of the writedown, which will be announced next week, is expected to approximate $30 million. Although the roughly 30 percent reduction in the properties' book value will have no impact on SOI's future cash flow or distributions, it will result in a substantial net loss being reported for the first quarter of 1986.

Thor Energy announces loss in first quarter

TYLER (SWN) — Thor Energy Resources, Inc. announced a loss of $445,000 or $.07 per share on revenues of $7,428,000 for the year ended Jan. 31, 1986 compared with net income of $737,000 or $.12 per share on revenues of $6,178,000 for the year ended Jan. 31, 1985. Included in the 1986 loss was $1,004,000 of depreciation, depletion and amortization and a non-cash charge of $1,221,000 ($659,000, net of tax, or $.10 per share) that resulted from a write-down of oil and gas properties as required under regulatory guidelines. The higher depreciation, depletion and amortization charges ($563,000 in 1985) and the required writedown of the oil and gas properties were due primarily to a reevaluation and reduction in the estimates of economically producible gas reserves and decreases in petroleum prices.

Oil and gas exploration and production for 1986 resulted in a loss of $1,398,000 compared with a profit of $234,000 in 1985. This loss was primarily due to the items mentioned above and reduced sales volume and prices.

Engineering services revenues rose by 43 percent to $6,175,000 for the 1986 fiscal year and operating profits increased 37 percent for the same period, evidencing the growth of this segment of the company's business.

Interest income during 1986 as compared to 1985 decreased $279,000 (58 percent) primarily as a result of a decrease in investment funds as monies were used in oil and gas exploration activities.

Thor will continue exploration efforts in Alabama and Eastern Texas in 1987 to replace its existing oil and gas reserves and will continue to expand its engineering services division in the Washington, D.C. area. Cash flow for the company remains strong and efforts will continue to seek opportunity to grow in these two primary sectors.

Triton, Shell get permit to explore Nepal

DALLAS (SWN) — Triton Energy Corp. announces it and Royal Dutch Shell have been awarded a new oil exploration permit covering 1.2 million acres in southeastern Nepal.

Triton Nepal, Inc., a subsidiary of Triton Energy Corp. and Shell Exploration B.V., a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell Group of Cos. signed a petroleum agreement as a joint venture (65 percent Shell; 35 percent Triton) with Shell Exploration B.V. designated as operator.

During the initial four-year exploration period, the companies have committed to carry out geological field surveys, seismic surveys and drilling. The exploration period may be extended for two additional periods of two years each, provided that the companies have fulfilled their work commitments.

Triton, headquartered in Dallas, is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with oil and gas interests in 11 countries. Triton has producing properties and conducts development activities in France, Australia, the United States, The Netherlands sector of the North Sea, Canada and Cote d'Ivorie of western Africa. The company's current exploration activities are conducted in these areas as well as the United Kingdom sector of the North Sea, Colombia, New Zealand and Tunisia.

Thermal Power to develop geothermal field

Dallas (SWN) — Thermal Power Co., a subsidiary of Diamond Shamrock Corp., has signed an agreement with the Hawaii Electric Light Co. (HELCO) to develop the first commercial geothermal power plant in Hawaii.

The electricity sales contract calls for the development of 25 megawatts of geothermal power by 1993. Puna Geothermal Venture, of which Thermal Power is the operator with a 50 percent interest, would develop the wellfield and build the power plant. Under the terms of the contract Puna Geothermal Venture plans to supply 12-1/2 megawatts on line before 1993, to meet the scheduled needs of the utility.

The Puna Geothermal Venture is comprised of Thermal Power Co., Dillingham Geothermal, Inc. and Amfac Energy, Inc.

Purchase of the electricity by HELCO was approved by the State Public Utilities Commission under rules implementing state and federal laws passed to encourage development of alternative energy.

The State of Hawaii is over 90 percent dependent upon imported oil for electrical generation; in the past few years, Hawaii has been pursuing a policy of reducing that dependency. This agreement marks an important step towards that goal.

"We are continuing negotiations with HELCO for an expanded contract which would provide an additional payment for generation capacity supplied by the geothermal plant," said Richard Pittenger, vice president of Thermal Power Co. "Instead of bearing the costs of building new generating facilities, the utility would pay us for supplying new capacity."

Thermal Power Co. announced the successful completion of a third exploratory well at the Honuaula site in Puna earlier this year. Average steam production for the well tested at the rate of 65,000 pounds per hour. "The three wells have confirmed the existence of a commercial steam reservoir that is one of the hottest geothermal resources in the world," said Pittenger.

Endevco ups first quarter earnings, cash flow

DALLAS (SWN) — Endevco, Inc. reported increased revenues, earnings and working capital provided by operations for the first quarter ending Mar. 31, 1986 as compared to the same quarter in 1985.

The increase in earnings and cash flow were primarily attributable to continued growth in the volume of gas gathered and marketed by the company's gas transportation segment. Also, increased gas treating volumes and revenues contributed to the increase. The relatively small increase in revenues was due mainly to much lower gas sales prices compared to the first quarter of 1985 and to a lesser extent to lower volumes and prices of gas liquids.

Pepsico. is downsizing its vending machines to gain entry into smaller markets and increase visibility.

That's My Pop

In a head to head battle with Coke for market share, Pepsi is banking on a "little is better" tactic for increased sales.

Pepsico., Inc. is introducing a compact version of the soft-drink vending machine that it hopes will get its Pepsi products into locations it normally can't reach, such as small offices.

The new dispenser — 35 inches high, 28 3/4 inches wide, 10 inches deep and weighing 125 pounds when empty — holds 48 soda cans plus a refrigerated reserve of 24. A standard soda machine holds 320 12-ounce cans.

Pepsi's introduction of a smaller machines is a new twist in efforts to keep pace in soft drink marketing competition.

"The machine gives us not only more reach, but more visibility," explained Stuart Ross, marketing and communications manager for Pepsico's Pepsi-Cola USA subsidiary.

Mussel Power

Mussels, the tenacious little shell fish, could soon make a fundamental difference in the dental business.

After a decade of research, supported by the National Institute of Dental Research in Bethesda, Md., the substance which allows sea mussels to adhere to rocks and other structures under water may soon be synthetically produced.

The research has generated a great deal of interest in the dentistry and medical fields where the glue's super sticking power could have many useful applications.

What makes this glue the focus of so much excitement is the fact that it is able to create a strong bond in water — something beyond the capability of even the strongest man-made glue. The mussel glue is equally effective on dry surfaces — even such surfaces as rock, metal, glass, wood and shellfish.

Suzan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

Dentists are interested in using the glue as a material for filling cavities and as an adhesive for bonding teeth.

Surgeons say they can use the glue during operations to coat sutured tissue to prevent infection. The glue may also be helpful in holding together small bones or tendons that exist normally in a saline solution that is chemically similar to the mussel's natural habitat.

A 36-year-old artist has taken a traditional toy and turned it into an art form. Steve Hanks creates art with an Etch A Sketch.

Etch A Sketch art hardly kids' stuff

It's a child's toy, but 36-year-old artist Steve Hanks has found a way to turn it into big bucks.

Hanks creates complicated 'masterpieces' that sell for as much as $150 on the elementary drawing device.

"I've had an Etch A Sketch since I was 10. I got a new one every Christmas," recalls Hanks.

He can etch a quality sketch in about 20 minutes, usually while he is perched on a corner stool in a bar or restaurant in Albuquerque, N.M., his home since 1972. He sells his completed works at prices ranging from $60 to $150.

Former Etch A Sketchers may remember that pictures drawn on the toy, made by the Ohio Art Co., can be erased easily by shaking the product. Hanks makes his art permanent by carefully drilling holes in the Etch A Sketch, shaking out the aluminum powder inside and applying coats of varnish to the screen. Finally, he glues the knobs to prevent would-be artists from adding to his concept.

The Ohio Art Co. supplies him with several boxes of the toy per year, but Hanks says well-used models are better for art. "I'll trade a kid my new one for an older model in a second," he says. "The knobs are looser and easier to draw with."

Texaco expects to overturn judgement

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Texaco Inc. expects to prevail in its appeal of a record $11.1 billion damage judgment won by Pennzoil Co. six months ago, but in the meantime it is trying to reach a settlement, Texaco Chairman John McKinley says.

"Notwithstanding the merits of the case, but considering the potential impact of a prolonged period of litigation, a reasonable solution may be in the company's best interest," McKinley told shareholders Tuesday.

He said Texaco attorneys have been making "every reasonable effort to reach a good faith settlement and will continue to do so.

"However, if a reasonable settlement cannot be reached, Texaco will continue to press forward vigorously in the courts for the overturn of a patently unjust decision and outrageous monetary award," he said

About 800 stockholders attended the company's 85th annual meeting, the first opportunity for shareholders to speak directly with Texaco executives about the verdict delivered Nov. 19 by a state court jury in Texas.

The Houston jury awarded the largest damage judgment in U.S. history to Pennzoil, finding that Texaco interfered in an agreement for Pennzoil to acquire a 43 percent stake in Getty Oil Co. Texaco, which later acquired all of Getty, is appealing that decision in the Texas courts.

"Texaco acted prudently, legally and ethically in its acquisition of Getty Oil Company," said McKinley, who in 1980 became chairman and chief executive officer of the White Plains, N.Y.-based company.

McKinley said the Los Angeles-based Getty invited bids in an effort to fight off Pennzoil's unsolicited offer to take over the company. He described the Pennzoil offer as "grossly inadequate."

While Texaco disputes it is liable for any damages, McKinley noted that the company's appeal with the Texas State Court of Appeals contends the maximum damages to which Pennzoil would be entitled is $466 million.

That amount is the difference between the price Pennzoil would have paid for its Getty stake under its claimed contract and the market value of the Getty shares it would have acquired, McKinley said.

The appeal brief filed April 23 cites 90 alleged errors in the trial court and seeks reversal of the judgment or "a new and fair trial," McKinley said.

In spite of the huge judgment, McKinley said 1985 was a good year for Texaco, pointing to $1.2 billion in profit from consolidated world operations.

But he said the market collapse that has dropped oil prices from slightly more than $30 a barrel in late November to around $15 will make it difficult for Texaco to repeat its performance in the first quarter, when it had a profit of $328 million.

He said U.S. oil companies suffer from lack of a focused national energy policy during the downturn in the oil business.

"We should not allow production simply to drift to lower levels without a conscious policy decision about what national security requires," he said.

He said lower prices bring about increased demand for petroleum products while exploration plummets, leading to dependence on foreign oil. McKinley said oil prices are destined to rebound.

"The prices are going to rise. If sooner, a modest increase; if later, probably an abrupt and very large increase," he said.

Texaco has benefited from marketing and refining decisions made before the downturn, McKinley said. He said the company has improved productivity without being forced to make deep cutbacks in some departments, or slashing employment across the board.

The company has initiated an early retirement program and begun a review of administrative expenses that could result in eliminating some jobs, McKinley said.

He said Texaco has reduced its debt from about $15 billion in early 1984 to $9.2 billion as of March 31. Texaco's debt-to-equity ratio has been reduced to about 40 percent and is expected to be cut further, McKinley said.

James Kinnear, vice chairman of Texaco, said the company's worldwide employment has been reduced from 76,000 in 1984 to 54,000 in 1985. He said 10,000 of those no longer with Texaco work for subsidiaries sold to other companies.

Texaco also has moved to streamline its marketing program, withdrawing from all or part of 14 states and concentrating on key market areas, Kinnear said.

Texaco remains active in international markets, which provided half of its 1985 earnings, said Alfred DeCrane Jr., Texaco's president.

In voting before the meeting, 90 percent of the 239 million shares of outstanding common stock were cast against a proposal to terminate sales in South Africa through Caltex, a group of companies 50 percent owned by Texaco.

McKinley said South Africa's policy mandating separation of the races is "repugnant to American values" and is opposed by Texaco. But he said company directors recommended the proposal be turned down because Caltex has a "record of social progress and concern for its employees" in South Africa.

Administration concerned about offshore exploration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is willing to reduce royalties on offshore oil tracts that may become uneconomical in view of low prices, an Interior Department official told Congress.

Such reductions have been granted for onshore leases from time to time, but never offshore, William Bettenberg, director of the Minerals Management Service, said Tuesday.

The department already has eased requirements that will permit operators of stripper wells on federal lands to stop production without relinquishing their leases. Stripper wells are those which produce than 10 barrels a day.

At a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee hearing, Bettenberg was asked whether the Interior Department was considering other steps to help the oil industry, which is reeling under an almost 50 percent nosedive in prices since December.

"We are, in fact, willing to consider reduced royalties if a company can demonstrate the property is otherwise uneconomic," Bettenberg replied. "The figures they furnish in support of that will be subject to being audited. We are not going to take their word for it. The last thing we want to do is abandon areas prematurely."

Offshore oil companies normally pay the federal government a royalty of 16.67 percent on the proceeds of every barrel, which can be 12.5 percent for certain deepwater areas.

Bettenberg said a royalty reduction might be sought "on a field that has been producing in the past but is in its declining years," or an area "that's discovered but is just not quite economical to produce."

Successful bidders at lease offerings must pay the government, in addition to the royalty production and a a bonus up front, $150 an acre every year, or $864,000 for a single tract of nine square miles.

Bettenberg said the department had "considered very seriously" lowering the acreage rental for Gulf of Mexico offerings but "concluded in fact we should not do it."

But a reduced rental might be offered for Atlantic and Alaska offerings, he said.

"I submit that it is in the national interest to have some level of exploration going on in these areas," he said. Atlantic and Alaska exploration has proven totally unproductive so far.

Gasoline consumption expected to head up

WASHINGTON (AP) — American motorists will be driving 5 percent more this summer than last year, but they will be paying dramatically less for their gasoline while doing it, the government said.

The average price for all grades of gasoline should be 94 cents per gallon during the three months starting July 1, the government said Monday.

That would be 28 cents per gallon less than drivers paid a year earlier, said the quarterly forecast by the Energy Information Administration, a branch of the Energy Department.

The price during the same period last year was $1.22. In 1979, the price was 97 cents.

In their first predictions since the nosedive in oil prices earlier this year, the forecasters also said imported crude oil prices should rise by about 20 percent by early next year.

For the entire year of 1986, the average price should be 97 cents compared with $1.20 in 1985, the report said.

Travel in terms of vehicle miles should increase 5 percent over last summer, even though gasoline sales won't increase quite that much because fuel effiency continues to increase as older cars are junked.

Usage should be about 7.19 million barrels per day, 3.3 percent above last summer and the highest demand since 1978. Demand is softened by an expected 1.6 percent improvement in average miles per gallon, the agency said.

This forecast assumes crude oil prices of about $16 a barrel in the third quarter. Currently, the price is about $15. The forecast predicts imported crude for U.S. refiners will rise to about $18 a barrel in the first quarter of 1987.

Other main points in the forecast for 1986 compared with 1985, and revisions from the first-quarter forecast completed in January:

—U.S. petroleum demand should increase 2.8 percent to 16.13 million barrels a day compared with 15.69 million. The January forecast projected 15.8 million barrels per day this year.

Oil decline hurting small oil companies

AUSTIN (AP) — Thousands of small operators in Texas may be losing the struggle to stay in business because of the industry crisis, says Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent.

Nugent said Tuesday that much of the talk about hard times in the oil and gas business centers on major company layoffs. However, he said in a statement, that a commission survey shows the price decline is taking its toll among the 5,900 operators whose wells produce three barrels or less a day.

"These are the traditional 'Mom and Pop' operators as well as some beginners," Nugent said. "When you subtract taxes, royalties, production costs, maintenance and salaries, none of these companies are making anybody rich. They're having a tough time just making ends meet."

Nugent also said it may cost the state more money if a lot of small operators go out of business and their marginal wells are abandoned.

To prevent pollution, inactive wells must be plugged.

"If the companies are financially insolvent, then the state must incur this expense," Nugent said. "If we had to plug the wells that produce one barrel of oil a day or less, some 36,000 wells, it could cost the state about $200 million.

THINK SUMMER...THINK SALADS

From the first breath of spring to the first fall chill, thoughts are focused on the special joys of the sun-drenched season—vacations, fun-filled weekends or just occasional lazy days to spend at the beach or in a hammock under a tree. Thoughts turn, too, to the salads of summer...so cool, so refreshing, and as appealing to the eye as to the palate.

Gone are the days when a salad consisted of a few limp leaves of lettuce topped with a pale slice of tomato. Today, the salads of summer are often main dish entrees featuring meat, poultry, seafood or pasta, plus various fruits and vegetables, the whole enhanced by any one of a myriad of delicious salad dressings conveniently bottled and standing ready on the pantry shelf.

A different commercial dressing provides the "seasoning" in each of the following recipes. All contain a blend of spices and herbs for a perfect balance of color, taste and texture. There are a vast variety of flavor choices among the "pourables," "spoonables," and dry mix dressings available in today's supermarket.

An always welcome companion to the summer salad bowl is the frosty, iced tea pitcher. Truly refreshing because it is non-sweet and non-carbonated, iced tea has a clean, fresh taste that goes well with all types of dishes. Make it with a quality brand following one of the easy methods below.

SEA FARE SALAD

2 cans (16 oz. each) cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup
1/2 cup buttermilk-style dressing
1/4 cup diced English cucumber
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
1/2 lb. imitation crabmeat
1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
1/4 cup sliced green onion
1/4 cup sliced green olives
1 head butter lettuce
Thinly sliced English cucumber*

Drain peach halves reserving liquid for other uses. Combine buttermilk-style dressing with cucumber and dill; chill. Combine crab, celery, onion and olives. To serve, line plates with lettuce leaves. Place 2 peach halves on each plate. Top with crab mixture and drizzle with dressing. Makes 5 servings.

*Garnish with cucumber if desired.

ICED TEA THREE EASY WAYS

The Cold Water Way: Fill a quart jar or pitcher with cold water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags). Cover and store in refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Remove bags, squeezing against side of container. Makes 1 quart. Recipe may be doubled.

The Instant Way: Allow 2 rounded tablespoons of instant tea powder for each quart of cold water. Stir to dissolve. If using a flavored iced tea mix, use 1/2 cup (or 2 envelopes) to a quart of cold water.

The Traditional Way: Bring 1 quart of cold water to a full boil in a saucepan. Remove from heat and immediately add 10 teabags or 1/3 cup loose tea leaves. Stir, cover and let stand 3 to 5 minutes. Strain into quart pitcher. Add cold water to fill pitcher.

FRUITED TORTELLINI SALAD

1 can (16 oz.) fruit cocktail in juice or extra light syrup
1 package (10 oz.) frozen cheese-filled tortellini
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup sliced celery
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup chopped red onion
1/2 cup Italian dressing
2 Tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
1 teaspoon Italian herb seasonings
1 head red leaf lettuce

Drain fruit cocktail reserving liquid for other uses. Cook tortellini as package directs; drain. Combine tortellini with fruit cocktail, mushrooms, celery, green pepper and red onion. Blend dressing with mustard and Italian herb seasonings. Toss tortellini mixture with dressing. Chill for flavors to blend. Serve on bed of red leaf lettuce. Makes 4 servings.

MARINATED CHICKEN BREAST SALAD

1 can (16 oz.) cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
1/2 cup creamy French dressing
1/4 cup green onion slivers
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
4 boneless chicken breast halves, cooked and skinned
1 head curly lettuce
1 pint basket strawberries, halved
2 kiwifruit, peeled and sliced

Drain peaches reserving 1 tablespoon liquid; save remainder for other uses. Combine reserved peach liquid with French dressing, green onion and ginger. Pour dressing over chicken and marinate for 1 hour. To serve, place lettuce leaves onto 4 serving plates. Slice each chicken breast 3/4 of the way through into 1/4-inch slices. Place chicken on lettuce; drizzle with remaining dressing. Arrange peach slices, strawberries and kiwifruit slices around chicken. Makes 4 servings.

CHEESY HAM SALAD

(Not Pictured)

1 can (16 oz.) cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
6 cups torn romaine lettuce
1 cup watercress sprigs
1 cup slivered, cooked ham
1/2 cup slivered Jack cheese
1/2 cup thinly sliced red onion
1/2 cup garlic and cheese dressing
2 Tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Drain peaches reserving liquid for other uses. In large serving bowl combine peach slices, romaine lettuce, watercress, ham, Jack cheese and red onion. Toss with dressing and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Makes 2 quarts.

Ratatouille fit to be stuffed

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The French love their ratatouille — a mixture of zucchini with other vegetables that's as colorful to look at as it is to pronounce.

Now, from Florida, comes an intriguing way of packaging this traditional dish — into hollowed-out tomatoes. The appearance seems perfect for spring.

RATATOUILLE-STUFFED TOMATOES

4 large tomatoes (about 2 pounds)
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ cup diced zucchini
½ cup green pepper in ½-inch squares
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon crushed basil leaves
1/16 teaspoon ground black pepper

Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cut off stem end of each tomato. Scoop out and reserve pulp, leaving ¼-inch thick shells. Turn tomatoes cup side down to drain.

Cut reserved pulp into ¼-inch pieces (makes about 1½ cups) and set aside. In a small saucepan, heat oil until hot. Add onion and garlic. Saute until onion is transparent, about 5 minutes.

Add zucchini, green pepper, salt, basil, black pepper and reserved diced tomato. Cook and stir over medium heat until vegetables are tender, about 4 minutes. Drain off liquid. Spoon vegetable mixture into reserved tomato shells.

Place in a shall baking pan containing ½-inch of water. Cover and bake until tomatoes are tender, 20 to 25 minutes.

CAMPBELL'S SOUP IS GOOD FOOD

Lowly potato has misunderstood reputation

By NANCY HARMON JENKINS
New York Times News Service

QUESTION: What is high in carbohydrates and low in fat, high in vitamins A and C, potassium and other minerals, including some calcium, and low in calories, a good source of fiber, delicious whether baked or boiled, a staple for millions and misunderstood as "too fattening" by millions more?

Answer: The lowly potato.

The potato's reputation as a fattening food comes from the way it is prepared: fried in deep fat, dressed with sour cream, crumbled bacon, mayonnaise or butter. Or worse, some fast-food chains are now promoting the potato as the all-purpose, single-course meal with globs of chili, cheese or other gooey fillings. It need not be that way.

Potatoes are starchy vegetables, but many Americans have omitted or unnecessarily restricted starch, one of four basic types of carbohydrates (the three others are dietary fiber, sugar and refined sugar). But starch is a part of a balanced diet.

FURTHERMORE, POTATOES are low in calories — a small one contains fewer than 100, and a baked potato weighing 8 to 10 ounces, about the size served in most restaurants, contains 215 to 270 calories. Both white and sweet potatoes are also rich in vitamin C, providing 33 percent of the recommended daily amount. Sweet potatoes are also a source of vitamin A, and potato skins are a good source of dietary fiber.

Like other starches, though, potatoes absorb a great deal of fat in cooking, given the chance. A plain baked potato is better than an equal portion of french fries, which contain nearly three times the calories.

With sweet little new potatoes arriving in markets, now is a good time to make a salad of new potatoes in the French style. New potatoes are not a specific variety — any potato, whether russet, red, white, Dutch, Finnish or Maine, is a new potato if it is small and immature.

New potatoes should have thin, fragile skins that can be rubbed away easily with the thumb — an indication that they are truly "new" and not, as one produce dealer said recently, "last year's new potatoes."

Steam the washed, unpeeled potatoes until you can pierce them easily with a knife (they should still be firm, however). While still hot, slice them in quarter-inch rounds and dress them immediately with a little extra-virgin olive oil, a few drops of vinegar and salt and pepper.

WHENEVER POSSIBLE, potatoes should be cooked in their skins — most of the minerals and other nutrients lie just beneath the surface. If necessary, the skin can be removed, but peel it as thinly as possible. People on low-salt diets should avoid the skins, which, alas, also contain sodium.

A firm Idaho russet needs nothing more than a scrub under running water to be ready for a hot oven — 400 to 425 degrees. A medium-size potato should take about an hour to bake.

Once the potato is baked, crack it open, and add yogurt instead of your standard sour cream, salt (an option) and a coarse grating of black pepper. To add zing, sprinkle the yogurt with chopped fresh chives, minced scallions, a little finely minced garlic with crumbled dried rosemary or chopped fresh basil.

A new cookbook, "The Noble Spud" (Penguin, $10.95), by Judy Wells and Rick Johnson, is devoted to the potato. Though many recipes call for quantities of cream and butter, some have none at all. For example, sillisalatti, a Finnish salad of diced potatoes, pickled beets, apples and marinated herring, is mixed in a light vinaigrette.

The wise cook can experiment, substituting low-fat buttermilk or yogurt for cream, and small amounts of vegetable oil for butter.

When in a restaurant, do not forego a dollop or two of low-fat yogurt.

Potato flour has double thickening power

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Made from cooked potatoes that have been dried and ground, potato flour (sometimes called potato starch) has a thickening power of 2 to 2½ times that of flour. When substituting for flour, use about half or a little less potato flour than the amount of all-purpose specified.

Potato flour may be used like all-purpose flour in gravies and savory sauces and — unlike flour that gives an opaque appearance — it produces a translucent sauce. As with cornstarch, to prevent lumping, potato flour should not be added directly to any hot or bubbling liquid. Instead it should be first dissolved in cold liquid before stirring into the hot mixture.

French-type potato salad catching on in United States

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

There are several kinds of potato salads. In the United States, after World War I, potato salad made with a "boiled dressing" was a favorite. Boiled dressing was basically a cream sauce to which eggs, sugar and mustard were added.

Then came the era of mayonnaise. It went into most potato salads, and sometimes it was mixed with sour cream. Nowadays it's still widely used and sometimes mixed with yogurt.

At present the French way of dressing potato salad is taking hold in the U.S.A. Its base is an oil-vinegar combination to which lots of good things such as herbs and other seasonings are added. Here is a good version of French-Style Potato Salad.

FRENCH-STYLE POTATO SALAD

1¼ pound small red potatoes (about 12 to 14)
3 tablespoons dry white wine
¼ cup light olive oil
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
½ to 1 teaspoon tarragon, if desired
¼ to ½ teaspoon pepper
Salt, to taste
2 scallions, thinly sliced
¼ cup parsley leaves, finely chopped
Boston lettuce

In a 2- to 3-quart saucepan with a tight-fitting lid, cook potatoes in about 1 inch boiling water just until tender — about 15 minutes. Drain and cool slightly; cut into ¼-inch slices. Drizzle wine over potatoes; toss gently and reserve.

In a small bowl whisk together oil, vinegar, mustard, tarragon, pepper and salt; stir in scallion and parsley. Pour dressing over reserved potatoes; toss gently to coat.

Arrange on lettuce on a serving platter. Serve at room temperature.

Makes 4 servings.

Chef goes from musician to kitchen

By ELIZABETH EDWIN
Lifestyle Writer

From musician to kitchen — Mark Tanney put aside his musical arts to pursue a career in the culinary arts.

Tanney was born and grew up in Los Angeles. He graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara majoring in music composition. Although he is a degreed musician who played the piano and flute and sang, he said he prefers to listen to music now. Tanney said he he has always enjoyed cooking and prefers to use his talents as a chef.

Tanney has been the head chef for Anasazi Restaurant, 350 Midland Dr., for about six months, but has been in the business for 11 years. Tanney "began at the bottom" working in California for minimum wage as kitchen prep help peeling potatoes, "but I did get to skip the dishwashing," he added.

He worked his way up the ladder to the position of rotation and apprentice chef at such places as the restaurants in the Bel-air Hotel and the Plaza Four in Century City.

Tanney also had his own catering business for five years in San Francisco. There he joined with the Hilton Corporation and was transferred to Midland as a head chef. In March, Tanney became the head chef for Anasazi Restaurant.

After living in Midland for six months, Tanney discovered that moving to Midland from California required some adjustments in his cooking. He found that his fare had to be altered some what to fit the taste of Texans.

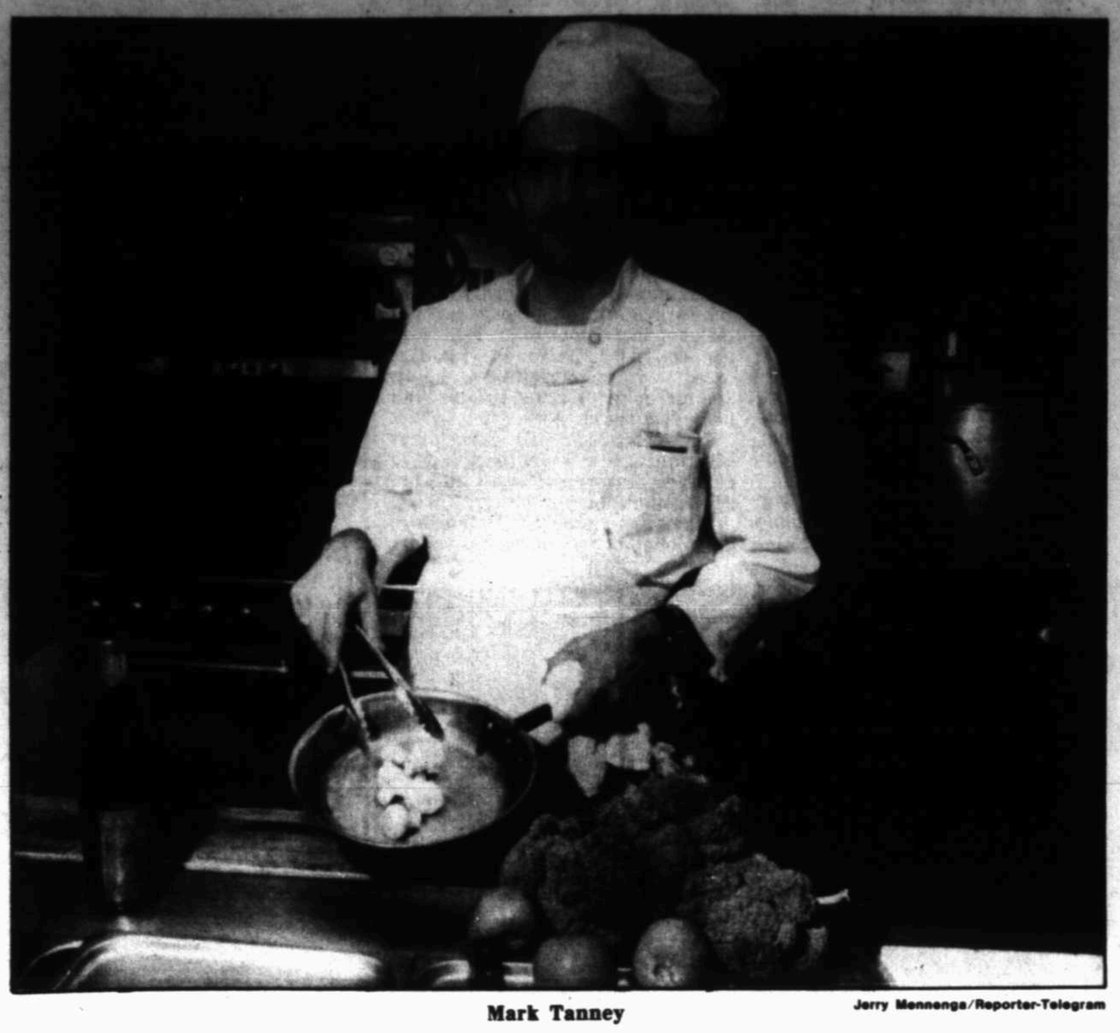
"There are certain things that just wouldn't be accepted here," Tanney said. "People here are less interested in adventure when it comes to their food. They are much more conservative. I stay more down to earth."

He credited John and Jan Williams, owners of Anasazi's, with creating a well-balanced menu that should have something to please everyone's palate.

"There is a balance in this restaurant. You can have spaghetti for $5.50 or you can order Chateaubriand with a fine wine," Tanney said. "There is really something for everyone."

Tanney has no plans of returning to California right now. He is very pleased with his position at Anasazi's.

"I think it is the best public restaurant in town. You might find something like Anasazi's at one of the private clubs, but not at a public restaurant," Tanney said.



Mark Tanney

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Tanney prepares daily specials for Anasazi's from his own recipes. His favorite dishes to prepare include the newer French and Italian cuisines. These are similar to the traditional recipes but have a more creative approach.

"I aim mostly for distinct flavors rather than the bland and I like to place special attention on plate presentation," Tanney said.

Tanney is married and said he does most of the cooking at home by his own choice. "I don't get tired of it. The hours of this job are long, so you better like it," Tanney said.

Tanney said he might like to pick up his musical talents again as a hobby "when my hours are a little more balanced," but for now he is happy cooking his specialties for the patrons of Anasazi's.

Tanney chose to share one of his specialties that can be easily prepared at home.

BRICK CHICKEN ANASAZI
2 large boneless, skinless breast of chicken
Marinate chicken overnight in:
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup olive oil
½ teaspoon garlic, chopped
½ teaspoon shallots, chopped
½ teaspoon leaf oregano
Salt, white pepper and sugar, a dash of each

Cook on barbecue grill for three minutes each side. Place a brick or other heavy object on chicken as it cooks to flatten and aid speed of cooking.

Chicken can also be cooked in a pan with the brick on top. Serve with a sprinkle of marinade. Serves two people.

Tacos de Mariscos shine during recent 'Night in Old San Antonio'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Night in Old San Antonio offers music and dance, flamenco and gunfight shows, Polish folk dancers and bands with names like Vito and the Kactus Kickers.

It also serves as a showcase for some of the finest in Southwest cuisine.

This year, the four-night event in late April was the centerpiece of a 10-day celebration of Alamo heroes and just about everything else during the state's 150th birthday.

A taste test is held each year to pick a winner to debut at Night in Old San Antonio. Tacos de Mariscos was the winner for 1986.

TACOS DE MARISCOS
2 tablespoon oil
1½ tablespoon fresh minced garlic
1½ tablespoon minced serrano chilis
1 cup fresh finely chopped tomatoes
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
⅔ cup chopped onion
⅓ cup crabmeat
1 cup cooked deveined shrimp
3 tablespoon tomato juice
½ teaspoon salt
Corn tortillas

Saute garlic and chilis in oil until soft, then add tomatoes, cilantro and onions. Saute gently, stirring constantly.

Add crabmeat, shrimp, tomato juice and salt to the mixture and mix gently until the liquid is reduced.

Dip corn tortillas in oil, heat on a hot castiron grill until softened. Fill tortilla with seafood filling and serve. Makes 7 tacos.

DEAR ABBY

Great Debate on odor-free air continues

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A reader named "Audrey" wrote: "When you can smoke and keep all the smoke inside yourself and not blow it into the air I must breathe, then you have the right to smoke, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your smoke."

Now, please quote me: "When you can wear perfume, cologne and after-shave and keep all the aroma inside yourself and not fill the air I must breathe, then you have the right to wear it, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your perfume, cologne and after-shave."

Let's hear it for signs that read: "Thank You for Not Wearing Perfume, Cologne or After-Shave." — FRANK IN PHOENIX

DEAR FRANK: Now that fragrances have become big business, one enters a crowded elevator without a gas mask at his/her own risk. The problem is not actually perfume, cologne or after-shave — it's the "smell-goods" who drench themselves in it.

Let's be fair, Frank. While too much can be merely annoying, it's life-threatening only to those who are highly allergic. The solution: All fragrances should be labeled: "Warning: Use sparingly. Excessive amounts may render you friendless."

LISTEN, ABBY: I'm sick and tired of reading about the "rights" of non-smokers to shove smokers around and make them feel guilty. My wife has now begun to threaten me, saying she just might go back to work, move out and live by herself where she won't have to breathe my cigarette smoke.

Well, that's OK by me. There are plenty of women who would be glad to have a good provider like me and the smoke wouldn't bother them too much. Or, I'm sure, I wouldn't have any trouble finding a woman who smokes and who won't bellyache about my smoking.

I work hard, and when I get home I enjoy my smokes. What does the wife do but stay home all day, clean the house and look after our two kids? She says my heavy smoking will hurt the kids. Well, they can get out, too. I'm the breadwinner in this family and I have my rights. If she's afraid of getting lung cancer because I smoke a couple of packs a day, she can just hold her breath.

I'll bet I don't see this in your column, but I'm mailing it anyway. — SMOKEY SAM FROM DELAWARE

LISTEN, SAM: You lose.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your response that a "thank-you" scribbled on the back of a check (given as a gift) is better than no thank-you at all: Not in our case. My husband and I have checking accounts in three separate financial institutions, none of which return the original checks with their statements. So a thank-you would never be seen by either one of us.

So, for those who are too lazy to write a thank-you note for a check, a telephone thank-you would be better than none at all.

The common courtesy of a thank-you note is a combination of personal caring for the feelings of others, sincere gratitude and parental teaching. I have a 12-year-old niece who still does not write a thank-you note unless I make a federal case out of it. For her 13th birthday, instead of a gift, I plan to write her a letter explaining that I am tired of having to ask for a thank-you, so I'm not sending her anything. Think she'll get the message? (Her mother is just as bad.) — CHRIS P.

DEAR CHRIS: Thanks for the update on canceled checks. I was not aware that some financial institutions do not send them with their statements.

About the "thank-you note" hassle, most parents have had to remind, nag, threaten or bribe their children to write thank-you notes. Some parents are so embarrassed or impatient, they write the notes themselves and beg the child to "copy it."

I believe that children learn responsibility from having to bear the consequences of their own actions. To rush in and rescue an ungrateful, procrastinating or lazy child teaches him only that if he doesn't do it, Mama will.

Not everyone feels the same about receiving a "thank-you." Some give for the joy of giving and readily overlook the absence of a thank-you. However, people with good manners send a written note of thanks — promptly.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

THE BUTCHER

New electric knife sharpener a cut above

By MERLE ELLIS

Dull kitchen knives are more than an annoyance. They are downright dangerous. It's the dull knife that you try to force through whatever you're trying to cut that is most apt to slip and end up cutting you. A sharp knife that glides through effortlessly and under your total control is not only a far safer tool but one that is a joy to use. Yet, finding a really sharp knife in most kitchens is next to impossible. Even cooks who spend a lot of money on expensive kitchen equipment, including fine kitchen cutlery, seem to have difficulty maintaining a sharp cutting edge on a kitchen knife.

Sharpening a knife is not a simple process. There are three separate and distinct steps involved and the first of those, grinding, was, until recently, best left to a professional. Grinding a knife requires special equipment that you just don't find on top of your electric can opener. The other two steps, honing and steeling, can be done in the kitchen but they, too, require some special equipment, some type of hone and a butcher's steel, and they, too, demand some expertise. The lack, in most kitchens of that combination of proper equipment and expertise, is what accounts for most dull knives.

Finally, there is a knife sharpener on the market that does an exceptional job of all three steps in this process and with such simple precision that anyone can use it successfully. There is no longer any excuse for a dull kitchen knife with the Chef's Choice Diamond Hone Sharpener.

Up to now, I've had little use for electric knife sharpeners. Most of them are bad at best, and the worst of them ought to be outlawed. They eat knives! They can turn a 10-inch steak knife into a 6-inch boning knife in less than six months! The Chef's Choice is unlike any other knife sharpener designed for home use that I have ever encountered. It does a marvelous job.

Wally Peck introduced me to the Chef's Choice. Wally is a local representative for Edgecraft Corp., the company that developed and manufactures the sharpener. Wally is the kind of guy who gets very enthusiastic about the things he sells. I guess you have to be a good salesman. But Wally is also an old friend and he knows that I do not always share his enthusiasm about some of the new products that hit the market. When he called to tell me about the Chef's Choice, he said: "Merle, I know how you feel about electric knife sharpeners. But, you've got to let me show you this new one. Give me five minutes, Merle. I swear, you'll be amazed!"

Wally brought the Chef's Choice over to the office and proceeded to give me a demonstration. He picked out one of my knives, a 10-inch chef's knife that needed a little touching up, and used that to show me how the machine worked.

The machine has three sets of angled slots that are magnetized in such a way as to hold the blade at the proper angle as it is drawn over rotating stones embedded with tiny diamond particles. The first set of slots in effect "grinds" the blade (the company calls it "presharpening"). The second is comparable to honing and the final set of slots puts on the razor sharp edge traditionally accomplished by the proper use of a butcher's steel. The whole job is done quickly and easily.

When Wally handed the knife back to me for inspection, I touched the blade and agreed that the Chef's Choice had done a nice job. I was impressed, but not yet sold. I went to the cupboard and got out a very dull and very old lamb splitter that once belonged to my grandfather. Now a lamb splitter is not your basic kitchen knife. It's more like a machete and this machine is designed for kitchen knives, but I thought to myself, "if we're going to test this thing, let's test it." Five minutes later, after several passes of the blade through the three sets of slots on the Chef's Choice, I held up a piece of typing paper and slick-as-a-whistle sliced off slice after slice from one corner. That old lamb splitter was sharp! Sharper than it had ever been! I was sold!

Really good things don't come cheap - and the Chef's Choice is no exception. Its recommended retail price is around $80. If you have a nice set of expensive cutlery that won't cut, this may be just what you need.

For more information on the Chef's Choice and where it is available in your area, write: Edgecraft Corporation, P.O. Box 4496, Greenville, DE 19807. Tell 'em Wally sent ya!

Culinary star puts celery dish in her spotlight

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

The extraordinarily talented Madeleine Kamman, author of the new book, "Made ine Cooks" (Morrow), is back agai.

She came to the United States when she was a young Frenchwoman, about 25 years ago, and she and her husband raised their family here. Eventually her husband's work took him to Massachusetts and she founded her famous cooking school and restaurant in that state.

Several years ago she returned to France, conducting her cooking school there. But apparently the United States beckoned, and now she is once more a vital part of the American culinary scene. These days she lives in Glen, N.H., where she continues to teach and where she has opened a new restaurant.

"Madeleine Cooks" was prepared as a companion volume to a series of Kamman's television shows. It offers easily prepared recipes based on her French skills and exquisite taste along with her respect for American ingredients.

This recipe for "Celery, Raisins and Walnuts" is one of Kamman's unusual and delicious combinations.

CELERY, RAISINS AND WALNUTS

5 large ribs celery
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup dark raisins, soaked 1 hour in lukewarm water and drained
¼ cup chopped walnuts
Salt
Pepper from the mill
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Peel the celery ribs of all their superficial fibers. Cut the ribs across into ⅛-inch-thick half-moons. Blanch them for 1 minute in boiling salted water so they turn bright green. Drain well, pat dry.

Heat the butter in a skillet; add celery, raisins and walnuts. Toss in the hot butter until well heated through. Add the salt, pepper and parsley and serve quickly.

Makes 4 to 6 servings. From "Madeleine Cooks" by Madeleine Kamman (Morrow).

Dettman offering amnesty for hot-check writers

Mark Dettman

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Hot checks still abound.

And Midland County Attorney Mark Dettman is just as intent on collecting on those checks as he was a year ago when he launched a successful "round-up" of habitual hot-check writers.

"Our economy is down," Dettman said Tuesday, "but that's still no excuse for stealing — thieving. It (hot-check writing) is developing into a problem, and it's increasing lately."

To combat those "bad" checks written on accounts with non-sufficient funds (NSF) or on closed accounts and those checks on "no accounts" at all, Dettman is offering a "sort of an amnesty" for a 30-day period — until June 13, a Friday. "Friday the 13th will be an unlucky day for some people," he said, "because that day we're going to start arresting people," Dettman said.

"So, people need to come down (to the Midland County Courthouse) and pay off their checks or make arrangements to pay them pay off. I understand times are tough."

"Times are tough for everyone," he said. "And it's certainly not time for merchants to be victimized by theft. It's not fair for merchants to bear the brunt of $550,000 to $750,000 worth of hot checks per year."

The County Attorney's Office processes that amount in checks of $20 to $749.99. A theft-by-check offense of $750 or more is a felony offense and could result in a penitentiary sentence for the convicted offender.

DETTMAN SAID he wants "to give people a chance to come in and pay off their checks." If they don't, he will issue warrants for the arrest of hot-check writers, "and they are going to be arrested and put in jail."

"Writing hot checks does not create a debtor-creditor relationship," Dettman said. "Generally, it creates the offense of theft."

Even the filing for bankruptcy by hot-check writers "will not prevent" Dettman from filing criminal charges on their hot-check cases.

A hot-check written for $20 to $199.99 could net the offender a six-month jail term and a $1,000 fine. A hot-check in that monetary range is classified as a Class B misdemeanor. A hot-check written for $200 to $749.99 is a Class A misdemeanor and could result in a one-year jail term and a $2,000 fine for the offender.

"That's for each check written," Dettman said.

Even a Class C misdemeanor theft — theft under $20 — could result in a conviction and a fine of up to $200. "And that's morale turpitude."

Dettman said if the hot-check writers will cooperate with the victimized merchants and with his office in making restitution, criminal charges will not be filed against them. "As long as they try to work with us, we won't file criminal charges," Dettman noted. "Some of them are just honest mistakes, and they pay off the checks, and that's that."

"IF THEY IGNORE their responsibility, it's our intent to put them in jail."

If a hot check is for about $75, Dettman said he expects restitution to be made within 30 days. But, for example, if one person's string of hot checks totals considerably more, say $3,000, Dettman said he would help the hot-check writers to set up "some sort of payment plan to ensure that the merchants will get their money back."

However, Dettman said "some people deliberately write hot checks," and refuse to respond to demand letters, and decline to make restitution.

Nevertheless, even those seemingly incorrigible people can voluntarily come into his office and "arrange to pay off" the bad checks.

"Or, they can come in involuntarily and let the criminal justice system deal with them."

Dettman said he is "not trying to be overly tough on hot-check writers who may be out of work or who have other problems."

"However, it is still a criminal offense, and it's my job to enforce criminal laws."

Dettman's 30-day amnesty essentially is an "advance warning" of another round-up of hot-check writers who ignore notices to pay off those bad checks.

"People have a tendency to know if they have hot checks out," he said.

Dettman's 30-day amnesty period does not apply to those repeat offenders "who ignored all of our efforts" and notices. Cases against them will be or have been filed. "They have had their chance."

Council told extra $13 million needed to improve streets

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Improving city streets is a frequently voiced hope in Midland, but it would take $13 million more than is currently budgeted just to maintain the streets at their current level of quality over the next five years, the City Council was told Tuesday.

"The most critical streets for us are the arterial streets" such as Wadley and Illinois avenues and Lamesa and Garfield streets, said Fred Baker, the director of public works, as he presented the council with a computerized inventory of the city's streets.

The study rated each street on a scale of zero to 100, and the average score was 77.6, Baker said. It would take about $28.9 million over the next five years "to maintain our streets at 75," and that's about $13 million more than what the city has budgeted for street maintenance, Baker said.

Reconstructing a high-priority list of the more decrepit arterial streets would cost $12.2 million, he added.

The council accepted the report with little comment.

Earlier at their Tuesday meeting at City Hall, the council had voted to deny the Permian Basin Farmer's Market a temporary-use permit to sell their produce at the Dellwood Mall parking lot.

"I think this location totally flies in the face of all our zoning ordinances," said Councilman David Godfrey, who noted the council was recently embroiled in a similar controversy involving the Wal-Mart store on Loop 250.

"We'd like to be considered as a special group," said Guy Richards, who represented the Farmer's Market. "We're asking for a place to start."

A petition against granting the permit signed by 27 retailers near Dellwood Mall was presented by Patricia Wettstein, who owns land across from the mall.

The council voiced support for the idea of a farmer's market, but not in an area zoned for retail businesses.

"This is very difficult because our community needs a farmer's market and we've got to find someplace for it," said Councilman Gordon Marcum II.

In other action, the council elected Katie Heck as mayor pro tem to preside in Mayor Carroll Thomas' absence; received a consultant's report on the Midland Police Department elected Marcum as the council's representative to the State Highway Department's policy advisory committee; and honored retiring Police Inspector Joe Miles with a special commendation.

Man sentenced to 40 years for aggravated sexual assault

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

A 22-year-old man was sentenced Tuesday to 40 years in prison after he was found guilty of aggravated sexual assault against an 8-year-old Midland girl.

After about three hours of deliberation, a seven-man, five-woman jury found John Yusko, formerly of New York, guilty of forcing a girl to perform oral sex on him the day after Christmas. Yusko, a friend of the victim's stepfather, lived with the victim's family in a three-bedroom trailer on south Cotton Flat Road for about one month.

Before the jury deliberated, assistant District Attorney Tom Morgan showed a videotape of the victim testifying one day after the assault. During his case presentation Morgan did not show the videotape, but instead had the 8-year-old take the stand. He said he didn't want to rely on the tape because a higher Court of Criminal Appeals may have found videotaped testimony unconstitutional.

However, on Tuesday Morgan introduced the tape after he rested his case because, a defense witness made "a prior inconsistent statement" about the victim. A neighbor of the victim, Janeice Johnson, testified that after the assault the victim told her nothing happened. Two other children also testified that the victim told them nothing happened between her and Yusko.

"The only reason I introduced it (the videotape) was on rebuttal. Prior consistent statements are admissible on rebuttal," Morgan said.

On the videotape, the victim told a sheriff's officer about the assault that occurred on Dec. 26, 1985 when the girl was 7. The girl said she was in the bathroom when Yusko pulled her out and led her to his room he was sharing with two of her brothers.

In his closing statements, Morgan told the jury, "Just remember conflicts in testimony are not reasonable doubts. If it were, nobody would be found guilty of anything."

Defense attorney Jack Chappell told the jury in his closing statements, "All three of these witnesses indicated that they had a problem with (the victim's name) ability to tell the truth."

Morgan requested a minimum 50-year sentence from the jury, but said he was satisfied with the jury's 40-year sentence. During testimony to decide punishment, Yusko's relatives took the stand to request probation.

Smith: Knowledge in oil, agriculture distinguishes him

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Lamar Smith

Although they agree on almost all the issues, Lamar Smith insists there are characteristics distinguishing him from his fellow Republican opponent Van Archer.

The difference is a personal knowledge of the oil and agriculture business, Smith said. Archer and Smith are vying for the GOP nomination to the 21st Congressional District in a June 7 runoff.

"It's important for the people of Midland to realize that I am the only candidate in the race with a personal knowledge of oil," Smith said, on a campaign stop in Midland Tuesday.

Part of Smith's income is made off oil and he has partial ownership of a farm and ranch.

During the May 3 primary, Smith received 31 percent of the Republican vote and Archer got 25 percent. Former State Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland received the Democratic nomination for the November Congressional race.

Smith was joined on his campaign stop by his former opponents, Jeff Wentworth and Henry Gandy. Wentworth, who said he has known both Smith and Archer for the past 30 years, said he supported Smith because, "Clearly Lamar has the traits and attributes that most of us would like to see in our government."

Wentworth said he also supported Smith because he lived in the 21st Congressional District, while Archer does not.

"It doesn't make any sense to me to send someone into Washington who lives in a completely separate district. It doesn't make much sense, but it's legal," Wentworth said.

Psychiatric hospital ground breaking set

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Nearly four years after a three-way battle to open a psychiatric hospital resulted in none, an Austin firm has announced next week's ground breaking of Glenwood, a $3.9 million, 64-bed facility, to be located between Midland and Odessa.

"Glenwood will actively address the mental health needs of the Midland-Odessa area," said Diane McIver, a spokeswoman for Healthcare International Inc. "It will provide a total living environment for individuals who need help in managing their emotional problems. For each patient the intensity of supervision and amount of activity will be modified to meet individual needs."

The ceremony will take place May 22 at the site near the intersection of Farm-to-Market 1788 and Highway 80.

The announcement comes almost four years after Midland Memorial Hospital, Parkview Hospital (now Physicians and Surgeons) and Southwest Health of Midland/Odessa Inc., became embroiled in a bureaucratic battle for the right to be the sole builder of a private psychiatric hospital in the region. The conflict arose over obtaining certificate of needs to go ahead with construction, from the now-defunct Texas Health Facilities Commission.

MMH was granted a CON to build a psychiatric/substance abuse facility, but eventually settled on teaming up with two Arizona health firms to build Clearview, a drug and alcohol treatment center, exclusively.

Southwest, which had plans to develop West Plains Hospital, a $4.1 million psychiatric facility was given approval by the THFC to build but later dropped their plans and sold the property to Healthcare International, which is currently developing Glenwood on the same site.

Parkview (now Physicians and Surgeons) was denied a CON by the THFC and went on to develop plans for construction of a replacement hospital. The plan never materialized and was followed by a confusing vie for ownership, resulting in the current situation — a doctor-owned, corporation-owned hospital renewing plans for a replacement facility.

The latest twist in efforts to bring a psychiatric hospital to the area is the Healthcare International facility, which should be completed in early spring 1987, according to Ms. McIver.

Despite the energetic efforts by health officials to build such a facility, not everyone believes the psychiatric hospital is needed.

"I think the Permian Basin is underdeveloped in psychiatric care but there are other ways to deal with it besides building another hospital," said Phil Lundberg, director of Clearview.

Lundberg has indicated in past interviews that although Clearview is a drug and alcohol treatment center, the line is not black and white between a psychiatric patient and a substance abuse patient.

"There is a lot of crossover," he said. "If 10 percent of the population (roughly) has psychiatric problems, then you can assume that 10 percent (or higher) of the substance abuse patients have psychiatric problems."

Lundberg expressed similar doubts at the Oct. 1985 opening of a psychiatric hospital at Andrew's Permian General Hospital.

"I think there is a potential that we can help each other, but I also think there could be competition depending on what their psychiatrists are going to do," he said.

Lundberg acknowledged that competition is growing among substance abuse centers in the Permian Basin. With Lea Regional Hospital in Hobbs, N.M., Permian General in Andrews, Cross Roads in Big Spring and Big Spring State Hospital, the director still feels Clearview has a healthy chance of coming out on top.

"In a recent survey by Midland-Odessa Pulse (a quarterly survey conducted on a broad range of subject), 54 percent of the Midland respondents named Clearview when asked to name an alcohol/drug treatment center in West Texas," said Lundberg.

Investigators look into reported armed robbery

From Staff Reports

Sheriff's investigators are looking into a reported armed robbery said to have occurred about 1:15 this morning at a northwest Midland apartment complex.

Sherry Ruth Sander, 4315 Neely, Apt. 904, reported being robbed of $188 in currency by a man who threatened her with a small-caliber handgun, according to Sheriff's Sgt. Jim Newsom. No arrest had been made, but the investigation was continuing, he said.

In other reports, a fire of undetermined origin destroyed a trailer house on Highway 158 southeast of Midland early this morning, according to Midland Fire Department reports.

The fire, reported at 2:21 a.m., started in the bedroom of the trailer owned by Laura Lane, reports said. There were no injuries reported.

A 17-year-old Midland man shot in the back of the head Sunday remained in critical condition this morning, a Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman said.

Manuel Carrasco, 1623 English, was shot after an argument with two men at Hogan Park, according to police reports. No arrests have been made in the case, a police spokesman said this morning.

The Midland Fire Marshall's Office is investigating the suspected arson of a 1976 Chevrolet El Camino.

The car, which belongs to Mike Basham, sustained minor damage after it was set on fire about 4:50 this morning near Basham's home on County Road 122 near the Ector County line, reports said.

Kari Reagan, 3208 Stutz, reported a Monday burglary in which property worth a total of more than $4,000 was taken, according to police reports.

Among the missing items were a $2,500 ring, a $1,000 ring and two watches worth $350 and $200, respectively, reports said.

Man arrested for DWI may be out of chances

FORT WORTH (AP) — John Michael Bell has been arrested three times on alcohol-related driving cases since he slammed his car into 16-year-old Barry Head, killing the youth almost instantly.

Head's parents say Bell, who has been placed on probation and sent to an alcohol-treatment program, has had more than a second chance.

"He's been fined, he's lost his driver's license, he's gone through rehabilitation," said Arlene Grady, Head's mother. "People make mistakes, but how many chances do you get? In my opinion, he has no desire to change."

Bell, 21, is in a Tarrant County jail waiting to find out whether he will go to prison. It marks the second time that a motion has been filed asking that the court revoke Bell's 10-year probated sentence.

He received the sentence for his involuntary manslaughter conviction in Head's death.

Prosecutor Scott Wisch said Monday that the hearing probably will be set for three or four weeks from now. By then, nearly three years will have passed since Head was killed.

At the time Bell was sentenced, State District Judge Toby Goldsmith warned him that he would go to prison if he violated the law, Head's parents said. Goldsmith said he did not remember what he told Bell.

"I'm sure I told (Bell) that," Goldsmith said. "I tell them all that, because if you don't, you might be doing them an injustice by pulling their probation."

Head's father, Mick Grady, said he didn't realize until this month that Bell had been in further trouble with the law.

Bell's record shows a driving while intoxicated arrest in Parker County a month after Head was killed June 28, 1983; another DWI arrest in Parker County May 28, 1984; and a public intoxication charge in Fort Worth on Nov. 3 1985, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

"First, I was extremely saddened, then I was just totally frustrated because I couldn't understand why the system wouldn't work," Mrs. Grady said. "I didn't find out until last week about the arrest in May 1984, and then I was outraged."

When Bell appeared before Goldsmith on a probation violation charge for the first time, the judge sent him into the county's high-risk alcohol treatment program.

"I just felt like that might save him — and it didn't," Goldsmith said. "He was a young man."

Wisch said Bell has run out of second chances.

"Our position is that society has given him every opportunity to correct his conduct," Wisch said. "To me there's no other option (besides prison) that would serve justice."

Arrest in shooting leads to confiscation of marijuana

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The arrest of four people Tuesday night, one in connection with a shooting that wounded a 20-year-old man, resulted in the confiscation of more than a pound of marijuana.

About 9:20 p.m. Tuesday, Odessa police and Ector County sheriff's deputies, acting on a Crime Stoppers tip and a search warrant issued by Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee, raided a residence in the 6400 block of Jay Avenue, west of FM 1936, and arrested three men after confiscating about a pound of a substance believed to be marijuana.

Arraigned before Municipsl Judge J.E. Weatherly on charges of possession of a controlled substance, marijuana, this morning were: Pedro J. Olivas, 38, 6408 Jay Ave.; Joe L. Ortega, 47, 511 W. Lindberg and Francisco Subia, 34, who listed an address in Tucson, Ariz. According to police spokesman John McAhon, Subia was initially arrested under the name of Oscar A. Martinez, but an indetification check revealed his true name was Subia.

Weatherly set bond for the trio at $1,500 each on the possession charges.

Bond has also been set at $1,500 on a charge of aggravated assault for 29-year-old Kenneth Lee Gillespie, 810 N. Tom Green, in connection with the shooting of a 20-year-old man at the Taco Villa, 501 E. 8th St., about 10:25 p.m. Tuesday.

McAhon said Paul Plenn Van Zandt, 3409 Winfield, was allegedly shot as he came around a corner on the west side of the Taco Villa building. A single bullet struck Van Zandt in leg, McAhon said. He was taken to Medical Center Hospital for treatment and was reported in good condition today.

Gillespie was arrested a short time later at his home. A search of the residence by arresting officers, McAhon said, produced about one ounce of marijuana.

All four men were slated to be transferred to the Ector County jail later today.

Odessa families claim gas leaks from well

ODESSA (AP) — Three families forced from their homes by a hydrogen sulfide gas leak claimed the gas had seeped from the well for at least five months.

But a representative of Conoco Inc., owner of the well, said Tuesday that workers responded promptly to the gas leak Sunday night.

W.J. "Tony" Gordon, division operations manager for Conoco in Midland, said the leak didn't appear to pose a hazard to the families, who live in three houses just north of the well.

"We had a very small leak," said Gordon, who could not say how much gas was being released from the well that night. "We don't feel that there was any real safety threat."

Jimmy DeMoss, his parents, C.J. and Micki DeMoss and another relative, Randy DeMoss, have lived near the well for the past 28 years, Jimmy DeMoss said Monday.

The DeMosses' first scare was about five months ago when they smelled an oil leak, Jimmy DeMoss said. Conoco workers were called out and worked on the well, he said.

"They told us it'd be all right."

Four or five times since then, he claimed, leaks have forced family members to call Conoco and request additional repairs.

In the meantime, 14 of the three families' dogs have died mysteriously, and the family has found dead birds on the ground, he said.

Hydrogen sulfide, called sour gas, can be lethal in concentrations as low as 100 parts per million. The gas usually has a detectable, sulfur smell at concentrations lower than that but often can't be smelled at higher, dangerous levels.

Odessa Fire Department reports indicated the gas was at 4,000 ppm levels at the wellhead, but indicated that, at the time of department's measurement, none of the gas was reaching a point midway to the elder DeMoss's residence, about 75 feet away from the well.

SMITH

Archer and Smith live in San Antonio which is divided between the 21st and 20th Congressional Districts. To run for Congress, it is not necessary for a candidate to live within the seat's district, he said.

Gandy said he supported Smith because, "We are facing some tough times for Midland and the 21st Congressional District and we need someone tough enough to go to Washington."

The main issue in the runoff campaign is conservatism, Smith said.

"The main issue is who is and who can be an effective conservative for the 21st District.

"The voters want someone like Tom Loeffler who can work on both sides of the aisles," he said.

But the seat now held by fellow Republican Loeffler, who made an unsuccessful bid for governor, is not a guaranteed win for Republicans, Smith said.

"I don't think any seat is guaranteed. We will not take anything for granted."

The Midland vote is important in this race for two reasons, Smith said.

"Because it (Midland County) has the second largest population countywide in the district and because every county in the district should be important."

Drifter gives testimony in organized crime trial

KERRVILLE (AP) — A Hill Country rancher padlocked a group of hitchhikers into a chain gang and forced them to dig ditches, then poked them with an electric cattle prod to make them work harder, a drifter testified in the trial of the rancher and two others.

Robert McCafferty, 27, of Chattanooga, Tenn., also said one of the ranchers boasted he and his father had killed people on their land.

"Mr. Ellebracht said to me why don't you tell me why I shouldn't kill you right now?" McCafferty said of defendant Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr.

"I said I have a 4-year-old girl in California and I don't think she wants a dead daddy," McCafferty responded.

McCafferty, who testified Tuesday, he went to the Ellebracht ranch because they promised him a job, said he was released after he was forced to work for hours at gunpoint.

"He (senior Ellebracht) said the last guy who went to the police ended up committing suicide in jail," McCafferty recalled.

His testimony came in the state's organized crime case against Ellebracht, his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., and drifter Carlton Robert Caldwell.

They are accused of violating the state's organized crime law in connection with the allged abduction and slaying of drifter Anthony Warren Bates.

Prosecutors claim Bates, along with other hitchhikers, was lured to the Ellebracht ranch near Mountain Home with the promise of work, then forced to stay against his will.

The state alleges Bates was beaten and tortured to death over several days in March 1984, then his body doused with gasoline and burned.

The younger Ellebracht's wife Joyce also has been charged in the case, but she has been granted a separate trial.

McCafferty said the elder Ellebracht picked him up in late March 1984 as he was hitchhiking on Interstate 10 near Kerrville.

He said the Ellebrachts promised him food, shelter, a pack of cigarettes a day and a paycheck in 30 days in exchange for cutting wood and making keychains.

McCafferty said he decided to go to their ranch because he had no money.

After spending the night in a bunkhouse that had no heat or plumbing and had dirt floors, McCafferty said he decided to leave.

He and two other hitchhikers went with him to tell the Ellebrachts. Senior, Junior, Mrs. Ellebracht and ranch foreman Mark Hamilton responded by pulling guns.

"Senior said 'you guys aren't going nowhere,' " McCafferty said. "We spent $20 on gas getting you up here and now you want to split on us. You may never go anywhere."

McCafferty testified another hitchhiker, Travis Boyd, then said, " 'You guys aren't really going to kill us are you?' "

"Then Senior said to Travis Boyd, 'You're going to die a slow death because you've got a loud mouth,' " McCafferty said.

McCafferty said the younger Ellebracht then chained him to the other hitchhikers and marched them to a spot near the bunkhouse and forced them to dig ditches.

Then, he said, "Junior said take off your shirts. You're not working hard enough. He approached us with a gadget that he called a hot shot (cattle prod).

"It was the most painful object I've ever felt. It knocked me off my feet and I screamed," McCafferty said.

McCafferty said he was released after Hamilton and a group of men, all pointing guns at the chain gang, "decided I looked like the hardest worker — the nicest guy."

HOSPITAL

Lundberg acknowledged he does, indeed expects, further competition from Glenwood

"I think there will be competition for us," he said. "Now, how significant, I don't know."

The new hospital, according to Healthcare International, "will provide a continuum of psychiatric services for children, adolescents and adults. Services will include short- and intermediate-term inpatient psychiatric treatment, partial hospitalization, 24-hour emergency admission, diagnosis and evaluation, discharge planning, referral and aftercare."

Included in the plans are recreational facilities for such activities as baseball, softball, soccer and swimming and an open space for an innovative outdoor treatment program that uses rope work and wilderness skills to build patient self-confidence and teamwork.

"To help each patient successfully return home or to the community, Glenwood's treatment environment makes use of many of the same activities and experiences the patient encounters outside the hospital," said Ms. McIver.

In addition to Glenwood, Healthcare International will begin construction of a new psychiatric hospital in San Antonio in June. The firm also operates hospitals in Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Longview and Houston. It oversees 20 facilities in nine states from South Carolina to Hawaii and is the parent company of the nationally known Brown Schools of Texas.

CHECKS

In dealing with offenders, Dettman said his office tries to "treat people politely. And hopefully, there are no grudges."

"My only grudge," he said, "is against the professional hot-check writers, and that grudge goes away after they served a jail term."

Most "hot checks" which are funneled into his office are made good voluntarily or by persuasion.

"The majority of people who write hot checks come in and take care of them," Dettman said. "They make restitution in a timely fashion. And that ends it (the case)."

Dettman said there's virtually no valid excuse for theft by check outside of someone "starving to death" or a "mother stealing formula" for her baby.

"I don't have any sympathy for hot-check writers who are not starving, and they go out and buy the best."

Students said Reagan's speech shows he cares about them

DALLAS (AP) — Students in a world history class at W.H. Adamson High School said Tuesday that President Reagan's nationally televised speech to high school students showed that he cares about them.

"Some students spend 12 or 13 years in school to get their diploma, and he wanted to tell them those years weren't wasted," said Irma Silba. "He cared enough to get out and speak to them."

Reagan's speech dwelled mainly on the importance of staying in school, striving to succeed, and staying off drugs.

The president spoke at the White House to a group of seniors from John A. Holmes High School in Edenton, N.C. Over the last three years, that school's Scholastic Aptitude Test scores rose by 130 points to above the nation's average.

The speech at noon CDT was carried by satellite to schools all over the country. It also was broadcast overseas by the Armed Services Network.

About seven of teacher Richard Poole's 25 students were juniors, and the rest were seniors. Most of the seniors said they will pass their classes and graduate this semester.

In the speech, Reagan told students to stay in school, "because that diploma counts."

At that point, Irma Silba and Norma Silba, who are unrelated, slapped hands and smiled. After the speech, Norma Silba said the two graduating seniors made the gesture "because we're seniors and we made it."

Reagan said a teacher shortage exists, and he urged the students to consider a career in education. After the speech, Poole asked the students why they think there is a shortage of professional educators.

"The money's not in there," said senior Richard Reyes, adding that fields like computer programming are more enticing than teaching because they pay more.

Poole asked the class what Reagan meant when he said students must help the United States retain a strategic technological edge over other countries.

"One point the president made is that he's proud of high school students and America, and if we don't stick with what we have, we're going to fall behind," Reyes said.

Most of the students said they approved of Reagan's job performance, citing the air raid on Libya last month as one of the main reasons for their backing.

One of the president's few detractors in the class was Opal Rivers, who said Reagan is preoccupied with the military at the expense of the poor and elderly.

"I feel that Social Security people and the elderly need help," she said. "Right now, he thinks defense is No. 1. But the Social Security people, the elderly and people on welfare need us now."

Wright roast fund-raiser for Democratic PAC

WASHINGTON (AP) — They all said they expected him to become speaker of the House next year, one of the most powerful men in America, but his colleagues showed no fear when they turned up the heat under Jim Wright at a benefit roast.

Avoiding the obvious, the bushy eyebrows that political cartoonists love, they concentrated on another of Wright's prominent features, one that cannot be captured on paper — his oratory.

"I want you to forget all those stories you've heard about Texas men that stand around with their toe dug in the dirt sayin' yep and nope," said Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards. "Because once the good ol' boys like Wright get going, you've got enough hot air to dry half a dozen sheets and a bunch of jockey shorts at the same time."

The Tuesday night dinner was a benefit for Independent Action, a political action committee that raises money for Democratic House and Senate candidates. Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, a co-chairman of the group, said the event netted over $100,000.

Ms. Richards said when she thought of Wright, she envisioned Alpha Bits, the little letter-shaped cereal, pouring from his lips.

"It would take six silos to hold one 10-minute conversation," she said. "Forget 'Hands Across America.' We could just hold Jim Wright over Ethiopia."

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, said she overheard two colleagues talking on the House floor as Wright gave one of his "shorter" speeches. One congressman wondered, "What follows this speech?" His colleague replied, "Tomorrow."

The roasters also made fun of Wright's ambition.

"This is a boy who was in such a hurry to get going, he would only date girls who were already pregnant in high school," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, chats with Texas Treasurer Ann Richards during a reception Tuesday night in Washington.

"We know our friend and colleague Jim Wright is certain to become the next speaker of the House," said Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston. "We know that because every day Jim Wright tells us so."

They even made fun of his home town of Weatherford, which Hightower said was so small "the main industry there was jury duty."

Responding to Ms. Oakar's suggestion that he could have been an evangelist, Wright said the ministry was "saved from that affliction." But he said he found some solace in the scripture, "Blessed are ye when men say all manner of evil about you falsely."

Officials have not determined cause of fish kill

WACO (AP) — Officials say the cause of a major fish kill that followed heavy rains along the Bosque River is difficult to determine.

Officials said Tuesday that thousands of dead fish were strewn along the river north of Lake Waco.

The fish kill apparently went unreported for two days, officials said.

They said heavy rains on Friday could have washed contaminates into the river, which may have mixed with heavy sediment and caused oxygen depletion.

"They checked the oxygen levels (Monday), and they were fine. But that's not to say they were fine Friday night. I still think the impact was over by the time we got there," said Roger McCabe, regional management supervisor for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Waco city officials took water samples from the river on Monday and turned them over over to the TWC for analysis.

Discharges from two wastewater treatment plants located along the Bosque River could have contributed to the fish kill, said McCabe.

Conan the Crustacean shipped to new home

GALVESTON (AP) — Conan the Crustacean, a large lobster believed to be 154 years old, was swimming Tuesday in a 400-gallon tank at Sea-Arama Marineworld instead of being served as a dinner for two.

The 22-pound lobster was rescued from a boiling pot last week after a Houston radio station broadcast his intended fate and a public outcry resulted.

The lobster was to have been the free dinner won by a Dallas couple at the opening of a Red Lobster restaurant in Mesquite but Red Lobster substituted regular-sized lobsters for the dinner. The prize winners agreed to donate Conan to Sea-Arama.

With grand fanfare, the crusty crustacean was flown Monday from Dallas to Galveston, then air-lifted by helicopter to Sea-Arama's front door. He was greeted by Mayor Jan Coggeshall and a Galveston singer serenaded him.

Conan now occupies a 400-gallon tank complete with rock formations to play around, a comfortable water temperature of 59 degrees and sharks as neighbors.

Though it's hard to determine Conan's exact age — believed to be 154 years — Sea-Arama's head curator John Kervian expects the lobster to live for many years on a diet of shrimp, minnows and other sea food.

"He's a little unusual, but not rare," Kerivan said.

Conan's giant pincers, big and strong enough to snip off a few fingers if not a hand, remain taped shut. They will be freed one at a time over the next few days as he gets accustomed to his new surroundings, Kerivan said.

Already, Sea-Arama has received calls about Conan from as far away as California, Connecticut, Arizona and the Carolinas, said Gini Brown, Sea-Arama spokeswoman. Tourists crowded around Conan Monday as he was brought to his new home.

Why the fanfare?

"Things have been kind of down with terrorists, child abuse and the sad side of the news," Ms. Brown said. "It's time to have something light we can enjoy."

STATE IN BRIEF

Study shows benzene levels high

PORT NECHES (AP) — A government study shows benzene levels exceed the Texas Air Control Board's limits for the cancer-causing chemical and one official says more tests will be conducted.

"It's not to say there's any imminent threat to public health," said Mike Peters of the air board's regional office in Beaumont. "But we will follow up on this."

Peters said detection of benzene at levels as much as three times the agency's Health Effects Screening Level means additional testing is needed.

"We'll be doing sampling at the property line of one source (an industry) per week this summer" to identify possible sources and average levels of benzene and several other chemicals, he said.

The recently completed report on the air testing project, conducted during six days last October, stated that of 14 industrial chemicals that technicians examined, benzene was the only one to exceed the screening level.

The agency's new mobile lab analyzed air quality at Port Neches Park and at various locations near the city's industrial complex. The agency could not determine from the results which industries were responsible for the levels detected.

Coleman to portray Geter's lawyer

BROWNWOOD (AP) — When actor Dabney Coleman dropped in at the Brown County Courthouse, it wasn't because he was interested in the outcome of the pretrial hearing of Tony Gillett in a perjury case.

Gillett's attorney, Ed Sigel of Dallas, represented Lenell Geter, an electronics engineer convicted and sentenced to life in prison for an armed robbery he didn't commit. Sigel successfully fought for Geter's release, and Geter later was exonerated of all charges.

Courtroom spectators noticed Coleman intently studying Sigel's mannerisms. When asked, he said he was studying Sigel, whom he will portray in a film based on the highly publicized Geter case.

Coleman was in the movies "Tootsie," "Cloak-and-Dagger" and "9 to 5," and starred in the short-lived television series, "Buffalo Bill."

Although reluctant to discuss his presence, Coleman said he would play Sigel in an Embassy Producers film also featuring actor Paul Winfield.

Ship will survive flooded engine room

HOUSTON (AP) — The Battleship Texas will survive without serious damages from a leak that flooded the ship's engine room, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said Tuesday.

Workers were continuing to pump out the water Tuesday after an old oil recirculating line ruptured Monday evening sending a leak into the engine room, said Doc Holliday, a Parks superintendent at the battleship near the San Jacinto Monument.

Workers began pumping out the water Monday, but the water continued to fill the room, Holliday said.

The problem, however, was under control, spokeswoman Stella Ready said Tuesday.

"Water is going down and as far as we know, there's no serious damage," she said. "It's just a matter of getting the water out and fixing the leak."

The ship's engine is protected by a coat of oil, Holliday said.

"It will just be a nasty job cleaning it up after we get the water pumped out," he said.

Murderer sentenced to life in prison

CONROE (AP) — A man convicted of murdering a folk singer's girlfriend was sentenced to life imprisonment Tuesday after a jury deliberated for more than 17 hours.

Jurors said they decided against a death sentence because they were not sure Thomas Smith Mathes III would be a continuous threat to society.

Mathes wept when he was found guilty Saturday of killing Debra Lynne Davis, 32, girlfriend of singer John Vandiver. "I didn't do it," Mathes said as he was led crying from the courtroom.

Tuesday, Ms. Davis' parents said they had mixed emotions about the verdict, but thought life in prison could be a harsher sentence than death.

Mathes, 32, and three other men were indicted in the deaths of Vandiver and Ms. Davis.

Vandiver, 39, was shot four times, while Ms. Davis was shot seven times and had her throat slashed in a Feb. 22, 1985 robbery the state claimed Mathes planned so he could repay a drug-related debt.

Agriculture officials seize Florida citrus

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Florida citrus seized in West Texas and shipped back to New Mexico has been seized a second time in El Paso, the Texas Department of Agricuture said Tuesday.

There is a federal quarantine that prohibits fresh Florida citrus anywhere in Texas because of the citrus canker, a fungus which kills citrus trees.

Richard Lowerre, assistant commissioner, said some Florida oranges and grapefruit seized in Hereford and Plainview was shipped back to grocery chain distributor in Albuquerque. Some of the same citrus was discovered Monday in an El Paso warehouse.

Parents of woman who drowned file $10 million suit

ABILENE (AP) — The parents of a 33-year-old Abilene State School resident who drowned in the school's swimming pool are suing for $10 million, claiming their daughter was treated inadequately and denied her rights.

James Wilburn Feagley and Billie Jean Feagley, parents of Ellen Darlene Feagley, filed suit in federal court against the school and several staff members, including Superintendent Bill Waddill.

They claim that their daughter was denied her constitutional freedom from harm, from unsafe conditions and undue restraint, and from unnecessary institutionalization, as well as her rights to minimally adequate treatment and training in an appropriate setting, as determined by professional judgment.

Waddill referred inquiry about the lawsuit to attorney Kent Johnson of the Texas Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation.

Johnson said he had not yet seen the plaintiffs' petition, filed Monday.

He said an investigation conducted after the drowning was a lawyer's "work product," specifically directed by him for defending against litigation that might arise.

"We'll use the information" in defending against the litigation, if necessary, but the investigation report itself will not be made public, Johnson said.

Ms. Feagley's body was found in the deep end of the pool shortly after 3 p.m. on Sept. 28 after she and four companions had been brought there for a swim session.

The suit charges that no adult — besides others residents — were present when Ms. Feagley went into the water.

The Feagleys also claim that their daughter was "denied rehabilitiation and training, and was subjected to oppressive, inappropriate, unhealthy, abusive and unhealthy living conditions, and to severely injurious and cruelly inhumane treatment" before her death.

The Feagleys' petition included a long list of injuries they say their daughter, an epileptic, suffered during her residence at the state school. Many resulted from falls, they claim.

The parents contend that their daughter should not have been placed on the second floor of Dorm 19, where she was residing when she died.

The Feagleys state in their petition that their daughter had the mental capacity of a 29-month-old child, and that they had placed her in the state school on her 11th birthday, Aug. 8, 1963.

They had found they could no longer give her proper care at home, they said.

Lawyers David Ferleger and Barbara Hoffman, both of Philadelphia, filed the lawsuit on behalf of the Mansfield couple.

The defendants include the school's recreation directors, a lifeguard, a nurse, a safety officer, and aides.
