Proving Possibilities of Wichita Irrigated Valley

Believe it or not, but the man in the background is Dan Boone, of the Knight-Whippet company, who is proving that he is a capable and experienced sheep caller.

J. A. Kemp, owner of the sheep and the pioneer in introducing sweet clover in the irrigated valley, is shown in the inset. Mr. Kemp is proving what can be accomplished by scientific and progressive farming in the irrigated valley.

Below, "City of Faith" potatoes, ready for distribution "all over the world" as soon as the demand can be supplied. Right now the Wichita potatoes are bringing a premium. On the sack is this information: "City of Faith Brand Potatoes. Produced from certified seed grown in the famous Wichita Valley of Texas. Exclusive distributors, Harkrider-Keith-Cook company, 102 pounds net when packed."

C. R. Keith of the Wichita Produce company is shown "holding the sack" with a laborer from R. O. Harvey's farm.

Irrigated Valley Potential Center Of Great Sheep Industry, Says Expert

The Wichita irrigated valley should be the future grazing ground for thousands of sheep, according to J. M. Jones, head of the department of animal husbandry of A. & M. College, who was in Wichita Falls Saturday for the purpose of investigating this phase of valley development.

The unlimited support and co-operation of the A. & M. department was promised officials of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce in this work, and any advice and consultation will be available at all times, Mr. Jones said. Some member of the department may be stationed here to offer direct help with all problems connected with sheep raising and feeding, he told O. K. Barnes, manager of the agricultural department of the chamber of commerce.

The fact that pasturage in the valley is available at all seasons convinces Mr. Jones that sheep feeding here during any time of the year would result in profit for all concerned. The land would be benefitted by the grazing of large herds and the foodstuffs to be produced in such plenty would assure growth and increase in the output of wool from the animals, making double reason for encouraging more farmers to purchase sheep.

Mr. Jones was enthusiastic over the potential wealth and development of the valley in both the agricultural and livestock industries, and predicted unlimited expansion in the next few years.

C-C MAY ASK MOODY TO ACT IN BOND CASE

Submission of Changes In Road Law Expeted At Special Session

THREE COURSES OPEN

Harrison Reviews Question In Statement On Bond Tangle

Gov. Dan Moody will probably be requested to submit to the special session of the legislature, which is scheduled to convene September 1, a request that certain provisions of the highway laws enacted during 1926 in reference to the issuance of road bonds be revised so that the proposed $1,050,000 road bond issue in Wichita county can be legally voted upon in the form, in which it now exists, but which has been declared invalid by the attorney general's office.

Election Undecided

This is one of three suggestions, and the most likely, decided upon to be pursued by the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the proposed bond issue, in legalizing the procedure for the voting of the bonds, Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said Saturday, following a conference between Chamber of Commerce officials and attorneys interested in the bond issue.

Another suggestion ventured during the conference was that a friendly suit should be filed to test the validity of the bond election, and the issue carried to the supreme court, and the other was the rearrangement of the road building program on a county-wide basis.

However, the majority at the conference were of the opinion that the special session of the legislature suggestion would be attempted first.

Whether the election for the bonds called for June 25 by the county commissioners' court would be cancelled, in view of the opinion given by the attorney general's office at the meeting of the commissioners Monday, loomed up as problematical Saturday.

County Judge E. W. Nicholson was of the opinion that before calling off the election, an opinion in which Attorney General Pollard concurred should first be obtained by the court.

Judge Nicholson declared that the opinion, which was given by D. L. Whitehurst, assistant attorney general, should first be approved by Mr. Pollard before being accepted as final.

Statement Issued

Until this opinion is approved by Mr. Pollard, Judge Nicholson said he believed the county commissioners' court should hold in abeyance an order cancelling the election.

Following the conference of Chamber of Commerce officials and attorneys, Mr. Harrison issued Saturday the following statement to the members of the Chamber of Commerce:

"To the Members of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce:

"An adverse opinion affecting the proposed bond issue for road and bridge construction in the Wichita Falls-Iowa Park road district has been received by County Auditor E. P. Walsh from Assistant Attorney General D. L. Whitehurst. Briefly stated, the opinion is to the effect 'that where a county has an outstanding county-wide road bond issue, road districts within the county cannot issue bonds.'

Reviews Case

"This is a surprise to most persons who have been interested in the study of road bond matters. It must be borne in mind that the law under which the new road district was created and under which a bond election has been called for June 25, is a new statute, enacted by the special session of the 39th legislature last September. This statute has never been tested in the courts. Attorneys differ as to their opinion about the scope and meaning of the law. The law is somewhat ambiguous and is not clear as to its meaning with reference to the point covered by the attorney general's ruling.

"The county commissioners' court, in the opinion of our committee and in the opinion of our attorney, has proceeded exactly according to statute in the issuing of the notice for public hearing and in the conduct of the hearing, and in the issuing of the call for the election published on June 9. Our committee and the commissioners' court have been extremely careful to track the law in every particular. However, it was not foreseen that a special act providing for bond elections in roads districts would be construed to forbid the issuance of bonds in a road district in a county where there are outstanding county-wide bonds. Since this very serious fundamental

MOBBERS WHIP THREE WOMEN

Marshall Section Is Scene Of Outrage

MARSHALL, Texas, June 11. (AP) News of wholesale floggings of several white people by four masked men west of Marshall reached Marshall last night and being investigated today by officers. J. R. Richardson and his wife were flogged by four white men who came to their house about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, it was reported. The men are said to have entered the home and at the point of pistols covered the two sons, Sammy, 15, and Tommy, 14, and took their mother and beat her with a fourply new seagrass rope with knots in it.

They then turned and made her look on while they beat her husband with the same rope, then ordered the family to leave, it is said.

They took Richardson's shotgun and cartridges with them. They next visited the home of W. A. Straps, son of Mrs. Richardson, which is only about 150 yards away on another farm, and on entering the house, knocked Straps down with a sixshooter and then proceeded to flog his wife with the same rope used at the Richardson home and knocked down Mrs. H. L. Mills, half-sister of Strapps, with their fists, ordering the family to work their crops. They took Straps' shotgun with them when they left.

The men and women who were flogged came to town today and told their story to County Attorney John E. Taylor and other officers. They said three of the four men wore black rain slickers and the other one a yellow slicker. Their faces were partly concealed with handkerchiefs and rags, it was said.

GUEST OF PRESIDENT

Coolidge Pins Distinguished Flying Cross On Lindy's Lapel

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh intends to hop off for New York at 10 a. m. (Eastern daylight saving time) Monday morning from Bolling field here.

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh predicted that regular air transportation over the Atlantic between large cities in the new world and those in the old is inevitable but not probable for 10 more years, in a speech tonight before the Minnesota society.

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 11—America laid her heart at the feet of a sunny-haired boy, with a sunny smile, when Charles Lindbergh came home today from his lone conquest of the air.

It was a heart throbbing with spontaneous emotion for the lad who was unknown and unsung three weeks ago when he hopped on his epochal voyage through silent space. Today his is the best known name in all the world. And he is the best beloved in all the land of his birth.

Homage of America

Homage unknown to emperors was done him. Nothing approaching the ovation given him has even been witnessed in the national capital, a city of spectacular ceremonies and celebration. Nothing like the frenzied enthusiasm of the crowd of 850,000 people who saw Col. Charles Augustus Lindbergh ride in triumph down Pennsylvania avenue, has ever been displayed here.

Calvin Coldge, president of the United States, speaking for the American people, welcomed home the conqueror of the treacherous winds of the Atlantic. The president pressed the boys of the nation upon the brow of the modest young hero within the sight of 200,000 people on the Greensward at the foot of the Washington monument.

His Spech Brief

With characteristic brevity, Lindbergh accepted his laurels speaking in the role of ambassador of America "without portfolio," he brought the American people a mesage of good will from the people of France, Belgium, England and all of Europe. He said simply, "I thank you," and sat down.

Away from the monument grounds, he was whirled off in an automobile, his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the Detroit school teacher, riding proudly by his side. His ears stil rang with the deafening roar of the multitude, the shriek of sirens and the boom of mighty guns.

Honors Galore

But the honors that will be heaped upon him for the next two days in the nation's capital have hardly begun. Not the least of these was a state dinner in his honor at the temporary White House tonight. It is an extraordinary thing for a youth, barely 25 years of age, and a private citizen at that, to sit with the mighty at such a function.

The great, the humble, old age and childhood, black and white poured out in countless thousands to give this boy an ovation that brought stinging tears to the eyes of hose who not only saw but felt it. And throught it all, Lindbergh bore himself with a modesty that is not born of shyness. Most of the time his young face wore a serious expression that oddly belied his years. But occasionally his sunny smile flashed, like the sun breaking through the clouds.

His Smile Happy

That happy smile was broad indeed, when he met his mother aboard the cruiser, Memphis, which brought him to America from France. But that first meeting was in private. Mrs. Lindbergh was the first to go aboard the cruiser when she warped into the presidential dock at the Washington navy yard. She went up the gangplank on the arm of Vice Admiral G. H. Burrage, commander of the American navy, in European waters.

Mrs. Lindbergh went directly to the cabin where her son awaited her with boyish eagerness. That first embrace was screened from

FIRST "LINDBERGH" BABY

The first "Lindbergh" baby made its appearance in Wichita Falls June 3, according to a report of births in Wichita Falls issued Saturday by the city health department.

The boy, who was named after the Intrepid flier, was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Trim, 1008 Sixth street. The newcomer's full name is Harry Lindbergh Trim. Mr. Trim is a linotypist with The Wichita Times.

U. S. PRESIDENT GREETS LINDY

Coolidge Address Acclaims Daring Fliers

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—President Coolidge, in bestowing the Distinguished Flying Cross upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, said:

"My Fellow Countrymen:

"It was in America that the modern art of flying of heavier-than-air machines was first developed. As the experiments became successful, the airplane was devoted to practical purposes. It has been adapted to commerce in the transportation of passengers and mail and used for national defense by our land and sea forces. Beginning with a limited flying radius, its length has been gradually extended.

Many Air Records

"We have made many flying records. Our army fliers have circumnavigated the globe. One of our navy men started from California and flew far enough to have reached Hawaii, but being off his course landed in the water. Another officer of the navy has flown to the North pole. Our own country has been traversed from shore to shore in a single flight.

"It had been apparent for some time that the next great feat in the air would be a continuous flight from the mainland of America to the mainland of Europe. Two courageous Frenchmen made the reverse attempt and passed to a fate that is as yet unknown. Others were speeding their preparations to make the trial, but it remained for an unknown youth to tempt the elements and win. It is the same story of valor and victory by a son of the people that shines through every page of American history.

Boy of Tradition

"Twenty-five years ago there was born in Detroit, Mich., a boy, representing the best traditions of this country, of a stock known for its deeds of adventure and exploration. His father, moved with a desire for public service, was a member of congress for several terms. His mother, who dowered her son with her own modesty and charm, is with us today. Engaged in the vital profession of school teaching, she has permitted neither money nor fame to interfere with her fidelity to her duties.

"Too young to have enlisted in the world war, her son became a student at one of the big state universities. His interest in aviation led him to an army aviation school; and in 1925 he was graduated as an airplane pilot. In November, 1926, he had reached the rank of captain in the officers' reserve corps. Making his home in St. Louis, he had joined the 110th observation squadron of the Missouri national guard.

Good Qualities

"Some of his qualities noted by the army officers who examined him for promotion, as shown by reports in the files of the militia bureau of the war department, are as follows: 'Intelligent,' 'industrious,' 'energetic,' 'dependable,' 'purposeful,' 'alert,' 'quick of reaction,' 'serious,' 'deliberate,' 'stable,' 'efficient,' 'frank,' 'modest,' 'congenial,' 'a man of good moral habits and regular in all his business tranactions.' One of the officers expressed his belief that the young man 'would successfully complete everything he undertakes.' This reads like a prophecy.

"Later he became connected with the United States mail service, where he exhibited marked ability, and from which he is now on leave of absence.

"On a morning just three weeks ago yesterday, this wholesome, earnest, fearless, courageous product of America rose into the air from Long Island in a monoplane christened 'The Spirit of St. Louis,' in honor of his home and that of his supporters. It was no haphazard adventure. After months of most careful preparation, supported by a valiant character, driven by an unconquerable will and inspired by the imagination and the spirit of his Viking ancestors, this reserve officer set wing across the dangerous stretches of the North Atlantic. He was alone. His destination was Paris.

Hops to Paris

"Thirty-three hours and thirty minutes later, in the evening of the second day, he landed at his destination on the French flying field at Le Bourget. He had traveled over 3600 miles and established a new and remarkable record. The execution of his project was a perfect exhibition of art.

"This country will always remember the way in which he was received by the people of France, by the president and by their government. It was the more remarkable because they were mourning the disappearance of their intrepid countrymen, who had tried to span the Atlantic on a western flight.

Messenger of Peace

"Our messenger of peace and good will had broken down another barrier of time and space and brought two great peoples into closer communion. In less than a day and a half he had crossed the ocean over which Columbus had traveled for 69 days, and the Pilgrim Fathers for 66 days on their way to the new world, but, above all, in showering applause and honors upon this genial, modest, American youth, with the naturalness, the simplicity and the poise of true greatness, France had the opportunity to show clearly her good will for America and our people.

"With like acclaim and evidences of cordial friendship our ambassador without portfolio was received by the rulers, the governments and the peoples of England and Belgium. From other nations came hearty messages of admiration for him and for his country. For these manifold evidences of friendship we are profoundly grateful.

He's Modest Boy

"The absence of self-acclaim, the refusal to become commercialized, which has marked the conduct of this sincere and genuine exemplar of fine and noble virtues, has endeared him to every one. He has returned unspoiled.

"Particularly has it been delightful to have him refer to his airplane as somehow possessing a personality and being equally entitled to credit with himself, for we are proud that in every particular this silent partner represented American genius and industry. I am told that more than 100 separate companies furnished materials, parts or service in its construction.

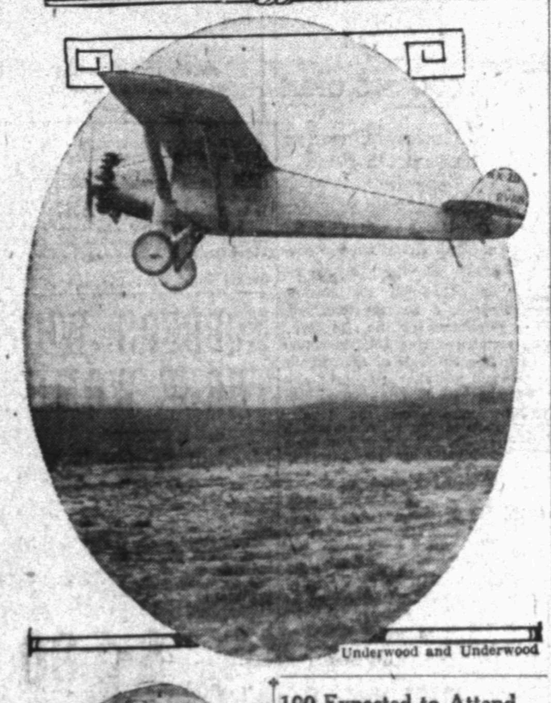

Confers Decoration

"And now, my fellow citizens, this young man has returned. He is here. He has brought his unsullied fame home. It is our great privilege to welcome back to his native land, on behalf of his own people, who have a deep affection for him and have been thrilled by his splendid achievement, a colonel of the United States officers' reserve corps, an illustrious citizen of our republic, a conqueror of the air and strengthener of the ties which bind us to our sister nations across the sea, and, as president of the United States, I bestow the Distinguished Flying Cross, as a symbol of appreciation for what he is and what he has done, upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

Lindbergh Given Great Ovation

public view, but those who witnessed it were touched by the tenderness of it. A few moments alone together, then mother and son appeared on deck where Lindbergh was officially greeted by Secretary of War Davis, secretary of the navy Wilbur and Postmaster General New. There Lindbergh surrendered himself to the nation.

He Grins Broadly.

Down the companionway he walked alone, just as he flew to Paris. His smile became a broad grin as he once more touched foot upon American soil, while he was hailed by land, sea and air.

Mighty guns roared out 21 times—the national salute—for the first time in the history of the nation in honor of a private citizen. Overhead the greatest aerial armada ever assembled in America whirred its greeting to the greatest flier of them all.

Thousands filled the navy yard and the booming bass of the men mingled with the screams of women and the high treble of children.

Crowd Rushes Him.

For a moment, Lindbergh was in danger of being crushed by the throng that fought, pushed, kicked and scrambled to grasp his hand, to kiss him or simply to get a closer view of the boy who had fired their imaginations as nothing else in this age of spectacular events. And despite strict orders to the contrary, Lindbergh shook hands with all who could jam their way to his side.

By sheer force, Lindbergh was finally helped to the automobile that awaited him and down the historic parade street of the nation he rode triumphant, his mother beaming her pleasure at his side.

Escort of Notables.

On the other side rode John Hays Hammond, famous mining engineer, whose early days were filled with adventure in strange places in the corners of the world. For Hammond had done the planning to give Lindbergh the greatest ovation of all time.

Long before Lindbergh was awake this morning, the nation began paying him tribute, as the Memphis steamed up the Potomac river. Washington was up with the dawn and before 9 o'clock thousands marched to the monument grounds to seize points of vantage. They stood until after 1 o'clock in a broiling sun to see the young hero and join in the welcome.

Air Mail's Daddy

The navy tug, Porpoise, put out early and met the Memphis off Alexandria, Va. The tug carried a group of distinguished officials and citizens, including Frank H. Hitchcock, who as postmaster general in 1911 fathered the first air mail service.

The Memphis and the Porpoise exchanged salutes and the latter escorted the cruiser to the navy yard. The giant dirigible, Los Angeles for all the world like a great silver fish, floated in the void. The first pursuit squadron from Selfridge field, the pride of the army air corps, 25 in number, maneuvered in graceful swallow-like formations, while scores of other army and navy planes zoomed the Memphis in salute.

Town Greets Him

The entire population of Alexandria seemed to be at the dock and the moment the Memphis hove in sight the sirens and whistles along the water front shrilled a greeting to Lindbergh, standing on the bridge of the ship, his sunny hair tossing in the stiff breeze. Beside him stood Admiral Burrage and Capt. H. E. Lackey, skipper of the good ship. Sailors in white manned the rail.

On the after deck in two huge crates was "The Spirit of St. Louis," the ship that carried Lindbergh to Paris. It was removed shortly after the Memphis docked and taken to Bolling field, just across the Anacostia river from the navy yard, where it will be reassembled for Lindbergh's flight to New York on Monday morning.

He Greets Crowd

Lindbergh waved in acknowledgement of the cheers as he passed Hains Point, where thousands were massed to see him pass. He frequently took the binoculars from Admiral Burage and looked over the crowds and at those on the deck of the Porpoise.

The army was the first to give Lindbergh the national salute of 21 guns. It came from a field piece on the sea wall at the army war college.

Hundreds of river craft, from stately yachts and trim speed boats, to skiffs and canoes drew alongside as the Memphis passed. When the Memphis neared the navy yard, the bugles on board sounded attention. The ship's bell struck 7 bells, 11:30 o'clock, as she swung into the dock.

21 For Lindbergh

Boom! The navy yard guns roared a salute of 15 rounds to Vice Admiral Burage. Boom! The guns of the Memphis returned the salute to Admiral B. F. Hutchinson, commandant of the yard. Boom! came the unprecedented salute of 21 guns for Lindy.

The borrowed, misfit suit in which Lindbergh received the plaudits of Paris was gone when he appeared on deck, as his private warship warped into the dock. In its place was a well-fitting suit of blue serge and he waved a gray felt hat to the crowd that met him. In that crowd were the aristocrats of the air, men whose deeds of daring have written the name of America high in the annals of aviation. And beside them stood the mechanics from the yard, still grimy from their work in the shops.

Mother Greets Him

Mrs. Lindbergh, who went to the yard early, was escorted up the gangplank by Admiral Burrage. She wore a simple dress of printed chiffon of tan and brown and a single white gardenia on her black hat. In her hand she carried a small bouquet of flowers presented her by admirers.

There were more guns, 19 of them, when Secretary of the Navy Wilbur boarded the Memphis. The band gave him four ruffles! Four flourishes and the "Secretary's March," and then they did it all over again when he went ashore.

He Kisses Tot

One of the first to greet Lindbergh was a little girl of six. Her mother pressed forward with her until she reached the flier's side. She lifted him up and Lindy kissed her. Then Mrs. Lindbergh kissed the eager little face.

This writer slipped into an official car and joined the parade that swept out of the navy yard behind the president's own troop of cavalry from Fort Myer. Such whooping and yelling was never before heard as that given to Lindbergh by the crowd that lined Eighth street, lower and upper Pennsylvania avenue, in the capitol grounds and about the monument.

Flowers Strew Path

Thousands of flowers were strewn in his path by women and children on the sidelines. For the most part the vast throng was well behaved, but the police was kept busy holding the crowd in check. The whole town was in gala attire. Flags were everywhere. A huge Stars and Stripes, 70 by 40 feet, was stretched on a cable from the postoffice department to an office building across the avenue.

A human sign made up of pretty girls at the postoffice department boasted to the world that "Lindy's an Air Mail Boy." At another point, a replica of Lindy's plane was set up, with a huge picture of the flier surmounting it.

Acres of Humanity

As Lindbergh passed into the monument grounds, black with acres of humanity, he rode past the 2000 soldiers, sailors and marines, who had preceded him up the avenue, now standing at present arms. At the sight of the slim figure, the multitude set up a mighty roar that did not abate until President Coolidge began to speak. It was the voice of America speaking the language of the heart, an affectionate greeting to fame's fair-haired boy.

STATE WILL CONTROL BUS

Supervision Scheduled To Begin Wednesday

AUSTIN, June 11.(AP)—State regulation of inter-city motor bus lines will become effective Wednesday without any immediate change in rates and routes.

The railroad commission will hold a meeting Tuesday to organize its motor bus division authorized by the bill of Rep. Walter H. Beck of Fort Worth and passed at the regular session of the 40th legislature, giving the commission power to supervise and regulate all bus lines, fix the rates to be charged, the routes of operation, and establish such rules as to properly protect passengers and preserve highways.

A director, chief clerk, reporter, stenographer, file clerk, rate clerk will be named at Tuesday's commission meeting as personnel of the bus division.

200 Seek Jobs

More than 200 applications for appointment are on file now, Commissioner C. V. Terrel said Saturday, "but no selection has been made."

As tentatively planned, the director will receive a salary of $4000 or $4500 a year. The chief clerk, who may act as auditor also, is to be paid from $2750 to $3000; the reporter $2750; the rate clerk $2500, and the file clerk and stenographer $1500 each.

Lack of funds for establishment of the division at present prelude any immediate expansion of the department, but the appointment of bus line supervisors in as many as eight territorial districts of the state is contemplated.

Definite bounds of the districts are yet to be determined. Dallas and Fort Worth may comprise one; Houston and Galveston another; San Antonio and vicinity another; with others in central Texas, northeast Texas, south Texas and west Texas.

Fees to Pay Way

Funds for administration of the division are to be derived from fees paid by bus operators. For each bus a fee of $10 a year is to be paid, with 50 cents for each seat. Only one-fourth of those fees are collectible until after September 1. It is because of that fact that the commission plans only temporary administration and organization for the remainder of the fiscal year ending August 31.

Regulations to be adopted by the railroad commission may require bus lines to furnish bonds insuring the safety of passengers up to $10,000 for each passenger. Other requirements, such as chassis and mechanical condition of the buses operated, may be made.

Expenses thus imposed are expected to automatically bring the bus fares more nearly approximate to those charged by interurban and steam railroad companies.

Hearings Set

Under the orders already issued, and providing for the establishment of the motor bus division, hearings are to be arranged where regulations imposed are contested, or where rates to be determined are objected to. These hearings may be held in different parts of the state, as necessary, in convenience to contesting parties.

Blank forms for application for permits to operate, as well as forms of the permits to be issued, have been prepared and will be available early in the week. These, according to Commissioner Terrell, are to be mailed to many of the bus companies.

City Lines Not Involved

Girls Baseball Teams Open Season Here; Score of First Game, 40 to 9

The Boston Bloomers knocked the socks, pardon us—stockings, because its a girls baseball team, offa the Bloomerettes Saturday afternoon in a Suffragette league contest held on the Sibley-Taylor playground baseball diamond.

The Boston Bloomers, representing Sibley-Taylor playground, romped on the Bloomerettes, from Myles O'Reilly playground, to the tune of 40 to 9.

The game was played under the auspices of the department of recreation, however, Will Ward, director of the department, refused to umpire the game going on the theory that for a man to win an argument with 18 women was just another story.

After sending the Bloomerettes home with the sting of defeat trailing along, the Boston Bloomers hurled a challenge to the world that they would play anybody's girls baseball team. All challenges will be received by Mr. Ward at the department of recreation offices in the city hall annex.

C-C May Ask Moody To Act

question has been raised, our Chamber of Commerce would not want to proceed with the expense and trouble of calling an election for bonds which would certainly be called in question at some stage in the proceedings. It appears it would be good business and common sense to reserve further action until this legal difficulty can be closed up

"If this opinion is sustained by the courts, no road improvement in Texas could be carried on by the issuance of special road district bonds in any county that has outstanding county-wide bonds. It is our opinion that it was not the purpose of the authors of the special road district law to limit in such a manner road district activities.

Three Courses Open.

"There are three avenues upon to us. "First, to bring a friendly suit on the holding of the election, have the case advanced and secure a court decision as speedily as possible. The case would have to be carried to the supreme court of the state and the higher courts adjourn for the summer July 15 and do not set again until the 1st of October so that it is unlikely that a decision could be secured until next fall.

"Second, we could request the governor to submit this serious question to the special session of the legislature in September and have the road law amended and corrected to clear up this point.

"Third, we could rearrange our road building program on a county-wide basis and petition the commissioners court to hold a county-wide road bond election as soon as practicable.

"It appears now that the best method of procedure would be to wait until the special session of the legislature in September and endeavor to secure amendments and corrections to the road district law which would enable us to proceed with our present program on a district basis. If this should fail or prove impractiable, we could unite with our neighbors in a county-wide program. If a county-wide bond issue is voted, it would be necessary to take up or retire the road bonds now outstanding against the Electra road district No. 1, amounting to about $450,000.

Danger to Bonds.

"As mentioned in an editorial in a local paper recently, the whole matter of special taxation districts in Texas is very much misunderstood and open to serious question and argument. As suggested by this editorial it appears that a very constructive service to the state at large and to all investors in Texas securities could be rendered by the appointment of a commission of eminent attorneys to analyze the statues pertaining to special taxation districts and make recommendations for clearing up and correcting all points in doubt. As it is today, no one is quite certain as to how to proceed and the situation will reflect itself in a disparagement of Texas securities with the investing public.

"In view of the situation it would be wise to begin at once the work of clearing up all legal difficulties provided the attorney general confirms to our representatives the opinion rendered by one of his assistants.

"It is the opinion of our committee that all progressive citizens throughout the city and the district and the county can be brought together in a harmonious and unied road building program as soon as we can feel certain that we are proceeding in a practical and sound legal manner.

Very truly yours,
HUBERT M. HARRISON,
General Manager."

COPS COP PRACTICE COP

PARIS.—Paris autoists were bluffed by a self-appointed woman traffic cop this evening near Porte Pouchet, one of the city gates. Attired in a military jacket and brandishing a white baton, a buxom woman of about 40 years suddenly stepped to the middle of the crowded boulevard and began ordering all the vehicles to stop. Though it is well known that there are no women on the Paris police force, the motorists blindly obeyed, even the wild taxi drivers meekly jamming on their brakes. Soon hundreds of automobiles were lined up in a traffic jam that required three-quarters of an hour to straighten out.

When the police, finally attracted by the frantic blowing of horns, arrived, the woman cop calmly said: "I read in the papers that women soon will be taken on the police force and I thought I would get some practice."

POLICE KILL RABID DOGS

City Catcher Told to Nab Stray Animals

Two dogs thought to have had hydrophobia, were killed Saturday by police. The head of one of the dogs was shipped to Austin for examination.

Acting on advice of officials in the health department, Desk Sergeant Roland Hurst instructed the city dog catcher to make every effort to keep the number of stray dogs on Wichita Falls streets to a minimum.

A family on Britain street was found terrified by officers, who answered a call there when it was reported that mad dog was in the neighborhood.

Officers were also called to a house on 25th street where residents had succeeded in restraining in a garage a dog which acted queerly. Officer Speck Roberson sent a bullet through the animal's brain.

Dry, hot weather is expected to cause the number of "mad dog" reports to be on the increase during the next few weeks, Sergeant Hurst said.

YOUNG COUNTY BONDS SOLD

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, June 11.—Young county's $1,200,000 road bond issue has been sold to a firm of Chicago bond brokers for a cash premium of $25,290 and accrued interest and in addition to this the bond people agreed to pay the expenses of printing and validating the bonds.

The bonds were issued at 5 per cent instead of the maximum of five and one-half per cent as allowed in the order for the election, and many bond buyers from all over the country were represented at the Commissioners' Court hearing which disposed of them.

"There are several reasons why Young County's bonds would be in great demand, foremost among which of course is the fact that the county is rich in resources and is not heavily indebted. Also the fact that bonds carried by a majority of four to one, showing a unanimity of opinion among our citizens had great weight with investors," secretary Mr. Gruver of the Olney chamber of commerce stated.

"So far as we can learn, this is the most advantageous disposal of county road bonds that has ever been made in this section of Texas. Archer county received a very nice premium on their road bonds, but the issue was some larger than ours and if we are correct, the premium was a little less then that paid to Young county."

39TH SESSION GETS BLAME

That's Why 40th Legislature Was in Trouble

AUSTIN, June 10. (AP)—Increased appropriations provided in the special session of the fortieth legislature just ended were caused by the 39th legislature's "neglect" in providing funds, Senator A. E. Wood, Granger, chairman of the senate finance committee, and Representative Claude Teer, Granger, head of the house appropriation committee, said in a joint statement today.

Appropriations by the fortieth legislature were $47,697,159; by the 39th legislature $43,000,000, they said. The 40th was "forced to appropriate more than $3,000,000 to supplement appropriations made by the 39th legislature and this called session further supplemented those appropriations by more than $700,000."

They declared in part that "without a single veto" by the governor, "the tax rate for the next biennium will not exceed that for the last, but can be lowered one cent."

Blames Old Legislature.

The statement in part:

"If the 39th legislature had passed appropriation bills sufficient to run the state government for the biennium it was attempting to provide for, the appropriation bills would have aggregated approximately $47,000,000 instead of about $43,000,000.

"When the present administration was ushered into power, it found conditions existing that made it necessary to make these heavy supplementary appropriation. This condition can not properly be charged to this administration. The present administration could have continued some of the debts to the next administration, but it adopted the proper policy of wiping the slate clean by making appropriations to pay these several items. It should be borne in mind too that the policy of the state two years ago was to appropriate to the penitentiary system the proceeds of its crops and permit the penitentiary commissioners to use the money to operate the penitentiary system in any matter they might see proper.

"At the regular session of this legislature the policy was changed and all the proceeds of the penitentiary system were paid direct to the state treasury and placed to the credit of the general revenue fund of the state. It was necessary therefore, that an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the biennium should be made out of the general revenue fund of the state to support the penitentiary system. If such a policy had been in force two years ago, the appropriations made by the 39th legislature would have been still further increased by approximately $3,000,000.

$50,000,000 Appropriated.

"Appropriations passed by the regular session of this legislature and the called session were approximately $50,000,000. If it was possible to deduct therefrom the amount that was appropriated by this legislature, which should have been appropriated by the previous legislature, the amount would have been approximately $46,000,000, and if the policy of the legislature had not been changed with reference to the penitentiary funds, you could have deducted another $3,000,000, which would have brought the total down to approximately $42,000,000, which would have been less than that appropriated by the 39th legislature if they had adequately provided for the state.

"One of the specific items which the legislature failed to properly support two years ago was the live stock sanitary commission.

"The 39th legislature should pass a law placing all of the expenses of tick inspectors, dip, etc., on the state of Texas, but failed to make an appropriation for it. The governor, during the year, granted deficiencies for the operation of this department up until the change in the administration. One of the first bills that the 40th legislature was called upon to pass was to provide for the January pay roll for the live stock sanitary commission, amounting to approximately $30,000. Later in the session, they passed another bill to take care of this department until June first by appropriating $150,000, and at the called session of this legislature, the emergency appropriation bill carried $100,000 more to take care of the department until Sept. 1, all of these items should have been included in the regular appropriation bill for this department two years ago.

Other Failures Cited.

"Another instance of the failure of the legislature two years ago to provide sufficient funds was in the judiciary appropriation bill. They lacked about $600,000 of appropriating enough money; half of this deficiency was made up at the called session of the 39th legislature and the other half is carried in the emergency appropriation bill of this called session. The judiciary appropriation bill for the next biennium carries a sufficient sum of money to permit the courts to properly function without a deficiency for the next two years. By making this provision, the bill is larger than it was two years ago.

"It has been said that this legislature appropriated $41,436,740 in the four major appropriation bills, whereas the board of control recommended only $31,748,056. The recommendations of the board of control did not provide for appropriations of approximately $3,000,000 for the penitentiary system and did not contain in its totals a recommendation of special funds. If you will deduct from the $41,436,000, the penitentiary appropriation bill of approximately $3,000,000 and then deduct the appropriations that were made and carried in the totals that are paid out of special funds of $2,500,000 you would have left approximately $36,000,000 carried in the major bills which is almost $2,000,000 under the recommendations of the board of control.

No Tax Increase.

"A careful study of the expectant revenue for the next two years shows conclusively that the tax rate for the next biennium will not exceed the tax rate for the last biennium but can be lowered one cent for the biennium if the governor should not veto a single item in the bill."

NEW TAX MACHINERY PUT INTO OPERATION

AUSTIN, June 10. (AP)—Machinery to lay foundation for a new and more equitable tax system in Texas was put in motion today.

Fifteen tax survey commissioners, appointed under order of a legislative resolution, were assigned in six committees to investigate about 20 subjects of and relating to taxation. In addition, former Gov. O. B. Colquitt, Dallas, chairman of the commission, will inquire into delinquent taxes and formulate the "requisites of a just tax system and criticism of operation of the present tax system."

Reports to be made later on findings of the sub-committees may be made the basis of recommended legislation to equalize the tax burden, redistributing it to meet conditions changed since the time when property and land constituted the state's main taxable assets.

Particular attention will be given to the share of the tax burdens now borne by intangible, corporate assets, and to the question of dividing sources of taxation with a view of retaining ad valorem revenue solely for county and local use. The latter is proposed in Representative Stevenson's constitutional amendment, to be voted on in August.

Two-Day Session

The commission late Friday concluded a two-day session and adjourned subject to Chairman Colquitt's call, after committees had been assigned to study of the subjects promulgated by a central committee of six, of which Representative J. W. Stevenson of Victoria, was added today, making seven.

Taking cognizance of possible misunderstandings of the work attempted, the commission adopted a resolution by former State Senator J. M. Henderson of Daingerfield that "no person, corporation or any other interest should become alarmed at the work of this commission; that it will be the purpose of this body to treat in its reports all interested fairly and equitably, and that any interest desiring a hearing will be allowed the privilege."

Kemp on Committee

Senator Edgar Witt, Waco, chairman; J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls, and A. P. Duggan, Littlefield — Personal and business income taxation (where used and with what results); financing educational, eleemosynary institutions and state departments.

Representative Claud Teer, Granger, chairman; J. M. West, Houston, and Representative Adrian Poole, El Paso—Severance taxes, oil, sulphur (in this connection, taxation of mines and forests may be considered), poll tax, financing of highways.

Prof. E. T. Miller, University of Texas, economics' department, chairman; J. M. Henderson, Daingerfield, and C. E. Nicholson, Port Neches—Cost of government (state and local, including county, municipal and district), facts as to increase in cost, main divisions of expenditures, explanation of costs, of increase in costs, relation to wealth and income of state, and comparison with other states; history of state revenue system, description of present revenue system of state and local taxes, fees, interests and the like.

Heavy Tax Subjects

J. G. Willacy, San Antonio, chairman; Colquitt, Stevenson and West—Operation of corporation taxes (public utilities, banks, insurance companies, manufacturing, mercantile); intangible assets taxation, state tax commission.

Senator A. E. Wood, Granger, chairman; Senator A. J. Wirtz, Seguin; James Calle, Menard. License of general occupation taxes, inheritance tax, public indebtedness, growth of and purpose, of including state and local.

Representative J. W. Stevenson, chairman; Representative Adrian Poole, Professor Miller and A. P. Duggan, separation of tax sources (meaning any kind of', where used and with what results, and how it would operate in Texas-.

Classified property tax.

The commission will mail out four sets of questionnaires respectively to county judges, city governments, corporations and to other states.

An accounting of the sources, amounts and divisions of county taxes, and indebtedness will be sought of county judges. Corporations will be asked to record the amounts of their federal, state and local taxes during the last three years, and their relations to income. An inquiry as to assessed values of railroad, telegraph, telephone, street railway, interurban lines, power and light, water, gas, express and oil companies will be made of cities.

Other states will be asked their tax rates and divisions, whether there is any separation for local and state purposes and if so, how it works.

Temperature in Texas ranges from sub-tropical in the lower Rio Grande valley to middle temperate in the Panhandle.

For the school year 1925-1926 the state bought text books for free use in the public schools to the amount of $3,819,261.95, or $2.12 for each pupil.

DAIRY SURVEY YIELDS DATA

Wilbarger County Plans To Develop Industry

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 11. — Having made a two-day survey of dairy conditions in the Childress and Plainview sections, the delegation of Chamber of Commerce and others interested in the proposed three-year dairy program for Wilbarger county have returned here.

Included in the delegation were W. W. Anderson, president, and Grady Shipp, secretary, of the Chamber of Commerce; A. E. Harroun, cashier of the First State bank; R. E. L. Patillo, county agricultural agent; B. M. Blevins of Oklaunion, and Mrs. Shipp.

Big Dairy Income

Monthly sales of cream alone in the Childress territory is between $15,000 and $18,000, and cream sales in the Plainview section average approximately $20,000, the survey showed. This is exclusive of other dairy products than cream and the various other produce, such as poultry and hogs, which is made possible through the dairy industry.

Programs for the improvement of the dairy conditions are in progress in both Childress and Hale counties, and there is no talk of hard times and lack of money because of the dry weather, Mr. Shipp said. With the slogan, "Cow, sow and hen," these two counties are not worrying about the price of cotton or oil, he said. Practically every farmer in Hale county is making some extra money by selling dairy products.

Wilbarger Program

The Vernon delegation made the survey for the purpose of completing plans for the three-year dairy program in Wilbarger county. It is proposed to provide a financing system, whereby about 2000 pure-bred dairy cows and bulls will be placed on the farms of this section. A meeting of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce will be held within the next few days for the purpose of completing the plans of the program.

HALL COUNTY DAIRY BUSINESS INCREASES.

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, June 11.—According to a report compiled by the express office in Memphis the cream business in Hall county has increased better than a hundred per cent. C. W. Flanery, the express agent, says that during the month of May there was shipped from Memphis approximately 35,000 pounds of cream, the farmers receiving an average of 24 cents per pound.

It is reported that many of the farmers of this section are furnishing their tables and buying the clothing for the family with the cream checks, which keeps them from going in debt for the necessities of life.

Crop conditions in Hall county on an average is not so good, due to the drouth. Parts of the county have had sufficient rain to bring up cotton and feed, while the western part is very dry, however, some of the farmers have a good stand of cotton and feed and others have not even planted.

Music and Musicians

BY MME. COBINA WRIGHT
(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, June 11.—This is the story of four gallant gentlemen, Ottokar Cadek, Jaroslav Siskovsky, Ludvik Schwar and Bedrick Vaska, artists each and everyone of them who comprise the New York String Quartet, an organization which in a few short years has earned a reputation in the musical world second to none.

Their determination to work together as a musical unit was fraught with many struggles in the beginning but the high quality of their art has become recognized to such an extent that the New York String Quartet is in constant demand wherever good music is loved and appreciated, and when I relate this little incident which I heard recently it will be easy to understand why these players have struck a responsive chord in the musical world, and why I call them four gallant gentlemen.

SOME years ago Cadek met a young man, Joseph Morrison, student of the violin, studying at the time with Franz Coer, former director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. Morrison's deep love of music and the mutual interest in the absorbing study of the violin drew the two together. They became friends but in pursuit of his career Cadek's work took him to other parts of the country while unknown to Cadek his old friend's health failed him and Morrison was forced to go to Tucson in hope of regaining his health.

By reading the musical papers, Morrison followed the news of Cadek's success. One day he read that the quartet was coming to Tucson and with high hope of hearing some really good music in a community where it was well nigh an oddity, he prepared to attend the concert. But on the evening of the recital, Morrison was too ill to move, and he had to stay at home. Hearing of his friends plight, Cadek visited him, learned of his disappointment and saw for himself the brave fight a mother and son were making, deprived of everything they held dear, for life itself.

HE gathered his friends about him, and told them the story of the sick youth, of his love of the violin he could play no longer, of his desire to hear again the melody of the strings touched by the hands of artists and not relayed to him by the discs of a mechanical instrument.

It was decided at once that Morrison should have his concert. Despite their ironclad itinery the quartet postponed their engagement in the next town, changed their schedules, sent numerous wires of explanation and stayed in Tucson awaiting word from the physician for a favorable hour for the impromptu concert.

Accompanied by Mrs. Simon Heinemann, pianist, they went one afternoon to the little house on Euclid avenue, unpacked their instruments and with a lump in their throats entered the patient's room. Morrison, score in hand, lay quietly on his couch, as the quartet seated themselves in odd corners and slipped softly into the first moment of Smetana's "From My Life."

NO thundering applause greeted them from a jammed concert hall as the artists finished, nothing but the words of a sick man and the praise of his mother who nursed him, and who had slipped quietly into the room during the opening number. But the artists were satisfied. The joy on the faces of the little audience, their smallest—was more than enough.

Then Hayden's Quarter in G Minor followed, and afterwards a little Spanish dance by Albeniz, sleepy, provocative, and the sick man exclaimed "Cadek, it is like living in a dream."

Music by Goosens, Ravel and a laughing celtic dance "Molly On the Shore" completed the program, and goodbyes were said, as the artists hurried away to catch the stage to Phoenix to resume their broken schedule.

It proved to be Morrison's last concert, for Cadek told me a few days ago he had just heard that his friend was dead, and somehow I feel that when memory of much applause and adulation has been forgotten, that little band of artists will always recall Tucson and their dying friend. They may play to larger audiences but for smaller pay. These are the unselfish acts which make men great.

Clear, White, Smooth Hands Are Beautiful

Manicuring alone can not make the hands beautiful. The skin itself must be soft, firm, white and youthful. The easiest way to do this is to mix the juice of three lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, and massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach daily into the hands and arms. It will make even stained, toil-worn hands soft, clear, smooth and white.

All dealers have Orchard White.—Adv.

Chamberlin Enters Europe "Ilegally"

BERLIN, June 11. (AP)—Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, although hailed as heroes for their trans-Atlantic flight, are in Germany illegally and will probably be in the same outlaw status in all the European countries they visit unless they can find time amidst the round of entertainments to procure the necessary papers.

Levine has a passport, but no visa. Chamberlin said today: "I have no passport and I don't want one." Levine remarked, however, that no one had yet asked for a passport and he doubted if anybody would.

Chamberlin is occupying a bedroom in the American embassy turned over to him by Miss Barbara Schurman, daughter of Ambassador Schurman. It is full of gifts of bottled beer, light wines, casks, steins and loving cups, but in order to correct any erroneous impression that might be gathered from this Chamberlin emphasized that while he likes an occasional single glass of beer, when at home he does not drink at all.

Levine voiced similar sentiments and then came the disclosure that gold cigaret cases from Chancellor Marx and Foreign Secretary Stresemann bearing the engraved autographs of the statesmen are entirely useless except for supplying friends. Neither Chamberlin nor Levine uses tobacco in any form.

Both, however, appreciate other gifts that have been showered on them such as big bottles of orangeade, a wooden bas-relief of Colonel Lindbergh, from a zealous master carver, colossal wreaths from the naval fliers' association, the German Fliers' league and good friends at Kottbus, but their highest prized presents are the silver framed autographed portraits of President Von Hindenburg.

FRENCHMEN WILL TRY TO CROSS ATLANTIC

PARIS, June 10. (AP)—Now that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is on his way home and the first excitement over the New York-Berlin flight has subsided, French aviators are resuming preparations for their own attempts to fly from Paris to New York.

M. Drouhin, the noted long distance flier, today began tests of his big two-motored plane which will carry a navigator and radio operator. Prior to a Paris-New York jump, however, he hopes to recapture the continuous flight time record which he lost recently to Clarence D. Chamberlin, who remained in the air more than 51 hours in the same plane with which he made his New York-Germany hop.

Sub-Lieut. Paul Tarascon, also an aspirant for trans-Atlantic honors, hopes that his plane will be ready for its trials soon. He will carry Lieutenant Leprieur as navigator. They plan to fly at an unusual height in the hope of avoiding fog and storms.

Bratcher-Hall Wedding at Nocona One of Big Social Events of Season

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, June 11.—On Saturday morning, June 4, at 7 o'clock, Miss Laura Bratcher was married to Mr. Edward Clarence Hall at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Stripling. Miss Bratcher has been for eight years a friend and protege of Mrs. Stripling. Very lovely indeed was the wedding which Mrs. Stripling gave her. It was solmenized on the beautiful lawn of the Stripling home.

An aisle of white was laid from the front porch leading around to the west side where a wedding arch was built of asparagus fern and larkspur just six feet in front of the eight-foot hedge as a back ground. Tall urns filled with orchid and pink gladioli were at the base of the arch. Pedestal ferns and baskets of larkspur marked the aisle of white cloth. On the west porch was the piano on which was a huge basket of pink and orchid larkspur. From the ceiling of the porch over the steps hung a huge orchid and pink wedding bell. Baskets of larkspur marked the columns and potted ferns were used as a background. Benches were arranged on the lawn for the guests. Little Miss Lanthe Rowland presided over the bride's book at a small table.

Miss Rowena Newman sank the pre-nuptial solo, "At Dawning," by Cadman. She wore a shell pink flat crepe gown with hat to match. Mrs. G. W. Humphrey was at the piano. Mrs. Humphrey also played for the chorus and McDowells "To a Wild Rose" during the ceremony. She was gowned in a flesh pink flat crepe.

Chorus of Girls

Down the aisle came 10 girls wearing orchid and pink and carrying streamers of orchid and pink tulle tied to their wrists in flyaway bows. The chorus came two abreast singing as a processional to "Lohengrins Wedding March." Halting in front of the arch and forming the long aisle they continued singing while the bride and her attendants entered.

First came Mrs. Winnie Curlin, matron of honor, wearing an exquisite long-sleeved orchid georgette frock with hat and slippers to match. She carried orchid and pink gladioli.

Next came Miss Linnine Morgan, bridesmaid, very lovely in a similar frock of pale salmon pink chiffon over shell pink flat crepe, with hat and slippers to match. She carried pink gladioli.

Then came the little flower girl, Minneth Rowland, wearing orchid chiffon and carrying a lovely pink arm basket filled with larkspur, fern and pink rose leaves, with her came little Sue Allyn Stripling, the 23-month-old ring bearer. She wore an adorable little hand-made organdy dress and old-fashioned organdy and lace slit bonnet with little showers of ribbon and pink rose buds over her dress. In her hand she carried a slender basket in which rested a huge hand-made full-blown pink rose. In the center of this rose lay the little diamond and platinum wedding ring.

Finally came the bride, gowned exquisitely simple in a rove biege ensemble of flat crepe with hat and accessories to match. In her arms she carried a shower bouquet of pink Killarney roses and lilly of the valley. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

The aisle led the wedding party around the arch, where the bride was met by the groom who had entered from the rear of the hedge with his best man, Mr. Brady King of Vernon. The chorus still singing, marched in behind the bridal party. The bride then stepped up to the arch on the arm of the groom, facing the guests. Here they were met by Rev. S. M. Williams of the Methodist church who read the impressive ring ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony, the chorus started marching and singing the recessional, "Cowen's Bridal Chorus." Then the little flower girl stepped in front of the bride and groom, showering their path with rose petals and leading them forth. The entire party marched between the singing and marching girls back to the front porch, where the bride and groom paused to receive congratulations and the bride to throw her bouquet. This was caught by Miss Faye Breashears.

Breakfast Served

On the west porch the bride's table was then placed. In the center of this was a beautiful three-tier wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom on top. Lovely pink roses and fern decorated the table. The bride then cut the cake. In addition to the wedding cake, guests were served from tables on the lawn with a buffet breakfast, of coffee and whipped cream, wedding roll sandwiches and cheese nibbets.

The wedding gifts were on display in the living room which was likewise decorated with baskets of larkspur and pink and orchid tulle bows. Girls in the chorus were Misses Kathryne Miller, Anna Burton Lewis, Lila Fay Haggerton, Ripple Younger, Emily Maddox, Dorothy Davis, Flora Lee Lasseter, Bill March, Diamond Lawrence and Frances Shackelford.

Miss Bratcher is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Bratcher of Nocona. She has been a student of C. I. A. for two years, 1925-26 and has taught in the Nocona school the past year.

Mr. Hall is an employe of the Humble Oil and Refining company at Vernon. After a short automobile trip the couple will be at home at that place.

Out-of-town guests for the wedning were: Mrs. Hall, mother of the groom, from Mexia; Messrs. Leslie Weatherall and Brady King of Vernon; Messrs. Harry Taylorson and Herbert Dubose of Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Morris of Wichita Falls.

Fortune Tellers Fail To Forsee Arrest By Officers

Two women fortune tellers evidently failed to read their own future Saturday because if they had it is a certainty they would not have been in Wichita Falls.

They were arrested Saturday morning by county officers on a charge of fortune telling, which is a misdemeanor, according to the state law, and arraigned in Justice of the Peace Gibbs court.

Both women pleaded guilty to the charges and paid fines of $5 and costs of trial, amounting to $18.50.

AUTOS STRIKE WOMAN, CHILD

Two Injured in Saturday Afternoon Traffic

Two persons were injured within one hour when struck by automobiles on Seventh street in the business district Saturday afternoon, the firs taccident occurring at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. R. C. Woods, 2515 Sherman avenue, is in the Wichita General hospital suffering from lacerations on her legs sustained when she was knocked down and dragged about 20 feet by an automobile as she started to cross Seventh street.

Witnesses said that the automobile was driven by a woman and had turned off of Indiana into Seventh when Mrs. Woods was struck. It was said that the driver stopped for a moment while Mrs. Woods was carried into a drug store, but drove away without anyone having learned her name.

Mrs. Woods was taken to the hospital in a Hines ambulance. Her condition is not believed to be serious, attendants said late Saturday afternoon, although at that time an X-ray examination had not been made.

Child Injured

A few minutes less than one hour after Mrs. Woods had been injured, Ruth Barnett, age 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Barnett, 809 Austin, was struck by an automobile at Seventh and Scott streets.

Although the little girl was knocked to the pavement she was very slightly injured. She was taken to the General hospital in a Hines ambulance and given first aid treatment there.

Miss Helen Leftrich was driving the car which struck the girl and told police that she was about half across Scott street when the signal changed and the child dashed in front of her car.

Department Store Leases City's Entire Transportation System To Open Sale

The entire transportation system of the city of Wichita Falls, including 14 street cars and eight busses, has been leased by Saul's department store for three hours Wednesday morning, June 15 in order that the residents of Wichita Falls may "ride free" to the opening of the big anniversary sale being put on by the store.

Starting at 9 o'clock, any person in the city may board any of the street cars and busses and ride to town absolutely free of charge. The idea is an entirely novel one, and is being inaugurated to help customers avoid parking worries Wednesday morning.

According to I. J. Miller, manager of Saul's, bargains are to be offered at this sale that have never yet been tried in Wichita Falls.

Managers of every department have spent several months at the markets buying new lines in everything, spending thousands of dollars for this one sale. Every available experienced unemployed sales person in Wichita Falls will be secured to assist in taking care of the customers, and each individual is assured service that is prompt and efficient, he said.

This sale will mark the 13th year since Saul's was opened in this city. In that time phenomenal growth has been experienced in all departments so that values hitherto undreamed of can be offered to the public and greater service made available to every patron of the store.

Every approved advertising medium is to be utilized in placing these values before the public, according to J. A. McPhail, advertising manager of the store, who states that it is the greatest campaign ever planned by a retail store in this section of the country. The leasing of the city transportation service is an indication of the immensity of the project, Mr. McPhail said.

MANY NEW LOCATIONS MADE TO DRILL DURING PAST WEEK

ANOTHER POOL ASSURED COOKE

News of Pipeline Project Accelerates Work

Staking out of many new locations for tests and the spudding in of tests for which locations have been made in recent weeks featured the past week in the North Texas oil fields and indicated that operators have increased their confidence in seing the oil situation right itself in the near future.

New producers were few in number and only one of those reported was of unusual importance. The Lyle-Wilson pool of Archer county gained about 250 barrels in production from three new wells while the Muenster field in Cooke county experienced its usual number of new oil wells.

Possibly the most important completion of the week was Pure Oil company's No. 1 Embry in Cooke county which flowed and swabbed 30 barrels hourly from an entire new sand topped at 1403 feet and drilled 1408 feet.

The Roxana Petroleum corporation made location to offset the Pure well while the Sun Oil company has an offset tract and is expected to begin developing it right away.

New Pipeline

Cooke county stock was boosted considerably when it was learned that the Sinclair Pipeline company was to start a new oil carrier from Nocona to Muenster. This will insure prompt connections for new wells and new pools which are expected to come. The Humble Pipeline company line through the county had about reached its daily capacity and the county's daily yield has been showing regular gains of late.

With the Leibecker-Holman No. 1 in Jack county finally completed with a natural flow of 125 barrels daily, five new tests are starting up near the strike. Companies already drilling or with locations made in the area are Leibecker-Holman, Shaw and Rathke, Seaboard Oil and Gas company, Nash and Windfohr and Buttram Petroleum corporation. The discovery well has proven to be better than any in the Buttram pool and the new district is expected to be one of the busiest in North Texas.

Archer County

The pool opened two weeks ago by Roxana and P. F. Geogan on the Ward estate, R. R. Rainey survey of Archer county, gained a new test when initial performance of the well amounted to 75 barrels in 24 hours. The Sun Oil company has made location to offset the east line of the Roxana-Gwynn lease.

The important locations were made in Wilbarger county while drilling was started on a pair of tests which wil be watched interestedly. The latter tests are Golding and Cochran No. 1 Waggoner and Marland-Golding and Cochran No. 1 Waggoner.

The next few weeks promise to be the busiest in North Texas since the crude slump put a crimp in oil development all over the Mid-Continent field.

Wildcats with great possibilities are drilling away in a dozen counties radiating around Wichita Falls. The fraternity is particularly interested in operations in Knox, Foard, Hardeman, and King counties where large sums of money have been expended in geological work which is now being backed up with possibly a larger amount for drilling.

New Tests to Be Started in North Young

Allday Oil corporation is rigging up a machine to drill its No. 2 Davis, near the new producer of Holbrook and Woods on the Davis farm in Northeast Young. The Allday location is 750 feet from the south and 150 from the west of the east 40 of the west 100 of the south 360 acres of section 1395, T. E. and L.

Roberts Oil corporation and Atlantic Oil Producing company have made location for their No. 1-B C. E. Graham, 150 feet out of the northwest corner of the north 100 acres of the south 350 acres of section 3401, T. E. and L. survey.

Sinclair Buys Site For Pumping Plant

Sinclair Pipeline company has purchased the site for its Meunster pumping station on the new pipeline project to serve the north half of Brooke county. The site is on the Bayer farm about a half mile south of the town of Muenster. Company officials are said to be on the ground supervising the preliminary work to starting laying the pipe.

Drilling Starts On Fluhmann Extensions

Drilling has been started at the two wildcats south of the Fluhmann pool in Wilbarger county, being put down by Golding and Cochran and Marland. Golding and Cochran are drilling below 400 feet in their No. 1 Waggoner, located in section 194, block 14, H. and T. C. survey. Golding and Cochran and Marland Oil company have reached a depth of 475 feet in their joint test located in section 107. Another wildcat near the Fluhmann pool is Humble and Fain-McGaha No. 1 Belcher which is drilling at 2170 feet after testing a small showing of oil at 2000 feet.

CENTRAL JONES COUNTY

White Eagle Oil and Refining company and E. P. Campbell, in No. 1 Herndon, in the center of the west half of the southwest of section 6, of M. E. P. survey, near the town of Anson, in central Jones county, the east area of West Texas, had a good show of oil at 2,489 feet. Surface elevation there is 1832 feet. The well will not be tested until title matters are cleared up, says word from Abilene.

The White Eagle-Campbell well is on a block originally held by the Midwest Exploration company, and sold by it, after retaining protection in the area.

Every Field Contributes To 1600 Barrel Slump In Pipeline Runs

Every field in the North Texas oil district contributed to a decline of 1595 barrels in daily pipeline runs during the past fiscal week. A dearth of new producers of consequence to offset the natural shrinkage of previously completed wells was responsible for the loss.

Archer county was by far the heaviest loser, running 800 barrels less than in the previous week to bring the total down to 28,200 barrels. Young county, Archer's southern neighbor, was next in amount of decline with 225 barrels.

With the exception of the Electra field which slumped 135 barrels, all other fields showed losses of less than 100 barrels. Cooke county receded from its peak but is expected to start gaining again within a short time as new wells are being started in all of the areas recently discovered.

Daily runs by fields follow:

Field—	Past Week	Prev. Week	Difference
Electra	15,755	15,890	loss 135

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, June 11. — New oil production in Oklahoma for the past week, totalled 43,093 barrels daily, being 4362 barrels less than for the previous week. Of this total, the Seminole field gets credit for 35,305 barrels daily, there having been 26 new wells brought in in this prolific field. Pottawatomie county's new production was 3590 barrels daily, this from one producer, which is in the Seminole field also.

Osage county was third in new production, it having five new wells, with a flush output of 2035 barrels daily; Creek was next with 10 new producers, which had a total production of 1445 barrels; following Creek was Carter with 295 barrels new production from five wells; Muskogee county's new production totalled 140 barrels daily; Pawnee county shows 90 barrels; Stephens county had but 60 barrels. Grady county is next with 45 barrels; and Okmulgee and Hughes, each with one well, added 10 barrels to their daily output, and Payne county had but one new well, which did eight barrels.

Gas Yield Greater

There was a big increase in new gas production in the state, the total daily output for the week amounting to 153,970,000 feet, compared with but 66,000,000 feet the previous week. Creek county led in volume of gas, its total output being 82,235,000 feet, the balance of the total output being divided among the following counties: Carter, Grady, Hughes, Kay, Muskogee, Okfuskee, Osage, Pawnee, Stephens and Tulsa counties.

But four Kansas counties report new production for the week, being Butler, 430 barrels daily; Cowley, 145 barrels; Rice, 25 barrels, and Sumner, 1250 barrels, the total new daily output in the Sunflower state being 1850 barrels. This state had one new gas well in Cowley county, which made 4,000,000 feet daily.

Swabbed Once, Morton Well Makes 30 Barels And Quits For Pipeline

AMARILLO, June 11.—The Morton and company No. 1 Reeder in section 191, black 3S of T. N. & O. survey and northeast of Dumas in Moore county, which found oil early in the week at 3373 to 3375 feet, was swabbed once today and brought 30 barrels to the surface.

It was immediately reshut in for pipe line facilities now being surveyed from the Oil City pool 30 miles away. Oil men say the Morton well is a 200 barrel well and means a definite extension of the Panhandle field to the northwest that may link up with the Oklahoma Panhandle.

New Menace From the Air

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Warner is inspecting the new machine in this picture, while Martin points out its excellencies and L. C. Milburn, his chief engineer.

WORK LETS UP IN PANHANDLE

Production Drops 10,000 Bbls. in Week

AMARILLO, June 11.—Pinching in producing wells and shutting many potential wells down on top of the sand, because of inadequate pipe line facilities, now taking place throughout Hutchinson, Gray and Carson counties, was responsible during the past week for a loss of 10,911 barrels a day in daily output for the Panhandle oil field.

As a result of this curtailment the great plains oil field averaged but 129,546 barrels a day, compared with 140, 457 barrels the previous week. This is the sharpest decline noted in many months.

The field summary follows:

County—	Out-put.	New Wells.	Gain.	Loss.
Carson	12,296	2	...	512
Gray	12,641	1	...	762
Htchinson	102,717	8	...	9,877
Moore	0	.	...	....
Potter	35	.	...	....
Wheeler	2,457	1	240	....

All Watching Moore.

The finding of 1700 feet of oil i nthe Morton and company No. 1 Reeder, in section 191, block 3T of T. and N. O. survey, some seven and one-half miles northeast of Dumas, county seat of Moore county, during the week just closed, is heralded by Panhandle oil men as the most important event of 1927 in this area.

While the Morton well is not yet completed, the fact that it found considerable oil at just two feet in a sandy lime topped at 3373 feet, makes all think that it will be completed for a producer. A producer there would prove that a future trend exists between the Texas Panhandle area, now with five counties, and the Oklahoma Panhandle to the northwest, and that they will some day be linked up.

Pipe Lines Busy.

The pipe lines serving the Panhandle are doing all that they possibly can to move away as much of the production as possible, but they are finding it a task. The Humble Pipe Line company is taking out the most oil and the Gulf-Magnolia joint line is also doing its best.

A check for May, showed that the Humble moved out 842,000 barrels in its 10-inch line, or an average of 271,161 barrels a day, and so far this month it has pushed 31,500 barrels a day through its line, that has a rated capacity of 20,000 barrels.

The Gulf Pipe Line company moved 18,000 barrels a day through its 10-inch line and the Gulf-Magnolia jointly pushed 549,000 barrels through their line in May. All but 6000 barrels of this came from the Magnolia tanks at Kingsmill.

Laying Gas Line.

The Empire companies has actually started work of stringing its 20-inch gas pipe line from near Pampa, in Gray county, in a northeasterly direction towards Wichita, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo.

A total of eight miles had been laid up to the last of this week, and Booth and Flynn of Pittsburgh, Pa., general contractors, are to push the work. Ditching is in progress and the workers are connecting the pipe as fast as they can. It will be welded. The line will move through Woodward, in northwestern Oklahoma, and Anthony, in southwestern Kansas, and into the present Empire line at Wichita.

When completed it will handle 70,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas each day, and it is planned to have it completed and in operation by Jan. 1, 1928.

Right of way for the Empire line was purchased from the town of Panhandle to Hoover, in northeastern Gray county for around 25 cents per rod, and similar prices are reported being paid beyond that.

Prayer Is Answered.

The wisdom of uttering a prayer for gas and oil has been proven good for Paul Vitek of Fort Worth, a wildcatter of renown.

Some time ago the Vitek Oil corporation, controlled by Mr. Vitek, bought several leases in the Panhandle and tests were started. The first was the No. 1 Jordan-Brown in section 113, block 4, of L and G. N. survey, to the northwest of the Roxana-Bryan pool in Carson county.

Part of his prayer, follows:

"O heavenly father, through whose infinite omnipotence the destinies of us humans are guided, look down in Thy goodness upon me and my friends these days.

"Thou who seest the sparrow's fall, turn Thine eyes of compassion upon the efforts of us here below; guide our footsteps aright; make clean our minds so that whatever may befall, we can see the workings of Thy divine will.

"We are mortal, O heavenly father; we are weak; we are puny; we are flesh and blood made in Thy image, but weighted down with the frailties and sins of this world.

"We strive for success. We strain at the leash of world conditions that hold us; we press forward with the small forces we can command, but at times we are tired and the night is dark.

"We believe, we hope, we pray, but our success or failure depends upon Thy Divine will.

"I have faith in Thee, O Heavenly Father; I have faith in my fellow men; I have faith in myself in so far as Thou has endowed me with the brain and brawn to persevere.

"Give me victory, I beseech Thee, for Iam not alone in my endeavors. My enterprise is fostered by the toil and sweat, the worry and anxiety of a host of my fellow-beings—men and women who have entrusted to me the fruits of their labors—men and women all struggling in this vale of tears to obtain some of the fruits of the earth which Thou has provided for mankind.

"Spare me, O Lord, from preening myself on my wisdom, for I know nothing of the morrow. The future to us on earth is obscure; only Thou to whom all time is the present, knoweth the fate of our puny enterprises on this earth. I can only have faith; I can only hope; I can only pray that in Thy infinite goodness and knowledge Thou will grant unto me the beneficence that I succeed so that faith in Me will be maintained in the hearts of my fellowmen.

"I have tried and I have failed. I am trying again and I know that without infinite assistance I might fail again, for I am like other men, weak and dependent upon Thee.

"Therefore I pray to Thee, O Lord, for success these days—not for myself alone do I supplicate Thee, but also for those men and women who have reposed confidence in me—for the father who wishes to educate his children, for the mother who wishes to rear her young ones in comfort, for the young man who desires to establish a home, for the young woman who is looking for the aid of her kin.

"My days are filled with anxious effort and my nights replete with dreams —dreams of success.

"Grant Thou, that I be not disappointed, but that I may persevere until Thy Divine Will is manifest in the achievement I desire.

"I ask this in the name of my friends through whose success, if Thou grantest it, will mean success for me."

The first tinge of an answer came a week ago when the Vitek well found gas at 2795 feet, and this increased to 15,000,000 feet at 2840 feet. The hole was drilled on and at 3040 to 3045 feet, it had an oil show and the regular pay is expected around 3100 feet.

Below Sea Level.

The discovery of producing sands below sea level in Gray county has started many operators in the Hutchinson county pools to decide that a deeper exploration is essential. Geologists forecast a big producing sand around 4000 feet.

The first of the major concerns to start towards the deeper horizon, is the Phillips Petroleum company. Its No. 12, Elva-Whittenburg, in the Tomlinson survey, due west of Borger, and south of the Canadian river, is underreaming the 6 5-8-inch pipe down to 3555 feet, total depth.

Sea level elevation there is 3019 feet(?) indicating that it is already 536 feet below sea level. It has less than 450 feet to go.

A number of tests in the Dixon Creek pool are below sea level, and one recently came in for 300 barrels that was 97 feet below sea level.

Royalty Sales In West Texas

Ten New Locations Made To Drill

SAN ANGELO, June 11.—Ten locations for oil tests have been made definitely in six West Texas counties, two more tentatively, and lease and royalty sales have been brisk in Howard, Winkler, Andrews and other counties recently. Pecos and Upton counties tied in locations with three each and Tom Green, Dawson, Midland and Reeves county each gained one, with two reported in Howard county on which information is not complete.

One of Pecos county's latest locations has been by the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental for No. 7A Yates, 250 feet from the north and 200 feet from the west lines from the southwest quarter of section 61 in the vacant strip in which the discovery producer is located. The new well will be between Nos. 4 and 5. Other Pecos locations, previously reported, are Simms No. 1 Devlin, 1320 feet from the north and east lines of section 12, block 105, G. C. and S. F. Ry. Co. survey, and Red Bank No. 1 McKenzie, in the center of the north half of section 21, block 126, T. and St. L. Ry. Co. survey.

Upton Location

Curtis and others will drill No. 1 Giddings in Upton county. 1921 varas from th enorth line and 2404 varas from the east line of Throckmorton county school lands. Prairie Oil and Gas company has offset Texas No. 1 Perry, a producer, on the west, with its No. 1 Burleson, 330 feet out of the easternmost northeast corner of section 2, John Nidever survey. Gulf earlier offset Prairie No. 2 Lane on the east with its No. 2 Lane, 1650 feet from the west line and 330 feet from the south line of section 3, G. C. and S. F. Ry. Co. survey.

R. R. Penn of Dallas will drill No. 1 Wright in Dawson county, 1320 feet from the south and west lines of section 16, block 1, township 6 north, T. and P. Ry. Co. survey. Orbit Oil company made a location in Midland county for No. 1 Moreland, 1320 feet from the south and east lines of section 17, block 39, township 1 south, T. and P. Ry. Co. survey. David- R. Thompson has made a location in Reeves county for No. 1 Eddens in the center of the east line of section 10, or 3240 feet from the north and south lines of common section 9-10, block C1, public school lands. Tom Green county's latest location is that by the Tulsa Oil company (Tom Green and associates) for No. 1 Tom Adams, in the center of the southwest quarter of section 162, block 11, S. P. Ry. Co. survey, 14 miles south of San Angelo. A National machine is now being set up to spud in next week.

Wichita Falls Operators

Wichita Falls operators are reported to have made a location in Howard county in section 42, block 31, township 1 north, T. and P. Ry. Co. survey. The other reported location in Howard county is by Denver and Wichita Falls operators approximately in section 3, block 34, township 3 north, T. and P. Ry. Co. survey. Six thousand acres are under lease on the line of Howard and Martin counties.

Landreath Production company is building the derrick for its No. 1 Houston in Glasscock county, 330 feet from the east and north lines of the northwest quarter of section 12, block 35, township 2 south, T. and P. Ry. Co. survey. Landreath acquired 28,000 acres with a drilling obligation from Mann & Freel of San Angelo, who retain an interest in the block.

Denton and Cooke Gain Three New Locations

Cooke county gained two important drilling locations, outside of production, the past week while Denton county was assured another test. In Cooke county, Magnolia Petroleum company has made location for its No. 1 Andrees Brothers, 300 feet west of the No. 1 Johnson which is the only gas weel in Coke county. The new well is in the southeast corner of the Jonathan Clark survey.

Fain-McGaha Oil company made location for its No. 1 J. C. Embry, 150 feet out of the northeast corner of the south 160 acres of the John English survey.

The Denton county location is west of Sanger and is to be Big Indian Oil company's No. 1 E. W. Farrister in the center of a 40-acre tract in the J. W. Chandler survey.

LANDREATH DRILLS WILDCAT

Landreath Production company is drilling below 500 feet in a wildcat test 10 miles southwest of Electra and in eastern Wilbarger county, the test being No. 1 Waggoner in section 36, block 6 of the H. and T. C. survey.

W. TEXAS GAINS IN PRODUCTION

New Territory Added To Oil Fields

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, June 11.—Production gains were registered and much new territory proven this week in Upton, Crane, Pecos and Crockett counties as a half dozen wells were drilled in and others showed increases upon deepening. Harris Bros., San Angelo cattlemen, signed a contract with the United States government for the drilling of the first core tests for potash in Texas on their ranch in Crockett county, either in section 16 or 20, block HH. The papers have been sent to Washington for the signature of the secretary of interior.

The latest development was the striking of oil Thursday in Prairie No. 2C Lane at 1965 feet and a flow of 50 barrels by heads at 1968 that indicated it would become the sixth producer in the southeastern extension of the Hurdle area in Upton county. The well is a 660-foot northwestern offset to the Texas company No. 1 J. M. Perry, which was flowing 300 barrels daily from 2040 feet, also after striking oil at 1965 feet. Both are in section 3, G. C. and S. F. Ry. Co. survey, the Perry being 330 feet out of the southwest corner of the section. It extended production late last week a half mile east and slightly south of Prairie No. 1C Lane, first producer in the fiel dsouth of the Orient railroad that marked a mile southeastern extension fro mthe Burleson pool. Other producers in the new area are Gulf No. 1 Lane, northern offset to Prairie No. 1C Lane, which has been making 80 barrels daily from 2014 feet; Dixie No. 24 Burleson, western offset to Prairie No. 1C Lane, and Dixie No. 25 Burleson, western offset to Gulf No. 1 Lane.

Big Upton Well

Humble No. 5 Ricker & Dodson in Upton county, a mile south of the main Independent field, and 4200 feet southwest of Humble No. 4 Ricker & Dodson, the nearest producer, came in Wednesday at 2768 feet for 40 barrels hourly and gauged as high as 50 barrels an hour in producing 820 barrels the first 23 hours. The well had settled Thursday to 35 barrels an hour. It increases the revenues of Rupert P. Ricker and Floyd C. Dodson of San Angelo, owners of the 2560 acres the Humble has under lease. The well is 2310 feet from the northeast line and 4600 feet from the northwest line of section 5, M. S. Denton survey. In Crane county, Humble was cleaning out its No. 9 university at 3966 feet, following a shot, prior to which the well swabbed 52 barrels. Drilling through the first pay from 2890 to 2907 feet, it stood 1000 feet in oil and topped the second pay at 2925. It is 990 feet from the south and west lines of section 33, block C.

The connection between the Gulf's McElroy field on the south and the university pool on the northwest was proven further by the drilling in of Gulf No. 12 McElroy at 2809-40 feet for 50 barrels hourly, partially pinched in. Earlier Gulf brought in No. 11 McElroy, two locations west of No. 12 and Cromwell and associates secured production in their No. 5 university. These wells marked the loss by Landreth Production company of the first lap in the race for oil on the vacant strip of university land, 434 feet wide by four miles long, on and along which 15 wells still are drilling. Landreth is drilling six wells on the strip, offset by six to the Gulf on the south and six on the north, one by Simms-Atlantic, four by Crowell and associates and one by Tidal.

Strike Holds Up

P. H. Williams and family No. 1 L. P. Powell, which extended the Crockett county field a mile south, continued to make between 250 and 300 barrels daily from 2590 feet, with a bailer in the hole early in the week. The well has been connected with the Humble pipe line lading to Marland (Kemper) on the railroad to a connection with its eight-inch, looped pipeline. The rig is being built for a test to be drilled in Crockett county by George H. Anderson of Dallas, Wm. McGinley and Talbot & Fackett of Chicago, in the middle of the west line of the southwest quarter of section 2, block 50, university land. Shaffer and others' No. 2 universit yin Crockett county topped the salt at 1060 feet.

Production by seven Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental wells in eastern Pecos county were pinched during the week as low as 4222 barrels in 24 hours, owing to inadequate storage and pipeline facilities. One of those wells and the latest was No. 1 Smith-Taylor, which upon being deepened late last week to 1271 feet flowed 219 barrels the first hour. It is in the northeast part of section 33, block 194, G. C. and S. F. Ry. Co. survey, almost equi-distant, between one-half and three-quarters of a mile, from No. 2A Yates to the southeast and No. 4A aYtes to the northeast. The Illinois Pipeline company had laid 10 miles of its 28-mile, eight-inch line paralleling its six-inch line from the field to McCamey, but the two will have a daily capacity of only 20,000 barrels, which would be greatly exceeded by production of the wells if opened. No. 2B Yates had drilled Thursday to 865 feet and No. 6A Yates to 785 feet. Allsman & Bell No. 1 Pecos river bed test was shut down at 850 feet, after landing 8 1-4-inch casing.

Humble Fails in Test At Depth of 3500 Feet

Humble Oil and Refining company is plugging its No. 1 Farwell, in section 2, township 14s, range 3e, block Z, of C. S. S. survey, in Parmer county. It found salt at 3503 feet. This test was made after a scientific investigation of the area and its abandonment leaves the deeper horizons in that sector still undetermined.

NEW FLUHMANN TEST

Atlantic Oil Producing company has made location for its No. 2-A Fluhmann, 300 feet south of No. 1-A, a 100-barrel producer in the Day Land and Cattle company survey of Wilbarger county and in the Fluhmann pool.

Inside Tips On Petrology

R. W. Hodges of the Marland Oil company and who is production superintendent over the entire northwest Texas district with headquarters in Breckenridge, is in Wichita Falls on business.

R. C. (Bob) Honea, the Marland Oil company scout who "covers" the majority of the North Texas district is stereing clear of mesquite thickets and cat-claw bushes now for fear that he will scratch the paint on a new Hupmobile touring car which officials felt that he needed.

Bob Nolen, independent oil operator and former oil editor of The Record News, is fearful lest the prolonged status of the oil market may indicate this in September, when the consumtion will start falling, the crude price will have to come down instead of up.

E. R. Mount of the Simms Oil company has just returned from another trial to the McCamey district of West Texas. Major operators in that area, Mr. Mount says, are making dozens of new locations and while the activity is not excited, it is decidedly brisk.

R. W. Suggett observes that Connie Mack has his team started now, that Dell Pratt is a wonderful manager and that Cooke county is a veritable paradise for the independent operator.

Abilene, although many miles from oil production, is said to be attracting many operators in Central West Texas from some of the older oil towns.

DANCIGER SELLS TO TULSA MAN

Nine 40-Acre Tracts Comprise Properties

ARTESIA, N. M., June 11.—The Danciger Oil and Refining company has consumated a deal, selling its production property in the Artesia field of Eddy county, and the Pampa field of Gray county, Texas, the purchasers being J. G. Cloud, Dr. Fred M. Bose, and Ray M. Dunnett, the former two being Tulsa men, while Mr. Dunnett lives in Kansas City.

The Artesia property comprises nine 40-acre tracts, or 760 acres, in sections 1, 4, and 17 and 18 of township, 18, range 28, and sections 28 and 34, in township 17, range 28. The first well the Danciger company brought in on these properties, was on April 7, 1925, on its Beeson lease in 18-18-28. There are 15 producers on the property.

The Pampa, Texas, property comprises 340 acres, on which there is a 20,000,000 foot gas well, which was brought in in May, 1925, and has been supplying the town of Pampa since October of that year. It also supplies gas for most of the drilling wells in the Pampa field, which is approximately five and one-half miles south of Pampa.

The Danciger company and the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company were the pioneer operators in the Pampa field, bringing in the first two gas wells there.

Eighty acres of the Pampa property is in section 120, block B-2, H. & T. C. survey, and the balance in section 85, block 3, L. & G. N. survey.

Near McGee Producer

One and one-half miles south of the Danciger gas well, is the McGee oil producer brought in a few weeks ago in section 98, which is making 800 barrels daily. McGee is also drilling a test two locations west of the se ne of section 93, Gulf Production company has spudded in a test in the sw corner of section 89, offsetting the McGee well to the west, Humble Oil and Refining company has made location in the se corner section 86, one location south of its 600 barrel producer brought in three weeks ago.

The area in which tests are drilling, surrounding the McGee well, has 75 feet of granite wash, and the oil is 42 1-2 gravity, while the field is two and one-half miles to the north, has but 30 feet of his formation.

Consideration Withheld

The consideration received by the Danciger company for its properties was not announced, but after the deal was consummated the three gentlemen purchasing the property organized the Operators Oil company, taking over the entire property including the one-fourth purchased by Dr. Bose, and in turn sold a one-half interest to Chicago capitalist for $350,000.

The Operators Oil company is planning to start a drilling campaign at once on the Artesia property, there being many undrilled locations on the property and it will also develop further, the Pampa property.

GULF GETS PRODUCER

WICHITA VALLEY POTATOES BRING PREMIUM ON LOCAL MARKET

DEMAND FOR SPUDS HEAVY

Buyers Aid Farmers In Marketing Crop

Wichita county potato growers are receiving premiums on their 1927 crop of potatoes from local produce buyers ranging from 25 cents per 100 pounds to 75 cents, a local wholesaler said Saturday.

This is primarily caused by a desire to aid in every way possible the growth of potato raising and also because growers were furnished seed potatoes of the very highest grade through local produce men, it was explained.

Cantaloupe Crop Good.

Local demand for the home grown potatoes is so great that buyers have been unable to ship out a car load as it is planned to do when receipts are heavier.

Green leaf vegetables from Wichita county farms are still being sold here with turnip tops, lettuce and radishes still plentiful while the spinach crop has been exhausted.

Home grown peaches are getting more plentiful although they are yet of the usual quality to be had early in the season. Peaches sell to retailers at $2.50 per bushel. A Wichita county farmer who was in Wichita Falls Saturday reported that his cantaloupe crop would be heavy this year and that he would start gathering the first cantaloupes within two weeks.

Wichita Falls retailers are offering California cantaloupes which are of good quality and rather high in price at the same time.

Egg producers are offered 14 cents per dozen by Wichita Falls dealers, who state that there is no overproduction of eggs. The live poultry market is unchanged.

The following prices are those quoted by Wichita Falls wholesalers to retail dealers. Unless otherwise indicated, the prices are subject to continual changes:

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—Wheat and corn bumped against an air pocket in demand from buyers late today and both cereals underwent a suddent drop. Price downturns were accelerated by the fact that many standing orders to sell aut and stop losses if necessary at various fixed limits were forced into operation. Wheat harvesting was reported as having begun in Kansas with weather conditions favorable.

Wheat closed heavy, 2½ to 2⅝c net lower, corn ⅝ to 1¼c off, oats ⅞ to 1½c down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10@12c.

Favorable weather in the corn belt was a bearish factor today as to corn and oats.

Provisions went downward on account of weakness of hog values and of cereals as well.

LONDON, England. — London's smoke and dust play queer pranks upon its statues. Over the entrance to Old Bailey, the criminal police court, are three beautiful female figures. One, whose position exposes her to the washing of the rain, is normal; a second, whose face is protected from cleaning downpours, has the appearance of a negro with classical Greek features, while the third has a prominent black eye.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—After selling up to 17.54 for December contracts or 7 points net higner and within 11 points of yesterday's high record, the cotton market today reacted under realizing. December sold off to 17.30, but recovered about 10 points of the loss on covering, with the market closing steady net 3 points higher to 1 point lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points, and the active months showed net gains of 15 to 17 points, during the early trading. There was continued covering with further trade or commission house buying, which appeared to be promoted by the failure of the weather map to show any rain in West Texas, and continued nervousness over the crop outlook in flooded or reflooded areas in the Mississippi valley. The demand seemed to be rather less active and aggressive than recently, however, and the advance to 16.95 for July and 17.31 for October evidently attracted realizing. This was promoted by some uncertainty as to weather conditions ever Sunday, and some of the local traders thought a low barometer reported over West Texas might bring rain in that section, while the official weather forecast for partly cloudy weather, did not contain any mention of showers for the southwest. This view of the outlook seemed to restrict selling to the realizing of longs and after easing off to 16.77 for July, and 17.08 for October, or about 3 to 8 points net lower, the market recovered part of its loss in the late trading.

The Liverpool market will be open for business on Monday morning, while the fact that the market will be closed at noon Monday for a half holiday, probably increased the disposition to even up small commitments during today's trading.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, (AP)—After losing 20 to 21 points on week-end realizing and liquidation, prices in today's cotton market rallied 14 points in the late trading and closed steady at a net advance for the day of three to 12 points.

In the absence of Liverpool cables, the local opening was unchanged to two points down but the execution of some overnight buying orders and buying induced by the map indications of probable rains in the drouth section of West Texas over Sunday rallied prices to levels 15 to 17 points above previous close, with July at 17.03 and October 17.27.

These high levels attracted some realizing and profit-taking and as a result, prices lost 20 to 21 points. July trading down to 16.38 and October 17.06, 3 to 6 points under the previous close.

After the offerings were absorbed the market rallied on shorts covering, prices gaining 14 points in the late trading.

DRYGOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—Carded 100x60's broadcloths were fairly well closed up in mill and second hand at 10⅝ cents, the buyers being shirting factors. Better business is reported in shirting circles since men are discarding vests. The print cloth and sheeting sections are quiet and prices are being very firmly maintained. A holiday in Calcutta accounts for a lack of primary quotations arriving. Good inquiry arirved in local quarters and substantial quantities have been taken on the various afloat positions. Raw silk prices were unchanged with little trading reported, either here or at Yokohama.

Meaningless, Irregular Market Greets Traders in Short Session of New York Stock Exchange

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 11.—A very meaningless, irregular market was experienced on the New York stock exchange in today's half session as trading was confined largely to pre-holiday evening up of commitments. With the Lindbergh intermission Monday traders feared to take an extended position because of nervousness regarding the outlook as to money rates coincident with the mid-month turnover of funds. A goodly number of brokers and traders left Friday night for an extended week-end holiday. There was some further talk of a reduction in the rediscount rate being likely but as this lacked confirmation in banking circles it failed to inspire any new buying of importance. The foreign exchange market was quiet but steady. Cotton options continued their advance while the grain market remained irregular.

Extension of time for exchange of the second Liberties for the new 3 3-8 per cent treasury certificates was regarded as confirmation of report, told of here recently, that bankers were not disposing of the new certificates as rapidly as they would like to. It was accepted furthermore as another indication that a reduction in the rediscount rate was near. There was one story that the rate would be reduced only on government securities. In other words that the reserve banks would put two distinct rates into effect. One banker queried thereon said such action would be but a gesture and prove futile. It would have no influence on the general investment trend and therefore would not give the stimulus to buyers of securities at current low return rates made necessary by the glutting of the market condition by huge amount of new security offerings.

Hudson motors was the outstanding feature of strength advancing sharply against a crowded short interest on renewed operations by those western interests who have made life miserable for professional bears over the past several months. They jump from one stock to another wherever a short interest is found and force covering by concerted buying and have been fortunate in timing activity with favorable developments that permit of profitable liquidation. General Motors was steady absorbed and slumped but fractionally in the face of rather heavy profit taking.

Transcontinental and other "Oil Pups" weaned as soon as the pool tried to collect on their manipulation. Atlantic Refining moved higher, however, on continued good buying based on indications of favorable dividend action soon. The group work continued in Radio but failed to bring further advance worthy of mention. Omnibus was active coincident with well circulated "tip" of "important buying" but was impossible to get any of the tipsters to mention the name of a single "important buyer."

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—The stock market opened steady today, dipped sharply on heavy selling for both accounts and then made irregular recovery. There was nothing in the day's news to account for the price movements which appeared to represent the usual week-end shifting of speculative accounts, probably accentuated by reason of the stock exchange holiday on Monday and the approach of federal income tax payments and government financing.

Bear traders succeeded in uncovering a number of new weak spots during the session, but there were no wide open breaks and active short covering was noted in a few issues towards the close. Bull pools were again active in specialties in which favorable developments are believed to be pending, nearly a dozen being elevated to new high levels for the year.

Hudson Motors suddenly leaped into prominence by climbing more than three points to 86¼. Pierce Arrow preferred broke over four points to 61⅛ and then rallied above 64, and Peerless sold down about a point. Studebaker dipped below 50 to within a fraction of the year's low and General Motors closed fractionally higher at 203¼ after fluctuating between 202⅛ and 203⅝.

Commercial Solvents B broke 7 points to 339 and snapped back to 343 while Abram and Straus, Air Reduction, Brooklyn Edison, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, National Surety, Omnibus preferred, Pittsburgh Coal common, preferred, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal, Sloss-Sheffield, South Porto Rican Sugar (old), and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe all reacted two points or more. American Brown Boveri and Cluett Peabody touched new 1927 lows.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits with a drop of about 9 points in Spanish pesetas to around 17.26 cents as the only feature. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 5-16 and French francs around 3.91½ cents.

SPUDS SWEEP SHIPPER CARD

Locals Take Entire Series From Beaumont

Spittin' Tom Estell was right Saturday afternoon and had the Beaumont Exporters eating out of his hand while his mates hammered Jack Robertson without mercy. Estell kept the Shippers' five hits well scattered throughout the game and was never in danger except in the first inning.

It would be difficult to decide on the star of the Spudders' attack between Tom Jenkins and Rabbit Benton. Benton slapped out four singles in five times at bat. Jenkins hit two home runs and a double in four times up. Lamb was on base both times on Jenkins home runs, both the drives clearing the green boards in center field.

Tom Connolly hit safely twice for Beaumont and led that team in the batting.

Good Support

Estell was not only backed by great hitting all the way, but he was accorded with great fielding on the part of his mates. They played almost airtight baseball in the field behind the Spitter and three fast double plays were pulled by the club. Beaumont pulled two.

Benton dropped Dorman's pop fly in the first inning to start the trouble. Jenkins came back of short to take Connolly's pop fly for the first out. Edingon walked. Tobin caught Miller's pop foul for the second out. Galoway walked. Jenkins again came in back of short to take Capes' pop fly.

The Spudders started after Robertson in the first inning and drove in three runs. Benton singled to center and went to second when Capes let the ball get through him. Turgeon singled past short, sending Benton to third. Fitzgerald hit into a double play and Benton scored. Lamb singled to right. Lamb stole second and scored when Jenkins hit one over the green batting screen in center field. Swenson tripled to left, but Kallina flied to center.

Errors Aids Score

After Tobin had popped out, Connolly dropped Estell's pop fly. Benton singled to center sanding Estell to second. Turgeon flied to deep center and Estell went to third after the catch. Fitzgerald singled to left scoring Estell and sending Benton to second. Lamb doubled to left and went on to third when Scholz let Miller's return get away from him. Tom Jenkin's mighty black bat then slammed another drive over the green batting screen in center field scoring Lamb ahead of him. Swenson rolled out to Scholz.

Three More Runs

After Estell had been called out on strikes in the sixth inning, the Spudders went on into Holzhauser and scored three more runs. Benton singled to left. Turgeon walked. Fitzgerald doubled down the first base line scoring Benton. Lamb smashed a hot one to Scholz and was thrown out with no advance. The mighty Tut Jenkins then crashed a long double against the right-center field wall scoring Turgeon and Fitzgerald. Swenson walked, and Kallina went out swinging.

CUBS TAKE THIRD.

FORT WORTH, June 11. (AP)—Waco made it three straight from Fort Worth with a 7 to 3 victory Saturday. The Cubs hit in the pinches and took advantage of numerous Cat misplays. Elliott made a poor start, walking the first two Cats to face him but Wayne Windle, ex-Cat, grabbed Sears' hot liner, stepped on second and fired to Shires at first to execute a triple play and after that Elliott had the situation well in hand. LINDSTROM HITS WAY INTO LEAD

Giant Third Sacker Goes To Top in Batting

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—The New York Giants and Pittsburgh have almost a monopoly of the list of ten leading hitters now. The stickwork of Freddie Lindstrom, young Giant third sacker, moved him up to the top to complete the four man wrecking crew of McGraw and match the four Pirates who have been hovering around the leadership for several weeks. In averages compiled today including games of Wednesday, McGraw has Farrell, Harper, Hornsby and Lindstrom and Donie Bush has Harris, Paul Waner, Wright and Traynor in eight of the first ten places.

Frankie Frisch sticks to seventh place not so very far behind the keystone artist New York got in exchange for him, Rogers Hornsby. Hendrick of Brooklyn rounds out the list.

Harris was the only one of the group to show any discernible gain in his stick percentage this week, and he jumped way into the .400 class with a mark of .437, the only National Leaguers above the .300's. Frisch is tied exactly with Hornsby in hits, 64 apiece, but the Rajah's total bases, boosted by his 10 home runs, are well above the Cardinal second baseman.

Only "Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs leads Hornsby in homers. Wilson's homer which won Wednesday's game was his 11th. Old Cy Williams of the Phillies is tied with Hornsby at 10.

Frisch gained one stolen base this week on the fleet Kiki Cuyler of Pittsburgh who still leads with 15, one more than Frankie.

Besides having the week's leading clouter, the Pirates have the present pitching leader, in Lee Meadows who, specs and all, has turned in eight victories with only one defeat. Jess Haines of the Cardinals and Charlie Root of Chicago also have eight wins but three and four defeats respectively.

Dazzy Vance is off for another record with 65 strikeout victims already this year. The ten leading hitters in the National league are: Harris, Pittsburgh, .437; Farrell, New York, .394; Harper, New York, .390; Hornsby, New York, .386; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .364; Wright, Pittsburgh, .359; Frisch, St. Louis, .354; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .351; Lindstrom, New York, .351; Hendrick, Brooklyn, .343.

American League.

The first six hitters in the American league this week are the same familiar faces, and then comes Bud Clancy, who made his Broadway debut in a major league uniform Tuesday. It evidently inspired him to spring about 30 points upward in his batting percentage, to put him in seventh place on the heels of Ty Cobb. Clancy breaking in at first base this year with the Chicago White Sox, has averaged two hits per game this week.

Clancy's spurt forced Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns out of the first ten, a gathering he has adorned for a long, long time. He lost thirteen points this week, in his batting.

The two pupils of the two famous batters, Ruth and Cobb, both are doing better than their teachers. Lou Gehrig, the Babe's home-run protege leads the old master in batting and total bases by a wide margin, though he still has a bit to learn about the trick of clouting them into the bleachers.

Cobb's protege, Al Simmons, keeps a few jumps ahead of the Georgian though Al lost four points and Ty gained them.

Ruth's eighteen homers up to Thursday had helped him to get around to the counting station 53 times, a little better than once each game. Gehrig has tallied 48 times.

Ted Lyons and Alphonse Thomas of Chicago are way in the lead in victories among American league pitchers, with 10 wins apiece. Lyons had lost twice and Thomas three times. Waite Hoyt of the Yankees is nearest them in victories with eight.

Bob Fothergill, Detroit's big boy slugger, is still in his slump, losing seven more points this week. A month ago he sported a .427, and now he has but .356, just barely enough to keep inside the first 10.

Western League.

A newcomer in the Western league, once with New York and Boston in the National league, Bill Cunningham of Des Moines, is leading the circuit in hitting today with a mark of .500 for his 10 games. In his 34 times at bat he has hit safely 17 times, including seven doubles and one triple. He outshines the mighty Casey of Tulsa for the time being who has but a mere .429 mark for 39 games.

True to his name, though, Casey is close to the leadership in homers, with sixteen, one less than his teammate, Munson. Munson struck a bad slump this week, falling off 20 points, though two of his blows were circuit drives, putting him just one behind Babe Ruth's present mark.

Blaeholder, the Tulsa flinger who ran up a string of 12 consecutive victories on the hill, was at last beaten for the first time this season by Oklahoma City.

The champion base stealer of all leagues seems to be Joe Rabbit of Omaha, who has scored 21 thefts so far this year, about double the best major league effort.

Fred Luderus, the Oklahoma City manager and pinch hitter, tops the league in batting for the two games in which he has sauntered to the plate in a relief role, getting five hits in nine times at bat and one sacrifice.

Day of Wichita is closest to Blaeholder in games won but his nine victories on the mound are shadowed by five defeats.

AGGIES EXES LEAGUE STARS

Eight Make Good in Role Of Baseball

COLLEGE STATION, June 9. (AP) Eight former members of Texas A. and M. baseball teams are making good with clubs in the American, International, Texas, Western and Lone Star leagues. The ex-Aggies pastiming in professional baseball are Warren (Rip) Collins of the Detroit Tigers, Emory (Topper) Rigney of the Washington Senators, Butler Henderson of Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles, Hollis Tucker of the Beaumont Exporters, Pat Olson of the Amarillo team of the Western league, Jim Kendrick, manager of the Mexia Gushers, Judd Lewis of Tyler and W. O. Schow of Paris, also in the Lone Star league.

H. A. Hillin of Mount Calm, who finished his career at Aggieland recently with a 3 to 0 victory over the University of Texas Longhorns, is expected to sign with Dallas or some other club in the Texas league in the near future. Punk Baker, Aggie third baseman of the past three seasons, has received several offers, and may take one of them.

Collins Makes Good.

Rip Collins, generally regarded as the greatest punter of the southwestern conference has produced is also A. and M.'s leading baseball celebrity. He has the best average of any Detroit hurler with five victories and three defeats. He began his career with Dallas in 1919, and made his debut in the American league with the New York Yanks in 1920. He won 14 games and lost only eight in his first season under the big tent.

That season he pitched a one-hit game against the Boston Red Sox. In 1921 he won 11 and lost five games and pitched in one game in the world's series. In 1922 he was with the Boston Red Sox, and with a tail-end club he became one of the most consistent hurlers in the league. In the latter part of the season he successively defeated each of the other seven clubs, a feat without parallel since he has been in the American league. In the winter of 1923 he and Del Pratt, now manager of the Waco Cubs, were traded to Detroit in exchange for Howard Ehmke, now with the Philadelphia Athletics. Last year Collins finished third in the American league in effectiveness and this season he seems destined to enjoy his greatest year.

Rigney Is Star.

Topper Rigney also began his career with Dallas, but at the end of his first season he was traded to Fort Worth. Under Jakey Atz he developed rapidly and improved both as a hitter and fielder. In 1921 he was sold to Detroit. In 1925 he was traded to the Boston Red Sox and a few weeks ago he was sent to Washington in exchange for Buddy Myer, the former Mississippi A. and M. shortstop. With Detroit Rigney was considered a dangerous hitter but an erratic fielder, and it is known that Rigney and Manager Ty Cobb had many differences. He did not seem to fit in well at Boston, but with Washington he seems to have hit his stride, his fielding, especially, having shown improvement. Rigney is a native of Leonard, Texas.

Butler Henderson, who was the Aggies' righthanded pitching ace in 1922, played with Mexia and Marshall, and later was sold to the Cleveland Indians. For the past two years he has been with Jack Dunn at Baltimore and is regarded as one of the most promising hurlers in the International league.

Hollis Tucker, who was captain of the A. and M. team during the past season, is making good with Jim Galloway's Beaumont Oilers. "The kid ball player," as he is known in Beaumont, is filling the shortstop position in a highly acceptable manner. Tucker has been hitting better in the Texas league than he did in the southwestern conference. He is a steady infielder, and his pep and aggressiveness have made him popular with Beaumont fans. His home is in Houston.

Olson in Amarillo.

Pat Olson, who used to share pitching honors with Butler Henderson, is on the reserve list of the Amarillo team of the Western league and may join that club soon. Last year he hurled in the Eastern league and since September he has been on the faculty of A. and M. College. Three years ago he hung up such a good record with Omaha in the Western league that he was purchased by the New York Yankees for $20,000.

Jim Kendricks, a member of the A. and M. football team in 1915 when Rip Collins punted the Aggies to one of their most notable victories over the Longhorns, recently was appointed manager of the Mexia team of the Lone Star league to succeed Drap Haues. Kendrick was with Austin in the Texas association a few years ago, and most of his playing has been confined to Class D and semi-pro teams in Texas.

Lewis With Tyler.

Judd Lewis, who left A. and M. in 1920, is now covering the hot corner for the Tyler team of the Lone Star league. Lewis has played with teams in the East Texas league and Texas association for a number of years.

White and Thalheimer Win State Net Title

AUSTIN, June 11. (AP)—Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer, Dallas, third ranking doubles tennis team of the United States, annexed the state championship today, defeating Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, and James Barr, Dallas, seventh ranking national team, in the windup match of the state tournament.

The score was 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, and 6-2.

Spanish Bull Fighter Will Wrestle Here

Andreas Kastanos, 210-pound Spanish heavyweight who once wore the uniform of a bull fighter in the famous Seville arena, and more recently the conqueror of Zbysko, Daviscourt and Paul Jones on the mat, appears here Tuesday night against Count Zarynoff, former member of the Russian czar's imperial court, and likewise conqueror of a number of America's leading wrestling stars.

Zarynoff Is Fast.

Zarynoff, the fastest heavyweight ever seen in Wichita Falls, has appeared here in several matches and has won the approbation of the local fans for his clean wrestling and honest demeanor while in the ring. Zarynoff is training hard for the match Tuesday with Kastanos who is by far the most formidable rival yet booked for the Russian count since he began making Wichita Falls his headquarters.

As a prelude to the Kastanos-Zarynoff match, Promoter Alex Ross, who is staging the card at his stadium on Indiana avenue, has booked a six-round "grudge" battle and three fast preliminary wrestling matches.

The "grudge" battle will be between Fighting Sam and Black Dummy. The latter wants to punish Fighting Sam for defeating his brother in a recent boxing bout and so eager was he for the match that he agreed to battle without pay just for a chance to "get at" Fighting Sam. The latter, however, announced Saturday that he had no intention of coming out loser to Black Dummy, so a whale of a slugfest seems in sight.

Good Preliminaries.

The first wrestling preliminary will be between Paul Cameron and Leo Voss, two fast local welterweights. For the second preliminary, Ross has carded Jess Lawrence and Bob Rowley, while the semi-final will feature Jim Lynn of Enid, Okla., and Young Fox of Dallas. Tickets for the card are now on sale at Miller Drug store.

"This will be the most equally matched and greatest bout to ever take place in Wichita Falls," Promoter Ross declared Saturday.

HIGH SPOTS of BASEBALL

The most dazzling pitching performance of the season came to a close in the game of May 23 when the Browns scored one run in the ninth inning against Al Thomas of the White Sox on a walk to Bing Miller, single by Ken Williams and sacrifice fly by Steve O'Neill.

Before Miller slid across the plate ahead of the throw from Metzler, Thomas had pitched 25 scoreless innings. On May 15 the Red Sox opened with two runs against Thomas. Eight ciphers followed. Four days later the Athletics were blanked, 3 to 0, and then came the eight blanks for the Browns.

The value of pitching remains. Before facing Thomas the Browns scored 66 runs in eight ball games. Thomas stopped them with three scratch singles.

The home run race between Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig remains a sideline feature. Believe it or not but between them they have more homers than the Superbas, Cardinals, Pirates, Reds and Braves in the National league and the other seven clubs in their own circuit. Not grossed, of course, but individually.

Managers have been stumped over batting slumps by their star swatters more this season than ever before. Oswald Bluege is the latest on the list. Offering such a punchless attack for a month, Bluege was dropped to eighth place in the Senator's batting order.

When Charley Jamieson returned to the game, Jack McCallister was so satisfied with Howard Summa as the lead-off batter that he put Jamie in second place.

If they had judges, a la on the turf, to suspend for form reversals, what a funny game baseball would be. The Superbas defeated the Phillies, 20 to 4, with 22 hits and the next day they were beaten, 7 to 1, with seven hits.

The Tigers are not going in any particular direction. Even the popular George Moriarty has not been able to squeeze timely base hits and effective pitching out of his squad. It looks as if Detroit will have to wait another year for its pennant prospect.

In the meantime Ty Cobb chuckles something about "It requires more than a manager, two-fisted or kind-hearted to win a pennant."

Those who insisted a broad-shouldered guy who bullied his athletes was the only successful manager are invited to follow the course of the Yankees, White Sox, Pirates and Cubs. Midget men in charge of those clubs—Huggins, Schalk, Bush and McCarthy.

John J. McGraw always is doing something for the old boys who are down and out. Remember Larry Doyle who helped McGraw to more than one pennant? He was begging at the door for employment and McGraw answered. Doyle has been added to the traveling staff to assist the Giants around the circuit.

Helen Wills Captures British Tennis Title

BECKENHAM, Eng., June 11. (AP)—Helen Wills, the California tennis star, emerged triumphantly from the Kent tennis championships today with the women's title in her possession and also with a fifth victory over Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree out of seven clashes on the courts. Miss Wills now is the prime favorite for the women's title in the Wimbledon classic, which will start June 20.

CHI CUBS WIN SEVEN IN ROW

New York Giants Unable To Halt Chicago

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—Chicago ran its winning streak to seven games today by downing the New York Giants by 2 to 1 in the first of a series, edging the Cubs up to two and one-half contests from the first place Pirates. Charlie Root had a shade advantage over Grimes in a pitching battle and the decision over New York gave him nine for the year. Hack Wilson hoisted his twelfth circuit blow and Beck's single on top of Grimm's triple accounted for the other Chicago run. Roush's homer saved the Giants from a shutout. The score:

NEW YORK, June 11.(AP)—Four double plays helped Thomas out of many tight places today and aided by two home runs, by Ruth and another by Lazzeri, the Yankees defeated Cleveland, 6 to 4. Ruth's nineteenth home run in the third with one on base, was one of his longest drives made at the stadium and his twentieth on his next trip to the plate in the fifth put him two days ahead of his 1921 record year.

The Indians riddled Thomas off the mound under a three-run assault in the ninth. Wiley Moore was rushed in as relief pitcher. Score:

Don't Judge by "Selling Price"

Right now there are many cigars selling for far more which don't taste a bit better than

White Owl

. . . and here's why—

It's only reasonable to expect that a cigar with the year-in-and-year-out support of millions of smokers can afford to give greater value than one with limited patronage. And this goes for lower and higher priced cigars, as well.

BRAZOS BOYS PRESS HARD ON SPUDS HEELS

League Leadership Involved In Three-Contest Series Here

The Spudders open their first crucial series of the present home stand Sunday afternoon at three bells, when Del Pratt brings in his playful Waco Cubs for the first of a three-game series. The Cubs are just two games ahead of Waco for the league leadership.

The Cubs have been going strong at Fort Worth, and Wichita Falls has been going strong with Beaumont for the last days, and three hot battles are expected to take place.

Skipper Carl Williams was in doubt Saturday night as to his starting pitcher in the game this afternoon, but he stated that he was likely to pick between Payne and Kiefer.

Of these, George Washington Payne is the most likely choice. From the past few games of the Cubs we would figure that it was about time for Wichita Falls to draw Ray Benge.

Following the Waco Cubs, the San Antonio Bears will trickle into Wichita Falls for three, and then the Houston Buffs pay a visit for two days.

These eight games will give the Spudders a wonderful chance to gain on their rival contenders—if they win them.

SAND LOT SLANTS

They have out the reports in Wichita Falls that the Burkburnett team in the newly formed Cotton-Oil league has a great chance to get started now. They saw that the Burk boys are hitting the ball hard and fielding well. Two old Twilight leaguers are on the list with the Burk nine. Red Winniger, catcher this year with the Conocos and Othel Hogue, second baseman last year with the Security National bank team.

The Conocos have strengthened themselves greatly for the last half of the race and they will be hard to head off in the last half. They have placed Perk Ray on third base and Perk has been hitting the bal hard and often in the last few games.

Homer Doke is another that has been coming through with the Conocos and looks like he will have a great year behind the bat this year. Doke was the captain of the Junior college team this year and there he started off for a great year.

Forbes looked like a real pitcher in his opening debut against the Americans Friday afternoon and he hurled a great game of ball all the way. With Forbes, Dickey and Harris going strong it will be a mighty hard-hitting team that can give the Conocos any of their heeldust.

The Electrics have a real baseball team lined up for the last half and they may be called upon to give somebody plenty of trouble. They have added Curly Christian to an otherwise smooth-working infield and this will make the team hustle to keep their places on the team away from Curly and this will be a mighty hard task. Christian is not only a good fielder, but he is a hard hitter and when he hits one solid, it usually goes for a long ride.

Panhandle Longhorns opens their drive this afternoon at Katy park for the last half. Bill Hoehn's nine got off to a slow start and they have picked up speed as the season wore along and they are going to be hard to handle in the last half.

Tom Forbes was the only pitcher outside of Neal Baker that lettered this year with the State University Longhorns and a pitcher of this type will be welcomed to any of the teams.

Friday was the first time Forbes had worked in several weeks and he showed then that he had the stuff that will make him a star in the Twilight loop. Forbes looms as one of the leading stars of the league for the last half.

Gerard Boone was back on second base Friday and he went back with a great sigh. Second is just a natural position with Boone and much easier than short. Boone should begin to get a flying start on the last half now and keep the old pace.

It looks like Bill Andree and Joe Randolph this afternoon at Katy park when the Electrics and Longhorns hook up.

The first half of the Twilight league ended in a tie between the American Refinery Eagles and the Panhandle Longhorns much to the surprise of the fans, who a few days back thought that the Eagles had the pennant safely tucked away in their bat bag.

The Panhandle Longhorns are to be given credit for the way they stood toe to toe with the rest of the league and hammered out their victories as they came. They carried through what looked like sure fallure and made it a glorious success.

Bill Hoehn took over the toughest job in town this year and at the last minute he pulled the meat from the fire in a blazing finish of glory. Taking the helm after the loss of Jess Winters was a hard job and one that it looked for a while that even Bill would fail to carry through.

Jess Winters played several years of ball with the Philadelphia club of the National league and he won more or less recognition in the major leagues. This gave him a great advantage in the managing of the Longhorns last year and the result was that Jess carried the Longhorns on through to a championship by taking both halves of the split season.

Winters had such stars last year as Jud Waller, Don Faichney, Maurice Cox, Harvey Hargrove, Roy Cannon and Hatton to win for him and this year none of these were back under the Hoehn rule. Bill had to rebuild the famous Panhandle team of last year and he had everything to lose and nothing to gain in doing it.

Riley Rawls, Pee Wee Hinds, Bill Hoehn, Red Hicks, Tank Horton, O'Dell McDuffy, Joe Randolph, Toad Graves and Kerr were all that were back from that old team of stars that Jess Winters headed last season to glory.

The Americans went on the field this year with what looked to be the pick of the league. They were above reproach from the standpoint of the fans. The team had the stars and they had the spirit and they couldn't lose.

This spirit was broken in their last games, several of their players turned pro and left them holding the sack. Smoke Luphor, ace of the pitching staff failed them at the last minute. They lost Maddox, the league leading hitter. Slim Lewis, a threat from the base running angle and a steady hitter, was lost to the team. They lost Bill Williamson just as he rounded into his old time form at the bat.

Now the withdrawal of the American team from the league is being expected at any times. The team has been broken up and the fate of the league hangs in the balance.

All of this was combined to make the job of Larry Williams a tough one in the closing days of the race. Williams had a badly shattered team and one that was fast going on the rocks. The team had lost their old fighting spirit and they didn't seem to care.

To make the job of Bill Hoehn tougher, Henry Hatton failed to come through as he had been counted upon. Tank Horton jumped into the professional ranks with Wellington. Pee Wee Hinds went out of the game with an injured leg. Red Hicks began to fall to show up for the games and forced Toad Graves into the catching position and leaving the gapping hole in the outfield.

Jud Waller has dropped from the professional ranks at last and is back at his home in Morgan, Texas. Jud was in Dallas last week while the Spudders were playing there.

Waller expressed a desire to get back into the Wichita Falls Twilight league and at the same time said that he would like to play with the Conocos. Waller was a great friend of Andy Taylor's and he said that he would like to play with Andy, but when approached on the subject, Doc Landon, league prexy, announced that under the new rules of the league that barred men from playing in the professional ranks, Waller would be unable to return to the league.

Another old local Twilighter that was bumped into while in Dallas was Pap Peyton, former pitcher with the Texhoma club. Peyton was a former star at State university.

Pap still holds an interest in the Wichita Falls teams and he was filled with questions on Wichita Falls city league baseball. Peyton is having a great season with the Magnolia team in the Dallas city league and has been winning games with open ease.

Dallas has one of the fastest Sunday school leagues in the state and Wichita Falls should have one just about as fast. In fact Dallas has two or three good leagues composed of the churches in town as well as one or two commercial leagues.

Pap was filled with praise of the Cliff Temple Baptists in Dallas and while there the writer went out to see what Pap was talking so much about. They whipped one of their closest contenders that day by the score of 8 to 3 and they looked good enough to step over a lively pace in the Twilight league here.

None of the boys were over 17 years of age and they all had much promise for the future. Among the leading stars of the team is Nelson Rees in the outfield, Carroll Bryant on short, Geyer at third, Carnes at second, Riley at first and Crofford behind the bat. They had a very good looking left-handed pitcher.

With the number of young men that are going to the churches of Wichita Falls they should get a Sunday school league here and back it all through the year. Get the interest started and the league would run itself. Put an age limit on the games and get the league working smooth and it would be a great thing for the city.

PETE DE PAOLO WINS CLASSIC

Harry Hartz Runs Second In Altoona Race

SPEEDWAY, ALTOONA, Pa., June 11. (AP)—Pete De Paolo won the 200-mile auto classic here today.

Harry Hartz was second, Tony Gulatto third and Eddie Hearne fourth. The time was 1:42:56 8-10.

Three race drivers narrowly escaped serious injury, when at the 75 mile mark in the 200 mile event this afternoon, three speeding machines crashed on the east turn. Ralph Hepburn was severely shaken up, and a pit attendant was slightly hurt.

The accident occurred when Frank Elliott lost control on the turn. His car careened into Hepburn's machine, which crashed into Earl Devore. Hepburn's car threw a wheel and skidded past the press stand, coming to a standstill when it struck a pit. The car was badly damaged.

All three drivers were forced out of the race.

"Officials of the work certainly appreciate this response on the part of the people, as there was not enough funds in the bank for the June bills, Miss Myrle Neely, chairman of the Welfare Board, said. All divisions of the work will continue functioning as usual.

No outline of specific work to be undertaken has been made, but Mr. McGown announced that all efforts would be concentrated in the projects drafted by the chamber of commerce as being the most beneficial for the county.

Auto Dealers Endorse Collision Law, With Exception of One Section

Endorsement of the negligent collision ordinance, if section No. 4 of the proposed law is not included, was ordered Saturday at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Automobile Dealers association, according to C. C. Randle, who was appointed as chairman of a committee to investigate the ordinance now before the city council for enactment.

At the last meeting of the council Mr. Randle, representing the association, appeared before the commissioners, and requested that final action on the proposed ordinance be postponed until the association had time to investigate its provisions.

The investigation, according to Mr. Randle, resulted in the members of the association objecting to section No. 4 which sets out that a collision is prima facie evidence of guilt.

The association members, according to Mr. Randle, were of the opinion that this section makes the driver of a car in a collision guilty before he enters a courtroom and instead of the prosecution having to show that he is guilty, instead the accused will have to prove that he is not guilty.

Representatives of the association will attend the council meeting Monday night, at which time the commissioners are scheduled to take final action on the ordinance, which has already passed its second reading.

Two Other Cities Seek Press Association Meet

Opposition to Wichita Falls in securing the 1928 convention of the Texas State Press association is being offered by Mineral Wells and Texarkana, according to information received at the publicity and conventions department of the local chamber of commerce. A close race is predicted for the convention city election, but Wichita Falls representatives are confident of success in bringing the editors here next year.

Editors from northeast and northwest Texas will meet at Fort Worth Tuesday, June 14, and leave from that point for El Paso on a special train, arriving in the convention city at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, it was learned. The convention opens Thursday morning, June 16, and will continue through Saturday.

Poultry Association To Meet Friday Night

A meeting of the North Texas Poultry association has been called for 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the county courthouse, with a full attendance of all interested in the industry urged by the president, F. A. Foster.

The program will be of an educational nature, with many matters of interest to poultry raisers to be discussed by experts, it was said. Particular attention will be given to methods of increasing egg production during the summer months.

Calomel Attacks the Bones and Deadens the Bowels

Never take calomel. It is mercury—a dangerous drug. If you are constipated, bilious, sick, headachy, stomach sour, meals don't taste right, hot days make you drowsy and lazy, take Dodson's Liver Tone. That's all you need.

Calomel salivates. That's why you have to take the salts the next day to get it out of your system so it will not eat your bones. You have to stay at home a day to recuperate from the shock it gives you. No wonder Dodson's Liver Tone is so popular. All you do is take a spoonful at night. By morning you are cleaned out good, head is clear, you feel as light as a feather; you are not sick, no danger of salivation and you can eat anything you want. Think of that.

Get that big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house, so you will have it handy to take nights before going to bed. —Adv.

For Charming Visitors—
A Wichita Writer—

AFTER graduating all the boys and girls in our midst and marrying off as many June brides as have said "yes" to persistent wooers, have you any idea, Kitty, as to the next interesting subject claiming my attention?

The go-aways — for, dear me, when June sets in with sure 'nuff hot weather after deliciously cool April and May, when we've slept under cover and not been in any hurry to don thin apparel—nearly everybody is now getting a move on and packing up, preparatory to taking vacation trips.

As soon as school closes, cool Colorado and the Gulf Coast hold out alluring fingers, and now with the many summer lodges built at Lake Wichita and Lake Kemp, the city is almost depopulated on every weekend, and both automobiles and boats on the lakes are heavy with human freight, and will be for the next three months.

Medicine Park, nearest summer resort, also promises to have its very largest summer, and already weekend parties are enjoying the pleasure this popular place holds for them.

SOME truly good times are being had by fishing parties at Lake Kemp, and according to those who have cottages and lodges built on its shores, fishing is fine. A Wichita Falls colony is now located out there most of the time during the summer months and among the weekenders who are already beginning their summer excursions are the families of Judge and Mrs. H. F. Weldon, the F. E. Brandberrys, Cliss Moores, O. E. Maer, Miles Connelly, Will Ellis, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Hartsook and guests, H. G. Karrenbrock, E. G. Hill, Wayne Somerville and D. J. Carithers.

• • •

SURELY some good times are in store, and are already being had by the school girls who have been coming in by the dozen the past week. For almost every one of them is bringing from one to two guests and all are going in a regular circle from one house party to the other. Among the latest arrivals are Ina Merle Robinson, who brought Eleanor Freeborn of San Antonio home with her from Oklahoma university. And before coming home both girls enjoyed a delightful house party in Oklahoma City, and will leave here today for Fort Worth to attend another one. And then there is Miriam Kohler of Lawton, Okla., who is the guest of Dorothy Dale, and Helen O'Neal, who is visiting Mrs. D. B. Sartin; Katie Wray Clem, guest of Helen Grisham, and the two charming girls from San Angelo, Christine Chitwood and Minerva Wynn, who are guests of Helen Snider, all having a happy, care-free good time going to bridge luncheons and picnics.

• • •

AND one of the lovely parties of the week was the elaborate tea given by Mrs. Claude Miller, Jewel and Sam Kimberlin, when announcement was made of the approaching marriage of Joe Betsy Miller and Jimmy Allred. Being such a busy little lady, in fact spending most of her time with a book in her hand, Jo Betsy has not put in much of her young life attending parties. After a serious illness she was compelled to miss school for two years, and since that time has not been idle a minute, but received her degree in public school music supervising at S. M. U, Wednesday evening, making the required course of four years in three.

HOW would you like to spend the summer on a great big lovely ranch—a place where all the conveniences of the city are combined with acres of rolling prairies and big shade trees? Sounds good, doesn't it? Where the water is clear and green, where you can fish and hunt, and where, besides the wonderful swimming, there is hiking, boating bonfires and picnics? This is just the life that numerous Wichita Falls families lead during the summer, and already the exodus of these cool pleasant homes has begun. The J. E. Wolfs are now located in their country home near Charlie, and have already had one delightful all-day party out there, when a dozen or more friends spent a delightful Sunday. The J. I. Staleys will leave soon for their ranch near Las Vegas, N. M., and others who will spend some of the summer at least in New Mexico are the C. B. Montgomerys and the L. P. Hammonds, who have large ranches near Wagon Mound. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hobbs are leaving about June 20 for Colorado and will return to their ranch on the other side of Dalhart, while, on Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rountree and their children, Lucille and William Howard, Mrs. Rountree's mother, Mrs. E. H. Joyce, will leave for one of their ranches near Pampa, and after spending a while there, will go on to another one near Gladstone, N. M., for the remainder of the summer. Esther Anderson of Denver will be the guest of Lucille at the New Mexico ranch, who will return home with her to Denver and spend some time there.

BUT no matter how much I talk about travelers and brides, my mind will stray back to the boys and girls who are accomplishing something—making good in their professions, and as hot as I am from the weather, I feel quite "peppy" because of the success one Wichita Falls girl is enjoying with her writing. I am not surprised a bit, however, that Irene Davidson, former newspaper woman who has gone forward with an unusual determination, is being recognized as a writer of merit, and that the Poetry Society of England has asked permission to publish a poem of hers in a volume that it is collecting. While Irene has had many feature articles and poems in Texas magazines and newspapers, she modestly admits that she is somewhat thrilled at this request by such an old, authentic organization as the Poetry Society of England. And Wichita Falls is honored in being the home of a girl who can accomplish so much with her pen.

Thus you see, Kitty, I can talk on and on. So many interesting people do we have around and about us at all times, but I will close and maybe I will give you some new news to think about next week, so says—

Inspiration For School Often Hidden In Home, Says Council Leader

BY MRS. S. A. COVINGTON
President Wichita Falls Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association City Council

The Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association City Council of Wichita Falls was organized in 1921 with the Alamo Parent-Teacher association as hostess. The general council was organized with the following Parent-Teacher associations represented: High school, junior high school, Austin, Travis, Alamo, Sam Houston and San Jacinto schools. Mrs. Wm. Rhodes was elected president and meetings were held thereafter once each month in one of the churches with equal representation from each local association.

Busy Years

Some of the work of the council during the first three years in the interest of school children was the sponsoring of special Saturday morning picture shows, program, community activities, and ways means for local clubs. Each president made a report of the work accomplished.

As the years have passed and the city has grown, several new schools have organized Parent-Teacher associations. Barwise, Bowie, Carrigan, Fannin and Huey schools and within the last year Zundelowitz, Crockett, and Benjamin Franklin schools have organized those associations and are now members of the city council.

Considering the Junior college and high school as one organization we have now have 15 Parent Teacher associations all of which are members of the city council.

Past Presidents

The presidents who have served since the organization of the city council are:

Mrs. Wm. Rhodes, 1921-1922.

Mrs. S. A. Covington, 1926-1927.

The State Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations held their state convention in Wichita Falls in November 1924, Mrs. Goodner, city president, presiding.

The council furthers the work of pre-school circles, juvenile protection, legislation, motion pictures, recreation, safety, children's reading, home education, standards of literature, thrift, health and education.

The city council is sponsoring the pre-school work as well as study circles and examinations of pre-school children have been conducted in many of the schools this spring. The council has had the wonderful co-operation of the city Red Cross nurses and the doctors in the examinations of the pre-school children.

P.-T. A. Head Tells Of Council Work

urer and corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. H. Lawson, historian, Mrs. W. Roberts, pre-school chairman; Mrs. H. ten Brink, juvenile chairman.

The new officers elected for 1927-1928 are Mrs. O. H. Karr, president; Mrs. S. A. Covington, first vice president; Mrs. W. Roberts, second vice president; Mrs. C. P. Mosley, third vice president; Mrs. Durwood McDonald, secretary; Mrs. Walter Denny, treasurer; Mrs. Marvin Smith, corresponding secretary.

It is the duty of the parents to concern themselves about their schools and to know the conditions existing in them and to keep abreast of their necessities and plans. It is their duty to see that the people who control them, are the people who will do them justice financially and support them morally. Hidden in the home lies a world of talent and inspiration for the school. Offer your contribution and see how eagerly the teachers and children accept it. This is but a glimpse of the work the Parent association can do and when working together oftentimes the most divergent points of view may be reconciled and a unified influence brought to bear upon the children. Their field is as broad as the world and the reward will be that neighbor will learn to value neighbor and all children will grow in a new spirit of fellowship. The parents must resume their duty to their children in their schools. The children are theirs and the schools are their for they pay for them. The teachers can do only what the people allow them to do and the responsibility for the activities in their schools is as plainly the parents as that of the teachers.

To this end we have Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

DISTINCTIVE PORTRAITS

THE completion of the Hamilton building has opened the avenue for enterprising concerns who have heretofore been crowded for adequate space. Among the new tenants whom you see is Story's Studio. Along with the conveniences that this building affords, Mr. Story is adding new furnishings and equipment which promise to make up a very pretty, neat and complete studio arrangement. He is looking forward to the completion of the service garage which will add a very interesting feature to the studio, inasmuch as the patron can drive into the garage and enter the vestibule to the elevators. The studio has provided parking space within the garage for their patrons' cars during their visit at the studio.

In arranging for the comfort and convenience of their patrons the paramount desire of this studio is to furnish a better service, at a reasonable price, to all concerned.

The most fastidious lady will be delighted with the atmosphere and if your visit does nothing else, it is sure to show you what dreaming and striving does for a man who does not grow tired.

"There Is a Tide

in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." If you are ready to sail with the flow tide, success and prosperity will attend you. Many a failure would have been a great success if he or she had had the necessary dollars to take advantage of opportunity when it came. Have you a "nest-egg?" If not, begin to think of the many times in the business and social worlds when ready money means ambition fulfilled.

The North Texas Building and Loan Company, 822 Scott street, offers many kinds of safe investments. Especially suitable for women are the 6 per cent interest-bearing accounts which may be withdrawn at anytime. Systematic Savings earning 10 per cent compounded semi-annually result as follows: $5 a month for 5 years, $388.34; $10 a month for the same time, $766.68. Now isn't that better than having a few worn out slippers, theater stubs and what not?

PARTIES for June Brides gain much in spirit and prettiness from Colvert's molded ice cream. Tinted wedding bells and cupid hearts (Cupid himself perched on a plump pink heart) are among the specialties. The color scheme of decorations carried out in brick is another suggestion for the hostess.

Of course, every one knows how delicious this cream is—it reminds you of the best home-made you ever ate with something better—that something better is Colvert's secret.

NO MATTER the fabric, it must be printed if it would join the smart ranks of summer, 1927. Miller-Ferguson has put forth considerable effort to get printed dresses that are unusual and has succeeded admirably. Printed linens, printed organdies, printed chiffons and printed crepes in the new summer styles arrive daily from New York where Mr. Ferguson is engaged in buying them personally and sending the latest modes back. The prices range from $5 to $25 in this chic group, among which are dresses suitable for every occasion. Prints are smart and those at Miller-Ferguson's very smart!

SPECIALIZED at $15 is a group of hats in the extremely new handkerchief felt, faille silk and novelty straws at P. B. M. Company. Earlier, the prices on these clever little hats ranged as high as $19.50. Do have a peep at them! Whites and light summer colors add to their charm—dark things simply can't compare with the pastels when real summer arrives.

A CERTAIN window in the 700 block of Indiana stopped me yesterday. The window was that of Grove's Shoe Shop and the attraction was something entirely new—laced, hand-tooled bags of steerhide. These steerhide novelties are long pouches and offer something really different for the fashionable woman in search of a smart bag. They are quite a relief from alligator and are reasonably priced.

ORDERS for wedding announcements and invitations should be placed at Lovelace's Book Store. Those wishing to find a present for the June bride will also be rewarded by a trip to Lovelace's, where a wide variety of gifts include many things not likely to be duplicated among those received by the honored couple.

WARM weather brings listless, indifferent appetites to the table but there is one sure way of stimulating such appetites. Order plenty of ice from the Wichita Ice Company, then try these on the June menu: frozen salads, home-made ice cream, ice tea; lemonade or cold ginger ale to break the heat of the afternoons and always, of course, ice water. You'll find it surprising how much more pleasure iced foods and drinks can give to a vacation at home.

The Wichita Ice Company offers ice with quick service at the factory every day and evening, their emergency truck is at your disposal and their ice men are dependable and courteous. Call 3161 now for friendly emergency service.

"VAMP" styles go out in summer and cool dainty frocks receive their due. Some of the most attractive of summery things are the French voile and printed batiste dresses at William's. Their price is only $4.98 and they are made in airy styles with organdy trimmings and, on the voiles, rhinestone pins which add chic. Flop brim hats in black and colors include hair braid, Milan hemps and Milans, priced very low at $2.95. These wonderful values are due to William's Fourth Anniversary Sale which will run throughout the week.

NECKING NOT NEW

NEW YORK.—Twenty couples who have celebrated golden weddings seem to disagree with a statement that necking was unknown 50 years ago. Some of them tittered when such an assertion was made at a banquet they were giving to the oldest married couple on Long Island.

STINGY THING

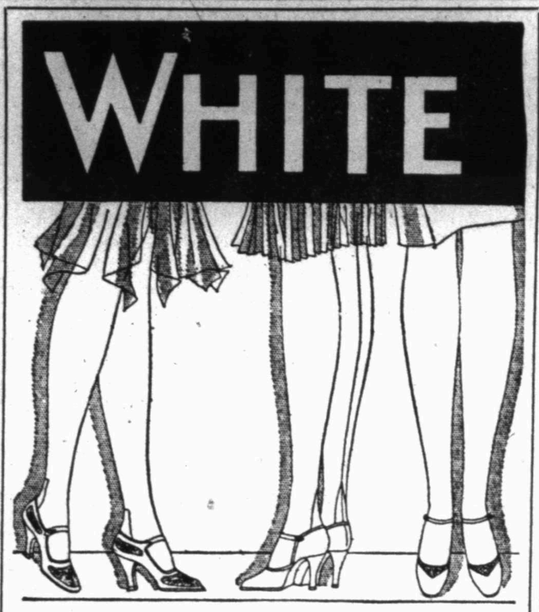

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Judge Wickersham, of Dauphin county court, was questioning the lady who ran the boarding house in which Henry Jackson had rented a room, and from which he mysteriously departed owing several months' rent.

"Didn't he leave a thing when he went away?" asked the judge.

"No, sir, your honor," the landlady was positive.

"Did he leave surreptitiously?" further questioned the judge.

"No, sir, judge, he didn't even leave that," was the answer.

A GREATER TELEPHONE SYSTEM FOR TEXAS

Texas Telephone News

Vol. II — A Journal of Telephone Information Published by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company — No. 6

HOME IS AS NEAR AS THE NEAREST TELEPHONE

Like Soldiers On Guard

To telephone people in the business of providing telephone service, most days and nights pass without event—giving telephone service, maintaining telephone lines becomes a matter of well-trained habit. But suddenly danger looms and this habit of telephone service rises to courageous endurance. During the recent floods, telephone service was maintained throughout the inundated areas after other means of communication had been cut off.

Forgetful of self, operators and linemen continued at their posts, and their untiring efforts helped to relieve the suffering and distress of the flooded areas.

PROGRESS

The Bell Telephone Laboratories, located in New York City, are a part of the Bell System. In these laboratories, scientists and engineers work on problems of perfecting telephone apparatus, enabling the Bell System to give the best and most economical telephone service in the world. The convenient desk stand instrument, and, more recently, the dial telephone, are products of these laboratories.

The Southwestern Company, as one of the Associated Companies of the Bell System, receives the benefits of all inventions and improvements in telephone equipment and methods produced in the Bell Laboratories.

Face Disfigured With Red Pimples Cuticura Healed

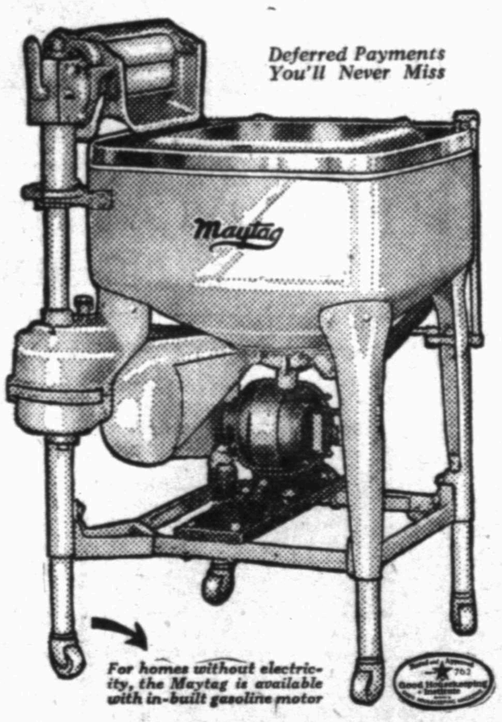

"My face was covered with pimples. They were hard, large and red, and at times were awfully sore. The pimples festered and scaled over and would then dry up only to begin anew. "I tried every remedy without avail, and became discouraged. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I noticed a change after three treatments so purchased more, and in three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Nettie R. Clary, Iola, Texas, July 31, 1926.

Happy weeks are born on MAYTAG Washdays

Because Washday takes but an hour!

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor

THINK of a washday that takes but an hour. When big tubfuls of clothes are washed fragrantly — sanitarily clean in 3 to 7 minutes. When even collars, cuffs and wristbands are washed really clean without hand-rubbing. When even grimy rompers and greasy work-clothes are washed like new in 10 minutes.

When you do not have to change water during washing because of the Maytag's heat-retaining tub that is made in one piece from thick cast-aluminum. The tub that holds more clothes than ordinary washers because there is no machinery inside to take up clothes space. The tub that raises or lowers to suit your height. The tub that drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

Phone Try the Maytag. Let it do a big washing in your home. Use it without obligation or expense. See how much shorter and easier your washday is — how much cleaner your clothes are washed.

Remember, if the Maytag doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

HERE'S TALL STORY.

CLEVELAND, O. — Nothwithstanding the fact that the Central police station here is hailed as the best equipped municipal hostelry in the United States, it inconvenienced one guest at least. Madison Johnson, 35 years old and six feet, 11 7-8 inches, was arrested for possession of liquor. He says he didn't mind being arrested, but he considered it an insult to be put in a tiny six-foot cell.

Work of the Fortieth

IT IS ancient history now—the work of the regular session of the 40th legislature and the special session. There was a vast deal of important legislation. There were laws of vital importance enacted. All things considered, the makers of the appropriation bills were liberal considering the revenue in sight. There were huge hang-overs paid off as recommended to the lawmakers by the governor.

This administration started with hangovers of more than $3,000,000. Neff passed the buck to the Fergusons and the Fergusons to Moody. He recommended that the outstanding bills should be paid. It was so ordered by the lawmakers.

There was no vicious legislation. Hundreds of bills were slaughtered in committee room or on the floors of the senate or the house. There were at least two important administration measures, penitentiary and highway, as well as a recommendation for civil service that perished before adjournment.

They died because the dead line for consideration of bills on second reading was the barrier. Was the last barrier. There is a promise that they will come again. There was bitter opposition to the civil service bill in the senate. Its friends in the house sent it on its way to the senate. There it died.

As for the prison bill, the Satterwhite idea prevailed in the house and the administration idea had prevailed in the senate. The senate bill gave a free hand to the governor and his non-salaried board of prison managers; the Satterwhite bill provided that the matter of location and the sale of all the prison farms should receive the approval of the legislative department of government.

Now the big thing before the people will be the battle for the amendments until August election day. If the amendments or one or two of the amendments carry there will be a second special session held late in the fall. There may be a second special session regardless of what happens to the amendments. Then prison reform and civil service will be bones of contention again.

Like Hogg and Culberson and a long line of their predecessors Governor Moody has reached the point in his career when he must put on his fighting clothes and carry his cause to the people for civil service and one or two other measures dear to his heart. This is the way the record of the past reads without the use of glasses.

This is the way the record of the future will be made by those who have ideals of government and are ever ready to battle for them. Wherever there are political roses there are political thorns.

Wherever there is a righteous cause there are courageous men willing to battle for that cause. Wherever there is a standard there must be a bearer and at the end of the road he is covered with the scars inflicted by his opponents in face to face combat.

Campaigning for Amendments

THERE are four amendments to be voted upon by the qualified voters of Texas in August. One provides for a supreme court of nine members instead of a supreme court of three members and two supreme court commissions of three members each. Judges of the commission are merely advisory. They pass their work on to the supreme court of three. This amendment, if adopted, paves the way for a more simplified civil and criminal procedure in Texas. It provides for open courts all the year round.

There is an amendment to do away with the fee system. A decision by the supreme court of the United States practically forced the submission of this amendment to the voters. It knocked out the hideous practice of certain officers getting their pay out of the costs where conviction followed. If the people of Texas wish to place their servants on a salaried basis, instead of a fee grabbing basis, they will adopt the amendment.

There is another amendment that will make taxation equal and uniform. Its provisions are well known to the reading public. There is another amendment that provides for adequate salaries for the governor and other officers of the state. For years and years people have been clamoring for these amendments or rather for these reforms. It is announced that the governor will take the stump and make a speaking campaign urging their adoption.

This will make the months of July and August interesting. More than 50 years ago the constitution was drafted by its makers and then adopted by the qualified voters.

Texas, figuratively speaking, was about the size of a rat terrier 50 years ago. Now Texas is elephantine in stature. If not a new constitution, then amendments are necessary and the lawmakers of the 40th as recommended by this governor, submitted the amendments to the voters.

The ballot is said to be the thing. It will do its work in August.

How it Happened

"LITERALLY we have more money than we know what to do with," writes Arthur Brisbane. "Destricted immigration and increased wages are the explanation."

It is said that 11,000,000 bales of cotton were exported in the cotton year of 1926, or rather of the crop of 1926.

These cotton growers are not in possession of more money than they know what to do with. They know that after the bulk of the crop passed out of their control, millions of dollars in profits were realized by the buyers in this country and in Europe and that those who neither toil nor spin gather in the golden fleece.

Jimmie On the Job

MAYOR JIMMIE WALKER of New York is on the job. This is what he wired Mother Lindbergh: "Mrs. Walker and I would feel honored if you will be our guest when New York pays its tribute of welcome to your son." Mayor Jimmie is a Tammany democrat. He never lets the republicans put anything over on him. Cautious Cal is the boss in the city of Washington but Mayor Jimmie is the power in the city of New York.

Another Angle Brought Out

CHIEF JUSTICE LINDSEY of Cook county criminal court has ordered the grand jury to return indictment against federal officials who order grain alcohol adulterated with poison that kills. A university of Chicago student died from alcohol poisoning. Chief Justice Lindsey says murder is murder and he is going to test his theory. Now where will we go from here?

Terrell as a Guesser

STATE commissioner of Agriculture, George B. Terrell, predicts that the Texas cotton crop this year will be 17,134,000 acres, or 11 per cent less than the total acreage of 1926. Having guessed the acreage it is up to the commmissioner to guess the number of bales that will be produced. Conservative men say that there will be another bumper crop this year in the cotton states of America, but the record of 1926 will not be maintained.

CRACKERS ARE GREAT; MAKE BOW LEGS STRAIGHT

CHICAGO.—H. E. Van Norman is a man exceedingly smart and wise; he knows his p's, he knows his q's, he also knows his l's. As long as fashion's foibles dictate skirts so very brief, the girls whose legs are not so straight are filled with woe and grief; for a girl's legs may be crooked, and if fashions are concealing it matters not at all, but now, when dresses are revealing each maiden's limbs to all the world, Dame Fashion's hardest blows are showered on the flapper who must show her beau her bows. Now comes H. E. Van Norman with advice that's smart and sage: "Eat more good food," he tells the girls, "and then you'll be the rage. More calories and vitamines will make your bowlegs straight; lunch every day on crackers, and you'll be feeling great." Thus comes true science once again to dry up human tears, and for H. E. Van Norman all the bow-legged girls shout "Cheers!"

STRANGER WAS JOHN, HIMSELF.

NIAGARA FALLS.—Well, folks, John Daley is back home again, sure enough. You know, John just clean disappeared from this town a couple months ago, and nobody ever did know what had become of him. Just vanished, hide and hair. There was a body picked up in a cinder pit over to the roundhouse that some folks said was John, but there never was anything sure about it, and it did seem like John's disappearance was one of them there unsolved mystery. Well, now, John's back, and the funny thing is that he's in jail. It seems like his folks went into the house the other evening, and here was a man asleep in the best bed, where no man had any call to be by right. So the folks just telephoned the police station, and the cops run around to the house, and here this stranger was John, himself. Well, it seems like John was sort of full of likker, and the cops had made the trip anyway, and not wanting to make a trip like that for nothing they pinched John just for luck and because he was kind of lit up. Don't that beat all get out?

WHAT PRICE PRINCESSES?

PARIS.—Commercial marriages are all the rage these days. If you can afford it you can buy most any title for yourself. Unfortunately they come high, and princes are especially expensive. Aimee Crocker turned the trick. This former California heiress married a prince with the understanding that he was to receive a financial settlement in exchange for the services of his name. This statement was made in evidence during the hearing of Princess Galatzine's divorce suit.

Fable Of Parlor Blacksmith Who Couldn't Slam It Over The Plate

BY GEORGE ADE

Once there was a left-handed Society Selling-Plater who never landed in the Money.

Of all the Sexes that roam the Earth, his pick was the Gals. He was very partial to the Women Folks. Even the Blondines who work the Tooth-Picks in the Rotunda, and the Fat Ones who talk Baby Talk, and the Chickadees who chew Gum on the Trolley, and the dark-eyed Duennas who forget to do up their Black Hair, and the Lumpy Ones who never go all the way around with the powder Puff, and the Flity ones who honk the Horn when they turn the Corner, and the Mopey Ones who wear wrappers and eat Pickles and the little Maudie Froshies who turn out on Saturday Night looking for Drummers, and the Spindly Ones with Tam O'Shanters who lead Dogs, and a good many others who never get into the Harrison Fisher Pictures—they may have had their Failings but they looked Purty Fair to the Pickerel.

The last one out was always Number One with Philo, for such was the Name of Our Hero.

During many a long Afternoon when he should have been busy with the Books, Philo leaned back, combing his Mustaches with a Steel Pen and looking at the Wall. He could see himself in a Cozy Corner under a Red Light. Beside him sat a Prize Goddess of the kind that makes a Swell Feature for the Sunday Paper. She was holding him by the Hand and whispering, "You for Me."

Almost every Nightfall he would change to the Other Suit and start out to see if he couldn't make the Lithograph come true.

Philo always had his Plan of Campaign ribbed up. He knew what he was going to say when she came breezing into the Front Room. Then when she said so-and-so as a playful Comeback, he would say something Keen, apparently right off the Spinner, and that would lead up to the big Scene in the Cozy Corner.

Philo was always Letter Perfect at Rehearsals, but when it came to the Night Show he was a Bloomer.

The Trouble was that the Little Lady never came back with the Right Cue. After about two Moves she would heave him a Liner which he would Muff. Then for the next five Minutes he would be trying to rub the Buttons off the Upholstery, using himself for that Purpose. He never seemed to be able to Make the Grade.

House Dog Stuff Flivvers

Or perchance when he showed up with his Lassoo hidden under his Coat and his Soul steeled to Determination, he would find out two or three other Front-Room Ferrets on the Premises, all organized to block him off. Some 20 Minutes later, Philo would be up stage reading a Magazine and frozen below the waist.

After being Frosted from Head to Foot, our Young Friend decided that one would induce a Timid Girl to move over and be Chummy, must not go after her but compel her to follow the Trail. Philo read in a Book, costing $2.37 at a Department Store, that the Blase Man of the World who treated them with cold and smiling indifference, simply got them all worked up.

The Game plays out as follows: Cynical Ike with the dark, piercing Eyes and the lines of a Great Sorrow marked on his Handsome Face, tells Dora that all Women are alike. This talk goes best with a Turkish Cigarette. Dora tells him that he is a cynical Woman Hate. She says that there are Women in the World capable of Steadfast Love. Ike springs a pensive sigh and says Ah, if he could believe it. Thereupon it is up to her to prove it or lose the Argument, and that's the answer.

So Philo went around telling every one who would listen to him that Women are fickle ever. When he called he sat as far down in the Chair as he could get and said cruel Things about the World of Fashion. He wanted to get away from all the vain Pretendings of Artificial Society. He would never marry.

He worked this along the entire Chain of Boarding Houses and no one teased him to change his Mind. Some said that Philo had been given the Hooks and was Bleeding. In the books, all the swell Lookers are supposed to get out and chase the Iconoclast, but up in the 5th Ward, where Philo resides, the Recipe was a Fliv.

Accordingly he switched. The second Book that fell into his Hands pictured the Young Fellow who simply keeps at the Girl and snoops around and plays House Dog until her Woman's Heart is touched by his Slavish Devotion. Philo began to camp out at the Home of a Brunette. At the end of six days she shivered at the Sight of him. After he had been given the indisposed Answer three times in one Week he pulled down this Entry Money and coppered the whole Enterprise.

Once he attempted the Impetuous Line of Business otherwise known as Cave Man Stuff. It always works out on the Stage. The Object is to nail the Girl without giving her a Chance to become acquainted and Investigate. First or second meeting and then Speech about having loved her for years before seeing her—Arm around Waist before there is time to jump—Bing!

Unconditional Surrender

One Moonlit Evening it was, that $28-a-week Philo with a Vocabulary of 82 words started out to win the Fair One with just one passionate Whirlwind that would carry her off her Feet. Some one had told him to treat 'em rough.

He moved alongside, got a Split Infinitive crossed with a defective Adverb and died on everything except the Hug. Inasmuch as she never stood for any Strong-Arm Plays until after the Fourth Inning she decided that she had been insulted. She said that Her Father would kill him. He took a short cut across the Lawn and escaped into the Alley back of the Engine House. Fortunately she had other Callers that Evening and became so Interested that she forgot to speak to Father.

Philo began to weaken on the Systems. Yet he knew that there was some certain way of going at it, for he could see what was being pulled off all around him. Every night when he was out scanning the Hammocks and Front Porches in order to spot his Destiny, he saw Whole Bunches of them snuggled together in the Twilight. He wondered how they managed to stay on the job.

As for him, the Girl Proposition had him down and out.

If he kept quite, he was a Stock. If he talked against time, he made Breaks.

If he complimented other girls, he lost his Number. If he roasted other Girls he insulted her Dearest Friends.

If he tried to Coddle, she called for Help. If he didn't she would begin to Burn Low and Yawn about 9:30.

He had tried all known Methods that are supposed to be Winners and he was still a thousand miles from the Cozy Corner.

One day he struck upon the Explanation of the whole sad Mess. He decided that he was a Shell-Fish.

MORAL: Never play a system.

PROBABLY SILK SOCKS, TOO.

OROVILLE, Cal.—Stove pipe lids and Prince Alberts have replaced rubber hats and gummed coats for local firefighters. Fire Chief Harry Sadowski responded to an alarm in a silk beaner and broadcloth coat. Not that he is getting high hat but that the firemen are creating the proper atmosphere for the "Days of '49" celebration.

THE GARDEN

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

The garden is small, but it is select. The tulips and iris that bloom in it have pedigrees. Pedigreed flowers are like pedigreed dogs in the respect that you don't exactly get them for nothing. Between the Sicilians who do the rough work, and the professional growers who charge the rough prices, the garden sets us back about the first cost and upkeep of the kind of a car we see going by and wish we owned. You can't have everything unless you're the vice president of a Trust company. We have the garden.

And Calmly, But With Fury in Her Heart She Marched Away.

The news of it gets about. The resident gardener belongs to iris clubs and things of that sort. Now and then people come to see it, important people who always look shocked when they see the house that stands in front of the garden, and observe the 1929 model which stands on the drive. But after they read the number carefully aloud to each other two or three times, they say:

"Well, this must be the place." Then they come in.

Usually before they come in they send in a chauffeur to ring the door bell. Sometimes we happen to be engaged in a meal, but the visitors feel sure that we ought to be glad to show them around. The chauffeur makes sure that this is the place, after making searching inquiries of the member of the family who happens to answer the bell. He goes back and tells them so, and they walk down the drive and wait for us to come out and exhibit what we have to show.

Two of them came in last evening. We could see and hear that they were important. Their clothes gave the first information, their language the second. Both of them appeared to be the wives of men whose names extend from one end of the directory of directors to the other.

"I hope we are not inconveniencing you," said the elder, raising her voice so as to make herself heard over the clatter of knives and forks that came through the dining room window. "I have heard so much about your little garden that I did so much want to see it. I love flowers so much, you know. I am so much obliged to you for coming out. It must be nice to have dinner at such an hour as this, and not be put to all the trouble to dress up."

We allowed that those things were nice.

"We shan't keep you long," said the other. "We dine at half after eight. You seem to have quite a pretty arrangement here. Are those Griminias in that bed over there? I am fond of Griminias, but my husband doesn't like them at all. These are quite nice ones, though."

We told her that they were Sibericas.

"Oh, yes, so easy to mistake them. I suppose you do all your own work. It must be dreadfully fatiguing."

We said modestly that we now and then get a little help from the outside.

"But," turning on the Head Gardner, "it must be nice to have a husband who is willing to dig and cut the grass, and do some of the rough work. Mine is forever playing golf."

The Head Gardner allowed that her husband was not such a h—l of a grass cutter—in more polite phraseology, of course, and even indicated that he occasionally kept on trying to break a hundred.

"He must be an early riser to get a chance to play on those public courses. I understand they are frightfully crowded."

There seemed to be no adequate answer to that one.

"Now how much could I get that little clump for—delivered I mean? I'm afraid James would injure it if he brought it over tonight."

She was told that the little clump was quite a pet—had been around the yard for so long that the family had sort of grown fond of it, and that it was not for sale.

"Oh, well, something else will do, I suppose. But I must really have a paper with their names. It is so hard for me to remember things like that, and they do call these iris such absurd things. Let me have 20 of those roots for my bed along the drive. They will quite match the color of the car."

Again she appeared to have picked something that was dear to the heart of the Head Gardner. She was a little piqued, and made a gesture as if to go, but some pansies along the rock walk caught her eye and she decided she would stay and purchase them.

"Really," said the Head Gardner, in whose eyes the light of combat had begun to dawn, "we are not selling anything."

"Not selling anything? Isn't this the season for marketing them?"

"Yes, they could be transplanted now, but I am not disposing of them that way."

"But how—why—how do you, that is, how do you manage to meet the—I mean, how can you aff—how, well, I know these things must be quite expensive, and I was wondering—you know what I mean, of course."

"Yes, I think so. But we manage, somehow. It is quite a trial, but we manage."

"If it's a matter of price, of course, I would pay anything in reason. But of course it might be safer to go to one of the regular dealers, who really know about such things. You know the best of amateurs aren't like professionals, now are they?"

"Yes," said the Head Gardner, "I suppose it would be better to get them from a dealer. That is the surest way."

"But I did so hope to have something to take home, and besides I had heard so much about your efforts that I thought it might be a help—you know what I mean."

"Madam," said the Head Gardner, "Perhaps I should have told you that I had not finished my dinner when you came in. If you will excuse me I shall finish it now." And calmly, but with fury in her heart, she marched away.

As the ladies went out we heard one of them say:

"Such awful people. I told you we shouldn't come."

THE HONOR SYSTEM

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Two youthful dry agents, proud grads of the Washington prohibition school, halted a truck driver here, whose car bore suspicious appearing casks. Girded with their recently invested authority they halted the astonished man, joyfully took their samples, and sternly warned him they intended to have it analyzed and, if alcohol were present, to prosecute him with all the majesty of the law. "Don't you want my name, address or number?" inquired the dazed driver. "No, just give yourself up if it's alcohol," they responded, and let him go. It did contain alcohol. No, the driver didn't show up.

UGLY DUCKLINGS.

CEDAR RAPIDS.—There's going to be one surprised hen a few days from now, when the eggs she is sitting on crack open and disclose, not fluffy chicks, but scrawny black crows. When Walter Ellsworth, the farmer she works for, took her eggs from her, she became disgusted, flew to the top of a nearby tree, chased a crow off her nest, and took her place. Biddy makes the 20-foot flight twice a day.

KNIGHT OF THE RAIL.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—A big, black cat, pet of the Baltimore engine house of the Pennsylvania railroad, became possessed with wanderlust and the spirit of adventure. She crwaled under the boiler of a locomotive and settled down for a pleasant journey. She rode over 100 miles and was thoroughly enjoying the trip when some unsympathetic engineer discovered and returned the stowaway.

MORE DARN FUN.

CHICAGO.— Francis McEruge does not fall for the old vices, he invents new ones! The other day he stood on the roof of a building at 1018 West Harrison street, surrounded with a pile of bricks, and had the time of his life hurling them at pedestrians passing below. He was interrupted by the Maxwell street police, who do hate to see a chap enjoying himself, and was taken instanter to the Psychopathic hospital.

On Enjoying Poor Health

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

I VISITED in a town last year where nobody had a good word for anybody.

The people are God-fearing citizens in their own esteem, who pay taxes, raise children and attend dutifully to the other obligations of life.

But good news is an outlaw in that community; and an enthusiast would be regarded with suspicion as one who was probably trying to "put something over."

A cold, rainy day seems to bring a sort of grim satisfaction, particularly if it follows a period of sunshine. Folks go around dripping and declaring that they knew well enough such good weather couldn't last. "We was due for a spell of rain, and I guess it come, all right."

Merchants positively glow when they tell that they "aint got" what you want. And there is more joy over one sinner who is caught in the act and whose sin can be told about, than over ten righteous persons who need no repentance.

In all the week I was there, I never once heard anyone say a gracious, enthusiastic thing about a fellow-human-being. Where the facts were such that they could not be given a gloomy turn, they were uttered grudgingly, as though no mortal had a right to such good luck and it certainly would not last.

The inevitable result is that the town is dying. Its industries dried up long ago. Occasionally a newcomer will try to start something; but he withers finally under the cold glances of those who are waiting around to see him fail. And when he leaves, they tell you that they always told you so.

There has been recently a considerable criticism of the Pollyanna philosophy of life. That philosophy can, of course, be carried to extremes. There is something the matter with a man who whistles while his leg is being cut off, or fails to grumble when the coffee is cold.

But between Pollyanna and the average citizen of the community which I visited, and to which I shall never return, give me Pollyanna every time. As a matter of cold dollars and cents, to use no higher standard, the Pollyanna stuff pays.

Napoleon was called a "one-hundred-thousand man" by his enemies, because they feared the effect of his enthusiasm on the battlefield more than an extra hundred thousand men. Would he ever have achieved his results if he had "enjoyed poor health"?

"Men are nothing," Montaigne said, "until they get excited." And it is such men—excited by their visions of great achievement, by their faith in their fellows, or in a cause or an ideal, who have founded cities and built railroads and won battles and transformed the world.

The book of Genesis would tell a very different story if the writer of it had lived in the town to which I have referred.

The thirty-first verse of the first chapter now reads: "And God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good."

A citizen of this complaining community would have written: "And God saw everything that He had made, and sighed and said: 'It aint what you'd call good, and in my opinion, it'll be a whole lot worse before it gets any better.'"

FEAR WAR ON WATER RIGHTS

Farmers Near Los Angeles Arm For Trouble

LOS ANGELES, June 10. (AP)—Preparatons for war in Owens valley over water rights with valley residents on one side and the city of Los Angeles on the other, claimed attention here today with the report that both factions were arming themselves.

A Los Angeles hardware store yesterday shipped rifles and 2000 rounds of ammunition to a hardware company at Bishop, Cal., the stronghold of valley citizens who maintain that this city has robbed them of water and has refused to adequately compensate them for the loss.

The Bishop hardware store to which the rifles were sent reported that the rifles had been ordered by individuals. The Los Angeles store was unable to fill at once an order for 40 additional rifles received from the valley.

Thirty-five business men of Bishop a few days ago organized a squad of armed "minute men," the first of several planned in the valley with the avowed purpose of "protecting Owens valley property from any attack by Los Angeles city detectives."

Although simultaneously the sale of 50 sawed off shotguns and rifles and a quantity of ammunition to the Los Angeles water and power bureau was reported, officials of the bureau denied that this indicated a possibility of a clash with the ranchers. The guards on the aqueduct from Owens valley to Los Angeles, which three times since May 27 has been dynamited, were instructed to keep on city property and leave any arrests which might be made up to the city officials, the bureau representatives pointed out. City guards, however, are guarding the squeduct with instructions to shoot trespassers.

BURK SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas June 10.—The Federated Missionary society of Burkburnett held its fifth Monday meeting of May in the Central Christian church with the ladies of that missionary society as special hostesses.

Mrs. Hattie Buchanan, the president, called the meeting to order with prayer; and Mrs. G. C. Bain led the devotional Scripture reading from Matthew, 10th chapter.

During the business session reports were given from the churches represented, and it was decided that the Federated Society should be responsible for a story-telling hour at the Hardin Home Park each Tuesday afternoon, the church ladies serving by assignments. And it is promised that they will not give stories of unusual interest, also furnishing ice water and sometimes a special treat as well.

A city clean up campaign was discussed and a committee appointed to confer with the city authorities as to time, method, etc.

Violin solo, Mrs. Upton; songs, Misses Virginia Jane Carley and Virginia Ann Laney, with Mrs. Early Carley at the piano, vocal duet, "Who Will Go?" Mrs. W. T. Martin and Mrs. Upton. Reading, "I Was Awfully Sick," by Vivian Johnson.

Team practice was announced for next Monday night when it was urged that all the members would come out and help with their feature of the lodge work.

The Current Literature club held its last session of the club year in the home of Mrs. B. L. McDonald on South Avenue C where the program was featured by the report of the delegate, Mrs. McDonald from the First Distrint convention of the federated clubs held recently in Olney, Texas. Business matters relative to the plans for next year were then presented and discussed, with special consideration of the club yearbook for 1927-28.

JUST CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—No wife who puts her husband's galluses in hot water, thereby removing all the stretch, has any right to consider herself faithful to her marriage vows, according to the plea of Frank Festan, who told Common Pleas Judge Kennedy here that his wife, Antonia, had done exactly that thing. Thereafter, Frank said, his galluses were practically useless for the purpose of maintaining his trousers at their proper level, and when a few days later, Antonia sold his candy store without even telling him about it, so that he got himself thrown out of what he believed was his own property, Frank decided the limit had been reached. The divorce was granted.

BUFFALO BILL AT MISSION

Stars in Western Riding Film

"He's a rider and a roper, but best of all he's a natural born showman and will be a corking actor."

That was the wise observation of Lester F. Scott, after having been persuaded to see a bunch of western riders in a finale of the Sells-Floto circus.

A newly discovered young westerner was being sensationally exploited. He was one of 12. There was good riding and good roping, but the youngster outrode his companions, out-costumed them and led them all in grace, dash and daring. As a burst of applause led by the ladies in the audience he swept the ground with his hat in an obeisance worthy of a French courier of the seventeenth century, and flashed a smile as toothsome as the best Doug Fairbanks can produce.

That is why he is now one of the most popular of all western stars. Buffalo Bill Jr., has what Elinor Glyn calls "It"—an elusive indescribable, personal magnetic charm that marks the genius.

Lovers of thrilling westerns will detect this charm when Buffalo Bill Jr., is seen at the Mission theater Sunday and Monday in what is said to be a hair-raising story of sheep, cattle, rascality and love. It is called "The Ridin' Rowdy." Certainly, the title is promising! Olive Hasbrouck is the heroine.

TYPE PLENTY FOR LINDBERGH.

Lindbergh has occupied more columns of newspaper publicity than any man who has ever lived, is the belief of men well versed in the newspaper business. A few days ago the three largest newspapers in New York City carried nearly 70 columns in one day about Lindbergh and his flight to Paris. European newspapers have carried thousands of columns and here in America it is believed that at least a million columns of type have been printed about this noted flyer.—R. A. Franklin, Electra News.

REVENGE NEAR FOR NAVY FLIERS.

Navy fliers can take up women friends and relatives now, says Secretary Wilbur. The secretary at last has solved that time-honored mother-in-law problem.—J. L. Newland, Frederick Leader.

NEW ARMY STEPS OUT.

Again the day of high school commencement is here and a new army of youth steps out into the world with a ribbon-bound diploma in one hand and a world-gesture in the other. The facts of the matter are that these young folks are going to change the world greatly in spite of the traditional laugh from the smart Alecks as to their intentions along that line.—V. Hornbeck, Klowa County News.

WOMEN WEARING SENSIBLE CLOTHES.

Since short skirts and short hair make woman look younger, she won't be in a hurry to go back on present styles, fashions. Really we think woman is more sensibly clothed than ever before.—Harry Koch, Quanah Tribune-Chief.

TOWN SLACKER JOINS NOTHING.

When you find a citizen who is opposed to a chamber of commerce in his town, or some like institution, you may just put it down that he is a fellow who never attends any public gatherings that are held for the benefit of his town.—Fred Landers, Estelline News.

NEW IDEAL FOR CHILDREN.

Here is a new ideal which will provide constructive life work for many a boy and girl now growing to maturity in a new world. The field is that of adequate city government. All know that city government at present is usually a botch. Most Americans let it alone, leaving the few to handle it most wastefully, inefficiently, often so dishonestly that it sets the worst possible ideal before the young people coming along—the belief that waste and dishonesty are the normal thing. W. H. Hopkins, clever land city manager, said the other day that "we need first of all a new and adequate conception of the true nature and possibilities of city government."—Tom S. Whithead, Cisco Daily News.

'Resurrection' Has La Rocque And Del Rio In Chief Roles

Tolstoy's "Resurrection," the flesh-and-blood drama of Prince and peasant, love sacred and profane, brings Rod La Rocque and Dolores del Rio to the screen of the Majestic theater Tuesday for four days.

The most widely read classic of modern times, enjoyed wherever people read books, translated from the Russian of Leo Tolstoy into 11 languages in the past 30 years, "Resurrection" is of unusual interest to film-goers because it is a drama strong and absorbing enough to have made Tolstoy beloved by the masses of the world. Edwin Carewe satisfies a 17-year-old ambition at last in bringing to the screen this story, which has fascinated him since he played Prince Dmitri himself in a stock company in Kansas.

Rod La Rocque is the star of "Resurrection," playing the role of the prince who sinned and sorrowed. Dolores del Rio is Katusha Maslova, the peasant ward of his two maiden aunts, the girl whose love is defiled and sullied, only to be won again through the remorse of the prince. Miss del Rio is afforded her greatest screen opportunity to date and her work is done under the direction of the same Edwin Carewe who discovered her in Mexico City in 1925.

The very human story of "Resurrection," the film, is identical with that of the novel, no major liberties having been taken, even with the logical ending. There is the despoilation of the prince's pure love for the peasant maid, the evil companionship and the mad carousing of the prince at St. Petersburg, and the prince on the jury that tries Katusha Maslova, the girl he himself has betrayed. Finally, there is that grand march to Siberia, prince and peasant alike laboring over the steppes as the chains of exiles clank and hoofs thud on the hard-baked roads. The final scenes are exact renditions of those in Tolstoy's novel. Edwin Carewe had in Hollywood the invaluable assistance of Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of the author of "Resurrection," while making the film. As a matter of fact ,the county portrays his father in a prologue to the film proper

The cast includes, aside from Rod La Rocque and Dolores del Rio, Marc McDermott, Clarissa Selwynne, Vera Lewis, Eva Southern and Count Ilya Tolstoy. Rita Carewe, daughter of the director, plays a part.

OLYMPIC FILM HAS FLO VIDOR

Star in "The World at Her Feet"

A screen play as delightfully refreshing as it is intriguingly novel in development of plot is now showing at the Olympic theater. It is "The World at Her Feet" with beautiful, accomplished Florence Vidor in the starring role, that of a successful woman lawyer who caps her career by arresting the lapsing affections of a husband who is about to stray.

Luther Reed, who directed this comedy built around the intimate life of two young married couples, has brought a freshness of treatment, a spontaneity, that establishes it as a fitting sequel to "The Ace of Cads," "Evening Clothes" and "New York" his three previous pictures for Paramount.

Arnold Kent gives a clever performance as the worried husband, Margaret Quimby as the alluring, clinging-vine blonde who nearly wins Kent from Miss Vidor, gives promise here of becoming one of the screen's bright figures. Richard Tucker plays the young doctor with his customary conviction of characterization. William Austin is the debonair private detective, a part he fits like a glove.

"The World at Her Feet" is an adaptation by Doris Anderson of the French play "Lawyer Bolbec and Her Husband." The continuity was prepared by Louise Long, and a clever job of writing it is.

"The World at Her Feet" is recommended as 100 per cent entertainment presented by a cast and director who are all 100 per cent perfect.

Buddy Roosevelt Holds Gem Screen

The management of the Gem theater promises something out of the ordinary in western pictures when it presents Buddy Roosevelt's latest starring vehicle, aptly titled "The Ramblin' Galoot," today. This is one of Lester F. Scott, Jr.'s, Action Pictures, and the well-known producer claims that in this he has an offering which surpasses even his previous efforts along these lines.

"The Ramblin' Galoot" is a tale of a cowboy who is inoculated with the golf bug, and who endeavors to teach all the cowhands how to play the game. Not only does this make for some screamingly funny comedy situations and ludicrous bits of business, but it also serves to contribute to the dramatic structure of the story, for by means of his proficiency in the game Buddy is enabled to extricate himself and a companion from a desperate situation.

Violet La Plante, the beautiful sister of Laura La Plante, the famous star, has the principal feminine role and she lends both charm and marked historionic ability to the production. In the supporting cast are Frederick Lee, Al Taylor, Charles Whitaker, Nelson McDowell, Charles McClary, Harry Delmour and Hank Bell. The story was written by Barr Cross, and the production directed by Fred Bain.

Amarillo.—Plans have been announced by the Empire Gas and Fuel company for a pipeline to carry gas from the Panhandle field to Kansas City, the cost of the line to be approximately $20,000,000.

AUTO INDUSTRY IN FINE SHAPE

Business Prospects Good For Rest of Year

BY RAY PRIEST
Universal Service Automobile Editor

DETROIT, Mich., June 11.—With every indication of continued good business, the automobile industry today looks forward with marked confidence toward the second half of 1927. Best evidence of the prosperity that promises to attach itself to the second half is the remarkable position of General Motors, coupled with the optimistic view of business in the coming months, taken by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation, and the interest in the forthcoming Ford announcement.

Other large makers, notably Chrysler, Willis Overland, Nash and Dodge Brothers, have formulated plans which, if carried out to the full, should contribute measurably to the maintenance of a high level of values.

Buyer on Top

Although the industry has long been characterized as outstanding in its eagerness to provide the greatest possible dollar's worth of car for the money, the buyer of a car these days should take increasing satisfaction out of the sharp competition that prevails in the industry today. As a result of it, the 1927 automobile buyer is provided with a choice of values undreamed of at the money a few years ago.

An interesting forecast on the probable fortunes of the automobile business in the last half of 1927, made recently by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, embodies a reassuring message. Coming from the head of a corporation that makes one out of every three automobiles sold in this country today, Mr. Sloan's statement bears more weight than that of any other manufacturer in the business.

In commenting on the soundness of trade conditions generally and the outlook for the remainder of the year, Mr. Sloan warned that prophecies as to business conditions were at all times dangerous and are apt to be rendered empty later by circumstances beyond view at the time.

"Constant surveys of business conditions, which the corporation finds it advisable to make, coupled with the reports from our country-wide dealers' organizations, reflect the confidence which we at the executive offices hold for the remainder of the year," Mr. Sloan declared.

Conditions Good

"Conditions, as we see them throughout the country generally are in excellent shape.

"Today the motor car industry has learned the value of closely watching the movement of cars at retail and the regulation of production in accordance with the trend of consumer demand.

"This close check which the motor car industry is maintaining on the probable demand for cars and the policy of governing production accordingly, is mainly responsible for the well stabilized condition of the industry today."

Chrysler Has High Used Car Value

One of the explanations assigned by Chrysler officials for the phenomenal demand which their cars have met since their first appearance and which this spring is breaking all company records is their high resale value in the used car market.

That this resale value is a general characteristic of automobile conditions is attested by market quotations in all parts of the country, the officials declare.

"Motor cars long ago passed out of the luxury class," said J. W. Frazier, Chrysler sales manager while discussing this matter recently. "Today the stable citizen looks upon his automobile as being just as much a necessary investment as his home. He may change his car from time to time. In fact, it is the usual custom to turn them in or trade them after a certain amount of usage, but always there is at least one automobile in the family garage of American families nowadays, and the practice of owning a second car is rapidly gaining ground.

"Naturally in planning the purchase of such a considerable item in his assets an owner keeps in view all the essential elements of sound investing, among which none is less important than marketability.

"When a byer goes out to purchase his car these days he almost always makes a point of finding out what he can expect each make to bring a year or two years later on, and at this stage of the transaction the factor of prospective high Chrysler price becomes a determining influence in the decision that is being reached.

"The Chrysler resale value is due largely to the knowledge now generally possessed by the public that an unsual amount of performance and durability is built into every Chrysler car with the resulet that after the average period of use there still remains in it a reserve of mileage, comfort and low cost of operation that makes a used Chrysler the equal of many other automobiles still fresh from the factory and classed as new.

"Chrysler resale value is a result of merit plus popular demand, and the fact that the automobile owning public has recognized this merit is one of the reasons for our confidence that the remarkable progress of Chrysler in the short years of its history is sure to continue uninterrupted for a long time to come."

BAD MOVIES, MAMA SPANK.

BALLABOOCA, Ga.—Mrs. Mary H. Lloyd, who is 80 years old, understands now what is wrong with the younger generation. For four score years she got along without going to the movies. The other evening she attended her first motion picture performance, and the wickedness of the world was at once made plain. "No wonder girls are wild," said Mrs. Lloyd after the show. "If I had a daughter who went to any such place as a motion picture theater I'd turn her over my knee and spank her." The picture which so aroused the matriarch's wrath was Harry Langdon's comedy, "The Strong Man." It was produced under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U.

Ample Room In Erskine

Not only is there ample room for passengers in the wide driver's compartment of the Erskine Six but there is also a wealth of carrying space in the rear compartment.

AMPLE SPACE IN ERSKINE

Large Carrying Space In Rear of Car

In the new Erskine six business coupe, now on display at the show rooms of Fritz Motor company, local Studebaker-Erskine distributor, Studebaker has achieved a triumph in roominess. Not only is there ample room for passengers in the wide driver's compartment, but there is also a wealth of carrying space in the rear compartment.

There is more than 10 cubic feet of space beneath the rear deck, sufficient to provide storage room for a steamer trunk and several traveling bags. The ample dimensions also permit golf bags to be stored lengthwise or widthwise.

The Erskine business coupe is adapted both to city and interurban use. Its compact dimensions, speed and flexibility make it an ideal car for city traffic. It is easy to park, and with acceleration from five to 25 miles an hour in 8 1-2 seconds, it flashes through traffic. Its easy riding results from a springbase totaling more than four-fifths of the wheelbase. It is an exceptionally comfortable car, even when the full capacity of its 60-mile an hour motor is used.

The business coupe is finished in Waukegan blue, with blue devil blue hood panel and trim. The interior is upholstered in serviceable genuine leather. Located just behind the driver's seat is a deep compartment for small parcels. This is in addition to the storage space under the rear deck.

The full-vision steel body provides big car comfort and roominess for driver and passenger as a result of the skill and ingenuity of R. H. Dietrich, the custom body builder who designed the Erskine bodies. Dietrich diverged from the usual practice in body designing by laying out the interior proportions of the car first before dealing with outside body lines.

In addition to self energizing four-wheel brakes, the equipment of the business coupe includes bumpers, front and rear; motometer; automatic windshield cleaner and rear-vision mirror; cowl ventilator; oil filter; hydrostatic gasoline gauge on the dash; coincidental lock to ignition and steering; rear traffic signal light and two-beam headlights.

SCIENCE PUT INTO MARMON

Use Seismograph For Recording Shocks

A seismograph is known generally as an instrument for recording earth disturbances, but to Marmon engineers this same device, with its delicate mechanism, enters an entirely new field of usefulness—that of registering in a scientific manner the same roadshocks and bumps that ordinarily are only a source of discomfort to the motorist.

In designing the Marmon eight, engineers of the company instituted a comfort test with its basis the seismograph and another device, a spring deflection recorder, which registers the actual deflection of the spring of the car. This scientific test was one of the final factors in the designs of the chassis of the new eight, according to H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car company.

"In the Marmon Eight," Mr. Brooks said, "the problem of riding comfort received much more than the ordinary amount of attention since this was to be a car without great size and bulk but with all the riding ease previously associated with the largest and most expensive cars. Moreover, Marmon had its own reputation to maintain, having built cars for years that were generally credited with unusual comfort and roadability.

"The sensitive seismograph and spring deflection recorder were brought into play in a way to obtain a scientific register of all types of road conditions so that spring length, distribution of weight and center of gravity could be determined with scientific accuracy and then supplemented with the correct types of shock insulators and absorbers.

"In the comfort test, a seismograph was placed in the tonneau of the car and attached to the springs, clearly recording on a strip of paper the movement of the body with respect to the level of the road. Movement of the springs themselves was recorded in much the same manner but on a slightly different type of instrument. Thus it was possible to record at any speed not only the deep ruts and holes such as are found in the country roads, but the hardly noticeable roughness of brick pavements and other types of city streets.

"As a result of the experiments, springs of the Marmon eight were designed with a total length equal to 81 per cent of the wheelbase of the car. They are set in sturdy rubber knuckles which serve to insulate the chassis body from many short and sharp road knocks and at the same time eliminate the necessity of lubrication. The spring system is further augmented by Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers which are engineered into the frame of the car at the time of manufacture."

YOU MUST HAVE CHILDREN IF YOU'D TEACH TURKISH SCHOOL.

CONSTANTINOPLE. —If anybody is to qualify as a teacher in Turkish schools hereafter, he, or she, has to have children of his or her own. Failing possession of children by parentage, babies must be adopted. The edict, issued by the perfect of instruction, reads as follows:

"All teachers, male and female, who have no children of their own, must adopt a baby—that is, they must concern themselves with some newborn child who requires protection and treat his child as their ward. Those who have not already done this must notify the authorities of this fact and a child will be assigned to them."

EIGHTS CLEAN SWEEP RACES

Hupp President Cites Winning Car

The clean sweep of eight cylinder cars at the world famous 500-miles Indianapolis race, Memorial Day, is a remarkable tribute to the efficiency and durability of the eight cylinder principle of motor car design, in the opinion of Du-Bois Young, president of the Hupp Motor Car corporation. Every car in the race was a straight eight.

Mr. Young points to the performance of the winning car, driven by George Souders, as indicative of the superiority of the eight cylinder principle, translated into standard passenger car design. Souders averaged 97.54 miles an hour for the 500 miles, in comparison with the world record for that distance, made by Peter de Paolo, at the 1925 race in a Duesenberg straight eight, or 101.14 miles an hour. Souders drove the entire 500 miles reporting perfect performance from his car throughout the race.

Commenting on reports of Hupmobile engineers and other executives who witnessed Souder's victory, Mr. Young stressed the fact that "eight cylinder cars have won every race of major importance throughout America for four years. The eight cylinder principle if now conclusively established as supreme," he said, "leading drivers will use no other type car."

"Modern engineering thought is rapidly crystallizing into a unity of opinion that the eight cylinder design is the topmost among all motor car principles. This opinion would seem borne out in the fact that engineers who build for the supreme racing test of all — the race at Indianapolis — build straight eights, just as engineers who seek the finest in every day use build the same type car.

"A race such as this is a splendid cruicible in which to test every known motor car type which appears to have potentialities. Many of the features which have made the eight the dominant fine car it is, were given their baptism of fire at Indianapolis, or on the board tracks of this country. It is though such tests that the best principles to follow can be determined definitely. The fact that straight eights have won every race in America for four years is thorough proof of their supremacy."

Second Hand Car Trade Increasing

With 2,700,000 families in the United States now owning two or more automobiles and with every indication of a continued increase in multiple car ownership, motor car manufacturers are regarding this fast increasing "second car" market with significance. The influence of the two car family tendency is reflected this year as never before in automobile body design, fittings and appointments.

"There is no question," says E. H. McCarthy, general sales manager of the Nash Motors company, "that the American public, accepting the automobile as a practical and indispensable form of transportation, is rapidly adopting the two-car-to-a-family plan. Figures compiled on this subject by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce are interesting and illuminating. They show that 19 per cent of all families in America own more than one car and that 15 per cent of all car owning families in the United States have two cars or more.

"This situation, while interesting, is not at all remarkable. Quick, convenient, transportation long since has become recognized as a practical necessity in the modern conduct of business, domestic and social affairs. Thousands of families who have but one car today are definitely planning on two cars for the future. From dealer reports we find that multiple car ownership is by no means confined to the larger centers or to any particular section of the country."

Three new models just introduced by Nash Motors are designed to meet the "two car" situation, each in its particular field. These are the new advanced six coupe, with rumble seat, the new advanced six sport touring model, and the new special six cabriolet with collapsible top and rumble seat. Reports from Nash dealers indicate that many of these models have been purchased by families who have adopted the two car plan.

MOONSHINES.

NEW ORLEANS.—Two alert prohibition agents spotted a mysterious flivver and started following it. The chase neared a soft drink bar when it stopped with a loud report. The driver, a negro, got out to see what was the matter. After a brief inspection of the deflated tire, he shouted to the bar roon—"If you all wants this stuff, you got to help me." Then the agents got busy. They found a 20-gallon container of whiskey in the automobile.

Dodge Brothers Output Increases

Performance Records Broken With Studebaker Commander

His latest feat, according to information received here by Fritz Motor company, local Studebaker dealers, was to cover a measured half-mile in Riverside, Calif., at the rate of 79 miles an hour in a Studebaker Commander Victoria. This mark, checked and verified, exceeds by a wide margin the fastest time ever made by a stock car in that county. Observers for the test were all deputy sheriffs of the county detailed by Sheriff Sweeters, who is himself the owner of two Studebakers.

Following the speed event over the measured half-mile, Jenkins pitted his own Studebaker Commander against one of the sheriff's cars of another make, reputed to be the fastest automobile in Riverside county, in an acceleration test. The two cars crossed the starting line even at five miles per hour. At the finish line, however, Jenkins had stepped his Commander up to 70 miles per hour and was a fifth of a mile ahead of his competitor.

Before making the trials, Jenkins had challenged a dealer of a competitive line to meet his Studebaker in either a speed or pick-up match. The rival, however, did not choose to accept the challenge. The car challenged was the same make as that of the sheriff's fleet which Jenkins outdistanced in the acceleration test.

Another challenge was broadcast by Jenkins to meet his commander in a climbing trial up Lake avenue hill, Pasadena, Calif. This hill is locally famed as one of the most severe tests for a motor car in California. There were none who would accept his challenge, so Ab drove up anyway, finishing in high gear at 45 miles an hour—a feat regarded as an amazing exhibition of power by those who know the hill.

Jenkins it will also be remembered was one of the drivers of the Studebaker Commander which flashed around the Culver City, Calif., speedway—5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes—thereby establishing 10 world's records.

Willys-Knight Sales Gain In Texas During 1927

Gains for Willys-Knight and Whippet motor cars for the first quarter of this year, as shown by complete registration figures now available for Texas, reached the high total of 52 per cent, according to a statement just given out by Willys-Overland sales department. The industry as a whole showed a gain of 10 per cent for the same period.

Incomplete figures for the entire United States for the first four months of the year show a Willys-Overland increase of 14 per cent while the figures for the industry as a whole disclose a loss of 6 per cent.

The announcement that the 100,000th Whippet had been built was made a short time ago, marking a new record for a new car in its first 11 months of production, and sales of this model all over the country are evidencing a growing popularity for this type of car.

Factory production passed the 1220-car a day mark early in May with heavy orders in from all sections of the country.

In all quarters of the nation with the exception of the southeast, the gains made by Willys-Overland have been outstanding in their relation to the industry as a whole, says the factory report and in the southeast the relative position of Willys-Overland is ahead of the industry as a whole.

Dodge Bros. Start Production Of Six-Cylinder Automobiles

Dodge Brothers, Inc., has started production of its new six cylinder line and output is now running at about 100 per day. This number will be increased rapidly and by the end of June daily output will approximate 300.

The first shipments to dealers were made May 11 and by the end of this month all of Dodge Brothers dealers will have been sampled. The company now has orders for the "sixes" sufficient to keep the immense new plant operating at 300 per days for several months.

The new line will be produced in three models, a four-door sedan, a four-passenger coupe and a new type of cabriolet roadster. Other models will be made later. It is expected that the new line will be introduced about June 1.

The company has found it necessary to step up production of its four cylinder line twice in 10 days to keep shipments abreast of the orders which have been placed since announcement of the new four cylinder motor and standard gear shift was made on May 1.

During the first week after the new motor was introduced orders for cars valued at $5,500,000 were received. These were in addition to regular contractual allotments.

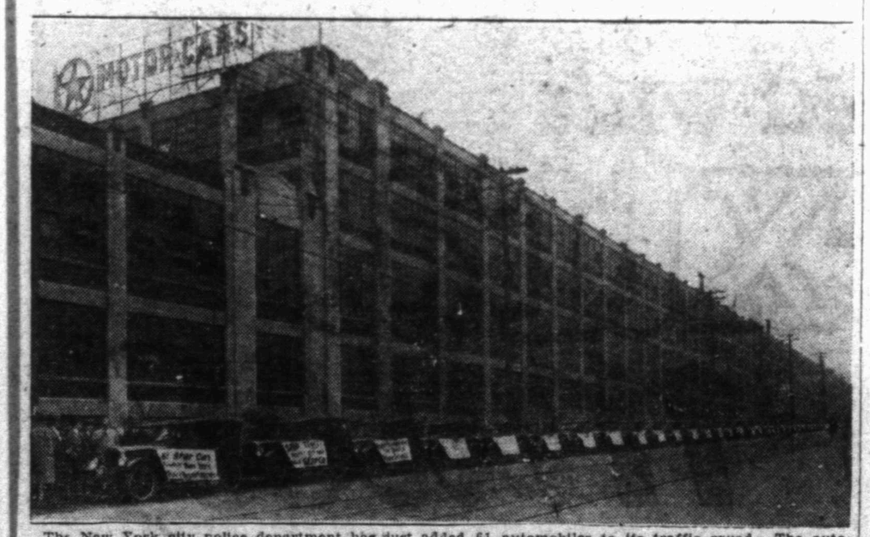

All of the Dodge Brothers factories are now operating at the highest levels of the year and it is expected that still further increases in operations will be necessary.

Graham Brothers' April retail sales in the United States and foreign shipment totaled 5,600 units. Overseas shipments last month totaled 1,084, an increase of 188 per cent over March and the second highest month in Graham Brothers history. In Canada, Graham Brothers' April sales broke all previous records.

Overseas shipments of Dodge Brothers cars established a new high record in the company's history on May 5.

AAA COMPILES AUTO CODES

Summer Tourists to Be Aided On Trips

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11. If the motor tourist does not find completely uniform traffic regulations this summer when he goes forth on his annual vacation journel, he at least will be certain of finding more equitable and just codes prevailing, as a result of the progress of the movement toward uniformity in vital features of motor vehicle codes, according to a statement from the American Automobile association today.

In connection with their fight for the adoption of the more vital features of a national code, the units of the A. A. A. have been making a vigorous onslaught upon reactionary and unduly restrictive provisions of the local codes with which the motor tourist comes in contact, Thos. P. Henry, president of the national motoring body, declared. He continued:

"An excellent measure of success has marked these efforts in hundreds of communities and, in this, officials of the national motoring body see a fine stimulus to touring created.

"The circumscribed views on motor vehicle movement held by local authorities in many parts of the country have been supplanted by a much better perspective. The narrow, distorted vision of traffic one time or another in both small that every tourist has found at and large centers rapidly is giving way to a broad, sane policy as the automobile club presents motordom's case to the local legislators.

"To the credit of the municipal officials generally, they not only have revealed a willingness to listen but to learn and to be as fair and just as the most sanguine could hope. When they were told, as in many cases they were, that the local regulations were reactionary and successful chiefly in driving away business, they usually gave their close attention to the club's spokesman or committee. This same attitude was manifest in many municipalities adjacent to the cities in which the club headquarters were located."

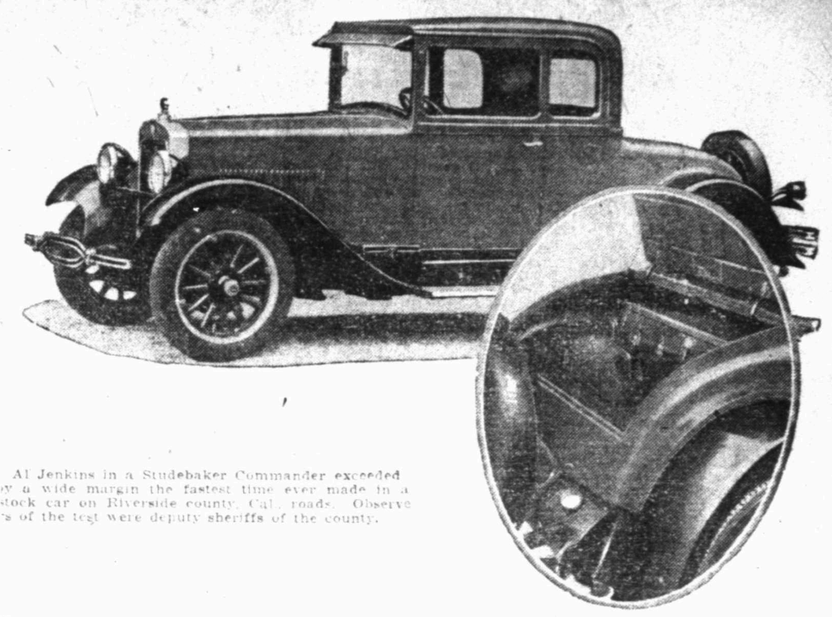

Among the advantages which have come to the motorist as a result of this campaign by the motor clubs, are less rigid and restrictive speed regulations reflected in the disappearance of hundreds of signs specifying "Speed limit, 15 miles an hour," more reasonable parking regulations; fewer confusing laws on driving practices that are generally approved; a broader tendency to warn instead of arrest the traveler and a general trend toward leniency where violation of the regulation palpably was caused by ignorance.

"Probably the most welcome improvement wrought is that which has brought to many communities a more liberal speed limit law," Mr. Henry says. "Nothing has so aggravated and irritated the motorist on tour as the conspicuous '15 mile speed limit' signs that have greeted him in hundreds of small towns, villages and hamlets.

"Everyone has recognized the dangers of excessive speed by the automobile, but when a village establishes a maximum speed of 15 miles an hour while the metropolitan area will allow one to drive 30, it is absurd to look upon the regulation as designed merely for safety. The motor club has taught the municipal official the futility and injustice of this regulation in hundreds of instances already, and when the touring season comes again, hundreds more will have taken down these signs of reaction.

"The fight for uniformity of traffic regulations is continuing. In the meantime, more equitable and just regulations are being obtained everywhere," the statement concludes.

Coast to Coast and back again! CHRYSLER Accomplishes Unprecedented Feat

Mr. L. B. Miller, Director of Sales Promotion of the Stover Signal Engineering Company, of Racine, Wis., performed this amazing transcontinental driving feat in his personally owned Chrysler Imperial "80" Phaeton, to demonstrate the safety and ease of night driving behind a pair of Ilco Ryan-Lites, with which his car was equipped.

From San Francisco to New York and Return to Los Angeles — 6720 miles in 167 hours — 6 days and 23 hours — the world's most astounding proof of Chrysler supreme speed and stamina.

Twice across the continent — a complete round trip from San Francisco to New York and back to Los Angeles — in this stupendous accomplishment Chrysler Imperial "80" establishes itself beyond all dispute as the world's leader in motoring performance and stamina.

Not content with breaking all one-way transcontinental records by driving his personal stock Imperial "80" from San Francisco to New York in 79 hours, 55 minutes — absolutely without mechanical adjustment — Mr. L. B. Miller, of Racine, Wis., accompanied by Mr. John Wieber, of Portland, Ore., turned right around without losing a moment's time and sped back to the Pacific Coast, over the National Old Trail to Los Angeles —

A transcontinental round trip of 6720 miles in 167 hours, 59 minutes—from coast to coast and back again in 7 days, averaging nearly 1000 miles a day and maintaining this terrific pace for a week — not over a prepared speedway, but through cities' traffic tangles, over mountain trails, rutted dirt roads, through mud and gumbo, as well as over concrete, brick and gravel.

Miller and his car left San Francisco on Tuesday, May 31st at 10 a.m. Pacific Coast Time, reached New York on Friday, June 3rd, 9:55 p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, and arrived in Los Angeles on Tuesday, June 7th, 9:59 a.m.

ROTATION OF CROPS EASY AND PROFITABLE, SAYS BARNES

SWEET CLOVER AID TO LAND

Livestock On Farm Pays Double Profit

By O. K. BARNES,
Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Director.

Crop rotation is not a difficult problem and should not frighten the farmer who is urged to try it. It has many advantages and a careful study of them should convince any one who is really trying to make a success of the farming business.

It gives a better distribution of labor. Not all crops are planted at the same time. By a proper rotation it is possible to spread the planting season over 2 or 3 months. This gives time to thoroughly prepare the soil for each crop and get it in the ground in the best condition and yet not take time from the succeeding crop. In planting a large acreage of any one crop some of it must of necessity be planted too early or too late or the preparation of the ground be slighted.

Advantages of System.

The same thing may be said of the irrigation of crops. In a diversified system of farming all crops do not require irrigation at the same time. Alfalfa, sweet clover or pasture grasses may be watered before small grain needs it. The cultivated crops usually are not in need of irrigation until after the small grains are harvested and a second irrigation provided for the hay or pasture crops.

Insect pests and diseases are not nearly so bad where rotation is practiced. When a crop comes on the same ground only once in four or five years there is very much less danger from any plant disease attacking it.

The diversification of crops is also an insurance against low prices and flooded markets. It is not often that all forms of farm produce sell at a low price the same year and with several kinds of crops to market, the chances are much better than with only one crop.

Building Up Soil.

One of the greatest advantages, if not the greatest, however, is that crop rotation and diversification makes it possible to keep livestock. To bring the soil back to maximum yields and to keep it in good condition and keep storing fertility instead of depleting the soil of what it has, is much more difficult and expensive if livestock is not kept. Humus must be returned to the soil to replace what is taken out through plant growth and the only way to get it there is by turning under some kind of a cover crop or through the use of livestock. By proper management the livestock operation should pay well in addition to the manure left on the place. Commercial fertilizers have their place but they can never put the soil in the same good condition as will barnyard manure.

Progressive farmers all over the South are beginning to realize that the success of the agricultural industry depends on a more diversified form of cropping and rotation and diversification go hand in hand.

As a suggestion for a crop rotation system there is given below a a five-year rotation that is practical for this section and that will give the farmer a chance to still grow some cotton and also give him feed crops enough to keep some livestock and also keep up the fertility of the land by the use of sweet clover. An 80-acre farm is taken for the unit and after taking out 2 1-2 acres for the home and farm buildings there is left 77 1-2 acres to be divided into five approximately equal fields of 15 1-2 acres each. These five fields would be cropped as follows:

Division of Land.

1. Sweet clover seeded in the fall with barley nurse crop, the barley to be pastured through the winter and the next season.

2. Sweet clover (second year) pasture as much as needed and cut balance for hay, getting one or two cuttings and letting go for a seed crop. To be plowed the following spring.

3. Follow sweet clover with cotton and this to be followed by fall seeded oats for winter pasture and grain crop the next spring.

4. After th eoats are harvested a crop of hegari can be matured, and after that is narvested the ground should be manured and fall plowed.

5. Barley should be seeded in this field just as early as possible in the spring. After it is harvested, the ground should be prepared for a fall seeding of alfalfa, using barley as a nurse crop.

With this arrangements of crops there should be 46 1-2 acres plowed each year—15 1-2 edch in the spring, summer and winter. In addition, Field 5 should be disked and harrowed in the summer to keep down weeds and prepare the seedbed for the alfalfa in the fall. The work of seeding the various crops would be scattered over the season, so that each crop could be given the proper care at planting time. The irrigation of the crops would also be scattered throughout the season, so that no crop would need to suffer for water. And enough feed would be provided to take care of livestock that would furnish profitable labor through the winter months.

The Vanquished Vampire By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

THE vogue of Matabelle Dion dated back to the early days of motion pictures. She was one of the first of the famous vamps. Long before her type of vamp had even begun to go out of style, so to speak, Matabelle's vogue had reached its peak.

She had a wicked black curl which she wore like an inverted question mark down over the center of her white brow. Straight, alluring eyebrows. Long, sinuous, slightly curving figure. Lips which held a red rose between, with an audacious kind of abandon. Flexible hips that she could throw about and wind to great effect in her big scenes, and great, "soulful" black wells of eyes which the camera took a special delight in photographing enormously enlarged and then moving them up toward the audience until thrills ran down backs.

Matabelle had her day. The fashion in vamps changed. And with it Matabelle's fortunes.

There followed the usual gradual decline of the first years of a star's eclipse. Managers no longer sought Matabelle. She sought them. Matabelle no longer made her terms. Managers made theirs. Younger and better and more subtle vamps! The flapper began to crowd her more voluptuous sister off the silver screen. The vogue for "the rag, the bone and the hank of hair" type paled, then died.

Matabelle Dion's name lost its trade value. Small companies began to undertake her pictures. Second-rate directors made second-rate success.

In other words, Matabelle was finished.

It was particularly bitter to Matabelle, who by nature loved adulation. Born Bertha Nagel, of Fort Smith, Arkansas, the triumph of returning famed and fortunate to her native town was one that had gone deeply under Matabelle's skin. She loved it. The lionizing. The excitement. The publicity, to say nothing of the rewards.

For eight years Matabelle fought off her decline. Refused to admit or recognize or reconcile herself toward it.

At heart Bertha Nagel thought of herself as Matabelle Dion the vamp. She cast off the reality of Bertha as a snake casts its skin. She became Matabelle. On the screen, as well as off, Matabelle affected the upside down curl, the long slitted eye lids, the olive pallor, the vermillion lips of the person she fancied herself to be.

Producers began to wink at one another about her. As one of the cruder ones put it, even at the height of her career, Matabelle had never had "it". His crude way of expressing her lack of appeal for the stage door dandies.

That was true enough. Even in her vogue, Matabelle had been a woman's woman. Her fan letters came from girls who enjoyed, through her, their own vicarious longings to lure and charm and reign over men's hearts. The women who beheld Matabelle, believed that hers were the kind of charms to which men succumb. Men seldom wrote her fan letters.

Men paid her casual compliments, one or two of them danced mild attendance, but for some reason Matabelle was not what you would call a man's woman.

And she craved to be that. With all the normal desires of a normal girl, Matabelle desired to love and be loved. While the rage for her lasted, there was little time to bemoan the fact that as a famous vampire Matabelle was pretty much of a wall flower in private life.

But as the years began to march along and Matabelle's fame to decline there crept in an aching loneliness for the things that she had missed. Matabelle wanted to be loved. Matabelle wanted to charm men with the qualities that she had so successfully exhibited on the screen over the period of the years of her ascendancy.

Then there set in the deadly lull when she was forced to admit to herself that as a motion picture asset she was "finished". And with it there leaped over Matabelle the consciousness that somehow she must bridge the dreadful gap. She must fill her life. She must have lovers. And to that purpose she set desperately about it. On the last few thousand dollars of the fruits of her better years, she furnished an apartment in the expensive east sixties of New York and set about the business of "filling her life."

Matabelle reached the day when managers no longer sought her. The fashion in vamps had changed. And Matabelle, who had spent the years of her success playing vamp on the screen—Matabelle, who by nature loved adulation—decided to vamp in real life.

That part of it was easy enough after a fashion. There were always men and women of the fringe of the "art set" willing to partake of her time and hospitality.

But after six months of a life that drained her resources, Matabelle realized that practically all her relationships with the various of the parasitical young men who filled her little third-rate salon were of the maternal sort. Young fellows brought her their love affairs. Let Matabelle attire herself in one of her carefully designed majenta gowns, with a jet comb flaring in her hair and her lips their majenta richest, and nine chances out of ten her guest of the evening would end by reciting the pangs of his current love affair to her.

As a vamp in real life, Matabelle could scarcely have been called a success. She presented all the externals of attire and even of manner, but somehow her credentials did not get by, even with the kind of youth she was able to attract to her apartment.

They apparently suspected that Matabelle was not capable of "going through" with the game she so yearned to play. They would go so far as to borrow money, but at that point, after Matabelle's first refusal to repeat a loan, the relationship would peter out.

One cold day, Matabelle awoke to the fact that she was financially drained. Practically penniless except for a hundred or two, a few personal possessions. the furniture of her apartment, her furs and some jewelry. After the debts were paid, all that remained was less than a hundred.

Matabelle was frightened. Forty, her beauty rather haggard from the years of strain, and some of that fear showing in her eyes, it was not going to be easy for Matabelle.

Indeed it was not. The theatre turned its back on her. The motion picture studios dared not offer her "extra" work and refused her anything more tempting. Artists turned her away. Vamps of her type were as passe as bustles.

Of course there were the cheap stock companies. Matabelle made the rounds of the agents who book for such work. After all, in her heart she still yearned to play vamp, and even if they sent her to some small provincial town there might be the opportunity to bring her work, through that medium, to the attention of the bigger managers later.

Matabelle yearned to play vamp. She felt sure that given the opportunity on the speaking stage, where the too cruel camera could not show up the lines, she could capture from that medium some of the old success that had been hers.

After all, no one knew so well as Matabelle the psychology of the vamp as related to the public. Scorn the vampire they might, but at heart they admired and dreaded and feared and adored her.

Matabelle wanted to be admired and dreaded and feared and adored.

But it turned out that the agencies that booked for the minor stock companies of the minor towns were no more impressed by Matabelle's possibilities than the larger fry had been.

There were days when Matabelle allowed herself only one meal and that an Automat one. Her fur coat and her last bit of jewelry gone, it became necessary finally for Matabelle to face the bitter fact that she must take what she could get and what she could get, apparently, lay far outside her chosen field. The theatre and the screen had consistently turned their backs on her.

Then began the perusal of the Want Ad columns, so bitterly humiliating to Matabelle that she could scarcely see the print through the hot blur of tears.

But in the end it meant tramping. Going the rounds of the city streets as so many thousands do daily. Applying at all sorts of doors and offices. Enduring the running gaze of prospective employers and trying satisfactorily to pass muster and their volley of all too prying questions.

For ten days Matabelle tramped the city streets, afraid to return to her room until after her landlady was apt to be abed, for fear of curt reminder of her mounting arrears in rent.

By this time, there was little of Matabelle's old discrimination left. Saleslady. Office girl. Waitress. Anything. She tried one after another, devoting a day to each. Then as her panic mounted: Servant girl. Dish washer. Charwoman. Nursegirl.

It was in search of this last role that she accidentally stumbled upon the one profession that seemed to hold out open arms to her.

The matron of a home for tubercular children had advertised for a girl "congenial to children." Bewildered with the days on end of search, hungry, tired, ready to be hysterical, Matabelle stumbled into the presence of this woman, who was standing in the center of a large nursery, directing the activities of about forty wan little girls.

When Matabelle walked in among them about five, then six, then practically the entire group of youngsters clamored around her, beating their little hands to claim her attention.

In all of her experience, the matron afterwards explained, she had never seen anything quite like it. The capitulation of those children to a quality in Matabelle that was sympathetic to them.

She is gray-haired now, and the matron of that institution herself. An efficient, kindly, angel-of-mercy who looks back on the vampire days with a curious mixture of humor and horror.

How the "Radio Detective" Gives the "Third Degree"

POKER-FACED criminals can no longer conceal a guilty conscience and baffle police officials by an apparently straightforward manner. Today the crime suspect is put through the "third degree" in a highly refined, scientific and successful manner. To replace the old-time brutal method of eliciting confessions, science is offering what has been nicknamed the "psychological third degree." Tests devised by modern psychologists and designed to trap the suspect into unwary or unconscious admissions of guilt, are applied to everyone under examination, even to witnesses not suspected of actual complicity. Electric apparatus is used largely in these new tests.

When the suspect submits to the latest of these electrical and radio devices for testing the emotions coupled with a psychological quizz, he is virtually certain to reveal secrets which he may be trying to hide. If he is a person with normal reactions, his mental processes, no matter how strong his self-control, will affect the involuntary physical functions, such as heart action and respiration, in such a way that their changes will be registered by the super-sensitive machines, according to Dr. Adolf P. Link, professor of psychology at New York University, who recently gave a demonstration of the latest scientific method of administering the "third degree" before the New York Electrical Society.

How Dr. Link made use of radio methods in connection with the demonstration of his tests is described in Popular Radio by Thomas Elway. One of the things tested was the heart-beat of the subjects.

It is well known to physiologists that excitement of any kind will increase the rate of the heart-beats. If a heart-beat recorder is attached to the subject while questions are being asked, any especial excitement touching on guilty knowledge is apt to be indicated by a sudden quickening of the heart-beat.

Dr. Link made audible the heart-beats of the three suspected criminals by what is essentially a radio device, the electrical stethoscope.

"One of the important practical difficulties with the psychological third degree as demonstrated by Dr. Link is the fact that it requires the knowledge and co-operation of the subject," says Mr. Elway. "If a suspected person refuses to submit to the psychological tests most courts will support him in this refusal. Furthermore, it is possible for a person having advance warning of the nature of the tests to control, in some degree at least, the responses which his body makes. There exist, for example, individuals who are able at will to quicken or retard the beating of their hearts. It is a great need of criminalogic practice to find some method by which the electro-physical tests may be applied to witnesses absolutely without the knowledge of the person being tested.

"Suppose, for example, that you could have in the office of the district attorney an ordinary looking office chair. A person whom the officers wish to question is received pleasantly and is ushered to the comfortable seat. Questions are asked and answers given, as they might be in any casual conversation in a business office. There is no appearance that anything special is going on or that any psychological tests are being given. The victim, seated comfortably in this treacherous chair, is the last person to suspect that he is being subjected, invisibly and unconsciously, to a scientific third degree."

Since one of the characteristics of radio is that it will work invisibly and at a distance, Mr. Elway believes that the electrical third degree can be modified so that it becomes an invisible and unconscious process, a "radio third degree."

"For the recording of the heart-beat, for example, it would be possible to place some kind of sensitive microphone, safely concealed, inside the structure of the imagined witness chair," he says. "Communication between this microphone and some recorder or loudspeaker in another room would be a problem simple enough for any experienced radio engineer. The only apparent difficulty in such a device is the fact that the microphone concealed inside the furniture would probably pick up a great deal of accidental noise in addition to the sounds of the heart-beat. If the witness moved in his chair, rubbing a woolen overcoat against the wood above the microphone, the recorder might indicate that the heart had exploded. There exist, however, so many modern methods of introducing audio-frequency filters to select certain sounds and to exclude others that a practical solution of listening thus to the heart-beat of an unsuspecting witness seems by no means an improbability."

Another point upon which the psychologists lay great stress in giving the electrical third degree is the exact timing of the interval which elapses between the asking of a question and the instant when the witness begins his reply. Hesitation is interpreted as suggesting, if not proving, some attempt to conceal the true answer.

Mr. Elway says, that it is obvious that this is a job for radio apparatus. A concealed microphone, placed conveniently anywhere, would operate a time-recording chronograph much more accurately than any other known device."

To Plant Trees with Kites

TESTS which were originated by the Pacific Northwest Forest Experiment Station at Portland and carried out by the United States Forestry Service in co-operation with forestry officials of British Columbia, so that the results could be applied on both sides of the international line, disclosed the fact that a single tree left standing could distribute its seed as far as 3,500 feet away in a twenty-three-mile wind.

The apparatus used, as described in Popular Mechanics, included a bat-winged box-kite, capable of lifting fifty pounds in a fairly strong wind. The kite was let out from a reel of fine steel piano wire, and carried aloft. Attached to its tail was a homemade weather-vane to show the wind direction and a wind-guage to record its speed. An oatmeal carton, hung upside down beneath the kite, carried the seeds, the cover being fastened with fine thread. A stout fishing line was arranged to break the thread and release the seed, the line being played out from an ordinary fisherman's reel. Besides the seed, the box contained a lead weight, attached to a cloth streamer, so that it would drop to the ground directly under the box at the moment the seeds were released, and furnish a marker from which to measure the distance to the finds.

In operation, the kite was let out, and the fishline, marked with tabs at twenty-five-foot intervals, was fed out at the same time. When the tabs indicated the seed box was 200 feet above ground, the height of an average tree, the reel brake was applied, the taut line broke the light thread on the box cover, and the seeds were whisked away by the wind.

Seed counts were made every hundred feet down wind from the point of release, all the seeds recovered in the space inclosed in a four-foot-square frame being counted. The tests revealed that the shape of the seed had more influence than either size or weight. Light western hemlock seed and the comparatively heavy western white pine seeds made the best distance records, about 4,000 feet. Besides these two varieties, seeds of the western red cedar, Douglas fir, western yellow pine and the noble fir were used—six different varieties in all.

At the start of the tests, the forestry experts believed the wind might blow the seeds from 200 to 300 feet. In a six-and-a-half-mile wind, however, seeds were found as far as 1,800 feet away. None of the seed fell within 150 feet of the point of release, but it was discovered that the number that came down at the 150-foot mark, dropping out of the race at the start, was about the same as the number that flew 3,500 feet. Another peculiarity found was that the seeds, instead of covering a fan-shaped area, as had been expected, were distributed in an almost straight path. While the experiment showed that a kite might be used to reseed large areas, the real purpose was to obtain information to guide lumbermen in leaving occasional trees to accomplish natural reforestration. As the prevailing winds at seed-dropping time are known, it will be possible to space the trees left so that their seeds may be expected to cover the entire area.

WATCHES Set by a Giant SUN-DIAL

The Great Sun-Dial in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, Is Mounted on the Back of the Image of a Turtoise to Suggest the Idea that Time Crawls Rather Than Flies.

ON the top of a massive stone column erected in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, as a memorial in honor of the first three Spaniards who, in the sixteenth century, set foot upon the site of the Pacific Coast city, is set a huge sun-dial, by which many San Franciscans are accustomed to set their watches. The sun-dial rests upon a tortoise, suggesting that time crawls, rather than flies.

The sun-dial is believed to have been invented by the ancient Arabians, who, many centuries before the birth of Christ, were skilled in astronomy. They gave to many of the stars the names which they still retain.

In the Imperial Observatory at Peking is a sun-dial over four feet in diameter. But the Chinese had no thought of such a contrivance until it was introduced in that country in an early century of the Chinese era.

Nevertheless, sun-dials are today in more common use among the Chinese than anywhere else in the world, and for many centuries a family named Wang had the exclusive manufacturing right for pocket compasses with which sun-dials are combined, a thread attached to the lid of the device serving to throw the shadow.

Needless to say, the reckoning of time by solar shadows must be as old as man himself. The ancient Egyptians established the calendar of the year by observation of the shadows cast by pyramids, and the prehistoric Peruvians employed for the same purpose the shadows thrown by columns, thereby determining, with the aid of mathematical calculation, the dates of the solstices and equinoxes.

Why Hogs Are Tattooed

HOGS are now being tatooed—not for identification while alive, but for identifying the carcasses of diseased animals after slaughter. F. E. Murray, Associate Veterinarian of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, describes the method in a recent bulletin. A home-made device with which the hog is struck for the purpose of introducing pigment in a prepared design under the skin is all that is required to do the work.

In dealing with hog cholera and other diseases that spread rapidly, much of the success of control work depends on promptness in finding the centers of infection. The tattoo method of marking hogs for immediate slaughter is especially well adapted for establishing the origin of different lots.

PLATINUM, the Super-Precious Metal

HAD the ancient Egyptians made their jewelry of platinum, the art treasures in their four-thousand-year-old tombs would have retained their original beauty unimpared, according to metallurgists. It is only within the past thirty years that jewelers and others learned to employ platinum, which has become indispensable. Nowhere in the world is platinum consumed in such quantities as in the United States, where the importation last year exceeded $10,000,000.

The search for a metal more valuable than gold is naturally an exciting sport. Platinum "rushes" have already taken the place of the famous gold "rushes" of the past. Lucky miners have picked up a single nugget worth as much as $35,000. In the past few years valuable platinum mines have been discovered in South Africa. Miners are searching the world over for traces of this super-precious metal.

Platinum is found mixed with other metals in many kinds of rock and earth and requires most skilful handling to reveal its beauty. On being separated and refined, platinum has a curious sponge-like appearance and can be readily crushed in the hand. It is exceedingly heavy. It is pressed into round cakes about an inch thick and four inches in diameter. Incidentally, a single cake is worth three to four thousand dollars.

The wonderful beauty of the metal is gradually revealed as the refining process proceeds. In its natural soft, spongy form, the platinum would, of course, be useless. By mixing it with a small percentage of iridium it becomes one of the most beautiful of all metals.

The next step in the preparation of platinum for commercial use is the rolling of the cakes or slabs into sheets, from which is blanked a great variety of forms and sizes to suit the needs of the jewelry and other industries. Platinum is also drawn into the very finest of wire.

The surprising thing about this super-metal is its weight. A bar of platinum four inches wide, one-half inch thick and a foot long, such as could be slipped into one's pocket, weighs thirty pounds, and is worth about $30,000.

The Seventeen-Year LOCUSTS Are COMING!

SEVENTEEN-YEAR locusts," those Methuselahs of the insect world, are again scheduled to make their appearance in various parts of the United States, as shown on the accompanying map. No less than thirty broods of this spectacular species have been tabulated by Government and State entomologists who have located them, studied their activities and checked up on their time of appearance over periods of many years. Persons living in the areas indicated should be on the watch for them in suitable situations.

Celebrated on account of the regularity of their appearance in certain localities every seventeen years in the Middle and Northern States, and every thirteen years in the Southern States, locusts excite wonder and speculation. They do not appear simultaneously over the whole country, but a brood that has colonized a certain district or area will appear periodically every seventeen or thirteen years. Countless thousands will swarm over this territory for a short time and then vanish.

The mystery of all this is explained in Nature Magazine by A. B. Champlain and H. B. Kirk, two investigators who sketch the following hasty portrait of the locust:

"It measures about one and one-half inches long, has a dark-colored body and an abdomen banded with orange. Like all insects, it has six legs with which to walk about and is among the number that possess four wings, two on each side. The wings are shiny and transparent, with orange-colored veins at the base and front margins that blend into brown as they grow smaller. Brown markings that resemble the letter 'W,' if your imagination is good, may be seen on each front wing. This is interpreted by the superstitious as a forecast of war.

"Meeting our cicada face to face, we note the wide forehead with prominent bright red eyes that stand out on each side of the head, a character that gives it the additional name of 'red-eyed cicada.' Our cicada has no jaws but takes its food with a slender reddish colored beak used for piercing the plant tissue and sucking out the juices. If their visits were annual this sap-sucking habit would no doubt cause noticeable damage to trees and plants; fortunately they are not, and no visible injury is apparent.

"A further point of interest is the sound-producing organ, an elaborate drum-like apparatus on the under side of the thorax and abdomen of the males, who alone are capable of producing the loud noise or song. Odd as it may seem, no real season can be assigned for this phenomenon. The males may 'shrill' their chorus, sing their 'Pharaoh' song or squawk their alarms, but according to all investigators the females, lacking ears, do not hear and apparently pay no attention to the noisy chatter of their mates.

"Females of the species, however, do play a part in the economy of our civilization as destructive agents. After mating they are most naturally interested in egg-laying, which in this instance is the cause of all the trouble. First, they cut a series of slits or punctures with their powerful egg-laying apparatus or ovipositor in the twigs of various trees or plants. It is in these slits which have been formed into smooth chambers that the eggs are arranged in neat longitudinal rows. It is easy to be seen that a number of such punctures or slits in twigs will greatly weaken them. This is exactly what happens, the wind and weather will break them at this point and then they hang, brown and dry, to disfigure the landscape as well as to cause injury to the plant.

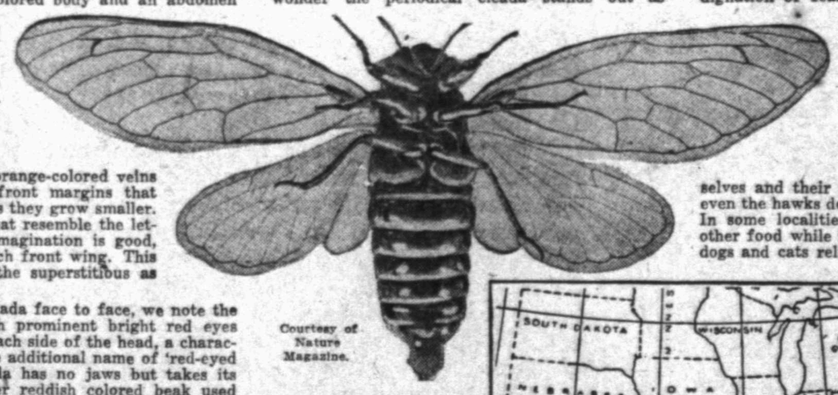

"Returning to the egg question, we learn that it requires six weeks or more for them to develop to the hatching point, which takes place during the middle or latter part of July. The young cicadas or nymphs, upon emerging from the eggs drop from the trees and hide themselves in cracks in the soil. At this time they look very much like fleas, but they are furnished with spiny legs and large strong thighs which are capital instruments for digging. Working their way into the earth they often attain a depth of a foot or eighteen inches below the surface and here they live their long underground life. No wonder the periodical cicada stands out as unique among the insect tribes, sixteen years from egg to adult, toiling away in its subterranean burrows below the surface of the earth and sucking the sap from the small roots that grow in their neighborhood for sustenance.

"Changing their clothes every two or three years, which in this instance means shedding their old skin, the young cicadas grow slowly but surely as the years roll by. Finally, when the Spring of the seventeenth year is at hand, our cicadas, now in the pupal stage, are ready for their next adventure.

"When Maytime gives her magic signal, up they come, hiding for a while beneath the surface of the soil under stones and sticks. Another Springtime call and out they come in countless swarms, crawling up the trunks, fence posts or any object that happens to be in their path while the ground is covered with the round holes from which they have emerged."

Regarding the "danger" of handling locusts, "as their sting is poisonous and deadly," these two authorities say that they have demonstrated the fallacy of this supposition, which is general in many places, by handling them without harmful results. "All the locusts could do was to flutter their wings in protest, or if the specimen happened to be a male, let out a squawk of indignation or fear that would be somewhat disconcerting to the uninitiated.

"A locust year is a time of feasting for a surprising array of creatures. Besides the various small insectivorous birds that may now forego their normal constant quest for tiny game in the face of this unwonted abundance, a host of others now prey on the restless hosts. Crows gorge themselves and their nestlings with the cicadas, and even the hawks deign to glean from the branches. In some localities domestic fowl scarcely need other food while this supply holds out, and even dogs and cats relish the tasty morsels."

How Science, Not Sport, Will Choose Our Future Champs

If the "Ability" Measuring" Device of Dr. Thooris, French Scientist, Is Widely Applied to American Athletes, There Will Probably Be a Big Increase in Girl Boxers.

Ida Schnall, "World's Greatest All-Round Woman Athlete," Here Shown at Bat on the Diamond. The Thooris Machine Will Probably Demolish What Remains of the Old Distinctions Between the Sexes in Sport.

EVERY American boy, and many a girl, too, has had youthful ambitions to be a champion in some sort of sport. There is no evading such a condition in America. The glamor that the American public throws around athletic greatness guarantees it.

Out of the millions of persons with such ambitions only a few have been successful. Yet many American youths have been as well endowed, without achieving success, as their brothers who became popular idols and either made a great deal of money or filled half a dozen spare rooms with personal trophies.

Of course, the unsuccessful lived out their lives, or the adolescent periods of their lives, in a great disappointment and in attempting to solve the riddle of why their muscles, as fine as the other fellow's, didn't carry them to the peak as the champion's had done.

The answer is that they were in the wrong line—and to supplement the answer comes the French scientist, Dr. A. Thooris, with an invention which will eliminate these errors in the future and give every ambitious lad an opportunity to excel in some field of sport—and that especial field for which he is peculiarly equipped.

The invention, says Dr. Thooris, will determine accurately whether a person is better fitted for prize-fighting or swimming, for football or croquet, for golf or medicine ball. In so doing, it will enable the youth of the land to divert their athletic energies into channels that will yield the best results, and will abate to a large extent the general disappointment of failure.

Already his device is being called into use in an effort to find capable material for the French Olympic team of next year, and the scientist believes he will, before next Summer rolls around, furnish the coaches with made-to-order material along those lines of athletic endeavor in which the French have been glaringly weak.

The device is not complicated, Dr. Thooris says. But he refuses to divulge all of its secrets, saying only that it consists of a series of tests, all recorded on a chart and catalogued, by means of which the respiratory, muscular, cerebral and digestive developments are determined.

When the respiratory development is found to be greatest, the subject in all likelihood will be recommended to take part in events in which endurance is a prime requisite.

If his development shows a heavy leaning toward the muscular, he will be assigned to such events as require great strength, but less endurance, like shot-putting or weight-throwing.

Instances of athletes who have selected the wrong metier are not uncommon. A few years ago Harvard University had a great fullback, one of the finest of all time. His name was George Owen, and he seemed to typify all that is considered great in a football player—speed, power, aggressiveness, competitive spirit. Yet off the field he could not be drawn into a discussion of the game, and eventually it developed that he abhorred the sport and played it only because he felt it his duty to his alma mater. On the other hand, he had tremendous enthusiasm for at least one other sport, hockey, but he was neither great nor even ordinarily skilful at this game of his choice.

Mary K. Browne, whose name has been much in the news in recent months, was a great tennis player. Three times she won the national championship for women and in many other tournaments finished in second or third position. She was a tennis player for years and then she took up golf. Within a year she was a star and, four years after beginning play, was a finalist in the National Women's Championship Tournament, a truly remarkable feat, when it is considered that great golfers must learn the game in childhood and undergo a long period of development and perfection of timing and stroke before they can become even first flight "club players."

The moral is that Mary Browne, taking up the highly specialized and tremendously scientific game of golf when past the age of thirty, discovered what Dr. Thooris, had he perfected his invention then, could have told her years before, namely, that she was equipped to become the greatest woman golf player of all time—for there are few who doubt that she would have been.

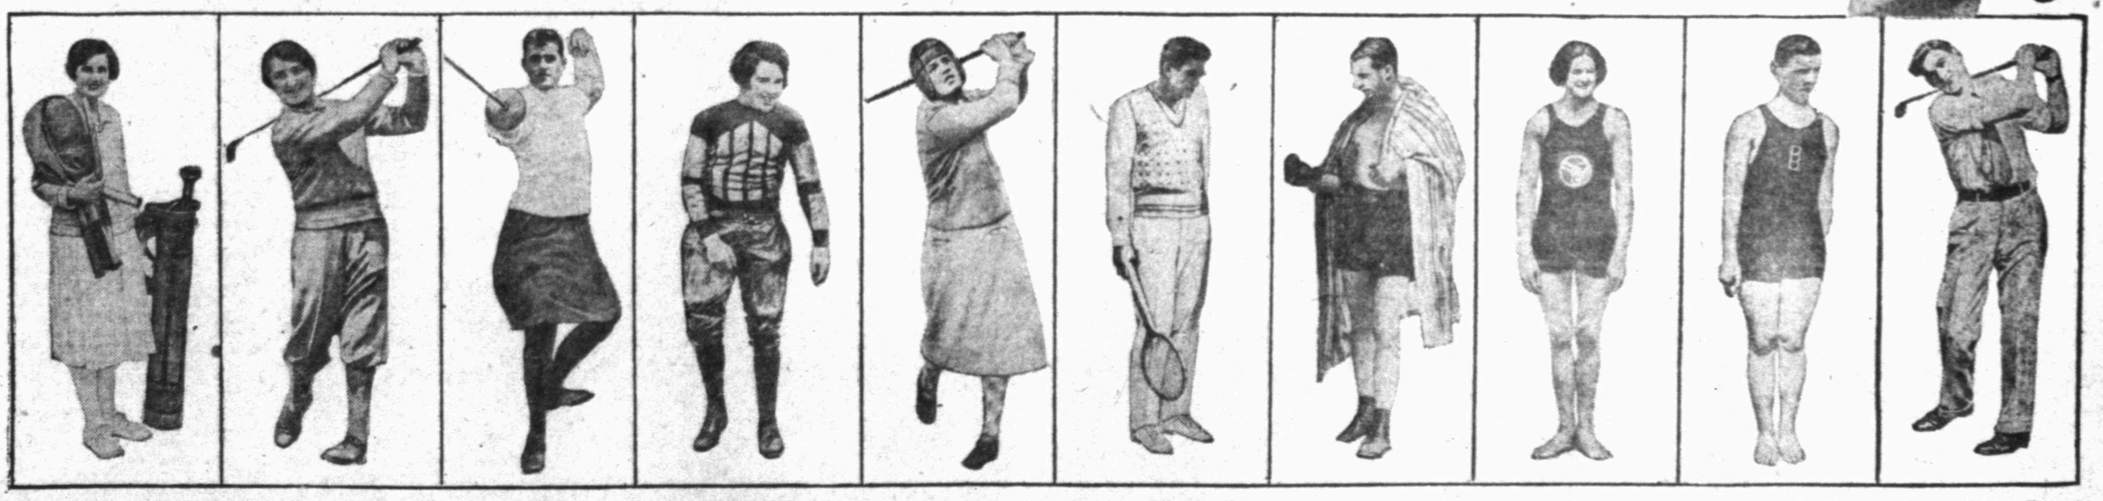

Lloyd Hahn, greatest American middle-distance star, might have been as great or greater than the invincible Nurmi had there been some such device as the Thooris machine in Falls City, Neb., where he began his career. He started as a sprinter and held to that specialty for years. Then he became a middle-distance runner, specializing in the quarter and half miles.

In the half he was regarded as a star; but it was not until he took to mile running that he developed into an athletic marvel and began to shatter world's records. But he developed so much later than he should have that it affected his style, which is unorthodox and labored. Had he been a mile runner in his boyhood he would have had an opportunity to become the greatest in athletic history.

It is to avoid disasters such as the Mary Browne and Lloyd Hahn mistakes that Dr. Thooris has perfected his instruments "for the glory of France." Not only will these machines enable him to pick out champions from the masses who aspire, but through them he can discover and regulate physical respiratory impediments, thus removing many more obstacles from the path of his "synthetic champions."

"Beautifying" Girls Tried as Killers to Win Juries

"SHERIFF, may I get out of jail?"
"Yes, my pretty slayer—
"But first you'll have to use your brain,
"And dress a little gayer."

IT isn't always the easiest thing in the world for a woman, and particularly a woman who is known to be handy with firearms or sash-weights, to win one man, but when it becomes necessary to win twelve with all the odds against her—well, there's a problem.

No wonder, then, that the art of dressing women 'accused of murder' for their trials and for their mental conquests of the twelve good men and true who will be called upon to judge them has taken a definite place in legal circles, and ranks in importance second only to alienists, according to the accused slayer's counsel.

In one Chicago couturier's smart little shop, which believes in keeping just one jump ahead of the game, there is a special department with "experts" employed for the express purpose of dressing the female slayers of the commonwealth for their court appearances. One designer gives her entire time to the shop's incarcerated and indicted clientele.

When Ruth Brown Snyder was preparing for her trial a few weeks ago—a trial which ended in a death sentence for her—her lawyers insisted that the closest attention be paid to her costuming. She was a good-looking woman and her counsel was overlooking no opportunities to further her case.

When Beulah Marie Annan, of Chicago, was facing trial on a murder charge, a fashion expert and one of her high-priced lawyers sat up the greater part of the night before the trial opening to design her costume. Psychologists say this amazing costume—so perfect in detail—helped Beulah Annan to walk out of the court room a free woman.

Olivia Stone, of Long Island, a few years ago, went both of these women one better. When the day of the trial's opening arrived, she found she had no garb which she believed appropriate. She refused to leave the jail and her attorneys obtained a delay until she could be fittingly dressed. She was finally acquitted of the murder of Guy Kinkhead, Cincinnati attorney, even though the jury had been compelled to wait for her.

The problem, on the face of it, may appear simple, but such is not the case. There are many circumstances to be considered—circumstances that only the combined alertness of the fashion expert and the alert lawyer can hope to solve fully and successfully. Current fashions, psychology, prison pallor, family conditions, locale—all these things must be considered when a lady prisoner is being outfitted.

Despite Her Clothes, Which Proclaimed Her a Respectable Person of High Principles, Lillian Raizen Failed to Convince a Jury of Her Innocence.

In the first place, the costume must be consistent with the defense employed. It must create a sympathetic background in the juror's mind. It must dissipate any possible hint of wickedness and accentuate the woman's good qualities. The defendant may be set forth as a simple soul, whirled into her predicament by the subtle thrill-urge of a jazz-crazed age. If so, the costume must be extremely plain, even showing traces of wear. That her bewilderment may be the better exemplified, a haphazard note may be introduced, but not so definitely as to detract from the defendant's natural charm.

Perhaps the crime is denied in its entirety. Perhaps the defendant is proving an alibi. Then she must appear above and beyond evil, above impetuosity, above the sort of emotional outbursts that might sweep her into such an act. Her dress must radiate respectability, dignity, poise. There must be minute attention to detail. There must be the note of the gentlewoman in every line. Once this is established it is exceedingly difficult to destroy the impression in the minds of jurors.

Then there is the innocent, wide-eyed little girl, the child slayer who has slipped into a maelstrom of love and wine and too much liberty all unknown to herself. Mad dancing, late hours, the struggle for the evanescent enjoyments of youth—the inability of youth to recognize the line of demarcation where gaiety ends and vice begins. The end of this is one mad hour, and then the shadow of death and the law. She is a little girl and as a little girl she must be dressed. A little girl who owned no weapons to fight the world and the devil—a girl who could not save herself.

Then there is the woman who is intelligent, educated, capable of many fine and noble things—a woman who would grace any society and who would add much to any home, but who has been swept into trouble by an emotion that, while righteous and sincere, is so overpowering as to blind her to all other things. A dash of color here, a soft line there, a show of faultless texture somewhere else—and, above all, the emphasis of the woman's beauty, and the jury will, nine times out of ten, conclude that one so full of the ennobling things of life could do no wrong.

The woman who has slain her husband is in a delicate position. The question of mourning becomes a vital one. If she denies all, then mourning is "correct." But if she admits the deed and seeks to establish justification, then mourning most assuredly would not be in keeping with her defense, for she must have hated and feared him or she would not have "done him up." But black is an excellent thing for a courtroom. It softens the looks of the accused and may engender sympathy in a juror's heart.

When Mrs. Ruth Snyder appeared in court with Henry Judd Gray to face trial on the charge of having beaten her husband to death with a sashweight, few knew that her lawyers, several designers, and Mrs. Snyder herself, had spent many, many hours, in designing the simple black costume she wore. The clinging black chiffon dress, the long, black novelty weave coat, with the fur collar, and the little cloche hat—later abandoned—appeared very simple and in the finest of taste to all who beheld, but there were weary hours of toil hidden behind it all.

The costume, on the whole, suggested a very pretty and highly respectable suburban wife and mother. The skirt was of modest length, and the dress, in toto, of careful cut. The sheer black silk stockings were extremely plain, with no fancy heels. But there was another note. Mrs. Snyder's underthings were selected with the idea of giving this simple dress the lines that would make highly apparent her seductive beauty.

Paulette Saludes, pretty Frenchwoman, made the mistake of trusting to flashy, seductive clothes to win her freedom when she was charged with the slaying of Oscar Martelliere. She erred, experts declared, in not harmonizing her costumes with the defense offered. She was found guilty.

When pretty Billy Wells went on trial accused of slaying her sweetheart, James S. Pettit, a Massapequa inkeeper, she was dressed in a simple tailored suit with a fluffy white collar to soften her face. A pert little silver-brocaded hat trimmed with monkey fur, and spotless white gloves completed the costume. She formed a picture that the jury could not resist. She went free.

While it is not an unbreakable law that the woman who is properly dressed is practically free when facing a murder charge, the efficacy of clothes as a defense, among accused women, has become so generally recognized that law schools in 1945 may find it necessary to add a course in designing to their curricula.

RUTH'S SARTORIAL SCHEME.

(Analyzed by Verna Mason, Fashion Expert.)

(A)—Indicates the chic black hat which Ruth Snyder wore during her trial. The turban-type close-fitting hat was most becoming to her, and its choice revealed discrimination and quiet taste.

(B)—Long strings of beads are very popular this Spring. Pearls are more popular than jet. Ruth probably knew that, but she also knew that for her purpose jet would be far more appropriate as a quiet ornamental accessory.

(E)—and (F)—Show Ruth's shoes and stockings, most appropriately chosen to finish the perfect ensemble. Black sheer hose, without clocks or ornamental heels, and black patent leather colonial pumps.

How to Make a Buzzing Bee

MOST boys and girls like to learn how to imitate the cries of animals and the sounds made by insects. A very simple device that can be made to give out a sound like that of a buzzing bee will afford lots of amusement.

To make the "buzzing bee," first get a piece of wood six inches long and three inches wide. Three-ply wood is very satisfactory. The other things you will need are one or two strong and wide rubber bands that will fit tightly over the edges of the wood and a piece of strong string three feet long.

Cut the wood into the shape shown in the drawing and bore a hole in one end of it. Now stretch the rubber bands around it. Next tie one end of the string through the hole in the wood.

When you hold the string at the other end and whirl the piece of wood rapidly around your head the action of the wind on the stretched rubber bands will cause the device to emit a sound like that of a buzzing bee.

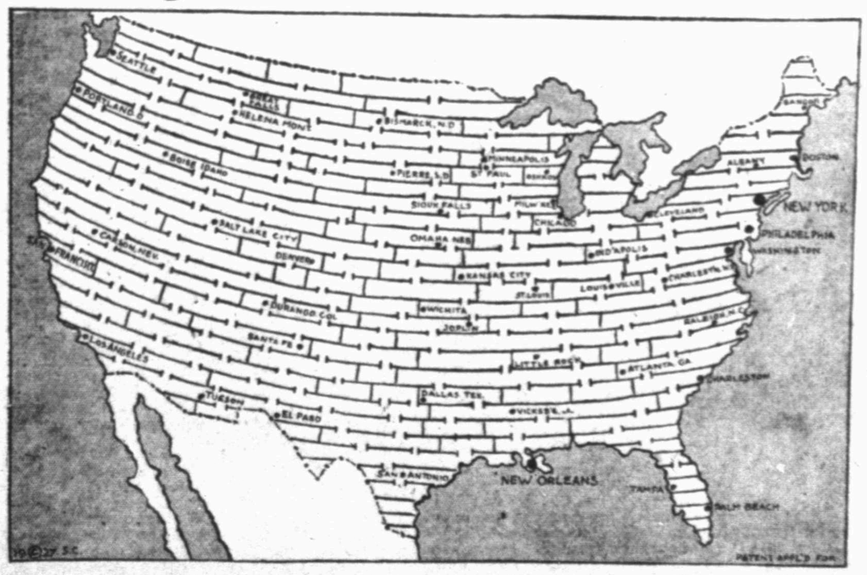

A Clever Catch

HERE is a clever "catch" with which you are sure to find a ready victim.

Tell one of your unsuspecting friends that you can take him into a room and place his finger on his nose so that he cannot get out of the room without taking it off. He will probably think this is impossible. Instruct him to put his arm around one of the legs of the table and then put his finger on his nose. Now he will see that he cannot even move from the table without taking his finger off his nose.

MARGARET LEIGH, "Miss Chicago of 1924," and Joseph Pondelik, University of Chicago football star, were married March 14, it became known yesterday. It was kept secret so as not to "inconvenience Margaret on the campus."

Headlines Tracing the Career of Miss Leigh from the Time of Her Selection as "Miss Chicago" Up to Her Divorce.

Newspaper Clippings Recording Two Important Events in the Hectic Life of the Illinois Venus.

THE first All-American honeymoon is on the rocks, football tactics and marital bliss having failed to blend. The hero of the gridiron and the heroine of the boardwalk have decided that they were not made for each other and simply cannot "click."

A year ago Margaret Leigh, Miss Chicago of 1924, married Joe Pondelik, All-American football player from the University of Chicago. It was a love match. Here, said the wiseacres, was the perfect union, eugenically as well as emotionally and pictorially.

Margaret Leigh was known as a girl with a perfect figure, a beautiful disposition and a remarkably agile mind. Joe Pondelik was a Hercules of a man, marvelously developed physically, a born leader of men, an honor student and a stable, solid type of young American.

So when the marriage was announced after two months of secrecy, the University of Chicago friends of the pair rejoiced, spinsters and bachelors looked on enviously and the parents of the bride and groom emitted a couple of glad hallelujahs.

The "perfect bride" and the "perfect groom" had met, wed and were on their way to show the world the beauty of faultless marriage.

The marriage attracted widespread attention. The name of Joe Pondelik had been on the lips of every follower of college football for two years. He had been the great hero of Chicago's campus, the pride of the Western Conference. Twice football authorities had called him the best in his position—he was a guard.

Margaret Leigh had been selected as Chicago's most beautiful girl from thousands of contestants. She had gone to Atlantic City, and there her beauty had so dazzled the blase judges that she had been selected as one of America's five most beautiful young women at a time when the great beauty contest was drawing the finest in young girl types. Not only did she have physical grace and fine regularity of feature, but she had personality plus.

She had received many theatrical and motion picture offers. But for some strange reason, she declined. Later she entered the University of Chicago and began to be seen at school functions in Joe Pondelik's company. It was not considered strange that she should be seen with the campus hero. Joe apparently had the pick of the co-eds. He was handsome, agreeable, a fine leader—in short, the school's outstanding athlete and personality. Wasn't it natural that this new addition to the Midway's celebrities should gravitate toward the attractive Joe Pondelik? You're right. It was.

But even when Miss Leigh and Pondelik were seen much together, there was little consternation among the other girls who coveted the social favor of the football idol. Joe had boasted that he was a confirmed misogynist. No wedding bells for him. He liked the girls—even felt romantic when the moon was just right and the occasion propitious. But as for marriage—nothing doing. There were years and years ahead in which to think of that.

The same feeling of security was manifested among the young men of the school who coveted Joe's girl. They knew that in due time the fascination of this charmer would wane. They knew Joe intended to travel extensively when he finished school. A Springtime flirtation, they told themselves, and waited at a respectful distance until the beautiful Margaret and the handsome Joe should have lost interest iff each other and cried quits.

Then came the bombshell. Joe Pondelik and Margaret Leigh announced that the name of Margaret Leigh had been assimilated into the name of Pondelik. They had been married for almost three months but no announcement had been made because they did not wish to "embarrass Margaret on the campus."

This was the story behind the start of the honeymoon that has ended in heartbreak for Margaret Leigh and a $1,500 alimony assessment for Joe, not yet sufficiently established in the world of high finance to be able to toss such sums about without some qualms.

Margaret brought suit against Joe before they had been married a year. She charged him with cruelty. She said he struck her, knocked her down, twisted her wrists and otherwise exercised his football instincts upon her. Joe had been known as one of those rare specimens of football linemen called an "instinctive player," and Margaret vouched for that reputation of his in no uncertain terms.

Margaret charged that on September 7, 1926—they had been married in March of the same year—she was struck in the eye by a flying missile and that when she cried out in pain, her All-American husband threw her to the floor and refused either to sympathize with or aid her.

On November 23, two months later, she charged, she received her second object lesson in the type of line play that vanquished Princeton two successive years while Joe Pondelik was a guard on Chicago University's football team. Her husband hurled her against a door, she alleged, and when she rebounded, twisted her arm and bruised her. Two days later she began suit for divorce.

On December 31 of 1926, she said, she went to Springfield, Ill., for a visit and Pondelik followed her. He promised to treat her kindly, and upon his protestations of love and eternal devotion, she agreed to a reconciliation and they started back to Chicago to take up their married life where it had been interrupted and halt the divorce action.

On the return journey, Mrs. Pondelik asserts that she became ill. This forced them to stop at Bloomington, Ill. Her husband became angry at this, she said, and beat her, later threatening dire things if she did not continue the journey. She refused and likewise refused to have anything more to do with him. When she returned to Chicago she submitted additional data as evidence in her divorce charges.

Now she has been granted a divorce and her husband must pay her the sum of $1,500. The court considerately permitted Pondelik to make the payments at the rate of $25 weekly, taking cognizance of the fact that he has just finished his schooling and has had no opportunity to acquire a fortune.

This ended the All-American honeymoon and thus flew out the window all those dreams, of the perfect union and its possible contribution to the cause of eugenics, so fondly envisioned by those who admire this philosophy of mating.

Prior to becoming Miss Chicago of 1924, Miss Leigh had been more or less in the public eye. Since girlhood she had been known as a beauty and likewise had acquired considerable local fame as a horsewoman. At one time she announced her ambition to enter the Kentucky Derby as a special rider, but the managers of the famous Louisville track failed to take kindly to that suggestion. Later she placed several horses in the blue ribbon class in Midwest horse shows, and at one time was on the verge of entering the Follies, there to join a sister who had been a member of the Ziegfeld ensemble for some time.

Shortly after becoming Miss Chicago she made her debut in court procedure when she was arrested on a charge of speeding. It developed that she had persuaded a chauffeur, who was driving her about as a part of the publicity connected with her election, to let her take the wheel, and the resulting speed was a little more than a busy South Shore traffic policeman could bear.

When she appeared in court, the place was crowded and it was almost necessary to remove the hearing to the Coliseum. That contingency was avoided when the magistrate suddenly postponed the case and warned Miss Chicago against taking too many liberties with the susceptibility of Chicago's notoriously alert speed cops.

Considered an unusual beauty among the many girls who assemble each year for the Miss America contests, Miss Leigh also is unusual in that she is the first of the more prominent contestants in Atlantic City's world famous event to become involved in divorce proceedings. Several of the beauty winners and near-winners have married, but to date all have succeeded in eluding the publicity of separation trials.

And it is an odd paradox, too, that of all the marriages that have grown out of this annual event none started with such radiant prospects as that of Margaret Leigh and Joe Pondelik.

Just as surely as Margaret Leigh was regarded as one out of many nationally celebrated beauties who would make a perfect wife for a perfect husband, so was Joe Pondelik regarded as that perfect husband. Not alone for his physical superiorities or his personal magnetism and his unfailing good humor was Joe so regarded. There was something more than that.

In the first place, Joe, as a football player, was one of the type that could be depended upon to be where he was needed when he was most needed. He had intuitive sense about things. He knew what to do and he did it with little fuss and feathers. Where Joe was needed, there Joe was most likely to be found, although there was no fanfare about his getting there.

Another thing, Joe was not one to be out of condition or injured or indisposed. He played as well when his team was losing as when it was winning. He was dependability itself, a veritable rock upon which the great A. A. Stagg, Chicago's veteran coach, built his great lines of that period. Joe never showed up with an ailing back or a sore knee or a toothache, and he never clashed with the faculty over eligibility. The coach might find all his brilliant stars in difficulty over grades, but not Joe Pondelik. As sure as Saturday rolled around Joe rolled around with it in perfect condition, indisputably eligible and primed for efficient play.

By the same token Joe did not become an honor student because of surpassing brilliancy. Here again he was dependability personified. His marks were uniformly good. Joe's professors could determine from month to month, from semester to semester, from year to year, just about what his marks would be. And usually they were reasonably close without so much as re-checking his papers.

Joe started his married life that way. He provided a home, went on the regulation honeymoon, devoted his daytimes to the pursuit of business and conducted himself in the stable, customary manner of his years on the campus. University friends envied Margaret Leigh Pondelik more and more as the weeks rolled by and Joe continued to be the dutiful "perfect" husband to the dutiful, "perfect"—and ravishingly beautiful—wife.

Just when the break came in all this idyllic arrangement, no one seems to know. Mrs. Margaret Leigh Pondelik says the campus hero attitude slipped away from the gridiron Hercules two months after their marriage. Joe became surly, she says, and appeared to resent the monotony of married life. All his dependability had been but a phase, she discovered. He really burned with the desire for freedom in all departments of life.

Four months after their marriage, she says, his craving for personal liberty became a bit too intense for her. There resulted black eyes and twisted wrists for her. His freedom of oral expression was almost as trying, she said. He berated her and, at times, stooped to profanity.

All this was before the incidents she alleges in her divorce petition. They were but preliminaries to the "expressions" that were to come, the demonstrations that were to force her to carry the "perfect marriage" to the divorce court.
