GOVERNOR HAS NOT DECIDED ON THE SESSION

AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—Gov. Miriam Ferguson will decide in a day or so whether she will call a fourth special session of the Texas legislature.

Former Gov. James E. Ferguson said the decision will be made by Saturday and the session, if called, will begin early next week.

Many communications were received regarding it but not enough to determine if it is worth while.

Additional relief funds and lift-house subjects are the two major subjects, she called the session, Ferguson said.

A centennial appropriation and other works may be submitted if their advocates want to co-operate in relief.

"This week the board of control has more than 285,000 families on the relief rolls," Ferguson said. "With a minimum allotment of $20 a month to a family, $5,600,000 a month would be required. The state and viceliquidated the new bond out to secure to not exceed $1,000,000 a month. With federal government vicinity matching funds, $2,500,000 a month is needed."

Our Jurors In Insult Trial Are Selected Today

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Four jurors in the trial of Samuel Insull Sr. and 16 associates on mail fraud charges were selected today. The defense accepted the four, bringing to eight the number qualified.

Defense attorneys questioned each venireman briefly as selection of the jury went forward rapidly.

Dwight H. Green, United States district attorney, said he anticipated completion today of the jury which will listen for months to the story of one of the biggest financial collapses of this depression.

Shorter Work Week Being Advocated By Administration

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Opposition to legislation for a 30-hour work week was indicated today as part of the administration program in the reconstruction of the NRA.

But it was learned on good authority that President Roosevelt is prepared to fight just as hard to make collective bargaining the unquestioned right of all American workers.

While opposing a legislative 30-hour work week, the administration already seems pointing toward all shorter hours. It is believed central that the new NRA be a flexible instrument which it could be if congress fixed the hours of all labor.

Freighter IS MISSING IN STORM AT SEA

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The British freighter Ainderby battled to against an Atlantic storm in the steamship Millpool was being and feared lost with 28 crew.

The Ainderby reported by press, Mackey Radio announced, her bridge was partly washed away and she was unable to leave.

The Ainderby, with 33 aboard, was seen yesterday from a ship off Newfoundland in the northern Atlantic ship-lane. Rescue ships which to the position given by the Millpool found no trace of the vessel.

that reminds me...

War talk involving Russia and Japan or the United States and Japan is giving us something to read about these days. This kind of talk has been going on ever since the close of the World war at short intervals. Whether those who are giving the warning actually hope to see these nations get into war or are just talking is the thing to figure out. We know that Japan doesn't like us and hasn't since the time that Theodore Roosevelt was president, but we're not mad at Japan. We know also that Russia and Japan have no love for each other no more than France and Germany do. In those instances they are both made on both sides and just so long as that exists, which might be for a long time, war is liable to break out any time. Some times the actual nations that are mad at each other and want something started use a round about way to get the opportunity to attack each other, and that's the only chance that the United States has of falling into the trap. Warnings, however, should be given consideration as

HAUPTMANN TO GO ON TRIAL ON OCTOBER 11

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Bruno Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap suspect, will go to trial Oct. 11 in Bronx county court, charged with extorting $50,000 ransom from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, unless New Jersey moves in the meantime to extradite him on more serious charges.

The German carpenter, taken in a surprise move from the county jail for the first time since last Friday, heard Judge James M. Barrett set the trial date over the strenuous objection of his counsel, James M. Fawcett, who asked that the date be made tentative.

"I will be ready for trial on Oct. 11," said District Attorney Samuel Foley, provided some move is not made in New Jersey.

Governor Moore and other New Jersey authorities have announced intention of asking extradition before date of the extortion trial to begin.

They claim their case is strong enough to convict him.

Supreme Court Rules Allred's Name Goes On the Ballot

AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—The state supreme court of Texas today stood as an effective barrier to the attempt to keep James V. Allred off the general election ticket as democratic nominee for governor. A motion filed by Joe Burkett of San Antonio, attorney for three plaintiffs, contesting certification, was overruled by the supreme court on five grounds late yesterday.

A Warning to Merchants

The Texas Centennial Commission has received reports from widely separated portions of the state that various advertising and promotional propositions are being made to business men and chambers of commerce as having the endorsement or sponsorship of the commission.

The Texas Centennial Commission has made only one endorsement—the Official Centennial Map of Texas, sponsored by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, and the descriptive booklet which accompanies the map. All other claims of official endorsement or sponsorship are improperly made.

"It should be understood that the Texas Centennial Commission is not endorsing, sponsoring or authorizing any appeals to chambers of commerce, business men and others, for funds or for the purchase of advertising novelties, badge," Walter Cline, chairman of the executive committee says. "Every such authorized solicitation for public support, or the sale of Centennial literature, programs, souvenirs, etc., will be accompanied by an official authorization which will fully identify the project as being legitimate and worthy of public support."

"We are calling this to your attention in order that there shall be an end to improper efforts now being made to use the Texas Centennial Commission improperly as a means for the promotion of purely private undertakings which have no relationship to the Centennial Commission's program."

Already some have visited this section of the country with schemes which they claim have the Centennial commission backing, or on which they leave such an impression, but none have been able to produce the proper credentials. Others have sent out literature stating that representatives will call in the near future, pointing out that a plan such as theirs will give the locality much publicity over the entire nation.

So far the merchant has been wary of these solicitations, and justly so, because they have been formed upon the belief that the merchant will feel he is doing a patriotic duty to the state and to the Centennial by coming in on the "gyp" proposition.

Green Fit, Gay, Ready for Fray

Smiling and optimistic, but prepared for the battles certain to be waged in the American Federation of Labor annual convention in San Francisco, President William Green is shown here on the conclave scene, where the nation's unions will decide some of the most momentous problems they ever have faced.

Baptist Groups Have Objections To Be Accepted

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—Two technical objections, stood between the two Texas Baptist groups and unification.

These objections were raised at a state-wide mass meeting here by representatives of the Baptist general convention and the Baptist Missionary association.

Inequality of representation among the churches as provided by the new constitution was the chief objection. Others concerned maintenance of institutions, such as schools and hospitals. Both groups expected a settlement before final action is taken at the state meetings this fall.

Labor Continues Fight for Benefits For Working Man

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—While delegates marked time, leaders of the American Federation of Labor forged ahead with definite strokes today a fighting program for a greater share of benefits for the working man.

One of the first of labor's expressions of militancy toward the NRA and its workings will come with action on the resolution demanding an investigation of the labor attitude of S. Clay Williams, chairman of the Reynolds Tobacco company, before he is given an important administrative duty in the new NRA setup.

Among the proposals were resolutions demanding enforcement of the provisions of the national recovery act and greater protection for the collective bargaining rights.

CATTLEMEN OF PANHANDLE IN NEED OF RELIEF

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 3.—Death by starvation of nearly 1,000,000 cattle or virtual bankruptcy of a great number of stockmen was the outlook today of the cattle and sheep industry in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico, unless the government lends a hand this winter.

A United Press survey indicated continuance of the government stock buying program was essential if the industry is to survive the winter.

Statistics gathered from ranchers revealed 901,000 head of cattle must be wintered in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico with about 46,000 tons of locally forage crops available.

Four million sheep face the same problem in New Mexico cattle to the Panhandle, Dr. H. L. Kent, president of the New Mexico A. & M. college, pointed out.

Babe Takes His Final Bow

It was a tragic moment when Babe Ruth, tieless and collar open, walked out of the exit of Griffith Stadium, Washington, after playing the "last game" of his career. Here is the Babe, surrounded by a crowd of men and boys seeking autographs, as he left the field after the Senators administered a 5-3 drubbing to the Yankees.

Referendum for Eastland County Farmers on 1935 Corn-Hog Plan

Corn-hog contract signers in Eastland county will be asked to vote on the 1935 plan of the corn-hog section of the AAA according to word received here by County Agent J. C. Patterson, from E. M. Regenbrecht, extension swine husbandman. The referendum is to be some time in October. Information as given by Patterson was as follows:

"Regenbrecht represented the Texas Extension Service in the AAA meeting held recently in Kansas City, where farmers and representatives from state agricultural colleges from Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas met to make recommendations for the next steps in the corn-hog program. The first question discussed at Kansas City and to be voted on by corn-hog contract signers is whether or not there shall be any sort of adjustment program in this field, Regenbrecht stated.

"The second point to be decided is whether the contract shall deal with corn only or hogs only or be a joint contract as in 1934.

"The third question will ask for preference on the type of contract which they wish to follow the 1935 program. This refers to a possible unified contract for the six basic grains: wheat, corn, rye, barley, grain sorghums and flax. It would represent a shift from several single crop contracts to a broad program of developing better systems of farming through less intensive use of land, conservation of soil resources, and use of land for those crops for which it is best adapted.

"The fourth question will be voted on only by those contract signers who are grain sorghum growers for grain. It will ask if they prefer that grain sorghums be included in the 1935 contract. The exact wording of the question will be available at the time of the referendum.

"At Kansas City the voting was that benefit payments be made on both corn and hog, that the established 1932-33 base in the 1934 program for both corn and hogs be used, with benefit payments of $3 per head on 75 per cent of the 1932-33 hogs, and of 40 cents per bushel on the appraised yield of contracted corn acres; and that the growing of hogs be permitted up to 80 per cent or 85 per cent of the base, and corn acreage increased up to 75 per cent to 90 per cent of the base, the exact percentage to be optional.

"Other recommendations made by the conference were that contracted corn acreage be used without restriction for hay, pasture, soil improvement, soil erosion prevention crops, following, or for forest plantings; that grain sorghums be included in the 1935 contract on the same basis as corn as to adjustments, benefits, and tax; and that the base of processing tax be broadened to include other commodities in proportion to the benefits accruing to them from this program.

"It was also recommended that

Bids Opened On Government Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—The federal government opened bids today for the purchase of nearly 3,000,000 bales of cotton from the government pool. Oscar Johnson, pool manager for the AAA, was in charge.

The pool was made up of 1,950,000 bales owned by the government as the result of the acreage reduction campaign in 1933 and 800,000 bales carried over from the Hoover administration as a result of its loans in 1930 and 1931.

The pool was made up of 1,950,000 bales owned by the government as the result of the acreage reduction campaign in 1933 and 800,000 bales carried over from the Hoover administration as a result of its loans in 1930 and 1931.

Patterson Advises Contract Signers

Cotton acreage reduction contract signers should not overlook the privilege of storing cotton and borrowing twelve cents per pound on it, stated county agent J. C. Patterson Wednesday. This cotton must carry tax paid tag and be stored in a bonded cotton warehouse. Co-op warehouses are located in Brownwood and Abilene and also the cotton may be shipped to any bonded warehouse cotton concern. Any and all lienholders must sign the storing papers.

This storage blank carries the customary consideration of no recourse on producer if the cotton when sold brings less than the amount of loan. This loan is only available to those who have executed cotton acreage reduction contracts and have complied with the contracts and only for cotton actually produced by such contract signers.

DOCTOR TELLS OF EXAMINING MURDER VICTIM

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 3.—Robert Edwards, youthful mine surveyor, moved uneasily in his chair today when prosecution attacked his defense against charges of murdering his childhood sweetheart, Freda McKechnie.

The state called Dr. H. A. Brown, who said Freda died from a blow on the head and was not drowned. The middle-aged country doctor told how he was summoned to the shore of Harvey's lake on July 31, to examine the body taken from the waters.

"At first I thought the girl had drowned, but then I saw blood seeping from her white bathing cap," Dr. Brown said. "I examined the head wound and it was deep enough to admit four fingers."

Another doctor said his examination showed Freda was to become a mother in about five months. He said the unborn child, of which Edwards is accused of being the father, was normal.

RADICAL THEORIES WEAR DOWN WITH TIME

Is the United States going radical? Is this country being ushered into Socialism through the back door?

Every political discussion you hear these days hinges around those questions. But nobody knows the answer. And one of the reasons is that people forget to ask first, What is radical? What is Socialism?

That depends. Let's dig into the dusty files of the library of Congress and retrieve a forgotten document. It is the Socialist Party platform for 1912. The Socialist Party then was radicalism par excellence. Socialists were then what "Reds" are today.

The Socialist platform of that pre-war campaign of 22 years ago starts out with the familiar Socialist thesis that there must be war between the classes, and that Socialism must replace the present capitalist economic system in toto. But, in the meantime, here are some of the demands proposed pending the day:

Public ownership of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, wireless telegraph, (sic), express and all transport lines, grain elevators, stockyards and distributing agencies, mines, quarries, oil wells, forests, and water power. Conservation of natural resources; reclamation; development of water power projects. How much of that is coming true today, every day's newspaper will tell you.

Collective ownership and democratic management of the banking and currency systems was demanded. Government relief of the unemployed "by the extension of all useful public works" was proposed.

In industry, a shortened work day with a day and a half of rest each week for every workman (the 10-hour day, or at best the eight, was standard in 1912). No child labor under 16 years of age. Minimum wage scales. Unemployment, old age, accident and disease insurance at employers' expense.

The political demands were even more interesting. They include a graduated income tax, increase in the corporation tax and inheritance taxes. Equal suffrage for women. Collective ownership of patents.

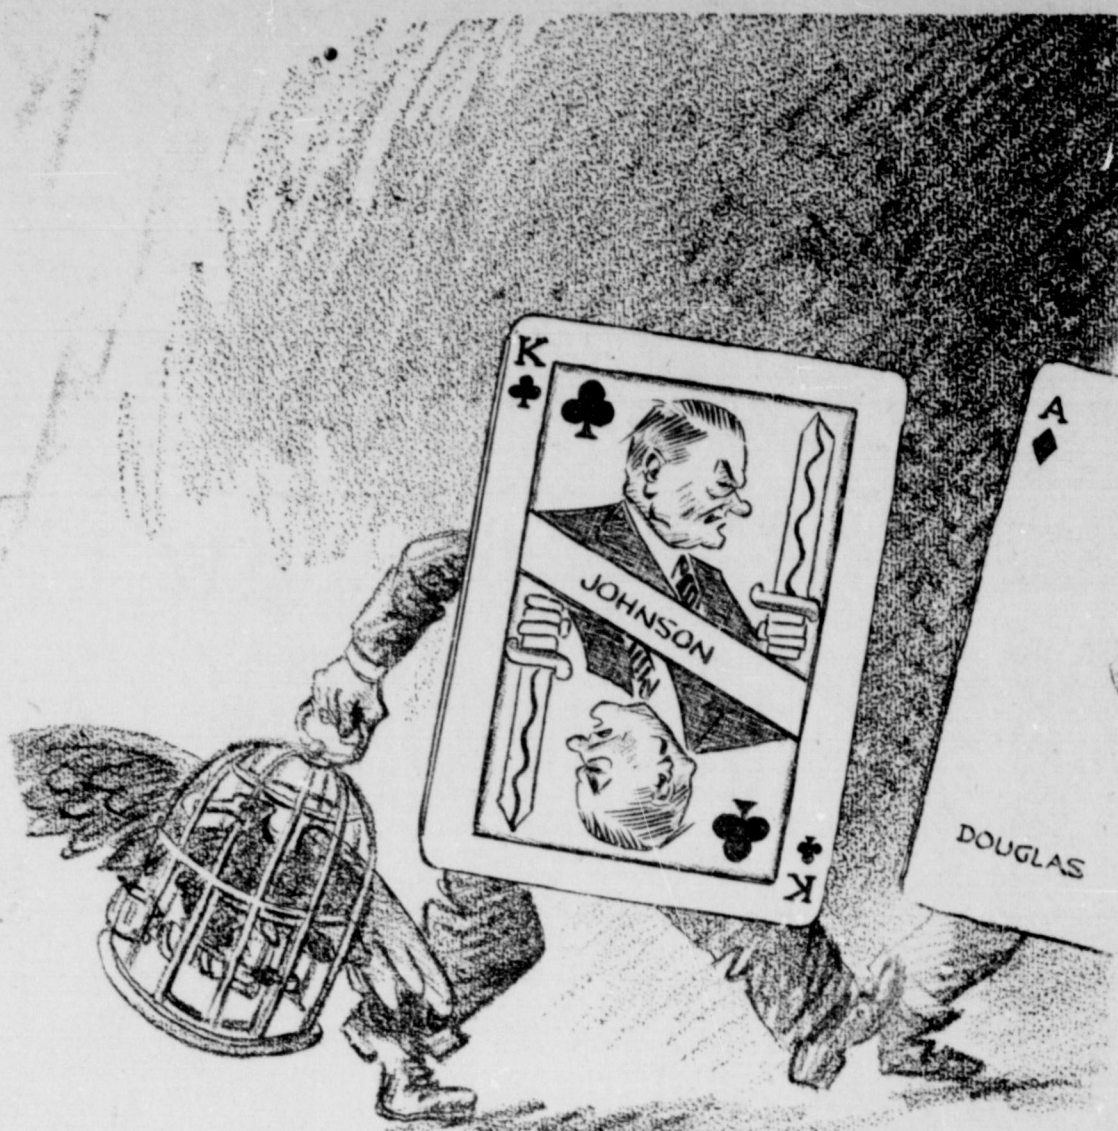

Initiative, referendum, and recall, and proportional representation. Abolition of the Senate (this was just before direct election of senators) and no more presidential veto. Abolition of the "usurped" power of the supreme court to declare laws unconstitutional. Easier amendments of the Constitution.

Creation of a Department of Labor (one of Wilson's first acts on being elected). A Department of Education. Curbing of the injunction power, and calling of a convention to revise the Constitution.

Those were the important planks of the most radical platform presented to the people in 1912. You may judge how radical it sounds today, and how far we have come along the road it points out.

I notice in some towns in England they are having a "Wear More Hats" campaign. Over here most of us are well satisfied to wear one hat.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

WHEN the Turks laid siege to Vienna, in 1683, two baker boys were working in an underground bakeshop one night, and heard the Turks driving a mine shaft. They carried the news to authorities and a countermine was sunk by the Austrians. A great number of Turks were killed by the explosion, and Vienna was saved.

Leaders of as Work On Centennial Plans

D.A.S.—Civic leaders here are working at top speed in perfecting their organization and to direct activities for the Centennial in 1936. Aware of their responsibility to create a celebration worthy of the occasion, they are planning to be staged in Antonio, Houston, Goliad, and Nacogdoches. Huntsville and other points of historic interest in the state, those citizens responsible for the city's participation in the Centennial's plans rapidly have whipped up an executive set-up into active service leading every line of civic enterprise in Dallas.

In order to finance enlargements and improvements at the Fair Park, which is to be the site of the proposed exposition, that will make that plant the main exposition site, has been set in motion. Charles E. Turner, assistant city manager, announced that an election soon will be held in which $3,000,000 worth of bonds for centennial purposes will be voted. Money raised by the sale of the bonds will be utilized to acquire 96 acres of ground adjacent to the present fair park and erect suitable approaches, exposition grounds, and a station and improvement of the same. After the city bond election is assured, the Dallas Centennial commission will begin to raising an additional $2,000,000 from private interests of the city, as in the city's bid for the exposition in Dallas, expended for similar work authorized in a previous election are bonds to the amount of $500,000 for the construction of an art gallery at the fair park, work on which should be completed in the near future. The present program of beautification, including landscaping, construction of gardens, and the enlarged fair park have been prepared. City officials have indicated that they expect to expend as much as $150,000 in an ambitious improvement program, including the opening of thoroughfares to the grounds in order to allow of traffic in that direction to be impeded, even to anticipated crowds of people from every state in the country at their peak.

Cotton Adjustment Assistant Ewing Gives Major Points

Ginners should take note that the law provides that Bankhead exemption certificates must be transferred from one producer to another producer, in the same county, through the county agents office, except where all parties concerned are farming on the same farm, as in the case of a landlord and tenants. (A farm as referred to here means the land covered by one contract or one application for allotment).

The public should be warned that it is a violation of the law to secure any certificate or part of a certificate by fraud or sharp, unfair practices. Certificates may be sold and transferred from one producer in the same county but it is against the law for any person who is not a producer to buy or acquire or have in his possession any certificates for the purpose or with the intention of speculating on same.

Any person who makes any statement that is untruthful or in any way misrepresents the actual fact in the case for the purpose of obtaining any certificates to which he is not rightfully entitled, lays himself liable to a fine of not to exceed $1000 or not to exceed six months in jail, or both, if he is convicted of such fraud.

While it is the policy of both the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Internal Revenue Department to be as lenient as possible and to assist producers and ginners in every way possible to avoid any one's getting into trouble, still it behooves everyone to use proper care in all transactions involving exemption certificates. If it should come to the attention of the assistant in cotton adjustment that anyone has deliberately undertaken to defraud the government the case will be referred to the United States Department of Justice for investigation.

O. W. EWING,
Assistant in Cotton Adjustment.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Service Staff Writer
NOW that the oyster is back with us for another season, I have dusted off Alice in Wonderland to enjoy again Lewis Carroll's delightful eulogy of oyster eating presented in the Walrus and the Carpenter verses.

Unless you've refreshed your memory on the point, you probably won't recall that the verses include one of the simplest recipes for oyster cocktail:

"A loaf of bread, the Walrus said,
Is what we chiefly need:
Pepper and vinegar besides
Are very good indeed—"

The modern version of the recipe substitutes tabasco for pepper and lemon juice for vinegar—and oyster crackers for the bread; but even the Walrus would have admitted an improvement.

Of course, most of us aren't going to get our oysters as fresh as the Walrus, whose piper tactics lured the succulent bivalves from the security of the oyster bed to his banquet table on the beach.

Half Shells for All
And in many parts of the country, you won't be able to eat them out of the shell, unless, as is widely practiced, you obtain a supply of shells on which you place the shelled oysters of commerce for serving.

Although long recognized as an easily digested source of protein, their high water content makes them an expensive source of energy. Today they are valued as sources of iodine and compared favorably with eggs as sources of iron. They are rich in vitamins B and D, good in vitamins A and C, and contain some vitamin G. These properties along with their easy digestibility make them an important food for growing children.

Also they are a splendid food

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Baked pears, cereal, cream, waffles with syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Oyster curry in rice border, bran and raisin bread, carrot slices, grapes, milk, tea.

DINNER: Shepherd's pie, cauliflower in cream sauce, beet and celery salad, fruit jelly with whipped cream, coconut layer cake, milk, coffee.

for a reducing diet, being low in calory content.

Raw oysters are almost as easily digested as raw eggs and are an exceedingly nutritious food to serve to invalids. Steamed, baked and in a plain stew they offer appetizing variety for children and persons in ill health.

Don't Look Too Long
The digestibility of cooked oysters depends largely on the care used in cooking. They contain an albuminous substance that must be cooked at a low temperature. Excessive heat and an over-long cooking period will make them tough and leathery and consequently hard to digest.

There are innumerable inviting ways of serving them that require little time and work.

As cocktails they make popular beginnings for winter dinners.

All the hot dishes are desirable for supper parties.

Oyster salads are splendid for luncheon and evening refreshments when a hot dish is not wanted. They can be prepared in several ways. A combination of grape fruit sections and shrewsbury green pepper served with French dressing is delicious. Marinated the oysters and fruit separately in French dressing for an hour before serving. Cooked oysters are combined with celery and a garnish in another good salad.

They are made that way —

Chesterfields are milder
Chesterfields taste better

Ripe home-grown tobaccos

We begin with the right kinds of mild ripe Domestic tobaccos. Then we age and mellow them like rare wines for flavor and taste.

Aromatic Turkish tobaccos

Next we add just the right kinds and the right amounts of Turkish tobaccos to give Chesterfield the "seasoning" that helps to make them taste better.

Blended and cross-blended

Finally we "meld" these tobaccos together the Chesterfield way—different from any other—to make Chesterfield a milder better-tasting cigarette.

That Reminds Me

all impending danger can be avoided if warnings are taken seriously.

H. E. Driscoll, county administrator for work and direct relief, has made public through addresses to the Rotary and Lions clubs some valuable food for thought, particularly in the idea of making efforts for special projects. Every one on the list of those that stand a chance for approval are worth while and they all come within the scope of direct necessities for this community. President Roosevelt is giving particular attention to this phase of work relief and there is no doubt but what it will be the preferred idea of putting people back to work and getting them off the relief rolls which are the worst at best.

The moment that the citizenship makes an application for a project and it is submitted to Driscoll, he immediately gets busy with the state headquarters and does everything possible to get their approval as quickly as possible in order that the work can be started. Approval has been granted for the athletic field at Welch field, east of town on the Ranger highway. Fences will be built and grandstands will be reinforced and new ones built. This is the time to go after these projects. The Rotary club is making efforts to make application for work projects of the lateral roads in this trade territory. This is a wonderful move and if carried out will do much to bring to Eastland many new customers who have heretofore gone elsewhere on account of the condition of the roads.

The special session of the legislature that is contemplated seems to be in this instance absolutely necessary providing that the legislators have had time since their return home to actually realize the necessity of passing legislation according to the wishes of the national administration as well as those things which were left undone at the last special session. Instead of getting mad at each other because certain pet bills were not supported and voting against anything regardless the thing to do is take each item for which this next one will be called for and get the facts and then vote an unbiased ballot. And above all don't forget to pass a $5 license tax on all passenger automobiles. Why charge $19.86 for an automobile of 1928 model and another price for any other model whether made yesterday or today, or 10 years ago.

Furnace heat for homes without a basement

Natural Gas FLOOR FURNACES

When you add the comfort of circulating heat to your home you are adding value to the home you live in. It makes no difference whether it has a basement or not, you can have circulated heat from easily installed, low-cost natural gas floor furnace.

This unit splendidly exemplifies the comfort of a gas-heated home as it provides for one or two rooms the same luxurious warmth of central heating plant—but without the expense of furnace and piping installations.

Look over the new gas heating equipment now. Besides the furnace there are other heaters which circulate warm air and vented to eliminate wall sweating. The flame never touches the air circulates. When equipped with thermostat desired room temperature is automatically maintained.

Natural Gas will maintain this "Comfort Zone" at low cost.

Gas heating equipment is available also from your dealer. See his displays.

A Pledge For Patriotic Texans

A hundred years of freedom and progress is to be celebrated in 1936. Our progress as a State has been phenomenal. It is a source of pride to the Nation. Texans, true and unafraid, pledge themselves to the unparalleled success of their State's hundredth anniversary.

"Men of thought, be up and stirring." Put this purpose before you. Let every Texan burn the Centennial pledge into his heart:

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be . . .
