$18 A Barrel OPEC's Decision

By MARK POTTS
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)-OPEC ended its meeting today and the result was in line with a tentative accord that would add about 4 cents a gallon to prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States, Iraqi Oil Minister Tayih Abdul Kerin said.

"It is what you heard last night," he said.

The comment indicated the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to a benchmark price of $18 a barrel with the right of individual countries to impose surcharges of $2 and differentials up to a ceiling of $23.50 a barrel for the next three months.

The OPEC ministers voted on an agreement to adopt two base prices of crude oil, $18 and $20 a barrel, with a ceiling on surcharges so that the total price will not exceed $23.50 a barrel.

The agreement was worked out late Wednesday night, prolonging the meeting into a third day, after moderate and radical members "narrowed the gap gradually until they got where they are," said Cyrus Ebrahimzadeh of the Iranian delegation.

Libya, Iran and Iraq had demanded that the price of OPEC's benchmark crude oil, Arabian light, be raised to between $23 to $27 a barrel from $14.55. Under the new system, the price rises to only $18, but that amounts to a 24 percent hike.

The 10 other nations will be able to add surcharges to the benchmark price to bring it to as much as $20. As always, additional surcharges could be tacked on to take into account differences in the quality of their oils.

The increases in the base price are the largest since 1974, when prices quadrupled during the Arab oil embargo. Analysts estimate that retail prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States rise a penny per gallon for each 5 per cent rise in the base price of crude oil. But because the surcharges in the past three months have raised the average price of OPEC oil to $17, experts say the rise at the gas pump and on heating bills will work out to about 4 cents a gallon.

The new price structure would be effective July 1. Sources said the ministers would meet again in Geneva in late September to consider changes.

Estimate Increased

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Treasury Department has increased by nearly 50 percent its estimate of gross oil company revenues that will result from oil price decontrol.

It now says the companies will reap an additional $94 billion over five years because ceilings are being lifted on domestic oil prices.

The new Treasury estimate came to light Wednesday on the eve of House debate on a proposed 'windfall profits" tax designed to reclaim some of those oil company revenues.

Smoggiest Day In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Brush fires and temperatures up to 120 degrees made an inferno of parts of Southern California, where officials warned today's air would be the smoggiest of the year.

Authorities activated a standby emergency plan for the Los Angeles area that requires oil refiners to cut emissions and some businesses and government agencies to cut employee driving by 65 percent.

Seeking 3rd Trial

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—Even before Elmer Wayne Henley's second murder trial ended in a conviction, the defendant's mother was talking about a third trial.

"We'll have our trial and put on our defense," she said as jurors deliberated here Wednesday. "Until they suppress those confessions, there's no sense in putting on a defense."

"Those confessions" formed the crux of the state case as prosecutors convinced an eight-man, four-woman jury to find Henley, 23, guilty of six murders in the Houston mass slaying of the early 1970s.

The jury took two hours and 20 minutes to deliberate on the guilt questions. They then returned to the jury room for 40 minutes before recommending six concurrent life sentences.

The SDN Column

We are told that surveys show fewer than half of the people who have budgets keep their spending within the limits of their plan.

They probably take their lessons from the federal government, which has a habit of spending more than it takes in and more than it projects in its estimates.

We have heard that the average American worker toils at least four months for government each year before he earns anything he can call his own. The Tax Foundation says the period from Jan. 1 to May 6 belongs to taxes. After that, a worker begins earning for himself.

If he wants to spread it out over the year, the average worker works two and three-quarter hours each working day to pay his taxes. And the federal government has the biggest appetite. Local and state agencies get one hour of the daily tax toil, while Uncle Sam claims an hour and 45 minutes.

Many people are searching for ways to reduce their expenses, including taxes, but they must give up some services and products if they are to succeed. In some cases, they feel that they actually would have been better off without some of the services, especially those financed by government.

There are other ways to reduce expenses, of course. For example, surveys show that the average food shopper travels around 100 miles per year making 2½ trips to the store per week. Better planning to cut the store visits by one per week would be a significant saving. The same survey indicates that the average trip to the store involves three miles of travel. Knocking out one trip per week would save half a tank of gasoline per year.

On the other hand, some of our physical fitness enthusiasts tell us that you should make more trips to the store and fewer purchases per trip so that you can walk and carry your purchases home. That system would save you a gallon of gasoline per month and do all kinds of good things for your health, so they say.

But seriously, there seem to be lots of ways that many Americans can save a gallon of gasoline here and there, and as the price goes up there is a double incentive---stretching the supply and saving money.

A--There is no "crisis center" here for such cases. The Snyder Police Dept. does have women on its force and they do help with any type of case involving women.

July 4th Event Prizes Planned

There will be another attractive list of prizes for drawing at the annual July 4th celebration in Towle Memorial Park.

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event, will give away $500 in cash, including a $200 top prize and other cash awards of $125, $100 and $75. In addition, there will be a number of prizes provided by local merchants.

Chamber officials reminded that, despite the fact that they are not mandatory, purchase of the July 4th tractor pull tickets assures purchasers that they will be participants in the drawing for the prizes, since those selling the tickets will also register them for the drawing. (Free registration is available at the chamber office).

The tickets, which are the same as those traditionally distributed to help take care of the expenses of the celebration, cost $1 each. They may be used for admission to the tractor pull event, scheduled for Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, with three of them admitting an adult and one admitting a child.

Chamber officials said that some people apparently had assumed that there would not be the usual prizes this year because of the change in the drawing system. This is not the case, they emphasized. The chamber itself is offering the same prizes that it awarded last year, and many merchandise prizes are due to be on hand.

Funds from the sale of the tickets are needed to pay the expenses, as they have in the past. The

Phone Company Asks For Increase

AUSTIN (AP)—Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. today asked the Texas Public Utility Commission for rate increases that would raise monthly bills for household telephones by $1.55.

The commission is expected to begin hearings on the Bell request in September.

Bell's rate increase package, which also includes higher prices for PBX equipment, Centrex service, key telephones and installation service, would raise the company's revenue by $145.2 million a year.

Of the total, $105 million would come from raising the price of local service - that is, basic rates for home and business telephones.

"Continuing growth and inflation leave us no choice but to ask for increased rates," said Doyle Rogers, the company's vice president for Texas.

Rogers said Bell really needs $242.9 million in new revenue but held down its request because of President Carter's price guidelines.

He said the request would provide Bell a 6.09 percent average statewide increase in Bell's Texas revenue.

Consumers, however, would feel a greater percentage increase than that.

The $1.55 requested hike in one-party residential telephone rates would amount to 19.4 percent in Houston, 20.6 percent in Dallas, 22.1 percent in Fort Worth and San Antonio, 23.8 percent in Austin, 25.8 percent in Lubbock, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Beaumont, Waco and Edinburg; and 26.9 percent in Abilene, Texas City, Galveston, Wichita Falls and Brownsville.

In the smaliest class of cities -- such places as Brackettville, Cameron, Marfa, San Diego and Refugio - the $1.55 increase would amount to a 32.6 percent increase.

The two-party residential rate would increase also - ranging from $1.30 in the smallest exchanges to $1.80 in the largest.

Death Attributed To Drug Overdose

An overdose of a morphine-based drug coupled with lung congestion were the apparent causes that led to the death last month of a 20-year-old Snyder woman, and District Attorney Pete Greene said the case will go before the grand jury.

The woman died the morning of May 21, but results of the autopsy were not received by local authorities until Wednesday. The presence of the morphine derivative was found in the urine sample.

In a three-page summation of the autopsy findings, Dr. B.B. Trotter, a pathologist with Clinical Pathology Associates of Abilene which performed the autopsy, wrote: "This would indicate Dilaudid (a morphine drug) was consumed by this individual. The finding of the congested and edematous lungs fit with an individual who had taken an overdose of Dilaudid resulting in respiratory de-

Fuel Delivery Threatened By Truck Drivers

Associated Press Writer

As Vice President Walter Mondale asked independent truckers to "get the country moving again," striking drivers vowed to stop Alabama fuel deliveries and North Carolina's governor alerted the National Guard to protect fuel terminals from further blockades.

Truckers in Iowa and Tennessee began returning to work Wednesday as Maine drivers camped out at a National Guard Armory in Augusta to await Gov. Joseph Brennan's return from a meeting in Canada.

There were renewed incidents of violence, with firebombs and sniper shootings aimed at trucks on the road.

Food stocks generally remained adequate at supermarkets in the Midwest and East, but grocers predicted higher prices and shortages within days. Some meat and poultry wholesalers in New York closed early due to reduced supplies.

Independent drivers have been on strike for three weeks in protest of high diesel fuel prices, the 55 mph speed limit and weight limits that vary from state to state.

Subcommittee Approves Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sugarcane and sugarbeet growers and processors have won a victory in the House trade subcommittee.

The panel approved a bill Wednesday to raise sugar prices in October, adding about 75 cents to a consumer's annual food bill. Growers and processors argue they need higher prices to survive.

Trades Day Shaping Up

No matter what you want to buy, your chances of finding it in Snyder will be better than ever Saturday, June 30.

If it's not available in one of the local stores, there's a good chance that you will find it out in the street.

Saturday is the date set by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Merchants' Committee for their first Trades Day. Area residents are being invited to bring anything they would like to sell--anything from garden produce to big items--and offer them in a huge, garage-sale type event.

The streets will be blocked off to vehicular traffic on the south and east sides of the courthouse square. Those bringing in items for sale will be welcome to set up shop in the street.

While this is going on, the merchants themselves will have a big sale of new merchandise going in their stores and on the sidewalks.

Chamber officials have reported mounting interest in the Trades Day event, with many phone calls indicating that people will bring in a big variety of items to sell.

Anyone who will require electricity for his booth or space on the street should make arrangements in advance with one of the stores nearby to plug into an outlet.

No reservations are required for street space, however.

Blood Drive Set Saturday

Donations are being sought in a blood drive Saturday at 12 p.m. at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce for Mrs. Dorothy Benton of 3010 Ave. T.

Mrs. Benton, 55, has been a leukemia patient at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston since Feb. 22. She will be needing a large amount of blood during the next two weeks, said her daughter, Mrs. Brenda Lee of Snyder.

Mrs. Benton was a bookkeeper at J.C. Penney's in Snyder for 15 years. She is in room 1126, Lutherean Pavilion of M. D. Anderson Hospital at the Texas Medical Center in Houston.

Rationing Recommended To Stop Price Gouging

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter's chief inflation fighters today accused many gasoline distributors of engaging in illegal price gouging, and recommended that the government consider rationing gasoline.

Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, also predicted that mainly because of today's big increase in foreign oil prices, inflation "will be bumping at the double-digit level for the rest of this year."

On gasoline prices, Barry Bosworth, director of the council, told the House Government Operations consumer subcommittee that "on the basis of national data from the Consumer Price Index and the Producer Price Index, retail gasoline prices are going up far more rapidly than can be justified by refining costs."

Said Kahn: "I suspect as a private citizen that there are widespread violations at the retail level."

One legitimate solution to the energy problem would be mandatory rationing at the gasoline pumps, said Kahn. "It is something that ought not to be rejected" out of hand, he said. "We really ought to consider rationing."

The House earlier this year rejected a plan that would have given the president standby authority to ration gasoline.

"I feel that when the American people get mad enough about having to wait in line - and that is the inevitable consequence of price controls - they will be prepared to go to a system that limits consumption," Kahn said.

The council monitors gasoline prices at the refinery level to see if increases are in line with Carter's anti-inflation price standards. The Energy Department has the job of monitoring crude oil price increases under 8-year-old petroleum price controls.

Bosworth said the prices charged by many of the nation's small refiners are increasing "far more rapidly than can be justified by" increases in crude oil prices.

Peach Crop Called 'Best' In Long Time

AUSTIN - Abundant moisture has produced a better than usual peach crop, which in Texas' terms translates as excellent.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reports that peaches picked recently in Gillespie County, the heart of Texas peach country, had sized well and were considered among the best peaches growers had seen in a long time. Yields were good.

The season begins with clingstone peaches, but moves quickly into freestones which are more popular with consumers. Most of the peaches grown here are consumed in-state, which permits growers to ripen their fruit on the trees. The result is a fresher, juicier peach with a sweet odor.

Gillespie County peaches will be available until mid-August this year. Later peaches from North Texas and the High Plains were nipped by frost in early April, causing considerable damage. As a result, peach producers are expected to harvest 750,000 bushels, 10 percent lower than last year's crop.

Summer Salads With Beef

If you've never tried smoked tongue, delay no longer. You can count on it for several fine summer meals for the family, notes Reba Staggs, National Livestock and Meat Board meat expert.

Ever - popular for sandwiches, sliced cold tongue makes an equally delicious salad plate when coupled with sweetbreads and fresh fruits.

TONGUE-SWEETBREAD SALAD

10 to 12 slices cooked smoked tongue, cut ¼ inch thick
2 pounds sweetbreads
Water
2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice
1½ teaspoons salt
1 can (13¼ oz.) pineapple tidbits, chilled
1 cup seedless green grapes, cut in half lengthwise
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon curry powder
Leaf lettuce
¼ cup sliced blanched almonds, toasted, if desired

Cover sweetbreads with water. Add vinegar or lemon juice and salt. Cover and simmer 20 minutes or until tender. Drain; remove membrane. Break into bite-sized pieces and chill 1 hour or longer. Drain pineapple and save syrup. Add pineapple, grapes and celery to sweetbreads. Combine mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon pineapple syrup and curry powder. Mix well. Fold dressing into meat mixture. Arrange salad on lettuce leaves and surround with tongue slices. Sprinkle almonds on salad. 6 servings.

JULIENNE BEEF SALAD

3 cups cooked roast beef, cut in julienne strips
1 package (10 Oz.) frozen peas, cooked and drained
1 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons capers
½ cup diced Cheddar cheese, if desired
½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¾ teaspoon salt
3 hard-cooked eggs
1 tablespoon finely sliced green onion
Lettuce
6 pitted, ripe olives
6 2-inch long carrot strips

Combine roast beef, peas, celery, capers and cheese. Chill. Mix together oil, vinegar, mustard and salt. Chop eggs finely and add to oil-vinegar mixture. Add onion. Chill. Just before serving toss meat mixture with vinegar-oil dressing. Spoon into individual lettuce-lined salad bowls or plates. Garnish with carrot strips inserted in ripe olives. 6 servings.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South really expected that four spades would be a cinch contract. Of course, he expected a better dummy. The 60-point part score explains why he failed to jump right to the four level.

West opened the ace of diamonds and continued with the jack after East's signal with the 10. A far better play would have been to play out his ace of trumps first.

South ruffed the second diamond and led a trump. West was in with the ace and in his first end play.

He guessed right and led the four of hearts to East's queen and South's ace. South led a trump to dummy and a club to his 10 and West's jack for the second end play.

Now West made the fatal lead of another heart. South won with the 10, cashed his ace of clubs and ran off all dummy's trumps while discarding his queen of clubs on the last one.

West was squeezed in hearts and clubs since dummy's last two cards were a small heart and the club nine while South held ace-small of hearts.

The squeeze could not have developed if West had returned a club when he led the second heart, but West could not have been sure of that. However, West did have a sure thing play at his disposal. He could have led another diamond. This would give South a ruff and discard, but that ruff and discard would still have left him one trick short of his contract.

Concrete Verified Safe At Nuclear Plant Site

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, after an investigation into allegations of improper concrete testing at the Comanche Peak nuclear plant, has verified the safety of the concrete involved in the allegations.

"The NRC has conducted an exhaustive investigation of these allegations. Its final report graphically illustrates the extensiveness of the safety precautions used in construction of Comanche Peak," Texas Electric Service Company President Bill Marquardt said in announceing the NRC's finding.

"Although these allegations were proved to have no merit with respect to the safety of the plant, we welcome the extensiveness of the NRC investigation. Its report stands as reconfirmation of our total commitment to the building and operating of Comanche Peak as a safe and reliable power plant." Marquardt said.

In its investigation, the NRC found no items of non-compliance and concluded the concrete meets design requirements.

"There is no substantive evidence that the overall quality and structural integrity of the safety-related concrete has been impaired," the NRC said in a report of its investigation.

The allegations were raised in a copyrighted story April 4 in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The NRC investigation was conducted April 5 through May 7 by five NRC inspectors who spent a total of 149 hours looking into the allegations. The investigators interviewed 15 persons who are or were associated with the contractors building Comanche Peak, as well as the reporter who wrote the original story. The investigators also reviewed pertinent construction records and data.

Their final report is a matter of public record and is available for inspection at the NRC regional office in Arlington.

The NRC identified 10 allegations concerning concrete testing and inspection improprieties that warranted investigation. Five of the allegations could not be substantiated. Three could neither be substantiated nor refuted, and two were substantiated. However, none--including the two that were supported -- had any bearing on the safety of the concrete.

The kinds of tests involved in the allegations were routine, first-level monitoring tests, the NRC said. None were the final acceptance tests which determine the actual strength of the concrete.

Of the 15 present and former plant workers interviewed, all except one said "they had no intent to question the plant safety or overall quality of the concrete structures," the report states.

Gas To Be Higher, Harder To Find This Weekend

By The Associated Press

Higher gasoline prices and continued tight supplies are indicated this weekend and for the July 4th holiday for Texas motorists.

Severe supply problems still exist in populous Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth despite the start of the odd-even rationing system but a weekly survey by the Texas Division of the American Automobile Association also indicates some interstate highway service stations at mid-points between major urban areas also are having problems in the closing days of the month.

"But the traveling motorists may have a better chance of finding gasoline than those who stay at home, particularly in Houston, Dallas, and Fort Worth," said the AAA's Wayne King.

Statewide, 71 percent of the stations surveyed reported plans to be open July 4.

Statewide prices ranged from a low of 73.9 cents a gallon for self-service regular at a Tenneco station in Houston to a high of 97.9 cents for full-service premium at a Texaco station in Waco. Although not among the stations surveyed, a West Side Houston station was selling diesel fuel at $1.18 a gallon.

Here is the expected availability of gasoline as indicated by the AAA survey of 415 stations:

AMARILLO - 36 stations surveyed, supplies much better than the statewide average, 53 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, 25 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 61 percent closed on Sunday.

AUSTIN-15 stations, supplies tightened the past week, 87 percent closing weeknights, by 6 p.m. Saturday, and on Sunday.

BEAUMONT - PORT ARTHUR-16 stations, supplies particularly tight at night with only 19 percent remaining open after 8 p.m. weekdays and 6 p.m. Saturday; about 37 percent plan to operate Sunday.

CORPUS CHRISTI-19 stations, supplies much better than average, 58 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays and by 6 p.m. Saturday, 47 percent Sunday.

DALLAS-38 stations, with Monday's start of the odd-even program curtailing the length of some lines but with 97 percent of the stations still closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, 100 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 95 percent on Sunday.

EL PASO-30 stations, supplies better than average, 63 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights, 20 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 67 percent Sunday.

FORT WORTH-28 stations, despite some odd-even relief, 93 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights and by 6 p.m. Saturday and 96 percent Sunday.

HOUSTON-55 stations, some continuing to report record lines despite odd-even rationing, with 98 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights, 91 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday and 95 percent Sunday.

MCALLEN-22 stations, 77 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights, 23 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, 73 percent Sunday.

MIDLAND-ODESSA-15 stations, supplies better than average, 47 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, only 7 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and only 40 percent Sunday.

SAN ANTONIO-40 stations, supplies still better than in other major urban areas despite a two-week decline, 63 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays and by 6 p.m. Saturday, 80 percent Sunday.

WACO-15 stations, supplies much better than average, 47 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights, 40 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, 33 percent Sunday.

INTERSTATE HIGHWAYS

Interstate 10 - Fort Stockton, Junction, Ozona, 24-hour availability.

Interstate 20 - Colorado City, Pecos, 24-hour availability. Abilene, adequate supplies but Sunday closings could cause some problems.

Interstate 27 - Lubbock, adequate supply with some stations operating seven days a week.

Interstate 35 - Temple, Laredo, 24-hour availability.

Interstate 45 - Galveston, extremely tight situation similar to Houston, few stations open Sunday, one station closing by 9 a.m., another by 10 a.m.

Interstate 45 - Madisonville, normally a Dallas-Houston mid-point oasis, three stations out of gasoline, one selling diesel fuel only, but with operators expressing hope new supplies will be received by weekend.

Eastex U.S. 59 - Lake Livingston, Lufkin, Nacogdoches, 24-hour availability.

Other major highways - Big Bend, Brownwood, Uvalde, Wichita Falls, 24-hour availability.

Soviet Union Developing New Bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) - American officials have learned to their surprise that the Soviet Union is developing three new types of heavy bombers, government sources report.

A Soviet negotiator made the disclosure to American representatives at Geneva, Switzerland, during technical talks that preceded last week's signing of the SALT II agreement limiting strategic weapons, said the sources, who asked to remain anonymous.

Previously, U.S. intelligence officials have said the Soviets were working on a single new type of long-range bomber, which they expect to emerge as roughly comparable to the U.S. supersonic B-1. President Carter canceled the B-1 two years ago.

Pentagon officials say they are at a loss to explain why the Russians volunteered information on the bombers being developed, one of which, they said, could be a cruise missile carrier.

More Indochinese Refugees To Be Accepted

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP)—President Carter announced today the United States will admit 14,000 Indochinese refugees a month - double the current level - as he and other economic summit participants called for an urgent United Nations conference on the problem.

The action on refugees was the first concrete result of the seven-nation meeting that was pictured as moving toward a compromise on its No. 1 agenda item, energy.

American officials, who asked not to be identified, estimated the additional influx of refugees would cost an added $150 million a year, compared with current outlays of $250 million.

In addition to the U.S. action, the other summit participants not only called for a U.S. conference on refugees, but also pledged to set aside more money for relief and resettlement efforts and admit more refugees.

"This is basically what we sought," one U.S. official said.

Carter said in a statement, "We can and will work together to find homes and jobs for Indochinese refugees."

U.S. sources said the U.N. meeting would be convened in Geneva during the third week in July.

They said they hoped that the increased number of refugees could reach the United States by next month.

The exact timing is uncertain, but Carter said he was making a one-year commitment.

U.S. sources said an administration emissary met with Vietnamese representatives in New York City at Carter's direction before the president flew to Tokyo last weekend.

They said they hoped Vietnam would participate in the conference.

Most of today's summit talks focussed on energy, with the aim of restraining oil imports by the seven nations represented here - the United States, Japan, France, Britain, Germany, Canada and Italy.

A senior American official, who asked not to be named, told reporters "I think we're clearly tending in the direction of a compromise."

He said he expects the summit to develop specific import ceilings for the seven countries for the balance of this year and all of 1980. In addition, he said, there was sentiment for setting import goals for 1985 as well.

But he emphasized that many technical details had to be resolved before the summit adjourns Friday afternoon.

A special statement issued on the first day of the seven-nation economic summit asked U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to call for a conference "as soon as possible" and said such a meeting should be aimed at "attaining concrete and positive results."

It said the plight of refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia "poses a humanitarian problem of historic proportions and constitutes a threat to the peace and stability of Southeast Asia."

Meanwhile, President Carter reported "it's too early to tell" whether agreement can be reached at the summit on fixing country-by-country targets to limit oil imports.

Honk If You Love Ducks

BROADVIEW, Mont. (AP)—The state Highway Department has warning signs for almost any roadway hazard. But what it can't find to fill the bill, so to speak, is one that says "Duck Crossing.

Highway officials and the state Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks are trying to decide just what kind of a sign might help keep motorists from clobbering baby ducks trying to cross state highway 3 near here.

A large runoff lake has formed along the highway, and about 20,000 ducks have called it home. They produced thousands of offspring this spring and cars and trucks are running down the ducklings in large enough numbers to alarm local residents.

Fish, Wildlife and Parks spokesman Clint Bishop says it isn't his department's business to erect such signs. And the Highway Department says it has no such signs.

Highway Department spokesman Bill Woolston allowed, "It's unique...a new situation." But he said the department is working on the problem to keep drivers from turning the fuzzy little critters into so much duck soup.

Texas Man Parasails To New High

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP)—A Texas man broke a Guinness world record for parasailing during the weekend. Charlie Skeen of Sulfur Springs remained nearly 60 feet in the air attached to a parachute pulled by a power boat for 15 hours and 48 minutes.

The time beats the previous British record by 26 minutes.

Skeen of Sulfur Springs was towed above the Columbia River all day Saturday in a harness attached to his parasail. Another man, Gary Edelen of Kennewick, had started with Skeen, but dropped out when a malfunctioning boat propeller reduced power.

Skeen said the feat was physically as well as mentally difficult.

"First there was the boat problem," said Skeen. "Then there was the physical stress because the harness continually was chafing - slipping and sliding - on my legs, neck and shoulders.

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas
A Safeway service in support of suggestions from the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs

"Unit Pricing"

Unit pricing, according to the United States Office of Consumer Affairs, is one of the most useful tools available to shoppers for comparing prices and determining the most economical buy. Safeway, recognizing the benefits to customers, was one of the first chains to introduce unit pricing.

In Safeway, shelf labels show the price of an item and, breaking the price down into a basic unit, also show the price per pound, quart, ounce or other even unit of measure.

We have done the arithmetic for you. All you need to do is compare the Unit Price of brands of the same product to help determine the most economical brand and size.

Rangers Tied For First Place

Texas Wins; Dials Gamble Again

ARLINGTON (AP)—For the Texas Rangers, Oscar Gamble couldn't have caught fire at a better time.

With Texas' two key sluggers on the bench, Gamble killed Ranger opponents last week and kept the pace going Wednesday against Nolan Ryan, the American League strikeout king.

Gamble singled in a run in the first and smashed a two-run homer in the third as the Rangers defeated California, 4-2, and knocked the Angels out of the Western Division lead in the American League.

Seven days earlier, the Rangers lost to California in Anaheim to fall 5½ games off the Angels' pace. But since then, with Gamble hitting at a .680 pace, Texas has won five straight and California has lost six straight.

Steve Comer, 7-6, allowed only four hits in out-dueling Ryan, 9-5. The win allowed Texas and Kansas City to move one percentage point ahead of California, which had been in first since June 4.

"You get more psyched up, pitching against Nolan Ryan. The California Angels in first place, that psyches you. And 28,000 fans, that helps too," said Comer, who matched Ryan by striking out six and walking six.

Gamble was "up" too.

"When you know Nolan is going to be pitching, you do try to get your rest. You be aware, because you know he is going to throw the ball hard," said Gamble.

Somebody pointed out to Gamble that Texas' surge in the past week came with Al Oliver out of the lineup with an injury and Richie Zisk on the bench because of a batting slump.

"When we need somebody to pick the team up, it's important that we've got somebody to do it," said Gamble, who raised his season average to .418 with Wednesday's performance.

Ryan walked him, once intentionally, his last two times up.

Gamble's homer, behind Buddy Bell's walk, made it 3-1 in the third, and Brian Downing's RBI single cut the lead to 3-2 in the fourth.

California Manager Jim Fregosi met with his players after the game, keeping the doors locked for 25 minutes, then declared his players off limits to the press. He called the meeting "personal" and refused to discuss it.

Cardinal Four All-Star Players

STEPHENVILLE--Four athletes from Hermleigh High School will participate in all-star games that cap off a week of activities in the second annual Texas Six-Man Coaches Association Clinic and All-Star Games, July 15-21 at Tarleton State University.

The clinic and games are being sponsored by the Stephenville Chamber of Commerce.

Clayton Riley, an all-district performer the past two years, will compete for the West squad in the Basketball All-Star Game, July 21 at 4 p.m. in Tarleton's Wisdom Gym. Riley averaged 16 points per game and finished his senior year with 380 total points.

Wesley Kruger, Stan Warren and James Williamson will be playing for the West team in the All-Star Football game July 21 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Stadium here.

Kruger played quarterback his first two years before switching to offensive end and linebacker the last two years. In his senior year, he scored nine touchdowns receiving and six points-after attempts.

Warren, an outstanding all-around player, averaged 11 tackles, 18 points and 196 yards rushing per game, and scored 552 career points.

Williamson was an all-district selection in both football and basketball and made All-State in football.

The four athletes join 58 other all-stars for a week of activities before the games Saturday.

Wimbledon

Austin 'Bouts' Today; Borg, McEnroe Win

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—American schoolgirl Tracy Austin launched her bid to become one of Wimbledon's youngest title holders when she met South African Brigitte Cuypers today in the second round of the prestigious tennis championships.

Lottie Dod won Wimbledon in 1887 at the age of 15.

Austin is 16, and is seeded No. 4.

The Rolling Hills, Calif., high school student had to quit last week's Eastbourne tournament with a groin injury but a first-round bye has given her a whole week to recover from that injury, and she felt confident today.

Meanwhile, Bjorn Borg, bidding for a fourth straight men's singles title, was given a fright by Indian No. 1 Vijay Amritraj before winning 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 in the second round Wednesday.

"I thought I would probably lose," said Borg, who at one stage trailed two sets to one and 1-3.

"When we got to 3-1 in the fourth it was vital for him," said Borg. "But he got a little nervous when he realized how important it was.

"I thought that I had been down like that before, and I get more relaxed when I see a match might be slipping away from me."

Relaxed or not, Borg moved into top gear to come back and take the fourth set tiebreaker 7-2. The final set was much smoother sailing.

Borg, who says this is the toughest draw he has ever had at Wimbledon, has a day to ease a slight leg strain before he meets American Hank Pfister in the third round Friday.

Second-seeded American John McEnroe also had a bumpy ride into the third round. The aggressive 20-year-old New Yorker dropped the first set to Britain's Buster Mottram, but went on to win 6-7, 6-2, 7-6, 6-2.

Only one seed fell in the men's singles. American John Sadri downed Spaniard Jose Higueras 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5. Sadri is ranked just 35th in the United States, but the 12th-seeded Higueras plays very little on grass. He was the fifth of the 16 men's seeds to be toppled.

Hooper, Genuchi, Mills Take LGA Tournament Honors

Barbara Hooper, Kathy Genuchi and Billie Mills took first places in the annual Women's Golf Association Tournament which ended Wednesday at Snyder Country Club.

Mrs. Hopper carded scores of 59 and 60 to win the championship flight by 16 strokes. Second was Anita Talbott with a 68-67-135, while Wilma Dillard was third with a 67-70-137.

Mrs. Genuchi was winner of the First Flight after turning in scores of 68 and 62 (130). She won by a single stroke over Carolyn Green (67-64-131) and by four over Retha Pickering (72-62-134).

Winner of the Second Flight was Mrs. Mills, who shot a pair of 65s for the tournament. Her total 130 was nine strokes ahead of second place Alice Gray (78-61). Alice Ballard was third with scores of 76 and 64.

Mrs. Dillard took closest to pin (number five) honors with her placement just 9 feet, one-half inch away. Esther Guelker was second, 16'5" away. Longest Drive winners were, according to flight, Mrs. Hopper, Mrs. Pickering and Joycelyn Holder.

Bid Gets Special Shoe

BALTIMORE (AP)—Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Spectacular Bid has been fitted with a special shoe to protect the hoof that was punctured by a safety pin the day of the Belmont Stakes.

A protective plate was attached to the shoe Wednesday by Jack Reynolds, a Detroit blacksmith.

Trainer Bud Delp said Bid missed Wednesday's workout because of the sore hoof, but would be back on the track today wearing the special shoe.

"He was ouchy Monday morning after galloping two miles," Delp said. "Before he went out, he was okay. The iodine treatment has toughened the area where the pin went in, and there seemed to be no infection."

States Ready For Pan-Am

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)-Harvey Glance and Wilie Smith, two speedsters from Alabama, hold the key to the United States' chances of regaining its overwhelming superiority in the Pan-American Games, which open officially here Sunday.

Glance of Phenix City, Ala., will be up against Silvio Leonard of Cuba, the favorite in the 100-meter dash. Smith of Auburn, Ala., will try to defeat Cuba's Alberto Juantorena in the 400 meters. Juantorena, who won both the 400 and 800 meters in the 1976 Montreal Olympics, split two races with Smith earlier this year.

They will be just four of the 5,500 athletes to compete in the largest Pan-American Games, a two-week event staged every four years. Athletes representing 34 countries, all from the Western Hemisphere, will compete.

The United States and Cuba are expected to dominate.

Tough competition is also expected in the team sports - basketball, baseball and volleyball. Bobby Knight, coach of the University of Indiana and the U.S. basketball team, will bring a young squad to the Games, but one that has been described as fast and strong on defense.

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

The Snyder Daily News
will keep the spider away from your door

STRUGGLING SIBLINGS-No other sport has grown as rapidly as tennis in recent years. Featuring tournaments almost year round for the competitive, tennis is also a fun sport for young and old, man or woman. Above, these beginners are a far cry from Wimbledon, but who can tell what the future brings? Members of the Scurry County Boy's Club, the kids are, clockwise from top left, Kim James, Corey Miller, Willie Greathouse and Kenneth Irwin. SHS Coach Bill Boles helps these youngsters, and offers an even more comprehensive program each morning at the high school. (SDN STAFF PHOTOS)

Houston Slips One; Giants Needed That

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - "Hopefully," said San Francisco Giants' leadoff batter Bill North, "this will be a turning point. Psychologically, you don't want to fall too far back.

"If we lost this one, we would have been nine-and-a-half games behind," noted North, whose two-run single helped the Giants score six runs in the eighth inning for a dramatic 6-3 victory over the division-leading Houston Astros Wednesday night.

North, who leads the national league with 52 walks and is second in runs scored with 56, tied the game with his single off reliever Tom Dixon, 1-2, and then scored the go-ahead run on Willie McCovey's bases-loaded single off Joe Sambito.

Houston right-hander Ken Forsch, making his first appearance since May 17 after coming off the disabled list, sailed into the eighth with a three-hitter and a 3-0 lead.

One-out singles by Johnnie LeMaster and Marc Hill got the Giants going. Pinch-batter Mike Ivie followed with a run-scoring double chasing Forsch.

North greeted Dixon with his two-run single, then stole second and went to third on catcher Bruce Bochy's throwing error. Terry Whitfield walked and Jack Clark slapped a grounder to third baseman Enos Cabell.

North was trapped between third and home, but managed to beat Bochy's throw back to Cabell, leaving bases loaded.

Sambito took over and McCovey grounded an off-field single to left. Darrell Evans added a two-run double.

"North has been amazing," offered Evans. "He should be in the All-Star Game. Bill give us an element we never had before. He's easily been our most valuable player."

'Players' Notes Final Deadline

Tomorrow is the final day to enter the 'Players' Tennis Tournament, scheduled here July 2-3-4.

The annual tournament features junior and adult divisions, 10-12-14-16-18 boys and girls doubles and singles, mens and womens doubles and singles, mixed doubles, 40 and over mens play, and parent-child doubles.

Registration fee is $4 per person per event, and players are limited to a maximum of two events. Awards will be presented for first and second places.

Junior play will open the three-day tournament Monday morning at 9 a.m. Adult competition will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The tournament will be headquartered at the Snyder High School courts.

To enter, inform Jack McGlaun at P.O. Box 127, Snyder 79549, or call 915-573-3344.

The Cincinnati Bengals picked defensive back Jim Browner of Notre Dame in the 1979 NFL Draft. Jim's brother, Ross, is a star defensive lineman for Cincinnati.

Again, in the final pathologic diagnoses, Dr. Trotter stated: "Death probably due to respiratory depression secondary to ingestion or injection of Dilaudid."
Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway, who had delayed an official ruling on the woman's death pending the findings of the autopsy, indicated yesterday he would rule death was caused by an overdose.
When contacted this morning, Greene said he plans to submit the case to the grand jury when it convenes July 9.
"I think we know what the source was," Green said, "and we will present the evidence that we have connecting the death with the source."

Big Spring Plans Run

BIG SPRING--The Big Spring YMCA will hold a marathon run July 21 at 7 p.m. A five mile and ten mile course will start at the local Y, 801 Owens.
Posted courses will be available. Entry fee is $8 per person, and competitors will receive a T-shirt and individual pictures during the marathon.
Entry deadline is July 17. Awards will be given to each age group in each distance. Groups include 18 and under, 19-29, 29-39, and 40 and over.
For further information, contact Nadine Teague at 915-267-8234.

Peace Corps Reorganized

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Peace Corps is being partially reorganized out of ACTION, the umbrella agency for volunteer programs.
ACTION officials announced Wednesday that the Peace Corps is being returned to an essentially independent status with Director Richard Geleste having control over his budget, administrative and policy decisions and personnel operations. The plan was drawn up under congressional pressure and a White House directive. Most of it takes effect immediately.

BIRTHS

One name was misspelled in the birth announcements of Wednesday's Snyder Daily News.
The correct spelling of an infant born Tuesday in Houston is Kutter Dan Callaway. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kinne Callaway of Spring, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan E. Callaway of Snyder.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Hembree are parents of a daughter born at Cogdell Hospital at 8:55 p.m. June 27. She weighed 9 lbs. 3 ozs. The Hembrees reside at 2008 39th.

Larry and Pam Collum of Aspermont are parents of a son born Sunday, June 24 at Stamford Memorial Hospital. He weighed 7 lbs. 8 ozs. and has been named James Todd. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Travis Collum of Aspermont and Mr. and Mrs. Joe James of 411 26th St.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Key of Ira are parents of a 9 lb. 3½ oz. baby girl born Tuesday, June 26 at 10:17 a.m. at Malone-Hogan Hospital, Big Spring. She has been named Lesley Robin. She has a brother Reagan, 2½. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bob McMullan and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Key, all of Snyder.

Windfall Profits Tax Debated

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some Texas congressmen who would prefer no "windfall profits" tax at all will be pushing today for the mildest version available, an estimated $23.9 billion bite on the extra profits decontrol is expected to bring the oil companies from 1980 to 1984.

"It only is attractive in a relative sense - that it is a lesser evil than what the committee has passed out. Hopefully the Senate will have better judgment," U.S. Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said Wednesday.

The more votes for the probable losing side they can muster as a show of strength, opponents of a windfall tax argue, the easier it will be for the tax to be decreased when it reaches the Senate.

"It appears to me that we'll end up with some sort of a tax. This seems very strange to me that we are preventing the ability to produce more oil which we so desperately need," Archer said.

The Houston congressman, and others in the normally pro-oil business Texas delegation, maintain the tax will discourage the independent oil producers who make the most discoveries from looking for new sources.

The House will be voting on a bill to tax the profits which President Carter's phased decontrol of domestic production is expected to bring the oil companies. The main version would raise $29.1 billion from the $65 billion oil companies are expected to receive as a result of decontrol from 1980 to 1984.

Existing state and federal taxes would take $22.9 billion, leaving about $13 billion of the new revenue for the companies.

U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, disagreed with the prevailing state delegation view. He said he planned to vote for the stiffer tax as a way to compensate for the inflated costs which decontrol will bring.

He said he would have preferred price controls to stay in place until 1981 during this inflationary period, thus creating no windfall profits to tax.

"I'm really unhappy about the whole approach. We really ought to be talking about inflation, rather than decontrol and taxation. Considering what has been done, some of this inflated cost ought to be recouped and in some ways used for the results of inflation," he said.

Eckhardt, of Houston, said he did not think that a windfall profits tax will affect production. The additional revenue left to the companies should be adequate for exploration, he said.

Clements Raises Money At Austin Chickenfest

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Bill Clements turned his "Rubber Chicken" campaign incident into a $55,000-plus money raiser Wednesday night.

During his quest against Democrat John Hill in the governor's race last year, Clements startled an Amarillo audience by holding up a rubber chicken.

The Republican said he would hang Jimmy Carter "like a dead chicken" around his opponent's neck. According to the governor's press secretary, Jon Ford, Clements then walked over toward Hill's seat and put it on the table. The chicken then rolled toward the plate of the Amarillo mayor's wife, who was sitting next to Hill.

After six months in office, Clements and his campaign treasurer Jim Francis threw an Austin Chickenfest Wednesday for $25-a-ticket at a country-and-western night spot. Rubber chickens hung from the ceiling of the shell building.

It's all an attempt to retire the $2.8 million debt remaining from Clements' record $7.1 million run at the governor's mansion. More than half, or $4.75 million, of his total spending was borrowed.

To help the governor's campaign committee, some 2,200 people dined on Colonel Sander's special recipe at the Silver Dollar North and listened to Alvin Crow and the Pleasant Valley Boys.

Clements and his wife, Rita, also hosted a smaller, $500-a-couple reception attended by 250 persons at the governor's mansion before joining the larger crowd.

After the governor introduced Rita as his "partner and bedmate," he remembered the Amarillo chicken-throwing.

"I said many times in the campaign I was going to hang that situation of Mr. Carter around my opponent and I was going to hang it like an old dead chicken," Clements told the laughing crowd.

"It was a joke of sorts. I felt it was a proper joke," he said.

"Rita didn't, but I did."

His sentiments about Carter have not changed, he assured them.

"I guarantee you that I'm going to hold that old dead chicken, Mr. Carter, around the neck of the Democratic Party in 1980," he said to applause.

A few state agency heads and lobbyists mingled in the crowd, composed mostly of Clements supporters from Austin and surounding counties. Francis said other fundraisers will be held to retire the debt.

Clements, wearing an Hawaiian-style print shirt, put in a pitch for his "no-tie" summer and higher thermostat settings.

"I don't believe this thermostat is set at 76," he said.

"Thank God," a man replied.

Grasshopper Control Effort Expanding

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department's program to control what it calls the worst grasshopper infestation in 21 years has been expanded from 4 million to 5 million acres, with 100 of the bugs chewing on every square yard in some areas.

James O. Lee, deputy administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the situation was "bad last year, when we had to treat a total of 836,000 acres."

Nebraska, Oregon and Texas are the worst affected this year, with 1 million acres each being attacked as of Wednesday.

Neilsen Rates 'Prime Time'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"If I don't make it in this structure," Tom Snyder recently said of "Prime Time," his news magazine venture, "I will go away."

From the Neilsen ratings company comes news that may be received with mixed emotions -- Snyder, NBC's journalist-entertainer, will stay. At least for awhile.

Snyder's NBC show now called "Prime Time Sunday" because of copyright problems made its debut last Sunday and drew ratings numbers stunningly superior to those of its predessessor, "Weekend."

Of 65 prime-time network shows rated by Neilsen for the weekend ending last Sunday, "Prime Time Sunday" finished 25th, with a 29 percent share of the audience. If that doesn't sound like unqualified success, consider the showing of "Weekend":

Of the 114 prime-time programs in the September-April season, "Weekend" finished an inglorious No. 110 with a 17 percent share of the audience. Among the shows that were rated higher were the forgettable "Apple Pie" ABC and "American Girls" CBS.

"60 Minutes," the CBS news magazine that begged imitation by becoming a big revenue earner, finished eighth over the course of the season, with an average 41 percent share of the audience.

True, the debut success of "Prime Time" is subject to qualification - it was far behind "60 Minutes," which rated No. 5, and many viewers may have tuned in out of curiosity. But it was an improvement, and has the advantage of gathering steam this summer while the other networks are playing reruns.

The debut show drew heavily on style rather than substance, relying on Snyder-as-personality and studio gimmicks for its "look." Perhaps assuming that we're all fascinated by this wonderful toy, television, the "bumpers" - the few seconds leading into commercials - were all dedicated to the sight and sound of a young woman counting down the seconds to the break.

"Five, four, three, two, one... Then, presto! We're into a commercial. Zowie, wow, ain't that magic! It's one of those self-conscious stunts you'd have thought television got out of its system two decades ago.

BUCKLE DESIGN--This is the design for the commemorative belt buckles to be issued by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce in sets of sterling silver and brass. The chamber plans to issue 351 sets, with the first going to the Scurry County Museum for permanent display and the remaining 350 numbered sets to be sold.

Sponsored By Chamber...

Registration Planned For Belt Buckle Sets

A limited edition of a commemorative belt buckle set will be issued by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, and those who wish to reserve sets will have opportunity to do so between now and the chamber's banquet set for Sept 20.

The chamber is planning to offer 350 of the belt buckle sets, which will depict the history of Scurry County. The two buckle sets will include one done in solid sterling silver, and another in brass.

Points of registration will be set up soon, said Bill Warner, chamber manager for the convenience of those who wish to reserve the belt buckle sets. The sets will be numbered and the No. 1 set will be placed in the Scurry County Coliseum for permanent display.

On the night of the chamber banquet, there will be a drawing of names of those who have registered by that date for the next 20 sets, No. 2 through No. 21. Subsequent drawings will determine the order of distribution for the remainder of the issue.

The buckle sets will come in attractive wooden cases with name plates on the cases.

Chamber officials said there already had been considerable interest expressed in the buckle sets, which will have intrinsic as well as historical value.

The project developed when the Board of County Development agreed to make the buckle design and dye available to the chamber. The BCD is in the process of acquiring a number of souvenir type buckles to be used for promotional purposes.

Exact price of the buckle sets has not been determined. However, Warner said indications are they will sell for around $300 per set.

There also will be prints of the original design which will be made available.

Daum Glass

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special exhibition, "Daum: One Hundred Years of Glass," is on view at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology through August.

The museum says Daum is "one of France's finest glassworks, noted for its Art Nouveau and Art Deco pieces."

Today's Young Scientists Shine

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—We dissected worms and frogs a decade ago in Mr. Rodgers' required sophomore biology class at Paris, Texas, High School. I don't know what they did in chemistry or physics - I dodged the first and dozed through the latter.

But 17-year-old Clarence Hebert Jr. of Berwick, La., one of 452 calculator-toting little geniuses at the 30th International Science and Engineering Fair, built himself an almost human, radio-controlled robot that mows the grass and vacuums the carpet.

Fifteen-year-old Maria Conover designed a revolutionary new sea wall for preventing beach erosion in her hometown of Neptune Beach, Fla. She's applied for a patent. She's also in the ninth grade. Depressing, huh?

David C. Lingelbach, 17, of Brookfield, Wis., determined the protostellar properties of Jupiter or something like that and 18-year-old Bradley Brown of Fort Lupton, Colo., built his own laser.

Mitchell A. Gallagher, 16, of Jamestown, N.D., created his own clouds in a homemade chamber, in search of a better method of cloud seeding.

Sixteen-year-old Andrew Seville of Dallastown, Pa., designed and built a roving, self-controlled Mars probe with photocells and all sorts of other neat stuff in it. Meanwhile, David John Lvorak, 17, of Terre Haute, Ind., came up with an improved artificial foot.

We collected insects - water bugs, June bugs and ladybugs - in Mrs. Topp's life-science class. William Kulp, 17, of Dallastown, Pa., however, examined the effects of exposure to a magnetic field on Drosophila - fruit flies, they tell me. Eighteen-year-old Fran Brown, of Jackson, Ala., investigated the effects of coffee, tea and cola on the web-spinning behavior of the spider.

Neill Germann, 15, of Van Wert, Ohio, asked the ever-popular question: "Could TTL-Linear logic be utilized effectively in a multicourse collision avoidance-attack computer?"

Frankly, Neill, I dunno.

And 18-year-old Leslie Glasgow of Jackson, Miss., did something with mathematical matrices and music. She patiently tried to explain it to me in the simplest terms she could muster. I listened blankly, feeling about as intelligent as the earthworm I once dissected.

"The projects get better each year," said 18-year-old Greg Judy of Forgan, Okla., a three-year veteran of the international science fairs who designed a system to use wind to convert water into hydrogen to operate autos and heat homes.

"The engineering is up tremendously. Of course, there are more energy projects than ever this year," he added.

Judy, headed for Oklahoma State University and an engineering career "of some sort," is a member of a graduating class of 21 in his tiny Oklahoma town of 500. His science teacher, a biology major who coaches the football team, teaches chemistry and physics on alternate years.

The crucial part of Judy's project is an electrolytic cell he had to design himself, with the help of college textbooks his teacher scrounged up for him.

The top two winners of the fair earn a trip to Sweden for the next presentation of the Nobel Prizes.

Dr. Edward Roy, chairman of the Trinity University geology department who has been involved with the science fairs for 12 years, said the junior Einsteins wound up - not surprisingly - as successful doctors, engineers and researchers.

"There has been an evolution of scientific thought among young people," said Roy.

"They have access to ideas and equipment unthought of a decade ago," he added. "What is being taught in the eight-grade science classes today wasn't taught in high-school classes 10 years ago."

Aha! So that's why I don't know how to construct or operate a tracking fresnel solar concentrator like 17-year-old Barry Eppler of Louisville, Ky., does.

Agent Falls To Tokyo Security

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese fear of terrorist incidents is so all-pervading here, with heads of seven governments gathering at the economic summit meeting, that security is nearly suffocating.

One Secret Service agent who came here in advance of President Carter's arrival found the security more than he could handle.

At the end of a long, often-frustrating day, the agent cut loose at his hotel, grabbing a fire extinguisher and spraying those within range. The errant bodyguard was shipped home almost immediately.

Just last week, the 10-year-old daughter of an American who lives here crossed the street from her home to buy bread for her mother.

A Japanese policeman intercepted her and gave polite but firm orders that she not venture onto the streets alone again until Carter and company have left town.

Parents of American children attending school here were sent letters instructing them to never let their youngsters out of the house without an adult escort during the Carter visit.

The authorities are worried about terrorist kidnappings aimed at disrupting the summit.

The American delegation is staying at the ultra-fashionable Okura Hotel, across the street from the U.S. Embassy compound where the Carters are staying.

The hotel has two buildings and White House planners wanted to lodge Carter's traveling press corps in the same building that houses a sprawling press center.

No way, said Japanese security officials. Members of the American delegation are in that building and cannot be exposed to the risks posed by sharing elevators and hallways with members of the press.

This posed a special problem for White House press secretary Jody Powell, who usually meets privately in his suite with American reporters during international meetings.

Powell quickly discovered that the scores of Japanese plainclothesmen who are omnipresent at the hotel would not permit reporters to visit the U.S. spokesman's suite.

Packing his bags, Powell moved to the building assigned to the press contingent.

Ladd Leaving Top Position

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Alan Ladd Jr. earned almost $2 million a year and was responsible for the production of "Star Wars," the most successful movie ever. But he's stepping down as president of 20th Century-Fox Pictures when his contract expires.

Ladd, 41, will not renew his contract after Dec. 31, 1980, because of the burden of administrative work, according to Dennis Stanfill, the studio's chairman of the board.

"This prevented him from giving as much time to the production and marketing of pictures" as he would like, said a studio announcement Tuesday. Ladd also resigned from the Fox board of directors, effective immediately.

When thousands of Cubans fled to the United States in the early 1960s to escape Fidel Castro's regime, a generous Congress established a special federal program to help state and local governments assimilate the wave of refugees.

Almost two decades later, most of the Cubans are well-established members of their communities - but the federal assistance program and the government bureaucracy that administers it continue to consume millions of taxpayer dollars.

Calling the refugee program "one of the biggest rip-offs in the federal budget," Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., recently convinced the House Appropriations Committee to recommend termination of an operation that already has cost more than $1.4 billion.

"It's time to kill this turkey before it eats another load of corn," says Obey, noting that two-thirds of all Cubans now in the United States arrived more than 10 years ago and 95 percent of them have been in this country for at least five years.

Despite the Cubans' remarkable rate of economic and social integration, communities in Florida, California and other states continue to receive almost $50 million annually to administer the outdated program.

Officials from those communities already are lobbying to prevent the full House and the Senate from killing the refugee aid program.

we are not alone

The world's leading oil-producing nation is: 1) Saudi Arabia 2) Iran 3) the United States.

None of the above. It is the Soviet Union, by quite a few million barrels annually over any of its nearest competitors.

Soviet citizens not being energy consumers on the massive scale of Americans, they have been able in the past to meet their own largely industrial needs and supply their East European allies out of domestic production.

But even in the most resources-blessed of Marxist societies times change. Moscow is publicly acknowledging an approaching shortage, as predicted in a controversial CIA analysis of a year ago.

Officially, however, the blame is placed not on a production falloff but on waste and the Kremlin is instituting strict fuel-saving measures. In doing so there is at least one problem it doesn't have to deal with--millions of private vehicles lined up to take up and burning up gas in idling engines.

my turn

by john long

Having carefully thought this matter through, I have reached the conclusion that things are getting so fakey in California that even the nuts are leaving.

For the past three and a half years, I have interviewed all manner of eccentrics passing through Snyder en route to California. It was not until this past weekend that I had the chance to meet anyone leaving that sunshine state on the West Coast.

Then, all of a sudden, I met 63 people leaving California. One or two people going east from California might not have aroused my attention...but 63?

I think it means something, and I think it means that even the hardcore eccentrics are packing their bags and leaving in droves. For the first time in my life, I fear for the future of this country.

Heretofore, as long as the eccentrics, kooks, nuts, and assorted odd members of the human race kept to themselves in California, the rest of the country--and the world, for that matter--was a relatively safe and decent place to live. Now, I'm not so sure.

First, it was the 62 Christian bicyclists pedalling through town that got my attention. They were going from Salono Beach, Calif., to Saint Augustine, Fla.

Before leaving California, they dipped the bicycles' rear wheels in the Pacific. On arriving in Florida, they plan to dip their bicycles' front wheels in the Atlantic. Theirs is a 2,500-mile trip.

Then, there was the 25-year-old laser engineer who was rollerskating across the country. He was going from Los Angeles to New York, then turning around and going from New York back to Los Angeles. His is a trip of 7,000 miles.

I have never been to California, mind you, but I used to wonder what life there must be like. But when I see 63 eccentrics leaving California, I never want to visit that state.

I'm haunted by the fear that what I've seen from there so far has been the cream of the crop. What frightens me is that the really, really hardcore weirdos are still waiting to make their exodus.

So, fellow Snyderites, arm yourselves, lock yourselves indoors at night, and bolt the windows. No one throughout the world is safe any longer.

our biggest menace

Our nation's number one worry is inflation.

Our nation's number one menace is not Russia, China, Cuba or all three. It is not pollution or crime or corruption.

It is inflation.

Unless the erosion of our currency is brought under control, the United States--as we know it--will be modified to where you will not like what's left. We will have had revolution by evolution and it will not have been necessary for the Russians to fire a shot.

If we can agree on this priority then we may be able to gang up on our most dangerous adversary: inflation.

Inflation should be our nation's number one concern.

Wasteful government spending is the number one cause of inflation. We cannot remedy all of that waste at once--but we can desist at once from any and all unnecessary overseas spending.

America's multibillion dollar space research has cost Americans nothing. That money has not been an expenditure; it has been an "investment." Every dollar spent on exploring space is recirculating through the pockets of workers in the United States.

Similarly, money spent on sophisticated weapons for our military recirculates on the home front.

But money spent to maintain American footsoldiers overseas--that money is gone--never to return!

You don't see the Russians spending their rubles overseas. They are now spending 11 to 13 percent of their total GNP on military; we are spending 5 percent.

But more significant, Russian military spending is a lesser drain on Soviet resources because Russia is keeping her money at home.

Russia now has operational a better weapon for strategic purposes than our best--the new SS-20 multiple-warhead, mobile ballistic nuclear missile. More accurate, more flexible, less vulnerable.

Russian spending on research and development of new weapons is up 92 percent from 10 years ago; United States spending on research and development is down 19 percent.

From 1950 to 1965 the United States and Russia were neck-and-neck in the proportion of their budgets allocated to military purposes. But starting in 1965 the United States escalated its budget for what are called "social programs" --by 300 percent-allowing our stagnating military budget to be eroded by inflation.

America must keep a fist in the face of potential aggressor nations until we are certain they have learned their table manners.

That "fist" which cuts them down to our size is our technology.

Security for our six percent fraction of this planet's population cannot be measured in manpower. It must be measured in the foot pounds of destructive energy which one man is capable of delivering.

Technology, not masses of marching men.

And money spent on technology contributes both to our military security and our economic strength.

congressional comment

by charles stenholm, mc

WASHINGTON, D.C.--American foreign policy in Africa has often contained misconceptions and misunderstandings. Western civilization does not fully comprehend the tribal culture that pervades African society. Europeans colonized and exploited this continent during the 19th and early part of the 20th centuries. After World War II a wave of nationalism swept Africa and forced many European countries to abandon their former colonies.

The move toward independence was sometimes rapid and when the colonists moved out, the permanent inhabitants were left with few leaders able to run a national economy. Rival factions in some countries clashed for power and violence erupted in several places. In 1961 a civil war in the Congo nearly forced a Soviet-American confrontation. Too often in Africa there has not been a peaceful transition to majority rule. Human rights and fundamental liberties in many areas have proved an elusive concept.

We are now faced with one of the most sensitive issues confronting U.S.-African relations--whether or not to lift the economic sanctions against the country of Zimbabwe-Rhodesia. These sanctions were imposed internationally after the United Nations Security Council designated the government there illegally formed. However on April 22, 1979, nearly two million Rhodesians (65 percent of eligible voters) cast ballots for a new government. Based upon the information I have received and studied, I feel that the recent elections held in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia and the subsequent government, now installed, constitutes an adequate transition to the majority rule we all favor. In these elections, the balloting was secret, there was genuine competition, and no political parties were barred from participation in the elections.

Though the present situation in Rhodesia may seem to remain somewhat unfair," I feel that supporting this transition to democracy by lifting the sanctions is a better direction to take than to demand the continuation of sanctions until the proclaimed Marxist forces, called the Patriotic Front, have an equal role in a new government. They refused to participate in the recent elections and seem to prefer the use of force to accomplish their goals.

Rhodesia is capable of economic self-sufficiency. But we must lift sanctions so that trade can fluorish. Economic strength will do much to promote political stability. This country supplies 90 percent of the world's lithium which is used in space ships. They also mine copper, nickel, asbestos, and large amounts of chronium-all of these are important to an industrialized society. Economic self-sufficiency will be to the advantage of all Rhodesians--both blacks and whites.

The newly elected Prime Minister of Rhodesia, Bishop Muzorewa, expressed the situation well when he stated "Why on Earth would the British and Americans not recognize a government that has been set up by honest people who have tried to do it on a democratic basis?" It is my belief they should have our support.

WASHINGTON (NEA)-In this political city, reasoned debate and criticism have a way of degenerating into posturing and demagoguery. Such may be the case with Sen. Henry M. Jackson's recent accusation that President Carter has engaged in a policy of appeasement toward the Soviet Union.

Because Jackson, a Washington Democrat, has become a respected national figure during his 26 years in the Senate, critics may be inclined to treat him kindly and attribute his remarks to excessive zeal. They may be too kind.

In a speech delivered less than two days before Carter left Washington for his summit meeting with President Leonid Brezhnev, Jackson accused Carter of appeasing the Soviets on a range of issues, including emigration rights, trade and technology exchange in addition to arms control. Carter and his top aides were understandably upset.

Jackson kept up his criticism while Carter was in Vienna and after he returned, saying, "Concessions were made of a substantial nature to the Soviets and that is appeasement."

In answer to a reporter's question, the senator added, "Appeasement is not being a traitor, it is being foolish."

Jackson may try to soften the impact of his attack but he has raised one of the most highly charged terms in the lexicon of international politics, a condemnation made infamous by British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's yielding of Czechoslovakia to Hitler's Germany in 1938.

Dictionary definitions of appeasement refer to "political concessions at the sacrifice of principles" and "giving into the demands of a hostile power in an attempt to keep the peace."

Jackson's harsh language might be justified if the strategic arms control agreement (SALT II) represented an abdication of U.S. military strength. While there may be legitimate questions on some terms, the treaty is hardly a U.S. surrender.

For example, Jackson said the agreement permits the Soviet Union to have more strategic weapons that the United States.

The treaty, in fact, imposes a ceiling on the number of launchers - 2,250 in two years, fewer than the current Soviet total and more than the U.S. arsenal.

And Paul Nitze, a Jackson confidant and treaty opponent, has calculated that under the agreement the United States probably will continue to have several thousand more warheads on those launchers that the Soviets. Jackson and Nitze say the Soviets have more powerful bombs, but the truth is that each side can decimate the other with a small share of its weapons.

Jackson's hard line does not extend only to SALT II. Carter and many members of Congress want to increase trade with the Soviet Union, which would cut the U.S. trade deficit.

But Jackson is insisting that no concessions should be made until the Soviets give formal assurances that they will allow free emigration from their nation, as they have done to an unprecedented extent in the past 18 months. The senator's hard line may simply stiffen the back of Soviet officials.

Another source of Jackson's reputed strength is his chairmanship of the Senate Energy and Natural resources Committee, where he has been highly critical of the energy companies. But Jackson's bluster frequently has exceeded his achievements.

In 1977, Carter allowed James R. Schlesinger an intimate Jackson associate nearly free rein in preparing the administration's energy policy in a manner designed to win Jackson's support. Carter's proposal was annihilated in the Senate.

Ironically, Jackson is now leading the fight to reverse Carter's decision to phase out oil price controls, but he has practically no chance of winning in the Senate.

As Jackson increases his strident rhetoric, he may further undermine his declining Senate power. But as sad as is his personal loss of stature and grace, far more damaging could be the national impact of his "appeasement" charge. If we are fortunate, the debate will rise above the level he has set.

Face the Music Key-Bored Kids!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: LONG-SUFFERING DAD, critical of parents who force their children to take music lessons, said: "I think forcing music lessons on a child is a form of child abuse!"

You let that go by without comment, Abby. For the record, I'm among those who resisted music lessons, preferring football, basketball, baseball—anything to an hour's daily practice. But my mother forced me to continue taking piano lessons and to practice an hour a day.

After about 10 years I got pretty good at it, and have enjoyed playing the piano for much of my life. I also learned a great deal about discipline, poise under pressure at recitals, as well as the joy of music.

If forcing music lessons on a child is "child abuse," what would you say to forcing a child to learn English, history, math and science? Most youngsters would prefer to run free to "do their own thing" rather than something that demands concentration, discipline and a commitment of time and effort.

BOB L. IN BLACK BUTTE

DEAR BOB: My mail ran about 50-to-1 against "forcing music lessons on kids." Now hear this:

DEAR ABBY: I read with special interest the letters on forcing children to study music; I was part of that scene for many years.

I taught piano for over 50 years. When I first started I charged 50 cents a lesson, and those days that was a lot of money to most people.

Some of my beginners hated piano from the start and wanted to quit, but their parents wouldn't hear of it, so they'd come for lessons week after week without having looked at their music books. What a waste of time! Theirs and mine.

A few of my students were so hopeless I threatened to quit giving them lessons, then their parents would beg me to keep them, and of course I did – partly because I needed the $2 a month and partly because I reasoned that what little they learned would be better than total ignorance.

There are some parents who use a musical education as a form of discipline. They are convinced that it builds a child's character to do something he hates!

FORMER PIANO TEACHER (now 84)

DEAR TEACHER: Most kids are forced to do two things they "hate" every day: 1) get up in the morning; 2) go to sleep at night.

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago our small gift shop was robbed.

A few days ago a young man came into the shop, introduced himself and asked to meet the owners. We identified ourselves as the owners, then he told us that he and two other boys had committed the robbery. He apologized and made full restitution for the merchandise stolen, plus 8 percent interest for the 10 years!

The money will be used for a good cause.

Women Still At Bottom

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — The hostess of NBC's "Today" show says that despite the visibility of women in broadcasting, generally they're still at the bottom of the business.

"Most women are not yet sitting on boards of directors," Jane Pauley said in an address to the 45th annual convention of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters, which ended Tuesday.

She said a male's earnings potential is still greater than that of a woman, and the odds are still in favor of the young white males when it comes to getting hired.

SALT Could Warm Soviet Relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S.-Soviet relations, on the cool side since World War II, will warm up appreciably if the Senate ratifies the new strategic arms treaty.

But good conditions will depend on Soviet conciliation in three other areas as well - easing the plight of dissidents, reducing non-nuclear weapons, and cooperating in Africa and the Middle East.

It was hard to detect much headway on these three fronts at President Carter's summit meeting in Vienna with Leonid Brezhnev.

But U.S. officials haven't given up hope.

Negotiations to curb U.S. and Soviet arms sales to some areas of the world may resume soon. And the Russians may oppose but not veto U.N. peacekeepers to monitor the Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

SALT II provides a solid basis for trust. The two superpowers have joined in a common effort to slow down the nuclear weapons race, although they are not about to end it.

Carter and Soviet leader Brezhnev are tied together by a common goal – gaining support for SALT II at home. Carter must win the votes for ratification in the Senate. Brezhnev has to retain support for the agreement with the Soviet military and other hard-liners.

The treaty is recognition that survival depends on some cooperation between the two superpowers. The Cold War has probably passed permanently into history.

But in other respects, U.S. and Soviet interests are in collision in much of the world. As the two nations compete for advantage, their relationship is bound to suffer, even if the treaty wriggles through the Senate unscathed.

In western humanist tradition, the United States supports freedom of expression in the Soviet Union. It wants to enhance the rights of Jews and other minorities, particularly the right to emigrate.

The Soviets consider this interference in their internal affairs. But to gain support for the treaty, and to try to win trading privileges, they apparently are willing to put up with a certain measure of it.

Jewish emigration is up, and some important dissenters have been freed. But many others remain in jail.

And SALT II does not end the arms race, nuclear or conventional. The Vienna summit gave no apparent boost to stalled talks on banning underground nuclear weapons tests or on reducing NATO and Warsaw Bloc forces in Central Europe.

In Africa, Cuban surrogates are busy promoting Soviet interests. In the Middle East, the Russians are lined up with the Arabs who reject the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The Carter administration's hope, of course, is that the SALT II treaty to encourage the Soviets to modify, or at least soft-pedal, some of their more irritating policies.

Recent history suggests any change will be minimal.

Robison May Return To Airwaves

DALLAS (AP)—James Robison, a crusading evangelist whose television series was canceled after a program critical of the homosexual lifestyle, told an overflow crowd at Dallas' First Baptist Church Tuesday that he has reached an agreement allowing him to return to the airwaves.

Robison was canceled by WFAA-TV in Dallas, citing the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine. His Feb. 25 telecast sparked protests from the gay community.

"We never objected to his being on the air," said Louise Young president of the Dallas Gay Political Caucus. "We objected to his derogatory use of homosexuality in a political context."

She said the caucus would not object to Robison's reinstatement but would "urge him to stick to the Bible and not the political."

Robison said he did not regard his agreement with WFAA-TV as a victory. "I'd like to just say God has answered prayer," he said.

The agreement was hammered out at the church just prior to services, a Robison aide said.

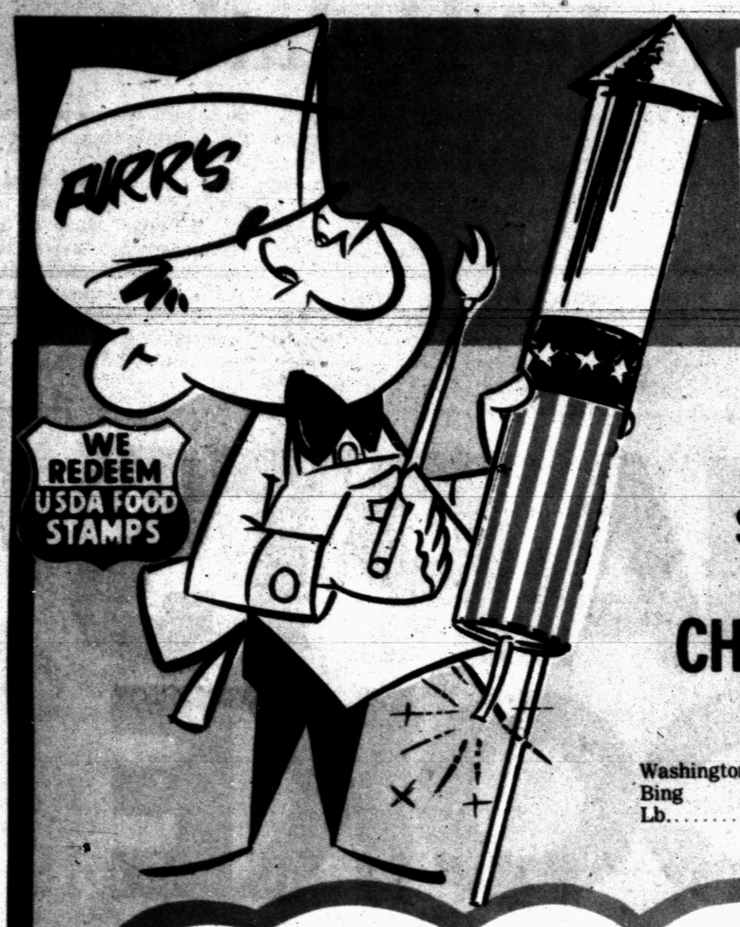

"I don't have to compromise my message or my convictions. We have a full understanding together. I feel like I can abide by any policy they have without compromising my message.

"They feel the very same way."

THIS EWE HAS TRIPLETS! She is half Finnsheep, a crossbreed prone to multiple births, according to an Agriculture Department geneticist. The department estimates that increased use of such ewes would lower the costs to farmers of producing a pound of lamb by 20 to 25 percent.

Making Player Pianos Taylor Man's Pastime

TAYLOR, Texas (AP)—It looks like something out of a Rube Goldberg cartoon. But when Louis Kubala hooks up his contraption to a vacuum cleaner and drops in a quarter, the rattle, clang and plink are music to his ears.

Kubala's contraption is a coinola - a player piano with some added instrumentation.

As the roll unwinds, the hammer strikes the strings, the drum keeps the beat, and the tambourine, triangle and cow bell accept the rhythms of the wood block to such old favorites as "Romano," "At Sundown," "Me and My Shadow," and "Makin' Whoopee."

But Kubala, a 68-year-old machinist from this Central Texas community, says he is not a musician, he "just bangs around on the piano by ear. I don't read music, but I do a little piano tuning."

His interests in the mechanical bands began several years ago when he repaired a player piano at a steakhouse in Little River.

He didn't know anything about repairing player pianos, but he used his mechanical experience and intuition to rebuild and construct parts needed to operate the instrument.

"It's not real hard work," said Kubala. "You just have to keep after it. You might say the guy with the mostest, gets it."

The old player pianos are operated by air forced into the machine through foot pumps, he said. As the music roll passes over the tracker bar, the air passage is opened, and the bellows close, causing the hammer to strike the strings.

Kubala uses a vacuum cleaner motor to supply the air force. The instrument has over 435 feet of neoprene tubing running from the tracker bar to the 88 bellows.

The lower octave and a half are used to operate the added instruments.

"The parts alone usually cost about $1,200," he said. "It will cost you about $4,000 to convert a player piano. Right now, I'm building my second coinola which will probably sell for around $5,000.

But the money is not the only reward Kubala receives for a few hours of tinkering on the converted pianos.

"Neighbors stop by frequently to hear the coinola play," he said. "Kids are especially intrigued by the music and the mechanisms that operate the instruments. In fact, one youngster thinks it would go over great at a teen disco in Austin.

"But it's no work for me," he laughed. "I just sit back, prop my feet up, and drop the quarter in."

Atlanta Commutors Get Rapid Transit System

By JON BIXBY
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP)—The first link of Atlanta's long-awaited rapid transit system - the first in the south - goes into service Saturday, fulfilling a promise that many felt would never be kept.

Gas-conscious commuters on the city's East Side are expected to flock to the 6.7-mile rapid rail line that for 25 cents will carry the rider from suburban Decatur and Avondale Estates to state offices and Georgia State University downtown.

The "East line," as it is known, is just part of a planned 52.9-mile system, scheduled for completion in 1989, that will link Hartsfield International Airport and other outlying areas with the downtown business district.

"It's a modest beginning but it's a start," says Alan F. Kiepper, who has piloted the project through political squalls for seven years - since long before the current gas crisis turned Americans' thinking to mass transit.

Rail commuter systems drew little interest for decades as auto travel grew, but both San Francisco and Washington have opened downtown rail lines in the past decade, and such lines are being developed in Buffalo, N.Y., Miami, and Baltimore.

In Atlanta, citizens were openly skeptical when the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority announced plans in the early '70s for a high-speed rail system deep beneath the heart of the capital city.

Construction delays and skyrocketing costs heightened that skepticism. MARTA officials originally said the entire system could be completed by 1980 at a cost of $1.3 billion. It is now scheduled to be completed in 1989 at an estimated cost of $3.2 billion.

But the streamlined silver and black MARTA test trains zipping along at speeds up to 70 miles per hour along the graceful elevated arch of the East line have quieted many of the skeptics.

And Kiepper, MARTA's general manager, has taken steps to assure that Saturday's opening will be incident free. Scheduled for last Christmas, the opening was delayed for six months to work bugs out of the rail cars that arrived from France behind schedule.

And to steer clear of problems encountered by San Francisco's BART system, MARTA abandoned plans for a fully-automated line, choosing instead a semi-automated one, controlled in part by operators.

"Full automation depends on high technology, and if there are problems, you're really in trouble. Computers do go down," Kiepper said in a recent interview.

Otherwise, the east line represents the latest in rapid transit technology.

Cuyahoga River Has Improved

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ten years ago, Cleveland became the butt of jokes nationwide when the heavily industrialized city's fouled and debris-ridden Cuyahoga River caught fire.

Never mind the fact that the river had also burned in 1936 and 1952 - it was the June 22, 1969, blaze that sparked the nation's imagination.

Today officials say that while the river, which empties into Lake Erie, is not completely clean, much of the oily slime that fed the flames of the 1969 fire has disappeared. And best of all, a few forms of marine life have come back.

River watchers and those who work along its banks say the water has changed from a murky black to a more normal brown.

"It's improved," said Douglas C. Hasbrouck, chief of the Northeast District Office of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

"It's not a suitable habitat for warm-water fish, but it isn't a septic tank anymore," he said.

Cannot Punish For Publishing Youths' Names

WASHINGTON (AP)-A state cannot punish a newspaper for accurately publishing the name of a juvenile charged with a crime, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

In an 8-0 decision, the court said it has held in a number of cases, as it did in this one, "that if a newspaper lawfully obtains truthful information about a matter of public significance, then state officials may not constitutionally punish publication of the information."

The case concerned the publishing the name of a juvenile by the Charleston W.Va. Daily Mail and the Charleston Gazette. Reporters for both papers had obtained the name of a 14-year-old who allegedly shot a classmate simply by asking various witnesses, the police and a prosecutor.

Reruns Dominate Television Slate

NEW YORK (AP)-It was a week heavy with reruns, and that fact may have given a boost to the premiere episode of "Prime Time Sunday," NBC's new entry in the news-magazine field.

Indeed, the reception for "Prime Time Sunday" - ranked 25th among 65 programs checked by the A.C. Nielsen Co. during the week ending June 24 - would be encouraging to NBC under any circumstances.

The rating for the NBC News production's first show was 15.5, more than five points better than the average for "Weekend," NBC's entry last season.

Other programs being broad-cast for the first time - only 16 shows during the week had not been seen in full before - did well, including "Julie Farr, M.D." on ABC, No. 15, and "Carter Country," likewise from ABC, No. 22 in the ratings.

But it was an old standby, and a repeat episode at that, at the top of the heap - ABC's "Three's Company" the most-watched show for the sixth week in a row. The rating for "Three's Company" was 24.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, nearly a quarter saw at least part of the program.

NBC has been quite definite about its commitment to "Prime Time Sunday," which features Tom Snyder, host of the network's late night "Tomorrow" show. "Weekend" suffered in comparison to the competition, and relatively speaking, the takeoff for "Prime Time Sunday" was a good one.

CBS' "60 Minutes," consistently among the highest-rated programs, was No. 5 for the week, with a 21.9 rating, and ABC's "20-20" finished 41st for the week, with a rating of 12.7.

Double Slaying

AUSTIN (AP)—A Houston man is in Travis County jail charged with capital murder in the double slaying of a motorcyclist and his girlfriend whose bodies were found Sunday.

Edward Stephen Hollomon, 27, is being held without bond in the deaths of Robert Thomas Carter, 29, of Brownwood and Merlina Marie Shippey, 18, of Dallas.

Carter's body was found Sunday at a U.S. 290 roadside park five miles east of Elgin in Bastrop County. Miss Shippey's body was found the same day a short distance south of U.S. 290 three miles east of Manor in Travis County.

Murder charges were filed againsnt Hollomon both in Bastrop and Travis counties.

Doctor Charged With Mailing Bomb To Wife

KNOXVILLE, Tenn (AP)—A Knoxville physician was held in the Knox County Jail under $100,000 bond today on charges of mailing a bomb to his former wife in Kerrville, Texas, two weeks ago.

U.S. Magistrate Robert Murrian said Dr. M. Dean Loftis, 28, was arrested by federal marshals on a warrant returned Tuesday by a federal grand jury in San Antonio, Texas. Murrian set a hearing for July 3 on the government's petition to take Loftis to San Antonio for trial.

The indictment accuses Loftis of mailing a package containing a stick of dynamite to Francisca Gonzales Loftis at the Sid Peterson Hospital in Kerrville, where she is a nurse. Officials in Roane County, Tenn., said Loftis had been arrested Monday in Kingsville by sheriff's deputies on charges of failing to make child support payments and had been released Tuesday after paying $5,000 of $9,000 in arrearage.

Kerrville Police Sgt. Al Rays said Mrs. Loftis called police after receiving a package June 13 with two wires protruding from the wrapping.

A San Antonio police bomb squad came the 65 miles to Kerrville and defused the bomb in the basement of the hospital, Rays said. Police said the complicated mechanism was geared to detonate if one of the wires were removed from the dynamite.

Roane County officials said the Loftises were divorced there last November.

Dealing with cataracts

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have cataracts and can't wear glasses touching the sides of my nose where glasses normally rest, so I'd be most interested in finding out about the removal of cataracts if this is possible. I'm quite far advanced now. Recently I read an article in our local paper about 51 rabbits developing cataracts after repeated exposure to microwave radiation. What I'd like to know is: Are there experiments being done on how to reverse cataracts?

DEAR READER — There are some enthusiasts who believe that you can reverse cataracts with drops, diets and other procedures, but after careful review by qualified ophthalmologists, it is the opinion of the American Ophthalmology Service that the only effective treatment available for cataracts is surgical removal.

Some of the confusion may be related to differences in animal research and human responses. And some of the confusion may also be due to misinterpretation of what is a cataract and what is a vacuole (bubble) in the lens.

There are basic reasons why people develop cataracts. Almost everyone develops some form of cataracts if they live long enough, even if it's not large enough or in the right location to interfere with vision.

You see, the lens of the eye is really a form of specialized skin. As your skin regenerates, the cells are sloughed off the surface. This cannot happen inside the eye, so the old cells are pushed to the center of the lens. The new cells are always on the outside of the globular lens. In the course of time, the center of the lens becomes packed with dense old cells. These become opaque, and it's difficult to transmit light through the lens.

When all the lens is involved to such an extent that it becomes white or is unable to transmit light, it's called a mature cataract.

There are a number of other factors that will contribute to cataracts. Diabetics are more prone to developing them earlier in life. Radiation can be a factor in causing them. And there's a body of evidence that indicates that ultraviolet rays from sunlight may be an important factor.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-6 on cataracts to give you more information about them, when you should have surgery and what can be done. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you have cataract surgery, you will probably be able to use contact lenses after the eyes have healed. This will get away from your problem with the pressure of the cataract glasses on the sides of your nose. I would like to add that not everyone who has cataracts necessarily requires surgery. Sometimes the vision is still adequate for that particular person's needs.

In other instances, there is another disease in the eye, which means that removal of the cataracts wouldn't necessarily result in a significant improvement in vision. Each case has to be evaluated by a competent ophthalmologist before a decision is made relative to the merits of surgery.

The peace of Vereeniging brought the South African War to an end in 1902. The war was the result of years of friction between Britain and independent Dutch-speaking states. After the Boers surrendered, they were granted limited independence in exchange for declaring themselves subjects of the king.

Construction Delayed In Nuke Plants

HOUSTON (AP)-Construction on one South Texas nuclear plant has been delayed because voids were discovered in a protective concrete wall, and the licensing of another has been opened to more citizen intervention.

Houston Lighting & Power runs both projects - the South Texas nuclear power plant near Bay City and the proposed Allens Creek plant near Wallis about 45 miles from downtown Houston.

H&P spokesman Graham Painter said Monday concrete work at the South Texas Project will be stopped until the company knows how the voids happened and how to prevent them.
