Reagan 'confident' about interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, preparing for the first interview in almost 25 years between an American president and Soviet journalists, was expecting to be grilled about the summit and superpower relations but was confident he would not be tricked by hard-nosed questions, officials said.

In a half-hour session in the Oval Office today, Reagan was to answer questions posed by four Moscow journalists who are experts on the United States and international affairs.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the interview will be published in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, probably on Sunday, 16 days before the opening of Reagan's two-day summit in Geneva with Soviet chief Mikhail Gorbachev.

Alexander Shalnev, the Washington-based correspondent of the Soviet news agency Tass, who helped arrange the interview, said Izvestia would print the full text. Speakes said the Soviets were free to "report it as they wish to report it."

Two White House officials, speaking privately, said they did not expect the Soviet journalists to be too hard on Reagan.

"I think they'll be very respectful. They don't have the tradition of pushing government officials hard," said one official who specializes in foreign policy.

Another official said Reagan had reflected so much on the summit and prepared himself so well that "they're not going to ask him anything he hasn't thought of."

The official said the United States and Soviet Union both want the summit to succeed. "I simply find it impossible to believe that the Soviets would send anyone over here to do anything that might really jeopardize the atmosphere and poison the climate in the run up to the summit," the official said. "I don't think they put any trick plays in there."

The last time a U.S. president was interviewed by a Soviet journalist was on Nov. 25, 1961, when then-President John F. Kennedy was questioned in the living room of his home in Hyannisport, Mass. That session, conducted in the Cold War era, turned into a something of a debate between Kennedy and the journalist over Cuba, nuclear testing, arms control and human rights.

For Reagan, today's interview offered a unique chance to explain his views directly to the Soviet people.

In Brief

Jet explosive

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Authorities have questioned an Austin man whose wife and three children were aboard an American Airlines jet when an explosion rocked the plane moments after it landed at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The newspaper quoted airline and law enforcement authorities in saying the explosive was apparently inside a small cosmetic bag they believe was checked aboard the flight by the Austin man.

The man's wife and children were flying to D-FW to catch a connecting flight to Des Moines, Iowa, the newspaper reported.

The woman was also questioned and released, sources told the newspaper.

Sources told the newspaper that no motive has been found and no there are no firm suspects.

Keep Craxi

ROME (AP) — President Francesco Cossiga rejected the resignation of Socialist Premier Bettino Craxi today, and gave him the go-ahead to seek a new vote of confidence from Parliament for the coalition government that crumbled due to the Achille Lauro hijacking.

Cossiga's action had been expected after the five parties patched up their differences and adopted a compromise document on government policy Wednesday.

Slight growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic activity rose a barely perceptible 0.1 percent in September as the country's trade deficit soared to a record, the government reported today.

Fireworks cost

The Board of County Development Wednesday approved the BCD's participation in expenses related to the fireworks display last July 4th.

The board approved an expense of $1,813.

In other business, the BCD voted to send letters to involved officials protesting the proposed move from Scurry County of its entomologist office.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Wednesday, 65 degrees; low, 41 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Thursday, 41 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for month of October, 4.41 inches; total precipitation for 1985 to date, 27.09 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Tonight increasing cloudiness. Low in lower 40s and wind shifting to east northeasterly 5 to 15 mph. Friday cloudy, colder. A 20 percent chance of showers at any given location and high in lower 60s. Wind northeast 10 to 15 mph.

Labor force drop noted for county

Scurry County's labor force has declined more than 5 percent this year compared to last, according to officials with the Texas Employment Commission.

The figures reported Thursday reflect the month of September, and in actual numbers the county's labor force is set at 10,512 this year compared to 11,136 last year — a decline of 624.

Terence Travland, assistant chief of TEC's economic research department in Austin, attributed the drop to a combination of reduced activity in the oil field and a seasonal adjustment with the end of summer and the beginning of school.

Travland explained that the "labor force" figure is a combination of two factors, the number of people employed and the number who are not working but are actively seeking jobs. This second category is officially classified as the "unemployed."

Regarding a one-year comparison, the number of persons "unemployed" in Scurry County remains approximately the same, 353 this year compared to 394 last year.

But the number of "employed" individuals declined more than 5 percent over the 12-month period, going from 10,737 last September to 10,159 this year — a difference of 579 individuals.

The reduced labor force did contribute to the lowest unemployment percentage offered for the county during 1985.

Sports committee to solicit playoffs

Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors approved Wednesday a sports committee now charged with soliciting playoff games for the current football season.

Following the conclusion of this fall's playoff games, duties of the committee may be expanded to include other sports, chamber officials say.

The action came during a called meeting of the chamber which included a 1 hour, 45 minute closed session. The purpose of the closed meeting was listed as "to discuss chamber liability."

Regarding the playoff committee, Chamber Director Phil Fortune was named to chair it. In addition, the chamber board Thursday authorized committee members to meet with Snyder school trustees at a noon meeting of the board Friday.

At that meeting, they are to discuss the possibility of the school waiving some of the fees charged for use of Tiger Stadium for playoff games.

In other chamber business, the board approved letters to be sent protesting the possible relocation from Scurry County of the county entomologist's office. These letters are expected to be sent to Texas A&M Extension Service representatives, Texas Department of Agriculture officials and state-elected officials.

In addition, the chamber authorized members of its business development committee to appear before Snyder city council members Monday to discuss a "Shop Snyder" promotion this Christmas. Part of this discussion will involve a request for motel tax funds to help finance this.

Financing 'water' is goal of Prop. 1

(Editor's Note: The SDN continues its countdown review of the 14 constitutional amendments which will be decided by Texas voters Nov. 5. This issue features Proposition 1, which will be profiled in two parts. This issue explains the proposition and a subsequent article will offer arguments for and against. The following information has been provided courtesy of the League of Women Voters.)

PROPOSITION 1

If passed, this proposal would authorize the issuance of an additional $980 million of Texas Water Development Bonds guaranteed by the state's credit to create special water funds for specific projects outlined in the Texas Water Plan.

These relate to water conservation, water development, water quality enhancement, flood control, drainage, subsidence control, recharge, chloride control, agricultural soil and water conservation and desalinization.

Of the the $980 million:

—$400 million would go toward state participation in the construction of reservoirs and regional water and wastewater systems.

—$580 million would go to purchase bonds of political subdivisions such as cities or water districts. This would be further divided into $190 million for water supply projects; $190 million for water quality projects; and $200 million for flood control.

The amendment would also create a new state bond in-

Pledge sheets given for heart Turkeywalk

Pledge sheets for the American Heart Association's Nov. 9 Turkeywalk were distributed at a meeting of Turkeywalk Group Leaders Wednesday.

The event will begin at 9 a.m. Nov. 9, a Saturday, at Snyder Junior High School. It will cover a 10-mile route.

Walkers are asked to pick up pledge sheets and secure pledges before that date.

These sheets are available also at the Senior Citizens Center at 2603 Ave. M; from Bob Womack at Western Auto; from Bobby Beard at West Texas State Bank; or from group leaders.

These leaders include Gloria Shaw, Temi Boren, Don Farmer, David Hines, John Gayle, Frank Miller, Bob Hawes, Terry Rumpff, Teresa Lain and Hope Heaton.

All walkers who secure $65 or more in pledges will receive a Turkeywalk T-shirt. First prize for the walker with the most money in pledges will be $125. Second prize is $75, third prize $50 and fourth prize $25.

To be eligible for prizes, all pledge money must be turned in to either Smith or Glass at the Senior Center before 4 p.m. Nov. 15. Awards will be announced Nov. 19 at 11 a.m. at the Senior Center.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A speech is often like a wheel—the bigger the spoke, the bigger the tire."

The Pride of the West Marching Band has already won a first division rating and this weekend will advance to regional competition in Vernon.

This weekend will be a tough one for the Snyder bandsmen, under the direction of first-year director Walter Reneau, who moved to Snyder from Pecos.

The band has its longest road trip of the football season Friday night when it travels to San Angelo Lake View to support the Tigers in a conference game against the Chiefs.

After getting in late, the band will again board buses early Saturday for a three-hour plus trip to Vernon for regional competition.

It's a good thing those folks are young.

Folks have asked why so many of the bands are playing "Tennessee Waltz" during halftime performances this year. The number was on a list from which UIL contest pieces are selected.

Apparently, many Texas bands have chosen "Tennessee Waltz" as a contest number and the contest routine is made part of halftime performances.

Last Friday, a resident of Tennessee was in Tiger Stadium when both the Snyder and Pecos bands performed, and each played the song.

The resident of Tennessee was surprised and said, "You might have known, bands in Tennessee are playing 'The Yellow Rose of Texas' this fall."

Senate, House may collide on defense spending freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to freeze Pentagon spending, placing it on a possible collision course with the Senate over total military outlays and on such controversial items as "Star Wars" research and chemical weapons.

The House gave 359-67 approval Wednesday to a bill that, along with other related measures, appropriates a $292 billion defense budget for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

At about the same time, the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee gave voice vote approval to its version of the defense budget. The measure, headed for a full committee vote next week and likely floor action later in the year, provides a Pentagon budget of $302 billion.

President Reagan originally sought to increase Pentagon spending from last year's $292 billion level to about $320 billion

He has reluctantly approved the $302 billion Senate level, which would permit defense spending to rise at the expected inflation rate.

Any differences between the bills voted by the Democratic-controlled House and Republican-run Senate will be resolved later by a conference committee.

Two major differences involve chemical weapons, and "Star Wars," Reagan's antimissile research program known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The House bill appropriates $2.5 billion for SDI research, compared to last year's $1.4 billion.

Scholarships for S. African blacks are new front in fight

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. colleges and universities are opening another front in the battle against apartheid besides just selling off South African-related stock holdings: providing scholarships to South African blacks wishing to attend multiracial universities.

That is among the ideas being discussed by leaders of 13 top U.S. universities and five foundations who are exploring ways to form partnerships with nondiscriminatory South African universities to provide educational opportunities for that country's blacks.

The group, which includes the presidents of Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Stanford and Brown universities as well as the heads of the Ford Foundation, the Carnegie Corporation and the Rockefeller Foundation, met here on Oct. 16 to hear ideas from leaders of South African universities on how American universities and foundations might help ease the plight of that nation's blacks.

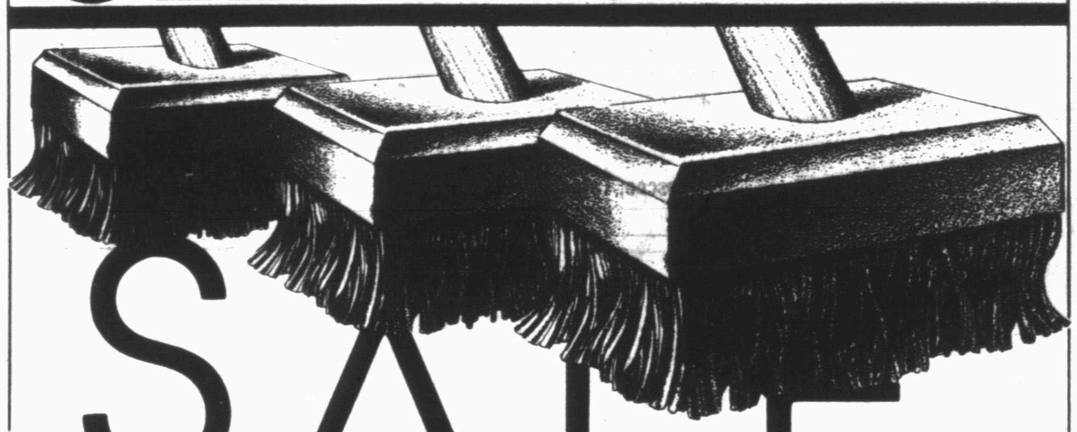

Stuart Saunders, vice chancellor and principal of the University of Cape Town, told the presidents in remarks made available to The Associated Press that "funds are needed to ensure a steady increase in the number of black South Africans attending South African universities as undergraduates and postgraduates."

He said each student would need about $2,500 to attend the university in 1986.

The group also heard suggestions from Jakes Gerwel, vice chancellor-designate of the University of the Western Cape.

None of the American officials attending the meeting committed their schools or foundations to any specific actions on behalf of South African blacks. But the gathering signaled apparent growing enthusiasm for providing scholarship funds for South African blacks.

Man's 'Common-Law Divorce' Will Be Uncommon in Court

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I know in some states there is such a thing as "common-law marriage," which means people are as good as married if they live together as husband and wife for a certain length of time.

How about "common-law divorce"? I have a relative (I'll call him Earl) who drove his wife ("Myrtle") and their two children to Texas to visit her parents in 1975, and he never went back to get them.

In the meantime, Earl (who lives in Ohio) took up with a lady, and they are now living together just like married folks. Myrtle and the kids seem happy in Texas, although they haven't had any contact with Earl since he left them there.

Earl is now making plans to marry his ladyfriend, saying that after 10 years of separation, he has a "common-law divorce," so he can get married without any hassle.

Is this right? I've never heard of a common-law divorce, have you?

INTERESTED RELATIVE

DEAR INTERESTED: No. But I have heard of "bigamy," which is what Earl can be charged with if he gets married to his ladyfriend while he's married to Myrtle.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Your advice, "Never pick up a hitchhiker," supported by a column filled with horror stories, infuriated me.

I am well aware of the violent crimes taking place today, but I refuse to live in a self-made prison, double-locking all doors, putting bars on all windows, assuming that everyone out there is a potential robber, rapist or murderer. And I do pick up hitchhikers because the majority of them are good people who want only transportation.

I think your attitude ("even if one in 10,000 is a bad apple, the odds are too high") is mean and selfish. Sign me ...

MORE GENEROUS THAN YOU

DEAR MORE GENEROUS: You are also more courageous. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Mad in Minnesota" on the danger of hitchhiking was exactly correct. Our son was one of those who loved to hitchhike to meet those "wonderful people." He hitchhiked all over the United States and southern Africa, even though he had plenty of money to travel by other means.

In the summer of 1984, at the age of 28, our son was apparently picked up by a "wonderful person" in Nebraska as he was returning to graduate school in Iowa. His decomposed body was found along the side of the freeway two weeks later with two bullets in it.

His mother had continually warned him not to hitchhike, but he wouldn't listen. I only hope that this story may help prevent the needless loss of life and the indescribable pain of grief for the families of other prospective hitchhikers.

STILL GRIEVING IN TEXAS

* * *

DEAR ABBY: When someone sends wedding invitations, how do you feel about enclosing cards that say, "Gift preferences are registered at (name of store)"? The store where I am registered gave me a supply of these cards for that purpose.

My mother thinks it's a great idea, but my future mother-in-law thinks it's tacky.

I told my mother I would ask you and would go along with whatever you said.

I've never seen this done before, and I want to be sure it's proper etiquette before I send them.

NERVOUS BRIDE

DEAR NERVOUS: I agree with your future mother-in-law. Should you be asked where you are registered, it's perfectly all right to say, but don't send the information along with your invitations.

Cholesterol needs reducing

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 65 years old. My cholesterol is 357, my triglyceride is 256 and I have poor circulation. Is the high cholesterol the cause of my circulation problem? I read where an herb called Circu, developed in Switzerland and now used here, is good for circulation. Does vitamin E help, and, if so is the natural kind better than the synthetic kind?

DEAR READER — Your cholesterol is above the normal range. Your elevated triglycerides suggest that diabetes might be the cause of the abnormal levels of fat in your bloodstream. Your circulation problem could certainly be related to these factors. I am not familiar with the herb preparation you mention, and I seriously doubt that vitamin E would do much good.

I suggest you reduce (if you are overweight), avoid saturated fats, stop smoking (if you are a smoker) and begin a program of regular exercise — such as walking two miles a day. If your blood sugar is normal and your cholesterol-triglyceride levels haven't fallen to normal in six months, I would consider you to be a candidate for drug therapy to reduce cholesterol.

Of course, your own doctor may not agree with my analysis, but given your age and poor circulation, I would feel more comfortable if your cholesterol were below 250 and your triglycerides less than 150. I think your general state of health would be improved, too.

DEAR DR. GOTT — About a year ago I noticed that one breast was larger than the other. I haven't seen a doctor yet. What causes this? What can be done about it?

DEAR READER — You don't mention either your age or your sex. Both make a difference.

Men and women may experience breast-size discrepancy. Some asymmetry is natural, and perhaps you just hadn't been aware of this before. However, I think you should check with a doctor because of the possibility that a growth or hormone imbalance could have caused one breast to enlarge.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it safe to use a skin-bleaching cream, the kind that fades brown age spots on the hands?

DEAR READER — As a general rule, yes. But remember that many skin-bleaching products produce permanent depigmentation, so you may be substituting white (or sunburned) spots for brown ones. See a dermatologist before using the cream.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Debate swells over pregnancy

RIO VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Humphrey, the 45-ton-whale whose exploits in the Sacramento River have hit the headlines for a week, may really be a Wanda, and she may be pregnant and in the river looking for a place to give birth, says a state emergency official.

Bev Passerello, spokeswoman for the state Office of Emergency Services, suggested Wednesday that Humphrey may be a female looking for comforting warm water to deliver an offspring.

She points out that female whales normally migrate to the warm coastal waters off Baja California and the Hawaiian islands to give birth.

If the 40-foot humpback whale, which is an endangered species, turns out to be pregnant, nothing else will be done to try to herd it back under the Golden Gate Bridge, she said.

But National Fisheries conservation chief Jim Slawson is skeptical. "The last we knew it was male, and we still believe it's a male," he said.

"Why worry about it?" said marine biologist Brian Gibeson of the California Academy of Sciences. "Our main concern should be how healthy it is and the like."

The Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association met Oct. 24 in the Martha Ann Woman's Club for their regular monthly meeting. Jessie Scarbrough served as hostess for the 28 members and six guests present.

Following the invocation by Judy Bynum, Jessie Scarbrough introduced Kay Clawson. Clawson, a computer instructor at East Elementary School, demonstrated table settings and several ways to fold napkins to add a decorator touch to meals.

Vern Beasley introduced the vocational speaker, Shawa Lawrence. As office worker for Snyder Steel and Supply, she handles inventory, payroll, accounts receivable and orders. Her husband manages the business.

During the business meeting, Myra Martin noted that White Buffalo Days were "very good." She thanked Carla Beaird, Carlena Darriculat and everyone who worked or donated items.

Judy Bynum offered a report on the national convention which five local members attended. The group included Bynum, Pam Murray, Vern Beasley, Ruby Deavers and Grace Bryant.

Murray installed new member, Diane Pruitt. Sponsored by Murray, Pruitt is employed by First Baptist Church.

Members plan to hold a bake sale at Everybody's Thriftway Nov. 19.

Murray closed the session with the benediction. In addition to Clawson, guests present for the meeting included Merl Jones, Rae Sterling, Diane Pruitt, Maggie Blalock and Barbara Gowin.

James Jacoby

The two-club bid by West had a special meaning: It asked partner to bid a major suit. North did not want East to have a chance to show his longer major suit, so he bid three no-trump immediately. That placed West on lead with no particular clues, so he led his longest suit. Declarer won the queen of hearts, played a diamond to the ace and a club back to his king and West's ace. West pondered over what he might find in partner's hand that could set three no-trump. He finally decided that the spade 10 with East was his best chance, so he tabled the queen of spades. Declarer won that trick, played a diamond to dummy and passed the 10 of clubs, hoping the jack would be with East. No such luck. West gathered in the club jack, cashed ace of spades and led a small spade to partner's 10. The fourth spade then became the setting trick.

If declarer had been able to see through the backs of the cards, he could have made the hand by allowing the spade queen to hold the trick when West led it. West's best play is to cash his spade ace and exit with a spade. When South runs his diamonds, West has to discard his last spade in order to guard the heart king and club jack. West can now be end played and will have to yield the game-going trick.

Suicide said to bring reform

AUSTIN (AP) — The suicide of a 29-year-old mentally ill woman within 18 hours after being discharged from the Austin State Hospital has brought a pledge of reform from hospital officials, it was reported Wednesday.

Adolph Supak, assistant hospital superintendent, told the Austin American-Statesman, "I'm pretty touched by this case and want to do something about it."

Debra Oliver was found dead 18 hours after being discharged from the Austin hospital Oct. 11.

She was released despite records showing that for 13 years she had attempted to commit suicide, the American-Statesman reported.

Those attempts included trying to hang herself, jumping in front of a car, setting herself on fire, taking drug overdoses and slicing her wrist so many times her right hand was partially paralyzed from nerve damage.

Her death came after she swallowed enough pills to kill six people, authorities said.

Hospital officials said that mistakes by staff members may have contributed to her death. They have pledged to change procedures for discharging suicidal patients, the American-Statesman reported.

The hospital released Ms. Oliver on Oct. 11, sending her and two other patients to a Houston boarding house "so shabby they stayed only 10 minutes," the newspaper reported Ms. Oliver left the others and took a bus back to Austin. After midnight, she arrived at the home of a mental health worker she had known at the hospital.

The worker and her family called the state hospital admissions office, but they were told Ms. Oliver needed to appear in person to be readmitted. They were told that if she needed a place to stay the night, she could go to the Salvation Army.

She did, and that is where she died hours later.

Ms. Oliver swallowed a 30-day supply of Elavil, a drug used to relieve depression, leaving a note saying all sources of support had dwindled.

Her family and Salvation Army officials blame the hospital for directing Ms. Oliver to two residences unsuitable for an emotionally unstable person.

William Hubble of Angleton, the dead woman's father, said he knew that mental health workers are "overworked and underpaid," but criticized the system.

"I feel for sure she'd be alive today if they'd made better arrangements," Hubble said.

Salvation Army commander Maj. Robert Bagley said, "We are not in the least able to care for someone with mental illness. They don't belong in an institution like ours."

The American-Statesman said Ms. Oliver's death prompted Austin State Hospital officials to conduct an internal investigation. Supak said the report uncovered several hospital procedures that could be modified.

He said that in the two weeks since Ms. Oliver's death, Austin State Hospital has decided to:

— Give suicidal patients a smaller amount of drugs upon discharge.

— Shorten the time between discharge and the first appointment at an outpatient clinic. Now, most patients are not seen in a community clinic until between two weeks and a month after discharge.

— Increase the number of professional workers in the admissions office of the hospital during the evening and night.

Supak said there is not much the hospital can do to monitor the condition of boardinghouses for the mentally ill. The state has no regulations or licensing for room and board homes, nor does the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation have minimum living standards for such homes.

Supak said the Houston boardinghouse that Oliver and the two other patients were assigned to was recommended by the community mental health center in Harris County.

Monty Collins, supervisor of the continuity of care unit of the Harris County center, said all residences on the center's list are approved.

"Before we refer anyone, we send a caseworker to look the place over," he said. "That's just routine. We don't send them (there) unless somebody has seen the place."

The American-Statesman said the boarding house where Miss Oliver was sent "is a shabby, one-story house that sits next to a rotting wooden church and across the street from the never-ending traffic of Interstate 10. It is one block from an elementary school and in a neighborhood filled with warehouses."

Betty Brown, operator of the home, said Ms. Oliver and the other mentally ill women left because "they said they didn't like the area. They stayed about 10 minutes, or about five minutes — maybe not even that long. They called a cab. They left in a cab. That's all I can say."

When Ms. Oliver was discharged Oct. 11, Austin State Hospital told her to take 150 milligrams of Elavil every night. She was given a 30-day supply of medicine, much more than she would need until an outpatient clinic appointment that had been scheduled for Tuesday.

An autopsy showed she died of an overdose of Elavil.

Ms. Oliver had been in Austin State Hospital nine times.

Children's transplants puts mothers together

HOUSTON (AP) — The organ transplants of three teen-agers at Houston's Methodist Hospital have created a bond between their mothers who say they share shoulders for support.

The mothers of Tracy Lynn Baird, 17; Nona White, 13, and Kenny McLaughlin, 16, have become friends since their children underwent transplants at the hospital.

"It helps to sit and talk to each other," said Gwen Baird, whose daughter underwent a heart-lung transplant Sunday. "We're all going through the same thing."

Not only are the mothers worrying about their children but they are also doing the worrying alone — all are single parents.

"It would be easier if I had a husband here to lean on," said Lisa White of Clovis, N.M., whose daughter received a new heart on her 13th birthday Sept. 7.

Ms. Baird of Mansfield, agreed. "It's hard to make the decisions alone," she said.

In all three cases, the teenagers' illnesses were sudden.

"There never was a sign before," said Ms. White. It wasn't until she took her daughter to the doctor in March that X-rays detected an enlarged heart.

"When they told me she had an enlarged heart, I couldn't believe it," she said. "She had always done everything every other kid does."

For her, the burden is even heavier because Nona's twin sister, Dawn, has the same ailment.

"She may not ever have to have a transplant but they aren't ruling it out," Ms. White said of Dawn.

Doctors are keeping her on medication and closely monitoring her, she said.

Mary Jo McLaughlin said she never suspected anything either until her son decided to play high school football and then he started having problems with his skin.

She said her son's condition had already deteriorated when doctors approached her with the idea of a transplant. To make matters worse, Kenny suffered a cardiac arrest and doctors only had two days to locate a donor.

Kenny underwent a heart-lung transplant Oct. 24. His kidneys failed Tuesday, forcing doctors to put him on a dialysis machine. But his mother is still hopeful.

Things seem to be going well for Tracy. She wrote her mother a note the day after her transplant asking for a soft drink.

Trivia game draws ire

PECOS, Texas (AP) — A cult trivia game's question involving rodeo is no trivial matter to residents of this West Texas city, whose greatest claim to fame is the world's oldest rodeo.

The object of their ire is the "orange" query found on card 415 in the Genus II edition of the popular Trivial Pursuit game.

"What rough-and-tumble western sport was first formalized in Prescott, Ariz.?" reads the question, which game authors answer on the reverse side as "rodeo."

"The first practice of rodeo as we know it today — that is, cowboy events contested for money — happened about a block and a half from our courthouse on July 4, 1883," said John Wojtkun, director of the Pecos Department of Tourism and Development.

"You might say that I'm more than mildly miffed," Wojtkun told the Odessa American.

"If Prescott has any claim at all, it's for the longest-running rodeo," he said Tuesday. "Theirs has been running continuously, while ours had a break."

And while the Pecos Rodeo celebrated it's centennial year in 1983, the Prescott rodeo centennial is scheduled for 1988, he pointed out.

The Pecos residents are prepared to support their claims against the game's New York manufacturer, Selchow and Righter Inc., according to a letter to the company from a Pecos attorney.

Reeves County Attorney Scott Johnson, in his letter sent Tuesday, cites three encyclopedia references — including one from the respected "Encyclopedia Britannica" — to convince the company of Pecos' claim.

Wildflower workshop scheduled Saturday

If you enjoy wildflowers and native plants, you are invited to attend a workshop being planned Saturday by Western Texas College.

Faculty members from Texas Tech University Department of Plant and Soil Science will direct the sessions dealing with regional wildflower adaptation, native wood ornamentals, sidelights on greens and color enhancement of landscape.

"We want to acquaint Snyder area residents with the availability and uses of native plants for use in landscape and on the golf courses," James Eby, director of WTC's Golf Course Operations and Landscape Technology program, said. He invited workshop participants to bring their questions to be answered during the workshop.

Fees for the workshop are $20 per person. The workshop will begin at 9 a.m. and end at 2 p.m. All sessions will be held at Willow Park Inn and lunch will be available at the restaurant there. The cost of the lunch is not included in the fee.

Museum work session now planned

A Tuesday afternoon work session for volunteers in the Scurry County Museum was planned at the volunteer luncheon in the museum held Tuesday.

Persons who would like to assist with such ongoing projects as cataloging and identifying museum artifacts are invited to attend next Tuesday's meeting starting at 1 p.m.

The museum is especially in need of volunteers to serve as tour guides, Shirley Leftwich, museum director, said. The guides do not need previous experience and the museum will assist them in becoming familiar with the exhibits and the information needed.

Plans are getting underway for the annual Christmas Happening, which will be an international Christmas this year. The museum will need tree ornaments and other decorations suitable for this theme and would like to hear from local residents who have items to loan. Some decorations and ornaments will be made especially for the season and people who would like to help make them are invited to contact the museum for information about work sessions being planned.

Persons who would like to know more about giving volunteer time to the museum are invited to call the office at 573-6107 or to go by the museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College.

Seeks relocation of shelter

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Cesar Gonzalez says Casa Oscar Romero, a controversial shelter for Central Americans, is busting at the seams and that he will ask officials to relocate it because of complaints from citizens.

"At first they got 15 or 20 of them in there, now it's up to 200," Gonzalez said Wednesday. "There's no question they're violating the (housing) code. There are too many people for the building facilities.

"I feel bad for those poor people. I wish we could do something for them. But I have been getting a lot of complaints and I have to protect the citizenary of San Benito first," the mayor said.

He said he didn't want them to leave San Benito, just move away from a residential area.

Casa Oscar Romero has been the focus of controversy almost since it was opened in December 1982 by the Catholic Diocese of Brownsville. Thousands of Salvadorans, Nicaraguans, Guatemalans and Hondurans have passed through the doors of the six-room, wood-frame home in the past three years.

There is a kitchen shelter consisting of separate sleeping quarters for men and women. An annex building serves as restroom and shower facilities for men and a mobile home nearby has served as housing and an office for the directors, two of whom were jailed for transporting Central Americans.

Gonzalez said neighbors have complained about residents loitering around the area and that there have been heckling incidents between shelter and local residents.

Gonzalez said he has talked to Catholic Church officials in the past and said he plans to talk to Bishop John J. Fitzpatrick next week.

"We have no place else to move, unless somebody out there gives us a large building that will be adequate for our needs," Fitzpatrick told reporters. "We're not in a position to move, but who knows what will happen ... Surely, we will not stop trying to help refugees."

Last spring city officials told shelter officials to clean up around the house and to refrain from loitering around the neighborhood.

Silvestre Reyes, chief of the Border Patrol sector in McAllen, has said immigration officials keep tabs on the shelter, but have no plans to arrest anyone at the shelter.

But former employees have had problems with immigration officials, contending that the Central Americans are fleeing political, not economic conditions in their region.

A former director, Jack Elder, 41, and a volunteer, Stacey Lynn Merkt, 30, were convicted of transporting Salvadorans and another former director, Lorry Thomas, 41, pleaded guilty to transporting a Nicaraguan in the trunk of her car.

In May 1984, Ms. Merkt was convicted of transporting three Salvadorans and received two years probation. In January, Elder was acquitted of charges of transporting three Salvadorans.

In March, Elder and Merkt went on trial on charges of transporting two Salvadorans from the shelter to a bus station in McAllen. Elder was convicted on six counts and Ms. Merkt on a conspiracy charge.

Elder received a 150-day sentence at a San Antonio halfway house. Ms. Merkt's probation on the first conviction was revoked and she received a 179-day sentence for the second conviction. But she was allowed to remain free pending her appeals.

Recently, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans overturned Ms. Merkt's first conviction and ordered a new trial.

In June, Ms. Thomas pleaded guilty to a charge of transporting a Nicaraguan in the trunk of her car and received a two-year sentence.

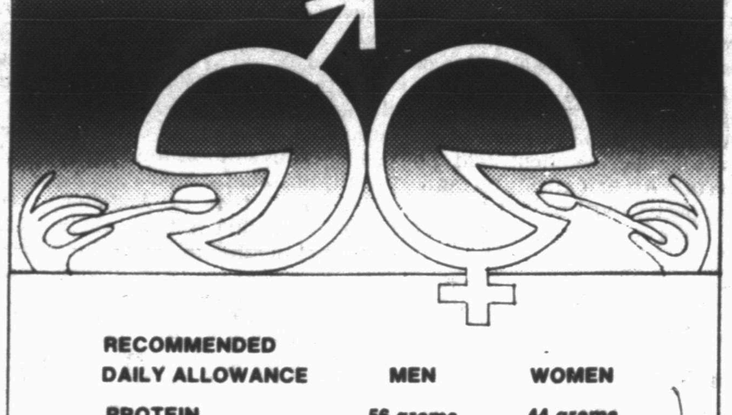

Fitzpatrick, wanting to make the home more humanitarian and less controversial, later appointed Sister Ninfa Garza, to direct the shelter. The Catholic nun imposed rules on the residents and said she did not want to get involved with immigration officials.

The mayor said complaints have decreased since Sister Garza took over the shelter, but that residents still go to his office daily to complain.

"I want to help them find another place," Gonzalez said. "I told them I would help them to get another home in another part of town."

Rockwell to pay hefty fines for over charging government

DALLAS (AP) — Rockwell International Corp., the nation's second-largest defense contractor, has agreed to pay up to $1.2 million in fines for overcharging the government in what one prosecutor said was a company effort to "inflate bids on spare parts."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Eddins said Wednesday a two-year federal probe uncovered $480,000 in mischarges by the company, which included falsified time cards, padded travel expenses, materials and discount prices not passed on to the government.

Investigations by the company and the Justice Department failed to find any evidence that company managers participated in the offenses or knew about them, Rockwell spokesman Jim Vallela said in Pittsburgh.

But Eddins said, "The employees don't get anything. They follow the system set up there. The company is the one that gains the money.

The agreement with Rockwell filed in U.S. District Court in Dallas Wednesday does not bar the government from pursuing charges against any individuals with the company.

Eddins said any future probe is up to the Department of Justice in Washington. "It's in their hands ... they're looking at it."

Rockwell agreed to pay $1 million in a settlement for double the amount of mischarges and the government's investigation costs, plus up to $200,000 in fines.

U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer set sentencing for 2 p.m. Dec. 13. At that time he will determine the amount of the possible $200,000 fine, according to a spokeswoman for U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins.

The guilty plea was entered in a federal information, which named no individuals, but Vallela confirmed that six employees were involved.

The government charged that the employees falsified 20 time cards from April to June, 1982.

The plea agreement said the overcharges involved a spare parts deal related to a $3.6 million contract to provide 13 automated data processing systems for Air Force EC-135 Flying Command Post Aircraft. The spare parts contract was with the Collins Communication Systems Division in Dallas, a major Rockwell electronics unit.

Eddins said the falsified time cards involved charging the government for work the employees had actually done on other contracts.

After completing its investigation a year ago, Rockwell disciplined the workers and issued a credit of $290,839, Eddins said, reducing the $480,000 total in mischarges.

According to the criminal information filed in court, Rockwell agreed that any employee involved in the overcharges will be barred from working on projects involving federal contracts.

A statement from the U.S. Attorney's Office said Rockwell also agreed to pay attorneys' fees and accountants' fees related to the case and not to charge them against other government contracts.

Westmoreland joins Vietnam vets' march

AUSTIN (AP) — In a reunion of people who had never met, retired Gen. William Westmoreland marched five miles along a Texas highway with veterans who had been under his command in Vietnam.

Rush-hour motorists honked, waved and yelled their support as "The Last Patrol" marched Wednesday on the Interstate 35 frontage road.

Westmoreland, who flew to Austin to join the 20 or so marchers, was in front.

"It's great pride for me to be with them again. I've been with them before on the battlefield," Westmoreland said.

The 300-mile Dallas-San Antonio march is billed as "A Journey to Remember — The Last Patrol," and is aimed at calling attention to Vietnam veterans and to remind the public of those still listed as missing in action.

Tim Holiday of Dallas, a march organizer, told Westmoreland that Vietnam veterans are suffering through a variety of problems. But the retired general said Vietnam veterans, overall, are doing well.

"They actually have less problems, as a group. But there are a number of Vietnam veterans who have problems, as there are veterans that have problems after every war," he said later in an interview.

"The Vietnam veteran is doing very well in society. He's moving to positions of leadership, but there are veterans who need help and the public must understand that," Westmoreland added.

The marchers planned a Capitol rally today.

Westmoreland, carrying the patrol's torch for the final few hundred yards, Wednesday led the marchers to a Veterans of Foreign Wars post where they spent the night.

"Better late than never," he said of the warm reception for the veterans. "What you see here today is typical of what's going on around the country. There's been a tremendous turnaround in the attitude of the Vietnam veteran toward himself and the attitude of the American public toward the Vietnam veteran."

The march began in Dallas Oct. 19. It is scheduled to end in San Antonio Nov. 7. About 20 marchers are participating, but other Vietnam veterans — such as Westmoreland — join for portions of the walk.

As he stopped to re-bandage his feet, marcher Gregory Smith of Dallas said he joined the Last Patrol to keep America from forgetting Vietnam veterans like himself.

"We'll all just die out and it will fade away. Somebody's got to care," said Smith, 37, a business systems analyst.

3 killed in crash

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Navy helicopter that crashed on a training mission, killing three crew members, appeared to be making practice dives along with another chopper when it hit a marsh, witnesses said.

Rick Andrews and his wife, Linda, of nearby Port Aransas were on their way home about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday when they saw two helicopters practicing diving maneuvers about one-half mile off Texas Highway 53.

Moments later, Andrews said, his wife yelled, "Oh my God. He crashed!"

Three other Navy crew members were injured in the crash of the UH-1N helicopter on Mustang Island, between Corpus Christi and Port Aransas, a spokesman for the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station said.

Ensign Terry Reese, public affairs officer for the Naval station, said identities of the dead and injured would be released today.

Petty Officer Gwen Newman said the three survivors were taken to the base hospital, but she did not know the extent of their injuries.

The UH-1N is used for search and rescue missions.

Remark financial gold mine

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayoral candidate Louie Welch, who said on live television that the way to control AIDS was to "to shoot the queers," raised $69,105 in one day after making the comment, financial records show.

Welch later apologized for the "unfortunate remark," broadcast Oct. 24 when a technician accidentally turned up the candidate's microphone.

But Welch said he was in good company, pointing to President Reagan's well-publicized comment during a microphone test about bombing Russia.

Welch campaign treasurer James Franklin said the faux pas had provided a "burst of energy and activity" to fund-raising efforts.

"The truth is getting out to people," Franklin said.

According to campaign finance reports filed Tuesday, Welch has raised about $1.5 million since he entered the race, including $678,000 in the 30-day period that ended Friday. Contributions totaled $69,105 last Friday alone, the day after Welch made the remark.

Welch will face incumbent Mayor Kathy Whitmire in the Nov. 5 election. Mrs. Whitmire, 39, reported contributions of almost $1.4 million, records showed.

Mrs. Whitmire raised about $350,000 in contributions in the 30-day period that ended Friday.

Sheila Rushlo, a mayoral spokeswoman, said specific figures for Friday's contributions were not available.

Welch, 66, is a former five-term mayor who recently introduced the prevention of acquired immune deficiency syndrome as a campaign issue in the race. AIDS is an affliction in which the body's immune system becomes unable to resist disease.

Mrs. Whitmire is seeking her third term, and received the support of the homosexual community in her previous bids.

Local gay political leaders said they were not amused by Welch's comment.

"It's a sick joke — if it's a joke," said Sue Lovell, president of Houston's Gay Political Caucus.

Student grows cotton in test tube

WASHINGTON (AP) — A graduate student at Texas Tech University hoped to wind up her two years of work on the effects of dry-weather stress on cotton plants in hopes of improving yields.

Instead, the student, Norma L. Trolinder, was sidetracked by something else: Cotton growing out of a test tube.

For the first time, according to Agriculture Department officials, cotton has been grown in a laboratory from single cells without any other part of the cotton plant.

Frank Werber of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said Wednesday the discovery was actually a sideline to the main research being conducted by scientists at Texas Tech, which is located at Lubbock, Texas.

The breakthrough in test tube cotton was first announced by the university several weeks ago, but its implications are just now beginning to be discussed widely.

Werber said USDA's part in the venture involved a cooperative agreement with the university, including a $25,000 grant for a graduate assistant and certain expenses.

In its announcement, the university said the research team included J.R. Goodin, dean of the college of arts and sciences; Jerry D. Berlin, head of the department of biological sciences, and Mrs. Trolinder, a candidate for a doctor's degree.

Goodin said he and Mrs. Trolinder tested cotton plant cells in test tubes for drought and salt tolerance and noticed that some of the cultures contained cotton fibers. The USDA agency urged further investigation.

In a report provided by the agency, the feat was hailed as an important step in cotton research.

"The ability to produce cotton fiber from single cells presents many new opportunities for scientists," the report said. "This finding has been incorporated into the plans of a new research group forming at the Agricultural Research Service's Southern Regional Research Center in New Orleans."

No one is suggesting now that cotton farmers may be displaced by cotton fibers grown in laboratories. In fact, scientists see a possibility of developing techniques for testing new cotton varieties developed by plant breeders, thereby shortening the time needed to create and release improved varieties to farmers.

"Their ultimate goals are to provide higher quality products for consumers and to restrain or reduce costs for cotton processors," the report said.

Appeals court upholds sentence

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Wednesday upheld the death sentence of a man convicted of "coolly" killing a doughnut shop worker.

Joseph Paul Turner was found guilty of capital murder in the Oct. 7, 1980, strangulation of Kathleen Wilson in El Paso.

Airlines to look at screening policy

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — American Airlines officials said they will study beefed-up screening of luggage as the result of an explosive device that detonated in a baggage compartment of a passenger jet moments after its arrival at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

No one was injured in the explosion about 8 a.m. Wednesday aboard Flight 203, en route from Austin, Texas to San Francisco. Airline officials said 147 passengers and seven crew members were quickly removed from the 727 jet after smoke was found inside a baggage compartment.

Joe Dealey, a spokesman for the airport, said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms took custody of the remains of the device, which "includes a military-style ammunition can, some clock workings, and a battery."

The fragments were to be analyzed at the ATF laboratory in San Francisco, authorities said.

Dealey said the device was contained in a cosmetic case inside a baggage pod used to transport luggage to and from the plane. The bag did have some identification on it, but it was damaged and may be impossible to decipher, he said.

"The force of the explosion and intensity of heat and flames was such that the cosmetic case was pretty well destroyed," Dealey said.

"There was a large explosion. We thought at that time that probably it was a ground vehicle that had run into the airplane," said Thomas W. Glass, a passenger from Austin. He and his wife, Jean, heard the explosion after the plane had been at the gate for about 30 seconds, Glass said.

Luggage was not screened at Austin as it was loaded for the flight, airline spokesman Linda Johnson said.

Airlines are not required by the Federal Aviation Administration to screen baggage on domestic flights, so American Airlines conducts no routine screening, Ms. Johnson said.

However, she added, "That policy will be reviewed."

The Austin American-Statesman said it made numerous telephone calls Wednesday to airports across the United States, but found none that currently screen baggage routinely for explosive devices.

San Francisco International Airport has a mobile scanner that is available for use by airlines, but none is required to use it. Sgt. Larry Horn, liaison officer between the FAA and the airport authorities, said the device is rarely used on domestic flights, the newspaper said.

FBI investigator Jim Adams confirmed that the FBI is involved in the case, but declined to comment about the case.

Ground crew members reported hearing a "pop" noise coming from the plane after it landed at the airport and pulled up to the gate, American spokesman John Raymond said. Passengers were asked to leave the plane and were routed onto other flights, he said.

Meat production still on the rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest figures from the Soviet Union show that meat production continues to increase at the expense of some cutback in livestock herds.

According to a weekly trade report Wednesday by the Agriculture Department, Soviet meat output on state and collective farms in the first nine months of the year was up 3 percent from the same period of 1984.

Beef production was up 4 percent; pork, 1 percent and poultry meat, nearly 7 percent. Mutton and goat meat production was down nearly 5 percent, however.

ATTENTION ADVERTISERS

The best shoppers are newspaper readers.

The Texas Poll research data confirm once again a basic fact of marketing life:

Newspapers provide the most efficient means of reaching the best prospects in Texas.

Daily and Sunday newspaper readership is strong. The majority of adults in Texas read a daily newspaper everyday of the week; two thirds read every Sunday. In terms of where Texans get most of their shopping information, newspaper leads mail by more than 2 to 1 and TV by almost 3 to 1.

More good news—readership is even stronger among upscale demographic groups. The highest income, occupation, and education groups are the strongest newspaper readership groups.

Peso decreases worry border businessmen

HIDALGO, Texas (AP) — Dramatic drops in the value of the Mexican peso have businessmen along the U.S.-Mexico border worried again, especially in this South Texas community where 95 percent of the retail business is dependent on Mexican shoppers.

"Business is really dead. People are not coming across," Joe Vera III, executive vice president of the Hidalgo Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday. "We can't blame them. They just can't afford it now."

In the past month, the peso has dropped from 350 to $1 to between 475 and 490 pesos to $1 in the Rio Grande Valley on Wednesday. The peso was fluctuating between 490-495 to $1 from Laredo to El Paso.

"I think we all expected it to drop in value after the earthquake," said Yolanda Walker, a vice president in the international division at Brownsville National Bank. "(Mexico) already has problems and they're going to have more. But (the peso) held for a long time and improved after the earthquake, so it was kind of confusing."

Border towns are dependent on each other for, among other things, retail trade. But several shop owners said business is dead.

"I'm taking the peso at 399," said Aurora Mijangos of Wise Fashions in Hidalgo. "We were taking it yesterday at 470. We didn't have any business at all and we started out at 399 this morning and we still don't have any business."Business is bad," she added. "As soon as you tell them its 470, 490 it's too much for them."

Vera of the chamber of commerce said Hidalgo is smaller than most border towns.

Death row inmate calls Ayatollah 'leader'

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former meat cutter scheduled to be executed next month for the stabbing death of an Amarillo woman says he does not believe in the U.S. government and wishes he could leave the country.

"I don't have faith in the system," convicted killer Jay Kelly Pinkerton, 23, said during an interview Wednesday on Death Row.

A state judge last week set a Nov. 26 execution date for Pinkerton, who was convicted in the rape slaying of Sarah Donn Lawrence at her Amarillo home in 1979. Authorities say Pinkerton stabbed the woman as many as 50 times during a burglary of her home.

He came within 26 minutes of execution Aug. 14, when the U.S. Supreme Court issued a stay. But the high court rejected his appeal earlier this month after reviewing the case.

"I believe God is responsible for my stay," Pinkerton said.

Pinkerton said the new execution date — his third — should not have been set because he still has motions pending before the Supreme Court, according to Pinkerton.

"I've got to remain optimistic and I am," he said. "I believe the trial court erred and I'm anticipating the Supreme Court will go along with this argument."

He said he accepts Iran's ayatollah as his leader and would leave the United States if he could.

"I don't accept this government. I don't accept this country any more," Pinkerton said. "I revoke it. If I had a chance to leave it I would and never come back."

'Dogs can clinch zone title Friday

IRA -- No doubt it will be a wild and wooly affair at Bulldog Field here Friday night but when the mele finally dies down, Ira hopes to be standing in the District 4-1A South Zone winner's circle.

The Bulldogs can nail down a zone championship with a victory over the offensive-minded McCaulley Eagles.

Coach Mitch Lee is looking for a battle deluxe.

"Our attitude been real good since district play started. We think we're going to be ready to play some good football," said Lee, whose 'Dogs got off to a 1-3 start this season but have won three straight and are 3-0 in zone play. "McCaulley will come in here sky-high, though. I'm sure they feel like they have to beat us in order to get a playoff spot. McCaulley has as good a talent as anybody in this district."

The Eagles used the spread offense, and they are adept at it. They scored an impressive 55 points in a 62-55 loss to Grady earlier this season.

"They are a lot like Grady, they really are," said Lee, whose Bulldogs exploded on the scoreboard to defeat the Wildcats 84-38 last weekend.

The spread offense does put pressure on the Ira defense, however. So does thoughts of being able to wrap up the zone title.

"I think there's going to be some pressure, sure. Our kids were talking yesterday that they felt like they were going to be in a ballgame Friday," said the coach, who added. "The spread is tougher mentally to prepare for because there are so many things they can throw at you. They are going to come out passing anyway. It's a dangerous offense. That's where your experience and quickness comes in. We've done a better job lately against the spread than early in the season," said Lee.

"In a way it's good (to go against the spread offense) because our kids know we really have to get after it."

A win Friday would be ideal in more ways than one for the Bulldogs. They complete the regular season against Hermleigh, a team which has forfeited its varsity games and is playing a junior varsity schedule.

"We'll play our younger kids against Hermleigh and in effect, that would give us two weeks to prepare for the playoffs," said Lee. "Also, I'm sure that if we get into the playoffs we'll be seeing the spread offense more, so (this) Friday's game will help us there, too."

McCaulley is 4-4 for the season and 2-1 in zone play. In another key zone contest, Highland (3-4, 1-1) is at Grady (3-5, 2-1). Also, Borden County hosts Hermleigh in a junior varsity tilt.

Tigers needing to regroup Friday against Lake View

Snyder's Ragin' Tigers are hoping to get back into the District 2-4A race after a lackluster performance against Pecos last week, but the Lake View Chiefs may have other ideas.

The Tigers take on Lake View in San Angelo at 8 p.m. Friday.

"We were flat. We came out flat and never got any momentum in the game," said Coach Dennis Tomlin of the 18-0 loss to Pecos. "That's behind us. We've got a big game this week. It's not what we didn't do, but what we are going to do that counts."

"We have an opportunity to take one of three steps to get to the playoffs. The first step is Lake View. That's what is uppmost on our minds. We know our kids are going to respond to it. They want to play well.

"What strikes me is the similarity between the Pecos ball game and this one. They are very similar, except now of course this one is more important. Both teams are very close but I think Lake View probably has a better football team than Pecos."

What Tomlin was speaking of was the sameness of how Snyder matches up against Lake View and how the Tigers matched up - on paper at least - to Pecos. Both Pecos and Lake View use a well-balanced offensive attack and play strong defense.

Snyder goes into the game averaging 228.7 yards while the Chiefs are gaining 238.4. Defensively, the Tigers are allowing 247.0 and Lake View is giving up 215.5.

"What impresses me especially about Lake View is that turnover margin of plus-14. They haven't been turning the ball over much and they've done a good job of forcing the other team to turn the ball over," said Tomlin.

"Their quarterback, Jeff McGeath, is the center of their offense. His ability on the short pass and his ability to run make him a threat all the time," the coach noted.

McGeath leads the district in passing with 53 completions on 107 attempts for 671 yards, four touchdowns and seven interceptions.

"Randy Young is also impressive. He carries the brunt of their rushing attack. He's been real effective on sweeps and inside counters."

Young, a 5-11, 162-pound junior, is the Chiefs' leading ball carrier. He has 503 yards and six touchdowns in 101 attempts. He also catches the ball well as Lake View likes to free its running backs in the passing game. Young has seven catches for 122 yards. Backfield mate Eddie Gonzales also has seven receptions for 99 steps.

"Defensively, their strength seems to be in their inside linebackers and defensive tackles," Tomlin said. "Right in the middle of their defense. They are very similar to Pecos."

The inside backers are Ricky Green, a 6-0, 166-senior, and Stoney Lindsey, a 5-10, 169-junior. The tackles are Butch James, a 5-9, 188-senior, and Eddie Hernandez, a 5-6, 195-senior.

"Our offensive line has got its work cut out and our defensive line and secondary have got their work cut out for them," the coach said.

Snyder will make a couple of changes for the contest. Henry Treat will come in at the right defensive tackle for an injured Arthur Robinson and Steve Parker will start at right defensive end for Chris Garrett.

Robinson has a hip pointer and is listed as doubtful.

Quarterback Mike McWilliams, who suffered an arm injury last week against Pecos, is expected to play Friday, but is listed as a questionable starter.

Rusty Radican (stressed nerve) and Reggie Price (fractured ankle) have been working out this week and could see action. Radican will have to get a final doctor's okay on Friday.

Cats test Big Spring

The eighth graders are scheduled at 4:30 and 5:30 on Travis Field. Following them will be the freshmen, which play at 7.

Snyder seventh graders will be playing in Big Spring, also at 4:30 and 5:30.

Snyder's junior varsity squad is idle tonight but plays Coronado in Lubbock at 10 a.m. Saturday.

'Horns may get picky about accepting bowls

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds says the Longhorns, drubbed 55-17 by Iowa in the Freedom Bowl last year, will be a little more picky about bowl bids offered this year.

"I'm going to take a harder look at it before we get into anything this year. We're going to look at it harder than the bowl we looked at last year. That's being as honest as I can be," Dodds said.

After losing three of its last four regular-season games last year, Texas accepted the bid to the first Freedom Bowl in Anaheim, Calif. The game was played before only 24,093 fans in a 69,007-seat stadium, and Texas made $121,759 from the appearance.

Some fans and others said the Longhorns should have declined the invitation, especially after season-ending losses to Baylor and Texas A&M dropped their record to 7-3-1.

"There was some feeling before the bowl that we shouldn't go. There was overwhelming feeling after the bowl we shouldn't have gone. Last year's experience turned out to be something less than positive," Dodds said.

Dodds said Texas prefers playing in a "glamour" bowl, although he declined to name what bowls he believes would qualify for that description.

He indicated, however, that Texas won't limit its focus to just the New Year's Day games. The 4-2 Longhorns dropped out of the Top 20 rankings this week after losing to Southern Methodist, 44-14, last Saturday.

"There are a lot of good bowls. Some are better than others. It depends on a lot of things: who you play, where you play, do the fans want to go, do the players want to go, those things," Dodds said.

The Longhorn athletic department isn't under administrative pressure to be more selective in its bowl dealings, Dodds said.

He conceded, though, "I just got a feeling of discomfort among our exes and administrators. We heard we needed to take a harder look.

"Anything I heard was from just casual conversation. There has been no edict saying we've got to do this or that," Dodds said.

Frank Gatski, a 1985 member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, played for two colleges, Marshall and Auburn, and two pro clubs, the Cleveland Browns and Detroit Lions.

Ira wins a crown; Tigers clip Lake View

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder's Tigers didn't have a good football game last week. I think just about everybody would admit that.

The real question is can the Tigers pick themselves up and get after it on the road and against a team that most folks think is better than Pecos?

An interesting comment from Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin this week..."If there is one thing we learned it's that we had created an atmosphere of excitment and energy and it was missed."

It is kind of intriguing. After a 4-win, 2-loss start, fans had come to expect a certain enthusiasm out of the Tigers and were disappointed when they didn't see it. If last week's ballgame had taken place a year or two years ago, probably no one would have noticed.

With success, I guess, comes expectancy.

Last week went pretty well, except for those doggone pros. I was 22 of 30 for .733 overall but 5 of those 8 misses were in pro teams. For the season I'm 164 and 76 for .683.

And now, on with the picks...

Snyder at Lake View: Look for the Ragin' Tigers to come back strong this week after a lackluster performance...SNYDER 28, LAKE VIEW 7.

Lamesa at Sweetwater: The Golden Tornadoes are running aground after a fine start...MUSTANGS 35, TORS 7.

Pecos at Fort Stockton: Pecos has just a little more offense...EAGLES 14, PANTHERS 7.

Andrews at Monahans: The best the Loboes can hope for is another shot at Sweetwater somewhere down the line. To do it, they'll have to keep winning...MONAHANS 34, ANDREWS 14.

McCaulley at Ira: The Bulldogs wrap up a South Zone championship before the home fans...IRA 55, MCCAULLEY 31.

Arkansas at Rice: The Owls are really paying the price for winning two games in a row, first at the hands of A&M, and now this week...ARKANSAS 41, RICE 14.

Houston at TCU: The Cougars finally win another one...HOUSTON 35, TCU 17.

SMU at Texas A&M: The Ponies are one fired up football squad...MUSTANGS 28, AGGIES 7.

Texas Tech at Texas: It is rumored that this is where the next Red Raiders coach is coming from. Hmm...LONGHORNS 33, RED RAIDERS 14.

Other collegians...

If Michigan couldn't pull off the upset then there's no reason to expect Ohio State can, so pick it Iowa 23, Buckeyes 14. Also, choose Auburn at home over Florida, 19-17; and Florida State over Miami, Florida, 31-27. In other games, pick Wake Forest to take Clemson, 17-14; Penn State over Boston College, 28-7; Michigan over Illinois, 31-14; Nebraska over Kansas State, 45-7; and Minnesota over Michigan State, 21-13.

The pros...

Make Cincinnati a touchdown choice over the Bills, 19-13; and the Steelers at home a four-point pick over Cleveland, 23-19.

Also select Denver to slug San Diego, 29-14; Minnesota to derail Detroit, 27-21; Kansas City to hop Houston, 21-7; New England to mark up Miami, 23-21; the Jets to club the Colts, 21-14; Chicago to gore Green Bay, 45-17; the Raiders to subdue Seattle, 21-14; the Rams to nuter New Orleans, 35-7; San Francisco to petrify Philadelphia, 31-17; New York to timidify Tampa Bay, 29-18; and Washington to A-bomb Atlanta, 35-14.

WTC Dusters use defense to win season opener, 50-40

WACO – Coach Kelly Chadwick said his Western Texas College Dusters would have to play strong defense to win ballgames this season and that's exactly what they did here Wednesday night as they opened the season with a 50-40 victory over McLennan Community College.

The Dusters were scheduled to play San Jacinto at 2 today and Angelina College at 2 Friday as the MCC Highlassie Classic continued.

Sophomore Pam Cox put up half of WTC's points - 25 - while Brenda Welch added 18. The real story was on defense, however.

"McLennan has 12 sophomores but our kids played the best defense of any college team I've coached for a first game," said Coach Chadwick. "Our offense was sputtering early. Our kids were so nervous. But we played really good defense. You can tell that by the (18-15) halftime score. That kept us in the ballgame. We came back and scored 35 points in the second half after we settled down."

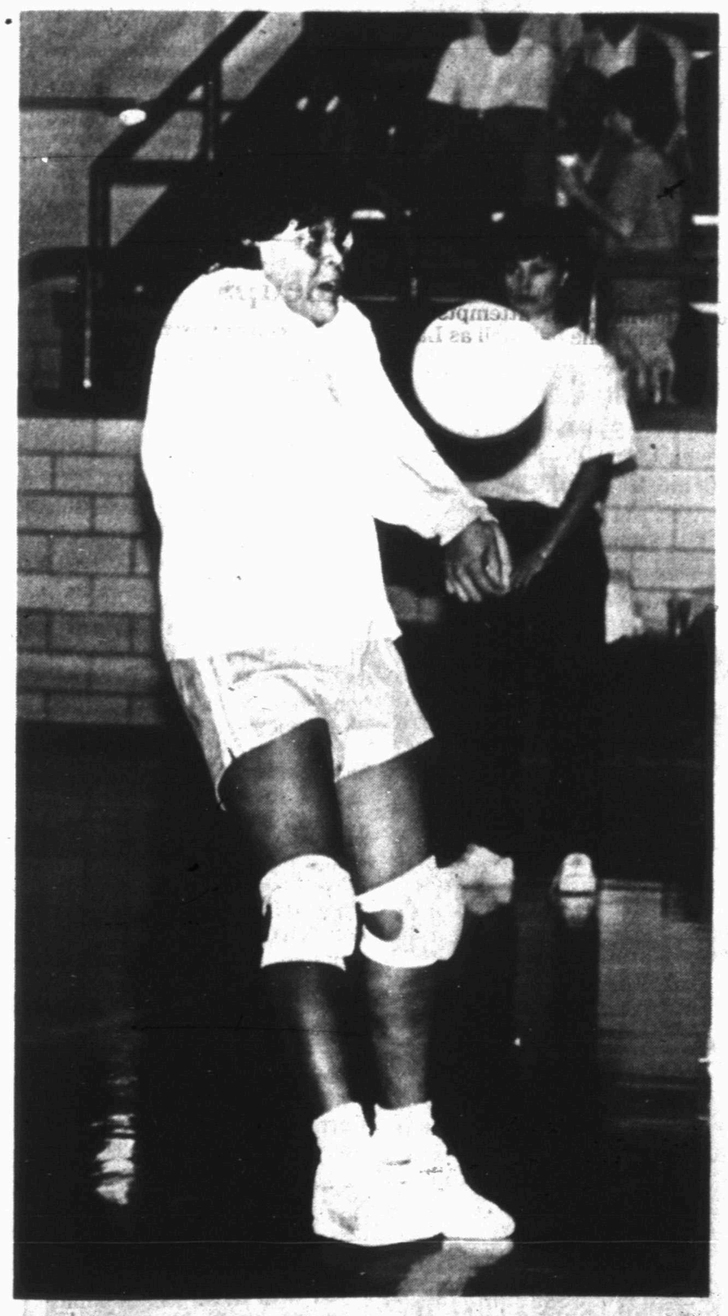

Eleven Dusters played in the game but Cox and Welch handled the bulk of the scoring. Angela Jeans added 3 points, Diana Quincy 2 and Wendy Milner 2.

"Pam had a great shooting game," said Chadwick, who did not have any percentages available. "Brenda really came through for us, too. I really think our defense in the post position with Brenda, Wendy (Milner) and G.G. (Robinson) made the difference. They just played outstanding post defense last night. We were behind most of the way but with 10 minutes left we put a good run together and finally got our offense going."

MCLENNAN (40)– McCutcheon 10, Lewis-8; TOTALS 18 4-6 40.

TOTAL FOULS: WTC 11, MCC 19.
FOULED OUT: None.
HALFTIME: MCC 18, WTC 15.

FACE MONAHANS – Snyder's Tigers, District 2-4A volleyball champions already, will play their final regular season match at 3 p.m. Saturday in Monahans. The Tigers took the volleyball championship earlier this week in a win over Sweetwater. Playoffs begin the week of Nov. 8. Above, Hope Hernandez receives an opponent's serve. (SDN Staff Photo)

More booster problems...

NCAA sights in on Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - The University of Kentucky says it will cooperate with an NCAA investigation into allegations that former Wildcat basketball players accepted cash and other gifts from boosters.

But the editor of the Lexington Herald-Leader, the newspaper that orginated the story, said Wednesday night that it wouldn't be willing to allow the National Collegiate Athletic Association to listen to its taped interviews with those players.

David Berst, the NCAA's enforcement director, confirmed in a telephone interview with The Associated Press that a decision to investigate was made Wednesday morning and UK officials were informed.

Ray Hornback, UK's vice-president for university relations, said in a statement Wednesday that "the university again pledges its cooperation with the NCAA in pursuing this matter."

The Herald-Leader reported Sunday that 26 former UK players admitted accepting money from boosters, in apparent violation of NCAA rules. The players also said they sold their free season tickets for $1,000 each or more and received excessive payments for speaking engagements.

UK already had announced that it had begun an internal investigation of the reports and had notified the NCAA and the Southeastern Conference. The statement issued Wednesday said the school sent copies of the Herald-Leader story and UK's public response to Steve Morgan of the NCAA staff.

Several players interviewed in the Herald-Leader story claimed after its publication that they were misquoted, or that their statements were taken out of context. Herald-Leader editor John Carroll said reporters had taped most of the conversations, and that the paper stood by its story.

Berst said Wednesday his organization could only ask the Herald to make the tapes available for the investigation. If the Herald refused, the NCAA staff's decision would be based "on the explanations of the individuals that claim they did not say what the newspaper claims," he said.

Carroll said the paper would not allow the NCAA to listen to the tapes.

"We've said before that we're not an arm of the NCAA any more than we are an arm of the University of Kentucky. We're in the business of covering news; that's what we're here for."

Berst said if any alleged wrongdoing is found, UK would be given a chance to respond. The NCAA staff would then meet with the organization's Committee on Infractions "who would propose a penalty if one is appropriate," he said.

Richardson aids New Jersey to come from behind victory

by The Associated Press

Let this be a warning to any National Basketball Association team that leads the New Jersey Nets by 19 points in the third quarter.

You could be in for a long night.

The Nets got a remarkable all-around performance from guard Micheal Ray Richardson Wednesday night as he scored a career-high 38 points and added 11 rebounds, 11 assists and nine steals in a 147-138 triple-overtime victory over the Indiana Pacers. The Nets trailed 91-72 late in the third quarter before rallying.

On opening night last Friday, New Jersey also trailed by 19 points in the third period before beating the Boston Celtics in double overtime.

In other NBA games, Boston beat Milwaukee 117-106, Philadelphia defeated Detroit 132-125 in overtime and Utah edged San Antonio 102-100.

After losing to the Pacers 119-92 on Saturday, Richardson vowed he would get even in Wednesday's rematch. It took him a while, but he finally did it, with help from Otis Birdsong, Darryl Dawkins and Buck Williams.

Birdsong scored 28 points, Dawkins hit 10 of 12 field goals and scored 25 points, and Williams had 20 points and 23 rebounds as New Jersey set a team record with 65 rebounds, one more than the previous high.

Herb Williams led Indiana with 28 points.

"We ran out of gas in the third overtime," said Indiana Coach George Irvine.

Celtics 117, Bucks 106

Kevin McHale, Dennis Johnson, Larry Bird and Robert Parish each scored 20 or more points to lead Boston over Milwaukee.

Bird, who made only 10 of 31 field-goal attempts in the Celtics' first two games, was 7-for-8 from the field and scored 22 points, 16 of them in the second quarter to help Boston take a 62-51 halftime lead.

The Celtics increased the margin to 17 points early in the second half, but with Bird on the bench with foul trouble the Bucks cut the deficit to three points at three different times in the fourth period.

But Johnson, who had 24 points, scored seven in a two-minute span to help the Celtics pull ahead 105-94.

McHale led Boston with 25 points, while Parish added 20. Ricky Pierce paced Milwaukee with 26.

76ers 132, Pistons 125

Moses Malone had 31 points and 14 rebounds to carry Philadelphia past Detroit.

A free throw by Rick Mahorn, who had 19 points and 16 rebounds, brought the Pistons to within 121-118 with 1:30 left in overtime, but a layup and free throw by Malone with 1:14 to go sealed the victory for the 76ers.

Julius Erving, whose free throw with 16 seconds left in regulation tied the game 113-113 and forced the extra period, had 24 points and rookie Terry Catledge had 19 points and 14 rebounds for the 76ers. Vinnie Johnson had 26 points and Kelly Tripucka 20 for Detroit.

Jazz 102, Spurs 100

Utah, which lost to San Antonio 124-112 on Tuesday night in Texas, returned home to turn the tables on the Spurs.

San Antonio had a 97-88 lead with 6:40 left in the game, but the Spurs scored only three points the rest of the way.

TEXAS INDEPENDENT GINNERS ASSOCIATION EST. 1962

INDEPENDENT

The restless, independent spirit that settled the west is still a vital force in Texas. Independent thinkers, people who are willing to take the risk of making their own decisions instead of following the crowd have been a basic ingredient in the history of Texas.

Since 1822 when the first Texas cotton gin was built, independent thinking cotton ginners have brought innovations and improvements that have produced major cost savings for all cotton farmers. TEXAS INDEPENDENT COTTON GINNERS are proud to be a part of the independent thinkers that have made the state of Texas great.

Competitive ginning prices and services. Telcot quotes and marketing available if you so choose. Outside buyers with top cotton prices.

Energy officials seeks to defuse criticism of site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Energy, which is drawing political fire as it narrows down the list of sites suitable for burying highly radioactive wastes, has asked the National Academy of Sciences to review how it picked the top three choices for the first permanent repository.

DOE officials said Wednesday that they hoped the review by the independent research organization of the nation's top scientists would quell criticism that the selection process is seriously flawed.

The department last December identified areas in Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle; Yucca Mountain on the edge of Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada; and the government's Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., as the three best sites for the first repository to be opened in 1998.

Two other locations — one near Richton, Miss., and the other just outside the Canyonlands National Park in Utah — were chosen as backup sites. But DOE officials say further consideration of those sites has been effectively eliminated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's decision not to challenge the department's choices of the Texas, Nevada and Washington sites.

Ben Rusche, head of the Energy Department's $20 billion radioactive waste program, said the academy review will delay until mid-February the department's final environmental assessments of the top three sites.

Under the tight schedule for meeting a congressional mandate to have the first dump operating by 1998, President Reagan will then have two months to approve the three choices and order detailed three-year studies on each.

Those studies, each costing up to $1 billion, will involve extensive mining 2,000 to 3,000 feet deep at each location to assess both geologic and water conditions to assure that no health-threatening amounts of radioactivity can escape for at least 10,000 years.

Based on the studies, whoever is president in 1991 will pick the site most suitable for the first depository.

Rusche said the National Academy's Board on Radioactive Waste Management has found the department's scientific methodology for ranking the sites to be appropriate. The new academy review will focus "on the reasonableness of our application of the methodology ... to add confidence to the process," he said.

Confidence in the process, however, was not apparent during a hearing Wednesday before the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

Senators from some of the 17 East Coast and Great Lakes states whose stable granite formations make them possible sites for a second repository argued that their states would not be an appropriate place for such a facility.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, questioned the need for a second repository at all, even though Congress restricted the size of the first one to 70,000 metric tons of highly radioactive wastes.

DOE officials have estimated that if no more nuclear plants beyond the 90 now licensed by the NRC are ever completed, the volume of wastes before they shut down will total 140 million tons, requiring a second repository.

Other states under consideration for the second dump are Wisconsin, Michigan, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Massachusetts, South Carolina, New Hampshire, New York, Georgia, North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

Soviet Union buys U. S. corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the Soviet Union has bought an additional 100,000 metric tons of U.S. corn — about 3.94 million bushels — for delivery in the coming year.

Officials said the sales were reported to USDA by private exporters as required by law. No prices or other details were disclosed.

The department says the latest estimated price of corn is about $2.19 per bushel at the farm. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans.

Thus, the latest sales reported by USDA on Wednesday would have an estimated farm value of about $8.6 million.

Under a five-year agreement, which began its third year on Oct. 1, the Soviet Union is committed to buy at least nine million tons of wheat and corn annually. At least four million tons of that must be wheat and four million tons corn.

The report said that so far the Soviets have bought 2.9 million tons of grain, including 2.76 million tons of corn and 150,000 tons of wheat for delivery in 1985-86. Sales for 1984-85 were a record of more than 18.6 million tons, including 15.8 million tons of corn and 2.9 million tons of wheat.

As specified by the pact, the Soviets fell short of their wheat commitment by 1.1 million tons in 1984-85.

Woman opens fire in shopping mall

SPRINGFIELD, Pa. (AP) — A 25-year-old woman accused of killing two people and wounding eight others in a shooting rampage through a crowded shopping mall urged a judge to "kill me on the spot" during arraignment on murder charges.

Police said Sylvia Seegrist, wearing military fatigues and carrying a .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle, drove up to the main entrance of the crowded Springfield Mall on Wednesday, got out and opened fire on passersby.

She then entered the mall, walking quickly and firing from the hip at random until a 24-year-old college student, thinking it was a prank, walked directly into her line of fire, wrested the gun from her and held her until guards arrived, police said.

The rampage killed a 2-year-old boy and a 64-year-old man, police said. Among the wounded were a 9-year-old girl, a 10-year-old boy, two teen-agers and a 67-year-old man who was in critical condition with gunshot wounds to the head and abdomen, a 27-year-old woman in serious condition, and a 50-year-old woman in fair condition. There were no details on the eighth person.

Ms. Seegrist's mother, Ruth, said her daughter had been in and out of psychiatric hospitals 12 times in the past 10 years and once tried to strangle her. Her pastor said she had stabbed someone at a halfway house four years ago.

At her arraignment before District Justice Joseph L. DiPietro at the Springfield police station, Ms. Seegrist was barefoot, handcuffed and wearing new blue jeans and a denim jacket.

While answering the judge's questions about her age and address, she spouted profanity and nonsense.

"Like, hurry up, man; you know I'm guilty, shoot and kill me on the spot," she said.

She accused her parents of beating her and said police wouldn't help her. "I'd rather not been bored — born," she said.

Jack Laufer, a student, said he saw Ms. Seegrist approaching across the mall but thought she was firing blanks as a prank. As she approached, she pointed the gun at him.

"You could see the muzzle flash and the spent casings being ejected out of the rifle," he said. "I closed right in on her, she was still pointing directly at me from about 10 yards and firing. She hit a lady behind us. I got close enough to grab her, grabbed the gun first, wrestled that away from her."

Amendment 1 review told

surance program. Under it, up to $250 million of the state's credit could be pledged to guarantee payment of bonds issued by political subdivisions for water supply, water quality and food control projects.

In addition, the amendment would authorize the legislature to create special water funds for various purposes and to appropriate state money to the funds.

If Amendment 1 is approved by Texas voters, legislation contingent on passage of the amendment will go into effect, including provisions for the following.

Conservation: The Water Development Board will conduct an educational and technical assistance program to help political subdivisions develop comprehensive water conservation plans.

Agricultural Soil and Water Conservation: A $15 million trust fund will be established with up to $5 million used for a two-year pilot program of low interest loans to farmers to purchase water conserving irrigation equipment. The remainder will be invested with interest to be split among the fund's principal and conservation programs of state agencies and universities.

Protection of Bays and Estuaries and Instream Uses: As permits for new lakes within 200 river miles of the coast are issued, the Water Commission will include requirements for inflows to the bays and estuaries necessary for an ecologically sound environment. Five percent of the annual firm yield of water from these lakes built with financial help from the state will be appropriated to the Parks and Wildlife Dept. for release to bays and estuaries and for instream use.

Underground Water Conservation Districts: The state code will be amended to allow the state to take the initiative to establish new districts. In addition, where groundwater problems are designated critical, the Texas Water Commission will provide for an election to create such a district if approved by voters. The powers given such districts would include to:

—Buy, sell, transport and distribute surface water and groundwater.

—Exercise the power of immnent domain except for the purpose of acquiring rights to underground water.

—Issue and sell bonds and notes.

When such districts are formed, they will be required to:

—Develop plans for efficient use of groundwater.

—Keep records of wells drilled and of groundwater production and use.

—Require permits for all wells that can produce 25,000 gallons or more per day, except wells for domestic use, livestock and oil and gas production.

—Report annually to the state regarding findings and activities.

—Hold an annual meeting to adopt a budget and tax rate.

Halloween spirits arise for occasion

By The Associated Press

The meanest spirits this Halloween may be adults taking the fun out of the night for children, says a sociologist afraid that the holiday is being changed for the worse.

An Alabama couple is planning to celebrate their wedding in a coffin-festooned ceremony amid witches and warlocks.

In Wisconsin, a couple who live with a teetotaling ghost will be raising a glass or two to him.

A naturalist in Maryland is trying to convince the easily spooked that bats, those familiar symbols of this scariest of nights, are actually friendly, furry creatures that see well and wouldn't hurt a soul.

And, a dentist has risen to the defense of candy.

Clint Sanders, an associate professor of sociology at the University of Connecticut, says adults have altered Halloween for children and it is now, like Christmas, "dominated by rituals centered around consumer consumption." Many businesses are cashing in on Halloween horror stories by advertising safe alternatives to candy collection, Sanders said, and hospitals are X-raying candy.

Also on the subject of candy, Dr. Heber Simmons Jr., a children's dentist and president-elect of the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, says parents shouldn't have nightmares about all the candy their children may end up eating.

"We used to think all candy was bad," Simmons said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Jackson, Miss. 'Really, that's not at all the truth."

His views were echoed by Dr. Stephen J. Moss, chairman of the Department of Pediatric Dentistry at New York University, who said all types of sugars are found in virtually every food and do not make a difference in cavity-causing potential.

Ecologist Arnold W. Norden with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources came to the defense of a much-maligned hobgoblin. Bats, included with black cats and ghosts in Halloween folklore, are in more danger from people than the reverse, according to Norden. He said residential and commercial development is threatening their natural habitat.

Bats are actually cute, furry friends of man that live on insects and pollinate fruit trees, he said.

But bats aren't the only creatures of the night used to scare the unwary.

In south Louisiana, it's the loup garou, the werewolf of the bayous, who gets you if you don't watch out, says Patricia Perrin, a folklorist and instructor at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, La.

In Plover, Wis., Tim and Louise Mulderink plan to spend tonight out-spooking the teetotaling spirit of a Methodist ghost who hangs around the Victorian restaurant they run.

"I accidentally put the bar in (his) bedroom," said Mulderink, whose restaurant has been beset by reported exploding glasses, banging pots, voices, mysterious footsteps and breezes in rooms with no windows.

In Decatur, Ala., Sheila Barnett and Zachary Pirtle were brewing up a Halloween wedding with all the trimmings at Pirtle's convenience store.

Dressed as Dracula, the vampire of lore, he planned to wait for his bride, in witch's garb, in a coffin. Guests were coming as monks, gypsies, warlocks, devils and scarecrows.

"I don't think anything could go wrong with our marriage, since we're starting it off testing fate like we are," Miss Barnett said. "I mean, a Dracula and witch couldn't get in too much trouble."

TEC figures are reported

During September, it was estimated at 3.4 percent.

In addition to Scurry, figures were reported for the five other counties served through the Sweetwater-based TEC office. These include:

—Nolan County: unemployment figured at 7.6 percent figuring a civilian labor force of 7,555 with 6,982 individuals employed and 573 unemployed.

—Mitchell County: unemployment figured at 4.5 percent figuring a civilian labor force of 4,506 with 4,305 individuals employed and 201 unemployed.

—Stonewall County: unemployment figured at 2.6 percent figuring a civilian labor force of 1,202 with 1,171 individuals employed and 31 unemployed.

—Kent County: unemployment figured at 7.2 percent figuring a civilian labor force of 497 with 461 individuals employed and 36 unemployed.

—Fisher County: unemployment figured at 8 percent figuring a civilian labor force of 2,289 with 2,105 individuals employed and 184 unemployed.

Governing party wins 4 of 5 seats, margins smaller

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Several thousand white voters deserted the ruling National Party in mid-term parliamentary elections to cast ballots for candidates calling for an entrenchment of apartheid, but the governing party retained four of five seats.

President P.W. Botha had said the election would be a test of white support for his limited moves away from apartheid, and his party had predicted it would retain all five seats.

However, Botha's party lost a race Wednesday in Sasolburg, a conservative town south of Johannesburg, by 367 votes out of a total of nearly 13,000. It won another election by only 749 votes and the other three races by more comfortable margins.

The Nationalists' vote totals decreased in the three districts in which they previously have been challenged by conservatives. Far-right candidates challeged the governing party for the first time in two districts.

Correction

In Wednesday's newspaper, it was incorrectly reported that profits from a VFW Halloween party Thursday night will go to the American Cancer Society. The profits will go to the VFW Cancer Aid and Research Program.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur made his famed "I shall return" statement as he fled the Philippines in 1942.

A marriage in Kentucky in 1891 ended the feud between the Hatfields and the McCoys.
