TWO LOCKNEY BOYS DROWN IN LAKE ACCIDENT

T-O Fair Closes Today With Big Auto Race Card

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED FOR FINAL EVENTS

Many Out-Of-Town Visitors Expected Despite Fall Of Rain

When clearing skies early Saturday evening followed close on the heels of the afternoon's downpour, prospects for the final day of the Texas-Oklahoma fair picked up considerably. The 1926 exposition—the fifth that has been held—will open its gates for the last time this afternoon and evening with a full program. Held open three days longer than originally intended, it is the hope of fair officials that a record crowd will be on hand today to help swell the final attendance record.

As a chief attraction, the fair offers another fast card of automobile races this afternoon. The rains of Saturday afternoon, it was declared last night, were not sufficiently heavy to damage the track, and unless rain appeared after midnight Saturday and before time for the start, the speedway will be in excellent condition. On of the best cards ever arranged here has been lined up for the event.

Inasmuch as automobile racing has always been popular in Wichita Falls, it is expected the grand stand will be well filled when the machines roar out this afternoon. The races will be staged under the auspices of the American Automobile association.

Exhibits on the ground remain intact with the exception of the livestock and a few of the poultry pens. These have been taken to the State fair which opened Saturday in Dallas.

The carnival attractions are also running full tilt and everything will remain open to visitors until Sunday night when the gates will be closed.

Attendance on the grounds Saturday was good, considering the inclemency of the weather. The exhibit halls attracted a large quota of visitors and the carnival also played to good-sized crowds.

Officer Visits T-O Fair; Home Robbed

DALLAS, Oct. 9. (AP)—While Ollie Freeland, Dallas city detective, was at Wichita Falls aiding officers there during the fair, a burglar entered his home here and stole about $300 worth of clothing, silverware and other articles. Mrs. Freeland was away on a shopping tour.

NEW YORK has just passed through the throes of its annual moving spell and never before has the restlessness of the human soul been so thoroughly demonstrated. The moving industry which thrives on this restlessness, this constant search for something better, something different, estimates that between 100,000 and 120,000 families change their abode in the metropolis during the hurricane of transfer which centered about the first of October.

The telephone company in New York City had orders for more than 65,000 changes in service, fairly swamping its mechanical force and placing out of date something like a million immense telephone directories. The gas and electric companies were inundated with "changes" and with news service, as many modern apartments were opened for the first time.

Record Human Shift.

The record part of this extraordinary human shift was the fact that only an infinite small number of movers made any marked changes in their manner of living. Few if any of the families moved "to the country." Few dwellers moved into homes; and few home dwellers switched to apartments. Virtually all of the moving was from flat to flat. It is a great game of rainbow chasing, looking for something more desirable, just around the corner, lots of families moved from one apartment to another in the same building.

For the most part the movers, it seems, were seeking to better themselves. New York has been rolling in prosperity and an orgy of spending. The first significance of success to a New York family is to put on more style, to move downtown, to change from the West Side to the East Side, from

HEAVY RAINS SOAK COUNTRY

Oklahoma And North Texas Affected By Downpour Saturday

Not content with having soaked the section thoroughly in the past two weeks, the weather man Saturday unloosed another rainy torrent over southern Oklahoma and North Texas.

The showers, while extremely heavy, had not at a late hour last night caused any measurable damage. They had, however, put unpaved roads in an impassable condition again. Reports received here yesterday indicated the rain had been much heavier in that section than it was locally.

Childress and Quanah reported a steady rain all day, with highways bottomless mud pits. Altus, Frederick and Manguni, Okla., also reported steady rains most of the day, further complicating cotton picking conditions in the territory.

No trouble was reported by railroads which have just returned to normal operating schedules after the disastrous floods of early this week which swept away bridges across Red river and demoralized most of the transportation facilities of the Panhandle.

Generally fair weather was reported over the Panhandle Saturday night, however, and fair and cooler conditions were expected.

WEST TEXAS POINTS REPORT DOWNPOURS

DALLAS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Heavy rains in West Texas about Childress and Plainview, and Clarendon with showers at Dallas, Wichita Falls and throughout North Texas were recorded by the United States weather bureau here Saturday. A deluge fell in Childress at 8 a. m. today.

Intermittent rain fall greeted the opening of the State fair of Texas here but failed to materially check the crowd.

The forecast for tonight and Sunday is partly cloudy to unsettled weather with occasional showers. Sunday will be cooler with the temperature about 70, the forecast said.

HEAVY RAIN AT ALTUS SATURDAY

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 9.—Rainfall which strated here early this morning reached one and one-half inches at 10 a. m.. Rain is still falling fast and roads are again in a slick, muddy condition. Not any of the road bridges washed out last week-end by heavy rains have been replaced to date. Contracts for part of the road bridges will be made next week.

COTTON HOLDS ATTENTION AS PRICE SLUMPS

Control of Situation Seen In Future By Reduction Of Acreage

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Special Writer For The Record News.

There is activity everywhere on the cotton firing line. There appears to be a determination on the part of all concerned to warehouse the surplus and to reduce the acreage in 1927. Cotton cooperatives have been given a big boost by the federal government. This, in the action of the Federal Farm Loan board in extending a $20,000,000 credit to co-operative marketing associations that have been hit hard by the slump in cotton prices.

Federal Aid Ready.

It is announced from Washington that the $20,000,000 will be available through the intermediate credit banks and will be used in the orderly marketing of the cotton crop of 1926. A Texan, A. C. Williams, is chairman of the Federal Farm Loan board. Speaking for the board, he has assured all co-operatives that the intermediate banks are prepared to assist in any way possible "in disposition of the crop through soundly organized and properly managed co-operative marketing associations."

This is a sweeping recognition on the part of the federal government of the cotton co-operative association and it is certain to restore confidence in the ranks of these organizations. Proposals that bankers of southern cotton growing states adopt the policy of Texas bankers in financing a withdraw of 1,000,000 bales of cotton from the market without delay to stabilize prices, was made by W. W. Woodson of Waco to a group of southern states bankers attending the American Bankers' association in the city of Los Angeles. He urged the bankers present to finance the withdrawal and storage of 2,000,000 bales of cotton, the Texas bankers having agreed to finance 1,000,000 bales of the Texas crop of 1926.

Bankers Are Warned.

Banker Woodson of Waco warned the bankers of the cotton belt that the decline of cotton prices already had cost the south $400,000,000. His fellow bankers from the other cotton states "took the matter under advisement." If the Texas bankers are successful in taking a million bales from the market then it should be easy for the bankers of all other cotton states to take two million bales from the market, place the same in storage and provide for orderly marketing.

Banner Counties.

Williamson and Ellis are the banner cotton producing counties of Texas. That is, those counties held the record for many years.

DRIVE ON BORGER

Federal Officers Make Ready To "Clean" Town

AMARILLO, Oct. 9 (AP)—Concentration of federal law enforcement agencies was under way here today following a report to Federal Judge H. A. Atwell, that vices and lawlessness were rampant in the boom town of Borger, situated in the heart of Amarillo-Panhandle oil field, 50 miles from here.

HE DRINKS POISON

And Struggles With Police Who Try to Save Him.

TEXARKANA, Oct. 9. (AP)—G. C. Duke, mechanic, is in a hospital here suffering from the effects of drinking poison and burns on his face and hands from acid spilled when struggling with Mrs. Duke and three police officers, whom Mrs. Duke had called to her assistance. Two of the policemen were burned on the hands by the acid. Duke's condition is serious but it is believed he will recover.

HUGO BANK CLOSES

HUGO, Okla., Oct. 9. (AP)—The Citizens State bank of Soper, 10 miles west of here, closed today. The bank's board voted yesterday after a run not to open today. This action follows the closing of the First National bank of Boswell in the same section of Choctaw county.

GILMER, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—James East, 25, was given a four-year sentence here today on a charge of stabbing his step-brother L. T. Albright, 17. Albright was stabbed on June 20 and died September 19. The stabbing occurred in the Graceton community in this county.

He's 105 And He Can Prove It

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Oct. 9.—T. M. Mayo, Confederate veteran of Austin, attending the state reunion of the boys in gray here is 105 years old and he can prove it. "Some funny things happen in this world," he declared as he prepared to return to his home. "I notice in press dispatches that a Wichita Falls man, Judge John C. Kay, recently took a whack at the newspapers as dispensers of bunk and declared he challenged the Associated Press to produce proof that any man in the United States ever lived to be 105 years old. Well, I can do it, and I expect to live several years longer. Mayo was born in McMinnville, Tenn., in 1821. He enlisted at the age of 40 in the 16th Tennessee cavalry and has lived in Texas 72 years. He is erect and alert, doesn't use a cane, possesses most of his teeth and reads without the use of glasses. During the convention, he wore down several veterans 25 years younger than himself.

HIGHWAY QUIZ OPENS OCT. 18

Satterwhite Announces Tentative Date To Begin State Probe

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—Start of the investigation of state department by a house committee appointed at the recent special session of the 39th legislature, has been tentatively set for October 18. On that date taking of testimony is expected to begin.

Richard Critz of Williamson county, chose personal friend of attorney General Dan Moody, the democratic gubernatorial nominee, as attorney for the committee, of which Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the house is the chairman.

Many Witnesses

With the attorney general's department working in close co-operation with the committee, it is expected that many of the witnesses, who appeared last winter and spring before Travis county grand juries, engaged in probing the highway department, will be subpoenaed by the committee.

The inquiry will center about the highway commission, textbook commission, and pardon board. The highway commission is practically certain to be the first considered by the probers.

Chairman Satterwhite said he did not anticipate the committee would be hampered by failure of the senate to pass the bill by representative Hall of Harris, making it punishable by fine and imprisonment for a person to refuse to testify before a legislative investigating committee. This bill passed the house by a substantial margin, but was never reported out of the senate committee.

They Must Testify

"Any witness refusing to testify would come under the suspicion of the public," Satterwhite said.

Members of the committee: Satterwhite, of Potter, Veatch, of Johnson, Howell of Montgomery, Teer of Williamson, Hetsch of Gillespie, Montgomery of Hidalgo, Wallace of Freestone, secretary, and Williamson of Bexar.

ASK LYNCH PROBE

Tennessee Authorities to Quiz Negro Hanging

DOVER, Tenn., Oct. 9. (AP)—Local authorities tonight planned to request Governor Austin Peay to use his state offices to aid in the investigation of the lynching of Herbert Bell, negro, last night near Parkertown, 10 miles from here.

This announcement was made by Sheriff L. L. Ellis, who said in addition that he would consult Circuit Judge J. D. G. Morton at Gallatin and District Attorney John D. Bowman to advise with him on what procedure he should follow in effecting arrests.

LIEUTENANT TUNNEY

World Champion Boxer Gets Marine Commission.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—Gene Tunney today gained an honor, which he said he desired as much as that of the heavyweight championship—his commission as a first lieutenant in the United States marine corps.

The formal presentation took place in Mayor Walker's reception room, where the oath of service was administered by Major H. W. Stone, commandant of the Seventh Marine regiment of reserves to which Tunney will be attached.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—The long drawn out litigation between Sebastian K. Kresge, head of the S. S. Kresge company and ten-cent stores, and his wife, Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, took a new turn today when Mrs. Kresge obtained a supreme court order restraining her husband from prosecuting his action for divorce in Detroit.

Immediately after the order had been signed by Justice Levy, a messenger was sent to Detroit with certified copies to be served on Mr. Kresge.

HAINES TO GO IN BOX TODAY FOR RED BIRDS

World Series Title Outcome Staked On Result of Today's Contest

BY BRIAN BELL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.(AP)—Jubilant Cardinal players made the welkin ring in their club house after today's game had returned the St. Louis club the winner and extended the world series to its full length of seven games.

"They can't beat us now," declared the National leaguers. "We came from behind again and we'll win tomorrow."

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the National league champions, joined in the enthusiasm of his men, although he managed to control his emotion. He was confident, however, when he said:

"Alexander stopped them and won, just as I said he would. Alexander has left a mark for the next generation to aim at, with his world series games eleven years apart.

Haines Will Pitch.

"I was absolutely confident that Alexander would beat the Yankees today and I am just confident that Jesse Haines will beat them again tomorrow and give us the championship. Jesse may not shut them out again but we don't figure he will have to to win.

"We hit the ball today when we had to, and we will hit again tomorrow when hits will mean even more than they did today."

The Yankees took their defeat philosophically. They were frankly disappointed for they had expected to end the series today but they had not lost courage and declared that while they will have to wait another day for their championship victory it would be none the less sturdy returned tomorrow.

Yanks Didn't Hit.

"We didn't hit," somewhat sadly remarked Manager Miller Huggins. "The boys are playing some 'in and out' baseball in this series but it will be all right when we win tomorrow. Alexander had a better game left in his system than we thought and he was better than our pitchers today. We have too good a club to be stopped twice in a row, when the championship hinges on one game. We will be in there tomorrow."

Huggins said that he was impressed today, as he had been in previous games by the sterling play of his three young infielders, who have not cracked under the strain, as it had been suggested they might.

Hornsby Praises Holm.

Hornsby praised the well rounded play of Rosce Holm, a Cardinal sub, in today's game. He called attention to the hitting and fielding of the center fielder, who was playing his second full game in the series on account of injuries to Taylor Douthit.

Manager Huggins was not ready to announce his pitching choice for the final game. He was known to favor Waite Hoyt, who has a winning game in the series to his credit as first choice, with an outside possibility that Dutch Ruether would get the assignment.

Madame Ida Chernoff, Beauty Expert, Opens Free School for Wichita Falls Women This Week at Olympic Treatre

Internationally Known Beauty Authority Comes to This City Under Auspices of The Record News and Will Lecture for Week

Madame Ida Charnoff, internationally known beauty expert and recognized as one of the most forceful and convincing feminine speakers on the flatform today, comes to Wichita Falls this week to conduct a beauty school different by far than the ordinary and which it is confidently predicted, will be one of the outstanding events of its kind in Wichita Falls.

Madame Chernoff enjoys the dual distinction of recognition as an expert on matters of feminine beauty and also as a speaker of interest and power. Her knowledge of beauty methods; her thorough familiarity with feminine physiology and her able oratorical abilities have placed her in a class by herself when it comes to dealing with questions that vitally concern the health and appearance of every woman.

Speaks At Olympic

Coming to Wichita Falls under the auspices of the Record News, Madame Chernoff will speak each morning at 10 o'clock at the Olympic theatre. The detailed program of her school—for such it is to be—will be found on page 6, section two of this edition. Her subjects are seemingly commonplace, yet each is of the utmost importance to the appearance of every woman who would look her best. Health will be the underlying feature of the school, for it is without question the biggest factor at all times in natural beauty and attractive appearance.

Thorough School

The thoroughness of the schbol is to be one thing that recommends itself to the discriminating woman. Various enterprises have been undertaken in the past by specialists in some particular phase of beauty or health—or both; and while they may have treated adequately of their one subject, they have fallen far short of the completeness with which Madame Charnoff deals with her topic. Every phase of beauty and health is included; questions are answered frankly on all matters and valuable suggestions and pointers given.

School Is Free

The Record News has gone to no little expense to bring Madame Chernoff to Wichita Falls, and it is with a feeling of pride that it announces the school which will be entirely free for all women of this city and section. The school begins each morning at 10:30 at the Olympic theatre.

3 INJURED IN AUTO WRECK

Smash Up Takes Place Saturday Evening Near Harrold

An automobile wreck on the Wichita Falls-Vernon highway, a mile and a half east of Harrold Saturday evening shortly after six o'clock resulted in the injury to two women who were driving a Ford touring car, and to Paul King of Dallas, employe of the Lone Star Gas company, who is working in Vernon.

The accident took place on the highway when the women, attemped to pass a car on the road, and in going to the left of the car met King's oncoming automobile, a Chrysler touring. King drove off the pavement, but the front bumper caught the lighter car which turned almost completely over in the impact, and threw the Chrysler engine first into the gutter. The women were taken to Vernon for medical treatment.

LARGE OIL DEAL

Texas Company Takes Over Lewis Property

MEXIA, Oct. 9. (AP)—Sale of the properties of the Lewis Oil corporation in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas was revealed here Saturday when the Texas company, purchaser, took charge of the 20 pumpers operated since 1922 by the Lewis company.

The consideration was not given. It is understood here that the deal was made by the respective presidents of the two companies in New York last Thursday and included about 30,000 acres of undeveloped leases, two gas plants in Oklahoma and about 2,500 barrels of settled Mid-Continent production.

WILL REPAIR BURK BRIDGE

Structure Damaged By High Water To Be Opened In Two Weeks

The Burkburnett toll bridge, damaged early last week when the Red river went on a rampage from flood waters, will be rebuilt at once and traffic will be able to cross the river on it within two weeks or less, it was announced yesterday by J. A. Staley following a meeting of stock holders of the bridge company.

After some 300 feet of the bridge had been washed away by the flood waters, some doubt existed as to whether or not the bridge would be repaired. It will be abandoned when a new free bridge now being built is completed, although this will be a long time yet. At the stockholders' meeting yesterday, however, it was unanimously agreed that the bridge should be repaired.

Repair work has been started on closing the gap opened by the flood and will be rushed through to completion as early as possible.

Daugherty Jurors Tied On Verdict

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—Indications increased tonight that the jury in the case of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller was having difficulty in reaching any one of the three verdicts outlined as possible by Federal Judge Julian Mack when he turned the celebrated case over to them more than a full day before.

The jury announced at 6:30 tonight that there was no immediate prospect of their reaching a verdict and they went to a leisure dinner, returning at 8 p. m. Federal Judge Julian Mack went home but announced he would be on call until 11:30 if the jury reached a verdict before that time, otherwise deliberations would be resumed tomorrow morning at 10, he said.

BROTHERS DIE WHILE PLAYING ON TINY RAFT

Martin Allen, 18, Drowns During Cramps Seizure; Rescue Attempt Fatal

LOCKNEY, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—Martin Allen, 18, and Fred Allen, 16, brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. Allen, who reside on a farm five m. s north of here, were drowned today in the Allen Brown lake, near their home.

The Allen boys, in company with Melvin Walters and a younger brother, Woodrow Allen, had started on a raft ride across the lake upon reaching the center of the water the elder Allen boy decided to take a swim at a depth a foot or so over his head. As he plunged into the water it became apparent that he was stricken with cramps or some kindred illness, and his younger brother took to the water to aid him. In the struggle which followed both boys were drowned.

The two survivors propelled the raft to the bank and gave warning of the tragedy and more than 100 local people joined in the search for the bodies. Frank Jones and Herbert Nicholas, Lockney brought the bodies to the surface after they had been located within eighteen inches of each other.

GRADY MORGAN BADLY INJURED

Man Found Unconscious In Road With His Truck Stalled Nearby

Grady Morgan, a driver for the Boardman Oil company, was brought into the general hospital early last night in an unconscious condition and with an apparent skull fracture which made an immediate operation necessary.

Morgan was found lying in the ditch on the Holliday Park drive, in an unconscious condition and his face and clothing bloody. His truck was standing along side the road partly in the ditch, but was not wrecked and apparently had not struck anything. Persons living nearby stated that the truck had been standing there since about six o'clock in the evening, but they had not seen any persons about the truck. Morgan had started to supply some filling stations along the road.

There seems to be no present solution as to how Morgan became wounded as the first notice of his plight came when a passing motorist stopped and investigated the truck and found Morgan lying in the ditch. He reported the incident and an ambulance brought Morgan to the general hospital where he was still unconscious late last night.

Morgan is married and lives at 1214 Twenty-first street, and his wife stated last night, when informed of the accident, that she had known nothing of it until informed by a Record News reporter.

PARNELL BACK FROM CAPITAL

Wichita Senator Praises Work Accomplished By Special Session

"A difficult job well done," was the characterization made Saturday by State Senator J. D. Parnell on his return from Austin where the special session of the legislature adjourned Friday. Parnell discussed a number of measures with which the legislature concerned itself, included in which was the school appropriation, the two revenue measures and additional items. He said he did not believe there would be another called session of the legislature and that a tax reduction of some three and one-half million dollars was possible in the next two tax years.

Speaking of the $3,500,000 public school fund appropriation, Senator Parnell said that this would raise the scholastic apportionment to $14 per capita, which was the highest it had ever been in the history of the state. He said if a $15 per capita levy is needed, the 40th legislature will no doubt pass an emergency appropriation to take care of it.

Parnell believed the proposed three-cent gas tax and the reduction in motor registration fees, both of which were beaten, were not wisely drawn and would not have been for the best interests of the people had they passed.

"It is true," he said, "that the motor registration fee would have been kept in the counties, but due to the reduction in the fee, the smaller counties would not have benefitted a great deal. The larger counties, it is true, would have received sufficient money to build all the roads they needed. That portion of the three-cent gasoline tax going to the state highway commission would have reduced the funds of the highway commission some three and one-half million dollars. In addition to that the law provides that all this money must be spent on the designated highways, which constitute only ten per cent of the highways of Texas. It is conservatively estimated that only 30 per cent of the people would have been benefitted by the construction of these roads, and the small amount derived from the automobile tax and left in the county would not enable them to construct a county wide system of roads."

He went on to explain some of the ways in which the apportionment would fail and pointed out that east Texas counties, under the provisions of the proposed three-cent gasoline tax, would get about $2.37 1-2 of the allotments against $1 alloted to west Texas counties. The 97th meridian, he said, was the dividing line. About 68 per cent of the gasoline consumed in the state is used in counties west of the meridian line, with the balance being used in those points east of it.

"The legislature has done all in its power toward validating the road bonds and it remains now for the courts to decide whether or not the laws that have been passed are valid," Parnell asserted. "It is to be hoped the question has been solved and Texas municipal securities will again find a demand in the bond market and bring an amount equal to their value.

"It was my privilege to support every measure pertaining to the investigation of the various state departments and state officials. I do not believe that anything should stand in the way of the investigation. Every citizen should have an opportunity to present their grievances and their criticisms.

"I was very sorry, indeed, that the bill introduced by Mr. Hall of Harris county, giving the committee the right to summon witnesses and force them to testify did not pass. This bill had my support and endorsement, but the opponents of the bill in the senate were successful in defeating it."

COOLIDGE TO AID FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP) President Coolidge today came to the aid of the cotton farmers by appointing a special governmental board to assist him in solving the problem brought about by a slump in cotton prices.

The board will join with other agencies of both the federal and state governments already at work and will devote special attention to devising orderly methods of disposing of the large cotton stock on hand.

The president acted in the belief that the situation could be met by a proper coordination of all agencies endeavoring to assist in the work as he had been informed by his official advisors that the situation presented no occasion for "panicky" views.

Eugene Meyer, managing director of the war finance corporation was named chairman of the president's committee while Secretaries Mellon, Jardine and Hoover are the other members.

Long, Tall Cop and Dusky Cotton Picker Have Disagreement

A colored cotton picker of recent residence in the city, discovered yesterday that the stern hand of the law in Wichita Falls was not only swift but accurate.

According to his story he was walking down the street peacefully, but slightly intoxicated. At the corner of Eighth and Ohio, a long, tall policeman called on him to halt and his feet wouldn't behave. The result was that he started to run and the long, tall policemn stopped him with one shot from his service revolver. When he fell he bruised his lip and his head, and also discovered that he had a flesh wound in the hip. That was his story, but—

When he faced Judge McFarlane in county court it was disclosed that he has purchased a considerable quanlity of meat from two meat markets under the guise of being an employee of two local cafes. The charge was swindling and he was given 20 days in jail to rest up and let his wounds heal.

BOOK COVERS FOR STUDENTS

Bryant Receives Big Supply For Use In Schools Of County

County Superintendent Buel Bryant announced yesterday that he was in receipt of a large supply of book covers for use in the rural schools of the county. "These are furnished free to any and all who want them and will apply for them," Mr. Bryant stated, but we are authorized to give them only to the rural schools of the county.

These book covers are furnished through the courtesy of the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers association, which is supplying them to all rural school children of Texas, and it was through the efforts of George Dashner of the local cotton oil mills that Wichita county received an ample supply.

All county school superintendents, principals and teachers are advised that plenty of the covers may be had on application to the county superintendent.

OFFICIAL WAR BRINGS HAULS

"Make Life Hard For Rum Peddlers," Is Motto By Officers

The concerted drive of the city police department to clean up bootlegging in Wichita Falls in recent weeks has brought some worthwhile results, Chief of Police George H. Hodgins declared Saturday.

Since a "shake-down" of alleged bootlegging dives started about ten days ago prior to the opening of the Texas-Oklahoma fair, seven men have been arrested and charges filed in federal court. About 300 gallons of liquor of various sort and quality has been seized and destroyed and five or six stills captured and broken up. Some of the arrests, Hodgins claims, has resulted in the breaking up of importation of so-called "bonded whisky."

The seven men against whom charges have been filed in federal court include Jack Hill, who has been convicted of several previous offenses following his arrest on liquor charges; L. E. Rone, Louis Heineman, Bill Tarver, Jake Baumgardner, Jess Bird and Wallace Warfield. The latter two were arrested with Hill. The latter, at the last term of federal court, was fined heavily by Judge W. H. Atwell and warned at the time that another appearance in his court would mean a long penitentiary sentence.

Federal court convenes here about the middle of November and Hill's case will be called then.

"The hip-pocket bootlegger is the hardest one to catch," Chief Hodgins stated yesterday, "and we are compelled to keep constantly on the watch for such characters. They peddle the stuff direct to the consumer in small quantities, and it is almost impossible to catch them with the goods. We have had some success in arresting these fellows, though, and we are going to keep right on getting them as long as they persist in plying their trade here."

U. S. WILL ASK CHINESE TRUCE

Request Made on Behalf Of Foreigners In Besieged City

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.(AP)—Impelled by human considerations Secretary Kellogg directed the American legation in Peking today to suggest an armistice to the warring Chinese factions so that noncombatants might evacuate the besieged city of Wu Chang.

The suggestion will be relayed by the legation to Consul General Frank Lockhart at Hankow across the river from Wu Chang. The aid of foreign relief agencies will be extended to the city's residents.

Graphic reports of extreme suffering among the civilian population in Wu Chang prompted the secretary's action. A report from Lockhart, sent from Hankow on Thursday, reached the state department shortly after the secretary had cabled his instructions to Peking. This report stated accounts of the situation in the besieged city had been greatly exaggerated and there had been "practically no deaths from starvation."

Children Killed.

Lockhart's report, however, confirmed earlier official advices that women and children had been trampled to death at the gate of Wu Chang in the rush to escape when foreign relief work first began. An earlier estimate placed the number of dead at 50 and today's message said Americans who visited the city Wednesday confirmed the report.

The consul general also said a compromise between the besieging Cantonese forces and the northern garrison of Wu Chang appeared to be near and because of this evacuation of refugees had virtually ceased.

Should fighting at Wu Chang be terminated by agreement, Lockhart said there will be no occasion for American diplomatic and consular intervention in the name of humanity.

Americans Safe.

The message today reported all Americans in Wu Chang and Nanchang safe and well and also indicated decisive military developments were expected soon in the vicinity of Kiukiang where General Sun Chuan Fang, ally of the northern faction has been attempting to cut Cantonese communications about Hankow and Wu Chang. The message added that the Cantonese were close to Kiakung and that General Sun was aboard a gun boat and many of his troops had been withdrawn from the city although it had not been completely evacuated on Friday.

12 FAMILIES MAROONED

Oklahoma Flood Cuts Off Farm District Dwellers.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9. (AP) Twelve families today were believed to be marooned in the flood which yesterday was sent sprawling over 65 square miles of corn and cotton land when gaps, suddenly opened in levees on two tributaries to the Verdigris river near Broken Arrow, Okla. Some were thought to be clinging to roofs of their homes.

Little, But Oh My, What a Wallop It Had When It Hit

A. L. Park, negro employee on the new Medical Arts building at Lamar and Eighth, was painfully injured yesterday about ten a. m., when a piece of cement fell from one of the top stories and struck him on the head as he stood on the ground. He was knocked unconscious and was thought at first to be seriously injured.

A Merkel ambulance carried him to the general hospital where he was resting comfortably last night. Physicians at the hospital state his condition is not serious.

The piece of cement which struck him was very small but it fell from a considerable height and came with enough force to knock him down and out. Workmen on the building stated that it was not uncommon for small bits of masonry to raise a goose-egg one the head when it fell from an eight or ten story heighth, but declared that it was the first time they had seen a man knocked down by such a small fragment of stone.

HAINES ASKS PARTY SYSTEM

G. O. P. Candidate For Texas Governor Addresses Crowd Here

Judge Harvey Haines, republican candidate for governor of Texas in the coming general election, made an able address to a representative audience at the county court house last night. There was a good attendance of party republicans present and a number of democrats also attended to hear Haines, who is an interesting speaker.

He made a strong appeal for the two-party system in Texas, calling attention to the many instances wherein Texas has lost out in governmental appropriations because of its one-party condition, and prophesied that Texas would continue to be loser in national affairs as long as it remains strictly a one-party state.

As head of the Houston chamber of commerce Judge Haines has had an opportunity to come in contact with the largest money concerns and capitalists of the nation, and he stated that these men had told him they did not care to invest money in Texas so long as the state had such a government as it now has. He called attention to the bond conditions now existing.

Judge Haines also referred to the millions of dollars worth of vegetables, fruits and other products that rot every year in Texas, because there has not been ample capital to handle this stuff and get it on the market properly. He stated that Texas cotton would continue to go to the eastern mills at a low figure and return to Texas at a high figure just as long as the state pursues the one-party system in politics.

"It is high time the people of Texas wake up to the situation and take steps to provide a more even political chance for the republican party, which in turn will provide safer and more impressive government," he stated.

The republican candidate spoke for more than and hour and a quarter along these lines, and also commended the local republican organization for their consistent work in holding a regular primary and gathering their forces more closely together.

POLICE IN RAID FOR EVIDENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—The home of Henry Stevens, one of four persons under indictment for the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and his choir leader, Mrs. Elhanor R. Mills was raided for evidence today by Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson and investigators, the New York Herald Tribune will say tomorrow.

According to the paper, Senator Simpson declined to explain the purpose of the raid, made at Lavalette, N. J., but announced he had taken two fish scaling knives he had found on the premises. Mrs. Stevens and her sister, Mrs. H. P. Griffin were not at home when the investigators entered the house the paper will say but they arrived before Senator Simpson and his assistants finished their search.

Mrs. Stevens said that besides the two knives an old razor and a small saw were missing.

MAN HUNT ON FOR DRY AGENT

Former Houston Prohibition Officer Indicted On Bribery Charge

HOUSTON, Oct. 9.(AP)—An international man hunt that has baffled department of justice agents since last March was bared Friday when the federal grand jury returned an indictment against George H. Wilkins, former Houston prohibition agent.

Five counts of the indictment charged Wilkins with soliciting and accepting bribes from violators of the national prohibition account, the sums alleged to have been obtained ranging from $25 to $1,000.

Formal charges were sworn out against Wilkins early last March and he disappeared shortly afterwards. Federal authorities kept the matter secret in the hope that he would return to the city or be captured elsewhere. The first public record to appear in the case was the indictment which was returned Friday afternoon.

Wilkins came to the Houston district prohibition office as an under-cover man last January. He had credentials which purported to show he had been chief of intelligence officers for mining concerns in South America and Mexico. One credential indicated he had been chief of detectives in the Panama Canal zone.

Suspicion began to center on him when other prohibition agents refused to work with him on account of his "strange behavior." Two agents were assigned to watch him and gathered most of the evidence which led to his indictment.

A few days before the investigation culminated in the filing of charges, he disappeared.

DEBIT GAIN IN BANK DISTRICT

Wichita Falls Banks Show Slight Decrease In Week's Total

DALLAS, Oct. 9.(AP)—A gain of more than $22,000,000 was shown in the total of debits to individual accounts of banks in the eleventh reserve district, reporting to the Dallas Federal Reserve bank for the week ending October 6, by comparison with the figures for the same week a year ago.

While Fort Arthur debits were not included in last year's total, the deduction of this figure leaves the net gain more than $20,000,000, indicating healthful business activity throughout the district. Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas and Beaumont were among the cities showing notable gains for the week.

The comparative figures follow:

Grand jury of thirtieth district court returns twenty-seven indictments in report to Judge H. R. Wilson.

A MAN WITH A RECORD

"ARIZONA" was a play made by Augustus Thomas some two decades ago. It was written when Arizona was a territory. Arizona jumped into statehood and the play "Arizona" passed into the vale of obscurity. All this is a reminder that Arizona has a governor who has a most unique record.

His name is George W. P. Hunt, and he is a candidate for re-election. Should he win in November and the gamblers of Arizona are betting that the democrat will sweep the state, he will add to his most unique record. Hunt is the democrat whose first job in Arizona was that of dishwasher. He was broke and could find nothing else to do until he had made himself a stake.

He was elected in 1914. He was kept out of office in 1916 by a republican contest, but was finally seated by the legislature and the courts and voted a salary for the full term. In 1918 the democrats nominated Judge Colter for governor, and he was defeated by Thomas M. Campbell, republican.

In 1919 Hunt was appointed minister to Siam by President Woodrow Wilson. He was serving as a federal commissioner of conciliation, adjusting strikes and labor disputes when a democratic president gave him the Siam appointment.

William B. Wilson, now United States senatorial nominee in Pennsylvania, was secretary of labor, and Joseph S. Myers of Texas and Hunt worked together in the settlement of labor disputes.

One of the first things the republicans did when they came into power was to kick Hunt off the payroll. He immediately went back to Arizona and proceeded to kick the republican governor, Thomas E. Campbell, out of the office in the election of 1922.

Hunt was re-elected in 1924 and as has been stated, he was renominated this year by the democrats and all the signs point to another victory for him in November. He is a democrat who has never been defeated in any gubernatorial race.

Thomas E. Campbell now is the republican national committeeman from Arizona. There was a republican landslide in Arizona in 1920, and in that landslide Ralph E. Cameron, republican, was elected to a seat in the United States senate. He is one of the republicans who expects to be ousted from the senate at the coming November election.

Hunt is as rare a character as Governor Vic Donehey of Ohio or Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. He came up from the ranks, and throughout his political career there has never been a splotch placed upon his record as a servant of the people.

He is very close to former Labor Commissioner Joseph S. Myers of Texas, and in all the wars between the miners and the copper kings of Arizona, Hunt has been on the side of the miners although he is looked upon by the copper kings as a man who is personally honest and willing to meet his opponents half way and talk the thing over.

"Arizona," the play, may be covered with moss or rust in the store house, but Arizona the state, is marching forward and the man who was a dishwasher continues to hold the center of the stage.

PLANT WHEAT AND OATS

COLONEL HARVIE JORDAN of South Carolina, widely known in cotton growing circles, is telling the farmers of the south that they need more food and feed products and less cotton.

He is telling them that in October and November, millions of acres of cotton lands should be given over to wheat and oats, and that a 25 per cent reduction in the 1927 cotton acreage would mean 12,000,000 acres less cotton reducing the area planted to 36,000,000 acres.

His contention is that more grain means greater prosperity and independence in the rural life of the cotton belt and will strengthen and support bankers and other agencies to unite together with co-operative help in a common cause.

He would cut the cotton acreage 12,000,000 acres and he would increase the wheat and oats acreage 12,000,000 acres at the minimum. In other words, Colonel Jordan would "hoist the barns of the southland in 1927." He would have foodstuffs for the table and feedstuffs for the livestock and the poultry.

PASSING OF OPEN PORT LAWS

PASSING of the open port law will be hailed with joy by organized labor and all sympathizers with organized labor in Texas. This law was enacted while William P. Hobby was governor. There was a strike of longshoremen on the docks of Galveston and the harbor was tied up as tight as a drum head. Galveston has never been a stronghold of organized labor. There was no movement of ships or freight. It appeared certain that the strikers would force their employers to grant their demands.

Then the open port law was enacted. It was signed by the governor. National guards were sent to Galveston and the strike was broken. When Neff was governor that the lanes of commerce on sea ployes precipitated a strike. They demanded what they called a living wage. Then the open port law was invoked and the announcement wsa made by the govrnor that the lanes of commerce on sea or on land must be kept open and there should be no interference on the part of striking wage workers or their sympathizers.

State rangers and national guardsmen broke the rail strike, and then it was agreed by the leaders of organized labor in Texas that the open port law had broken the back of organized labor insofar as the strike weapon was concerned. These labor leaders of Texas never did accept the open port law as a constitutional measure. Indeed their lawyers told them that the law in itself was a gross violation of the fourteenth amendment and would never survive the acid test if taken to the higher courts.

It was taken to the higher courts and it was declared annulity by the three judges of the court of criminal appeals for the reason that it was "class legislation without pretense that the classification is other than arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." and in violation of the 14th amendment to the constitution of the United States. Judge O. S. Lattimore announced the opinion of the court, and this is the reason why the open port law has passed on and organized labor, more particularly the powerful unions of railroad employes are delighted with its passing to an open grave.

This law had been denounced by every labor organization in Texas as an open violation of the 14th amendment, and it was the intention of the labor organization and those who sympathized with their members to introduce a repeal bill in the 40th legislature if the law ran the gauntlet of the higher courts of Texas. James E. Ferguson had at intervals in his campaigning denounced the law just as vigorously as it was denounced in the opinion handed down by the judges of the higher court, but no attempt to modify the measure or bring about its repeal had been made since the passing of the Neff administration and the coming into power of the Ferguson administration.

All the platform makers dodged the issue in their conventions this year with the exception of the socialist party leaders. They incorporated the plank in their platform calling upon the 40th legislature to repeal the act for the reason that it was tyranical and oppressive in its nature and in direct conflict with the 14th amendment to the federal constitution. In 1924 the farm labor faction of the democratic party of Texas adopted a platform that breathed undying hostility to the measure and it is known that the candidates for state office who received the endorsement of the convention in that year looked upon the open port law as a statute which should either be nullified by the courts or wiped from the books by the lawmakers of Texas.

TERRELL ON THE ROAD AGAIN

STATE COMMISSIONER OF AGRIculture, George B. Terrell, a practical farmer man, gives this advice to his farmer friends, "stop selling and stop gathering the crop. That is the quickest and surest remedy. Reduce the acreage 33 1-2 per cent next year. Make enough food and forage to live on and then go fishing until cotton advances to a profitable price." If 500,000 Texas farmers should go fishing, now just where will they find the fishes?

Drawing Crowds to the Temple

The Crash Of The Carrousel —By James J. Montague

The congressman was on his way to the party convention, but he wasn't interested in it. Only because he was the last of his clan did he go. It would never do to have the district unrepresented by the one man left who bore the family name. So he sat in his chair on the convention special, talking not of nominations and platforms, but of the golden past, when he sat at the feet of his masterful kinsmen, and learned the ways of politics from them.

"You wouldn't remember my Uncle Aloysius," he said. "It was far, far back. A genius he was, so much ahead of his day that it never caught up with him. All kinds of schemes he had for making a fortune and my brother, who owned the district in those days believed in him and put his power behind him. But it all came to nothing. The age hadn't progressed enough yet.

"It was when those little street wagon merry-go-rounds came to the district that my uncle got one of his greatest ideas. Such things few of the kids in the district had seen except in Central park, which was too far for them to go in those days except of May Walks given by the Alderman.

"Uncle Aloysius allowed that if he could have one of those merry-go-rounds right in the district all the time—a big one on a lot of its own—he would soon be a millionaire.

"So my brother got a vacant lot and a permit for him, and lent him enough money to make a payment on a swell big carousel, with camels and giraffes and lions and tigers on it instead of horses. It was set up amid the admiration and enthusiasm of a couple of thousand children, and no sooner was it ready to run than every wild animal had six kids on top of it, and the platform beside the beast was black with them.

"But when it began to go there was trouble. For all the power was supplied by two bums, who had been hired to turn the crank, and their combined strength was just about enough to move the things.

"Well, it was plain to be seen that if the carrousal was to make my uncle's fortune, there would have to be some pep put into it. No kids would patronize a thing like that, with the music even going like a funeral march. Besides the bums that were supplying the power quit after fifteen minutes, saying the job broke their backs and unfitted them for leaning up against the bar to spend their wages.

"So Uncle began to set his mechanical mind to work to figure how he could run the machine with electric power, which up to then was something which had never been done. My brother called up one of the power companies and asked him to hook in a line, but the nearest trunk main was a mile away, and it would cost $10,000 to bring it to our district, setting up poles and all. My brother told my uncle what he had found out and advised him to get discouraged and quit.

"But quitting was the last thing my uncle ever did. He had been cocking his eye at the arc light on the corner, and couldn't see why the power to run the carrousel shouldn't be taken off that. My brother, whose word, as I was telling you, always went, gave him the permission without consulting the lighting company. A boy who worked in a plumber's shop tapped the current of the arc light, and it was hitched the next morning to a motor that was to turn the merry-go-round.

"But the best the motor could do was to make the thing barely move—not more than an inch a minute, and that speed wouldn't appeal to the kids at all. My uncle was cast down for a while, but he soon brightened up and went to see a friend of his who was engineer of a brewery, and knew all about mechanics.

"The trouble," says the engineer, is a big gear wheel to be run direct by the motor, and a little wheel is all in the gears. What you need meshed into it that will make the whirligig go round.

"He came over with a tape and measured the wheel of the motor and the gears on the carrousel. Then he made a lot of figures on an envelope and said a big wheel fifty-two inches in diameter would do the trick about right.

"My uncle went over to Center Street to get the big wheel, and while he was on his way he got to thinking that if a fifty-two inch whe lewould hake the machine go at a regular gait a wheel one hundred inches wide would make a real pace, and draw kids from all over town.

"The best he could get was a ninety inch wheel. He got a truck and brought it down, and he and some of the boys of the district spent the night putting it in, so as to be ready for business the next morning, which was Saturday.

"When they were already to start Saturday morning about ten o'clock, the kids were preparing to jump on to the number of several hundred, but my uncle suddenly developed a cautious streak, and said he'd give the machine a practice spin before taking the first trip. A Greek who had been helping with the gears was told to get on one of the elephants or camels, and tell my uncle just when he'd got the right speed.

"This Greek was an ordinary and obliging lad who would vote oftener in one morning than anybody in the district and who could be depended on to do what he was told. But he balked at riding on the trial trip, and my uncle had to use pretty rough talk to get him to do it. Also before the start it was necessary to have three or four cops chase the children off the thing, which was just as well.

"My uncle himself turned on the power. There was only one straight switch with nothing to regulate the speed. She groaned a little at first and we were afraid we didn't have enough power. But presently she began to pick up, and the Greek, flashing past us about once in two seconds, hugged the neck of the giraffe he was riding on, and grinned in a pleased way. He was the envy of all the audience, and it tickled his vanity for a while.

"Pretty soon she began to pick up, and the Greek got nervous and waved at us to shut off the power.

Then we heard a yell out of the giraffe, taking the neck along with the street.

Greek and saw him shoot off the him and land on a push cart across

But the switch was jammed somehow and couldn't come out. In another minute the animals were going by so fast all of them seemed merged with the others like one of those dogs and a tramp in one of those pin wheels in a comic picture that you see. Then we heard a yell out of the Greek and saw him shoot off the giraffe, taking the neck along with him and land on a push cart across the street.

"The next thing we knew all the wild beasts were going off at tangents and the crowd was running for their lives to get out of the way.

"Some of them weren't so lucky. The heads of lions and tigers and hippopotamuses shooting through the air did a lot of damage—not only to shop windows and to push carts, but to people who couldn't get to cover quick enough to save themselves.

"When the big gear finally blew to pieces from the speed it was going, there was not so much as a leg of an animal left on the whirligig. Most of them were a block away.

"It took my uncle quite a while to get over the shock of the accident to his carrousel, but in a week he had another scheme for running it figured out and had collected the fragments of the animals and hired a carpenter and a painter to put them into exhibition form again. He went to my brother to get a renewal of the lease of the vacant lot.

"Listen, Uncle," says my brother, "I need the votes I've got in this district, and I can't afford to lose to that murderin' merry-go-round of yours. But if you can get the thing set up in one of them uptown districts that sends informers to the legislators, I'll pay all the expenses! But somehow or other nobody up in those districts would let my uncle start his machine there!"

HOME LIFE ON BARGES

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9. (AP) — Barge life and home life are often one and the same here, where a shortage of houses has forced thousands of families to live on the canals.

The number of barge homes in Amsterdam is constantly increasing despite the protests of holders of residence property along the canals.

...O RADIO STATIONS ORDERED FOR TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 5. (AP)—The formation of a Turkish Radio corporation has been approved by the Angora government and the construction of the first radio stations in Turkey has been begun at Angora and at Constantinople.

These two stations will be of sufficient power to broadcast to all parts of Europe. Programs similar to those given in America will be inaugurated.

PARIS STARTS /. STYLE COMPLEX ON CHILDREN

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—The dress makers of Paris are anxious to have the little boys and girls of all the world follow their ideas, just as their mothers and big sisters have for years.

Most of the prominent "courturieres" have begun to devote more attention to the creation of frocks for girls between seven and fourteen years of age, and to the designing of garments for young boys as well. Special style shows for foreign buyers are being held this year, with only childrens' garments on display.

RUSSIAN BOOTS LOSE.

LONDON, Oct. 9. (AP)—Fall rains have caused a few Russian boots to be revived in the London streets, but shops are not showing them very generally and indications are that women will not wear them generally as they did last winter.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Oh, what a dreary room! Dear, can't we change it? Phone down—tell them we want something better."

"What's the diff?" shrugged Warren, taking some papers from the suitcase. "Only goin' to park here one night."

"But we might have a cheerful room," persisted Helen.

"Well, I've no time to fool. Where's that umbrella? If this don't suit you—go down and vamp the room clerk."

"In the bathroom—wait, I'll get it. What time will you be back?"

"Can't tell. Hard-boiled bunch. But I'll be here in time for dinner. What're you going to do? Gun around the shops? Pretty wet. Want any money?"

"No, I have some. I may not go out. There's an antique shop up by the Capitol," following him to the door, "but I can go there in the morning."

"Well, I wouldn't trot around in this if I didn't have to."

Wistfully Helen watched him swing down the red-carpeted hall to the elevator.

Turning back into the room, she gazed dejectedly out of the rain-blurred window.

A dismal view of dripping roofs. Albany! Their last trip here had been ideal. Festive spring weather. An attractive front suite.

Now this depressing rain and dingy rear room.

Hideous brown paper. Dark woodwork. Not even a bedside lamp. Two naked bulbs. One dropped from the ceiling—the other over the cheap oak dresser.

Pouring now. Foolish to go out. Just the day for luxurious reading-in-bed.

Determinedly she turned to the telephone on the table that served as a desk.

"Hello, the room clerk, please. Can't you give us a better room? This is 715. It's very gloomy—not even a light by the bed. . . Then you'll send him right up? Thank you."

She had barely replaced the few things unpacked, when the bell-boy appeared.

With the suitcase, he led the way through a circuitious hall—to the annex.

"Oh, this's much better," when he ushered her into a large, cheerful room.

Two front windows. Gay flower-sprigged wall paper. A desk. Two easy chairs. A rose-shaded lamp on the stand between the beds.

Soon in her taffeta negligee, Helen proceeded to make herself comfortable.

The pillows banked high, she curled up in bed with Frances Hoyt's new novel, bought on the train.

The afternoon stretched before her luxuriously. No interruptions of door and telephone, as at home. No guilty feelings of other things to be done.

A restful lack of responsibility in a hotel room. Free to read.

"Ashes," a vivid record of a woman alone, pursued by misfortunes, emphasized Helen's sense of luxurious ease.

Snuggling down, she glided off to a dream-enchanted oblivion.

* * * * *

Almost dark when she awoke. Still raining. An electric sign across the street rent the dripping grayness.

Ten after six!

Hurry and dress. Warren might come any moment.

But a curious inertia held her. Just to lie there—to dream over the book. To doze off again. She shran kfrom the exertion of getting up.

How strange and unreal it all seemed. This hotel room—

A few hours trip—and another world!

They had breakfasted at home—yet how remote it seemed now.

"Hello, in bed?" Warren breezed in.

"Oh, dear, I'm so lazy," jumping up. "But I've had a glorious afternoon—reading in bed. Oh that wet umbrella—put it in the tub!"

"Got another room, eh? Guess it it better. That other was pretty bad."

"Yes, they were very nice about it. They changed me at once. I wonder if this is any more," economically.

"Now, we'll not worry about that. Think I'll shave," examining his chin in the mirror. "Ruch job this morning."

"Your things are all in the bathroom. You want a clean shirt?"

"No, this'll do tonight?" carelessly. "Where're we going to eat? Here? Used to be a good restaurant on State Street. Might try that. By the way, we lunch with Mason tomorrow."

"At their house? And I didn't bring a thing! You said we wouldn't go anywhere."

"Needn't doll up to go there. No frills about them. Where's my strap?"

"Why didn't I take it out?" looking in the suitcase.

No razor strap. Only their night things and Warren's shirts and collars.

"Now where in blazes is that strap? Bet you left it in that other room!"

A panicky trying-to-think. The strap—that nickel hook by the bathroom mirror. She had left it hanging there!

"Huh, that's like you. Not a darn thing to do—couldn't even move these few traps. Now you'll have to call down for a boy. Take an hour."

"No, I can get it—I've got the key yet! I forgot to turn it in. Here it is—715," taking a leather-tagged key from the dresser.

Her long coat over her negligee, Helen hurried down the hall.

That shaving strap! A horse-hide one bought in London. Helen loathed it—slick, greasy. Always unpleasantly moist. But Warren's most prized possession.

The long circuitous hall—from the annex to the old building. 701—702—around the next turn.

What if it should be occupied? No, few of the transoms showed lights. The house not crowded. Hardly taken so soon.

715. The transom reassuringly dark. A nervous over-her-shoulder glance as she fitted the key. Absurd to feel guilty.

Through the dark room now. In the bathroom she switched on the light.

Horrified she stared at the glass shelf. Toothbrush! Curling iron! Cold cream!

The room was taken! Warren's strap—where was it? The nickel hook now flaunted a pink wash cloth.

She must get out—quick!

Her hasty retreat—cut off!

The light flashed on. A woman sprang from the bed.

"What're you doing here?"

"—I came to get a shaving strap," stammered Helen. "We had this room—"

"You can tell that to the manager," sneeringly. "No, you don't!" blocking the door. "Now I've caught one of these hotel thieves—you'll not get away!"

Wild-eyed, quivering, Helen shrank back against the wall.

"I'm not so sure but you stole my ring in Schenectedy!"

Grimly locking the door, she reached for the telephone.

Paralyzed, Helen watched her. Stout, middle-aged. A grotesque figure in flowered pajamas.

"Hello, give me the manager's office. . . This is Mrs. Wilkins—in 715. I've caught a sneak-thief! Send someone at once."

"No, I'm not Mrs. Curtis! We're in—" her agitation effecting their number. "On this floor—the annex. We had this room—on you MUST believe me!"

"I'll believe nothing!" snaching a pink robe. "I had a diamond ring stolen in Schenectedy last week. I intend to see if you've got it."

Helen's incoherent explanations interrupted by a heavy knock.

Two men. One pompous, gray-haired. Plainly the manager.

Her face aflame, Helen stood speechless at her captors voluble accusations.

The manager cut short the tirade.

"And what have you to say about this?" his keen eyes appraising Helen.

"I—I'm Mrs. Curtis. We had this room—I forgot Mr. Curtis' shaving strap."

"What room have you now?"

"I—I've forgotten the number. It's in the annex. Oh, don't call up," frantically. "Don't let Mr. Curtis know!"

"There! Doesn't that prove she's guilty—and her husband don't know it?"

"Then send for him," sobbed Helen. "Send for him—"

"Hello," the manager was at the phone. "Give me the office. That you Johnson? Were a Mr. and Mrs. Curtis in 715 today? . . . What's their number now? . . . Give me the linen room. . . . Hello, Mrs. Dean? Who's the maid for 715? . . . Send her here at once."

"What does that prove?" shrilled Mrs. Wilkins. "She changed on purpose—kept the key! My five-hundred dollar ring stolen in Schenectedy—I believe she's got it! These hotel thieves—they have a regular route. I want her room searched,

"Now, just a moment, don't get excited," placated the manager. "We'll straighten this out."

Another knock. A blue-linened chambermaid.

"Did you find a razor strap in this room? This afternoon?"

"Yes, sir," taking it from her pocket. "I forgot to turn it in."

"You see, Mrs. Wilkins, you were mistaken."

"Of course she left that strap! An excuse to come back—"

"No, not in this case. I know—I've been in this business for twenty years." Then, turning to Helen, "I'm sorry this happened, Mrs. Curtis. Next time you leave anything—better send a bellboy for it."

"Oh, thank you—"

Breathless, scarlet, she darted out. Down(the hall, back to their room—ocross from the red "Exit" light.

"What the Sam Hill?" exploded Warren. "Gone an hour. Didn't you get it?"

"Yes, here's your old strap," flinging it at him.

"Darn good one," bristling. "Got that in London. Horse-hide. Now hereafter you hang on to it. Can't get 'em like that here."

"I'll never leave it again," now at the window, the moist air cooling her scorching face. "You can be sure of that."

"Eh, what's wrong?" struggling with his collar. "What're you sore about?"

"Nothing," still at the window.

"Well, hustle now! No time for star-gazin.' That lunch room on the train was a frost. We'll gun up a real place tonight. Get good food in Albany—if you know where to go. These politicians do themselves darn well. Now get a wiggle on—kept me waiting long enough!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE
Libra

Today's planetary aspects are fairly favorable, and are of such a nature as to indicate that the usual observances and recreations of a Sunday will promote happiness and concord. On the early part of the evening, there are some disturbing factors, that, if you succumb to their influence, will promote lack of harmony and a false sense of proportion. Trifles promise to assume an importance that they do not merit, and idle remarks, although not intentionally uttered in an unkind spirit, will rankle in your mind unless you decide to establish poise and maintain your accustomed equilibrium.

Children born today will, during infancy, experience the "57 varieties" of childhood's ailments. None however, will arise from organic conditions and all such illnesses can be ameliorated, if not remedied, by well-regulated alimentation and fresh air. Long before reaching the 'teen age, their physical condition will be quite normal. In disposition, they will be susceptible to influence, and it will be necessary to instil into these children's minds the benefits of being able to say "no." Their natures will be amiable, and they will always strive to please. They will not possess any strong convictions, and those they may have will like R. R. time tables, be [subject to change," if convenience or advantage should require it.

If today is your birthday, you enjoy great popularity and deservedly so, as you are bright, witty and jovial. Many who think they know you are deceived by your indifference and continual cheerfulness. Underlying all this, however, is great strength and exceptional capability. At times of great strength and exception al stress when failure or dissappointment stares you in the face, you drop your habitual camouflage and show that you are both resolute and decisive. You are indefatigable worker and never quit a problem until you have solved it, or are convinced, beyond peradventure of doubt that it has no practical solution. You are a great stickler for puntuality and a strict disciple of conventionality. Your friends are legion and they, one and all, respect and admire you. Your home life is happy, and you are affectionate and demonstrative.

'GINGHAM GIRL' LIKES TO FISH

Fiancee of Bud Stillman Is Product of Woods Life In Far North

BY THOMAS J. WHEELER
Special Correspondent of the Record News.
Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Assn.

QUBEC, Que., Oct. 9. — Lena Wilson, the "gingham girl" fiancee of young James (Bud) Stillman, can't Charleston. At the flapperish age of 18 she is far removed from the flapper. Her boast is that she can square dance with the best of them.

Today Lena admitted that she much preferred to be a daughter of the soil. She likes fishing. Trout fishing is said to be her specialty. And her family agrees with Bud himself, that she is in a class by herself as a cook.

But there is nothing bucolic about her, despite the fact that her home is located in the north woods adjacent to the Stillman camp at Grande Anse—rendered famous as the scene of the alleged love making of Mrs. James A. Stillman and the Indian guide, Fred Beauvais, which brought on one of the most sensational divorce actions in the history of the United States courts.

Cultivated Maiden.

Lena is a cultivated young woman; cultivated in mind and manner, if not sophisticated in the modern acceptance of the term. Brought up on a farm, she was educated in the rural school of the district and then sent to a finishing school in Montreal.

She is one of a family of four, three girls and a boy, and as she is eldest of the girls, she has played the part of Dame Burden to the family for the past few years, and more especially since her father died and left her mother with the responsibility of bringing up the family and running the farm at the same time.

Lena's acquaintance with Bud Stillman goes back several years, and the announcement of their engagement created no surprise in the vicinity of Grande Anse, where they were known to be boy and girl sweethearts.

Living as it were on adjoining lots for several months in the summer, it was no trick of nature for Bud to descry pretty Lena Wilson. Seeing her in her gingham frock superintending the farm hands and disciplining the younger children, inspired a desire to know her. And in the country when people wish to speak to each other, they do so that it is asserted that Mrs. Stilljumping out from every mulberry bush.

They Became Friends.

Bud and Lena came to be fast friends, in a very little time. Bud introduced his little friend to his mother, who was taken immediately with the girl and invited her to call at the camp.

Lena and Mrs. Stillman had one passion in common from the first. That was gardening. It brought them together very frequently. Not only in the garden at the Stillman camp but also in the modest garden which decked the front of the Wilson farm home.

Thus virtually under the auspices of Mrs. Stillman, the romance between Bud and Lena bloomed. With Bud's departure for Princeton, the affair was interrupted, but every year, when the Stillman family returned to Grande Anse, it was renewed.

Mother Pleased.

It is certain that Mrs. Stillman never put any barriers in the way of the courtship. It is even declared here that she commended Bud's taste and gave her advice with regard to the purchase of the betrothal ring. Further than that it i asserted that Mrs. Stillman has already arranged to give the prospective bride a season in New York under her personal chaperonage before the wedding takes place.

Lena Wilson's father came to Canada when a young man, an immigrant from Scotland. He landed at Quebec and after drifting about for a few years settled in the north woods and started to farm.

He married a French Canadian girl. The children speak French fluently, with a suggestion of the Scottish burr.

Wilson, who at one time worked for the Hudson Bay company, died during the influenza epidemic. His coffin was fashioned by Fred Beauvais himself.

Gingham Girl.

As the "gingham girl," Lena Wilson has lived a comparatively uneventful life, except when her sisters were called to Montreal to testify in the Stillman case.

As "Bud's" accepted sweetheart and the future wife of the prospective heir of millions she has been positively startled by her leap into the spotlight.

Next month for the first time in her life, she expects to see the wonders of New York, where she starts choosing the trousseau for her wedding, which, it is said here, will follow Bud's graduation in June.

Cotton Confidence Game Victim $113

FORT WORTH, Oct. 9.(AP)—Police Saturday were looking for a negro who took $113 in cash from Walter Hordman of Vernon, promising that he would return shortly with a load of cotton pickers. They believe he is a resident of Dallas.

This is the largest amount taken in the "confidence cotton game," as the police here term it, in some time. Warnings against it have been issued from time to time.

LONG TERM LOANS.

Five Per Cent Interest For Texas Cotton Holders.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 9. (AP)—Long term loans at 5 per cent interest are available for farmers who are holding their cotton because of the low prices, it was announced Saturday.

Directors of the federal land bank, in convention here, said they had made arrangements for loans to farmers in this district, according to Grady Mahaffie, vice president of the federal bank in this district.

U.S. Capitol Folks Get Ready to Fete Queen Marie of Roumania When She Arrives for Her Long Heralded Visit

White House Doors Will Be Opened En Fete For Noted Royal Beauty Who is Now Enroute from Bucharest to Washington

BY JEAN JARVIS
Special Correspondent of the Record News
(COPYRIGHT, 1926, BY THE CONSOLIDATED PRESS ASSN.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Precisely ten busy days from today the White House will be en fete in honor of the Rumanian queen and her vastly diverting party, including the Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas.

Scarcely had Queen Marie's sailing date been set when "presto" right in the midst of a grand conjecturing as to just what form the White House entertainment would take, out came the announcement for the dinner the president and Mrs. Coolidge will give on Tuesday, October 19.

Just who will occupy the envied positions inside looking out and who will be restricted to those outside looking in, is a deep dark secret.

Not the ghost of a chance did anybody get to pull even a teenty-tweenty little string. The question of who was to be on hand was settled before it was asked. The whole tricksy business was out of discussion with one swift stroke and many aspirants were left at the post. And that's that.

Even an ordinary dinner company is built on rather inflexible rules and nothing short of a casuality will change this momentously interesting dinner personnel which, really, before anybody had a glimmer of an idea of what was to be doing, was duly tabulated, religiously filed, deftly delivered and, to date, just as good as sealed.

It's anybody's guess who will be at the White House when the fascingting Marie of Rumania sweeps into the state dining-room on the arm of his excellency, the president of the United States.

Of course, being a state dinner, it will be a most ceremonious occasion and the natural conjecture is that guests will be drawn from the ranks of officialdom.

As they step in Washington on this occasion just the "merest few minutes," the rank and file must await their opportunity to get a glimpse of the royal visitors until the return trip some time in December. At all events there are hopes for many and ribs taking a chance on "boning up" on the proper pronunciation of Rumanian titles, names, cities, estates and celebrities.

Now, as for Rumania, according to the best information at hand, one should pronounce it Ru-Mawn-i-a. For any sakes don't say Ru-may-nai and please, my dears, Bucharest the capital of Ru-mawn-i-a is pronounced just as though it were spelled Boo-kerest.

And incidentally, while the queen is coming with a bobbed head she is not affecting the knee-cap skirts. Royal robes have longer skirts, Paris reports ten inches from the ground. If this is the case, the stock of the dressmakers here is likely to drop at least six inches. However, any feminine politicianess is always willing to get closer to the soil, especially for a queen.

It is a grand start off the season of 1926-27 is getting and it probably will not be allowed to sag. According to the wiseacres not in many a blue moon has there been such a plutocratically promising citizenship.

All the great big expensive houses are occupied this season, either by their owners or by the wealthy arrivals who are bearing down en-masse. While money is not exactly an open sesame to society—many of Washington's most charming people have comparatively small incomes—there is absolutely no record of anybody's being kept out of capital sewing circles because the rich have difficulty in getting through the eye of the needle.

Barring a few weddings which are occasioned by Queen Marie's arrival, for the program for the current month centers largely about the debutantes. The latest recruit to this engaging group is the Princess Ida Cantacuzene, daughter of Prince and Princess Michael Catscuzene, who will come out formally at a rather small tea to be given at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant. Still another girl, who is due for a good time, is Jane Kendall, who makes her bow November 15. She's a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman B. Kendall.

Dispute Over Bill Results In Death

HOUSTON, Oct. 9.(AP)—It developed here Saturday that a dispute between two women over a debt of $13, led to the killing of Claude Rutland, 28, in a small lunch room a few blocks from the business district Friday night, and the arrest of E. A. "Curley" Hogue on charges of murder and carrying a pistol. The killing was preceded by a free-for-all fight.

Now When Babe Hit 'Em He Did It Just Like—

When Babe Ruth pasted a trio of four-ply wallops far and wide over the fence and merry lea in St. Louis last Wednesday, seven Wichita Falls men looking on popeyed and aghast. They returned home Saturday with a wealth of fuel for the hot stove league this winter and a penchant for remarking to the crowd around the score boards yesterday "now when I saw Babe hit those three the other day he did it this way," etc., etc.

The Wichita Falls delegation had grand stand seats close to the Yankee dug-out and got in on a lot of side-bar chatter with which the Big Dam regaled the throng on off moments. He talked freely at times, they said, but at bat absolute silence reigned.

Those watching the series at St. Louis were Dr. J. H. Massie, C. D. Shamburger, Abe Marcus, John Hampton, Joe Art, George Ray and W. T. Knight.

Motorcycle Rider Injured In Crash

Lewis Howell, 17, employe of Wilford Harrison's drug company received injuries to left ankle and about the head Saturday noon when the motorcycle which he was riding collided with a car. He is in the Hargrave-Walker hospital for treatment. His injuries are not considered serious but painful anr will keep him in bed for a week or ten days, hospital attendants reported.

Howell was attempting to pass a car at 1815 Grant street when the car turned causing him to run into the machine and throwing him to the cement curbing.

LAKE CHILDRESS FULL.

Water Runs Over Dam Spillway For First Time.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—Water began going over the spillway of Lake Childress at 6 a. m. today for the first time since the big dam was completed three years ago. When built, it was estimated five years would be required for the lake to overflow. Childress lake is the largest in the Panhandle. It covers more than a section of land and is 70 feet deep.

TO MUCH MACHINERY

WASHINGTON, Conn., Oct. 9. (AP)—In the opinion of the Rev. Dr. Henry VanDyke, "We've invented so much machinery that it breaks our hearts to keep it going." Pointing to the great increase in deaths from heart disease in the prime of life he said if Methusaleah had a heard of autos and a flock of planes he might not have lived 968 years.

A. D. Walker who has been practising law in this city for the past three years has gone to Vernon where he will open an office there.

Turbeville Gusher Leads North Texas District In Week's Development

P-P Test For 1,500 Bbls. Peps Up Continued Play In Rich Archer Territory

Panhandle-Carter No. 1 Northwest of Turberville Also Watched Closely for Possible Opening Up of Another Valuable Section

This past week, one of the most interesting in several months for North Texas fields, was featured by the completion of the largest well to date in Archer county. This was the 1,500-barrel flowing well of the Petroleum Producers in the Turbeville pool. Reports from every direction indicate that the district is in for one of the busiest periods of development in its history.

Petroleum Producers and Sam Kruger's No. 2 Turbeville was the most discussed operation during the latter half of the week. In the first 12 hours it flowed 55 barrels per hour by actual gauge from 25 feet of the rich pay topped at 1,497 feet. No. 2 on the same lease was drilled into the sand on the same day and is making approximately 1,000 barrels daily from a total depth of 1,523 feet.

Of little less interest was the Panhandle-Carter No. 1 Wilson in section 111, A. T. N. C. L. survey, and about three miles northwest of the Turbeville production, which at last reports was showing up for about a 50 barrel well through considerable mud and cavings in the hole. This well opens up a ment.

As the week ended the Wanderer Oil company was completing its No. 3 Turbeville in block 146 of the R. Carson survey in Archer county with an estimated output of 100 barrels.

3 In Sunshine.

The Sunshine Hill district of Wichita county had three producers added to it. Clark, Waggoner and Hammond's No. 1 is flowing at the rate of 120 barrels accompanied by about 4,000,000 feet of gas, making the first gasser for that district. Clark and Campbell completed their No. 1 Ward and Todd as a 250 barrel producer.

In southwest Wichita county a semi-wildcat, the No. 1 Reilly-Griffin of the Panhandle company extended the producing area around that company's No. 1 Griffin producer which was completed sometime ago. The new "strike" is in the F. Jordon survey and across the Wichita river from the initial well. Another good producer for that part of the county was Harry Jaffe and others' No. 9 Mitchell in the Patience Castleman survey, the third deep well on this lease. Friday it was swabbing at the rate of 400 barrels daily and was being put on the pump. P. J. White's No. 1 Mitchell is showing up for a well with 200 feet of oil in the hole from sand at 1,865 feet. Other wells in this vicinity are expected to be completed early next week.

Young-Montague Quiet.

Nothing of an exciting nature was reported from either Young or Montague county but there are scores of rigs running in those districts and several wells are nearing the interesting stage.

John Hoorer's No. L-B Dennis in the Bulcher district, Cooke county, was completed making 40 barrels, extending the pool about 1,000 feet to the east.

Pipeline runs again went over the 100,000 barrel figure, making a gain of nearly 500 barrels. New wildcat locations were announced in much greater numbers than has been the case for several weeks and interesting developments may be expected from all parts of the district for the next several weeks.

PIPELINE RUNS HIT 100,000

Another Nice Gain Made In Past Week From Fields In Cooke and Montague

The week ending Friday witnessed another large increase in the daily pipeline runs in the Wichita district.

Runs the past week averaged 101,375 barrels of oil daily, making a 480 barrel gain over the average of the previous week. Montague county boosted its runs up to 8,-715 barrels as compared with 8,-235 barrels for the previous week.

Cooke county furnished a sensation by making a 320 barrel gain and making a new high mark for that field, 690 barrels. Archer City and Throckmorton counties also scored increases.

District averages follow: Field	Last Week	Prev. Week
Electra	18,740	18,945
Burkburnett	11,650	11,655
Iowa Park	4,280	4,210
Archer Co.	32,580	32,235
Clay Co	695	665
Wilbarger Co	13,955	14,135
Montague Co	8,715	8,230
Young Co	8,210	8,210
Jack Co	205	215
Throckmorton Co	1,435	1,395
Baylor Co	120	140
Cooke Co	690	470
Totals	101,275	100,795

A gain of 480 barrels daily. Much of the flush production from the big completions in Archer and Wichita counties is not included in last week's figures and next week is expected to set a new high mark for the district.

GAS SHOW MADE

Collingsworth County Test Causes Excitement

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Oct. 9.—Much excitement has been created in Collingswerth county by the Gibson Oil companies striking of gas at 1940 feet on their Potts No. 1, which is located on section 5 block 12. It is believed by oil experts that striking a good flow of gas at this depth bids fair for a good well in that territory.

Other Collingsworth county oil activities are: Martin, et al, have spudded in and shut down on the Norwood in section 30 block 16. Var Allmen, et al, have been rigging on their McDowell No. 1 on section 107 block 22. Harmon and Reeves have made location for their Scott No. 1 in section 44 block 21.

WORK ON PIPELINE.

2 OIL WELLS LOST IN RIVER

Flood in Red Valley Is Responsible For Loss Of Producers

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 9.—The Burk-Divide Oil company is reported here to have lost two producing wells in its Red river bed holdings during the recent flood and to have also lost a rig and tools, operated by Claude Riley in the recent flood.

P. V. Ruch, receiver for several oil companies with holdings in the river bed, near Grandfield, said Thursday that part of the rigging of drillers working under the receiver was lost, but that part had been saved by the use of a caterpillar truck. Soundings are to be made to see if it is feasible to recover other property. The river bed, composed of quick sand, becomes fluid for twenty feet below the surface during high water and heavy articles sink through this sand and come to rest on the clay bottom, it is said. Casing in the wells in this section is bent and the wells are covered.

Weather Reduces Okla. Operations

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9.—Only 61 "first reports" were recorded the past fiscal week in Oklahoma oil fields. The unsettled weather and impassable roads has delayed the starting of many wells, oil men state.

Osage county led with 11, thanks to the staking of new location tracts sold September 30. The rest of the play there is on parcels auctioned off March 18-19.

Creek county was second with eight. Seminole county was third with seven; Kay next with six; Carter and Okmulgee tied with four each; Muskogee and Wagoner also tied with three each; Pawnee, Payne and Tulsa each reported two; Caddo, Garfield, Garvin, Grady, Grant, Okfuskee, Pontotoc, Pottawatomie and Stephens, one each.

The Kansas oil fields the past week reported only 31 first reports of new wells getting under way.

Crude Production Falls Off In Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—Crude petroleum production in domestic fields from January 1, to October 9, was estimated at 568,012,-000 barrels by the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter against 587,906,000 barrels in the corresponding period a year ago. Production is now at the rate of 2,359,100 barrels a day against 2,058,700 at this time last year.

Drilling Wells Of 4 Major Concerns Show Area Active

The intense drilling activity of the Wichita district is reflected in the number of active operations in this territory of four of the major operating companies. The Texas company, The Continental Oil company, The Gulf Production company and The Humble Oil and Refining company have combined operations numbering 74 in Archer, Wichita, Montague and Wilbarger counties.

The Texas company has seven in Archer, ten in Wichita and ten in Montague. This company has some of the largest completions of the year credited to it, particularly in the Turbeville pool of Archer county. The increasing production of Montague county is also due largely to the operations of the Texas company.

Scarcely a week passes that the Continental (Texhoma) does not add one or more producers to its holdings in the Nocona field where it has 19 drilling wells. This company also has seven wells in Archer and one in Wichita county at the present time.

Four in Archer, two in Wichita and three in Montague is the way the Gulf Production company has its active rigs distributed. The Humble Oil and Refining company has 11 wells drilling in Wilbarger and Montague county.

PLAINS COMPLETING.

Meager reports from Archer City Saturday night were to the effect that the Plains Production company had drilled out the plug in its Turberville 2 and 3 wells in block 171, Robert Carson survey, south of Archer City.

No. 2 well is making about 300 barrels of oil and No. 3 over 400 barrels. The amount of sand drilled was not stated. No. 2 topped the pay at 1,497 feet and No. 3 at 1,492 feet.

Taylor Co. Wildcat Making Oil Show

ABILENE, Oct. 9.—Interesting developments are expected from the Sanger Oil and Refining company's No. 2 Anderson, four and a half miles southeast of Abilene, which has the bit in a hard lime formation at about 1,900 feet and an increasing showing of oil.

The log of this well has corresponded with that of Sanger's Anderson No. 1, a quarter of a mile southeast. Judging from the formations just above the pay struck in that well the bit should penetrate it in the No. 2 well by Monday night.

Another test well was added to the score or more now drilling within 20 miles of Abilene when the Sanger company spudded in Friday on the Ike Brown land three miles east of Abilene.

Good progress is reported from the Sanger I. C. Cox well 11 miles southwest of Abilene and from the city of Abilene well four miles south of here, being drilled by the same company.

Anderson Still Flowing.

This concern has a rig up on the Gillespie farm one-fourth mile east of its Anderson No. 1, which has flowed five barrels of oil daily and considerable gas since completion six months ago. It also is rigged up on a tract two miles southeast of Potosi.

A small amount of salt water was struck early Friday in the Marland's Sam Cox well, 12 miles north of here, reports stated. The water was found at 1,905 feet. This will be cased off and drilling continued to the expected pay, about 75 feet deeper.

Some Captains of Nation's Leading Grid Teams As They Prepare To Swing Into First Important Games of Title Conquests

Matsuda Gives Gorman Comeback Shot Tuesday

Jap Defends Belt Against $500 In Finish Match; Yaqui Joe to Tackle Friday's Referee

Because there hangs a cloud over the finish of what had been intended as the final professional match of his career, a match which Matty Matsuda, world's welterweight wrestling champion, "won" with a sneak fall from Jack Gorman, of San Angelo Friday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena while a befuddled referee stood back and wondered what it was all about, Matsuda has agreed to give Gorman another shot at his belt Tuesday night in the same ring.

Urged by a host of wresting enthusiasts to return and either win or lose in orthodox fashion, the wise old champion admitted that Gorman deserved a come back chance at the championship before Matsuda retires and puts the belt away for all time.

They are to meet in a finish match. Gorman has put up $500 cash as a wager against the belt, both to be placed on display in a downtown drug store Monday.

The Santel-Londos match originally scheduled for Tuesday was called off yesterday when Matsuda agreed to tackle Gorman again.

Jack Had Best of It.

The match Friday was a heated affair with Gorman having a bit the better of the milling. The end came as a surprise for Gorman had Matsuda groggy from headlock applications and appeared a sure victor.

On a breakaway from the ropes ordered by the referee, Gorman broke and started for the center of the ring but was cut down by a flank attack, Matty, his smart old head working overtime, had made his first stall in a local ring. The Jap, groggy, knew that he would be at a disadvantage on his feet in the center of the ring, so he stuck to the mat and grabbed Gorman from behand, expecting in what should naturally have been the followup by the referee, a forceful break, to clear his head during the scramble and be in fit shape to mix it on his feet.

Jap Surprised He "Won."

The referee started to break the men again, but desisted, hesitated a moment and then awarded the match to Matsuda. There probably was no more surprised man present than Matsuda when his hand was raised in token of victory.

Fans hooted the referee. The referee challenged the world with a $500 side bet. Yaqui Joe, the Indian accepted the challenge whereupon Dick Kanthe, the referee who is a middleweight grappler, tackles Joe in a finish match preliminary to the championship affair Tuesday. The $500 threat wasn't serious, so there will be no money at stake.

The main event is to be refereed by Gene Lispold, that master of ring arbiters.

TIGERS HOLD RICE OUTFIT TO 6 TO 6 TIE

Owls Score Then Heisman Pits Reserves Against Trinity

HOUSTON, Oct. 9.(AP)—A furious and determined Trinity Tiger, lashed into fury by two overwhelming defeats by Southwestern conference teams, invaded Rice Institute field Saturday and held the Owls to a 6 to 6 tie in a hotly contested game.

The Owls entered the battle the favorites and in the first quarter it appeared they would win easily. Taking the ball after Trinity's kickoff the Owls marched to five successive first downs to produce the tally.

At the start of the next period Coach Hesiman substituted his entire second team and it was against this eleven the invaders made their touchdown. The drive which Barry Holton's team made for its score was more sustained than was the Owls, for it started on the guests' 15-yard line. Never once did the Tigers relinquish the ball in their advance, but scored seven first downs in a row. When it seemed that the drive had been checked, a 21-yard forward pass, which Ed. Herting, all but knocked down, gave Trinity the touchdown.

With the first team back in action after the intermission, the Tiger assault was checked, while Rice's assault showed more power. In the last period the Owls threatened twice, but each time, with the ball deep in Tiger terrain, the visiting defense stiffened and the Owls were halted.

On the next to last play of the game, a pass, Schroeder to Crain, slipped off the Owl ends, figures in the shadow of Trinity's goal.

The line-up:

Trinity (6)	Position	Rice (6)
Allen	Left End	Loughridge
F. Varnell	Left Tackle	Berger
Moore	Center	Underwood
Boggs	Right Guard	Canant
Cochran	Right Tackle	Hyde
T. Varnell	Right End	Crain
Ryan	Quarter	Hochuli
Ashley	Right Half	Comstock
Ferguson	Fullback	Davis

Officials: Kinney (Miss. A. and M.); Viner, (Missouri), Umpires.

Scores by uarters:

Trinity	0	6	0	0	—6
Rice	6	0	0	0	—6

Scoring: Touchdowns, Comstock (Rice); Rhone (substitute for T. Varnell, Trinity).

Sunday Football Out In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9. (AP)—Sunday football stood alone tonight as the only athletic diversion forbidden Pittsburghers tomorrow by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark in his campaign to enforce the ancient "blue laws."

The drastic curtailment of the director's program to stop all forms of Sunday sports came after the city law department had ruled that tennis and golf were not unlawful under the statute of 1794 because "they do not tend to produce disorder"

Football, however, was held to be an unlawful Sunday sport. The opinion, written by Thomas M. Benner, assistant city solicitor at Clark's request said, "we believe the necessary tendency of football games would be to produce disorder and therefore they should be considered as unlawful."

CISCO, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—Cisco high school won its first official class A football game of the season here today from San Angelo, 64 to 0. The San Angelo team appeared woefully weak in the line, and was unable to withstand the onslaughts of Muestis and Eddleman.

DELANEY MAY TAKE TUNNEY

Conqueror of Berlenbach Puts On Extra 20 Pounds

BY SPARROW MCANN,
Special Correspondent, The Record News.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—At the rate light heavyweight champion Jack Delaney is putting on weight, it looks as if he will have to abandon the lighter class and join the mad scramble of contenders for Gene Tunney's title.

Jack has been taking things easy waiting for the thumb he broke on Paul Berlenbach's solid jaw to heal up. Word now comes from his camp that he has put on 20 pounds—and not all fat.

Pete Reilly, who manages the Bridgeport Adonis is jubilant. He wants to match his man with the gentlemanly heavyweight titleholder, and has been put off from time to time with the excuse that Gene is too big and heavy for Delaney.

Now all is changed and Pete is doing his best to interest Tex Riekard in bringing the pair together. This will be quite a task. It is well known that Rickard is not overly eager to put anything Pete's way since the latter broke away from Rickard's direction and signed with Humbert Fugazy. This took the titular match between the champion Berlenbach and Delaney over to Brooklyn and Tex lost a good chance of putting a few dollars on the credit side of the ledger.

If it is true that Delaney has put on fighting weight it means that a real contender for Tunney's title has come to the fore. Delaney and Tunney would make an ideal match. It is safe to say that those who make a practice of betting their money on the chances of a fighter winning would have a hard job trying to make up their minds whom to back.

Unless Jack Sharkey succeeds in whipping Harry Wills there is no one on the fistic horizon capable of extending Tunney. This despite the plans of Tex Rickard to hold heavyweight tourneys throughout the winter to bring out a formidable opponent for the champion from the list of young heavyweights. There probably will not be any return Dempsey bout for a long time—if ever.

There is a likelihood of Delaney's plans going astray before he gets the coveted crack at Gene's title. Word comes from the coast that Paul Berlenbach has put on weight and is to blossom forth as a full fledged heavyweight.

Berlenbach will be within his rights in asking Jack to meet him first for the right to battle Tunney. Paul willingly consented to give Delaney two chances at the title, even though the latter scored the only knockout checked against Berley's record.

No matter whom Tunney meets, it is an assured fact that the man he consents to fight will be worthy of the honor. Tunney unlike some other champions is eager to fight the best man that can be put forth by Tex Rickard.

Junior High to Play Jacksboro

Wichita Falls Junior high school will continue its interscholastic league schedule this week with Jacksboro as opponent. The Cubs lost to Archer City in the first conference game and called off the Burkburnett set-to originally slated for the past week. Injuries have beset the Cubs until Coaches Golden and Lewis thought it best to give their flock a rest from heavy competition.

McCallum's Outfit Holds College to Close Score

Frances, Ray, Pinney, Holstein, Dobson, Horton Wage Great Battle in 14-0 Defeat

BY R. O. JONAS

Decatur Baptist college fought its way to a muddy 14 to 0 victory over the Coyotes of Wichita Falls high school on Spudder park gridiron Saturday afternoon. The Baptists carried the heaviest offensive power but the defensive mettle demonstrated by the Coyotes showed that the team had developed sufficiently to make it a real serious threat to the conference title ambitions harbored by other schools in the district.

Scoring came in the first and last quarters. For the first score, after an even battle near midfield, near the end of the first period Waller passed to Douglass for 27 yards, including the run, to Wichita's five yard mark. After a plunge by Captain Waller, Petty on a tackle play, carried the ball over for the score. Douglas kicked goal for the seventh point.

For the next two quarters the ball see-sawed back and forth, neither side packing a sufficient goal line punch to count. A number of times Coyotes chances to tie the score seemed good, only to be lost by a fumble or bad center pass. At the end of the third quarter the Coyotes found themselves fighting repeatedly with their backs to the wall. On the last play of the quarter Horton's punt was blocked, bounding up into the air and landing in the arms of Douglas, who with an easy score before him, lost track of the goal line, and downed the ball a foot inside the last mark. On the first play of the fourth quarter Ford smashed it over for the second and final score. Douglas kicked goal for the extra point.

Coyotes Fumbles Costly

The Coyotes started with fire in their eyes. On the first play after kickoff Francis smashed straight through the Baptist line for 11 yards and first down. Immediately after, a bad pass from center was recovered by Petty for Decatur and the Coyote drive was over. Soon after Decatur's score, the Coyotes started another drive that had the goal line earmarks all over it. Perk Ray received a Baptist punt on his own five yard mark and ran his way through the Baptist line-up for 50-yards before he was finally stopped, with only one more Baptist barring the way to the goal. Furious plunges by Francis, Raynor, Francis, and Ray earned two first downs and the goal in sight. Fate again stepped into the breach the smashing Francis was pounding into the Decatur left side and the Coyote offensive died on the very brink of a score. Center and backfield failed to articulate and the ball rolled off into the field where Smith, Baptist tackle, picked it up, with a clear field ahead and with a man to run interference. Francis in a last desperate lunge that seemed impossible, drove past the interference and downed Smith from behind with but a 10-yard loss in midfield when a touchdown seemed certain.

Ford and Waller Flash

For the Baptists, Ford at quarter held the limelight with his speedy, twisting runs and his heady field generalship. Captain Waller also proved effective as a plunger and at times he booted the heavy muddy sphere for remarkable distances. Pat Taylor, while held back some today, showed much of his old time form as a plunger. In the line Petty and Douglas were outstanding both on defense and on offense. Petty's tackle arounds made many gains for the visitors and Douglas proved a star at booting on the kickoff and for points and at receiving passes.

Francis Smashes

Coyal Francis stood out above the Coyote aggregation as time after time he smashed the Baptist offensive for losses and as often, when given the ball himself, carried it for the best gaining seen on the local field this year. Francis demonstrated that Coach Bud knew his stuff when he shifted the lad to half from his old place at quarter. Perk Ray again performed in fine fashion as an all round player while Allred and Rayzor were good for many gains.

Holstein Up and At 'Em.

In the line Pinney performed well defensively. Holstein again demonstrated much power although somewhat inclined to skid in the mud. The whole line packed a fighting defense that threw the heavier and more experienced Baptists for losses many times and also showed a considerably better offensive push than heretofore. One serious fault, however, that probably cost the Coyotes a good chance to win the game, was the lack of proper cooperation between center and backs, four times sending the ball bounding into space and nullifying good drives, with one time a touchdown in sight.

A muddy field and the rain falling throughout a big part of the contest made play often hazardous. Punting in the third quarter was mere sloppy socking, even though both Horton and Waller got off a couple of splendid boots for long distances in this period. Several important turns in the game may be ascribed to the weather, with both sides suffering but with the Coyotes drawing by far the heaviest losses due to this factor. Despite difficulties many long runs and thrilling gains were reeled off by both sides from punts and scrimmage, the Coyotes making three earned first downs and the Baptists seven.

The line-up:

Wichita Falls	Pos.	Decatur
Neal	Left End	Cox
Holstein	Left Tackle	Petty
Pinney	Center	Jones
H. Ray	Right Guard	Harris
Dobson	Right Tackle	Smith
Newman	Right End	Douglas
Rayzor	Quarterback	Ford
Francis	Left Half	Pat Taylor
Allred	Right Half	Christian
F. Ray	Fullback	Waller

Substitutions: Wichita Falls—Horton for Neal, Hobbs for Pinney, Ewing for Newman, Powell for Brown, Downing for H. Ray.

Decatur: Aubrey for Smith, Lewis for Harris, Bill Taylor for Jones, Jones for Lewis, Shlder for Pat Taylor, Eddings for Aubrey, Melton for Williams.

Longhorns Slam Phillips, 27 to 0

Vandy Scouts See Varsity Win in Walk Under Wraps

AUSTIN, Oct. 9. (AP)—A 65-yard run to touchdown by "Wild Bill" Ford, Texas university sophomore, from Dallas, following his interception of a forward pass Saturday, shattered the morale of the Phillips university Haymakers and paved the way for a 27-0 victory.

Ford's long run, made possible by excellent interference, came early in the third quarter, when the Haymakers were advancing against the first string Longhorn lineup.

After the initial touchdown, Capt. Saxton, Rufus King and Stallter reeled off long gains through huge holes torn by "Tiny" Gooch, giant tackle, and other Steer forwards, and the Haymakers were impotent to stop the march.

Steers Under Cover

Cognizant of the presence of Vanderbilt university scouts, Coach Stewart kept his men well under cover, using only the simplest plays. Saturday at Dallas the Longhorns met the Vanderbilt Commodores in a battle expected to be thrilling all the way.

For Coach Everett Shelton's Haymakers, Elliott, tackle, and Sedbrook, acting captain, and half back, showed to advantage.

Capt. Saxon darted off tackle for 24 yards and the second Longhorn touchdown.

The third touchdown came early in the fourth duarter. Rufus King, big full back, Saxon, and Stallter marched 55 yards through the line. King plunged over for the touchdown from the three yard line.

Tignor Injured.

"Red" Wray, guard, received a blocked kick and raced 20 yards for the final marker. Tignor, the other Longhorn guard, blocked the kick, and was painfully cut about the head, retiring from the game.

The first string lineup which won the battle follows: Ends, Hughes and Ollie; tackles, Moore and Gooch; guards, Wray and Tignor; center, McCullough; harterback, Saxon; halves, Stallter and Ford; full backs, Rufus King.

Texas U	Position	Phillips U
Ollie	Left End	Elam
Cowley	Left Tackle	King
Rundell	Center	McQuicklin
Phillips	Right Guard	Shideler
McCutcheon	Right Tackle	Elliott
Rhoades	Right End	Dunker
J. King	Quarterback	Locke
Boyles	Left Halfback	Sedbrook
Allen	Right Halfback	McCarney
Pander	Fullback	J. McCarney

Score by periods

Texas	0	0	13	14	—27

Texas scoring: touchdowns, Ford (rushing for Allen), Saxon (subbing for J. King, R. King (subbing for Pander), Wray (subbing for Mobley); points after touchdown; R. King 2; Forward pass R. King to Rhoades.

Officials Bullinger, referee, Umpire; Proctor, head linesman.

Holtzclaw Flashes In Clarendon Win

CLARENDON, Oct. 9.—One of the outstanding plays in the Clarendon Bronchos' 53-0 victory over Claude high school was a quick dash by Holtzclaw who had just been substituted and who charged through the line for a 20-yard gain to score the second touchdown of the game.

Darnell, Arnold and Holtzclaw did excellent work at plunging the line.

Willie Jackson Picked As Tartar for Mr. Trammel

Friedman Lines Up String of Newcomers for Legion Fight Program Wednesday

Willie Jackson, Oklahoma City's best welterweight bet, has been signed up by Adolph Friedman, new legion matchmaker, for the express purpose of giving Duke Tramel, Fort Worth slugger, a sure-fire licking. "Or, at least, that's what I hope," said Friedman. "They say Duke has been getting setups and nobody will bring a boy in here who can bet him. I may be wrong but I believe Jackson can turn the trick and will do it. Anyhow, we shall see."

Jackson and Tramel are to step over the ten-round route Wednesday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena.

The Oklahoman has fought 105 times, never lost a bout but was held to a draw on three occasions.

Among fighters well known to Wichita Falls fistic followers he lists as his victims, Tommy Irvine, Hamp Brown, Country Boy Lance, Tom Storey, Sid Young and Dago Ryan.

"There will be no stalling hereafter," declared Friedman. "We are bringing in fast fighters who will pitch to the limit and if they don't the bouts will be stopped and their ends of the purse withheld."

Leo Diebel, the Kansas heavyweight, who has been beating all the hefty boys through the middle west meets the tough Sergeant Willis of Fort Sill in an eight-rounder, said Friedman.

Joe New, Los Angeles, and Young Silvester, New York's "Fighting Wop," a couple of speedy 130-pounders, are slated in a four-rounder.

There are to be two other preliminaries, said Friedman, with hard fighters participating. He declared slow prelims and the "kid fights" are going to be cut out.

Childress Romps On Hedley, 52-12

Bybee, Sport, Davis and Newberry Star Easy Victory

CHILDRESS, Oct. 9.—When the final whistle sounded on Friday afternoon's game, the Childress high school team had amassed 52 points against the lighter Hedley team. But Hedley had already made 12 points against the Childress second string in the first half of the game. Fitzgerald and Blankenship played a fine game for Hedley while the Childress stars were Bybee, Sport, Dowis, Newberry and T. Nichols. The final score was 52 to 12.

Cardinals Clout Yanks To Even Series, 3-All

Grover Cleveland Alexander Adds Another Victory to His World Series Record And Keeps Cardinals In Race

BY ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—The Cardinals, fighting like falcons instead of Red Birds, clawed their way back into the thick of the world's series battle today as their old pitching master, Grover Cleveland Alexander, subdued the Yankees for the second time.

Rallying behind the effective box work of their veteran right hander, the National league champions crushed their rivals in the sixth game by a score of 10 to 2, with an attack of such savage fury that neither Bob Shawkey or Urban Shocker, stars of the Yankee twirling troupe, could check it.

The victory put the Cardinals back on even terms with the Yankees, each with three games to their credit and forced the baseball championship struggle to the limit of seven games for the third year in a row.

It was a stirring comeback for the Cards battling for the first time in the game's greatest classic, and on the strength of it they may have whatever odds prevail for the seventh and deciding game tomorrow at the Yankee stadium. Not only have the sluggers of St. Louis reached the peak, after a relapse that threatened to put them out of the running on home grounds, but they are further fortified for the decisive test in pitching.

Haines For Cards.

Where Rogers Hornsby has big Jesse Haines, hero of a shutout triumph over the Yankees, primed for tomorrow's big battle, Miller Huggins probably must call on Waite Hoyt to take the mound out of turn. Shocker was slated for the seventh game, but he eliminated himself today by sharing the bombardment with Shawkey.

It was a chill wind that swept the Yankee stadium today, keeping the attendance down to 48,000, but it blew the Cardinals some good. With the grand stand cool enough to be festooned with icicles, the Cards festooned the surrounding stretches with base hits. They clinched the game in the first inning by smashing in three runs off Shawkey before the red flanneled arm of the Yankee veteran had had time to get warm. Except for a few intervals thereafter, the Cardinal clouting kept up a steady bombardment, coming to a climax in the seventh when Shawkey was shelled from the hill and his successor, Shocker, likewise shattered when four runs clattered over the plate.

Lester Bell, stalwart third baseman was the big gun in the barrage laid down by the Cardinal attack. His single in the first inning brought over two runs, including what proved to be the winning tally, while in the seventh he walloped a terrific home run into the left field stands that scored Bottomley ahead of him. Bell had one other hit, a single in the ninth but his two big blows were sufficient to tie the world's series record for driving in runs. By bringing four across altogether he equalled the single game mark first set by Elmer Smith in 1920, when he hit a home run with the bases full against Brooklyn and tied by Babe Ruth Wednesday when the Yanks star lashed out three home runs, one of them with a mate on base.

13 Safe Blows

All told, the Cardinals registered thirteen safe blows, six of them for extra bases, off the combined deliveries of Shawkey, Shocker and young Miles Thomas who twirled the last two innings. O'Farrel and Alexander, the Cardinal battery, alone failed to figure in the hit column but their bats weren't needed as they formed a combination that effectually checked the attacking efforts of their opponents.

It was too one-sided a game to be thrilling and too chilly for much warmth of spirit on the part of the crowd that left big vacant stretches of seats in the stands for the first time in any game of the series so far.

Yet there was a dramatic touch to the Cardinal rally and the second victory of Alexander, rawboned, 39 year old veteran who has come back in the twilight of his career to turn in two of his greatest performances. Old Aleck stands tied with Herb Pennock, southpaw star of the Yankees, in winning two games but to him goes the glory of twice having pulled the Cards back to even terms when their fortunes seemed a low ebb.

Just as he did in the second game, when he rallied the National league champions after a mediocre start, Alexander seemed to revitalize the Cardinals by his steadiness and confidence on the mound. He was hit a bit harder than before, allowing eight hits where he permitted only four the first time but he was the rock of Gibraltar itself whenever the Yankees threatened.

Yanks Get on But—

The Yankees got the first man to base in six of their nine innings and had scoring opportunities in at least five, but in only two of them, the fourth and seventh were they able to push a run across. Bob Meusel's long triple to left and an infield out by Gehrig, produced the first tally, while Dugan's single, a wild throw by Bell on Severeid's rap and one base hit by Combs accounted for the other run.

Babe Ruth was the most important of all when it came to solving the deceptive curves or ganging the speed of Alexander's offerings. Old Aleck was at his best when pitching to the bambino. He walked the Yankee star once, in the sixth, but in three other attempts the Babe could not get the ball out of the infield. Twice Ruth came to bat with two on base and two out but each time he was retired easily.

Furious Attack.

The furious attack with which the Cardinals greeted Shawkey in the first inning gave Alexander a sufficient margin to work on and although rapped hard at times he was never in danger as his teammates increased their advantage. His support was erratic, an error by Bell contributing toward one of the Yankee runs, but Southworth came through with a sensational tumbling catch of Dugan's low liner in an ninth inning pinch doubling Meusel off second to check a threatening Yankee rally. Alexander made one error but also contributed a fielding gem in the second inning when he robbed Lazzeri of a hit with a wonderful stop over second base, throwing out his man and holding Meusel, who had doubled to the middle bag.

It was a day of heroic work by the Cardinals as a whole and not the least of them was the center field sub, Roscoe (Waddie) Holm, who replaced the injured Taylor Douthit.

Holm Is Star.

Holm who figured in three scoring tallies altogether besides starring in the field, began the Cardinal cannonade ein his first inning, with a single to right. He was forced by Southworth but Hornsby walked and Bottomley doubled, scoring Southworth, while Bell crashed a drive past Dugan that brought over Hornsby and Bottomley.

Shawkey tightened after this, striking out Hafey and O'Farrell to end the first inning and breezing through the next three without allowing a hit. Thevenow's single, Alexander's sacrifice and Holm's blow over second base produced another run in the fifth and Shawkey's downfall finally came in the seventh.

Lazzeri Bungles.

A muffed throw by Tony Lazzeri, and a misjudged fly by Meusel proved damaging in this inning but not nearly so damaging as the Cardinal bats. Thevenow opened the attack with a single to left and all hands were safe when Lazzeri dropped Severeid's throw to first on Alexander's sacrifice bunt. Holm forced Thevenow but Southworth doubled, the blow being lost by Meusel in the sun and Alexander tallied.

This was the signal for Shawkey's retirement but Hornsby greeted Shocker with a single over second that brought Holm and Southworth over the plate. Bottomley forced Hornsby on a rap to Koenig and Bell followed with his lusty homer deep into the left field grand stand extension, scoring Bottomley ahead of him, Hafey kept up the barrage with a double but O'Farrell, the ninth man to bat, fanned and the firing ceased.

Thomas Finishes.

Thomas, twirling the last two innings, escaped with only one run, scored in the ninth when Southworth tripled to deep center on a hit that Combs juggled and scored on Hornsby's infield out.

PLAY BY PLAY

The following descriptive play by play of the world series is by Carl S. Brandebury:

FIRST INNING

CARDINALS: The band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the crowd rose to its feet with uncovered heads. The immense throng let out a loud cheer as Babe Ruth and company took the field. There was some delay while the band and the photographers were making their exit. Meanwhile Bob Shawkey warmed up in the pitching box. After the last musician had made his exit Umpire in Chief O'Day called "batter up." Holm lashed a single into right field, when Shawkey tried to sneak over a third strike, Southworth forced Holm. Koenig to Lazzeri. Southworth beat Koenig's throw to first by a narrow margin. Lazzeri went over and talked to Shawkey, who continued to work very slowly. Shawkey tried to pick Southworth off first and nearly got him. Hornsby got a base on balls, the fourth pitched going a little wide. Southworth scored on Bottomley's double to left. Hornsby stopping at third. Hornsby and Bottomley scored on Bell's sharp hit to left. Umpire O'Day went out to the pitcher's box to talk to Shawkey. He was evidently cautioning him for stalling between pitches. Hafey fanned, swinging on a curve ball, for a third strike. O'Farrell fanned, swinging for a third strike. Three runs, three hits, no errors.

YANKEES: After Alexander had warmed up Combs came to the plate swinging three bats. Combs went out on a grounder, Alexander to Thevenow to Bottomley. Koenig struck out, swinging on a fast curve, inside, for his third strike. Ruth went out to Bottomley, unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING.

CARDINALS: When Ruth went out at first he was the first Yankee who faced Alex and went out in order. Thevenow sent out a high fly to Combs. Alexander drew a walk. Meusel, Holm threw his bat away swinging at Shawkey's curve. Holm sent up a high foul to Severeid. No runs, no hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Meusel got a two-base hit back of third. Thevenow being unable to gage the ball in the sun. Thevenow threw out Gehrig at first. Meusel holding second. Thevenow robbed Lazzeri of a hit and threw out at first. Meusel going to third. This saved a run. Dugan went out, Bell to Bottomley. No runs, one hit, no errors.

THIRD INNING.

CARDINALS: Southworth sent a sharp liner to Combs, who had to come in fast to make the catch. Hornsby went out by the Koenig-Gehrig route. Gehrig stood in his tracks and took Bottomley's fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Severeid spun a single over second base. Thevenow let Shawkey's grounder go through him. Severeid halting at second. A double play was in sight but the Card shortstop gummed it. Combs forced Severeid, Alexander to Bell. Shawkey went to second on the play. Koenig sent a high fly out to Southworth, Shawkey holding second. Hornsby went over and gave instructions to Alexander. Ruth went out to Bottomley for the second time. No runs, one hit, one error.

FOURTH INNING.

CARDINALS: Bell got a base on balls, the fourth ball being high. Hafey sacrificed, Shawkey to Gehrig. Bell out, stealing. Severeid to Dugan. Meusel raced to the foul line and took O'Farrell's fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Meusel sent a hot hit to left for three bases. It was the first triple of the series, and Meusel's second hit of the game. Meusel scored when Hornsby took Gehrig's burning grounder and threw him out at first. Thevenow looped out Lazzeri at first. Dugan singled past Alexander. Severeid struck out, swinging on a drop ball. One run, two hits, no errors.

FIFTH INNING.

CARDINALS: Thevenow, pumped a hit into left. Alexander sacrificed, Gehrig taking his bunt and touching the Cardinal pitcher. Thevenow scored on Holm's single past Lazzeri into center. Dugan took Southworth's short roller and threw him out. Holm going to second. Lazzeri took Hornsby's seeming hit and got him at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Shawkey whiffed, swinging for a third strike. Hafey gathered in Combs' fly. Koenig lofted to Holm. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SIXTH INNING.

CARDINALS: Bottomley got a two-base hit into right. Bell hit a long fly into the left field stands and it was foul only by inches. Bell struck out, going after a wide curve. Hafey also fanned. O'Farrell fouled out to Dugan. No runs, one hit, no errors.

YANKEES: The crowd was now cheering for a rally as Ruth came to the plate. Ruth walked, the fourth pitch being wide. Meusel sent up a high fly to Holm. Gehrig struck out and Ruth stole second. Lazzeri flied out to Holm. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING

CARDINALS: Thevenow singled into left for his second hit. Alexander sacrificed but Lazzeri dropped Severeid's perfect throw at first. Thevenow going to second. Holm forced Thevenow Severeid to Dugan, Alexander going to second. Alexander scored on Southworth's two-base hit into left which Meusel lost in the sun. Holm went to third. Shawkey was taken from the box at this stage, being replaced by Shocker. Shocker warmed up a bit, and the Yankee infield came in on the grass. Holm and Southworth scored on Hornsby's single through the box. Bottomley forced Hornsby when Koenig took Bottomley's grounder and touched second. Bell got a home run into the left field stand scoring Bottomley ahead of him. It was a hard smash and he got a big cheer as he crossed the plate. Hafey lashed a long fly into left for two bases. The Cardinals' hitting was terrific. O'Farrell struck out, swinging for a third strike. Five runs, five hits, one error.

YANKEES: Dugan's hot shot spurted off Bell's glove for a hit. It was Dugan's second hit. Bell took Severeid's hot grounder and overthrew first, Dugan going to third. Severeid stopped at first, the ball hit Bell on the arm and he rubbed it vigorously. Paschal batted for Shocker. Spencer Adams ran for Severeid. Paschal struck out on three pitched balls. Dugan scored on Combs' hot line drive that slid off Thevenow's glove. Adams halted at second. Koenig went out to Bottomley unassisted, Adams going to third and Combs to second. Thevenow threw out Ruth at First. One run, two hits, one error.

EIGHTH INNING

CARDINALS: Collins went in to catch for New York, and Thomas went into the box for the Yankees. Thevenow was hit by a pitched ball which struck him between the shoulder blades. Alexander forced Thevenow, Thomas to Koenig. Holm hit into a double play, Gehrig taking his grounder, touching first, then threw to Koenig who touched Alexander. No runs, no hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Meusel got a base on balls, the fourth ball being wide. Gehrig got a single over Bottomley's head which Hornsby knocked down. Lazzeri flied out to Hafey. Southworth made a shoe string catch of Dugan's liner and then doubled Meusel at second, Thevenow taking Southworth's throw. No runs, one hit, no errors.

NINTH INNING

CARDINALS: Southworth got a long hit over second for three bases. Southworth scored when Hornsby's hot shot bounded from Thomas to Dugan, who threw Hornsby out at first. Bottomley went out unassisted to Gehrig. Bell shot a single into right and was out stretching it, Ruth to Lazzeri. One run, two hits, no errors.

YANKEES: Collins struck out, swinging on a wide curve. Reuther batted for Thomas. Reuther went out, Hornsby to Bottomley. The crowd now was making a rush for the exits. Combs got a hit into right for two bases. Koenig flied out to Holm. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Try-Try Again Wins U. S. Amateur Crown For Von Elm——By Edgren

George Von Elm is one of the gamest and most persistent young men in modern sport. He proved that when he defeated the great Bobbie Jones in the final match of the American Amateur golf championship.

The defeat of Bobbie Jones, who had won the title two successive years and this year had won the British open and the American open championships was personal friends. Von Elm never doubted that he's beat Jones. He had been training and practicing and perfecting his game for three years, just to beat Jones. He was ready for the event.

Everything in the line of psychology was supposed to be against Von Elm. The reputation of Bobbie Jones was considered an impossible barrier for any golfer to overcome this year. And Jones had overwhelmed Von Elm before. It seemed there was no reason to suspect that he couldn't do it again.

George Von Elm is twenty-five. He played his first title tournament at the age of fifteen, winning the Utah championship. He lived in Salt Lake City.

Before he became a noted golfer Von Elm had an ambition to become a ring champion. He was a good amateur boxer—the best in the state. But he had been playing golf since his tenth year, and winning the Utah state championship turned his ambition from the ring to the links.

Boxing gave Von Elm a sturdy build and a snappy, confident bearing that have been a great help in his golf contests. He never tires and he never thinks of giving up. Last winter I saw him finishing the thirty-six hole contest for the Los Angeles ten thousand dollar open. He was playing against Cooper, the clever professional who pulled down the big prize. Of course Von Elm being an amateur, was accepting nothing but a cup. In that match George shot about six birdies in a row and led Cooper until the finish. There Cooper dropped his second on the green on a five par hole and sunk a fifteen foot put for an eagle three. Von Elm had shot over into a trap, but he came striding in cheerfully, fresh as at the start when most of the other contestants were dragging their way home, clipped out of the trap and finished second to Cooper—still smiling.

First Attempt In 1924

The new champion made his first attempt to corner the National title in 1924.

He worked up through a long list of famous amateurs and met Bobbie Jones in the final. Jones slaughtered Von Elm, nine up and eight to go. This was at Merion, Pa. Von Elm went back to California—where he has lived ever since he left Salt Lake City in 1923.

George is a member of the Rancho Golf Club of Los Angeles. The Rancho course is a good tough course, with narrow fairways bordered by gullies and deep rough, very little level ground, and many hills. George had a team mate in Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion, who has recently become a professional. Through the next year Von Elm and Willie Hunter formed an invincible team in the many club matches of the southland. George cracked course records all over the state. He was getting ready for Bobbie Jones, and he went back to last year's amateur championships with a far degree of confidence.

Again George was out of luck. He was eliminated in the semi-final match by Watts Gun, a young pupil and playing mate of Bobbie Jones. It was another overwhelming defeat. George was nine down at the finish. He went back to California a little drawn around the angles of the jaw, a little solemn and pale, but just as determined as ever. In a few days he was shooting around Rancho again, practicing his long straight drives and his crisp, confident iron shots, perfecting his putting, making ready to go after Bobbie Jones and the championship once more in 1926. He cracked more course records, often getting strokes inside the seventy mark. His game was that of a champion.

And this year it was a glorified Bobbie Jones that George had to meet. Jones was fresh from the greatest victories ever won by any golfer, at the top of his game, invincible. The papers were full of Bobbie Jones. Von Elm was hardly mentioned. If anything was said about George's western scoring performances it was nullified by the remark that by this time Bobbie Jones probably had his goat, that psychology would count, that Von Elm might beat anyone else—but not Jones.

Von Elm Hits Stride At Last

Jones walked through his opponents with some difficulty, but not too much. He was the invincible, confident Bobbie. Von Elm went along less smoothly. In the third match he beat Watts Gun. In the semi-final eliminated George Dawson. But he had difficulty getting into his stride. He wasn't showing his best form. Or perhaps he was saving himself.

In the final he met Bobbie Jones, who was trying to break a record by winning the American Amateur three years in succession, and three championships in the same year. It looked a cinch Bobbie would do it. Von Elm hardly drew a paragraph in the sporting news.

Then came the greatest, tightest game that ever decided a National championship. Driving hard and straight, but not quite as hard and straight as Jones, and using iron shots that were crisp and certain, putting like a sharpshooter bringing bullseyes, Von Elm took the aggressive. He started by losing the first hole, and when Bobbie laid him a dead stymie on the second it looked like a very tough break. But Von Elm took a mid iron and cut the shot so that his ball circled Bobbie's and dropped squarely into the middle of the cup. From that time on Jones never held the lead even for a moment. If anything luck was against Von Elm. He was stymied several times once at the sixth when there was no possible way of scoring. But six times out of seven he'd drop his irons nearer the hole than Jones, and his putting was deadly.

Once, on the eleventh hole, Von Elm had to drop a twelve foot put across two ridges in the green, and did it. He was putting with perfect confidence, stepping up quickly, glancing at the ground and putting without wasting any time. And his ball always dropped into the hole. For the first time since his match with Walter Hagen last year Bobbie Jones found himself on the defensive, hanging on desperately, trying to come up from behind. And all the time Von Elm was playing his irons better, dropping long shots close to the hole, sinking his puts. There was no break in Von Elm's game—no chance for Jones to get in a two or three hole rally and take the lead. Von Elm finished one up at the end of the first eighteen. Each shot 73, one over par. In the afternoon Von Elm held his lead, both playing championship golf without a break, all the way. Near the end Jones was feeling the pressure and working hard to keep up, still hoping for a break and George was going along, chipper as ever, crisp with his irons, unhesitating and confidence with his putter. He won the match and the championship on the seventeenth green.

Bobbie Jones, the idol of American golf in the morning, walked back from the seventeenth green to the clubhouse, with two officials and his caddie. Thousands of people were falling over each other to get near Von Elm, who was being carried on the shoulders of his new friends.

Jones grinned.

"This is Napoleon coming back from Moscow," he said. Which shows that Bobbie Jones has become a philosopher. It may be tougher for George next year.

WOMAN RUNS FIGHT ARENA

London Female Tex Rickard Operates Fistic Show At British Capital

LONDON, Oct. 9. (AP)—Mrs. Dick Burge directs The Ring, the best known fistic institution in London, and she promotes its boxing entertainment.

Men are employed as match makers, press representatives and managers, but it is Mrs. Burge who cracks the whip.

The Ring is a great circus-like building located in Blackfriars, not far from the south end of Blackfriads Bridge. It is devoted exclusively to boxing, and has an important bout several times each week. Titled English ladies, or any other kind of a lady for that matter, are seen in the circular gallery with their husbands. For in England boxing matches have a high social standing.

Mrs. Burge just happened to become a promoter. Her husband was a well known pugilist and formerly directed The Ring. When he died, she took over its destinies and for many years, has run it to the satisfaction of a large clientele.

She seldom misses a match. She wants to be on hand in case of trouble, although there seldom is any because betting is absolutely forbidden. On one occasion, the chief event proved very unsatisfactory and the audience let her know it. Mrs. Burge appeared in the ring and said the show had been a rotten one and urged them to stop by the box office and get their money back.

Archer City Nips Seymour Eleven

Larkin and Hodges Lead Wildcats to 13 to 7 Victory

ARCHER CITY, Oct. 9.—Wilson's high-flying Archer City Wildcats continued their victorious march yesterday, defeating the tough Seymour outfit, 13 to 7.

The Wildcats negotiated 15 first downs to Seymour's two.

Walker, Seymour, right half, scored the visitors' touchdown and kicked goal. He was Seymour's outstanding performer.

Black, Wildcat quarter, and Morrison accounted for Archer City's points. Black scored a touchdown. Morrison kicked two field goals and goal after touchdown.

Larkin and Hodges in the Archer City backfield, Larkin with line plunges and Hodges with end runs and passing were the offensive luminaries.

Stann, Robertson and Powell waged a great battle in the line.

Ludgate Angles For Home Game

Redskins Open Conference Drive With Arlington Next Week

Coach Ludgate is angling after a home game for the Indians of the Junior college this week, as the final preparation for conference competition. The Tribe has played out of town the last two weeks and local people have seen little of the bunch in action. The first conference game, to be played next week with the North Texas Aggies at Arlington, will also take the squad on another journey into enemy territotry.

Thus far the Tribe has fared pretty well, defeating Fort Sill and Oklahoma Christian college of Cordell and losing to the heavy hitting aggregation from Randolph college. Coming games with John Tarleton, North Texas Aggies, and Decatur Baptist colleges will leave the Maroon and Gold all kinds of nuts to crack before the season is over. One non-conference date has been scheduled for November with the Cameron Aggies, who last week defeated the Coyotes and who should give the Indians a pretty even match. Ludgate is planning to put in a bid for another conference tussle, if it can be arranged to meet the conference requirements of four games with member teams in order to figure in championship awards.

Electra Charges Over Chillicothe

Lebus, Gillum and Carnahan Flash in 43 to 0 Win

CHILLICOTHE, Oct. 9.—The Electra Tigers ran over the stubbornly fighting little Chillicothe "Police" here yesterday by a 43 to 0 score with the entire Electra backfield gaining almost at will. LeBus, Gillum and Carnahan were Electra's leading backfield performers. Sargent and Avens, Electra tackles, waged a noble game both offensively and defensively.

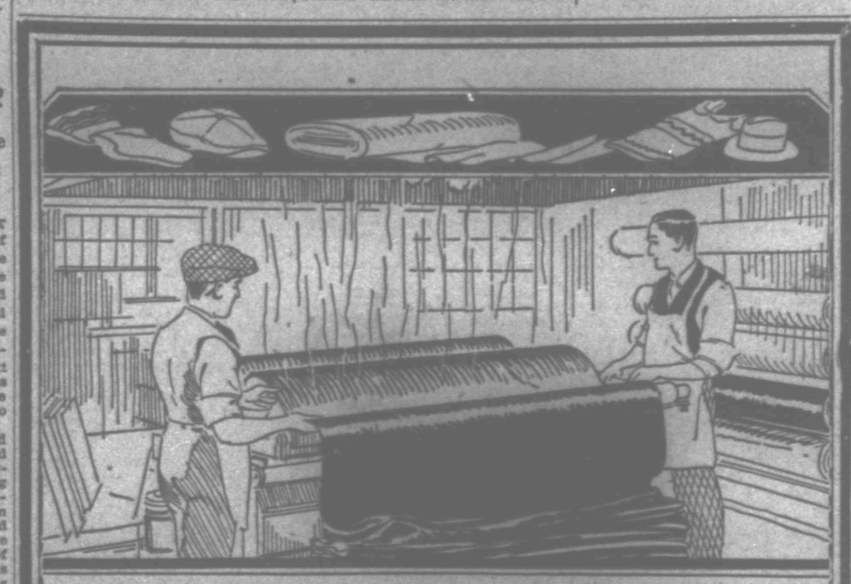

Electra scored 12 points in the first five minutes of play.

The game was very hard-fought considering Chillicothe was outweighed at least 20 pounds to the man.

Conwell White, Ross Kilgore, Hubert Stevens, Joe Tom Nuckles and Tom Word played good games for the losers. Shady Tabor, Lester Price and Davis along with Guy Creighton and Roland Hansard played splendidly.

Chillicothe tackles Crowell next Friday.

HUNT LEADS FARMERS TO 6-3 VICTORY

Aggies Snatch Game From Fire In Last Five Minutes

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP)—Joel Hunt, a shadow man from Aggie land, bore away the laurels earned by producing during the last five minutes of play a touchdown which gave the Texas Aggies a 6 to 3 football victory over the Sewanee Tigers of the university of the South from Sewanee, Tenn., here Saturday. The game was played before a crowd of 7,000 people as an opening day feature of the Texas State fair.

Hunt Runs Wild.

The story of the retrieving of a cause seemingly lost resolves itself almost entirely into a story of the rampage of Hunt, smallest except one of 22 players who started the contest. Three times during the last two periods the Aggies got promising attacks well under way only to have them crumple against a marvelous Sewanee defense. It looked as though the field goal kicked from placement by Helvey, Sewanee fullback, in the second period was to decide the battle.

But the fourth and successful Aggie attack opened with a 12-yard pass, Hunt to Petty, Hunt then passed to Petty for 10 yards, but the play was recalled and the Aggies were penalized for offside. A line thrust failed. Next in order was a pass from Willis, substitute fullback, to Hunt, for a 28-yard gain to the nine-yard line. Hunt followed it up with a wide end run, dodging a diving tackler, twisting from the grip of another and falling over the goal line held by another for the winning points. Lister, another sub, failed to kick goal for the extra point.

Aggies 13, First Downs.

The statistical analysis gave all the edge to the Aggies, who made 13 first downs to two for the Tigers, and gained 259 yards from line plays, including 73 through the air, to a total of 67 yards for the visitors. Despite the margin, however, the stalwart Tiger defense kept the play near midfield up until the time of the touchdown.

The lineup:

Sewanee (3)	Pos.	Texas Aggies (6)
Auxois	Center	Watts
Cocke	Right Guard	Rekterik
Kimbrough	Right Tackle	Spratt
Small	Right End	Diffenbach
Johnson	Right Half	Burgess
Helvey	Fullback	Woodman
Todd	Quarterback	Hunt

Score by periods:
Sewanee .....0 0 3 0—3
Aggies .....0 0 0 6—6
Summary: Touchdown, Hunt. Field goal, Helvey.
Officials: Rix (Dartmouth), referee; Robbins (Vanderbilt), umpire; Moore (Vanderbilt), head linesman.

Intersectional Schedule

Intersectionalism in college football reached its numerical peak of the season with Saturday's games, something like 15 intersectional contests being played. It is unusual for so many to come this early in the season. Games of major importance intersectionally remain to be played, however. Next Saturday, Oct. 16, there are nine on schedule and each Saturday thereafter there will be from one to six played. These are among the more important games which properly may be classified as intersectional remaining to be played this season.

AGGIE-SEWANEE GRID GAME PLAY BY PLAY

DALLAS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Helvey kicked off to Hunt, who received on his own 15-yard line and returned the ball to the 23-yard line, where he was stopped by Aucoin, Tiger center. Woodman was stopped at left tackle by Kirkby Smith for no gain. On a tackle cut-back, Hunt made three years. Third down, A. and M. ball.

Colgin kicked. Young made 32-yards on his sensational return of Colgin's punt.

Young was forced out of bounds by Spratt. Dietrich no gain in a try at right tackle, Sewanee's bill, A. and M. 40-yard line.

Johnson made three yards in a delayed buck over tackle. Third down seven yards to go. A short pass over center of line Todd to Helvey was successful for five yards and Helvey rolled four yards more to place ball on Aggie 33-yard line. First down ten to go. Todd was stopped by Rokterig at center for no gain. Second, ball on A. and M. 36-yard line. Second down, 10 yards to go. Johnson plowed off right tackle for only a yard gain behind Helvey. Massey fullback of Tigers. Sewanee's ball on Aggie line 35-yard line. Third down, 9 to go. Burgess intercepted a short pass from Todd to Johnson on his own 25 yard returned to 35-yard line before stopped by Cantrell, left end of Tiger. Aggie ball on own 36-yard line.

End first quarter: Texas Aggies 0; Sewanee0.

Penalise Aggies

Hunt forced out of bounds with no gains. Aggies penalized five yards. Aggie ball on own 35-yard line. Woodman plowed five yards through center of Sewanee's line on a delayed pass. Colvin went to Tiger 49-yard line before being downed by Helvey. Colgin made two yards over left tackle. Aggies ball on Sewanee's 47-yard line. Burgess stopped at left end with one yard gain. A short pass Hunt to Diffenbach was incompleted. Hunt kicked 50-yards over Tiger goal line. Sewanee's ball on own 20-yard line. Young made 10 yards but was off-side and the ball was advanced to the 25 yard line. Tigers ball. Burgess, left half Aggies had a rib broken and was replaced by Simmons. Todd was stopped on a short end run by Diffenback with no gain. Helvey ripped three yards through Captain Dietrich at left tackle. BRITISH PROS PLAN INVASION

Duncan, Compston, Boomer Seek American Golf Scalps

By RAY M'CARTHY,
Special Correspondent, The Record News

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—George Duncan, Archie Compston and possibly Aubrey Boomer, three of the foremost golfers in Great Britain will invade the United States some time in December. This exclusive news may not startle anybody. Somebody probably will be so kind as to enquire. "What of it?"

Nevertheless, the visit of this trio of skilled linksmen presages an active drive on western courses this winter which will be unusual to say the least. Hark to the plans of the foreigners.

Duncan, the peerless, is coming to America primarily and principally to participate in the California and Florida tournaments, but he will lecture as well. The lecture business, as Duncan will do it, is a comparatively new wrinkle in golf although the writer recalls the country given in collaboration by Gene Sarazen and Jock Hutchison four years ago.

Duncan's lecturing will be done mainly in various department stores in the far west and south, athough the brilliant Scot also will do plenty of demonstrating on the links. Those who have the good fortune to hear Duncan discuss golf will get some excellent pointers. The former British open champion is one of the keenest students of the game. It has been said of Duncan that he has forgotten more about golf than the average professional will ever learn.

Some time during his visit here in January, February and March Duncan hopes to meet Walter Hagen in a match of 72 holes for a substantial side purse.

The Briton, in fact, already has issued a challenge to Hagen and is coming to the states with backing of a number of prominent Britons. The latter are confident that Duncan can beat Hagen because he has done so twice already. What is more, those same Britons have not forgiven Sir Walter for his tardiness in his match with Abe Mitchell last spring. Mitchell was planning to come to this country this winter, but poor health has forced a postponement of his visit to another year. But the Britons feel that Duncan can well uphold the prestige of the lion in a match with Hagen.

Little has been heard regarding the Manchester giant; Compston, in the past four months, and for good reason. Last winter, after a brilliant year of golf in his home country in which he cleaned up all opposition, Compston came to the states with the intention of doing a little mopping up here also. He did manage to win a couple of tournaments in Florida but the whole of his showing was somewhat disappointing, both to himself and to his admirers.

GERMAN BOND SALES EASIER

$10,000,000 Issue Sold At Low Interest Rate On New York Market

BY BYRON SELLER,
Special Correspondent of The Record News.

Copyright, 1926, by The Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The event of the week in the investment market was the renewed interest in European government bonds following the offering and sale on this side of the State of Hamburg loan with a coupon rate lower than any German bond sold here since the war.

The amount of the following was comparatively small, $10,000,000, but the interest rate and the price were more favorable to the borrower than any of its predecessors. In fact there are only a few continental European dollar loans of countries participant in the war with 6 per cent coupons. The French cities of Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles have a 6 per cent bond, but that was put out in 1919 when the French financial difficulties were not commonly foreseen. There is a Belgian 6 per cent loan offered in 1925 but that was originally marketed at a discount of four points than the new Hamburg offering.

Each successive German bond issue testifies to the improvement in Germany's credit with American investors and each incident of this kind has been followed by a corresponding marking up of the older German obligations. That is what happened this week. Three or four of these sold this week at the highest prices in their history, and there was active trading in all of them.

To a very moderate degree feeling extended to other foreign bonds. The French railway loans probably received more attention than any other group. French government obligations themselves ruled practically unchanged and so did the Belgian issues, notwithstanding cabled reports that a decided move seen reached to stabilize the Belgian franc at approximately its present value with relation to sterling.

In this connection a large new loan was mentioned as preliminary to stabilization. It will be interesting to see when and if this financing is effected, whether it can be done up any better basis than Belgian bonds are now selling. As a matter of fact our market makes little distinction as far as the dollar bonds are concerned between Belgium, which has ratified the refunding war debt agreement with the United States and France which has not. Nor does the matter of currency stabilization seem to be much of a factor, although doubtless any renewed collapse in French francs would be reflected in the French bond list.

Coming back to Germany, the ease with which loans for German provinces and municipalities are floated is not looked upon without misgivings in certain quarters. For instance, the Midland Bank Limited, no of the largest of the British institutions, in a review published this week takes the position that these large foreign borrowings may impair Germany's ability to meet the Dawes plan requirements during the next few years. It points to the difficulties in the way of securing exchange to meet the constantly mounting service on these foreign loans at the same time that transfers on reparations accounts are increasing.

No one has ever offered a convincing answer to this question of how the exchange obstacle is to be overcome but bond buyers are not disposed to borrow trouble on that score now. They see simply a reviving Germany, an attractive return on German securities and a ready market for dollar bonds. That is enough for the present.

Outside the foreign list trading in domestic issues continued very dull.

The average price is just about where it was a week ago. Large institutional buyers, which are the main support of the market 90 per cent of the time, are inclined to hold off and traders find scant pickings in fluctuations as small as they have been lately.

Content is heard over and over again in the street on how much easier it is to interest an investor in a new issue than a seasoned one. That is good for the bond salesman and he is making the most of it, but it is not to the liking of the old-time trader.

The factors that govern the long range swings of the bond market present a picture so confused that it is hard to look for commodity prices. Silver has made another new low and, while specific reasons can be assigned therefore, most of these, with the currency re-organization in India, attention has again been called to the fact that in the past depression in the price of silver has coincided with or preceded general commodity price declines.

Any effort upon the general level of bond prices is apt to be experienced so gradually that only an academic interest is aroused in it, while a subject now but it is a point that ought not be overlooked. If we are in for a long period of falling commodity prices, no matter how slowly, there can be no permanent reaction in the highest grade of investment bonds.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.(AP)—Yesterday's severe decline in the cotton market was followed by rallies today. After selling up to 12.93 for December contracts or about 57 points above yesterday's low level the market however, met increased southern offerings in late trading and December closed at 12.81. The general market closed steady at net advance of 13 to 16 points.

The opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of nine points under overnight selling orders from the south and further selling by local traders or commission houses on the increased estimate of the crop. Offerings were much lighter than yesterday while Liverpool made a relatively steady showing. As soon as the early selling ran its course, prices turned upward on covering for over the week-end, together with a moderate trade and commission house demand.

Some traders were inclined to regard the comparatively small selling by the south, on the collection that the hedging or spot liquidation, inspired by yesterday's break had about run its course. This view, together with reports of rains or showers in the southwest and the prospects for rather unsettled weather which might interfere with picking, or cause some damage to the crop, no doubt increased the disposition to take profits and encouraged short sales after a decline of nearly six cents a pound from the high levels of last month.

January contracts sold up to 13.07 and March to 13.25, the general market showing net advances of about 32 to 36 points during the forenoon. Demand then tapered off, as it covering of short contracts had been pretty well supplied and the market weakened in late trading under a renewal of liquidation and southern selling. The latter appeared to be more active in the last half hour than earlier in the day, and last prices showed reactions of 12 or 13 points from the best.

Trading in current October contracts in the market here ended at mid-day.

Liverpool cables attributed steadiness in Liverpool to trade calling, covering and buying for a reaction, but said the Manchester goods market was unsettled with business in cloth and yarn restricted.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.(AP)—Evening up of accounts so as to be prepared for the United States government crop report on Monday gave relative steadiness to wheat values today. Closing quotations on wheat were rather firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1c higher, with corn ¼c to ½c down, oats ¼c off, and provisions varying from 10c decline to an equal advance.

Improved weather made corn and oats easy, and May corn established another new low price record for the season.

Aside from cotton, the provision market was steadier, hog values declines being virtually ignored.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES

U. S. FLIERS TO RIM AMERICA

Planes Being Made Ready For Big Pan-American Aerial Cruise

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 9.(AP)—With the first of the five amphibian planes, now under construction, expected to arrive at Duncan Field about November 1, plans for the army corps Pan-American flight probably will be completed in time for the hop-off which is to start on December 15, it was learned Saturday. Coincident with this information came an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, declaring that the Chilean foreign ministry had granted permission for the squadron to fly over Chinean territory. Chile was the last country of South America to grant the request of the United States to permit the planes, avowed on a mission of friendliness, to fly over her country.

Now that this request has been granted, plans for the flight are expected to be rapidly completed.

After the arrival of the first plane here, the other four will be shipped at the rate of one a week, it is believed. The ten pilots of the flight of which Captain Arthur R. McDaniel of Kelly Field will be second in command, will reach here soon after the first plane is assembled at Duncan Field.

Meanwhile First Lieutenant Leonard D. Weddington of the 12th observation group, Fort Sam Houston, who also is one of the pilots of the proposed flight, probably will be sent soon to Galveston where an amphibian plane is part of the improvement of the third attack group. He will practice landings on the water to familiarize himself with the actions of the big planes, which flies from land or water.

Two pilots, will be assigned to each plane, according to the present schedule. However, pairings of the ten, who will be under the command of Major Herbert A. Dadgue, have not been made yet.

The first leg of the 18,000 mile journey will carry the pilots from San Antonio to Brownsville, it is said. Subsequent hops have not been fully decided upon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.(AP)—Stock prices plunged downward again today as bear traders launched another selling attack on the theory that demoralization of the cotton market would react unfavorably on the general business situation. Concentrating their fire first on the shares of southern railroads and industrial companies, they eventually succeeded in depressing the prices of pivotal issues and turning the course of the entire market downward. Net losses in the active stocks ranged from 2 to 6½ points.

The cotton market, however, was steadied after the violent declines which preceded and mollowed the government's prediction of the largest crop on record. News that the president had appointed a special committee to aid this industry in the marketing of the crop was favorably received and prices closed 12 to 16 points higher in contrast to recent displays of weakness.

The severity of the selling movement which quickly superseded initial slight gains to bid up prices carried U. S. Steel down 3½ points to 142⅝, in the face of official predictions that unfilled tonnage would show an increase for September. These were borne out by the figures made public after the close of the market, revealing a gain of 11,174 tons, the second recorded this year. At the day's low point of 142⅝, steel was more than 12 points under the high figure touched a week ago today. General Motors closed 2½ points lower at 153⅝ compared with last Saturday's high of 177½, and DuPont slumped 6½ points to 256.

Liquidation of southern rail and industrial shares was attributed in some quarters to a desire of financial interests in that section to devote their resources, if needed, to the support of the cotton industry. Coca Cola also moved more than 6 points and prominent rails, including Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, Southern Railway, Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western were hammered down 1 to 2½ points.

Trading in the foreign exchange market was featured by the rise of 5 points in Italian lire which went above 4 cents for the first time in about five months. Demand sterling ruled unchanged around 4.84⅝, while French francs were slightly firmer at 2.87⅛ cents.

40 COUNTIES NEED PICKERS

74,000 Pickers Reported To Be Needed In West And Northwest Texas

AUSTIN, Oct. 9. (AP)—Cotton pickers are needed in 40 counties, E. J. Crocker, labor commissioner, advised C. W. Woodard, asistant farm labor director United States department of labor at Fort Worth, Saturday. Practically no cotton has been picked in most of the counties. Approximately 74,850 pickers are needed, with 17,400 needed in Clay, Dallas, Fannin, Grayson, Kaufman, Tarrant, Wichita and Young counties, comprising the northern district.

In the western district, composed of Callahan, Howard, McCulloch, Mitchell, Nolan and Taylor, 8,500 pickers are needed. Ellis, Hill, Limestone, McLennan, Milam, Navarro and Travis counties, in the central district need 12,850 pickers.

For the northwestern district, 36,100 pickers are wanted in the counties in this district are Briscoe, Collingsworth, Cottle, Crosby, Dawson, Fisher, Floyd, Hale, Hall, Hardeman, Haskell, Jones, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Curry, Terry and Wilbarger.

In east, south and southwest districts of the state more than 50 per cent of the cotton crop has been picked, the commissioner reported.

NOTICE TO SUB-DIVIDERS AND INVESTORS

Here is one of the best opportunities ever offered in subdivision tracts or investments. 336 acre tracts in the well-known "PROPOSED HOLLIDAY CANAL OR DISTRICT NO. 3 IRRIGATION DITCH." Lying only 1 1-2 miles from the heart of the city and 1-8 mile off the HENRIETTA ROAD.
This tract lays extra well for irrigation. Every foot is tillable and over 300 acres are now being sown with wheat.
This is one of the most choice farming districts in WICHITA COUNTY, as it is well located, the soil is all fertile, the perfect irrigation features can not be duplicated, and the price is only $100 PER ACRE.
Adjoining land is being held for over 5 times the price per acre asked for this tract.
No salesman's commission; you can buy direct from the owner at a real sacrifice price as it must be sold at once. All that is asked is that if you are interested or think you are interested, look this over and be convinced of its value, for it is a real sacrifice sale.

Morroccan Army Is Split Into Gangs of Banditti

TANGIER.—French troops in the Riff are having more trouble "mopping up" than they had in fighting the organized forces of Abel el Krim. The army of the Morroccan chieftian has split into gangs of banditi, attacking and robbing merchants, burning commercial posts, carry off women and then fleeing into secure hiding places before the French soldiers can get near enough to get even a glimpse of the marauders. Spanish observers declare it will take ten years to subjugate the Riffians.

AIR SEARCH FOR GIRL

AMESBURY, Eng.—An aeroplane search of Salisbury plain was conducted to find a trace of Miss Ruth Winston, missing for four days, but no clue was found.

LAUGH AT DROWNIGG MAN.

CHICAGO. — Thinking George Morrison was "playing antics" in the lake, several fishermen laughed as he drowned near a pier.

BEES KILL NINE HENS

Pueblo, Colo.—A swar mof bees stung to death nine hens owned by C. H. Wagstaff.

MOTHER RUNS HOME AND BUSINESS SUCCESSFULLY

HALIFAX, Eng.—The question as to whether a woman can manage a home and a business successfully at the same time isanswered in the affirmative by Mrs. Laura A. Willson, who has amassed a fortune in the building business while rearing several children. She says women are probably superior to men in business lines. "They are more adaptable," is her explanation. "They do not stay in one groove and wait if things are bad for something to turn up. They get into newer things."

DEATH BETRAYS BIGAMIST

GLASCOW.—Two wives, neither of whom had known of the existence of the other, appeared at the funeral of J. J—, C. Donald, revealing him as a bigamist.

CLUB STUDIES FIRE HAZARD

University Club Hears Chief M'Clure On Prevention Plea for City

"On of the biggest fire hazards we have is carelessness," Fire Chief J. L. McClure said in a talk in observance of National Fire Prevention week before the University club Saturday at the Kemp. "The next hazard is over-insurance. There ought to be insurance," he said and then told how some persons sold their property to insurance companies.

He took for example people who travel from place to place, buying second hand furniture and moving it into a rented dwelling. When the people are ready to move they find they can get only about a third of what they paid for their furniture, and then they sell the furnishings as well as the house to the insurance companies, the fire chief explained. "Some people burn property for the premium," he said.

Praises German Laws

"If we had in the United States the same laws on fire prevention that Germany has, there would be less fire loss" McClure then showed how the owner of a building in Germany might be held responsible for the loss of property of a neighbor whose house next door was burned down as a result of a fire on his premises.

"It was fifty-five years ago on October 9 that Chicago had the big fire which destroyed the lives of hundreds of people. Since that time on October 9, national fire prevention week has been observed and a proclamation has been issued by each president, each governor of state and each mayor to observe it, and it should be until the fire loss has decreased," Chief McClure declared.

"In 1922 fire loss in the United States and Canada amounted to $508,000,000 and it has decreased to only $500,000,000 and 15,000 people have been burned and maimed in a year's time.

Tells Of Local Loss

"If we keep up the rate we're going now we will be short of building material in a short time. We burn more people to death than have been lost in wars." He then recounted fires in Wichita Falls where lives were lost.

Speaking of the growth of the local fire department, Chief McClure told how 19 years ago the department was composed of himself and one team of old black horses. He was allowed $600 per year and $20 monthly for expenses.

There are 64 men in the department now, with 11 pieces of apparatus and six fire stations. The budget this year is $142,000; the fire hose equipment represents $81,000; apparatus over $100,000, and fire hose $50,000.

As a remedy for fire prevention, he suggested a better class of houses in the United States and using fire precaution.

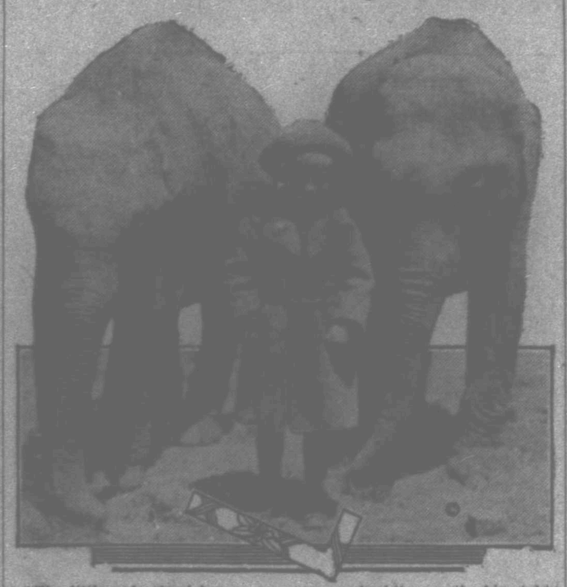

Burl Bryant, president of the club, introduced the speaker.

At the opening of the meeting, a sing-song was led by Alva Willgus with round singing of "Scotland's Burning," carrying out the idea of fire prevention. Mrs. J. S. Pitman sang "Caroline," and came back to give a musical reading, "Foolish Questions," with Mr. Pitman at the piano.

A program committee for the remainder of October was appointed as follows: H. A. Glass, Mrs. V. W. Silk and C. A. Rogers.

E. E. Fisher reported on plans for the party honoring teachers and their friends to be given Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Alamo school cafeteria. The affair is to be strictly informal and the public school teachers in the city are invited to attend.

Schoolhouse On Wheels Used By Al G. Barnes' Circus To Teach Its Sons and Daughters To Read

"The little red school house—on wheels."

That's where the children of Al G. Barnes big 4-ring circus, coming to Wichita Falls, Monday, Oct 18 are taught "readin', writin', an' 'rithmetic" the same as other youngsters.

The little sons and daughters of the big show receive all the care and schooling and the influences that mark the youngsters of the great "outside" and are as well bred. Their education is directed with painstaking care, while the health of the youngsters is carefully looked after by a school physician and trained nurse.

The "rolling school house" has an able principal and a strong faculty of experienced college graduates who provide the children with thorough courses in language, science, history, mathematics, and practical subjects.

When the circus returns to its winter quarters at Culver City, the children are transferred to a little "red school house" only it's painted green and white—on the big eighty acre park just outside of Los Angeles. Here the children of the staff are given splendid instruction by graduates of several famous educational institutions of France, England and America.

Singing, drawing, modern writing and physical training are stressed in all grades. Manual training, domestic science and commercial courses are provided for students of higher grade. These volunteer instructors are employes of the show, traveling with it, and so the school bell rings on the road.

You'll see how happy these youngsters are when the big show opens here with the sensational feature, "Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne," the gorgeous extravaganza that opens the big program. The cast includes a bevy of beautiful maidens, all former motion picture actresses and three tribes of Indians.

Then there is the great movie star of them all—Joe Martin, himself.

J. C. Hunt Urges That Farmers of Oklahoma And Texas Hold Cotton

J. C. Hunt, prominent Wichita Falls business man and a student of agricultural conditions of the southwest, is urging the farmers of Texas and Oklahoma to hold their cotton, believing this to be one means of procuring a better price for the staple. He points out that a bale may be held for six months at a cost of one cent per pound, which includes interest on a loan of $50, which may be procured providing the cotton is of good grade, with the warehouse receipt. He does not believe, however, that the situation will be clarified unless the cotton is held and unless at the same time the acreage another year is reduced. The price of cotton, he points out, controls in a certain measure the price of all other farm products. To illustrate, when the government forecast was made public Friday, showing an estimated output of 16,600,000 bales, cotton dropped for the time being 83 points. Before the close, however, the staple had gained back some of the loss. At the same time the price of wheat dropped three cents, corn two cents and oats one cent.

"One big problem with the farmers," Mr. Hunt says, "is how to hold the cotton." This problem is solved in this county. The cotton may be stored at a cost of one cent per pound and held for six months. The Northwestern Compress company is prepared to store the staple at a cost of one cent per day. The cost for six months on holding a bale of cotton would be as follows: Insurance 85 cents; handling charge 35 cents; storage charge, one cent per day after the first 15 days, which are free, $1.65 for the six months; interest on a $50 loan for six months, $1.50, or a total of $4.35 for the six months period. At the end of that time if cotton has advanced only one cent per pound the farmer has lost nothing.

afternoon and night, the proceeds going to the Parent-Teachers' associations of the Sam Houston, Alamo and Crockett schools.

Costumes that are exact copies of those worn in the days of Columbus are shown in the picture, and the actual history, dating back to 1485, is the basis for the story.

History classes of the various schools are planning to attend the production.

Musical organizations in the high school and Junior college are reported to be progressing rapidly, and regular practice periods have been arranged. Alva Willgus is director of the Boys' Glee club, and has charge of all assembly singing. Miss Adele Ray directs the Girls' Glee club and Mr. Riggs, who recently came from Fort Worth, is the director of the orchestra.

Scholastic Scoops

HONESTY AT SCHOOL

That the students of Junior high are honest has been proven, to the satisfaction of officials by the inauguration of the "Helpy Selfy" plan of selling school supplies to the students. So far, there has been as much money left on the table where the wares are sold as there should be. Pencils and paper are left in a conspicous place in the hall, and the pupils leave enough money to cover their purchases.

Pleasing reports are being received concerning the success of Wichita Falls students in other schools. Several local boys and girls in Texas University have been honored with high positions in the organizations of the school, and in the class activities. W. Lee Moore, a former student here, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Seniors for the coming year, and Gerald Coffey of this city is the president of the Beta Theta Pi chapter.

David Perkins, who studied in the Wichita Falls high school and Junior college, has been commended for his success as a student in West Point, and word has been received that he has qualified as expert in pistol firing.

One of the best known of the local high school graduates, Floyd Ard, who is continuing his studies in piano in Europe this year, is receiving much commendation from European teachers and, by his ability in playing, was granted the privilege of becoming the pupil of the great teacher, Emil Sauer head of the department of piano in the Vienna Conservatory of Music.

Thirty-eight pupils of the high school section of the Academy of Mary Immaculate joined the dramatic club organized there Wednesday afternoon, according to reports from officials. Miss Elsie Marie Cottara was elected president of the organization, with Miss Mary Delaney the vice-president, Miss Madeline Ground the secretary-treasurer, and Miss Maxine Duffy the reporter.

The members are divided into three sections, with the captains Misses Katherine Kennedy, Lucile Ryan, Mary O'Connell. A play of some kind will be presented each month, the three divisions working in rotation.

An educational film, "The Story of Columbus," will be shown at the junior college building Tuesday

But Boys Will Be Girls Sometimes Out At College

A variation from the usual program was enjoyed by members of the girls reserve of the Junior college and high school at their regular meeting Friday morning, when boys of the school, dressed to represent various prominent girls in the club, presented the program.

Ford Chauncey, as "Miss Jane Moore," president of the club, presided over the meeting, turning the program over to "Miss Edna Bobo," program chairman, played by Mack Walker. Both were dressed in feminine attire. "Miss Moore" wearing the girl reserve uniform and "Miss Bobo" wearing a sport suit.

The first number, "Just a Cottage Small" was sung by "Miss Frances Phillips" or James Williams, and accompanied by Lorene Tucker.

Aaron Kruger, as "Miss Dolores Peavy" gave a reading, "Since Katie and Me Ain't Engaged Any More."

"Miss Ina Myrl Robinson" or Edward Smith, delighted the audience with several piano solos, responding generously to the encores demanded by the listeners.

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of "Follow the Gleam" by the entire audience.

WICHITA FALLS ON THE AIR

Rabinowitz Plays Over WFAA Monday Night in State-Wide Radio Contest; His Rise in the Music World A Triumph of Persistence

Wichita Falls will be represented in the statewide radio contest Monday night at 7 o'clock at station WFAA, Dallas, when her youthful violin prodigy, Joseph Rabinowitz, will play in competition with representatives from twelve Texas cities in the Sears-Roebuck broadcasting contest. Wichitans are looking forward to the contest when this city will be given another opportunity of gaining statewide recognition through the boy violinist whose knowledge of music and the study of violin has been gained through a series of hardships and efforts that sound like fiction.

Joseph Rabinowitz won first place in a contest of musicians of this city held recently at the Olympic theater when, through a process of elimination he was awarded the privilege of playing in Dallas Monday night in the state wide contest. Cash prizes are awarded to the winners of the first three places, $250 for first; $150 for the second; and $100 for the third place.

In radio contests the winner of a prize is chosen through the number of telegrams, cards and letters received, and largely by the telegrams, it was said. Radio fans and friends of Joseph are invited to tune in and listen to the program and telegraph messages of encouragement to him at station WFAA Dallas, when he plays at 7 o'clock Monday evening.

A dreamer of dreams was the child, and he planned as a little boy to become a violinist. He had early difficulties, but the vision grew.

He had talent for music, and he began its study. Two and one-half years ago he began working with Ethel Allen Nelson, local violin instructor who made it possible for the boy to study with him.

"In this two and one-half years Joe has done wonders," Mr. Nelson said in speaking of the boy. "He will make a mark for himself if he continues his studies. He is a hard worker and practices in all the time allotted him from his work."

Joseph, who is now 16, goes to a business college preparatory to fitting himself for a business career. In his spare time he sells pop and does odd jobs to make funds for his musical education, and practices in the time he has left. There are some days when he studies his music for eight hours, arising at 6 o'clock and beginning his practices early before regular work hours.

He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. A. Rabinowitz.

Joseph left Saturday night for Dallas to make a final arrangements for his part in the program in which he will play, "Nocturne in E Flat," by Chopin. Mrs. E. J. DeMontel, accompanist, will leave Sunday for Dallas, to play for Joseph in the contest.

TEXAS LABOR CHEERS

Court's Invalidation of Open Port Law Praised.

DETROIT, Mich. Oct. 9. (AP) Texas delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention lauded the decision of the court of criminal appeals of their state declaring unconstitutional the Texas "open port" bill which long had been a storm center of labor opposition.

William J. Moran, editor of the El Paso Labor Advocate and delegate from the Texas Federation of Labor, described the opinion of fellow delegates as one of far reaching significance to the labor movement throughout the country.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 9. (AP)—Word was received here today of the lynching of Herb Bell, negro, by a mob which took him from the Dover, Tenn., jail. Bell was hanged to the limb of a tree and then shot full of holes.

Bell was on trial for slaying Rufus Joyner, 35 years old, at Parkertown, Tenn., last Sunday night.

NABOURS TO RESIGN

Man Who Forced Out C. I. A. President Will Retire.

DENTON, Texas, Oct. 9. (AP) W. R. Nabours, business manager of the College of Industrial Arts and a storm center in the Blayney-faculty board of regents row which shook the institution for nearly a year, announced Friday that he plans to resign his position to enter business. He said he had notified President Hubbard that his resignation would be filed about November 1.

Makes Hair Behave But Doesn't SHOW!

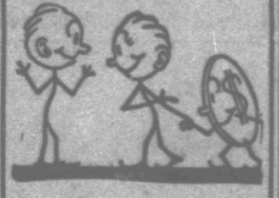

There's a way to keep your hair just-so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine-dampened towel—you'll be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful lustre!

Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff! Dissolves every bit of it. Fills scalp in the pink of condition. Invigorates hair and hair-roots. Why use anything else?

Social Circles Pass Busy Week In Wichita Falls

—The Little Theatre
—The Coming Plays
—Cotton Palace News
—Like Necklaces?
—Five Figure Offers
—Another Story

KITTY MY DEAR, we have just passed through the busiest week of our existence. With every Woman's club in Wichita Falls beginning fall work, the Texas-Oklahoma fair, special programs and attractive visitors, not to mention a wedding or so, I had begun to think that my epistle to you would surely come up lacking. However, my piece de resistance this morning is a more interesting bit of news.

It came via announcement, at a Woman's Forum meeting. Guess what? News that the splendid one-act plays are to be revived this fall and winter in the drama department of the Forum under the chairmanship of our very able Mrs. J. T. Harrell. This feature of culture has been missed now for a whole season or since the Little Theatre concluded activities and those interested in the art are delighted that at last it is to be revived.

BEGINNING with October 19 two one-act plays, "The Very Naked Boy," by Stuart Walker and "Ashes of Roses" will be presented in the afternoon at the Wichita club. Both productions are highly recommended and the first one, "The Very Naked Boy," is said to be an unusually clever comedy while "Ashes of Roses," is described as an especially beautiful drama written in verse. Mrs. J. S. Pitman is directing the drama. Rehearsals are now in progress and much work is being done on both plays which are now in progress the very best ever produced here. Tuesday of this week, the civics department Mrs. C. C. Randle, chairman, will give its first program of the fall at the Y. W. C. A., and on Thursday, the literary department, Mrs. J. C. Berney, chairman, will hold a meeting.

With the addition of the drama and writers department this fall of the Forum which has only been organized a year, and the building of a handsome club house in sight, it may truly be said that club women in Wichita Falls are living up to the motto:

"Slumber not in the tents of your fathers:

"The world is advancing; advance with it."

We are always glad to learn that the girls have not been forgotten in the planning of big state pageants. Next month Gladys Dancer will represent Oklahoma university as duchess from this school at the Cotton Palace, when Helen Snider will be her maid of honor. Gladys is a pledge of the Delta Gamma sorority, while Helen is a Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Another local girl receiving attention at school is Lillian Randle, who last week received the distinction of being named one of the eight campus beauties at the state university. A picture of Lillian appeared in the Campus News of the American-Statesman of last Sunday together with the other chosen ones. Lillian is a pledge of the Chi Omega sorority.

DO YOU love necklaces, Kitty? I am sure you do, being a woman. I think that Eve must have strung together the emerald green figs of the garden for the adornment of her fair throat, and that the earliest goldsmith's first piece of work was a necklace of a string of beads. Since those faroff times, kings have found no more splendid gifts for their queens than jeweled necklaces, and there is no eminine savage so benighted that she does not glory in a strand of bright shells or a wreath of blossoms to hang about her throat. Necklaces have more personality than any other form of jewelry—they seem to give dignity or add a touch of coquetry, or enhance beauty or express sentiment, as the case may demand.

Just now, I have heard that an Italian baroness is brinsting suit against a famous Paris hotel for the loss of a pearl necklace while she was a guest there. This necklace, 130 years old, was the gift of Napoleon Bonaparte to his bride Josephine Beauharnais. The new empress prized the piece of jewelry above all her other treasures; she kept it when divorced from the giver and when she died at Malmaison she was still wearing the love token of the man who had sacrificed her to his ambition. The beloved bauble passed to her daughter, Queen Hortense, and was eventually sold after many years to the Italian lady who lost it in the Paris hotel.

With my very own ears, just a short while ago, I heard a most interesting story of an amber necklace from a lady who had been a teacher in China and was home on a vacation. A friend of hers while visiting in China saw a beautiful string of amber beads in a little shop.

After arguing with the almond-eyed salesman for some time, in approved Oriental style, she purchased the beads for a moderate price. When she turned to America their loveliness had so grown on her that she decided to ask a jeweler about their worth. When he offered her a sum in four figures she was amazed. She took them to another appraiser, who set their value still higher—in five figures. Such a fortune for amber beads! To a third jeweler she carried them and watched him examine each bead under a microscope. When he made a perfectly astounding offer for them she could control her excitement and curiosity no longer, and asked him why they were so valuable.

"DON'T you know?" he asked in surprise, and then he told her that the exquisite necklace had been a present from Napoleon to Josephine and that it had been lost to sight so long that it had come to be regarded as almost a myth. He invited her to look through the microscope, and there, carved on each bead, were the minute initials of the unhappy emperor and his empress.

You say this sounds like fiction, but what incident of history is more like a romantic invention than the story of Marie Antoinette's diamond necklace? I will not retell it here for perhaps no ornament has had more attention from those who delight in true tales, and I remember how, as girls, you and I shuddered and wept and thrilled over Carlyle's vivid account of this sparkling bit of tragedy. Some day, Kitty, let's make a collection of the stories about famous necklaces. I think it would be worlds of fun, and would be interesting to all the lineal descendents of Eve!

Are you thinking this letter is to be an endless chain of words? It isn't, for here's the last link from—

Training Course For Camp Fire Girls Is Planned

Announcement is made by Miss Mary McIlheran, executive of Camp Fire Girls, that a training course has been planned primarily for those who are interested in taking up leadership in the Camp Fire Girls program. Classes will begin October 18, and will be held each Monday and Thursday evenings until November 21, when the closing feature will be the fall council fire.

Courses to be covered are: Girl psychology, purposes and ideals of Camp Fire, symbolism, decoration of gowns, honor system, ranks, etc., fire making, poncho rolling, program planning, first aid, et.

Certificates will be awarded as follows:

Guardian certificate for all who complete the course, 18 years of age or over.

Assistant guardian certificate for all who complete course who are under 18 years of age.

Interested members certificate for all who wish to attend classes for what they can get out of them, without taking any tests.

Registration fee of 50c will be charged to help defray small expense attached to giving the course.

Specialists in Wichita Falls will assist in giving training in first aid, psychology, camp craft, songs, etc.

Extra classes in basketry, stenciling, tied dyeing or other phases of the work can be arranged for afternoons if there are enough interested to make it worth while.

Professor R. O. Jonas of Junior college will speak Monday night, October 18, on "Psychology of the Adolescent Girl," and talks will be made also on history, purpose and ideals of Camp Fire, it was said.

MRS. R. B. GRIGSBY

MISS ORA WATKIN ARNOLD

In The Pictures

Mrs. R. B. Grigsby before her marriage the past week, was Miss Lois Fitzgerald. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fitzgerald and popular in literary and social circles. Mr. and Mrs. Grigsby are taking a wedding trip to New Orleans and other Louisiana points after which they will be at home in this city.

Miss Winnie Mae Giddings was maid of honor to Mrs. Grigsby in the pretty home wedding and is one of Wichita Falls' most attractive business girls. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Giddings on Avenue J.

Miss Ora Watkin Arnold is an accomplished dancer who has recently come here from Houston and is associated with the Knickerbocker studio. Miss Watkins made her initial bow to a large audience in a lovely solo dance at the T-O fair when she appeared in the coronation ceremonies as one of the court entertainers. She is a pupil of Ruth St. Denis, Constance Kobleff, New Wayburn, Jack Blue and Madam Lubovska.

Demonstration Piano Progressive Series

Parents and friends of the students were delightfully entertained at the studio of the instructor, Mrs. E. E. Fisher, 1008 Van Buren, Tuesday evening when an interesting demonstration of the progressive series of piano lessons was given.

Fifteen students, including both boys and girls took part, and Miss Winifred Alvis, representative of the Art Publication society of St. Louis gave the class a demonstration.

A typical class lesson was presented and Joe Witherspoon, Jr., and Mattie Lou Sorrells were awarded prizes for making the highest grades on the lesson.

In a brief talk, Miss Alvis told of the origin, growth and requirements necessary to conduct a class in the Progressive series.

The pupils gave two numbers, "Spanish Dance' 'and "Triumphal March," with rhythm orchestra, and at the conclusion of the program, the hostess served punch and an enjoyable hour was spent.

Texas Woman Who Gets Her Mail At Austin But Whose Real Home is U. S. A. Leads Great Campaign

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker's Neighbors Live in Los Angeles, New York, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Geneva And Points East; She Rapidly Forges to Fore

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker receives her mail in Austin, Texas, but her real home is America at large. Her neighbors live in Los Angeles, Boston, Minneapolis and New Orleans, and in all the towns and cities between. During the sessions of the league of nations her address, as like as not, is Geneva, Switzerland; for Mrs. Pennybacker is a sincere student of the league's work.

Probably the most international-minded woman in America, Mrs. Pennybacker has a wide following, gained through her leadership a few years ago as president of the General Federation of Women's clubs. In this capacity she traveled to all sections of the country to deliver addresses, and since that time she has continued her lectures, centering more and more upon the subjects of international relations. She is now the chairman of the National Woman's Committee of the Near East Relief.

Mrs. P.V. Pennybacker

In discussing her views on America's part in international affairs, Mrs. Pennybacker outlines "three concrete tasks," that confront the women of today!

First, every woman should convince herself that war is not necessary. It is distressing to realize how many people still feel that since war always has been, war always must be.

"Second, we must come to the full realization that our international affairs should be entirely above partisan lines. The bringing of a thorough international understanding, which is only another way of saying the bringing of peace, is of more importance than the republican and democratic parties rolled into one.

"Third, we need also a profound comprehension of the fact that misunderstanding is founded on lack of information. When two people know each other thoroughly, the chances are all in favor of sympathetic understanding. Therefore it is our duty to study other nations in order to realize fully that while we have much to give to them, yet other nations have also traits and achievements which we may well imitate."

Defends the League.

That every woman who can possibly arrange it should attend at least one session of the league is a statement often reiterated by Mrs. Pennybacker, who declares that the harmony in which the various national delegates work is a revelation. When a greater number of Americans understand the workings of the league, she believes it will be enevitable that the nation will become a member.

"From a selfish viewpoint it is the only thing to do," she said on returning from her last visit to Geneva, "because should another war come the United States will be drawn into it just as she was into the last one. It is no longer possible to believe that the United States can be isolated. What affects other nations also affects us.

"But aside fro mthe selfish viewpoint, it is the right and noble thing to do, and I am sure that we will do it in the end."

Mrs. Pennybacker has given much of her life to work among the women of America, as a lecturer and as an official in various organizations. Born in Virginia, she has lived in North Carolina, Mississippi and Kansas and settled finally and she says definitely in Texas. Every year she covers a wide territory in her lecture tours, for which she acts as her own manager.

Nor does her internationalism end with talk. It extends into other lines of activity than support of the league of nations. The refugee problem in Greece and other near eastern countries has for several years commanded her attention. As chairman of the National Woman's committee of the near east relief, she visits Greece and neighboring countries almost annually, and invariably she has a very interesting word to say about the numerous orphanages on her return.

Supports Golden Rule.

Actively supporting the Golden Rule movement, she recently issued an appeal to the women of America urging the widest possible observance of Golden Rule Sunday on December 5. The refugees who were saved by America's generosity, she said, are still in need of help.

"Four years more and the work will be done," she explained. "After that we will not need to ask for more money. But the children in those orphan homes cannot be turned out now. They must be placed in homes or stay in orphanages until they are capable of supporting themselves.

"The refugee problem is not solved yet by any means, but we do want to tell the American people that if they continue their aid for four years more, these ophans will then be able to help themselves."

Mrs. Schaefer Elected President of Class

Mrs. Jerry Schaefer will head the Bethany Sunday school class of the First Baptist church following an election of officers held at the home of Mrs. J. T. Gant on Eleventh street Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. F. Albritton was elected first vice president; Mrs. J. T. Gant, second vice president; Mrs. E. P. Cook, third vice president; Mrs. G. P. Raborn, secretary; Mrs. John Mansker, assistant and corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lester Miller, treasurer, and Mrs. W. W. McCarty, reporter.

Group leaders elected were Mrs. Charles Parker, leader of group number one; Mrs. Claude Young, leader of group two; Mrs. M. E. Wright, leader of group three, and Mrs. Newsome, leader of group four.

Mrs. J. C. Walker, retiring president of the class, made an interesting talk expressing her appreciation of the co-operation of the class during her term of office, and the response was given by Mrs. Jerry Schaefer.

During the social hour refreshments were served to Mesdames J. P. Tarry, J. C. Walker, M. L. Lankford, R. C. Spangle, E. T. Cook, G. P. Raborn, Lester Miller, E. F. Albritton, C. W. Rountree, E. W. Napier, Ben C. Ackerford, E. W. Napier, Ben C. Ackerman, J. F. Detlefs, Julian Bobo, A. W. Wyatt, Jerry Schaefer, Frank Hoover, A. G. Holmes, E. B. Clifford, J. W. Hunt, M. B. Wright, J. F. Moore, E. L. Smith, W. W. McCarty and McAbee.

Mrs. W. C. Witcher has returned from Boston where she accompanied her niece, Miss Francis Ann Saunders who enrolled at Wellesley college.

Wesley Girls of Floral Heights M. E. Church In Opening Party of Fall

In The Glow —Of— The Camp Fire

Members of the Austin school group of Camp Fire girls met at the school Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, when after learning "Wohelo for Aye" and repeating seven laws a report on the earning of dues was given to the effect that almost all of the girls have earned their dollar and will bring it to the next meeting, tell how she earned it, sign the charter and pass the requirements for membership in the Camp Fire girls organization.

The choosing of Camp Fire names was explained and each girl is to decide what she wants her name to mean, and to work it out at the next meeting, or the following one. A name for the group will also be worked out.

Misses Lois Brackett and Hellen Vogel, of the Pokkam group extended an invitation to the Austin school girls to attend a joint hike with the Pokkam group Saturday morning. The girls accepted joyously and unanimously.

Groups Visit Mill

Members of the Temskatawa, Cantawayua and Cantipi Camp Fire groups enjoyed a visit through the Wichita Mill and Elevator company Friday afternoon. Members of the Temskatawa and Canta-Wayua groups met at headquarters from where they were taken in cars, furnished by Messrs. L. L. Boardman, James L. Duffy, and J. R. Hyatt to the mill. The Cantipi girls hiked over to the mill. Mr. Beavers conducted the visitors through the mill, explaining the machinery and processes used for the entire milling of grain from the washing to sacking ready for shipment. The girls showed a keen interest and felt they had had a real treat. It was an impressive sight to see some 35 girls filing through the great rooms machinery, listening and learning about the manufacture of flour. Before leaving the girls sang "Sing a Ling" to Mr. Weaver in appreciation of his interest and courtesy to them.

Alahi Group

The Alahi Camp Fire group met at their church hall on Ninth street Friday afternoon, when after the business session plans were discussed for a Hallowe'en party to be given October 29.

The group also decided to give the group of Blue Birds a Hallowe'en party on the afternoon of October 30, with final plans to be announced later.

After the busines session, some of the girls worked on wood blocks and other work toward ranks. Those attending were: Frances Hyland, Dora J. Nix, Augenia Edgar, Edna Mae Stegall, Millie and Mary Pastusek, Laura Lynn Hathaway, Vera Shelton, Blanche Rouche, Louise van Emden, Mrs. A. W. Ayres, guardian and Mrs. J. F. Hyland, assistant.

Guardians Meeting

The Camp Fire Guardians meeting will be held Tuesday evening at Headquarters at 7:30. Every leader is urged to attend as this will be the last meeting before the opening of the training course which begins October 18, and closes with the fall grand council fire, November 21. Plans for the banquet for all Camp Fire girls November 19, will be made.

The Imaluta Camp Fire Girls met at the Barwise school and the choosing of Camp Fire names was explained, and each girl is to create her own name to represent some ideal or ambition in her own life. Next week each girl will come with her idea to be worked out in Camp Fire symbolism.

Each girl is earning her own money to pay her dues.

A candy sale for Saturday was decided on to earn money for group treasury. Some of the girls are earning honor beads and all are anxious to get started earning ranks. Miss Edith Crump led a sing-song teaching the girls the "Camp Fire Blessing" and "C-a-m-p F-i-r-e."

Those attending were: Marietta and Mildren James, Marie and Audie Mae McWhorter, Jeraldine Strouble, Marie Brackett, Myrtle Roberts, Lillie Nichols, Miss Crump and the guardian, Mrs. W. Roberts.

Sam Houston Group.

The Camp Fire group in process of organization at Sam Houston school met Thursday afternoon with their guardian, Miss Denton. After singing of Camp Fire songs, a discussion of how girls are earning dues was held, and most of the girls report they will have their dues ready by the next meeting. Each girl decided what she wanted her Camp Fire name to mean, and worked it out with the assistance of their guardian and Miss Mary McIlheran, local executive. Next week the girls will turn in dues, sign application for charter, and elect officers for the group.

KIWANIS TO MEET

A regular meeting of the Wichita Falls Kiwanis club is announced for Monday at 12:15 at the Kemp when suggestions for paying off the remaining part of the debt on the Day Nursery will be heard.

Plans for another Ladies' Night affair will be mentioned by the house and program committee, the "We Build" stated.

Mrs. Roy Wilson, who recently underwent a serious operation at the Clinic hospital, is reported resting nicely.

Opening the fall social activities of the class, the Floral Heights Wesley Girls were entertained at a delightful "here and there" party at the home of Mrs. R. J. Claypool Friday afternoon, when Mesdames C. L. Baum, W. P. Ferguson, O. W. Harvey, Craig Gardner, Ross Corlett and W. M. Ford, were joint hostesses.

Lovely floral decorations consisting of roses, lilies and greenery added to the attractiveness of the setting, and the program included a talk by Mrs. S. L. McDowell on "A Friendly Class" and an original paper by Mrs. W. A. McGee on "Timeliness in Entertaining."

Several geographical contests proved interesting as well as instructive, and Mesdames Ferguson, A. L. Lane, Jr., Baum, Nannie Roberts and Claypool gave descriptions of some places of interest they visited this summer.

The members were then asked to tell the name of their native state, with the result that Texas proved the birthplace of the largest number present. Each guest woce her name and native state on white cardboard.

At the close of the afternoon, dainty refreshments were served to Mesdames E. E. Wade, John James, Ross O. White, A. L. Lane, Jr., W. H. Gaskin, John Alexander, H. McMillan, T. P. Adams, Mack Taylor, J. B. Andrews, G. R. Schulz, Fred Elkins, Earl Ruffner, W. S. Curlee, C. G. Crump, B. B. Minter, Clyde Tittle, C. H. Bingham, Charles Crowell, Fred Sherman, J. Brown Hopkins, W. D. Rowland, Nannie Roberts, S. A. Barnes, S. L. McDowell, Rhea Howard, W. A. McGee and Miss Marie Rowland.

Large Number Attend Grace Methodist Party

More than 150 members and friends of the Grace Methodist church enjoyed a party in the gymnasium of the church Thursday evening, when after a number of games, an interesting program was presented.

Little Miss Maxine Crowson and Miss Florine Crowson gave two song sketches; Miss Elizabeth Cole two piano numbers; Miss Vivian Bailey, a violin number and Miss Doris Smith, two vocal selections.

H. L. Hunter, J. F. Friberg and Dr. W. W. Swarts each made brief talks concerning the budget for the coming year, and pledge cards were distributed among the members present.

The class room was decorated by the Loyal Women's class who also served refreshments.

Mrs. Harvey Hostess At Pretty Luncheon

Mrs. Joe G. Harvey was hostess at luncheon Friday at the Wichita club when the table was attractively decorated for the occasion in huge plume chrysanthemums.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Jeff Waggoner, Lester Jones, P. S. Richardson, Merle Waggoner, A. F. Leach, B. W. Carpenter, S. M. Gose, O. D. McCoy, H. W. Barton, Leo Sellars, Ralph Pond, Guy O'Pool, S. M. Gose, Sr., and Paul Harding.

"I AND GEORGE"—By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

America's Only Woman Humorist

As Bertha, the sewing machine girl, once said, "A stitch in time saves nine, especially when it comes to having your face lifted."

And not so long ago the truth of that remark come over me when looking into the mirror one a. m. when the light was nothing if not truthful. Every lady over sixteen, even though married, will have spells of doing this, to sort of check up on herself. It is a mighty painful operation at best, in fact, I can't think of but one thing that is as bad, and as hard to bring herself to do, and that is to add up the stubs in the old checkbook and face the balance, if any. At the first a lady looks to see are there any lines on her map, and a little later she looks to see how many detours and side lines there are besides the main highways. And when she has done this, the conventional thing is to give a sigh and mutter to herself, well, I simply must do something about it!

Of course she don't generally take much action except maybe where a little cold cream is concerned. She keeps putting it off as long as she can, while saying to herself, now if only I had the money and the time I could look young, but, my dear, it takes money, and no wonder them actresses look so good, they don't have another thing to do except take care of theirselfs! And then, having said this formula, she will be back at the mirror next morning moaning at herself, but doing nothing about it.

Geo. Always Weakens.

Well anyways, this one a. m. when I was looking in the glass and despair, who would call from downstairs only Geo., that's my husband, and he was yelling at me in a whisper. Hey Jennie, he says, look out the window, here comes that pest of a book-agent with the Strong Shelf of the world's heaviest literature. You know, he says, the one I was foolish enough to say I was interested to, and now he won't let me be; this is six times he's been here in a week, and I don't wanner see him, I can't get rid of him. And I says well I ain't dressed, go tell him yourself that you don't want them books.

So, Geo. went to the door, but all he done was let the pest in. Geo. is one of them weak characters that can't shut up a canvasser, and he has just barely strength enough to hold onto his money when they start their high-pressure vacuum talk. He don't even know enough not to expose himself to them, the same as I do. So by the time I had fixed my face as good as I could with tools I had and come on down, why Geo. was politely saying good bye to the pest, see, and telling him how glad he was the feller called, and to come again some other time!

Whew! says Geo. when the door was finally shut. For the luvva tripe, he says, I'd give a lot to be rid of that brute, he don't seem to have a sensitive spot on him.

Contributions To The Cause.

I says maybe he's ticklish, try him under the arm, dear! And Geo. says aw, shut up! that boob makes me sore. And I says well, dear, I am glad he didn't get your money, on account I need some of it my own personal self. And Geo. says what for? And I says George Jules, do I have to explain every nickel I ask for? I should think you would volunteer a little loose change onct in a while.

Well, Geo. didn't have anything to say to that, on account I keep the tone I said it in for special occasions, I don't wear it thin with common use. So he forked over twenty simoleons, and beat it for the train before I could ask was that all he had. And the very minute he was gone I set down in the parlour and commenced figuring out would the money buy what I wanted.

To do this I hadder gather together pretty near all the magazines in the house, on account the resolution which was working all this time in my mind was to the effect that I was through looking at my face and thinking that I ought to do something about it—I was gonner actually do it, and there was plenty of dope in the advertising pages of The Woman's Home Hollerer, the Motion Picture Squark, and etc. about how to do so for one dollar and up.

On The Trail of Beauty.

I knew enough about the high class, or even low class beauty parlours to realize that twenty dollars wouldn't make over my face any to speak of. Of course the Beauty Parlour dept. at the Emporium has bargains onct in a while, such as cut-rate bobbing, marked down facials, and pre-inventory shampoos. But they never have more then one at a time, and to get any results, why a person has to keep them treatments up. So I hadder think of a more economical way, and the magazines showed me how.

To commence with, there was Gootey's Freckle Remover. All you done was paint the spots between the freckles the same colour as the freckles and presto, the freckles disappeared! This was only fifty cents or your money back, if you had the strength to ask for it, if the treatment was a flop. The next on my list was a eyelash-grower. The piece about it in Collard Weakly was real interesting.

"Why not wink effectively?"

"What so enticing as a youthful wink from eyes fringed with lashes like sweeping ostrich plumes? Ladies, our magic eye-lash fertilizer will give you lashes in a week that you can braid. Also good for corns, housemaid's knee, vegetable garden and the pip. Send only 25c for a sample copy in plainly sealed envelope. All inquiries strictly confidential."

More Local Improvement.

Also I had noted a neat little device for altering the shape of the nose. All my life I had hated the kind of nose I got, it has been a long time since pug-dogs or pug-noses either, was the style! And this little nose-harness ad was real convincing.

"Graceful Noses!

"Wear our dainty nose-guard to work or play! Invaluable in the subway during rush-hours. Light, foolish, easily gotten rid of. No metal connected with it, except the currency you send us. Write today for free booklet. Price 25c. Nosey's Nose Adjuster, $10.00 1-2 cash, bal. in 1, 2, 3 yrs."

Naturally I decided to send for one of them, and to try it out in connection with the most important of all, a beauty mask. This was a affair to put on while resting and it covered the entire face. And the ad read to this effect.

"Once you wear our Piffle Mask, not even your best friends will know you. Impossible to imagine the change it will make in your appearance! Packed in three ways. For overnight, for a week end, for a month. Extension course on request. Why have your face lifted when we lift your loose change at half the cost? No dieting. No drugs. No exercise.. Sign the attached coupon today, and send it without any obligation on your part or ours either. And then try and lose us! Price $5. F. O. B. Detroit, Canada. Texas and the Himalayas, 5c extra."

The Campaign Begins.

This was to be my biggest bet, and of course I ordered one. But when starting to be beautiful I didn't stop at my face. I seen a ad where it says reduce any part of your body with rubber garments. Being quite thin there was only one part that needed reducing, which was my hands. They was a little larger then I really cared for, and so I decided I would get a pair of rubber gloves.

Well, in about one week I had all of this stuff assembled, see, and when it come I could hardly wait to try it out. So that very same night when going to bed I put on the freckle remover, nose-mould, beauty mask and eyelash-grower and rubber gloves. And when Geo. seen the result he let out one howl.

For the luvva tripe, what do you call that? he wanted to know. It's my beauty outfit, I explained, it's every bit of it guaranteed to make me over into a beautiful young girl for only nineteen dollars and sixty-five cents—it's a bargain and no mistake. Say! says Geo., it would be cheap at a quarter the price, in fact, it would be cheap if it was to be given away, say! he says, you don't seriously think them things are any good, do you, huh? Why you're crazy.

The Treatment Is Effective.

At that I says well, if you don't think they are good, you're crazy! And he says ha! ha! Why they are no good in the world, I haven't the least bit of use for them, they are not worth a darn for anything!

And after he had said this in different ways about nine hundred times, why he went to sleep and left me do the same.

Wel, anyways, bright and early the next morning Geo. got up and hardly had he done so then he looked out of the window and who would be coming up the path so early only that book-agent pest. For the luvva tripe! says George, here he is again, what on earth'll I do? And at that I sprung out of bed and threw on a wrapper. You just let me speak to him, George Jules, I says, I'll fix him! And without waiting to take off my beauty outfit, I flew downstairs and opened the door.

But I didn't need to speak to the young man at all. He give one look at my appearance, let out a fearful shriek, and run away down the path, his hair standing on end, and he ain't never been back since. And it was a good thing in more ways then one, for as I come back upstairs Geo. let out a roar.

You win, he says. I guess that outfit is pretty good after all!

And then Grandma Danced

"WE were quite alarmed about mother. She wouldn't eat, was terribly constipated, bilious, and seemed to be fading fast. We thought it due entirely to her 86 years of age. But a neighbor brought over a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and it was really remarkable how she picked right up, and now she can even dance around with her grandchildren. Now we are never without Syrup Pepsin in the house." (Name and address furnished upon request.)

Regulates Bowels of Old Folks

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so palatable, sets so well in the stomach, works so easily, so gently, so kindly with old folks as to accomplish its purpose without gripe, pain or other distress. For biliousness, sour stomach, coated tongue, constipation, and the lassitude, whether of children, parents or those in the evening of life, Syrup Pepsin is recommended everywhere. It is sold by all druggists.

For a free trial bottle send name and address to Pepsin Syrup Company, Monticello, Illinois.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him through medical college. He began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pennsylvania.

He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N. Y. where he launched his favorite remedies, and in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold in the United States. If your druggist does not sell the Golden Medical Discovery, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial package of the tablets by sending 50c. to the Dr. Pierce Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Pease River Bridge Is In Use Again

QUANAH, Oct. 9—Clear weather ing over on the Pease river bridge between this city and Crowell, and though some damage was done by knocks from floating timbers in the recent high water marks the bridge is not in bad shape, is the opinion expressed by Frank A. Austin of Dallas who has been here this week looking over the situation.

The Red river bridge between Quanah and El Dorado, Okla., will have to be repaired before traffic can be resumed and it is expected a week will be necessary to put it in shape again.

DEFICIT OF $20,000 IN LAST SALZBURG FESTIVAL

SALZBURG, Austria, Oct. 9. (AP)—A deficit of $20,000 for this year's festival was announced by the Salzburg Festival committee.

Unforseen expenses entailed in the postponed completion of the festival hall whereby it became necessary to hold many rehearsals in other localities, was among the reasons given. The attendances at concerts also failed to come up to the mark. "Entfuehrung," on the other hand, brought full houses.

Quanah Gins Get Heavier Cotton

UANAH, Oct. 9.—Clear weather is bringing more cotton to the local gins. On Thursday night the Quanah gin reported 78 bales ginned this season; Lone Star (Lewis gin) 92 bales; Hughes and Sanders, 293 round bales and 22 square bales; Co-operative gin, 423 bales.

Before the rainy weather began, the Co-operative gin at Lamare reported ginning 143 bales.

PARIS PORTERS ROB TOURISTS

Excessive Charges Made For Carrying Baggage Of Foreigners

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—One hundred francs for carrying two suit cases from the custom shed at Cherbourg to the tender, a trip of less than a hundred yards, is charged by porters. The imposition has caused the foreign steamship companies to take drastic steps against it. The Union of Baggage Porters appear to have singled out Americans for their holdup tactics. In some instances passengers, especially unescorted women have been literally robbed.

One American woman recently embarking on one of the ships flying the American flag gave the porter 40 francs. He demanded that she open her bag and produce more money. Terrorized the woman unclasped her hand bag and shoved the porter one 20-franc note, all the French money she had left. "This will have to do," said the holdup man, snapping the bill away. The woman shrieked and one of the officials came along and made the porter disgorge but not without a short, spirited fight.

These instances which had multiplied by hundreds recently caused the skipper of an American ship to send for the walking delegate of the porters union and warn him that if such sharp practice did not cease he would call upon his crew to handle the baggage and give them instructions to give a forced bath to any porter interferring.

'They never come back, these people," said the walking boss, "I don't see why we shouldn't get all we can out of them."

ELECTRA LIONS FETE.

Enjoyable Meeting Held With Unusual Entertainment.

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 9.—One of the most enjoyable meetings of the year was enjoyed Thursday at the Electra Lions club. Two excellent musical numbers, club singing and a warm debate made the luncheon one of huge entertainment with B. C. Davis and E. E. Rogers participating in the debate.

Tom Crowder, local representative of the Humble Oil and Refining company, gave two excellent piano and song numbers. Miss Edith Wood entertained the Lions with two exceptionally good popular numbers on the piano.

William Calvert of the Lions club park committee outlined plans for the maintenance of the club. President F. M. Baker instructed the committee to investigate the matter and report back at the next meeting.

Ben Meyer gave a report on "The Big Brother Movement." Arrangements are being made to send the Lions Cow Pasture Jazz band to Wichita Falls upon an invitation received to take part on the program of ladies night in Wichita Falls.

CORN FIELD ATHLETES PREPARE FOR TOURNEY

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 9.(AP) "Athletes of the corn fields" as they have been termed, are limbering up throughout the midwest for the annual contest that is to decide the corn picking championship.

Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and probably Indiana will rave representatives in this year's meet, which is to be held in Nebraska some time in November. County contests in each state determine entrants for the final competition.

Elmer Williams of Stark county, Illinois, last year won the championship. The 35-year-old husker, using an old-fashioned peg, turned in a net score of 35.8 bushels for one hour and 20 minutes competition. That is picking nubbins at the rate of 26.8 bushels an hour or 214.4 bushels in an eight-hour day.

NEW PROJECTOR MAKES FLICKERLESS PICTURES

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—Flickerless screen projection is an established fact at the Capitol theatre.

The Mechau projectors are responsible. Other projection machines are of the intermittent type of movement. They have a revolving shutter, which means that the screen is illuminated actually only one half of the time. The Mechau projector is shutterless. There is no flickering of light because the screen is constantly illuminated. In addition to giving more brilliance to the screen, it produces an almost stereoscopic effect in the picture.

Of further significance to the spectator is the removal of the complaint of sitting too close to the screen. With the elimination of the flickering the picture can be observed at close range without experiencing any discomfort to the eyes.

VOCAL CHORDS REMOVED

Operation Performed To Save Clarendon Man's Life

CLARENDON, Oct. 9.—Friends of J. B. McClelland, a pioneer in the real estate and cattle business of the Panhandle, are gratified to know that he has practically recovered from his recent illness that necessitated an operation on his throat. A cancerous condition was found which called for the taking out of his vocal chords. He and Mrs. McClelland returned from New York this week with his physical condition much improved.

CENTER FOR GOSSIP

Gossip is to have a recognized center in London. The New theatre is being transformed into and amusement center similar to the Potiniere in Paris. Both the stage and auditorium are being altered to make the place more intimate and the management announces that the entertainment will be altered each week so as to include the gossip of London, England, and the whole world, in fact.

CURIOUS WEDDINGS

A curious weddinng custom is observed in the industrial city of Goerlitz, about midway between Berlin and Breslau. On the day before the wedding ceremony the bride and groom walk to the cemetery and visit the graves of all departed relatives. The visit is regarded as an invitation to the deceased to be present in spirit at the wedding. It is considered that unless departed relatives are so invited, the marriage will be unhappy.

Parts of the Norte railway near Madrid, Spain, are to be electrified.

Girl With Ph. D. Deserts Book To Become Actress

German Maid Sets Record At University, Then Enters Filmdom

BERLIN, Oct. 9. (AP)—From doctor of philosophy with her major thesis the history of art, to a movie star is the career of Annelise Ullhorn, of Wiesbaden. Her screen name is Christa Tordy.

Christa's cousin, Mady Christians, is a popular film actress. Christa acted as Mady's secretary while she was a student at Berlin university. Christa after leaving Berlin university attended Breslau university, where she passed her doctor's degree three months ago at the age of 22. When she returned to Berlin Christa, through the efforts of Mady, was starred in "His Big Case," a detective story the film of which we released in connection with the international police exposition now going on in Berlin. Christa's father is a wealthy manufacturer of chemicals. Her late uncle, Rudolf Christians, was one of the leading actors in former Emperor William's court theatre.

The German people are working today as never before. Approximately 2,000,000 more persons are earning their living than before the war notwithstanding the fact that 1,600,000 unemployed are supported by doles, and despite the tremendous reduction in the standing army.

Where 50 per cent of the entire population was employed in gainful pursuit in 1913, government reports show more than 72 percent so employed today. Yet the per capita income is only $300 a year. The great middle class whose income from investments enabled it to live comfortable without working before the war, was virtually wiped out by the inflation of the mark. Daughters and sons of army officers, owners of landed estates and others who thought it beneath their dignity to work, have now been forced to help support their families. But even now there are 647 men for every new job open to men and 424 women for every job in which women are wanted.

When Shakespeare put the words "A cup of sack" in the mouth of Falstaff in "Henry Four" he said something from which, according to a recent revelation, Germans derived their name for champagne.

Ludwig Devrient, noted German Shakespearean actor, it has been disclosed, originated the term back in 1810. Devrient dropped in on Lutter and Wegner's famous wine cellar in Berlin with his author friend E. T. A. Hoffman. Using the original English for the words he so often spoke from the stage in German, Devrient ordered a "cup of sack." The waiter misunderstood the English and brought champagne. Since then "sack" which Germans acquiring a knowledge of English would pronounce "Seckt" has designed champagne.

THIS WEEK A PRESENTATION OF

Sumptuously Furred Winter

COATS

RICH colors, soft, luxurious fabrics and a lavish use of sumptuous furs combine for a coat mode of elegance. This full showing, aside from its indisputable smartness, is notable because a strike by workers has made coats extremely scarce.

THE FORMAL COAT gains smartness from wrap-around and bloused effects, from deep-pile fabrices in rich, deep colors, especially from lavish use of fine furs. The black coat is a mode in itself. Fur coats are extremely smart.

WOLF-TRIMMED COATS FROM $79.50
FOX-TRIMMED COATS FROM $98.50
OTHER DRESS COATS $49.50 TO $98.50
TAILORED FUR COATS
FROM $169.50 TO $495.00

SPORT COATS form quite a different mode. Their fabrics are highly colored and plaid or futurist in design. A fur collar and sometimes fur cuffs trim them.

$39.50

OTHER DEBONAIR COATS FOR SPORT, FUR TRIMMED ..... $39.50 TO $198.50

Ivory's perfect service to Beauty

SINCE gentle, safe cleansing is essential to the perfect care of the skin, millions of women rely upon Ivory exclusively and absolutely, to perform soap's service for Beauty.

Why? Because they know that Ivory is as pure as dew—with nearly half a century of honest service behind it. Yet, invaluable as it is to Beauty, Ivory promises your skin no magic. It does not agree to cure your complexion or transform it magically or nourish it with oils. Soap's only function is to cleanse and Ivory contributes to Beauty because it brings perfect cleanliness.

And here's another point to remember. Not only is Ivory as fine a soap as you can buy for your complexion—you can use it wherever you need a pure, safe soap. Millions of women buy Ivory to protect their treasured possessions—their daintiest, most fragile garments—their finest china. You will find it economical to use for every cleansing purpose.

Truly, Ivory protects Beauty wherever it is found.

PROCTER & GAMBLE

The life and sheen of your hair

Wash your hair with Ivory! Bring back its entrancing softness and sheen. In Ivory there is neither free alkali to make your hair brittle, nor sticky residue to rob it of its life and lustre.

For shampooing, we recommend a solution of Ivory Soap Flakes. Dissolve the flakes entirely before you begin your shampoo, or better still, make up your solution ahead of time and let it stand until it forms a jelly.

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100% Pure · It Floats

Be sure to attend the Health and Beauty School this week.

Mme. Ida Chernoff, the famous beauty specialist who will conduct the school, is an enthusiastic advocate of Ivory as an aid to health and beauty.

IN every detail of its dainty new form, Guest IVORY represents the perfect soap for face-and-hands.

It is pure, mild, kind to sensitive skin—as Ivory has been for nearly half a century.

It is skilfully modeled for slender fingers, and its outward appearance pays tribute to the perfection of the soap from which it is formed.

Guest IVORY is a luxurious economy—it costs but five cents.

"FALSE CLUES" IN HALL CASE

Much Bogus Data Given Police In Inquiry Of Killing

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 9. (AP)—The "false clues" were an unusual development in the investigation of the slaying of Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills. They were called false clues because the prosecution rejected them after investigations which gave some of them national attention.

The Rev. Hall's widow and three of her male relatives have been charged with murder and their trials set for November 2.

Among the outstanding rejected clues was the confession of Henry Nelson, convict in the Illinois penitentiary, who said he had taken part in a double killing near New Brunswick. Records showed that on the night of the event he was behind the bars in San Francisco.

A bottle, washed upon the Jersey coast near Manasquan, contained the alleged confession of Henry Wells, and gave a Brooklyn address. He said he was a stowaway on the steamship Leviathan, that he committed the murder and that he was jumping into the ocean. Investigation in Brooklyn yielded no trace of anyone who admitted knowing him.

A pistol of Spanish manufacture was surrendered to Philadelphia police by a chauffeur on the theory that it might have been the weapon with which the minister and his chorister were shot. Simpson then charged that it had been "planted" by the defense in order to sidetrack his investigators.

A dairy was found in an ash can in Washington which purported to be that of a woman whose husband on the night of the killing, was gambling near the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found. Detectives noticed that the figures 1922 were blurred in each reference to the year in which the slaying took place. Then it was discovered that 1926 had been first written and then erased, while in one reference the original 1926 had been allowed to stand.

Here are some of the highlights in the Hall-Mills case:

September 14, 1922: The Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Rhinehardt Mills, of New Brunswick, both shot to death.

September 16 Their bodies found under a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm near New Brunswick. New Brunswick is in Middlesex county but the Phillips farm is across the line in Somerset county.

September 17: Double inquiry began in Somerset and Middlesex counties.

September 26: Body of Mrs. Mills exhumed and second autopsy revealed that her throat was cut.

October 12: Governor Edwards took direct charge of case, sending Attorney General McCran to New Brunswick. Body of Mr. Hall exhumed.

October 28: Wilbur A. Mott, of East Orange, appointed special prosecutor, superseding county authorities.

November 29: Grand jury left case "open for future inquiry."

December 13: Grand jury dismissed without taking action. State trooper Henry L. Dickman continued as leon investigator.

June, 1923: Dickman disappeared leaving salary checks for two months behind him.

April 25, 1925: Mrs. Hall returned from Italy, after fourteen months abroad, declaring her long stay had been due to efforts to trace new clues.

July 27, 1926: New Jersey reopened case on strength of new evidence. State police and Jersey City detectives took charge.

July 28, 1926: Mrs. Hall, arrested, charged with the dual murder, and placed in jail.

July 30: Mrs. Hall released in $10,000 bail by Chief Justice Gummere of the supreme court. State Senator Alexander Simpson, of Jersey City, appointed special deputy attorney general to take charge of the case at the request of Governor Moore.

August 17: Willie Stevens, Mrs. Hall's brother, and their cousin, Henry Carpenter, arrested for the murders and committed to jail.

August 19: County Judge Cleary refused to release Stevens and Carpender in bail.

August 23: Chief Justice Gummers refused to hear plea for admission of Stevens and Carpender to bail.

August 26: Supreme Justice Parker declined to release Stevens and Carpender in bail.

September 10: September grand jury panel of 35 drawn.

September 15: April grand jury recalled unexpectedly, indicted Mrs. Hall, Willie and Henry Stevens, her brothers and Henry Carpender, a cousin, after hearing 30 witnesses in less than ten hours. Henry Stevens arrested at Lavalette and committed to jail in Somerville.

September 17: Defendants plead not guilty before Supreme Court Justice Parker. Mrs. Hall released under increased bail of $40,000, while the three men were held without bail.

September 23: Special Prosecutor Simpson's appeal for bringing a trial jury from another county denied by the supreme court.

Paris

Odd News Bits From France Sent By Correspondents of A. P.

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—The cook at the little inn at Thoiry, where the French and German foreign ministers lunched after Germany had been officially accepted as a member of the league of nations is given as much credit as Foreign Minister Briand for bringing Dr. Stresemann to terms and making the opening of the Franco-German amity negotiations a success. Friends of Minister Briand say that the lunch was a gem of purest French cooking.

M. Briand on his return to Paris agreed that "it was a good lunch, such as one finds in a good many little inns in and out of the way corners of France."

"The best feature of it all," M. Briand is quoted as saying "was Stresemann's appetite. It was a treat to see what my German colleague could do to a good lunch. He appreciated the food and liquid refreshments and his zest was so impressive that it led me to forget the regime to which I am subjected by the doctors, and ate more than was good for me. We both felt entirely at peace with the world afterward and the result of negotiations thus so happily begun cannot fail to be satisfactory."

Inquisitive French reporters brought out the fact that M. Briand paid the bill.

THE old French proverb that "music hath charms soothing to the nerves" turned out to be fallacy in the case of a few belated American tourists returning home after lingering through the autumn at various summer resorts.

When settling their hotel bills they found a charge of one franc per meal for "music."

"What is this" one of them inquired.

Suavely the manager replied:

"It is for the orchestra which played during the meals. A great saving indeed it is for you have noted that no member of the orchestra passed the collection plate around? Had they done so, we are certain you should not have given less than five francs each time. We save you four francs each meal. We strive to please."

THE predominance of revivals and the absence of new plays marked the opening of the Paris 1926 theatrical season.

"No, no Nanette," and the French adaptation of "Nothing But The Truth," put on at the Mogador and the Theatre De Paris respectively, gave the new theatrical season somewhat of American flavor.

The only new play of any importance thus far has been Eugene Brieux "The Lavolette Family," which, like all recent efforts of the author of "Damaged Goods," met with a very cool reception from the critics.

The only result achieved by Brieux was to bring Premier Poincare out of his theatrical retirement. For the first time since 1914, the former president was a "first nighter."

M. Poincare, especially invited by his fellow member of the French academy, took decided issue with the critics and warmly congratulated Brieux after the play. "It is a masterpiece," the premier said.

TWIN buttonholes on each lapel of some coats now seen on Paris streets appear to be not so much a minor vagary of fashion as a necessity to provide more room for decorations.

The wearer of a navy blue suit wore a decoration ribbon in each of the four buttonholes. The legion of honor, the Croix de Guerre, the Academic Palms and the agricultural Merit.

Other lacking decoration are content with four tiny blue flowers, indifferent shades, each exactly the same size.

SO great is the demand foreign manufacturers have for French oak and walnut that the domestic supply is being rapidly depleted through exports. The French furniture makers guild has asked the government to do something to remedy the situation.

Experts of oak and walnut have risen this year to tremendous figures, the guild declares, and French manufacturers, unable to get supplies within France, have been forced to buy outside the country at foreign prices. This has resulted in increased cost of production and considerable export of capital.

Another danger, it is pointed out, is in the rapid deforestation of estates which are being denuded of trees to swell the total of exports.

Furniture manufacturers are not the only ones protesting, for walnut is used in the manufacture of stocks for guns and arms makers are feeling the shortage.

MILLER READY WITH ANSWER

Grace M. E. Pastor To Speak Sunday In Reply To Phillips' Talk

Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, will answer the Friday night sermon, "The Sabbath," of Rabbi Samuel Phillips of Temple Israel, in his sermon at 10:45 Sunday morning and will speak on "Observance of the Lord's Day." According to his announcement Saturday, Rev. Miller is attacking the sermon of Rabbi Phillips in which he upheld the officials of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association for continuing the fair through Sunday.

Rabbi Phillips' sermon was in answer to recent action taken by the Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance in which the local ministers denounced the action of the directors of the fair for keeping the fair grounds open on Sunday.

RADIO TUBES KEEP TO DATE

Heart of Radio Equipment Improves With All Other Devices

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Properly termed the heart of the set, vacuum tubes have kept pace with the speedy progress made by the radio receiver as a whole.

Models of detecting and amplifying devices that appeared shortly before the days of broadcasting today would hardly be recognized as radio tubes.

Old Ones Cumbersome

While the early instruments were cumbersome, their delicacy required that they be carefully handled. Sometimes they performed, but more often their life was short. Some of them contained a double filament, one to be used in case the other burned out. In addition some did not have a base, merely having protruding wires to be soldered to the wiring of the receiver.

Broadcasting, which really gave the impetus to radio to carry it to its present status quickly brought rapid changes in the tubes. The current consumption of the earlier types was heavy, being one ampere per tube. A three tube set then would draw from the storage battery as does the modern twelve tube outfit.

Filament Changed

One of the first great changes was the design of a filament that would not require so much current. This model cut the consumption to one quarter ampere and has become the modern standard. With the changes in the design of the filament other improvement were incorporated, such as the replacement of the old type metal base with one made from bakelite. Also the contact prongs at the bottom of the tube were lengthened to provide a better socket connection.

Further effects saw the production of special amplifiers and detectors. Included were the so-called power tubes, which with higher plate voltage, gave greater volume. The power tube is intended largely for use as amplifier. In addition there have appeared improved detector tubes whose principal purpose is greater sensitivity with an increase in volume.

Use Less Power

While all of the larger types require five volts and are intended for operation from a storage battery or its equivalent, similar progress has been made in the development of an instrument intended for use with dry cells. Two types have been provided, one drawing a voltage of 1.1, while the other consumes but 60 milli-amperes on three volts. Power tubes of this type also have been produced.

Attempts have been made at elimination of the filament lighting battery providing direct current by the design of a tube operating from alternating current through a voltage stepdown transformer. There has appeared an improved "A C" tube operating at eight volts announced as a big step over an earlier model which required four. Use of alternating current as the heating element required a considerable change in the tube design.

Tube construction has been extended so as to include parts of other units used in set construction. Recent announcement told of the successful operation by a German inventor of a tube that not only included the element found in the ordinary tube but other apparatus such as amplifying and coupling devices.

$45,000 CHURCH WORK

Construction of New Church of Christ Makes Progress

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Oct. 9.—Plastering on the new $45,000 church building under construction to be occupied by the Church of Christ is under way this week. The roof was finished last week.

Plans are being made for the building to be completed and ready for use by the middle of November however there is nothing at all definite yet as to plans for the opening service.

Four or five applications for the ministry of the church are now under consideration of the board members but no minister has been selected to date.

TEACHERS IN LIVELY PARTY

Eighty and More Have A Big Time At Massie Home Friday

Over 80 members of the Junior college and high school and members of the school board enjoyed a Hallowe'en party Friday night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Massie, 1501 Tilden. Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames S. H. Rider, A. K. Presson, Anna Witherspoon, and Misses Verna Sellers, Chella Hendrick and Juanita Kinsey.

An informal "get acquainted" period in which the guests played a game wherein the object was to speak to all the others present, a "progressive imagination" contest in which he who could boast of the most accomplished ancestors, the best parents, the most vivid past life of his own, and the brightest ambitions for his future won the decision, and a clever play on words, using the names of the teachers in a short story, furnished amusement for the evening. Prizes were awarded to Miss Nell Dashner and Mr. L. R. Buchanan in the last contest.

Games Played

After a reversal of the type of games to more "serious" proceedings, and playing such games as "Teakettle," refreshments were served to the following:

Messrs. and Mesdames J. W. Cantrell, W. W. Silk, L. R. Buchanan, W. B. Chauncey, J. H. Massie, J. A. Hood, B. T. Adams, I. F. Pedigo, J. W. Williams, A. F. Edwards, J. C. Mathis, S. H. Rider, A. K. Presson, W. A. Mangum, Roy J. Daniel, C. C. Frazee, Gilbert; Misses Ella Mae Underwood, Pauline Shirley, Louise Lipscomb, Lda Jane Collins, Nell Dashner, Madge Davis, Friend, Chella Hendrick, Louise Kelly, Verna Sellers, Eva Weber, Lilly Humphries, Mattie Lee Underwood,, Sadia Fraser, Lela Tomlinson, Davida Olinger, Jane McCollough, Agnes Kihlman, Hilda Masters, Lula Cuthberson, Juanita Kinsey, Louise Lotspeich, Gladys Wilbanks, Mrs. Anna Witherspoon; Messrs N. O. Horning, D. L. Mantle, J. N. Hall, B. P. Henderson, I. C. Presson, and W. C. O. White.

FUNERAL FOR INFANT

ELECTRA, Oct. 9.—Funeral services for the one-day-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Birdwell, were held from the family residence, one and a half miles east of the city on the Magnolia lease, Thursday afternoon. Rev. E. M. Francis, officiated, and interment was in the Electra cemetery.

ASK FOR FUNDS

VERNON, Oct. 9.—The annual service appeal for general relief funds of the Salvation Army will begin early next week, according to W. D. Pedigo of the home service department, who is in the city.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN OF RING LARDNER'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY

In 1900 I urned over my medical practice to a bystander and went to work as a sport writer on "The Rabies," one of the first of the so-called tabloid newspapers. This was long before the tabloid became so painfully reticent and dignified and the editors of the various departments were annually selected from the graduating class of the Oklahoma School of Cafs. The sporting editor under whom I worked was an unrecognized cousin of Will Rogers named Haney Thwack. He had been sent to the school to be cured of a penchant for oatmeal and was given his diploma in spite of the very obvious fact that the cure was nowhere near complete. In fact, the first day I reported at his desk, I found the same covered with receptacles of all kinds filled with the pompous cereal in different stages of preparation. "Oatmeal Haney" was what the boys called him behind his back and once or twice he overheard and just smiled. There was no offending "Oatmeal Haney."

(Author's note That is understood.)

"Lardner," he said to me, "there's a coming golf champion down in Georgia named Bobby Jones. He is now a year-old, or will be in a few years. I want you to get pictures of him in the bathtub and a good human nature, personality interview."

"But, Mr. Thwack," I remonstrated "how can I get an interview with a man that age? Why, I don't even suppose he can talk plain."

"Age makes no difference with most Georgians," replied my superior, testing the cereal with his knes. "They hardly ever get so they can talk plain."

Bobby Has Hard Time Mastering The Spoon

Bobby was splashing at a great rate when I was admitted to the lavatory.

"What are you doing, Mr. Jones?" was my first question.

"Me take baff," he lisped. "Me no lika baff. 'Min's me of a watch hazard."

It was comical to hear him.

(Editor's note; What it?)

"How are you getting along with your golf?" I asked.

"Ah is jes' tryin' to mastah the spoon," he said. "Dis mo'nin' at bretfus Ah used it fo' de fustes' time an'-an'-(he laughed at the memory) Ah spit evahthing."

The youngster then posed for flashlights, with the stopper out, with the stopper in, with the tub full and with the tub empty. "Oatmeal Haney" congratulated me on my handling of the assignment and I was sent to interview Neysa McMein.

Miss McMein proved an interesting talker, once you could understand her dialect, as different from the Jones boy's as a couple of eighth notes.

I asked her where she had got the idea of drawing covers.

"Me getty idea from ol' Mis' Pukkins," she said. "Ol' Mis' Pukkins, she use' draw covers fo' de big hotel in Quincy, Ill. Soon as de gues' leave dere room in the mo'nin' she draw all de covers an' let de beds air."

Miss McMein recounted the difficulties of her early career. I forget just what she did say. She overcame them some way or other and today her cover charge is $1,500. The friendship begun at that time ripened into something grotesque and right now there is a saying along Broadway that wherever you find Neysa McMein, Ring Lardner is probably home working.

Ring Overweights Himself Into New Job

One of the rules in "The Rabies" office provided that members of the sporting department get weighed every day before reporting for work and if they weighed over 135 pounds stripped (as most of them usually were) they would have to go into some other department. This was in the days prior a great deal of water, with the reto prohibition and I was drinking sult that I tipped the beam at 141.

(Editor's note: There was also a rule against tipping the beam.)

"Oatmeal Haney" was loath to let me go and when I was ordered to report to the city editor, he made a scene, which he afterwards tried to sell to the Follies.

The city editor, Tom Bilgewater, regarded me at first wonderingly, then tenderly.

"Well," he said, when he had regained the use of his voice, "you are a very likely looking fellow."

Editor's note Bilgewater was known among his intimates as "Blind" Bilgewater.)

(Author's note: You have him confused with some other Bilgewater. This Bilgewater was known "Keen Eye" Bilgewater.)

(Wife's note: Dinner is ready.)

C-C BUDGET CAMPAIGN

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 9.—The board of directors of the Electra Chamber of Commerce and agriculture voted Tuesday to conduct the annual budget campaign early in November and the president was authorized to appoint a committee on general arrangements for the campaign. At this meeting the board also endorsed the movement to organize a local automobile club to be known as the Wichita Valley Automobile club and affiliated with the American Automobile association, headquarters at Washington.

PLUS FOURS ARE NOT POPULAR WITH FRENCH

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Frenchmen do ot like plus fours. They seldom wear them on the golf course, ad hardly ever o the streets of Paris.

Consequently, men who wander about Paris in plus fours are almost instantly spotted as Englishmen or Americans, although American tourists are much less given to wearing sports clothes when traveling than Eglishment.

MAIL SERVICE OUT OF ALTUS

Flood Damage on Railroad Lines Now Partially Repaired

ALTUS, Oct. 9.—While many of the bridges around Altus and in nearby counties of Jackson remain in a condition which prevents trespassing, and the road and railroad conditions are hampered, mail can now be received in Altus, and the first mail sent out from here since last Sunday was Thursday.

The Katy train is now running through to Wichita Falls and north to Mangum. The bridge beyond Mangum, however, remains impassable. The Frisco train is now running from Oklahoma City to Quanah, on regular schedule. The Orient train will not be in operation on the tracks north or south for a few days.

Road conditions of the entire county are bad. Many of the bridges in Jackson county and nearby counties are not yet passable. The bridge between Granite and Lone Wolf is being crossed now, however, it is in a serious condition and passengers cross at their own risk. Traffic is now possible between Altus and Hollis by fording the river west of Altus where 100 feet of the bridge washed away.

The bridge about 15 miles south of Frederick near Davidson, is now in a condition for crossing. The bridge across the North Fork of Red river near Tipton leading to Frederick will not be passable for several days.

COFFEE BOOTLEGGERS

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—In an effort to curb the tctivities of coffee bottleggers, federal judges are imposing some of the heaviest sentences on record. As receipts from the high tariff on coffee make up a substantial part of Germany's reparation payments, the government is eager to let none of the revenue slip through its fingers.

Camp Fire Girls To Publish Paper

The Camp Fire Girls council met at the Y. W. C. A. Saturday noon for their monthly meeting.

The main discussion of the luncheon centered on the publication of the second local bulletin, which the council decided to put out and distribute at the Camp Fire Girls banquet, Nov. 19.

Members of the council raised the money and published the first edition of the "Extra" in May. The council expects to make the paper a monthly publication, the staff to be chosen from membership throughout the city. A candy sale will be given next Saturday afternoon by the Girls Council to finance the second number. All girls will meet Saturday morning at 8:00 to make candy to sell Saturday afternoon.

Miss Thelma Norvell, accompanied by Miss Evely McCloud, played a violin solo. Songs were sung and talks were made by different members. Those attending were. Edith Crump, president; Phyllis Creighton, Dorothy Sommerville, Lois Brackett, Augenia Edgar, Dorothy Smart, Marietta James, Marjorie Bash, Roberta Wolford, Edith Long and Mary McIlheran.

Prince Andrew of Russia, ephew of the late Czar, had painting as a hobby, and in his English exile now it is useful as a means of supplementing a slender income.

Knights Planning On Big Celebration

A patriotic celebration commemorating the discovery of America by Columbus will be given Tuesday evening, October 12, at the Wichita club under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, it was announced yesterday. The party will begin at 8 o'clock, when a special program for the occasion will be presented.

C. C. McDonald will be the principal speaker and numbers by well known artists of the city, including readers and musicians will be included in the program.

The celebration is non-denominational and friends of the order and those who wish to come are invited to attend the evening's program, it was said Saturday by those in charge.

An effort is being made to stop the practice of children of the east side of London of putting rubber bands tightly round cats' necks, many of the felines having been taken to the dispensary to be treated for what was thought to be asthma.

FIRST NIGHT'S STYLE SHOWS

Theatre-Goers Deck Out For Their Finest For Opening Event

LONDON, Oct. 9. (AP)—First nights at prominent London theatres are better than regular fashion shows, especially at this season when many of the leading theatrical stars are just back from Paris with the latest gowns.

Marie Tempest, Tallulah Bankhead, Lady Wyndham, Lily Leslie, Rosa Courtneidge and many other stars were greeted with loud applause when they took their seats to watch the opening performance of "The Constant Nymph," which raised Edna Best to the first rank in London stardom.

Black in Vogue

Lady Wyndham, who was known to the stage as Mary Moore but now gives all her time to theatrical management, wore a gown of black and silver affi a black and silver tissue coat with a collar of chichilla.

Marie Tempest wore a wonderful coat of black and silver tissue brocade with a double collar of softly draped black velvet trimmed with chinchilla. Her gown was white georgette trimmed with jet.

The duchess of Rutland wore an entirely black gown and had a scarf of silver tissue draped about her head as a turban with the long shimmering ends hanging over her shoulders.

Other Colors Profuse

Miss Bankhead and many of the other younger theatrical celebrities did not follow the dictate of a Paris fashion lords that black is the accepted thing for autumn. Miss Lily Leslie wore a cyclamen pink georgette gown and a coat of soft leaf green chiffon velvet, with a collar, cuffs and border of blonde shaded fox. Miss Bankhead's gown was a geranium pink chiffon, and she wore an ermine cape wrap.

Margaret Kennedy, the author, who co-operated with Basil Dean in dramatizing the work, wore a straight, sleeveless gown of soft brown georgette, embroidered at the hem with big roses in many shades of pink and orange, with dashes of green in the leaves.

EDUCATION BOARD

Electra School Officials Confer on Routine

ELECTRA, Oct. 9.—At the board of education meeting Thursday evening, at the First State bank, a great number of the board were present, and plans for the future taken up, with Roy Mankins, Johnnie LeBus, Misses Mary Dean Reneau and Myrtle Russell, of the Senior class of the high school appearing and received permission to get out a high school annual for 1927, which will be the first annual since 1923. Taylor Cash, Latin teacher is faculty sponsor, with Roy Mankins, Editor-in-chief, Johnnie LeBus, business manager, Miss Mary Dean Reneau and Myrtle Russell, assistants. The contract for the printing and engraving for the annual have not been let, but expect to be acted this week.

WHEAT IN ACID SOIL HARDLY TO WINTER KILL

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9 (AP)—Experimentation at the State college of agriculture indicates that wheat planted in acid soil is much more liable to "winter killing" than that planted in fields where lime has been used to neutralize the acid.

A. W. Blair, associate soil chemist, says that in the majority of cases 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of pulverized limestone per acre, or the equivalent in hydrated lime, will be sufficient for wheat. If clover or alfalfa is to be grown, heavier applications of lime may be required.

MAKING FACES ASSURES FAME

British Peeress Wins Big Name By Acting In Movies

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—"Making faces" won fame and a peerage for Beatrice Lillie, who as a little girl imitated people all day long. Today she is the only British peeress in motion pictures.

Miss Lillie, in private life Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, is unique among the noblewomen of England. She has two identities—one as a society leader, wife and mother; the other as a stage and screen celebrity. She keeps the two distinctly apart.

Imitated Neighbors.

Born in Toronto, the daughter of a musician, she was predestined for a musical career. But—she liked to "make faces."

She imitated her family—she imitated the neighbors. She developed an ability at impersonation, and her mother, being wise, encouraged it. It did not help her toward fame in music—but it eventually led to fame on the stage. Her marriage to Sir Robert resulted from stage stardom, indirectly. And her debut in pictures, in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, with Jack Pickford, resulted from her success in "Charlot's Revue."

Comic Songs A Hit.

While in school, Miss Lillie worked out a series of comic songs—"just for fun." She had played in New York, and decided to essay London. She tried one of the "comic" songs. The effect was instantaneous. She was given a hearing by Charlot. The result was that London acclaimed her impersonation of the grand opera prima donna and the rest of her droll imitations.

A Wife And Actress.

After her marriage she quit the stage for a time to rule over the Peel mansion. But as soon as her small son was able to accompany her, she and her husband worked out their present system. During the show season she's "Lady Lillie." Between seasons she's "Lady Peel."

Motion pictures are a new adventure to her but her talent for "making faces" will be re-employed in accurate portrayals of real types that are in themselves humorous. The studio hails her as the discovery on the screen as a comedienne.

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Newlyweds are up in arms against the recent edict limiting restaurant meals to two dishes, since a restaurant has been the essential part of most French celebrations at weddings. It generally consisted of ten, 12 and even 14 courses.

Novelty In Westerns At the Gem Theater

The biggest treat in westerns will be seen at the Gem Theatre, in "Fangs of Wolfheart," today.

Big Boy Williams, as the happy-go-lucky tramp sends everyone who sees him into spasms of laughter with his funny tricks, and his real, honest-to-goodness smile brings an answering smile to the faces of his audience.

Kathleen Collins, as the pretty little schoolmarm who sacrifices her future happiness for the sake of the mother who she loves far more than herself (a rare thing these days) is wonderful. She radiates the spirit and charm of youth. Handkerchiefs will be brought into use and hastily stowed away because of the pathos she brings into many of her scenes.

Wolfheart, the superbly trained police dog, who is rapidly gaining for himself an enviable reputation among devotees of dog pictures sleeps with one eye open all the time and chases tramps with the same zest that he tracks the unsuspecting little muskrat swimming around joyously in his native haunts.

OKLAHOMA BRIDGE OPEN

ELECTRA, Oct. 9.—The Electra-Oklahoma bridge is now open to traffic, which is the only Red river bridge in this section which was not seriously damaged by high water. Traffic across the Electra bridge was temporarily halted, when the flood was at its height, by a small washout on the southern approach of the bridge, but this was repaired within a few hours.

JACK HOLT IN STELLAR ROLE

"The Blind Goddess" Starts Run At Olmpic On Sunday

Victor Fleming, Paramount director, evidently believes that even a good story can be made better if entrusted for interpretation on the screen to players of ample merit and experience. "The Blind Goddess," which he has just finished filming, boasts, a cast composed of some of filmdom's finest artists. It appears at the Olympic Sunday.

Jack Holt, whose personality, virility and histrionic ability have won him a tremendous following, is an ideal choice for the role of the rugged and brilliant young lawyer, whom love fails to swerve from the path of duty.

Ernest Torrence adds another distinctive characterization to his gallery of screen portraits with his nicely-balanced portrayal of the scrupulously honest politician and the kindly, indulgent father. It is a part that gives him an excellent opportunity to display his rare flair for comedy as well as his talent for emotional drama. And his sudden and untimely demise, while necessary to the working out of the plot does not occur without a pang of regret on the part of the audience.

Esther Ralston, whose blonde loveliness has heretofore decorated comedy and romantic roles, which did not make very heavy demands on her acting ability, shows how splendidly she can rise to the dramatic heights when the occasion demands it. She makes a charming and compelling heroine.

Louise Dresser, in the tragic and pitiful role of the woman charged with murdering Torrence, has one of the most difficult and complex characters she has ever essayed. She brings to it a sincerity, naturalness and sympathetic understanding that invest her performance with a poignant appeal that is irresistible.

"The Blind Goddess" is based on the Arthur Train novel that has aroused widespread comment. It is a story packed with scenes of emotion, dramatic tension and gripping action—all leading up to a climatic murder trial, which has a startling denouement.

500 BALES GINNED

Electra Gins Report Operations at Full Speed

ELECTRA, Oct. 9.—A report was made from the four gins handling the cotton in the Electra community in th ecity and two in the country, that a total of 474 bales of cotton had been ginned up to Wednesday noon, with the total probably reaching about above 500 at the present time. The cotton from the gins is as follows: Red River gin, 135; Mount Carmel gin, 83; Electra Ginning company, and 11-Vernon Cotton Oil company. Although available cotton men believe that approximately 700 bales of cotton had been ginned this time last year.

Buck Jones Appears On Garden Program

Buck Jones in "The Fighting Buckaroo," the latest Fox Films production which will appear at the Garden theatre Sunday and Monday takes full advantage of the wide possibilities in this vivid picture.

From the minute the buckaroo leaves the steamer gangplank on his return to the United States until he arrives at his Arizona ranch he is racing or fighting for a girl and a gold mine.

Sally Long has the role of Betty Gregory the society girl who owns the ranch where the mine has been located. Frank Butler has the part of Percy Wellington, an English friend of the buckaroo.

The trail from the steamer dock to the ranch leads through a fashionable hotel where the Englishman's efforts to introduce the buckaroo to the girl results in a fight with Gleanmore Bradshaw and thugs whom he has hired to block the Arizonian's return to the ranch.

The Buckaroo eludes the police and after other escapades, enroute, he saves the girl's jewels from the thugs and on a hand car they dash in the office of an Arizona attorney just in time to save the ranch and the mine.

R. William Neill directed "The Fighting Buckaroo."

A few hours after a mother and her two children were taken to a hospital at Belfast, Ireland, to be treated for injuries received when knocked down by an automobile, the father entered the same institution because of hurts sustained when knocked down by a horse.

LANDMARK TO GO

Old Electra Building Makes Way For New Structure.

ELECTRA, Oct. 9.—One of the last old landmarks of this city will be torn down this week, when the building on the corner of Bryan avenue and Waggoner street will be razed to make way for a one-story brick building, costing approximately $6,000.

This frame building which was built by Edward Schlaffke, a quarter of a century ago, housed the Texas Hardware company until in 1918 when Ed. Moreland established an electrical company in the building purchasing it from Mr. Schlaffke. Mr. Schlaffke owned the building when it was considered a hardware on the outskirts of the city, being the only building from the corner where the Goodman Cafe, on Cleveland avenue, and Waggoner street, which was then occupied by the Cotton rooms.

Upon completion of the new building it will be occupied by the White House market, owned by Mr. Awtwell, recently of Frederick, Okla., and a very modern building, adjoining the Morland Electrical company on the north. Another story may be added to the building at a later date.

NORMA JUMPS INTO COMEDY

'The Warning Sex' At Strand Features Miss Shearer In Laugh Role

The girl movie stars are all becoming commediennes.

First it was Gloria Swanson reverting to barefaced slapstick like her picture "Stagestruck," then Norma Talmage fell into line with "Kiki," and Marion Davies was next with "Beverly of Graustark."

And now Norma Shearer takes the jump.

In fact, her Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Waning Sex," with Conrad Nagel coming to the Strand theatre, tomorrow, is out-and-out farce. The characterization is entirely different from anything she has ever done before, but the general satisfaction of her fans indicates Norma is as capably versatile as she is beautiful.

Although "The Waning Sex" is hilariously funny, Norma doesn't have to resort to slapstick for the laughs. She plays her role absolutely "straight," but the situations are side-splitting.

"The public has expressed itself," says Norma. "It wants to be entertained. It still wants tears and romance, of course, but it wants them delivered with laughs."

The laugh-provoking efforts of Norman and Conrad Nagel are assisted in "The Waning Sex" by Mary McAllister, George K. Arthur and others.

CADILLAC HAS SILVER SALON

Company Fetes 25 Years of Production In Motor Field

In 400 cities throughout the United States, distributors and dealers of the Cadillac Motor car company opened, October 9, a Cadillac silver anniversary salon, celebrating the company's recent entrance into its 25th year of production, and displaying outstanding examples of its 1927 line of 50 body types and styles and 500 color combinations. The salon will continue for eight days and is the first complete presentation to the whole country of the new plan inaugurated by the company of making each car as individual and personal as the furnishings of a drawing room, and without excessive cost.

To accomplish this end, the Cadillac company has initiated a manufacturing program embracing sufficient body types to meet every individual taste and requirement. The list prices range from $2,995 for the five-passenger brougham to as high as $9,000 for a four-passenger collapsible landaulet sedan.

In the Fisher line of bodies, four new models have been added. They are the standard two-passenger sport coupe, the five passenger sport sedan, the custom two-passenger convertible coupe and the sport phaeton with double cowl and two windshields. In the addition, the Victoria has been made a five-passenger model by the removal of the parcel compartment back of the driver's seat; and the standard imperial sedan has been lengthened.

NASH OUTPUT TO INCREASE

Production of Racine Plant Will Be Boosted to 500 Cars a Day

Material expansion of the production of the Nash Light Six plant at Racine is under way. Announcement of this program, entailing the installation of over $600,000 worth of additional equipment and giving the plant a production capacity of 300 to 350 cars a day, is made by C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company. Country-wide demand for the Nash Light Six, strongly emphasized since the introduction of the present new series, has kept the Racine factory in an oversold condition for many weeks past although the present production at that plant is over 225 cars a day.

"It was because of the demand for many more cars than our present capacity would allow that Mr. Nash authorized expansion of the plant on a scale that would be commensurate with our requirements," said D. M. Averill, general manager of the Nash Light Six factory.

Definite orders have been placed for practically all of the new machinery contemplated in the expansion program; some of the equipment has already been installed and, it is expected, that the entire installation will have been completed in the next 60 to 90 days. All departments in the large Racine plant will be affected.

"Every item in the list of machinery will be of the very latest and most approved type of factory equipment known to the automobile industry," says Mr. Averill. "This together with the present equipment all thoroughly modern, and installed only a year and a half ago, will give us a plant which from the point of modern equipment cannot be excelled in the automobile industry either here or abroad.

"The splendid reception with which the Nash Light Six has been met by the public is due, I believe, to the outstanding quality we have been able to build into this car because of our unsurpassed production facilities."

The Nash Light Six was introduced a year ago last May. It was designed and built to meet the requirements of a large field of buyers whose preference is for a motor car, moderate in size and outstanding in quality. How well C. W. Nash had measured the extent of this field for a car of that type is indicated by the fact that practically at no time since the first Nash Light Six was sent to the loading dock for shipment, has the factory been able to produce cars in volume sufficient to meet the demand.

Oldsmobile Aids Sky Hunt

Oldsmobile Deluxe Sedan will furnish transportation to astronomers of the University of Michigan, during a six-year survey of Southern double stars in South Africa

All records of distance from the place of purchase to the home garage of an automobile is believed broken by an Oldsmobile sedan just sold by the Oldsmobile Sales and Service Co., at Ann Arbor, Michigan. The car will have traveled nearly 10,000 miles and to the other side of the earth before it is garaged on the veldt outside Bloomfontein, South Africa. In this far-off land the Oldsmobile will be depended upon for transportation by a group of scientists during their six-year search for additional data regarding the double stars in the Southern constellations.

The car was purchased by R. A. Rossiter, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan. Professor Rossiter is accompanying Professor W. J. Hussey, director of the university observatory, to Bloomfontein, which is the capital of the Orange Free State, South Africa, where they will set up the largest telescope ever erected on the Southern hemisphere.

The Oldsmobile was driven to New York and then shipped last week via steamer to Cape Town. From there the pary will drive a distance of about 900 miles to Bloomfontein. This district resembles our Rocky Mountain section. Some idea of the hills and curves can be had from the fact that along the narrow guage railroad that connect these two points there are signs warning the engineer not to run his train faster than 15 miles an hour.

An observatory will be built on a hill about ten miles from Bloomfontein. The city is 5,000 feet above sea level and the hill ascends another 800 feet. The Oldsmobile will be the connecting link between the observatory and the town during the six years the astronomers expect to stay there making their observations.

KING ALFONSO SETS FOLKS DIZZY PACE ON VACATION

SAN SEBASTIAN, Oct. 9. (AP) The vacations of kings are strenuous affairs if that of Alfonso XIII of Spain may be taken as an example.

Sports of all kinds, public festivals and social functions take up so much of his time the wonder here is when he finds a chance to eat and sleep. Those who wish to see the king generally await the chance to catch hi meither on the way to, or on the way from some sporting event.

Thoroughbred horse rasing, which Alfonso has been endeavoring to popularize in Spain eventually to take the place of bull fighting, is said to be his favorite diversion after yachting. The king is still required by public sentiment to attend bull fights.

Whippet Sets World's Record On Continuous Drive of 130 Hours

Chick Murray, Handcuffed to Steering Wheel Makes Long Drive Eclipsing Former Record of 128 Hours.

A new world's record of 130 hours continuous driving was recently established by "Chick" Murray in a Whippet under the auspices of the Kaystone Automobile club of Camden, New Jersey.

The previous record was 128 hours. The Whippet record was made with Murray handcuffed to the steering wheel where he sat for just 16 hours less than a full six days and nights during which time the motor of the Whippett was never stopped and the wheels never quit turning.

Replenishing of fuel was made while the car was still moving and oil was replenished under the same conditions.

During the trip three records were made in addition to the time record. The oil consumption was at the rate of 1000 miles to the gallon, gasoline consumption was at the rate of 22.5 miles to the gallon and a total of 1500 miles was covered without a single car stop. None of these supplementary records have ever been equalled in an endurance run of this nature.

A feature of the run was that the car was throttled down to a gait of three miles an hour for at least two hours of each day of the test.

PIERCE'S BEST GOES ABROAD

Forbes and Sheppy Will Place Exhibit in Paris Salon

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Myron E. Forbes, president of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company, and Charles Sheppy, chief engineer, have sailed for France, taking with them what is said to be the most luxurious motor car ever designed, one of the new Pierce-Arrow Series 36 Dual Valve models. The car will be placed on exhibition at the International Salon in Paris this month.

"We are going to Europe to place an American car alongside the best that Europe has to offer so that we can draw an honest comparison," said Mr. Forbes.

"If European cars are better than American, we want to find it out. But I don't believe they are.

"Limited use has imposed a handicap upon European builders, whereas universal ownership has given American manufacturers a tremendous advantage in the race for engineering supremacy. Greater volume has enabled us to command the foremost engineering talent and to place unlimited experimental resources at its command. The cost of all this is spread thin, as is manufacturing overhead, over a tremendous number of cars.

"This means that in America, the car owner gets an automobile of better design, built of better materials and with greater skill, at a lower cost than anywhere else in the world.

"Another thing: European manufacturers have been forced to devote most of their attention to the development of small, light cars, because of high priced gasoline an dalso burdensome and prohibitive taxation imposed on larger and more powerful types. Here in America we have been able to concentrate upon the development of more powerful and more comfortable cars to satisfy the demand for better performance and greater luxury which Americans want and for which they are willing to pay.

"I do not believe that the American car of the future will be the small light European type, but that the American public will continue to prefer cars of somewhat larger proportions. Because of our amazing system of good roads, we have become a nation of tourists, and we want cars designed for comfort."

ESSEX "6"

Makes an Important Statement

Buyers of Light Small Cars will do Well to Ponder these Facts

Essex was built to meet the demand for a small car of enduring and brilliant performance. It was never intended to dominate a price field.

Consequently its design and construction are different from the usual practice in cars selling at or near its price.

And so, also, is its performance. You see this on every hand, in the nimble, powerful way it speeds over the open road or threads through congested traffic. You see it in the endorsement of owners and the lasting character of its performance.

Essex quality is not confined to those details which please the eye. It extends to parts that can never be realized except through long severe service.

Look well to these important details when you choose a car. Be sure it is built to last, built to give long service at small cost. Ride in an Essex "6". Drive one. Note the ease of its operation and that no car regardless of size or cost rides easier.

Essex Has These Fine Car Details

OAKLAND CAR BREAKS TRAIL

Auto Makes Trip Believed Impossible For Any Motor Car

The lure of the unknown highway, the wandering dirt road or the lost forest trail has potent appeal to the adventurous spirit who would explore the seldom-seen beauty of hidden glen an ddale and primitive forest. It chalenges the owner of a motor car today as it has ever chalenged the explorer, the seeker of new scenes, of untrodden stretches of forest, of the unknown and all that unknown implies.

Such a forest trail route exists in the Williamette Valley in Oregon. If you take a map of Oregon and trace the route from Portland through this valely to Crater Lake, you will note that only one route from the West leads to the lake, a rather roundabout road that involves 391 miles to travel from Portland.

End Of Road

On the map a faint line of yellow indicates a graveled road that leads east from Canyonville. The yellow marking ends at Tiler, far back in the hills and connecting the settlement with Trail but on the main Crater Lake road is a dotted line that indicates a forest service trail. The dotted line route shows 52 miles less than the regular route from Canyonville to Trail via Medford.

This forest rtail route chalenged the adventurous spirit of a new Oakland Six owner who had just purchased the car from the R. Knox Roberts Co., Oakland-Pontiac dealers in Oakland. This owner had been thoroughly sold on Oakland reliability and power and, despite ominous warnings of old settlers he started for Carter Lake via the Tiller route.

Discouraging reports were received at every cross road hamlet. "I was up there 10 years ago," reported one beared and bronzed native, "and let me tel lyou, sir, that on that trail—theer are creeks to cross and there ain't no bridges. The road is rough and you are lucky if you get througt."

About eight miles out of Canyonville, the party came to the Methusileh of all Oregon bridges. For over 50 years it has spanned the turbulent Umpqua, a weather beaten covered bridge, with parts of the walls torn away and the planking worn almost to the girders. Finally al semblance of a road disappeared and the way became a path through the virgin wilderness.

"You're the one who's doing it, young fellow" warned another patriarch who was asked about his knowledge of the road. "Go ahead if you want to, but if it was us we'd go around by the good road."

Trip Through Woods

But the trip was continued through woods, over barren rocky stretches, across creeks that had first to be waded to determine the depth and through dry washes. The Oakland Sedan thundered on over roads, carved out of the mountain side, and into the valley to the isolated settlement of Drew, 35 miles from a railway. The Drew resident were not so pessimistic about the road ahead, admitting it was rough but passable. The road was bumpy and traveling was not over 12 miles an hour.

A few miles out from Drew the car passed the last ranch house and struck out into the forest that covers the Umpqua divide, over a trail that had the appearance of seldom being travelled. The nature of the country may be gleaned from the fact that during the 15 miles trip to Trail, three deer stood by the roadside, viewed the car and as it approached, leisurely walked away. More creeks were passed, and the road finally dwindled into a cow-path trail into the village of Trail. It required about four hours running time to make the trip.

William, an Australian parrot, after gnawing his way out of eighteen cages in the London zoo in three years, has just been placed in his nineteenth cage, which is made of fine metal shavings.

NASH FACTORY TO BE BIGGER

Plant Capacity Will Be Enlarged To Output Of 350 Cars

Material expansion of the production capacity of the Nash Light Six plant at Racine is under way. Announcement of this program, entailing the installation of over $600,000 worth of additional equipment and giving the plant a production capacity of 300 to 350 cars a day, is made by C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motor company. Country-wide demand for the Nash Light Six, strongly emphasized since the introduction of the present new series, has kept the Racine factory in an oversold condition for many weeks past although the present production at that plant is over 225 cars a day.

"It was because of the demand for many more cars than our present capacity would allow that Mr. Nash authorized expansion of the plant on a scale that would be commensurate with our requirements," said D. M. Averill, general manager of the Nash Light Six factory.

Definite orders have been placed for practically all of the new machinery contemplated in the expansion program; some of the equipment has already been installed and, it is expected, that the entire installation will have been completed in the next sixty to ninety days. All departments in the large Racine plant will be affected.

"Every item in the list of machinery will be of the very latest and most approved type of factory equipment known to the automobile industry," says Mr. Averill. "This together with the present equipment all thoroughly modern, and installed only a year and a half ago, will give us a plant which from the point of modern equipment cannot be excelled in the automobile industry either here or abroad.

"The splendid reception with which the Nash Light Six has been met by the public is due, I believe, to the outstanding quality we have been able to build into this car because of our unsurpassed production facilities."

Chrysler Announces New And Finer '70'

With striking new body designs and new smaller wheels, both of which will likely establish new vogues in motor car appearance and design, Chrysler announces a new Chrysler "70" at considerably lower prices. It will be remembered that it was the "70" which three years ago established this company in its dominant position in the automobile industry.

Seven new body designs are offered in the new finer "70" line, with prices ranging from $1395 to $1795 F. O. B. Detroit. These include th ePhaeton at $1395; the Sport Phaeton at $1495; roadster at $1495; Brougham $1525; Royal coupe $1545; the Royal sedan at $1695 and Crown sedan at $1795. In addition there will be a four passenger coupe and a Cabriolet—prices to be announced later.

Overland Six In New Sales Record

Following the drastic cut in prices announced on the Overland Six and on the Whippet during September, sales reports from all parts of the country show a greatly increased volume of business with the Overland Six outstripping any previous sales records.

With the drop in prices, all models on this chassis were brought below the $1,000 price mark despite the fact that in general dimensions, this product of Willys-Overland is the largest car in the light six classification.

QUEEN MARIE FORCED TO LEAVE JEWELS BEHIND

PARIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Queen Marie of Rumania must travel to the United States without the $1,400,000 worth of jewelry, her personal property, which she had hoped to display during her sojourn in America.

The jewelry is in Moscow where it was deposited for safekeeping during the war, when the German armies over-ran Rumania. It forms part of a treasure estimated to be worth about $64,000,000.

When Marshal von Mackensen entered Bucharest and the Rumanian royal family took refuge at Jassy, the Rumanian treasure was sent to Moscow, then the capital of an allied state. Negotiations for the return of the property have been going on for several years but recently the soviet government propesed that they retain it for another 10 years.

BUICK BOOSTS PLANT OUTPUT

Demand For Cars Compels Enlargement of Big Flint Plants

For the second time within the last twelve months the Buick Motor company has found it necessary to increase the production capacity of plant units in order to keep pace with the demand for cars.

They latest addition to the Buick factory is to be $5,000,000 grey iron foundry with a capacity of 500 tons of castings a day. The new foundry unit will supplement the old one which has been taxed heavily to furnish enough castings for the present production schedule of over 1,200 cars per day.

Just prior to the introduction of the 1922 model the Buick Motor company completed a $2,000,000 expansion program which increased production facilities from 1,000 to 1,200 cars a day. With the announcement of the new model, however, even this production has been found inadequate to take care of the demand for cars.

The new Buick foundry will cover about 12 acres of ground, and will be one of the largest and best equipped grey iron foundaries in the world. It will employ 1,700 men. Harry H. Bassett, Buick presidens and general managre, says that the new unit will be in production about next June.

Among the other new Buick units recently completed is a building which houses the crankshaft division. It is in this building that the new Buick crankshaft, counter balanced and equipped with the torsion balancer, is built. This crankshaft is one of the most vital facters in the vibrationless performance of the 1927 Buick. It is produced with the aid of the most accurate and advanced equipment known to automotive science.

An addition to the present engine plant has also been completed recently. This plant houses the assembly operations on the Buick poppet valve-in-head engine, and also the finishing of many important engine parts. It also is the home of the new block test, the silent room test and other inspection requirements which insure quiet and smoothness in the finished engines.

FACULTY ENTERTAINS.

A very enjoyable meeting was held Monday night in the dining room of the Summers hotel when Superintendent John T. Bischeid and Mrs. Bischeid entertained the teaching faculty of the Waurika public schools.

The meeting opened with a song fest after which the guests and their hosts were seated at one long table. Baskets of yellow asters with an accompaniment of greenery made the tables look very the need of the schools in Jefferson

After the delicious three-course dinner there was a round table discussion of the 41G amendment which brought out the need of the schools in Jefferson county for the passage of the bill. Interest of the school children will be aroused in the bill through the teaching of the faculty and a better knowledge of the need for its passage will be disseminated.

DELPHIANS MEETING.

Delphians had their first meeting of the club year 1926-27 last Friday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. J. M. Dyer, when a large percentage of the membership was present to answer to roll call. The club will finish by the first of the year the 10 Delphian books which constitute the Delphian course of study, after which plans will be formulated for a program that will be as interesting and instructive as have been the regular Delphian lessons.

"Art Centers of America," was the topic most ably handled by Mrs. Cora Adams who brought the subject matter down to the present day. A number of printed copies of some of the most famous subjects were sent by Mrs. Adams, whose paper was read by her daughter, Mrs. E. E. Anderson, which gave added interest to the descriptions given.

Mrs. E. E. Anderson gave "Mural Painting in America" and it also was handled in a manner that made it both interesting and instructive.

The executive committee of the club held a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. C. Largent, while the next regular meeting of the club will be Friday, October 15, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Anderson.

SOROSIS CLUB MEETS.

The Lee Grocery company, composed of R. E. Lee and son, Henry Lee, is the latest addition to Haskell's business section. The new firm will occupy the building next door north of the Haskell National bank. Judge R. E. Lee is an old pioneer citizen of Haskell county and has served as county judge for a number of years and his son has been with the J. U. Fields grocery for eight or ten years. These gentlemen have always attained success in their undertakings which is the best forecast that we know of.

BARGAIN STORE CHANGED.

The name of the Haskell bargain store, one of Haskell's busiest and most popular dry goods stores, has been changed to the Siegel dry goods company. This is because Mr. Siegel is branching out and progressing and is taking a partner they are putting in a store at Knox City, which opened for business last Monday and will operate under the same name.

STUDENTS BARRED FROM DEBATE IF THEY SMOKE

BALDWIN, Kan., Oct. 9. (AP)—Students who swear or smoke cannot participate in oratorical contests at Baker university here, for which the will of Albert M. Lumpkin of Fort Worth, Texas, provided gold prizes.

Mr. Lumpkin, a Baker alumnus, bequeathed to the university a fund to pay $100 to the orator placing second. His will contained a clause barring users of tobacco and profane language from competing.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy

Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug store. Millions use it because it gives that well groomed effect to the hair, that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair Groom" is greasless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels

"California Fig Syrup" is Dependable Laxative for Sick Children

Children Love Its Pleasant Taste

If your little one is out-of-sorts, won't play, seems sick, languid, not natural, suspect the bowels! A teaspoonful of delicious "California Fig Syrup" given anytime sweetens the stomach and soon moves the sour fermentations, gases, poisons and indigestible matter right out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers depend upon this gentle, harmless laxative. It never cramps or overacts. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Say "California" to your druggist and avoid counterfeits. Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages plainly printed on bottle.

MRS. H. C. SHEFFIELD, Attalla, Ala.

Pains Across Back

"FOR days at a time I would have to lie in bed, unable to do my work or care for my family," says Mrs. H. C. Sheffield, of Attalla, Ala. "It wore on me dreadfully, because I could see things going undone which it was my duty to do. My back ached like the toothache. At times I would have bad spells of headache, and often attacks of dizziness.

"I had often read of Cardui and knew what other women had said about it. Some of my friends had taken it and been relieved. One lady told me how much good it had done her, so on her recommendation I decided to try it.

"At first I could see a little improvement, so I was encouraged to keep up the medicine. I took it faithfully. After the second bottle, I was much better. My appetite picked up and I could eat better and enjoy my meals. I kept right on taking it till I had used six bottles, when I felt like a new woman. I did not seem the same person I had been six months before. The pains across my back had gone away and my head was much better. Cardui certainly brought me health and strength when I was run-down."

To Everetts the little park was the most interesting place in his life. The little park where people waited for each other. Wives for their husbands. Children for their fathers. Old men for their sons. Young women for young men.

And Everetts.

Everetts, who had no one to wait for him, used to haunt the little park.

EVERETTS was one of two hundred and forty-seven young men who wore green eye shades, sleeve garters and fountain pens with patent clips and who sat and pored, nine hours out of every week-day, over the enormous tomes of account books of the National Mail Order Company.

There was nothing in particular to distinguish him from the hundreds of his confreres who were employed in the establishment with him and the thousands more who worked in the great buildings of railroad offices across the yards, except perhaps a greater inability than the general run of them to keep the wolf of loneliness away from his door, after work hours.

Everetts had no family ties. The haunts, the pastimes and the recklessness of unattached young men did not appeal to him. He was not a good mixer. Knew neither cards nor gambling recreations. He had a shy, ineffectual way with women, neither sought nor was sought by them. And all in all, on his neat salary, led that most aimless kind of life imaginable, a life without destination.

Evenings, Everetts either walked along the wharves of the large manufacturing city he called home, sat and smoked a solitary cigar on the front stoop of the private family house where he had a room, attended a motion-picture show alone or sat in the little park that lay between the mail-order house where he worked and the great railroad offices and watched the rows of lighted windows flick out about ten o'clock as the night shift left off work and came pouring out into the open, usually to be met by members of their families who were also seated about the little park.

Wives with their children, old men and groups of young people awaited these night clerks who worked on a peculiar shift beginning at three in the afternoon and running on to ten at night.

It was amusing to Everetts to watch them meet. The furtive, half-abashed peckings between husband and wife. The shouts of children running to cling to the trouser legs of their father. Old men hobbling over to greet a son. Sweethearts sidling up coyly as a young fellow came along striving to appear unconscious of the delights of the hour ahead.

It fascinated Everetts in an aloof sort of way. Not that he ever experienced any degree of self pity. He was by nature a rather self-sufficient sort of fellow. Content to go his own way, unpretentiously. Unenvious of the more fulsome lives about him. A bit lonely, of course, but rather proudly so. Too proudly so to admit even to himself that sometimes the hour for knocking off work brought him only a sort of ebb tide feeling, as if with the end of his workaday there was nothing left. As indeed there was not. For eight years of evenings, Everetts sat them out between the front stoop of his rooming house, his little third-floor back room, the motion-picture theatre and the square of park.

The park interested him most. Here at least were human contacts to be had, even if from the angle of mere spectator. There was an old man who came to meet his son whom Everetts had come to know by smile and nod. Two children under twelve waved to him as they passed every evening on their way to meet their father. There was a girl with red hair who came out to wait for a young man with a mustache that looked like a pale misplaced eyebrow.

Everetts knew many of them by sight and some few of them by nod.

Then there was the girl with the curly brown hair that she wore tied around with a fillet of blue veil in summer. Somebody's little wife, from her settled, demure manner of waiting. Promptly on the stroke of ten she disappeared toward the railroad office buildings. Everetts knew her by the timidest kind of nod. In all the months they had encountered one another in the little park, they had never ventured beyond the merest tilting of the head.

There was an old woman, too, whose grandson must have worked in the railroad office. She had a way of mumbling to herself while she waited, a disturbed old soul with a face as furrowed as a walnut.

Everetts, who liked to sit stretched out on a hypothenuse, with his shoulders across the top of the bench back, his feet out into the road and his hat tilted down over his eyes, knew them all pretty well—he had their lives figured out. Their pastimes. Their loves, their hates. For instance, there was one tired-looking woman who always waited tapping her foot. Her husband drank and would hasten to the first "speak-easy", Everetts figured to himself, unless she headed him off as he came out and steered him to the prison he called home. The old grandmother had lost sons by death, by war and to unworthy women, and with only one grandson left for solace had gone a little daft of her grief.

The little woman with the blue veil for fillet had the sweetest kind of flat imaginable. The mail-order house's best sitting room set. Two canaries that mated. A blue enamel kitchen range. The mail-order catalogue's "sweetheart" make. She had a bookkeeper husband who adored her, and every evening as they walked home from the park he spelled the word darling in tiny pinches along her arm.

The two children under twelve had a widower father—

And so on and so on and so on. To Everetts it was more entertaining than going to the cinema where his plotting and character drawing had all been done for him.

One evening, after a day that had been sultry and enervatingly hot, almost without warning a gale and rain swept the city, sending people scuttling for shelter and almost in a second seeming to lash the streets bare as a bone of humanity and traffic.

In the park, it was almost all Everetts could do to find the shelter of a bit of shed, used during the day as an "Esquimo Pie" vendor's stand.

Even there the wind blew the rain in slants and threatened to drench him. It also drove the little lady of the blue fillet to that same shelter and there they huddled, straining back as best they could from the fury of the gale and the rain which had turned into hail.

For half an hour they crouched together, Everetts finally and against her remonstrance removing his coat to shield her further from the blasting storm.

Through the booming of the thunder, they heard the striking of the hour of ten.

"You'll miss your — your — husband—" shouted Everetts.

"Oh, no—I won't."

"If you'll describe him to me, I'll dart over and tell him where you are—"

"Oh, no! Oh, no—please."

"I'm as wet as I can be already. I don't mind."

"Please—"

"But I insist. Permit me! In which building does he work?"

"Please—"

"If you don't tell me, I'll have to forage around for myself and get all the wetter."

"I—please—there—isn't any—"

"Any what?"

"Husband."

"I beg your pardon. Then your—your—friend—father—I beg your pardon."

"There isn't any—one."

"What do you mean?"

"I—I just like to sit and—and sort of pretend—I'm waiting—there isn't any one, really—oh, how can you make me tell it all—it's just that after the long old office hours all day—where I am employed—it's dull evenings—unless I sit and pretend—I'm waiting, too, for—for—oh, how can you make me tell it?"

"Because," said Everetts slowly through a lull in the storm, "it's the dearest story that has ever been told to me."

Through a flash of receding and pallid lightning, their hungry eyes sought out each other.
