America's space shuttle, the Enterprise, rides atop a 747 Friday on its first test flight

Hospital trustees agree to consider district proposal

By JUDY JOHNSTON

Midland Memorial Hospital board of trustees went on record Friday as being willing to consider the creation of a hospital district in Midland County as an alternative to the present private funding of the hospital.

The motion, approved unanimously by the board, followed a report by Ketcham, Inc., a private fund-raising firm, which indicated the $10 million needed to renovate the hospital probably could not be raised through private sources.

The decision was announced after the board meeting by hospital administrator Wayne Ulrich and newly elected board president Mitchell A. "Mickey" Cappadonna.

Other board members elected during the meeting were John C. Dorn, vice president, and Mrs. Sheila P. Thompson, secretary.

Martin Allday, who proposed the motion, also offered a tentative draft bill for the county's legislators to consider, pending advisement by

Mitchell Cappadonna

McCall, Parkhurst and Horton, a law firm which specializes in advising taxing districts such as hospital and college districts in drafting legislation.

The draft bill proposes the creation of the hospital district after permissive legislation by the legislature and approval by the voters of the proposed hospital district. It also proposes authorizing the tranferring of the title of all land, buildings and equipment owned by Midland Memorial Foundation over to the district. The district then would assume all indebtedness of the foundation.

Whereas the board of trustee bylaws prohibit the trustees from lobbying for any legislation, the trustees would have to present this proposed draft bill as private citizens.

Although the draft bill proposes to transfer title of the building, land and equipment over to the district, the motion presented in the meeting Friday stated that should such a district be created, the trustees would favor the negotiation of a contract between the district and the board of

Space shuttle makes maiden piggyback flight

By GEORGE ALEXANDER
The Los Angeles Times

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The space shuttle, destined to become the Conestoga wagon of space-travel, made its maiden flight here Friday morning — a two-hour-long jaunt on the back of a modified 747 jumbo jet.

The flight was a cautious first test of the combined Boeing 747 mothership and the Rockwell International shuttle orbiter.

At an altitude of 16,000 feet and speeds of up to 287 m.p.h., the flight was far short of the orbital altitudes (between 115 and 690 miles above the earth) and speeds (up to 17,200 m.p.h.) for which the shuttle was designed.

With National Aeronautics and Space Administration pilots Fitzhugh L. Fulton and Thomas C. McMurtry at the controls of the big, silvery 747, the mothership was cleared to take off at 8:30 a.m. by the Edwards control tower.

"She's rolling," one of the pilots reported, as the 747's brakes were released and the mothership began to move.

Despite the great weight of the two vehicles — 265,356 kilograms (585,000 pounds) combined — the jumbo jet quickly gathered speed and lifted easily off the runway at about the 6,000-foot mark.

The big aircraft, with the shuttle orbiter securely fastened to the top of its fuselage by a series of struts, was accompanied during the takeoff and throughout the subsequent flight by a quartet of T-38 chase aircraft.

Two of the chase planes were flown by NASA pilots Richard H. Truly and Joe H. Engle, who some day will fly the shuttle orbiter in space.

Television cameras aboard the T-38s provided a series of remarkable views of the 747-shuttle combination as the two vehicles ran through their paces high above the Mohave Desert. At times, the TV camera on one T-38 caught the other T-38s darting alongside the mothership in piggybacked shuttle like brightly striped tropical fish swimming close to a grouper.

This initial flight test, the first of six in which the cabin of the shuttle orbiter will be unmanned, was intended to evaluate the low-speed performance and handling characteristics of the composite vehicle.

Although pilot Fulton reported some "very, very slight buffeting in the rear (of the 747)" at one point early in the flight, he also reassured ground controllers it was "nothing to worry about."

Later, John Yardley, the NASA associate administrator for space flight, speculated that the buffeting many have been caused by a very slight misalignment of the shuttle on the back of the 747.

The 747 returned to earth at 10:36 a.m., a little more than two hours after it took off, and a NASA spokesman said that "almost all of the major test objectives" were met.

The remaining five unmanned shuttle flights are to be made over the next month or so and then, in May, pilots will begin riding inside the space vehicle as the 747 carries the black, gray and white vehicle — called the Enterprise — on still another series of captive flights.

Carter wants to add 600 positions to EPA staff

By GRAYSON MITCHELL
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration will ask Congress for an extra $11 million for the Environmental Protection Agency to provide for 600 new jobs within the coming year, it was learned Friday.

Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, made the disclosure at a closed-door meeting with representatives of six national environmental groups, according to informed sources.

Environmentalists and the agency have charged that EPA is understaffed.

Some of the proposed professional-level jobs reportedly will be filled by persons recruited from outside government, with the remainder to be assigned to government civil servants transferred from other federal agencies.

Sources said Lance held out the possibility that EPA may receive even more money to increase its staff size if subsequent government-wide performance studies show the agency to be as inadequately financed as EPA officials and environmentalists have contended.

Officials at EPA and the Office of Management and Budget declined comment on the matter.

But Arlie Schardt, executive director of the Environmental Defense Fund, said at the conclusion of the 45-minute meeting in Lance's office that adding new employes at EPA was "the exact opposite of what we have faced" in previous administrations. "It's a worthy development."

Schardt and leaders of 15 other environmental groups requested the meeting after Lance informed EPA officials by letter in late January that budget reductions proposed by the Ford Administration were not likely to be restored.

Lance had said later that it was a "guidance letter" sent to the agency, not a declaration of the administration's budget priorities.

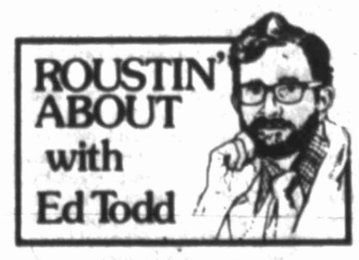

Nonetheless, many environmentalists expressed alarm. They regarded the EPA budget decision as a test of Carter's commitment to protect and enhance the environment.

Former EPA administrator Russell E. Train said shortly before leaving office that the Ford administration had denied the agency adequate funds to fulfill its mission.

He said EPA didn't have enough people to enforce many of the environmental protection laws Congress has ordered it to enforce. Among these was the water pollution control program and the Toxic Substances Control Act, which prohibits chemical companies from marketing substances that contain chemicals

Marion Fisher puts life into her living

If Marion Fisher sometimes sounds like a silver-haired philosopher, perhaps that's because she is faring, oh, so well in an age that had rather be ageless.

After all, she's only 59. And it is with eagerness that she awaits more of those years called the Golden Age.

More precisely, Mrs. Fisher is not going to await anything. She puts life into her living.

And living takes time, and time drifts into years. Let the years fly by in joy.

"And, of course," the looking-ahead lady said, "the alternative is death, and I don't think that I'm quite ready for that, yet."

Mrs. Fisher, who, not by chance, runs into Golden Age folks all the time, considers herself "steeped in old age."

And aging is as natural as anything, including fleeing youth.

But some people don't look at it thataway, said Mrs. Fisher, who is director of Senior Services. SS is a senior-citizen outreach program sponsored by Midland's First Christian Church.

"Aging to some people is a real bugaboo," she said in the busy comfort of her office. "And it's not something they look forward to at all."

However, many, like Mrs. Fisher, do. Just look at the alternative — as

Texas firms to divert natural gas

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Friday that Texas electric utility firms have voluntarily agreed to divert about 9 billion cubic feet of natural gas to interstate pipelines over the next month.

Hobby said the agreement is "positive indication" of the state's cooperation toward relieving personal and economic hardships caused by natural gas shortages during the abnormally cold winter.

"A voluntary agreement has been reached between the Federal Power Commission and a number of Texas utility firms that for the next month will be committing 300 million cubic feet of additional gas a day to the interstate systems and will over the course of the next month approximate 9 billion cubic feet," he said.

Hobby made the annouoncement at a meeting at which FPC Chairman Richard Dunham briefed producers, pipeliners and distributors on President Carter's Emergency Natural Gas Act.

Alan Erwin, a member of the Texas Utility Commission, indicated the voluntary deliveries could continue beyond a month.

"We intend to continue this voluntary program as long as it is needed or as long as we can do so without impacting the liability of deliverability of electricity to Texas consumers," Erwin said.

Erwin received assurances from Dunham federal regulations would not prevent fair prices for replacement of the gas.

"We need some assurances the gas we release comes back at a fair price and that we are going to be able to replace that gas whatever the cost," Erwin told Dunham.

"We are talking about voluntary sales so it seems to me the replacement cost will have to be mutually agreed upon by the parties involved," Dunham said.

Dunham said the emergency program is working well and that every effort is being made to minimize red tape.

"Well over a half billion cubic feet of gas is flowing daily to curtailed consumers, with the potential for another half billion soon, and eventually even more," he said.

"None of this gas would have been moving to consumers had the emergency act not been in effect."

Dunham said the pace of regular FPC procedures also "has switched into overdrive."

"The result has been, in addition to the gas resulting from the emergency act, over a billion cubic feet of gas each day is now flowing under FPC provisions, and more is expected," he said.

Study finds kids' play patterns the same

Newsday

NEW YORK — Almost everyone agrees with the latest research, that little girls are not made of sugar and spice, let alone everything nice. Probably never were, in fact, despite the old myth.

But would a good hard slide into third base, followed by a heated safe-or-out argument, help to shape the little girl of today into tomorrow's successful woman?

The question is tacitly raised by sociologist Janet Lever, who just completed a year of watching fifth graders at play and noted some disturbing differences in how girls spend their leisure time compared with boys.

The little girls of today may be heading toward the workaday world in numbers greater than ever before, but at age 11 they are still playing at the old stand, Lever found. Local educators agree this can be a problem and have specific ideas on what they, and parents, must do to start young girls on the long road to a place in the world of competition. First off, they must recognize the actual play patterns and what seems to be behind them.

In her study, prepared for Ms magazine, Lever found that fashion dolls and indoor board games still occupied the unliberated majority of 10 and 11-year-olds once they had outgrown the hopscotch and jacks of younger days. Meanwhile, their male counterparts were roaring on the playing fields, learning to cooperate and compete and win, preparing perhaps for corporate battles to come. Watching 181 boys and girls for nearly a year, Lever recorded these differences:

—Girls tended to play indoors, limiting their play areas, their body movement and their vocal expression. Boys preferred outdoor play — team sports or fantasy games like "War."

—Boys played in larger groups, since team sports require more players than board games or dolls. "A boy with a bat can attract neighborhood kids to an empty lot in a way that a girl with a doll cannot," Lever noted.

—Boys played in more mixed-age groups, struggling for every chance to compete with older boys.

—Boys were more likely to accept a girl in their games if there was a shortage of boy players. But they faced ridicule if they played in a girls' game.

—On the threshold of adolesence, girls tended to become bored with the games of childhood, while boys continued to use and enjoy skills learned at 8 or 9 years old, such as baseball.

"These sex-tracked play experiences," Lever said, "take their toll in later life." Because more boys engage in team sports — and are expected to — they learn to resolve disputes more quickly, Lever found. Girls, on the other hand, in less cooperative, competitive exercises, "gain little experience in the judicial process."

Thus, play for the fifth grade boy, Lever observed, provides "a direct rehearsal" for competitive work situations and survival in the adult world.

But changes are on the way, two local educators agree, suggesting that team play for girls is a key answer to solving some of the problems isolated by Lever.

"Extending equal opportunity for competition to girls is the top priority today, in the elementary school as well as the junior and senior highs," according to Donald Erger. But like many of his colleagues, Erger does not believe that mandatory mixed athletics is necessarily the answer, especially for pre-adolescents.

However, federal regulations, familiarly known as Title IX, now require equality in programming for boys and girls, including athletics. Erger says he believes that this kind of change in tradition "has to eventually be carried over" into the afterschool play style girls and boys evolve themselves.

But, Erger added, at age 11, boys and girls are insecure, more comfortable with their own peers, in terms of sex and age. In group games, boys tend to be more able at this age and boys and girls tend to segregate themselves. (Lever observed that most girls played "turn-taking"

Task force says King investigation correct

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI investigated Dr. Martin Luther King's death thoroughly and honestly and concluded correctly that James Earl Ray was the lone assassin, a Justice Department task force reported Friday.

Though mysteries linger in the case, there is no new evidence warranting further investigation, the task force of five lawyers and two research analysts said.

"The task force has concluded that the investigation by the FBI to ascertain and capture the murderer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was thoroughly, honestly and successfully conducted," the report said. "The sum of all of the evidence of Ray's guilt points to him so exclusively that it most effectively makes the point that no one else was involved."

The task force concluded that various conspiracy theories, including those advanced by Ray himself, are without foundation. Ray's stories are contradictory and self-serving, the report said.

The FBI, despite its longterm and probably illegal campaign to harass King and discredit him as a civil rights leader, generally undertook an aggressive probe of his murder on a motel balcony in Memphis on April 4, 1968, the task force said. It added that the bureau checked out the conspiracy theories but found nothing to them.

Warm weather to continue

The summer-like weather which typified most of this week should continue through this weekend, the weatherman said.

Conditions should be fair through Sunday, with temperatures not so warm today and warmer Sunday, said a National Weather Service spokesman at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Winds should be from the north to northeast at 10 to 15 mph today and become light and variable tonight.

The high today should be in the upper 60s, followed by a low tonight in the mid-30s. The high Sunday is expected to be in the lower 70s.

inevitable as it is.

"Well, I do like it," Mrs. Fisher said. "I like being as old as I am (and can be), whatever that may be.

". . . I don't think I'd like to go through the trauma of being a teenager again. I think every age has its problems and every age has its compensations."

She talked openly about those vital things the experience of aging should bring: knowledge, wisdom to enjoy and nurture life, independence, and a sense of worth.

Mrs. Fisher has will. She cares for what the past has wrought, for what the present is, and for what the future may bring.

"And I'm old enough to know that both the world and me are going to survive for awhile. And I'm not going to give up on either."

To Mrs. Fisher, the Golden Age, which may begin as early as age 55, should be a fulfilling experience.

Each member of mankind, ideally, should be able to age in grace.

And with the passage years, people should nurture "alertness, the concern of what goes on around them, and the commitment to leave the world a little better than they found it."

To sail, and not drift, into old age, "You need to prepare emotionally, you need to prepare financially, (and) you need to prepare intellectually."

"(Otherwise), it can be a time of stagnation," the widowed Mrs. Fisher said.

"Nowhere in the Bible does it say 'Thou shalt not age,'" she said. And Mrs. Fisher's commitment to herself and to other "senior citizens" in the outreach program is to age in years "as gracefully as possible."

Hospital trustees agree to consider proposal

trustees concerning the ownership and management of the hospital facilities.

Further, the motion recommended the retaining of a law firm, McCall, Parkhurst and Horton, to guide the hospital foundation in making certain that the contemplated legislation will permit the foundation to enter into the contract with the district.

The retaining of Raushcher-Pierce Security Corp. and other advisory or consulting groups as may be needed also was recommended.

In order for a hospital district to be created, permissive legislation would have to be approved by a simple majority of the Texas house and senate with the signature by the governor. This legislation would allow Midland County five years to hold an election on the matter, Cappadonna said.

If the referendum rejected the creation of a hospital district, the board of trustees would continue in its efforts to raise the funds from private sources, he said.

If the district were approved by the Midland County residents, however, the district would be created in a manner similar to Midland College district. The resulting general obligation bond would increase property taxes.

Ulrich cited that an owner of a $50,000 home would pay an additional $51 per year in ad valorem taxes.

The tax base for the district would be Midland County if the district were created, Cappadonna said. The county tax assessor-collector would handle taxation for a fee paid by the district, in order not to create another tax office with a staff, according to tentative plans for the district.

The county would have no control over the management of the hospital, nor would it have to help fund indigent care (as it does now), if the hospital district were created, Cappadonna said.

Cappadonna emphasized that the legislation to permit a referendum on the district is only an alternative if they are unable to raise the $10 million through private funds.

The $10 million, whether raised through private sources or through a tax district, would enable the hospital to continue with its master plan, including the construction of a critical care unit and expansion of the hospitals's bed capacity to 235 from a maximum capacity of 175 now, Cappadonna said.

The decision to consider a hospital district was a move of expedience, Cappadonna said, because of time factors involved.

The cut-off date for any new legislation to be introduced is March 11 and would have to follow 30 days of public notice. If the legislation were not introduced during this session, there would be a two-year delay before it could be introduced.

Faced with this and the fact that a preliminary report by Ketcham indicated that $10 million in private funds probably would not be available, the board voted unanimously to approve the motion, Cappadonna said.

Ketcham has been conducting a series of small meetings with "opinion molders" of the community to determine both the medical needs of the community and how best to fund the needs.

About one-half of the 400 persons in the target group have been interviewed, Cappadonna said, and the predominant feeling of the persons interviewed has been that private funding is no longer feasible.

Persons interviewed included those who had donated to the foundation in the past, members of the hospital medical staff and hospital employes.

The tentative draft bill to go to the legislators provides that the title to land, buildings, improvements, equipment and other property owned by the hospital foundation be transferred to the district.

The district, according to the draft bill, would assume all indebtedness of the foundation for hospital purposes before the creation of the district.

The draft bill proposes that the election to create a district may be called by a majority of the temporary directors or by a majority of the temporary directors on presentation of a petition signed by at least 100 electors. Then the election should be held not less than 25 nor more than 60 days from the date the election is ordered, according to the draft bill.

The election would concern both the creation of the district and the approval of levying annual taxes at a rate not to exceed 75 cents on the $100 valuation on all taxable property within the district, according to the draft bill.

Carter wants to add 600 positions to EPA

potentially dangerous to public health and safety.

Last year, the Ford administration's budget provided for 130 of the 2,756 new jobs EPA requested, according to agency officials. The agency has 9,481 full-time employes, at an average yearly salary of $18,500.

The extra $11 million in jobs the administration plans to request will be in addition to the $802 million budget the Ford administration proposed for the next fiscal year.

The EPA's operating budget for the previous year was $718 million.

Although Lance gave no classification breakdown for the 600 new jobs, it is likely that many of the new professional positions will be designed to bolster EPA's water antipollution enforcement program, regarded by critics as the agency's most seriously understaffed division.

The final budget Ford submitted to Congress in January called for 99 persons to be cut from the program's existing staff. Agency officials had requested 395 new jobs.

The Carter administration is drafting revisions to that budget.

Environmental organizations represented at Friday's meeting were the Environmental Defense Fund, the National Wildlife Federation, the National Audubon Society, Natural Resources Defense Council, American Forestry Assn. and the International Assn. of Fish and Wildlife Agencies.

Man in city jail says he's fighting for life

By JIM STEINBERG

"I'm caught between the C.I.A., the FBI, the IRS and the syndicate," William R. Doyle of Arlington said of his plight in the Midland City Jail Friday.

The 35-year-old Arlington resident lists his occupation as oil producer and is awaiting trial in federal court on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States, theft from interstate storage facility, unlawful sale of fraudulently acquired goods, and aiding and abetting the commission of offense.

"I'm fighting for my life in this case. That's what it comes down to," Doyle said.

He and Hamilton Cletis Jones and David Kaplan were indicted Sept. 14 by a Midland federal grand jury on allegations that they deceived Dallas Pipe officers and their employees by inducing them to place an order for 17,649 feet of oil field pipe and depriving them (Dallas Pipe) of their rightful broker's commission.

The suit alleges "it was part of the conspiracy that William R. Doyle would place a telephone call to an officer of Dallas Pipe and state that he was associated with A.C.E. International Ltd.; that he was in the process of drilling oil wells; that he was placing an immediate delivery order for oil field pipe and that he would have payments for the pipe wired from a bank in the Bahamas through Hamilton Cletis Jones.

"It was further part of the conspiracy that Hamilton Cletis Jones and David Kaplan would meet an officer of Dallas Pipe in Miami, Fla., to thereby cause the delivery of the pipe to Midland.

"It was further a part of the conspiracy that Hamilton Cletis Jones would go to Midland, represent himself to be associated with A.C.E. International Ltd. for the purpose of obtaining delivery of the pipe and arrange for its resale to United Supply."

Doyle said the case has "international" ramifications, involving numerous offshore drilling trusts, and the powers involved have him fearful for his life.

"I'll be doomed if I take the stand and doomed if I don't take the stand," he said.

games rather than truly competitive, success-oriented ones.)

"If the opportunities are equal, then the self-segregation at this age isn't necessarily bad," Erger says.

Erger suggests many of today's 11-year-old girls have already been influenced by forces other than those connected with "the thrust for equality" in recent years. But timing is important.

—Overnight change in the manners of children cannot be expected, despite "those zealots," as Erger calls them, who even press for immediate integration of body contact sports, including wrestling.

—Meanwhile, Erger says that girls' softball leagues have become "just as exciting, as fierce, as enthusiastic, as dedicated, as we as boys remember it to be."

—In the longer view, the key standard will be "the opportunity for success," a view shared by Erger and principal Maureen A. Hartigan. She sees pre-adolescents as citizens of "their own vacuum," identifying primarily with their peers, acting out a natural maturation.

Hartigan says it is as if the children were withdrawing within their own group while at the same time just becoming aware of their own maleness or femaleness.

"I don't think we can change things," she says, "but boys and girls can meet on wholesome ground later if we supervise well today." She too says she feels that team play, which permits a new generation of girls to share the "joys of competing and winning," will erase some of the old inequities.

But, Hartigan reflects, at age 11 girls are still going to stick together. "Like glue."

Man robbed near home

McCree Young, 48, 802 E. Washington Ave., told Midland police he was hit over the head and robbed of $132 as he approached his house at about 7 a.m. Friday.

Young said he had gotten out of a taxicab in front of his home and was attacked soon afterwards.

He was treated for head lacerations at Midland Memorial Hospital and released.

FIRM BURGLARIZED

High Sky Painting Co. was burglarized sometime Thursday night or Friday morning and $420 in spray paint equipment was stolen. The burglary was discovered at 8 a.m. by employe Hans Roweck.

BOMB THREAT

Employes and customers were evacuated from Commercial Bank and Trust Co., 2301 W. Wall St., about 3:30 p.m. Friday after a telephone caller said a bomb was in the bank. No bomb was found.

President withdraws diplomat's nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter on Friday withdrew the nomination of career diplomat Malcolm Toon to be ambassador to the Soviet Union — a post Toon now occupies under a temporary appointment.

The State Department insisted the President's pullback of the nomination was in no way linked with the substance of American-Soviet relations.

"This is a routine action taken by every new administration to permit the new President to review the appointments of his predecessor," a State Department spokesman said. "This is a government-wide pullback of presidential nominations."

The action came as one of a lengthy list of withdrawals of nominations made by former President Gerald R. Ford during his final three weeks in office.

When Ford first proposed Toon for the Moscow post, the Soviets delayed agreeing to his choice until after the presidential election. By the time Toon was proclaimed acceptable to the Kremlin, Congress had recessed for the year so he was dispatched under a recess appointment.

Ford formally submitted Toon's nomination to the Senate on Jan. 6.

The Soviet Union reportedly was cool to Ford's nominee on grounds that Toon was a Cold War hard-liner.

Also withdrawn was the controversial nomination of Jack B. Olson to be ambassador to the Bahamas, which also was also submitted by Ford on Jan. 6.

Olson, 56, was another of Ford's appointments lacking Senate confirmation.

He was a three-term lieutenant governor of Wisconsin and supported Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Fights at Lee High bring policemen as 'precaution'

After the second fight in two days, Midland police were asked onto the Lee High School grounds in what was described as "a precaution" to prevent further fighting.

About 12 policemen arrived at the school at 10 a.m. Friday to prevent further fights from occurring during the unusually warm weather, Dr. Joe Smith, Lee High School principal, said.

Five students were suspended after three fights during the two-day period, Smith said.

"The students were congregating in groups. We felt it might be leading to a bad situation," Smith said. No classes were interrupted because of the incidents, Smith said.

The policemen moved onto the campus after the second incident and stayed there until the last class was over at 3:10 p.m. Those officers remaining at the school during that time included assistant chief Maj. Sid Corely, two captains, two lieutenants and officers from the narcotic, detective, uniformed and juvenile divisions.

Police Chief Wayne Gideon met with Smith twice and as a result of those meetings, a decision was made to add two officers to the two regularly assigned for duty at the school Monday, Smith said.

"By Monday I expect this whole thing to have quieted down," Smith said.

Only a few pupils participate in classroom activities Friday in Hale Junior High School in Woodland Hills, a Los Angeles suburb. More than half the students stayed away from classes in the predominantly white west San Fernando Valley where a boycott had been called to oppose busing for integration.

Thousands boycott classes at L A schools

By BILL GARDNER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of students in the sprawling Los Angeles public school system boycotted classes Friday in an apparent protest against proposed busing for integration.

More than half the students in the predominantly white west San Fernando Valley stayed away from school, but officials said other areas in the Los Angeles Unified School District were not seriously affected by the boycott.

The school district said 51 per cent of the nearly 52,000 students attending west Valley schools were absent. Some other zones in the district reported absences ranging from 20 per cent to 35 per cent.

Normal Friday absences in the 600-school, 600,000-pupil system run about 10 per cent, a district spokesman said. But he said the combination of a winter heat wave and the Washington's Birthday three-day weekend could make the figure higher.

The boycott apparently stemmed from a leaflet campaign urging parents to keep their children out of classes.

"If you believe in neighborhood schools — join us. If you are opposed to forced busing — join us. Keep your children out of school," one of the anonymous leaflets said.

The Board of Education, ordered by a Superior Court judge to desegregate, has been studying proposals drawn up by a citizens advisory panel in efforts to find a workable plan.

In 1975, when the last survey was conducted, 40 per cent of Los Angeles public school pupils were white, 30 per cent were Spanish-surnames and 25 per cent were black. The remaining 5 per cent was classified as "other."

School officials said they have not been able to find the leaders of the leaflet campaign but warned they could be charged with felonies. Parents who kept their children out of school in support of the boycott could face misdemeanor charges.

Labor talks to include attack on automation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communications Workers of America served notice Friday that an attack on automation and a better break for women will be prime objectives when it opens the year's biggest labor negotiations.

Glenn E. Watts, CWA president, said that talks for contracts to cover 500,000 members employed by the Bell System will be held in Washington, probably in the spring although no date has been set.

Although the current United Steelworkers' negotiations with the 10 largest steel producers may have larger economic import for the nation, they deal with fewer actual employees, 340,000.

A lifetime job security plan is the leading demand of the Steelworkers, who began their talks earlier this week. The plan already has stirred controversy as the Council on Wage and Price Stability issued a report Monday warning that such a program could result in fewer jobs over the long run.

In a news conference laced with an unusually heavy dose of strike talk for this early in the game, Watts said the CWA wants a contract "that would protect workers against technological unemployment or erosion of existing jobs."

Traditionally automation has not been a particular concern for the CWA because job losses it can cause have been offset by the rapid growth of the telephone industry. But in the three years since the last negotiations, 100,000 jobs have been lost within the Bell System, Watts said.

"With the general downturn in the economy and simultaneously some of the most advanced technology being introduced into the communications industry, we have come to the point where we must take a new look at this problem," Watts said.

The emphasis on women's status was believed to be the first time any major union has made this a principal bargaining issue in contract negotiations. Women comprise about 55 per cent of the union's membership.

The current three-year contracts between CWA and 32 arms of the Bell System expire Aug. 6, and negotiations for new pacts must open at least 60 days prior to that. Watts said he expects an early beginning to allow a settlement before then, but he said the union would be ready to strike if no agreement is reached.

S.A. bid rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain have rejected for the time being a South African bid for early three-nation talks on the Rhodesian crisis.

Diplomatic officials of the two countries said Friday that, instead, ranking U.S and British envoys will meet in Washington next week to assess the prospect for a new attempt at a Rhodesian settlement.

If they agree that high-level talks with Prime Minister John Vorster's government would be advisable, then Washington and London will first seek to consult the five so-called "frontline states" of black Africa that are near Rhodesia, the sources said.

Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov's luck holds

MOSCOW (AP) — Vilified as a traitor and living on the very edge of Soviet law, dissident Andrei D. Sakharov's luck still holds, probably because of the enormous publicity he has received in the West, fellow dissidents say.

The 55-year-old nuclear physicist and Nobel Peace Prize winner openly welcomes scores of visitors to his two-room apartment every week and converses freely by telephone with his supporters.

He is encouraged even more now by a letter of support from President Carter that he picked up at the U.S. Embassy on Thursday. Carter, in reply to a letter from Sakharov, said human rights were a "central concern" of his administration and pledged to use his "good offices to seek the release of prisoners of conscience."

Though Sakharov has been warned by the KGB security police about his activities and once even admitted striking a police officer, he has never been arrested.

So long as he can survive, he is commited to using his unique position to advance the Soviet dissident cause.

"Everyone comes here — tourists, journalists, people from Amnesty International," says Yelena, his wife, sitting on a chair in a corner of the disorderly book-lined apartment. Seven members of the Sakharov family live there, converting sofas into beds at night.

Sakharov regularly invites foreign journalists to his home for press conferences, dines at the homes of Western correspondents and diplomats in Moscow and visits dissidents around the country. Sometimes he attends dissidents' trials.

Although his international telephone service has been cut off, he uses his home telephone as a message center for dissident news within Moscow. Surprisingly, his postal service continues to function and he sometimes gets 20 letters a week from Soviet citizens who have heard of him and want his help with their problems.

"I think they let me get those letters because they realize I can't do anything to really help these people," Sakharov said in an interview with The Associated Press on Friday. He explained he was unable to verify the authenticity of the letters and therefore could not take up the writers' causes.

He criticized the Kremlin's charge of American interference in Soviet internal affairs and the threat that it could complicate arms talks and other detente matters.

"How can the defense of political prisoners affect control of nuclear arms?" said Sakharov, a leading developer of the Soviet hydrogen bomb. "Everyone needs strategic arms limits. We're talking about saving humanity from perishing."

Despite Sakharov's continued freedom, he and his wife report many pressures in their lives. These include threatening and obscene telephone calls and letters, purportedly from ordinary Soviet citizens disgusted with their dissident activites.

There is also surveillance by KGB security police, regular vilification in the press and one severe warning from the KGB on Jan. 25 that Sakharov could be jailed.

They're habit forming

Deregulation is very much on the minds of Americans as President Carter and Congress struggle to cope with the shortage of natural gas in the East. Deregulation of natural gas prices for a few months is at the heart of the new authority President Carter has that will permit him to spread inadequate supplies among areas of greater need.

Only the insensitive could quarrel with the emergency powers that have been invoked in the last few weeks to avert as much human suffering and hardship as possible.

At the same time, we believe it is also important for Americans to keep the word "regulation" uppermost in mind. Without a doubt, the United States today is experiencing an unprecedented peacetime level of governmental controls.

For example, President Carter also has the authority to disturb long-standing energy contracts to move fuel from one area to another. Even the Jones Act has been suspended for the moment to permit foreign ships to carry oil from one American port to another.

At the state level, Gov. Brendan T. Bryne ordered residents of New Jersey to lower thermostats to 65 degrees. He added that state inspectors would check homes and cite violators with disorderly conduct.

Additionally, New Jersey Public Utilities Commission President Joel R. Jacobson ordered all stores containing areas of more than 4,000 square feet to close on Mondays.

In South Carolina, Gov. James B. Edwards arbitrarily ordered cutbacks of gas to consumers using more than 50,000 Btu per day.

Even in California, which has no natural gas supply crisis, the Public Utilities Commission ordered thermostats set at 65 degrees and told Californians to turn off pool heaters and forego ornamental fires for the duration.

All of these actions are in response to genuine emergencies. The disturbing thought is that the end of the energy emergency is not in sight and the regulations just might become a way of life. Controls are habit-forming as well as tranquilizing.

Even the New York Times, which ordinarily eyes Draconian actions warily, was moved to say it would be "wrong to mount the civil liberties pulpit in order to thunder against" the mandates of Gov. Bryne.

During his confirmation hearings, John F. Leary, who has been nominated as director of the Federal Energy Administration, spoke favorably of "mandatory conservation," particularly the winterization of old homes. Americans, he added, will be forced to practice conservation in ways that "cut across the way we do business in this country."

James R. Schlesinger, President Carter's chief energy adviser, tried to calm the waters with the footnote "I don't think that we want Congress to dictate what happens in American homes."

Fair enough. But unless Congress gets into harness and develops a comprehensive energy program, and unless Americans begin to take energy conservation seriously, Mr. Schlesinger's wish may well be dashed. And millions of homes will be underheated and overregulated.

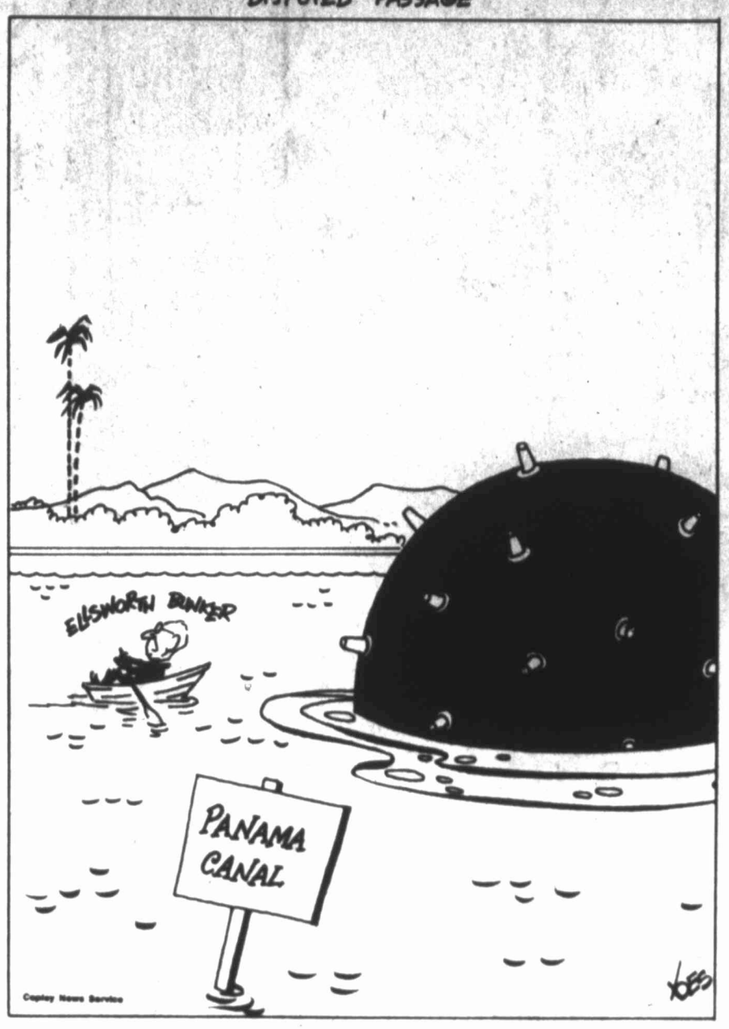

To the Queen!

Britain joined with traditional savoir faire in the Bicentennial of the American Revolution. The United States can reciprocate as the United Kingdom celebrates the silver jubilee of its queen, Elizabeth II.

The sceptered isle became great during the long reign of her namesake, Elizabeth I. It flew its flag over a quarter of the world while the present monarch's great-great-grandmother, Victoria, ruled. History has been less kind to Elizabeth II. Her empire is gone and hard times are visiting her people, bloodying her reign with quarrels which began centuries before she was born.

Through good and bad, she has done what the times required of her with dignity and grace. We wish her and her nation well. God save the queen. She symbolizes a stability which is unwavering, whatever misfortunes befall her nation.

DISPUTED PASSAGE

A CHANGING WORLD:

Americans help build new Israeli city

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

YAMIT, Israel — Twelve American Jewish families are part of a new city of 1,300 here on a beautiful Mediterranean beach that actually is part of Jew-hating Egypt.

Plans are for Yamit to one day be a city of 250,000 — an Israeli city — and if all this is confusing it at least tells you the limits to which Israel is willing to go in returning occupied Egyptian territory to Cairo's President Anwar Sadat.

The Israelis conquered this land and all other Sinai territory to Suez that was part of Egypt until the 1967 Six-Day War.

The fact that they are trying to build a new combination resort-full year city here indicates any settlement will place the Egyptian-Israeli frontier considerably further to the west.

Zvi Arenstein, 27, a pioneer here since October, 1975, and once a journalist in Albany, N.Y., illustrates clearly the reality of this new city experiment. "Actually, we don't think much about Egypt or the possibility that this land might be returned to Egypt someday," he said in an interview in the two-bedroom second-floor apartment he shares with his wife, Jennifer, formerly of Wilmington, Del. "When we do talk about it, we agree that the (Israeli) government wouldn't have spent $35 million to get this city going if it planned to return it to Egypt."

Yamit is 72 miles west of Tel Aviv on the Mediterranean and about 25 miles west of the Gaza Strip — and it is often a lonely life for the young Americans, many ex-Russians and other European settlers. There is no industry here yet, jobs are difficult to find and a busy social life is still in the future. The big event on the day of this visit was to be watching Archie Bunker on a tiny black-and-white TV.

Arenstein admits that "some nights I'm ready to climb the wall, but the newspaper keeps me busy and Jennifer enjoys her English teaching job in the high school not far from here. We're lucky that we have a car and get into Tel Aviv once in awhile."

He runs a Hebrew language weekly paper in Yamit, and while it is primitive by most standards, he is in on the ground floor of what could be a big enterprise if Yamit ever gets anywhere close to the 250,000 population goal.

Chaim and Sarah Feifel, formerly of Cincinnati and Miami, respectively, are other young Americans caught up in the nationalistic enthusiasm that has brought U.S. immigrants to the Jewish state. They run a variety store — in one of the apartments — "and," Sarah said, "we look forward to the completion of the shopping center soon. Then we'll really be in business."

Apartments built by the Israeli government are two-story stucco structures and reasonably comfortable. They include a washing machine, other necessities — but telephones are a dream of the future. The government subsidizes rents, the Arensteins paying $20 a month.

The future of Yamit may well be as a resort center. The sky is blue and the sun is warm most of the year. The sand is a fine white and the beaches are ideal for the vacationing set. While sand and stucco dominate the "city," there is fresh water close to the surface and lush vegetable gardens grow less than 500 yards from the salt water beach.

The area surrounding Yamit is the scene of busy Israeli produce and flower farms, including areas several miles further into once Egyptian land. One might wonder why the Egyptians never developed the area because the crops are bountiful — tomatoes, citrus, cabbage and many other varieties that bring big export prices as Israel sends two 747 jumbo plane loads of produce to European cities every night.

Even the nearby Gaza Strip has a new look.

Israel has built modest stucco apartments to replace the horrible refugee camps that still dot beach areas, and Arabs are moving in. Some work for the Israelis in farm and industrial labor, and their shops in Gaza City have a look of prosperity that didn't exist during this reporter's last visit in November, 1972.

Palestinian Liberation Organization terrorists try to force Gaza refugees to refuse Israeli jobs and to refuse relocation to the new apartment complexes. They seem to be failing and the great number of Arab-owned Mercedes-Benz autos in Gaza indicate the Arabs prefer Israeli prosperity to terrorism.

This whole former Egyptian area is a study in Israeli determination never to give it back to Sadat.

That determination seems sufficient for people like Zvi Arenstein and other young Americans to stake their future on pioneering a new city like Yamit.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

More atrocities in Canal Zone

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The United States must soon decide whether to give up the Panama Canal Zone, a colonial strip that is offensive to all Latin America.

We warned on Nov. 20, 1976, citing secret intelligence reports, that the canal issue was a "ticking time bomb" about to explode.

President Jimmy Carter gave it top priority after he took charge of foreign affairs. He dispatched a crack negotiating team, headed by the veteran diplomat Ellsworth Bunker, to Panama this week. Its secret instructions are to seek a reasonable formula that will permit the United States to relinquish sovereignty over this strip of Panamanian territory.

But there are some flies in the diplomatic ointment. Ominous cracks have appeared, for example, in the Panananian economy. Dictators habitually try to divert public attention from their domestic failures by stirring up an emotional issue. There is concern that Panama's military dictator, Omar Torrijos, might forego a reasonable settlement and use the canal as a political issue.

President Carter, for his part, has pledged to restore morality to U.S. foreign policy and to take a stand against nations that abuse human rights. He has just received a confidential report from Rep. John Murphy, D.-N.Y., about torture under Torrijos. Murphy pointedly urged the president not to surrender the Panama Canal until the allegations have been cleared up.

The disturbing report, written and translated in Panana under extreme duress, was smuggled out of the country. Some of its allegations have been confirmed by diplomatic sources.

The report charges that Torrijos' political opponents have been shot, drowned, beaten, sexually abused and electrically shocked. It names 32 people who allegedly have been murdered by the Torrijos government.

For example, a Roman Catholic priest, Hector Gallegos, was arrested by the Panamanian National Guard in June, 1971. He had been organizing agricultural cooperatives in his impoverished parish. Apparently, he found himself working against the interests of some local relatives of the Panamanian dictator. Diplomatic sources confirm that Gallegos has not been heard from since.

"The usual pattern," states the report, "is that a person is arrested without a warrant and without accusation, and then the authorities deny any knowledge of their whereabouts. Sometimes the victim is released after question or torture or both, and sometimes nothing more is heard about the victim."

The state police seldom allow relatives to claim the victims' abused bodies. But the report alleges that four bodies — those of student Marlene Mendizabel, student Dorita Moreno, lawyer Ruben Miro and Eduardo White — were recovered and showed evidence of torture.

There are no individual rights in Panama where, the report alleges, "the unwarranted search of homes by the military police is an everyday happening." The report includes affidavits and details about the torture that is inflicted.

It also charges, as we reported in 1973, that members of Torrijos' family and high Panamanian officials are involved in international narcotics smuggling.

These allegations could upset the delicate negotiations for a new Panama Canal treaty.

Footnote: A Panamanian Embassy spokesman said the charges were fabricated by American opponents of a new canal treaty and Panamanian opponents of the Torrijos regime. He invited us to visit Panama to see for ourselves whether there is torture, an invitation we will be happy to accept if we can be guaranteed access, unannounced, to any prisons we wish to inspect, without government escort. Only proven terrorists, agitators and subversives have been exiled rather than being jailed, said the spokesman.

OILING THE WHEELS — Senate Finance Chairmen Russell Long, D.-La., the unabashed champion of the oil and gas interests, beat back an attempt last month to curb his power.

Afterward, the grateful Long dispatched private letters to the senators who supported him. He was "very grateful," he wrote, that the senators had let the committee and "me as chairman" continued to use "our best judgment" on tax matters. Added Long: "You will not be disappointed."

A spokesman for the senator was aghast at the thought that Long might be hinting he will return the favor from his well oiled resources.

CHIMNEY WASTE — A Small device that could cut residential gas consumption by 20 per cent to 30 per cent is being kept off the market by the American Gas Association. The inexpensive device could save our energy-starved nation the equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil a day.

The Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has developed the device, which costs about $35 to install in old furnaces. One part restricts the size of the flue, the other reduces the flame in oversized furnaces. In Michigan, where many chimneys are 40 times too large, the device cut homeowners' gas bills by 26 per cent.

But no one can buy the device because the American Gas Association won't approve it. A spokesman said the association has no authority to approve the device until it has been brought before the proper committee.

But Rep. John Dingell, D.-Mich., accused the gas industry of "foot-dragging" with its "snail-like procedure" of approving devices.

INSIDE REPORT:

The Letelier letters reveal his work in Washington

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Before his assassination in Washington last September, exiled Chilean Orlando Letelier was leading a campaign to "mobilize" liberal Congressmen against Chile's military government while concealing world Communist support for his movement — including funds from Cuba which helped finance a Congressman's trip to Mexico.

Letelier arranged the Mexican trip for Rep. Michael Harrington of Massachusetts, House sponsor of the successful 1976 amendment to stop aid for the Chilean junta. Harrington's trip to an Oaxtepec, Mexico, conference in November 1975 was sponsored by the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS), a left-wing think tank based in Washington. It was financed by $544.26, ostensibly from IPS.

But of that total, $174.26 came out of Letelier's secret political fund from Cuba, and the remainder may also have had foreign origin. Harrington told us he was not informed that any of the funds had a foreign source and "had no reason to ask."

Details of Harrington's trip come from previously undisclosed documents contained in Letelier's attache case, which survived the fatal bomb blast set off in his auto. What's more confidential papers that Letelier, foreign minister in Chile's Marxist Allende regime carried around with him show frequent correspondence (addressed to "comrades") with East Berlin and Havana—two citadels of Communist oppression. His personal telephone book lists. Julian Rizo, Cuban spy based at the UN.

Since East German and Cuban police activities are now intertwined with the Soviet KGB, the Kremlin's hand was behind Letelier's campaign to promote Chilean "human rights" on Capitol Hill. Mike Harrington's unwitting acceptance of Cuban expense money is only a particularly embarrassing instance of idealistic liberal Congressmen manipulated by the dashing, handsome Letelier.

A March 29, 1976, letter from him to Beatrice (Tati) Allende, daughter of the late President Salvador Allende and Letelier's principal contact in Havana, makes all this clear. Detailing strategy for the congressional fight against U.S. aid to the junta, Letelier wrote that Chilean exiles in Washington were seeking to maintain "an apolitical character, oriented exclusively to the problems of human rights."

"The object is to mobilize the 'liberals' and other persons, who if they don't identify with us from an ideological point of view, are in it for what human rights reflects," he added. Letelier also expressed concern that the Chilean human rights committee not be linked to Havana "since you know sponsoring Congressmen might fear that they might be connected with Cuba, etc., and eventually stop giving his support to the committee."

Letelier never mentions "liberals" without quotes around the word. Nor does he leave any doubt where he stands. Closing that letter, he declared: "Perhaps some day, not far away, we also will be able to do what has been done in Cuba."

The Cuban connection is clarified by a letter to Letelier last Aug. 10 from Clodimiro Almeyda, like Letelier a former Chilean foreign minister and now East Berlin-based executive secretary of the Unida Popular — Allende's Socialist-Communist coalition. He listed Unida Popular working groups in Paris, Venezuela, Mexico and Berlin but asserted to Letelier "you have to work independently" in the U.S. — to avoid blowing his cover as an IPS fellow. Almeyda instructed him to coordinate human rights activities with Chilean Luis Maira in Cuba.

Jack Anderson and Les Whitten reported in December that Letelier's briefcase revealed he received $1,000 a month from Tati Allende in Havana. Although she said the money came from the Chilean Socialist party, such funds could not have been sent without approval of Fidel Castro's government which probably was their ultimate source.

Other documents in the Letelier briefcase newly come to light show monthly accountings of how Letelier spent the money from Cuba. The June 1975 disbursement of the Cuban funds shows $174.00 for "payment of difference outstanding to Congressman Harrington for his trip to Mexico." Harrington was in Mexico Nov. 23-25, to attend the IPS conference at Oaxtepec on U.S.-Latin American relations, and for a Mexico City lecture.

Another document shows $544.26 listed for the "Harrington fare" — $174.26 "paid from my pocket" (actually the Cuban account from Tati Allende) and the balance of $300 "received from Helsinki." There is no elaboration about this source, but it could conceivably connote a secret money drop in the Finnish capital. Yet, Marcus Reskin, director of IPS, denied to us any foreign funding of the Mexican meeting.

Further indication that Harrington's trip was under the auspices of the Chileans is contained in a May 8, 1975, letter from Tati Allende in Havana to Letelier, saying: "I showed your letter to Carlos (Altamirano) and to Jorge Arrate (Chilean radical leaders), who promised to arrange the Harrington matter."

It's this kind of activism that made the students of the fifties what they were — dull.

Pipeline route still open, Roncalio says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Teno Roncalio of the House public lands subcommittee said Friday it is too early to tell which pipeline plan will be approved for transporting Alaskan natural gas to U.S. consumers.

A preliminary decision, by a Federal Power Commission administrative law judge, favors the trans-Canada pipeline plan of the Arctic Gas consortium as the best overall for transporting North Slope natural gas to the lower 48 states.

But Roncalio indicated he agrees with some of the concerns expressed by opponents at a hearing his subcommitte held Thursday.

"I have some serious questions about the Arctic Gas proposal, especially as it pertains to environmental problems, Alaskan concerns, and the sensitive Canadian native claims," the Wyoming Democrat said.

Congress has the final say in the project, voting on the final proposal after it has been either approved or modified by the FPC's commissioners and the President.

At the hearing, environmental groups said they were unalterably opposed to Arctic Gas laying its pipe across the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

State government favors the trans-Alaska plan of El Paso Natural Gas Co. And most of the witnesses told the subcommittee they thought Arctic Gas construction in Canada would be delayed because of outstanding native land claims along the route.

The Arctic Gas pipeline would go across Canada to the U.S. Midwest and the El Paso pipeline would carry gas to southern Alaska for ocean shipping to the lower 48 states.

Arctic Gas representatives rebutted the criticism, but Roncalio emphasized: "It is too early to tell which project might eventually be approved. No delivery system or possible alternative should be foreclosed until all the cards are on the table and the most pertinent up-to-date facts are considered."

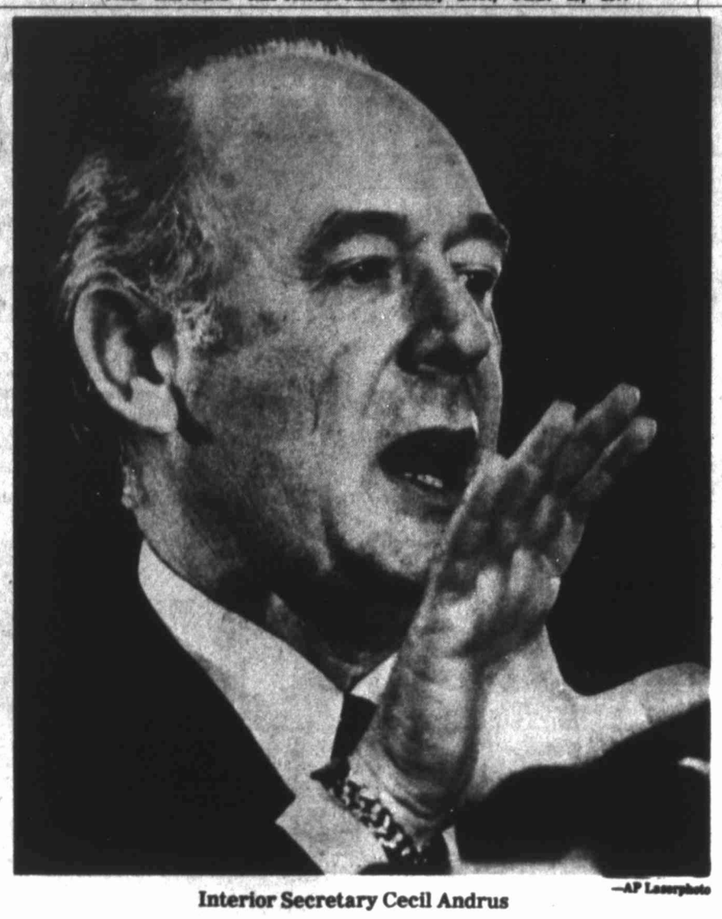

A third pipeline plan is offered by the Northwest Pipeline Corp.

Its route would roughly parallel the new crude oil pipeline, branching toward Canada along the Alcan highway and connecting with Canadian lines for eventual distribution at U.S. western and midwestern border points.

Meanwhile Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, issued a statement saying, in effect, that the hearing pointed up the advantages of the El Paso plan.

"Because the El Paso line is totally within American jurisdiction, it can be approved and underway by the end of the year, if Congress approves," Young said.

El Paso plans to liquify the gas at the Point Gravina pipeline terminal for shipment to U.S. markets on tanker ships.

Blizzards hurt Saudi efforts to cut prices

The Washington Post

PARIS — Blizzards in the eastern United States and wind storms in the Persian Gulf significantly lessened Saudi Arabia's ability to pressure other oil producers into lowering their prices in the past six weeks.

American consumption of petroleum jumped 5 per cent in response to January's cold weather. In the Persian Gulf, Saudi Arabia fell 20 per cent below its stated target of producing 10 million barrels of oil a day, evidently because bad weather hindered loading schedules.

The result has been to wipe out a huge pool of surplus oil that was building up in world markets and to hold oil price increases steady, despite the split last December within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries over pricing.

The Saudis say, however, that they will continue their effort to hold prices down by limiting their price increases to 5 per cent and increasing production sharply. They are supported in this policy by the neighboring United Arab Emirates.

OPEC's other 11 members decreed a 10 per cent increase in wholesale crude oil prices effective Jan. 1 at the December meeting in Doha, Qatar. They have vowed to cut back production when necessary to meet the Saudi challenge on prices.

The two-tier pricing system is only now beginning to undergo its first serious testing, and energy experts predict that it will take several months before its impact can be gauged.

The first barrels of oil loaded on tanks in the Persian Gulf after Jan. 1 began arriving in Western Europe and the United States only in the past week to 10 days.

While cautioning against drawing conclusions from one month's operation of the two-tier system, energy experts and industry sources agree that several points did become evident in the atypical conditions of January:

—Saudi Arabia's effort to hold OPEC prices down is having no effect on the low-sulpher "sweet" oil pumped in North and West Africa and used primarily for gasoline. Production has been near normal in Libya, Algeria, Nigeria and Gabon, which have been able to make the 10 per cent increase stick without any problem.

—The Saudis demonstrated that they could quickly boost production to 10 million barrels a day and play havoc with the sales performances — and revenues — of Iran, Kuwait and Iraq. But after two weeks of pushing these three countries to the wall, Saudi production suddenly dropped and pressure eased on the Saudis' Persian Gulf neighbors.

Unemployment tied to crisis declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment caused by natural gas shortages has shrunk to an estimated 242,500 after a break in the coldest winter in the nation's history, the Federal Energy Administration reported Friday.

The FEA said the latest figures collected by the Commerce Department indicated that shortage-caused unemployment has virtually ended in Maryland, Michigan and Wisconsin, and has improved substantially in most other states.

The recent moderation of temperatures eased gas shortages and allowed some one million laid-off workers to go back to their jobs.

Meanwhile, Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus, who ordered a probe Thursday of offshore gas operations in the Gulf of Mexico, announced Friday a postponement of steps for new petroleum leasing off the Pacific Coast.

The postponement came on the heels of Andrus' cancellation of petroleum leasing in Alaska's Cook Inlet and a federal judge's invalidation of leases sold off the Atlantic coast. Those events prompted Louisiana's Gov. Edwin Edwards to threaten to cut back his state's production of natural gas — about one-third of the nation's supply — until new offshore areas elsewhere are opened for development.

A brief announcement said Andrus was delaying the opening call for nominations of areas for petroleum leasing off Washington, Oregon and northern California "to allow a better definition of the area where the call should be held."

In other energy developments, the Federal Energy Administration said the National Weather Service reports this winter has been the coldest "since the founding of the Republic," in the eastern two-thirds of the nation.

The cold weather may continue. The latest 30-day forecast anticipates more colder-than-normal weather.

FPC may enter offshore oil court case

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Power Commission said Friday the agency may enter the court case in which a federal judge rescinded the first offshore federal oil and gas exploration leases along the Atlantic Coast.

"I think we have a public interest responsibility to go in the case on the supply side," said chairman Richard Dunham.

"The natural gas act gives us the responsibility, a clear mandate, to assure an adequate supply of natural gas at a reasonable price."

Dunham drew loud applause upon making the announcement during a question-and-answer session that followed a briefing of producers, pipeliners and distributors on President Carter's Emergency Natural Gas Act. Dunham also is administrator of the emergency program.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Jack Weinstein rescinded the 93 leases off the New Jersey and New York coasts in a New York ruling Thursday. Weinstein said the Interior Department had violated the environmental requirements in permitting the lease sale last year.

Machines can slip

NEW YORK (AP) — Widely available sophisticated calculators can make mistakes, warns Electronics magazine.

Discussing hand-held calculators, the publication quotes William Kahan, who says these calculators "produce surprisingly wrong answers surprisingly often in the process of performing basic calculations."

More than six million Americans into meditation

By RUSSELL CHANDLER
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Merv Griffin does it. Joe Namath does it. Gov. Brown does it. So do senators, priests and housewives.

In fact, more than 6 million Americans have taken up some form of meditation, apparently seeking refuge from everyday problems and pressures. Another 3 million, according to the latest poll, practice Yoga.

Theologians have called the quest "the search for interiority."

Psychologists have referred to it as "the consciousness revolution."

A diffuse but culturally pervasive movement, in general terms it represents a convergence of modern Western psychotherapy with the disciplines of ancient Eastern religions.

Meditation and meditative techniques are classified under a variety of names and headings. Some of the most popular mass-marketed ones promise inner peace in short syllables: TM, Yoga, Zen, est.

In an attempt to give a simple definition, the late Alan W. Watts, who modestly called himself America's greatest spiritual teacher, said "The art of meditation is a way of getting into touch with reality."

Some meditation practices are avowedly religious and are integral to the beliefs of the group itself. Examples include Hinduism, Buddhism, the Vedanta Society, Sivananda Yoga, Krishna Consciousness and the Self-Realization Fellowship.

RELIGION

Prayer, a form of meditation, is, of course, basic to many world religions, especially Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

But some religions are only marginally involved with meditation. And some psychologically oriented forms of meditation have no clear connection with religion: Arica, est, Silva Mind Control, psychosynthesis self-hypnosis and biofeedback, for instance.

With the meditation melange has come a plethora of practitioners: experimental psychologists, mind researchers, masters, swamis, priestesses, gurus, babas and lamas.

And charges of exploitation, charlatanry, high-living and misrepresentation have swirled about the meditation movement and its leaders.

Yet, not a few scientists and behaviorists welcome the exploration of consciousness and cite statistics seeming to verify claims that simple mental techniques not only relieve the symptoms of stress but also enrich interpersonal relationships, increase happiness and improve academic, sports and job performance.

One thing is certain: More and more people are getting their heads together through meditation.

Why the surprising interest in the intersection where East meets West?

Perhaps a clue can be found in the meaning of the Latin roots of the word "meditate": "medi" (middle or center) and "tare" (to be in).

The common goal in the search for interiority in today's marketplace is to put seekers progressively in touch with themselves and others, and often with nature. At its most highly refined state, meditation is held out to be the pathway to union with the fundamental forces of the cosmos — even with God Himself.

Self-transcendence seems to be the key ingredient.

"To go out of your mind at least once a day is tremendously important," explained Watts, a one-time Episcopal priest who became a leading exponent of Zen Buddhism. "By going out of your mind you come to your senses. And if you stay in your mind all the time, you are overrational..."

Pollster George Gallup suggests that exterior causes have helped create the meditation boom, especially among young people: the war in Vietnam, the Watergate affair, the dissolution of values and the increase in crime and lawlessness.

Meditation, he believes, offers relief from the struggles and stresses of contemporary society.

In an August poll Gallup discovered that those who practice Transcendental Meditation — 4 per cent of Americans are involved in it, the survey showed — and Yoga — 3 per cent involved — tend to be young adults between the ages of 18 and 24, those in college or who have a college background, live in the Western states, and people who are generally nonreligious in the traditional sense.

Harvard theologian Harvey Cox observes that the mystics and contemplatives have served in the past as guardians and explorers of "interiority," and that we especially need them today because authentic personal life is "so fatally threatened by an intrusive technical world."

And to Jean Houston, the behavioral scientist who heads the Foundation for Mind Research in Upstate New York, the exploration of consciouness represents the latest new frontier in American cultural history.

Other observers of the meditation scene point to the movement's mystical elements as providing that sense of the sacred that has largely disappeared from many of the American churches that no longer stress intimate spiritual experience and devotional discipline.

Shrove Tuesday suppers set

Traditional Shrove Tuesday pancake suppers are planned at three Midland churches as a preface to the Lenten season which begins Wednesday.

The Tuesday suppers will be at First United Methodist Church, the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity and St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church.

All will be open to the public, with tickets to be on sale at the doors during serving hours.

The adult Chancel Choir of First United Methodist Church downtown will be staging its 16th annual pancake supper Tuesday night in the church fellowship hall. Serving hours will be 5 to 8 p.m. Tickets are priced at $2, with pre-school children admitted free of charge.

The annual supper is the choir's primary fund-raising event of the year with proceeds used to finance various choir projects benefitting First United Methodist Church.

The Men of the Parish organization of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave., is sponsor of the annual pancake supper at that church, proceeds from which go to the acolyte fund of the parish.

Serving hours will be 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $1 for young people under age 12 and $2 for older children and adults. Tickets will be for sale at the parish hall Tuesday evening.

The Senior EYC (Episcopal Young Churchmen) organization at Holy Trinity Church is planning its annual pancake supper for 5:30 to 7 p.m. Tuesday in the parish hall, 1412 W. Illinois Ave. Tickets for the event are priced $1.25 for adults, 75 cents for children. Proceeds will be used by the EYC to fund its special programs and projects.

Churches plan hour of sharing

NEW YORK — With a goal of $30 million for worldwide programs of relief, rehabilitation and development aid, 30 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox church bodies will launch their yearly "One Great Hour of Sharing" appeal Sunday in churches throughout the nation.

The campaign will continue through April 30, with special emphasis planned for Easter Week.

The upcoming drive will be the 28th annual appeal by the participating denominational groups for both their individual overseas programs and for those they carry on jointly through Church World Service. In addition, some funds raised will be available for relief work in depressed areas of this nation and for disaster response in the U.S.

Initiated by the churches in 1949 as an appeal for continuing emergency aid to war victims in Europe, One Great Hour of Sharing still provides funds for response to disasters, both natural and man-made. Thirty such disasters during the past year brought a swift dispatch of supplies needed to sustain survivors — food, medicines, blankets, clothing, water purifiers.

More than that, funds raised in the yearly appeal often enable victims of such disasters to create new and better lives for themselves through rehabilitation and development projects made possible by money from the Great Hour of Sharing emphasis.

Sunday marks start of week's observation

Sunday marks the beginning of Big Brothers-Big Sisters Week in Midland, in conjunction with a nationwide Big Brothers Week.

Numerous Midland churches Sunday will pay tribute to the local Big Brothers-Big Sisters program sponsored by Family Services of Midland. The program currently has a full complement of boys and girls on its roles, with many other youngsters on the waiting list.

The purpose of the Big Brother-Big Sister program is to offer children from one-parent family groups an opportunity to benefit from the guidance and companionship of an adult when a mother or father is missing from the family unit. The children enrolled in the program are not necessarily financially or psychologically disadvantaged but they are youngsters in special need of assurance and guidance that only an adult can provide. The youngsters in the program range in age from 6 to 17.

Backers and boosters of the local Big Brothers-Big Sisters program point out that volunteers for the program are urgently needed. They point out, too, that the program takes little time, although it accomplishes much. They urge all interested persons to contact Family Services of Midland, 683-4241, to find out more about this worthwhile endeavor.

Campbell plans trip

David Campbell, minister of music at Midland's First Baptist Church, will join other members of The Centurymen in a concert tour of Brazil during late February and early March.

The Centurymen, a 100-voice choral ensemble composed of full time ministers of music in churches throughout the Southern Baptist Convention, will be presenting 20 concerts and making a number of TV appearances during the Feb. 21-March 9 Brazilian tour. The ensemble is booked for concerts in Rio de Janeiro, Recife, Sao Paulo, Curitiba and Brasilia. The tour is sponsored jointly by the foreign missions board and the radio-TV commission of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Campbell is a charter member of The Centurymen.

Brother Ronald Haynes

St. Nicholas' sets special mission

A special teaching-preaching mission will be held next week as a pre-Lenten emphasis at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave.

The mission, led by Brother Ronald Haynes of Grapevine, will begin Sunday, continuing through Shrove Tuesday, the final day before the beginning of Lent. Brother Ronald is a member of the Order of the Holy Cross.

The visitor will preach Sunday at the 8 and 10 a.m. Eucharist services at St. Nicholas' and also will speak at services at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. All will be open to the public and the church nursery will be available to care for small children.

Brother Ronald, a native of Maryland, is a graduate of the University of Baltimore. Before entering the Order of the Holy Cross he was a seaman and a hospital worker. He has conducted teaching and preaching missions in many parts of the nation.

Holy Trinity schedules special Mardi Gras events

Special Mardi Gras events are planned at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois St., to mark the final days before the beginning of Lent.

The Lenten season officially begins next Wednesday — Ash Wednesday.

Members of the Holy Trinity parish will attend a Mardi Gras costume ball in the parish hall Sunday night, beginning at 8. The fellowship event will have live music.

Continuing the pre-Lenten emphasis on Shrove Tuesday will be a traditional pancake supper, scheduled for 5:30 to 7 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Senior EYC (Episcopal Young Churchmen) orgainzation, with tickets priced $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children. The supper will be in the parish hall, and tickets may be purchased at the doors.

Following the supper, special entertainment is planned, highlighted by the coronation of Andrew Britton and Kay Knox as king and queen of Mardi Gras.

Ash Wednesday services at Holy Trinity will begin at 7 and 10 a.m. and 5:15 and 7 p.m. Each service will incorporate a Eucharist service and ritual of imposition of ashes.

Student to visit Mexico

SAN ANTONIO — Richard Reyes of Midland is one of five students from St. Anthony High School Seminary who will spend four weeks in southwestern Mexico experiencing the life of native Zapotec Indians.

The students will live with Indian families in a mountain village in the state of Oaxaca and will provide religious programming for the village during their stay.

Reyes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvino Reyes of Midland.

Treasures in Spanish churches offer easy pickings for thieves

The Los Angeles Times

MADRID — The sensational robbery of jeweled art from the Cathedral of Murcia spotlighted a general problem of the churches of Spain. Many are laden with treasure, and most can be sacked with ease.

The thieves of Murcia, who struck in late January will probably remove the jewels from the stolen crowns and crosses and sell them separately. A crown taken from the head of a statue of the Virgin of Fuensanta, patron saint of Murcia, had 5,862 diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, rubies, topazes, and other precious stones. Estimates of the value of the total haul range from $750,000 to $7 million.

In most of Spain's church robberies, the thieves take several paintings or sculptures, works of art crafted many centuries ago, and sell them to international agents. The police believe that these works of art are smuggled first to France, West Germany or England and then often shipped to the United States where there are buyers who ask no questions.

In a sense, the vulnerability of Spain's churches is one of their joys. A traveler can wander into almost any church and discover wonders in darkened corners: an El Greco portrait, a Romanesque Christ carved from wood, altars decorated in Spain's golden age of painting, religious artifacts made centuries ago. Sometimes they are kept in what the Spanish call the church museum — two or three rooms guarded by an old man in uniform who charges a few cents for entry. Sometimes a visitor enters an empty church, or comes across one guarded only by a feeble and ancient door. The churches are easy pickings.

There is no catalogue of the works of art in Spain's churches, and there are no accurate statistics on how many are stolen every year. The Madrid newspaper Informaciones, in a recent study, concluded that "several hundred" are taken annually.

In Pamplona recently, Jose Maria Omanaca, the director of the diocesan museum said that thieves take an average of two Romanesque sculptures and one painting from the churches of the province of Navarra every year. "It's all the same to them," he said. "They rob a church as if it were a jewelry store."

Omanaca said that church robberies had been increasing in recent years because of the shortage of priests, the depopulation of the rural areas, the decline in religious activity and the increase in value of artwork. All this has combined to make churches isolated and unguarded and their contents more valuable.

Most robberies are in the northern part of Spain, especially in the region of Galicia. Many pilgrims to Santiago de Compostela built Romanesque churches along the way in the 11th to 13th centuries. These now stand in remote parts of Galicia, easy prey for those who want to take and sell the ancient contents.

William Milford Correll

Lecturer schedules program

William Milford Correll of Cleveland, Ohio, a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, will present a public program here Thursday under auspices of the Midland First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The soon event in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton will be free of charge.

Correll, whose lecture will be titled "There's Only One Real Ego," is a lifelong Christian Scientist who has been a teacher of Christian Science many years. In addition to serving on the board of lectureship, he has held numerous positions of responsibility in the church in past years. Recently he served as First Reader of The Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

Correll's program will be second and final lecture event of the current season to be presented here under sponsorship of the Midland Christian Science congregation.

Baptist group to probe faith social questions

FORT WORTH — The question of "born again" persons involved in social issues came into sharp focus in America this year with the campaign and subsequent election of President Jimmy Carter.

According to Dr. James Dunn, director of the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the world is asking, "Can evangelical Christians take an active role in social issues and remain true to their Biblical convictions?"

To help answer that question, a group of well-known theologians and social action leaders will meet with Southern Baptists from throughout the state in Fort Worth next week.

"Their conclusions can have far-reaching impact on one of the most important issues in our nation today," Dr. Dunn said.

Under a theme of "Beginning and Living the Christian Life," the Monday through Wednesday conference in Fort Worth's Gambrell Street Baptist Church will explore authentic evangelism and its involvement in social issues, said Dr. Dunn. Each featured speaker will grapple with a critical issue in America. "For example, Dr. King will apply the gospel to a Christian's responsibility to people of other races," Dr. Dunn explained.

Proposed declaration rejected

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. South has turned down a proposed new declaration of faith in contemporary language after years of work on it.

The defeat came in a narrowly negative vote of 118 to 106 by the Highlands Presbytery here, making impossible the three-forths vote of 45 of 60 regional presbyteries required by the Church constitution for passage.

With the tally now at 23 presbyteries for and 16 against, even if all the remaining presbyteries voted favorably, the total would be only 44.

The proposed Book of Confessions, a focus of keen concern in the 890,000 member denomination since work on it began in 1969, includes the new declaration along with the traditional Westminster Confession and nine other historic creeds.

Proponents claimed the new declaration would bring renewal to the Church, while opponents claimed it failed to affirm doctrines in sufficiently plain, unmistakeable terms.

Spokesmen of both sides, however, say a new statement of faith is needed, and the effort to produce a satisfactory one will go on. The larger 2.7-million-member United Presbyterian Church adopted a contemporary declaration of faith in 1967.

Seminar scheduled

Gardens Assemhly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave., will hold a "Seminar on the Holy Spirit" next week.

The Rev. Paul Coxe, pastor, said the series will begin at Sunday morning and evening worship services, with additional sessions scheduled for noon Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The events will be open to all interested persons in the community.

Dr. H. Paul Holdridge of Plainview, an Assemblies of God minister, administrator and educator, will be the speaker at seminar sessions. Dr. Holdridge also will teach a special course, "Learning Together," at 7 p.m. daily next Monday through Friday. Assisting him in the study sessions will be Pastor Coxe, the Rev. Larry Cox, and Aaron Giebel. The public is invited to participate in these seasions as well.

Black Buffalo

Chieftain to visit city church

Black Buffalo, an American Indian chieftain who presented special programs at Midland's Foursquare Church several months ago, is returning here to conduct a Sunday rally at the church.

The visitor, accompanied by members of his family, will minister in full Indian costume at the 9:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. services of the church, said the Rev. Pete Adcock, host pastor. The public is invited to attend the services.

Black Buffalo has presented similar pow-wows at churches in many parts of the nation, and he is well-known throughout the U.S. as a result of his regular TV shows which are carried on channels across the country, Mr. Adcock stated.

The Midland Foursquare Gospel Church is at 415 Alta Ave., west of North Big Spring Street.

Texas Congressman Jack Brooks: He's 'one tough guy to take on'

By DAVID S. BRODER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—If you ask Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Tex.) about himself, he draws a picture of a Gulf Coast Henry Higgins — "just an ordinary man ... who wants to live his life free of strife ..."

The feisty chairman of the House Government Operations Committee has made himself President Carter's chief antagonist on the issue of government reorganization, precipitating a battle that has punctured prematurely all talk of a Capitol Hill honeymoon for the new President.

But the 54-year-old Beaumont, Tex., bantam just can't understand why people think of him as cantankerous and combative.

"I think of myself as someone who tries to be constructive," he says, "someone who understands that politics is the art of compromise, that it's a lot more important to get something done than get into a lot of battles and get a lot of publicity. All you do is make enemies that way, and who wants to have enemies?"

Brooks leans back in his chair in the big Rayburn House Office Building suite, a beatific smile surrounding the cigar, his blue eyes as guileless as a child's.

Yet the speaker of these words is the same Jack Brooks who has faced down Jimmy Carter in several head-to-head meetings, who is described by a former aide to Lyndon B. Johnson as "one of the few men LBJ was ever afraid of," a man that Richard M. Nixon once called "the executioner" in the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings.

The man who will preside at House committee hearings on Carter's cherished reorganization plans is the same Jack Brooks whose wrath has been felt by uncounted numbers of military contractors, manufacturers, bureaucrats, politicians, colleagues and Presidents, a man whose withering scorn and sarcasm are burned into the hides of witnesses such as Arthur Sampson.

Sampson was the head of the General Services Administration in 1973 when Brooks' subcommittee began looking into the government expenditures on President Nixon's San Clemente and Key Biscayne homes.

Hard-pressed to defend the $10 million invested in the properties, Sampson said at one point that the added facilities actually had reduced the homes' market value.

"Oh, really," said Brooks, in his best country-boy manner. "Well, Mr. Sampson, I'd like you to come down to my farm and desecrate it a little bit."

Ask a dozen people — House colleagues, Texas politicians, Washington lobbyists, officials of past administrations —about Brooks and the words you hear most often are: tough, smart, partisan, prideful—and driven. "He's got more damn complexes than the law allows," says one Texan who has known him for more than 30 years.

Carter says he wants the same reorganization powers Congress granted to every President from Harry S. Truman to Nixon. Under that authority, a President can reshuffle subcabinet agencies by submitting reorganization plans to Congress that take effect automatically unless vetoed by the House or the Senate within 60 days.

Brooks, who opposed extension of those powers in 1971 and was instrumental in cutting them off from Nixon in 1973, says they should not be restored to any President, even a Democrat for whom he campaigned.

Instead, he is offering a counterproposal that would allow a reorganization plan to take effect only when affirmatively approved by both houses of Congress. The bill would prevent any plan being held in committee for more than 45 days, but Carter has rejected it as too cumbersome a method for reorganization.

"I have nothing against Jimmy Carter," Brooks says. "I campaigned my district for him and we gave him 30,000 of his 150,000-vote margin in the whole state. I want him to be a good President and I want to see reorganization go forward. But this is just a matter of principle to me. It's a very bad and dangerous delegation of authority to a President.

"People don't recall," Brooks said, "that one of the first plans Nixon submitted was the reorganization of the White House staff to create the Domestic Council. That concentration of power permitted him to commit most of the abuses for which he was later found guilty."

Brooks' enmity for Nixon was so well-advertised by both men that many in Washington consider Brooks a chronic presidential antagonist. But the record indicates otherwise.

When Brooks came to the House in the election of 1952, he developed what he calls a "friendly, responsive relationship" with the fellow-Texan in the White House, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Brooks had a "good, solid, close relationship" with President Kennedy and was an intimate of Johnson's. Despite the fact that they were sometimes at odds on patronage matters, Brooks was a frequent White House guest, visiting often in the family quarters and using the President's bowling lanes even when Johnson was elsewhere.

"I think he wants that kind of status and entree again," said one veteran of the Johnson years. "It's more psychological between him and Carter than it is political. I think if Carter would flatter him publicly and send Amy over to play with his kids, this problem would be solved."

Others are not so sure. They see Brooks as a man who "loves a fight, and the bigger the opponent, the better."

"He's an instinctive loner," says a colleague. "He's got a helluva chip on his shoulder," says one man who tried to deal with him for the Nixon White House.

The stories of his feuds are legend, and one of the most serious, many of his colleagues believe, is with his fellow Texan, Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, now the House majority leader.

A former Texas newsman recalls that Brooks and Wright came to the Texas legislature as freshmen in 1947. "Jim was this good-looking, charismatic guy, out-front from the start. And Jack was the wizened little fellow from the wrong side of the tracks in Beaumont, just sitting in the back row, eyeing him. You've had the Jim and Jack competition for 30 years."

Brooks, predictably, scoffs at the notion. "We're not rivals at all," he says. He's never run for anything I wanted and vice versa. We're friends."

Yet Brooks was one of two Texas Democrats who failed to endorse Wright for majority leader. The reason, he says, was that he had given a commitment to Rep. Phillip Burton (D-Calif.) before Wright entered the race.

Brooks has achieved a substantial measure of financial and political independence. He is chairman of the board of a bank holding company and, after winning with 61 per cent of the vote in 1974, had no opposition last year.

His Gulf Coast district has acquired the largest freshwater dam and reservoir in Texas, extensive Army Corps of Engineers ship-channel construction and other federal largesse. But Brooks is not known as a "hands-out" Congressman, ready to bargain his legislative help for federal pork.

What he is known as is a Congressman who waited a long time to achieve a position of power and is acutely conscious of its prerogatives.

The reorganization authority bill is the first step in a complex process — every part of which is under the jurisdiction of Brooks' committee.

"Carter's going to be dealing with Jack Brooks so often the next four years he's going to see him in his dreams," said one House member. "And Jack is a guy who doesn't forget. If they beat him on this one, they'll pay for it. Oh will they pay for it."

A former White House congressional liaison man perhaps put it best. "If Jimmy Carter tries to roll over Jack Brooks," he said, "he'd better get him an armored division. That is one tough guy to take on."

Medication users warned to take care

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Aspirin, nose or eye drops, laxatives — even a martini before dinner — any of these can play havoc with the prescription your doctor gives you, warns Long Island Jewish Hillside Medical Center's director of pharmacy services, Paul Kurzman.

Being an educated consumer is a matter of life and health when it comes to using medications, says Kurzman, who urges the patient to tell his physician about any internal or external medications being used. Even ointments or eye drops can sometimes be incompatible with a prescription.

He suggests keeping these general guidelines in mind to check with the physician or pharmacist before filling a new prescription:

—Cold remedies, analgesics such as aspirin and many overthe-counter drugs may have adverse effects in combination with other medications.

—Even one alcoholic drink might compound the effect of drugs such as anti-depressants and tranquilizers.

—Laxatives can eliminate medications from the intestinal tract before they are properly absorbed. Mineral oil also inhibits absorption.

—Some medications should be taken on empty stomach, others after meals.

—Tranquilizers and antihistamines often impair ability to drive or use machinery.

—Full effectiveness of tretracycline antibiotics can be altered by eating dairy products.

—Some, but not all, therapy requires using up entire prescription.

—Outdated drugs often lose potency or break down into other chemical formulas. Note expiration date on label.

—Tolerance of medications varies widely and the medication prescribed for a friend can be harmful to someone else.

The physician should be told if side effects appear such as cramps, dry mouth, loss of balance, impotence, bleeding, nausea, headache or shortness of breath, Kurzman cautions.

Avoid giving lead to dangerous foe

Opening lead — ♠ 8

South wins the first trick with the nine of spades. How should he play the hearts to make sure of four tricks?

South must finesse through East for the queen of hearts—not because East happens to have the queen but because East is the dangerous opponent. South can afford to lose a heart trick if West has the queen because a spade continuation by West is not dangerous. But South cannot afford to lose a heart trick to East, for a spade return by East would bring the hand to an end with a bang and a whimper.

LEADS CLUB

At the second trick South should get to dummy with a club to begin the hearts by leading the jack from dummy. East plays low, and South lets the jack ride as a finesse. He is willing to lose the trick to West even if West happens to have the singleton queen.

When the heart finesse works, South can continue with dummy's ten of hearts for a second finesse. Declarer then takes the king of hearts and gets back to dummy with a club to cash the ace and then the last heart.

Zinc use research promising

CLEVELAND (AP) — A research team here says progress of tumor growth and leukemia in rats has been slowed significantly by a diet that's deficient in zinc, a trace metal vital to human health.

A member of the team, Dr. Walter J. Pories, director of surgery at a local hospital and a professor at Case Western Reserve University, said cells are most vulnerable to chemotherapy and radiation when they are in the process of dividing.

He said withholding zinc from cells when they are ready to divide but couldn't because of zinc deficiency would make chemotherapy and radiation more effective.

A brief zinc-free period might be useful in treating human cancer patients, he said.

"What we also think is that it may be possible to make zinc radioactive like iodine has been for years," Pories added. "Then the hungry tumors, which must have zinc to grow, would grab it and the cells would be irradiated from within."

A WORKER IS DWARFED inside one of 500 external fuel tanks being constructed at Michoud Assembly Center in New Orleans for the space shuttle. The tanks, which will cost over $2.5 million each, will carry over a million pounds of propellant to push the orbiter into space.

Consumer prices up last month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased eight-tenths of one per cent in January, the biggest inflationary surge in 18 months, and government economists warned Friday of another big increase in February and possibly March.

President Carter also was handed unfavorable reports Friday on workers' earnings, on the cost of housing and on growth in the nation's Gross National Product, all of which could make it more difficult for him to achieve his economic goals this year.

Higher costs for food and fuel led to the price surge in January. Over-all food costs were up nine-tenths of one per cent, more than the increase of six-tenths of one per cent during all of 1976.

Furthermore, the Labor Department said its January Consumer Price Index did not reflect the full price impact of the severe winter weather. That probably will show up in the price report for February and possibly March, said one top government economist.

But even though prices increased in January at an annual rate of nearly 10 per cent, Maynard Comiez of the Commerce Department said he thinks the underlying inflation rate probably is still between 5 per cent and 6 per cent. Consumer prices rose 4.8 per cent during all of 1976.

"The figures may be clouded by the severe weather impact," said Comiez. "It may be a couple of months before we have an opportunity to get a picture of what the underlying trend" of inflation is, he said.

The eight-tenths of one per cent increase in prices in January was double the December rate and the highest since July of 1975, when prices rose nine-tenths of one per cent.

Other adverse economic reports by the government Friday were:

—A 1.1 per cent drop in the purchasing power of workers' paychecks, largely because of shorter work weeks during January as a result of cutbacks in many industries caused by bad weather.

—The biggest increase in three years in the average price of new homes during 1976, up 12.7 per cent to $48,000 from the year before.

—A slow 2.4 per cent growth rate in the nation's economy during the final three months of 1976, as reflected in the Gross National Product. Fourth quarter growth had previously been estimated at 3 per cent.

Carter is shooting for growth in the economy of 6 per cent this year.

The Labor Department said the consumer price index in January stood at 175.3 per cent of the 1967 average of 100, which means that consumers had to pay $175.30 last month for the same goods that cost $100 ten years earlier.

Emergency planes opposed by Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, apparently dismayed by the cost, has told the Pentagon in effect it should not buy any more $117-million emergency command post planes like the one he flew in last week.

Administration sources said Friday Carter expressed his view in a brief memorandum sent to Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

Carter flew to Plains, Ga., and back last weekend in one of the Boeing 747 jumbo jets, a flying war room from which he and key civilian and military leaders would direct the U.S. response in event of a nuclear attack threatening destruction of the capital.

En route to Georgia last Friday, Carter was briefed in detail by members of the military battle staff who would man the plane's elaborate communications and other equipment in a crisis.

The Air Force now operates three National Emergency Airborne Command Post planes and is fitting out a fourth with advanced gear, including satellite communications terminals.

Plans call for production of two more of the new command post planes, the most expensive now flying. They are military versions of the Boeing 747 airliners.

Although the Air Force lists the planes' cost at $117.4 million each, it appears the price could climb to about $150 million apiece when the three present aircraft are fitted with sophisticated new satellite communications equipment.

Administration officials said the gist of Carter's memorandum was that the Pentagon should not buy any more of the planes and that Brown should let him know more about plans for using the three now in operation.

It was uncertain whether Carter's memorandum was intended as a direct order to cut back the program where it stands.

Attorneys general to meet on pending prisoner treaty

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State attorneys general of the border states of Texas, California, New Mexico and Arizona will meet Tuesday in Dallas to discuss the prisoner transfer treaty with Mexico, which is now pending in the U.S. Senate.

"This is another important step in developing a stronger relationship with Mexico," said Atty. Gen. John Hill, who will host the meeting. "Hopefully, this program will lead to improved cooperation on other border problems, particularly drug smuggling."

Joining in the conference will be Detlev Vagts, counselor on international law for the U.S. State Department who was prominent in negotiating the treaty, and William Kenney of the U.S. Department of Justice, Hill said.

Hill said Friday that the work session will include examination of proposed implementing legislation which will go before Congress if the treaty is ratified. There also will be discussion of the problems the respective states will face in transfering prisoners from a state prison to another country.

Tanksley gets life imprisonment

DALLAS, TX. (AP)—A state district court jury has agreed on life imprisonment for Alfred Tanksley, convicted of the beating death of his two-year-old daughter.

The jury deliberated three hours before agreeing on the penalty late Thursday.

Tanksley had been convicted of the beating death of Latacha Renee last October.

Latacha died early Oct. 28 after she was taken to Parkland Hospital. Medical testimony indicated she died as a result of head injuries.

Rebecca Lynn Glasgow, 19, who lived with Tanksley at the time, testified that Tanksley began beating and whipping his daughter "after the child used the restroom in her pants."

Miss Glasgow was nobilled in connection with Latacha's death, but she is under indictment for injury to a child involving minor beating injuries to another of Tanksley's daughters.

Lee wins, but Cooper 5-4A champion

Mike Denny (25) of Midland Lee goes up for a shot as Midland's Michael Jobe defends in 5-4A action at Lee High gym Friday night.

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

The Robert E. Lee Rebels played two different types of games Friday night. They won the first, disposing of Midland High with the utmost ease, 74-54.

Then, the second contest began. The battle of nerves. The waiting game. Coach Paul Stueckler's team hung in limbo for almost a half hour waiting for the outcome of the Cooper-Abilene game; waiting to find out if the game of Russian roulette had finally caught up with them. It did. The news from the Key City was bad. Cooper had won 55-53, and advanced into the bi-district basketball playoffs. The Rebels were through for the season.

Rebel seniors Mike Denny, Bobby Alexander, Billy Ray Ennis, Mike Wallace, Brad Wright, Barry Blake and David Pitts had hoped for another chance, but it wasn't in the cards.

Lee knew even before it took the floor Friday night that its fate was to a great extent, out of its hands. All they could do was beat the cross-town rival Bulldogs' and let the rest take care of itself.

Let it be known that they took care of their end of it.

Playing loose and aggressive, Stueckler's team came out running, and never stopped, piling up a 22-13 first quarter edge, increasing it to 44-25 at the half, and coasting down the home stretch with the assurance of Man-o-war.

SPORTS

DENNY, THE Rebels' 6-5 postman closed out a brilliant scholastic career, as he led the Lee offensive charge with 19 points. His senior teammates, 6-0 guard Mike Wallace, and 6-3 forward Billy Ray Ennis were right behind him in the Rebel scoring attack with 15 and 14 points respectively.

Midland, which closed out its first campaign under Coach Don Humphrey, was led by sophomore wingman Walter Bryson, who tossed in 16 points. The only other double digit scorer for the Pack was junior Brentley Jackson, who notched 12. Craig Dunn, the all-district postman for the Bulldogs, finished out his high school career with nine points, well below his average.

The other three Midland cagers who finished up their playing days for MHS Friday were Michael Jobe, Terry Rogers, amd Janes Hicks.

Lee got some early scoring assistance from an unexpected source in the first period, as 6-3 forward Bobby Alexander, more reknowned for his rebounding than his scoring, tossed in four quick buckets to pace the Rebels to its 22-13 advantage after the initial eight minutes.

Midland came out playing a zone defense against Stueckler's team, and the Rebels destroyed it with crisp passing, as they kept finding the open man. Wallace, in addition to his 15-point night, was the man who put a dent in the Bulldog zone, passing off for countless assists.

WALLACE AND Denny took over for Alexander in the second quarter, as Denny pounded the nets for five baskets, four of them via feeds from Wallace.

To make Midland's comeback attempt even more difficult, Jackson and Rogers both picked up their third personals midway through the second quarter. Lee, led by Denny finished the period with a 14-6 surge, as the Bulldogs failed to take advantage of several opportunities from the foul line. In the first two quarters alone, the Pack came up empty on five one-and-one situations.

Alexander, Denny and Wallace led Lee's third quarter charge, but a hot hand by Midland postman Hicks, and the Bulldogs' switch to a man-for-man defense kept them virtually even with the Rebels for the first time, as the winners only outscored them 16-14.

The fourth period was. . . a good one, as the Midland and Lee substitutes battled it out down the wire. The Pack outscored the Rebels in that final period, 15-14, with Bryson canning six of his 16 points.

The two Tall City schools split the preliminary contests, as Midland won the sophomore game 62-61, and Lee prevailed in the junior varsity tilt, 67-66.

Hubert led Midland with 15 points in the sophomore game, while McCrep was high for the Rebels with 12. Alcorn's 20 paced the Lee JV's to their exciting win, while Hammonds netted 16 for the losers.

OFF THE COURT NEWS: Lori Jons, a pretty Midland High senior, was named "Basketball Sweetheart" Tuesday, during halftime ceremonies of the Midland-Cooper contest.

Morgan balks at reporting

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — "It scares me that I may not be playing in Cincinnati. But I have an alternative now," said Reds star Joe Morgan, who may be following former teammate Don Gullett into the free agent market.

Morgan, only the second National League player to win successive Most Valuable Player awards, is frustrated over prolonged salary negotiations with the Reds' front office and said he will not report to spring training "until everything is resolved."

His attorney, Tom Reich, who met with club officials Thursday and Friday, agreed that "the clock is winding down. Time is very critical if a deal is going to be reached to keep him in Cincinnati."

The Reds have until March 10 to sign the hard-hitting second baseman or he enters his option year, which means he would become a free agent.

Cincinnati lost Gullett, its ace left-hander, to free agency last season when he played out his option year and signed a $2 million multi-year contract with the New York Yankees.

"I'm not bitter, but I am disappointed. Maybe it would be different someplace else. I read where all the Dodgers are signed and have five-year contracts and the Philadelphia players are happy with longterm contracts. I'm not saying I want to play someplace else," Morgan told The Associated Press by telephone from his home in Oakland, Calif.

"I have never gone to spring training without a contract and I'm not going to start now. I don't think I could get in the proper frame of mind," said the 33-year-old infielder who has helped propel the Reds to two straight world championships.

Morgan has hit .327 and .320 the last two years, while driving in 94 and 111 runs. He stole 127 bases during the time.

"I maintain that I should be rewarded for what I've achieved. I'm not mad at the front office. I realize there's been a major change that has brought a complexity to negotiating. But I feel I should have been signed by now.

"I read quotes from my teammates that bother me. They claim they haven't signed because they are waiting for Morgan, like I'm the guy causing other people not to sign," he said.

Morgan is rankled by reports that he is going for an astronomical package.

"I sit here and look at what the other free agents received and I'm not even close to those figures. None of us are," he said.

Morgan and the Reds reportedly "are worlds apart" in the packages being offered.

Reich acknowledges that "values have gone out of sight" since the advent of free agency. I want him to finish his career here. But he's not going to sacrifice his pride."

Reich is also negotiating the contracts of Ken Griffey and George Foster. They are among nine players still unsigned as spring training looms two weeks from now.

"Any one of these three could get a great deal of money elsewhere. They have tremendous market value. I hope something happens in the next couple days. If that slips away, positions are going to harden," Reich said.

Stanton's girls lose to Vega

LUBBOCK—The Stanton girls basketball team fell from the Class A state playoffs here Friday night at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum after dropping a close 32-31 regional playoff battle to the Vega Longhorns.

Stanton's season ends with a 26-6 record and Vega marches to the regional finals with the same record.

Kristi Waters led the Longhorns with 22 points while Tammy Heard added 10. Loretta Young paced Stanton with 19 points and was the only other girl in double digits.

Vega held a 30-25 lead with 2:50 left in the game, and Stanton threatened with a couple of quick baskets, but could not overtake the big five-point lead.

Cale nabs win over A.J. Foyt

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough kept control despite a constant pounding by a brakeless A.J. Foyt and won the 100-mile finale of the International Race of Champions series Friday, but Foyt took the over-all title for the second year in a row.

Foyt hounded Yarborough for several laps up to the finish, ramming the nose of his Camaro into the rear of Yarborough's machine at over 170 miles per hour.

On the last lap, Foyt tried to make a move going into the third turn, after giving Yarborough one last unsettling "love tap." But Yarborough anticipated Foyt's move perfectly and cut him off. They crossed the finish line with Yarborough a car length in front.

Bobby Unser was another car length behind, followed closely by Richard Petty, Johnny Rutherford, David Pearson and Al Holbert. Buddy Baker did not finish. Al Unser was the victim of the race's only crash. The race average was 165.746 m.p.h. There were 34 lead changes among six drivers.

Yarborough finished three points behind Foyt in the overall standings with Bobby Unser another point back in third.

"I was giving Cale a pretty rough time, but I think he knew I was having to do that to keep up in the draft without any brakes," Foyt said. "The brakes went away quite early in the race."

Yarborough said he was aware of Foyt's problem, but added, "Every once in a while he'd kick too hard, and I'd shake my fist at him."

The race started off in typical IROC fashion with four lead changes on the first lap. The entire field was less than one second apart through most of the first half of the race.

Baker lost a lap with 25 miles to go when he had to stop for repair of a flat tire.

Two laps later, Pearson went a little high coming out of turn two and pinched Al Unser against the wall. He spun down the backstretch and hammered the retaining wall headon. But he was still able to nurse the car back to pit road before climbing out.

Jackson given cool reception

ROTONDA, Fla. (AP) — Reggie Jackson, the New York Yankees' $2.9 million man, likes to speak in metaphors. But it doesn't take a poet to understand that his relations with his new teammates are not all that they should be.

Jackson, here as an ABC commentator for Sunday's "Superstars" finals, was in Hawaii recently for the filming of another ABC show, "The Superteams". And one of those teams was the Yankees, represented by American League Most Valuable Player Thurman Munson, Craig Nettles, Chris Chambliss, Dock Ellis and others.

Jackson found himself interviewing the Yanks and he said Friday that his new teammates did not exactly welcome him with open arms.

"It was a difficult situation," he said, and then launched a metaphor. "You don't feel uncomfortable unless the weather around you is uncomfortable, if you get what I'm saying. When you go in the water and the water is dirty and cold and sandy, it does not make you comfortable.

"What I'm saying is the atmosphere that is projected is uncomfortable"

Doomsayers have predicted a dissension-filled season for New York with the presence of Jackson, Munson, Manager Billy Martin and owner George Steinbrenner on the same club. All are used to having their own way and all have volatile personalities.

Jackson was asked if he is anxious to go to spring training and get together with his new teammates.

"I am anxious to go to spring training, end of statement," he said.

"We're the team to beat, obviously. We have all the ingredients to be champs, but someone has to mix them in the mixing bowl," he added with yet another metaphor.

"Sometimes oil and water don't mix even though both may be necessary."

Jackson declined to further clarify the apparent rift between him and his teammates, but did say that he has been working out for two months and is in good shape.

Does he expect to be under any undue pressure this year as the result of his big contract? "People will try to put pressure on me but I've been there before and I'll be there again," he said. "I've always had pressure. I don't let it bother me.

"I'm a very normal capitalistic American who likes money. I like being rich. I just need to hit some home runs and I won't have a problems."

Judy Rankin sets pace

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Judy Rankin celebrated her 32nd birthday Friday by shooting a three-under-par 69 for the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $50,000 Orange Blossom Classic.

Mrs. Rankin, the tour's leading money winner last year with a record $150,734, had five birdies and two bogies on the par 72, 6,109-yard Pasadena Golf Club layout.

Joyce Kazmierski was one shot behind. At 71, two shots back, were Patty Hayes and Jo Ann Washam. Vivian Brownley, Pat Meyers and Sally Little were tied at par 72.

AMY ALCOTT, who won this tournament two years ago as a rookie, and Sandra Post were among 11 players at 73.

Pam Higgins, who beat Mrs. Rankin on the first playoff hole last Sunday to capture the $7,500 top prize in the first 1977 tour stop at Miami, shot a 74.

Defending champion JoAnne Carner was seven strokes off the pace at 76.

Mrs. Rankin sank putts of 10, 15 and 10 feet as she closed with three straight birdies on the front nine to make the turn at two-under 34.

SHE HIT a nine iron to within two feet of the 11th hole to set up an an easy birdie putt. She sank an 18-footer on 13 for her last birdie.

But Mrs. Rankin, who won six tournaments to dominate the circuit last year, said she was disappointed with her performance despite the lead.

"I wasn't real pleased with how I hit the ball," said the Midland, Tex. golfer. "I didn't drive the ball very well. I was kind of lucky to score well."

Grass to replace old rug on Minnesota gridiron

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The University of Minnesota says it will tear up the artificial turf in Memorial Stadium and replace it with grass before the next football season begins.

At the end of the 1976 season, routine testing showed that the artificial turf would not stand another season, said Walter Bruning, university vice president for administrative operations.

"The material is no longer resiliant enough to be a safe playing field," Bruning added today.

The artificial turf consists of a carpet and pad atop an asphalt surface.

ACC eyes Gobblers as new loop member

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — The athletic facilities at Virginia Tech were visited Friday by the expansion committee of the Atlantic Coast Conference, which is studying the possibility of admitting Tech as the league's eighth member.

The committee, formed two years ago when the ACC learned it had no method for acquiring new members, consists of the athletic directors and other officials from the seven conference schools.

To join the ACC, a school first has to be nominated by three of the seven members. Because Tech has received the required number of nominations, the committee was sent to look at its facilities.

Wilson Bell, director of university development for Tech, said Friday the ACC is seriously considering expansion.

In a conversation with Dr. Gene Hooks, athletic director at Wake Forest, Bell said he was told three schools originally were being considered at one time but Tech now is the only one being investigated.

The committee now will file a report with the ACC, five of whose seven members must vote favorably for Virginia Tech to be admitted.

Virginia Tech has been an independent since withdrawing from the Southern Conference in June 1965.

Wadkins, Purtzer share LA lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, once one of the game's brightest young players before becoming mired in a two-year-slump, fought gusty winds for a two-under-par 69 that staked him to a share of the second-round lead with Tom Purtzer Friday in the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Rik Massengale, meanwhile, dropped out of the lead for the first time in two weeks and U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate dropped out of this tournament and all others for an undetermined period of time.

Pate, last year's rookie of the year and winner of the Phoenix Open that kicked off the 1977 season, developed severe problems in his left wrist and withdrew after nine holes of play. A physician, who has worked with other tour players, examined him and told Pate he may face surgery.

"I'm going to stay away from that for a while," Pate said before leaving for his home in Pensacola, Fla. He told tour officials to take him out of all future events until he informs them otherwise.

Wadkins, winner of three titles and more than $300,000 in his first two years as a pro but a struggling also-ran since surgery at the end of the 1974 season, overcame some erratic putting and put together a 36hole total of 135, seven under par for two trips over the tough, old, 7,029-yard Riviera Country Club course.

Purtzer fashioned a four-under-par 67 in the weather that ranged from mild and sunny to cool and hazy.

Massengale, a runaway winner at the Bob Hope Desert Classic a week ago and the first round leader here, slipped to a 73 and was three shots back at 138.

"It's almost a relief not to be leading," Massengale said. "I didn't really feel any pressure, but it's always on your mind."

Roger Maltbie, winner of the Memorial Tournament last year, and Craig Stadler, a former national amateur champion, shared third at 137, two strokes behind Wadkins and Purtzer. Stadler had a secondround 68 and Maltbie, who played with Pate, had a 69.

"He made some swings that were very uncharacteristic of Jerry Pate," Maltbie said. "You could see he was having physical difficulties. You could see him flinch."

Bob Gilder matched par 71 and was tied with Massengale at 138.

Defending champion Hale Irwin had to rally for a 72 and was tied at 147 with PGA king Dave Stockton, who had a 74.

A number of the game's great names failed to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. Among them were Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Gary Player, who have won more than 200 career international titles. Palmer struggled to a 78 and a 154 total. Player was 75-149. Casper was 81-153.

Tom Watson, a record-setting winner of the two events earlier this season, was another casualty with a second-round 73 and a 149 total.

Cooper, Permian triumph

Abilene Cooper's Cougars wear the District 5-4A basketball crown.

The Cougars took a narrow 55-53 victory over the Abilene Eagles Friday night to move into the Class AAAA state playoffs for the first time in the school's history.

While Cooper was taking its heart-stopping win before a packed house in the Taylor County Coliseum, Odessa Permian struggled past Odessa High, 66-62 and Big Spring tripped San Angelo Central at the buzzer, 57-55.

Cooper led by as much as 11 points in the third period, but a furious rally by the Warbirds in the final period just fell short, thus knocking out Midland Lee and Permian out of a possible three-team playoff for the 5-4A title.

Abilene outscored Cooper, 20-13, in the final eight minutes with Byron Roberts and Cisco Smith paving the way, but it was clutch free throw shooting by Tim Orr, Dennis Bradford and Keith Turner that was the difference.

Cooper takes a 26-7 record into the state playoffs against either Wichita Falls, Rider or L.D. Bell while Abilene winds up 18-15 on the year.

Lee, a 74-54 winner over Midland High which included two wins over Cooper, winds up 28-7 on the season.

Turner and Bradford led Cooper with 17 and 13 points, respectively.

Roberts and Smith had 17 and 19 for Abilene.

Stan Strifler led Permian's attack with 25 points to wind up Mojo's season with a 24-7 mark. Mike White, talented sophomore, led OHS with 26 points.

Casey Wilder's 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer gave the Steers its win over San Angelo. Big Spring winds up 15-16 on the year while Central, paced by Craig Brown's 20 points finishes with a 11-17 reading. OHS winds up 0-14 in 5-4A play and 7-26 on the year.

Suns' rally beats 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Paul Westphal scored 22 points and Alvan Adams added 19 as the Phoenix Suns built a 14point lead and then held off a late Philadelphia rally to beat the 76ers 102-96 Friday night in a National Basketball Association game.

The Suns led 94-80 with 5:17 left in the final period, but the 76ers scored the next eight points to trim the lead to six with 3:14 on the clock.

Rankin honors sports teams

RANKIN—Senior Tom Wimberley received the prestigious Fighting Heart Award here Friday night in Rankin High School's annual All-Sports banquet.

The award is given yearly to the most outstanding Rankin athlete, and is the highest award bestowed on an athlete at the school. Robert Doege, Rankin Booster Club president, made the presentation before more than 200 fans, parents and athletes present at the banquet.

Bill Yung, former assistant at Baylor University and the new head football coach at West Texas State University, was the guest speaker.

Yung gave an inspirational talk, telling the athletes not to be afraid to motivate self.

Jamie Tiemann was crowned as the football sweetheart during the affair by football captains Roy Kendrick and Hilton Luckie.

Teresa Plagens was also crowned as basketball sweetheart by roundball captains Randy Golson and Michael Dupriest. Tommy McCutcheon was named as the basketball beau of the girls cage team. Teresa Plagens and Joyce Plagens made the presentation.

Football coach Dwayne Turner, basketball coach James Heffernan, track coach Willie Myers and girls coach Willard Hedges introduced the athletes. Seniors also presented their mothers with a long stem red rose in appreciation of their help during their high school years.

Allen Moore served as toastmaster and A. C. Copeland, superintendent of schools, introduced special guests.

SuperSonics defeat Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Fred Brown and Slick Watts paced Seattle to a 22-point lead late in the third quarter and the SuperSonics held on for a fight-marred 93-88 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets Friday night.

The two backcourt men helped Seattle open a 67-45 bulge with 2½ minutes left in the third period. Bubbles Hawkins, who led all scorers with 23 points, and Al Skinner sparked a furious New York comeback that got the Nets within four points with 1:17 remaining.

However, Watts hit four free throws and Tom Burleson added two in the final 62 seconds to nail down only the Sonics' fifth triumph in 26 road games this season, two of the victories coming at the Nassau Coliseum.

Watts topped the Sonics with 19 points and Brown added 17. Al Skinner had 19 for the Nets.

Lee finishes 2nd at Odessa

ODESSA — Plainview came from 14 strokes off the pace to win the Odessa Invitational High School golf tournament Friday with a 599. Plainview trailed by 14 after Thursday's round at Golden Acres, but turned in a scorching round at Odessa CC Friday.

Midland Lee took second place with a 699 while San Angelo and Fort Stockton had a 605. Midland was next with 614, but Coach Robert Young was pleased with his teams play.

"In the early meets I've been rotating 15 players in search of the right combination for District 5-4A play starting in March."

Kelly Eng led the Midland golfers with a 71 the first day and Shane Berry led the Pack with a 69 at OCC Friday.

Steve Wise led Lee to its second place finish with 71-72—143 while Billy Sitton posted a 69-80—149. Other Lee scores were, Gary Raney 74-85—159; Kyle Roland 76-76—152; and Buddy Gieb 74-84—158.

For Midland, Eng had 71-74—145; Berry 75-69—144; Tom Walker 78-83—161; David Brimberry 78-88—166; Lee Holbrook 82-86—168.

Byman's second 64 takes golf first

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Byman shot his second consecutive 64 on the short Rancho Penasquitos course Friday to win a $25,000 golf tournament by four strokes.

Byman, from Raleigh, N.C., had a 17-under-par 193 for the 54-hole event over the 5,756-yard Rancho Penasquitos layout, and collected $5,000 for the victory.

Gary Vanier of Oakland finished second with a 62, giving him a 197. He won $3,000.

Midland gymnasts defeat Odessa High

ODESSA — Midland High School's boys gymnastics team defeated Odessa High 137.20 to 121.55 in a dual compulsory meet here Friday.

Midland's next action will be March 4 in a triangular meet in El Paso against Fastwood and Bel Air.

Cleveland Barons set deadline

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Barons told majority owner Mel Swig Friday he has until Tuesday noon either to pay their overdue salaries or to commit himself to sell the financially troubled National Hockey League franchise.

Defenseman Bob Stewart, Cleveland's player representative, met with his teammates here and talked to Alan Eagleson, NHL Players' Association director, and NHL President Clarence Campbell by telephone Friday before the decision was reached.

THE SPOKESMAN for the Barons' players said that before they received endorsement for the action from the Players Association, the majority of the Cleveland players was in favor of boycotting Friday night's game here against the Colorado Rockies.

After discussing the implications of such a decision with Eagleson and Campbell, and getting Eagleson's assurances of full association support, they decided instead that they would play the Rockies and Sunday night's game in Pittsburgh.

But they also came up with an ultimatum.

"If by noon Tuesday of next week this situation has not been rectified, unless we are paid in full or Mr. Greenberg steps in, every team in the league will back our team in our decision not to continue playing," Stewart said.

STEWART SAID the Cleveland players were given an understanding from Eagleson that they will be free agents if their demands are not met.

Eagle, ace top Hogan play

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park golf pro

There was another eagle shooter at Hogan Park this week. Bob Birth twoed the No. 5 par-four hole, using a six-iron to hole out after a good drive. Bob's eagle was witnessed by Ed Stover, his regular playing partner.

Jerry Schwinkendorf also hit a perfect six-iron shot during the week, acing the par-three 13th hole at Hogan. Jerry's hole-in-one was the first ace recorded in his golfing career. Congratulations to both of these gentlemen.

JIM ARMSTRONG, representing the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America, was out this week and a tentative date for the second annual Boy Scouts Pro-Am was set.

Pro-Am golfers should mark May 16 on their golf calendar for this year's event. The prize purse will be an estimated $3,500 with an entry fee of $25 per man. This year's field will be limited to 30 pros and 90 amateurs. All pairings will be done by a committee.

This looks like a good pro-am, so plan to participate this year.

A LITTLE note on tee times for play at Hogan Park... Startings times are accepted for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays for 3-4-5-somes only, on the Friday previous to the weekend or holiday beginning at 6 a.m.

Times may be reserved either by telephone or in person on a first-come, first-served basis. Players wanting a time for the weekends and holidays should be reminded that the day's tee times are usually filled up by 7 a.m. Friday mornings.

Note: Monday will be considered a holiday at Hogan Park, so if you plan to play Monday, be sure to call before coming out.

HOGAN PARK Women's Golf Association held its general meeting Thursday and conducted a two-person scramble after the meeting.

The 18-hole winners were Dottie Turk and Florence Mailey and Wilma Cox and Joyce Parker. The nine-hole winners were Bernice Webb-Marilyn Berry and Rosa Lee Cook-Wilma Allenson.

The pairings for the 18-hole division: Golda Morgan, Barb Worrell, Gloria Dellenback; Nell Kimball, Linda Ballard, Marjorie Hestand; Muriel Inman, March Davis, Shirley Edwards; Jane Wagner, Lois Sherrod, Jean Elkin and Betty King; Dottie Turk, Mary Kurz, Della Olsen and Thelma Johnston; Florence Mailey, Chata Mee, Joyce Parker, Gene Velten; Alvina Hill, Marilyn Philpy, Wilma Cox, Dorothy Meizer; Pat Barton, Fern Barnett, Merla Ketner and Betty Cobb

The 9-hole pairings: Jeanne Allen, Ernestine Browning, Margaret Moore, Betty Ireland, Keenie Ashland, Betty Williams, Wilma Allenson, Rita Boe, Lucrecia Black, Bernice Webb, Marilyn Berry and Marguerite Stoltz; Evelynd Ballard, Peggy Parkins, Pat Kolb, Frances Stahl; Peggy Barry, Margaret McCleskey, Peggy Mattina, Juanita Evinger, Ida McGuire, Mary Davis, Kim Gentry, Lou Peters; Leah Sutcliffe, Evelyn Guidry, Dorothy Koons, Marjorie Cardwell, Rosa Lee Cook, Margaret Phelps and Norma Harbin

Diepraam advances to quarterfinals

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.— Midland Country Club tennis pro Keith Diepraam advanced to the quarterfinals of the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships here today by scoring two victories Friday.

Diepraam defeated Courtney Henderson, Dallas, and then downed Ronnie Fisher, Houston, in the round of 16. Diepraam and Paul Christian are seeded No. 3 in the doubles competition.

Shooters name Tatsch

Jack Tatsch will serve as president of the Midland Shooters Association, formerly the Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club, for the 1977 season. He succeeds Dr. Lewis Tanner.

Other officers elected were Joe Daskevich and Tom Walton, directors; Hugh Roberts, secretary, and Frank Morgan, treasurer.

The club conducts weekly shooting competition throughout the year.

Cubs' Murcer doesn't lack for confidence

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Murcer, the Chicago Cubs' new outfielder, doesn't lack confidence.

Answering with a flat "yes" when asked if he thought he was a better baseball player than Bill Madlock, Murcer said "it's not unreasonable" to expect him to hit 30 home runs and drive in 100 runs.

"I'm also looking to steal 30 to 40 bases," said Murcer. "I didn't do a lot of that in the past because when I was with the New York Yankees I had a bad sliding habit and Ralph Houk (manager) told me not to steal for fear I'd jam my hand sliding and miss some games."

MURCER, WHO was acquired from the San Francisco Giants in a five-player trade last week in which the Cubs sent two-time National League batting champion Bill Madlock to the Giants, made a quick trip to Chicago for a news conference and immediately departed for his home in Oklahoma City, Okla.

When he arrived, firemen were clearing debris from a fire which hit some of the outside ticket offices.

"No, I don't see any significance in that," laughed Murcer in reference to his arrival shortly after the fire.

The Murcer-Madlock trade apparently was made because the Cubs were unnable to sign Madlock and the Giants and Murcer couldn't agree to terms. Madlock signed Thursday with the Giants for five years and at a reported a million dollars.

MURCER SAID he didn't anticipate any difficulty in reaching terms with the Cubs. "We've thrown some figures around and we feel confident we can reach an agreement.

"I'm elated to be able to play in Wrigley Field," said Murcer, who broke in with the Yankees in 1969 and was traded to the Giants after the 1974 season. "I've had some successful days here."

In an obvious rap of weather conditions in San Francisco's Candlestick Park, Murcer said, "Here you know if the wind is blowing in or out. It's a compact park. Good for the fans and the players. I don't care what other players say, fan reaction always helps.

Cubs busy signing players

With spring training less than a month away, the Midland Cubs have begun signing players currently on the winter roster.

Farm director John Cox has been hard at work in efforts to sign more than 100 minor league players in the Chicago Cubs' organization.

The first signees for Midland include pitchers Jeff Albert, acquired in the recent Rick Monday trade; Dan England, who led the Rookie League in wins (10), starts (13) and strikeouts (63); Chuck Ledbetter and Mike Moore.

Also returning signed contracts were infielders Karl Gordon, injured all last season; Steve Davis, a highly-touted shortstop from Stanford; Tim Ireland and Aaron Randall, plus outfielders Karl Pagel from UT-Austin and Brian Rosinski.

The Cubs begins workouts in Scottsdale, Ariz., March 17.

Texas muscles TWC, 3-1, 16-1

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Charles Proske muscled across seven runs in two games as Texas clinched a college baseball doubleheader 3-1 and 16-1 against Texas Wesleyan in season openers for both schools.

'Superstar' Rote warms Dallas bench

ROTUNDA, Fla. (AP) — Kyle Rote Jr. may be a whirlwind at "The Superstars", but back in Dallas he's just another Tornado.

Rote has gained fame and fortune by winning ABC's "Superstars" twice in the first four years and he is among the favorites again this time in Sunday's finals. Through his television exposure he has become America's best-known soccer player — "In 1973 and 1974 I was the only soccer player seen on national television," he says, "and I wasn't even playing soccer at the time" — and he has won more than $150,000 in prize money.

BUT BACK home his career has taken a nosedive. He was the North American Soccer League's rookie of the year in 1973, but the quality of play has changed since then. Rote, a TV "Superstar", was a benchwarmer last season for the Dallas Tornado and was paid only $7,000.

"It has been a tremendous letdown for me to sit on the bench," says Rote, "but I can't really complain. I know in my heart that there are better players on my team than me. It's the coach's job to put out the best team he can. I recognize the problem."

WHEN DALLAS goes on the road, billboards proclaim: "Come see Kyle Rote Jr. and the Dallas Tornado." But most of the time fans get a large helping of Tornado and just a brief glimpse of Rote.

"People expect to see me do magical things," says the personable 25-year-old, "but instead I get splinters. But it's been good for the sport. Maybe people come to the game to see me but maybe they come away saying 'Kyle Rote is not that good but Ray Turner is or Ken Cooper is.' That helps our team and the whole league."

Rote says he has been offered a contract "in excess of a quarter-million dollars" by the rival American Soccer League but probably will end up signing with Dallas again.

ROTE IS very high on "The Superstars" concept because, through his efforts, people have discovered that soccer players are good athletes. "Soccer has always been a kind of catch-all sport in school. You can keep 22 kids busy with just one ball and everyone gets to run around. But it's more than that."

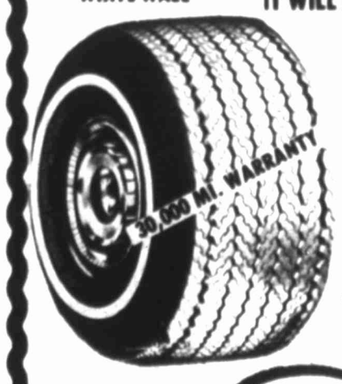

The money available here is a factor too, especially for the minor-sport guys. Pro football and baseball players may not get excited about a few thousand bucks but guys like Rote and pole vaulter Bob Seagran take it very seriously.

"This thing may have started as a TV gimmick but as soon as Seagren won the first year and we all saw how much money he made and his involvement in commercials, we began to take a real interest in it.
