Annihilation Faces Divided Forces On Leyte As Veteran Yanks Close In

By CLYDE BARTEL
Associated Press War Editor

JAPANESE forces south of Ormoc on Leyte island, Philippines, faced annihilation today between the crushing power of the American 77th and 7th divisions.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the Nipponese were compressed into a five square mile area, and that American ground forces had advanced to the outskirts of Ormoc, the enemy's principal supply base on the west coast of the battle-scarred island.

Nature Batters Japs

Forces of nature also contributed to Japan's misfortunes, the Tokyo radio announcing yesterday that an earthquake and tidal wave hit the area around the Nipponese capital Thursday (Japanese time).

American aircraft and naval vessels added to the island empire's war woes with a powerful attack yesterday (Japanese time) on Iwo Jima, aviation base in the Volcano islands only 750 miles south of Tokyo.

A single Superfortress set fires in the rail center city of Shizuola, 100 miles southwest of Tokyo and Japanese broadcasters said four B-29s made individual reconnaissances over Nippon, but dropped no bombs.

Daring Ormoc Landing

American successes on Leyte were facilitated by the daring Dec. 7 amphibious landing of the 77th division just below Ormoc, where the enemy's vaunted Yamashita line already has been breached.

MacArthur's communique reported a 9,000-ton Japanese transport was sunk by air patrols off Luzon; 13 enemy freighters ranging from 300 to 800 tons were destroyed or damaged by other fliers around the Visayan islands west of Leyte, and 19 Nipponese planes were shot down over Leyte.

Yank fliers harassed the Manila area, destroyed an ammunition dump at nearby Clark Field and

Japs Say Quake Damage Is Light

(By The Associated Press)

Tokyo acknowledged last night that factories in Osaka and other war industry sections of the main Japanese island were damaged by the Thursday earthquake, so severe it caused a tidal wave.

A Domei agency dispatch, picked up by the Federal Communications commission, said factories and homes in Osaka, Hamamatsu and Shimuzu areas were damaged, but claimed that "on the whole" the destruction was light.

Rail and Shipping Hub

Osaka, 240 miles southwest of Tokyo, has a population of 3,252,000. It is an important rail and shipping hub and manufactures textiles, machines, metals and chemicals.

There was no indication Tokyo itself had been affected. The Domei dispatch, together with earlier Japanese reports, listed the damaged areas as Osaka, Hamamatsu, Shizuoka, Shimizu, Nagoya and Nagano.

Nagoya, with a population of 1,328,000, is 160 miles southwest of Tokyo. Before the war, at least, it was the center of Japan's aviation industry.

Damage Said Light

"The quake was severe, but losses were limited to buildings damaged in one area," Domei said, "and on the whole not much damage was done."

The center of the earthquake was in the Sea of Enshu, lying off Shizuoka and Nagoya prefectures on Honshu island.

Tidal waves and landslides added to the damage in the Shizuoka area, some 80 miles southwest of Tokyo, earlier broadcasts said.

Domei said damage was minimized by precautions already taken against American air raids.

Reconstruction Starts

"Reconstruction work began at once."

The quake was recorded by seismographs all over the world, and J. J. Shaw, veteran West Bromwich, England, observer said it was one of the greatest ever to come to his attention.

Radio Tokyo, in broadcasts picked up by the Federal Communications commission, said the shock caused a tidal wave which covered houses with water, started a minor landslide and damaged buildings.

Canadian Parliament Votes King Approval

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 (AP)— The Canadian parliament gave Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King a decisive vote of confidence today in a move endorsing his decision to conscript troops for replacements in Europe and apparently burying the nation-splitting conscription issue for the duration of the war.

The vote was 143 to 70, with nationalistic French Canada, traditionally opposed to conscription for fighting overseas, dividing to give the government a measure of support regarded as a personal triumph for the veteran prime minister.

Grim Christmas In Store For Germans

LONDON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Germany is facing its "hardest, grimmest Christmas," the German Transocean news agency said tonight, and for Berlin and other big cities "there is no Christmas spirit, no Christmas trees, no decorations and presents will be very rare."

"The railways have to carry more important goods than Christmas trees," Transocean added, "although there will be some relaxation of the travel ban to permit working fathers to return home.

"If anyone wants to give a present he has to part with his own things. It's not easy to buy toys. Germans have been given a half pound of meat, two eggs and quarter pound of sweets for the children, and perhaps half a bottle of 'schnapps" or a small bottle of wine—just to make grownups feel that there is a Christmas."

HEAVY LOSSES CLAIMED

LONDON, Saturday, Dec. 9 (AP) The German radio declared early today that 170,000 American troops were lost in the "great Aachen battle." There was no elaboration or Allied confirmation.

FEATURED AT LAAF OPEN HOUSE—Lubbock Army Air field was host Friday at open house for residents of the South Plains who swarmed the field to see some of Uncle Sam's mighty air giants at close range, and a group of hero service men who are on tour boosting sale of bonds. Top picture shows members of the touring group, left to right, front row: T-Sgt. Robert T. Walton of Atlantic City, N. J.; S-Sgt. Norman M. Gould of Madera, Calif.; S-Sgt. John Turchetta of Altoona, Pa.; T-Sgt. David H. May of Westminister, Md.; S-Sgt. Robert D. Cunningham of Abilene, Tex.; S-Sgt. M. E. Brewer of Abinene. On wing: S-Sgt. J. M. Biesecker of Bainbridge, Pa. Standing: left to right—1st Lt. George Slingmeyer, 1st Lt. William Skinner, Capt. Richard Tansing, 1st Lt. Arthur Carter, Capt. Robert Tyler, 1st Lt. Richard King, Capt. George Manussier, Capt. Robert Morril, and 1st Lt. William Rush. Lower picture shows civilian inspection of a B-24 Liberator.

Public Inspects U. S. Air Giants

Thousands of South Plainsmen, their wives and even infants in arms flocked Friday afternoon to LAAF to inspect some of the more famous planes their bonds have bought.

Those who had seen a B-24 Liberator flying at 7,000 feet fell into line and waited their turn to climb to a platform allowing them to look into the forward compartments of the giant plane. They returned to the field's concrete apron, then ducked under the bomb bay doors and stood upright inside and looked up and down the catwalk, eyes almost popping at the intricacies of guns and controls and bombracks and oxygen equipment and other grim reminders of how dollars can talk through the muzzles of winged guns and cavernous opening where bombs drop.

File Through Fortress

They filed through a B-17 Flying Fortress, and chattered in amazement at wingspread, height of fin, armament and those other factors that have made it a truly great airplane.

Then, standing off and reassembling the perspective, they garruluously tried to compare the enormous craft with their conceptions of the dwarfing B-29 Superfortress, which few had seen lower than 10,000 feet, but which overnight has reduced the B-17 and B-24 to "medium" bombers.

Mustang and P-47

They saw the P-51D Mustang, which the other day was revealed to be a 450-mile-an-hour scat fighter; the P-47, the world's largest single-engine fighter, and the P-38 Lightning, heaviest fighter of any nation. And there was the much-publicized C-47, the great workhorse of the air.

Military police directed traffic so admirably that there was no pushing, and parking was smoothly directed, cars sliding up to within a few yards of the huge apron where the planes were parked.

Fighting Strength Of Luftwaffe Built Up

LONDON, Dec. 8. (AP) — The fighter strength of the luftwafe, despite heavy losses such as nearly 900 planes in November, actually is being built up, a United States Eighth Air force staff office said today.

"Nine months ago production of fighter planes was cut to about 800 a month by the systematic bombing of the main German assembly plants," he said. "But since then the Nazis have dispersed their factories, many of them underground. Their production now may be up to 1,200 planes a month. They may run out of pilots before they do fighter craft."

Generous Lubbock through yesterday had contributed $1,063.25 of a $1,500 Christmas fund for underprivileged children, with every indication that the drive will go over the top by next Wednesday.

Chief Goodfellow, anonymous head of the campaign to carry Yule joy to approximately 2,000 needy youngsters of 14 years of age, or younger, last night submitted the most recent financial accounting. It reads:

Previously acknowledged	$849.25
A Friend	1.00
John N. Goodwin	5.00
John R. Wilson	10.00
Lubbock Cotton Oil Co.	25.00
O. W. Ribble	5.00
Clifford B. Jones	15.00
E. K. Hufstedler and Son	25.00
Clovo and Cowan	20.00
Mrs. C. M. Whipp	2.00
George R. Evans	10.00

Sears, Roebuck and Co.	25.00
W. C. O'Mara	5.00
Hilton Hotel	25.00
Luther Transfer and Storage Co.	25.00
Totals to date	$1,063.25

"Literally thousands of prosperous Lubbock people should be falling all over themselves to become Goodfellows by contributing to this fund," Chief Goodfellow observed. "The organization is glad to accept gifts of from 25 cents on up—and the more the better. Each donor automatically becomes a member of the Goodfellows and every donation will be listed in the paper."

Donations should be brought or mailed to The Avalanche-Journal, 1211-13 Texas avenue. In case checks are used, they may be made payable to The Goodfellow Fund.

Churchill Upheld On Foreign Policy

By ALEX SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Prime Minister Churchill won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the House of Commons today for a foreign policy of intervention against "mob rule by murder gangs" in liberated Europe after a vigorous defense in which he clearly suggested that the United States could not wash its hands of the problem.

A tense, often turbulent, House supported him 281 to 32 when the premier, in a back-me-or-sack-me stand, forced the issue to meet a clamor of criticism at home and abroad.

Use Of Troops In Greece

The crisis was provoked by the use of British troops to combat fraternal strife in Greece, by British refusal to approve Count Carlo Sforza as Italian foreign minister, by violent demonstrations in Belgium, and by rumblings of unrest in Holland.

Refusing to retreat an inch from his position, which he epitomized in the sentence, "democracy is not a harlot to be picked up in the street by a man with a tommy gun," Churchill made it evident that he regarded the responsibility as America's as well as Britain's.

The United States State department has publicly avowed a hands-off policy regarding the internal affairs of other countries, with Italy and Greece specifically mentioned, but Churchill made repeated references to Americans sharing of the authority for what has happened.

Agreed On At Quebec

The operation in Greece and the methods of handling it, were agreed upon at the last Quebec conference with President Roosevelt, he noted.

Use of British troops to maintain order in Belgium was directed by a British general who was operating under command of the American General Eisenhower, Churchill noted, pausing to praise Eisenhower and to remark that "we thought those orders were wise and sensible."

Count Sforza, after 20 years of exile in America, was allowed to return to Italy, despite British misgivings, after he had written to the U. S. State department's then assistant Secretary Berle pledging not to stir up trouble.

Churchill remarked in passing that "our interest in Italy is the front, where under the American Lt. Gen. Mark Clark "we have confidently placed an Army which is at least three-quarters British or British controlled."

New Agreement Is Only Partial

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 — The United States and Britain achieved only partial agreement today on political policies for liberated Europe.

The long distance dispute, stemming from British intervention in Italy and Greece, was reported authoritatively to have had these two results:

1. British Ambassador Halifax and Secretary of State Stettinius, in a conference at the State department today, agreed on the need for the closest consultation between Washington and London on all future political as well as military questions involving the common interest of the two countries.

Stand on Basic Policies

2. Both Washington and London stood on their basic policies with respect to liberated countries, the United States insisting on complete freedom of political action for the people where it does not interfere with the progress of the war and Britain equally insisting on the right to help shape the governments of liberated countries.

How much—if any—the decision to consult will allow this country to modify Britain's course in Europe remains to be seen. Prime Minister Churchill won a vote of confidence in Commons today for the British policy.

Strong Objections

Prior to Halifax's call at the State department, the British embassy had registered strong verbal objections with Stettinius about the manner in which the American position was publicly stated last Tuesday.

It was learned that a British spokesman, who called on Stettinius ahead of the ambassador, admitted that the United States should have been consulted before the British spoke up against inclusion of Count Carlo Sforza in any Italian government. But he said it was even more true that the British government should have been consulted before the State department issued its declaration for a hands-off policy.

MAN DIES IN COLLISION

HOUSTON, Dec. 8 (AP)—Howard Lee Pollard, 42, was killed this afternoon when the car he was driving collided with a Southern Pacific passenger train.

Combat Fliers Appear At Rally

Approximately 350 persons, of whom probably a third were school students, were in attendance when seven distinguished combat fliers appeared at the Lubbock High school auditorium Friday night in behalf of Lubbock county's Sixth War Loan campaign.

War bonds in the amount of $4,518.75 were pledged at the rally, according to L. C. Ellis, who was in charge of the bond table.

Each veteran made a brief talk, touching but lightly on their combat experiences. Two said the American people were not "asleep," as often charged. "They need only to stay awake," one declared.

Many Decorations

Appearing on the stage were Capt. Robert Merrell of Newton, Mass., B-17 pilot, and commanding officer of the group who has been awarded the Air medal to which were added three Oak Leaf clusters, DFC with one Oak Leaf cluster and the presidential citation; Capt. Robert Tyler of Sacramento, Calif., Air medal with two clusters, DF with Oak Leaf cluster; Sgt. David May of Westminister, Md., veteran of three and a half years in the Pacific, including service at Pearl Harbor, Midway and Guadalcanal; Lt. William Skinner of Los Angeles, Air medal with three silver leaf clusters, DF; Capt. Richard Tansing of Portland, Ore., Air medal with one Oak Leaf cluster, DFC; Lt. George Slingmeyer of Pasadena, Calif., Air medal with three Oak Leaf clusters; Lt. Arthur Carter of Roanoke, Va., Air medal with three Oak Leaf clusters, DFC, European theater of operations ribbon with three stars.

Durwood H. Bradley, Lubbock attorney, was master of ceremonies.

Before the program at the high school, the veterans and representatives of both local air fields were guests of Al Finnell, manager of Hilton hotel, at a dinner party at the hotel.

Soldier Son Is Not Killed In 'Theater'

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 8. — Straight from the Ozarks:

The mother of a soldier reported killed in the "European theater" asked a correction because "he did not get killed in a theater."

"He got killed in the firing lines with the U. S. Army in Germany," she declared.

SAFETY PLEA ISSUED

AUSTIN, Dec. 8 (AP)—Governor Coke R. Stevenson today urged Texans to campaign against Christmas holiday accidents in homes and on streets and highways.

Rome Black Markets Cause Demonstration

ROME, Dec. 8 (AP) — Angry crowds broke into three stores on a square in Rome today in a renewed demonstration against the black market.

Three stores were raided yesterday by men, women and children who overturned carts and trampled on the expensive foods displayed.

Few of the crowds stole anything as they described their anger as stronger than hunger.

NEW JAP FIGHTER

A new Japanese fighter plane —the "Tenzan"—is in action in the Philippines, a Japanese news agency broadcast from Tokyo said today. The broadcast to occupied Asia, recorded by the Federal Communications service, identified the fighter as a Navy monoplane "capable of carrying torpedoes or bombs as the occasion demands."

Yanks Smash On Into Saar

Third And Seventh Join In Slashing Blows Along Flaming 60-Mile Front

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Paris, Dec. 8—The U. S. Third and Seventh armies in a concentrated push along a 60-mile front from shell-torn Saarbrucken to the Rhine, hammered today at the Seigfried line guarding Germany's Saar basin and at the outlying defenses of the neighboring Palatinate province.

The Third Army's 35th Infantry division forced two crossings of the Saar river near Sarreguemines, at the [illegible] hold of the rich industrial basin eight miles southeast of Saarbrucken, and established bridgeheads a half mile deep at both points.

Closing on Saarbrucken

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's armor closed steadily on Saarbrucken, the political and industrial capital of the Saar, whose big furnaces turning out a tenth of the steel for the enemy's armies already were considered lost to the Reich.

The U. S. Seventh Army, on the Third's right flank to the east, surged forward as much as three miles along a 35-mile front and field dispatches from Associated Press Correspondent Thoburn Wiant said they entered a town four and a half miles from the German frontier.

At this point the Seventh turned its heavy artillery on a mountainous sector of the Siegfried line.

(Field censorship would not immediately permit disclosure of the exact location of this closest advance to Germany yet made by the Seventh.)

Slash Into Pillboxes

The U. S. Third Army, driving nearly halfway across the northwest corner of the basin, fought a mile and a half into the maze of pillboxes of the Westwall northwest of Saarbrucken and was smashing that Saar capital's sprawling war factories with shells.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army long toms and heavy howitzers were wrecking Saarbrucken, where two of the greatest steel plants in the whole valley are located in the suburbs of Brebach and Burbach.

The basin's second city of Sarrlautern was falling into ruin under

Budapest Sealed Off From East

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 8—Russian tank forces broke through to the Danube river north of Budapest today, completing sealing off from the east the beseiged Hungarian capital, Berlin announced tonight.

The report, not confirmed by Moscow, said Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army in a bold 27-mile thrust reached the river near strategic Vac, 13 miles above the capital.

Reds Said Linked Up

Berlin also declared other Second Ukraine units had linked up with Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine Army at Erosi, on the west bank of the Danube 13 miles southwest of the capital, thus putting the German-Hungarian defenders of Budapest in a critical situation.

Curving around to the northearn side of Lake Balaton, one Soviet group captured Balatonfokajar, 15½ miles southwest of Szekesfehervar, outflanking the great rail city and pushing into the foothills of the Bakony mountains, last big natural hurdle before the Austrian frontier 78 miles beyond.

Seizure of the lake town represented a six mile advance as the Russians pushed within 115 miles of Vienna, Austrian capital on that front.

30 Localities Taken

At the southwestern end of the western Hungary front the Russians, who are within 41 miles of the Austrian frontier and less than 110 miles from Vienna, captured 30 localities, the bulletin said.

In this area the Germans were putting up terrific resistance, aided by divisions brought hurriedly from the Western front and northern Italy, Moscow dispatches said.

Berlin said Budapest was the focal point of the present fighting, and told of increasing Russian pressure on the eastern suburbs as well as the northern and southern outposts.

Impressions Of War Said False

By GLADWIN HILL

PARIS, Dec. 8. (AP)—The American people have gotten a false impression of the Western front situation which is far tougher than it is realized at home, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), one of the 17 touring members of the House Military Affairs committee, said today after a week's visit to the front.

Thomas said he did not think the false impression was the fault of the war correspondents and added he could not put his finger on the difficulty.

Doesn't Know Trouble

"I don't know whether it lies with Army public relations or censorship or somewhere else along the line before the picture reaches the American people," he said. "All I know is that I got an entirely different impression of the difficulties up there on the trip from what I did reading the newspapers at home.

"We were given to understand at home that the war would be over by Christmas at the latest. Up there, it looks as though it would be a great deal longer."

Thomas mentioned the weather and the ammunition shortage as two of the big problems.

Soldier Complaint

A universal gripe of soldiers, he said, was against the low legal rate of exchange of one franc for two cents—compared with an actual value nearer one franc for half a cent.

"Inflation is running rampant through France and is hurting not only our boys but the French people and international relations," Thomas said. "Every American soldier over here is sore about it. Why, I ran into a bunch down a street here that were ready to break into a store because they were so mad that they couldn't afford to buy things. And the French are sore because the boys aren't buying."

U. S. Version Of V-1 Is In Production

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 8. (AP) — An American version of the Nazi V-1 "buzz bomb" is in production at the Willys-Overland motors plant here, President Charles E. Sorenson disclosed today.

Sorenson reported "the aerial bomb, shipped complete except for the engine and controls, has a 27-foot fuselage and a wing span of 17 feet. The fore section houses the war head, magnetic compass, gyro equipment and a "windmill" timing device which throws the weapon into a spin over the target.

"Fuel tanks containing ordinary low-test gasoline which give the bomb a range of about 150 miles are amidships.

Without its bomb charge, the unit weighs about 2,500 pounds.

"We may never use the bomb," the Army Technical Service command said, "for the Army Air forces do not go in for indiscriminate bombing attacks, but if we do need it, we've got a good one."

NEW C. C. MANAGER

CORSICANA, Dec. 8 (AP)—E. C. Mueller, Nacogdoches Chamber of Commerce manager, will become manager of the Corsicana Chamber Jan. 1, Will Thompson, president of the Corsicana organization, announced today. Mueller will succeed Robert G. Dillard, who has resigned to go with a commercial organization at Austin.

Tax Freeze Voted By Senate And Bill Goes To President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)— Contrary to administration wishes, the Senate today sent to the White House legislation freezing the old age pension tax throughout 1945.

The senators voted 47 to 19 in favor of the freeze—not as large a ratio as the 262 to 72 House vote last Monday, but more than the two-thirds needed to override a widely predicted veto. A switch of four votes, would doom a motion to override.

If Mr. Roosevelt bows to congress' will, or if the lawmakers override a veto, it will mark the fourth consecutive year that an automatic increase in the payroll levy has been blocked. The rate, now 1 per cent each on employes and employers, will double Jan. 1, unless the bill becomes law.

Twenty-one Democrats and 26 Republicans voted for the freeze. Lines up on the losing side were 15 Democrats, including Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), sponsor of the original social security law, three republicans and one progressive.

In the debate which preceded the final vote, Wagner argued that the freeze "may seriously impair the financial soundness of our contributory system of social security."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who has led the freeze fight four times, ridiculed Wagner's prediction. The reserve fund from which old age and survivors benefits are paid has mounted to nearly $6,000,000,000, Vandenberg recited; the payroll tax brought in more than $1,200,000,000 in the last fiscal year; and benefit payments from the fund totaled only $184,500,000.

Survivor Recounts Bloody Prisoner Massacre By Japs

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—The bloody massacre by the Japanese of hundreds of weakened American servicemen, struggling in the ocean after the transport on which they had been imprisoned was sunk, was described today by one of the survivors of the ordeal, Capt. Fred J. Gallagher, of Tuscon, Ariz.

Gallagher's companions were First Lt. Harvey Denson, of Granger, Texas, and Sgt. Charles Johnstone of Cleveland.

Only 82 Americans of the 750 who were aboard the transport survived, Capt. Gallagher said in an interview, after he and two other survivors were introduced at the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Five hundred prisoners were jammed into a hold measuring 50 by 40 feet, when the trip began last Aug. 19, Gallagher said.

"We were naked, and the first three days we exhausted all the moisture in our bodies and couldn't perspire," he said. "It was hell to be in that trap."

For 19 days the prisoners were so crowded that a man had to stand up to permit the man behind him to stretch his legs, the captain continued. "These are the kind of times when men get religion, and lose it."

At one time, 140 men who had lost consciousness were removed from the hold, he declared, adding: "They were going pretty fast."

Capt. Gallagher told this story of the torpedoing:

DEAR:

Hubert Bechtol, end, in being named on the All-American eleven selected by the Associated Press, brought honor and distinction to his home town, because he is the first Lubbock player to achieve that coveted place. Bechtol, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bechtol, made the climb over a scant six-year period from an unknown youngster going out for junior high football for the first time to acclaim from coast to coast.

His parents told a reporter they thought their boy was good but not that good and it read like a miracle to them. He played at the University of Texas where he is a Navy V-12 student, in case you've lost out on your sports, lately. Bechtol not only stepped into the shoes of a last season's all-American end, Joe Parker of Wichita Falls, but he was rated his better even in the southwest and several opposing coaches referred to him as the fifth man in their backfield.

Bechtol was a Junior High Cowboy in 1939, played with the Westerners and went on to Texas Tech where he was called the greatest freshman end in history and teamed with Freddie Brown to form a passing combination that received attention from over the nation. He was picked on the honorable mention of the All-American team last year.

Largest gift of its kind ever to be received by Texas Tech, 30 freshmen scolarships of the value of $100 each have been awarded the college by the Dunlap company for the school year of 1945-46, it was announced by James G. Allen, dean of men. Top ranking graduates, boys and girls, of high schools in Lubbock and adjoining counties are eligible to apply for the scholarships.

The public was invited to open house and display of "aerial battlewagons" at Lubbock Army air field this afternoon and tonight there will be a "war heroes rally" in the interest of Lubbock's Sixth War loan drive. The most bemedaled group of fliers ever to visit Lubbock will speak. LAAF band will play and Durwood H. Bradley will be master of ceremonies.

Shallowater became the first Lubbock county population center to go over the top in the Sixth war loan drive, bonds subscribed totaling $34,862 50. The quota was $32,775.

Another waste paper drive has been set for Sunday and goal is 200,000 pounds.

A robber in cowboy regalia Saturday night took more than $500 from employes of two theaters in Spur and later escaped a peace officer at Crosbyton following his arrest in a hotel room Sunday morning. Approximately $400 of the loot was recovered. He reportedly bolted and disappeared in the darkness of an alley as the officer marched him to jail.

Lubbock chapter of Optimist International is discussing the possibility of a boys clubhouse in the Arnett-Benson addition.

Van D. Dowda, Cisco, former student at Texas Technological college, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel in the Air Corps somewhere in the European theater of operations, friends here have learned.

Cute little Pat Fain has been elected president of the Freshmen women at the University of Texas where she is majoring in chemistry and a pledge to Tri Delta.

The weather has varied from snow to sleet to balmy sunshine and today the down town streets are crowded with Christmas buyers.

Goodbye until next week.

Books And Articles Discussed By Club

A discussion was held on "The most interesting book or article I've read" at the meeting of Altrusa club Thursday night in the home of Mrs. Ethel Keenum, 2304-A Fourteenth. The list included "Earth And High Heaven" (Gwendolyn Graham), "I Saw The Philippines Fall" (Romulos), "The Raft," "The People On Our Side" (Edgar Snow), "Brave Men" (Ernie Pyle.)

Miss Effie Puryear discussed an article in the November copy of "The Altrusan" on "The Good Neighbor Policy in South America," which quoted the president of the Sao Paulo Rotary club as saying "North Americans going to South and Central Americans must learn to live as those people."

Miss Morrine George gave a paper on "United States in a New World—Our Pacific Relations," which was taken from a supplement to Fortune magazine. It set out that "despite differences and feuds, the peoples and cultures of the Orient are similar in one respect: until recent decades the Orient maintained a pre-capitalistic agrarian society whose social unit was the village and the family." "The bulk of all Asiatic life is on the very margin of subsistence owing to low productivity of labor and to continuing population pressure."

Miss Clara Pratt, co-hostess, was program director.

Dr. Pauline Miller presided for a business meeting and it was voted to endorse the candidacy of Mrs. Katharine Neville of Oklahoma City for president of Altrusa International.

Christmas pudding and coffee were served.

Free News Is Cited As Peace Factor

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said today reduced press communications rates, by stimulating a free flow of news, could "pave the way to a more permanent peace."

Cooper, an advocate of the free exchange of news throughout the world, said in an address prepared for the 49th annual meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers:

"The fact is that such communications systems as there are between some countries have invoked either censorship or such heavy charges as to stifle news exchange efforts by agencies of the press.

"Censorship can suppress news exchange. Exorbitant communication rates can effect the same result since there are limitations to the finances of newspapers.

"I should like to see a rate of one or two cents a word between any two capitals in the world."

"Such a reduced charge, well under present levels, Cooper said, "is not a grant to our press by which it may gain additional prosperity."

"It is not our press that needs it," he said. "But it can bring the establishment of a self-supporting press in many countries. Principally it is a necessary bulwark of peace for all peoples."

Dunagan Studio To Present Recital Here

The Dunangan studio of music will present its pupils in a recital at Lubbock Senior High School at 3 p. m. Sunday. Around 200 students are expected to participate.

Ensemble numbers, special electric guitar numbers, vocals, native Hawaiian music and hillbilly selections will be featured.

The public is invited to attend the free program.

CUTTERS RECUE 1,400

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—A flotilla of 60 small coast guard cutters snatched 1,400 men from death in the English Channel in the five months following the invasion of Normandy, it was disclosed today. The remarkable feat was accomplished without loss of a single crewman and at a cost of only two cutters—both lost in a gale.

General Rides Water Buffalo On Patrol

LEYTE, Philippines, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—Amazed soldiers popped heads from their foxholes near the front lines to witness a water buffalo plodding along sedately through sniper-infested jungles and astride him Brig. Gen. C. M. Easley and Lt. Leslie A. Paris, jr., Dallas, Tex.

General Easley, assistant commander of the 96th infantry division, has been a familiar sight to frontline outfits as he toured the various sectors daily with his aide, Lt. John J. Berry of Spencer, Ia. The general, a small arms expert, is a graduate of Texas A. & M. and has seen Philippine service before. His home is Waco.

He and Parish once wound up a tour to find themselves a mile and a half behind the vague Japanese lines, but returned safely. At one spot, an American tank knocked out a Jap pillbox not 50 yards from the general.

Wiry Army Man From Texas Leads Scattered Guerillas On Samar

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Frank Hewlett, United Press war correspondent, who was with Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Corregidor, returned to the Philippines with the American landing at Leyte. He is now on the adjoining island of Samar, covering the operations of the Filipino guerrillas.)

By FRANK HEWLETT
United Press War Writer

WITH THE FILIPINO GUERRILLAS IN EASTERN SAMAR, Dec. 2. (Delayed)—A wiry little Army officer from Texas, who reminds you of Jimmy Gleason, is the man who has welded the scattered guerrillas of Samar islands into a fighting band.

He's a veteran Army man with years of service in the Philippines and when his full story can be told it will be one of the war's great thrillers.

Promised To Return

He was in the Philippines when the Japanese attacked. After the surrender he escaped to Australia by sailboat, telling the Filipinos that he'd be back.

After getting in touch with Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, he returned to Mindanao with the first submarine to go back to the Philippines, bringing supplies.

One of his first jobs was to set up a string of radio stations with which the guerrillas could communicate with American forces outside the islands.

Friction Developed

Early this year he was named to command the Samar guerrillas where friction had developed between two groups of Filipinos.

He brought in with him from Mindanao Capt. Amada Arietta, able young Spanish Filipino officer. Arietta has tangled with the Japanese a number of times. His best skirmish record is 137 Japanese killed when he was using only 27 armed men against them.

In southern Samar the guerrilla leader is Capt. Frank Merrett, 32, well educated half American negro, half Filipino whose father fought with the Americans in the Philippines insurrection. Merrett was a constabulary officer in Samara before the war's outbreak and refused to surrender.

Uses Great Fanfare

Merrett operates with great fanfare and even has his own band. On occasion when he liberates a town the inhabitants put out banners reading: "Welcome to Captain Merrett and his guerrillas."

In north Samar the guerrillas are directed by Lt. Col. Causing who is a veteran of 20 years' service with the Philippines constabulary. He is a hard, quiet worker. His only son, Humbert, commands a platoon and is one of his father's best officers.

Many of the guerrilla leaders are graduates of the Philippines Military academy. I found among them one long-haired scout who served on Bataan with the 12th engineers when I was there.

I also found Sergeant Oriano who for 14 years worked on ordnance on Corregidor.

Some Good, Some Bad

Oriano was at Ft. Hughes, repairing damaged anti-aircraft guns when the Americans surrendered.

These former scouts and constabulary men will get back pay for their service since Corregidor and will be taken into the Philippines Army if their organization is recognized by MacArthur.

There have been both good and bad guerrillas. Some of them have been opportunists who were little more than bandits, killing civilians to steal rice. But the little Texas officer who has coordinated the guerrillas had little trouble in separating the sheep from the goats.

Bangles On Sale On Streets Here Today

Bangles will be sold on the streets of Lubbock today in behalf of the Lubbock County Tuberculosis association, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, general chairman of the booth and bangle sale, said Friday day.

Members of the Ko-Shari club, social club of Texas Tech, will sell the bangles. Mrs. R. C. Harvey is in charge of all bangle arrangements.

Friday was bangle day in all of Lubbock Public schools with Miss Mayme Alexander in charge of the sale.

Booths for the sale of tuberculosis seals have been open at the theaters and hotels since Wednesday and similar booths will be set up at the banks today. Assisting with booth sales this week are members of the Sub-Deb and Las Cresas clubs of Senior High school Lois Cone is president of the Sub-Debs and Jane Lawson is president of the Las Cresas.

Alpha Chi Choices Announced At Tech

Upper 10 percent of Texas Tech junior and senior classes, 18 seniors and 21 juniors, were chosen this week for membership in Alpha Chi, honorary scholarship fraternity, by grade point tabulations in the registrar's office, according to R. A. Mills, club sponsor.

Of the 39 chosen, 17 are from the division of arts and sciences, 9 from the commerce division, 7 from the college of engineering, and 6 from the division of home economics.

Fewer Than Usual

Because of decrease in enrollment, group selection is smaller this year than in former years, Mills said. Peak year was the 1940-41 session with 610 seniors enrolled and a minimum grade point average of 2.16 as Alpha Chi requirement. Grade point average of juniors for this year's selection averaged 2.12 to 2.80.

Candlelight initiation services will be held in room 214 of the administration building at 5 p. m. Thursday. Senior students are Mrs. Irene Bagwell of Lubbock, Johnnye Lou Bagwell of Claude, Edward Cartwright of Santa Fe, Maxine Craddock of Colorado City, Bernice Douglas of Abernathy, Nancy Everline of Amarillo, Salle Fite of Crosbyton, Maxine Ford of Lubbock, Monda Hamilton of Lubbock, Lafara Harbison of Lubbock, LaVerne Henderson of Morse, Betty Huckabee of Waxahachie, Betty Hurt of Lamesa, Russell Leach of Lubbock, Reta Norman of Plainview, Betty Grace Pugh of Odessa, and Carolyn Reynolds of Lubbock.

Juniors Chosen

Juniors elected to membership are May Belle Bonner of Crane, Bodessa Burkham of Lockney, Norma Cleavinger of Hart, Mildred Finley of Levelland, Anita Hale of Amarillo, Lauro Lou Johnston of Pecos, Ben Logan of Lubbock, Audrey Melton of Olton, Selma Mullins of Stratford, La-Vera Riley of Rotan, Sarah Scroggins of Hale Center, Jim Simpson of Floydada, Melba Slater of Lubbock, Emma Gene Tonn of Lubbock, Kathryn Verner of Meadow, Patricia Vickers of Lubbock, Jane Watson of Plainview, Mary Kren Watson of Ralls, Mary Jean Webb of Hart, Dorothy Williams of Lubbock, and Jane Wilson of Lubbock.

Special Tech Week Said Great Success

One of the most successful Religious Emphasis Week observances ever sponsored by Texas Tech students ended last night with vesper services conducted at the First Christian church by Rev. Joe M. Hart, University of Texas Episcopal rector and guest speaker for the week.

Observance of Tech's fifth annual religious week was begun Monday morning with an all-college convocation in the gymnasium. Rev. Harte discussed Freedom Through Discipline.

Open forums held in Doak and Craddock halls Tuesday through Thursday were attended by large numbers of students and faculty members. Faculty members were guests for a luncheon Monday at Seaman hall, courtesy of the Student Religious council.

Morning Watch and Consecration service was held Friday morning in the home economics building. Rev. Harte lectured to several classes, in addition to the forums and vesper services.

Rev. Harte was sponsored by the Student Religious council and has conducted similar religious week activities elsewhere.

Made In Lubbock Show Discussed

A proposal to investigate the possibilities of a "Made in Lubbock" display to be presented sometime during this winter was presented yesterday morning to the directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development at their regular business meeting in their offices.

Originally suggested in The Plainsman's column in Lubbock Evening Journal, the idea is to display at some central point all items made in the city, from bakery products to heavy machinery. Members of the committee named to study the suggestion are H. L. Allen, W. C. O'Mara and George A. Simmons.

Nine of 15 directors were present at this morning's meeting, presided over by President Jack Randal. The directors voted to aid the local Army and Navy Medical Procurement committee to secure release from the Army of Dr. Mina Watkins, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. The local committee, composed of Drs. J. T. Hutchinson, W. L. Baugh, M. C. Overton, V. V. Clark and Chas. C. Wagner asked for chamber of commerce help in the matter, being represented at the meeting by Drs. Wagner and O. W. English. Return of Dr. Watkins to civilian practice at West Texas hospital was deemed essential since one associate, Dr. Robert T. Canon, is at present serving in the Navy, and the other, Dr. Fred W. Standefer, is slowly convalescing from a heart attack which will keep him from his practice for many months.

To Supplement Whyburn Income

The chamber of commerce directors also voted to supplement the income of Dr. W. M. Whyburn, president of Texas Technological college, for the first quarter of the 1944-45 college fiscal year in the sum of approximately $2,000. When Doctor Whyburn and members of the Tech directorate reached an agreement covering the Tech president's accepting the post here, it was understood that he must continue his work as a technical advisor to the Army Air Forces until about Jan. 1, 1945. Doctor Whyburn is paid by the War Department on a per diem basis and under the Constitution of Texas cannot be on the state payroll while holding any other sort of position. He has drawn no stipend from the state since taking over Tech's presidency early in last September and will not until such time as he can conclude his services with the Air Forces.

Child Blinded By Mishap Mysteriously Regaining Her Sight

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8 (AP) — Flaxen - haired, seven-year-old Judy Ann Koch is beginning to see a world that was dimmed out three months ago by an accident—and she finds it an exciting adventure.

"What's that, mummy?" asked Judy Ann of her mother as a reporter and photographer entered the room. 'Want to see my things?'

The "things" were Judy's fishes—first objects her blighted eyes recognized.

Judy is a healthy looking blond with blue eyes that once danced when she let go with a giggle, but today they just stare. She was blinded last September while trying to rescue a neighbor's dog from the path of an onrushing car.

Wednesday Mrs. Clyde G. Koch seated her daughter at the breakfast table. "Inky, Stinky, and Pinky" were swimming around in a fish bowl at one end of the table.

"I guess I was so excited I nearly lost my mind," recalled Mrs. Koch, whose eyes are dark and circled by many sleepless nights. "We told our doctors about it and they said it was nothing short of a miracle. Since then Judy has pointed out other objects and we know that she can see at least vaguely—off and on in flashes during the day."

The child likes entertaining friends and talks "in a chatter," her mother said. But, though Judy knows what she wants to say, it doesn't always come out.

"I like Suzy better'n all me," the little girl confided as she hugged her dog.

Judy Ann was in a coma nearly nine weeks in a hospital, under the care of specialists and special nurses. She returned home Nov. 14.

Multiple cerebral hemorrhages have clouded her memory. She is under a doctor's care but apparently there's nothing science can do.

What does Judy want for Christmas?

"I don't believe in Santa Claus—he's my daddy. Course I'm goin' to look for him just in case."

Bechtol Named On AP All-American

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Two 18-year-old gridders share honors with two United States Military Academy plebes and two stalwarts from Ohio State's undefeated civilian eleven, on The Associated Press 20th All-American team.

The youngsters, first of their age to achieve the pigskin honor which all football players would rather have than a sheepskin, are Bob Fenimore, brilliant Oklahoma A. and M. back, and Hubert Bechtol, University of Texas end, and formerly of Texas Tech.

These kids, on the eleven chosen by AP sports editors and writers all over the country, are the raves of their sections. Bob and Hubert bid fair to join that select few who have made the AP All-America more than once. Fenimore and Bechtol are sophomores.

Backs Felix (Doc) Blanchard and Glenn (Speedy) Davis are the Army plebes to win first team honors.

When you hear football fans calling the West Point aggregation the greatest to wear the Black and Gold colors, the abilities of Doc and Speedy stand out above all the others.

Davis and Blanchard also will be around for two or three years, depending on the course at the Point. The way those two backs play football, they're bound to figure in the headlines for years to come.

The Ohio Staters selected are Leslie Horvath, the Buckeyes' superduper passer, runner and signal caller, and Bill Hackett, 191-pound guard. These two had much to do with making the Columbus pigskinners all-victorious.

Moving along to the rest of the players on the first team, take a gander at center Caleb (Tex) Van Warrington, Alabama Poly center; Hamilton Nichols, Jr., Rice guard; Donald Whitmire, Navy, John Ferraro, Southern California, tackles; and Phil Tinsley, Georgia Tech end.

Warrington, the center, played a losing cause on the Auburn team. There's no telling what the score against his alma mater might have been without his great offensive work. He also showed up well defensively.

Most Aggressive Guard

Nichols, a junior like Warrington, has been compared with the most aggressive guards they've ever had in the southwest. The 19-year-old 196-pounder is as fast and smart as any lineman will come. He had a lot to do with Rice's wins.

Hackett, the other man next to the center, was as powerful in Ohio State's line as Horvath was in the backfield. And brother, that was something. This was Bill's third year and he's still the best all-around guard the mid-west has known in many harvest moons.

Sophomore Whitmire, the first tackle, has so many rooters a football writer has trouble trying to keep up with all of them.

Opponents who have come up against Don say Bronko Nagurski, the hardest man any football player ever hit, had nothing on the 215 pounder wearing the Blue of Navy. The big fellow is a terror on the offense and defense, plenty fast, and has made more than one ball-carrier wish he had gone around the end.

Ferraro, the other tackle, is the reason why Southern California is in the Rose Bowl. His 6 foot 3 height, 235 pounds, long arms and big hands made him a big factor in every Trojan game.

Bechtol and Tinsley, the ends, are a couple of pass-catching fools who also know what to do on the defense. Both boys have been rated the best by the fans who saw them. Navy coaches blame Phil for their defeat. Hubert made Texans forget all about Joe Parker, their All-American end of last year.

Trying to name the back of the backs is a tough job.

Horvath is an effective forward passer and runner. Davis is one of the speediest men to carry the mail since Jim Thorpe. Fenimore is an old-type triple-threater, Blanchard is a tremendous blocker and one helluva ball carrier when you need a first down.

Fenimore is responsible for Oklahoma A. and M.'s Cotton Bowl bid more than any other man.

ALL-AMERICAN WESTERNER—Hubert Bechtol covered the span in six years from an gangling, unknown kid suiting out for his first football with the Lubbock Cowboys back in 1939 to All-American honors with Texas University in 1944. Bechtol went to Texas from Texas Tech in the Navy V-12 training unit after making honorable mention on the All-American team in his freshman year at Texas Tech, and delivered the goods after stepping into the shoes of Joe Parker, Texas' 1943 All-American end. Bechtol is the first Lubbock Westerner to ever make the All-American team.

Wellington Nips Spur Club, 13-6

WELLINGTON, Dec. 8. (Special.)—Coach Al Duncan's Wellington Skyrockets zoomed into the region one finals here this afternoon by outblasting a rugged Spur Bulldog eleven, 13-6, in the Class A semi-finals of the regional playoffs.

The bi-district jinx continued to cling to Coach Jack Christian's Bulldogs, and for the third year in a row the Spur club has lost in the first stop outside the district and for the third time, did so by a one touchdown margin.

It was a repeat performance of the 1942 game, in which Wellington won 12-6, and last year Shamrock won a 6-0 decision in the bi-district game.

Today's game proved to be a battle between two great teams, with Wellington drawing first blood in the second period. The Rockets recovered a fumble on the Spur 45 and marched down the field in short gains, with Ernest Kendricks plunging over for the touchdown from two yards out. The extra point was added to give Wellington a 7-0 lead.

Spur took the following kick-off, and marched down to the Wellington goal line, and went over once, but the play was called back because of a backfield in motion penalty. The half ended with Spur back on the Wellington one-yard line.

Draper Goes Over

Midway in the third period, Spur launched a 50-yard touchdown march, moving down the field in short stabs to the four, where Jimmy Draper, scoring ace of the Bulldogs, lugged the ball to pay dirt.

In the fourth quarter, Wellington blocked a Spur punt, and took over on the Bulldog 30. The Rockets marched down to the Spur one-yard line for a first down, and Tim Hatch, fullback, plunged it over on the second try.

Kendricks and Hatch stood out on the offense for Wellington, while Frank Orr at tackle and Quincey Fulton at center were outstanding in the Wellington line. Lane Ericson and Donald Delisle, scrappy Spur guards, were standouts for the losers, while Draper and Elmer Gannon, fullback, were constant threats in the Spur backfield.

Wellington will meet Phillips for the region one championship, at a date and site yet to be selected. Phillips reached the finals by defeating Hereford, 27-0, Friday afternoon.

Texas Aggies Romp Over Miami, 70-14

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP)—Texas A. and M.'s high powered scoring machine handed the downtrodden University of Miami football team an unmerciful 70 to 14 beating tonight.

Pouring it on in the season's closer, the Aggies showed the crowd of 10,000 Orange Bowl stadium spectators a view of the "T" formation at its best.

The seventh loss of the year by the Miami eleven was the worst defeat ever inflicted on a Hurricane team.

Only four Aggies took part in the touchdown spree, Joe Scott accounting for four six pointers. Jim Parmer went over three times and Bobo Butchofsky and Gene Spires got two touchdowns each.

Walt Higgins place kicked four points after touchdown.

Miami touchdowns came in the second period when Gus Dielens passed 29 yards to Al Hudson, and in the fourth, on an 85-yard punt return by Walter Watt. Glenn Barrington and Watt plunged for the extra points.

Lorenzo Cagers Get Split With Wayland

LORENZO, Dec. 8 (Special) — Lorenzo High school cagers split even in a pair of basketball games with Wayland College of Plainview here tonight, the local girls winning 18-10, while the collegians won the boys game, 27-22.

Bowlen and Nettles paced the local girls to the victory, each accounting for seven points, while Jackson was tops for Wayland with six points.

Whitfield of Wayland was the high point man of the night with 15 points, and Williams led the schoolboys with 10 points.

Waco Shades Breckenridge In High Scoring 27-27 Tie

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., Dec. 8. (AP)—Waco's Tigers surged into the quarter-finals of the Texas schoolboy football race today with a penetration advantage over Breckenridge in a 27-27 tie that developed into one of the wildest games ever played on the local field.

It was a matter of trading touchdowns all the way as the teams went all-out offense, with Breckenridge tying the score with only two minutes left to play. Then Waco got the ball and held onto it until the final gun.

Waco had five penetrations to 4 for the Buckaroos and shaded the locals in first downs 18-11. In yards gained Breckenridge rolled up 333 yards and Waco 376.

Both teams scored in the opening ten minutes, the Tigers counting first on a 20-yard touchdown dash by Bob Sallee. Then Doc Moon tied the count for Breckenridge with a 66-yard dash.

In the second period Waco rolled from its 33-yard line to a score with Sallee plowing 15 yards to the six and Clifford Lindoff rapping center for the touchdown. Breckenridge came right back to count on a pass from Frank Payne to Wayland Reid that ate up 54 yards.

Waco again took the lead when Sallee passed to James Williams for 29 yards and a touchdown and the half ended 20-13.

The third period was scoreless but Breckenridge got a touchdown in the fourth period after Bobby Adair raced 30 yards to the Waco seven and Moon crashed over. But Waco came back to again take the lead with a pass from Alvin Beal to Lindoff that carried to the nine-yard line with Lindoff and Sallee cracking the line for the score.

Breckenridge's final touchdown came after a pass to John Ford carried 36 yards to the six and on third down Moon crunched over from the six-inch line.

Schoolboys To Play Four Battles Today

(By The Associated Press)

Paschal's unbeaten, untied Panthers clash with Sunset's once-tied Bisons at Dallas Saturday in the top game of the Texas schoolboy football play-off opening roundup.

It will be the only contest of the day in which teams with undefeated records clash.

San Angelo's defending state champion Bobcats meet Austin (El Paso) at San Angelo, Amarillo entertains Wichita Falls and Port Arthur is host to Lamar (Houston).

The end of play Saturday will cut the field to eight teams for the quarter-final round.

A crowd of 15,000 is forecast for the Paschal-Sunset clash—the largest throng of the week.

Commerce Wins Over Van By Penetrations

COMMERCE, Tex., Dec. 8 (AP)—The Commerce Tigers won the bi-district Class A schoolboy football championship today over the Van Vandals, making six penetrations to two for Van in a 13-13 tie. Passes by Brookshire to Wright and Jackson brought the Commerce touchdowns late in the game.

Commerce will meet Mount Vernon in the regional playoff at Sulphur Springs Dec. [illegible] school officials announced tonight.

Lufkin's Passes Beats Marshall

MARSHALL, Tex., Dec. 8 (AP) Harmon Carswell pitched an 18-yard scoring pass to Jack Ivy late in the fourth quarter today to bring Lufkin a 19-13 victory over the Marshall Mavericks.

The Panthers, last year's finalists in the state schoolboy football race, thus entered the quarter-finals round and will play Waco, victor over Breckenridge, next week.

A crowd of 5,250 saw a battle of long runs and mighty passes with Lufkin scoring twice in the first half. Marshall, unable to get started in the first two periods, broke loose in the third to knot the count.

Lufkin had opened the touchdown-making in the first quarter when Carswell plunged over from the two-yard line to cap a 25-yard surge after he returned the opening kick-off 35 yards. Carswell missed the try for point but the Panthers got another touchdown in the second period on an 18-yard pass from Carswell to Ivy on the goal line. Carswell converted.

Fullback Byron Gillory climaxed a 67-yard ground surge early in the third by circling right end from the eight for the first Marshall touchdown. Billy Dinkle's try for extra point was wide. Gillory raced 67 yards breaking through tackle for the second Maverick counter. Dinkle's try for point this time was good.

Carswell threw 14 passes and completed nine for 110 yards. Marshall outrushed Lufkin, however, with 211 yards to 139.

Bechtol Shines For Texas U Cage Five

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 8 (AP) — Putting on a second-half spurt that overcame Southwestern's 14-7 lead, the Texas Longhorns captured their second game of the basketball season tonight, 34-24.

The Longhorns scored only two field goals in the first half but spurted midway of the last period with Bob Cleary and Joe Crowley getting the range. Cleary was high point man with 12. Henry Butshek scored 10 for the visitors. Defensive rebound work of Hubert Bechtol, All-America end in football, enabled Texas to control the ball in the second half.

Tech Opens Cage Play With LAAF

Texas Tech's youthful Red Raiders will blast the lid off the basketball season here tonight, engaging the cocky Lubbock Army Air field Fliers in the opening game at the Tech gym at 8 o'clock.

Coach Polk Robison's kids will start the game with only one veteran returning from last season's lineup, but Robison has been highly pleased with the showing of a number of the new faces reporting this year.

LAAF WINS AGAIN

ABILENE, Dec. 8 (AP)—Lubbock Army Air field marched up its second straight basketball victory tonight with a 60-46 decision over the Abilene Army Air field Fighters. Lieut. McCarty shot 16 points to lead the scoring for the visitors. Sgt. Collins paced the Fighters with 13.

The Army club looked to be in midseason form this week when it crushed the potent attack of the West Texas State Teachers college five at LAAF last Tuesday by a 58-40 score.

The soldiers promise a fast, high scoring ball game for the Tech opener.

Don Grove, big center from Monument, N. M., will be the only veteran with the Red Raiders, starting at center. Teamed with him will be a pair of last year's District 1-AA champions, from the Lubbock Westerners, Marion Manderson and Bill Cope.

Teamed with Manderson at forward will be Jay Kerr, a squadman last year with the Red Raiders. Cope will team at guard with Jiggs Jackson, another Monument lad.

Hardey May Play

Gene Hardey, flashy Kansas star, may start at the guard position for the Red Raiders, but it is doubtful. Hardey has been handicapped by knee injuries, received in football, and reinjured in practice last Tuesday.

The LAAF club will feature Billy McCloud, all-state star from Kansas, and sensational left handed push shot artist who is a little brother of Leason McCloud, SPAAF's All-American cager.

Jimmy Brown, 6 foot, 5 inch center with LAAF, and Bruce Prior, veteran of last year's team, combine with McCloud to make the LAAF five a dangerous opponent in this area.

Gerald McCarty, former Ball State star, Wallace Long, 6 foot, 3 inch center off last year's LAAF team, J. W. MacDonald, who looked good against the Buffs this week, and Harry Krasner, former All-State performer from New Jersey, will also see service with the soldiers.

Coach Robison announced that Bill Henderson, former basketball coach at Baylor, and now stationed at SPAAF, and J. J. McGreil, local navy recruiter, would officiate the game.

Highland Park Gets By Greenville Club

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Highland Park's Scotties shaded Greenville in penetrations, first downs and yardage gained today to advance to the quarter-finals of the Texas schoolboy football race in a scoreless tie played on a muddy field.

Doak Walter took a screen pass and raced 40 yards down to the Greenville 16 late in the second period to bring the only penetration of the game. Closest Greenville even got to the Highland Park goal line was the 22-yard stripe midway of the final quarter.

The Highlanders rolled up 17 first downs to 5 for the visitors.

The Scotties ran into the most rugged defense they had met this season feature Jack Price, husky center, who made two-thirds of the Greenville tackles.

Bobcats, Cowboys Get Boys Club Victories

With Hubert McQuire and Johnny Lawson setting a fast pace, McQuire's Bobcats plastered Armstrong's Fliers under a 62-2 landslide Friday night in the big boys league at the Boys club. McQuire poured in 28 points for top scoring honors, but this was just two points better than his teammate, Lawson.

Alley's Cowboys won a nip and tuck 20-16 victory over Newell's Westerners in the little boys league curtain raiser. Alley paced his team with eight points, and Newell topped his club with six.

Austin Romps Over McAllen Club, 32-14

McALLEN, Tex., Dec. 8 (AP) — Austin's undefeated, untied Maroons defeated McAllen 32-14 tonight to advance to the state schoolboy football quarter-finals.

LOSES LIP ORNAMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP)—Roberto Ramirez, Mexican heavyweight who has won three straight fights since coming East, finally has lost something. He wagered his mustache against a red necktie in a friendly card game last night, and lost. So he'll appear minus his carefully waxed lip adornment Monday night when he meets Billy Grant of Orange, N. J., in a 10-rounder at St. Nicholas arena.

PERMIT TO PLAY

BIRMINGHAM, Dec. 8 (AP) — Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Tech were given formal permission to participate in bowl football games Jan. 1 by the Southeastern Conference today as that organization cleared away the preliminaries before taking up the major changes in policy proposed by its executive committee.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands: One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

The Big Job Comes First!

THERE was a cartoon in the Amarillo Daily News the other day which was more effective than any 10,000-word editorial, on the same subject, could possibly have been.

Done starkly, the cartoon showed a U. S. Army flier seated on the ground of a German prison camp. On the other side of the barbed wire behind the pilot stood a helmeted German soldier, his rifle, with fixed bayonet, ready for use. The background depicted a leaden sky.

Printed on the cartoon, with an arrow pointing to the prisoner, were the words: "The only American who has the privilege of relaxing at this time and thinking exclusively of postwar plans."

Under the cartoon was printed: "War Workers, Please Note!"

Yes, the cartoon was very, very good, and very, very timely. But it would have been better, we think, if the underline "War Workers, Please Note!" had read "EVERYBODY, Please Note!" For war workers are not alone in spending too much time these days in thinking and talking about the postwar period. Others are fully as guilty.

Too many business men, too many housewives, too many persons employed in non-war industries are thinking and talking more today about what they hope to do after victory than about bringing victory sooner. Like the hare who stopped to relax in his race with the tortoise, too many of us are resting at the wrong time.

Some postwar thinking and some postwar planning on the part of everyone is advisable, of course.

But for the best interests of those on the battlefronts, the most of our thinking and planning—the most of our everyday effort—needs now to be placed upon the big job at hand: that of bringing about a postwar era.

Difference Of Opinion

A WAG once said, and since then the expression has been quoted many times, that "difference of opinion is what makes horse races."

He might have added, too, that difference of opinion also makes for less monotony, as well as for plenty of conversation.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's statement the other day deploring the interest American children have in so-called "comic books" furnishes a case in point. Mrs. Roosevelt, appearing before some sort of conference of worriers-over-this-and-that, took the position that the little folks aren't being benefitted by keeping up with the doings of such imaginary persons as the "Bat Man," "Superman," the "Hornet," etc., etc., and a jolly, old etc.

Well, the White House's mistress-on-leave is certainly entitled to her opinion. But so are numerous parents who disagree with her. Perhaps Mrs. R. is blissfully unware of the fact—and we hope she is—but the truth is a lot of parents in this country would rather have their kids exposed to the "funny books" than to some of the ideas and the theories embraced by the lady, herself.

Yep. Difference of opinion makes horse races.

It also leaves room for argument.

Battle In The Making

FEARFUL of a "sales invasion" of the British Isles by American automobile manufacturers in the postwar era, English motor makers are planning to move heaven and earth to hold their field. They frankly say their products will not be as "smooth," in appearance, as U. S. models, but by adding conveniences unknown of before the war and unthought-of on this side of the Atlantic, the Britishers hope to stem the tide.

Two innovations planned in England's post-victory automobiles might well be considered by the industry here. One is a special compartment in which grocery or other bundles may be carried; the other is a compartment for kitchen equipment, so that baby's food may be heated on long journeys. From long observation, we believe American women would embrace both features in the automobiles of the future.

But even with parcel compartments, baby kitchens—automatic noseblowers, even, and hot and cold running water—we doubt if the British postwar automobile will compare, over all, with models from Detroit and environs.

After all, American automobiles have always run better for longer than those produced in Britain, or elsewhere.

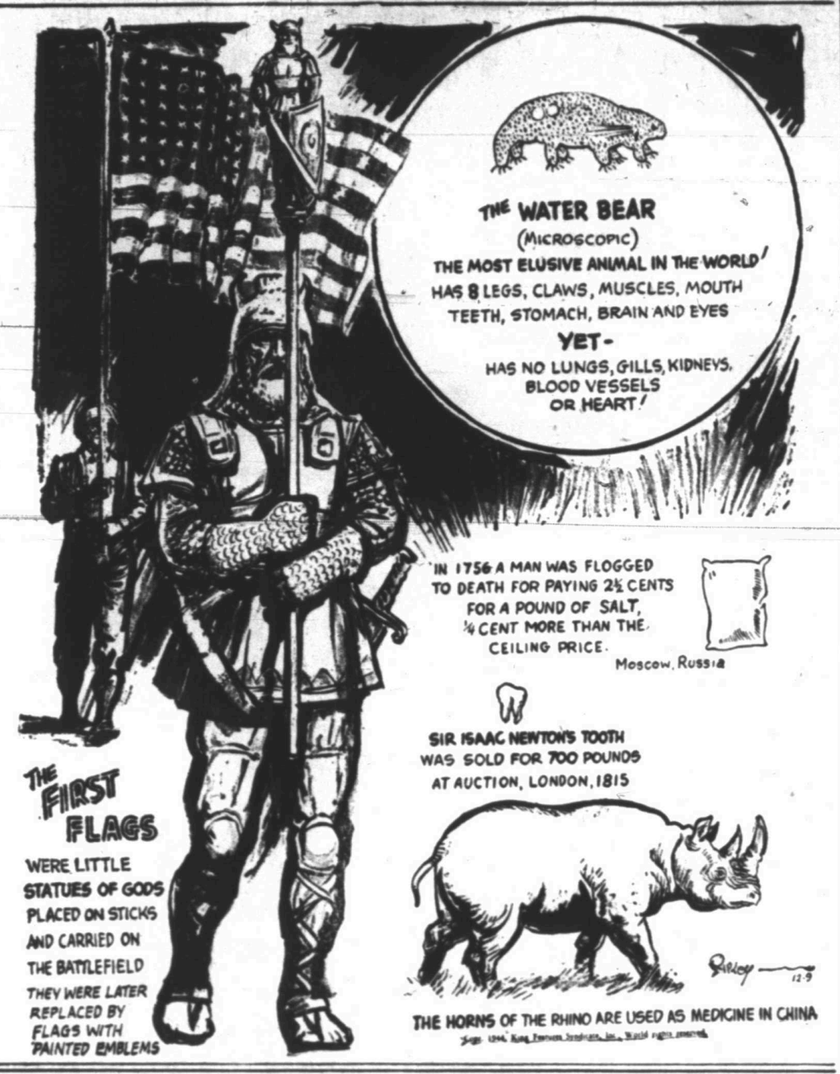

It's not too much to except they'll continue to do so in the future.

The One Minute Sermon

When I applied mine heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth: (for also there is that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes).

Then I beheld all the work of God, that man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun: because though a man labour to seek it out, yet he shall not find it: yea farther; though a wise man think to know it, yet shall he not be able to find it. Ecclesiastes 8:16-17.

THE STORY: To get away from Ginger, Kabateck thinks it would be a good idea to go to California for a while. Boggio is agreeable providing Kabateck stays at the Plaza Hotel in Hollywood.

XVII

It was the third day since I'd left New York. The sun beat down on the dusty road that looked as if it had no end but went on into space. And there was dust everywhere. On the once gleaming hood. On the crystal Goddess. And on the windshield.

Who cared?

I switched on the radio but the reception was so bad I switched it off again. Was this the third day? The third week? Or the third year? It seemed to me I'd been driving since time began.

What was Ginger doing now? I gripped the wheel harder. Don't think about her, I told myself. Don't think about her!

How many miles from that next tree to the red brick house way over there? Two? Or three, maybe?

What? Not even one! Who'd have thought a mile was that long?

Eighteen hundred and twelve miles between Omaha and Los Angeles. I'd looked it up on the map. Eighteen hundred and twelve! That was the name of a Russian composition. Tschaikovsky. It had something to do with the Napoleonic wars and there was the sound of cannon in it.

Cannon shooting. Guns shooting Boggio. Boggio and Ginger.

Cut it out, Leo! And stop talking to yourself.

Seventy-five. Eighty. Eighty-five. That's right! Keep up that speed so long as there's no chance of being nabbed by the cops. Keep it up. It's the only way to forget.

A Hitch-hiker standing on the edge of the road somewhere between Omaha and North Platte changed the entire course of that trip. He changed it, but I never even saw what he looked like. I only caught a glimpse of him as I whizzed by at 70 miles an hour.

This hitch-hiker appearing on the road at that particular moment made me decide to play the Good Samaritan. I'd give one of them a lift.

The next one, I said to myself.

I came upon him some 20 minutes later. I saw him from a distance, slowed down and pulled up alongside his trudging figure.

The minute I got a good look at his face I decided against it. He looked like the kind of a guy who'd hit you on the head with a blackjack and then cheerfully throw your body in a ravine. It was an embarrassing moment.

"Where d'you want to go?" I blurted.

"North Platte."

"Sorry." I lied. "I'm taking the first road to the left, down there." Then, before he had time to answer, I got going.

My second attempt, a few moments later, wasn't any more successful. This new fellow looked so dumb that the thought of having to make conversation with him was too much for me. After five minutes I'd be the one that might have to dispose of a body.

"Sorry," I said again. "I'm going the other way."

Fifteen more miles registered on the speedometer. The next one, I decided, will be it. Whatever he looks like or whatever he talks like I'll take him.

And then I saw my hitchhiker. Not a man but a girl. And she wasn't thumbing a ride but sitting on a couple of suitcases in front of a gas station.

This was something I hadn't thought of. Female hitch-hikers were pretty infrequent and a fellow had to be careful. For a fraction of a second I was undecided and then I slammed on the brakes and came to a stop in front of the girl.

She had been tracing a pattern in the dirt with a little twig and now looked up at me in surprise.

"Hello!" I said.

"Hello!"

Her eyes were a clear blue. That was all you noticed at first.

"Want a ride?" I asked.

A big guy came over to us, gingerly carrying a paper cup. I hadn't noticed him before because the water cooler was at the far side of the station. He handed the cup to the girl and she began drinking.

When she finished the water she crumpled the cup and looked up at the fellow.

"This gentleman wants to give us a ride."

Like hell, I did. I wanted to give her one.

The fellow beamed. "That's swell!

"But what about Joe?"

"Don't you think he's kept us waiting long enough. Maybe those brakes are acting up again."

"But he promised. He'd have phoned us here."

"Who is this Joe?" I interrupted.

"A friend of ours," said the girl. "He drives a beer truck."

"Wouldn't you rather ride in a $2000 car?"

"What's the price got to do with it?"

That stymied me. I shrugged and stepped on the starter.

"One minute please," said the fellow. He turned to the girl "We can leave him a note. After all it's getting pretty late."

She thought it over. "Maybe you're right."

Opening her bag, she took out a pencil and paper and began scribbling. I switched off the motor and got out of the car. There was plenty of room in the luggage compartment for those two cheap-looking but neat suitcases. By the time I had them stowed away, the note had been given to the gas station attendant. I opened the door and made the fellow get into the back seat. Boy friend or husband, that was where he was going to sit. All alone.

I was perfectly willing to play Good Samaritan. But one doesn't have to exaggerate.

Suspect In Slaying Of Four Surrenders

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Dec. 8 (AP)—A six-hour manhunt by municipal, state, railroad and military police ended last night when the fugitive, a 24-year-old laborer alleged to have shot and killed his father-in-law, two Carteret policemen a 14-year-old negro girl, and wounded another policeman, surrendered at Woodbridge police headquarters.

Police Chief Henry Harrington of Carteret, where the shooting occurred, identified the man as Danny Molnar.

Dead were Deputy Chief Robert Shanley, Officer Walter Rushniak, Adam Rozanski, Molnar's father-in-law, and Alice Scott, all of Carteret, who died in Perth Amboy General hospital. Officer Daniel Kasha was reported in serious condition at the hospital.

Coroner Joseph V. Costello said Molnar had visited his wife, from whom he was estranged, at his father-in-law's house and that a shooting affray began there. He said Kasha was wounded in attempting to drag to safety a policeman who already was hit.

Costello said Molnar took his two-year-old daughter Barbara Anne and fled through the back door as police reinforcements arrived.

SUPERFORT MOST DEADLY

WICHITA, Kas., Dec. 8. (AP)—A central gunfire control system, allowing a B-29 gunner to assume control of more than one of the bomber's five turrets at the same time, makes the defensive firepower of the Superfortress deadlier than any other airplane, the Boeing Airplane company revealed today with War department approval.

Of the approximately 700,000 Negroes in the Army, 5,000 are officers.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

CARRIE Chapman Catt, 85-year-old suffragist, received the 1944 Achieve award issued by the American Woman's association.

The award was voted her for her leadership in the drive which resulted in 1920 in the right of American women to vote.

It was a hard and bitter fight extending over many years. There were broken windows and fist fights and men fought tooth and nail to keep women away from the polls.

Flamboyant oratory in Congress and on soap boxes predicted dire consequences if women were given suffrage. The country would surely go to the dogs, it was said.

Now our women have voted for more than 20 years—and what has happened? Exactly nothing.

Look at your women in politics. Look at their proportion (I did not say proportions) in public office.

It's almost negligible and I think it will be that way for many years to come.

I don't think that women, as a whole, take to politics.

I think as long as our manufacturers will continue to improve cook-stoves and vacuum cleaners, electric gadgets and diapers, as long as milliners make pretty hats and dressmakers becoming gowns, women will remain women.

Not that they are not just as intelligent, politically, as men—it's simply not their Sphere.

Woman's greatest virtue will always be her femininity—her tenderness, her mother instinct that begins to manifest itself even in a three-year old woman when she plays with her dolls.

POLITICS is a devious game. It's sly and tricky and cold-blooded and selfish.

Women aren't built that way, and the exceptions only prove the rule.

I have attended many a political meeting at which there were women speakers and, to be frank, I shudder when I think of them.

Carrie Chapman Catt did a fine thing in fighting for suffrage. She thought that women, enfranchised, could and would bring peace to the world and better education and more honesty in government.

May be in a hundred years from now that goal will have been achieved.

In the meantime I am glad that women still pay most of their attention to home and hearth and that it matters more to them whether or not a candidate has a moustache than to what party he belongs.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

POST-ELECTION revelations disclose that administration strategists did an excellent job of lid-sitting on a Pandora's box whose secrets might have cost many votes had they leaked out before November 7. The conspirators themselves are chuckling over their amazing success in bottling up the bad news.

Chief significance of the conspiracy of silence lies in its suggestion that information about many more important problems of national interest has been suppressed. Insiders here realize this, but the public has no inkling of the extent to which it is kept in the dark about great affairs.

Although the Biddle-Littell feud began weeks before the voters went to the polls, the reasons for and the seriousness of their disagreement (the "Tommy" Corcoran episode, for instance) were withheld from the public. President Roosevelt was informed some time ago that he had the authority to remove the fiery Washingtonian, but he did not act until a week ago.

The Stimson-Forrestal report stating that some culpability for the Pearl Harbor disaster rested in Washington was prepared long before election day. But the superiors in the Army-Navy did not want to alienate people with this pre-election admission that there was no need for a Kimmel-Short court-martial.

PROMISE: American armies' victories in Germany and the Philippines undoubtedly contributed to the Democratic triumph at the polls. A Presidential adviser boasts openly that Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur were FDR's most effective campaigners. But the communiques from the Siegfried Line and Leyte minimized our heavy losses.

The boycott of news also included foreign affairs. Although it was known that Cordell Hull planned to retire immediately after the balloting, it was denied again and again. China's internal difficulties and Chiang Kai-shek's tottering rule had been fully reported by Maj. Gen. Pat Hurley, Donald M. Nelson and Henry A. Wallace. But the full import of our oriental ally's weakness and Tokyo's menacing military gains on the mainland was suppressed.

The prospect of fairly prompt resumption of part-time manufacture of civilian goods was dangled before the electorate, despite General Eisenhower's pre-election requests for vastly larger supplies of artillery and ammunition that would delay reconversion moves.

Another clever bit of covering-up on the domestic front was the promise of revision of the Little Steel wage formula. Labor leaders were kept informed, and they used their advance tip effectively with union members, especially the CIO group, but the public was not permitted to share this knowledge

As appeasement to disgruntled liberals, Vice President Wallace was mentioned frequently for Secretary of State or Ambassador to China. But those posts fell to two men who have never responded to the Iowan's charms or influence—Messrs. Stettinius and Hurley.

TRAGEDY: Administration officials, as well as a majority of the members of Congress, take the position that the American people wrote the final chapter on the inside story of Pearl Harbor when they re-elected President Roosevelt. In their opinion, the incident has only academic and historical interest now.

Although Secretaries Stimson and Forrestall failed to specify the blunders committed in Washington—perhaps "errors of ommission" is the more correct phraseology—it is understood that one was the mildness of Army-Navy warnings against Japanese attack. The disposition of the fleet, which was dictated by diplomatic rather than national defense policies, was another piece of questionable strategy.

A regrettable result of the tragedy three years ago is that our losses enabled the enemy to seize British and Dutch possessions and thereby prolong the conflict. But in view of our surprising recovery in that area, no one except the most rabid partisan sees any constructive good in digging up the dirt.

Eventually, however, the inside story will tumble out. The supporting data for the Roberts commission's extremely restrained report have been preserved and may throw additional light on that day of infamy. Key participants in the event, especially Admiral Kimmel and General Short, have written their versions in preparation for a prospective trial, and it is understood that they have not spared their superiors in Washington.

Admiral Kimmel's immediate predecessor, Admiral J. O. Richardson, can contribute illuminating information. His friends say that he resigned the command when he was ordered to withdraw his patrols lest their presence far out in the Pacific jeopardize Hull-Nomura negotirations for settlement of the Far Eastern problem.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

HERE are new disclosures of the miseries which the German government has brought to its people by declaring war on the United States.

Ordinarily the Berlin tyrants would not bother much about the plight of civilians, cowed by rubber truncheons and bayonets. But in this supreme crisis privations are likely to weaken the population's physical stamina and hamper its urgently needed productive capacity.

Much of this information came from neutral newspapermen who have visited the Reich or been so close to its borders that they could observe the goings-on beneath the blanket of censorship.

Every train from Germany into Switzerland is filled with refugee children. The hard-boiled Gestapo has taken over the duties of the customs officials and examines each scrap of baggage to make certain no vital supplies leak out of Germany. Himmler's police also act as frontier guards to prevent the able-bodied from escaping.

BREAD: For the first time since goose-stepping invaders looted Czechoslovakian pantries, the Germans are suffering from food shortages of a really belt-tightening nature.

This worries the rulers, for they remember that hunger—not military defeat—prompted the kaiser's submissive subjects to cast aside their tools and run through city streets yelling, "Down with Wilhelm!"

In addition to the home population and the new slave laborers still being snatched from the Netherlands and Norway, the Brownshirts have 3,000,000 extra soldier mouths to feed. The granaries of conquered territories no longer are at the disposal of Reichswehr cooks.

The white bread ration has been cut sharply; even black loaves are not plentiful.

The quotas of jam and artificial honey for children between the age of 10 and 14 have been reduced. The reserves are given to the 14 to 18-year-olds; these youths need the energy it produces for their war jobs. Wretched burnt husks, called "coffee," have dwindled for all but heavy manual laborers.

MEAT: Of the luxuries denied to civilians, Swedish journalists declare that the people seem to miss cigarettes, coffee and Schnaps most.

Americans are disturbed by our bottleneck in smokes but under the Swastika even "frayed rope" is almost nonexistent.

Beer drinkers are gouged by the black market. The rich never obtained as large a quantity of French wines as they had anticipated because German soldiers were afraid to rake the cellars and caves, held by well-armed Maquis. Incidentally, this failure explains the paucity of liquor in liberated France.

The Nazis have again scraped the bottom of the barrel in Northern Italy. A letter written by the German ambassador to the Mussolini puppet regime—captured in transit by the Allies—discloses confiscation of the following items. 140,000 tons of rice, 160,000 tons of fruit, 200,000 tons of wines. But even these spoils cannot fully replenish empty German cupboards.

State's War Prison Camps Are Drawing No Criticism

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON. — Apparently the Prisoner-Of-War camps in Texas are being properly managed because a Congressional committee investigating prisoner centers has received not a single complaint concerning any of the 18 located in the state.

Investigators of the House Military Affairs committee have gone to numerous other camps throughout the country to check stories of coddling of prisoners, but they don't contemplate visiting Texas camps with their 24,210 Germans and 1,400 Italians.

The committee, incidentally, in a recently released interim report concluded that most of these coddling stories are without foundation or are gross exaggerations They pointed to the Geneva convention, which sets forth certain definite rules concerning the treatment of prisoners of war, and added that the Germans were living up to the convention although interpreting some rules less liberally than we do regarding German prisoners. The Japs were given credit for following the principles of the treaty reasonably close, even though they never did ratify the Geneva pact.

Italians Get Break

Italian prisoners who have been passed upon by our military intelligence officers are allowed to join service units, and are given almost as many privileges as an allied soldier.

While definitely against any coddling, Texas congressmen questioned on the subject were unanimous in approving the terms of the Geneva convention. They believed we should follow it in order to safeguard the American boys who are held prisoners by the enemy. This was the view expressed by Reps. Sam Russell and Clark Fisher and it was typical.

CONGRESSMAN Bob Poage of Waco interestingly notes that there's a big difference in the attitude of German prisoners taken now and those captured early in the war. During a visit among prisoners at Camp Hood a year ago he found those captured in the Tunisian campaign to be arrogant and confident the Nazis would win, many still believing that New York was half destroyed from bombings. On his recent trip to France he walked among German prisoners captured in Normandy and found many of them dejected and resigned to defeat.

Aid West Texas

The big postwar roads bill contains, among other things, authorization of funds for the development of the Big Bend National park, and construction of a paved highway from an entrance to a connection with U. S. Highway No. 90 at Alpine, 60 miles away. Congress subsequently must pass legislation actually appropriating the money. . . . that's the big distinction many people failed to recognize between authorization and appropriation bills.

Around The Capital

One of those dramatic, little scenes that go on around here took place in the marbled halls of the capitol the other day. On his first trip to Washington was Hayes Keeler, 11-year-old Colorado City youngster, whose dad has been a prisoner of the Japs since the fall of Corregidor.

The lad met several representatives and senators and naturally was all agog. Then he was introduced to former Texas Governor James V. Allred who sized up the situation. He knew the boy's father was still in Jap hands.

"As great as these men are, Hayes," said Allred with a friendly arm on the boy's shoulder, "just remember that none is greater than your father."

MRS. LOTTIE Lowrance, one of the secretaries to Rep. Hatton Sumners of Dallas, got a letter from her son overseas. It was on Nov. 11, in a Belgian farmhouse which had shortly before been held by the Germans, that Private James Lowrance of Plano finally found time to tell his mother about his trip to Paris. He wrote that Gay Paree was "really some city, a lot more modern than London." He also wrote that Westminister Abbey was undamaged, and that he reckoned God had "just guided the German bombs away from it."

STOCKS HIT SEVEN-YEAR PEAK

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP)—Stocks hit another 7-year peak in the latter part of today's session with gains of fractions to several points on heaviest activity in six months after many market leaders had stumbled under profit cashing in the forenoon.

Rails led the comeback. Advances at the close were at or near the best of the day.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .5 of a point, widest move since Sept. 15, a top since late 1937. High for that year, though, was 75.3 reached on March 10. Breadth of the upturn was exemplified by the fact 960 issues registered on the ticker tape. Of these, 537 were up, 202 down and 221 unchanged. Transfers of 1,682,940 shares compared with 1,344,954 Thursday and were the largest since last July 10.

In the "new high" class were Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, American Telephone, Goodyear and Loew's. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Chrysler were up ⅝ each.

Rail bonds turned relatively strong.

In the curb U. S. and International Securities preferred spurted 7 points after a delayed opening ordered by exchange authorities when a $20 dividend was declared on arrears.

Jap Massacre

was one of a convoy of seven which were attacked by a group of American submarines. All the transports probably were sunk.

Thrown into the water by the explosions, Americans were killed by Japanese machine gunners who patrolled the area in small boats. Others were cut down by sabre-wielding Japanese who resorted to knives when their wet guns did not fire.

Those who managed to reach the shore of Mindanao, two miles away, were slaughtered by Japanese machine gunners the following day. Eighty-three eventually were aided by Filipino guerrillas, but one died later of his wounds. An American submarine rescued the survivors and took them to New Guinea and Australia.

The captain said American prisoners of the Japanese "who lasted the first six months" after their capture "have every chance to get back; they're a pretty tough bunch of boys—they had to be."

Retired Amherst Farmer Succumbs

Death of Warren A. McCord, 76-year-old retired Amherst farmer, was announced here Friday night by Bryan McDonald and Son Funeral home. McCord died at 7:30 o'clock in an Amherst hospital.

Funeral services had not been arranged, the funeral home said.

McCord had been a resident of Lamb county 16 years.

He is survived by his wife; three sons, Pat, U. S. Army, A. C., Coronado, N. M., Jack, Earth, Tex., and a daughter, Mrs. Guy Kelly of Earth.

WORKER IS HANGED

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 8 (AP) — Edward Heberling, 32, Seattle shipyard worker, was hanged at state prison shortly after midnight today for the assault slaying of 14-year-old Harriett Louise Lindstrom at her home next door last July 11

Pacific Battles

bombed Legaspi airport on Luzon island.

Saipan-based Superfortresses carrying capacity bomb loads — which the Army has placed at 10 tons or more per plane—struck with sizeable force at Iwo Jima, about midway on the 1,500-mile B-29 bombing route from Saipan to Tokyo.

The raid was made in partnership with Navy surface craft, and Army and Navy Liberator bombers and Lightning fighters. It was the first time the Superforts had figured in a joint Army-Navy, sea-air assault on a Japanese base.

Usefulness Said Gone

Superfort crewmen said Iwo Jima was blasted out of usefulness as a base for plane attacks on American airfields in the Marianas.

In the China-Burma fighting theater, prospects for the future use of the supply road from India to China were bright in Burma, where the Japanese were withdrawing on a large scale.

But the Japanese still threatened the route in southern China, where they were driving westward toward the Burma-road cities of Kunming and Kweiyang.

NEGRO HELD IN ASSAULT

HOUSTON, Dec. 8 (UP) — Wesley Gidrey, 27-year-old former Beaumont negro, was in police custody here today on charges of criminal assault of a 34-year-old housewife in a government housing project apartment last night.

Yanks Smash On Into Siegfried

the fire of the Germans themselves, who were trying to check the American men and materials streaming across the Saar river bridge from where the first attacks on the west wall were launched.

The big blast furnaces of Dillingen, three miles northwest of Saarlautern, had been knocked out by the U. S. 90th Infantry division, which speared on past the town a mile and a half into the Siegfried line in the Third's deepest penetration of the Reich.

Nazis Strike Back

The Germans struck back with tanks and infantry in an attack that began at 7:30 a. m. and still was in progress later in the day. The persistence of the assault indicated sizable forces were trying to drive the Americans back.

The 35th division broke across the Saar at a new point in the Sarreguemines area, eight miles southeast of Saarbrucken, and beat against moderately stiff opposition of tanks and pillboxes. Planes and artillery joined in the American assault.

Mechanized cavalry fought deeper into Forbach, three and a half miles southwest of Saarbrucken. (Paris radio said Frobach had fallen.)

Far back of the front at Metz, the Eleventh regiment of the Fifth division, which began an attack on Fort Driant two months ago, finally seized that redoubtable fortification and took 670 prisoners.

Withdrawal Indicated

In the battle for the richest industrial region of all—the Ruhr and Rhineland—the ease with which the U. S. First Army captured two heights near the Roer river indicated the Germans may realize their days on the west bank are over and are withdrawing.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' forces took a height near Pier, less than a mile from the river north of Duren, and other forces advanced onto a ridge commanding Schlich, three miles west of Duren.

Other forces broadened their hold on the Roer to 800 yards near Bergstein, eight miles south of Duren. Captured a sizeable height overlooking the stream and beat off two counterattacks launched from the south.

Probably Drawing Back

A front dispatch said that in recent days the enemy had withdrawn the bulk of his artillery to the Roer's east bank, and it was considered likely that only a thin covering force might be left behind.

The U. S. Ninth Army of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, already on the Roer around Julich, nine miles northwest of Duren, came under the heaviest fire from "screaming memmies"—multiple-barreled mortars—since the Normandy campaign.

Nervously awaiting a Ninth Army drive to cross the Roer, the Germans were sending over reconnaissance planes. Considerable enemy movements were spotted across the river.

Two enemy pockets still held out in the Julich area on the west bank of the stream.

Third Army Pressure

The greatest pressure on the enemy still was being exerted by Patton's Third Army tanks and infantry in the Saar, a rich valley of a million population which the Germans appeared to be sacrificing to purchase increased resistance before Cologne.

The 90th division, driving east from Dillingen to a point more than eight miles inside the Reich, captured a number of pillboxes in the Siegfried line and beat of a tank-supported counterblow.

The pillboxes were placed to give interlocking fields of fire and had to be taken largely in darkness. The 90th found some concrete pillboxes built to resemble houses.

As at the Saarlautern bridgehead, the forces around Dillingen were under heavy artillery fire from both Siegfried line casemates and mobile guns.

95th Beats Off Blows

The 95th division driving east and south from Saarlautern in the now consolidated bridgehead on the Saar river's east bank fought off two counterattacks and was beating at the outposts of the Siegfried line.

The Saarlautern bridge, which was seized to provide the first crossings, has been the target of 6,000 rounds of German artillery, but there was no indication the bridge was knocked out.

German regulars and members of the people's army still held out in some of the Siegfried line emplacements inside Saarlautern.

The U. S. Seventh Army of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch made its closest approach to the Saar at an undisclosed point along its 35-mile battle front and had begun to bombard the Siegfried line.

Seventh Army forces fighting at Enchenberg, 22 miles southeast of Saarbrucken, were seven miles from the Saar border. Thirteen miles east of Enchenberg the Seventh fought to a point northeast of Oberbronn, six miles south of Germany's Palatinate border.

Other forces, in a three-mile push across rugged terrain, captured Mouterhouse, about midway between Enchenberg and Oberbronn and also seven and a half miles from the Palatinate.

On the eastern end of the Seventh's front in northern Lorraine, doughboys entered Gambsheim, only a mile from the Rhine eight miles northeast of Strasbourg.

The French First Army in the upper Vosges mountains cleared a pocket 15 miles square and advanced closer to the Alsatian plain with a drive through Le Bonhomme pass to near Keysersberg, five miles northwest of Colmar, last Alsatian city in German hands.

The British-Canadian front in eastern Holland was quiet. Flood waters from the German-breached Rhine spread over an area of more than 30 square mile sbetween the lower Rhine and the Waal.

Miserable weather of yesterday improved only slightly but tactical air forces made about 250 sorties.

Churchill Upheld

Reiterating British opposition to Sforza, he said:

"We have a joint arrangement with America about Italy, and we should be very sorry if it were proved that we have broken away from this joint arrangement. We have not done so in any way."

Of the whole European problem he said, "if there is a democracy and its various defenders believe they express the wishes of the majority, why can't they wait until the general election—a free vote of the people, which is our sole policy in every country into which British and American armies are marching?"

Doesn't Fear Inquiry

Churchill took this stand:

"I have no fear at all that the most searching inquiry, into the policy which we have pursued in Belgium, Holland, Italy and Greece will entitle any man in whose breast fairness and fair play reside to accuse us of pursuing reactionary policies or hampering the free expression of the national will."

Labor and liberal MP's who kept up a caustic attack were told — "make no mistake about it"—that Britain "will persist in the policy of clearing Athens and the Athens regions of all those who are rebels to the constituted authority of Greece."

Position Outlined

This was Churchill's position:

Italy—It is "quite untrue to say that we had vetoed Sfora's appointment. That right belonged alone to the Italians. All we have to say is that we do not trust the man nor would we put the slightest confidence in any government of which he is a dominant member."

Greece — There was evidence that left-wing ELAS group was trying to spring a two-year-old plot to seize the government and "I do not feel it compatable with our honor or with the obligations into which we have entered with many people of Greece in the course of our presence there to wash our hands of the whole business, make our way to the sea, as we easily could, and leave Athens to anarchy, misery and tyranny."

Losses In Belgium

Belgium — "After all, we British—who are now said to be poor friends of democracy—lost 35,000 to 40,000 men in opening up the great port of Antwerp. . . . The sacrifice of these men has also to be considered as well as the 'friend of democracy' advancing in lorries from Mons to start up a bloody revolution."

In one of the liveliest and most fiery of his addresses, which he said he was "enjoying," Churchill denounced "planned coups d'etats by murder gangs and by the iron rule of ruffians seeking to climb into the seats of power without a vote ever having been cast in their favor."

"If that is to masquerade as Democracy," he cried scornfully. "I think the House will be united in condemning it as a mockery."

Grimly, he said that during the war the Allies had to arm "anyone who could shoot a Hun" and added: "We are paying for it in having this debate today. . . . We are paying for it also with our treasure and our blood. We are not paying for it with our honor or by defeat."

The chief opposition came from the party's left wing. One of its spokesman, Seymour Cocks, demanded assurances that British Tommies would not be used to disarm "friends of democracy" and denounced Richard Leeper, British ambassador in Greece," as "the evil genius of modern Greece," and King George of Greece as a "dictator" and a "Hohenzollern prince."

Imperialism Of Powers Flayed

Imperialistic forms of governments, not excluding our allies, Great Britain and Russia, were assailed by Dean E. Smith, 20 years manager for Standard Oil in Burma, when he spoke to members of the Knife and Ford Dinner club Friday night in Hotel Lubbock.

"Ammunition, troops, and supplies could have reached China two years ago, via the China Pass, but aid was impeded by British imperialists," Smith asserted. The British and Chinese people want Japan defeated, Smith claimed, but the imperialists, representing one-hundredth of one percent of the population, want to remain in power.

Object Lesson For Asia

He declared that a free and strong China would be an object lesson for Asia—a beginning of the downfall of all imperialists.

Having lived in the Far East more than a quarter of a century, Smith spoke intimately of Burma and China, saying the Chinese are a non-aggressive people, the potential for a world peace.

Declaring that Americans must have confidence and trust in their Allies, Smith warned that this confidence must not be misplaced and a trust betrayed. He has lived under every flag of the world and learned that every foreign-born countryman, but not all their leaders, envy our freedom and desire self government.

Imperialist Regimes

In a straightforward manner, pulling no punches, Smith "lifted the lid" off the two principal imperialist governments, Great Britain and Russia. Citing figures released Oct. 11, 1944, at which time Russia had 10 million liberal-minded civilians interned in prison camps, Smith presented the question whether Americans wanted to assist this form of government after the war.

"Whatever assistance is given any imperial government after the war will later be used in military power against us," Smith predicted. Estimating Russia's wealth as two or three times that of America, he asserted they would survive without our aid and the country would become less Communistic, less dictatorial.

Maintain Our Economy

Smith said the United States must maintain its own economy and the rest of the world will get along. "America has an economy of independence and an economy of abundance," he asserted in contrasting Russia's economy in independence with its economy of scarcity and England's economy of dependence.

"If we stand up against these two nations—tell them to step aside and let China become a free nation they will respect us," Smith claimed. In the event this happens, he said, Chinese troops pitted against the force of Japanese front lines would suffer the greatest casualties while America's airpower would destroy Japan proper.

Seven Members Of B-29 Crew Missing

BILOXI, Miss., Dec. 8 (AP) — Kessler field officials announced today the names of seven crew members missing from the 12-man crew of a Superfortress after they had bailed out Nov. 27 over Chandeleur sound due to engine trouble.

The plane later was righted by its pilot First Lieutenant Eugene W. Hammond of Sacramento, Calif., and was landed at Kessler field.

Three other crewmen were rescued and the body of a fourth has been recovered.

The listing of missing includes: Second Lieutenant Edwin H. Gresham, 23, pilot, son of Haywood Gresham, Chilton, Tex.

Plane Crash Kills 17 Civilian Pilots

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 8 (UP)—Eleven of 17 civilian flyers killed in an Army plane crash at Omaha, Neb., late yesterday were identified today as ferry pilots from Cimarron field west of Oklahoma City.

Orville Hannum, Defense Plant Corp. contractor at Cimarron Field, a surplus military aircraft depot, said the 11 Oklahoma pilots had delivered planes to other sections of the country and were en route home at the time of the crackup.

A report to Hannum from Omaha, identified the victims as:

Robert E. Horn, I. Dick Tate, Nathan G. Tate, Robert M. [illegible]sey, Harry J. Roach, Harold D. Sanderson, Jack Adams Owen, all of Oklahoma City; Cornelius E. Callahan, Lawrence M. [illegible]mann, Charles L. Price, all of Yukon, Okla.; Cecil G. Helton, Woodward, Okla.; Margaret Marian Isbill, McGregor, Tex., a WASP; Berna Mary Turner, a WASP, home town unlisted; Virginia M. Hope, a WASP home town unlisted; Bernard M. Lewis, Washington, D. C.; Roman E. Torkelson, Morris, Ill.; Jesse John Reece, Dublin, Tex.

Hannum explained the Army transport plane in which the 17 victims were killed had been loaned to the Defense Plant Corp. by the Army.

The plane crashed from an altitude of about 700 feet and burned after taking off from the Omaha airport.

Nation Over Quota, Small Buyers Lag

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP) — America passed its $14,000,000,000 quota in the Sixth War Loan today and kept right on going because the drive could not yet be considered a success.

As individuals, Americans had reached only 60 per cent of the quota for individual sales, and only 46 per cent of their Series E bond goal.

Treasury Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell announced the quota-busting figure of $14,052,000,000.

He said the war picture has changed since the goal was set. The armed forces need more supplies and ammunition than was expected, he said, and more money must be borrowed from the people.

Therefore, Bell said in a statement, "we should not be satisfied with anything less than a substantial over-subscription."

Bookkeeper 'Raises' Wages By $40,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP) — A pretty blonde bookkeeper for a Fifth Avenue luggage shop was charged today with stealing approximately $40,000 from her employer during the past year and distributing most of it in "pay increases" and gifts to friends.

Assistant District Attorney Francis X. Clark said the bookkeeper, Mrs. Madeline Dunnigan, 22, had admitted "increasing" the salary of one fellow employe from $3 to $15 a day and another's from $30 to $55 a week—without the proprietor's knowledge.

In addition, Clark said, Mrs. Dunnigan made gifts ranging up to $600 to servicemen and other friends, spent several thousand dollars for her parents' medical care and bought clothes for herself.

She will be arraigned tomorrow on a grand larceny charge.

Touring Reporter Says Victory In Pacific Still Long Way Off

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Sandor Klein, United Press Washington correspondent who covers the Navy department, has returned to the United States from a 20,000-mile flying trip around the Pacific to see at first hand how the war is going against Japan. He visited key bases, combat zones and talked with top-ranking military and naval leaders. He sums up his observations, as far as military security permits.)

By SANDOR KLEIN
United Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—We are only 1,500 miles from Tokyo today, but victory still is a long way off.

We have crippled the Japanese fleet and decimated the enemy's air force. We have cracked the Japanese merchant fleet and seriously impaired the enemy supply lines. And we have embarked on a campaign to destroy Japan's war-making industry from the air.

But you can't come away from the Pacific feeling optimistic about prospects for an early victory.

Followed War's Course

For the past several weeks I have followed the war-pipeline from the United States clear across the Pacific to where the fighting is. I have talked with most of the highest military and naval leaders. All were confident that victory is inevitable, but most of them saw a long, hard and costly fight ahead.

The trip took me to Pearl Harbor, to Eniwetok in the Marshalls, to Saipan and Guam in the Marianas, to the Palau islands, to Leyte in the Philippines, to Hollandia in Dutch New Guinea, to Manus in the Admiralty islands and to Kwajalein in the Marshalls.

Talked With Commanders

Among those I met and talked to—all on an off-the-record basis—were Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet and Pacific ocean areas; Gen. Douglas MacArthur; Vice Admiral John Hoover, commander of the forward areas, and many other high ranking military authorities.

From these conversations and my own observations, I have no doubt that victory will be ours. The Japanese simply cannot match the great armed might of the United States. But it is tough to beat an enemy who doesn't know when he's whipped.

At Saipan and Guam, where organized enemy resistance was overcome months ago, there still are Japanese hidden in the jungles and caves. During my stay at Saipan, Marines flushed more than 260 Japanese soldiers out of their hiding places in three days.

On Peleliu there still were an estimated 600 Japanese on Bloody Nose ridge, although surrounded and hopelessly outnumbered. And on nearby Babelthuap island, there are an estimated 30,000 more Japanese troops.

There are thousands of Japanese—some estimates going as high as 10,000 — on the northern New Guinea coast, in the northern Solomns and in the New Britain-New Ireland area. Most of these troops are in poor physical condition, but in some areas, they are managing surprisingly well to keep their equipment in good condition and to feed themselves. These still constitute a threat.

Using Rabaul Again

Not long ago, a few Japanese planes dropped bombs on Manus in the Admiralty islands. The belief is that these planes came from Rabaul on the northern tip of New Britain. Yet, Rabaul had taken such a terrific aerial pounding that it was believed the Japanese never again could operate from there.

Most military people believe that the Japanese will make their greatest effort—outside of their homeland—to deal a powerful counter blow against the American advance across the Pacific in the Philippines. There is already ample evidence that they are prepared to spend heavily in men and materials there.

Collection Of Jap Souvenirs Received

A collection of Japanese souvenirs taken from enemy soldiers on Saipan was sent this week to Mrs. Myrtle Mayes, 1710 Main, by her son, T/Sgt. William J. Roberts.

Sgt. Roberts, who has been in overseas service for 31 months with a medical detachment in the infantry, is one of only 26 members of his outfit who survived the Saipan invasion. He is now stationed in a rest camp. Formerly a Texas Tech student, he was employed at Booterie before entering the service.

The souvenir collection includes two watch fobs, a wrist watch, a 1932 Olympic pennant won at Los Angeles, a Jap flag, a g-string, a Jap bond and nail clippers.

Students Here Sell $55,231 In Bonds

In three afternoons, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, students of Lubbock Senior High school collected $55,231 cash value in war bonds for the Sixth War Loan drive in a door-to-door solicitation, Floyd Honey, principal, said Friday afternoon.

Each student is working the block in which he lives, Honey explained. Lubbock Public schools has a quota of $841,050. Solicitations will continue through Dec. 15, with students working each afternoon and all day Saturday.

MAIL ORDERS GIVEN PROMPT ATTENTION

WITH the AEF
by KENNETH L. DIXON

IN GERMANY, Dec. 1. (Delayed) — War makes many little things suddenly loom large and reduces many expected big moments to dull nothingness. For most GI's—except perhaps for the first few to arrive — the entrance into Germany nowadays is hardly even noticed.

DIXON

It has been something to look forward to for the past three years. Back in December, 1941, the very thought of conquering Allied troops crossing the German border was fraught with dramatic import. Then such gags as "Tokyo here we come" or "Berlin, I'm on my way" were popular everywhere as farewells resounded throughout mobilizing America.

Even through Africa and Italy everything seemed pointed toward a first day in Germany.

Little Difference Seen

But there didn't seem to be much difference this cold, bleak and rainy day as truckload after truckload of doughboys rolled across the Dutch-German frontier. Riding along behind them—also entering the Reich for the first time—I found no trace of that mystical transformation we had been unconsciously expecting since Pearl Harbor.

There was not even a sign saying "Germany." The only mark of the border was a half-buried pillbox alongside the road. Engineers in muddy clothes were digging it out sufficiently to blow it up to prevent its use again. In it the Germans had refused to surrender, so the doughboys had welded its iron door shut and tank-dozers had scooped up great masses of mud and dirt and buried it. Then the Allied drive had moved on.

Sky Just As Bleak

There was no apparent difference in the countryside. The towns were blasted a bit more and a bit more abandoned than had been those of war-ridden friendly countries, but that was all. The rain was just as cold, the sky just as bleak and cheerless. The jolting blasts of our own artillery had the same grim, monotonous undertone. The incoming shells had the same high, nerve-scraping whine.

A few civilians slogged silently along the road with their heads down. Some soldier said he didn't think much of German women.

The doughboys dropped clumsily off the trucks, their muscles still stiff with cold, and started toward the fire. You ask them how it feels to be in Germany at last.

"Are we in Germany?" says one who has missed the previous chatter. "Well, I'll be damned. Let's see if we can scrounge a cuppa coffee."

But it is a few miles farther—a few miles closer to home. That helps.

Instructions Given On Paper Collection

Get your bundles of waste paper on the sidewalks early Sunday morning, is the request of M D. Fanning, chamber of commerce staff member.

Trucks from South Plains and Lubbock Army air fields will pick them up beginning at 9 a. m. They will travel up and down the east-west streets and collect bundles from in front of houses. Residents of north-south avenues are to take their waste paper to the nearest corner.

The small number of trucks makes it impossible to cover the avenue as well as the streets, it is observed.

Digging the nails into a cake of soap before beginning work is a good plan for gardeners since it will keep grit from getting under nails.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.
