GNP ...th rate said weak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy, battered afresh by foreign competition, grew at a weak annual rate of 1.7 percent from April through June, the government said today.

Growth in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, was cut almost in half from a preliminary estimate made in June, before the second quarter had ended.

At that time, the Commerce Department projected growth at an annual rate of 3.1 percent for the April-June period.

Today's revision dashed hopes that the economy had picked up substantially in the second quarter and emphasized just how weak economic activity has been so far this year.

...first six months of 1985, the economy grew at an annual rate of just 1 percent, far below the 6.8 percent turned in for all of 1984.

While no one expected that pace to be duplicated this year, no forecasters had anticipated just how much the economy would weaken.

Today's downward revision means that the economy would have to grow at a torrid 6.9 percent rate in the second half of the year to achieve the Reagan administration's projection of 3.9 percent growth for all of 1985.

Many analysts believe economic activity will improve little in the second half of the year and are forecasting growth of litle better than 2 percent for the entire year.

Such a sluggish pace would likely mean a rise in the unemployment rate. The weak activity also raises the threat that some unexpected event could tip the fragile recovery into another recession.

The strong dollar has provided benefits, primarily by keeping inflation under control.

In Brief

Ana no threat

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Storm Ana was drifting northward in the Atlantic Ocean today, its winds gusting up to 55 mph but posing no threat to North American land, the National Hurricane Center said.

The first named storm of the the 1985 hurricane season, Ana was about 300 miles south of Halifax, Nova Scotia, the hurricane center said in a 6 a.m. EDT advisory.

The storm's center was near latitude 40.3 north and longitude 64.9 west and was traveling north-northeast at 22 mph, the center said.

Little change in motion was expected today, and the colder northern waters will sap her energy, the hurricane center said.

Ana had dumped rains over Bermuda Tuesday night, but as it migrated north the storm left only haze over the island, forecaster Hal Gerrish said.

Seeks stay

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Convicted killer John Michael Lamb's hope of getting a stay for his scheduled excution got a boost when a San Antonio attorney decided to take on the inmate's case.

Attorney Ramon Cervantes III said late Wednesday that he decided the issues raised in Lamb's petition were "most interesting" and that he would represent the inmate in the appeal.

Before Cervantes came along Lamb's only attempt at seeking a delay was made Tuesday when the inmate gave prison chaplain Rev. Stephen Walsh an application for a stay that fellow inmates had drawn up.

"I'm pretty sure I'll get a stay this time," Lamb, 27, said in what could be his final interview. "But I'm not sure about the next time."

More rioting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Soweto, the black township of 1.5 million that has been quiet in recent rioting, has erupted in violence, with mobs looting and setting fire to cars and police responding with tear gas and birdshot.

Riots or protests continued in black townships in all four provinces of this nation where 5 million whites rule 22 million voteless blacks.

Tens of thousands of black students joined school boycotts in at least 26 cities and towns, the government said.

50th annual rodeo events underway, run into Saturday

Some high scores and fast times highlighted opening night of the Scurry County Rodeo Wednesday evening.

The rodeo, celebrating its 50th year, will continue nightly through Saturday at 8 o'clock at the coliseum. It is being co-sponsored by the Scurry County Rodeo Association and Kodiak Smokeless Tobacco.

Gary Richards of Houston recorded a score of 79 to lead the bull riding. Austin's Charlie Bradfield scored a 75.

In the team roping event, Robert Scoggins and Rick Skelton clocked a 5.8. Second place is being held down by Buzz Bierschwale and Scott Bierschwale with a 6.6.

Tiedown calf roping saw a couple of 7.8s, turned in by David Bowen of Victoria and Todd Parks.

Todd Whatley, Odessa, is in third with an 8.0.

A new feature of the rodeo this year is the bull fighting competition. Seven Diamond D bullfighters will be in action during the rodeo, competing three times each. The winner will be declared by average (total points awarded from the three fights).

Wednesday night, Bryan Martin of Stephenville scored a 67 in the bullfighting event. Eddie Caraway of Finley, Okla. scored a 66 and Mark Callihan of Gainesville scored a 65.

The barrel race competition got off to a strong start as Graham's Cindy Stone timed in at 14.24. Shelly Kowis of Cypress is second with a 14.41.

Not every event could brag good times or scores. No one qualified in Wednesday night's saddlebronc riding.

A 68 holds down first place in the bareback, however. Scotty Lovelace of Marshall was awarded the score for his ride. Casey Strange of Buna was second with a 65.

Tickets for the rodeo are $4 for box seats, $3 for general admission and $2 for children under age 12. Youngsters may compete in the goat sacking every evening. There is no entry fee for the event.

New study compares Snyder, other state ISDs

The annual report which compares Texas school districts in such areas as tax levies, teacher pay, student-teacher ratios and money spent per student has been released — including figures related to the operation of Snyder ISD.

The report is issued each year by the Texas Research League, an Austin-based educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

Tax information reflected in the report covers the 1984-85 school year.

Other comparisons, most notably salary information and teacher-student ratios, cover 1983-84 since final information regarding these won't go to the state until Aug. 31.

The report also gives an overview of educational spending statewide, figures which reflect the state legislature's passage of House Bill 72 during the summer of 1984.

With its passage came the largest tax bill in the state's history, increasing state aid to local schools some $1 billion.

State funding to Snyder ISD declined, however, since the district's tax base allows it to be a budget balanced school district.

In line with the state's increased school spending, school trustees in the 1,068 independent school districts across Texas levied the largest school property tax increase in history — a rise of $519 million again linked to House Bill 72.

With state and local funding combined, Texans during 1984-85 spent a total tax bill of $4.1 billion toward education.

The study also compared the local district with statewide figures in such areas as tax levies, teacher pay, student ratios and cost per student.

Information related to taxes reflect the 1984-85 school year. Other facts quoted are derived from the 1983-84 year.

A sampling of these facts include:

RV storage set to open

A storage facility for recreational vehicles, travel trailers and boats will open here Friday, an addition recently completed at Bill Dennis Quick Auto Service and Sales, 811 25th St.

Some 18,000 sq. ft. in storage space has been added at the business. Dennis said this will provide 20 spaces, six already spoken for.

He stressed that the facility will be "100 percent fire-proof, theft-proof and weather-proof."

Motor homes, trailers or boats left in storage will also be serviced on request. Owners will be able to leave these "as is" since no one but business employees will have access to them.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some folks are on time for appointments only when we're not."

At a recent gathering in Austin of the Texas Press Assocation, one of the featured speakers told an interesting story to some publishers visiting after the program.

The speaker was T. Boone Pickens. One of the publishers asked Pickens how he coped with all the names he has been called in the press during his highly-publicized raids on corporations.

Pickens countered with a tale told him by his grandfather about an old man, his grandson and a donkey.

The grandfather and grandson were riding the donkey into a village and the people along the way commented about how the pair took advantage of the donkey. "Look at that old man and boy overburdening that poor donkey."

So the old man got off the donkey and walked. Soon they heard whispers along side the road from the people they passed. "Look at that spoiled brat of a boy--riding while the old man has to walk. That's today's younger generation for you."

So the boy got off the donkey and the old man got on. Soon the whispers started: "Look at that evil old man. Making that poor boy walk while he rides along like a king."

But even that did not still the whispers from the crowd. "Look at those two stupid fools--walking while they have a perfectly healthy animal to ride."

So the grandfather and grandson decided that the only sensible solution to still all the whispers was to hoist the donkey to their shoulders and carry the donkey.

And while walking over a bridge, the old man stumbled, the donkey fell from their shoulder, and drowned in the water below.

"The moral of the story," Pickens said, "is that if you try to please everyone, you'll lose your (donkey).

Arrest clears check reports

Police jailed a 29-year-old suspect wanted on two felony warrants from Edna, Tx. shortly after 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The arrest also led to the clearing of 12 misdemeanor cases here. Officials report the Scurry County sheriff's office was holding 13 warrants for issuance of a bad check against the suspect.

In custody in Scurry County Jail awaiting transfer to the custody of Edna authorities is Louis Carlos Speedon of Ganado, Tx.

Speedon was wanted in Edna on felony charges of hindering a secured creditor and felony theft. Bonds in those cases have been set at $1,500 and $10,000 respectively.

Texas GOP backing Loeffler over Hance

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a dramatic departure that spotlights an overt intra-party rift among Texas Republicans, three Houston-area House members have signed a campaign letter supporting Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, for governor, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

The significance is heightened by the fact that by signing the letter, Reps. Bill Archer of Houston, Jack Fields of Humble and Tom DeLay of Sugar Land are squaring off directly against their state's Republican senator, Phil Gramm.

Gramm has said he expects to support former Rep. Kent Hance, a Democrat-turned-Republican from Lubbock, if Hance enters the race.

The signers of the Loeffler letter, which is to be mailed by Loeffler's exploratory campaign committee to all Texas Republican households later this month, range from the dean of the Texas Republican delegation, Archer, to freshman DeLay. In his 19 years in public office, Archer has never before endorsed a candidate before a primary, aides said.

A fourth Republican House member, freshman Rep. Mack Sweeney of Wharton, said he also will help Loeffler in the primary in his district, although he said he was not asked to sign the letter, the Chronicle said.

Each of the self-proclaimed Loeffler supporters said he would support the Republican nominee even if Loeffler loses the primary. But, in discussing Hance's potential candidacy, some of them dredged up resentment of the former Democrat's support in 1984 of liberals such as presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale and Senate nominee Lloyd Doggett.

Hance narrowly lost the Democratic Senate primary in 1984 to Doggett, who was defeated by Gramm in the general election.

Both Gramm and Hance are former Democratic House members who changed parties. Gramm recruited Hance into the Republican fold in May and said he would be inclined to support Hance for any office he sought.

Hance and Loeffler have been conducting campaign-style exploratory missions in the state for several months, raising money and expectations of a hard-fought primary.

Drug-sniffing dogs discover marijuana

AUSTIN (AP) — Police dogs sniffing baggage at Robert Mueller Municipal Airport this week have turned up several pounds of marijuana, resulting in four arrests, authorities said.

The unannounced searches, scheduled to end today, are being conducted to see if a permanent program using drug-sniffing dogs would be worthwhile. The Austin Police Department is considering buying the dogs for use in drug enforcement.

Since Monday, two Labrador retrievers owned by the Department of Public Safety have been sniffing checked baggage leaving flights from places like Florida where there is heavy drug trade, said Lt. Pete Taylor, head of the Austin narcotics unit.

One search netted two pounds of marijuana and another 10 pounds, he said.

Austin police use dogs in manhunts and other tasks, but have no dogs trained to detect drugs.

"We're running a little experiment, to see what's coming through the airport," Taylor said. "We're spot-checking different flights coming from what we call source cities. We're looking at mostly flights out of Florida."

The dogs and their handlers check the baggage after it has been removed from planes and before it is loaded onto conveyors in the terminal. The dogs are trained to detect heroin, cocaine, methamphetamine, marijuana, and other drugs.

Several times the dogs have alerted officers to legal prescription drugs in baggage, Taylor said.

Movies which show killings doing big rental business

DETROIT (AP) — "Faces of Death" and its sequel, films made up of scene after graphic scene of actual human and animal killings, have become hot items on the video rental market around the nation, distributors say.

"It is terrible; it is gross," Dennis Peters of Curtis Mathis Entertainment Centers, one of the nation's leading videotape rental chains, said Wednesday.

It is also immensely popular, according to Peters, who described the demand for the "Faces of Death" videocassettes as "phenomenal."

Despite their common subject matter, the "Faces of Death" films differ in one crucial respect from standard Hollywood horror fare: The killings they show are real.

"Basically it's a documentary," said Jeff Robinson, manager of Movieland, a videotape rental store in Ann Arbor. "It covers everything from the electric chair to the slaughterhouse."

The films also show a "tribal execution," a bridge-jump suicide, several autopsies and the killing of monkeys in a restaurant where fresh monkey brains are a specialty of the house, Robinson said.

Robinson said customers rent out the films as quickly as he puts them on the shelf.

Jaffer Ali of Maljack Productions of Oak Forest, Ill., exclusive distributor of the "Faces of Death" films, said they have developed a strong following despite lack of advertising and virtually no theatrical distribution. The company has sold 30,000 copies of the two films, he said.

Ali attributed the popularity of the films to people's fascination with death.

Your Birthday

July 18, 1985

Partnerships will play important roles in your affairs in the year following your birthday. Be careful, however, that new alliances aren't established that lead you to disregard relationships of long standing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It behooves you to give some serious thought today to how you intend to clean up old obligations you owe to different parties. Figure out a program. Major changes are ahead for Cancers in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't allow impetuous associates to coerce you into making important decisions late in the day. You might not be thinking as clearly as you should.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have a tendency to create problems for yourself today. If you keep this in mind, frustrations can be avoided.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It may be wise to avoid attending functions this evening where you could run into people with whom you've had disagreements. These matters are not yet resolved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today your ego could be more vulnerable than usual. Don't expect accolades from others if none are due.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of looking for the faults in friends today, try to focus on their good points. If you begin to criticize them, you won't like their response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pals will resent it if you are too curious about their confidential affairs today. Don't probe for information where your questions are unwelcomed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Later in the day neither you nor your mate are apt to be too tolerant of one another. Should a disagreement arise, don't air it in public.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Pace yourself wisely today or you're likely to push both your mental and physical energies beyond their limits. Do fewer things, but do them well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Relax and don't take yourself or events too seriously today, especially social situations. If you get uptight, it'll spoil everyone's fun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's best not to begin do-it-yourself projects around the house late in the afternoon. You might disrupt things more than improving them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you go out on the town this evening and make it a late night, don't try to recapture lost time by speeding home. Drive carefully.

Lane Wall has returned home in Houston with his parents, the Wallace Walls, after spending several weeks with his grandparents, the Grover Walls.

Miss Kathy Walls, daughter of Dick Walls of Pampa, is in the Northwest Hospital in Amarillo.

The First Baptist Church of Hermleigh conducted revival services July 8-12. Dr. L. Chester Guinn of Texarkana was the evangelist for the week. He lived and pastored in the Lamesa and Seminole area several years ago. The services were very well attended and folks received a blessing from being in the services. There were over 20 specials in song presented during the week by the church choir, soloists, duets, trios and quartets. The servics were concluded on Friday with a salad supper being served by the ladies of the church at the Hermleigh Community Center.

Louise Vest, Faye Robbins, Ruth Boattenhamer, Bertha Holdridge, Ruth Davis, Dee Creswell, Ilene Haynes and Rella Young left Friday morning on a most interesting trip.

They first went to Mason on a sight seeing tour there and saw the Seaquist House with the 17 fireplaces.

Second place they went to Luckenbach and on to the Johnson Ranch and into Johnson City and toured the house where President Johnson was born. Traveling on to San Marcus they spent all day Saturday at Aquarena Springs and shopped at New Braunfels. Sunday morning they went on a sight seeing tour and on to Marble Falls where they visited Louis' brothers, Bill and Earl Williamson. Bill took the group on a tour of Garnet Shoals and the Horseshoe Bay area. Enroute home they toured Lake Lyndon B. Johnson and Buchanan Lake and returned home Sunday afternoon.

Active defense or passive?

Do you know the difference between active and passive defense? When you defend actively, you try to quickly take enough tricks to defeat the contract. When you defend passively, you take your tricks as they come to you, and then sit back safely and wait, hoping for more tricks. You can't always be sure which type of defense will be called for until you have seen the dummy. So it was with today's deal.

Some other time the circumstances might be right for East to let declarer win the club king at trick one, but not here. Since it was possible that declarer had the singleton king, East won the ace. Note however, that it is OK to consider whether it might be right to duck the ace with the East hand.

Having won the ace, East had to ask himself, "What next?" With his own poor holding in diamonds, East was correct in assuming that the suit would be an excellent source of tricks for declarer. Accordingly, hearts needed to be attacked. This was an active hand. Unless the defense could take three quick heart tricks, the contract would be made. Because of the need for haste, East tabled the heart queen. That set the contract. If East had carelessly played a low heart, declarer would have ducked and West would have won the 10. But three heart tricks would no longer have been there for the taking.

Brooks signs with 'Pokes but Darwin still won't ink

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys say they have reached a contract agreement with their No. 1 draft choice, defensive end Kevin Brooks of Michigan, leaving only one unsigned draft pick, Matt Darwin of Texas A&M.

Brooks drove to camp Wednesday night from Los Angeles to sign a contract negotiated by Cowboys personnel director Gil Brandt and agent Mike Trope, a Cowboys spokesman said.

Brooks, 6-foot-7 and 262 pounds, said he would begin practicing today.

He had not reported to the training camp Sunday with other Cowboys rookies and had held out for three days before agreeing to contract terms.

"I feel great," Brooks said. "I'm tired of lifting weights and running around by myself. I'm ready to play football."

The four-year pact includes an option by the Cowboys to renew for one additional year, Trope said. Other terms were not disclosed.

Brandt, the Dallas Cowboys' personnel director, said earlier that as far as he was concerned Darwin, an offensive lineman, won't be with the National Football League club this season.

But Darwin's agent, Randy Hendricks, has called Brandt's stance "a power play" that won't work.

Hendricks said Brandt called him Tuesday, suspended negotiations, and said the Cowboys' offer of a $55,000 signing bonus for Darwin, a center-guard and fifth-round draft choice, was no longer available.

Brandt said the offer would be cut by $2,500 a day for each day Darwin stayed out of camp, Hendricks said.

Besides the bonus, the Cowboys' offer to Darwin included salaries of $70,000, $85,000 and $100,000 with an option.

Brandt said he and Hendricks are so far apart that it's safe to say Darwin probably won't play for the Cowboys in 1985.

"As far as I'm concerned, he won't be here this year. The money they are talking about and what we're offering, I don't see how we can make a compromise," Brandt said.

Historically, a fifth-round draft choice usually is only borderline to make the cut.

"Somewhere along the line you have to compromise if you are drafted fifth," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said. "You have to say, 'Let me make the team, and then the money will come.'"

If Darwin doesn't sign and the Cowboys don't trade his rights, he could sign with a USFL team for 1986 or put his name back into the 1986 draft. Brandt has said he will not trade the team's NFL rights to Darwin this season.

Oilers draftees still holding out

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers drafted three of the first 36 players in the 1985 National Football League draft and none are likely to be in training camp Friday when rookies are due to report.

Texas A&M defensive end Ray Childress, the third player chosen, Wisconsin cornerback Richrd Johnson, the 11th choice in the first round, and second round pick Richard Byrd, a defensive lineman from Southern Mississippi, remain on the unsigned list.

None of the trio has been greeted by Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzeg with an open pocketbook.

Herzeg also must resolve the contract dispute with running back Larry Moriarty, the team's leading rusher last season, and a key figure in plans for this season.

The only other unsigned Oiler veteran is defensive end Jesse Baker.

Oiler rookies are due at the training facility at Angelo State University Friday, and veterans are scheduled to report Sunday.

Girls to begin play in Kermit, Midland

KERMIT – Snyder's Division I, II and III United Girl's Softball Association all-star teams were scheduled in tournament action here today.

The Snyder Division IV all-star team was also slated in tournament play this morning in Midland.

The tournaments in Kermit will be held in the area of Winkler County Park on East Avenue. The Division IV Tournament in Midland is being held at the ballpark on 2900 West Kentucky.

Snyder's Division I team was to play Colorado City at 9 this morning (Thursday) and will vie against Lovington at 8 a.m. Friday and Kermit at 5 p.m. Friday.

Snyder's Division II squad is to play Kermit at 5 today and will play Andrews at 10 a.m. Friday and Coahoma at 5 p.m. Friday.

Snyder's Division III team was to play Jal, N.M. today at 3 and will take on Coahoma at 8 a.m. Friday and Andrews at 5 p.m. Friday.

The Division IV team from Snyder was to play Midland at 8 this morning and Andrews at 6 this evening. The squad is also scheduled against Odessa at 6 p.m. Friday.

All-Stars vie Saturday in District 5 playoffs

ABILENE – Snyder's Little League All-Stars, Area 5 champions, are scheduled to play Saturday in the District 5 playoffs here.

The tournament actually begins Friday with Merkel and Abilene Dixie vying at 6 p.m. and Southern and Albany taking the field at 8.

Snyder will play at 8 p.m. Saturday against the winner of Friday's game between Abilene Southern and Albany.

Coleman will play the winner of the Merkel-Dixie game at 6 Saturday.

The tournament is double-elimination. However, any loss suffered in the area playoffs will carry over to the tournament. Dixie and Coleman both lost a game in area play and therefore will be out of the tournament here with one loss.

Because of possible changes in the bracket involving Dixie and Coleman should they lose, future games cannot be projected accurately until Friday and Saturday's contests have taken place.

Snyder slated against Plainview on Monday

ANDREWS – Snyder Black is scheduled to play Plainview in the first round of the July 22-26 West Texas State 16-18 Year Old or Babe Ruth League tournament here.

Snyder and Plainview open the week-long, double-elimination tournament at 6 p.m. Monday.

Dumas and Andrews will vie in Monday's late game at 8:30.

Graham received a bye and will play the Dumas-Andrews winner at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Tuesday's other contest will be an 8:30 game between the losers of Monday's contests.

A victory for Snyder would put the Black team back in action at 6 p.m. Wednesday against the winner of the Dumas-Andrews-Graham bouts. Should Snyder lose its first game, it would play at 8:30 Tuesday against the Dumas-Andrews loser.

The championship game of the tournament is scheduled at 6 p.m. Friday. However, since it is double-elimination, a second championship game, if necessary, has been set up at 8:30 Friday.

Players picking simpler courses

WACO, Texas (AP) - Schoolboy football players who will have to punt, pass and kick this fall also face another requirement of making the grade, and are choosing easier courses as a result, according to Dave Campbell's Texas Football magazine.

The magazine's preseason poll of 205 players showed 38.4 percent are changing class schedules to avoid more difficult courses, reducing their chances of failure and suspension because of the no-pass, no-play rule.

The magazine, which also interviewed 78 coaches around the state, reported 94.4 percent said some of their players were staying away from hard coursework.

All the coaches surveyed opposed the state's no-play rule, which stems from last year's legislative education reforms and has been upheld by the Texas Supreme Court.

Any student who fails to make passing grades of 70 in every class will be suspended from extracurricular activities for six weeks under the rule.

"Some students say that if you are not passing, you should not be playing," Dave Campbell, magazine editor-in-chief, said Wednesday. "But their coaches are making interesting plans to make sure their students keep playing."

Klein High School coach George Kirk last year began an early-morning study hall for football players making below 72 in any class, Campbell said.

"It's been pretty tough to get those kids up to school at 6:30 a.m. to study, but it's been worth it," Kirk told the magazine in its July issue. "We had problems with parents complaining about having to get their kids up that early, but when they realized we were trying to help them, the opposition stopped."

"Somebody is going to be killed because of that rule," new Highland Park Head Coach Randy Emery told the magazine. "If a kid drops out of school because he can't play football, and he robs a 7-Eleven and shoots somebody, that's a direct result of no-pass, no-play. And don't tell me that isn't going to happen somewhere."

The survey questionnaire was sent in late April and responses were received through May, Campbell said.

"It is such a hot topic," he said.

AT&T...

Breakup causing problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government analysis concludes that its forced breakup of AT&T, combined with federal policies, is causing increasing headaches for some telephone customers while contributing to the foreign trade deficit.

The report, issued Wednesday by the department's National Telecommunications and Information Administration, calls for mid-course corrections in the recent restructuring of the nation's telephone industry.

It asks the Federal Communications Commission to crack down on service problems and delays in installation which "evidently are due to the inability or unwillingness" of former Bell System companies "to interact effectively and smoothly."

"All reasonable steps are required to ensure that quality of service and responsiveness are restored to the previous levels for which the former American telephone system deservedly was famous," the report says.

The study suggests the FCC carefully police and monitor proposed long-distance rate reductions by AT&T until September 1986 when the system of long-distance competition known as equal access is supposed to be in place.

The study said FCC policies and the breakup of the Bell System have contributed to record U.S. trade deficits in communications.

Foreign manufactuers can sell equipment in the United States while other nations maintain barriers to keep out American equipment.

FCC rules limit the amount of computer intelligence that can be built into the phone system. Such rules helped create an import market for "smart" telephone equipment from overseas for use in a customer's office, the report said. Local telephone companies are forbidden to manufacture equipment.

The policy review said the seven regional companies created by the breakup of AT&T should be allowed to compete overseas.

It recommends, at least for now, keeping local telephone companies out of the long-distance business and continuing the ban on manufacturing.

At the consumer level, the report also said customers would be better off paying for each telephone call rather than paying a monthly flat-rate for unlimited local phone service.

The billing method, called "local measured service," has been rejected by public utility commissions in many states and is bitterly opposed by consumer groups who say it unloads costs on residential customers.

Under such service, charges for local phone calls are determined by time and distance instead of charging a flat monthly rate for unlimited calling.

The monopoly of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was broken in 1982 when AT&T and the Justice Department signed a consent decree settling a drawn-out antitrust case against Ma Bell. The FCC placed additional restraints on the way telephone companies participate in the computer business.

8 Texas prison officials are indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — The indictment this week of eight Texas Department of Corrections' officials marks the first time past and present Texas prison employees have been charged with violating prisoners' federal civil rights, a government official said.

A federal grand jury on Wednesday indicted Markus Anthony Hackney, 27, a former lieutenant at the TDC Darrington Unit near Rosharon, and Loyd Seal, 36, who was demoted from lieutenant to correctional officer, on charges of violating the civil rights of inmate Thomas Earl Boone by assaulting him during a Dec. 20, 1984 incident.

Each was charged with one count of violating a prisoner's rights and could face a one-year maximum sentence and a $1,000 fine, officials said.

On Monday, Robert Minor Lawson II, former assistant warden of the Wynne Unit near Huntsville, and Donald L. Shiver, a former captain at the unit, were charged with conspiring "to injure and intimidate" inmates Scott E. Licklider and Mark A. Griffith on Oct. 29, 1982.

Also charged in that incident were Leonel Leal Jr., Morris Ray Bigham, Nathan Bryant White and Henry E. Farris, all present guards within the prison system.

Leal also was charged with a separate count of violating the civil rights of Griffith.

"I don't recollect anyone being indicted from TDC in an official capacity," Stephen Morris, chief of the civil rights division of the U.S. Attonrney's office, told the Houston Chronicle on Wednesday.

He said federal authorities are still investigating allegations of brutality within the nation's second largest prison system but declined to say if further indictments are forthcoming.

A TDC internal affairs investigation surrounding the Boone case showed that Boone had struck Hackney and was then taken to a shift supervisor's office.

Inside the office, Hackney hit Boone with his fist, kicked him and then struck him with a flashlight, TDC spokesman Phil Guthrie told the Chronicle. Seal was present during the beating but made no effort to stop it, he said.

Later, however, Seal reported the incident, Guthrie said, adding that Boone was transferred to the Retrieve Unit near Angleton the next day.

Following the incident, Hackney was fired and Seal was demoted, suspended for 30 days and placed on probation for a year, Guthrie said.

Guthrie said it isn't certain if Seal, a two-year TDC employee, will be placed in a "non-contact" position while under indictment.

TDC director Lane McCotter has ordered the four other guards indicted Monday to be placed in areas where they cannot have contact with prisoners.

Guthrie said about 40 correctional officers have been disciplined this year for excessive use of force against prisoners.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from "Concerned Mom," who, while shopping with her 5-year-old daughter, encountered a friendly stranger offering a few coins to her child. "Concerned Mom" explained to the stranger that she was trying to teach her child not to talk to strangers or accept any gifts from them. She said, "He understood, and walked away, but I know his feelings were hurt."

Abby, I know children need to be protected from people who would do them harm, but teaching them to suspect everyone they meet of evil intentions will do them more harm than good.

And how about the friendly child who strikes up a conversation with an adult? What are we supposed to do? Tell him to get lost? Or ask him if his mother hasn't told him not to talk to strangers?

Talking to strangers isn't dangerous. We are all strangers before we become friends. Let's not raise a generation of suspicious, paranoid youngsters.

PRACTICAL MOM

DEAR PRACTICAL: Children need to be taught "limits." It's all right to be friendly, but they never should accept gifts (candy, coins or anything else) from a stranger without first asking a parent or guardian if they may. Children should be taught that they absolutely may not go anywhere with a stranger. And prudent parents will never, never let a small child out of their sight while shopping.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I took my kids to Disneyland last week. My little boy is 2 1/2 years old and quick as lightning, so not wanting to lose him in the crowd, I put a harness with a leash on him. One woman passed me and said pleasantly, "That's smart, lady."

But my feelings were hurt by some of the other people who thought it was terrible. One ride attendant went, "Arf arf!" Then everybody laughed.

No way would I take the leash off that kid. I lost the oldest one for an hour in a crowded mall one time and I nearly went crazy.

Please print this, Abby, and put in a good word for us mothers who put harnesses on our kids. We don't like being laughed at or thought cruel.

CAREFUL MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm on your side. Don't let critical remarks from strangers upset you. The smart-mouthed "ride attendant" who said "Arf arf" should have been reported. If more little ones were "harnessed," there would be fewer missing children.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in our middle 60s. He retired five years ago, and from that time on he started to act strange. He keeps all the blinds and drapes closed night and day. I am never allowed to open them. It's so depressing living in darkness. Our houseplants have all died from lack of light.

I am not allowed to invite anyone over. We have no friends anymore. The only time I talk to people is when I go to the shopping center. He doesn't even want me to talk on the phone. If anyone calls, he listens to every word I say.

What is wrong with this man? He never used to be this way.

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Your husband's behavior is not normal. Living in darkness, refusing to socialize and extreme possessiveness are symptoms of a mental or physical illness. Please arrange for your husband to be seen by his physician as soon as possible, and tell the doctor what you have told me. Your husband needs evaluation and treatment immediately.

DEAR ABBY: The day after a relative's wedding took place in Maine, an "invitation" arrived at my home in Oregon! I know perfectly well that it was mailed late to make sure I wouldn't arrive in Maine, unbidden and unwelcome, to attend the wedding. What could say more plainly, "Send gift; don't come"?

Worse yet was the invitation for another occasion that came postmarked the day after the party. The clod even enclosed photos of the magnificent table setting, so I could see what I had missed, and eat my heart out.

Well, I didn't. So I remain ...

Tarrant Co. DA to review case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry is expected to review paperwork filed by police seeking to try a teen-ager as an adult in the death of a 4-year-old girl.

Prosecutors said evidence in the case would be reviewed today, and a decision could be made by week's end whether to accept capital murder charges against a 16-year-old neighbor of Melody Ann Flores.

Juvenile court officials on Wednesday released the boy's 12-year-old brother after police questioned him in connection with the girl's asphyxiation death.

Detective Curt Brannan said he spent most of Wednesday questioning the 12-year-old and administering a polygraph examination because "we were anxious to eliminate him from our investigation if he wasn't involved in any way."

The boy was detained with his brother but "further investigation failed to provide any evidence that the 12-year-old was involved in the murder," said Brannan.

The older boy has been ordered held in the county juvenile detention home until juvenile proceedings are complete, authorities said.

Senior staff attorney Steve Chaney said Curry wants to review the case before it is filed.

Police said the girl disappeared Saturday when she went to return a toy to a friend down the street. Her body was found Monday in a plastic bag at an alley behind the neighbor's house.

Heart-lung machine saves life of baby

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Air Force physicians saved the life of a lung-injured Killeen baby by using a new, miniature children's heart-lung machine developed in San Antonio, officials said.

The device, called an extracorporeal membrane oxygenation unit, is the first one made small enough for treating a baby during emergency air transport, Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center officials said.

"This baby would not have survived without ECMO," said Col. Robert F. deLemos, head of maternal and child care at the hospital.

Derrick Barlow, 20 days old, became the first child last week to be placed on the device, the San Antonio Light reported. Wilford Hall and the Southwest Foundation for Biomedical Research in San Antonio developed the device.

Derrick suffered chemical pneumonia at birth at Fort Hood on June 29, after swallowing fecal material in the womb, a common birth accident, deLemos said.

He was moved by air ambulance to Wilford Hall on July 4 and connected on July 7 to the machine, which takes blood from the body through major neck blood vessels, infuses it with oxygen and then pumps it back into the body.

Although the portable heart-lung machine was aboard, physicians decided its use was not immediately necessary.

The child was taken off the device Friday and was reported in "satisfactory and improving" condition Wednesday.

Hand tremors cause concern

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter is 14, and when she holds out her hand outstretched in front, it trembles to the fingertips. She has no bad habits, such as drinking too much coffee or smoking. Is this normal?

DEAR READER — Tremors of the outstretched hand can reflect a variety of causes — from an overactive thyroid gland to a benign essential tremor, or tremulousness of unknown cause. To complicate matters, some adolescents — because of just plain nervousness — tend to be shaky.

Most people's fingers tremble a little bit during forced extension. I cannot tell from your question whether your daughter's condition is normal. To some extent, the degree of tremor can determine if the situation could be helped by medication. A very slight trembling is of no particular concern. However, if your daughter is concerned, a medical evaluation is appropriate. Encourage her to be examined by your family doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm middle-aged and never had a particularly good memory for names, but now I can forget the name of a movie star two hours after I saw the movie; then I spend the next hour trying to remember it. The more I try, the angrier I get at myself. Is there any trick to remembering names?

DEAR READER — Loss of memory can be a symptom of disease or it can be a normal variation. A doctor can best advise you.

Many people routinely experience memory loss. We may have other things on our minds, worries, concerns about responsibilities. Under these circumstances, we may tend to forget inconsequential events and names. Judging from the quality of movies being produced today, I am not surprised that you might have difficulty remembering a certain "star." But I'll bet you would remember her if her performance were memorable. Could you forget a Hepburn or a MacLaine? Unlikely. We're deluged by names ... and we have every right to forget most of them.

I've found that the more frustrated I become at not being able to remember a name, the more elusive the name becomes. There are lots of tricks that people use to remember things. The most reliable, I suppose, is writing them down. Then you can refer to a written sheet to refresh your memory. My problem is that I usually forget where I put the darned list.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that a calcium deficiency can cause frequent headaches and excessive menstrual cramps? Is taking calcium supplements an effective way to reduce the likelihood of getting headaches and cramps?

DEAR READER — I think not. People who are calcium-deficient may experience muscle cramps and weakness. Therefore, supplemental calcium may help in these instances. But ordinary headaches are usually due to tension and muscle contraction, and menstrual cramps are due to the effect of a chemical called prostaglandin. Therefore, calcium will not usually affect these conditions.

By and large, calcium supplements are harmless for normal people. You may choose to take them anyway to see what happens. If you have headaches and menstrual cramps, however, I suspect that you will obtain more benefit from other, more specific treatments.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Drought causes crops in nation to suffer

By Mark Berns
Associated Press Writer

From the normally lush farmland of America's breadbasket to the crowded cities and sprawling suburbs of the Northeast, millions of people are looking to the sky and praying for rain. It's summer, it's hot and a big chunk of the nation is locked in a drought.

Restrictions on water use are in effect in scores of communities in New Jersey, Massachusetts and New York — which has begun fining violators — because reservoirs have fallen way below normal.

In the northern Grain Belt, farmers are expecting below-normal yields — losses in one Wisconsin county are estimated at $23 million — and officials are keeping an eye on tinder-dry forests like those that have been ablaze for nearly a month in the West.

"We're running out of moisture," Iowa climatologist Paul Waite said Wednesday. "In the next 10 days we'll probably be out in a big share of the state."

The situation is "very, very critical" for crop development in the southern third of Wisconsin, said Beth Kurth of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Iowa City.

The bone-dry weather has withered at least 40 percent of the crops for 1,500 to 1,700 farmers in Vernon County lone, with losses of some $23 million, said Jack Stintzi, head of the ASCS office in Viroqua, Wis.

"In terms of crop production, fire potential, water supplies, we clearly have a drought of historic proportions and that includes the dry 1930s," said Montana Gov. Ted Schwinden, a wheat farmer.

Many Montana ranchers are having to sell herds because feed is scarce, and about 30 of the 56 counties have sought agriculture disaster designation.

In western North Dakota, state Agriculture Commissioner Kent Jones said, the drought is so severe that some farmers had to go 20 miles to find hay.

In the Northeast, mandatory conservation is in effect in the New York City area, 218 northern New Jersey communities and 25 in mostly eastern Massachusetts, where eight other towns have voluntary restrictions.

The Quabbin and Wachusett reservoirs, which supply 45 communities in the Boston area, are about 82 percent and 90 percent full, respectively. Quabbin is usually 95 percent full in July.

New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean last week lifted 50-gallon-a-day rationing in 93 communities, but left in place restrictions including bans on lawn watering, hosing streets and non-commercial car washing in those and 125 other cities.

Despite heavy rain this week — up to 2.2 inches Monday and Tuesday — a 4-month-old drought emergency remains in effect in New York City, largely because most of its reservoirs are 100 miles to the north.

Cocaine found in home

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Authorities have seized more than 200 pounds of cocaine from a truck parked in front of the home of a man arrested Saturday in New Mexico when Border Patrol agents found about $50 million worth of the drug in the man's vehicle, El Paso police said.

Henry Harrison Flores, 19, of El Paso, was arrested at a U.S. Border Patrol checkpoint Saturday on Highway 54 about 20 miles south of Alamogordo, N.M., authorities said. More than 267 pounds of cocaine was found hidden in a butane tank in the truck he was driving.

On Wednesday, El Paso police recovered 105 packages of cocaine, weighing about two pounds each, found hidden in the butane tank of another truck parked in front of Flores' El Paso home, said Police Sgt. Hank DiMatteo.

DiMatteo said no charges had been filed in connection with the second cocaine seizure. He said the owner of the truck had not been determined.

The truck Flores was driving Saturday had 267.3 pounds of cocaine hidden in the butane tank, New Mexico State Police reported. That cocaine had an estimated street value of $40 to $50 million, authorities said.

Past illnesses were kept very secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president traveled without notice from the White House to New York City, where he boarded a yacht in the East River and began a cruise through Long Island Sound.

The next day, Grover Cleveland, wedged into a chair secured to the ship's structure, became the first president to have cancer surgery while in office when doctors removed a malignant tumor from his mouth.

The truth about the president's surgery was kept secret by a medical and political conspiracy. The operation, which included implantation of an artificial jaw, was described as nothing more than the removal of several abscessed teeth.

And it was not until 1917, in an article written by one of the doctors involved in the operation, that the full story surrounding Cleveland's operation in the summer of 1893 became known — a sharp contrast to the publicity surrounding President Reagan's surgery last Saturday.

At least one other president — Ulysses S. Grant — was diagnosed as having cancer, although his was not found until seven years after he left office, according to Dr. John B. Moses, a Scarsdale, N.Y., internist who has studied the medical histories of presidents.

Well into the next century, Moses said, the health of presidents was still largely kept secret for fear of alarming the public.

"Certainly Cleveland is a good example," Moses said in a telephone interview from New Hampshire, where he is vacationing. "Everybody lied through their teeth ... and no one knew about it for years. Everybody from the secretary of state on down denied that this had taken place."

The change from secrecy to openness about presidential disabilities began with Dwight D. Eisenhower's heart attack in September 1955 and has continued, largely because of pressure from the media and presidents who have "more confidence in the reactions of the public than previous presidents 50 and 75 years ago," Moses said.

At the time Cleveland's cancer was discovered, the country was embroiled in a growing financial crisis and the president was concerned that if he were known to be disabled, opponents of his economic policies would take control and lead the country to financial disaster, the book says.

Cleveland himself ordered the secrecy surrounding his operation and recovery, and devised the idea of having the operation performed aboard a friend's yacht, the author said.

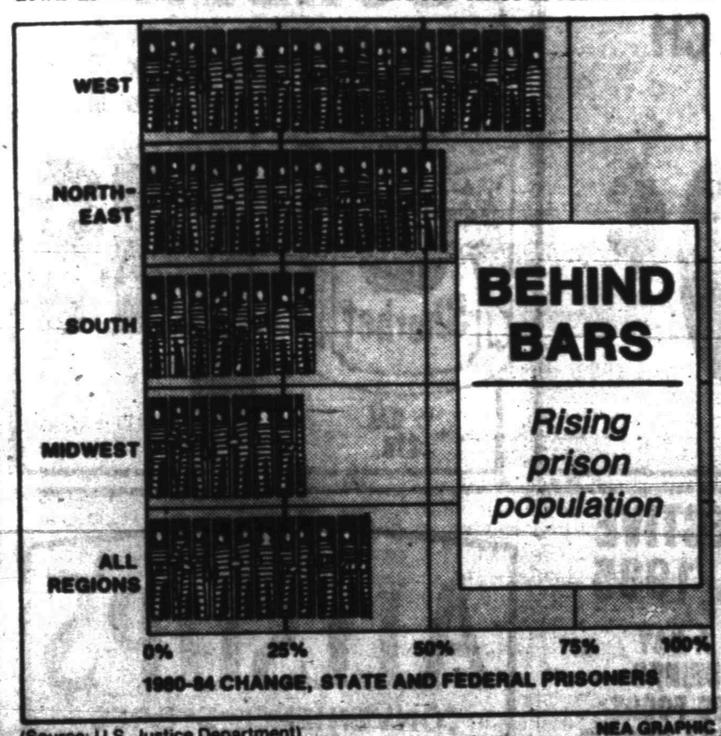
Because of concern that an external scar would arose reporters' suspicions, doctors performed the July 1 operation through his mouth, removing part of the president's palate and all but a small portion of his left upper jaw, according to the book.

The yacht cruised through Long Island Sound and on to Marion, Mass., where Cleveland maintained a summer home. There, the press was told the president had had several teeth pulled by a dentist aboard his friend's ship, Moses said.

Rumor of his malignancy surfaced in the press, but Cleveland's aides attributed the president's speech difficulties were due to the extractions.

Cleveland was fitted with an artificial jaw and on Aug. 7 delivered a speech to a special session of Congress.

Cleveland survived the cancer and left office in March 1889. He was elected to another four-year term in 1893, and he died of a heart condition June 24, 1908, at age 71.



The number of federal prisoners increased by 41 percent between 1980 and 1984, with the greatest increase in the West and the Northeast.

Songwriters nuke site with words

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Disgust with the possibility of a high-level nuclear waste dump site in the Texas Panhandle has prompted two songwriters to lash out with lyrics.

"They wanta dig a hole for you, and they wanta dig a hole for me; we're gonna live high off the hog, let's thank the DOE," the song goes. "They wanta dig a hole for you, on the edge of eternity; I wanta know where I'm gonna go, let's ask the DOE."

Frank Ford said Wednesday he and songwriter Ken Precure wrote "They Wanta Dig A Hole For You" to protest what Ford calls a plan by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to disrupt the number one agricultural county in Texas.

The two are residents of the Panhandle city of Hereford in Deaf Smith County, about 100 miles northwest of Lubbock.

Deaf Smith County was named last December as one of three top preliminary sites for the nation's first high-level waste storage area. Sites near Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Hanford, Wash., also were proposed.

"They came here in 1982 and said they were going to dig a hole (for nuclear waste) no matter what we wanted," Ford told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "That didn't sit well with us. It would seem to me that we just don't have room in the federal budget for this kind of insanity."

In "They Wanta Dig A Hole For You," written under the pseudonym Ben Hadd, Precure mocks information supplied by the DOE that the nuclear waste site will provide benefits for the area.

Former guard is jailed in slaying

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A former bank security guard, jailed on investigative capital murder charges in connection with the slayings of two savings and loan employees during a robbery, gave a car dealership about $5,000 cash, authorities said.

David Lee Holland of Nederland gave a Beaumont car dealership about $5,000 in cash Tuesday to cover a check returned because of insufficient funds for a new Nissan Sentra, the Beaumont Enterprise reported in a copyright story today.

Holland, 50, was arrested shortly after 3 a.m. Wednesday and held in lieu of $200,000 bond in connection with Tuesday's robbery of the Jefferson Savings & Loan Association in Port Arthur and the slaying of two employees, said police Sgt. K.J. Landry.

Officials said Holland wrote a check about a week ago for deposit into a stepdaughter's account to cover the outstanding purchase price of the car. The check, however, was written on a closed account, officials said.

Holland served a deferred adjudication probation from March 6, 1981, to June 23, 1983, on a third-degree felony charge for writing worthless checks totaling $1,105 to area grocery and department stores, the Enterprise reported.

Jefferson County district clerk records also show a theft case is pending against Holland.

Police said at least $5,000 was taken in Tuesday's robbery. Officers recovered some of the money, along with a .45-caliber pistol and ammunition, during a search of Holland's house, Landry said.

A surveillance camera videotape from the bank showed a "calm and calculating" man chatting with one employee before the slayings, the Enterprise reported Wednesday in another copyright story.

Holland, an unemployed father of four, had worked as a security guard at the savings and loan's main office in Beaumont about eight years ago, Landry said.

Investigators said that the 12- to 15-minute tape showed the gunman entering the savings and loan at 9:43 a.m. Tuesday and chatting with one woman for about 10 minutes while the other woman took care of customers at the drive-up window.

A few minutes later the gunman announced the holdup and rifled three cash drawers before signaling for the two women to join him in the lobby and taking them to the vault area, investigators said.

Police Officer Ken Corona went by the savings and loan minutes after the shooting, noticed no tellers. Teller Diana Joy Jackson, 23, of Port Neches, was shot in the back and died at Park Place Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Gayle Yarbrough.

It was the second violent robbery in four years at the savings and loan. A clerk was critically injured during a robbery on Dec. 4, 1981.

Hospitals comply with court order

AUSTIN (AP) — State psychiatric hospitals have met an interim deadline for increased staffing but could have difficulty meeting the Sept. 1 final deadline, says the coordinator of a special panel appointed to monitor the hospitals.

The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation is under Dallas U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders' order to reduce the number of patients or hire more mental health workers.

Feared escape was 'set-up'

TENNESSEE COLONY, Texas (AP) — Convicted kidnapper James Wesley Foote said he broke out of jail because he feared the Johnson County sheriff would kill him.

While free, he feared he had been allowed to escape so law officers could kill him for running, he said.

Foote, who escaped July 4 by climbing a chain-link, barbed wire-topped fence at Johnson County Jail, is back in a Texas prison unit serving a life sentence for the kidnap of 13-year-old Amy McNiel of Alvarado.

In his first interview since his recapture, Foote told the Dallas Times Herald he spent the days of his short-lived freedom walking, running and hitchhiking by night, and hiding and sleeping by day.

Foote, 34, said he remained free because people were not paying attention and his friends were willing to help him.

But he said his escape had been so easy that he began to fear the sheriff's office wanted him to flee so they could hunt him down and shoot him.

"That's totally false," said Johnson County Sheriff Eddy Boggs. "Ain't no way I'm going to threaten a man or allow that to happen."

Foote was transferred to the Johnson County Jail from a Texas prison unit for questioning in the murder of a Colleyville woman when the escape occurred. He is now at the Coffield Unit.

He said he decided to climb the fence at Johnson County during an exercise period, because he feared he would be pinned with the Colleyville murder and possibly get the death sentence.

"I just got to thinking about all that Boggs said and what the Texas Rangers said. Boggs said I was dead," he said.

From the top of the scaled fence, he could see a guard with a shotgun looking in his direction, he said. "I don't know why he didn't shoot me. ... I really believe Boggs wanted me to escape."

Foote said he ran through downtown Cleburne and across U.S. Highway 67 until he reached a rural area near State Highway 174.

Texans bucking law to buckle up

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans say they're too fat, too feeble, too short, too buxom, too dressed up and too independent to buckle up.

The mandatory seat belt law does not go into effect until Sept. 1, but the excuses already are pouring in to the Senate sponsor of the measure approved this year.

"The reason I am unhappy is that I am five feet tall and when I drive or am a passenger in a vehicle with that horrible shoulder harness it comes right across my neck," one women said in a letter to Sen. Ted. Lyon, D-Mesquite.

She said the belt could choke her to death.

"I happen to have rheumatoid arthritis and can't handle the seat belts," another woman told Lyon.

A similar complaint turned up in a letter to the editor of the Austin American-Statesman.

"My body is in constant pain, especially in my hands and shoulders. I am against this law, which adds to my discomfort," wrote Julie Rios of Austin. "If we're going to die in an accident it is because the Lord has decided it is our time."

Lyon said he also has fielded complaints and excuses by telephone. "I would term them creative," he said of some of the calls.

"One man called me and discussed the fact his wife can't wear the seat belt because her breasts are too large," Lyon said. "He was very serious. We told him we thought the seat belt would not be appropriate to wear around that particular area."

Lyon told the man his wife's situation might fall under the medical exemption rule, assuming a physician would certify that she is medically unfit to comply with the law.

John Davis enters 3rd year of study

DAVENPORT, Iowa–John F. Davis of Snyder, a junior at Palmer College of Chiropractic, has entered the clinical portion of his chiropractic education.

During the next year, he will give chiropractic care under the supervision of a staff doctor on an out-patient basis in the Palmer Public Clinic. The clinic sees around 250,000 patients annually.

Davis will, for the next year, participate in this intensive clinic experience, and will receive his doctor of chiropractic degree only after satisifying highest qualitative and quantitative standards. During this time, he will also pursue a full academic course of classroom study.
