U.N. team heads for Iraq

Christopher warns military action is possible

■ Weapons inspectors to seal missile testing equipment at two sites south of Baghdad.

Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — U.N. weapons inspectors headed for Iraq today amid American warnings that military action against Baghdad was "entirely possible" if it refused to cooperate with the United Nations.

The U.N. team is headed south of Baghdad to seal missile-testing equipment at two test sites that are the focus of the latest standoff with the United Nations.

Iraq has refused to allow the United Nations to install surveillance cameras at the sites, and has given no indication of whether it will allow them to be sealed until some agreement on the cameras is reached.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Friday that if Iraq did not yield, the next step would be for the United Nations to demand that Baghdad destroy the facilities.

"If that's not done, then the United Nations will have to react," Christopher said on CNN's "Evans and Novak."

"The use of force is entirely possible," he said.

The United States fired a barrage of missiles at Iraqi intelligence headquarters in Baghdad on June 27, saying it was in retaliation for an alleged Iraqi plot to kill former President Bush during his visit to Kuwait in April. Iraq has denied any role in an assassination conspiracy.

He was given cardiopulmonary resuscitation by jail officials and transported to the hospital. Gonzales was officially released from jail custody Tuesday after his sentence was finished.

AUSTIN — A young black bear who likely came from a range along the Rio Grande has been spotted near Kerrville, according to two Texas Parks and Wildlife Department employees. Vernon Hodges and Bobby Wienecke last saw the bear crossing a road near Mountain Home, about 20 miles northwest of Kerrville. Some have speculated that the bear apparently is following a primeval urge to find a female companion. Rick Taylor, Parks and Wildlife bear expert, said the bear is probably a juvenile that was run off by its mother and was in search of food.

President hails future trade talks with Japan

TOKYO (AP) — President Clinton hailed a "basic bargain" for future trade talks with Japan and pledged continued cooperation with Russia's Boris Yeltsin today in a fast-paced postscript to a seven-nation summit aimed at reviving the world economy.

The trade agreement, worked out during all-night talks by U.S. and Japanese negotiators, provides a blueprint of principles governing future trade talks designed to reduce Japan's nearly $50 billion annual trade surplus. Clinton praised the agreement with Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa.

In his burst of post-summit diplomacy, Clinton also held talks with President Yeltsin, who renewed a call for the dismantling of Cold War era trade barriers.

Yeltsin said the restrictions unfairly discriminate against his country, and Clinton reiterated his commitment from their spring Vancouver summit to work with Congress to get the laws

Police think north Midland, Odessa heists are connected

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Midland police believe there is a connection between a string of burglaries in north Midland and several heists in Odessa.

Residents of several subdivisions in north Midland — including Saddle Club South and Crestgate — have reported 15 burglaries in the last month, police said. The culprit or culprits have stolen mostly expensive jewelry, including rings, watches, necklaces and bracelets.

"The composite we have assembled fits the description of the guy they have seen at the Odessa crimes," said Lt. David Wilks. "It also matches the description of a man who pulled an armed robbery at a local 7-Eleven a couple weeks back."

The man is described as 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds and muscular. He also has a "marine style" haircut and has been spotted wearing a white T-shirt and white shorts.

"It appears that most of the time he hits these homes between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m., while everyone is at work," Wilks said.

Police, who are trying to determine if the man is acting alone, are not limiting the investigation to the lone suspect.

"There are a lot of problems with this case. For one, we have several juveniles operating in the area, small time stuff and we have caught some," Wilks said. "But we are trying to sort those crimes out from the jewelry thefts. The man we have a composite on is an adult, we believe."

Health officials in Howard County Friday reported the possible existence of the rodent-borne virus that has killed at least a dozen people in the Southwestern United States.

State health officials are investigating the report, along with 15 other Texas cases.

Officials at Scenic Mountain Medical Center in Big Spring and the Veteran Administration hospital in Howard County said Friday night that they were not aware of the Howard County report.

Texas Commissioner of Health Dr. David Smith said the 16 reports have come from doctors in 12 counties all over the state who have observed patients with symptoms that fit the mysterious illness known as hantavirus.

Clinic has warped agenda, author says

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Amy Sosa attends Friday evening's rally sponsored by Concerned Citizens of the Permian Basin. Speakers were critical of Planned Parenthood's intentions to bring abortion services to the basin.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Minutes after the closing of Planned Parenthood of West Texas' open house, pro-life advocates gathered on the Midland County Courthouse steps to admire author George Grant and listen to his views about the health clinic.

Grant — the author of 29 books, including "Grand Illusions: The Legacy of Planned Parenthood" — said Planned Parenthood has good intentions, but a warped political and social agenda.

"The simple fact is you don't go around killing people. People have a God-given right to live and we shouldn't have the right to tell other people how or if they can live," Grant said.

Grant, 39, said he is against Planned Parenthood's intention to offer abortion services in Midland. He said he is against abortion in all circumstances — including rape and incest.

"I'm a Christian. Two wrongs don't make a right. If my daughter is raped — and I abhor that notion — I still don't think it makes sense to kill that baby. That is only adding to the problem," Grant said. "Besides, the number of rapes that result in a conception is negligible."

He argued that some of Texas' best citizens are the products of rape — including evangelist James Robison.

Emory Mansour, spokeswoman for Concerned Citizens of the Permian Basin, said Planned Parenthood's efforts to bring abortion services to Midland will be detrimental.

"It's been shown that promiscuity increases among teen-agers — more sex diseases and AIDS," she said. "And we simply don't want to see children killed."

She said that she could "compromise" her stance if a family member was raped.

Jane Hellinghausen, executive director of Planned Parenthood, said Grant's book is full of misconceptions.

"I think it's packed with blatant lies, to be honest. They allege that we try to sell women abortions," she said. "But Planned Parenthood does more than anyone to reduce the need for abortions. He has declined to mention that."

Grant said Planned Parenthood is a "counter-productive" agency and challenged the organization to point out falsehoods in his book. He said the book is packed with footnotes documenting his research.

Hellinghausen said Grant's interpretation of his research is misleading.

"He has twisted the words of others and taken them out of context. We're in the woman's reproductive health care business, not the abortion business," she said. "In his effort to pursue his agenda, he's willing to lie and deceive the public. I think that people are smart enough to see through that."

Planned Parenthood of West Texas hopes to begin offering abortions locally by the end of the year.

But Beverly Ray, a nurse epidemiologist with the TDH, said, "Most of the reports are not patients that we suspect will be positive for the virus. But we are taking them all very seriously and investigating all of them."

This week the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta found hantavirus antibodies in the blood of the 58-year-old nurse from Zavalla, who died last month. The CDC still wants to test tissue samples before declaring hers a definite hantavirus death, but said Thursday it probably was.

"It's strong enough (evidence) that we felt it was important to make clinicians aware that this illness may be occurring in other geographic areas," said Dr. Ruth Berkelman, deputy director of CDC's Center for Infectious Diseases.

Of the 16 cases being investigated in Texas, Smith said, "When possible, blood and tissue samples from patients have been sent for testing to CDC in Atlanta. Those test results are still incomplete."

Ms. Ray said the reports now being investigated were being gathered even before the death of the East Texas woman.

"We expect maybe sporadic cases, but we don't expect the outbreak situation that is going on in the Four Corners area," Ms. Ray said.

Until now, the rare illness had been found only in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah. Most cases were clustered where those states meet, called the Four Corners.

SUMMIT: Yeltsin renews call to dismantle trade barriers

repealed.

Of the growing U.S.-Japanese friction, Clinton said: "These trading disputes have been corrosive."

Accompanied by Miyazawa at a news conference, Clinton said, "It is essential that we put this relationship on a basis of mutual respect and mutual responsibility."

He also expressed hopes that it would get U.S.-Japanese relations back on track. In an emotional moment, Clinton praised the "wise" efforts of Miyazawa, whose eyes filled with tears.

Miyazawa, whose government lost a vote of confidence last month, is expected to lose his job after parliamentary elections July 18.

Clinton also said that he and Yeltsin had agreed to push ahead "intensely and immediately" with discussions surrounding their differences over Russian sales of military technology to Libya and India.

Clinton acknowledged differences but hailed the overall state of the U.S.-Russian relationship.

"I think we have forged a remarkable partnership," he said.

The agreement on the U.S.-Japanese trade framework came on the morning after Clinton, Miyazawa and other world leaders wrapped up their annual talks on global economic issues.

"There was more energy and more zip in it than I thought there would be," Clinton said of the annual meeting, his first overseas journey as president.

The summit partners acknowledged the reality of economic doldrums around the globe.

Beyond vague promises for better coordination, the leaders of the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy committed themselves to no specific actions.

For the fourth year in a row, they vowed to wrap up by year's end the current round of world trade talks, designed to lower trade barriers everywhere and give the entire worldwide economy a lift. Officials insisted this year's target was realistic because of negotiating progress this week in Tokyo.

Clinton and Miyazawa had dined on sushi Friday night, then left their aides to work through the night on the trade issues that have divided the two nations for years.

Clinton had earlier failed to persuade Japan and Germany, then world's other two economic superpowers, to adopt more stimulative polices — more government spending in Japan and faster interest rate cuts in Germany.

Still, he pronounced the summit talks "extremely successful."

"We have a long way to go to restore growth to the world economy," he said. But he also concluded, "This summit produced real substantive benefits for the people who sent these leaders here.

His partners agreed, more or less.

"To be frank, the results are better than I expected," said British Prime Minister John Major.

Italian Premier Carlo Ciampi said "The summit has given a message of confidence." But he added: "You cannot expect that these summits resolve the world's problems."

Clinton left for South Korea after the final meeting with Yeltsin, who had reason to be satisfied. The summit partners, under U.S. pressure, promised $3 billion to help Russia transfer large state-owned industries to private hands and praised Yeltsin for the progress he reported in political and market reforms.

Yeltsin also made it clear that he wants a seat for Moscow around the cherrywood table where the leaders gathered. Sooner or later, he said, the Group of Seven would become the Group of Eight — "Time is on our side."

The summit venue was awkward for Yeltsin, who has been putting off action on a lingering territorial dispute with Japan — and has irked the Japanese by abruptly canceling two planned visits.

With Miyazawa sitting beside him, Yeltsin said the question of four islands seized by the Soviets after World War II would be taken up at a visit in October.

Neighborhood groups in the targeted areas have met several times to determine what they can do to stop the crimes, police said.

Police officials claim home burglaries are on the rise, due primarily to the increase in juvenile offenses.

TEAM: U.S. issues warning

(From 1A)

Iraq is required to destroy its weapons of mass destruction under the 1991 cease-fire agreement that ended the Persian Gulf War. The United Nations, charged with carrying out the accord, wants to put cameras at the missile sites to ensure that Iraq does not try to develop long-range missiles.

Iraq says that before any cameras are placed at the missile sites, it wants a wide-ranging discussion of its cease-fire obligations and the scope of future monitoring.

On Friday, U.N. surveillance aircraft spotted technicians dismantling some equipment at the two test sites, the chief U.N. weapons inspector said.

The inspectors could not tell what equipment was being dismantled, Rolf Ekeus, chairman of the U.N. special commission in charge of eliminating Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, said in New York.

Ekeus said, however, that Iraq notified the commission in advance that it would remove some items.

"In any event, we are not that concerned about what they might or might not remove because we have an inventory list of equipment at both sites," Ekeus said.

A team of U.N. inspectors left Iraq on Monday after Baghdad refused to permit installation of surveillance cameras at the two sites, Yawm al-Azim and Al-Rafah, which are about 45 miles south of the capital.

Iraq had used Yawm al-Azim and al-Rafah to test the long-range Scud missiles it fired against Israel and Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War. Of late it has been carrying out tests on short-range missiles with a maximum range of 90 miles, which are allowed.

The United Nations, attempting to avoid a confrontation, said Thursday that ballistics experts would seal equipment at the sites until a final decision was made on the cameras.

On Friday, President Clinton warned the United States was again losing patience with Baghdad.

"This action is a violation of the United Nations resolutions, and we're going to keep pushing on it," Clinton told reporters at a news conference in Tokyo. "Hopefully, the Iraqis will relent. If they don't, then we'll go back to the U.N. to the Security Council, and decide where to go from there."

PESSMISM: Poll finds pattern to attitude

said.

Ladd's evaluation of the industrial world's dour attitudes will be published next week in a Roper Center publication and in The American Enterprise, a magazine of the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank.

"There is survey evidence that Americans have long been anxious about the status of things that are important to them," Ladd said. In 1948, when his organization asked people whether the next few years would bring better or worse times or little change, nearly twice as many said "worse" than "better."

And in July, 1963, "before John F. Kennedy's assassination, when Camelot supposedly still reigned in the national psychology, just 34 percent of those polled by Gallup pronounced themselves "satisfied . . . with the honesty and standards of behavior of people in the country today."

In 377 polls between December 1985 and June, where Americans were asked to describe the state of the national economy, "there isn't a single instance when more people called the economy good to excellent than labeled it not-so-good to poor," Ladd said.

On one occasion, in April 1986, half of those who responded were positive and half negative. "In every other instance, the composite score has been negative — in boom times as well as during recession."

The pattern prevails among the democracies, Ladd found. In the United States in a February poll, 71 percent said they were dissatisfied with the way things were going at that time. In Canada, 78 percent were dissatisfied with their country's direction; in Great Brain, 63 percent thought their country was not going along broadly the right lines. Thumbs-down verdicts to similarly worded questions came from 61 percent of those questioned in France and 44 percent in Japan.

Ladd offered the theory that all those countries have similar communications systems "which make large doses of negative coverage a constant in the experiences of their citizenries."

Cap Rock members OK business ventures

Staff report

Cap Rock Electric members Thursday overwhelmingly gave a vote of approval to the cooperative's business ventures in the last year and re-elected all four incumbent directors during the co-op's annual meeting at the Chaparral Center of Midland College.

Re-elected to serve three-year terms were Roger Lange, Garden City, District 1; Sammie Buchanan, Big Spring, District 2; Alfred J. Schwartz, Garden City, District 7 and Rob Holman, Colorado City, District 11. The four were unopposed on the ballot after members in their districts failed to nominate any opposing candidates at district meetings.

Members also approved a resolution supporting the company's business activities, which in the last year included a merger with Hunt-Collin Electric Cooperative, the formation of a natural gas subsidiary and efforts to construct a new transmission line to allow it to buy cheaper wholesale power.

Nearly 5,000 ballots — representing nearly half the cooperative's membership — were cast by proxy and in person at the meeting, said Rusty Jones, Cap Rock Electric board chairman.

"When your directors are unopposed and 50 percent of the members vote, that's a pretty good indication that members believe the cooperative's doing a good job and there's a lot of faith and trust in the board and in management," Jones said.

"With the members' added show of support in approving the resolution, the board can continue to act confidently to take the steps necessary to ensure the co-op has the best power supply for the best price, along with the best service, in the future," Jones added.

More than 50 prizes were given away to those attending the meeting. Bill R. Terrett, of Colorado City, in the Lone Wolfe Division of Cap Rock, won the grand prize, a year's worth of free electricity up to $3,600. All Cap Rock members who sent in ballots by proxy or cast a ballot at the meeting were eligible to win the grand prize.

Mrs. Terrett, who was present at the meeting, said the prize was "good news" for the retired couple who now live on the lake. "I'm just so proud of this."

Houston Endowment grants $95,000 to UTPB

Staff report

The Houston Endowment, a private foundation, recently granted $95,000 to the University of Texas of the Permian Basin for use in creating scholarships and new student service programs.

UTPB president Charles Sorber said, "Student services are a priority. These grants will be of invaluable assistance in the University's efforts to support the student academically and financially."

"Over the years, the Houston Endowment has supported the university through scholarship gifts and program development," said Development Director Mike Barker. "We are pleased that they are continuing to support the university as it enters a new era of growth."

For the 1993-'94 school year, the Houston Endowment earmarked $25,000 for scholarship funding. The remaining $70,000 will go for special programs to be implemented this fall.

"The funding will assist us in our efforts to enhance student retention and to increase people's awareness of the importance of higher education," said Patricio Jaramillo, vice president of student services.

A retention officer will work with new university students to build skills needed for a successful college career, according to Jaramillo. "The retention officer's sole charge is to create programs that will enhance the participation of new students — through seminars and workshops on such things as study skills and time organizations.

Bilingual informative materials also are being developed, said Jarmamillo, "It is our goal to mail this information to every parent of an eighth-grader in the Permian Basin. The materials would include information on the university, course work requirements, cost of tuition. It's never too early to start planning a child's college education."

Houston Endownment Inc., established in 1937 by the late Jesse H. and Mary Gibbs Jones, supports a variety of charitable activities, including education, health, arts, cultural, civic and human service programs. The foundation is headquartered in Houston.

Will Rogers Jr. commits suicide, sheriff says

TUBAC, Ariz. (AP) — Will Rogers Jr., son of the famed humorist, apparently killed himself Friday by a gunshot to the head, the sheriff said.

Rogers, 82, had recently suffered strokes and heart problems and had undergone hip implant surgery, a family spokesman said from Claremore, Okla.

Santa Cruz County Sheriff Tony Estrada said Rogers' body was found by his car near this community 140 miles southeast of Phoenix.

Rogers, who had retired in Tubac, had been dead about an hour, Estrada said. A note was found but the sheriff wouldn't disclose its contents.

Rogers was born in New York on Oct. 20, 1911, while his famous father was starring in the Ziegfeld Follies. He was 24 when his father died in 1935 in an Alaskan air crash.

The younger Rogers, a Democrat, was elected to the House of Representatives from Southern California in 1942 but resigned during World War II and joined the Army, where he served as a tank commander. He was wounded and was decorated for heroism at the Battle of the Bulge.

After the war he won his party's Senate nomination but lost. He then managed the Southern California presidential campaign of Harry Truman.

Survivors include two sons, Clem and Carlos, both of Tucson; a brother, Jim Rogers of Bakersfield, Calif., and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

CHIPS: Implants don't irritate pets, doctor says

(From 1A)

regional computer. Eventually those computers will be linked together — a necessity since a hound with serious wanderlust can rove as far as 100 miles in a day.

"The whole object is not only to make it nationwide, but also Europe-wide and then universal," said Dr. William Hutchinson, a Scottish veterinarian working in Madrid.

The original purpose of the Madrid law — like statutes covering such cities as Barcelona, San Sebastian, Bilbao and Pamplona — was to monitor rabies vaccination rates and keep tabs on the pet population.

But the benefits for pets and their owners are more real than computerized public-health statistics.

The Madrid law went into effect six months ago, and 50,000 cats and dogs have already been "chipped" — a relatively painless process (humans say) in which the flea-sized capsule is injected into the animal's neck for about $40.

Officials expect 100,000 chips implanted by year's end, with the vast majority of owners choosing chips over tattoos, which cost more and require that the animal be anesthetized.

If a pooch goes wandering or is let loose by vacation-bound owners, a vet, dog-catcher or police officer can read its chip with an electronic scanner much the same way a supermarket cashier rings up a bag of dog food.

Take Blackie, a Belgian shepherd that indulges in four-day walkabouts when the spirit moves him.

Last month, a kennel employee found Blackie 12 miles from his suburban home. A quick scan and Blackie was soon back with his family.

Hutchinson said the chips do not infect or otherwise irritate the animal and will outlast even the most durable dog or cat. He hopes the chips will one day help trace such information as an animal's genealogy and health record.

Ranchers already use them to identify livestock in many countries, and European zoo keepers implant them in some animals.

The system is used on pets on a voluntary basis in Norway, Portugal, Great Britain, Belgium, Ireland and the Netherlands.

In the United States, a few community groups, shelters, and vets have started small voluntary programs in New York City and northern California.

Organizers of this year's Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race implanted chips in the hundreds of dogs that ran in the 1,000-mile trek across Alaska. The idea was to prevent illegal attempts to substitute dogs.

But unlike in Spain, there are several brands of chips in the United States and scanners don't read all of them, slowing the system's growth.

The Humane Society of the United States has held off endorsing microchipping of animals in hopes that American companies will develop a universal microchipping system, said spokeswoman Rachel Lamb.

Sheik's followers vow to avenge hangings

CAIRO (NYT) — The Islamic Group, whose spiritual guide is Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman, said Friday that it would retaliate for the hanging of seven Islamic militants on Thursday for attacks against foreign tourists and for conspiring to overthrow the government of President Hosni Mubarak.

"Mubarak is digging his own grave," a communique faxed to international news organizations read. "Every day of his black rule gives us new reasons to kill him, to destroy his regime and to take revenge."

Followers of the cleric, who is now in prison on immigration charges in the United States, were implicated in the bombing on Feb. 26 of the World Trade Center and in a plot to blow up several sites in New York and to assassinate public figures, including the Egyptian president.

The communique denounced the decision by special military courts to hand down 22 death sentences against militants. The government has executed nine men, and it is expected to put to death the remaining inmates on death row soon.

The executions are part of an effort by the Mubarak administration to break the back of the armed militant movement, which is fighting to create an Islamic state. They also signal a decision by the government to abandon its previous reluctance to execute people for crimes that are politically motivated.

Hundreds of suspects have been imprisoned in recent weeks. The government has conducted a number of armed raids on suspected hideouts, with more than 30 militants shot and killed; and military courts, often in a matter of days, have handed down tough sentences for those accused of belonging to radical organizations.

Government officials say that many of some 800 suspects recently rounded up will soon be indicted, which would lead to some of the largest trials yet against Muslim militants.

The Islamic Group has attacked police, Coptic Christians, intellectuals, government officials and foreign tourists in its armed campaign. In the last 18 months 180 people have died in violence related to militants. The nation's tourism industry, which once brought in over $2 billion a year, has been wiped out.

The government has asked for the extradition of the cleric .

Former Soviet republic to get U.N. observers

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — The Security Council voted unanimously Friday to establish the first U.N. peacekeeping operation in a former Soviet republic.

A resolution by the Council requests the secretary general to send a special envoy to the separatist region of Abkhazia, in Georgia, to help negotiate a cease-fire and prepare for the deployment of 50 observers.

The resolution calls for Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali to notify the council when conditions permit the deployment, which is estimated to cost $9 million for the first six months.

The civil war there began 11 months ago when Georgia's government sent thousands of troops to Abkhazia, a region in the northwest on the Black Sea that declared independence. Fighting has raged there ever since.

Abkhazia civil war, in Georgia, features worst fighting yet in former Soviet Union.

Last week, former Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze went to the besieged city of Sukhumi, Georgia's provincial capital, to assume personal command of its defense.

On Friday, rebel gunners turned their sights on Shevardnadze's villa with a barrage that included a shell that narrowly missed the leader.

Last Sunday, a shell fired by Abkhazian separatists landed near the former minister as he toured the region to rally his troops.

Shevardnadze remained in the city after the attack, but hundreds of panicked residents tried to push their way onto the first plane to fly out of the battered city in a week. The 65-year-old's presence there has garnered international attention.

Fighting broke out in August after he sent in troops to quash Abkhazia's declaration of independence. The conflict in the Black Sea resort in western Georgia has killed more than 2,000 people, including at least 500 in the past week.

In Geneva, the U.N. Department of Humanitarian Affairs said Georgia was desperately short of medical supplies. No aid flights have been able to land in Sukhumi since June 25.

Georgia's military said the estimated 2,000 Abkhazian troops around the city had targeted Shevardnadze, using the code name "white head" in radio messages describing his movements.

Israel might trade land for Jerusalem peace

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel might reverse longstanding policy and negotiate clearly delineated areas for autonomy in the occupied lands to keep Jerusalem off the Mideast peace talks agenda, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Friday.

Israel vows never to yield the eastern sector of Jerusalem captured from Jordan in 1967, but the Palestinians want that territory as the capital of a future state.

A U.S. compromise proposal for breaking the deadlocked talks would make Jerusalem an eventual subject for negotiation.

But Peres said he wants to keep it totally off the agenda for now. In exchange, he was ready to give in to a Palestinian request to delineate a politically autonomous area that would establish the framework for future Palestinian self-determination.

"Territorial jurisdiction laps the coasts of Jerusalem," Peres told reporters after meeting with a senior American diplomatic team. "The further back you go from Jerusalem, the better the chance for an agreement."

The remarks were significant because until now, Israel has only been willing to discuss limited self-rule that would give Palestinians control over administrative affairs such as a local police force and taxes and has nixed definite borders.

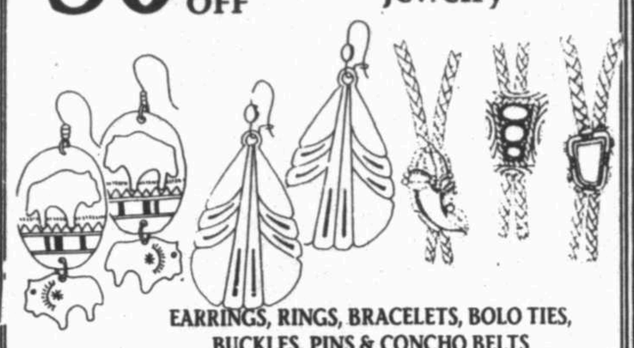

After meeting with Peres, a senior U.S. State Department delegation discussed Jerusalem and territorial delineations in a meeting with the Palestinian negotiators at the U.S. consulate in east Jerusalem.

The Jerusalem issue is the biggest stumbling block between the Israelis and the Palestinians.

The Palestinians rejected an earlier American draft agreement on principles because it did not mention Jerusalem.

People fear broken levees as more rain swells Mississippi

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Levees straining to contain the Mississippi River looked ready to pop Friday as unrelenting rainfall engorged the mighty river and its tributaries.

Fierce thunderstorms ravaged parts of Nebraska with 100 mph winds late Thursday that damaged homes and downed power lines.

In Missouri, a levee burst Thursday night in St. Charles County, between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, inundating Highway 94 and isolating the river village of Portage Des Sioux, Mo.

Seven thousand residents along the river north of St. Louis have been told to head for higher ground. Other levees in the region broke earlier, and more were feared to follow.

"We still have several levees that look like (people are) not going to be able to stop them from breaking," said St. Charles police Sgt. Rod Magrew.

Flooding along the Mississippi and its tributaries has caused 15 deaths in four states since late last month. Officials estimate crop and property damage at more than $1 billion.

Commercial river traffic, typically heavy during summer, has come to a halt. Flood waters have forced many bridges to close. Heavy rain, high water and washouts indefinitely stopped all Amtrak rail service through Iowa on Friday.

Thousands have been forced from their homes by flooding in Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri. Weather forecasts called for thunderstorms persisting into next week.

Board denies radical sheik's asylum request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman's bid for asylum in the United States was rejected Friday. But chances for further appeals made quick deportation unlikely for the man whose followers have been accused in alleged bombing plots.

The Board of Immigration Appeals upheld an immigration judge's March ruling denying the sheik's asylum application and saying authorities could send him out of the country.

The government would not be able to deport Abdel-Rahman for 72 hours after his attorneys were notified of the latest decision, said the Immigration and Naturalization Service. But it wasn't clear if the clock was to start running with the Justice Department's phone call to the lawyers or when they receive a copy of Friday's decision.

In any event, other appeals could stretch the case out for months or even years, said Arthur C. Helton of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights.

"We are exploring all legal avenues at this time," said one of the sheik's lawyers, Rohit Turkhud, in New York City. He said he and his partner, Barbara Nelson, had not yet received a copy of the decision.

Abdel-Rahman, the 55-year-old blind, diabetic cleric, is being held at a federal prison hospital in Otisville, N.Y.

In addition to the U.S. effort to deport him, he faces Egypt's request to the United States to extradite him to face charges in connection with anti-government riots in 1989.

The sheik's legal permanent resident status was lifted in March 1992 when he was found to have concealed on his application that he was a polygamist and had been convicted of falsifying a check. So the federal action against him is called an exclusion.

In an exclusion, authorities can hold him indefinitely and without cause and an appeal does not mean an automatic stay. That decision would be up to the first court to hear the case — a federal district court.

Abdel-Rahman had remained free after Immigration Judge Daniel Meisner in Newark, N.J., denied his application for asylum and ruled he could be excluded March 16, shortly after the Feb. 26 World Trade Center bombing.

Moving business to Mexico could be risky

By Nancy Mayer
Associated Press writer

MODESTO, Calif. — When the nation's second-largest vegetable packer set up shop in Mexico, it hoped to save money and boost profits.

But after five years of trying, Tanimura & Antle is giving up and coming home, complaining that low wages south of the border are more than offset by low productivity and high costs.

"We found that we were not competitive with our operations in the U.S.," said Rick Antle, president of the Salinas-based company. "We can even produce more efficiently for the Mexican market from the U.S."

He's not alone.

'We're there now, and we've seen the ugly side of it.'

— Craig West, Eckert Cold Storage Co.

"We're there now, and we've seen the ugly side of it," said Craig West of Eckert Cold Storage Co.

At Eckert's plant in Modesto, Loretta Burch plucks unripened bell peppers from a conveyor belt for $7.75 an hour, the top wage for an experienced line worker at most California processing plants.

Mexican wages are about one-eighth that rate, said Eckert, Pillsbury and other companies that do business there.

Some companies estimated worker productivity in their Mexican plants at one-fifth to four-fifths lower than in their California plants.

Religious customs in largely Roman Catholic Mexico, workers' feelings about the overall economy and the language barrier get in the way of efficiency, several managers and analysts said.

"On saints' birthdays, the whole country shuts down," West said. "And I don't mean that negatively. There's just a reverence for it. They take their celebrations very seriously."

Tomato grower-packer Robert Meyer said efficiency at his Mexican plants was about one-fifth that of his California plants two years ago, but appears to be on the rise. He blamed low production levels on discouraged workers trapped in a mostly stagnant economy.

"The workers weren't enthusiastic because there was no future," he said. "The economy was dead."

Still, Meyer has been successful overall, partly because he invests in his workers' education and personal lives. "The social relationship is very important," he said.

He has eight packing plants in Mexico so he can produce tomatoes, squash, cucumbers and bell peppers in winter. But it costs more overall to stay in the winter market.

East Coast heat wave kills seven

PHILADELPHIA, PA (AP) — Unremitting heat smothered states from Maine to Florida for the fourth straight day Friday, and forecasters said it would take several days for the East to shake the Big Bake. At least seven deaths were blamed on the hot weather.

"It doesn't look like the heat wave will break until next week," said John E. Jones Jr., deputy meteorologist for the Philadelphia bureau of the National Weather Service.

New York City's Central Park hit a scalding 101 degrees, and temperatures at Newark International Airport climbed into triple digits for the third day in a row. The New Jersey shore provided little relief — the Atlantic City airport hit a record 100 degrees.

The mercury hit 91 degrees in normally pleasant Portland, Maine, making it the third consecutive day of 90-degree or higher temperatures. And Atlanta was sweltering at 94.

Heat contributed to the deaths of five people in Philadelphia this week as authorities urged residents to take warnings about the sweltering weather seriously. All of the victims were over 60.

Jeff Moran, a spokesman for the city Health Department, said: "In most of these cases heat was a factor combined with an underlying heart disease."

The heat wave also was blamed for the death of a 40-year-old Brooklawn, N.J., man, who died Wednesday from abnormally high body temperatures after working outside all day picking up litter. Police in Keene, N.H., said the heat contributed to the death of an elderly woman found in her swimming pool.

Operation Rescue begins nationwide closure campaign

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Abortion rights defenders and police sucked in their breath Friday for the start of a 10-day, seven-state siege on clinics by abortion foes.

The anti-abortion group Operation Rescue planned rallies, prayer vigils, clinic blockades and protests at the homes of doctors who perform abortions.

Demonstrations got under way on the first day in suburban Philadelphia and Cleveland, but the "Cities of Refuge" campaign was to spread over the weekend.

At Mississippi Women's Medical Clinic in Jackson, city workers set up barricades that surround the building.

"We're taking all the possible scenarios and trying to cover the bases for each one," police Lt. Wayne Simpson said. "We're hoping for a lot of cooperation from the two groups."

Some 113 anti-abortion protesters were arrested in the Philadelphia suburb of Upland after they blocked three doors of the Reproductive Health & Counseling Center. They were taken to a nearby courthouse for processing.

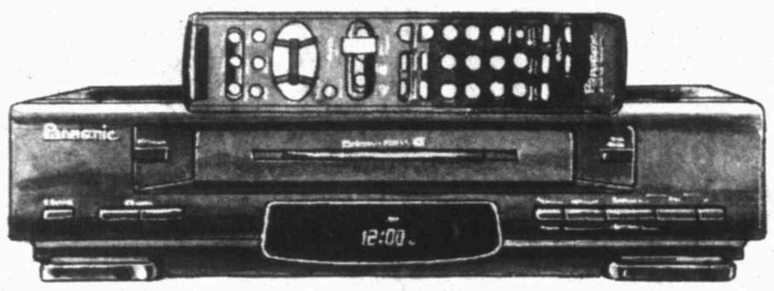

Abortion rights supporters outnumbered anti-abortion protesters at four Cleveland area clinics. The Rev. Joe Slovenec, Midwest coordinator for Operation Rescue, said demonstrators wouldn't block doors to clinics there.

Slovenec said at a news conference three doctors who perform abortions have been targeted for picketing at their homes and offices. He wouldn't identify them.

Other areas on the Operation Rescue list are Minneapolis, Dallas, San Jose, Calif., Jackson, Miss., and Melbourne, Fla.

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles said the state Department of Law Enforcement will be mobilized to help police deal with any violence.

JACKSON, Miss. — Friday's game between the Midland Angels and Jackson Generals was postponed due to a brief, yet heavy downpour that put Smith-Wills Stadium under water.

Friday's game will be made up as part of a doubleheader that is scheduled for a 6 p.m. start today.

Chance Gledhill (4-9) will start for Midland in the first game against Doug Krtchen (4-7), while David Holdridge (5-6, 5-0 in last nine starts) will start for the Angels in the nightcap against Jim Brewske (9-5).

Canseco surgery

ARLINGTON — Texas Rangers outfielder Jose Canseco underwent surgery on his right elbow Friday in what doctors termed a successful procedure.

The surgery was performed in Los Angeles by Dr. Frank Jobe of the Kerlan-Jobe Orthopedic Clinic and Dr. John Conway, the Rangers' orthopedic consultant from Fort Worth.

The 90-minute procedure involved removing a tendon from Canseco's right forearm to use as a graft to reconstruct a torn ligament.

His arm will be in a splint for about one week, before he begins rehabilitation. He's out the rest of the season, but should be ready for spring training, according to a prepared statement from the Rangers.

Jobe, the Los Angeles Dodgers' team doctor, performed a similar operation on Tommy John in 1974. It revived the pitcher's career.

Rockies sales up

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Rockies lead the major leagues in merchandise sales, ending the Chicago White Sox's two-year reign.

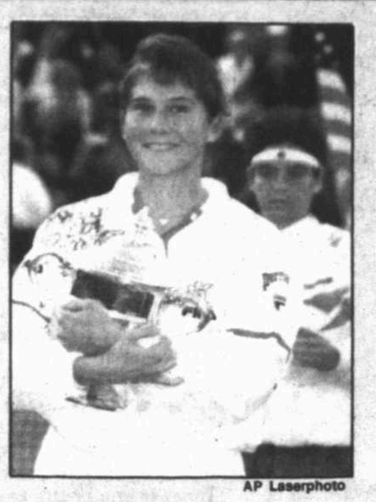

Christopher Jones, manager of licensing information systems for Major League Baseball Properties, theorizes that a team's colors attract buyers, and consumers like the Rockies' black-and-purple scheme.

Royalties from merchandise sales are distributed evenly among the 28 big league teams, so the Rockies do not benefit directly from their success.

But John McHale Jr., vice president of baseball operations for the Rockies, say the remarkable sales create valuable exposure for the team and the state.

Seles is still pained

Associated Press

More than two months after being stabbed in the back, Monica Seles still can't hit a tennis ball and might not be able to defend the U.S. Open title she has won the past two years.

"Doctors have told me there's just no way to know," her agent, Stephanie Tolleson, said Friday. "She's continuing her rehabilitation, and there's no real effective way to anticipate when she'll be ready to play again."

In a statement released through a publicist Thursday, Seles said: "I wish I could play right now. But the rehabilitation is a slow process, and I have not yet been able to hit the ball, let alone play tennis."

Seles, undergoing rehabilitation at the Steadman Hawkins Clinic in Vail, Colo., said she would be unable to play in a tournament at Stratton Mountain, Vt., July 26-Aug. 1. The Open will be at New York Aug. 30-Sept. 12.

A statement released jointly on Friday by Drs. Richard Steadman and Richard Hawkins said, "Her shoulder continues to improve regarding motion and strength, and her improvement is monitored on a daily basis."

While reiterating they have never put Seles on a timetable, the doctors said Seles was working hard to rehabilitate her shoulder, which, "as it reaches full recovery, will let her know when she will be able to return to competition."

Reports persist that Seles' injury is more severe than originally thought.

In May, tennis officials denied there was any truth to rumors in Paris that Seles might never play again. And late last month, Seles and Tolleson denied reports in a German magazine that Seles would be out of action for the rest of the year.

"The report is completely inaccurate," Tolleson said. "No decisions have been made regarding

Who is this guy?

■ In the space of four months, the Houston Astros' Darryl Kile has gone from struggling nobody to struggling with success.

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Four months ago, Darryl Kile was struggling to make the Houston Astros. Now he's struggling to cope with All-Star success.

"I'm just nervous and a little intimidated," said Kile, the Astros' only representative in Tuesday's All-Star game. "I still think I'm in the twilight zone. Hopefully I won't embarrass the team when I'm out there."

Kile, the fifth starter on a staff that includes big-money free agents Doug Drabek and Greg Swindell, has been the team's most consistent pitcher.

Despite missing several starts early in the season because of his spot in the rotation and several off-days, Kile is 10-1 with a 2.26 ERA. That includes Thursday night's 10-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

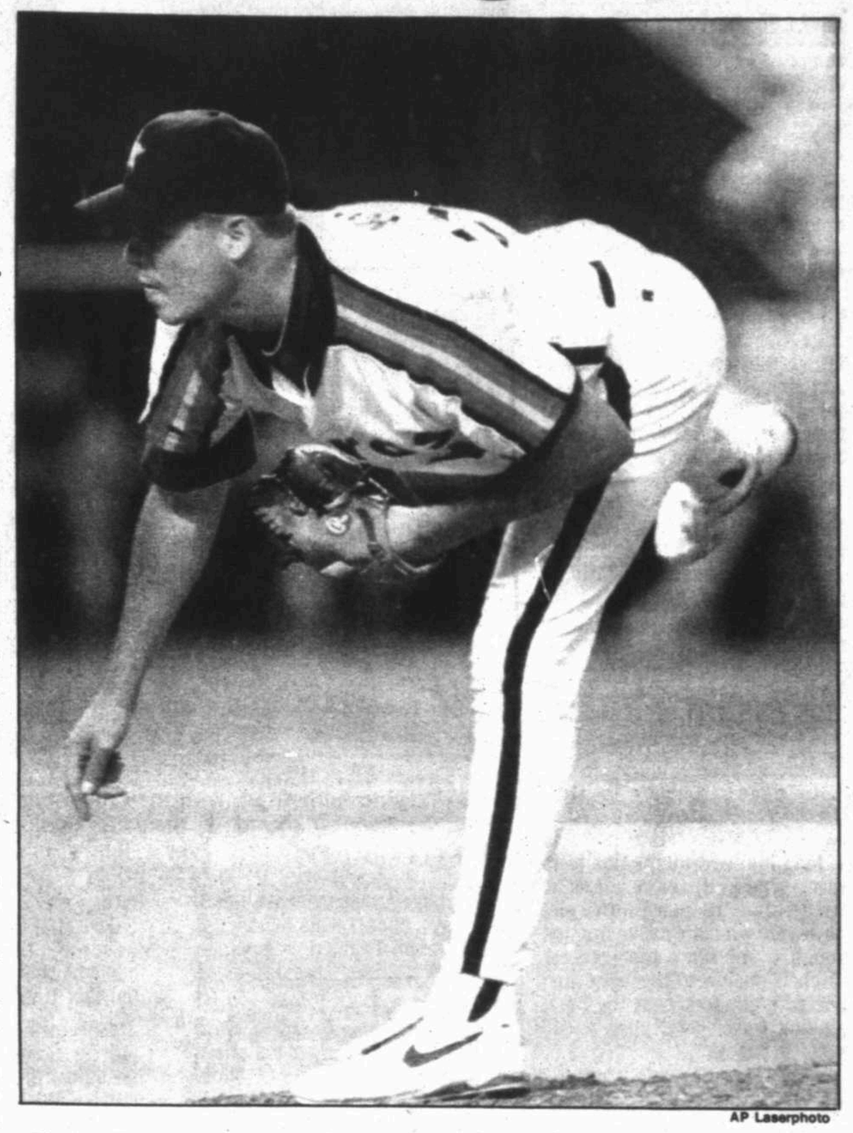

Kile's breakthrough season is a stark turnaround from his first two years in the major leagues, when he had trouble throwing strikes and compiled a 12-21 record.

He went to training camp this year just to contend for a spot, any spot, on the roster. He pitched miserably. Then he had to leave the team when his father died of a heart attack at age 44.

At the end of spring training, the Astros had to choose between Kile and Jason Grimsley.

"Jason had the best spring and would have made the team," Astros manager Art Howe said. "We felt (Kile) could

Trio tries for Tech AD post

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — One month after T. Jones announced his resignation as Texas Tech athletic director, three men wanting the job confirmed that they have applied.

A host of others say they are pondering their own chances.

University of North Texas ticket manager Joe Barnes, Texas-El Paso associate director of athletics John Giannoni and Central Missouri State athletic director Jerry Hughes are the first reported applicants to take over for T. Jones on Aug. 31.

Jones held the job since 1985.

"I'm very interested in a school like Texas Tech," Hughes said. "It's a good place, in a good league and a Division I school. I think that would be a good challenge and a good experience."

Hughes has worked at Central Missouri State since 1983.

A few awards for those eloquent few

Ladies and gentlemen, allow me a few moments to introduce the winners of the first ever (and last ever) Speakies. The Speakies are awarded on what will surely prove to be a one-time only basis, and will go to people who have presently or formerly lived and worked in or around the Permian Basin, and who have throughout the last five years provided some memorable quotes to this fine publication.

This is, of course, the sports division. We'll have no Zsa Zsa Gabor quotes here.

First, in this bidness, the word "quote" is used in two contexts, both times as a noun. "He's a good quote" explains a person who provides lively post-game give and take. "That's a good/bad quote" describes the actual usage of verbiage by a good or bad quote.

More often than not in this business, we writers are the recipients of horrifically bad post-game quotes (that, truth be told, often times comes as a result of badly worded questions). Upon hearing the mundane words spilling forth from the Hero of the Hour, we writers continue taking notes as if we were truly amazed at what this person has to say.

That said, may we have the envelopes ...

"He's a Good/Bad Quote" Division

Best Quote: 1. Midland College Chaparral head basketball coach Steve Green. Has the unique ability to take a bad situation and make it into a good one with his post-game banter. One does have to know how to edit when writing certain post-game thoughts from Mr. Green, though. To his credit, some of the good coach's best and funniest thoughts come after losses.

2. Former Midland Angel John Jackson. This guy we were sorry to see go. He would practically search out a scribe following a game to let his feelings be known. Very literate, but a distant second to Green.

3. Former Angel manager Max Oliveras. Not that we ever were able to use anything the man said, this being a family newspaper and all.

Worst Quote: 1. Former Midland College head basketball coach Reggie Franklin. All those "No comments" there toward the end helped catapult him to the top spot.

2. Former Midland High head coach Doug McCutchen. A fine, fine man who would give you the shirt off his back, but he did make Tam Hollingshead look like Muhammed Ali.

3. Tam Hollingshead, Odessa Permian football coach. The Human Press Release. If the White House ever has another opening for a Marlin Fitzwater-type press spokesman, he's your man.

Most Thought-Out Quote: Odessa College basketball coach Dennis Helms, who thinks through all of his answers and then comes up with quotes that, while not colorful, are at least insightful.

Best West Texas Flavored Quote: Tim Whalen, interim MISD athletic director, and former MHS baseball coach. He'll come back in another life as a Cowboy Poet.

Best West Texas Flavored Quote (in a league all his own): Midland Lee football coach Earl Miller. Speaking in his own language (known as "Earl-Talk"), nobody alive puts things quite the way Miller does.

"That's a Good/Bad Quote" Division

Most Useless, Meaningless Quote Ever:

(Tie) 1. "We just have to go out there and play our game," and "We just have to take it one game at a time." Unbelievable how many times during the course of a sports season a writer hears this one. What on earth do these statements mean?

Best Quote Ever: This from an Anonymous Visiting Coach who was in Midland for another game that looked like a win, but slipped away into a loss. After the game, the Anonymous Visiting Coach said he told his players in the locker room, "I wish the season would end so I could hurry up and forget all of you. If it doesn't end soon, I'm gonna buy a gun and shoot all of you and they're gonna throw me in jail for murder and then I'll have to remember you the rest of my life."

Rodriguez holds lead at Open

Associated Press

DENVER — Chi Chi Rodriguez withstood a birdie flourish by Isao Aoki and maintained a one-stroke lead Friday at the midway point of the U.S. Senior Open.

While most of the first-round contenders were faltering, Rodriguez had a workmanlike round of 1-under-par 70 that included only one bogey, giving him a 36-hole total of 5-under 137.

■ U.S. Senior Open

Aoki birdied four of five holes on the back side — at one point tying Rodriguez for the lead — but fell back with a bogey at No. 18 when he missed the green and chipped long.

Aoki's 68, which featured six birdies, put him at 138.

Two shots further back was Miller Barber, who had his second straight 70 for a 2-under total of 140. Barber, at 62 bidding to become the oldest player ever to win the Senior Open, hit 16 greens in a bogey-free round.

Jack Nicklaus, just one shot behind Rodriguez as the day began, slipped to a 73 and led a group at 141. Dale Douglass, Simon Hobday, Kermit Zarley and Rocky Thompson also were at that figure.

Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Tommy Aaron and Larry Ziegler were at even-par 142, and Ray Floyd was among those at 143.

Rodriguez, 4-under to start the day, had consecutive birdies on the fifth and sixth holes to extend his lead momentarily to three shots. He came back to the field at the par-4 14th hole, however, when he drove into the rough, missed the green, pitched poorly to the edge and putted eight feet past the hole, sinking the second putt to salvage a bogey.

"That was a good bogey," Rodriguez said. "I shot what I deserved today. I hit good shots when I had to, and I made the putts I needed to make. I really didn't have many chances for birdies."

Aoki, through an interpreter, said he was "quite happy with the way I played. I made many birdies."

Besides his six birdies, he had three bogeys, but he wasn't concerned about inconsistency. "You cannot avoid bogeys on this golf course," the Japanese star said.

Cherry Hills Country Club took its toll on many of the other first-round challengers. Nicklaus gave two strokes back with a pair of bogeys on his first eight holes.

Trevino, Jim Colbert and Bob Murphy, who triple-bogeyed the 17th hole when he encountered rough and water, also backed up. Ziegler got to 5-under after six holes but gave all five back by the end of the round, including a double bogey at the par-3 12th.

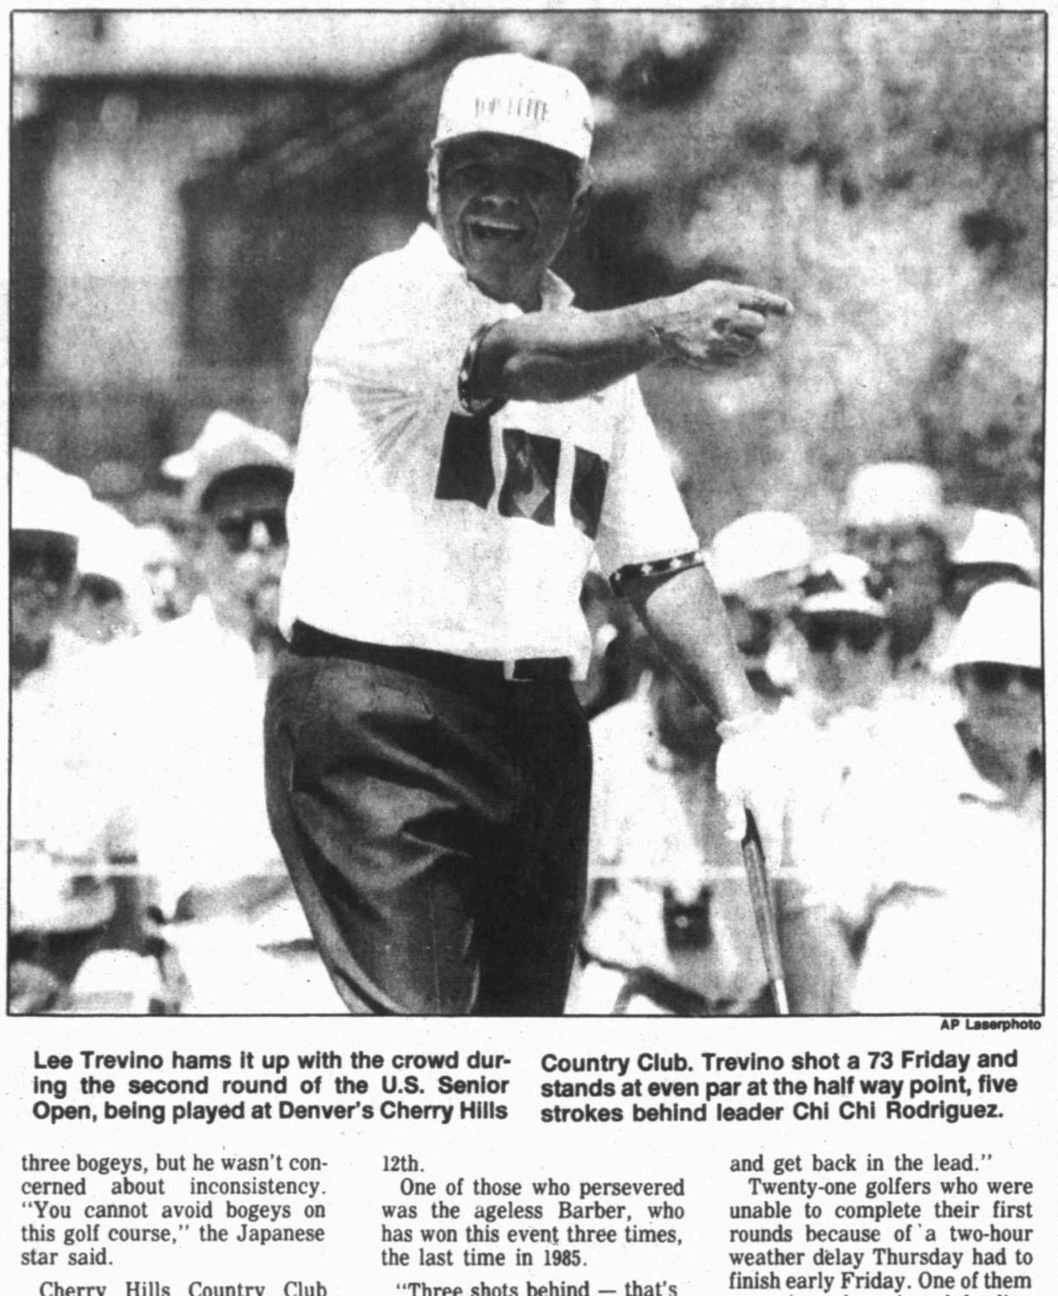

One of those who persevered was the ageless Barber, who has won this event three times, the last time in 1985.

"Three shots behind — that's nothing to worry about," Barber said. "If I can just hold together and not fall apart, we might give them a thrill on Sunday. I'm probably playing as good now as I've played all year."

Nicklaus said he "made an 8-footer on the 15th hole and that was it. I shot 73 but I made only one birdie. That's not a great score, but it puts me in position to play a good round tomorrow and get back in the lead."

Twenty-one golfers who were unable to complete their first rounds because of a two-hour weather delay Thursday had to finish early Friday. One of them was cigar-chomping defending champion Larry Laoretti, who had played 17 holes when the first round was called by darkness. He began Friday by hitting his drive on No. 18 out of bounds and taking a triple-bogey seven for a 75. He tacked on another 75 in his second round.

Also at 150 was Arnold Palmer, who won his only U.S. Open on this course in 1960. That score was sufficient to make the cut.

Italy's Cipollini regains lead at Tour de France

Associated Press

AMIENS, France — Mario Cipollini of Italy regained the lead in the Tour de France Friday by finishing second in the sixth stage, won by Johan Bruyneel of Belgium with a record speed.

It was the shortest stage in this year's Tour, and Bruyneel was timed in 3 hours, 11 minutes, 50 seconds, an average of 30.7 mph.

That was better than the 30.4 mph accomplished in 1988 on the shortest stage in Tour de France history, 24 miles from Tarbes to Pau. Friday's stage, from Evreux to Amiens, was 98 miles.

Bruyneel broke away in the final 12½ miles and won by 13 seconds over Cipollini.

Cipollini gained 12 bonus seconds for his runner-up finish and got another two in an intermediate sprint in overcoming the two-second advantage that Belgium's Wilfried Nelissen had after Thursday's fifth stage.

Nelissen and Cipollini have been trading the lead since Sunday's first stage. Now Cipollini leads by 12 seconds, with Bruyneel third, 30 seconds behind.

Cipollini almost lost second place to hard-charging Djamolidine Abdoujaparov of Uzbekistan. Cipollini raised his arms early and just edged his wheel across the line ahead of Abdoujaparov.

"I thought I won the stage," Cipollini said. "But in raising my arms, I noticed the pink jersey of Bruyneel. Then I knew he had taken it. The most important is to find myself again in yellow."

PGA: Heat stifling at Virginia course

(From 1B)

At 134 were Jim Gallagher Jr., Blaine McCallister, Mark McCumber, Jeff Cook and Tom Byrum, whose career-best 62 tied the course record held by four other players. McCallister had a 64, McCumber a 65, Cook a 66 and Gallagher a 68.

For the second straight day, temperatures hovering near 100 degrees were accompanied by high humidity levels, turning the tournament into a survival test for some.

Dan Halldorson, exhibiting signs of heat exhaustion, withdrew after 15 holes and was driven to the first-aid trailer for treatment.

Players reported drinking as much as two 12-ounce bottles of liquids per hole, and many consumed bananas or other fruits at regular intervals.

The heavy nylon bibs caddies are usually required to wear were scrapped for the day.

Gallagher said his caddy even resorted to a psychological ploy in an attempt to deal with the heat.

"He kept walking around saying, 'I'm in Steamboat Springs, I'm in Steamboat Springs,' " Gallagher said.

While light-colored, lightweight clothing was the order of the day, Gallagher played in a dark purple shirt, which he was able to wring out after his round.

"I don't think this shirt gets this wet in the washing machine," he said.

Ian Baker-Finch, after putting out on one hole, went to the side of the green, laid down on his back and pulled his baseball cap over his face for a brief rest. He wound up with a 68 but missed the cut, which was set at even-par 142.

At least Baker-Finch stuck around. Jodie Mudd, who was 4-over at the turn, told his playing partners he had had enough, shook hands with them and walked off the course. So did local qualifier Mike Moyers, who packed it in after taking a 10 on the par-5 15th that moved him to 25 over.

Adams, 39, is enjoying a resurgence after a number of lean years and several trips to the PGA Tour's qualifying school.

He won $173,069 last year, his best season ever, and his fourth-place finish at last week's Western Open pushed his 1993 winnings to $155,774.

KILE: Pitcher credits teammates with success

adapt better to coming out of the bullpen."

So that's how Kile made the team, as a No. 5 starter on a team that figured to use a four-man rotation through the first month of the season.

He waited patiently, making the most of each opportunity. While Drabek and Swindell floundered, Kile collected victories.

Once Howe realized what he had, he made sure Kile got a regular start. Now Kile is an All-Star, and he can hardly believe it.

"I'm nervous. I'll have to ask the veterans how to act," he said.

"Darryl overcame a lot of adversity," said first baseman Jeff Bagwell, who didn't make the National League All-Star team despite a .326 batting average. "He deserves to go."

Kile credits his teammates for his success.

"The way this team plays behind me and picks me up, my confidence has gotten stronger each game," he said. "If you look back, I'm sure they've picked me up more than I've picked up the team."

Whatever the case, Howe just hopes Kile keeps it up.

"I'd have to say he's among the best pitchers in the NL the way he's pitched the last two months," Howe said. "He's always had the arm. He just needed consistency."

SELES: Frustrations mount for top-ranked player

(From 1B)

the date of Monica's return to tournament play."

"My doctors and I have to see what happens in the next few weeks to determine if I will be able to play the U.S. Open," Seles said.

According to Tolleson, Seles' fans might have underestimated the seriousness of the injury, but neither her doctors nor Seles ever did.

"I think from the very beginning, the doctors and Monica said they had no idea how long it would take to recuperate," Tolleson said. "It's day to day, and it's a matter of rehabilitation. And that's what Monica has been doing, rehabbing. She's real dedicated but just not ready."

Seles was ranked No. 1 in the world when she was stabbed April 30 during a tournament at Hamburg, Germany. Later, the knife-wielding German said he was a Steffi Graf fan who wanted to knock Seles out of the No. 1 spot.

Since then, Graf has taken over the top ranking from Seles, who remains upbeat about her recovery in part because of an outpouring of fan letters.

"I have heard from people throughout the world," she said. "The messages are wonderful and range from other victims of senseless crimes who tell me how they are coping, to people who say they missed me at tournaments, to the general public with their kind wishes for my return to the game.

"I really appreciate the support I have received."

Tolleson, who has spoken frequently with Seles during her recuperation, said Seles is frustrated but not depressed.

"She wants to be out on the court, so that's obviously frustrating," Tolleson said. "But she's hanging in there and working very hard, trying to get healed so she can get back to playing."

If San Diego suffers so, too, will baseball

By Jim Murray
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Opinion

Listen to this:

"The ownership of the San Diego Padres is committed to building a strong and cohesive team, a team consisting of strong management and talented players with the desire to win.

"The San Diego Padres team was purchased during the 1990 season by a group of Southern California's most influential business leaders, men who are winners in their respective fields of expertise and are contributors to the community. The 15 partners, led by Chairman and Managing Partner Tom Werner, are committed to make the San Diego Padres contenders for years to come.

"There is one prime reason why this group of 15 owners have taken on the challenges involved in owning a major league team: They love baseball."

Well! To anyone conversant with the real situation, this must seem either like a cruel joke or a passage from "The Further Adventures of Alice In Wonderland." Actually, it's from the foreword to the 25th anniversary press guide of the San Diego Padres.

The last time we looked, the Padres' ownership had just traded away the core of the franchise. They had traded -- for a couple of minor league pitchers -- a player who came within a hair's breadth of becoming the first triple crown winner (batting average, home runs, runs batted in) in the league since 1937. As it was, he led in average, was third in home runs, and fifth in RBIs. They let Gary Sheffield, who will be a mega-star, go with a shrug.

But that's nothing. This is the management that granted free agency to Benito Santiago, widely conceded to be one of the best catching prospects to come along in some time. The Padres also unloaded Tony Fernandez, a .275 hitter (stratospheric for a shortstop) and generally perceived as the goldest glove in the franchise, if not the division.

None of these worthies had disappointed on the playing field. It was in the counting house that they became expendable. They were all making too much money. So was Craig Lefferts, a 13-9 pitcher whom they traded to Baltimore for the ever-loving player to be named later; Randy Myers, a relief pitcher with 38 saves whom they let go into free agency with a yawn.

How does all this square with the brave quotes in the team brochure? It doesn't. San Diego has abandoned ship and is bailing out the lifeboat in the hopes of keeping it afloat.

Front office actions illustrate the plight of the have-not owners of the national pastime, the small-market franchises that have to make do without the swollen local TV and radio contracts and commercial tie-ins that teams like the Yankees, Dodgers and Chicago Cubs have.

This is nothing new in baseball, this jettisoning of high-priced talent to keep the doors open. The legendary Connie Mack, usually held up as one of the saintlier legends of baseball, used to apply the wrecking ball periodically to championship teams he had built.

Mack used to argue that Philadelphia would become cloyed with victory, bored with excellence and cease supporting his clubs. He tore down the 1914 Philadelphia Athletics after they had won four pennants and three World Series in five years, selling off key players for --in those days -- big cash.

He did it again in 1932 after he had built up another juggernaut that had just won three pennants and two World Series in a row. It was the only team in baseball that could compete with the hallowed 1927 Yankees and even beat them.

But not when Mr. Mack got through with them. He dealt away Al Simmons, who had led the league in hitting the two previous years with .381 and .390 averages, who had hit 36 home runs and batted in 165 runs. He traded away Jimmy Dykes, the best third baseman in the game. He traded Jimmie Foxx, who had only hit 58 home runs one season, fourth-most in the history of the game. Only Roger Maris, with 61, and Babe Ruth, with 60 and 59, had more. Foxx was a lifetime .325 hitter who knocked in 169 runs one season.

Mr. Mack then got rid of Hall of Fame catcher Mickey Cochrane, who had hit .322 and called the best game in baseball. He sold Pitcher Lefty Grove, who had posted a 31-4 record and had a ball so fast it glowed on the way to the plate.

Imagine what these guys commanded on the open market. Connie Mack wasn't only saving those guys' salaries, he was selling them for the high dollar. That's what an antitrust exemption did for you. The reserve clause, the last stand of slavery in this country, was in full bloom. A player belonged to you in perpetuity. You sold him and you pocketed the cash.

So the problem becomes, did Connie Mack have to dismember his franchise? Or was good, old-fashioned American greed at work here?

In those days, revenue was almost all from ticket sales. Radio was in its infancy. TV was unknown. Even the concessions only gave a (small) percentage to the teams.

The Yankees at that time outdrew everybody. They began drawing a million fans in 1920, as soon as they got Babe Ruth.

But the Athletics drew respectably (for those times) -- 839,167 for their first World Series championship year, 1929, then 721,663, then 627,464.

Was Mack justified in jettisoning his superstars? Well, the Yankees outdrew him by 120,972 in '29, by 447,567 in '30 and by 284,973 in 1931. Not reassuring in light of the fact that the A's, not the Yankees, were winning the pennants those years.

Baseball had a strong commissioner in those days. But he stood idly by while owner Mack looted the franchise and shipped the best players in the game to the Yankees, the Red Sox, the White Sox and anyone else who could come up with the cash. It was scandalous but legal.

Today, baseball has no commissioner. But when Bowie Kuhn was commissioner, he stepped in and prevented Charlie Finley from dismantling a modern A's franchise in a fit of pique.

The rape of the Padres goes unchallenged and unchecked. Ownership claims it's only trying to balance its books. Baseball, a headless horseman, is powerless to stop it. San Diego suffers. Ultimately, so will the rest of baseball.

Although ticket sales are no longer the only -- or even the main --source of revenue for the grand old game, the Padres have certainly have not fared poorly in that department. They drew more than 2 million fans in 1985 and 1989. They drew 1,722,102 last season. That's not Poverty Row stuff.

The solution, of course, is revenue sharing. It works well for pro football and pro basketball. It's the reason Green Bay can compete on a level field economically with the metropolises of the NFL.

Baseball has to realize that it cannot continue to exist half filthy-rich and half broke. The St. Louis Browns never could compete with the Yankees and neither can the modern-day pinch-penny franchises. George Steinbrenner will crush them as Jake Ruppert did. Don't forget Ruppert got Ruth because the Red Sox owner was desperate for cash to back a Broadway show.

But it's easy to spend somebody else's money. The Yankee front office has to be convinced it's in its best interest to share its nut to keep competition alive.

The game not only needs a commissioner, it needs a Solomon. The Yankees have to understand that they need a viable league. They won't get $50 million a year in local revenue to play intra-squad games. The game needs an economic atmosphere in which the San Diego Padres can keep Gary Sheffield and there's no need for Connie Mack-type dispersal sales.

Rangers down slumping Jays

Associated Press

TORONTO — Rafael Palmeiro drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a single as the Texas Rangers beat the slumping Toronto Blue Jays 4-2 Friday night for their sixth victory in seven games.

■ AL Roundup

Despite losing eight of their last nine games, the first-place Blue Jays have maintained a slim lead in the AL East.

Roger Pavlik (5-4) gave up one run on six hits in 6 2-3 innings for the victory. Former Toronto stopper Tom Henke, the fourth Texas reliever, entered to a standing ovation and struck out Ed Sprague to end the eighth en route to his 16th save.

With no score in the sixth, Todd Stottlemyre (5-7) gave up a single to Julio Franco and Palmeiro's 16th homer. Palmeiro, who had three hits, extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a leadoff double in the fourth.

After Franco chased Stottlemyre with a walk to load the bases in the seventh, Palmeiro greeted reliever Al Leiter with a two-run single. Stottlemyre gave up four runs on seven hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Alfredo Griffin, who had two hits, chased Pavlik with a run-scoring double in the seventh, but Craig Lefferts relieved and got Devon White to fly out.

Twins 10, Brewers 6

MILWAUKEE — Dave Winfield continued to pound Milwaukee pitching with two singles, a double, a homer and three RBIs as the Minnesota Twins had 15 hits to beat the Brewers.

Kirby Puckett also drove in three runs and the Twins had four-run innings in the second and fourth to rout Jaime Navarro (5-6), who allowed nine hits and nine runs in three innings plus.

Winfield went 4-for-4 with a walk and is now 18-for-38 this season with four homers and 10 RBIs against the Brewers.

Milwaukee's Dave Nilsson had a two-run triple and two-run homer off Eddie Guardado, who lasted only 3 1-3 innings. Guardado's early depature gave Minnesota's staff its 83rd straight start without a complete game, tying a major league record set by the New York Yankees in 1991.

Carl Willis (2-0) pitched 3 2-3 innings, allowing four hits, as the Twins got even for a 15-3 loss Thursday night. Willis gave up homers to Kevin Reimer and B.J. Surhoff, Surhoff's first since July 17th of last season.

Shane Mack opened the first with a single, stole second and went to third on Nilsson's throwing error. Mack scored on Chuck Knoblauch's grounder and then Kent Hrbek, Winfield and Brian Harper hit two-out singles for 2-0 lead.

Tigers 10, Royals 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Eight of the first nine Detroit batters scored in the first inning, and the Tigers held on to beat the Kansas City Royals.

Detroit had six hits — all singles — and two walks in the first as Royals starter Chris Haney lasted just 1-3 of an inning. The Tigers scored seven runs off Haney, six of them earned, on five hits and two walks.

Haney (5-2) has given up 21 earned runs in his last 13 innings, a 5.57 ERA.

Detroit starter Mark Leiter did not fare much better and is winless in his last six games. Leiter went three innings, giving up four runs on nine hits.

Sean Bergman, the third Tigers pitcher, was credited with the win by the official scorer, his first major-league victory. He pitched 4 2-3 innings and was removed with one out in ninth after allowing an unearned run.

He allowed five hits, struck out three and walked two before Mike Henneman got the final two outs.

Tom Gordon shut down Detroit after relieving Haney in the first, striking out eight in 4 2-3 innings. Gordon retired the last 10 batters he faced before giving way to Frank DiPino, who gave up a two-out, two-run homer to Travis Fryman in the eighth, his 11th.

Orioles 15, White Sox 6

BALTIMORE — Chris Hoiles' three-run homer highlighted a seven-run sixth inning that propelled the Baltimore Orioles past the Chicago White Sox.

The Orioles, who rallied from a 3-0 deficit, closed within 2½ games of struggling first-place Toronto in the AL East.

Ben McDonald (5-8) allowed three runs in six-plus innings. McDonald had a 2.38 ERA over his previous 10 starts, but was 2-4 in that span mainly because of poor offensive support.

It appeared as if it would be more of the same until the sixth, when Baltimore used five hits, three walks and a Chicago error to pull out of a 3-1 hole. With one out, Harold Baines reached when Joey Cora couldn't handle his grounder to second. Cal Ripken then singled and Hoiles drove a 1-0 pitch from Rodney Bolton (1-5) into the left-field seats for his 17th homer.

After David Segui singled, Jeff Schwarz came in and struck out Brady Anderson but walked the next three batters, forcing in a run. Bobby Thigpen relieved and gave up an RBI single to Mike Devereaux and a two-run single to Baines.

Yankees 3, Angels 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Jimmy Key outpitched Mark Langston in a matchup of All-Star left-handers and Danny Tartabull hit a go-head homer in the eighth inning as the New York Yankees beat the California Angels.

Despite going 2-6 on their West Coast trip, the Yankees moved within one game of struggling first-place Toronto in the AL East.

Key (11-2) recorded his third complete game with six strikeouts and one walk in his first appearance at Anaheim Stadium since his one-hit shutout on April 27. He has a good chance at starting for the All-Star game at Baltimore on Tuesday night.

Langston (9-3) gave up an RBI double by Mike Stanley, who came into the game three for 29 lifetime against Langston, in the first inning and a run-scoring single by Don Mattingly in the fifth, before Tartabull led off the eighth with his 14th home run, his 12th on the road and second in two nights.

On Thursday, Tartabull made a costly fielding mistake as the Angels rallied to win in the ninth.

It marked the 11th consecutive game in which Angel pitchers have allowed a homerun, the longest streak since May 1979 when they allowed 17 homers in a 12 game span.

The defeat was Langston's first against the AL East this season. He was 6-0 against the Yankees dating back to August 15, 1990.

Rockies post first 4-game win streak

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Chris Jones hit a two-run homer to tie the score in the ninth inning against Lee Smith and Danny Sheaffer followed with a homer to give the Colorado Rockies their first four-game winning streak ever, 5-4 over the St. Louis Cardinals on Friday night.

■ NL Roundup

Smith (2-2), who leads the major leagues with 30 saves, had converted his last 18 save opportunities. The loss kept the Cardinals five games in back of Philadelphia.

Marcus Moore, making his major-league debut, pitched two-thirds of an inning for the victory. Darren Holmes held the Cardinals in the ninth for his eighth save.

Charlie Hayes started the Rockies ninth with a double of Smith and Jones followed with his fifth home run. Sheaffer then broke the tie with his fourth homer.

In the St. Louis seventh, Luis Alicea singled off Keith Shepherd and went to third on Tom Pagnozzi's hit. Pinch-hitter Erik Pappas then hit a fielder's choice grounder, scoring Alicea to make it 3-2.

The Cardinals made it 4-2 in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Alicea.

The Rockies took a 2-0 lead in the third inning. They loaded the bases on singles by Sheaffer, Eric Young and Alex Cole and Dante Bichette drove in a run on a ground ball. Bichette was safe when first baseman Gregg Jefferies dropped the throw from shortstop Ozzie Smith, and St. Louis starting pitcher Rene Arocha then hit Andres Galarraga on the right forearm with a pitch to force home an unearned run.

Todd Zeile extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a leadoff home run — his third homer of the year — in the fourth.

St. Louis tied the game at 2-all in the sixth. Ozzie Smith led off with a single, went to third on Jefferies' single and scored on a groundout by Zeile.

Arocha allowed one earned run in seven innings and Rob Murphy worked a 1-2-3 inning before Smith relieved.

Cubs 5, Astros 2

CHICAGO — All-Star Mark Grace, returning to the lineup after missing six starts with a hamstring injury, hit a homer and run-scoring single as the Chicago Cubs beat Houston.

Houston's Luis Gonzalez (26) greets teammate Jeff Bagwell after scoring on Bagwell's two-run homer against Chicago Friday.

Grace singled in a three-run first and hit his ninth homer in the fifth. Both hits came off Doug Drabek (7-9), who went into the game with a 15-7 career mark against the Cubs.

Winner Mike Morgan (6-9) gave up five hits in 8 1-3 innings, including a two-run homer by Jeff Bagwell in the third. Bagwell's 14th homer came after Luis Gonzalez was hit by a pitch.

Randy Myers got the last two outs for his 27th save.

The Cubs pounced on Drabek early. Jose Vizcaino walked with one out in the first and scored on consecutive singles by Ryne Sandberg and Grace. Derrick May doubled to score Sandberg, and Grace scored on a single by Eric Yelding.

Willie Wilson singled for the Cubs in the second, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Vizcaino and scored on Sandberg's sacrifice fly.

Drabek gave up eight hits and five runs in six innings.

Pirates 4, Reds 1

PITTSBURGH — Bob Walk remained unbeaten at home, limiting Cincinnati to an unearned run over five innings before leaving with a groin injury in Pittsburgh's victory over the Reds.

Rookie right-hander Joel Johnston pitched three scoreless innings in his second NL career appearance, and Stan Belinda got the last three outs for his 17th save.

Walk (10-6), a 10-game winner at the All-Star break for the first time in his 14-year career, is 7-0 in eight starts this season at Three Rivers Stadium. He is 14-3 at home the last two years, plus a victory in the NL playoffs last fall.

Braves 5, Marlins 1

MIAMI — Atlanta's John Smoltz, a controversial choice by his manager for the All-Star game, allowed five hits in eight innings to beat Florida, extending the Marlins' season-high losing streak to seven games.

Ron Gant hit his 20th home run and David Justice hit his 19th for the Braves, who broke a three-game losing streak and won for the first time in their past six road games.

Smoltz (8-7) struck out seven to take over the National League lead with 119. He walked one and retired the final nine batters he faced.

The Marlins were among those upset about the choice of Smoltz for the All-Star game, because Florida's Chris Hammond (10-4) was bypassed by Braves manager Bobby Cox.

Greg McMichael pitched a perfect ninth for Atlanta.

Justice, an All-Star starter, led off the second inning with his fifth home run in 10 games against the Marlins.

Dodgers 6, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Orel Hershiser, pitching with three days' rest on a sweltering night, scattered nine hits to snap a personal four-game losing streak as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the New York Mets.

The temperature reached more than 100 degrees in parts of New York during the afternoon, and both managers were hot at night as both Tommy Lasorda and Dallas Green were ejected.

Lasorda was kicked out by plate umpire Bill Hohn in the third inning after Eric Karros was called out on a checked-swing third strike by first base umpire Larry Poncino. Lasorda argued that Karros did not argue with Hohn.

Expos 6, Padres 1

MONTREAL — Moises Alou homered twice, giving him six in the last four games, and Chris Nabholz pitched a three-hitter as Montreal beat San Diego.

Nabholz (5-5), who struck out four and walked three, won his second straight decision for the first time in over a year.

Alou hit a three-run homer in the first inning off rookie Tim Worrell (0-3). He added a solo shot in the second — his 13th homer of the season.

Frank Bolick hit his sixth homer of the season in the second for the Expos, who won their third in a row.

Giants 15, Phillies 8

PHILADELPHIA — The San Francisco Giants had a season-high 23 hits and routed Philadelphia for the second straight time in a battle of division leaders.

Steve Scarsone had four hits and three RBIs for the Giants, while hot-hitting Barry Bonds had three hits and two RBIs. Bonds hit two homers and drove in six runs Thursday, when San Francisco used a 20-hit attack to beat Philadelphia 13-2.

Paul Faries, Royce Clayton and Kirt Manwaring each drove in two runs for the Giants on Friday. Manwaring had four hits, while Scarscone hit his first major league home run, and Will Clark got his seventh homer of the season.

The stars of Weekend at Bernie's revive their characters for the sequel that opened this weekend.

STOP ME IF YOU'VE SEEN THIS ONE BEFORE!

City Slickers II, a followup to Billy Crystal's hit comedy, is in production.

By Mark Stuart Gill
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — When "Weekend at Bernie's," a low-budget black comedy, became a surprise cult hit in the summer of 1989, the screenwriter Robert Klane realized that his main character had sequel potential.

Audiences developed a bond with Bernie, a New York City executive who dies at the beginning of a wild Hamptons weekend and does things like tumble off sundecks and waterski across Long Island Sound.

The movie made $70 million worldwide before tearing up the American home-video market. It was only after Klane was tapped to write and direct the sequel, "Weekend at Bernie's 2," that he confronted an absurd creative dilemma.

"I can't just bring Bernie back to life," he remembers thinking. "Because then I got a zombie picture. Plus the second movie is set on the island of St. Thomas. A zombie in the Caribbean isn't funny. Bernie is hip because he's dead."

Some critics might blast the character as a cheap, mass-market commodity, pandering to bad taste, emblematic of the movie business' creative bankruptcy. (The movie, which opened locally on Friday, presents Bernie as a sometimes ambulatory carcass.)

But in Hollywood, Bernie is viewed as something special: a "franchise character," in the vernacular of the industry, who connects so strongly with audiences that they want to see him again.

Sequels are a pervasive force in Hollywood. This summer they are everywhere: "Teen-Age Mutant Ninja Turtles III," "Hot Shots! Part Deux," "Another Stakeout," "Blake Edwards' Son of the Pink Panther."

In production are a slew of sequels, among them "Sister Act II," "The Naked Gun 3: The Final Insult," "Karate Kid IV," "City Slickers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold" and "Clear and Present Danger," the third installment in the series, based on Tom Clancy's novels, about the CIA agent Jack Ryan.

Developing loyalty for a character is the best way to reduce the risk in making a multimillion-dollar picture. According to Paul Kagan Associates, a media research firm, sequels have grossed $5 billion over the last eight years.

As just one example, "Star Trek 6," released last year, made $18 million in its first three days and $75 million overall — not bad for a geriatric crew on its supposed last run.

In some sequels, the character turns out to be larger than the actor in the part. James Bond, for instance, survived when Sean Connery bowed out after more than 10 years in the role. In general, though, franchise characters are associated with a specific actor.

What makes a franchise character? The best of them are born and raised in the action-adventure genre, where pop icons have easily identifiable agendas. But no matter what kind of film, enduring characters don't ask audiences to delve into complex personalities or follow them through challenging growth and change.

To become a franchise, characters like Freddy Krueger and Rambo rise above a story line. Their appeal is transportable. "Great films do not inspire sequels," says Lowell Ganz, who co-wrote "City Slickers" and "City Slickers II" with Babaloo Mandel.

"In great films, characters face the single most important moments of their lives. At the end they experience a sense of closure and become immortalized within the confines of that story."

As an example, Ganz cites the failure of "The Two Jakes," Jack Nicholson's sequel to Roman Polanski's "Chinatown," in which Nicholson introduced the private eye Jake Gittes.

Recurring characters popular theme

N.Y. Times News Service

Although it seems safe to say there will be no "Last Action Hero, Part Deux" coming any time within the millennium, some heroes (and villains) have become so popular they've become so-called franchise characters.

Over the years there have been a plethora of movies featuring the likes of Nick and Nora Charles, Tarzan, Lassie and Andy Hardy. Here are some contemporary characters who have inspired a multitude of movie series and sequels.

— James Bond (Sean Connery, David Niven, George Lazenby, Roger Moore and Timothy Dalton), with 16 films made between 1963 and 1989.

— Jason (Kane Hodder) of "Friday the 13th," with eight movies between 1980 and 1989. (The ninth, "Jason Goes to Hell," will open in August.)

— Freddy Krueger (Robert Englund) of "Nightmare on Elm Street," with six movies between 1984 and 1991.

— Moses Hightower (Bubba Smith) and Larvell Jones (Michael Winslow) of "Police Academy," with six movies between 1984 and 1989. (Steve Guttenberg's Sergeant Mahoney dropped out after No. 4.)

— Captain Kirk (William Shatner), Spock (Leonard Nimoy) and the rest of the "Star Trek" crew, with six movies between 1979 and 1991.

— Harry Callahan (Clint Eastwood) of "Dirty Harry," with five movies between 1971 and 1988.

— Rocky Balboa (Sylvester Stallone) of "Rocky," with five movies between 1976 and 1990.

— The Great White Shark and Police Chief Brody (Roy Scheider) of "Jaws," with four movies between 1975 and 1987.

— Ernest P. Worrell (Jim Varney) of "Ernest Goes to Camp," with four movies between 1987 and 1991.

ON SCREEN

EDITOR'S NOTE: The rating system for the film list: 4 stars — Don't miss it; 3 stars — worth your while; 2 stars — Has it moments; 1 star — if you must.

N.Y. Times News Service

DENNIS THE MENACE: Cartoonist Hank Ketcham's durable 6-year-old is a lot funnier in newspapers than in this latest John Hughes production. Walter Matthau provides a few laughs as the irascible Mr. Wilson, the unwilling object of Dennis' attention, but newcomer Mason Gamble is just so-so and the movie is too sticky sweet to be the social satire it could have been. PG. Rating: 1½ stars.

DRAGON: THE BRUCE LEE STORY: Sometimes silly, overridingly creepy tribute to the evidently cursed, martial arts superstar. Jason Scott Lee (no relation) is astonishing as the late kung fu master — he has Bruce's mesmerizing energy, facial contortions and slide-whistle caterwaul down pat. There's drippy romance, triumphal melodrama and some nonsense with a Chinese demon warrior, too — but, as with Lee's life, the main attraction here is the fighting. PG-13 Rating: 2½ stars.

THE FIRM: Sydney Pollack's gripping, intelligent film version of John Grisham's legal thriller improves on the book. Tom Cruise is the only weak link — and he's never less than adequate — in this cerebral suspenser about a young lawyer enmeshed in a mob-connected law firm. He must use all of his legal skills to avoid getting squashed by the government or mafia or both, and his ingenious strategy is the film's real star. Jeanne Tripplehorn ("Basic Instinct"), Gene Hackman, Ed Harris and Holly Hunter provide invaluable support. R. Rating: 3½ stars.

HOT SHOTS! PART DEUX: A pumped-up Charlie Sheen, a now-presidential Lloyd Bridges and Saddam Hussein are back in this latest action-movie parody. Instead of "Top Gun," they're mostly sending up "Rambo" this time, and the results are arguably funnier than the pretty witty first flight. It's also a good-looking movie — better than most of the allegedly serious "Rambo" knockoffs — if limited, as all these things are, by its barrage of jokes' variable humor. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars.

JURASSIC PARK: Steven Spielberg's dino-spectacular is not the religious experience many expected, but it's a pretty good, sci-fi chase movie. Something goes wrong at an island amusement park whose main attraction is genetically engineered, live dinosaurs. The big lizards, realized by a superb combination of full-sized robots and computer-generated graphics, have infinitely more charisma than their underwritten human prey, played by Sam Neill, Laura Dern, Jeff Goldblum and Richard Attenborough. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars.

LAST ACTION HERO: Of all things, an intellectually ambitious satire of Arnold Schwarzenegger action movies — starring Arnold Schwarzenengger. For the most part, it's too loud and, well, action packed to work, though a few scenes are marvels of self-reflexive humor. Austin O'Brien is the 11-year-old fan who enters a movie supercop's fictional world, then brings him back into something like our real dimension. John McTiernan ("The Hunt for Red October") directs with little evident sensitivity to the scenario's comic potential. PG-13. Rating: 2 stars.

MADE IN AMERICA: A one-joke, mixup-at-the-sperm-bank movie should not be as funny as this Whoopi Goldberg-Ted Danson vehicle is. It shouldn't get as sappy in the stretch as this mildly subversive, unfortunately platitudinous social sex farce does, either. Laugh out loud for an hour, then leave. PG. Rating 2½ stars.

ROOKIE OF THE YEAR: A sweet and funny fable about a clumsy 12-year-old who is drafted by the Chicago Cubs when his broken arm heals into a 100-mph pitching machine. Rookie director Daniel Stern in a not-so-shabby performance himself milks the situation for all its comic potential without ever losing sight of the warmth that gives the film its "Big"-ish charm. PG. Rating: 3 stars.

THE SANDLOT: Slackly written and poorly directed reverie over how baseball brings a group of disparate boys together in the summer of '62. Kids may enjoy some of the high jinks, but parents will

SEQUELS: Familiarity breeds major profits

(From 1C)

"The character had such a deep, complex experience in the original film, anything that followed was going to be a letdown," he says.

"Sister Act II," which is scheduled for release later this year, again stars Whoopi Goldberg as a lounge singer. "A lot of movies now are designed to be a continuing episode in a character's life, not that one pinnacle moment of his existence," says Scott Rudin, the film's executive producer.

In the sequel, the Goldberg character parlays the fame she earned in the original movie as a trainer of gospel-singing nuns into her own high-voltage Las Vegas act. In the process, she recreates the lovable, cartoonish character of the first film.

In a class of film dominated by he-men (with the notable exception of Sigourney Weaver's Officer Ripley in the "Alien" films), female characters haven't been likely sequel candidates.

Perhaps Ms. Goldberg's character succeeds because audiences are increasingly looking for wholesome entertainment. A wave of warm and cuddly characters are being plucked these days from television and comic strips — Dennis the Menace, the Flintstones, the Addams family, the Coneheads — perhaps in an attempt to breed nonchallenging familiarity.

Joel Silver, producer of the "Die Hard" movies, calls this "made-for-movies television." The characters are accessible. "Familiarity as a concept may be as profitable as sex and violence," Silver says.

Creating a franchise character, he adds, isn't as simple or formulaic as it may seem. Critics and audiences are fickle. Silver recalls that when "Die Hard" opened, one reviewer found the main character, John McClane, shallow and offensive. A few years later, the same critic attacked "Die Hard 2" as a pale imitation of the classic original.

Audiences carry on a love-hate relationship with franchise characters. "They adore these characters and don't want them to change at all," says Steven E. de Souza, the screenwriter of both "Die Hards." "But then they're disappointed and resentful if the sequel is a knockoff of the original."

De Souza does not have to worry about "Die Hard 3" because he's now at Paramount Pictures writing "Beverly Hills Cop III" for Eddie Murphy. During the last year, de Souza has finished three different versions trying to replicate the essence of the first two hits without repeating them.

"The problem is that a character in a sequel automatically turns into a melodramatic character," says de Souza, explaining that sequel characters tend to be overblown and hard to take seriously. "You spend an awful lot of time worrying about doing parody. Even if the character is funnier in the sequel, is he richer? More likable?"

'They adore these characters and don't want them to change at all. But then they're disappointed and resentful if the sequel is a knockoff of the original.'

— Steven E. de Souza, screenwriter of both 'Die Hards.'

Before de Souza began on the "Beverly Hills Cop III" project, the Eddie Murphy character Axel Foley was leaving the Detroit Police Department to become a private investigator for a Japanese communications corporation. His bosses, who assign him to investigate the crooked heads of their film division in Los Angeles, don't realize Foley is black.

When de Souza was brought in to rewrite the script, he got Foley involved in an elaborate stock fraud case. "Too intellectual," says de Souza now. "What worked for me about Foley was not his clever mouth. He had this unstoppable iron will when he went after something. That's a classic type Americans love."

In a second script, he tried to play off nostalgia for earlier "Cop" films by giving Foley custody of a niece who was even more hip and wisecracking than Foley. "This forced Foley to become too parental," says de Souza. "He lost that cool, teen-age attitude."

Having completed yet another draft, which involves a crime in a theme park, de Souza considers himself lucky. At least his characters can fall back on automatic-weapons fire to move things along.

In the past, Ganz and his partner, Mandel, had turned down lucrative offers to write sequels to their own scripts for "Splash," "Parenthood" and "A League of Their Own."

"We figured a sequel would only disappoint the audience," says Ganz. But after Jack Palance won an Academy Award for his portrayal of Curly, the Last American Cowboy, in "City Slickers," Ganz and Mandel changed their minds. "By making these characters addicted to adventure vacations, I guess we unintentionally promised a sequel," says Ganz.

Indeed, sometimes a character catches on despite his makers' best efforts to finish him off. Sylvester Stallone, whose five Rocky pictures and three Rambo movies have earned nearly $750 million in the United States alone, says that Rambo wasn't intended to live on and on.

"The initial Rambo picture was always meant to be a single movie," Stallone says. "The original novel and the script we wrote called for the character to die. So that's the way we shot it. On the final day of filming, I thought, 'This is a hell of a message to be sending Vietnam vets. Let's change the ending.' The director went crazy and destroyed the production office."

The single take in which Rambo survives tested so well with preview audiences it became the ending of the film.

Even if characters don't connect the second time in theaters, they often achieve miraculous resurrections in ancillary markets: video-cassettes, cable, in-flight films.

That heartens Klane. In "Weekend at Bernie's 2," he found himself with a hero starting to decompose. His solution was to introduce Bernie to some voodoo doctors. "Except the ceremony goes awry," says Klane. "All Bernie does is get up and stagger around whenever he hears music."

Klane frets that there will be a demand for "Bernie 3." "The only twist I can think of is giving the guy a family," Klane says, shaking his head. "You know, a dead wife, two dead kids, maybe a dead pet."

REVIEWS: 1937 'Snow' blows back into town

have to really love their progeny to sit through this. PG. Rating: 2 stars.

SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE: Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan star in Nora Ephron's contrived, self-mocking and deliriously wonderful romantic comedy. He's a widowed single father; she's a passion rattled journalist on the other side of the continent. They don't meet until the last scene. In the meantime, Ephron (who wrote Ryan's hit "When Harry Met Sally . . .") hilariously implores us to bury our fake, movie fed romantic notions — then makes us fall for them all over again. PG-13. Rating: 3½ stars.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: The latest reissue of Disney's first cartoon feature, now 56 years old, has been digitally cleaned up and had its sound remixed. Despite that, it's still a little creaky, but the Dwarfs' comic mayhem and the artists' still-startling design ingenuity more than compensate for a few drippy songs and some regressive, gender-role assumptions. G. Rating: 3 stars.

SON-IN-LAW: Pauly Shore stars in this fish-out-of-water comedy about a wacky Southern Californian naif posing as the fiance of a farmer's daughter (Carla Gugino) from the Dakotas. It's actually not as dumb as the ads suggest, but not particularly funny either. PG-13. Rating: 1½ stars.

Corsicana's 2nd autopsy shows fatal blows

NAACP leader says black man who died in police custody probably was murdered.

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — A second autopsy on a black man who collapsed and died while in police custody last month in Corsicana has concluded that multiple blows to the head and body were the main causes of death, a civil rights organization said Friday.

The original autopsy on the body of Craig Thomas, conducted by Dallas County medical examiner Charles Odom, attributed death to a combination of drugs in his body and injuries he received when he was subdued and hogtied by Corsicana police officers at the time of his arrest on June 5.

The new autopsy, performed 25 days after the first one, also noted a significant drug presence in Thomas' system.

"The second (autopsy) report concluded that the cause of Craig Thomas' death was due to blunt force to the head, along with and accompanied by compromising positions of restraint," local NAACP president Robert Sanders said.

The new autopsy, by Dr. Joye M. Carter, chief medical examiner for the District of Columbia, came at the NAACP's request and was paid for by the organization.

In an autopsy report signed July 1, Carter said death was caused by "multiple blast force impact to the head, trunk and extremities with positional compromise of respiratory system following arrest for agitated behavior."

Carter said the autopsy also discovered "acute and chronic substance abuse with cardiac hypertrophy." Hypertrophy is a medical term that means "a considerable increase in the size of an organ or tissue."

The emphasis on the damages caused by the way that police tied him was consistent with the earlier autopsy report.

Sanders said that, in view of the new finding, the medical examiner's office in Dallas probably would alter its report and rule the death a homicide rather than an accident.

That drew a quick denial from Jeffrey Barnard, chief medical examiner in Dallas, he noted that Carter's report also found the death to be an accident.

Bernard said both autopsies had the "same sort of conclusions," but were worded differently.

State lawyers ask court to reject poor school plea

Property-poor school districts still say they're being short changed by new law that gives more to medium-wealth districts.

AUSTIN (AP) — State lawyers urged the Texas Supreme Court Friday to reject property-poor school districts' plea for help in getting the new education finance law changed before school opens.

The poor districts appealed to the high court after State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin refused to have a June hearing on their complaints about the law.

McCown said the law would be in effect in the coming school year, and that he may set a fall hearing on challenges to it. He oversees the long-running school finance case.

The Legislature has been under court order to even out funding available to school districts, which rely on state aid and local property tax funds, along with some federal money.

Property-poor school districts, among other complaints, say the way state aid is distributed under the new law is harder on districts with little property wealth.

State lawyers — who defend the new law as constitutional — said in papers sent to the Supreme Court that the poor school districts are trying to maintain a funding advantage that they had over medium-wealth school districts in a previous school finance plan.

The old law, which has been declared unconstitutional, "contained a windfall for them at the expense of the middle-wealth districts," said the documents signed by Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter.

The state said the distribution of state funds under the new law "benefits those districts with high (local) tax effort and adversely affects those with low tax effort." Poor school districts dispute that.

To give poor school districts the relief they seek, the court "would have to hold that any system of school financing which fails to give every school district the same level of funding which it had in the previous year violates the Texas Constitution," according to the state.

The state also said the district judge "has discretion to determine when new challenges should be heard."

Televangelist Robert Tilton doesn't turn other cheek

Problems arose when woman filed suit against Tilton saying minister solicited donations from dead husband.

DALLAS (AP) — A television evangelist embroiled in legal battles over his ministry lashed back Friday at opponents in a lawsuit, saying his decision not to release some church records was supported by past Supreme Court rulings.

State District Judge Eric Moye this week scheduled a July 23 hearing and ordered Robert Tilton to show why he should not be held in contempt of court for failing to turn over the records.

C. Tony Wright, representing Norma Smith of Dallas in her lawsuit against Tilton, filed the motion requesting a contempt citation in 101st State District Court on Wednesday, contending the minister had failed to produce records she sought.

Mrs. Smith contends Tilton's ministry harassed her by soliciting money from her husband, Tommie Smith, after he had died. Her civil lawsuit alleges intentional infliction of emotional distress.

The Texas Supreme Court had ordered the documents, including membership rolls in Tilton's Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church, produced along financial records of Tilton and the church.

But Rhonda Byrd, Tilton's attorney in Dallas, said her office has received no requests for any financial records. She said the U.S. Supreme Court was asked Friday to protect church membership information from disclosure.

"All the records except the names (and) addresses of our church members have been supplied," Tilton told reporters at his church. "The attorney general, (Dan) Morales, tried to bully and intimidate this church into handing over this protected information to his office."

Tilton said a federal judge earlier ruled that Texas Attorney General Morales' actions were unethical, in bad faith and harassed and harmed his church.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROPHECY FROM THE JAILHOUSE

AS MOST PROPHETS, JEREMIAH AROUSED THE ANGER OF HIS KING, CONCERNING THEIR ALLIES. THE PROPHET TRADITIONALLY LOOKED TO GOD, AND THE KING USUALLY TO EGYPT OR BABYLON...NEVER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET! IN FACT, SO INCENSED WAS HE THAT THE KING PUT JEREMIAH INTO JAIL. EVEN SO THIS DID NOT STOP HIM FROM PROPHESYING. HE CALLED FOR HIS FRIEND BARUCH THE SCRIBE AND IN THE CONFINES OF THE DUNGEON DICTATED HIS PROPHECY WHICH BARUCH INSCRIBED ON LEATHER SCROLLS. JEREMIAH IS PROBABLY THE ONLY BOOK IN THE BIBLE WHICH ACTUALLY COMES TO US FROM BEHIND BARS.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Bring your imagination into play. Ingenuity helps you find a way to get along with a pesky associate or neighbor. Although emotional highs are featured in late fall, you will come back down to earth in December. Spend some time contemplating what is best for your future. Family happiness depends on your opening new lines of communication. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences early in 1994. Make overdue adjustments in your personal relationships.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis legend Arthur Ashe, newscaster David Brinkley, folk singer Arlo Guthrie, playwright Jean Kerr.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stubborn resistance to change will only cause trouble with a child or sibling. Be more flexible. Your sense of humor makes you the center of attention at a social function.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): For the best results, think in terms of the whole picture. You could have second thoughts about some entertainment plans. Suggest sharing expenses with close friends or neighbors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There will be less strain on a close relationship now that you have settled a personal matter. Good communication and mutual travel are the keys to happiness now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Discuss joint financial matters with your family. You could reap new profits if you take a more experienced person's advice. Be a good listener. A gesture of affection will rekindle romantic fires.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Outdoor activities will deliver the greatest pleasure today. A phone call or visit motivates you to devote more time to community service. A childhood memory brings surprising gains.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Goofing off may be just what the doctor ordered today. Looking on the bright side is easier now, thanks to a budding new relationship. A pet plays a major role in your leisure plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A neighbor volunteers to supervise children in an emergency. Return the favor in the near future. Charity begins at home. Put your children's needs before community activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A splendid time for a family gathering or celebration! Domestic concerns occupy your thoughts during the early morning. A discussion regarding expenses will reduce tension.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day to enjoy group activities. See old friends. A radical change in your outlook will mean greater happiness for you and yours. A personal relationship improves as financial pressures subside.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Set aside your usual routine and tend to a pressing domestic problem. A self-improvement project brings great satisfaction to someone longing for a complete change of pace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A nostalgic mood prevails. Spend part of the day with an old friend. A candid conversation with your partner heals an emotional rift. Be good-natured if children make demands on your time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Sharing a spiritual experience with a loved one strengthens the bond between you. Domestic differences are all but forgotten. Finish up small household tasks before nightfall.

'Fergie' says separation taught her some lessons

LONDON — The Duchess of York said Friday her separation from her husband, Prince Andrew, wrecked her self-confidence but taught her some important lessons.

Ferguson

The former Sarah Ferguson, 33, has been cold-shouldered by Buckingham Palace since she left her marriage and was caught canoodling with her so-called financial adviser.

"It's made me ... very much more aware of trying to control my spontaneity so I don't fall into awful great big Pooh traps — the ramifications are too much for me to cope with," she told Britain's Independent Television News.

Her comment referred to Winnie the Pooh, the bear with few brains in A.A. Milne's books for children.

Two weeks ago, Fergie and Andrew announced a formal separation agreement, dashing speculation they would make up. The duchess keeps custody of their children, Princesses Beatrice, 4, and Eugenie, 3.

Sarah said she maintains a "huge friendship" with Andrew, 33, and they talk daily on the telephone.

Unlike Prince Charles, Andrew's older brother, and his estranged wife, Princess Diana, the Yorks often appear together with their children, laughing and appearing affectionate.

NEW YORK — Several of Whoopi Goldberg's closest friends — including Billy Ray Cyrus, Donald Trump, Michael Bolton and Ed McMahon — will attend a luncheon and roast in her honor.

Ten Danson, Goldberg's co-star in the movie "Made in America," will act as "roastmaster" at the Oct. 8 event, the New York Friars Club announced Friday.

The annual event honors a comedic performer.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Actors named Connery, Quinn and Welch are starring in a new western to be shot here this fall.

But they're not Sean, Anthony and Raquel.

The film titled "Ieska" is due to star Francesco Quinn, son of Anthony; Jason Connery, son of Sean; and Tahanee Welch, daughter of Raquel. The film, directed by Jim Fargo ("Every Which Way But Loose" and "The Enforcer") is about a Sioux Indian.

"All the children are around the same ages as when their parents broke in," said co-producer Penny Styles McLean. "It's a line of good young actors."

INDIANAPOLIS — Shaquille O'Neal gave an autograph to a terminally ill child here. The result? A full-fledged Shaq attack.

O'Neal flew in Tuesday to take part in the filming of the new basketball movie "Blue Chips." The Orlando Magic standout and NBA Rookie of the Year was engulfed by admiring fans, but politely declined to give autographs, saying he was very tired.

O'Neal

But Sheila Bush, whose 9-year-old son, Adrian, is terminally ill, pushed her way to O'Neal's side and explained that the boy had told the Make A Wish Foundation that he really wanted to meet the Shaq. She said an autograph would make him very happy. Adrian suffers from the rare disease adrenoleukodystrophy.

O'Neal wrote: "To Adrian. Good Luck. Your Friend, Shaq," and penciled his jersey number at the bottom.

Bush found Adrian at the YMCA where he was spending the afternoon in his wheelchair beside the pool.

"I got the letter out of my purse and gave it to him and he began to scream," she said.

"He can hardly walk or talk anymore, but he was excited for the rest of the day," his mother said.

Ms. magazine will have a new editor in chief starting with the September-October issue, but her name will be familiar to readers of the masthead. Marcia Ann Gillespie, 49, has already had three terms of duty at the 21-year-old magazine.

The executive editor since October, Ms. Gillespie previously held that post from 1988 to 1990. She also did two stints as contributing editor and in the mid-1980s shared a column called Personal Words with two other writers. She succeeds Robin Morgan, who is stepping down to return to writing and acting.

Ms. Gillespie, who was the editor in chief of Essence magazine from 1971 to 1980, said she considered herself lucky to have been involved with "the two publications that are closest to my heart."

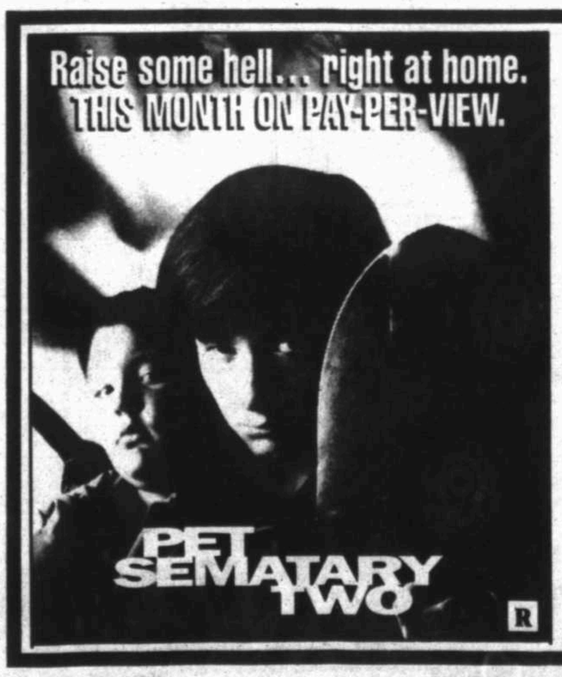

"At Essence it was a constant struggle. If we were trying to get beauty advertisers, they wanted beauty. Food advertisers had to have recipes. We had to cut stories to shreds if suddenly four new ads came in or see issues shrink if advertisers dropped out. Now this is a fixed constellation, "

DELIVERY MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

Often Asked ?????
Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
● ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
● MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
● STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!

Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers.
Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment.
However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!

KENT OIL, INC.

KENT KWIK CONVENIENCE STORES

DO YOU WONDER WHAT COMPANY NAME WILL BE ON YOUR PAYCHECK NEXT WEEK?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik convenience stores) is a stable West Texas-based company, thirty six years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

- Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
- Paid vacations
- Sick pay program
- Tuition reimbursement program
- Special incentive programs for all employees
- Profit-sharing and retirement plan
- Intensive new hire training
- Structured continual management training
- Flexible scheduling

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. Most of our current store managers, middle and upper managment started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give Kent Oil your consideration. Please apply at the Kent Oil office Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. 3314 N. Loop 250 in Midland. Pre-employment drug test required.
