Incumbents first to file for city, trustee elections

Snyder City Council and Snyder ISD have a full slate of candidates now, none of whom are opposed for their May 4 elections.

Vernest Tippens, mayor pro-tem, filed Thursday afternoon to seek her fifth term on the council. Tippens is a retired custodial worker who is seeking Place 1.

She joins three other incumbent councilmen who are seeking re-election. They are Jerry Webb, Place 2; Kenny Gambrell, Place 3; and I.E. Martin, Place 4.

This morning, Mark McCormick filed to retain his Place 4 seat on the Snyder ISD board of trustees. McCormick, corporate officer with McCormick Marketing, is seeking his second term.

McCormick became the third SISD trustee to file for re-election. Previously filing were Glenn Clarady, for Place 1, and Janet Stribling, for Place 5.

Filing began this week for city council, Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh ISD boards and Western Texas College board of trustees elections, all of which will be held in May. The filing period runs through March 20.

Like the city council and Snyder ISD board, Ira public school board has a full slate of unopposed candidates and all are incumbents. Sid Wall, Kirby Sterling and Lance Autry have all filed for re-election to that board.

As yet, no one has filed for two places on the Western Texas College board: Place 1, held by Bill Wilson Jr.; and Place 2, held by Carl Williams.

Up for election on the Hermleigh ISD board are full terms held by Milton Adams and James Rinehart, and a one-year partial term held by Jay Roemisch. The incumbents have not filed, but former board member Tony Lambaren and first-time office seeker Burton Sandefur have — both for full terms.

Marker unveiling planned Saturday

A historical marker honoring famous buffalo hunter J. Wright Mooar will be unveiled Saturday, some 7.5 miles northwest of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84.

The Scurry County Historical Commission invites the public to the unveiling, set for 10 a.m.

It was on Oct. 7, 1876 that Mooar killed a white buffalo about 10 miles northwest of Snyder on Deep Creek.

When his buffalo hunting days ended, Mooar became a Scurry County rancher and businessman. He and his brother, John, partners in the hunting operation, were also partners in the Scurry County ranch and a livery stable in Colorado City.

Mooar died in Snyder in 1940 at the age of 89. The third annual White Buffalo Festival honoring him is planned for Oct. 4-5.

NO INJURIES — The drivers of two vehicles escaped injury when their vehicles collided in the intersection of 30th Street and Avenue E Thursday evening. Industrial park plans set to move into higher gear

Development Corporation of Snyder board, having received engineering specifications from Freese & Nichols, has decided to rapidly step up work at SnTx Park I.

Meeting Thursday, the board decided to seek pre-bid information on all utility work and begin the process of selling $985,000 in taxable bonds.

Board president Roy Baze said three Snyder contractors and one out-of-town firm will be invited to submit bids on the project, which could cost up to $1.1 million.

"We'd like to keep the dollars in Snyder, Texas, if we can," said Baze, noting that the law does not subject the DCOS to the same bidding process as other entities.

Baze said the utility work will be "bundled" into one contract in order to save money and give one contractor sole responsibility. Bids will go out on March 12 and will be opened March 19. Work is scheduled to begin April 20.

Board member Jack Gorman Jr. noted that it will be May 1 at the earliest before the DCOS will have the $985,000 in taxable bonds available. He said the corporation can take from its reserve funds during the time lag.

The action by the board was not anticipated at this time because less than two months ago Freese & Nichols was behind with its engineering information. That problem was resolved by contacting the firm's chief executive officer, said Baze. The firm also supplied a new project engineer, Jerry Fleming.

Baze said the utilities will be

Pennzoil committed to SACROC's future

Unit superintendent Pete Hagist told members of the Snyder Rotary Club Thursday that Pennzoil is "definitely committed" to the future development of the SACROC unit by drilling additional wells and by working over present wells.

"We're spending huge amounts of money out there," said Hagist who is the unit superintendent for Pennzoil.

Presently, Pennzoil is spending more than $200,000 daily on the SACROC unit, with about $95,000 going into capital improvements and $120,000 daily in operating expenses.

"We had to swallow hard before we made the commitment we did to this field," Hagist added.

Pennzoil owns 65 percent of SACROC, having purchased the Chevron share at the end of 1992. The other major owner in the field is Texaco.

Hagist said much of the money that Pennzoil has spent at SACROC has been plugging wells that were non-productive and in meeting federal environmental standards.

On the average, some 24 workover rigs are working at SACROC on a daily basis.

Presently, production is increasing and is currently producing some 9,300 barrels per day.

"With increased efficiency and new technology, we hope to get that number up to around 14,000 daily," Hagist said.

3 schools announce spelling bee winners

Scurry County's final campus spelling bee was held this morning at East Elementary.

Amanda Whitson, daughter of Dee Whitson and Vickie Whitson of Dunn, is the first place winner. Justin Stoker, son of Don and Roxanne Stoker, is the runner-up. Both are fourth graders.

Two other schools determined their bee winners Thursday afternoon.

Two seventh graders emerged as the top spellers at Snyder Junior High School. Garrett Luft, son of Gary and Sue Luft, finished first, followed by Jarred Minefee, son of Joe and Valerie Minefee.

At Northeast Elementary, Wendy Proffitt claimed the top spot, followed by Cassie Guerrero, runner-up. Both are fifth graders. Wendy, daughter of Doug and Jill Proffitt, also won the 1995 campus bee while at East. Cassie is the daughter of Danny and Janie Guerrero.

All first place and runner-up campus bee winners will compete in the Scurry County Spelling Bee set for March 8.

The Super Bowl provided a lot a material for word merchants. Rick Craig, in the Hamlin Herald, mentioned a segment seen on the Tonight Show.

Jay Leno was trying to prove a point about the powerful role that professional sports figures play in America. To make his point, Leno conducted several interviews with fans, asking a simple question about everyday life and a second question dealing with the Super Bowl.

Leno: How many yards are there in a mile?

Fan: Uh...50?... or 1,000?

Leno: How many yards are there on a football field?

Fan: 100 (without hesitation).

Leno: Who was the president before Bill Clinton?

Fan: I'm not really into politics. Uh, uh, I don't remember.

Leno: Who won last year's Super Bowl?

Fan: Forty-Niners.

Craig concluded, "It makes you wonder how long it will be before political candidates begin buying commercials during the Super Bowl. But that could be a good thing — at least we could take a refrigerator break."

In the Andrews County News, James Roberts (a Baptist and Baylor grad) mentioned some recent church activities:

"A Presbyterian friend of ours was chortling over the actions of Catholics, Methodists and Baptists this past week.

"He noticed that on the same day the merger between St. Mary and Methodist hospitals of Lubbock was announced, that the Baptists lifted the ban on dancing on campus at Baylor."

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, told his own story about dancing.

He claims it happened at a teenage rock-n-roll joint over in Amarillo. "The waiter dropped a tray of dishes and six couples got up to dance."

Q—What can be done about people burning trash outside the city limits?

A—There is no ordinance prohibiting people who live outside the city limits from burning trash on their own property. They could be held liable if the fire causes damage to others' property, however.

What is fluid on the lungs?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been told that he has fluid on the lungs. He has been taking water pills and that helps, but he still has trouble breathing when he exerts himself. His doctor says that this condition can be treated successfully in most instances with medications, such as diuretics, that remove the fluid and that the kidneys then expel the unwanted fluid excess.

As you are aware, this is a serious disorder that carries an unfavorable prognosis. Once the heart has begun to malfunction, an advanced form of heart disease must be present. This entire situation may be aggravated by failing kidneys, even though dialysis is used to rid the body of waste products.

I believe that you and your husband need to learn more about his illnesses and their impact on his future. I recommend that you meet with his physician for a thorough discussion and, perhaps, a referral to a cardiologist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm trying to cut down on my salt intake by using a salt substitute. This contains potassium chloride instead of sodium chloride, and my friends feel this product could be more dangerous. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Table salt is sodium chloride. In some people — especially those with hypertension and heart disorders — sodium is detrimental. Therefore, doctors frequently ask such patients to restrict their salt consumption.

Unfortunately, this prohibition may lead to a relatively tasteless diet.

One way to solve this dilemma is to substitute potassium salt for the sodium variety. If your kidneys are working efficiently (as judged by blood tests), you should be able to excrete excess potassium without difficulty.

Therefore, all things being equal, the potassium chloride should be an acceptable and safe alternative. To confirm what I've said, ask for your doctor's approval.

Amarillo donations building state's 4th pharmacy school

AMARILLO (AP) — Donors in Amarillo injected a large dose of cash to build the Texas Tech School of Pharmacy.

The city's economic development group, hospital district and private citizens combined to give $13 million toward a facility that will open in August for 55 students. The state will pay operating costs.

Construction of the pharmacy school — Texas' fourth, the only one outside of Austin and Houston — comes 23 years after state leaders first gave their approval. Legislatures since 1973 had never found money to build it.

So 99 corporations and individuals in Amarillo started donating in 1993 to a cause they saw as elevation of the region's prestige and capacity for education.

"It was pretty much a homegrown effort from the folks in the Texas Panhandle who said we'd like to have that pharmacy school," said state Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo. "It's a great deal for Texas because I just don't know if the money was there for a new capital investment like that."

People who keep up with pharmaceutical trends say a new training site is long overdue.

Dr. Arthur A. Nelson, dean of the new Tech pharmacy school, said Texas currently has three: at the University of Texas, University of Houston and Texas Southern. Baylor University operated a pharmacy school in Dallas until 1931.

A 1993 report by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board noted that the three schools graduate 360 baccalaureate-trained pharmacists each year. The Texas Employment Commission, meanwhile, predicts 705 annual pharmacist job openings in the state through the year 2000.

"The shortage is a result of a lack of school out here" in West Texas, Nelson said. "Everybody has had to be imported. That's difficult to do."

And sources said the demand for pharmacists will continue to mount as Texas' population increases and grows more elderly.

Nelson said the school in Amarillo will focus on rural areas in its mission.

Construction of the four-story building — complete with computer-ready classrooms, research labs and a drug information center — should wrap up in April, he said. Nelson expects 200-250 applications for the 55 student slots this fall.

He credited Amarillo residents with "aggressive and forward thinking" in their willingness to pay for the structure.

It was built on a donated 20-acre plot within the same complex as High Plains Baptist Hospital, Northwest Texas Hospital and the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Amarillo Economic Development Corp., which derives its funds from a half-cent sales tax, gave $6 million to the project. The hospital district gave $4 million; private donors chipped in about $2.5 million.

"It just seemed to us to be a very ripe opportunity to take a strategic step in terms of the development of our health care services industry," said Mike Bourn, executive director of AEDC. "For a community to do this, I think, is almost unheard of."

Bourn said residents view the pharmacy school as an opportunity for jobs and even greater long-term expansion at the medical complex.

Inmate transferred to state dies of AIDS

DALLAS (AP) — Adell Sullivan was sick when he and 298 other Massachusetts prisoners were roused from their beds and whisked off to a Dallas jail three months ago but no one in the Massachusetts Department of Correction knew it.

No one knew he was so close to death. No one knew he had AIDS.

Although all the Massachusetts prisoners were screened for medical problems before they were shipped to rented beds in Texas, there was no indication that Sullivan had AIDS in his medical records, said Anthony Carnevale, a spokesman for the Massachusetts Department of Correction.

The bottom line is on the death certificate the cause of death is listed as AIDS," Carnevale said Thursday.

Sullivan, 47, had been serving a 12-year sentence he received in Suffolk Superior Court for assault with intent to rape a child in 1986. He died Sunday, 18 days after being moved from the Lew Sterrett Justice Center just west of downtown Dallas to nearby Parkland Memorial Hospital.

In Massachusetts prisons, testing for AIDS and the human immunodeficiency virus that causes the fatal disease is not mandatory and prisoners are not required to disclose their medical problems, Carnevale said.

Sullivan apparently started to develop symptoms after he and the others were transferred to the 12-story facility. He was checked into Parkland on Jan. 31 after receiving some treatment at the jail.

Massachusetts officials are awaiting medical reports from both the hospital and the jail.

"This was a condition we were not aware of," said Carnevale. "We have no mandatory AIDS screening for inmates ... we should, but we don't."

Carnevale said that the victim's advocate in the Suffolk County District Attorney's office has been contacted and will notify the child's family of the cause of Sullivan's death.

The Nov. 1 prisoner transfer is part of a national trend. Six other states also have sent inmates to Texas counties that are trying to use vacant cells. Dallas County expects to make a profit of more than $3 million annually by housing the Massachusetts inmates.

Housing the nearly 300 prisoners in Texas will cost Massachusetts $4.5 million to $5 million more than keeping them in state prisons for the year. However, the transfer helped ease overcrowding at Massachusetts prisons, which are currently at 150 percent of capacity.

The move has outraged the prisoners' families, who have held weekly protests outside Gov. William Weld's house every Saturday since the men left medium-security prisons here.

John Pineo, the father of another Massachusetts prisoner in Texas, said he was disturbed to hear about Sullivan's death in a phone call from his son earlier this week.

"Here is a person who is transferred away from his family and he died alone," Pineo said. "My heart goes out to the family."

Carnevale said Sullivan's Massachusetts visitor's record indicates that no family members lived in the state. "He had no one here, his closest relatives were all from Tennessee," he said. "To say he died alone without family because he went to Texas is wrong."

Meanwhile, Sullivan's body is being delivered to his family in Tennessee for burial. Carnevale was uncertain where in Tennessee Sullivan's family lives.

Carnevale also was not certain whether Sullivan's family would be billed for the cost of moving the body. Had Sullivan died in Massachusetts, the family would have been responsible for paying any transportation costs.

Eastland man gets share of jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) — Ben Sancillo of Eastland has claimed half of the $7.8 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn on Wednesday.

The other winning ticket for the drawing was sold in Yoakum, but that winner hadn't yet come forward, lottery officials said.

Sancillo received a check for $195,345 as the first installment of the $3.9 million winnings he will collect for having one of the winning tickets. He will receive checks for $195,000 every Feb. 15 for the next 19 years.

Sancillo, who requested minimal publicity, picked the winning numbers — 4, 10, 12, 21, 27 and 44.

Granbury maintenance man claims Lotto Texas winnings

AUSTIN (AP) — Mike "Rooster" McCraw is crowing over his $21 million Lotto Texas winnings.

"I knew the odds of winning the big jackpot are real great, but I knew a long time ago that I would win," he said Wednesday as he claimed his half of the Feb. 7 jackpot.

McCraw, 43, has played Lotto Texas twice a week since the game began in November 1992, and always the same numbers: 8, 15, 26, 27, 33 and 37.

He found out he'd won Feb. 8, when he stopped at the store where he'd bought the lottery tickets to pick up some coffee. The clerk told him there had been two winners the previous night.

"I went and got my tickets out of the glove box and the clerk then read the numbers to me. Every time he read a number, I'd say, 'yeah.' Then we both started whooping and hollering, and I started crowing, too."

McCraw resigned from his job as a maintenance man at Owens Oil Tool, an oil field explosives company. He and his wife, a teacher's aide, plan to use some of the money to buy a ranch where they can hunt and fish with their children.

"We might even take a cruise or something wild like that. With this money, we'll be able to see some of our dreams come true," McCraw said.

McCraw was presented with a check for more than $1 million, the first of 20 annual payments that will total $21 million.

The other half of the jackpot was claimed last week by the Lucky 33 Trust Fund, a group of 20 players who collectively bought the winning ticket in Duncanville. The group, which bought $33 worth of tickets, requested no publicity, according to the Lottery Commission.

Mother Shies From Allowing Son to Visit House With Guns

by Abigail Van Buren

1996 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: At 4 years old, my son John is getting to the age where he's occasionally invited to the homes of his schoolmates.

Last week, a parent I'll call "Mr. Smith" invited John to spend the afternoon at his home playing with his son. John had a great time, but when I picked him up, he described deer heads on the wall — and to my horror, the guns in the house!

Obviously, Mr. Smith is a hunter and there's no doubt that the guns John described were real.

I have decided not to let John go back, but I feel awkward bringing this up with the Smiths. I don't want to appear rude, since both parents are very much involved with the preschool our children attend.

Abby, I don't ever want my children in a home with guns, but how should I handle this without offending the parents?

CONCERNED MOM

DEAR CONCERNED: Your child's welfare must come first. Be up-front about it when an invitation is again extended. Tell the Smiths that your son mentioned the guns in their home, and you prefer that when the children play together, they do it in your home under your supervision.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from Jose Fidelino interested me. My wife was born in Laos. Her mother came from China and her father from Vietnam. She also lived in Thailand for several years, so she speaks many languages.

Since we now live in Long Beach, Calif., we're 20 minutes from Chinatown, 20 minutes from Little Saigon and five minutes from Little India. We have two children, and when we are all together, we get lots of stares. When my wife takes the children without me, she is asked lots of questions from strangers wanting to know where she got them (as if she had stolen them), but she takes it as a compliment and moves on.

As for people asking, "Where are you from?" I hear that often, but I do not take it as an insult. In the case of Asians, they are asking, "May I talk to you?" It is simply a sign that they are interested in you and are groping for a starting point.

I have started many conversations with, "Where are you from?" And I found out that the best cakes are from a Filipino bakery in Little India; the best soup is at a Cambodian restaurant in Little Saigon; the best dim-cha is in Chinatown. Also there is a beautiful Chinese temple in Hacienda Heights.

Americans are slowly opening their eyes to the Pacific Rim. While many people are unfamiliar with Asian history beyond the war stories, that is not to say we can't learn. Just give us time.

Abby, please warn your readers either to take their receipts with them, or to press the "no" button when the computer asks if they want a receipt so that it won't print one.

CAREFUL ABOUT MY CARDS

DEAR CAREFUL: Thanks for the warning. People should also take their receipts with them after using ATMs (Automated Teller Machines), and destroy them before disposing of them.

Cholesterol filtering machine approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patients with severely high cholesterol who aren't helped by low-fat diets or drugs now have a new option: getting the fat literally filtered out of their blood.

The Food and Drug Administration on Thursday approved the Liposorber, a machine that cleanses the blood of cholesterol much like dialysis removes toxins from a kidney patient's body.

The Liposorber is only for people with very high cholesterol who aren't helped by a low-fat diet or medicine, the FDA warned. This condition, called severe hypercholesterolemia, affects about 4,000 Americans.

The treatment could be a lifesaver for certain patients, said Dr. Evan Stein of the Cholesterol Treatment Center in Cincinnati.

"It's gone pretty well," said Frank Bialek of Pittsburgh, who has been in a clinical trial of the machine since 1990, when he had a heart attack at age 31.

Regular Liposorber treatments have helped his arteries become relatively free of clogs, he said. "Other than the inconvenience of laying still for four or so hours, it's not all that bad."

Made by Kaneka America Corp. of New York, the treatment starts with doctors inserting small tubes into both of a patient's arms. The patient's blood, slowly and a little at a time, runs from one tube into a machine that separates the plasma from other blood cells. Then the Liposorber, a column inside the machine, binds up low-density lipoprotein, or LDL, cholesterol in the plasma.

The patient can watch this so-called bad cholesterol, a yellow-looking gunk, accumulate inside the machine as the cleansed plasma then is mixed back into blood cells. The filtered blood then flows back into the patient's other arm, missing nothing except the fat.

The treatment takes between three and four hours, and tests of 74 patients showed it can remove 73 percent to 83 percent of the LDL cholesterol in the patient's blood. Most patients started with an average cholesterol level of 400, which the Liposorber dropped to 120.

LDL is the type of cholesterol that causes plaque to build up inside arteries, leading to heart attacks. The Liposorber does not remove the so-called good cholesterol, the high-density lipoprotein or HDL type.

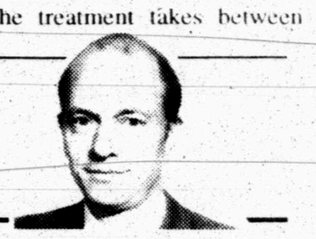

But the machine is not a cure, the FDA warned. The cholesterol levels crept back up within about 14 days, meaning patients will have to undergo this treatment every two or three weeks indefinitely.

"It's invasive. It's time-consuming," Stein said. "It's not cheap. ... It's not something I'd put any patient ... unless they really needed it."

Kaneka said the Liposorber equipment will cost $1,200 per treatment, but Stein said the total charges to patients, who have to be monitored by a nurse, will be between $1,500 and $2,000 every two weeks.

South could see 11 tricks: five spades, two hearts and four clubs. But where was number 12? Suddenly South realized he was all right as long as the trumps were splitting 3-2. After ruffing at trick two, South played a trump to the dummy and ruffed a diamond with the spade king. Back to dummy with another trump, declarer ruffed dummy's last diamond with his spade ace. A heart to the king allowed declarer to draw East's last trump, on which South threw his remaining low heart. Dummy's three club honors were unblocked, a heart was led to South's ace and the club ace took trick 13.

Watch out for the dummy reversal when you have a shortage and dummy's trumps are strong.

Is it true today?

By Phillip Alder

On September 1, 1945, General George Catlett Marshall, the Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army, claimed, "If man does find the solution for world peace it will be the most revolutionary reversal of his record we have ever known." If alive today, I wonder if he would still feel the same way. However, that comment does contain a hint toward the winning line in today's six-spade slam.

After the one-spade opening, North knew they had at least an eight-card fit. But he couldn't raise immediately without a fourth trump, so he started with a response in his chunky three-card suit. When South raised, which this pair plays as forcing, North jumped to game in spades. Now South, thinking they had a double fit, Blackwooded into a slam.

West started with the king and another diamond.

Howard took a one-point lead with 18:45, but April Reves hit an NBA range three-pointer to tie the game at 31 with 17:25. At the 14:41 mark, Reves hit another long range bomb to give the Lady Westerners a 36-34 lead.

Reves hit her third three-pointer of the half with 8:46 to once again tie the score at 42, but that's as close as Western Texas would get the remainder of the game.

Reves ended the game with a total of five three-pointers and a free throw for 16 points.

The Lady Westerner would have one last chance to tie the game. With 16 seconds, trailing 50-47, Turner was fouled while attempting a three-point shot. Turner went to the free throw line to shoot three, but missed all of the free throws.

Howard's Joyce Howard hit two free throws with 11 seconds to seal the win for Howard.

The Lady Hawks retain first place in the conference with a 15-2 record. They go to 27-2 for the year. WTC drops to 2-14, 7-20 for the season.

Texas Tech will try to end eight game jinx in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Tech has clinched at least a share of the Southwest Conference regular season basketball title and has all but locked up a respectable seeding in the NCAA tournament as the No. 9 team nationally with a 23-1 record.

Now, the Red Raiders (12-0 SWC) simply need to prove they can win at Texas (17-6, 10-2). Tech's last eight trips to Austin have ended in defeat.

Saturday's game is sold out and should be deafening as the SWC's first- and second-place teams duke it out in what has been the league's best hoops rivalry over the past four years.

It will be the teams' final regular season meeting in the SWC before they join the Big 12 Conference. Tech and Texas have split their regular season contests the past three years, with each team winning at home.

"It's going to be a great atmosphere. It's a tough place to play," said Tech coach James Dickey, whose team beat Texas 79-78 in Lubbock on Jan. 28.

"I think Texas is playing very good basketball. They've improved. In my opinion, they're a Top 20 team, and are going to be in the NCAA tournament," Dickey said.

Texas coach Tom Penders, who knows a victory over Tech would do wonders for the Longhorns' NCAA hopes, said he is impressed with how many close games the Red Raiders have won.

"They beat us by one," Penders said. "They squeaked by TCU (90-86), A&M (66-63) and squeaked by Baylor twice (75-69 and 78-72). They have done a great job in close games, and that's the sign of a mature, senior, experienced team."

In other SWC games Saturday, Southern Methodist (6-17, 2-9) will attempt to snap a six-game losing streak at Texas Christian (12-14, 3-8), which is coming off a 70-67 victory over Rice.

Baylor (8-15, 3-8), which dropped a narrow 80-72 decision to Texas on Tuesday, travels to Houston (14-9, 8-3), which has won four of its last five.

But the big showdown is in Austin. Tech, which has lost only to Eastern Michigan, comes into the game with a 16-game winning streak, while Texas has won its last six.

The difference in the first meeting was Tech's ability to handle Texas' running and pressing. Penders said he worries about being able to get the game to the feverish, up-tempo pace that his teams crave.

"It's hard to force them to do things they don't want to do," Penders said. "They have excellent ball handlers. To win, we have to play great defense, get the boards and make free throws."

Dickey said Tech will have to be in peak form.

Cowboys, Irving resolve box dispute

IRVING (AP) — Irving officials have no problem with the Dallas Cowboys expanding city-owned Texas Stadium as long as the landlords get a cut.

The Irving City Council voted unanimously Thursday in favor of the team's plan to build 21 upper-deck end zone luxury boxes by Aug. 1 — each of which will hold between 16 and 40 people.

In exchange, the Cowboys will pay Irving 4 percent of the income from the new suites. The team also agreed to pay a percentage on income made from a 1993 spate of luxury box construction, Assistant City Manager Ralph Ellis said.

The team and city officials still are negotiating whether Irving should receive a share of owner Jerry Jones' lucrative sponsorship deals with companies such as Pepsi, Nike, Dr Pepper, American Express and Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems, Irving Mayor Pro-Tem Harry Joe said.

O'Connor being sued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man Carroll O'Connor blames for his son's suicide is suing the actor, claiming he was slandered.

Harry Perzigian's lawsuit contends O'Connor was referring to him when he said last April: "He killed my wonderful son," and, "He is a partner in murder." The lawsuit, filed Wednesday, seeks unspecified damages.

Perzigian, 40, was convicted last month of possessing cocaine for sale and providing Hugh O'Connor with the drug. Perzigian was sentenced to a year in jail, fined $1,000 and placed on three years' probation.

Hugh O'Connor, despondent over a separation from his wife and a 16-year struggle with drugs, shot himself last March. He was 32.

Carroll O'Connor accused Perzigian of causing his son's death by selling him drugs. "He knew my son was in a very deadly way," O'Connor said last month.

Smooth confirmation seen for nominees

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton may have had to engage in a little arm twisting to assemble his trio of nominations for the Federal Reserve, but initial indications are the team will pass muster with the Republican Senate, even in this politically charged election year.

Clinton announced late Thursday that he would nominate Alan Greenspan to a third four-year term as Fed chairman and that he had chosen White House budget director Alice Rivlin for the No. 2 spot at the central bank.

Clinton also chose Laurence H. Meyer, a respected economic forecaster and professor at Washington University in St. Louis, for a third seat on the seven-member Fed board that has been vacant since Boston banker John LaWare resigned nearly a year ago.

First reaction to the new nominations was favorable, in sharp contrast to the strong Republican objections that had forced the withdrawal last week of Clintons' first choice for vice chairman, New York investment banker Felix Rohatyn.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, promised a speedy consideration of the nominees and said he was "not aware of any impediment" to their approval.

Sen. Connie Mack, a Banking Committee Republican who had led the opposition to Rohatyn, said, "I haven't had an opportunity to review in depth their positions on price stability, but the first indications are positive."

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, chairman of the House Banking Committee, hailed Greenspan's renomination as "extremely reassuring" to financial markets and praised Rivlin and Meyer for their "impeccable credentials" as economists.

The financial markets did seem impressed, as the Dow Jones industrial average gained 92.49 points, its biggest one-day advance in five years. Analysts gave part of the credit to market happiness with news reports of Clinton's choices, especially the reappointment of Greenspan.

The selection of Greenspan, a Republican who has good ties with the Clinton administration and Wall Street, had been expected. But Clinton's choice of Rivlin to replace Alan Blinder, who resigned in January as vice chairman, came as a surprise.

Just three weeks ago, she had bluntly signaled her desire to remain as budget director, saying "no way, no how" was she interested in the Fed post.

Asked about this by reporters in the Oval Office, Clinton joked that he hadn't "lost all my powers of persuasion. Battered and bloodied as I may be, I can still, once in a while, make a good argument."

Administration officials said Rivlin had been convinced that she was needed more at the Fed, an agency with vast powers over the economy through its control of interest rates.

Clinton's re-election chances hinge in no small part on how well the economy performs. He had wanted to nominate Rohatyn, who has been openly critical of Fed policies, arguing that the economy can grow at a faster rate than the Fed's current target of around 2.5 percent without generating higher inflation.

Clinton had complained bitterly last week after Rohatyn removed himself from consideration, saying he had hoped to spur a debate inside the Fed over whether technological changes had made it possible for the economy to grow more rapidly.

Clinton told reporters Thursday he believed Rivlin and Meyer would be able to carry out that debate. He noted that Greenspan during two days of testimony this week had acknowledged it was an issue the Fed already was studying.

Greenspan, who was first picked as Fed chairman by President Reagan in 1987 and renominated by President Bush in 1991, has fostered a close relationship with Clinton, extending crucial support to the new president's deficit reduction program in 1993 and last year defending Clinton's Mexican bailout.

Meyer, in addition to his teaching duties, also heads up an economic forecasting firm in St. Louis, and twice has won annual awards as the most accurate private forecaster, a fact Clinton noted.

Administration officials said no decision had been made on who would replace Rivlin as budget director. She took over that job when Leon Panetta was named White House chief of staff in 1994.

Report: judge claims he once beat his wife

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge who ignored a woman's plea for protection and released her ex-boyfriend, who then shot and killed her, once confided to lawyers that he had beaten his wife, the New York Post reported today.

"Even I have beat my wife! It happens, and you can't always do something about it," Judge Lorin Duckman allegedly told lawyers in his chambers during an October 1991 trial of a man accused of beating his girlfriend.

The Post said the prosecutor in the case, Bryanne Hamill, told her boss, "We have to get him off the case."

Duckman remained, and the defendant was acquitted of all charges, the Post said.

Steven Reed, a spokesman for the Bronx District Attorney's office, confirmed that Duckman had said in his chambers that he had had personal experience with domestic violence.

But Reed declined to repeat the judge's words because of a current investigation into Duckman's actions.

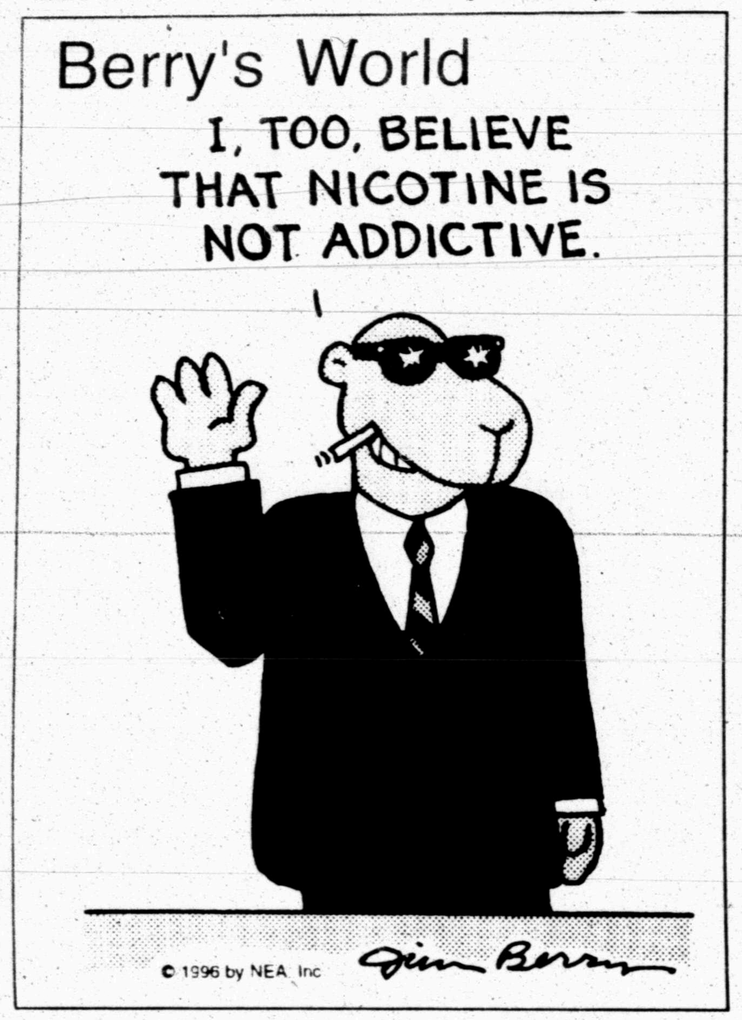

After the case, Duckman was moved to a judgeship in Brooklyn and no further action was taken, the newspaper said.

Duckman declined comment Thursday when approached by a Post reporter.

The judge has been under fire for freeing Benito Oliver, after questioning how severely he beat his girlfriend, Galina Komar. Three weeks after his release, Komar was slain and Oliver committed suicide.

The case prompted calls from Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Gov. George Pataki to have Duckman removed from the bench.

'Freeway Killer' is executed for murdering fourteen boys

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — The man known as the Freeway Killer was executed by injection early today for torturing and murdering 14 boys and dumping their nude, mutilated bodies along Southern California highways.

William Bonin, just the third person executed in the state in 30 years, declared in his final statement that the death penalty "sends the wrong message" to America's youth.

He said anyone contemplating "anything serious against the law" should first "go to a quiet place and think about it seriously."

Bonin, 49, executed in a room that used to serve as the gas chamber, was the state's first inmate put to death by injection. California had not had an execution since August 1993.

David McVicker, who was kidnapped and raped by Bonin, witnessed the execution, and proclaimed: "It is justice. Bonin is gone."

McVicker burst into tears while watching the execution and embraced a woman sitting next to him. Relatives of two victims brought photographs of them into the chamber and clutched the pictures closely as the execution proceeded.

Later, in the parking lot of a motel a few miles from San Quentin, about a dozen or so friends and relatives of victims gathered to toast Bonin's demise. McVicker passed paper cups around, then filled them with Champagne.

"I put this thing to rest a long time ago. He got the easy way out, not like the guys he killed," Steve Kendrick said.

Kendrick's brother Darin was 19 when Bonin kidnapped him from his job as a supermarket boxboy, strangled him and jammed an icepick into his ear.

Bonin had been on death row for 14 years for the murders that terrorized Southern California in 1979 and 1980.

Bonin's victims, ages 12 to 19, were sexually abused, tortured and, except for one, strangled. The exception was a 17-year-old German tourist, who was stabbed about 70 times.

"Justice has finally been done," Gov. Pete Wilson said in a statement. "I hope and pray that the families and loved ones of Bonin's victims may finally find some peace."

Bonin, who once told a TV reporter he had killed 21 people, was convicted of 10 murders in Los Angeles County and four more in Orange County. He received two death sentences.

Two of his accomplices, James Munro and Gregory Miley, testified against him in exchange for lighter sentences. Another hanged himself before trial.

In appeals, Bonin's lawyers claimed he didn't get a fair trial.

Late Thursday, a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the lawyers had waited too long to claim misconduct by the prosecution.

Fox News chief Peyronnin exits

NEW YORK (AP) — Fox News President Joe Peyronnin is leaving the fledgling division he joined a year ago and helped build into a national news operation.

Peyronnin's exit comes less than a month after News Corp. chief Rupert Murdoch's Jan. 30 appointment of former CNBC President Roger Ailes as chairman and chief executive of Fox News.

"They wanted me to stay, but at the end of the day, I wanted to lead," Peyronnin said Thursday. "Roger and I are very similar, stylistically. It's in my best interest and his best interest if I go off to some new challenge."

Peyronnin said he had stayed on to smooth the transition period, and to oversee Fox's first-ever coverage of the Iowa caucuses and New Hampshire presidential primary. He said he didn't know what his next job would be.

Under Peyronnin's tenure, Fox News began national election coverage, providing affiliates with customized news "packages" and network feeds for local evening and late newscasts.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

"HE WAS A MIGHTY HUNTER BEFORE THE LORD!"

NIMROD WAS A SON OF KUSH AND A GRANDSON OF HAM, ONE OF THE THREE SONS OF NOAH. THE EVENTS OF HIS LIFE ARE RECORDED IN A SINGLE PASSAGE (GEN. 10:8FF) WHICH, FROM THE CONCISENESS OF ITS LANGUAGE, LEAVES CONSIDERABLE UNCERTAINTY ABOUT HIS REIGN. ALL THAT WE KNOW OF NIMROD IS THAT HE WAS "A MIGHTY HUNTER BEFORE THE LORD" AND A POTENT MONARCH, THE BEGINNINGS OF WHOSE ORIGINAL KINGDOM EMBRACED BABEL, ERECH, ACCAD AND CALNEH, CITIES IN THE LAND OF SHINAR. HE WAS SOMEWHAT OF A CONQEROR BECAUSE HIS KINGDOM KEPT ADVANCING IN TERRITORY UNTIL IT HAD PROGRESSED INTO ASSYRIA, WHERE HE IS SAID TO HAVE FOUNDED THE GREAT CITY OF NINEVEH! ANY OF HIS FURTHER ACHIEVEMENTS ARE LOST IN THE ANNALS OF TIME; BUT WE STILL SPEAK OF A SKILLFUL HUNTER AS BEING A "NIMROD"--SMALL GLORY FOR ONE WHO WAS A "MIGHTY EMPEROR!"

Sentence pending

The punishment phase of the trial of a 43-year-old Texas Department of Criminal Justice inmate was continuing this morning after the jury returned a verdict of guilty Wednesday afternoon on four counts of failure to appear.

The nine-man, three-woman jury deliberated only about 30 minutes Wednesday before finding former Lubbock resident Joe Henry Anderson guilty.

The punishment phase of the trial began today at 9. The court was in recess Thursday.

Anderson is serving a 45-year prison term after being convicted by another 132nd District Court jury of threatening to kill Snyder Police Sgt. Trevlyn Pitner and County Attorney Pete Greene. His trial this week is for failure to appear on two occasions to face retaliation charges in connection with that case.

Failure to appear is a third degree felony with a maximum penalty of 10 years. Because Anderson has prior convictions, a guilty verdict could result in a maximum sentence of 99 years.

District Attorney Dana Cooley is prosecuting the case. Sweetwater attorney Lance Hall is the defense lawyer. Senior District Judge Gene Dulaney is presiding.

Grassfires raze homes

POOLVILLE (AP) — Standing ankle deep in ashes, the despair was apparent on Linda Dixon's face.

She walked through the debris of what once was her house, stopped for a moment and sighed.

"There's nothing left. Nothing," she said Thursday, her face ruddy and covered with soot from digging in 90-degree heat.

Dixon's small wood-framed ranch home was one of 65 houses destroyed by raging grass fires Wednesday and Thursday in Parker and Wise counties, fueled by gusty winds and grass so dry from drought that it crackled beneath one's feet.

In all, some 16,500 acres had burned by late morning in Parker Wise and Jack counties. Firefighters had about 70 percent of the flames contained this morning. The damage estimate, which at one time was 23,000 acres, was lowered after officials were able to survey the damage in detail.

Three other fires started Thursday.

About 40 miles west of Poolville, 6,000 acres caught fire in Stephens County, but that blaze was contained overnight. In nearby Shackelford County, 8,000 to 10,000 acres continued to burn today.

Leg belongs to known victim

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A leg found last year in the Oklahoma City bombing's rubble belonged to a previously identified woman, but the determination fails to answer completely whether there was a 169th victim, the state medical examiner said today.

Dr. Fred Jordan said he believes there will be 168 victims but that won't be determined until after further testing.

He said the victim's body will be exhumed to determine whose left leg is buried with her remains. The leg will be X-rayed and DNA testing will be done.

Jordan said the leg found May 30 was identified through further DNA testing and footprints. The limb belonged to Lakesha Levy

Pennzoil

Hagist said SACROC is one of the 10 largest oil fields in North America and therefore gives Pennzoil a lot of opportunities to increase the operating effiency in the field and the output.

"With this much volume, just a little bit of improvement produces a lot of oil," he added.

Hagist said he credits the success Pennzoil has had at SACROC to three main things.

"We have advanced technology; we're getting more things done with fewer people; and our alliances with oilfield service companies has enabled us to cut costs," said Hagist.

"We've had our people in the field take on more responsibility," he said, noting that he expects the number of employees at Pennzoil to remain the same as they are presently.

He added that Pennzoil operates an alliance with six service companies whereby their compensation is based upon performance.

"This is the trend in the industry," said Hagist. "If their people and products do the job for us and we make money, then they make money."

Hagist added that the project at SACROC has one of the highest profiles within the Pennzoil family — so much so, that Tom Hamilton, president of the parent company, Pennzoil Exploration and Production Co. (PEPCO), has made one trip to Snyder and has another planned in the coming weeks.

"The project is still losing money," said Hagist. "But all the indicators say we are headed in the right direction."

completed before the county crews return to finish the roadwork, possibly in September. By completing the utility work first, money can be saved, said Baze, who noted that utility lines will cross the roadway in some 30 to 40 places.

Earlier in Thursday's meeting, the board approved ratification of an estimate of costs of materials for the road construction — some $66,000. The 6,700 feet of road will not be asphalt-topped, but will be made of aggregate. Asphalting of the road, as well as construction of other roads at the park, will be done as needed.

In other business, the board approved the ratification of a culvert contract with Knight Construction Company for changes to one culvert and the construction of three others. The total is $40,540. The board also specified that Freese & Nichols should absorb $5,000 of the cost because the firm provided inaccurate specifications.

The board also:

—Agreed to have a CPA perform accounting functions for the corporation;

—Approved an aerial survey of the landfill in the amount of $5,000;

—Received a progress report on the burial of overhead lines and TU Electric lines;

—Heard a report that the General Medical loan note is expected to be paid;

—Approved bills and previous minutes.

After meeting in executive session to discuss staff employment contracts, the board took no action.

All board members were present, to include Baze, Gorman, Roy McQueen, John Fagin and Bill Seale.
