Portales May Have Illuminated Gridiron

Plans are being formulated to light the football field at the college for next year's games. Officials plan to use the field for both high school and Junior college.

The poles used in the lighting system have been donated by Leon Jones of the P-F Grocery Company and the labor used will be obtained from a FERA project. Some captital is yet needed for purchasing equipment for illumination of the gridiron.

With the erection of the light fixtures, many business men who would not be able to witness the games otherwise, will be able to attend night games.

New Manager To Take Over Relief Office

The local Relief office is now under the management of J. N. Gladding, who came here recently from Lovington where he has been connected with the same kind of work.

Mr. Gladding fills the place of Richard Gardner, who left for the northern part of the state, where he will have charge of a similar work.

A resident of Albuquerque, Mr. Gladding has lived in several parts of the state where he has been connected with relief work. He comes to Portales highly recommended for his ability in this work. He and his family will occupy the J. G. Greaves home during their absence of a few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Greaves will visit with relatives in Florida, and attend the National Editorial Association in New Orleans on their return trip.

Farm Holiday Head To Speak Here Saturday

Arthur W. Cameron, president of the Farmers Holiday Association, will be in Portales Saturday, April 6th, to discuss with the farmers their needs with reference to feed, seeds, oil, gas and repairs for machinery.

Cameron is in communication with the Soil Erosion service in Washington and will have an important message for the farmers.

It is important that every farm community in Roosevelt County be represented at a meeting in which Mr. Cameron will give all the facts which he has obtained with reference to getting an appropriation on a work relief basis. If the farmers fail now—immediately—to present their cause they will have no one to blame but themselves if things do not work out satisfactorily in the future.

Cameron will speak at the Court House in Portales at 1 o'clock, Saturday, April 6th. No meeting in the past has been as important as the meeting to be held next Saturday, said Cameron, and he appeals to all farmers to make special effort to be present.

Last Rites Held For H. B. Cooper

Funeral services for H. B. Cooper, 76, were held from the family residence last Monday near Richland. Mr. Cooper died Saturday.

Mr. Cooper came to Roosevelt county from Tennessee 20 years ago. Since that time he has been actively engaged in ranching and farming in the Richland community. Mrs. Cooper preceded him to her grave some time ago.

Several children survive.

D. Z. Little, local minister, was in charge of the services with Wheeler-Johnson mortuary in charge of funeral arrangements.

Interment was made in Richland cemetery.

FARMERS DAY AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

On Tuesday, April 23, the Chamber of Commerce will hold a farmers day meeting, at which each member will have as his guest one or more farmers from various sections of the county. The program is in the hands of the Agricultural Committee, and every effort will be made to make this meeting something worthy while for the farmers of Roosevelt county.

SOFTBALL TO BE FEATURED IN SPORTDOM

Officials Hope For Lighted Field For Games May 1

Softball will be the king of sports again this year in Portales. The Portales Softball League is being formed and have recently elected officers. Ray Bonner was elected president and will head the league during the coming summer months. Homer Barnett was elected secretary.

The president and secretary, with the managers of the individual teams will act as a board of directors, and will have control over any controversies that may arise.

According to Bonner, the league will be limited to eight teams with 15 men on each team. At present five teams have made their entries and the other three places will be filled shortly. April 15 is the closing date for making entries.

Before actual playing gets on, May 1, the officials hope to have a lighted field for night games. At the present time nothing definite has been decided, but Mr. Bonner seemed confident that the lighted field would be obtained before before then.

The board of directors met last night to discuss rules and regulations and official announcements concerning this will be published in the next issue of The News.

SICKNESS IN COUNTY IS ON AN INCREASE

Most Cases Are of Minor Nature Says County Health Officer

According to Dr. E. T. Hensley, county health officer, there is more sickness in the county this month than last. However, states Dr. Hensley, all cases, with the exception of a few cases of pneumonia, are all of minor nature.

German measles seems to take the lead, with several cases reported in various parts of the county and city. Mumps also is reported raging in the county. One case of small pox was quarantined here Monday morning.

Contrary to conditions in different parts of the nation, there doesn't seem to be any more sickness here than is ordinarily reported this time of the year. Dr. Hensley said there had been no cases of dust pneumonia reported in the county. February showed an increase over January in number of patients. However, March was about like February with less serious cases.

Sickness at this time, stated Dr. Hensley, is more or less of a minor nature, with a few cases of pneumonia in different parts of the county.

May Have Cactus Garden At College

Tentative plans are under way for a cactus garden for the local college. It will be placed between the college building and the Portales-Roswell highway.

Although definite plans have not been completed and approved, it is thought that the triangle will be landscaped, and in each corner a triangle cactus garden will be formed, with the possibility of Yucca in the center.

Near the center of the main triangle it is planned to have the state emblem embellished with a sun dial.

Dr. Gersbacher, professor of science, and Francis Del Dosso, professor of art, are in charge of actual work.

Miss J. C. Whitley made a business trip to her home in Tatum Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Shaffer were shopping in Portales Monday.

College Will Enter Contestants In Carlsbad Meet

Plans are being formulated to take the cast and sponsors of H. M. S. Pinafore, presented at the high school auditorium here last Friday night under the direction of Harry Taylor, professor of music i nthe Junior College, to Roswell for the closing performance of the Great Southwestern Music Festival which meets there April 10, 11 and 12.

Bands, orchestras and choruses from Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico will participate in the festival during the three days. Joseph Maddy of Wisconsin and T. P. Giddings of Minnesota, two of the leading music educators of the United States, will be guest conductors.

President of the Junior College, Donald MacKay, is on the advisory committee and Harry Taylor, professor of music at the Junior College, is vice president of the committee.

Opening on Wednesday of next week, the music festival will run over a period of three days. It is being planned to give the opera H. M. S. Pinafore Saturday night to close the meeting. Although definite information cannot be given at this time, Mr. Taylor has expressed his opinion as being favorable, and soon as work comes from those in charge Mr. Taylor will make his announcement.

Simultaneously, The Tri-State Music Festival will be held in Carlsbad. This will consist of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The local college will enter seven contestants in vocal solos, male quartette, girls quartette, and probably the boys chorus, girls chorus and mixed chorus.

The local entrants have been under the direction of Mr. Taylor and are expected to make considerable progress in the event.

FILE CHARGES OF ASSAULT AGAINST TWO

Milnesand Boys Arraigned In Justice Walker's Court Here

Charges of asault with a deadly weapon were filed in Justice of the Peace Walker's court here Thursday by A. M. Parkinson against Frank Dunaway and Lawson Monteith. Assault was made, according to the charges, against Preston T. Parkinson, son of A. M. Parkinson.

Bob Poindexter went to Milnesand where he found the boys and brought them to town. They were arraigned before Justice Walker. Both plead not guilty to the charge, and Justice Walker fixed their bonds at $250.00 each, pending action of the district court. Dunaway made bond and Monteith was lodged in jail after he failed to make the required bond.

Claudell Well Marking Time

Work on the Claudell Development Co. well on the T. A. Wilmes ranch 31 miles southwest of Portales, in the Claudell neighborhood, is shut down pending decision of the New York office as to whether they test out the Glorietta sand or pull back to the lime at 3300 feet.

A good showing of oil and gas has been found in this sand, and the well has been plugged back ready to cement the casing at this depth to make a test.

Mr. Donahoe left for New York by airplane Sunday, to confer with the New York office.

If oil in paying quantities is not found in this sand, then the well will be plugged back to 3300 feet where a good showing was found in the lime, and the lime will be acid treated.

Those in charge say that the well will not be abandoned, but a thorough test will be made in both formations, if necessary.

Much interest has been aroused in this test, and oil interests are keeping a close watch as to the results.

Indications are that other tests will be made in this territory.

There is also considerable activity in the southeast part of the county and several blocks of acreage have been assembled.

Indications are that there will be considerable play in this county within the next few months.

Big Bad Wolf Is Due for a Ride

The Ozark Trail Monument, erected in 1930, is being torn from its foundation this week, following an order of the city council.

The monument has stood in front of the city hall for 15 years, giving the distances to almost every part of the state, as well as ports of other states. It was erected by the city in 1920. When it was completed it was turned over to the Ozark Trail Association.

According to Ordinance No. 64 of the City of Portales, the citizens proposed the erection of this huge monument, or rather a pyramid in the center of Liberty street, midway between Main and Colorado. The Ozark Trail Association was to have the ownership, and protect its integrity and make it sacred to the exalted purpose for which it was intended.

At the time the monument was erected it was on the main highway coming through Portales, and since the route has been changed to State street the city felt that the "landmark" was of no further use to the city, as traffic never came over this street, making the signs, for which the erection was intended, obsolete.

Many people were here to help lay the "corner stone," and will have the privilege of seeing it broken into small pieces and hauled away. It has been the "parking center" for many people, while for others it has meant a hazard. According to stories of old-timers, many automobiles have jammed into this structure and bounced off like a rubber ball. The "scars" near the foot of the heavy piece will substantiate this assertion.

County Forensic Set For Friday, April 12

According to County Superintendent A. C. Woodburn, the county forensic will be held here Friday, April 12.

Tentative plans for rules and regulations have been formulated. The News will carry a complete schedule of the events in next week's paper.

As has been the custom for several years, the Portales Valley News will give the trophy for the school making the most points. Richland won this cup last year in the spelling contest, making three consecutive times. The cup became their permanent property. This makes two cups Richland has won.

Contests for the "B" division will begin in the high school auditorium at 2 p. m. Friday afternoon, April 12. Contests in the high school division will also be held in the high school.

Judges of the contest will be selected from the local college.

REI IEF WORK IN COUNTY IS HALTED

Officials at Washington Say Figures Below January

Orders were received at the local relief office Wednesday night to stop all work relief and all direct relief immediately, owing to the uncertainity of the passage of the relief bill now before congress.

Orders were also to cut the office force to the minimum.

This relief will be stopped in Roosevelt county as well as the rest of the state. The following gives the status of the relief bill before congress on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, April 3.— (AP) Congressional conferees on the controverted $4,880,000,000 relief bill were called to meet late today at a time when it was reliably reported an agreement was in sight to compromise the direct labor contest.

Authoritative reports were that the two groups probably would get together on a provision requiring that only one-fourth instead of one-third of the funds allocated to states be spent for "direct labor."

One leader said the purpose of the meeting was to at least broach this or a similar compromise and the chances were apparently good for an agreement.

This move to break the deadlock was taken shortly after Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, announced an encouraging drop in February relief rolls below January figures.

COLLEGE WILL HAVE ENTRIES IN MUSIC MEET

Contestants From 3 States To Meet At Carlsbad

The Eastern New Mexico Junior College will send contestants to Carlsbad April 1, 11 and 12 to participate in the Tri-State Music Festival which is scheduled to meet there on those dates.

According to Harry Taylor, professor of music at the local college, the junior college will have seven entries in vocal numbers, the male quartette, girls quartette and probably the boys chorus, girls chorus and a mixed chorus.

Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico will be represented at the meeting.

Local entrants have been under the direction of Mr. Taylor for some time, and are expected to make considerable progress in the meet. Members of the contestants who will make the trip from here have appeared at different times in various events in and around Portales, and according to those who have heard them, the belief that they will come up to the expectations of festival authorities are high. Several local people are expected to go along with the students.

It is thought the trip will be made in private cars from this city.

On last Friday, Turner Hensley and Coe Howard left for Washington.

Mr. Hensley is representing the Portales Chamber of Commerce, the City of Portales and the County Commissioners in regard to securing Federal aid for public works.

Coe Howard went on private business, but while there will lend his aid in securing everything that he can for Roosevelt county.

Mrs. S. A. Jackson is in Brownwood visiting her father and brothers this week.

Will Have Exhibit At Junior College

According to Francis Del Dosso, professor of art at the Eastern New Mexico Junior College, that department will have an art exhibit of the Rio Grande Painters, a group of artists of New Mexico. The exhibit will be at the local college from April 15 to April 30.

The exhibit is made possible through a membership of the art department with the American Federation of Art. Many exquisite pieces will be on display, including both water color and oil paintings.

The Rio Grande painters are a small group of younger artists living in the Southwest with a distinct preference for the landscape of New Mexico and its freedom from inhibitions. This same freshness of the great open spaces and a complete independence of the urban irrelevancies which have crept into the art of painting are reflected in their work. They are neither a society nor a guild; they have no theory of art nor way of life to impart to an already too indoctrinated world. Their one claim to a communal existence is a central post office address in Santa Fe. Schooled on different cities and circumstances, they advocate nevertheless a moderate modernism which is the order of the day. Each one is affected by the changing lights and bleak contours of the desert of New Spain. As a group they paint as they please and not in imitation of each other.

This exhibition is circulated by the American Federation of Arts, a national organization for the cultivation of the arts, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Following is a list of paintings that will be exhibited at the college:

E. Brody: Accordion Player, oil! Tamarisk Tree, The Ranch, Desert Farm, July at Tesuque, and Homestead, water color.

Paul Lantz: Street in Alcalde, Pecos, Tillie, Storm, Landscape with White Horse, Santo, Navajo Dancers, oil.

Anne Stockton: Winter In the Santa Fe Mountains, oil.

Cady Wells: Trees at Honde, Penitente Procession, Twining, New Mexico, water color.

The Rio Grande painters are a group of artists who have settled in Santa Fe to live and work. The exhibition of the Rio Grande painters in Santa Fe are held in their own little gallery in the Sena Plaza, where they frequently invite guest artists to show.

Lea County Surprised Petroleum Operators

HOBBS, N. M., April 3. (UP)—Fifteen years ago Lea county was regarded as a poor bet for oil operators.

The New Mexico oil possibilities were outlined in a bulletin issued by the University of New Mexico in 1920. The report indicated that Lea county was not a promising place for oil wells.

There are 202 wells producing oil in Hoobs field, in Lea county, today and the field has an estimated potential capacity of 2,179,464 barrels a day. It has become the third largest oil field in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Waggener, Oklahoma City, arrived Sunday to be at the bedside of T. E. Burnett, who underwent a major operation at General hospital Saturday. Mrs. Waggener is a sister to Mr. Burnett.

NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION Member 1935

THE SPIRIT THAT MADE AMERICA

This editorial won the silver cup award 1934 by Alpha Phi Gamma, national journalisitic fraternity, for the best editorial appearing in a member newspaper of the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

Cooperation always have been the dominant note in America's national anthem. It was so in the days of the country's cradling and it is so now in the days of its vigorous prime—the dominant note.

In the beginning it was, of course, a note of necessity. The colonists, and after them the frontiersmen who pushed our boundaries steadily westward to the blue Pacific, banded themselves together for the common purpose of mutual protection and mutual advancement.

In union they found strength, and through union they built America.

Today the call for those same virtues that actuated our pioneering forefathers is no less urgent. We are passing through a time of transition in which, if we are to emerge safely and go on building, the note and spirit of cooperation are as vitally needed as they ever were in the era of the colonist and the frontiersman.

The difference today is that instead of facing a known physical foe we are embattled against a mental enemy more subtly dangerous and yet much less difficult of conquest.

That enemy is our own fear, our own distrust and our own selfishness.

Our war against the depression is not a single-handed affair. It is a conflict into whose vortex all kinds and classes have been swept. There has been no avenue of evasion, no opportunity of escape. In one way or another, to greater or less degree, all of us have been conscripted—the rich and the poor, the retired and the jobless, employer and employee, man, woman and child.

It is everybody's fight for the reason that everybody's welfare is at stake; and it has not yet been won, after five bitter years of battle, because our defense against it has lacked the unanimity of old.

There have been slackers—the coupon-clipping shylock who stubbornly insists upon his full pound of flesh, the housewife who continually bemoans the economy her husband's salary cut has enforced upon her; the blindly unreasonable and unpatriotic employer who persists in paying depression wages out of booming profits; the equally unreasonable and unpatriotic employee who expects boom-time wages out of depression deficits; the charity parasite who would not work if he had a job.

They are like soldiers in a mad revolt, these slackers, deserting the ranks at the hour of greatest need, leaving theeir comrades to fight on alone, concerned only with their personal welfare when with the added stimulus of their America of the colonist and the frontiersman, and they should not be tolerated now. On them, and sparely upon them, rests the blame for prolonging the depression and retearding recovery.

How much better indeed if, instead of continuing to harbor petty enmities and indulge in petty feuds, we all of us admitted the impotency of our divided attacks, abandoned our foolish attitudes of aloofness, and here and now banded together as a wiser goneration of Americans banded together for the common purpose of mutual protection and mutual advancement.

How much better if all of us—the strong and the weak, the rich and the poor, employer and employee particularly—met upon a plane of common understanding, recognized that the malignancy in our midst is sapping the strength of each and all of us alike, and henceforth fought shoulder to shoulder instead of face to face.

Perhaps when all other means have failed and all other hope is gone we will see that this is the only course to pursue. Even then, if we must wait until that extremity, we will have made no discovery. We will merely have recaptured something of the will and spirit that overcame far greater odds and triumphed over far more fomidable foes—the will and spiit that made America.—News-Herald, Highland Park (Northeast Los Angeles), Calif.

WHITHER DO WE GO FROM HERE?

That the nation is still facing a crisis, there is no shadow of a doubt.

There are millions on relief, and millions who have no intention of getting off of relief.

The plans of President Roosevelt for the relief of human misery are worthy, but his lieutenants are drafted from an army of politically unfit job-seekers.

What the nation needs is a system of administering this relief—better still, strike the word "relief" from the vocabulary, and provide work.

This public work to end unemployment should be of a nature that would not wreck the business structure of the nation.

It should be of a nature that would tend to earn a living through normal channels.

Better still for the paternal government to provide a huge work program, moving the workers and their families into sanitary camps, where clothing, medical attention, food and schooling of the children could be provided.

Let the work be in the nature of two transcontinental highways, from the east to the west, from the north to the south, an all-weather highway, with four traffic lanes.

Let this work be under the supervision of the army engineers, and army officers.

Let the wages be small, so that those enlisting in this work would not want to make a life time job of it, but who would be willing to seek private employment at the first opportunity.

Such a program would not compete with private business, and yet it would provide sanitary shelter, food and clothing for the worthy needy.

To put such a program over, sectional lines would have to be forgotten, and community fights for the location of such a program would have to be laid aside.

This program would be workable, and millions of those on relief rolls would welcome this opportunity to rid their name from the stench of direct charity.

EASY MONEY

Were an analysis of the present economic conditions made along the proper lines, it probably would be found that the greatest trouble was easy money.

Thousands have chased after easy money, instead of doing constructive work to make the nation a better place n which to live.

Easy money—easy come, easy go, is the general rule.

Were one to make a careful survey of the relief rolls and the transient camps, it would be found that there are a number who at one time were counted as wealthy.

In most instances their money came easy and slipped through their fingers.

The greatest financiers of today can look back in their lives when they had a struggle to keep the wolf from the door.

They learned the worth of money and that peennies saved soon grew into dollars.

They learned that by conservative investments that the dollars grew into thousands.

The easy come easy go fortunes accomplished very little worthwhile to the nation or to their fellow men.

Were the wealth of the nation evenly divided today, it would be but a short while before it was back into the hands of the present holders of wealth.

Many of the nation's millionaires started their fortune by selling news paper on the city streets, and there is no better school of business or of finance.

SOIL EROSION

While the matter of soil erosion is under consideration, the planting of a shelter belt through the Black Water Draw should be considered.

A belt of trees from Melrose to Muleshoe would form a wind break that would be of untold value to Roosevelt and Curry counties.

This tree belt would form an ideal cover for wild life and make this section a hunters' paradise.

With shallow water throughout this belt, trees would make a rapid growth, and in a few years would pay the cost in posts.

While the thoughts of the government are turned to the planting of trees is a good time to press this project.

Not only would it help to prevent soil erosion, but it would also conserve moisture and increase the rainfall.

By all means lets have this timber belt.

SOCIAL ANNEX
By THE BOSS

Now getting away from the press of New Mexico, we will give a resume of Jane Anne.

That Jane Anne is in a class by herself is proved.

She has a pup that has developed the habit of sucking eggs.

One day last week Jane Anne was missing and was found in the back yard.

The pup had pulled two eggs out of the hen house, and he was sucking one and Jane Anne the other.

This week will finish the Social Annex for several weeks, as we areplanning to leave Monday on a vaction of several weeks.

This will be good news to the readers of The News, as they will have a real newspaper while we are gone.

The greatest kick the press of the state has had since Dana Johnson held his famous beauty contest, is the analyzing of the newspapers of the state by the Los Cruces News.

And boy, is he taking them for a cleaning.

We had the misguided impression that New Mexico had some fairly good newspapers, until we read some of these pannings.

S. Boyd Hilton must be a reader of Bobby Burns, and is making us see ourselves as others see us.

But the fun will begin when the Press Association meets at Hot Springs, and the gang is all there.

Boyd had better come with a regiment of machine gun militia.

According to S. Boyd Hilton of the Las Cruces Daily News, who has taken upon himself the job of telling the people of the state through the colsmns of his valuable paper the whys and why-nots of papers in New Mexico, we were somewhat subdued over the articles he waste concerning the Portales Valley News. Mr. Hilton has given so many of the papers over the state their share of the "publicity" that we rather feared our time, even though we felt, as we have always tried, that our paper was in the highlights, and that our ads, news, and make-up was of a superior type. We gladly quote Mr. Hilton in his opinion of The News. The quotation follows:

New us younger editors should try to give a few extra minutes each week to note the efforts of J. G. Greaves, editor of that good old Democratic weekly over at Portales.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Greaves once while we were editing The Hobbs News and trying to persuade the state to fight drastic proration in the Hobbs field.

That's the nearest we ever came to beating our breast and busting buttons—and it gained us exactly nothing.

However, if we did nothing else we made the acquaintance of Mr. Greaves in his own plant. At that time The Portales News was a little on the lag but in recent months the paper has taken a splurge.

Displayed on a news counter by the side of MOST OF OUR STATE DAILIES we believe the weekly News would have a much better chance of sale to a visitor than the dailies.

The makeup is nothing if not excellent—and the articles are well written.

Of course, Mr. Greaves runs a Democratic paper—but he admits it.

Every editor has the right to choose whether he shall throw in with a political party and rise or fall with it each campaign—or stand independent and take a chance that neither party will ever be strong enough to get it down in the gutter—because it won't line up.

Representing a fine section of the state, The Portales Valley News today is doing a fine job in the eastern part of the state. And as we have repeatedly said, the surest way to know that the paper is popular is to note what the business men think of a paper.

The advertisements in The News are well prepared and the paper is well printed.

That is a sure sign that The News is popular.

Before a merchant wants to spend money with a newspaper, he first wants to know how the newspaper stands with the community. Therefore, by the simplest sort of deduction, it is an easy matter to rate a newspaper's standing in a community.

If it is full of boiler plate—instead of ads—it's dead. Or the town's dead.

Tomorrow: Now after four days of soft pedaling the rough stuff we will return to the arena tomorrow with the mailed fist and the poison pen and do things and go places with Hub Kane's Optic—the spiked club of the New Mexico press.

TOWNER, Colo., April 3. (UP)—A tall quite youth of 17 today lived again, in memory, through 33 terrible hours in a stalled, blizzard-swept school bus, from which he emerged, four years ago, a national hero.

He was Bryan Untiedt, farm boy whose heroic battle in that terrible spring blizzard of 1931 to save 20 schoolmates from death made front-page news in every paper of the land, and took him, finally, to Washington to be the White House guest of President and Mrs. Hoover.

In that grim fight against the bitter cold which filled the snow-buried bus, Bryan stripped to his shirt and overalls, that younger children might have his warm outer clothing. He led them in singing, he slapped their faces to keep them awake, knowing that if they slept they would die, he kept them marching up and down the bus aisle for warmth, or he huddled them in little groups, that they might share each others warmth.

With other older children—he smashed the bus seats to keep a fire going as long as possible.

Five children died—his own small brother among them—despite all his efforts, and rescuers who found the bus soon after noon on Mar. 27, 1931, found his face and hands and feet frosen. He fell unconscious after he had told his father, H. A. Untiedt, who was one of the rescue party:

"Save me till last—get the others out first."

Talks to Correspondents

Today, as he talked with this correspondent about his memories, the shadow of those awful hours still clung, for minutes at a time, in his dark eyes, only to be dispelled by laughter as he recalled happy memories of the months that followed. Many of those pleasant memories centered about his White House visit and his relations with the Hoover family, from whom he still hears on special occasion.

"I was scared and bewildered during the trip to Washington, and when I reached the White House," he said, in recalling the week he spent there, from April 29 to May 5, 1931.

"But the President and Mrs. Hoover were so kind I had a wonderful time. I talked alone with the president, and I watched him play medicine ball in the mornings.

"Most of all, I guess, I played table tennis with Mrs. Hoover. She was a good player. I liked their dog, and the gun factory they took me to see.

Likes Lndebrgh

"When I talked to the president I told him I wanted to be a pilot like Colonel C. A. Lindbergh, but I guess the beest thing for me is farming or stock-raising."

That's Bryan't ambition now, by the way—to be a stockraiser, especially to raise fine horses.

"I'll never forget, either, that picnic we had on the banks of the Potomac. Mrs. Hoover sent my mother the table cloth we used. She had bought it in Japan.

Several months after the White House visit, Bryan made a four-month lecture tour of the Pacific coast. That trip did much to crystalise his love of horses. He rode Tom Mix's famous Tony, and the thoroughbred stock on the ranch of W. K. Kellogg.

Since then he has been at home. He attended high school two years at Holly, not far distant, but now has given up school, he believes for good.

"These are kind of hard times," he explained. "We don't seem to be getting anything but dust and wind, instead of rain and snow. Much as I hate dust storms, tho I'm glad we're not having any more blizzards."

His life is now that of the average farm boy. He shares the work with his father and mother, and plays with his two young brothers and three sisters.

The boyish humor that helped endear him to the nation still survives. His mother says one of his favorite jokes is to take his 7-month-old sister, Faith Madeline, on his knee, and give her a rubber cigar on which to chew. Mrs. Untiedt, of course, never fails to be shocked at the sight of her baby cutting her teeth on the cigar, which Bryan bought in Washington as a homecoming gift to his father.

Almost every day he sees some of those schoolmates, who survived with him the tragedy. Tuesday night with his family, he attended as usual the annual memorial services, held each year since 1931, in the little community church, not far from which stands a crude stone, carved with this inscription:

"Where the bus stalled in the blizzard of March 26 and 27, 1931.

In the Holly cemetery, the five children who died in the blizzard and the bus driver, who frose to death three miles from the bus as he sought aid, lie buried in a common plot, marked with a large monument. They were:

Robert O. Brown, 12; Mary Louis Stonebraker, 14; Kenneth Johnson, 14; Orlo Untiedt, 8; Mary Louis Miller, 9; and her father, Carl E. Miller, 30, the bus driver.

Girl Hero Absent

Tonight most of the survivors with their families were at the church. There were hymns and prayers for the dead.

Clara Smit, girl-hero of the tragedy, did not attend. Nearly 20 now, and very pretty, she is taking a secretarial course in Pueblo, given to her in memory of her heroism.

Bryan was reluctant to talk about the harrowing experience in the stranded bus.

Grim Remembrances

"Of course I remember every minute of it," he said. "It doesn't seem four years ago, and I probably never shall forget it. The bewildering hours, the agonising efforts to start the bus, the unsuccessful attempts to find help, the crazy imaginings that we could hear horse and wagons, or see the school house nearby—it all comes back too plainly.

"Whenever I read about snowstorms, I worry for fear children are in it. When I smell paper burning, I think how we tried to keep a fire going.

"I hate to hear kids cry. When I do I remember how they cried when the fuel ran out, and the bus began to get cold. I have never been as tired since as when we jumped and jumped around in the bus to keep warm, then huddled together to share our warmth.

"I never try to think of it anymore. I remember the happy days afterward, and how nice everyone was, instead. But I know I never can forget those hours, when we knew some of the children were freezing, and we couldn't prevent it."

Mrs. Malcolm Hunt returned home Sunday from Canyon, Texas.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Maybe it's the motion picture press agent influence, or maybe it's just the California's pride in the size of things that grow in their fertile state.

In any event, the growers of California ripe olives got together and contrived a list of names for their product that ought to make the movie press agents envious.

To begin with, it was agreed that no California olive possibly could be small. So the smallest size marketed is to be known as "medium." And after that the sizes progress as follows: Large, larger, mammoth, giant, jumbo colossal, super-colossal.

It's all been put down in black and white in the California marketing agreement for ripe olives, and has been given the final stamp of authority by approval of the agricultural adjustment administration.

Each spring brings thousands of colige and high school students to Washington. Most of them come on fleeting sight-seeing trips which give them a glimpse at congress, the White House and a few other points of interest. By contrast is the intensive week's study made by 14 Yale university students interested in national affairs.

The Yale men, selected competitively, observed sessions of congress, sat in on hearings before congressional committees and various New Deal agencies, and were accorded special conferences by many important officials who explained the nner workings of the government.

Rep. Thomas H. Cullen, D., N. Y., is one congressman who wants to know just exactly what he's voting on and isn't afraid to hold up the proceedings until he finds out.

The parliamentary situation was complicated when the house began voting on the house bills. Motions and rules were so tangled up it was difficult to keep straight just whether a yes or no vote at a given time would be a vote for the Patman bill or for the Vinson bill. So Cullen called on Speaker Joe Byrns to explain the whole situation in words of one syllable. Like a school teacher lecturing a class Byrns explained.

Editor A. L. Glassman of the Ogden City, Utah, Standard Examiner has an idea which would put a crimp in congress if he can put it across.

Glassman has written an open letter to Senators William E. Borah, R., Ida., and William H. King, D., Utah, in an effort to get them to sponsor his proposal. So far both Borah and King have maintained silent.

Glassmann's proposition is very simple. The only trouble with it from the congressman's standpoint is that it will probably impress him as pretty much like giving a man a gun and telling him to put it to his head and pull the trigger.

The Utah editor wants to limit the number of bills introduced in congress to 288 a session.

In view of the fact something over 6,000 bills have been introduced so far this session, in the house and slightly under 2500 bills and resolutions in the senate, the Glassman plan would mark a real upheaval.

In the session the house clerks have between 12,000 and 15,000 bills to care for and the senate a little less than half that number.

Glassmann's plan would mark a sweeping chance in congressional procedure.

No senator could sponsor more than three bills and the total would be limited to 288 or three times the number of senators.

The only exception to the rule would be "routine measures covering appropriations, etc."

Since the great rule of the bills introduced are private bills for relief of some constituent, the actual reduction in bills probably would not be so great as might be anticipated.

Glassmann first suggested his plan for the Utah legislature, it received such favorable comment that he worked out a similar one for congress.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Brewer have purchased the Dr. Means house. A new roof has been put on the house and the interior is being redecorated. They will move in as soon as the work is finished.

WASHINGTON SNAP-SHOTS

(By Industrial Press Service)

There is one answer, as Washington see it, to Huey Long and Father Coughlin—and that is a return of prosperity with the re-employment of many of the idle. Until that comes either this pair or others of their type who promise the people in glowing terms things that cannot be accomplished will continue to have their following.

This is largely the reason why there is less steam behind the administration's drive for reforms at this session of congress and more emphasis on recovery, why sound democratic thinkers at the Capitol are warning against "leftist" legislation, why the "Brain Trust" has been more or less isolated. Their schemes were all right so long as the United States was drifting in the land of fantasy. Now, despite Coughlin and Long and the others there are definite indications that the people are tired of playing with trick legislative panaceas and want sound doctrines which have led to recovery in the past. Social reforms can wait.

Mark Sullivan, one of the better known political analysts writing on this subject recently said:

"If Mr. Roosevelt wants to escape the menace of Senator Long let him abandon that presidential attitude which Mr. Walter Lippman called 'punitive and terroristic attacks on private business.' Most of us here in Washington think that, for the present certainly, Mr. Roosevelt had abandoned this attitude."

One of the amusing stories in the Capital today is told on Miss Frances Robinson, secretary to General Johnson. A friend of hers had two Welch terrier puppies, one named "General" and the other "Blue Eagle." "General" was given to Miss Robinson. "Blue Eagle" died a couple of months ago, just about the time General Johnson was lamenting that the new NRA administrators were killing his bird.

While the nation is arguing the merits of the General's debate with Father Coughlin and Senator Long, the General is enjoying it. He has his greatest fun when he is fighting an issue and this has given him one where he feels that he is rendering a service by answering false theories.

INVITATIONS

There is, so I read, a concerted movement in Washington among Catholics, Jews and Protestants to emphasize in the nation's capital the importance of religion and church attendance in a democracy.

This reminds me that public health is applied religion and that public health in a democracy is very closely bound up with the vitality of religion. Organized public health was born in England as a direct result of the Methodist revival which was itself an expression of the awakening religious conscience of a democray. Says Sir John Simon, historian of English sanitary institutions, "The home missions which were so active could not but bring back to the congregations a practical and sympathetic knowledge of the hard struggles, and the often cruel sufferings, which the poorer masses of mankind have to endure.....So, from the middle of the (18th) century onward, the evangelical revival carried among its chief consequences, that man learnt to feel new solicitudes for man; and under the new influence, new associations were extensively organised for dealing with the various sorts of social evil."

If Public Health is mothered by Religion it is fathered by Science. The recognition of its parentage will convince us that, in a democracy, conference is as necessary to public health as church membership is to religion. We meet only once a year. But when we do meet the New Mexico Public Health association has need of your fellowship and advice. This year we meet in Santa Fe on April 30 and May 1st. The occasion will be memorabye both for its discussions of the new Health District act and for the distinguished national hygienists, such as Prof. Walter Brown of Stanford university, the president-elect of the American Public Health association, who will direct our thinking. This is a personal invitation to you to attend this meeting and to gather from it wisdom and inspiration for the good of your own community.

CROP AND FEED LOANS AVAILABLE BY APRIL 1

Emergency crop and feed loans from the $60,000,000 fund just appropriated by congress will be available to farmers and stockmen in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico by April 1, according to an announcement from R. B. McElveen, acting regional manager of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan office of Wichita, which serves these four states.

He said the emergency loans will be made only to farmers who are unable to obtain elsewhere, supplies, feed, or the necessary credit to purchase such items, and not to any applicant who can obtain credit from any other source, including production credit associations.

As in the past, applications for emergency crop loans will be made to the county crop loan committees already set up in each county.

According to the announcement, the maximum amount of an emergency crop loan this year is $500, the minimum $10. An applicant for an emergency crop loan of $400 or above in Kansas and Colorado, Oklahoma $200 and above, and in New Mexico $300 and above, must first have made application for a loan and have been rejected by the local production credit association serving his county.

Loans will be made only to applicants who are cooperating directly with the production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment administration or who are not proposing to incerase their 1935 production in a way detrimental to the success of the program. A statement to this effect is contained in each loan application.

Mr. McElveen explained that although the maximum emergency crop loan to one farmer is $500, no loan for the growing or harvesting of crops may be made in an amount greater than is actually needed in each case to purchase seed and fertilizer necessary for production. The fund is appropriated specifically for emergency purposes and must be used to assist the maximum number of such needs, he said.

He also pointed out that a considerable part of the funds must be used to assist farmers whose operating resources have been depleted temporarily as a result of the drought last summer. Consequently, these farmers are now in need of emergency loans to begin the new crop year.

The loans will also be made for the following and for production and purchase of feed for livestock, but not for the purpose of purchasing livestock or machinery, or for the payment of taxes, debts, or interest on debts.

As in the case of loans for crop production, those for the purpose of growing or purchasing feed for livestock must correspond to the actual producing or purchasing cost, with due consideration to prevailing costs of feed, seed, fertilizers or other items in the section in which the loan is made. Loans for production or purchase of livestock feed will be limited to the amount required until the time when the borrower's pasturage, forage, or grain crops are available; and may not exceed $10 per head per month for horses and mules; $4.50 for cattle, 50 cents for sheep, 35 cents for goats, $1.00 for hogs, and $1.00 per acre for forage crops.

Security for the emergency crop loans will consist of a first lien on the crops financed or on livestock to be fed. Tenants must obtain a waiver from the landowner subordinating his interest in the crops grown with loan proceeds; but the landowner is in no way obligated for repayment of such loan.

Borrowers who obtain loans of $100 or less will receive the loan proceeds in one initial payment, while loans in excess of $100 may be paid in installments as required to meet the expense of seed, feed, fertilizers or other needs.

The loan proceeds are disbursed by the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan office, located at Wichita, Kansas.

Discuss Irish Potato Bill at Meeting Here

At the close of the nematode meeting, H. C. Stewart discussed the Irish Potato Bill, which is soon to be presented to the United States legislative bodies. This bill is sponsored by the large potato growers in the large potato growing states. The main text of the bill is that it asks that the Agricultural Adjustment Act be amended to include Irish potatoes as a basic commodity. This bill, if passed by Congress, would not contain an expiration date, as do all other parts of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, but would carry in full force as long as a majority of the potato growers wished it to. At the present time the bill provides that each individual grower be allowed one vote; but there is a move on, sponsored by the Eastern growers to provide for votes according to acreage.

This bill, if passed, would require each grower to establish a base acreage (now or never) which would consist of an average of the highest three years out of the last seven. He would also be required to establish his production base which would consist of an average of his highest three years out of the last seven. The bill then proposes a ¾c per pound tax on potatoes sold in order to control production. They would then issue tax exemption certificates on percentage basis to all producers who have established their basis, which would allow them to market that amount of potatoes tax free.

This bill provides for no rental or parity payments, but is simply a bill to control potato production.

To the farmers of New Mexico this bill would be a great handicap, as this state only produces about 13 per cent of its own consumption. As may be seen, there is a possibility that the potato growing industry might grow immensely in the near future in this state. Not only might potatoes be grown for food consumption, but also as seed potatoes, which would also be included in this bill. The only solution of this problem for New Mexico, if this bill is passed, would be exemption from the bill, or else to have their quota raised to the consumption figure. (Both of which are unlikely.)

If the people of this county do not favor a bill of this kind, they should write their Senators or Representatives at once, suggesting that they look after the interests of this state along this line. The farmers in McKinley county have already drawn up a set of resolutions which have been sent to the Senators and Representatives.

If this bill is passed and ....ew Mexico is included in it, it will not only curtail the growing industry, but will cost many times more for administration in this state than the potato growers would profit.

Tells of Recent Trip To Europe

Dr. Clyn Smith of Clovis was principal speaker in the Junior College assembly last Friday morning. In an informal address Smith told the group of students about many interesting sites he viewed in a recent trip to Europe.

Dr. Smith used many photographs and post card pictures he gathered on his trip in telling of his experiences. The illustrations made it possible for the assembly to witness may of the outstanding scenes of Europe.

Mrs. Smith accompanied him to Portales, and during the closing minutes, told of some of her experiences abroad. She was secretary of the board of regents for the college at the time the administration building was erected.

March Did Her Stuff Saturday

Last Saturday, March lived up to her reputation.

A dust storm came up over this section, hiding the sun from view throughout the day.

A heavy dust fog swept over the country, indicating that this dust traveled for many hundreds of miles.

Very little land was blown in this section.

Housewives who put in Friday cleaning up, were peeved on Saturday to find that their work counted as naught.

On Monday, April 1st, the sun shone bright, indicating that spring was here.

Tuesday the temperature fell considerably, with sunshine throughout the day.

All that is now needed to put the farmers in good humor is for the customary April showers to begin.

Perseverance Nets One More Meter

Having been notified by company officials that he was expected to reach the goal of 500 meters, Horace Echols, manager of the local gas company, set out to find the needed consumers.

Driving through the less-occupied district of the city, Horace spied his prey. It was a wagon on wheels. He applied the brakes and got out of the car, strutting over to the man of the house like a Philadelphia lawyer. He discussed this and that, kissed the babies like a politician, complimented the wife, then the possibilities of a gas connection.

Realizing that his prospective was not near a gas connection, Horace agreed to use a company car to bring the wagon-house near a connection. The deal went through and today we learn the gas company has another satisfied customer. We are further advised the new consumer has city water connection.

And Horace is one meter nearer his 500 goal.

Last Friday was Farmers day at the Rotary club, and a number of farmers from the various sections of the county were guests of the club members. Oran Beatty was chairman of the program.

U. S. Fraze, one of the oldest farmers of the county was the first speaker, and spoke on co-operative farming. Mr. Fraze stressed the importance of co-operative marketing in the various farming lines, and told of the success of several of these movements.

Mr. Ribble stated that through co-operation between the farmers and business men, that better markets, better roads and better living conditions could be secured. That Portales was dependent upon the success of the farmers for her success.

J. Rex Forest spoke on "Why He Went Back to the Farm." Mr. Forest told of his vision on stock raising and stock feeding and that while he had met with many difficulties during the past three years, that he still had a vision of short-horned cattle on the farms of Roosevelt county, as a successful dual purpose cattle for both dairying and beef.

John Plummer spoke on "Why He Quit the Farm." After a few remarks along this line, John spoke on the importance of feeding cattle, saving the haul of cattle to the feeding pens and the hauling of feed. That if the cattle were fed on the farms much would be saved in freight rates.

Nevada To Compete In Divorce Laws

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 3. (UP)—Wyoming hotel operators, out to compete with Nevada for the nation's divorce trade, asked Princess Alexis Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, to come to this state to obtain a divorce under the new 90-day residence law passed by the recent legislative assembly.

The First "Alloyed Oil"

—for better lubrication of today's high-speed, alloy-steel motors!

Alloyed by the Germ Process

Just as the metallurgist adds small amounts of other metals to make special alloy steels, so we add small quantities of a concentrated oily essence to highly-refined, paraffin-base motor oil. This Germ Processing, discovered and patented by Continental scientists, gives Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil lubricating qualities no other oil has.

YOUR MOTOR is built of parts made of special alloy metals. Car manufacturers and metallurgists worked together to produce metal alloys strong and durable enough to withstand the greatly increased pressures and temperatures of the modern motor.

Oils, too, must withstand these pressures and temperatures and they must have extra oiliness and film strength to do it. Yet oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength than they had ten years ago. And many new refining methods now used to make oils free from carbon and sludge have lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength!

Continental, pioneering as it has pioneered for 60 years, has developed the first alloyed oil—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! It is custom-made for high-speed, alloy-steel motors. It has 2 to 4 times the film strength of straight mineral oil, as tests on the Timken machine have proved! It has more oiliness than any oil has naturally. It penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, forming a permanent lubricating film—the "Hidden Quart". It is a pure, clean oil, free from carbon and sludge troubles. It gives extraordinary mileage as well as motor protection, as proved by the Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Say "O.K.—Drain"—fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and you will have the finest lubrication you can buy!

ELIDA

Baptist Bible Class

This is the first announcement of the Fellowship of Baptist Fundamentalist Bible Class in Elida.

We organized because of modernism in local churches. We believe in the whole Bible plus nothing and minus nothing, and have it for our only text book and the Holy Spirit for our only guide. We are not a new organization, as many are inclined to think, but are coming back to the Bible and for the "Faith once for all delivered unto the saints." We organized January 20th with 16 charter members. So far we have studied Joshua, Judges and Ruth. We are now changing our lesson to the New Testament beginning March 31st. We take the whole book of Colossions and plan to cover the remainder of the Bible through the rest of the year. We invite you to come at 2 o'clock at the home of Paul Riegel each Sunday. Especially if you don't go anywhere for different reasons. God grant that you may come is our prayer. We believe you will receive a blessing.

All of God's people please pray for us, for we believe in prayer and need your prayers to do our bit to win the lost to Christ, which is our goal.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT ON THE DEATH OF DR. N. F. WOLLLARD

Thy day has come, not gone, Thy sun has risen, not set, Thy life is now begun. The reach of death or change not ended, but begun.

It is not death to die, to leave this weary road. It is not death to close the eyes long dimmed by tears. Just a new life begun.

One by one we must all pass in endless procession across the great divide into an unknown land where this star has ended his lonely voyage.

Our Star's Golden Chain has been broken again by the passing of one of its members, Brother Frank Wollard, who passed from this life to that Eternal one on the afternoon of February 27, 1935.

He will come no more, but we will wait a little while, then we, too, shall take up this journey and sail the unknown sea, where the chain will be welded over by his Grace.

When as the Divine Providence in his infinie wiadom has deemed it best to come into our circle and take from us a loyal member, and from the home a devoted husband.

Be it resolved, that in the going away of this our Brother, may we now in humble submission to the will of the Divine Power,

That we extend to his devoted wife, in these lonely, sorrowing hours our heartfelt sympathy.

That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Chapter, a copy sent to the wife, and one sent to the Portales Valley News.

Fraternally submitted,
Mrs. Bessie Compton,
Mrs. Lillian Howard,
Mrs. Ed. J. Neser.

Pretty Party at Maxwell Home

One of the prettiest events of the season occurred last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chas. Maxwell when Mrs. Hugh Vincent and Mrs. Maxwell as joint hostesses entertained. The occasion being a shower for a new bride, Mrs. Virgil Blakley.

Twenty guests arrived about 2 o'clock and quickly stowed away their many gifts. On their arrival the bride was ushered into the bedroom on pretense of playing a game. When she again entered the living room she was picked up by four ladies who carried her with many jolts and bounces around the room. When finally she was released she was sitting on a high throne all decorated in pink and green paper flowers arranged for the occasion.

Then came the solemn moment, with Mrs. Allison at the piano playing softly the Bridal Chorus. A bedroom door was quietly opened and from the room came slowly marching to the strains of the music a bridal party with the minister leading the way. Stopping near the throne where the bride, Mrs. Blakley, in her innocence and surprise was too pretty for words, with great tears in her eyes. Here a miniature wedding was solemnly performed, using the ring ceremony.

The little bride, Leota Vincent, was more like a doll in her white dress and long white veil, carrying pink roses. The groom, James McCormack, was everything a groom could be in his black frock-tail coat and white spats. The ring was carried on a pillow by little May Dell McCormack, who did it as perfectly as any grown-up. The flower girls, Mary Bell Thetford, LaVon McCormack and Ida Mae Rogers, were lovely in their innocence. Troy Lee Clark, the officiating minister, was great and did his part to perfection.

After the ceremony, the party marched away and then came again, bringing with them a large decorated box filled high with lovely gifts. The gifts were drawn into the room by a very small boy, Sonny Thetford, who was dressed to represent a large Cupie.

The Bride then opened her many gifts, thanking each and every one so graciously and so earnestly.

Light refreshments of cake and punch were served to the guests and everyone went away happy over having made another heart glad, for indeed we have never seen a happier bride.

Trade Barometers Indicate Business and Farm Recovery Near Prosperity

WASHINGTON, April 3. (INS)—The most defenite period of recovery since 1929 is the general forecast of those who study business trends in viewing 1935. This view is dependent, however, upon congress and the administration seeking to avoid further reforms and innovations which will upset the farm and business outlook.

Latest reports from the relief administration show a slight decrease in those receiving relief during March instead of the customary increase at this period of the year. The automobile industry is geared for higher production, with the consequent gain in steel production. Retail sales have maintained a high volume and the coming of Spring is expected to bring one of the most active retail markets in four years. Farm purchasing power has increased. Home building is gaining momentum.

Viewing the situation with satisfaction, C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said, "I unhesitatingly predict a period of recovery if the boat is not rocked." Among factors which he listed as possible working against recovery were enactment of the 30-hour arbitrary week legislation, which would increase the cost of manufactured products to farmers and further upset the balance; unwise enactment of so-called social security measures, including unemployment insurance, which would have the same effect and force higher taxes by states, and the Wagner Labor Board bill which would create a labor dominance and perhaps stimulate a new wave of strikes.

Many areas in the South and Southwest, where blamy weather has been prevalent for the last few weeks, have already experienced a heavy consumer demand for Spring merchandise. Auto production, which has led recovery since December, is running close to 100,000 units weekly.

The construction industry has been the laggard of recovery, but the Federal Housing administration is optimistic over a resurgence of home-building this spring and summer, employing many idle. In addition, there will be millions of dollars spent in factory equipment and plant building if business has assurance that political interference is not likely.
