Fate Of Major Shepard Held By Federal Court Jury

No Verdict Is Returned for Army Officer

Defendant Is Charged with Poison Murder of Second Wife Because of Love for Blonde Texas Stenographer

Life Is Reviewed

Conviction Meaning Death, Acquittal or Conviction "without Capital Punishment" Jury's Alternatives

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20 (AP)—The fate of Major Charles A. Shepard, army medical officer charged with the poison murder of his second wife, rested with a federal court jury late today.

The jurors retired to deliberate at 2:58 p. m. after being charged by Judge Richard J. Hopkins.

They were instructed that three verdicts could be returned—acquittal; conviction of first degree murder without recommendations, which means death, and conviction "without capital punishment."

NO VERDICT

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20. (AP)—The jury in the case of Major Charles A. Shepard, accused of the poison murder of his wife, retired for the night at 10:08 without having returned a verdict.

Death Not Demanded

District Attorney Sardius M. Brewster in making the prosecution's final plea declared that Shepard had "put away" his wife with bichloride of mercury because she stood in the way of his love for Miss Grace Brandon, blond stenographer of San Antonio who was a government witness in the trial. Brewster did not directly demand the death penalty.

Harry S. Class of Denver, chief of defense counsel, told the jury Shepard had been "crucified" by the government in what he termed a trumped up case of circumstantial

Demand Lucas Give Up Post

Republicans Are in Uproar After Executive Head of National Committee Admits Fighting Norris Campaign

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. —(AP)—A Republican demand that Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, resign as executive director of the Republican national committee, was made during heated debate in the senate late today over Lucas' frank admission he helped finance the last campaign against Senator Norris, Republican, in Nebraska.

Senator Howell, Norris' colleague, demanded that Lucas resign. Senator Glenn, Republican, Illinois, challenged the Republicanism of Norris and the latter replied with a denunciation of Lucas. He gave his reasons for supporting Alfred E. Smith in 1928, told the senate he had no apology for opposing Herbert Hoover and would do it again.

"If the Republican national committee has any respect for its reputation it will ask for Lucas' resignation immediately," Howell said.

Lucas had told the senate campaign funds committee earlier in the day that he paid over $4,000 out of his own pocket for anti-Norris literature last October for circulation in Nebraska. He said the national committee had nothing to do with it, but he wanted to see Norris defeated because he was a Democrat."

Norris defended his actions in opposing Hoover two years ago. He said Hoover was on the side of the "power trust and was opposed to farm relief."

Christmas Spirit Cloaks Lubbock

Last Minute Rush Of Shoppers Is Well Under Way Here

By CHAS. C. WATSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FROM around the corner a biting wind sifted through the thin clothing he pulled more closely about him, his fingers were numbed by the December tang and his limbs were stiff from hours of plodding—despite all this and thoughts of an almost empty cupboard at home, a smile played about the mouth corners of a solitary figure as he walked slowly up and down the brightly lighted streets of Lubbock last night.

It's Christmas time, everywhere there's a spirit of gaiety, a spirit of good cheer, all radiating from tinseled windows and multicolored lighting effects. Here and there women and children and expensively clad men rushed hurriedly from store to store, carrying bundles or depositing them in big, shiny automobiles. The last minute rush of shoppers was on.

Fingers Few Coins

But to the rather pitiful looking human, there was no cause for rush as he wandered aimlessly from one to another of the holiday displays. An almost hopeless expression was on his face and one could feel the despair in his heart as he dug deep into a frayed pocket and fingered there perhaps a few coins.

But then, there it was, the tiny smile wrinkling his eyes into a merry twinkle of conjecture. He had stopped and there in a dimly lit store window on a side street, a little doll in sprightly dress, beckoning arms outstretched seemed to beg a home, even though it were a poor one. A price tag read "48 cents". Hesitation could be seen in the man's manner. 48 cents would buy food, a bit of wood to burn or perhaps much needed clothing. Still—it's Christmastime, Santa pays his visit to all good children next Wednesday night, surely he would not forget the expectant little girl at home. And the beautiful little wax figure finally found a home, Christmas morning a lonely

Police Chief At Uvalde Is Fatally Shot

Murder Charges to Be Filed Against Two Brothers After John Conner Shot to Death in Scuffle in Alley

By Associated Press

UVALDE, Dec. 20.—John Conner, 45, Uvalde chief of police, was shot to death here tonight in a scuffle with two men in an alley. County Attorney Dorwin Smith said he was preparing murder charges for filing against Bert and Lester Hunter, brothers, operators of a confectionery.

The shooting occurred at 9 a. m. and at a late hour, no motive had been learned. Authorities here would make no statement as to details although it was learned that Connor was shot in the head with his own gun.

Connor was scuffling with two men in an alley near the Hunter Brothers' confectionery when he was shot. He had been chief of police here two years and leaves a widow and several children.

Associates of the police chief said he had engaged in a fist fight some time ago but apparently that trouble had been forgotten until the encounter tonight.

WARNING IS MADE

Exploding Firecrackers Must Cease, Lemond Says

Exploding of firecrackers and other noise makers in the downtown district must cease, Chief of Police John Lemond said Saturday night.

The police chief indicated that there was no objection to firing of crackers in the residential districts so long as reasonable precaution was exercised, but said that his force would attempt to stop the practice in the business district.

Older boys and men are responsible for most of the fireworks in the downtown section, Chief of Police Lemond observed.

Parents were asked to keep their children from lighting holiday crackers and throwing miniature torpedoes in the business sector.

DEATH THOUGHT NEAR

Condition of Young Parachute Jumper Held Grave

Death hovered just around the corner late last night as the condition of Louis Tjaden, youthful exhibition flier, became increasingly grave and attending physicians offered slight hope for his recovery. A sudden turn for the worse was noted in Tjaden's condition shortly after noon Saturday and physicians declared that in their opinion he would not live through the night.

Young Tjaden, 22 years old, was injured just a week ago today when he made a 2,000-foot parachute jump as the climax of an aerial circus held near this city. His jump was made in a hard wind and, although friends urged him to abandon the leap, he would not do so stating that he did not wish to disappoint the crowd in his part of the program.

No Change in Car Licenses

Registration Fees Are About Same as for 1930; Plates Cannot Be Used Before Jan. 1; Early Purchase Urged

Although automobile owners have been warned that they are subject to prosecution if they place 1931 license plates on their machines before January 1, the present is the best time to buy the plates and avoid hours of standing in line at the office of the county tax collector in the courthouse.

Contrary to a more or less prevalent opinion, automobile registration fees for 1931 are the same as they were for 1930, according to attaches of the tax collector's office.

Determined By Weight

The assessments are determined according to the weight of the automobile registered, 100 pounds being added to actual weight of the car in fixing that for which the fee will be charged. Deadline for the purchase of license tags is February 1. Beginning that day, a penalty

Snow Blankets Lubbock Today

Lubbock woke up this morning under a mantle of snow—the first of year, as Old Man Winter spread his white-capped cover over the city.

Although the temperature was only slightly below freezing, a gentle fall of snow began about midnight and continued for several hours.

With colder weather promised, the oft-expressed hope for a "white" Christmas gave promise of fulfillment.

Local Women and Boy Scouts To Make Canvass For Clothing For Poor Here

TOMORROW a youthful and khaki-clad army swelled to larger proportions by the addition of feminine recruits, will assemble to look upon the approach of want and poverty as a menace and on the city of Lubbock as the battleground upon which a war will be waged.

A city-wide drive this week will be conducted by United Charities for second hand clothing to be given deserving families. The organization will be aided by Boy Scouts, and those youths, together with a committee of local women, will inaugurate the campaign Monday morning. Mrs. George Meiser is chairman of the committee.

Mrs. Meiser has asked that as many as forty women and all Boy Scouts of the city meet at the city hall at 9 o'clock Monday morning to begin the drive. As many women and boys who can furnish automobiles are requested to respond in this capacity. The drive will consist of a house to house canvass. All kinds of used clothing, shoes and bedding will be sought. Ragged clothing will be mended by employes, it was announced.

Cash contributions will go toward the purchase of food and fuel for the needy, Mrs. Meiser said. Resolutions to conduct the drive were made at the last meeting of the directors of United Charities. It is hoped that enough clothes and shoes will be contributed to furnish supplies of this nature for the charity program, so that funds may be used for the purchase of food.

Expect 75,000 Bales in Co-Op

Total of 74,810 Received in District 2 Up to Friday; Lubbock Holds Slight Lead with 15,150 Bales

With 74,810 bales of 1930 cotton delivered to the receiving agents of District 2 of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association up to and including Friday night, more than 75,000 bales were expected to be the total for Saturday, C. M. Davis, district manager, said late Saturday.

"The Lubbock office received over 100 bales Saturday," Mr. Davis said, "I expect the rest of the offices will do half as well as we did here. In the event, our total will be more than 75,500 for the season."

Lubbock In Lead

Lubbock with in excess of 15,150 bales, continued to lead the district, Mr. Davis said. Wellington with 14,950 is a close second.

Other of the large offices include: Littlefield, 6,800; Brownfield, 6,600; Levelland, 6,500; Lamesa, 5,000; Tahoka 4,000 and O'Donnell, over 3,000.

At O'Donnell Mr. Davis explained, the licensed classers worked at the gins and classified all bales received there. Several thousand more bales were handled at the gins than the cooperative group received.

Office Is Closed

In announcing the closing of the Plainview office Mr. Davis said that all cotton for the cooperative organization there will be handled through the Lubbock office. Recently the Memphis office was closed.

"We expect to keep some of the offices open until in January or February," Mr. Davis said. "We will have the Lamesa, Brownfield, Littlefield, Levelland, Tahoka, Wellington, Childress, Chillicothe, and Paducah offices open as long as we can."

ROBBER GETS GEMS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20. (AP)—A robber invaded a wholesale jewelry office in the new West 48th street jeweler's zone off Fifth avenue late today, bound and gagged one of the owners and an employee and escaped with gems valued at from $30,000 to $40,000.

Wet Decision Stirs Controversy

Inset is of William Sprague, Wantage, N. J., farmer, in whose behalf Judge Clark rendered the decision.

The government's challenge of the recent decision of Judge Clark was filed Saturday in the supreme court.

Nine Counties Of Section in Road Program

Sixty Miles of Hard Surfacing and 115 Miles of Grading and Drainage Included in Highway Division No. 5

By J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

Nine counties are included in the preliminary road building program of 1931 according to Joe H. Caldwell, highway engineer on division No. 5 with more than 60 miles to be hard surfaced and grading and drainage work for about 115 miles.

In addition there probably will be some new highway designations in two or three counties for highway 24, west of Lubbock, the state to take over maintenance in Hockley and Cochran counties.

Lubbock Program Largest

Lubbock county has the largest program of all, including the grading and drainage work on three highways for a total of over 50 miles and the probable paving of No. 9 north and south through the county.

Hale county has about 22.5 miles of paving on the state road west from Plainview, to make the county have a total of over 70 miles of hard surface. In addition the county is expected to have around $200,000 for county roads.

Crosby county has a four mile grading contract expected to come up soon, with probability that there may be some other work.

Dickens county has a 10 mile surfacing project between Spur and the county seat, Dickens, with a slight delay because of legal action that may not let the work get start-

LOCAL CHILD INJURED

'Sonny Boy' Pirtle Jams Xmas Sparkler Down Throat

Four-year-old "Sonny Boy" Pirtle was taken to Lubbock sanitarium Saturday night after a Christmas sparkler had become jammed in his throat as he played with it on a bed at his home. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pirtle, 2101 Ninth street.

After receiving treatment and undergoing x-ray photography at the hospital, the small boy was returned his home. Attending physicians said that the sparkler had prodded a hole in the child's throat but that his condition was not serious.

Rescue Vessels Abandon Hunt for Additional Survivors After Two Liners Collide Off Danish Coast

BY AXEL GERFALK

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 20. (AP) — Rescue vessels that had combed the fog hidden cattegat for 24 hours tonight virtually abandoned the search for possible additional survivors of one of the worst marine disasters in the history of the Danish coast. The sinking of the Finnish liner Oberon off Laso Island.

Commanders of the vessels expressed any further search would be unsuccessful.

At least forty persons, and possibly more, are believed to have been drowned when the Oberon went down, or to have perished later in a sea of flaming oil that escaped from the vessel's hold. The Oberon was rammed and sunk late last night in a dense fog by her sister-ship, the Arcturus, of the same line.

By a strange coincidence, the two vessels were commanded by brothers, Captains Erik and Ossi Hjelt. The Arcturus, after the tragedy, picked up Captain Erik Hjelt as he swam in the icy waters with the body of his drowned four-year-old daughter in his arms.

Captain Erik Hjelt's wife also was drowned. Among those still missing and for whom hope had about been abandoned were J. W. H. T. Douglas, famous cricket player, and his father, J. H. Douglas. Of 12 English passengers known to have been on the vessel only two are believed to have survived.

Survivors of the disaster who arrived in Copenhagen said when the crash came the fog was so dense they could not see two yards. The Arcuturus rammed the Oberon amidships on the starboard side. There was a terrific shock and in less than a minute the doomed vessel's quarterdeck was flooded. There was no time to launch boats and passengers and members of the crew flung themselves into the water, trusting that they might be picked up.

Some of them, it is believed however, never reached the deck, for within three minutes one of the boilers of the Oberon burst and the ship sank almost immediately. In some way, escaping oil became ignited and the light of wierd yellow flames glared through the fog. Those on the Arcturus heard the cries of victims as they struggled in the sea of burning oil.

Congress Approves Emergency Measure; $45,000,000 Fund for Drouth Aid to Be Appropriated After Holidays

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. —(AP)— President Hoover late today signed the bill putting $116,000,000 immediately at his disposal for new jobs on federal improvements throughout the nation.

This measure got through congress early in the afternoon and together with the measure authorizing $45,000,000 for loans to drouth stricken farmers to put in New year's crops was promptly signed.

To Appropriate Fund

The $45,000,000 still must be appropriated. This will be done immediately after the holidays and meanwhile arrangements will be perfected for getting the loans to the farmers.

The $116,000,000 is available at once and will be put into immediate use. In his recommendations and in his public statements concerning them the president has emphasized that work can begin immediately.

All the technical phases such as obtaining sites, architectural planning and engineering have been completed on all projects included under the recommendations, Mr. Hoover has said actual employment under the bill can start in most cases within from one to three months.

The bill, in addition to allowing actual labor to start on buildings and other projects, will provide labor in various industries, such as steel, brick, quarrying, and in machinery manufacturing, which will supply materials.

More Relief Asked

The legislation completed the emergency program recommended by President Hoover but as the senate gave final approval to the $116,000,000 it heard a new appeal for additional relief.

West Texans Find Mussolini Is Real Dictator With Much Power; Rome Is Interesting And Naples Melting Pot

Editor's Note: The following articles were written by Sutton Christian and Allan Carney, former members of the Avalanche-Journal staff. They are on a tramping tour of tre world, having left Lubbock July 15. Other articles of their experiences will follow as they advance around the globe. They expect to be gone about two years.

ROME—Mussolini is more than mere man. He is a force which pulsates through every vein of Italy.

His countrymen love him, hate him, fear him, but most of all they fear him.

"Courage accompanied by one spark of imagination can move the world" says Mussolini. Therein the brutally frank dictator expresses, seemingly, an ambition, couched in good words.

Moments of Silence

Recently we dined among a mixed group of English and Italian people. We interpoced in the cosmopolitan conversation a querry relative to Mussolini and the Fascisti. There was a moment of silence, and then a complacent Englishman explained, "It is dangerous to mention his name. We never discuss him in Italy in derogatory or praiseworthy language. It would be well for you to do likewise."

Any personality who can hold 100,000 breathless, as Mussolini did recenty in the coliseum, and with one gesture convert his followers into uproarious applause is worthy of international attention he commands.

Demands Obedience

The dictator demands unquestioning obedience to and unyielding enforcement of his commands. He accepts official counsel only.

When he took the reins of government 10 years ago the core of Italian manhood was being destroyed by tuberculosis. The politicians and even a few scientists said that to try to rid the nation of the disease would bankrupt Italy. "We must," was Mussolini's laconic reply. A huge tuberculosis conference was held in a Roman palace. Subsequently anti-tuberculosis units were formed throughout the kingdom, sanitoriums were established, and the facilities of government were put into action.

Filth Was Rife

Filth was rife. Through Mussolini's systematic program Italy is now undergoing a house-cleaning. With exception of the southern portion, the nation is now almost on a par with other nations of the continent with reference to sanitation, but much time will be required before the best sanitary standards will be prevalent.

Within another generation, say the best minds, Italy will be freed from the pangs of tuberculosis.

And then Mussolini faced the mafia that secret society of Sicily which forced six million people to pay tribute to its lawless demands. Murder was rampant. Death was the penalty of those who opposed operation of the organization. Generation after generation of traditions were behind the mafia.

"The dictator surely cannot cope with the mafia," said the politicians, but he took the society by the throat and destroyed it, teeth and toenails.

He went to Sicily himself and investigations first hand. Then he issued a call for volunteers. They flocked to him. Militaristic tactics did the work.

Mussolini demands fresh sacrifice.

An uncompromising dictator, perhaps. But he gets results.

FLORENCE, Italy — Legionnaires who still recall the inconveniences of the "40 and 8" box cars of war days should be thankful that they were not forced to ride third class through Italy.

Crossing the Alps under such circumstances after a brief sojourn in pleasurable Lucerne resolves into an endurance test.

Shortly before midnight we had brazenly sandwiched ourselves among a group of young Italians in one of those all-wood compartments. Several unfortunates, men of course, were standing in the passage aisle.

Garlic Is Strong

Glib chatter, punctuated with laughter, and stone-like seats are not the attendant forces of sleep. Following a demitasse at daylight within the Mussolinian border we were confronted with increasing entourage, accompanied by that piquant odour of garlic.

Each little station added passengers, until it seemed that all of Italy were marching upon Rome.

For the most part third class passengers in Italy are peasants who carry their necessary items wrapped in a shawl or a sheet. Each may be found with a bountiful ration of food, munched on during all hours of the journey.

Hospitality Impressive

Hospitality of the Italians is at once impressive. No stranger in a compartment is ignored by the passenger who unfolds his lunch ration. The Italian profers his lunch to each person, stranger or intimate, who shares the compartment with him. We observed that in numerous instances.

One who endeavors to glimpse over villages en route is usually interrupted by passengers who lean out the window and wave lengthily to relatives or friends. Partings and greetings in Italy are attended by considerable emotional gestures.

A father held his small child in the window of the compartment, while the mother on the platform awaited return of the infant upon start of the train. The paternal parent kissed and embraced the tiny body with an affection seldom seen. Nowhere, it seems, is the child loved more by parents than in Italy.

Reading under third class conditions is practically impossible. Periodically one is forced to maneuver feet and shift about to allow space for the ever-changing personnel.

NAPLES.—While the wholesale cleanup camapign instituted by Benito Mussolini has undoubtedly improved conditions in this seaport metropolis of Southern Italy, there is much yet to be accomplished before the Naples of today can overcome its widespread reputation as the melting pot of dirt, squallor, disorder and dishonesty.

A city of a million inhabitants, Naples has been the seat of continued activity since the instigation of the dictator's sweeping policies. Beggars, once the plague of the city, are rapidly disappearing and the street vendors, which so often harrass the visitor, are controlled to some extent by local policemen.

Carriages Still Used

Horse carriages are still numerous as are the carts drawn by burros. City officials hope in time to do away almost entirely with the horse carriage as a means of public conveyance. Each year a larger number of carriage licenses are taken up by the city and are replaced by automobile taxis.

In certain quarters of the city, most of which are some distance from the bay, can be found examples of old Naples. To walk along one of these narrow streets unmolested is impossible. The visitor is forced to dodge, sidestep and gesticulate almost frantically in order to evade the endless line of solicitors, vendors, bootblacks and cab drivers. Sidewalks are blockaded by row of notions, drygoods, fruits, vegetables and so on ad infinitum. No apparent effort is made to protect the merchant.

American "Meat"

Americans, especially, are considered "fresh meat" for the thousands of importunate natives who prey upon the travelers for a livelihood. One only has to make his appearance on the street with a handbag or stop momentarily in making sure of his direction to be surrounded immediately by a horde of uncouth street habituals, all anxious to do some trivial errand whereby they may earn a few lire.

A closer inspection of the shops and living quarters of the lower class leaves one with the conviction that no national program can alter materially the filthy habits of this lower element in Naples or elsewhere in Italy. Conditions under which children are borught up in such sections seem to promise no improvement for the next generation.

One of the oldest of the Old World practices, that of carrying luggage atop the head, is somewhat of an acquired art in Italy. Hundreds of men, women and children can be seen at any time with their burdens perfectly balanced on their heads. Often they make their way along in this manner with both hands free. Sometimes it is a large basket of fruit, sometimes a pail of water and then again it is the family washing, but despite the nature of the cargo, it is beyond a doubt the preferred way.

Cudahy Case All Settled

Marriage Of Scion Of Meat Packing Family And Film Star Clouded By Storm Is Now Apparently Easy

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.— The storm that beset the marriage of Michael Cudahy, 22-year-old scion of the meat packing family, and Murial Evans, petite film actress, has subsided.

Married in the summer of 1929 in Riverside, Cal., after an attempted elopement a few months before to Yuma, Ariz., had resulted in young Cudahy being brought home by the sheriff at his mother's request, Mrs. Cudahay obtained an interlocutory divorce decree October 25 last.

Weren't Happy

But they weren't happy apart, the young woman explained last night, and became reconciled. "So," she said, "I'll not apply for my final decree and it won't be a divorce at all—just a separation."

Shortly after their marriage young Cudahy was arrested for driving while intoxicated, convicted and fined $500. With the settlement of the case, he sailed with his bride for Paris. Upon their return reports circulated they planned to separate, and a few months later the divorce suit was filed.

Began Nagging

"He nagged me until I couldn't stand it," Mrs. Cudahy testified at the trial. "He began nagging before our honeymoon was over."

Last night, she said, "it was a case of 'if we can't be sweethearts, let's be friends', and now 'if we're friends, let's be sweethearts."

Mrs. John P. Cudahy, mother of Michael, said "they are very happy, and I'm happy, too."

Lubbock County Tax Records Show Budgets For Year

Some Payment Reported for Current Year

Penalties Go Into Effect on February 1; More than One Million Dollars Is to Be Collected in County

APPROXIMATELY $1,014,500 is asked in taxes for current year 1930 in Lubbock county, not including the new rolls of the cities of Slaton and Idalou, records of tax collecting agencies show.

School assessments total about $348,788—$11,253 for common school districts and $337,535 for the three independent school districts in Lubbock county.

The new rolls customarily were set up October 1 and property owners have until February 1, 1931, to pay their assessments without penalty. The penalties go into effect February 1.

Budgets Shown

State, county, road, and common school districts taxes total $365,615.74, state poll taxes $13,590 and county poll taxes $2,265, according to records at the county tax collector's office in the courthouse, where all such assessments are paid.

Approximately $30,000 of the current taxes has been collected, attaches of the county tax collector's office estimate. State assessments aggragate $173,410.30, county $155,827.23, road $25,124.71, and common school districts $11,253.50. Present total valuation of the county is $25,131,980.

There are three independent school districts in Lubbock county, those of Lubbock, Slaton and Idalou. The new rolls of the Lubbock independent school district showed that a total of $286,765.38 was due and through December 18 aggregate of $11,660.98 had been paid on the current roll, according to a member of the staff of the tax collector of the Lubbock district. The office is in City hall.

Some Payments Made

Totals of $3,364.98 and $7,170.80 were collected on 1929 assessments during October and November, respectively, it was said at the Lubbock independent school district tax collector's office.

A total of 91 delinquent tax suits have been filed by the Lubbock school district for taxes of 1929 and prior years. Attaches of the office said some citizens had indicated that they believed no delinquent suits would be filed on assessments of 1929. Five of the amounts asked in suits have been paid.

Total Near Last Year

Spiking reports, that conditions were such as to lessen possibility of delinquent suits on 1929 taxes, attaches of the Lubbock school district collector's staff said that the amount collected on October, 1929, lacked only about $600 of equalling the total paid on both October and November of 1928.

Total taxes asked this year by the Slaton and Idalou independent school districts, respectively, are $52,000, about $3,000 paid, and about $19,000, nearly $5,000 paid.

City tax rolls show total assessments on both real and personal property to be $304,407.86. A total of $25,267.95 had been paid in current taxes through Friday, according to city records.

Wilbur L. Cross Wants To Be Busy, So That's Why He Ran For Governor In Connecticut; He's The Minority

BY LORENA HICKOK
Copyright 1930, By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 20. (AP)—Because he was 68 years old they retired Professor Wilbur L. Cross, dean of the graduate school at Yale University last June.

That left him with nothing much to do but edit the Yale Review and carry on his work as one of America's foremost literary critics.

So he went out and got himself elected governor of Connecticut. And now he is satisfied his time will be just nicely filled again.

Had Not Run Before

He had no particular desire to be governor. He had never run for office before. But Professor Cross believes in the two party system, and he is a Democrat.

"I thought that even in Connecticut we Democrats ought at least to constitute a strong minority," he said today. "I decided the party needed building up. So I said I'd run if they'd let me make a few changes in the organization. The first thing I did was to fire the state chairman."

Consists of W. L. Cross

The Democrats are going to have that "strong minority" in Connecticut these coming two years. It will consist of Governor Wilbur Lucius Cross, all by himself. He and Gene Tunney, whom he has apponited a major on his staff, will be about the only Democrats in Hartford.

Not only will Professor Cross be the first Democratic governor Connecticut has had in 20 years. He will be the only Democratic state official put there by the voters. And he'll be dealing with a legislature of Yankee farmers, overwhelmingly Republican.

Not Worried

But Professor Cross is not particularly worried about those Yankee farmers. He is a Yankee himself. His forefathers settled in Connecticut more than 300 years ago. His father was a Yankee farmer and a Democratic legislator, too. And he reasons that quite a few Yankee farmers must have voted for him a few weeks ago.

Professor Cross believes he knows his Yankee farmers. He conducted his campaign in the homely terms of the farmyard.

"Ever hear of a settin' hen?" he demanded today. "Not a sitting hen—a settin' hen. Well, I told them that the Republican organization in Connecticut was like a settin' hen that has made up her mind to set and wasn't going to be moved off the nest. But the eggs, I observed, were getting a little stale, and it was time to drive her off."

Had Lots of Fun

Professor Cross got a good deal of quiet fun out of that campaign. He has a way of joking with an absolutely straight face. The result is that he is often taken seriously. It happened just the other day.

"I said I thought Gene Tunney would make an excellent floor leader in the Connecticut house of Representatives," he said with a chuckle.

"I thought that was funny—you know, a heavyweight champion who is also a Democrat as floor leader in one of the most thoroughly Republican legislative bodies in the country.

Didn't Go Over

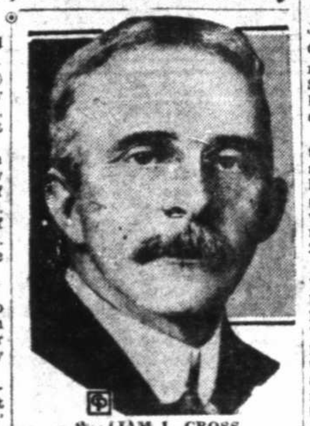

"But apparently the joke didn't go over so well. The public assumed that I was launching Mr. Tunney on a political career. I wasn't, although I see no reason why Mr. Tunney shouldn't go in for politics if he likes. He is a very fine man and he has a good head on him. But he has never intimated to me that he wanted to go into politics."

Professor Cross, a tall, well set up man with grey hair and a ruddy complexion, was long ago given by Yale students the nickname "Uncle Toby." That was because of his fondness for Laurence Sterne and "Tristram Shandy." One of his most notable works is a life of Sterne.

To Continue as Editor

He is going to continue as editor of the Yale Review and will keep on writing literary criticism. His latest volume, on Conrad, Bennett, Galsworthy and Wells, came out during the campaign.

And one thing he cannot understand is why anyone should think it out of the ordinary for a retired professor of English literature and a dean emeritus of Yale university to become Governor of Connecticut at the age of 68.

War Declared On Ravens In Dawson

LAMESA, Dec. 20—(Special) War has been declared on ravens in this county, according to I. M. Hill of the U. S. Biological Department, who is making a tour of West Texas in search of raven roosts, stating that an intense campaign is being started to rid West Texas of these pests.

Ravens are considered a public menace, in that they are purported to carry disease grems, and they are also very detrimental to this section, destroying melons, grain, poultry and birds eggs. An increase in wing-game here will be noted, if the ravens are wiped out, it is said.

According to Hill, dynamite has been used on roosts in other portions of West Texas, in an effort to exterminate the birds, and tear gas, powder or poison gas may be resorted to later. This is the first effort made by the government to rid this section of ravens, and it is planned to keep after them until they are either killed or made to leave the country.

County Jail Overcrowded, Figures Show

Fifty Prisoners Of Both Sexes Housed In Bastile At Present; Capacity Only Provides For 28

Fifty prisoners of both sexes in a jail having a capacity of 28.

That is the situation in the Lubbock county jail—the old brick building on the east side of the courthouse square.

Attaches of the sheriff's office estimate that the daily number of prisoners in the county jail during the first half of December ranged from 45 to 55, and expect the average daily total for the month to reach 50.

Average Is 40

Average number of inmates in November was about 40 and in October 30 or 35, county officers said. Cots have been moved into the cramped jail to provide additional sleeping facilities but prisoners often are forced to sleep on the floor for want of a better place.

That a person convicted and jailed does not deserve any more attention than is required to maintain health is a general accepted opinion. Practical criminologists agree, however, that warped philosophies and dark schemes often are attributable in part to cramped quarters for those serving sentences.

Sanitation Difficult

Crowded conditions make sanitation difficult, in addition to affecting the health and mental outlook of those confined. Officers of the law are comparatively helpless in the matter. The people have provided only that jail. To that jail prisoners must go to live as best they can.

Conditions of economic depression and unemployment contribute to the overcrowded conditions. Men who customarily would be free in on bail remain in the jail. Bonds are no higher, but making bail is more difficult for the average man.

In other times, property might be utilized by the convicted person, or by friends, to furnish bail. Such a risk is feared now. Often the property is weighted down by mortgage or some other incumbrance reflecting conditions.

Federal Prisoners Here

Those are observations of officers. Lubbock county also has its quota of federal prisoners, those of the Lubbock division of the United States district court, for which to provide.

There has been no marked increase in the number of arrests, officers indicate. Crowded conditions are the rule rather than the exception in the Lubbock county jail.

Reports of the police department do not indicate overcrowding of the city jail, which has a cell-capacity of 14. The runways could be utilized if necessary, although the practice probably would be one only of expediency.

A total of 87 prisoners were confined to the city jail during the first 17 days of December, or a daily average of slightly more than five prisoners, according to police reports. The November average approximated that thus far this month, the police said.

A considerable number of those arrested and held by police subsequently are transferred to the county jail before, or upon, filing of charges, as the city corporation court is authorized to deal only with minor offenses.

Mrs. Hoover To Be Busy In Holiday Week

Home-Coming Relatives, Public Appearances And Parties To Occupy Time Of First Lady In Capital

BY BESS FURMAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—With home-coming relatives, public appearances and private parties, Christmas week will be crowded for Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Her son Allan, whose arrival home from school was for an impromptu holiday party last year, is expected here next week.

To Visit Kiddies

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., is planning a flying visit from Asheville, North Carolina, to spend part of Christmas Eve with her children, Peggy Ann, Herbert 3rd, and Joan, now occupying a third floor nursery at the White House.

The cheerful word came to the White House that train connections would permit the younger Mrs. Hoover to tuck her three babies in bed at the White House on Christmas Eve, after they had enjoyed their tree and toys, and still be with her husband at Blue Briar cottage on a Carolina mountain slope Christmas morning.

Niece to Be Guest

Mrs. Hoover's niece, Janet Large will also be a holiday White House visitor. Attending an eastern school, she could not cross the continent to California where her mother, Mrs. Jean Henry Large, is now residing in the Hoover Palo Alto home.

Ever gracious in aiding welfare work, the president's wife already has attended a Walter Reed hospital sale of Christmas gifts made by disabled soldiers. Her pre-Christmas appearances will include the Salvation Army Christmas party and the Central Union Mission Christmas tree, both providing well filled hampers and gift bundles for poor families.

To Be Hostess

After she has watched her husband in the annual presidential role of lighting Washington's outdoor community Christmas tree, Mrs. Hoover will be free to serve as hostess at her own two Chrismas parties. The Christmas Eve party will be for "the White House family"—the president's own household, his secretaries, physician, and aides, with their sons and daughters. The invitation is dispatched to the youngest child of each family, who is asked to come and bring his brothers, sisters and parents with him.

The Christmas night party is for "the official family"—the president and his cabinet members with their immediate households.

UTILITY TO EXPAND

HOBBS, N. M., Dec. 20.—(Special)—W. A. Schrader, manager of the Plains Utility company here, has conferred with company officials at Dallas relative to improvement and enlargement of the plant here. A lowering of rates also is planned, it is said.

Brown County To Start Water Unit

BROWNWOOD, Dec. 20. (AP)—Contracts for the clearing of land of trees and brush in the Bayou Valley at the dam site, a part of the $250,000 water project of the Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1, have been accepted and several crews of men were busy in the basin which contain 2,000 acres. Contracts were let on from 5 to 20 acre blocks.

The water board signed the contract for the construction of the dam and relative projects with the Standard Paving Company of Fort Worth and Tulsa, Okla., for $590,003.00, recently. Nineteen bids were received on the dam.

The project calls for the construction of a dam on Pecan Bayou, eight miles north of Brownwood, and the building of conduits and similiar irrigation facilities. The reservoir will have a capacity of 125,000 feet at spillway level, the area of water surface at such level being 7,200 acres withu a shore line of about 80 miles. The lake will furnish Brownwood with water and also provide for the irrigation of about 12,000 acres of fertile Bayou Valley land.

FOUR SIGNERS BURIED

NACOGDOCHES, Dec. 20. (AP)—There are four signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence buried in Oak Grove Cemetery here. They were Charles S. Taylor, Thomas J. Rusk, John S. Roberts and William Clark.

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 20.—Judge A. B. Martin, who recently resigned from the commission of appeals of the court of criminal appeals after several years of service to resume law practice in Plainview, expressed the need for drastic changes in both the criminal code and procedure and in administration of the criminal statutes by law enforcement units. He made the statement in a conversation with newspapermen shortly before leaving the capitol.

Judge Martin wrote the opinion in the case of Dave Goodwin, Bowie county, sentenced to death following conviction on a charge of murder, which attracted wide attention. In the opinion Judge Martin held that Goodwin had not been given a fair trial but, since no objection was made by his attorney at the time of the trial to a prejudicial charge of the judge, there was nothing the court of criminal appeals could do about it. Goodwin was sentenced to death and his conviction affirmed by the appeals court, although the higher judiciary admitted the state was depriving a man of his life without due process of law.

Only One of Many

The jurist said this was only one of many defects in the present law and that the hands of the appeals court were bound by the statutes enacted by the legislature.

One newspaperman ventured the opinion that if he were on the court of criminal appeals, he would have voted to give Goodwin relief even though it was contrary to the statutes.

Judge Martin countered with the statement that members of the court were under oath to follow the statutes and that a breach would violate their office. "It would be a peculiar thing," he said, "for the court to follow the law in one case and not follow it in another."

In the meantime, the only way for Goodwin to escape the electric chair is executive interference. Governor Dan Moody has indicated he will not act in the case and that it will be one of the problems which Ross S. Sterling will inherit when he takes over the reins of government.

Favors Improvements

Judge Martin said that while some were in favor of modeling American criminal procedure closer to the lines followed in England, he was in favor of inaugurating improvements in the American system. He ventured the belief that the only thing that kept American jurisprudence from crumbling entirely was the honesty of a majority of the officials. In brief, Judge Martin said a large portion of the personnel of law enforcing bodies was 'honest but dumb.'

In England they train men rigidly for the law enforcement units and Scotland Yard is regarded universally as the most intelligent body of sleuths in existence, Judge Martin said. They are trained many years before being permitted to take over the responsibility of enforcing the laws and tracking criminals.

System Is Wrong

In this country the man with the most pleasing personality or the loudest voice is chosen to enforce the laws, he continued. In the main they are not adept in the art of law enforcement but rather are experts in politics and know how to garner the votes that put them into office.

The large majority of them, however, are sincerely honest and do their best but they simply do not have the background for effective enforcement, Judge Martin said.

Judge Martin said this was one of the main reasons why there is less crime in England than in the United States and that conditions here would remain practically the same until some intelligent efforts were made to revise the system throughout.

Milk Receipts Are Increasing

Lamesa Milk Products Plant Is Proving Outlet For Dairy Products Of Dawson County Farms

(Special to Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, Dec. 20. — Receipts of whole milk at the powdered milk factory here, are increasing daily, according to C. M. Anderson, manager of the plant. An average of 11,000 pounds of milk is being received daily at the present, with a gradual increase being recorded each day. The plant opened about five months ago with receipts of around 6,000 pounds daily.

Nine truck routes are being operated in the county picking up milk and returning empty cans to the farmers. One route is being operated out of the county to Floydada, a distance of approximately 125 miles and it is planned shortly to start routes to Snyder, Post and Brownfield.

Market Encouraging.

The better market afforded by the milk factory, for dairy products, is encouraging farmers to buy good milk cows. Within the past two months, 175 good cows have been shipped here, and distributed to farmers. Management of the plant report that these cows are showing up well in milk production, and it is planned to ship many more such cows into the county in the near future.

Although the powdered milk factory offers a new way to market dairy products in West Texas, and was somewhat of an experiment from the start, it is proving a highly profitable venture for the dairyman, as well as for the plant itself. A ready market is being found for the plant's products, which consist of pasteurized sweet milk, bulgarian buttermilk, sweet creamery butter, and powdered milk powders.

Gilbert Swan

In New York With Swan

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 — The Aquarium, which once upon a time was P. T. Barnum's historic music hall, is one of the several New York spots visited by most tourists. The Statue of Liberty is another and the Woolworth Building still gets its quota, despite the fact that taller buildings have risen in several sections of the city.

And being one of those poor New Yorkers who wander down to the Battery from time to time to look upon the state of things in the glass-tanked world and to inquire into the affairs of the sea horses and the funny penquins, I learn that this is not so good a year for the rare fish.

The Aquarium, by the way, has its own particular boat, "The Sea Horse," which makes seasonal trips to bring back such specimens as may be at large. There are, I am told, seven major aquariums in this country and they swap fish as the Indians traded beads and wampum. Thus, the New York fish museum takes an inventory from time to time and figures out what it is able to swap.

And, unromantic as it may seem, they have at the momen such common, or garden varieties of fish, as sea bass, pilots, shark suckers, mullets and dog fish. Most of which I've been able to catch with my own hook at one time or another.

Be all this as it may, I've at last discovered the perfect job for the avid angler. It's aboard the Aquarium's "Sea Horse." For during the summer season, this craft goes about the coast catching fish. It's disappointing that they use nets, to be sure—but they do catch 'em. Which is more than I do most of the time.

The ship reports in every couple of weeks, leaves its specimens and starts out again. By the time the season is over, there are enough fish on hand to serve several aquariums, and then the fish swapping fun begins, even as they traded horses back in David Harum's time.

For instance, Detroit needs a lot of salt fish. Have you any about the attic? Don't expect cash, for the arrangement is that you swap a cod for a good fresh water mackerel, or something like that.

How about the shipment? Well, the exchange departments of the various aquarium cities have special cars, in which great tanks have been installed. These are equipped with tricky pumps for shooting in the air. This is made necessary because of the congestion. For, even as subway riders in Manhattan, the poor fish are so crowded that they must have regular supplies of new air. Which wouldn't be such a bad idea for the subway people to take up.

Oil heaters are placed under the tanks so that the fish can have a warm and comfortable trip. Half a dozen assistants have to be carried along to keep an eye on things, a type of porter service I have yet to encounter on a de luxe special fare train.

The matter, I learn, becomes involved when the trip is being made from sea-coast points to inland or fresh-water points. Special supplies of salt water have to be provided to make the specimens feel at home. And the gents who run the aquariums have to make regular tests to make sure that the imported salt water maintains its regular standard of alkilinity.

It's all, you see, quite involved. So, whether in New York, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco or way points you see a fish swimming around in a public tank, you'll have to appreciate that more than a little effort goes into keeping them that way.

Max Baer Wins Plaudits of Faithful as Judges Favor Ernie Schaaf in Neat Bout

Ten Thrilling Rounds Result in Unanimous Decision on Part of Judge, but Fans Still Proclaim Baer

(By Associated Press)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—A husky, colorful, young puncher named Max Baer, welcome addition to the rising crop of youthful heavyweights, came out of the west for his first big league battle last night and, though he failed to conquer, he left his mark both on 10,000 of New York's faithful and on the person of Ernie Schaaf another sophomore from Boston.

Schaaf, as blonde and big as Baer is dark and big, won the unanimous decision of referee and two judges after ten thrilling rounds, but the plaudits of the crowd, as well as the votes of several of the ringside critics, went to the loose-muscled, grinning curly head from the Pacific Coast. Baer, swinging a murderous right hand ploughing steadily into the short, sharp punches of the more clever, more experienced New Englander, dominated the battle for the first four rounds, but wilted thereafter and was a bloody, battered figure at the end of the duel.

Maxie Blows Up to Early

Baer put everything he had into the first half of the battle and then "blew up" physically as the strudier Schaaf took everything that came his way, buckled a couple of times, but pulled himself together and came on to punch out a clear margin in the final rounds. There were no knockdowns but in almost every session, one or the other wavered and clutched under powerful belts to the head and ribs.

Although Baer headed out of California for the bright lights with a record of 24 knockouts in 27 engagements, he colud not cope with the better generalship of Schaaf, whose record includes decisions over Tommy Loughran and Johnny Risko. Max never could get away from Schaaf's left jab, a punch that started his nose bleeding in the second round, nor the short right hand drives Ernie pumped to his head in the second half of the battle. In the last two rounds Schaaf's right raised a bulb over Baer's left eye that finally shut off the sight from that side.

Fight Champ Loses Title Of Husband In Technical K. O.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 29 (AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight boxing champion, lost his title of husband on a technical knockout today.

He failed to come up for the final round in the fight against his wife's divorce action, and his lawyers threw in the towel.

Mrs. Walker, who charged Mickey had used her as a sparring partner, wins, in addition to her freedom, the Walker home at Rumson, and the custody of their two children.

The champion was more concerned about his youngsters than anything else, and he obtained permission to see them after consenting to the granting of a decree nisi, by James F. Minturn, master in chancery.

South's Entry In Tournament Of Roses Rests

Coach Wallace Wade Sends Men Through Noisy Workout on Way to Coast Where Cougers of Washington Wait

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 20.—Alabama's Crimson Tide worked out here this afternoon before continuing on the journey to Pasadena, for the game with the undefeated Cougars of Washington State in the Tournament of Roses New Year's Day football game. The South's entry in the post-season classic embarked on its special train and journeyed on at 3 o'clock.

Coach Wallace Wade explained the workout was to limber the squad up after its long train ride. He refused to predict victory or defeat, but said: "The Cougars are a little bit better than we are, but we are going to do our best to win." Wade added he considers the 1930 Alabama outfit one of the best he has produced.

The squad of 35 men opened the workout with kicking and pass work. Then they went through a noisy signal drill, dividing into three elevens. "Noisy" is the word for the offensive play of the Tide. The entire team participates in the signal calling and then thunders a military 1-2-3-4 as it charges down the field.

DALLAS, Dec. 20.—Coach Bob Zuppke, of the University of Illinois, who has for several weeks been assembling his mid-west warriors for a meeting in Dallas, at the Owenby stadium on New Year's day, with players representing the Southwest in the third annual Dixie Classic, has announced that his list is complete—all but one player. If Dodd comes in the Southwest squad will be honored by the presence of two honest-to-goodness "All" players.

ROVING THE SPORTS WORLD

WITH COLLIER PARRIS
JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR

Fans and friends of the Slaton Tigers, district and bi-district football champions of Class B Districts 1 and 2 this season, are not satisfied, it seems, with the action of the Slaton school board, in accepting the invitation to join Class A competition. The Slaton Slatonite joins with the offended ones in criticizing the board for the step.

It is suggested by Slaton fans some of them, that the school and the town and the team is attempting to step too high in becoming alligned with Class A schools of District 1. They point to the size of town, to the inadequate facilities, and to the fact that the school should still be listed with Class B. They bemoan the prospect of the other teams of the conference welcoming the advent of Slaton and fattening their averages at the expense of the Tigers.

In other words, a large number of the Slaton people had rather see their team as a big fish in a little pool than a little fish in a large aquarium. They point to the fact that while Slaton was represented this year by a powerful club, many of the members of the 1930 team will be graduated at the end of the current sessions, leaving a skeleton and not too much green material for next season.

It will be remembered that Slaton did not seek admittance to the Class A contingency, but that at the regular meeting of Class A executives of District 1 it was voted to admit the Tigers into the league. Three days later the Slaton school board met and accepted the bid, signing with Class A for a period of two years. Immediately townspeople and the newspaper began to protest, declaring that Slaton was stepping out of its class and into water too deep.

There is room for argument on both sides. It is hard to blame the Slaton folk for their attitude, for as Class B outfit, Slaton was and is a powerful unit, and the influx of material will be sufficient to warrant a good Class B club. Slaton has rather poor facilities for handling crowds, and some of the citizens are bewailing the fact that a stadium of some sort must be built. Critical Slaton fans have their counter parts in Lubbock and in other places who believe that the school board acted unwisely in becoming associated with Class A.

Looking at the plan from the view of the school board and of those in favor of the move, we find rather strong argument for the upward trend. Slaton has had a club this season which could have held its own in District 1 of Class A school. The Tigers were as strong if not stronger than more than half of the teams in the district, and if they had been playing this season they would probably have finished no lower than fourth or fifth place. This satisfied the Class A officials that Slaton was ready for harder competition than prevailed in Class B. Hence the invitation.

In accepting the invitation the Slaton school board probably acted largely on the suggestion of Coach Paul Wright, representative at the district meeting at Amarillo. Evidently Coach Wright saw opportunities to bring a greater recognition to his club and to his town, and if he deemed it wise to join

Bufkin ripped nine yards off tackle but two fumbles followed and Fowler kicked to Tyler's 26-yard line. Tyler failed to gain in two attempted runs and Johnson kicked to Amarillo's 33-yard line. Three running plays gained only five and Fowler kicked out on Tyler's 19-yard mark. Johnson punted back to the Sandies' 46-yard stripe. Fowler ripped four yards and Bufkin eight more to Tyler's 41-yard line. Fowler, on a fake end-run, whipped a pass to Bufkin, who was downed on the 19-yard line.

In four tries Bufkin and Fowler gained but five yards, the ball going over to Tyler on its own six-yard line. Johnson kicked out to Amarillo's 47-yard line. Amarillo again failed to gain and Fowler booted out on Tyler's 13-yard line. On the first play, Hill, Tyler fullback, broke loose and ran 21 yards to his 44-yard line. Failing to gain from there Johnson kicked out on Amarillo's 13-yard line. Fowler's attempted punt was partially blocked, Hill recovering on Amarillo's 13-yard line. Johnson lost nine on an attempted run, but on the next play pegged a pass to Morris, who went 22 yards for a touchdown. Morris' kick for extra point was low. Tyler 6 Amarillo 0.

Tyler kicked off to Amarillo's 36-yard line as the first period ended.

Second Period.

Amarillo gained nine yards in three runs and on fourth down Fowler kicked to Johnson, who was downed in his tracks on Tyler's 17-yard line. The crowd at this time was estimated at more than 15,000. Johnson punted back to Amarillo's 47-yard line Bufkin lost three on an end run. Fowler gained back 16. A pass failed and Fowler kicked to Johnson on Tyler's 1-yard line. He almost was tackled across the line for a safety. Johnson pulled out safely to Tyler's 20-yard line. Two passes failed and Fowler kicked out on Tyler's three-yard line Johnson passed to Morris, who caught it but fumbled. Fowler recovering for Amarillo on Tyler's 12-yard stripe. On first down Fowler swept off tackle behind perfect interference and went for a touchdown, falling across the line as he was tackled. Allen missed the extra point. Tyler 6 Amarillo 6.

Harry Johnson returned the kick-off 36 yards to Tyler's 39-yard mark. Two passes were incomplete and he punted out on Amarillo's 25-yard line. Fowler tore around end for eight yards and Bufkin broke through tackle for 23 more and first down on Tyler's 36-yard line. The Tyler line appeared to be tiring under the pounding of the Amarillo backs. Scanlan hit tackle for three yards. Fowler picked up three more, then kicked out on Tyler's 18-yard line. In two sharp runs Morris and Hill punted a first down, but Johnson's pass on the next play was intercepted by Scanlan for Amarillo on Tyler's 34-yard line. Fowler flipped a pass to Bufkin for 18 yards, Bufkin ripped five off tackle, and Fowler romped through the center 11 yards for a touchdown. Allen kicked the point and Amarillo led, 13 to 6. Amarillo kicked off to Tyler's 36-yard line, and Scanlan intercepted another pass on Tyler's 46-yard line as the half ended.

Third Quarter.

R. Gregory, Tyler end, took the kickoff, broke through the center of the charging Sandies, and ran it 54 yards to Amarillo's 25-yard line before he stumbled and fell. He was touchdowned bound until he stumbled. Johnson passed to Morris 16 yards for first down on the 9-yard line, then pegged another to Morris for a touchdown. Fowler missing a tackle on the five-yard line. D. Wilcox kicked for extra point was wide and the score stood Amarillo 13, Tyler 12.

Amarillo received the kickoff on its own 41-yard line and, failing at first down in three tries, kicked to Johnson on Tyler's 18-yard mark. Johnson kicked out on his own 12-yard line. Bufkin passed to Conaley 21 yards and first down on Tyler's nine-yard line. Scanlan ripped tackle for six but Bufkin failed to gain in two tries and on the fourth down a pass was wild, the ball going over to Tyler on its own three-yard line. Morris, Tyler halfback, got loose off tackle and ran the ball out 27 yards to his own 36 before he was overtaken by Bufkin. Hill hit tackle for 11 yards, Johnson made five in two tries, then Johnson whipped a pass to C. Gregory for 25 yards to Amarillo's 13-yard line. A pass Johnson to Morris, gained eight and Hill plunged first down on the one-yard line. Hill went through center for a touchdown and Tyler led, 19 to 13, kicking goal.

Tyler kicked off to Amarillo's 34-yard line. Scanlan gained only seven yards in three tries and Fowler kicked to Tyler's 36-yard mark. Johnson passed to C. Gregory, 14 yards, but the Lions failed to gain from there and Johnson kicked to Fowler on Amarillo's 21-yard line. Fowler got loose around end for 19 yards and first down on his own 40-yard line. Fowler tossed a pass to Floyd for 20 yards, Floyd making a remarkable catch. Another pass went to Conaley, who fumbled, Tyler recovering on its own 35-yard line. Johnson skirted end for 14 yards and first down at midfield as the third period ended.

Fourth Period.

Failing to gain at the start of the final period, Tyler kicked to Fowler, who returned the ball 20 yards to his own 44-yard line Bufkin, Amarillo captain, took a pass from Fowler and ran to Tyler's 21-yard line. Bufkin hit tackle for four, two passes were wild and Fowler kicked out on Tyler's nine-yard mark. Johnson shot two ends and run, then kicked a long rolling punt to Amarillo's 12-yard line. Fowler's pass was intercepted by Johnson, who ran it 15 yards to Amarillo's 14-yard line. A pass Johnson to Brumley gained eight yards. Johnson picked up another and Hill plunged first down on the four-yard line. The Tyler backs gained only a yard in three charges at the line and on fourth down Johnson passed across the goal line the oval was brought out to Amarillo's 20. Fowler made nine yards off tackle, then passed to Conaley for first down on his 45-yard line. Bufkin sifted off tackle 10 yards and first down. Tyler held here and Fowler punted to Tyler's 13-yard line.

Harry Johnson skirted end behind fine interference and ran 36 yards to his own 49. Then he kicked over Fowler's head and across the Amarillo goal line. With less than five minutes to play the favored Sandstorm appeared to be beaten. In three plunges Fowler and Scanlan made first down on the Sandies' 38-yard line.

East Texas Team Upsets Dope to Crash Through Amarillo Defense and Win School Boy Title for First Time

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

FORT WORTH, Dec. 20. — Out from the piney woods of East Texas came a fighting band of Tyler Lions today to quell Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm, 25 to 13 and win the 1930 high school football championship of the largest state. An estimated crowd of 17,000 witnessed the schoolboy classic, almost filling Texas Christian University's new stadium.

Roundly underrated all season, the plucky, well balanced machine of Coach George Foltz proved itself a worthy champion by coming back to score three touchdowns in the second half after the powerful Amarillo eleven had led, 13 to 6, at the intermission. There was no doubt which was the more alert, more efficient unit for the day. The Sandstorm blew itself out in scoring its two touchdowns in the second period and thereafter was no match for the scrapping boys from Smith county.

Amarillo Leads at Half

At the half Amarillo appeared a certain winner, having piled up six first downs to Tyler's three and credited with 183 yards gained from scrimmage to 86 for the Lions. Bufkin and Fowler, twin stars of the Sandies backfield, had ripped the Tyler Lion apart in the second quarter. But what a difference in the second half. Not only did the lilue-jerseyed Lions pile down the field for three touchdowns and 12 first downs, but they stopped the Amarillo running game almost dead and forced the Sandies to turn to the air. Then, when their adversaries from the far Panhandle tried the air lanes, the Lions intercepted pass after pass, and turned them into ammunition for their own guns.

Harry Johnson Stands Out

Harry Johnson, Tyler quarterback and bright particular star of the new champions, failed to display any of his vaunted prowess for the first 30 minutes of play but he literally swarmed all over the Sandies during his team's triumphant second half. His accurate passes to Morris and C. Oregory paved the way for two touchdowns, he ripped off numerous substantial runs around wings and his punts shook off every Amarillo assailant on the Tyler goal. His longest run was for 26 yards from his own 13-yard line late in the game and on the next play he got off a punt that sailed over the Amarillo safety's head and across the Sandy goal. The two plays resulted indirectly in Tyler's fourth and decisive touchdown as a moment later, C. Glass, Lion center, intercepted a pass from Fowler and romped 25 yards unimpeded for a score.

Sandy Guns Fail to Fire

Amarillo, for some reason or other, failed to display the fire and punch that characterized its victory over Corsicana in the semi-finals last week. Perhaps the Sandie backs, Bufkin and Fowler, were upset by some faulty passing from center early in the game. And again, perhaps they were up against a Tyler line and secondary defense that simply refused to give way before their off-tackle smashes. Whatever the cause, the Amarillo offense that functioned so beautifully a week ago could make progress only sporadically today. Tyler was the better team, front, back and through the middle.

The initial period almost was completed, after monotonous seesawing from one end of the field to the other, before Tyler got the break that led to the first touchdown. Fowler, attempting to kick from deep in his territory, was slow getting it away and it was partially blocked. "Mule" Hill, Tyler fullback, recovered on the Sandies' 13-yard line. Johnson lost nine yards on an attempted run, but on the next play, whipped a pass to Morris, who went over the Amarillo goal line standing up.

Sandies Come Real Strong

Coming back strong at the outset of the second period, the Sandies fought Tyler back into its end of the field and finally got a telling break when Morris fumbled a pass from Johnson and Fowler recovered on the 13-yard mark. On the first play Fowler piled around end behind a wave of interference for a touchdown.

An intercepted pass led to another Amarillo score before the per-

See GOLDEN SANDIES, Page 7

Then Tyler tried a pass, and C. Gregory intercepted for Tyler on Amarillo's 44-yard line. In two runs Johnson carried it to the 28-yard line. Three plays from there gained only a yard and Johnson kicked across the Amarillo goal. Taking the ball on its 20-yard line, Amarillo tried a passing attack. The second pay, by Fowler was intercepted by C. Glass, Tyler tackle, who ran it across for a touchdown. Morris missed the kick for point and Tyler led, 25 to 13.

Tyler kicked to Amarillo's 25-yard line. Fowler fumbled the first play and J. Wilcox recovered for Tyler on Amarillo's 36. Two plays gained five yards as the game ended.

Amos and Andy At Lindsey In "Check and Double Check" As Theater Headliner This Week

Radio Stars To Appear In 1st Picture Today; Gloria Swanson To Show Here; "King of Kings" To Be Returned

LUBBOCK radio fans can turn off their radios this week. They will be given the opportunity not only to hear but to see Amos and Andy, nationally famous radio stars, on the talking screen at the Lindsey theater.

The picture is "Check and Double Check", the first of the two widely known black faced favorites. It starts a four-day engagement at the Lindsey theater today. Sue Carol and Irene Rich are in the supporting cast.

Madam Queen and all other associates of Amos and Andy in the radio series will be seen in "Check and Double Check." Advance information says the picture brings "joy to a gloom-regusted world."

Gloria Swanson Coming

The one and only Gloria Swanson will be shown here in a special Christmas Eve prevue Wednesday night at the Lindsey in her latest picture "What a Widow." The talkie is heralded as one of the greatest of this artist has produced. It is an Allan Dwan production.

Something entirely different from what one usually finds in the way of movie entertainment is to be found at the Palace in "Africa Speaks." All of the scenes actually were taken in the jungles of Africa, according to the producers. The picture is showing today and will continue through tomorrow.

By popular request the Lyric theater is returning "The King of Kings" to Lubbock for a third showing here as a special Christmas attraction. Held by many as the greatest moving picture ever produced this greatest of all stories—the life of Christ will be presented Wednesday and Thursday. It is in sound.

A real thriller is promised at the Lyric theater starting today in "The Third Alarm." The all-star cast includes Anita Louise, James Hall, Paul Hurst, Jean Hersholt, Hobart Bosworth, Mary Doran, Walter Perry and Nita Martan. The picture is chock full of thrilling fires and rescues with firemen as the heroes.

iod ended. Scanlan stopped a toss on Tyler's 34 yard stripe. A pass, Fowler to Bufkin carried to the 16, and a play later Fowler again sifted through tackle and fought his way across Tyler's goal. When Allen kicked the extra point, Amarillo led 13 to 6.

Stumbles on Scoring Play

It took the new champions less than two minutes to push across for a score as the third period began. Robert Gregory Tyler tackle, caught the kickoff and raced it back 84 yards before he finally stumbled and fell on Amarillo's goal but D. Wilcox failed at point and the Sandies still led, 13 to 12.

Thus it stood until late in the third quarter, when the Lions staged a 96 yard drive for the touchdown that decided the championship. A determined Amarillo attack finally was stopped on Tyler's 4 yard mark and from there the East Texans went to victory. Morris started it with a 32 yard run around end. Hill collected 11 more. Johnson to Morris was good for 8 paces, and Hill plunged through center for first down on Amarillo's one yard line. On second down Hill carried it over. Morris kicked a perfect point and that was the ball game.

Sandstorm Blows in Vain

Although the Sandstorm blew and blustered in the closing quarter, it never could sweep that "thin blue line" aside. Time and again the Sandies penetrated their opponents' territory, but each time they were halted and forced to kick. Finally, they tried one too many passes and it back-fired on them. C. Glass, Tyler guard, scooped one of Fowler's tosses into his arms and ran 25 yards for a touchdown to bring the final score to 25 to 13.

The round-up showed, first downs, Tyler 15; Amarillo 13; total yards gained, Tyler 489; Amarillo 467; passes completed, Tyler 8; Amarillo 9; gained on intercepted passes, Tyler 56; Amarillo 0. And that was the crop.

Peaceful Place

Graham Chapel Is Law Abiding

TAHOKA, Dec. 20.—Graham Chapel, east of Tahoka and over in Garza county, must have set some kind of a record as a law abiding community. Although the school house of that community has been left unlocked for seven years, it has never been entered by culprits or any of its contents molested, according to L. P. Redditt, former principal of the school, but now a farmer of the community.

Though a justice of the peace has been elected at Graham Chapel several times, he has never heard a case. Nor has there ever been a charge or issued grand jury indictment returned against any citizen of the community either while he was living in the community or for any unlawful act committed in the community; however, a few have strayed away from home and gotten into trouble, Mr. Redditt says.

Class A, we can see why it possibly would be a good thing for Slaton. It is hard to buck against a coach any time, and knowing Coach Wright as we do, it is especially hard to go against his idea. Time may prove that the move was an unwise one, but now we are tempted to believe that Slaton will do well in Class A.

Slaton must build a stadium, 'tis true, and the town must rally to the support of the team in a greater way, if such is possible. But that is a point in favor of the move. A stadium furnishing a seating capacity for the fans and for visitors will tend to draw greater crowds to home games, swell-in the gate receipts and giving the gridsters more to work for. The inspiration offered in playing against Class A teams will give the fans a better display of football, will cause the players to train harder, practice harder, and serve as an impetus to play harder.

The school should not lose money as a result of the deal, because all out of town games will be protected by guarantees. The greatest objection we can see to the change is the fact that as a result of the split in the district, Slaton will be in the western half which is made up of the strongest teams. Another season, however, may find things on a more even basis. We, for one, are glad to welcome Slaton to Class A, and say, power to the Tigers!

Prisoners are To Miss Happy Christmas Era

'Jail House Blues' Supplant Christmas Carols as Plans For Yule Dinner Forgotten by Officers Here

Lubbock prisoners lacking entertainment on Christmas Day can spend an hour visioning the proverbial Yuletide dinner of turkey and dressing and all of the fixing. For that is as near as he will be to such a dinner, county and city officials point out.

"We'll probably give them a better dinner than usual, but we arn't fond enough of prisoners to play Santa Claus and serve turkey," the sheriff, Wade Hardy commented. "It's the usual sandwich and cup of coffee for our prisoners," John Lemond, chief of police remarked.

Too Many In Need

"There are too many law-abiding citizens who need some help for a Christmas dinner for us to spend a lot of extra money on prisoners," Mr. Hardy continued, and others in his office agreed with him.

The city officials are hoping for an empty jail on Christmas morning. The hall was vacant last Yuletide and no offenders were picked up on Christmas Eve or the following night. Christmas is usually a quiet season, the cops commented. County officials anticipate a larger enrollment than usual in their jail. They, too, were judging by past Christmas. Probably forty-five prisoners will have a merry Christmas Day looking at the world from behind the county bars, officials predict.

Radio Plans For Yuletide

Programs From Three Foreign Nations Expected To Be Re-Broadcast To America; Features Planned

BY C. E. BUTTERFIELD,
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Radio is concentrating upon plans for Christmas.

Among other things, it was announced today that arrangements have been put under way by NBC to bring Christmas Day features from three countries — England, Germany and Japan. Details have not been completed, but the programs are to include Yuletide entertainment of a type familiar to the originating countries.

Japan Not Definite

While the picking up of a program from Japan is not definite, engineers say that it will be possible in view of the success of the first transmission made from that country this year in the broadcast of the signing of the London Naval treaty.

Otherwise, two Christmas features have been added to the list. One is to be a Christmas Eve party lasting two hours on the WEAF stations, starting at 11 p. m. (e.s.t.) It will include numerous entertainers with John B. Kennedy as master of ceremonies and Nathaniel Shilkret as musical supervisor.

The WABC chain is to broadcast a talk by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture from the annual Christmas party of the National Press Club at Washington at 2 p. m. December 24. The secretary will be introduced by Norman W. Baxter, managing editor of the Washington Post and president of the club.

Mrs. Ray Leaving Office, January 1

LAMESA, Dec. 20. (Special)—Dawson county will lose its first woman sheriff January 1st, when Mrs. Joe L. Ray, present sheriff and tax collector relinquishes her office to Gus White, wh owas elected to the office of sheriff in the November election. Mrs. Ray, who was appointed March 1st, 1929, to fill out the unexpired term of her deceased husband, was not a candidate this year for re-election. Her husband was serving his second term as sheriff of Dawson county at the time of his death.

Mrs. Ray, in addition to fi'ling the office of sheriff and tax collector in a creditable manner, has also been active in different officer's organizations of the state. She is a member of the sheriffs association of Texas, and of the West Texas Sheriffs association, serving as secretary of the latter organization since her induction into office. It is a matter of record that she has attended every meeting held by these two organizations, since assuming office.

After turning her office over to her successor, Mrs. Ray has no plans except to retire from public life.

NEW SOCIAL WORKER

ROSWELL, Dec. 20.—(Special)—Miss Minnie Robertson, formerly of Columbia, S. C. has arrived here and is assuming her duties as social worker for Eddy and Chaves counties. While the children's father, Herbert Hoover, Jr., is convalescing at Asheville, N. C., the three little Hoovers are living with their grandparents in a special suite at the White House. This is the first time small children have lived there since President Wilson's grandchildren visited him.

Half Dollar of State's Money Goes For Highways And 37 Cents For Education, Tax Expert Reveals: Cites Faults

BY PAUL BOLTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Dec. 20 (AP)—Here's how the state's dollar is spent:

A quarter of a cent for the legislature; about two and a quarter cents for the judicial branch; slightly over three-fourths of a cent for executive and administrative work; less than half a cent for law enforcement and military; about three quarters of a cent for regulating business and industry; less than a quarter of a cent for conservation of health and sanitation; one and three quarters cents for development and conservation of natural resources; nearly a half a dollar for highways, approximately 37 cents for all education; about six and a half cents for eleemosynary institutions, nearly three cents for pensions and less than two cents for parks and monuments, interest and "miscellaneous" combined.

Made By Expert

The compilation was made up by F. C. Weinert, state tax commissioner. To get an idea of the actual expenditures, however, the highway's half a dollar apportionment amounted, in the fiscal year ended August 31, to $47,052,605.51. Total state expenditures were $103,137,982.28, Weinert reported.

Where that same dollar came from: Ad valorem tax, 23 cents; gasoline and license taxes, approximately 34 cents; gross receipts 10 cents; all taxes and licenses, 72 cents; county, federal and other aid, 15 cents; land sales and rentals, nearly seven cents; interest, about three and a half cents. All other income sources amounted, in the larger picture, to less than a cent each. Total collections, according to Weinert's report, was $107,789,998.91.

Commissioner Weinert scathingly rebuked the state taxing system in his report.

"In our zeal for more tax money to spend," he said, "we are strangely indifferent to the security and stability of the property taxed. We keep on voting county, district and city bonds for almost every conceivable purpose, knowing all the while that irrespective of whether real property is earning or losing it is the one and only species of value actually pledged for the debt, and that in the process of taxation it must ultimately pay almost the whole of it, interest and principal.

May Be Fatal Gift

"Credit is a good thing to have, but it may become a fatal gift. To this almost all owners of real property are in a position to attest.

"One doesn't need to be gifted with super intelligence to comprehend that real property is not the sole beneficiary of public improvements. It is but recently, for example, that we have been converted to the doctrine that users of highways should pay for them. We ought to go still further, and in some proper way extend the same principal to all indebtedness incurred for public improvements, and impose a part of the cost upon those who in the highway of commerce, profit most from expenditure of these vast sums.

Gets By Untaxed

"Ordinary occupations, including those of a professional character, are not taxed at all. Uncovered wealth gets by untaxed.

"Should property as a marketable commodity be somewhat laggard, there is a reason and certainly an obvious one. Prudent buyers are not looking for an opportunity to provide the whole of public improvements and pay the taxes too."

Weinert reiterated his suggestion of two years ago that collection of delinquent taxes proceed "in a sane manner" so as to not work harm on the delinquents by collection of "the many fees and charges now permitted." He pointed out that in some cases the state had made it virtually impossible for the delinquent to pay. "That with fees and costs and penalties it has in many instances increased the sum necessary to pay and cancel delinquencies until the owners cannot afford to pay nor the state afford to sue."

After three months' work the hull of the Von de Tann, the 20,000-ton German battleship sunk in Scapa Flow in the World war, has been raised eight feet above water.

Senator Carey, Wyoming's New Solon, Is Yale Grad Who Made Good In Cows

Is First Native Son To Hold Post, Says Rodney Dutcher

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 — Senator Robert D. Carey is the latest member of the cattle-raising aristocracy of Wyoming to rise to fame and power in the state and reap his eventual reward by election to the Senate. His is the most distinguished appearance among the six new senators and he may turn out to be the most popular of the group.

His father, Joseph M. Carey, became first governor and then senator from Wyoming. Robert D. Carey followed right along. He was governor from 1919 to 1923 and on the last election day was chosen by the voters to succeed Pat Sullivan in the seat held by the late Francis E. Warren for nearly 40 years. But this Carey also holds the distinction of being the first native son of Wyoming to hold either office.

The four men mentioned, as well as Senator John B. Kendrick of Wyoming, were all early Wyoming settlers and own or have owned huge herds of livestock.

Favors Old Age Pensions

They have all been high protectionists — and Republicans, except for Kendrick. Carey is, too, but as the youngest of the lot he comes here with a legislative proposal still branded as radical by many conservatives. He favors old age pensions and although he realizes nothing can be done about that in this short session he is going to introduce an old age pensions bill in the next congress.

"I don't feel," he says, "that men who have spent their lives in industry should end their lives dependent on charity or their relatives. They are entitled to something happier than that. One hears that wage earners should lay up enough to take care of them after they stop work, but sickness and the education of children and periods of unemployment often wipe out the savings of a lifetime and I believe that the federal and state governments can co-operate in instituting a pensions system."

He's a fine-looking, outdoor man, this Carey — 52 years old, white-haired, broad - shouldered, more than six feet tall and weighing 190 pounds. In Wyoming, when not busy with politics, he has ridden every day in the saddle over his ranches.

"I have always been crazy over agriculture and stock-raising," he explains, "and it has kept me outdoors. My hobbies have been confined to experiments in growing and breeding."

Joseph M. Carey brought 15,000 head of cattle into Wyoming in 1876. Robert D. was born at Cheyenne in 1878. He was a small child when his father took him to Washington. He graduated from Yale in 1900 and went to ranching and stock-raising at once. Today he is the head of various concerns, interested primarily in stock, hay, grain, sugar beets and irrigation developments. He is one of the biggest cattle men and sugar farmers in the west and his firm of J. M. Carey & Brother carries on those activites with modern, scientifc mass production methods. The CY brand of the Carey cattle is the oldest in Wyoming, judged by continuous service. The senator's herd of purebred Herefords is about the second largest in the country.

At Careyhurst, his largest ranch, Carey has herds of buffalo and of elk running wild over hundreds of acres.

Outside Wyoming and its politics, he is best known as the head of the commission which President Coolidge appointed in 1924 to study and report on the condition of American agriculture.

In the recent campaign he promised the voters of Wyoming that he would vote according to their wishes on the wet-dry issues. They ought to be permitted to express their will, he said, and until they did so again he would accept their three to one vote about 10 years ago for a prohibition amendment to the state constitution.

Gasoline Selling Lubbock's Biggest Business; 86 Stations In Operation

Enough Motor Fuel Sold In City Each Day Of Month To Run Austin Around Globe; 13,324 Gallons Sold Daily

LATE LAST SUMMER it was estimated that there were enough Tom Thumb golf courses in the United States to can the entire American tomato crop for two seasons. Coming closer home, it is estimated, and backed by facts and figures, that enough gasoline is sold in the city of Lubbock in one month to run one of the new form-fitting bantam automobiles around the world 533 times and back to Singapore.

That is being conservative, for the distance around the world is about 25,000 miles, as the crow flies. But the infant auto is not a crow and if other parts of the world are as slow to vote good road bonds as this section at least 5,000 more miles should be allowed for detours and mud-spinning.

86 Stations Here

A recent detailed report made by a local gasoline concern showed that 86 gasoline and oil stations operated on the retail basis in the city of Lubbock, dispensing approximately 400,000 gallons of gasoline to city drivers and owners per month. A check with the county clerk's records shows that 10,500 automobiles are operated in Lubbock county, and it is estimated that 6,225 of these are city owned and operated.

An average of 13,334 gallons of gasoline are sold in the city each day, and that figure divided by the number of automobiles shows that each automobile consumes an average of about one and one-fourth gallons of fuel daily, enough to travel about 20 or 35 miles, depending on the number of cylinders. That, however, does not do justice to the traveling salesmen or to the college student.

Vies With Football

The business of gas and oil vies with that of football for real big business. Supposing that the average retail price for gasoline is 19 cents per gallon, a total of $76,000 is left in the cash drawers of Lubbock's filling stations each month, or $2,-533.33 each day. Which means that the stations in Lubbock average an income from gasoline alone of $29.45 daily.

And the people who spend this money for gasoline let four cents [illegible] which amounts to $16,000 each and every month, and they ride on detours and muddy roads.

Right Of Way In Lynn Is Obtained

Right of way has been obtained by the Lynn county commissioner's court for the new route for highway No. 9 from Lubbock county line south to a junction point on the present route between Tahoka and Lubbock.

The commissioner's court has advised the division engineers that everything is in readiness for work to begin. Distance is a little over a mile and a half.

Recently state highway department authorized an allotment of $2,000 for straightening the road on the north edge of Lynn county. The big curve a Woodrow, in Lubbock county, will be saved as well as a two mile east and west section in Lynn county.

"When we get the highway to Tahoka completed there will be not more than three curves in the entire road," Joe H. Caldwell, division engineer, says. "I think we will eliminate about six turns on the highway."

It is expected that maintenance department employes of the division will do the grading work. Light culverts are to be put in where needed.

TURKEYS PURCHASED

More Than 68,000 Pounds of Birds Sold at Floydada

FLOYDADA, Dec. 20—(Special) More than sixty eight thousand pounds of turkeys were bought from Floyd County farmers by local produce buyers during the Christmas market period. The avarage market price paid was seventeen cents, bringing the producers in this territory $12,560.

The Thanksgiving market season brought the producers approximately $14,000 making a total of $26,500 the turkey crop brought. These figures do not take into account any but those for the produce buyers in Floydada and it is probable that the turkey crop in Floyd County brought the producers at least $50,000 all of which will be turned into the channels of trade.

Most of the turkeys brought on the local market were dressed in Floydada and put on cold storage, later being shipped to eastern markets. A total of eight carloads were shipped from Floydada.

Thirteen Entered In Yards Contest

Entries in the Christmas Yard decoration contest were closed Saturday noon with thirteen contestants and judging was started last night. Announcement of winners in the contest will probably be made the first of this week, according to announcement by Sam Lightfoot, chairman of the contest committee.

The $75 in cash prizes offered as awards, will be delivered to the winners on Christmas Day.

List of the entrants includes the following: Mrs. Louis H. Haward, 2801 19th; Mrs. W. T. McKinley, 107 Broadway; Mrs. Tom A. White, 1629 Main; Mrs. E. L. Robertson, 1902 Broadway; Mrs. Ed Vaughn, 1901 28th; Mrs. Jas. H. Goodman, 2401 19th; Mrs. R. T. Campbell, 1621 Avenue Y; Mrs. Minnie Reeves, 2510 21st; Mrs. R. L. Fletcher, 1624 Avenue "Y"; Mrs. T. Central Ward Wins First in School Meet

Total of 172 Points Made by Winner; Dupre School Is Second; Literary and Athletic Events Held

Final activities in Lubbock's first intra-school meet were completed Friday, check-up revealing that the meet was won by Central ward school with a total of 172 points, according to a report made Saturday by L. H. Liston, athletic director, and H. C. Bowlin, literary director, of the meet.

Second place went to the Dupre school with a total of 135 points. Other winners placed as follows: third, George M. Hunt, 118 points; fourth, Sanders school, 76 points; fifth K. Carter school, 87 points. The junior high school took part in the literary events but did not enter the athletic work, as a result they received an aggregate of 75 points.

All Schools Take Part.

The meet was composed of literary, track and field events. All schools took part and, according to directors, great interest was manifest throughout.

It has been explained that the meet was designed as an experiment and that from now on they will be held twice each year. The work furnishes students a means of demonstrating their abilities along various lines.

Grading, Drainage Almost Completed

Grading and drainage work on highway No. 9 south of Lubbock to the Lynn county line is "almost completed," and probably will be finished by the first of the year according to Joe H. Caldwell, division engineer for the state.

When this is completed traffic will be routed over the highway as far south as Woodrow and as soon as the Lynn county end is completed, all the way into that county to where the old road turns west several miles south of the county line.

"Grading work north of Lubbock probably will be finished the later part of January or the first of February," Mr. Caldwell said.

"I understand that the Santa Fe is about ready to start driving of piling for the underpass south of Monroe," he continued. "Plans have been completed and the state is waiting on the railroad.

"By the time the piling and false work is completed we will be ready to go ahead with the underpass."

The South African government has started plans for the development of a great dairy industry.

TRADES FLOYD FARM

FLOYDADA, Dec. 20 (Special)—Lee Montague, former Floyd county rancher now living near Tucumcari, N. M., has traded his homestead ranch in east Floyd county for Plainview residence property. The deal was made with the Panhandle Lumber company of Amarillo and eight dwellings were involved. Mr. Montague had owned the ranch, which consisted of 1,036 acres, for 35 years and for many years he resided on the home place.

Peak of Xmas Mail Rush Is At Hand Here

Friday's Receipts at Local Postoffice $500 More Than Same Day Last Year; Packages Handled at Armory

Friday's receipts at the Lubbock post office were around $500 in excess of those for the same date in 1929, John L. Vaughan, postmaster, said in announcing that the peak of the Christmas rush was at hand.

Saturday's receipts, he added, might not be larger than the same date last year. Expectations are that the month of December will be about the same as December 1929, when the receipts were $12,-727.

Work At Armory

All inbound parcels and packages are being worked at the armory. Beginning Monday there will be three trucks with two men each, besides the driver, at work delivering packages.

"There will be four trucks with two men and a driver Wednesday," he said. "In addition we will have our regular trucks. Friday, the day after Christmas there will be two trucks to deliver parcels.

Eight extra clerks and the same number of carriers are on duty this year.

No Deliveries Xmas

No deliveries will be made Thursday, Christmas day, except the usual special delivery. Box mail will be worked also.

Total receipts for the year up to December 1 were $112,999.11 compared to $101,980.10 for the same period in 1929. The total for the 11 months is $1,707.99 behind the entire 1929 total.

November receipts were $9,226.76, a decrease of $1,205.76 from the 1929 receipts.

Receipts for the 11 months are so close to the year's total that Mr. Vaughan expects the December receipts will show the year's gain over that of 1929.

RECORDS ANCIENT

NACOGDOCHES, Dec. 20 (AP)—The oldest county court records in Texas, with the possible exception of same in San Antonio, are found in the courthouse here. A large number of such documents still remain in the building where they were filed years ago.

Propose Two More County Highways

Plans for two more state highways in Lubbock county are being completed by the division engineer's office here and will be ready for the approval of the state highway department, Joe H. Caldwell, division engineer, explained.

"We have just about completed plans for highway 24 east from Lubbock to the Crosby county line," he said. "It will be about 19 miles long from the edge of Lubbock to the county line.

"Plans for the Brownfield road, No. 137, are nearly completed. This road from the city limits of Lubbock to the county line is 15 miles long."

Auctions of Jewelry Now Under Control

Ordinance Is Passed Last Week to Regulate Sales in City; License Required Under New Ruling

Designed to safeguard the buying public, an ordinance regulating jewelry auctions in the city of Lubbock was passed last week by the city commission, to take effect immediately. Commissioners indicated that the ordinance was passed to control activities of unregulated auctioneers.

The new law covers the sale of jewelry, diamonds and other precious or semi-precious stones, watches, clocks, pictures, paintings, bric-a-brac or such like articles and prescribes a penalty of not more than a $200 fine for violation of any portion of the rules.

Application Necessary

Before any auction may be held in the city the person conducting such sale must make application to the assessor and collector of taxes for thirty days before the sale begins and a license will be issued, time limit being for thirty days only.

The application for license shall have an inventory of the stock to be offered setting out the quality, kind or grade of each item and invoice cost of each.

All persons applying for a license shall tender a bond to the City of Lubbock in the sum of $1,000, made payable to the city. The bond shall be made amenable to any person who may sustain any loss or damage on account of any material misrepresentation of fact and belief or any material suppression of facts concerning the merchandise to be auctioned or which may grow out of a violation of any terms of the ordinance.

Statements Guarded

The new law provides that it shall be unlawful for any person acting as auctioneer to make any statements which are false in any particular, or which have a tendency to mislead any person present, or to make any representation whatsoever as to the quality, quantity, character or present condition, value or cost, general selling price, or whether new or second hand of any property offered for sale.

It is also provided that it shall be unlawful for any person to act as by-bidder or what is commonly known as "capper" or "booster" at any auction or to offer to make any false bid.

Car Licenses

equal to 20 per cent of the registration fee is added.

Plates of 1930 can be carried legally until February 1, although 1931 plates can be put on January 1. January is the only month in which an automobile in operation is permitted to bear either tags of the current year or the next preceding calendar year. Every vehicle must be registered in the owner's name.

Registration fees for passenger automobiles, according to weight, are:

1. From 901 to 2,000 pounds inclusive—28 cents a hundredweight, or from $2.80 to $5.60.

2. From 2,001 to 3,500 pounds inclusive—36 cents a hundredweight, or from $7.56 to $12.60.

3. From 3,501 to 4,500 pounds inclusive—48 cents a hundredweight, or from $17.28 to $21.60.

4. From 4,501 to 6,000 pounds inclusive—50 cents a hundredweight or from $23 to $30.

Fractions Don't Count

Fractions of a hundred are not considered in fixing the registration fees. For example: Plates for a car weighing 2,001 pounds cost as much as those for one weighing 2,099, both being in the weight-group of 2,001 to 2,100 pounds inclusive. Other group separations are made in similar fashion, the assessment gradually increasing in size.

Of 1930 and 1929 models, Fords, Chevrolets, Dodges, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Oaklands all are in class No. 2, that of automobiles weighing from 2,001 to 3,500 pounds inclusive.

Buicks are in the second, third and fourth classes, as they range in weight from 2,950 pounds to 4,700 pounds. To that weight, as has been said, 100 pounds must be added. Thus, a 2,950-pound car would be assessed as a 3,050-pound machine.

Weight-ranges of some of the other makes, as given by dealers, follow:

Ford 2,155 to 2,800 pounds inclusive, models for 1931, 1930 and 1929 all being about the same weight.

Chevrolet 2,415 to 2,765 pounds inclusive in 1931 models, 2,265 to 2,615 in 1930 models, 1929 models about 60 pounds lighter than those of 1930.

Dodge 2,462 to 2,819 pounds inclusive in 1930 six-cylinder models and 2,690 to 3,162 in eight-cylinder models; 1929 six-cylinder models 2,-730 pounds inclusive.

Oldsmobile 2,665 to 3,090 pounds inclusive in 1930, models of 1929 of similar weight.

Pontiac 2,340 to 2,720 pounds inclusive in 1930, of about the same weight in 1929 models.

Oakland 2,770 to 3,180 pounds inclusive in 1930, of about the same weight in 1929 models.

Permits to have lights tested are issued by County Judge Robert H. Bean at the court house. Several garages and service stations in Lubbock county towns have facilities for testing the lights for a small charge.

Mrs. Eric Studeman, 2310 Sixteenth street, has left for San Antonio and Brownsville to spend the Christmas holidays with her son, Edward Studeman, of Brownsville.

Cotton — Cotton Market Is Erratic Saturday

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20. (AP) — The cotton market today after opening somewhat irregular and declining 1 to 5 points in early trading, turned firmer later, principally on covering by satisfied shorts for over the week-end. There was also some trade buying and also buying by ring traders on a bullish view of the ginning statistics issued by the census bureau at the start. The bureau made the total ginnings to December 13, 13,259,622 bales or only 434,783 bales for the last period as against 873,606 for the corresponding period last year.

There developed rather a scarcity of contracts and prices bulged 14 to 22 points from the early lows.

There was a slight reaction on some months at the end on realizing and the close was barely steady, the general market showing net gains for the day of 6 to 13 points.

Liverpool came in 1 to 4 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that there had been week-end liquidation but the tone was steady on trade selling. The opening here was irregular or unchanged to 5 points up. The market soon eased off on realizing, March dropping to 9.91 and May to 10.17 down 6 points from the opening, and 1 to 5 points under the close of yesterday.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 20. (AP)—An irregular opening in cotton today was followed by advances on week-end coverings and some trade buying in a comparatively narrow market here today. March contracts sold up from 9.87@10.96 and closed at 10.02 compared with 9.99 at the close of Friday. The final tone of the market was steady at net advances of 9 to 12 points.

The report of the census bureau showing ginnings of 13,259,622 bales prior to December 13, against 13,456,783 last year was a shade under some of the recent private forecasts but appeared to be without any particular effort on the market.

Much of the trading represented further switching from near to late months and the day's fluctuations were attributed chiefly to readjustments of the technical position through evening up of accounts for over the week-end.

Liverpool cables reported trade calling and Bombay buying in that market, supplied by liquidation. These advices indicated an improved inquiry for cotton cloth from South America and increased sales of cloths in the Shanghai auctions. The amount of cotton on ship-board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 168,000 bales against 126,000 last year.

chambers largely were instrumental in the achievement.

Organization of the Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry association, successful promotion here of the first annual poultry show of the association, and selection of Slaton as permanent home of the poultry exposition—one of the largest and possibly the largest in Texas—were among the chambers' achievements this year. Fifty-four northwest Texas counties are included in the territory of the Panhandle-Plains Poultry association.

Distribution in October of 1,000 bushels of seed wheat to farmers to plant in winter pastures to offset a short feed crop caused by the drouth was negotiated by the Slaton chambers. The seed wheat was sold on one-year notes which were accepted without security and without interest.

Marked expansion in publicity work was another outstanding accomplishment of the Slaton chambers during Mr. Wilson's period of service.

PAVING IS PLANNED

Twenty Blocks In Lovington To Be Improved Soon

LOVINGTON, Dec. 20. (Special)—Approximately 20 blocks of paving will be started in the city of Lovington as soon as the reports and estimates are completed by the Highway Department and state comptroller, according to Ace Christmas, chairman of the committee of the local chamber of commerce.

Petitions have been signed by the local property owners and the city council have taken action approving the street improvements, however, the paving around the court house square is temporarily delayed due to the transfer of county funds being approved by the department for that purpose.

Utility Stocks Contribute Strength In Saturday's Short Market Session

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20. (AP) — Utility stocks contributed the best strength in today's short session of the stock market. Pivotal industrials marked time and the rails, encountering realizing from yesterday's rally, closed lower. Sales totaled 1,097,780 shares.

Bonds, eager to make compensation for their recent misbehavior again took a decided jump in active trading. Grains eased, but cotton closed 8 to 12 points higher on week-end covering and trade buying.

The refusal of stocks to fall into a secondary reaction was disconcerting to bears who had counted on a prompt dip from the rally that started Wednesday. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Du Pont and others failed to get much higher, but on the other hand they bore up well under realizing sales which acquired their largest volume toward the close. Several of the stocks mentioned ended the day with small net losses, however. In addition to the group strength of the utilities, there were mild suggestions of bullishness in some of the motors and specialties.

The approach of year-end inventories and holiday closing will be felt in the steel industry next week. Operations in the Youngstown area will be off considerably because of these influences, although some producers are profiting by an increased demand for sheet steel from the automobile manufacturers.

Christmas Spirit

child will awaken to find it, arms out-streiched and with the same wistful expression which captivated the heart of the man.

Maybe there is a parent who can visit among the dolls, wagons and other bits of tin and leate Christmas morning and its joys in the hands of Santa alone—maybe, but who would want to?

Saturday Busy Day

Saturday was a busy day in Lubbock's mercantile district as belated shoppers filed through stores, looking, some buying and others wishing. Store managers have done themselves proud this year in providing places wherein hard-earned dollars may be spent almost carelessly for the short-lived joy it will bring to some youthful heart.

But little is missing from the shelves but little will be left when anxious parents and bright-eyed youngsters finish. A constant crowd of women and little girls thronged aisles nearby to which counters were filled with dolls of every sort. An exceptional vocabulary would be required to describe all the dolls being shown and one would have to have a knowledge of all the people of the world, from the darkened jungle to the bright lights of gay Paree.

Stay Open Late

Lubbock store owners, most of them at least, have announced that their establishments will remain open evenings from now until Christmas for convenience of shoppers. Everywhere the holiday spirit holds sway—multitudinous lights are hung from street intersections, Christmas trees grace sidewalks, the tops of buildings and the windows of stores, holly wreaths, miniature likenesses of Santa Claus and even the tinkling of a tiny bell in the hand of a Salvation Army worker as he seeks to collect funds for the free Christmas dinner for the poor next Thursday.

A description of the large stocks offered by local merchants would be difficult. Favorite electric trains this year execute every difficult maneuver imaginable. Tri-motored airplanes, single seaters and bombers, pursuit and transport ships are here. Some of them actually fly while others zip gracefully over polished floors to end their flight in a nose over against the baseboard.

Novelties Featured

Scores of other new tricks and novelties hold the limelight, enough in fact to make a parents wonder just what he and old Santa will choose.

For the boy who would do big things there are trick logs and poles which, when properly placed together, will form anything from a rat in a trap to the Eiffel tower; bits of steel that grow into mechanical wonders.

Christmas shows no partiality, however, and mother and dad are to be remembered just as much as the youngsters. Wonders of electricity provide every modern appliance for the home, all of which cook, iron, heat, sew or curl as the equipment expands. There are just scores of presents for dad, ties, robes, shirts, smoking sets, traveling bags and what not.

But three more shopping days remain, merchants urge earliest buying possible to relieve the last minute congestion and to save the buyer from goods which have been "picked over."

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20. (AP) — Livestock trade around the eleven market circuit this week was featured by a reaction on fed steers and long yearlings. Better grades of fed steers moved to an especially good advantage, showing a general upturn of 25 to 50c. Country demand for replacement stock was slow with a weak to lower tone prevailing throughout the week. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 181,400.

Under the influence of a fairly broad shipping demand the lighter weights of hogs under 300 pounds are closing to 10 higher with a week ago while medium and heavy butchers are on a weak to 15 lower basis. St. Louis had a late top of 8.25. Offerings were around 498,000.

Fat lambs are generally 25 higher for the week and matured killing classes of sheep are unevenly steady to 25 higher. On the close Chicago had a top of 8.35 on fat lambs. The supply numbered around 304,000.

Highway Work

ed until later in the spring.

Hall county has two projects that will add nearly 30 miles while Motley county has a 33 mile project across the county.

To Settle Location

Location of a state road in Cochran county from the Hockley county line in the east to Morton, county seat, is to be settled.

It is probable that Hockley county will have over 15 miles of road on No. 24 taken over by the state for maintenance, with a chance that the new route from Levelland to the Cochran county line to be located.

By counties the projects as outlined by Mr. Caldwell include:

Lubbock county: grading and drainage work on N. 7, northwest from Lubbock to Hockley county, 17.745 miles; No. 24, Lubbock to Crosby county, 19 miles; No. 137, Lubbock southwest to Hockley county line, 15 miles. Paving No. 9 north to Abernathy and south to Lynn county, 30 miles. While the engineer did not mention the fact, there is a slight possibility that No. 7 may be paved northwest.

Hale county: Highway 28 west to Lamb county line, paving of 22.139 miles, contract to be let in aJnuary; in city of Plainview, 37 of a mile on the highway.

Crosby county: four mile grading and drainage work from Crosbyton east to line of road district.

Dickens county: Surfacing of No. 18, Spur to Dickens, 10 miles.

Motley county: Grading, drainage and bridge work for No. 18 north and south across county, 33 miles.

Hall county: Motley county line to Turkey, 5.5 miles, contractor awaiting work order; grading and drainage contract for 26 miles Turkey to Estelline, across county.

Lynn county: Straightening of route on Highway No. 9 from Lubbock county line south about two miles to avoid several turns. Special authorization for this has been allowed.

Cochran county: location of proposed No. 24 from Hockley county line west to Morton, county seat, some 13 miles from the line; taking over by state for maintenance work.

Hockley county: may relocate highway 24, Levelland to Cochran county line and taking over of road, Lubbock county to Levelland, for maintenance.

Unofficially, the division engineer has been advised of several proposed bond issues for the district, including a $150,000 bond issue in Gaines county to caliche a north and south highway from Seagraves to Andrews county. Lynn county commissioners have been asked to act on a proposal for a bond issue.

It also is probable that bond issues may be brought up in Dawson and Cochran counties with indications that within two years several other counties may get the bond issue fever.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Dec. 20. —(AP) —Cash grain continued slow today. Traders reported the dullest market of the year with all grains hard to sell and values entirely nominal. No. 1 hard wheat of any protein was probably worth 78 1-2. 79 1-2c delivered Texas common points. Estimated receipts: wheat, 9 cars; corn 5, and sorghums, 2.

Quotations on coarse grains, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid, rabbged as follows:

Corn: No. 2 mixed 78-79; No. 2 white or yellow 80-81.

Oats: No. 2 red 46-46.

Sorghums: No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 1.28-1.31. No. 2 kaffir 1.24-1.26.

Dealers also quote basis delivery Texas group one points, as follows: No. 2 mixed corn 77-78, No. 2 white corn 81-82; No. 2 yellow corn 79-80, to which add 3c for delivery group three. No. 3 white oats 43 1-2 44c, to which add 1c for delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 20. (AP)—Surprise aspects of the government crop report pointing to large domestic wheat and rye acreage led to record breaking new upsets in grain today. July delivery of wheat and most deliveries of corn collapsed to fresh bottom levels, but old crop deliveries of wheat were upheld by government sponsored agencies. Receipts of all grain at domestic primary centers were considerably larger than a year ago.

Wheat closed unsettled at yesterday's finish to 1 1-8 cents lower. Corn closed 7-8 to 5-8 cents down, oats 3-8 to 5-8 cents off, and provisions from a 2-cent setback to a rise of 22.

Lowest prices in wheat came at the outset, and carried July down to 4 5-8 cents, an overnight drop of 1 3-8 a bushel, outdoing yesterday's bottom record which itself was the lowest since 1901. Most traders acted chiefly on official disclosure that only a small decrease in United States winter wheat acreage had been effected and that rye acreage showed an increase instead of a substantial decrease.

Active selling generated by the influence of wheat weakness and by favorable weather accelerated the downward swing of corn. On the setback breaks in prices, buying enlarged, but rallies failed to hold well. May corn fell to 71 1-2 cents, just 12 cents a bushel below the high point attained in August during the drouth. Oats followed other cereals.

Bills Signed

Wisconsin, and Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, assailed the appropriation as a "drop in the bucket." They read reports from an independent survey of employment conditions in more than 200 cities conducted by themselves and demanded congress enact a direct appropriation to be spent in relief work.

Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, supported the contention of the administration that the cities and communities with the aid of the Red Cross could meet their own problems. He urged that American self-reliance be fostered as "the sure way to continued growth and prosperity for America."

The emergency appropriation bill allocates the fund as follows:

Federal-aid highway system — $80,000,000.

Rivers and harbors work—$22,-500,000.

Mississippi flood control—$3,000,-000.

National forest improvements — $3,000,000.

Construction forest highways — $3,000,000.

Roads in unreserved public lands and Indian reservations—$5,000,-000.

However, the legislation gives to President Hoover the right to allocate the funds as he sees fit if emergencies develop. Democrats and Republican independents in the senate fought this provision but finally were defeated by a roll call.

The emergency appropriation is in addition to more than $100,000,-000 for public buildings construction already authorized for this fiscal year. Members of the appropriations committees are planning additional appropriations for the next fiscal year to become available by July 1.

President Hoover for one of the few times permitted pictures to be taken when he signed the relief bills. He attached his signature within an hour after their receipt from congress, with only his staff and newspapermen as onlookers.

The $45,000,000 for drouth relief was $20,000,000 more than was asked for by the administration. However, the president made no comment on this.

Democrats made a long fight for food loans to farmers but the administration opposed this as a "dole." Provision finally was put into the bill to permit the secretary of agriculture to make loans "incident to crop production" which was interpreted to mean he could loan money for food in dire emergencies.

Dewitt C. Smith, assistant domestic relief director of the Red Cross, said his organization would complete by Christmas a survey of all counties in the drouth area where food might be needed.

riculture, and commented on the character of business in organization of agriculture among "the Yankees." Farmers were represented in showing their volume of business as owners of farms having a certain number of cows, as 60-cow farms or 120-cow farms, Mr. Friend said.

"The program was entirely constructive," he said. "There were no criticisms or efforts to tear down the other man's business. But every attention was given to the problems of agriculture, with every factor considered in the application of business principles of agriculture in line with other business.

"The speakers at this convention were not only leaders in agriculture but were leaders in other lines of endeavor. One was governor of New Hampshire, one was governor of another state, and another was Secretary of Agriculture A. M. Hyde.

"The chief idea of the delegation was to develop the farm home with its boys and girls. They seemed to be more interested in teaching them how to live and how to provide a living at home than in perfecting an organization. They were especially strong for the home demonstration agents."

Secretary Hyde's main thought was the reduction of acreage, of which Mr. Friend spoke extensively, indicating that if we wished to continue to overproduce with a reward of lower prices and lower standards of living in competition with India and other foreign countries, that it was our privilege.

Belief that production should be in line with consumption, and that it is the most effective method of aiding agriculture, was expressed by Mr. Friend, however.

Optimistic Report On Unemployment

AUSTIN, Dec. 20. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody and Captain J. F. Lucey of Dallas, representing the federal government's unemployment commission, looked over Texas today and made an optimistic report.

Governor Moody left Austin immediately after the conference, but Captain Lucey's version of the conference was optimistic. First, he stated the unemployment situation in Texas was better than in any other state in the southwest district, including Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kansas and Missouri; second, he predicted there would be but few men without jobs by spring; and finally he told of a $200,000,000 construction program under way in the state.

The immediate result of the conference was launching of a state committee, appointed by the governor, to cope with the present and all future crisises. Charles McKemy, state commissioner of labor, was named secretary of this commission.

Shepard's Fate

evidence. He asked the jurors not to "guess away a man's life, but to send Shepard free to "finish his days in restoring the wrecks of the war."

The social life of the army formed the background for the trial.

Testimony recalled army affairs from Fort Omaha to Shanghai, from Texas to the Phillippines as 59-year-old medical corps officer fought the government's accusation that he poisoned his 34-year-old wife so he might be free to marry Miss Brandon.

The colonel's lady was there So was Judge O'Grady, in the rows of witness chairs or in the hordes that battled for the choice spectators seats.

Officers and officers wives, many of them intimate acquaintances of the Shepards, were among the 100 witnesses to testify concerning circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Shepard at Fort Riley, Kas., June 15, 1929.

To the government's accusation that Major Shepard poisoned his wife, the defense asserted it did not know the reason for her death, leaving the jury its choice of natural causes, acute alcoholism, accidental poisoning or suicide.

The prosecution asserted Major Shepard killed so he might be free to marry Miss Brandon, whom he met while assigned from Fort Riley to Brooks field as a student flight surgent in the fall of 1928. Miss Brandon was a stenographer at Brooks field.

The defense replied Major Shepard had adequate grounds for divorce had he desired to be free of his wife.

It was the government's contention that Major Shepard and Miss Brandon were secretly engaged in the fall of 1928, that they were openly engaged a month after Mrs. Shepard's death.

The defense replied that Shepard did not become engaged until, October, 1929, and that the major's gifts to Miss Brandon prior to his wife's death, including jewelry, flowers, murder mystery novels and a canary, were prompted only by his "friendly admiration" for the recipient.

Miss Brandon, tall and blonde, was a striking figure as the "other woman." Testifying for the government, she avoided the eyes of her erstwhile suitor in two days on the witness stand. She characterized the major as a "perfect gentleman" and related she still had a motor car, jewelry and clothing he had given her.

Mrs. Shepard was portrayed by defense witnesses as a woman of many moods. The witnesses testified she drank to excess, suffered from poor teeth and was subject to periods of depression in which she expressed fear of a mental ailment to which her mother fell victim.

The major, a tuberculosis specialist who entered the services in the world war apparently viewed the proceedings calmly.

Graham Chapel Man Among 1st Cotton Raisers

J. H. Maxey Pioneer on South Plains in Cotton Production; Planted First Crop Back in 1903 in Garza County

TAHOKA, Dec. 20. —Twenty-seven years ago, when towns on the South Plains consisted of a country store or two, a blacksmith shop and wagon yard, and possibly a post office kept by some store owner — when the nearest railroad towns were Canyon City on the north and Colorado, Big Spring and Sweetwater on the south—the first cotton was being raised in an empire that is now producing an average of a quarter million bales annually.

J. F. Maxey of Graham Chapel, Garza county, was one of the pioneer cotton raisers on the South Plains. He planted his first cotton in 1903, when there was only one store at Tahoka and before Post had been dreamed of. He raised one bale that year and hauled it to Snyder, then an inland town over fifty miles away, to get it ginned. The next year a gin was built at Gail, Borden county, and he hauled two bales to that western frontier town. Then a gin was erected at Tahoka, and each year he increased his acreage since he did not have to haul the cotton but twenty miles then across the prairie. Hauling cotton was not so bad in those days, though, he says, as he had to go to town for supplies several times a year anyway.

Mr. Maxey was a prominent early settler of the Plains. He was deputy sheriff of Garza before the county was organized and when it was attached to Borden county for judicial purposes. He participated in the famous land rushes at Gail, when there was a fight on between the "nesters" and ranchmen for the possession of land. He helped in the organization of Gara county, and was himself a candidate for the first office of county tax assessor, being defeated 32 to 31. He was there, when C. W. Post, the big capitalist and cereal manufacturer, bought up the thousands of acres of farming land on the Plains and the farming and ranch land just below the caprock, established and built the town of Post and the Postex textile mills. He says the first cotton Post planted was from seed bought at Gail, Borden county for 13c a bushel.

THREE ROB N. Y. BANK

Only Three Minutes Taken to Get $31,623 in Loot

NEW YORK, Dec. 20. (AP)—Three robbers stole $31,623 from an uptown bank today in a holdup that was all over in four minutes. They disarmed a special policeman, menaced a dozen employes and customers, scooped up the cash and vanished. In fact they were in such a hurry they overlooked $25,000.

The branch of the Seward National bank in Amsterdam avenue was the scene of the crime. William Messimer, the special policeman, had his back turned as the robbers entered. One of them jabbed a gun in his side and disarmed him, while his companions proceeded with the robbery. The $25,000 they missed was in the back compartment of a drawer.

Mary, "Just what do you mean?"
John, "Did you know everybody couldn't wear the same style hair cut?"
Mary, "No, why?"
John, "Well, because their heads are shaped different, and their general make-up is different."
Mary, "Well, what about it?"
John, "Well, I had heard so much about Meridith's New Barber Shop, that I came by, and listen, Mary, he didn't exaggerate when he advertised it as 'Lubbock's Finest,' and to prove that statement he's offering a bunch of free prizes."
Mary, "Well, what about ladies' hair cuts?"
John "Listen, Mary, those barbers specialize in hair cutting, both men and women. They cut it to suit each individual cranium up, and listen, it's only 35c."
Mary, "How can they give such service for a quarter?"
John, "That's easy. Some barbers pay $150.00 to $200.00 per month rent, but Meridith owns his own building."

Hale Projects GivenApproval

Joe H. Caldwell, Division Engineer of State Highway Department, Okehs Two Hard Surfacing Jobs

Formal approval of two hard surfacing projects for Hale county, to be let at the January letting of the state highway department, has been given by Joe H. Caldwell, division engineer, at the request of Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer.

Mr. Gilchrist in letters to the division engineer asked concerning preliminary work on highway 28 west from Plainview to the Lamb county line. If the project is approved the state is to let the contract.

Obtain Right Of Way

"All of the right of way has been obtained and the county has the funds for its share of the work," Mr. Caldwell stated. "I was told by the county judge of Hale county that there would remain in their road fund around $200,000.

"This paving will complete Hale county's paving program for their million dollar bond issue.

"Highway No. 9 has been paved across the county from Swisher on he north to Lubbock on the south There is about 37 miles of paving in the county outside the city limits. The job is a very good one and Hale county citizens should be proud of their job," he said.

"In addition highway 28 east of Plainview to the Floyd county line has been paved, a distance of nearly eight miles."

The project includes 22,139 miles of hard surface work from the city limits in Plainview west to the county line and a .37 of a mile project in the city limints.

Highway Projects Await Work Order

Contractors for the grading and drainage work on highway No. 7 north west from Lubbock through Shallowater to the Hockley county line are awaiting issuance of formal work order by the state highway department before starting work, Joe H. Caldwell, division engineer for the department, explains.

Womack, Herring and Rollins of Sherman, Texas, have the contract. They have moved their equipment here and are all ready for work.

"The contract was let for $38,047.98 for the grading and drainage work," Mr. Caldwell stated. "Our estimate was around $52,000.

"That means that there was a considerable saving in the work over the expected cost of the job."

KNITTED GARMENTS

In knitted garments, the overlock seam used in light or medium material is soft, elastic, and virtually unrippable, and it stands in a slight ridge-like line. The flatlock seam is three times as wide as the overlock, lies flat on the surface, is durable and will not ravel.

Dawson Poultry Raisers Prepare For 1931 Season

LAMESA, Dec. 20. (Special) — Farmers in this section are now feeding their poultry for egg production, preparing for the hatching season, which will begin shortly after the New Year. Flocks are being culled over the country, and the inferior layers carried to market. Should the price of eggs remain low through next spring, it is thought that more baby chicks will be produced than formerly, as farmers would rather set the cheap eggs, than to sell them in the market.

Poultry raising is becoming one of the chief parts of the diversified farming program practiced here, as it is found that the income from poultry represents more return for money invested than any other one thing on the farm. It is estimated that more than $600,000 was realized last year in this country from the sale of poultry products.

Farmers have demonstrated that one hen will earn as high as $3 in a year's time, above feed cost, and more farmers this year than ever, are building substantial houses for their poultry, and planning increase in their flocks.

This work is being encouraged by W. W. Evans, county agricultural agent, and Miss Rozelle McKenney, home demonstration agent, through 4-H clubs and home demonstration clubs over the country.

Scurry Plans Bond Election

Voters To Go To Polls, January 17 To Pass On Bonds Totaling $600,000; Petition Is Signed

SNYDER, Dec. 20—(Special)—On Saturday, January 17, voters of Scurry county are to go to the polls to vote on the issuance of $600,000 in road bonds for the state highways of the county. Action was taken by the county commissioners' court on a petition signed by over 100 voters and taxpayers.

Ninety per cent of those signing the petitions were farmers, Horace Holley, county judge, announced.

Recently the county commissioners called an election but because of a legal technicality it was called off a few days before the election.

TO DEMONSTRATE TYPE

SNYDER, Dec. 20—(Special)—Two blocks of "sample" paving are to be laid on Snyder streets early in the new year. These blocks are for the purpose of demonstrating the type of paving. One is to be located near the Christian church and the other was not announced.

Wages in the pastoral industry of Australia, with the exception of Queensland, have been reduced one-fifth.

DR. MYERS

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

PRAISE BOY TO OVERCOME HIS JEALOUSY

"DEAR DR. MYERS:

"I am writing for some advice about our six-year-old boy. He is all boy and is going to school. The children tease him and he comes home crying nearly every night. I try to tell him to let them tease and not pay any attention, but he seems to be very sensitive. The other day the teacher and him had quite a misunderstanding and she slapped him until the blood showed through the skin on his cheek. I told her if he needed a licking it was all right with me, but I can't say I liked that way of punishment, although he was real naughty. Walter has always been up and going. He will never rest, and is going all day long, and has to be made to go to bed at night. Wherever we go he seems to be into trouble or someone is teasing him. Our four-year-old and him play all day and have very few misunderstandings.

"The little girl is just opposite to him in every way. Everyone loves and respects her. She is never teased. Some say he isn't paddled enough, but I think there isn't a child around that gets any more lickings than him. It seems he craves for love, and no one but mother gives it to him. I talk to him and try to make him see things as they should be. But everyone teasing and picking on him constantly it doesn't do any good. They keep it up until he cries and fights and swears and then they quit. Walter usually picks on someone, too, but more for notice than anything, but when he does this the children always tell him to quit and they run away from him. It just seems other children don't like him.

"Please tell me what to do, as I feel terrible, and feel as though I have failed terribly somewhere. Other people come to me and tell me about how naughty he is. Where have I failed with him? For the little girl is so opposite and I love one just as much as the other. My niece seems to be the only other person to understand him as I do."

Answer: I have a suspicion that the source of your difficulty is jealousy. You and Dad should give more attention to Walter. Praise him more for his successes and encourage him in every way you can to play with other children of his age. Never make any fuss over the baby in his presence.

Try to get in touch with the teacher and beg her not to slap the boy. Don't compare him with Psyche. The trouble is she gets so much approval for her good and he feels badly by comparison.

If I were you I would try to get along entirely without paddling him. When he does bad things, let him sit in a chair, doing nothing, for about half an hour by the clock.

Send a 5-cent stamp to the Superintendent of Public Documents, Washington, D. C., and ask for my pamphlet entitled "Education of Young Children Through Celebrating Their Successes".

Go to your library and get my book, "The Modern Parent" and get Dad to read from it to you.

ALL of the women who are doing things aren't strangers to us. There is Hortense Ragland, a former Lubbock girl, who is making her way on Broadway.

I'm not the only one, I am sure, who remembers Hortense's first public appearance in Lubbock. I don't know what year it was but it was during my public school days here when we always had a program on that September morning when the schools "took up" for the fall session. On one such morning, Hortense Ragland was introduced to us with one of Lubbock's first ukuleles and that morning she sang "Those Wild, Wild Women" in a manner that sent thrills of envy through the heart of every gangling girl in the school. Hortense was popular immediately. Every girl in school wanted a ukulele and there were plenty of striplings who were willing to carry her books home after school.

For several years now, Miss Ragland has been in New York, where she is known as the Southern Personality Girl. She is an understudy to Helen Morgan, who is, I am told, one of the most popular musical comedy actresses on Broadway. She has been making some motion pictures and she introduced the song, "I'll Be a Friend With Pleasure," which was written by Maceo Pinkard, over station WEAF and her picture appears on the sheet music for this song.

This week, Mrs. J. E. Vickers was showing me some pictures of Hortense which appeared in the New York Telegram and the New York Times. She also showed me a letter which she had from Hortense, and a paragraph in it which said, "The career I have chosen is the longest, hardest and steadiest grind in the world. Every artist has gone through much strain and heartache before achieving his goal and I never get really discouraged because I know I shall ultimately arrive and meantime I am growing artistically by each new experience."

FOR YOUR RUG

DON'T wait until your rugs spring a hole to mend them. Mending tissue put on the back before a hole is worn through will be tremendously efficacious. Or a patch, worked on in the colors of the rug, will help.

THIS SMOKING QUESTION

THERE is one thing of which I am not convinced and that is that smoking, alone, is particularly harmful to the health of the average person. Twice this week, for instance, I've seen stories concerning people who are 106 years of age and each time they have said that they smoke. Of course, they may have lived their 106 years in spite of smoking and be exceptions to the rule.

The two people of whom I am speaking are William Hughes, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, a Civil War veteran who smokes a pipe and a cigar, and Dr. Charlotte de Galliere Davenport, who was born a Russian countess and who was once wedded to a prince.

These remarks are not made in an effort to defend smoking.

I did read something the other day, however, which interested me as a woman. It was an editorial in some woman's magazine concerning women and smoking and the writer said that women are less gentlemenly about their smoking than men are. They are more apt to scatter their ashes around and carelessly drop burning cigaret stubs in dressing rooms of stores and create other fire hazards than men are, according to this editorialist.

Probably carefulness will come with nonchalance in smoking. Few women smoke today without an air of self-consciousness.

SAND COOKIES

HERE is something else good for the holiday season, to supplement the supply of candies and fruit cake. These are sand tarts and, when completed, they should be crisp and well flavored: The recipe follows:

One-half cup butter, one cup sugar, one egg, one and one-third cups of flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half pound bleached almonds, one tablespoon sugar and one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon, mixed to sprinkle on top.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and cream together. Add well beaten egg and the flour mixed and sifted with the baking powder. Chill and roll one-eighth inch thick. Sprinkle with the sugar and cinnamon, cut and put a split almond on top. Bake eight minutes in a slow oven.

THE SPRING HAT

THE spring straw hat will be very flattering, according to advance style notices. Early displays indicate that baku will continue in favor, while the introduction of lace trimming adds feminine allure. Importance is attached, also, to the adornment of the crown, many hats having a band of lace or ribbon midway up the crown.

These Women Assist In Producing Church Programs

HARDENING GLASSES

If you put your new crystal glasses or other crystal dishes on the stove in a pan of cold water, let them come to a boil, boil ten minutes and then cool right in the same water, you will find them more hardened and less likely to break than glasses not treated this way before using.

ABOUT SWEATBANDS

The best sweatband for hats are cut from goatskin. The purpose of the band is not to absorb perspiration but to keep it from reaching or discoloring the body of the hat and its trimmings. In the cheaper grades of hats, oilcloth sometimes is substituted for a leather sweatband.

BUYING COFFEE

The most important thing to remember in buying coffee, is that it be freshly roasted. Coffee contains aromatic oils which are volatized in the roasting and much of this savor is lost unless the roasted coffee is quickly and hermetically sealed.

Yule Stories For Children

Christmas Spirit Reigns for Kiddies in Story Form but No Parties Planned; Small Pupils Hear Legends

Although there is no formal observance of Christmas in the public schools, "the spirit of the season" is brought into class work with the approach of the holiday season, according to M. H. Duncan, superintendent of city schools.

The Christmas story is told in the lower grades and legends of the season are studied. Various rooms have Christmas programs and observe the occasion in other ways, Mr. Duncan said.

The mid-tehm graduates of Lubbock High school staged a Christmas program Friday afternoon in their farewell appearance at the high school assembly.

Cantatas

byterian church this evening by the choir under the direction of Harry Blocker. Adults, young people and children will take part. Mrs. L. J. von Tungeln directs the junior choir.

Mesdames W. B. Price, N. L. Peters, J. B. Jackson and Dr. J. M. Lewis have charge of the settings and Mrs. Ray Mowery aided in the directing.

The presentation is a Christmas dedication service in scriptural prophecy and Christmas hymns. Numbers of familiar Christmas carols will be included. Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth and Mrs. Jackson are the two readers and parts are taken by Dr. Leroy Patton, Mrs. R. C. Harvey, George Dupree, S. C. Wilson, H. F. Godeke, J. B. Jackson, Mrs. R. D. Moxley, R. S. Rodgers, Hubert Hopper and Joe Jackson.

Scene Is Climax.

The background is a constructed manger and the climax comes in the presentation of the Nativity scene with an illuminated star. Costumes will add to the effectiveness and one of the main features of the music will be the part of the Watchman, taken by Harry Blocker, and the Traveler, Charles C. Galbraith, who sing following stanza antiphonally, answering each other.

Dr. Lewis will present the second of a series of three sermons dealing with the event of Christ's birth at the morning service on the theme "The Immediate Effects of the Advent." The choir will sing "The Angel's Song" as an anthem, under the direction of Harry Blocker, with Miss Margaret Huff at the piano.

Service On Eve.

Beginning at 11:30 o'clock, Christmas Eve, a carol service will be held preceding the celebration of the Lord's Supper at Saint Paul's Episcopal church. A program has been arranged which will enable the visitor to follow the services in such a way that he may get the most from the inspiring ritual.

The choir will be under the direction of Mrs. George Donnelly and Mrs. Jed A. Rix is to preside at the organ. In addition to the congregational singing of a choice of Christmas carols, there will be special selections by the choir, from the ancient Eucharitic Rite, including both the Anglican and Gregorian chanting of responses, the "Benedictus" from Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass" and Harker's "The New Born King."

The celebration will include a brief outline of the Christmas ideal by the minister entitled "Peace on Earth, to Men Good Will."

Choir Will Sing.

A cantata by Norwood Dale will be presented this evening at the First Christian church by the choir under the leadership of R. W. Moore. Soloists will be Mesdames J. Samuel Rider, Felix Kelley, Paul Barrier, Luella Johnson, Joe Courtney and Mr. Moore. A quartet composed of Mesdames Moore and Kelley and Messrs. Moore and Ed Young will sing. Mrs. Paul Morgan is accompanist.

The cantata is divided into two parts, the first dealing with "The Messiah's Promise" and the latter "The Messiah's Birth."

Observing the season of the year and the event of Christ's birth, the Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the church, will preach at the morning hour on the theme "Bethlehem's Manger Cradle and the Visitors."

The cantata opens with a processional "Silent Night, Holy Night" by Gruber after which the Rev. Jennings gives the invocation.

Following the prelude, Mr. Moore is to sing "The Lord shall give you a sign" and the choir will sing "The people that walked in darkness." A soprano solo, "They that dwell in the land" is to be sung by Mrs. O'Kelley; the choir sings "Light of Light that shineth," and a duet, "Gather in the outcasts" will be sung by Mrs. Townsen Waddill and Mrs. D. W. Robertson.

Two choruses "Unto us a Child is born" and "O Zion, that bringest good tidings", and an alto solo "Behold the days come", by Mrs. Johnson will complete the first part.

The second part opens with a chorus "The Word made flesh", a soprano solo, "O Word of God Incarnate", Mrs. Rider, and a chorus, "In the beginning was the Word".

Following a chorus "There were Shepherds", Mr. Moore is to offer as a solo, "And, lo, the Angel of the Lord" which will precede a chorus "Behold, I bring you good tidings."

Other numbers of the second part include a chorus "Hark! A burst of heavenly music"; a men's chorus "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem"; a quartet, "A song in the air"; solo, "Shine, O wonderful star", Mrs. Paul Barrier; while the final chorus will be given "Hail! Thou blessed morn."

Observe White Yule.

The White gift Christmas will be observed tonight at the Asbury Methodist church when the young people of the church present a pageant. Offerings will be taken for the Orphanage at Waco. Miss Mary De Bardeleben and Miss Lucille Lilljedahl have charge of this Christmas feature while Paul Williams will direct the music with Mrs. H. L. Wilkins at the piano. Christmas carols are to be sung by the congregation.

One of the loveliest parts of the program will be the hanging of the green by six boys and girls from the intermediate department of the Sunday school, during which time that well known carol, "Adeste Fidelis" will be sung.

Six young people will bring the gifts to the altar and the scene of the Nativity will be shown while "O, Little Town of Bethlehem" is being sung. The role of the Virgin Mary is to be taken by Miss Maurine Ratliff, Coy McCullough is Joseph, and Mrs. William Von Wolff is the angel.

A Christmas story will be read by Miss Lilljedahl, following the reading of a scripture lesson by Mrs. B. H. Turner. The Rev. G. P. McCollom, pastor is to deliver the invocation.

Others in charge of the program are Mrs. C. L. Williamson, Mrs. Paul Williams, Mrs. S. H. Sechrist, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Griggs.

The auditorium will be softly lighted for the scene.

Started Last Week.

The celebration of the Christmas period began last Sunday at the First Baptist church with the presentation of a cantata, "The Glory of Bethlehem" (Petrie) under the direction of J. D. Carroll.

Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor, is to bring two messages of the season. In the morning the theme is "Christ's March Through the Ages" and at the evening hour he will preach on "A Christmas Question."

Young people of the church will sing carols on Christmas Eve, visiting homes of the sick and shut-ins, the hospitals and the jails.

Special music will be given at the Church of the Nazarene this morning and the pastor, Rev. R. M. Hocker, will deliver a message on the coming of the Christ. Regular services will be held tonight.

Program On Monday.

A Christmas program is to be given at the church Monday evening at 8 o'clock, the main feature to be greatest gift. The production is trayal of religious experiences which included God's gifts to man and the gift of men in return for God's greatest gift. The production is staged under the direction of Mrs. J. Samuel Rider.

A treat will be in store for the children, since there is to be a Christmas tree. The church will be decorated with greenery.

Two Seasonal Sermons.

The Rev. Boyd P. Milburn, pastor of the West End Baptist church will deliver two special sermons today, at the morning service speaking on "The Star of Bethlehem," while "The Prince of Peace," has been announced as a subject for the evening hour. The congregation will join in a number of carols, led by Carroll Atchison. A children's program will be given tonight prior to the sermon.

Members of the Calvary Baptist church will attend a program at the church Christmas Eve.

The old-fashioned tree and Christmas program is to be on Wednesday evening at the Cumberland Presbyterian church. At both services today the season theme will be in evidence and Christmas songs will be included in the order of worship.

Christmas services are to be held at the Lutheran church today instead of on Christmas Day as is customary because of out-of-town members who are coming from Smyer and Ralls.

The morning hour begins at 10:30 o'clock and the Rev. H. C. Ziehe, pastor, is to speak on "Christmas When a Man in Ninety." Communion will be observed.

The children's service will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock and recitations and carol singing will be heard. The pastor is to tell the Christmas story and illustrate his sermon with colored slides.

A tree will be loaded with gifts for the children.

Moody Misses The Mark

GOVERNOR MOODY has burst into print again, this time with a comment upon national politics and the framing of the Democratic platform for the presidential derby of 1932.

A staunch dry, Governor Moody has pointed out that a split will rend the Democratic ranks if a dry candidate is not nominated, as well as if a dry plank is not included in the platform. As a leading candidate for the nomination, the Texas chief points out Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana.

The more Governor Moody comments upon national politics the more The Avalanche-Journal holds the opinion that he is just talking for publication' and that he gives no serious thought to his comments before the reporters gather 'round. In this latest incident, he is right about the prohibition plank—it takes no political seer to perceive that Democracy is the drier of the two parties. But in his comment upon the candidacy of Senator Walsh the Taylor executive is 'way off—and had he stopped to think would have realized the fact.

The Morning Avalanche sees in Senator Walsh unmistakable presidential timber. He is undoubtedly one of the biggest men in public life in this country. He is, and for years has been a leader in the Senate. But Senator Walsh won't be the Democratic nominee because were he so selected he would carry into the campaign the same religious belief which proved such a handicap to Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 elections.

This newspaper subscribes to the Constitution of the United States. It does not believe religion and politics should be mixed and that a man should be barred from the presidency because of his belief or method of worship. But this newspaper's belief does not guide the majority of the voters at the polls and neither does any other one newspaper. The voter makes up his mind, casts his vote as he sees fit—and that's all there is to it.

You may argue, if you like, that Governor Smith was defeated because of his wet leanings. You may argue further, that the personal qualifications and renown of Mr. Hoover overshadowed the Smith plea and 'big business' did the rest for the GOP. These arguments are sound, to a certain extent, but the Solid South did not break away from Mr. Smith because of any of them. Lifelong Democrats voted for Mr. Hoover in a majority of incidents, because of Mr. Smith's religious views—even if most of them will not admit it.

That's why Mr. Moody's guess is wrong. That's why Senator Walsh will likely be sidetracked by his party. The Avalanche-Journal agrees in the fallacy of such a stand. It agrees that the opposition is not compatible with the Constitution and with the fundamentals upon which this nation was builded. But conditions are conditions. Beliefs, whether right or wrong, are beliefs. Governor Moody just 'missed his guess' when he singled out capable Walsh for the nomination. The election of 1928 is in itself 'Exhibit A'.

Practical Health Problems

ROUGH FOOD AIDS TOOTH DEVELOPMENT

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE TEMPORARY teeth should be fully developed at four years. By this is meant that not only should they all be erupted, but also the roots should be fully formed. When they first appear the roots are not formed. The first teeth to come through usually develop their roots by the end of the second year and the process of root formation goes on until the end of the fourth year.

Dr. Clendening

Chewing rough food will force the teeth into their sockets and help the development of the roots. The toothbrush should be put in use early, about the time all the temporary teeth are in place, or when the child is two and a half years old. The toothbrush need not be used more than once a day, preferably at night. Milk of magnesia is a good preparation to use as a tooth cleanser during childhood. The brushing should be done systematically, first down in the grinding surface of the back teeth, moving the brush in a rotary fashion. Teach the child to brush the teeth systematically—the upper set, first back and then front, then the lower teeth.

The toothbrush should be rinsed in water and hung in the sun to dry. This is all that is required for antiseptic purposes. If when travelling this cannot be done, a little salt should be shaken on the bristles and washed off before the next use.

The age period of five or six years is a very important one for the teeth. During this time the first permanent teeth come in. They are the molars or grinders in the back of the jaw. They are often mistaken for temporary teeth, and if decay sets in, neglected, on the supposition that these teeth will fall out anyway. Be sure to have your child see a dentist at five years, and assure yourself that these important teeth are coming in properly, are not decaying, and have a good development of the grinding surface.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. T. P., San Francisco, Cal.: "Do dyes used to blacken tan shoes ever cause trouble?"

Answer: Yes. If the dyed shoes are worn too soon the coloring matter is volatilized by the heat of the feet and absorbed through the skin. It causes the skin all over the body to turn blue. The appearance of such a person is ghastly. However, there seems to be no permanently bad effects, the blue disappearing from the skin in about a week.

Reapportionment Contested

By CHARLES P. STEWART,
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Congressional apportionment may sound like a dull subject.

Nevertheless, to the individual who wants his vote to count as much as the next man's toward shaping the laws they both must live under, it means a lot.

Let us consider the case of Harry L. Englebright, re-elected to the house of representatives in November from the Second district of California, and of M. Alfred Michaelson, who was beaten for congress in November in the Seventh Illinois district, but is serving out the fag end of the term he won two years ago.

Englebright's district had 129,457 inhabitants when the 1920 census was taken. Perhaps it has a few more now, but certainly not many, being in the thinly-settled northeastern corner of the state—the Siskiyou, Mt. Lassen, grizzly bear country.

The 1920 census' population total for Michaelsons' district was 560,434, and it is a safe bet that 1930's will be decidedly higher, for it is right on the edge of Chicago, where that thriving burg has been growing fastest lately.

THERE IS just that much spread in congressional representation.

In one place 129,457 people have a congressman of their very own, in another place 560,434 have to get along with only one, and 433 more districts are scattered all the way up and down the line in between them.

Obviously such an apportionment is ridiculous. Of course the explanation is that it dates back to the year directly after the 1910 census (away before the war) when the population's distribution was altogether different from what it is today.

The constitution's framers foresaw the development of such inequalities and provided for a decennial reapportionment, but senators and representatives from the agricultural states dodged the last one, in 1920, because the tendency which subsequently became still more pronounced already was evident then. They did not like having so many congressmen taken away from their rural areas, to be given to the more rapidly growing industrial states, with big cities.

CONGRESS, however, finally did pass a reapportionment bill last winter, providing for a new deal on the basis of the 1930 census.

The census bureau's figures, as the bureau revises them, are coming out about as had been anticipated. The rural states seem certain to lose 20 seats in the next house of representatives; the industrial states to gain them.

As an alternative, the number of representatives might have been increased, but it was generally agreed that the house is, if anything, too large already, with 434 members.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, the reapportionment bill's author, calculates that the list would have to be brought up to 540 to give proportionate representation to the agricultural group's, which would be "a Roman mob," as he expresses it.

Yet, now that the deed is done, the bill is passed and the altered arrangement is due to govern 1932's elections, the rural senators and representatives are beginning to show unmistakable signs of regret that they ever consented to such a thing.

They do not appear exactly to see their way clear to an attack on the reapportionment principle, but they do assert that the industrial states have gained an unfair advantage.

They make two important points:

1. They maintain that representation ought to be based on citizenship; not merely on population, as the reapportionment law interprets the constitution to specify. Unnaturalized foreigners, they point out, go into the census as part of the population—and the cities have most of them. The ruralites want them deducted in fixing the apportionment basis.

2. They argue that the trend of population from the farms to the cities has spent itself, that a backwash from the cities to the farms is about to set in and demand delay, until what they consider a normal balance is again established, before representation is readjusted.

POSSIBLY the farmers' champions in Washington should have thought of all this sooner. At any rate, they evidently intend to fight for their contentions, having belatedly formulated them.

From time immemorial the farmer has denounced the urbanite for his slickness in twisting legislation to his own selfish behoof at agriculture's expense. Equally has the urbanite cursed the rural lawmaker's jealous interference in city affairs, as responsible for most evils in the nation's metropolitan centers.

This latest struggle bids fair to be epochal.

AMERICA HAS THE PRIZE

Speculations set in motion in the minds of many Americans with the award of the Nobel peace prize to former Secretary of State Kellogg found expression in the words of President Mowinckel, who, in presenting the prize, lamented that the "own country" of the American whose initiative was responsible for "the greatest, strongest and noblest institution for the maintenance of peace ever raised" has no part in it.

He might also have mourned the fact that the own country of another American, whose statesmanship and humanitarianism were in good measure responsible for the structure of the World Court, still remains hesitant at its door despite every concession made by the other nations to its demands.

This honoring of an American peacemaker should prove a deciding factor in the approaching debate in congress on the World Court question. If it does not impress congress as to America's keystone position in any structure for world peace, nothing will.

Awarding of peace prizes for two consecutive years to a statesman and an archbishop, respectively, recognized two major forces working toward the common goal of permanent world peace. Happily, the Nobel Foundation has conveyed to the world the knowledge that church and state are fighting for the same cause and winning distinction in action.

Now that women are reported smoking cigars in Paris, expect the newest creations to feature Havana wraps.

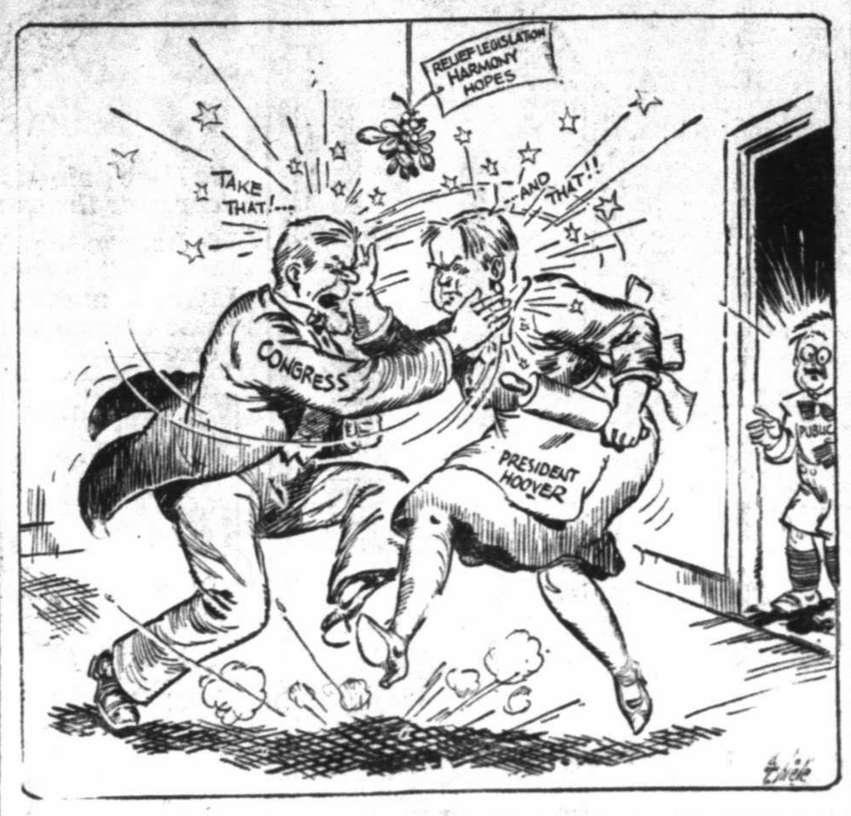

Scientists have announced the weight of the earth as six sextillion tons. You might know they'd give it in round numbers.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord. I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them:

And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.—Hebrews x, 16, 17.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON," "THE AVENGING PARROT" and "MURDER BACKSTAIRS"

©1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUANITA SELIM is shot through the heart as she powders her face at her dressing table, the body being found by KAREN MARSHALL when Karen comes to tell Nita the bridge score.

BONNIE DUNDEE, special investigator, contests the theory that she was shot by a gunman. Nita went into her bedroom while dummy at about 5:27, after asking TRACEY MILES, who had just arrived, to make cocktails. When the body is discovered, no one is seen in the room or in the foyer outside.

PENNY CRAIN, society girl and secretary to the district attorney, tells Dundee that POLLY BEALE was missing from lunch, and that Nita was annoyed at her unexplained absence. Dundee notes that the women, with the exception of LOIS DUNLAP, are hostile toward Nita.

Nita's maid, LYDIA, is slow in answering, which they ascribe to the fact that she has had a tooth extracted that morning. Nita calls Lydia into her bedroom, but none of the guests go in. Dundee finally asks each one to take the places they occupied at the playing of the "death hand."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

"SHAME on you, Bonnie Dundee!" cried Penny Crain, her small fists clenched belligerently. "'Death hand,' indeed! You talk like a New York tabloid! And if you don't understand that all of us have stood pretty near as much as we can without having to play the hand at bridge—the very hand we played while Nita was being murdered, then you haven't the decency and human feelings I've credited you with—and told my friends here that you have!"

A murmur of indignant approval accompanied her tirade and buzzed on for a moment after she had finished, but it ceased abruptly as Dundee spoke:

"Who's conducting this investigation, Penny Crain—you or I? You will kindly let me do it in my own fashion, and try to be content when I tell you that, in my humble opinion, what I propose is absolutely necessary to the solution of this case!"

Bickering—Dundee grinned to himself—exactly as if they had known each other always, had quarreled and made up with fierce intensity for years.

"Really, Mr. Dundee," Judge Hugo Marshall began pompously, embracing his young wife protectingly, "I must say that I agree with Miss Crain. This is an outrage to all of us, and particularly to this frail little wife of mine, already half-hysterical over the ordeal she has endured."

"Take your places!" Dundee ordered curtly. After all, there was a limit to the careful courtesy one must show to Hamilton's inmost circle of society.

Penny led the way to the bridge tables, the very waves of her brown bob seeming to bristle with futile anger. But she obeyed, Dundee exulted. The way to tame this blessed little shrew had been solved by old Bill Shakespeare centuries ago.

As the women took their places at the two tables, arguing a bit among themselves, with semi-hysterical edges to their voices, Dundee watched the men, but all of them, with the exception of Dexter Sprague, that typical son of Broadway, so out of place in this company, had managed at least a fine surface control, their lips tight, their eyes hard, narrowed and watchful. Sprague slumped into a vacated chair and closed his eyes, revealing finely-wrinkled, yellowish lids.

"WHERE shall we begin?" Polly Beale demanded brusquely. "Remember, this table had finished playing when Karen began to deal what you call the 'death hand,'" she reminded him scornfully. "And Flora wasn't here at all—she had been dummy for our last hand—"

"And had gone out to telephone," Dundee interrupted. "Mrs. Miles, will you please leave the room, and return exactly when you did return—or as nearly so as you can remember?"

Dundee was sure that Mrs. Miles' sallow face took on a grayish tinge as she staggered to her feet and wound an uncertain way toward the hall. Tracey Miles sprang to his wife's assistance, but Sergeant Turner took it upon himself to lay a detaining hand on the too-anxious husband's arm. With no more than the lifting of an eyebrow, Dundee made Captain Strawn understand that Flora Miles' movements were to be kept under strict observation, and the chief of the homicide squad as unobtrusively conveyed the order to a plainclothesman loitering interestedly in the wide doorway.

"Now," he was answering Polly Beale's question, "I should like the remaining three of you to behave exactly as you did when your last hand was finished. Did you keep individual score, as is customary in contract?—or were you playing auction?"

"Contract," Polly Beale answered curtly. "And when we're playing among ourselves like this, one at each table is usually elected to keep score. Janet was score keeper for us this afternoon, but we all waited, after our last hand was played, for Janet to give us the result for our tally cards."

Dundee drew near the table, picked up the three tally cards—ornamental little affairs, and rather expensive—glanced over the points recorded, then asked abruptly:

"Where is Mrs. Miles' tally? I don't see it here."

There was no answer to be had, so he let the matter drop temporarily, though his shorthand notebook received another deeply underlined series of pothooks.

"Go on, please, at both tables," Dundee commanded. "Your table—" he nodded toward Penny, who was already over her flare of temper, "will please select the cards each held at the conclusion of Mrs. Marshall's deal."

"Oooh, I'd never remember all my cards in the world," Carolyn Drake wailed. "I know I had five clubs—ace, king, queen—"

"You had the jack, not the queen, for I held it myself," Penny contradicted her crisply.

"Until this matter of who held which cards after Mrs. Marshall's deal is settled, I shall have to ask you all to remain as you are now," Dundee said to the players seated at the other table.

AT last it was threshed out, largely between Penny Crain and Karen Marshall, the latter proving to have a better memory than Dundee had expected. At last even Carolyn Drake's querulous fussiness was satisfied, or trampled down.

Both Judge Marshall and John Drake started forward to inspect the cards, which none of the players was trying to conceal, but Dundee waved them back.

"Please—I want you men, all of you, to take your places outside, and return to this room in the order of your arrival this afternoon. Try to imagine that it is now—if I can trust Mr. Miles' apparently excellent memory—exactly 5:25—"

"Pretty hard to do, considering it's now a quarter past seven and there's still no dinner in sight," Tracey Miles grumbled, then brightened: "I can come right back in then—at 5:27, can't I?"

That point settled, and the men sent away, to be watched by several pairs of apparently indolent police eyes, Dundee turned to the bridge table, Nita's leaving of which had provided her murderer with opportunity.

"The cards are 'dealt,'" Penny reminded him.

"Now I want you other three to scatter exactly as you did before," Dundee commanded, hurry and ex-

One-Man Baby Combine Designed To Thresh In Fields of Small Farms

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 20 (AP)—The big combine of the plains now has a baby brother.

Small combines are being developed here for practical use on small farms and areas of uneven terrain. They too will harvest and thresh grain in a single operation.

The machine was invented by R. G. Fleming of Chico, Calif., and is expected to be turned out in mass production in 1932.

Its advent in certain small-farm areas may make the stationary thresher or "separator" as much a part of ancient history as the flail.

A cylindrical wire brush has been substituted for the heavy iron cylinder and concaves of the regulation thresher. The machine cuts a five-foot swath and is capable of threshing grains, grass seed and beans.

It is driven by a power take-off from the tractor, one man operating both the tractor and the combine. An experimental model used this year threshed eight different crops.

The swath cut by the combine is smaller than that cut by the customary binder or header on small farms. The smallness and compactness of the machine are intended to make it practical on farms where bigger combines cannot be used.

There are some regions, however, in which no combine probably ever will be used—those where types of grain, maturing conditions and the weather make it inadvisable to thresh simultaneously with the harvest, or where storage facilities require grain to be thoroughly dried in the shock to prevent heating.

Epworth League Session Slated

LAMESA, Dec. 20 (Special)—An all day meeting of the Epworth League, comprising the Lubbock district, will be held here January 18th, at which time delegates and members will be present from all over the district.

A program is being arranged by banquet on Saturday night preceding the session, at which more than 500 members are expected in attendance. Addresses will be delivered by prominent league workers over the district, including V. M. Gore, of Canyon, who is field secretary of the organization.

FORMERLY OF PLAINVIEW

PLAINVIEW, Dec. 20.—(Special)—D. J. C. Anderson, who was recently elected as state health officer by the state board of health for another two year term, was formerly a resident of Plainview.

Dr. Anderson practiced medicine here for many years. He was a partner with Dr. C. C. Gidney both in Plainview and at Granger, Williamson county, before moving to Plainview. After his appointment, Dr. Anderson moved to Austin.

He's The Troop

Summitt Youth Scout Member

AUSTIN, Dec. 20. (AP)—Elwah Crumley, 12, is the Boy Scouts of America at Summitt, a community eight miles north of here.

Young Crumley is the entire organization; he is a lone scout in both fact and figure. There are no other boys of age in the community, so he is of necessity the only official member of the organization. At the scout area headquarters he is rated as a "lone" scout.

But just because he doesn't have any Scout companions, doesn't mean young Crumley doesn't go on hikes and go through the other things prescribed by the manual. He takes his hikes, builds his fires and studies first aid and then reports his progress to Austin officials.

His father, J. B. Crumley, has been appointed his advisor and conducts the Boy Scout tests for him.

ORGANIZE INTO POOLS

Santa Fe Employes Aiding In Charity Work

CLOVIS, N. M., Dec. 20.—(Special)—J. E. Finney, passenger conductor for the Santa Fe between Amarillo and Albuquerque through the Belen cutoff has organized employes of the road into pools at both Belen and Amarillo to help in giving a "Happy Christmas" to families.

Each employe is asked to give a 24-pound sack of flour, or its equivalent, to be given to the Salvation army, for distribution.

Committees at each division and shop point have been organized for the work. The local committee is composed of: Bert Gore, engineer; Charles Snyder, conductor; L. L. Sears, and H. Hedrick, brakemen; Al Johnson, switchman and L. J. Stone, fireman.

SPECIAL SESSION ORDERED

LAMESA, Dec. 20 (Special)—A special session of district court has been ordered for the 106th judicial district, to convene here beginning December 22nd, for the purpose of disposing of criminal cases carried over from the regular term, which ended December 13th. The grand jury has been dismissed by Judge Gordon B. McGuire, after being in session nine days and returning 48 felony indictments.

C. M. Evans Compiles List of Figures for Use In Battle of Rail Millions; Latest Facts Are Pointed Out

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SOME interesting figures were reported to the Interstate Commerce commission at its hearing here during the past two weeks relating to acreages of the counties involved in the application of the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern to build its line.

These figures, for the first time available were secured by C. M. Evans, agricultural agent for the Texas and Pacific lines, in a personal survey of the territory. As far as are known they are the only figures based on actual conditions as they exist in the territory at the present time. Heretofore there has been available only estimates based on census figures for 1925.

Counties Involved

South Plains counties involved in the survey are: Dawson, Terry, Hockley, Lamb, Lynn, Lubbock, Hale, Borden, Gaines, Yoakum, Cochran and Bailey.

These figures show the total acreages for these twelve counties as 7,962,880. There are 6,480,373 acres suitable for cultivation and but 4,910,472 acres now in farms. In crop lands but 2,455,801 acres are found.

The acreage suitable for cultivation is 87.0 per cent of the total acreage, while 66 per cent of the counties is in farms. Crop lands represent but 36.2 per cent of the total.

Three years ago Mr. White, who lived on the Byrd farm three miles north of Dunn, found two large bolls that seemed to be above the average. He planted the seed in his garden and raised a good crop in 1929.

Taking this crop to the Dunn Gin company's plant, he asked Manager N. W. West to have it ginned on one stand and that the seed be caught. He had approximately 300 pounds of cotton.

From the seed he saved, Mr. White planted ten acres in the spring of 1930. During the growing season less then five inches of rain fell.

Two and a half bales of cotton were produced from the ten acres The staple was 1 1-16 inches and the line percentage was 34.

Government Scientist Wins Award for Bringing 80,000 New Plants Into U. S. Farms; Works at Job for 41 Years

(By NEA Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—After 41 years of activity in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. David Fairchild, famous botanist and plant explorer, has received one of the highest awards in agriculture, the George Robert White medal for horticultural work, annually bestowed by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Few city dwellers know of this man. But countless farmers praise him through the numberless plants which he has introduced into the United States from foreign countries.

Dr. Fairchild started out in the U. S. Department of Agriculture as a young man in 1889. Today, well past middle age, this gray-haired man looks back with pride on the achievements he has accomplished in the plant world.

His first work with the department entailed research in plant physiology and pathology. While in this endeavor, he and other men in the department became interested in the wealth of plant material growing in other parts of the world. Young Fairchild decided he wanted to investigate and collect these plants for possible introduction in the United States.

Visits Europe

He went abroad to engage in post-graduate work in plant physiology in Italy and Germany. On his travels in Europe, he met Barbour Lathrop, an American traveler. The two men found their interests were along the same line.

Dr. David Fairchild looking over some fruit and vegetables.

Thus the then young botanist found himself started on the road to international plant exploring. One of his first trips with Lathrop took him to the Far East to lands not previously visited by a Department of Agriculture scientist.

After this trip, in which he found hundreds of plants new to this country, Dr. Fairchild returned to develop the systematic exploration and plant introduction of the department which has since grown into the present office of foreign plant introduction of which he is head.

In his work of exploration, which took him to West Africa, Senegal, South America, Australia, India, South Africa and numerous European countries, the explorer gathered about 80,000 varieties of plants. Among these are the aligator pear, avocado, dasheen, guava, jujube and sorghums.

Micro-Photographer

In his work with plants, Dr. Fairchild became interested in microphotography, which he uses in his scientific research. In this field he saw great opportunity of photographing details of plant and animal structure in a way that would appeal to the layman and the young.

His work so impressed men outside of government service that some of them have contributed largely for plant gathering expeditions that the Department of Agriculture would not be able to finance alone.

The plant scientist's wife, younger daughter of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, has been a great aid in his work. She collaborated with him in preparing his "Book of Monsters," which pictures the monster-like characteristics of many insects.

Because talking pictures threw him out of employment, W. W. Houghton, a movie musician, of Hull, England, has committed suicide.

New Mexico Cow Men To Meet In Vegas In March

ROSWELL, N. M., Dec. 20.—(Special)—New Mexico cattlemen will meet at Las Vegas on March 3 and 4, 1931 for the annual convention of the New Mexico Cattle Growers association, it is announced here.

At the recent meeting of the executive committee of the association it was decided o suggest to Governor-Elect Arthur Seligman, the names of some well known cattlemen for members of the state cattle and sheep sanitary board. The governor will name members of this body.

Work of the state experimental station and the extension work of the New Mexico A. and M. college was commended in a resolution. Also the new legislature was asked to increase appropriations for range improvement studies and livestock research work. A $5,000 appropriation for each of the next two years for tuberculosis eradication work among New Mexico dairy herds was also recommended.

Plainview Not To Keep Co-Op Offices There

Contract Between Chamber of Commerce and Association Is Cancelled; Little More Business Expected

(Special To Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Dec. 20—Contract between the Plainview Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture and the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, for the maintenance of a branch office of the association between Sept. 15, 1930 and March 31, 1931, has been cancelled by mutual agreement, it is announced, effective as of December 15.

Charles M. Davis, Lubbock, district manager, of Cooperative District No. 2, following a conference with Maury Hopkins, retiring manager of the chamber of commerce, announced that the chamber here would not be called upon to pay any of its guarantee.

Expenses Met

"The Plainview sub-office just about met expenses" Mr. Davis said. "There will be no call made on the Plainview chamber of commerce."

The local office received 2,945 bales, H. G. Thompson, manager, said. Of this 670 came from the territory immediately around Plainview.

"We do not feel there is sufficient cotton unmarketed to come through the office to justify keeping it open until March 15," Mr. Davis said. If your business interests feel that it has served its purpose, we are willing to cancel the contract without any financial liability to any signer of the underwriting guaranty. What little cotton there is left that would come to the office will be forwarded to our Lubbock office."

You and the church are inter-dependent. Without the church, your community would degenerate into a materialistic group of selfish individuals. It is the church that provides a background of ideals, and unity of purpose. The church is at the source of countless benefits that you take for granted and enjoy daily. Without your support, in turn, the church would cease to exist. Your duty to the church, therefore, and to your fellows, yourself and your God, is to give your support by regular attendance. Come to church today.

Do The MOTOR BUSSES Destroy Our Highways?

Not as much as the average five-passenger car.

Government statistics show that highways do not suffer particularly from heavy loads as long as plenty of tire surface of the proper kind is provided.

It is the "hammer-blow" struck by the light car as it bounces over bumps and obstructions in the road that does the most damage to highways.

Busses equipped with pneumatic tires have the weight of the load distributed so evenly and bounce about on the road so little that they really do the average highway less harm than the average family car.

Wee Clowny was so glad to get back to the bunch he said, "You see I'll never stray away again. I've learned my lesson well." Then Scouty cried, "Tell us about your journey. 'Twas a scare, no doubt." So Clowny did. They all were glad to hark to what he'd tell.

The woman who'd found Clowny said, "I must be moving on ahead." "Please wait," exclaimed the Travel Man. "I have some coins for you." He paid the woman and the scout and then they shook hands all about. The woman waved and she was gone, the next thing they all knew.

"I think that we'll stay here all night," exclaimed the Travel Man. "Turn right and walk straight down that little street. I know a place to sleep." They found the spot and all turned in. The Travel Man just had to grin to see how quickly they dozed off. He didn't hear a peep.

Next morn they got up with the sun. The Travel Man said, "We will run our truck right through to Niamey, a town not far from here. You'll see strange people in that town and if they stare at you, don't frown. Just smile at everybody and there's nothing you need fear."

And then they started on their way. Said Clowny, "What a gorgeous day. The sun is like a ball of fire, and not a cloud's in sight." On, on they went, for hours and then a town came into view again. They rode right into Niamey and all was quite all right.

Some horsemen shortly drove up near. "What are you doing here?" "Just visitors, my worthy friend," the Travel Man replied. And then he told the Tinymites this rider was one of the sights. "He is the great Black Knight," said he. "My, how that man can ride."

Murder At Bridge

Mrs. [illegible] ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON" "THE [illegible] MYSTERY" and "MURDER BACKSTAGE"

Lois Dunlap rose, laid down her tally card, and strolled over to the remaining table. After a moment's hesitation, Polly Beale strode manfully out of the room, straight into the hall. Dundee, watching as the bridge players certainly had not been earlier that afternoon, was amazed to see Clive Hammond beckoning to her from the open door of the solarium.

So Clive Hammond had arrived ahead of Tracey Miles! Had somehow entered the solarium unnoticed, and had managed to beckon his fiancee to join him there! Prearranged? And why had Clive Hammond failed to enter and greet his hostess first? Moreover, how had he entered the solarium?

But things were happening in the living room. Janet Raymond, flushing so that her sunburned face outdid her red hair for vividness, was slowly leaving the room also. Through a window opening upon the wide front porch, Dundee saw the girl take her position against a pillar, then—a thing she had not done before very probably—press her handkerchief to her trembling lips.

But the bidding was going on. Karen Marshall piping up in her treble voice:

"Two spades."

Dundee took his place behind her chair, then silently beckoned to Penny to shift from her own chair opposite Carolyn Drake to the chair Nita Selim had left to go to her death. She nodded understandingly.

"Challenge!" quavered Carolyn Drake, next on the left to the dealer, and managed to raise her eyebrows meaningly to Penny, her partner, who had not yet changed places.

Penny, throwing herself into the spirit of the thing, scowled warningly. No exchanging of illicit signals for Penny Crain! But the instant she slipped into Nita's Selim's chair her whole face and body took on a different manner, underwent almost a physical change. She was Nita Selim now! She tucked her head, considered her cards, laughed a little breathless note, then cried triumphantly:

"AND I say—five spades! What do you think of that, partner?"

Then the girl who was giving an amazing imitation of Nita Selim changed as suddenly into her own character as she changed chairs.

"Nita, I don't think it's quite bridge to be so jubilant about the strength of your hand," she said in her firm, husky voice. "I pass."

Karen Marshall pretended to study her hand for a frowning instant, then, under Penny's spell, announced in as firm a treble:

"Six spades!"

Carolyn Drake flushed and looked uneasily toward Penny, a bit of by-play which Dundee could see had not figured in the original game. Then she bridled and shifted her plump body in her chair, as she must have done before.

"Double!" Then, still acting the role she had played in earnest that afternoon, she explained importantly: "I always double a little slam on principle!"

Penny, in the role of Nita, redoubled with an exultant laugh, then as herself, passed also, with a murderous glance at Carolyn Drake.

"Let's see your hand, partner, Karen quavered, addressing a woman who had been dead nearly two hours.

"Andree's Story" Tells All That Will Ever Be Known About Tragedy

ALL that the world is apt ever to know about the Andree Arctic expedition is contained in "Andree's Story", just issued by the Viking Press. This book, edited by the Swedish Society for Anthropology and Geography, presents in detail everything that was learned after the discovery of the explorers' bodies and diaries on White Island. The record probably is as complete as it ever will be.

And what a fascinating, tragic book it makes! Andree's diary is translated—or as much of it as could be deciphered after its 33-year immersion in snow. The photographs he took, buried in the ice for three decades, are printed. Every remark that any of the three men wrote down is presented. And, in addition, eminent scientists have analyzed the progress of the expedition and have done their best to fill in the gaps.

Up for 3 Days

From the diaries and log-books, it appears that Andree's balloon stayed in the air for approximately three days after leaving Spitzbergen, traveling some 250 miles in a northerly direction. Then fog and rain weighted it down and the aerial part of the journey ended. Andree got the supplies out of the basket, loaded them on the three sledges which were carried, and led his men along the ice in an effort to reach Franz Joseph land, where there was a large cache of food.

But fate was against them. For weeks they plodded on toward the southeast—and all the while the wind was carrying the ice in an opposite direction, so that after a month's desperate work they were actually farther from Franz Joseph land than when they started. So they turned about and tried to make some islands in the vicinity of Spitzbergen; and again the ice-drift was too much for them. They struggled painfully, averaging a mile or so a day, and finally resolved to camp on the ice for the winter.

Then Comes Silence

Then, just as they had built an ice hut, their ice floe crashed on the desolate shore of White Island; and on Oct. 5 they went ashore. And then comes silence. The few remaining entries in the diaries are fragmentary; and on Oct. 17 they cease forever. On White Island the men died, but we can never know when or how.

The editors of the book believe they froze to death. The explorers had plenty of food, but they did not take the proper kind of clothing. In the Arctic summer, during the hike over the ice, this did not matter; but when winter hit White Island it became a fatal lack.

Record

Negley Farson's "Black Bread and Red Coffins" (Centruy) seems to be the first book on Russia which completely fits in with the ideas of both the Right Wing and the Left. The book has met with the enthusiastic approval of both the conservatives and the Communist critics in this country and in England. Mr. Farson's publishers point out that this is undoubtedly due to the fact that Mr. Farson has written a book about the Russian people of today instead of another "book about Russia." He carefully avoided anything that might be construed as propaganda —either pro or con.

Introduction

If you have ever stood in front of one of these ultra-modern paintings and muttered resentfully to yourself, "Well, I may be goofy, but that just looks lousy to me," you ought to welcome "Apples and Madonnas," a new and enlarged edition of which is now being issued by Covici-Friede.

In this book Mr. C. J. Bulliet tells you just why such paintings are worth looking at; better yet, he tells you just how to look at them. He provides, in other words, an excellent avenue of approach to the modern school of painting, and makes it possible for the reader vastly to enlarge his artistic horizon.

Reproductions of a number of paintings are included in the book, which is written in a provocative and readable style.

Army Will Put Xmas Packages Out Wednesday

Baskets of Food to Be Given Poor as Part of Method of Spreading Cheer; Chicken For Each Poor Family

As a part of the Salvation Army program of spreading cheer at Christmas, baskets of food will be distributed on Wednesday, Dec. 24, according to Mrs. W. T. Wilson, captain. The Christmas program will follow probably on Christmas Day, although an exact date is to be set.

Probably forty or fifty baskets of food will be given to the needy by Army. If it is possible, each basket will contain a chicken, Wilson said, and the other food will be baking powder, potatoes, flour, lard and other such staples.

This distribution of baskets will be done in addition to the regular distribution of clothing and other necessities to the poor, according to Mrs. Wilson.
