SELECTIONS MADE HERE AT STORMY CONVENTION

Wichita Representatives to Vote as Unit at Galveston

A delegation of 22 dominated by "regulars" in the general election two years ago and instructed to vote as a unit, was named to attend the approaching state convention at Galveston after an unsuccessful effort had been made to exclude two party bolters from the group at a stormy session of the Wichita county Democratic convention at the courthouse here Saturday afternoon.

The delegation was chosen after C. C. Hudson, Iowa Park publisher, and J. R. Ogle, Wichita Falls attorney, about whose selection bitter debate centered, both had declared that they subscribed to a resolution proposed by Ed Howard to the effect that they are Democrats and pledge themselves to support party nominees at the general election.

Mr. Howard's resolution later was submitted to a vote of the convention and carried by acclamation with only one or two dissenting votes. Mr. Howard explained that he proposed the resolution in order to "get at the sentiment of those participating in this convention." The resolution follows:

"Resolved, that this being a Democratic convention, that only those

SEASON RECORD FOR HEAT HERE AGAIN REACHED

The heat record for the season was equaled for the second time in four days here Saturday afternoon when the mercury rose to the 107-degree mark. The same temperature was recorded Wednesday, the figure being the highest since July, 1929, when the maximum was 108 degrees.

Saturday marked the 17th day of the last 18 during which the temperature has exceeded the 100-mark.

Some hope of relief from the heat wave, however, was given when, at 5 p. m., the barometer had dropped to a reading of 28.80. At that hour the temperature was 105 degrees.

DALLAS, Aug. 2. (AP)—The Texas election bureau announced tonight that the total vote of 828,998 already accounted for from last Saturday's Democratic primary was the heaviest vote ever polled in a Texas election.

A. F. Henning, director of the bureau, said the highest previous vote, cast in July, 1926, was 821,767.

Tonight the bureau had returns from each of the 253 counties in the state, including 237 complete. Henning said the bureau expected to complete the tabulation on all races Sunday night.

Results so far from the Democratic primary showed the following computation in the governor's race: Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, 240,303; Ross S. Sterling, 169,760; Clint C. Small, 135,781; Thomas B. Love, 86,667; James Young, 72,310; Earle B. Mayfield, 57,277; Barry Miller, 55,215; C. C. Moody, 4,528; Frank Putnm, 2,550; C. E. Walker, 2,065.

Returns from the Republican primary from 90 counties, including 34 complete, in the governor's race showed: Dr. George W. Butte, 2,264; H. E. Exum, 1,764; John P. Gaines, 77; John F. Grant, 785. A total of 4,990 votes had been tabulated in the Republican primary.

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE IN COST OF GOVERNMENT REVEALED BY TREASURY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (UP)—Substantial increase in the cost of government during the first month of the new fiscal year which began July 1 was revealed today by the treasury despite President Hoover's recent warning that economy was urgent. This warning was renewed a few days ago apparently in anticipation of the increases now disclosed.

A drop in receipts also was disclosed, including a decline of $26,000,000 in customs receipts for July, the first full month under the new tariff act. This was due to falling off of imports.

In July, government expenses aggregated $259,278,000, an increase of $13,328,000 over the same month a year ago. However, there was a decrease of $6,000,000 in interest charges on the public debt, which totaled $12,255,000, and a cut of slightly more than $6,000,000 in tax refunds.

One of the principal items in the increase expenditures in July was $10,476,000 spent by the federal farm board.

DALLAS, Aug. 2. (AP)—A group of delegates led by Maury Hughes, state executive committeeman, today bolted the Dallas county Democratic convention.

The action came after Cullen F. Thomas, chairman, had ruled out of order a report by Hughes which would have made all delegates pledge themselves to support the Democratic nominees of the primary Aug. 23. Thomas held that the pledge was unnecessary because the delegates had to take that pledge in the recent primary.

After Hughes had led his followers away, the group which remained instructed its delegates to the state convention to name Carr P. Collins state committeeman. Collins said he would not support Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson if she should be nominated.

Stating he had become convinced "this isn't a Democratic convention" Hughes urged "all real Democrats" to follow him across the hall. John Davis, former state senator, was named chairman of Mears dropped out of the skies at 1:55 o'clock eastern standard time this afternoon in his red and silver monoplane, the City of New York, after a speedy flight from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., in the unusually good time of eight hours and 15 minutes. The distance was 1,150 miles.

TILLMAN COUNTY SHERIFF AND ATTORNEY NAMED IN WARRANTS CHARGING LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—P. V. Ruch, county attorney of Tillman county, and C. A. Wages, sheriff, were charged tonight in warrants with conspiring to violate the national prohibition laws. Simultaneously with the issue of the warrants by Roy St. Lewis, federal district attorney, an order was sent to Attorney General J. Berry King by Governor Holloway, directing him to take charge of a Tillman county grand jury Aug. 15, to investigate an alleged liquor ring.

Lewis indicated a thorough investigation of prohibition enforcement in Tillman county similar to the probe of the Pottawatomie county conspiracy last winter would follow arrest of the two officials. Representatives of the United States marshal's office were sent to Frederick to arrest Ruch and Wages.

Conditions in Tillman county first came to the attention of the district attorney's office several weeks ago and the arrest of Bud Walls, former deputy under Wages, followed. Lewis said before Walls' arrest, a number of Tillman county alleged bootleggers were caught in federal raids and claimed a "protection" system was being practiced in the county and that Walls received the "pay off."

Federal officials said from Walls the alleged trail of corruption led to Robert Rodgers, Frederick constable, and following his apprehension, warrants for the arrest of the sheriff and county attorney were issued.

Rodgers, Ruch and Wages were candidates for re-election at the July primary. Ruch was defeated by A. C. Chancy, who won the Democratic nomination. Rodgers was beaten and Wages went into the run-off with William McAfee.

MAYOR TATE JUMPS ON NEWSPAPERS AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Aug. 2. (UP)—J. Waddy Tate, who rode to the mayoralty of Dallas on a tide of popularity he stimulated by appeasing the commoner's yen for hot dogs, is riled at the press.

The Dallas News today quoted a letter "his honor," as the local newspapers have dubbed him, wrote to a citizen regarding sundry matters. An excerpt from it read: "I stated to you at the time that you had gained your impression from the damned newspapers, that they were continually lying on me and about me and around me, and I certainly thought you were friend enough to believe me in preference to the damned newspapers, which do nothing but publish infamous lies."

Well-Planned Murder of Jack Zuta Executed as Fitting Celebration of Capone's Return Police Convinced

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (US)—Jack Zuta's well-planned and workmanlike assassination was executed as a fitting celebration of "Scarface Al" Capone's homecoming, authorities were convinced tonight.

Zuta, vice overlord and heavy-thinker for the "Bugs" Moran whisky, vice and gambling syndicate and arch-enemy of Capone, as well, was machine-gunned to death last night as a score of terrified merrymakers looked on.

In hiding—as he thought—the carefree Zuta gaily was feeding nickels to a player-piano in the dance pavilion of the Lake View hotel near Delafield, Wis., when the death which he had fled to avoid, suddenly came upon him. He was the year's fifth gang victim.

Capone, back in Chicago from his sojourn in Miami, was reported to have entertained 100 of his followers at a Cicero hotel last night.

Tonight, Chicago officers, cooperating with those from Wisconsin, were looking for Capone. They also were seeking Ted Newberry, renegade Morgan gangster, who lately has thrown his fortunes with the Capone outfit, deadly rivals of Moran.

Linked With Lingle

Authorities assert that the shooting unmistakably is linked with the murder of "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, who was shot down by agents of the Moran gang and, it is said, by the direct order of Zuta.

Lingle, a newspaper man who turned out to be a gangster, was Capone's friend. Through Lingle's police influence, Capone beer and booze flowed freely in Chicago's business section. Moran's products were taboo.

Lingle likewise refused to let Moran gambling establishments open. Then in retribution came his

Scientist Claims New Formula for Producing Light Without Power

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2. (UP)—A youthful scientist will leave his modest apartment-laboratory here next Thursday long enough to demonstrate before the learned men of two universities his new formula for producing light.

The discovery by Dr. William G. Schnell, 28, is said to make possible production of light as bright as the rays of the sun, without the use of electricity.

The formula incorporates the use of atoms similar to those of which the sun is believed to be composed Dr. Schnell, a graduate of the University of Colorado and the University of Dresden, told the United Press.

The young scientist, after eight and a half years of intensive research and experimentation, has already demonstrated his discovery informally by lighting a room with the compounds of his formula.

Tests Successful

In another test, he succeeded in burning a piece of wood by holding a magnifying glass between a test tube containing his solution, and the object. In this experiment the rays from the tube acted exactly as do the rays of the sun when concentrated by a magnifying glass.

"The compounds in my invention are composed in part of the same atoms as those in the sun," Dr. Schnell said, "and in some ways the solution even has the sun created for it will produce either hot or cold rays.

"I have satisfied some of the most exacting scientists that my claims are entirely true," he said. "I have shown representatives of some of

Red Torch of Communism Fanned By Further Promises Chinese Loot Reds Advance on Important Cities

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2. (INS)—The red torch of Communism, fanned by further promises of rich loot similar to that seized in the sacked and burned city of Changsha in Honan province, swept menacingly today Shanghai, Hankow, Kiukiang and Kuling.

The raiding hordes, emboldened by their capture of Changsha and encouraged further by reports of weakened government garrisons in most of the river cities in the Yangste valley, swept rapidly toward Wuhan cities. They have overrun Kiansi in the south part of the afflicted section, with government troops hastily preparing to evacuate Wanchang and Kiukiang.

Scampering away before the marauding armies were hundreds of terrified natives who seized their most cherished possessions and fled into the larger cities, hoping to find protection and safety in the foreign concessions. The foreign residents themselves have been warned against the approaching danger, and in several localities are evacuating.

Heavy defense work and strengthening of garrisons was undertaken here and at Hankow, police barricading all strategic points and and warning the populace to remain indoors. Two divisions of government troops have considerably augmented defense forces at Hankow. The British cruiser Cumberland arrived there and is standing by in case of emergency.

Changsha, a smouldering ruin with hundreds of its residents murdered was officially reported by the Nanking government to have been recaptured from the Communists following a heavy bombardment by subscribing to the test, 'I am a Democrat and will support the nominees of the party,' be permitted to participate in this Democratic convention".

DEMO REGULARS IN CONTROL HERE

Starts in Harmony

The stormy debate which was precipitated when it seemed that the convention would end after having been a love feast with regulars and bolters striving to outdo each other in courtesies, turned into a fiery, three-sided argument.

Mr. Howard and C. B. Felder, who fired the opening volley, contended that any person, and Mr. Hudson and Mr. Ogle in particular, who bolted the party's national ticket in 1928 should not be permitted to attend the Democratic convention as a delegate from Wichita county. P. B. Cox, Judge R. E. Huff, J. B. Hatchitt, Judge John C. Kay and others urged that a "forgive and forget" policy should be adopted as an essential to party prosperity. Mr. Hudson, speaking on a point of personal privilege, declared himself to be "as good a Democrat as any man in this county," added that he voted for Hoover in 1928 and that under the same circumstances he would do the same thing again. Several of the talks bristled with personalities.

The convention had proceeded smoothly until the verbal storm broke. Bert King, who was nominated July 26 for county chairman, was elected chairman of the convention after the formality of preparing the roll of delegates had been completed and Judge Edgar Scurry, the retiring county chairman, had called the meeting to order. Judge Kay later took the chair as presiding officer when Mr. King was forced by business reasons to leave the convention.

Prepare Roll Call

During the tedious compiling of the roll of delegates, regulars and bolters showed the utmost consideration for each other. The names of delegates from several precincts had not been properly certified. In a number of others, no conventions at all were held but citizens from such places were present. In at least one, two delegations, one of regulars and one of bolters, had been named.

Before the adoption of the list of delegates there were a series of motions, some by bolters, some by regulars and some in which regulars and bolters joined. As an upshot, not only were precinct representatives who were properly certified admitted, but those not properly certified, citizens who were present from precincts in which no convention at all was held, and both delegations of those contesting for places from one precinct were permitted to participate in the convention.

With formalities completed, Mr. King appointed F. W. Fischer, Mr. Cox and Mr. Hudson members of a committee to name a delegation to cast Wichita county's 30 votes at the approaching state convention. The committee reported its recommendations soon after and the storm broke.

Those named and approved as delegates follow: Judge Huff, Judge Scurry, F. H. Harris, Mr. Howard, Tom Corridon, Joe Crouch, F. W. Fischer, J. D. Parnell, John Davenport, B. Y. Cummings, Bert King, W. E. George, E. C. Demontel, Brandon Smith, C. C. McDonald, John P. Marrs, Ben G. Oneal, Lee McClain, W. J. Michael, W. T. Willis, Mr. Hudson and Mr. Ogle.

Battle Starts

After reading the list, Mr. Cox made a motion that those proposed be elected delegates to the state convention.

Mr. Felder was on his feet instantly, and proposed as an amendment to Mr. Cox's motion that the names of Mr. Hudson and Mr. Ogle be stricken from the list.

He charged that they "flaunt the fact in our faces that they voted for the Republicans in 1928" that "Hudson in particular has criticised and ridiculed the Democratic party" and that "a Republican convention is now being held in this building and that is where they (Hudson and Ogle) belong.

"To thunder with harmony if it means that the Democratic party must be turned over to Republicans like them," Mr. Felder continued. "It would be a disgrace to permit them, after having supported the Republican ticket, to be sent by the Democrats of Wichita county to a Democratic convention."

Mr. Cox, in reply to Mr. Felder, prefaced remarks with the statement that he always has been a Democrat and that he supported the regular ticket in 1928.

"I am just that kind of a Democrat," he continued, "who believes that the yellowest, lowest down Democrat is better than the best Republican who ever lived.

Speaks for Bolters

"But when citizens who have bolted the ticket once as a matter of conscience want to return to the party fold, I think we should welcome them. I think they made a mistake, and after their observation of Republican 'prosperity' and the action of the Republican party in endorsing Morrow of New Jersey who was nominated to the senate on a wet platform, I think they will admit, to themselves, at least, that they did make a mistake. They say they are Democrats and I, for one, think they are.

"They aren't the first who have bolted the party. You will remember a few years ago that a man named Petty ran on the Republican ticket for the U. S. senate from Texas and I am not sure that the gentleman (indicating Felder) didn't vote for him."

"Don't you look at me when you say that," Felder interrupted. "I not only voted against, but I worked against Petty. I'm not a bolter and never have been."

"Well I didn't know," Cox replied. "But I know that a lot of Democrats did vote for him."

Mr. Howard thereupon entered the debate.

Howard Urges Bar

"I think it would be an outrage to name men like C. C. Hudson and J. R. Ogle on a Democratic committee alongside of such Democrats as myself and I am ashamed that Mr. Cox would propose and condone such a thing," Mr. Howard declared. "They tried to wreck the Democratic party. They have ridiculed and disgraced it. And now they are trying to gain control of the party they tried to destroy, and are receiving the help of those who pose as regular Democrats. It would be outrageous to send them to Galveston."

Mr. Hudson next was recognized. "I suppose it is as distasteful to others as it is to me to sit in a convention with such men as Ed Howard and C. B. Felder," he declared. "I hadn't planned to come to this convention, but I was informed it was to be a harmonious meeting and that an effort would be made to forget differences and present a solid front. I am attending today because I was urged to attend by some who were 'regulars' two years ago. I was placed on the state delegation over my objections.

"They've started hopping on me because I run a newspaper and have dared to print the truth. The truth has gotten under their skin and it hurts.

"I am as good a Democrat as Ed Howard, C. B. Felder or any other man in this room or in Texas. But sometimes, principle rises above other considerations and two years ago I refused to stomach Tammany hall, Al Smith and rotten things they stood for.

Declares Democracy

"I don't apologize for that vote. I am not coming here begging to be taken into the party. I am a free man. If the same situation should arise as two years ago, I would do exactly as I did then."

Judge Huff was the next speaker on the floor.

"I've voted the Democratic ticket for 50 years," he said, "and if some of you had seen the things that occurred when the South lay prostrate after the civil war, you would understand why I could never vote for a Republican. But in 1928, some 200,000 Democrats in Texas did support the Republican national ticket, and I cannot join in any movement to bar them from the Democratic party because they made one blunder."

Judge Huff then proposed as a motion that Mr. Felder's motion to bar Mr. Hudson and Mr. Ogle be tabled. Mr. Felder remarked, however, that he "could not understand when a hot regular like Joe Hatchitt was two years ago now is strong for the bolters."

Mr. Hatchitt leaped to his feet and made himself heard over an uproar of voices. Some were insisting that the vote on the motion to table must be taken without debate. Others were calling, "let him talk," and others were demanding the "question."

Says Bolters Needed

"I'll tell you why I want to admit them," Mr. Hatchitt shouted. "I'm looking ahead to 1932. The Democratic party will need them then."

When Judge Kay indicated that he would like to speak on the subject, Judge Huff withdrew his motion to table.

"I did what I could for the national ticket two years ago, although it didn't seem like it did much good," he remarked. "I came out of that fight without hard feelings toward any man. I think the bolters made a mistake. But I can't find it in my heart to condemn more than half the voters of Wichita county because they couldn't see things as I did."

"I am willing to admit them to the party, but not to the convention," Mr. Felder retorted.

Judge Huff then renewed his motion to table and it carried. The delegation was then elected as proposed.

Mr. Howard next formally presented his resolution, which he had previously read, and it also carried, Mr. Cox's motion to instruct the delegation to vote as a unit was approved immediately afterward. The wording of this resolution was virtually the same that caused the bolt of 1928.

The convention also named delegates to various other approaching conventions, as follows: Judicial and congressional, Judge Huff, Mr. Demontel and Tarlton Morrow; flotorial, J. D. Parnell and P. B. Cox; senatorial, Mr. Ogle, Mr. Hatchitt and Bob Long.

NEAR 1,000 MEN FIGHT FLAMES IN FORESTS OF NORTHWESTERN STATES

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 2. (AP)—Nearly 1,000 fighters were massed today in the flaming forests of east Washington, west Montana and north Idaho, checking all fires but one.

Near Ione, Wash., a conflagration covering 300 acres of state timber spread steadily north, driving 60 foresters back.

Flames flared in 5,000 more acres of state, national and private timber. The 2,500 acre Matten creek fire in the cabinet reserve of Montana fell back before 375 men.

Foresters of Missoula reported horses and plows were being used to check the fire near there. The Selway forest fire of 1,500 acres near Kooska, Idaho, was being conquered by 250 fighters.

WINS FIGHT TO PREVENT HIS REMOVAL TO ARIZONA

COKEVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 2. (UP)—Capt. Robert H. "Bob" Polk, wanted in Arizona to face charges of conspiracy to violate United States neutrality in the Escobar revolution in Mexico in 1929, won his fight against removal in federal court here this afternoon.

One-Man Speed Trap Ready

A one-man speed trap for reckless autoists has been invented by a police inspector at The Hague, in collaboration with the director of the State Marine Institute at Leiden, and is ready for the market. The new instrument resembles a single opera glass, with a circular base from which certain finger stops protrude. As the speeding car approaches, the traffic officer focuses his glass on it and starts a stop watch contained in the instrument. Afterwards he gets the time from the watch and by referring to a chart can ascertain the speed of the car.

DELEGATES BOLT DEMO CONVENTION

the Hughes group and the delegates were instructed to re-elect Hughes state committeeman.

The meeting started out at least with a pretense of harmony. Both factions united on Thomas, who supported Alfred E. Smith in the presidential race two years ago and Thomas B. Love, Hoover leader, in the gubernatorial campaign this year.

Thomas Attacks Ferguson

The first open feeling of discord was shown when some of the delegates took exception to the speech made by Thomas attacking "Fergusonism" and favorable to Ross S. Sterling, candidate against Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson in the Democratic gubernatorial run-off. Pleading again for harmony, Thomas ceased his talk out of deference to the wishes of the Ferguson followers.

There was little friction after the two groups had gone into separate conventions.

The group which stayed at the original meeting place passed a resolution assailing "Fergusonism" and endorsing Sterling's candidacy. Love was chairman of the resolutions committee. This group also struck Hughes' name from the list of delegates to the state convention, as prepared by its committee. George C. Purl, Democratic nominee for the state senate, was chosen to head the delegation to Galveston.

The rift which led to the bolt came when Hughes presented a minority report from the credentials committee, in which he said he did not believe some of those certified by the committee were Democrats. He proposed the pledge as a method of weeding out those delegates.

Bolt at Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2. (AP)—Supporters of Mrs. Mirian A. Ferguson, run-off candidate for governor, bolted the county Democratic convention shortly after it had opened today in 17th district courtroom and set in operation their own convention at the opposite end of the hall in 96th courtroom. The regular convention unanimously endorsed R. S. Sterling, for governor at its close.

The courtroom was packed when the convention opened and about 25 or 30 persons left it when the Ferguson bolt occurred. Later the Ferguson meeting was increased to over 100 persons.

"Good-bye Ku Kluxers," was a parting shot from the Fergusonians. To them, those remaining in the convention retorted "you didn't have a vote anyway."

The Ferguson convention adopted a resolution against a state road bond issue and urging that a plank to that effect be in the state Democratic platform. The Curtis resolution, offered in the county convention previously, was adopted by the Ferguson meeting and sent down the hall to the convention where it had been tabled.

Ferguson Supporters Control

TEMPLE, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Partisans of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, candidate for governor in the run-off, today steam-rollered the opposition in the Bell county Democratic convention and elected Ferguson delegates to the state convention.

Pro-Ferguson and anti-Sterling resolutions were adopted. Mrs. Ferguson's character, platform and ability were praised and the delegation instructed in her behalf. campaign expenditures of R. S. Sterling, her opponent in the run-off, were condemned, the resolutions stating that they were "reliably reported to be hundreds of thousands of dollars" and called on the authorities to look "to violations of the law involved."

Further resolutions said the highway commission had "been used as a political club" and denounced the policy of straightening highways to avoid small towns. The convention went on record favorable to an elective highway commission, one of Mrs. Ferguson's proposals.

Moody Supporters Control

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Supporters of Gov. Dan Moody ruled the Travis county Democratic convention today, electing the Governor and Mrs. Moody delegates to the state convention and Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, chairman of the convention.

Mrs. McCallum, a known opponent of James E. Ferguson, whose wife, Miriam, was placed in the run-off campaign for governor, asserted in the keynote speech "the flag of battle is raised, the fight is on, and the time has come for us to line up a solid front." She mentioned no names of gubernatorial candidates.

The convention commended the administration of Governor Moody and "his gallant fight in the interest of efficient government and clean politics."

Other delegates elected to the state meet included Attorney General and Mrs. R. L. Bobbitt, and Mrs. H. De Van Watts, state president of the W. C. T. U.

Two rifts threatened the convention, first with the candidacy of Amos Felts for the chairmanship, which brought a charge that he had said he would support the Fergusons; and again when Judge E. R. Kone, octogenarian, made a speech advocating defeat of Mrs. De Van Watts' resolution placing the convention on record as favoring prohibition.

Judge Kone declared the prohibition law "has made more hypocrites, lawbreakers and cowards than any other law."

Felts withdrew from the race in the interest of harmony and Mrs. McCallum, who came as a proxy holder, was elected by acclamation.

Vote Against Conventions

LUBBOCK, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—The Lubbock county Democratic convention today voted down a resolution proposing substitution of the old convention in precinct, county and state, for the present primary election system.

Support Policies Nominee

LULING, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—The Caldwell county Democratic convention today instructed its delegates to the state convention to support the policies of party nominees in the gubernatorial run-off primary, Aug. 23.

Appeal for Sterling

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—A resolution condemning "the candidacy of James E. Ferguson, disguised in his wife's name," and appealing to "all good Democrats" to support Ross S. Sterling of Houston was adopted today by the Williamson county Democratic convention.

The convention was attended by Gov. Dan Moody as a delegate from Taylor,. Resolutions were adopted commending Moody's administration and Chairman D. W. Wilcox of the state Democratic executive committee.

Ferguson Condemned

MARSHALL, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—A resolution unanimously condemning the past administration acts of former Gov. James E. Ferguson, both as an individual and "as proxy for his wife," Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, candidate for governor, was adopted unanimously today by the Harrison county Democratic convention. The resolution indorsed R. S. Sterling for the nomination for governor.

The convention's resolution charged that "affairs of state were dishonestly managed and the reputation of Texas had the shadow of mistrust cast upon it" and urged that "this should never be permitted to exist again."

Condemn Bond Issue

GROESBECK, Texas, Aug. 2. (UP)—A majority of the delegates from Limestone county to the state Democratic convention elected today are supporters of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson. Resolutions were adopted condemning the proposed state road bond issue, and the delegates were instructed to vote against its submission.

Harris Endorses Sterling

HOUSTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Harris county democracy went on record here today in indorsement of the candidacy of Ross Sterling at a harmonious session of the county Democratic convention.

At a session attended by nearly 1,000 persons a resolution praising Mr. Sterling and condemning Fergusonism was adopted almost without a dissenting vote. A motion by a Ferguson supporter to table the resolution was shouted down.

Although Ferguson supporters remained silent throughout the convention, about 30 persons gathered around J. D. Sallas, ardent Ferguson supporter for a brief conference after the meeting adjourned.

Condemn "Slush Funds"

EASTLAND, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Eastland county Democrats, in a harmonious convention here today, passed resolutions condemning the use of "slush funds" in campaigns for governor, opposing the sale of penitentiary lands and centralization of the prison system near Austin.

The proposed $350,000,000 road bond issue also was opposed and Eastland county representatives were called on to vote against such a measure. Another resolution called for a sale tax on chain stores.

An amendment offered to the resolution opposing the use of large sums of money in campaigns, and seeking to add a clause opposing "proxy governors" and wholesale pardoning of convicts, was defeated.

Opposes State Bond Issue

SNYDER, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—The Scurry county Democratic convention today went on record against a state bond issue of any kind and favored a pay-as-you-go highway policy. Delegates elected to the state convention were J. H. Allen, Fritz R. Smith, Lee Stinson and J. T. Biggs.

Harmony at Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 2. (AP)—Harmony was the keynote of the Dallas county Republican convention here today, which adopted resolutions indorsing the administration of President Hoover and also commended the administration of National Committeeman R. B. Creager of Brownsville and State Chairman Eugene Nolte. Delegates and alternates were chosen for the state convention to be held in San Angelo Sept. 9.

POLICE SEEK SOLUTION OF CLEVELAND MURDER

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2. (UP)—Police turned to the haunts of gangland tonight to seek solution of the murder of Mrs. Christina Colletto, 21, whose body was found near Berea, Ohio, today.

Through initials on her wedding ring reporters of The Cleveland Press, checking with recent marriage licenses, found the clew which led to identification of Mrs. Colletto, by relatives. The girl was married to Tony Colletto on July 8. Tony is a nephew of Charles Colletto, gangster, who was questioned by police in the Joe Porello murder here on July 5.

GRAY COUNTY DEFEATS $3,500,000 BOND ISSUE

PAMPA, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Gray county defeated a proposed $3,500,000 road bond issue today, according to practically complete returns tonight which showed a vote of 573 against and 176 for the bond issue. Another bond issue, for $2,000,000, sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, which opposed the issue offered today, will be presented at an election next Saturday.

SWELTERING HEAT CAUSES SUFFERING

the longest in the locality's history, was estimated to have damaged crops to the extent of $25,000,000.

Farmers in that region fed next winter's fodder to their livestock because of parched pasture lands.

Reports of crop destruction even more widespread came from the Northwest. North Dakota's anticipated production of wheat was cut 15,000,000 bushels. South Dakota and Montana both lost 5,000,000 bushels.

Montana's endless ranges were reported to have become barren for lack of rain. Cattlemen were busy rounding up their heavy steers for shipment to market to conserve the sparse pasture.

Deterioration of cotton crops in Oklahoma and Texas was said to be the worst in years. It appeared that almost total destruction would result if the dry spell continued.

Corn Crop Ruined

Oklahoma's corn crop was declared to have been practically ruined for lack of rain.

Southern Illinois and Missouri farmers were reported to have abandoned almost all hope of saving their corn.

From Iowa came similar accounts of devastation to corn fields and farmers turned to hay stacks and grain bins for livestock feed as pastures wilted.

Precipitation in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin was estimated by the weather bureau in Chicago to be almost 35 per cent under the normal amount of rainfall for the season.

A summary of the situation indicated, according to Forecaster C. A. Donnel, that even the famous drouths of 1901 and 1911 were being far outdone by the present dry spell.

The entire month of August promises to rival July's record of intense heat and little rain, Donnell said.

Kansas Crop Short

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 2. (UP)—"Half a crop or less" is the Kansas corn outlook tonight, according to a number of crop observers.

State board of agriculture officials predict the crop will be the smallest in the state's history if the present weather continues. "The late plantings of corn now are being damaged as well as the earlier planting, which were given up more than a week ago," they said.

Drouth Hits Corn

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 2. (UP)—The corn crop in Missouri is deteriorating at the rate of 2,500,000 bushels a day during the present drouth, according to agricultural statisticians here who are now completing a statewide survey. The crop, estimated at 176,000,000 bushels on July 1, has now been reduced to 120,000,000 bushels, the crop experts said.

109 at Mangum

MANGUM, Okla., Aug. 2. (AP)—The mercury soared to a new season's high here today, stopping at the 109-degree mark. The previous maximum was 108 degrees.

Kansas Warmer

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—Temperatures nosed up past 100 in the Southwest today while strong winds fanned the parched agricultural sections which have had little appreciable moisture in more than a month.

Salina, Kan., registered 106 this afternoon, with hot gusts sweeping out of the South. Pittsburg had a reading of 104, the first over 100 since a local season high record was established at 109 last Monday. Topeka reported 104, three-tenths of a degree under the season's high.

EIGHT KILLED IN RAILROAD WRECK

derailed in collision and the two engines were practically demolished. Working crews sent to the scene of the wreck were expected to repair it and clear it for traffic some time late tonight.

The cause of the collision was not determined immediately by railroad officials but it was reported one of the train officials overran his orders.

Railroad officials said orders were issued to give the northbound train the right of way and it should have passed the train it struck at Stamps, 15 miles south of the scene of the wreck.

Division officials of the railroad said the train crew either misread or misunderstood the orders, as they were checked for accuracy after the wreck and were found to have been issued correctly from division headquarters.

A large number of persons attracted to the scene of the wreck hampered the work of railroad crews in untangling the huge mass of debris. Officials feared other bodies of "hoboes" might be found in the wreckage.

Talkies Taxed for Players

Patrons of motion picture theaters which have replaced orchestras by talkies must pay a tax of 50 per cent on the price of tickets, according to a new ordinance passed by the Municipal Council of Porte Alegre, Brazil. The proceeds of this tax are to be devoted to the relief of musicians who lost their positions when the talkies appeared.

RED TORCH FANNED BY PROMISES LOOT

a Chinese gunboat, Marines, it was stated, were landed to hold the city pending arrival of troops from Hankow.

Fifty Reds were arrested in Shanghai's foreign quarter following an attempted demonstration quickly broken up by foreign police. Barbed wire entanglements, machine guns and special detachments composed a solid line of defense against invading forces.

A number of foreign gunboats are concentrating in the troubled area, ready to protect the lives and property of their residents. The American gunboat Luzon, with Rear Admiral Craven aboard, left from here this morning for the central part to join the American naval forces in the disturbed zone.

Near Calamity in China

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—A shortage of umbrellas and an oversupply of rain in Shanghai in 1927, was disclosed today as a near cause of far greater difficulties for Americans in China than they now face.

If the shortage of umbrellas had not been relieved in time, naval officers believe, several of the American gunboats which loom large in the protection of foreigners during these disturbed times, would not now be in service.

Six of the gunboats were under construction in Shanghai when the Cantonese drove the northern forces out of Shanghai in 1927. Then the usual April showers began, the Cantonese confiscated all umbrellas and sent them to the Nanking soldiers. The gunboat builders were left exposed to the rain.

The celestial craving for an umbrella when it rains made the workers useless and when the contract date for completion of the gunboats came, the Chinese asked an extension, on the ground of excessive rainfall. It was denied. They renewed the request, pleading lack of umbrellas for the workers and the navy authorities extended the time. The gunboats finally were completed.

These shallow river craft are the only American navy vessels built abroad. The two largest of the 11 in service are only 210 feet long.

Some can operate in less than six feet of water and the largest require seven feet.

The Palos, which participated in the Changsha engagement, and her sister ship, the Monocacy, are six-year-old ships. They are 165 feet long, carry seven machine guns and can navigate in three feet of water.

All the gunboats are armed with two three-inch guns and carry from 54 to 62 men.

MURRAY AND GORE HOLD LEADS WHEN RETURNS TOTALED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (UP)—Complete and official returns from Tuesday's primary election were announced tonight by the state election board for 76 of Oklahoma's 77 counties.

An official tabulation was not made pending arrival of Texas county returns by airplane. Secretary John Luttrel said it would be impossible to reach an official total of all counties tonight.

Carefully checked official county totals gave the following state totals from the 76 counties as tabulated by The United Press:

For Governor—W. H. Murray 136,289, Frank Buttram 70,445.

For Senator—Thomas P. Gore 77,751, Charles J. Wrightsman 71,783.

FOUR SERIOUSLY HURT IN EL PASO ACCIDENT

EL PASO, Aug. 2. (AP)—T. E. Morris of Kaufman, Texas, was in a hospital here tonight suffering from a broken back and Mr. and Mrs. Duke Rodgers and son of Dallas and Miss Agnes Sides of Wills Point were suffering from severe bruises as a result of an automobile accident on the highway near here today.

The automobile in which they were en route to El Paso struck a bridge on the highway 60 miles southeast of here.

JONES LAW TO BE INVOKED IN DRY CAMPAIGN

Drive Against Alien Violators Included in Program

FELONY CONVICTIONS AND DEPORTATION PLAN

General Policy to Concentrate on Big Operators To Shut Off Supply

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—A campaign against alien violators of the prohibition statutes and the invocation of the Jones law to bring felony convictions and deportation hold a major place in the program of the reorganized enforcement bureau.

The plan fits in with the general policy of concentrating on the big operators in an effort to shut off the supply of intoxicating beverages at its source.

Although reluctant to estimate the proportion of immigrant offenders, the directing officers of the war on illicit liquor are firmly of the opinion that aliens provide the leadership, and the rank and file as well, of a majority of the big rum running gangs.

In proof of this contention, they point to Chicago and other cities in which a foreign element controls the activities of the underworld.

Provisions Jones Law

The possibilites of the Jones law in bringing about deportations were pointed out by President Coolidge when the measure was approved by congress and were cited then as his principal reason for signing the bill. Since that time, however, they have been largely overshadowed in prohibition discussions by the heavy penalties provided.

The law makes a distinction between minor and major, or felonious, violations of the dry statutes which carry a maximum punishment of five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. An alien convicted of a felony is deported at the conclusion of his prison term.

To obtain convictions of this magnitude, the bureau is relying largely upon a staff of 200 especially trained super-agents responsible only to the authorities here. They are charged with ferreting out the wholesale liquor conspiracies involving territory which overlaps the administrative enforcement district.

MEDICINE BOTTLE ONLY CLUE TO IDENTITY BABY FOUND ON DOORSTEPS

STAUNTON, Ill., Aug. 2. (UP)—A medicine bottle with an Oklahoma City drug store label was the only clue to the identity of a two-week-old baby girl found on the doorsteps of a filling station here early today.

The baby, blue-eyed and brown haired, was found almost suffocated in a basket of clothing by Highway Patrolman W. C. Valentine. The medicine bottle was in the basket.

Gallows Cast Shadow Over Woman Held for Poisoning Relatives

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 2. (US)—The gallows today cast a somber shadow over Mrs. Mary Richardson, who is in jail here charged with the murder of her 73-year-old mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Richardson, and who is suspected in the mysterious death of her husband, Charles, former Point Edward fire and police chief.

According to the crown attorney, the 29-year-old woman maintained that she "did not harm" when she poisoned her mother-in-law and that the aged woman was "better off dead."

Since being notified that the death penalty would be asked, the crown attorney said that Mrs. Richardson has denied her first story.

Sergeant W. A. Scott, of the provincial police, filed a murder charge after he said he discovered that she had made four purchases of strychnine in a local drug store, telling the druggist that "our place is overrun with rats."

Charges that the woman poisoned her mother-in-law has led to suspicion of the death of her husband in May, 1929.

Boarder Also Held

A boarder at the Richardson home, Alexander Butters, 40, purported sweetheart of the alleged poisoner, is held on a nominal charge of vagrancy as a material witness. Police said that Mrs. Richardson planned to marry Butters.

The woman's husband died suddenly, leaving, police said, $1,500 in life insurance.

The elder Mrs. Richardson also carried a small amount of life insurance and had willed her modest Point Edward home to her daughter-in-law.

Richardson's body will be exhumed.

For the second time, tragedy has forcibly entered the life of two-year-old Mary Leboeuf, the foster child of Mrs. Richardson.

Unwanted, little Mary was buried alive by her real mother a few days after she was born. Rescued from death by an Indian boy of the Sarnia reservation, who watched the mother bury the child, Mary was adopted by the Richardsons.

Today Mary's adopted father and grandmother are dead and her foster mother is charged with murder. Her real mother is in jail for the attempt on Mary's life.

Some precocious understanding has touched the child. She seldom smiles. She sat silently in the gloomy office of the Lembton county jail while her foster mother was arraigned. In wide-eyed wonder, she saw her mother stand before the judge, plead not guilty, and saw her led away to a cell. Without tears or protests, Mary was carried from the building by Mrs. Alex Duncan, her grandmother's sister.

The net around Mrs. Richardson was further strengthened, police say, when Mrs. Duncan told them that her relative had planned to marry Butters and "go away from here to forget the past."

Britain Air Exports

LONDON.—The British Air ministry's recent report shows that more than $10,000,000 worth of aeronautical material was exported by that country during 1929. These exports consisted of whole plane units and parts shipped to every country in the world.

Dr. Nat Grafton Will Visit Davis Mountains Area

Dr. Nat F. Grafton, Presbyterian pastor here for the last 15 years, and Mrs. Grafton will leave Monday on a month's vacation trip to the Davis mountains in Southwest Texas.

Dr. Grafton resigned the pastorate at the First Presbyterian church and took over the pulpit at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church July 1 because his health would not permit him to continue his duties as minister for the larger congregation.

During the month he has been with the Floral Heights church there have been 55 new members added to the church and 66 new students in the Sunday school.

The church recently completed a new building and in September will start work on a gymnasium, 40 by 60 feet, for the benefit of the young people of the congregation.

MUST WAIT TO RELATE TALE OF CERTAIN ORGIES OF ARTHUR HAMMERSTEIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (INS)—Jack Haskell, dance maestro, who threatened in court to tell about "certain orgies" and "the barroom, too," of Arthur Hammerstein, New York show producer, will have to wait until next Wednesday to relate his story. An adjournment was taken yesterday in the case, which developed after the producer and Harrold Rand, chorus boy, were taken to court on an assault charge following a fist fight during rehearsals for a new Hammerstein show, "Luana."

Haskell said he was hit by Rand and berated by his sister, Sally Rand, actress, and that later Hammerstein struck him.

During Rand's trial, Haskell, on the stand, said:

"I am going to tell of certain orgies that occurred in Mr. Hammerstein's offices—and about the barroom, too."

Attorneys began to argue at this point and adjournment was then taken.

PRESIDENT TO REAPPOINT NEW TARIFF COMMISSION

LURAY, Va., Aug. 2. (UP)—President Hoover has decided to reappoint to the new reorganized tariff commission Edgar B. Broussard, of Utah, now chairman, and Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland, vice chairman, it was learned at the presidential summer camp today.

The president intends to have every section of the country represented in the six members of the commission, including the farm belt. He is canvassing for the four other members, including a chairman.

COUNCIL VOTES TO REFUND $640,000 CITY BOND ISSUE

In a special called meeting in the Memorial auditorium at noon Saturday the city council voted to refund $640,000 of five per cent waterworks bonds.

Refunding of these bonds, which did not become due until 1960, was optional after last February.

Two new bond issues of $320,000 each will be made, one bearing four and one-half per cent interest and the other a rate of four and three-quarters per cent.

The bonds will mature annually at a rate of $21,000 per year for the first 20 years and $22,000 annually for the following 10 years.

An emergency was declared and the ordinance passed on all three readings at the meeting Saturday.

INVESTIGATE STORY OF KIDNAPING AT JUAREZ

EL PASO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Juarez police today were investigating the story of Juan Herrera that he had been kidnaped in the business district there, taken to a secluded spot, robbed of $1,700 and left chained.

Herrera said he was accosted as he started to get into his automobile, parked in front of a business house. Three men, one armed with a pistol, forced him to go with them.

"Near the Church of the Sacred Heart they forced me to get out of the car, and after robbing me forced me to lie down," he told police. "They chained my hands and feet and locked the chains with a padlock."

Police were tipped off to Herrera's predicament by an anonymous telephone call, they said.

AMERICANS INTERESTED IN NEWS FROM RUSSIA

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 2. (UP)—Americans are more interested in news from Soviet Russia than any other people in the world, Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press associations, told the Institute of Politics today.

He declared in his address, "News From Russia," that American press associations and many newspapers maintained staff correspondents in Russia, not only to supply American newspapers with Russian news, but to distribute it all over the world.

Russian censorship, Bickel said, is "frank and fair as censorships go."

"Statements of fact if supported by evidence in the possession of the correspondent are rarely questioned," he declared. . . . The last important story held up by the Russian censor was the exile of Trotsky which was delayed about three days. In the meantime, however, the news had reached Berlin through friends of Trotsky and was known throughout the world."

Exact Replica of Old Viking Ships Docks in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2. (INS)—The Roald Amundsen, 40-foot craft designed by her commander to be an exact replica of the Viking ships of old and which left Bergen, Norway, on May 17, 1926, is docked on the Mississippi river on St. Louis' waterfront today. The craft followed the route of Leif Erickson across the Atlantic. She will remain here for 10 days.

The craft is commanded by Capt. Gerhard Folgero, who is more than 80 years old and is making the trip up the Mississippi so that she may be placed on exhibition at the Minnesota state fair at St. Paul.

The Roald Amundsen, was designed to represent Norway at the exposition held at Philadelphia, and is powered only by a sail and a small auxiliary Diesel engine.

The Roald Amundsen reached Philadelphia on Aug. 22, 1926, after a trip during which she touched the Shetland islands, the Faroes, Iceland, and Greenland. After the Philadelphia trip, Captain Folgero returned to Norway. He again set sail for America in February, 1929, from Spain following the route of Columbus to Havana.

WILL CONTEST DIVORCE SUIT OF SCREEN ACTRESS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 2. (INS)—Charles F. McGrew III, son of a prominent Chicago attorney, indicated through his attorneys today that he intends to contest the divorce suit filed by his wife, Jean Harlow, screen actress, who charged him with cruelty.

When they separated a property settlement was said to have been made whereby his wife was to receive $375 a month alimony. His wife alleges that he kept away from California to avoid service on the divorce complaint, after endeavoring to escape the alimony payment.

McGrew finally came to California and visited his wife, according to affidavits, and Miss Harlow detained him until her attorney could serve him with the divorce papers.

The court granted the petition that McGrew might file an answer if he paid $2,500, which is to be applied on any order the court may make for attorneys' fees or alimony.

Moccasins From Scotland

That thousands of moccasins sold in the United States as Indian souvenirs are manufactured in Scotland, has just been revealed by Arthur Wilson, managing director of a Glasgow firm. "Tourists in the United States buy Indian moccasins as souvenirs of the land which was once peopled by redskins," said Wilson. "They are not made on Indian reservations at Niaraga, as tourists probably suppose, but in Glasgow, and exported to the number of about 2,000 pairs a month. They are made exactly as by the Indians on the reservations, but in lots of thousands."

STATE DEPARTMENT STARTS BATTLE ON TEXAS CANE SMUT

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Dangerous conditions resulting from smut on cane and kaffir in West Texas counties has caused officials of the state department of agriculture to begin plans for the inauguration of pest-free zones as the only effective method of curbing the menace. Smut was classified as a seed disease and cannot be controlled other than by seed sanitation measure, J. M. Delcurto, state entomologist, said.

The greatest danger from smut is the use of cane and kaffir for silage purposes, Delcurto said, the plants containing a high percentage of prussic acid if the normal growth is interrupted by an acute drought such as is now being experienced over the state. Warning was issued to farmers against the use of cane and kaffir for stock feeding unless they were certain it was free from smut.

The entomologist advised farmers to turn an animal of little value into the field and determine the effect of the plants before letting other cattle eat. He also advised giving the animals a small amount of grain before releasing them into the sorghum fields and warned against turning them out on an empty stomach.

No sure cure for prussic poisoning has yet been developed but Delcurto stated that large doses of glucose and milk had proven beneficial. Soda and vinegar also was advanced as an antidote for the poison.

Extreme care in threshing the crops was urged by Delcurto since threshing spreads the spores of the smut rapidly and causes infection of other fields.

CANADA GIVES GREETINGS TO CREW OF R-100

Open Air Reception Officially Welcomes Big Dirigible

OFFICERS DECIDE UPON REPAIRS IN DOMINION

Material for Damaged Fin On Hand and Work Is Proceeding

MONTREAL, Aug. 2. (UP)—Rain glistened on the broad sides of the dirigible R-100 at St. Hubert airdrome today as the official greeting of Canada was extended to the officers and crew of the ship that opened aerial connections with the motherland.

Members of the crew were guests at an out-door reception. Col. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defense, delivered the greeting in a speech expressing deep satisfaction of Canadians in welcoming the visitors. He praised the work of Com. R. S. Booth and others, including Major G. G. Scott, for their efforts in aviation development, which makes it possible to visualize Montreal as the terminus of a regular trans-ocean passenger service.

American flags were hung beside the Union Jack in the hangar where Ralston and others spoke.

The big ship that opened aerial communication between Canada and the motherland will not go outside the dominion for repairs to her damaged fin, it was definitely decided, as the dirigible's officers readjusted their Canadian schedule to meet the necessity for repairs at St. Hubert airdrome.

Work of repairing the fabric of the fin was completed tonight, but it had not been determined what work would be necessary on the frame-work inside.

Damage Slight

"Examination of the damaged fin shows no structural defect or failure," it was announced officially, "but merely a stripping of fabric over a fairly extensive area on the under sides of the horizontal fins. Materials for repair are on hand at St. Hubert and work is proceeding.

"It is not possible this evening to make any final statement as to the proposed flights in Canada, but it is probable that no extended flights will be undertaken. In any case, the flight over Ottawa, scheduled for Aug. 5, must be postponed."

The official reception to the fliers will start tomorrow at 3 p. m. The Montreal city council and various other officials will visit the ship Monday on which day the fliers will be luncheon guests at the Canadian club. Parliament members will visit the R-100 Sunday and a civic reception for the officers and crew was scheduled for Tuesday.

The conversations of the crew of the dirigible today added graphic parts to the story of the flight through the St. Lawrence valley storms.

"I thought my last minute had come at one time," one man who was at an important post said. "Suddenly it went dark. I had to just hang on in the darkness. I felt her slipping and then she started to climb. We went up faster than any elevator, 3,000 feet in less than a minute."

"Frightened?" he was asked.

"No, I didn't have time to be scared."

COMMISSION ASKS FOR HIGHER RATES ON TOLL BRIDGES

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Without the sanction of the Oklahoma commission, the Texas highway commission has decided to ask the war department for restoration of old and higher rates on toll bridges across the Red river which will be replaced by free bridges to be built jointly by the two states.

It was learned today that Gibb Gilchrist, chief highway engineer, was instructed by the highway commission to make the request, and that failure of the Oklahoma commission to accede to this plan was one of the things standing in the way of letting working contracts for the Gainesville-Marietta bridge. For more than a month this bridge has been in controversy.

The other toll bridge is at Terral, Okla. Old rates were not definitely known here but were believed to be $1.00 as compared to $.50 now charged.

The Texas highway commission believed that since both bridges would be valueless soon when free bridges were put in operation, the bridge companies should receive proper compensation for the short lives of the bridge. When the tolls were reduced by order of the war department, plans to build the free bridges had not been completed.

NEW HEARING MOONEY CASE

Governor and Board Hear John MacDonald

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 2. (AP)—Another hearing on Thomas J. Mooney's application for a pardon from his life sentence for bombing the preparedness parade in San Francisco in 1916 opened in the state senate chamber here today before Gov. C. C. Young and the advisory prison board.

John MacDonald, elderly Baltimore waiter, whose testimony after the bombing helped convict Mooney and Warren H. Billings, appeared to give his newest version of that event as he did earlier this week before the state supreme court in San Francisco.

MacDonald testified at that hearing he could not identify Mooney and Billings as the men he saw place a suitcase at Steuart and Market streets in San Francisco July 22, 1916 a few minutes before an explosion killed 10 persons and injured 40.

The waiter said he was coached and prompted in his identification of Mooney and Billings to police and the grand jury. Now, he said, he wants to tell the truth and clear the men because his conscience had been bothering him.

It had not been determined when the hearing opened this afternoon whether other witnesses would be called or whether the hearing on Mooney's other witnesses in Bolling's case next Monday.

CANON CITY, Colo., Aug. 2. (UP)—Three condemned killers today were removed temporarily from the shadow of the gallows through the devotion of a childhood sweetheart of one of them.

Warden Francis E. Crawford of the Colorado state penitentiary was served with a supreme court order staying the execution of John Walker, Claude Ray and Andrew Halliday while their appeal from the death sentence is being heard.

The three were to have been hanged during the week starting at midnight tonight for the murder of Coral Hickman, a deputy sheriff at Eads, Colo., as they fled from the scene of a bank robbery at Manter, Kan., last March.

Penniless and apparently without friends to aid them, the three had given up hope of carrying their case to the supreme court and were reconciled to the fate that awaited them.

Then an attractive young woman appeared at the penitentiary and obtained an interview with Halliday. He was brought from his cell in the death house to the bull pen in the corridor of the adjournment building.

Through the steel bars of the bull pen he faced the woman. She was a girl to whom he once was engaged in his old home in Missouri.

The girl wept when she saw him, and upbraided him for "getting into this awful mess." But her thoughts quickly took a practical turn, and she informed Halliday that an appeal for him and his confederates would be made to the supreme court.

She told him she had raised a fund among his old friends in Missouri to pay for the appeal. She engaged E. M. Eagleston, Canon City attorney, to make the appeal.

The name of the girl was withheld by prison officials, who said it would be unfair to bring her notoriety for her devotion.

Halliday, 22, youngest of the Manter trio, hinted to authorities at the time of his arrest that he had a sweetheart.

"I'm just a young fellow and I'd like to go on living," he said.

El Paso Scribe Starts Trouble Women Protest

EL PASO, Aug. 2. (AP)—The editor of The El Paso Herald, Henry Ansley, said he was "talking when I ought to have been listening" when he wrote yesterday in his column, "The World's Worst," about women and their talking abilities.

Ansley, writing as "Ebenezer Eberfeld Sapp," offered to bet no woman in El Paso could go 10 hours without saying a word.

Twenty-three women publicly announced they were out to win his money today, and 113 women ordered their papers stopped as a result of his remarks in the column.

Ansley also wrote he would wager $10 no four El Paso women could play bridge two hours without talking. There were 14 tables of bridge going today without the women trying to prove Ansley's pen name was apparently taken.

El Paso men joined the women in denouncing the editor's statements, and the proprietor of a ladies' ready to wear store ordered all advertising in the newspaper canceled.

WICHITA GROUP TO REPUBLICAN MEETS CHOSEN

Delegates and alternates to the state district conventions were elected Saturday at a harmonious and otherwise uneventful meeting of the county Republican executive committee, held at the county courthouse.

A proposal made prior to the convention that a movement be launched to "draft" Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls attorney, as the Republican candidate for governor should George Butte be shown to have been nominated and should he decline, received only informal consideration at Saturday's meeting.

Delegates to the convention agreed, according to O. R. Hartt, chairman, to first consult Mr. Bullington, who is out of the city and who has discouraged previous suggestions to become a candidate. If the movement to get him to become the party's candidate is launched, it was added, it probably will be at the state Republican executive committee meeting in Brownsville next week. Mr. Bullington is vice chairman of that organization.

Those named as delegates to the state Republican convention follow: T. L. Ball, William Dalton, F. L. Bingham, J. A. Patton, L. H. Gould, Ralph Maricle, Fred Boden, Roy B. Jones, O. R. Hartt and Mr. Bullington.

Alternates are: P. A. McIntosh, Miss Mineola Harding, Miss Helen Gould, W. H. Sanford, W. D. Jones, Dr. William Swarts, L. V. Hull, C. V. Lemen, R. A. Babson and A. A. Spencer.

The Wichita county delegation will have 10 votes in the state convention, being allowed one vote for each 300 cast for the Republican candidate for governor at the general election of 1928.

TO FURTHER CONSIDER QUOTA RESTRICTIONS ON AMERICAN AUTOS

PARIS, Aug. 2. (US)—Efforts by European industrialists to impose quota restrictions on imports of American automobiles will be resumed on Monday when representatives of manufacturers in France, Italy, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium and Austria assemble here to consider a program. Discussions undertaken this week have thus far had the customary negligible result. Many observers, indeed, continue to attach little significance to the movement because of the jealousies of the various manufacturers concerned. Previous attempt to reach an accord have proved unfruitful.

The idea behind the program is the same one that was adopted by European movie producers in an effort to meet American competition. This is to compel the United States to take a specified quota of cars from them in order to obtain authority to market a limited number of American motors here.

A tall man can, according to an English expert, stand more intoxicating drink than a short one.

New Hearing Device Being Demonstrated

Promising relief to persons with deafness and near noises, Virgil Willyard is at the Marchman hotel in Wichita Falls today for a three-day demonstration of a new hearing aid, which has recently been developed in the Bell Telephone laboratories for the Western Electric Co., the makers of telephones, talking pictures and other acoustics since 1880.

The small device shown by Mr. Willyard is highly efficient for general conversation, public speaking, talking pictures and music and is worn in the ear without headbands.

A free demonstration in your home will gladly be rendered without obligation today or tomorrow. Call Mr. Willyard for appointment. Telephone 2-1192 or leave name and address if out.—Adv.

Two of Finest American Warships Will Be Sent to Bottom of Ocean Result Provisions of Navy Treaty

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (US)—The Florida and Utah, two of America's finest battleships are to be sent to the bottom of the ocean by airplane bombs, it was learned at the navy department today.

Both are to be equipped with radio control appartus and sent to sea, while the pick of American air squadron pursues and attempts to send them down.

The navy department decided upon this course today. Under the terms of the London naval armaments treaty these two ships have been selected to be destroyed by target fire. It could be done by shell fire from the coast defense, by submarine, or the battle fleet. The navy department determined, however, that the two great ships would be sent down in a test of the country's most modern weapons —the airplane and the airplane carrier.

The Lexington and the Saratoga, both of which launch 100 airplanes, will go in search of the two battleships far at sea and at a place where they may be sent down without becoming an obstruction to navigation.

Stripped of all personnel, but fired and controlled by radio machinery, the two great ships will go steaming along at top speed. Air planes, scouting from the deck of the two aircraft carriers will "pick up" their location and then the bombers will take off and attempt to send the ships down.

It is to be a scientific test in every way. The planes will accept as a "tactical fact" that the two defenseless battleships have anti-aircraft guns and will launch their bombs from a height hitherto unknown in warfare.

The Florida and the Utah are sister ships. They were launched in 1910 and both saw service in the world war. They are equipped with ten 12-inch guns and carry an armour belt of 12 inches.

Providing for the Sound Development of West Texas.... the New Empire

Less than a year ago the Texas Electric Service Company was organized, with general offices in Fort Worth, to supply electric service to Fort Worth and a number of other cities and towns in West Texas. The creation of this company formed the largest electric power and light company in the western part of the State, a company fully capable of keeping pace with the remarkable growth of the area it serves.

Today, the Texas Electric Service Company serves 65 progressive cities and towns from its system of electric power transmission lines which forms a network throughout the western part of the State. Large generating stations, strategically located in this area, pour electric energy into this network of power wires and provide every city and town served from the system with the same high standard of electric service.

Not only is this electric service sufficient for the immediate demands, but due to the extreme flexibility of electric service from power lines, cities and towns are able to offer to new industries the advantage of ample electric power resources. The day when a growing West Texas city could be supplied with electricity solely by a local light plant has passed, for these cities are using increasingly greater amounts of electric energy, both for domestic and industrial purposes, faster than a small light plant could increase its facilities.

Tune In Texas Electric Service Company Radio Program Over WBAP Every Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Sixty-five progressive cities and towns in West Texas are served by the Texas Electric Service Company from its network of electric power lines which have supplanted the small local light plants, at one time the only source of electric power in this area. Power lines provide ample and dependable electric service for both present and future needs of this city and of other cities and towns served by the company. The Texas Electric Service Company pioneered in supplying power line electric service to this part of the State and today serves more customers than any power company in West Texas.

Approval was given the application of Jefferson county for the state to take over the maintenance of highway 87 from the Orange to the Galveston county line.

Demand for Milk and Ice Relief Heavy as Heat Wave Continues

As the heat wave, one of the worst in the city's history, continued unabated Saturday, charity officials of the city confronted a serious problem—that of relieving suffering in the heat and squalor of the poorer homes in the city without any funds with which to buy the milk and ice necessary for making life more comfortable for the unfortunates.

Although several contributions have come in during the past few days, the need for milk and ice exceeds the supply. Contributions not yet acknowledged are as follows:

SUNDAY COURT TO SET BAIL FOR DRY VIOLATORS IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—The United States attorney's office announced today that arrangements had been made for a Sunday federal court to admit liquor law violators to bail.

Federal court commissioners will sit Sunday forenoons, beginning tomorrow, for the arraignment of persons arrested Saturday night for liquor law violations. Those who can furnish bail will be released.

The need for such a court arose out of the recent refusal of city magistrates to grant bail in liquor cases at night or over week-ends.

No provision for a federal night court has been made and prisoners are obliged to remain in jail until a commissioner is available.

Last week 23 persons spent two days in jail awaiting arraignment.

RICH LAND OWNER HELD FOR MURDER PROHIBITION AGENT

MACON, Ga., Aug. 2. (INS)—A. L. Patterson, 58, wealthy land owner, today was arrested on a charge of murdering Herman Warr, 30, special prohibition agent, in a battle between rum runners and federal men on Patterson's plantation last night.

Fred Dismuke, deputy prohibition administrators, told the police that Patterson and a negro servant opened fire on the agents as they lay in wait for a load of liquor. Warr died after being rushed to a hospital here.

The agents shot and killed a negro lurking in the bushes, believing him to be an accomplice in the rum running. He later was thought to be innocent of complicity.

THREE PERSONS EAT FISH BITTEN BY MAD-DOG AT JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 2. (AP)—Three Jacksonville residents today were taking Pasteur treatment because they ate fish that had been bitten by a mad dog.

A man and his wife, who owned the dog, went fishing. As fast as they pulled in a fish the dog grabbed it. They thought he was just playful.

After they had cooked and eaten the fish, they noticed the dog doing strange things. They came to the conclusion he had hydrophobia.

Then they remembered the fish. The dog was observed, later killed and found to be afflicted with rabies.

The man and woman and another person who had eaten the fish asked the health department what to do. Pasteur treatment was prescribed.

The Italian government has granted to the match industry a complete monopoly over the manufacture, importation and sale of automatic lighters.

COMPLETION OF COOKE COUNTY WILDCAT FEATURES WEEK

Deals for Oil and Properties and Staking of Few Locations Made as Industry Experiences Quiet Week

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The completion of a 200-barrel well in wildcat territory in Cooke county, a few unimportant producers brought in from the productive pools of Young and Archer county, the staking out of a number of locations and a number of deals closed for oil and oil properties were the only happenings of interest in another quiet week in the district's most important industry.

Drilling, which has in the past few weeks shown a gradual decline, in the last days of the past week was cut to the minimum and very little work in this line was under way. Proration of the oil runs which goes into effect Saturday throughout the state and the lack of water were two of the factors responsible for the general curtailment.

Interest in oil circles of Cooke county revived to some extent during the week due to the completion of the Faith Oil corporation and Deep Rock company's No. 1 R. M. Lawson in the Harriett Nail survey 790, a wildcat in the southwest portion of the county. The well, which is 10 miles south of the town of Muenster, topped a sand at 1308 feet and set casing. Later the pay was drilled 23 feet and when placed on the swab produced 10 barrels per hour for the first 24-hour test. Completion of the well has created a demand for acreage and several tracts changed hands in the past day or two.

Young county activities failed to do anything outside the completion of a couple of wells in the Herron City area, and in the shallow pool north of Newcastle. This pool which has furnished the bulk of Young county shallow producers in the past three months, is now on account of inability to get pipe line facilities for the output, practically devoid of drilling with almost every 20 acres having a spudder shut down at various depths.

While several small sales of production and leases were reported in this pool, the most important closed during the week was the sale of Brazelton Brothers and Williams to the Julian Oil and Royalties company of their 40-acre tract out of the Larimore land in section 2246, T. E. & L. survey, for a cash consideration of $250,000. On the lease are eight wells and a daily production of approximately 3,000 from the "wondet" shallow pay at 690 feet.

Northwest of Graham three miles the States Oil corporation's No. 1 Mrs. McBee in section 451, T. E. L. survey, a wildcat, has set pipe at 3765 feet to test the sand showing about 2,000,000 feet of gas.

West of Bowie in Montague county four miles, the American Refining Properties and George King, putting down a 4000-foot test in section 2882, T. E. L. survey, are drilling at 3440 feet.

Operations in Wichita, Jack, Wilbarger and other counties in the district consisted of the finishing up of a number of wells in the proved areas, and the usual amount of oil field work being done.

Pipe line runs for the week averaged 94,690 barrels daily, a decrease of 800 barrels as compared with the previous week's runs which were 95,690 barrels. The loss is attributed to proration and the shutting in of many producers throughout the various pools.

TEST PROMISES EXTENSION OF ANDREWS FIELD

Deep Rock et al. Well Swabs 80 Barrels in 24 Hours

NEW PEAKS SET BY DEEPEST PRODUCERS

Proration Orders Result in Fewest New Locations In Years

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 2.—Small production was indicated 1¼ miles east of Andrews county's discovery well, the Penn pool in southeastern Ector county was extended slightly northwest and additional peaks were established by two of the world's deepest producers, in Reagan county, to furnish high lights in oil development in the West Texas Permian basin this week. Failures were not as numerous as during the preceding two weeks.

In line with further curtailment reflecting depressed conditions due to an excess of oil, including imports, the Penn pool in Ector county was scheduled to be placed under proration Friday. Yates' allowable was reduced from 110,000 to 100,000 barrels the same day and work began on four locations staked last week, the smallest number in years. Fifty-one wells on 32 40-acre tracts in the Penn pool registered potential of 20,997 barrels on which daily allowable of 10,275 barrels was worked out for the first 15 days, this being the total of pipe line nominations.

Deep Rock Oil company and others' No. 1 Mathis, 1¾ miles east of the same company's No. 1 Ogden, Andrews county discovery producer, plugged back from 5,088 feet, was shot with 520 quarts from 4,238 to 4,469 feet and swabbed 80 barrels of oil in 24 hours. It was shot again with 160 quarts from 4168 to 4232 feet, cleaned itself and filled up 300 feet with fluid in three hours. A bailer of water was obtained, after which the bailer was lost. Six miles south of No. 1 Ogden, Fuhrman Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Ford recovered a bit at 4011 feet only after pulling the 6⅝-inch casing, re-ran the pipe and cemented it at 3964 feet. Drilling was scheduled to be resumed Friday noon.

Penn and others' No. 1 Wilson, 10½ miles northwest of Andrews production, had no shows in drilling to 4,600 feet in grey lime, reportedly topped at 4370 feet, 1028 feet below sea level. Humble and others' No. 1 Carswell in Gaines county had only an odor of oil at 4625 feet and a rainbow showing at 4710 feet, at which depth it reportedly was 330 feet in grey lime topped at 4380 feet, 1067 feet below sea level.

Well Extends Field

Topping pay at 3498 feet, getting increases at 3530 and 3560 feet and drilling to 3610, Texas-Cosden's No. 8 Connell in Ector county swabbed 145 barrels of oil in 24 hours. It then was shot with 300 quarts from 3480 to 3596 feet and was testing. The well is in the southwest corner of section 2, block 16, one-half mile north of Texas Cosden No. 7 Connell, which extended the field one mile west. It ran slightly lower structurally than No. 7.

Big Lake Oil company's No. 3-C university, apparently Reagan county's latest producer in the making at a world's record depth of 8816 feet, made 56 barrels of high gravity oil in 11 hours after blowing out Monday evening following washing down of the hole. It then was cleaned out to the bottom and mud was being circulated to clear up cavings. Continuing to set new production peaks almost daily, Big Lake's No. 1-C University gauged 1,018 barrels of oil during 24 hours ending Wednesday morning while No. 2-C University was flowing 2093 barrels.

Drilling to the Ordovician, from which the Reagan county deep wells produce, was precluded in Phillips-Interstate's No. 1 J. A. Whitten, Schleicher county wildcat, by the striking of salt water at 6880 feet in lime that rose 100 feet an hour. The hole was too small, 5 3-16-inch, to permit running of pipe to shut off the water and, plugging back, began to shoot showings at 6300-36 and 4912-25 feet that promised production. Schleicher county gained one of only four locations staked in the basin last week, Westyde-Moody's No. 1 Meador, three miles northeast of Eldorado and 1320 feet from the south and east lines of section 66, block LL, T. C. Ry. Co. survey.

Failure seemed imminent in what probably will be the last test drilled in an effort to rediscover the oil that gushed for awhile last summer from Rowan & Tong's No. 1 McDonald in Pecos county, 6½ miles northwest of the Taylor-Link field. Independent and Rowan & Tong's No. 4 McDonald, less than a quarter mile north and slightly east of No. 1 McDonald, had only a showing of oil at 1660-64 feet and a small amount of gas in drilling to 1675 and was shot without results with 60 quarts from 1659-68 feet. Cleaning out was under way to deepen. No. 1 McDonald produced from 1605 feet, then failed, as did a score of other tests later within a radius of five miles, where an estimated two million to three million dollars was spent for leases.

Colt-Brown No. 1 Neville, about two miles northeast of the Rowan Tong well, was to plug and abandon after striking sulphur water at 1,764 feet that rose 600 feet while drilling progressed to 1,774. Thomas & Brann, San Angelo contractors, moved in a machine to deepen M. M. Rowan's No. 1 University in Pecos county for Carl Cromwell and associates. The wildcat made around five barrels of oil daily with some water after plugging back from 2,045 to 1,850 feet. Carl Cromwell and others' No. 2 Eckardt, northwestern Menard county wildcat, drilled ahead from 2,997 feet after getting salt water from 2,975-77. It struck an estimated two million to three million cubic feet of gas and a small amount of oil at 2,945 feet in sand. New tests spudded during the week included Williams & Williams' No. 1 W. M. Noelke in Irion county three and one-half miles southeast of production and in section 8, city of San Antonio survey.

Mann & Wohlford's No. 1 Noel Reed in Sterling county encountered a hole full of sulphur water at 1,910 feet, in the lime, spelling its failure, although drilling continued toward 2,200 feet, the contract depth. Vernon Oil & Gas company, Lipan Oil company and others' No. 1 Coke county, started plugging at 3,535 feet. It filled with salt water at 3,520 and 5 3-16-inch pipe was pulled in two when an attempt was made to raise it to underream and shut off the water for deepening. Another wildcat that began plugging was Transcontinental's No. 1 University, in section 18, block 18, Pecos county, at 4,922 feet. It had spent most of the year fishing, having made only 10 feet of hole since Jan. 1.

The National Oil company of San Antonio prepared to complete D. W. Wiley and associates' No. 1 Eddie Mair in Tom Green county, eight miles west of San Angelo. It had several shallow showings in drilling to 631 feet early this year. A. A. Belding and associates' No. 1 Mark Nasworthy, near the Santa Fe stock pens and only three miles southeast of the San Angelo business center, shut down for water after spudding 60 feet. Tom Green county's deepest test, Phillips' No. 1 A. Gulden, near Christoval, was fishing for two strings of tools at 3,275 fet. Mintex Oil company's No. 1 Campbell, 26 miles southeast of San Angelo, was running 12½-inch pipe at 475 feet. It will be drilled to 4,000 feet unless production is obtained shallower.

Sun Oil company's No. 1 First State bank in Grane county near the Upton county line had a slight showing of oil in the top of the brown lime at 2,856 feet and ran 6⅝-inch casing at 2,856 feet. The lime was topped 62 feet below sea level, somewhat lower than in Gulf-Crier-McElroy and Keck McClintic producers three miles to the north and in Duffy Cowden wells about three miles to the west. The Sun test topped the salt at 1,170 feet. It is in the center of section 6, J. H. Gibson survey.

Humble's No. 1 Arrington in Glasscock county, two locations west of Amerada No. 2 Coffee, a producer, topped the lime at 2,087 feet, 489 feet above sea level.

TENNESSEE VOTES NEXT THURSDAY ON TRIO OF CONTESTS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 2. (AP)—Tennessee's biennial Democratic primary campaign is nearing a close with indications pointing to a heavy vote Thursday in the three statewide contests.

Nominees will be selected for governor and United States senator for both the long and short terms. Representatives in congress also will be nominated, but there is only one Democratic contest.

The senatorial race for the new six-year term nomination is between Representative Cordell Hull, veteran of 11 terms in congress, and Andrew L. Todd, Murfreesboro, four times a member of the legislature.

Hull is a former chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Senator William E. Brock, Chattanooga, appointed last fall by Gov. Henry H. Horton to fill the unexpired term of the late Lawrence B. Tyson, is seeking to return only for the period from the November election, when his appointment expires, to March 4, when the new term begins.

He is opposed by Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville.

Governor Horton and L. E. Gwinn, Memphis attorney, are the only contestants in the governorship race.

The Republicans also will have their primary Thursday, but the only state-wide contest is between C. Arthur Bruce, Memphis lumberman, and Harry T. Burn, Sweetwater attorney, for the nomination for governor.

minutes, and it belongs to the Graf Zeppelin which made the mark last year. Mears and Brown hope to cut it to 15 days.

The trim craft circled over this city twice before it came gracefully to a perfect landing.

The two men posed for about 20 minutes for newspaper and other photographers and then turned their attention to the all important business of tuning up the plane for its greatest test tomorrow. A local aviation mechanic took the ship in hand and began a detailed check for possible flaws.

Mears set a world's record in 1913 by girdling the globe in 35 days, 21 hours and 36 minutes. Again, in 1928, he made a new mark of 23 days, 15 hours, 21 minutes and three seconds. On that trip he was accompanied by C. B. D. Collyer. The men used an airplane to cross Europe and Asia but used steamers on the ocean.

The next year the Graf Zeppelin still further lowered the mark.

Mid-Continent Oil Activities

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 2. (AP)—The movement for slowing down the drill held the number of new locations in Oklahoma, Kansas, West Texas and the Texas Panhandle to 67 in the last fiscal week.

Oklahoma had 30 new starts, with Muskogee and Oklahoma counties heading the list with six each. Creek, Hughes and Pontotoc counties had three each. Kansas had 17 first reports, with Stevens and Sedgwick counties leading with five each. Seven new locations were reported for West Texas fields and 13 for the Panhandle area.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (UP)—The Cromwell-Franklin Oil company's suit to prevent the city from interfering with drilling on a 104-acre tract 500 feet from the state capitol opened before Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today. The tract is known as the Harn tract and was leased by Wirt Franklin for oil development.

Evidence on both sides was to be presented, with arguments scheduled for Monday.

City Attorney M. W. McKenzie based his opposition to the suit on the city's zoning powers and police authority. He contended oil development would menace more than $100,000,000 worth of property in an exclusive residential district and endanger lives because of the possibility of wild wells.

Photographs of the oil field, of burning gas wells superimposed on the lanes of fine residence, were introduced as evidence.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (UP)—Bringing in of the No. 1 M.-K.-T. well in SE SE SW 35-12n-3w by Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company is expected to result in more petitions by east side property owners for drilling permits.

The well extended the field's productive area north. It flowed 640 barrels of oil the first three hours.

Closely allied with the expected rush for these drilling permits which would reopen the city drilling controversy, is the court suit over the Harn tract, near the state capitol.

The No. 1 Dills wildcat well of Prairie Oil and Gas company and T. B. Slick, north of Britton, drilled into the Wilcox sand at 6802 feet today and salt water was reported to be coming in. Officials have not decided whether to drill the well deeper or abandon it.

OKLAHOMA RACES HARKEN BACK TO STATEHOOD DAYS

Pioneer Political Figures Pitted Against Two Millionaires

GORE SAYS GOAL IS TO BEAT REPUBLICANISM

Rumors of Murray Slate in Run-Off Arouses Interest of Candidates

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (UP)—Oklahoma tonight prepared for a political campaign which echoed statehood battles of more than 20 years ago when the commonwealth was born into a period of beaver hats, buckboards and barnstormers.

The state faces a final Democratic primary, with the offices of governor and senator at stake, in which two pioneer political figures are pitted against millionaires in a "run-off" race.

Thomas Pryor Gore, blind since childhood, a former senator during war times and an orator of the old school, seeks the Democratic senatorial nomination against Charles J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil millionaire and business candidate.

William Henry Murray, otherwise known as "Alfalfa Bill," author of the state constitution, former congressman and rural champion, is opposed by Frank Butram, Oklahoma City oil millionaire.

The four emerged from a field of candidates in the initial primary last Tuesday to make the final primary race Aug. 12.

Forces Realigned

This division of rural and metropolitan candidates caused a realignment of forces, jockeying from the ranks of eliminated candidates to enter the newly fired campaign for or against pioneer or millionaire.

"I shall run for the senate to see if in these days of Smiths, Vares and McCormicks, a man can get the senate nomination without spending more than the $3,000 legal limit," Gore announced.

"When I ran for the senate in 1907 I spent $120. This year I cashed my wife's insurance policy to get enough money to start the campaign. I have spent much less than $3,000 because I slept in 'six bit' hotels and ate cheese and crackers," he said.

"For my recent victory, I am indebted to friends, not money."

Burleson Telegram

He showed The United Press a telegram from former Postmaster General Albert Burleson congratulating him on his victory. "I know now the spirit of the mighty dead look down with approval on the results," Burleson wired from Austin, Texas.

The reference, meaning the late President Woodrow Wilson, recalled to Gore the campaign he waged with Burleson, Mitchell Palmer and the late W. F. McCombs for Wilson's first nomination.

Gore said his goal was to beat Republicanism "by which Mr. Hoover has ruined the farmer by manipulating markets." Should he win over Wrightsman, Gore will face Senator W. B. Pine in the fall election.

The blind senator issued a new campaign poster today. It recalled his former campaigns when his slogan was "Vote for the Little Brown Eyed Woman." The little brown eyed woman was Tot Gore, his wife, who read to the blind senator and attended him constantly. The new poster is a picture of his wife with the caption: "The Eyes Have It."

Murray Sets Pace

Murray, with his old time makeup as a shirt sleeve candidate, combining galluses, flowing mustache, and a frayed straw hat with the gift of oratorical eloquence, stood out as the fighting pace setter.

Tonight, Murray, who once called out a mythical "squirrel rifle" army to enforce mandates of the constitutional convention and gained statehood, was believed preparing another innovation.

He was reported ready to announce his "complete slate" of state candidates whom he claims will be able to ride on his rural bandwagon to the statehouse. This, if and when done, might entrench "Alfalfa Bill" against attacks as did his squirrel rifle brigade in constitutional days.

Murray's squirrel riflers consisted of an army on paper, everyone an officer, who never actually engaged in combat, but who provided himpolitical support in wild "carpetbag" days of statehood.

Queen Mary Likes Her After-Dinner Cigaret Y.W.C.A. Head Hears

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 2. (UP)—The social morality department of the Rockford W. C. T. U. "doesn't believe all it hears," but wants to know for sure whether her royal highness, Queen Mary of England, really smokes an occasional cigaret.

"In a spirit of clean sportsmanship," Mrs. Myrtle Wolfram, crusading president of the Rockford chapter, has cabled the queen.

"Have challenged statement that you smoke cigarets. Please answer."

So far tonight the queen had not replied.

"Before we take any stand," Mrs. Wolfram told the United Press, "the social morality department goes right to headquarters to ascertain the actual facts."

Press to Answer

LONDON, Aug. 2. (UP)—The Sunday Express will publish on its front page tomorrow an answer to doubts of "the social morality department of the Rockford (Ill.) W. C. T. U.," concerning reports that Queen Mary occasionally smokes an after-dinner cigaret.

In reply to the cabled message of the Rockford W. C. T. U. challenging the reports, the Sunday Express headline will say:

"Yes! The queen does smoke!!!!!"

"The answer to the social morality department of the Rockford W. C. T. U. of Rockford, Ill., U. S. A., is:

" 'Yes, the queen does enjoy an occasional cigaret'," the Express will say. The story then enumerates other members of royalty who smoke, including the Duchess of York, "who is known to smoke privately." It also will say that "when Princess Mary was married presents from her friends included a number of cigaret cases."

The Rockford organization had cabled Queen Mary personally to ask her about the reports that she smoked, stating that the members were "stunned" by the news.

THANKS EXPRESSED BY FRED SMITH TO VOTERS

A statement thanking voters of the precinct for placing him in the run-off for the Nomination as constable of precinct No. 1 was issued here, Saturday by Fred K. Smith, former sheriff.

"The race was one of the cleanest I have ever observed, and I intend to keep it on that plane," he asserted. "I am gratified that the voters saw fit to make me high man in the contest."

Ayr's Help to Aire Ends

The "adoption" by Ayr, Scotland, of the little town of Aire in the Ardennes came to an end recently; along with the release of 40 French towns and villages which were "mothered" by British communities. Aire was badly battered during the world war, and the Scotch town helped it get back on its feet, presenting a peal of bells to the new church and adding other gifts. Pleasant relations between the two communities grew into a warm friendship when it was found that "Aire" is one of the old forms of the spelling of "Ayr."

BORROWS LOCOMOTIVE FINED $50 BY JUDGE

ATLANTA, Aug. 2. (AP)—J. E. Scott borrowed a $50,000 Southern railroad locomotive last July 4 to go to Birmingham.

He was fined $50 today for simple larceny on a plea of guilty to stealing the engine.

Testimony was that Mr. Scott approached the engine early on the morning of the fourth. Both were all steamed up.

Mr. Scott climbed aboard and the engine headed west. He knew nothing about driving a locomotive, but he wanted to go places.

The engine was stopped by a safety device after it got on the main line. Railroad employes said Mr. Scott told them he had started to Birmingham. He admitted today he was drinking at the time.

GUINN WILLIAMS ISSUES STATEMENT THANKING VOTERS

DECATUR, Texas, Aug. 2.—Congressman Guinn Williams, who led the ticket in the race for the Democratic nomination for congress from the 13th district in a statement issued Saturday thanked the voters for their support and outlined his campaign plans for the run-off primary.

The text of Mr. Williams' statement, addressed to the voters of the district, follows:

"This is to express to you my sincere thanks for your support and assistance in the last primary election. I am deeply grateful to you for your vote of confidence.

"Being unable to make a lengthy or thbrough campaign on account of my duties in Washington, nevertheless I led the field of four candidates by approximately 4,000 votes.

"I am deeply grateful for the overwhelming vote of confidence given me in the county where I have resided for more than 50 years, in Wise county, where I received a clear majority of approximately two to one over all of my three opponents, and in my home city where I received a vote of four and one-half to one over my present opponent. I am also deeply grateful for the splendid support I received in the other counties in the district. This splendid support makes me feel that my services as your representative in congress for the past few years have been received and appreciated by my friends and constituents.

"I have not made and will not make, unless forced upon me, a campaign of personalities.

"I have stood and shall continue to stand upon my record as a Democrat in congress. My past service and experience, I am sure, better fit me to contigue as your representative. I have kept in close touch with the needs of my congressional district during my service in congress. My record in congress is before you and I am willing to stand upon it.

"This is a Democratic primary. I have been a life-long Democrat, and I pledge to you my sincere support in carrying out the Democratic principles in our government, should I be elected your representative in congress.

"I again thank you most sincerely for your support in the July primary, and trust that you will see fit to support me in the run-off, Aug. 23. I am asking you to speak to your friends in my behalf, as it will be impossible for me to see all of you between now and Aug. 23."

START AN INVESTIGATION OF ATTEMPTED LYNCHING

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 2. (AP)—Sheriff Ford Moore started an investigation of the reported attempted lynching early today of "Chicago Joe" Janik, 38, by a party of alleged moonshiners in the hills of Belmont county.

Janik and his friends reported the attempted lynching to the sheriff after Janik's friends had rescued him from a noose which had been thrown across the limb of a large tree.

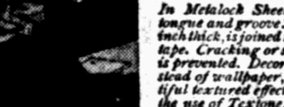

The execution of Janik by hanging was ordered by a "court" of moonshiners who accused him of stealing a still from a member of the party, Janik said. The man posing as the "sheriff" immediately started to carry out the sentence, but was halted by arrival of Janik's friends, he said.

Strange Political Twist to Primary In Nueces County

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—A peculiar twist in Nueces county politics developed today when it was revealed that two defeated candidates in the Democratic primary had received nominations in the Republican primary.

Dewey Tom, defeated for sheriff in the Democratic primary, received the Republican nomination as did Bert Thompson, defeated for tax assessor by the Democrats. Roy Clift, Democratic nominee for county clerk, W. P. Lester, Democratic nominee for county commissioner, and J. E. Hightower, candidate for justice of the peace at Robstown, were nominated by both parties.

The Republican county executive committee decided to count the votes in precinct three, where negroes held their own election when refused election supplies by party managers.

NO SYMPATHY APPEAL SAYS SENATOR NORRIS

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 2. (UP)—Faced with accusations that he attempted to appeal to the sympathies of voters to secure a place for himself on the Republican senatorial ballot, Senator George W. Norris tonight prepared for a week's intensive campaigning before the Nebraska primaries, Aug. 12.

But there will be no appeal to sympathy, the veteran senator declared. Rather, there will be an appeal to the voters to support him on the merits of his record, not as a partisan, but as a champion of the best interests of the people. And there will be a challenge to those who have charged him with being a "poor Republican," he said.

The charge that he had sought to create sympathy for his campaign came as the result of the filing of a nebraska grocery clerk, bearing a name identical with his own, as a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination.

COUNTY ATTORNEY OF SEMINOLE COUNTY ASKS FOR RECOUNT

WEWOKA, Okla., Aug. 2. (UP)—Tom Greer, Seminole county attorney, asked the county election board today for a recount of ballots cast in Tuesday's primary election when he was defeated for the Democraitc nomination for county attorney.

The action followed a similar petition filed by George Crump, who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for the ninth judicial district judgeship.

Greer was defeated by O. H. Presson, assistant county attorney, by 170 votes. These two were the only ones in the race.

Greer is a member of the same Wewoka law firm as Judge A. S. Wells, who lost the Democratic nomination for attorney general to J. Berry King.

Hearing on the petition for a recount will be held Monday after Crump's petition is heard.

THIS MODERN CONSTRUCTION INSURES LASTING BEAUTY

A MESSAGE TO THE PUBLIC FROM THE UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY

"IT'S so discouraging," said a Dallas lady, "to see what happens to walls and ceilings of almost new houses."

It's discouraging—that's true. But over 3,000 Texas home-owners and builders have found a way to end forever this bugaboo of ugly, cracked, disfigured walls.

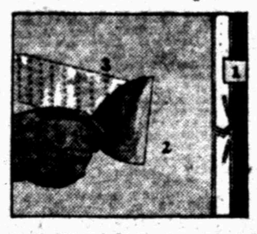

These folks have used the patented, scientific form of interior walls and ceilings called Metalock Sheetrock Construction.

Metalock Sheetrock Construction provide three important advantages:

1. Permanently smooth walls and ceilings—as smooth years after your house is built as the day you move in. Our patented construction makes failures impossible.

2. You can decorate these smooth, solid walls and ceilings any way you choose. Use paint instead of paper. Or see what beautiful textured effects can be secured by the use of Textone, the plastic paint. Use wallpaper, of course, if you prefer.

3. Metalock Sheetrock Construction is vermin-proof and fire-proof. Wind and sand cannot penetrate.

1 In Metalock Sheetrock construction, super-strength, one-half inch Sheetrock with tongue and groove edges is used. When installed tongue and groove meet to form a smooth, strong joint.

2 Secured by a specially prepared cement, a metal fabric permanently reinforces the joint. The cement is the color of Sheetrock and entirely conceals joint and ribbon so that they cannot be detected when decorated.

3 This shows the manner in which a metal fabric is used in the patented Metalock Sheetrock construction to armor all joints against cracking.

This modern, new-type interior wall is just as easily installed in old houses as in new. Ask your builder or your lumber dealer to give you full information. Or write us direct for descriptive literature.

We also suggest that you see what beautiful textured effects are possible with Textone, the plastic paint. The ideal finish for Metalock Sheetrock walls and ceilings.

Ask, too, about Sheetrock Tile Board. It gives handsome and durable tile effects to bathrooms, kitchens, restaurants, stores. Can be decorated in any one of many ways.

PANTHERS' VICTORY SHOVES SPUDDERS INTO THIRD PLACE

Including games of Aug. 2.

In view of the Spudders' ill success in night games thus far, the number of nocturnal skirmishes remaining on the schedule looms as no unimportant item in considering the club's chances of winning the second half scuffle. The Spudders have 39 games left to play and nine of that number, barring postponements, etc., are scheduled for after dark. The next road trip opens at Shreveport, with two games, both of which will be played at night, unless the teams stage a double-header on Aug. 18 to make the South Texas jump easier. Then there are three nocturnal skirmishes at San Antonio and two each at Waco and Houston. Three games are scheduled both at Waco and Houston, but one is a Sunday game at each stop.

The home and road schedule also favors the Spudders, but they must do their damage, if any, on the coming home stand, for when that ends the two South Texas contenders, Waco and Houston, will have a real advantage in the schedule. The Spudders have 17 remaining road games, approximately half of which are night affairs, and 22 home struggles. After the coming home stand ends, they will have 17 successive road games and six at home to wind up the race. Houston gets a real break in the program, in that each and every one of the Buffs' last 17 games are scheduled for the home lot. Possibly such a declaration places the conductor of this column in the class of the die-hards, but we still believe Houston is the one club the Spudders must beat out to win the second half championship.

Baseball's powers that be have a tough decision awaiting them in the deal between Fort Worth and Waco involving Pitcher Hank Thormahlen. It is hardly likely that both parties can be satisfied with any decision that is made, and it is Commissioner K. M. Landis who probably will hand down the final verdict. The Panthers bought the pitcher from the Cubs for $5,000 cash and $5,000 payable on Aug. 1. The date for final payment came around and Ted Robinson, president of the Fort Worth club, did no more than inform the Waco club that it could go jump in the lake for the remaining $5,000. Just a few days before the transfer was made, Waco played Houston two games at Brenham and during that series Thormahlen was beaned by a policeman's black-jack, the result of the pitcher's efforts to act as peacemaker in a brawl involving other players. At least that is the way the story is told in Fort Worth.

The fine point in the case is whether the Brenham incident really has affected Thormahlen's physical condition. It is a rule of baseball that a player must be in sound physical condition when a deal is made or the purchasing club can cancel the entire transaction. It is possible that Landis, if he is called into the case after the national board of arbitration has made its decision, not only may rule that Fort Worth does not have to pay the $5,000 due, but that the Cubs will have to take back Thormahlen and return the $5,000 that has been paid on the player. A ruling favoring Waco merely would force the Panthers to pay the additional $5,000 and retain the pitcher.

Wichita Falls' amateur baseball has seen troublesome times the last few years. Organization of the sandlotters has been difficult and maintaining harmonious races has been even more of an uncertainty, particularly in the faster leagues. A goodly portion of this grief may be traced indirectly to this city's affiliation with the Texas Amateur Athletic federation, which conducts a state championship elimination each year. Too many of the clubs start out with the sole thought of getting into the post-season inter-city competition. Everything but victory is lost sight of, too often to the embarrassment of business establishments sponsoring teams, league officials and all those interested in the well being of the sandlot game.

Amateur activities here have been in the hands of the recreation division of the city park department and much has been accomplished during the few years this system has been in effect. Charlie Bunnenberg, head of the department, and his helpers, along with Bill Ward, whose only interest in all its forms, have made rapid strides during the past year in building up sandlot baseball and bringing its benefits to a wide range of barefoot kids and adults. They can do even more by eliminating inter-city competition from the sandlot calendar of the future. Unless there is some unforeseen development, Wichita Falls' amateur champions this year will play Dallas in the first round of the state competition. But, if Wichita Falls does win the state championship, what will have been accomplished?

The Texas Amateur Athletic federation has been functioning for about six years now, sponsoring amateur competition in many different sports. Little interest was shown in its baseball championship at the start but it was believed it would grow into a really big thing. After a half-dozen years never more than five or six teams are represented in the elimination series, and these always are from the larger cities. In other sports the T. A. A. F. may have accomplished much, but we don't think it has done a great deal for amateur baseball, and we are quite sure it has not helped the game in Wichita Falls, and that this city could get along without it very nicely for the rest of its natural life. The federation's championship can't mean much when only the larger cities are competing. In all likelihood, many small town teams—and purely amateur—could whip the sox off the federation champs if they had the chance.

McCabe's Tossing Stops First Half Champs by 5 to 3

Cats Hop on Florrid for Four Runs in Big Fourth Inning

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2.—Fort Worth moved into second place, a half-game from the top, in the boiling Texas league pannant race Saturday afternoon, defeating Wichita Falls, 5 to 3. Dick McCabe pitched steadily all the way, limiting the first half champions to eight hits as his mates battered Dick Florrid and Lester White for 15 blows.

Florrid, slender right-handed rookie who has been doing the Spudders' best pitching recently, started in the box but he was knocked out in the fourth when six hits blew in four of the Fort Worth runs. White finished, allowing only one run.

Wichita Falls played without the services of its "spark plug," Jimmy Levey, shortstop, who was out on account of a wrenched right knee. He hurt it first at Waco several days ago, but was forced out of the game when he slipped while trying to beat out a hit at Houston Friday night. He watched Saturday's game from the grandstand, but he hopes to be able to be back in the lineup Sunday. Physicians who have examined the knee declare it isn't seriously hurt.

Cats Start It

It was one-two-three for the Spudders in the first inning. Mallon doubled for the Panthers, but died on second base. Wichita Falls suffered the same fate in the second inning and again the Panthers got a man to second. Tavener singled to center and went to second on Fitzgerald's error after two were down, but Kloza made a nice catch on Meyer's drive to left to save a run.

Bradbury, first up, walked to start the third. Euller flied out but Florrid singled to center, sending Bradbury to third. Geygan struck out and Storti sent up a fly to retire the side.

McCabe started the Cats' half of the inning with a single. Moore lined to Kloza. Mallon grounded to Storti who raced across second to force McCabe and doubled Mallon at first.

Fort Worth chased Florrid from the mound with a four-run attack in the fourth inning. Bonowitz opened with a single to center and moved to second on Brown's single to right. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Fowler's single to center. Cox fouled out and Tavener forced Fowler at second. Meyers resumed the attack with a single to right, sending Tavener to third. McCabe singled to left, scoring Tavener. Moore singled to the same section, sending Meyers across the plate. White replaced Florrid and retired Mallon, ninth man to come to bat in the inning.

Spudders' Only Splurge

The Spudders came back with three runs in the fifth inning. Bradbury went out, but Euller beat out a hit to short and White walked to start things. Geygan singled to right, scoring Euller and sending White to third. Storti singled to center, scoring White and placing Geygan on third, from where he scored on Fitzgerald's long sacrifice fly to Cox in right.

Storti singled after two were down for the Spudders in the seventh inning. The Cats added one in their half of the inning. Bonowitz singled to left after two were down. He moved to third on Brown's single to left and scored when Fitzgerald fumbled the ball. Brown was caught in a chase between first and second. That was all the scoring.

The two clubs conclude their series with another game Sunday.

FAR WEST DOMINATES SEABRIGHT TOURNEY

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 2. (AP)—The 37th annual Seabright invitation tennis tournament came to a close Saturday with the East salvaging one title from the invading forces of the far West.

Richard N. Williams of Philadelphia, former national singles champion, and J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., gained the only outright eastern victory by winning the men's doubles final from Sydney B. Wood, former Pasadena youth, and Frank Shields of New York, in five bitterly contested sets, 2-6, 4-6, 6-1, 9-7, 6-2.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of San Francisco won the women's singles crown, defeating Dorothy Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Calif., 6-4, 6-4, and Edith Cross, San Francisco, teamed with Hall to defeat Mrs. Harper and Phil Neer, Portland, Ore., in the mixed doubles, 6-4, 6-3. The West captured both of the titles decided yesterday, Wood winning the men's singles and Miss Cross and Mrs. Harper the women's doubles.

Had to Wait

Following his loss of the lightweight championship, $5,000 of Sammy Mandell's $45,000 purse was tied up in litigation.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 2. BILL MILLER IS NEW SCULLING CHAMPION

BOSTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Young Bill Miller of the Philadelphia Bachelor's Barge club had to overcome tremendous obstacles here Saturday to become the national single sculling champion.

Miller had to reverse an official ruling to get into the championship race, the featured individual competition of the 58th national rowing regatta and, once in, had to out-scull three strong-armed competitors.

To qualify for the championship race, an oarsman must first win the association single sculls event and this is what Miller accomplished Friday without half trying. He finished, however, many feet off the course and was disqualified, along with Jeremiah Shea of Boston, who was declared guilty of the same offense. With both ruled out, the association victory was awarded to Leo B. Menne of the Nassau Boat club, New York, who actually finished third.

Miller protested vigorously to the regatta's executive committee and that body gave him permission to start in the championship event, along with Menne, W. E. Garrett Gilmore, Miller's clubmate, and Russell S. Codman Jr., of the Union Boat club, Boston, the latter two being winners of previous association sculls.

OLYMPIC CLUB PLANS TO DEFEND ITS TITLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2. (AP)—The San Francisco Olympic club, winner of the 1929 national A. A. U. track and field championships, will defend its title at Pittsburgh, Pa., this month with a team of 17 men.

Coach Charley Hunter, announcing his team selections Saturday, said Harlow Rothbert, former Stanford weight star, would compete in the decathlon in addition to the shotput and discus.

Pratt's Team Goes Sun Blind and Kicks Seven To Help Shippers

BEAUMONT, Aug. 2. (AP)—Del Pratt's league leading Waco Cubs went sun blind Saturday afternoon, making seven costly bobbles behind the sloppy pitching of three tossers as Beaumont romped away with a 12 to 3 decision. The night owls of Pratt went haywire at their batting as well, getting but four hits off three Exporter tossers during the game. Two games are scheduled Sunday with an off day Monday. Score:

LEMONS GOOD BUT ONCE IN LEMONADE OR GRID

OMAHA, Neb. Aug. 2.—Malcom Baldridge, former Yale athlete, submits this as one of the prize "comebacks:"

In 1915, Tom Shevlin developed at Yale a team that downed Princeton only to bow to Harvard the following Saturday.

"How is it possible, Mr. Shevlin," a Boston sports writer remarked, "that you can develop a football team that looks so good one Saturday and so terrible the next Saturday?"

"Very easy," came back Shevlin, "you can't make two lemonades out of one lemon."

Reeves, veteran Katy horseshoe tosser, continued to be the pace setter that he was in the first half by coming to the front in last week's play to take possession of first place in league A of the Wichita Falls' Horseshoe Pitchers' association.

Redding, Fire department hurler, was only a few paces behind Reeves and will make the Katy tosser keep a dizzy pace to hold first place.

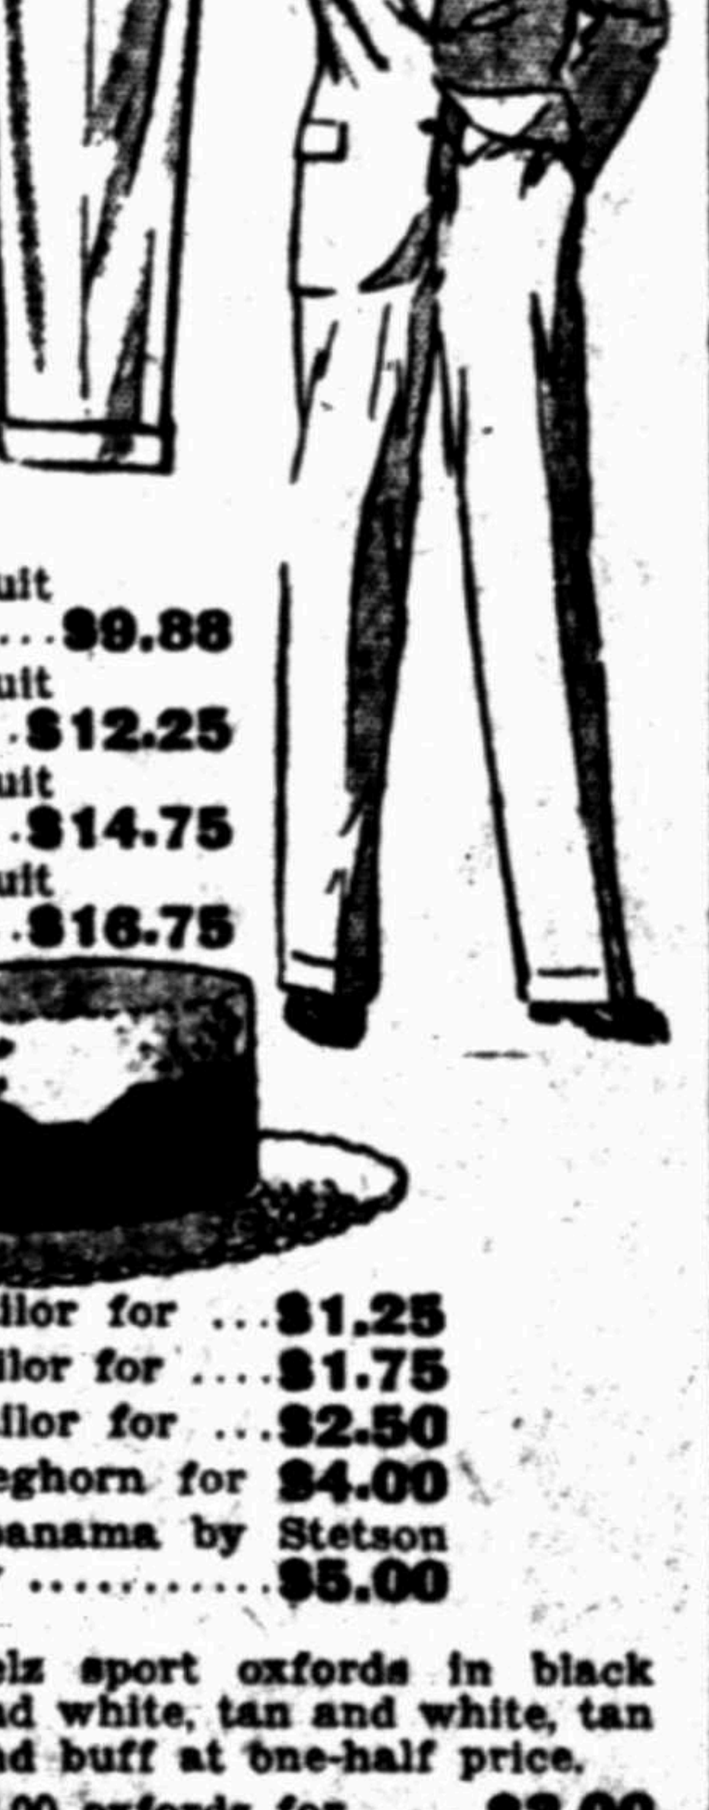

The fellow one has to watch, though, is Grimes, another member of the Fire department team whose pitching has been nothing short of sensational in the past three weeks. His tally of 71 loopers in six games is the record for the league this year. And he is getting better as the season progresses.

Manush Hammers Three Home Runs In Two Contests

Babe Ruth's Thirty-Ninth Fails to Help in Second Defeat

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—With a chance to take second place, the Yankees failed Saturday to overcome Washington's spell and dropped deeper into third with a double defeat. The Senators made it 11 victories in 13 games against New York this year by winning both games of the double-header, 9 to 3 and 9 to 5.

Heinie Manush led the Senators, hitting one home run in the first game and two in the second. Babe Ruth connected with homer number 39 in the second game with Fred Marberry pitching. Reese also hit for the circuit. Scores, first game:

COUNTRY CLUB INVITATION TOURNEY TO OPEN LABOR DAY

At Least Hundred Golfers Expected For Annual Event

Four-Day Competition Open to All Amateurs; All-City May Follow

The third annual Wichita Falls Golf and Country club invitation tournament, gradually taking hold as one of the premier events of West Texas golfdom, will be held Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4, according to announcement Saturday of club officials. More than 100 invitations were mailed out Saturday to private clubs and municipal courses, and while the competition has proved to be primarily a West Texas affair in the past, it also has attracted leading players from all sections of the state, and those in charge are anticipating a record field of starters on qualifying day.

The tournament program calls for the playing of an 18-hole qualifying round Monday, Sept. 1, with match play the next two days narrowing the field to the finals in all flights on Thursday, Sept. 4. It is notable that the preliminary round will played on a holiday, Labor day; and this fact should prove a real boost for the attendance list.

Expect Record Field

Last year's tournament attracted 88 players from all sections of the state, a sufficient number to make it a lively competition in every respect, but Professional Bill Strachen estimates that at least 125 will be on hand this year. He reports that the smaller clubs of West Texas are taking a greater interest in the event and many players of the West Texas and Green Belt associations have promised to be on the scene Labor day.

Another feature that should help to build up the entry is the fact that all players will qualify for match play. Just as many flights will be arranged as there are entries, along with consolation flights, thus assuring every entry of at least two rounds of match play after the 18 holes of qualifying. An attractive list of prizes is being arranged for winners and runnersup.

Course Groomed

Strachen reports the course is in splendid condition, despite the lack of needed rains, and every effort will be made to have the greens and fairways in even better condition before Sept. 1. The course is to be thrown open for practice for the three days preceding the tournament, and all entries will be welcomed on the course on Aug. 29, 30 and 31.

A long driving contest is scheduled for Sept. 1, following completion of qualifying play, and visiting players will not lack for entertainment during the four days. A stag dinner is on the program for Monday night with a dance at the clubhouse the following evening. Entertainment features also are being planned for women visitors.

All-City to Follow

Initial plans are being made for the staging of the annual all-city championship tournament on the country club course the week following the invitation event. This competition alternates between the country club and Weeks park and will be played on the former course this year. In view of the fact that the links will be groomed to perfection for the invitation, the following week will offer an excellent opportunity for the city's golfers to play over the course at its best. However, definite details of the all-city have not been worked out.

Committees in charge of arrangements for the invitation tournament are as follows:

Tournament—J. D. Bright, chairman, J. A. Kemp Jr., Arthur Clark, Joe L. Art and George H. Hooker.

Entertainment—Clifford Mooers, chairman, A. M. Miller and Horace Robbins.

Ladies' entertainment—Mrs. J. B. Hatchitt, chairman, Mrs F. T. Couper and Mrs. R. L. Hargrave.

Public Courts Tennis Championship Tourney to Start This Week

LARKSPUR NEARS RECORD

By his victory in the $25,000 Arlington Cup race, Blue Larkspur, 1929 3-year-old champion and star of Col. E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour farms, boosted his total earnings to $272,070, which places him only a notch behind Gallant Fox, the 1930 sensation, in the list of America's leading money winners. More than 30,000 spectators saw the favorite trounce a field of five horses and finish three and a half lengths in front of Petee Wrack in second place. The top photo shows the start of the race, with Reveille Boy, American Derby winner, leaving the extreme outside gate where he was placed because of bad temper displayed at the start. The lower photo shows the finish of the race that enriched Colonel Bradley by $25,200. The inset shows Gov. Lou Emmerson of Illinois, left, presenting the Arlington cup to Colonel Bradley, right, as Jockey Jimmy Smith and Trainer H. J. Thompson look on.

Gehrig Moves to Peak Position in American League

GEHRIG MOVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankee's first baseman, has broken Al Simmons' lease on the individual batting leadership of the American league, unofficial averages which include Wednesday's games, reveal.

Maintaining his average of .387 during the 15th week of the campaign, while the pitchers were knocking 10 points off the Athletic outfielder's mark, Gerhrig topped the list by seven points. Simmons, with his average of .380, was only four points in front of his teammate Cochrane, who had .376.

The Yankee firm of Ruth and Gehrig between them held four other leaderships. Besides leading the league in slugging, Gehrig last week batted in 16 runs to retain the leadership with 125, and his accumulation of 291 total bases also was easily the best. Ruth added only one home run, but his total of 36 was the honor mark, with Gehrig four behind. The Babe also led the scorers with 114 runs.

Reynolds in Triples

Gehrig also threatened to displace Johnny Hodapp of Cleveland, in hits. The Indian second baseman hit safely 10 times during the week for a season total of 147, but was only one ahead of Gehrig who connected 12 times. Marty McManus of Detroit, held on to the base stealing and two-base hit titles for another week. He swiped one sack to bring his total to 16, and although he failed to get another double, his total of 32 was still good enough. Carl Reynolds, young Chicago outfielder, banged out two triples to break his tie with Earl Combs of the Yankees and led with 15.

Following Gehrig, Simmons and Cochrane, the leading batsmen were: Dickey, New York, .374; E. Rice, Washington, .361; Averill, Cleveland, .360; Hodapp, Cleveland, .359; Ruth, New York, .358; Manush, St. Louis-Washington, .357; Porter, Cleveland, .356.

Wells Leads Tossers

Edwin Wells, Yankee southpaw, still was the nominal leader of the pitchers, with eight victories and two defeats, representing no change over last week, but Bob Grove, the Athletics' fireballer, headed the hurlers taking regular turn. Grove won two games during the week and had 15 victories and four defeats, while Fred Marberry of Washington, gained credit for one triumph and had 12 victories and four defeats. Grove was ousted from the strikeout leadership by George Earnshaw, his teammate, who fanned 11 men in two games to bring his collection to 126, one better than Grove's mark.

The Yankees lost three points from their team batting average, but were still at the top of the heap with .313. Cleveland remained the same at .307 to retain second place, while Washington added a point to hold third place at .301. Philadelphia fielded at the same gait as last week, .274, and held the lead, with Washington still second at .272. Cleveland clicked off 10 double plays to make it 112 for the season and widen its margin over Detroit which had 106.

Two Vet Stars of White Sox Slated For New Scenery

Kamm and Faber Said to Be In Dutch With Skipper Bush

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (UP)—Urban (Red) Faber, veteran pitcher, and Willie Kamm, erstwhile $100,000 beauty, have lost their places on the Chicago White Sox squad because of failure to show the "fight" and "hustle" demanded by Manager Donie Bush.

Although the Sox management, through Secretary Harry Grabiner, denied that the two players had disagreed with Manager Bush, it was generally believed that the veterans had clashed with Bush regarding managerial methods and playing conditions and were slated for transfer.

Kamm's trouble with the Sox is said to have had its inception in Bush's order removing him from the captaincy.

Faber has had a difficult time winning games this season and walked off the mound in Wednesday's game with St. Louis after his mate made two errors, declaring that he "wouldn't pitch with support like that."

Klein Overhauls O'Doul for Lead In National Loop

Both Philadelphia Sluggers Maintain Averages Above .400

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—After a gallant uphill climb, Chuck Klein of the Phillies finally has taken a fairly firm hold on the object of his struggles, the batting leadership of the National league. Klein, leader a week ago by a hardly visible margin, has kept on climbing and in the averages which include Wednesday's games, has a margin of five points over his teammate and rival, Frank O'Doul. Klein's average is .408, O'Doul's .403.

The Philadelphia youngster already had more batting honors than most players could reasonably ask. He had held first place in scoring, hits and runs batted in and to this he has added a tie for the lead in hitting doubles. Klein has scored 103 runs, has hit safely 161 times and has batted in 110 tallies. His total of 33 two-baggers gives him a tie for the lead with O'Doul and Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn.

Terry Ranks Third

Adam Comorosky of Pittsburgh leads in triples with 14; Hack Wilson of Chicago in home runs with 33, and Kiki Cuyler of Chicago in stolen bases with 27, completing the somewhat scanty list of slugging leaders who have been able to outdistance Klein. The Philadelphian also figures in the second place roster with 29 home runs.

Terry is third on the list of leaders in batting with an average of .394. Other regulars in this select group are Herman, Brooklyn, .390; Stephenson, Chicago, .389; Heilmann, Cincinnati, .366; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .359; Ott, New York, .356; Cuyler, Chicago, .355; and Grantham, Pittsburgh, .355.

Phils Lead Clubs

The club batting leadership remains in the hands of the Phillies with an average of .326, nine points better than that of New York. Cincinnati still leads in fielding with a .977 mark.

Bob Osborn of Chicago has met with his second defeat of the season but he still heads the league's list of hurlers with a .778 average, having won seven games to two lost. Ray Phelps of Brooklyn is second with nine victories and three defeats for a .750 mark while Tom Zachary of Boston and Joe Heving of New York have attained the same average by winning six games and losing two.

Kid Chocolate and Jack Berg Promise Real Excitement in Thursday's Match

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Thursday night comes what should be a great battle between little men.

Kid Chocolate or Cuba meets Kid Berg of England at the Polo grounds, and if it isn't a hair-raising shindig, then there is no use of getting excited about any bout on paper.

This is a natural. Different styles, a bit of weight handicap to make it puzzling, both headed for the lightweight title, one or the other champion, perhaps sooner or later, it ought to draw as much money as did Singer and Mandell, who fought for the real thing.

I'm leaning toward the Cuban "Keed." He will be spotting Berg six or seven pounds—maybe more. Really he doesn't belong in Berg's class, but, then, greater fighters than Chocolate have shouldered just as heavy weight burdens and have come on to fame.

Berg depends on headlong speed to win. He usually tires his men to the point of exhaustion. Seldom does he win with a knockout. He is not that kind of a hitter, but he pounds and pounds along with such fury that in the end the other fellow feels as if he has been run over by a Minnesota threshing machine.

"Little Greb," they call this Englishman, and Greb-like he is indeed. I doubt that he is the all-around fighter that Greb was, but nothing like Berg's speed and rushing has been seen since Greb amazed the customers.

It isn't in the cards that Berg is going to last over the stretch of years that Greb fought and raked in a fortune. Berg's speed is of the bonfire type. It can't go on forever. He can't hit as sharply or as accurately as Greb did, and he is not the kind of puncher Greb was.

Berg will fling himself at Chocolate in one prolonged mad drive to break up the Cuban's matchless defense, his superb boxing.

West Texas Buffs Plan Early Start Of Grid Training

Coach Reeds Issues Orders For First Practice On Sept. 5

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 2.—The football training camp at the West Texas State Teachers college will start on the morning of Sept. 5, according to a statement made by Coach Claude E. Reeds this week. Coach Reeds stated that he is expecting a good many of last year's men to return as well as a host of freshmen, who have indicated their intentions of being on hand.

Starting on this early date will give the team two weeks of hard training to get in shape; and unless there is a game scheduled between Sept. 20 and Oct. 3, there will be nearly four weeks of workouts. This training camp has proved its worth in several respects.

The first football game now scheduled for the 1930 season will be on Oct. 3, with Panhandle A. & M. college of Goodwell, Okla.

Although nine regulars graduated from school last year, Coach Reeds believes the prospects are splendid for a championship team next year. He states that the following men from last year will be here: Otis Burk, Clarence Kaylor, Alfred Jameson, Weldon Logan, (captain), Bill McClendon, John Gillham, Hassell Rhodes, Leo Cooper, D. V. Biggiers, Glenn Daugherty, Lloyd Harris, Lloyd Devin, G. N. Lott, Edwin Comer, Ted Williamson, Dobie Johnon, Prentiss Balengee, L. B. Penick, Dock Haley, Robert Jarrett, Milton Cotton, Farris Bass, Guy Fuller, Robert Clark, Clayton Devin, John Jornson, Raymond Powell, Arthur Campbell, Lloyd Hunt, Bill Leggitt, Dutch Morris, Ernest Carter, Price Barrett, Willie Bennett, Ben Porter, H. R. Harvel, Rusty O'Donald, Walter Dubbs, and Leon Penick.

TY COBB CONTENTED TO GOLF, HUNT AND FISH

ATLANTA, Aug. 2. (AP)—Old Ty Cobb, a dominant figure in baseball for more than 20 years, is resting quietly at his home in Augusta, Ga., satisfied with the part he played and not overly anxious to get back.

"I'm enjoying a well earned rest and I like it," he said when visiting his mother here. "Maybe sometime the desire to re-enter the game will become strong again. Then I'll look around. When a good proposition comes perhaps I'll be ready to accept it, but I won't play any more.

"You'll never hear of Ty Cobb again as a player. I still can play, but I always said I'd quit while I was at the top and I'm not going back on that promise."

Fishing, hunting and golf have kept Cobb in fine trim. He weighs about 187, just a few pounds above his normal playing weight. Golf affords him his chief recreation now.

FAIR WEATHER WINNER ARLINGTON FEATURE

ARLINGTON PARK RACE track, Ill., Aug. 2. (UP)—Fair weather, a fast track and a final burst of speed that put him under the wire four lengths ahead of the field, brought victory and $20,450 earnings to Griffin Watkins' Insco Saturday in the six-furling Post and Paddock stakes for juveniles.

Hyman, from the Rancocas stable won second money and third place went to E. R. Bradley's B'ar Hunter.

The winning time was 1:11-4-5.

Valenciennes, an outsider in the betting, won the Matrons handicap over a choice field. Beaming Over was second and Alcibiades was third.

Valenciennes paid $34.44, $14.50 and $8.34.

Pansy Walker, Zida, and Nellie Cuslis, who had been favored to win by the public, finished out of the money.

TENNIS TOURNEY SLATED FOR CORDELL COURTS

CORDELL, Okla., Aug. 2.—Plans for the holding of the first annual Washita Valley Tennis tournament here Aug. 15, 16 and 17, are being completed and everything will be in readiness for the event on those dates.

Invitations have been extended to tennis players from all parts of the Southwest to participate in the meet, and a number of entries have already been received. No fee is charged entries.

Contests will be staged in men's singles and doubles and women's singles and doubles. Trophies will be presented winners in each division. Entries must be made with Dr. A. H. Bungardt of Cordell before Thursday morning, Aug. 14, when a schedule will be drawn.

CARNERA GRANTED STAY IN U. S. UNTIL DEC. 31

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Primo Carnera is now open for fistic engagements up to Dec. 31.

The immigration bureau's board of review Saturday granted the mastodonic Italian pugilist an extension to that date, following his appearance before the board Friday.

As a visiting "artist," Carnera was given permission to remain in the United States for six months.

Absence of Wind Proves Handicap To Cyril Tolley

British Star, One of Golf's Longest Drivers, Uses Heavy Clubs

By O. B. KEELER

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 2. (AP)—Mr. Cyril James Hastings Tolley, British amateur golf champion of 1929, was wishing the wind blew with greater emphasis and regularity in America, which he was visiting for the purpose of playing in the two major competitions of this year.

"You see, over here," said Mr. Tolley, in his inimitable leisurely manner, "over here, I have to hit the ball somewhere near the line. Usually there is no wind that will blow it straight for me, after I have curled it this way or that."

This started a general laugh and somebody inquired what happened if Mr. Tolley's "curl" on the ball agreed with the direction of the wind, which thus carried it yet more away from the line.

"Oh, that happens, too," Mr. Tolley admitted. "I suppose I have hit shots farther off the line than anybody else in Britain."

"Cyril can hit a ball farther off line than anybody," said Bobby Jones, "because he can hit the ball father than anybody. I can hit the ball as much off the line as Cyril, but not as far off, because he can outhit me. So far as I know, Cyril is the only golfer who ever pulled a ball out of bounds from the second tee at St. Andrews."

"It rolled through an open gate," explained Mr. Tolley, modestly. "Still, I suppose it was upwards of 200 yards off the correct line."

Mr. Tolley went on to explain his first comment.

"Over home," he said, "there usually is a good deal of wind, and I have become so accustomed to it that it seems not very difficult, and certainly very usual, to strike the ball with an intentional cut or pull, to compensate for the wind. Anyway, it seems easier for me to drive, and play the bigger shots generally, with a deliberate pull or fade. To direct it without either spin down these very narrow American fairways gives me no end of trouble. I like lots of room and a good breeze. It also keeps one from getting overheated."

One of Mr. Tolley's opening performances at Interlatchen, in a practice round before the recent open championship, was to drive the sixteenth green, a matter of 315 yards and a dog leg to the left. Mr. Tolley, as he frequently does, ignored the angle of trees and smacked a towering drive straight over on to the green.

Mr. Tolley, by the way, employs clubs of great length and the weight and power of the weaver's beam of holy writ. I was looking over his kit in a hotel room on the recent trip, and got hold of a new driver and tried to swing it, and the thing very nearly threw me out of a hotel window. Cyril says they are not at all heavy, but I suspect he means not heavy for him.

Colonel Big Bob Jones, father unto Bobby, hefted one of the irons.

"Great Scott!" said the colonel, "it's easy to see how Cyril plays such long shots with these clubs. He couldn't play a short one with this weapon. It feels like something they used to kill prisoners with in the Middle Ages."

Sport Slants

by ALAN J. GOULD

Anyone with sufficient second-sight to have parlayed a modest wager early this spring on the combined prospects that Washington and Brooklyn would be real pennant contenders in mid-season, that Cornell would win the big boat races at Pougkeepsie and that Wilmer Allison would overthrow Henri Cochet at Wimbledon or even go so far as the finals, would have cleaned up and been in a position to retire financially for the rest of 1930.

Whether these were just the by-products of a boisterous spring in sports or the fore-runners of additional excitement and upsets remains to be seen. It may be a good idea now to scout around for a dark horse to win the National Amateur golf crown or weigh the chances of Boston achieving a double-miracle by sending the Braves and Red Sox on a wild march into the world series.

On the other hand, a sufficient number of the time-tested and proven favorites, such as Bobby Jones, Helen Wills Moody and even "Old Bill" Tilden have breezed along triumphantly to maintain some substantial balance for form players and the "dope."

Galiant Fox has been nearer to a sure thing on the turf than any horse since Man O' War. If Sande and the Fox can romp home in front in the rich classic at Arlington, the money winnings of the big bay colt will be within striking distance of the all-time American record of $313,000, now to the credit of the Rancocas Stable's renowned Zev, champion of 1923.

"It was a bruising, bone-crushing fight and the mastodon proved himself to be a real heavyweight, a definite menace to any and all who may stand between him and the championship," remarked a commentator after the Carnera-Godfrey brawl. Most, if any of the bruising and bone-crushing, it seemed that evening, involved the infuriated cash customers in their scramble to reach the ringside and emit shrill cries of "fake."

England this year has had ample opportunity to exercise that well known Anglo attitude that the game, the sport and not the result is the main thing.

The only trophy the British saved out of the athletic storm that has been blowing over the famous Isles is the Wightman Cup, rescued by some very thorough women's tennis work from these clutching Americans.

Bobby Jones swept the British links in a clean-up that has been pretty well emphasized, leaving England for the first time in history without a single one of the major golf trophies on the Royal and Ancient shelf.

At Wimbledon, the four tennis semi-finalists among the men were three Americans and a Frenchman. Among the women, they included two Americans, a German girl and Frenchwoman, leaving the home-bred talent entirely out of the picture. Four-fifths of the finals were All-American affairs.

Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V and the British polo four, heading for America, represent the Empire's remaining athletic thrusts of importance, but the odds are likely to be against them as in each case the Yankee forces present a formidable defense.

'Nother Ocean Flight

ST. LOUIS.—Lieut. Alexander Magyar, who intends making a non-stop flight from Detroit to Budapest this summer, is quartered here at the Parks Air college getting his plane in shape. He will use a Lockheed-Sirius ship with a Wasp engine on his trip. He has more than 4,000 flying hours to his credit.

Bryan Grant Jr., of Atlanta, new national clay courts champion, will engage in his first varsity college competition next year.

Three and One-Half Semi-Conscious Couples Stagger Past 2,700th Hour Of Continuous Dancing in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (UP)—Three and one-half semi-conscious couples staggered like robots past the 2,700th hour of continuous dancing tonight at the Merry-Garden ballroom.

This amazing test of human endurance began April 11, and the end is not yet. There seems to be no limit to the stamina of the four men and three women who have circled the floor for 113 days.

Couples with the partner nearest awake carrying his sleeping companion, plodded on, buoyed by the will to win the prizes of $2,650, an automobile, a fur coat, or a watch.

Joe Rockand Marge Meadows opened tired eyes and stimulated a show of speed as they passed the 2,700th hour. "We're going to win," they shouted, and lapsed back into aimless gliding.

Ann Gerry, slim and blond, carried, her sleeping partner, Mike Gouvas. Mike roused himself sufficiently to mutter: "I'm good for 2,000 hours more." Then his eyes closed again.

With the confidence which comes with having worn out two sets of partners, Theresa Zito and Jack Ritof, paused for a drink. "We're going to win," they said.

Five-Minute Rests

Bob Marchis, the half-team, said nothing. In the arms of an attendant, he was dragged around the floor. He can't win unless one of the other men drops out, and he becomes the partner of the extra woman. He has been dancing alone since Monday night when his partner collapsed.

Finally the bell rings for the five-minute rest period allowed each hour. The dancers, too tired to heed, are helped to their cots.

Fifty couples started in the marathon. At least 200 pairs of shoes, it was estimated, have been worn out by the dancers. Some have left the contest upon the advice of physicians, and others have dropped out exhausted.

When the marathon started, 20 minutes each hour were allowed for rest. Later it was cut to 15, still later to 10, and this week was reduced to five minutes. If the marathon continues into next week the time will be cut gradually until the entrants must dance continuously to remain in the contest.

Huge Air Liner

LOS ANGELES.—Claude Freese, of this city, has designed an aircraft which, it is said, will be able to land as lighter than air, as parachute or as heavier than air. It will carry 500 passengers, 30 tons of fuel and 150 tons of freight. Freese announces that it will be built of duralumin, and will be 902 feet long and 240 feet wide, with a gas capacity of 6,000,000 cubic feet of helium. Thirteen motors will drive it at a top speed of 200 miles per hour.

Italian Air Service

TRIESTE, Italy.—This city is the home of the first and most important commercial air navigation company in Italy. It operates five different air lines serving northern Italy. It is known as the Societa Italiana Servia Aeri, and its inaugural line was opened by Mussolini in April, 1926. It is operated exclusively by means of hydroplanes.

ROUND SHOULDERS COME BACK TO FRONT AT CAMP

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 2. (UP)—Round shoulders of the several hundred youths attending the citizens military training camp here were showing signs tonight of "coming back to the front"—as chests.

A marked change in carriage of the youths, who earlier this week straggled into the camp, was reported tonight by officers in charge. The group this year, the officers state, have fallen into the routine of military life more readily than in previous years. Strict discipline is the secret, according to those in charge.

WOMAN LOSES $2,500 WORTH OF JEWELRY FROM AUTO

MACON, Mo., Aug. 2. (UP)—Mrs. Harry T. Kendall tonight informed officers here and at Kansas City of the loss from the running board of her car of a purse containing $2,500 in gems.

Mrs. Kendall said she recalled placing the purse on the running board of her car just before leaving Kansas City late today en route to Macon. The loss was not discovered until she arrived here.

STEVENSON DIAGNOSTIC CLINIC GIVES NEW MEDICAL SERVICE FOR WICHITA AREA RESIDENTS

An important addition to Wichita Falls' equipment of specialized medical service for this city and surrounding territory materialized during the past week in the opening of a new diagnostic clinic by Dr. C. W. Stevenson in his offices in the Hamilton building.

Following ten years of general practice here, during which he has planned constantly on the ultimate devotion of his entire time to diagnostic service, Dr. Stevenson began one year ago the elimination of all practice save that of diagnosis and medical treatment.

Remodeling his suite in the Hamilton building for the use of the new clinic has provided a large reception room, business office, laboratory, X-ray department, two treatment rooms, and a private office. The personnel of the clinic will include, in addition to Dr. Stevenson, an X-ray technician, a nurse, and a business secretary.

The diagnostic clinic now established here is the first of its kind in this territory, it was said, in that it will offer complete diagnosis of any ailment at the hands of one physician, and will do no practice other than for internal cases requiring purely medical treatment. The laboratory is being equipped with the most modern devices for X-ray examination and treatment, detection of basal metabolism, and other internal affections. Clients desiring medical treatment will be able to obtain such aid from the Stevenson clinic, but cases of all other classification, such as surgery, etc., will be referred to other practitioners, it was said.

Dr. Stevenson has for some years been a member of the American College of Physicians, and of the Texas Internist club, both of which are devoted to the interests of medical diagnosis.

OXYGEN COMPANY TO PROVIDE REPAIRS ON OIL DRILLING TOOLS

Appointment of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company as jobbers and manufacturing representatives of the Stoody company, of California, has called attention of the oil industry generally to interesting development of operating economies during recent years.

Stocking of materials perfected by the Stoody company and adoption of its methods in their use are designed to enable the local concern to provide the latest service in repairing and building up worn or broken oil well drilling machinery and equipment. Promiscuous discarding of such units of production, which commonly occurred during earlier years, has been discontinued largely in favor of renewing various working parts for continued use.

Following the first steps to stabilize the oil-producing industry, and to eliminate waste in such operations, the California company began the practice of repairing oil drilling tools on a commercial basis. The first method used was that of replacing metal which had worn off during operations. Metal for such application was required to flow easily under an acetylene torch, and to leave a deposit which could be heat-treated or tempered for the necessary hardness. Following prolonged experimentation, the company developed the Stoody high carbon welding rod for such rebuilding processes, and it is now in wide use.

New Steel Alloy

With the extensive adoption of a policy of repairing and building up instead of throwing away worn or broken parts there arose a demand for a welding material which would contain its own self-hardening elements, thus eliminating the heat-treating processes. In time the Stoody company developed a self-hardening alloy steel, which provides its own hardened surface. Under prolonged tests, it has proven tough and non-machinable, and refuses to spread or break under continual pounding or stress.

Applied to oil field equipment specifically, this new alloy steel was used for building up and facing under-reamer lugs, gears, discs, fishtails, etc.

Further experimentation sought a still harder surfacing material, but extensive research was required to produce such qualities and still retain the cohesiveness of the alloy. The last composition, having as its base metal iron, met the tests, and was manufactured under the name "Stoodite." It is a welding rod of uniformity, high resistance to abrasion, and toughness.

The search for the hardest available substances for drilling purposes continued, however, and in 1927 a substitute was found for the black diamond commonly used by mining and drilling engineers for piercing hard formations which resist ordinary hard-faced bits. A composition containing Tungsten carbide was used in perfecting this new substance, called Borium, which can be used with either electric arc or acetylene torches. Borium is said by its manufacturers to be so hard that it cannot be melted with an oxy-acetylene flame, but that other metals can be braced or fused to it readily.

Infant Industry

Having the maximum degree of hardness, and lending itself to welding processes, Borium is now in extensive use in refinishing drill bits either on worn edges or points.

Current reclamation of worn and broken oil well equipment represents an infant industry, according to those familiar with its uses, but it has been predicted that within a few years repairing of such machinery by oxy-acetylene torch or electric welding will have multiplied many times.

The Wichita Falls Oxygen company, selected as representatives in this territory by the Stoody company, is located at 110 Indiana avenue, and is managed by Sam Hoard.

POLICE HOLD DETROIT GIRL

Second Woman Questioned In Buckley Slaying

DETROIT, Aug. 2. (AP)—Police today continued to hold a young woman who, they say, knows the "voice" which lured Jerry Buckley to his death, and took another woman into custody for questioning.

Miss Marjorie Mansell, entertainer for radio station WMBC—the station for which Buckley was the militant political commentator—was ordered held 48 hours more under the equivalent of $200,000 bond after a hearing this morning before Judge Henry S. Sweeney in recorder's court on a writ of habeas corpus.

The latest woman to enter the case is Miss Ethel Bronson, said by police to have been with Buckley 24 hours before he was shot down. She was taken into custody this morning and questioned most of the day.

Meanwhile police said they were continuing their search for Egbert M. Hofmann, scion of a wealthy family, whose bank book, showing average daily deposits of $2,000 for recent weeks, was found in Miss Mansell's apartment.

He had not been found, but his attorney, Fred A. Behr, said Hofman had made "some sort of a statement" to Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox.

Police Guard Capitol

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 2. (AP)—Police guarded the capitol today to prevent Communist demonstrations while John MacDonald, Baltimore waiter, told Gov. C. C. Young his original testimony in the Mooney-Billings bombing case at San Francisco was "all lies."

State guards and city police were placed around the building when it was reported a "number of Communists" were en route from San Francisco.

No demonstrations occurred but all entrances but one were kept locked, while MacDonald told the governor and the advisory pardon board in the senate chamber he had falsely identified Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings as the bombers of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day parade.

DALLAS AGAIN LEADS IN BUILDING PERMITS

Reached at his home on Oyster bay over the telephone, Mr. Roosevelt said he was unable to explain how such reports have been circulated.

"It is true," he stated, "that there have been several discussions between officials of the two companiesnies concerning the possibility of a merger but nothing definite has yet been done."

MEDITERRANEAN BUNGALOW FOR A 50-FOOT LOT

House No. 540

NORTHERN states are following the style set in the south in utilizing Mediterranean architecture in the home. Attractiveness and beauty are clearly a part of the home shown above, and given a site carefully chosen to set off its colors, this home will reward its owner by its distinctiveness.

Face brick, of the lighter shades, are used in the walls of this house and the roof is covered with bright Spanish tile. Time and the merciless attack of changing seasons will never disfigure either walls or roof; instead they retain their original beauty after years of exposure and take on a charm that only time brings.

Graceful brick arches and paving; wrought iron grilled windows, railings and flower boxes; lattice work hung with brilliant flowers, awnings, and gayly trimmed curtains combine to enhance the charming effect and colorful beauty of the home as a whole.

With porches on opposite sides of the house, a cool shady spot can always be found. The porch off the dining room is also connected with the kitchen, which makes it an ideal spot for outdoor meals. This porch should face east to avoid the hot afternoon sun. The exterior archway onto this porch may be enclosed when the house is built in northern climates.

The dining and living rooms have fireplaces opposite the casement windows. Built back of these, each bedroom could also have its own fireplace if desired. The bedrooms are large, well lighted and conveniently placed on either side of the bathroom. With windows on two walls, these rooms are assured of good ventilation.

Attention is called to the unique kitchen arrangement. Notice the cross draft afforded by the windows on opposite sides, and the convenient location of the table and cabinets.

There is no basement in the plan but a small cellar may be provided large enough to contain a heating plant easily reached by a stairway from the kitchen.

A 50-foot lot will accommodate this house, affording a driveway at one side. The ceiling height is 9 feet 6 inches and content is 31,000 cubic feet.

If you are interested in working drawings for House No. 540, the editor of this paper will gladly tell you where they may be obtained.

New Wholesale Grocery Firm Enters Wichita Business Field

Opening of a branch house by the E. A. Johnson Wholesale Grocery company of Dallas at 201 Barwise street during the past week was announced Saturday by Harry Tunnell, who will be in charge of the company's business in this territory for the present.

The new wholesale business is located in the McConnell building, a brick structure erected about three years ago, part of which is used as a storehouse for McConnell Brothers, furniture dealers. The E. A. Johnson company limits its stock to the heavier, more bulky numbers for the grocery trade, featuring sugar, beans, flour, bakers' supplies, etc., in large quantities.

The company will maintain two salesmen in the Wichita Falls territory, J. B. Wise and Ralph Hughes having been designated for this place. Mr. Wise is already living in the city, and Mr. Hughes is expected to move here from Denton within a few weeks, it was said. Delivery service in Wichita Falls and vicinity already has been established by the assignment of a large truck to the Wichita Falls house.

The Johnson company has been established in Dallas for many years, and now has branch stores in Tyler and San Angelo.

NEW INDUSTRIES ON KATY SINCE JAN. 1 GIVE WORK TO 449

Eleven new industries were located on lines of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas system during June, according to information given here Saturday at the office of E. O. McCord, division freight and passenger agent.

During the first six months of 1930, it was added, 80 new industries have been located on the lines with total employed forces of 488 men. During the same period, eight of the industries have been discontinued or moved, leaving a net gain of 72 industries and 449 employes, representing a total investment exceeding $2,800,000.

The record, railroad officials declared, is exceptional in that it was made during a period of general depression.

PATTON TO SUPPORT PAT NEFF IN RUN-OFF

CROCKETT, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—State Senator Nat Patton, candidate for railroad commissioner in the recent primary, in a statement issued here today thanked his supporters and endorsed Pat Neff in the run-off.

"I will cast my vote for Mr. Neff," he said, "because he is a pure Democrat and a large number of Texas voters already have evinced their desire for him to serve them."

ARGUMENT CONCLUDED IN TEXAS GULF SULPHUR CASE

WHARTON, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Argument was concluded at noon today in the hearing here to set a tax calculation on the properties of the Texas Gulf Sulphur company at Boling.

County Judge John Norris announced that the court would reconvene at 10 a. m. Wednesday and announce a decision.

SKAGGS TO ADD SIX MODERN COTTAGES TOURIST CAMP HERE

Further additions to Wichita Falls' equipment of furnished modern cottages for the accommodation of tourists are now nearing completion at the Wichita Tourist camp, located on the Henrietta road just east of Holliday creek.

New cottages costing between $7,000 and $8,000 will be finished by Aug. 10, according to John Skaggs, owner.

Six new houses comprise the addition now being made to a large tourist camp which has been maintained at the Henrietta road location for several years by Mr. Skaggs. They are being built in a semi-circle at the rear of a large plot which has been landscaped as an attractive park during the past few years. Each is set against a background of shrubbery and trees, and opens upon a large lawn which extends to the highway. A gravel drive will circle the plot, it was said, enabling the occupant of each cottage to drive his car into the garage which is built integral with the house.

Each of the new cottages will have a living room 18x14 feet, a breakfast room, kitchenette and shower-bath room, will have all modern plumbing fixtures, and will be completely furnished, according to Mr. Skaggs. Roofs will be of green shingles, and weather-boarded exteriors of the houses will be finished in white. Interiors will be of wall board construction, with wallpaper finish.

A large force of carpenters and other workmen has been engaged on the group of new houses during the past week. Painting and furnishing of the houses will be completed within the next week, it was said.

DUELLING NOT SO DEADLY AS BOXING, SAY GERMANS

BERLIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—The punch is mightier than the sword, asserts the German society for surgery.

It protested against the proposed amendment of the penal code to make the students' duel punishable by imprisonment.

If the duel is to be prohibited, argues the society, lawmakers also must make boxing a felony.

LOUISIANA BOY KILLED IN TRUCK ACCIDENT

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 2. (AP)—W. C. Pixley, 18, of Shongaloo, La., was killed and Graceton Mayfield, 18, of Shreveport, sustained a fracture of the skull which is expected to cause his death, when a truck in which they were en route to Houston, Texas, missed a curve in the road at Stonewall, DeSoto parish, ran down a railroad track and turned over today.

There were 10 men, two women and four children in the truck, most of them being from Shongaloo, and going to Houston to pick cotton. With the exception of the children and one woman, all occupants were injured, but none is considered in serious condition except Mayfield.

ONEAL EXPRESSES APPRECIATION FOR PRIMARY SUPPORT

An expression of appreciation for the support accorded him in the race for the state senate was contained in a statement issued here Saturday by Ben G. Oneal, Wichita Falls attorney.

Mr. Oneal led a field of four candidates in the Democratic primary last July 26, and goes into the run-off campaign.

His statement follows:

"I wish to thank the voters of Wichita Falls and Wichita county, as well as the remainder of the district, for the splendid support given me in the state senatorial race in the recent primary election. I am deeply grateful to my friends who so generously contributed of their time and effort to my success in leading in that contest.

"With their continued loyalty and support, I expect to lead in the run-off primary Aug. 22."

AL CAPONE SOUGHT AFTER SHOOTING

public but unsolved assassination the afternoon of June 9.

It was a month ago that Zuta, after being questioned about the Lingle murder, miraculously escaped a hail of bullets directed at him and two companions on crowded State street. Ted Newberry now a fugitive, was named as one of the gunmen who operated a machine gun from the car which overtook Zuta and his police guard. Zuta immediately disappeared from Chicago after this attempt upon his life.

His assassins last night took no chances of another failure. They worked with precision and dispatch. Richard Rutzen, owner of the hotel where the gangster was killed, gave this dramatic description:

Describes Slaying

"I was standing at the bar adjoining the dance pavilion. A rear door opened and in came six men at a brisk walk. Two of them had machine guns. Two had sawed-off shot guns. The other two had pistols.

"They waved their guns at me and my hands went in the air. One of the men stayed at the bar and the other five went into the dance hall.

"One of them yelled, 'Here he is!' and pointed at a small man who was just putting a nickel in the mechanical piano. The small man made a dive behind the piano, but it was no use.

"One of the gunmen shoved a boy standing nearby out of the way. Then they turned loose. They fired so many bullets into the body, from both sides of the piano and right through the piano, that the doctors couldn't tell how many times he'd been hit.

"Then one of the guys fired a shot into the ceiling and another into the floor. One of them said: 'Well, that's that.' Then they walked out rapidly and we heard two cars drive away."

Bathers at a nearby beach, attracted by the fusillade, came running up to the hotel. They said one of the cars which drove away was a Buick and the other a Lincoln.

Woman Missing

The license tags on one caused the arrest today of two drivers for the Checker Cab company. Company officials said the tags had been stolen several days ago.

Mrs. Laura Nelson, of Chicago, to whom Zuta had put in a long distance call a short time before he was killed, was questioned by detectives today, but refused to give any information. When detectives went back to question her again, she had disappeared.

Sheriff Philip Herbrand, of Waukesha county, Wisconsin, raided the cottage where the killers were reported to have stayed several days waiting for an opportune time to get Zuta. A woman living nearby informed the sheriff that she had seen shot guns and machine guns in their possession and that one of them boasted to her that he was a member of the biggest gang in Chicago—the Capone gang.

The cottage was deserted and the killers left nothing that would give a clew to their identity.

Nick in Chair

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Last March, Jack Zuta sat in a plain wooden chair at the detective bureau and heard this warning from Capt. John Stege, then deputy police commissioner in charge of detectives:

"Fourteen men have sat in this chair, Jack, and heard me warn them to get out of town. They didn't go—and now all 14 are dead."

"I'm not worrying," was the answer of the Moran-Aiello gang's so-called "master mind."

A 15th nick was chipped out of the chair today. Gangland foes of Zuta stalked into a Delafield, Wis., resort last night and made Stege's prophecy come true.

WILL CONDUCT PROBE OF OPERATION SLOT MACHINES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (UP)—Assistant Attorney General J. H. Lawson will go to Guthrie Monday where he will conduct a state investigation into the alleged operation of slot machines in Logan county.

The governor instructed Attorney General King have the investigation made recently when a petition signed by a number of Logan county citizens alleged the slot machines were running in that county despite the provision of the law.

They charged County Attorney Harry Blake was negligent in enforcing the slot machine law.

Rapid Population Growth West Texas Exceeded by Increase in the Use of Electrical Power for Current Year

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2.—Startling as has been the population growth in many parts of West Texas, the percentage of increase in population has been far exceeded by the increase in the use of electricity, A. J. Duncan, president of the Texas Electric Service company, which serves 65 West Texas cities, declared Saturday. During the first six months of 1930, the increase in the use of electricity in the territory served by this company was 12.5 per cent over the same period of 1928.

"Economists and business experts recognize that the variations in the consumption of electric energy over periods of a month or a year provide a sure barometer of business conditions over a stated territory," Mr. Duncan said. "Just as for years, the unfilled orders of steel companies represented the best single index to economic conditions. Using the consumption of kilowatthours as an index has the advantage of covering more industries and a larger territory, including both the larger towns and cities, along with the villages. I believe it is the best single index to use in judging business conditions in West Texas.

"The Texas Electric Service company, with more than 1,500 miles of electric power lines radiating throughout a large portion of West Texas, shows an increase of 17.5 per cent in the consumption of electricity for the six-month period from Jan. 1 to June 30 of this year as compared to the same period in 1928. These figures include the actual amount used by customers of the company, plus the energy sold to other power companies which have connections with the transmission system of the Texas Electric Service company.

"Naturally, some of this increase was due to new customers added to the system, but these additions in themselves indicate a wholesome condition in the industrial life of West Texas. The growing demand for electric energy in West Texas has necessitated the building of hundreds of miles of power lines within the last three years and the enlargement of electric generating stations serving this area.

Section Grows Rapidly

"The rapidity of the growth of West Texas, especially in the new oil producing areas, is recognized more fully by the electric light and power companies than any other single industry, for these companies must foresee the development of any town or section of the country in order to be ready when the increased demand for electric energy comes. The tremendous building program which utility companies have in the future of that part of the state.

"Coincident with the growth and expansion of the electric power transmission systems in West Texas, which link together a number of large electric generating stations, a great many small towns and villages which never before have had the advantages of electric service have been supplied with electricity from the power lines. Other cities and towns which had only a local light plant for power service now have ample electric power for all industrial purposes from the power lines. Oil fields in West Texas are large users of electric service and much of the recent construction activities of electric power companies in West Texas has been necessitated by the rapidly increasing demand for electric power for pumping oil.

"Electric utility companies in West Texas are keeping abreast of all the improvements in the science of transmission of electric power at high voltages. A power line which operates at 132,000 volts, equal to the highest electrical voltage in the state, stretches from Hillsboro in Central Texas to Big Spring in West Texas. Despite the vastness of West Texas and the relative scarcity of population as compared with other parts of the country, the electric companies serving this section of the state have built a system that compares favorably with any electric power system in the United States in economic soundness and high standards of service.

WEALTHY WOMAN SETS RECORD WITH PAYMENT $77,000 CUSTOMS DUTY

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (US)—A new record for payment of customs duty by an individual on personal property was set last Thursday by Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., it was revealed today. She had arrived aboard the liner, Bremen, from Germany with goods purchased amounting to $300,000 or more. The duty she paid on the goods was placed at about $77,000, the greatest amount ever paid by an individual on personal property.

Mrs. Biddle, who is a daughter of the late Benjamin N. Duke, has a personal fortune, estimated at $200,000,000. She was kept at the customs house for three hours before all her purchases could be accounted for. Most of her merchandise was jewelry for which, it is said, she paid about $96,000.

TWO WOMEN LIVING ON OPPOSITE SIDES OF RIVER NEAR GUTHRIE SUICIDE

GUTHRIE, Okla., Aug. 2. (AP)—Two Logan county women living on opposite sides of the Cimmaron river six miles north of here, committed suicide today.

Mrs. J. H. Farr, wife of the Logan county state representative, took poison. A neighboring woman who was with Mrs. Farr had just stepped into the house. Ill health was blamed for the act.

Mrs. Hester Milton Allen shot herself with a shotgun. She had been in poor health for several months, and neighbors said she made a previous attempt to take her life.

ENDURANCE FLIERS COME DOWN AFTER 311 HOURS IN AIR

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 2. (AP)—The red endurance monoplane, piloted by Slack and Lou Reichers, was forced down at 6:05 o'clock, eastern standard time, tonight. The pilots said the motor went dead.

The ship landed in a rough field near the Salisbury Golf club, a half mile south of the airport. The axle of the plane was bent in landing, but neither pilot was hurt.

They had been aloft 311½ hours in a quest for the refueling endurance record held by the Hunter brothers of Chicago.

Black said the motor suddenly went dead and they were unable to get it started.

The motor had functioned perfectly during its nearly 13 days of continuous flying up until the time it quit. Neither pilot could explain why it went dead.

Black said that after they learn the cause of the motor trouble they will sleep during the night and take off tomorrow on another endurance grind, using the Green ship which had started off with the Red plane but was forced down within a few hours when one of the pilots became ill.

Still in Air

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2. (AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine had rounded out 300 hours of sustained flight at 7:11 p. m., today in their attempt to regain the refueling endurance record. At that hour their monoplane, the Greater St. Louis, was idling leisurely over Lambert-St. Louis field. They are within 254 hours of equalling the present record of approximately 554 hours set by the Hunter brothers at Chicago.

SCIENTIST CLAIMS NEW LIGHT SECRET

the world's most important electrical concerns that I have at last discovered the secret of light without power through captivation of the sun's own rays."

By combining a secret element, Dr. Schnell declared, "my formula is really very simple, combining certain minerals with oils and acids."

He said he believed that once his invention is commercialized, it will eventually eliminate all forms of outdoor electrical signs and lights, illuminate homes and cook food.

Dr. Schnell stumbled upon the base for his formula by accident, he said, while working in the University of Colorado laboratory as a student.

He noticed that a certain mineral with which he was working retained the glow of light after it had been exposed to the sun. That incident changed the course of his life for he then decided to concentrate his study in producing light without the aid of the sun.

Studies in Europe

His work took him to Germany, where he received his doctor's degree at the University of Dresden. He continued to study in Europe and his work even took him on arduous trips into the Ural mountains in Russia in search of minerals for his compound.

The young scientist's solution is based on the principle which governs radium, but where the latter substance emits a faint glow which fades rapidly, the brilliant light from the Schnell process is permanent, he said.

"We have even experimented under the sea," Dr. Schnell declared, "and found that a diver was able to see this new light 220 feet beneath the surface of the ocean."

Though his apartment has been entered several times in attempts to steal the solution, Dr. Schnell is not afraid of losing it.

"All of my formulas are in my head," he said. "When I need a tube of the mixture for demonstration, I mix it and then destroy it when finished."

Following his demonstration here Thursday before scientists of the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles, Dr. Schnell plans to go to Washington, D. C., to obtain patents of his discovery.

TIMES' MARKET REPORT

TREND UPWARD IN LISTLESS SESSION OF STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—The stock market mustered enough energy to keep going today, but enthusiasm was at such a low discount that trading established a record Saturday low more than four years. Sales totaled 366,000 shares against 358,700 shares May 8, 1926.

The trend was upward. The few speculators for the rise who had not gone out of the city for the week-end professed to find encouragement in the recent dullness, contending that the apathy, especially when viewed in the light of the enormous shrinkage in brokers loans since early in the year, indicated stocks were strongly held. The advisability of caution, nevertheless, seems to have been impressed on both sides of the speculative household, and neither is currently willing to make much of a display, each faction was met with rebuffs during the past fortnight.

The market's firm tone prompted week-end covering in the utilities. American Telephone rallied more than a point, although it held only a small fraction of its gain. Consolidated Gas closed more than 2 points higher and Standard Gas and Electric and North American moved up one. Radio, General Electric, U. S. Steel, Vanadium, National Biscuit, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak and American Can improved about a point. Union Pacific, which was not traded Friday, rallied nearly 5 from Thursday's close. Ingersoll Rand and Auburn Auto rose 4 and 3, respectively.

Foreign exchanges were mildly irregular. There was a small decline in sterling, but the German mark continued firm.

TRADING IN CURB MARKET LIGHTEST IN RECENT YEARS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—The curb market saw only 132,000 shares traded today, the lowest for this market in recent years. Out of more than 2,000 traded on this board, only about 170 appeared on the tape. Price changes were with few exceptions of a point or less in extent, and without trend.

The more active issues, such as Electric Bond and Shares, American Superpower and Cities Service, closed unchanged.

A few of the normally lightly traded and widely moving issues made substantial advances, Duke Power jumping 9 and Hartford Electric 6⅝ points in a few odd lot sales.

A few of the utilities were under pressure.

In the Oils, Gulf lost a point, while Lion gained as much, and Vacuum improved fractionally. Humble was not traded. The Industrials were neglected.

Livestock

Livestock Weekly Review

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Cattle trade around the eleven market circuit this week was very uneven, killing classes at several points were substantially higher. Chicago with a very short supply reported upturns of 50c to $1.00. Packers, however, at markets having anything like normal runs were able to shade values on some classes as much as 25c. Western grass steers for the most part were little changed. Eastern dressed beef markets showed considerable improvement but are in no shape to take care of any liberal supplies. Replacement stock continued to meet a slow demand at mostly steady values. Corn belt areas are badly in need of a general rain and any expansion in the movement of stocker and feeder steers would probably be followed by lower prices. Aggregate receipts totalling around 141,300 were 19,000 less than last week and 53,000 short of a year ago.

Hogs are 10c to 30c higher than last Saturday but somewhat lower than the high spot on Wednesday. Chicago had a late top of $9.65. Total offerings were around 353,400, compared with 395,932 last week and 409,450 the same period a year ago.

Fat lambs after taking a price jolt of 50c to $1.00 early in the week staged a recovery and are steady to 35c lower than a week ago. Fat ewes are unevenly steady to 25c higher. The supply approximated 241,900, a decrease of 32,000 from last week but 9,500 more than a year ago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (UP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Hogs: Receipts 7,500, including 6,500 direct: fairly active, steady to 10c lower; choice 170-210 lb. weights $9.50-9.65; top $9.65; 200-250 lb. weights $9.15-$9.35; 280-lb. weights $8.90; packing sows $3.00-3.75; 110-135 lb. weights $8.50-9.00. Shippers took 5,000; estimated holdovers 1,000.

Cattle: Receipts 200; steady. Compared with weeks ago: All killing classes 50c-$1.00 higher, instances considerably more not only on steers but particularly on she stock. Closing market moderately active but rather top-heavy suggesting weakness and lower prices in the face of more liberal receipts. Run this week the smallest in 16 yers and principle influence in stimulating market. Closing top fed steers $11.15; best heavies $10.25; yearlings $10.60; heifer yearlings $10.00; most grain fed steers selling $8.50-10.00; about 1,000 grassers, mostly on stocker account at $6.25 downward to $5.00; the killer end bringing $6.50-7.50.

Sheep: Receipts 4,000, including 3,200 direct. Today's market nominal. For week: 131 doubles from feeding stations; 9,000 direct. Compared with one week ago: Native lambs about steady, early sharp decline having been regained; range lambs fully 25c lower. Scarcity of good and chioce natives a feature late. Closing bulk: Range lambs $9.50, also top for week; native ewes and wether lambs $9.00-9.25; bucks $8.00-8.25; native throwouts $5.50-6.00; fed yearlings $5.50; fat ewes $3.00-3.75. Feeding lambs 25-50c lower, mostly $6.25-6.50 throughout week; top $6.65.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Hogs: Receipts 3,500; uneven; mostly steady; top $9.55; sows $7.15-7.40. Compared week ago: 10-20c higher.

Cattle: Receipts 100; calves 50; compared close of last week: Light weight and yearling steers 25c higher; other native lower; extremes in price range steady; steers steady; bulk western steers 25c mixed yearlings, heifers and beef cows 25-50c higher; low cutters and medium bulls 50c higher; western heifers 50c lower; top for week: 879 lb. yearling steers $10.10; 1,212 lb. matured steers $10.00; 1,549 lb. choice steers $9.75; 647 lb. mixed yearlings $10.40; 734 lb. heifers $10.00; western steers $7.40; cows $5.50; medium bulls $6.00; vealers $10.25.

Sheep: Receipts 50; compared week ago: fat lambs steady to 25c lower; fat ewes steady. Week's top fat lambs $9.00 to city butchers; bulk late $8.25-8.50; common throwouts $4.00; fat ewes $2.50-3.50.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Hogs: 400; truck hogs $8.90; packing sows $6.75; feeder pigs $8.25, quotably steady.

Cattle: 150, including 50 calves; for week: most clases about steady, some late strength and small advances in slaughter steers and butcher cows. Week's tops: fed steers $7.40, fat yearlings $10.00, fat cows $5.50, heavy fat calves $7.75, light vealers $7.25.

Sheep: 350; for week: aged slaughter wethers and slaughter yearlings around 50c lower, fat lambs about 25c lower; feeder yearlings slow, around 50c lower; week's tops: fat lambs $7.25; aged fat wethers $4.00; feeder yearlings $3.25.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—Cattle—Receipts, 300; calves, 50; steers and yearlings, steady to stronger. For week: Butcher cattle strong to 25c higher than close last week; plain grass steers, $3.25@4.00; good yearlings up to $9.00; calves, 25@50c lower for week; best medium weight, $8.25; veals, $6.00@7.00; heavies, $5.00@5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 300; market fully steady; top, $9.15; packing sows and stags, $6.75.

REALIZING CHECKS EARLY ADVANCE IN PRICE FOR COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—An early advance in cotton on a continuation of yesterday's buying on the Southwestern crop situation and firmer technical position, was checked by week-end realizing today. After selling up to 12.78 at the opening, the new October contract reacted to 12.60 but steadied later on renewed covering and closed at 12.64. The general market closed steady at net advances of 3 to 7 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 10 to 16 points on overnight buying orders and further covering. New December sold up to 12.92 and March to 13.18 on the fairly active initial demand, making net advances of about 10 to 13 points, and a recovery of about half a cent from the low level of last Thursday morning.

After the early rally and prices worked back to just about Friday's closing quotations with the new December selling down to 12.75 and March to 13.04. Scattered covering continued, however, and the market firmed up in the late trading on indications for little change in Southern market weather conditions over Sunday.

Owing to the bank holidays in England, the Liverpool market was closed today and will remain closed until Tuesday morning.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 34,849 bales against 32,812 last year.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2. (AP)—The cotton market today was restricted largely to evening up for over the week-end in advance of the approaching government report. The market here opened 4 to 7 points up and continued to advance after the start owing to absence of rain in the drouth sections of the central and western belts until gains of 14 points were shown. Prices later eased off 13 to 14 points on a bearish view of the weather forecast for the coming week but rallied a couple of points at the end closing steady at net gains for the day of 3 to 4 points.

Despite the fact that Liverpool was closed first trades here showed gains of up to 7 points the market here continued to improve after the start until October traded up to 12.75 and December to 12.94, or 14 points above the previous close.

During the second hour of the short session prices eased off on a bearish view of the weekly weather forecast and prices made new lows at 12.62 for October and 12.80 for December, or 13 to 14 points from the highs. BONDS MAINTAIN UPWARD MOVEMENT IN SHORT SESSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—The listed bond market gave a fair account of itself in the two-hour trading session today. While the volume of sales diminished, the creeping forward movement of investment issues was maintained.

Convertible issues were generally firm, and there were two instances of marked strength. St. Paul adjustment 5s gained nearly two points, and Warner Brothers 6s advanced 1, although the stock for which it is exchangeable sagged at the close.

Foreign bonds were firm, and very quiet with few exceptions. Both new international issues—German 5½s, and Austrian 7s sagged ½ point each, bringing the German bond to the lowest point since it was offered.

There was little demand for United States governments the few sales recorded were for Liberties at small fractions below their peak prices of the year.

In the domestic section, the most active issues, principally Rails, showed small changes. Atchison 4s, Big Four 4½s, and Missouri Pacific 5s were firm. Union Pacific 4s, soared 1⅛ points.

Utilities did little.

CORN PRICES SOAR WHILE WHEAT GOES TO BOTTOM LEVEL

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Both corn and wheat shattered price records today, but did so in exactly opposite directions. Corn smashed through the previous top figures for the present season, whereas wheat dived under bottom levels not heretofore touched in many years.

Forecasts indicated that drought, damaging the corn crop would remain unbroken next wek, and on the other hand that there would be a liberal increase of the United States visible wheat supply total on Monday.

Closing quotations on corn were irregular, varying from ⅝c decline to 1⅝c advance compared with yesterday's finish. Wheat closed unsettled, ⅜@⅝c net lower, oats ⅛@⅝c off, and provisions showing 17@45c gain.

Extreme nervousness showed itself throughout the day in the corn market and in the wheat pit as well. Reports that rains had fallen at various points in Iowa, the state which most often as a corn producer leads all others, did much to bring about a temporary rush to sell corn and to start wheat into sympathetic weakness.

Provisions advanced readily to the highest point reached in some weeks. Commission house demand was larger.

Boston Wool Market

BOSTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Trading in wool this week has been distinctly broader than during any previous week in July; several large manufacturers have been showing more interest in current offerings of wool and during the last few days they have taken over a sizeable quantity in the aggregate. Some sales have included largely the 64s and finer quality domestic wools. The trading in lower grades showed some increase, but the business was scattered and mostly on small quantities. Prices were inclined to strengthen, but they were higher than previous ranges in only a few cases.

Little Eva Safe From Hounds in Arms of Prince

RENO, Nev., Aug. 2. (UP)—Safe from the villain's bloodhounds at last, little Eva was in the high Sierras tonight in the arms of the handsome prince.

Such, despite their denials, seemed today to be the sequel to the mysterious visit here of two young persons from Hollywood and their short stay in the chambers of Judge Thomas Moran.

Principals in the combination of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" revival and Hans Anderson fairy tale:

"Eva." Vivian Duncan of the noted Duncan sisters.

The prince. Niles Asther, tall and handsome Swedish film luminary.

The villain (not actually present). Rex Lease, film actor, whose "relentless pursuit" of Little Eva culminated in a black eye for Vivian and a $50 fine for Lease.

"Topsy." Vivian's sister, Rosetta, who was maid of honor. Rosetta it was, at the time when Asther was reputedly offering to punch "Legree" Lease's head, who said "she'd have peace if she had to fight for it."

Though bride and groom denied they were the celebrated pair, Asther softened the denial later by saying:

"This is private. We don't want any publicity."

CANVASSING OF DEMO PRIMARY VOTE DEFERRED

BROWNING HOLDS MARGIN IN RACE FOR SHERIFF

Official Count Makes No Changes in Unofficial Results

Canvassing of returns from the Democratic primary of July 26 was deferred by the county Democratic executive committee until Monday morning at 10 o'clock when the tabulating of the votes was not completed until late Saturday afternoon after an entire day of work.

The compilation was completed however, and Frank Johnson, a member of the executive committee, obtained totals late in the afternoon which will be presented Monday. At that meeting, the results of the election will be declared and the ballot for the primary of Aug. 23 drawn up.

The official totals made no changes in results as shown by the unofficial returns compiled by the Times and Record News on election night. Perry Browning still held his majority over W. G. Bralley and George Hodgins for sheriff, although by slightly less than shown in the unofficial tabulations. The official total, yet to be formally declared, however, gives Mr. Browning 4,750 as compared with 3,724 for Mr. Bralley and 963 for Mr. Hodgins.

Show Girl Shocks Exclusive Set at English Regatta

LONDON, Aug. 2. (US)—Miss Dorthy Woodward, who says she is a New York show girl, today shocked beyond words the ultra-exclusive set gathered at Cowes isle of Wight, for regatta week.

Miss Woodward appeared on the fashionable "front" in the vicinity of the royal yacht squadron wearing fringed cowpuncher trousers, an artist's blouse of pale blue, an apache handerchief knotted at the throat and a beret.

The imminent possibility that King George and Queen Mary might land from the Britannia to see this extraordinary departure from regatta week's rigidly established attire made the constabulary nervous. Miss Woodward, however, was not violating any statute they could discover so they were perfectly powerless.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNER TO ESTABLISH HOME ON PACIFIC COAST

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 2. (US)—Already the mecca for many of the world's greatest personages, Southern California now becomes the chosen permanent residence for America's Nobel prize winner, Dr. Albert A. Michelson, the eminent physicist.

At his temporary home at the Hotel Maryland here today, Dr. Michelson said that his wife had just gone back to Chicago to wind up their affairs there and to ship out here the professor's valued collections and effects to be placed in a residence not yet selected.

LOFTEN LAUNCHES SECOND PRIMARY DRIVE HENRIETTA

FAVORS JUDICIAL REFORM AND JUNIOR COLLEGE BILL

Candidate Discusses His Record in Three Legislatures

HENRIETTA, Texas, Aug. 2.—Judge Ruben Loftin, candidate for state senator from the 23rd district, opened his campaign for the second primary before a crowd of nearly 1,000 persons on the lawn of the City county courthouse at Henrietta Saturday evening.

This was said to be the largest crowd that had turned out for a political speaking here in several years.

Judge Loftin was introduced by Judge Vincent Stine, of the local district court, who stressed the importance of the candidate's proposals for judicial reform.

Judge Loftin opened his speech by expressing his gratitude to his many friends and supporters in the 23rd district for their votes in the first primary.

He laid stress on the need for a law that would permit the state to cooperate with and aid cities and communities in establishing and maintaining junior colleges.

"It costs the state $450 annually for each student in the university," the speaker explained, "whereas the cost would be only $100 per student in a junior college. Also the students would be enabled to remain at home for an additional two years during the period of life in which their characters are most easily molded."

Highway Commission

Judge Loftin also announced his plan for an elective highway commission to be composed of one man from each of four state districts and one commissioner-at-large. He said that there should be an elective highway commission and that the commission should be forced to maintain an office at Austin which would be open six days a week. He pointed out that at the present time the highway commission had no central office and did not meet often enough.

Judge Loftin discussed his record during three terms as state senator from Archer and Clay counties during the 38th, 39th and 40th legislatures.

He called attention to the fact that he helped pass the present tick eradication law, the statute making a felony of driving while intoxicated and other important laws.

The speaker said while in the legislature he served on many important committees including the following: judiciary, constitutional amendments, banks and banking, oil and gas, stock and stock raising and penitentiary.

Judicial Reforms

Judge Loftin discussed his proposed judicial reforms, one of which is the acceptanee of a verdict agreed on by nine of the 12 men on a jury in all cases except death penalty cases.

"A nine jury verdict will save the state of Texas $1,000,000 annually in preventing so many new trials in cases where nine, 10 or 11 men agree on the verdict," he declared.

Judge Loftin pointed out that at the present time a man can be indicted by nine grand jurors when he is not present, his witnesses are not heard and he is not represented by counsel.

"Yet when he is tried before a jury with his lawyers and witnesses to help him we demand a unanimous verdict of the 12," Judge Loftin said.

The candidate reminded his listeners that both the American and Texas Bar associations had endorsed the nine-man jury verdict plan

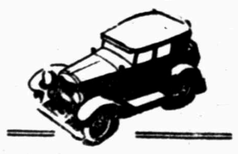

CHARTER OF CHURCHILL DOWNS IS UNDER FIRE

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 2. (AP)—Forfeiture of the charters of Churchill Downs and the Latonia Jockey club, and the recovery of $1,000,000 penalties from the racing associations on account of alleged violation of certain prohibitory laws, is asked in a suit pending before the Kentucky court of appeals.

The suit, instituted by the attorney general's department in 1927, also attacks the constitutionality of the Kentucky statue that exempts pari-mutuel wagering at race tracks from the anti-gambling laws of the state.

The case was appealed from a ruling of circuit court that the facts in petition did not justify the corporate death of the racing associations and that the demand for $1,600,000 was barred by the statute of limitations because it was a fine for a misdemeanor.

All Towns on New Paved Highway To Haskell County Line Will Aid In Radio Program Here Wednesday

All communities on the highway from Wichita Falls to the Haskell county line will participate in a two-hour radio broadcast over station KGKO from 8 to 10 p. m. Wednesday to celebrate the opening of the last link of concrete paving on this road.

Seymour's part in the program has been tentatively announced from that city as follows: Talk on the "Benefits of Highway 30" by O. P. Caldwell, past president of the Seymour Chamber of Commerce; music by Williams brothers, champion fiddle band from Baylor county; and tenor solo, Rev. E. D. Because of the extreme heat no formal opening of the new pavement has been planned and the radio program will be in its stead.

Other towns along the highway expected to send representatives to take part in the program include the following: Holliday, Mankins, Dundee, Fulda, Mabelle, Bomarton, Goree, Munday and Haskell.

John Boswell, general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, will make a brief address inviting citizens of the territory served by the new highway to take advantage of the quick route now offered to the Wichita county seat.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY AT CLOSE KANSAS CAMPAIGN

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 2. (AP)—Both sides claimed victory in the Republican contest for governor, focus of attention, as the spirited Kansas primary contest tonight neared its conclusion.

Some of the last big shots in the bombardment of speeches and statements which has kept the political thunder rumbling the past few months were fired tonight.

Gov. Clyde M. Reed's nomination by the Republican party for a second term by a majority exceeding 50,000 votes was predicted by John Redmond, his campaign manager.

At the same time, John Breyfogle, manager for Frank (Chief) Haucke, the governor's opponent, foresaw the former American Legion commander's nomination by a large majority.

GERMAN AVIATORS BRACE THEMSELVES FOR LONG JOURNEY

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 2. (AP)—Two German airmen, Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, en route to America, today braced themselves for the most difficult phase of their journey, the hop to Greenland.

The fliers, who made the 1,300-mile jump from the Orkney islands yesterday, lost no time in visiting an outfitting store to equip themselves with the warm clothing necessary for their next flight. They chose jackets made of Iceland wool.

Hirth and Weller were a pair of very cold aviators when they alighted on the improvised airfield last evening after their long trip along the edgewaters of the arctic. They had hopped from the Orkneys without fur coats, not having wished to burden their plane with the weight of such garments at the expense of its fuel capacity.

The Danish government tonight had not granted permission for the fliers to land on Greenland, but was expected to shortly. The airmen said they would make sure of a fair wind before setting out on the next hop. This may necessitate some delay.

The plane carries fuel for 60 hours, but the German airmen calculated they could make Labrador in 25, leaving an ample fuel margin for unexpected difficulties.

Washington Society Adjourns For Week to Charlottesville And University of Virginia

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—And now, for a week, we adjourn to Charlottesville and the University of Virginia.

Not football. Not college cotillions. This time something for dowagers instead of debs, and national notables instead of alumnae.

It is the institute of public affairs, young in years but mighty in reputation already, and rapidly becoming one of the reasons why Washingtonians don't wander too far from home base during the month of August.

With diplomats, officials and statesmen as its corps of speakers, the institute quite naturally entails considerably important entertainment. And such entertainment there is. Charlottesville, center of the famous Albemarle, has of recent years been becoming increasingly popular with old Washingtonians as a summer hideway, its old estates, having been bought over largely by Washington people. And to these estates will gather the great and the near great, to imbibe Virginia hospitality (and, it might be said, other things) on white columned verandas during off times of the institute.

Among the outstanding figures of the speaker-list and of particular interest, will be Senor Don Ricardo Alfaro, distinguished minister from Panama, and so long a resident of Washington that he now stands as "one of the residential set." He will take with his Senor Don Adrian Recinos, minister from Guatemala, who will also speak.

The fact that Governor Pollard of Virginia is to be presiding officer of the institute, will also draw numerous Washingtonians, for this genial official is well known and deeply liked by Washington society. Although he has never lived here for any appreciable time, he has had close connections with the numerous Washington dowagers who were interested in the move to restore Williamsburg, Va., historic old town on the James. He was a member of the faculty at William and Mary college, there, and one of the leading figures in the restoration move.

Today the little series of cabinet birthday parties, long a quiet custom in official ranks, will have to see a pass-up of one of its scheduled dinners. It is the birthday of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, but the Boston cabinet officer is spending his week-ends these days in the pleasanter climes of Massachusetts, and the rest of the cabinet is also away cooling off.

Monday, in New York, there will take place a wedding of considerable interest to Washington, when Helen Cox Ewing, of that city becomes the bride of Thomas Archibald Stone, second secretary of the Canadian legation here. The bride-to-be is a sister of Mrs. Newbold Noyes, prominent young matron here.

President Harrison Sails

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 2. (AP)—The President Harrison of the Dollar Lines sailed at noon (EST) today with 39 passengers on a world cruise, after a delay of two days caused by a fire which swept the hold of the vessel as she was about to sail Thursday. Havana is the first port of call.

CAMP FIRE SPARKS

completed the afternoon's enjoyment. The hostess played several numbers on the saxophone and Mary Isabel Crowell contributed several numbers on the piano.

Those attending were Mary Elizabeth Largin, Ida Weaver, Thelma Simmons, Billie Ralph Hyer, Mary Isobel Crowell, Nelle Ground, Harriett Miller, Grace Mowry, Mrs. Hyer, Mrs. Crowell, and three visitors, Ethel Ramberger, Norene Murrell and Mary Francis Brightwell.

On next Wednesday the group will hold a sunrise council fire and breakfast on the hills off the Seymour road. Mary Elizabeth Largin is planning the meeting. The girls will meet at the home of the guardian, Mrs. Charles Crowell, at 5 o'clock and go from there to the council fire.

Wenonah

The Wenonah group of Bowie school will meet Monday morning at 9:30 at the home of Mary McGaughey, 110 Oriole. Each girl is to bring her gift for the treasure chest.

Oawakiya

The Oawakiya group has been working on plans for a lawn carnival to be held in the near future. The last meeting was held at the home of Faye Robinson, 1814 Eleventh street, and the previous one at the home of Margaret Hutchison. On Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, Aug. 5, the group will meet at the home of Roberta Guest, 2010 Tenth street. Each girl is to bring a gift for the treasure chest.

Mankilo

The Mankilo group will meet at the home of Mary and Martha Clark, 410 Morning Side drive, on Thursday morning at 9:30. Echoes of Camp Letoli will probably be resounded, as Mankilo group was well represented at camp. Louise Rhoads and Ruth Loughridge of this group distinguished themselves by earning the "Wohelo Order" camp honor at camp.

BIRTHS

Five girls and three boys were listed in the birth registrations at the city health department office during the week ending Saturday.

U. S. AIR CORPS THROUGH PARTICIPATING IN CITY AIRPORT DEDICATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The army air corps is through participating in municipal airport dedications in cities of less than 50,000. The dedication displays are breaking up military training and tactical development, so Assistant Secretary Davison has ordered they be discontinued.

"We regret taking this step," he said today, "but airport dedications are becoming so numerous that the army cannot possibly meet the demands for planes and pilots for exhibition flights. If we did not put a brake on this activity the military usefulness of our plots would be impaired and the air corps would be transformed into a flying circus."

TALENTED YOUNG MUSICIANS

Misses Marie Dollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Dollard of 1213 Taylor street; Mary Frances Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Walker, 2303 Ninth street; Ina Joe Ogle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ogle, 1208 Taylor street, and Martha Wick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Wick of 1508 Thirteenth street, are four talented piano pupils of Miss Stella Holt and were presented in spring recital in both solo and ensemble numbers.

FLASHES of LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Whiff of powder puff is all that is needed after a flight these days for a girl to be ready for any formal affair, even a visit to the White house. Under leather flying coats on a trip from Chicago, Phoebe Omlie and Blanche Wilcox Noyes wore smart summer suits. They brought a floral invitation to the Hoovers to attend the national air races.

CHATHAM, N. J.—Addison H. Day, champion commuter of these parts, has started his 62nd year as a daily train passenger, Sundays and holidays excepted, to New York. He is a bank official and remembers the days of wood burning stoves and kerosene lamps in the cars.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J.—For an extra cost of $75 a week members of the Orange Lawn Tennis club are keeping cool. Two tons of ice are dumped daily into the club's new $50,000 swimming pool.

NEW YORK.—Whatever it is an argument for is not clear, but the receipts of the bar aboard the steamship California during a six-day cruise out of New York to nowhere in particular, just a voyage, were $5,000 and the liner was full of vacationists.

MILAN, Italy.—Alberto Pelagalli, who says he is 110 and the oldest living veteran of Garibaldi's campaigns, gets away daily with a thick beefsteak washed down with a half a litre of red wine.

VIENNA.—In the view of his landlord a tenant 83 years old is too old to have a doorkey; he might forget to lock an apartment building door after unlocking it. Such was the landlord's defense to a suit for 42 cents over failure to supply the key. The tenant had to wake up the janitor and tip him.

Lightning Fires Church

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—The church building at Martindale, a small community six miles south of here, was fired by lightning during a wind and electrical storm, it was reported today. The electric and telephone service in San Marcos were disrupted by the storm and live wires ripped loose by a bolt of lightning endangered the lives of the W. E. Buckner family.

A metal found in South-West Africa, and known as zinc-blende, produces a bright light when struck or rubbed, even under water.

BERNARD SHAW UNABLE TO HIDE UGLY FAMILY SKELETON MAKES IT DANCE IN PRIVATE EDITION

LONDON, Aug. 2. (INS)—George Bernard Shaw, to whom bitter controversies and literary sensations are as important as his vegetarian diet, startled London again today with an amazingly frank expose of his early life and family, in which he branded his father as a drunkard and attempted to explain why he has always been "a sojourner on this planet instead of a native of it."

The autobiographical references, almost without a parallel in literary history, were contained in a preface to a private edition of his works, now being published here in 30 volumes.

Lengthy extracts from the preface were published today by The London Daily Express.

"If you cannot get rid of a family skeleton," wrote Shaw, "you can still make it dance.

Social Outcast

"You will ask why I was not respectably brought up. Unfortunately or fortunately (it all depends on how you look at it), my father had a habit which eventually closed all doors to him, and, consequently my mother, who could not very well be invited without him.

"If you asked him to dinner or to a party, he was not always quite sober when he arrived, and he was invariably scandalously drunk when he left. Now a convivial drunkard may be found exhilarating in convivial company. Even a quarrelsome or boastful drunkard may be found entertaining by people who are not particular. But a miserable drunkard—and my father, in theory a teetotaler, was racked with shame and remorse even in his cups—is unbearable."

Shaw then went on to say that his family finally were dropped socially and "after my early childhood I cannot even remember paying a visit to a relative's house."

Reformed Too Late

The writer explains his "crudeness" upon arriving in London from his native Ireland in the following words:

"My father reduced his teetotalism from theory to practice when a mild fit which felled him on our doorstep one Sunday afternoon convinced him that he must finish drinking or perish.

"His reform came too late to save the social situation. And I was cut off from the social drill which puts one at one's ease in private society and utterly ignorant of social routine."

"If I had been merely shy provincially, with incorrect table manners and wrong clothes," he continues; "if I had eaten peas with a knife and worn a red tie with an evening suit, kind people would have taken me in hand and drilled me, but my difficulties were not of that easy, remedial kind.

"All my life I have been a sojourner on this planet rather than a native of it."

Immediately following the publication, tongues buzzed in literary circles concerning just what revelations even so distinguished an artist as George Bernard Shaw should be privileged to make.

JUAREZ POLICE DISARM 12 IN DEMONSTRATION

JUAREZ, Mex., Aug. 2. (UP)—Twelve men, including Manuel Avalos, candidate for congress in the recent Chihuahua election, were disarmed by police when they marched on the city hall today, carrying pistols, iron bars and sticks in a demonstration against the new administration installed yesterday.

CONGRESS FOR SEX RESEARCH

Delegates From All Over World to Meet

LONDON, Aug. 2. (INS)—That mysterious, elusive thing known as "it," popularized by Elinor Glyn and Hollywood, will be probed from all its scientific ramifications here next week when delegates from all over the world assemble for the International Congress for Sex Research, which opens Monday.

So deeply do the Freudians and psychologists expect to delve into this subject that even members of the press, with exception of reporters from the British medical journal, The Lancet, will be barred from the sessions.

The congress will be held in the hall of the British Medical association, and will last until Aug. 9, by which time it is hoped many baffling problems will be solved to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Incidentally, Miss Glyn is skeptical as to whether the congress discovers anything about sex which "the rest of the sophisticated world doesn't know."

"But isn't it sweet," she asked, "to have a congress of real scientists try to determine the whys and wherefores of the world's last untamed force?"

Miss Glyn admitted, however, that the scientists may not be gathering on a thoroughly "useless" mission.

"Scientists learned how to harness electricity," she said. "Maybe these men will discover how to make marriage safer."

Jumps to Death

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—John B. Leach, 72, jumped to death from an eighth floor hall window at the Livestock Exchange building here today. Relatives said he had been despondent since losing his position as check clerk in a railroad freight office two months ago.

NORTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIAL DROPS DEAD IN RESTAURANT

SEATTLE, Aug. 2. (AP)—T. H. Lantry, general manager of the western department of the Northern Pacific railroad, dropped dead here today. Colonel Lantry had just returned from an official trip to Spokane. He had told his secretary, George W. Lee, the night before the heat in eastern Washington had made him feel slightly depressed.

The fatal heart attack occurred in a hotel coffee shop where Lantry had gone for breakfast.

GRANT WILBARGER ROAD INJUNCTION IN WICHITA COURT

An injunction restraining the county commissioners court of Wilbarger from opening up a new road in that county was granted by Judge W. W. Cook of the 30th district court here Saturday morning.

The petition was filed before Judge Cook on the grounds that Judge Stokes of the Wilbarger district court was disqualified because of an interest in the case.

The injunction was asked on the claim that damages had been awarded the owner of the land through which the road ran but had not been paid or proffered or deposited with the county treasurer.

The injunction was issued and made returnable to the Wilbarger court, where the suit will probably be heard before a special judge sitting in place of Judge Stokes.

ABE MARTIN ON MEMORIES

"Happy Days" that won't come again"

"Long noses an' long memories go hand in glove. In ever' community ther's some ole sour busybuddy that kin recall when some well-to-do citizen wuz accused o' horse stealin' in early life, or some loved an' sweet faced grandmother wuz talked about in her young days," writes Prof. Brock Britt, popular Chautauqua star, an authority on edible fungi, in the current issue o' the Weekly Sliphorn. Further along he adds, "Learn to fergit. Life is filled with the bitter an' the sweet, with the bitter largely predominatin'. Let's train our minds to retain only the sweet an' fergit the bitter. The bitterest pills o' life come after the flapper an' bandit age—after youth has fled, an' the really serious problems o' life begin to crowd us. The joys an' sorrows of childhood an' youth are indelibly stamped in our memories, but time, the great softener, makes us smile as we recall 'em in the evenin' o' life. The odor o' the rose geranium, the fushia nosegay, awaken memories of old happy days back in the mist o' years, days of hope an' youth. Whether it wuz the first kiss in a side bar buggy, or a first quarrel in the dark shadows o' the ole gas works, the rose geranium seems to have been ever near to perfume the occasion. Mebbe the whiff o' some long fergotten hair oil 'll recall some pleasurable event when the heart wuz young an' indiscriminate. A nibble at peppermint drop 'll often waft us back to the ole time musty parlor with its Brussels carpet, an' family album, an' turned down lamp. An' nothin' makes us live over again, the wonderful, carefree, barefooted days like takin' a generous bite of an Indian turnip. The tingle o' sleighbells never fails to awaken memories o' the glorious winters of our youth, snowy landscapes, cold glistenin' moonlight nights, taffy pullin's an' ringin' laughter. All o' these sweet memories are worth preservin', but the sorry trials, rebuffs, an' disappointments that set in when the joyous illusions of youth vanish should be fergotten as often as they bob up an' not allowed to sadden an' poison our lives. No matter how well ordered our lives may be we're goin' to have to swallow a lot o' bitter pills, so let's swallow them gracefully even if we git the reputation o' bein' stolid an' unfeelin'. Recallin' all o' the calamities an' sorrows o' the past an' how insurmountable they seemed at the time, let our motto be, "This too'll pass away," no matter what sort of a problem comes along. Too many lives are dominated by unpleasant soul destroyin' memories. Let us fergit that we ever knew some people, that we ever got gipped. Let's make the best o' things we can't change or dodge. Ther's bound to be somethin' pleasant come along now an' then to snug away among the memories of our childhood an' youth, the golden memories o' mud pies, red top boots, Indian turnips, frosty sleight rides, first kisses, Hoyt's German Cologne, damp, mildewed parlors an' side bar buggies."

DIARY OF A LONDON HONEYMOON—By P. G. Wodehouse

Being Extracts from the Journal of Irma Withers, Whose Husband Refused to See America First.

MONDAY: I feel sure this is going to be one of the most unpleasant honeymoons I have ever had. Henry would come to London. I told him that I wouldn't like it, but he said that he was sick and tired of spending his honeymoons at Niagara Falls.

He is so obstinate and self-willed. I think he must be one of those cave-men you read about, or Abysmal Brutes, or whatever you call them. He insists on having his own way. So different from Horace and Theodore, and even Harold—though he could exhibit an iron will—never refused to yield to my wishes right at the beginning of the honeymoon.

His interest seemed centered in barmaids.

Yet, when I told Henry that I did not want to spend our honeymoon in London, he said in the most brutal way that, if I refused to come, he would go alone. "I want to see the great monuments of history," he said. "Me for the Morgue and Big Ben and Public Houses and the Crystal Palace, where the King lives." So here we are, and I am sure I'll hate it.

Right from the start I began to feel uneasy. His interest seemed centered in barmaids. I began to feel that it might be difficult to induce Henry to keep his mind on his job. How different it all would have been in the pure air of Atlantic City.

TUESDAY: It is wrong of me to feel a slight but well-defined thrill of happiness at the discovery that Henry, too, is having his troubles. We are staying at a hotel in Bloomsbury, and this afternoon the proprietor brought Henry a large sheet of questions to fill in. After all the trouble we had in getting our passports, I think they might let us alone. Henry had got as far as "Born, Waupakoneta, Walla-Walla County, Wisconsin — Father absent at the time, but Mother there—hired girl a Swede—Mother a Methodist — Father nothing," when he began to feel faint and asked the senile waiter—all the staff here are at least a hundred years old—to bring him a bottle of Pabst. The waiter gave a shudder. "It's after two-thirty, sir," he said. "And they call this a free country!" said Henry.

The waiter then presented the anti-wine card. "We can do you a nice stone ginger beer, sir, or a glass of barley water. Or would you prefer a beaker of milk-and-soda?" Henry staggered out of the place, clucking like a wounded hen, and I did not see him again for the rest of the day.

Can it be that I have been deceived in Henry? Is he the sort of man to whose care a young and trusting divorcee should have given her happiness? I am beginning to have forebodings. (Later. Henry has come back, complaining of being poisoned. It seems, from what I can make of his disjointed ramblings, that he spent the afternoon lowering himself to the level of the beasts that perish by means of a beverage called Kipp's Ale, discovering only after he had consumed several dozen that it was non-alcoholic. I feel sure Henry is not all that I thought him to be.)

WEDNESDAY: There is no doubt about it. Henry's fascination is beginning to wane. I managed to drag him out to see the city's objects of interest today. As I very justly said, now was the time to improve our minds—after we had settled down to our married life it would be too late. He showed a most indecent exultation on learning that Stonhenge wasn't in London as I thought, and wanted to go to the movies. But I was firm, and we made our way to Westminster Abbey.

It was while we were making for this wonderful edifice that Henry made the first of those mistakes which, if persisted in, are certain to lead to our being arrested as spies and shot at sunrise in the Tower. He said that he was tired of walking, and he pulled a whistle out of his pocket and blew it for a taxi. The next moment a large policeman had him by the scruff of the neck and was telling him to come quietly. It was only my repeated assertions that Henry was not responsible for his actions and would never do it again that kept them from putting him in prison.

Really, I do think I have been deceived in Henry. An Abysmal Brute is bad enough, but an Abysmal Brute who is also an apparently incurable bonehead is a combination which few wives have been called upon to love, honor and obey.

He pulled a whistle out of his pocket and blew it for a taxi.

When we got to Westminster Abbey, we spent a fascinating hour gazing at the slabs beneath which lie England's mighty dead. "There," I said to Henry in a hushed whisper, "lies Edward the Eighth!" And all Henry could reply was that if ever he got out, they could cable the news to him collect. I am beginning to see that he has rather less soul than the common wartnog.

THURSDAY: Today has ended everything. I induced Henry to take me to lunch at the Cheshire Cheese. "This place," he said, looking round him, "reminds me of Germany." (He has, I believe, occasionally visited rathskellers in New York.) "Bring me a stein of Wurzburger, Moerlein, and Anheuser Busch." The waiter smiled and said that he understood American humor and brought us a pigeon pie and a glass of bitter ale.

FRIDAY: Henry has received an invitation for us to visit an aunt of his who lives somewhere in London. She has religious mania and is a vegetarian. We dine with Aunt Georgiana in the suburbs this evening, and remain as her guests for the night.

SATURDAY 6 A.M.: I have just wakened Henry from a troubled sleep to inform him that there will not be any remainder of our honeymoon. I am going out to get a divorce.

HOMEWARD BOUND: Have instructed my New York lawyer by wireless to get me a divorce and to have it ready for me when I land. I have also sent a wireless to Eustace, telling him to meet the boat and take me out to lunch. My faith in men is well-nigh shattered, but if Eustace means business—as he has often hinted—I shall insist that we spend our honeymoon in the neighborhood of Broadway and Forty-Second Street.

The Story of Sue

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Mrs. Merryman and Harry were chatting together, very sociably, in front of the fire, as Sue entered. Harry jumped to his feet at once and took Sue's bundles, frank, open comradery in his manner. "Just like he was when he went with me, and yet he thought he was in love with me?" Sue thought amusedly, "But he was a little more ardent . . . at first."

"Harry's staying to lunch, Sue. Can you hurry it up?" Mrs. Merryman called. "The table's set and the coffee's perking, but that's as far as I could go till you came with something for the cupboard."

"And I'm starved," Harry added. "I hope you have a lot of whatever you have!"

Sue remembered the soup and fruit that she had planned. And she had wanted the whole afternoon to help Grace with final wedding plans.

Well, she reasoned, she could serve the tomato soup, with a spoonful of whipped cream in each bowl. She would heat the crackers and make fruit salad. Thank fortune, her mother had canned lots of fruit. Peaches, pears and pineapple would help the oranges and bananas in her bag, and the cupboard held salad dressing, a few nuts, and some lettuce. The only bread was hard . . . she had forgotten to get a fresh loaf. She decided to make cinnamon toast from it. But she needed something for dessert . . . there was half a sponge cake left. She remembered a box of milk chocolates which someone had brought her mother . . . she would melt them and make an icing for the sponge cake. Sunlight made a yellow rug over the kitchen floor and the blue bowls and jars caught the light which danced in waves as blue as any sea. Cooking, Sue reasoned in a happy undercurrent, could be fun if one did it for someone who mattered . . . for one particular person.

Now this cooking that she was doing now . . . Sue caught herself dreaming and her hands moved more swiftly but her thoughts went on. Cooking such as this was only work because it was a task, not a pleasure. Barbara had refused to help Jack when he needed her. She had wanted the things that money could buy and love couldn't. Sue remembered her own engagement to the man who was sitting in front of the cherry-red fire, talking to her mother. She couldn't marry him because she had wanted the things love offered and money couldn't bring. But Corrinne had received both . . . "But if I could have just love, nothing else would matter," Sue whispered to the cream whipper. "But Jack isn't going to think of gingham aproned heroines."

A dancing line of carefree girls in the cloud pinks and blues and yellows of a tropical summer drifted past Sue's eyes, and far away she heard the imaginary music of a haunting orchestra. What was it Jack had said? . . . "The southern girls have curls and graces."

"I came to make a suggestion, Sue," Harry's cheerful voice interrupted her dreams.

HEAT AND DROUTH AGGRAVATE SERIOUS WATER SITUATION

Wichita Falls Sadly Deficient in Two of Three Primary Essentials Provision Adequate Water Supply

By ELEANOR FLEMING

In the midst of one of the worst heat waves and drouths this section has ever endured, Wichita Falls finds herself in the position of facing fire dangers, having to drink unfiltered water and paying too much in insurance premiums—or, in other words, "paying for a good water system and not having one."

There are three very important phases in the provision of an adequate supply of good water for a city—quantity, distribution and quality. All are necessary, in the order named, and one is almost of no value without the other two.

Wichita Falls has the first requisite of the three—one of the best supplies in the country in the three lakes which feed into the filtering plant. Next in order of importance, the distribution system, is sadly lacking, and the third, a good large filtering plant, is a necessity the lack of which has been deplored for several years.

Miles and miles of small water mains, laid underneath the pavements of the city many years ago, are carrying the 6,000,000 gallons of water necessary to quench the daily thirst of the city, when they are only half large enough. The downtown mains are 8 and 10 inches in diameter, and those out in residential sections are six and eight inches. A few are only four inches in diameter.

According to George D. Fairtrace, city manager, it would require a new set of mains measuring from 12 to 24 inches in diameter to give the city an adequate distribution system. This would cost about $500,000, Mr. Fairtrace said. At present, booster pumps are being used in the tallest buildings to raise the water to the top stories, and the pressure is so low in the evening that city officials and aldermen are kept at the phone about three hours every night answering complaints.

Bad Time for Fires

If there should be a big fire between 6 and 8 o'clock some evening, the inadequate pressure would tie the hands of the firemen, as it did last summer when every truck in the city, equipped with the best type of pumps, fought futilely to save a building in the industrial district while only a little water trickled through a four-inch main.

If, for instance, the Antlers hotel had burned in July instead of December and late in the afternoon instead of the middle of the night, the entire downtown section might have been wiped out, because even the best fire department can do nothing without water. If there should be a fire out on the hill this summer, two or three blocks might be wiped out in the same way.

An adequate distribution system would save the people of the city $64,000 annually in insurance premiums, it is estimated. The city's annual output in premiums is $600,000 at present.

Until something can be done about enlarging the network of mains, there is nothing that can lessen the danger and expense except watering the gardens and lawns at a different time of day. The city parks are watered from midnight until 6 a. m., partly because it is mose beneficial to the plants and partly because it saves the water pressure. If water were turned off by citizens when the fire alarm is heard, it might also help in fire fighting.

It would be infinitely better, of course, to remedy the distribution system and enlarge the filtering plant at the same time. The amount which would be required to make the city's water system as nearly perfect as possible would be approximately $1,400,000, according to Mr. Fairtrace. The passing of a bond issue for this amount would mean either a 22-cent raise in city taxes or a 33 1-3 per cent increase in the water rate, but would not be as expensive as water softeners, hard-water soaps and insurance rates at that.

The danger of by-passing water and risking epidemics and the danger of handicapping the fire department in its work is enough to warrant some action in the matter. "There is nothing more important to the city's welfare today than its water system," said a recent luncheon club speaker. "There is nothing more essential to the healthful condition of any city than a good water system—an adequate supply, a good distribution system, and a high quality of pure drinking water."

PRESIDENT OF PHILIPPINE SENATE SAILS SATURDAY TO VISIT UNITED STATES

MANILA, Aug. 2. (AP)—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, sailed for the United States today on what he termed his supreme effort in behalf of the Filipino people.

Quezon said he was going in quest of a definite determination of the political status of the Philippines and also a declaration by the United States that it was going to leave the islands within a set period of years or was going to stay indefinitely.

The senate president believed such a declaration would relieve business of the present uncertainty, permitting it to learn what the future holds and to shape its program accordingly.

Quezon's undertaking was regarded by many as perhaps his final gesture in the field of statecraft which has held him for so long. More than a year ago he submitted to treatment in a California sanitarium but the islands soon called him. He has not been presiding over the senate, however. Senator Sergio Osmena has been acting in Quezon's place.

MAKE FIG WINE IN KANSAS JAIL

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Aug. 2. (AP)—The little town of Turon nearby hasn't much need of a jail and the lockup usually isn't a lockup at all for it's left wide open.

Constable Frank Verbeck yesterday noticed a shiny padlock on the door. Finding no one who admitted responsibility, he broke into the jail.

Within he found 50 gallons of fig wine in the making, its process being speeded by yeast and raisins.

PROTEST DETENTION OF MAN AT ELLIS ISLAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—A telegram of protest against the detention at Ellis island of August Kosutich, former minister of public works in Croatia, was sent today to Secretary Stimson of the state department by the chief committee of the Croatian nation, an American organization.

The telegram charges that Kosuich is being made the victim of Jugo Slavian politics. His lawyer said the ostensible charge on which he is being detained—a shortage of bank funds—was false.

Kosuich is the son-in-law of Stephen Radich, Croatian leader, who was assassinated in the Belgrade parliament last year.

WORKMEN FIND MARBLE SARCOPHAGUS BELIEVED THAT OF CONSTANTINE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 2. (AP)—A beautifully carved marble carsophagus believed by Turkish archeologists to be that of the Emperor Constantine the Great, founder of Constantinople, has been discovered in a garden of the Janissary museum.

Workmen turned up the sarcophagus while digging an entrance to the huge Byzantine cistern beneath the museum and the St. Sophia mosque which will soon be opened to the public.

Turkish authorities have not completed a study of the tomb, but are confident that it is Constantine's.

ATTORNEY GENERAL TO PAY VISIT TO SCOTLAND LAND OF HIS FATHERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Atty. Gen. William D. Mitchell sailed today for Scotland, land of his fathers, on the anchor liner California.

With him were Mrs. Mitchell and their son, William. They will go to the shooting preserve of John F. Harris of New York, which is located in northern Scotland, near Blair Athol. Mr. Mitchell said he expected to do some grouse shooting.

He declined to discuss prohibition enforcement.

A LIFE IS LOST

Every 50 Seconds in This Country From Preventable Diseases

Every year 1,500,000 sick beds are kept filled unnecessarily. Every year 100,000 people die of chronic diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, and the majority are far advanced in such troubles before they are aware of their condition. Get yourself and the members of your family examined.

The detection of these chronic diseases at a curable stage, and the detection of the causes of many of these diseases even before they arise, is just about as easy as turning into another street.

Research has revealed that three-fourths of the blood infections are traceable to inoculations and to heredity or accidental causes.

Blood disease has existed since the world began.

It is the same scourge today and affects all classes of society throughout the world.

Nine per cent of all the people are victims.

Eight per cent of all diseased children, for which Blood Poisoning is responsible, die in infancy.

It causes insanity in an appalling degree, from 9 to 34 per cent of such cases being traceable to it.

The dread locomotor ataxia is almost invariably caused by it, as well as paresis or softening of the brain.

Before middle age it is the chief cause of apoplectic or paralytic strokes.

The heart and blood vessels, as well as other vital organs, do not escape its ravages.

The span of life is shortened thirty-three and one-third per cent by it, and its presence in the blood is the cause of anguish, misery and suffering beyond description.

Knowledge is the greatest thing in health matters. Find out what ails you. Do it now.

Every reader of this paper should have a blood test. The Health Service Institute will give you a Wasserman blood test for $3.00.

Our equipment, experience, laboratory facilities and connections are equal to any up-to-date institution in this country. The offices are completely equipped for diagnosis and treatment of the sick. Every apparatus and device has been installed that we regard as helpful in relieving the sick. If you are ailing or thing you are not in normal health, come to us for a complete examination. Practice is conducted along highest professional lines. Charges are always reasonable and terms arranged to suit each individual patient's convenience.

Consultation is free. The Health Service Institute is permanently located in Wichita Falls at 727½ Indiana Ave., in the Kahn Bldg. Office hours daily 9 to 5; Wednesday and Saturday evenings 7 to 8; Sundays 10 to 12 only.—Adv.

THE 1930 TAX RATE

Texas taxpayers may feel some disappointment that the state tax rate is to be one cent higher this year, but there should be a measure of consolation in the fact that the school system is the beneficiary of the increase. The general tax is three cents lower, but the school tax is made four cents higher. Tax rate increases aren't ever pleasant, but most of us are less likely to complain when the increases are in the interest of the public schools.

We hope that some progress will be made at the next session of the legislature toward a system of taxation that will not depend so heavily on ad valorem revenue. More and more states are discovering that equality and uniformity in taxation are incompatible with the direct property tax and are turning to other and more equitable means of producing revenue. Texas has tried to bring about something of a change by tinkering with the existing system, and there is no real hope of relief along that line. What is needed is a scientific remodeling of the system. We hope the next legislature will at least make a start in that direction.

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP

There were seven candidates for lieutenant governor in the recent primary and they managed to hash up the vote pretty well. Edgar E. Witt, state senator from the Waco district, and Sterling P. Strong of Dallas, for years a dry leader, emerged from the mix-up to go into the run-off.

Mr. Strong was leader of the prohibition forces in Texas twenty-odd years ago, being in command of the forces that tried, unsuccessfully in 1909 but successfully in 1911, to get a dry amendment submitted to Texas voters. We believe he was a candidate for state office some time in the last decade, but memory doesn't serve us well enough to tell what he ran for or how well he ran.

He is one of only two Hoover Democrats who survived the first primary, the other being Pat M. Neff, candidate for railroad commissioner.

Mr. Strong faces a hard contest in the run-off, with the popular Waco senator as his opponent. His service to the dry cause was noteworthy, but it was a long time ago, and voters forget.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY'S OPPORTUNITY

No one among the observers of the present political scene has keener powers of observation or better understanding than has Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer of the New York Evening World, writer of several books on political history, and temporary chairman at the Houston convention.

In a recent article Mr. Bowers calls attention, in a way that every Democrat should heed, to the special opportunity that now confronts the Democratic party. His words should be read and taken to heart by every loyal member of the party. They state the case in plain and unequivocal terms. They picture the opportunity, but they also make it clear that unity and courage are needed to take advantage of it:

Seldom if ever has an opposition party anywhere had such an opportunity for a successful aggressive fight on the party in power as that which comes to the Democratic party today.

Our governmental system means party government, and experience has shown that a representative democracy functions best through parties. Under party government the party in power must be held to a strict accountability by the party of the opposition. Thus the party of the opposition is as essential to making good government possible as the party in power.

Where the opposite party is alert and prone aggressively to take full advantage of every failure or blunder of the party in power, the latter is compelled to measure up to its responsibilities or pay the penalty in defeat. Where the opposition is apologetic and timid there is no real check on those in power, and such an opposition party forfeits public respect and abandons the field.

Never in the memory of living man has any administration so completely collapsed within less than two years of its installation as that of Mr. Hoover. The lack of courageous leadership, the tragic dearth of constructive statesmanship and a puzzling indifference to public opinion has brought it dangerously near to popular disrespect. Thus far there is not one successful act of constructive statesmanship to its credit. Its promises have been repudiated in its acts. Its remedies for serious conditions have signally failed. In the midst of an economic crisis it has seemingly suffered a paralytic stroke.

Mr. Bowers proceeds to offer a bill of particulars. Farm relief in which "the administration has practically proclaimed the mockery of its own remedy"; the tariff bill that "robs the consumer outrageously while challenging the retaliation of our best customers overseas"; the failure to even try to do anything about unemployment. He draws the parallel between Taft's first two years and Mr. Hoover's first two, showing how each, after at first contending for limited tariff revision, was forced by the reactionaries to abandon his position. The Democrats in 1916, he recalls, were able to seize the opportunity thus given them.

Events have made a mockery, Mr. Bowers points out, of two venerable hoaxes that have influenced the public:

One was that the Republican party is "the only party fit to govern" and that the Democracy was lacking in the qualities of constructive statesmanship. It was a rather stupid theory, in view of the generations of Democratic domination before the Civil war. It could be disproved, however, only by new experience—and then came Woodrow Wilson.

Never since the first administration in the formative days have so many progressive and constructive measures of a high order been written into law as during the peace administration of Mr. Wilson. In less than the time that has elapsed since the inauguration of Mr. Hoover Democratic statesmanship had revised the tariff without a scandal and given to the service of business that supreme act of constructive genius, the federal reserve system.

Since more constructive measures of an abiding sort were written into law during the first administration of Wilson than in the 14 years of Taft, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, the hoax about Democratic incapacity is dead.

The other was that a Democratic administration means hard times and a Republican administration means "prosperity at home and prestige abroad." Well, we have serious depression at home now, and that prestige abroad which reached its greatest heights in the days of Wilson was never lower than it is today. That hoax is dead.

And there was another disadvantage under which the opposition party labored—the feeling that business fares better under a Republican than a Democratic regime. This referred to the tariff. But this was before we had become an exporting nation whose mighty industries require foreign markets to keep our furnace fires aglow; and before we had become the greatest creditor nation on the earth. Times have changed and the policy of the party in power has come to be a menace to a majority of the manufacturers who want markets and to the financiers who must collect upon their loans.

The Democrats cannot win by waging an apologetic fight, Mr. Bowers declares. It must assume the aggressive and it must offer something more than a change in policies; it must offer a change in the point of view, and that change must be in the direction of a return to fundamentals:

Never since Jefferson's time have conditions so called for the application of his principles to existing problems as now. The concentration of power, the disregard of the sovereign rights of states, the trend toward unregulated monopoly, the saturnalia of privilege that picks the pockets of the people, the transfer of the power to tax to the president, the threat to our foreign trade, government by commission—out of these, and more, party leaders should be able to formulate a constructive and protective program.

To restore popular confidence in the purpose of government to serve all the people is the mission of the party now in opposition. Not just a change in parties, but a change in the point of view. A change that means less sordid materialism and more of the humanities in government, less privilege for the few and more of equal rights for all, less bureaucracy and more democracy.

It goes without saying, in contemplating the party's opportunity, that it must forget its past differences and dissensions and face the foe with unity and harmony in its ranks. The fight is not to be won easily and the party will need all of its strength. Mr. Bowers concludes:

Never has it been in a better position for an aggressive fight since the days of Jackson. For the first time in many years its national committee has been functioning steadily, full steam ahead. Its publicity has been painful to the party in power because it has been prepared after meticulous investigations. Its arsenal is full. Its leadership in house and senate has been sound and wise. It is prepared to take the aggressive from now on.

But to win it must force the fighting—and without apology.

Books Our Boys Should Read

By GLENN FRANK
President of University of Wisconsin and Former Editor of the Century Magazine
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

A three-year research of striking significance was conducted by Edwin D. Starbuck and his colleagues in the Institute of Character Research at the University of Iowa on the ways and means of evaluating literature that will be conducive to sound character development in our children.

The first volume of the report of this research deals with fairy tales, and it knocks the bottom out of some of the time-honored tales we have long served to our children, showing specifically why they are not "good" for children.

The second volume of the report of this research deals with fiction, and it presents eight definite standards by which we may select the fiction that is likely to prove "good" for children.

First, the good book has organic unity.

If a book is to strike the spirit of a child with one harmonious and forceful impression, it must be a book that is integrated and unified so that it is seen and felt in its entirety. A book that is a hodgepodge is not likely to be a force for the child's sound development even if it purports to deal with sound principles.

Second, the good book shows good craftsmanship.

Books that are built by sloppy craftsmanship are not conducive to sound character development in the child who reads them. If we are to use literature to develop in our children accuracy, clarity, beauty and delicacy of thought and feeling, the literature we use must have behind it a good craftsmanship that gets these qualities into the literature.

Third, the good book shows an effective emotional tone.

As adults we may have our minds changed by cold and colorless books that give us new facts, but children must be moved by books that have color, warmth, human appeal.

Fourth, the good book deals with vital, robust, and humanly significant materials.

We cannot expect to develop our children's character through trivial books. The books we give our children need not always be serious, but they should be significant.

Fifth, the good book depends for its effectiveness on artistry rather than preaching.

The good book for children neither talks down nor talks up to them; it feels with the child rather than thinks for him.

Sixth, the good book is truthful.

Children's characters are developed by books that are true to the facts, but not by books that twist the facts in order to point a quick moral.

Seventh, the good book stimulates and refines the best qualities of humanity.

Eighth, the good book paints life in true perspective.

If we feed our children's minds with books that distort life, they will suffer distortion of outlook.

Here, I think, are eight standards worth pondering as we buy books for our sons and daughters.

Economy

On summer days I like to ride
Out on the pleasant countryside,
And buy, amid the rural scenes,
Some grapes and cantaloupes and beans
That cost me only four-bits more
Than what I pay at the regular store.

It's just about the time of year when the June bride quits caring whether he comes home for lunch.

Revised version of well known poem suggested by announcement that Mr. Hoover is going west on his vacation trip——"Out where the farmers are going broke, out where your farm relief's a joke, that's where the West begins.

The Vacation Tour

Whenever we see, as we do pretty often these days, an automobile full of folks out on a vacation tour, we are tempted to stop and talk to them and find out how things are going. We are curious to know whether auto-vacationing is really such fun. We have an idea that it is badly over-rated as a means of recreation.

So every time we see a family on tour we have a desire to step up to the husband and father and take him aside for a minute and say, "Lissen, brother, I am what is known as a seeker after truth. I want the low-down about this touring business. I want the cold unadulterated truth. Loosen up now, and tell me all about it."

We have never done that but we believe that if we should yield to the impulse and accost some wayfarer in that manner, and gain his confidence, his first move would be to put his head on our shoulder and sob silently for several minutes.

There was a touring family parked near the office the other day. It was pretty typical of the general run of them. The car's number and appearance indicated that it came from somewhere in East Texas. The man of the family had that honest but ignorant look which one encounters so often in Texas but of which one never realizes the significance until the primary election returns are coming in. He had a smear of iodine on his face and the back of his neck was sun-burned. He gave us the impression that he had begun to waver in his determination to have a care-free and joyous time out in the wide open spaces where men are men and wheat is sixty cents a bushel.

The Happy Family

We were standing close enough to the car to overhear the family's conversation. It dealt with something that had happened an hour or so before when they had a flat and the husband and father got out to fix it and the baby leaned out to watch and dropped most of an ice cream cone down papa's neck. That was where the iodine had come in. The talk indicated that papa's comment on the incident had somewhat marred what the French would call the joie de vie of the expedition.

The lady of the family was clad in coveralls and was chewing gum. There are many women who think they look fetching in coveralls and nearly all of them are wrong. This one weighed about 192 in the shade and she did not look fetching. On women of that size, coveralls are too loose in some places and too tight in others and they are usually too tight where they should be loose, and vice versa. The woman looked as if she would have given a dollar to undo one or two buttons regardless of consequences.

All of the family wore the grim, resolute look that says, plain as words, "We're gonna have a good time if it kills us."

No touring family is ever complete without its quota of children. Usually there are three or four and of these, there are invariably two who look as if they needed tonsilectomies. And there is nearly always a sprightly youngster of two or three who has the habit of wearing his victuals instead of eating them. The front of his garment is almost always glommed with ice cream, hamburger meat or watermelon, and sometimes all three.

In this particular family, the youngster was an exception to the rule, the first we have ever encountered. In his case it was sardines.

Watching that family, we experienced our usual impulse to step up and ask the brother to tell us what was on his heart. We refrained, knowing he could tell us nothing we did not already know. Instead, we had another impulse.

Telling Him

We wanted ever so much to approach him and say:

"Brother, at about 10:29 this morning the little girl there upset the thermos jug of ice water. At about 3:51 this afternoon when you stop for gas, that little boy there will get out of the car and make contact with the wrong end of a red ant.

"Tomorrow morning, brother, when you have progressed about 51 miles from the tourist camp where you spend tonight, it will be discovered that you left behind the baby's new yo-yo, the wife's vanity case and your lug-wrench.

"You will spend the next eight nights in tourist camps and in seven of them there will be babies nearby that wake up and start broadcasting at anywhere from 2:02 a. m. to 3:59 a. m.

"You will go fishing four times. Three times at places where there are two fishermen for each trout bigger than a minnow, and at the fourth you will be arrested for not having a non-resident license.

"Your children will have tantrums, poison ivy and colic, all at different times. Your guaranteed battery will go dead at a point just halfway between two places. You will have to cash a check in a town where there is no Elk's lodge. Your wife will quit speaking to you for two whole days but otherwise the trip will be devoid of pleasure."

But we didn't tell him all that. We didn't tell him anything. It wouldn't have done any good. In such cases it never does any good. But any of our readers who have taken such trips know that we would have called the turn.

The leading Democratic gubernatorial candidate in Oklahoma attributes his success to his campaign poems. But what politics needs, in Oklahoma and elsewhere, is more truth than poetry.

There's no doubt that summertime is here. They're discussing the water problem again.

Graduate Your Exercise

People who are beginning to take up exercising usually make the mistake of overdoing it at first. When muscles have not been limbered up for years they may become stiff and sore for several days after a few minutes of heavy exercising. Those who take up exercising too suddenly usually quit just as suddenly, for when they feel the aches and pains that have been brought on by overdoing it, they conclude that exercise may bring greater strength for everybody else, but it just isn't their medicine.

I always find it necessary to advise, enthusiastic patients to begin very gradually with exercise, taking it first in moderate amounts and gradually adding more as the strength permits. In this way, exercise builds up without over-tiring, and one reaps the full benefit of added strength and endurance.

When exercise is doing you good, it makes your eyes bright, your cheeks rosier, the skin does not look fagged, there is a spring to the walk, the patient enjoys life, feels renewed vigor, sleeps well, and comes to meals hungry as a bear.

The signs of over-exercising are: the eyes are dulled, the face looks pinched, the skin grayish, the patient feels tired, is irritable, doesn't want to eat, snaps at the least excuse, and is too keyed up to sleep.

The prime test for exercising is not how tired it makes you, but how it makes you feel after a full night's sleep. If you feel irritable and disinclined to move the next day, then you have over-exercised. Those whose vitality is low cannot afford to exercise to the point of exhaustion. In exercising you must learn when you are exhausting your own strength limits. Exercise as much as you can but don't overdo it. Exercises should be taken until you feel pleasantly tired. When you exercise beyond this stage by simply trying to see how much you can do, you may become so keyed up that you cannot relax.

Do not make the mistake of thinking that if a moderate amount of exercise makes you feel good, a great deal of it will make you feel better. During vacation time many people make the mistake of swimming, hiking or dancing until they are sore in every limb. It would be much better if they took their sports less strenuously. On the other hand, it is not a good plan to take a few exercises and never increase the number. Begin slowly, and as your muscles become stronger, either take the exercises harder or take more each time. In this way you can see your strength gradually increasing. You feel discouraged. This is the way to build strength and vitality that is lasting.

One of the finest methods is to take short setting up exercises morning and evening. Do this every day and take a daily walk. Two or three times a week try to get in a good tramp or swim. Follow this with a brisk shower and rub-down with a rough towel and good night's sleep. If you have been careful not to play too hard, such a program will make you feel up on your toes and "on top of the world." That is the reward of correct exercising.

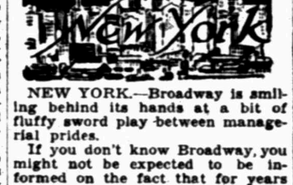

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Frederich's Ataxia

Question: A. O. writes—"I have a boy 15 years old whose case has been diagnosed as Frederich's Ataxia. When I asked the doctor about it he told me to read up on it, but I have been able to find very little about it. I will appreciate any information you can give me."

Answer—This is a hereditary disease in most cases. There are changes in the spinal cord and cerebellum causing them to be smaller than usual. The walk is swaying and irregular, resembling that of a drunken person. In making voluntary movements the action is exaggerated and the hand sometimes moves around the object and then pounces upon it. There are also cases where the body sways in a regular movement. The speech is slow or explosive. The expression is dull, but the mental power is usually maintained in the early part of the disease. This disease is usually considered incurable, but some beneficial results can be obtained through muscle re-education by training the patient to perform complicated muscular feats. I believe that a fasting and dieting regime might prove helpful as the disease somewhat resembles hereditary chorea, and I have had several cases of this latter trouble which responded to this method of treatment. I will be glad to send you instruction if you will write again, enclosing a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

NEW YORK.—Broadway is smiling behind its hands at a bit of fluffy sword play between managerial prides.

If you don't know Broadway, you might not be expected to be informed on the fact that for years the New Amsterdam theater has been the producing capital of Mons. Flo Ziegfeld. Here, year upon year, his Follies blossomed as the rows filled. From his office emanated the information that the brand of Ziegfeld upon a chorine made her just a degree more beautiful than any other in the world. Which, whether or not it was swallowed by the public, did no damage to the pride of the girlies.

Very well! Just up street a half dozen blocks a certain Earl Carroll held forth in his seraglio of lovely femmes and, upon the entrance to their dressing room, he caused to be printed a sign reading: "Through these portals pass the most beautiful girls in the world."

You can see at once that there was a difference of opinion.

Be all this as it may, M. Ziegfeld went out to add limbs to the Hollywoods. And while he was gone M. Carroll took over the New Amsterdam for his 1930 "Vanities." But the Carroll sign has been changed to read, "Through these portals now pass the most beautiful girls in the world."

And just wait until F. Zieldfeld hears about that.

And while on light, summery and facetious subjects, I am asked to introduce the "butcheret." She's what a butcher would be if he were slightly more dainty.

The first "butcherets" in Manhattan, so comes the information, would be found eventually in a meat shop in the Hotel Belleclaire where a certain Samuel Slotkin had decided that meat should be merchandised even as bathing suits or Fifth avenue gowns.

There will be display windows and cases.

And, instead of the good old sawdust floors that made butcher shops the places that they were, there will be handsomely carpeted floors. The "butcherets" will be pretty salesgirls and the sales will be made from show cases, even as ribbons and rings are dispensed.

While Mademoiselle Housewife is making up her mind whether papa would prefer calf's liver to pork chops, she can sit down at a modernistic table and read a cook book or a magazine at least two weeks newer than might be found in a dentist's office. The shop, in other words, will have the general appearance of a Fifth avenue shoppe.

Truly, the world grows just a bit too dilettante for the likes of me.

In the old days, Walter was mixologist to some of Manhattan's most celebrated cocktail tossers. The historic bar-rendezvous of yesteryear, where the swells and spenders gathered, knew him well. Today he shakes-'em-up in one of the better whisper-lows.

At any rate, we fell to talking the other day and Walter loosened up with the information that he was going "way out West" for his vacation. First time he'd ever wandered very far from the Manhattan trails, and he's a white-haired man.

"I've got a son out there," he said proudly, "a cowboy and he's on a place outside of San Antonio. He ran away from home when he was 17 and I've never seen him since. Funny—the country boys run away to New York—and the New York youngsters run away to the West. The other day I picked up a tabloid newspaper and there was his picture, sitting on a raring broncho, playing an accordion. Funny way for a New York kid to turn out—but I like it. So ma and I are going out to see him ride a bronc and to take a look at the West."

—GILBERT SWAN.

The total length of Broadway within the limits of greater New York is 15¼ miles.

PRIZES

Edgar A. Guest

Beware the showcase, where they hold
The silver trinkets and the gold.
Stand not too long, with eager eyes,
To gaze on any offered prize,
Lest you may set your mind on things
And lose the joy that manhood brings.

Play not for watches, cups or pins;
If these are all the victor wins
Then he has bartered priceless fame
Some cheap and trivial thing to claim.
No glittering prize-shelf holds in store
A thing that is worth cheating for.

Forget the prize! The game you play
Will live when you have passed away,
Without the glittering, tawdry stuff
A manly sport holds joys enough.
Play hard and struggle for the goal,
But for a watch don't sell your soul!

'Twere better could we never see
The prize held out for victory.
Then all to manhood's best might cling,
Untempted by some glittering thing,
And make an honest score the aim
Of every contest, match and game.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—It is becoming more or less axiomatic around the capital that nobody's desk is safe.

No sooner does the flurry die down over one case of apparent political espionage and pilfering than some one else reports that his office has been entered and some of his papers messed up or stolen.

The latest victim is Judson King, head of the National Popular Government league, who was collecting endorsements from various prominent persons to be published and used in Nebraska to aid the renomination campaign of Senator George W. Norris. King had sorted out statements from about 20 Washington newspaper correspondents who had paid tribute to Norris, and someone seems to have entered his office and purloined them. His theory is that some anti-Norris element was responsible.

Senators Suffered, Too

Most such little incidents seem to have some connection with the senate. About a year ago people began to whisper in your correspondent's ear about the weird feeling on Capitol hill that mysterious forces were at work "getting something on people."

The "spy scare" early this year when senators thought their offices were being entered and searched for liquor, the reports of other senators that their desks had been opened during the fight against Judge Parker and the more recent breaks into the office of Senator Hiram Johnson of California all helped intensify the feeling of resentful apprehension.

This was vividly described by Paul Y. Anderson, correspondent of the Nation, last month as follows:

"The first thing the observing visitor is likely to remark in Washington nowadays is the atmosphere of suspicion, distrust and dread which pervades almost every department of the national government. Among officials of all ranks one encounters the same feeling of being watched and plotted against by secret enemies. The fear which emanates from the White House has spread over the capital.

"Under a president who sees in nearly every prominent member of his party a secret aspiration for the nomination in 1932—and in every hint of opposition to his policies a conspiracy to wreck his administration—it it not strange that cabinet members, congressmen, chairmen of commissions, bureau chiefs and secretaries are engaged in suspecting their subordinates and each other of equally dastardly designs. All sense of security has vanished.

Records are Stolen

"Senators' offices are visited at night and their most intimate correspondence read by a visitor wearing cotton gloves. Important records are reported missing from government archieves. Guards are increased and doors that have been unlocked since the civil war are barred for unexplained reasons. It is like living in a dime novel. When the chief shivers everyone else shakes."

Justifiably or not, people here do get excited about that sort of thing. The senate went to the trouble and expense of having new and better locks put on its office doors recently and guards were reinforced. Half a dozen senators in all have complained of having their precincts rifled this year, and according to them it's no joke at all.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

Eng and Chang, Siamese Twins, Were Bitter Enemies—The father of the Siamese twins was a Chinese of noble extraction, Chang being the first-born inherited his father's status, while Eng remained a commoner. They married the two Yates sisters of Wilkes-Barre, N. C., raised large families, and lived to an old age. In the light of their literal inseparability, their frequent quarrels were a curious feature of their existence.

Angoulaffre Was Twelve Feet Tall.—The Saracen giant Angoulaffre was killed by Roland in single combat at Fronsac in the eighth century. Roland, the famous hero and nephew of Charlemagne, was of extraordinary stature, being eight feet tall.

The "Fanny Wolston" Drifted 9,300 Miles.—The drift of the "Fanny Wolston" is the longest on record. Between Oct. 15, 1891, the date it was wrecked, and October, 1894, when it disappeared for the last time in the Gulf stream, it drifted in loops between the Bahamas and the Azores, a total distance of 9,300 miles in exactly 1,100 days, and was identified 46 times on its erratic course.

A Snail Was Kept Alive in an Air Tight Jar.—The true snail hibernates by closing the mouth of its shell with its membrane, and turning inactive and torpid. It can remain in that state for an indefinite period of time. Its endurance powers are enormous.

Worth the Bragging

WHEN SHOULD A GIRL SEE EUROPE? - By Kathleen Norris

MRS. NORRIS

There are many good mothers, scattered about in comfortable city apartments, or in eight-and-ten-room country town homes, who secretly dream about giving the little daughter of the house a year in Europe, before she is out of school days.

Secretly, because dad is not enthusiastic on this head. And then there is Tom, who is vacillating between a second college year or a job. If he goes back to school, and dad's business continues to be as shaky as it has been of late, mother doesn't see exactly how she and Jean can desert them. There's the trip, too. Travel is expensive, even though "they say" you can live for "nothing" in little Swiss pensions. Most of us are perfectly willing to figure that $1,352.65 is well spent on a trip that takes us to some place where we can live at $11 per week for seven weeks.

"My dear, two lire,—that's less than 10 cents!" women say, displaying a handkerchief bought on the Lung' Arno. They skim lightly over the hundreds its costs to get the Lung' Arno and the 10 cent handkerchiefs.

Living in a pleasant town, under big trees, with the usual car and country club, the usual civic work, high school work, Girl Scout work, church work, mother yearns to give Jean a taste of true culture. New York, even for a day, the ocean, Cherbourg, five days in Paris, and then nine months of a Vevay school, and the child would be different all her life, and beside, she would "have her French!"

Thus argues mother. Dad, on the contrary, feels that it would be "more fun" to wait until Jean is—say 17, and then all go; he and Jean and mother and Tom, all together.

"But this isn't fun," mother argues patiently. "It's her education, dear. If we can possibly afford it, I feel we owe it to Jean!"

For so many of my own younger years I agreed with mother that I have real sympathy for her. And yet my profound conviction now is that such a scheme, even for the mother and daughter who can well afford it, is time and money wasted, and nine times out of ten does Jean more harm than good.

It sounds entrancing—the trains, the ship, the tickets, the darling little villages with thatched roofs and grape vines, the strange languages, the novelty and excitement of it all. And so it is, and if the whole thing were merely to give Jean pleasure, for a few vacation weeks it might be justified. But when it comes to leaving a little American girl in a Swiss or French or Italian school, her unhappiness, the discomfort and homesickness she suffers, more than wipe out the memory of those traveling weeks, and Jean never thinks of her European experience afterward without a shudder of horror.

She comes back alienated from her old crowd, and she never catches up with that lost year.

To be sure, "she has her French," —for awhile. But her old friends haven't, and although she gets a little innocent satisfaction out of using it smoothly before them, when rare occasion arises, it is hardly worth that $5,000 letter-of-credit it cost dad to send her to chere Madam Rousillets.

Very shortly if Jean is a normal girl, she forgets her French almost entirely. She doesn't need it; and the boy upon whom she has a violent crush considers the single phrase, "Oh parley vous mon dieu wee wee!" to be more than equal to any language crisis, and witty in the bargain.

If you doubt this, ask some 30 or 40-year-old woman of your acquaintance about it.

"Elinor, didn't you have a year in a French boarding-school when you were about 15?"

"Oh, yes, mother carted me over to Berne, I never did know why."

"Well, you got French out of it."

"Oh, yes, I used to jabber like a native. And after I was married I went on with mademoiselle's classes, here—remember that winter? But my dear, I haven't a word of it now!"

Not the exceptional case, that; the typical one. Most of us don't use foreign languages much, even when traveling, nowadays. It is charming to have girls able to read French and pronounce it correctly. But they don't have to cry and mope and freeze and starve in foreign boarding schools, to do that.

The ideas of Europeans about girlhood are, to us, very peculiar ideas. Little French girls have sophisticated knowledge about everything; men, marriage, birth-control, diseases, and must pretend to know nothing. Little American girls pretend to know everything, and are really rather innocent and ignorant and simple, about life.

Athletics, in European schools, are much less important than with us. In Swiss schools some girls walk seven, 10, even 15 miles through snow, and develop an absolutely peasant hardness, which is fine. But some girls break under the strain. Some girls flourish in cold, stony, unwarmed rooms all winter, attending classes with frost-bitten cheeks and fingers. But some girls can't stand it. One girl I knew actually died of cold, in a European school, and many have told me that they were never warm, from November to March. Another girl I knew climbed a fence that was topped with murderous broken bottles, slashed herself frightfully, and ran away to me, in Paris, desperate to get home. Which, incidentally, she did, with some remarks from me on the side, for her father and stepmother.

One of the richest women I know put her daughter in an Austrian school 10 years ago. What the girl endured from loyal little war-remembering classmates and teachers the mother will never know. One detail was having to fill lamps; there was neither gas nor electricity in the school. She wore —they all did, long hideous aprons, heavy boots, pigtails.

"And I cried because daddy didn't want me to come!" said the disillusioned little girl who survived this experience. "It was a lost year. I've never needed my German, always have hated it. I used to lie awake, crying—mother had gone back to Carolina. How could I ask her to turn right 'round and come rescue me? I knew I couldn't get out until June, when Aunt Margaret was coming over to bring me back."

Far more valuable than her French, her German, her Italian, to the daughter of the house, will be her close devotion to her own family. If you can, give her French now, and in a few years all go abroad, and enjoy her pretty efforts to be understood in Paris, together. Go to England, and let her trot about with daddy, while you and Tom ride on omnibusses and take in music hall shows; go to historic Edinboro', and to France. Keep them all together, that is the thing that is goin gto mean something to all of you, always. Developing her, educating her, off in unusual directions, only means creating a chasm between her and her own group and deprive her of the interests and pleasures that are normally hers.

Years ago a traveling woman on an Atlantic liner congratulated a returning American girl of 18 upon her beautiful Italian.

"Oh, yes," she said unsmilingly, "I've been abroad four years. I've been taught to despise America in practically every European language!"

It sometimes amounts to that. The rich, common, materialistic, money-grubbing Americans who still must be tolerated because of business and of marriage settlements—that's what much of Europe considers us. Sometimes a few years of that sort of thing demoralizes a girl for life. Drifting about the big European capitals there are lots of such women, Americans who went over for a visit, and became expatriated, and never really belonged to either country afterward.

These persons hear Europeans talking money—the talk of it incessantly—they see titled Europeans baiting rich Americans to their dinner tables, to interest them in investments, they see them selling their daughters in marriage, trying to catch American heiresses for their sons. And still they go on lamenting America's low standards, her lack of culture!

Nothing is finer, educationally, than occasional visits abroad. Nothing is worse than European standards of morals; their ideas of social values, of caste, of title, of idleness, of the leisure classes and above all of America itself for us and our children.

'Bossy' Gillis in Race for Senate Opens Campaign

FITCHBURG, Mass., Aug. 2. (AP)—Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis of Newburyport today was a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

He assembled friends in a lunch room last night and announced his candidacy. "I am going to be the next United States senator and you can put that in your hat," he said.

Gillis, commonly referred to as the "bad boy" mayor of Newburyport, has had a career that reads like fiction. After an uphill struggle in various business ventures, he entered politics to oppose a former mayor who sought reelection and who had been a bitter competitor of "Bossy" in several business ventures.

Campaigning with a method new to the staid old New England city, Gillis startled even his friends by winning the election. Frank talks with no shortage of descriptive words and" hot blasts" against the "highbrows on the hill" featured his campaign. He was reelected for a second term by a slender margin.

During Gillis's first term as mayor, he had the distinction of directing the city's affairs from within the Essex county jail. He served a short sentence for having erected and conducted a gasoline filling station in violation of existing laws. It was the same station that caused differences that ultimately resulted in his entry into politics.

DISTRICT LODGES TO BE HOSTS FOR PYTHIAN PICNIC

The Knights of Pythias lodges of this district, which includes the Henrietta, Wichita Falls, Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electra lodges, will be hosts to the Texas-Oklahoma Annual Pythian Picnic association this year.

They will hold their annual picnic Aug. 12 at Coleman's park, which is located one and a half miles west of Iowa Park. This is the site used by the Denver lines for their annual picnic.

This park is a beautiful grove of large pecan trees fitted with an abundant layout of tables and benches for serving the picnic dinners. It also has a band stand and a good well of water.

The program will be arranged for the usual picnic day sports and contests for the forenoon and a big family basket dinner at noon followed by a band concert and speaking by some of the leading Pythians of Oklahoma and Texas.

This is the fifth annual celebration held by this association. The former ones were held in the Wichita mountain government preserve in Oklahoma. At the last meeting it was voted to come into Texas for this meeting.

C. W. Gorin, K. of R. & S. of Pioneer lodge is president of the association. Anyone wishing further information may call him. All present and former Pythians and their families are invited.

Secretary State Will Be Present To Attest Birth

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 2. (AP) — The mill boy who became his majesty's secretary of state for home affairs, J. R. Clynes, will soon come here to be present at the birth of the baby expected by the duches of York early this month.

This is in accordance with the ancient British law which decrees that the birth of a possible heir to the throne must be attested by a secretary of state.

Mr. Clynes will carry out this state duty in the same manner in which the birth of the prince of Wales was attested by the late Lord Asquith.

Asquith sat behind a screen in Queen Mary's room. At that time she was the duchess of York. The princess of Wales, who later became Queen Alexandra, was with Asquith. When the present dashing young crown prince was born, the princess of Wales, wearing a blue dressing gown, carried the infant in her arms and showed him to Asquith. The home secretary then went back and reported the historical fact to his government and the royal birth was duly registered.

A special room in Glamis castle has been reserved for Mr. Clynes and he will be the guest of the duke and duchess of York.

Should the expected infant be a boy he will be the third in line, after the Prince of Wales and duke of York, for the crown, displacing his sister, Princess Elizabeth.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that while no salic law applies to royal succession in England, the daughters in royal families must always take a subordinate position to the sons.

Amusements

Paul Whiteman and His Band Are Heard at Majestic in 'King of Jazz' Billie Dove Picture on Wednesday

"The King of Jazz" is one of those productions which will amaze, thrill and amuse any spectator. It isn't at all possible that such a movie will ever again be made on such a scale. Therefore, it behooves entertainment seekers to take advantage of its showing at the Majestic between now and Wednesday.

There are so many outstanding features in this production, it would hardly be fair to try and say just what is the best. John Boles is seen and heard as never before. No longer does he wear the long sideburns and dress in funny costumes. We have heard what a fine looking chap he was in Texas university and wondered why he was not given the opportunity to show to the female fans why he gained all this sudden popularity. In "The King of Jazz" he is seen to the best advantage and how he sings.

Paul Whiteman proves beyond the shadow of a doubt why he is called "The King of Jazz." He presents his band, and everything they play keeps your feet and hands moving all the time. Never before has there been so many catchy, tuneful melodies in one picture. Never for one moment is the feature allowed to drag. There is a dash of comedy, then a big surprise and then in comes Paul Whiteman and his band, then they are gone and something new is before you. The whole entertainment is over before you realize it and you feel that you would like to stay and see it all over again if you just had the time.

The cast includes Laura La Plante, Jeanette Loff, Glenn Tryon, Merna Kennedy, Kathryn Crawford, George (Slim) Summerville, Stanley Smith, Bill Kent, Grace Hays, Brox sisters and hundreds of others.

In addition to this feature, Eddie Cantor is appearing in another comedy sketch, "The Cockeyed News." This comedian is proving to the world why he stayed on Broadway so long and thanks to the talking pictures, the public is now able to see such stars right here in the home town. The program is finished with the talking news events of the world.

"Sweethearts and Wives"

Mingling comedy, drama and mystery in succession, "Sweethearts and Wives," coming to the Majestic Wednesday, is reported to be one of the fastest moving and most amusing light domestic dramas of the year. Billie Dove, whose forte is her beauty, steps out of that role long enough to take the role of a French maid in a mysterious inn. Billie demonstrates another of her distinguished talents in making this change.

Clive Brook adds to his laurels by giving a near perfect characterization of a detective who specializes in fashionable divorce cases.

"Shooting Straight"

Richard Dix, ever popular screen star, will be seen in a new type of characterization in "Shooting Straight," an all talking drama starting at the Majestic for four days next Saturday.

The role is that of a two-fisted gambler whose regeneration is achieved after a series of thrilling and dramatic occurrences. Dix has played practically every type of role during his notable screen career, and recently has proved himself to be a most capable farceur in light comedy parts. In "Shooting Straight" he is brought back in a powerful, dramatic and red-blooded role that has been hailed by audiences and critics as one of his greatest achievements.

CITY PARK CHILDREN TO PRESENT PUPPET PLAYS AUDITORIUM

Three puppet shows will be given Thursday evening by children who have been under the supervision of the city recreational department in three different city playgrounds. The program which includes the shows is to be given on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

The children of Sixth street park will give the play "Epaminondas," those of North Side community, "Three Billy Goats," and those of Scotland park, "The Bremen Band."

(1) Adorable Norma Shearer, the stunning star of "Divorcee," creates another great role in "Let Us Be Gay," with Rod La Rocque and Marie Dressler. Now showing at the Strand.

(2) Paul Whiteman and his band in "King of Jazz," with John Boles featured at the Majestic through Tuesday. A red hot riot of life, love and laughter theater patrons will enjoy.

(3) Billie Dove comes to the Majestic Wednesday in "Sweethearts and Wives," with Clive Brook and Leila Hyams. A romantic mystery picture with plenty of laughs to amuse you.

Norma Shearer in 'Let Us Be Gay' Attraction at Strand, Followed by Moran and Mack, 'Two Black Crows'

Another famous New York stage success serves as Norma Shearer's newest starring picture now showing at the Strand. It is "Let Us Be Gay," Rachel Crothers' popular comedy of marriage and morals which played for nearly one year on Broadway. Like "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," both of which revealed Miss Shearer as one of the most talented actresses in Hollywood, "Let Us Be Gay" suits the Shearer technique to the proverbial "t." As the dowdy wife who divorces her wayward husband when the "other" woman becomes a bit too bold, and then develops into a charming and sophisticated woman of the world, Miss Shearer creates one of the most delightful roles of her career.

Playing opposite Miss Shearer is Rod La Rocque. As the divorced husband who meets his former wife three years after the Paris decree and then makes the startling discovery that she is the most charming woman in the world, Rod La Rocque is the real thing. It is a splendid role for La Rocque, one that he plays with evident sincerity and enthusiasm.

"Anybody's War"

Moran and Mack, the famous musical comedy and radio stars, better known in the world of entertainment as the Two Black Crows, now make their second starring appearance on the talking screen in the riotous comedy, "Anybody's War," coming to the Strand Friday. And in this new Paramount picture, Moran and Mack play throughout in blackface in a brand new, original, laugh-provoking story that reveals these two well known entertainers with a whole new set of funny sayings. As two thoroughly lazy, drawling darkies who have their own ideas on how to make the world safe for democracy, Moran and Mack reach new heights in the realm of comedy antics, getting more hearty laughs from a New York preview audience than they ever did when they were the stars of Earl Carroll "Vanities."

'THE UNHOLY NIGHT' AT GEM THEATER ON SUNDAY

Realism was rampant when Lionel Barrymore directed "The Unholy Night," Ben Hecht's London mystery drama filmed as an all-talking drama by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and showing at the Gem theater Sunday.

A group of British army officers are the center of dramatic action, and the roles were filled by Roland Young, Ernest Torrence, Gerald Barry, John Loder, Phillip Strange, Richard Travers, John Roche, Richard Tucker and John Miljan, all famous on the stage and recently in pictures.

Of this group of Englishmen, Young, Barry, Loder, Travers, Roche, Miljan, Tucker and Strange all are former commissioner officers.

Sheriff Admits That He's Licked Sues for Divorce

RENO, Nev., Aug. 2.—(UP)—Jesse P. Webb, former sheriff at Wingo county, West Virginia, and reputed a pretty tough hombre with law-breakers, knows when he's licked, according to a suit for divorce on file here against Bertha Artis Webb.

Webb claimed that his wife:

"Threw heavy glass tumblers and a clock at him.

"Twice invaded his room while he was sleeping and turned on the gas to asphyxiate him.

"When she couldn't accomplish that tried to asphyxiate herself and their youngest child."

Motorist Drives Car Through Four Barbed Wire Fences and Escapes When Cornered in Wichita Pasture

Two men in an old coupe drove through four barbed wire fences in order to escape J. B. Fitts, county highway officer, and C. L. Bradford and Jess Leverett, county highway patrolmen, in a night chase through a pasture west of Iowa Park several days ago.

Mr. Fitts stopped a coupe carrying two couples at a filling station on the highway near here when he noticed it had an old license plate on the front and a dealer's plate on the rear.

He arrested the driver and was going to his car to trail the suspect to town when they made a dash for freedom.

The fugitives escaped but the officer had recognized one of the girls and, calling the two highway patrolmen to his aid, went to the girl's home, located on a ranch near Iowa Park.

The two men were preparing to leave in their car when the officers reached the gate providing the only entrance to the pasture in which the home was located.

Mr. Fitts stopped by the gate while the motorcycle officers went on after the suspects. The car made a dash for the gate after taking the officers in a circle through the pasture, but was forced to turn back when Mr. Fitts shot at the front tires.

The driver finally escaped after going through four fences in order to reach a highway.

Incoherent Party System and World Wide Economic Depression Add to Germany's Trouble With Democracy

By FRANK H. SIMONDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—It is impressively indicative of the distance which Germany has traveled in the five post Locarno years that the dissolution of the reichstag by presidential decree and the imminence of a new general election leaves the world calm. Nor is this calm much disturbed by the current predictions that the results of the new political campaign will bring added strength to the political parties which respectively champion revolution and reaction, namely the Communists and the Fascists.

In reality the latest German crisis has a twofold explanation. On the one hand, Germany is suffering from the world-wide depression which in its American phase may have political consequences in the congress elections this fall. On the other, the reich suffers from an utterly incoherent party system and all too brief training in democratic government.

As to the economic depression, it is certainly not as bad as in Great Britain or Italy. Measured by unemployment figures, it is probably not worse than that in the United States. But, unlike all three of these nations, Germany faces reparations payments, and has so far failed effectively to balance her budget. Her treasury is again "in the red" and there is lacking to the present government the authority and the courage to impose the necessary burdens or, more exactly, to reduce the unnecessary expenses.

In a word, although Germany has accepted the Young plan and is fulfilling her obligations under it, there still remains the more or less subliminal conviction that the burden is at once impossible to carry and undeserved in fact. What is required is a political administration having the votes and the will to compel the German states and people to reduce their own expenses so that they can at one time balance their own domestic budget and pay their war debts, as fixed by the treaty of Versailles and the Young plan.

In his last annual report, in winding up his administration of the reparations payments under the Dawes plan, Parker Gilbert sounded again the note of warning which has been frequently on his lips. Germany, he said, had adequate resources to run her own affairs and pay her obligations, but the rate at which she was spending had produced an unbalanced budget and would ultimately impair her capacity to pay her conquerors.

But it is easy to imagine the consequences when a political government, even with a strong majority party behind it, tells the voters, who are the taxpayers, that they must economize at home to pay abroad. There is, too, always the fatal dilemma that the more Germany does reduce her domestic expenditures and thus insure foreign payments, the less the chance of further reductions of these payments. Good behavior, contrary to all copybook rules, thus insures punishment long continued.

Many Political Parties

Germany, however, has anything but a strong government. In place of the two-party system familiar to Americans, she has what is literally a 20-party system. And, dropping the minor political groups, she still has something like a half dozen parties of considerable size and none with anything like a majority. Moreover, these parties are not only divided from each other by real and profound differences, but are split within themselves in such fashion as to make effective and united action well nigh impossible.

In the first years after the revolution, which followed military defeat, Germany was paralyzed as a consequence of the fact that there was a fairly even division between the republicans and the monarchists. Since Locarno, and in fact since the brief but momentous rule of the late Gustav Stresemann, the question of the survival of the republic has tended to become less and less a question of immediate importance. The monarchists have not in great numbers abandoned their belief in the old form of government, but they have increasingly appreciated the fact that restoration as a practical matter was well nigh impossible.

Little by little there has grown up among the more moderate monarchists an appreciation of the fact that the republic has come to stay for a time at least and that the more immediate issue is economic rather than political. Stresemann himself was always seeking to bring about a working arrangement between the Nationalists—who were mainly monarchists—the Populists—his own party, who were also in a majority believers in the old system—and the Catholic Center and Democrats, who were Republicans.

The basis of this coalition of the so-called bourgeois parties would be the resistance of the Socialistic program. Stresemann sought to bring about a coalition of these parties to resist socialism, putting aside for all present time the question of the form of government.

He was never able to do this, however, because sooner or later the extremists in the Nationalist ranks would become intransigeant and attack the republic from within a coalition which included the republicans of the center and the Democrats. Much against his grain, he was forced to go to the Socialists again and again for the votes to carry out the international policies. On the other hand the Socialists were naturally averse to supporting steadily ministries which were dominated by party leaders who were their enemies on all domestic questions.

The collapse of the present cabinet is a result of the recrudence of the old evils. Actually the cabinet was overturned because the Socialists and Nationalists, or more exactly the extreme faction of the Nationalists headed by Hugenberg, for totally different reasons voted against it. The Nationalists were angry because the cabinet was too moderate, the Socialists, because it was too reactionary. And the effect of hard times was, of course, far from negligible.

Permanent Split

Not more than half of the 78 Nationalists, however, followed Hugenberg gladly, and now they have broken away and returned to the leadership of Count Westarp. As far as one can now see this means a permanent split in the Nationalist party, the Hugenberg faction tending toward the Fascist camp of the Hitlerites, the Westarp group standing apart and perhaps in the end arriving at some sort of association with the People's party.

Should this actually happen it would patently be all to the good. What Germany gravely needs is some simplification of her party system. She needs a party which, if not republican in spirit is yet willing to accept the existing system for all present time and to make its appeal as an economically conservative camp. The living issue in Germany today is economic, not political, but no political party fully satisfies this situation. Thus the Nationalists are split between extremists and moderates, the center between extremists and radicals and the Democratic party, which resembles the British Liberal party, seems dying of the same disease which is carrying off its British prototype.

Germany Experimenting

Under the surface there has been steadily developing a conviction that what Germany needs is less parliament and more executive, a bigger president and a smaller congress, size denoting power. This is not to say that Germany desires a Hohenzollern back or a Mussolini ahead. There is a vociferous minority advocating both as there is an equally noisy minority clamoring for the Red Russian form. What Germany is reaching for, more or less unconsciously, is that form of government which combines the safeguards of democracy with the efficiency of monarchy. And of course no such thing has yet been discovered.

The French are, so far, the only people who have made the so-called bloc system, the system which results from the existence of many parties or groups, work. To the outsider, this system seems to work very badly even in France. The French, however, have had a full century of experience with a more or less real parliament dating back to the revolution of 1830, which sent the last Bourbon packing. And beneath the incoherence and chaos there is a political instinct which enables them to employ a Clemenceau or a Poincare when they are in real difficulty.

Germany has not yet had time to develop in the French way, nor, one must add, is it by any means sure that she ever will. On the contrary, it is toward a more powerful president that she turns. And in this state of mind Hindenburg is the ideal man. But uphappily he is old and no successor is in sight.

The most orderly people in the world, for the Germans certainly are that, seem then doomed to suffer for a long time to come from one of the most disorderly governmental systems in existence. Yet there is no sign that they will follow the Italian example and take the short cut a dictator supplies, nor is there much reason to believe that they will go back to their old system.

Democracy is not in Germany the result of long experience as in Anglo-Saxon countries or of sustained struggle, as in France. Monarchy abdicated to Socialism in Germany in November, 1918, to escape Bolshevism, but the mass of Germans were not Republican, much less Socialists. In fact there was not any real Republican party, in our sense. On the eighth of November the mass of Germans went to bed subjects of an emperor and on the morning of the ninth found themselves citizens of a republic, wholly without any conscious decision on their own part.

Meantime, since Germany has the proportional system in voting, no sweeping change in representation in the reichstag is likely. After election, whatever the result, the problem of forming a ministry by some form of coalition will be identical with the problem which proved insoluble in the recent past and precipitated dissolution. There will be a few more Social Democrats, Communists and Fascists, and almost certainly fewer Nationalists and Democrats, but no party will have a majority and the necessity to mix oil and vinegar will recur.

Actually Germany is suffering from the familiar disease of democracy in its infancy, which is an odd affliction for a great people in all else so unmistakably mature. But as far as one can see, Europe, the world in general, has little to fear at the present stage. Post-war Germany shows no sign of going back to Potsdam or forward to Moscow.

TIMES BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

THE LITERARY LANTERN

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

In a batch of midsummer fiction which ranges from mediocrity downwards, it is a privilege to be able to select two novels of distinction—two of which we venture to predict will last a long time in the top rows of their respective classifications. One is a negro novel and the other deals with white Tennessee mountain characters.

Langston Hughes, a native of Missouri, one of the best and the most individual of the young negro poets, has been promising his first novel for a long time, and his poetical gifts would lead us to expect a brilliant performance, though we must admit that his preoccupation with jazz had led to the expectation that his prose style would be mannered and stylized, and his chief interest the surface description and colorful elements of negro life. We almost feared another Harlem sex piece. What Mr. Hughes has given us in "Not Without Laughter" (Knopf, $2.50), is a simple chronicle of a negro boy in a small Kansas town, his childish hopes and disappointments, his growing awareness of the music and discord in the life of his race, his struggle for balance and an upward lift where even those who loved him best are pulling him backward. The author's chief emphasis is on characterization, and his style is a simple straightforward prose which lapses only a few times into a sort of breathless impressionism. His people, particularly the old grandmother, Hager, and the blues-playing loafer of a father, are full of life and reality. The background of small town life is sincerely and well described. Mr. Hughes is only a little bitter over race discrimination. His detached attitude is most effective in descriptions such as those of "Children's Day" when the little blacks are excluded from a promised party. Here is perfect understanding and sympathy with a child's petty and enormous woes. It is largely because of Mr. Hughes' depiction of the colored child's psychology that we feel this book could only have been written by a colored man—and it is the only negro novel we know of about which we do have this feeling.

If we have any quarrel to pick with "Not Without Laughter" it is with the form. There have been too many novels of late which are merely episodic. The character may develop through the succeeding events, as he does here, but his career is picked up and ended anywhere—there is no rounded plot, no great complication, no inevitable end.

March of Events

"This Day and Time," by Anne W. Armstrong. (Knopf, $2.50) is more than a chronicle of episodes. One feels in this novel the march of events, even though it is the almost accidental inter-relation of characters which brings tragedy to the life of the central character.

Ivy Ingoldsby appears first, returning with her boy to the mountain cabin where she had spent her brief happy married life, before the unexplained desertion of her husband. She has been trying to support herself in town and has made sorry outs at it. As she says, "I'ud sooner be dead, 'way yonder, the grape vine a-growin' on my grave —I 'ud sooner be a-rottenin' in the ground, as to think I had obliged to set at a machine all day, shet up in one of them wearisome old factories, a-stitchin', from daylight till dark, an' hit jest to live." Exulting in the familiar scenes, she rejoices over the first woodchopping. "Law, Enoch, don't hit seem nice to be a-gittin' firewood, place o' that old dirty coal in town!"

But though she is strong and hardy and the neighbors are kind, she has a hard time making a go of it alone. Every mountain woman should have a man and a lone woman is fair prey, but Ivy keeps them all beat off and also manages to nourish herself and Enoch. Always she remembers that Jim has mentioned casually that he'll be back to see her "some sweet day," and for that meeting she plans and works, her fierce pride causing her to hide this same hope behind bitter words of accusation for Jim. And so the months turn by. Ivy delighting in her mountain world, laughing and joking, suffering with the tragic lives about her, sometimes angry and hurt, reproaching herself when she has quarreled with a neighbor. And then Jim comes and goes, and her tragedy is more than losing him, she has lost her pride and flown at the man who had blackguarded her. "I hain't nothin' but jest a old mountain woman where 'ull fight same as a man ef she flies mad, same as ary old drunken sot." But her bitterness and despair cannot break her—Enoch is there and "people is so good, hain't they?" She is too much a part of the elemental life of a mountain woman to be embittered at what that life has done to her.

Superior Novel

This, baldly, is the plot of "This Day and Time." Woven in with Ivey's story are the stories of an entire mountain neighborhood. They are related with simplicity and a remarkable depth of understanding. Armstrong has realized fully the beauties of the mountain dialect. This reviewer feels that the book should rank close to Miss Roberts' "The Time of Man," and Miss Glasgow's "Barren Ground." Anyone who mises it will be missing one of the best books of the year.

Mrs. Armstrong learned to know the mountain people when she went, as a child, with her father on his prospecting trips into Kentucky, Tennessee, and North Carolina. Lately she has returned to live near the Smoky Mountain National park.

The excellence of the first two books on our list this week sets a high standard for the others we have to review. The war novel "Contact," (Sears, $2.50), suffers by comparison, though it is, by reason of its subject matter, extremely interesting. This is the sixth book of Elliott White Springs, the South Carolina writer, one of them, his "War Birds," having been a best seller. As the title would indicate, "Contact" is a novel concerned with an aviator in the world war. It is informative as well as exciting and gives a slant on the psychology, the peculiar trials and adventures of a type of soldier about which little has been written.

"Roarin' Rinconada," (McClurg, $2.00) is a wild west tale of the same type as the good old wild west movie, where the hero outshoots and outloves and outrides every outlaw opponent, is identified with the mysterious masked gunman, the Scorpion, but reveals and shoots this desperado, winning his ranch-girl sweetheart. The scene of the story is Texas and Arizona.

Warning—Keep Out

Two novels must be listed here and regretfully labeled "practically unreadable." They have been carefully read by this reviewer because there is always hope that one of the less well known publishers may turn up an author worth discovering. These two are disappointing—"Shadow Shapes," by Edwin Carlile Litsey (Robert Packard, Chicago, $2.00), concerns the Kentucky Bluegrass aristocracy, and "Gates of Destiny," by Edna G. Cornell (Meador, Boston, $2.00) is an exaggerated romance of scions of the old South—the scene is left thus indefinite.

The last novel on our list, "The Daughter of the Blood," by Herbert Bouldin Hawes (Four Seas company, Boston, $2.50) works out an unique ending to the historical mystery—the disappearance of Virginia Dare and the Lost Colony of Roanoke island. Mr. Hawes prefers to believe that the first white child born in America was saved along with one Richard Grenville, young son of a leader of the colonists, that these two became priest and priestess of the nearby Indian tribe and lived in idyllic state among them, the youth refusing to marry the maiden, however, until she has had a chance to choose from other whites. In their search for another colony they help to save Captain John Smith from Powhatan's executioner, they meet Pocahontas and reach James Towne. But the contact with the white settlers is so disillusioning to these children of nature, that they fade away. Back into their wilderness and savage kingdom they go. And so forth. We have still to wait for a real romance, drama or poem, of Virginia Dare's life and death.

Windy Hill

By EDITH MIRICK

She kept her love
Close to her breast;
Her faith was packed
In a locked chest.

On Sundays one
Went out to air;
The other bare.

Now warm she sips
Her love like tea:
She folds her faith
Down tenderly.

And looks askance
Because I hold
My rags so tight
Against the cold.

O windy hill,
How can she know
Where faith can stray,
Where love can go?

Book Companies Wage War Over Price Cutting on Popular Fiction

Some of the pioneer publishers in the move for $1 books are pictured here. John Farrar, upper right, and Stanley Rinehart, left, declare the lower price will bring an enormous increase in book sales and the number of readers. Max Schuster, lower right, of Simon & Schuster, has already brought out his first series of Inner Sanctum novels, paper bound fiction, at $1.

A book war assumes a new prominence in the literary world, as the publishers line up along both sides and in the middle of a controversy over the recent price slashing on new fiction inaugurated by several book companies.

The first flurry of excitement which followed the announcement of a price lowering from several book houses had subsided to a great extent since it was learned that the low price list includes only about 25 per cent of the books issued each year, or the "popular fiction" titles.

Max Schuster, of Simon and Schuster, had already planned to issue the 1930-31 fiction in paperbound editions to sell for one dollar, and several book clubs were putting out 50 cents monthly books. Mr. Schuster's attitude, as outlined in the following statement, can be best used to describe the reason for the low prices:

"Whereas many non-fiction books are bought not only to read but to reread and refer to, most fiction is bought for one reading only. The price of fiction has remained relatively high because it has not been bought in quantities sufficient to enable a publisher to make use of the savings concomitant with large production. Meanwhile, unless the reader were certain he wanted to retain a book in his library, he has been content to borrow the book from a library or from a friend (whenever that occasion might arise) or else he has decided not to read the book at all.

Smaller Apartments

"Library space has in recent years become a serious problem. More and more people live in relatively small apartments in which the area of library shelves is limited. Where to put the books once they are read has become a real question. The book has been bought, but who wants to throw away a bound book?"

Simon and Schuster have also made provision for those who may like their dollar books well enough to want them in a more permanent format by allowing any purchaser to return the dollar book with another dollar, for which a cloth binding will replace the paper one.

Another novel idea inaugurated by Simon and Schuster is that of binding the more or less serious books in blue, the lighter type in red and detective and mystery stories in green. The first eight one-dollar books were published by this firm on July 31.

John Farrar and Stanley Rinehart of the firm of Farrar and Rinehart, only a year old in the publishing game, were pioneers in the low price war.

Doubleday, Doran & Co. have already issued a list of the new books, including such well known authors as H. G. Wells, Albert Boni of the Paper Book club, who started some time ago in issuing paper books to his members at slightly less than 50 cents, announced recently that he would also put the books on the market for the general public at a 50-cent price.

Companies Take Sides

In Europe, the idea has been an old one. The Tauschmitz library is particularly famous among the paper books.

Eleven of the country's best publishers, however, are lining up on the side to battle for the higher scale of prices. They are Harpers, Harcourt, Scribners, Dodd, Mead, Stokes, Macmillan, Jutnam, Dutton, Morrow, Cosmopolitan and Knopf.

Those who are "one the fence" are Century, Holt, Appleton, McBride, Lippincott, John Day, Bobbs-Merrill, Longmans, Viking Press, Dial, Norton, Jonathan Cape and several other lesser firms. This group has been inclined to predict that the entire controversy is "much ado about nothing" and that the entire thing will be forgotten in two months.

The price-cutting pioneers, however, grin and have another prediction to make. "Wait until winter," they sad. "If our experiment proves successful, you'll see them all jump in."

HOW ARE YOUR TEETH AND TOENAILS?

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I hear over the Radio during the various tooth paste hours. I tell you its a lucky thing for us that peoples teeth are in such bad shape or we never would get any amusement at all. In the old days when we did nothing with our teeth till we died off, why we had no amusement at all. We couldent turn a dial and get our favorites Amos and Andy. Tooth paste has been responsible for more good laughs than Barnums Circus has, and you can use the wrong kind too. According to the announcers, there is various kinds that cause decay, while their kind brings on added growth, so you got to be mighty careful.

Course the best thing in the world in the old days was to chew on a tough piece of steak, or kinder gnaw on and around a bone. But nowadays on account of having to buy so much toothe paste why it dont leave enough to get the steak to whiten and toughen the teeth. A good old rump steak would give your teeth more exercise and build up a foundation than a steel tooth brush would.

But these lettuce sandwiches just don't offer much resistence to the old Molars and they dont get much exercise on them. Malted Milk over a soda fountain just might as well be inhaled as far as the teeth are concerned. This Caviar assisted by Cocktails is another National dish that dont offer much physical resistance to the eye teeth. In fact as far as the old Tusks are concerned there is really no reason for owning them.

An old toothless man or woman is not in-convenienced in the least with our modern type of food. There is nothing that comes in cans that we cant bulldog with ease and comfort. Our more rough type of food nowadays is a ham sandwich, and the Boys that slice it fix it so that the teeth have no function to perform in its digestion.

Most of our up to date food is by absorption. It melts in your mouth, so when the old Tooth brush gets a crack at the teeth its about the only thing they have encountered since babyhood. You have to brush em for they have had nothing rub up against em lately.

A Wolf has the best looking teeth in the World. They are always white. Even the announcer wont tell you that there is a film form over them. But on the other hand look what the old Coyote misses. He never did hear about Madam Queen, he dont know the King fish from a Seter Pup. He has nothing to console his lonely hours only chewing on some competitor. He has the whitest teeth, but he is not informed on how many times a day the little Baby Wolves should grab a tube of "Never Tarnish" and scrape the wisdom teeth.

On account of no particular demand for teeth it will only be a short time till we will be hearing over the Radio ways and means to maintain em at all, for we will quit growing em. You quit walking and you will soon have no legs. You stop arguments and you will soon have no Senators. You stop anything and nature provides that it will be discontinued, and you stop using the teeth only for artificial purposes and you will soon see there will be none. So then we will have to find something else to occupy our time and adds.

This wolf wants white teeth.

You know the old toe nail has never received its proper amount of public care and instruction. It wont be many years before we will be a tuning in on "Calvin and Herbert, those two boys who will tickle you for the next half hour on personal experiences while prowling in the undergrowth of National incompetence. They come to you by permission of the Anti Ingrowing Toe Nail Company. Have you watched your pedal exteremities lately? The toe is an important ingredient of the system. All National ills can be traced, detourly, to the toe, so watch your toes. The Anti Ingrowing Toe Nail Co. have devised a concoction that head toe nails out in the right direction. Just a litle application night and morning. Remember, watch the Kiddies, and dont forget, Calvin and Herbert every evening, brought to you by the Anti Ingrowing Toe Nail Co."

If this Country had statie for a solid month, there is no telling what would become of people's teeth. But everything is sorter drifting to the sanitary anyhow. In the old days when we wasent so sanitary, why we were strong enough to withstand all the germs. But nowadays we have to be careful of the Microbes for if they get a hold on us we are gone. We are not physically able to withstand em. In the old days as many as wanted to could drink out of one cup, and the last one would just shake his head and swallow down Mike-Robies just as fast as they would acumilate. But now the old individual cup wont go for over one sitting, or it will knock the second individual right into the infested class. The old fashioned Goard that the whole family drank out of from birth till death, would kill off more of the modern population than a war. We just aint built to stand the assults and batteries of an unwrapped-in-paper containers. New handkerchiefs, everything is bundled up separately. Nothing comes in the gross anymore.

But while we have lost in strength and endurance we have gained in amusement and instruction. For there is not an hour of any day that some one on the Air dont keep us warned of what lies in wait for us in case we dont use their remedy. There is just more different things that can happen to us than there used to be. An open cuspidor is not only passe, but its a social horror.

Farmer's Dollar Sinks to New Low Level With Purchasing Power Only 75 Per Cent of Period Before War

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (INS)—The farmer's dollar has sunk to a new low level, with its purchasing power now but 75 per cent of pre-war days from 1909 to 1914, the department of agriculture reported today in an analysis of the farm situation.

Despite the fact that general commodity prices have eased off in the last several months, the farmer has not gained purchasing power. Instead, he has lost, say experts of the bureau of agricultural economics.

The situation arises because the sale prices of farm products have slumped to new low levels in July. The two great "money crops" of the nation—wheat and cotton—fell to price levels below the pre-war period for the first time.

Agricultural experts do not attempt to explain the phenomenon of falling farm prices in the face of the worst drouth in 50 years or more in a large part of the producing section.

There is indication, however, of farm products moving again to a higher price level. With the drouth becoming more serious each day, corn prices have become firmer, as have prices of some other products.

Drouth Loss Heavy

Because of the uncertain trend of price levels, agricultural experts say they cannot estimate the monetary loss of the drouth. With the value of last year's farm crops, on Dec. 1 prices, fixed at eight and a half billion dollars, it is declared the cost of the drouth may reach $2,000,000,000 or actually mean no loss at all to the farmers as a whole because of possible increases in prices.

The decrease in the purchasing power of the farmer has been marked during the present summer. It fell to 83.7 per cent of pre-war during May, 82.7 per cent during June and 74.7 per cent in July.

Grain prices as a whole fell to eight per cent under pre-war level, while cotton and cottonseed was one per cent under pre-war and unclassified crops fell to three-fourths 1914 prices. Farm products as a whole bring 11 per cent more than from 1909 to 1914, but the farmer pays 49 per cent more for his purchases.

Farm wages continue relatively high, being 127 per cent above pre-war. They have shown little change during the present summer.

A drop in the retail price of food now is becoming noticeable, say the experts. Their figures show retail food prices 11 points under July a year ago, while wholesale prices are 13 points less.

The BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

"I Lived This Story" is Betty White's novel of life in a great co-educational university. It is a well-handled, interesting yarn—and an almighty disturbing one to boot.

Miss White traces the career of a young co-ed from the date of her entrance into the university to the date of her graduation. The girl becomes a member of a good sorority, attains a certain popularity with the male students, learns all about necking, discovers what synthetic gin tastes like, finds out that snobbery and hypocrisy are characteristics of most of her college acquaintances, and emerges after four years of all of this with a diploma certifying to the fact that she is an educated woman.

This, of course, sounds very much like the ordinary "flaming youth" story of the popular magazines. What lifts the book from that class is Miss White's evident sincerity and indignation. She recalls that a university is, in theory, a place for study, a place where young people can get wider horizons and prepare themselves for broader, fuller lives; and she points out, acidly that the average co-educational university does none of these things for any but a very small minority of its students.

"I Lived This Story," then, is a disturbing book. Its author finds the intellectual level of the big university extremely low. That, perhaps, is not news; yet it is not reassuring to gaze on the picture Miss White paints, to reflect that it is, in its essentials, a true picture, and to ponder on the vacuity, the provincialism and the narrowness of the characters she presents.

The story is well handled and the book makes very interesting reading. Doubleday Doran & Co. are offering it at $1 a copy.

Four "Advanced Youngsters"

"Sinners in Summertime," by Sigurd Hoel, is a gently ironical, highly amusing book. The author describes eight intellectual young Scandinavians, four of each sex, who are vacationing on an island together. These eight young people are very modern, and very intellectual; they believe in frankness, and they are very sure that they will spend their vacation working without being distracted by the complications of love.

But it doesn't work out that way. Quite naturally and inevitably, these youngsters go the way of all youngsters, fall madly in love with one another, forget their high resolves and discover, at last, that the new freedom enjoyed by modern youth sets no one free from the old, old claims of the flesh.

The book is charmingly written, and the author has a delightfully affectionate way of poking fun at his precocious youngsters. Coward-McCann will sell it to you for $1.50—and it's worth it.

Selfishness and the Roving Male

Jeanette Phillips Gibbs examines the roving male in "French Leave" and finds that there is much to be said for him. Her central character is a young man who blandly refuses to be unselfish in any phase of life, especailly in his relation with women. Like all the rest of us, he wants freedom; only he believes that it is possible to gain freedom simply by refusing to submit to any restraint, by refusing to let any other person have any sort of claim over him, and he has the gumption to act on that belief consistently.

Mrs. Gibbs makes it work out very nicely, all things considered, and every character in her book who amounts to anything comes to agree with the young man in the end. And maybe, for all I know, you can get your freedom, and find it satisfying, in that way. I entertain one or two old-fashioned doubts, however, and I couldn't for the life of me discover in this freedom-seeker the extreme charm which, according to Mrs. Gibbs, was his.

Little, Brown & Co. are the publishers. The book costs $2.50.

Von Hindenburg's Life

"Hindenburg—the Man and the Legend," is a biography of Germany's great soldier-statesman by Margaret Goldsmith and Frederick Voight. It adopts a sharply critical air, and thus avoids the tone of hero-worship that infects most biographies of Germany's war-time army commander. I found it very interesting.

William Morrow & Co. are offering the book at $3.50.

ZOE BECKLEY'S CORNER

Emotional Spendthrift

"Dear Zoe: Gosh I love this man and even when he disappoints me on dates I forgive. I have a good job with a future and move in a good circle socially. The man has been in business, failed disastrously and is now a bus-driver —till he can do better. He gets horribly depressed and lets it get the better of him. I always forgive. Is this love or just weakness? I don't go out with others although I had many friends, one college boy in particular who is 22 (I'm 20) but seems too young.

—EL SEE."

Pouring out too much emotion on one person is a great big mistake, I'm here to tell you. In giving up your friends for a dubious love affair you risk losing what you will surely need desperately later on. I cannot see anything in your romance with this man to compensate for cutting other joys out of your life. Keep both if you want to—social pleasures and old pals, and the bus driver. Incidentally he won't always stay a bus driver unless he wants to. Let him make his second attempt at success. One youthful failure is nothing. And when he makes good time enough then to let your love for him deepen.

ZOE BECKLEY

There Are Serious Ones

"Dear Zoe: Girls want to know if a serious-minded fellow exists and if so, how can he be won? Shall I tell them?

—AMBITIOUS."

I'll say you shall, my lad, and just watch me make room for your welcome words! Here they go:

"I am 19, popular with all boys and with girls when I have known them a long time. I don't attract them quickly as I abhor the use of cosmetics, don't dance and don't intend to learn, don't smoke and don't want girlfriends to either, seldom drink and don't want girlfriends to in my presence, have too strong a will and prefer sports in which girls do not participate, particularly football and marathon-running.

"This serves as a fair outline of my "Ideal Girl." Also she must be able to converse on important matters of the day other than herself, must not flatter boyfriend too highly and be able to face life as it is, for in the discouraging moments of life man leans to the woman for support and encouragement, not vice-versa.

"She must fit into my life as William J. Bryan's wife did, studying law in order to understand his problems and help him out. I believe girls exist even today who can be such women as that. I wish to congratulate you, Zoe, on naming one characteristic of men—self-importance. This is a fact. I have curbed it some, but law and politics stand predominantly ahead of girls in my life."

The Spirit of a Kiss

"Dear Zoe: Our club went on a picnic and a boy I like and admire wandered off with me and tried to kiss me. I didn't let him. He took it calmly and coolly—and left me to myself the rest of the time. Does this mean anything? Should I have kissed him? Lately I saw him and he acted very indifferent. Why?

—LONESOME."

He acted indifferent because he was indifferent. Listen all you kiddies who think a man has visions of the altar, the fireside and the life insurance because he walks with you, talks with you and wants a kiss: Kisses nowadays are the common coin of every passing fancy. They are gunpowdery to handle and therefore should be known about. Given lightly and more or less in fun they do no harm. But if you take them (and give them) seriously they manage you instead of you managing them —and then there's the divvle to pay. A girl who cannot kiss without putting her soul into it had better not do it at all. Kissing is just one of the "kicks" the modern lad gets out of life and mean no more than a glass of ginger ale. Don't you be the one to add the intoxicating element.

He's My Man

"Dear Zoe: I met him once and liked him so much. I want to see him more. Shall I write? Or what?

—LITTLE TOO ANXIOUS."

Fashion has changed so much in the art of attracting men that I wouldn't say don't write or don't invite or don't seem interested.

With few exceptions, the modern boy likes to know a girl is interested. But— And it's quite a hearty but— It makes him good and sick when a girl hurls herself at him till he has to wear a diving suit or a catcher's mask to save himself. The girl of today takes refuge in merriment. She writes facetious notes that are just as cordial as can be, yet commit her to nothing. She hides her feelings, yet she seems to be all warmth and charm and vivacity. Learn to do things casually and with poise. The humorous or semi-humorous attitude does the trick.

'Tisn't So Simple—

"Dear Zoe: We were virtually engaged when he calmly told me his family thought me unsuitable as I had neither money nor 'prestige' but would see the thing through. I had no choice but to release him. I went through unspeakable misery. Then, seeing how it worried my family I resolved to go out and around and now have three eligible men literally rushing me. I always resolved to marry the first man who was comfortably situated. But can't forget him. I have had four proposals but he still stands in the way.

—EROS."

Then wait till he no longer stands in the way. Wait till he either sends his family about their business and returns to you, or you have ceased to agonize over him. A new love is usually like drawing a herring across the trail of the old. But if you cannot reciprocate the feelings of any of your suitors, wait until one comes whose love you do return. Marrying a man because he is "comfortably situated" is not sufficient ground for wedlock—if you want to be comfortably situated yourself.

Wants to Be Steadied

"Dear Zoe: He says he cares. Then I can't see why he doesn't ask me to be his 'steady.' Does he think I wouldn't play true—for I have many admirers. He is ideal and I would be true if he'd only say the word.

—IMPATIENT."

Perhaps, like me, he doesn't believe in "steadies." Perhaps he knows that if a girl is popular, being someone's "steady" is hard because other fellows tempt. If she is not popular and her steady goes blooey she has no one to fall back on—and all that time wasted. So why go steady?

Needs a Tonic

"Dear Zoe: I am 22, fair looking, strong, not short, work steady, got a car, willing to do anything for the girl I love. She's a lot younger and I've known her a year. I hate dancing but am willing to learn for her. She likes it. She's wonderful and loves me. What's wrong with me?

—WAITING."

What's wrong. Why, you don't chirk up enough. Don't fool around any longer, but learn to dance and do it well. Look to your clothes. Are they neat and well chosen? How are your manners? Refined and courtly? Make them so. Cultivate humor and pep. Be complimentary and always notice when she tries to please you. Be responsive. Generous. And don't forget to perk up. Then there'll be nothing wrong with you.

Jealousy Again

"Dear Zoe: We are congenial in all three ways, and happy together. But his one fault, unreasonable and possessive jealousy, makes me wonder if our marriage could be happy. Nor does he care for dancing while I love it. He has many commendable traits and I hate to think of giving him up.—ENGAGED."

I've written on jealousy till I'm goggle-eyed. . . . I think it can be dealt with, and should be—firmly. But that's just it; you have to be firm. Most girls are flabby about jealousy because they feel it is a proof of love. Quite as often it is a proof of nothing but vanity, selfishness and timidity. The man sure of himself and his love does not try to shut his woman into a steel cage. Let him share her to a decent extent, and thus bind her more surely to him.

HIGHEST PAID SHORT STORY WRITER IN THE WORLD

OUT of four brothers Myron Brown alone turned his face toward intellectual pursuit, or at least he turned his face, at the age of seventeen, toward his State's university, graduated there at twenty-one, and without any particular intent or purpose drifted into teaching. At twenty-five he was holding down the chair of English history in the university from which he had graduated.

His three brothers, thrown on their own resources at early age as he had been, drifted, the two younger ones, and the third his twin, into business pursuits that were ultimately to cast them all into the destiny of big affairs.

Harold and Steve, the younger boys, struck it well in the radio industry while the vast industry was still in its infancy, Bartlett, Myron's twin, was reputed at twenty-five to be worth three-quarters of a million dollars from fortunate investments in copper.

The three brothers, successful all at an early age, were nonetheless prideful of Myron. He represented the intellectual status of the family. He lent éclat and distinction. Had he permited it, the three brothers would willingly and generously have aided and abetted his modest earnings as professor.

That however was not necessary. Myron's scale of life fitted and pleased him well. A pleasant suite in a boys' dormitory, where he incidentally held the position of dean. Varied if modest summer vacations, going tourist-fashion to Europe, or camping in the North of Canada with two or three of the members of the faculty. Books. Good music from the second galleries of the concert halls. Pleasant leisure. Campus quiet. Mild intellectual divertissement among the members of the teaching staff. All in all, there was little, in Myron's opinion, that his brothers could contribute to his well-being.

Then too, there was this difference. The business boys had all married. There were three attractive and personable sisters-in-law, and five or six neices and nephews in whom Myron felt a sort of benign impersonal pride. But the domestic aspect of the lives of his successful brothers helped further estrange him from the walks they had chosen for themselves. Christmas, New Years and birthdays, they met. And on one occasion, more for the sake of quieting their importunings than anything else, Myron had accompanied, as guest, two of his brothers and their families to Europe. There acting as guide and interpreter to the cultural pursuits of the wives and children.

But in the main, Myron remained, not necessarily aloof, for he was a gregariously inclined fellow, but more or less secluded among his own kind and the books that as the years marched on he was accumulating about himself in a modest library.

Then, one New Year which he was spending in New York where the annual gathering of his clan took place, Myron, stimulated by all the Wall Street gossip which he heard among his brothers, but which never was even intended for his ears, took what he called a flyer in a stock which he selected for the euphonious quality of its name.

He bought one thousand shares of Green Agate Copper stock for seven hundred and fifty dollars, took it home without even revealing the purchase to his brothers, who would have joked him, locked it in a desk drawer, practically forgot it until the next annual visit with his brothers, when once more, his interest stimulated for the moment by their bear and bull talk, he remembered his flier in Green Agate.

Two days later, before his return to college, he sold his Green Agate, one thousand shares for twenty thousand dollars, creating among his brothers a furore of hilarity at his acumen. The shrewdness, they called it, of a babe in the wood.

It turned out to be more than that. With that twenty thousand dollars as his cornerstone, Myron was destined for a career in high finance that was far more spectacular than the career of any one of his brothers, even of his twin, who already was reputed to be twice a millionaire.

By the time Myron was thirty-five, his teaching career lay behind him as dim as a dream, and the library which he had accumulated in his home in Briarcliff-on-Hudson was estimated by itself to be worth as much as his brother Steve's or his brother Harold's entire holdings.

It was one of those spectacular, everything-he-touched-turning-to-gold successes. Myron simply made money hand over fist. In copper. In Steamship stock. In General Motors. In Hotel stock. In coffee. In real estate. Even in books, frequently achieving a first edition at high price, and turning it over at fabulous profit.

Stimulated by all the Wall Street gossip, Myron determined that he too would take a flyer in the stock market.

Strange too, apparently temperamentally unfitted for the uncloistered, competitive race of the business world, he took to it as the proverbial duck takes to water. Business men, financiers, bankers, magnates, industrial captains found him quick, sympathetic, shrewd and eager to match his wits against theirs.

He was the surprise of their lives to his three brothers. He was more than that, he was apparently a surprise to himself, because more and more, as his fortune climbed and his authority in the business world became more established, Myron found himself too dazed, when he took time to contemplate, to quite realize what it all was about.

He was rich. He was influential. He was in a position to gratify his whims for travel, books, erudition, music, and cultural pursuits of any and all kinds. He was a person miles removed from the college professor, and yet at heart and soul he was that college professor, strangely endowed with a power which seemed to be no part of him.

It was not unpleasant. There was never a time when he found himself consciously hankering for the old days of the simple suite in the boys' dormitory where he had acted as sort of overseer of their conduct.

That was all passed now. The innocuous professor since those days had endowed the very university where he had taught English history with a library of books on that special subject, said to be the finest in the world, and it was more than possible that similar gifts from him would be forthcoming.

No, as Myron grew older and more influential and certainly richer, it could not be said of him that he entertained regrets for those simple teaching days that were gone.

Except, every time he made a noticeable disposition of his money, it found its way into college coffers. Dormitories for men. College libraries of one sort or another.

Then, when he was fifty-eight and reputed to be worth more than ten millions of dollars, Myron, unmarried, drew up his last will and testament.

It was a simple will, because it diverted all this huge fortune in one direction.

Ten million dollars as a permanent fund to help keep the male teacher in that "most glorious of professions," by allowing him an income over and above his modest salary, and so make speculation and adventure into business as remote a possibility as might be.

Creates Role of Martha on Radio

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Radio is rapidly building up its own particular character roles.

Based solely upon personality of the voice, the radio drama has advanced far since the days when the mere reading of a part was the only requisite.

Nowadays the radio actor or actress not alone plays his or her part as is done on the stage, but he or she actually lives it.

Role after role has been created, some to pass away quickly, and others to live on and on. Such is that of Martha Thompkins, the wife of Mat Thompkins in the Real Folks sketches broadcast each Monday evening by WJZ and NBC chain.

Martha in real life is Virginia Farmer, who came from the stage three years ago to be one of the stars of the radio drama. Her natural voice is the voice of Martha.

With George Frame Brown, who takes the part of Mat Thompkins, she has become an ideal in the minds of the listeners. Her first experience before the microphone was in 1927 with Mr. Brown in a series of one-act plays over WABC.

The next milestone in her radio career brought her the creation of the role of Sarah Higgins, together with Mr. Brown as Luke Higgins, in Main Street sketches that were introduced by WOR, New York, more than two years ago.

When Real Folks came into being, it was only natural that the role of the wife of the mayor of the imaginary small town of Thompkins Corners should be given to Miss Farmer. While to a certain extent a counterpart of Sarah Higgins, the character has grown into a loevable personality despite the fact that Martha isn't always in a pleasant frame of mind.

Miss Farmer attributes her radio success to the fact that she follows the motto "be yourself before the microphone."

Here's a little secret, in case you don't know: Miss Virginia also takes the part of Grandma Overbrook.

Virginia Farmer, as Martha in Real Folks, has brought to radio a character that has won the ear of the listener.

THE PILOT GULL OF CLAM HARBOR

"Yep," said the skipper, "a feller's got to know his way around this harbor or him an' his boat'll git a lot of bumps. Them city folks that comes up here with boats that looks like pianos, with their mahogany trimmin's an all, they figure they can do all right with charts. Charts is good enough to show you how to keep into the channel, but every once in a while you're in a hurry an' want to make cross cuts, an' then you got to know where the deep water is an' the reefs ain't. There's more an' one boy born an' raised around here who piles boats up now an' then, some of 'em swell expensive boats that city people own too. As a matter of fact if I was a rich man from the city an' had me a good fast boat I don't know as there's any of these lads around here to run 'er except myself. What with speakin' pictures an' radios an' all them things the boys jest don't get the time to larn the trade of harbor pilotin', an' if they don't know it they ain't safe to be trusted out with a dory, let alone a boat costin' maybe ten thousand dollars.

"Pilotin' use to be what they call a fine art around here. Them was the days when I larn't it. I was considered the best small boat sailor for morn't three thousand miles along shore. I only got beat in a race once, an' that was because a crooked feller put up a job on me by goin' into cahoots with a gull."

"With a gull?" I inquired. "You mean a sea gull?"

"Sure I mean a sea gull. You didn't reckon I meant an E-gull did you? A reglar ordinarly lookin' gull he was, but too smart for his breed. You find birds an' animals come like that once in a while. Now there was that big blue heron that—"

"But tell me about the pilot and the gull first, won't you please?"

"They ain't much to tell. It was old Lester Blodgett that had the gull. He'd ketched it when it was little an' had it's wing broke by fallin' out of its nest. He picked it up in his motor boat while it was tryin' to swim into some weeds an' took it home for a pet, he not having any family nor dogs nor cats nor anything. After that wherever he went the gull, that he called Jake, would go along either settin' up on the bow of the boat or sort of flyin' lazy along behind, watchin' for something to eat along the shore. When he spotted some of the spill off'n a yacht he'd fly over, feed hisself full an' then ketch up with Lester an' go along with him wherever he was goin'.

"I used to watch 'em around the harbor together, an' I thought it was kind o' pretty to see that sort of a friendship between a man an' a bird. Of course I didn't suspect then what Lester had in his mind or. I might of thought different. But you never kin tell, kin' you?

"That summer there was a regatta, an' the city people had entered their boats into a lot' of events. They knew us boys pretty well, for most of us was Captain for one or another of 'em an' run their boats. So when they made up the list of races they decided that we was to have a rate of our own in our own boats, and they dug up two hundred an' fifty dollars for a prize. Now up here and in them days two hundred and fifty dollars is a lot of money, so there wasn't no trouble getting plenty of entries. The regatta committee left it to us where the race was to be, an' we thought we'd show 'em some real navigatin', so we got together an' decided we'd make a figure eight around two of the outside islands, over a thirty mile course, with the privilege of makin' it shorter by usin' our expert knowledge of cuts here an' there inside of the buoys, which there's a lot of 'em, only it ain't safe to try 'em if you wasn't raised here.

"So the day come when the big race was on. I was sort of surprised when Lester not only entered hisself an' his boat, but was around offerin' to make side bets with the other six of us. He was a good pilot all right an' he knew the place like your own way down to the railroad station to hum, but his engine was gettin' sort of old, and his boat wasn't one of them trick models like some of us had, havin' had 'em built along new fangled speed lines. But we knew Lester was well fixed, an' his money was as good as anybody's, so we took him up an' there was quite a extra stake piled up on the day of the race, maybe a hundred dollars over an' above the prize money.

"I wasn't at all surprised when Lester took the gull along. The bird was always his mascot he said, an' of course, it couldn't do no harm, so nothin' was said about it. All of us knowed the course about the same, or thought we did, an' there was a lot of hope in every boat, especially mine, for I had had my engine overhauled secret one night up to Hansen's yard, an' she was runnin' like a sewin' machine. I'd of bet an' extra two fifty out of my own back savin's if anybody would of took me up.

"Well, we got off on a bright clear day, with a pretty fair wind blowin' out of the no' west, an' kickin' up white a sea outside. I was third to cross the line, but of course every boat gets its startin' allowance, so we all begun even. Lester he was right behind me, with Jake sittin' in the stern takin' it easy, an' now an' then lettin' out one of them horrible yells like a sea gull can do when he wants to attract attention. We got outside the inner harbor an' had cut in for the first curve on the figure eight when I see Lester goin' into rough shallow water lickety split. I figured his steerin' gear had busted, but there ain't no time in a race to stand by so I went along. But when I got out into the fairway again there was Lester jest ahead of me, but way inside where I'd of sworn there wasn't mor'n two inches of water at that tide, and scuddin' along full speed. An' flyin' along ahead of him was Jake with his eyes on the water as if he was huntin' for rocks, which I learnt later he was.

"It was the same way on every turn around both islands. That there bird flies along ahead, picks out a safe channel that all of us had thought was full of rocks, and Lester just puts the nose of the boat on the bird's tail feathers so to speak, and follows along.

"When we got in Lester was a quarter of a mile in the lead, an' the gull was sittin' squawkin' in the bow like he done it, which of course he done. There wasn't no way to protest, for it was a pilot's race an' everything went. It was cheatin' jest the same though, for we thought that we was racin' a man when we entered, an' not no bird.

"No I dunno what become of Jake. He disappeared one day before the next race, an' Lester lost it. By an' by he turned up again, with a kind of a mark on him where some boy had bent a lanyard on him to keep him from pilotin' racin' boats. After that he sort of lost heart, an' died in a year or two. Lester he tried to train another one like him, but he couldn't do it. Birds like that ain't born moren't once in a life time I spose."

SAYS FIFTY STATIONS ENOUGH FOR U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Dr. Lee De Forest, pioneer radio inventor, says there are too many radio stations in the United States. "I am convinced that were 50 large high-powered stations located throughout the United States, connected up by chain, and each station having a power of 200 kilowatts, everyone in the country would be able to pick up programs of at least 10 of this group of stations," he says.

"Each one of that 10 would be sending out all kinds of definite types of programs of the highest quality. Thus, by tuning to a particular station, one might be assured of a particular type of program."

Seth Parker Book

Phillips Lord, who created the radio character "Seth Parker," has written a book called "Seth Parker's Album."

Set Sales Prediction

According to a survey taken by the radio world's fair, a minimum total of 4,000,000 radio receivers will be sold during the 1930-1931 radio year.

Market Short Waves

California is the only state in the union using short waves for the transmissiin of market news, according to the state director of agriculture, G. H. Hecke.

Radio Stock Company

WLW, Cincinnati, has inaugurated the practice of staging "runs" for radio plays. The Crosley theater, opened there, broadcasts the same play three times a week with a new bill each week.

Attacks Radio Tax

Three test suits just started in the federal district court for the eastern district of South Carolina, at Columbia, are attacking the constitutionality of the state tax on radios. One is by a broadcasting station, WBT, of Charlotte, one by a radio dealer and the third by the owner of a radio set.

The voice of the good-looking gentleman who poses for collar ads is now available on the air. He is Joseph Shovlin, baritone soloist for WGBS, New York. He's also a model for James Montgomery Flagg.

Sanderson

Musical comedy has given radio many entertainers, but few program managers. Alexis Sanderson is one of the latter who left the comedy stage for radio. He's program manager of WGBS, New York, and much of the recent improvement in the station is credited to him. He is a recording artist and sings in eight languages. In addition to the stage, he has appeared in the movies, having been featured in French and Russian films.

BETWEEN the WAVELENGTHS

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

Ever so often the hope that there is to be a real static "eliminator" crops up, lives for a time and then dies again.

The demise generally comes when the difficult task of making it work under all conditions is faced.

The static eliminator is almost a parallel to the perpetual motion machine. It just will not function. Many an inventor has found that out to his sorrow.

The greatest difficulty in the elimination of static, or atmospherics, lies in the fact that its wavelength or frequency is identically the same as the signal being received. Attempting to filter it out electrically is about like trying to filter out water from two wells after it has been mixed together.

Any scheme looking toward the placing of a device between the set and the aerial runs into the frequency snag. It may help to a certain extent, but as to the complete elimination of static — well it doesn't.

The same is true where an attempt is made to tune or filter out the static in the audio section. Some of the static can be sidetracked, but where it happens to be the same frequency as a certain tone that tone goes by the boards too, and the music or voice may not sound just right.

About the only successful way of cutting down on static, so the engineers say, is by the use of a sharply directional antenna, such as a loop, which can be pointed toward the station being received. This method tends to exclude static coming from directions other than that of the transmitter.

Some research workers have used two aerials, one to balance out the static received on the other, but still some of it creeps in.

Yet, it is entirely possible to build a static eliminator, but the trouble is the desired signal also is eliminated.

With price reductions up to $150 now in effect, today's Chrysler "70" is by all standards the greatest value the industry has ever produced at such prices.

There never before has been such performance in a motor car. This is accounted for by the fact that the Chrysler "70" has under its hood the big Chrysler "77" engine of 93-horsepower.

This means extra power reserve. Greater flash in pick-up. Finer smoothness. Speed of 75 and more miles an hour. This performance is supplemented by the unmatched advantages of the famous Chrysler 4-speed transmission and Multi-Range gear shift — and the safety of Chrysler weatherproof internal hydraulic brakes.

In everything that gives a motor car value, at its new reduced prices, the Chrysler "70" is more emphatically than ever without even a close second at its price. Come in or phone. Let us demonstrate this fact to you.

KEEP MILK CLEAN AND COOL IS SAFE RULE FOR QUALITY

Reduce Temperature Immediately After Cow Is Milked

SANITARY MEASURES PAY FOR THEMSELVES

Use of Thermometer Urged In Order to Obtain Real Quality

By A. C. OOSTERHUIS
Director of Dairy Extensions, Carnation company
(Editor's Note: This is the sixth and last of a series of articles on dairying by Mr. Oosterhuis.)

Quality in milk has generally been gauged solely by the per cent of butter fat the milk contained. A better basis of quality is gauging the milk by its cleanliness and freedom from bacteria. Very few dairymen realize the importance of equipping their dairies so that the product can be kept in good condition. The rules in producing a high quality milk can be summed up in this caution—"keep milk clean and cold." Clean so as to hold to the minimum the number of bacteria in the product—cold so as to keep from multiplying and reproducing those that have entered.

Milk is the ideal food for germ life. Under even most ideal conditions obtainable for milking, many bacteria will enter the milk during the milking process. As they enter the warm milk they have an ideal place to germinate and grow. Their growth and action in a short time spoils the product. A two-fold problem thus presents itself. First, use every precaution to keep the milk clean; second, cool the milk immediately after milking so that the bacteria which have entered will not increase in number.

Milk as it comes from the cow is clean, but the exposure of dirt from the teats, the udder, the flanks, and the stable air always admit some dirt. The question is not how we can effectively strain the dirt out of the milk but how we can effectively keep it out. The visible dirt can be and should be removed by a good strainer, but there is no way to remove the dirt that is dissolved or the bacteria that have once entered. Milk that has been exposed to unclean conditions can not again be called clean.

Perfectly clean milk would keep sweet indefinitely just as perfectly sterilized milk in the can (such as Carnation milk) keeps sweet indefinitely. The thought is erroneous that milk will keep sweet a certain number of hours and then suddenly "turn sour." Milk begins to sour the minute it is milked as the souring process is simply the work of the bacteria. These multiply immediately when they get in touch with the warm milk and thus the souring process begins. The importance of immediate cooling can not be over-emphasized.

Bacteria, like most plant life, grow most rapidly in temperatures between 65 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Most of our farm seeds will sprout and grow very slowly at 65 degrees Fahrenheit, while they will grow quite rapidly at 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The few degrees of higher temperature required for corn to germinate as compared with oats and barley determines that these latter grains should be sown early in the spring while corn should be planted after the arrival of warm weather. Thus a few degrees in temperature may have a marked difference in the rapidity with which bacteria will grow in milk. Milk should be cooled to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. This can be done by using an abundance of fresh well water in a deep water tank.

A considerable volume of water is needed to cool milk from 98 degrees to 65 degrees when the cooling water is at a temperature of 60 degrees. Water in stock tanks exposed to the sun is inefficient in cooling milk. It may reduce the temperature of the milk 10 or 15 degrees but it still leaves it at a point where the bacteria will continue to grow rapidly.

A better understanding of and appreciation of the importance of milk temperatures and the use of a thermometer as a guide in milk cooling are now requirements in the better care of milk.

WOMEN REVIVE LOST ART OF HOME LEATHER TOOLING

EDINBURG—Artistic leather work, almost a lost art so far as home industry goes, has been revived by a group of home demonstration club women in Hidalgo county where purses, spreads, chair and divan coverings and other leather products are being manufactured for pleasure and profit. This activity among farm women is due to Mrs. Etta W. Ringgold, home demonstration agent, who learned the art in France, and who has been able to show her methods to many others. Twenty Hidalgo county women are very active in home manufacture of leather goods.

As an example of the profit in this leather work a recent experience of Mrs. O. E. Van Berg of Mercedes is cited. After finishing the tooling of the leather for back and seat of an old hand-carved Spanish style walnut chair, the leather was taken to a San Antonio decorator for mounting. He declared the leather work to be worth $35 which allows a substantial profit, Mrs. Van Berg says.

Nortex oats introduced into Hamilton county last fall by the county agent are making good according to preliminary reports of farmers. The average yield of the new variety from early crops was 65 bushels per acre as compared to yields of ordinary oats in the same fields of 35 bushels to the acre. Such a large difference is unusual, experiment station men stating that Nortex oats are only expected to outyield ordinary oats by five or six bushels per acre.

Texas Master Farm Home-Makers

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Aug. 2.—Texas farm women as very material contributors to the welfare of the state were honored on the opening day of the twenty-first annual farmers' short course here last Monday in the award by The Farmer's Wife, national farm women's magazine, St. Paul, Minn., with the cooperation of the extension service, A. & M. college of Texas, of the title of Master Farm Homemaker to five outstanding farm wives of the state.

The five women accorded the recognition, winners in the state-wide competition, are Mrs. John McCarroll, Mobeetie, Wheeler county; Mrs. L. H. Lane, Mission, Hidalgo county; Mrs. C. B. McBride, Indian Creek, Brown county; Mrs. O. A. Blankenship, Amarillo, Potter county; Mrs. J. L. Lumpkin, Dalby Springs, Bowie county.

In the presence of a host of farm women and girls attending the short course, the five winners were presented by Miss Lucile W. Reynolds of The Farmer's Wife staff, with gold pins emblematic of the title accorded. The five women in question are Texas' representatives among nearly 100 outstanding farm women of 21 states to be honored by the farm women's magazine and cooperating state colleges this year. They make up the third group accorded such recognition in Texas.

The five were selected on basis of records by state judging committee of which Miss Bess Edwards, assistant state home demonstration agent of the extension service, was chairman. The winners are mothers of two to seven children and reside on farms of 12 to 640 acres.

Luncheon honoring the winners was tendered by the farm women's magazine at noon following the awards.

AUGUST TIME FOR BUILDING UP FOR FALL PRODUCTION

Fall and winter milk production can be helped by giving proper care and attention to the dairy herd in the hot, dry days of August, says the August calendar for demonstration herds. The calendar for August says:

"This is a hot, dry month. Most of the herd should be at rest this month but they should not be turned out in some brush pasture to rustle for themselves such a short time before calving. They should be fed liberally to build up the system and make them ready for milk production during the fall and winter.

"If not too dry, land should be prepared for fall grain for winter pasture.

"Bur clover can be seeded in the Bermuda pasture this month by mixing the bur clover seed with manure and throwing it out, a forkfull in a place, and not scattering it. This method seems to be the best way to get a stand the first season. About 10 pounds of seed per acre should be used.

"As pastures dry up, feed soiling crops. Green cane or sorghum freshly cut will furnish a good pasture substitute. It will pay to feed hay in addition, especially if the pasture gets very short. Separate heifer and bull calves before six months of age. Keep the yards clean and weigh the milk from each cow as in previous months."

Calcium chlorate mixed with water at the rate of one pound of the chemical to one gallon of water furnishes a weed killing spray that has been demonstrated very effective this year by county agents. It has been found very practical on relatively small patches of weeds and farmers reported using it are rapidly increasing in number. Among the weeds attacked by this method are Johnson grass, blue weeds and bind weed.

Turkey losses from intestinal worms have been sharply reduced this year in Bosque county by the wide use of such worm repellants as kamala, iodine injections into the gizzard, tetrachlorethylene, and tobacco dust in the mash at the rate of two pounds per hundred pounds of feed. Various methods were adopted by farmers as a result of demonstrations by the county agent last year.

SUMMER CULLING OF POULTRY FLOCKS IS RECOMMENDED

August is a month in which the poultry raiser should give special attention to culling, declares the August calendar of the A. & M. college extension service for Texas demonstration flocks. August is considered the month for summer culling for those who cull four times a year. The calendar says:

"The year-around system of culling is the half-way mark between trap-nesting and ordinary culling. It gives a good check on production without trapnesting and allows the selection of the heaviest producers for breeding pens. This system consists in culling four times a year, fall, winter, spring and summer. The layers are banded each time with a different color spiral leg band, one color for each season."

The fall culling, usually done in November, is not to discard the non-producer at this time but to identify the layers for subsequent checking. The winter culling, usually done in January or February is likewise to identify the best layers and to mark the non-layers and slow-maturing pullets. The culling in May or June is to rid the flock of the non-producers. The August culling has the same purpose.

At the end of the year those that have survived the four cullings constitute the breeding flock.

Extension circular C-52 is a safe guide to culling. It deals with pigmentation, body capacity and shape, molt, abdominal condition and head.

Chinese red cowpeas, extensively used in South Texas as a dairy hay for several years, are being saved for seed by Kleberg county demonstrators, the county agent reports. The success of this pea as a hay crop, due to its upright growth and drouth-resistant qualities, has resulted in a demand for seed in excess of supply during the last year. It was introduced from China by the Texas agricultural experiment station which found that the crop succeeded best at its Beeville substation.

Twenty-five pounds of lespedeza sowed on an acre of hilly clay soil by T. R. Woods of Burkeville, Newton county, in March, has given continuous grazing to a milk cow and horse since mid-May. This is in line with pasture demonstration results all over the state, particularly in East Texas.

Madisonville housewives are offered one dozen eggs free should they find one bad egg among those bought from the Madison County Poultry association, which has obtained a six-cent premium from local merchants on eggs delivered by members.

TELLS WHY FARMER SHOULD SIT STEADY DESPITE ADVERSITY

The farmer should "set steady in the boat" just now even if things aren't as bright as they might be, declares a letter from the American National Insurance company, sent to each of its farm borrowers. The letter points out that the farmer is not the only one who is experiencing adversity just now and that he who quits the farm to go to town is merely swapping one form of trouble for another.

The letter was received through G. D. Anderson & Co. of this city. It follows:

It may seem to you that farming is not recovering from its depression as rapidly as we had hoped and expected. It may be that you have almost lost courage from time to time and have almost decided that prosperity will not return to your business.

Please get these thoughts out of your mind. It is true that farming has had its set-backs, but we want you to believe that it is in no worse situation today than are other industries and city business. In other words, it will give you no relief to leave the farm and go to the city. In fact, the trend is from city to farm. The farming situation was making a distinct improvement, and this was generally recognized, when the stock market crashed.

This year's crop prices undoubtedly will go below normal, but in most sections of the country the prospects for yield are above the average. This means that there will be almost as much money this year from farming operations as there has been in years when the yield was small and prices were high. However, we cannot continue overproduction with present overhead costs and expect to make money. If surplus crops continue to pile up, there will be still lower prices. We urge that you join with us in helping the farm board to cut the cotton and wheat acreage, particularly, and thereby reduce the surplus of these two crops. Through a definite system of crop rotation, you can secure these reductions in these crops which are causing the present distress and, at the same time, raise other crops which are needed on the farms but which, in many cases, are purchased with cash crop money.

There is much to justify the belief that we shall have a reasonably early return of better times. Should you have any doubt about the outcome, please remember that we have had panics, floods, deflations and hard times before, and that we have always come through. Our population is increasing rapidly. More and more people must be fed, not only in America but in the world.

On the whole, we wish to reassure you of our confidence in the future of farming and to urge you to keep your courage and to stick it out. Better times are not far away.

GIRL GROWS PIGS AT SIX CENTS PER POUND

ROBY.—Changing a pig to a 213-pound hog in four months at a feed cost of less than six cents per pound is the achievement of Miss Lelia Webb, farmerette demonstrator of Clatonville community in Fisher county. When the county agent, G. J. Lane, brought the neighbors together at the girl's farm recently for the final weighing it was found that this high grade Duroc-Jersey hog had gained 2.9 pounds daily for 57 days at a feed cost of 5¾ cents per pound. It took only 128 days to bring this porker to the most desirable packer weight.

The ration used consisted of yellow corn meal and a supplement of ground oats, cottonseed meal and alfalfa leaf meal in the proportion of 2-1-1. One gallon of skim milk was used daily in mixing this feed into a thick slop which was reduced to the consistency of buttermilk by adding water. Miss Webb found that slightly more than two pounds of the grain mixture and one-third gallon of skim milk was required to make one pound of pork. Measuring profits in terms of feed, the milk brought 22 cents per gallon.

Thirty days after treating his hens for lice by the sodium fluoride treatment, E. Godwin, Mills county poultry demonstrator, reported an increase in production from eight eggs to 11 eggs per hen per month.

DAIRYMAN WHO HAS SUDAN PASTURE IS LEARNING IT PAYS

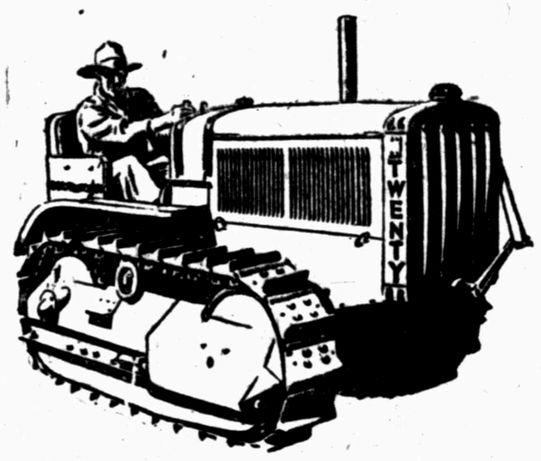

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Aug. 2.—All that stands between many a Texas dairy farmer and ruin in these days of disastrously cheap butterfat is a patch of Sudan grass, according to statements of many dairy herd demonstrators who are keeping account of receipts and expenses. In some cases it is sweet clover that gets the credit, but one way or another, it is green pasture that is more responsible than any other one factor in getting successful dairymen by these hard times, county agents declare.

Cleil Prestidge, Sedwick community, Shackelford county, found that his four grade cows each gave eight pounds more milk daily while on good Sudan pasture and that he could cut the grain ration in half at the same time. This meant 54.6 pounds more butterfat for the month, which came to $18.65 in added income while the saving in feed bill totaled $14.03. He believes the four-acre Sudan grass pasture worth $32.68 to him for one month alone, not counting the value of the grazing for five head of work stock and two calves which shared the pasture with the cows.

C. F. Mangrum of Close City in Garza county reduced his cost of butterfat production from 22.2 cents per pound for the last year, G. E. Gohner, dairy demonstrator of Olton, Lamb county, states: "I attribute my success in the low butterfat cost to the 1¾-acre patch of sweet clover that my cows had access to during the hot summer months last year. I would not give one acre of sweet clover pasture for 40 acres of native grass when it comes to pasture for dairy cattle." His cows averaged $98.31 above feed cost last year, thereby leading all dairy demonstration herds in the county.

In his current suggestions to dairy demonstrators, J. L. Thomas, extension service dairyman, points out that fall pastures of small grains should be seeded in September in most parts of the state. "The value of fall pastures of wheat, oats, barley or rye has been repeatedly shown from coast to coast and north to south," Mr. Thomas asserts, and suggests that interested farmers consult county agent or nearest dairy herd demonstrator for details.

In spite of doubts to the contrary tractors have been found successful in planting and cultivating row crops on terraced land in Mitchell county. During the last 15 months 79 dual-purpose tractors have been bought by farmers there for use with two-row outfits.

Wheels S-L-I-P where Tracks GRIP

That's the whole story about the difference between a "Caterpillar" and other type tractors. Official figures under the Nebraska State Test showed average loss of 6% in wheel slippage on wheel type tractors. Figure this loss in power, multiply it by the number of miles you expect to drive your tractor, and see where you are.

The broad tracks of a "Caterpillar" grip in loose dirt, sand, on wet, dry or hard ground—delivering full horse power at the drawbar, no wasted energy or power in wheel slippage.

Road builders, engineers, contractors, farmers—men who make it their business to know—choose "Caterpillar" to do the job better, quicker, cheaper.

We will be glad to show you where a "Caterpillar" can cut costs for you—write us—no obligation.

DODGE DEPENDABILITY

TRUE ECONOMY is more than price deep

Owners of the Dodge Six and Eight-in-Line are especially gratified to find that the very features which contribute most notably to the pleasure of owning these fine motor cars are also responsible for their economy, dependability and long life.

The carefully-perfected balance of the engines means less wear and tear from vibration. The floating comfort on the road means that the engine and chassis, as well as the passengers, are virtually free from shock and strain.

The strength and permanent silence of the Mono-Piece Steel Bodies reflect freedom from upkeep expense as well as greater safety. The internal weatherproof hydraulic brakes, which give such reassuringly positive stops, are self-equalizing—require no costly adjusting—reduce wear on tires.

Now more than ever before, Dodge cars combine all of the factors you want most in a motor car. And never has Dodge Brothers ability to give great value been more strikingly demonstrated.

Dodge Eight—$1095 to $1145, f. o. b. factory

THE MARATHON CAR STOPS AT NOTHING

Blistering heat, mountain trails, mud or sand—it's all the same to the standard Dodge Eight sedan which is continuously crossing the country in the Dodge Mileage Marathon. No greater demonstration of dependability has ever been attempted. Over 18,000 miles have been run in the first 34 days.

Dodge Eight closed cars are factory-wired for immediate installation of Transitone, the pioneer automobile radio. Other models will be equipped on order. Ask for a demonstration.

PROTESTANT CHURCHES TO HOLD FIRST OPEN AIR UNION SERVICE LAWN AT AUDITORIUM TONIGHT

The first of a series of five union services, in which the majority of the local protestant churches will participate, will be held on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium Sunday evening at 8 o'clock with Rev. H. T. Wood, pastor of the First Christian church, giving the sermon.

Amplifiers and loud speakers have been installed and flood lights will be used so that all present may see and hear the entire service. A 1500 person seating capacity has been arranged for and the sloping hillside makes it possible to take care of even more if it is necessary.

Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, will preside at each meeting during the month and Erwin F. Bohmfalk, director of religious education of the First Methodist church, will have charge of the music. Sunday evening's musical program includes a 30-minute sacred band concert by the Lions club band under the direction of Leo Underwood, a song service with the hymns thrown on the screen, a solo by R. E. Shepherd and selections by a male quartet from the First Christian church.

Dr. Gaines B. Hall of the First Southern Presbyterian church will preach at the second service and Rev. E. F. McGaughey of the East Side Presbyterian church will preach at the third service. Dr. W. D. King of the Grace Methodist church will bring the message for the fourth service and Dr. C. M. Simpson, of the Floral Heights Methodist church will preach at the last meeting.

Police protection will guarantee quiet during the sermons and the open air feature is expected to attract many who would otherwise not attend any church service.
