Chapter 1, Verse 8:

NOW MARTIN COUNTY HAS been given the opportunity to experience what I have been experiencing for 10, these many, many years—being financially broke.

The difference between Martin County's experience and my own is that Martin County will regain its position of solvency while any chance I may have to improve my financial standing will continue to follow the old tradition set by the frog, who in his endeavor to lift himself from the well "climbed up one foot and fell back two."

It readily can be seen there is remote possibility for me to gain any advance in the financial world. I just have to work like hell to retain my present status.

—O—

SIXTEEN CANDIDATES FOR county and precinct offices have shed their coats and rolled up their sleeves and are canvassing the county in hopes of interesting the voters to cast their ballots for them in the coming primary election, July 24.

In the interest of running a good sound government, it's the duty of the voter to weigh well the qualifications of the candidates he will vote for.

—O—

NOT FOR ME TO BE THE JUDGE whether a vacation trip is restful. So many say they are not. The reason I cited because the vacationers are not doing what they really want to. I agree with that view. I think that's the very reason I have been contented to stay at home.

I could never count my cash to last further than the swimming pool in the neighbor town 20 miles away, when what I really wanted to do was to sit on the seashore of Miami Beach and watch the parade of pretty girls in bathing suits.

Oh, I could settle for sitting on the shore of a clear water stream, under the spreading shade trees . . . no flies, no mosquitoes, cool breeze, cold ice water, fishing hook and line in the stream angling for the finny tribe, fishing pole stuck in the river's bank, a good magazine to read, and someone to remove the fish from my hook and bait it.

The location I would want would be up in the mountains of Colorado.

—O—

TURNED ON MY RADIO THE other night and the station my dial was on presented me with a baseball game in progress between the Midland Indians and the Roswell (N.M.) Rockets. These teams are members of the Longhorn League.

Midland ranks in fourth place and Roswell is playing hide-and-seek with the Artesia (N.M.) Potashers for top position in the race at the moment.

The Rockets have a first baseman, Joe Bauman, who is the leading home run batter in the league. He is a "block buster" with the bat and has pushed more baseballs over the fence for home runs than any player in the league to date. To face Bauman from the pitcher's box is poison to every pitcher in the league.

The ball hurled at Bauman the pitcher can see disappear over the fence, and should the three bases be filled with runners, they'll all be cleared and the scores registered.

This night a diminutive left-handed pitcher, Julio Ramos, for the Indians was in the box. He was poking his offerings through to his Indian mate Briner, the catcher, in corkscrew fashion, and his straight balls came like rifle bullets by the opposing batters.

The score was so close in the game there was neither time nor opportunity for Ramos to rest on

Stanton Bank Will Provide Money Needs

Sizeable Increases In Tax Valuations Forecast For Coming Year By Auditor

Faces were brighter and hearts were lighter — but pocketbooks were heavier — around Martin County Courthouse Tuesday afternoon, and the cause of these happy developments was that county salary checks, overdue since June 1, had begun to issue from the county treasurer's office.

The payment of salaries and certain other county expenses became possible early this week as the result of an agreement between the county commissioners and the First National Bank of Stanton whereby the bank will pick up the tab on essential expenditures until sufficient revenues for operations begin coming into county coffers sometime this fall.

$20,000 Limit

As explained by County Judge James McMorris and County Auditor Harold P. Wine of Ballinger, the arrangement with the bank provides that the institution will honor Martin County checks up to a total of $20,000 outstanding at any one time between now and approximately October 15. It is expected that county revenues will eliminate necessity for such financing by mid-October.

Auditor Wine said Tuesday afternoon that the bank agreed to assist the county out of its present financial dilemma by extending credit to its legal limit of 20 per cent of the bank's capital stock. This, he explained, means that at no time during the period of emergency financing can the county's indebtedness to the bank under the arrangement amount to more than the $20,000 figure.

Auditor's Okay Required Wine said the agreement provides that the bank will honor only checks for absolutely essential county expenditures, and all checks must be okayed by the auditor before issuance. The auditor said he is to go over proposed expenditures with the commissioners court every other Monday to determine what checks shall be written.

Wine and his wife, who have been making a complete audit of Martin County finances since June 1, left Tuesday afternoon to attend an accountant's convention in San Antonio. They will return early next week, however, to complete the audit and advise commissioners regarding the county's tax framework.

County Treasurer Bob Whitaker said Tuesday afternoon that it is his understanding the bank financing will be done in the form of a "revolving fund," with all county receipts to be deposited in the bank and the bank to pay the approved county expenditures during the next few months.

Finances Discussed

The commissioners court met Monday and Tuesday of this week. See COUNTY, Page 8

Sheriff's New Son Brings Cigar Handout

A 7-pound son, christened Daniel John, Jr., was born to Martin County Sheriff and Mrs. Dan Saunders at 8:30 p. m., Sunday, June 13, at Martin County Memorial Hospital. Mother and infant both are reported as "doing fine."

Word is that anyone in need of a good cigar might get one if he dropped around the sheriff's office at the courthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders have another son, David, age 3.

Storm Damage Is Extensive

Destruction of young crops on several thousand acres of farmlands, and property damages amounting to thousands of dollars, boiled out of a vicious wind-rain-hailstorm which sped across Southeast Martin County shortly after 3 p. m. Monday.

The storm moved in from the west and south-west and passed over individual points in about 35 minutes.

Main path of destruction was along a line through northeast Midland, southeast Martin and northwest Howard counties.

Violence Of Wind

Examples of wind violence were legion. About three miles east of Midland, a 137,000-pound cover was flipped off an 80,000-gallon oil tank and deposited against its former base.

In Stanton, a 40-foot house trailer about one mile north of the city on the Lamesa highway was picked up from its base and plumb connections and dumped on its side some 35 feet from its original location.

Another house trailer in the same vicinity was twisted off its base but not overturned, and roofs were blown off a garage and another small building at the State Highway Department's maintenance station just across the highway. Metal and wood debris from the garage roof was strewn for 500-600 yards northeast of the building, tracing the course of the storm.

Flier Killed

Webb Air Force Base officials announced Monday that a student pilot from Western Europe, on a jet plane solo training flight apparently was caught in the teeth of the storm and crashed to his death on a farm about 11 miles northwest of Big Spring.

Blinding winds and sand struck the Tarzan and L-norah areas in Martin County and blew out or covered up many acres of young crops in the sectors.

Northeast of Stanton, toward Knott, several thousand acres of crops were destroyed, some by blowing out, but most by hail accompanying the winds. Hailstones about the size of marbles reportedly filled furrows on farmlands in this area.

On the Jess Miles place, about 12 miles northeast of Stanton, wind lifted the roof off a barn and stable and blew out 25 window panes in the Miles' home. Miles' crops were ruined, he said Tuesday, and water damage to wallpaper and furnishings inside his house was extensive.

The Courtney community just west of Stanton was visited by high winds and a violent sandstorm, but Mrs. R. S. Lewis, Reporter correspondent there, said crop damages in that sector apparently were lighter than in other sections of the storm's path.

A number of outbuildings were blown down at Courtney, including chicken houses at Mrs. See STORM, Page 5

F-L-A-S-H-E-S FROM THE STORM

By JAMES E. KELLY

After the extremely high price I have held on my life all these years, I was met face to face for about 40 minutes Monday afternoon with a monster who challenged that appraisal and indicated doubt that my life at that time was worth 30 cents.

The antics this monster — the elements — staged outside this office caused me much suspense. How was I to know but what this fiend would swish its tail in desperation and crumble this shop as if it were a crackerbox?

Then the debris gang coming along to pick up remnants would deem themselves lucky if they discovered enough of this old carcass to make for a respectable burial.

My neighbor, Claude Nowlin, who lives on Capital Hill across lots southwest of my home, was wailing over property he had lost in the wind. His garage can was lifted from the back yard of his home, and he picked it up against the fence at the Paul Jones farm, a mile northeast.

The home of the writer stood its ground against the pounding of a 75-mile wind, hail and rain, after losing a couple of strips of iron roofing and having one end of a porch banister loosened from its moorings. Some dead trees were blown down and limbs were scattered over the yard.

At the northern city limits of Stanton, Mike Anderson lives.

Oil News

New Producer Is Completed In Moore Field

By JAMES C. WATSON

Lone Star Producing Company has completed a one-mile north extension to the north side of the Moore (San Andres) field in Southwest Howard County, 12 miles east of Stanton.

The new producer and extension is Lone Star No. 1 Mittle Walters. It is located 2,310 feet from north and west lines of section 34, block 34, T-1-N, T&P survey and seven miles west of Big Spring.

On potential test it pumped 24 hours and produced 121 barrels of oil plus 2.9 barrels of water. The production came from open hole in the San Andres between 3,150 feet, where the 5 1/2-inch casing is cemented and the plugged back total depth of 3,189 feet. The pay section had been treated with 1,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 6,000 gallons of sand oil.

The new well is to go on regular production.

Lone Star has started drilling on its No. 2 Mittle Walters, located one-quarter of a mile northeast of the No. 1 Walters. The new project is to drill to 3,200 feet.

It is located 1,650 feet from northwest and 2,970 feet from southwest lines of section 34, block 34, T-1-N, T&P survey and about 12 miles east of Stanton.

Duncan Drilling Company has completed its No. 2 Wilkinson as a new oiler in the Moore field. It is 990 feet from north and west lines of section 33, block 34, T-1-N, T&P survey.

The well pumped 66.36 barrels of 30-gravity oil plus 50 per cent water in 24 hours. Gas-oil ratio was too small to measure.

Production is coming from open hole between 3,186 feet and 3,209 feet. That section was acidized with 500 gallons.

The storm destroyed many acres of cotton for him. He had a 40-foot length of irrigation pipe lying in his yard. The wind picked it up and landed it 100 yards away.

Ahead of the rain cloud and above it rolled a wave of sand, reminding one of an ocean wave coming into port on the beach.

The Martin Vavras were at home so as to be together if they blew away. Their nerves already were at high tension as the storm pounded, when an empty iron barrel came tumbling along and slammed against the house. The couple survived the shock, but they were about to take flight through the ceiling.

On Mrs. Walter Henson's farm three miles southeast of Stanton, her garage was blown away but her car was left standing without a scratch.

Leeman Henson, farming two miles southeast of Stanton, had about 100 acres in cotton seriously damaged. Had a cultivator standing under a huge shade tree. The tree blew over on the implement, and Alton Turner of the Friendly Food Store, who saw it, said Leeman would have to saw the tree up in chunks to get it off the cultivator.

District Jury Awards Damages To Mrs. Hasting

A 118th District Court jury in Stanton last Friday awarded $16,045.45 damages to Mrs. Loyd Hasting of Courtney in a suit brought against the Texas and Pacific Railway.

The suit arose out of a collision between a pickup truck driven by Mrs. Hasting and a T&P locomotive in Stanton on October 14, 1952. The collision occurred at the railroad crossing just east of the depot office here.

Attorneys for the railroad had not filed an appeal by Tuesday afternoon; however Mrs. Doris Stephenson, district clerk, said they have 10 days from the date of the jury's decision in which to do so.

Council Gives Salary Hikes To Five Employees Of City

The Stanton City Council in reconvened session Tuesday night, June 8, took the following action:

ONE: Raised salaries of five of the city's 11 employees.

TWO: Voted to share half-and-half with the Stanton Lions Club the cost of surfacing tennis courts in City Park. Cost of the surfacing was estimated at $180.

FOUR: Approved payment to Victor Mellinger's store, Big Spring, for new uniforms for members of the police force.

Votes were unanimous on all items except the fourth, on which Alderman Deavenport did not vote.

Mayor J. W. Sale and all aldermen except Phil Berry were present.

Salary raises were as follows: City Secretary G. B. Shelburne from $340 to $350 per month; Chief of Police Ed McCain from $300 to $315; Patrolman Walter Graves from $240 to $250. Maintenance engineers Henry Ringhoffer and B. L. Moore each received a $10 raise—Ringhoffer to $285 and Moore to $270.

Salaries are due to come up again for review by the council in January of next year.

New Mexico Bank Aids Its Town—And Itself

Considered as perhaps the most important place of business in any city or town is its financial institution—the bank. Its importance in the community the bank serves is dependent upon the stability and growth of the surrounding territory from which the financial institution draws its business—the deposits and the business derived from lending the money.

These two items, which are essential to the welfare of a bank, must come from the business done by institutions and individual citizens located within the boundary lines of the bank's trade territory.

Then it's as important to the financial institution as it is to any other business and individual to be not satisfied with the revenue the community is enjoying but seek new revenue to flow into the community from outside sources.

A bank in New Mexico has introduced a plan of nationwide advertising to direct tourist money to its town.

The San Angelo Standard-Times comments on the New Mexico bank's plan and how well it is succeeding in the following editorial:

"A Santa Fe, N. M., bank is paying a bill for nationwide advertising designed to attract tourists and new residents to that city.

"This is unique in two ways. The bank is financing a community promotion. James W. Young of the board of directors worked out the program, expressing progressive leadership.

"The response has exceeded expectations, with the daily tourist count at 292 and a gain of 1,000 permanent residents each year.

"Would this have happened without the advertising? That is beside the point. It is happening, and it presents a bank in a community service that is satisfactory to the bank because it is getting its share of the new citizens and benefiting from the harvest of tourist dollars that are expended with patrons of the financing institution.

"The incident reflects the opportunity of banks for service above self as they make a contribution to the welfare of a community and enhance the feeling that banks are something more than the cold hearths of conservatism."

Sight Of Growing Crops Is Good For Eyes

It was a treat for sun-blinded eyes caused by a blazing sun which had not had its face hidden behind a cloud in almost four years, and by swirling sand blowing into them over a period of almost four years. The parched, barren agricultural lands and the brown, burned-up grazing lands added their miseries to the sun-blinded eyes.

The treat we refer to that was a cure for sore eyes was pictured last week in two pictures on the front page of The Stanton Reporter.

They revealed two fields of growing grain, one of oats and one of rye, on the Tant Lindsay irrigated farm 17 miles northwest of Stanton.

The picture of rye showed Lindsay standing in the field with the stalks standing high enough for the beards to tickle him under the chin.

The waist-band of the grower standing in the field of oats was obscured from view by the tallness of the stalks. It is estimated the oats will yield from 75 to 85 bushels per acre.

There are many fields of various growing crops in the irrigated belt of Martin County that present pictures of equal splendor as these of Tant Lindsay's.

Auto Dealers Adopt Advertising Code

The automobile dealers of St. Louis have adopted a new advertising code sponsored by the Better Business Bureau. It also has the support of St. Louis' two daily newspapers, nine radio stations, three television stations, seven neighborhood newspapers and other groups.

The code is for slamming the door on:

1. Baiting—advertising an attractive low price, but refusing to sell for that price once the customer is lured in.

2. Loose use of the terms "demonstrator," "world's largest dealer," and "we need used cars."

Bootleggers of new cars will not be allowed to advertise locally.

An official of the Better Business Bureau said: "The practices were becoming so widespread the industry was getting a blackeye with the public. The over-all purpose of the new code is to build greater public confidence in the automobile business and to promote fair competition among dealers."

The weatherman who called downtown Washington, D.C., from National Airport to ask if it was raining, said "We're in a fog down here." He created lots of sunshine for all the "I told you so" experts across the country.

Swiss officials refused to change all signals to "green" at stated hours so that Red delegates to the Geneva conference could speed back and forth to sessions. Swiss "caution" lights seem to be functioning perfectly.

Philosopher Admits He Doesn't Have The Key To Peace

Dear Editor:

I was fiddlin with my radio the other night tryin to get a weather report, you can't always depend on a weather report, but when a man needs a rain a rain forecast is better than nothing, when I accidentally tuned in a speech somebody was makin. I never did catch his name, but I was interested in what he said.

Accordin to him, "the average man is the key to peace in the world."

Now first off I'd like to say I have never met an average man, but I think I know what a speaker means by the phrase, it's people like you and me, especially me, and for that reason I would like to disagree violently with anybody who says I'm the key to peace in the world. I don't have a thing to do with it.

All the wars I can remember, I didn't even know was happenin till I read about it in the papers, and all the armistices I can remember, I didn't know was signed till I read about that too. They can't pin it on me.

You take the present trouble in Indo-China. Why, in the last 15 or 20 years I don't guess I've spent 15 seconds thinking about that country, don't even know which direction it is from here, and anybody who is dependin on me to bring about peace over there has sure got his head in the clouds and his foot in his mouth at the same time. If I ever had the key to peace in Indo-China, I blamed sure have misplaced it. I've gone through my brain and my pants pockets too, and it ain't here.

Maybe in the Revolutionary War the average man had something to do with it, maybe in the Civil War, when a man with a singleshot rifle was as well armed as anybody else, but nowadays it's the men who control the bombs and the airplanes that have the key, and I ain't got a bomb or an airplane to my name.

I am afraid that big shots cause wars, not little shots, and decline the honor of the responsibility.

I'm sure in favor of peace, I've got more than I can do fightin insects, not to mention somebody on the other side of the world I don't even know their last names, and if the world is looking to me to solve its problems, it had better lay in some more headache powder.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

Art Of Homemaking Is Being Studied By Stanton Girls

Twenty-five Stanton homemaking girls are taking part in the Future Homemakers of America summer program. Under this program each homemaking girl may choose a project, put in 100 hours, and she will receive an addition one-half credit in homemaking.

Mrs. Frances Graham, homemaking teacher, says, "The purpose of this summer program is to teach the girls the care of the home and all the different things that go into making a better home."

Different projects the girls are carrying out are gardening and home freezing; child care and family relationship; grooming; choosing clothes and sewing; and meal planning and cooking.

One girl who is working this summer has as her project budgeting money. With the money she saves this summer she will buy her school clothes for next year.

Several of the girls who have reducing as a project will start taking morning hikes at 6:30 next week.

The group project for the summer is to clean up the home-make cottage in August.

Student at the University of Oklahoma took one look at his exam paper and fainted. Shocked that he knew the answers, maybe.

Have 'Faith As A Grain Of Mustard Seed' And 'Nothing Shall Be Impossible Unto You'

Perhaps the most distinctive, and at the same time the most puzzling, thing that Jesus said about faith is in the words recorded in Matthew: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say to the mountain, remove hence to yonder place; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

These words offer no puzzlement for us today, when we see such things actually being accomplished.

Farm & Ranch Review

By JAMES E. KELLY

It's a hectic situation—a serious, hectic situation—that confronts some of the farmers of Martin County at the present time.

Only a short time before the windstorm struck Tuesday night of last week, these farmers were delighted with the growth progress of the cotton plants in their fields. Their optimism over an anticipated good cotton yield this fall was enhanced, for the time being, by the fact that the cotton was not menaced by destructive insects.

After having passed through three and a half years of drouth and loss of crops, these farmers finally had a promise of a little revenue in the fall.

Every condition seemed to favor a good cotton harvest.

Then with as much surprise as had a bolt of lightning struck from the clear sky, misfortune visited them. And it was a stroke of lightning they felt coming in the form of a windstorm, charged to the full with electricity, which swept over the cultivated lands of Martin County. The wind showed a velocity of 45 miles per hour with gusts up to 50 miles.

These few farmers enjoying optimism over their prospects for a good cotton crop had the expectancy swept away as they gazed on their fields of cotton the next morning after the storm. They viewed a scene of burned cotton stalks as if the field had been swept by a prairie fire.

In some fields of cotton the plants were completely covered over with sand. In other fields the high wind swept away both soil and plant, leaving the ground bare.

So these farmers who were in the path of the electrical windstorm are to go through another year of drouth. A lamentable situation for these folks.

With the fast fading era of the old frontier of West Texas, there also is the rapid disappearance of the old rugged cowman who roamed the frontier.

William Ward (Mac) Jenkins of Cuthbert, near Colorado City, died, no doubt, as he wished, in his saddle, astride his horse. His death was attributed to a heart attack. He had roped his third calf at the rodeo grounds in Colorado City, remounted his horse and while returning to the judges' stand slumped over and fell from the animal.

Jenkins was a three-time winner of the Old Timers' Roping Contest at the Stamford rodeo. He carried a plate in his head as a memento of an injury received in World War I.

He was born in Georgetown in 1887 and moved to Cuthbert in 1893. He had been a cowboy since his teens and had worked over West Texas and many ranches near the border.

The Extension Service of A&M College asks this department: "Have you noticed how flies seem irresistibly drawn to a string hanging in a barn or other out buildings?"

The string method of poisoning was tested in dairy barns by a professor of the department of entomology with good results.

He says to use short lengths of absorbent cotton string hung from a line of carpenter's cord planted in handling areas and feed rooms.

Malathion, L-1359, diazinon, 21/199—these are the new compounds, advises the Extension Department to use in killing flies.

Use of electrical power on farms served by REA is expected to triple by 1975, according to the College Station Extension Service.

Last year REA distributed 14 billion kilowatt hours to the nation's rural customers. The agency says this figure may hit 45 billion kilowatt hours within the next 21 years.

If any of you ranchers living in this area have this "photosensitization" lying around on your ranges, you may see some of your cattle moping around with a dejected appearance, watery eyes and scours.

Later, you may see them switch their tails as if attacked by flies. That condition is brought about by the cattle eating grasses killed by the drouth that has become moldy following the rains.

When new growth occurs, cattle grazing on the pastures may eat some moldy grass along with the new.

Preventive measures include removal of the cattle from pasture when photosensitization occurs and allowing new grass to reach a height of six or eight inches before permitting the cattle to graze.

Authorities say early treatment of the condition can reduce mortality.

Farmers of South Texas are facing the serious problem of finding storage space for their milo maize crop now being harvested. The federal government has out-of-state wheat stored in all available storage facilities in that area. Sen. Lyndon Johnson is conferring with the Agriculture Department to get this storage room released by moving out the wheat.

An Alpine ranchman made $500 on an $8 investment. He had a plot of overflow land which was composed mostly of Johnson grass, blue grama and sideoats grama. To get the pure sideoats seed the ranchman collected it from around the edges of the field.

He gathered 500 pounds of sideoats seed. At the time the seed was bringing $1 per pound. He worked three days and a half collecting the seed, therefore he made the equivalent of $140 per day.

The nation's first bale of 1954 cotton, raised at Mission, Texas, was sold last week in Harlingen auction and brought a grower $6.25 per pound. The bale weighed 454 pounds. With a prize of $1,500 given by the Harlingen chamber of commerce, the grower realized $4,337.50 for his bale.

Mayor Woodford Sale is harvesting 500 acres of oats he has growing on his irrigated land. The high windstorm charged with destructive electricity which visited the area last week had little effect on his oats, Sale said. He is estimating his crop will average 50 bushels per acre.

The continued high winds following the hot blast that visited this section last week are taking their further toll in the cotton crop situation. Some farmers report the stand of cotton they had remaining after the storm is suffering severe damage from blowing out and being covered over by sand.

Those who suffered the loss of their cotton crop by the high windstorm are debating whether to replant. The lateness of the season and the further and most important fact they introduce for even a chance to realize more than their seed is the rapid drying out of moisture.

Reports Of Standing Committees Highlight Meeting Of Chamber Of Commerce Directors

Reports by recently named chairmen of standing committees and discussion of committee projects highlighted the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce at the Motel Belvue restaurant Thursday, June 3.

Attending were directors Glenn L. Brown, chamber president, Mrs. Lila Flanagan, Jim Elland, James Jones, O. B. Bryan and J. H. Pinkston and Mrs. Hila Weathers, manager. Committee chairmen present were Mrs. Rena Rhodes, O. J. Jenkins, J. C. Mott, Elmore Johnson, R. C. Vest and Cecil Bridges.

Harry Billington, Claude Nowlin and Jack Arrington were visitors at the meeting.

Pres. Brown announced that 10 chamber members, chosen alphabetically, would be invited to attend future meetings of the board in order to become better acquainted with functions of the organization.

O. J. Jenkins, chairman of the civic affairs committee, reported that the main problem now being considered by his group is that of water drainage within the city, especially with regard to the lake on the south side of town. Jenkins requested ideas and suggestions be submitted to his committee.

J. C. Mott, recreation committee chairman, brought up the matter of whether the chamber might help finance re-surfacing of tennis courts in the City Park with the city, perhaps, paying the other part of the costs. No definite action was taken on this matter, but President Brown indicated his opinion that the chamber would assist if satisfactory plans for the work can be made.

R. C. Vest, head of the trade relations committee, named Mrs. Doris Stephenson and Mrs. Elmore Johnson as co-chairmen of the annual Easter Parade of Bunnies and Earl Douglas and Jim Tom as co-chairmen to arrange the program and auction for the first bale of cotton to be brought in.

Cecil Bridges, chairman of the agriculture and livestock committee, said there should be an understanding regarding the weight of the first bale of cotton and suggested that it must weigh at least 450 pounds. It was moved and voted that the bale should weigh at least that much and not more than 500 pounds.

New engine power! New operating economy!

New Chevrolet Trucks... do more work per day . . . more work per dollar!

You save hours on the road. Thanks to new high-compression engine power, you can maintain faster schedules without driving at higher maximum road speeds. Increased acceleration and hill-climbing ability cut your time per trip.

You save extra trips. That's because of extra load space. New pickup bodies are deeper, new stake and platform bodies wider and longer. Also, they're set lower to the ground to make loading and unloading faster and easier.

You save time on deliveries. With new truck Hydra-Matic transmission, you can forget about clutching and shifting—for good! This proved, economical automatic transmission is optional at extra cost on 1/2-, 3/4- and 1-ton models.

You save on operating costs. The "Thrifmaster 235" engine, the "Loadmaster 235," and the "Jobmaster 261" (optional on 2-ton models at extra cost), deliver greater horsepower plus increased operating economy.

You save with lower upkeep, too. New Chevrolet trucks are built stronger to last longer. For example, there are heavier axle shafts in two-ton models, bigger clutches in light- and heavy-duty models, stronger frames in all models.

And your savings start the day you buy. In fact, they start with the low price you pay—and they never stop as long as you own a Chevrolet truck. Chevrolet, you know, is America's lowest-priced line of trucks.

Come in and see all the wonderful new things you get in America's number one truck. We'll be glad to give you all the money-saving facts.

KNOW YOUR COURTS

CLYDE THOMAS

Why so many appeals and reversals?

We wouldn't pick out for an umpire of a baseball game someone who didn't know the rules. In fact, we want an umpire who knows all of the rules and all of the details of the game. In fact, we want an umpire that knows them so well that he doesn't hesitate in making his rulings, and making accurate decisions.

Likewise, in our courts, we should have the very best attorney. A lawyer that has gone through, time and time again, by experience all of the phases of various trial courts, a successful attorney who knows the rules of admissibility of evidence so well that he can rule accurately enough so that we will not have so many reversals,—that's the kind of attorney to make an efficient judge.

Approximately one-half of the cases reversed and sent back for a new trial grow out of errors in the court's charge. Every case tried before a jury must of necessity have a different kind of charge—one that is applied to the issues of fact growing out of the particular case.

A lawyer cannot get these principles down very well without years of successful practice not only in the trial courts but also in the appellate courts. In other words, an attorney who has not been successful in his own practice cannot as a rule become a first class judge. He will fail partially at least, and cause financial loss to the County as well as to the litigants.

This series continued to next week with information as to the appellate courts.

Stanton Lashed

In Stanton itself, wind velocities were estimated to reach 50-75 miles an hour, plate glass windows were shattered, roofs were blown off, and trees were snapped and uprooted. Here a deluge of rain and hail which deposited 1.5 to 2 inches of moisture in a 35-minute period.

TV antennae, windows, roofs and trees were damaged throughout the city.

The three-inch pipe flagpole on the courthouse lawn was bent to form a 60-degree angle with the ground. A U. S. flag which was flying atop the pole throughout the storm was shredded. Two sizeable trees on the north side of the courthouse lawn were snapped at their trunks, and huge limbs were severed from trees all around the building, as elsewhere throughout the city.

Courthouse Hit

Windows were blown out of two offices in the courthouse proper, with slight damages resulting from wind and water.

Ralph Caton, county attorney, said one of the windows on the west side of his second-floor office was shattered and rain and hail covered his office floor.

A window also was broken in the Soil Conservation Service office on the south side of the third floor of the courthouse. Martin Vavra, work unit conservationist, said furniture and records had to be moved around in that office to prevent water damage, as well as in the county agent's office below.

Composition shingles were blown off or loosened on many homes in Stanton, and two sections of corrugated roofing were torn off the residence of Jim Kelly, Reporter editor. A tin roof at the Ethridge-Rhodes Motor Company on Highway 80 was peeled back but had been nailed back in place by Tuesday morning.

Windows Smashed

Three large plate glass windows were blown out of White's Gulf Service Station on Highway 80, and another window was shattered in the Friendly Food Store east across Broadway Street from City Hall.

AUSTIN — Gov. Allan Shivers will claim the political spotlight Monday.

The Lufkin-born chief executive formally opens his campaign for re-election in the city of his birth in the heart of East Texas on June 21.

It will be an old-fashioned political rally, reviving the personal-appearance type of campaign.

Newspaper ads are being used to call statewide attention to his talk which will go on the air at 8:30 p.m.

Lufkin is also the home of Gov. Shivers' campaign manager, Sen. Otis Lock.

It was in nearby Woodville that Shivers received word in July of 1949 that he—then lieutenant governor—had become governor, with the sudden death of Gov. Beauford Jester.

Gov. Shivers is filling many damage to four spans of secondary lines, eight or 10 transformers and possibly 15 service lines.

speaking engagements over the state.

Kicking off his drive for campaign funds was a $10 per plate luncheon in Dallas, attended by strikes.

Coke Returns

However, political incidents of 1948 are being brought back to mind.

Coke Stevenson as returned to political life.

The former governor of Texas stepped into the limelight with an endorsement of Dudley T. Daugherty for U. S. Senator, 800 persons.

In his off-the-cuff talk in "Big D", Shivers said he would run on his record.

He branded the majority of his political enemies as persons who believe in a centralized government, subject to socialistic infiltration, as against the theory of local powers and states' rights.

"Perpetuity" Says Yarborough

Judge Ralph Yarborough, Austin attorney who is campaigning against Shivers, got his own campaign into motion earlier, with stinging remarks about

"perpetuity in office."

So far Yarborough has undertaken no statewide promotion.

The rest of the political front was much like the quiet that comes just before a tornado. Dougherty seeks the seat occupied by Sen. Lyndon Johnson who won over Stevenson by 87 votes in a hotly contested race for the senate six years ago.

Know Your District Court ---

My opponent is a candidate for a third term. On a few occasions he has stated that he is running for his third term. Note the word "his." This next term belongs to the people at large and may be given to any candidate. There is no obligation to give this next term to the one in office—being in office doesn't give any moral or legal right to a third term.

A Court's time is taken up mostly in the trial of civil cases before a jury. It frequently takes a week to try one civil case before a jury. Two jury civil cases in one week is fairly good.

The first jury case tried in the new Howard County court house consumed approximately 3 weeks. Most criminal cases tried to a jury consumes one day. Some of them, especially, a murder case now and then, will run perhaps a week. Default cases, such as divorces and criminal cases tried on a plea of guilty without a jury, generally take up approximately 30 minutes or an hour. So, in checking over whether a docket is dragging we would first look to the number of civil cases tried to a jury.

In 1951 in this judicial district, the Court during that year tried 32 civil cases to a jury.

The district judge just west of this district tried to a jury 56 jury civil cases.

At the end of that year there was pending on the docket of our district a large number of cases untried and waiting for trial. Some of them had been on the docket for more than two years and one of them had been on the docket approximately 4 years.

Again in 1952, the present district court tried 29 civil cases to a jury.

Whereas, the judge just west of us tried 109 civil cases to a jury.

The judge just west of us had no help, that is there was no other District Judge shifted over to his district to help him out. Whereas, in our district, from time to time the following judges have been shifted over into this district to assist in carrying on the docket: Judge Mays of San Angelo, Judge Floyd Jones of Breckenridge, Judge O. L. Parrish of Ballinger, and Judge Garland Casebier of Fort Stockton.

Next week we will take up the statistics on the number of cases disposed of, tried, default, or plainly dismissed. We'll trace these statistics down to January 1st, 1954.

My opponent says he is running on his record and therefore, necessarily he has asked for his record to be placed before the people. The average voter doesn't have the facilities or the time to go and look into the record for the two terms now being finished.

Please understand that there is nothing in this to reflect upon the character or the honor of my splendid opponent. Personally he and I are friends.

WEST TEXAS PRESS COMMENTS

Joe Hayden of the Big Spring Weekly News is all "broke out" with optimism. At least he showed it when he wrote in his paper last week: "Farmers faced with the possibility of a record-sized grain crop this year and shortage of approved storage space have been advised by the Howard County Farm Bureau to begin seeking space early."

Just recovered from the hazard of being covered up with sand from four years of drought, Big Spring is preparing to do something about being washed away by floods. The city commission has invited the county commissioners, the Texas and Pacific Railroad officials, and the state highway department to meet with them on June 23 to discuss plans for building additional dams at intervals along Sulphur Draw west of Big Spring. Also being considered is a diversion canal north of town and a channel along the railroad to take care of the flood waters.

To help its city rid itself of the dust nuisance on streets unprotected, the McCamey City Council, so the McCamey News reports, will run several courses of a special asphalt emulsion coating on approximately 75 blocks of streets in the city.

Knox County, through the Munday Times, is reporting that combines are leaving for northern wheat fields in Kansas, leaving behind about 25 per cent of the crop not harvested because some spots are yet too green and some fields too muddy for combines to get into them.

The wheat farmers up in the area around Foard and Knox counties have been having a hectic time pulling their crops through to harvest. Before the rains came in early May, the wheat crop was given up for dead. But the rains revived the growth and the wheat was making splendid headway to turning out a fine crop.

Then rain and hail visited the fields, heavily damaging the wheat. Spots in the field appearing dead forged ahead to a good stand, but when the fields were ripened and being harvested, these spots were too green.

Hence, the combines moved on to Kansas wheat fields leaving behind about 25 per cent of the crop in the fields unharvested.

About 120,000 bushels of the Foard County wheat crop had been received by the elevators at Howell. The News says the grain is in two stages, wheat that is dead ripe and shattered out and the wheat that came out following the rains which is still too green to harvest.

The Seminole County Times, over at Breckenridge, says the county is depending on its 338 wheat growers to harvest a wheat crop which will amount to $329,984. This sum of money is figured on a basis that the crop will make an average yield of 10 bushels per acre. And it will bring $1.97 per bushel.

Readers of this column will start saying, I'm afraid, why don't that guy get the names Loraine and Editor J. W. King stereotyped, mention of the two is made so many times.

Well, when this column runs across a weekly newspaper editor for that a ways has something in his Mitchell County News that is puncturing a hole in the cloud of gloom hanging over his community, he's my meat.

Last week he printed a note of optimism for his community when he suggested that Loraine get to doing something about providing storage space for the wheat crop being harvested, and the big maize crop coming on to be stored.

The Colorado City Record published in its last week's issue that the $200,000 bond issue voted by the county to purchase right-of-way for the freeway through Mitchell County had been signed and sent to Austin for approval by the attorney general. Work is now underway preparatory to obtaining right-of-way for the $1,749,000 freeway construction cost through Mitchell County.

Information comes from the "Road Runner" — that's Press Comment's friend, Hamilton Wright of the Abilene Reporter-News—that the congregation of the Methodist Church at Munday acquired and sold the defunct Methodist Church building at Bomarton, between Munday and Wichita Falls. They invested the proceeds in a four-room-and-bath parsonage south of the Munday church. It was bought solely to house a retired minister who does not have a home.

A campaign is being waged by the Northwest Texas Conference for more such homes.

Another West Texas attraction for tourists is the opening of the museum at the Old Ft. Davis site. The Ft. Davis correspondent for the Alpine Avalanche says that since the opening two weeks ago by the Ft. Davis Historical Society there has been a constant stream of visitors. Additional exhibits are being added daily.

This suggestion made by the editor in his Big Lake Wildcat last week well applies to all towns with roadside parks on their highways. He says everyone likes to picnic once in a while in the summertime. Nearest spot to indulge in this pastime is our roadside park. Our attention has been called to the fact that the general public is becoming a bit careless in helping keep the place clean. Let's do our part in disposing of the trash and garbage when we leave the park after eating our food.

And it's Jayton, in Kent County, that is the home of a young man who has been awarded the Certificate of Merit, highest honor given by the American Red Cross.

He is Truman Dale Moore, 39, who, last March saved the life of A/IC Larrye E. Flye, 20, at Whitaker Air Force Base, Roswell, N. M., so reported the Jay-

Ticklers

By George

"He's the most conscientious street cleaner we ever had."

on Chronicle in its last week's issue.

The life-saving action on which the award is based occurred near Jayton, when the car in which Flye was riding overturned and he was lying on the ground and bleeding profusely from the head and neck—an artery had been punctured.

Moore, arriving at the scene within minutes, applied a compress to the wound. He continued his first aid on the way to the hospital 27 miles distant. Doctors at the hospital later said Moore's quick action undoubtedly helped save the airman's life.

For the third year Alpine has been cited by the National Safety Council for its record of no traffic deaths in the city limits.

The Anton News says: "Right now, the prospects are better than average for good crops in this area."

Here's a little political sense not only good to spread around in Andrews County but every county in Texas. Charlie Roberts, in his "Drifting Sands" column in the Andrews County

News last week offers this advice:

"It's a warning to new voters in the county. It's about that time of year for stories to get started about this or that candidate. Don't pay any attention to these political scares. Every man or woman making the race in the county and district are pretty decent folks. They deserve to be judged on their qualifications."

Success Story

--- AND A GOOD TIP FOR YOU

WHEN it comes to sales, every car maker aspires to be up at the top of his price class.

Which is only natural. Popularity like that means success.

We know, because for years Buick has held such an envied position — the unquestioned sales leader in its class. And with good reasons in styling, room, power, value.

But today, folks like you have pushed Buick success even beyond such bounds.

Today, the top sales standings of a full generation have been changed.

Today, latest sales figures for the first four months of 1954 reveal this phenomenal fact:

In total national volume, regardless of price class, Buick is outselling all cars in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

That's a tip too good to pass up.

That's the tip-off that Buick must have the hottest styling of the times and the sweetest performance of the year.

More important, that's the tip-off that Buick prices are well within the reach of more and more people — and that such prices buy a lot more automobile per dollar.

So why not look into the tomorrow-styled Buick that puts you so far ahead today?

Come in, or phone us this week for a demonstration. Then you can judge for yourself that Buick really is the beautiful buy — by far.

Nominations From Area Being Sought For Texas Education's Hall Of Remembrance

Is Stanton and surrounding area the home of a person deserving a place in Texas education's permanent Hall of Remembrance?

The Texas Heritage Foundation through its chairman, Karl Hoblitzelle of Dallas, urges citizens in this area of the state to consider carefully whether local heroes and heroines of education should be among those honored in this memorial project being launched by the Texas Heritage Foundation during this Centennial Year of Public Education in Texas.

The editor of The Reporter has received a copy of the nomination blank, which has the constitution and rules of the Hall of Remembrance printed on the reverse side. A blank also has been mailed to the local school superintendent.

If you know of a person who should be nominated, you may secure the necessary forms by writing to the Texas Heritage Foundation, 612 Capital National Bank Building, Austin.

Nominations considered in 1954 must be made prior to July 1. No fee is charged. Any citizen of Texas may enter a nomination.

Sufficient information should be attached to each nomination blank to permit electors of the Hall of Remembrance to fully evaluate each nomination. Only deceased persons are eligible for consideration. Not more than 100 names may be inscribed in the year 1954.

The nominations may include school administrators, teachers, statesmen, educational philanthropists, and other persons of whatever occupation who have had an important influence on or who have made an important contribution to education in any part of Texas.

Santa Fe Railway Provides Awards For 4-H Club Members

The State Extension Service has accepted the Santa Fe Railway System's 1954 offer of awards to 4-H boys and girls in Texas. A total of 70 educational awards are provided for club members in 11 states served by the railway system, and 15 are allotted to Texas.

The awards are sufficient to pay all the winners' expenses to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next Fall.

In addition, Texas will receive two of 20 Santa Fe college scholarships of $250 for 4-H members. Other states sharing in the grant of $15,890 for Santa Fe awards and scholarships are Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Winners for both the Club Congress and scholarship awards will be selected by state 4-H leaders, based on achievement records of the individuals.

While the boys and girls are in Chicago, the railway will be host at a dinner in honor of the 70 winners, at which a number of state and national leaders in the 4-H Club movement will be guests.

London, England, city officials are pondering abandonment of the city's last gas street lights. They shouldn't worry — politicians the world over are sending up clouds of "ill-omenated" gas.

Dr. E. S. James of Vernon has been elected editor of the Baptist Standard, denominational paper of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, published in Dallas.

Appointment of Dr. James was made by the paper's board of directors, headed by the Rev. Charles L. Cockrell of Garland. Dr. J. Ralph Grant of Lubbock was chairman of the selection committee.

his laurels. A moment's letdown or a piece of misjudgment might mean the loss of the game.

Bauman, big strapping fellow that he is, wields the bat from the portside, but stepping into the batter's box he held no horrors for Ramos. He whiffed his offering at the home running in such a way as to dazzle the eyes of Bauman, and on as many occasions as he stood up to the barrage blasted by Ramos (there were four) Bauman punctured the air with strikeouts.

Here in the hotly contested game was the spot my admiration went out to Ramos. The left-hander permitted the batter ahead of Bauman to walk to get at the king of "fence busters." In pitching to him in preceding innings Ramos had uncovered the weak spot in Bauman's success in batting the ball over the fence.

He had spotted that the batter preceding Bauman was a dangerous base hitter and couldn't be fooled easily. And Ramos was willing to trust his decision by walking that batter.

That Ramos did, and his decision was correct—out went Bauman on three strikes.

What I have learned from the world's greatest sport—baseball—is that the pitcher's position requires the smartest player of the nine-number team. He is in constant study of the batter before him, and it's his business to find out the batter's weak points if he has any, and send his pitched balls in that direction.

Wine, who has been advising the commissioners on many matters since he began his work here June 1, told a Reporter representative Tuesday afternoon that farm and city property tax valuations in the county will have to be raised from about six million dollars (the current valuation total) to 9½ or 10 million dollars for the coming year if essential county expenses and obligations are met consistently. The auditor said much of the increase is necessitated by operation costs of the Martin County Memorial Hospital.
