Second straight year of double-digit inflation

Consumer prices up 12.4 percent in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed 12.4 percent in 1980, marking the second consecutive year of double-digit inflation, the government reported today. The report confirmed the nation's longest spell of high inflation since the end of World War I.

The year-end report by the Labor Department showed that despite a deep recession last spring, consumer prices rose nearly as much as in 1979, when inflation jumped 13.3 percent.

Not since 1918-1919, when the United States was returning to a peacetime economy, has inflation exceeded 10 percent for two years running.

The government said the Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in December, about the same as in the three preceding months. Once again, substantial increases for mortgage interest costs, transportation and food paced the latest rise.

For the full year, housing and transportation costs were the principal contributors to the inflation rate, as they were in 1979, the government said.

Inflation forecasts for 1981 show no relief for consumers. Most economists expect large gains in food and energy prices to maintain inflation at current levels.

In a separate report today, the Labor Department said that the after-tax buying power of the typical American worker declined by 4.8 percent last year because of high inflation. It was the second year in a row that real earnings were eroded by inflation. Over the last two years, buying power shrunk by 10.1 percent, the government said.

Housing costs rose 13.7 percent in 1980 after jumping 15.2 percent the year before. The largest increase was for mortgage rates, which were up 23.3 percent, while house purchase prices were up 11.4 percent.

Transportation prices increased 14.7 percent in 1980, compared with an 18.2 percent increase the year before. Prices in this category were paced by an 18.3 percent rise for used cars, an 18.9 percent for gasoline and a 25.6 percent jump for public transportation.

Food and beverage prices rose 10.1 percent last year, almost identical to the rise in 1979. Sugar and other sweets showed the largest increase, up 35.7 percent.

Clothing costs were up 6.8 percent for the year, medical care prices rose 10 percent and entertainment costs were up 9.6 percent.

Overall, the Consumer Price Index in December stood at 258.4, which means that a marketbasket of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $258.40 at the end of 1980.

The Carter administration, in its final economic report last week, predicted that inflation will continue at about 12.5 percent during the first year of the Reagan administration.

However, departing Carter administration economists warned that Reagan's planned tax cuts would only worsen inflation by over-stimulating the economy.

Livestock judging slated Saturday

Saturday will be a busy day for the 200 Howard County 4-H and FFA boys and girls who are involved in the annual Junior Livestock Show under way at the County Fairbarns.

Judging of the 150 lambs entered in the show will get under way at 8 a.m. The man empowered to make the big decisions is John Kearney of Garden City.

The judging of steers will get under way at 11 a.m. Spencer Tankersly of Muleshoe is the judge in that division.

There'll be a buyers' barbecue in the Dora Roberts Building, starting at 5 p.m.

The sale of the premium stock will get under way at 6 p.m. Local businesses and merchants will have people on hand to bid on the animals.

In addition to the lambs, a total of 35 steers will be up for judging. The boys and girls have been grooming their animals carefully for this event and some of the animals to be shown here will, no doubt, score heavily in some of the state's top livestock events later on in the year.

The kids will spend from 3 to 6 p.m., today weighing in their animals and working with show officials to classify the stock.

The Dora Roberts Fair Building is being utilized for all judging activities. A touch of glamour has been added for this year's show in a new green carpet show ring and new seating facilities. The building is heated.

County extension agent Don Richardson and Andy Vestal are coordinating the efforts of the 4-H and FFA members with show officials.

The animal head count is up slightly over last year.

Returnees being examined

New York base, West Point set for Sunday return of hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 52 Americans freed from Iran will be reunited with their families Sunday at Stewart Airport in Newburgh, N.Y., and then will be driven to the nearby U.S. Military Academy at West Point for a few days of rest, Pentagon sources said today.

Although the Reagan administration apparently is trying to avoid publicity on details of the return of the former hostages from their intermediate stay in West Germany, it was learned that the 50 men and two women, along with their families, would be put up at the Thayer Hotel on the West Point reservation.

Dr. Jerome Korcak, head of the State Department medical team examining the former hostages in Wiesbaden, said they were "generally very happy" at the news. But he also spoke of psychiatric symptoms and physical ailments following their 14½-month ordeal in Iran.

Korcak said some hostages feel guilty about statements they made to the Iranians during the 444 days of captivity.

The Iranians, meanwhile, denied reports that the hostages were treated brutally by their captors.

Korcak said the psychiatric symptoms include episodes of flashbacks and disrupted sleep, part of what he called "post-traumatic stress syndrome." Asked whether he thought they will recover, he said: "It's variable, but it passes with time and proper treatment."

"As might be expected, the 52 Americans are in varying states of mental and physical health," Korcak said.

A number of those released are showing signs of transient psychiatric illness, including post-traumatic stress syndrome which is directly related to their captivity in Iran.

Korcak refused to discuss individual cases, saying that would violate the patients' rights to privacy. He said the treatment begun here would continue in the United States.

He said "some feel guilty," mentioning that one hostage had made anti-American statements on condition some of his colleagues would be released.

Korcak said another hostage made a television statement after being told his mother had died and that if he made the statement he would be allowed to return to the United States for the funeral.

He apparently was referring to U.S. Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel of Balch Springs, Texas, who reported being told his mother was dead and finding out when the hostages were freed that she was alive.

Iran on Thursday denied that the hostages had undergone brutal treatment at the hands of their captors. Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, called the Americans "comfort-seeking diplomats" who were "ungrateful" and who did "not understand the meaning of kindness."

Korcak said weight losses by the former hostages ranged from 10 to 80 pounds, and some were so depressed they are not leaving their rooms or participating in activities at the hospital.

"Many of the hostages have described beatings to us," Korcak said, adding that the beatings were administered in ways that would not leave marks on the body.

One hostage who was beaten into unconsciousness continues to suffer from a ringing in the ears, he said.

The nickname "Tiger" has been variously attributed to his play as a high school football participant at 120 pounds, his performance as a varsity baseball player at A&M, and as a description of the personality that led him to the forefront of House membership through tenure.

A native of Oklahoma, Teague was associated with military life even before his enrollment at A&M. He began his military career in the Arkansas National Guard before his 1928 entry into college life as an Aggie freshman.

On June 6, 1944, Teague was with the brunt of the attack when the Allied invasion forces landed at Normandy.

In later years, when asked why he entered politics, Teague would recall: "I landed on Utah beach and saw hundreds of bodies stacked up. I started thinking about what causes hell like that and I decided it was government. I wanted to do something about it."

Teague formally announced on Dec. 20, 1977 that he would not seek a 17th term in the House, mainly because of his health.

In April 1979, Teague broke his self-imposed silence on the 6th District Democratic primary race to endorse former aide Chet Edwards. Edwards, however, lost in a three-man race to Phil Gramm, now in his second term as a U.S. representative.

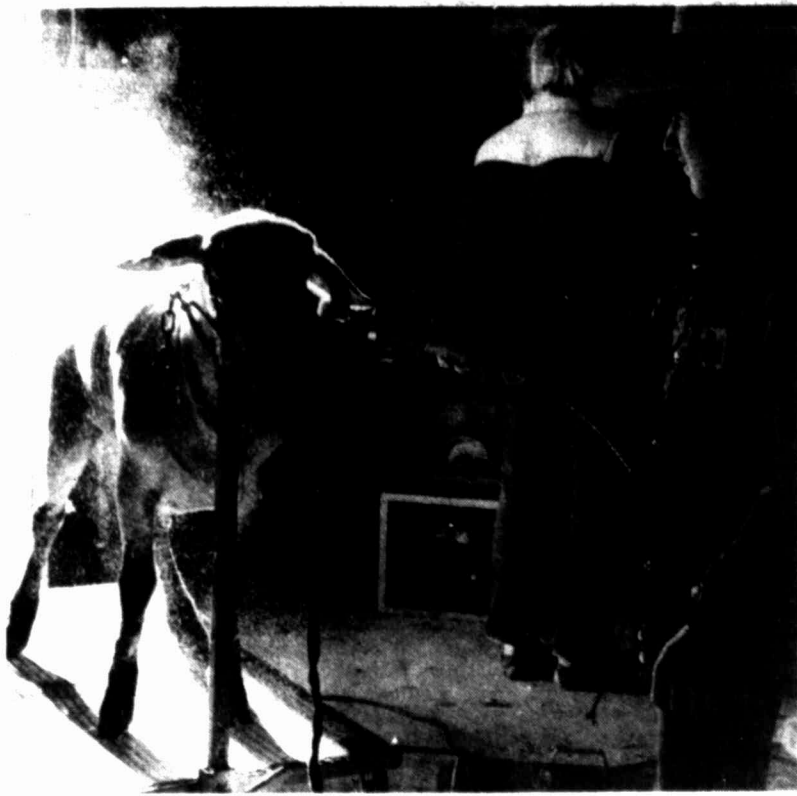

New building is planned

Plans for a new $70,000 Cosden Credit Union building, to be built on property in front of the No. One gate at the company's refinery here, were announced at Thursday night's annual meeting of union members, held in the high school cafeteria.

Al Valdes, president of the credit union, announced plans for the structure and said he and other officials were deeply grateful for the cooperation shown by Ron Medley and other Cosden officials for providing the land for the structure, which will embrace about 18,000 square feet.

The membership meeting attracted a turnout of more than 800 people. Chili was served and prizes valued at more than $3,000 were given away.

Entertainment was provided by the Big Spring High School band.

Dr. Pat Thomas receives Jaycees' service award

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Dr. Pat Thomas received the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award at Thursday night's annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet held in the Civic Center and attended by some 200 persons. Presenting the award was Carl Berry Moore. Dr. Thomas purchased a local clinic from Dr. W.S. Rhoads in 1979, and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Noon Lions' Club, and the city's school board, and according to Moore, "realized the need for good medical care and rural community and is achieving this realization in a fine way."

The Outstanding Agriculture Family Award was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Fuller by Jimmy Harrison. According to Harrison, Fuller has farmed in Mitchell County almost all of his life, is a graduate of Colorado City High School, and attended Texas Tech University. He maintains 3,600 acres of crops and range land in Mitchell County.

Presenting the Citizen of the Year award was Lloyd Ledbetter. The award was given posthumously to Olson Sweet and accepted by Mrs. Sweet. Sweet was cited for his contributions to his community in endless areas. According to Ledbetter, "when Olson saw a need, he took care of it from the Wallace Center, to the AARY, to the retired Teacher's Association."

B&TW Woman of the Year Award was given to Mrs. Arnell Smith by Weneta Schafer, who noted Mrs. Smith's services in the fields of the Business and Professional Womens Organization, visitations to the hospital bound, as well as her devotion to taking food to the sick and needy. She also is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma and the Colorado City Playhouse.

Speaker for the evening was Mr. Doug Manning, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Hereford. Receiving a standing ovation following his address, Manning combined laughter with down-to-earth philosophy, advocating what the world needs now is a sense of humor and people's needing other people's ears, not their advice. Manning is in great demand as an after-dinner speaker, is the author of two well-received books, and also writes a weekly newspaper column.

The invocation was given by The Reverend Monte Jones, vicar of All-Saints' Episcopal Church. Master of ceremonies was Bob Reilly, with music provided by Mrs. Chris Hubbard, decorations by the Colorado City Garden Club, and meal preparations under the supervision of the B&TW Club.

Out-of-city guests included Chamber of Commerce Manager Leroy Tillery of Big Spring.

Clements calls on Smith

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today he will ask the Texas Legislature to approve the appointment of former Gov. Preston Smith to the Coordinating Board, Texas Colleges and Universities.

Clements said Smith's name as a new member of the powerful board that oversees state colleges and universities would be sent to the Senate on Monday.

The appointment is subject to confirmation by two-thirds of the Senate.

Clements also is expected to name next week a new chairman of the board since he recently appointed the current chairman Berl Milburn of Austin to be a regent of the University of Texas System. That appointment also is pending in the Senate.

Smith, a Democrat who campaigned last year for Republican President Reagan, technically takes the place of Tom Rhodes, chairman of SEDCO Drilling Co., founded by Clements, for a term ending Aug. 31, 1985.

Smith, 68, served two terms as governor from Jan. 21, 1969, to Jan. 16, 1973. Smith was defeated in a 1972 re-election race that finally was won by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. He is a former lieutenant governor, state senator and state representative.

Smith presently is chairman of the board of West Texas Savings in Lubbock.

Senate honors Daniel

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two senators who were close friends of the late Price Daniel Jr. have eulogized the slain former House speaker as a "memorable leader" who was the heir to a unique family tradition of public service.

Daniel, 39, died of gunshot wounds Monday at his Liberty home and was buried Wednesday with numerous legislators attending the funeral.

His father is a former governor, United States senator, state attorney general and state Supreme Court justice.

The Senate adopted a resolution and adjourned for the weekend in Daniel's memory Thursday.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said Daniel "will go down in the history of the state as dedicated to opening up state government as never before in the history of the state."

"It's fitting that we pause to remember a man who did make his mark on this state, particularly in the legislative process," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who was assistant presiding officer of the House under Daniel.

Daniel was elected speaker in 1973 in the wake of the Sharpstown Bank scandal and pushed through several reforms, including open meetings, open records, an ethics law and a lobby registration law.

Parker said Daniel's "ideals forced upon this Legislature — literally — the will of the people" for "openness, honesty and integrity" in government.

The resolution co-sponsored by Truan and Parker said Daniel guided reform legislation through the House "with both rectitude and scrupulous fairness admired even by those otherwise minded."

Both senators were in the House with Daniel in 1969-1973. They were elected to the Senate in 1976.

Judge OKs prison site

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state district judge here today ruled state prison officials can buy the Grimes County site selected for a new state penitentiary.

Judge Pete Lowry ruled against 10 Grimes County residents who tried to prevent the state from buying 5,968 acres near Navasota.

"We are now free to buy the prison site," said Mary Hardesty, spokeswoman for Attorney General Mark White.

Lowry listened to testimony earlier this week from Grimes County residents who said the proposed prison would be a detriment to their community in several ways.

The attorney general's office represented the prison officials, who decided to pay $6.7 million for the land.

The plaintiffs' arguments included complaints about the way prison officials decided to buy the land. Navasota-area residents said they were not made aware of meetings at which the site was discussed.

Dallas computer firm files suit against Iran

DALLAS (AP) — Electronic Data Systems, Inc., a Dallas-based computer software firm owned by millionaire H. Ross Perot, filed a civil complaint against the federal government today seeking payment of nearly $19 million in claims against Iran.

EDS attorneys asked a U.S. District Court judge to impose the terms of a previous court ruling upholding the company's claims against Iran, a spokesman said. The negotiated agreement that led to the release of the 52 American hostages earlier this week calls for the United States to return to Iran all assets held in this country that were frozen after the hostages were taken.

The president of a Dallas oil drilling firm with Iranian claims of about $175 million declined comment today when asked if his firm might also seek repayment from the United States.

B. Gill Clements, president of the SEDCO Corp., said the firm suffered losses on both capital equipment and service contracts on Iranian oil wells. Several lawsuits the company filed against Iran still are pending in federal courts in New York, he said. SEDCO, founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements, first began its operations in Iran in the 1950s, but its losses in that country are more recent, Clements said.

HI THERE ADOLF! — Robert Schneller, dressed as former German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, is stopped at the gate at the US Military Hospital in Weisbaden Friday, by US and German police officers. Schneller, who

Redgan gets down to economics at meeting with congressional allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid new indications of inflation's impact on the economy, President Reagan met today with the Republican allies who will have to provide the push he needs if his economic program is to get through Congress.

While the president and Congress' Republican leaders were conferring in the White House, the Labor Department announced that inflation in 1980 ran at a 12.4 percent rate.

Without referring to that figure, Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said after the meeting that "the economic situation is much worse than we had thought."

But Baker, talking to reporters, did not discuss any of the specifics dealt with at the meeting in the family dining room of the White House.

He said the economic program the administration is expected to have ready for submission to Congress late next month will bear "a distinctive Republican congressional mark."

"We have asked that we be consulted on the formulation of the Reagan economic package," Baker said.

And House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois told reporters the Social Security program would not be endangered as ways are sought to cut federal spending.

"Social Security recipients have no fear of our gutting the Social Security program or tailoring it back to some level that could be injurious," he said.

The Labor Department's report today showed that consumer prices rose at double-digit rates for the second straight year.

Not since the World War I years of 1918 and 1919 has the pace of inflation topped 10 percent for two years running.

Despite the severe recession in the spring, the department said, the year's price rise nearly matched the 13.3 percent climb in 1979.

Housing and transportation costs were the principal contributors to last year's inflation rate, the government said.

The Labor Department also reported today that high inflation cut the typical worker's after-tax buying power by 4.8 percent last year. Over the last two years, buying power shrank by 10.1 percent.

Reagan also planned to hold his second Cabinet meeting in three days today.

While Reagan's first three days in office focused on economic matters, the agreements negotiated by Carter for release of the hostages held in Iran, and

Brutality reports have no bearing on agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing outrage over reports of brutality against the American hostages won't scuttle the deal with Iran if the agreement complies with the law, the Reagan administration says.

Amid suggestions in Congress that mistreatment would justify reneging on the accord, a State Department statement Thursday said, "This administration, consistent with domestic and international law alike, fully intends to carry out the obligations of the United States."

But Vice President George Bush said the new administration "will review every page (of the agreement), as any prudent administration should do."

William Dyess, a State Department spokesman, conceded that emerging reports of brutality against the hostages "certainly will not make it any easier" to go ahead with returning some of the remaining Iranian assets held in the United States.

Dyess added that he "did not mean to imply that the reports will have any influence" as President Reagan weighs whether to follow through on the settlement reached in the final hours of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

At the White House, press secretary James Brady said the accounts of mistreatment would not affect the administration decision.

Bush said Reagan was outraged and "very angry" Thursday after reading a four-page, handwritten report from Carter detailing his visit to the former captives, who are recuperating in West Germany.

Carter's report, delivered by former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, described "acts of animals" and "savagery against absolutely innocent hostages."

Since the hostages were freed Tuesday, there have been reports they were beaten, starved and mentally tortured.

Carter called the Iranians "savages" and "hoodlums," but he urged Reagan to fulfill the "solemn agreement" that led to the Americans' release. National honor is at stake, he said.

After reading Carter's report, Reagan was overheard telling Bush, "I'm going to have to consider what our attitude is going to be with regard to this."

Resolutions were introduced in both the House and Senate Thursday to support Reagan if he decides not to carry out the freedom accord. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., also announced that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will hold public hearings into the "brutal treatment, even atrocities," the Americans underwent.

Park building top priority

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Loraine Improvement Committee met Thursday night to discuss the needs of the community.

Established as number one priority was a building for restrooms and a concession stand at the city ball park. Estimates on a metal building will be obtained by next month's meeting. The committee reported $2,077 in the community improvement fund.

In addition, thought was given to promoting Loraine's activities through the use of signs. Mrs. Herschel Williams voiced the opinion she believes Loraine can use its improvement money in more effective ways.

Tentative date for the 75th Cotton Festival and Fair was set for Sept. 19 if there is no conflict with other activities.

Spaniel is stolen from home here

A cocker spaniel was stolen from the residence of Jennifer Byrd, 406 Goliad. The dog was tied up and is known to have seizures. Stolen between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, the dog is worth $150.

Cash totaling $338.12 was stolen from the cash register of Rip Griffin's Truck Stop between Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

Dub Martin told police he saw a man around a vehicle owned by Bob Madison at the parking lot of the school district's central administration building. When the man saw Martin, he ran off. Martin found the right rear door open and an electric typewriter in the back seat Thursday afternoon.

Police are still investigating an attempted auto theft where two juveniles and a 17-year-old Midland man were arrested Thursday afternoon at the parking lot of Furr's Cafeteria.

Vehicles driven by Dudley Pillow, Greenwood, Miss., and Paul Talamantez, Jr., Colorado City, collided at Third and Union, Thursday, 4:26 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Jessica Gamble, Sterling City Route and Donald Cook, 3000 Navajo, collided at the parking lot of Gregg St. Cleaners, Thursday, 9:30 a.m.

Legal problems of OIL culminated; sales boom

Official Industrial Lines Inc., has announced the culmination of recent legal negotiations with Hutchinson Hayes International and Mako Oilfield Services.

The legal mitigation with Mako Oilfield Services resulted in a return to O.I.L. of Money which O.I.L. had paid to Mako Oilfield Services for equipment that was unsuitable for oilfield use.

O.I.L. resolved its alleged dispute with Hutchinson Hayes by returning excess Hutchinson Hayes equipment and settling the balance of the account.

O.I.L. also announced the completion of contracts with Wrangler Drilling Co. for an 8,000 foot drilling rig, QGM Drilling Co. for a 12,000 foot drilling rig, and Hanson Drilling Co. for a 12,000 foot drilling rig. All three contracts represent approximately $8 million in cash down-payments.

progressive billings and letter of credit at the State National Bank in Big Spring.

Charles S. Christopher, chairman of the board, stated these contracts will allow O.I.L. to utilize a large amount of peripheral equipment and fabrications previously held in inventory by O.I.L.

Christopher also stated these completed contracts represent only a portion of pending contracts with both American and foreign drilling entities.

O.I.L. has the capabilities and facilities for manufacturing four drilling rigs per month, resulting in a potential gross sales of $10 to $12 million per month. This volume of oilfield equipment, if sold to Texas based companies, would result in an additional income of $120,000 per month in sales tax alone for the city of Big Spring.

Four charges are filed against former resident

DALLAS (AP) — Charges were filed Thursday against a former Big Spring resident who surrendered to police Wednesday after holding his wife and another woman hostage at a credit union for 2 1/2 hours.

Police Department spokesman Bob Shaw said charges were filed Thursday with the district attorney against Jimmy Wayne Skelton, 37, on two counts of attempted capital murder, one count of false imprisonment and one count of criminal mischief. Skelton was in Dallas city jail late Thursday afternoon in lieu of $31,500 bond.

The first woman was freed "when she talked him into letting her get coffee and she never came back," a police spokeswoman said.

Skelton grew up in Big Spring and attended Big Spring High School.

GTE wants $44.6 million rate increase in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — General Telephone today asked the Public Utility Commission for a $44.6 million rate hike from its 1.3 million Texas telephones, with the largest increases coming from customers in Houston and Dallas suburbs.

In the most populous areas served GTE, the increase would mean a monthly one-party residential bill of $14.49, instead of the current $11.15. Those rates would be for Houston suburbs served by GTE.

There are no increases proposed for long distance calls.

The San Angelo-based company got a $31 million increase in August after seeking $58.3 million. The commission slapped a $4 million penalty on General for poor service.

F.E. Hightower, GTE vice president, said the reduced rate hike granted by PUC last year forced the company to quickly seek another rate increase. Hightower cited inflation, growth and new technology as the reasons for needing more money.

"The money to finance new construction in the fast-growing Sun Belt area of Texas must be borrowed at record high interest rates," Hightower said.

The PUC order issued in August said GTE would face further penalties if service is not improved. Rex Bailey, GTE vice president for customer service, said, "Companywide service levels have improved significantly. We are optimistic the PUC review of our service will be favorable."

He said past service problems might have been caused because, "We felt a little too strongly the customer was maybe more interested in us holding rates down."

Deaths

Clements still interested in giving direct tax relief

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' budget director says the governor has not given up on direct tax relief even though he offered no specific ideas on the subject in his "state of the state" address to the Legislature.

The governor made only one proposal Thursday for soaking up the treasury surplus: create a State Water Trust Fund as a savings account against a future water shortage.

His $26.2 billion 1982-83 budget leaves a $300 million surplus, based on Comptroller Bob Bullock's latest revenue forecast. It is $500 million below the Legislative Budget Board's spending proposal, which exceeds estimated state income by $200 million.

Paul Wrotenbery, the governor's budget director, briefed reporters on Clements' spending proposal Thursday afternoon and said his boss' attitude toward tax relief was wait-and-see.

"We found several ways (to offer tax reductions), none of which was free of problems or concerns. Since we don't know the amount of the surplus now, he wants flexibility to do it later," Wrotenbery said.

He said Clements believes that his budget ultimately would leave $1.4 billion in unspent revenue that could be used for tax cuts and the water fund.

The governor said the state's booming population will raise the demand for water.

"There is no more important or critical issue facing the state of Texas — and I mean all Texans, from all parts of the state, from all size cities and towns and from farms and ranches," Clements told the lawmakers.

A water trust fund to hold surplus tax dollars in reserve has a "high priority" and would be a form of tax relief, Clements said.

Without money in reserve, future water projects could create an "onerous tax burden" in later years as declining oil and gas production causes revenue from that source to wither, he said.

"It (the water fund) is indeed a tax savings in the long-term sense, and I support it wholeheartedly," Clements said.

Speaker Bill Clayton, from whom the governor borrowed the idea, applauded loudly and grinned with delight when Clements voiced his support for the water fund.

Legislative committee chairmen who will receive Clements' major anti-crime proposal, a bill allowing the Department of Public Safety to tap the telephones of suspected drug dealers, did not applaud when he said wiretapping was needed.

"I hope it doesn't pass," said Sen. Oscar Mauzy, chairman of the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, said if a bill comes out of his committee it would not allow surreptitious entry into someone's home or office to plant a bug.

"That reminds me of Nazi Germany," he said.

Clements put in a pitch for another idea the 1979 Legislature rejected, as it did wiretapping.

Weather was bit warmer in December

The maximum average temperature here for the month of December was 49 degrees, which is one degree higher than the average annual maximum for the month.

The average minimum temperature for the month is 30 degrees whereas the average annual minimum temperature for the month was 32 degrees.

The average mean temperature for the month figured out to 46 degrees, compared to a 65-year average of 44 degrees.

The highest temperature for December was achieved on the 18th day of the month, when it reached 80 degrees. The lowest temperature during the month was 19 degrees. That occurred on Christmas eve.

The wind velocity for December hit a norm of 4.7 MPH, compared to a 62-year average of 4.0.

Participation for the month was above average, 1.60 inches compared to a norm of .74 inches.

The rainfall total for 1980 was 31.74 inches, or 13.08 inches above normal.

Weather — Clear skies, fair temperatures today

By the Associated Press

Dense fog along the upper Texas coast reduced visibility to near zero in the Houston area early today and prompted the National Weather Service to issue travelers advisories for the entire upper coast.

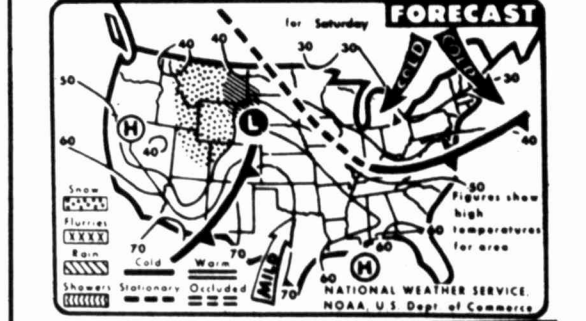

The fog resulted in hazardous driving conditions, prompting the advisories.

Forecasts called for clear skies and pleasant temperatures statewide today. The fog along the coast was expected to burn off by mid-morning, leaving most of the state clear. Highs were to be in the 60s and 70s except in the mountains of South-

Poland's Solidarity orders several warning strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Streetcars and buses stopped, factory sirens blared and more than 60 plants and offices shut down today as Solidarity, Poland's largest independent trade union, carried out a four-hour warning strike in Warsaw to protest the government's rejection of a five-day work week.

Solidarity has ordered its estimated 10 million members to stay off the job this Saturday, a government-scheduled work day, as a further protest. It will be the second Saturday strike this month.

Government officials said the first Saturday strike Jan. 10 cost Poland millions of dollars in lost productivity.

Both blue and white-collar workers took part in the 8-to-noon shutdown today, including the Polish Lot Airlines, the Academy of Sciences Institute for Physical Chemistry and the staff of the Warsaw mint. Dozens of other institutions flew Polish flags and banners supporting the strikers.

Similar walkouts were reported in the southwestern coal-mining city of Walbrzych and in Grudziadz in the north, a union spokesman said.

The strikes coincided with a Soviet newspaper report of joint "field training" between Soviet and Polish troops. No date was given for the exercise, which appeared aimed at putting pressure on the union.

Solidarity went ahead with the strikes despite a government spokesman's statement that the communist regime will not be "pressed" into a compromise.

The strikes are the latest in a series aimed at forcing the communist government to comply with terms of the Aug. 31 Gdansk agreement, which ended last summer's nationwide labor rebellion and authorized the Soviet bloc's first labor organizations independent of Communist Party control.

Union representatives took notice of the nation's economic woes and offered to compromise over the hours to be worked each week.

CRMWD boundaries are due to be redefined

Notices of intent to introduce amendments to its Act are being published by the Colorado River Municipal Water District in some three dozen West Texas counties.

Purpose of the proposed legislation is two-fold — to redefine the primary physical boundaries of the CRMWD, and to define abroad service area in which the CRMWD could be the vehicle to help with water, pollution and waste disposal projects.

One amendment would update the District boundaries to conform with the corporate limits of the member cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder as of Jan. 1, 1981, and for adjustment thereafter.

Another amendment describes the service area in which the CRMWD would have all the powers of a river authority to foster projects under the Clean Air

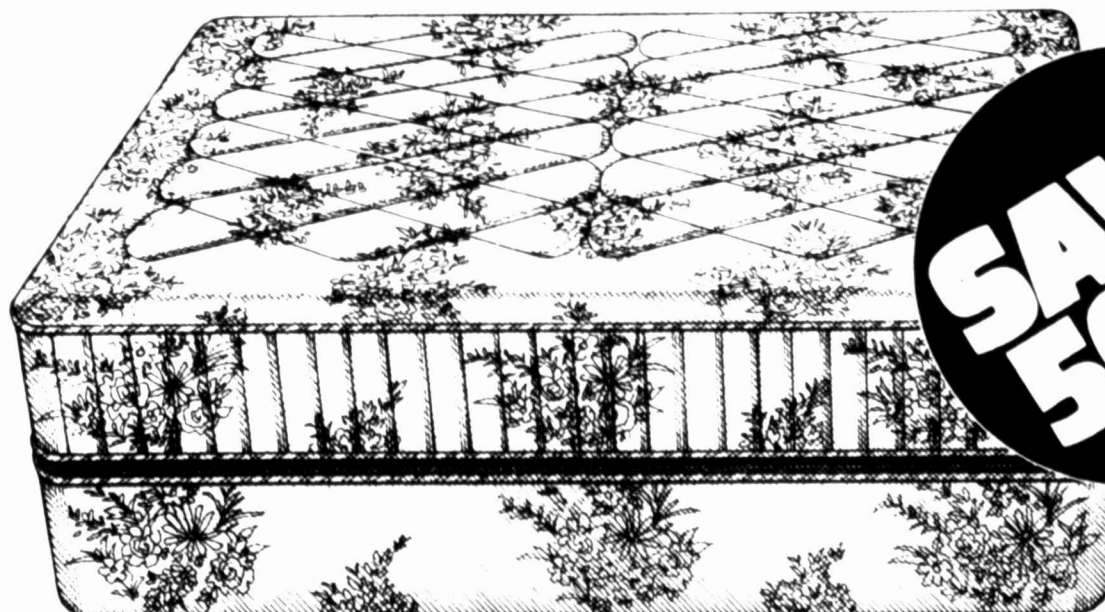

Financing Act and the Regional Waste Disposal Act, either on its own account or on behalf of other entities, both public and private.

Under terms of these acts, both agencies and industries may find it advantageous to finance projects through the District. This is wholly voluntary however. "This does not compel any person, including specifically any public agency, to secure water, sewer services or any other service from the District, except pursuant to contracts voluntarily executed."

Cities and other public agencies may find they can save money going through the District, because, for instance, bond coverage is not required. Similarly, industries may elect to handle pollution and waste disposal through the District because of lower interest and other charges.

States' Rights no longer code word

Despite his disclaimers, former President Carter attempted to paint President Ronald Reagan as an anachronistic racist backed by the Ku Klux Klan.

To prove it, Reagan, the former president claimed in a press conference in late September, used the code words "States' Rights" to transmit his feelings to voters.

BUT IS THE TERM simply a code word for one who wants to deny civil rights to blacks?

Not in the opinion of Carl Stenberg, assistant director of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Stenberg says "states' Rights" in the old days of the Civil Rights movement might have indeed held just that meaning. But in today's governmental context, the phrase States' Rights is something very different.

THE ACIR, formed 20 years ago by Congress to monitor the federal government's workings with state and local governments, has determined Congress is the real problem.

It furnishes money to state and local governments, but also insists on every-increasing control of the local units of government.

SO MUCH SO that the ACIR considers the current network of intergovernmental relations "dangerously overloaded, to the point that American Federalism's most trumpeted traditional traits—flexibility and workability and are critically endangered."

The ACIR, composed of senators, congressmen, governors, mayors and other local officials, has developed a detailed program aimed at defining the roles of the respective governments in American life.

THE COMMISSION thinks the federal government has seized far too great a role and has dominated state and local government.

Thus it is clearly advocating a return of power to the state and local level, which of course was the original meaning of the term, "States' Rights."

THE FORMER PRESIDENT, who had, with a Democratic Congress, worked overtime to extend the power of the federal government, is the last man in the country who should try to pass off States' Rights as a term reserved for those who want to turn back the clock on Civil Rights.

States' Rights is no longer a code word for bigotry. It is a term that steadily gains new meaning as movement to control a runaway federal government.

That other story

Around the rim

James Werrell

If Tuesday hadn't been one of the biggest news days of the decade, this story might have made the front page.

It had all the elements of a story that editors love to splash across the top half of page one when the only other story of the day is that the inflation rate has risen another percentage point. It had life-and-death drama, heroism, a national celebrity, tears, cheers and a sense of moral uplift.

BUT ON TUESDAY, the day that the Americans left Iran and Ronald Reagan became the 40th President, there was plenty of that to be found elsewhere. Enough, in fact, to fill front pages of America's newspapers for a month.

The AP wires overflowed with:

Nonetheless, I savored that other story the way you would a cherry on top of a banana split; an added bonus, not essential but certainly welcome. It didn't hurt that the story was about one of my longtime heroes, Muhammad Ali.

On Tuesday morning, Ali was in Los Angeles conducting business in a street-level office when a crowd began to gather on the sidewalk outside. The crowd grew, and some, craning their necks toward the uppermost level of a building across the street, began yelling, "Jump, jump!"

This is, of course, a perverse American pastime designed to entice suicidal people to their deaths which I have never quite understood.

At any rate, Ali sized up the situation, and sent one of his aides to offer the champ's services in trying to save the life of a young man perched on a fire escape on the ninth floor of the building. At first, police and psychologists at the scene were reluctant, but it soon became apparent that the man was going to jump and they had run out of ideas.

Go ahead, they said, give Muhammad a crack at it.

Ali rushed to a window near the fire escape, where he was told by police that the man might have a gun.

"NOBODY WOULD GO near him. I told him I'm coming out and don't shoot me. He said, 'I won't shoot you, I don't even have a gun.' I took his word and walked out," said Ali.

After talking with the man for half an hour, Ali was able to put his arm around the shoulders of the man and lead him back to safety. Ignoring cheering onlookers, Ali accompanied the man to the police station, and later to a Veterans Administration Hospital.

He also promised to find the man a job and "help him with his life."

"Now I'll visit him every day for the next two or three days and go home and meet his family," Ali told reporters.

Sure, there was heroism aplenty on the front pages of the nation's newspapers, Tuesday. Thankfully, there was enough left over for the back pages, too.

After all, who could every say, "Enough," to this kind of news. It's always nice to be reminded that what makes America great is great Americans.

End of transition

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The Inauguration marks the beginning of a voyage into the unknown. About the next four years one can only hope.

But the Inauguration also closes a parenthesis. The transition which now ends offers a good measure of the Reagan administration as it gets underway.

Quick organization of strong, central management from the White House was perhaps the outstanding feature. Edwin Meese, who will supervise policy matters, James Baker, who will manage the various services, Michael Deaver, who will look after the president's schedule, and Lynn Fofziger, the political counselor, make up a strong front four.

Perhaps cracks will open between them. But throughout the transition period, the new administration has had a brain, and been able to cope in a coherent fashion with the flow of events.

MR. REAGAN'S DAY-to-day activities attracted the most attention during the transition. If bad trouble develops, the country may recall the amount of time spent on haircuts, and the care and money lavished on dress and decorations. But on the whole the new president turned the interim period to good advantage.

He developed a favorable in-house consensus in the permanent government known collectively as Washington. He retained the national reputation known collectively as Washington. He retained the national reputation as a good guest at the table in the debate with Jimmy Carter. More than ever he has shown us the opposite of Cassius — a sleek-headed man and "such as sleeps of nights."

A third important action of the transition was the making of the Cabinet. Basically that comes down to organizing a series of policy clusters—or floating crap games with regular players.

The national security game is the best-known game in town. The players—Mr. Reagan's choices for the State and Defense departments and the Central Intelligence Agency—are all experienced men of proven ability. Those worried about excessive use of force may find a shade too much saber-rattling. Others may note the absence of a broad-gauged, strategic thinker.

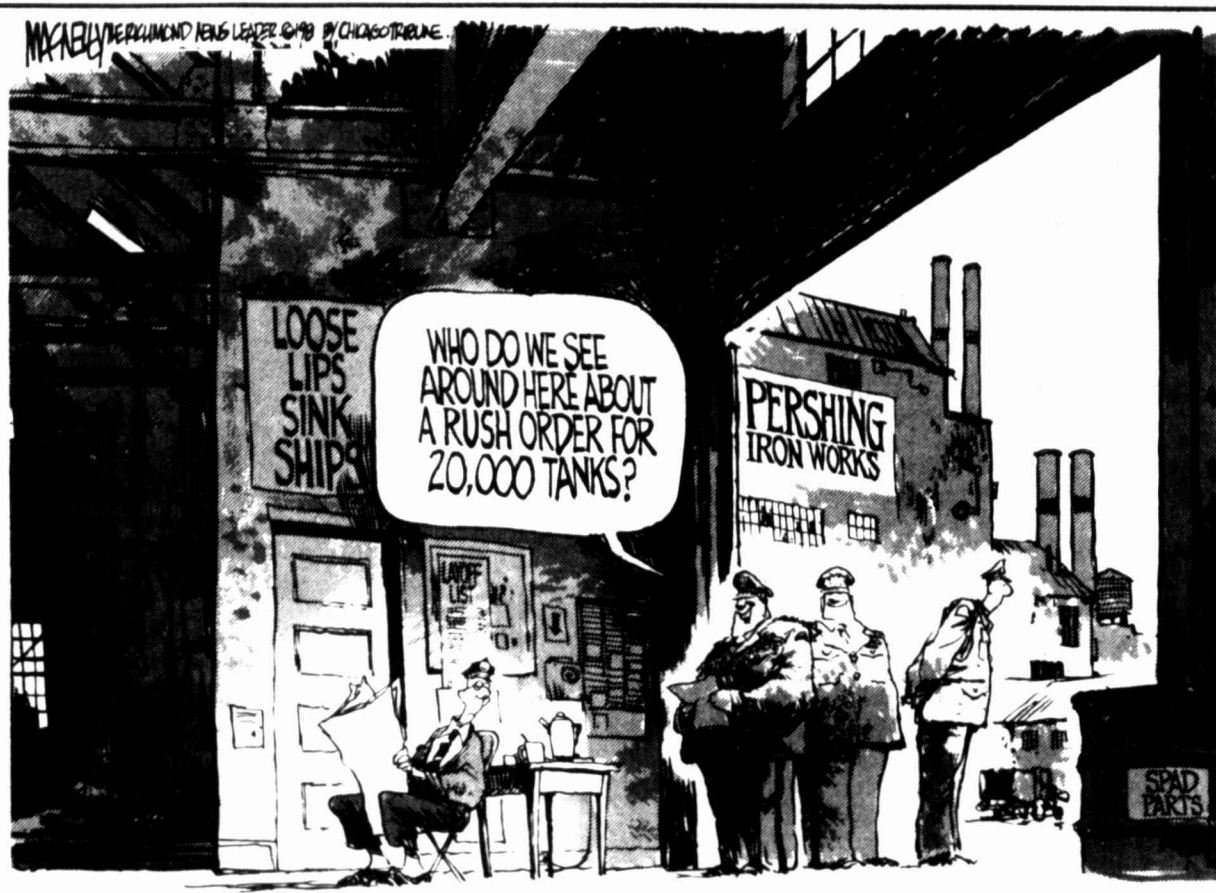

My own sense is that the balance is good. It seems possible to me that Secretary of the State Alexander Haig can set in motion an effort to reestablish American prestige in the world, and that Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger can anchor that effort squarely in the country's domestic realities.

THE ECONOMIC GAME seems much more problematic. Donald Reagan came into the picture as secretary of the Treasury only late in the selection process. He is surrounded in his own department by other players with strong, sometimes eccentric views of their own. David Stockman, the budget director, apart from having strong views, has the special force of know-how that goes with being a former congressman.

So the management of economic policy has not jelled. Discord could mar the performance. Alternately, the Reagan administration could go over the cliff of tight money, like the Gadarene swine.

Disposal of excess baggage was a fourth not insignificant achievement. The nomination and election of Mr. Reagan depended importantly upon a large number of dedicated right-wing ideologues. As spoils these were given membership in a cumbersome array of transition teams.

Thereafter, as daily shrieks from their tribunes in the press announced, the right-wingers were systematically shot off into side pockets.

Anxiety can alter sugar test

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Donohue: My wife, who is 68, took a lengthy sugar glucose test in the morning after fasting overnight. That was several months ago. The readings were 167, 280, 330, and 366, then went to 273. The doctor claimed the test showed she was a diabetic and he put her on a low carbohydrate diet and prescribed diabetes pills. Two weeks later she returned for an update and her sugar count was 113, and two weeks after that another test showed it at 103. Two subsequent tests showed the count at 120. Would you consider her a diabetic? — I.V.

The standards used to diagnose diabetes are still being argued about, but the readings of your wife's glucose tolerance test are abnormal by all standards. That does not mean she will need insulin or even that she will need oral tablets forever. She will have to restrict sugar (carbohydrate) intake and follow a diabetic diet, which is a healthful, well-balanced one that shouldn't cause great inconvenience.

A couple of points about the test itself. The patient should be prepared with a special diet two to three days beforehand. Sometimes, the values on the test are elevated a bit because of a person's apprehensions. That releases adrenalin, which would elevate the blood sugar. The fact that your wife's fasting blood sugar has returned to normal through diet and medication is a very good sign. She should not have undue problems if she follows the program outlined by her doctor. Yes, she is a diabetic.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My eight-month-old baby is suffering with his second case of ear infection. Our pediatrician has mentioned that if this keeps happening he would want drainage tubes put in the baby's ears. This thought has upset me very much. Why would this solve the problem? This baby has also suffered more than his share of colds in his short life. How long would the tubes remain in? Can this be done in the office? Is it painful? — Mrs. G.B.

The thought shouldn't upset you. First of all, these are not drainage tubes. They are ventilating tubes and are often placed in the eardrums of infants and children who are having repeated infections or fluid accumulations of the middle ear. They provide a means of keeping the middle ear well aerated so that healing can take place. Many times, recurrent middle ear infections result when the normal ventilating tube (the eustachian tube) is blocked, which it may be in early life. Later, as development takes place, the tubes open normally to maintain normal middle ear ventilation.

The eardrum tubes (there are more than one type) remain in place from three months to a year. The eardrum gradually grows over them and they are usually pushed out naturally. The tubes are often inserted in the office. The ear drums are deadened and the procedure is not painful to the baby.

FOR G.H.L. — The best approach to halitosis is good dental hygiene. Just brushing alone may not be enough for you. You may have to pay a visit to your doctor to see if there is any teeth or gum problem contributing.

A few illnesses are associated with peculiar breath odor; ammonia-like smell may occur in kidney failure; a fishy odor in liver failure, and a sweet, fruity odor in uncontrolled diabetes. A lung abscess produces a most unpleasant breath. For these reasons I have to suggest a complete physical when discussing ways to get rid of stubborn bad breath, especially at this distance.

To be sure, the chances of your having the problems I mention are not that great, but it is always worth ruling them out. Sometimes illnesses (like Sjogren's disease) or drugs that decrease the flow of saliva contribute to halitosis. Antihistamines are an example. From your letter, I do suspect the drug cause. I hope I have helped you get onto some new avenues of investigation.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You may find this hard to understand if you have never experienced it. I cannot get to sleep at night because of a twitchy leg.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Once, I had to have drugs and alcohol to keep me happy, but now I have found lasting happiness in Jesus Christ. Why don't more people turn to him? — Mrs. L.V.

DEAR MRS. L.V.: I suspect that if you think about your own experiences before you came to Christ you may have some ideas about this problem. It probably seemed illogical for you to become a Christian while you were an unbeliever, but now that you have come to Christ it probably seems illogical for people to remain without Christ.

There are, I have found, several reasons why people try to find happiness in life apart from Christ. For some people it may be in large part ignorance — they do not understand why Christ came into the world, nor do they understand what he will do for them if they will but turn to him for forgiveness and new life. Many people, for example, believe that Jesus came into the world just to give us a new set of rules to live by. But the Bible tells us that Jesus did far more than that, because he knew that we do not have the power to keep God's law. He came to bring us forgiveness, and he came also to give us his Spirit so that we could learn to live for Him.

People also turn their backs on Christ because they simply do not want to hand over their lives to Him. They want to run their own lives instead of allowing Christ to be Lord of their lives. Perhaps there are particular sins which have enslaved them and they do not want to give them up, or perhaps it is just that they want to be independent and free from God's authority over their lives. Like a rich man who Jesus met one day, they want to hold on to their old ways of living instead of letting Christ have control of their lives (see Matthew 19:16-22). Often many so-called intellectual arguments against the Christian faith are actually just excuses for refusing to let Christ take control and rule our lives.

As you have discovered, true happiness cannot be found outside of Christ. But in Christ there is true life — both now and eternally.

Treasure buried

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — For 20 years, a treasure trove of uncalculated value has been gathering dust in the basement of the former U.S. Embassy in Havana, dumped there for safekeeping by American citizens fleeing Cuba in the chaotic days of Fidel Castro's seizure of power.

Although the booty is still technically in the custody of Swiss diplomats, a modest staff of Americans has occupied the embassy building since 1977, when the United States and Cuba resumed partial relations by setting up "Interests Sections" in Havana and Washington.

Oddly, the State Department passed up a golden opportunity to fly the tuff out in the first weeks of renewed relations and return it to its lawful owners—or their heirs.

A RECENT CONFIDENTIAL memorandum describes the bizarre background of the buried treasure in the embassy basement. It began when the United States severed relations with Castro in January 1961 and left the Havana embassy and its contents in the hands of the Swiss.

"During the time the Swiss represented our interests in Havana," the memo relates, "they accepted for storage—personal possessions of Americans fleeing Cuba. These items ranged from Picasso paintings to suitcases full of money, to items of sentimental value only." A similar description was given by former Undersecretary of State Philip Habib, who described the items in a memo as ranging from "family jewels to personal mementos of no intrinsic value."

My associate Bob Sherman has learned how the State Department blew its chance to get the goods back safely, albeit unofficially, to the United States. When the interests section was opened in Havana, Nestor Garcia, the Cuban government's contact man with the Americans, was asked whether the personal property could be removed.

"Garcia's reply was that if we asked officially, the Cuban government would have to deny us permission to export the property," a confidential memo disclosed. "He went on to say, however, that the best solution for everyone would be for us to remove it quietly to the U.S. His government, he said, had no intention of questioning what precisely was in the air shipments to and from our Interests Section on the initial support flights."

IN OTHER WORDS, the planes bringing in necessities for the U.S. staff could load up with the stored valuables on their return flights, with no questions asked. There was a certain urgency in the opportunity offered, because the State Department wasn't sure how the Cubans would react if the removal were attempted at a later date.

"We have no reason to believe Garcia spoke frivolously," the memo went on, allaying suspicions of a Castro trap. "We believe the Cuban government would at this point prefer to look the other way so that we can get rid of the problem."

But the legal nitpickers at Foggy Bottom cautioned against such an informal solution, on the astonishing grounds that removal without official approval would be a violation of law—Cuban law.

The reasoning led one irate official to write: "The Act of State doctrine is a well-accepted doctrine of international law which states that one state does not interpret another state's internal law for it. In other words, if a Foreign Ministry says it is all right to do something, we should not tell it we think it is illegal under its domestic law."

The State Department, nevertheless, took the easy way out. It left the goods to gather more dust in Havana.

MISSOURI MULE: The Show-Me State is showing the way to lower interest rates: A stubborn Kansas City banker, board chairman Crosby Kemper of the United Missouri Bank, is simply thumbing his nose at the big New York banks' august "prime rate." Refusing to follow the Eastern bankers' lead, Kemper has lowered interest rates below the 20 percent mark, to the relief of local businessmen and other borrowers.

"The New York banks have not provided sound leadership," Kemper explains. "Their skyrocketing prime rates have only resulted in a lot of blood being spilled. We refuse to follow what the New York banks do anymore."

A BOON FOR NANCY: One of the advantages of living in the White House that will be most appreciated by Nancy Reagan is the presence of a first-class kitchen staff. Though the first lady prefers to spend a quiet evening at home rather than going out to dinner, she doesn't like to cook and, according to friends, is admittedly no Julia Child. One problem solved.

WATCH ON WASTE: Last April, a high-level Agriculture Department official issued an internal memorandum ordering all hands to "discontinue the use of conference sites outside the Washington metropolitan area for Washington-based personnel."

But in July, officials of the department's Packers and Stockyards division held a conference in lovely, historic Charleston, S.C., whose connection to meat packing had been unsuspected hitherto. Fourteen Washington-based bureaucrats conferred for three days at the Holiday Inn with 13 regional Agriculture officials—none of whom was based in Charleston.

An official involved in the arrangements acknowledged that he had been aware of the junket ban, but insisted that plans for the July meeting were too far advanced to cancel when the April memo came out. He refused to divulge the cost of the excursion, telling his reporter, "File a Freedom of Information Act request." I did; more later.

Everything from steaks to parades planned

Freed hostages set to return to United States on Sunday

By the Associated Press

Homecoming will be a "good of Nebraska steak" for one of the freed American hostages. For others, it will be a lobster, a game of golf, lots of hugging or a parade. But if any of the 52 former captives don't want a fuss, well, that's OK too.

Neighbors, friends, relatives and well-wishers of all descriptions are waiting eagerly for the 50 men and two women to return from West Germany to the United States.

The former hostages will fly back to the United States on Sunday, U.S. officials said today. But where the first family reunions will take place still is uncertain. Among the possibilities are the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and Dover and McGuire Air Force bases in Delaware and New Jersey.

After a day or two at one of those sites, there will be an "open ceremony" to welcome the freed Americans at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C.

Then, it's back to hometowns across the nation.

When Paul M. Needham gets home to Bellevue, Neb., there'll be a "good ol' Nebraska steak" waiting for him, his father said.

When Rodney Sickmann phoned his parents in Krakow, Mo., after 444 days in captivity, he said, "Hey, Dad, you ready to play some golf when I get home?" "We'll play anything you want to play," his father replied.

If the 22-year-old Marine and his family approve, the Chamber of Commerce in Washington, Mo., will hold a "Welcome Home Day" on Feb. 12, including a parade and an assembly at Washington High School, which Sickmann attended.

The first thing 22-year-old Steven Belk wants to do is go fishing, according to his father, William Belk, in Virginia Beach, Va.

Bells will ring 52 times in Port Angeles, Wash., and residents will burn their yellow ribbons when Belk visits his foster mother Gertrude Kannair.

Bruce German will get a homecoming meal of lobster and cole slaw when he visits his mother, Theresa Lodeski, in Edwinstown, Pa.

Kevin Hermening has been invited by the Milwaukee Brewers to toss the first ball when the American League team opens its season this spring.

New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch sent a letter to each of the 52 freed Americans, inviting them to a ticker-tape parade down Broadway. The date has not been set, although Koch said he would like to hold it a few days after the hostages' formal welcome at Andrews Air Force Base.

The city will provide free hotel rooms and airfare for each ex-captive and a guest, Koch said.

They also are exempt from income tax on their earnings during their 444-day captivity, thanks to the Hostage Relief Act, which also provides free hospitalization.

Legislature dissidents resentful over label

HARTE HANKS AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN — You can call them termites, cockroaches, fire-ants or any other species of pesky insects. Just don't call them liberals.

"They" are the pests in Billy Clayton's House—25 to 50-plus dissidents who irritated the four-term speaker last week and promise to bug him through the remaining 19 weeks of the 1981 Legislature.

In the vote most indicative of Clayton's support—last Tuesday's election of speaker—26 members refused to vote for Clayton. (Voting "aye" here 12 of the 150 representatives. Clayton abstained and three members were absent.)

The next day, in what some consider the real test of the speaker's control, a slightly larger but shifting coalition voted repeatedly to reform House rules so as to break Clayton's hold on committee assignments and the flow of legislation.

At one point during the day-long challenges, Clayton lieutenant Buck Florence of Hughes Springs likened one would-be reformer, Republican Rep. Frank Gaston of Dallas, to a termite gnawing at the speaker's office.

Florence first had called Gaston a cockroach, referring to a term Gaston used against him several years ago, but Gaston reminded him that the correct term was termite. Reporters seized on and embellished the term. In the next day's news account, the "Tenacious Termites" were born.

The so-described group is unlikely to wear the name boldly on T-shirts, as did the senators dubbed "Killer Bees" during the 1979 session. Monday, several in the House faction objected to what they said is a press-manufactured term that is too negative—even with the added adjective.

If the group must have a name, its members reluctantly offer alternative suggestion

Doug Zabel, an aide to several dissidents, offered "fire-ants," a take-off on the fireants that have invaded Texas agricultural lands in recent years.

"They're little but they can bring down things a lot bigger than they page ... and their sting is mighty," Zabel said.

Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos of Austin offered "Super-Reps," several others suggested the Good Guys, the Fabulous Fifty or the Sam Houston Group (which would include many of the same persons dubbed the Filthy Fifty for opposing Clayton during the 1978 special session), or Conscientious Conservatives.

The last suggestion reflects the group's objection to being identified, individually or collectively, as that dirty word in Texas politics: liberals.

They point out that their numbers include conservative Democrats and Republicans who oppose the stronghold Clayton and his committee chairmen have on House operations.

"We're for representation with responsibility," Barrientos said. "How the people of Texas would be angered if they knew the things that go on around here."

Of area legislators, only freshman Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring is among the dissidents.

School trustees convene Monday

Dear Abby

Jockey Shorts, Part II The Plot Tightens

DEAR ABBY: There is nothing new about the theory that the practice of wearing tight shorts can reduce a man's fertility. For hundreds, perhaps thousands of years, shepherds have decreased the size of their herds by wrapping the ram's testes in sheepskin pouches. The added warmth destroys the sperm, rendering the sheep infertile. You did your readers a valuable service by printing that letter.

H.B., WACO, TEXAS

DEAR WACO: I very nearly threw that letter out, thinking it was a put-on, but after checking it out and printing it, I received many more confirming the theory that the practice of wearing jockey shorts could diminish a man's chances for fathering a child. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am glad you printed that letter about jockey shorts. My husband and I had already started adoption proceedings when a neighbor, bless her heart, told me about the big difference my husband's shorts could make. We laughed at first, but two months after he started wearing loose boxer shorts, I got pregnant. We couldn't believe it!

We have three beautiful children now, and our family is completed, so my husband went back to wearing jockey shorts. (I also had my tubes tied when the last one was born.)

Thanks for educating the public, Abby. You can reach more people in one day than we could in a lifetime.

PAT IN HOUSTON

DEAR PAT: And to make the theory of jockey shorts more binding, try this on for size:

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an article in a medical journal stating that if men continue to wear jockey shorts and tight jeans, the need for artificial insemination will increase drastically!

It stated: "The male anatomy was created so that the testicles draw close to the body in cold weather and drop in hot weather. It is a natural thermostat at work. Interference with this causes a serious drop in sperm."

The article indicated that American men have increasingly lower sperm counts, and the problem is compounded by the wearing of tight clothing.

For population control throughout the world, wouldn't it be a great idea to export tight jeans?

Miss Collier honored with bridal shower

Miss Kelley Collier of Dallas, bride-elect of Jim Bob Carpenter of Dallas, formerly of Big Spring, was honored at a miscellaneous pre-nuptial shower Jan. 17.

The event was held at the Big Spring Country Club. Sharing hostess duties were Mrs. Wade Choate, Mrs. Grady Cunningham, Mrs. Harold Hall, Mrs. Joe Horton, Mrs. Floyd Mays, Mrs. Coy Nalley, Mrs. Don Newsom, Mrs. Kent Newsom, Mrs. G.R. Robinson, Mrs. Clyde Thomas, Mrs. Gary Turner, and Mrs. Jerry Worth.

Special guests of honor, along with Miss Collier, were her mother, Mrs. A.W. Collier of Duncanville and Mrs. Marj Carpenter of Atlanta, Ga.

Guests were registered in the bride's books at a table decorated with yellow daisies. Her selected colors of yellow and white were used throughout. Gifts were on display.

Refreshments were served at a table laid in a floor-length embroidered white cloth centered with a silver epergne holding yellow tapers and a towering arrangement of yellow roses and daisies.

Silver and crystal appointments were used to serve hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, assorted fruit, coffee and punch.

The wedding date has been set for March 7 in the First Presbyterian Church in Dallas, with the Rev. W. F.

Henning, Jr., pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring, officiating.

Both the bride-elect and the prospective bridegroom are graduates of the University of Texas and both are employed with Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. in Dallas.

The couple were honored at an engagement announcement dinner in Duncanville on Dec. 26 and with a shower in Andrews at the Director's Room of Commercial State Bank on Friday night.

Coordinate pattern, fabric

By JANET ROGERS

County Extension Agent

Coordinate pattern and fabric for a professional-looking homesewn garment.

Selecting fashionable and becoming fabrics suitable for a certain pattern takes planning.

First, plan the garment to meet your needs. Consider your wardrobe inventory for color scheme, year-round or seasonal wear, best design features and needs.

Next, analyze trends. Study fashionable fabrics, colors and designs.

Consider that more classic designs and fabrics will probably remain fashionable longer.

Investigate quality, ready-to-wear in similar garments for ideas.

Now, narrow the fashion-fabric selection. Solid colors are more versatile, however, in some situations, a multi-colored pattern may tie together unrelated wardrobe separates.

Fabric weight and texture are important.

Consider that inner fabrics may show to the right side of light-colored fabrics.

Easy-to-sew and hard-to-sew fabrics are important to a professional look, too.

Smooth-surfaced, solid-colored fabrics are harder to sew — construction details are emphasized such as evenness of topstitching, straight seams, or symmetrical notched collar.

Fabrics that need matching or that ravel excessively also require additional time.

Therefore, consider your own clothing-construction skills in selecting fabrics, and choose fabrics according to your talents, expertise and time.

Also, read the backs of pattern envelopes for recommended fabric choices.

Select the pattern by current body measurements.

For garments with shoulder pads, buy a pattern that specifies the thickness of shoulder pads to use.

Some patterns will state thickness by fraction of an inch or weight.

Consider time and skills needed to make a garment.

For example, patch and fake flap pockets are easiest while double and single welt pockets are harder.

Finally, buy fabrics and notions.

Select matching or contrasting linings in lightweight, slick-surfaced fabrics.

Local Cancer Society reveals campaign goal

The American Cancer Society Board met on Tuesday, Jan. 13. Sue Balios, President, called the meeting to order. Sherry Borfodskes will speak on her experience with recovering from cancer at the Salem Baptist Church on Tuesday, Jan. 20.

Dr. P.W. Malone reported that the Malone and Hogan Foundation will again have $6000 available as they did in 1980 to help those in need with cancer with travel expenses and other items.

Mrs. Merle Stewart reported Memorial Fund contributions deposited for December of 1980 was $360.

Anyone wishing to make a memory may do so by sending a contribution to Mrs. Stewart at P. O. Box 2121, Big Spring.

Delia Presley, area officer, reported for Grady Cunningham, Campaign Chairman, that $20,000 was the goal for the 1981 crusade.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 3 at Alberto's at 12:00. Anyone interested is welcome.

Toxic chemicals threat to nation's ground water

WASHINGTON — A new government report identifies "widespread contamination" by toxic chemicals as possibly "the most urgent" threat to the nation's ground water, the primary source of drinking water for half the population.

Although nationwide in scope, the study points to pollution-plagued New Jersey as one of the states where the problem of chemical contamination of ground water is most acute.

"The figures would suggest that New Jersey has one of the most contaminated ground water supplies in the nation," said Robert B. Harris, a member of the Council on Environmental Quality, the three-member presidential advisory group that conducted the review.

But Harris cautioned that New Jersey, unlike many other states, had measured the amounts of many toxic chemicals in its wells.

"Perhaps New Jersey wouldn't seem so bad," Harris said, "if other states that haven't bothered to measure the extent of the problem would do so."

The presence of large waste-producing chemical and petrochemical industries in New Jersey largely accounts for the state's predicament, said Harris, who spoke during an interview following a press conference announcing the release of the study. Major causes of the toxic contamination include seepage from landfills and septic tanks, and waste produced during petroleum and natural gas production.

A chart accompanying the study showed that percentages of all New Jersey wells tested were found to contain appreciable amounts of five toxic substances — trichloroethylene, carbon tetrachloride, tetrachloroethylene, 1,1,1-trichloroethane, and 1,2-dichloroethane.

The most widespread chemical found was 1,1,1-trichloroethane, traces of which were discovered in 48 percent of the wells tested, according to the study. The effects of "acute exposure" to this chemical can range from dizziness to drowsiness to death, the report states, although no figures were provided for concentrations in individual wells.

By contrast, the substance was found in 15 percent of the wells tested in New York, 19 percent of those in Massachusetts, and 28 percent of the Florida wells examined, according to the study. The Environmental Protection Agency provided the test results.

The report, entitled "Contamination of Ground Water by Toxic Organic Chemicals," was released

Friday along with the 11th annual report of the Council on Environmental Quality. The presidential panel expressed its hope that the report "will provide the necessary impetus" for state and federal officials to battle this "new and insidious problem."

The 85-page document estimates that hundreds of wells servicing millions of people have been closed because of toxic contamination, adding that precise figures are not available.

"No one can say with confidence how long the contamination has existed, the exposures that people have sustained, or the health effects that have occurred in individuals or the population as a whole," the study asserts.

The report mentions several specific incidents in New Jersey.

"If a population of 1 million were to consume this water for a lifetime," the study states, "an additional 2,520 people would contract cancer."

Square dance lessons offered next month

COLORADO CITY — The Do-Si-Do Square Dance Club of Colorado City is inviting interested people to enroll in beginner square dance lessons. The cost is $30 per couple. This fee entitles a couple to 15 weekly lessons.

Movements which will be taught are called all over the United States and in foreign countries.

For square dancers who have not danced for some time, the club is offering a "brush up" course, extended and Mainstream lessons at a cost of $20 for ten lessons.

Beginner lessons will begin at 7 p.m., Feb. 5, and will extend for two hours. "Brush up" lessons will be offered starting at 9 p.m., and will extend an hour. Children will be provided with a place to play, if they are brought to the hall, located at Third and Chestnut Streets.

On Jan. 31, the fifth Saturday of the month, the club will sponsor a membership dance at the Boys Club building. This will be a round robin caller dance. Both local and guest callers from surrounding towns will take turns on the podium.

C.L. Woods is the club caller. Alton Raschke is club president while Mrs. Byron Swank is secretary-treasurer and Jack Strain vice-president.

Workshop scheduled

Mary N. Speakman, C.G., nationally known genealogist of Wichita Falls, will conduct a one-day workshop in genealogical research March 28 in the Municipal Garden & Arts Center, 4215 University Ave., Lubbock. The event is sponsored by the South Plains Genealogical Society, Lubbock.

The workshop begins at 8:30 a.m. with a coffee-hospitality hour. The morning session will be 9:30 to 12 noon and the afternoon period will be 1:30 to 4:00. The topic of the morning lecture is "Secondary Sources in Genealogical Research." The afternoon talk is entitled "Primary Sources—What They Are, Where To Find Them, How To Use Them." It is a program designed to help genealogical and historical researchers at all levels of expertise. SPGS officials state.

Fee for the workshop together with a sandwich lunch is $12.50. The fee for registrants supplying their own lunches is $10. Persons wishing to attend may send registration fees to Blanche Park, SPGS treasurer, 3420 57th St., Lubbock 79413. Registrations must be received by March 21 and since there is a limit of 130, these registrations will be accepted on a first-come first-serve basis.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

"What's with those silly geese?"

Have you ever wondered why the Canadian geese fly only in the "V" formation? For years specialists in aerodynamics wondered the same thing. Two engineers calibrated in a wind tunnel what happens in such a "V" formation. Each goose, in flapping his wings, creates an upward lift for the goose that follows. When all the geese do their part in the "V" formation, the whole flock has a 71 percent greater flying range than if each bird flew alone. Each, then, depends upon the other to get to its destination.

Something else — when a goose begins to lag behind, the others "honk" him back into place.

Now, brethren, let's learn from God's animal creation! The church needs to fly in a spiritual "V" formation, "honking" one another into steadfastness. And it must be at least 71 percent easier to live the faithful Christian life "flying with the flock" as opposed to going it alone!

Texas anti-abortionists gear for battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ron Paul, a Texas doctor gone to Congress, is telling anti-abortionists his medical credentials may help in the fight for a constitutional amendment they say would protect human life.

"Every day I grow stronger and more intensely interested in this fight," the Lake Jackson Republican said Thursday at a rally for the eighth annual "March for Life."

He said the presence of a gynecologist supporting foes of abortion during the upcoming congressional debate could add credibility to the effort to push a constitutional amendment through Congress.

"I believe sincerely that all human liberty depends on this issue," Paul, a Texas conservative starting his second full term in Congress, said. "How can you defend liberty if you can't have the right to life?"

Later, Paul said he used to be more tolerant of those who oppose the so-called right-to-life position than he is now.

The rally and parade from the White House to the Capitol on the anniversary of the Supreme Court decision permitting abortions attracted a crowd of about 50,000, police estimated.

There were about 50 Texans gathered near two Lone Star flags, the majority from the Houston area with a "Houston Life Advocates" banner.

Elwood Webb of Houston said 32 members traveled to Washington for the march, hoping "to get this bill passed."

Joan Cerny of El Campo said she and her husband came to the rally because of their longstanding support for the anti-abortion movement. They have seven children.

"A baby is a human being and no one has a right to destroy him," she said.

Candi Kentopp of Dallas said she decided to come to the march after seeing a film about previous rallies. "I just said, I've got to go," she said.

The Dallas woman added that the election of President Reagan and an increasing number of conservative senators encouraged anti-abortion activists considerably.

Only four Reagan Cabinet appointees awaiting confirmation by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will head into his first full week on the job with only four of his Cabinet-level appointees lacking Senate confirmation.

The Senate worked late into the night Thursday to confirm eight new Cabinet members, including James G. Watt as interior secretary. Five appointees had been confirmed earlier in the week.

The action on Watt's nomination was notable because it consumed three hours of Senate debate and wound up drawing 12 "nay" votes — twice the number who opposed any other Reagan nominee.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he was voting against the Denver lawyer because of his "long history of advocacy for special interests against the public interest" as a member of a legal foundation which frequently fought Interior Department regulations.

Sen. Robert W. Kasten, R-Wis., said he was convinced Watt "will moderate his views and will strike an acceptable balance between environmental concerns and the use of the nation's public lands for the benefit of all citizens."

Also confirmed Thursday:

Reappraisal work begins

LAMESA — A team headed by Mike Watson has started the massive job of reappraising all property in Dawson County for tax purposes. The job likely cannot be completed before the end of the year, if by then.

Watson, assistant appraiser Dave Cooper and Ervin Shipley will be trying to average appraising about 20 parcels of land daily. Their compilations will be used by the county, the city of Lamesa and the various school districts.

Watson estimates there are upwards to 9,600 parcels of land in the county. Of that number, an estimated 5,700 are in the city of Lamesa alone.

—William French Smith as attorney general, by a vote of 96-1, with Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the only dissenter.

—John R. Block as secretary of agriculture, 98-0.

—Malcolm Baldrige as commerce secretary, 97-1, with Proxmire voting against.

—Samuel R. Pierce Jr. as secretary of housing and urban development, 98-0.

—Andrew L. Lewis Jr. as secretary of transportation, 98-0.

—James Edwards as secretary of energy, 93-3. Nay votes were cast by Proxmire, Kennedy and Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.

—Terrel Bell as secretary of education, 90-2. Negative votes were cast by Proxmire and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Texas legislators react quickly to Clements' budget speech

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. John Bryant says the legislative program Gov. Bill Clements pitched to lawmakers on Thursday could fail because of the governor's "arrogant, aloof and pushy" style.

While many legislators talked substance after the Clements' Thursday "state of the state" speech, Bryant talked style.

It's not so much what Clements wants, says Bryant, it's how the governor tries to get it.

"He has an obvious inability to work with other people," said Bryant, D-Dallas. "He's just used to telling other people what to do."

Legislators who gathered in the House for a joint session heard few surprises in Clements' 1981 legislative shopping list.

"The speech was really outstanding," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, although he and Clements differ on major issues.

Clements-backer Bob Davis, R-Irving, praised Clements' $26.2 billion proposed budget as being "very well thought out."

"It shows me he is dealing with the complexities of state financing and is not involved in what people have sometimes accused him of, sloganeering," said Davis.

Speaker Bill Clayton said Clements' budget — $500 million below the Legislative Budget Board's proposal — would spark "a good debate in the appropriations process."

The governor's anti-crime package, keyed to legalized wiretapping to catch drug dealers, drew some negative response.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, chairman of the House committee that would consider wiretapping, said he does not like Clements' plan.

"I generally do not like the concept of wiretapping but I also can draft a bill I can live with," he said.

Nabers, D-Brownwood, said legislators should not allow clandestine entry into homes or businesses to set up phone taps.

"That offends me. That reminds of Nazi Germany," said Nabers.

The chairman of the Senate committee that would consider wiretap, Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, said, "I think it's an unconstitutional invasion of privacy. I hope it doesn't pass and I'm going to work against it."

Clements' push for a water trust fund to avert a future water shortage drew mixed notices. Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, said the water fund "would provide a vehicle for long-range effort to solve what we know will be a very major crisis in water resources."

"Any sort of device that gives you a reasonable source of funds for things like that is valuable," Hobby said.

Bryant, however, said Clements is wrong in saying the trust fund is a form of tax relief.

"The only new thing he's talked about in the past year-and-a-half is the idea of a billion dollars in tax relief. Apparently he's abandoned that idea. The water trust fund is not tax relief in my district or in Austin or in Houston," Bryant said.

"In the face of facts a person has to abandon unfortunate demagoguery," Bryant said of the Clements style.

Davis said unexpected expenses, including money to improve the state prisons, could cancel any tax relief this year.

"It is probably fair to say it is not likely to occur unless the Legislature makes some changes in the spending pattern," he said.

In general, Mauzy said Clements sounded "more conciliatory" this year than he did in his 1979 speech.

Bryant pointed out the governor opened by introducing several longtime lawmakers, and he called the move a "transparent attempt to make up with the Legislature."

"He was trying to say,

"even though I spent the last two years trying to defeat half the members of the Legislature, I sure hope you won't hold it against me," said Bryant.

Bum likes Saints potential

Does not think 1-15 record indicates lack of talent

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Oilers coach Bum Phillips says his new team, the New Orleans Saints, has more talent than many people think, despite a 1-15 record which is the worst in the National Football League.

Hangin Out

With

Nathan Posss

Wild Card $pays $ off; Owners egos too much

IT SEEMS A LITTLE IRONIC, but a victory by the Oakland Raiders in the Super Bowl would earn the Jim Plunkett led Cinderella team more money than a Philadelphia win would members of the Eagles squad.

It all comes down to the fact that the Raiders went into the NFL Playoffs as a Wild Card. It seems like it would be the other way around, as the Eagles were rewarded in the playoffs with a bye for winning the NFC East, while the Raiders did not win their division, the AFC West.

But what it boils down to is this. The Raiders total share if they win Sunday would be $3,000 more than the Eagles would receive if they win, simply because the Oakland team had to play one more game to accomplish the championship.

An Oakland victory would mean a total of $35,000 to each Raider, with it accumulated like this:

First round game vs. Houston ... $3,000
Division Playoff vs. Cleveland ... $5,000
AFC Title vs. San Diego ... $9,000
Super Bowl victory over Phil ... $18,000

The losing share for each player is $9,000, which means if Oakland loses, their playoff share will be $26,000, while if Philadelphia loses, their playoff share will be $23,000.

WHILE NEW ORLEANS goes crazy in anticipation of the Super Bowl Sunday, the New Orleans Saints players are supposedly anxious to have BUM PHILLIPS as their new head coach.

ARCHIE MANNING, no doubt one of the better QBs in the NFL, but being a victim of having to play for the Saints throughout his pro career, says the ex-Oiler coach will bring some needed excitement and flair to the franchise, and that New Orleans will in turn go crazy rooting for their favorite team.

"We'll have revitalized interest when Bum is the new coach," Manning said in a guest appearance as a columnist for the Houston Chronicle. "I'm not saying this out of disrespect to the city of Houston. But I understand there were 70,000 people at the pep rally that followed last year's loss to Pittsburgh in the playoffs. If we ever get that close (to the Super Bowl), the 70,000 we would get would turn into another Mardi Gras month early."

MANY HOUSTON SPORTS FANS FEEL that Astros Principal Owner JOHN McMULLEN and Oiler Owner BUD ADAMS are the leading candidates for the "Nobody shall get more attention than me Award for 1980."

McMullen ousted Astros successful GM Tal Smith and Adams fired Bum Phillips after their teams went to the playoffs the past year.

Insiders in both camps say the owners did it because they realized that both Smith and Phillips were getting far more attention than they were. In Bum's case, he was on the verge of becoming a folk hero.

But that might not be all McMullen and Adams' fault. Maybe it's Phillips' fault in his case for being glib.

When Phillips got the Oiler job in 1974, he came across long-time Houston Post sportswriter JACK GALLAGHER. Here was the conversation:

Bum: "Jack, why don't you ever come around?"
Gallagher: "I like the Oilers a great deal, and have enjoyed following them and writing about them, but I have had an unhappy experience with the owner."

Bum: "Yeah, but those times are past. Things have changed with him (Adams)."

BUM WAS WRONG, as he found out the hard way. He could have taken lessons from an Oiler coach back in the early 60s.

After the Oilers won the AFC championship in 1961 for the second straight year, Adams fired the head coach during the following year, in which they went on to lose the AFL title game in overtime to the Dallas Texans.

Meanwhile, TOM LANDRY was the Dallas Cowboys head coach during this time, going 11-1, 4-1, 5-8-1, 4-10 and 5-8-1. While Adams was firing his winning coaches like a trigger happy gunfighter, Cowboy Owner CLINT MURCHISON was rewarding TOM LANDRY by giving him a 10-year contract.

It's Bud Adams' money, but as Rice University Head Coach RAY ALBORN, then as an assistant during my playing days there, used to say about a certain Southwest Conference rival: "If ignorance is bliss, they're the happiest SOB's in the world!"

at a news conference Thursday.

The conference was called to announce his new job as head coach in New Orleans, the eighth one the team has had in 14 seasons.

"Right now, I'm fixing to go back home, pick up two pair of Levi's, 40 pair of boots and head on back by Tuesday.

"I got a lot of work ahead of me," the folks Phillips said.

He said he signed a 5-year contract with the Saints, but declined to disclose his salary.

Phillips' hiring has been an open secret for several weeks. Team owner John Mecom Jr. said the 57-year-old Phillips became his leading candidate when he was fired by the Houston Oilers after the AFC wild-card game.

"We've kept this as good a secret as we did our game plans for the 1-15 season," Mecom joked.

Phillips said his first job would be assessing the talent he inherits from Dick Nolan, who was fired with four games to go in the 1980 season.

"I've got a month of solid work ahead of me just to find out where we are," Phillips said.

Phillips said he had not had time to analyze college football talent for this spring's draft, but he said he would not rule out trading draft choices for established veterans.

That was the reason general manager Steve Rosenbloom and vice president for personnel Dick Steinberg resigned on Tuesday.

Mecom has said Phillips will not have the title of general manager but will have the authority and responsibilities usually vested in that job.

Phillips also refused to rule out any trades for veteran Saints players — including quarterback Archie Manning.

"But I'll tell you one thing. They'd have to come up with a hell of a lot of choices," Phillips said.

Some Saints veterans feared a wholesale house cleaning when a new coach came in, but Phillips said he did not plan to take such steps.

"We didn't have a large turnover at Houston and we don't anticipate one here," he said.

Clarendon grounds high flying Hawks

CLARENDON — The high flying Howard College Hawks, with a four-game winning streak including wins over nationally ranked and then unbeaten Midland and Frank Phillips, were brought back to earth here Thursday night in a Western Conference game, as Clarendon rallied in the waning minutes to pull out a 69-66 decision.

The Hawks entered the contest with sole possession of the lead in the WJC race, but the loss allowed Frank Phillips to regain a share of the top spot. Howard and Frank Phillips are 7-1 in the WJC play, with Midland College a game behind at 6-2.

The win for Clarendon allowed the Bulldogs to improve their Western conference mark to 3-4, putting them back into the middle of the pack in the rugged race.

Howard led most of the way, taking a 34-27 lead at the intermission. Shortly later, they increased that margin to 38-27.

But Clarendon gradually rallied, only to see Howard put themselves into decent shape with a 54-46 lead with nine minutes remaining.

It was not enough for Clarendon to overcome, as hot shooting Barry Kirk led the hosts back to the upset win. He had 19 points to pace Clarendon, with Jerry Brush adding 12.

As usual, Randy Corker paced the Hawks with 22 points, with Ron Akins adding 20.

The Hawks were adequate in shooting and rebounding, but turnovers proved to be the key in allowing Clarendon to overcome them.

"Turnovers were the key factor in the game," said Howard Coach Harold Wilder. "We shot and rebounded well, but we just had a lot of turnovers. Many of them were at the mid-court area, and Clarendon turned them into some two-on-one situations and some easy buckets."

"It was a game in which none of our guys had a great game," Wilder continued, then adding, "In fact, it was a little of a sub-par performance."

But Wilder did not feel his crew was overconfident due to their recent success, and credited Clarendon for their performance. "We were ready to play," Wilder said. "But they (Clarendon) were fired up. They were playing like we did against Midland and Frank Phillips."

The Hawks will try to rebound and hold onto at least a share of the WJC lead on Monday night, at which time they play host to the high scoring NMJC Thunderbirds. Game time is 8 p.m. in Garrett Coliseum.

HOWARD (66) — Akins 9 2-20, Corker 10 2-22, Jones 6 0-12, Loving 2 2-6, Fabian 2 0-4, Word 0 2-2. TOTALS 29 8-66.

CLARENDON (69) — Kirk 19 3-19, Jones 3 0-10, Brush 6 0-12, T. Jones 4 1-9, Milhouse 1 1-3, Kink 3 1-9, Taylor 3 4-10. TOTALS 29 11-60.

Halftime Score: Howard 34, Clarendon 27.

Lyons sparks win for Hawk Queens

CLARENDON — Kelly Lyons erupted in the second half for 25 of her game high 32 points here Thursday evening to pace the Howard College Hawk Queens to a 71-59 win over Clarendon College in a WJC women's contest.

The victory boosted the Hawk Queens of Coach Don Stevens, the defending WJC champions, to a conference mark of 3-1 and an outstanding season record of 18-2.

Clarendon, meanwhile, fell to 2-3 in WJC play and 7-8 on the year.

Clarendon jumped out to a 4-0 lead, but HC rallied to tie the game at 10-10, and gradually increased that into a 30-24 halftime advantage.

But Coach Stevens changed his offensive strategy in the second half, forcing Clarendon's Cassandra Crumpton to cover the 6'3" Lyons. Lyons responded with her best second-half ever in her illustrious two-year career as a Hawk Queen.

As well as her 32 points, Lyons hauled in 17 rebounds and blocked five Clarendon shots. "She just had a great game," said a pleased Coach Stevens.

No other Hawk Queen scored in double figures.

Clarendon was led offensively by the one-two punch of Lisa Freeman and Crumpton. Freeman had 21 points and Crumpton added 14. "Those two are as good as any pair in the conference," said Stevens. "In fact, Clarendon is a good team as a whole."

The Hawk Queens return to action on Monday in a make-up game against a rugged Howard Payne outfit. It is a non-conference game which should provide some stiff competition for the HC women. Game time is six o'clock Monday, in Garrett Coliseum, with the girls game preceding the Howard College-NMJC men's WJC affair.

HOWARD (71) — Lyons 23 7-14, Wasserman 12 8-19, Luffick 4 1-9, Robinson 4 0-8, Mull 1 0-2. TOTALS 21 37-71.

CLARENDON (59) — Nafly 10 2-13, Freeman 13 5-18, Land 10 2-12, Jackson 5 0-10, Fortenberry 1 1-4, L. Freeman 1 0-2, Crumpton 6 2-14, Clements 0 1-1. TOTALS 25 9-59.

Halftime Score: Howard 30, Clarendon 24.

Time running out on Bossy

Time is running out for Mike Bossy. Time has all but run out for Charlie Simmer.

Bossy was shut out in a row Thursday night even though his New York Islanders beat the Detroit Red Wings 3-0.

That left him with 48 goals in 49 games and just one more chance — at home Saturday against Quebec — to equal Maurice Richard's record 50 goals in 50 games, set in the 1944-45 National Hockey League season.

Simmer, of Los Angeles, was also blanked as the Kings played a 3-3 tie against the Toronto Maple Leafs. But his chances of tying Richard's mark are far worse than Bossy's. Simmer now has 46 goals in 49 games and needs to score four at Boston Saturday.

"There's nothing extra special I can do now," said Bossy. "I just have to go out Saturday, play my game and see what happens. It's out of my hands. If I get it, I get it. If I don't, I don't."

But Bossy's failure played a part in the team's success. "Let's face it," he said, "Detroit lost tonight because they concentrated on me too much. If they want to play it that way, it's fine with me."

In other games Thursday night, the Boston Bruins beat the St. Louis Blues 7-3 and Philly beat Minnesota.

San Angelo girls claim

5-5A first half title

The San Angelo Bobcats girls basketball team claimed the first half championship in District 5-AAAAA by taking a 57-44 triumph over the Midland Bulldogs Thursday night.

The win ended San Angelo's first half campaign with a 7-0 mark, and was their 12th consecutive win of the year. They are 20-1 on the season, with their only loss coming in a two-point decision to El Paso Hanks in the Howard College Hawk Queen Classic in December.

The Big Spring Steer girls basketball team ended their first half without a win, with Midland Lee giving the last dose of defeat Thursday night in a 72-24 contest. The game was never close.

Gayle Wilson had 18 to lead the Lee attack, while Big Spring's attack was nearly in the form of one person, Shell Rutledge. The sophomore scored 14 points.

In the remaining 5-AAAAA games, Abilene Cooper blasted Odessa Permian and Abilene toppled Odessa High.

Steer netters take big win over Snyder

SNYDER — The Big Spring Steer tennis team broke an eight-year losing streak to the Snyder Tigers here Thursday afternoon, with the BSHS girls sparking the triumph.

The Steer netters of Coach Alan Holliday scored an overall 11-7 win over the Snyder team, with the BSHS girls taking their end of the competition by a count of 7-2.

Steer girls winning their singles matches included Kim Madry, Debbie Fulcher, Terry Miller and Penny Prudhomme, while the doubles matches were won by the teams of Madry-Fulcher and Miller-Prudhomme.

Steer boys winning their matches in singles play included Aubrey Weaver, Greg Franklin, and Scott Nelson, while the BSHS boys doubles team of Weaver-Rusty Williams scored a win.

The Big Spring netters return to District 5-AAAAA action tomorrow afternoon when they visit Midland Lee.

Elderly Raiders demanded change

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Their record was 2-3 and Coach Tom Flores' face was sending a shiver through some of the veteran players on the Oakland Raiders.

"He had a look of dismay," said guard Gene Upshaw, captain of the team. "He looked like a man wondering where his next job would be, like a man saying to himself, 'What's going on here? What have I gotten myself into?'"

Tackle Art Shell, who plays alongside Upshaw on the left side of the Raider offensive line, saw the same ashen look in Flores and it hit him in the pit of his stomach.

"I told Gene, I thought we needed a meeting," said Shell. "He called it. Closed doors. No coaches."

There was some soul searching done at the session and a lot of the Raiders will tell you that the team which will play Philadelphia in the Super Bowl Sunday, turned the corner that day.

"We were ready to blow apart," said running back Mark van Eeghen. "We had just lost to Kansas City 31-

17 and it could have been 61-17. We had 11 games looking us in the face. There had been some back biting and finger pointing. You know 'He missed a block,' or 'He didn't make a tackle.'"

All the signs of a season falling apart faced the Raiders. They had to find a way to save it.

"The elders spoke," said defensive end Cedrick Hardman. "Some feelings were aired. We got a lot done. We re-established our faith in old fashioned football. We turned it around 180 degrees."

"Upshaw, the eldest Raider, presided."

"Gene is an excellent leader," said Hardman. "He sometimes appears to be a direct descendant of Raider owner Al Davis."

"I told them the coaches were doing all that they could, but the players were not putting out 110 percent," Upshaw said. "I said they'd better get going or we'd have new coaches and new players in the room and that's something I don't want at this stage."

Then it was Shell's turn.

Steers host Lee Rebels

For those fans expecting to have an idea of what will happen tonight when the Big Spring Steers play host to the Midland Lee Rebels in a District 5-AAAAA first half boys contest, you may want to change your minds somewhat.

Neither the Lee team, which comes into tonight's game with a league mark of 1-2, or Big Spring can be sure about who will play or what style will take the tempo of the tilt.

The two teams have met once before this year, with Big Spring scoring a 58-56 win in the battle for third place in the Reese Christmas Tourney in Lubbock.

"In that game," explained BSHS Coach Ed Haller, "they pressed us the whole game, intermingling nine players throughout. But last year they never did press us. So to tell you the truth, I don't know what they'll do tonight."

But if Haller is at a disadvantage in setting up for a Lee game plan, so will long-time Rebel Coach Paul Steuckler.

76ers bench ruins plans

By the Associated Press

On the Philadelphia 76ers, the talent doesn't end with the starting five. It extends well down the bench.

Reserve forward Bobby Jones, who was selected to participate in the National Basketball Association All-Star Game Feb. 1, scored 20 points to help the 76ers to a 128-116 victory over Washington Thursday night, snapping the Bullets' five-game winning streak.

Jones is one of three players on the Philadelphia bench who have been chosen for NBA All-Star Games, the others being Steve Mix and Larnell Hollins. Mix didn't play at Washington because of injury, but Hollins contributed 17 points as the Sixers beat the Bullets for the fourth time this year.

Two other Philadelphia benchmen, Ollie Johnson and Clint Richardson, added 15 and 8 points, respectively, as the Sixers raised their record to 43-9, best in the league.

"The bench really made the difference," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said flatly.

"We played good enough to win and they couldn't put us away until late, but they have a lot of bench power," agreed Washington Coach Gene Shue.

In other NBA games, the New York Knicks beat the San Diego Clippers 100-93, the Chicago Bulls defeated the Detroit Pistons 125-92 and the Cleveland Cavaliers topped the New Jersey Nets 108-94.

Wake Forest upset by UNC

By the Associated Press

You can't put the knock on Wood, certainly not after North Carolina triple-threat forward Al Wood knocked third-ranked Wake Forest from the unbeaten ranks with his scoring, rebounding and passing Thursday night.

Wood scored 25 points, including all seven in a 7-2 burst in the second half that gave No. 17 Carolina a comfortable 48-38 lead en route to a 74-60 victory, its 13th in 17 games. Wake Forest had won its first 14 starts.

With the Demon Deacons' demise, the only two unbeaten college basketball teams are top-rated Oregon State and runnerup Virginia Oregon State (14-0) continued its winning ways with a 66-53 Pacific-10 Conference victory over Washington State that gave Coach Ralph Miller his 500th career triumph.

Elsewhere, ninth-ranked Iowa won on Big Ten rival Indiana's court for the first time in 10 years, edging the Hoosiers 56-53. No. 11 South Alabama's 14-game winning streak, the nation's second longest, was snapped 86-70 by Virginia Commonwealth. No. 16 Michigan needed two overtimes to down No. 15 Illinois 80-76 in a Big Ten contest and the struggling defending national champion, Louisville, lost to Memphis State in overtime.

Phillips officially NO coach

(Con't. from 1-B)

Houston was one of the NFL's doormats when Phillips took over in 1975.

After an opening season of 10-4, then 5-9 and 8-6 in the next two years, the Oilers were in the playoffs for three straight seasons.

Oilers owner Bud Adams said Phillips was fired because he refused to hire an offensive coordinator.

And Phillips said he does not plan to have an offensive coordinator in New Orleans either.

"I've been that route," he said. "I still don't think they are that important."

"I think 10 out of the last 18 Super Bowl teams didn't have one."

He said he has hired his son Wade as defensive coordinator and is seeking permission to talk to three more of his former Oilers assistants.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle has said he will not recognize any contracts signed with the assistants unless Oilers owner Adams gives them permission to go to the Saints.

"We're in the process of talking to the Houston Oilers and going through the proper channels," Phillips said.

And he said he bears no malice for Adams.

Raiders fine Matuszak for Bourbon dance

(Con't. from 1-B)

"The essence of what I said was that we had a hell of a coaching staff and they were getting us prepared. But we were not getting the job done on the field. I said I thought we should all reassess whether we were giving all we should in mental preparation, practices and the games."

Then Shell quoted one of his favorite philosophies from ex-Raider Coach John Madden.

"Big John used to say, 'If you're not gonna help us, get out of the way because we're comin' through.'"

The message took and created a togetherness atmosphere among the Raiders. It helped Thursday when rambunctious defensive end John Matuszak was located dancing on Bourbon Street at 3 a.m. and was fined $1,000 for his curfew indiscretion.

"It was Wednesday night and I had to get out a little bit. I was wrong and it cost me $1,000," said Matuszak.

"It was my one night out, four nights before the game. I wouldn't do anything to affect the outcome of this game," he added.

After the 2-3 meeting, Oakland won nine of 11 regular season games and three more in the playoffs, posting the 16th consecutive winning season for the franchise, longest streak of success in the National Football League.

At about the same time, Philadelphia was zooming to an 11-1 start, posting the best record in the league. Then suddenly, the Eagles seemed to go flat, losing three of their last four games. But there were no team meetings, no soul searching sessions for this team.

"We didn't feel it was a slump when we lost by one point to San Diego and got beaten by Atlanta and Dallas," said quarterback Ron Jaworski. "Those are three fine football teams. We could have won those games and we didn't play poorly. Once in awhile you get beat. If we had lost to New Orleans, the Jets and the Giants, then we'd have been concerned."

"Check our fourth quarter statistics," said linebacker Bill Bergey. "If we had peaked too early, that's when we would lose those games. But we were behind the Chargers 19-0 at halftime and almost beat them. No, we didn't need any meetings. Sometimes you just lose games. That's the way it is."

The Raiders, though, haven't lost many since the team meeting many believe salvaged their season.

Strange day boosts Nelson into Phoenix lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A brief recovery from some putting woes helped stake Larry Nelson to a share of the first round lead in the $300,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

But a return to his erratic behavior on the greens — he missed three short putts coming home — cost him sole control of the top spot and dropped him back into a tie with Australian David Graham.

"Kind of a strange day," Nelson mused Thursday after his 6-under-par 65 on the 6,762-yd. Phoenix Country Club course.

"I didn't birdie No. 1 or 18 (both par-5 holes) and they're critical on this golf course," Nelson said. "For a while I couldn't make a three-footer, then I felt like I could make everything, and then I missed a lot of short putts coming home."

"Kind of strange," Nelson mused Thursday after the score. "I've always wanted to win in the West. I'd really like to play well this week."

Nelson and Graham shared a 1-stroke lead over John Schroeder, who scored eagle-3 on consecutive holes, veteran Bobby Nichols and Canadian Jim Nelford, tied at 66.

Bill Kratzert and George Burns headed a bulky group of 13 who shot 67's in the warm desert sunshine.

Bruce Lietzke, a winner last week, had a 69. Arnold Palmer, as usual trailed by the largest gallery of the day, also was 2 under par.

Rebels invade BSHS tonight

(Con't. from 1-B)

Wrightslit, Ross Stone and Tom Cudd.

But even with the sickness and injuries, Haller stated that line-up changes could be in store, anyway. "We may have to change the line-up to get some consistency," he mentioned.

Lee started out 5-AAAAA action with a win over Odessa, but have fallen to San Angelo and Abilene Cooper in their last two outings.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 24, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day and evening to concentrate upon whatever is of practical importance in your activities and to make plans to improve the quality of your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Obtain the advice you need from business experts that will help you get ahead in the future. Avoid one who gossips.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Figure out what you most need that is personal in nature and go after it in a positive manner. Improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study personal business conditions and make plans for improvement. Handle routine tasks in an efficient manner.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Put those ideas to work that will ingratiate you more into the good graces of new contacts of worth.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Become more involved in civic affairs and gain added prestige. Be sure to keep promises you have made to others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Confer with allies who can help you advance in career activities. A special talent you have needs expression at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your responsibilities well and know how best to discharge them. An excellent evening to be with the one you love.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find out what a partner has in mind and join forces for greater success in the future. Spend your money wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look over your environment and make plans for improvement. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put those creative ideas to work early in the day and get excellent results. Engage in favorite hobby.

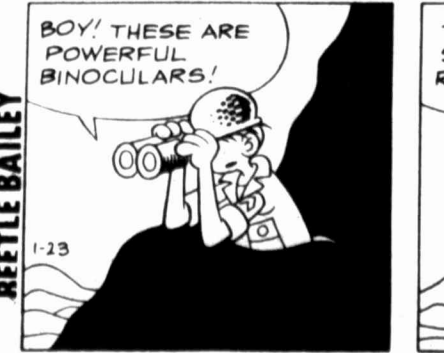

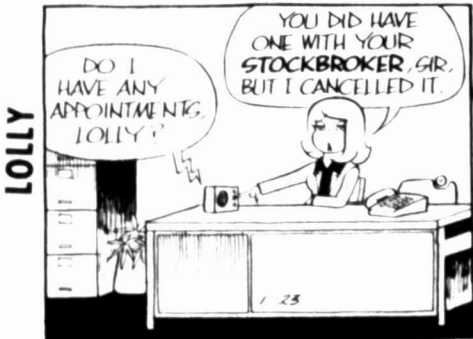

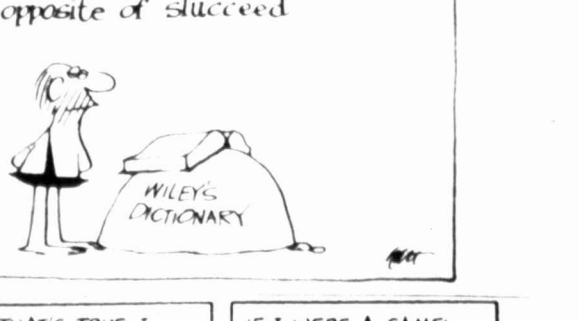

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan new ways to make your home more charming and comfortable. Discuss personal plans with trusted friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get together with those you want to be associated with the future and come to a meeting of minds with them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one with both feet on the ground and will have an interest in anything that is of a practical and workable nature, so direct the education in business management for best results in lifetime.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The Evening Star

The brilliant evening star is a symbol of many things to many folk. Mariners hail it as a good omen, for it usually forecasts a clear, calm night and smooth sailing. The shepherd tending his flock on a desolate hillside gratefully notes its appearance in the heavens, for its friendly light offers an intangible sort of companionship during his lonely vigil. To many, the star is representative of God's infinite power and wisdom.

Just as this star touches hearts in countless different ways, so may the Church bring to those in all walks of life, peace and comfort which lead to a happier, more fruitful pattern of life.

Let us make the Church our guiding light. We can brighten our lives if we accept the teaching of the Scriptures as guideposts along the pathway to future endeavors.

TALKS OF SON'S CAPTIVITY—Rev. Earl Lee, father of freed hostage Gary Lee, talked with the newsmen in front of his Pasadena, Calif., home Wednesday afternoon and spoke about his conversation with his son. Lee said Gary told of psychological stress while a captive but said he was not subjected to any abuse.

Cabinet's church views

Affiliations vary

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Religious affiliations of President-elect Ronald Reagan's cabinet run from the big st to tiny denomination.

Most of the are Roman Catholics, the nation's largest denomination, and Episcopalians, the seventh-ranking church in size.

None named to the Cabinet belongs to Reagan's own denomination, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

None is United Presbyterian, the church of his customary worship, and none is Baptist, the country's biggest Protestant body. President Carter is Baptist.

Interior Secretary-designate James Watt, 42, is an active member of the Assemblies of God, a 13 million-member Pentecostal body founded in 1914, with headquarters in Springfield, Mo.

Education Secretary-designate Terrell H. "Ted" Bell, 59, is an active Mormon. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has 3.5 million U.S. members and headquarters in Salt Lake City.

Two Cabinet appointees, Andrew "Drew" Lewis Jr., 49, transportation secretary-designate, and Richard S. Schweiker, 54, health and human services secretary-designate, are members of the Schwenkfelder Church, a little but historic Protestant group of only five Pennsylvania congregations totaling 2,748 members.

Of 20 prospective cabinet members, counting Vice President-elect George Bush, an active Episcopalian, five are expected to be Episcopalians and five are Roman Catholics.

Among the Catholics is Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig, 56, whose younger brother, the Rev. Frank Haig, is a Jesuit priest who teaches physics at Loyola College in Baltimore.

Other Catholics include Labor Secretary-designate Raymond J. Donovan, 50, a leader in church charitable work in his home state of New Jersey; William J. Casey, 67, named to head the CIA, and Richard Allen, 44, picked to head the National Security Council.

Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan 61, comes of Catholic background, but a spokesman says he presently is inactive.

Other Episcopalians are Defense Secretary-designate Caspar Weinberger, 63, Attorney General-designate William French Smith, 63, Agriculture Secretary-designate John Block, 45, and William E. Brock, 50, expected to be named special trade representative.

Three United Methodists are Samuel R. Pierce, 48, designated secretary of housing and urban development; James B. Edwards, 53, chosen for energy secretary; and Ed Stockman, 34, named director of budget and management.

Malcolm Baldrige, 48, commerce secretary-designate, is a member of the United Church of Christ, and Murray L. Weidenbaum, 53, of Washington University in St. Louis who is expected to be named chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, is Jewish.

Criswell Center begins classes in Bible studies

Local residents currently have an opportunity to increase their knowledge of Holy Scripture.

The Criswell Center for Biblical Studies will begin classes Monday at 6:40 p.m. in Hillcrest Baptist Church.

An accredited two-hour New Testament survey course is being offered. One can gain more information by calling 267-1639.

Evangelical physician says group will fight abortion

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—A self-styled evangelical Christian doctor said today he has started a group of physicians to lobby for an end to abortion.

"The abortion ethic, which is a death ethic, pervades that once esteemed profession (medicine) and it has led the medical profession inexorably down the path of infanticide and euthanasia," said Dr. Steven F. Hotze, 30, spokesman for the newly organized Texas Doctors for Life.

Hotze said he and approximately two dozen other "core members" would meet in Austin tomorrow to set the group's legislative goals. He said the group would work to restrict abortion as much as possible, to force statistical reporting of abortions, to protect physicians from wrongful birth suits, and to prohibit fetal experimentation.

"We believe that every human life has value," Hotze said.

He was then asked if he favored the death penalty, and he replied that he did, although he thought physicians should not themselves administer lethal injections.

During his Capitol news conference, Hotze made an impassioned, extended comparison of the United States today and Germany during the rise of fascism.

A member of the audience exclaimed "Amen!" during one point in Hotze's speech.

Asked if he felt the U.S.

DR. S. F. HOTZE

were teetering on the edge of fascism, Hotze replied, "Yes, I do." He pointed to the existence of abortion and euthanasia as examples.

But he said he knew of no euthanasia cases in Texas.

Hotze, who says he practices emergency medicine and is a consultant for several businesses, said he thought about 100 Texas doctors had joined his group. He said his organization would work with two already existing anti-abortion groups.

Parish sells ash samples

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP)—St. Martin's Church has designated May 18 as "Ash Sunday" in commemoration of the eruption of Mount St. Helens on May 13, 1980. The Episcopal parish plans to sell samples of the ash for $2 each.

Permian Basin Encampment planned

For a decade Texas Royal Ambassador Director Bob Taylor has helped develop and lead innovative programs of mission education for boys.

He has seen participation in the statewide Royal Ambassador Congress grow to more than 5,000, and last fall he welcomed an all-time record 15,000 boys and men at the RA rally in Waco.

Besides his responsibilities as RA leader, Taylor helped to build Baptist's first disaster relief mobile unit in 1971. He has served as the mobile unit director, feeding and ministering in Jesus' name to thousands of tornado, flood and hurricane victims across Texas and as far away as Honduras.

Now he plans to use everything he's learned in 10 action-packed years to meet his challenge as administrator of the Permian Basin Encampment between Big Spring and Midland.

Unlike some well-watered encampments, Permian Basin is 137 acres of flat desert land with no woods, streams or valleys to afford the retreat setting Taylor feels the encampment should provide.

So, in lieu of a natural setting for solitude, Taylor will build a western town encampment with special facilities to help people rekindle their spiritual vitality and allow the Holy Spirit to work in their lives.

Buildings will have old time western fronts, and the staff will dress in boots, blue jeans, and ten-gallon hats. There will be a covered wagon salad bar. Only buggies, wagons and horses will be allowed on the main street.

In the spirit of the "forty-niners," a covered wagon train will take people across the prairie for a day or two with meals cooked over the camp fire and in dutch ovens.

The recreational pattern of most encampments will be reversed. During the scorching summer days, campers may participate in Bible conferences and activities such as woodcraft and ceramics indoors. Then, when the sun goes down, they will be able to use such facilities as a lighted miniature golf course.

To accomplish the ambitious goals, Taylor plans to lead out in mobilizing volunteers as he's helped do in his work with Texas Baptist Men.

But his new work will go far beyond camp development and management. He will travel extensively across six associations to sell the encampment and create new program areas.

Also, he plans to use his experience to train a team of disaster relief specialists. They would be part of the Texas Baptist team, ready to move into a stricken area on short notice.

For Taylor and his wife, Laverne, the move to West Texas is "going home." He surrendered to preach at Terminal Church about 25 miles from Permian Basin Encampment. He was the church's Royal Ambassador Counselor.

Taylor recalls that during pastorates at Midkiff, Brady, Brownwood, Big Spring and San Marcos, he built the youth programs around RA's and GA's.

During an RA camp at Highland Lakes in 1969, he was invited by Bob Dixon and other TBM leaders to be the camp director the following year. One evening following the camp fire service, all of the boys he had brought to the encampment made decisions for Christ. He was so deeply moved that during the night he waked TBM leaders to tell them he would accept their invitation.

About a year later, he was asked to join Texas Baptist Men and lead RA work statewide. During the past ten years, Taylor has worked with TBM Executive Director Robert Dixon in strengthening the position of mission education in the local church.

DOOR-TO-DOOR-PONY-PHOTOGRAPHER — William Nolan Freeman leads 5-year-old Jesse Sanchez across a residential street in Dallas on the back of Sugar a 10-year-old Shetland pony. If you thought the days of the door-to-door pony photographers were long gone, you're wrong. Freeman has been snapping kids on horse back for the last 45 years in the Dallas area, he's the man who gave you a leg up into that magical child-sized saddle that instantly transformed you into Roy Rogers.

Witnesses tell of trooper's death

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Billy Wayne Alexander Jr., charged with capital murder in the shooting death of a DPS officer, told friends, "I just shot a goddamn cop, let's get outta here," seconds after the trooper was gunned down, according to a witness.

Ronald Dale Phillips, an 18-year-old cousin of Alexander, and Michael Don Ware, 23, both riding in the car the night trooper Jerry Don Davis, 25, was killed, testified Thursday at Alexander's trial.

Phillips said Davis stopped the three men and Alexander's younger brother, James, 18, shortly before midnight Oct. 5 near Slaton.

He said the officer spoke to his goddamm cop, let's get outta here," according to Phillips. Phillips said he and James Alexander asked to be let out of the car about a mile from where the shooting occurred. He said they walked about 20 miles to the home of Alexander's mother, where officers arrested them.

Alexander and Ware were arrested later in Kansas. DPS ballistics expert Fred Rymer testified Thursday that a copper jacketed found on the floor of the cruiser was fired by a .357 magnum pistol later recovered in the stolen car.

Earlier Thursday, a DPS fingerprint expert testified that prints found on the gun were Alexander's.

Pathologist John Ray also testified Thursday that Davis died from a single gunshot wound that entered just below his right eye and exited behind the left ear.

Alexander said "I just shot a goddamm cop, let's get outta here," according to Phillips.

Sen. Farabee's bill

Senate panel wants to revive county road fund

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas counties may get a $55 million boost to help build rural roads, even if the idea was vetoed by Gov. Bill Clements in 1979.

A 9-0 vote of the Senate State Affairs Committee Wednesday cleared for floor debate a bill by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, that would allow the state treasurer to distribute to counties each year money that is collected by the County and Road District Highway Fund, from the state gasoline tax.

"I think it was an honest mistake (that Clements vetoed the 1979 bill)," Farabee told the committee. "I don't think he knew it was a constitutionally dedicated fund."

As a result, he said, Clements' veto kept the money from being distributed to counties for farm-to-market and lateral roads but it did not stop money from accumulating in the state treasury that is earmarked only for that purpose.

Farabee said there is a current balance of $16.3 million in the fund. This balance, plus a revenue transfer of $7.3 million with interest, would give counties $24.7 million in 1982, to make up for funds missing since 1979. Counties would get $7.9 million each year after 1982.

The County and District Road Highway Fund was created in 1932. Originally it was managed by a board but the board was abolished in 1979, with its duties passing to the state treasurer.

Since 1953, $7.3 million has been allocated to counties on the basis of county area, rural population and county road mileage.

The remainder of the 3-cent state motor fuel tax goes to support state highways and public school education.
