Diefenbaker Under Fire Within His Own Party

By MAX HERRELSON

OTTAWA, Canada (AP)—With Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's government voted out of office, Canada's Conservative party today faced a decision on whether to retain him as political leader.

Diefenbaker was under fire from some elements of his party even before the U.S.-Canadian dispute over nuclear weapons toppled the Conservative government Tuesday night.

Now the Conservatives must decide whether to go into an election campaign with Diefenbaker in spearhead position, or whether they would be better off with someone else. George Nowlan, finance minister in the Diefenbaker Cabinet, has been mentioned as one possibility.

Conservative members of Parliament met in caucus today with both Diefenbaker and Nowlan present.

One politician in a position to know the background said back benchers—the ordinary members of the House of Commons—were incensed at the idea of replacing Diefenbaker. Some members of the Cabinet were reported pushing for a new leader, however.

Under Canadian procedure, the leader of the party winning the most seats in Parliament becomes prime minister. Diefenbaker has been ruling even though his party failed to win a majority in the elections last June.

Diefenbaker's government remains in office as a caretaker regime pending new elections two months hence.

The campaign will be fought on close-to-home economic issues as well as the dispute over whether Canada should have nuclear warheads.

Diefenbaker's government was the second in nearly 100 years of Canadian confederation to be beaten down by a no-confidence vote in the House of Commons.

The prime minister was to call today on Gov. Gen. Georges Vanier, the required prelude to dissolving Parliament and setting an election date.

The election probably will be set for April 8.

Although the nuclear weapon dispute brought down the government, chief opposition leader Lester B. Pearson said he believes the major issue in the coming campaign will be the need for economic and social policies to stimulate "our national growth to the point where we'll be able to give employment to all who are willing and able to work."

Pearson, leader of the Liberal party, apparently was trying to tone down the defense issue. He, too, has been attacked for advocating that Canada live up to commitments to accept nuclear weapons and then negotiate to get rid of them.

Diefenbaker's Conservatives are certain to emphasize charges that the United States interfered in Canadian affairs by calling publicly on the government to accept nuclear weapons. They also are expected to accuse Pearson of taking orders from Washington, a charge the Liberal leader hotly denied when the Conservatives raised it in the nuclear weapon debate.

Diefenbaker's government was brought down by two votes, each 142-111, on no-confidence motions posed by the Social Credit and Liberal parties. Two deputies from the third opposition party, the New Democrats, voted with the government.

Both motions accused the Conservative government of indecision and failure to give a clear statement of national defense policy. The Social Credit motion also charged the government with failure to act on economic legislation approved by Commons.

In his final speech Tuesday night, Diefenbaker again blasted U.S. policy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk. There were predictions that the whole range of relations between the United States and Canada will be debated sharply in the campaign.

Public Discussion Of Cuban Situation Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will publicly discuss the Kennedy administration's estimates of Soviet strength in Cuba on a radio-television broadcast today, the White House announced.

The broadcast was scheduled for 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

McNamara will head a group of Pentagon officials who will hold a news conference on the subject.

The White House said a number of radio and television networks would carry it live, but broadcast plans were incomplete.

In recent days, some Republican Congress members have challenged the administration's estimates of the Soviet arsenal in the Caribbean, contending that Soviet strength there is greater than the Pentagon and State Department have reported.

The White House indicated that McNamara and his colleagues would give a detailed accounting of U.S. intelligence findings.

Originally, the administration planned to have McNamara conduct a background briefing on Cuba for newsmen.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the briefing was being converted into a public news conference because "so much interest has been manifested" in the session.

In another move understood to have White House blessing, John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, agreed today to present a detailed report on the Soviet arms status in Cuba to a Senate watchdog defense subcommittee.

Informed senators said McCone was expected to testify this afternoon at a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee.

McCone's appearance was reportedly arranged by President Kennedy. There were unconfirmed reports that the McCone testimony would be made public later.

The White House action seemed directed at quieting the belligerent partisan debate which has flared in Congress over a variety of reports of a massive Soviet arms buildup in Cuba.

McCone, a Republican, is expected to back up with some concrete evidence Kennedy's contention that there has been no significant increase in Soviet military power since last October's missile crisis.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and some other Republicans dispute the administration's position.

Keating said in an interview he is willing to put before Kennedy some previously undisclosed information he has gathered about Soviet operations.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Keating endorsed a proposal by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, for public hearings on the question of whether Soviet missiles and bases remain in Cuba.

The preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., has scheduled a closed-door inquiry. Humphrey said it ought to be opened up to get public testimony from such officials as McCone. Stennis declined comment.

Dirksen, a former Army intelligence officer, said he had run across information which tallied rather closely with the contention of Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., that the Soviets left behind some 40 or more offensive missiles when they removed 42 in the October crisis.

Escapees Sought After Jail Break

PARIS, Tex. (AP)—Four prisoners slugged a jailer and fled the Lamar County jail Tuesday night, and today officers from North Texas and Southern Oklahoma carried out a massive manhunt.

More than 50 law enforcement units set up roadblocks and searched the countryside.

Heading the hunt were Lamar County Sheriff Lonnie Player and Department of Public Safety Sgt. Fred Hurst of Greenville.

A fresh campfire was found about dawn 10 miles north of Paris but it could not be determined that it was made by the fugitives.

The escapees locked jailer E. L. Steed in a cell and forced his wife into the solitary confinement quarters.

The men were armed with two pistols.

Steed was playing dominoes with a trusty when the break occurred. He and his wife live in an apartment adjacent to jail, on the fifth floor of the county courthouse.

Two of the escapees seized his wife while another clubbed him in the head with what was apparently a jail bar.

Officers said the prisoners pried the bars off their cell. One then squeezed between the bars to the outside and opened the door. Eleven other prisoners made no attempt to flee.

Steed scuffled with the foursome after being knocked to the floor. A chase inside the jail followed before he was trapped and locked in a cellblock.

The jailer suffered a deep gash on his head. Aside from bruises, his wife was not harmed.

Two guns were stolen from Steed's apartment, a .38 caliber revolver and a .45 automatic pistol. The apartment was ransacked.

A trusty found the jail keys where the escapees dropped them on the floor and freed the Steeds.

The fugitives are Jimmy Northcutt, 22, and Eugene Franks, 24, both of Clarksville, and Tommy Dyer, 23, and Charles Shaw, 18, both of Paris.

Grand Jury Returns 20 Indictments

Twenty indictments were returned against 10 suspects by the Scurry County grand jury Tuesday afternoon.

Six indictments of burglary were returned against James Monroe Crosson, Jr., and four burglary indictments were returned against Doyle Sharp. Both were serving probated sentences at the time of the alleged offenses, and have had their probations revoked. The probated sentences were given by a Big Spring court.

The grand jury also indicted Fidel Flores for theft; Allen Seter for theft by bailee; Robert M. Hilton for theft; Johnny Mathis on two counts of forgery; Dee Chester Guinn on two charges of DWI as second offenses; and David Gould for burglary.

Also indicted were Jim Garnett for theft and James Ernest Self for DWI. Their cases were transferred to county court for prosecution.

Several pleas of guilty were expected to be received in district court this morning. A number of cases were being called shortly before noon.

Wade Rites Set Thursday

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon for William Adolphus Wade, 87, of 712 Twenty-eight Street.

Mr. Wade, a long-time resident of Scurry County, died at 12:05 p.m. Tuesday at Cogdell Hospital. A retired stock farmer, Mr. Wade had been in poor health for a short time.

The services will be conducted at the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Byron Bryant, instructor at Hardin - Simmons University and interim pastor of the church, officiating. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under the direction of Bell Funeral Home.

Mr. Wade was born July 19, 1875 in Travis County. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gladys Shaw and Mrs. Millie Rains, both of Snyder; three sons, Clarence and Nathan, both of Snyder and Anthom, of Canton, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Slough of Odessa and Mrs. Myrtle Sparks of Bangs, Tex.; two brothers, George of Zephyr, Tex., and Marion of Bluffton, Tex.; 14 grandchildren and five great - grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be William Rains, Darrell Rains, Garry Rains, Max Shaw, Andy Patterson, Carol Hatter, John Calloway and Charlie Sparks.

Family Has Own Epidemic Of Flu

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. Rebecca McFadden entered Stillwater Municipal Hospital this week for treatment of a lingering case of flu. She joined four of her six children, also being treated for flu.

Her husband, Julian, is at home sick—with the flu. So are the other two children.

A neighbor, Mrs. Rose Goodner, helped care for them.

Now she has the flu, too.

SHS STUDENTS HEAR OF HEART RESEARCH—Dr. John Derrick, assistant professor of thoracic surgery at the University of Texas medical school at Galveston, is shown with Badger Robertson, member of the Scurry County Heart Council, left, and Tommy Shelburne, student body president, just prior to addressing the students this morning. The doctor, who is working under a Texas Heart Association grant in a specialized field of occluded arteries, showed a film and told the students of the latest developments in the field of heart and blood vessel research.

East Coast Pounded

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP)—A fierce winter storm which has endangered shipping and has eroded Atlantic Ocean beaches from Florida to North Carolina, cut the North Carolina Outer Banks in two again today.

The Cape Hatteras Coast Guard station reported that the storm had widened a channel through Hatteras Island on the Outer Banks, cut by storms of last spring and fall. Until the channel is filled, residents and vacationers will have to make long detours by ferry.

Although the storm lost strength during the night, upper air patterns at 6 a.m. indicated further intensification possible in the next 24 hours.

Army engineers and Outer Banks residents had dumped thousands of sandbags and 250 wrecked automobiles into the old channel cut. The 1,500-foot opening had been filled in to 100 feet before the new storm hit.

The Miami Weather Bureau said the storm center was estimated about 150 miles off the Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

Gale warnings were flying from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Nags Head, where residents of the Outer Banks bolstered a battered shoreline with sandbags.

Rough seas and tides of one to four feet above normal were predicted during the day, with considerable beach erosion and minor flooding at high tide.

Ships in the area reported winds during the night were 35 to 40 miles an hour. Winds were considerably less along the coast.

Rough seas battered the shoreline of the Carolinas Tuesday and some erosion was reported up the coast from Nags Head.

Heavy seas were reported in the Charleston area. About 80 feet of restored jetties near the South Carolina city were knocked down by waves and high tides.

U.S. Coast Guard search and rescue service at Miami said it would resume an air search for two 40-foot St. Augustine fishing boats which were among six craft in trouble earlier. The rest were towed to port or otherwise reported safe.

The rain belt in the Southeast extended from southeast Georgia to the coastal plains of the Carolinas, with rain or drizzle in most of Florida.

There were only a few other wet spots in the country. Drizzle and light rain sprinkled coastal sections in the Pacific Northwest while snow flurries fell in the cool air in the Great Lakes region eastward into Maine.

The coldest areas, with freezing temperatures, were mostly confined from northern Minnesota eastward through the Great Lakes region, most of the Ohio Valley and across the middle and north Atlantic coastal states. It was near zero in Limestone, Maine.

The mercury soared to near 60 Tuesday as far north as the Dakotas and Montana with 70s in many parts of the Southern Plains and Kansas. Record marks for the date were reported in several cities. Summer-like weather again was reported in the Southwest dessert region with readings in the 80s and 90s.

DeGaulle Feels He Is Saving Britain

By RODNEY ANGOVE

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle has shrugged off British accusations he is trying to emulate Hitler or Napoleon by keeping Britain out of the European Common Market.

The French leader, in fact, feels he is saving Britain from being used as a stooge by the United States to give the Americans more of an economic hold on Europe.

Members of the National Assembly came away from a reception [illegible] the French White House—with these impressions and gave an insight into De Gaulle's thinking.

The deputies reported De Gaulle said he considers that Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan double-crossed him at Nassau by Britain's agreeing to accept President Kennedy's offer of Polaris missiles.

Macmillan met with De Gaulle just before leaving for the Bahamas conference with President Kennedy last December.

One deputy quoted De Gaulle as saying:

"Macmillan told me 'You are right to make a striking (nuclear) force. We too are trying to make ours. We must associate them in the European framework, independent of America.'

"On this he left me, to go to the Bahamas. That was ahead of my news conference (when De Gaulle declared Britain was not ready to enter Europe) and changed the tone of it.

"The English always manage to appear respectable. That's how they succeed in having a certain influence in the foreign press, and in our country, too, in certain circles.

"Mr. Macmillan, whom I like very much, had me compared by the British press to Hitler. He knows me well enough to know that this is out of the question. I have even been compared to Napoleon."

When another deputy suggested De Gaulle had probably done Macmillan a favor in the British political situation, De Gaulle responded:

"Ah well, he deserves it."

School Bill Outlook Dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospects for President Kennedy's omnibus education bill, never bright, were fading fast today as feuding disrupted the House Education and Labor Committee.

Republicans opposing the $5.3 billion, 24-point measure hope to force a halt in the hearings, which Chairman Adam C. Powell, D-N.Y., launched Monday. He then left for two weeks in Puerto Rico.

Powell had scheduled 10 days of hearings running through next week.

Rep. Peter Freylinghuysen Jr., R-N.J., the ranking Republican on the committee, said he will demand the presence of a quorum—15 of the 29 members—before the hearings proceed. A quorum has not been present either of the first two days.

Acting Chairman Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., said he will let the full committee decide what action to take starting today.

That could mean an abrupt halt to consideration of the administration program in one big bill. Most members would prefer study by several subcommittees.

Order Issued On Shipping

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today barred shipment of U.S. government-financed cargoes on any ship which has been to Cuba since Jan. 1.

The long-expected order is aimed at discouraging free world ships engaging in trade with Cuba.

The new regulation falls considerably short of more sweeping proposals first planned by the administration last fall.

White House sources said the tougher proposals have not been adopted because of U.S. diplomatic success in getting the maritime countries to cut down on the Cuban trade.

These sources said too that stiffer regulations may be issued later if needed — and meanwhile the number of non-Communist bloc ships calling at Cuban ports has dropped from 92 last July to 14 in January.

Cooperation In Kennedy's Plan Pledged By Adenauer

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer pledged today that West Germany will cooperate in President Kennedy's plan for a multinational NATO nuclear force.

"Europe knows that it cannot defend itself without the support of the United States," West Germany's 87-year-old government chief told the Bundestag in a statement outlining the policy of his new coalition government.

Adenauer defended strongly the new French-West German treaty of cooperation as a step toward European unity. He vowed to keep working for Britain's entry into the European Common Market, vetoed last week by France.

Adenauer spoke against a background of growing domestic and foreign criticism of the French-German treaty as a possible disruptive force in Europe. The chancellor is striving to win Bundestag ratification of the treaty before his scheduled retirement next fall after 14 years in office.

Adenauer said that the only hope for Western freedom in the face of Soviet aggression lies in a strong NATO and in a united Europe.

He cited Soviet Premier Khrushchev's speech Jan. 20 in East Berlin promising that the whole of Germany would be Communist one day.

Adenauer told the Bundestag: "We regard the Nassau agreement (between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan) as a big step forward along the road to creating an effective multilateral nuclear deterrent for NATO. We wish to share the full responsibility for an effective NATO nuclear deterrent."

At the same time, Adenauer maintained that "without friendship between France and Germany a united Europe cannot come into being." He treated the breakdown [illegible] negotiations as a temporary setback.

Adenauer said the objective of his government will be to see "that unity be restored soon among the Common Market members and that Great Britain's entry be made possible."

He said he regretted his overtures to improve relations with the Soviet Union have produced no results.

"I shall continue to hope," he said, "that the Soviet Union may also realize one day that it will ultimately not gain anything by its support of the terror regime (in East Germany), by its pressure on Berlin, and by its tense relationship with us.

"The federal government stands firmly for a free Berlin which belongs inseparably to the free part of Germany. The federal government will do everything to maintain and strengthen the viability of West Berlin."

Pleasant Weather Endures In State

By The Associated Press

Pleasant weather—too pretty to last in February, nearly any Texan will tell you—continued to stick around Wednesday.

It was clear to partly cloudy everywhere in the state. Most early morning temperatures were in the upper 30s to high 40s.

The Weather Bureau predicted no change through Thursday.

A new set of five-day forecasts called for temperatures near normal to several degrees above and said the only moisture in prospect was a few weekend showers in southern areas of the state.

Readings Tuesday afternoon ranged up to a springlike high of 88 degrees at Presidio in the West Texas Big Bend.

Temperatures early Wednesday varied from 29 degrees at Junction up to 50 at Wichita Falls.

New York Strike Costs $70 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York newspaper blackout, in its 61st day, has drained an estimated $70 million from the economy since it started, a survey showed today.

The personal impact has been offset in part by $6,687,070 in strike benefits reported paid out to date by nine unions.

The cost breaks down this way for the eight weeks for which figures are available: Loss in advertising revenue, $28,000,000; loss in circulation revenue, $12,000,000; loss in wages and fringe benefits, $24,000,000; loss to newsdealers and other sales outlets, $6,850,000, for a total of $70,850,000.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner recessed mediation meetings at City Hall at 1:30 a.m. today. The sessions started at 5 p.m. Tuesday. Another meeting was set for tonight.

The mayor declined to tell newsmen whether progress was made in efforts to settle the strike by 3,000 members of Local 6 of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union which led to the shutdown of the city's nine major daily newspapers.

The ITU holds a nationwide referendum today on a special increased assessment on members to support the strike here and the printers' strike in Cleveland, where the city's two newspapers—the Plain Dealer and the Press and News—have been shut down for 69 days.

The Newspaper Reporters Association of New York urged Wagner to keep both sides negotiating Local 6 and the Publishers Association of New York City.

In addition to the 3,000 striking printers, about 17,000 other newspaper employes have been thrown out of work in New York City.

In the Cleveland strike, the Cleveland Newspaper Guild has named Noel Wical to debate the Guild strike issues tonight with editor Louis B. Seltzer of the Press and News. Wical, a striking editorial employe of the Press and News, was president of the Cleveland Guild when the strike began.

All seven Cleveland radio stations will carry the debate live. The city's three television stations will air it on a delayed basis.

Westminster Abbey Gets Face-Lifting

LONDON (AP) — Centuries of grime have disappeared in Westminster Abbey's first face-lifting in 900 years.

A great change has come over the interior of the Church of England edifice where Britain's kings and queens are crowned.

Stephen Dykes-Bower, architect who holds the title of surveyor of the fabric, is in charge of maintaining the abbey.

He says: "The view of the abbey on entering the west door is no longer one of somber gloom, but of lightness and radiance—a symphony of white stone, gray marble, gilding and color."

The newly cleaned ceiling of the nave is one of the most delightful surprises for a visitor.

The major portion of the abbey dates to 1245 and some sections go back to 1065. All the inside stones are the original ones.

People seeing the walls today are seeking them as they must have looked more than 700 years ago.

"We'd love to clean the outside, but we just haven't got the money," said Dykes-Bower. The inside cleaning, over a period of 12 years, is costing about a million dollars.

The walls are reigate white sandstone which through the years have acquired a black aspect. The reigate stone on the outside couldn't withstand the elements and has been replaced through the centuries.

The interior has scaffolding and dust cloths strewn about. Already the great carved ceiling dazzles, the ribs of vaults are outlined with gold leaf, and marble piers gleam.

Scrubbing, gold-leafing and painting will go on until the 900th anniversary celebration Dec. 28, 1965.

"The trouble with chaps with dusters," said the treasurer of the abbey, the Rev. Edward Carpenter, "is that they send the dust up and it comes down again. The whole new idea is to get the dust out of the abbey and keep it out.

"When people complain we are spoiling the abbey, I tell them they don't keep their own houses dirty so why should the house of God be dirty?"

Washing is done with soap and water. Three powerful suction machines collect dust.

The next royal event scheduled in the abbey is the wedding of Princess Alexandra, cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, and Angus Ogilvy on April 24.

Public Record Bill Hearing Set Tonight

AUSTIN (AP) — Two bills to guarantee the public's right to see public records and attend government meetings come before the House State Affairs Committee tonight.

Scheduled to appear in support of the measures are Charles Kilpatrick, executive editor of the San Antonio Express and News and president of the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Association, and Neal Spelce, president of the Austin professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

The bills are similar to proposals supported by the National Journalistic Society. Sigma Delta Chi says 25 other states have open meeting laws while 35 states have laws requiring that government records be kept open to the public.

Rep. Chet Brooks of Houston, one of the house sponsors, said he would offer a new substitute open meetings bill tonight. It calls for all meetings of "governing boards of municipalities, county commissioners, boards of education or trustees of school districts and all other boards, commissions or organizations with certain exceptions, supported in whole or in part by public funds or expending public funds, shall be open to the public."

Brooks and Rep. Bill Rapp of Raymondville also are sponsoring the bill requiring that all state, county and municipal records, except those declared confidential by law, to be open to citizens of Texas at all reasonable times.

Identity Of Minnesota's Governor Is Still Unknown

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—In one of the wonders of the electoral process, Minnesota residents have gone three months without learning who they elected governor last Nov. 6.

When will they find out? Perhaps next month, or maybe not until June—whenever a panel of three district judges or the State Supreme Court makes the decision.

"It's been a long election night," quipped Karl Rolvaag, the Democratic challenger who initiated a recount after being declared the loser by 142 votes.

The only outward change in state government has been the furnishing of a 7 by 15-foot office in the Capitol basement for Rolvaag.

Some see a touch of humor in its location: almost directly below the ornately paneled office of Republican Gov. Elmer L. Andersen.

Although the 1962 election outcome was unparalleled in 105 years of statehood, framers of the Minnesota constitution might have foreseen it by providing that the former governor stays in office until a contest is settled.

The same election that left Andersen in doubt as to his new term blessed him with conservative majorities in both houses of the legislature, which began its biennial session last month.

Officially, the legislature is nonpartisan. But most conservatives are allied with Republican causes while legislative liberals usually are elected with Democratic backing. House liberals call themselves the DFL caucus—the abbreviation standing for Minnesota's hyphenated Democratic party name — Democratic-Farmer-Labor.

Nearly 1½ million votes were cast Nov. 6, some 800,000 on paper ballots, all of them laboriously handled in the recount that began in December and isn't over yet.

A raw audit of the recounted votes this week turned up a margin of 138 for Rolvaag. That's far from the end of the story.

Rolvaag, who ended eight years as lieutenant governor last month, won by 58 votes in the original unofficial count. When 10 counties found errors in their first tally, the Supreme Court permitted amended totals to be submitted and Andersen wound up the winner by 142 votes.

Recount teams challenged about 90,000 ballots. Fresh screening teams under direction of the three-judge panel will bring this down to around 3,000 for the next court phase, due to start Feb. 25.

These disputed ballots hold the key. If all are counted as they originally were, Rolvaag will win by those 138 votes. But if some are switched to another candidate, or thrown out, it's anyone's guess.

The chairman of each political party predicts victory for his man by 50 to 250 votes.

The big Democratic gripe during the legislative session has been 119 interim appointments made by Andersen, which require Senate confirmation. Democrats and liberals said it was dirty pool of Andersen to get his men into office when he may not be governor some months hence.

Andersen says he has put the recount out of his mind.

"The recount is in the hands of able lawyers and judges, and I am relaxed and content to leave it to them to decide."

Rolvaag, unpaid, spends his days in his office, his nights generally at Democratic recount headquarters.

"Business is not going on as usual," Rolvaag said. "You can't lead a normal life under these circumstances. You know you are not governor but fully expect to be. People don't know exactly how to treat you."

At stake in the recount is a four-year term for the winner.

Rolvaag suggested the affair be ended with the decision of the three-judge panel. Andersen says he will not relinquish the right to appeal to the State Supreme Court.

New Blizzard Sweeps Over West Europe

LONDON (AP) — Fresh blizzards swept across much of Western Europe during the night, disrupting communications still more and isolating communities from Britain to the Balkans.

The storms hit Britain with renewed force, stranding hundreds of motorists and truckdrivers. Many were helped through the snow by rescue teams and given emergency beds in village halls and schools.

Motoring organizations said road conditions in Scotland were the worst since the arctic weather spell started six weeks ago. On one stretch near Lanark 150 trucks were marooned.

In Wales, two busloads of children were trapped in the storm. Villagers carried the children through the snow and put them up for the night.

Western Europe's death toll from the weather rose to 568.

France remained in the grip of winter, with severe cold in the east and storms battering the Atlantic coastline. Most French rivers were frozen.

More snow piled up in Austria. In Yugoslavia, blizzards hit Bosnia and several roads were blocked.

The brightest weather news came from Italy and Russia. Although much of Italy was still under a blanket of snow, Rome had balmy, springlike weather.

Moscow warmed up for the third straight day, to 33 degrees.

TEC Denies Union Charge

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas Employment Commissioner J. J. Pickle said Tuesday the Texas AFL-CIO is trying to "make headlines" in filing a suit against the commission.

The AFL-CIO alleged the commission's three members and four employees have been doing "pro-employer lobbying."

"I haven't seen a copy of his silly statement," Pickle said, referring to a news release by state AFL-CIO President Hank Brown. "It sounds like he is trying to make headlines at any price. We think it is ridiculous."

The suit charges Pickle and Commissioners Perry Brown and J. E. Lyles and the four employees of "using state funds" to "research and prepare pro-employe amendments to the state unemployment compensation act and that legislators in both houses of the 58th Legislature were contacted and subsequently introduced the amendments."

Brown and others have said a series of 12 bills proposed in both houses would "gut" the unemployment compensation act.

Motorcycle, Auto In Mishap Tuesday

The Snyder police department reported a mishap in front of the Starlite drive-in on the East Highway at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Involved was a 1953 Oldsmobile driven by Casimiro Loyola of Snyder and a 1963 Harley - Davidson motorcycle ridden by Ola Floyd Williams of Stamford. Damage to the car was estimated at $100 and to the motorcycle at $50. There were no injuries.

Truck Damaged In Blaze Here

The Snyder fire department reported that a fire damaged a pickup truck owned by Gladson and Odstrcil Bros. Drilling Co. at 6:15 a.m. today. The fire occurred at Forty - first Street and Avenue V.

The department also reported extinguishing two grass fires Tuesday afternoon. A large brush fire was reported at 4 o'clock in the 3200 block of Avenue V. A smaller trash and grass fire was reported at 9:40 p.m. at the Musslewhite Trucking yard on Seventeenth Street. No damage was caused by the grass fires.

Explosion Fatal To Dallas Youth

DALLAS (AP)—Ronnie Baxter, 16, one of five Dallas youths injured by the explosion of a homemade bomb, died today.

The device blew up Sunday night in the back seat of a car occupied by the group in North Dallas.

Attendants said two of the others are still in critical condition. They are Mark Rains and Carroll Bruce Poole.

Panel Okays Elimination Of Poll Tax

AUSTIN (AP)—A Senate committee gave quick approval Tuesday night of a proposal to eliminate Texas' poll tax.

Roy Evans of the Texas AFL-CIO was the only witness to appear before the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee which took just 30 minutes to approve the measure.

In his statement, Evans said his group favored the proposed constitutional amendment.

In answer to a question by Sen. Galloway Calhoun of Tyler, Evans suggested passage of a corporate income tax to make up the estimated $2.5 million which would be lost by elimination of the poll tax.

Sen. Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo, sponsor of the proposal, told the committee that before the year ends, other state legislatures will ratify a similar amendment to the federal constitution.

"When this happens, if we haven't already taken care of the situation, Texas will have to have two ballots, one for the federal elections and one for state officials," he said.

His amendment would be submitted to the voters in 1964 and would be effective Feb. 1, 1965.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago a friend of ours came to us with a hard luck story. She wanted a divorce, so my husband paid for it. Then he invited her and her two small children to move in with us "for a while." We have a small house, three children and I am expecting again so you know we are crowded. I go out to work every day and this friend stays home and cares for all the children. I keep telling my husband we have to get this woman out of the house, but he says she's like a sister to him. People are talking. How do I get rid of her without hurting her feelings?

NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Since your husband invited her to live with you, he should tell her to make her other arrangements. Remind him that he has enough family without adopting a "sister" and her two children. If you don't insist that this friend make her home elsewhere—and immediately—you'll wind up the working "sister" while she assumes the role of homemaker for your husband.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our 15-year-old boy is our problem. He won't do a thing unless he is paid for it. He worked last summer at a garage and we heard all over town what a good worker he was, but if we try to get him to mow the lawn or clean the basement or even his own room he will sneak out of the house before we can catch him. He is too big to spank and too young to throw out of the house bag and baggage (which is what his father thinks will cure him).

Should we just put up with this kind of behavior until he is 18 and then let the Army train him?

DEAR CORNERED: Your son needs some affection and real understanding. Do you "order" him to do things, or do you ask him properly? I have yet to meet the normal 15-year-old boy who wouldn't respond to a little praise, a lot of love and a modest incentive.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Since I don't care especially for diamonds, I do not want a diamond engagement ring. Is that the only official kind of ring to symbolize an engagement? Any suggestions?

SOON TO WED

DEAR SOON: It's the most traditional engagement stone, buy ANY ring can symbolize an engagement. Since you don't like diamonds, how about an oyster's best friend—the pearl?

Altrurian Club Hears Miss Burity

Mrs. J. C. Dorward was hostess Feb. 1, as the Altrurian Club met at the Martha Ann Woman's Club in their regular meeting.

Eighteen members were present. Miscellaneous subjects were given as roll was called.

The names of the elected officers for the next fiscal club year are as follows: Mrs. J. W. Leftwich, president; Mrs. Authur Blanchard, vice president; Mrs. Frank H. Butler, secretary; Mrs. Alvie Dolen, treasurer; and Mrs. J. C. Dorward, corresponding secretary.

Miss Marta Burity of Salvadore, Bahia, Brazil gave the program for the afternoon, with assistance from Miss Sandra Autry at the projector.

Marta's costume immediately attracted attention as it was one worn ordinarily in a festival in Salvadore. It consisted of a draped red scarf held close to her head with a trio of fruit over her forehead; her skirt of white lace, with a sleeveless white blouse, and a wide striped silk sash, worn well below the waist.

Marta laughed easily and often as she related the story of her first long trip. At the time, parting from her family and friends, was anything but laughable. However, she had hoped for six months that she might be one of the chosen students, and such sad feelings of the moment did not deter her.

Salvadore is a large town, and one of beauty, one would judge.

Education is not so easy to come by there as here, as tuition is requested for lower grades. High school is free, or financed by taxes.

Marta's family was shown in several of the slides. Her father is a doctor. One car is the only transportation for this busy doctor and his family.

Marta spoke with pride of their beautiful churches and they may make the simplicity of our protestant churches seem stark. In one church dutch tiles were lavishly used; in another gold leaf made the front of the church an extravagant spectacle.

Miss Burity has not known the freedom that boys and girls take for granted here. With her charming and friendly attitude evident, one would doubt that she has missed anything of importance in her environment.

Brazilia, and Rio De Janero were mentioned and shown in a few of the slides.

Miss Autry, part of the family assigned to Marta, came with her, and the two girls, creating a lovely contrast in coloring, stayed for dessert and an interesting chat with club members.

Why "Good-Time Charlie" Suffers Uneasy Bladder

Unwise eating or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritations—making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. And if restless nights, with nagging backache, headache or miserable aches and pains due to over-exertion, strain or emotional upset, are adding to your misery, don't wait—try Doan's Pills.

Doan's Pills act 3 ways for speedy relief. 1—They have a soothing effect on bladder irritations. 2—A fast pain-relieving action on nagging backache, headaches, muscular aches and pains. 3—A wonderfully mild diuretic action thru the kidneys, tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes. So, get the same happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. For convenience, buy the large size. Get Doan's Pills today!

Miss Nunes Speaker For Iota Psi

The Iota Psi Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha met Monday evening, February 4, in the home of Mrs. M. L. Matthews, Jr. at 2809 38th Street.

Guest speaker for the evening was Miss Maria Nunes of Salvador, Bahia, Brazil, who presented a very interesting talk on the people, customs, fashions and religion of her country. Color slides and Brazilian magazines were also shown to the group. Miss Nunes is a student in Snyder High School. Her dream to study in the United States was realized through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews and Mr. Matthews' brother, who is Vice Consul at the American Consulate in Salvador. Maria is making her home here with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Black.

After the program, tart cups filled with fruit salad and whipped cream, cheese crackers, nuts and mints with coffee and Cokes were served to those present.

Taking gelatin daily over a period of time is sometimes helpful in preventing split finger nails. One enjoyable way to take it is in tomato juice. Sprinkle an envelope of unflavored gelatin over a cup of the juice in a saucepan; stir over moderately low heat until the gelatin dissolves. Pour into a large cup or mug and drink as you would any hot beverage. This makes a fine weight-watchers lunch with cottage cheese and melba toast.

Martha Awash In Paris

MARTHA IN PARIS. By Margery Sharp.

There are small bypaths in contemporary letters, which sometimes lead into odd or droll fascinations. In this category fall the concoctions of Margery Sharp.

The heroine of this short novel is an 18-year-old, pudgy English girl whose stolidity is so great that she speaks only in brief sentences; a girl who eats like a horse, is built like one and has an equine immunity to lasting affection. It happens that she has a talent for drawing.

Martha has been raised by an aunt and uncle (this novel is a sequel to a story of Martha's childhood, called "The Eye of Love") and the uncle's boss, a Mr. Joyce, feels that he has found a talented protege in fat Martha.

So our heroine is packed off to Paris to study art. To most people such an assignment would have all sorts of bohemian connotations. Paris is supposed to be a naughty place, and art schools of course would be pretty daring.

But our plump, stolid Martha's interests, aside from drawing and food, are concentrated on nice hot baths. Not for Martha are the red wine and heady music of Paris, the standard formula for seduction.

Naturally, when she meets in Paris a prim young Englishman whose mother owns a superb bathroom, there are bound to be complications. In the end, the single-minded Martha solves the ensuing problem with characteristic aplomb.

Here we have a book without a ponderous message; in fact if it has any message at all, it is pleasantly obscure. Miss Sharp is supposed to be a sophisticated writer, but undoubtedly that is in the English sense, not the French. The suspicion rises that she is an expert puppeteer with a talent on the obverse side of life. So as you read this novel, relax and have a cruller. With a spot of tea.

Good Nonfiction

LONDON (AP) — George Steiner American critic from New York, said here that many of the finest American writers are not novelists, but authors of nonfiction, like reporters and scientific writers.

Steiner, who is a fellow at Churchill College, Cambridge told a lecture audience at the U. S. Embassy that American literature is at a transitional stage with a number of exciting experiments taking place.

He said that increasing numbers of young writers are asking themselves whether they should write fiction when so much in the world seemed to demand a direct report.

Threats By Union Bosses Make Shelters Attractive

By INEZ ROBB

It is no secret that to date, despite all the hot air and not much else expanded on the subject, I don't think much of the national effort in the area of Civil Defense.

But Civil Defense begins to look sweeter and sweeter to me, and the prospects of a fall - out shelter more and more inviting. Nor am I shining up the shelter idea out of fear of nuclear war. In time, men may have enough common sense to junk the megaton stuff.

What I crave is a shelter to which I can flee and pull in after me when the legions of James Hoffa, head of the Teamsters Union and Mike J. Quill, boss of the Transport Workers Union, begin to march.

Hoffa, in a speech in Lansing, Mich., has promised to lead "hundreds of thousands of workers" in a march on Washington with a twofold purpose: (1) to keep Congress from passing any legislation that in any way might inhibit the power of one James A. Hoffa and (2) to drive Robert F. Kennedy right into his own swimming pool, preferably wearing a concrete overcoat.

As if that were not sufficient to inspire any cautious person to plan his own survival, Quill, in a speech in New York, plainly hinted at "turmoil" — a little bit of revolution, maybe? — if something isn't done to water down the effects of automation on workers.

On what meat hath these our Caesars fed? Raw sirloin, it would seem. It's enough to make the shelter game attractive to any citizen.

Quill, a man more given to smashing words than mincing them, said workers "may get rough in this country and this country may have a real upheaval, a real turmoil" if unemployment through automation continues or grows.

Such "turmoil" he added, would come "not from Russia, not from Cuba, not from China, not from the Iron Curtain countries, but from its own people within the United States."

That may not be a threat on Quill's part, but it does have the ring of a raw promise.

Such talk as that of Hoffa and Quill in the United States is not guaranteed to endear them to the vast majority of American citizens. The bully boys with whom these two surround themselves may be entrenched by it, but I doubt if the rank and file of their respective unions care much for it. Certainly it is repellent to the nation as a whole.

But the fearful aspect of such talk, and the reason that ordinary citizens may suddenly show an interest in back - yard shelters, is that Hoffa does not even have to lead hundreds of thousands of his followers in a march on Washington to intimidate Congress. Of the Administration.

The House and Senate have continuously shown the white flag with reference to legislation that would force on labor the same kind of responsibility that Congress forced on capital a generation ago. It — Congress — has shrunk, timidly from applying the anti-trust laws to such nation - wide unions as Hoffa's. As for the administration, in the face of a lengthy newspaper strike in New York, a paralyzing waterfront strike, just settled after loss of billions to the nation, a disastrous transportation strike in Philadelphia and other crippling strikes around the nation, it has suggested no new legislation to curb the labor Caesars and their inordinate power.

Republicans and Democrats alike are afraid to tackle labor, and the public and the public interest be damned. Instead of causing indignation, Quill's inflammatory words, totally uncalled for, are probably causing palsy in Washington. Hoffa's threats have undoubtedly roused chills in the national capital rather than rage.

In the face of bipartisan inability or unwillingness to curb labor abuses and confronted with threats of future violence, the smart citizen doesn't have much choice but to take evasive action of his own and dig a stout shelter in his back yard.

Junior Editors Quiz on WIND

QUESTION: Where and why do the trade winds blow?

ANSWER: It's so hot at the equator that warm air is always rising up. As it does so, cold air blows down from the north to replace it. Wouldn't you think, then, that above the equator the prevailing winds would be from north to south, and below, from south to north? They would be, if it were not for the rotation of the earth, which (with north up) turns from west to east. The closer to the equator a point on earth is, the faster it spins around, a point on the equator itself moving eastward at more than 1000 miles an hour. Now look at the world 1, bottom. A wind starts to blow from north to south (arrow). But the earth is spinning so fast that by the time the wind gets to the equator it has blown in a path which starts from the northeast (world 2). Below the equator the effect is reversed; the wind's path is from the southeast. Now look at top map. The winds blow from these northeast and southeast directions to about 30 degrees north and south of the equator. Once the word "trade" meant track, of course. Early explorers called winds shown on the map "trade winds" because they blew so steadily in one direction. Trade winds were a great help to sailing ships.

FOR YOU TO DO: This would be an especially interesting picture to color, bringing out the effect of warm late afternoon sunlight on the ship's sails (famous "Flying Cloud"). Use yellow orange on sails, touches of blue in water and rich blue over the trade wind map.

(Olivia Smith of Mount Holly, N. J., wins $10 for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper and you may win $10 or the weekly grand prize of a set of Britannica Junior Encyclopedias.)

36 Million Boys Have Been Scouts

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"On my honor, I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country," begins one of the world's most famous oaths.

"To help other people at all times," it concludes, "to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

That pledge—and the motto "Be Prepared"—have helped guide the lives of 36 million Boy Scouts and their leaders since the founding of the famous youth organization in this country 53 years ago.

This is National Boy Scout Week, and it is being celebrated by an active membership of around 3,250,000 scouts and their adult leaders.

Here are some items of interest about the movement:

Nine members of President Kennedy's Cabinet were Boy Scouts, and so was Kennedy. So were 21 of the 27 Rhodes Scholars named in 1962. 75 per cent of the freshman class at West Point, and every one of the new crop of U.S. astronauts selected last year.

Scouting is carried on in 141 countries, colonies and protectorates throughout the world. One out of every four American men has been associated with the program either as a scout or as a leader.

In America today there are 135,000 troops sponsored by Pta's American Legion posts, Red Cross chapters, churches, and civic organizations. There are more than 1½ million adult volunteers, and the biggest problem of the movement is to find enough qualified men to lead the growing number of troops. The task takes time, experience, dedication and an understanding of and sympathy for youth.

Nearly 1.5 per cent of all Boy Scouts go on to become Eagle Scouts, who must win 21 Merit Badges.

Of more than 100 Merit Badges available, the second most popular—surprisingly—is cooking, an indication that the average scout is going to make some future wife a helpful husband. But how good are these embryo chefs?

Well, last year a 12-year-old scout, competing against hundreds of women, took first prize in a national baking contest.

Other favorite merit badges—swimming ranks first—include those for home repairs, firemanship, first aid, personal fitness, camping and lifesaving.

Although scouting stresses physical fitness, it doesn't overlook the handicapped. There are more than 40,000 blind scouts, and the Boy Scout Handbook is available in Braille for their benefit.

A unique group is Troop 869 of Hondo, Cal. Its 26 boys have no canoes or camping equipment. They can't swim, camp or hike. They memorize the information they need to win Merit Badges. They learn knot-tying yet don't see the knots they tie.

The boys of Troop 869 rarely get outdoors, and when they do many people have to accompany them. Just ordinary Boy Scouts with perhaps a little more fortitude and ambition, all are hospitalized and confined to iron lungs. All have polio.

U.S. Scouts buy about $25 million a year worth of uniforms, equipment and camp supplies. The most popular item—the Boy Scout knife.

Comedians sometimes poke affectionate fun at the Boy Scout's goal to do a good deed every day in a naughty world, and his attempt to be trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

Nicklaus Now A 'New Man'

By CARL BELL

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be one of the big favorites in the $35,000 Open golf tournament, starting Thursday, and therein lies proof of what a great change one short year can make in a young man's life.

When the blond youngster hauled his massive 200-pound frame into the Arizona desert country for this tourney 12 months ago, he was a neophyte pro of only three months.

He had averaged $250 a week in his first five tournaments, pretty fair wages for most folks, but he had yet to collect a really large check.

He cashed his first big one—$2,300—by finishing in a four-way tie for second at Phoenix and in a few fast months was named with veterans Arnold Palmer and Gary Player as golf's "big three."

Jack the giant's official winnings last year totaled $61,363, topped only by Palmer and Gene Littler. By adding $51,064 in unofficial but very cashable checks —including $50,000 for beating Palmer and Player in the world series of golf — Nicklaus topped them all in ever-all dough for play with $112,933.59.

Nicklaus also whipped Palmer in a playoff for the U.S. Open championship and just two days ago routed Player in an extra round for $9,000 top money at Palm Springs.

The Arizona Country Club's flat fairly wide open course, which plays to a par of 72 over 6,607 yards, should be made to order for the long-hitting Ohioan, just turned 23.

Palmer, who plays a similarly powerful game and has won the last two Phoenix Opens, says he always seems to play better at Arizona CC than at the tighter Phoenix Country Club, the tournament's alternate site.

The field in this one will include the winners of all circuit tournaments so far this year. Prior to Nicklaus' victory at Palm Springs, Palmer won at Los Angeles, Player at San Diego, Billy Casper at Pebble Beach and Jack Burke Jr. at San Francisco.

Also on hand is Littler, who has won this one twice on the Arizona CC flats.

Host pro Bill Johnston predicts it will take a score of 274—14 under par for 72 holes—to win top money of $5,300.

Lamesa Trips S'water To Extend String

Lamesa took another stride in the direction of the District 3-AAA league title in Sweetwater Tuesday night by smashing the Mustangs 66-46 behind the 27-point scoring blast of Wallace Franklin.

The win gave the Tornadoes a record of 6-0. They catch the only other team still in serious contention—Lake View—on their home court in the season wind-up game February 19.

Other Tors joining Franklin in double figures were Woodie Scott (13), Bubba Robertson (12), and Rex Nolen (11). Darrell Turnbow and George Butts each meshed 12 for the losers and Troy Bradbury 10.

Other games of Tuesday night found Lake View (5-1) toppling Snyder 55-50 and Brownfield (3-3) halting Colorado City (0-6).

Teddy Howell led the scoring onslaught for Brownfield with 20, while Mike Hart crammed in 15 to be high for Colorado City.

Brownfield — Howell 8-4-20, Ivey 5-1-11, Spears 1-1-3, Nunn 2-1-5, Vernon 2-1-5, Brown 0-1-1. Totals 23-9-55.

Cards Smear Bulldogs In Double Bill

HERMLEIGH — The Hermleigh Cardinals rose up to smack Loraine's Bulldogs 60-45 here Tuesday night to up their District 92-B record to 7-2 and drop Loraine to 6-3.

J. B. Roberson was the guiding light for the winners with 19 points.

Jolene Roberson and Carolyn Roemisch, with 19 and 15 points to their credit, powered the Hermleigh girls to a 47-36 victory in other action of the same evening.

Peggy Phillips of Loraine snared scoring honors for the game with 24.

Hermleigh — Nudnall 6-1-13, Roberson 8-3-19, Winters 3-1-7, Kubena 5-0-10, Taylor 4-2-11. Totals 26-8-60.

Trojans Fall To Odessa

ODESSA — Odessa rode the crest of a fruitful fourth quarter to a 65-56 victory over Snyder's Lincoln High Trojans here Tuesday in a non-district Negro cage encounter.

Lincoln's Trojans posted 34-32 and 49-48 advantages at the end of the second and third periods, but were unable to stay with the eventual victors without the help of ace scorer Ronald Green, who fouled out and saw no action in the fourth stanza.

Green meshed 26 points during the three quarters in which he participated to lead all scorers. Ephrem Jones had 18 to lead the way for Odessa.

Other Trojan scoring included that of Linwood Durst (13), Joseph Crayton (5), Raymond Johnson and Willie Barnes (4 each), and Lonzell Brown and Billy Cobb (2 each).

Barnes was the leading rebounder for the losers with 10.

The Lincoln girls, held to a mere four points in the first quarter, came bounding back in their game against the Odessans for a 44-29 conquest. Mary Goosby paced the win with 24 and Pearlie Jo Scott and Evelyn Braziel each chipped in with 10 to account for the winning point total. Mary Johnson snared 10 rebounds to be tops in that category.

Brenda Littleton meshed 12 points to lead the Odessa girls in scoring.

Ira Peppers Buffs, 39-35

FLUVANNA — Ira's Bulldogs roared into town Tuesday and took home with them a 39-35 District 92-B cage triumph over the host Fluvanna Buffaloes.

Buff Richard Contreras nabbed scoring honors for the game with 16. Norman Turner, Robert Sterling and Jack Payne spurred the three-pronged Bulldog attack with 12, 11 and 10, respectively.

The Ira girls also came out on the long end of the stick in their game, submerging Fluvanna's fems, 40-23, after being held to a 13-13 halftime standoff.

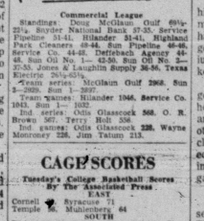

Patsy Jones bucketed 22 points toward the winning total. Opalia Ynganzo paced the losers in scoring with 11.

Ira — Sterling 5-1-11, Crowder 1-1-3, Crawford 1-1-3, Payne 5-0-10, Turner 6-0-12. Totals 13-9-39.

Lake View Dashes Bengal Hopes With 55-50 Victory

By JERRY JACKSON
News Sports Editor

Beset by an off - night, the effects of which haunted them throughout the game, Snyder's Tigers were sent tumbling to their third District 3-AAA defeat here Tuesday night by the Lake View Chiefs, 55-50.

The loss plummeted the Bengals into a tie for third along with the Brownfield Cubs, both of whom now stand 3-3. Brownfield moved up into the tie by disposing of Colorado City (0-6) by 55-42 the same night, while Lamesa continued its domination of the league by pounding Sweetwater (1-5), 66-46, for its sixth triumph without loss.

The Lake View win over the Tigers snapped a three-game victory skein which they had been nursing along, and dropped the Bengals to 8-12 for the year. The Chiefs, in the process kept their title hopes very much alive and burning while carding their fifteenth win as stacked up against 7 losses.

The first half belonged to Snyder, as the Tigers managed to lead all the way through the first two periods with the exception of one brief moment midway through the initial stanza when Lake View slipped into an 8-7 advantage. Sparked by the torrid outside shooting of Leslie Brown, who amassed 13 of his 17 points during the first half, Snyder pulled out to a 16-10 advantage late in the first period and three times held the same margin just prior to halftime when the count stood at 26-20, 28-22, and 30-24.

Brown, who led all scorers with his 17-point output, could hardly miss the basket during the first half, with the majority of his six goals during that span being medium jumpers from the top of the key.

Jimmy Wilson bucketed three goals during the first period to help shoulder the scoring load, too, and ended the game as the only other Tiger outside of Brown to climb into double figures. He added two more baskets to his total in the fourth period to finish the game with 10.

Cooled It

Coldness from the field in the second half actually spelled the Tiger doom, as the Bengals left the court at halftime with a 30-27 lead. Snyder hit a respectable 38 per cent during the opening two stanzas before trailing off to an anemic 22 per cent in the second half.

Lake View, on the other hand, upped its chilly 28 per cent first half to 44 per cent during the second. The Chiefs went ahead to stay late in the third quarter when Jesse Blann sank a goal to make it 37-35, and they went on to fatten their lead to 52-43 halfway through the fourth period before a late spurt on the part of the Tigers narrowed the gap to its final five-point margin.

The outside shooting of guard Roy Probst, coupled with the backboard wizardry of 6-3 Perry Brasher, made the big difference for the Chiefs. Probst was particularly adept from near the sideline, from which point he pushed home the majority of his 13 points, while Brasher led all rebounders with 15 grabs.

No Tiger could manage as many as 10 rebounds, and ace William Robinson pulled down just 7 for the night. He was hampered for most of the game after receiving three quick fouls before five minutes of playing time had elapsed.

Too, Snyder was never able to adequately crack a tough and unrelenting zone defense thrown up by the Chiefs.

The two leading Tiger scorers—Stuart Long and Robinson—were held to only 13 points between them, too, which kept the Bengals from mounting their full offensive. Long experienced what was probably his coldest night of the year, managing to sink only one goal for the evening. He fouled out with less than a minute to go in the contest, with four of his personals being charged during the second half.

He represented the only performer for either team to be relieved of duty, as Robinson finished the game with his same three fouls which he acquired in rapid-fire order at the start of the game. Due to his status, however, he was held out of the game through much of the first half.

Probst's 13 points topped Lake View scoring, but Blann and Brasher were only a whisper away with 12 and 11, respectively.

During the game, the score was knotted on six occasions and the lead changed hands five times.

Another Scalp

Snyder B kept its masterful winning touch intact prior to the varsity game by sinking Lake View B, 48-34.

They now stand 5-1 in district and 13-7 overall.

Jerry Vestal sparked the winning attack with 14 points — 9 of which were poured through the hoops during a productive third period — while Leslie Anderson helped out with his total of 11. Tom Kincaid was next in line with 8, of which six were scored in the space of a half-minute's playing time in the fourth quarter when some adept ball thievery paid off handsomely with the scoring of three quick goals.

John Kite and Tony Farris tied for Lake View scoring honors with 9 each.

Tiger B was hot at the free throw line, making good on 14 of 20 to Lake View's 14 of 25.

Friday's upcoming district firing will see the Tigers traveling to Lamesa to take on the League-leading Tors, while Colorado City will be at Lake View and Sweetwater at Brownfield.

Clay Has It All Figured

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Cassius Clay, the loquacious heavyweight with a penchant for poetic predictions, says he knows just what boxing needs to lift it out of the doldrums—a fellow named Clay.

"With Cassius Clay here it will liven up," the irrepressible Bard of boxing told a state legislative committee Monday.

Clay stole the spotlight at a public hearing on whether professional boxing should be abolished in New York State—and this was going some because he was in fast company.

Such ring greats as Carmen Basilio, Henry Armstrong and Billy Graham turned up to plead for the preservation of professional fisticuffs.

Clay, who likes to name the round-in-rhyme—when he's going to knock out his opponents, agreed that boxing was waning in popularity—like the birds going south for the winter. But it will make a comeback, he predicted, with Clay leading the way.

None of the witnesses who appeared at Monday's four-hour session spoke against boxing. They talked of its virtues as a physical conditioner and argued that underworld control of the sport had been virtually eliminated in New York State.

'Horns Gig Aggies To Lengthen Lead

By The Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns trampled Texas A&M Tuesday night and pulled farther out in the lead for the Southwest Conference basketball crown as half of the teams in the eight-member league got snagged up in a tie for, third place.

The 79-59 drubbing which Texas administered to the Aggies made the Longhorns the overwhelming favorite to continue rolling right along to the championship. With a perfect 6-0 mark, Texas has already walloped every team except Southern Methodist.

The Mustangs are the next target for the Longhorns, on Saturday, and another Texas victory almost would make the outcome of the loop race a foregone conclusion.

Rice swept past Baylor 62-54, Tuesday night, pushing its loop mark to 4-2 and taking over second place.

Tied for third place with identical 3-3 records are the Aggies, Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Tech. The traffic jam at this position came about as a result of Tuesday's battles in which Tech defeated Arkansas 80-75 in an overtime game and the Mustangs took the measure of Texas Christian 92-80.

The loss to Rice tumbled Baylor to a 2-4 mark and fourth place in the race. The TCU Horned Frogs, which haven't won a conference game this year, are in the rear with an 0-6 record.

The loss to Texas snapped the Aggies' string of home victories at 30. Their last defeat at College Station was Jan. 12, 1960. Saving the Cadets from a complete rout Tuesday night was their star, Bennie Lenox, who accounted for 26 of A&M's 59 points. Sparking the Longhorn attack were Jim Gilbert and Jim Puryear, who chalked up 23 and 19 points, respectively.

The Baylor Bears managed to limit 6-foot-9 Kendall Rhine to only four points during the first 17 minutes of play but the Rice star exploded for 14 points in the second half to spearhead the Owls' victory.

At Lubbock, Bobby Gindorf's eight points proved to be the margin of victory for Texas Tech in a spirited overtime period in which the lead changed hands four times. Gindorf, with 23 points was high for the Red Raiders while Larry Wofford provided the artillery for the Razorbacks with 20 points.

But the individual scoring honors in the loop Tuesday night went to James Thompson, who scored 30 points in leading the Mustangs to their victory over TCU. Thompson also ran his most recent free throw string to 29 straight, making all eight attempts during the first half before missing his first try after the intermission.

Boxing Gets Okay, But With Reforms

By MICHAEL KEATING

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Professional boxing will be continued in New York State, probably with reforms.

That decision it was learned today, has been reached by a majority of the members of a legislative committee assigned to determine whether boxing should be abolished in the state.

The decision has the backing of the Republican legislative leaders, who have the final say on what bills come before the senate and assembly. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has left the decision up to the legislature, which will accept the decision of the committee.

The Joint Legislative Committee on Professional Boxing was formed by the legislature last year after the death of Benny (Kid) Paret in a welterweight title fight in Madison Square Garden. The death brought a renewal of the outcry, heard periodically in the state, that there was no room in modern civilization for a sport like boxing.

The committee concluded a series of public hearings Tuesday and is scheduled to begin work next week on the draft of the report it will make to the legislature, which is Republican controlled.

Assemblyman Hayward H. Plumadore, committee chairman, said he expected the report to be ready in two to three weeks.

None of the members wished to speak publicly on the contiuance question until the committee had reached its conclusions in a formal manner.

But in off-the record discussions it was learned that a majority feel that insufficient evidence had been presented at the hearings to warrant the drastic step of abolition.

EDINBURG (AP)—Pan American College tennis players won both doubles and two singles matches in beating the University of Corpus Christi 4-3 Tuesday.

Junior Highs Battle Here Thursday

It's almost that time again when Travis and Lamar Junior Highs go at it "hammer and tongs" in their second and final series of showdown basketball games of the season.

The two schools are to clash in Tiger Gym Thursday evening, as the campaign rapidly draws to its conclusion on the junior high level.

Lamar 8th (15-3) is to take on Travis 8th (8-9) in the first interschool scramble beginning at 6:30 Thursday evening. Lamar marked up a 36-32 triumph in its only other meeting of the season staged early in December.

Following that one—at approximately 8 o'clock—Lamar 9th (9-7) and Travis 9th (5-12) are to tangle. Lamar was also victorious in its earlier battle against Travis when it rolled to a 42-33 conquest.

A pair of seventh grade contests will serve to initiate play of the day when Lamar Red takes the floor against Lamar Gray at 4 p.m. and Travis Blue seroes in on Travis White at 5:15.

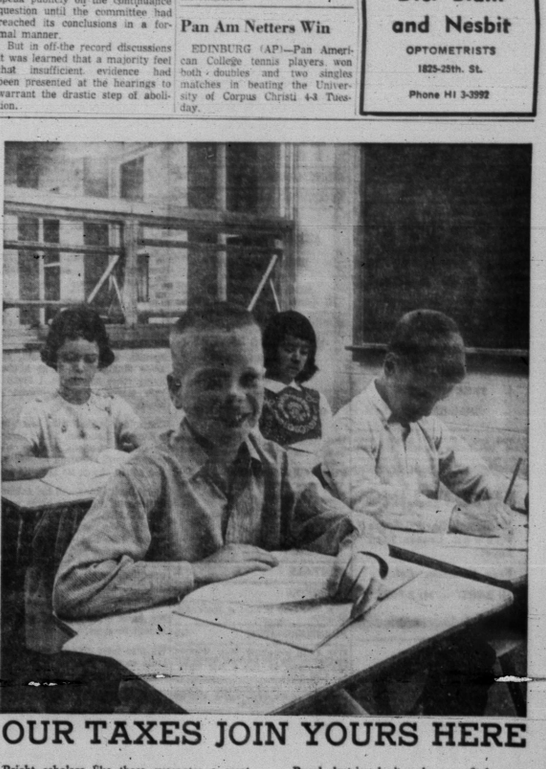

Report Is Branded 'Nonsense'

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson's attorney denied rumors that the ex-champ had suffered a back injury in training and indicated Monday that April 4 is the most likely date for the rematch with heavyweight champ Sonny Liston.

"I talked to Floyd on the telephone," said Julius November, Patterson's attorney. "He told me to forget the rumors which he called 'a lot of nonsense.' He told me he ran four rounds at his camp at Highland Mills, N.Y."

November said the contracts already have been signed calling for the rematch to be held at Miami Beach between April 4 and April 11. He indicated the earlier date was the most probable.

OUR TAXES JOIN YOURS HERE

Bright scholars like these guarantee a great future for America. This is why America's Rural Electric systems, mostly cooperatives, gladly share the cost of our schools through state and local taxes.

Some rural electrics are the biggest single taxpayer in their counties. And all systems pay the same taxes as other businesses except federal income tax. They don't pay this tax because they earn no profit . . . have no income to tax.

Rural electrics don't make a profit because they distribute power only to their owners, and always at cost. If they have money left over after paying their bills—operating costs, taxes, depreciation, and principal and interest on their Rural Electrification Administration loan—they return it to consumer-owners in the form of patronage refunds at the end of the year.

Paying our share of taxes is one of many ways that we and almost 1,000 other rural electrics, now serving 20 million rural people, help build a stronger America.

Wants Battleship For Use As Museum

DECATUR, Ga. (AP)—A World War 1 soldier wants the USS Missouri preserved on an island in Pearl Harbor as a museum instead of being scrapped.

James Causton Turner of Decatur, a pivate in the field artillery in 1914-1917, wrote President Kennedy Tuesday that he feels the battleship on which the Japanese surrender was signed in 1945 should be preserved because of its historical value.

He suggested public subscription to finance removal of the Missouri from Bremerton, Wash., to Peart Harbor.

Top Demand Is Met By Lone Star

DALLAS—The largest gas supply in its 53-year history enabled Lone Star Gas Company to meet record - breaking demands for natural gas on its system during January.

All-time high records for gas delivery during a single day and during a single month were recorded by the company in January. Four major northers that blanketed the state during the month kept Texans in an icy grip, with only brief thaw-out periods before the next cold wave struck.

A total of 1,876,500,000 cubic feet of gas was delivered to customers on the Lone Star system during the 24-hour period ending on midnight, Jan. 23. This was 18,200,000 more cubic feet of gas delivered than during the previous high sendout record established during the 24-hour period ending on midnight, Jan. 9, 1962.

Total gas delivered by the company during January, 1963, was 43,503,200,000 cubic feet. This topped the previous all-time record of 40,374,400,000 cubic feet of gas delivered in January, 1962.

Lone Star Gas Company has a continuing and sound gas purchase program, designed to insure ample gas supply for current and future use. The company serves some 900,000 customers in 470 cities, towns and communities in Texas and Southern Oklahoma. Lone Star maintains seven gas underground storage projects with a total current reservoir capacity of 78,440,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

As an added precaution, Lone Star protects its gas supply for residential customers by prior contractual agreement with all industrial gas users to curtail gas during extreme cold weather conditions. Many industrial plants switch to stand-by fuel during curtailment of gas. Curtailment is a planned procedure and does not reflect a shortage of gas in the field. Gas was curtailed in large industrial plants on certain parts of the Lone Star system on Jan. 12, 19, and 23.

Instruments Taken 133,000 Feet High

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — The Navy says a 198-foot balloon carried an instrument package 133,000 feet high in a test of the upper atmosphere.

The 13.8-pound package carried instruments designed to measure the air's ozone content, a factor regarded as important in missile and space programs.

The helium - filled balloon — launched Tuesday — landed at Will Rogers Beach State Park near Santa Monica, Calif., 45 miles southeast of this coastal launching site.

Soviet Vehicle Far Into Space

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet space probe Mars-1 was reported by the news agency Tass today to be about 33 million miles from the earth.

The vehicle, launched Nov. 1, is expected to reach the vicinity of Mars at the end of May.

TOP TV TONIGHT

By BUD EVANS

6:30 NBC "Hall of Fame" stars Julie Harris, James Donald, Gladys Cooper, John Williams and George Rose in George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion". The television adaptation is by Robert Hartung and is produced and directed by George Schaefer. The story concerns an arrogant professor of phonetics who attempts to make a fine lady out of an ignorant flower girl - all to win a bet he has made. This 90-minute special preempts "The Virginian" on this date only. COLOR.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

6:30 ABC "Wagon Train". A pair of southerners - one a firebrand constantly seeking to avenge the Confederate defeat and the other somber and closedmouth - constitute a headache for wagonmaster Chris Hale. Charles Drake, Gary Cockrell, Evan Evans and Peter Whitney are featured.

6:30 CBS "Reports". Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who rebuilt West Germany out of the rubble into which Hitler plunged it, discusses his life and achievements and their effect on the course of modern history.

7:30 CBS "Dobie Gillis". Chatsworth Osborne Jr. hires Dobie to impersonate him on a date with his visiting childhood friend whom he remembers as an ugly duckling. Obviously, Cynthia (Maggie Pierce) turns out to be a stunning creature.

8:00 NBC "Perry Como" temporarily cancels his plans to originate this show in Mexico City and returns to the Brooklyn studios. Anita Bryant and Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy are the guest stars. COLOR.

8:00 CBS "The Beverly Hillbillies". Buddy Ebsen, starring as Jed Klampet (but formerly noted for his dancing ability), rocks Beverly Hills with a toe-tapping square dance. Folk musicians Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs are special guest stars.

9:00 CBS "Steel Hour". Douglas Fairbanks Jr. serves as host for "The Troubled Heart", the drama dealing with a dilemma that faces a Canadian couple when radical heart surgery is recommended for the wife.

9:00 NBC "Eleventh Hour". Eleanor Parker and Dan Duryea are guest stars, respectively, as an alcoholic and phoney psychiatrist.

Food Bill Is Big Item For Zoo Keeper

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past 13 years John Galm has attempted to reduce his family budget. But try as he may the food bills average more than $3,500 a month.

"Just this month, I paid $240 for fish alone," Galm said with a sigh," and the mother of our newly born requires vitamins that cost $1.50 daily."

Galm's family consists of 250 birds and 130 mammals, all with tremendous appetites. He is supervisor of the Central Park Zoo.

"It's a very rewarding job," Galm said. "It's just like taking care of a large family—and has all of the same problems."

Galm has worked for the zoo for 27 years, the last 13 as supervisor.

With an annual budget of $250,000, Galm keeps the zoo open seven days a week with the assistance of 24 keepers. He estimats that more than two million persons visit the zoo yearly.

"Even with my huge food budget," Galm said, "my job is an easy one. We have neither weather nor traffic problems and with our fine assortment of animals this makes the zoo a year-round attraction."

The zoo is located in a seven-acre triangle in Central Park, in the heart of Manhattan.

"One of the most cherished blessings," Galm said, "is the fact we don't charge admission to the zoo. The city pays our bills."

Most of the animals seem to get as much pleasure from looking at the people, as the people do from looking at them.

"After 27 years," Galm confided, "I still don't know whether the tidbits given the animals by visitors help fill them or merely serve as appetizers."

Face Lifting Projects Set

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Points across the Rio Grande from Texas will benefit from more than $4 million to be spent by the government on face lifting projects this year.

The money is part of $7,144,000 ticketed for such work along the border between this country and the United States.

The total is almost three times the amount spent during the first two years of the organization carrying out the project, the National Border Program.

In 1961 and 1962, the program spent $2,656,000. Almost half went to buy land.

This year only 14 per cent of the spending will be for land purchases. The remainder will go into construction and improvements and is apportioned among these cities:

Juarez, across from El Paso, $3,024,000.

Nogales, across from Nogales, Ariz., $1,624,000.

Tijuana, south of San Diego, Calif., $1,184,000.

Matamoros, across from Brownsville, $712,000.

Piedras Negras, across from Eagle Pass, $520,000.

Ojinaga, across from Presidio, $60,000.

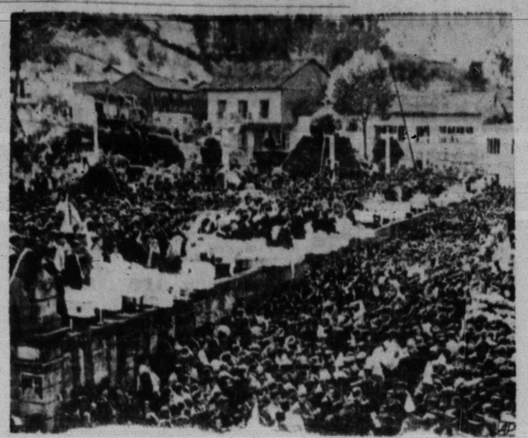

Officials said $4,184,000 of the total will come from the Mexican government, $2 million from a Bank of America loan and $960,000 from a Mexican bank, the Banco Comercial Mexicano.

Atomic Ship Gets Service In Galveston

GALVESTON (AP) — The World's first nuclear - powered merchant ship docked at Pelican Island Tuesday to become the first customer of a $3,250,000 atomic service station.

The NS Savannah eased through the fog into the docks of Todd shipyard where the world's first commercial facility for refueling, clear - powered ships is located.

The installation, designed for the Savannah, was dedicated after the arrival of the white, streamlined vessel.

At the dedication, Gov. John Connally said it was fitting that the vessel be serviced in Galveston.

"Only in Texas could you find a filling station to service a ship that could go around the world 10 times without refueling," Connally said.

Connally, former secretary of Navy, presented Commodore Gaston DeGroote of Huntington, N.Y., with a Texas flag and said:

"I know you and your crew will visit many lands and many ports but I hope this Lone Star flag will remined you of the warm hospitality of Texas."

Connally observed that the crew of the Savannah could be at sea for three years since the necessity of refueling of the ship is so seldom.

Strain In Canada To Endure

EDITOR'S NOTE—Seldom have U.S.-Canadian relations been more strained, mainly because of a State Department Statement Washington insiders say wasn't intended as a bombshell nor read in advance by President Kennedy. Who cleared it at the White House and what lies ahead for "the good neighbors?"

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The political crisis in Canada threatens to maintain for several months the severe strains on U.S.-Canadian relations.

There was no immediate comment here from the White House or State Department on the fall of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's Conservative government Tuesday night. But U.S. leaders are sensitively aware that a State Department statement just a week ago sparked the tumult which now forces the Canadians into new elections.

Since Diefenbaker had made a major issue of what he called U.S. intrusion into Canadian affairs there is no doubt joint Canadian-U.S. defense activities, nuclear weapons for Canada's armed forces, and probably the whole range of political and economic relations between Ottawa and Washington will be hotly debated during the election period and in the new Parliament to follow.

So far as can be determined, neither President Kennedy nor Secretary of State Dean Rusk had a hand in producing the State Department statement which burst like a bomb in the middle of Canadian politics.

Indeed the statement evidently was not supposed to be such a bombshell at all, although its authors reportedly foresaw the possibility of angry Canadian government criticism.

Kennedy is understood to have been upset the day after the statement came out by the apparent failure of State and Defense Department authorities to judge its impact. It was understood to have been cleared by McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President for national security affairs.

The statement was designed to clear up for the record U.S. government views on issues involving Canada's acceptance or rejection of U.S. nuclear warheads for U.S. weapons systems already in Canadian hands.

The idea of issuing a statement, informed officials say, originated in the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa and in the State Department here after a debate on nuclear weapons in the Canadian Parliment. The Embassy is under direction of Ambassador W. Walton Butterworth and the State Department policy control is understood to have been delegated by Rusk to Undersecretary George W. Ball.

The issue essentially was simple. Diefenbaker had long been reluctant to equip Canadian forces with U.S. nuclear weapons under joint U.S.-Canadian control. Kennedy and his advisers believed however, that the weapons are essential for Canada's role in the defense of North American and Western Europe. Canadian units are part of the European NATO force.

The issue has been a source of friction for at least a year. A year ago, Diefenbaker told the Canadian Parliament that joint control of nuclear weapons could not be arranged under existing U.S. Law. Four days later, on March 2, Rusk told a news conference here that such arrangements could be worked out. He softened this by adding that the decision, of course was up to Canada.

Following the Cuban crisis last October, Diefenbaker initiated secret talks with U.S. representatives on the possibility of obtaining nuclear warheads. The talks failed and the statement issued here last week said bluntly that Canada had failed to produce any kind of practical plan to solve the problem.

U.S. officials obviously were convinced that regardless of the negotiations Diefenbaker in fact did not want Canada to have U.S. nuclear weapons, at least not for some time.

On Jn. 25, during a full-dress parliamentary debate, Diefenbaker stated his position in a speech which in the U.S. view obscured the realities of the problem.

It was to those arguments that the United States objected on the ground that for the most part they blurred the facts.

The statement was bare of the usual diplomatic language employed to prevent offense if possible to a foreign government.

It was issued Wednesday of last week. On Thursday Diefenbaker accused the United States of unwarranted intrusion in a Canadian debate on foreign policy.

On Friday Rusk apologized at a news conference for the harsh tone of the statement, but defended its release on the ground that the U.S. position on the issues debated in Canada had to be made clear.

The prevailing view in the State Department now still is that the U.S. action was fully justified because of the gravity of defense requirements and the United States still wants Canada to get nuclear warheads as soon as possible.

Nearly 30 Floridians professionally interested in alcoholism attended special alcoholism schools in 1962 on scholarships sponsored by the Florida Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program.

Berber Chieftain Abd El Krim Dies

CAIRO (AP)—Abd El Krim, 78, the Berber chieftain who astonished the world with his victories against Spain and France in the bloody Riff revolt of the 1920s, died suddenly early today.

The legendary warrior, whose exploits inspired the light opera "The Desert Song," had not set foot in his native Morocco since he was exiled in 1926.

Although age had mellowed him, he continued to be violently anti-French and warned the United States in 1957 that it should not rely on France to help defend Europe.

Declaring that the Germans swept the French aside in 20 days in World War II, Abd El Krim told an interviewer: "The United States should not forget that now and not rely on France in any defense of Europe. The French broke faith with the British in the last war."

"I don't know why the world doesn't get on to those French, they're stupid, weak, stubborn and selfish," he declared.

Last year he threatened fresh war in Morocco "unless King Hassan abandons his alliance with imperialism"—a reference to what he called the kings' "dependence on France in all fields as well as secret military agreements."

But he also was saying that the time had come for him to go home.

Abd El Krim, also known as Emir Abdel Krim, had lived in Cairo since 1947. He claimed he still held sway over 400,000 armed tribesmen in Morocco.

His war in the Riff Mountains against Spain inspired light operas, including "The Desert Song," picturing the emir as a romantic sheik galloping over the sand dunes. Actually, it was a bitter, bloody struggle.

By 1924, Abd El Krim had proclaimed a Riff republic. Then the French attacked him from the south and received a staggering defeat.

A year later the French influenced some tribes to desert the emir.

Demoralized by the vision of Moroccans fighting Moroccans and facing overwhelming odds, Abd El Krim surrendered.

He and his family were exiled to Reunion Island in the Indian Ocean. In 1947, the French put him aboard a ship to France. During a ceremony at Port Said, he slipped ashore and escaped to Cairo where he had lived ever since.

Two Women Are Linked By Shooting

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP)— The curb-side shooting of a policeman grimly links two Corsicana mothers who work almost side-by-side in a hat factory.

One woman's husband was shot to death Dec. 23, 1962 as he investigated a traffic violation. The other, faces murder charges in the slaying.

Both have Faye as their given name and they live just three blocks from each other.

Mrs. Faye Robinson, 26, widow of Sgt. Bob Robinson and mother of a 3-year-old girl, admits she's fighting a battle against bitterness.

"Bob came home that night for supper," she said. "He left to go back on duty, and about an hour later they came to tell me he was dead."

The police sergeant was killed by a shotgun blast when he apparently stopped Grover Beamon to investigate a traffic violation.

Mrs. Faye Beamon, 32, who has four children ranging from 13 months to six years, visits her husband each day. In fact, she takes his evening meals to the Navarro County jail where he has been held without bond since Christmas Eve.

On Sundays Mrs. Beamon takes the children to see their father.

Each morning the mothers leave their children with baby sitters and report for work at the hat factory. Mrs. Robinson sews bands in hats. Mrs. Beamon inspects the band work.

Neither has much financial security. Sgt. Robinson canceled a life insurance policy just three months prior to his death. Court-appointed attorneys will defend Beamon, due to be tried for murder Feb. 24.

Sympathetic citizens here started a "Bob Robinson memorial fund."

Recently, Mrs. Robinson received a $2,979.32 check, proceeds from the fund.

A fund was also started for Mrs. Beamon and her children. It now stands at $412.

Taxpayers Share In Cost Of Art

By PHIL KEUPER

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Today, in culture-conscious America, you can buy an original painting on the instalment plan.

In New York State you can go to a ballet or a concert in your home town and have the rest of the state's 5½ million taxpayers share the cost of your ticket. New York spends almost a half-million tax dollars a year subsidizing the performing arts.

Rhode Island taxpayers also share the cost of local ballets or concerts, but on a much smaller scale. That state's General Assembly last year appropriated $65,700 for the performing arts.

Other states are watching the New York experiment. So is Congress, where a bill that would create a Federal Arts Council with a $10-million budget has been introduced.

New York State's Council of the Arts was created three years ago by a legislature lukewarm to the idea of taxpayers supporting theater, ballet and demonstrations about how to look at a painting.

The council was the project of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a former president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"The governor," grumbled one lawmaker, "is trying to put the state in the ballet business."

A $50,000 initial budget started the council on a statewide cultural survey. In 1961-62, the appropriation soared to $450,000, enough to send live Shakespeare, opera or ballet into almost every major upstate community. This year, the council had $560,000 to spend.

In 1961 a total of 7,300 persons jammed a fieldhouse in Troy to hear Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Many others were turned away. Children paid 50 cents a ticket, adults $1.50.

The concert was the council's biggest success. John H. Macfadyen, the council's executive director, said: "They could have charged $2.50 a ticket, still a reasonable price, and had the concert without state help."

This, according to Macfadyen, is the ultimate goal of state-supported art: to launch communities on cultural projects of their own.

"It would be a mistake," he said: "for people to begin to depend on an annual sum of money from a temporary commission."

Several upstate cities began organizing local arts councils last year.

Two Boys Burned To Death In Galveston

GALVESTON (AP)—Two small brothers burned to death Tuesday night in an upstairs apartment of a crowded rooming house.

They were Grady Johnson, 2, and James Johnson, 5, sons of Mrs. Josephine Johnson, 26. The mother was treated for shock.

Two two-story frame building housed 24 persons, including 18 children.

Fire Chief William Henderson said the flames apparently started as the Johnson boys and several other children played with a gas heater in the Johnson apartment.

Two other upstairs apartments were heavily damaged.

Reinstatement Of Lawyer Announced

The reinstatement was announced Tuesday.

Sam Houston College Dean Creager Dies

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — William Creager, 59, dean of students at Sam Houston State College, died of a heart attack Tuesday night.

He entered a hospital Thursday for a checkup.

Creager, born in Clebyrne, was a graduate of Baylor and held a master of education degree from the University of Texas.

He became dean of men at Sam Houston State in 1946 and two years ago became dean of students. He had been principal, football coach and superintendent at Reagan and principal of Horace Mann Junior High School at Baytown.

His wife and two sons, Chad and Rowe, survive.

Wiring Problem To Delay Cooper Trip

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A wiring problem has forced an indefinite delay in the space flight of astronaut LeRoy Gordon Cooper Jr.

Officials of the manned Spacecraft Center said Tuesday the postponement was caused by wiring problems in the control system of the Atlas booster.

Cooper, 35, an Air Force major, is slated to make the longest orbital flight by an American, a mission that could last up to 34 hours. Originally the flight was scheduled for early April.

Tristan de Cunha Island in the South Atlantic suffered a volcanic eruption in October 1961. Early in 1963 an advance party of 50 exiled islanders, who have been living in England, returned to prepare Tristan for resettlement.

Guadalupe Park Plan Discussed

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A representative of the Guadalupe Ranch conferred here Tuesday with Texas congressmen regarding a proposal to build Guadalupe National Park on the West Texas ranch.

The representative, Glenn Biggs of Abilene, Tex., saying he was speaking in behalf of J. C. Hunter Jr., Abilene oilman who owns the ranch, pushed the national park idea in conference with Texas congressmen.

Biggs is expected to confer later with Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall.

Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., introduced a bill last week to authorize the Interior Department to study the park proposal and report to Congress on its desirability.

The 72,000-acre ranch includes the 8,750-foot-high Guadalupe peak and adjacent 8,067-foot-high El Capitan mountain.

Biggs said the ranch has an estimated value of $1.5 million.

Observing that the Pool bill proposes only a 50-square-mile park area, or roughly 32,000 to 35,000 acres, Biggs said this portion of the ranch includes the mountain top and a forested area with a trout stream and therefore is much more valuable than the remainder.

Biggs said the Guadalupe Ranch has been owned by the J. C. Hunter Jr. family since 1901 and that no peak in the United States east of it is as high. There are 2,500 head of deer, 300 elk and some mountain sheep on the ranch. The only domestic ranching operations it involves the grazing of 5,000 Angora goats.

Biggs said he discussed the park proposal with Udall last summer and that Udall indicated some interest.

Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., in whose district the ranch is located and with whom Biggs conferred, said:

"Naturally, I am very interested in the proposal.

"I am particularly interested from the standpoint that, as I understand, one or more endowment foundations have indicated a willingness to buy this property and make an outright grant of it to the government.

"I'm not saying it's a good idea, but it's certainly worth looking into."

Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., who represents the Abilene district, said:

"I'm interested in conservation and seeing that this doesn't get tied into some big commercial venture controlled by some syndicate."

Rep. Clark Fisher, D-Tex., with whom Biggs also conferred, said he would want to check further into the matter, but that it would be his hope that the public would be able to enjoy the scenic and recreational benefits of the area.

Diseases Of Gums Need Treatment

This is the fourth in a series of questions and answers on dental health published by Snyder News in cooperation with the Seventeenth District Dental society, Texas, Dental Association, in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week Feb. 3-9.

What is periodontal disease?

The word "periodontal" comes from two Greek words meaning literally "around the tooth." In periodontal disease the tissues that surround and support the teeth, the gums, the fibers that attach the teeth to the jawbones and the bones themselves are affected.

The disease begins as gingivitis. The gums gradually become swollen, they may stand away from the teeth and bleed when touched. If gingivitis is not treated and controlled, the inflammation spreads, along the roots of the teeth and the gums separate from the teeth, forming a pocket which becomes filled with bacteria and sometimes pus. As the disease progresses, the bone supporting the teeth is lost, and the affected teeth eventually become very loose.

What causes periodontal disease?

Among the local factors causing periodontal disease is calculus, or tartar, a hard crust-like material that is deposited on the surface of the teeth where the gums and the crowns meet, irritating the gums. Worn-out fillings and crowns, ill-fitting partial dentures, sharp edges of badly decayed teeth and food particles retained in a cavity also irritate the gums.

The loss of a tooth, if it is not replaced with an artificial tooth by a dentist, may cause the adjacent teeth to shift into the vacant space. The shifting leads not only to wedging of food into the spaces between the teeth but also to improper meshing of the teeth upon chewing. The shock and uneven pressures of these poor teeth contacts cause damage to the periodontal tissues. Teeth that do not come together properly on closing the jaws, regardless of the cause, can be a factor in producing periodontal disease.

If a patient has regular dental checkups, his dentist will discover and promptly eliminate any of these possible causes of irritation.

Can periodontal disease be cured?

Yes, in many cases it can be cured, especially if the disease is discovered in its early stages. Calculus and any other causes of irritation within the mouth are removed. If necessary, diseased gum tissue is removed surgically. In some cases, splints and other appliances are constructed to maintain stability of loose teeth until bone and gums are regenerated.

Although treatment by the dentist is necessary, complete cooperation of the patient in home care is most important if the treatment is to be successful.

Ferry Hits Floating Ice

INNHON, South Korea (AP) —A crowded ferry struck floating ice and sank 18 miles northwest of Inchon today. National police said the ferry's passenger list carried 140 names and that an initial head count of the survivors showed four persons missing.

Earlier a U.S. Army spokesman said there were about 200 persons aboard the ferry and it was believed four were lost in the icy waters.

Police said the accident occurred about 500 yards off Moodo, a tiny islet, and that the ship stayed afloat in a calm sea for several hours. Two tugs, U.S. landing craft and two U.S. helicopters went out from Inchon for the rescue.

Pipeline Project Contract Awarded By CRMWD Board

A contract for construction of a 51.5 mile pipeline from Lake J. B. Thomas to near Silver in northern Coke County was awarded Tuesday to R. H. Fulton Construction Company of Lubbock.

Fulton's bid was for $2,041,435, or $14,901 more than one submitted by Elm Fork Construction Company of Dallas. However, after a lengthy discussion, the Elm Fork proposal was ruled out by directors on the grounds that it was considered irregular.

S. C. Freese, Fort Worth, representing the engineering firm of Freese, Nichols and Endress, said that a work order would be issued as soon as a contract could be executed. The completion date for the job is July 1 and carries with it a $1,000 a day penalty thereafter.

E. E. Farrell, head of Elm Fork, expressed appreciation to the board for consideration and said that although a time of completion was not specified, a qualification inserted as to the amount of pipe delivered on the ground before starting, these were not intentional. The job was bid in good faith, but that he respected the decision of the board. Freese assured him that there was no question as to the intentions or ability of Elm Fork to perform.

The board also approved moving in a small house for a pumper at the Morgan Creek station. E. V. Spence, general manager, reported on progress in securing right of way, and the board affirmed policies in this regard. Also approved was a routine bookkeeping matter of billing the Standard - Sinclair repressuring monthly at one twelfth of the yearly minimum.

Board members expressed reluctance not to award to the low bidder, but in the end, with the rejection of the Elm Fork bid as irregular, the Fulton proposal was left as the low bid. It was then accepted unanimously.

The supply line will deliver up to 3,000,000 gallons of water per day to Sun Oil Company for waterflooding. The district, out of funds other than revenue bonds, will construct lateral lines to the Colorado River where channel dams will drain off normal low flow of the river. As much as one million gallons a day of the contract quantity can come from the river.

This will enable the district to proceed with plans for constructing a second dam on the Colorado River, possible in southern Mitchell County. It has a permit from the state for the dam but conditioned on an ability to control the salt water pollution on the river.

A week ago the district sold a $2,750,000 issue of revenue bonds at 2.4939 intrest over a six-year period to finance the pipeline.

Dr. Graham Is Improved

DALLAS (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham was greatly improved today and is scheduled to leave his hospital bed during the day to fly to Washington for Thursday's presidential prayer breakfast.

The 44-year-old evangelist entered Baylor Hospital Monday suffering from pneumonia and acute bronchitis. An associate said this morning Dr. Graham had responded satisfactorily to treatment and that his temperature was back to normal.

The associate said Dr. Graham will be taken directly from the hospital to the airport and flown to Washington. He said that after Thursday's program the evangelist will go to his Montreat, N.C., home to continue medication and to convalesce for several days.

One-Ton Space Bird Is Going Into Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States plans to put a one-ton space bird with a 96-foot wing spread into orbit late next year.

It will be rigged to give off an electronic squawk whenever struck by meteors.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Tuesday it will negotiate with Fairchild Stratos Corp., Hagerstown, Md., on a contract to build two such birds.

They are scheduled to be lifted into space by test shots of Saturn I rocket systems, being developed to carry the first Americans to the moon.

Two Armed Jailbreakers Are Nabbed

AMARILLO (AP) — Two armed jailbreakers accused of robbing an arsenal and kidnaping a Missouri couple were captured on an informer's tip Tuesday night.

They went to a Western Union office to receive a telegraphed money order and found the place surrounded by police.

Although the men—LeRoy Carpenter, 26, of Sarcoxie, Mo., and Joseph Thompson, 31, of Joplin, Mo—were armed, they did not resist.

Police said the informer was a Joplin man who promised to wire money to the fugitives. He was not identified.

Carpenter and Thompson sawed out of jail Sunday at Neosho, Mo., where they were held on charges of assaulting and robbing a 95-year-old man.

The Army Reserve armory in Joplin was looted Monday. Six automatic pistols, five rifles and three bayonets were taken. Carpenter and Thompson were believed to be the burglars.

At Webb City, Mo., two men accosted Mrs. Jack Goodwin as she walked out of her house Tuesday. Her screams brought her husband. The men forced both into the Goodwin car but released them unharmed half an hour later.

"One of them said 'We're up for life, but we'll have a few hours freedom,'" Mrs. Goodwin told police.

She and her husband identified a picture of Thompson as one of the kidnapers and one of Carpenter as possibly the second man.

Stokowski Still Boosting Youth

By MILES A. SMITH
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—At 78, Maestro Leopold Stokowski still carries a musical banner for youth and its future hopes.

Still tremendously busy—building another orchestra, making guest appearances with the Philadelphia Orchestra and others, reading manuscript scores that pour into his studio overlooking Central Park—the man who once formed an All American Youth Orchestra manages to find time to give encouragement to young musicians.

Friday, he will be back in Philadelphia for an anniversary concert, commemorating the 50th season since he made his debut there.

But in answering an interviewer's questions about the anniversary, he soon turned the subject aside.

"I would rather talk about the future," he said. "The past is something we no longer can do anything about."

He began talking about the American Symphony, which under his leadership began giving concerts last fall.

"One-third of our players are the most talented youth from the great music schools of New York, Boston, Rochester, Philadelphia and Baltimore—young people with tremendous talent," he said.

"For the remaining two-thirds we have the great, experienced free-lance players of New York, whom I know personally from making records for years.

"The young players learn from the experienced players, and the latter gain from the enthusiasm and vitality of the young people.

"In connection with this project, he continually auditions young singers, young players and young conductors. Ever are young composers neglected.

Then the talk turned to public support for youthful talent.

Should there be national support for young people in the arts?

"The central government in Washington," he said, "has tremendous problems both in the United States and in relation to other countries. I am confident that each city and each state is able to take care of itself culturally.

"If ever the intense problems of national security are solved, then great funds would be made free for the cultural life of the United States.

"Until then," he went on, "each city and state should take care of its own, and can do so.

"The greatest question for young people is opportunity. America is the land of opportunity and it must remain that."

Seed Limit Protested

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Cattlemen, farmers and dairymen from Texas and Louisiana protested Tuesday a proposed national agreement to limit the sale of ryegrass seed.

Their protests were made at a hearing called by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is planning a producers referendum on the proposal. Hearings were held previously at Houston and Albany, Ore.

Examiner Jack Bain said the Oregon Ryegrass Growers Association recommended the sales limit as a method of controlling production.

H. G. Hardee Jr. of Gueydan, La., a rice farmer representing the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, urged that Louisiana and Texas be exempted from any quota agreement.

He said Oregon producers could not assure Louisiana and Texas cattlemen a supply of pure ryegrass seed. He contended the Oregon ryegrass seed is not free of other varieties.

A limit on ryegrass seed sales, Hardee said, "would be a damaging blow to the balance of our entire agricultural economy in Southwest Louisiana."

Among successful plants introduced in the United States through the efforts of the late David Fairchild are Persian melon, Guatemalan avocado, Egyptian cotton, Peruvian alfalfa, the Chinese soy bean and Japanese zoysia lawn grass.

Deny Gilpatric Will Delay Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has labeled "pure speculation" reports that Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell Gilpatric will delay his trip to Spain next week because high ranking Spanish officials may not be present.

A department spokesman said Monday that Gilpatric will leave for Madrid Feb. 14 and "we have been assured that he will meet with various Spanish officials to discuss defense matters." One of the matters is renewal of the agreement giving the United States bases in Spain in return for foreign aid.

Lord Samuel Dead At 92

LONDON (AP)—Lord Samuel, a powerful voice in British politics for half a century and the elder statesman of the resurgent Liberal party, is dead at 92. He had been ill since before Christmas.

Herbert Louis Samuel's death Tuesday left Sir Winston Churchill the only survivor of the 1906 Liberal government which laid the foundation for the modern welfare state.

Lord Samuel, son of a wealthy Jewish banker from Liverpool, was named to the peerage as a viscount in 1937 after losing his House of Commons seat in 1935.

As leader of the House of Lords from 1944-55, he opposed commercial television and abolition of capital punishment and urged an international ban on the use of nuclear bombs.

Survivors include three sons and a daughter. His wife died in 1959.

Lord Samuel had an important hand in the Edwardian period of reform which lasted from 1906 to the outbreak of World War I.

He was the first high commissioner in Palestine in 1920. Lord Samuel was returned to Parliament in 1929, was acting leader of the Liberals during the illness of David Lloyd George, and was home secretary for a year in Ramsay MacDonald's national government.
