Briscoe's Crime Bills Move In Legislature

By Lee Jones
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, (AP)- Punishing criminals more harshly and easing financial hardship for their victims got legislative action before legislators broke for the weekend.

On Friday the House approved, 103-26, Gov. Dolph Briscoe's bill requiring more time behind bars for criminals who use guns or who injure victims in rape, robbery, kidnapping or sexual abuse cases.

Such persons could not get probation. They would be eligible for parole only after serving 20 years or a third of their sentences. "Good time" for behaving themselves wouldn't count toward parole eligibility. And they would have to serve a minimum of two years in prison before having a chance at parole.

The same tough penalties would apply to people convicted of capital murder but who got prison sentences instead of the death penalty.

Convicts who complete their sentences without parole but who are released early because of "good time" would be placed under parole-like supervision until thull terms of their sentences run out. "Good time" shortens sentences by 20 days for every 30 served.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill creating a state fund to compensate victims of violent crimes for their medical expenses and other out-of pocket losses, up to a total of $50,000.

The Texas Industrial Accident Board, which administers the workmen's compensation program, would dole out the cash, raised from a $5 surcharge on court costs in traffic and criminal cases.

Another bill passed by the Senate would restore the right to vote to convicted felons who have served out all their prison, parole or probation time.

Still in the criminal area, the House passed to the Senate a bill that would subject a businessman to penalties ranging as high as 180 days in jail and a $1,000 fine if he has pay toilets in his establishment.

Two major bills were passed by the House and returned to the Senate for action on amendments

Quake Jolts Yugoslavia

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, (AP) — A strong earthquake shook the Adriatic coast of Yugoslavia early Saturday, but there were no reports of damage, the Zagreb seismological institute said.

The quake, which measured 6 on the Mercalli scale, was centered in the Adriatic sea about 175 miles south of Zagreb, the institute said.

Little Effect At Pumps

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A reported decision by 11 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries OPEC to forego a 5 per cent price increase could save oil-importing nations more than $2 billion during the last half of 1977, experts say.

But they also agree the decision, reported Friday by the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey, will mean very little savings to American consumers at the gas pumps.

The magazine, quoting OPEC sources, said the oil cartel will announce the decision May 20.

Hostages Held

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A gunman fleeing a bank robbery and saying he had "nothing to lose" held a young mother and two of her children hostage in their apartment today as FBI agents and police tried to persuade him to surrender.

"We have a negotiating team there," one agent said. "Our best negotiator is there."

Another agent said, "We're willing to do anything that's reasonable in order to free the hostages." He did not elaborate.

A LABOR OF LOVE

Ballards Find Rewards In Being Foster Parents

By JOHN LONG

Answering a newspaper ad six years ago changed the lives of John and Grace Ballard.

The Camp Springs couple noticed an ad in 1971 calling for foster parents that appeared in The Snyder Daily News. They applied and were accepted.

In addition to their own four grown children, the Ballards have been parents to 13 other children.

The children have been placed in their care by the Scurry County Child Welfare Unit.

The couple has cared for as many as four children at one time. That occasion was in 1971, only several weeks after they were accepted as foster parents. Usually, however, the children arrive singly or in pairs of brothers and sisters.

When the children are placed with them, the couple said neither child nor foster parent knows how long the relationship will last.

Once a pair of brothers, aged four and seven, were placed with the Camp Springs couple and stayed with them for three years. Other children have been placed with the couple for over-night care only.

The children that are placed with the Ballards are usually runaways or victims of neglect or physical abuse. Caring for the children is a labor of love for the Ballards.

"The children need a place to stay and we need the company," Mrs. Ballard said. Both foster child and foster parent seem to find the situation mutually beneficial.

The couple moved to Camp Springs in 1970. Ballard is 55, a retired Air Force technical sergeant and a native of Weatherford. "But I'm strictly GI," said Ballard. "I was raised in the service."

Mrs. Ballard, 57, is a

Soil Stewardship Week Observance Opens Today

Soil Stewardship Week, a nationwide observance which emphasizes man's responsibility to protect and conserve soil, water, and other natural resources, begins today, W.L. Wilson Jr. Chairman of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District, has announced.

"This year's theme, 'When We Care', will help each to examine his own motives and actions in the conservation of God's manifold gifts," said Wilson.

A number of the churches in the district are scheduling special Soil Stewardship services.

During the past week the district hosted a breakfast for ministers serving churches in the Scurry and Borden Counties. Soil Stewardship Bookmarks were also distributed to the Elementary School Students in the district.

"We hope," said Mr. Wilson, "that during Soil Stewardship Week, millions of Americans will pause for a moment to consider their responsibilities for the protection

City Has Gains In Retail Sales

Retail sales continue to increase steadily in Snyder, according to city sales tax rebates announced by Bob Bullock, state Comptroller.

The rebates for the period ending May 5 included $22,395 for Snyder, which ran the total for the year to $159,130. This represents a 22 per cent gain over the $130,140 that had been received at this time last year.

Bullock said the latest rebate check of $22,395, compared to $11,269 for the same period a year ago, may be somewhat misleading since the check this time is for a five-week period. This means that June rebate checks likely will be smaller than those of last year. However, overall increases still are substantial this year.

Other cities in Snyder's population bracket and others in the area had the following totals: Levelland, $21,543 for the May check, $119,181 for the year, $92,996 last year at this time; Sweetwater, $16,406 for May, $119,338 for the year, $92,231 last year; Pecos, $12,980 for May, $94,636 for the year, $79,757 last year; Brownfield, $10,436 for May, $102,134 for the year, $73,372 last year; Monahans, $12,980 for May, $82,665 for the year, $80,317 last year; Colorado City, $6,025 for May, $44,554 for the year, 33,536 last year; Roscoe, $1,238 for May, $6,380 for the year, $3,520 last year; Rotan, $865 for May, $12,036 for the year, $11,154 last year; Roby, none for May $2,841 for the year, $3,199 last year.

Aha! Those computers are not infallible, even if they are fed the proper information. What we feared to be a serious problem turned out to be a piece of encouraging news here at the newspaper office the other day. A story came in on the Associated Press wire that obviously was garbled—that is it was full of errors that were quite apparent at first glance.

Sure enough, within a few minutes good old AP sent a correction. But, lo and behold, the correctiion did not correct anything at all. In fact, it was identical to the original transmission. And the trouble was that it contained something the computers couldn't handle.

It was a story about a vital statistics official who told about a case in which his secretary came to him one day and said she had a problem. She couldn't fit a name on a computer card. Her boss of course, wanted to know what the name was.

This is what it was: Bobby John Wayne Ellis Jefferson Davis Crawford Rebron Daniel Max. But that was only the first name. The last name was Truewilllaughinglifebuckyboomermanifestdestiny.

Well, the computer in the statiscal office was as competent as those in the AP's Dallas office. The piece on the wire looked like something a pre-kindergartener would turn out while practicing his ABCs. A call to Dallas AP disclosed that they were unable to correct it because their computer would not accept it.

Although it is encouraging to know that there is something that may be exchanged between two ordinary human beings over the telephone that can cause a computer to give up, perhaps those computers are more human than we thought, after all. You couldn't very well blame a thinking "person" for kicking out a name like that.

But, we almost forgot. There was a middle name. It was George James. It came through without a bobble.

TO FIGHT OR BUS? THAT'S BIG QUESTION

Central School Problem Is Closing In

(A Snyder Daily News Analysis)

By WACIL McNAIR
SDN Editor

Almost two months have passed since the Snyder Independent School District was officially put on notice that a racial imbalance at Central Elementary School must be eliminated by the end of the first week of the fall term this year.

Over the past seven or eight weeks, the board of trustees has discussed the situation several times and speculated on the desirability of several possible alternatives. During the same period, board members and the administration have received considerable advice and suggestions of possible solutions, but no single proposal with any apparent overwhelming support.

Here is the situation:

Central Elementary school's enrollment now is composed of well over 66 per cent minority pupils—blacks and Mexican Americans. This is a violation of a federal court order.

The school has several alternatives. It may fight the case in court, hoping for a different verdict. It may do nothing, which, the Texas Education Agency has advised would mean loss of accreditation and federal funds and possibly would still lead to a court fight. It may redistrict its elementary zones to reduce that ethnic ratio at Central. It may transfer specific groups of students among the various elementary school zones to accomplish the prescribed ethnic balance.

There has been some sentiment expressed on the board and among patrons in favor of fighting it out in court. This could be costly in time and interruptions as well as in money. Some observers have expressed belief that the district might have a chance to win its case. But, of course, appeals could be expected, and the matter could hang in limbo for a period of years. This might be an effective delaying action for the school district, provided of course, some federal judge does not decree compliance until the appeals are pursued.

Also, expenditure of thousands of dollars on a court case that might be futile could not be calculated to promote goodwill among faculty and staff who at this time are seeking a cost-of-living salary increase, as well as some taxpayers.

Re-alignment of the elementary school zones is an alternative that got early consideration, but was quickly pushed aside because Central is the most compact elementary zone in the system, and an alteration of the boundaries sufficient to solve this particular problem would create a number of additional problems.

Some consideration has been given to "pairing" elementary schools. This plan would intermingle pupils at the various grade levels among two elementary zones. For example, the first and second graders in the two zones might go to one school, the third and fourth of the same two schools might go to the other building, etc., or various other combinations might be worked out.

Another proposal that has received considerable attention and which was recommended earlier by the administration on the basis of educational benefits, would send all sixth grades in the system to the Central building. This would mean sending the third, fourth and fifth grades from the Central zone to other schools. But it would solve another problem as well as correcting the ethnic imbalance. It would enable North and Northeast Schools to take care of all of their kindergarten pupils. At present, an overflow of kindergartners from North are bused to West Elementary and an overflow of kindergartners at Northeast are bused to Central.

In its recommendation of this combined sixth grade plan, the administration has asserted that the sixth grade program may be greatly enhanced with "instructional arrangements heretofore not operable due to the small number of children to work with at the individual elementary schools." They say that the reading level among 300 students in the sixth grade may vary anywhere from the third to the ninth grades.

"One viable solution for dealing with this problem is to bring together children who have similar learning achievement levels, and providing instruction at this group's level. A sixth grade concentration of students will enable the Snyder Public Schools to achieve this objective which has eluded us, in part, because of the small individual school enrollments," said Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, assistant superintendent-instruction.

"Relative to this issue, it is very likely that Snyder sixth grade teachers have greater strengths in certain learning areas or subject fields than they do in others. The instruction program should be able to capitalize on these teacher strengths with the children receiving the greater benefits."

In fact, the "middle-school" concept adopted by a number of schools already has sixth graders grouped in the same building, most of them with the seventh and eighth grades. In response to this trend, the 65th Texas Legislature has passed legislation permitting teachers with secondary certificates (grades 7-12) an endorsement certifying them to teach at the sixth grade level.

The combined sixth grade proposal drew considerable opposition when it was discussed earlier this year and in February, the board declined to adopt it. Following the TEA notice, which was received in March, the administration and board began to get some requests to do something to eliminate the busing of kindergarten pupils from north and Northeast.

Busing inevitably was advanced as an issue in the Central case. However, busing per se has never caused a problem here. Snyder Public Schools now are busing around 1,200 pupils (about a third of the total enrollment) every school day. This includes some 30 to 35 kindergartners who are bused from their own elementary zones to another because their own schools do not have classroom space for them.

A person living in a major metroplex might look at a map and, after noting that Snyder covers a total area of 6.83 square miles ask, "What is the problem?"

So far as its lawful obligations are concerned, the local school district could combine, or pair some local districts without providing any bus service, since it is not required by law to provide transportation for any pupil living within two miles of the school he or she attends. However, scores of pupils in the city are permitted to ride buses, especially to the junior and senior high schools, although few of them live more than two miles from the campuses.

So, it boils down to why the busing takes place, and whom it involves. There is a definite tendency to resist any busing that might evolve from a decree by a federal agency or by a court.

So far, discussions among board members at their meetings show irritation at being forced to cope with a problem they regard has having been created by a federal judge. The school district did not establish its elementary zones in a manner to create a racial imbalance, they reason. All of the elementary zones were in compliance when these zones were laid out, and the imbalance has resulted from a movement of patrons over which the board has no control or influence. Their objective, they maintain, is for elementary school pupils to attend the school closest to their homes.

Then the question naturally rises, "What about the kindergartners now being bused from North and Northeast?"

So, it appears that there is no 100 per cent amicable solution available, and it will be up to the board members to make a decision, one that they can hope will be in the best interest of the pupils.

They are going to talk about it again over lunch Tuesday, and they have indicated that the first decision they have in mind is whether to fight or bus. Time is growing short and to say that they have an unenviable task would be a gross understatement.

Theft Case, Four Mishaps Are Reported

City police officers are probing the reported theft of a money bag containing approximately $60 in coins.

Complainant L.T. Hood told police the money bag had been taken from his 3708 Ave. U home sometime within the past week. Officers reported there was no evidence of forced entry to the house.

Police also investigated four minor traffic accidents Friday.

The first mishap occurred in the 1100 block of 25th St. Friday at 12:22 p.m. Involved in the mishap were a 1972 Chevrolet driven by Charles McElrath and a 1972 Oldsmobile driven by Jane Findley of Colorado City.

A 1973 Chevrolet driven by James Rolen Cantrell was in collision with a 1973 Oldsmobile driven by Cheryl Abbanato Jackson Friday at 12:48 p.m. The mishap occurred in the 3200 block of Ave. B. Only minor damages were reported to the two cars.

The 500 block of the East Highway was the scene of a two-car collision Friday at 5:12 p.m. A 1967 Ford driven by William Floyd Long was in collision with a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Richard Floyd Morgan.

Friday's final mishap occured in the 1900 block of Colemam St. at 11:40 p.m. A 1976 Chevrolet pickup driven by Berry Chaney collided with a 1971 Chevrolet driven by Rose Wood.

No damages were reported to the Chaney vehicle and only minor damages were reported to the vehicle driven by Ms. Wood.

The district provided local churches with a reference booklet and bulletin inserts designed for this year's observance. The material was prepared by the Soil Stewardship Advisory Committee of the National Association of Conservation Districts. The advisory committee is composed of churchmen of various faiths.

This is the 23rd consecutive year that the National Association of Conservation Districts, along with almost 3,000 local Districts throughout the nation, has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week. The custom of setting aside special "Rogation Days" for this purpose began more than 1,500 years ago in France, when French peasants prayed for help after crop failures had brought widespread hunger.

Probation Of Pair Revoked

A Snyder couple was sentenced to serve penitentiary terms after their probations were revoked Friday in 132nd District Court.

Donald Earl Thornton, 24, and his wife Julia Elizabeth Thornton, 17, were each sentenced to serve three years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The couple had been placed on probation March 21 after entering guilty pleas to charges of felony possession of majijuana. Their probations were revoked as a result of an April 23 arrest on charges of alleged misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

In court action Thursday, three guilty pleas were entered.

Vicki Phariss, 19, pleaded guilty to one charge of forgery by passing. Two other forgery by passing charges against Mrs. Phariss are pending.

She received a four-year probated prison term and was ordered to make restitution of $575. She is accused of passing three forged checks at local supermarkets.

A 25-year-old man, Kenneth Ray Mayberry, pleaded guilty to a charge of felony theft. He was given a three-year probated prison term and ordered to made restitution.

Mayberry is accused of taking several hundreds of dollars worth of items in an alleged check writing scheme. He had been indicted on the theft charge March 28.

Dessie Bennett, 18, received a probated three-year prison term in the Texas Department of Corrections after entering a guilty plea to a forgery by passing charge and was ordered to make restitution.

Ms. Bennett was indicted on the forgery charge May 2. The indictment alleges that she passed a $45 check reportedly drawn on a local couple's account at the Snyder bank.

In other action, the court appointed an attorney to represent Anthony Harold Smith, 17.

Smith is charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and with burglary of a habitation. He is alleged to have burglarized the Coleman St. apartment of Susan Everton last week and taking her 1965 Rambler. He was apprehended in Abilene.

native of Roaring Springs. She comes from a family of 14 children.

"We have never regretted our decision to become foster parents," Mrs. Ballard said. Noting that children are often placed with them after only a brief notice, Mrs. Ballard added, "I'm expecting a phone call any time now telling us that another child is on the way."

On a bed in another room a 3-year-old boy was sleeping peacefully, a babysitting chore Mrs. Ballard was performing for a neighbor.

The children who have been placed in the care of the Ballards have ranged in age from three to 15. "So far we've gotten along with all the kids very well," Ballard said.

Both noted, however, that teenagers are the most difficult to work with. By the time a child gets up in his teens, the couple said, he has a mind of his own and usually has that mind made up.

"We just make a temporary home for them here, "Mrs. Ballard said. "And most of the children feel right at home after they have been here a couple of hours."

The Ballards said they never question the children about their lives or about the families they come from. "You would just make them feel uncomfortable if you asked them a lot of questions, "Mrs. Ballard said.

"Some of those children have a life to conquer. You can't imagine what some of them have been through, so we don't ask any questions, "she added.

"It's a two-way learning process. Each child is different," Mrs. Ballard said. "They have to get used to us and we have to get used to them."

The children who are placed with the Ballards will sometimes be re-located with their natural parents, or, when that is not feasible, they may be adopted by foster parents. The Ballards said they provide temporary housing for the children until a decision can be reached by the children's parents or the child welfare department concerning the children's future.

The temporary placement of children in foster homes is the current trend, the Ballards said, because institutionalization in an orphanage has its drawbacks. "There is no home life at an orphanage," they said.

Caring for children can sometimes be an emotionally draining experience for any parent. "Caring for children will either kill you or or keep you young, "Mrs. Ballard philosophized.

The Ballards, however, seem to enjoy their labor of love. "Little children nened a place to live," Mrs. Ballard said. "It takes children to make a home."

DISEASES OF EVERGREEN

Many cedars, junipers and Arizona cypress trees have been showing a good bit of dead twigs, limbs and in some cases complete plants appear to be dead. This has been diagnosed as twig blight and is more prevalent in times of wet, cool weather.

If you have problems with this disease or suspect this to be the cause of dead areas you may want to consider control measures.

Sprays containing zineb, maneb or bordeaux mixture will control twig blights. Plants should be sprayed at ten day intervals for three sprayings during the spring and two times during September.

PEACH & APRICOT SHED:

We have had some peach and apricot trees that have shed an excessive amount of fruit this year. This is more than a normal shed.

This may be attributed to several different conditions and not specifically by any one problem.

There appears to be possibly some disease organism. This above normal rainfall does have effect on prevalence and seriousness of disease. Also the lack of available plant nutrients adds to any problems of plant growth.

A program of regular spraying with a combination of insecticide (such as malathion for insect control) and fungicide (such as Captan, for general purpose disease control) will help. If you have poor leaf color or loss of leaves an application of fertilizer would be a sound practice.

GENERAL COMMENTS ON INSECTS:

With the amount of rain we have had, we are sure to get a lot of vegetation in out areas. This vegetation will be ideal host plants for the buildup of many damaging insects such as thrip, aphid and others. As this vegetation dries up these pests will move to greener areas such as flower beds, gardens and trees. Homeowners will need to be alert to insect buildups on garden and flower plants.

At this time the pecan nut casebearer has not made his move. It appears that spray applications for the pecan nut casebearer will need to be made about May 25 to June 1. As soon as this date is determined, we will give publicity to it.

Trucker Wives Lose In Court

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)- A federal judge has refused to help about 200 Bible-quoting truckers' wives who wanted to keep their husbands from traveling with women drivers.

The women, calling themselves "Truckers Families United Unlimited, Inc.," had asked the judge to prohibit Lee Way Motor Freight Co. from disciplining men who refuse to ride with woman driver.

The Oklahoma City-based firm, which employs an estimated 3,000 drivers, has a policy that drivers must ride with whomever the firm assigns.

The firm uses sleeper trucks, vehicles with a sleeping compartment behind the cab, on all long-distance runs, and drivers work eight-hour shifts, with one sleeping while the other drives.

The wives had turned to scripture to support their case before U.S. district Court Judge Ralph Thompson. In a legal brief filed before Friday's hearing, the group's quotations included:

"Therefore, brethren, stand fast and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or our epistle." Second Thessalonians 2:15.

The suit was prompted by the hiring April 21 of Edna Ruth Lievsay, a divorcee with four children who is engaged to marry a Lee Way driver, Sonny Strange.

The wives argued that having a woman co-driver put too much temptation before their husbands. They also argued that Lee Way had hired Mrs. Lievsay solely because she was a woman and had advanced her above veteran male drivers.

"To force the men to so team would likely cause great stress and-or guilt personally, plus destroy home and family," the women argued in their brief.

They contended the drivers were forced to violate freedom of conscience and "to wholly disregard the moral, religious and personal beliefs they have."

But Thompson ruled that the group had failed to state a valid complaint.

Have a pleasant summer!

Better yet, capture your summer activities in pictures—and process your film and print your photographs in a course to be offered at Western Texas College this summer.

Take your choice! Introduction to Photography, listed as Journalism 130, will be offered two times for your convenience. One class will meet either from 1-2:20 p.m. daily during the first six weeks session or on an individualized study basis for working people unable to attend days. The other class will meet from 6-10 p.m. on Thursday only during the nine weeks night session, convenient to both working people and students home for the summer from other colleges, as well as anyone interested in photography!

Both classes will meet in SC-105 and a $5 lab fee is charged for use of college darkroom facilities and chemicals. Cameras and accessory equipment will be provided for those who need them during the courses.

An individualized laboratory schedule will be arranged with each person enrolling, allowing for possible day, evening and weekend work.

Sample topics to be covered include cameras and lenses, films, exposure, processing film, printing and finishing, filters, lighting and flash, and composition.

Some study of scenery, architecture, still life, people, action, and emotion in photographs will be covered.

Students will supply film and print paper, but all photos made will belong to them.

Each class carries three semester hours of credit and is transferable to four-year schools.

Registration for day classes is 9-12 and 1-4 Wednesday, May 25. Registration for night classes is 6:30-8:30 p.m. May 25. Classes begin May 26.

For more information, contact Mike McBride, associate professor, at 573-8511, ext. 273.

Scuba Course Opens Monday

A new Scuba diving course for beginners is to begin Monday night at Western Texas College, and everyone interested in the course is asked to be at the swimming pool by 6 p.m. to complete registration.

Lee Burke and Jerry Bell of Arlington will be instructors for the course. Classes are to meet from 6-10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and students need to bring their personal equipment (mask, snorkel and fins) to the first meeting. Other equipment will be furnished.

Fees will be $75 per person, and those who successfully complete the course may receive certification by the Professional Association of Diving Instructors (PADI).

Persons wishing further information about the course may contact Burke at the college.

Cotton Prices Are Depressed

NEW YORK (AP)- Favorable growing weather depressed prices of cotton futures this past week in slightly improved turnover, the New York Cotton Exchange reported Friday.

The 1977 Scurry County Farm Bureau Queen's Contest, Talent Find Contest and annual barbecue will be held at 7 p.m. July 7 at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Deadline for entries in the queen's contest will be June 15. The Talent Find Contest entries must be in by June 30.

To be eligible for the queen's contest, participants must be 16-22 years old by Sept. 1 this year, must be single (never married), and be the daughter or sister of a Scurry County Farm Bureau member.

Three to five out-of-county judges will judge the contest. Entry blanks are provided at the county Farm Bureau office, located at 1903, Snyder Shopping Center. In charge of this year's contest is Mrs. C.D. Gray Jr. and Mrs. Morris Light of Snyder.

Many "Psyche Up" To Meet Daily Pressures

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Evel Knievel belts a shot of Wild Turkey and prays before he thunders his cycle up and hopefully over. Members of the Cleveland Quartet do transcendental meditation before they address Beethoven, and a Washington lobbyist wanders around Capitol Hill talking to himself before he talks to the Congressmen he wants to sway.

They are all, in their own way, "psyching up."

"Psyching up." It's a funny phrase that has become part of our language. Sample usage from the blue jean set: "Man, I gotta psyche myself out of that." From the analyst's couch: "I don't know how to psyche myself out of that." And from Madison Avenue: "Now let's not get ourselves too psyched out."

Psyched, according to Webster's Third, is slang for psychoanalyze.

But what it is really is what do you do before you ask the boss for a riase, get up to bat for the church team, prepare to tell your spouse that the vacation is off.

Some of us are pretty obvious - like The Bird, Mark Fydrich, who speaks to the ball before he pitches. On the other hand, there's Henry Mancini. He has a marguerita, maybe a Scotch, a good meal and then conducts.

CBS Correspondent Leslie Stahl psyches herself down before she goes on national television:

"I put a wall around myself. Everything is in a state of pandemonium between 6 and 6:30." Right before she goes on, she takes deep breaths to calm down.

"Television may be different from anything else. You can't be too hot. You have to look calm."

Ed McMahon, Johnny Carson's sidekick on The Tonight Show, says his psyching up is a pattern thing.

"I go to makeup at 4:30, change my clothes, gargle, make sure my handkerchief is straight and then I usually go in and kibbitz with John for a few minutes.

"We usually leave each other laughing."

When he gets on stage, "I hear Doc and that band playing, and being an old Marine, I'm standing at attention in my mind."

In addition to the Pavlovian technique, McMahon says he always keys in on somebody on the show.

"I'll say to myself, 'I'm glad so and so is on the show. Someone I know will be good.' It might be Beverly Sills or Charlie Callas or Bob Hope, but I'll key in on somebody."

Herbet R. Sand, group president of Ideal Toy Corp., says he has a constant inner drive threatened by deep worries over an uncertain future.

"Sometimes it's almost impossible to get out of bed in the morning. But you have to pull yourself up by the bootstraps, force yourself, start selling your own brain, think only positively, sell yourself as if you were a customer," says Sand. "It's almost metaphysical and I've been doing it for more than 30 years. That becomes your own mantra - blocking out all other thoughts so you can focus only on the job.

Chick Vennera, 25-year-old star of the Broadway musical "Jockeys," goes through elaborate preparations for his demanding role that includes martial arts, dancing and simulating a rough ride.

"I pump myself up physically and then clear my head," says Vennera. He does calisthenics, 30 to 40 pushups, 100 situps and then sits quietly alone before he goes on.

"It's like psyching yourself up for a sporting event."

After each performance, he has to psyche down.

"I can't sleep for two or three hours afterwards. It's like the first time I've won. It's almost a victory celebration. I want to dance with my wife."

The Carrillo Brothers, a high wire act with Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, says they draw energy from thought before they go on.

"What is required is total concentration. It's thinking intensely about the rigging, the people around and each moment as it's happening. I must always be there," says Daniel Acosta, one of the two performers who do jumping jacks on the high wire.

The psychiatric community says the problem for most professionals is in psyching down, in using the extra adrenalin in positive ways.

"I have never had a person ask me how to get psyched up," says Dr. Glenn Swogger, a psychiatrist at the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan. "The problem is how do you deal with inner stress so you don't jam the mechanism."

Dr. Tobias Brocher, head of the Center for Applied Behavioral Sciences at the Menninger Foundation, says people sometimes worry too much about life's stresses.

"Stress is mispercieved as bad or killing. It's a question of the amount and where stress becomes distress."

In 1961, Canada won the world curling title at Edinburgh, Scotland, after matches against Scottish and U.S. teams.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you do something nice for another today, keep as low a profile as possible. The humbler you are, the greater your recognition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend could single you out as the sole person in whom to confide a secret. You will keep it to yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Early in the day you'll be full of vim and vigor. You'll prefer quietly sharing the evening with pals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Timing is all-important today if you have a career matter to discuss. Let things develop at the proper pace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could have an experience today which, though not significant in itself, will show you how to accomplish something else you want to do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The last word should be yours in any financial decision confronting you and your mate today. This doesn't mean you should be dictatorial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your word is your bond today. Others know they can bank on what you pledge.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you'll focus on the major things today, you won't forget the details. Somehow, you'll squeeze them in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19.) In dealing with youngsters today, use as few words as possible. You'll find your instructions have a way of getting through to them.

AQUARIUS(Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If there's a not-too-distant relative you haven't found time to visit lately, drop in on her. You'll probably have an enjoyable time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be reluctant to make a business call until after the weekend. However, if it's important, you'd be wise not to wait.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your primary concern will be to enjoy yourself today. It's possible that something could occur later to bring you a few extra bucks.

(Are you a Taurus? Bernice Osol has written a special Astro-Graph Letter for you. For your copy send 50 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to ask for Taurus Volume 7.)

Your Birthday

May 15, 1977

The time could be ripe this year to initiate an enterprise you've had on the back burner. When conditions present themselves, don't drag your feet.

Your Birthday

May 16, 1977

Don't make changes this year just for change's sake. The road you're on should prove to be your best route. For more information about yourself, send for Taurus' Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Permitting others to make decisions for you could be very unwise today. They make commitments you'd have trouble living up to.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's not good to take on additional responsibilities or to start new projects, especially if you have unfinished matters on hand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A well-meaning friend may tip you off to a hot investment or a purchase that could save you money. Investigate first. Either could fizzle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're on a more precarious perch than you may realize where your image is concerned today. Keep on the straight and narrow path.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure any plans that you want to involve others in are sound. They will be challenged. You'd better have the answers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a possibility you might get enmeshed in something today that's out of your field. It could cost you a pretty penny.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Dissension could erupt today over something rather silly if you're involved with people whose aims are not in harmony with yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unforeseen obstacles may cause you problems in your work routine today. Don't try outlandish ways to circumvent them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a social situation where expenses should be shared, one party may excuse himself just before the check arrives. Take care how you handle it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate may be a little hard to get along with today, wearing your patience thin. If you lose control you might do something erratic.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If a coworker drags his feet today, reach him through encouragement. Putting him down will only make things worse.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful in money matters today. You could lose funds suddenly through a joint venture or your own poor management.

RCA ColorTrak System
RCA's most automatic TV ever

Automatic contrast/color "tracking" maintains a lifelike color balance at all times. A special ColorTrak circuit ties brightness, contrast and color together so that all three are balanced simultaneously.

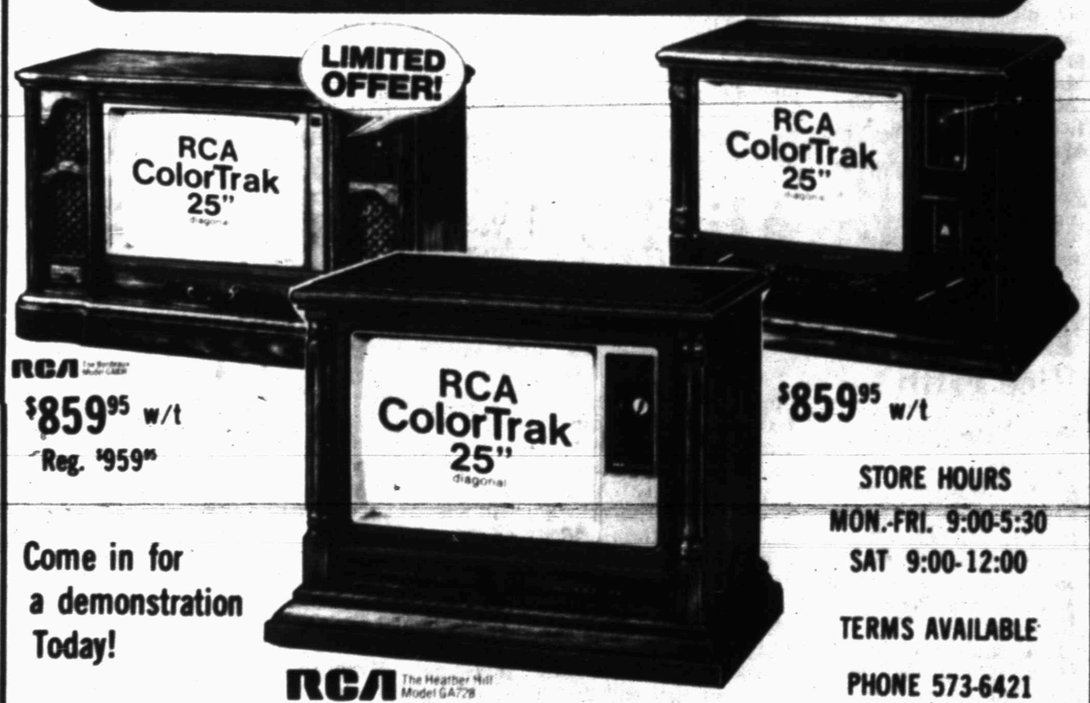

Automatic color control holds flesh tones to the settings you select. After you set color and tint, switch on the automatic color control and the ColorTrak system then maintains color fidelity—electronically.

Automatic room light picture control senses changes in prevailing room light to keep pictures vivid. Picture brightness automatically increases when room becomes brighter, decreases as room grows darker.

RCA Super AccuFilter picture tube has color pigments added to the red and blue phosphors. These pigments act as filters to absorb room light. This filtering improves contrast so that colors appear sharper.

Powerful high-performance ColorTrak chassis is 100% solid state—no tubes to burn out. All functions are performed by reliable solid state circuitry designed to last longer for fewer chassis repairs.

Ali To Defend Title Monday

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—Muhammad Ali, not a retiring kind of guy at least this year, will defend the heavyweight championship Monday night against Alfredo Evangeista, a Spanish citizen called "the Bull" by Ali, other things by other people.

Evangelista is a 22-year-old native of Uruguay who has a 13-1-1 record with 11 knockouts, lost his last fight on an eightround decision to Lorenzo Zanon in Evanglista's hometown of Bilboa and is ranked 10th by the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association.

"When we purchased the rights we knew what we were buying," said Jim Spence, vice president in charges of sports programming for ABC which will televise the scheduled 15-rounder from the Capital Centre.

"We were buying a heavyweight championship fight and Ali."

Spence said ABC also investigated Evangelista's ranking and could find no wrong-doing. He noted that the WBA dropped Evangelista from No. 8 to No. 10 after the loss.

"Part of the motivation was defensive," Spence added in noting why ABC took the fight.

"At least one other network offered $2.9 million directly to Ali." Ali's purse will be $2.7 million for the bout, sponsored by Don King.

Striped bass returned to the front in fishing reports from Lake E.V. Spence during the past week, but there were several good catches of channel catfish, along with a sprinkling of white bass.

Portland Blazers: Turn Around Year

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The Portland Trail Blazers, who before this year had never had a winning season, have wiped out the Los Angeles Lakers in four straight games to advance to the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The young Blazers, whose starters average just 2.2 years of NBA experience, delivered the knockout blow to the Lakers Friday night, 105-101.

They'll play the winner of the Philadelphia-Houston series for the NBA title.

"I've said it time and time again," Portland's jubilant Coach Jack Ramsay said. "I'm extremely proud of this team. It's a rare group of individuals."

Only five of the 12 players on the Portland roster were with the team last season, and it was two of the newcomers, Maurice Lucas and Johnny Davis, who shared the spotlight Friday.

Lucas, who came from Louisville of the defunct American Basketball Association, scored 18 of his team-high 26 points in the second half, to deflate a Los Angeles rally that had given the luckless Lakers a six-point lead late in the third period.

But the Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had a game-high 30 points and 17 rebounds, drew his fifth personal foul with 3:09 remaining in the third quarter. Although the 7-foot-2 center played the entire fourth period and didn't foul out of the game, his defense was restrained the rest of the way.

Davis, a 23-year-old rookie from Dayton University, buried the Lakers for good with 2½ minutes left in the game when he stole the ball from Abdul-abbar and broke free for a layup to give Portland a 103-93 bulge. Los Angeles never got any closer than the final margin.

For a time Friday night, it looked as if the Lakers finally were going to win one and send the series back to Los Angeles.

Sideline Glances

By BILL McCLELLAN

Ho hum. As summer draws nearer, Western Texas College golf is almost at the eighteenth green, with the National Tournament par for the course...as usual.

From Coach Bob O'Day's corner, one-half dozen years old, comes a NJCAA national record this year. His teams, an individual or individuals from WTC, have qualified for the national tourney six straight years in a row.

Six years old, and five former trips to the National Tournament. This year's sixth consecutive outing can only be considered par...but on a long, rugged course that includes seven dual matches, nine conference tournaments and a regional clash among others, for 1976-77. Few teams make par on the course. No other NJCAA team has done it six times in a row. O'Day himself had doubts about whether his lastest bunch could handle the job.

"We had quite a challenge since we had only one starter back from last year's team," he relates. "It was supposed to be a rebuilding year for us."

With no Arnold Palmer or Nicklaus headlining the team, WTC had to rely on other attributes. "WTC might not have had the most talent in the conference or region, but a lot of hard work on the practice tee and golf course, players with good character and a lot of pride in their school and Snyder made the difference." the coach contends. "We had nine players on the squad; five freshmen and four sophomores. All nine players contributed to this year's efforts. All of the sophomores will receive college scholarships."

While O'Day groups them together, several individuals merit some forefront mention. Dave Foster, for example, made third on the All-Region Golf Team, averaging a stroke behind number one Dave Daves of McClennan County College. Second was David Sann, also of McClennan.

Donnie Loerwald, sophomore, took top honors on the All-Western Conference team earlier in the year, and was medalist at the ninth and final conference tournament.

Chris Brown, freshman, made ninth spot on the All-Conference Team, and missed the All-Region Team by two strokes.

Freshman Terry Kendrick and sophomore Scott Robbins missed the All-Region team by one stroke, and freshman Miller Scott missed making the All-Conference squad by a single shot.

A check back over the past six years to see how WTC achieved the national record reveals Max Tenorio qualified for the National Tournament as a freshman and sophomore (1971-73); sophomore Danny Walter, 1973-74 Region medalist, qualified; sophomore Kyle Howard and sophomore Mark Hargrove qualified in 1974-75; the team of 1975-76, winning both conference and regional, placed 5th out of 44 after qualifying; the present team (1976-77) finished second at the Regional Tournament to earn the trip.

"We are looking forward to the National Tournament," understates coach O'Day. The 72-hole meet, scheduled for June 7-10, will be held at Mirrors Lake Country Club, 15 miles from Fort Myers, Fla.

Bob Gets Bill's Job

SEATTLE (AP)- Bob Hopkins says he's not elated about replacing Bill Russell as head coach of the Seattle Super Sonics of the National Basketball Association.

He said he could have handled the job "six or eight years ago."

The 42-year-old Hopkins Friday was given a one-year contract by Sonics' president and principal owner Sam Schulman, who last week reached agreement with Russell to buy out the fifth and final year of Russell's $250,000 annual contract as the club's coach and general manager.

Schulman also announced the appointment of Lenny Wilkens, a former Sonic player and coach, to the newly created position of director of player personnel, and Les Habegger, former head basketball coach and athletic director at Seattle Pacific College, as Hopkins' assistant.

Stars See Mars In Performance

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)- Edwin Moses, Donald Quarrie and Mike Boit, all track perfectionists, could see flaws in their fastest 1977 world times.

"It was not that good a race. I'm still making mistakes. It's in my hurdling techniques," said Moses, moments after he had won the 400-meter hurdles in 48.64 seconds for the men's only double in the Jamaica Invitational Track Field meet Friday night.

"I could have gone faster," said Quarrie of his 20.30 in the 200 meters. "I slowed up in the last 10 yards. It almost cost me the race. I've got to start running right through the finish line again."

"I think I could have pushed harder than that," Boit said following a 1:44.7 effort in the 800 meters. "I think if Alberto Juantorena had been here, it would have been much tougher."

An overflow crowd of 35,000 at National Stadium roared as American Steve Williams mastered a select 100 field. Steve Scott of the United States stunned world 1,500-meter record holder Filbert Bayi of Tanzania and Great Britain's Andrea Lynch swept the women's sprints.

Williams' performance of 10.26 whipped Olympic gold medalist Hasely Crawford, silver medalist Quarrie, Steve Riddick, Houston McTear and Silvio Leonard.

In 1927 Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees drove in 339 runs between them.

SPORTS FANS

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW...

Brought to you by Danny Lunsford

One of the least-known, and yet one of the most amazing records in big league baseball history is the one for a player handling the most chances in a row without making an error. The record is held by Stuffy McInnis who was once an American League first baseman. In 1921 and 1922, McInnis handled 1,700 consecutive chances without making an error! Just imagine handling 1,700 throws, pop-ups and grounders in a row without making an error. No one has ever come close to that record.

Oddly enough, the man who started one of the biggest sports ideas ever conceived, is hardly remembered today. Few people recognize the name Carl Stotz of Williamsport, Pa.—yet he is the man who thought of, and founded Little League baseball. Stotz started Little League baseball in 1939.

Here's quite a baseball oddity. There was once a pitcher who pitched only one complete big league game in his life—but that one game was, amazingly enough, a no-hitter! His name was Bobo Holloman. Despite pitching a no-hitter in the American League in 1953, Holloman was never able to pitch another complete game in the majors before that or after that!

I bet you didn't know... that that favorite grad of yours would like a 3 piece suit from the Haberdashery... Come in early for best selection.

Steel Pricing Is In Spotlight Last Week

By William Glasgall
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel industry played follow-the-leader this past week, with some producers rolling back increases and others falling in line after U.S. Steel Corp. boosted prices an average of 6 per cent.

Republic Steel Corp., the nation's fourth largest steel-maker, opened the round of increases May 6 with an 8.8 per cent hike on flat-rolled products and a 6.8 per cent boost on bar products. Lykes Corp. followed suit.

After a weekend to think it over, top-ranked U.S. Steel Monday undercut its competitors and announced the average 6 per cent boost. The action satisfied government price watchers, a Council on Wage and Price Stability spokesman said, "We were hoping for something in the 5 to 6 per cent range."

U.S. Steel's clout and the government's endorsement of the 6 per cent boost appeared irresistible to other makers. On Wednesday, Republic and Lykes rolled back their increases to the leader's level; and on Friday, second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. followed U.S. Steel's example.

In raising its prices, U.S. Steel echoed many other makers' cries: cost are to high and revenue too low.

And the 6 per cent increase is "considerably less" than what costs justified, U.S. Steel said. The company said direct causes of the increase included wage increases which went into effect May 1, rising costs of energy and higher prices on other goods and services.

In other business developments this past week:

-Many major commercial banks, including top-ranked Bank of America and second-ranked Citibank, raised their prime lending rate from 6¼ to 6½ per cent Friday.

Interest rates on short-term debt securities and Treasury bills and on banks' certificates of deposits-large amounts deposited for specific periods-have been rising steadily recently.

-The nation's two largest coffee roasters, top-ranked General Foods Corp. and Procter & Gamble Co., cut wholesale coffee prices by 25 cents a pound and, in General Foods' case, by 35 cents on decaffeinated brands. Procter & Gamble cited a decline in unroasted coffee prices, but neither company commented on reports from retailers that consumption is falling as prices climb.

-The majority of the membership of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was reported by the Middle East News Agency to have abandoned plans for a 5 per cent price increase July 1. Eleven OPEC members had decided on the two-stage boost last winter while Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates held to a one-step boost to the current price of $12.70 a barrel.

According to oil industry analysts, the reported OPEC decision was not unexpected and should have little effect on American oil prices.

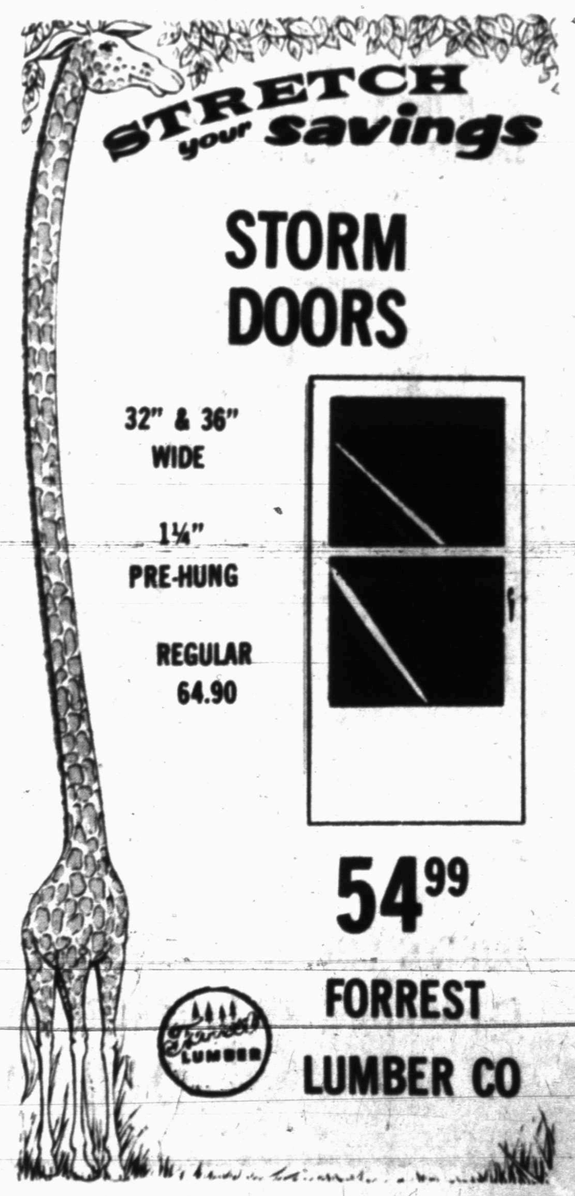

-Consolidated Rail Corp. Conrail said last winter's harsh weather tied up ships and left it with a mammoth loss. Conrail the congressionally sponsored railroad which took over for a number of bankrupt northern lines, said it lost $207.6 million on revenue of $770.4 million. The railroad said, however, it expects to hve however, it expects to have "fully recovered" within the next 12 months.

-The Securities and Exchange Commission Friday suspended trading in shares of 20th Century Fox Film Corp. for 10 days, citing "uncertainties" growing out reports of a takeover bid by Claude O'Flynn Cockerell Jr., a Nashville businessman. Cockerell, an admitted ex-convict, claims he and his associates have bought 22 per cent of Fox's 22 million shares. Fox disputes the claim, however.

'Full Effect' In Fall Collection

NEW YORK (AP)-Full, flowing, fragile designs in tender fabrics and ice cream fantasy colors were presented by Japanese designer Hanae Mori in a showing of her fall collection.

She calls her styles "the full effect," perhaps because yards of material are used for billowing skirts and bubble-like tops.

"There are times, daytime or evening, when a woman just won't wear sportswear. She tires of it," says Hanae Mori.

"Or, she wants to look particularly beautiful on a particular occasion. That's when she's ready for the full effect."

Tuesday's show opened with unstructured cashmere coats worn with knit dresses and coordinates in lavender and beige. These wrap coats sported wide, jutting cowls and were sashed at the waist.

Jackets, also big and geometrically shaped, are meant to be worn unbuttoned over layers. The Mori collection featured these outwear jackets with turtleneck tops, knit chemise vests and ultra-long scarves, wrapped several times about the neck and shoulders.

Where the Japanese designer has always excelled is with her exquisitely intricate prints. Colors splashy-like her huge roses-or subtle, like her tiny mountain flowers. They also are direct and brash, as shown by the arrow print.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When this hand appeared in the final round of the life master pairs some 10 years ago, there were quite a few seven-spade contracts arrived at on any number of bidding sequences.

Invariably, West selected the 10 of diamonds as the best lead out of several unattractive choices. Most declarers led a low spade from dummy at trick two. They could count 13 easy tricks unless trumps broke 4-0 and this play allowed finesses either way later.

The really good players went one step further. They made an extra safety play by cashing dummy's king of hearts at trick two. They also made their grand slams.

When East showed out of trumps at trick three, they would lead the nine of trumps. West would play low and the nine would hold the trick. Then they would ruff their low heart, cash dummy's ace of trumps, come to their hands with the ace of clubs, pick up West's last trump and write down the score.

Those players who forgot to cash the king of hearts (there was the very slight risk of an 8-0 heart break) just could not handle the combination of the 6-1 diamond break with the 4-0 trump break. They could ruff their heart, but they never could get back to their hand to pull the jack of trumps.

Ask the Jacobys

A Utah reader asks if we bid two diamonds after our right-hand opponent has opened one spade. We are vulnerable and hold:

♠ x ♥ K J x x ♦ A K J x x x ♣ K x

The answer is a resounding negative. We make a takeout double. Maybe our partner will respond in hearts. If he responds in clubs we will then bid diamonds.

The molded yoked bodice featured a high wedding band neckline framed in the laces; with tiny pin-tucking down the front centered with self fabric buttons. Rows of the laces formed a pinafore effect. Long Bishop sheeves were shirred to wide lace cuffs with fluted ruffling falling over the hands. The crescent shaped waistline was defined with a lace covered satin sash. The bouffant skirt swept to back fullness and was encircled in a lace edged double flounce sweeping to Chapel length. Her matching Mantilla veiling was completely edged in Brussels lace and drafted beyond the length of her train.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

In case of electrocution, rescue with caution. Shut off the electricity if you can, usually by pulling a main switch, or removing circuit breakers or fuses. Whe separating a victim fro a live wire, stand on a dry surface - do not touch a grounded conductor. Use a dry cloth, rubber gloves, or a long dry stick of wood. Wet sticks can be conductors. Never use a metal object. Give mouth to mouth resusitation promptly if victim is not breathing. A competent person should give closed-chest cardiac massage. Call a doctor immediately

Hitchhiker Additives Safe

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — An ingenious new family of hitchhiker food additives works on foods, but not on you.

They can create appetizing colors, preserve foods, promise to substitute for sugar and saccharin.

But they quit work when the foods are eaten. They aren't absorbed by the body. Hence they don't supply a single calorie and can't cause cancer or other trouble, their developers say.

These food additives are hitchhikers just going along for the ride, in a real sense.

They are chemical bonded to special polymers. Polymers are substances made up of repeated links, hundreds to millions, of the same unit, folded upon themselves. Common ones include cellulose, antibodies, plastics and proteins.

While very tiny, the special new polymers still are too large to pass through the small intestine into the bloodstream. Thus, they and their piggy-back food additives journey passively through the body.

Experiments tagging the additives with radioactive carbon atoms show they don't enter the blood or organs of test animals, says Steven Goldby, a chemist and lawyer.

He is president of Dynapol, the firm developing the additives that may replace some of those, like certain food dyes and saccharin, banned by the Food and Drug Administration on suspicion that they might cause cancer or other harm.

It is estimated that some 2,500 different food additives now are being put in Americans' food, with the average person consuming five pounds of them a year.

The challenge to chemists was to form polymers carrying effective food additives in such a way that neither would be absorbed, or the two separated, by digestive juices, bacteria, storage in heat or light or other agents, Goldby said in an interview.

Food colorings have been produced that look identical to the reds, greens, yellows and other colors now in use, or recently banned, that increase eye appeal of many foods.

The preservatives or anti-oxidants mixed into foodstuffs act as scavengers to remove chemicals known as free radicals that can form in certain foods to make them rancid, or to taste bitter, Goldby said. Once consumed, they quit and have no other effect.

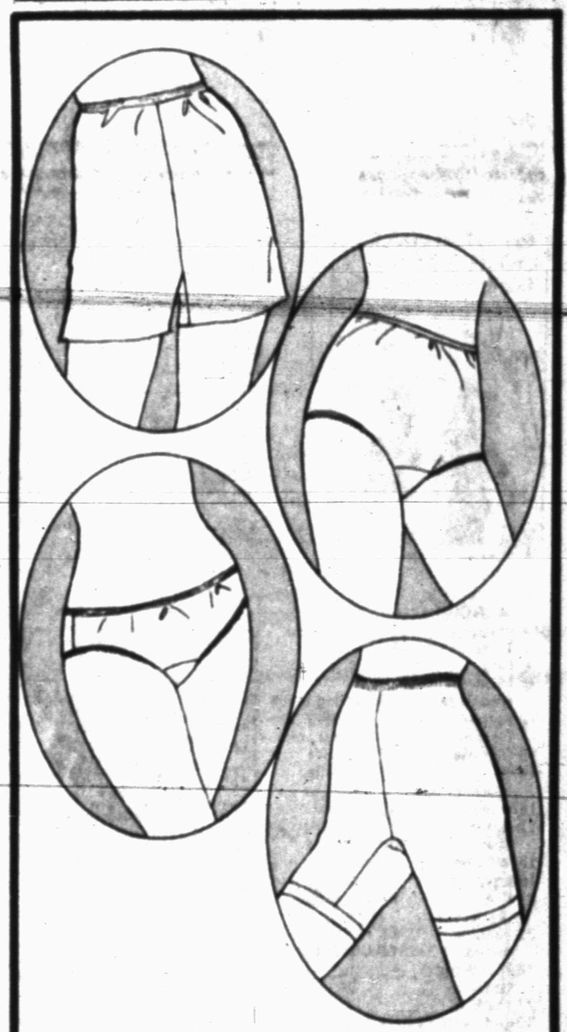

The same concept of creating polymers with influential hitchhikers also promises future application in cosmetics, such as lipsticks or eye shadows, in some kinds of drugs, and in industrial dyes and pigments, as in dying paper with no hazardous effluent or waste, or bleeding of color out of paper once it was formed, Goldby said.

Hates Sex And Has Company

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for nearly 25 years and have six fine children, but I have lived a lie all my married life. I detest sex. I'm sure if I had had sexual relations before matrimony, I never would have married.

My husband is a very fine and considerate person. He is not demanding, but submitting to sex has always been disgusting and degrading to me.

My husband has no idea how I feel because I've never refused him, and I'm a very good actress. He seems satisfied, but I just go through the motions—feeling nothing but revulsion.

Don't suggest therapy. It's too late to change, and besides I'm really quite content with things as they are.

I'm convinced there must be other women like me who were just born with a nature that is repulsed by this kind of intimacy. Am I right?

LIVING A LIE

DEAR LIVING: Yes, there are other women who share your view, but no one is born with attitudes about sex. They are developed at an early age.

Many women (and men) carry into marriage strong prejudices about sexual relations that make it seem degrading and disgusting. This seems to be the case with you.

The physical side of marriage can be immensely rewarding and beautiful, but if you're "content" missing what you're missing, and your husband is genuinely satisfied, you have no problem.

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed BEWILDERED made reference to an abnormal child (a Mongoloid).

I am a Mongoloid. So are my parents. I was descended from a whole family of Mongoloids. My husband is a Mongoloid, too, so chances are 100 per cent that our child will be born Mongoloid.

The human race has been categorized into three main racial types: Caucasoid, Negroid and Mongoloid.

On behalf of more than one-third of the world's human population, may I respectfully request that you correct those who use the word "Mongoloid" to describe an abnormal condition. The proper term is "Down's Syndrome." Thank you for your time.

PHYLLIS J. KIMURA HAYASHIBARA

DEAR PHYLLIS: Your request is noted and appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reference to a letter from DAZED, who ridiculed her friend for spending so much money on her dog's funeral. Thank you, Abby, for saying that to some people their pets are their "children."

My beautiful Chihuahua, Chichi, died last year at the age of 14, and if I had had the money to give her an elaborate funeral, I would have gladly spent it.

When Chichi got sick, the vet told me her kidneys were failing, so I offered one of mine, but he said he could get a dog's kidney if he thought it would help.

Yes, Chichi was my "child." Actually, she was more loving than a human child. She loved me and asked for nothing in return but my love.

I know many children who don't give their parents love, but expect their parents to give them everything in creation.

So, if a person really wants love, he should get a pet and love it like a child.

ANOTHER PET LOVER

DEAR PET LOVER: We are a nation of pet lovers. It will come as no surprise to you that Americans spend more money on pet food than on baby food.

Lady, 82, Is Building House

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)-The old house seemed too big and was hard to heat, so Mary Prater, 82, is building a new one for herself.

Last fall, Mrs. Prater single-handedly started construction of the home, next door to her present house which she built alone about seven years ago.

"Building is my hobby," Mrs. Prater said. She has built four or five on her own and has helped out on several others. "I can't keep away from it. I expect to build as long as I live."

She drafts her own blueprints, figures out how much material she needs, wields the hammer and saw, plumbs, wires the house and lays bricks.

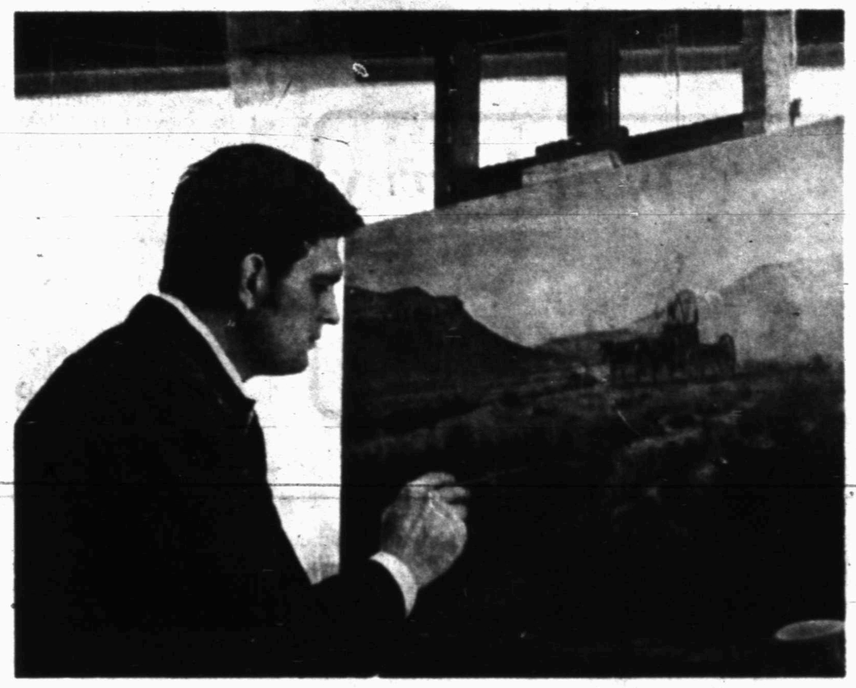

About the only things that give Mrs. Prater problems are the "things that one person can't do by herself," she says, admitting she calls for help to hoist the walls.

"I like porches and I like houses to have plenty of windows in them," she said. "Actually, I like to build houses, but I don't like to stay in them too much. I like the outside."

The center of the sun contains gas that is eight times denser than gold, says the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium.

TCA Artists' Work Is On Display At Museum

Painting and sculptur by nine Texas artists wi be shown in the Scurr County Museum in a exhibit opening today an continuing through Ma 29.

The artists are all mem bers of the Texas Cowbo Artists Association, an their show has been ar ranged as a highlight o Scurry County Museum Appreciation Month. Th public is invited to attenc a reception for the artists in the museum from 1-5 this afternoon.

Jim Thomas of Amarillo who was nominated for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce 1976 Cultural Achievement "Man of the Year", will be among the exhibitors. Thomas was also nominated for official Texas State Artist of 1975 by the Texas legislature.

Thomas is a founding member of the TCA and was its second president. He is one of the 10 TCA artists chosen to illustrate "XIT -The American Cowboy", published by Oxmoor House. His works are included in the personal collections of former president Gerald Ford and former governor John Connally as well as many other institutional and private collections.

One of the newer members of the TCA is Paul Wylie of Lubbock. He was one of five new members presented at the fourth annual TCA awards banquet last November. For Wylie, a cowboy who had decided to try his hand at oil painting only six years before, and who had stumbled onto his knack for sculpting along the way, it was quite an honor to be chosen by the TCA members as an equal.

Born in Lubbock County, Wylie began sketching as a child to pass long, lonely hours on the ranch where his family lived. His father was manager for the George Benson ranch for several years, and Wylie began drawing a cowboy's wages there when he was about 13.

He continued to work on West Texas and New Mexico ranches and with cattle feedlot operations until 1970 when he decided to see just what he could seriously do with oils. He took a beginning oil painting class taught by Don Stroud at South Plains college in Levelland, and held his first one-man show at the college in September, 1971. His reputation has grown steadily since that time.

PAUL WYLIE

Early in 1975, Wylie put in motion an idea he had for a fund-raising project for Girlstown, U.S.A. He had helped lay the foundation for the first building to be erected at Girlstown, and several of the new residents were his classmates at Whiteface High School.

He wanted to create a sculpture which could be cast and sold by Girlstown, with all net profit to benefit the institution. The new work, "Some thing to Hold On To," depicts a little girl standing on a large rock grasping the saddle horn on an old, gentle horse. It will be cast as an edition of 75 and has already attracted considerable interest.

Other TCA artists who will be exhibiting works in the museum are George Kovach, Terry Gilbreath, Bill Leftwich, Jack Stevens, Tom Warren, Justin Wells and Mark Storm.

A new slide show containing pictures of several historic buildings in the county is being prepared for showing in the museum on May 22, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said.

The Scurry County Museum is on the campus of Western Texas College and is open each week day and from 1-5 on Sunday afternoons. The museum will be closed on May 30, Memorial Day, and all offices at the college will also be closed on that day.

Gov. Wallace On TV Show Monday

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)- Gov. George C. Wallace will appear on ABC's "Good Morning America" television program Monday to discuss the attempt on his life during the 1972 presidential campaign, aides said.

Wallace was wounded in 1972 while campaigning at a Laural, Md., shopping center. The assassination attempt left him with both legs paralyzed.

Evening Course In Literature Set

English 233, Masterpieces of Literature, will be offered for evening students during the first summer session starting May 26 at Western Texas College.

Evening classes will run for nine weeks, while day classes are to be concluded in six weeks. A second session of day classes will start July 7.

Wendell Jones will be instructor for English 233, which will cover four novels by Hermann Hesse. Among the novels to be studied is "Steppenwolf," one of Hesse's most popular works. It has been made into a movie recently. Copies of all the novels included in the course are available at the WTC bookstore.

Students enrolled for English 233 will meet class from 6-10 on Wednesday nights. Credit earned in this course is fully transferrable. Persons having questions or wishing further information about the course may contact Jones.

Registration for summer classes will be held from 9-12 noon and 1-4 p.m. and from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on May 25.

Retail Coffee Prices May Not Change

NEW YORK (AP)- An announcement from Procter & Gamble Co. that it had cut prices on its Folger ground coffee by 25 cents a pound gave consumers almost as much of a perk as a cup of fresh brew in the morning.

But the Thursday decrease in wholesale prices to $4.18 isn't expected to have much effect at the retail level-many retailers price coffee at or below wholesale to attract customers, and in one New York-area chain, Folger coffee is selling for $3.79 a pound.

Robert Wunderle, an economist for the Pathmark stores, said, "We don't make any money" on the brand, but declined to say if it was being sold at a loss.

The Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble, the nation's second largest coffee roaster, last raised prices on March 30.

Hates Sex And Has Company

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for nearly 25 years and have six fine children, but I have lived a lie all my married life. I detest sex. I'm sure if I had had sexual relations before matrimony, I never would have married.

My husband is a very fine and considerate person. He is not demanding, but submitting to sex has always been disgusting and degrading to me.

My husband has no idea how I feel because I've never refused him, and I'm a very good actress. He seems satisfied, but I just go through the motions—feeling nothing but revulsion.

Don't suggest therapy. It's too late to change, and besides I'm really quite content with things as they are.

I'm convinced there must be other women like me who were just born with a nature that is repulsed by this kind of intimacy. Am I right?

LIVING A LIE

DEAR LIVING: Yes, there are other women who share your view, but no one is born with attitudes about sex. They are developed at an early age.

Many women (and men) carry into marriage strong prejudices about sexual relations that make it seem degrading and disgusting. This seems to be the case with you.

The physical side of marriage can be immensely rewarding and beautiful, but if you're "content" missing what you're missing, and your husband is genuinely satisfied, you have no problem.

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed BEWILDERED made reference to an abnormal child (a Mongoloid).

I am a Mongoloid. So are my parents. I was descended from a whole family of Mongoloids. My husband is a Mongoloid, too, so chances are 100 per cent that our child will be born Mongoloid.

The human race has been categorized into three main racial types: Caucasoid, Negroid and Mongoloid.

On behalf of more than one-third of the world's human population, may I respectfully request that you correct those who use the word "Mongoloid" to describe an abnormal condition. The proper term is "Down's Syndrome." Thank you for your time.

PHYLLIS J. KIMURA HAYASHIBARA

DEAR PHYLLIS: Your request is noted and appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reference to a letter from DAZED, who ridiculed her friend for spending so much money on her dog's funeral. Thank you, Abby, for saying that to some people their pets are their "children."

My beautiful Chihuahua, Chichi, died last year at the age of 14, and if I had had the money to give her an elaborate funeral, I would have gladly spent it.

When Chichi got sick, the vet told me her kidneys were failing, so I offered one of mine, but he said he could get a dog's kidney if he thought it would help.

Yes, Chichi was my "child." Actually, she was more loving than a human child. She loved me and asked for nothing in return but my love.

I know many children who don't give their parents love, but expect their parents to give them everything in creation.

So, if a person really wants love, he should get a pet and love it like a child.

ANOTHER PET LOVER

DEAR PET LOVER: We are a nation of pet lovers. It will come as no surprise to you that Americans spend more money on pet food than on baby food.

Lady, 82, Is Building House

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)-The old house seemed too big and was hard to heat, so Mary Prater, 82, is building a new one for herself.

Last fall, Mrs. Prater single-handedly started construction of the home, next door to her present house which she built alone about seven years ago.

"Building is my hobby," Mrs. Prater said. She has built four or five on her own and has helped out on several others. "I can't keep away from it. I expect to build as long as I live."

She drafts her own blueprints, figures out how much material she needs, wields the hammer and saw, plumbs, wires the house and lays bricks.

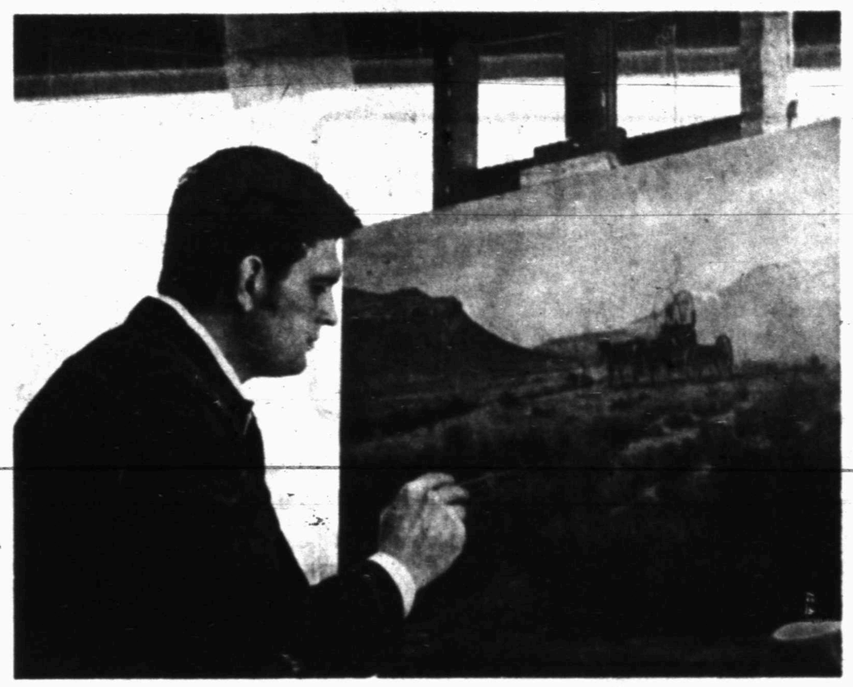

About the only things that give Mrs. Prater problems are the "things that one person can't do by herself," she says, admitting she calls for help to hoist the walls.

"I like porches and I like houses to have plenty of windows in them," she said. "Actually, I like to build houses, but I don't like to stay in them too much. I like the outside."

TCA Artists' Work Is On Display At Museum

Painting and sculptur by nine Texas artists wi be shown in the Scurr County Museum in a exhibit opening today an continuing through Ma 29.

The artists are all mem bers of the Texas Cowbo Artists Association, an their show has been ar ranged as a highlight o Scurry County Museum Appreciation Month. The public is invited to attend a reception for the artists in the museum from 1-5 this afternoon.

Jim Thomas of Amarillo who was nominated for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce 1976 Cultural Achievement "Man of the Year", will be among the exhibitors. Thomas was also nominated for official Texas State Artist of 1975 by the Texas legislature.

Thomas is a founding member of the TCA and was its second president. He is one of the 10 TCA artists chosen to illustrate "XIT -The American Cowboy", published by Oxmoor House.His works are included in the personal collections of former president Gerald Ford and former governor John Connally as well as many other institutional and private collections.

One of the newer members of the TCA is Paul Wylie of Lubbock. He was one of five new members presented at the fourth annual TCA awards banquet last November. For Wylie, a cowboy who had decided to try his hand at oil painting only six years before, and who had stumbled onto his knack for sculpting along the way, it was quite an honor to be chosen by the TCA members as an equal.

Born in Lubbock County, Wylie began sketching as a child to pass long, lonely hours on the ranch where his family lived. His father was manager for the George Benson ranch for several years, and Wylie began drawing a cowboy's wages there when he was about 13.

He continued to work on West Texas and New Mexico ranches and with cattle feedlot operations until 1970 when he decided to see just what he could seriously do with oils. He took a beginning oil painting class taught by Don Stroud at South Plains college in Levelland, and held his first one-man show at the college in September, 1971. His reputation has grown steadily since that time.

Early in 1975, Wylie put in motion an idea he had for a fund-raising project for Girlstown, U.S.A. He had helped lay the foundation for the first building to be erected at Girlstown, and several of the new residents were his classmates at Whiteface High School.

He wanted to create a sculpture which could be cast and sold by Girlstown, with all net profit to benefit the institution. The new work, "Some thing to Hold On To," depicts a little girl standing on a large rock grasping the saddle horn on an old, gentle horse. It will be cast as an edition of 75 and has already attracted considerable interest.

Other TCA artists who will be exhibiting works in the museum are George Kovach, Terry Gilbreath, Bill Leftwich, Jack Stevens, Tom Warren, Justin Wells and Mark Storm.

A new slide show containing pictures of several historic buildings in the county is being prepared for showing in the museum on May 22, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said.

The Scurry County Museum is on the campus of Western Texas College and is open each week day and from 1-5 on Sunday afternoons. The museum will be closed on May 30, Memorial Day, and all offices at the college will also be closed on that day.

Gov. Wallace On TV Show Monday

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)- Gov. George C. Wallace will appear on ABC's "Good Morning America" television program Monday to discuss the attempt on his life during the 1972 presidential campaign, aides said.

Wallace was wounded in 1972 while campaigning at a Laural, Md., shopping center. The assassination attempt left him with both legs paralyzed.

Evening Course In Literature Set

English 233, Masterpieces of Literature, will be offered for evening students during the first summer session starting May 26 at Western Texas College.

Wendell Jones will be instructor for English 233, which will cover four novels by Hermann Hesse. Among the novels to be studied is "Steppenwolf," one of Hesse's most popular works. It has been made into a movie recently. Copies of all the novels included in the course are available at the WTC bookstore.

Students enrolled for English 233 will meet class from 6-10 on Wednesday nights. Credit earned in this course is fully transferrable. Persons having questions or wishing further information about the course may contact Jones.

Retail Coffee Prices May Not Change

NEW YORK (AP)- An announcement from Procter & Gamble Co. that it had cut prices on its Folger ground coffee by 25 cents a pound gave consumers almost as much of a perk as a cup of fresh brew in the morning.

But the Thursday decrease in wholesale prices to $4.18 isn't expected to have much effect at the retail level-many retailers price coffee at or below wholesale to attract customers, and in one New York-area chain, Folger coffee is selling for $3.79 a pound.

Robert Wunderle, an economist for the Pathmark stores, said, "We don't make any money" on the brand, but declined to say if it was being sold at a loss.

The Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble, the nation's second largest coffee roaster, last raised prices on March 30.

park needs support

Snyder Jaycees are down to the "nitty-gritty" on their Kiddie Park project, and the time has come for the community to respond to their plea for financial support.

Often we hear people nowadays say that they don't have time to work on community projects as they might desire, but that they would be happy to contribute something to the cause. That is precisely what the Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes need now—people who are willing to contribute funds to pay for equipment to be installed in the Kiddie Park.

This project has met widespread approval in its concept, and the Jaycees have served notice that they are ready to work on it. They will welcome any individual, or any group who may wish to work, but above all at this stage, they need money to buy the equipment. And hundreds of people who cannot spare the time, or who may be physically unable to help with the actual work can become a vital part of the project by contributing plain old money.

The Kiddie Park, as outlined by the Jaycees, will be a tremendous addition to the facilities in Towle Memorial Park. It is the type of facility that has been needed for many years, but nobody ever got around to planning it before. The Jaycees have stepped in to handle the details, and now it is up to the citizens of the community to see that they have the resources to make it go. You may become a part of it by mailing a contribution to the Jaycees, Box 622, Snyder. And there will be no more appropriate time to do it than now.

cancer and chlorine

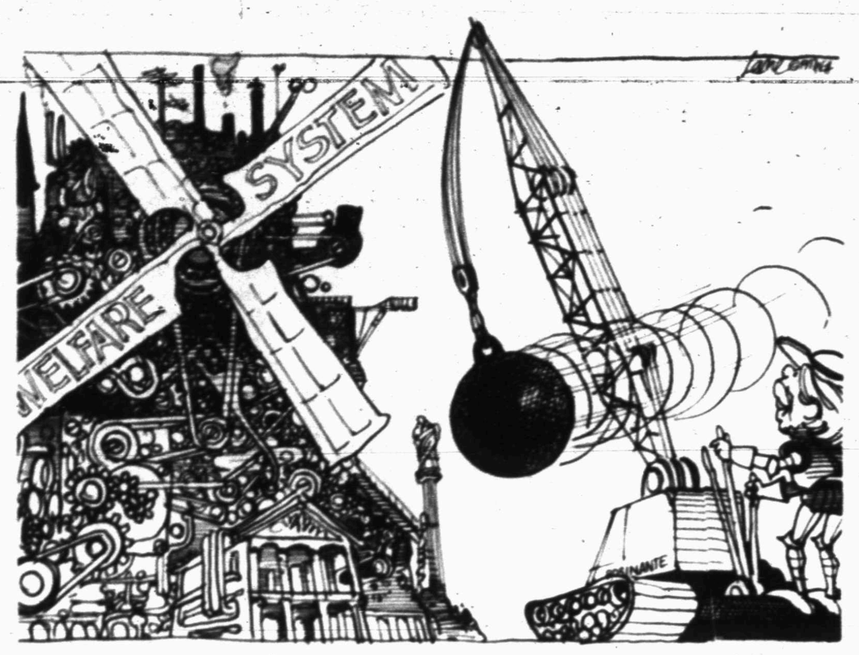

Science would seem to have reached the ultimate in its search for cancer-causing agents in the environment. The Environmental Protection Agency has now linked chlorinated drinking water with cancer deaths.

It cites a number of studies conducted in various parts of the country which have found increased rates of cancer of the bladder, intestines and urinary tract among people who drink water treated with chlorine. The incidence is greatest in those who are over the age of 60, since the latency periods of these types of cancer may be 30 years or more.

The specific culprit is chloroform, which is produced by reactions between chlorine and organic chemicals occuring naturally in water systems. Chloroform is a known carcinogen, or cancer-causing agent.

Unfortunately, not much purpose has been served by the announcement since not much can be done about the situation. Unlike saccharin, you can't ban chlorine; it is absolutely essential to the health of millions of Americans. No other chemical has proved to be as effective as chlorine for purifying water and, as numerous experts in this field have hastened to point out, without chlorination, people of all ages - would face far more immediate and certain lethal dangers than any cancer that might or might not be caused.

Until a better purifer than chlorine is found, or until better cancer cures or preventatives are developed, we are simply going to have to accept the fact that life can never be entirely risk-free.

The Impossible Dream

While campaigning for President, Jimmy Carter promised that his Administration would "reflect the makeup of the United States population."

Now he admits "difficulty" in fulfilling that promise.

As of now, blacks, Spanish and Asians hold about 13 percent of all Administration jobs.

Women--numerically entitled to 51 percent--hold only 17 percent.

President Carter says that his effort will make it easier for future Administrations to find enough capable and willing women and blacks.

If our cities are a precursor of the direction our nation is headed, then nobody belongs to a majority any more.

Chicago's founders forced thousands of Potawatomi Indians to leave their homeland on the shore of Lake Michigan and move to Kansas 150 years ago.

Now the moccasin is on the other foot.

Since the 1968 riots, whites have been fleeing Chicago. The white population of Chicago has declined 20 percent in eight years!

So today Chicago is a city where everyone belongs to a minority.

Non-Latino whites comprise 46.5 percent of the city's population.

And the white population continues to decline both because whites are moving out and because of their extremely low birthrate.

Within four years Chicago's population will be 42 percent black, 13 percent Latin (about half of which are Mexican, one-third Puerto Rican).

This latter number may already be double what the demographers calculate because of the incalculable illegal immigration.

In addition, Chicago hosts an assortment of Filipinos, Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Vietnamese, East Indians and American Indians. Though these brown and yellow citizens presently form the least percentage, their number is increasing fastest.

Unfortunately for the city, the elite of these--the professional people--are electing to live in the suburbs.

Lewis Hill, the city's planning commissioner, recognizes that the city of Chicago is likely to end up--as New York City has--overburdened with a nonproductive population of feeble and poor.

Already one in five persons in Chicago is on welfare.

Chicago is taking some steps to try to reverse the trend: city workers are required to live in the city, new townhouses are planned to encourage the affluent to remain in the city.

But however these efforts may affect the economic balance, the irrefutable, indisputable numbers--black, white, red and brown, male and female--confirm that just about everybody in the city at present belongs to a minority.

Perhaps it can be argued that the all-American always was "mostly something else."

Yet it is a paradox that the social legislation of the 1950s which many whites resisted--those equal rights sought and won by and for blacks--might now be employed to protect the rights of whites.

The feller on Deep Creek says "A tradition is what you have when you're too lazy to think up something new."

It was interesting to note that Gov. Briscoe signed the new execution law and the new "state dish" law at the same time.

Drug injection has now replaced the electric chair as the official capital punishment in Texas. At the same time, the governor signed into law a bill making chili the official state dish in Texas.

Our wife's chili could take care of both problems.

We got into a discussion Thursday with cotton breeder Bentley Baize concerning proposed OSHA standards reducing cotton dust.

Baize attended the two-days of hearings held in Lubbock Tuesday and Wednesday along with more than 1,500 interested persons from five states.

A new cotton dust proposal, industry officials believe, could have an adverse economic impact--putting people out of work and causing havoc in the market place.

It was estimated that the new standards, if enacted, could increase up to 30 cents per pound the cost of raw cotton. Naturally, it would mean less profit for the producer and higher prices for those who still prefer cotton shirts and cotton towels.

One of the biggest cost factors is an estimated $350,000 to bring up the average cotton gin to proposed OSHA standard.

As Baize pointed out, many of the government proposals--if they were not so serious--would be downright humorous. Baize pointed out that testimony was presented that indicated that OSHA must have solid evidence of health hazards to back their recommendations, but by their own admission did not have hard facts that gins, as now operating, propose any unusual health hazard.

We wish the folks in Congress, who create and set the salaries of the bureaucrats, would have enough guts to stand up to the hired hands.

Too often, it seems, the tail is wagging the dog.

Grass should be kept at a level of two inches or higher, says the Colorado State University Extension Service, which recommends that a lawn be cut fairly often so that no more than one-third of the grass blade is cut off. Otherwise, the grass blades suffer excessive shock and turn yellow.

WASHINGTON (NEA)- To nobody's surprise, the business community's increasingly strident complaints about "paternalistic government" and "bureaucratic meddling" resounded throughout the 65th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, recently held here.

What was astounding, however, was the revelation that convention participants were quite insensitive to government restrictions which cause discomfort or inconvenience to others. In fact, they exhibited considerable enthusiasm for federal intervention which benefits businessmen.

Those contradictory attitudes are particularly significant because the business community has mounted a well-orchestrated campaign to convince the public that today's elected politicians and career bureaucrats in Washington are determined to subvert the best intention of the oft-quoted "Founding Fathers."

Herbert S. Richey, newly elected chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the convention with a speech criticizing "burdensome government regulation...(and) federal red tape." He was followed a day later by Dr. Richard L. Lesher, the organization's president who also inveighed against "excessive government regulation."

A survey of conference participants, most of them businessmen or executives of local chambers of commerce around the country, found that 78 per cent predictably believed that "our government imposes too many restrictions on business."

But when the questioning got down to specifics, the business leaders displayed a marked lack of interest in anyone's freedom except their own. By a margin of almost 2-1, for instance, those surveyed rejected the notion that government regulations requiring motorcycle riders to wear protective helmets represented an infringement of individual freedom.

The country's motorcyclists have complained bitterly that such laws do indeed restrict their liberty. The unwillingness of the businessmen to apply their constitutional principles to that practice undoubtedly is related to the fact that few middle-aged executives are motorcycle riders.

Almost 80 per cent of those polled did not believe that restrictions on personal freedom such as airport weapons searches and building security systems were "overreactions to news accounts of terrorists' acts."

One strongly suspects that they are unperturbed about government intrusions such as airport searches because that form of "medding" just happens to make frequent air travelers-most of them businessmen-more comfortable about the prospect of reaching their destinations without a hijacking attempt or other untoward incident.

More that 75 per cent said required school attendance until age 16 was a worthwhile government restriction "needed to protect society as whole," almost 57 percent placed the mandatory 55-miles-per-hour speed limit in that category and a surprising 43 per cent endorsed handgun control on those grounds.

That's probably because the typical businessman places a high premium on education, seldom needs to speed on the highway and is quite willing to subordinate the constitutional language about "the right of the people to keep and bear arms" to his belief that handguns are tools of robbers, burglars and other criminals.

But fewer than 31 per cent of those polled believed minimum wage laws were "needed to protect society as a whole." Is there not a direct relationship between that view and the fact that minimum wage laws can restrict business profits?

Richey talked, in his speech, about the need to identify and support "theologians of freedom." The business community does indeed need someone to espouse a coherent philosophy on its behalf because the survey results suggest that the current rhetoric represents little more than the promotion of selfish interests in the ill-fitting disguise of "constitutional rights."

COMMUNICATION PROBLEMS

Every now and then a certain father would gather his family together and announce that they were going to come to an understanding. The family members would look nervously at each other and tremble. They knew that he meant that he was going to talk, and they had jolly well better understand, or else.

Many of us communicate the same way. We have something very important to say, and we need most desperately for someone to understand. Many marriages are this way. Many consist of two transmitters constantly broadcasting to each other, while neither has a receiver turned on. They are so busy sending messages that they have no time to receive any. This kind of marriage is very stormy and frustrating. Many other marriages consist of two receivers. Each is listening for signals that never come. This kind of relation ship is less stormy, but equally frustrating. Many other marriages consist of one transmitter and one receiver. The transmitter speaks his-her piece, the receiver listens, but that is all. This is ultimately the most frustrating of all, for it feels like real communication has been strictly one way.

Happy Marriages

The really happy marriages I have seen have had transmission, reception and understanding demonstrated by both parties. While one was transmitting, the other was receiving, and sending back signals that indicate reception. It seems to work this way: If you are trying to tell me something, it is important to you to know I am hearing you. Unless I hear what you actually are trying to say, I do not understand, or only partially understand. Therefore, as soon as you begin talking I need to begin listening, and almost immediately to reflect back to you what I catch of what you are saying.

Every now and then you need to pause a second to see if I have caught your meaning so far. If I have, then you can let me know and proceed. If I have not, then you have the opportunity to correct my misunderstanding. If our conversation can consist of each continuously checking on what we hear the other say,then we have the beginnings of communication.

To Change

The only way we can change our pattern is to try to, to start in and do it. To introduce a new pattern into your style of communication, you first need to try it to see if it is workable. To start with a highly emotionally charged area could guarantee failure. Start, rather, with something that cannot produce any arguement, with some simple statement of a fact.

Try something like this to start: A: "The couch is orange." B: You see the couch as orange." A: "You heard me." This type of practice exercise is complete in itself. It shows all the elements of communication: statement, acknowledgement, response.

Later we can go to more personal things like: He: "I need to look for another job." She, "You are saying that you need to look for another job?" He: "Yes" She, "What brought that up?" This opens the way for further understanding.

Contrast that with this communication stopper: He, "I need to look for another job." She, "Oh, No! You fail at everything!" Notice that she showed little understanding and countered a statement with an accusation. This puts him on the defensive, and prevents him from saying anything that is related to looking for a job until the accusation is dealt with.

This kind of exercise can help build up the communication and understanding in any family if it is tried on an elementary level first, and then is used later on in more important communications. This method ensures that the transmitter is turned on and in tune, that the receiver is turned on and in tune with the receiver, that the internal noises are at the minimum, and that the static is being countered. This way, a healthy pattern of communication is being developed in your family.

We would like to tell you that the town is very friendly, but the employees of your place, The Shack, are exceptional.

A young girl named Geri waited on us and I do not know the name of the hostess, but she was very nice. The food is beyond compare and believe us, we know. We have eaten almost everywhere. PERFORMANCE SET MONDAY

Students Take Pride In Championship Play

Monday night in the Snyder High School auditorium, the Snyder High School drama department will present this year's state championship One-Act play, "Romeo and Juliet."

A true indicator of the uniqueness of this production are the opinions of the students who helped to create the play.

"I can't think of anything I'd rather do than be Juliet. It has been a lifelong dream of mine. I had a blast doing it, and I'm sorry it's almost over," states Marca Parham, Samuel French award winner.

Best actor Kim Massingill gave this viewpoint: "Ultimately the lesson in discipline will probably count as One-Act's greatest asset; however, knowing that we won sure does feel good at the moment."

According to Ronny Hester, "In my three years of One-Act experience, Romeo and Juliet has got to be my most fulfilling performance."

"Romeo and Juliet is a very beautiful performance, and I am proud to be a part of it," explained Greg Pavlik.

Paula Wolfe offered another insight. "One-Act becomes a way of life in the spring for many people. We have all worked very hard to make a good show. Working together has made us a close group, and I will miss that closeness when it is over. One-Act has been an experience I'll never forget."

Stage manager Debbie Smithee who had an all but indispensable role in the performance commented, "The time and work spent to make state champions was very well worth it, and I would do it again if the chance came."

"Romeo and Juliet has something for everyone," added Sheri Bullard. "It was a beautiful experience for me to work with the script and the cast. One-Act taught me that hard work and devotion to a cause can birth a dream come true."

Sara Sullivan put it like this. "What can one say about One-Act? It was my most enjoyable learning experience in high school and working with all the different people was fantastic!"

Jerry Martin noted, "One-Act is the most fantasic group of people that I have ever had the pleasure to work with."

"An adventure into fantasy, love, hate, tragedy and eventually...success" was the way Mickie Robinson described the production.

ROBERT POTTS, KIM MASSINGILL

Lighting director David Fleming told his thoughts. "I remember, at district, wondering if we would ever make it to region, and at region, wondering if we would make it to state. Now, I look back, and it all seems like a very nice dream."

"They couldn't have done it without Mr. Worsham," explained Tracy Witherspoon. "It was a great experience, and people don't know what they're missing out on."

"I feel that this has been a great year. I've worked with some brilliant people and a genius of a director. We worked hard (especially the crew), and it paid off," surmised Robby Moore.

Bryan Lewallen added, "I never realized how hard the crew worked until I became a member."

Cindy Hailes related, "I feel that during my two years in One-Act I have been taught, learned and experienced many things that will be valuable to me later in life."

"I never realized how much fun drama was. I spent a lot of time up here, and I am going to miss it," stated John Hopkins.

"It's been a new, exciting experience that will stick with me for many years," revealed Robert Potts. "I have really enjoyed working with Mr. Worsham and the rest and am looking forward to next year."

Nell Sears believed, "The most important thing about One-Act will always be the memories of working as a group and watching our dream become a reality."

The high regard of the company and cast for the production, "Romeo and Juliet" is reflected in the show.

This year's One-Act play is the winningest performance Snyder High has ever had.

Earmuff Day Clears Hurdle

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP)- The invention of the earmuff 100 years ago by Chester Greenwood may be observed in Maine on the first day of winter every year.

A bill to designate Dec. 21 as Chester Greenwood Day cleared its first hurdle in the Maine House on Thursday after sharp and sometimes humorous debats.

"In my opinion, it's an attempt to ridicule this house," Rep. Laurier G. Biron, D-Lewiston, said of the bill. "It s a waste ot taxpayers' time and money."

But Rep. Richard G. Morton, R-Farmington, said the measure would generate considerable publicity for Maine's winter sports, that no holiday from work would be involved and that the observance would not require any additional spending.

Talk Watch Is Next

WASHINGTON (AP)- The modern watch is self-winding, shock resistant, waterproof and computerized. Soon it may also talk, says National Geographic.

Intersonics Corp. of New York received a patent for a vocal watch last December. The new battery-operated watch combines a numeral display with a miniature speaker and a solid state memory. At the press of a button, the watch tells you the time-literally-in any language the buyer wants.

Watches have changed a lot since their 1505 forerunner, an egg-sized timepiece that only told the hours, was made in Nuremburg. After the spiral balance spring was developed in 1675, another hand was added to measure minutes. In 1970 quartz crystals were developed to replace mainsprings and balance wheels.

Only 19 per cent of the female population had joined in the nation's labor force in 1890, compared with 43 per cent in 1970, reports the U.S. Census Bureau. Married women accounted for 13 per cent of the female labor force in 1890, but represented 63 per cent by the late 1960s.

Zinc tablets may help

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About three months ago I contracted a virus. As a result I lost my sense of taste and smell. On the advice of my physician I began taking vitamin C tablets and found these of little or no value. I am still unable to taste or smell anything and have been told by some people that I may find this lack of senses persisting for a year or more.

In your experiences have you run across either a remedy or some encouraging news on when I can expect to recover my sense of taste and smell?

I am interested in knowing just what happened, how physicians treat this loss and what can be done in the future to prevent a recurrence.

A person never values all of his senses until he is without some of them for as long as I have been.

DEAR READER — You will be surprised to learn that I get many letters asking about the same or a similar problem. It is not unusual for such a loss to occur in the wake of a virus illness.

A few years ago Dr. Robert I. Henkin, now at Georgetown University's Center for Molecular Nutrition and Sensory Disorders, discovered that zinc deficiencies were related to many of these problems. There are many causes for a zinc deficiency, including a few cases of cancer, so anyone with such a problem should certainly see a physician.

Doctors often prescribe zinc tablets for this problem. That will work if the loss of senses is directly related to a dietary deficiency of zinc. And it may work in your case if your loss is a complication of the virus illness that you have now recovered from.

You can get zinc tablets (zinc sulfate) without a prescription and your druggist will help you. They come as 66 milligram tablets and contain 15 milligrams of zinc.

Zinc is an important part of your diet. It is commonly found in meats. If you happen to have been on a protein deficient diet you would be more apt to have a dietary deficiency.

Dr. Henkin has discovered that saliva normally contains a protein which he calls gustin. The gustin stimulates the growth and development of new taste buds. If you are zinc deficient you don't produce gustin and you don't develop an adequate number of new taste buds.

You might as well try the zinc tablets and see if they will help you. I am not surprised that the vitamin C tablets didn't help you. There is no earthly reason why they would. Your loss of taste has nothing to do with a vitamin C deficiency.

Some people with your problems and a zinc deficiency are not able to absorb zinc properly. It may take some time to achieve the best results. Take your zinc tablet with your food and you may take one tablet with each meal three times a day at first. Once you have given yourself enough time to absorb zinc then one tablet a day should meet your requirements. Hopefully if you regain your taste you will get along with a normal well balanced diet.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please comment on the enclosed article, "12-year Study Links Estrogen, Breast Cancer"?

Sometime ago you commented on a similar article in reference to cancer of the uterus. You said if a woman had had a hysterectomy it was all right to take estrogen. Does this hold true for breast cancer or is there a danger of breast cancer if one takes estrogen daily?

I have had a benign breast tumor removed a few years ago and I note that the article says that breast cancer is seven times more likely if you have had a benign breast tumor.

DEAR READER — The breast cancer scare is really an oddity. The authors of the scientific article that appeared have apparently agreed to disagree about the meaning of the study. A scientist from the National Cancer Institute studied the patients of a top-notch gynecologist. The NHI scientist opened the door to the possibility that female hormones might increase the chances of developing breast cancer — in post-menopausal women.

Dr. Laman Gray, Sr., the gynecologist, disagreed. He pointed out some weaknesses in the study. Basically the results showed that post-menopausal women on estrogen were 1.3 times more likely to have breast cancer than women who did not take estrogen.

Dr. Gray pointed out that the figures were misleading because the incidence of cancer of the breast in women was compared to the rate seen in Southern clinical centers where the incidence of breast cancer is lower than in Dr. Gray's region.

Let it suffice to say that the meaning of the results are sufficiently in doubt that you really can't use the study to answer the question of the role of female hormones in breast cancer. There is an important point though. The study does support the idea that if there is an increased risk for post-menopausal women on estrogen the risk must be quite small.

Both doctors agreed that women with "lumpy breasts" were more likely to have problems if they took estrogen. This was particularly true if a woman developed breast disease after starting female hormones. So your breast lump will need to be considered by your doctor in deciding if you should take estrogen or not. Estrogen does speed up the growth of cancer of the breast so breast cancer patients should not be taking estrogen.

Daily estrogen in small doses as you are taking is less likely to be implicated as a factor than less frequent larger doses.

In another study of estrogens and breast cancer by doctors from Vanderbilt University, women taking estrogens had fewer cancers (all types), the cancer deaths were much lower and the deaths from all causes (including heart attacks, strokes, cancer) were less than half that in women not taking estrogen. Clearly estrogen therapy may be more of a benefit than a curse, in selected cases.

What should a woman do? Because of the individual variations it is really better to let your doctor sort out what is best for you in your individual situation. Understanding that estrogens are neither all good nor all bad will help avoid confusion.

Plainview, Texas, May 5, 1977 — ACCO Seed announced today settlement of damages on violations against their protected variety of Paymaster 303 Cotton Planting Seed. All of these were settled out of court in ACCO Seed's favor.

The violations were committed during the fall of 1976 and early part of the 1977 planting season by a Hockley County seedsman, a Hockley County farmer, a Crosby County ginner and a Martin County co-op gin. All the parties acknowledged their violations and paid damages to ACCO Seed.

Under the Plant Variety Protection Act, those who without proper authority infringe the rights of a variety owner by selling or using, for prohibited purposes, a protected variety of cottonseed may be liable to the variety owner for treble damages, court costs, and attorney's fees and subject to an injunction against further infringement.

ACCO Seed will continue to vigorously enforce its rights under the Act for their protected varieties which include Paymaster 111-A, 101-B, 303, 266 and Paymaster Dwarf.

Solutions Debated On Excess Alaska Crude Oil

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Trans-Alaska Pipeline is now 96 per cent complete, nearly nine years after the initial discovery of oil at Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope.

But government and industry still are debating what to do with the excess Alaskan crude oil supplies anticipated by the time the pipeline reaches initial capacity of 1.2 millin barrels a day late this year.

The pipeline was designed basically to serve the West Coast, but refineries in that area cannot utilize more than 50 to 60 per cent of the initial North Slope production.

Possible solutions to the problem include tanker shipment of some of the crude by way of the Panama Canal to Gulf Coast refining centers and construction of California-to-Texas pipeline facilities that would link with the Gulf Coast and Midwest lines.

Both involve significant additional transportation costs.

Another possibility involves exporting part of the North Slope crude to Japan, the nearest major foreign market.

Existing legislation precludes such Prudhoe Bay shipments unless the President finds such exports to be in the national interest and if Congress does not disagree within 60 days.

President Carter's energy package contains two other proposals, shutting in production from the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California and modification of some West Coast "sweet crude" refineries so they could process the "sour crude" from Prudhoe Bay.

Production from the petroleum reserve was activated after the Arab oil embargo and production is scheduled to rise to 200,000 to 250,000 barrels a day by 1979.

In testimony recently before a Senate subcommittee, John H. Lichthlau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, said exportation of North Slope crude would obviate the necessity of shutting in the small scale production at Elk Hills.

"If the North Slope oil surplus is so unmanageable that it can only be contained by shutting in some other production, would it not be better to let it be exported?" Lichtblau asked. "After all, the oil supply problem is a global one for the United States and will remain so as long as we remain net importers of oil."

He added that any shutting in of existing production in importing countries must increase the world's reliance on OPEC oil to the same extent.

Lichtblau said the strategic petroleum reserve program also calls for the importation of some 350,000 barrels a day above normal requirements and that the simultaneous shutting in of Elk Hills would likely cause a measurable increase in the nation's net import position.

A much more positive way for the government to intervene on behalf of North Slope oil, Lichtblau said, would be to provide incentives to enable those West Coast refineries which for technical reasons are now limited to sweet crude oil to convert their equipment to permit use of Prudhoe Bay's sour crude.

"Last year 60 per cent of the West Coast's total oil imports of about a million barrels a day were sweet crude, largely from Indonesia," he said. "To the extent to which the need for this type of crude can be reduced, additional quantities of North Slope oil can be absorbed."

Lichtblau added that consideration should be given to extend such a retrofitting program to the entire country in that the rate of decline in domestic sweet crude production has made many refineries inflexibly dependent on overseas imports of that type crude.

He said the reasons that relatively few refineries have been retrofitted so far are the high capital cost and the fact that total cost per barrel is currently higher than the price differential between sweet crude and sour crude.

"The capital cost, including rate of returns, is approximately $2,000 per barrel of daily capacity or $200 million for a 100,000 barrels a day project," he said.

"This is equivalent to $1.50 to $2 per barrel while the current premium for foreign sweet crude over Persian Gulf sour crude averages about $1 at West and Gulf coasts."

"This is to be just one of many such functions when the party takes time to recognize its elected officials and workers."

Marshall's Girl Among Arrested

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)- Jill Ann Marshall, whose father is U.S. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, was among the 294 people arrested during a protest at Stanford University this week.

Miss Marshall, 18, a freshman, was charged with trespassing and released.

A Labor Department spokesman in Washington said Marshall was aware of her arrest but had no comment.

The arrests were made during a sit-in to protest the apartheid racial policy of South Africa and the university's investments in Ford Motor Co. which has operations in that country.

LIFE'S GREATEST QUESTION

Every man's greatest concern ultimately will be the destiny of his soul.

Though temporal issues may dominate most of his thinking, they are insignificant when compared to the consequence of the soul.

An understanding of the nature of man tells us why this is so. Man's origin upon the earth is described in the Bible as follows: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Genesis 2:7).

Throughout the remainder of the Bible we learn that the spirit or soul of man is far more important than the physical body. For example, Solomon wrote: "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it" (Ecclesiastes 12:7).

Hence, each man is endowed with an eternal soul or spirit which God will reclaim at death.

This is what Christianity is all about. This is why Christianity is a religion of the soul.

Jesus Christ came to earth to save the souls of people. His mission was to redeem mankind from sin.

Life's greatest question, then, concerns the salvation of the soul. The Bible teaches that the great salvation, made possible through the sacrifice of Christ, is accomplished by the grace of God and the faith of man: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8).

The divine side of salvation was effected completely by the grace of God.

The gift of Christ to the world was an expression of grace (John 1:17). The shed blood of Christ was and expression of grace (Romans 3:25). The establishment of Christ's church or spiritual body upon earth was an expression of grace (Acts 20:28; Ephesians 5:23-25). The giving to man of the inspired Word of God was an expression of grace (Acts 20:32).

Just as grace was expressed by God, so faith is demonstrated by man. This saving faith is first created in the human heart through the teaching of the Word (Romans 10:17).

Faith leads a person to believe in the deity of Christ (John 8:24). Faith motivates the individual to turn to Christ through repentance (Acts 17:30). Faith produces the good confession (Romans 10:10). Faith leads the penitent believer to be baptized into Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38). And then faith guides the Christian in his worship, service, and devotion to God unto death (Revelation 2:10).

Yes, God's abundant grace has provided man with everything necessary to answer life's greatest question. Man must respond with a "faith which worketh by love" (Galatians 5:6).

You have only one life, only one Saviour, only one eternal soul. How will you answer life's greatest question?
