Seven Counties And Rich Areas In Rail Program

WHAT'S WHAT IN RAILROAD

The unacquainted find it difficult to understand just the way the new south plains railroad will be built, due to the reason it cannot be ranked up in a manner in which most roads are routed. At the present time the Wichita Valley, a branch of the Fort Worth and Denver railway, runs from Wichita Falls to Spur, in Dickens county. The charter provides for the extension of the Spur branch across Crosby county into Lubbock. The other counties will be touched by a direct line from the parent line at Estelline, running southwestward through Hall, Briscoe, Floyd and Hale counties to Plainview, thence northwestward across Castro county to Dimmitt, the county seat.

It is the latter line that will perhaps receive first attention as the cost of construction will be much less per mile than the road from Spur into Lubbock. Just west of Spur the road must penetrate the Croton brakes, which are very rough. After the brakes have been crossed then comes the climb onto the caprock.

Issuance of Charter to Denver South Plains Line Is a Notable Advancement

By L. E. HASKETT.
Written Especially for The Record News.

CHILDRESS, March 7.—Rumors and rumblings of new railroads have long been heard over Northwest Texas but the real thing did not occur until Thursday when the Fort Worth & Denver South Plains Railroad company of Fort Worth was granted a charter at Austin. This charter provides for a railroad to be constructed through the counties of Hall, Briscoe, Floyd, Hale, Lubbock, Crosby and Castro.

The territory to be traversed west of Estelline is one of the richest in Texas. It has been the cowman's paradise for many years but has gradually given way to the farmer. From Estelline west to the caprock is one of the finest farming sections to be found. The soil is a deep sandy loam, with thousands of acres subirrigated. The best portion of this area is around Flomont, Gasoline and Quitaque. Most of the acreage is owned by the Mill Iron, Matador Land & Cattle company and Howard Brothers' ranches. These lands are now being marketed to acutal settlers.

After leaving Quintaque comes the climb onto the caprock. There is a divide between the North Pease river and the Red river, which sets in about six miles west of Childress. It is generally believed that the new railroad will branch off from the parent line at this point, or through the Givens' farm. If this is done it will

Six Bandits Routed By Guard's Gun Fire

OMAHA, Neb., March 7. — Six bandits, each armed with two guns held up the Security State bank in South Omaha early tonight, lined up 13 people and escaped with between $2,000 and $3,000 in cash after which a bank guard routed them with gun fire.

SOLVE HIGHWAY CRIMES

Youths Charged With Robbery and Criminal Assault

FORT WORTH, March 7.—Twin crimes of the past two weeks which have thrown peace authorities at Mineral Wells into a frenzied but unsuccessful investigation are believed to have been cleared up by three Fort Worth detectives who returned from Mineral Wells tonight with two prisoners.

Day Arnold, 17, one of the suspects, is said to have admitted to the local police that he and another companion are responsible for two holdups within a mile of the Palo Pinto county town in which young men were stripped of their money and their girl companions criminally assaulted. Arnold was marked on the docket for highway robbery, criminal assault and burglary. Another youth described as Arnold's companion is sought.

YALE GIFT ANNOUNCED

Fund to Perpetuate Memory of J. P. Benjamin, Given By New Yorker

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 7.—Announcement was made by the secretary's office at Yale university tonight of a gift of $20,000 to establish in the Yale school of law a fund to perpetuate the name of Judah Philip Benjamin, who was characterized in the secretary's statement as "the brains of the southern Confederacy" and later one of the best known of English barristers of the second half of the 19th century. The donor was anonymously given as a New York attorney.

Caldwell County Well Opens Up New Area

LOCKHART, March 7. — The Brewer test well seven miles southeast of Lockhart blew in with a roar today. Workmen had been clearing mud from the casing recently set and were not looking for the blow. Deep rumblings are to be heard under ground. As the test well is in new territory in Caldwell county much excitement has followed.

SAIL TO PROBE ASIA

Blossom Time Returns To Wichita Falls

COME out this morning in the bright sunshine to the home of the Amason's, the Thornes, the Bruce's, the Gorsline's, the Mears', the Maples', the Collards', and other Wichitans who revel in their gardens.

Come out to Nature's house and meet Miss Spring.

Fearful yet of a norther, perhaps, you will see her fresh from the hands of her dressmaker who has been busily fashioning panels of newly sprouted green lawn, with billowy ruffles of snowy fruit blossoms to edge her earthen frock, and clusters of fragrant blue violets bordered with delicate green foliage for her corsage.

All lace, she is, and a yard wide. Every bit as beautiful as she was a year ago.

Walks bordered with fragrant violet beds, fruit trees in snowy bloom, and green shoots on trees, shrubs and roses the past week have made Wichita Falls believe that spring is truly coming, in spite of the extended nap of the groundhog, the frequent northers, and the sandy winds.

CITY POLITICAL POT RECEIVES C. W. HENDRICKS

Unexpected Entrant Will Oppose Jones For Finance Position

The withdrawal of one candidate for police commissioner, the entry of an opponent for Oral Jones in the race for finance commissioner and the filing of petitions for all the other contestants in the April 7 city election were highlights Saturday in the last day of grace for those who aspire to office. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the nominating petitions of all but one candidate expected to run had been turned in to City Clerk W. E. McBroom. The one still out was that of J. W. McCormick, candidate for police commissioner. Mr. McCormick filed his papers later in the evening, thus completely the list.

The most unexpected development yesterday was the appearance of C. W. Hendricks, local real estate operator, who made a last minute announcement of his candiducy for finance commissioner. His petition, properly signed, was turned in Saturday afternoon and thus assures a two-cornered battle for this post between him and Oral Jones who had previously come out. The other new move was the withdrawal of Dave May, former chief detective, who announced through friends that he had reconsidered and would not seek the office.

As it now shapes up, a contest will be found in each of the four offices to be filled in April. R. E. Shepherd and R. E. Huff have qualified for mayor, Oral Jones and C. W. Hendricks for finance commissioner, J. H. Patton and J. W. Hunt for park and health commissioner and Frank Queisser, L. G. Stogner, J. N. Wells, Frank Johnson, J. B. Fitts, W. H. Conn and J. W. McCormick for police commissioner.

Some of the petitions must be sent back for revision, Mr. McBroom found after a cursory examination, because dates were not properly filled in or sufficient names were not attached in ink. They may be ammended and refiled.

WACOAN WALKS IN JAIL

Man Wanted for Theft Walks Into Sheriff's Office; Is Locked Up

WACO, March 7.—Cullum Jones, Waco, wanted by Sheriff Stegall on three indictments charging burglary and theft in connection with auto thefts here walked into the sheriff's office at 7:30 tonight to say "howdy do" and the sheriff locked him up.

Jones has been sought for two weeks, ever since the alleged confessions of Frank Hardy and Fred Behringer, 17-year-old Waconns implicated him in the theft of an automobile here and the subsequent theft of a car in Houston.

No Dormitories to Be Built This Year

AUSTIN, March 7.—(AP) — The announced policy of the house appropriation committee that no dormitories are to be built for state supported schools prevailed in the house today when an amendment to the educational budget bill by Representative H. S. McNatt, of Fort Worth, to appropriate $150,000 for one at the North Texas Agricultural college at Arlington, lost, 50 to 55.

The bill, which appropriates $13,775,978.30 for the next biennium for the maintenance of the schools of higher learning, is the final apropriation bill of the regular session.

FREE BOY WHO WEDS SISTER

Efforts To Be Made To Defend Youth For Illegal Marriage.

JAMESTOWN, Pa., March 7.—The Atlantic ocean may separate Stephen Balogh, Jr., 19, and Helen Balogh, 17, brother and sister, who were married last Wednesday at Cumberland, Md., it was indicated today at a hearing before a magistrate, who held them both for court upon a criminal charge under $500 bail. The brother and sister were given into the custody of their parents, but authorities were told that plans were being made to send the boy back to Hungary.

Balogh came here from Hungary a year ago and saw his sister then for the first time. They repeated their story of intimacy at the hearing today, the girl declaring she expected to become a mother within a short time.

GALVESTON COTTON SOLD

Dallas Men Purchase 16,000 Bales A Cost of $2,500,000.

DALLAS, March 7. — Announcement was made today that contracts had been signed whereby Francis Clay and Co., cotton shippers, had agreed to purchase the remaining stock in Galveston warehouses owned by the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association. About 16,000 bales were thus sold, and while the purchase price was not made public experts in the cotton market said they estimated about $2,500,000 to be involved in the whole deal. It was the largest contract negotiated in years between spot cotton brokers and shippers in Dallas.

Amarillo Bond Voted 15 to 1 On Saturday

AMARILLO, March 7.—Amarillo citizens voted 1,842 for and 121 against, or 15 to 1 for a $1,750,000 water bond issue today. One precinct went nearly 100 to 1 for the bonds.

The Day In Washington

President Coolidge was urged to call a world currency conference.

The senate in open session considered without action the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general.

Ostracism of All Insurgents Halted

WASHINGTON, March 7—Efforts of the majority to complete the reorganization of the senate today were frustrated by two senators from their ranks who are opposed to the program to relegate the LaFollette insurgents to minor places on the standing committees.

Soon after the majorities slate of committee assignments was presented by Senator Watson, Indiana, Senators Borah and Norris, Nebraska, objected to immediate action, thus automatically forcing over until Monday consideration of the matter.

TRAIN HITS CAR; KILLS ONE

Girl Occupant Sustains Fractured Skull; Father Also Injured

HOUSTON, March 7. — Myrtle DuBose, 11, was fatally injured and her father, C. H. DuBose, both of Aldine, Texas, was cut about the face and badly bruised when the light truck in which they were riding collided with an inbound I-G. N. passenger train from Fort Worth, on a grade crossing one mile south of Aldine at 7:55 p. m. Saturday.

The little girl sustained a fractured skull and died en route to Houston. The father is now in St. Joseph's hospital, his injuries are not serious.

Calls God 'Scoundrel;' Given Rose Shower

BERNE, Switzerland, March 7.—M. Canova, a member of the national council was convicted as a blasphemer today for describing God as "scoundrel" in his socialist newspaper Volkswacht. He said in his defense that "as there is no God, there is no offense."

He was fined 200 francs with jail as an alternative and announced that he would enter an appeal.

The sentence aroused a demonstration by Canova's friends in the court room at Coire, capitol of the department of grisons, where the trial was held. He was showered with flowers as he left the room.

PRO AGENT AND DEPUTY KILLED IN GRAVE YARD

Two Held At Lake Charles, La., After Murder Of Raiding Party

LAKE CHARLES, La., March 7.—The bodies of L. G. Collins, Baptist minister and federal prohibition agent, and Samuel E. Duhon, deputy sheriff, missing since they left here for a liquor raid last night were found late today in an old cemetery near the town of Starks. The bodies lay on the back seat of Duhon's automobile and were riddled with shots.

Collins, who is married and resides near Lake Charles, was appointed to the prohibition service about three months ago and at frequent intervals he has worked out of the New Orleans office.

Enroute To Meeting.

The discovery was made by two men from Starks which is some ten miles northwest of Vinton and near the Sabine river.

Collins and Duhon were to have met other deputy sheriffs last night for a search of the Dunn brothers some two miles from Vinton and the latter are held in the Parish jail here pending the outcome of the mysterious disappearance of the two men and also of the burning of Dunn's home which ocurred last night. The brothers, Robert, Byron and Eustice, refused to make any statements, according to officers who would not permit them to receive visitors.

The search for Collins and Duhon had been extended tonight to more distant parts of the parish on orders of Sheriff Lyons after almost every foot of ground around the Dunn home had been gone over and the ashes of the place examined.

Shots Were Heard.

Two shotguns, a pistol and a quantity of sour mash and two kegs that had contained liquor were found near the house, officers said, and they learned from neighbors that shots were heard near the place last night.

Deputies who were to have joined Collins and Duhon near the Dunn home for the raid last night went on and arrested Byron Dunn after Collins and Duhon failed to appear, and then went to Vinton to get a search warrant as Duhon had the original one. On their return they found the house in flames.

The other two Dunns were detained later.

PEN PHYSICIAN RELATES MOB'S SURGIC ORDERS

Probers Told How Doctor Was Forced To Operate Upon Negro

NEAR HUNTSVILLE

Witness Refuses To Admit That He Performed The Operation

AUSTIN, March 7.—The story of an operation performed on a negro at the demand of a mob in Huntsville after the negro had entered the room of a normal school girl, was told at the senate prison hearing tonight by Dr. L. H. Bush, chief surgeon of the prison system. The mob debated whether they should burn the negro or have the operation performed and finally decided on the operation as having the best effect to prevent similar outrages, Dr. Bush said.

Dr. Bush declined to tell who performed the operation.

"Did you perform the operation?" asked Senator Witt prosecutor for the committee.

"I refuse to answer," said Dr. Bush.

Representative Irwin had charged on the floor of the house that Dr. Bush had refused to testify before the legislative investigation committee because he knew that he would be asked about the operation on the negro.

Dr. Bush tonight denied that this was the reason he had not testified when the committee was at Huntsville. He said Representative Irwin had announced his resignation would be asked for.

"If I was already convicted, why should I testify?" said Dr. Bush.

Dr. Bush, relating the circumstances about the negro operation, said that on a night in June, 1922, he was called to a house across the street from his home by a woman's screams. When he arrived he was told a negro had attempted an assault on a girl upstairs.

"I found the girl in a highly nervous condition," he said. "The negro had entered her room and grabbed her. He was arrested and confessed. A mob gathered. They demanded that he be burned, but some of the citizens suggested the operation as the better means to stop such things. The mob then took the negro about three miles from town where the operation was performed. The negro is now a prisoner at Huntsville."

Asked if it was a "mixed or a Ku Klux Klan mob," he replied that it was mixed.

Dr. Bush denied charges of neglect and mistreatment of patients brought out in the joint committee hearing.

Senator Witt read a letter from former Governor Pat M. Neff which said that the prison survey commission had called attention to "medical inefficiency" in the prison and suggested that "present unsatisfactory methods" must be corrected.

CONSTITUTION ADHERENTS TO GET FIRST SAY

Veatch Resolution on Amnesty Is in Favorable Calendar Position

AUSTIN, March 7.—(AP)—Indications that the house members who favor a constitutional amendment in preference to an amnesty bill for the vindication of the name of former Governor James E. Ferguson, would have the first say, were made today when Representative John Veatch obtained a favorable position on the suspended calendar for his joint resolution.

The Veatch resolution proposes a constitutional amendment to give the legislature the right to grant pardons in case of impeachment.

The amnesty bill, passed by the senate, has been set for special consideration by the house Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The suspended calendar comes up Monday morning, with the educational appropriation bill heading the list. Should the appropriation bill be disposed of within a short time, consideration of the resolution is virtually assured.

PACKERS TO REORGANIZE

Plan Will Be Submitted to Wilson Company Next Week.

NEW YORK, March 7. — A reorganization plant for Wilson & Co., Chicago packers, forced into receivership last year, may be outlined next week, Frank O. Wetmore, of Chicago, chairman of the bankers committee, which is re-adjusting the company's financial affairs, announced today, termination of the receivership he said probably will not take place for several months. Wall Streets interest in the Wilson situation was revived today by a brisk rally in the company's securities.

Miriam Signs Bills Affecting County

AUSTIN, March 7.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson Saturday approved two bills authorizing Wichita county and Wilbarger county commissioners courts to contract for the construction of bridges across the Red river. She also approved the law for protection of fish in waters of the big Wichita Valley.

ROUND HOUSE AND SHOPS ARE A TOTAL LOSS

Main Building and Five Locomotives Wiped Out Saturday Night

ORIGIN IS UNKNOWN

Cool Work of Train Crew and Engineer Saves Equipment

Starting in the machine room and spreading rapidly through the oil and grease-soaked structure, fire early Saturday night completely destroyed the roundhouse and shops of the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad southwest of the city and caused a loss estimated at more than $125,000.

The main building, five locomotives undergoing repairs and a large amount of valuable equipment were wiped out. The structure, a frame and sheet iron shed of large dimensions was consumed; the locomotives were subjected to such intense heat that railroad men say they are valueless except possibly for a little junk; while the machinery and tools in the building were reduced to shapeless piles of metal. The locomotives' values were said to run about $17,500 each, making a loss there of $83,500 alone; machinery and tools were appraised at about $40,000, while the building itself represented an investment of perhaps $10,000. This would put the total damage at $133,000.

Cool and skillful work on the part of a train crew which happened to be on the ground saved the loss of two strings of boxcars and loaded oil tankers standing on sidings near the burning structure. A locomotive outside the roundhouse was manned and coupled to these, which were hauled to a safe distance. One other locomotive that had just been put in the shop after coming in from a run and in which steam was up was run out under its own power.

Saves His Engine

A. B. Norwood, an engineer on the Southern, discovered the flames. He had just put his mogul in the shop and was preparing to depart for home when he noticed a burst of flame in the machine shop. Three or four other employes of the place were at work on a tank car in the yards outside and did not see the impending conflagration until alarmed by Norwood's shouts. By the time they could gain the doorways the entire interior was a blazing mass with the fire licking over the thick coating of oil and grease on the floor. They were unable to penetrate the interior, but in the meantime Norwood had mounted to the cab of his machine and backed out of danger.

Even had there been time it would have been difficult to remove the other five locomotives. Four of them were in for minor repairs while the fifth was undergoing a complete overhauling. None, however, could have been moved under their own power.

By 7:30, 20 minutes after the flames were discovered, the whole building was seething. Oil in the fuel tanks of the locomotives dripped from the seams that opened from the heat and added to the blaze. All wooden or other inflammable parts were soon glowing on the locomotives, while above it all thick clouds of black, pungent smoke rolled out.

An alarm was sent into the city fire department and apparatus from stations 2 and 3 hurried to the scene. They were unable to do anything, however, because of lack of water. The nearest plug was at the fair grounds, nearly a mile away and chemicals would have been useless.

Reflections from the fire and the heavy smoke screen thrown up were easily seen from all parts of the city, resulting in the drawing of a large crowd. The lake road, on which the shops are located, was lined with cars which carried hundreds to the place. By 8:30 most of the fireworks had subsided but flames continued to shoot high, fed from the big stores of fuel oil in the locomotive tanks. The burning embers, of course, would not not permit entry to the ruins and thus an examination could not be made. It could be seen from the edge of the grounds, however, that the locomotives were gaunt lumps of metal, and because of this little hope was expressed that anything else inside could be found serviceable.

Covered By Insurance

Although the actual loss is said to be covered by insurance, officials of the Southern remarked last night that the big damage would come through the loss of equipment and the time required to get the shops back into working order. Four of the five engines destroyed were in service, being laid up only temporarily for minor adjustments, and their destruction will, it is said, hamper to a considerable extent the motive power facilities of the road.

No indication was given last night as to whether the shops would be rebuilt at once, but it is presumed that they will.

This is the second serious fire to visit the place in recent years. In the summer of 1922 a costly blaze swept them, destroyed several locomotives and passenger cars and ruined much of the equipment.

DR. REEVES ILL

Dr. D. N. Matheson of Ft. Worth has been called to the bedside of Dr. D. H. Reeves who is seriously ill at the general hospital. F. L. Pope of Ft. Worth, cousin of Dr. Reeves, has also come here from Ft. Worth during the doctor's illness, as has Mrs. Pope and Mrs. D. B. Lewis, also of Ft. Worth.

Wichita Women Will Clean Up City This Week

Plans Going Forward For Intensive Spring House-Cleaning

"Clean up your back yards.
Clean up your alleys.
Place all cans and trash in sacks and boxes just outside your back gate into the alley.
Burn everything that will burn.
Plant trees, shrubs and flowers.
Keep weeds cut on vacant lots and your alley.
¼ ¼ ¼ ¼
Enter your yard in the prize contest.
Let's clean up and be healthful and beautiful.

So say the women of the Civic League of the Wichita Falls Women's Forum which is conducting a vigorous spring clean up campaign the week of March 9 over the entire city.

In co-operation with this plan, W. H. Patton, city street commissioner, has ordered all trash wagons of the city to cover every alley and remove all trash collected in boxes and barrels free of charge during the entire week.

To Inspect Yards.

The week of March 16, back yards and alleys will be inspected, and those that have not been cleaned up will be reported to the local health officer, according to a circular containing the sanitation plan being distributed in every home in the city by the Civic League members. Each school child in the city is also given a circular.

A free plant exchange will be conducted at the Central Fire Station, March 10, 11 and 12, where those having extra plants, bulbs, roots or slips from their spring thinning and pruning, are requested to leave them in exchange for plants of other varieties for their yards. All plants are free for the asking, and those having plants to offer are asked to call Mrs. W. L. Hawkins at 3755, City Beautiful chairman.

A cash prize is offered to the best kept yard in each of the 24 voting precincts. There must be at least 10 entries in each precinct, and all yard work except grass cutting must be done by someone within the home.

Chairmen Named.

Precinct chairmen at the head of the work over the city are: Precinct 1, Mrs. W. J. Morganridge, and Mrs. Frank Mercer; 2, general committee; 3, Carrie Welsh; 4, Mrs. Mollie McElroy; 5, general committee; 6, Mrs. L. C. M. Blakely; 7, Mrs. M. Gassney; 8, Mrs. E. W. Napier; 9, general committee; 10, Mrs. J. E. Wolf; 11, Mrs. J. T. Gant; 12, Mrs. Ed Stewart; 13, Mrs. Gulliat; 14, Mrs. Oral Jones; 15, Mrs. Wm. Huff; 16, Mrs. John Davenport; 17, Mrs. W. M. Cook; 18, Mrs. S. P. Jones; 19, Mrs. Wm. Scott; 20, Mrs. O. W. Harvey; 21, Mrs. E. P. Bass; 22, Mrs. H. J. Strief; 23, Mrs. Walter McAbee; 24, Mrs. O. Karr.

Benefit Tea Given by Haskell Women

HASKELL, March 7—Mrs Courtney Hunt was hostess in her lovely home last Wednesday afternoon in a benefit tea given under the auspices of the Cemetery Association and the bright spring day together with the cause brought forth a large delegation of ladies. An entertaining program was rendered by Mrs. H. D. Neff, piano solo; Mrs. John W. Pace, piano solo; "The Blue Bonnett," music and words composed by Mrs. T. G. Scales of Haskell, sung by six little girls; violin solo, Mrs. Virgil Meadows, accompanied by Mrs D. L. Building Permits For Week Climb; Reach $410,270

Total For Single Week Eclipses Amount For All January

Swollen by the permit fo rthe new Harvey-Snider six-story office building now going up at 812-18 Eighth street, building permit records last week soared to $410,270. This is, of course, by far the largest week's mark this year and is one that will be equaled or passed by but few during the entire 12 months. Subtracting the $330,000 for this one project the week's total was $80,270, which in itself is a little above the average.

The record for the entire month of January was only $305,316.

Complete records fo rthe weeks as they were recorded by Building Inspector Fred A. Smith were as follows:

B. L. Baits, residence, 2011 Taft, $4,800.

M. E. Napier, business building, 1007 Lamar, $10,000.

Roving Seaman Casts Slurs on Local Jail

A night in the "brig" and a fine for intoxication were the indignities heaped upon a roving son of the sea Friday evening and yesterday. He had cruised too far inland, taken on excessive ballast of potent potentialities and accordingly had come under the displeasure of the law.

In jail Friday night he wept bitterly and between "hics" and sobs recalled those halcyon days in which he had done time in the best lock-ups of the world from Singapore to Cape Town and Madrid to Vienna. It seems he had decorated the brigs of many of our more prominent sea-going hacks, also. The Majestic and Olympic were named among others as vessels in which he had been temporarily subdued for minor indiscretions.

He remembered it all as he rattled the bars of his cell Friday night and protested violently against the injustice of it. Saturday morning, though, he had sobered up, paid off and was released.

European Traveler Speaks at Haskell

HASKELL, March 7.—Last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Haskell high school, before a large and appreciative audience, Miss LaVerne Cummins delivered an interesting address on "My European Trip." Her talk was connected, constructive and informative and she held her audience with splendid attention for one hour and 15 minutes. Miss Cummins is a Haskell young lady who graduated from the Haskell high school some years ago at the age of 15, finished her four years' course at State University in three years, and with but one day's vacation taught in the Haskell summer school, she then taught one term of school in Oklahoma, saved enough funds for her tour which she made last summer with the Dr. Dunning party of New York City.

A short, appropriate musical program was rendered previous to the lecture. Piano solo, Mrs. H. D. Neff; violin solo, Master Henry Alexander of Stamford; piano solo, little Miss Anna Bell Burt; then half of Miss Cummin's lecture, when she rested, while Miss Fern Case gave a character sketch, "Jane's Graduation." Mrs. C. M. Kaigler arranged and directed the program which was under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association, who realized $35 from the evening's program.

SEVEN COUNTIES

not be necessary to cross any canyon or creek and a gradual slope can be followed onto the caprock.

There are said to be only two slopes that reach the caprock along the rim that traverses Briscoe, Floyd and Donley counties. One is now used by the Denver road in making the climb between Clarendon and Goodnight. The other is known as the Mexican trail and is near Quitaque.

If the branch is built from Estelline it will be necessary to pull down a grade, as the parent line's track at this point follows the south bank of the Red river, crossing that stream between Estelline and Newlin. The climb out of the river is 142 feet to the table land.

Will Be Paying Line.

Tonnage is what interests railroad officials, and tonnage will not be lacking for this feeder. There is now grown from Estelline west to Silverton not less than 30,000 bales of cotton annually, in addition thousands of tons of maize, kafir and corn are produced. With railroad facilities there will be five farmers where there is now one. It is not at all improbable that the ranch line from Plainview to a connection with the parent line will handle less than 100,000 bales annually, and this is an ultra-conservative estimate.

Cotton is also being raised in quantity in Castro county. Dimmitt, once a railroad connection is made, will grow into a splendid little city of 3,000 population and will draw business almost to the New Mexico-Texas line. This business will not be diverted from the Denver road's branch, as it will offer the shortest and best way to reach tidewater, where most of the Texas crop ultimately arrives.

Development Brings Tonnage.

There is a difference in tonnage when a railroad enters an undeveloped territory over that which is settled. The new railroad will bring thousands of farmers into its territory. Thousands upon thousands of tons of material will be necessary for building new homes, barn, fences, business houses, and many tons of farm implements, tractors and tools will be hauled into this virgin farming field.

It is this business that assures tonnage even before crops begin to move and due to the fact that the Denver road now has vast stores of materials and rails at Childress rapid progress will be made once actual work of construction starts. It has been estimated that steel at the rate of a mile a day can be laid west from Childress. Progress will be slowed up some when the caprock territory is reached but rapid speed can be maintained in building both ways out of Plainview. There will be little grade work required in building over the plains.

Benefits Childress Most.

The building of this extension is going to prove of more benefit to Childress than any other city, due to the reason the Denver road maintains its general shops, roundhouse, storeroom, terminals and offices in this city. At present the company is enlarging the roundhouse at a cost of $60,000 and a like amount is being spent for enlargements to the general storeroom. Childress is both a freight and passenger division and the distance from Childress to Dimmitt is about the correct distance to operate a passenger train without changing crews. Plainview, no doubt, will be a freight division.

Childress merchants are pleased to see the extension built and are happy that the main line is to be tapped northwest of the city. This route protects a valuable trade territory to the southwest.

Wichita Falls jobbers are going to be benefited, as it has een impossible for those jobbers to reach the plains section in competition with Amarillo, Oklahoma City and Kansas City, even Denver being able to serve better than Wichita Falls. When the branch is completed Wichita Falls jobbers and manufacturers can get merchandise into Plainview within 24 hours, and Lubbock and the south plains points can be reached within another 12 hours. This will be on an equal basis with Amarillo jobbers, a day earlier than Oklahoma City and two days better service than Denver or Kansas City.

Increase in Population.

A survey made of this territory a year ago showed that the possible increase in population of Childress, Hall, Briscoe, Motley, Floyd, Hale and Castro counties, in event the branch road was constructed, would be near 50,0000 within five years. Childress will add at least 4,000 to its present population of 7,000. Plainview will witness a new growth of at least 3,000. Little towns like Turkey will grow from 500 to 2,500, Quitaque from 600 to 3,000, Flomont from 200 to 1,000, Silverton from 600 to 2,500, Curlew from a mere village to a town of a thousand. Dimmitt, just a village should make a town of 3,000 population.

As said, this branch will tap the richest virgin farming section in Texas. Along the caprock valley buffalo, in years gone by, wintered in countless thousands. The valley is covered with a thick grass and water of finest quality can often be found within ten feet of the surface. The wintering of these great herds of buffalo in such a restricted area, has enriched the soil to where it produces cotton, maize, fruits, melons and vegetables abundantly. Then, another important factor, this territory was always known among the Indians as the "green belt," due to the peculiar formations and sudden drops in altitude that creates many rains and showers during the growing period. Perhaps no given area in all of West or Northwest Texas is favored with as much rain as the counties of Childress, Hall, Motley, Briscoe, Floyd and Hale.

This section of Texas is going to receive much publicity and growth during the next few years and little cities will soon spring from where villages do not now exist.

BLOSSOM TIME

and caring for their own flower beds because of their love of growing things. Flower culture is a hobby with many women, and many lovely yards and flowerbeds in Wichita Falls result from this hobby instead of being left to the professional attention of a yard man or gardener.

Although it is quite early yet to transplant or set out annual plants, for fear of more cold weather, it is not too early to sow seeds, provided they are of some variety that does not sprout for four or five weeks, according to local flower experts.

"Seed for slow sprouting plants may be sown now if they do not show until Easter or after," states Mrs. L. P. Amason of 1607 Eleventh, who is an expert on roses. "I have pruned my roses, loosened the earth, and have spaded up other beds ready for later planting, but it is a little early yet to do much actual gardening."

Mrs. J. W. Thorne, at 1312 Eighteenth, another rose fancier, has been setting out "slips" or rose shoots all during the fal land winter months, covering them carefully with glass jars to protect them from the cold.

"All the shoots are sprouting leaves, even one I set last week, and all are growing nicely," Mrs. Thorne states. "There is danger in taking the jars from the slips too early, because cold weather kills them quickly. For that reason I shall leave the glass over the plants until well after Easter.

"Steady watering is essential to the success of roses in this country where hot dry winds do so much damage to growing things. I am sure, from past experience that steady cultivating and regular watering is more important in rose culture than the type of soil. Wonderful roses are grown in Wichita Falls, and anyone may have them if they water and cultivate them regularly and often.

Mrs. H. J. Bruce at 1514 Polk has set out a number of two year old plants that will bloom this spring, and is planning to set out some shrubs and hedge plants this week.

"Roses do not have to be watered so often if they are watered slowly and thoroughly each time," states Mrs. Bruce. "Sprinkling the top of the ground for a few minutes does no good.

"Through the hot dry months that are so hard on gardens, the strength of the rose plants should be conserved for fall blooming by pinching off all buds that appear. The blooms during those months are not especially pretty because of the extreme hot weather, and the plant will be greatly benefitted if the buds are pinched back."

The garden at the O. T. Gorsline home on Eighth street is of the old fashioned type, and is one of the prettiest back yards in the city. Beds are being spaded and fertilizer spread, where later, portulacas, candy tuft, marigolds, calendulas, verbenas, zinnias, tall hollyhocks, sunflowers, fragrant heliotrope and petunias will vie with the stately cannas and roses in a riot of color and perfume.

"Violets are blooming now,' 'Mrs. Gorsline says, "but though the bers are prepared and the fertilizer spread, the ground is too dry for planting the early varieties."

"Lilacs and the fragrant shrubs will soon be blooming, and the early spring bulbs will give way to the later summer bulb plants," said Mrs. Gorsline, who attributes her success in raising flowers to plenty of care, plenty of fertilizer, and plenty of water.

Dahlias, cannas and roses are the chief interest of Mrs. J. L. Mears at her lovely home, 1800 Grant street, though one of the most interesting plants that will sprout in the warm spring weather is a crepe myrtle brought by Mrs. Mears from her Indiana home many years ago. She has moved the same plant with her from house to house in this city during her life here, and it is now a fine, beautiful plant climbing up the side of her Grant street home.

Mrs. A. B. Maples at her home on Taylor street is noted for her fine zinnias and daisies, which she is preparing to plant again: "I plant only annuals, and find these two varieties the best for Wichita Falls. They stand the heat and the high winds better than other plants, and bloom in profusion all through the summer."

Violets are up also at the F. R. Callard home at 2414 Ninth, where Mrs. Collard is planning her beds of great delicately tinted sweet peas, her zinnias, nasturtiums and huge dahlias.

"Dahlias are not difficult to raise in Wichita Falls if they receive a reasonable amount of care and attention. They are trouble, of course, but they are well worth it," Mrs. Collard says. Besides the fine roses which gro wunder Mrs. Collard's care and direction, perhaps the most beautiful plant, and the one that has attracted the most attention from passers by is the Japanese vine trailing over the side of the house which bursts into a profusion of blossoms in the summer, a vertiable shower of tiny pink bells.

Many other yards and gardens in Wichita Falls enjoy this personal touch from their mistresses which reflect the charm of their owners personality and turn them from merely trim well ordered beds of flowers to an interesting part of a woman's home.

"MRS ADE" HAS FOUND HUSBAND TO BE A FABLE

New Spouse Of Wealthy Widow Thought She Wed Noted Author

MACON, Ga., March 7. — "Mrs. George Ade," until six weeks ago Mrs. Tom Oxford, beautiful and reputed wealthy widow of Griffin, Ga., today found her husband's identity questioned.

Six weeks ago she was married to a man purporting to be the Indiana author, accompanying him into Alabama for the ceremony. Shortly afterwards, she accompanied her husband here.

His coming was announced by local newspapers and in an interview during the past week her husband told reporters he was writing his autobiography.

Last night newspapers became suspicious and located the other George Ade in Florida. After conversations over long distance telephone they classed the man here as a salesman for a local packing house.

He admitted selling meat; he "admitted" he was not George Ade, the author, too.

He was born in Kentland, Ind., he said, his home is in Brook, Ind., and he maintains another establishment in Brooklyn.

"Think as you will," he told reporters. "I can identify myself as George Ade."

HOUDINI RESIGNS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 7. — Harry Houdini, magician and exposer of bogus "spirit mediums," announced today that he had resigned from the American Society for Psychical Research after he had heard of the appointment of J. Malcom Bird as successor to Walter Franklin Prince as research officer of the society.

Houdini, who is appearing in a local theatre, issued a statement in which he accused Bird of "helping Margery" of Boston, who claimed powers of a medium, in her "manifestations for the Scientific American prize of $5,000.

DENTON HOMES BURN

DENTON, March 7.—Fanned by a high wind an early morning fire here destroyed five residences on North Blivar street, with an estimated loss of $16,000. Origin of the blaze has not been determined. Three of the destroyed dwellings were new, nearing completion.

SMITH SERVES COURT WRIT ON MARY FRANCES

Witness In Collier Case Is Put Under Bond Of $1,000 Saturday

A writ of attachment guaranteeing her appearance in court March 16, the date on which her father is to go to trial for the murder of Elzie Robertson, was served early Saturday morning on Mary Frances Collier, daughter of the former mayor. She was placed under $1,000 bond which was signed by her father, Frank Collier, and J. L. Mears.

The action was taken at the insistence of District Attorneys James V. Allred, who sought assurance that the girl, one of the important witnesses in the pending trial, would be available to testify. He went before Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court last Tuesday and secured the writ which was immediately placed in the hands of Sheriff Fred K. Smith for service.

The sheriff spent the rest of the week looking for her. One of his deputies told Mr. Allred Friday night he had gone to the Collier home early in the evening and asked if Mary Frances was there, was told by Mrs. Collier that she was but that he could not see her. Later in the night Sheriff Smith told newspaper reporters he didn't know where she was and thought she was out of town, but at 8 o'clock Saturday morning Deputy Sheriff Moore served the writ at the Collier residence, 904 Lamar. The bond was immediately perfected.

HOUSTON PLANS HOTEL.

New Ten-Story Building Will Be Erected in Near Future.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 7.—Construction of a ten-story hotel, to be named the Robert E. Lee, will be commenced here within the next few months, Percy Tyrrell, head of the Robert E. Lee hotel company announces. The structure will contain 200 rooms and will cost about $400,000. The site of the proposed hostelry has not yet been announced.

SCHOOL FUND DISTRIBUTED

Apportionment of Three Dollars Will Be Mailed.

AUSTIN, March 7.—(AP) — A school apportionment of $3 will be distributed March 12, Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs announced today. The total based on 1,321,000 will amount to $3,964,800, making one of the largest apportionments ever paid. This will make $9 of the $14 apportionment for this year.

Playing with Fire
The Story of a Social Climber
by Lucille Van Slyke

With which excuse for a funeral sermon, bestamped the earth down upon Miss Gwendolin McGinty's remains and went whistling off to find a stone to mark the place, Nannette at his heels, demanding.

"A trully biggish one—"

Rosalie looked down at the little heap of earth and laughed shakily.

"Poor little Gwen! She soliliquized. "If you hand't gotten into that particular fracas I suppose I'd be on the way to South American by now and—and—"suddenly she buried her face in her hands. She couldn't joke about it. She ran back up the path to the house, seeking the whimsical face of the man who had brought the little monkey to Nannette. What was it he had sai dthe day he brought it?

That she could learn a lot from Gwendolen? Droll, funny Larry! She wondered what Larry would say when he knew that she hadn't really learned anything from anybody—that she had messed up her whole life!

She went slowly upstairs to the charming new boudoir that was awaiting her. That had been a surprise to Quim's, that boudoir. Never did a more charming room await a woman than its delicate rosiness, it demure mixture of the sophisicated and naive. She sat down on a comfortable chaise longue, fingering its striped brocade of soft greens and mauves and rose. Such an absurd little pillow was lying across the top of it, a daintily embroidered thing!

"Rosy Lee" it said in tiny script.

"Rosy Lee."

Rosy Lee herself buried her face in the pillow. She couldn't cry, she could only lie there, numbly realising, what a wool she had been—what a fool she was!

CHAPTER 79
Divorce Will Happen in the Best of Regulated Families

Not a word did she hear from either Chet or Quim in the restless week that followed. But from a letter from Aunt Sarah she realized that the cowardly Chet hadn't broken his engagement with Jean but had let it drift along.

"I am sort of worried," Aunt Sarah wrote, "Chet is boarding over in Meadsport and Jean don't say a word about when they're fixing to get married. He came up to the house a couple of days after he came back from New York. They had some kin dof a set-to, but I guess they patched it up for they seemed to part fairly friendly and she is still wearing his ring but they do act queer for a bespoken couple. He is going to rent that bungalow here, says he guesses he will be in Meadsport mostly, if you'd ask me I'd say he acts awful indecisive, but then, I guess he always was that way, you know ho wmuch you used to complain about his not having much spunk."

She kept feverishly active daytimes, devoting herself to the enraptured Nannette, whose witsful happiness at being with her adored Rosy Lee almost broke her pretty step-mother's heart. They planted a garden together, getting gloriously muddy while the did. Voluntarily Nannie brought out the old school books and put in house at once bated, "Joggerphy and 'rithmetics." They went for long walks in the woods, getting violets and arbutus and all the while Nannette's joyful chatter made Rosalie feel like weeping.

"I guess we have the most fun ever, don't we?" Nannette asked the eventful day when they first attempted tennis on the rather soft court. "Oh, Rosy Lee!. Do you 'member how lonesome I was 'fore I found you?"

"Quim sent me down with Mr. Vernon," she said bluntly. "Perhaps you'd like to dress before you talk with him," her eyes rested on the brief skirt and the middy blouse in which Rosalie had been exercising. "My word!" she ejaculated suddenly, "how old are you? You look about silly seventeen!"

Rosalie's unhappy eyes looked twice that when she lifted them to Quim's sister. She put her arms around Nannette, hugged her close and suddenly bent and kissed her.

"I suppose," she said quietly, "Nannie is going to town with you—"

"I just won't!" Nannie giggled. "Any aunts that want to see us have a right to stay right here."

"Your father said that—"

"—I was to be a good girl and mind Rosalie, and I did—I do! Don't I Rosy Lee?"

"She's been awfully good," Rosalie's voice trembled. "Does she have to go—today?" she added patheticically.

Nannette wasn't listening to them any more. She was bouncing balls into the net.

"Aunty Dee" took hold of Rosalie's shoulders, looked straight into the younger woman's eyes and snapped out.

"I suppose divorces will happen in the best regulated families, but I must say, this one makes me simply ill! Run along, talk to that lawyer, I'll try to manage about Nannette the gest I can. Only—I wish from the bottom of my heart you'd been a beast of a step-mother instead of the playfellow you have been. You've not been fair, you've not! Quim may be able to find excuses for you, but I can't."

Rosalie dressed herself, slowly, looking out of the window at the two on the bench beside the tennis court. "Aunty Dee" had an arm about the child, she was evidently arguing and pleading, but presently the little girl ran toward the house screaming:

"Rosy Lee! Rosy Lee!"

She burst into the room like a whirlwind, tears streaming!

"Aunty Dee says that daddy doesn't love you any more! That you don't love daddy any more! That daddy has gone away and that I'm to go to live with her a while, and I won't. Oh, Rosy Lee, say yo ulove me, say you do!" She flung herself, sobbing, into Rosalie's arms.

"Then I shan't go away!" Nannette stopped crying. "I just shan't. And I shall tell daddy so. Why jus' think how vurry lonesome you'd be 'thout me!"

"I'll be very cross," Rosalie tried to speak lightly, "if you don't go down now, and be pleasant to Aunty Dee. Ask her for me, if she won't let you stay with me tonight. Tell her, oh, tell her. I'll need you tonight," she fled precipitately down the wide stairway, hurrying into the library, her face white with emotion.

The lawyer rose, held out his hand and when she saw how perturbed she was, patted her cold little hand reassuringly.

"Nothing to be that frightened about," he said calmly. "It seem very terrible now but you've made a mistake and you and your husband have found it out. He's behaving like a prince. You've nothing at all to worry about. He particularly enjoined me to see that you were not worried or bothered. He wants you to stay here comfortably, until things are arranged. HMendrickson will attend to your household bills and I am sure you will be amply satisfied with the settlement that Quim intends making for you."

"I can't stay here!" she burst out impetuously, "I can't let him give me anything, I can't take money from hi many longer!"

"My dear lady," he answered gravely, "if you will pardon me for saying so, I think the one decent thing you can do for my dear old friend Quim is—to stay here for the time being. He is horibly sensitive about the—er—gossip this unhappy affair has occasioned. Can't you see that if you dashed off right now you would make it appear that he had treated you very badly, that—"

"He hasn't," she interrupted eagerly. "He has been wonderful. It's I who—"

"—you've done nothing to be ashamed of," he interrupted in his turn. He adroitly launched into a long and tiresome and technical discourse which really did not mean very much to the unhappy girl.

Aloud she murmured lifeless assents to the man's suggestions.

His vague "some little time will be required" made her long to cry out "When?" but she didn't. She only said quietly.

"Tell Quim, I'll do just what he wants me to. But—oh, will you ask him this? Ask him if I can't have Nannette a little while longer? I'll take good care of her, I'll see she has lessons every day. She is lonesome and I'm lonesome and—oh, please ask him that!"

"It's ducedly irregular," he frowned. "I hardly know what to say, what to advise, I—er—will have to consult with him, I—why really, it's most irregular."

"She's very fond of me, I—Well, tell hi mthis. I won't make her hate me exactly, but I'll just be strict and stern with her, just as though I were only her governess, for, oh don't you see—it's wicked to take her away when she loves me as she does now? It will make her hate him—and she mustn't hate him—please make him see it that way!" she begged. "I can't stay unless I'm doing something—to pay him—"

CHAPTER 80
Compromises

Quim's sister, sitting opposite him in the sedate old restaurant in which they were lunching, spoke her mind.

"Admittedly, if Nannette weren't such an utterly spoiled kid, you'd not have such a problem on your hands. Mrs. Perry absolutely ruined her disposition and you've been much too indulgent. The result is that she is far too headstrong for anyone to manage."

"She behaves darned well with Rose, that we all know. Gets her lessons and has nice manners and doesn't go around looking like a tramp."

Dee sighed.

"That's ghastly true," she admitted. "Funny too, for Rose is really far more strict with her than we have ever been. I suppose it's because Rose has had that school ma'am traing that we lack."

"If you meant that to be cattish," he retorted, "I don't mind saying I think it's pretty small of you. It's no disgrace to be a school teacher!"

"You peppery dear!" his sister laughed. "I didn't mean it to be cattish, I stated it as a fact. I swear, Quim I can't make you out. Here you are, divorcing her—"

"She is divorcing me," he reminded her.

"Why quibble? You're letting her divorce you because you're a chivalrous old goose. If you can't be frank with me about it, I shall wash my hands of the whole business. Admittedly you married her from mistaken motives—partly—and partly because you were sore at Dicke. You discovered she doesn't care about you that she's still in love with her childhood sweetheart and he in love with her. You are giving her up to him. She's made a perfect fool of you, and you tell me you don't love her and yet you sit there and defend her and calmly propose to leave your daughter with her all summer."

"What else can I do?" the perplexed man asked. "Nannie won't go to her grandmother. She won't go to you. We never had a governess who stayed on the job more than a month. The only school that could ever hold her was the one where Rose was teaching, and the kid swears if I try to put her in some summer camp she'll run away. I can't tote her out west with me and leave her around in hotel bedrooms, you know that—and she promises to behave if I'll let her stay with Rose.

"Then what will you do, eh? The break won't be any easier when the day comes when she can't stay with Rose. Even if Rose were willing to keep her, the handsome hero isn't going to want to start his love's young dream burdened with his pretty sweetheart's step-child. If you have Nannette's happiness at heart the quicker you take her away from Rosalie the better, I say."

"Yes, I thought that. But Lordy, Dee, if you'd heard the poor child! Cried her eyes out, almost. I couldn't drag her off hawling like that. Rose was expected back at the house at 4 o'clock, it was going to be darned awkward if I stayed any longer so I—well, I told Nannie to stop howling and stay another night at least and I'd telephone her today. I can't see any particular harm in the arrangement. It's nobody's business but ours. Except for the lawyers and the persons directly concerned. Nobody knows that we're separating," he grinned faintly.

"Leaving Nannette with Rose will almost kill old lady Perry—she'll die of curiosity! She was darned sure there was a smash!"

"Well, there was!" his sister reminded him bluntly.

He gestured wearily.

"No need to keep harping on it. I'm off tonight, will be gone three or four weeks, maybe five, this trip, I thought maybe days you happened to be near you'd drop in, sort of keep an eye on things, let me know if—"

"Quim!" she exclaimed, utterly exasperated, "that will make it look still more as though nothing had happened!"

"Which is quite the best way for things to look right now," he said. "And—er—well, if you happen to see the girls at the Country club do be nice."

"Country club? What on earth would that child and Rose be doing over there?"

"Nannie wants to learn to play golf. She knows I'm fond of it. I suspect it is rather Rosalie's idea. We—she—I'd planned to teach them both this summer and the kid had talked about it a lot and Rose evidently thought it wouldn't be a bad scheme to go on with it. They are going three mornings a week. I arranged for the lessons."

SATURDAY'S FIELD NEWS

Gambrell Duster
Gray County
Throckmorton Test

Texhoma, Gambrell

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company has completed its second dry hole on its Gambrell lease in the Murchison and Fain pool BBB&CRR survey, abstract 31, northwest of Olney, north Young county, its No. 6, a location west of No. 1, and a southwest diagonal location to the No. 1, in the northeast corner of the lease having shown about a foot of oil sand at 1,229 feet from which it was impossible to make a well. The hole is being abandoned at a total depth of 1,234 feet.

Ruff-Weekly, Bellamy

Ruff and Weekley are drilling at about 1,840 feet in their No. 1, Waggoner, after setting 6 5-8 inch casing below fifteen feet of water sand at 1,800 feet, southwest of Harrold, located in the northwest corner of the southeast forty acres of section 11, H&TCRR survey, block 14, Wilbarger county.

Consolidate, Bellamy

The Consolidated Oil company is drilling below 1,400 feet on its No. 1, Bellamy, located in the Profitt area of Young county, south of the Brazos river. The well has a 1,500-foot contract to fulfill.

Gray County Well

Clark-Harbin-Baldridge are drilling again past a string of tools in the hole in their No. 1, Coombs and Worley, near Pampa, Gray county, with about 6,000,000 feet of gas showing from a first sand below 2,800 feet. It is expected to pick up the real pay of the Wilcox well sometime within the next fifty or sixty feet.

Atlantic, Zipperle

The Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 1, Zipperle, is drilling past a last reported depth of 300 feet, while the No. 2, offsetting Humble's well to the east is spudded and drilling. The No. 1, is located in the southwest corner of the Atlantic 40 acres in section 80, offsetting Gulf's well to the north, fishing at 1,190 feet.

Camp, Benson

Camp Oil and Gas company has abandoned its No. 1, S. M. J. Benson, located in the TE&LCO survey, block 1477, three miles south of the Benson pool, north Young county. Total depth was given as 1,219 feet.

Dee Bros., Mangold

The Dee Brothers have completed their No. 4, Mangold, block 21, Mangold sub-division, northwest Archer county, for a small shallow producer from 6 feet of sand at 650 feet. The test in block 35 is looking for the 1,800-foot sand, drilling at about 1,760 feet.

Texhoma-Burns, Hamilton

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company-Burns-Golding are drilling past 599 feet in their No. 1, Doctor Hamilton, located near the southeast corner of the west half of the BBB&CRR survey, abstract 46, block 6, north of the Gambrell pool, south Archer county.

Ross, Throckmorton

The Ross Mineral interests have pulled eight-inch casing and are drilling past 800 feet in their No. 1, Travis County School lands, northwest corner of section 11, Travis County School lands, north Throckmorton county.

Casing was set to test with fourteen feet of sand picked up at 757 feet, cores of which showed considerable oil but which bailed dry.

The well is indicated on the map as the "McNeil" well, McNeil having got up the block. It is a 2,000-foot test, drilled by James A. Jones.

Petroleum Producers

Petroleum Producers are putting their No. 13, Maer-Staniforth, southwest of Iowa Park in the Roberts and [illegible] pool on the pump for a 125-150 barrel well, sand at 1,759-68 feet.

Consolidated, Waggoner

Consolidated Oil company was making the locations yesterday for their No.'s 1 and 2, Waggoner, in sections 43 and 7, section 43 being ME&PRR survey, abstract 491, and section 7 in block 4, H&TCRR survey, southeast Wilbarger county.

The wells will be located just south of the road between the dam and Rock Crossing on Beaver creek. It is hoped to get started at once on the derricks.

Wichita Output Up 500 Barrels

Production in the Wichita Falls district, comprising Wichita, Archer, Clay, and Wilbarger counties (north Young included in Archer report) increased 500 barrels during the past week over the period ending a week ago. The increase was due rather to a cleanup in field storage rather than completion of new wells.

Figures by districts follow:

Electra	17,545
Iowa Park	3,890
Burkburnett	15,630
South Vernon	5,200
Archer county	41,510
Clay county	390
Total	84,165
Wichita	37,065
Archer	41,510
Clay	390
Wilbarger	5,200

NEW FIELD OPENED NEAR FORT COLLINS

FORT COLLINS, Colo., March 7.—With the Ver Straten well of the Fort Collins producing corporation drilled only about 18 inches into the oil sands at a depth of 4,502 1-2 feet it is flowing oil at the rate of between 1,400 and 1,500 barrels a day, according to an official announcement by Charles H. Sherman, Rocky Mountain manager for the company.

This is the first producing well in a new oil field area. It was brought in Wednesday.

65 Drilling Contracts On Estate Alone

Keys et al Get Gas Flow at 1,025 Feet; Drilling Deeper

NOBLE NOT IN YET

Entire County Booming in Eleventh Hour Exploitation

Prospective development for the Waggoner pasture centering on eastern Wilbarger county in the territory generally speaking, between South Vernon and South Electra, with other portions of the county not being neglected by any means, was the outstanding feature of last week's developments in this district.

According to Robt. Moore, manager of the Waggoner estate, drilling wells, and wells that will be drilling within thirty days, on the estate numbered 65 at that time, probably the largest number of wildcat wells ever going at one time on one man's property in the history of the oil industry. The locations included in the number above are all bound by more or less iron-clad contracts. Two of the number are in Baylor county, one is an offset to production, six are west of the Sigler field. With five operations under way in north Wilbarger one west of Vernon, and possibly five locations in eastern Wilbarger that are not on Waggoner property, another in southern Wilbarger on the Parker ranch, the county's rank wildcat operations, actual and prospective within 30 days may be totaled as somewhere around 85 in number, this not including border wells in South Vernon or any development there.

Will Make Or Break Wilbarger.

It is doubtful if any one stretch of territory were ever played at one time in the thorough fashion that seems imminent for Wilbarger county now—certainly not where the inducement in actual wells completed has been as low as is the case in Wilbarger now.

Up until Friday night the Noble well retained its old status—very likely a good well, but with a bad hole that may never permit the knowledge as to just how good it really might have been. At that time the job of running the small casing, 3½ inches in diameter, with two packers especially made for the small pipe, had not been completed, and the final verdict on the well was being withheld pending its windup.

Three derricks are going up now within sight of the well, and another just beyond the hills to the northwest. McKana is erecting derricks for tests in the northeast corner of the west half of section 32, block 4, a half-mile due south of the well, and one in the southwest corner of section 48, block 4, about 3,000 feet northeast of the well. Murchison and Fain's derrick for a rotary test is up in the southwest corner of the southeast forty acres of the southeast quarter of section 32, block 4, about two miles southeast of the well, while Magnolia is about up two miles northwest in the northwest corner of the south half of the southeast quarter of section 59, block 4.

Second Levy Derrick.

The second derrick is up and a rig being built in the Levy pool in section 65, block 14, the location being the Levy-Kane-Morton combination's No. 2, across the section line in the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 51, an east offset to the producer, now on the pump from sand at 1,417-39½ feet.

To facilitate operations here Waggoner Refining company has laid a four-inch water line from Rock Crossing on Beaver creek to take care of drilling. The water situation promises as many difficulties in Wilbarger county as in Archer county when once development starts, and the estate has posted large signs in every derrick cautioning operators against the waste of water, and warning them that the supply is limited.

East of Levy et al and a half mile due north of Gulf's ten day sensation of two week's ago Burton and Ruff were setting ten-inch casing at 1,320 feet to case off a water sand, encountered slightly below the depth where it was expected to pick up the gas and oil found in the Gulf test at 1,287 feet.

In the southeast quarter of section 37, Keys-Eslek-Sheerin-McCamey got a sand showing a small gas pressure at 1,025 feet, the same showing being encountered in the Gulf well at 1,082 feet. The gas has been cased off and the well is drilling ahead.

Gulf is drilling ahead on its well, also, past 1,300 feet.

Summary.

Last reports on other Wilbarger tests follow:

Consolidated No. 1, Waggoner, located near the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of block 27, J. Poitevent survey, abstract 531, rigging up.

Hoffer No. 1, Waggoner, SE of NE 40 of SE 1-4 of section 49, block 4, casing off a water sand at 1,335 feet.

Ruff-Weekley No. 1, Waggoner, NW of SE 40 of SE 1-4 of section 11, block 14, drilling at about 1,890 feet.

W. D. Wells, No. 1, Waggoner, SE of NW 1-4 of section 21, block 14, drilling up a bailer at 800 feet.

Levy-Kane et al No. 1, Wheeler, underreaming six-inch pipe at 1,625 feet, SW corner of the north half of the northeast quarter of section 56, block 14.

MORE WILDCATTING, MEXICO.

Dutch Shell Subsidiary Starts Work on 100,000 Acre Tract.

PUERTO, Mexico, Veracruz, Mar. 7.—Cia. Mexicana-Holandesa, "La Corona," S. A. Royal Dutch Shell subsidiary in Mexico, is preparing to start wildcatting on its 100,000 acres at Canton Acayucan, Veracruz, on a structure which, from geological reports, appears to be of the same salt dome structure as the Mexican Eagle and Mexican Seaboard companies found around Minatitlan. It is 75 kilos west of Puerto, Mexico

Knox County Play Prospective Within Year; County Looms As Likely Territory For Wildcat Campaign

Knox county, a hundred miles southwest of Wichita Falls, and a territory comprising some 300,000 acres, or 450 square miles, is booked to take its share in the wildcat play that is occurring in the counties adjoining production in this district. Just how far removed this active play is from the present time is still a matter of conjecture, but it is safe to say that another year will see much more activity than the two lone derricks within the county's confines now.

When the rapid changes from one territory to another that have taken place within the last year are taken into consideration, and it is seen how first, north Archer, then south Archer, north Young county, and now eastern Wilbarger and Throckmorton and Baylor counties have received their attention from operators it is not hard to imagine the time when another stride will carry drilling a step further westward in Knox, Foard and Hardeman counties, the western portions of which are all generally conceeded to lie within the zone of the Marathon Fold.

Major Water Shed.

A surface high, a major water shed that segregates the Mississippi basin and the drainage basins of the rivers that empty into the Gulf of Mexico west and south of the Mississippi mouth, cuts Knox county fairly half in two, the Wichita river and the Brazos, one flowing into Red river and thence to the Mississippi, and the other direct into the Gulf of Mexico have their channels within 25,000 feet of each other, and in places have eroded out what is almost the same bottom land.

This water shed, running from the west just north of Plainview from the Panhandle country and New Mexico, passes directly through the central part of Knox county, through the little town of Benjamen, into Baylor county just north of Seymour, turning south to take in, generally speaking, Swastika, the Harmel pool, the Gambrell pool, the Ragle area, Carey district, and other smaller producing sections in south Archer, forking at the Ragle pool to make room for the Trinity river, one branch of the surface high running north by Anarene through Clay county and Montague, and the other following a route almost midway between the Brazos and Trinity to the Gulf.

Southeast—Northwest.

It is notable that the so-called producing trend in south Archer, that is northwest-southeast is directly in the line of this water shed, trace it out on your map.

This high crosses Baylor county with its supposedly synclinal subsurface, but should encounter subsurface conditions more favorable to crude production once within the limits of Knox county where there is certainly another upthrow whether it be due to the influence of the Marathon fold or not, a log of an old well in southern Foard county having shown the carboniferous elevated 500 feet above the normal depth at that point.

Two Drilling Walls Now.

At present two wells are being drilled in Knox county, one of Sanders and others just north of the Goree townsite, and down somewhere below 800 feet, with a good oil and gas show below 700 feet, and the other north of Knox City in the southwestern part of the county, shut down for boiler trouble at about 2,150 feet after encountering three gas shows at approximately 1,200, 1,550 and 1,800 feet during its drilling. Both wells are south of the Brazos, however and not on the general high.

Another block is being worked up south of Goree, also.

So far as is known this is the extent of present activity in the county, but with activity ever westward and no place too wild to drill this county may be expected to take its place with Baylor and Throckmorton as an area for wildcat play, and must be looked upon as a large potential producing county.

Drilling Starts Up in Mitchell County

COLORADO, March 7. — The Mitchell county oil field is on the eve of the largest development program since the discovery well was drilled in five years ago. Posted advances totalling 60 cents per barrel an Mitchell county crude and the further good fortune that production in this county is in direct line along the Marathon Fold with the big producers in Reagan county is the dual factor inducing operators to inaugurate an extensive drilling program.

The California company, subsidiary of the Standard of California, and largest corporation operating in Mitchell county, has made a total of five new locations on its properties during the week. The company has four wells drilling, two of which, Morrison 12 and Arabras 2-1, are on top of the pay.

The Eastland Oil company, West Texas Developing and Refining, Sloan & Owens and the Northwest company all report new locations, some of which are ready to spud. A total of 25 new wells are scheduled to be drilled in the field.

Crude storage in the field and at tank farm of the Anderson-Prichard corporation, is placed at 20,000 barrels. Pipe lines opened by the Rio Grande Oil compan of El Paso, and the Anderson-Prichard corporation, are being pumped to capacity in moving the oil to refineries. The Rio Grande Oil company is shipping crude from Spedeene to El Paso, while the other line runs from the field direct to refinery at Colorado.

The Magnolia Petroleum company has recently leased a suite of five rooms in a Colorado building as the headquarters of a corps of field representatives who are operating in this vicinity.

A number of prominent oil men of Dallas, Eastland, Oklahoma and Ohio spent several days on a trip of inspection of the field this week.

Daily production in the field is placed at 1,600 barrels, pumped from a battery of 35 producing wells. Oil men declare that the field here is to be one of long life. Wells drilled four and five years ago continue to pump oil every day.

Five Producers in Liberty Field

HOUSTON, March 7.—Two new wells in the new Gulf coast field, south Liberty county, has brought the number of producers there to five and the production to 4,000 barrels daily. It now bids fair to become a major pool but aside from a failure south of the cluster of five wells, it remains undefined and every outside well is a wildcat. The Texas company posted a price of $2 for the oil and the other three buyers there met it. The oil is regular grade "A" coastal crude.

Vaccum Oil company No. 1, Barrett, completed last Sunday for 3,000 barrels initial, is the best well yet. It did 2,900 barrels Thursday. Other completions are Winfree et al, Pickett No. 1, 700 barrels; Mills-Bennett's Pickett No. 1-B 800 barrels, Oxford Oil company No. 1, Harrison, 900 barrels; Mills-Bennett's Pickett No. 2-B 400 to 500 barrels of 38 gravity, leading to the conclusion that it is on the edge of the salt dome there.

Kirby Petroleum company and Munson Hodges No. 3 is a 90-barrel well at 3,006 feet in Hardin county, a short distance from Batson, the only wildcat that got oil last week.

A February summary shows 59 completions, 39 producers and 20 failures for 10,806 barrels initial production, against 48 completions, 27 oil wells, 21 failures and 11,399 barrels initial production in January.

New Smackover Pay Is Proven

32 Drilling Contracts Let For Wells to New Horizon

SMACKOVER, Arkansas, Mar. 7.—The new pay in the Smackover Union county, Arkansas, field found by Broderick & Calvert, Fort Worth operators, at 2,405 feet last week, has been definitely proven. Hicks and others have a 700-barrel well in the same pay in section 3-16-15. Broderick & Calvert's No. 2, center of the north half of the northwest quarter, section 8-16-15, which did 1,100 barrels the first day, 1,000 the second and 800 Tuesday.

As a result of the finding of this new pay, gravity of which is 21.2 Beaume and cuts but five-tenths of one per cent, 32 drilling contracts have been let by operators holding acreage nearby. The Hicks well is three miles east of the Broderick & Calvert producer.

BAZETTE'S TALE SEEMS TOLD WITH BOTH WELLS REGARDED AS FAILURES BY OPERATORS

Humphreys-Boyd Bails Dry at 3,058 Feet, And Takes Another Core of Sand And Shale Showing Only a Little Oil

FORT WORTH, Mar. 7.—Bazette's super-structure, touted and boosted until it brought millions to northeastern Navarro county, is today confessedly a disappointment, and he millions that were spent by the big companies for protection in what was acclaimed the Balcones next wonder pool are being charged off in most cases as a bet on a hole card that failed to pan out. The geology was good, but in the words of Sir Oliver Redwood, "Oil is found where oil exists," and there is a unanimity of opinion now that if oil exists at Bazette it is in small quantities, and that the field there, if ever such there be will not amount to more than Currie, a gasser here, and oiler here, and then some more gassers.

It is the precedent in Woodbine history that gas along the fault line indicates either absence of oil or its presence in small quantities only. Atlantic-Penn-Windsor's No. 1, Abshire, on the north side of the fault is a 20,000,000 cubic foot gasser since the first of the week. On the upthrow side of the fault line Humphreys-Boyd's No. 1, Walthall, bailed dry Friday morning to 3,058 feet, took another core of sand and shale, showing very little oil, and at 3,059 feet late Friday afternoon was preparing to go further into the Woodbine series.

Humphreys Higher.

The Humphreys-Boyd well is 15 feet higher than the Atlantic et al, well, less than 800 feet away, and thus lacks eight feet of being as deep as the gasser, sand there being at 3,080-86 feet.

Since the race to get down started three weeks ago with Colonel Humphreys impatient to be acclaimed the discoverer of another fault line pool, and Atlantic et al sure of geology and a right location the midcontinent has seen visions of another crude collapse to follow new Wortham.

A large number of dry holes had narrowed the fault line down to a little more than a thousand feet. Geologists told the companies that if they would drill between two dry holes, in a section where there was a noticeable structure, that if there was oil at Bazette they would find it. It is doubtful if a single pool in the Woodbine sand had such an auspicious beginning.

The glowing reports sent millions to the field, one company alone spending $750,000 for a half interest in a tract that it had bought the other half interest in for a quarter million in the days gone by. Acreage sold for a thousand oil and a thousand cash, and even higher. The farmers in many cases became so enriched by the lease money and royalty cash they were paid by the speculators that they announced this year they'd take it easy and not plant their crops.

Atlantic Leads.

The wells spudded three weeks ago Sunday, Atlantic getting the lead on the Humphreys well, which got the chalk low, and little was expected of it, but Humphreys got the chalk high, went out of it high, and into a seemingly non-productive stratum where the oil was expected.

It is the opinion of operators now that the pool will lie further to the south if at all, that it will be small, if at all, and that the crude market need not expect the worst any longer.

In the meantime attention is turning to other spots along the fault.

In Hunt county Marland Oil company's No. 1, Bauknight fee. J. Hamilton survey, was coring Friday at 2,858 feet in a formation suspected of being the Woodbine which was looked for at about that depth. Its chalk record is given as 1,888-2, 2,223 feet.

Lockhart Area.

At Lockhart the Brewer well, seven miles north of the townsite in Caldwell county, is being given a production test after a good show through the mud at 1,252 feet, with the indication pointing to a well of some sort.

United North and South Oil company's No. 1, Callahan, ten miles southwest of the Brewer discovery well is giving a shot of nitro at 2,700 feet.

WOODBINE WELLS AVERAGE 133 BBLS.

The five Woodbine sand fields in East central Texas produced 6,331,800 barrels from 1,531 pumping and flowing wells in January. Production was distributed as follows:

Wortham	158	3,514,200	717
Powell	749	1,788,500	77
Mexia	465	626,450	43
Richland	94	357,550	123
Currie	65	45,100	22
Totals	1,531	6,331,800	133

For the 24 hours ending 7 a. m. Friday, the newest of the five fields, Wortham, did 77,000 barrels from 281 wells, an increase of one well and 1,000 barrels.

Sooner Recovery Only 13 Million

Tonkawa Is Still Leading Factor With 2,703,708 Barrels

The state of Oklahoma during the 28 days of February recovered 13,681,920 barrels of crude oil, according to the current issue of the Oil Weekly. This total is slightly less than that of the previous month but is due to February being a short month.

Tonkawa district continued to be the leading factor in production in the state with 2,703,708 barrels output. The majority of which is coming from the deep sand wells there. The Gilerease-Papoose pool of northern Hughes county and southern Okfuskee county showed a small increase due to activity in the northern extension area.

Following is the monthly summary of Oklahoma production by fields:

Tonkawa	2,703,708
Burbank	1,606,220
Bristow	1,500,672
Gilcrease-Papoose	1,005,904
Cromwell	1,051,892
Osage	897,736
Okmulgee	788,648
Cushing	610,708
Hewitt	475,328
Healdton	325,108
Wewoka	312,788
Otoe	240,576
Duncan & Walters	221,592
Stroud	78,092
Braman	71,156
Other fields	1,731,156

M. & V. Tank Co. Adds to Plant Here

The M. & V. Tank company has bought the large steel building which was erected in Scotland addition by the National Tank company of St. Louis during the early days of the oil boom and will use it in its plant expansion program. The three lots on which the building stands were also purchased.

This property adjoins the M. & V. five acres. New machinery will immediately be added which will increase the company's output. The increasing demand for M. & V. welded tanks and sight flow separators has necessitated the expansion. According to Amos Mitchell, they are now operating the largest welded tank plant in Texas.

CRUDE ADVANCE

CASPER, Wyo., March 7.—The Ohio Oil company today announced an advance of 23 cents per barrel in the posted field price of Sunburst (Montana) crude oil, making the new price $1.40 per barrel.

Katy Abandoning Use Of Fuel Oil In 24 Locomotives North Of Red River; Entire System May Follow

Thrickmorton-Baylor Lively

Wells in Southeastern Baylor County at Important Stage

Activity in Throckmorton and Baylor counties, already assuming the greatest proportions that the two counties have ever seen is apt to crystalize this week, especially in the case of Baylor county, with the outcome of three or four tests now at a stage where every development carries more than ordinary interest.

In southeast Baylor county Maer-Staniforth-Cranfill are drilling past a last reported depth of 1,605 feet in hard lime in their No. 1, Leathers, TE&LCO survey, block 3119, northwest of Westover, with the sand, is west of Westover.

On the Cockrell Andrade and McGregor are down past 1,425 feet in hard lime, and looking for a sand, block 2404, due south of Westover.

Due north of Westover Richardson Brothers are drilling past 1,595 feet in hard lime looking for their sand last Thursday, No. 1, Wallace estate, Martha Trammel survey, abstract 963.

Skinner et al, No. 1, Mrs. M. A. Mitchell, block 2152, TE&LCO survey, dry and abandoned at 1,604 feet.

C. F. Kelsey No. 1, W. D. Housley, BB&CRRCO survey, block 291, shut down at 50 feet and preparing to start up again.

Increased Crude Oil Prices Add Million And a Half To Katy's Fuel Bill.

Owing to the high cost of fuel oil, which has showed an increase of nearly a half dollar so far as the contract price of the Missouri, Kansas, Texas railroad is concerned since the first of the year that railroad has begun the dismantling of oil burning equipment and the reversion to the old coal burners on 24 locomotives used on the 160 mile of Sedalia district Missouri. It is intended eventually to rework all oil burners north of Red river into coal burners.

The Katy buys its fuel oil on a percentage of posted crude prices basis The recent increases, based on the 1924 consumption have meant an increase of $1,500,000 in the Katy's fuel bill, hence the change. Oil burning equipment on the Katy dates back more than five years to a contract with the Mexican Petroleum company for Mexican fuel oil at $1.35 a barrel, approximately a third of which was to be spent by the Mex-Petroleum company in equipping Katy engines to burn oil. This contract expired the first of this year.

The Katy is a large purchaser of fuel oil, and the eventual removal of a large part of their system from the refiners' market will not be very satisfying locally where the road has been a large crude purchaser. Among other roads to take similar steps of late is the Rock Island.

MARLAND STARTS DEEP BEXAR TEST

Marland Oil company of Texas is starting its first deep test in Somerset, on the Binz tract, outside the shallow production in Bexar county, and will drill an Edwards lime test. Marland and several other companies are interested in a test about to start in Frio county, nine miles northwest of Pearsall, which will be drilled by independent interests. Marland has also taken some extensive blocks in various localities in southwest Texas, particularly in the Mirando district and in Bexar county.

C'est La Maison Beaute De Record News

WITH the beautiful spring weather to help, the construction of the Record News Home Beautiful has made rapid strides during the past week and with a continuation of good weather will be ready for inspection before many weeks.

Shown above are two views taken early last week—the lower picture showing the southeast appearance and the upper showing the home from the northwest corner.

"Everything is coming along in great shape," said Mark D. Walker, of the firm of Mytinger and Walker, builders of the Home Beautiful, yesterday. "I know that the home will prove a delightful surprise to Wichita Falls and will set a real example in modern home construction."

* * *

Furnishings.

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the furnishing of the home just the minute the carpenters and the interior workers complete their work, said Burton Stayton of the Frear Furniture company, who have the furnishing of the home in charge. Much time and thought have been given this important phase of home building and when the furniture and draperies are finally placed the general public will realize how beautiful and practical the right furniture can make a home. Each room in the home will receive individual treatment and each will prove a fitting example of Frear service.

* * *

The Kitchen.

ONE of the most important rooms in any home is the kitchen. The Municipal Gas company will furnish the gas for heat and for cooking and the Noble Little Hardware company will furnish the model gas range for the kitchen. The newest ideas in refrigeration will be brought out by the Wichita Falls Electric company when the Servell electric refrigerator is placed in the home. A great deal of interest has been manifest in this refrigeration plant and Mr. Ivers of the Electric company has planned an active demonstration to be held during the exhibition week.

* * *

The Bath Room.

HERE is a place where modern treatment and the newest designs in bath room fixtures will make their bow to the public. The tile bath will prove a decided innovation to the public. The Wichita Falls Builders Supply company are furnishing the tile for the bath room.

* * *

Other Features.

ENTERTAINMENT will not be lacking at the Home Beautiful according to the Maxwell & Son Hardware company, who will install the very latest in modern radio sets. The Decorators company have been selected to furnish the pictures for the home and the various decorative effects throughout the home. The interior trims, which will be important factors in creating harmony of design are furnished by the Naylor Collins company. The Electric Specialty company will see that the Home Beautiful is wired just right and that every necessary outlet for the use of electricity is provided. The Wichita Floral company will demonstrate the important part that flowers and plants have in making a Home Beautiful. Piggly Wiggly will furnish a complete supply of groceries, meat and bread for the home.

* * *

The Garage.

EVERY home should have a first class garage and one that is in keeping with the home itself. The Home Beautiful will have just such a garage and the garage will house the new Nash car which will be the official car of the Home Beautiful.

Sherwin Williams paints and varnishes will be used throughout the interior and exterior of the home. The beautiful brick effect that will prove one of the distinctive touches to the Home Beautiful will be constructed of brick furnished by the Texas Brick and Supply company.

Next week will see important developments on the home and all the public is invited to drive by the home and see it under construction. It is located in one of the most beautiful sections of the city—on 1826 Pearl street.

Howe About The Sermon and The Circus, Booze, December and June Love, By Ed Howe.

IN the old days, circus men were nearly all thieves; what was called a circus was really a poor show intended to collect crowds of people, and pick their pockets.

It is related that one of the most noted circus owners of fifty years ago was a great thief. He organized not a company of clever performers, but of clever confidence men.

But dishonesty was troublesome and expensive. It was necessary to buy up the officers of the law everywhere. Circuses came to be so cordially hated that when one appeared in a town, all the rough necks for miles around collected, to break up the performance, and whip the circus men, if they could.

In addition to a gang of confidence men, it was necessary for a circus owner to carry prize fighters.

As a result of all this trouble, the circus owners made little money; I do not recall one who made a fortune.

The old type of circus finally became bankrupt, because of dishonest management, and honesty was tried. Modern circus men are decent in every way. The money formerly spent on prize fighters and confidence men is now devoted to clever acts and great spectacles. Circus people, from performers to stake drivers, are well behaved. The coming of a circus means a great holiday, and people flock to it, knowing they will be treated fairly. Modern circus owners, operating honestly, have made great fortunes. In the old days, porch climbers and pickpockets were carried with every circus. The modern circus owner employs detectives to see that no thieves follow him. The people may safely leave their houses, unprotected, and attend the big show, which is always a good one.

AND makes a fortune for its owner. Every dishonest, idle, tricky man may thrive if he will become honest. It is the first necessity of life. The industrious, fair, polite and useful man is respected, and makes money; the idle, tricky, man is not respected, and does not make money.

Anyone should be able to find the moral.

Although not a religious man, I believe the world is better off with the present religious activity than it would be without religion. It at least seems to be true that nations without religion have not prospered as well as nations with it. I am not one of those who believe only religious people are hyprocrites. Free thinkers probably equal or surpass them in hypocrisy. A socialist does not believe in half he pretends to believe in. Half the stock in trade of a professional literary man is hypocrisy, and the musician or artist is worse.

• • •

YOU must have observed that as soon as people marry, literature quits them, so far as love is concerned: after marriage literature is busy with wrangling. In a newspaper of recent date, I saw seven accounts of wives shooting husbands. In plays the story closes with marriage; thereafter the record is supposed to be so bad that it is not proper to lay before women and children. According to literature, wives and husbands never like each other—what is it wives and husbands discover about each other that is so atrocious? Are wives and husbands natural enemies, as are foxes and hounds?

I have seen beautiful cemeteries—but it is a form of beauty I do not care for.

Nearly forty years ago there lived in my town a handsome young fellow who was generally admired. He went away one day, and returned with a bride; a pretty and amiable girl who at once captured all of us. Altogether, they were about the nicest young couple I ever knew, and I knew them pretty well—The young man was promising in business, and soon was called to larger responsibilities. I did not see them from that day until the 1st of December, 1924. On my way to Florida, I had a considerable wait in St. Louis, and, knowing my old friend was president of a big concern there, went to see him. We lunched with them in the Statler hotel; a rather mournful pleasure. It seemed a pity that such handsome young people should become old. They are grandparents now, and still handsome in an elderly way; still fond of each other; still notably nice people, but somehow the ravages of nearly forty years seemed a particular pity in their case—I suppose my looks shocked them, too, but I have slowly become accustomed to my present condition, and it does not seem so surprising.

• • •

AT a recent general election, a great proportion of the best people opposed socialism. Righ or wrong, every really important state in the union decided against Lenine. LaFollette, Brookhart, MacDonald, Wheeler, Bryan, and every brand of socialism. The farmers who own the best land were against it; so were all the great manufacturers, bankers, engineers, transportation chiefs. The best workingmen refused to follow their leaders into the socialist camp. Is it possible that the great majority of the best and most useful people in this country are wrong, and the socialist leaders right? Are seven-tenths of the best people we have devoted to injustice, and opposed to liberty? If you accept the socialist doctrine, you must proceed from the premise that the best people in the country have no sense of fairness, and wish to rob the poor.

I have just received a letter from an intelligent man who lately made a trip through the west. Of one famous western town he says: "Everywhere I went it was booze, booze. I had to stop going visiting because too much booze was served. One gets tired, weary and discouraged with all the hospitality offered along with liquor." This is the west; the east is worse.

• • •

WHEN an old man marries a young woman and has great trouble (as is usually the case), a woman always says:

"I am glad of it. He deserves it. He should have known better."

When a handsome young man of twenty-five meets a girl of about his own age, and there is an explosion, the women do not say:

"Im glad of it. She deserves it. She should have known better."

I think an old man who marries a young wife, and is terribly punished, is entitled to the same sympathy we give a baby who overturns a kettle of hot water on its head;

So is the young girl who engages in a contest with a young man, and is beaten.

• • •

OLD men are worsted in marrying young women because the cards are stacked against them. The old Mohammedans had young wives, and claimed it kept them young, but the cards were not stacked against them.

When a man loses in a contest with a woman, it is because the men, meeting as a legislature, have dealt the women the best hand.

Neil O'Brien Minstrels Here March Twelfth

Show Promise To "Step On The Gas" At Palace Thursday

Minstrelsy in its best form presented with all the modern accessories of lighting effects, beautiful scenery and costumes will be presented at the Palace matinee and night, Thursday, March 12, by Neil O'Brien and his minstrel company. When the curtain goes up on this season's production it will be found that class was foremost in the producer's mind and the entertainment will be new throughout and with the assistance of the country's best artists in their different lines, Mr. O'Brien has succeeded in being able to present what he feels confident is his best show in years.

Many new and startling features will be found in the second part of the show and keeping pace with the present day times in which speed and pep predominate, Mr. O'Brien has injected this into his program and the slang phrase "step on the gas" is used by this stage director in all things where it is possible to use speed.

The old fashioned idea that all female parts played in a minstrel program should be dressed in calico wrappers and misfit gowns has also been abandoned in this season's entertainment and enough money has been spent in having up-to-date gowns made to clothe a chorus for any New York revue. However, the result is startling in its beauty.

Among the new features of the second part of the performance is a new act written and staged by Mr. O'Brien and in which that famous blackface comedian will appear, entitled "Hot Dog" and is said to be the funniest he has ever been able to conceive.

The list of arists is a large and notable one and includes: Neil O'Brien, Billy Beard, "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, Tex Hendrix, James Berardi, Master Tommy LaZear, Dave Jourdan, Walter Anderson, Billy Henderson, Walter Arnold, Jack Blake, Tommy Sherry, Billy Redd, Les Laird, Chas. R. Wright, Herman Williams, Sherman Carr, Geo. Bracken, Chas. Leahy, Joseph Cronin, Chas. Dooley, Russell Orser, Virgil Bessy, and Spencer Westbrook.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 7. — Will Hamilton, negro, was found guilty in district court here last week of theft in connection with the theft of several automobile tires, and sentenced to serve two years in the state penitentiary. His brother, Clarence, who was charged with the same offense as Will, was released.

CASE FILED ON BORGLUM WILL BE DISMISSED

North Carolina Governor Requests City Solicitor To Drop Action

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 7.—Receipt of a telegram from Governor Clifford Walker here this afternoon at 2:55 o'clock indicated that the case against Gutzon Borglum, Stone mountain sculptor, had been dropped. The governor requested City Solicitor C. W. Ramspeck of Decatur, Ga., to see that "present requisition papers were withdrawn."

Two telegrams were received, the first from Governor Walker in an official notification that the request for the requisition papers was to be withdrawn and asking that Ramspeck act as the agent of the state of Georgia in closing the case.

The second was from Arnold and Howard, Atlanta attorneys and representatives of the executive committee of the Stone Mountain Monumental association, asserting that the committee "had resolved never to have any more dealings with Gutzon Borglum" and "branding him as a criminal." Judge Bynum of association counsel here stated that the case was ended.

BORGLUM WANTS ALL CASES QUASHED.

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 7.—(AP)—With the withdrawal of requisition papers for him now a matter of history, Gutzon Borglum, former Stone Mountain Confederate memorial sculptor, now plans to remain here to wage a fight to have all indictments pending against him in Georgia nolle prossed.

The sculptor made this announcement tonight after City Court Solicitor W. W. Ramspect, representing the state of Georgia had requested Governor McLean to return the Georgia requisition papers which were based on charges of malicious mischief and had signed a consent order for the dismissal of habeas corpus proceedings instigated by Borglum following his arrest last Saturday.

The signing of the consent order by Judge Michael Schenck of superior court was a mere formality.

Walsh Denounces Warren Appointment

WASHINGTON, March 7.—In closing a two-hour and a half speech in the open senate today against the confirmation of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, asserted that should the senate give its consent to the appointment, there was only one consistent thing for congress to do and that is to repeal the Sherman anti-trust act.

"Confirm this nomination," he asserted "and you may as well hang out a sign that for the life of this administration the Sherman act is suspended. Confirm this man and extend an invitation to every plundering monopoly in this country to do what it pleases."

After Senator Walsh had concluded, the senate quit for the day without acting on Mr. Warren's nomination.

CONFESSES FOR MOTHER

Boy Admits Murder To Save Parent From Jail.

LOS ANGELES, March 7—A purported "confession" by Harold Willis, 14-year-old son of Mrs. Margaret Willis, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Dr. Benjamin B. Baldwin here last April, and that he and not his mother fired the shot that killed the physician, was "discredited and ignored by the district attorney's office today after he was questioned."

"The confession by the boy," Deputy District Attorney Harold L. Davis, chief of the homicide division, said, "is but a last minute attempt to obtain executive clemency for the mother. If the confession had been presented at the trial it would have been a legitimate defense."

In the county jail Mrs. Willis after exclaiming, "Oh, why did he tell? Now they will send him to a reform school," corroborated the lad's purported confessions.

"Yes, he shot Dr. Baldwin and then went out to play ball," she said.

Gov. Smith Debates His Lieut.-Governor

NEW YORK, March 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Lieut. Gov. Seymour Lowman informally debated the question of "law enforcement" before the woman's city club this afternoon. To Mr. Lowman's assertion that the governor had promised to enforce all laws of the United States but that he apparently had failed to do so, the state's chief executive replied that the question of Volstead act enforcement centered upon "the need of money," to make enforcement effective.

KLAN WORKER SUES

Asks $50,000 For Alleged Illegal Confinement In Jail.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 7. — Alleging mental and physical anguish resulting from about 50 confinements of 30 hours each in a jail at London, Ky., L. M. Ketcham of Logoottee, Ind., today filed uit in federal court here against Judge A. T. Manning of Laurel county circuit court asking $50,000 damages. Ketcham said he was a worker for the ku klux klan.

Ketcham was jailed for repeated refusals to divulge names of members of the klan in the county, his petition alleged, and the judge declared him guilty of contempt of court.

MISSIONARY CAPTURED

Brigands Sell Belgian to Mounted Bandits.

BRUSSELS, March 7.—News has been received here that a Belgian missionary in China, who has been in that country for fifteen years was carried off by brigands January 15. It was said the missionary's captors, finding that they were being pursued by troops, sold their prisoner to a mounted band who took their victim into the desert beyond the Yellow river. A Belgian missionary was killed in the same district last year and another one held prisoner for 35 days.

Need for Publicity Cost Him Citizenship

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—A bit of motion picture publicity came back like the proverbial cat and helped to upset the efforts of Theodore Kosloff, ballet master and screen actor, to become an American citizen. Kosloff's citizenship application was dismissed by Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick after the introduction of a newspaper clipping quoting the actor as saying that he was a member of the Russian nobility and expected to be restored to power in his native land. It was also shown that he had claimed exemption from military service in 1918 on the ground that he was a Russian subject. Under questioning Kosloff admitted he was not of the Russian nobility, but explained that "motion picture artists must have publicity."

C'est La Maison Beaute De Record News

WITH the beautiful spring weather to help, the construction of the Record News Home Beautiful has made rapid strides during the past week and with a continuation of good weather will be ready for inspection before many weeks.

Shown above are two views taken early last week—the lower picture showing the southeast appearance and the upper showing the home from the northwest corner.

"Everything is coming along in great shape," said Mark D. Walker, of the firm of Mytinger and Walker, builders of the Home Beautiful, yesterday. "I know that the home will prove a delightful surprise to Wichita Falls and will set a real example in modern home construction."

* * *

Furnishings.

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the furnishing of the home just the minute the carpenters and the interior workers complete their work, said Burton Stayton of the Frear Furniture company, who have the furnishing of the home in charge. Much time and thought have been given this important phase of home building and when the furniture and draperies are finally placed the general public will realize how beautiful and practical the right furniture can make a home. Each room in the home will receive individual treatment and each will prove a fitting example of Frear service.

* * *

The Kitchen.

ONE of the most important rooms in any home is the kitchen. The Municipal Gas company will furnish the gas for heat and for cooking and the Noble Little Hardware company will furnish the model gas range for the kitchen. The newest ideas in refrigeration will be brought out by the Wichita Falls Electric company when the Servell electric refrigerator is placed in the home. A great deal of interest has been manifest in this refrigeration plant and Mr. Ivers of the Electric company has planned an active demonstration to be held during the exhibition week.

* * *

The Bath Room.

HERE is a place where modern treatment and the newest designs in bath room fixtures will make their bow to the public. The tile bath will prove a decided innovation to the public. The Wichita Falls Builders Supply company are furnishing the tile for the bath room.

* * *

Other Features.

ENTERTAINMENT will not be lacking at the Home Beautiful according to the Maxwell & Son Hardware company, who will install the very latest in modern radio sets. The Decorators company have been selected to furnish the pictures for the home and the various decorative effects throughout the home. The interior trims, which will be important factors in creating harmony of design are furnished by the Naylor Collins company. The Electric Specialty company will see that the Home Beautiful is wired just right and that every necessary outlet for the use of electricity is provided. The Wichita Floral company will demonstrate the important part that flowers and plants have in making a Home Beautiful. Piggly Wiggly will furnish a complete supply of groceries, meat and bread for the home.

* * *

The Garage.

EVERY home should have a first class garage and one that is in keeping with the home itself. The Home Beautiful will have just such a garage and the garage will house the new Nash car which will be the official car of the Home Beautiful.

Sherwin Williams paints and varnishes will be used throughout the interior and exterior of the home. The beautiful brick effect that will prove one of the distinctive touches to the Home Beautiful will be constructed of brick furnished by the Texas Brick and Supply company.

Next week will see important developments on the home and all the public is invited to drive by the home and see it under construction. It is located in one of the most beautiful sections of the city—on 1826 Pearl street.

Howe About The Sermon and The Circus, Booze, December and June Love, By Ed Howe.

IN the old days, circus men were nearly all thieves; what was called a circus was really a poor show intended to collect crowds of people, and pick their pockets.

It is related that one of the most noted circus owners of fifty years ago was a great thief. He organized not a company of clever performers, but of clever confidence men.

But dishonesty was troublesome and expensive. It was necessary to buy up the officers of the law everywhere. Circuses came to be so cordially hated that when one appeared in a town, all the rough necks for miles around collected, to break up the performance, and whip the circus men, if they could.

In addition to a gang of confidence men, it was necessary for a circus owner to carry prize fighters.

As a result of all this trouble, the circus owners made little money: I do not recall one who made a fortune.

The old type of circus finally became bankrupt, because of dishonest management, and honesty was tried. Modern circus men are decent in every way. The money formerly spent on prize fighters and confidence men is now devoted to clever acts and great spectacles. Circus people, from performers to stake drivers, are well behaved. The coming of a circus means a great holiday, and people flock to it, knowing they will be treated fairly. Modern circus owners, operating honestly, have made great fortunes. In the old days, porch climbers and pickpockets were carried with every circus. The modern circus owner employs detectives to see that no thieves follow him. The people may safely leave their houses, unprotected, and attend the big show, which is always a good one.

AND makes a fortune for its owner. Every dishonest, idle, tricky man may thrive if he will become honest. It is the first necessity of life. The industrious, fair, polite and useful man is respected, and makes money; the idle, tricky, man is not respected, and does not make money.

Anyone should be able to find the moral.

Although not a religious man, I believe the world is better off with the present religious activity than it would be without religion. It at least seems to be true that nations without religion have not prospered as well as nations with it. I am not one of those who believe only religious people are hyprocrites. Free thinkers probably equal or surpass them in hypocrisy. A socialist does not believe in half he pretends to believe in. Half the stock in trade of a professional literary man is hypocrisy, and the musician or artist is worse.

* * *

YOU must have observed that as soon as people marry, literature quits them, so far as love is concerned: after marriage literature is busy with wrangling. In a newspaper of recent date, I saw seven accounts of wives shooting husbands. In plays the story closes with marriage; thereafter the record is supposed to be so bad that it is not proper to lay before women and children. According to literature, wives and husbands never like each other—what is it wives and husbands discover about each other that is so atrocious? Are wives and husbands natural enemies, as are foxes and hounds?

I have seen beautiful cemeteries—but it is a form of beauty I do not care for.

Nearly forty years ago there lived in my town a handsome young fellow who was generally admired. He went away one day, and returned with a bride: a pretty and amiable girl who at once captured all of us. Altogether, they were about the nicest young couple I ever knew, and I knew them pretty well—The young man was promising in business, and soon was called to larger responsibilities. I did not see them from that day until the 1st of December, 1924. On my way to Florida, I had a considerable wait in St. Louis, and, knowing my old friend was president of a big concern there, went to see him. We lunched with them in the Statler hotel; a rather mournful pleasure. It seemed a pity that such handsome young people should become old. They are grandparents now, and still handsome in an elderly way; still fond of each other; still notably nice people, but somehow the ravages of nearly forty years seemed a particular pity in their case—I suppose my looks shocked them, too, but I have slowly become accustomed to my present condition, and it does not seem so surprising.

AT a recent general election, a great proportion of the best people opposed socialism. Righ or wrong, every really important state in the union decided against Lenine, LaFollette, Brookhart, MacDonald, Wheeler, Bryan, and every brand of socialism. The farmers who own the best land were against it; so were all the great manufacturers, bankers, engineers, transportation chiefs. The best workingmen refused to follow their leaders into the socialist camp. Is it possible that the great majority of the best and most useful people in this country are wrong, and the socialist leaders right? Are seven-tenths of the best people we have devoted to injustice, and opposed to liberty? If you accept the socialist doctrine, you must proceed from the premise that the best people in the country have no sense of fairness, and wish to rob the poor.

I have just received a letter from an intelligent man who lately made a trip through the west. Of one famous western town he says: "Everywhere I went it was booze, booze. I had to stop going visiting because too much booze was served. One gets tired, weary and discouraged with all the hospitality offered along with liquor." This is the west; the east is worse.

* * *

WHEN an old man marries a young woman and has great trouble (as is usually the case), a woman always says:

"I am glad of it. He deserves it. He should have known better."

When a handsome young man of twenty-five meets a girl of about his own age, and there is an explosion, the women do not say:

"Im glad of it. She deserves it. She should have known better."

I think an old man who marries a young wife, and is terribly punished, is entitled to the same sympathy we give a baby who overturns a kettle of hot water on its head;

So is the young girl who engages in a contest with a young man, and is beaten.

* * *

OLD men are worsted in marrying young women because the cards are stacked against them. The old Mohammedans had young wives, and claimed it kept them young, but the cards were not stacked against them.

When a man loses in a contest with a woman, it is because the men, meeting as a legislature, have dealt the women the best hand.

Neil O'Brien Minstrels Here March Twelfth

Show Promise To "Step On The Gas" At Palace Thursday

Minstrelsy in its best form presented with all the modern accessories of lighting effects, beautiful scenery and costumes will be presented at the Palace matinee and night, Thursday, March 12, by Neil O'Brien and his minstrel company. When the curtain goes up on this season's production it will be found that class was foremost in the producer's mind and the entertainment will be new throughout and with the assistance of the country's best artists in their different lines, Mr. O'Brien has succeeded in being able to present what he feels confident is his best show in years.

Many new and startling features will be found in the second part of the show and keeping pace with the present day times in which speed and pep predominate, Mr. O'Brien has injected this into his program and the slang phrase "step on the gas" is used by this stage director in all things where it is possible to use speed.

The old fashioned idea that all female parts played in a minstrel program should be dressed in calico wrappers and misfit gowns has also been abandoned in this season's entertainment and enough money has been spent in having up-to-date gowns made to clothe a chorus for any New York revue. However, the result is startling in its beauty.

Among the new features of the second part of the performance is a new act written and staged by Mr. O'Brien and in which that famous blackface comedian will appear, entitled "Hot Dog" and is said to be the funniest he has ever been able to conceive.

NEGRO IS SENTENCED

Frederick Man Found Guilty of Tire Theft; Must Serve Two Years.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 7. — Will Hamilton, negro, was found guilty in district court here last week of theft in connection with the theft of several automobile tires, and sentenced to serve two years in the state penitentiary. His brother, Clarence, who was charged with the same offense as Will, was released.

CASE FILED ON BORGLUM WILL BE DISMISSED

North Carolina Governor Requests City Solicitor To Drop Action

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 7.—Receipt of a telegram from Governor Clifford Walker here this afternoon at 2:55 o'clock indicated that the case against Gutzon Borglum, Stone mountain sculptor, had been dropped. The governor requested City Solicitor C. W. Ramspeck of Decatur, Ga., to see that "present requisition papers were withdrawn."

Two telegrams were received, the first from Governor Walker in an official notification that the request for the requisition papers was to be withdrawn and asking that Ramspeck act as the agent of the state of Georgia in closing the case.

The second was from Arnold and Howard, Atlanta attorneys and representatives of the executive committee of the Stone Mountain Monumental association, asserting that the committee "had resolved never to have any more dealings with Gutzon Borglum" and "branding him as a criminal." Judge Bynum of association counsel here stated that the case was ended.

BORGLUM WANTS ALL CASES QUASHED.

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 7.—(AP)—With the withdrawal of requisition papers for him now a matter of history, Gutzon Borglum, former Stone Mountain Confederate memorial sculptor, now plans to remain here to wage a fight to have all indictments pending against him in Georgia nolle prossed.

The sculptor made this announcement tonight after City Court Solicitor W. W. Ramspect, representing the state of Georgia had requested Governor McLean to return the Georgia requisition papers which were based on charges of malicious mischief and had signed a consent order for the dismissal of habeas corpus proceedings instigated by Borglum following his arrest last Saturday.

The signing of the consent order by Judge Michael Schenck of superior court was a mere formality.

Walsh Denounces Warren Appointment

WASHINGTON, March 7.—In closing a two-hour and a half speech in the open senate today against the confirmation of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, asserted that should the senate give its consent to the appointment, there was only one consistent thing for congress to do and that is to repeal the Sherman anti-truet act.

"Confirm this nomination," he asserted "and you may as well hang out a sign that for the life of this administration the Sherman act is suspended. Confirm this man and extend an invitation to every plundering monopoly in this country to do what it pleases."

After Senator Walsh had concluded, the senate quit for the day without acting on Mr. Warren's nomination.

CONFESSES FOR MOTHER

Boy Admits Murder To Save Parent From Jail.

LOS ANGELES, March 7—A purported "confession" by Harold Willis, 14-year-old son of Mrs. Margaret Willis, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Dr. Benjamin B. Baldwin here last April, and that he and not his mother fired the shot that killed the physician, was "discredited and ignored by the district attorney's office today after he was questioned."

"The confession by the boy," Deputy District Attorney Harold L. Davis, chief of the homicide division, said, "is but a last minute attempt to obtain executive clemency for the mother. If the confession had been presented at the trial it would have been a legitimate defense."

In the county jail Mrs. Willis after exclaiming, "Oh, why did he tell? Now they will send him to a reform school," corroborated the lad's purported confessions.

"Yes, he shot Dr. Baldwin and then went out to play ball," she said.

Gov. Smith Debates His Lieut.-Governor

NEW YORK, March 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Lieut. Gov. Seymour Lowman informally debated the question of "law enforcement" before the woman's city club this afternoon. To. Mr. Lowman's assertion that the governor had promised to enforce all laws of the United States but that he apparently had failed to do so, the state's chief executive replied that the question of Volstead act enforcement centered upon "the need of money," to make enforcement effective.

KLAN WORKER SUES

Asks $50,000 For Alleged Illegal Confinement In Jail.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 7. — Alleging mental and physical anguish resulting from about 50 confinements of 30 hours each in a jail at London, Ky., L. M. Ketcham of Loogoottee, Ind., today filed uit in federal court here against Judge A. T. Manning of Laurel county circuit court asking $50,000 damages. Ketcham said he was a worker for the ku klux klan.

Ketcham was jailed for repeated refusals to divulge names of members of the klan in the county, his petition alleged, and the judge declared him guilty of contempt of court.

MISSIONARY CAPTURED

Brigands Sell Belgian to Mounted Bandits.

BRUSSELS, March 7.—News has been received here that a Belgian missionary in China, who has been in that country for fifteen years was carried off by brigands January 18. It was said the missionary's captors, finding that they were being pursued by troops, sold their prisoner to a mounted band who took their victim into the desert beyond the Yellow river. A Belgian missionary was killed in the same district last year and another one held prisoner for 35 days.

Need for Publicity Cost Him Citizenship

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—A bit of motion picture publicity came back like the proverbial cat and helped to upset the efforts of Theodore Kosloff, ballet master and screen actor, to become an American citizen. Kosloff's citizenship application was dismissed by Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick after the introduction of a newspaper clipping quoting the actor as saying that he was a member of the Russian nobility and expected to be restored to power in his native land. It was also shown that he had claimed exemption from military service in 1918 on the ground that he was a Russian subject. Under questioning Kosloff admitted he was not of the Russian nobility, but explained that "motion picture artists must have publicity."

IOWA PARK STORE SOLD

The first map of the recently inaugurated strip map service of the Chamber of Commerce has been completed, being known as Route No. 1 and covering the road from Wichita Falls to Oklahoma City.

This is the first of a series of 10 maps which will cover the most important highway routes between Wichita Falls and various cities in this section of the state and southern Oklahoma. The others will be completed as fast as the necessary logging can be done and the co-operators secured.

New Feature

A new feature which has been added within the past few days is a 12x36 inch metal sign with arrow pointing the place of business of the co-operator. The sign will bear the inscription "Co-operative Information Bureau of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce" with the inset words on the arrow "Full Information and Road Maps." This is done in order to identify the service stations of the system to tourists as they pass through the various cities in which co-operators are located.

Within the next 90 days it is expected that at least 150 co-operators will be located within a radius of 250 miles of Wichita Falls, according to E. J. Price of Oklahoma City, under whose direction the system is being established.

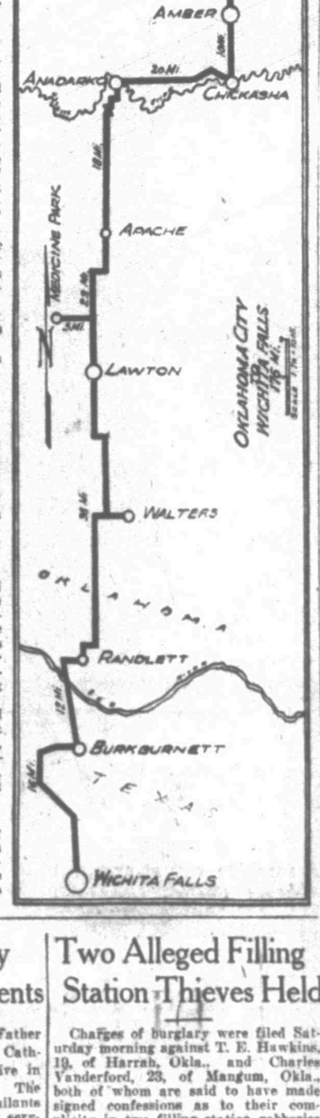

"There is hardly any way to estimate the value of this service to the traveling public," declared Mr. Price, "and it is the biggest step the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce could take towards the maintenance of a first-class and really efficient Road Information Bureau."

Maps Printed

The maps are to be printed on a 9x10-inch folder, which is convenient and easy to handle. An invitation is on the front of the folder to tourists to make Wichita Falls their headquarters and take advantage of the excellent tourist park located here.

The maps now planned will cover routes to Amarillo, Fort Worth, Abilene, Mineral Wells, Plainview, Texarkana, Woodward, Okla., Ardmore, Okla., and the route just completed to Oklahoma City.

The local Chamber of Commerce will be the clearing house for the entire system and will thus be able to render a valuable and up-to-date assistance to the automobile traveling public.

Priest Is Burned By Alleged Pole Agents

KIEV, Ukraine, March 7.—Father Andrae Fedoukovitch, Polish Catholic priest, has been burned alive in the town of Jitomir, near here. The authorities allege that his assailants were agents of the Polish secret service.

The murderers poured kerosene over the priest's body and then ignited it, say the advices from Jitomir, the unfortunate man writhing in agony while his assassians looked on unmoved.

Father Fedoukovitch was the author of a widely known letter to the pope in which he protested to the vatican against the participation of Polish clergymen in the anti-soviet campaign. His friends declare he was killed by his enemies for divulging to the authorities the activities of Polish spies in the Ukraine.

The crime has caused a sensation throughout the region.

GRAVEL WORK STARTS.

Improvement Work Begins On Road to Iowa Park Experiment Station.

IOWA PARK, March 7.—Work has started near here on grading and graveling the road leading from the main Iowa Park highway to the State Agricultural farm, located several miles from this place. The Wichita Falls chamber of commerce has agreed to plant trees and shrubs along this road.

Two Alleged Filling Station Thieves Held

Charges of burglary were filed Saturday morning against T. E. Hawkins, 19, of Harrah, Okla., and Charles Vanderford, 23, of Mangum, Okla., both of whom are said to have made signed confessions as to their complicity in two filling station robberies early in the week. The men were arrested by the city police department Thursday night. About $3 in pennie, some inner tubes and a gasoline blow torch, the whole amounting in value to about $20, were found in their possession.

TO CHOOSE AMBASSADOR

Definite Announcement Expected On German Post.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Coolidge has narrowed the field of those under consideration for the vacant ambassadorship at Berlin and a definite decision is expected shortly.

It is expected by those in touch with recent developments on the question that the appointment will go to New York state, whose republican leaders have asked for a greater representation for their state in the high posts of the government and it is understood the qualifications of both Jacob Gould Schurman, now minister to China, and Charles D. Hilles, for years a leader of New York republicans, are being urged vigorously upon the White House.

Cross-Word Puzzle

LARDNER NO. 46

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.

Beaumont Takes Flag From Brackenridge High School

Top O' Morn Stuff

Spudder fans little by little are finding their way back to Athletic park. Won't be long before they're making the daily migration out Seventh street in droves. The grandstand was populated more or less heavily Saturday for this time of the year by rail birds springled here and there, out to watch the maneuvers of Skipper Tanner and his early trainers.

* * *

No Newcomers.

One or two of the early birds became a bit miffed. They'd romped out to the orchard to cast an eye over some of the Spuds' new talent, players acquired during the winter. But not a newcomer showed up. For that matter, none of the old gang outside of the quintet that has been working away the past several days, appeared.

* * *

Several Spudders are just about due to come drifting in today, more tomorrow, and practically all of the squad should be here by Tuesday eve. Tuesday's the day when Boss Tanner expects to officially open the camp, and get down to the prelims of the conditioning action that is to come.

* * *

Session This Afternoon.

The handful of athletes in camp now, Tanner, White, Brown, Windel, and Barker, the last two semi-pro hurlers signed for tryouts, will romp through their paces this afternoon about 3 o'clock. Possibly the squad will be augmented by several new arrivals due in this morning, and others due on an early afternoon train.

* * *

WORSE'N CHOPPIN' WOOD!

Manager Bud's limbering up rapidly. He topped off yesterday afternoon's work with 30 or 40 minutes hitting to the outfield, walloping the ball as fast as White could pick up one of several and toss it to him. He slammed out many a lusty wallop, and had the lads in the outer gardens running all over themselves.

"If you don't believe that's worse than chopping wood," chirped Bud, as he hesitated a second to wring the sweat from his noble brow, "take this stick and try it for awhile!"

It might be added that the bludgeon Bud was whamming away with a husky piece of timber in itself, but it had been given extra heft by the simple process of driving a host of tacks into the under side.

THE PASSING OF CHEEVES

The Indians recently announced the release of Virgil Cheeves to the Little Rock club of the Southern league.

Now Cheeves's passing, in itself, calls for little attention. But there is a lesson for young ball players in it.

Cheeves received "the big chance" four years ago with the Chicago Cubs. He was then 19 years of age—and still growing. He refused to take the game or the training for it seriously. He took on weight. He failed to absorb the things that were told him. The Cubs finally sent him back to the minors. He came to the Spudders. They hated to see him go. He had shown great form at times. But these flashes died out quickly. His real value to the team was little.

Cheeves was aware of the situation. Had he given the matter any thought he would have taken up his minor league career with gritted teeth and a firm determination to "knuckle down" and show his former employers that they were mistaken in him—that he had the stuff.

But instead of taking this attitude he rode a high horse. The fact that he had been "up" remained with him longer than the fact that he had been "sent down." Had he worked earnestly he would have set his league on fire. He had fair success as it was.

Tris Speaker heard of Cheeves and decided to take a chance on the big fellow. The Indian boss and his first aid, Jack McAllister, labored diligently with Cheeves in an effort to bring him into big league condition. But the remolding was started too late. Superfluous flesh handicapped Cheeves. He worked hard to take it off but it had become "set." His wind was poor. His arm failed to round into shape.

So Speaker gave him up.

Now the obvious moral to this is: "You must play the game for all it's worth if you want to stay in the majors in any branch of sport or [illegible]."

Wherefore the passing of Cheeves is important.

Beware The Winter Books.

Winter books on the Kentucky Derby will appear soon. Because of its prominence, and the uncertainties of training in early spring, the blue grass event gets the biggest future play of any turf fixture.

Winter books operate on the "play or pay" basis. That means if the nag you select does not start, your money is burned without a run for it. Theoretically, these uncertainties lengthen odds. Winter books are popular with betters who like to do sharp-shooting at horses ranging in price from favorites to those at 100 to 1 and even longer prices.

In recent years there has been an epidemic of "welching" because colts heavily backed in future books have won. Bookies took bets and chances without sufficient capital to pay off. Winter books have been, in effect, flim-flam games. So beware of the winter books.

A bill to legalize boxing introduced before the English parliament by J. H. Douglas, himself a boxer of no mean ability, has caused more or less of a shock to patrons of the sport in England. This is because the bill has awakened the knowledge that, strictly speaking, boxing is an offense against the law, although King George presented a shield for competition at the recent imperial services tournament, while it is nothing to see princes and cabinet members occupying ringside seats when important contests are staged. During the war boxing abroad became more popular than ever and it is predicted that the Douglas bill will pass and thus put the sport on a perfectly legal basis, although any bouts now held are by no means considered a violation of the law.

TAVENER SLATED TO STICK WITH TIGERS

DETROIT, Mich., March 7.—Indications in the Tiger camp at Augusta, Ga., at the close of the first week's training are that Johnny Neun, first baseman, Johnny Tavener, shortstop, and possibly Jesse Boyle, pitcher, will be the only recruits to stay with the Detroit club this season.

SOUTHEAST TEXANS DEFEAT SAN ANTONIO TEAM FOR STATE TITLE AFTER FAST FLOOR ENGAGEMENT

Stephenville Defeats El Paso For Third Place As Curtain Raiser To Finals In Annual Texas Interscholastic Floor Tournament Held At Austin.

AUSTIN, March 7.—(AP)—Beaumont won the state high school basketball championship here tonight by defeating Brackenridge high of San Antonio, in one of the fastest games ever seen in this section. The game was played in the Texas Interscholastic League tournament, which ended tonight.

With brilliant teamwork and sensational "dribbling" by "Holly" Brock, Beaumont was able to take away the honors at the end of a brilliant game. The teams were never more than three points apart in the last half, and at one time San Antonio tied the score. Friery was the star for the losers.

Stephenville beat El Paso for third place in the curtain raiser of the evening, the two Davis boys starring for Stephenville.

Semi-Finals Stirring

Beaumont won its way to the finals Saturday morning by a great 22-18 victory over El Paso, the conqueror of Austin; while Bobby Cannon's San Antonio quintet won by an equally stirring victory over Coach Dyke's Stephenville Yellowjackets. San Antonio won by a margin of 18-16.

Both games Saturday morning were hair-raisers. The Alamo City five took an early lead over the Stephenville game, and at the middle of the first half led 11 to 1. The San Antonians during this period tossed goals from improbable positions and distances. The half ended with Brackenridge leading 12 to 8, as the Yellowjackets staged a desperate rally.

The game was won by San Antonio in the last minute of play. Stephenville led 16 to 15 with only a minute to go. Captain Webb fouled Bass, a San Antonio substitute, and Bass made good on both tosses, sending Brackenridge into the lead, 17-16. A few seconds later Elkins tossed another foul, and the game ended.

El Paso Weak at Center

Weakness at center cost the El Paso Tigers the chance to qualify for the finals. Coach Coblentz' men could not stop Stahl, who played a whale of a game at pivot for Beaumont. Coblentz several times shifted his lineup, and when he finally found an effective combination with Cohen at center, Beaumont had the game sewed up.

Captain Brock of Beaumont, played a whirlwind game. Brock, a remarkably speedy dribbler, and with a great shooting eye looped four baskets from the field of play, the same number of baskets shot by Stahl, crack center of Beaumont.

"Put Up Money," Dempsey Replies To Commission

Champion Accepts Wills' Defy But Calls For Commish Backing

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, in a statement to the New York athletic commission today declared that the titleholder would meet Harry Wills or Tommy Gibbons, or both, if the commission would guarantee to finance the match.

The statement somewhat in the nature of a reply to the commission's demand to Dempsey to explain why Wills' challenge had not been recognized, declared that "Wills' challenge had been accepted once and it was not necessary to repeat."

Dempsey asks only that the commission give its financial guarantee in the form of a cash deposit, the statement said in part, "as is the custom in such cases and give its official assurance of its ability to carry out the match."

"The commission files will show that Wills' challenge has been accepted once, also Gibbons. It is not necessary to repeat."

Kearns also "respectfully invited" the commission to follow up its matchmaking by acting as the promoter of either or both bouts to be staged in New York state if it desires.

Indians May Bill Game This Week

No games have been matched as yet for the Junior college baseball team which at present is in the embryo, but there is a possibility of one or two practice tilts being killed this week with nearby clubs, according to Coach Mosley.

Mosley may line up a game or so for the latter part of the week, but if he succeeds the game or games will be of a practice nature.

It is doubtful if any efforts will be made this year to compete with any members of the Junior college conference unless it be a series with Decatur Baptist college.

Fisher Resigns Management Of W. F. Golf Club

Jack Coates Quits Wichita Club To Accept Position

A. W. FISHER

Acceptance of resignation from managership of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club, position held by A. W. Fisher for almost exactly a year, and the appointment of Jack Coates, who is at present connected with the Wichita club, to the position vacated, was announced Saturday night by country club officials.

Coates, formerly of Denver, has been connected with the Wichita club for little more than a year. He was formerly with the Denver Motor club, and later connected with Elitch's Garden in Denver for about two years. He will take charge at the Country club Monday.

It was with a feeling of regret that the resignation of Fisher was received by club members. The popular manager gave notice several weeks ago, but club officials urged him to change his plans, and it was not until yesterday that his resignation was accepted. He will become manager of the Muskogee Town and Country club.

Mrs. A. W. Fisher was linked with women's activities at the club. Her strong forte was golf, and many of the members were looking forward toward the possibility of Mrs. Fisher making a strong bid this year in the Texas state feminine golf tournament.

Tribe's One-Man Track And Field Team Versatile

West Works With Javelin; Discus, Shot, And Hurdles

The Junior college track team romps through its daily paces with gusto in preparation for the conference meet at Waco May 27. Depending on developments in the meantime, the team probably will enter the hurdles, shot, javelin and discus events.

It won't participate in any of the relays, for the simple reason that Steve West, footballer and track and field athlete who happens to be the entire squad, feels that would be too much of a strain.

West is coming along fairly well, but at present runs a bit too low on the hurdles.

OHIO STATE TAKES BASKET BALL CROWN

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 7.—Ohio State's basketball team won the western conference net crown by defeating Indiana 28 to 26 in one of the closest and fastest contests seen here this season. Ohio State now has ten victories and one defeat for first place with Illinois in second with eight wins and three losses, while Indiana slipped from second to third with eight wins and four defeats. Purdue is in fourth place with six victories and four losses. Illinois and Purdue play again but their results cannot affect Ohio's standing. Ohio State meets Wisconsin next week for its last game.

Hurdle Records Fall In New York

NEW YORK, March 7.—College athletic stars of the east representing more than a score of institutions matched their speed and brawn tonight in the battle at the 102nd engineers regiment armory for the I. C. A. A. A. A. indoor track and field crown, worn for the past two years by Pennsylvania.

Charley Moore, Pennsylvania state hurdler and intercollegiate champion, shattered both the intercollegiate and world's indoor records for the 70 yard high hurdles when he won his trial heat in 8 3-5 seconds. This eclipsed his own former I. C. A. A. A. A. mark of 9 seconds and the world's standard of 8 4-5 held jointly by Waldo, Ames and Karl Anderson, Chicago stars.

Raymond Hass, Georgetown hurdler, also betered the old intercollegiate record when he won his trial heat in 8 4-5 seconds, also equalling the world's record which Moore displayed.

14 YR. OLD A MARVEL

OMAHA, Neb., March 7.—(AP)—Corrin Condon, 14-year-old swimming marvel of Omaha Nicholas Senn hospital, tonight broke a world's record, held jointly by herself and Miss Helen Wainwright, when she won the national A. A. U. junior 50-yard free style swim in 28 seconds flat. The event was held in a 60-foot tank. The former record was 29 seconds

FIFTY YEARS IN SPORTS

Year 1908 Saw One Of Greatest Pitching Battles

The first decade of the present century witnessed one of the greatest pitching battles in the history of baseball. Perusal of the box score of this memorable game alone gives the dyed-in-the-wool fan topics for a week of fanning bees.

The game referred to is the one between Cleveland and Chicago in the closing days of the memorable campaign of 1908. On October 2, that year, Cleveland was battling tooth and nail for a pennant. When the season finally ended the famous old Naps had finished just half a game short of the prize. The day that the Naps and White Sox met the pennant seemed within the grasp of the former team, Addie Joss, ace of the Naps, drew the pitching assignment and when Big Ed Walsh of the White Sox mound staff was sent in to oppose him fans settled back for what they felt in their bones would be "some battle."

Birmy Gave Joss "Edge."

Cleveland put over a run in the third, the run destined to win the game. Joe Birmingham scored it. Chicago went to bat inning after inning in the vain hope of also putting at least one man across. Inning after inning Joss turned them back. The seventh inning came. Not a hit had he allowed. The Cleveland fans (the game was played in Cleveland) hesitated to take the traditional "stretch" for fear of breaking "Addie's" luck.

The eighth came around and passed. The crowd had appreciated all along the fact that Joss had not allowed a hit. When the ninth started they fairly held their breaths.

The Sox batters went into the ninth inning desperate. If Joss realized that fame was within his grasp he gave no indication of it. That was not Joss's style. He seemed oblivious to everything except the fact that he had another batter to turn back.

Fielder Jones was managing the Sox then. In a vain effort to turn defeat into victory—to break the spell Joss had over his players—Jones called on his pinch hitters.

Tannehill, star in his own right and playing third that day, was called back to the bench and "Jiggs" Donohue picked out a bat.

Donohue's efforts were futile.

Then Jones, in desperation, knowing what the move would cost Big Ed, sent in a pinch hitter to bat for him. John Anderson drew the assignment. Anderson "connected," but Bill Bradley, peer of the third suckers if you will, was behind the blow and his swinging whip put the ball on first before Anderson reached the bag.

Joins Immortals.

But three pitchers in the history of the league have turned that trick. Charley Robertson, young Chicago hurler, did it in 1921. Up to that time Cy Young was the only other man who had accomplished that feat.

As for Walsh. He had pitched his heart out. He had allowed but four hits. He had fanned fifteen. Joss had given his fielders more work. He had fanned but three men. Walsh had walked but one man.

Walsh, in defeat, drew the honor due a gallant foeman.

Kaplan's Claim to Featherweight Championship Will Be Clear If He Can Defeat Mascot This Summer

Rugged French Walloper Is Outstanding Contender for American's Ring Crown

For the third time in two years a fighting son of France is going to be one of the principals in a featherweight bout of international interest. The two battles already fought were for the featherweight championship of the world. The third one, coming some time next summer, will either help lift a young American to that title or void his claims to it.

The match referred to is the one planned between Edouard Mascart, featherweight king of France, and Louis Kaplan, unofficial featherweight champion of the world by reason of his victory in Tex Rickard's elimination tourney of recent date. The match was planned for this month, but moved back so it could be staged out of doors.

Two years ago Eugene Criqui, bearing wounds of the world war lightly on his rugged frame and carrying a courage intensified by his flirtation with death in that conflict, came to this country in search of the feather crown then held by the gray-haired Johnny Kilbane.

Carpentier's failure to measure Dempsey's length and the poor showing of French stars of lesser merit in this country caused many Americans to take Criqui's chances lightly. But the French lad walked out of the ring—across the fallen form of Kilbane—with the featherweight crown on his bristly dome.

Mascart Aggressive.

Sixty days later Criqui gave the veteran Johnny Dundee a chance at his newly-won crown—an exhibition of sportsmanship that apparently went unnoticed as far as American champions are concerned. Dundee's punches were too much for the lighter Frenchman and he went down—fighting and smiling grimly.

Now comes Mascart.

The invader has a good reputation. He is a rugged, aggressive slugger with a stiff punch. That he is not a finished boxer might be judged from accounts of his most recent important fight—that with Danny Frush, the British Jew lad who once met Kilbane for the title.

They met in Paris. Mascart started out to out-box Frush. The latter never carried much of a wallop, but he is a clever boxer. Mascart proved no match for him in that style of fighting. The first round went to Frush by a clear margin.

Real Fighter.

Mascart came out of his corner fighting the next round and one minute and twenty seconds after it started had laid Frush flat on the floor. A left to the stomach and right to the jaw turned the trick.

In Kaplan, Mascart will meet another lad with a stiff kick in both mitts. Kaplan is not a clever boxer but he handles himself well and has a good defense.

A victory over Mascart will do more to give Kaplan prestige than any other bout that could be arranged.

Mascart is a stranger to the United States. He contemplated a trip here a year ago, but no satisfactory inducements were offered him.

PAL MOORE WHIPS FIVE CHAMPS, BUT IT MEANS LITTLE

It's pretty tought to have beaten five champions in the course of your career without ever having won the title yourself, but that's the experience of Pal Moore, the little Memphis bantamweight, who has been a contender for the crown for nine years.

Pal's misfortune is that he has either beaten the champions before they won the title or after they lost it. Included in the king 118-pounders who have been licked by Pal are Kid Williams, Pete Herman, Johnny Ertle, Johnny Buff and Joe Lynch.

In addition the Memphis flash went out of his class to crown Eugene Criqui of France, who not so long ago was featherweight champion. Pal knocked the Frenchman kicking in fourteen rounds.

Indians Send S. O. S. For One Good Battery

Mosley Hard Pressed To Uncover Pitcher And Catcher.

The Junior college baseball outlook in this, its first year at the diamond pastime, will be of the brightest hue if Coach Mosley can uncover at least one dependable pitcher and one catcher of the same caliber.

A strong team with a weak battery cannot expect to travel very far in the "game's won" column. That's exactly what the Indians are confronted with. Fairly well taken care of in every other department, the Tribe is up against it for a first class hurler and an equally efficient backstop.

Larry Crites, who will be remembered by Wichita Falls cage fans as the lanky center of the Indian quintet the past basketball season, seems to be Mosley's best mound prospect. Crites, however, does not necessarily declare any claims to pitching ability, but the tall lad may develop into a boxman of the first water under the close tuteiage of Mosley.

Curtis Beatty, about the only prospective catcher in sight, has the possibilties of working himself into the position of a good receiver. But as matters stand right now, Mosley is pushed to uncover a battery that will balance with the makeup of the rest of the club. Only time and practice will tell.

LOCKABAUGH LOSES GO.

What had been considered well nigh impossible happened the other night when Guy Lockabaugh, mat star of the Oklahoma Aggies was defeated by a collegiate opponent, Swain, Indiana Hoosier veteran, turned the trick, winning the decision by a wide margin, though he was unable to pin Lockabaugh's shoulders to the mat. The Oklahoma Farmer grappler, who went to the finals of the 1924 Olympics in the 158-pound class, had been rated the greatest amateur of his weight in this country.

Sport Writers Pick All-State Basket Fives

Five Schools Represented On First String Quinet

AUSTIN, Mar. 7.—(AP)—An all-state high school basketball team was selected here today by an official committee following the Texas interscholastic league basketball tournament. Both a first and second team were named.

The selections were made by a committee appointed by Jere R. Hayes, president of the Southwestern Sportswriters' association, of which all the committee are members. Those who made the selections are: W. C. Smith, Austin American; Arthur W. Stowe, Fort Worth Record; Flem Hall, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Jinx Tucker, Waco News-Tribune; Lloyd Gregory, Austin Statesman.

The all-state selection follows:

FIRST TEAM.

Player—School—Position	Points

Stohl, Beaumont, c.	15
Chambers, Brownwood, g.	20
W. Carson, El Paso, g.	15

Honorable mentions: Forwards, Elkins, San Antonio, five points; Cavet, Tulia, five points. Centers, Clark, Austin, ten points; Guards, Saxe, Beaumont, ten points; Soto, El Paso, five points.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE TO MEET MIDDLE WEEK

The Wichita Falls Sunday school baseball league is expected to complete its organization for the 1925 race in league session some time this week, announced Secretary Creighton yesterday. Date for the meeting will be set Monday, said Creighton, and in all probability team representatives will be called together about Thursday.

Godfrey Champion's Shock Absorber, Declares Baron Of Leiperville

KEARNS HAS NEGRO CONTRACTED TO PLAY BUFFER ROLL BETWEEN DEMPSEY AND WILLS, SAYS JIM

By ROBERT EDGREN

Jimmy Dougherty, the baron of Leiperville, Pa., says that Jack Kearns is manager of George Godfrey, the clever big black boxer who is trying to "hound" Wills into a match, and that Kearns has a hidden motive in keeping Godfrey hangin' around.

"Next to Dempsey George Godfrey is the best fighting heavyweight in the world," declared Dougherty while we were riding home together from a fight. "I'm going to give you a little stuff on Godfrey. I'm supposed to be his manager. I'm not Godfrey's manager, Jack Kearns is. Kearns has had Godfrey for a couple of years.

I'm just telling you this to show how smart Kearns is. Kearns never did plan to put Dempsey into a ring with Wills. It isn't that he doubts Dempsey would whip Wills, but it's a match he doesn't care for. Two or three years ago Kearns said to me: 'I wish you could find me a big, tough smoke who could knock off this Mrd Wills. I'm looking for one right now.'

Too Clever For Johnson.

"This is where Godfrey came in. Godfrey was a big, awkward colored kid, but built like a young Hercules, when he enlisted for the war. He was a volunteer and he got in one of the negro regiments long before the draft. He went in for the boxing they had in all army camps and as he had done a little of it before he picked up fast. One of the officers was interested in him and encouraged him to take on some contests. In a boxing show in an army camp town Godfrey put on the gloves with Sam Langford. He did so well that Sam saw him after the show and said: 'Boy, you're some fighting soldier. If you ever get back look me up. I'd like to show you better.'

"Godfrey came back and looked Sam up, and Sam took him around the country for a number of bouts in the small towns Sam worked after he got out of the big time shows. After a while Godfrey went with Jack Johnson, who was getting ready for a vaudeville tour, and wanted some powerful looking big black boy to show his stuff against. Johnson boxed with him a few times and signed him up to a contract. But he wanted someone he could slam around, and he soon decided Godfrey was too good.'

"Johnson called in on me one day. 'I've got one of the best boxers in the world', he said, 'and I can't use him.' The boy's too clever. I want someone I can use my stuff on and show up, and he shows me up. I'd have to be right back where I was when I had done a lot of fighting and mighty near as good as I was when I was champion. He ought to have the same chance I had. You take him off my hands and I'll get some big slow fellow to box with. I'm making you a present of a world's champion, Mr. Daugherty.'

He Can Whip Wills?

"I didn't care about managing any more fighters. When I manage a fighter I do it for fun anyhow—not for the money. I give my fighters what they make and I get the excitement of seeing them fight. So I just mentioned what Johnson said to Doc Kearns. Doc and he signed Godfrey up for ten years. He has had Godfrey ready to shoot in against Wills any time the demand for a Wills-Godfrey fight got too strong, and he thinks well enough of Godfrey at that yare he can whip Wills.

"Godfrey hasn't had much experience, of course, but he's won a lot of fights this past year, and if he has got up the confidence he ought to have there'll be nothing to it—he would lick Wills. He's better boxer, faster, stronger and a harder hitter, and he actually weighs 230 pounds. Kearns has dangled Godfrey around with Dempsey and had him learn a lot from the champion, but of course he's never been let under cover while Dempsey is in the game."

Kearns' Version.

Kearns is there as a buffer against Wills or anyone else Kearns might want to match Dempsey with. All he has to do is say: 'Lick Godfrey and I'll give you a tumble'—and they have Godfrey. That's where I see Kearns is smart. Oh yes, he signed a contract in New York for Godfrey to fight Wills, but that was strictly stuff. He knew all the time the commission would back down on the match."

Having listened to Dougherty I called upon Kearns for his side of it. After listening carefully to Dougherty's yarn Kearns leaned back and laughed loudly, even derisively.

"Did Dougherty say that?" he asked.

"Sure did," said I.

"Well, it's partly true," said Kearns, "but he might have explained it more carefully. I have got Godfrey under contract for ten years—as sparring partner for Jack Dempsey. Godfrey is the best sparring partner I ever found for Jack, and I didn't want to lose him."

Wills Better Than Gibbons?

"He's a great big powerful fellow and a good boxer and he can come nearer to giving Jack a workout than any man we ever picked up. I won't say he can take all of Jack's punches, but he can take a lot of 'em and fight back. That's what's hard to get—a man who'll fight back after Jack socks him. Godfrey has learned a lot from Jack. I wouldn't be surprised if he can take Wills now or any time. I'd like to see him fight Wills, but I'm not having him stand between Dempsey and Wills."

"I've just had a talk with Dempsey and we've come to an understanding. Jack is going on fighting, no matter what reporters have sent out. He'll fight anybody I get for him. I'd just as soon have Wills as anybody. It all depends on the promoters. If they come through they can write Wills or anybody else on the other end of the ticket, for all Dempsey and I care. I see Wills is reported matched with Tom Gibbons. Wills ought to knock Tom out in three or four rounds. He's too big and strong for Gibbons—nothing to it.

"So Jimmy Dougherty says I have Godfrey tied up with a contract? I have—as Dempsey's sparring partner. Dougherty is his manager as far as any fighting is concerned. I sold—no, I didn't sell—I gave Dougherty Godfrey as a fighter, and Jimmy has him under contract right now and makes his matches. It's safe. Godfrey is good enough to lick most of them, and the better men he fights the more he will learn and the better sparring partner he'll be for Dempsey."

Florida League Rejuvenates Jim Barnes' Game

Former National Champion Golfer Comes Back Strongly

The chief feature of the southern links season is the marked success of the new Florida golf league. The idea of playing teams in regular matches quickly became a hit. The boys enjoyed the competition so much that they passed up a flattering invitation to participate in a big tournament in a neighborhood state.

The Florida league is patterned something after big league baseball with teams representing different cities. As in the case of baseball the golf matches soon developed considerable civic rivalry and the matches I have appeared in, for instance, attracted many fans from locations on both the East and West Coasts of Florida who usually had both friendly and speculative interest to see whether Palm Beach would take the measure of St. Petersburg or whatever the lineup happened to be.

I look to see the Florida league idea extend to other parts of the country eventually because interest in golf is steadily growing and the spectacle of witnessing the country's leading professionals in competition not only affords entertainment but valuable instruction as well. It is all very well to tell a novice how to improve his game by reading somebody's book or this or that article.

If nothing else the league has rejuvenated the game of Jim Barnes.

Many thought "Long Jim" reached the high water mark of his career a few years ago when he captured national honors at the Columbia Club in Washington, D. C. Jim's victory was the result of long faithful struggling to master misfortune and the minor defects in his game.

Once in possession of the coveted trophy Barnes made a surprising discovery as he told me afterwards. He found out it was much harder to retain a championship than to win one. After winning at Columbia Barnes seemed to hit the downgrade. Both here and in Great Britain Long Jim fared poorly for one reason or another.

Hard luck seemed to pick the former champion for a special victim because Barnes was even denied the chance of competing in the American open classic a short time ago as his entry blank happened to come in a few hours late through a misunderstanding.

But the tide has evidently turned for Barnes. His game this season has recovered all its old power and steadiness and once in this form "Long Jim" is a tough man to pass. As I write this Barnes is leading the list in the Florida league which is formed of very nearly all the prominent stars in the United States. If Barnes can only keep up his present pace a little longer he surely will lead the parade at the finish and this feat will give him a great deal of confidence for the numerous important fixtures later on.

A & M STRONGER THIS YEAR

Aggies Not Conference Contender But Should Threaten

Texts A. and M. which has never won a conference baseball championship does not possess the material to win a title this year, but the Aggies will be stronger this year under Rothgeb than they were last year under House. The material is better and the boys have more ambition than they had last year. The pitching staff will be built around Lefty Rogers, who should be the premier southpaw of the conference this year. He is apt to pitch 10 of the 14 conference games. The Aggies should be strong enough for first division berth.

GLEN RIDGE GIRL WINS ORMOND PUTTING MEET

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Mar. 7.—(AP)—Miss Gladys Selick of Glen Ridge, N. J., defeated Mrs. C. D. Wright of Minneapolis, 2 and 1 in the finals of the Ormond Beach women's putting championship today. Mrs. D. H. Hunt of Chicago won the "second eight" honors, defeating Mrs. F. F. Duncan of Philadelphia one up.

In the semi-finals of the men's putting championship H. A. Hoffman of Providence, R. I., defeated C. B. Prettyman of Philadelphia, 6 and 5, while in the other semi-final match F. E. Carter of Detroit won from W. W. Curtin of Philadelphia, 5 and 3.

Young Griffo Most Gifted Boxer of All Ti me But he Lost Decision to John Barleycorn

By ED HUGHES

Perhaps no more gifted boxer ever lived who failed to snare a championship than Albert Griffiths, familarly known as "Young Griffo." Griffo was a ring wizard, a human statement of all the things that fashion the great fighting man. That is, purely in regard to ring talents. Nature seemed more than willing that Griffo should become a champion, for "Griff" was a wonder-boxer by instinct. He had nothing to do with the perfection of skill which he displayed in his prime.

But Griffo himself would not lend nature the small support needed to realize her regal ring aims. She asked for a medicum of decent living, and Griffo answered by pulling a cork from another bottle. The other day we talked of his case to Jimmy Johnson, president of the National Sports Alliance. Griffo, a dejected figure along Broadway has been living for years on odd jobs and the bounty of his friends.

"We can do nothing for Griffo," said Johnson. "He isn't considered a worthy case, for the simple reason Griffo will not do a day's work." It has been said that the youth, in respect to habits and tastes, is but a miniature of the man of middle age. This seems to be so in the case of Griffo, if Johnson has his case correctly appraised. At 25 Griffo of the magic mitts could not be coerced into a day's training.

Break of Fistic Circus

Griffo, one of the freakiest freaks of the fistic circus, is an Australian. He was born in Sydney in 1871. His education was sadly neglected, it was even said he could neither read nor write. Neither did he ever have a boxing lesson. But that did not matter so much, for genius laughts at laws. Griffo came to this country in 1893 after several years of triumphs in his own land.

This remarkable featherweight with a bovine neck and bulky shoulders electrified boxing America from the moment he entered the arena. Nothing it seemed, could prevent him from winning the championship with one eye closed. He made the cleverest of them look as slow as cigar-store Indians when he so elected. But it was not long before folks became wise to Griffo's short-coming. Griffo frequently indulged in a three-day rampage with John Barleycorn while training for an important bout.

Griffo met George Dixon, the wonderful featherweight champion, in a 20-round bout in Boston in 1894. On the afternoon of the battle Griffo was nowhere to be found. After a diligent search, "Griff" was located in a Boston tap-room—far from fighting condition. They hustled the foolish young man to a Turkish bath where he spent several hours "boiling out." When the town heard of the episode the betting became brisk that "Li'l' Chocolate" would stop the Australian in a few rounds.

Always A Surprise

Griffo surprised the "wise-acres" aplenty. As a matter of fact he held the incomparable Dixon in almost utter contempt, sneering and leering at the colored boy when the latter missed punches in the early rounds. At the end of the twentieth the referee announced the battle a draw. All agreed that had Griffo trained properly Dixon would have been made to look foolish throughout. Later they fought two more draws, on each occasion Griffo being in little better condition than in their first engagement.

Griffo was indeed a disturbing element to the betting fraternity. The sharjers habitually wagered that alcohol would win most of Griffo's battles. But the erratic Australian "double-crossed" them repeatedly. A pile of money was lost on Ike Weir, the "Belfast Spider," when it became known that Griffo was again "under the weather" on the afternoon of the tilt. Griffo apparently just about able to distinguish fighter from referee, had no difficulty outpointing Weir as he pleased. Such astonishing performances became familiar spectacles in the extraordinary career of Griffo.

Timing Perfect

Griffo's speed, timing, judgment of distance and rapid feinting made him the most talked of ringman of his day. His favorite pastime amused hundreds of "bar-flies" as well as cost them dollars. Griff was ever willing to stand on a handkerchief and defy anyone to strike him a full blow in the face from in front. Griffo agreed not to move from the handkerchief.

His instinctive judgment of distance unfailingly baffled his apponent. Griffo, by a deft movement of the head, would allow the punch to pass over his shoulder. Once, peering into a mirror, he discerned a chap behind him about to knock off his hat. Griff, continued drinking and without turning, twisted his head as the fellow brought up his hand. The hat remained on his head.

Another novel bet of Griffo's—he was always willing to wager that he could spear a fly in mid-air on the first attempt. No one ever saw him lose the bet. That fight that put Griffo genuinely "in bad" in this country took place in '97 in St Louis. It was with Tommy Tracy, a leading lightweight.

Track Stopped Him

Griffo broke loose from his trainers on the afternoon of the fight. The latter hired a hack and went in search for the wild Australian. They found him early in the evening in a bar. "Griff" was bundled into the cab which was soon flying over the stones to the arena. On the way it ran into a train. Horse and driver met death while Griffo and his trainer were hurled into a ditch.

Griffo entered the ring practically paralyzed by liquor. After a few blows he rolled to the floor, pulled off his mitts and stumbled out of the building. That was virtually the pugilistic end of Young Griffo.

Griffo was a genuine pugilistic marvel, perhaps the cleverest that ever stepped into a ring.

How much greater he could have been only John Barleycorn knows. And he is too busy pulling corks for others to tell you.

Killefer Has Real Hopes Of Making His Cubs Champs

Club Plays First Exhibition Game In Los Angeles March 13

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—Killefer has real hopes of his Cubs capturing the National League pennant this season, for he strengthened his club considerably when he landed Charley Grimm, Wilbur Cooper and "Rabbit" Maranville from the Pittsburgh Pirates. The trio of former Buccaneers are pleased to be with the Cubs and should play a high-class brand of ball.

Cooper is one of the few hurlers that won 20 games last year and Killefer is counting on him to win the same number this season. The former Pirate chucker is a southpaw and a good one. The Bruins have long needed a good port-sider, but Cooper should fill this void.

Maranville is rated as one of the brainiest infielders in the game and should fit in at second for the Cubs very well. Grimm is a hard-hitting first-sacker. The Bruins have no had a slugging initial sacker since Ray Grimes was in his prime.

The Cubs will play their first exhibition game March 13, meeting the Angels at Washington Park, so they will have to get in shape in a hurry, as there is less than two weeks remaining before this tilt.

STALLING COST PORKERS TIE WITH CAGE LEADERS

Stalling in the last three minutes of play probably cost the Arkansas Hogs a tie with the Oklahoma Aggies and TCU Christians for the Southwest conference basket ball championship. With three minutes to play, the Hogs last Saturday night led the Aggies, 23-19. Confident the four-point lead would last through the three minutes, the Razorbacks decided to stall and pass the ball around deep in their own territory. The furiously fighting men of Coach Johnny Maulbetsch intercepted two passes and turned the breaks in their favor into as many field goals, tieing the score. Then the Porkers tried to regain the offensive, but it was too late, and the Aggies found the cage for the field goal that won the game.

FOOTBALL IN AIR AGAIN!

Longhorns Begin Spring Grid Training March 18.

AUSTIN, March 7.—Spring football training for the Longhorn football candidates of 1925 will start the week of March 15, probably March 18, "Doc" Stewart, varsity head grid mentor, said Saturday. While many of the most promising prospects will be unable to report because of participation in baseball and track, Stewart is very hopeful of accomplishing much worthwhile in the spring training season. At least 75 men are expected to turn out.

Stuart Wright, captain-elect of the '25 gridsters, is out for track, but he will be able to devote considerable time to spring football also.

T. C. U. ALWAYS HAS HAD GOOD BASEBALL TEAMS

From time immemorial the Christians have always flashed great baseball teams. Splendid baseball teams at T. C. U. have become a tradition. The team of this year will uphold the tradition in every manner. There will be power in the offense of the Christians and both the infield as well as the outfield will have sterling defensive qualities.

HURD WINS ANOTHER TITLE.

BELLAIRE HEIGHTS, Fla., Mar. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia won annual Bellaire women's golf championship here today by defeating Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., five up and three to play in the 18-hole final match.

BAYLOR PITCHERS STRONG

Bruin Staff May Carry Team to Conference Title.

Splendid pitching is apt to send the Baylor Bears far in the conference race this year. The Bruins did much better than expected last year, and they have much better prospects this year. Jake Freeze and Red Gore are first-class intercollegiate hurlers. Both can swat the old apple and while the Baylor team of this year will not be a star fielding combination, Bridges promises to flash an array of talent which can swat the old apple.

COLLINS COMES TO TERMS.

"Rip" Collins, Detroit Tiger has come to terms with the Jungaleers and will soon report to the Georgia training camp of the Tygers. Detroit sport scribes believe the Austin boy, along with Whitehill, will twirl the Jungaleers to the 1925 American league championship.

Lone Star Rookie Most Impressive In Browns Camp

Spot Falk, Austin High Lad, Makes Real Hit With Sisler

"Spot" Falk, Austin high school product is the most impressive of the St. Browns' recruit hurlers, so Manager George Sisler thinks. Spot has been in the Browns' training camp at Tarpon Springs, Florida, for about 10 days and is showing the stuff that made his brother Bib famous with the Chicago White Sox.

Martin J. Haley, staff correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat has the following to say about Spot in a recent issue of that paper:

We don't know how well these rookies can pitch at this pink-cheeked date, their arms as yet being under cover, but in physique, poise and general action the most impressive of the lot is the tall Texan, Chester Falk, who is familiarly known as "Spot."

Be Real Man Some Day

What a man this kid should develop into some day. Right now, with but 19 summers resting lightly on his six-foot, two-inch rangy frame, he displays 170 pounds and at that, is somewhat under normal weight, a slight illness during the winter having reduced him 10 pounds, so he claims.

A cocky youngster, he is full of confidence, just a year out of the Austin (Texas) high school. Contrary to reports current when the Browns signed him to a contract early this year, he has never attended Texas university, which is located at his home town and which produced his nationally known brother, Bib Falk, Chicago White Sox outfielder.

Looks Like Brother Bib

If you have seen Bib Falk, you can readily picture the younger brother, who has all the actions of the hard-hitting gardener, even to the rakish angle at which he sports his cap. "Spot" has the same square-shouldered strut, the same prominent-chinned jaw, he receives a ball similar to his older brother, throws somewhat like him and takes almost identically the same stance and cut at the ball.

Sisler Thinks Much of Him

Manager Sisler, all wrapped up in the young fellow, hopes he will show enough stuff to merit and all-year-around job on the club. This morning Sisler said he would not like to send a pitcher of Falk's promise back to the minors that he would prefer to retain him and develop him into a winner himself, even though the youngster would be forced to ride a bench a year while under this development.

Falk won his way to a major league trial through his record as a semipro pitcher last summer. Pitching for two teams at Beeville and Mart, two Texas towns, Falk won a total of 21 games without a defeat, so he says. Sixteen of these victories were won from Beeville, according to the youth, who explains that while he did not pitch any no-hit games he hurled several contests in which he allowed one, two or three hits.

PONIES NO BETTER.

The S. M. U. baseball team this year will be just about as strong as it was last year when the Mustangs although one of the pre-season favorites, did not finish very high. The Ponies will be weak in the box, but if Coach Freeland can flash a pitcher of note, the Ponies may finish in the runner-up position.

GOLF

As Champons Play It.

By BILL STRACHAN

Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

New ideas in golf come along quite often but few ever make good. The little artificial tee has come to stay. There are several kinds on the market including wire contraptions but the most convenient appear to be the design in the picture.

Experts find the new tee practical and convenient, as the ball stands up better, giving the driver a clean sweep. Golfers in America are in the habit of making their own tee, but in Great Britain this is a part of the caddie's job. The player picks out the spot and indicates where the ball should be teed with his club. Over here we prefer to tee our own ball and prefer also to have the caddie down the course so that he can see the ball when it drops. The little ready made tees solve the problem nicely and the English can now see our way of doing it.

STEER NINE POWERFUL

Texas University with its coach, with its bountiful supply of material, looms as the best baseball bet in southwest conference race despite the fact that the pitching staff of the Longhorns does not loom as the best in the conference.

Finland's Paavo Out-Duels Boston A. A.'s Pride For The Mile

PHANTOM LAYS DOWN 4:12 ON 174TH BOARDS

Hahn's Previous Record Was 4:13 2-5, Set At New York A. C. Games

A GRUELLING TEST

He Has Been Competing Four Straight Days In Track Competition

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 7—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish marvel, tonight added a third and decisive round to his duel with Floyd Hahn of the Boston A. A. for the world's mile record honors. In a race which featured the 174th infantry games here, Nurmi laid down a mile in 4:12 flat in his fourth track competition in as many days.

Hahn's record was 4:13 2-5, set at the New York A. C. games in New York on February 14 which at that time clipped a fifth of a second off the mark set by Nurmi at Madison Square Garden on January 6.

The Fin's feat of competing four straight days in track competition was in itself a fruelling test. Within the four days he established two world marks. In adoution to his performance tonight, he broke the world's record for the 1 1-8 mile made by himself at the Brooklyn 160th infantry armory on March 4, the opening day of his record jaunt. His four day competition led him from Brooklyn to Hamilton, Ont., where he shattered the Canadian record for 1½ miles to Toronto, Ont., and finally to Buffalo.

Jimmy Connolly of Washington, D. C., who pushed Nurmi to a world's record in the 1 1-4 miles on the Finn's previous appearance in Buffalo on February 14 was the main showing of the competition which urged Nurmi to greater honors tonight.

Connolly finished gamely sixty yards behind Willie Ritola, Nurmi's speedy countryman, failed in an atempt to lower his own three mile record of 13:56 1-5, made on February 14. His time tonight was 14:07 2-5.

Nelson Sherrill of Pennsylvania, lifted himself to a new world's record height in the pole vault when he cleared the bar at the height of 13 feet, esclipsing the mark of 12 feet, 10 5-8 inches, set by Eddie Meyers, of Chicago at the Boston A. A. meet last January. Sherrill bettered by six inchest the former intercollegiate mark which he shares jointly with several others.

Georgetowns university brilltant two mile relay team shattered the world's indoor record for the third time this season when they won the intercollegiate title in the unprecedented time of 7 minutes, 41 3-5 seconds. The Washington collegians won by thirty yards from their nearest rivals, Boston college.

Mosley To Issue Uniforms Monday

Uniforms will be issued to Junior college basbeall athletes Monday, said Coach Mosley last night. For a while the Indians were hard pressed for equipment, but the coach yesterday obtained 12 monkey suits for his players through kindness of the school board, which is backing the college athletic association until enough gate returns are garnered following contests to foot the bill.

Not all of the suits will be given out Monday. The coach intends to retain several for players who may show up better later in the season, but who at present don't under the circumstances necessarily rate uniforms.

Women Golfers Meet Thursday

The women's golf association will stage its weekly tournament Thursday morning over the Country club course. However, nothing definite as to the nature of the tourney to be has been decided yet, said Mrs. J. H. Fleteher, chairman of the tournament committee, Saturday night. Announcement is to be made about Tuesday.

KEARNS DEPARTS FOR NEW YORK WEDNESDAY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion pugilist, announced today he will leave Wednesday for New York, where he will testify in the government's trial against Teddy Hayes, Dempsey's trainer, and several others, who are charged with the illegal transportation of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures. Kearns also said he will have conferences with eastern fight promoters regarding bouts for the champion.

NO POLO MATCH THIS AFTERNOON

Kinmere and National Guards poloists will not hook up this afternoon in the usual Sunday contest, said Dr. J. H. Fletcher, member of the Kinmere quartet, last night.

Dave White, captain of the Kinmere four, departed for Fort Worth and the stock show Friday, taking with him a string of his own polo ponies, and several owned by Dr. Fletcher, Charles Featherstone and Horace Robbins.

Will the Browns' Outfield Crew Crack This Year?

For years the St. Louis Browns have boasted of one of the hardest hitting outfields in the league. The seasons of 1919-20-21-22-23 found Johnny Tobin, Ken Williams and Charley Jacobson clouting the ball at a .300 gait or better, mostly better. Williams' home runs added to the power of this trio. Last year Tobin fell one point shy of the .300 mark. Does this indicate the breaking of this sterling attack? If it does George Sisler's pennant hopes will get an awful setback.

138 Thorobreds Eligible For 51st Kentucky Derby

Whitney Enters 12—Owner Of Black Gold Has No Starter

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 7.—(AP)—One hundred and thirty-eight thoroughbreds tonight were eligible for the fifty-first renewal of the Kentucky derby, with $50,000 added, to be run at Churchill Downs Saturday, May 16. One more runner was nominated, but died before the list was made public today by the Kentucky Jockey club.

Somewhere in the list of three-year-olds is a colt, gelding, or filly whose name will go up beside those of Black Gold, Zev, Morvich and other immortals of the racing world winners of the American turf's most coveted prize.

More Than $50,000 to Winner

Assuming that the usual number about 20, of the nominees will start, the race will be worth more than $50,000 to the winner.

All of the outstanding two-year-olds of last year, including every stake winner have been nominated. One hundred and nine colts, 17 geldings, and 13 fillies made up the list. Mamound died, reducing the colts to 138.

Harry Payne Whitney, eastern turfman made the strongest bid for the derby in point of candidates nominated. The Whitney stable sent in the names of 12 thoroughbreds, eight colts and four fillies. The Green Tree stable owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney added three more.

Seven Foreign Eentries

Several other offered two or three, while a majority of the owners have centered their hopes in a single runner.

Mrs. R. M. Hoots of Tulsa, Okla., whose great little colt, Black Gold won the golden jubilee derby last year, will not have a starter in the race this year. H. F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable, owner of Zev, the 1923 winner has an imported gray colt, Silver Fox and a brown filly, Nadina, on the list of eligibles.

Six imported colts and one foreign bred filly have been put in the running.

GEORGETOWN WINS

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Georgetown university tonight displaced the University of Pennsylvania as indoor intercollegiate track champions in a spectacular meet which witnessed the shattering of three indoor world's records and seven intercollegiate standards.

GIBBONS OUT OF FIGHT GAME MONTH OR TWO

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 7.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight boxer, announced tonight that he is out of the fight game for a month or two because of the illness of his twin sons.

HAY

AUSTIN, March 7.—Hay markets are dull, demand is slack with the mild weather and low grades are especially undesirable. Timothy is easier, but prairie and lafalfa prices are holding steady. The following are the quotations released by Texas radio market news service:

No. 1 alfalfa, Kansas City, $20; Omaha, $16.50; Memphis, $28; Atlanta, $34; No. 1 prairie, Kansas City, $11.50; Omaha, $11; Chicago, $16; St. Louis, $15.50; Minneapolis, $16. No. 1 timothy, Boston, $25.50; New York, $25; Philadelpia, $26.50; Pittsburgh, $20; Cincinnati, $17.50; Chicago, $23; St. Louis, $21.50; Kansas City, $17; Memphis, $22.50; Atlanta, $25.

The forthcoming annual report of the Salt Creek Producers association will show, it is said, that oil production of its subsidiaries in 1924, exceeded 9,500,000 barrels.

Spudders To Be Legion's Guests At Fistic Card

Trammel Billed With Jack Darcy, Ten-Round Route

Wichita Falls' Spudders probably will be bearing down in earnest at the daily training grind by Thursday afternoon, but they're going to quit sleeping, eating and talking baseball long enough Thursday night to sit on the side and watch another type of athletes at work.

The Spudders are to be guests of the American Legion at the weekly fistic program, according to announcement by Promoter Don Wofford Saturday night.

What appears to be an entertaining card has been arranged just for the baseball men. Jack Darcy, the Australian, is billed to step over the ten-round route with Duke Trammel, Fort Worth puncher. Darcy declares he'll make the birdies chirp for Dukum. Tabby Levine, Wichita Falls feather, is cheduled for a six-rounder with Eddie Snelson, Fort Worth youngster, and Jack Williamson, a former local favorite, is to mix it with Sam Riley, Altus lightweight who fought in the legion arena a number of times last summer. The second bout is to be six rounds, also.

There are to be several four-round prelims.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, March 7.—Stock prices drifted lower today with trading in large volume for a half holiday session. There was nothing in the day's news to account for the decline so it was generally attributed to the customary week-end profit taking. Some of the selling, however, is also believed to have been for the account of traders who were converting paper profits into cash in order to meet income tax payments.

One of the features of the session was the violent fluctuations in Wilson & Co., preferred, which closed last night at 38⅝, soared to 60 in today's early trading and then broke to 43½, when a large volume of stock was pressed for sale. The spirited advance followed the widespread circulation of a report that the lifting of the receivership was imminent and the subsequent break took place after the publication of official statements that while rapid progress was being made on the re-organization plan, the ending of the receivership report was premature.

All of the so-called pivotal industrials lost ground. U. S. Steel common, in which a new forward move appeared to be under way yesterday when it crossed 125, fell back nearly a point from last night's close at 124. Baldwin showed a net loss of 1⅝ at 140⅝ and American Can fell back nearly 2 points to 181⅝.

Pool operations again were apparent, however, in some of the oil and motor issues. Maxwell Motors "A" and "B" established a new peak price for the year at 88⅛ and 59 respectively but later forfeited part of their gains. California Petroleum common and preferred also reached new high ground at 32⅞ and 113 respectively, but the gains were cancelled and each closed fractionally lower. Buying of these petroleum issues was based on reports of a merger of the California Petroleum and General Petroleum companies.

A rally in French francs, which carried them up around 5.20 cents was the only feature in the quiet foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.76⅛. Other changes were unimportant.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Brokers' money loans are estimated in the financial district to have increased about $350,000,000 in recent months owing to the broad demand for credit created by the bull market. Borrowings were placed today at about $2,100,000,000 exceeding the former high figure touched in February, 1923, by $100,000,000. At the end of 1924, brokers' loans approximated $1,750,000,000.

Bank clearings throughout the country for the week reached $10,339,873,934 according to a compilations by the Commercial and Financial Chronicle. This is an increase of 20.9 per cent over a year ago when the total was $8,555,876,577. New York City showed a gain of 32.9 per cent.

The situation at shipping point markets was virtually unchanged, with trading very light under the heavy movement. Cabbage at lower valley points brought growers $8 per ton for their wagon loads. Cash buyers bought a few cars for $10 to $12 ton and the outside trade took occasional cars on a usual terms basis at $12 to $14. May shipments were consigned or rolled unsold. Spinach was very weak, around 30 to 40c bushel for truck cars and 40c to the wire order trade. Beets and carrots are about steady, growers receiving 10 to 15c bushel for carrots and 20 to 30c bushel for beets in the field, with the car lot market for mixed shipments of the two commodities around $1 for beets and 75c bushel for carrots. Most straight cars of beets and carrots moved forward on a joint account basis.

Public offerings will be made shortly of an issue of common stock of the Motion Picture Capital corporation, of which Cecile B. DeMillie is director. The corporation makes loans to producers and others engaged in the motion picture business on collateral and in turn re-hypothecates these loans at banks.

The independent stockholders committee of the National Enameling and Stamping Co., which is seeking to wrest control from the present management, announced today that proxies for 110,000 shares have been obtained. H. R. Lamb, secretary of the committee, said if as much as 90 per cent of all stock is represented an unusually high average 235,000 shares, would vote at the special meeting on March 10.

MEN LAUGH AT BODY TORTURE ALL FOR FAME

Is Personal Glory Greater Urge Than Human Appeal?

A reader suggests to this writer that "it might be a good idea to compare the records made by the heroic dog-team drivers of Nome against some of the records of endurance in the sport realm. Maybe," he continues, "our distinguished visitor, Paavo Nurmi, will not look so big when one considers how these 'mushers' travel in extreme cold weather, covering between 40 and 50 miles a day.

This is a difficult subject to treat with entire justice. Sentiment must necessarily be on the side of Gunnar Kasson, Seppalla and the rest, not to mention the malemutes and huskies in the traces. Engaging nature in one of her most treacherous moods they matched their courage and hardiness. The stake was 11,000 human lives. And the "musher" and his dogs won!

Naturally there is a halo of grandeur about the thing which completely lifts it out of the sphere of mere athletic efforts directed toward a selfish end. One fought to win that others might live. The others battle to conquer for cash, medals, or the gratification of personal pride. It seems almost a sacrifice to compare them.

Man Seeks Personal Glory.

Yet eliminating the purpose concerned with the efforts, and counting the revelation of endurance — what then? Men, we find will brave, nay mock, terrific physical torture for the sake of self as well as of others. Are mankind's powers of endurance greater in selfish aims than in noble ones? There is a nourishing thought for the pessimistic mind!

And another thing. There are many kinds of human endurance. And those who display it majestically here might wilt without a struggle there. The nerve and stamina of the cowboy "bull-dogger" who wrestled vicious steers bewildered the "tenderfoot" in New York. Yet at a big college football game he sat next to several Montana steer-wrestlers who stared at the "rough-stuff" of the gridiron in undisguised amazement.

Neither the master gridiron "tenderfoot" nor the rough plainsman could stand the gaff in the other's place. Your Gunnar Kasson who cheerfully endures the ice and the 80-mile an hour blizzards in "fifty - below" weather, probably couldn't endure a minute of punching from Jack Dempsey's fists. His endurance was the especial development of 21 years of "mushing" over Alaskan snow trails.

Jack Couldn't Do It.

Dempsey, who has exhibited remarkable powers of endurance in the ring would have found it a different proposition weathering five and a half days of the icy hell that Kasson, Seppalla and the rest of the "mushers" suffered to carry the life-saving antitoxin serum to Nome.

It was a noble, exalted mission that spirited the "mushers" on, that made them successfully challenge the severest pressure that nature could produce —the storms, the darkness, the whistling winds and hazardous paths across ice-covered waterways. But as we remarked before, mankind will punish itself as lustily for selfish ends—for personal fame or fortune. And when one has "mushed" for twenty-odd years, has been brought up on the snow-packed trails, he is not exactly unused to the rigors of the game. It seems like super-human courage and endurance to the "subway musher", but in reality it is nothing of the sort. Simply a case of doing something which doesn't seem particularly extraordinary to the doer?

The iron worker thinks nothing of walking on thin beams high up in the air. The cow-boy figures steer-wrestling as part of the routine of his daily life. The collegiate football player accepts his bumps and thumps in the scrimmage's clash of bodies. The "musher" drives his dog-teams through waist-high drifts and cutting gales for days at a clip. All are natural, characteristic forms of endurance—assorted products of various environments.

You do not necessarily have to save a life to create a record. The mere human desire to win, to be talked about often does it.

Cowboys Pull Texas Teachers From Lead

ABILENE, March 7—The Simmons college cage team definitely eliminated the West Texas Teachers from consideration for the basket ball championship of the T. I. A. A. by winning here tonight, 32 to 25. The game closed the season for the T. I. A. A.

HORNED FROGS DANGEROUS

T. C. U., always feared in baseball, will be feared again this year. The Toads finished second in the conference race last year. They will be stronger this year. They say that Fred Scott has now reached the form he knew before suffering the injury, which kept him out of the game for nearly a year, and which made him an erratic pitcher last spring. It will be remembered that he was hit in the head by a flying discus about two years ago, and for a while it was thought that the injury might prove fatal. If Scott is as brilliant as he was two years ago the Christians may give the Longhorns some trouble for the title.

Twilight League To Hold Session Late This Month

Ludlam And Riggs To Seek Berth Vacated By Methodists

Twilight leaguers will organize for this year's play in a meeting which is to be held the latter part of the month, announced L. O. Landon, president of the league, Saturday.

It is believed that the league will be composed of practically the same teams, a six-club organization, that were members in 1924 with exception of the Floral Heights Methodists. Ludlam and Riggs clothing store will seek the berth left vacant by the Methodists.

Ponds Laundry, Public Utilities, Texhoma, Security National and the Knights of Pythias, are all expected to retain league membership.

NEW MEXICO REPORTS

GENERAL—San Juan county hit the "bulls eye" again this week with another gusher of the same high gravity oil, said to be good for 1,000 barrels daily, with the bringing in of well ..No. 8 on the Rattlesnake structure. This completion is 1,250 feet west of well No. 7, which came in 30 days ago at an estimated flow of 800 barrels daily, from a depth of 767 feet. Well No. 8 is the best yet developed on this wonderful structure, according to John C. Nickols, superintendent.

The new Continental refinery at Farmington is fast nearing completion, and it is expected it will be in operation before the end of the present month. Storage capacity now provided by this company, and the Midwest, in Farmington, now amounts to over 35,000 barrels.

Eddy county during the past week registered the highest price yet paid in that field for acreage, when Col. J. D. Atwood and F. Grant Keyes sold their interests in 280 acres, the W 1-2 section 33-18-28, to Snowden & McSweeney of New York, for $140,000, or $500 per acre. This tract is an offset to the Twin Lakes No. 1, well. This New York firm of operators are said to be very strong financially, having been successful in both the Mexican and Texas fields.

J. F. Van Cleve, a Shreveport operator, and his associates, also purchased in the Eddy county field during the week the E 1-2 of NE 1-4 sec. 36-18-28; the NW 1-4 SE 1-4 sec. 17-18-28 and the NE 1-4 SE 1-4 sec 26-18-28.

The first run of oil through the Illinois pipe line is being made this week and has been contracted for by the Rio Grande Refining company of El Paso.

With the announcement that the Marland Oil company has leased the Benn ranch, in Twp. 15, N, Rge 27 E, San Miguel county, and is arranging to start operations there; that W. H. Graham will close a drilling contract with a well known company in the next few days on the Jones dome, in Twp 12 Rge 12; that two operations are soon to be started in Union county and that H. T. McGee will soon begin the drilling of a test on sec. 9-13-33. Quay county, it is known that northeastern New Mexico will also experience a lot of activity during the spring and summer.

F. D. Gibson, president of the Gibson Oil corporation, whom we had the opportunity to interview here on Monday, said: "The situation looks mighty encouraging for oil development in New Mexico, due to the fact that the very best geologists in the country are here and have made some splendid reprts an the field." Mr. Gibson, he said, is here to get his drilling program under way, concerning which we hope to make a definite report in out next week's issue.

From a source known to be reliable we are informed the New Mexico and Arizona Land company have made a drilling contract calling for four test wells, to be drilled at various locations on the holdings of the company in McKinley, San Juan and Valencia counties. The contract was made with Sam Lazarus, of the Acme Development company, successful operations in the Oklahoma fields.

SAN JUAN COUNTY—Rattlesnake structure. Munzo-Continental interests, well No. 8 in Monday with an estimated flok of 1,000 barrels daily.

Bloomfield No. 3, SW 1-4 SW 1-4 sec. 15-29-11, on pump making 25 barrels daily 65 gravity oil. Management believes output of well will increase after pumped a few days. The Bloomfield company is arranging to install a small topping plant and will market its products locally, where there is already a strong demand for the crude which is being used in trucks, and some autos, just as it comes from the ground.

Graham well, NE 1-4 sec 20-29-11. reported that this property has been taken over by the Gibson Oil corporation who will arrange at once to comdrilling other tests on Bloomfield acreage.

Lexi Oil company, NE 1-4 sec 10-30-10, drilling below 400 and now running tower.

Angel Peack Syndicate, NE 1-4 sec 6-29-9, temporarily shut down for repairs.

Fouh States Oil Syndicate, sec 31-32-13, resumed operations Monday after a two months' shut down because of bad weather. Drilling below 1,500.

The Leidecker well on the NW 1-4 sec 3-32-12, reported abandoned at 3,000 feet, will be continued to the Dakota sand, 500 or 600 feet more, according to report said to have been received at Durango from Mr. Leidecker.

McKINLEY COUNTY—Blackstone Champion No. 1, Guam dome, SE 1-4 sec 21-14-15, arranging to shut off another heavy flow of water.

L. S. Melsted No. 1, Seven Lakes district, sec 26-18-11, shut down waiting for new cable.

EDDY COUNTY—Burgess & Goodsle, California No. 1, SW 1-4 sec. 30-18-29, was shot last week with a 100 quart charge of nitro, placed between 1,498 and 1,522. In less than an hour oil rose 205 feet in the hole, and while no test has been made, it is believed it will make from 25 to 50 barrels daily. It is several hudnred feet more shallow than any other well in the field and it is evidently in an entirely different sand.

Rotary-Illinois, NE 1-4 sec 30-18-28, cleaning out hole after shooting. Reported the well swabbed 55 barrels in three hours.

Keyes et al, NE 1-4 sec. 19-18-28, drilling blow 2,280, in hard lime. Three good showings have already been encountered in this hole.

McNutt-Illinois, Simpson No. 1, SE 1-4 SW 1-4 sec. 7-18-28, drilling.

Maljamar No. 1, SE 1-4 SW 1-4 sec. 28-18-28, drilling at about 150.

Illinois No. 6, 550 feet south of No. 3, drilling below 1,900, and reported to be topping the sand.

Illinois No. 8, Se quarter sec. 29-18-28, offsetting Twin Lakes No. 2, drilling below 1,910.

Chessman No. 1, NW 1-4 SE 1-4 sec. 35-18-28, drilling.

New State Oil company has announced it will start operations within 30 days on acreage owned by the Marion Oil company in the N 1-2 sec. 5-18-28.

George Bobb has also made a location on holdings of the Marion company in NE 1-4 sec. 26-18-28, for which a rig is said to have been shipped.

Gilliland No. 1, SW 1-4 NE 1-4 sec. 29-18-28, drilling below 500.

Rotary-Illinois has made a location in the NW 1-4 NE 1-4 sec. 29-18-28, offsetting Gilliland No. 1.

Williams Petroleum corporation of Los Angeles, Cavif., have made a location o nthe NW 1-4 NE 1-4 sec. 19-18-28.

Indiana-Pecos Oil company has made a location on NW 1-4 sec. 30-26-28. This company controls 2,486 acres.

Cleveland Oil company has made a location in sec. 18-26-28, and announces it will commense drilling within 90 days.

Mutual Operating company, subsidiary of the New Mexico Oil corporation of Los Angeles, has a derrick up, ready to begin operations in NE 1-4 sec. 5-26-28.

Portland-Pecos Oil Co. has made a location in NW quarter Sec. 12-24-location in NW quarter Sec. 12-24-31.

CHAVES COUNTY—Colo. Gas & Fuel Co. No. 1, NW quarter Sec. 16-8-27, drilling at about 2,000. Scout reports crew as "hard boiled" and not giving out any information, but sample of the slush obtained shows the operation is now or has recently been in good showing of oil.

LEA COUNTY—Sinclair & Jones No. 1, SW quarter Sec. 19-16-34, drilling below 400. Last week's report incorrectly gave the township of this operation as 26 instead of 16.

DE BACA COUNTY—McAdoo No. 1, Sec. 16-18-27, still shut down at 300 feet waiting for the chemists to figure out a proper treatment for the water so as to make it serviceable for boiler use.

TORRANCE COUNTY—McLean Drilling Co. SE quarter Sec. 8-8-15, drilling on No. 1. Rig installed on Nos. 2 and 3.

SAN MIGUEL COUNTY—Santa Fe Petroleum Co. SW quarter Sec. 3-13-15, drilling below 1,400, said to have encountered another good showing of oil within past few days.

W. H. Graham who owns the lease on the Jones dome, in Twp. 12 N, R. 23 E, has announced he expects to close a drilling contract with a well-known company the end of the present week, calling for immediate operations.

LUNA COUNTY—Angelus well SE quarter Sec. 24-21-11, drilling below 1,300. Florida well SE quarter Sec. 15-23-10, underreaming for 6 1-2 inch casing.

VALENCIA COUNTY—De Chavez Petroleum Co., Sec. 8-16-1E, drilling below 1,440. For the second time, struck a small showing of oil last Friday, which is very encouraging, as no indications had been expected at this depth.

Coal Mines Quiet As Strike Leaders Argue

SYDNEY, N. S., March 7.—Not a wheel was turning above or below ground tonight in the Cape Breton area where 12,00 employes of the coal mines of the British Empire Steel corporation left the pits last night in compliance with a general strike order issued by the officers of district No. 2, United Mine Workers of America.

The corporation management insisted that the miners had declared a strike. The union has taken the position that some of the miners were virtually locked out when corporation recently ceased operations at several collieries.

John L. Lewis, president of the International Mine Workers Union, has not yet classified the action of the miners as either a strike or a lockout.

Coolidge May Name Shoals Committee

WASHINGTON, March 7. — The prospects that President Coolidge will act favorably on the house proposal to name a commission to study and make recommendations to the next congress on the question of disposing of the Muscle Shoals property gained added weight today after conferences between President Coolidge, Secretary Weeks and Senator Underwood of Alabama.

Senator Underwood called on the president early today to discuss the Muscle Shoals question and Mr. Weeks visited the White House later for the same purpose. It was understood that both callers discussed the commission proposal as adopted by the house after the Underwood leasing bill and failed of enactment.

NEW GERMAN CANDIDATE

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP) — The socialist party today decided to nominate Otto Braun, former Prussian premier, who was succeeded in that position by Dr. Wilhelm Marx, as their candidate for president of the German republic.

$1,015,580.95

THIS IS THE LARGEST AND OLDEST BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION IN WEST TEXAS.

Our record stands for itself. Judge by our past, not our future for that is assured.

There is no occasion for any second or third choice when you want to buy building and loan shares or get a real estate loan for you can get them from this association and have the best.

We never mention our authorized capital. It sounds too big and does not mean a thing. When asked to buy building and loan shares ask for a financial statement of the company and make your own comparison. You can get our financial statement at any time.

WE LEAD AND ARE COMPLIMENTED BY HAVING FOLLOWERS

Among our 522 real estate borrowers, we have your neighbor. Ask him how he likes his home loan with us and then come to see us. Buy our installment shares for the safest and yet most profitable investment that you could make.

Yours for a greater and better city of homes.

CENTRAL PRESS PHOTOS

Above: The chart from the seismograph at John Carroll university, Cleveland, telling the story of the earthquake. The upper series of waves was made by the needle which records the disturbances of the earth's crust along a north and south line. The lower series shows the record of the east and west action. Below: Rev. F. L. Odenbach, and the seismograph.

Earth Is Due For Severe Shake Up Scientists Warn

Lesser Shocks Probable Is Claim In Region Recently Shimmied

CLEVELAND, O., Mar. 7.—Was the earthquake that set a large part of the United States in an uproar only the first of a series of subterranean disturbances that will gradually push up the northeastern section of the country?

The Rev. F. L. Odenbach, scientist of John Carroll university, says so. Other observers, however, disagree with him.

"In 200 years," the Rev. Odenbach says, "Chicago will have her canal to the Mississippi. Cleveland and Toledo and all Canada can't stop it. At the rate the land is being tilted toward the southwest Chicago will get all the water diversion she wants, because Lake Michigan will simply have to drain off into the Mississippi valley.

"In 10,000 years Niagara Falls will be dry. The Great Lakes drainage will be to the west and south, as it was thousands of years ago. There is a natural canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi, where a river once flowed before."

That the tilt in the earth occasioned by the quake is permanent is indicated by the fact that the needles of the seismograph at John Carroll university never resumed their normal position, but recorded the final phase of the tremors in a line considerably above normal. Records made by others of these delicate instruments, located in Washington, New York and abroad, are now being compared with that made here.

While "lesser shocks" are "probable" in the region shaken by the recent quake, there is no need for worry. Scientists agree that no disturbance of such pronounced intensity need be expected again for many years. Such matters are uncertain, however.

The earthquake was one of the most pronounced that has ever taken place in continental United States.

"The earthquake, in the category of quakes, may easily rank with any in the history of the states, with the possible exception of the notable quake in 1811-13," says Father Tondorf, the Georgetown university seismologist.

The 1811-13 disturbance known as the quake of New Madrid, in the Mississippi valley, was felt over an area approximately 29,000 square miles and Kansas and Ohio were severely shaken.

While quakes are rated in the terms of the damage done, it should be remembered that most of such damage is only indirectly attributable to them, being due chiefly to fire.

Americanism: Taking a long journey; returning and telling about the punctures.

Distant relatives are those who have money and know you need it.

Doubtless the cause of seven suicides in ten is a desperate yearning to make somebody feel sorry.

Old-timers were not more prudish, but merely more subtle. They called petting parties playing "postoffice."

If they must have something with greater tensile strength than duralumin, why not try a boarding house steak?

REAL ESTATE

Tired of Paying for your landlord's house?

THEN ASK US TO SHOW SOME REAL VALUES IN HOMES!

Here is one of the prettiest little four-room houses in town. This place has three complete sets of built-in features, porch all the way across the front, hedges in the back, is within easy walking distance of town, only one block off the pavement and near the car line. For a dandy good buy you should see this place, for only $4,000, or can be bought furnished for $4,400. See us at once about the cash payment and terms.

TAYLOR STREET HOME

Then let us talk Tenth street for a while. We have a six-room house in the 1800 block and if you are in the market for a home of the better class, this will be exactly what you are looking for. This place is not, nor has ever been a rent house. Call us Monday for an appointment to see this place.

Here is another one on Tenth: A five-room, all modern, north front house, extra deep lot, garage, solid driveway. This place is now rented for $75 per month and as an investment you can't beat this. Price is right and owner will consider a well located lot as part payment.

Just off Tenth on one of the best streets in Floral Heights, a five-room furnished house for $6,500. We might say lots more about this place, but when we show it to you, you will do all the talking. The Building & Loan Association has appraised this place at $6,400, so you see why we say that when you see this place you will do all the talking. We are going to sell this place the first of the week.

Here is a vacant lot on a street that will be paved within the next two months. This lot is on Buchanan street, one block off the pavement. We can deliver this lot for $1,125. How is that for a snap?

If you are considering buying a vacant lot to build on or for an investment, see us first. You won't be disappointed.

NOW WE COME TO DENVER ST.

A little palace of three rooms and a large breakfast room, built-in features in the kitchen. If you are in the market for a real home and don't think you can put out much for it, then this place will appeal to you. Going to be sold for only $2,950. We will be glad to show this to you.

ON GARFIELD STREET

we can show you a real lot for only $1,800. Here is the best buy in

"THE CITY THAT FAITH BUILT"

A five-room furnished house on Lucile street.

Listen now, while we talk about this place: Hardwood floors in two of the rooms, built-in bookcases, built-in features in the kitchen, fireplace in the living room. In fact, we don't know how to describe this on paper. Living room is furnished in mahogany. Call in and we will take you out and show you the finest buy in town.

WHILE YOU ARE OUT DRIVING today near the Junior College, turn your radiator east two blocks and you will be on Briton street. About midway on the side facing east you will see two of the best lots to be found in the city. You can't fail to see them for the fruit trees. They are extra large lots, and the price for the week will be easy, but you will have to call the office to get it.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon A. A. Wallace and R. E. Neeley by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th district court of Wichita County, to be holden at the court house thereof in Wichita Falls, on the first Monday in April, A. D., 1925, the same being the 6th day of April, A. D., 1925. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 27 day of February, A. D. 1925, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 16683-C wherein, E. O. Chafin is plaintiff and A. A. Wallace and E. R. Neeley are defendants, and said petition alleging: That on or about the first day of January, 1925, plaintiff was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described land and premises situated in Wichita county, to-wit: Lot number 20, block number 26, of the Scotland Addition of the the city of Wichita Falls, as shown by plat of said Scotland Addition of record in the office of the county clerk, Wichita County, Texas; that on the day and year aforesaid, defendants unlawfully entered upon said premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom, and unlawfully withheld from him the possession thereof, to his damage in the sum of $2,000; that the reasonable monthly rental of said land and premises is $50.00; that on or about September 1, 1920, defendant A. A. Wallace made, executed and delivered to E. R. Neeley a general warranty deed conveying the land and premises above described, in which conveyance vendor's lien was retained to secure installment note of $900, due $50.00 per month beginning October 15, 1921; that on or about April 18, 1923, defendant E. R. Neeley made, executed and delivered to J. W. Ross a general warranty deed conveying said property wherein the said J. W. Ross assumed and agreed to pay above described note of $900, and to secure which payment by said Ross vendor's lien was retained by said E. R. Neeley; that said note was fully paid, both principal and interest according to its terms, but that release of the vendor's lien was not obtained; that said note having been so fully paid, the said defendants have no further lien or claim against the property hereinabove described; that said vendor's lien is a cloud upon plaintiff's title. Plaintiff prays that defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition; that he have judgment for the possession of above described land and premises; that writ of restitution issue; for his rents and damages, and for judgement cancelling and releasing said vendor's lien, and that cloud be removed from plaintiff's title and that plaintiff be quieted in his title to said premises, and for costs of suit and relief general and special, in law and in equity, as he may be justly entitled to.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 27 day of February, A. D., 1925.

Texan Acquitted Of Fraud Charges By Retrial Jury

Kansas City Jury Takes Twenty Hours to Free Man

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—W. E. Stewart was acquitted in the United States district court here today of using the mails to defraud in the sale of Hidalgo county, Texas, land.

The verdict, which was brought in after a jury had deliberated nearly 20 hours, was the second Stewart had faced, a jury two years ago having convicted him. In the first trial, Stewart was sentenced to five years and fined. The case was remanded.

Fifteen ballots were taken by the jury in the second trial, the first showing the jury evenly divided.

Following the report of the verdict, Stewart shook hands with each of the jurors and promised he would send them grape juice from the Rio Grande valley.

For "four years," he said, "I have been under a cloud. I have suffered more for my family than on my own account. No man who has not stood in my position can realize the feeling that came to me with this vindication of my name."

As in the first trial the government imported scores of witnesses from widely scattered regions. They testified that the W. E. Stewart Land company, of which Stewart was president had represented land sold to them as being irrigated. They claimed they were constrained to abandon efforts to farm it because of lack of water supply.

Defense witnesses testified that land they had purchased was productive and in every respect was as Stewart's agents had represented it. Stewart placed on the witness stand, testified in his own behalf, that proper development of an irrigation system in that part of his holdings known as the Edinburg tract was interrupted first by a Rio Grande flood in 1920 and later by the impatience of farmers there who started receivership proceedings against his company.

FALL IS SILENT

May Decline to Testify at Cheyenne Under Constitutional Rights

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., March 7.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, declined to make any statement today regarding reports at Cheyenne that he might stand on his constitutional rights and refuse to testify in the Teapot Dome trial starting at Cheyenne Monday.

Mark B. Thompson, Fall's attorney, said:

"Mr. Fall is summoned as a government witness in a government case. Naturally he will decline to state what he expects to do until he has conferred with legal counsel of the government. I think he will do what they want him to do."

ARREST WOMAN FOR THEFT

Admits Robbery of Over $100,000 in Jewels; Implicates Companion

NEW YORK, March 7.—Arrested and charged with the theft here and in Chicago of more than $100,000 in jewels and furs, Mrs. Anton Wernitzer is said by the police to have confessed today to the robbery of three homes in which she worked as a maid. She implicated her companion, Herman Lieberwirth, who was also arrested, and said that he played the stock market with the reults of her operations.

REACH ACCORD ON DEBT

PARIS, March 7.—(AP)—Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary and Premier Herriot in their talks last night and today reached the determination to settle the security question "in accord with the allies." That was the most important result of the British statesman's visit here according to an official communique after this afternoon's conversation.

Court Stenos Must 'Get It'

A human machine that must function without hesitancy; that must function perfectly; that must adapt itself to the varied and exacting demands of all classes of people; that must carry through the day an intimate working knowledge of courts and laws; that must be an unobstrusive part of the legal machine a court constitutes, but which is and always will be one of the important wheels in that machine—such is the official court reporter of today.

"Silent Men"

Known as "the silent man" of the court house, the court reporter attracts but scant attention from those who may casually visit the legal chamber where a trial is in progress. Yet hour after hour while a hearing is in progress the reporter must take down many thousands of words of testimony—and take them correctly. Juries, attorneys, sometimes judges show signs of weariness. If and when they do it is possible to relax for a few moments at a time. But not so the reporter.

The deluge of words constantly tumbling to the front under the examination of witnesses must be absorbed as rapidly as it comes and put down in funny little heiroplyhics known as shorthand which may be later transcribed. In this deluge may be the oratorical efforts of a lawyer who has lost all control of his auditory organs and rambles on and on. Again it may be some expert witness who seriously and solemnly expounds on some highly technical subject in which uncommon or little known terms abound.

It may be a medical or psychopathic authority who undertakes to explain to a jury the anatomy of a human body or the vagaries of a human mind. Then again it may be a mechanical or scientific expert who elaborates on the perversities of flivver or the intricacies of a hydraulic dredge. A geologist may go into details on the formation of an old field, and a chemist may verbally analyze synthetic gin. Whatever it may be, no matter how complicated, the reporter must "get it." Sometimes when a witness is afflicted with throat trouble or stutters the reporter interrupts him and asks that it be repeated, but this is infrequent and unusual.

Need Keen Ear.

The advertisements say that "we can teach you shorthand in 30 days," and perhaps they can, but no 30 day study of the art—now regarded as a profession, can qualify one for the exacting duties of a court reporter. Long months of study are required, and despite the fact that it is apparently an easy task to sit in front of the judge and take down the things that are said, it is in reality a gruelling one. A keen ear and nimble brain, with equally nimble fingers are required to catch all that the witness says, the objections and comments of attorneys, the rulings of the court and anything else that may come up. Coupled with these requirements is no small degree of responsibility since on the accuracy of the official records may depend a life, liberty or property if the case is appealed to courts higher than the one in which it is tried.

Appelate and supreme courts require that verbatim testimony of all evidence adduced at the original trials be presented to them, correctly typed and arranged in neat and compact form. They have been known to severely censure reporters who sent in records carelessly and improperly compiled.

Here is another angle of the reporter's job that the public never sees—that of the typing after the case is concluded. Once the trial is finished the mass of evidence, sometimes filling a dozen shorthand notebooks, must be transcribed on the typewriter, properly indexed and the exhibits correctly filed. This, if anything, is more difficult and certainly requires more time than the actual setting down of the short hand notes.

Four Reporters Used.

With three district and one county court in Wichita Falls, it is necessary that four official reporters be used here constantly. Each of the three district judges, and also the county judge have their individual reporters who usually take all testimony offered in any case before this particular judge. There is also a fourth who acts as relief reporter when occassion demands and lends assistance to the others whenever it may be needed.

In the 30th district court, the official pencil is weilded for Judge H. R. Wilson by Charles Weich, who has acted for the court for many years. Before coming to Wichita Falls he was engaged in similar reporting work in other parts of Texas. Eugene Sherrod is dean of the reporting corps here and presides at the reporter's desk in the 78th district court, now ruled by Judge Guy Rogers. Mr. Sherrod has been reporting for 15 years or more. In Judge P. A. Martin's court, the 89th, Renne Allred, brother of the district attorney, is official reporter. He has acted for Judge Martin for the last five years.

Mrs. M. W. Nevin reports all proceedings before Judge C. M. McFarland in the county court at law, while Mrs. Mary Newsom acts as relief reporter for all the courts.

Lawton School Funds Used; Need Tuition

LAWTON, Okla., March 7.—Lawton public schools will open Monday morning under the tuition system, funds for the current year having been exhausted. Approximately 1,250 pupils have signed up ti pay tuition for the remainder of the year that the school might remain open.

High school students will be charged $8.50 per month while grade students will pay $5.

One marriage license was issued Saturday by the county clerk's office. It went to Louis Elliott Diamond, Wichita Falls, and Sula Jeff McFalter, Shreveport, La.

January County Tax Collections Total $951,182.21

Amount Represents More Than Ninety Percent of 1925 Roll

Total tax collections made during January, 1925, by County Tax Collector Guy C. Raley were $951,182.21, Mr. Raley announced Saturday. This represents 90 per cent of the total taxable roll, he said, and is some $150,000 more than collections for the same month in 1924.

Of the sums taken in, the state will receive $385,738.96, the county $415,916.49, the Burkburnett independent school district $47,143.86, Fairview $17,987.98 and district schools $53,987.98.

Poll tax payments for the year have run to approximately 9,000, Mr. Raley has found. Poll tax lists are now being prepared and will be ready for use of the election judges in the city election of April 7. This is the largest number ever paid in a single year.

Excess fees collected and turned back to the county this year by the tax office have amounted to $13,624, a sum larger by $4,000 or more than that ever before turned in by previous collectors. Automobile registrations are in excellent shape and the office, despite the largest volume of business in its history, is 30 days ahead of conditions as they existed at the same time a year ago.

Men Who Built Big Irrigation Project At Work for Dallas

The men who in days past were familiar to Wichita Falls as the ones who built the local irrigation project are playing an important part now in the construction of the giant Garza dam that is to provide Dallas with a limitless water supply. The dam is being flung across the Elm fork of the Trinity river in Denton county and will, when completed, create a lake covering some 11,000 acres of land. It will be about one-third as large as Lake Kemp.

Drive Sheet Piling.

One of the principal tasks of the Garza project now is the driving of the sheet steel piling for the big bank. This work is in charge of J. H. Murphy, who drove all the piles on the storage and diversion dams of the Wichita county project, the Wichita Falls Traction company river bridge at Austin street and the Red River bridge of the Waurika branch of the Valley. Mr. Murphy was in the city a short time last week.

The cut-off trench of the dam averages 40 feet in depth and piling has been driven so that the bottom of it rests 68 feet below the surface. This has been done over a length of 3,150 feet and was completed in 31 days working time.

Thompson In Charge.

R. H. Thompson, chief engineer on the local project is consulting engineer of the Garza dam and the work is in charge of Captain H. F. McFarland, assistant to Mr. Thompson here. The Callahan Construction company of Dallas is doing the work and has a force of more than 400 men on the job.

The hydraulic filling is being accomplished by a dredge built by the Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging company, which built and operated the dredge T. B. Noble on Lake Kemp. It has been pumping for 30 days and is making rapid progress.

Dallas Men Visit Here.

In connection with the Garza dam, it is recalled that a large party of Dallas business men came to Wichita Falls several years ago when work on the Lake Kemp dam was at its height and made a thorough inspection of the project. Headed by Mayor Blaylock and members of the city commission over 100 came up on a special train and were taken to the dam site in automobiles. There they went over the entire works, had a barbecue dinner as guests of the Callahan company and after the return to Wichita Falls were guests of the local chamber of commerce at a dinner at the Kemp.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Williamson are leaving to make their home in Beaumont.

Geo. D. Keith and son, Kenneth, are in Oklahoma City, attending the Oklahoma State Stock show, where Mr. Keith has several entries in the Hereford cattle exhibit.

Demand for new Corona exceeds present supply

We are not surprised!—For years people have been asking for just such a typewriter—the convenience—portability and durability of Corona, plus the standard keyboard and capacity of a standard office typewriter.

You'll want at least one of these new Coronas—for your home—your office—or both. Better phone your reservation now. You need not accept the machine until you have tried it.

OLD RECTOR TO RESIGN

New York Church Official Expected to Retire From Active Work

NEW YORK, March 7.—The New York Evening Post says today that Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, for more than 20 years rector of fashionable St. Bartholomew church and in recent years a standard-bearer for modernists in the Episcopal diocese is expected to resign soon. Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood of St. Pauls' in Overbrook, Philadelphia, will probably be his successor, the Post says.

NEGRO SCHOOLS AIDED

John D. Jr., Gives a Million to Hampton and Tuskegee

NEW YORK, March 7.—John D. Rockefeller Jr., has given $1,000,000 to the Hampton and Tuskegee institutes for negroes, it was announced by Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the special gifts committee of the Hampton-Tuskegee endowment fund.

Mr. Rockefeller's donation was made unconditionally and brings the endowment fund now being raised to $3,500,000.

CUT GALVEZ KEY RATE

AUSTIN, March 7.—Galveston's key fire insurance rate was lowered the maximum of 15 per cent today by the state fire insurance commission for a good fire record during the last year. The new rate is effective from March 1 for one year.

"Whim-Wham" Next Friday Calls Upon Fairyland

"Torch Bearers" By Little Theatre To Be A Scream, With Mrs. Pittman Starring In New Role—Says Peggy

IF I RHAPSODIZE too much on the subject of concerts, and the Little Theatre, or seem to extravagant in the use of adjectives in regards to our players and our director, Peter Ames Vincent, you must remember, Kitty, you've never seen any of our plays nor heard the concerts given by our choral club, for if you had you would probably do the same. Rehearsals are going forward at a rapid gait for the "Torch Bearers", the burlesque comedy on Little Theatre acting, so I am told by some who are taking part, and when they tell you about the rehearsals, the invariable ending is, that it is a scream, so very amusing that they can hardly do their parts for laughing. Mrs. J. S. Pitman, who as every one knows, is somewhat a professional on the stage, and a favorite with local playgoers, is taking the leading feminine role, as director of the play, and her work in this part is said to be exceptionally splendid. Mr. Vincent is a busy man these days. Directing rehearsals at night while by day his paint brush is busy making the settings that will furnish just exactly the proper background for the story.

The Methodist Concert.

And then the concert given by the Methodist Young People's association of the city, Friday night at the First Methodist church. Their second platform offering, was a hit from start to finish, as was their first offering, when they presented the "Boy Preacher". The concert featured the Shrine Chanters, the First Methodist choir and J. Stanley Raub, violinist, and Marguerite Fisher, popular dramatic reader, in a negro spiritual program. A collection of the most popular negro songs and choruses were given and everyone was delighted with every number.

Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr., well known and talented organist, opened the program with a prelude, captivating her audience with her first notes. This was followed by negro spiritual songs, "Deep River," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," with Miss Lorraine Russell in the solo parts with the choir. The Shrine Chanters, including Vaughn Ray, Ivan Murchison, Paul Von Allman and Grover Bullington, gave "Standing In the Need of Prayer," and "Heaben-Heaben." I don't think I need tell you how their numbers were received. They brought forth the hearty applause of the house as their singing always does. Miss Fisher, in keeping with the remainder of the program, gave a negro dialect reading and Mrs. Akin played for the offertory, "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground." A quartet composed of Margaret Kaye, Glenore Fisk and Francis Hansen and Robert Ross sang, "I'm a Rollin" and "Little David, Play On Your Harp." Mrs. C. Y. Tully, as soprano obligato, assisted the chorus in singing "Steal Away," and "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," and Stanley Raub gave "The Freak" a highly negroish violin

[illegible] Rabon Porter, under whose [illegible] the entire program was pre[illegible]ang two negro solos, and the [illegible]oncluded the program with [illegible]bers. The entire offering [illegible]of the ordinary, and the ef[illegible]e Young People's association [illegible]ining the public are up[illegible]s may be attested by the [illegible]nce their attractions draws.

[illegible]turer Is Announced.

[illegible]k, on Friday night, the [illegible]announced Dr. Charles De[illegible]urer from Oklahoma City. [illegible]'s Choral club and Miss [illegible]n, harpist, will assist on [illegible] which will be given at [illegible]eights Methodist church. [illegible]believe I have told you [illegible] wonderful cantata the [illegible]al club will present at the First Methodist church on Monday evening "Fan, on a Summer Day" is the title of the music, and those who have heard some of the rehearsals declare it to be the most beautiful cantata the club has yet attempted.

And so with so many good things coming and going, we feel that we have a right to be right sot up.

I guess though that you think my letter is filled up with entertainment, and I can hear you say, "That girl sure likes music," and I say next to traveling, yes.

But speaking of traveling reminds me, have you made your reservation yet for the world meeting of women to be held in Washington in May? If not, it would be well to do so, according to Jessie S. Read, press chairman of the general federation. Mrs. Read says that more than 6,000 reservations are expected and already many have been spoken for. Forty-two countries will be represented in this brilliant convention which without doubt, will be one of the most important meetings of women ever held in the world, being the sixth quintennial of the international council which binds in one body, every important woman's organization of every civilized country of the globe.

Can you imagine anything more collossal Kitty, and do you not hope to be numbered among "those present?"

Mrs. Read also says that Lord and Lady Oberdeen have accepted the personal invitation of Mrs. J. Borden Harrison, who will entertain them at Hotel Washington. The party of the international president will arrive in Montreal, April 24, and be entertained daily at Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points en route to the American capital where they are expected May 2. The council dates are May 4 to 14. Lady Oberdeen, writing to her American club sisters, says:

"Our mission is to create sympathy and good will toward all, to foster confidence and trust between nations and individuals of these nations, to find a common cause through which we may work for world-wide prosperity, happiness and peace.

For Better Journalism.

In a campaign for beter journalism club women launched by the general federation of Women's club press department, of which Jessie S. Read is chairman, the department is offering a prize of 350 cash for the best advance article written by a non-professional member of some women's club and printed in any newspaper in the state in which the writer resides. The clipping and story, together with the writer's name and address okayed by her club, and giving also the name of her club, town and state in which it is located and name of paper in which the clipping appeared, must be sent to Miss Valla Winner, fifth vice-chairman of press G. F. W. C., Portland Journal, Portland, Oregon, who is in charge of all preliminaries.

I am telling you this, friend of mine, because, knowing your talent for telling the news, thought you might get in line with a good advance story of some of your club activities, and pull down that $50 which will at least buy you that coveted spring bonnet.

You might bear in mind that an "advance" story is one that heralds some coming event, and the prize is offered for this rather than a report of some past event because of the need of educating club women to report their activities before they occur, rather than after.

"News is news only when it is new" is one axiom for club women to remember. Club news is news the day it happens, but better news the day before it happens, is another.

But dear as my epistle draws to an end I cannot see how I can quit without just a word about styles. I see by reading lots of fashion articles that the old world designers are no longer occupying the lead in producing fashions and that Hollywood, home of the film stars, is fast becoming America's fashion center. Here we have Winona (Mary Goeppinger) a designer of unusual and striking costumes. Winona says that types and personalities as well as coloring and figure must be considered in effective designing. Personalities and moods are expressed by costumes as well as by music, only in costumes they must be felt, rather than heard. A simple gown that appears to the observer as a few rapid, graceful strokes of pen or brush, often is in reality the product of hours, often days, of intense concentration and study before there is produced the finished and pleasing product. The Indian name, Winona, was chosen by Miss Goeppinger to signify that she is an American designer.

Now about the spring fashion for this part of the world, Kitty, we see all the advance styles at the Fat Stock show which is now in session in Fort Worth and large numbers of our people are there spending the week end. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ray, Mesdames G. D. Rigsby, and M. G. Catter. Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal has just returned from there.

Believing that I have told you about all I know at present of the comings and goings of our friends, I hope you are satisfied with the epistle written by—

PEGGY PIEDMONT.

Gloria Gould, "Million-Dollar Bride," Urges Wichitans To Dance If They Would Be Happy and Beautiful At Same Time

By GLORIA GOULD BISHOP

To dance is to be happy.
To dance is to be beautiful.
Buoyancy of step means buoyancy of soul.

THIS is the greatest lesson I have learned from my 13 years of the study of dancing. I started in studying the art of the dance when I was barely old enough to walk. And this has kept me happy; improved my appearance and my spirits.

During these 13 years, at odd times and intervals especially since I started my dancing class with Miss Ada Barker at the Park Lane in New York City, I have been besieged by questions on dancing from readers of newspapers all over the world.

I am, therefore, very pleased to write a series of newspaper stories on my life work. I am hoping not only to answer all the questions sent to me from the readers of this newspaper in the past, but to answer others in the future. I expect to answer as many questions as I can at the conclusion of each one of my stories. These stories will of course be based on actual suggestions made to me by students and teachers of dancing, as well as readers of newspapers who are interested in dancing as an aid to beauty.

I do not pose as a great authority on dancing. But I do want to impart to the public, so long as it has shown itself desirous of listening, some of the interesting and helpful information about dancing I have acquired during my study of this great beautifier.

Dancing, I believe, is a better aid than anything else in the world to everybody for the realization of health, wealth, and happiness. For the tired housewife whose toes need a touch of the light fantastic in order to make the household routine less irksome; for the business girl who sits all day at her machine in a posture conducive to too many angles in her body and not enough curves, and to the business man who smokes too many cigars and eats too much rich food—dancing is the greatest aid in the world.

Before we were married, my husband once asked me if all girls did not want to know how to dance—and dance well? I said I believed dancing to be one of the most universal of all human desires.

The desire to dance seems to me to be as natural as the desire to hear good music, read good books, sing good songs, eat good food, and to sleep in comfortable beds. Our instincts can never go wrong, and when we listen to them we lead happy lives.

Dancing is a natural normal instinct, as our study of the primitive peoples indicates. What savage race in existence today does not have its natural dances? Watch a very young child, and you will see it trying to dance, even perhaps before it can walk. I often wonder if there is any significance to the historical fact that in the epochs of history when dancing was forbidden by law, the lives of the people knew no lightness and happiness. The early days of the Puritans in this country were certainly not noted for their brightness, and everyone knows with what distaste the May Flowerites regarded dancing.

To dance is to be happy—beautiful of mind and body.

And to teach dancing is one way of making others happy. And that is why Miss Barker and I decided to enroll in one of the finest teacher's training classes in the country to prepare ourselves for this work.

(In the next article Gloria Gould Bishop will tell more about her ideas on dancing.)

Miss Josephine Tucker And Paul Bundy, Popular Young People Of Wichita, Are Married Saturday

Of interest to a host of friends of both families, is the marriage of Miss Josephine Tucker, daughter of Charles J. Tucker, and Paul Bundy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bundy of this city. The impressive ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride, in the presence of immediate relatives of the couple, and a few school friends of the bride with whom she was associated while a student at the Oklahoma university at Norman.

While the wedding was a quiet home affair, the bride presented a charming picture of girlish loveliness in her beige spring ensemble costume with dress of crust flat crepe and fillet lace. She wore a hat of rust and gold to harmonize with corsage of spring flowers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bundy are popular members of the younger set, having been reared in this city where their families are numbered among the most prominent socially, and in business circles.

Because of her charming personality and exceptional musical talent, the bride endeared herself to social circles here. Mr. Bundy for a year has made his home in Dallas, where is is connected with Cranfill Bros., oil company.

He is a graduate of the local high school having finished with the class of 1920, after which he was a student at State university, and also the University of Arkansas. Mrs. Bundy attended school here, afterwards going to Ward-Belmont where she specialized in her music.

Following the ceremony, the young couple left overland for a visit in Galveston and Houston where they will spend about 10 days after which they will be at home in Dallas.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Charles F. Tucker of San Antonio, a brother of the bride; a sister, Mrs. Frank Tempel, and her small daughter, Helen Frances, and the Misses Winnie Mae Hall and Ruby Wooten of the Oklahoma university at Norman.

Texan Acquitted Of Fraud Charges By Retrial Jury

Kansas City Jury Takes Twenty Hours to Free Man

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—W. E. Stewart was acquitted in the United States district court here today of using the mails to defraud in the sale of Hidalgo county, Texas, land.

The verdict, which was brought in after a jury had deliberated nearly 20 hours, was the second Stewart had faced, a jury two years ago having convicted him. In the first trial, Stewart was sentenced to five years and fined. The case was remanded.

Fifteen ballots were taken by the jury in the second trial, the first showing the jury evenly divided.

Following the report of the verdict, Stewart shook hands with each of the jurors and promised he would send them grape juice from the Rio Grande valley.

For "four years," he said, "I have been under a cloud. I have suffered more for my family than on my own account. No man who has not stood in my position can realize the feeling that came to me with this vindication of my name."

As in the first trial the government imported scores of witnesses from widely scattered regions. They testified that the W. E. Stewart Land company, of which Stewart was president had represented land sold to them as being irrigated. They claimed they were constrained to abandon efforts to farm it because of lack of water supply.

Defense witnesses testified that land they had purchased was productive and in every respect was as Stewart's agents had represented it. Stewart placed on the witness stand, testified in his own behalf, that proper development of an irrigation system in that part of his holdings known as the Edinburg tract was interrupted first by a Rio Grande flood in 1920 and later by the impatience of farmers there who started receivership proceedings against his company.

FALL IS SILENT

May Decline to Testify at Cheyenne Under Constitutional Rights

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., March 7.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, declined to make any statement today regarding reports at Cheyenne that he might stand on his constitutional rights and refuse to testify in the Teapot Dome trial starting at Cheyenne Monday.

Mark B. Thompson, Fall's attorney, said:

"Mr. Fall is summoned as a government witness in a government case. Naturally he will decline to state what he expects to do until he has conferred with legal counsel of the government. I think he will do what they want him to do."

ARREST WOMAN FOR THEFT

Admits Robbery of Over $100,000 in Jewels; Implicates Companion

NEW YORK, March 7.—Arrested and charged with the theft here and in Chicago of more than $100,000 in jewels and furs, Mrs. Anton Wernitzer is said by the police to have confessed today to the robbery of three homes in which she worked as a maid. She implicated her companion, Herman Lieberwirth, who was also arrested, and said that he played the stock market with the reults of her operations.

REACH ACCORD ON DEBT

PARIS, March 7.—(AP)—Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary and Premier Herriot in their talks last night and today reached the determination to settle the security question "in accord with the allies." That was the most important result of the British statesman's visit here according to an official communique after this afternoon's conversation.

Court Stenos Must 'Get It'

A human machine that must function without hesitancy; that must function perfectly; that must adapt itself to the varied and exacting demands of all classes of people; that must carry through the day an intimate working knowledge of courts and laws; that must be an unobstrusive part of the legal machine a court constitutes, but which is and always will be one of the important wheels in that machine—such is the official court reporter of today.

"Silent Men"

Known as "the silent man" of the court house, the court reporter attracts but scant attention from those who may casually visit the legal chamber where a trial is in progress. Yet hour after hour while a hearing is in progress the reporter must take down many thousands of words of testimony—and take them correctly. Juries, attorneys, sometimes judges show signs of weariness. If and when they do it is possible to relax for a few moments at a time. But not so the reporter.

The deluge of words constantly tumbling to the front under the examination of witnesses must be absorbed as rapidly as it comes and put down in funny little heiroplyhics known as shorthand which may be later transcribed. In this deluge may be the oratorical efforts of a lawyer who has lost all control of his auditory organs and rambles on and on. Again it may be some expert witness who seriously and solemnly expounds on some highly technical subject in which uncommon or little known terms abound.

It may be a medical or psychopathic authority who undertakes to explain to a jury the anatomy of a human body or the vagaries of a human mind. Then again it may be a mechanical or scientific expert who elaborates on the perversities of flivver or the intricacies of a hydraulic dredge. A geologist may go into details on the formation of an old field, and a chemist may verbally analyze synthetic gin. Whatever it may be, no matter how complicated, the reporter must "get it." Sometimes when a witness is afflicted with throat trouble or stutters the reporter interrupts him and asks that it be repeated, but this is infrequent and unusual.

Need Keen Ear.

The advertisements say that "we can teach you shorthand in 30 days," and perhaps they can, but no 30 day study of the art—now regarded as a profession, can qualify one for the exacting duties of a court reporter. Long months of study are required, and despite the fact that it is apparently an easy task to sit in front of the judge and take down the things that are said, it is in reality a gruelling one. A keen ear and nimble brain, with equally nimble fingers are required to catch all that the witness says, the objections and comments of attorneys, the rulings of the court and anything else that may come up. Coupled with these requirements is no small degree of responsibility since on the accuracy of the official records may depend a life, liberty or property if the case is appealed to courts higher than the one in which it is tried.

Appelate and supreme courts require that verbatim testimony of all evidence adduced at the original trials be presented to them, correctly typed and arranged in neat and compact form. They have been known to severely censure reporters who sent in records carelessly and improperly compiled.

Here is another angle of the reporter's job that the public never sees—that of the typing after the case is concluded. Once the trial is finished the mass of evidence, sometimes filling a dozen shorthand notebooks, must be transcribed on the typewriter, properly indexed and the exhibits correctly filed. This, if anything, is more difficult and certainly requires more time than the actual setting down of the short hand notes.

Four Reporters Used.

With three district and one county court in Wichita Falls, it is necessary that four official reporters be used here constantly. Each of the three district judges, and also the county judge have their individual reporters who usually take all testimony offered in any case before this particular judge. There is also a fourth who acts as relief reporter when occassion demands and lends assistance to the others whenever it may be needed.

In the 30th district court, the official pencil is weilded for Judge H. R. Wilson by Charles Weich, who has acted for the court for many years. Before coming to Wichita Falls he was engaged in similar reporting work in other parts of Texas. Eugene Sherrod is dean of the reporting corps here and presides at the reporter's desk in the 78th district court, now ruled by Judge Guy Rogers. Mr. Sherrod has been reporting for 15 years or more. In Judge P. A. Martin's court, the 89th, Renne Allred, brother of the district attorney, is official reporter. He has acted for Judge Martin for the last five years.

Mrs. M. W. Nevin reports all proceedings before Judge C. M. McFarland in the county court at law, while Mrs. Mary Newsom acts as relief reporter for all the courts.

Lawton School Funds Used; Need Tuition

LAWTON, Okla., March 7.—Lawton public schools will open Monday morning under the tuition system, funds for the current year having been exhausted. Approximately 1,250 pupils have signed up ti pay tuition for the remainder of the year that the school might remain open.

High school students will be charged $8.50 per month while grade students will pay $5.

Amount Represents More Than Ninety Percent of 1925 Roll

Total tax collections made during January, 1925, by County Tax Collector Guy C. Raley were $951,182.21, Mr. Raley announced Saturday. This represents 90 per cent of the total taxable roll, he said, and is some $150,000 more than collections for the same month in 1924.

Of the sums taken in, the state will receive $385,736.96, the county $415,916.49, the Burkburnett independent school district $47,143.86, Fairview $17,987.98 and district schools $53,987.98.

Poll tax payments for the year have run to approximately 9,000, Mr. Raley has found. Poll tax lists are now being prepared and will be ready for use of the election judges in the city election of April 7. This is the largest number ever paid in a single year.

Excess fees collected and turned back to the county this year by the tax office have amounted to $13,624, a sum larger by $4,000 or more than that ever before turned in by previous collectors. Automobile registrations are in excellent shape and the office, despite the largest volume of business in its history, is 30 days ahead of conditions as they existed at the same time a year ago.

Men Who Built Big Irrigation Project At Work for Dallas

The men who in days past were familiar to Wichita Falls as the ones who built the local irrigation project are playing an important part now in the construction of the giant Garza dam that is to provide Dallas with a limitless water supply. The dam is being flung across the Elm fork of the Trinity river in Denton county and will, when completed, create a lake covering some 11,000 acres of land. It will be about one-third as large as Lake Kemp.

Drive Sheet Piling.

One of the principal tasks of the Garza project now is the driving of the sheet steel piling for the big bank. This work is in charge of J. H. Murphy, who drove all the piles on the storage and diversion dams of the Wichita county project, the Wichita Falls Traction company river bridge at Austin street and the Red River bridge of the Waurika branch of the Valley. Mr. Murphy was in the city a short time last week.

The cut-off trench of the dam averages 40 feet in depth and piling has been driven so that the bottom of it rests 68 feet below the surface. This has been done over a length of 3,150 feet and was completed in 31 days working time.

Thompson In Charge.

R. H. Thompson, chief engineer on the local project is consulting engineer of the Garza dam and the work is in charge of Captain H. F. McFarland, assistant to Mr. Thompson here. The Callahan Construction company of Dallas is doing the work and has a force of more than 400 men on the job.

The hydraulic filling is being accomplished by a dredge built by the Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging company, which built and operated the dredge T. B. Noble on Lake Kemp. It has been pumping for 30 days and is making rapid progress.

Dallas Men Visit Here.

In connection with the Garza dam, it is recalled that a large party of Dallas business men came to Wichita Falls several years ago when work on the Lake Kemp dam was at its height and made a thorough inspection of the project. Headed by Mayor Blaylock and members of the city commission over 100 came up on a special train and were taken to the dam site in automobiles. There they went over the entire works, had a barbecue dinner as guests of the Callahan company and after the return to Wichita Falls were guests of the local chamber of commerce at a dinner at the Kemp.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Williamson are leaving to make their home in Beaumont.

Geo. D. Keith and son, Kenneth, are in Oklahoma City, attending the Oklahoma State Stock show, where Mr. Keith has several entries in the Hereford cattle exhibit.

"Whim-Wham" Next Friday Calls Upon Fairyland

"Torch Bearers" By Little Theatre To Be A Scream, With Mrs. Pittman Starring In New Role—Says Peggy

IF I RHAPSODIZE too much on the subject of concerts, and the Little Theatre, or seem to extravagant in the use of adjectives in regards to our players and our director, Peter Ames Vincent, you must remember, Kitty, you've never seen any of our plays nor heard the concerts given by our choral club, for if you had you would probably do the same. Rehearsals are going forward at a rapid gait for the "Torch Bearers", the burlesque comedy on Little Theatre acting, so I am told by some who are taking part, and when they tell you about the rehearsals, the invariable ending is, that it is a scream, so very amusing that they can hardly do their parts for laughing. Mrs. J. S. Pitman, who as every one knows, is somewhat a professional on the stage, and a favorite with local playgoers, is taking the leading feminine role, as director of the play, and her work in this part is said to be exceptionally splendid. Mr. Vincent is a busy man these days. Directing rehearsals at night while by day his paint brush is busy making the settings that will furnish just exactly the proper background for the story.

The Methodist Concert.

And then the concert given by the Methodist Young People's association of the city, Friday night at the First Methodist church. Their second platform offering, was a hit from start to finish, as was their first offering, when they presented the "Boy Preacher". The concert featured the Shrine Chanters, the First Methodist choir and J. Stanley Raub, violinist, and Marguerite Fisher, popular dramatic reader, in a negro spiritual program. A collection of the most popular negro songs and choruses were given and everyone was delighted with every number.

Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr., well known and talented organist, opened the program with a prelude, captivating her audience with her first notes. This was followed by negro spiritual songs, "Deep River," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," with Miss Loraine Russell in the solo parts with the choir. The Shrine Chanters, including Vaughn Ray, Ivan Murchison, Paul Von Allman and Grover Bullington, gave "Standing In the Need of Prayer," and "Heaben-Heaben." I don't think I need tell you how their numbers were received. They brought forth the hearty applause of the house as their singing always does. Miss Fisher, in keeping with the remainder of the program, gave a negro dialect reading and Mrs. Akin played for the offertory, "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground." A quartet composed of Margaret Kaye, Glenore Fisk and Francis Hansen and Robert Ross sang, "I'm a Rollin" and "Little David, Play On Your Harp." Mrs. C. Y. Tully, as soprano obligate, assisted the chorus in singing "Steal Away," and "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," and Stanley Raub gave [illegible] Break" a highly negroish violin number. Raben Porter, under whose direction the entire program was pre[illegible]ng two negro solos, and the [illegible]oncluded the program with [illegible]bers. The entire offering [illegible] of the ordinary, and the ef[illegible]e Young People's association [illegible]ning the public are ap[illegible]s may be attested by the [illegible]ore their attractions draws.

Lecturer Is Announced.

[illegible]h, on Friday night, the [illegible]nounced Dr. Charles De[illegible]turer from Oklahoma City. [illegible]'s Choral club and Miss [illegible]n, harpist, will assist on [illegible] which will be given at [illegible]ghts Methodist church. [illegible] I have told you [illegible] wonderful cantata the [illegible] club will present at [illegible]t church on Monday [illegible] "Pan in a Summer Day" is the title of the music, and those who have heard some of the rehearsals declare it to be the most beautiful cantata the club has yet attempted.

And so with so many good things coming and going, we feel that we have a right to be right set up.

I guess though that you think my letter is filled up with entertainment, and I can hear you say, "That girl sure likes music," and I say next to traveling, yes.

But speaking of traveling reminds me, have you made your reservation yet for the world meeting of women to be held in Washington in May? If not, it would be well to do so, according to Jessie S. Read, press chairman of the general federation. Mrs. Read says that more than 6,000 reservations are expected and already many have been spoken for. Forty-two countries will be represented in this brilliant convention which without doubt, will be one of the most important meetings of women ever held in the world, being the sixth quintennial of the international council which binds in one body, every important woman's organization of every civilized country of the globe.

Can you imagine anything more collossal Kitty, and do you not hope to be numbered among "those present?"

Mrs. Read also says that Lord and Lady Oberdeen have accepted the personal invitation of Mrs. J. Borden Harrison, who will entertain them at Hotel Washington. The party of the international president will arrive in Montreal, April 24, and be entertained daily at Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points en route to the American capital where they are expected May 2. The council dates are May 4 to 14. Lady Oberdeen, writing to her American club sisters, says:

"Our mission is to create sympathy and good will toward all, to foster confidence and trust between nations and individuals of these nations, to find a common cause through which we may work for world-wide prosperity, happiness and peace."

For Better Journalism.

In a campaign for beter journalism club women launched by the general federation of Women's club press department, of which Jessie S. Read is chairman, the department is offering a prize of $50 cash for the best advance article written by a non-professional member of some women's club and printed in any newspaper in the state in which the writer resides. The clipping and story, together with the writer's name and address okayed by her club, and giving also the name of her club, town and state in which it is located and name of paper in which the clipping appeared, must be sent to Miss Valle Winner, fifth vice-chairman of press G. F. W. C., Portland Journal, Portland, Oregon, who is in charge of all preliminaries.

I am telling you this, friend of mine, because, knowing your talent for telling the news, thought you might get in line with a good advance story of some of your club activities, and pull down that $50 which will at least buy you that coveted spring bonnet.

You might bear in mind that an "advance" story is one that heralds some coming event, and the prize is offered for this rather than a report of some past event because of the need of educating club women to report their activities before they occur, rather than after.

"News is news only when it is new" is one axiom for club women to remember. Club news is news the day it happens, but better news the day before it happens, is another.

But dear as thy epistle draws to an end I cannot see how I can quit without just a word about styles. I see by reading lots of fashion articles that the old world designers are no longer occupying the lead in producing fashions and that Hollywood, home of the film stars, is fast becoming America's fashion center. Here we have Winona (Mary Goeppinger) a designer of unusual and striking costumes. Winona says that types and personalities as well as coloring and figure must be considered in effective designing. Personalities and moods are expressed by costumes as well as by music, only in costumes they must be felt, rather than heard. A simple gown that appears to the observer as a few rapid, graceful strokes of pen or brush, often is in reality the product of hours, often days, of intense concentration and study before there is produced the finished and pleasing product. The Indian name, Winona, was chosen by Miss Goeppinger to signify that she is an American designer.

Now about the spring fashion for this part of the world, Kitty, we see all the advance styles at the Fat Stock show which is now in session in Fort Worth and large numbers of our people are there spending the week end. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Ray, Mesdames G. D. Rigsby, and M. G. Catter. Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal has just returned from there.

Believing that I have told you about all I know at present of the comings and goings of our friends, I hope you are satisfied with the epistle written by—

PEGGY PIEDMONT.

Gloria Gould, "Million-Dollar Bride," Urges Wichitans To Dance If They Would Be Happy and Beautiful At Same Time

By GLORIA GOULD BISHOP

To dance is to be happy.
To dance is to be beautiful.
Buoyancy of step means buoyancy of soul.

THIS is the greatest lesson I have learned from my 13 years of the study of dancing. I started in studying the art of the dance when I was barely old enough to walk. And this has kept me happy; improved my appearance and my spirits.

During these 13 years, at odd times and intervals especially since I started my dancing class with Miss Ada Barker at the Park Lane in New York City, I have been besieged by questions on dancing from readers of newspapers all over the world.

I am, therefore, very pleased to write a series of newspaper stories on my life work. I am hoping not only to answer all the questions sent to me from the readers of this newspaper in the past, but to answer others in the future. I expect to answer as many questions as I can at the conclusion of each one of my stories. These stories will of course be based on actual suggestions made to me by students and teachers of dancing, as well as readers of newspapers who are interested in dancing as an aid to beauty.

I do not pose as a great authority on dancing. But I do want to impart to the public, so long as it has shown itself desirous of listening, some of the interesting and helpful information about dancing I have acquired during my study of this great beautifier.

Dancing, I believe, is a better aid than anything else in the world to everybody for the realization of health, wealth, and happiness. For the tired housewife whose toes need a touch of the light fantastic in order to make the household routine less irksome; for the business girl who sits all day at her machine in a posture conducive to too many angles in her body and not enough curves, and to the business man who smokes too many cigars and eats too much rich food—dancing is the greatest aid in the world.

Before we were married, my husband once asked me if all girls did not want to know how to dance—and dance well? I said I believed dancing to be one of the most universal of all human desires.

The desire to dance seems to me to be as natural as the desire to hear good music, read good books, sing good songs, eat good food, and to sleep in comfortable beds. Our instincts can never go wrong, and when we listen to them we lead happy lives.

Dancing is a natural normal instinct, as our study of the primitive peoples indicates. What savage race in existence today does not have its natural dances? Watch a very young child, and you will see it trying to dance, even perhaps before it can walk. I often wonder if there is any significance to the historical fact that in the epochs of history when dancing was forbidden by law, the lives of the people knew no lightness and happiness. The early days of the Puritans in this country were certainly not noted for their brightness, and everyone knows with what distaste the May Flowerites regarded dancing.

To dance is to be happy—beautiful of mind and body.

And to teach dancing is one way of making others happy. And that is why Miss Barker and I decided to enroll in one of the finest teacher's training classes in the country to prepare ourselves for this work.

(In the next article Gloria Gould Bishop will tell more about her ideas on dancing.)

Of interest to a host of friends of both families, is the marriage of Miss Josephine Tucker, daughter of Charles J. Tucker, and Paul Bundy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bundy of this city. The impressive ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride, in the presence of immediate relatives of the couple, and a few school friends of the bride with whom she was associated while a student at the Oklahoma university at Norman.

While the wedding was a quiet home affair, the bride presented a charming picture of girlish loveliness in her beige spring ensemble costume with dress of crust flat crepe and fillet lace. She wore a hat of rust and gold to harmonize with corsage of spring flowers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bundy are popular members of the younger set, having been reared in this city where their families are numbered among the most prominent socially, and in business circles.

Because of her charming personality and exceptional musical talent, the bride endeared herself to social circles here. Mr. Bundy for a year has made his home in Dallas, where is is connected with Cranfill Bros., oil company.

He is a graduate of the local high school having finished with the class of 1920, after which he was a student at State university, and also the University of Arkansas. Mrs. Bundy attended school here, afterwards going to Ward-Belmont where she specialized in her music.

Following the ceremony, the young couple left overland for a visit in Galveston and Houston where they will spend about 10 days after which they will be at home in Dallas.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Charles F. Tucker of San Antonio, a brother of the bride; a sister, Mrs. Frank Tempel, and her small daughter, Helen Frances, and the Misses Winnie Mae Hall and Ruby Wooten of the Oklahoma university at Norman.

FORGIVEN AND FORGOTTEN.

The federal reserve board's view of economic conditions for 1924 is devoted mainly to the re-establishment of the international gold standard. That the world has returned to the precious metal as a basis of financial transactions is now too well known for an announcement of the fact to excite much interest. But the manner in which the return was effected is of some importance. The board describes at least the commencement of the process. Dealing first with the matter of foreign loans in this country, and then treating the world's return to the gold standard, the board's review says:

"The volume of such loans in 1924 was nearly three times as large as in 1923, and larger than in any year since the war. While a large part of the loans was used in the purchase of goods in the United States, several countries used dollar credits thus obtained in supporting the exchange value of their currency. . . . To the extent that dollar credits created in the United States through foreign borrowing were used to withdraw gold, they made it possible to increase the actual gold reserves of foreign countries and to utilize for monetary reconstruction a portion of the gold which during recent years had come to this country as a result of disorganized conditions abroad.

"Gold received from abroad has been the principal factor in bringing money rates in this country to a low level, and the difference between rates here and abroad, at a time of increasing confidence in the European financial situation, facilitated foreign borrowing and thus contributed to making dollar credits and gold available to those countries which had undertaken to re-establish sound monetary conditions. With the actual resumption of gold payments in certain countries and the stabilization of currencies with reference to gold in many other countries, the year 1924 has been one of definite progress toward the re-establishment of the international gold standard."

From the foregoing matter it can readily be understood that the restoration of the gold standard has been brought about automatically. The flow of gold which for a time set so strongly toward our shores has turned toward Europe just as powerfully. Our surplus of gold depressed our interest rates and created favorable conditions for foreign borrowing. These developments led to the building up of dollar credits and the withdrawal of gold by countries sorely needing it. No extraordinary measures were necessary to cure the evil of an unnatural concentration of gold in the United States. The situation simply adjusted itself.

Now that the operation of natural forces has solved a problem universally advertised and deplored, the false cures proposed and the wild arguments advanced in their support have been forgiven and forgotten. Nothing more is heard of the argument that we should throw open our doors to a flood of cheap foreign goods, that the peoples abroad might demand gold payments on a heavy balance of trade. Yet some of our soundest financiers and ablest business leaders entertained this delusion. Indeed, they went even further, and prophesied inflation and calamity as inevitable results of a continuing excess of American exports over imports. But the possibility of inflation has vanished and we have had to sacrifice neither our financial pre-eminence nor our dominant trade position. According to all indications, our country will continue for many years to hold the largest gold reserve and the most favorable trade balance without destroying either its own prosperity or that of other countries.

THE TRADE COMMISSION TAKES CHARGE.

While the president's oil conservation board has been sending out questionnaires to men prominent in the oil industry the federal trade commission has practically taken charge of the oil question by submitting specific recommendations covering and even exceeding the scope of the board's inquiries. The commission's report to the president touches directly upon the depletion of domestic oil resources and advises that congress consider methods of restricting oil shipments abroad. This part of its recommendations is necessarily indefinite, and apparently nothing will come of it, but it is at least as useful as the queries sent forth by the conservation board in dealing with the same subject.

The trade commission becomes clearer and more exact in making other recommendations bearing upon the preservation of our oil resources. Elimination of wasteful methods in driling, and provision for collecting and reporting facts relating to the oil industry are undoubtedly important recommendations. Of only less moment is the commission's suggestion that intermediate agencies between refineries and gasoline service stations be eliminated, or at least reduced in number, through the formation of co-operative supply organizations.

Passing from the subject of conservation of supply to that of commercial operation and the relationships of oil companies, the federal trade commission makes perhaps its most important recommendations. It strikes at interlocking directorates, common stock ownership and the connection of pipe line companies with producing concerns. It demands a severance in each case. To deal with common stock ownership in corporations which have been members of combinations dissolved by law additional legislation is asked, but for the separation of pipe line companies nothing more is required than an extension of existing regulations.

Perhaps the most remarkable discovery announced by the commission is the apparent uselessness of the dissolution of the great Standard Oil group of companies. The commission finds that while severed companies now operate "less consistently as a group," the more important among them "are fortifying themselves by acquiring control of the independents and entering new branches of the industry as integrated and dominated units in the territories in which they operate." Further, the commission charges that the independents are trying to keep in touch with these companies and are opposing, through their different associations, efforts at price reduction.

"WINTER GARDEN OF AMERICA."

Where is the winter garden of America located? Why, in the magic valley of Texas. A famous horticulturist of America is a resident of the winter garden. There are many counties in the winter garden and Hidalgo and Cameron are among the proudest. There are empire builders in this coming winter garden of America. They believe in flood control and land reclamation. They believe in magnificent school buildings and well paid teachers who are efficient teachers. They believe in the city beautiful as well as the home beautiful. They believe in concrete highways of the best and in the upkeep of these highways after they have been constructed.

Lawmakers, press correspondents and representatives of the executive part of the state government spent three very useful days in the winter garden of America which is the magic valley of Texas.

They saw a country which in a few brief years has been rescued from the mesquites and prickley pear, a veritable wilderness and transformed into a paradise. They saw stately palms fringing the highways. They saw magnificent flower gardens everywhere. They saw vast beds of cabbages and carrots and onions on one side of a roadway and oranges and grapefruit groves on the other side. They saw the fruits and flowers of the tropics growing side by side with the vegetable products of the temperate zone.

They saw flood control at its best and land reclaimed by the forces of flood control. They saw land which sold for a dollar an acre not many years ago now selling at a thousand dollars an acre. They saw a valley with a soil depth in spots of 500 feet and they saw overflow land which had been worthless now valued at five hundred dollars an acre and capable of producing four crops a year.

They saw men, builders of paradise, who had been willing to bond themselves to the very limit to create this winter garden of America in the magic valley of Texas. They saw a section of Texas which is capable of supporting 3,000,000 people where there are less than 250,000 today.

They saw the results of controlling the flood waters which sweep down the Rio Grande river for 1,500 miles and in bygone years made it impossible to farm 50,000 acres of land as rich as the famed valley of the Nile. All these wonders have been wrought by the empire builders who have flocked to the magic valley. They were willing to spend or mortgage all they had and they made the gamble. They won.

Two years ago the legislature granted a remission of taxes for twenty-five years to Hidalgo county. At the expiration of twenty-five years the taxable values of Hidalgo county will be five times what they are today and the state treasury will be a big gainer in the long run for extension of credit to the progressive men who are redeeming a rich part of an empire from almost a barren waste.

Flood control was necessary to bring about this reclamation of thousands of acres of virgin soil in this glorious country which fringes the Rio Grande river. It is known that the source of the Rio Grande river is in the state of Colorado, that the mightest watershed in America feeds the river and when the snow on the mountains melt in Mexico and the Rockies and the winter rains come then the Rio Grande becomes a mighty body of water ever rushing madly to the gulf of Mexico.

Hidalgo has provided for flood control and now Cameron county is menaced. Now the mighty volume of water directed by the hand or genius of man in Hidalgo will pour its floods upon the plains of Cameron unless the vast ditch or canal is extended for miles and miles to the bay by the taxpayers of Cameron.

These people have bonded themselves to the limit in the costly improvements which modern civilization demands in the building of an empire. Indeed, gifted engineers say that the flood control plan of Hidalgo must be continued by the Cameron people or else some day in the near future the Rio Grande, on a tangent, may find a new channel or river bed and then the county of Cameron and the ancient city of Brownsville, with stately Port Brown, may be found under the flag of Mexico, as the channel of the river is the division line of the United States and the republic of Mexico.

The people of Cameron county have bonded themselves to the limit. They are making a deep sea channel to make point Isabelle a deep water port for the ships of the seven seas. They are asking for a remission of taxes for a period of twenty-five years in order to undertake this mighty flood control and land reclamation project.

They do not ask it as a gift but as an extension of credit. They say that in a few short years the taxable values of Cameron county have jumped from four million dollars to twenty-six million dollars and there are wise business men among them who say that if the law makers will grant an extension of credit for the time specified the taxable values of Cameron county will reach a hundred million dollars before the expiration of the credit period.

This magic valley transformation would stagger the gods. Nowhere in the wide world is there anything like this coming winter garden of Amesica transformed into a paradise of wealth making and beauty by the progressive and practical dreamers who have controlled the floods of the upper Rio Grande river and reclaimed millions of acres to be utilized for the need, the pleasure and the comfort of man.

A CRISIS FOR THE GERMAN REPUBLIC.

The death of President Ebert creates a grave crisis for the German republic. The presidential election in May has heretofore been expected to result in a republican victory, but republicanism in Germany is now leaderless. Ebert has no successor. His lieutenant in the present cabinet—which is a product of compromise—is Chancellor Luther, a nationalist whose elevation to the presidency would mean a complete reversal of Ebert's policies. Dr. Marx, the republican former chancellor, has been discredited by defeat and there is no other figure in the ranks of his partisans who is sufficiently prominent or popular to challenge the temporarily dominant nationalists with any great hope of success. The death of a single strong man changes the whole aspect of German politics. The nationalists now hold a decided advantage, which they have already begun to abuse.

The circumstances of Ebert's death appeal powerfully to the imagination. A touch of political martrydom is imparted to his passing by the report that the operation which he failed to survive was delayed too long by the president's absorption in pressing affairs of state. None can deny his strenuous application to the duties of his office, and it must seem to the German people that he sacrificed himself in their service. He was one of the fathers of Germany's republican constitution and ably maintained it against great difficulties during his tenure of office.

Re-Called

Letters of a Japanese School Boy

RADIOVENGEANCE.

Dearest Sir:—

Last Wedsdy p. m. I go to Radio Party including ice cream (free) @ home of Miss Mamie Furiogi & husband where Miss Mamie keep a broadcussing apparatix so her husband will not get too mischif while she away lecturing.

This accasion were very brilliant Japanese society to include al membership of Japanese Thinking Society also Hon. Benjamin Franklin Washa, famus manufacturer of wavelength progroms. When I arrive up to Miss Furioki house I could hear noise of sound going simuliar to this: "Wump—wump—r-r-r-r! Nextly on progrom will be Sir Jno McCormick, famus Irish tenortone in My Old Irish Whee-ee-ee OO awk!!"

Then pound-pound from pianna could be distinctually heard while that melted tone of McCormick commence:

"My Old Irish We-e-e-e-a!
My Old Irish s-s-s-s-s!"

"Husband!" holla Hon. Mamie Furioki, "if you would not be so selfish and stop setting on the statick maybe we all could get 10000008 worth of music without paying 1c."

"I are tired of music & harmony," He make me sicker than the ocean. Also Hon. Senator Borah are pretty small vegetables while cumpared with me. If he looking me in the eye at this moment he must quale & shivver.

"Nussir! There are not a man in publick life today worthy to fasten on my skates. What they lack are the stern couridge of our annsisters. Hon. Cal Coolidge sometime awake up to veto a bill, but when were he ever brave enough to kill a grizzly bear with his teeth? I scorn him like I scorn them all. & if any man are sifficiently grown up to meet me here & now I shall unfasten my fists & throw them at him. For have I not studied how to gaw-gaw-GAW!!"

Hon. Radio say that last report.

"O Husband," yellup Miss Mamie Furioki, "crank up Hon. Radio some more so we can hear all those wringing words of that great man."

"Can't do, thank you," say Hon. Husband. "His strong breath have blown out a inner tube."

"Goshes!" mone Miss Mamie, "it are too ashamed that we cannot hear it all. Think what hero this Gustavus P. Elbow must be, standing there at Station G. U. M. P., Elderberry Falls, & defying all U. S. How powerful man he must be with such nobility of lungs & muscularity of thought!"

"Unfortunately," dictate Hon. Benj. Franklin Washa, Japanese radio progrom, "I are acquaintance of this Hon. G. P. Elbow who are sick-shouldered gentleman of 4 ft. 4 high and all the hair slipped off his brains."

"Yet how he could say such scare-devil speech without a solid brass heart?" dequire Miss Mamie very sad.

"Yet he are very bravery of manhood," she si & grone.

"How should it?" he dib. "When man are lock-away in rain-proof radio room, safe from even canary's eggs, where nobody could shoot, kill or knock back, cannot he say what bravery he feel like?"

"That are good way to know," I negotiate secretively.

So ½ hr later while talking to this Benj. Franklin Washa, I ask following questionaire, "Dear Sir, how could Japanese Schoolboy get the chance of an opportunity to talk through a Radio horn?"

"You are invited!" holla Hon. Washa. "You cannot believe how happy we are to get free talk from any interesting egotism with nothing to say. Come next Frydy night to Station KLUX & lecture on a Subjeckt."

So that night, Mr. Editor, I elope to home of Mrs. & Mr. C. W. Quackmire, feelink like a new umpire. With talented key I ope front door while thinking. What lecture shall I talk about from radio next Frydy night? I commence walk upstairs secretively like mosquitos skating on jelly when Ouches! Bedroom door fly apart and there stuck Mrs. C. W. Quackmire looking like a fat nightrobe with mad hairs.

"Togo," she snarrel, "what rou mean by this, if anything? When you come home too late & all home-brewed why you walk upstairs on yr iron heels? Go to bed more early hereafterly, you lazy bomb!" Slamdoor. Silences.

Togo Prepares His Speech.

So that night before sleeping I think my lecture. I shall make radio oration of title: WHY Are Folk So Cruel to Servant Girls of Both Sexes? This would be an enlarged chance for me say what I so dearly wish without Mrs. C. W. Quackmire to throw any furniture back at me.

Therefore Frydy night emerge & I go with bravery to Broadcasting Station KLUX. Hon. Benj. Franklin Washa were there with Welcome Elks expression while leading me to a paddy cell containing a glass of water & a little round talefone disk befront of me on table.

"Talk at that for ten (10) minutes & say what can be passed by Board of Censors," dictate Hon. Washa & leave me to my voice.

"This are Hashimura Togo, Broadcussing from Station KLUX on subject Why Are Folks So Cruel to Servant Girls of Both Sexes," dictate Hon. Sjtel. S I commence.

"United States of America. I tell you something. I are a servant girl of male extraction working for Mrs. C. W. Quackmire of 41144 Obelisk Ave. Because of my famus Japanese origin I are not afraid of this lady, even if she comes a ton at a time. Even when she approach to my kitchen with a dish-pan & slamin it on me like a derby hat, what I care for her? She take advantage of my weaker sex, yet that make less difference with me. That lady I defy. I do so, I do!

"How many other servant girls are there like me, kooped up in kitchen with nothing to do evening axept go to emotion pictures, prize-fight & grand opera? I did not count them. Yet for benefat of all what suffer like me, I tell them what do. Get brave when you see your Mrs. Boss coming. Do not move a leg. There are too many of those Quackmire ladies in America, stamping around house and acting like they own it merely because they pay rent.

"Down with Quackmire Ladies and up with Hashimura Togos! The hour have struck. Time have became so ripe that it are rotten. Servant Girls, arise or do something else. I are too accustomed to that Quackmire lady to get scared of her from where I am now standing. She think she are hansom like Hazel Dawn. Shux! I know where she get the color of her hair from the drug store where she send me buy it. The same are true of her teeth. Only reason why I work for her are this: She would fire me if I quit.

"She are so stingy that she do not jumit me leave Hon-Gas Oven on when not in use. She are not musical. Yestday she go insane because I sing Japanese Ntl Hymn while breaking dishes. Sometime when I forget to cook lunching because too busy studying murders in American news-prints she seem to grow inflamed.

Nogi, Calm But Nervous.

"Yet I stand here tonight, caged up in this explosion-proof radio, and speak to her like a hero. Mrs. C. W. Quackmire, I say 'I are not so afraid of you as I was yestdy a. m. when you tossed a stove at me. Cool couridge are suddenly in my heart. I defy you several times. Come out & fight me, man to man, Mrs. C. W. Quackmire. I are no longer a Servant Girl. are a Samurai!!!"

When I got through with that, Mr. Editor, Hon. B. F. Washa give me a very dead handshook & say I were better than Senator Borah defying Europe by long-distance. But I no soonly approach to street when some cold sweat got on my eyeballs. For there stand Cousin Nogi looking calm but nervus.

"Togo," he say so, "you make a deliciously alarming oratio on radio. I listen at it by Y. M. C. A. After what you say all servant girls shall strike & be free & out of jobs. Also I tell you this. Sleep with me tonight & do not return back to home of Mrs. C. W. Quackmire for 13 yrs."

"Why so long time?" I narrate with frozen hair.

"Because this," he divulge, "She went to a Radio Party tonight at home of Mrs. Oscar Bluehammer & for some cute reason she fell out of a window listening."

I am gabberflasted.

Hoping you are the same
Yours truly,
HASHIMURA TOGO

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Dear, just a second" pleaded Helen. "That old garnet broach—it's exactly like my necklace."

Warren, who had strode on ahead, turned back for a grudging glance.

"They won't sell it separate," for the coveted broach reposed in a velvet case with earrings, chain and bracelet.

"They might; I'll ask—it won't take a minute."

The shopman, who could speak a little English, protested he could not sell the broach alone. But the set was very reasonable—only three million kronen.

About forty-fived dollars. And she had a necklace—a much finer one.

Murmuring her regret, Helen turned to the door. A man, whom she had thought a customer, followed her out.

"Pardon," in excellent English. "If you are interested in old jewelry, my wife has some family pieces we are forced to sell," taking a card from his pocket.

"I'm sorry, but we're leaving Vienna tonight," explained Helen.

Suavely persistent, he urged that it was but a little way to his flat. They could go now. There were many fine heirlooms—jewelry, laces, silver.

Helen hesitated, her feminine bargain instinct avidly alert. To buy at first hand—a rare opportunity! What old-world treasures might she not discover?

"Nothing doing!" was Warren's squelching verdict, when she consulted him. "We'll not spend our last day chasin' junk. You got enough this trip."

"But you wanted something else for Carrie," inspirationally. "We might find something wonderful. He says they've a lot of lace—and she's crazy about old lace."

"Oh, it can't be far," eagerly. "He said—"

"Only ten minutes in a cab, sir." The man, hovering near, now approached.

A thrill at the prospect of an adventurous treasure hunt. Helen sprang into the taxi he had hailed. Warren followed, grumblingly reluctant.

The address given, their self-appointed guide took the drop seat and plunged into a laudatory account of his wife's heirlooms.

"—and now all must be sacrificed before we can return to Paris."

"Oh, you're not Viennese?" ventured Helen.

"No, no, madame, my wife was born in Paris—and I, in Alsace."

This information contributed to Helen's enjoyment of prospective bargains. The Viennese were so kindly and so poor. She shrank from profiting by their need.

Down the Graben, past St. Stephens, and on through a street of ivyed walls.

The ten minutes lengthened to twenty before they finally drew up in an unsuspicious neighborhood of small shops.

While Warren paid for the cab, Helen viewed the bakery before which they had stopped. A typical Viennese patisserie, the window gorged with ornate pastry.

Did they live above? She had expected a more pretentious address.

"I hope you don't mind the stairs," he ushered them into a dingy hallway.

"Oh, not at all," Helen politely assured him.

The halls were wide but bare and shabby. One flight, two, three—

"Where we goin'?" demanded Warren. "To the roof?"

"Just two more flights, sir," he encouraged.

"Ah, my grandmother—she loved beautiful things! She collected—many years. What a pity—we must sell!"

"Ah, something for you—very fine," taking a cameo necklace from its case. Twenty cameos—all different. Will you see?" offering a magnifying glass.

"It's very lovely, but I'm afraid too expensive for me," evaded Helen.

"Expensive? Nothing here expensive. We must sell all—quickly! For that? In your money—only six hundred dollars. It is nothing!"

"You spoke of some laces?" ventured Helen, as the jewelry seemed hopeless.

"You will see the laces before you decide? Ah, Monsieur is interested in books?"

"You will see my laces?" cajoled the woman. "Please! In my room."

The white-and-gold luxury of a French-farce boudoir! The silk-draped bed, white fur rugs and a silver-littered dressing-table. Modern extravagances that were not heirloome. Nothing suggestive of reduced circumstances or the need to sell.

The laces were in a lacquered chest. An enticing assortment.

But the prices were equally excessive. A small point collar, not the finest, thirty-five dollars. A handkerchief, thirty. A piece of old blonde lace, twenty.

How could they escape? The woman was even more persistent than her husband.

"You do not think this cheap?" she shrilled. "That hankerchief for only thirty dollars? You Americans have so much. To you—that is nothing!"

"It's more than I care to pay for a handkerchief," resented Helen.

"Wait, I show you other things," opening a chest of old brocades and velvets.

"Ah, yes, the old Venetian! I see you know. That you may have very cheap."

"Ah, you will have in kronens?" with a disdainful shrug. "Only a million, nine hundred thousand."

Mentally Helen computed it in dollars. About twenty-eight.

"You not call that cheap?" again the shrill of animosity. "How much you give?"

"It's not a half yard. I bought a larger piece in Florence for ten dollars.

"Old Venetian velvet? Impossible! But I will make this in your money—twenty-two dollars. No? Then you only come to look—you not want to buy!"

"I'm afraid not at your prices. I'm sorry to have troubled you."

Flushed and indignant, Helen turned back to the front room where the man with aggressive insistency was still trying to sell Warren some prints.

"Ah, monsieur, we must sell at any price! Take the three for fifty dollars!"

"I told you I didn't want them!" rasped Warren. "They're late re strikes."

"You found no laces to suit you?" hastily turning to Helen, with a telegraphic glance at his wife. "You would like to see the jewelry again?"

"No, thank you. I only wanted some very inexpensive things for presents."

"These make very nice presents," taking a papier mache snuff box from a cabinet. "No? Then, this crystal scent bottle—only fifteen dollars. You think that is high? Why, it is nothing—it—"

"Now see here, we're not goin' to be bullied into buying anything!" exploded Warren. "You dragged us up here. I don't know the other stuff but I know a little 'bout prints—get any of these for half the price at a good dealer's."

The woman, with a shrug and a sneer, was now shrilling something in French. Warren caught the reference to "cheap Americans."

"Well, we're not fallin' for your sucker prices! Proof impression!" taking up one of the prints. "A rotten reproduction—and you know it!"

A crash! A shivery crash!

"Mon Dieu! Mon Dieu!" from the woman.

The excited couple consulted in voluble French.

"You see what it was—a very fine—"

"Now never mind the pedigree—how much?"

"It is most unfortunate. The price was forty dollars—but an accident—you need pay only thirty.

"Thirty dollars, sir. That's just what it cost me."

"Cost you, eh? Slipped up that time! How 'bout your grandmother's heirlooms I spotted this for dealers' stuff. A plant for gullible Americans. Well, you didn't pull it off this time. Now you put those pieces in your pocket and come with me. I'll get a valuation from an honest Viennese dealer."

At this, another excited, gestured conference.

"My wife says it's an accident—we'll take twenty."

"I'll give you ten! You'll take that—or go with me and have it valued."

After another parley, the woman flounced angrily into the next room, leaving her husband to make the surly acceptance.

"There you are, good American dollars!" throwing the bills on the table. "Next time you drag an American up here—be sure he's the sucker type."

Another moment and they were out in the hall—the door slammed after them.

Down the steps—the four long flights. In grim, forbidding silence Warren stumped on ahead.

It was not until he had hailed a cab, and they were whirling back to the Bristol, that he heeded Helen's fluttered indignation.

"Heirlooms—their grandmother!" he snorted. "Hold up artists—pretty slick team. Never mind the ten spot. We got out of there cheap. Hereafter, you buy your junk in reliable shops. Don't try to pull off bargains by digging around these private joints. They're all plants fixed up to trim suckers. But that bird got a couple of ten-minute eggs—when he picked US.

Next week—"Back to Paris."

Look Inside?----By Ida M Tarbell

BUSY people have a habit of pasting above their desks these days various mottoes reminding themselves that one of the chief rules in the gospel of efficiency is to do nothing themselves that they can get somebody to do for them. It is a variation of the pleasant labor-saving device that we used to use in college. We called it a 'pony' there. It translated our Greek and Latin for us, and certainly saved time and trouble.

Of course professors who never had the advantage of a modern business training warned us that though we might pass our examination by skillful driving of the 'pony', we would come out without knowing what it was all about. Later, some of us found that when we came in contact with those who had given themselves the trouble to do their own translating, we met a certain grip and clarity of mind which put us decidedly at a disadvantage in the hard contests of the world.

The 'pony' has multiplied. There were never so many species and varieties of him as today. He has trained for use in human activities where at first glance it would seem very difficult for him to travel. Take the business of accumulating facts and ideas for profesional purposes. Most ingenious sets of files and catalogues have been contrived to save the student the trouble of remembering. Information is put in a drawer and when you want it, you go and get it. It hampers conversation, to be sure, if you happen to find yourself in company with one who carries his information in his head. But of course the chief reason for the filing pony is that he saves you the trouble of looking for anything in your head.

The difficulty is that every now and then the file fails you. Here is a trival experience in point:

I HAD a call for an item of Lincolniana which I knew—a certain book of mine proving it—that I had once handled, had known its whereabouts, its owner; but when I went to my files, search as I would, I could not put my hand upon it. Again and again, for over a period of several weeks, I dug up and down, following one trail after another in those files and the item still eluded me. Finally, as a last resort, it occurred to me that it might be well to look into my head. I had been taught that a thing which has once passed through the mind, even hurriedly on its way to the files, makes an impression that is never lost.

So I sat myself down by the fire, though it took considerable resolution to do it, and began slowly and painfully to search through the labyrinth of my brain. I remembered that William James had said about such an undertaking: "We make search in our memory for a forgotten idea, just as we rummage our house for a lost object. In both cases we visit what seems to us the probable neighborhood of that which we miss. We turn over the things under which, or within which, or alongside of which it may possibly be; and if it lies near them, it soon comes to view."

IT was interesting work after I had once made up my mind to it. I kept picking up things that I did not know I had, as one does when he looks into a long neglected case of books or chest of clothes or cabinet of curiosities. As a matter of fact, I went straight to my item of Lincolniana, although I kept stopping on the way to look at long neglected notions. When I at last had it, I suddenly remembered a note which after Lincoln's death was found attached to a bundle of miscellaneous papers:

* * *

A trivial experience, to be sure, but it is not without its lesson—a lesson which can be carried over into larger things. The world seems to be pretty well obsessed these days with the notion that it can find sure labor-saving devices to which to hand over all of its problems. Outside law instead of inside self-control; wholesale organization instead of retail education; formulae for ruling men strong in logic but weak in knowledge of human nature. We try so hopefully and drop in such black despair when they work badly.

* * *

We should not despair, we still have our heads. And it is quite miraculous what a head, when used, will do in solving problems that have not yielded to law, organization or formula, only—and here is the rub—it is hard, personal work, the kind that we would like to train a 'pony' to do for us.

BUT if we flinch at the work, it will encourage us to remember that one advantage of using your head instead of depending upon a pony is that you always have it with you; and also that, using it, you will be continually coming upon things which you did not know you owned, so that soon you will have a sense of being richer than you ever knew you were—richer in strong, beautiful, desirable things which have no place in files and organizations and formulae.

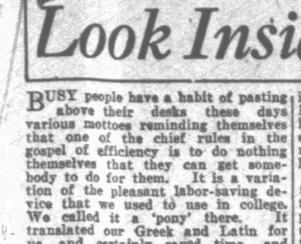

A very great man of old, St. Augustine, after trying various schemes devised in his time for saving men's souls and giving them a joyful life, being still unsatisfied, looked inside. What he found for his soul—and that is his great story—we need not touch on here. It is what he found in his mind—incidentally, we may say, to his master struggle, that is to the point:

"Men go abroad to admire the heights of mountains, the mighty billows of the sea, the broad tides of rivers, the compass of the ocean, and the circuits of the stars," he says in his confessions, "and pass themselves by."

* * *

ST. AUGUSTINE was particularly enthusiastic over his memory. He talks of its "fields and spacious palaces" and the innumerable treasures he discovered there. "When I enter," he said, "I require what I will to be brought forth, and something instantly comes. Others must be longer sought after, which are fetched, as it were, out of some inner receptacle. Others rush out in troops, and while one thing is desired and required, they start forth, as who should say, 'Is it perchance I?' These I drive away with the hand of my heart, from the face of my remembrance; until what I wished for be unveiled, and appear in sight, out of its secret place. Other things come up readily, in unbroken order, as they are called for; those in front making way for the following; and as they make way, they are hidden from sight, ready to come when I will."

Now, who is going to deny that there is one of us that does not possess just such a place of treasure in his mind as St. Augustine found he had when he turned from outside devices and looked inside?

Gray Hair is it a glory? If not apply sage tea

This is to women and men not content to grow gray. Who rebel at looking years older than they should. It is necessary. A simple, easy means brings back the dark, glossy hair of a girl.

No need to dye hair. That often spoils it. The old way is best—the way of sage tea and sulphur. Millions have used it for many years. But the way was mussy and hard to prepare.

Now science presents a refined form, ready to apply. It combines new factors of importance to quick, permanent results. You druggist supplies this ready-made fmula under the name of Wyeth' Sage and Sulphur Compound.

Apply it tonight. In the morning the gray hair is gone. Apply it once or twice more, and you return to the dark, glossy hair of youth. And nobody knows of the change—it is so even, so natural.

Don't dye hair. All of us scientists, in all these decades, have found nothing to compare.

Try this way tonight. Watch the results tomorrow. Then see how those results improve with one or two more applications. You will be delighted. You will start a new era of youth.

West Texas Club Women Are Guests Of Haskell Ladies At Pretty Afternoon Tea, Tuesday

HASKELL, March 7.—The charming little city of Haskell threw open its doors to West Texas club ladies and friends Tuesday afternoon when the campaign committee of Mrs. J. U. Fields, who is a candidate for the presidency of the Texas Federation of Woman's clubs, presented her in a magnificient tea in the spacious home of Mrs. J. A. Couch, who with Mmes Hardy Grissom, Bruce Bryant, Courtney Hunt, W. H. Murchison, Clarence Lewis, F. T. Sanders and R. R. English were the hostesses. Invitations mailed to all neighboring towns and many far off, brought a large number of club women, who pledged their support and voised their sentiment as being glad to honor this attactive, gifted woman, who is to carry the hopes of the west with her in her campaign. Guests from Dallas, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Seymour and Abilene were noted as being present.

Shown to Cloak Room

On entering the spacious hall the guests were shown immediately to the cloak room on the second floor and on leaving here were refreshed with delicious punch from bowls set deep in spring flowers, presided over by Mmes H. S. Post, J. E. Bernard, Earnest Sutherlin, W. E. Kirkpatrick, and B. M. Whiteker. Then following in the wake of throngs of handsomely gowned women one was first gretted by Mmes. Hardy Grisson and John Couch who presented them to the honoree, Mrs. J. U. Fields, and next to Mrs. Brittain of Seymour—president of the first district—others of the house party either in reception or dining rooms, gowned in the new shades and styles of spring were Mmes. Ben Hardy, W. M. Reid, John Oats, Elam Parish, Roy Shook, Bailey Post, C. V. Payne, Mrs. Keith, of Stamford, R. C. Montgomery, R. C. Couch, Haskell, Musser of Abilene, Percy Jones, Abilene, J. M. White, Ranger, J. C. A. Guest, Wichita Falls, W. S. Douglass, San Angelo; J. E. Grissom, Abilene; D. L. Stephens, Anson, Henry Tandy, Dallas; J. D. Westbrook, Rule; C. D. Grisson, H. M. Smith, Haskell; Miss Blanch Balwin, Stamford; and Mrs. R. J. Reynolds.

Frozen hearts and angel food cake was served the guests by Misses Maurene Couch, Brucile Bryant, Aneta and Frances Grissom.

Candidate Announced

Mrs. J. U. Fields whose candidacy for the presidency of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs has been announced by her friends of northwest Texas, entertained her campaign committee last Monday with a delicious two course luncheon at 1 o'clock. Plans were discussed and a sheaf of letters brought by each member from admirers and supporters of Mrs. Fields were read. The personnel of her campaign committee is Mmes. Bruce W. Bryant, W. H. Murchison, Fred Sanders, Clarence Lewis, Courtney Hunt, R. R. English and John Couch, Mrs. C. M. Kaigler was also present.

Texas Woman's Press Will Meet at Burk.

BURKBURNETT, Mar. 8.—The announcement of the thirty-second annual convention of the Texas Woman's Press association to be held in Tyler, Texas, on May 20-21-22, was made in this city today by the president, Mrs. J. M. F. Gill.

A program along press lines and its various phases of interest to writers will be given, interspersed with social numbers by the entertaining city. The local hosts will be the Tyler chamber of commerce, R. B. Still, president, and Miss Ethel Finks, secretary; U. W. Prater, city manager; the Womans' Forum, Mrs. Lester Smith, president; First Literary club, Mrs. A. F. Sledge, president; Quid Nunc, Mrs. T. H. Lawrence, president; Standard club, Mrs. Billie Walsh, president.

The announcement of the winners of four literary contests will feature the literature report of this meeting, and will be given by Miss Lillian Wester, of the state university in Austin, chairman of committee.

Prominent editors, readers, instructors, musicians, writers and literary leaders will appear from time to time on the three-day program.

Miss Ethel Finks of the Tyler chamber of commerce is local chairman, and Mrs. Mamye Wynne Cox of Dallas, co-operating chairman of the Texas Woman's Press association for the convention arrangement.

Glad Hand Girls Entertain Teacher

The Glad Girls of the First Baptist church were enjoyably entertained by their teacher, Mrs. Ed Napier, at her home, 906 Burnett street Friday evening.

Games and contests were played after which a refreshment plate with favors of shamrocks were served to the following: Misses Margaret Hines, Maurice Tidwell, Lela Bell Jenkins, Daisy Marye Wratten, Adelyn McGregor, Bettie Walton, Fannie Conley, Irene Noe, Loneta Glidewell, Jessie Lucile Railey and Arlie Davis and Messrs. Jack McCay, Kennard Rundell, Cooper Jones, W. G. Bentley, R. O. Riggs, Geo. Napier, Jack Jenkins, Ed Napier and Eugene Naffier.

Surprising Results

"About two years ago we were living near Sontag, Miss., and I was in very bad health. At times my back would almost kill me. My mother decided to give me Cardui, and it would surprise any one to see the results we got.

"My cheeks became rosy. My friends hardly knew me in two months after taking Cardui."

In a statement giving additional details, Mrs. Turnage said that on account of certain womanly disorders—"I suffered at times with severe pains in my back and also had awful headaches." Then she added:

"After the first bottle I began to improve and after I had taken the four bottles I was very much better, not at all like the sick girl I had been. Mother was so pleased with my improvement that she got eight more bottles of Cardui for me to take and I took it every bit, and when I finished that course of medicine I was entirely well.

"I gained in weight from 98 pounds to 130. My color came back to my cheeks and I could enjoy myself. I ceased to be troubled at certain times with any pain, and I felt like a new person."

Thousands of other women have reported good results from taking Cardui in the treatment of many cases of female ailments. It is a purely vegetable compound; mild, harmless, strengthening.

Wa-ba-na-ki Hike to Scotland Park

Members of the Wa-ba-na-ki Camp Fire hiked to Scotland Park Saturday morning at 7 o'clock where they held a council fire. Misses Doris Brackett and Vivian Tarkington being initiated into the rank of woodgatherers.

It was voted to hold a rummage sale Saturday, March 14, the proceeds of which will go toward the purchase of supplies and equipment for the group.

Games, songs and stunts then preceded the building of fires and preparing of a delicious breakfast.

Those present were Mrs. Glenn D. Stockton, guardian of the group; Miss Berry, teacher at San Jacinto school, assistant guardian, and Misses Dolores West, Mary Louise Brackett, Lorena Holstead, Virginia Ross, Doris Bracken, Naomi McCatherine, Elizabeth Johnson, Sadie Fisch, Vivian Tarkington, Louise Wilmot, Hazel Hill, Mary Louise Hill, Eunice Lewis, Fontella Warren, Thelba Gibson, Imogene Anderson, Bonita Fine, Wilma Mathews, and Lois Tippen.

School Board Gets Alamo Cafeteria

The Alamo School afeteria, which has been so successfully managed for the past few years by the Home and school club of the Alamo school will be turned over to the school board for management next year, as the result of a vote at Friday's meeting of the club.

The cafeteria is now feeding from 600 to 700 children each noon, and with the increase in school pupils, is gradually being overcrowded, and is badly in need of enlargement. For this reason, the mothers clus is turning the institution over to the school board for regulation.

Mrs. T. M. Conrey, president, presided at the meeting and Raybon Porter led the devotional.

Miss Marguerite Fisher gave two readings, and Mr. Porter sang two vocal solos, while talks were made by Misses Jennie Roberson, art supervisor, and Florence Barrier, art instructor of the fifth and sixth grades. Committee reports finished the session.

AMOMA CLASS WILL GIVE BANQUET.

The Amoma Class of the First Baptist church will give a supper at the church on Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, to which all members are invited to attend.

"Man is a finer creature under democratic government." Also, possibly, under a feminine thumb.

CATHOLIC CHURCH
1505 Ninth Street

Communion at 5:10, 7:00 and in the early mass. Low mass at 8:00 and high mass at 10:00; at the first the junior choir will sing popular songs and at the latter the senior choir will sing the usual Latin mass. At both masses the annual financial statements will be distributed. We read today from the Epistle of St. Paul, 1 Thess. 4, 1-7, in which this great saint admonishes his readers to keep the commandments. Also from the gospel of St. Matthew 17, 1-9, telling of the transfiguration of Jesus. Sunday school at 3 p. m. and at 7:30 p. m. In connection with the latter we will travel the way of the cross to see what our Savior suffered for us, and in conclusion there will be sacramental benediction. Special lenten devotions and instructions Wednesday and Friday nights. Tonight the congregation, led by the senior choir, will sing: "Just for Today" and "Like a Strong and Raging Fire."

Safe Fat Reduction

Why be fat? The answer of most fat people is that constant dieting is hard, continual exercises tiresome and exhaustive—and then, too, it might be harmful to force the weight down. That was the old-fashioned idea. Today in Marmola Prescription Tablets all these difficulties are overcome. Just a pleasant little tablet after each meal and at bedtime causes fat to vanish. This modern method is easy, entails no dieting or exercising and has the added advantage of cheapness.

Get a box of those tablets and start taking them now. Within a short time you will be getting rid of fat steadily and easily without starvation diet or tiresome exercise. You will be comfortable and able to enjoy the food you like and want. Even after taking off many pounds, there will be no flabbiness or wrinkles remaining. You will feel 100% better. All drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a box, or the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich., will gladly send them to you on receipt of the price.—Adv.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you life it rigt off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn soft corn, or corn between the toes and th foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.—Adv.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or tetter needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

ASSETS ARE OVER MILLION

Local Building And Loan Association Reports Rapid Growth.

At the close of business yesterday, the assets of the Wichita Falls Building and Loan association had reached $1,015,580.95, according to J. Wilkie Talbert. This institution is the oldest and largest building and loan association in west Texas, and they now have 522 real estate borrowers.

It isn't pleasant to write that one half of Uncle Sam's nephews, between the ages of 18 and 30, either have, or have had some venereal disease.

Hearing Restored Often In 24 Hours

Amazing Results Secured in One Day By Use of Virex Formerly Known As Rattle Snake Oil

Deafness and Head Noises need not be dreaded any longer since the discovery of a widely known physician. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness to application of a prescription formbe relieved in a day's time by the erly knows as Rattle Snake Oil. This treatment is meeting with wide success all over the country.

Mr. D. M. Lopes, a Pennsylvania man says: "I used the treatment at night before retiring. The following morning I could hear the tickings of the alarm clock that I was unable to hear before. Now my hearing is restored perfectly after many years of deafness."

Mr. Ben Jackson, who lives in Indiana says: "Before I used Virex I could hear nothing. After 10 days I could hear my watch tick."

Angeline Johnson, a Mississippi resident had been stone deaf for 19 years. She says, "Virex has topped my head noises and I can hear the train whistle 3½ miles away."

Roy Fisher, Iowa man says: "I hadn't heard a witch tick for 11 years—now I can lay my watch on the table and hear it plainly."

Mr. W .A. Lumpkin, of Oklahoma, says, "After being deaf 38 years, I used your treatment only a few days and hear fairly well."

Mr .Anthony Chapman, of Michigan says: "The terrible head noises have stopped entirely and my hearing is practically back to normal.

Deaf Baby Now Hears

Mrs. Ola Valentine of Arkansas, says: "My little boy, now 5 years old, had been deaf since about four months of age. Now he hears very well and is learning to talk."

Mr. Mather Pelleys says: "My young son, deaf for years, has used Virex for only three days and he hears almost as well as ever before."

Such amazing reports come from all over this country and Canada. The prescription which is known as Virex, is easily used t home and seems to work like magic in its rapidity on people of all ages.

So confident are we that Virex will restore your hearing quickly, and to introduce this remarkable treatment to a million more sufferers, we will send a large $2.00 treatment for only $1.00 on 10 day's free trial. If the results are not satisfactory the treatment costs nothing.

Send no money—just your name and address to the Dale Laboratories, 2331 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., and the treatment will be mailed at once. Use it according to the simple directions. If at the end of 10 days your hearing is not relieved, your head noises gone entirely, just send it back and your money will be refunded without question. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today and give this wonderful compound a trial.—Adv.

"Carelessness Causes Many Thefts," Says Police Chief

Be careful, and it is a hundred to one chance that you'll never be robbed. Carelessness is responsible for most crime. If you want to avoid being victimized by crooks, read the advice of Chief of Police Hodgins.

CARELESSNESS and thoughtlessness, strange as it may seem, are responsible quite as much for personal loss through theft as is circumstance itself. Lack of a few precautionary measures that would have required but little time and trouble can frequently be blamed for a successful haul by crooks who took note of favorable openings and knew their chances of detection were at a minimum.

This may sound odd, but it is the belief of Chief of Police George H. Hodgins who declares that Wichita Falls might save no small part of its annual thievery bill by the observation of a few simple rules.

Chief Gives "Don'ts"

The chief has given a list of "don'ts" which, in reality, comprise nothing more than common sense. They are just simple practices that a reasonably cautious person observes anyhow. There is nothing difficult about them, but the chief is sure that 100 per cent observance of them here would tend to materially reduce the number of thefts that the city now suffers each year.

In the first place, says Chief Hodgins, the home is the place that should be carefully guarded. Do not leave the house unattended at night without a light burning somewhere in it and visible from the street. Even if he knows no one is in the place a thief will be wary of entering it where a light is turned on. Don't neglect to try the doors before you go out. Snap locks do not always work perfectly. Don't leave the key over the door sill or under the mat. Experienced thieves look there first of all. Loose windows that can be opened from the outside form alluring entry ways for robbers. See to it that window fasteners of approved type are on all windows. Above all, when leaving the house, do not advertise the fact by pulling down all the window shades and leaving a note in the mail box, giving the approximate hour of return and asking the grocery boy to leave the ham and eggs on the back porch. Sneag thieves can very easily turn grocery deliverers.

Hide Money Carefully.

Hiding money or other valuables behind pictures, under rugs, in bric-a-brac and mattresses is a safeguarding practice ludicrous ofr its folly, Chief Hodgins thinks. He declares that these are the first places experienced crooks look, and in a surprisingly large number of cases their searches are successful.

Don't fail to have a safe or cash register and valuable merchandise exposed to plain view of officers on a beat; and be sure to have the store partially lighted at night so that the policeman can get a view of the interior at night. Robbers fear nothing so much as light.

Don't leave the cash refgister locked at night. Remove the money and leave the drawer open. Many valuable cash registers have been broken open and destroyed by thieves in search of money.

Don't inform vendors of hours in which the house will be empty. Such information may be inviting a porch climber.

Don't get excited if burglars are found in a house. Don't light the lights; if possible telephone the police.

Don't admit persons who represent themselves as gas inspectors, delivery boys, canvassers or agents without first seeing they have proper credentials.

Don't give strangers information regarding the absence of neighbors.

Don't receive and pay for C. O. D. packages until certain the goods have been ordered by you.

Don't leave rings or other valuables in public or other washrooms.

Count Change.

Don't buy an automobile from a stranger without first finding out if it is rightfully his. It may be a stolen car and then you are in trouble.

Don't leave the automobile unattended unless it is necessary. Then be sure and lock the ignition and steering apparatus. Very few cars these days do not have locking devices on the steering wheel. All of them have ignition locks and many are provided with transmission locks.

Don't carry money or other valuables in hip pockets or outer garments. Such pockets are the most accessible to the pickpocket.

Don't regard jostling or pushing as accidental. Be suspicious of persons who push or jostle.

Keep Safes Locked.

Don't fail to keep safes holding valuables locked during business hours. Chances of loss through a hold-up are greatly minimized by this.

Don't open a safe in a place of business while there are strangers about. Make a practice of closing the outer door of the premises at the close of the business day before putting valuables away.

Don't obtain a payroll from the bank at the same hour and same day every week. Irregularities prevent crooks from laying definite plans.

Don't carry a handbag suspended by a strap from the wrist. Hold it tightly in the hand. This prevents thieves from opening the bag or pocket book and extracting valuables from it.

All these "don'ts", Chief Hodgins explained, are ones which a large per cent of the public regularly observe. It is those who do not, however, that sooner or later find themselves victimized by some light fingered or light-footed crook who takes advantage of momentary unwariness.

Poem Inspires Hunt For the Oris Poli

NEW YORK, March 7.—One of Kipling's poems in a book presented to their father has inspired the expedition which Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Kermit, are to undertake next summer in search of the Ovis Poli, an elusive mountain sheep which inhabits the roof of the world, the Pamir Plateau in Asia, 16,000 feet above sea level.

A friend revealed today that Kermit, in discussing the reason for the expedition, had displayed the gift and turned to the poem, "The Feet of Young Men," which tells of an oath to track down the Ovis Poli on "the world's white roof tree."

Marco Poli say the sheep on the Pamir plateau in the thirteenth century and its name comes from him. The sheep's horns are of great size with a wide open sweep.

BROTHERS SHOT AT BRYAN

Police Seek For Third Man In Connection With Double Shooting.

BRYAN, March 7.—Grady Cook, 21, is in a hospital here in critical condition as the result of gunshit wounds received Friday night near Iola, Grimes county. Virgil Cook, his brother, was shot in one leg at the same time. Officers are seeking a third man. The cause of the trouble is not knows here.

What Today Means To You

Pisces

Today's planetary aspects, although slightly adverse in the early morning, are quite benign during the rest of the day. They do not, apparently, favor any line of endeavor involving great activity, but they do portend a general atmosphere of restfulness and contentment of mind. These are all favorable factors on the Sabbath Day, and presage good results for all religious observance and recreational pastimes. The vibrations, although not stimulative, are steady, and clearly indicate a state of mind provocative of pleasure and satisfaction. They denote a tendency to harmony and cooperation in the family and in the home, so that everything points to the passing of a "perfect day."

A child born today will, unfortunately, exuerinance a great deal of sickness during the infantile. It will require, above all things, very careful nuturition, and wholesome environment. Once this early stage is successfully passed, there will be nothing to arrest its orderly physical development. Its disposition will be very bright and sunny, and as it grows older, it will have a very charming and attractive personality. Its character will be unselfish and it will be generous to a fault. An intelligent effort must be made in its youth to inculcate in its mind the benefit of thrift, without teaching it to become excessively frugal. It will be quite devoted to all the members of its family, and loyal to those of its friends who are worthy and worth-while.

If today is your birthday, you possess remarkable powers of intuition, and your judgment is very rarely in error. You are very cautious and conservative, but are more influenced in your actions by your keen intuitive perception than by ordinary mental processes. You show your likes and dislikes very plainly, and although no one can accuse you of either rudeness or discourtesy, and, although no inclinations are made palpably evident. You are very loyal not only to your friends, but to your ideals, and will never sacrifice a conviction for the sake of either convenience or advantage.

You are at your best in your home, and are not only ideally contented yourself, but make all those around you happy as, although, you have strong beliefs, you have never bigoted or dogmatic, and allow to others the same freedom of belief that you claim for yourself.

Successful people born on this date are:

THE EXPATRIATE

Twelve years the Colonel lived at the St. Marie in Paris—The Colonel, who hailed from Kokomo, Indiana. Returning tourists to Paris felt a sense of HOMECOMING when they saw him there, summer after summer, in the courtyard of the old hotel.

The Colonel KNEW HOW TO LIVE. Even busy American husbands had to admit that. The Colonel admitted it. He was FRANKLY AN EXPATRIATE. He used to tell the American husbands just what was the matter with them.

GOLD BLOATED, he said.

Then one day one of the American stockbroker husbands spilled the beans. Some say it was suicide. Anyway, the Colonel died just about that time. Died THINKING OF HIS OLD HOME back in Kokomo, Kansas.

FOR eighteen years Spencer Greene, who was born in Kokomo, Indiana, had LIVED IN PARIS.

Twelve of those eighteen were spent in one hotel.

If you put up at the St. Marie you are the sort of American who does not tea at the Ritz, shop on the Rue Castiglione or dance at Acacias.

If you are the kind of American who puts up at the St. Marie you ferret out old historic spots like Cour de Dragon. You browse along the Left Bank, Sup at Emilie's, have late coffee at the Dome, and munch little radishes with your cheese.

There was an aristocracy about being of the St. Marie clientele. M. Andre booked reservations six months ahead. You wrote from America the day, the hour, the steamship, of your sailing, and nothing short of murder or sudden death saved you from ostracism at the St. Marie if you failed to keep your reservation engagement at least to the week, if not the day and hour.

Colonel Greene was more or less of a ST. MARIE LANDMARK.

There was no explaining the title "Colonel." Greene himself never tried to. But year after year, Americans on their annual trip abroad would thrill with a sense of homecoming at the sight of the Colonel seated in the St. Marie courtyard, in a green iron rocking chair that tilted back too far, supping his leisurely demi-tasse for all the world as if another three hundred and sixty-five days had not flowed turbulently past.

The Colonel KNEW HOW TO LIVE, the Americans would say wistfully.

He had learned the secret of LEISURE. Of TRANQUILITY. Of taking the time to learn the slow, sweet scents of rare chartreuses. He was not ashamed of the fastidiousnesses of the palate. The Colonel walked the Bois with the magnificent leisure of a man whose year was composed of three hundred and sixty-five times three hundred and sixty-five days.

The Colonel, on what was said to be a scant and mysterious income, knew the small esoteric places where rare wines come low and with the closing of his eyes could inhale the perfume and the legends of the vineyards that had contributed to their making.

The Colonel knew that HE KNEW HOW TO LIVE.

He had not been to the States for twenty years.

He did not want to return to the States.

Sometimes he dreamed he was back in Kokomo and Jean, the tireless garcon who kept his boots impeccable and his spats dry-cleaned and whose wife Jeanette hand-laundered his shirts to the last exquisite pleat, would rush into his room and wake him out of a noisy nightmare.

The Colonel used to relate, that by lying on his left side in bed and opening one eye so that his gaze took in just the Northeast corner of the room, there was something about that segment of view that reminded him of his room in his parents' home in Kokomo, Indiana.

The Colonel liked to lie late, and whenever he wanted to bestir himself to keep an early engagement for a walk in the Bois or a stroll in the Luxembourg, the experiment of lying at the angle that reminded him of Kokomo was sure to bestir him.

It made it pleasant, the Colonel used to say, to leap out of bed to the happy realization that there he was in the Paris of his fastidious heart and not back in the horrific reality of Kokomo.

But then you remembered that you were a nervous American without the capacity for caring a great deal about the particular legend behind a particular whiff of chartreuse and to whom three hours out of the heart of a workaday afternoon, drowsing over a demi-tasse beside a small table set in the middle of the sidewalk and your spats stretched out to the curb, hang it—there was something about it—you couldn't swallow.

He told them out and out.

He told corpulent stock brokers travelling abroad with their families WHAT HE THOUGHT OF THEM! He made them get red in the face and splutter!

"You men don't know how to live. You're GOLD BLOATED. You cannot see beyond your tape-tickers. You've LOST BEAUTY and replaced her with Speed. You think a siren is an automobile horn and that Venus de Milos should be mended to resemble the Statue of Liberty. You have frenzied degeneration of the heart. No wonder your women are the most restless women in the world. They are RUNNING AWAY FROM YOUR RESTLESSNESS."

SLY COLONEL! The women fell for it. The women liked him. Spoiled American wives, with indulgent American husbands, used to sit long somnalent afternoons in the St. Marie courtyard sipping demi-tasse with the Colonel and baring their suppressed souls.

The Colonel knew Sevres.

Well, in a measure it was true. The Colonel did seem to have learned some of the leisurely, lovely TRUTHS OF LIFE.

Even the stock broker husbands had to admit it, as they rushed from spa to spa for high blood pressure and heart murmur.

"Something rotten in Denmark," they usually said about him. But just the same, in their moments when they said to themselves, what's it all about—the helter and the skelter—there did seem more of sanity and wisdom in the ordered leisurely days the Colonel had mapped out for himself.

Ed Greene Stanton, Kokomo.

Family had hushed it up.

Shipped Ed out of the country on a remittance and story had died down. One couldn't be quite clear about it any more, so long ago and all that, but that was the sum and substance of it.

The story leaking across the Atlantic that way hit the Colonel hard. Some say it was suicide, others say he just THREW UP THE SPONGE in a mild sort of disgust and quit.

In any event, one morning the Colonel could not get up. He died in considerable pain. That was what gave rise to the suicide theory. But in all his pain the Colonel could not be pried from one position in his bed.

It was the particular position of lying on his left side, so that his gaze took in just the northeast corner of the room that reminded him of the room in his home back in Kokomo, Indiana.

FANNIE HURST

The Fable Of Three Dramatic Critics..... By George Ade

Many years ago, when Morning Papers were still published in the Morning and the Oyster Stew could be had for 25 cents, there lived on a crowded Street in one of our growing Cities, three Urchins bearing the names of Patsy, Doremus and Filmore. All had received a Liberal Education at an Early Age and could whistle through their Teeth without the aid of the Fingers.

Whenever this Trio could muster enough of Needful they would pool their Interests and buy seats in the Gallery, for they were keen Devotees of the Thespian Art. In those Palmy Days, when every good Play had about eight gallons of Blood in it, they idolized the Hero whose Shirt was open in Front. When he drew his trusty Rifle and severed the Rope just as the Outlaw Gang was about to hang Hank the Trapper to the Blasted Oak, they whooped and yelled.

A Successful Comic.

They were partial to the low comic in Plaid Clothes who stepped out from behind a painted Rock at the Critical Moment and flashed his 44 and said "No you don't!" Likewise the kittenish Soubrette with the Oakum Wig and the pallid Heroine who got all of the Dirty Deals up to that supreme moment in Act V, when the Stage Father, with Flour on his hair, said, "Officer, do your Duty!" and a Stage Hand wearing loose Whiskers entered at R1 and put the Nippers on the Villian with the Cape Coat.

More than anything else they loved the Sentimental Song which went over so big in the preceding Century. The typical Ballad was like the drip of Honey or the smell of Perfumery. It was rendered by soft-shoe Lotharios who were always referring to some Loved One who was reposing in a Bower of Roses listening to a Nightingale, unquestionably, would be the Acme of Bliss.

Patsy the Budding Genius.

Of all the stars who twinkled in those happy by-gone Days the One that they were especially Nuts about was our old friend Billy Emerson. He had a silvery Tenor and every Move was a Picture.

Often the three Youngsters would try to imitate some of the Footlight Favorites and especially that superessence of black-face Refinement, Mr. Emerson. Doremus was absolutely N. G. He had a voice like a Tree Toad and both of his Feet were Lefts. Filmore was likewise a Blah, but when it came to neat Hoofing the one named Patsy Mink was the Tom-Cat's Kitten. He was there—with Everything. He could do a Glide on a Wooden Sidewalk, without missing a Beat, and finish in the Attitude of picking a Flower with the Right Hand while the Left rested lightly on his Hip, and all the envious Rivals had to admit that he was It.

Patsy had Theatre written all over him, right from the Jump. When he was 14 he began to carry a Paste-Bucket and extra Lithos for the popular-price Temple of Amusement known as the Bijou and pronounced "By-Joe."

No longer did the Grammar School have any Charms for him. He began to associate with Stage Hands and was permitted to help with the Props and go on as an Extra in Mob Scenes. Nothing on Eorth smelled as good to him as Grease Paint and he never saw a real "Trouper taking a Bow that he didn't say to himself, "If I had a Chance I could show up that Ham." So it will be understood that he was getting ready to be a regular Actor.

It was a proud Night when he went on and did a Bit in the Afterpiece staged by the celebrated Knockabout billed as Lennox and Mack. He deemed it an honor to be hit with a Bladder by such high-class Performers. His professional Debut was made doubly important by the fact that Filmore and Doremus were looking down at him from the fifteencent Seats.

Not long after that he had his Name put on a Trunk and the team of Mooney and Pink began to play the Honkatonks when they were not Resting. Vaudeville was still known as Variety and the Headliners did not wear silk-lined Evening Clothes in conjunction with white Spats. To be a successful Comic one had to do Head-Spins and be hit on the Bean with an Axe, and the Artist who could not make himself heard above the Waiters who were ordering two Scuttles and a Suit stood a likely Chance of getting the Air after the First Show.

He Acquires a Dependable Blonde.

It was not long before Mr. Mink was an adept at all forms of Brutality, could do any of the Steps originated by Delahanty and Hengler and was Dun and Bradstreet on Hokum, Gravy and sure-fire Stuff. At that time every Booking Agent carried his office in his Hat and the Ghost often failed to walk but the Boys who could make good in the Beer Gardens received a Training which cannot be acquired in any School of Dramatic Art.

In billing themselves at the Dumps, the hard-working Duo often used One-Sheets which originally had been printed for Booth and Barrett.

They joined out one Summer with a Circus and sometimes gave eight shows a day at a Museum. The Salary for the Act was whatever they could get and they lived at Hotels which didn't have any Windows, but which permitted Guests to do their own Cooking. All of the Jumps were made in Day Coaches. It was a hard Life but fortunately there was a Free Lunch in every Block and once a week they could read the Clipper.

Just as the sketch was getting into Halls which did not have any Sawdust on the Floor, the Half known as Mooney began a sincere attempt to consume all of the Hard Stuff being made at Peoria, Ill., and the Specialty was a Flop both in Chicago and Milwaukee, so Mink tied a can to the Bar Fly and took his Life in his Hands by trying to do a Single Turn in One at an Amusement Park in St. Louis. He went off every night without a Hand so he got busy and dug up a dependable Blonde who could do Straight for him and was satisfied to be a Feeder and had a set of Pipes that made you think of Melba.

After that the Letter-Head was Mink and Madeline, guaranteed to be Good Dressers on and off. The Act was a Riot. To avoid entanglements regarding the split Salary, Patsy married the Song Bird and after they joined the Hoop-la Burlycue Outfit he saw the inside of a Dining Car for the first time.

After one Season on the Wheel they were too classy for anything except the Continuous. They cut out everything that was Blue and began to cater to the Family Trade. At first they had to waste their Good Stuff on a Lot of empty Benches during the Supper Show but Patsy, now known as Herbert Mink, began to write their own Songs and had a special Drop painted and put the Bank Roll into a set of Ziegfield Costumes for Madeline, who now looked 15 years younger than she did when he met her in St. Louis, and the Bib Time Booking Office simply had to pay some attention to the Feature.

Now they get a Hand when they come on and even on a rainy Afternoon, when the Customers are nursing wet Umbrellas, they are good for three Bows. If they get a bunch of Live Ones in front they may stop the Show.

During the Lay-Off they go to a Shack at the Sea-Shore. He owns a Cat Boat and she is interested in Boston Terriers.

Some one may ask what became of Doremus and Filmore, who were unable to master the Dance Steps. Doremus owns a large Steam Laundry which does Hand Work if desired, and Filmore is under indictment in Texas for selling Phoney Oil Stock.

Moral: Young People were being uplifted long before the Movies Came.

It isn't the French government that owes the American government. It's Jean Baptiste that owes Bill Jones.

ENCLOSED CAR OF STUDEBAKER ON EXHIBITION

Standard Six Coach Is Equipped With All Latest Designs

Long looked for with much interest, the Studebaker coach comes into the automobile market this week with a new standard of construction for this type of car.

Built for the same long-time ownership and service of all Studebaker products, the standard six coach, on a 113-inch wheelbase and with a 50 horsepower engine, teems with quality of construction.

Striking, in the appearance of its Belgian blue, low-swung body, with black, satin-finished, lacquered top, the new coach contains full steel panels, and the same high quality of framework as characterize all body building by this pioneer vehicle-making company.

The chassis is the full standard six chassis, which has set new records in the industry for reliability and durability. Tires are full balloons, around the lines of which the whole body—and even the fenders—has been built to conform.

Roominess a Feature.

Roominess is one of the outstanding characteristics of this coach. Ample clearance between folding seat and the door post; wide cushions for the driver and the passenger of the folding seat; plenty of leg room for all passengers; these are conspicuous.

The broad doors provide for easy entrance; rear windows are nearly as wide as the doors. The rear seat back is high, giving restful riding quality.

Upholstery is woven from mohair and wool, rich in its grey-blue coloring with grey stripe effect on cushions—handsome and durable. It covers the same deep, springy, durable cushions which have given Studebaker cars a reputation for riding comfort not reached in any other car at any price.

A New Convenience.

The back of the folding seat can be tilted forward to enable rear seat passengers to enter or leave the car without forcing occupants of the folding seat to get out.

Radiator cap is winged and ornamented in enamel. Running boards are aluminum-bound on all four sides, clasping a heavy, navy linoleum mat, rubber cemented under pressure to the board itself, so it won't crease or ruffle up.

Inside the car, an automatic windshield cleaner and rear-view mirror; a gasoline gauge showing gallons, assembled with all the other instruments under one oval glass, indirectly lighted, to protect them and give the driver at one glance a complete graph of how his whole car is operating; a monogram plate—these are driver conveniences, as is the one-piece, fully ventilated windshield. Rear-quarter and door window regulators are of the crank type.

Garnish moulding on door sills and rear-quarter windows is of walnut finish. Doors have attractively gathered pockets and the rear window is shielded by a silk curtain.

Wheels are natural wood finish. There is a combination stop-and-tail light. The rear tire carrier has a thief-proof lock and the gasoline tank is protected and beautified with a heavy steel apron.

OAKLAND SELLS ENCLOSED CARS

Over Eighty Percent Of Orders Call For Sedan Models

Eighty per cent of the production of the Oakland Motor Car company for the first six months of 1925 will be in the enclosed models. Factory schedules have already been set for this proportion of closed cars. Just what the proportion of closed cars will be in the second half of 1925 will depend upon the sale of the open models during the early spring and summer months.

The exact demand for closed versus open models during the present year is something that factory production executives can only estimate, according to A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of Oakland.

Half Are Closed Types

"There is no question but that more than 50 per cent of all cars built during this year will be in the closed body type," he states. "but just what the proportion will be must be determined by each company, depending to a great extent on the price class in which their cars are listed.

"At the best it will only be a rough estimate. After the present year, officials will have data on which to plan future production. The price differential between the closed and open body types is, at the present time, so small that I believe the greater production will be in the closed models.

"There are, however, certain advantages of vision and air which the open cars afford, particularly in our southern states. How strong this appeal actually is constitutes the unknown factor in our production plans. I believe, that, because this is a somewhat experimental year as to the exact public preference for the closed models, manufacturers are not planning production schedules any further in advance than the actual commitments for large production demand.

GARDNER PRODUCTION IS INCREASING

Directors Vote Raise In Output After Orders Increase

At a meeting last Monday, the directors of the Gardner Motor company, Inc., St. Louis, voted to increase production of the new Gardner eight-in-line 100 per cent over the original schedule planned for the first six months of 1925. Orders for $5,000,000 worth of parts and materials to carry out this increased program were also confirmed.

"Ever since the introduction of the Gardner eight-in-line at the New York automobile show early this year, demands for this car have taxed our production facilities," said Russell E. Gardner, Jr., president of the Gardner Motor company, Inc. "Immediately after the introduction of the new Gardner eight-in-line at the Cleveland automobile show, our distributor for that territory wired us an order for 100 of the new cars for immediate shipment. When one of Harry L. Arnold's enterprises, the Southwest Motors company, of Los Angeles, took over the distributing rights for southern California, it was insisted that we arrange for immediate shipment of at least 30 carloads of new eight-in-line models. Similar requests have come in from Gardner distributors and dealers in all parts of the country."

First Eight Under $2,000

The new Gardner eight-in-line is the first eight cylinder closed car ever offered the American public at a price under $2,000. Another unique feature of this car which makes a strong appeal to experienced buyers is the fact that Gardner has eliminated the usual price difference between open and closed models. The new Gardner eight-in-line brougham, a 5-passenger closed car, is priced exactly the same as the open models.

All Gardner eight-in-line models are built on the standard 125-inch wheelbase chassis, and are finished in rich two-tone duco color combinations, 30x5.77 balloon tires, enclosed 4-wheel brakes, five disteel wheels, and snubbers front and rear are standard equipment.

GARDNER PERFORMANCE AND DURABILITY HAVE NEVER BEEN QUESTIONED

EDUCATION IS NECESSARY TO AVOID WRECKS

Safety Organization Doing Much To Cut Down Accidents

Education and training in safety practices until they become second nature to every individual are the main factors which will cut the number of traffic mishaps down to the minimum that properly can be headed "unavoidable accidents." That is the goal toward which safety organizations and public officials are working and which will, in time, be within reach.

Instinctive habits frequently require generations to fully acquire. Since the beginning of time millions of lives were ended before their alloted span while the slow process of evolution was teaching the human race to avoid the various pitfalls to be encountered. Even in this age millions are dying due to the lack of a more general acquirement of instinctive habits of hygiene.

With these facts in mind, it also should be remembered that the considerable use of the automobile dates back less than a score of years, and that safety education had its inception not more than a decade ago. Also that today there are more than 18,000,000 licensed automobiles in this country—or one for every six persons.

Four Causes.

Being an automobile manufacturer it is not my place to praise the mechanical achievements registered by automotive engineers. Suffice it to say that the records show that but few accidents today are caused by any inherent defects in the cars themselves. Even so, manufacturers are always trying to make their product more safe and fool proof.

Consideration of the driver and the pedestrian brings forward the human equassion of carelessness and the tendency to do the wrong thing at the wrong time. It is this vital characteristic of the human race that can be overcome by instinctive habits inculcated through years of training, education and experience.

Drivers do not have to travel at the rate of 10 miles an hour to be careful. Safe speed is determined by conditions. Good drivers keep constant watch on conditions ahead of them. They do not speed into a congestion and then slap on their brakes. When a bad turn or corner or an obstruction is sighted, they slow down so as to be ready for any emergency.

Sense Necessary.

Common sense, courtesy and knowledge of signals and road rules are essentials for the safe driver. If he is courteous to other drivers and to pedestrians; uses common sense in the manipulation of his car; watches for and gives proper signals and obeys road rules, his picture may never feature the tragedy story on page one of the newspapers, but he is likely to live to a ripe old age. Also, it is more profitable to buy gas then to pay fines.

Practically the same attributes are required of the pedestrian. In fact, today the majority of pedestrians are only automobile drivers on foot. No one wishes to see our country a land of "verboten"—filled with "forbidden" signs as pre-war Germany—but the welfare of the masses demands that all regulate their actions for the common good. For that reason the pedestrian, as well as the driver, should know, recognize and abide by the rules of the road.

Education starts in the cradle and ends at the grave, and that portion of it having to do with safety is no exception. Public schools are co-operating with the safety movement and thereby accomplishing much good. It would not be amiss, however, if a thorough training in traffic and road rules were given each school pupil.

Police Are Helping.

Police and safety organizations throughout the country are doing yeomen's service in spreading safety education. Traffic regulation in cities has become so well organized and conducted that accidents at congested points are rarities. Under the watchful eye of authority drivers and pedestrians maintain their "company manners" and safety results. Those interested in traffic prevention are working to make these "company manners" the permanent habits of all. Then will the toll of the road become negligible.

Dodge Bros. Re-elect Their 1924 Officials

Frederick J. Haynes, president and general manager, and all other executive officers and members of the directorate of Dodge Brothers were re-elected February 17 at the annual meeting of the board.

Other officers are: Vice president, Arthur T. Waterfall; treasurer, John Ballantyne; secretary and assistant treasurer, Harry V. Popeney; assistant secretary, R. J. Fry.

The following continue as members of the board of directors: Mr. Haynes, Mr. Waterfall, Mr. Ballantyne, Mr. Popeney, and Russel Huff. Mr. Huff is director of engineering.

Records of the annual meeting confirmed previous reports that 1924 was by far the most successful year in Dodge Brothers history, Dodge Brothers were second among N. A. C. C. members and third in the industry as a whole, both in the number of units produced and in money volume.

The year closed with a total production of 225,633 motor vehicles having a total value of nearly $200,000,000. These official figures vary only slightly from the estimates announced during the New York automobile show early in January.

Dodge Brothers showed a 25.4 per cent gain in sales during 1924 in the face of a general decline of 9.4 per cent in the industry. It is also a noteworthy fact that Dodge Brothers were the only one of the four leading motor car manufacturers in the world who showed an increase over 1923.

Indicative of the present trend toward an even greater year in 1925 is the showing for January, during which month production and sales were considerably in excess of the same month for 1924.

Sisyphus kept rolling the stone up hill. "This reminds me of convicting bootleggers," he said.

Oakland Motors Announce Their New Five Door Special Sedan Featuring Four Wheel Brakes

In line with the steadily growing trend of the automotive industry toward lower priced closed cars, the Oakland Motor Car company this week announced its latest achievement—the new four door, five passenger special sedan. This new model is one of the lowest priced sedans in its field, selling at $1,375 f.o.b. factory.

It has a Fisher body with one-piece "VV" windshield and automatic windshield cleaner and is finished in sagebrush green duco on body, hood and wheels, with orange striping; fenders and running gear are in black.

The interior of the car is roomy and luxuriously comfortable, with all the accessories and refinements that come to be associated with Fisher closed body craftsmanship. Rear view mirror, foot rest, robe rail, heater, invisible door checks, lock on right hand door, dome light and permanent visor are standard equipment.

The car has in addition, the many distinctive features of the Oakland line, such as four wheel brakes, balloon tires, driving controls on steering wheel, full automatic spark control and indirectly lighted unit instrument panel.

Wheels are of the artillery type, with 30x4.95 balloon cords. The interior is upholstered in selected fabric of superior quality.

Marmon Co. Retains Pierce as Engineer

W. E. Pierce, president of the Hume Body corporation of Boston, Mass., and one of the foremost designers of automobile bodies in the United States has been retained as chief body engineer and designer of the Nordyke and Marmon company and will be located permanently at the offices of the Nordyke and Marmon company in Indianapolis, according to an announcement by Col. Howard Marmon, vice president in charge of engineering.

Mr. Pierce designed the bodies of the eleven new models announced in November. The beauty of the new models is their dominant note, and they were highly praised as probably the most beautiful of the many new models on display at the recent national automobile shows. In his new capacity, Mr. Pierce will have active charge of body design for the Marmon company.

Mr. Pierce joined the Hume Body corporation in 1908 and was elected to the presidency of the firm, one of the most widely known of custom-built body makers, in 1923. Prior to his connection with the Hume Body corporation, he was an engineer with the Scranton Electric Light company. He was graduated from Cornell university in 1905.

BIG RACE WON BY STUDEBAKER

American Made Car Is Victor In Argentine Contest

BUENOS AIRES, March 4.—An Angel won the year's premier South American automobile road race of 1,509 kilometers (805.4 miles) here last month, lowering all previous records for the course, which runs through sand, muck and mud, as well as over hills and rocky roads. The Angel was Angely Louis Marelli who, bearing the hoodoo number of 13 on his Studebaker Special Six, led a field of twenty-four starters from the finish to the end of the course, which broke down all but nine entrants. The route was from Buenos Aires to Cordoba and return.

His time was 21 hours, 27 minutes. The best previous record was 24 hours, 45 minutes, set by a Studebaker last year when Mariano le la Fuente won.

Paris Giannini, also in a Studebaker Special Six, was second and Zanardi, driving an Italian car, an Alfa Romeo, was third.

Twenty of the twenty-four cars entered were manufactured in the United States, including four Hudsons, two Essex, three Stutz, a Packard, Lincoln, Chrysler, Reo, Gardner Haynes and Flint.

Studebaker Wins Four Years.

This is the fourth consecutive year the Gran Premio of the Argentine Automobile club, as it is called, has been won by a Studebaker, each year with a different driver.

The race attracted attention first in 1922, when drivers from all over South America entered, the course then being 750 kilometers. It was won by Antonio Ovides in a Studebaker Special Six. In 1923, William T. Burke, in the same kind of a car, led the field from the start.

Oakland Appoints Covell as Manager

C. W. Matheson, vice president and director of sales of the Oakland Motor Car company announces the appointment of L. C. Covell as eastern division supervisor of districts.

Mr. Covell has been district manager and sales executive in the Dodge Brothers organization for the last five and one-half years.

For five years he was Detroit district manager for Dodge Brothers and was but recently recalled to the home office to join the executive staff of the sales department as manager of the commercial car division. Previous to association with Dodge Brothers he conducted his own business in Grand Rapids. During the world war he served as a brigarier general in the thirty-second division.

His territory will include the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, the northern half of Virginia and the eastern half of West Virginia.

Atkinson Will Talk on Mexican Fetters

Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church, whose travel lectures have proven enjoyable to his congregation, is giving Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, an illustrated sermon called "Mexico Breaks the Fetters."

Stereoptican slides in color will show conditions of life and customs in Mexico and will illustrate the "fetters" of disease, disorder, illiteracy and immorality which will be indicated as the downward forces in control of the country.

A feature of the evening service will be an illustrated song, "Master Let Me Walk With Thee," using scenes taken from some of the world's greatest masterpieces and religious paintings.

The lecture service, introduced by Rev. Atkinson, has won favor with the congregation of the First Christian church, the last sermon on China having proven of value in teaching foreign mission work to both the adults and children of the audience in a forceful manner.

A cordial invitation is extended by Rev. Atkinson and his congregation to the general public to attend the lecture sermon.

Movie crowds teach us that Americans are on the side of anybody who is coming to the rescue.

Performance

Coast to Coast, New York to Los Angeles—3106.5 miles in 71 hours 33 minutes—actual driving time—in a stock model Rickenbacker Six.

That's performance!

That's performance!

One man—Cannon Ball Baker—drove all the way.

That's performance!

Hours faster than the three fastest trans-continental railway trains.

That's performance!

Breaking, one after another, all inter-city road records as he sped across—

That's performance!

Did it, not in balmy summer weather, but in mid-winter when roads are worst;—

That's performance!

At one stage—through Kansas and Missouri—deep, half-frozen ruts in gumbo, (made mostly by smaller cars with smaller tires, while the Rickenbacker was equipped with big 32 x 5.77 balloons) made low and second gear work necessary for 75 miles!

Mile after mile, at 45 miles per hour in "second" with motor turning 4,000 revolutions per minute.

That's performance!

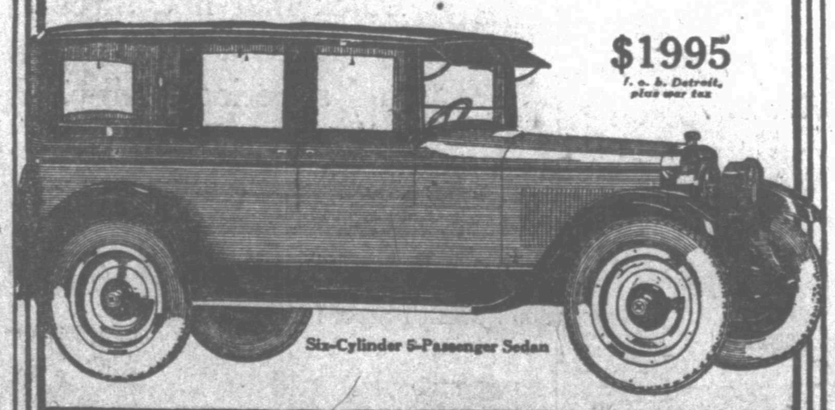

These things indicate a car of marvelous stamina; a motor of wonderful endurance and power; riding qualities superb—else no human being could have endured the ordeal—and finally lubricating and cooling systems that are perfection.

That's performance — all around sustained performance!

Drive this Rickenbacker Six yourself—it will be a revelation to you.

As Utterly Different In Results Now As a Year Ago

To the best of our knowledge there had never been a 3-inch motor capable of producing 68 horsepower, a speed of 70 miles an hour, with gasoline economy safely over 20 miles to the gallon, until the Chrysler Six arrived on the market last year. There is no other today.

That is what scientific engineering in the way of perfected gas distribution, special combustion chambers and heat distribution does for the Chrysler Six.

There has never before been a motor in which all sense of vibration has been so completely eliminated, never before a car in which side-sway and road-weaving are absent, never before a car with an overall length of 160 inches that afforded so much usable space—generously roomy for five large adults.

Examples might be cited by the score. But you can see for yourself how utterly different the Chrysler Six is and why the eager public bought more than 32,000 Chrysler cars the first year, if you drive the car but a few minutes. We are anxious to give you a Chrysler ride, to prove it the best-built car you ever sat in.

ALL MATERIALS USED IN BUICK FINELY TESTED

Four Laboratories Are Used In Minute Examinations

A tremendous amount of interest attaches to the scientific side of motor car designing and building, and nowhere is this interest more keenly impressive than in the chemical and physical laboratories. At the factories of the large, well established companies, every substance that is used in the manufacture of cars, from the coal used in the furnace to the steel in nuts and bolts, must run the gauntlet of a most formidable array of scientific testing devices.

There are great mechanical giants that twist the drop forged axles into shapeless masses. There are furnaces that turn the carbon in steel into gases. There are scales so delicate they can weigh the carbon in those gases. There are moving piture machines that photograph the strength and the regularity of the current used by the ignition apparatus in action. There are microscopes, stills and mysterious trappings of the chemist's lore, and the air is filled with pungent fumes and odors.

Four Departments.

This work is divided into four departments—the chemical, laboratory the physical laboratory, the metallurgical laboratory and the electrical laboratory. Both testing and research work is carried on through the year, to check up the material before it goes to the manufacturing departments and to assist the engineers in determining the best materials to use in parts for future models.

Nothing could be more thoroughly practical than the work of these analytical eperts. They provide an absolute check on every lot of material purchased, and safeguard the interests of every purchaser of a car.

In the chemical laboratory is a staff of graduate chemists whose duty it is to analyze every material that will respond accurately to chemical analysis.

In the physical laboratory the character of the work differs, but the results obtained are just as vital. Finished parts of every description are brought here and tested until a "failure" or breakage, occurs. The object of these tests is not to establish the fact that parts can be broken, but rather to determine exactly how much force or vibration is required to break them. The tests exactly duplicate the stresses to which the parts are subjected in actual service and are then continued on to a point where the metal is no longer able to stand the terrific force applied.

Contains Heat Ovens.

The metallurgical laboratory contains a battery of complete, modern heat treating ovens, with electric pyrometers for accurately measuring the temperature in hardening and annealing steels. Metals are also examined under microscopes that will magnify from 10 to 2040 diameters. Before being placed under the microscope, the metal is given seven different polishing operations, beginning with emery wheels and finishing up with jewelers' rouge. After the polishing operations the surface is etched with acids and the structure of the metal examined under the microscope.

Metallurgy has contributed a great deal towards making the automobile possible. And the automobile industry has contributed vastly to the science of metallurgy in the development of special and alloy steels and metals.

Electrically Tested.

The electrical laboratory contains electrical testing apparatus of every description. Perhaps the most interesting of these is the oscillograph, which is a complicated moving picture machine for making photographs of the strength and regularity of the current used in ignition. The finished pictures show two parallel strips, one with a record of the primary current (from the battery to the coil) and the other with a record of the secondary current (after the voltage has been increased by the coil and is transmitted to the spark pluga.) These photographs show with the greatest accuracy any irregularity in either the primary or secondary current, and are made at intervals during the testing of the apparatus until it has the equivalent of 25,000 miles on a car. The photographs are also made at several different motor speeds, as a defective apparatus may show good results at one speed and fail entirely at others. In short, the motto of these four Buick testing laboratories is "Show Us." There is not a branch of automobile manufacture which they do not investigate and measure its efficiency with scientific accuracy. They have an exact way of testing everything that is bought and used around the plant, whether it enters directly into the cars or not. They see that the Buick Motor company gets coal that delivers the greatest amount of heat for the prices paid and that the right material is used in the right place in every department.

They keep in touch with the manufacturing departments proper by their field men, with headquarters in the testing departments, who follow the work in the factory and see that all operations are conducted as specified. They help co-ordinate the efforts of the engineering department and the manufacturing departments and insure a degree of economy and efficiency in Buick cars that could be obtained in no other way.

Alamo Ivy Vines Planted at School

Ivy vines taken from the wall of the Alamo at San Antonio were planted by Ben Donnell, first grader, and Homer Donahoe, sixth grader, at the Alamo school Friday afternoon before the assembled school in observance of "Alamo day," according to J. C. Park, principal.

S. A. L. Morgan, speaker of the day, delivered an address suitable to the occasion, as the main feature of the program which began at 9 o'clock in the morning.

As the American flag and the Texas flag were raised on the flagpole, students sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Bonnie Blue Flag." Miss Kate Haines then explained the significance of Alamo day.

Mrs. T. C. Brownell sang "The Flag Song of Texas" and Miss Catherine Michaelias read "The Fall of the Alamo." The program closed with the song, "America," by the assembly.

Grand High Priest to Install Chapter

The grand high priest of the grand chapter of Texas, Frank Holt of Waco, will be in Wichita Falls Wednesday to institute Squire Walkup, Royal Arch chapter No. 427. This is a new chapter having been granted a charter by the grand chapter last December. Masonry is growing so rapidly in this territory, particularly the chapter, that it was found necessary to have a new one.

The institutional ceremony will take place in Faith lodge room at 8 p. m., and the following are the officers of the new chapter: James R. Bachman, high priest; Otto Stehlik, king; J. B. Price, scribe.

This chapter recently purchased as complete a Royal Arch chapter outfit as can be found anywhere in this section of the rountry. Invitations have been sent out to all Royal Arch chapters in this immediate territory to be present on Wednesday night. This includes Seymour, Burkburnett, Vernon, Bowie, Petrolia, Henrietta, Archer City, Electra and several others.

'CAR BUSINESS IS GOOD,' SAYS RICKENBACKER

Factory Will Only Care For Actual Orders During Spring

"Business is good—in fact, business in wonderful right now," says Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales, Rickenbacker Motor company.

"We are enjoying the greatest demand we have ever known," said Rickenbacker, "and better still, we are getting the cars out almost fast enough to take care of our dealers.

"At the moment, we are unable to quite keep up with orders although our pay roll shows nearly 50 per cent more men than at any previous time in our history.

"Cannon Ball Baker's great drive from New York to Los Angeles has served to stimulate demand tremendously because it indicated that we are making a mighty fine automobile.

"Even before that, however, the dealers' specifications indicated that this is going to be our banner year.

"Just how great is the over-demand, it is impossible to estimate because experience teaches us that a 5 per cent over-demand looks, at the minute, like a 500 per cent one.

Care For Demand.

"Like most of the makers who have been through the fire, we, this year, have adopted a policy of ultra-conservatism and are basing our production schedule on the absolute visible demand, and not one car more.

There has been a lot of criticism of manufacturers by dealers' organizations, based on the theory that manufacturers in the past have forced cars on the dealers.

"As a matter of fact, the manufacturers' chief mistake was in taking the dealer's word for the number of cars he needed to supply his local demand.

"At the beginning of every season, each dealer estimates his possible sales at about twice what they will actually be.

"This year we are listening to him—and then discounting his figures in the light of past experience and according to what we know to be the absorbing capacity of his territory.

"In order to keep a closer check on the dealer, we are insisting on a weekly report.

"Most manufacturers now ask for a report at the end of each ten-day period. But we are trying to get even closer than that and so we insist on a report every Monday morning.

"This tells us not only how many orders each dealer has on hand for immediate or future delivery, but how many used cars he is carrying, and the value of each.

"Knowing his capital, we can tell pretty accurately how close he is getting to the cushion.

Regardless of what he may say, or request, if we find he is overstocked with used cars, or new ones for that matter, we decline to ship him any more until he has reduced his stock.

"Of course, some dealers complain about this attitude because they insist that when April and May come along they will be unable to fill orders unless they have a stock of Rickenbackers on hand.

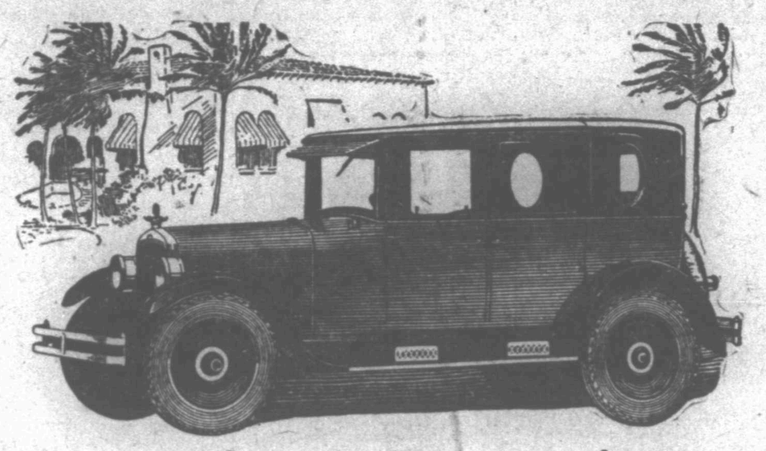

"However, we would rather fall a few cars short of the demand in the very busy months, than to have dealers overstocked when trade begins to slacken.

Shelves Are Empty.

"Our last weekly report showed that the dealers' shelves are practically empty and without exception they are crying for cars.

"Under these circumstances we feel we are justified in running our factory full force and for the next sixty or ninety days we will probably have to put on an over-time shift to keep anywhere near the demand."

CADILLAC LINES GROW POPULAR

Quality Of 1925 Car Attracts Attention At Paris

The quality and distinctive features in the Cadillac custom-built bodies which made them the center of attraction both for European motorists and body builders at an advance showing at the recent Paris automobile salon are also acting as a magnet in the company's 1925 exhibition of these cars, which are being offered in a wide range of individual options in models, body finish and interior appointments.

The line has been created for those who desire the individuality and that last degree of refined elegance which has usually been associated only with costly foreign coach work or the products of individual custom body builders. For them, the Cadillac people, in cooperation with Fisher custom coach builders, have developed five general body designs which permit free rein to the expression of individuality and exclusiveness, at the same time eliminating needless expense and depreciation.

In the production of a number of individually built bodies for the same chassis, the Fisher craftsmen have been able to incorporate elements of strength, durability and refinement in the forgings, braces, joints and other hidden parts of the body which can only be produced otherwise at an impractical cost.

Five Styles Offered.

Five beautiful body styles are offered in the custom line. They are the two-passenger coupe, the five-passenger coupe, five-passenger sedan, seven-passenger suburban and seven-passenger Imperial. The last two models are similar excepting that in the Imperial a mirror-finish, bent plate glass partition, which can be raised or lowered at will, separates the rear compartment from the front.

All of the models are built upon the standard V-63 chassis. The only mechanical change made for the accommodation of the custom-built model is in the length of the wheelbase which has been increased six inches giving a wheelbase length of 17 inches. In the two-passenger coupe, however, the 132-inch wheelbase is retained, in common with Cadillac standard line models. The longer wheelbase, together with the completeness of the V-type, eight-cylinder engine, has not only permitted mating the custom-built bodies remarkably roomy, but has also given the an outward appearance of size and dignity that is very pleasing. The resources of the Fisher Body corporation have permitted a richness of finish and appointment which has hitherto been obtainable only by importation of bodies of costly foreign makes or from the shops of exclusive custom body builders.

Many Colors.

An unlimited range of exterior color combinations and choice of interior finish in many colors of highest grade broadcloth and mohair velvet are obtainable. The radiator shells of pure nickel. A hood of new design, nickel-plated center hinge, nickeled headlamps, sidelamps and hub caps also add a degree of eclat to the custom models. A further change in the radiator shell is the addition of two gracefully curved lines which support the Cadillac emblem in slightly higher relief.

Handsome walnut foldings with polished burl walnut plays are features of the interior finish, and the toilet and smoking sets are unusually complete and of the highest quality workmanship and material. The windshield, which is surmounted by a full cone type visor, is of the one-piece, full ventilating type. It is set at an angle of six degrees to avoid reflections at night and by a single operation can be raised or lowered to provide any desired degree of ventilation.

St. Patrik Luncheon Honors House Guests

A four course St. Patrick's luncheon at the Golfand Country club was the courtesy of Friday by Mesdames Mack Thomas and C. B. Felder to Mrs. S. Tsenick of Connecticut, and Mrs. Mamie Forrest of Dallas, who are house guests of Mrs. P. P. Langford and Mrs. Bennie Hyatt Donald at the Lely Langford home on Tilden.

Three Irish harps trailed with green vines and green carnations formed the center of the attractive decorative scheme in the ballroom of the club house. Green candles on the tables were tied with green maline bows, and clusters of flowers in sprays of green tied with maline adorned the luncheon table. Plate favors were clever Irish dolls dressed in green and white, and nut cups and place cards furnished the green tint.

Irish contests amused the guests during the course of the luncheon, at which covers were laid for Mesdames Forrest, Tredeneck, Langford and Donald, Clint Wood, W. S. Turner, Walter Cline, Walter J. Johnson, Martin Rowe, W. K. Niles, W. P. Bolding, H. S. White, Tom Reese, W. A. Frear, J. C. A. Guest, Bert Bean, W. W. Kirk, J. V. Stringer, W. J. Nolan, A. R. Hartsook, C. W. Gilliland, J. O. WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

RECKLESSNESS NOT SPEED THE REAL MENACE

A CERTAIN city recently installed traffic towers for the regulation of motor vehicular and pedestrian traffic and for the safety of both. Merchants along the street where the system was put into effict complained that motorists no lonfer looked at the shop windows but instead watched the signals.

Comment is hardly necessary but it might be added that traffic regulation and control is simply the business o protecting human lives.

* * *

The tendency in America as abroad is to do away with laws limiting the speed of motor vehicles and substituting laws which punish severely for reckless driving. The Committee on Traffic Control of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in its report to Secretary Hoover, urged that reckless driving and other flagrant disregard of the rights of others by any user of the streets or highways should be vigorously and unceasingly prosecuted.

There is a general practice to describe an accident as in an automobile accident if the vehicle colliding with the automobile is lighter in weight than the motor car. Under this system an automobile may be parked with no one in it, a wagon may run into it and the accident will be described an automobile accident. That seems hardly fair especially in these days when so many people seem to be busy calling attention to the extent to which people are killed and injured by motor cars.

And here is another thing. It is only fair to the industry and to the motor owning public that statistics about motor fatalities should explain where the accidents took place. It will be interesting to note to what extent accidents take place in the crowded cities. The truth is that in most places in the United States the operation of motor cars is notably free from many serious accidents.

The automotive industry has a right to ask for fairness in the discussion of automobile accidents.

Duesenberg Car Co. Reorganizes Old Corporation

The final steps in the re-organization of the Duesenberg company were taken today when the assets and property of the old company were bought by the Stockholders' Protective committee and the Creditors' committee and the property was turned over to the newly organized Duesenberg Motors company for $375,000.00. The financial status of the new Deusenberg company is regarded as most favorable as approximately a million in assets is available after all indebtedness of $327,000 has been paid.

This action terminates the receivership under which this company has been successfully operating since January 3, 1924. The lifting of this receivership was made possible by the concerted action of both stockholders and creditors because of their confidence in the future of a car that was the pioneer in two of the most important developments in automotive engineering—the straight-eight motor and the four wheel brakes.

Elect Officers.

Fred S. Duesenburg is president of the new corporation; James H. Dunn of Uniontown, Pa., is vice president; Edward Wildman, secretary, and Harry B. Mahan, treasurer. The directors of the corporation are Fred S. Duesenburg, August Duesenburg, Harry B. Mahan, William S. Iliff of Denver, Colo., Robert P. Jones of Cincinnati, Ohio, Baarent Ten-Broek of St. Louis, Mo., and James H. Dunn.

According to Mr. Fred Duesenburg, who has been personally responsible for much of the activity which culminated in the lifting of the receivership of the former Duesenburg Automobile and Motors company and the formation of the new organization, plans are now under way to increase the production of the plant and in a short time the output of the factory will be doubled over previous records. The number of cars now in process of production will assure a generous output in a short time.

"They were all agreed," said Fred S. Duesenburg, head of the new company, "that a car of such unquestioned merit should not be permitted to go by the wayside. Past sales have proven that there is a wide market for just this sort of a high-grade car, and with a company properly managed and financed to operate efficiently, producing Duesenburg cars in the quantity in which they can be absorbed, they feel sure of success.

Will Spread Sales Centers.

"At present we have active representation in a number of the principal cities, including Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and other points. We are now entertaining propositions for distributorships in other large centers.

Prices will not be changed. Our chassis will continue to sell for $5,250, f. o. b. factory, while our models range in price from $6,250 to $7,800, there being some six different types in the line."

TEMSKATAWA MEETS

The Temskatawa Camp Fire group met, Friday, March 6, at the home of Miss Nadine Loufborrow, 2105 Eighth street, in a business session, when the following officers were elected: Miss Beulah Nell Ray, treasurer; Miss Evelyn Harris, scribe; and Miss Mildred Robertson, chairman of the phone committee. Mrs. S. H. Walton is guardian for the group.

Plans were made for celebration of Camp Fire birthday week by a mothers' reception to be held March 13 at four o'clock at the home of Miss Mildred Robertson, 2215 Eighth street.

Refreshments of ice cream and angel food cake were served to the following: Misses Beulah Nell Ray, Mary Mae Goodner, Burton Wilson, Virginia Wilson, Mildred Robertson, Madine Loofborrow, Evelyn Harris and Mrs. S. H. Walton.

"Am I Intruding?" Once More Monday

"Am I Intruding," three act comedy presented by the Junior college students Friday evening under the direction of Miss Juanita Kinsey, will be repeated Monday evening on the Junior college stage by popular demand. Tickets will be on sale at the college and at McConnell Brothers.

The play, which showed to a packed audience Friday evening swept the house with gales of laughter, and in response to many requests, will be given again Monday night, according to Miss Kinsey. The production, according to local amateur dramtic workers, is one of the finest recently produced here, from the standpoint of cleverness in putting over lines and characters, and the beauty of costuming and setting.

Eddie Kadane starred in the leading comedy role of a country "hick", with clever dialect and a laugh that drew applause. Conan Cantwell was a close rival for honors in the role of the school boy's sweetheart. Miss Thelma Cain as the French maid gained many laughs with her clever lines, and Miss Vaughn Buchanan was fine in the role of the housekeeper.

You Cannot Get Equal Style Performance and Reliability Within Hundreds of Dollars of Its Price

A Car You Will Be Proud to Own

It is the finest Essex ever built. It is the smoothest, most reliable Essex ever built. It is the best looking, most comfortably riding Essex ever built. And the price, because of volume, is the lowest at which Essex ever sold.

Surely you cannot be satisfied with less than Essex offers when its cost is but little more than cars of the lowest price.

These Savings Have Developed Texas

—The wonderful development of Texas in the last fifteen years has been due to two big factors mainly—the energy of its people and the application of capital to develop its resources.

—Whatever has saved the time and energy of the people has permitted more time to be used in upbuilding the strength of the commonwealth, and whatever has saved money for the people of Texas has aided in the accumulation of the capital necessary to the growth of the community.

—May we say that natural gas has had a not inconsiderable part in this? It has saved many hours of valuable time and contributed greatly to comfort and hence conserved the energy of the people.

—On the other side it has made the cost of fuel so low in this part of Texas that many millions of dollars have been saved for other investments—for the building up of the state. Natural gas, rightfully used, need cost little more than half the price of coal for domestic consumption. For every dollar you have spent for natural gas, you have saved another dollar, when you figure in all the costs.

1924 Committee Makes Public All Prison Findings

Investigators Believe That Prisons Must Be Centralized

AUSTIN, March 7.—For the past twelve years committees of the Texas legislators have diagnosed the state prison system.

Their repeated findings may be summed up in the injunction to "uproot the entire system and centralize it near the heart of the state."

During 1924 a distinguished group of private citizens in Texas at no expense to the state conducted the Texas prison survey. Leading experts from over the United States working with leaders of our own, for months, studied conditions on the disconnected chain of fourteen prison farms where we impound our prison population of about 3,500 men and women.

This group of experts found conditions of almost unbelievable backwardness in our treatment of the criminal, conditions that have been flaringly placed before the people of Texas again only within the past month by the report of the legislative penitentiary investigation committee of the house and senate.

Must Centralize.

And the most important recommendation of the Texas prison survey, as well as of the majority of legislative committees, is that "the prison system must be relocated in one central colony in the central part of the state, and the present chain of prison farms abandoned."

To the consternation of the women of Texas, though, who have their own legislative guardians at the state capitol, this vital recommendation of re-locating is now in imminent danger of being lost. The original resolution for the prison survey was sponsored by these organizations as part of their legislative program two years ago. For this reason the representatives of the six statewide organizations of women at Austin are seriously alarmed in the emergency.

The fight is localized in the legislature itself, however, over two bills purporting to carry out recommendations for the modernizing of the prison system.

First is the Teer-Chitwood-Irwin bill which recognizes that the Texas prison system must be rooted from its present environment and relocated nearer the center of population and of the geography of the state. This bill provides a centralized penal colony on about 10,000 acres, to be situated within 75 miles of Austin. In every respect it follows closely the prescription of experts both inside and out of the legislature. This bill also provides $100,000 appropriation to be used together with all moneys received from the sale of the penitentiary property for the carrying out of the complete relocation.

Substitute Proposal.

Striking at the very vitals of this bill, a substitute measure has been prepared but not yet presented, by Representatives A. H. King and J. W. Stevenson, which promises to have the backing of powerful forces. This substitute denies the all important detail of relocation, and instead would concentrate the farms system on 55,019 acres of land now owned near the Gulf of Mexico in Fort Bend and Brazoria counties.

With all respect to the good intentions of its authors, this substitute bill is a snare and a delusion.

Rather than see it become a law, Texas had better leave the system as it now is, for the King-Stevenson measure is an ill-advised compromise, as I shall attempt to show.

While this substitute is couched in similar terms to the Teer-Chitwood-Irwin bill, and like it provides for complete modernization of the prison system, its very similarity cloaks its most important shortcoming, which is the failure to remove the system to new surroundings.

In other words, Messrs. King and Stevenson suggest the sale of the four farms around Huntsville and the one farm on the Red river but they propose to retain the majority of acreage now owned near Houston and on that group centralize the system.

This substitute would retain the 55,019 acres of the nine farms, or more than half the acreage now in the entire system; of the above acreage 36,468 acres are under cultivation. Of this cultivated acreage nearly three-fourths, or 25,367 acres, are subject to overflow from the Brazos river and other streams.

The Wynne, Goree, Eastham, Ferguson and Shaw farms north of Houston would be sold by this substitute, it is true, yet both in acreage and value, these five farms could be wiped off the books and yet the hydra headed monster of the present prison system would remain intact.

Value Is $841,535.

Book valuation of the entire prison system vary between one and one-half to seven million dollars. The book value of these five farms north of Houston is only a total of $841,535, or less than one-fifth of the system's total.

At the present time less than one-third of the prison population is confined on these five farms.

Now let us look again at the string of nine farms extending seventy five miles south of Houston to the gulf. There, two-thirds of the present prison population are already placed.

The farms are heavy, bottom lands in the main, so disjointed in relation to each that proper medical supervision at the present time is impossible. Through the heavy waxy land, doctors can reach the men in bad weather only under the most tedious and difficult conditions, while communication between the farms is equally slow.

These lands south of Houston are likewise poorly adapted to the raising of food stuffs and are at present large scale cotton and sugar cane plantations. The recurring overflows are so disastrous that agriculture experts assert that the gains of good years never make up for the seven years average of loss.

If there is any compelling reason why the state of Texas should be forced to grow cotton and add to the state's crop of sugar cane, then there might be some excuse for continuing the present system in a slightly modified form such as Messrs. King and Stevenson propose, but we see none.

This cotton is sold in the open market in competition to that grown by the farmers of Texas, while it is highly doubtful if the cane production has ever been profitable, to the state at least.

More Than Needed.

[illegible] acres of land below Houston [illegible] therefore more than is needed by more than three times, while even if only ten thousand of these acres were retained, they would not meet the requirement of raising food stuff for the inmates of all state institutions.

Take the state out of the business as one of the biggest cotton and cane farmers, as with virtual slave labor we are competing against the free farmers of Texas. The King-Stevenson measure will not do this. The Teer-Chitwood-Irwin bill will.

But there are other reasons why the prison system should be moved from all lands now owned, rather than centralized below Houston.

The prison system of Texas needs a fresh start amidst newer and different surroundings. Like a potted plant, it requires fresh earth around its roots, after living for decades in one environment. A natural result has been that both the plant and its immediate sustenance have suffered.

I will leave it to others to say harsh things about the communities around these prison farms. I do not blame them for the "battering" which has been charged to their account at the expense of the system. If such were true, that would be a natural result of the loose and antiquated way which the state has allowed the system to be conducted. But it is evident that a remodeled system should be lifted out of its present humus and given every opportunity to survive vigorously in the best of conditions.

The opponents of re-location charge that such a plan involves expenditures which are prohibitive. "Where will the money for a new million dollar system come from?" they ask.

Will Not Raise Money.

I only want to say that the proposal of the substitute bill to sell five farms will not raise the money for the needed concentration near Houston. The original purchase price of these five farms was only $576,000 while the inventory value, as stated before, falls far short of $1,000,000 today.

The heavy investment of the system lies in the farms which Messrs. King and Stevenson want retained. What they would sell does not equal in value the Texas state railroad. This railroad property, through the efforts of some of the best business men in Texas has been brought up to a fine sale value and from that source alone more than $1,000,000 ought to be raised for a centralized prison system.

This suggestion about the state railroad sale is made to show that the financial burden of making a start toward a new prison system could be met without calling for one cent out of the state treasury if monetary considerations are alone to prevail.

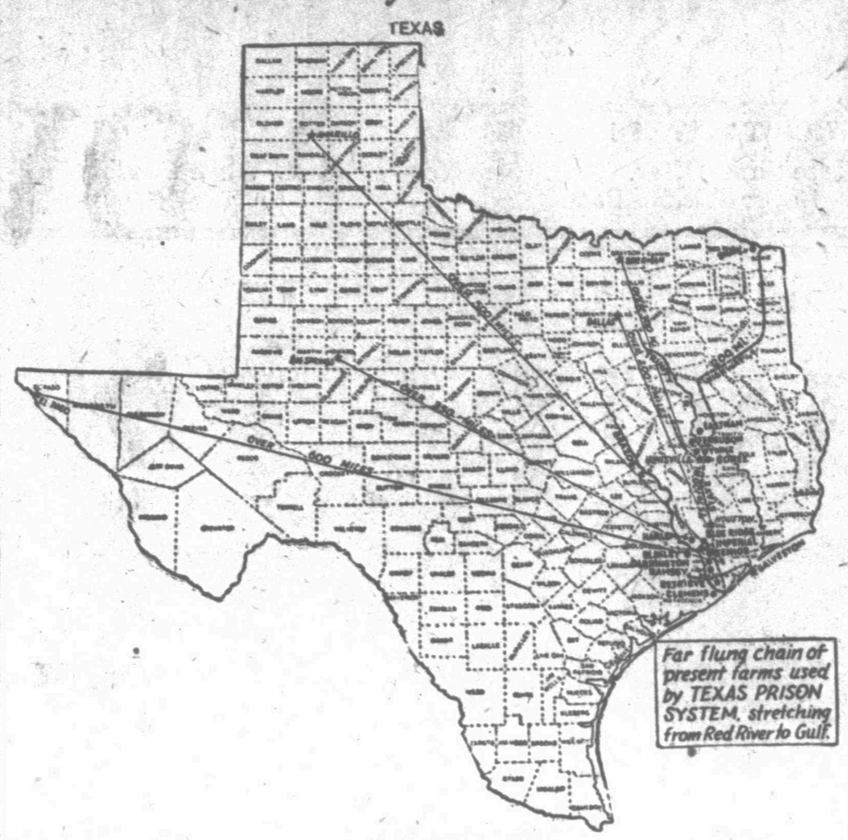

Another Reason.

There is another cogent reason for not centralizing the prison system below Houston, however. I refer to the fact that these nine farms are "off center" and thereby impose a big financial burden in the transportation of prisoners to and from these parts of the state that are north and west.

To sum up, then, the Texas committee on prisons and prison labor, backed by the various organized groups of women over Texas, believes that the claims of humanity and public decency demand that the prison system shall be re-located near the center of Texas. To this end we endorse the Teer-Chitwood - Irwin bill styled "house bill No. 303."

Members of the prison survey committee have not been negligent of the financial consideration in such a move, but believe, after careful analysis of such claims, that concentration on farms below Houston would in the long run be more economical than the present system.

Texas And Prison System Present Problem

The relative position of the present chain of 14 state prison farms in Texas is graphically shown in the above map. The present legislature now faces the issuewhether to lop off only portions of this 400 mile chain and concentrate on farm lands in the exertme southeastern portion of the state, or to abandon the whole system and build a modern penal colony nearer to the geographical center of the state. The Teer-Chitwood-Irwin bill provides this latter alternative which is sponsored by the Texas prison survey committee and the six statewide organizations of women represented in the joint legislative council at Austin.

The substitute proposal prepared by Representatives King and Stevenson, which is opposed by these organizations, would retain all farms below Houston and concentrate the system there.

Tagging Human Beings Instead of Dogs ..... By Montague Glass

"I see where Commissioner Enright of the New York Poilce Department has decided that there is now enough crimes in New York to constitute a crime wave and that something really and truly desperate must got to be done about it," Abe Potash remarked the other day, "so he is now getting up a card index system."

"I've had experience with them card index systems myself, Abe, particularly in regards to credit information about customers," Morris Perlmutter said, "and I have now come to the conclusion that if a customer is going to bust up on you, he will bust up on you, no matter if you've got him entered on a card or not."

"So therefore, Abe," Morris continued, "if Commissioner Enright thinks that putting criminals in a card index is going to be anything like a substitute for putting them in jail, y'understand, he should ought to consider that probably the last injury which a policeman ever got a gold medal for, because of sustaining it in the line of duty, is writers' cramp."

"But the idea is not to index criminals only, Mawruss," Abe said. "The system is to index the whole population, and everybody will be entered on a card in duplicate with his picture, the same like he would be a commuter or wanted for murder, and at all times, a citizen has got to carry this card in his pocket and show it to a policeman when he is asked. Commissioner Enright got the idea, while he was on winter vacation in Argentina."

"Well, all I could say is, that Commissioner Enright should ought to be very careful where he spends his vacations," Morris observed, "which a feller who picks up crazy notions so easy as all that, Abe, is liable to go to Russia for a few weeks next summer and come home by way of Italy, and the first thing you know, Abe, he will be reorganizing the New York Police Department on the lines of the Moscow Tcheka and the Rome Fascisti, so that at any time of the day or night, a New York citizen will find himself deported to the interior for appearing as a suspicious character."

"It would be just your luck that you would be picked up at the scene of a crime, with your identification card in the pocket of your other suit at the dry cleaners," Morris commented.

Steal the Victim's Card.

"At that, Mawruss, the idea of every citizen carrying an identification card ain't such a bad one," Abe said. "There is lots of decent, respectable people which has got a suspicious, hang-dog look on account of long-standing trouble with their wives, their partners or even their stomachs, and how is a policeman to know that they ain't criminals unless they could produce an identification card? It's for their own protection as well as the police's."

"It wouldn't be for your protection, anyhow," Morris commented, "because with a memory like yours, Abe, it would be just your luck that you would be picked up at the scene of a crime, with your identification card in the pocket of your other suit at the dry cleaners or somewheres. Furthermore, Abe, if the New York policeman are going to be kept busy arresting respectable citizens for leaving their identification cards at home, as well as for leaving their automobiles near fire hydrants and in no-parking spaces, y'understand, a hold-up man would have a very easy time of it. All he should have to do after knocking his victim senseless, would be to steal the poor feller's identification card, and if the police should happen to arrive before he could make his get-away, he could have the victim arrested under section 1 of the New York Identification Card Law."

"But how about the highwayman's own identification card?" Abe asked.

"Say!" Morris exclaimed. "One of the first things a crook would put into his pocket, in addition to his revolver, blackjack and brass knuckles, y'understand, would be his identification card. Maybe Commissioner Enright don't know it, because he never actually lived in a country which wasn't free like the United States, y'understand, but in countries where people have got to carry identification cards, passports and permits, understand me, it's only the honest men whose papers ain't in order. A crook has always got his correct papers with him, and he even has them pinned to his nightshirt if he sleeps in one."

Dogs or Citizens?

"Furthermore, Abe, in them countries where they use identity cards for citizens, they charge each citizen two dollars for them, and when it comes right down to it, y'understand, it ain't so much a matter of the citizen's identity as his two dollars," Morris continued, "and if Commissioner Enright would have gone into the matter deeper, he would have found out that in other respects, besides charging two dollars for an annual license tag, them countries treat their citizens the same way that dogs are treated in the United States."

"Sure I know, Abe," Morris agreed, "but a dog bite will ruin a man's pants whether the dog is licensed or not, and if one of your children should get bitten by a dog, understand me, you shouldn't let the fact that the dog is licensed stand in the way of disinfecting the bite with anyhow carbolic acid. Therefore, Abe, if this here plan of Commissioner Enright's goes through, y'understand, and he succeeds in getting every citizen of New York to take out an annual license the same like such a citizen was an airedale terrier or a toy pomeranian, Abe, even then I shouldn't consided it advisable for the chief of the New York police department to take a winter vacation right during the crest of the crime wave. After all, Abe, we will say for example that Commissioner Enright is playing in luck and happens to be home from a vacation soon enough after a big New York murder to pick out the identification cards of the murderer from the six million honest citizens' identification cards. We will even say for the sake of argument that witnesses have even identified the photograph on the card as the photograph of the murderer, and that it's wonderful the way Commissioner Enright picked out the right card. The witnesses might also haves buffled the entire deck of six million identification cards and cut them while Commissioner Enright's back was turned, and yet, Abe, this don't bring Commissioner Enright anywhere's nearer to arresting the murdered than if he had used a regular poker deck, having first taken out the bridge score."

"Well, it anyhow has possibilities as an amusement for policeman while off duty," Abe said, "Commissioner Enright could get together with this here Houle and organize a new game whereby one policeman holding a hand of identification cards consisting of three murderers and two forgers would beat another policeman holding only two pair of highwaymen."

To the tditor:

Last Friday the 6 of March having been the birthday anniversary of the undersigned all the stores in Great Neck except the drug stores closed up at 6 p. m. in the evening. A great many men and women of both sexes when they get to be a certain age, why they cheat in regards to their age and pretend like they are a whole lot younger than they are. Personly I don't care who knows how old I am and was 40 yrs. old Friday but don't feel a day over 60 and have often been taken for a boy 55.

I sometimes say that a person ain't no older than they feel and age is just a matter of what condition are you in and have you took good care of yourself. Like for inst. you take some people and by the time they get to be 40 yrs. old they already been dead 5 to 20 yrs. and others even dies in infancy and never reaches double figures. On the other hand look at me, after 40 yrs. of age and can dress and undress myself and set up to the table and eat and read without no glasses and still enjoy going to the theatre and playing bridge and can get around the golf course as lively as John D. Rockefeller.

Missed the Poison Pie.

A good many friends and admires has asked me to exclaim the secret of my longevity and how did I manage to pass the 40 mark and be so vigorous. Well friends they ain't no secret about it. I have always either eat or drink 3 meals per day being careful to stick to the same kind of food or drink during each meal. I did not begin smoking till I was nearly 10 yrs. old and have often had spells of limiting myself to 50 and 60 cigarettes per day to see if I really could cut down. I have always made it a pt. to go to bed at lease once in 2 or 3 days unless they was something special I wanted to set up for. That is about all they is to my "secret" except that I have always tried to be polite to people like Dempsey and have kept away from police dogs.

However a person never knows how close they are to the Grim Reaper of death and personally I would not be here writing about my 40th birthday only for the thoughtfulness of Ida. I was leaving the house one night for no reason and she called me back and sayd Oh Mr. L. they's a big piece of pumpkin pie on top of the refrigerator. So I said that is fine, thank you very much. Yes, she said, but don't eat it because I have put rat poison all over it.

Well I steered clear of the poison pie and so did the furry little fellows for who it was intended. Even the kiddies kept away from it and the only casuality resulting from a liberal use of rat poison around the premises has been the sad demises of 1 cat.

Speaking about the kiddies who I have nicknamed the 4 horsemens of the metropolis on acct. of them living so close to N. Y. though they ain't got no horse, why one of them come home from school the other day with the news that he was the 3d best student in his class so I and her who I call the little woman was feeling very chesty in regards to same till one of the other horsemens tipped us off that they's only 3 people to the class. That is like last fall when we was so proud of 2 of the horsemens getting on the school football team and come to find out they's only 11 male pupils ouside of the kindergarten.

R. R. Obliges Crossword Fans.

Last winter the main winter sports around Great Neck was sliding down hill and spearing eels through the ice, but this yr., they seems to be more hunting than ever and I have saw dozens of hardy huntsmens passing by the house with gun on shoulder on their way to the wilds surrounding our little community and returning to their homes in the evening worn out but with game bags so heavy that a new born babe couldn't hardily lift them unless they used both hands.

One nimrod of these parts who they say you can reply on his word give out the news the other night that he had shot 2 squirrels in less than 24 hrs. beating the former record of one rabbit for that length of time but the rabbit had evidently been ran over by an automobile a few minutes before the huntsman brought him down.

It looks like laws would half to be past to preserve our game or the next thing you know Great Neckers will be obliged to go elsewhere for their sport. Already some of our nimrods is complaining and those that takes a dog along with them when they hunt has been known to get so desperate by nightfall that they have shot down the dog. The fur is used for motor robes and the bark for chair bottoms.

Officials of the railroad company have noticed that lately the evening express trains home from the city has been pretty near empty whereas the locals has been filled t overflowing. The officials believe that the commuters has found that the express trains don't give them quite enough time to finish the cross word puzzle before they are home and the Mrs. snatches the paper out of their hand.

That is about all the Great Neck news except that the undersigned had a operation on my antrum and was laid up in the hospital pretty near a wk. and nobody seemed to care a naughty 4 letter word.
