Revolting Ohio Convicts Demand Warden's Removal

Fear Violence As Hundreds Defy Officers

Three Thousand Prisoners In State Prison Expected To Break For Liberty Unless Preston Thomas Removed

Refuse To Do Work

Convict Leaders Say Revolt Only "Passive Resistance;" Proposal To Suspend Warden Given To Governor

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—With hundreds of Ohio state penitentiary convicts in open revolt tonight demanding removal of Warden Preston E. Thomas, prison officials faced the task of preventing violence after one of the most tumultuous days in the history of the institution.

Developments as an aftermath of the disaster Monday night, when 100 convicts died in fire and smoke while locked in their cells, were that at times it was feared that 3,000 prisoners would break for liberty.

Refuge to Work
Leaders of the men said, however, they intended only "passive resistance," until Thomas was removed. Resistance included refusal to obey orders or to work.

A proposal to suspend the warden temporarily was placed before Governor Meyer Y. Cooper.

Prisoners testified in Governor Cooper's investigation that Warden Thomas ruled the convicts with cruelty and that the prisoners were wanted to continue resistance until the warden is removed.

The convict witnesses blamed Warden Thomas for the loss of life, saying he failed to order release of the armed men.

Relatives of the prison dead contacted the warden.

Fort Worth Man Disappears Eighteen Months Ago; Sole Hair To Mother's Estate In Cochran County

A Fort Worth man who disappeared from that city 18 months ago is being sought as the sole heir to the estate of his mother at Moron, Cochran county, according to information reaching this city yesterday.

W. E. Norman, 29, trucking company employee, dropped from sight in November 6, 1928, after drawing the pay due him from the firm for which he worked. His wife and 5-year-old daughter, both of Fort Worth, have not heard from him since that time.

Norman is described as being slightly more than six feet tall with eyes and brown hair.

His presence is required for disposition of the community estate at the death of his father, whose property will be disposed of at trustee's sale on May 6.

Attack On Pro Amendment Is Ended By Wets

Anti-Prohibition Witnesses Picture Canadian Liquor Control System Success In Extended Public Hearing

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The anti-prohibition forces today concluded their attack on the eighteenth amendment before the house judiciary committee with an effort to prove the success of the Canadian liquor control system and also to establish that athletic directors of big universities were divided over the effect of the dry law on American youth.

As soon as they finished, Chairman Graham announced the protracted public hearings closed. He said probably at a later date the committee would take under consideration the vast amount of testimony obtained and might act on one of the many bills introduced asking repeal or modification of the Volstead act.

As the committee membership has a preponderance of drys, the wets do not expect repeal or modification measures to receive a favorable report.

Opponents of prohibition were the first heard by the committee when the sessions started some time ago. After they had painted a picture of drinking among youth, crowded jails and increase in crime, the drys were heard. They attributed to prohibition increased saving deposits, industrial expansion, happier homes and better living conditions generally.

Death Lurks Near For Mrs. B. C. Rix

Death continued to lurk near the door of Mrs. B. C. Rix, 75, 2102 Broadway, last night as reports from physicians stated that no change in her condition had been noted.

The aged woman suffered a heart attack several days ago and since that time the flame of life in her body has slowly flickered until yesterday physicians announced she had but a short time to live.

Her husband, and daughter, Miss Ruth Rix, and sons, W. W. Rix and J. A. Rix, all of Lubbock, and Harvey Rix, of Big Spring, are at her bedside.

Mrs. Rix and her husband are pioneers of West Texas and the South Plains.

Small Speaks At Club Meet

Texas Federation Of Women's Clubs In Confab At Pampa Hear Gubernatorial Candidate Inauguration Campaign

PAMPA, April 24.—(P)—Senator Clint Small, making his first public speech since he announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for governor, declared today that observance of law would solve most of the vexing problems in an address before delegates to the seventh district, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs convention.

Avoiding discussion of his gubernatorial race, he spoke of the tremendous and growing problem of crime and discussed its relation to taxation and prison problems.

Deplores Law Surplus
Deplored the surplus of laws which control citizens from the cradle to the grave. Small declared the problem was more acute because "so many so-called best citizens ignore many good laws."

In a previous address, Mrs. Geraldine Green, dean of women at the West Texas Teachers college at Canyon, declared "you cannot put a girl into the jazy atmosphere of a modern high school or college for four to eight years and expect her to emerge as a home-loving, cultured person."

HAIL CAUSES DAMAGE

Severe Storm Hits McAllen And Rio Grande Area

MCALLEN, April 24.—(P)—A hail storm, said to have been one of the worst this section of the Rio Grande valley has experienced in many years, struck McAllen and nearby territory late today.

The storm apparently was confined to a strip about four miles wide through the McAllen territory, with El Paso, two miles east, and Mission, five miles west, untouched. Growers feared tomatoes and corn in this immediate vicinity had been damaged.

Business was suspended here for 40 minutes while crowds gathered at windows to watch the hail, which beat through automobile tops and broke many telephone wires.

Two bonds, each valued at $1,000 and belonging to the North Chicago Lumber company, were found on Merion, together with $1,000 in cash.

MURDER CHARGE FILED

Arthur Green Held In Death Of Farmer Near Tyler

TYLER, April 24.—(P)—A charge of murder was filed here today against Arthur Green in the slaying of James Wallace, 35, farmer, near here yesterday.

Wallace died of a gunshot wound in the chest, inflicted as he was returning home from work with M. F. Whitaker. The shot, according to Whitaker, was fired by a man who hid behind the abutment of a bridge.

Wallace married Green's former wife two years ago. She said Green came to her home several hours before the shooting.

Heavy Vote In Bond Election Is Urged Here

County Officials Asking For Support Of Jail Issue At Polls Tomorrow; Need Of Additional Space Cited

Building Crowded

Only Mild Discussions Mark Pre-Election Time; Action Recommended By Grand Jury After Jail Inspection

THOUGH only mild discussion has been heard throughout Lubbock county of the $250,000 criminal courts and jail bond issue, to be held Saturday, county officials and interested citizens Thursday were urgent in their expressions for a heavy poll favoring the issue.

County Judge Robert H. Bean, members of the county commissioners' court, Dr. W. L. Baugh, county health officer, chamber of commerce officials, civic club leaders and many others have all made expressions of support of the measure.

Building Criticized
A grand jury of the 72nd district court, in session several weeks ago, severely criticized the present jail building as entirely inadequate and unsanitary. Erected in 1911, the building has been in use constantly since that time with no additions to it. A capacity of 27 men is provided and often as high as 50 have been held at one time.

At this time there are more than 40 inmates of the structure while four Lubbock county prisoners are being held in the Hale county jail and three in the city jail, necessitating an additional expense of board.

Condition Drastic
"The situation has reached a drastic condition," said Judge Bean. "Some action must be taken, and at once. The commissioners court feels that the structure has been crowded for so long and conditions are now so alarming that unless the bond issue is successful, severe measures probably will be resorted to."

Voting boxes in the city of Lubbock will be opened at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, four in the court house, one at the fire station on 19th street and another in the Lubbock Lumber company offices. Polls will close Saturday night at 6 o'clock.

Seek Capture Of Foreigners

Bandit Leaders Offer Reward Of $200 For Every Person Captured; American Missionaries In Danger

CANYON, April 24.—Two American missionaries who fled here today from Sinfeng, Kiangsi province, reported red bandit leaders were offering a reward of $200 for every foreigner captured, saying "all foreigners would be killed."

Sixty thousand peasants, the missionaries said, had enlisted recently in the Communist army which had been despoiling the province. Soviet propaganda, they asserted, was making great headway among the masses, who were paid in Russian currency.

The missionaries, Father McLaughlin and Father Moehring of Brooklyn, N. Y., said that 10 American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow were in danger of capture by red troops and possible execution, as the city was near surrender after a siege since early last month.

Rotary Confab Is Brought To End At Temple

Ray Nichols, Publisher From Vernon, Nominated; Plainview, Cleburne Seek Meeting

TEMPLE, April 24.—The forty-first district Rotary convention closed here today with the nomination by acclamation of Ray Nichols, Vernon publisher, for district governor. The convention city for next year will be set by presidents of the clubs of the district at a later meeting, with Plainview and Cleburne the principal contenders.

A resolution was passed at the closing session asking the International convention of Rotary to permit the three Texas districts to hold a joint conference.

Five girls of the Ralls ukelele club, here to aid the town's boom for 1932 district governor, narrowly escaped serious injury when their plane in which they had been riding smashed when it taxied onto the field and a wheel locked. John Lee Nesbitt, head of the Plainview delegation, boosting the town's claim for the convention, also was in the ship, dropping literature.

Mrs. Lee To Seek Seat in Congress

CISCO, April 24.—(P)—Acquiescing to friends, Mrs. Robert Quincy Lee, 47, today announced she would seek to succeed her late husband as representative from the seventeenth Texas district in Congress.

In making her announcement, Mrs. Lee said engagements would cause her to return to Washington and that she would have to leave her campaign for friends.

She will have at least one opponent. Former Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene having announced for the place. Blanton was succeeded by Lee two years ago when he decided to seek a seat in the senate instead of running for re-election to the house.

V. Earl Earp, city attorney of Sweetwater, had announced, but decided to support Mrs. Lee in the special election.

District Judge Towne Young yesterday submitted the case on three special issues.

Bodies Found By Messenger Boy Thursday

Murder And Suicide Is Theory Of Officers In Investigation Of Trouble Tragedy; Quarrel Thought Motive

Discover Revolver

Mrs. Guy Bates Post, Stage Star Of Two Decades Ago, One Of Victims; Divorced Four Months Ago

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., April 24.—In a tragedy apparently of murder and suicide, the bodies of Mrs. Guy Bates Post, a stage star of two decades ago, and Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer, formerly of Chicago, were found in a fashionable bungalow of Mrs. Palmer here late today.

Mrs. Post had died from a bullet fired into her brain through the mouth. Mrs. Palmer was shot through the back, the bullet striking her heart.

Near the body of Mrs. Post lay a revolver. Two empty shells were in its chamber.

After a preliminary investigation, authorities from Santa Ana, Cal., sheriff's office expressed the belief that it was a simple case of murder and suicide. They believed Mrs. Post had shot Mrs. Palmer and in turn taken her own life.

A possible motive was offered in a quarrel between the two women yesterday over a luncheon to which Mrs. Palmer had been invited. Mrs. Post was not on the guest list. Authorities, however, were hesitant to believe this assertion and expressed the opinion that a deeper cause underlaid the tragedy.

The bodies were found by a messenger.

Sixteen Cars Used To Haul Co-Op Cotton

Twelve Hundred Bales Sent From Here Constitute The Largest Shipment At One Time To Co-Op Association

Sixteen freight cars were required to haul the 1,200 bales of cotton, shipped via Santa Fe from Lubbock Thursday by W. L. Ellwood, to Houston, and which constitutes the largest individual shipment of cotton at one time through a cooperative in the United States.

The cotton was shipped to the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, that organization having advanced Mr. Ellwood 10 cents per pound, or approximately $60,000, through arrangement with the American Cotton Cooperative association, the $30,000,000 stabilization corporation set up by the Federal Farm Board.

Photographs Taken
When the 16 cars were ready to ship and locomotive had been attached yesterday afternoon, photographs of the train were made, with a number of interested men who were present to see the big shipment start. These included J. E. Montgomery, of Tynan, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation; W. M. Ross, president of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau; N. H. Payne, field representative for the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association; S. A. Debnam, Lamesa; Garnett Reeves, publicity director of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; C. E. Merrill, J. H. Hunter, J. M. Koch, G. P. Owens, R. T. Rhodes, Glenn Blackman, G. H. Goodwin, T. C. Campbell, and Al Hill.

As an indication of what the concentration of several thousand bales of cotton at Lubbock each year means to this city's increasing industrial activities, R. P. Bayless, local freight and passenger agent for the Santa Fe, explains that freight on these 1,200 bales of cotton, from here to Houston amounts to 92 1-2 cents per hundred pounds, or approximately $5,610.

Of this amount 18 cents per hundred pounds is paid to the West Texas Cotton company for handling and pressing and loading. The 18 cents per hundred amounts to about $1 per bale or $1,200. This amount is spread out to include all employees of the company, among these being the negro laborers for trucking and handling the bales to and from the press.

Five Hundred Hear Evans In Revival Here

Waco Methodist Minister Is Conducting Services Here; Talks On "The Biggest Thing That A Man Can Do"

Dr. L. L. Evans, visiting Methodist minister from Waco, who is conducting a revival here, spoke before an audience of approximately 500 persons last night at the First Methodist church on the theme "The Biggest Thing That A Man Can Do."

Beginning at 8 o'clock a song service was held under the direction of Andrew Hemphill, of Fort Worth, who, answering a popular request since he has been here, sang his own composition, "Never Alone." This sacred song has enjoyed the distinction of being sung around the world and before many types of audiences.

Dr. Evans chose his text from Second Corinthians 17:16, "Amasaiah willingly offered himself unto the Lord," and exhorted his listeners to offer their lives to the service of God.

"It is a good thing for an individual to approve the work of the church and it means a great deal for one to give of his money to a good cause," said the minister, "but it is infinitely greater for any person to give his time."

Hurry, Bustle Cited
The hurry and bustle of the modern age was mentioned as the speaker warned of the need of "taking time to be holy" he said that "there is nothing that can lengthen a day quite so much as a time spent in prayer and devotion."

Dr. Evans spoke of the necessity of ministers leading consecrated lives if their works are to be accepted as true.

"I'll admit the old saying of the three types of individuals, 'men, women and preachers,' he said, 'and I think by every standard of right, justice and fairness that ministers should be expected to live better than laymen.'

Should Be Leaders
"Nothing is more inspiring to a minister than to have noble men of leadership and power give their lives to work in Christ's kingdom," he added.

The last morning service of the week will be given this morning at 9 o'clock. The audiences have been increasing at each service according to a statement made last night by the Rev. H. L. Munger.

VITALITY

"SURE! I can finish that today"

A strong, healthy body and mind always respond to the occasion. Employers appreciate and recognize unfailing freshness—always ready—cheerfully ready to carry on—minus that "tired feeling."

DON'T let a weakened body hold you back. Prolonged, it may result in so-called premature old age. Today's happiness and friends may be gone tomorrow.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed skin troubles, "run-down" systems and even more serious ailments.

If you tire easily—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

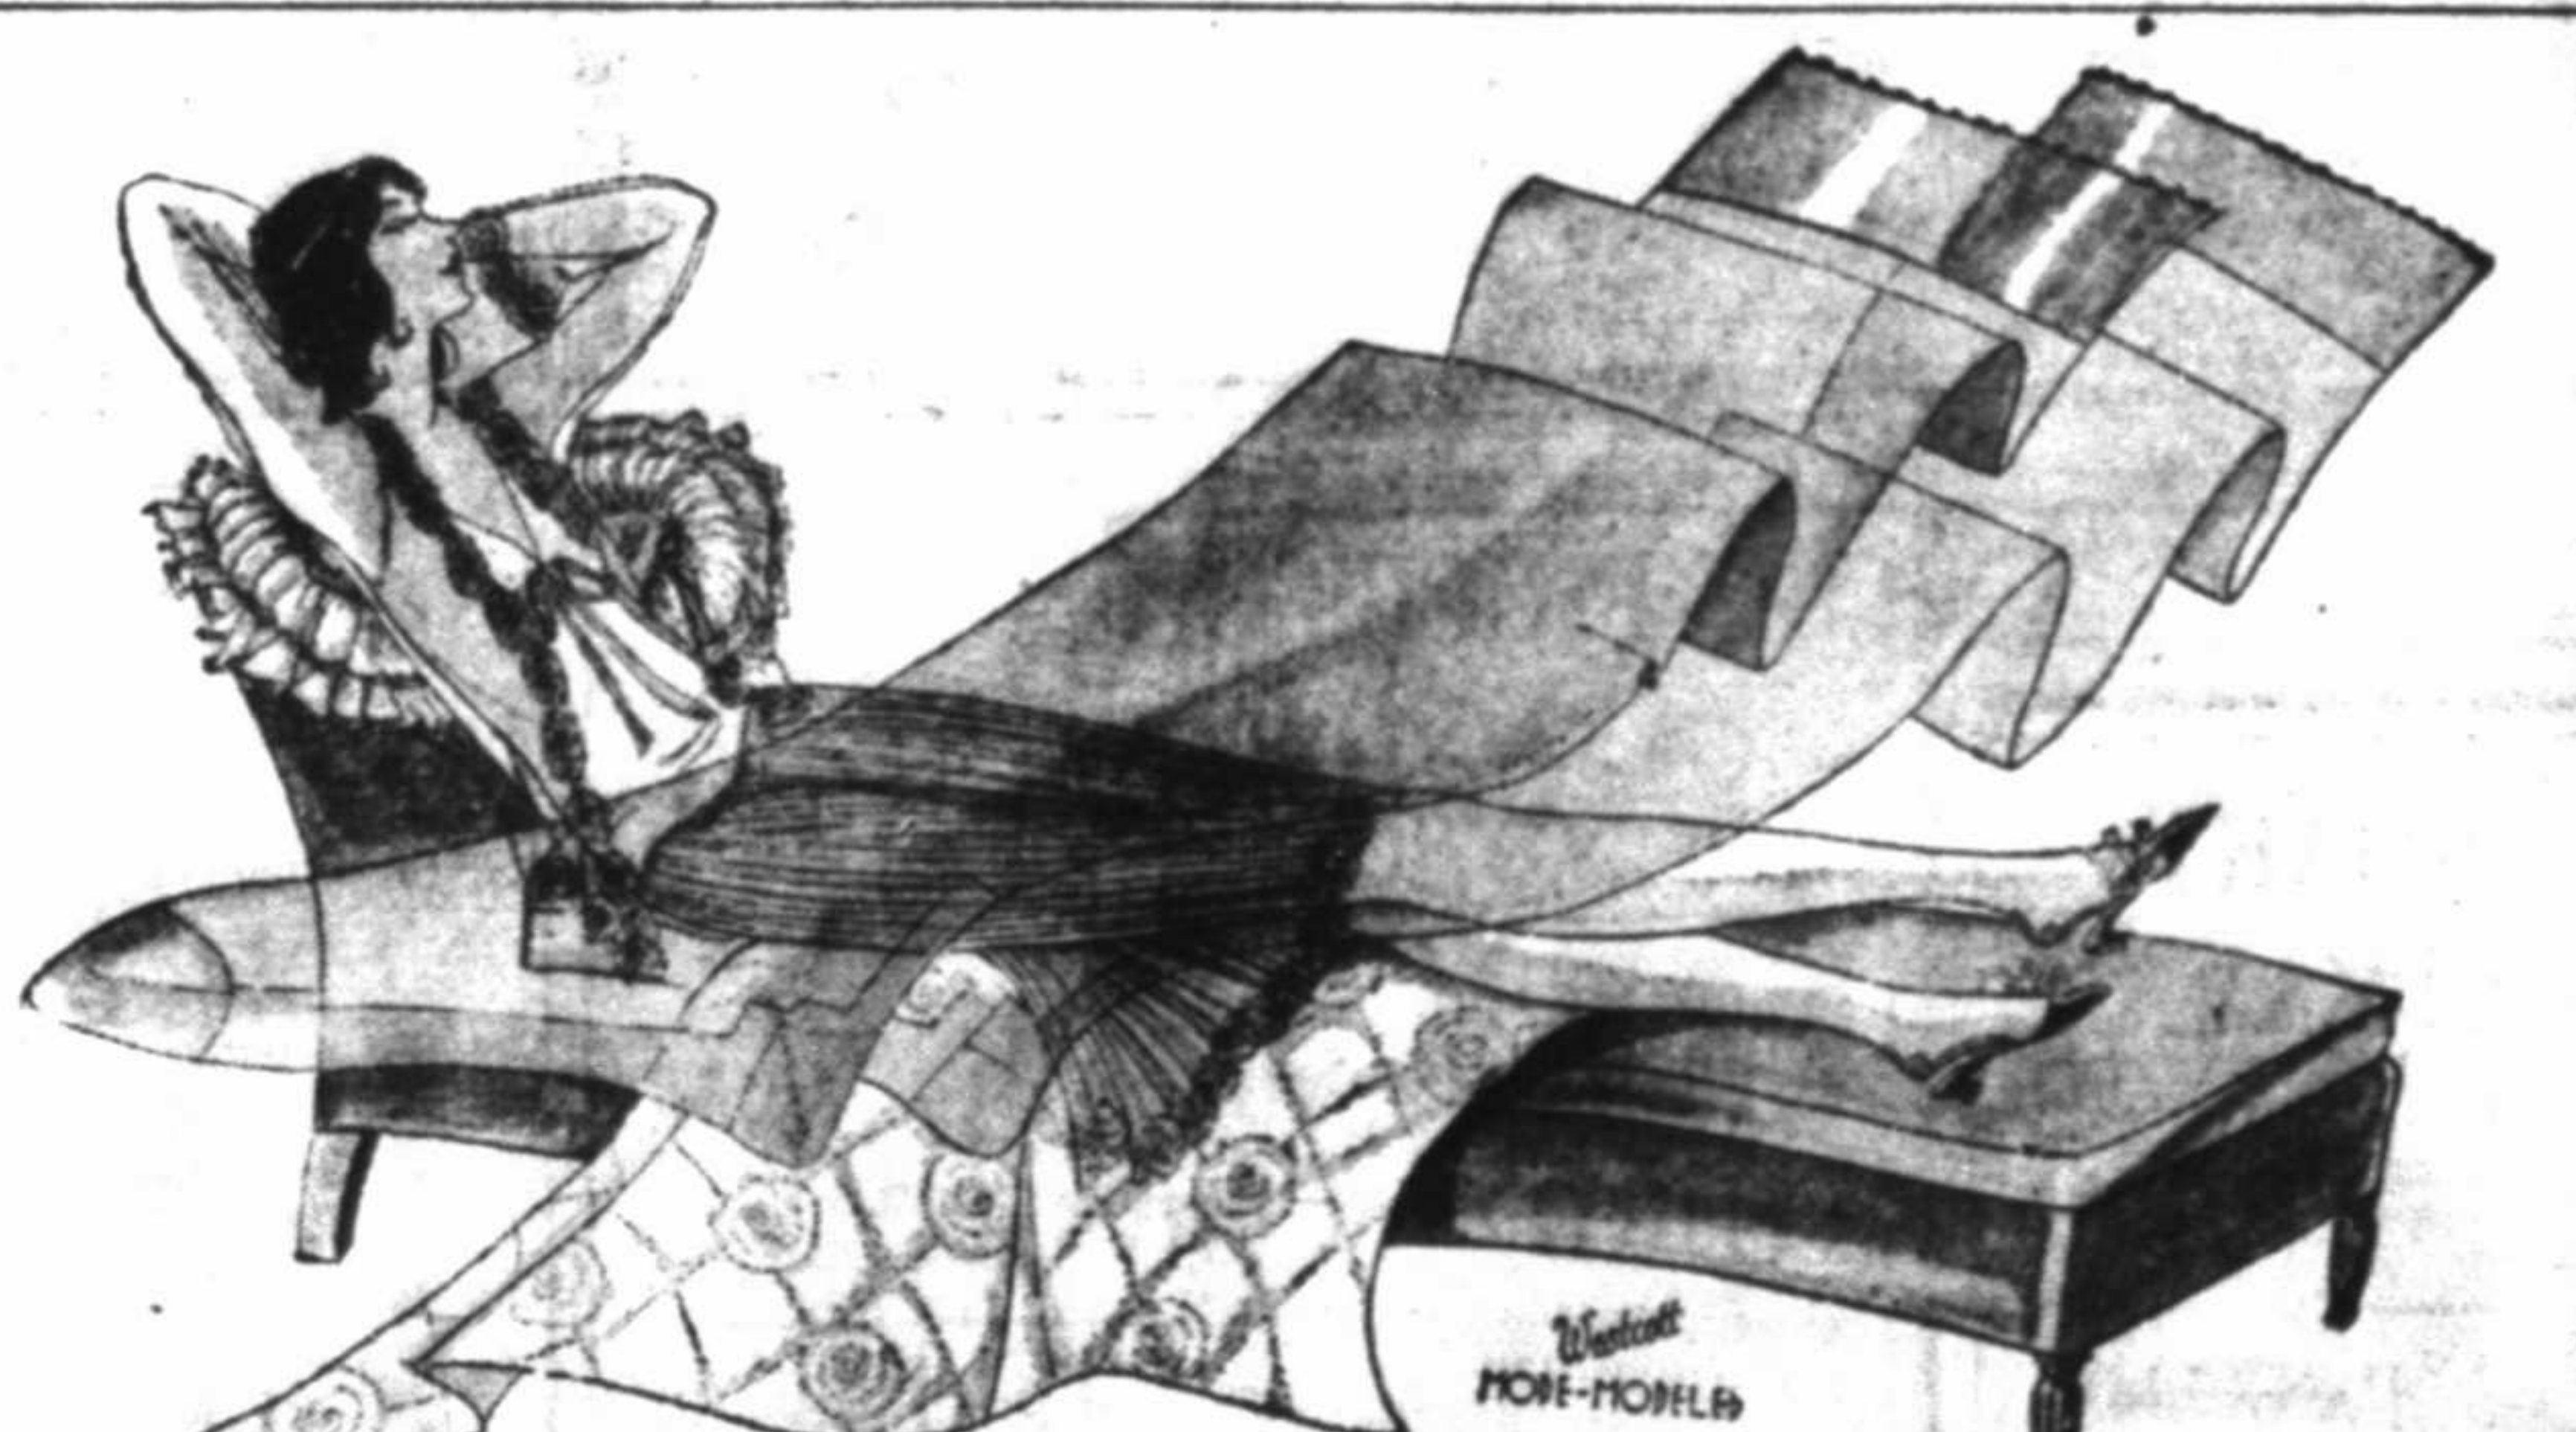

When you get your red-blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, lack of appetite, skin troubles disappear. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady. S.S.S. helps Nature build rich red blood. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easily assimilated. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Matadors Off Today For Final Track Meet Of Season

Canyon Scene Of Tri-State Cinder Event

Great Plains Meet Opens This Afternoon At Buff Stronghold; Tech Vanguard Leaves This Morning

Seven members of the Texas Tech cinder team who will compete in the preliminaries of the annual Great Plains track and field meet at Canyon this afternoon will leave early today for the scene of the tri-state event.

Coach Victor Payne will accompany the vanguard of the Matador squad and the remaining members whose events will not be called until tomorrow, are due to leave here at 7:30 Saturday morning.

The same squad, with the exception of Charlie Woodruff, that took part in the dual meet last week with the Simmons University Cowboys at Abilene will make the trip to the Buffalo stronghold. Those leaving this morning are Captain James Dallas, Floyd Woodruff, Chas. Woodruff, J. D. Waller, Amel Payne, Dennis Vinzant and Hubert Hooper.

Field and distance men are included in the group that will wait until Saturday morning to join their mates. These are: Wingo, Hill, Fisher, Pace and Waters.

Preliminaries in a majority of the running events will start this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Finals in all events are to be run off Saturday.

Fast Field Enters Annual Plains Meet

CANYON, April 24.—The tenth annual Great Plains Track and Field meet held at Canyon this week-end promises to be the fastest ever held. In fact all existing records are going to be endangered, when the best track stars of West Texas, New Mexico and Western Oklahoma meet on the Buffalo track.

At least five of the present record holder of the 220 yard low hurdles (their own records) McManus of New Mexico Military Institute, present holder of the century (8.8 seconds) and of the 220 yard dash (32 seconds flat) is said to be going better than ever this year and is expected to lower at least one of these records.

Fisher holds records of the 440 yard run (51.2 seconds) and will be here to lower his own mark. He has been clocked in a little less than 40 seconds in earlier meets this spring.

Robert, another Southwestern lad, holds the two mile record with the time of 10 minutes 30 seconds. He has lowered this time by 30 seconds this year and should lead the field and lower his own mark.

Byers, To Defend Mark. Byers of Central Teachers set a new mark of 124 feet, 5 inches in the discus last year and is expected to beat this mark this year.

Central Teachers College's famous relay team, holder of the present record of 3 minutes, 29.4 seconds, is all primed for a great day and should lower this mark.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

HOME RUNS BY CANDLE LIGHT

Baseball is a floodlight is to be tried out in the Western league this season. Don Moore announces that, beginning on May 6, all its home games will be played by night, and without any special cast iron armor for the infielders, either.

You probably know who we are. We are the ones who assembled at Kinky Hawk, N. C., that day in 1904 and said that Orville Wright was crazy to try to go up in a contraption like that. We also were around when the first automobile went spluttering down a dusty road, and we threw a lot of cold water on the proposition, too. But in spite of our doubts, there are airplanes and automobiles, we are told, that actually run today and there are people who ride in them.

DIFFERENT GAME. Naturally we would be the very people to say that night baseball never can be. To qualify, we mean night baseball never can approach the game that is played under the sunlight. It will be called baseball, of course, but it will be a different game.

We are told by the General Electric people that the light at Des Moines will be of such intensity that "the highest fly balls and the longest home run slugs are always adequately illuminated, both from the point of view of the player and of the spectator."

Night baseball, of course, has been played before. Football, soccer, golf, tennis and other outdoor sports have been added to the list of games that the engineers are making possible to play by night.

Baseball was played at Lynn, Mass., by night in 1927. Sports writers saw two Eastern league teams struggle in the white light and commented favorably on the affair. But we remain unconvinced.

IN THE FEDERAL LEAGUE. Thirteen years ago Robert B. Ward, who with Harry Sinclair was one of the financial backers of the outlaw Federal league, spent a fortune in lights for Washington Park, Brooklyn. There were towers here and there with floodlights screened to diffuse the light. It was aimed to have the Tip Tops, Ward's team, play its games by night. It wasn't so good.

Edo Roush and Benny Kauff were in the outfield those nights and barely escaped being beamed by high flies. After the ball got to a certain height, it shimmered, according to Roush, like Uncle Roush's waistband during a gale of laughter. It was "put it over and duck" in the night league, Jack Quinn and Howard Ehmke pitched in that league and their testimony is that candle light baseball is not so wonderful.

BRING YOUR HAT. Of course that was 15 years ago. Engineers have made a lot of improvements in lighting since then. But no longer ago than last summer, the improvements were not sufficient to make soccer at the Polo Grounds seem anything like the game as it is played by day, even though the balls were painted a glaring white. After the ball got to a certain height it seemed to quiver.

Night baseball undoubtedly will bring out the crowds, for a time at least. But it wouldn't be a bad idea to take along an iron hat.

Weather Man Batting .345 Against Clubs

Second Successive Day Of Near Freezing Temperature Causes Postponement Of Six Big Time Games

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—A second successive day of near freezing temperatures today caused postponement of all but two of the eight scheduled major league baseball games and sent the clubs farther along the road toward a record for early season postponements.

Three Hundred and Fifty At Church Confab

Book Ministers, Laymen, Attend District Sessions At Post Tuesday And Wednesday; Four Licensed

Three hundred and fifty ministers and laymen of the Lubbock Methodist district attended the two-day session of the annual district conference at the Post church Tuesday and Wednesday. The meeting closed Tuesday afternoon with announcement of lay delegates to the annual meeting of the Northwest Texas conference, to be held in Sweetwater this fall.

Four young men were licensed to preach and Rev. A. A. Peacock of Sweetwater was recommended for admission to the next conference. Blanton of Lubbock, Charles Wyke, Tahoka, Cecil Tule, Lamesa and J. M. Jackson of Anson were recommended for license to preach.

Aged Man Received. One of the most unusual events of the conference was the reception of an aged man, Rev. J. A. Boykin, who is 100 years of age from another church and whose orders were recognized by the conference. Rev. Boykin was first licensed to preach in 1847 and was ordained in 1853. He preaches almost every Sunday and has been a minister for 82 years. Rev. Boykin's present home is in Texas. He preached Wednesday at the conference at Post.

Bickley In Chair. Rev. C. A. Bickley of Lubbock, presiding elder, was in the chair for the conference. Dr. C. C. Cline, president of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, spoke Tuesday.

Another speaker was Dr. C. C. Cline, manager of the Methodist hospital at Fort Worth, who spoke the general hospital work of the Methodist church.

Reports given from the 31 parishes of the district indicated a wholesome condition, both spiritually and financially. Rev. Bickley said upon his return here yesterday.

"The Last Supper" Scene From The Passion Play

Here is "The Last Supper," a scene that appears in the Frieberg Passion Play, a production that is centuries old, and that will be seen in Lubbock on May 2 and 3, with the original Frieberg cast. It is being given the endorsement of the church throughout America. The Rev. F. O. Coffin, D. D., president of the general convention of the Christian players in the Passion Play. As a substitute for much that is being offered the public in the way of entertainment, this is a decided advance. For the sake of its effect on human hearts I am hoping that you may enjoy a large response to this effort.

Seen From The Top Of The Yellowhouse Windmill

BY J. SAM LEWIS, FIELD CORRESPONDENT

Ed Hamilton, one of the young cafe owners in Tahoka, played a trick on his small nephew the other day. "Go down to Bill's place and tell them you want that left handed screw driver for a little while, tell them I want to use it," he told his nephew. The lad was gone for some time and on his return he walked quietly over to his uncle and said: "Uncle Ed, they told me to tell you that they would not let you have that left handed screw driver until you sent back that left handed monkey wrench."

"Dad! Adams, well known rancher of the Tahoka community is also posing as a weather prophet. The other day he told the boys at the Thomas Drug store that it would rain within 48 hours. 'Hay, Dad, you were off on that rain' one of the boys told him yesterday afternoon. 'No indeed,' he replied. 'You read in the Advance this morning about a big rain, didn't you?' he asked. 'Well, I said it would rain but I didn't say where.'"

Down south of town about eight or ten miles or so there is a lone cottonwood tree growing alongside a farm house. The tree is the only one to be seen for a long distance. It is growing in a lake, fed by a windmill and that explains the healthy growth.

Baseball is the popular sport at the Wilson community school house, in Lynn county just south of Lubbock county. Almost every afternoon the boys and men of that section of the country gather for a session of the old time national pastime.

"I'm like Will Rogers, all I know is what I read in the papers," said G. H. Nelson, county attorney of Lynn county when asked about the famous county line case. Mr. Nelson said the case would not come up in Abilene until June. "Our authority down this way on that case is Judge C. H. Cane. He was county attorney at the time the suit began—and he has followed it all the way through."

The other morning Rev. O. J. Hull, pastor of the Tahoka Baptist church walked into the Lynn County News office and handed a paper to Frank Hill, associate editor, with the remark: "Frank, you can have a baseball story or a picture show or a dance out of the front page and run this can't you?" The editor smiled and said: "I guess so." A stranger in the office turned to E. L. Hill, the editor and remarked: "that fellow is either a preacher or a politician." Mr. Hill thought a moment and then said: "Well, to tell the truth I think he's a little of both."

The Red Star coaches have a group of fast yet careful drivers that have a wide circle of friends on the entire route south. The boys seem to know every rough place in the road and they pilot the big busses like Mark Twain used to pilot the Mississippi river steamers into St. Louis. "You can depend on our bus service being pretty regular and satisfactory," C. C. Williams of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce said.

Water Rate To Be Considered By City Dads

Special Meeting To Be Held By City Commission To Discuss Irrigation Rate For Local Water Consumer

A special meeting of the Lubbock city commission will be held tonight at the city hall for the purpose of discussing a proposal for putting into effect an irrigation rate for local water consumers, according to an announcement yesterday. This step is the first toward fulfilling the platform of newly elected Mayor J. J. Clements.

Under the irrigation rate a minimum bill of $3 gross per month would be charged for five months, ending September 30, 1930, for those who use 5,000 gallons per month. Each consumer would be charged 16 cents per 1,000 gallons for additional water used during the period, subject to a 10 per cent discount on bills paid within ten days after issuance. A contract must be signed for each who shares in the reduction.

The present water rate of the city is as follows: first 3,000 gallons, $1.95 gross; next 2,000, 50 cents per 1,000; next 5,000, 25 cents per 1,000; next 10,000, 20 cents per 1,000; next 40,000, 18 cents per 1,000; next 100,000, 16 cents per 1,000; next 140,000, 15 cents per 1,000.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Hear me, O Lord, for Thy loving kindness is good; turn unto me according to the multitude of Thy tender mercies.

And hide not Thy face from Thy servant; for I am in trouble: hear me speedily. Psalm lxxxix, 16, 17.

A RIGHT STEP

WE note, with particular satisfaction, a front page story in yesterday's Morning Avalanche, telling of the selection of a "Best Citizen" in each of the 34 home rooms in Lubbock Senior High. It is reassuring to see that citizenship, as it applies to the school room, is being given its right merits. It is a step in the right direction.

In this day of wide-spread disrespect for law, custom and tradition, The Morning Avalanche doubts that there is any subject more important than citizenship. Certainly good citizenship is the keystone of civilization and the high school age is none too early to begin inculcation of the principle of "As a man thinketh, so is he."

Train a boy or girl to be a good school citizen and he is over the first hurdle in his race along life's track. Instill into the mind of youth that there is a premium upon good citizenship, train the youth along that ideal in the formative period of life and a better municipal, state, national and world citizen will result in the adult period.

The Avalanche is glad to see practical training and ideals enforced in the local school system. The selection of "Best Citizens" in Lubbock High can't be wrong—and before it is opened a great avenue for good.

INEQUITABLE POSTAGE BOOST

Postmaster General Brown's argument before the Bronx chamber of commerce that letter postage should be increased to two and one-half cents an ounce is not only debatable, but provocative. The proposal that first class mail should be added with the deficit of $45,000,000 incurred in other postal and non-postal activities of the postoffice department is one against which the whole public will be inclined to protest as inequitable.

At first sight the extra half-cent on an ordinary letter might not seem to bear appreciably on each of the millions whose correspondence is not extensive. But in the commercial world the enormous increase of use of the United States mails within recent years is indicated by the "metered" stamps printed on envelopes and wrappers under permits to allow this method of metering postage instead of the time-wasting use of adhesive stamps. Merchants mailing tens of thousands of bills to customers every month and banks sending out their monthly statements and cancelled checks to depositors are familiar exemplars of the present day practice.

Postage is an important item of overhead in merchandising. Any increase in it would eventually be passed on to the retail customer in some form. In this way the public would be indirectly reached by the 35 per cent boost of letter postage.

First class mail is the basic business of the postoffice department as a great public utility. It has always paid its way, and does so today. No deficit to which it does not contribute should be charged against it.

SLOW PROGRESS

The world may be getting better, but it is not apparently getting brighter, or at least it does so at an astonishingly slow pace. It is the opinion of Dr. Clifford Kirkpatrick, of the University of Pennsylvania, that the past 25,000 years have made no measurable difference in human intelligence and that the Cro-Magnon people of long ago could make themselves at home in modern society without at all straining their brains in the process.

This is discouraging, if you believe too earnestly in the progress of man toward the hypothetical superman. We are not, apparently, making much progress. The world grows more comfortable, more convenient, more rich in opportunity and advantages, but it does not grow proportionately more sensible. It cannot even be proved that it grows more moral or more cheerful. If the anthropologists are right, these prehistoric kinsmen of ours were so much like ourselves in all the essentials of humanity that they might take our places and we might take theirs and no one might know the difference. We have more to think about than they, but we do not necessarily think better. We have more opportunities, but do not demonstrably use them more intelligently than they might do.

There is counsel of humility in all this, which is not a bad thing at a time when each new generation likes to think that it is sitting on top of the world and is smarter and wiser than any that have gone before.

When the past gives up all its secrets, it will no doubt be discovered that war and six per cent interest were invented in the same age.

The trouble with running around all the time is you go in a circle.

The honeymoon is over the first time he addresses her as "old girl."

ROBINSON FEELS PRESIDENTIAL URGE

By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas has had Democratic presidential aspirations for some time. That is to say, he aspires to the honor (if any) of his party's nomination in 1932. How he feels about his election chances, if nominated, who knows—further than that, according to politicians, a candidate always believes himself bound to win.

Two years, and a little over, is quite awhile ahead. Nevertheless, Senator Robinson will be returning from Europe shortly, covered with his share of the glory of the London naval conference. This is sure to stimulate interest in him considerably. Naturally his friends will make the most of it to broadcast him presidential ally they can (not that Joe will try to discourage them).

This Arkansasian is due to be increasingly talked about hereafter for at least a couple of twelve-months to come; so maybe it is not too soon to give him the once over, after all.

Joe Robinson (it is not disrespectful but absolutely necessary to call him "Joe," rather than "senator," to distinguish him from Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, and, more recently, from the newly-appointed Senator John M. Robinson, of Kentucky, whose name frequently is confused with theirs) really was an ideal Democratic selection by President Hoover, to accompany the American delegation to London.

In the first place, Joe is the senate Democratic leader; he was an appropriate choice in that respect.

He also is a member of the foreign affairs committee, and of course the London conference decided was a foreign affair. As an expert on overseas conditions he knows practically everything it is possible to learn from the vantage-point of Little Rock—and this was a great plenty, because the last person the American delegation to London required was a minority member who could understand enough of what was going on to be able to come home and give the whole thing to the horse laugh.

Finally, Joe was eager to go. He reckoned that the trip would enhance his prestige for presidential purposes. Indeed, perhaps it will prove to have done so—that is, for the Democratic nomination.

Now, no reasonable Republican could ask better than to have Joe Robinson nominated at the head of the 1932 Democratic presidential ticket.

Not that Joe, if nominated, will not make a good, workmanlike campaign.

He performed very creditably as Al Smith's running mate in 1928. He fought hard and loyally. It would be an exceedingly ungrateful Al Smithite who failed to appreciate the effort he made.

This unquestionably is the way Joe feels about it. His notion obviously is that, after what he did for Al, he is entitled to be nominated in 1932.

And, as a matter of fact, it is likely that Senator Joe Robinson could carry more states than Al Smith carried; he certainly should be able to hold the south together.

But that is all. When Al Smith was nominated it was impossible for anyone to tell what sort of a run he would make; it was a gamble.

Anyone with half an eye can see what sort of a run Joe Robinson would make. He would make just a respectable, average Democratic run—carrying precisely the states that a Democrat ought to carry and no more—and being beaten, with all hands knowing he would be beaten all along.

It goes without saying that this is infinitely better for the Republicans than to have the Democrats put up some freak—who may or may not be recognized, but who, on the other hand, may catch the popular fancy and romp in forty furlongs ahead—some candidate who is absolutely incalculable, like Al in 1928.

Al himself would be a better 1932 bet than Joe. The chances might be 99 against him, but he still would stand that 100th chance. The chances against Joe would be 100 per cent.

President Hoover was quite right to help Joe all he could.

FIND "JAKE PARALYSIS" WAS DUE TO POISONS IN THE LIQUOR

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The most recent epidemic sweeping across the United States has been the tremendous number of cases of partial paralysis of the legs reported first from Oklahoma, later from Tennessee and Georgia, still later from Kentucky, and finally from Rhode Island and some of the New England states.

Very promptly the information was broadcast that these cases of paralysis were the result of imbibing some poison in Jamaica ginger which was being drunk in fairly large quantities and which was, of course, being sold outside the domain of the prohibition law.

Among the earliest of the scientific investigations undertaken was that made by the State Department of Public Health in Tennessee. Within a week, 119 cases have been found by the authorities of the State Department of Health, and although some time has elapsed, it is still possible to give a few definite facts concerning the situation. Chemical and laboratory investigations require considerable time, particularly as they are elaborate and are planned to be conclusive.

At present the authorities are convinced that these cases are the result of taking into the body of two or more toxic substances, one of which is a preparation of alcohol and the other some heavy metal dye or other volatile substance. These conclusions were reached by both the physicians and the public health authorities for several definite reasons.

The inflammation of the nerves which resulted in the paralysis simply had to do with the action of some toxic inorganic substance or of the action of some bacterial poison. Practically all of the data were against an infectious origin. For instance, 83 per cent of the people who were affected were men, 78 per cent of those were between 20 and 45 years of age, and there was not one case in the entire group that was under 15 years of age.

There is, however, also a historical precedent for an incident of this character. More than 25 years ago there were in Great Britain hundreds of cases of paralysis caused by the drinking of beer which had been made in such a way as to become heavily contaminated with arsenic. In those cases also paralysis was the chief symptom, including however prostration and nausea.

No doubt, when the chemists have completed their studies, it will be found that the particular bootleg involved had been made by men quite unfamiliar with toxicology, and a greedy who were affected were men who will limit themselves, at least for a while, to ginger ale and root beer.

CHAPTER XLVIII
Into the twilight of the room stepped a woman's figure. The soft closing of the door was followed by the click of the light switch beside it. In the dazzle of light from the four wall brackets Mrs. Letitia Lambert was revealed, looking against the door, as if she was too exhausted to take another step.

From her lax left hand hung an afternoon paper, so folded that a two-column picture of George Berkeley was plainly visible to the detectives watching from the clothes closet.

Slowly she lifted the newspaper. Her closed eyes opened, fastened upon the picture with agonized intensity. With sudden fierceness she crushed the paper against her lips, low, dreadful moans throbbing in her throat, her usually serene face a mask of agony.

"Motiv!" Captain Strawn breathed in Dundee's ear and the younger detective pinched him to warn him to silence.

The woman could not have heard, but she lowered the paper, lifted her breast in a tearing sigh and slowly started to cross the room. Her right hand, from whose wrist her handbag dangled, went up automatically to remove her close-fitting black hat.

Dundee held his breath. The supreme moment was upon them. For as he had known they would, those tortured eyes flew to the dressing-table. Not once since Saturday morning—he felt sure—had Mrs. Lambert returned to her room without casting a terrified glance at her dressing-table to make sure that the black-and-gold perfume bottle had not betrayed her, that it was still there. How many times she must have seized it, wildly casting about for a means to hide it or to destroy its tell-tale contents, only to realize each time that she was safer with Della, the maid, had been accustomed to see it. In its rightful place, it looked supremely innocent, for the black glass concealed the fact that, once nearly empty, it was now full. Missing, destroyed, it might betray her...

Handbag, newspaper and hat slipped from her nerveless hands to the floor. Jerkily, as if she were half paralyzed, Mrs. Lambert crept to the dressing-table. The detectives saw her stare at the label, which Dundee had printed and pasted upon the face of the bottle. A shuddering hand went out to touch it, then shuddered away. Only then, it seemed, did she see the grayish-white remains of her tennis oxfords...

"Quick! She's going to faint!" Strawn whispered urgently.

Dundee was in time to catch her as she fell, but she was not unconscious. For a long minute she lay passive in his arms, her eyes still fixed in a blind trance of horror upon a vision of ruined shoes and a grotesquely labeled perfume bottle. Finally the paralyzed lids relaxed and curtained the dawning agony of realization in her eyes.

Dundee was merciful to her. Motioning to Strawn to stay in the closet, he rose with his burden and carried it to the bed. She lay as if dead until he had gone to the bathroom, mixed a dose of aromatic spirits of ammonia and held it to her gray lips.

After she had drunk the dose, she closed her eyes again and lay motionless, except for the rising and falling of her breast in quick, gasping sighs. Finally she spoke, her voice a gusty whisper:

"Glorious—have you known?"

"I wasn't sure until today," he answered gently. "At first I couldn't believe that you, who said you loved Doris, could kill her."

"I did love her!" the woman cried, beating her breast feebly with clenched hands. "That is what made it so horrible... Oh, I'm glad it's over! Glad, glad! Do you hear? I couldn't have gone on much longer, trying to be natural, having to talk of—her... I was going to kill myself tonight. Why couldn't you have given me time?"

"Wouldn't you feel better if you told me about it?" Dundee suggested, very gently. "I am not trying to trap you, Mrs. Lambert. You realize that the evidence is conclusive, without your confession."

"Evidence? What do I care about evidence now?" she moaned, her hands still feebly beating her breast. "I warn you now that I'll not live to stand trial. I'll find a way some—soon!"

"But you shan't go on thinking I lied about being fond of Doris!"

"You killed her in a frenzy or terror, Mrs. Lambert, because she was determined to expose you, not only as Mrs. Berkeley's would-be-murderer, but as Phyllis Crosby's blackmailer," Dundee told her quietly.

"Blackmailer?" she whispered, her eyes enormous. "I—never called myself that, but—I suppose it's true."

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"Hello, I want to give the census man some names he didn't eat."

"We all lie to ourselves, justify ourselves, don't we, Mr. Dundee?" she asked pitifully.

She was silent for so long then that Dundee was afraid he had pushed her too far, that she would not confess. But at last she cried: "Oh, what does it matter? It will hurt Seymour less to know the truth than to go on being tortured with doubts of Phyllis's love for him."

"Please try to understand—not to judge me too harshly," she began, in a weary, flat voice. "All my life until my husband died I had more money than I needed—and all the pleasant things that go with money and high social position. When my husband's estate was settled, I found that nearly everything was gone. You see, a woman had been blackmailing him heavily for years. Disillusioned, sick at heart, for I had loved my husband, I faced the world almost penniless, I faced the world almost penniless. Forty-four years old..."

"The thought of marrying some middle-aged or old widower for his money was abhorrent to me and I was not trained for any sort of work. The only position I could possibly fill was that of social secretary and the idea was unthinkable—then, I was too proud..."

"But to go back a little. A few weeks before my husband died—he was killed in a polo accident—I met and took a great fancy to Phyllis Benham. It amused and delighted me to force her upon society. My nephew, Tommy Cavendish, liked her immensely and rather hoped he would fall in love with her. But Phyllis fell in love with Seymour Crosby. Seymour did not have much money; he hesitated to ask the child to marry him, for fear her father would regard her as fortune-hunter."

"One Monday morning Mr. Benham telephoned me that his daughter was ill and hysterical, that she wanted to see me. I went. Phyllis told me a mild, amiable, incredible story. She said a friend who had joined the chorus of a musical comedy, opening in Atlantic City the previous Friday. As a lark, Phyllis accompanied her friend, staying backstage. When the show was over, two young men, thinking both of them were chorus girls, invited them to go to a roadhouse. Phyllis thought it would be fun to accept. There was some drinking—not much, she insisted to me—but several hours later Phyllis awoke, to find herself in a hotel bedroom with her husband. The evening, she began to scream. Guests reported the disturbance. The hotel detective came and was about to take them both to the police station. The man in the case squared it with the detective, however, and left as soon as he could. Phyllis had not given him her right name, the night before, and I tried to soothe her hysterical fears—told her she would hear no more about it, that it was not her fault and that she must try to forget it. Then she showed me a letter she had received that morning from Seymour Crosby. It was a proposal of marriage. She protested that she could not accept, although she loved him with all her heart. The letter of blackmail, she said, would hang over her head for the rest of her life... May I—have some water, please?" she gasped.

"So it was Phyllis herself who suggested blackmail to you," Dundee said thoughtfully, as he brought the glass to her lips.

"Yes, but at the time I told that it might be best for her for me to tell Seymour the whole ugly story, trusting to his love for her. But that idea frightened me more than the other. The next day my husband was killed. I saw most no one for weeks and had almost forgotten poor Phyllis's dilemma until I saw her picture in Seymour's on the society page of the paper."

"I believe I am a little better now," she said, as she drank from the glass.

"So it was Phyllis herself who suggested blackmail to you," Dundee said thoughtfully, as he brought the glass to her lips.

Murder Backstairs

New York paper, announcing their engagement and early marriage.

Phyllis called on me just before the wedding and confessed that she was in terror lest her companion that dreadful night had seen her and had recognized it; that would blackmail her, knowing at her father was a very rich man, she said she could not; that she was going to beg him to take her to London and live for a year, at least.

As you know, that is what happened. I visited in their home in London, then went to Monte Carlo, where I lost almost my last penny in a frantic effort to win enough to live on for a few months. At that time—then in January—that conceived the idea of blackmail. Phyllis had told me the man's name, or at least the name he had given her. I typed a letter to her, giving the man's first name and asking her to send a thousand pounds in banknotes to W. L. Parker, care of the American Express company, in Paris. The money came. I asked for mail for Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parker, representing myself as Mrs. Parker, and received a package without difficulty. It was so easy.

That I tried it again and again. Dundee suggested softly, "Yes. But the last time I was frightened, for I had her send the money to the American Express company in London. Doris saw me there, but I was sure she believed when I remarked casually that was asking for my own mail."

"Phyllis told me that her worst fear had been confirmed; that she was being blackmailed and that her husband had refused to cable her any more money. She could not meet a blackmailers' last demand. Seymour had sent for me, you know, to try to cheer her up. Me!"

Tears forced themselves out of her closed eyes and slipped down her pallid cheeks. "It was—the night she died. I told her, begged her, to let it all be telling her husband the truth. I hated myself, wanted to die no more, but so long as Seymour didn't know, I knew I would be too weak to resist the temptation. Phyllis thought the man had followed her, of course, that it was he who was bleeding her. Doris knew, as such as Phyllis herself knew; the mistress and maid were the closest friends."

"At last Phyllis agreed to tell Seymour, and I left Phyllis on the roof to give him the message. You know the rest—that she died rather than tell him the truth."

"As the inquest Doris exonerated Seymour, of course, but she confessed to me that she would avenge her sister's death if she had to devote the rest of her life to the cause. Her plan was to hire detectives to trace Phyllis's blackmailer and make him pay for his crime. That is why she wanted the money—to make sure Seymour never suspected that it was—I. She trusted me, was fond of me, until—"

"Until Friday night when she saw me pouring wood alcohol into Mrs. Berkeley's perfume bottle. Dundee finished the sentence for her."

"Yes," Mrs. Lambert agreed dully. "I did not hear her come in; she moved so quietly always. She must have been watching me for a minute or two, for she said, 'So it was you—you!—who killed Miss Phyllis!—you—then that she would have no mercy, would not try to understand why I was planning to murder—'"

"I believe I do, Mrs. Lambert," Dundee interrupted. "There were three reasons why you wanted Mrs. Berkeley to die. First, you loved her husband, and wanted him to be free to love you and marry you."

"But he didn't! He never loved a word or a look!"

"I know! But you hoped he would marry you for Glig's sake, then come to love you for yourself. And Glig loved you loved her father. Friday night, in a fit of hysterical resentment against her mother, she begged him to divorce her and marry you."

The drawn face softened, glowed. "Did she? My precious Glig! Thank you for telling me. But oh, what will she think of me now?"

"Yes," Mrs. Lambert whispered. "Third: the same reason you blackmailed Phyllis Crosby. Money. You could not endure the thought of poverty, of working for your inferiors, of being humiliated daily by a woman like Mrs. Berkeley."

"She deserved to die!" Mrs. Lambert cried suddenly, rising on her elbow to stare at him with wild eyes. "A drunkard, a fool, a selfish and cruel mother, a nagging wife to the finest man in the world. But I gave her her chance to live! Even after she had slapped my darling that night. I made her promise not to drink the perfume Seymour had given her. I told myself then: 'I shall poison it tonight. If she breaks her promise, she deserves to die.'"

"But it was Doris who died," Dundee said.

He rose and signaled to Captain Strawn, chief of the homicide squad.

Bradshaw Stockman Endorses It

Orgatone (Argotane) Is The Most Efficient I've Ever Taken Says Belew

E. D. Belew the well known stock man of Bradshaw, Texas is an ardent believer in Orgatone (Argotane) as his statement which is following shows.

"I suffered from stomach trouble," said Mr. Belew a few days ago, "from the after effects of a surgical operation I had about eight months ago. Ever since that time my stomach didn't act just right. I had to be very careful of what I ate or it would sour and cause gas accompanied by severe pains and my sufferings were hard to bear. I would have dull throbbing pains in the pit of my stomach and was in a general run-down condition had little or no energy and was feeling miserable all the time. I tried a great many medicines and treatments but did not get any relief so I bought some Orgatone."

"I started taking Orgatone (Argotane) and it's surprising how quick it put me in first class condition and the results was so good that my wife also started on the treatment and took it also and was greatly benefited."

"We both have completely recovered from our troubles and are feeling just as well as we ever did, having taken nothing but Orgatone (Argotane) and we think it is the most efficient and finest medicine on earth."

Orgatone (Argotane) may be purchased in Lubbock at Bowers Drug Co.

Cotton Prices Advance In Active Mart

May Position Reveals Best Rise In Mart

Market Opens Firm In Spite Of Liverpool Quoted Lower Than Due; Old Crop Months Show Big Gains

(By Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, April 24.—Cotton was again active today and prices made a further advance particularly on the May position owing to covering by belated shorts in that month in advance of first notice day tomorrow.
Although Liverpool came in lower than due the market here opened firm and by the end of the first hour old crop months showed gains of 17 to 18 points. Prices continued to gain during the opening until at noon values showed gains of 25 to 35 points on old crop positions, whereas October gained only 14 points, due to selling on prospects of rain.
The market opened 1 to 12 points higher and advanced until at the end of the first hour, May traded at 15.88 and active positions generally to levels 14 to 17 points above the previous close. The market improved during the morning on the covering and some price fixing by mills. At noon May traded at 16.06, July 16.14 or 25 to 35 points above the previous close. October advanced to 15.32, or only 14 points up.

Reactions Follow Cotton Advances
NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—A sharp early advance in cotton due to continued covering by near month trade or speculative shorts was followed by reactions under realizing today. May after selling up to 16.47 on the urgent early demand or 39 points net higher, closed at 16.28 compared with 16.08 the previous day. New October sold up to 15.32 early and closed at 15.17 with the general market closing barely steady net 20 points higher to 5 points lower.

Good Demands for Grain on Thursday

PORT WORTH, April 24. (AP)—Good demand at unchanged prices was responsible today for the offerings of all grains except barley, which was slow. Dealers reported corn and sorghum especially easy to move while wheat meeting special needs sold readily.

Wheat: No. 1 ordinary hard milling 1.12 1-2 to 1.13.
Corn: No. 2 mixed 94 1-2 95 1-2; No. 2 white 97 to 98; No. 2 yellow 98 to 99.

Maximum Setbacks In Wheat Market

CHICAGO, Indications that government sponsored agencies were selling wheat on price bulges led to a maximum setback of 2 3-4 cents a bushel at one time today.
Generally favorable crop reports from the northwest, as well as forecasts of showers in drought districts southwest, counted also as a bearish influence. Estimates were current that the Grain Stabilization corporation possesses $6,000,000 bushels of wheat, and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde was quoted as acknowledging that the federal farm board had made a mistake in following figures on world supply and demand.
Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 6-8 @ 1-1-3 cents a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4 @ 5-8 off, oats 1-8 @ 1-4 down and provisions unchanged to 1/8c drop.
Corn and oats sympathized with downturns. Besides, corn offerings from the country were somewhat larger.

At the prison today a revolt of several convicts was quieted, but soon thereafter the convicts in the jail house, where practically all cell door locks had been broken, demanded release into the yard. Seven hundred gallons of hot coffee were served, and for a short time the men quieted.
Orders Rescinded
At dawn, plans were made to release some of the soldiers on duty outside, but the orders were quickly rescinded and additional troops called when the unruly leaders in the jail house, other cell blocks and the yard, urged the prisoners to "take a chance" on a break. For a time, rioting was feared. Even the calm voices of ministers and of the more

Lieutenant Governor Here On Visit Thursday; Does Not Discuss Campaign Issues; New Friends Made

Declaring that he, at this time, is not ready to discuss campaign issues, Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller, candidate for Texas governor, in Lubbock greeting old friends and making new ones.
Mr. Miller left the city in the afternoon for visits in Plainview and Amarillo, furthering his tour of the west which has carried him thus far into every county seat town on the T. & P. main line between Dallas and El Paso.
In Best of Spirits
He was in the best of spirits during his stay in Lubbock and stated that he expected to announce his platform and begin his statewide speaking campaign about the middle of June. He declined to comment upon any of his 12 opponents seeking the nomination to which he aspires.
Miller, however, did comment upon an editorial appearing yesterday in The Morning Avalanche in which this paper praised the candidacy announcement of Clint Small, of Wellington, latest gubernatorial aspirant. Mr. Miller referred to his own record in answering the Avalanche's desire to see a West Texan in the state house.
Supports West Texas
"I believe my record will show," Miller said, "that I have been a whole hearted supporter of West Texas and I do not believe any man can criticize my actions in regard to any part of this great state." He added that he had no criticism to make of the stand taken by the Lubbock paper in support of a West Texas man but asked that his position be made clear.

90,000 Acres Are Leased By Oil Drillers

Number Of Oil Tests To Be Made In Lynn County In Near Future; Acreage Is Scattered Over Area

(By Staff Correspondent)
 TAIHOKE, April 24. — Between 90,000 and 100,000 acres of land have been leased for drilling of oil tests in Lynn county, Pruet B. Smith, county clerk, estimates.

The acreages are scattered, with considerable leased in the north and northwestern section of the county. In this section the Shell Petroleum company has leased most of the acreage so far.

The Hart Oil corporation has the largest acreage under lease, about 35,000 acres. The Shell, Atlantic, Texas, Phillips, Mid-Kansas, Vacuum, Sun, World and Aspe syndicates have also leased considerable. Total is around 70,000 acres.

In addition to these leases held by companies there are about a score of independent operators who have individual holdings of various amounts.

None of the two or three tests so far put down have had good oil showings but there is a strong belief that oil in paying quantities will be found at great depths. Previous tests to the McCamey-Edwards test near here were shallow holes. This test is down 5,000 feet.

Besides the acreages around Tahoka, O'Donnell and Three Lakes have had good leasing campaigns. Prices are around $2.75 per acre for 10 year leases.
