Down On The Farm

J. W. King, Jr.

M. D. McCollum decided his old chicken house was rather inadequate for his flock and he is rebuilding it into a larger and better planned structure this week.

W. B. Robertson, whose home about two miles south of town burned last spring, has replaced it with a neat looking bungalow.

You will find most farm women these days canning everything they can get their hands on from beans to peaches and plums. If they're not canning they're sending it to their cold storage locker in Loraine.

Crops look surprisingly good in the dry section of the country a couple of miles south of town. With a good rain, farmers in that section could expect good cotton and feed crops.

Frank Brame has now a large tank of water in his pasture, formed by the construction of a dam across a small creek. He expects the tank to hold water almost the year round and be of great aid in providing water for his livestock.

Cotton Parity Payment Start

COLLEGE STATION, July 17. First certifications have been made of Texas cotton and rice parity payments under the 1940 AAA program.

Batches of cotton price adjustment applications from Nueces County and rice price adjustment applications from Colorado County were the first certified by the state AAA office and forwarded for payment, B. F. Vance assistant state AAA administrator said.

Approximately 300,000 applications, totaling $25,000,000 for cotton parity payments are anticipated the adminstrator said, while rice parity applications will number about 900 for a total of $260,000. Payments are expected to be completed by October 1.

Parity payments on wheat, meanwhile, are most complete with 46,468 applications, totaling $5,375,963, paid from an estimated 47,000 applications for $3,400,000.

Parity payments are distinct from conservation payments and are designed to restore to the agricultural producer a portion of the difference between what he receives for his product, and what is considered a fair return on the basis of what he must pay for the products of other industries. Parity payments on cotton are made at the rate of 1.55 cents per pound of the normal yield of cotton, rice at the rate of 9.3 cents per hundredweight, and wheat at the rate of 10 cents per bushel.

Virgil Fatheree Dies From Injuries In Highway Crash

Virgil Fatheree, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fatheree of Roswell, died at six o'clock last night from injuries sustained early Saturday morning when his bicycle was struck by a car driven by M. R. Jones of Herrin, Ill., on the Dexter highway near the Fairbank Service Station.

Authorities said that an inquest was not considered necessary, and that Jones would not be held.

The boy suffered a severe concussion of the brain and never regained consciousness after the accident, which occurred while he was riding his bicycle to East Grand Plains to spend the day with a sister. He apparently started to turn across the road to go into the Fairbank station, just as Jones' car was starting to pass him. He was struck by the right front fender of the car.

Virgil Fatheree had lived at Roswell with his family, for the past five years. He was born in Loraine, Texas, April 4, 1925. The family lives at 1705 North Missouri.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters Mrs. Nona Pickering and Mrs. Bennie Ham, and by two brothers, Bob Fatheree and W. R. Fatheree, all of Roswell.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon at two o'clock at the Talmage Memorial Chapel with Rev. B. A. Philpott, of the Baptist Church, in charge of the services. Music will be provided from the choir of that church. The casket bearers will be Carl Pickering, Butler Ham, Jeff Hamm, Mesley Whitworth, Asa Green and Ed Hastings. Interment will be made at South Park.

Feed Crops Are Needing Rain

Feed crops in this territory are needing another good rain. Although no feed crop has been seriously damaged by the dry hot weather the past week or two more moisture would be very beneficial at this time.

Cotton is not needing rain as yet and possibly will not for some time to come.

Gov. O'Daniel To Speak In Abilene

Governor W. Lee O'Daniel will make a swing through West Texas in the closing week of the primary campaign. with five mass meetings in as many days. Opening Monday night in Brownwood, he will continue to Wichita Falls Tuesday night, Amarillo Wednesday night, Lubbock Thursday night, concluding his campaign for renomination with a public address and radio broadcast in Abilene on election eve Friday night.

Delegations of supporters are being organized in every county west of Fort Worth to attend the meetings nearest their homes. The Governor will speak from his new sound truck, equipped with public address and illumination system, which was presented him by friends in Fort Worth. He will be accompanied on the tour by his Hillbilly Band and his family.

Only one meeting of the week will be broadcast, when he speaks over TQN network from Abilene. At the other meetings, the Governor has announced, he will speak directly to the people unhampered by the limitations of radio censorship, describing present conditions in state government and his plans for correcting deficiencies at Austin

This week the governor is touring South Texas and the Gulf Coast, speaking in Beaumont Wednesday night; Houston Thursday night; Corpus Christi Friday night, and San Antonio Saturday night.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS RENOMINATED

President Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for a third term in the Democratic national convention at Chicago Wednesday night.

After receiving 946 votes on the first ballot the nomination was made unanimous. Vice President John Nance Garner received 61 votes and Postmaster General James Farley 71.

Who Shall Install Light Equipment Is Major Problem

Dr. Bruce Johnson reported Wednesday morning that the light reflector for lighting of the football field came in which just about completed everything needed.

The major problem facing Dr. Johnson and the athletic council at this time is someone to place the equipment on the field. It was thought for a time that the job could be included in the NYA program but that organization has more to do now than it can get done before the beginning of school in September.

Just barely enough funds have been raised for the equipment and the athletic council has no funds at this time so some means will have to be provided to get the equipment placed at very little cost. If anyone has any suggestions Dr. Johnson would like to hear them.

METHODIST REVIVAL DRAWS GOOD CROWDS

The Methodist Revival opened at the Tabernacle on Friday night of last week with Rev. E. D. Landreth of Lamesa doing the preaching. Good crowds have been attending and on last Sunday night the tabernacle was filled to overflowing. There is being manifested a fine interest with splendid results.

The people are responding most favorably to Bro. Landreth's preaching. He is bringing some very fine and challenging messages that are stirring the hearts of young and old alike.

The revival will continue through the rest of this week closing Sunday night. Morning services are at 10:30 and the evening services are at 8:15. Every one is urged to come out to all the remaining services. Especially does the pastor, Bro. Shewbert, urge all to be present for the two services Sunday.

CANDIDATES INVITED TO USE THE NEWS IN LAST APPEAL

Candidates for office in Mitchell County are invited to use the columns of The Mitchell County News next week to get across a last appeal to the voters before the election on Saturday.

The News will endeavor to put the candidate's message before the voters in its advertising columns in a manner that will be pleasing and at no increase in the advertising rates.

It has been a custom of The News to publish a special election edition just before the election but this year we have not had time to work one up.

In our regular edition next week however we invite those candidates who desire to do so to use our columns.

Tnrn In A Personal News Item And Maybe Win A Prize

Personal news items such as "Mrs. Jones visited in Podunk" are the items we would like to have. We do have quite a lot of such items but we want and should have many more. Loraine and surrounding territory should furnish us with many such personal items.

In our rounds about town we keep our eyes and ears open to gather in these items but it is impossible for us to see everyone who visits in the community or to know everyone that leaves it to visit in other parts. Therefore the only way we can get many such items is for someone to tell us about them, We have a telephone for such purposes and shall be glad for anyone to call us at any time to report news. In fact we shall appreciate it and the subscribers will appreciate it. If you know any news do not hesitate to call 65 to report it thinking that we already have the item. We may or may not have it but we'll be glad for you to call anyway.

In order to stimulate your interest in reporting news personals we are going to offer a prize each week for the 25th personal each week we are going to give a six months subscription to The Mitchell County News. If you are already a subscriber your date of expiration will be set up six months. If you are not a subscriber you will be sent the paper for six months.

Turn in a personal and help your home town paper to be the best possible.

RIVER BRIDGE WORK AWAITS HIGHWAY ORDER

Epuipment was being moved to Colorado City last week by the R. W. McKinney Construction Company of Nacogdoches, low bidder on the contract for the new Highway 101 bridge over the Colorado river, but actual construction on the project was still pending the issuance of a work order by the state highway department.

Contract for the bridge was let for approximately $60,000. Approaches are to cost around $15,000 but no contract letting date for these has yet been named.

NO ELECTION PARTY TO BE HELD THIS YEAR

Because of the seeming noninterest in political affairs this year The Mitchell County News will not hold an election party on the night of the election as it has heretofore done.

In the past the cost of putting on the party has been more than we realized from extra advertising and this year we are not able to stand the cost. If the merchants and others desire a bulletin board and will help in defraying the expenses we could be persuaded to change our minds. If we do we shall announce our intentions in our issue of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Taylor and daughters of Colorado City spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Smith.

The annual meeting of the Church of Christ will begin Sunday, July 21, with Glen L. Wallace of Cleburne doing the preaching and Earnest W. Wells of Houston leading the song service.

Night services will be held outside the building where it will be cooler.

The public is invited to attend any and all the services. It will be remembered that Bro. Wallace conducted the meeting last summer. He is considered one of the most able preachers in the church.

EIGHT THOUSAND TAKE IN SHORT COURSE

COLLEGE STATION, July 17—Eight thousand farm people took in the annual Farmers' Short Course at Texas A. and M. College last week.

The number was made up of three thousand 4-H Club boys and girls who registered for the Junior section during the first two days of the week and of that many farm men and farm women who registered for the adult section. In addition, it is estimated that 2,000 people from surrounding counties attended without registering for rooms.

Frozen food lockers, land use planning and conservation headlined the program with speakers divided about equally between men and women of national importance and farm people.

Special groups who made the short course the occasion of meetings included the Texas Home Demonstration Association, Texas Agricultural Writers, Texas Agricultural Workers' Master Farmers of Texas and Hereford Cattle Breeder's Association.

County agricultural and home demonstration agents gathered for their annual conference, as did workers of the Agricultural Experiment Station. Serveral hundreds members of land use planning committees and some 500 AAA county committeemen also attended. The Texas County Agricultural Agents held a business session.

Volume UP Price DOWN

It has been said that advertising increases the price of goods.

True, advertising is part of the manufacturer's and merchant's cost of doing business, all of which must be covered in the price of his goods if he is to stay in business.

But advertising helps boost sales and production. Bigger volume cuts cost per unit made and sold. To meet competition the saving is passed on to the public in the form of a lower price.

Think of the prices of radios, mechanical refrigerators and heating appliances, automobiles, light bulbs and other products when first introduced and sold in small volume. Compare with their prices today, after advertising won them enormous acceptance! Successful advertising decreases the price of goods.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

F. D.'s Personality Dominates 1940 Democratic Convention; No U. S. Troops for Europe

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Right up to convention time, Franklin D. Roosevelt kept the country guessing on third term plans. The Democratic National Convention, meeting in Chicago, however, felt at all times the weight of the President's personality. The sketch herewith is by the famous artist, Helge Sahlin.

II GERMAN WAR:
Ships & Planes

Germany and England continued to blast one another from the air, with foolhardy gallantry. Germany slowly seemed to be establishing supremacy of numbers, although her pilots were sometimes too young, and not equal on the whole to the veteran regulars who made up a considerable portion of the royal air force: the R. A. F.

In the Mediterranean sea, the English and French and Italian fleets continued to skirmish, off North Africa, off West Africa, off Greece. Some of the French ships were surrendered to the British navy, others were sunk or disabled. Demobilized French flyers were joining up again, this time to help the Italian airmen bomb British Gibraltar. There were naval clashes between the Italian and British seamen, who already had eliminated seven of the eight French capital warships. The 43,000-ton "Ile de France"—that French luxury liner so well known in America—was seized by the British at Singapore, England's No. 1 naval base in the Far East, in the Malay peninsula. The best French warship—35,000 tons—was knocked out by a British motorboat, which artfully dropped a depth bomb near the stern. The victim was the famous Richelieu.

NO U. S. TROOPS:
But Billions for Defense

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt emphatically told congress we would send no man to European wars, but would only seek to defend the western hemisphere. Towards this end he asked for billions of dollars. This presidential statement to congress tended to match the "peace" plank in the Republican campaign platform, and might have removed one of the major issues from the 1940 race.

NAMES
. . . in the news

Gen. Juan Almazan, Mexican presidential candidate, praised the "success" of the Mexican election, and lauded its small loss of life. There were only 50 killed.

John Dewey, philosopher and educationalist, returned to teach at Columbia university for the first time in 10 years. He is 80 years old, but addressed 1,000 students with all his old steam.

Col. Brehon Somervell, WPA administrator in New York, ripped out four airport murals at Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn. It had taken four years to paint the four. Obviously, said the rippers, they were red communist propaganda, and so indeed they appeared to be. A pioneer parachute jumper looked suspiciously like Stalin, although the jumper really was Franz Reichelt, an Austrian tailor. (He had been killed, jumping from the French Eiffel tower, back in 1912.) Soviet red stars and Spanish loyalist flyers also appeared in the funniest places.

YE CAMPAIGN:
Fur Flies High

Wendell Willkie appointed Congressman Joe Martin of Massachusetts as his campaign manager, and then flew for Colorado on a vacation. En route, the Willkie airplane stopped in Nebraska. Willkie wisecracked to the crowd like this: "When I was out here three or four weeks ago, they said I brought rain. If you folks vote for me in November, we'll have the rain and the sunshine of economic progress." The folks thought that was just fine.

John Hamilton remained executive director of the Republican national committee, though he was retiring as national chairman. Russell Davenport was Willkie's personal representative, and Oren Root kept busy co-ordinating volunteer groups and independent organizations. Ten newspaper men, three photographers, and two telegraphists stuck to Willkie, and to the airplane: a 21-passenger DC-3.

At this point the Democrats had become more and more chaotic, due to lack of information about III term plans. Farley had been to Hyde Park, had learned the "truth," but came back to New York saying that it was all a secret. McNutt had indicated that he knew about it, too, but Mrs. Roosevelt had said she didn't know a thing. Speculation was rife up to the time the national Democratic convention opened. Willkie, of course, had been praying for the III term (or so he said), in order to beat it down. But he still had not said anything extended, at that point, about foreign affairs.

ARMY NOTE:
New York

Squadron A is the crack high-society national guard cavalry outfit in New York city. It used to wear snappy gray European hussar uniforms. It plays polo, and likes to talk horses, and has a fine 56-year record. It turns out good riders, amid plenty of conviviality. Then—a third of it got mechanized, and received 19 armored cars, instead of 97 horses.

The Seventh regiment is the crack high-society national guard infantry outfit in New York city. It used to wear fancy gray "1812" uniforms, with red stripes. It still does, on parade. It is more than 130 years old. Then—it turned into an anti-aircraft outfit, attached to the coast artillery, hardly the most aristocratic branch of the service.

WINGS 11 UP:
Soaring Aloft

The United States aviation corps may soon get planes capable of soaring 11 miles aloft. Thus, we can bomb from 36,000 to 60,000 feet up in the air, while effective anti-aircraft fire is only good for 30,000 feet. These flying fortresses are good for 300 miles per hour in the really high altitudes, and it takes 40,000 parts to put one together. The U. S. government, it was reported, may order 1,000 of the super-ships

WHAT A JOB:
Re-employed

The luckless duke of Windsor, who used to be King Edward VIII, got another job, at last. They made him governor of the Bahama islands, 20 of them inhabited, off the southeast coast of Florida. It was a $12,000 annual job, whose main function was to reign over ex-slaves and tourists from the United States. Capital of the Bahamas is Nassau, on New Providence island, where they have a nice beach, and a saloon of merit called "Dirty Dick's." Windsor used to have 500,000,000 people to reign over. Now he has 68,000, plus 6 officers and 124 policemen. Critics said the basic idea was to get him out of Europe, in case the Germans took over England. Hitler, they thought, might oust brother George, and reinstate brother Edward, who is better liked all round. (On the other hand, Queen Elizabeth is much better liked than Duchess Warfield.)

M. PETAIN:
Approved

While the British and American newspapers were hammering old Marshal Petain, the saviour of Verdun, who doesn't like Winston Churchill, the Vatican came out and declared that Petain was the best possible man to lead France. The Vatican said that the Marshal inspired French youth, and added that he represented the "best French tradition."

Petain is a good Catholic, and a close friend of the Catholic dictator of Spain, his former pupil, Generalissimo Franco. French General Weygand, who aids Petain in the new Italo-type French government, is also devoutly religious, although Pierre Laval, third member of the Gallic triumvirate, has a non-clerical background. Laval is father-in-law of the official heir of Lafayette.

While the Vatican approved, the "new" France got under way. The senate was to be appointed for life, while the chamber was to represent trades, jobs, and occupations, as in the corporative state of Mussolini. Both senate and chamber were to be largely advisory, and trade unions were to be abolished, on the Italic plan.

The professional trade groups, in the chamber, were to take the place of unions, and of political parties as well. The slogan of liberty-equality-fraternity (dating from 1789) was to be supplanted by another trio: labor-family-nation. This, again, was based on the fascist system of Rome. One wit put it like this: "When in Paris, do as the Romans do."

RACIAL:
Interesting

One of our foreign commentators raised an interesting point. It was this. He said that although Germans are currently unpopular, for excellent reasons, the American system was still functioning splendidly. To prove his statement, he pointed out that Wendell Willkie was of Germanic family origin. But this did not stop Mr. Willkie, able and magnetic and thoroughly likeable, from becoming the Republican candidate for President of the United States at a hectic time.

Hitler himself, said the commentator, was born in Austria, with only one Germanic parent, and one Czech parent (his mother). But Willkie was born in America, he continued, with two Germanic parents. He concluded that Willkie was a better type of the Germanic stock than the rampant Fuehrer. It was interesting to note, in addition, that our General Pershing's family name was Pfoersching, in the "correct" spelling.

Also, the Roosevelts have a Dutch origin which sometimes is mistaken for German.

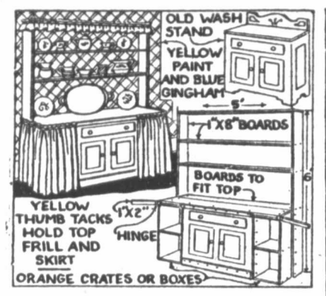

III REICH:
Complexities

The Hitlerian domain was sorted out into the following, to make its sway less confusing, for it covered a lot of ground in several main categories:

1. Hitler himself, plus the Nazi party itself.
2. Germany, including Austria, the Sudeten, Danzig, Posen, etc.
3. Protectorates of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Norway, Denmark, Luxemburg, Holland, Belgium, of which Denmark is the pet, with the Slovaks, Norse and Dutch next.
4. Fascist France—half victim, half neutral, a wee bit of an ally.
5. Italy, an ally, active.
6. Japan, an ally, passive. Also Spain and Hungary.
7. Russia, a treaty partner, uncertain. (Russia wants Constantinople.)
8. Client states of Sweden, Rumania. (Through Sweden and Hungary Germany has army transit rights. Spain and Rumania might come into the war on the German side.)

There was much talk about a single currency for Hitler-Europe, to promote "continental" free trade. The U. S. A. now has 80 per cent of the world's gold, $20,000,000,000 of it, and if it was loaned to Hitler-Europe, it would have to open wide its doors to Hitler-European goods. Hitler's "continental" currency, it was suggested, might not be based on gold at all, which would leave Yankee Kentucky out on a limb. Said a foreign statesman: "An axis victory means the end of gold slavery."

HOW TO SEW
by Ruth Wyeth Spears

SO MANY of you have written me letters of appreciation about the new SEWING BOOK 5 that I want to thank you all here at one time. In Book 1 is sketched and described methods of making slip covers, curtains, bedspreads, dressing tables and other things for the house. Next came Book 2 with gifts, novelties and a glossary of embroidery stitches. Then, in Book 3, I began to share with you some of the human interest side of this fascinating job of mine, and to tell you about the adventures of many clever women who make the things that they want for their homes—sometimes from almost nothing. There were more of these adventures in Book 4, and there are still more in Book 5.

There is nothing that pleases me so much as when you tell me that my sketches are so clear that you can see at a glance how to make things. I am glad that everything needed is in today's sketch about this remodeled washstand because I have used up all my space now; and the frill around the top shelf is five inches deep. CHAPTER XV—Continued

Sheila looked at Frank steadily, unable to speak, unable to smile or move, chained in her chair, the apricot color flooding her face, her blue eyes fixed on his.

For a long time they looked at each other in silence. Color had come into Frank's face, too. After a while he smiled, his kindest, his simplest smile.

"I'm sorry," he said. And after a pause he repeated it. "I'm terribly sorry."

"Oh, that's all right," Sheila assured him politely, clearing her throat again. And for a long time neither could seem to find anything further to say.

"It must sound—kind of flat—for me to say that I like you—awfully, more than any—any girl your age I ever knew," Frank presently ventured, with an awkward laugh.

"No, I'm glad," Sheila responded very simply and honestly.

She looked up at him, looked down again. She was young, almost childish-looking in the big chair, with her blue hat curving off her face like a baby's cap, and her coppery film of hair almost in her blue eyes.

"My father says you're moving to Astoria," Frank said.

"Next month."

"Will you be glad, Sheila?"

"Glad!" she echoed. "Angela and I'll have a room to ourselves!"

"Oh, and where'll Joe be?"

"Joe and Ceely want to get married."

"Ah, and now they can?"

"Your father told Ma that if she'd keep the eight houses rented for him she wouldn't have to pay any rent; she'd get paid, herself."

"Does she like that idea, Sheila?"

"She said it was an answer to prayer, and Joe is working."

There was a long pause. Sheila knew that she ought to go, now. But her limbs refused to obey the languid impulse of her mind. She ought to go—she ought to go—

But that would end it. When she went now, she never would see him again. The black thick hair, and the dark-blue of the shaven jaw, and the little half-smile he so often gave her, and the ways in which he was so old and so wise—and the ways in which he was so young and so simple—all gone out of her life, when she walked out of this house.

"I remember the night you first called here, you—you were all gotten up as a beggar," Frank recalled. "I came into the hall and asked Mamie who had left the rag-bag in. And she said that Gertrude—by the way, where is that purse?"

"Most of the money, luckily, I left with Mamma," Sheila explained. "But the purse I lost. I had it up in the farmhouse in Connecticut, I remember, because my make-up was in it, and I powdered my nose there—I remember that. But then—in all the excitement of getting away, and the queerness of it all, I dropped it, somewhere. And I lost my blue hat the day of the smash."

"Well, I think I owe you a hat," Frank said.

"Oh, no, you don't! This one," Sheila told him, "cost me ninety-eight cents. It was in a window. They had every hat with the two copper cents lying next to it."

"The two copper cents?"

"Lying next to it. Your change from a dollar," she explained.

"Ah—?"

Sheila stood up, smiling a good-by. Frank took her hand.

There was time for no more. Sudden footsteps sounded in the hall, and with tremendous uproar, Peter McCann was in the room.

"Frank!" he shouted.

He stopped short at the sight of Sheila.

"Hello, Sheila," he said.

"Hello! Sheila responded, simply.

They stood looking at each other a moment, then Peter, with a return of excitement, turned toward his brother. "Frank, d'you know what's happened? Gee, I'm glad Sheila's here for this!"

"What's the matter?"

"They've found the farmhouse! They found the place those fellows took us, Sheila!"

"They've found the farmhouse!" Sheila exclaimed. "Oh, Peter!"

"'Member you drew a plan of the rooms for the police? Well, listen, they want to see you again, and check up on that plan, and they found your purse, and everything! Listen, Frank, two school teachers or artists or something from Boston have that place, and they went up there for school vacation, see?—and they found signs of bootleggers—and everything—"

"Who said so?" Frank interrupted, almost as much excited as his brother.

"The police. This country cop came all the way down to identify the purse. They telephoned here, a couple of hours ago; you were asleep, and everyone else was out, and I beat it right over to see him. Well, there was your blue purse all right, with Gert's initials and our address on it, Sheila."

"And they found the place wrecked?"

"They say the fellows must have stopped using it right after they took us up there."

"This is interesting!" Frank said.

"Frank, they'd like to ask Sheila some questions. Could she and I go over there now?"

"Hang it," Frank said, "you ought to have someone, Pop or me, with you!"

"We don't need anyone!"

"How much—" There was rising excitement in Frank's voice. "How much'd I have to walk, Pete, if I went with you?"

"Oh, Frank, you oughtn't!" Sheila protested.

"Shucks, it can't hurt me!"

"You wouldn't have to walk a step, Frank. We can get a taxi."

"I'd like to go. I'd know what they were after."

"It wouldn't hurt you a bit."

"I don't believe it would," Frank said slowly.

"Aw, come on, Frank! Come on. All they want is to ask Sheila a few questions."

"It wouldn't take us fifteen minutes—" the invalid mused, tempted.

"You were out yesterday," Peter urged. "You managed that all right."

"I know. What harm can it do?" Frank exclaimed, throwing hesitation to the winds. "Get me my coat, Pete."

He hobbled to the head of the stairs, managed them easily; Sheila fearfully fluttering ahead, with his stick and his hat, and Peter accompanying him anxiously and warningly. They reached the lower hall, moving slowly but steadily to the front door.

"I'm all right. I feel fine!" Frank said.

The taxi was waiting; they could see it as they reached the top of the brownstone steps. Sheila took the stick again; Peter again caught a firm hold of his brother's arm.

They had gained the sidewalk when a limousine drew up ahead of the taxi, and three women and a stout, gray-headed man got out. The man was Judge Paul Mc Cann; one of the ladies was his wife.

The other two were Gertrude Keane and Bernadette Kennedy.

Peter, Frank and Sheila stood rooted to the pavement, the recent arrivals stood stricken, too, gazing at them, at the taxi, back at them again.

"Well, you have both the boys now, haven't you?" Bernadette Kennedy finally said sweetly.

"I never told you and Angela exactly what happened, Ma," Sheila said.

She had washed her bright coppery hair, and as it tumbled in rings and fishtails on her neck, the spring sunshine struck dazzling lights from it. A towel was spread across her shoulders, and belted trimly about the curves of her young body was an old blue cotton kimono.

The three women of the Carscadden family were in the sunroom of their new home. It was the corner house of a commonplace block of two-story, two-flat buildings that stretched in every direction across the gently rolling levels of what had recently been a dump for the greatest of all the cities. On top of the dump real-estate developments had been started; every corner bore signs advertising the merits of this "five-room home" or that. The downstairs apartments were all alike; all had five rooms, one bath, and this delightful feature of a sun-porch; a square, bare, unimaginative twelve by seven feet of space at the front, glassed in from the street.

Blocks of it, miles of it, and the Carscaddens' particular corner only one of a thousand corners. But to them it was no less than heaven.

As for their mother, she had been in a state of dignified outrage since Sheila's latest escapade, and had been reluctant to express enthusiasm about anything. But it was noted that her first act in the new home had been to gather her children about her: Sheila, Angela, Joe, Cecilia, Marg'ret and Marg'ret's Lew, Neely and his Lizzie, and, kneeling down, solemnly to recite some litanies that were to bring blessings upon the God-given increase, and solemnly to assure the listening saints that rather than have one mortal sin committed beneath this new roof, she would resign the new domain gladly and gratefully, and go back to the poverty and obscurity of the old days again.

And this ceremony had told her children more than any words of hers might have done, exactly what significance the adventure had for Ma. And Ma, for the first time, had a room to herself.

And Sheila had gotten a job.

CHAPTER XVI

Sheila's job was not much of a job, to be sure, nor was she to be needed until May first. But it was near; it was in the department store over under the elevated road, five blocks away, and she could walk to and fro, so that the fifteen a week was almost pure gain. Sheila was to sit near the main entrance in a sort of little pulpit, and tell arriving customers where everything in the store was to be found. A small, heavy brass triangle would stand near her hand, and printed on it would be "Miss Carscadden had been chosen because of her exceptional courtesy and efficiency. It will give her real pleasure to help you."

"The place is full of that sort of bunk, but who cares? I don't care what they think about me," Sheila had said, indulgently, upon reporting this fact. "I'm reformed, anyway," she had added. "I'm all for citizenship and helpful house spirit—I'm going in for character building, clean finger nails, and a low, rich voice."

"Ma—" Sheila had pleaded, and it was then that she had added, while she spread and tossed her blazing hair, "I never told you and Angela what really happened, Ma."

"An' God preserve me that you iver wud!" her mother said simply. "There's niver a breath of blame cud be said against ye, but we'll all be up in the Death Row itself if iver ye get another chance to do good to somebody, or get yourself out of somethin !"

"Now, on Palm Sunday afternoon," Sheila continued pleasantly, "what harm did it do me to drive to a police station with Peter and Judge Mc Cann, make a short statement and have Judge Mc Cann give me a dollar for my taxi home? I stayed in the taxi," Sheila added, in reminiscent tones, "until it said thirty cents, then I gave him a ten-cent tip, jumped into the subway, and made fifty-five cents on the judge!"

"It makes me nervous to have ye talk about thim Mc Canns, Sheila. I'd niver know what minute ye'd be in throuble again," her mother said.

"Peter and Gertrude Keane are getting married next fall, Ma; that's all the trouble amounted to there."

"Yes, an' what about the other poor feller?"

"You mean Frank?" Sheila asked dreamily. The name sounded like music on her lips. "I don't know—" she admitted slowly.

"Whin did ye see him?" the mother demanded suspiciously.

"Mother, I give you my word I haven't seen him since that Palm Sunday—nearly three weeks ago."

"Sheila Carscadden," Angela said instantly, when they were alone, "you had a wire this morning."

"I know it. But Ma only asked about seeing him."

"All right," Angela said, in displeasure, "if you want to lie."

"I didn't lie!"

"You practically did," Angela persisted.

Sheila's expression grew suddenly disarming and young.

"Listen, Angie. I was knocked completely in a heap when I got it. I—" she interrupted herself. "How'd you know it was from Frank Mc Cann?" she demanded.

"I didn't read it, if that's what you mean," Angela answered. "But the way you've been acting since it came—" she explained eloquently.

"I know—" Sheila murmured, looking away.

"You've been talking character for weeks now," the younger sister pursued. "You've been horribly quiet—we've all seen it. You've jumped whenever anyone spoke to you, and you've gone off into sort of dreamy states—"

"I know," Sheila admitted again, still staring into space with tranced eyes.

"And I knew it was Frank!" Angela concluded triumphantly.

The other girl spoke slowly:

"I've known all along that it was Frank."

"And in his wire—Sheila, do you think he likes you?" Angela demanded eagerly.

"Angela, I don't know. He only says, 'Coming to see you Sunday.' "

"Tomorrow?"

"I guess so."

"Sheila, what'll you do if Frank Mc Cann is just coming down here to tell you he's going to be married?" the younger sister asked after a silence.

"I thought of that."

"But after all, why should he?" Angela asked sensibly.

"It's just one of the things he would do," Sheila mused. "Well," she added, with spirit, "he'll not see me lose my nerve!"

"But will you feel—terribly, Sheila?" Angela asked timidly, after another pause.

Sheila brought her gaze back from far spaces.

"Oh, Angela, it will be very hard," she answered, simply.

It was not fifteen minutes later that Angela called.

"Sheila!"

"Woo-hoo!" Sheila returned, from the depths of the house.

"Mr. Mc Cann is here!" Angela shouted.

"Mr. Mc Cann what?" (There were hairpins in Sheila's mouth.)

"Mr. Mc Cann is here."

"Yes, he is!" Sheila said in a clearer tone. "Well, amuse him until I put on some lipstick. Dance and sing to him, dear, and give him a sweet kiss!" she added. And quite audibly she went on, "Ma, I'm mixed up with those Mc Cann boys again!"

"God forbid!" Mrs. Carscadden's voice said fervently.

"I really am, Ma."

"There's worse things than death, if the truth were known," the older woman observed solemnly.

"Sheila!" Angela called sharply. "Mr. Mc Cann really is here!"

"What!" they could hear Sheila gasp in a sharp whisper. She came to the door of the sun porch; she saw him, tall and dark and smiling. "Well, really, Angela," she said, in the last stage of horror and exasperation. "Really!"

"Well, what else could I do?" Angela retorted, aggrieved.

"I don't know what you'll think—I never dreamed—I wish I could remember what I said—how are you?" Sheila said, looking so lovely in her confusion and pleasure and anger that Frank gave an embarrassed laugh, and stammered on his own account as he greeted her.

"You didn't say anything, except that your sister was to dance and sing for me, which she hasn't done."

Mrs. Carscadden now majestically adding herself to the group, Frank addressed himself to her in tones not quite loud enough to drown out her scathing observation to Sheila to the effect that perhaps now, she, Sheila, wouldn't feel it necessary to wake the dead when anyone called her a message.

"I did say Sunday in my wire," Frank admitted, "but today was such a heavenly day, and I was free—"

"There was nothing said to me of a telegram," Mrs. Carscadden assured him. "That's the manners of today," she continued. "They'd niver tell you annything, the lot of them. My own good mother'd niver have a dispatch—an' it was few she had, thanks be to God, for ivery last wan of them had death in the fir'rst wor'rd of it—but she'd niver have one of them what the whole lot of us wouldn't run to her like a flock of bir'rds. We kep' nothin' from her, nor she from us."

"Telegram used to mean trouble, Pop says," Frank contributed cheerfully.

"Children mane throuble," Mrs. Carscadden instantly amended it. "That one, now," she went on, with a dark glance at Sheila, "she'd drag the whole family into it like a dog draggin' a table-cloth!"

"Mamma, you don't believe that," Sheila protested.

"It's up in flyin' machines, off in cars, onto roofs—she'll leap into annything!" pursued the mother.

"Sheila will," Frank said simply, looking at her.

CHAPTER XVII

"Angela," Mrs. Carscadden said instantly, interpreting a look from Sheila, like the good mother she was, "will ye step into the back room there wit' me, dear'r, whilst I'd pin up the little cur'rtains?"

"Let me help!" Frank offered.

"I wud, indade, Mr. Mc Cann, but 'twill only take us the second of a second! An' how's yure good mamma?" Mrs. Carscadden asked politely, in retreat.

"She's fine, thank you. She was perfectly delighted," Frank said, "with Angela's letter about the new house."

"Do we love it!" Sheila exclaimed.

"We'll be back," her mother said, departing with Angela. Frank and Sheila were alone.

There was a silence.

"One thing I came to tell you was," Frank began, "that Bernadette sailed for Italy last night."

"Oh?"

"She and her brother have been planning it for years, and—our plans," Frank hesitated, "sort of knocked it in the head. They were delighted to go. She was laughing—honestly. I went down to the boat, and she was—I've never seen Dette so gay. She said to me, 'This is more fun than our engagement party, Frank!' "

"She didn't."

"Yes, she did. I think she felt relieved," Frank persisted.

"But it wouldn't have mattered," he said, after a silence. "It wouldn't—it couldn't—have mattered how she felt, because I—I couldn't have gone on with it."

Sheila said nothing.

"I knew it," Frank went on, "on Palm Sunday. I knew—why Bernadette and I could wait five years to get married. I knew that if you can wait at all there's something wrong. You were smart enough to know that. I wasn't."

"I?" Sheila asked thickly.

"Yes—you told me that."

She had been sitting on an old kitchen chair with a rodded back; now Frank drew near it the box on which Angela had been sitting, and sat down and laid one hand on her own locked hands, on her knee.

"It's—that way—with me," he said.

Sheila raised thick eyelashes, with a little effort, and looked at him.

"The world's split in two for me," the man said, as she made no effort to reply, but continued to look at him steadily through the black fringe of her lashes. "They're all laughing at me at home; I don't care. I want to tell everyone I meet about you. I can't eat; I'm crazy. And it isn't only you, Sheila, it's everything. One of the fellows in the office is just married, and I was talking to him yesterday and thinking what a miracle it must be to go home to your wife—"

"I know—" Sheila said in the pause, gazing at him with round, fascinated eyes, like a child.

JOB'S REPENTANCE AND RESTORATION

LESSON TEXT—Job 42:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends.—Job 42:10.

The problem of suffering, like every other question arising in man's inquiring heart, finds its true solution in a right view of God. Job found it to be so. As long as he and his friends concentrated their attention on his person and his troubles, they only became more deeply involved in confusion and doubt. Much of their discussion was on a high moral and philosophical plane, and they were all doubtless earnest and capable men, but in the end Job learned, and they learned through him, that the real difficulty was that they did not know God.

Then God Himself appeared and brought before Job a panorama of the glorious works of God and His blessings upon mankind (chaps. 38-41). Where was Job when the world was created (38:4)? Who holds the world together (38:6)? What is the origin of light (38:19)? What about the glory of the snowflake (38:22)? Job is told to consider the hand of God in the animal kingdom (chap. 39) and upon those that dwell in the sea (chap. 41). It dawned upon Job that he had been arguing against the providences of the all-knowing and all-powerful One—the eternal God. In that conviction and the repentance which it brought forth, he experienced—

I. Renewed Fellowship (vv. 1-6).

Job came to the realization that he had not really known God Himself until now. His religious experiences and convictions hitherto, precious and important as they were, had been by "the hearing of the ear," but now he had met God and all was changed. Fellowship with the Lord was renewed, but on an infinitely higher plane. Job had a real revival in his life which caused him to "abhor" everything that he had said and done; yes, even to set himself aside and to take God to be all and in all.

Our churches are full of people who only know God by hearsay. They have heard about Jesus Christ since their childhood, but they have never met Him. They have read of the Holy Spirit, but they have never known His power. We need a God-sent revival, one like those of the past which "have broken out like fire . . . consuming dead and outworn systems, burning sin like a roaring flame, and casting a new light across men's pathways" (E. L. Douglass).

II. Restored Usefulness (vv. 7-10a).

God's rebuke of Job's friends is significant, for it centers, not in their failure to deal rightly with Job, but their failure properly to represent God. It is a tremendously serious matter to attempt to tell others about God, for in doing so we must not in any way misrepresent Him. To stand before men as religious teachers and leaders and not to know Him so well that we represent Him rightly, is to invite His judgment and condemnation.

Job, on the other hand, was restored to a place of honor and usefulness. His friends, who thought they knew so much more than he about God, are told to ask Job to pray for them. He thus was afforded the opportunity of returning good for evil and was again enabled to serve God in serving his fellow men. Salvation is by faith (Eph. 2:8, 9); but being saved, we are restored to the place of usefulness to God.

III. Returned Prosperity (vv. 10b-13).

The abundant blessing of God upon Job is described in oriental terms of money, herds of cattle, and of a large family. These are the tangible evidences of God's blessing, and even to us today they speak of a liberal and loving God. God can and does prosper His own obedient children even in material things.

Such outward mercies, however, only feebly represent the blessings of the soul, the ultimate and eternal joys of the spirit. They point us, it is true, to the assurance that as we yield ourselves in unconditional obedience to God's will, we may confidently trust Him with the dark days of sorrow and affliction, as well as the days of sunshine and prosperity. No matter how tangled may seem the threads on this side of the loom, we know that the heavenly Father behind the scenes is weaving the pattern of beauty which shall one day be revealed as we stand complete in Christ.

Death of Saul

So Saul died for his transgression which he transmitted against the Lord, even against the word of the Lord, which he kept not, and also for asking counsel of one that had a familiar spirit, to enquire of it.—I Chronicles 10:13.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

The German government sent to Secretary Hull a note a few days ago in which it stated that it had no intention of aquiring any territory in the western hemisphere. yet at the same time it would pay no attention to the Monroe Doctrine. Then it warnd the United States that if it expected Germany not to meddle with affairs in the Western hemisphere it should quit meddling with affairs in Europe. On the face of it that sounds like a fair proposal, but it is entirely beside the point. The United States has never sought to aquire territory in Europe. It is not doing so now. But Germany can not deny that she has long sought opportunity to gain a foothold on the western continent. her present war of conquest in which she has subjugated unoffending neighboring nations that do have possesions in the Western Hemisphere would naturally lead to the belief that she would undertake to assert her sovereignty over these western possesions a soon as she might deem the time to be opportune. She does have designs on the Western Hemisphere and everybody knows it. Any statement made to the contrary is merely another one of Hitler's lies. She has spies and Nazi fifth columnists in almost every nation in almost every nation in the western hemisphere today. she has them in the United States. And if she succeeds in crushing Great Britain she will then proceed to make trouble for us.She puts us on notice to that effect when she notifies us that she will pay no attention to our Monroe Doctrine.

Weekly Health Letter

Austin, Texas, July 17—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever, is largely a summer disease.

Although cases may occur during any month of the year, over half the total cases occur durin July, August, September and October. Through June 30, fifty three cases of poliomyeliiis (infantile paralysis) had been reported to the Health Department.

Direct contact between persons is the chief factor in spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have beensuspecied of conveying the virus germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been demonstrated. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advisable the reduction to minimum of human contact during any out break of this disease.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis comprise headache fever vomiting bowel disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of cases make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures.

After the acute stage of the disease has passed and walking is permitted the patient. under no circumstances must the affected part of the body be fatigued. It is thus observer that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in continuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience.

Children under five are more susceptible to the disease, and all children under twelve should be watched for suspicious symptoms. Your family.. physician.. should be called at once and physicians should report all cases to local and state health.. authorities.... immediately. When the disease occurs, all cases should be insolated for twteny-one days. All milk should be boiled unless it is pasturized.

Children should not visit homes where the disease, or symptoms of the disease. exist. Promptness in diagnosis of poliomyelitis is a most important factor in control measures.

Charles Page spent last week visiting in Snyder.

Goodbye, Mr. Gloom!

. . . We're a jolly bunch of renegades . . . our sole purpose in life is to give Old Man Gloom the gate and usher in Mr. Sunshine by way of a million laughs. Turn to the Funny Page in every issue and let us help dispel those troubles!

● No man can really live by bread alone. Yes, we admit he'll EXIST, but there will be heavy lines of care running down his face, he'll forget how to smile.

● Verily, we humans need a few hearty guffaws now and then to chase away those wrinkles of care and give our spirits a lift. That's why this newspaper runs a collection of laugh-provoking comic strips on the Funny Page. Amid the depressing news of floods and earthquakes, crime and war, economic troubles and a host of other maladjustments on the face of Mr. World, it's a pleasant relaxation to shut your eyes on the day's bad tidings.

● You can get a joyful lift in spirits from the comics. We invite our readers to take a big swallow of this bottled sunshine. Turn to the Funny Page right now and forget your troubles!

● Our comic characters are a versatile lot, as you'll notice by glancing down the accompanying panel. If you want to chuckle over real troubles, turn to C. M. Payne's strip "S'Matter Pop," and see what a whale of an order he has to keep these boys of his under control . . . Or glance at the adventures of the intellectual Adamson, as drawn by O. Jacobsson.

● Something that will truly draw tears—of laughter—are Gluyas Williams' mischievous but lovable youngsters, Junior and the Baby . . . Then there's "Finney of the Force," by Ted O'Loughlin, as comical and as true-to-life an Irisher as ever flipped a night stick . . . Life out in Cactus Center, as described in S. L. Huntley's "Mescal Ike," has its exciting moments when its rip-roaring citizens are on the loose . . . And when it comes to "The Featherheads," by Osborne, they speak for themselves. In fact, that's the best thing they do!

● Let these bearers of fun whittle your blues down to size. Toss trouble right out the window and get a new lease on life through the comic page—turn to it right now! ●

WHY AMERICA HAS A FARM PROBLEM

One factor that has contributed to America's farm problem is increased cost of farming.

In 1935 farmers received only a little more than half the share of the national income they did in 1910, but their costs were several times greater.

Thus while in 1910 the operating 4 million dollars, in 1935 the cost amounted to 440 million dollars.

Interest on farm mortgages totaled 199 million dollars in 1910 and 400 million dollars in 1935.

In 1910 autos, tractors, and other machinery cost farmers 222 million dollars.

There were no expenses for electricity in 1910; in 1935 this item cost farmers 68 million dollars.

Several of these items have combined to make the work of the farmers go further and have thus contributed to the agricultural surpluses.

COTTON INSECT CONTROL
COTTON FLEA HOPPER
— By —
— L.W. Bramblett —
— Sweetwater Cotton Oil Co. —

Damage done by the flea hopper can be determined only by a careful and close examination of the cotton plants. The fruit that is killed by the flea hopper ranges in size from a square that measures about one-fourth of an inch across, down to buds that are about the size of a pin head. Flea hoppers have been more or less numerous in this section for a number of years, and have been responsible for a considerable loss in yield over a long period of time. Flea hoppers can easily be controlled by the use of a dusting machine and a special sulphur preparation (Sulphur in a very fine form).

COUNCIL PRESIDENT CALLS FOR UNIVERSAL SERVICE IN BATTLE FOR INCREASED CONSUMPTION

* * *

Cotton firms and cotton farmers of Loraine and surrounding area were called on today by President Oscar Johnston of the National Cotton Council for "100 per cent allegiance in cotton's total war for increased consumption."

In a message addressed to local producers throughout the county President Johnston declared that "the raw cotton industry is arming as never before in its history to smash down the blitzkrieg of substitution, surplus, and foreign competition."

The message came simultaneously with the National Cotton Council's announcement of a "universal service" plan to provide funds with which to carry on the fight during the coming year. The new plan, to go into effect August 1. calls for defence fund of five cents on every bale of lint and three cents on every ton of seed, mobilized with the help of each of the five primary raw cotton intrests.

Under the new plan arrangements have been perfected enabling the producer to make his nickel a bale contribution at the first point of sale, either to the cotton merchant, large or small, or the ginner or warehouseman acting as merchant. This contribution is carried on from merchant to compressor who remits the accumulated funds to the Council when the bale is first compressed, or from merchant to textile mill which remits on uncompressed cotton.

Simlarly, contributions on seed, which are made by the ginner and crusher, are assembled and remitted to the war chest by the oil mills.

"For fifty years we cotton farmers have been talking about an organization like the National Cotton Council to defend our markets and find new ones through judicious advertising, intelligent research, an organize opposition to restrictive legislation. At last we have it, and in two years, eqqipped with modern weapons, it has accomplished more than any of us thought was possible in so short a period.

"Domestic consumption has been brought back virtually to the all time high, with every indication that a new record can be set in 1941. Plans are ready for a vigorous attack on the acute problem of foreign trade. Council scientists are on the trail of new uses. A united cotton industry has gone to war."

Firemen Appeal For Lower Rates

Texas volunteer firemen who obtained a $2,500,000 annual saving last year to Texan's on residential and other fire insurance, this week appealed to farmers, ginners and others to assist in preventing unreasonable increases in rural insurance rates which have been proposed by insurance companies before the Texas Board of Insurance Commissioners.

In an article released today, Bayne Satterfield, editor of the Texas Fireman, stated that much of the savings obtained by the ten percent reduction on dwellings and other rates last year would be wiped out if the proposals to increase farm, gin, cotton while ginning and other rural insurance went into effect.

The Texas Fireman's editor gave much credit for the savings effected last year to Olin Culberson, rate expert and executive secretary of the fireman's organization for the past 22 years. Culberson, former chief of the Gas Utilities division of the Texas Railroad Commission and a candidate for Railroad Commissioner, has been following volunteer fire fighting and prevention work as a serious hobby for more than 25 years.

Proposals before the insurance commission include an increase on farm risks of 25 cents for non-standard flues; a new charge for the use of kerosene or gasoline unapproved cook stoves and heaters and an increase of 10 cents on the tenent charge. The firemen of Texas are opposing all increases, Satterfield's article stated, on the grounds they are unreasonable; that the earnings of fire insurance companies are already beyond the rate allowed by law and would far exceed the limit if the increases were allowed and on the grounds that automatic additional penalties assessed this year by reason of bad fire records would take care of the heavier losses last year.

"The tremendous savings resulting from our efforts last year was due largely to Olin Culberson's rate making experience, and with outside help from the farmers, the ginners association and others affected, increases in the rate can be forestalled," Satterfield said. "We appeal to farmers and owners of farm risk property to join with the Texas firemen to urge Senators and Representatives to protest the unreasonable proposals."

HOW TO PREPARE VEGETABLES TO STORE IN YOUR FROZEN FOOD LOCKER

There is nothing about the preparation of fruits or vegetables for freeszing that cannot be done by the average housewife in the average kitchen.

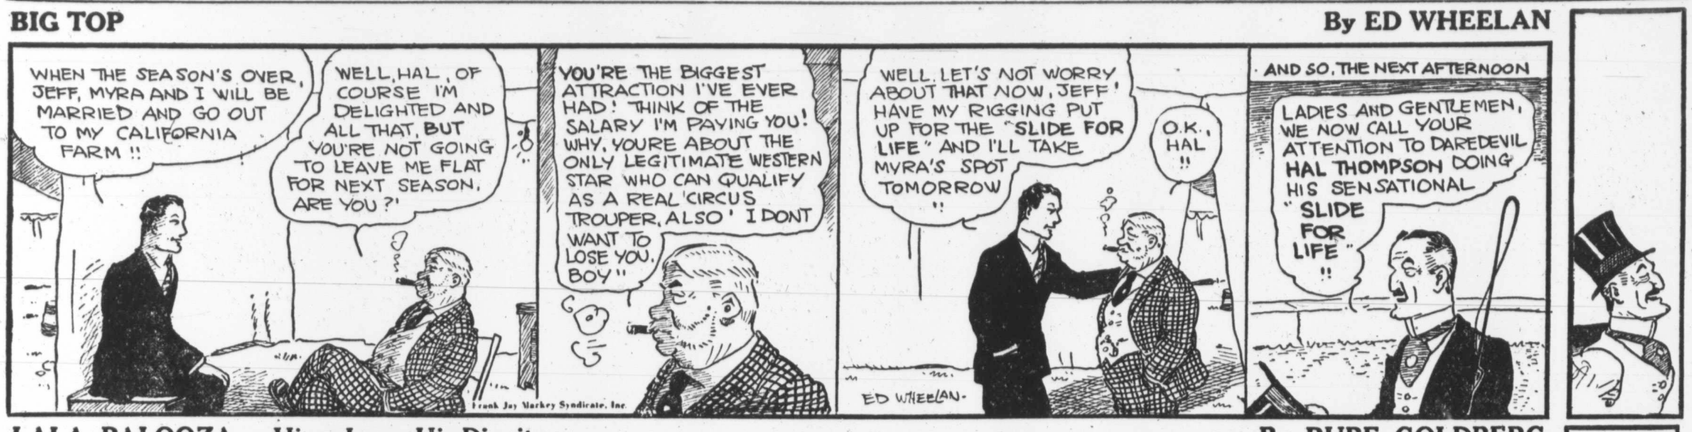

BLANCHING: Vegetables must be blanched (scalded). It is not possiable to store any vegetables satisfactorily unless they are well blanched. Insufficient blanchcing will also lead to slightly noticeable and loss of flavor. Blanching drives the air from the pores of the product. improves it's freezeability, maintains its color and, most important, stops undesirable changes while in storage. Water used for blanching should be at or near the boiling point depending upon the product. Use sufficient water and see that all portions of the products are thoroughly immersed.

MUDDLE

A doctor, at a deaf and dumb institution invited a friend to its annual dance. He explained that when the guest wished to dance with one of the inmates he should smile and make a circle with his hand.

The guest picked out a pretty girl, and went through the necessary formula. She responded, and they had several dances.

Then the doctor arrived, and, to the guest's surprise, asked his partner whether she would give him a dance. She said, "Yes, when I can get rid of this deaf and dumb fellow!"

JOE E. BROWN'S first week before the cameras in the Columbia picture, "So You Won't Talk," marking his return to the screen after a serious automobile accident that put him in the hospital for four months, left no doubt that he was fully recovered.

In the first three days Joe fell off beds, crawled under them, jumped out of a second-story window, and swung a haymaker to Charles Wilson's jaw that connected accidentally and knocked the actor senseless for two minutes.

"So You Won't Talk" is a comedy in which Brown plays the dual rcle of a timid book reviewer and a gang baron for whom he is mistaken; Frances Robinson plays opposite him.

JOE E. BROWN

Ace Director Clarence Brown recalls that in the days of the silent pictures the saying was that the worst pictures had the most titles, and a really great picture such as "The Last Laugh" had no titles at all. Now it seems likely that one of the great talking pictures has proved that the bigger they are, the less the actors say.

"Edison, the Man," Mr. Brown's latest directorial effort, goes a long way toward proving that fact. There is perhaps half a reel during the climatic sequence in which hardly a word is spoken. "The suspense during the 40-hour test of Edison's first electric bulb, I tried to relate entirely in pictorial terms," said the director. "And that is the stretch during which the audience is most acutely attentive."

Wayne Morris can't escape the Lane sisters. If he isn't acting with Priscilla, he's acting with Rosemary. Priscilla's one up on her sister; she teamed with him in "Love, Honor and Behave," "Brother Rat," and "Brother Rat and a Baby." Rosemary won him in "An Angel From Texas," and she's his romance again in "Ladies Must Live," their current picture at Warner Brothers'. Meanwhile the romance of his personal life seems to have hit the rocks.

ENTERTAINING WHEN THE WEATHER'S WARM
(See Recipes Below)

If the mercury seems likely to pop right through the top of the thermometer, and guests are coming for dinner, you can still keep cool!

Plan your menu to permit as much preparation as possible in the cooler hours of the morning. Remember, when you plan the meal, that quality rather than quantity will please your guests, and that a beautiful, cool, crisp salad will be more appetite-tempting, by far, than all the complicated hot dishes you can name!

It's wise, of course, to include one hot food in your menu, even though the weather's torrid. There's something about the contrast of hot foods and cold that makes a meal more pleasant to the taste (and to the digestion, as well).

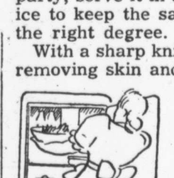

A cup of clear, hot soup, which might be prepared the day before and reheated just before serving, a hot main dish that's not too hearty or just a hot beverage, if you prefer it, will do the trick.

You'll find menus and tested recipes for all kinds of summer entertaining in my cook book, "Easy Entertaining." There are menus (and recipes) for teas, for buffet suppers, children's parties, and for a wedding reception, too.

Orange-Grape-Pear Salad in Ice-Lined Salad Bowl.
(Serves 8)

Oranges, pears, grapes — summer's juiciest fruits—in an ice-chilled salad bowl! What a decorative answer to every cook's prayer for something tempting to serve on hot weather menus. For a buffet party, serve it in a double bowl with ice to keep the salad chilled to just the right degree.

With a sharp knife, peel 8 oranges, removing skin and inner membrane down to juicy meat. Cut in thin even slices. (California oranges are firm-meated and practically seedless, which makes them especially suited to slicing.) Peel and core 4 pears. Cut in slices. Halve and seed 2 cups of grapes. Combine fruits and put in salad bowl, which has been lined with romaine and watercress. These two salad greens incidentally give an interesting color contrast of light and dark green that is refreshing and that may well be used in any salad.

Serve with sweet french dressing.

Sweet French Dressing.
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup salad oil
½ cup red jelly or honey
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika

Shake well before serving. The lemon juice gives a flavor to dressings that is especially good with fruit salads. (Makes 1½ cups.)

Sparkling Vegetable Soup.
(Serves 8)

4 pounds beef shin
2½ quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
4 sprigs parsley
2 bay leaves
10 pepper corns
3 whole cloves
½ cup sliced carrot
½ cup sliced onion
½ cup celery and celery leaves

Have bones cracked at the market. Wipe bone and meat with cloth. Remove half the meat from the bone, and cut in 1-inch cubes. Brown the meat on all sides, add bones, remaining meat and water. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Skim, then simmer for 3 to 4 hours, with the lid of the kettle tilted slightly. Strain through sieve lined with cheese cloth, and cool quickly, uncovered. Chill until fat is solid, then remove fat. To clarify the soup, allow 1 egg white and crushed shell mixed with 2 tablespoons of cold water, for each quart of stock. Add to cold stock and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add ¼ cup cold water, and let settle until cold. Carefully strain through 4 thicknesses of cheese cloth wrung out of very cold water.

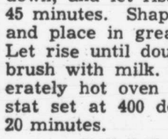

Just before serving, add vegetables as follows:

½ cup tomato (cut very fine)
⅓ cup carrot (diced fine)
⅓ cup new cabbage (cut very fine)
⅓ cup celery (cut very fine)
2½ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons parsley (minced)

Cook tomato, carrot, cabbage and celery in boiling, salted water, just until the vegetables are tender. Strain, and add to hot soup just before serving. Garnish with minced parsley.

Waffleized Strawberry Shortcake.
2 cups pastry flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
3 eggs—separated
1½ cups milk
3 tablespoons melted butter

Mix and sift all dry ingredients. Beat egg yolks and add to them the milk and melted butter. Stir liquid mixture into dry ingredients. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Bake in hot waffle iron, leaving iron closed until steam no longer escapes between the two halves.

Rice Rolls.
(Makes 3 dozen)

½ cup cooked rice
½ cup liquid from rice
½ cup milk
⅓ cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
6 tablespoons sugar
1 yeast cake softened in
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 egg (beaten)
5 cups flour

Drain the cooked rice thoroughly. Combine ½ cup of the water in which the rice was cooked, with ½ cup milk and scald. Pour over the shortening, salt, and sugar, cool slightly, and add the rice. Combine softened yeast with the beaten egg and add to the cooled milk mixture. Beat in about half of the flour, and mix well. Add remaining flour. Place in greased bowl, grease top of dough slightly and cover the bowl. Allow dough to rise until double in bulk (about 1½ hours). Punch down, and let rise again for about 45 minutes. Shape into small balls and place in greased muffin pans. Let rise until double in bulk, then brush with milk. Bake in a moderately hot oven with the thermostat set at 400 degrees, for about 20 minutes.

Jellied Ham Salad.
(Serves 6)

2 cups cooked ham (finely ground)
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sweet pickle (cut fine)
2 whole cloves
1 bay leaf
2 cups water
1 tablespoon granulated unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup cooked ham (cut in small strips)

Combine ground ham, mayonnaise and pickle and blend thoroughly. Chill. Add cloves and bay leaf to water and boil for about 5 minutes. Then strain. Add gelatin which has been soaked in cold water and stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to thicken; then add ham mixture. Pour in individual salad molds and chill 2 or 3 hours, or until set. Unmold on crisp lettuce or watercress, top with mayonnaise and strips of cooked ham and serve very cold.

Cheese Cornucopias—Salad Accompaniment.

Cheese cornucopias are an unusual, but delicious, salad accompaniment. Make ordinary pastry as for pie and roll out. Make tiny cornucopias (about 3 inches long) from any stiff paper. Wrap pastry around cornucopia and bake 12 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees). Remove paper and when cool, fill cornucopias with highly flavored cream cheese. Serve with any salad.

"Yes," sighed Brown, dejectedly; "since seven o'clock."

"Good gracious!" gasped the other. "I wouldn't think of such a thing."

"I wouldn't, either," Brown explained, casting a nervous glance towards his house. "My wife thought of it."

GERMAN BUND LEADER TRAVELED AT PUBLIC EXPENSE SAID DIES

"Records now in possession of the Dies committee investigating un-American activites reveal that Herman Koetter of Houston, head of the Kyffhauser Bund, has travelled over Texas at state expense ostensibly in behalf of the State Committee of Apprentice Training, which functions within the state department of education, of which State Superintendent L. A. Woods is the head.

"His duties presumably were in connection with painting and decorating work sponsored by the State Board of Vocational Education.

"The bundsman is a German war veteran, who has lived in America 17 years without becoming a citizen of this nation. His organization, according to evidence presented to the Dies committee, is affiliated with a bund operating from Philadelphia as a national heaquarters, and has connections in Germany.

"Why should this alien, the head of a secret organization suspected of fifth column activities have been given credentials from Mr. Wood's department and permitted to travel at state expense, when thousands of loyal American citizens in Texas are capable of filling such a job?

"When the bundsman was hailed before the Dies committee, one of his first move was to attempt to prove his good character through state department of education credentials.

"The question naturally arises as to whether other aliens have also been taken under the wing of the state department of education traveling over Texas in an official status." —Austin Tribune

FARMERS CANNOT STAND POOR YEARS AS OF OLD

COLLEGE STATION, July 17—Farmers today cannot stand "poor" years as well as they could 15 years ago.

When a portion of soil fertility is lost, when buildings become so badly in need of repair that they do not serve adequately the purpose for which they were consructed, when machinery and equipment are in need of repair, and when workstock attains an age which reduces contribuition of these factors must be matched by increased efficiency from some other source if crop and livestock production is to be maintained at a profitable level over a period of years.

According to C. Hohn, specialist in soil and water conservation, and Tyrus R. Timm, economist in farm management, both with the A. and M. College Extension Service, this gradual deterioation in equipment and improvements has been happening on thousands of farms in Texas.

These specialists point out that each year there is a normal repair charge which should be made against buildings, machinery and equipment even if no cash were expected. In the same way there is a normal replacement cost each year in workstock and breeding stock as well as for the soil.

This indicates that the maintenance of a fair standard of living on Texas farms during the past decade to a large degree came at the original resources past accumulations and prospecive earnings. Profits are needed even to maintain present standards.

Through county land use planning committees, soil conservation districts and other farmer controlled organizations rural people are now attacking these problems themselves, with the assistance of various state and federal agencies.

"Freedom-of-the-Press" Exponent Candidate For Criminal Appeals Judge

Hon. George E. Christian, Who Wrote Opinion Upholding Rights of Newsmen to Report Trial Testimony to Public, Seeks Promotion; 13 Years Experience As Commissioner.

By Texas Capital News Service.

AUSTIN. — Candidacy of Hon. George E. Christian of Burnet County for judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals recalls to newspaper men throughout the State the opinion written by Judge Christian as appeals court commissioner in 1935 that definitely set out the "freedom-of-the-press" in the matter of reporting and publishing for the public accurate news of testimony and proceedings in a trial court. A district judge presiding over a murder trial in Brazoria county had instructed three Houston newspaper reporters present not to publish the testimony in the case until after the trial of companion cases set for later date involving two others in the same alleged crime, lest it prejudice and thereby disqualify prospective jurors in the subsequent trials, possibly requiring a change of venue.

The newsmen, Harry McCormick of the Press, Frank L. White of the Post and Ed Rider of the Chronicle, communicated the court's instructions to their respective managing editors, Ed M. Pooley of the Press, Max Jacobs of the Post and George Cottingham of the Chronicle, who refused to refrain from publishing the testimony. The six men, after being duly cited and given a hearing, were adjudged to be guilty of contempt of court and assessed fines. The case attracted nationwide attention in the summer of 1935.

When it reached the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas, and was given a hearing, it devolved upon Judge Christian to write that court's opinion. As recorded in the 88 South Western Reporter, 2nd series, pages 104-8, this opinion reveals some gems of democratic philosophy, couched in terse phrases, that are apropos at this time in light of contrast between democratic and totalitarian governments.

Bill of Rights Involved

Overruling the lower court, the commissioner opined:

"It appears to us that respondent unduly stresses the tendency of accurate newspaper reports of public trials to embarrass the administration of justice. Under our statute opinions formed from reading newspaper accounts may not disqualify a juror from sitting in a particular case."

More important, the record shows the issues involved the 8th section of the Bill of Rights of the Constition, which in part reads:

"Every person shall be at liberty to speak, write or publish his opinions on any subject, being responsible for the use of that privilege; and no law shall ever be passed curtailing the liberty of speech or of the press."

Commenting on the quoted section, the opinion reads:

"The language of this provision makes plain its purpose to prevent previous restraints upon publications. The privilege of writing one's views is accorded and protected, and at the same time accountability to the law is demanded for the abuse of the privilege.'

Judge Christian

And then it continues:

"It is generally conceded that liberty of the press means immunity from previous restraints or censorship."

It concludes:

"In the nature of things, the proceedings of public trials constitute news which newspapers have the right to publish in informing the public of current events."

A flood of newspaper editorials evidenced approbation of the Christian opinion.

Another Important Decision

Another important decision of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, where the opinion was prepared by Judge Christian, is the case against Herbert Tigner from Harris county, that holds in effect the right of the state legislature to enact anti-trust legislation for control of industrial interests who would combine in restraint of trade, but exempt agricultural and live stock producers, labor unions and taxpayers' groups. This opinion was sustained May 6, 1940, by the United States Supreme Court.

A native and resident of Burnet county, Texas; a student in Southwestern University, Georgetown, and a graduate in both arts and law from the University of Texas; an officer in the American Expeditionary Forces during World War I, George E. Christian has served as a district attorney, assistant attorney general, and as a member of the Board of Pardon advisers before his appointment as a judge of commission in aid to the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas, July 1, 1927. A commissioner is appointed by the Court to sit in on consultations and write opinions, but has no vote. After a service of 13 years in this capacity, Judge Christian is now going before the court of public opinion to ask a promotion.
