Lamesa man to go on trial in Mitchell murder

A pair of juries are expected to be empaneled in 118th District Court Monday, as the Howard County District Attorney's office prepares to move forward with a two murder trials.

"It appears that the defendant and Mr. Mitchell had their differences, and those differences appeared to have escalated, ultimately culminating in the state's allegation that Mr. Harbert shot Mr. Mitchell in the back with a .357 magnum (pistol)"

"There was a problem with the indictment," said Howard County District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson. "We attempted to amend it, but the defense objected. The law says they are entitled to a waiting period in a situation such as this, and we have to abide by the law."

Glider event comes to close

Friday's heavy rains did little to put a damper on what organizers are calling the most successful world championship hang gliding event ever.

The 16th FAI World Hang Gliding Championships may have seen its last flight out at McMahon-Wrinkle Airport — depending on whether rains continue Saturday — but didn't keep the event from getting rave reviews, officials said.

"We're going to try to get some (flying) tasks in Saturday ... but it's looking only about 50-50 right now," said David Glover, event director. "But this has been the best world championships ever. The flying over the past seven days couldn't have been better."

A Big Spring woman was killed in a two-vehicle crash in the 1600 block of FM 700 Friday morning, according to local law enforcement officials.

Jail, budget to dominate county meetings

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

What would normally be a week off for Howard County commissioners will spell anything but rest for the court, as they prepare to tackle matters ranging from the jail to the budget during special meetings Monday and Tuesday.

Monday's meeting is to begin at 9:30 a.m. in the commissioner's courtroom, located on the second floor of the courthouse.

The focus is expected to be on Carl R. Griffith and Assoc., a consulting firm currently under contract with the county to provide statistics concerning the design and development of a new county jail.

Commissioners approved a $25,000 contract with the Port

Arthur consulting firm in April with hopes of garnering much-needed statistics for the design of a new jail system.

Following a meeting of the court in late-July, County Judge Mark Barr said it appeared Griffith and his firm were reluctant to move forward on the issue unless the county signed a new, much more expensive contract.

"I got the feeling in talking with Carl that they have gone as far as they are going to go unless we sign this contract with them," Barr told the court. "And I don't know if we should go forward with this. The contract would be for 2 percent of the total cost, and that's a lot of money."

Cowboys to honor Springs, Walls

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Ron Springs and Everson Walls will be together again on the field at Texas Stadium, this time for something more important than football.

Only six months after the successful transplant of a kidney donated by Walls for Springs, the former Dallas Cowboys teammates will serve as honorary captains for the Sept. 9 season opener. It's a chance to raise awareness about their new Gift for Life Foundation.

"We're using you to help a lot of people," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Tuesday. "Y'all will never come close to making a play on the field that could even approach what this is all about."

Springs suffered from Type 2 diabetes for 16 years and had been on the transplant waiting list since 2004. The Feb. 28 transplant was the first between two former U.S. professional athletes. The former Cowboys want their story to be much more than that.

With their foundation, they want to education people about ways to prevent chronic kidney disease and dispel myths about the living donor process. There are nearly 70,000 people now awaiting kidney transplants.

"What we realized, the thing that Everson did was so unusual that a friend would give another friend a body part," Springs said. "We knew this had to be something that would open the eyes of many people. This is something unique."

Jones said the former teammates will take part in the coin toss in the nationally televised season opener against the New York Giants. They will be decked out in their Cowboys jerseys — Springs in his No. 20 and Walls in No. 24 — and 40,000 rally towels will be distributed to fans.

"They don't have to honor me because I received a kidney. It's Everson that did a wonderful job," Springs said.

"I've gotten so much notoriety from this," said Walls, who has been honored by the likes of Jesse Jackson and the NFL Players Association. "I have more hardware from what I did

Steers, Huskies share many similarities

New Big Spring Steers head football coach Mike Ritchey has already admitted that Saturday's scrimmage with Wichita Falls' Hirschi Huskies could be like looking in the mirror. The two teams play a similar style of football with both using a spread offense, a 4-3 defense and counting more on speed than size.

JONATHAN HULL

Ritchey might not realize how closely the two teams really do emulate each other past their styles of play.

A little over two years ago, the Huskies finished their second consecutive winless season. All the parents and outside observers of the team could see that there was talent on the squad, but the coaching staff was unable to corral it.

So administration removed that coaching staff shortly before the start of last season and quickly hired Neil Searcy.

Searcy understood the job ahead of him. There were several changes he felt needed to be made for Hirschi to find some level of success.

He brought in a spread offense, providing the Huskies with an offensive identity that they had struggled to find for several seasons.

Searcy brought a winning attitude with him to install into the program. That attitude was immediately seen in the faces of the his coaching staff and players.

But the most important quality that Searcy brought to Hirschi was discipline. In the 2005 season before the new coach, the

Co-defendent links Vick to the killing of eight dogs

By LARRY O'DELL

Associated Press Writer

RICHMOND, Va. — It's up to Michael Vick now.

His last two co-defendants pleaded guilty Friday and implicated Vick in bankrolling gambling on dogfights. One of them said the Atlanta Falcons quarterback helped drown or hang dogs that didn't do well.

With his NFL career in jeopardy and a superseding indictment adding more charges in the works, that left Vick with a hard choice: Cutting his own deal to hold jail time under a year or go to trial and sit through detailed descriptions of the ghastly operation known as "Bad Newz Kennels."

Falcons owner Arthur Blank said Vick's attorneys were negotiating with prosecutors as of late afternoon, trying to hammer out a plea deal.

"It seems to be a pretty clear indication there will be some sort of plea entered," Blank said before the Falcons preseason game at Buffalo. "When? I'm not positive."

Quanis Phillips of Atlanta and Purnell Peace of Virginia Beach entered plea agreements and agreed to testify against Vick. A third member of the dogfighting ring, Tony Taylor, struck a similar deal last month.

One of Vick's attorneys, Lawrence Woodward, attended the plea hearings but declined to answer questions about the progress of the negotiations as he left the courthouse.

"Did you conspire with these folks to sponsor a dogfighting venture?" U.S. District Judge Henry Hudson asked Peace.

"Yes, sir," he replied.

As part of his plea agreement, Phillips signed a statement that said Vick joined in executing at least eight dogs that didn't do well in test fights by various methods, including hanging and drowning.

"Phillips agrees and

What a view!

While cloudy skies and rain late in the week wasn't what they'd hoped for, the West Texas skies provided great flying for hang gliders taking part in the FAI World Hang Gliding Championships at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

While they were here, the pilots saw a much greener view of West Texas than one would usually see in mid August.

Closing ceremonies and the awarding of prizes to the competition's winners will take place today at 10 a.m. at the airpark.

Aggies look to build on solid '06, but tough schedule awaits

By CHRIS DUNCAN

AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION — As the final seconds ticked away, the Texas A&M Aggies swarmed their embattled coach and raced to the corner of Texas' Memorial Stadium, where ecstatic fans saluted them with "Horns Down" hand signals.

A season of wild road victories and bitter home defeats had culminated in a gritty 12-7 win over Texas, A&M's first victory in Austin in a dozen years.

Now, it's time to move forward. Time to prove that the landmark win over their biggest rival wasn't a fluke, but a declaration that A&M is a Big 12 power again.

All the Aggies have to do is navigate one of the nation's most difficult schedules after their second blowout bowl loss in three years, 45-10 to California in the Holiday Bowl.

"We know the challenges ahead are going to be tough," said junior quarterback Stephen McGee. "But, hey, if you want to be the best, you've got to beat the best."

McGee's game-winning, 8-yard scramble against the Longhorns was the lasting image from A&M's 2006 season for more reasons than one. The TD ended a 16-play drive that lasted almost nine minutes. A&M won several games by simply keeping the ball away from the opposing offense and ended up leading the nation in average time of possession (33 minutes, 35 seconds per game).

The winning drive also symbolized the chemistry and closeness of the team that's been absent since the "Wrecking Crew" days.

"It was just us. It was just 11 guys in the huddle, taking care of business, playing hard," said McGee. "That's what we're all about, just playing together."

With the entire line and nearly every skill player back on offense, the Aggies may be ready to expand the playbook and take a few more shots down the field.

McGee threw for 2,295 yards and completed a school-record 62 percent of his passes, most of them short, safe routes. Coach Dennis Franchione later revealed that McGee tore a muscle in his throwing arm early in fall practices and never fully recovered.

As a result, McGee often ran the option last season and rushed for 666 yards. Franchione said he is healthy now and will pass more this season.

But McGee still will have one of the nation's most unique running tandems behind him.

Mike Goodson was A&M's leading rusher and the Big 12 Freshman of the Year, a 6-foot, 192-pound speedster who tore off 6.7 yards per carry. He'll again split the carries with Jorvorskie Lane, a 6-foot, 274-pound battering ram who tied a school record with 19 touchdowns in 2006.

"No one wants to hit Jorvorskie. It's like hitting a brick wall," said senior defensive end Chris Harrington. "And then to go from him to seeing somebody like Mike, who's lightning-quick, it's hard to prepare for that."

The Aggies also have one of the nation's most experienced offensive lines, with 110 career starts among a group that led A&M to an average of 207 rushing yards per game.

The linemen don't mind another season of grind-it-out possessions, but they wouldn't mind seeing a few more shots down the field.

"It helps the defense if we can put together a long drive and it helps us out, too, because we can wear on the other team's defense," said senior center Cody Wallace, who has started 24 consecutive games. "But, yeah, it's good to get those quick drives every once in a while. As long as we get the ball in the end zone, it doesn't matter."

The Aggies' defense had a modest 2006 under new coordinator Gary Darnell, ranking 46th in the nation (323 yards per game). Darnell implemented a 4-2-5 alignment and kept things basic last season.

With 14 of their top 18 tacklers from 2006 back, Darnell is ready to add some wrinkles and give the unit more freedom to be aggressive.

"We're in a growth mode," said Darnell. "We're movin' on and kind of movin' out of Football 101 and moving into Football 202."

Darnell said the Aggies have focused on eliminating the "fluff yards" — deep passes and runs of 10 yards or more. Darnell said the Aggies didn't miss many tackles, but were caught out of position too often.

As the Aggies have grasped Darnell's system, their confidence grows.

"Everybody's in the comfort zone," junior safety Devin Gregg said.

► Weddings

Marshall and Smith

On the evening of Saturday, June 2, 2007, on a bluff overlooking the majestic beauty of the family owned Double S Ranch near Colorado City, Kirstin Marshall, formerly of Big Spring, and Toland Smith of Sweetwater were united in marriage by Howard County Judge Mark J. Barr before family and friends.

The bride and groom chose the ranch site because it brought them together initially.

Kirstin wore a Maggie Sotero one-piece, strapless, corset back gown of rich taffeta with a neckline decorated with a ruched band and chapel length soufflé skirt, embellished with diamond shaped pearl motifs.

She rode to the wedding site to join her husband in matrimony in a horse-drawn doctor's buggy (circa early 1900s). The bride carried a bouquet of long-stemmed calla lilies adorned with greenery.

She was given in marriage by her mother and father, Nancy and Terry Marshall of Big Spring. Kirstin's grandparents are JoAnna and L.L. (Buddy) Marshall of Big Spring and the late Nellie and Perry Mathis of Big Spring.

The groom is the son of Jan and Steve Smith of Sweetwater and the grandson of Frankie and Barney Toland of Sweetwater and Frankie and the late Jim Smith of Little Rock, Ark.

Kirstin's twin brother, Tyler Marshall of Lubbock, was the attendant for both the bride and groom. Three-year-old Halley Gordon of Graham served as flower girl.

Guests were seated by Justin Lawrence of Lubbock on the bluff in white cloth covered chairs tied with white organza bows. The wildflower-covered hills served as the backdrop.

Guests were served heavy hors d'oeuvres and drinks in the hunting lodge located on the Double S Ranch. As the sun set over the hills, dancing followed on the lodge veranda to music provided by Johnny DeLeon of Diamond D DJ Service.

Kirstin, who is a 2005 graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor's degree in psychology and minor in management, is employed with the Sweetwater Enterprise for Economic Development as assistant marketing director.

Toland, who is a 2004 graduate of Arkansas Tech University with a bachelor's degree in agricultural business, is employed with McGoethlin and Associates of Roscoe as business manager.

The couple have purchased a home in Sweetwater.

how the month-long lull will effect the state's case. "We were ready in July. We had all of our witnesses ready and were set to go to trial," said Wilkerson. "At this point we'll just have to wait and see what kind of impact the wait has."

Harbert, who also goes by the name of Michael Gibson, allegedly had a series of altercations with Mitchell that led to the fatal shooting, according to Wilkerson.

"It appears that the defendant and Mr. Mitchell had their differences, and those differences appeared to have escalated, ultimately culminating in the state's allegation that Mr. Harbert shot Mr. Mitchell in the back with a .357 magnum (pistol)," Wilkerson said.

Mitchell earned fame as a multiple gold medal winning track athlete at Big Spring High School in the 1990s. He won back-to-back double gold medals at the state track meet in the 100 meters and 200 meters during that time and eventually signed a football scholarship with the University of Miami in 1999.

According to Sgt. Tony Everett, public information officer for the Big Spring Police Department, Mitchell was shot multiple times.

"Patrol officers were dispatched to a residence in the 2600 block of Fairchild in reference to a shooting," said Everett. "Officers were advised that one subject had been shot and the suspect had left the scene in a small, red Ford. While en route to the call, a police officer saw a vehicle matching the description. He stopped and detained the two occupants of the vehicle."

Harbert, along with Felicia Aldridge, 20, of Big Spring, was arrested soon thereafter. Harbert was found to be in possession of a handgun that is believed to be the murder weapon.

Harbert was charged with murder, possession of marijuana and interfering with a police officer's duties.

Aldridge has been charged with three counts of possession of a controlled substance.

Murder is a first degree felony that normally carries a possible punishment of between five and 99 years or life in prison. Because Harbert has previous felony convictions, however, his possible punishment has been enhanced to between 15 and 99 years in prison and a fine not to exceed $10,000.

The court is also expected to empanel a jury in the case against John Michael Hays, 50, of Big Spring, who was indicted in April on a charge of first-degree murder in connection with the death of 20-year-old Roland David Dickinson, whose body was discovered in a ravine six miles north of Coahoma on Highway 820 in January.

Indictments for first-degree murder in the Dickinson case were also handed down against Billy Wayne Haynes, 30, of Houston; Christopher David Lovett, 33; and Calvin Ray Fox Jr., 22.

Dickinson had lived in the Big Spring area for less than six months, according to sheriff's reports, having moved to the area to work in the oilfield, where he was most recently employed by S&S Well Service.

Preliminary autopsy results showed the cause of death to be blunt trauma to the head. The body, which was found wearing only a pair of underwear and a white T-shirt, showed signs of a brutal assault, according to County Sheriff Dale Walker.

According to investigators, Hays confessed to the murder, saying Dickinson had been hateful and disrespectful to a family member.

All four suspects are believed to have ties to the Texas prison affiliated gang known as the Aryan Circle, according to Walker.

SHOPPERS

every $100 they spend, according to information released by Texas Comptroller Susan Combs.

Despite the heavy rains, area retailers reported sales equal to or better than last year's tax holiday.

In fact, Lara Spalding, manager of maurice's clothing store adjacent to the Wal-Mart Supercenter, said the rain did her store a favor.

"When it rains, we get busy. I don't know why, but it doesn't hurt my feelings," Spalding said with a laugh. "For some reason, it just brings people in."

Unlike 2006, the school year is starting after the tax holiday, which apparently is bringing more shoppers in to find back-to-school specials, she said.

"We've gotten a lot of back-to-school shoppers," she said. "Casual wear is selling a lot better than other items. We've had a lot of kids buying jeans and other casual wear items getting ready for the school year."

Combined, the factors have made for a good weekend, so far, she said.

"It's been going wonderfully," Spalding said. "We're beating last year's sales."

At Payless Shoesource, manager Yolanda Robles reported a lot of early bird shoppers when the tax holiday began Friday morning.

"I thought the rain was going to effect our sales, but it didn't," she said. "When I opened the doors at 9 a.m., I had about five people waiting for me ... We had a lot of early morning shoppers."

That early push helped maintain sales figures about on par with last year, Robles added.

"A lot of people are taking advantage of not having to pay taxes," she said. "And with school a week away, we've had a lot of people buying back-to-school items."

stipulates that these dogs all died as a result of the collective efforts of Peace, Phillips, and Vick," the statement said.

Phillips and Peace also backed up Taylor's assertion that Vick was involved in gambling.

"The 'Bad Newz Kennels' operation and gambling monies were almost exclusively funded by Vick," according to statements by the two men.

Those allegations alone could trigger a lifetime ban under the NFL's personal conduct policy.

Blank accused Vick of lying to the owner and NFL commissioner Roger Goodell when they first questioned the quarterback about the allegations.

"It's just very sad," Blank said. "It's sad that those allegations exist and now they are confirmed by others. It's sad that Michael has put himself into that kind of situation. It's his responsibility for putting himself into that situation."

Goodell has barred Vick from the Falcons' training camp but has withheld further action while the league conducts its own investigation. NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said the league had no comment on the latest pleas.

Blank said he was stunned by the charges made against Vick by his co-defendants.

"It's distressing after six years spending time with somebody, you think you know them and then there's another side that is shocking to all of us," the owner said. "Those statements of facts don't match up with what the league was told, even our organization, and certainly not was said to the commissioner. So we'll have to see what comes out in this plea and deal with the facts as soon as we have them."

Peace and Phillips pleaded guilty to the same charge facing Vick: conspiracy to travel in interstate commerce in aid of unlawful activities and conspiracy to sponsor a dog in an animal fighting venture. Sentencing was set for Nov. 30.

The offense is punishable by up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. The men will get credit for accepting responsibility and cooperating with the government but would be penalized for animal brutality.

Peace remains free until sentencing, but Hudson found that Phillips violated the terms of his release by failing a drug test and ordered him jailed.

About 30 animal-rights activists protested quietly outside the courthouse. Afterward, as police officers cleared the scene, protesters continued waving large pictures of a mutilated dog.

"This is one dogfighting ring that's been annihilated," said John Goodwin, a spokesman for the Humane Society of the United States.

The four defendants all initially pleaded not guilty, and Vick issued a statement saying he looked forward to clearing his name.

The case began in April with a search of Vick's property in Surry County, a few miles from Vick's hometown of Newport News.

Investigators seized dozens of pit bulls, some of them injured, and equipment typically used in dogfighting operations.

The four men were indicted July 17.

As if he didn't have enough troubles, Vick was cited for not wearing a seat belt when a car he owned was pulled over Thursday by Virginia state troopers.

The officer stopped the car because the tint on the windows was too dark, state police Sgt. D.S. Carr said. The Vick-owned vehicle was being driven by someone else when pulled over in Isle of Wight County.

The driver was cited for the tint and Vick was slapped with a $25 fine for not wearing his seat belt. There are no court costs, and Vick doesn't have to go to court.

"He can prepay it if he wants to," Carr said.

Huskies were known as a team that would try to fight its opponents with words and fists if they couldn't beat them on the field.

2006 saw a drastic change in that demeanor. First hand evidence of this new discipline was shown in the middle of the season when two players on an opposing team attempted to start a fight in the midst of a game.

Not a single Hirschi player threw a punch. Some of the players on the sideline attempted to run out onto the field and join in the melee.

Searcy simply took a few steps onto the field and turned to face his team. The players stopped dead in their tracks and moved back onto the sideline.

The Huskies maintained their composure that night and through the rest of the season, earning a 7-4 record and their first playoff berth in more than five seasons.

So how does this apply to the Steers?

Certainly Big Spring hasn't recently faced the type of losing seasons that the Huskies did, but winning hasn't exactly been apart of the tradition, either.

The Steers are coming off their second-consecutive 3-win season. Although they received playoff berths in both seasons, they were never a true threat to advance very far.

It was time for not just one change, but for several.

Similarly to Hirschi, a new coaching regime is bringing in a new offensive identity. Ritchey is implementing a spread offense in an attempt to take advantage of the speed and athleticism of his squad.

He's bringing in a winning attitude.

"The media often refers to great teams as teams of chemistry. Chemistry is wanting more for your teammates than you do for yourself," explained Ritchey. "That's the type of attitude we're trying to establish here. Teamwork of this nature leads to championships."

But most importantly,

Ritchey and his coaching staff are putting a huge emphasis on discipline.

"The greatest challenge with these players so far hasn't been the physical side of the game, but the mental side of it," he said. "Getting players to show up on time and not drift in and out of focus in practice has been our greatest challenge. Any championship team in the world of sports is disciplined."

These three factors led to an incredible turnaround for Hirschi. They went from being treaded upon to being the treading. Although their playoff run ended in the first round last season, they scared the eventual state semifinalist Canyon Eagles with a near upset.

This is the type of impact that Big Spring fans can eventually expect from the new coaching regime.

While the Steers schedule will be much tougher than the one Hirschi played last season, there is no reason to believe that this team is not capable of more wins in the regular season and a playoff run that lasts longer than one round.

Bears looking for first Big 12 winning season

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Sports Writer

WACO — Baylor already had three Big 12 victories in the same season for the first time — and it was still October. The Bears were finally starting to grasp their new pass-happy offense.

One torn-up knee stopped all that progress and led to an all-too-familiar finish for the Bears. They weren't prepared for the loss of quarterback Shawn Bell when he tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee.

"The situation with Shawn last year hurt," offensive tackle Jason Smith said.

Right after Bell got injured in the fourth quarter against Texas A&M, the Aggies scored a touchdown and held on to win 31-21.

Baylor then lost its last three games by an average of 34 points — and finished 4-8 overall, the Bears' 11th straight losing season.

Since Bell got most of the snaps in practice learning the new offense, the Bears didn't have another quarterback ready when they lost him.

Even though Bell graduated and there wasn't a clear-cut replacement, coach Guy Morriss doesn't believe the team's success will center so much around one position anymore.

"We kind of had to do it that way last year with Shawn. I think the difference now is the 10 guys you put around the quarterback have been in the system, have been through two springs," said Morriss, 15-31 going into his fifth season. "We are going to be a better supporting cast."

Still, it's an inexperienced group of returning starters — except for three offensive linemen with at least 10 starts each. Junior receiver Thomas White (23 catches, 334 yards, two touchdowns) started five games last season, the most by a skill player.

The oldest quarterback candidate is 25-year-old Michael Machen, a former minor league baseball player and Kent State graduate who has one season of eligibility. He threw for 2,078 yards and 11 TDs a sophomore, but started only once for the Golden Flashes last season after breaking his collarbone.

But Machen and junior college transfer John David Weed are adjusting to the spread offense. Redshirt freshman Tyler Beatty was getting a majority of the snaps and impressing the coaches. Blake Szymanski, the starter after Bell got hurt last year, was slowed by a sprained ankle.

While everything the quarterbacks do in practice is charted, including stats, numbers won't determine who starts.

"We will talk to the receivers, the linemen. They all get a little input," Morriss said. "We want somebody back there that everybody feels confident in. It will be kind of a selection-by-committee-type deal."

Brandon Whitaker is the most experienced running back, but had more yards receiving than rushing (192-138) last year.

Linebacker Joe Pawelek had a surprising freshman season, when he became a starter and had a team-high 86 tackles. Pawelek is one of seven returning defensive starters, but outspoken cornerback C.J. Wilson and two other secondary starters must be replaced.

"I'll take on more of a leadership role," Pawelek said. "Last year, we had a great group of seniors, and I was trying to do what they told me, trying to make everybody happy."

Daniel Sepulveda is kicking in the NFL after averaging 45.2 yards per punt and being a two-time winner of the Ray Guy Award for the best college punter.

The Bears open Sept. 1 at TCU, their first visit to Morriss' alma mater since 1994 when they were still Southwest Conference rivals. They also play Rice, Texas State and Buffalo before getting into their Big 12 schedule.

Like last year, there is a heavy emphasis on the non-conference schedule — and hope for much better September results as a boost toward getting to their first bowl in 14 seasons.

The Bears opened last season with a 17-7 home loss to TCU, lost at Washington State on a field goal with nine seconds left and dropped an overtime game at home to Army.

Their only non-conference win was over Division I-AA Northwestern State.

"We were sitting there kind of dumbfounded," Morriss said. "(Last season) obviously wasn't a step forward. We didn't gain any ground. It was a huge disappointment."

here than what I did all my years from playing with the Cowboys and in the NFL."

Springs played for the Cowboys from 1979-84, usually starting in the backfield alongside Tony Dorsett.

Walls was his teammate for only four seasons, but their friendship grew over the years.

While waiting for a donor, Springs found two relatives who were matches, but other issues got in the way. Then Walls decided to get tested.

Walls said he hasn't had to change how he lives. He still works out "trying to stay healthy" and is able to enjoy margaritas with his wife each Friday night.

Still, there is one thing Walls may not want to publicize on the night he returns to Texas Stadium.

"I'll try not to wear my Super Bowl ring," Walls said, referring to the championship he won with the 1990 Giants after playing the previous nine seasons in Dallas.

In my book this is stealing; not in the legal sense of the term, but certainly in God's eyes.

Now you know the truth behind the law and you know where the mayor and city council are going to spend eternity.

CHARLES M. DOUGLAS
BIG SPRING

TO THE EDITOR:

I hear all the time that Big Spring doesn't have anywhere to shop. Then, when we get new businesses in Big Spring, the community still goes out of town to shop and doesn't support our local businesses.

How can we keep the stores we have in business and justify getting new ones if the citizens of Big Spring continue to go out of town to shop instead of shopping local first?

We don't have a big variety here but we do have several new stores this year that have opened and we all need to support those stores by shopping in them before driving out of town and letting another city benefit from our hard-earned money.

have "zero" effects on actual competition, he added.

"We've already had more competitions and performed more tasks than at any other world championship," he said.

Glover said that the 110 pilots from 26 countries who descended on Big Spring during the past two weeks had been unanimous in their praise for both the flying conditions and the support facilities at the airport.

The biennial event will be held in 2009 in France, but Glover hopes Big Spring will continue to host hang gliding competitions in the coming years.

"The airport is getting busier and the use of the big hangar here will be a question in the future ...

but the people and weather out here are great," he said. "We'd love to come back, but it depends on a lot of factors."

Closing ceremonies for the world championships were scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

rear parking lot of the hospital," said Everett. "The second vehicle, driven by Brittany Dominguez, 17, also from Big Spring, hit the Oldsmobile broadside. Hughes failed to yield the right-of-way to Dominguez." Everett said Hughes was not carrying any passengers at the time of the accident. Dominguez, who initially refused treatment at the scene, was later transported to the emergency room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center with unspecified injuries.

Everett confirmed Dominguez had a 15-year-old passenger in the vehicle at the time of the crash.

The passenger, who police did not identify, was not injured.

Officers at the scene said it was unclear if the weather played a role in the accident. Everett said no charges are expected to be filed.

Hughes' death is the second traffic fatality reported in Howard County in less than a week, following a crash approximately six miles north of Big Spring on U.S. Highway 87 Wednesday that claimed the life of a 87-year old woman.

Velta Cates Hiltbrunner, of Center Point Road, was killed on impact when her sedan was struck broadside by a Peterbilt tanker truck at the intersection of U.S. Highway 87 and Center Point Road shortly before 4 p.m. Wednesday.

COUNTY

Commissioners agreed to table the issue in July.

The bond county taxpayers defeated less than a year ago was for slightly more than $10 million, which would project Griffith's fee at more than $200,000, according to county officials.

The commissioner's court has been struggling with the design and construction of a new county jail for almost three years.

The court is also to meet Tuesday at 10 a.m., also in the commissioner's courtroom, to discuss the 2007-2008 budget.

Commissioners have already approved a number of budgetary cuts for the coming fiscal year that will translate into jobs being eliminated from the county's roster, including two full-time positions and one part-time position at the county library, two full-time and one part-time position from the county's road and bridge department, one full-time and one part-time position from the maintenance department and a single part-time position with the District Clerk's office.

The court has also asked Sheriff Dale Walker to eliminate two full-time and one part-time positions from his roster.

County Clerk Donna Wright is also expected to lose one full-time position from her office.

According to commissioners and county officials, the layoffs are necessary to stave off budgetary shortfalls for the next several years that have been projected in the millions, a result of declining fund balances and the immense expense of closing and reopening the county jail due to state mandate.

The U.S. Congress is on recess for a month but before they left, House Democrats pushed through two energy bills. The bills will be packaged with the Senate's energy bill that passed in June.

The House proposal actually repeals the tax breaks oil companies currently enjoy. The Associated Press reports the approved draft law will tax oil companies $16 billion. Obviously we don't particularly like the House's decision to do nothing to increase domestic oil and natural gas production while choosing to leave out any increase in fuel mileage economy.

However, it is very likely the White House will veto any bill that threatens to further cut domestic production.

Only days after the Russians put their flag on the North Pole's seabed, Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper is on a three day voyage to the region. Canada hopes to substantiate territorial claims further north on the continental shelf. A U.N. deadline says they must complete their work by 2013.

This would have allowed Pakistani President Musharraf to postpone elections for upwards of a year. However, a recent Forbes article claims the president has decided against declaring a state of emergency. It appears he thinks his declaration would result in even more backlash and could ensure his downfall.

Petrobras will help Mexico in studies on deep water production and fractured reserve exploration. Their recent agreements follow their March accords. Mexico continues to reject altering the constitution to allow private investment, thus, Petrobras still can't take its deepwater development expertise into the waters off Mexico's coasts.

In a very rare occurrence, Japan is taking Venezuelan crude oil. Earlier this year the Japanese offered a loan to Venezuelan state-owned PDV repayable in oil.

At a meeting of oil executives and ministers of economic development, industry, natural resources, and energy, Russian President Putin outlined his plans for the nation's hydrocarbon development. Monday he said the nation needed to reduce gas flaring, increase domestic refining capabilities, and create "clear and transparent order for foreign investments."

The storage capacity at Cushing, Okla., the delivery point for the NYMEX contract, is increasing. By the end of the year EI reports capacity could reach upwards of 40 million barrels. Only three years ago, storage was about 30 million barrels.

Through July, oil demand growth during the first seven months of the year averaged roughly 7 million barrels per day higher than one year ago. According to the IEA, demand growth should be about 1.5 million barrels per day this year. If that is still the case, during the final five months of the year demand growth will have to be almost 2.5 million barrels per day.

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly. Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world. The Public Notices give you access to information you need...about plans for major land use changes...about where roads will go...whose land will be condemned...how your tax dollars will be spent...about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting. Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

As Mr. Wingtips enters the sign of the problem solver today, the four-letter word for a systematically organized life is NEAT. Mercury in Virgo is a crossword puzzle extraordinaire, whose crafty, cunning and industrious clarity calls to mind handy solutions for our toughest problems.

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Bring on the parade! Hurrah for baton twirlers, cotton candy and swirls of confetti from the heavens! Life is for celebrating. Fellow fire signs, Leo and Sagittarius, wholeheartedly agree.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You're brave. Go on, ask for an honest answer. Even if you learn a terrible truth, it will be followed by a liberating truth. Tonight: There's a spark of intrigue between you and a Libra.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). It's like you have your finger on the fast-forward button of life's remote. Relax. Stop searching for a more interesting scene. Let life play out in its own sweet time.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Life is looking a little scraggly around the edges. Or is it you? Sometimes all it takes is a good haircut to change your outlook. By the way, Virgo is an excellent stylist.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). What you need from a partner is so minimal. All you ask for is a little appreciation and a lot of freedom of expression. Aquarius and Gemini will deliver, no problem. As for the rest of them, it might take some nudging.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Oh, how you love to de-clutter your life. Take inventory to determine what you have that's worth the effort it takes to maintain it. This step is always a sign that something wonderful is coming to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Even when you're pessimistic, your ruling impulse is always to succeed. Turn off the mental chaos, perhaps through slow breathing and stretching exercises, and trust your instincts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You're idealistic enough to believe that you can still achieve the great ambition of your life, and realistic enough to recognize that you still need education and training in order to get there.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Long after you've called off a search, a discovery occurs purely by chance. You'll stumble upon an answer or uncover a lost treasure. How's that for the effectiveness of inaction?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). No moment, however small, is unimportant enough to escape your fierce attention. You see the latent value in what others disregard. Heaven is a series of well-tended details.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Questions pop into your mind: Am I doing this right? Is everyone doing this? Is anyone else at all like me? Don't worry about what's normal. Just concentrate on what's natural.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It's normal to lose 100 strands of hair a day. Why accelerate the process by hanging around in a high-stress situation? Make other plans, perhaps involving a walk under the open sky.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: This week may feel like a crash course in being a spiritual being in a human body. As we contemplate the practical components of our transitory experience, some of us become star contestants on "Astral Survivor." Yes, times are a' changin'. By week's end, all the planetary bodies occupy fixed and mutable signs. Steady the wheel, and prepare for upcoming eclipse energy changes. You know "survival of the fittest" means "prepared for anything," right? Hone your game by emulating the winners' formula. Endurance. "No fear" is the right attitude. Prepare to surprise and impress yourself, as insurmountable challenges are no match for your courage. Teamwork. Talk to your tribe and sort it out. You won't get there alone. Willpower. Draw on your deepest desires, your unquenchable thirst for accomplishment, love or happiness, to harness resiliency from within. Problem Solving. Break it down into bite-sized pieces. Dexterity. When you're worked over by the rushing rapids, become light, nimble, willing to mix it up and try something different. Whether you're undertaking an immunity challenge to simply stay in the game or it's the rewards of a better life you're after, cultivate your survivor qualities to get ahead this week!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Love and approval are inextricably linked for Leo. But there's another sign known for its people-pleasing powers — Libra. Bill Clinton is a Leo with a Lion's share of planets in diplomatic, relationship-focused Libra — epitomized by his sunny smile-and-a-handshake persona. With this much Libra, Bill would make a gracious presidential "wife."

Annie's Mailbox ®: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I've been "kid-sitting" my three grandchildren this summer. I work all day, and they go to a day camp, which they love.

The oldest, at 13, is really sweet. However, the 11-year-old boy and 8-year-old girl constantly fight, hit, pinch, yell and call each other names. The boy has been in trouble many times for hitting at home and at school. I do not spank. I use time out, loss of privileges, etc., but it hasn't been working. This fighting drives me crazy, and I'm about ready to hit something myself.

My other concern is that when the kids get really upset, they say things like, "I hate being alive" or "I wish I was dead." This tears me apart. Their parents refuse to see any problem with this behavior and manner of thinking.

KATHY MITCHELL

What do I do? Can I put them in therapy as long as they're here? I know the parents will not follow through. The youngest has ADD, but her mom gets the meds only when she has time. I am so very disappointed in how the parents have handled everything since the boy tried to stab a kid at school with a pencil when he was 7. Their answer is always, "They'll grow out of it." How can I help right now? — A Hurting Grammy

Dear Grammy: We're surprised the school didn't mandate counseling for the boy after the stabbing incident. A certain amount of sibling fighting is normal, as is the occasional angry, self-loathing comment, but this behavior seems extreme. It's possible they will "grow out of it," but only if they receive proper discipline and excellent parenting, and we're not sure that's the case. Parents often deny the possibility that their children require professional help, but you cannot put the kids into therapy without their parents' permission. We hope the school is keeping an eye on these children and seeing that the parents get them whatever help is required.

Dear Annie: I have been dating my best friend's ex-boyfriend. They have been separated for two years. Before I started seeing "Jason," I asked "Nancy" if it was OK, and she encouraged me, stating she would remain friends with both of us.

I have since lost my relationship with Nancy, yet she remains friends with Jason. They talk every day, and she relies on him when she needs anything. Jason is always there for her, which is fine, but I have trouble dealing with this since it has cost me my friendship with Nancy. Every time I ask Jason about it, we get into an argument. Any advice? — Not So Sure Anymore

Dear Not So Sure: Nancy became interested in Jason again because he was "forbidden fruit." And don't kid yourself — he is still interested in her, too. We suspect you know this relationship is headed for trouble. Our advice is to cut your losses and move on. Real friends, and boyfriends, should be loyal.

Dear Annie: Recently a woman wrote in and said she found out her husband, a trucker, was having an affair.

Why in the heck do you advice columnists always assume everyone under the sun will benefit from counseling? It's not free, it's not cheap, and many people don't even have medical insurance. Counseling is for a privileged few. What else ya got? — Valley, Wash.

Dear Valley: We often see only one side of the story. Counseling can be very effective in working through both, and guess what? It is available to everyone, regardless of income. Those with limited funds can look into their church, United Way, the YMCA, local hospitals, university psychology departments and graduate school counseling departments. Other organizations include the National Alliance on Mental Illness at 1-800-950-NAMI (1-800-950-6264) (nami.org); Recovery Inc. (recovery-inc.org), 802 N. Dearborn, Chicago, IL 60610; the American Association of Pastoral Counselors (aapc.org), 9504A Lee Highway, Fairfax, VA 22031-2303; and Samaritan Counseling Centers (samaritaninstitute.org), 2696 S. Colorado Blvd., Suite 380, Denver, CO 80222.

Dear Annie: My 32-

year-old brother, "Jason," has been using crack cocaine for several years. He has two children from different women — a 14-year-old boy who lives with his mother, and a 7-year-old girl.

Jason and his daughter have been living with my parents for six years. Our parents are aging and tired. My mother has had cancer, two heart attacks and wears a pacemaker. Her health has been deteriorating for years, but this doesn't bother Jason. He comes and goes as he pleases, pays very little for living there and uses crack in their house.

My parents have asked Jason several times to leave, but they worry about his daughter. The little girl's mother is not in the picture, and my parents will not resort to calling the police to have him removed.

I've tried explaining to my parents that allowing Jason to live with them is essentially enabling him to live as an addict. I feel they are helping him along to the grave, but they just don't get it.

I rarely visit my parents anymore because their home is a place of tension, anger and sickness. Is there a way to help, or are things too far gone? — Giving Up in Toronto, Canada

Dear Toronto: Your parents won't give up on Jason, and they rightfully fear what could happen to their granddaughter if he leaves and takes her with him. But they can be arrested if they allow him to use crack in their home. Please contact Families Anonymous (familiesanonymous.org) at 1-800-736-9805 and Nar-Anon Family Groups (nar-anon.org) at 1-800-477-6291 for help and information.

Dear Annie: I don't spend much time thinking of what I am going to say before I say it. I get along well with most people, but occasionally, some friends get upset or offended by my remarks, even though I don't mean to offend.

Once, when I saw a girlfriend wearing a pair of jeans that were so tight you could tell what coins she had inside the pockets, I blurted out,

"How did you get into those jeans?" I really was wondering. She was hurt and offended, so I apologized and said I didn't mean anything by it.

Another person got really ticked off because I brought up a topic that hit a sore spot. He bought a computer, and had he waited a few days, he could have gotten a better one for the same price. I didn't realize mentioning it would upset him.

My question is, whose problem is it if a person gets upset by something another person says? I am starting to feel a bit resentful when others get mad at me for things I say that are totally innocent. — Wendy

Dear Wendy: This isn't about right or wrong. It's about sensitivity to others' feelings. True, some people are easily offended, but no one likes hearing negative judgments about their appearance, nor does anyone enjoy being told he made a purchasing mistake when it's too late to do anything about it. We know you don't intend to insult your friends, so when in doubt, be quiet.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Saw It At The Zoo," who noticed a boy wearing a vulgar T-shirt. I work in retail and often shake my head at some of the graphic sayings on these shirts marketed at youngsters. There's a big difference between a shirt that says "Little Girl, Big Attitude" and a pair of shorts with "Hot Stuff" written across the butt.

Who are the fashion mavens creating these trends? Are they not parents, too? Parents ultimately have the buying power and too easily give in, but if the product were not there to begin with, we wouldn't be having these debates over appropriate attire. — Retail Mom in Schenectady, N.Y.

Dear Retail Mom: It's simply supply and demand. The products exist because people continue to buy them, not the other way around. If enough parents stop supporting these manufacturers, the junk will be found only at garage sales.

MARGO HOWARD

Lower than a snake's tail in a wagon rut

Dear Margo: I have been married to my husband for almost six years. We have a 5-year-old son together, and each of us has children from a previous marriage. Out of the seven years we have been together, he has been without a job three times.

Currently it has been almost three years since his last job, except for three months at a job where he was fired for not getting along with the boss.

He verbally and mentally abuses my children from my previous marriage, but he lets our son get away with everything. He will bring home gifts for him and ignore my children. He calls me names and tells me I am a bad mother, etc.

Unfortunately, we led an alternative lifestyle in the past. He has pictures and threatens me with them every time I try to break away. He tells me he will use them to get custody of our son and send them to my church, ex-husband, etc.

Can you please help with some idea of how to handle this situation? — Frantic and Alone

Dear Fran: Sometimes I think the best way to deal with blackmail is to call the person's bluff and say, "Go ahead." I doubt that he would follow through, but if he does, then explain (to whomever) that you did these things in the past, together (at his urging), and you are regretful.

As for custody, if you did these things, so did he, therefore it washes out. I would have letters of explanation prepared for the church and your ex-husband should this lout actually do what he says. You really have got to get away from him. — Margo, tactically

When Indulgent Grandparents Can Make a Mess

Dear Margo: My husband and I have two kids (boy 5, girl 2), and my parents live with us. They sold their house and moved in with us when I was pregnant with my daughter.

They are a great help with the house and the kids, but they do not let me "raise" my kids the way I would like. For example, they let my daughter watch as many cartoons as she wants, even if it means until 11 p.m. They let her have a bottle and eat snacks after I have brushed her teeth.

The first time (and last time) I asked my parents to watch my son write the alphabet, they did not bother to check, and half of his letters were written backward. I am out of the house 13 hours a day and thought about staying home with the kids when they start school, but now I don't want to see my parents 24 hours a day. Did I mention my dad wants to go on vacation with us, too?

What should I do? Should I send my daughter to preschool early? My parents cannot afford to buy their own place, and their savings would only allow them to live on their own for 10-15 years (and then they would ask us for money or move back in with us). Please help! — Lost Mother

Dear Lost: The good news is that the situation with your folks in the house sounds as though it works well, with the exception of the Permissive Grandparent Syndrome.

Boundaries need to be set, which will require a serious sit-down. You must emphasize to them that you have certain ideas of how you want your children raised, and your ideas must prevail. Stress that this issue is very important to you, and I think the implicit message will be understood. — Margo, assertively
