In Brief

Gets 7 years

HOUSTON (AP) — A man accused of rolling back odometers on more than 1,500 cars has been given a seven-year prison sentence by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John Rainey imposed the sentence Friday on William "Big Bill" Whitlow.

Prosecutors said Whitlow, 71, specialized in turning back the odometers to make them appear to have less accumulated mileage when they were later sold.

Investigators told Rainey that Whitlow's operation tampered with at least 1,500 cars from 1986 through early 1991. Whitlow pleaded guilty to six of the 35 counts leveled against him.

Auto defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal engineers are investigating for a second time reports that the Hyundai Excel's automatic seat belts failed to restrain passengers in crashes blamed for seven deaths and dozens of injuries.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Friday it had received 67 complaints that the automatic shoulder belts of 1987-89 Excels do not adequately restrain wearers during crashes.

The complaints involved 48 wrecks that resulted in 43 injuries and seven deaths, the NHTSA said. It said an estimated 152,000 of the cars are on the road.

Primary races are set

Sentell, Greene, Crenwelge file

Just hours before the filing deadline, Republican District Judge Gene Dulaney drew Democratic opposition for the 132nd District Court bench when Snyder attorney Marvin Sentell filed Friday afternoon.

Sentell, 60, will seek the Democratic nomination for district judge in the March 10 primary.

Sentell was one of three persons filing on the final day. County Attorney Pete Greene, a Democrat, is seeking re-election to that post and political newcomer Scott Crenwelge will seek the Republican nomination for constable.

Sentell is a 1955 graduate of University of Texas Law School, and attended undergraduate school at Texas Tech University.

He was an artillery officer in the army for two years, and worked for the district attorney's office in Fort Worth for one year.

Sentell spent most of his professional career with the state attorney general's office in Austin. He returned to Snyder to set up a law practice in April, 1988.

"I want to serve in the office of district judge," stated Sentell. "I felt it was time to run."

Sentell added that his opponent, if elected to a third term, would have to retire before the term expires. A replacement would be appointed by the governor.

Sentell said mandatory retirement age for district judges is 75. Dulaney, the Republican candidate, is 72.

"I feel the voters should elect our district judge. That is how our system works," said the candidate. "I believe that if you feel qualified

Court panel swaps redistricting plan with one of its own

AUSTIN (AP) — A three-judge federal court panel Friday tossed out the Legislature's latest state Senate redistricting measure, replacing it with their own plan.

Under the court plan, Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, would represent new House District 70. Counts had previously represented District 78. By virtue of the newly formed district, Counts will lose Cottle County and rural Taylor and pick up Howard and Dawson counties.

The judges' plan would also have paired Counts against Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring. However, Fraser on Friday announced as a candidate for the 25th Senatorial District.

On Friday, U.S. District Judges James Nowlin of Austin and Walter Smith Jr. of Waco voted to reject the Legislature's plan. Judge Will Garwood dissented.

"It appears the Senate was primarily interested in fashioning a plan that better protects certain Anglo incumbents at the expense of minority voters' ability to elect candidates of their choice," the opinion said.

Democrats said the court plan was drawn to help Republicans and would deprive minority voters of full representation. But the judges said their plan would boost minorities' chances.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said he would ask the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse the court's decision and ratify district maps adopted by the Legislature in a special session that ended Wednesday.

Morales said elected lawmakers should be in charge of redistricting — not "the appointed federal judiciary."

The state had asked the three Republican-appointed judges to abandon their Dec. 24 redistricting map and accept the Legislature's most recent plans.

But the court refused and stuck

Cogdell board oks needed equipment

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board members okayed $21,500 in capital equipment purchases, acknowledged a $6,000 donation and heard a report from the Foundation Advisory Committee during their accounts payable meeting Friday.

The board also approved a hospital no-smoking policy and agreed to change the time of its Jan. 23 meeting.

CEO Tim Lancaster informed the board of capital equipment purchases made by the hospital. They included equipment update improvements for a mammogram machine in the amount of $11,000, a water converter in the amount of $9,000 and an air conditioner compressor in the amount of $1,500.

He also informed the board that the Abell-Hanger Foundation has approved a donation of $6,000 to Cogdell, to be used for participation in the Texas Tech University MedNet program. Midwest Electric had earlier donated a satellite dish, a VCR and other hardware for the program. MedNet features information on a variety of topics for health care professionals.

"We're thrilled to be able to have that," said Lancaster. "We anticipate that it will be extremely beneficial to our staff."

Board member Brenda Hedges updated the board on the Foundation Advisory Committee. The Foundation has received approximately $53,000 in contributions to date and has assets of $75,908.

"Brenda and the people on this committee have worked very hard and continue to work hard," said Lancaster. "We've been very pleased with the amount of contri-

Spring registration to begin at college

Registration for the spring semester will begin Monday afternoon at Western Texas College.

Sophomore registration will be held from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. A special signup for students planning to take night classes will be held from 6:30 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Freshmen will register from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Registration will also be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday for those who have not registered previous to that time.

Anyone interested in taking classes this spring should begin the registration process in the Learning Resource Center in the foyer area adjacent to the Student Services Offices. Registrants should use the south entrance.

An updated class schedule is included in this issue of the Snyder Daily News.

For sophomores Monday, the schedule is: 1-2 p.m., surnames A through G; from 2-3 p.m., H through T; and from 3-4 p.m., U through Z. For freshmen Tuesday, the schedule is: 8:30-9:30 a.m., A through G; 9:30-10:30 a.m., H through T; and 10:30-11:30 a.m., U through Z.

Classes will begin Wednesday. The spring term will run through May 6.

In addition, WTC administrators have planned a Spring Opportunity Session which will run Feb. 10 through May 6. At the SOS, students may gain full course credit during an abbreviated class schedule.

Commissioners to hear reports

Commissioners will hear updates from two groups as they face a brief agenda at Monday's 10 a.m. meeting.

Martha King, assistant service supervisor for Abilene State School, will update the court on services offered by the facility.

Commissioners will also hear a report from Glen Chauncey on the activities of the Snyder Park Club.

Approval of minutes from the Jan. 6 meeting and approval of bills are the only other items facing the court.

Early voting ends Tuesday in 1/2-cent sales tax election

Those wishing to vote in the city's ½-cent sales tax election are reminded that there are only two days left to cast ballots in the early voting period.

Early voting ends Tuesday. The actual election is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 18.

According to City Hall, 351 people had cast early ballots through Friday.

Voters are being asked to agree to a ½-cent tax, from which ⅜-cent will be used for economic development and ⅛-cent will be used for ad valorem tax relief.

City officials have estimated the sales tax would generate approximately $300,000 for economic development and $100,000 in ad valorem tax relief.

A similar proposal was rejected by voters in August of 1990 by a vote of 499 to 395. Some 372 voters cast early ballots in that election.

In contrast to the current election, the one in 1990 would have directed all of the ½-cent tax to economic development.

Early voting will be conducted Monday and Tuesday at City Hall from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

If voters approve the tax, the Development Corporation of Snyder, a five-member board appointed by the city council, will be responsible for administering the funds generated for economic development. The council has approved the bylaws of the corporation. Its members have not been named, pending the outcome of the Jan. 18 vote.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The reason people blame things on the previous generation is there's only one other choice."

The trend-line for the future of Snyder will be established by next Saturday evening. When the results of the sales tax election for economic development are in, the future direction of our community will be known, and perhaps set in concrete.

There are many reasons to vote for the half-cent tax, three-eights of which will be used in activity to create job opportunities. More than 52 Texas cities already have such a fund which can be used for incentives to lure industry and to help existing business firms expand.

If a town like Snyder is going to be viable, then a town like Snyder will have to have places for families to earn a paycheck. If there is no paycheck here, a family will be forced to live in places where job opportunities are greater.

Snyder rejected the sales tax in 1990 by a vote of 499 to 395. It was a classic case of voter apathy with less than 15 percent of the eligible voters going to the polls.

What is sorely needed Saturday is a large voter turnout from people who care about the future of Snyder. Again, there will be 500 or so anti-votes, many of them with an honest concern for the problem of rising taxes.

It takes people to pay taxes. To have people, there must be jobs. Looking down the road, we'd prefer to have help from gainfully employed people to help pay the tax bills in Snyder and Scurry County.

It's true that Saturday's vote will have a lasting impact on the local economic future. There likely won't be another chance to help ourselves.

Accounting technician program options listed

Individuals interested in receiving an accounting technician certificate through Western Texas College — a new program implemented this past fall — can begin the 36-hour course of instruction this spring term also.

The certificate program is offered through WTC's Office Systems Technology Department, formerly known as the Office Careers Department.

To offer the program to a wider range of persons, department staffers have devised both a five-semester program and one which would allow the students to complete their certification by the end of the spring, 1993 semester.

If a student can attend WTC full-time, they can complete the program in two regular semesters — taking 18 college hours (six courses) per semester.

Joann Snider, instructer, noted some 27 students have already signed up for the accounting technician certification classes this spring term. Many of these have been referred by the Texas Employment Commission, she said.

The ideal way to complete the program is during a regular fall and spring term, she noted, but the five-semester plan, "is for those who cannot handle a full-time load due to employment or family obligations."

Those unable to be full-time students, can consider the five-semester plan, a course study which can begin this spring term.

This semester, these students should take two three-hour courses, Word Processing 137 (basic computer and information processing) and Business 130 (basic keyboarding/typing).

The word processing class WP 137, is offered at three different times, either MWF beginning at 9 a.m.; TTH beginning at 11:30 a.m.; or Thursday evening beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Business 130 has two class time options, both on and MWF schedule. It meets at 11 a.m. and at noon.

Students in the five-semester plan should take Business 235 (business accounting) during the upcoming Spring Opportunity Session (SOS) which will run Feb. 10 through May 6.

These students will then be required to take two six-hour classes this summer; three three-hour classes next fall; and four three-hour classes in the spring of 1993.

A third option is to begin the course study this summer, taking two classes. These students can complete their certification by then taking five courses in the fall and six courses in the spring of 1993.

For more information, Mrs. Snider may be reached at 573-8511, ext. 217.

Registration for WTC's 1992 spring term begins Monday with sophomore registration from 1 until 4 p.m. An evening signup is slated that day also, from 6:30 until 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, freshmen will register from 8:30 until 11:30 a.m. Registration will resume from 1 until 4 p.m. Tuesday for all persons.

Classes will begin at their regular time Wednesday. The spring term will run through May 6.

The Spring Opportunity Session Feb. 10 through May 6 will allow students to gain full course credit during an abbreviated class schedule.

Astro-graphs By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Jan. 11, 1992

In your desire to improve your financial position in the year ahead, you might be inclined to take a number of flyers. Most of them might not live up to your expectations, but there's a chance one might exceed them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your financial aspects are rather strong today, and there's a chance you'll do something profitable, even after you have strewn your own path with unnecessary obstacles. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might be the recipient of an interesting proposal today. However, in order to take advantage of it, you might have to think of a way to disengage yourself from a previous commitment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your compassionate nature might urge you to make a loan to a friend who is a poor prospect, therefore it's better to follow your pragmatic instincts, even though they're less generous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your friends may not live up to your expectations today, especially early in the day. But don't be impatient with them. Things will get better later, so just bite the bullet and hold on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might find yourself in a ticklish position today where you'll be eager to reveal what was told to you in the strictest confidence. Others will respect you more if you don't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Doing things today that are a trifle expensive is well and good, provided it's within your budget. However, borrowing to bankroll your fun is a grave mistake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll expect others to live up to their promises today, but you might not be too good at fulfilling commitments you've made. Life is a give-and-take situation, not a one-way street.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep pace with your duties and responsibilities today, because, if you fall behind, it will be extremely difficult to catch up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) People you're not apt to count on could come forth and support you in your endeavors today, while those you're banking on mightn't move a single muscle on your behalf.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a possibility you might seek advice from a number of different people today. Unfortunately, you may not be too adroit at distinguishing the good advice from the bad.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are selling or promoting something important today, it's imperative you know when to call a halt to your presentation. You could talk yourself in and out of a sale.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you pay more for something than you should today, you're likely to be at fault, not the salesman. Don't ignore your better judgment when you make a deal.

Your Birthday

Jan. 12, 1992

You might place your emphasis and desire in the year ahead on objectives that are not necessarily of a material nature. However, as they are achieved, they could improve your financial lot in life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to be good at things that can be accomplished on your initial effort today. However, you could fall short of the mark in situations which require a second try. Major changes are ahead for Capricorn in the coming year. Send for Capricorn's Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be a source of gossip or hearsay today that has yet to be substantiated. What you say about others could later be said about you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be prepared to fend for yourself today in situations where you hope you'll have friends to back you up. The support you're anticipating might not be forthcoming.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might be difficult for you to stay on track today. All your good intentions could be swept aside — if you become influenced by insignificant, outside distractions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not likely to be plagued by a lack of imagination today. Your problem could be being oversold on one or more of your illogical concepts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The bargain a friend offers you today — because you're a pal — might not be as good as one you could get from a stranger. Check all sources when involved in commercial dealings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The objectives you'll have in mind today are likely to be worthy ones, but busybodies could create complications. Your aims and their revisions won't be in concert.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Generosity is a noble virtue, but it should be seasoned with wisdom today. There's a possibility you might do too much for the undeserving, while ignoring those who warrant your assistance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is no guarantee that the luck a friend had regarding a particular circumstance will be repeated today. There could be special reasons for this pal's success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You try to please everyone you're involved with, yet it doesn't always work. Disappointments can be minimized today by realizing you can't be all things to all people.

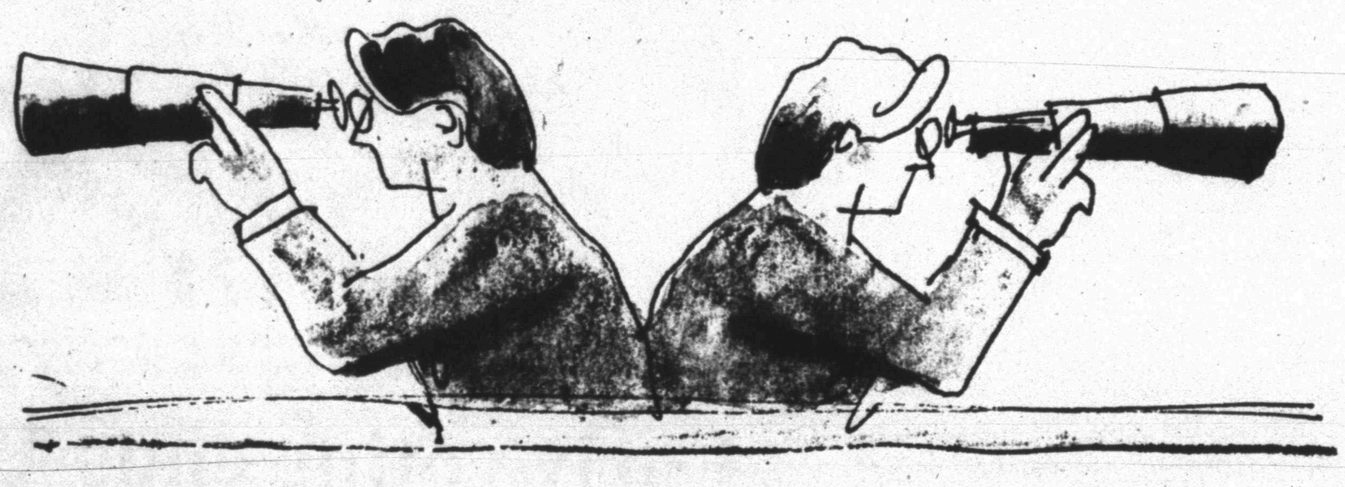

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If fulfillment of ambition is your motive today, you're likely to be quite shrewd and resourceful. However, you must also be careful not to do anything to violate your code of ethics.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Throughout this cycle, your financial trends could have definite peaks and valleys; this might be a low day. Therefore, strive to manage your resources as prudently as possible.

Consumers don't benefit from cheap oil

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of oil has dropped sharply this winter, but that doesn't mean consumers will get much relief when they fill their tanks or heat their homes.

Crude oil has fallen about $6 per barrel since late October, and wholesale prices for gasoline and home heating oil fell by about 11 cents to 13 cents a gallon from late fall to early winter. Oil traders say the price is plunging on perceptions that a global glut is building.

If you think that will make fuel a lot cheaper for consumers, critics of the oil industry say, don't hold your breath.

They point out that retail prices of gasoline and home heating oil have not been keeping pace with the sharp drops in wholesale prices in recent months.

To be sure, gasoline prices have been falling steadily at the pump since November, albeit more slowly than in the commodities markets where large contracts for energy supplies are bought and sold.

In the heating oil market, wholesale prices fell sharply in November and December, while the price to consumers barely budged.

The problem, said Edwin S. Rothschild, energy policy director for Washington-based Citizen Action consumer group, is that retail fuel prices are quick to rise, but slow to fall.

"Some English economist called it rockets on the way up and feathers on the way down," Rothschild said.

He asserted many consumers are victims of "non-competitive markets," where a few big players can control prices.

Oil companies, which categorically deny allegations they gouge consumers when supplies are tight, also deny they gouge when supplies are plentiful.

The industry's trade group, the American Petroleum Institute, recently published a study indicating the rises in petroleum product prices proceed at the same pace as the declines.

The oil companies say prices are set by supply and demand, influenced by a complicated array of factors beyond anybody's control. At times, retail prices fall at the same time crude oil prices are rising, but the critics stay conspicuously silent when that happens, oil companies say.

"It can work both ways," said John Lichtblau, chairman of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation in New York.

Lichtblau said, gasoline prices fell a little more than a penny a gallon between June and October, which translated roughly into 60 cents a barrel of oil. At the same time, oil prices rose from about $20 a barrel to $23 a barrel.

Lichtblau also pointed out that most home heating oil bills probably have been lower than usual this winter because the weather has been mild.

"That's part of the story, too," he said. "You can't really talk of gouging or anything like that."

Swimming: beginning, advanced

Anyone wishing to learn new swimming skills may take beginning/advanced swimming at Western Texas College during the spring semester.

Classes begin Jan. 15 and run through May 6.

Springboard diving will be taught in the WTC Spring Opportunity semester which will begin in February.

Accounting class is new at WTC

Western Texas College's Office Systems Technology Department, formerly known as the Office Careers Department, will be offering a new course this spring term, Business 137 (automated accounting).

The new course will emphasize accounting procedures using the computer. Because of this, interested students must have had a beginning accounting class or work experience equivalency.

The course will be instructed by Joann Snider, department head, and will meet MWF at 10 a.m. She may be reached at 573-8511, ext. 217.

The spring term begins Monday with sophomore registration from 1 to 4 p.m. and an evening signup from 6:30-8 p.m.

On Tuesday, freshmen will register from 8:30-11:30 a.m., followed by an afternoon registration for all from 1 until 4 p.m. Classes will begin at their regular time next Wednesday.

New textbooks are conditionally approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education adopted new U.S. history textbooks Friday on the condition that publishers correct and pay penalties for more than 3,700 mistakes.

The penalties, which would be paid in textbooks, total $239,500 for four publishers.

Other conditions required for approval of the approximately $20.3 million in books is that a special committee review the overall textbook selection process.

"We should never be at this point again," Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said of the textbook errors.

Texas generally is the nation's third-largest market for textbooks, behind California and New York.

Joe Bill Watkins, a lawyer representing the Association of American Publishers, said publishers should feel positive about the Education Board's action.

"The penalties do hurt. The negative publicity hurts. But the good news is these are the best books that we've had in a long time," Watkins said.

The history books have been the subject of intense controversy since first being considered by the board in November, when conservative textbook critics Mel and Norma Gabler of Longview said the books contained more than 200 mistakes.

Publishers were given until Dec. 16 to find errors that needed correction. Four publishers filed those lists and signed "certificates of accuracy" for the state, for a total of nine books. They were Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.; Houghton Mifflin Co.; Prentice-Hall, Inc.; and Scott, Foresman and Co.

But the Gablers this week revealed more errors they said publishers missed — and the Texas Education Agency verified 154 of them.

Among the latest mistakes cited: saying the Civil War-era Emancipation Proclamation freeing slaves took effect in 1963 — instead of 1863; listing 1944 as the year President Franklin Roosevelt died, instead of 1945; and putting the Civil War Battle of Vicksburg in Tennessee, when Vicksburg is in Mississippi.

Officials said the total of errors found since November tops 3,700, including more than 2,200 "substantial" mistakes, such as wrong facts.

"It certainly is extremely disheartening to us ... There's been a real temptation to just cancel" the purchase, Meno said.

However, he said, "What we need are up-to-date, factual books." History texts now in classrooms are several years old.

Civil War era class slated

The Civil War era will be the subject of a Continuing Education course to be offered by Western Texas College in classes meeting on Monday nights from Jan. 27 through March 2.

Classes will meet in the Senior Citizens Center at 2603 Avenue M from 7-9 p.m. The course is designed for anyone with an interest in the Civil War era, Jimmie McGee, instructor, said. He will encourage students to develop topics of interest for class discussion.

There will be a $20 fee for the 12-hour course and students will not be required to purchase a textbook. They will receive handouts in the class and will be provided a list of books available in the Scurry County Library for reference use.

"This course will examine the causes of the Civil War with emphasis on slavery," McGee said. "The various facets of the personalities, life on the home front, and diplomacy will be examined. We encourage anyone interested in the class to join."

McGee is instructor of political science at Western Texas College. He was graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with the Bachelor of Arts degree and received the Master of Arts degree from Southwest Texas State University.

To enroll for the course, interested persons are to call the Continuing Education office at WTC, 573-8511, ext. 240.

The board amended and adopted his recommendation for conditional approval of the new books for eighth grade and high school, on a 12-2 vote.

A 26th birthday in 1992 means young men not eligible for draft

Young men who will turn 26 in 1992 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System

Beginning Jan. 1, 1992, men who were born in 1966 and were required to register with the Selective Service in 1984 will be turning 26 and will no longer be eligible for induction should a draft be reinstituted. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registration after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

Selective Service officials warned that, with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain programs such as federal student aid, job training, and most federal employment in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon. Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state-supported colleges and universities, state employment, and permission to practice law.

Men ages 18 through 25, who have not yet registered, can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of eligibility by registering promptly at any local post office. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up tp $250,000, up to five years in prison, or both.

A man is exempt from registering while he is on full-time active duty in the U.S Armed Forces. Cadets and midshipmen at the service academies are included in the exemption. Members of the National Guard and Reserve Forces not on full-time active duty must register unless they have reached age 26 or are already registered.

Lawfully admitted nonimmigrant aliens (for example, those on visitor or student visas and members of diplomatic or trade missions and their families) are not required to register. Parolees and refugees who are aliens residing in this country must register.

Those who are unable to register due to circumstances beyond their control — for example those who are hospitalized, institutionalized, or incarcerated — do not have to register until they are released.

After release, they have 30 days in which to register. Handicapped men who live at home must register if they are reasonably able to leave the home and go into a public place. A friend or relative may help a handicapped man fill out the form if he is unable to do so himself.

AN OPEN LETTER

An open letter to all concerned voters in the city of Snyder.

January 18, 1992 the voters in the city of Snyder will have an opportunity to vote in a city wide election; for or against a 1/2 cent sales tax increase. We who live outside the city limits are not allowed to vote in this election, although we also spend our money in Snyder, which is a gross injustice. That is not the main issue of this letter.

How many citizens remember the, "I'm in for AM"? We all donated to that worthy cause; drive out southwest of Snyder and see what it is doing. We were then asked to give our money to another cause, so the powers that were, built the Wicks Building. Recently without any of the majority donors being consulted, they gave this same building to the State of Texas, supposedly to help the city of Snyder. Maybe so, but I can't see that it did, we still have a lot of empty stores and houses all over town. Now, they want us to give them a non ending 1/2 cent sales tax that would take another election to get rid of it.

We are already spending $50,000 a year county money in support of the Chamber of Commerce. Why give them a blank check forever? I maintain that the Chamber and business community should survive by its own merits. Not at the cost of the taxpayers of Scurry County.

Respectfully

Financial Focus

A recent letter from a reader raised a question that deserves an answer. The letter, from someone who had come into a sizable inheritance and did not have a personal attorney, accountant or financial adviser, asked where a person with limited investing knowledge could go for help.

Each year thousands of people receive large lump-sum distributions from insurance settlements, inheritances, pension plans and more. Most have never invested before; in fact, some have had problems just paying their bills. What to do?

To begin, put the money in a safe place where it can earn some interest. Then, look for a professional who can help you invest it. Begin by talking to trusted friends, family members or associates who are successful investors. Ask them to refer you to their adviser or to suggest several to give you multiple recommendations.

Once you have selected several candidates, request a personal interview in each adviser's office. This is a must because a person's physical environment can tell you a lot. Compatible personalities and investment philosophies should be high on your list of requirements. Is the person concerned with you and your investment situation, or is he or she interested only in selling a product?

Question your candidates about experience. Some advisers, although skilled salelspeople, have little professional training or economic expertise. Ask questions about education, proficiency training, economic expertise and update requirements. Remember to ask for references; they are a good way to confirm the information the adviser gives you.

Be comfortable with your candidate, and don't allow yourself to be rushed or pressured into a decision. If you have a large sum to invest, it is often wise to do so gradually. This allows you to study other investment opportunities and to see how your adviser regards you after each investment is made. Is he or she concerned that you understand your investment and are satisfied with it, or does he or she want to see you only when you have money to invest?

If all this sounds like simple common sense, that's the point. Unfortunately, too many first-time investors are intimidated by this new adventure and rush into mistakes that are impossible or, at best, costly to reverse. Take the same care in selecting financial advice that you would in selecting medical or legal help. That personal effort could be your best investment.

We can help you see into your financial future.

Safety, liquidity, college, retirement, a new house, travel. Whatever your goal, the right investments can help you reach it. It's actually a simple process. Call me today for all the details.

Unit that helped defeat Saddam to shut down

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — In its 50-year history, soldiers from the U.S. Army's 3rd Armored Division broke through stubborn Nazi defenses, guarded the German border against Communists and helped oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait.

Now the proud fighting force is shutting down, put out of business by the end of the Cold War.

"I've never served with a better unit," Chief Warrant Officer 4 Harold Rickards, a senior division veteran, said of the "Spearhead," as the unit is nicknamed. The spearhead symbolizes the frequent use of the 3rd Armored to pierce enemy lines during World War II.

Next Friday, the unit's flag will be lowered for the last time at its Drake Casern headquarters in Frankfurt. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Gordon Sullivan will attend the ceremony.

The division's closing is part of a reduction of U.S. Army forces in Europe to less than 150,000, down from more than 210,000 before withdrawals began last year. Most of the soldiers are based in Germany.

For the 3rd Armored Division, the withdrawal marks the end of a 18,000-strong unit whose history spanned 50 years.

Spec. 4 Shaunte Staten-Johnson, 21, of Annapolis, Md., who served in the Gulf War, called the division her family.

"When you went to the war, the others were the only family you had. Your mother's not there, your father's not there. You have to depend on them," she said.

Fathers and sons have served together in the 3rd Armored, including Maj. Gen. Paul Funk, the division's commander during the Gulf War, and his 29-year-old son, Capt. Paul Funk, Jr.

The elder Funk wrote to his soldiers of the Gulf conflict: "Combat soldiers, I am convinced, have never performed better.

"Spearhead's soldiers fought with the heart, tenacity and fearlessness of a Montana grizzly bear, the guts of an Army mule and the compassion of Bambi's mother," he wrote.

The Unit was formed in April 1941 at Camp Beauregard, La., then three months later moved to Fort Polk, La., where it was nicknamed "The Bayou Blitz."

In September 1943, the division went to England for training. Then in June 1944, 3rd Armored Division units began landing at Omaha Beach near Isigny, France, to join the war.

Division casualties during World War II were 2,214 killed, 7,451 wounded, and 706 missing in action.

No records exist on how many enemy soldiers were killed, says unit historian Dan Peterson. But he points out that 6,751 enemy vehicles were captured, and 76,720 prisoners of war were taken, "nearly five times the then-total strength of the division."

At Mons, Belgium on Sept. 3, 1944, about 30,000 German troops attempting to retreat to their homeland were cut off by the division, with nearly 10,000 taken prisoner. That depleted troops from the Siegfried Line, a line of 3-foot-high cement barriers set up by the Nazis to stop allied tanks at Germany's western border.

After Mons, the division crossed into Germany from Belgium on Sept. 13, becoming the first U.S. unit to capture a German town, Roetgen. It fought in Germany the rest of the war.

Winning Colors, the 1988 Kentucky Derby winner, was the third filly to win the event.

TIAs may signal future stroke

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain exactly what a TIA is and its consequences on the body. Is it possible to prevent an attack from happening?

DEAR READER: As we age, the linings of our arteries become increasingly roughened. Consequently, small blood clots are likely to form on such corrugated areas because the arterial linings lose their friction-free surfaces. When these blood clots break off, they are carried in the bloodstream where the body's natural clot-dissolving proteins literally melt them.

Sometimes, however, the clots are not dissolved before reaching arteries in organs, such as the brain. Once in the brain, the clots may plug the blood vessels, depriving tissue of oxygen. Of course, even while wedged in arteries, the blood clots are being affected by the body's anti-coagulants.

If a blood clot to the brain is not dissolved quickly, it causes permanent damage: a stroke. Weakness of an arm or leg, trouble speaking and confusion are the most common signs of stroke; these symptoms don't disappear.

On the other hand, patients often suffer symptoms of stroke, and — within a day or so — the symptoms do disappear. Called a transient ischemic attack or TIA, this neurological disorder is temporary and indicates that the offending clot has been dissolved before irreversible tissue damage has occurred. Thus, TIAs, unlike strokes, cause no permanent handicap.

Nonetheless, they are serious because they reflect a tendency for the body to "throw" blood clots to the brain. Studies have shown that TIAs are harbingers of stroke. Although a stroke doesn't occur because the clots are dissolved, permanent damage will eventually appear. Based on this fact, medical authorities recommend anticoagulant drugs for anybody who has had a TIA. The cheapest and safest medicine is aspirin (one tablet a day), but repeated TIAs often require prescription anticoagulants, such as Coumadin. These medicines may not only prevent TIAs, but will also protect against stroke in many patients.

Because neurological disorders, such as stroke, often involve extensive hospitalization, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Insuring Your Good Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

If you haven't yet heard about Revenge Theory, you soon will. It tries to define events that, on the surface, defy explanation; it may help us better cope with the exigencies of modern living.

Recently advanced by Edward Tenner, a visiting scholar at Princeton University, in both Harvard Magazine and the Princeton Alumni Weekly, the theory addresses the unexpected complications of technology. According to Tenner, "Wherever we turn we face the ironic, unintended consequences of mechanical, chemical, medical, social and financial ingenuity — revenge effects, they might be called."

Tenner cites several examples, such as why new highways develop gridlock and why labor-saving appliances create more housework. Did you ever wonder why you spend a lot more time traveling to and from the airport (and waiting for your flight) than you do in the air? Revenge effect. Things are against us. Do you know why the new, shorter tax form 1040 is more difficult to fill out than the old one? Revenge effect. This is called "recomplicating": A supposedly less time-consuming task actually becomes more onerous. Work expands to fill the time available for its completion.

Tenner describes a particularly delicious example of revenge effect: air-conditioning in subway trains. This air-conditioning provides a cooler ride but hot air from the cooling units is vented into subway stations and tunnels, causing a marked rise in temperature. In fact, the air on subway platforms may be at least 10 degrees hotter than the outside air. Moreover, if this rises much above 100 degrees (likely on a hot summer day), the trains' air-conditioners may malfunction. Of course, the trains' windows are sealed shut, so ... a double revenge effect.

Tenner mentions Stephen Pyne, an environmental historian, who pointed out that suppressing forest fires may really promote the accumulation of more combustible groundcover, leading to more devastating future conflagrations than might ordinarily have occurred. Similarly, all forms of disaster control and relief (including insurance) increase the chances of calamity, by encouraging people to settle in disaster-prone areas.

Revenge Theory has its proponents on both sides of the political aisle. Some politicians argue that building new super highways will lead ultimately to more traffic congestion. Others believe that by creating new prisons, society is merely promoting criminality.

Of course, revenge theory operates in the medical world, too. I can think of several instances where medical technology is harmful; for example, patients may have fatal reactions to substances, such as contrast material for X-rays, that are injected for diagnostic purposes. In addition:

Does present-day football equipment actually make the game more dangerous? Many experts believe it does.

Cigarette filters, which are supposed to reduce exposure to cancer-causing compounds, may lead to increased smoking because, by removing nicotine, they reduce the enjoyment of smoking. Therefore, smokers simply smoke more to obtain the desired effect.

Repetitive-motion disorders (such as wrist and hand injuries in computer-keyboard operators) now account for almost half of occupational illnesses, a direct spin-off of modern technology.

Bacteria resistant to modern antibiotics are, in some parts of the world, a serious menace. Even in the United States, antimicrobials in animal feed have encouraged new strains of antibiotic-resistant salmonella that are dangerous to humans.

Finally, surgical scrubbing may split bacterial colonies (on the skin) into smaller subgroups that are easily released into the air as contaminants. So, rather than destroying germs, certain forms of washing and bathing may simply spread the bacteria. Revenge effect.

How do we protect ourselves against revenge effects? Tenner suggests the following: Rely less on technology (for instance, use basic arithmetic to avoid dependence on a calculator), work with constraint, don't put all your eggs in one basket (such as a home computer), understand choices, identify alternatives, recognize drawbacks, and — most important — remember Murphy's law: If something can go wrong, it will.

How To Be Forgiven

By Homer Anderson

By the same process and at the same time that God forgives one's sins, He causes that one to become a Christian and adds that one to His church. What is that process? The Bible states it simply. By God's love (John 3:16) and grace (Ephesians 2:8-9), and through Christ's blood (Ephesians 1:7), "he who believes and is baptized will be saved" (Mark 16:16). At the time of this faith and baptism, one will "have put on Christ" (Galatians 3:26-27). Before the believer is baptized, he must turn away from his sins (repent). When he has repented and been baptized in the name of Christ for forgiveness of sins he will "receive the gift of the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:38; 5:32), and will be added by the Lord to the church (Acts 2:41, 47).

CHOOSING THE FAMILY CAR OF THE YEAR

Why so important?

Chevrolet Lumina Sedan: Family Circle's "Domestic Family Car of the Year." The title alone is honorable...especially for two straight years. But the value of this award goes beyond that and carries as much — if not more — meaning as Motor Trend's "Car of the Year." Why? Because Family Circle's "Family Car of the Year" is the ONLY award chosen solely by the consumers that drive them. And here's what drives the consumers...

Questionnaire criteria

Respondents were asked to rate their own vehicles according to a satisfaction index of Completely Satisfied, Acceptable, Fair, or Not Satisfied in the following categories:

- Performance and Handling
- Safety
- Dependability/Reliability
- Appearance and Styling
- Value for the Money
- Space and Comfort
- Satisfaction with Dealer
- Suitability for Intended Uses

And the winner is...

For the second consecutive year, the Chevrolet Lumina Sedan topped the charts. Respondents again cited Performance and Handling, Space and Comfort, Safety, Appearance and Styling, and Satisfaction with Dealer as their favorite Lumina features. And it's easy to see why.

CHARMED LIFE ...

For a man who saw a lot of action during the Texas Revolution, William Scurlock led a charmed life. He walked away unscratched in the Grass Fight in December 1835. As a member of the Matamoros Expedition, he was one of the few who escaped at the battle of Aqua Dulce Creek in March 1836. He was captured with Fannin's men at Goliad, but because he was a hospital attendant, he was spared from the massacre. He excaped and rose to the rank of captain in the Texas army before the war ended in April 1836.

TPWD seeks volunteer instructors

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is now accepting applications for volunteer Texas Hunter Education instructors to teach the mandatory Hunter Education Program in the Snyder area.

Volunteer instructor applicants must have successfully completed the student course, completed an application, been interviewed by a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game warden and must attend a minumum eight-hour instructor training course. Interested men and women must be over 21 years old to apply.

Although no specific expertise is required, an interest in the out-of-doors, a commitment to conservation and high standards of environmental ethics is helpful in presenting such subjects as firearm safety, hunter responsibility, survival, first aid, wildlife identification and conservation to students. Individuals with hunting, fishing, camping and related backgrounds are the most effective.

Interested individuals should contact John Dea, Area Chief Instructor, at 806-763-7078 or P.O. Box 6669, Lubbock, Texas, 79413, for more information. Contact should be made no later than Thursday.

Bucs, Packers, Vikes name coaches

Tampa Bay spun the revolving door by hiring Sam Wyche, Minnesota opened the door for Dennis Green and Green Bay, with some direction from commissioner Paul Tagliabue, appears to have a new coach, too.

Wyche found a new job Friday, less than three weeks after leaving Cincinnati. Green was hired from Stanford University and joined Art Shell of the Los Angeles Raiders as the only black head coaches in modern NFL history.

Also, the Packers and Mike Holmgren reached agreement on a five-year, $2.5 million contract that will make him the team's 11th head coach, according to a published report.

The Green Bay Press-Gazette, quoting unidentified sources, reported Saturday that Holmgren, the San Francisco 49ers' offensive coordinator, had agreed to terms and that a formal announcement would be made later in the day.

The newspaper said Holmgren checked into a Green Bay motel Friday and discussed the contract with his agent, Bob LaMonte, and Packers general manager Ron Wolf.

Indianapolis was looking closely at former Philadelphia coach Buddy Ryan. Only Pittsburgh, where Steelers Hall of Famer Joe Greene, Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt and Kansas City defensive coordinator Bill Cowher are to be re-interviewed, remained wide open.

Braves schedule Houston tryouts

The 1991 National League Champion Atlanta Braves will conduct an open tryout camp on Sunday, Jan. 19 at the University of Houston baseball field beginning at 9 a.m.

The camp will be under the direction of Chuck Lamar, director of player development and scouting, and Bill Clark, scout, for the Atlanta Braves.

NFC title game...

'Skins wary of red-hot Lions

HERNDON, Va. (AP) — Barry Sanders aside, is there really any reason for the Washington Redskins to worry about the Detroit Lions during the NFC championship Sunday?

The statistics say otherwise, but the Redskins are quite concerned about a team that has overcome injuries to win games they have been expected to lose.

"That team is red hot, and they have a runner that's like no other runner," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said as his team prepared for the Lions. "They've been playing super in the last 5-6 weeks."

Actually, it's been for the last seven. Since losing to the woeful Tampa Bay Bucaneers on Nov. 10, the once-lowly Lions have captured seven straight wins for the first time since 1962, with the exclamation point coming in last Sunday's 38-6 divisional playoff triumph over the Dallas Cowboys.

Unquestionably, emotion has played a huge role in Detroit's success, and Gibbs is worried because that is precisely the kind of intangible that is impossible to devise a strategy for. Offensive tackle Mike Utley, paralyzed from the chest down in a game against the Los Angeles Rams, has become Detroit's chief inspiration.

"The last thing he told me when he left the field when they put him on a stretcher, when he was going into the ambulance, was, 'Coach, don't let the guys get down,'" Detroit coach Wayne Fontes recalled this week. "So I told the team that, and they kind of rallied around that."

But the Redskins have been no slouches themselves. Guaranteed of the NFC East title and home-field advantage through the playoffs since they beat the Phoenix Cardinals on Dec. 14, Washington cruised through the remainder of the regular season before shutting down Atlanta's run-and-shoot offense in a divisional playoff last week.

That game likely left an impression on the Lions.

Like Detroit, the Falcons had been humiliated by the Redskins earlier in the season. Like the Lions, the Falcons were missing some key regulars when they were throttled by Washington during the regular season. But the playoff result was the same.

Those comparisons, and Washington's strength, aren't lost on Fontes, the Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year.

"They were down, and it was one of those things where it was like, 'My God, can we get this thing back together and win a game,'" Fontes said in recalling the mood in his locker room after Washington defeated Detroit 45-0 on opening day. "It seems like there were two different types of teams on the field — one a great team and one floundering, struggling. We were struggling, and they were playing as good as anyone I've ever seen."

Despite Detroit's recovery, the Redskins, who finished the season with the league's third-ranked defense and fourth-best offense, would appear to have several advantages coming in.

The first is history. The Lions have never won at RFK stadium. Ever.

Counting playoff games, they have lost their last 14 games to the Redskins; They are 0-15 in Washington.

And for all the talk of Sanders — Washington defensive tackle Tim Johnson said "it's almost an insult to call him just 'fantastic'" — Detroit finished the regular season with the NFL's 17th-best offense. They also converted just 34 percent of their third-down opportunities, compared to Washington's NFL-best 50 percent.

Buffalo must contain Elway to stifle comeback chances

by The Associated Press

Here's some advice for the Buffalo Bills, heading for an AFC championship game showdown Sunday with the Denver Broncos.

Roll it up.

Take no prisoners.

If you get up a touchdown, go for two. If you get up two touchdowns, go for three.

In its last three Super Bowl appearances, Denver has lost by 19 points to the New York Giants, then 32 to Washington and finally 45 to San Francisco, the deficit increasing by 13 points in each game. That is the best formula for beating the Broncos. Ten points ahead with a quarter to play often won't get it done. Not with John Elway pitching against you.

Elway is the current master of the comeback, having rallied Denver from behind on the final drive of games 20 times. That's 20 times when the Broncos had one last chance to tie or win and Elway delivered the necessary points, either eating up enough yards for a field goal or taking his team all the way to the end zone.

Twice, Elway did it in AFC championship games, both times against Cleveland, beating the Browns first in 1987, 23-20 in overtime, and then, as if to prove it wasn't a fluke, again the next year, 38-33. He also victimized Pittsburgh 24-23 in a divisional playoff in 1990.

His latest Superman show came in Sunday's playoff against Houston. The Oilers, up 21-6 at one point, were sitting on a shaky 24-23 lead with just over two minutes left on the clock when they punted the ball to Denver's 2-yard line.

There were no timeouts left.

And there was no problem, either.

Denver had the Elway edge, a two-minute drive to the winning field goal. Twice he kept the drive going by converting fourth-down plays. It was the classic comeback.

Elway tried to explain the dynamics of rallying his team from behind. "You don't have time to think in a situation like that," he said. "The game is going by about eight times faster than it normally does."

Not fast enough, however, for the other guys. Houston defensive back Cris Dishman remembered thinking that the Oilers had the game won. "No way John Elway drives 98 yards on us," he said to himself.

Oh, no?

Coach Dan Reeves knew Elway was capable of pulling it off.

"John has done this over and over again," he said. "Because of John, our guys believe we're never out of a game if there's any time left on the clock."

Detroit quarterback Erik Kramer admired Elway's accomplishment.

"He's got intangible abilities, not just physical," he said. "He wants the ball late in the game with the money on the line. He's like (San Francisco quarterback Joe) Montana. He's just a great player."

The solution, then, is to blow out the Broncos.

In their first meeting this season, the Oilers used that approach, beating Denver 42-14. You don't come back when you're 28 points behind.

Comebacks can be a double-edged sword, though, and nobody knows that better than the Broncos. Last season, they went into Buffalo and opened a 21-9 lead. As they lined up for a fourth-quarter field goal, the Broncos could be forgiven for thinking the B word — blowout.

The kick was blocked and returned for a touchdown by Cornelius Bennett. Within 77 seconds, between an interception of Elway and a fumble by Elway, the Bills scored 20 points.

Final score: Buffalo 29, Denver 28.

Even Superman fails sometimes.

Johnson not relishing 'Pokes' year

IRVING, Texas (AP) — By all measuring sticks, the third year of Jimmy Johnson's rule of the Dallas Cowboys was nearly a football miracle.

But is says something about Johnson's inner psyche to learn that he wasn't overjoyed about it.

"I just wish it could have been better," Johnson said shortly before taking a brief vacation to sort out the 'Pokes stunning comeback campaign.

Johnson was still stinging from a 38-6 NFC second round playoff loss to the Detroit Lions in which the Cowboys Band-Aid defense was decimated by journeyman quarterback Erik Kramer, who turned in the season's best Joe Montana impersonation.

When you are bombed by the Erik Kramers of the NFL you know something has to be done about the defense.

As owner Jerry Jones put it, the Cowboys "faked and finessed" with their defense all year, somehow posting an 11-5 regular season and upsetting the Chicago Bears in the team's first playoff game in six seasons.

There were no Pro Bowl players on the Dallas defense, yet coordinator Dave Wannstedt kept the Cowboys competitive except for two blowouts by the run-and-shoot Lions and a 24-0 thrashing by Philadelphia when the Eagles defense had its way with the offensive line.

The Dallas offense under new coordinator Norv Turner was a big hit. Wide receiver Michael Irvin and running back Emmitt Smith became the first two players from the same team to ever lead the NFL in receiving yardage and rushing yardage in the same season.

Irvin established new single season team records for pass receptions (93) and receiving yards (1,523). Smith led the NFL in rushing with 1,563 yards.

Even though injured starter Troy Aikman missed five games, Turner's offensive machine kept humming under Steve Beuerlein, who proved the value of keeping a competent veteran in the wings and not relying on some college kid with a clipboard.

"We learned our lesson from a year ago when Troy got hurt and the team pretty much collapsed on offense," Jones said. "That fourth round draft pick (Los Angeles Raiders) for Steve was one of the best moves we made. It saved the season for us."

Johnson had said last July in the Cowboys St. Edward's University training camp that he expected the team to be in the playoffs and win some games once it got there. The 1991 Cowboys did just that.

But Johnson also said during the regular season "we still have a long way to go."

He knows that the Cowboys need big time help defensively. You can only use so many schemes before the NFL teams have you thoroughly scouted. Detroit is a good example of what can happen when a team with average talent meets a hot-handed quarterback.

Determined to stop Barry Sanders on the run, the Cowboys saw their secondary coverage get sliced apart when Kramer found the correct receiver isolated on a single defensive back. Kramer did it time after time. The Cowboys pass rush was meek and Kramer threw three touchdown passes.

The Cowboys have six draft choices in the first three rounds and they'll be checking out the best pass rushers and defensive backs in the country.

Dallas has the 13th and 24th picks in the first round (an extra one courtesy of the Herschel Walker trade) and don't be surprised if they wheel and deal right up the ladder like they did for Emmitt Smith two years ago and Russell Maryland last year.

SHS girls bombed in 2-4A cage battle

LEVELLAND — The Levelland Loboettes showed some of their Class 4A state championship form Friday night, dismantling Snyder's Lady Tigers 80-31 in both teams' District 2-4A opener.

A total of five Levelland girls wound up the game in double figures including Trinna Pinner with 16, Amy Arp with 13 and Stephanie Pinner with 12.

Snyder was led by Shalawn Smith, who canned 14 of the Lady Tigers' 31 points.

The first quarter ended with Levelland holding just a five-point lead, 12-7.

That was before a 30-10 eruption in the second period and a 27-6 streak by LHS in the third that left Snyder on the short end of a 69-23 tally.

The Lady Tigers, who haven't won a district contest since the 1989-90 season, slide to 2-18 overall.

Levelland moves to 17-6 on the season and 1-0 in loop competition.

Levelland's domination also spilled over into the junior varsity game Friday, where the Loboettes smacked Snyder, 51-13.

In other action Friday night, district favorite Lamesa remained undefeated, 23-0, with a 75-52 pasting of Frenship in those two squads' league debut.

The Lady Tigers will be back on their home court Monday when they host Dunbar in games beginning at 6:30 p.m. at SHS.

Snyder's home games are usually played at Scurry County Coliseum, but the Western Texas College teams are both in home action Monday there.

Andrews outlasts Tigers 63-55

ANDREWS — The Snyder Tigers fell to Andrews Friday night to end the Tigers' 1991-92 non-district basketball season in what SHS coach Bud Birks characterized as a "well-played game".

"It was a real good game," the coach said. "There is no quit in either team. We played hard and they played hard.

"We just kind of vapor-locked in the third quarter. It just boiled down to a little period in the third quarter where we just didn't take care of the basketball.

"We took bad shots or else turned the ball over. We got careless at crucial times in the game."

Andrews eased to a 17-15 first-quarter advantage and held the two-point margin at halftime as each team scored 16 in the second stanza.

The Mustangs added to their lead with a 16-12 third quarter difference then outscored SHS in the fourth, 14-12.

Snyder was led by senior post Hayward Clay who hit 12 baskets on the night including a pair of three-pointers. Clay also added a free throw for 27 points to lead all scorers.

Also in double figures for the Tigers were senior Jeff Wortham and Barron Wesley.

Wortham nailed 14 points on five buckets and perfect four-of-four shooting from the line and Wesley hit five two-pointers for 10 points.

Senior Marcus Morris popped 18 points to lead Andrews Friday, trailed by Marc Byerly's 15 and 12 from sophomore Jonathan McDonald.

Snyder slides to 14-7 with the loss.

The Tigers will be idle until Friday due to semester exams at SHS. Friday's District 2-4A opener will pit Snyder against Lubbock Estacado on the Matadors' home floor.

SNYDER (55) — Braziel 2 0-0 4; West 0 2-2 2; Clay 12 1-2 27; Wortham 5 4-4 14; Wesley 5 0-0 10; TOTALS 19 7-8 55.

ANDREWS (63) — Lopez 2 0-0 4; Morris 7 2-2 18; McDonald 5 2-3 12; Lujan 4 0-0 8; Baten 2 0-0 4; Byerly 5 3-5 15.

3-point goals: SHS 2 (Clay 2); AHS 4 (Morris 2, Byerly 2). Total fouls: Snyder 14, Andrews 10. Fouled out: none. Records: Snyder 14-7, Andrews 15-5.

Wildcats trip Cardinals...

Lady Cards fall to Westbrook

HERMLEIGH — The fourth quarter wasn't kind to the Hermleigh Lady Cardinals Friday.

The HHS girls held a 34-30 advantage after three periods but Westbrook went on a 25-7 fourth-quarter streak to post a 55-41 come-from-behind victory in Friday's District 28-A clash.

"We've just got to play four full quarters," said Hermleigh girls' coach Barry Kimball. "We stayed with them for three quarters. We just let down in the fourth."

In Friday's boys' game, Westbrook exploded for 51 first-half points on its way to a 94-58 win over HHS.

The Lady Cards jumped out to a 10-6 lead after eight minutes Friday and extended the margin to 22-17 at halftime.

The Lady 'Cats answered in the third, cutting into the HHS lead with a 13-12 advantage in the period before the fourth quarter turned the game around.

Jennifer Herl managed 13 points to lead Hermleigh. Michelle Payne and Amy Anderson each added eight.

Stephanie Matlock of Westbrook was the game's top scorer, canning 23 points.

The loss drops the Lady Cardinals to 8-8 on the season and 0-2 in loop games.

Westbrook is now 8-10 and 1-1.

Westbrook's boys rolled to a 21-11 first-quarter margin and kicked in for a 30-12 second period.

The Wildcats, now 2-0 in 28-A games and 11-6 overall, were outscored by the Cardinals, 19-16, in the third then came back with a 27-16 fourth frame.

Bill Breitweiser paced Hermleigh's boys with 17 points followed by Chris Lambaren's 14 and Chris Velasco with 10.

The Wildcats' Morris poured in 21 for scoring honors in the game followed by Martin with 19, Petty with 13 and Koch's 10.

Hermleigh continues their district schedule Tuesday when they take on Trent in the Gorilla's gym.

Ivie reports fish stocking is successful

Predictions of one of the most popular recreational spots in the state appear to be on the verge of fulfillment at Lake O.H. Ivie, according to a recent release from the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

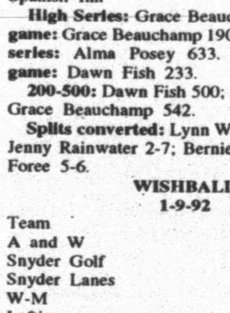

The CRMWD's newest reservoir, located 25 miles south of Ballinger, near Coleman, now has approximately 300,000 acre feet of water and covers 20 square miles.

Reports from sportsmen are that fish stocking, which began two years ago, is now producing keeper-sized catches.

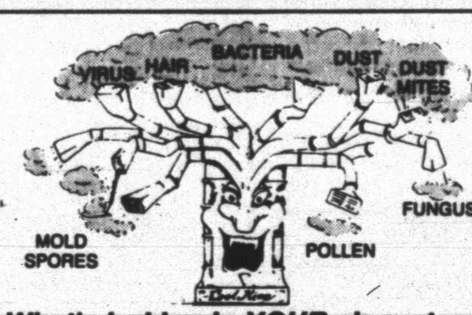

"We ran creek surveys in the late autumn of 1991," said Bill Follis, a San Angelo marine biologist for the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife. "Fishermen were beginning to catch 18-inch bass."

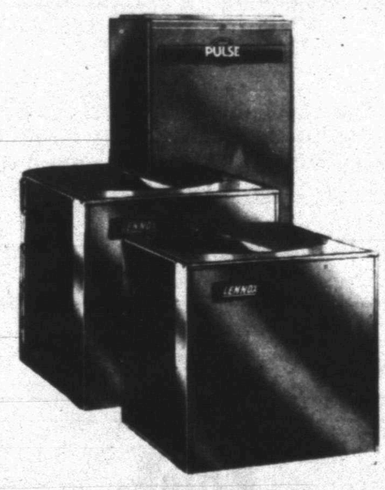

This assessment was confirmed by Richard Halfmann, CRMWD's Lake Ivie recreation superintendent.

"That inflow of 100,000 acre feet of water in December has blossomed this into a real lake and has brought with it nutrients that will further accelerate fish growth," said Halfmann. "The number of bass at the 18-inch level is increasing, and at that, you're talking about a four-pound fish."

We Care

Scare tactics are now being used by the Liberal Tax-And-Spend Gang. They tell us that unless the sales tax is increased it will effect the Police Dept. and Fire Dept. and probably the Senior Center. Now that's scare tactics pure and simple. Snyder will not fall off in a Black Hole without the sales tax increase, and I ask you, "Is it for economic development as they have said, or to save the Police Dept. and Fire Dept. as they have hinted?" Looks to me like they ought to get their story straight, one way or the other, and stay with it. What do you think? Use common sense and VOTE AGAINST THE SALES TAX INCXREASE. Think about it folks! THINK! These facts and common sense thoughts courtesy Brady Bynum.

We Care

Scare tactics are now being used by the Liberal Tax-And-Spend Gang. They tell us that unless the sales tax is increased it will effect the Police Dept. and Fire Dept. and probably the Senior Center. Now that's scare tactics pure and simple. Snyder will not fall off in a Black Hole without the sales tax increase, and I ask you, "Is it for economic development as they have said, or to save the Police Dept. and Fire Dept. as they have hinted?" Looks to me like they ought to get their story straight, one way or the other, and stay with it. What do you think? Use common sense and VOTE AGAINST THE SALES TAX INCXREASE. Think about it folks! THINK! These facts and common sense thoughts courtesty Brady Bynum.

Pearl heir charged with murder

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The heir to the Pearl Brewing Co. fortune has been jailed on a murder charge in the death of his girlfriend, police say.

Otto Andrew Koehler III, 43, remained in the Bexar County Jail on $75,000 bond late Friday, a jail spokesman said.

The body of a 50-year-old woman was found in a sleeping bag at a home on the city's northwest side. Her name has not been released, but homicide Detective Alvin "Rusty" Brown said the victim apparently was Koehler's girlfriend.

The woman suffered a gash on her head and appeared to have been dead for several days when the body was found shortly before 3 p.m. Friday, police said.

Koehler was arrested at the house.

Ruling

with its own plan.

Under the ruling, the state House and Senate primaries are to be held as scheduled on March 10, using the court-approved maps for the 31 Senate and 150 House districts.

The House also had passed a new redistricting bill in the special session. But that plan had followed the federal court map for 1992.

The Legislature's Senate plan was supported by most minority members and Hispanic groups that had successfully sued the state to increase minority representation.

Despite that, the court said the Legislature's plan imposed district boundaries in a way that weakened minority voting strength.

butions we've been receiving."

Board members gave their formal okay to the hospital's no-smoking policy, which was instituted on Jan. 1. The policy prohibits smoking for "patients, visitors, employees and non-employees occupying hospital premises, volunteers and medical staff members." Some patients may be allowed to smoke, but only under written permission from their physician, Lancaster noted.

The board was also advised of a Continuous Quality Improvement meeting which will be held Tuesday, Jan. 21, at 7:30 a.m. in the board room. The meeting will outline the CQI plan which stresses "always improving quality." A CQI program will also be presented to the medical staff later in the day.

Board members also agreed to change the time of their Jan. 23 board meeting from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 a.m.

The only other items of business were to accept bills payable and hear a brief medical staff report.

Present were board members Hedges, Bill Wilson III, Ted Crenwelge, G.A. Parks Jr. and Jim Palmer. Doug Foster was absent.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column since before I was a teen-ager, but this is my first time to write.

I have witnessed two friends spend their last dimes on their only daughters' weddings. If marriage is a partnership, why doesn't the groom's family share the wedding expenses?

I now have two grown daughters whom I have put through college, and we have no money for big weddings. At the moment, neither girl is engaged, but it would take us years to accumulate the kind of money to put on the kind of weddings parents are giving their daughters today.

Is it so wrong for the groom's family to share the expenses?

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

DEAR MONTGOMERY: Traditionally, the bride's family gives the wedding, but it is not written in stone. In fact, in recent years, many couples are paying for their own weddings.

Formal church weddings with six or more bridesmaids, a dinner for anywhere from 100 to 300 dinner guests and a reception with a dance band would be lovely — but for the parents to spend their last dimes, or take out a loan to put on an impressive wedding is, in my view, needlessly pretentious and foolish.

DEAR ABBY: There are more than 25,000 exchange students being hosted by American families across the United States. Their presence here touches hundreds of thousands. Because of that, I thought you might be interested in some tips about the holidays for families with exchange students or other long-term foreign guests.

Typically, the holiday season is a turning point for most exchangees. It is either a time when they deepen their experience — or a case of chronic homesickness becomes acute. Host families should be aware of this and make a special effort to include their students in family traditions. Host parents should make sure to ask their guests how they are feeling and should be alert to signs of withdrawal or upset.

If the exchange student observes a different religion from the host, the host should encourage the visitor to attend the religious service of their choice, if interested. Holidays offer a special opportunity for the exchangee to share his or her holiday customs. It can provide an opportunity for the guest to give freely something back to his or her family — a holiday song, a recipe, a story — precious cultural gifts.

Started in 1932, The Experiment in International Living is the oldest exchange organization in the United States. Thank you for your time and consideration.

STEVEN MALAMUD, MEDIA RELATIONS DIRECTOR

DEAR STEVEN MALAMUD: Sorry that your letter arrived too late for the 1991 holidays. However, the message is worth remembering for this year. Thanks for writing.

DEAR READERS: "Calvin in Milwaukee" wrote, "I would dearly love to see the inside of the homes where my grandmother and parents lived when I was a child ... Would it be out of line for me to go to the door, identify myself, and ask to be taken on a tour of the house?"

I put Calvin's question to my readers, and did I get letters! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: No one should just "go to the door"; a letter addressed to "Occupant" asking for permission to see their former home should be sent in advance — with a "please call us collect" to let us know.

RICHARD R. IN ENCINO

Many readers reported that you can go home again:

DEAR ABBY: We live in a 120-year-old house that has been home to many families. Over the years, several have returned requesting a tour. Once, someone rang my bell only minutes after I arrived home from the hospital with a new howling baby. Another time, some former owners showed up when I had two sick children home with stomach flu. The house looked like Baghdad after the bombing, but I let them in. (I had to interrupt the tour so one child could throw up.)

SUE McCLOUGHAN, PLYMOUTH, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: Our family gathered in Albany, N.Y., for our parents' 50th wedding anniversary. My two sisters are nuns. We decided to have a look at the house where we were raised. A pleasant elderly lady opened the door, assumed we were collecting for some Catholic charity, and said: "Please wait until I go get my purse." My sisters and I laughed so hard, we were hanging onto each other for support.

ALICIA IN HARTFORD

DEAR ABBY: For our mother's 75th birthday, we arranged a surprise tour of the house she lived in as a girl. We let her go upstairs alone. She stayed in her old bedroom for 30 minutes, then came down with handkerchief in hand. Her eyes were red. "Memories, memories," she sighed. "That's the best birthday gift I've ever had."

HER DAUGHTER IN RENO

DEAR ABBY: Our father was an architect and built the lovely home I grew up in, in Rhinelander, Wis. Many years later, the present owners graciously allowed us to tour that house. While in the kitchen, I looked behind the stove, removed one loose brick, stuck my hand in, and pulled out the bundle of love letters I'd hidden there more than 60 years ago. I am 82.

STELLA IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ABBY: As a youngster, I lived in Phoenix in a house built by my father, I didn't see it again until my husband and I went back for a family reunion. I was 70. As we drove by the house, I had an irresistible urge to stop. I got out, and sat on the concrete steps where I had played jacks. I asked my husband to take my picture. The owner came out, and when I told him I had lived there 60 years ago, he invited us in and gave us a tour.

JAN BUSH, ORANGE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I went back to Boston for a family wedding, he and his sisters decided to drive by their old house. They stopped in front and sat in the car looking the house over, when a man came out. After hearing their story, he not only invited them in, he videotaped the entire tour and sent it to them later as a gift!

SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY

NEXT SUNDAY: "You can't go home again."

Two parties reach agreement

DALLAS (AP) — Court records show a final settlement in the 17-year-old lawsuit over state psychiatric care has been was filed in federal court.

The settlement, which could remove constant court monitoring of the state's eight psychiatric hospitals by mid-1994, was sent Friday to U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders office in Dallas for final approval.

"This is a crucial milestone for the Department," Commissioner Dennis Jones of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said in a prepared release. "We have negotiated a settlement that will ensure ongoing, quality care for all patients in state hospitals."

The agreement, based on a plan outlined in May by both parties, sets minimum standards for compliance, returns the burden of monitoring back to the agency and provides for a release from the 1974 lawsuit once the standards are met.

"I'm very happy," said Ed Cloutman of Dallas, the lead attorney for 1,800 psychiatric patients who are plaintiffs. "I think it's going to work."

The 1974 case was first settled in 1981, but was later reopened after Sanders found MHMR violated the pact in 1984 and again in 1985. A revised agreement was made in 1989. In September 1990, Sanders ordered plaintiffs and defendants to resolve the case by June 1, 1991.

The parties submitted their initial plan and were given additional time to negotiate the settlement.

"What we're really doing is setting up a road map to see how compliance can be achieved," said David Pharis, the appointed court monitor in the case.

The state hospitals named in the lawsuit are Terrell State Hospital, Austin State Hospital, Big Spring State Hospital, Kerrville State Hospital, Rusk State Hospital, San Antonio State Hospital, Vernon State Hospital and Wichita Falls State Hospital.

Aqua aerobics classes listed

Three aqua aerobics classes are scheduled for Western Texas College in the spring semester, all to be taught by Mike Harrison, Western Texas College's physical education instructor.

The schedule is as follows:

-HPE 212-406, 1-2:15 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays.

-HPE 212-417, 4:10-5:25 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays.

-HPE 212-418, 5:25-6:40 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"Vigorous water activities can make a major contribution to the flexibility, strength and cardiovascular improvement," Harrison said. "People with painful joints, shin splints or weak leg muscles will usually find it comfortable to move in water since the body weight is reduced by 90 percent when immersed in water. Many persons can perform movement in the water that they are unable to do otherwise."

Classes run from Jan. 15 to May 6.

Call 573-8511, ext. 283 for more information.

Co-ed aerobics

Cathy Reed will be teaching two aerobics classes at Western Texas College this spring.

HPE 212-411, slated for 11:30-12:45 on Tuesdays and Thursdays, is designed to work the cardio-vascular system, and tone and strengthen muscles. This is a low-impact class with very little jumping or running. Most of the exercises keep the feet close to the floor. Arm movements are used to get the heart accelerated.

HPE 212-419 6-7:15 p.m. is planned for Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. This class is designed to work the cardio-vascular system, and tone and strengthen muscles. This is a hi-level class for those who are already engaged in aerobics and are physically fit.

The spring semester begins Jan. 15 and concludes on May 6.

Ann Richards promotes use of natural gas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Mandated purchases of natural gas-powered vehicles by state agencies may persuade General Motors Corp. to keep its Arlington assembly plant, Gov. Ann Richards said Friday.

But the governor did not guarantee a specific number of vehicle purchases if the plant stays open; nor did she say the state would boycott GM if the plant is closed.

Instead, she promoted Texas' position as the world's leading natural gas producer and its stringent law requiring that 30 percent of vehicles in state agency fleets use the alternative fuel by 1994.

"This is a natural partnership because GM is the leading provider of natural gas vehicles," Richards told reporters and GM workers after meeting city officials.

She said the company could receive preferences in state purchases.

Last month, GM officials said they would close either the Arlington plant or a similar one in Ypsilanti, Mich., as part of a restructuring that will also close 20 smaller plants and eliminate 74,000 jobs.

The Arlington and Willow Run plant in Ypsilanti assemble large, rear wheel-drive cars, like the Chevrolet Caprice, Buick Roadmaster and Cadillac Brougham. GM is expected to decide by April which plant to close.

The company has suffered staggering losses, about $15 million daily, due to the recession, mismanagement and competition.

Since GM's announcement, Richards has worked with local officials to develop incentives that boost the Arlington plant's chances for survival.

On Friday, she said she had asked GM chairman Robert Stempel for a meeting where she and other Texans could present the incentives.

The state and city have agreed to set up a tax-free zone that will allow the GM plant to cut its Texas tax bill by $2 million annually. The state also will offer to pay $1 million in workers' training.

And it will try to apply money won from a fight with oil companies to pay for costs GM may face switching some production lines at the Arlington plant to build natural gas-powered vehicles, Richards said.

Texas has $270 million in the fund, created in the settlement of a dispute the 50 states had with oil companies over violations of price controls in the 1970s.

Richards said the Arlington plant's best chance for survival may be by demonstrating the strength of the market for natural gas-powered vehicles.

They typically cost more than those powered by gasoline but the fuel retails for about 40 to 45 cents less per gallon equivalent than gasoline. Compressed natural gas also burns cleaner.

In 1988, Texas passed a law requiring state agency fleets, including those of school districts, to start using the alternative fuel. The law requires 30 percent of the vehicles in state fleets use the fuel by 1994 and 90 percent by 1998. It excludes law enforcement agencies.

Not counting school districts, agencies in the state of Texas will need 11,400 cars and trucks to adhere to the law by 1994. The state now owns 880 natural gas-powered vehicles, including 693 made by GM.

Richards drives a natural gas-powered Caprice that was made in Arlington.

"The only automobile company we have in Texas is GM ... and the only one that has really made any effort to move toward compressed natural gas is GM," Richards said. "It's a nice combination for us."

More than 1,000 natural gas-powered vehicles are driven in Texas, where energy producers hope natural gas will lead them out of a five-year slump. Natural gas refueling stations have opened in several Texas cities.

T. Boone Pickens, chairman of natural gas producer Mesa Inc. and an often-mentioned 1994 challenger to Richards, praised the governor's plan for GM.

"Detroit can use the Texas offer as a springboard to begin reclaiming ground lost to Japanese automakers by becoming global leaders in the design, production and manufacturing of dedicated natural gas vehicles," Pickens said.

Students suspended for dangerous pranks

MOODY, Texas (AP) — Seven students have been suspended from Moody High School for starting explosions on campus.

The students used pieces of old electrical cable containing metallic sodium. When wet, it produces hydrogen gas and frequently explodes, said Lt. Gene Barber of the McLennan County Sheriff's Department.

The students took the cable to school Thursday and some of the boys put pieces of it in a toilet, water fountain and water puddles in the parking lot at the high school.

20-year-old heart transplant candidate battling deadline

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A 20-year-old heart-transplant candidate about to run out of time for a Medicaid-covered transplant is asking federal courts to force the state to extend the coverage.

Scott Sizemore of Poteau, who suffers from diabetic cardiomyopathy and diabetes, under Oklahoma law will lose eligibility for Medicaid coverage for the transplant when he turns 21 in 75 days.

Attorneys for Sizemore filed a motion Friday in Oklahoma City federal courts in hopes of a preliminary injunction that would force the state to cover the costs of the procedure.

Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas, to which Sizemore was referred, wrote Oklahoma Department of Human Services officials on Jan. 1 that it was unlikely Sizemore could get a transplant before he turned 21.

Baylor officials declined even to offer evaluation services for Sizemore "due to the time restrictions placed on the patient by the State of Oklahoma."

"In fact," Baylor's manager of transplant financial review said, "it is unlikely that any transplant center can guarantee these services be performed in this time frame due to the unpredictable nature of organ donation."

"When he meets our financial requirements, we will be happy to schedule him for evaluation," Baylor wrote.

Fort Worth attorney William Kimble, representing the transplant-advocacy group Children's Transplant Association, attached Sizemore's motion to another case brought by the Dallas-based group.

The original case is on behalf of a 58-year-old Konawa woman who sought Medicaid coverage for a liver transplant.

An Oklahoma City federal judge granted a temporary injunction for the Konawa woman in November, forcing Medicaid to guarantee the costs of the woman's transplant.

DHS and Medicaid officials complain the demands for transplant coverage for adults come at a time when the DHS is looking at budget cuts to make up a multimillion-dollar shortfall.

Kimble's motion says Medicaid officials "should not be allowed to ingratiate themselves to the Legislature and the governor by denying life-saving care to Medicaid recipients."

Kimble claims Oklahoma Medicaid policy on transplants violates the Medicaid Act and the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment.

Half-Cent For Snyder's Future

The fight for survival...

The competition for industry and jobs gets tougher and tougher. Forty-nine Texas cities, including many of our West Texas neighbors already have the economic development tax as an incentive to attract new industry. Many cities are fighting for their economic survival, and they're winning.

Snyder must also fight to survive. The half-cent sales tax election on Jan. 18 provides a method of funding new jobs. One-eighth will be used to reduce city property taxes. It's a win-win deal!!!

Vote "Yes" For Half-Cent Sales Tax

Nine Good Reasons To Vote "Yes"

(1) Cut property taxes.
Our first step is to cut property taxes. It's time to relieve the homeowners' burden, and allow homeowners to save for the future.

(2) Most necessities are not affected by the sales tax - some of which are:
•Groceries •Gasoline
•Automobiles •Housing
•Apartment Rental •Prescription Drugs
•Insurance •Doctor's visits
•Farm Machinery •Water Bills
•CPA's Attorney's Fees •Airline Tickets

(3) Compete with Texas cities.
Our Competitors, most of the other 1,074 cities in Texas, are pulling out all the stops to attract new jobs and companies. And many are creating a Jobs Fund financed by sales taxes.

(4) Create new jobs.
The Jobs Fund will provide incentives for new businesses to move to Snyder. With the money raised from the one-half cent sales tax revenue, the fund can make loans, issue bonds, build roads and bridges and bring utilities to new manufacturers

(5) Earn more money from visitors.
Some of the retail purchases in Snyder are made by people who don't live here. It's time to take advantage of that.

(6) Help local businesses.
Even with the property tax cut, local businesses will still need help. The Jobs Fund will help local Businesses expand and hire more employees.

(7) Jobs Fund will be tightly managed.
By state law, the funds expenditures will be audited, with each expense scrutinized. Further, budget expenditures for promotion are limited to 10%, this means the vast majority of the money will be spent on economic development.

(8) Help Snyder grow.
The property tax cut will encourage more families - especially those on fixed incomes - to stay in Snyder instead of moving to a big city. If Snyder is to grow, we must make it easier for people to raise their kids, buy a home, and build their futures here.

(9) Build our economy.
The property tax cut will save local businesses and help others expand. Yet, the city won't lose revenue because it is offset by the increase in the sales tax.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Family, horses, singing — these are the good things which make up Cecil Langford's life.

Langford, like most folks, has had to adjust to what comes his way — both the good and the sometimes not-so-good. Being separated from a younger sister for 45 years qualifies as a "not-so-good" experience. Taking early retirement in 1989 due to a disabling back condition which surgery could not correct is another.

He had worked for Monsanto Oil Co. for 34 years and then BHP for four years, doing field work, the latter four years, which he said he came to prefer when he was forced to give it up.

But something which happened to Langford in 1983 — before the severity of his back problem was known — that was so overwhelmingly good, he still marvels about it today. That was the year that Langford and his five other sisters found their sister June, who had been adopted as a child and was still living in Roscoe where she had been raised.

They had a very special reunion in Sweetwater that year. Though 45 years had passed, they remembered each other as if the separation were yesterday.

It all started when family circumstances forced Langford's parents to give up two daughters, June and Joy, for adoption.

But as it turned out, Joy's adoption was cancelled in time, but June's wasn't. On the last day that June and Langford saw each other, she had laid her head on his shoulder as they said goodbye.

Forty-five years later, when the two siblings met in Sweetwater, Langford hugged his sister and she put her head on his shoulder in exactly the same way.

Now June is one of the family again, and Langford wouldn't have it any other way.

Besides family (he and his wife, Dorothy, have one son and three daughters), singing and horses have always been the good things in Langford's life. In fact, he can't remember when singing and riding horses were not an important part of his life. He prefers religious songs to any other.

Langford grew up on the old Snyder ranch where his father was a farmer and operated a dairy. As a young lad, he spent so much time with horses that his sisters nicknamed him "Broomtail."

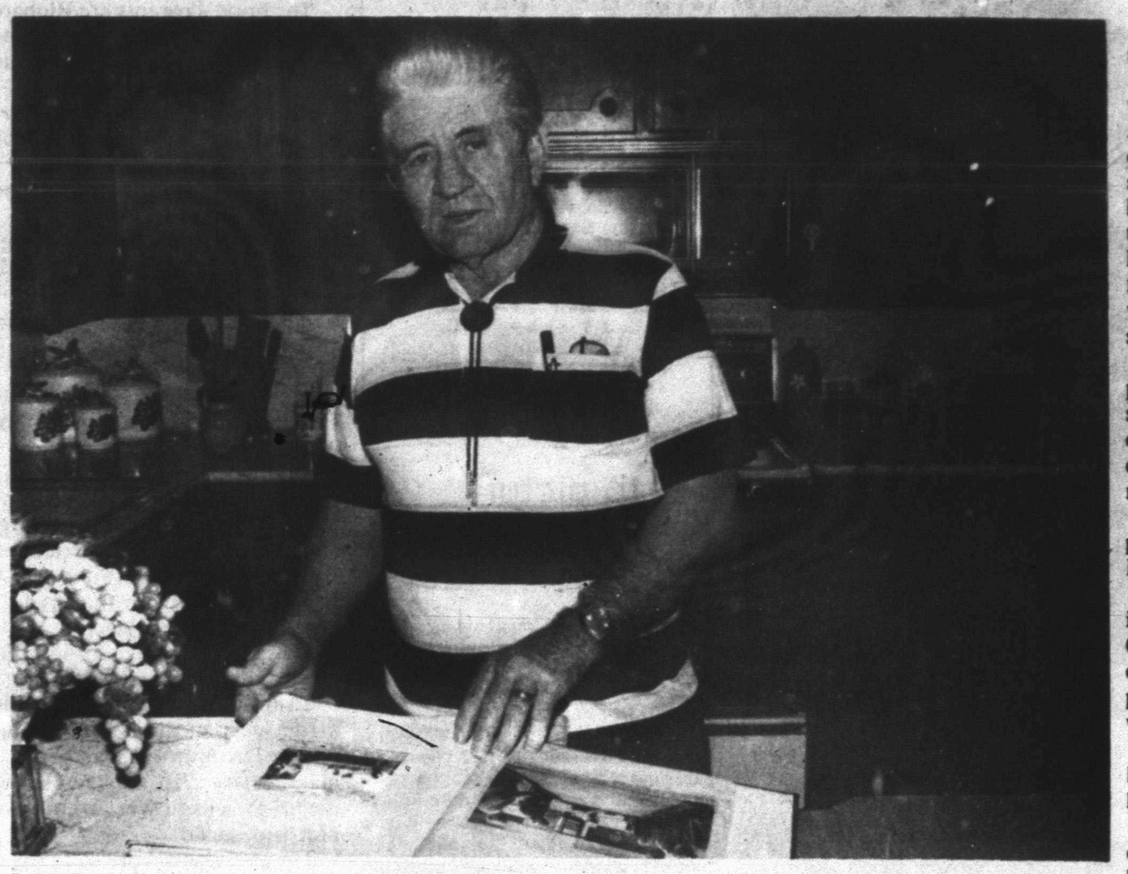

He started to learn about horses at an early age and he had often been offered $5 to ride and break horses for other people before he got his first horse at the age of 12.

Langford continued to break horses as a hobby even after he went to work in the oil patch and his expertise became known throughout Scurry County.

"I've never met a horse I didn't like," he said. "They all have different personalities."

It was quite common for Langford to be given a "sour" horse to work with, but he relished the challenge. His favorite horse was "Smokey," whom he describes as the "Cadillac of all horses." He rode Smokey in parades and in polo matches. Eventually he had to sell him, and the parting was an emotional one for Langford.

In the 1960s, polo was one of Langford's favorite pastimes. He coached as well as participated in the sport. His son, Jerry Don Langford, also played with him. The son now lives in Monroe, La.

LOVES TO SING — Cecil Langford is thumbing through a scrapbook filled with pictures, articles and momentoes which document his love of singing, especially religious songs, and other noteworthy events in his post retirement life. He often sings a duet with Tom Lewis, pastor of Morningside Baptist Church. The scrapbook was a gift from one of his daughters. (SDN Staff Photo)

As a young boy, he also started singing with one of his sisters, Jean Morris, who now lives at Cuthbert. Schools they then sang in included Hell, Roar N' Hollow, Pleasant Hill and Dunn.

Years later, during a 13-month stay in Okinawa during World War II, Langford often sang to entertain fellow soldiers. After returning to Snyder, he didn't have much opportunity to sing for the next several years, in part due to his sister marrying while he was overseas and his getting a job in the oil industry.

Even though Langford loved the oil patch and riding horses, the day finally came in 1989 when he had to give both up — on the advice of his doctor.

Deprived of two of his loves, Langford chose to rekindle his interest in singing. He didn't know it then, but he started a tradition a few years ago when he sang "The Little Drummer Boy" during Sunday School at Morningside Baptist Church. It has since become a holiday favorite at the church, along with another Christmas carol, "Silent Night."

Since then, Langford, who has always sung a cappella, has formed a duet with Tom Lewis, church pastor. They often receive requests to sing at a variety of events and places, including funerals, celebrations, the prison, nursing homes and weddings. The "Our Father" is a popular request at weddings.

Langford is also in charge of special music at the church.

This past summer, Langford was also asked to sing the National Anthem each night at the opening of the American Junior Rodeo Association National Finals. He said he was quite sure he messed up that first night because he was a little slow in starting to sing, but family members, who have a video tape of the performance, assure him he's wrong.

But Langford, half in jest, compared his performance to Roseanne Barr's infamous rendition of the National Anthem which caused such a controversy a few months ago.

Langford and Dorothy, both play with the Senior Center's Kitchen Band.

Today, Langford enjoys spending free time at the Senior Citizens Center. He has become known as quite a pool player and he likes pitching horseshoes as well. He won the Colorado City Festival in 1990. Like singing and horses, horseshoes are a carry over from his early days.

Swimnastics sessions at the center are good therapy for his back, which needs to be kept straight at all times.

To help his back problem, Langford usually walks two to three miles a day because his body stiffens and it becomes difficult to walk at all if he doesn't.

He jokingly said he walks with a cane to "fight the girls off," but in reality it's to discourage his friends from giving him a ride when he's exercising.

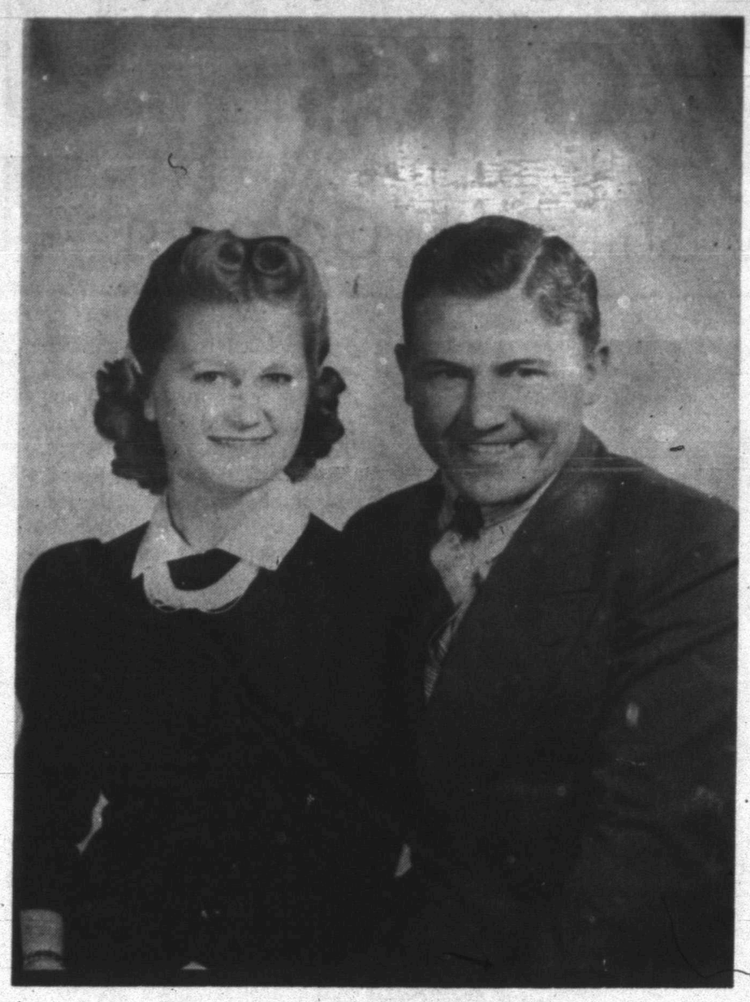

In years past, Langford and his wife also liked to skate. In fact that's where they got married, in a rink then open in Snyder that had previously been opened in Colorado City.

He worked in the rink for a time.

Try to picture the other hands

By Phillip Alder

The Senior Life Master was sitting in his chair by the fire, sipping a hot toddy.

One of you has asked me (began the Senior Life Master) how to improve your game. You must count every hand. But I also suggest that you try to put yourself in the other player's chair. First visualize the other player's hand and then judge how you would act if holding that hand. You may realize that you have pictured the other hand incorrectly.

On the deal in the diagram, West was Magdalena Bews, and her fiance, Charles Mainwaring, was East. The auction was exciting. Mainwaring opted to bid his five-card major immediately. North cue-bid two hearts to show a good hand. And Magdalena loved to double her opponents.

Magdalena led the club king and switched to the heart four. East winning with the ace. Thinking his partner had led her singleton at trick one, Mainwaring returned the club four, hoping for a diamond ruff in return. However, declarer ruffed, drew trumps and claimed 10 tricks.

"Oh, Charles!" wailed Magdalena. "How can I have the singleton club king and king-third of hearts? With that, I would have bid two hearts immediately, or I would have bid four hearts, not three diamonds, over three clubs. My heart switch must be a singleton. Just return the heart 10 at trick three and we collect an 800-point penalty.

"But next time," she continued after a pause, "I will lead my singleton. Then you can't go wrong."

Zionism is the effort of the Jews to regain and retain their biblical homeland, based on the promise of God in the Book of Genesis that Israel would forever belong to Abraham and his descendants as a nation. The term is named for Mount Zion, the site of the ancient temple in Jerusalem.

Church ceremony...

Logston, Meek wed

Stacy Renee Logston became the bride of Michael Raymond Meek, both of Snyder, in a double ring ceremony on Oct. 19 at 2 p.m. at Faith Baptist Church. The Rev. Buck Hatfield officiated.

The bride's parents are Richard and Renee Logston of Snyder and the groom's parents are Charlie and Norma Meek of Sylvester.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar decorated with an archway, candelabrum and a memory candle, each adorned with greenery.

Candlelighter was Justin Logston, brother of the bride. Pianist was Patsy Martin. Vocalists Jason and Tammy Rogers presented "There Is Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white satin bridal gown. Her gown bodice of white floral lace featured a high illusion neckline and long tapered sleeves of mesh, enhanced with lace and beading. Her chapel length train extended from a softly gathered skirt. A long veil fell from the bride's elegant wreath headpiece.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk white and pink roses.

Tammy Logston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Stephany Drummond was bridesmaid. Misty Williams, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore satin royal blue, tea-length dresses, adorned with lace.

Greg Meek, brother of the groom, was best man and the groomsman was Brandon Justiss of Roby, cousin of the groom. Seating guests were Jeff Featherston of Lubbock, cousin of the bride, and Brian Lickey.

Male attendants wore black tuxedos with light pink cummerbunds and ties. The groom's tie and cummerbund were black.

A reception followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church.

The white iced wedding cake was decorated with pink flowers. It was topped by a music box given to the bride by the groom. Serving at the bride's table was Rhonda Justiss of Roby, cousin of the groom.

The groom's cake was a large football-shaped cake on a football field. Autumn Meek, wife of the best man, served at the groom's table.

Melissa Williams, cousin of the bride, registered guests.

The bride and groom are at home in Snyder where the groom is employed by Snyder ISD as a math teacher and freshman boy's coach. He is a graduate of Angelo State University and the bride is currently a junior at ASU, pursing a BS in education.

How to spend some of that holiday gift money

NEW YORK (AP) — If you need to familiarize yourself with all the weaponry currently at the disposal of the world's navies, and have $120 to spare, there is a book for you.

It's "World Naval Weapons Systems 1991-92" by Norman Friedman (Naval Institute Press) and its 928 pages provide up-to-date coverage of the current world inventory of naval guns, torpedoes, missiles, ammunition, control and tracking systems, electronic and physical countermeasures, computers, radar and other sensors.

Of what value, one might ask, is such an encyclopedia of tools of destruction at a time when tension between the superpower blocs is easing and the threat of armed warfare between them receding? Friedman points out in the introduction that intentions to reduce arms are usually declared with enthusiasm but are often carried out at a pace that hardly keeps up with events in the realm of international politics and government — that is, if they are carried out at all.

New gene therapy counters CF in rats

WASHINGTON (AP) — An experimental genetic therapy shows promise in reversing the course of cystic fibrosis, a lung disease that always kills, according to researchers who hope to begin human trials in a year or so.

The scientists say they've gotten the therapy to work in test tubes and lab rats. Tests on monkeys begin in a couple of weeks.

"We've gone from science fiction to very close reality," said Robert Dresing, president of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The treatment may involve a simple inhaler and could be inexpensive. It would use a common cold virus to help carry altered genes into the mucous-clogged lungs of cystic fibrosis patients.

There are possible risks, such as introducing pneumonia into the lungs with the virus.

But the development delighted some researchers involved in the long fight against the disease, and one expert in the field says that if this works in humans it could mean cystic fibrosis would kill no more.

They emphasized, however, that the new technique is not a cure.

"But the strategy is a cure," said Dr. Ronald Crystal, head of the research team at the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, where the procedure was developed.

The results were published Friday in the scientific publication Cell.

Cystic fibrosis, an inherited disorder that affects some 40,000 people in the United States, causes the lungs to produce a thick mucous that eventually damages the lungs and leads to respiratory failure and death. The average age at death is 27, Crystal said.

"We believe that this provides us with the unique opportunity to reverse the course of the disease," said Dr. Robert Beall, executive vice president of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. "If this can work in humans we have the potential to stop the deaths caused by this disease."

If the tests on monkeys are successful, human trials could follow within 12 months to 18 months, Beall said.

Crystal's team altered a common cold virus to carry the cystic fibrosis gene into the lungs of test rats.

The lung cells pick up the virus carrying the altered gene, which instructs the cells in the lining to produce the right kind of protein. That protein, in turn, ensures that the chemical imbalance that causes the thick mucous doesn't occur.

Beall said treatment may have to be repeated because lung cells are replaced every 60-80 days.

Irrigation conference set Jan. 14-15

LUBBOCK — Water issues confronting Texas and prospects for legislation dealing with them will be explored in the keynote address for the Texas Irrigation Conference and Trade Show here Tuesday and Wednesday. State Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, will give the address at Wednesday's luncheon.

The conference and show in the Lubbock Civic Center will be the largest statewide irrigation event ever held. The trade show opens with a reception from 5-9 p.m. Jan. 14. The educational conference and show will run concurrently from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday.

The program is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Irrigation Association (TAIA).

The technical conferences will cover groundwater law and regulations, various types of irrigation and water management.

On display will be the latest equipment and information on well drilling, pumps, engines and motors, supply lines and irrigation components.

Those attending the show are asked to register in advance by contacting their local county agent. Registration is $30 for the whole event and $25 for the second day only. The fees cover the trade show and conference and a catered lunch the second day.

Government says timber jobs could vanish even without owl

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's latest plan to protect the northern spotted owl blames much of the loss in Northwest logging jobs on other factors, such as automation, exports and a U.S. recession.

"The region is experiencing a depressed timber industry, not all of which can be attributed to the spotted owl or to critical habitat designation," the Fish and Wildlife Service said Thursday as labeled 6.9 million acres as essential to the threatened bird's survival.

The agency predicted that overall efforts to save the bird would cost 33,000 jobs. But with the soft housing market and other factors driving down demand for lumber, the agency said many of those 33,000 jobs would disappear soon, even without protection of the threatened bird.

About one in four logs cuts in the Pacific Northwest currently is shipped to more lucrative markets overseas, primarily Japan.

The agency declared the owl a threatened species in 1990, blaming years of excessive logging for a dramatic decline in the centuries-old stands of trees.

Service officials said Thursday that extensive cutting has accelerated since 1960. A worst-case estimate is that less than 12 percent of the native forests in the region remain uncut, they said.

"It is estimated the current rate of harvest would liquidate most remaining old-growth in 15 to 30 years," the service said in a summary of its formal designation of critical habitat acreage.

Timber industry backers said the plan is extreme and will cost even more jobs than the government predicts. Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said the economic analysis is "woefully inadequate."

But environmentalists said the new habitat boundaries in Oregon, Washington and northern California — trimmed back from previous proposals of 11.6 million and 8.3 million acres — are inadequate to ensure the owl's survival.

"The political influence of the timber industry seems to have been brought to bear on the Fish and Wildlife Service because the final proposal is 40 percent smaller than the original proposal," said Richard Hoppe, a spokesman for The Wilderness Society.

Department delays closing of 6 offices

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Transportation, under fire from rural legislators, will hold off on plans to close seven district offices as part of a budget-cutting plan.

The decision comes after the Legislature adopted a non-binding resolution urging the agency to operate the offices until 1993, when lawmakers hold their next regular session.

Last year, lawmakers approved legislation ordering the department to close at least six of the 24 district offices, for an estimated savings of $11 million annually.

But rural lawmakers complained that the closing decisions made by the department were biased against small towns.

In November, the department announced plans to close offices in Waco, Atlanta, Lufkin, Paris, Brownwood, Childress and Yoakum.

U.S., Allies consider military without Soviet threat

By Barry Schweid
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Word is leaking out that President Bush will tell Congress at the end of the month that the United States can get by with fewer stealth bombers, attack submarines and other expensive weapons that have become superfluous with the demise of the Soviet Union.

Some might argue that the Pentagon never really needed a budget of more than $300 billion a year to keep America and its allies secure. No matter. That debate is irrelevant now.

What Bush and Congress will be arguing about in the months ahead is whether the administration is scaling down fast enough and has a new strategy to replace the one that for more than 40 years was based on fear of Moscow.

AP analysis

The debate will be conducted before an American electorate and European governments whose own military policies will be guided by the outcome.

Two years ago, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo predicted Bush would time the unveiling of his peace dividend to his run for a second term. Indeed, Bush and his political advisers have taken note of the polls that suggest the president is absorbed in foreign affairs at the expense of domestic problems.

The answer may be to use savings from abandoned bomber, submarine and missile programs to address health, transportation and other social needs.

At the same time, Bush, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and the Joint Chiefs of Staff face the challenge of adapting the Pentagon to a new world that lacks the simplicity of East-West tensions.

All U.S. presidents since World War II saw the world through the prism of the Cold War. Stupendous Pentagon budgets were compiled on the theory that the Soviets might jump the West if the United States was not armed to the teeth.

That threat, real or imaginary, is gone. And while NATO and some other relics of the Cold War are still in operation, propelled as much by inertia as conscious decision making, Bush, Cheney and the chiefs will have to make some tough decisions on which weapons to keep and for what purpose.

Last week, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, summarized the situation in a memo inviting his House colleagues to join him in some hard thinking in advance of the defense budget debate.

"The Warsaw Pact threat has collapsed," Aspin said. "We've fought a war with Iraq. And now the Soviet Union has disintegrated. The foundation of our national security and defense policies for more than 40 years has shifted dramatically. We must now begin at the beginning to understand how to respond to this new world."

Aspin suggested three goals: Identifying threats of the new era; defining appropriate nuclear forces and what the United States needs them for; deciding which conventional forces are needed and for what purpose.

Even to ask these questions is to suggest that the massive American war machine is due for an overhaul and a down-sizing.

Vietnam denies that KGB interviewed MIAs after war

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Vietnamese Foreign Ministry has denied an allegation that Soviet agents interrogated American prisoners of war in Vietnam after the war there ended in 1975.

A spokesman for the ministry invited the source of the allegation, former KGB Major General Oleg Kalugin, to visit Vietnam.

"Vietnam is ready to allow Kalugin in company with American officials to go to Vietnam to make the matter clear," the spokesman said Thursday, according to the official Vietnam News Agency. The official was not identified.

A text of the agency's report was seen in Bangkok Friday.

Kalugin has said at least three American prisoners were interviewed by KGB colleagues in Vietnam after the Vietnam War ended.

All American prisoners of war were supposed to have been released in 1973, when the United States military presence in Vietnam ended.

Kalugin said his information had come from a KGB colleague, Oleg Nechiporenko. But Nechiporenko said in an American television interview Monday that he had questioned only one American prisoner, in 1973.

The KGB and the CIA also denied Kalugin's claim.

Through 1991 there were 33 states represented by players in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Japanese said unimpressed with Bush visit

TOKYO (AP) — Like many other Japanese, Hideharu Kaneoya, a good-natured lottery salesman busy in his tiny booth on a Tokyo sidewalk, didn't think much of President Bush's summitry.

"It was practically meaningless and only a loss for him," said Kaneoya, 55, who calls himself a Bush fan. He expressed worries for Bush's re-election campaign after the president's return home Friday.

Bush's fainting spell during a state dinner only highlighted his health problems, Kaneoya said, and the tense negotiations that focused on Japan's huge trade surplus intensified an already strong image of an economically ailing America.

Many others interviewed on the streets of downtown Tokyo the afternoon of Bush's departure recalled little else except the startling image of a pallid Bush being raised from the floor at the state dinner.

"He left so many issues unresolved. I want to ask what he came for," said Terukazu Kawaguchi, 40, a marketing analyst. "It was just hectic. No one really understood what happened. What got played up was his sickness."

During the four-day visit, Japan promised the United States some measures designed to alleviate the trade imbalance, including target sales for U.S.-made cars and auto parts, a particularly contentious issue.

"Japan felt it had to help Bush," said Kaneoya. "After all, he collapsed."

People had a slightly warmer assessment for their own leader, Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, whose popularity was plunging prior to Bush's arrival.

His fluent English, complete with jokes, made him a rather impressive host in the eyes of Japanese who tend to still feel awkward in international settings.

"He did well," said Akira Ogoo, 48, an insurance company employee. "I'll give him 60 percent. That's a passing grade."

But there also were critics who believed Japan had bowed too much to U.S. demands.

"Mr. Miyazawa should have said more. Japan could have made demands in return, instead of just listening," said Iwao Fujii, 58, who was testing out Japanese cars at a showroom during his lunch break.

Fujii also said he was worried about the future of U.S.-Japan relations after the summit.

Bush's entourage included business leaders, and the tough-talking heads of Detroit's "Big Three" automakers in particular raised more than a few eyebrows among the Japanese.

"I wouldn't go as far as to say it was a shame for the United States to bring them along, but it was shameful for Bush," said Akio Harashima, 50, who works at a clinic. "They say what they want to say without thinking. They're too rude."

Feds didn't help on safety problems

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state labor commissioner Friday accused the federal government of giving inadequate funds to the state worker safety program and unfairly accusing him of being uncooperative in the wake of a fire that killed 25.

Responding to a threatened federal takeover of the state's workplace inspection program, Commissioner John Brooks said "some people characterize cooperation as unquestioning agreement with their own point of view. While we respect other people's points of view, we also exercise our prerogative to state different views."

"We do not believe that federal OSHA has been cooperative with North Carolina or has treated North Carolina fairly," he said.

On Wednesday, U.S. Labor Secretary Lynn Martin told the state it had 90 days to correct problems with its state-run worker safety program or face a federal takeover.

The federal review was prompted by the Sept. 3 poultry plant fire at Hamlet that killed 25 and injured 56. State officials said the 11-year-old plant was never inspected for safety.

The report, released Wednesday, said that the state program was basically sound but had numerous deficiencies and that Brooks had been uncooperative.

But Brooks maintained that North Carolina has received less than its share of funds appropriated by Congress for the state program.

"Congress mandates that the U.S. Department of Labor allocate this money fairly between the states to support at least 50 percent of the cost of state OSHA programs, yet federal OSHA funds only 40 percent of the cost of the North Carolina program," Brooks said.

He called cooperation "a two-way street" and said "both sides must work together to achieve a common purpose."

Brooks said he was confident that he and Ms. Martin could resolve the issues raised by the federal officials.

The report said the state agency failed to issue timely state safety standards that meet federal standards, had a high staff vacancy rate that contributed to the agency's problems and needed to reclassify violations to result in a higher percentage of serious violations. It also said the state needed to better manage its funds.

Jurors will hear testimony on AIDS carrier's identity

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Webb County officials want to find out "how many victims" have been infected by a man who is carrying the AIDS virus and has boasted of regularly having unprotected sex, a prosecutor says.

The Webb County District Attorney's office will ask a grand jury to force the Community in Schools Program for the United School District to identify the Laredo man, who knows he is infected with the virus.

"We plan to go to the grand jury Tuesday to find out who this man is and find out who and how many victims he has infected," Assistant District Attorney Monica Notzon told the San Antonio Express-News in Friday's editions.

Raul Dominguez, director of the AIDS clinic run by the school district, has told officials he tested the man for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, at the man's request in June.

The man refused to accept the printout of the results from the Texas Department of Health, according to Dominguez, who is expected to be called as a witness.

The man has told Dominguez he has sexual relations with as many as three different women each month and does not use a condom, officials said.

Sexual contact is one way the AIDS virus can be spread, according to health experts. It also can be transmitted through the sharing of intravenous needles and from an infected mother to an unborn child.

Ms. Notzon said intentionally exposing another person to AIDS is a third-degree felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison. She was unaware of any Webb County case since the offense was placed in the state statutes.

She said there are have been no complaints about the unidentified 21-year-old man prosecutors are seeking.

Robbers target I-35 hotels

AUSTIN (AP) — Police are trying to crack a robbery ring that has been making brief stops at hotels along Interstate 35 through Austin, committing crimes ranging from robbery to auto theft.

The ring is responsible for about 10 robberies since July, said Sgt. Steve Hamblin of the robbery detail.

In August, Kenneth Johnson, 20, of Austin, who was arrested in connection with several hotel robberies, was believed to be part of the ring, Hamblin said.

Travis County jail records show Johnson began serving 40 years in prison last August for three convictions of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon and one conviction of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

But Hamblin said one of Johnson's associates still is with the ring that strikes the hotels.

The ring's latest attempt may have occurred Sunday, when two men entered the lobby of a Ramada Inn and demanded money from the clerk on duty, police said. The clerk locked herself in a closet and alerted authorities, as she recently was trained to do.

Ja'dean Jourden, general manager of the Ramada, said the clerk's training is part of her plan to deter crime. She said the rash of robberies has forced her to make security of her employees and guests a priority.

"We mean business," she said. "I'm confident in the tactics we're taking. Other hotels are following suit. There's things we can do to bring this to a screeching halt."

Tactics include posting pictures of suspects behind her hotel's front desk, parking a marked security patrol car in front of the hotel and hiring a security guard, she said.

Austin Hotel-Motel Association members also have launched a collective effort against criminals, said Pat Rice, the group's president.

Hotels have set up a calling system to alert each other to robberies when they occur.

New rules enforced for motorists going into Mexico's interior

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — The Mexican government wants to cut down on the number of American-made cars that go into the country, but somehow never seem to make it back out.

In trying to do so, officials are making it a little more difficult for U.S. vehicles to get in at all.

Mexican customs officials Thursday began enforcing a new regulation requiring U.S. citizens — or resident aliens living in the United States — to post a bond for the full value of their vehicle if they're driving more than 12 miles into Mexico.

If they can't do that, they must show a U.S. insurance policy that expires at least six months after the date of entry into the country.

If they still can't comply, they can just go back the way they came.

Matamoros Customs chief Carlos Arguelles de la Parra said the new regulation is necessary to stem the tide of American cars sold illegally in Mexico by tourists or Mexican citizens residing in the United States.

No-smoking rule included in couple's divorce papers

BOSTON (AP) — An estranged husband who won a ban on his wife smoking in front of their child is one of a growing number of parents battling a smoking spouse in a custody case, legal experts said.

Joseph Lamacchia, 32, who separated from his wife 15 months ago, won a court-ordered agreement last month that neither parent will smoke in front of the couple's 3-year-old son.

"I kept a track record, built a case," Lamacchia said Thursday.

His wife's lawyer called the smoking issue just another tactic in the custody battle but said the ban is being followed.

Secondhand smoke is an issue considered more frequently by judges hearing divorce cases, according to Boston-based Group Against Smoking Pollution.

"Judges across America are treating this issue, especially as it impacts young children, very seriously," said Edward Sweda, who heads of the GASP group.

Courts in Missouri, Louisiana, Texas, Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York have considered the harm to a child's health due to exposure to tobacco smoke from a parent, according to GASP.

"More and more lawyers are beginning to feel that this is one of the things which can be considered," said Willard DaSilva, an attorney who raised smoking as an issue in a New York custody case in 1990.

The smoking ban in Lamacchia's case was agreed to by both parents and was part of the Middlesex County probate court's temporary order in the case Dec. 19.

Lamacchia said his son has lung ailments and coughs continuously. "He was very sick this fall," said Lamacchia, who lives in the Boston suburb of Watertown. He sees the child about 10 days out of the month.

His wife's attorney, Susan Yas, called the issue the latest of the husband's attempts to gain custody.

"He has tried four different ways to get custody from his wife. This is the last way," Yas said.

Yas said her client, Dawn Lamacchia, has given up smoking, although the agreement merely says she is not to smoke in the room with the child.

"Only good can come from people who alert parents to this hazard, so that's on the side of the angels as far as I see," said Cahan, who has testified in custody cases.

It's January, and you know what that means. Farmer's Almanac time.

The news office receives two or three of these almanacs every December through January.

Usually, I just scan through them, occassionally stopping to read a story that catches my eye. Sometimes I'll look over the puzzles and make a quick guess on one or two, then turn to page 92 and sneak a peek at the answer.

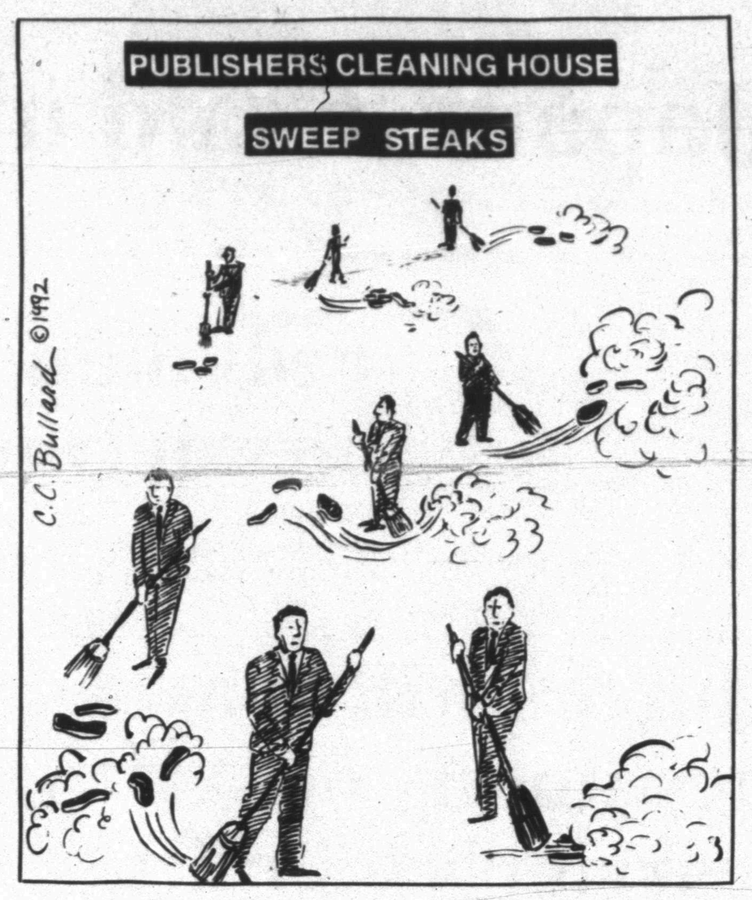

Anyway, while flipping through Blum's Farmer's and Planter's Almanac for 1992 I discovered an article for those of us who should go on a diet but haven't. It's a study that shows you can lose weight, just by being yourself.

Friends have added to the original list, but most of the credit goes to Blum's Almanac. And here we go:

Beating around the bush	75
Jumping to conclusions	100
Digging a hole you can't crawl out of	100
Climbing the walls	150
Swallowing your pride	50
Passing the buck	25
Throwing your weight around (depending on your weight)	50-300
Dragging your heels	100
Pushing your luck	250
Making mountains out of molehills	500
Adding fuel to the fire	150
Hitting the nail on the head	50
Bending over backwards	75
Jumping on the bandwagon	200
Waiting for an okay	5
Running around in circles	350
Eating crow	225
Finding a needle in a haystack	50
Flying by the seat of your pants	75
Tooting your own horn	25
Considering the consequences	100
Pulling out all the stops	75
Just doing what you're told to	15
Running it up the flagpole	75
Making no waves	25
Hanging in there	25
Hanging out	10

Well, that's it. Now I have to go wade through some paperwork. Incidentally, that's worth another 300 calories.

Interesting cover story in the January 13 "Newsweek." It's called, "The Legacy of Divorce: How the Fear of Failure Haunts the Children of Divorce." It seems that the newlyweds and young parents of the nineties are products of the divorce-happy seventies. At least half of them endured the trauma of their parent's divorce, and for the first time, we are able to observe how that childhood trauma has affected their adulthood.

One single important fact emerges from all the academic studies: No matter how well adjusted a kid seemed to be at the time, no matter how smoothly he seemed to make the transition from an intact family to a broken one; when he or she reaches adulthood and considers making that major commitment of marriage — all those childhood ghosts rise up to haunt and torment. First of all, they are afraid to trust anyone because they found out early on that they couldn't trust their own parents. Secondly, the word "commitment" has lost its meaning — especially if one or both parents divorced more than once. They have no idea how to make a marriage work. Often they bail out at the first sign of trouble. He or she is much more likely to get divorced themselves. Usually there is one divorce before they begin to figure out the rhythms of marriage. Some children of divorce are absolutely determined not to make the same mistakes their parents did; but they usually have to get some kind of family counseling to enable them to learn the communication skills their parents obviously did not have. The bottom line is: children of divorce never get over it.

The article offers some excellent suggestions for divorced parents to help other kids make as seamless a transition as possible, as well as some positive things that should give the adult children of divorce hope. I'm not going to get into that; I highly recommend you read the article itself. Instead, I'm going to offer some advice, based on almost eighteen years experience, to those young people who may be contemplating marriage, who may be newlyweds, or who may be going through one of those inevitable rough spots every marriage endures.

First of all, choose your prospective spouse with care. Just because you are deeply in love is no reason to get married. Many of us can tell tales about falling in love with the wrong person at least once in our single days. When I was very young, I fell in love with a man who hurt me so deeply it took me five years to get over it. And I was once engaged to someone I did not marry. Don't pick a spouse because you're in love or because your parents approve (or disapprove). Pick someone you know will make a good wife or husband and an excellent parent; someone who has no problems with drugs or alcohol or a violent, possessive temper; someone whom you know will be faithful to you. Someone who meets your needs, more than your wants. Someone you not only love, but genuinely like and enjoy spending time with. Sexual sparks are good — but not enough to sustain fifty or more years together. And for heaven's sake, don't rush into anything; if it's real, believe me, it will endure anything.

The most important thing for a young married person to realize is that, over the long course of many years, you will fall in and out of love with your spouse several times. None of us remains exactly the same year in and year out. We grow up, we change, we take risks and fail and try again. As adults, we are constantly evolving. It's only natural that during those periods of growth, we may be confused or angry or depressed and just plain hard to live with. A spouse enduring a period like that can be most unloveable indeed. Put two people together, each going through their own changes, and you have the makings of some humdinger arguments and long deadly silences. You might even think about leaving.

But if you do, consider two things: First of all, will the alternative be that much better? Especially if you have kids. Will it really be worth what you'd have to put them through? (Don't get me wrong. Sometimes there are clear indications for divorce: violence, severe mental abuse, or child abuse; chronic unfaithfulness; alcoholism or drug abuse; or someone who allows the kids to go hungry without doing something — anything — to find work, even if it means relocating. But these are all extreme cases. Not to be confused with the wishy-washy "irreconcil-

Satisfied appliance owners should do their homework

The purchase of a major appliance is one of the most important investments you make for your home. A wise purchase will reward you with the valued service and convenience your investment deserves. The Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel urges consumers to do their homework before making a final selection.

Here are some pointers from MACAP to help you make a wise purchase decision.

• Ask the dealer for specification sheets from several manufacturers of the appliance types you plan to purchase. Study them carefully and note the different features, designs and capacities.

• Ask the dealer to see the warranty before purchasing the appliance. Does the warranty cover the entire product? Only certain parts? Is labor included? How long is the warranty coverage?

• Ask the dealer for the use and care manual. Read it carefully before you purchase the appliance. The dealer should have manuals available from the floor models on display. These manuals will help you to ask pertinent questions, tell you how the product operates and what special care it needs.

• Decide what special features you will really use. Consider the possibility of adding on features at a later date such as an icemaker for a regrigerator.

• Decide what capacity or size your family's lifestyle requires. For example, if purchasing a room air conditioner, know the dimensions of the room and number of windows. Make certain the model you choose has sufficient Btu's to cool the area.

• Check the space available for the appliance. Will it fit where you plan to put it? Is there adequate clearance space in the hallway or doors through which the appliance will have to pass before installation?

• Check the product design carefully prior to purchase. Does the product's design meet your usage habits? Compare the designs of different brands. If you are purchasing a combination microwave oven/range, check the space between the units to be sure your favorite pans will fit.

• Clearly establish the cost of delivery and installation. Are these costs included or are they extra?

• Ask the dealer if he services the appliances he sells. If not, ask him where to go for authorized factory service on the appliance you plan to purchase.

• Compare price in relation to convenience and service. Both vary according to model. As more features and conveniences are included, the price increases.

• Be sure your house has adequate electrical service for the appliance in order to avoid overloading circuits. Also, be sure your house has adequately grounded, three-hole receptacles.

Remember, do your "homework" before you buy your next appliance.

New Hampshire said back in political spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a partial eclipse that's lasted four presidential campaigns, New Hampshire's primary election is primary again in 1992, with all its myths and flaws.

All except one, anyhow. The complaint that New Hampshire is atypical, isolated and insulated against the problem issues that afflict voters elsewhere, doesn't apply in this campaign, in a state battered by recession.

"We are, of course, not out of the woods," Gov. Judd Gregg told the state Legislature Wednesday, a day after complaining that Democratic presidential candidates are making it sound worse than it is.

"They're saying, 'Oh, New Hampshire is basically a basket case,'" said Gregg, who heads the campaign for President Bush in the Republican primary. Gregg said that is making it more difficult to attract the business that could spur recovery.

When Bush won the primary in 1988, reversing an embarrassing third-place finish in the Iowa precinct caucuses, New Hampshire was thriving. The unemployment rate was the nation's lowest. Now it has tripled, past the national average.

"Obviously, New Hampshire has some special difficulties," Vice President Dan Quayle said as he campaigned for Bush last week.

Conservative commentator Patrick J. Buchanan is challenging the president in the Feb. 18 primary, and the White House knows there's an economic protest vote coming. The campaign aim is to keep it down.

Quayle told voters there he knew they wanted to send a message, and it already has registered at the White House.

Ron Kaufman, the White House political director, said the contest isn't over conservative ideology. "It's the question of the economy," he said.

For Bush's purposes, ideology would be preferable. Ronald Reagan won there when it counted most, but more often than not, conservatives haven't fared so well.

Bush defeated more conservative candidates in 1988. Reagan beat him in 1980, but lost narrowly to former President Ford in the 1976 GOP primary. When two protest candidates from the House ran against President Nixon in the 1972 primary, the GOP liberal got more than twice as many votes as the conservative. About one-third of the Republican votes were cast against Nixon, a protest benchmark that may figure on the appraisals of Buchanan vs. Bush.

The classic conservative rebuff dates back to 1964, when Sen. Barry Goldwater campaigned all winter against New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller — and Henry Cabot Lodge, then U.S. ambassador to Saigon, won in a landslide of write-in votes.

Nor has New Hampshire always been accommodating toward candidates from the neighborhood.

So never mind the poll suggesting that the self-sidelined Mario Cuomo could even now lead the Democratic field in write-in votes. They said the same thing about Ted Kennedy before he ventured north in 1980 to challenge President Carter. He lost badly, on his own New England territory.

When Sen. Edmund S. Muskie came over from Maine in 1972, he claimed the mantle of favorite son, with some justification. As governor and later as senator next door, he'd helped build the Democratic Party in New Hampshire. The favor was not returned; he won, but Sen. George McGovern came close enough to claim the momentum and, ultimately, the nomination.

In the 40 years since New Hampshire began voting on presidential candidates, no one has been elected to the White House who didn't win there first — Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Carter, Reagan and Bush.

The primary also was the beginning of Johnson's political undoing in 1968, although not the end of it. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's second-place showing, with just under 42 percent of the vote, showed Johnson's vulnerability, although he was not on the ballot, did not campaign in person, and got nearly half the Democratic vote on write-ins.

It was almost three weeks before Johnson surrendered, just before the Wisconsin primary, where public opinion polls showed him facing a humiliating outright defeat. Two days after the LBJ withdrawal, McCarthy won that primary, 56 percent to 35 percent.

Hate crime against children sparks concern in hard town

NEW YORK (AP) — There have been far more violent racial crimes, but the attack on two black children walking to school brought tears to the mayor's eyes and stirred this hard town's heart.

A 14-year-old boy and his 12-year-old sister were jumped Monday by four white teen-agers who beat them, robbed them of $3, sheared off the girl's hair, and in a final act of humiliation, sprayed them with white shoe polish, police said.

"You'll be white today!" police said one attacker shouted.

Mayor David Dinkins, who is black, described the attack as a horrific crime — one that evoked such painful memories of his youth that it brought tears to his eyes at a City Hall news conference.

The children escaped with their lives — unlike Yusef Hawkins, 16, and Michael Griffith, 23, who were killed by gangs of whites in Brooklyn and Queens in 1989 and 1986, respectively — but the case has gained nearly as much attention as those widely publicized killings.

One urban expert speculated that New Yorkers were appalled by the attack because it involved children and was "especially evil" because of its unprovoked physical and mental abuse.

"This was a pure act of racism," said Mitchell Moss of New York University's Urban Research Center.

This week, parents and civic leaders in the ethnically mixed, middle-class Bronx neighborhood moved quickly into schools to allay other children's fears and to stem retaliatory attacks.

However, on Wednesday in the same neighborhood, an Asian-Indian teen-ager was beaten by a gang of blacks aboard a city bus and two light-skinned Hispanics were pummeled by three black youths, one of whom yelled, "White kids will get beaten now!"

Whites, blacks, Hispanics and Asians have shared the neighborhood for years.

Inspector William Wallace, head of the police bias unit, said Thursday that young people often respond to such incidents with counterattacks.

"A bias crime doesn't just affect the immediate victims, but all members of the victims' group," Wallace said. "Some experience deep sorrow, some anguish, some deep anger — and some act that anger out."

Nellie Wilson, the children's mother, said she has tried to impress upon them that "not everybody who is white is bad."

"They just met some sour apples, some bad people," she told the New York Times.

But the incident left her eighth-grade son angry and confused.

"I have white friends," he said. "But to speak truly right now, I don't know what to feel about them."

He added that he also doesn't know how they feel about him. "Maybe they feel the same way about me now as those four," he said.

People who identify with the attackers also are affected, Wallace said.

"People hear a description of the suspects and feel that same type of connection, as if they're all being condemned," he said.

In this case, the victims said the attackers identified themselves as members of a street gang called the Albanian Boys. An estimated 40,000 Albanian-Americans live in the Bronx.

able differences" which translates into "too immature to work it out.") Provided it's just a communication problem, do you really think it would be all that different with someone else? (It wouldn't.)

And secondly, think of those marriage vows as an ironclad commitment. For better or for worse. For life. Simply refuse to give up. Don't let problems fester. Force your spouse to face and deal with them. (Some of those confrontations can be painful, but like lancing a wound, it allows all the infection to drain out.) If you don't know how, seek help. If your spouse won't go, go alone. Do whatever it takes to make it work.

If you do, I guarantee this is what will happen: you'll pass through that valley. The rough spots will smooth over. And you will fall in love with each other all over again, only this time, it will be much stronger for having survived. It will get better and better and the next tim you hit a snag, you'll know better how to handle it and it won't be so tough. Eventually you'll find that even if you fuss at each other, it will only last a day or two.

And finally, a last word on "commitment." Some divorcing couples say that they never did fight all that much — they just drifted apart through the years. (You sometimes hear this from couples divorcing after more than 20 years together.) DON'T LET THAT HAPPEN! The minute you begin to feel that you are drifting apart — do something about it! (The problem usually starts while the kids are growing up and you are all so busy all the time.) Take a marriage pulse every so often and check to see if it's still going strong. If it's not, then take a weekend together without the kids. Get counseling. Force a confrontation. Whatever. Find a way to renew your love. Don't ever let go of each other, because in the end, each other is all you'll have.

Where have all our

CHILDREN GONE?

Since 1980 there have been fewer than 400 new jobs created in Snyder. With the downturn in the oil economy, the closing of service and retail businesses, the loss of 106 jobs at Wall's, the net gain is zero. Snyder High School, since 1980, has graduated 2,091 students.
