Soviet Union rejects Ford arms pact bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has rejected for the second time a Ford administration attempt to wrap up a nuclear weapons treaty that would not cover the controversial U.S. Cruise missile and the Russian Backfire bomber, high U.S. officials acknowledged Friday.

The new U.S. overture was made by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko over a steak and wine dinner in New York and then repeated by President Ford when Gromyko called at the White House last week.

The proposal called for having negotiators in Geneva complete terms for agreement on issues already settled. This would set a ceiling of 2,400 on each country's strategic weapons systems, including multiple warheads, until 1985. An interim agreement is due to expire next October.

The pilotless Cruise missile and the Russian Backfire bomber would be left to subsequent high-level negotiations between the two superpowers.

Completion of a treaty now would have the effect of continuing some restrictions on nuclear arsenals for another decade and allow Ford to score what might be considered a foreign policy coup before the presidential election.

But, as they had in a formal note last March, the Russians rebuffed the offer, U.S. officials said. Gromyko reiterated that any nuclear weapons treaty must impose restrictions on the Cruise missile, which can be launched from surface ships, submarines or aircraft and elude early warning radar.

Despite the turnaround, the officials said, both sides are actively pursuing a weapons agreement and discussions with the Soviets will continue although no formal response to last March's note has been prepared.

During his debate with Carter on Wednesday night, Ford said the Cruise missile could be included in a treaty but that the United States must insist, at the same time, on limiting the Backfire bomber.

The President said Gromyko "indicated to me that the Soviet Union was interested in narrowing the differences and making a realistic and sound compromise."

The Russians maintain the bomber should not be counted as a strategic weapon.

During Kissinger's negotiating visit to Moscow last January, ground seemed to be broken for an understanding that the bombers would be excluded, provided they were not positioned within easy striking distance of the United States.

Since then, intelligence analysts have suggested the Backfire has a longer unrefueled range than initially believed here.

A spokesman for the National Security Council declined to comment on the details of Ford and Kissinger's talks with Gromyko.

Unemployment rate misleading, liberals, conservatives contend

By PETER MILIUS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In his book "Six Crises," Richard M. Nixon blamed his loss of the 1960 presidential election partly on that autumn's high unemployment rate.

"In October," he wrote, "usually a month of rising employment, the jobless rolls increased by 432,000. All the speeches, television broadcasts and precinct work in the world could not counteract that one hard fact."

The unemployment rate then — October, 1960 — was 6.1 per cent.

The rate now — the September rate published Friday in the last unemployment report the Labor Department will make before the Nov. 2 presidential election — was 7.4 per cent.

That is the highest unemployment has been going into any presidential election since the Depression gave way to World War II. (In fact, it is the highest unemployment has been at any time since World War II except in the last two years and for one month in 1949 when there were simultaneous national coal and steel strikes.)

Yet somehow unemployment has not seemed to be a crushing issue so far in this presidential campaign.

Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter regularly cites it in his speeches, and the public opinion polls show unemployment second only to inflation when voters are asked to list the most important problems facing the country.

But a theory exists now that a percentage point increase in unemployment does not hurt as much as it used to, does not connote as much social misery.

Conservatives especially, but some liberals as well, say two things make the overall unemployment rate sound worse than it is.

They point out, first, that a growing percentage of the unemployed are women and teen-agers who are not the main breadwinners of their families. When these secondary earners lost their jobs, it is argued, their families can still get by.

Second, the minimizers of the unemployment rate point out that most experienced workers are now covered by unemployment insurance when they are laid off; they note the government paid out $17.5 billion in unemployment insurance benefits last year, when unemployment was at its height.

Conservatives also claim it would be inflationary to attack unemployment too hard. They note that everyone suffers from inflation, while only a minority is hurt by unemployment.

But there are also experts who

Royal seeing Red over 'spy'

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal renewed his bitter feud with Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer Friday when he charged that a "spy" had sneaked into secret Texas football workouts and then passed information to Switzer.

The Longhorn Coach angrily challenged Switzer and the "spy" to take a lie detector test and said he would donate $10,000 of his own money to each man's favorite charity if they denied his charges and passed the tests.

Royal said his charges referred to last year, but noted he thought the spying had gone on this year too.

"I have never asked anyone to spy on Texas or any other opponent," Switzer said. "We always hear rumors about opponents."

The man accused of the spying told The Associated Press in a telephone interview: "That's the craziest thing I've ever heard. Royal has a hang-up about lie detector tests like he does about country and western music." The man said he did not wish his name to be used, and this angered Royal.

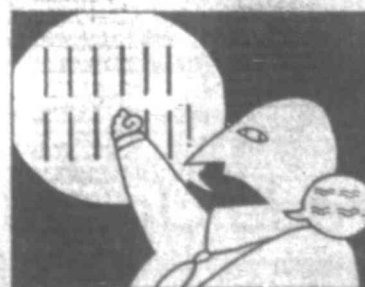

The money is his own, Royal said, because "I didn't check with anybody at UT. I have confidence enough to put up $10,000. Switzer can snap himself off $10,000, too. That's about as strong as I can put it."

"And I'll take a polygraph test for nothing, if anybody accuses me of spying on their workouts."

"I don't know what the hell he's talking about," Switzer said when contacted by telephone. "No one's come to me with anything."

About the $10,000 offer, Switzer said, "That's ridiculous. He's done that before (referring to earlier lie test challenges by Royal)."

"We always hear rumors about opponents' preparations. Even this past week I have received calls saying Texas would be in a new offensive formation ... the guy Coach Royal refers to as a spy is probably just some loudmouth popping off."

Royal said the "spy" talked with Switzer by long distance telephone Thursday night. He knows that, Royal said, because the Tulsa hotel telephone operator said the man had just finished talking with Switzer when a call was placed to Switzer from Austin.

Switzer said "if they ever catch an OU spy, he's (Royal) got my permission to castrate and assassinate him." Asked whether the latest outburst would sever future relations between the two coaches, Switzer added, "I guess so. It's not my fault."

Oklahoma Sports Information Director John Keith said in Dallas that Oklahoma's practices are always open and draw quite a few spectators.

Before last year's Orange Bowl game with Michigan, Michigan sportswriters were surprised to learn they could attend Oklahoma practices, Keith said.

Also, Oklahoma Atty. Gen. Larry Derryberry telegraphed Royal saying Royal's charge that a polygraph test administered to Switzer was "rigged" is "an affront to the people of your home state, its law

'Chicken Farm' place of artistic repute

SAN ANGELO—Really, if you've seen one chilli cook-off you've seen 'em all, for the most part, so the most unusual aspect of last Saturday's "Penatekas" affair here was the site itself: a brand-new arts community called the "Chicken Farm" art center.

It really was a chicken farm before artists Roger Allen and Bill Rich and progressive country performer Richard Ramirez (of "Ramirez and Lindemann") started converting it into living quarters, studios, and showrooms about a year ago. But I thought it'd take years, so I was amazed to find a full-fledged "Little Santa Fe" or permanent "State Arts and Crafts Fair" in the horseshoe-shaped complex surrounding a courtyard for parking and later additions.

I was only disappointed to find no sign of a chicken.

But there is some very high-powered art on hand among regular tenants including Allen himself, widely known potter and instructor and the guiding light of the Chicken Farm.

Other artists in the complex include those of bootmaker and sometime mesquite sculptor Robert Casleberry, cabinetmakers Mel Register and Craig Mathewson, photographer Barry Norris (featuring "kids to nudes, mild or wild"—but none of his nudes would allow their likenesses to be displayed on opening day), George Maxwell's formerly Dallas (Olla Podrida) based watercolor studio, the "Mission Rocks Lapidary" of scores of types of stones from dinosaur bones to Texas topaz, Rich's custom foundry and sculpture studio, and the "No Name Metal Sculpture and Jewelry" of widely exhibited Jay de Broux.

Briscoe thinking 3rd term

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, without saying it in exact words, has strongly indicated he will run for a third term.

"I think it is too early to make an announcement," Briscoe told the Times Herald editorial board. "I would think next year would be the time to make that decision."

"I would say that I like the job. I find it challenging. I'm proud of the record. And I'll say this, as I travel around the state I find stronger support today than I had in my first two elections."

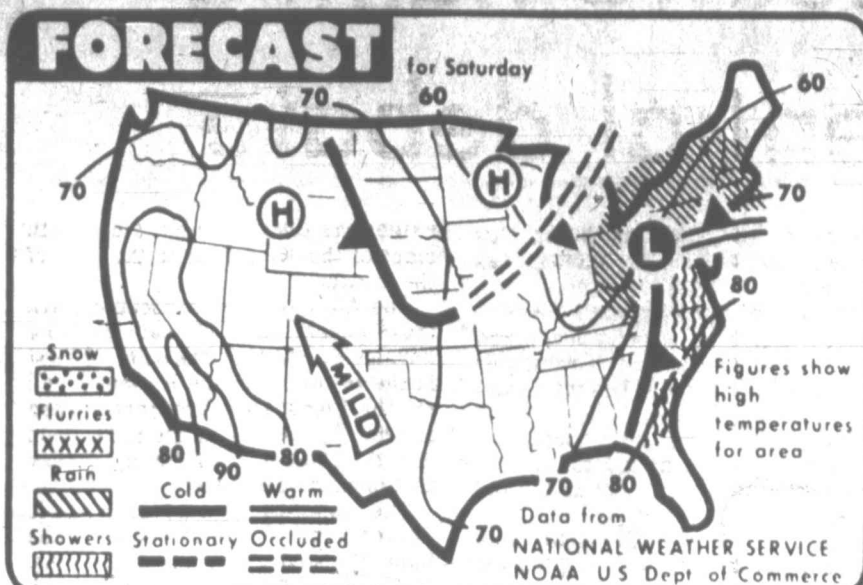

House Speaker Bill Clayton said Thursday that he was still hearing that Briscoe would run again.

"And I believe he will," Clayton said. "I wouldn't be surprised if sometime between now and the first of the year he (Briscoe) lets us know his feelings about that."

State Democratic chairman Calvin Guent, a close Briscoe ally, said recently he is convinced Briscoe would run again.

Briscoe was first elected to a two-year term in 1972.

enforcement officers and to me."

Derryberry said he personally arranged for the polygraph tests to be administered by professional polygraph operators employed by the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.

"As far as the people of Oklahoma are concerned, Barry Switzer never needed to take a lie detector test," the telegram said. "His honesty and integrity are well known in Oklahoma. The test was given to satisfy outside critics, such as you, and you have my personal assurances that Coach Switzer passed the test with flying colors."

Royal, when asked about the polygraph tests on recruiting Switzer said OU coaches had taken a month ago, Royal had replied, "that was a rigged test."

Royal said the "spy talked" with Switzer in Tulsa by long distance telephone Thursday night. Royal said he knows that because the telephone operator at Switzer's hotel took a call for Switzer from Royal. The telephone operator, when given the name of the "spy," said that was who had just telephoned Switzer long distance.

Royal said he had the name of the "spy" from Tony Herry, a Texas alumnus from Houston, who knew him as a former business associate. Herry told The Associated Press the man had admitted spying for Oklahoma last year. Royal said he saw no reason why Oklahoma would stop spying this year.

Royal bitterly said he wanted the man's name published.

When it was suggested to Royal that it is not a crime to spy on workouts, Royal said, "It ought to hurt his business when a man engages in that kind of unethical and dishonest conduct."

Royal said he did not know what effect the story would have on the Texas-Oklahoma game today.

Southwest Conference Commissioner Cliff Speegle said he would probably look into the matter after the weekend.

"I don't think I'd have the backbone of a jellyfish if I sat on this," Royal said. "I did it because I love the game, and the game has been good to me."

Carter accuses Ford of hiding in garden

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter accused President Ford Friday of "hiding in the Rose Garden" while questions about his use of campaign funds and other controversial subjects go unanswered.

Carter told an afternoon airport crowd of between 4,000 and 5,000 — a police estimate — that Ford has failed to have a full scale press conference since February although "I've had eight news interviews in the last three hours."

In his speeches here and at Albuquerque, N.M., Carter attacked Ford for refusing to answer news reporters' questions concerning

Senior citizens' bus to begin service Monday

A bus offering transportation to senior citizens in Midland will be making several stops throughout the city next week.

On Monday, the bus will stop at Dellwood Plaza; on Tuesday, at laundromats, dry cleaning businesses, shoe repairs, and the Midland High School beauty and barber service; on Wednesday, at the Big Spring Street and Northland shopping areas; on Thursday, at the public library and the downtown area; and on Friday, at the Village shopping area.

The bus service is being sponsored by Midland College and Senior Services of Midland.

Those wishing to make reservations on the bus may do so by calling 682-7577 between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. the day before the ride is needed.

Burglars strike trip of stores

Burglars hit three Midland locations in the early morning hours Friday, hauling off more than $800 worth of goods.

Hardest hit was Midwest Electric, 2011 W. Industrial Ave., where six chandelier frames worth an estimated $550 were taken from the southeast corner of the loading yard, police said.

A .22 caliber pistol and a stereo were taken from Dan Fender Tire Co., 1400 W. Florida Ave., officers said. They were valued at $245.

About $200 in cash and the strong box that contained the money were reported taken stolen from Zimco Electric Supply Co., 3105 W. Front Ave., police said.

"I might end up a villain in my home state (Oklahoma)."

Royal grew angrier. "Why, those sorry bastards. I don't trust them on anything."

Royal also brought Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler into the matter, suggesting he be contacted about the Orange Bowl game between the Michigan team and Oklahoma, and specifically about any spying that might have been done.

Schembechler on Friday told The Associated Press: "I don't have any concrete information on whether they have done anything up here in terms of scouting us prior to the game...Darrell seems to have some pretty concrete information. You ask me, on the basis of what I know, did they scout our practices? They very well could have."

Herry, 34, told Royal about the alleged spy. He said the man admitted spying on secret Longhorn workouts on Wednesday and Thursday before last year's game.

"He had been in the upper deck when the trash people came along, and he darn near got hit on the head by 'em. He just faded into the dark," Herry said.

Asked if he thought Oklahoma spied on his practices in previous years, Royal said, "I believe so."

This season, too?

"I don't know why they would stop this year," he said.

Royal said he did not know what would happen during warmups before the game today. It is a time when coaches usually stand at midfield and talk for a few minutes, and Royal and Switzer have done that at Texas-OU game. He said he would not go up to Switzer, indicating it would have to be the other way around if they meet.

"I'm old-timey enough to think we're supposed to be teaching sportsmanship, fair play and competition in a fair way," Royal said.

"It's a thing of ethics. Everybody's entitled to secret practices to prepare his team for the surprise element."

He added, "We are part of education, and if we don't teach sportsmanship and fairness and honesty, then there's no place for it (football) in the educational system."

alleged misuse of Ford's campaign funds, the furor over Ford's statements about the freedom from Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and the failure of the Commerce Department to release the names of Americans which have participated in the Arab embargo of American companies.

Carter said, "We had a secret, private administration under Richard Nixon, and we've still got a secret, private administration under Ford."

In his speech, Carter did not mention several issues of concern to Mexican border cities. He ignored Mexican-American affairs, although he spoke in Spanish twice during his talk.

He did not mention U.S.-Mexican relations except to say a Carter administration would "work well without neighbors in the south of Mexico."

Carter berated the Ford administration for policies Carter said are responsible for the nation's high unemployment rate.

El Paso has the largest unemployment rate in Texas, with 12.5 per cent of its work force jobless.

Carter said, "Gerald Ford has not worked to put our people back to work. He's only interested in one job, and he's going to be unemployed the 20th of January if you'll help me."

Panel urges grant's OK

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Criminal Justice Division Advisory Board Friday recommended to Gov. Dolph Briscoe the approval of three federal-state criminal justice grants to West Texas governments.

The board recommended that Briscoe approve these grants: the grant to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, a $42,179 regional planning grant for 1977 to reduce crime and improve overall the criminal justice system through development of a comprehensive planning effort. The grant consists of federal funds only, with no state or local matching funds.

To Ector County, a $121,346 grant, of which $12,135 is state matching funds, for a third year continuation of previous grants to maintain the Ector County Juvenile Rehabilitation Program.

To the West Texas Council of Governments, a $17,130 grant, of which $1,714 is state matching funds, to continue regional law enforcement training.

With recommendation of the advisory board, the grant applications go to Briscoe for approval.

Unemployment rate misleading to many contend with equal force, that the official unemployment figures understate the problem.

For one thing, the official figures have accustomed us to thinking of unemployment almost entirely in monthly rather than annual terms, and that in some ways is misleading. Unemployment is reported as a monthly total that rises or falls, and somehow the impression is given that people unemployed one month are the same ones who were unemployed the month before. In fact, however, there is turnover.

Thus in 1975, unemployment averaged 8.5 per cent, and the number of unemployed at any given time averaged 7.8 million.

But the number of people who, at one point or another in the year, actually experienced a spell of unemployment was much greater — 21.1 million, or 20.2 per cent of all those who were in the work force during the year.

As a rule of thumb, the experts say, the number of people who will be touched by unemployment in any year is two to three times the monthly average.

The unemployment rate comes from a monthly survey of about 47,000 households. The government asks how many people there are in each household 16 years old and older, how many of them have jobs, and how many of those without a job have recently looked for one. Those who say they have looked and not found a job are classified as unemployed.

Some experts say this definition tends to overstate the number of unemployed, as that term is commonly understood. For one thing, it is not confined to workers who have been laid off. It also includes, among other categories, workers who quit their last job to look for another.

Of the 7.4 million unemployed last month, for example, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Friday that 3.8 million lost their last job, while 900,000 left their last job voluntarily. Another 900,000 had just entered the work force and were seeking their first job, while 1.9 million were re-entrants who had worked in the past, the stopped for

Temperatures again to rise in West Texas

A warming trend is expected to pull temperatures back up to normal levels today after record-setting low temperatures were set in many Texas cities following a cold air front Thursday.

It was only 33 degrees in Midland early Friday morning, colder than the previous record low of 40 degrees set in 1940.

Other early morning record lows were 26 at Amarillo, 32 at Lubbock, 35 at El Paso and 52 at Galveston.

Friday's high was only 62 degrees, but the weatherman says it will get up into the middle 70s today and will be closer to normal for this time of year Sunday, with a high in the lower 80s expected.

Nights will continue to be nippy, though, with temperatures in middle 40s expected.

His works—from small, exacting colored pencil renderings of famous Americans and infamous Indians to huge textured-oils of impressionistic subjects such as a ka'—scopic biography of Teddy Roosevelt—display a mastery of techniques (which figures: he's creative designer for Angelo State University publications and art teacher there), but—more importantly—a vision and a power and a unique style bound to render him as successful as he is already accomplished. There is a little wry joking about his large, diamond-shaped oil study of Einstein and the creative process, but I predict the day is not far off when Ron will be attracting larger fees for less sophisticated works.

Houston's Alley Theatre named site of vice presidential debate

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston League of Women Voters said Friday that Houston's Alley Theatre has been selected as the site of next Friday's vice presidential debate between Sens. Robert Dole and Walter Mondale.

Madeleine Appel, president of the Houston organization, said she had received confirmation from national league headquarters in Washington.

The site of the debate is a sharp contrast with those being used for the presidential debates.

President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter are debating in historic structures. Dole, Ford's running mate, and Mondale will debate in a modernistic concrete building with an outward appearance of an ancient fortress or castle.

The $3.1 million Alley Theatre opened in late 1968 as the home of a theater group that began as amateurs in 1947, became semiprofessional in 1952, and fully professional in 1954.

The Alley acquired its name more or less accidentally when it began its operations nearly 30 years ago in an abandoned manufacturing plant about 50 blocks south of its current downtown location.

The exterior of the Alley is of reinforced and sandblasted concrete that was poured in complex, nonrectangular shapes. The fortress effect results from nine massive towers that contain stairwells, elevators and air conditioning.

Architect Ulrich Franzen has described his Alley as being "as ancient as stone, as modern as Houston."

An "alley" cuts through the six-story building at ground level and serves as a pedestrian and vehicular passageway to drive-in box office and lobby areas.

The Alley has two separate theaters. One, seating 300, follows the quadrangle arena concept of the old Alley.

Mondale and Dole will debate in an 800-seat auditorium with multispace stage facilities.

Unlike the arena concept, the multispace stage practically surrounds the audience. The seats fan out in a 90 degree arc from an apex formed by the stage that has 65-foot extensions that reach out along both sides of the seat banks to the rear of the theater.

The Alley faces a landscaped park that covers a 2,000-car parking garage. Facing the park from the east is the $6 million Jesse H. Jones Hall for the Performing Arts that opened in 1966. To the west is the $12 million Albert Thomas Convention Center that opened a year later.

The complex is part of a Civic Center area that also includes the Sam Houston Coliseum and Music Hall and a $6 million Tranquility Park that is being built to honor man's first landing on the Moon.

The coliseum was built on the site of the 1928 Democratic national convention.

Multiple cancers more prevalent

NEW YORK (AP) — Five to about 10 per cent of cancer patients will get a second or even third primary cancer later in life, specialists estimated Friday.

By that they mean a new cancer, not the spread of an initial one to another site.

"Just a short time ago, more than one primary cancer in an individual was considered a medical oddity. But today, multiple primaries are observed with increasing frequency," said Dr. William G. Cahan of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center here.

"We are studying these cancers more carefully because the factors that are important in cancer stand in bold relief in multiple primary patients," added Dr. David Schottenfeld, chief of Memorial's epidemiology and preventive medicine service.

"These cancers give us important clues about the natural history of the disease and the role of heredity, the environment, and the immune system in the development of malignancies," he said.

Drs. Schottenfeld and Cahan were cochairmen of a two-day International Workshop on Multiple Primary Cancers ending Friday.

Climbers nearing Mt. Everest top

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Dr. Chris Chandler and Bob Cormack neared the "Top of the World" Friday on the last leg of their attempt to become the first Americans in 13 years to reach the summit of Mt. Everest.

But as they moved toward the 29,028-foot peak, clouds moved in, obscuring the view of observers below.

"We have every reason to believe they were going on," said a spokesman for the U.S. embassy, which was in radio contact with the base camp of the American Bicentennial Everest Expedition.

The 28-year-old physician and the 30-year-old glider pilot, the expedition's lead climbers, were last spotted after crossing the dangerous "Hillary Step" just short of the 29,028-foot summit at 3:30 p.m. local time (6:30 a.m. EDT) Friday, officials here said.

The Hillary Step, named after Everest's first conqueror, is considered the last obstacle to the top.

The "two little figures" watched through binoculars by observers at the 19,000-foot level had stopped for about 30 minutes after crossing the steep pitch, an embassy spokesman said.

"It could have been either for rest or to have a bite before going up the last crucial stage of the climb," he said.

Several hours later the view was still blocked by clouds.

Chandler, of Vashon, Wash., and Cormack, of Boulder, Colo., climbed the final leg Friday — 1,528 vertical feet from their last camp — without their Sherpa guide, Ang Phurba, 27, who had to drop back because of a malfunctioning oxygen cylinder, officials said.

Their oxygen tanks, necessary at that altitude, have twice the capacity of tanks carried on previous expeditions, the embassy spokesman said.

TAKING QUITE A FALL, an office worker in Dusseldorf, West Germany, drops about 40 feet onto an inflatable mattress which the local fire department is testing for emergency evacuation of buildings. Jumps were made from about 40 feet. No one was injured in the tests.

Ice Capades are hot stuff

ODESSA — The 1976 edition of Ice Capades lives up to its reputation for glamor, glitter and great performances, and Permian Basin fans have until Tuesday night to enjoy it all.

Champagne bubbles fill the Ector County Coliseum as the start and a flock of trained doves sail down at the end. In between is three hours of lively entertainment with something for the entire family.

The theme, and the title of the opening number, is "Just for You," and the skaters bring the message across loud and clear.

Erika Leslie highlighted the opening number with one of the best performances of the evening.

After braving near-freezing temperatures (the message board outside the coliseum read "33 degrees"), the crowd quickly warmed to the occasion and applauded the antics of Titch Stock and Gerry Willis as they produced some hokey comedy about two country boys.

The only portion of the show that seemed too long was the plate-balancing act put on by Albert Lucas. The younger set in the audience enjoyed his racing back and forth trying to keep the plates spinning atop slender poles, but the seats soon became uncomfortable for many of those over-15. He later put on a spectacular juggling performance that was appreciated.

Don Yonts, who looks like he could play football for anybody's team, and petite Charlene Sharlock were crowd favorites as Charlene spent almost as much time off the ice as she was on while Don lifted her gracefully and often spun her perilously close to the ice.

David Kirby, Ann-Margaret Frei and Sashi Kuchiki led the chorus line skaters through several exercises in "Gym 'n Ice Tricks," with Kuchiki delighting the audience with several high leaps.

The younger set's favorite number was "Happy Birthday, Yogi Bear," featuring just about every cartoon character currently popular. On the ice, the "Gator Glide," featuring alligators sliding across the ice on their tails, was the big favorite, while the small fry in the audience lined the rink to shake hands with most of the skaters.

Terry Head and his stunning wife, Gisela, continued the merriment with a routine about trying to bring a mummy back to life.

Sound effects and a collapsing set made the closing number of the first half of the show memorable as Helga Kim (who, regrettably, has only this featured spot in the show) gracefully portrays a Mongolian princess in love with a young prince (Robert Berry).

The Curiosity Shop, featuring lovely Anna Galmorini and Don and Charlene, is a good number to open the second half. Don and Charlene's routine to "St. Louis Blues," again kept the audience applauding with the frequent lifts and spins.

"A Pinball Odyssey," a magnificently-costumed production number, is easily the best number in the show. Ann-Margaret Frei and Sashi Kuchiki thrilled the crowd while multi-colored lights bounced off the silvery costumes of the chorus line. Kuchiki's solo performance was the top individual job of the evening.

The Ice Capettes, sparked during their "Golden Girls" number, but individuality was missing as each girl had on matching wigs.

David Kirby and Erika Leslie performed beautifully together in

"Concerto Classique."

The biggest crowd-pleaser of the night, judging by the amount of applause received, was David Head's solo comedy routine, "Hootmon."

The finale, featuring the entire cast, was "I Love a Parade," the Ice Capades' salute to the nation's Bicentennial. Overall, the Ice Capades tops last year's show for costuming, lighting and music. David Doucette's costumes make the evening worthwhile.

About the only thing that could improve the show would be for Dorothy Hamill to appear (she's under contract to Ice Capades), but that's not likely to happen this year.

Blacks boo Butz speech

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, in Mississippi to promote his farm policies, was interrupted at a news conference Friday by blacks protesting the racial slur that led to his resignation.

"I have made a grievous mistake, I have apologized as sincerely as I know how and I have paid dearly for it," Butz said, as he tried several times to restrict questions from the audience to farm policy.

But 25 black protesters in the back of the motel conference room where his news conference was held interrupted Butz several times and accused him of racism and of neglecting the interests of the poor in agricultural areas.

Butz avoided the handful of pickets at the Greenville airport and at the motel.

Hill help requested by group

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Public Utility Commission asked the attorney general Friday to step into a Houston-area water rate dispute that a witness said threatens to erupt into violence.

The commission asked Atty. Gen. John Hill to seek a court order preventing Peoples National Utility Co. from charging its customers in the Greenwood Village subdivision more than the rates set by Harris County Commissioners.

It also scheduled an Oct. 18 prehearing at which it is expected to set interim water rates for Greenwood Village.

The commission asked Hill to seek a court order blocking disconnection of customers.

New fiscal year

It's the New Year for the federal government. Under the reforms voted by Congress in 1975, the fiscal year 1977 began Oct. 1 instead of on the traditional July 1. An interim quarter not attached to any fiscal year is now past.

Unfortunately changing the way the government keeps its books did not guarantee any change in what they contain. Indeed, the budget resolutions adopted by Congress recently provide for a $50.6 billion deficit in fiscal 1977, requiring an advance in the national debt to a dizzying $700 billion.

The deficit is $7.6 billion greater than what President Ford envisioned in the budget he submitted early this year. His proposal to couple tax cuts with spending cuts went by the boards. Anti-recession tax cuts enacted last year have been extended into 1977 in the new tax bill, but Congress made no major cut-backs in spending programs.

All of this high finance may be more relevant to Americans today. The outlook for the federal budget from now through 1980 became a concentrated point of discussion — and disagreement — between President Ford and challenger Jimmy Carter in their first debate. If Mr. Ford did better than Carter in the debate, as some polls indicate, it is probably because the President's approach to these complicated fiscal questions seemed much more knowledgeable than Carter's.

Carter must somehow reconcile his promise of a balanced budget with the expensive new programs in his platform. He came up with figures presuming that economic growth in the next four years would produce $60 billion in extra revenue by 1980 to finance those programs while still meeting the ballooning cost of programs already on the books. That doesn't jibe with Mr. Ford's projections, nor those of most government and private economists who are trying to calculate the effect of federal tax and budget policies on inflation and the rate of economic growth.

In fact, Carter's economics may not even jibe with the prognosis issued by the Democratic-controlled Joint Economic Committee of Congress. Disturbed by the apparent leveling-off in economic recovery in recent months, it suggests that the next Congress consider stimulating it some more — with additional tax cuts and additional spending on job programs. In other words, more deficits for the sake of the forced economic growth that can only whip up the fires of inflation.

There are marked differences between the White House and Congress on economic policy, as has been shown by Mr. Ford's veto of $9 billion worth of spending bills for the sake of holding down the size of the deficit. As the federal government begins a new fiscal year, the course of its fiscal policy remains subject to the checks and balances between Congress and the executive. As we see it, the first Ford-Carter debate has strengthened the republican argument that the frustrations and antagonisms which can arise from having a President of one party and a Congress controlled by the other can be quite acceptable at times — and quite important in times like these.

Danger to the ozone

The National Academy of Sciences has concluded that the fluorocarbon gases, used mainly as propellants in aerosol cans, are a serious threat to the earth's protective layer of ozone.

But the scientists said there should be a two-year delay of regulation in order to find out more about the exact dimensions of the threat.

Selective regulation almost certainly will be needed at some time in the future, according to the report.

Two conclusions may be drawn. First, the scientists are a sober, conservative bunch. They aren't stampeding. But they do display serious concern.

Second, the Du Pont Co. and other manufacturers of fluorocarbons should intensify their research to find a harmless substitute gas. This likely will be achieved.

THERE'S ONE EARL GETTING SOME MAKE JONES OUT OF HIS SYSTEM

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Last year, we published a sober report that had been smuggled to us from leaders of Chile's moderate Christian Democratic party. We reported that DINA, the Chilean dictatorship's notorious secret police apparatus, was moving against Christian Democrats "on a global scale."

"There is reason to believe," we reported on Nov. 16, 1975, "that DINA has hired thugs to track down and assassinate prominent exiles." Two weeks ago, former Chilean Ambassador Orlando Letelier was blown to oblivion as he was driving his blue Chevrolet down Washington's tranquil, tree-shaded Embassy Row.

We have now established from reliable sources that he had been meeting with representatives of the Christian Democratic party. They informally discussed plans to form a coalition movement to oppose the Chilean dictatorship.

Our sources say that the lives of the other coalition members are also in danger. In fact, no Christian Democratic leader still brave enough to remain active in politics is safe.

At least two Christian Democratic exiles have been marked for murder. Gabriel Valdes, a former foreign minister, and Rodomiro Tomic, who ran against the late Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1970, have been warned of the assassination danger.

One warning came a year ago from the U.S. embassy in Santiago. The FBI considered the threats so credible that special details were ordered to protect Valdes and Tomic. Bernardo Leighton, one of the founders of the Christian Democratic party, was gunned down on the streets of Rome, along with his wife, a year ago. He barely survived.

Three days after the murder attempt, French police cornered a trio of DINA agents at Orly airport in Paris. They were interrogated and then put aboard a plane for Santiago.

The military dictatorship, meanwhile, continues to offer lip service to Chile's traditional democracy. But as early as July, 1975, we saw intelligence reports from Santiago, which claimed the junta planned to wipe out the Christian Democratic party and thereby extinguish democracy forever in Chile.

The United States, for its part, continues to finance the Chilean dictatorship.

Footnote: We have discussed our evidence in detail with both Chile's Minister of Justice Miguel Schweitzer and Ambassador to Washington Manuel Trucco. Both vehemently denied that their government has been scheming to eliminate the Christian Democratic party.

NIXON'S WORRY: Richard Nixon is worried that President Ford may jeopardize his accomplishments in China. The former president has confided his concern to at least two close friends.

The death of the demigod Mao Tse-tung has left a political vacuum on the Chinese mainland. It is a crucial time, therefore, for Chinese-American relations.

Yet in Nixon's view, President Ford is neglecting China and favoring Russia. Nixon believes this could be an historic mistake. He thinks the United States should tilt toward China.

The former President is also critical of Ford's diplomatic efforts in the Middle East. Recent events have given the United States an opportunity, he has told friends, to

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL:

Carter could create a new bureaucracy

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — "I will give," pledged Jimmy Carter, "the development of a coherent energy policy the highest priority."

The former Georgia governor then delivered up his first detailed proposal of how he would fulfill his long-standing political promise to reorganize the federal bureaucracy. It came after a long period of public criticism that Carter was vague and unspecific on crucial issues. A close examination of what Carter proposes in the field of energy demonstrates that his ideas are not new. Neither is there any assurance that his plan will not create a new bureaucracy.

Carter proposes to abolish the Federal Energy Agency Administration, the Federal Power Commission, the Energy Research and Development Administration, and the Energy Resources Council. All four agencies were approved by members of Carter's own party in a Democratic-controlled Congress. Carter would replace these agencies with a Cabinet-level department on energy.

In the last 25 years this type of "consolidation" has spawned even bigger federal bureaucracies. Under the Eisenhower administration, for example, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) was raised to a Cabinet-level post supposedly to consolidate and make more efficient federal policy in these respective fields. Today HEW is the biggest tax-consuming bureaucracy next to the Defense Department.

The Cabinet-level post of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under the Johnson administration, was created as a consolidation move such as Carter proposes for energy and the results were a bigger and more expensive bureaucracy in the field of housing.

When Carter was governor of Georgia, moreover, his reorganization and consolidation resulted in a new and more expensive chaotic bureaucracy in the field of welfare and health. Carter consolidated various state agencies into a single Department of Human Resources (DHR).

"Carter was determined," writes biographer Leslie Wheeler in "Jimmy Who?" "to have a 'single door' approach to all health, welfare and related social services, but the DHR proved to be too huge to be administered effectively."

"As someone said, trying to get a hold of DHR was like wrestling a hippopotamus in a swimming pool of glue."

Perhaps the most significant omission of Carter's proposal for energy with the creation of a single Cabinet-level post is that it says nothing about freeing the energy industry from the grips of the federal government. Rather, by implication, Carter's new bureaucracy would, if experience is any guide, continue government controls and programs over energy and even expand government regulations and controls.

In a detailed study on energy, The International Institute for Economic Research released in July by three scholars at the Department of Economics at the University of California at Los Angeles, the authors come out flatly for deregulation of controls on energy.

Dr. Hendrik S. Houthakker, professor of economics at Harvard, in the introduction of "Energy and Jobs: A Long Run Analysis," contends that a policy of decontrols would not only achieve energy independence from foreign imports, but would create more jobs.

"By preventing from bringing about needed adjustments," writes Houthakker, "we have not only disrupted the energy sector but also endangered the overall health of our economy. The shortsighted responses to our energy problem generated by the political process are among the main causes of our continuing inflation and persistent unemployment."

Thus, Jimmy Carter's proposal to reorganize the federal bureaucracy in only one area, energy is likely to produce a new bureaucracy, more inflation and fewer jobs. This is new leadership?

INSIDE REPORT:

Ford's Southern revival evidenced on river cruise

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

NEW ORLEANS — President Ford's Mississippi River jamboree, high point of his expedition into the Deep South, ended all illusion that Jimmy Carter can campaign as a liberal Democrat in the North while his Southern redoubt remains safely locked up for him.

That was the purpose of Mr. Ford's surprising choice of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida for his first major campaign tour. In staging the year's most gaudy media event, the President intended to limit Carter's quest of liberal votes elsewhere with the threat of his Southern flank crumbling.

At best, Mr. Ford probably has a shot at no more than five out of the old Confederacy's 11 states. But even that possibility means Carter may have to pay a price in his old home region for campaigning as an unadulterated liberal, as he did in California last weekend.

Aboard the banner-festooned Mississippi sternpaddler "Natchez" on a Saturday afternoon, White House chief of staff Richard Cheney told Southern Republican politicians: "We couldn't give Jimmy a free ride in the South." That directly contradicted the word quietly passed to Southern party leaders just before the Republican national convention six weeks ago that the cotton South was beyond reach and the President would not even try.

The change over one month has resulted almost wholly from Deep

Evans Novak

South perceptions that Jimmy Carter has been captured by the Democratic party's traditional liberal overlord. The sudden transformation of Dixie from Carter preserve to vital battleground is due not to Jerry Ford's brilliance — nowhere in evidence here last weekend — but to Carter's ineptitude as a presidential campaigner.

"Carter's slipping like a Mississippi River mudslide," said Haley Barbour, now the Ford campaign's Southern coordinator but openly pessimistic about the President's chances a month ago as Reagan-oriented executive director of the Mississippi Republican party. Barbour's present view was the consensus aboard the "Natchez," a floating convention hall of Southern politicians, Southern newsmen and Mr. Ford's entire political staff rubbing elbows for eight hours.

The most conspicuous reasons for this perceived Carter slippage were Carter's comments on sex and Lyndon Johnson in his unfortunate interview with Playboy magazine and his confusing statements on income tax reform. But Mr. Ford never referred to these gaffes while floating down the Mississippi.

Rather, the President and those who introduced him along the way painted Carter as the captive of Northern liberals on the wrong side of the issues important here to Southern conservatives: national defense, Vietnam amnesty, gun control, federal spending.

The only surprise was Mr. Ford's highly questionable attack on Sen. Walter Mondale, Carter's running-mate, as "a big spender and way left and we don't want him as Vice President." The reason for this attack was obvious: to make Mondale the symbol of a liberal Carter campaign in the South. But it surprised many Republicans, who thought it demeaned the President. Nor was it expected by the White House staff, which had prepared three pages of talking points for Mr. Ford without a single reference to Mondale.

Evidence of rising Southern Republican spirits seemed solidly buttressed: Item: Party money-raising has reached an all-time peak in Louisiana and in Alabama, evidence that the Republicans think they have a chance against Carter despite Southern chauvinism.

Item: The Ford-Reagan split has nearly closed, with Reaganites now given equal campaign power with pre-convention Ford operatives in most Southern states. National committeeman John Cade of Louisiana, a hard-nosed Reaganite, is state co-chairman of the Ford campaign.

Item: Parading old-time segregationist Democrats such as former Govs. John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Marvin Griffin of Georgia for Mr. Ford, while ignoring years of dramatic change in the South, symbolizes a major Ford tactic: to use conservative Democrats more than Republicans in painting Carter as a Southern-fried Hubert Humphrey. "You must treat Carter just like Hubert," Robert Teeter, the President's pollster, told Southern Republican chairmen at a recent closed-door White House meeting. Ford leaders in the South think Democrats can do that job best.

Carter's vulnerability in his own homeland is best seen by the new mood of his opponent. While displaying no unaccustomed brilliance, it was a different Jerry Ford on his first political tour of the campaign: self-assured, confident and speaking aggressively without any of the usual verbal slips. That suggests Carter's strategists may have been wrong in rejoicing over the Ford Southern expedition as a waste of time.

Smitty Hill cannot win football games in Midland.

Hill brought his San Angelo Central Bobcats to the Tall City Friday night and for the fifth time in five seasons, went home empty-handed as the Robert E. Lee Rebels romped to a surprising 38-13 victory in Memorial Stadium.

The proud Bobcats stormed into town, but limped away as Clyde Gary and Brian Crowell tore the big Central line to shreds at times and the Lee defense was superb when it had to be.

Gary rushed for 116 yards in seven carries and Crowell picked up an even 100 in nine carries.

San Angelo, under Hill, has lost to Coach Jim Acree's Rebels three times and has also lost to Midland once and was tied by the Bulldogs in 1974, so Hill and his Orange crew is still looking for its first win in the Tall City.

Crowell gave the crowd some indication of what was going to happen when the Rebels scored in their first possession of the game.

THE REBELS took the opening kickoff and went 80 yards in only three plays. Quarterback Brad Wright passed on the first play of the game, but the ball fell incomplete and then Crowell gained seven yards. On the next play, the 180-pound senior scampered 71 yards for a touchdown and Jerry Moore booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 11:15 left in the first period.

Crowell made two great defensive plays as Central put the ball into play after the TD and Lee promptly marched 84 yards in seven plays to score again on the stunned Bobcats.

Quarterback David Hobbs hit split end John Lowery with a 61-yard pass to the Bobcat 13 to set up the second Maroon Platoon score of the evening. Crowell capped the drive with a one-yard plunge with 6:24 left in the initial period and Moore's kick made it 14-0. San Angelo then cranked up and drove 44 yards to score with quarterback Mickey Abbott hitting split end Joe Paul Bramhall with a perfect seven-yard strike on fourth and goal at the seven. Joe David West booted the PAT to cut Lee's lead to 14-7 with five seconds left in the first period.

A 19-yard run by Wes Evans along with passes of 26 and 24 yards from Abbott to Bramhall, set up the score.

MARVIN IGLEHART helped set up another Rebel opportunity in the second period when he pounced on a Bobcat fumble at the Lee nine. Central had marched from its 34 to the Lee nine with the big gainer being a 36-yard pass from Abbott to Bramhall.

Hobbs had one of his aerials picked off moments later, however, by Mike McLaughlin.

Lee held, thanks to a great play by sophomore defensive end Jeff McCowan and then scored when Gary zipped 61 yards for the TD, breaking three tackles along the way. Moore made it 21-7 with 1:01 left in the first half.

Moore wasn't through, however. The 150-pound junior booted a 28-yard field goal with seven ticks left on the clock to give Lee a commanding 24-7 halftime advantage.

Wright hit Robert Ochsner with a 28-yard pass to set up the score after Bramhall got off a short 18-yard punt.

Lee missed one other scoring opportunity in the first half when Charles Roseberry returned a Bobcat kickoff 70 yards to the Central 30, but the Rebels fumbled the ball away at the Bobcat 10.

Central took the second half kickoff and promptly marched 64 yards to score. Bill Woodward, who rushed for 179 yards against Abilene Cooper last week, gained 14 yards.

Abbott capped the eight-play drive with a perfect 40-yard TD strike to Bramhall. The Bobcats tried to pass for the two-point conversion, but Vin Smith was swarmed under and the attempt failed, making it 24-13 with 8:57 left in the third period.

NOT TO be outdone, Lee came right back to score on the Bobcats by driving 80 yards in seven plays. Wright hit Ochsner with a 19-yard pass and Gary powered his way on a beautiful 46-yard TD run. Moore's PAT made it 31-13 with 3:23 left in the period.

Dick Lynch gave the Rebels a break later in the period when he recovered a Bobcat fumble at the Lee nine, stopping another Central drive.

Bulldogs rope, brand Steers, 54-18

By PAUL DOMOWITZ
R-T Sports Writer

BIG SPRING—It was homecoming at Big Spring High Friday night, and all of the prestigious Steer grid alumni from the past were in attendance.

Former All-Pro quarterback Charlie Johnson was there. So was Charley West. And Danny Birdwell, Jimmy Evans and Cliff Patton as well.

But a few gate crashers by the name of Maroney, Ward, Price, Widner, Jackson, Booker, Fletcher, et al sourced their homecoming to the West Texas town, as the Midland Bulldogs ran roughshod over the Steers 54-18.

The Purple Pack offense, which has been hampered by inconsistency in their last two contests, had no trouble in that area Friday night, as they racked up 464 yards in offense, and scored the first eight times they had the football.

Bulldog fullback Rusty Maroney had one of the finest nights of his young career in the lopsided victory, scoring three times and rushing for 87 yards. Maroney's backfield mate, Phillip Ward scored twice and topped all runners with a 93 yard night.

Other Bulldogs figuring in the scoring were Alvin Price, Brentley Jackson and Chris Gaddy.

Midland moved the ball almost at will against an undermanned Steer defense, and that became quite evident on the Pack's opening drive early in the first period.

Maroney and Ward alternated lugging the football, as they pushed 56 yards up field in 13 plays, with Ward going in from the seven, with 5:01 remaining in the period.

After Maroney upped the count to 14-0 a few minutes later, with a two-yard scoring plunge, the Steer offense, led by the passing of quarterback Bubba Stripling began to challenge.

Stripling combined with wide receiver Ken Coffee on a pair of first down scoring passes, and the Steers were inside the Bulldog twenty, as the first quarter ended.

But the Midland defense would bend but not break. With the Steers knocking on the scoring doors at the five yard line, Pack lineman David Collins and Billy Walker prevented a fourth down play from going anywhere, and the Bulldogs took over.

Once again, Maroney, Ward and the rest of the Pack offense drove mechanically downfield this time 96 yards in 16 plays, with Maroney going over top, to begin the route.

Midland, 3-2 on the year, and 1-1 in 5-4A competition, will be home next Friday night with Abilene.

Bruins seek to stop Hawks' Orr

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins filed suit in U.S. District Court Friday seeking to bar Bobby Orr from playing with the Chicago Black Hawks until the Boston club is compensated for the super star defenseman "in accordance with National Hockey League rules."

Paul A. Mooney, president of the Bruins, also announced that NHL President Clarence Campbell has been asked to prevent the Black Hawks from using Orr until the Boston club's "equalization rights have been satisfied."

Mooney said that under Section 9A of the league by-laws, if a player under contract with one team becomes a free agent and signs with another member team, the team that signs him is obligated to provide equalization to the player's previous team.

Crane victimized by fluke score

CRANE — Coshoma's Bulldogs capitalized on a fluke touchdown as the springboard to a 10-0 victory over the Crane Golden Cranes in a homecoming game here Friday night.

Jim Bob Phillips scooted around end for 45 yards and a third period touchdown when what sounded like an official's whistle caused both teams to pull up to see what the infraction was. Everybody pulled up, that is, but Phillips who went in for the score.

Rodney Lee kicked the extra point with 9:19 left in the period to make it 7-0.

Crane's best scoring threat came in the first half when the Cranes drove to the Bulldogs three yard line only to have time run out on the clock.

LEE KICKED a 29-yard field goal in the fourth period to salt away the victory for the Bulldogs, raising Coshoma's record to 3-0-1 for the season. Crane is now 3-3 after the non-conference loss.

Sherrill Cunningham reigned as homecoming queen during the halftime festivities.

It was a physical game throughout with the teams even at 11 in first downs and just about even in total offense. Crane gained 133 yards rushing and 76 passing while Coshoma got all of its yardage on the ground, 225.

Both teams lost five fumbles in the chill night air.

Rain threatens playoff tonight in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies had Steve Carlton, and the Cincinnati Reds had Don Gullett. But the weatherman had the biggest stopper of them all—a prediction of rain almost certain to wipe out Saturday night's opener in the National League playoffs.

The National Weather Service said late Friday that there was a "100 per cent chance" of rain. A slow, steady rain. Not the kind that can be waited out, but the kind that forces postponements.

With a rainout, this best-of-five series would have to be played in five consecutive days, with no Monday break. That, said Manager Danny Ozark, could give his underdog Phillies a slight advantage against last year's World Series winners.

"IF ANYTHING, rain would give us a bit of an edge because of the pitching," Ozark said. "I've got a five-man rotation ready to work."

He said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson might be in a bind, hampered by Gullett's possible arm problems and Jack Billingham's shoulder miseries. "So we might have an advantage in a series without a day off," Ozark said.

In Carlton, the Phils have a contender for the Cy Young Award, emblematic of pitching supremacy. The 32-year-old left-hander was 20-7 in 1976, his third 20-victory season, and was fourth in National League strikeouts with 195. He was 11-2 at home.

But in Carlton, the Reds might have just the man against whom they can use their best tactic—speed on the bases.

One of Carlton's biggest weaknesses, despite being a southpaw, is holding runners on base. And he insists that Tim McCarver, a catcher with a questionable throw, be his receiver.

IF ANY of the high-flying Reds, such as Joe Morgan or Ken Griffey, gets on first, it wouldn't be a surprise to see them off and running on the first pitch.

But for that, McCarver has his own answer. "They can't steal first," he says.

While Anderson had to be concerned about the health of two of his pitchers, Ozark's worries about two of his hitters were being put to rest by Phils trainer Don Seger, who said Garry Maddox's left wrist seemed relatively sound and Greg Luzinski's hamstring pull was easing.

"Garry's been hitting a great deal—long and hard—this week and has gotten better every day. I have no qualms," Seger said. Maddox hurt his wrist late in the season sliding into second then reinjured it when he was hit by a pitch.

And of Luzinski, he said, "The hamstring has been improving right along and is at a good level. He's not experiencing any pain."

Sore-armed Hunt notches fastest qualifying time

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Sore-armed James Hunt, who spent one day in the hospital this week, wrestled his McLaren around the Watkins Glen road course in 1 minute, 43.743 seconds, for the fastest speed of Friday's training session for Sunday's United States Grand Prix.

Hunt's average speed of 117.326 miles per hour was about one-tenth of a second faster than Frenchman Patrick Depailler in the six-wheeled Tyrrell.

Hunt improved his time from 10th-quickest in the first session of the day. Earlier his straightaway speeds had been the fastest, but cornering problems kept him off the pace.

At one point during the gloomy, rainy afternoon session, the air bottle flew off Hunt's speeding car and hurtled toward a spectator area.

Lobell's bid for trot triple is rebuffed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Michael A. Crocco's Soothsayer, a 60-1 shot, won only his third race of the year with narrow victory over Steve Lobell in the first heat of Friday's $100,000 Kentucky Futurity.

Driver Del Miller moved Soothsayer to the front in the final few strides to overtake the favorite, Steve Lobell, the colt who needed a Futurity victory to become the seventh winner in history of trotting's Triple Crown.

Racing over a track rated as good, Soothsayer covered the mile in 1:59.2-5 and returned $122, $18 and $7.80.

Donnie Allison does double duty

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Donnie Allison, a veteran auto race driver who is scheduled to participate in 800 miles of racing this weekend, says driving a long-distance race "would be like the average man digging a ditch a couple of hundred yards long in one day."

Allison is one of six drivers who'll be doing double duty in today's $125,000 World Series Life 300, a 300-mile event for Late Model Sportsman cars, and in Sunday's $216,555 National 500, a 500-mile Grand National stock car race over the 1 1/4-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The other drivers entered in both races are Darrell Waltrip, Dave Marcis, Lennie Pond, Neil Bonnett and Sam Sommers. They will be up against such top-flight sportsman drivers as defending WSL 300 champion Ray Hendrick, L.D. Ottinger, Jack Ingram and Tommy Houston.

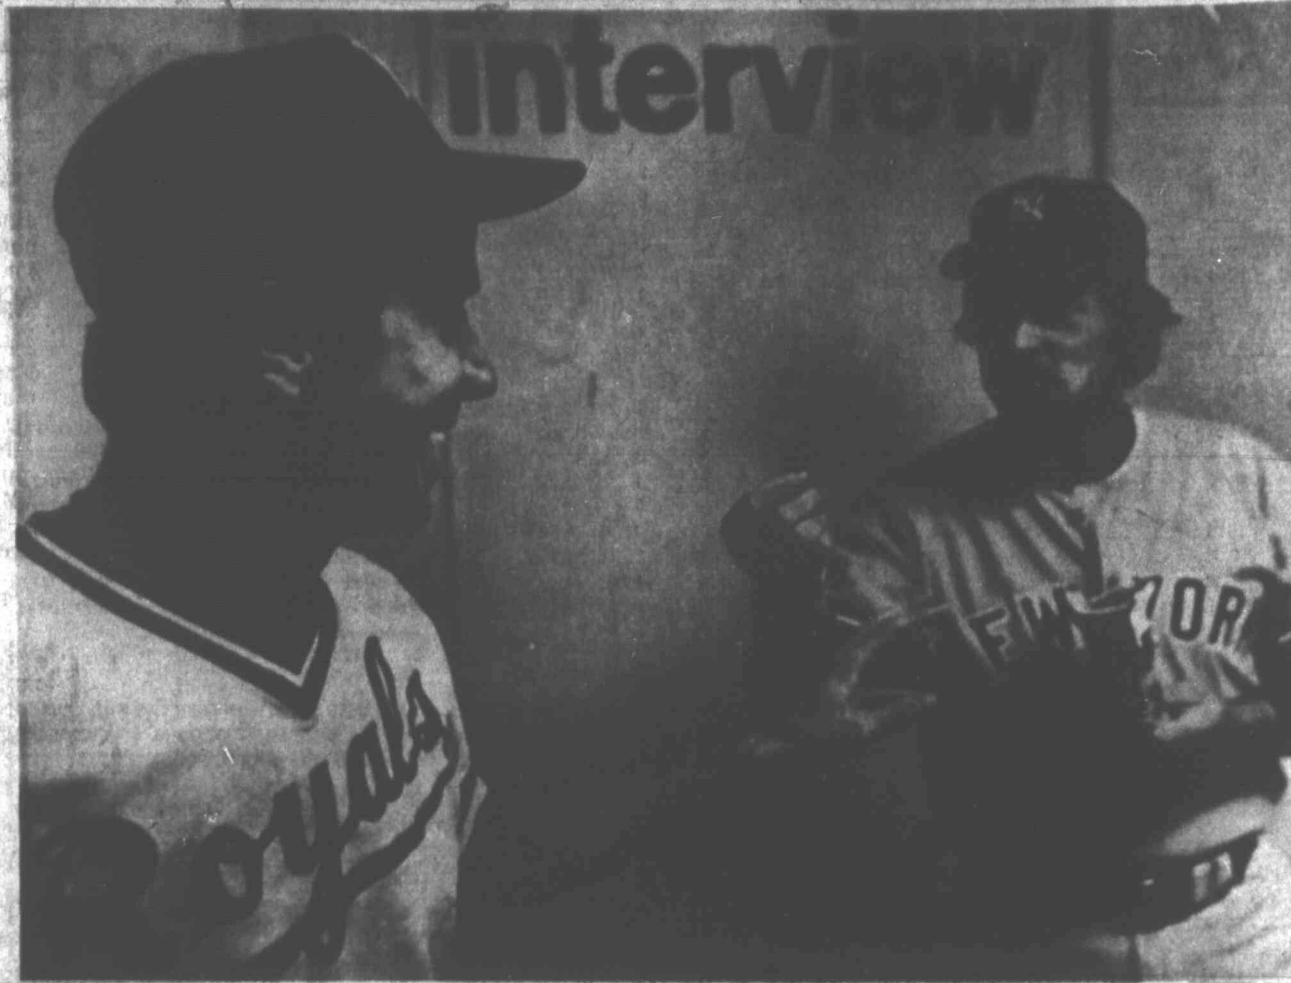

Allison, the 37-year-old younger brother of Grand National star Bobby Allison, says the only difference between ditchdigging and a 500-mile race is the mental strain.

New York Yankees pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter offers a chew of chewing tobacco to Larry Gura outside the locker room at Royals Stadium. The two will be mound opponents in today's opening American League playoff game.

Royals' rock-hard hill bothers Yankees' Hunter

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It isn't only the rock-hard mound at Royals Stadium that bothers Catfish Hunter. It's the Tartanurf surface as well.

Hunter, who will open for the New York Yankees against Kansas City on Saturday's first game of the best-of-five American League playoffs, has bad memories of the beautiful ball park built strictly for baseball. The facility opened in 1973 and was the scene of the All Star Game that summer. Hunter, then with the Oakland A's, was on the mound in the second inning when Billy Williams smashed a shot out the middle.

Instinctively, Hunter reached for the liner. He got the ball—and a hairline fracture of his right wrist.

"IT'S THE only injury I've had in baseball," he said Friday as the Yankees completed preparations for the opener. "I blame it on this turf. On grass, you have a chance to jerk your hand back out of the way. But not on this stuff."

Hunter, of course, has a running feud with the stadium ground crew, complaining about the way the mound is manicured. But he has not yet gone to the extreme of Detroit's Mark Fidrych, who gets down on his hands and knees to recondition it to his liking every inning.

Royals starter Larry Gura has some complaints, too, but not about his home field. He just isn't too happy with Billy Martin, manager of the Yankees.

MARTIN CUT Gura twice, first in Texas and then again this season with the Yankees.

"He's a nibbler," said Martin, who claimed that Gura pecks at the strike zone. "I had four starters who were better," the Yankee manager added, explaining his decision to trade the left-hander to the Royals last May.

"I remember every thing he said," replied Gura. "I'd like to start all three games of the series against the Yankees."

Gura isn't the only player who has feuded with Martin during the Yankee manager's stormy career.

Herzog moves Otis into leadoff position

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Royals center fielder Amos Otis will be batting in the leadoff position for the first time in five years Saturday when the Royals host the New York

Yankees for the first game of the American League playoffs. Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said he hoped the change would inject some life into the Royals, who packed little punch through the final month of the 1978 season despite winning the first American League West title in their eight-year history.

"I just wanted to get something going," shrugged Herzog, who said the rest of the lineup would see few adjustments.

Otis who hasn't led off since 1971, will be followed by third baseman George Brett.

Insulation is an investment... not an expense

Boone depends on hurlers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Boone hasn't been counting Joe Morgan in his sleep.

Boone is the Philadelphia Phillies' regular catcher, except when Steve Carlton pitches. Carlton has a designated receiver: Tim McCarver.

Anyway, Boone has been listening and reading all week to stories about how the Cincinnati Reds, Morgan in particular, are going to steal his glove off in the National League Championship Playoff.

But the 28-year-old Boone isn't an easy guy to psyche with stories of impending doom. He was a magna cum laude graduate of Stanford with a degree in psychology.

Boone is aware that the Reds successfully stole 14 of 18 times on the Phillies. He reads the weekly statistics. He knows Morgan has stolen 60, Ken Griffey 34 and six other Reds in double figures for thefts.

"I'VE GOT my act together catching and I'm very confident," Boone said before Friday morning's workout. "I know they run. And from a catcher's standpoint that is a challenge. I'll meet it. That's what it's all about."

Has Boone made any special preparations, any new strategy for the best of five game series?

"I won't do anything different," he said.

"I'm sure you know, and anyone who knows baseball is aware, that the runner steals on the pitcher," Boone said in discussing the problem he faces with the Reds' greynhounds.

Boone talked about last year's Cincinnati-Pittsburgh playoff, and how the Reds ran wild against the Pirates' Manny Sanguillen.

"They (the Reds) stole mostly on the pitchers, not Sanguillen. When you have a staff that doesn't keep the runners on the base you have no chance. And when they're running on the pitcher like they did in Sanguillen's case, the catcher is hurrying the throw," Boone explained.

"AND WHEN you're hurrying the throw all the time, when you get a chance to throw a runner out you're not geared to make a good throw," the Phillies' receiver said.

"If you watch our mechanics, our pitchers keep the runners close we'll get most of them," Boone said confidently.

Aggies, Texas Tech head SWC football action

BY TED BATTLES

While much of the hoopla and shouting revolves around the traditional Red River shootout between Oklahoma and Texas on national TV, the 54,000 fans who assemble in College Station's Kyle Field at 1:30 p.m. today may not even notice.

They figure to see a suspense-fraught stemwinder of their own when Texas Tech, the Southwest Conference's last remaining unbeaten team, takes on desperate Texas A&M, 3-1, in a league showdown that could have a bearing on the eventual Cotton Bowl host.

A&M, already a loser to Houston, needs a victory to stay alive while for Tech, 2-0, this game will provide a lot of answers about an offense that hasn't lived up to expectations and a defense that has Red Raider fans thinking that this may be the year.

HISTORY INDICATES, it will be close. In 16 years of SWC competition, the Aggies have averaged 17.8 points per game against Tech while the Raiders have scored at a 15.7 clip. A&M holds a 9-6-1 overall edge while Tech, surprisingly, is 5-4-1 at College Station.

Freshman halfbacks Curtis Dickey and David Brothers have the swiftness to worry the Tech defense, but the key to a Raider victory may be how well it stops George Woodard, the 248-pound sophomore fullback who is averaging 89 yards per game despite a 15-yard performance in the Houston loss.

In other SWC action, SMU (2-2) plays Baylor (3-1) at Waco, 7:30 p.m.; Rice (1-2) tangles with TCU (0-4) at Fort Worth while Houston (2-1) hosts West Texas State (1-2) in non-conference action.

SMU is sparked by quarterback Ricky Wesson and tailback Arthur Whittington while quarterback Mark Jackson and running backs Cleveland Franklin and Gary Blair have sparked the Bears' last period heroics that resulted in victories over Auburn, 15-14, and South Carolina, 18-17.

SMU is 1-0 in conference and Baylor 0-1, losing to Houston 23-5.

Rice and TCU promise to fill the air with footballs with Tommy Kramer, the SWC's leading passer, gunning the Owls' offense while Jimmy Dan Elzner, the SWC's No. 2 passer, sparks the Horned Frogs.

In the final game of the season, TCU snapped a 20-game losing streak with an exciting 28-21 win and will be out to end a four-game skid tonight.

IN THE Lone Star Conference headliner, Texas A&I, 5-0, travels to East Texas, 2-1, tonight at Commerce. Abilene Christian, 2-2, travels to S.F. Austin, 1-2-1; Sam Houston, 2-0-1, is at Angelo State, 3-2, and Prairie View A&M plays at Southwest Texas, 2-2, all 7:30 starts.

Former Abilene High quarterback Jim Reese won last week's offensive honors by completing 22 of 35 passes for 305 yards and a touchdown despite ACU's 21-16 loss to Southwest Texas. SWT linebacker Paul Phillips, a 6-4, 218 pound senior from Fredericksburg, was defensive player of the week with 13 tackles, two assists and a quarterback sack.

North Texas, after losing close games to Texas, Oklahoma State and SMU, hosts winless Cal Poly-Pomona at Denton tonight, which should be a breather.

THAT'S WHAT has Coach Hayden

Fry worried. "I know darn well we will have a letdown. It's real disheartening to lose four games by a touchdown or less. And I'm a lot better coach against the big boys. When we get a dog in here, we play like a dog."

Maybe the memory of last year's 21-17 squeaker against Poly will help. UTEP, 1-3, travels to Arizona, 2-2, for a Western Athletic Conference game at Tucson. The Miners lost 38-14 to Utah last week while Arizona was beating Northwestern, 27-15.

Coach Gil Bartosh has hopes if his UTEP backs can hold on to the football. Last week the Miners lost a school record eight fumbles, five leading to Utah points.

UT-Arlington, 2-3, opens its Southland Conference schedule by hosting Louisiana Tech, 1-3 on the season and 1-2 in league. Last week UTA beat West Texas State, 23-21.

GRID GOSSIP — Both lineups will be sprinkled with former 5-A stars today at College Station. Starting for the Aggies on offense are San Angelo tackle Frank Myers and Odessa tackle Frank Myers and Odessa tackle Frank Myers. Grady Wilkerson will be at defensive line. For Tech, Odessa's Rodney Allison is at offensive quarterback and Midland Lee's Gary McCright is at linebacker on defense.

Although he's second string, 5-9, 190-pound Gary Blair leads the Baylor offense with 228 yards in 57 carries for a 4.0 average. SMU's Arthur Whittington is averaging 10.7 yards every time he touches the ball while Wesson needs 63 yards to move past David Bostick as No. 5 SMU career rusher.

Gene Mayfield, WTSU coach on Houston, "I think they have an excellent chance of winning the SWC championship. Some team like Texas Tech might give them trouble throwing the ball, but I don't believe anyone is going to run well against them."

Spy charges spice OU, Texas football rivalry

DALLAS (AP) — Unbeaten Oklahoma, boasting the nation's longest winning streak and seeking a third consecutive national title, risks all Saturday against archrival Texas.

The Sooners favored by two points, have won the last five confrontations between the schools, and this year something spicy has been added to the clash—Texas charges that a "spy" sneaked into secret Longhorn practices and then passed information on to Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer.

In an angry mood Friday, Texas Coach Darrell Royal offered to give $10,000 of his own money to each of the favorite charity of the Oklahoma coach and the spy if they both passed lie detector tests denying his charges.

Switzer denied Royal's charges, saying he did not know what the Texas coach was talking about. Switzer added he has never asked anyone to "spy on Texas or any opponent."

The "spy," who asked that his name not be used, told The Associated Press that he had not spied on the Texas team, and called Royal's charges "the craziest thing I've ever heard."

Royal also accused Oklahoma of using the same man to spy on Michigan before the Orange Bowl.

The Sooners rated two-point favorites going into the 71st meeting of the schools which will draw a sellout crowd of 72,000 in the Cotton Bowl, a national television audience, and President Ford.

The No. 3 rated Oklahomaans have defeated Vanderbilt 24-3, California 28-17, Florida State 24-0, and Iowa State 24-10.

The 16th-ranked Longhorns stumbled 14-13 to Boston College and rallied to trip North Texas State 17-14 and Rice 42-15.

Switzer boasts a sparkling 36-1-1 career record, including three triumphs in as many tries over Royal. The current streak of seven straight is the longest for a major college.

The Sooners received a setback Thursday when regular quarterback Dean Blevins was admitted to the school infirmary with a groin injury he received during practice.

The starting quarterback assignment will go to Thomas Lott, an untested sophomore who has played in only two of Oklahoma's four games.

The Sooners prevailed 21-17 in 1975 in a game plagued by 12 fumbles. "I'd like not to give them anything cheap this year for a change," said Royal. "There were 12 fumbles on the ground last year and Oklahoma got nine of them."

It's the second live television appearance for Oklahoma since 1973 because of probation handed down by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"It should be a close, lowscoring game because there usually aren't many points when people get fired up," said Royal. Switzer said "I'm anxious to see if we can handle quality opposition like Texas. We'll have to play by far our best game both ways to have a chance."

Switzer fears the power of Texas fullback Earl Campbell and the rocket runs of Johnny Jones, the Olympian from Lampasas, Tex.

"I say the same thing every year about Earl Campbell," says Switzer. "He is awesome. And they have more speed at halfback than they've had since I've been head coach."

"Defensively, they have 10 starters back and the way we've stuttered and stammered on offense this year I don't know if we can have much success against them."

Royal concludes Oklahoma's swift backfield could "outrun us if we ran a shuttle relay."

He cited the "overall speed" of Kenneth King, Horace Ivory, and Elvis Peacock.

Texas leads the series 42-36-2 overall and Royal is 12-7 against his alma mater where he used to quarterback.

Allen leaning to Theismann

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach George Allen said Friday that he is leaning toward starting Joe Theismann over Bill Kilmer at quarterback when his Washington Redskins meet the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday.

U.S. gals take huge golf lead

VILAMOURA, Portugal (AP) — Nancy Lopez parred the wind-swept, seaside course Friday and helped the United States to a nine-stroke lead over France after three rounds of the 25-nation Women's World Amateur team golf championship.

Miss Lopez, 18, of Roswell, N.M., teed off alongside her closest competitor for individual honors, Catherine LaCoste, de Prado of France. Some 6,181 yards later, Miss Lopez gained two more strokes on Mrs. de Prado, who shot 75.

With one round left, Miss Lopez has a 220 total and Mrs. de Prado 228.

Deborah Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., was in third place with 231.

The United States has won the championship five of the seven times it has been contested since 1964, and with one round to go, the U.S. team led France, 451-460.

Brazil, paced by Elizabeth Noronha's one-under 72, made a late charge at the leaders and vaulted into third place from seventh with 472.

Italy was fourth, followed by South Africa, Canada and Taiwan. Team standings are based on the best two individual scores each day from each three-member team.

Miss Lopez offset sad trap trouble with polished green play.

"I guess Catherine and I had to be aware the individual tournament low was probably up for grabs between us," she said. "But I think we were more concerned with the wind than with each other."

Catherine was over compensating and booking from some tees."

Mrs. de Prado was the low scorer in the last team tournament in the Dominican Republic two years ago.

Lott was a running back, and a good one, until his junior year in high school, when the quarterback was injured and he became a signal-caller on short notice in the middle of the game.

"It's a helluva a game to break him in," says Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "Either we'll break him in...or Texas will break him in too. But one thing we noticed about Thomas as a freshman is that he never gets rattled and never loses his poise."

Demise of Redskins is greatly exaggerated, claims Riggins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Running back John Riggins says, to paraphrase Mark Twain, the demise of the Washington Redskins is greatly exaggerated.

"It's just not true," said Riggins of the talk that the Redskins peaked during their first three victories, then fell to the inevitable in the 33-7 shellacking at the hands of Chicago last Sunday.

"There's no way I can believe all that. I don't even like to think about it. I don't want to hear it. I don't want to even entertain thoughts that we're not going to win. If that was the case, I really don't know how much longer I could play here. But it's not. I know it, and these guys know it."

Riggins also knows he is a highly-paid fullback in an offense designed for a tailback. He has not carried as often or for as much yardage this season as he had at this point last year with the New York Jets.

His performance has not gone unnoticed by his teammates. One remarked, after Riggins' four-carry, 20-yard output against the Bears, "It looks like John has taken his contract and run."

Nevertheless, Riggins remains committed to filling the role dictated for him by the Redskins' play book.

"If you evaluate the situation, the fullback here has to be a superior blocker. If the fullback couldn't block, it wouldn't work at all. That's the No. 1 thing I'm being asked to do—block. I've carried the ball 40, 45 times (actually 44), so you don't have to be a genius to figure that out."

Riggins refuses to say he is being used the wrong way and will not criticize the Redskins coaching staff for the way his talents are being utilized although he forfame against the Kansas City Chiefs.

After four games, Riggins has totaled 154 yards done well against the on his 44 carries, an average of 3.5 yards. Last year after four games productive day in the with the Jets, he had 63 preseason with the Redskins for 287 yards, including one 145-yard per-touchdown day that included a 27-yard scoring run.

President Ford finds a motel ... in Lawton

By Associated Press

Two sophomore quarterbacks from San Antonio, Tex., and a former center from Michigan will be in the spotlight Saturday when Oklahoma and Texas wage their annual college football war in Dallas.

Big D was crowded so full of visitors for the Texas State Fair and the football game—the Cotton Bowl Stadium is on the Fair Grounds—that President Ford and his entourage had to bed down in Lawton, Okla., almost 200 miles away.

When the President, the former Michigan center, helicopters to Dallas for the nationally televised game between third-ranked Oklahoma and No. 16 Texas, he will see two of the most inexperienced quarterbacks ever to start a game between two of the sport's bitterest rivals.

MIKE CORDARO has been at the throttle of the Texas Wishbone for three games—a 14-13 loss to Boston College, a sluggish 17-14 victory over North Texas State and a 42-15 romp over a woeful Rice defense.

Thomas Lott was only No. 2 at Oklahoma—he played in two of the unbeaten Sooners' four triumphs—until starter Dean Blevins was hospitalized Thursday with a strained groin muscle.

"This is something I have wanted to do all along—play against Texas," said Lott. "I'll give it all I have got."

Although Cordaro and Lott come from the same town, their high schools are in different districts and didn't face each other.

President Ford's eyes may be on the field but his heart will be in Ann Arbor, Mich., where his alma mater, No. 1-ranked Michigan entertains Michigan State in an important Big Ten game. Meanwhile, second-ranked Pitt hosts Louisville and the rest of The Associated Press' Top Ten—except Oklahoma—are engaged in conference clashes.

"It was perfectly obvious to me," Vertile was quoted by Gilmartin. "Rick was very upset because none of his teammates came to help him out in the scuffle with Ricky Sobers."

Barry and Sobers tangled in the first period along the sidelines. "Rick played well right after the fight," Vertile said.

Abilene tied the score at 7-7 when quarterback Glen Stirmman sneaked over for a score from the one-yard line. Stirmman's PAT tied the score, 7-7.

Edwards gave Permian a 10-0 halftime lead on a 27-yard field goal and the Panthers went in front, 16-0, when Mike Hanson caught a seven-yard TD pass from Pittman, but the extra point attempt failed.

Stirmman scored on another one-yard run and Long's kick cut the lead to 14-0.

Miller forges stroke lead

INZAI, Japan (AP) — Allen Miller fought off a nagging head cold, parred the course and took a one-stroke lead over Isao Aoki and Gene Littler after Friday's second round of the $200,000 Pacific Club Masters Golf Tournament.

Miller's 71 gave him a 138, six under par on the 7,197-yard Sobu Country Club course.

Littler, the defending champion, and Isao, Japan's World Cup player, moved up to challenge with a 70 and 69, respectively, for 139s.

Lee Trevino, who shared the lead with Miller going into the second round, slipped to a three-way tie for fourth with a 73-140. Also at 140 were Jerry Pate and Yoshitaka Yamamoto, each with a second-round 70.

Miller took the lead with three birdies and three bogeys after Littler, who led the field going to the 16th hole, bogeyed the last two.

"My tee and iron shots and approaches were not too good today, but my putting was very good," the 29-year-old Miller said after the round.

Despite a two-over-par effort, Trevino was not unhappy. "I was surprised that I was still in contention for the top prize," he said.

Another stroke back at 141 was Bob

Wynn, who shot a 70.

The international field of 76 golfers, including eight amateurs, was cut to those with scores of 148 or better for the final two rounds of the tournament, worth $65,000 to the winner.

Among Americans who made the cut were Tom Jenkins, 142; Ed Sneed, Bob Smith and Bob Guilder, 143; Rik Massengale and Gary Koch, 144; Rod Curl, Gay Brewer and Joe Inman, 145; Don Bies, 146 and Andy North 148.

Missing the cut were Jim Simons, Patrick Fitzsimons, Bob Murphy, Don Iverson, Victor Regalado and Curtis Strange.

BECKY AND Jack Huff teamed up to win the Couples Golf Tournament at Midland Country Club with a point total of 153 last weekend.

Mule Deer season holds much promise

By Rodger McKown
Texas Parks & Wildlife Department

The mule deer draws more hunters to the Trans-Pecos Area than any other game species. The bulk of Texas' mule deer habitat is found in the sprawling nine-county area west of the Pecos River.

According to projected figures from last year's deer-trophy harvest survey by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 18,509 hunters took part in the mule deer season west of the Pecos.

This year hunters will face a shortened version of the mule deer season in the Trans-Pecos, but a season that, according to current indications, could be a good one for trophy bucks and better than previously expected for number of deer.

THE MULE deer season will be the shortest it has been for several years after seven days were trimmed from it for 1976, cutting the number of days from 16 to nine.

TPWD biologists made the decision to recommend the shorter season for several reasons, but a 25 percent decline in the mule deer herd from 1974 to '75 was a primary factor. Also playing parts in that decision were a 17 percent increase in the number of mule deer hunters last year and a 12 percent increase in the harvest that combined to place significant hunting pressure on the mule deer herd west of the Pecos.

But the bright spot in the Trans-Pecos picture is that this year's surveys seem to indicate that the mule deer were able to begin a recovery from that population decline.

When Parks and Wildlife biologists made their annual, late summer aerial surveys, they found a 14 percent overall increase in the combined Trans-Pecos mule deer-herd and their figures indicated the number of mule deer are up some 30.7 percent from 1975 to '76.

THIS YEAR's survey did, however, indicate that the 1976 mule deer fawn crop may be somewhat below the average. Over the past seven years, the fawn crop has averaged slightly more than 41 percent. Aerial survey figures showed a 27 percent crop for this year, but the count was made earlier than in past years and there is a chance that a good number of fawns had not been born at the time the counts were made.

Two points for added optimism among hunters for the 1976 season are the better than average rainfall in the Trans-Pecos this year and the fact that some moisture has been spread over the spring and summer, rather than all coming at once as it often does in far West Texas.

This means that the deer range has been in good shape through most of the year, was in good shape at the time bucks were growing antlers and there should be some trophy racks this season.

Jack Kilpatrick, wildlife project leader in the Trans-Pecos, expects a better than average year for trophy bucks, both mule deer and whitetails. He reported seeing a number of deer of both species with good, heavy racks when he was flying the surveys.

LAST YEAR, a total of 11,066 mule deer were taken in Texas and the 9,583 taken in the Trans-Pecos accounted for 86 percent of the statewide harvest. Trans-Pecos mule deer hunters enjoyed a 50 percent hunter success.

Brewster County, sprawling over an area larger than that of the state of Connecticut was the top mule deer producer last year, providing approximately 31 percent of the entire statewide harvest.

Pecos, Presidio and Jeff Davis Counties can't match Brewster in size but they provide their share of quality Trans-Pecos mule deer hunting. Culberson and Hudspeth Counties have good mule deer hunting in spots and there are mule deer and some hunting in all nine of the Trans-Pecos counties.

THIS YEAR, with the shorter season, but indications of a mule deer increase and more trophy bucks, it will be interesting to see how harvest figures and hunter success compare to last season.

Good numbers of Gambel's quail are reported in the areas where these birds are found. The Rio Grande Valley in El Paso, Hudspeth and Presidio have the only significant populations of these birds in the state.

The Trans-Pecos quail and deer season are not as far in the future as they might seem. Quail season west of the Pecos will be open Nov. 13 - Jan. 30, with the deer season set for Nov. 27 Dec. 5.

Player got back a hole, but Irwin birdied the par-four 24th to put him five up again.

But on the 36th, Irwin holed out from 10 feet for a birdie—his 12th of the match—and Player, whose first putt stopped a few inches short, had to settle for a par five. That gave Irwin the match 2-up.

GRAHAM AND Floyd played the last nine holes of their match in chill rain. Graham led by four with nine to go, but the Australian came back and took five of the final nine holes and won 1-up in a stunning reversal.

At the halfway stage, Floyd was three up, and in the afternoon round increased it to four by the 24th. But from the 28th onward, it was all Graham. He pulled to within three, then to within two when Floyd found himself in the woods and conceded the hole.

BOWLING BEAT

Women gear for City play

The Midland Women's Bowling Association is gearing up for its annual City Championship Tournament to be held this year on November 6-7 and 13-14 at Air Park Lanes.

Entry forms are available at the desks of the Super Bowl and the host center, and ladies are encouraged to start putting their teams together for this classic event.

Entries are to be mailed or delivered to Patsy Wallin at 301 Tanglewood. For further information, contact Patsy at 697-1685. Trophies and chevrons will be awarded to all first place winners, and prize money will be paid on the basis of one pay position for each eight entries. Both the team event, and doubles and singles events are handicapped on the basis of 75% from 200, thus encouraging women of all levels of skill to enter the competition.

Bardie Tryon, Mel Francis, and Ben Shattuck were the leading scorers this week in bowling action on the lanes in Midland. Bardie rolled the lanes for a 253 in the Petroleum National League. Mel Francis was in excellent form with his 251 game in the Petroleum American League, and Ben fired a 243 game and 617 series to lead the Civic Commercial League. Leading the ladies was Jane Bannin with a 222 game.

Irwin staves off Gary Player

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Hale Irwin held off a charging Gary Player 2-up and David Graham staged a strong finish to beat Ray Floyd 1-up in the semifinals of the $127,500 Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship today.

Irwin, champion for the past two years, was five up with 12 holes to play, but Player, the South African veteran of 12 Match Play championships, stormed back in the final round, picked up four holes on the last nine and very nearly nipped the champion at the post. Floyd is bidding for his third title in a row while Player was going for his sixth career title on the 6,969-yard, par-73 Wentworth course.

Floyd was leading by four holes after 27, but his Australian opponent rallied on the last nine and sealed the victory on the final hole.

ON THE first 18 holes, Irwin shot a six-under-par 67, including six birdies, and was four up. In the afternoon round, he birdied the 20th to go five up. Three holes later

Player got back a hole, but Irwin birdied the par-four 24th to put him five up again.

But then Player came alive. On the next 12 holes, he collected five birdies. On the 27th, he one-putted for a birdie-three to go into the final nine four down. Then on the next hole, Irwin two-putted for a bogey four. That put him only three up. But on the 31st he birdied to go back to four. On the next four holes, Player picked up three birdies and Irwin led by only one.

But on the 36th, Irwin holed out from 10 feet for a birdie—his 12th of the match—and Player, whose first putt stopped a few inches short, had to settle for a par five. That gave Irwin the match 2-up.

GRAHAM AND Floyd played the last nine holes of their match in chill rain. Graham led by four with nine to go, but the Australian came back and took five of the final nine holes and won 1-up in a stunning reversal.

At the halfway stage, Floyd was three up, and in the afternoon round increased it to four by the 24th. But from the 28th onward, it was all Graham. He pulled to within three, then to within two when Floyd found himself in the woods and conceded the hole.

BATTLE SCENE

OU vs. Texas...What's all the big fuss about?

BY TED BATTLES

How come everybody gets so stirred up about this Texas-Oklahoma game?

It doesn't mean a thing conferencewise to either team and the game itself seldom lives up to the expectations. Looking at past games, it doesn't rank with Notre Dame-Southern California, LSU-Ole Miss or even Army-Navy, at least until recent years, for thrills, excitement, suspense and Alfred Hitchcock finishing twists.

Both teams usually have more exciting rivalries further down the schedule. For example, Nebraska and frequently Colorado eclipse the Texas game in cardiac arrest finishes for the Sooners while Arkansas or Texas A&M can have the same effect on Longhorn fanatics.

THE LAST two times the OU-Texas games have been the kind that whet the appetite, but neither was on TV. In 1973, the Sooners won 52-13 and before that had butchered the Steers 27-0 and 48-27.

In 1972, Texas' last victory, it was 41-0.

They play the game in Big D, which Dallas law authorities suspect is interpreted by visitors as Big Drunk. Some fans don't know until Sunday morning whether they were celebrating a victory or drowning disappointment.

The reasons for its impact are obvious. It's a matter of pride and prestige that ranges beyond the campuses at Austin or Norman. And if the score is so one-sided it has the casual viewer twirling the TV knob by the middle of the third period, it only makes victory all the more satisfying for they know the despair on the other side of the field is just that much greater.

TO OKLAHOMANS, it's a war for inter-state bragging rights for the next year, but as far as Texans are concerned that angle has evaporated in recent years. Texans grouse, "It's UT-Austin vs. UT-Norman, strictly intra-state, but it's still nice to show those river jumpers who is best."

Texans contend Oklahoma is a lot like New York City. "It's okay to go to school there, but who would want to live there."

According to Associated Press figures earlier this week, there were only 11 homegrown on the OU team. The preseason roster lists 23, which could mean that 12 token Sooners weren't good enough to make the traveling squad.

ALTHOUGH MANY neutrals feel the noise, insult-swapping and Friday night in Downtown Dallas are the best part of the Oklahoma-Texas game, there's no denying the intensity of feeling, the combat readiness and fierceness of the head-butting down in the Cotton Bowl battle pit once hostilities begin.

OU Coach Barry Switzer points out that the Jones boys, Ham and Lam, give Texas the ingredient that has been missing in the past, outside speed, and he says he is worried. Both Switzer and Coach Darrell Royal report injuries that could effect the outcome.

Actually, neither team has been overwhelming this year and doubt shrouds the national ratings of each.

Oklahoma has won the last five in a row and Switzer has never lost to Royal, so in lieu of concrete evidence on the horses, we'll go with the jockey. OU 21-14.

IN THE Southwest Conference... Texas A&M 17, Texas Tech 15—Aggies can't afford to lose. Tech's offense still hasn't started to click and those idle weekends won't help it any. Rice 28, TCU 27 — Shades of the SWC Aerial Circus days.

Baylor 23, SMU 18 — Bears believe and made believers of Auburn, Illinois and South Carolina, one of the most impressive intersectional sweeps in recent years.

Houston 35, West Texas 7 — Buffs in wrong league. Upset, specialists...read 'em, but better not believe 'em.

North Carolina State 19, Maryland 16 — Wolfpack has played a tougher schedule.

Ole Miss 10, Georgia 7 — Bulldogs flat after Alabama. Miss. State 14, Kentucky 13 — Living dangerously.

Kansas City Royals Hal McRae and George Brett, right, enjoy practice as they work out at Royals Stadium. McRae's frustration after losing the American League batting title to Brett by one point was short-lived.

Byre calls swirling controversy 'unreal'

OAKLAND (AP) — "It's unreal," says Minnesota Twins outfielder Steve Byre, of the controversy swirling about him since he missed a fly ball that let George Brett win the American League batting championship.

Hal McRae, Brett's teammate on the Kansas City Royals, charged racism and accused Twins Manager Gene Mauch of telling Byre to miss the short fly ball so Brett could win the title.

McRae, who is black, finished the season at .332, only a point behind Brett's .333. Brett got an inside-park home run on the missed ball. "I can't understand this whole thing," Byre told the Oakland Tribune Thursday from Tacoma, Wash., where he was visiting relatives. "What can I say? I don't see where I have to defend myself."

McRae later said his remarks about racism had been misunderstood. "Some of the things I said about that right after the game I think were misunderstood," he said this week. "There's no doubt in my mind that Brett deliberately let the ball drop."

Brett, through the news media, asked baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to declare the batting title a tie between himself and McRae.

"I would have thought that those guys would be more concerned with the playoffs right now," Byre said. "I don't know what's been said and I don't really care."

Byre, who groaned that he had already covered the play numerous times, explained again that Mauch told him to play Brett shallow early in the game. But when the Twins pushed their lead to three runs, he moved deeper into the field.

"When the ball was hit, I was caught flat-footed. For some reason the ball was hard to pick up off the bat the whole series and that's why I got such a slow jump."

Martin, Herzog offer contrast in techniques

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Billy Martin has been fired three times, thrown out of more ball games than he cares to remember and has even fought with his own players.

Whitey Herzog's most notorious feat before this season was 15 years ago when he led the old Kansas City A's in batting practice home runs.

When Martin's New York Yankees and Herzog's Kansas City Royals open the American League playoffs Saturday at Royals Stadium, it will be a duel of managerial styles as well as a battle between the league's two top squads.

"Billy's a real aggressive type as a manager and as a person," says Dave Nelson, Royals second baseman, who has played for both men. "He likes to really assert his authority."

"WHITEY is a relaxed, easy sort of guy. He asserts his authority but in a different way. He can chew a player out without making a scene."

Martin, 48, led the Yankees to their first post-season appearance since 1964 following managerial stints with the Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers and Texas Rangers. He won division titles with both the Twins and Tigers but eventually was dismissed by all three teams following squabbles on and off the field.

The 44-year-old Herzog, prior to guiding the Royals into their initial playoff series, preceded Martin with a dismal Texas team in 1973 and served as interim manager with the California Angels for four games a year later.

Martin has been known and feared since his playing days as one of the most scrappy, combative men in baseball. A darkly tough, bantamweight of Italian-Portuguese ancestry, he boasts a love-hate relationship with his players.

"He stresses loyalty," says Nelson, who played for Martin and Herzog at Texas. "That's his big thing. He doesn't like players fooling around with the front office. He'll back you all the way. But if you cross him, that's it."

HERZOG, an easy-going blond with a quick, rubber-faced grin, emphasizes harmony and team spirit. He makes an effort to be open with both his players and the press, and the policy paid quick dividends when the Royals went 41-25 after he took over in 1975.

"Billy socializes with his players. He'll get a bar with them and have a few drinks," says Nelson. "Whitey won't do that, although he may have a drink on the plane. Socializing can be good and bad. But I think it's tough on a manager who may also have to chew a guy out the next day."

The New York manager, looking for any advantage, is also regarded as one of the best strategists in baseball. Herzog, meanwhile, believes strongly in surrounding himself with a solid coaching staff.

"Billy is probably one of the smartest managers around," says Nelson. "His motto is 'Never take anything for granted.'"

Evert advances to WTA semis

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Chris Evert, who said Friday she would play a second year in World Team Tennis, stopped Terry Holladay to move in to the semifinals of the $75,000 Women's Tennis Association tournament.

MISS EVERT toppled Miss Holladay 6-1, 6-2. Appearing nervous, Miss Holladay, of San Diego, only one of four women to beat Miss Evert during the WTT season, never got her big game going until too late.

Miss Evert, who became the highest paid player in World Team Tennis reputedly earning $160,000 a year, renewed an option on a one-year contract with the Phoenix Racquets.

In the biggest upset of the tournament to date, secondseeded Billie Jean King was wiped out by Dianne Fromholtz of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. King, starting a comeback, was never in the match and Miss Fromholtz took command from the start with her deadly backhand.

Army men suing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday heard arguments that many middlegrade Army officers were illegally discharged at a critical point in their careers and should now be returned to duty.

About 1,300 reserve majors and lieutenant colonels are potentially involved in the case that was taken under advisement by U.S. District Court Judge Howard Corcoran.

Some of the officers were discharged just a few days short of 18 years of service, the benchmark that would entitle them to retirement benefits, including monthly pay equal to half their basic monthly salary on active duty.

Earlier court decisions found that the Army promotion board ruling on the case was illegal because it did not include reserve officers.

Government lawyers argued against reinstatement, saying the officers were only entitled to another hearing by a promotion board. Also, the government argued that the case properly belongs in the Court of Claims, not the district court.

Corcoran said his ruling would take into account whether the Court of Claims should have custody of the case.

Lawyer Robert Wright, representing 31 of the officers, argued that Corcoran should simply order the officers reinstated and credited with time served since their 1975 discharges. This would have the effect of making the men eligible for retirement, regardless of any additional promotion board action.

Corcoran said a key point to him is whether the officers were treated the same as others in the same position. He noted that the Army, when it found the promotion board to be illegally constituted, let other officers in identical circumstances stay on active duty.

"Some are off the boat and swimming toward shore," said Corcoran, "while others are still on the boat."

Corcoran gave no indication when he would rule.

Reserve Board aids consumers

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of consumers are learning that they have a friend at the Federal Reserve Board.

The board has just finished setting up a formal system for handling complaints on everything from interest rates to mixed-up credit billings.

And a board spokesman said that consumers are becoming more aware of their rights and more knowledgeable about the laws affecting them and their money.

The Federal Reserve Board is responsible for implementing a wide variety of consumer legislation, including the Truth in Lending Act, the Fair Credit Billing Act, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act and the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

The Office of Saver and Consumer Affairs was established by the board a little over two years ago to help administer these laws. A specific complaint procedure was developed early this year and was formalized late last month.

Any consumer with a complaint about an illegal, unfair or deceptive practice by a bank or other creditor should write to the Director of the Office of Saver and Consumer Affairs, Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551. Complaints also may be sent to the Federal Reserve Bank for the district in which the creditor is located.

The complaint should describe the practice involved and give the name and address of the bank concerned and the individual who is complaining.

The board says it will try to make a substantive response within 15 days after it receives the letter. If that is not possible, the board will acknowledge the complaint within 15 days and will set a specific time period within which a substantive response will be made.

The board itself investigates only those complaints involving state-chartered banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System. Other complaints are referred to the appropriate federal office, such as the comptroller of the currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. or the Federal Trade Commission.

Kathryn Casey, a spokesman for the consumer affairs office, said the board started keeping a detailed record of complaints at the beginning of 1976. In the first half of the year, she said, the board and the 12 Federal Reserve Banks across the country received 1,425 complaints. The number of complaints was slightly higher in the second quarter than in the first, but Miss Casey said there was no way to tell what accounted for the increase or whether it was indicative of any trend.

The biggest number of complaints concerned the Truth in Lending and Fair Credit Billing Acts, dealing with interest rates and procedures for handling disputes on credit bills.

In the second quarter of the year, for example, 20 per cent of all complaints dealt with the Truth in Lending and Fair Credit acts; 14 per cent involved the Equal Credit Opportunity Act; and 11 per cent were about savings accounts. The rest of the complaints were mixed.

Miss Casey said there has been a "noticeable difference in the kinds of complaints" being received by the board. "Initially," she said, "most of the complaints were because consumers didn't understand" the regulations involved. "There seems to be more consumer awareness today. The complaints seem to have a little more basis."

Even without complaints, credit can be a confusing issue. The Truth in Lending law of 1969 was one effort to ease the confusion by making it simpler to compare the cost of a loan.

Texas to receive more flu vaccine

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Department of Health said Friday it will get an additional 100,000 doses of swine flu vaccine for Mexican nationals who appear at clinics in Texas' border cities.

Dr. Philip Mallory, deputy commissioner for health maintenance, said the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta "concurred with our request and will try to supply the vaccine just as soon as possible."

Mallory said the additional vaccine would be distributed to clinics in operation along the border from El Paso to Brownsville. He said it is not always possible to identify the Mexican citizens because many work on the Texas side but go home each night to Mexico.

Department spokesmen said Texas has now received a total of 1,256,200 doses of vaccine, including 598,000 for those over 65 or chronically ill. All vaccine received has been sent on to local clinics and doctors.

The department expects to distribute a minimum of 5 million doses this year.

Phone records sought

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas attorney general's department said Friday it will make another attempt to see Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s records in connection with the statewide rate increase request.

A spokesman for the department said assistant Atty. Gen. David Hughes would appear before the Texas Public Utility Commission on Oct. 18 to renew the subpoena for records that the commission denied Sept. 29.

South ruffed the second spade, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and led a diamond toward dummy.

When West produced the ten of diamonds, South had to guess. He finally finessed with dummy's jack, losing to the queen. East promptly drew trumps and cashed the spades, collecting 1100 points.

Playing the king of diamonds would be the wrong guess if East started with only one diamond, but South would then save at least one trick.

Since South had no real choice between one guess and another, it was better to limit his loss.

NO REASON TO GUESS

In this case, however, South has no reason to guess. After drawing two rounds of trumps, South should lead a club to dummy's ace and return to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead out the king and queen of clubs.

East's bid and the early play show that East started with five spades. He is known to have started with four trumps. If East can follow to three clubs, it will be clear that he had only one diamond.

As it happens, East would follow to only two clubs. This would locate a second diamond in the East hand. No need for guesswork.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-J92; H-3; D-105; C-9885432. What do you say? 1♥ Pass. This shows your weakness unmistakably. You can run to clubs if your partner is doubled, but don't scream before you're hurt.

MIDLAND CHURCH ROUNDUP

Musical events, speakers to mark week's activities

Musical events, guest speakers and special programs are planned at numerous Midland churches in forthcoming days.

TOWER BAPTIST CHURCH will be host to the Rev. Roy Roach of Lovington, N.M. during Sunday worship services which begin at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. A luncheon will be held Sunday noon in the church fellowship hall to honor the visiting minister.

The public is invited to attend the services at Tower Baptist, located one mile south of I-20, just west of South Midkiff Drive.

Singers scheduled

The Singing Kacho Family, a gospel music ensemble, will be heard in concert at 10 a.m. Sunday in PARKLEA BAPTIST CHURCH, 2906 Franklin St. The public is invited to hear them.

Special program set

ANTIOCH BAPTIST CHURCH, 1400 E. Golf Course Road, will present a special musical program at 8 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary. Vocal soloists and ensembles will be featured and the public is invited by the Rev. Johnny Mitchell, host pastor, to attend.

Emphasis day planned

Youth Emphasis Day is planned Sunday at the MIDLAND CHURCH OF GOD, 5300 Thomson Drive.

The special emphasis will be initiated with a breakfast for church youth at 8:30 a.m. Sunday. During the Sunday school hour at the church, young people will act as teachers and Sunday school officers, and during the worship service to follow, youth will present special music and be featured in a special choir. The public is invited to attend the church events.

Conference upcoming

ST. MARK'S UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 1701 N. Main St., will hold its annual charge conference Sunday evening, at which Dr. Lloyd Hughes of Big Spring will preside.

Dr. Hughes became Big Spring District superintendent of the United Methodist denomination this past summer.

Sunday's conference, scheduled for 7 p.m., will feature special music by the Cross Candle choirs of St. Mark's Church. Congregational officers for the coming year will be elected during the meeting.

Dr. Lawrence to speak

Dr. Kenneth Lawrence, who was one of the faculty members of the 1976 School of Christian Living in Midland last January, will present a study series titled "Religion and Personality Development" at Midland's FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH Oct. 17 through 19.

Dr. Lawrence is chairman of the religion department of Texas Christian University at Fort Worth. The study sessions will be conducted here will be on Sunday evening, Oct. 17, and during the mornings and evenings of Oct. 18 and 19.

Monday program set

ST. NICHOLAS' EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 2900 Princeton St., will be the scene of a special program on the Tarahumara Indians of Mexico at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The program will be presented by Don Burgess of El Paso, a member of the Wycliff Bible Translators, who lived and worked among the Tarahumaras in the region of Mexico's famed Copper Canyon 10 years.

The special presentation, sponsored by churchwomen of St. Nicholas' parish, will be open to the public, with tickets priced at $3. Burgess will be accompanied here by his wife, who will speak at a gathering at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the parish hall of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church here.

A RARE SPANISH ANTIPHONARIUM, or chorale book, at Museum of the Southwest is admired by the Rev. Duane Beauchamp, left, curate of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, and Warren Hammel, organist at St. Nicholas'. The hand-illuminated 16th Century book, on loan from an important collection in Houston, contains musical notations providing pitches for a Gregorian chant. The book is part of an exhibition, "Calligraphy on the Spanish Borderlands," at the museum through the end of this month.

Scholars defend Carter 'faux pas'

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the political bores and ridicule let loose at Jimmy Carter for saying he often has "committed adultery in my heart," church scholars say he pointed out a basic truth about the human condition.

They say he expressed, in a plain way, both sound psychology and accurate theology.

That his direct assertion of it caused such a spate of public gibes, cartoon snickers and claims he had blundered shows in itself a distaste for honest realism, the scholars say, a kind of pretentiousness.

"It's hypocritical, precisely the failing that is attacked in the Scripture passage Carter was talking about," says the Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss, a New Testament scholar and president of the United Church of Christ.

To mock the expression of a fact of human fallibility is "to not really deal with it and to avoid coming face to face with who you are," he adds.

The Rev. Dr. Seward Hiltner, a noted psychologist-theologian of Princeton Theological Seminary, says that obviously "there is an enormous distinction between a passing glance and adultery or rape."

But he says the Scripture passage cited by Carter brings out an important aspect of psychological health, an acknowledgement that fleetingly distorted motives must also be rejected as well as wrong behavior.

The wrong impulse, if not recognized for what it is, can become a "dominating preoccupation, an obsession that imprisons a life even when the person doesn't carry it out in overt behavior," Dr. Hiltner adds.

Carter's comments, made in an interview with Playboy magazine, had to do with Jesus' Sermon on the Mount in Matthew 5-7 demanding recognition of inevitable human shortcomings in contrast with the perfect standards God sets for their ultimate future.

"Forgive..." Jesus says, "and your heavenly Father also will forgive you."

In describing the perfection projected in God's kingdom, Jesus cites high absolutes "virtually impossible to live by in earthly life," says the Rev. Dr. J. Robert Nelson, a Methodist theologian of Boston University.

"Yet they're keenly relevant, the strongest kind of directive for consistency of motive and action," he adds. "Sure, we all fall short. The fact that we're sinners is pretty well known and it seems strange there would be all this fuss over Carter admitting that the best of us are fallible."

Jesus, in his sermon, calls figuratively for cutting off an arm or plucking out an eye if they cause sin, demands turning the other cheek to an assailant, loving enemies and equates anger with killing, lust with adultery, motive with deed, and also insists on acknowledgement of human failings and forgiveness for it.

As Carter put it, "Christ set almost impossible standards for us. Christ said, 'I tell you that anyone who looks on a woman with lust in his heart has already committed adultery.' I've looked on a lot of women with lust. I've committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something God recognizes I will do...and God forgives me for it."

The Rev. James T. Burchaell, a noted Roman Catholic theologian and provost of the University of Notre Dame, says Carter simply was "saying he shared a common tendency in physical attitudes, and more importantly, that he was not pleased by it, and that he had not followed up on it."

"That's a pretty good record," Dr. Hiltner says it's essential to realism for human beings to understand their impressions always are flawed in many ways, including a man's fragmented view of a woman, and vice versa, neither seeing in a wholly true perspective.

Not to realize this is to fall victim to fantasies, he says. For example, he notes, if a bank officer spends his time constantly thinking of embezzling funds but actually never does it, "he can be enchained as much as if he'd taken the money, not before the law, but in himself."

While Carter underlined that subtle dimension, some scholars questioned his expounding it to a magazine advocating casual sex. Perhaps, Dr. Nelson says, the candidate overlooked Jesus' admonition in Matthew 10:16:

"Behold, I send you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; so be as wise as serpents and innocent as doves."

Churchmen to gather in Midland

Representatives of the 17 Southern Baptist churches and two Southern Baptist missions in the county will be in attendance when Midland Baptist Association holds its 18th annual meeting Thursday.

The meeting will begin with an afternoon session at 4 p.m. in the chapel of First Baptist Church and continue with an evening session scheduled for 8:45 p.m.

The afternoon gathering will feature a business session with annual reports to be presented. Music will be presented by the "Singing Churchmen" and an ensemble from Wilshire Park Baptist Church. Featured speaker is to be the Rev. Carlos Paredes, an associate in the evangelism division of the State Missions Commission, Baptist General Convention of Texas, with headquarters at Dallas.

At the evening session, the annual sermon will be preached by the Rev. John Riggs, pastor of Wilshire Park Baptist Church. Vocal ensembles from Fannin Terrace and First Baptist churches will sing.

The Midland Baptist Association represents approximately 16,000 Southern Baptists in Midland County. The association is headed by the Rev. Bruce McNair, pastor of Alamo Heights Baptist Church here. He will preside at the annual meeting Thursday.

New minister begins at Christian church

Robert E. Blazek is the new minister of the Christian Church of Midland, 2006 Neely St., succeeding Billy Stewart who resigned the post in late spring and moved to Oklahoma.

Mr. Blazek and wife Lorene arrived in the city this weekend. He comes to Midland from El Paso after serving as minister of a congregation in that city for the last four years. He has been in the ministry for 20 years.

The new minister holds degrees from Dallas Christian College and is completing work on a master's degree from George Pepperdine University at Los Angeles. An accomplished ventriloquist, he frequently uses this special talent to emphasize his scriptural messages.

In the months between the former minister's departure and Mr. Blazek's arrival, the Christian Church of Midland pulpit has been filled by Mark Worley, associate minister of the church.

Robert E. Blazek

Rev. Lawrence Gilbert joins St. Luke's staff

The Rev. Lawrence L. Gilbert has joined the pastoral staff of St. Luke's United Methodist Church here.

Mr. Gilbert, a Methodist minister for more than 20 years until retirement recently, comes to St. Luke's as an educational minister. However, he will assist the pastor, the Rev. Billy Wilkinson, and associate pastor, the Rev. Curtis Cadenhead, in filling numerous other pastoral duties as well.

A native of Shreveport, La., Mr. Gilbert is a graduate of Centenary College of Shreveport and holds the bachelor of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University. He has had extensive training and experience in educational work with adults, youth and children, and in counseling of the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed. Recently he has been employed by the Greater New Orleans Association for Retarded Citizens as a vocational evaluator.

The St. Luke's congregation will honor the new educational minister with a reception between 4 and 6 p.m. Sunday in the church parsonage, 2508 Stanolind St. Other honor guests are to be Dr. Lloyd Hughes, new district superintendent of the United Methodist Church, and Mrs. Hughes.

Evangelist will preach during Baptist revival

Eddie Freeman of Andrews, widely-known as an evangelist throughout the Permian Basin and surrounding sectors, will preach a fall revival next week at South Memorial Baptist Church, 1700 W. Carter St.

The evangelistic crusade will begin Sunday night, continuing through the following Sunday, said the Rev. Jimmy Stovall, host pastor. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. daily and the public is invited.

Joining Mr. Freeman in the revival campaign here will be Rick Hudson of Andrews as singer and song leader.

Rev. W. D. Metzgar

Ex-pastor to attend services

The congregation of First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley Ave., will welcome a former pastor, the Rev. W. D. Metzgar, when he returns here to hold special revival services next week.

The revival will begin Wednesday night, continuing through the following Sunday. Weeknight services will begin at 7:30 Oct. 17 while services on Oct. 17 are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 2 and 7 p.m.

The final day of the revival, Oct. 17, will be highlighted by special musical programs by the Gospel Lights ensemble from Dallas, as well as by a service of dedication for the new multi-purpose building recently erected on the church grounds. Luncheon will be served in the new structure and the Rev. Haskell Rogers of Lubbock, district superintendent, will be in attendance that day.

Members, former members and all friends of the First Assembly of God are invited to attend the upcoming revival.

Rev. Glenn O'Shoney

League rally planned

Registration for the West Texas Lutheran Women's Missionary League zone rally Thursday will get under way at 10 a.m. Thursday, announced Evelyn Gunter of the LWML.

The Rev. Glenn O'Shoney, executive director of the Board of Missions, will be the guest speaker, with the program beginning at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

"Mite-y Missions in Christ" is the rally's theme.

Rev. O'Shoney is a native of Cicero, Ill., and attended Redeemer Lutheran School, J.S. Morton High School and completed three years at the University of Illinois before deciding to study for the ministry. He graduated from Concordia University in Springfield, Ill., in 1962.

He organized Faith Lutheran Church in Amarillo and served as pastor from 1962 to 1967. He then organized Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church in north Houston. He attended an Evangelism Training Seminar at the Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and led such seminars for pastors of the Texas District at Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church.

He served many years on circuit and district committees and assumed his present post as executive director of the Board of Mission Administration of the Texas District on March 1, 1974.

He and his wife, the former Sandra Kay Creswe of Canton, Ohio, have three children.

Former Midlander earns assistant's post at TCU

FORT WORTH — Clyde D. Foltz, formerly of Midland, has become assistant to the chancellor of Texas Christian University. He previously was director of development for TCU.

TCU Chancellor J. M. Moody, in announcing Foltz's promotion, said that Foltz will be assisting him in resource development projects during the next few years.

Foltz, who earned his bachelor of arts degree from TCU in 1944, and additional degrees through TCU's Brite Divinity School, joined the university staff in 1962 as director of alumni

Ford's campaign 'tumbling down'

By LOU CANNON
The Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — Like a juggler who loses one Indian club and finds the others falling to his feet, President Ford's carefully conceived political campaign is tumbling down around him.

After a week in which he suffered bad economic news, the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butts and an apparent debate loss to Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter, Ford left California Friday following another verbal stumble on the question of whether the Soviet Union dominates Eastern Europe.

On Wednesday night, in his nationally televised foreign affairs debate with Carter, the President surprised his audience by announcing that Poland, where the Russians maintain four military divisions, was not under Soviet domination. The next day, without formally acknowledging that he had erred, Ford said the United States does not concede domination over Poland and other Eastern European countries.

Friday, the President was asked again about his Eastern European debate statement, this time at a friendly question-and-answer breakfast meeting with a group of San Fernando Valley businessmen.

After repeating his statement that the administration does not concede that the Soviets should dominate eastern Europe, Ford went on to say: "It has been alleged by some that I was not as precise as I should have been the other day. But let me explain what I really meant. I was in Poland a year ago and I had the opportunity to talk with a number of citizens of Poland and, believe me, they're courageous, they are strong people. They don't believe that they are going to be forever dominated, if they are, by the Soviet Union."

Ford's strategists were horrified when they learned that the President's imprecision had once again raised the Eastern European issue, and Ford decided that he had better issue a new correction.

En route to the Burbank airport, Ford stopped the Presidential motorcade, got out of his limousine and made a statement indicating that he recognized that there are Soviet divisions in Poland.

"I trust that my observations will put an end to this misunderstanding," Ford said. "It was a misunderstanding. Maybe I did not make myself clear."

Ford's seeming inability to decide whether the Poles are dominated by the Soviets is symbolic of what some of his strategists have always regarded as a potentially serious campaign problem.

In his long campaign with Ronald Reagan, the President's verbal blunders — such as the contradictory statements he made on the Panama Canal during the Texas primary — often put him on the defensive against his Republican opponent.

Because of Ford's known proclivity for damaging himself on the campaign stump, he and his strategists in the week after the Republican convention that the President would hold his formal campaigning to a minimum until the last 10 days of the campaign.

The alternative strategy was to stay in the White House as much as possible, using the power of the incumbency and holding strategically timed bill signings in the White House Rose Garden.

This strategy was based upon the observation that Ford had been most effective against Reagan when he campaigned the least. Initially, this same strategy proved effective against Carter. In the first weeks of September the President let Carter do the campaigning and make the blunders, and Ford steadily closed ground on an opponent who proved surprisingly error-prone.

Now, in his first full week of campaigning, the President's own misstatements have taken the negative focus away from Carter.

The most serious of these misstatements, from the view of the California political campaign, may have been when Ford in the debate represented his administration as a foe of the Arab boycott of firms doing business with Israel.

This statement enraged Democrats, who recalled that the Ford Administration had opposed a tough House bill prohibiting the cooperation with the Arab boycott by U.S. firms.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman (D-La.), who in Jewish, accused the President of having "lied to the American people."

The President's blunder on Eastern Europe has not received the same attention in California, which has a negligible Polish American population. But some GOP strategists here are concerned that Ford's unexpected difficulty with this issue may have contributed to the image of a President as a bumbler.

Various polls have indicated that Ford was making progress in shaking the depiction of him as a man who was over his head in the presidency.

Best of all, from the President's point of view, was a poll taken for him this week that showed he had pulled three percentage points ahead in pivotal California, where he once trailed Carter by 20 percentage points. According to Ford's political strategists, GOP polls also show the President narrowly ahead of Carter in the key states of Michigan, Illinois and Indiana and narrowly behind in Texas and New York.

But these polls reflect the movement away from Carter encouraged by the first presidential debate. They also include some of the reaction to Butts' racial slur and subsequent resignation but not the public reaction to the second presidential debate. Understandably, GOP strategists are apprehensive about what the next round of polls will indicate.

Panel asks creation of 3 medical schools

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House Committee on Higher Education recommended creation of three new state medical schools Friday and a $78.5 million budget increase to boost the number of medical students.

New medical schools should be located at Fort Worth, Tyler and in the Rio Grande Valley, the committee's final report said.

"It is apparent to even the most uninformed person that we do not have enough doctors to treat the sick in Texas in either our metropolitan or our rural areas. Anyone who doubts this should make his or her own independent effort to secure medical treatment and evaluate the result," the report said.

It suggested several alternatives, including economic incentives and a virtual draft of Texas medical school graduates to practice in rural or underserved urban areas.

The panel found that an appropriation of $78.5 million over the next two years would enable each Texas medical school to raise its entering class to its full capacity.

The committee also concluded that the University of Texas system's board of regents acted legally when it shut down the systemwide school of nursing but that Texans would have been served better by continuing it.

The report says there should be no merger at this time of Texas A&I

University and Pan American University.

It recommended that fulltime graduate teaching assistants be allowed to teach no more than 25 percent of the student contact hours taught by full-time ranked faculty at state colleges and universities.

"The dual demands on the graduate student resulting from his own studies and his role as a teacher often result in poor quality undergraduate education," the committee said.

MC Art Club picks officers

New officers of the Art Club at Midland College include Lori Lovette, president; Sheri Seay, vice president; Ramah Boserich, secretary; treasurer, and Anita Horn, publicity chairman.

At the group's first meeting of the school year, members discussed a number of student shows to be presented during the year. They also will promote attendance at the brown bag mini-lectures which are held at noon on the second, third and fourth Wednesdays each month in room 153 of the administration building.

Marilyn Todd is sponsor for the club.

Iraqi troops, tanks to assist Palestine

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist sources here said Friday that 1,200 Iraqi troops with tanks and rocket launchers arrived in two ships this week to reinforce Palestinian guerrillas and leftist militias in the Lebanese civil war.

The sources said the troops had been airlifted to Egypt and transported by sea to the southern Lebanese port of Sidon, a leftist-Palestinian stronghold.

The reinforcements are regular army troops and tank crews, the sources said.

Their arrival brings to some 4,000 the number of Iraqi, Iraqi-based Palestinians and Syrians sent to fight in Lebanon, the sources said. The presence of hundreds of Iraqi fighters in Lebanon has been independently confirmed by direct observation but not the total figure.

The Iraqis were sent to bolster defenses of guerrillas and leftists who are confronting right-wing Christian private armies and a Syrian intervention force of up to 21,000 troops and 800 tanks.

News of their arrival comes as Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi announced he will preside over a new round of peace talks between representatives of Syria, Lebanon and the guerrillas starting Saturday.

The Egyptian diplomat expressed optimism that the talks will result in a cease-fire and a timetable for withdrawal of Palestinian guerrillas to their refugee camp bases along with satisfactory guarantees that the Palestinian resistance movement would be allowed to operate from Lebanon.

The Syrians have occupied north and east Lebanon territory formerly controlled by Moslem-leftist militias and the guerrillas. They have pushed to within 12 miles of Beirut and 10 miles of Sidon.

Syria is demanding the guerrillas stop supporting leftists in the civil war and return to their camps. Guerrillas are now boxed in at the northern port of Tripoli and the southwest corner of Lebanon, including half of Beirut.

Iraq and Egypt have opposed Syrian President Hafez Assad's intervention to end the 17 month civil war.

Achievement of Syria's goals, to establish dominance over Lebanon and the Palestinian guerrilla movement through a Syrian-dictated peace settlement, would inflate Assad's influence in the Mideast.

The rival Baath party regime in Iraq is pressing for an Arab summit conference on Lebanon to be held Oct. 15 at Arab League headquarters in Cairo.

Shelling and clashes continued along the front line dividing Beirut into Moslem and Christian sectors in the suburbs and at Tripoli.

In a new flare-up, guerrillas in Marjayoun and fighters of the isolated Christian village of Qaisa battled in south Lebanon. Casualties were heavy, according to sketchy reports from the area.

Court denies deposition

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge Friday denied a deposition request by attorneys for Paula Cantrell Derese, charged with capital murder in the slaying of her parents.

Richard Mahan, attorney for Mrs. Derese, 26, unsuccessfully sought to have a deposition taken from a man who is reportedly a major witness in the investigation of the July 25 slaying of Paul Harvey Cantrell and his wife, Mary Bright Cantrell. They were found strangled and slashed in their Baytown home.

Mahan also sought a pretrial hearing on the admissibility of an alleged statement by Mrs. Derese. The lawyer argued that at least 30 days would be needed, after the ruling on the statement, to prepare his case. Her trial has been set for Oct. 26.

State District Court Judge Joseph Guarino said he will rule on the statement after a trial jury has been selected. Mahan contends the alleged statement was not voluntarily given to Baytown police.

Mrs. Derese and Vernon E. McManus, 33, are charged with murder in the slaying of Mrs. Derese. Her trial has been set for Oct. 26.

Vernon Olney, 34, and McManus also have been indicted on a charge of conspiracy to commit murder in the case.

Prosecutors contend the Cantrells were killed in a scheme to collect insurance and estate money.
