

White House Urged To Put Brakes On Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief inflation watchdog, warning that the administration's anti-inflation strategy is not working, is recommending stronger action to avert significant price increases, government sources say.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, recommended that Carter take actions that are "immediate in their impact and not just a request for restraint by the private sector" to keep prices from increasing at a faster pace.

Bosworth, in an internal White House memorandum last week, maintained, for example, that contracts coming out of the current coal industry dispute have the potential of causing "inflationary damage."

A spokesman for the council, Tom Joyce, confirmed the memorandum, but emphasized that it reflected only one point of view within the White House, has not yet been debated by key economic advisers and has not been seen by the president.

The memorandum, as originally submitted, included a suggestion that the administration reverse itself on supporting the Social Security tax increase approved by Congress last year, an administration source said.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Bosworth still believes that Social Security taxes should be rolled back by $6 billion to help harness inflation, but that the recommendation was deleted from the memo because it "just wouldn't fly."

In the memorandum sent to Carter's six top economic advisers, Bosworth warned there would be substantial increases in consumer prices in coming months and that "it would be better for the president to anticipate, rather than to react to, public criticism."

The memorandum was written before the wholesale price figures for February were announced last week. They showed a 1.1 percent jump, the highest monthly increase in three years.

The February figures would be equivalent to 13.2 percent for the year. The administration has been shooting for a 6 percent annual inflation rate.

Bosworth suggested that the government set an example by cutting the federal employees' proposed pay hike from 7 percent to 6 percent and that Carter go on national television to announce the cut as well as address the inflation issue.

He suggested that, for the short term, Carter:

- Push harder for congressional action on his year-long hospital cost containment bill, which has been watered down in Congress. He said the recent consumer price indexes "substantially understate" increased medical cost.
- Expand meat imports to hold down meat prices, and expand the timber harvests on federal lands to hold down rapidly rising lumber prices.
- Announce an executive order requiring regulatory agencies to consider the inflationary effect of new actions and of regulations already on the books.

The memo also cautioned against responding to the farmers' strike by raising price supports or restricting imports. The Senate is considering an expanded set-aside program that would cost the government more than $2 billion.

Coal Pact Outlook Brighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — As striking coal miners continued to ignore a back-to-work order, bargainers for the United Mine Workers and the coal industry today were in virtual agreement on a new contract that could end the 99-day strike, informed sources said.

"I feel 100 percent certain that something's going to happen today," said one union official as negotiations resumed.

A source close to the talks nodded affirmatively when asked if both sides had made a deal.

But he cautioned: "There's always a 1 percent chance something could go queer." He described the negotiating meeting this morning as mostly a "copy-editing job." Like other participants, he asked that he not be identified by reporters.

An industry source said lower-level officials for the two sides had met earlier today to review draft language of contract terms for presentation to the main negotiators.

"If they've done their work right, we could have a deal," the source said.

U.M.W. president Arnold Miller, asked if the two sides were close enough to put an agreement together today, said: "We've been that close for a long time." He added that he remained optimistic.

The industry's chief bargainer, Nicholas T. Carnicia, asked the same question, replied: "Don't know yet. We have to have a meeting first."

Negotiators have been reported near agreement before in the strike, only to have a last-minute problem delay an announcement.

Agreement by negotiators on terms would not automatically end the strike, which has cut the nation's coal production by half and forced power curtailments and industrial job layoffs.

The union's bargaining council as well as its rank-and-file membership must approve the terms of the agreement.

The bargaining council torpedoed two previous agreements and the rank and file membership rejected one overwhelmingly more than a week ago.

Despite striking miners' defiance of a back-to-work order, federal officials are trying to avoid a coalfield confrontation in the hope that the negotiators will end the walkout.

"We don't plan any hasty or ill-conceived actions. ... We don't seek any confrontation," said Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehan. "What we don't want to do is create any situation ... that could interfere with the collective bargaining process."

White House press secretary Jody Powell said some officials involved in negotiations were "at least cautiously optimistic" about putting together a settlement.

SURVIVE SIEGE. — Two persons held hostage by South Moluccan gunmen clasp hands today after they were rescued by Dutch marines, who stormed the provincial administration building at Assen. ## Marines Free 70 Hostages, Nab Gunmen

ASSEN, Netherlands (AP) — Under covering fire from nearby rooftops, 60 Dutch marines stormed a local government complex in this northern Dutch city today and freed 70 hostages held by South Moluccan terrorists since Monday, a government spokesman reported.

Three hostages were slightly wounded during the attack and another was badly wounded by terrorists, the spokesman said. A 40-year-old man, first thought to be a woman, died when the terrorists seized the building.

The spokesman said three young Moluccan gunmen were captured in the 20-minute operation, triggered when the terrorists made what proved to be a false report that they had executed a male hostage. Earlier accounts had indicated five or six terrorists in the building.

"They're free! they're free!" a marine officer yelled into his radio as the marines secured the four-story Trente provincial government headquarters in wooded suburban parkland of southwest Assen.

The marines went in after a shot was heard inside the concrete and glass building and the terrorists telephoned the government crisis center and claimed they had killed a hostage, the spokesman said.

"As soon as we heard that, the marines were ordered to attack," he said. But he said when the marines reached the top floor where the hostages were held, the man the Moluccans had reported executed was in fact only wounded.

The crack anti-terrorist unit of 100 marines, the same one that broke a siege by South Moluccan terrorists last year, was airlifted in transport helicopters to the siege scene Monday night.

The spokesman said 60 of the marines attacked from two sides, under a covering barrage from marine sharpshooters. One group which had hidden in an adjacent building under cover of darkness was the first to reach the front door of the blue and grey building. Nearby lay the body of the 40-year-old man who died in the terrorist assault Monday. Dutch officials had reported originally the body was that of a woman.

The second unit was hidden on the other side of the building and raced across open ground to reach the complex, the spokesman said.

The Moluccan militants seek Dutch intervention to obtain the independence of their home islands from Indonesia. Both the South Moluccas and Indonesia are former Dutch colonies.

The terrorists had threatened in a letter to the Justice Ministry to start killing their captives at 2 p.m. (7 a.m. CST) if the government did not meet their demands for the release of 21 comrades jailed after the terror action last summer and one in 1975, a plane out of the country with some of the hostages and a $13 million ransom.

The deadline passed with no sound of gunfire from the building, but just after 2:30 p.m., the shot was heard that sent the marines into action. As they moved in, a fleet of green army ambulances drove through the cordon of 400 police and troops to pick up the wounded.

School Bus Hijacked; Youth Shot

WALLED LAKE, Mich. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy who was reportedly frustrated over a girl hijacked a school bus on its way to pick her up Tuesday, authorities said. The youth was later shot and wounded by police.

No one else aboard the bus was hurt. The youth, who had carried an unloaded shotgun and six shells, underwent surgery at a hospital and was expected to recover, said Janet Acker, a spokeswoman for the White Lake Township police. White Lake is adjacent to Wallied Lake, about 30 miles northwest of Detroit.

Police, who declined to release the youth's identity, said they had known about his problems with his girlfriend and were tipped by her parents about 4 a.m. that the hijack might occur.

"The girl didn't want to have anything to do with him," said White Lake Police Chief Justin Watt. "In his frustration, he found it necessary to attempt to hijack a school bus."

Police said after getting the call, they identified the Wallied Lake Central High School bus believed to be the target of the hijack attempt and put unmarked cruisers on the route. But the youth managed to elude them and boarded the bus shortly after 7 a.m. With the gun at the woman driver's head, he ordered her to continue normal pickups, police said.

Statement Defends Action By Trustees

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Independent School District today issued a statement clarifying federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward's remark that he was given the district's integration proposals Feb. 16 — long before school officials obtained community input or formally announced a plan.

The district insists that Woodward and the U.S. Justice Department, at a private conference in Amarillo last month, were provided only a "preliminary draft of information relative to a possible desegregation plan."

Since the school board had not adopted the "concepts presented," and thus was not bound by them, school officials said the Amarillo meeting did not violate the board's promise to "consider the suggestions and concerns of the people before any plan is finalized."

But some citizens take issue with that explanation.

"Judge Woodward's remark indicates the board had had a plan for some time, though they denied its existence. We the public have been used," said Jaye Pearson, who as co-president of the Roscoe Wilson Elementary Parent-Teacher Association helped organize PTA input in late February and early March.

"Our energies had no impact at all. The plan had been submitted before the public had adequate time to make input. Our elected officials set the stage for some play-acting, all the while directing behind the scenes. This is not democracy. It is a travesty of the worst sort," Mrs. Pearson said.

But Supt. Ed Irons, school board president Charles Waters and board vice president Bob McKevey retort they did not circumvent the process of community input.

When the district's representatives met with Woodward Feb. 16, "we hadn't approved any plan. That was yet to be decided upon. But we wanted to know from the judge if we were in the right direction or off track with the ideas under consideration," Waters said.

Skies Clear Over Plains

A-J News Services

Clear skies and mild temperatures dominated the South Plains and most of the state today, as any immediate chances of precipitation vanished from the forecast.

Today's forecast for the Lubbock area called for highs this afternoon in the middle 60s and lows tonight in the mid-50s. Slightly cooler weather is expected Wednesday, with the high near 60.

Top temperatures over the state today were expected to span a 20-degree range — from the mid-50s in the Panhandle to the 70s in much of South Texas and possibly the 80s in the Rio Grande Valley.

No precipitation was included in area or state forecasts through Wednesday, and an extended outlook called for the

Sheriff Reveals Unusual Tactics

By FRANK PATRICK

It was revealed in testimony today that Hutchinson County Sheriff Lon Blackmon has been conducting night interrogations of capital murder defendant Samuel Christopher Hawkins III at the Lubbock County jail since Hawkins' trial started.

The sessions were conducted without the knowledge of Hawkins' attorneys.

Holdup Men Need Help

HOUSTON (AP) — Three disorganized bandits must be wondering why they even considered robbery of a supermarket on the city's southwest side Monday.

They burst into the store with a sawed-off shotgun and pistol and took $200 to $300 and scrambled out.

That's when their troubles really began. By the time the two-hour episode ended, all that was needed to complete the Keystone Kops atmosphere of the scene was rinky-tink music.

When the trio jumped into their getaway car, it wouldn't start. They left part of the loot in the car, along with their identification.

Then, in a series of mishaps, they eventually took four cars and abducted six persons before finally disappearing in north Houston.

In them, the sheriff, according to his testimony, asked Hawkins to give him answers to typed questions on a five-page document.

Blackmon indicated Hawkins had answered all of the questions orally, and the state made an unsuccessful attempt to put those purported answers into evidence.

Defense attorneys Russell Busby and Gene Storrs objected that a second document bearing the alleged answers — a document unsigned by the defendant and with the purported oral answers reduced to writing by the sheriff — failed to meet requirements of Texas' oral confession statute.

Presiding District Judge Richard N. Countiss sustained the objection.

Blackmon — who had testified for the state on several previous occasions during the trial — was the final witness called by the defense before it rested its case around noon today.

Observers indicated the case could go to the jury after final arguments Wednesday.

Hawkins, 34, of Amarillo, is accused of slaying a six-month-pregnant Berger housewife May 3, 1977.

The victim, Abbe Rodgers Hamilton, 19, was found bound hand and foot on the blood-soaked bed of her Panhandle home.

She had been stabbed repeatedly in the neck. A pathologist said her jugular vein

Sadat Raps Terrorists; Arabs Await Reprisals

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat today condemned the Palestinian terrorist raid in Israel over the weekend in which more than 30 people were killed and described it as a "sad and tragic" event.

In an apparent appeal to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for restraint in any reprisal action, the Egyptian leader called for an end to the "vicious circle" of strike and counter-strike that has engulfed the Middle East for three decades.

"Anything against the civilians I shall always condemn," Sadat said in the first Arab denunciation of the raid. He spoke to reporters in the Nile valley town of Beni Suef, about 70 miles south of Cairo.

The statement in English was broadcast live by Cairo radio.

"Believe me, I describe it as a very sad and tragic incident, and when I heard that the Palestine Liberation Organization declared their responsibility about it, I asked myself what will be the result?" the Egyptian president said.

Despite U.S. and Egyptian cautions, Israel still is expected to hit Palestinian bases in Lebanon in retaliation for the attack.

Begin vowed "to cut off the arm of evil" of the PLO. "We will do what we have to do," Begin said in a speech to the Israeli Parliament Monday before Washington indicated its disapproval of retaliation. "We shall in no way and in no circumstances agree that this hand be raised over a Jewish child or a Jewish woman."

Sadat said he would "have liked action towards the establishment of peace instead of starting revenge again and the vicious circle again."

It was Sadat's second attack in recent weeks on the Palestinians, who have opposed his peace initiative with Israel. He strongly criticized them after the murder of Egyptian newspaper editor Youssef el-Sebei in the Hilton Hotel in Nicosia, Cyprus, Feb. 18.

Eleven Palestinian raiders landed on the Israeli coast Saturday 37 miles north of Tel Aviv, hijacked an interurban bus and then a tourist bus, and tried to go to Tel Aviv with about 70 hostages to seize a hotel and free imprisoned terrorists.

"It's essentially a question of supply and demand. Americans are drinking less coffee, mainly because of the high prices. ## Medal Will Honor Lillian Carter

ROME (AP) — Lillian Carter will be struck in metal. A United Nations medal will honor President Carter's mother for her civil rights militancy and her Peace Corps work.

The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has released gold and silver medals featuring her as Ceres, the Roman goddess of agriculture.

FAO has been issuing so-called Ceres medals annually since 1971 to highlight the role of women in agriculture and world development.

MRS. CARTER

A portrait of Mrs. Carter, her name and the name Ceres appear on one side of the medal while the reverse bears the inscription "Human kindness and caring — heal beyond any wall."

The medal, sculpted by Frank Gasparro, chief engraver of the U.S. Mint, and struck in Italy, is available in gold at $140 and sterling silver at $25.

Previous American women honored on Ceres medals include Coretta Scott King, Margaret Mead, Shirley Temple Black and Gloria Steinem.

Dissident Loses Telephone

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov will have to find some way other than the telephone to coordinate his activities.

SAKHAROV

Soviet authorities have disconnected his home telephone, the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize laureate said Monday.

Many other dissidents previously have had their phone service abruptly cut off.

The move came one day after Sakharov and his wife joined more than 20 Soviet Jews in staging a demonstration in downtown Moscow to protest against Kremlin support for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The protest was prompted by Saturday's Arab terrorist attack in Israel.

Woman Yells At Queen

LONDON (AP) — The solitude of Westminster Abbey was shattered when a middle-aged woman marched up the aisle and started shouting at Queen Elizabeth II.

Stewards rushed up and prevented the woman from throwing a handbag at the queen and Prince Philip, who were attending a British Commonwealth Day service Monday.

The shabbily dressed, unidentified woman was arrested after walking to within a few yards of the royal couple and shouting: "God didn't want any of his children killed or drowned in his blood."

The outburst was heard by 2,500 people packed into the abbey for the annual service.

The royal couple appeared unmoved by the incident and the dean of Westminster, the Very Rev. Edward Carpenter, continued the service, the British news agency Press Association reported.

Ski Run Named After Designer

GOVERNMENT CAMP, Ore. (AP) — "It's the same old Pucci Glade, but I'm afraid it's not the same old Pucci," said Emilio Pucci after skiing the run named for him.

Pucci, a fashion designer and Italian nobleman, made the run at Timberline ski area during the weekend with two members of the Reed College ski team he captained and coached 40 years ago.

One of them, Portland architect Neil Farnham, said, "Despite a pulled muscle in his back, he led the pack."

Pucci, who developed the Portland college's first ski team in the winter of 1936-37, was honored by a marker placed at the upper terminal of the Pucci chairlift.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mary Jane Truman, 88-year-old sister of the late Harry S Truman, has been transferred from a hospital to a nursing home to continue recovery from a stroke she suffered Dec. 5.

Research Medical Center officials said Miss Truman was admitted to the Red Bridge Health Care Center over the weekend.

Bureaucracy At Work

HEALY, Alaska (AP) — A federal marshal carried out his mission and delivered a back-to-work order to miners at Usibelli Coal Mine, although they were already on the job.

It seems these miners are not members of the United Mine Workers and have not been on strike.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Joe Usibelli, mine company president, said, "The federal government, in their infinite wisdom, hasn't figured that out yet."

U.S. Marshal Bill Opel said he served the temporary restraining order and summons at the mine Monday on Charles Castona, president of Alaska's UMW local before the now-defunct unit joined the Teamsters last fall.

Chicagoans To Receive New Fuel

CHICAGO (UPI) — Within a few weeks, Chicagoans will be getting a different kind of natural gas to heat their ovens and ignite their stove tops.

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, a Peoples Gas Co. subsidiary, will soon be pumping methane — garnered from the distillation of cow manure — from the Oklahoma panhandle north to the gas-equipped kitchens of the city.

A plant in Guyton, Okla., is recycling the manure into methane and two valuable byproducts, high-protein feed for livestock and nitrogen-rich liquid fertilizer.

The $3 million plant was designed and built by Calorific Recovery Anaerobic Process Inc. and can handle 1 million pounds of manure per day.

"It's another alternative source of fuel," said Mark Lesh, an engineer for the company. "It's genuine natural gas. It's the real thing."

Company officials said they will produce enough fuel to keep 3,500 Chicago homes energized each day.

And, officials add, as many as 107,000 head of cattle at three nearby feedlots can be counted on with regularity to keep the recycling plant supplied.

James Samis, president of the company, said the plant now has "quite a bill of manure" in supply, enough to last 15 days.

He said the pipeline company has completed a facility for compressing the methane for transmission to Chicago. Samis explained the process will involve mixing the manure with water into a liquid, extracting the fiber content and feeding the watery residue into bacterial-filled tanks.

The bacteria, in consuming the dung, will give off two gases — carbon dioxide and methane, Samis said. The methane is then extracted and cleaned and piped to the Natural Gas pipeline.

Peoples Gas has agreed to buy the Calorific plant's full production of 1.6 million cubic feet of the methane each day for $1.94 per thousand cubic feet.

Peoples Gas executives aren't complaining.

Ed Joyce, a spokesman for the utility, says natural gas on the unregulated intrastate markets of Texas and other southwestern states would cost the company $2.25 per thousand cubic feet.

Samis said he hopes to have his cow-chip plant, the first large facility of its kind, operating at 80 percent production within a week or two.

Navy Eyeing Injunction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says it might seize General Dynamics Corp.'s Electric Boat shipyards if the firm carries out a threat to halt construction on 16 attack nuclear submarines in a war over a $544-million cost overrun.

About 14,000 jobs in Connecticut and Rhode Island hang in the balance. Electric Boat is the second largest private employer in Connecticut and the largest in Rhode Island.

Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor said the Navy may seek a court injunction to force Electric Boat management to keep working on the submarines.

An alternative to court action would be for the Navy to take over the contract, an option called "unlikely" by Rep. Christopher Dodd, a Democrat whose district includes Groton.

Claytor, who denied the Navy has done anything to breach its contract for the submarines, said the Navy will announce within 10 days what action it will take.

Electric Boat has a $1.4 billion contract to build 18 of the high-speed, fast-attack submarines. Two have been completed, and the last ship is expected to be delivered within six years, or up to three years behind schedule.

The company said Monday that it would stop work on the subs April 12 if no settlement is reached with the Navy, which Electric Boat said has refused to pay cost overruns caused by 35,000 design changes.

Electric Boat filed a claim for the overruns in December 1976 and said it is preparing an update.

Coffee Prices To Continue Slide

By CHERYL DEBES Associated Press Writer

Most supermarket food prices keep climbing, but coffee is dropping and apparently will go even lower.

The idea of cheaper coffee may be hard to believe for shoppers who watched prices rise over two years from $1.27 to nearly $4 for a pound of America's most popular beverage.

But the latest federal figures show the average retail price down 12 percent, from a record $3.93½ a pound last June to $3.47 in January.

The price now is down to about $3.40, and last week Folger's Coffee Co., the second-largest U.S. processor, cut wholesale prices by 15 cents, to $3.03 a pound. This foreshadows a further retail drop since store prices usually follow wholesale prices by three or four weeks.

Most coffee analysts think the price will continue to fall. Fred Gray, a U.S. Agriculture Department economist, says the retail price might be $2.25 a pound next winter.

"It's essentially a question of supply and demand," Gray said. "Americans are drinking less coffee, mainly because of the high prices. As a result, domestic roasters aren't importing as much."

As analysts explain it, the price increases for coffee resulted from fears of a world shortage after a severe frost in Brazil in July 1975, when Americans were paying an average $1.27 a pound. Prices shot up, and then two factors set in to bring them down.

The first was consumer reaction. Last year, U.S. per capita coffee consumption dropped 27 percent — from 12.8 pounds to 9.4 pounds of beans — as many people switched to tea or soft drinks.

The second was that the predicted coffee shortage never occurred, and analysts now see prospects for a substantial recovery in world production, already up 11 percent from last year.

At first, Brazil and Colombia, the largest coffee-growing nations, tried to hold the price of green beans above $3 a pound. But then they saw the trend and let go. Beans now sell for under $2 a pound.

Last week, Central American coffee-producing nations tried to again boost prices for beans by withholding them from market. But importers said these nations do not have the storage facilities to continue this and will back down as they see Brazil and Colombia making money.

"What was a seller's market has turned into a buyer's market," a New York coffee trader explained. "And most roasters aren't buying, which indicates they think they can get a better deal."

Essentially, analysts think only a repetition of the 1975 Brazilian frost could stem the price erosion. And even such an effect is unlikely since no real shortages occurred after the frost — only fears of shortage.

Rep. Fred Richmond, chairman of a subcommittee that has investigated coffee prices, believes lower consumption will force lower prices.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Residents of a well-to-do neighborhood in Buenos Aires who heard a dozen shots fired and saw police storming a vacant house might have thought a guerrilla attack was underway. But it was a case of monkey business. Police shot and killed a monkey who had taken refuge in the house. "We had to kill him because he was rabid and tried to attack us," said one of the officers.

Conestoga Takes Credit For Nickname Of Cigar

By TIM PETTIT
 CONESTOGA, Pa. (AP) — They say it was the farmers in this Lancaster County area who gave the cigar its "stogie" nickname 150 years ago.
 The penny cigars wrapped here were favored by drivers of the famous Conestoga wagons, one story goes, and they were dubbed with a contraction of the wagon's name.
 Another tale has the cigar taking its nickname from a contraction of the local Conestoga stream.
 Whatever the source, the tag stuck as Pennsylvania became the nation's leader in production of cigar-fill tobacco and the manufacture of long cigars, rankings the state holds today.
 Virginia, North Carolina and other states known for their tobacco crops, raise leaf used primarily in cigarette production.
 Stogie-puffing today isn't the same as it used to be. Both production of tobacco and consumption of cigars have dropped drastically across the country.

Quaint as it may sound, working tobacco by hand — as it is done here — can be financially disastrous. It takes 150 man-hours to work an acre of tobacco, and labor costs $3 to $4 an hour.
 "You'll find more Amish and Mennonite farmers in tobacco than 20 years ago," said agricultural agent Max Smith of Lancaster, Pennsylvania's tobacco center. "That's because they have large families and can provide their own labor and eliminate the three and four dollars-an-hour wage."
 Ironically, those steadfastly religious farmers refuse to use tobacco themselves, and some have dropped the crop because of their beliefs, Smith said.
 That's an old story. In 1878, a farmer complained to the Lancaster Farmer newspaper, "God has given us a fine county in which raise ... estate articles, and before God, I believe it is not right to desecrate the soil by raising tobacco."
 Pennsylvania's tobacco production has dropped from 60 million pounds in 1960 to the current 23 million. And nationwide, cigar production dropped from 7.8 billion a year to about 5 billion.

 "The anti-smoking campaign is aimed at cigarettes. But cigars are occasional items rather than a habit, and so a cigar smoker might give it up more easily than a cigarette smoker," said a spokesman for the Cigar Association of America in Washington.
 "You could also see it as a change in lifestyle," he said. "The cigar industry is yet to be as successful in attracting youthful persons in large numbers."
 Harold Barley of Millersville, Pa., says he got his start in farming with a tobacco crop, although he now farms only 30 acres — considered a large crop by today's standards.
 If you can afford or avoid high labor prices, Barley said, tobacco can still be a moneymaker. "To grow alfalfa, you're equipment will run about $25,000," he said. "For tobacco, your investment would be about $5,000."
 But he conceded times have changed. "When my father and I used to go around with a steam engine sterilizing tobacco plant beds, there was hardly a farm that didn't have a plant bed," said the 38-year-old Barley. "Today, if you were still using that engine, I bet you'd only stop at one of every five farms in Lancaster County."

Group Not Protesting Tests Using Baboons

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The citizens' group that successfully stopped the use of baboons in an auto crash research project says it has no plans to rescue the animals from a new kind of death in another University of Michigan laboratory.
 Six baboons were spared Feb. 2 when the school's Highway Safety Research Institute agreed to stop using them in crash study. But now the university's physiology department wants to use them in a study of hypertension.
 One of the baboons already has been killed in the project and the surviving five are to be "terminated" to study their bodies' reactions to the testing during the next three weeks, a department spokesman said.
 The Rev. Irwin Gaede of "Save the Baboons Committee" said he is not opposed to the current tests. "I wish they all could be returned to their mothers, but looking at these realistically, they won't be," Gaede said.
 "We're not opposed to all experimentation with lab animals," he said. "In many cases it's needed for the study of disease. But when it comes to a man-made problem, such as the automobile, then it becomes an unnecessary waste of animal life."

Communist Indochina Suffers Effects Of Drought, Poverty

By UDOM SUKACHAROEN
 BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Bad weather, poor management, lack of technical know-how and a border war have dangerously slowed communist Indochina's march toward self-sufficiency in food, according to various official and unofficial sources.
 A severe drought last year left rice seedlings withering throughout Southeast Asia, but countries in Indochina appear to have suffered the most, the sources indicate. Some Western and Asian experts say nature has compounded flaws in the various socialist agricultural schemes.
 A United Nations report in December said the drought destroyed up to 95 percent of the rice paddies in some areas of Laos which will need an estimated 261,000 tons of food to feed its population between this month and the next major harvest in November.
 Vietnam, according to official statistics, lost 35 percent of its agricultural output and is by various estimates short 1.2 million to 1.5 million tons of rice. Vietnam has reported that the border war with Cambodia has left fallow large areas of arable land.
 Cambodia doesn't provide statistics but claims to have produced adequate rice to feed its people and some surplus for export.
 Cambodian refugees fleeing to Thailand still report only meager rations, however. A Western diplomat stationed in Hanoi said the monthly rice ration there has been cut from 25 pounds to 17 1/2 pounds a month per person while in southern Vietnam it is down to 20 pounds from 29. The United Nations considers 33 pounds a month as adequate.
 An indication of how bad things are in Indochina can be seen in Thailand, which borders on Laos and Cambodia and which suffered from the same drought. One of the world's major rice exporters, Thailand expects to sell only 1.2 million tons of rice abroad this year, 50 percent less than in 1977.
 The government has allocated $80 million to aid drought-hit farmers and keep them from streaming into this already crowded capital.
 The Vietnamese media has reported that thousands of acres of rice fields have been abandoned and hundreds of draft animals butchered. The Vietnamese also are reporting that farmers have been forced to drop their hoes and spades and take up guns in the rice-rich Mekong River Delta because of the border conflict.
 Cambodia accuses Vietnam of a massive invasion of its rice-growing Parrot's Beak area, north of the Mekong Delta and west of Saigon. The Cambodians have charged that the Vietnamese have stolen the Parrot's Beak harvest in late 1977 and earlier this year.
 Besides weather and war, Vietnam also admits some of the problems are man-made. Leaders openly blame mismanagement, inexperience and limited stocks of seeds, insecticides and fertilizer as well as a growing population. The Vietnamese National Assembly gave the food problem the highest priority for 1978.
 Premier Pham Van Dong recently sought and received a 300,000-ton wheat loan during a visit to India, where he said: "We had two successive years of natural calamities, so it's natural that we live in difficulties."
 Vietnam has also received food aid from the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization and Denmark while the FAO, Burma and Thailand have supported Laos. But neither country to date has received anywhere near the amounts needed to make up the deficits, experts here say.

 Since the communist victory in 1975, Vietnam has tried to increase food output: city dwellers have been sent to the countryside, soldiers have been mobilized and about 12.3 million acres of fallow land have been reclaimed. But Thai experts estimate Vietnam will need about a decade to straighten out its agriculture, which includes planned socialization of farmers in southern Vietnam.
 Landlocked Laos, a food-exporting country in the best of times, may need even longer to reach its goal of self-sufficiency. Normally cited problems include primitive agricultural methods, a weak economic base, lack of trained personnel and adequate management and a loss of aid from the United States.
 Each of the three Indochinese countries have changed centuries-old farming practices and organization. The most radical has been Cambodia, which turned the bulk of its population into rice farmers or dike builders. Speculation continues about how much longer and harder the Cambodian leaders can drive their people.

 But one Asian diplomat who formerly served in Phnom Penh says, "With its fertile land and the mobilization of almost six million people, including shopkeepers and businessmen, Cambodia might become Thailand's competitor in the Asian rice market in the next few years."
 A professor at Kasetsart University's agriculture school here claims that prospects for food self-sufficiency in Indochina will remain uncertain unless technical know-how and machines replace dependency on rainfall and muscle-power.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Don't Get Mad, Get Even

THE TURBULENT relationship that exists between relatively obscure U.S. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski and President Carter provides a fascinating case study of the stresses and strains between the White House and Congress.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is the product of the once-powerful Democratic organization built and maintained for two decades by Chicago's late Mayor Richard J. Daley.

During Daley's heyday, no Democratic politician outside or inside the administration dared to ignore his wishes. But Daley's influential machine disintegrated rapidly after his death in December 1976.

AS CHAIRMAN of the health subcommittee of the House ways and means committee, Rostenkowski last spring was one of the two principal co-sponsors of the Carter administration's hospital cost containment bill.

That measure, which must be approved by Rostenkowski's subcommittee was described by Carter in his State of the Union message as "our principal weapon in the effort to decrease health care costs."

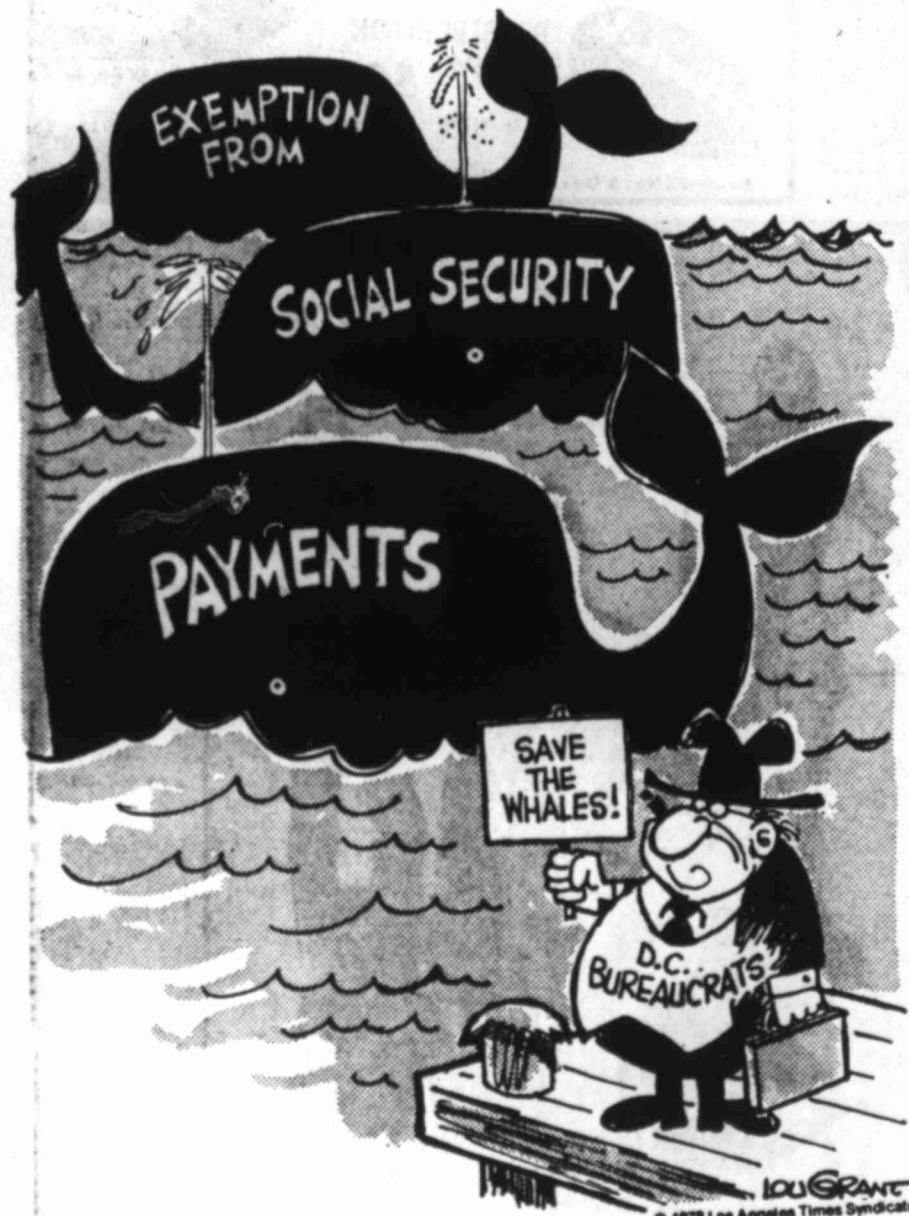

Last month, Rostenkowski unexpectedly announced he had a change of heart and was abandoning his support of the administration's bill. Instead, he said, he was going to substitute a measure that would emphasize voluntary instead of mandatory hospital cost controls.

WITHIN TWO weeks, Carter invited him to the White House for "a private discussion of the issue," according to news reports.

Rostenkowski concedes he is a bit friendlier, but he's still withholding his support for the administration's hospital version.

For the record, Rostenkowski denies there is any connection between his irritation with the administration and his withdrawal of support for one of its key issues.

Meanwhile, the Georgians in the White House are experiencing first hand the rapier lesson of a John F. Kennedy political maxim: "Don't get mad; get even."

John D. Lofton:

Canal Treaties: Pig In A Poke

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Cyrus Vance says that the more facts the American people know about the Panama Canal treaties, the more likely they will be to support these treaties. Well, I wonder.

For example, how many Americans know that the U.S. Senate is debating these documents without knowing what is in the legislation required to implement these pacts?

In his testimony on Feb. 1 before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Elmer Staats, the U.S. comptroller general, characterized this implementing legislation as the "key determinant of the financial viability of the proposed Panama Canal Commission." The unanswered questions which this legislation will presumably answer are:

- WHAT FORM OF U.S. government organization should the proposed commission take?
- Who will audit the new commission?
- What should be done to assure an orderly transfer of property and continued efficient operation of transferred functions?
- How should Panama's $8.4 million debt for past services be resolved?
- Should the canal organization be relieved of its obligation to pay interest on U.S. investment?
- What is the magnitude of other treaty-related costs for personnel terminations and relocation costs to be borne by the U.S. government?
- Will toll revenues be sufficient to cover costs?
- Who will bear the burden of increased toll rates?

LAST SEPTEMBER, appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, State Department legal advisor Herbert Hansell called the Panama Canal treaties "implementing legislation" "an essential component of the overall program of implementation of the treaties."

He promised that a draft of this legislation would be submitted to both houses of Congress "well before the end of October."

But October has come and gone, as have November, December, January and half of February, and still no implementing legislation has been submitted to the Congress. In an interview, when I ask Hansell why the delay, he laughs saying: "We just haven't got the stuff done. We've learned a lot in terms of what is involved, things like the makeup of the commission, early retirement provisions for Canal Zone employees, the mechanics of the financial side of the commission's operations, how it will set tolls, etc. This is all nitty-gritty stuff, but it's complicated nitty-gritty stuff." Hansell explains:

"Quite honestly and candidly, I foolishly thought, we all foolishly thought, because this is a coordinated response, that we'd be able to get this done in a month or so."

"But issues kept creeping out of the woodwork as different people with experience and knowledge about various facets of the canal operations examined the subject."

OKAY, WE ALL make mistakes. Then how long before the implementing legislation will be submitted to Congress? Hansell sighs. "We're slugging away at it," he says, but whether it'll be

ONE MAN'S OPINION
 Kenneth May
 A Texan In London

MY CREDENTIALS as an expert on the British economy go back to no less an authority than Roy Taylor.

Taylor is a cab driver in London and I studied under him for 20 minutes on the way back to our hotel the other night.

The language barrier got us off to a slow start. My Sweet Wife, in her best East Texas drawl, told the driver to take us to the Tower Hotel.

"Is that 'Tara' or 'Tow-er'?", he asked.

By the time the bilingual education and spelling lesson were completed, we were ready for our course in current events.

Taylor, like most Britishers with whom we talked, showed an amazing awareness of America.

A YOUNG FILIPINO waitress in a coffee shop perhaps exemplified the issue on which the by-election campaign may have turned.

Although inflation was the central issue, Conservative Party leader Margaret Thatcher early in the campaign suggested stopping most immigration into Britain.

A poll by the London Daily Mail found half of the respondents thinking immigration is one of the country's biggest problems. It ranked only behind inflation, strikes and unemployment, which is blamed on immigration to a big extent.

How the controversy affects the people may have been reflected in the way the Filipino waitress flared when a companion of ours told her she had a British accent.

"No, I don't," she snapped. "I have an American accent."

Presley is dead. The good news is that Glenn Miller just walked ashore at Dover.

LONDONERS RESPOND to friendliness with friendliness, we learned, quickly abandoning their reserve.

On an underground ride, for example, MSW and I would wonder aloud about where to make our transfer to Piccadilly Circus. No one would volunteer information.

Once asked, though, they would flash smiles and become especially helpful.

There was one gentleman with his head buried in a newspaper, as were those of many of the passengers.

"You people read a lot," MSW smiled.

"We try to," he replied, a trace of edginess quickly disappearing as he folded the paper and devoted his attention to the insistent Americans. He turned out to be quite friendly.

"I WATCHED 'WASHINGTON Behind closed doors' the other night," he said, "and must confess I had trouble figuring out who each of the characters was supposed to be.

"Of course, Ehrlichman, Haldeman—all those German names in the Nixon administration—were a bit much for me in the first place."

He also said he had watched part of the Nixon-Frost interviews but turned it off because he found it boring.

A London native, Taylor has driven a cab for 11 years and said he believes the British economy has been improving in the last few months. He expects "it'll be easier to make a living here this year than last."

That is what Prime Minister James Callaghan is hoping for. He had planned to call an election this summer, in fact, because of the improving economy.

However, his Labor Party candidate lost in an off-year by-election while we were there and the speculation is he'll wait a while before risking a "BUDDY HOLLY LIVES!" That was the graffiti on an underground (subway) wall in downtown London.

The Lubbock musical star of the 1950s has attracted a whole cult of followers among young Britishers. He is, in fact, about the biggest thing going in London nowadays.

"People of my age, in their late 20s, really dig Holly," said Tim Hansford, a passenger sales representative for the British Rail company.

To prove it, he broke into a couple of Holly's biggest hits, including "Peggy Sue." He was delighted when My Sweet Wife told him that Peggy Sue had been the daughter-in-law of a personal friend of ours and that Holly's parents live only a few blocks from us.

Hansford also told us the latest British good news-bad news joke: "The bad news is that Elvis

AT LEEDS CASTLE in Kent, where Medieval kings spent much of their time for 400 years, we enjoyed talking with the resident couple, the Remington-Holmeses.

After a tour of the castle, My Sweet Wife tried to get a peek into a building she mistakenly believed to be the aviary.

Suddenly, as she was jumping up and down to see through a window, Remington-Holmes was by her side.

"Would you like to go inside?", he asked.

Still thinking it was the aviary, MSW said yes. A half-dozen others of us tagged along. It turned out to be the Remington-Holmes living quarters and to be even more interesting than the public tour of the Castle itself.

That's why I take MSW along on these trips. She gets to know people where they live.

Holmes Alexander:

Meanwhile, Back At The Ranch

WASHINGTON—Not long after President John Kennedy's assassination in November, 1963, at Dallas, I was told by a Republican senator:

"If you want the scoop of the century, write a piece and predict that Lyndon Johnson will not run for re-election. I know this to be true."

Although it turned out untrue, and I did not write the story, it's now a fact-in-print that Johnson and his wife seriously discussed his retirement after the tragedy, rather than run under the Kennedy martyrhood.

How close Johnson came to deciding, I don't know, but it's now plain to the world that as a non-candidate in 1964, LBJ would have saved the face of Chief Justice Warren and his investigating Commission, which included a future President Gerald Ford.

Then Helms, meeting with Warren in a hideout at the Veterans Administration building, explained that the CIA was holding in solitary confinement an imported Russian defector.

If the defector was telling the truth about Oswald's implication with the KGB, the Soviet Union and the United States might be brought to a nuclear confrontation. But if the prisoner was boasting or lying it would back up the lone-slayer theory.

Warren was up against it: how important was the truth, did Warren want to know. Epstein writes:

"Warren looked up, visibly disturbed...The two men looked at each other for a long silence. Then, Warren, apparently tired and frayed...said he would take what Helms told him under advisement. The interview ended."

There is much more in the Epstein articles of Reader's Digest, a magazine to be commended for its stubborn search. But there is nothing here that does any credit to the honor of the United States, a quality we are seriously wanting.

Sylvia Porter:

Order Anything But Parakeet Meat Balls

DO YOU PRIDE yourself on your familiarity with exotic foods? Consider yourself well informed about the kitchens of the world that prepare unusual dishes? Then, try this quick quiz:

What restaurant will prepare a lacto-ovo vegetable meal?

Where can you get kosher filet of sole? Kosher curry?

Who serves chicken chasseur?

Where can you select from a 40-menu variation?

Did you guess a famous restaurant in Stockholm for the vegetarian meal? Wrong! You can request a lacto-ovo meal before you board Trans World Airlines.

A Delhi hideaway, perhaps, for the curry? No. Kosher curry is served on Air India and kosher filet of sole is available from American Airlines on request two weeks before your flight.

Chicken chasseur at an upper Eastside bistro in New York? Probably—but chicken chasseur also is available on special order from United Airlines as part of its Weight Watchers lunch.

And the menu with 40 variations? Scandinavian Airlines can produce 40 special request diets with advance notice.

A favorite breakfast on TWA is a kosher breakfast, consisting of cheese blintzes with cherry sauce or pancakes with blueberry sauce. American has four kosher menus for first class and coach that rotate every three months.

Sky Chef, a subsidiary of American Airlines, prepares meals for 33 other airlines as well. United has 19 kitchens—producing the bulk of its own meals. So does TWA.

Some special requests, though, simply can't be—or won't be—approved. A standout at TWA was a message teletyped from Los Angeles requesting advance preparation of small meat balls—for a parakeet. It was turned down.

So was a request from an economy-class Pan Am passenger who said his physician insisted his diet include a lot of caviar. Pan Am recommended fish.

A KEY TO SPECIAL request diets is advance notice. You can order most popular special meals by requesting them four hours in advance of flight time. Less popular meals can require 24 hours.

Passengers from the West Coast order more special diets in the low-calorie and vegetarian category than their Eastern counterparts, according to TWA.

And while the airlines are under no legal obligation to serve special foods, they seldom fail to follow through on a reasonable request.

Mercy Killing Brings Plea For Change In Law

LONDON (AP)—Jean Humphry knew she was dying of cancer. Dreading a slow, painful death in a hospital ward, she made a pact with her husband to help her commit suicide so she could die quietly at home.

On a sunny March morning in 1975, Jean knew the end was near. She said goodbye to her husband of more than 20 years, kissed him for the last time and drank a cup of coffee into which he had put a lethal drug. She was 42.

Derek Humphry, a reporter for the Sunday Times, told of his wife's death and his part in it this weekend on a television program. His book about it, "Jean's Way," was published Monday, and the Sunday Times gave an account of it Sunday, along with a plea for a change in the law on mercy killing.

Helping a person commit suicide is illegal under the 1961 Suicide Act, and the maximum punishment is 14 years in prison. But prosecutions are rare and judges are usually lenient.

Police in Wiltshire, where the Humphrys lived, said they learned of the case through the newspaper article and program and referred it to the director of public prosecutions. He is the special Crown prosecutor for non-routine cases. Humphry said today from his London home: "If the director decides to prosecute, I shall plead guilty and ask for the mercy of the court."

This was Humphry's story: His wife first discovered a lump on her left breast in 1973 and tests showed it to be malignant. After recovering from a mastectomy, the mother of three learned that her lymph glands were cancerous and would have to be removed. Then the cancer spread to her spine and doctors told her she had only a few months to live.

It was then that the couple made the pact to allow Mrs. Humphry to die at home with her husband by her side.

A doctor friend, whom Humphry did not name, provided a lethal mixture of sleeping pills and painkillers which could be easily administered.

His wife chose the moment of death, after she learned that the cancer had reached the top of her spine and was about to enter her brain.

"At five to one she said, 'Well, it's time you went and got me something to drink.' So I left the room and went and made a cup of coffee for each of us," Humphry recounted.

"I came back in and gave her a mug of coffee into which I had put the drug which would be quite lethal. We said goodbye to each other and kissed each other for the last time, and she just drank it."

"She passed into an immediate coma and died...."

"We were so close, we had this bond and I felt she'd suffered every pain, you know, every anguish, physical pain, that anybody could suffer."

Baroness Wootton, a campaigner for legal euthanasia in Britain, wrote in the Sunday Times: "Surely there must be a better way than this of dealing with the tragic situation in which the Humphrys, like so many other couples, found themselves."

She advocated allowing individuals to make a legally binding declaration authorizing the "merciful termination" of their lives rather than prolonged and sometimes painful life-sustaining treatments imposed by doctors and hospitals against their will.

A writer for the conservative Daily Express called Humphry's action "a sane, civilized act of mercy in an agonizing situation" but expressed concern that television was a "much too powerful and dangerous medium" to spread the idea of mercy killing.

DR. LAMB

Bulk Needed In Diet

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has diagnosed the pain my right side as "irritable bowel." He recommended eating All-Bran Cereal, which I did, and found this much too irritating. He then recommended a heaping tablespoon of Metamucil in water twice daily and this seems to be better for me.

What is an irritable bowel syndrome? What causes it? I am 49 years old and otherwise in good health.

Will it eventually clear up or is it something I'll always have now? How long would I continue with the Metamucil? Can I stop when the pain subsides? What can I do to prevent its recurrence? Will a special diet help?

About 10 months ago I was given an antibiotic to combat a throat infection and ended up with a case of colitis. It finally cleared up but is this the cause of my irritable bowel problem? If you have a pamphlet on irritable bowel can you send it to me?

DEAR READER — The colon has a middle layer of heavy muscles. These can contract and relax to propel the food residue along. These can go into spasm causing pain just like a muscle cramp in the leg causes pain.

The spasm results in trapped gas and irregular bowel movements characterized by intermittent constipation and sometimes diarrhea. The cause may be related to diet. The common thought is that many people do not have enough bulk in the diet and this affects the normal rhythmic contractions of the colon. That is why your doctor suggested bran to you and when that was to harsh for you put on Metamucil. The Metamucil absorbs water and provides a soft gel-like bulk to fill the colon and encourage normal rhythmic contractions.

Yes, you will need something the rest of your life and most people do. That something is enough bulk in the diet from cereals and fresh vegetables to adequately fill the colon for its normal function. If you can't adjust your diet to that you will need to take Metamucil or some similar bulk preparation. If you stop providing normal bulk for the colon your problems are likely to recur.

Yes, it is true that a bout of colitis may set the stage for irritable colon but that need not be the case. Poor dietary habits and poor bowel habits usually are a major part of the picture.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation as you requested. It will give you more details about how to train your bowels and follow a good living style to help you avoid your problems. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Exercise does help improve bowel function, too. A good daily walking program and some light calisthenics are often useful for many people. Coffee and tea may irritate the bowel and should be avoided. Even decaffeinated coffee contains some harsh elements that some people find irritating to the bowel. ## Parents Opposed To Son's Therapy

SCITUATE, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of 2-year-old Chad Green, who has leukemia, are going to court to fight the continuation of chemotherapy treatment for their son.

Jerry and Diane Green of Scituate, Mass., will return to Brockton's Plymouth County Probate Court March 22 for a hearing on the case. Judge James Lawton scheduled the session so he could hear arguments by the Green's attorney and a lawyer representing Massachusetts General Hospital.

The Greens oppose the treatment their son Chad is receiving under direction of Dr. John Truman at the Boston hospital. They contend a diet of organic foods would be better for Chad than the drugs and needles associated with chemotherapy.

"For my husband and me, quality of life is more important than quantity of life," Mrs. Green said Saturday. "We would rather see Chad have a short, wonderful life as himself than to have a life extended by poisonous drugs and needles."

Lawton awarded the Greens physical custody of their son during a court session on Friday, but he ruled that guardianship of the child — which he ordered Feb. 22 — would remain in effect.

"Since Feb. 22, when the guardian was appointed," Green said, "my wife and I have been put into the position where we must keep Chad on chemotherapy or Chad would be placed in a foster home, and we would face prosecution."

Truman prescribed chemotherapy treatment for Chad on an outpatient basis beginning last fall. The boy's parents stopped giving their son the pills in January and substituted their organic diet.

Alcoholism Hereditary

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Studies show sons born to alcoholic parents are four times more likely to become alcoholics, even if they are taken away from their parents and raised in a totally different environment.

"What the research indicates is that there is some hereditary contribution to the development of alcoholism," said Dr. Samuel B. Guze. "These men have inherited something in their genes which makes them vulnerable."

Guze is head of the Washington University department of psychiatry and vice chancellor for medical affairs. The university's alcoholism center was the first financed by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, and has been studying the hereditary aspects of the disease for more than a decade.

"We want to develop methods for being able to control the heredity," he said in an interview. "We know that genetic factors do not account for all that you see, so all the rest must be environment."

"The one thing we know for sure is that alcoholism runs in families; every study of every society shows this," Guze said. "We'd like to be able to predict who is going to become an alcoholic and who is not, and be able to tell you why."

Guze said isolating the genetic factor which causes alcoholism to be passed from generation to generation is not necessary for finding a cure for the problem.

"What we hope to do is to understand more thoroughly what happens to the brain. Ultimately we can fit these pieces together into a theory about why people drink excessively."

In searching for inherited links to the disease, the university's alcoholism center tries to separate heredity from environment by studying adopted children.

"If you study the children of alcoholics — where the children were adopted away very early in life and reared by non-relatives — the rate of alcoholism is four times greater for these children than a match group of adopted sons whose parents did not have a diagnosis of alcoholism."

"All studies have shown that the rate of alcoholism is four to six times more frequent in men than in women," he said. "And if you try to account for this, the studies indicate the difference is largely in the cultural attitude toward women's drinking."

Guze explained that heavy drinking in most societies is a characteristic of men. He said it may be that the cultural attitude toward drinking is a stronger influence than any hereditary factor.

"The thing that really protects women is that they just don't drink as heavily as men do," Guze said. "If women drank as heavily as men do, there presumably would be a lot more alcoholism among women."

"If you come from a family where other close relatives have had drinking problems, you are a young man and you're in a cultural group that encourages drinking, you've got a much higher risk than others of becoming an alcoholic," he said.

Mark Siegel's Departure Raises Loyalty Question

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson thought people should reason together and then agree with him. Anyone who quit his White House with a public challenge to his policies would have risked a Texas-size explosion.

Richard M. Nixon gave unquestioning obedience to the president a bad name — Watergate.

Gerald R. Ford's White House press secretary quit when the newly appointed president pardoned Nixon. J. F. TerHorst resigned "as a matter of conscience" because he disagreed with the pardon.

Now President Carter has lost a dissenting aide who went public with his complaints about the administration's Middle East arms policies. Carter's forbearance is just short of remarkable.

Mark A. Siegel resigned Thursday as deputy assistant to the president for policy analysis, a week after telling Hamilton Jordan that he would no longer serve as White House liaison to the American Jewish community, and two days after publicly disclosing his disenchantment.

He said he could no longer defend policies with which he disagreed, specifically the administration's proposed sale of warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia. He also said that he had been misled by the National Security Council on the weapons involved.

For a while, there seemed to be a chance that Siegel, 31, might quit only part of his job, dropping the liaison role but remaining on the White House staff.

It's difficult to see how any president could accept that precedent without risking chaos in his staff.

But the possibility that Siegel, a veteran of four years at the Democratic National Committee, might keep his White House position was discussed for a week before he resigned.

And he apparently won't be leaving right away. Siegel said he will stay to complete projects that will occupy him for at least several weeks.

Siegel said no one asked him to leave. And Carter said he understood and honored the decision.

"Mark Siegel is a fine young man and an excellent employee and he has done his job well in the White House, dealing with one of the most difficult issues which I have had to face as president," Carter said.

He said there were internal disagreements over Middle East policy. But the bottom line was this:

"Within the White House, when there is a continuing disagreement ... I make the final decision. That is what I was elected to do."

Siegel's departure is a double problem for Carter. For one thing, it dramatizes the discord over Middle East policy, just as the president meets again with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. And for another, Siegel has valuable ties to the Democratic establishment, contacts built over his years as executive director of the party organization.

His resignation raises again the difficult question of loyalty in and to the White House. As Carter said, the president has to make the decisions. But as the Nixon years showed, there must be limits to loyalty, for the president is not always right.

Then again, a quiet departure can serve principle as effectively as the kind of public break Siegel chose.

In Johnson's day, he probably would not have had time to resign. Even when the stakes were highest, the vice president of the United States couldn't bring himself to a mild dissent against LBJ policy in South Vietnam.

"I wanted to be loyal to the president," the late Hubert H. Humphrey mused as he recalled his unsuccessful campaign for the White House.

Long Range Enrollment

Hike Seen At Tech

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Enrollment at Texas Tech University will increase by 6.5 percent during the decade, 1977 to 1987, the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System predicts.

In figures released here following the board's meeting Friday in Nacogdoches, the board predicts the Lubbock campus will go from 22,356 students in the fall of 1977 to 23,732 in the fall of 1987.

Statewide, enrollments are predicted to increase by 15.36 per cent, going from 273,218 to 322,514 in the fall of 1977 to 1987.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Tuesday, March 14, the 73rd day of 1978 with 292 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

There is no morning star. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

German-American scientist Albert Einstein was born March 14, 1879.

On this day in history: In 1743, the first town meeting in America was held in Boston.

In 1812, the U.S. government authorized issue of the first war bonds. They were floated to buy military equipment for use against the British.

In 1947, military and naval bases in the Philippines were leased to the United States for 99 years.

In 1964, Jack Ruby was found guilty of murder in the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, assassin of President John F. Kennedy. Ruby was sentenced to death but the conviction was overturned, and he died while awaiting a new trial.

A thought for the day: Scientist Albert Einstein said, "The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and science."

"I never saw a man that loved children so."

Mosquito Program Reduces Disease

ATLANTA (AP) — Mosquito control efforts in the Caribbean have reduced the number of outbreaks of dengue fever in the United States, the Center for Disease Control reports.

In 1977, epidemics of the disease in the Caribbean resulted in more than 50 cases in this country.

The first dengue epidemic last year, reported in late 1976 in St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, peaked in January 1977. It ended abruptly in February after island-wide spraying with malathion, the center said. The disease is transmitted by the Aedes aegypti mosquito.

Academy Buys Skull Of Swedish Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Swedish Royal Academy of Science bought a skull believed to be that of the 18th century Swedish writer and theologian Emanuel Swedenborg at Sotheby's auction house for $2,925.

Presumably the skull will join the rest of Swedenborg's remains, which are in the cathedral at Uppsala, Sweden. The skull was sold by an unidentified Welsh collector. Swedenborg died in London in 1772, and his skull was stolen from his grave a few years later. The rest of the remains were sent to Sweden in 1908.

City Man Injured In Shooting At Local Nightspot

A 34-year-old Lubbock man was in serious condition in St. Mary's Hospital today following a shooting in front of a local club late Monday.

Charles Edward Coleman of 2005 64th St. told police he parked at a 50th Street club shortly before 9 p.m. and went inside for a few minutes. When he returned to his vehicle to lock the door, an unknown man reportedly grabbed the door and yanked it open.

According to Coleman, as he turned to look at the stranger, the man produced a .22-caliber blue-steel revolver. When the victim threw a pillow at the assailant, he was shot in the chest.

The suspect reportedly then left the scene, and Coleman drove himself to another club for help.

A weekend night on the town almost became a nightmare for a 21-year-old Lubbock woman who reportedly found herself threatened by a gunman after leaving a Lubbock club early Monday morning.

The young victim told Lubbock police she was at a club in the 2400-block of Main Street about 2:10 a.m. Monday with friends.

She left alone, though, and just after she entered her car to leave, a man walked up beside the vehicle, she said. Not knowing what he had in mind, she said she rolled down her window a few inches to hear what he was saying.

The man, a Mexican-American with frizzy, shoulder-length hair, opened the door instead, and ordered the woman to get into his vehicle. When she refused, he pulled a small-caliber pistol and repeated the order, she said.

At the sight of the gun, the woman told officers she was terrified and began screaming. Frightened by her cries, the man jumped into a small, red auto and drove off.

Investigating officers later arrested a 16-year-old Mexican-American youth for attempted aggravated kidnapping after spotting a similar auto on 4th Street about 30 minutes after the alleged incident.

Reports indicate a female companion with the youth gave officers a revolver she said she had been told to keep.

In other violent activity, a rash of shootings and stabbings stemming from pool hall brawls plagued police throughout the weekend.

Officers called to a 105 N. University Ave. bar about 10:25 p.m. Sunday found 32-year-old Manuel Reyna of 2511 Amherst Ave. shot several times, but not seriously injured. A 42-year-old Mexican-American man was reportedly responsible for the incident, Reyna told police.

In a separate incident, Alejandro Jimenez, 37, of 2913 Colgate St., told officers he was at a 1300 Ave. F pool hall about 10:30 p.m. Sunday when a man became irate about a game of dominoes and began shooting. One of the shots struck Jimenez in the right foot, he told officers. Officers were seeking an 18-25-year-old Mexican-American man in connection with the incident.

Five minutes later, several men reportedly jumped Dale Weir of Shallowater while he and a friend, Alvis Lemons of Shallowater, were at a Clovis Road club.

Weir and Lemons told officers they were shooting pool when the men came over to their table and began arguing with them. Weir and Lemons were stabbed with pool sticks several times, according to police reports, but neither was injured seriously.

Cabdriver Larry Anderson of 2725 E. 2nd Place told police he picked up a man for a trip to 1500 University Avenue Sunday, but when the man began to get out of the cab, he pulled a knife and tried to stab the driver. Anderson said the man fled without paying the $3.15 fare owed.

In recently reported property crimes, police arrested a 23-year-old Lubbock man on suspicion of breaking into a local pharmacy early today.

Officers, responding to an alarm at Prescription Laboratory at 4809 University Ave. shortly before 5 a.m., found a large plate-glass window broken. Following a brief search of the neighborhood police found the suspect ducking behind a parked car in the 2300-block of 48th Street.

Reports indicated nothing was taken during the break-in; however, the cost to replace the window was set at $300.

Richard Phillips of 5308 46th St. said whoever forced open a rear sliding glass door at his home Monday made a handsome haul valued at $2,570.

The complainant told police the goods stolen included mostly camera equipment as well as a microwave oven, rifle, shotgun and two televisions.

According to Addie M. Atkins of 2703-A Weber Drive, someone pried a front door there Monday and got away with a television, tape player and speakers, altogether valued at $444.

Julia Criswell of 1511-A Ave. M said a burglar cut a screen and broke through a window at her apartment Monday afternoon to get to assorted jewelry, a radio and some food.

The unhappy resident complained that it was the fourth time her home has been burglarized.

Paul Callaway told officers a cassette player and speakers, as well as 15 tapes and his wallet containing $20 was stolen from his pickup parked at his 5003 42nd St. home recently.

Reporting stolen television sets were Irma Contreras of 1826 E. Auburn St. and Michael Joseph Solon of 2311 14th St., near.

Tools and building materials proved tempting targets for Lubbock thieves, recent reports indicated.

A 4-wheel cotton trailer and $300 worth of lumber and other materials reportedly were stolen from a construction site at 5724 73rd St. sometime during the weekend, and 20 sheets of sheetrock, valued at $2.40 each, were taken from a site at 5501 Fordham St. Sunday.

A 12-foot section of galvanized culvert pipe, valued at $390, reportedly was hauled away from the 8200-block of Slide Road, workers said. Reports indicated the 60-inch diameter pipe was last seen Sunday.

Paul Wayne Throne said $200 worth of tools was stolen from a truck belonging to Groendyke Transport Lines at the 2284 E. 48th St. business site.

Robert Weir Morris told police someone made off with a $149 chain saw from his van parked at his 3631 59th St. home during the past two days.

Gonzalo Cartagena of Christ the King School told police someone broke into the facility between 10 a.m. Sunday and 8:30 a.m. Monday and took a $400 television monitor, a $400 television, a $250 guitar and several loose coins.

Burglars reportedly took a $470 camera from the 510 Ave. V home of Robert Wood Jr., between 8 p.m. Sunday and 1:45 a.m. Monday.

Julian Todd of 2706 E. Colgate St. told officers someone took a $189 .357-caliber revolver from his car parked outside his home between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Crew Credited With Aborting Hijacking

By JOHN MOSSMAN DENVER (AP) — The quick thinking of three crewmen who leaped from the cockpit of a United Airlines jet to the runway 15 feet below was credited with aborting a hijacking by a man who said he had terminal cancer and wanted to fly to Memphis or Cuba.

"We did not know that the crew was going to escape," said Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office. "They did it on their own. Their actions ended what could have been a tragedy. I think it's extremely commendable. We were prepared to refuel the plane and let it continue on."

Clay Thomas Jr., 27, of Mountain View, Calif., surrendered shortly after the crewmen jumped from the aircraft, leaving him alone in the plane with a red-and-white flight bag which he said contained a bomb.

The bag contained some books and papers and a lollipop. "There was no bomb," said Rosack.

The crewmen escaped about an hour after the plane, flying from San Francisco, landed here at Stapleton International Airport. Thomas had gone back to the passenger compartment, apparently to see if his demand that the plane be refueled was being met.

As agents converged on the Boeing 727 and lowered its rear stairway, Rosack used a car loudspeaker to call for Thomas to surrender.

Moments later, as it was growing dark, Thomas threw the bag off the plane and walked down the stairs with his hands over his head.

"I surrender," he was quoted as saying by Bob Stapp, an airport spokesman. Thomas was arraigned Monday night before U.S. Magistrate Royce Sickler for aircraft piracy, which carries a maximum 20-year prison term, and held under $250,000 bond.

When told of the amount of his bail, Thomas cried, "You'd think I was the killing, criminal type."

The curly-haired Thomas told Sickler he was an unemployed, disabled Army veteran and did not have enough money to hire an attorney.

Thomas described himself to Sickler as "a psychiatric case" and asked to see a psychiatrist. Sickler told him to take that up with his court-appointed attorney.

No mention of Thomas' alleged cancer was made during arraignment. When he commandeered the flight over San Francisco Bay the hijacker told the crew he suffered from terminal cancer and needed treatment.

"This whole thing was just some pathetic cry for help," said Thomas' father, Rex, of Lafayette, Calif. "He's not a mean kid. He's never been violent in his life."

Thomas said his son did not have cancer but was being treated for a nervous disorder. He suffered a breakdown several years ago while in the military and was being treated at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Martinez, Calif., with a powerful tranquilizer. He became dependent when the dosage recently was decreased, the father said.

He initially demanded to be flown to Memphis, Tenn., then changed his destination to Cuba.

The Seattle-bound jet was diverted to Oakland, Calif., where all 68 passengers and the four flight attendants were allowed to leave. A refueling stop was planned at Denver because the plane did not have enough to reach Memphis.

Pilot Al Grout, 54, and co-pilot Jack Bard, 40, broke bones in the jump from the cockpit. Flight engineer Louis Warfield, 34, was not injured. Grout had his leg placed in a cast and was released. Bard remained hospitalized overnight with a broken left leg.

The hijacking was part of a busy day at Stapleton Airport. Several hours earlier, a Delta jumbo jet flying from Atlanta to San Francisco made a forced landing at Denver because of a bomb threat. Passengers were evacuated via emergency chutes, but no bomb was found.

Anti-Busing Laws Ruled Constitutional

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has ruled that recent anti-busing legislation is constitutional even though it limits HEW's right to require busing for desegregating schools, it was learned today.

"Certainly nothing in the constitution requires that HEW be the final arbiter of whether schools or school districts have complied with constitutional requirements," said a 45-page legal opinion filed with a federal court in the District of Columbia.

The opinion was in response to suits filed by civil rights groups challenging the constitutionality of an amendment enacted last year to forbid spending Health, Education and Welfare Department money on busing for desegregation.

The opinion was filed without notice last month in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. It puts the Justice Department in opposition to major civil rights groups and indicates a schism within the administration on the volatile busing issue.

Because of the new legislative limitations, the opinion said, current and future cases where school districts refuse to undertake busing necessary to desegregate schools will be referred by HEW to the Justice Department "for appropriate enforcement in the courts."

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano had asked Congress to repeal the anti-busing language on the ground it "imposes too many restrictions on us." The amendment was co-authored by Sens. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., and Joseph Biden, D-Del.

The legislation has no effect on court-ordered busing. It was attached to a HEW appropriations bill and signed into law Dec. 9.

"If allowed to stand," Califano testified, "the amendment would continue to undercut our efforts to carry out a vigorous civil rights compliance program." HEW civil rights chief David Tattel has been quoted as saying, "We can't get an effective (desegregation) remedy without using some transportation."

But the Justice Department brief said, "If the issue before the court were whether this legislation is good policy, we could not defend it."

In shifting the burden of enforcing school desegregation requirements to the Justice Department when busing is necessary, however, the law violates no constitutional requirement, it said.

"Whatever the wisdom of Congress' preference for the Department of Justice-judicial route, Congress was clearly acting within its authority when it embodied that preference in the law," said the brief.

But it noted that if the same restraints were placed on the Justice Department as well, "a substantial constitutional question" would be raised.

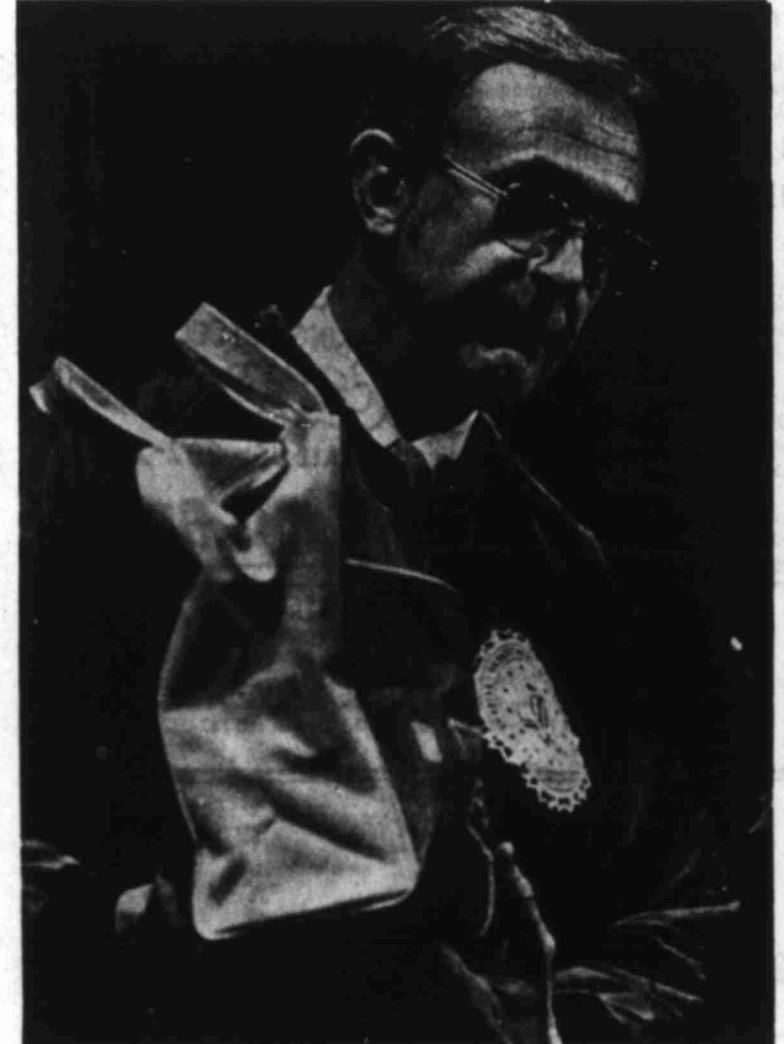

Civil rights groups contend HEW is allowing federal funds to flow illegally to 17 school systems, mostly in the North, because the only desegregation remedy is busing and it is blocked by the law from requiring busing.

Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids federal aid to schools and other programs that discriminate on the basis of race or national origin. HEW is charged with enforcing this provision.

"Congress has not altered the mandate of the 1964 Civil Rights Act ... only the means by which that mandate is carried out," the Justice Department brief said.

CALLS OFF AUDIENCE

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI called off his weekly general audience Wednesday because he has a cold, the Vatican announced. However, the announcement said the 80-year-old pontiff would stand in the window of his study and bless the crowd in St. Peter's Square.

HEW May Refer Cases To Justice Department

By CRAIG A. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW may refer a number of school desegregation cases to the Justice Department because it is forbidden by law to spend its own funds on school busing, court briefs say.

In a sworn affidavit the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's civil rights chief listed the status of desegregation proceedings involving 17 school systems and said some may be referred to the Justice Department for legal action.

The affidavit was filed with the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia in connection with suits by several civil rights groups challenging the constitutionality of legislation passed last year to limit HEW's right to spend department funds on busing for desegregation.

HEW has two principal means of requiring school desegregation under the 1964 Civil Rights Act: administrative proceedings that can lead to a cutoff of federal aid, or referring the school system to the Justice Department for legal proceedings.

Civil rights groups argue that 17 school districts are receiving federal funds illegally because HEW is unable to require the busing that would be necessary to desegregate the schools there.

HEW said three school districts named by the civil rights groups — Jones County, Miss.; Saginaw, Mich., and Vance County, N.C. — are not affected by the anti-busing law. Disputes remain between HEW and the first two systems, and the Vance County case has been settled.

In five other districts, an administrative law judge supported HEW findings of civil rights violations: Lima, Ohio; Kansas City, Mo.; Flint, Mich.; Marion County, Fla., and Marshall, Texas.

A Feb. 22 desegregation plan from Kansas City was accepted by HEW; preliminary steps have been taken to refer the other cases to the Justice Department.

HEW has made a preliminary determination also to refer cases involving Gulfport, Miss., and Maywood, Ill., schools to the Justice Department, and is considering whether to refer to Justice six other school districts: Anne Arundel, Md.; Frederick County, Md.; Madison County, Ga.; Springfield, Ohio; Joliet, Ill., and Fresno, Calif.

Some of these systems have taken voluntary steps to desegregate, HEW said, but "sufficient doubt as to the adequacy of these remedies" leaves them under consideration for referral.

The 17th district is Baltimore, where HEW's administrative proceeding was enjoined by a federal court. The affidavit said additional but unspecified action was being considered by HEW's lawyers.

Group Reveals Guest Speaker

The South Plains American Chemical Society will feature guest speaker Ernest L. Eliel, researcher and professor of chemistry at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, at 7:30 p.m. Monday in room 5 of the Chemistry Building at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Eliel's topic will be "Symmetry Considerations in Chemistry."

Eliel, originally of Germany, taught at the University of Illinois for 24 years and was chairman of the chemistry department. He currently is the William Rand Kenan Jr. Professor at the University of North Carolina.

Eliel has published more than 200 original research papers. He is active in the American Chemistry Society and is a member of the National Academy of Science.

The South Plains American Chemical Society will bring another guest speaker to the campus on April 12. Dr. William G. Fateley of the department of chemistry at Kansas State University, Manhattan, will speak on "Scientific Hoaxes, Art and Quantum Mechanics."

The sessions will be open to the public at no charge.

Weak Dollar Causes Dip In Market

NEW YORK (AP) — New weakness in the dollar helped push the stock market into a moderate decline today. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 Industrials was off 4.50 at 755.46. Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar declined sharply today against leading foreign currencies, hitting a new low against the Japanese yen. Analysts blamed the drop partly on disappointment over a new plan agreed on Monday by representatives of the United States and West Germany aimed at shoring up the dollar.

A number of currency traders said they had hoped for more drastic measures. Sony led the active list, off 1/4% in trading that included a 100,000-share block at a 49.6 percent gainers block at that price. The company reported a 49.6 percent quarterly earnings decline.

National Presto Industries tumbled 7 1/2% to 26 1/2. The company reported record earnings for 1977, but acknowledged that the figures fell short of some advance expectations on Wall Street. Kennecott Copper climbed 1 1/2% to 24 1/2. Curtiss-Wright Corp. said it had acquired nearly 10 percent of the company's stock.

STP, the American Stock Exchange volume leader, jumped 5 1/2% to 21. Esmark has agreed to acquire the company for $22.50 a share. The NYSE's composite index dropped 21 to 49.33, and the Amex market value index was off 44 at 125.21. Volume on the Big Board slowed to 9.08 million shares by noontime, against 12.01 million at the same point Monday.

Tech Opens Symposium On Energy

Americans will have to alter the structure of society and increase total productivity to meet the rising costs of alternative energy sources, according to Dr. Harry W. Parker, professor of chemical engineering at Texas Tech University. Parker gave the opening address for the "Energy Outlook '78" symposium which began at Texas Tech Monday afternoon and will continue through Wednesday.

Parker worked for 14 years in research for Phillips Petroleum Co. Most of his research was in oil shale and chemical utilization of mesquite. "Adjustments of the entire political, economic and social structures are needed to find solutions to the energy problem," he said. "Problems in dealing with energy solutions include the fact that inflation increases construction costs and those costs increase energy costs."

Low intensity and intermittent availability are also factors in the high costs of alternative energy sources such as solar, geothermal and wind power, according to Parker. The speaker said America is a high energy society, and that there are no "cheap" alternatives. "To use some of the energy alternatives available, there will be a decrease in the standard of living and increased social strife," Parker added.

Parker proposed increased productivity, conservation to a limit and public education as solutions. "There is no cheap way out, but for hard work in all fields will be needed if solutions to the energy problem," Parker concluded. Other speakers for Monday's activities included Dr. David K. Davies, professor and chairman of the Department of Geosciences at Tech, and U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger.

Keynote speaker at 7 p.m. today will be Dr. John McNetta, University of Texas chemical engineering professor. Dr. Stephen Ritter, Texas A&M engineering professor, will speak Wednesday night.

Deputies Draw Suspensions

DALLAS (UPI) — Three Dallas county deputy sheriffs have been suspended for three days without pay for discharging their weapons in county buildings. "It was clearly accidental," said Jail Director Bob Collins Monday. But he said he suspended the three men because of the potential hazard. No injuries and slight damages were reported as results of the three separate accidents.

The first mishap occurred two weeks ago at the eighth floor entrance to the jail in the Government Center. Collins said deputy James Finnegan was testing the trigger after cleaning his gun and didn't know there was still a bullet in it. The bullet hit a counter. In another incident last week, Collins said off-duty deputy Joe Bolt entered the county tax office in the Records Building when the gun he was carrying in a shoulder holster fell to the floor and discharged.

The slug ricocheted off the ceiling to the floor and back again to the ceiling, Collins said. Last weekend at the Woodlawn minimum-security prison, deputy Newell Curtis made the same mistake as Finnegan — testing what he believed was an empty gun after cleaning it. "The bullet struck a telephone. "They just need to be more aware," Collins said. "It's something that can happen to anyone."

Mrs. Mondale Visits Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Second lady Joan Mondale was in San Antonio today to view three works of art that have been chosen for display in the vice presidential home in Washington. Mrs. Mondale arrived here Monday evening and spent the night at a downtown hotel. Her schedule included a tour of the Southwest Craft Center and a coffee sponsored by the Bexar County Democratic Party.

She also planned to tour El Mercado, the old San Antonio marketplace. After lunch at a local Mexican food restaurant, the vice president's wife was to tour the San Jose Mission and later attend a reception and dinner at the Witte Museum. The three works of art to be displayed in the vice presidential home are on display at the Witte Museum.

All three works are sculptures and are part of the permanent collection of the San Antonio Museum Association. They are among 50 works which are being loaned to the vice presidential residence from public collections in the Southwest. Mrs. Mondale is to view the other art works Wednesday in Dallas.

She is an avid art patron and visited San Antonio last July to promote support for the arts. Hitchhikers Killed In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two men, both believed from Arkansas, were struck by a car and killed last Monday as they hitchhiked along a San Antonio expressway, police said. Officers said one of the men was decapitated after being dragged for more than 300 feet and the other man also was dismembered. The victims were tentatively identified from postmortems as Ronald L. Ryan and Jimmy L. Stokes, both 28, and both believed to be from Little Rock.

Lawsuits To Delay Benzene Standards

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department's tough new standard limiting exposure to benzene did not go into effect Monday, as had been scheduled.

Department officials said implementation of the standard had been delayed by suits filed by the Du Pont company and the American Petroleum Institute.

Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration issued the standard in February, citing evidence that exposure to benzene can cause cancer.

It would tighten the limits on the amount of benzene in the air at a work site.

The department says the rule, if put into effect, would affect some 600,000 workers across the country. About 11 billion pounds of benzene were produced in the United States last year for use in detergents, plastics, resins, disinfectants, pesticides, solvents and paint remover. It is also a component in motor fuels, averaging about 2 percent in gasoline.

Carter To Receive Urban Policy List

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP)—An administration official says President Carter will be given a list of proposals ranging from a strong state role to business incentives for consideration as possible parts of his promised national urban policy.

Yvonne Perry, deputy assistant secretary for urban policy at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, told the nation's county officials Monday the task force which has been working on the strategy will recommend "a variety of policies" to Carter.

The staff recommendations are expected to reach Carter on Wednesday with his announcement of the final policy coming about a week later.

"There are some 10 recommendations the president will be asked to select from," Mrs. Perry said, "and there are strategies which we will recommend for implementing those which he selects."

Mrs. Perry listed these as some of the proposals going to Carter:

- To develop a firm partnership with state governments to solve urban problems.
- To encourage and support efforts at neighborhood revitalization.
- To offer strong incentives for business and industry to remain, expand or locate in economically troubled cities or suburbs.
- To address the federal government's role in helping cities with their short term fiscal policies.
- To make the cities attractive places to live and work through a range of service improvements and improvement of amenities.
- To help urban areas manage growth more effectively.
- To help carry out measures to eliminate discrimination and racism from urban life.
- To expand businesses and job opportunities for the urban poor and minorities and "seek ways to increase the mobility of a growing number of men and women trapped in poverty and debt and jobs."

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said business initiatives were at the heart of her recommendations to Carter.

"I cannot predict what the president's final decision will be, but private-sector job creation has been prominent in our recommendations," Mrs. Kreps told the county leaders. "Commerce has pressed this concern at every stage."

Mrs. Kreps said if government incentives to spur urban recovery are to be effective in the long term, they must also stimulate the private sector.

"The reason for this is obvious: five out of six jobs in this country are in the private sector," Mrs. Kreps said. "So, while federal funds might kindle the economic fires, those fires can be sustained only if the private sector provides the fuel."

Reese AFB Commander Celebrates His Freedom

By GERRY BURTON

Avalanche-Journal Staff

All had the same gray, pallid color. All wore pajamas of a prisoner of war. All were ecstatic at being free.

Cheers filled the air at Clark Air Force Base as POWs, ambulatory and on stretchers, came home in 1973.

"God Bless You" they said over and over from buses taking them to the hospital through crowds of people waving American flags.

Barbara George watched every plane that February day in the Philippines.

She was there March 14, 1973, when Bobby R. Bagley was among those released, ending more than five years as a POW.

She was at Reese Air Force Base today when Col. Bagley, new commander of the 64th Air Base Group, celebrated his "Freedom Day" now five years in the past.

She had access to the hospital, so she knows more than most how POWs did their first celebrating with "yelling and screaming and laughing and crying."

All were over-exuberant, talking to everyone about anything and everything, getting used to moving and talking.

They couldn't get enough of looking at women and they spoke of children as something particularly precious, gleaming all details of a person's young with obvious inward thought to the years they had lost with their own.

They would approach Mrs. George, reach out shyly and touch her arm, then grin happily as though knowing now that they were free and she no dream.

"A kid was like gold to them," Mrs. George explained. "I saw one in an elevator with a child in a wheelchair. He touched its hair like it was precious."

Mrs. George was working with family services. Her 14-year-old daughter was a junior services volunteer working as a candy stripper in the hospital.

"She met her POW there, she had worn his bracelet. They had lunch and he asked her to wear a mini-skirt. They were all so happy just to see a female."

It was an exciting experience to go through and remains a highlight of her family services work.

Settlement Set In Lawsuit

CHICAGO (UPI)—A hospital has reached a $2 million settlement with a woman who was admitted for a routine gynecological operation but suffered irreversible brain damage during the administration of anesthesia.

The damages were awarded by Billings Hospital to Emma White, 29, in an out-of-court agreement approved Monday by Cook County Circuit Judge David Canel.

A suit filed on behalf of the bedridden Chicago woman sought $3 million.

Mrs. White, a former public school teacher, entered Billings on July 3, 1976, for a routine gynecological surgery procedure that required an anesthetic.

Mrs. White's attorney, John Phillips, said "improperly supervised" interns placed a tube designed to provide her with oxygen down the wrong passage in her throat. The oxygen entered her stomach rather than her lungs, cutting off the flow of oxygen to her brain.

The error was not noticed until a staff anesthesiologist entered the room and saw that Mrs. White "was turning blue" from lack of oxygen, Phillips said.

Since then, Mrs. White has been a patient at a rehabilitation institute where she is fed intravenously and requires 24-hour supervision at a cost of $128,000 a year.

The suit was filed by her husband, Ezelle White, 30, a driver for Allied Var. Lines, Inc. They have a daughter, Joy, 3.

Coal Not Used By Town In Midst Of Mining Area

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

HEAD OF GRASSY, Ky. (UPI) — Grandpa Thurston Stamper plays his dulcimer.

His old dog, Blackie, the horse and the mule meander down toward Grassy Creek, swollen by melting snow here in the hills called Appalachia by lowland folk, but the Knobs of Kentucky by the people of the hollows.

Six miles south, on U.S. Highway 64 between Charleston, W.Va., and Lexington, Ky. non-union coal trucks ignore the speed limit because they do not ignore the feelings of striking coal miners. This tri-state bunching of West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky is the land of coal.

Head of Grassy is an island of peace in coal's current sea of woe.

"Coal is not us," said Paul Stamper, 44, putting on his indoor shoes because his muddy outdoor boots would spoil his wife's quilted carpets.

"Time was, in the last century, when the young men would come out of the hollows" — hollows is Knobs of Kentucky talk for valleys — "and go for coal mining."

"They didn't have inspectors and those other safety measures in their days and very few of the young men ever came home to the hollows. Cave-ins, accidents buried them far from home."

"In the Knobs there's a saying: 'Don't go to work in the deep mines, or nothing good will happen to you.'"

Across the farmyard, in his house, Grandpa Stamper made his sweet dulcimer tones, seated next to the fat stove in the parlor. "We burn wood. Lots of oak and all that hickory here. No real need for coal," the 77-year old man said. "God and family keep us warm, along with that chopped wood."

His wife, Mrs. Ethel Grace Stamper, 72, laughed. She's a lowland woman, grew up in Mason County and walked up into the mountains at 19 to teach school around the bend at Raccoon and "stayed longer than I planned. Married Thurston."

"Coal is one of those things foreign to Head Of Grassy," she said.

Her husband said some 20th century works have made it up the creek. "Moon-shining has about died out, but I was out picking herbs and found a strange plant flowering in the ditch. Came home, checked my plant book and found it was marijuana," he said.

On the wall, above the sofa where Grandmother Stamper sat, hung a 200-year old deer rifle used by her husband's grandfather. She nodded toward the creek.

"Before President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal, when the WPA crews built us a dirt road, the only way a car could reach Head Of Grassy was to drive up the creek. Through the water. Grassy Creek usually's not too deep," she said.

The Stammers and the other 175 residents of their five-mile long community know that lowlanders judge them curious. "One of my boys, he was in the Air Force, and when he got his letters from home, all the others used to kid him about getting mail from a place called Head Of Grassy," she said.

The community got its name because it was at the head of Grassy Creek, where Grandpa Stamper opened the area's post office. He started it Nov. 19, 1878 — 99 years ago — by setting out an empty nail keg for collecting letters.

"One day, a Post Office inspector rode his horse in and began telling great-granddaddy about all the rules of how to sort mail and keep records and fill out forms and when he was done, great-granddaddy told him that if he didn't like it he could just take the nail keg and ride away," Paul Stamper said.

Grandpa's father and then his wife Ethel ran the post office. "My wife rolled up 70 years two years ago and so she had to retire and Paul took it over," Thurston Stamper said. He compared the dulcimer he made and played with one his father bought.

His wife wanted it understood that she was a retired postmaster, not postmistress. "You're always the master of your office, so you're not a mistress," she said.

The family talked. They discussed no lowland subject. The radio by Grandpa's workbench rises four feet from the floor and has buttons and knobs that date back to the days of Amos & Andy and the Cliquot Club Eskimos. "Yesterday's are more important," Paul's wife, Edna, 39, said.

Like her mother-in-law, she wore the fat-heeled sensible shoes of mountain women. On her parlor shelf stood photographs of her children — Paul 18, Denna Ann 15 and Dale 12.

Paul Stamper had finished lacing his shoes, but remained bent over, unmoving. He spoke. "Our oldest son, Eddie Allen, drowned when he was but 2. I was over at my father's, unloading some wood and I saw Eddie Allen walking up along the creek and then I couldn't see him.

"I asked mother if Eddie Allen was with her. No, she said. Then I saw my dogs, Curley and Flop and Trigger, looking down in the creek and there was Eddie Allen floating face down. I suppose he had slipped in."

Edna Stamper clutched her arms.

Grandmother Stamper, the former lowlander, decided to squash the silence. "Remember Aunt Liz? That old lady looked like a witch because she wanted to. Black skirts dragging on the ground, black waistcoat and high black hat and shawl. The children took her for a witch."

Grandpa Thurston Stamper nodded. He played his violin — stamped "Stratavarius 1716" — and talked. "Aunt Liz could hex potato bugs."

"She was hexing old Mr. Thomas' potato patch and Mr. Thomas' wife's sister snorted that it was all hokum, saying Aunt Liz couldn't kill no potato bugs."

"Week later, Mr. Thomas saw his potato beds all nice and growing and the sister's potato plants, which Aunt Liz had not hexed the bugs in, was all dead."

Grandpa Stamper laid aside his violin, plucked up his banjo and pressed the radio button switch on the news. A lowland voice announced coal strike news.

"Not in Head Of Grassy," he said and switched off the radio.

Brown Tells Of Need For Crop Marketing

By KETH HENLEY
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Farmers must take a more active role both politically and in the marketing of their crops, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown told members of the Lubbock Production Credit Association (PCA) here today.
"We've been talking about having a good crop, but we had better talk about having a good market," he asserted.
Brown addressed more than 600 stockholders and guests at the association's 44th annual meeting at the Memorial Civic Center.
"Nothing happens in agriculture unless someone buys," he said. "We've got to sell it. That's the name of the game."
The state's top farm official challenged the farmers and ranchers from nine South Plains counties represented by the association to be more involved in the political movement in the United States.
"If you don't, you're sunk," he predicted.
Brown suggested that perhaps now is the time for grain producers to form a "cartel" in order to assure a profit for their commodities.
"Maybe it's time for our Texas farmers to get with those in Kansas and other states and with our neighbors to the north (Canada) to put a profit on our goods," he said.
He pointed out that the United States and Canada are among the largest grain producing and exporting nations of the world.
Financially, the Lubbock PCA posted a record year for money loaned, reported Alton Strickland, president.
He said 1,377 applications were approved, representing a total of $106,620,000 in the 1977 fiscal year which ended in September.
"The $106 million loaned last year is about a 22 percent increase over the year," noted Strickland. "In 1976, there were 1,343 loans closed for $87,244,000."
Strickland said the Lubbock organization has extended loans totaling $816,516,139 over its 44-year history.
"We expect to loan some member the $1 billion sometime in 1979," he said. "Of the $816,516,139 loaned, close to 50 percent has been loaned in the last five years."
Average loan size jumped almost $12,000 in 1977 — from $64,800 the year before to $76,700, said Strickland.
"You can see that everything is skyrocketing," he said. "We're loaning more money and the average size of the loan is higher."
Strickland said the association's income in fiscal 1977 totaled $1,496,962, about $250,000 more than a year earlier.
Net income after expenses and taxes was $361,641, he said.

The Texas Plains chapter of the American Meteorological Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Community Room of First Federal Savings & Loan, 50th Street and Orlando Avenue. The program will include a new National Weather Service tornado spotter film and a presentation by Dr. Richard Peterson of Texas Tech University. Guests are welcome.

Brasfield Trial Still In Need Of Jurors

A-J Correspondent
WICHITA FALLS — The number of jurors selected to hear the capital murder case of 28-year-old Phillip Carey Brasfield of Slaton remained at 10 here this morning.
Attorneys were unable to agree on selection of any prospective jurors quizzed during the morning session.
Brasfield is charged with the abduction-slaying of six-year-old Johnny Turner Jr. of Lubbock last fall. The trial was moved here on change of venue from Lubbock.
Three new jurors were selected Monday as jury selection moved into its second week.

Evidence Given In Ware Trial

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Police and a pathologist described stomach-turning evidence today as they testified about the condition of Robert Atkinson's body, found Oct. 21, 1977, in an East Lubbock canyon.
Det. Sgt. Charles Park, who found the body among weeds off the 2100 block of Weber Drive near 19th Street, said it was in a badly decomposed state. Another officer, Det. Harris Clanton said the body was so deteriorated that it was difficult to tell the race of the dead man — whether he was a black or a Mexican-American.
Later, pathologist Dr. John P. Ray testified Atkinson had been shot three times, but said entrances of two bullets into the body could not be located because of the advanced state of decomposition.
When prosecutors passed pictures of Atkinson's body, lying in the weeds, to jurors, most glanced at them only quickly and passed them on, grimacing.
An 18-year-old man, Broderick Ware of 609 Ave. C., is charged with Atkinson's murder.
He is accused of shooting the 19-year-old, then "stomping" him and finally running over him with an automobile.
The discovery of Atkinson's body capped an 11-day search for the 4807 Cedar Ave. resident.
His car — soaked inside with blood and coated with gore outside — was found October 10, in an alley in the 500 block of Avenue E. The keys were in the ignition.
Dandelion seeds found covering parts of the auto led police to look for the man in wooded areas of the county.
However, their search proved fruitless until they were provided with information by an informant, officers testified today.
Clanton told the three-woman, nine-man jury that after locating the body, police went to Mackenzie Park to search for a gun the informant led them to believe was there.
They recovered a pearl-handled .22-caliber revolver in about 3 1/2 feet of water, he said.
He said it still contained five live bullets.
The pathologist who performed the autopsy on Atkinson said the young man died specifically of "hemorrhaging, external and internal" due to three gunshot wounds.
"He was shot three times — once in the face, one of the bullets lodged ... in the upper abdomen or lower chest severing the spinal cord, and the third was in the lower-middle abdomen," Ray said.
"Significant contributing factors (to the death) were very severe traumatic injuries to the left chest, back and leg."
Such injuries would be consistent with "stomping" and being run over by an automobile, he said it was his opinion.
A relative testified he identified the body as Atkinson's through tattoos — a cartoon character of a mouse on the upper right arm and a spider above the knee on the right leg.
Ware has given police a statement about events surrounding Atkinson's death. Dist. Judge Robert C. Wright Monday overruled a defense motion to suppress the statement, but said he will hear further evidence on it when prosecutors attempt to enter the document into evidence before the jury.

Alcoholism Plan Aired By SPAG

By FRANK COATS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Citizens of the 15-county area region served by a local council of governments spend up to $30 million annually on alcohol, according to an update of a regional alcoholism plan.
The Regional Alcoholism Plan for 1978, adopted this morning by the South Plains Association of Governments, further states that alcohol abuse and alcoholism cause problems for 60,000 people in the area, and cost more than $40,000 in health care, law enforcement, traffic accidents and social services each year.
The program adopted — which will cost about $1 million — outlines long range goals and the short range objectives of the program in some detail.
The long-term goals include having a regional network of treatment and rehabilitation services; available public information and education services; service training for people working in criminal justice, health or social welfare; established procedures for treatment and diversion of alcohol offenders; and working with employee assistance programs.
The short term goals include remedial education classes for persons convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol; establishing special needs studies for minorities, young persons, women and the elderly; and an extended living facility.
This last listed item is for people who need more rehabilitation than the current 90-day stay in a halfway house allows, Ed Paul, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Coordinator for SPAG, said.
The estimated cost for this facility is $50,000.
The $1 million in funding for the program will be divided into $350,000 in state funding, $100,000 in federal, and $550,000 in other funding.
Paul said the unidentified funding would come from various sources, such as a man working while in a halfway house and contributing part of his salary toward his treatment.
The association also gave favorable comment to second-year funding for Project Intercept, the alternative schooling plan for those students who previously would have been expelled or suspended.
The grant for the funding, which will come from the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee, reaches a total of $97,165, out of which Lubbock County will contribute $5,000 and the Lubbock Independent School District — which administers the program — will contribute $92,165.
Dorothy Miller, director of the Criminal Justice Committee of SPAG, reported Project Intercept as having an 80 percent success rate, with all but of 42 assigned students being returned to normal classes.
The board also delayed any discussion of the SPAG contract with the Texas Boys Ranch.
"Vocational Training and Remedial Education" was the title of a program funded by the Criminal Justice Division on SPAG's recommendation which is implemented at the Texas Boys Ranch.
The Criminal Justice Advisory Committee is currently monitoring the program because only 25 percent of the clients served are Texas Boys Ranch residents.
The other 75 percent are students from the Roosevelt Independent School District, which does not have a vocational program available.
The board also recognized the last attendance of Mayor Roy Bass, retiring Lubbock mayor.
Bass said by the time of the next meeting — April 11 — he will be "an elder statesman. I can pontificate on any subject."

Convention Set By State GOP

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Republican Convention will be held at the Dallas Convention Center on Sept. 8 and 9, state headquarters said today.
The decision was made at a statutory meeting of the state GOP committee here Monday attended by only four members of the 62-member committee.
State GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart said the committee also gave final approval to three referendum questions that will be on Republican primary ballots May 6. The three non-binding polls will concern legalization of horse race betting, a statewide presidential primary election, and a state constitutional amendment to limit the amount of taxes levied by state and local governments.
The committee also authorized each of the 31 senatorial districts to send the maximum number of delegates to the state convention which the law permits, one delegate for each 300 votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1974.
Those attending in addition to Barnhart were vice chairwoman Polly Sowell of McAllen and committee members Bob Rowland of Austin and Mary Ellen Cummins of Wichita Falls.

Plumbing Panel Decision Due

The Plumbing Board will decide Wednesday whether to recommend inclusion of a brand of plastic pipe in the city's list of acceptable piping.
The board, which will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Emergency Operation Center, will consider recommending to the city council that the brand be added to the approved list of materials that can be installed in residences here.
Building inspection administrator Cecil Turquette said the pipe brand was laid in several houses before being caught by the building inspectors. The houses subsequently were "red-tagged," which means they do not pass final city approval.
But, Turquette said, the pipes are not considered substandard. The particular kind used simply "is not on the approved list," he said, adding that until the matter is resolved by the board and city council the pipe cannot be used legally in Lubbock.
He said he does not foresee any problems with securing board approval.

Farmers Nearing U.S. Wheat Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wheat farmers have edged nearer the government's goal of getting 330 million bushels of their grain stored in a three year program to help boost market prices.
Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Monday that telephone surveys of USDA field offices showed that 208.4 million bushels of wheat were committed to the reserve as of March 10 — about two-thirds of the goal.
Under the program, grain will be stored for three years or until cash market prices go up enough to trigger its release. Wheat is now around $2.55 a bushel at the farm and will have to rise to $3.15 before the reserves can be released for sale.

Civic Center Set For Lions Meeting

The Lubbock Lions Club will hold the first of its regular noon luncheon meetings at the Civic Center beginning Wednesday, president Charles Lane has announced.
Members recently voted to move their meetings from KoKo Palace to the new Civic Center. Although this week's meeting will be held on Wednesday, Lane said subsequent sessions will be held at noon each Tuesday hereafter.
Art Cook, member of the Lubbock Lions Club and governor of District 2-T2, will speak at Wednesday's meeting, also dubbed Ladies Day.

Demo Denies Story Of Canal Vote Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is encountering new Senate dissatisfaction over the Panama Canal treaties, despite the passage of two amendments the White House had hoped would ensure the pact's approval.

And, with four previously uncommitted lawmakers declaring that they would not support the treaties without further changes, prospects that had seemed bright for the White House over the weekend dimmed.

The anti-treaty forces, needing 34 to block ratification, lacking from one to three. Georgia's two Democratic senators, Herman Talmadge and Sam Nunn, formally announced today their intention to vote for the treaties. Both had been listed among the undecided, but counted as likely supporters.

Talmadge emphatically denied a published report that his decision resulted from a White House agreement to withdraw its opposition to his $2.3 billion emergency farm bill.

"I didn't know they had changed their position," he told a news conference. "I didn't know whether they were opposed to it or favored it."

The New York Times said today that the White House, in a bid to obtain Talmadge's vote on the treaties, had decided to take no position on the farm bill.

Talmadge said a senior Agriculture Department economist had testified on the issue Monday and had not taken a position. But he said, "there were absolutely no negotiations on this issue" between himself and the Carter administration.

However, an administration source who declined to be named said Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland suggested to the White House that the administration soften its opposition to the Talmadge farm bill. The source quoted Bergland as saying, "Let's help Herman and do our work in the House."

The source said he did not know whether Bergland had discussed the matter with Talmadge. He indicated, however, that the administration intends to try to kill the bill in the House.

There was no immediate comment from White House officials.

Talmadge said that if he were president, "I would have not signed these treaties." But he said, "It is my belief that the only hope for keeping the Panama Canal open and operating securely in the years ahead is afforded by these treaties."

Nunn said he would vote for the treaties because they are "best for the long-term national security interest of the United States."

Not unexpectedly, Sen. Jack Danforth, R-Mo., also said today that he would vote to approve the agreements.

Two senators, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said Monday they would not vote for the pacts without a provision "binding" Panama to keep the canal open to U.S. ships in the event of a strike.

Another, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said he would oppose the pacts unless an amendment was added dealing with the "United States" right to keep its forces permanently in Panama.

Their announcements appeared to offset any improved prospects for the agreements resulting from a "reservation" put forth Friday to permit talks on an agreement ensuring the U.S. right to maintain bases in Panama after turning over the canal in the year 2000.

Close Encounter Between Earth, Asteroid Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Earth will have a close encounter with an asteroid Wednesday, as one of the rocky bodies passes within eight million miles.

The object, estimated to be between one-half mile and one mile in diameter, will be the second large asteroid to zip by the Earth this month, astronomers say.

A slightly larger chunk of space rock came within 12 million miles on March 8 as it headed for a swing around the sun.

Dr. Brian Marsden of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., said Monday that both objects were discovered in February by Dr. Hans-Emil Schuster of the European Southern Observatory in Chile.

"There was never a question of these two hitting the earth, but there is evidence these types of objects have struck in the past," Marsden said in an interview. "A big one like these probably hits every 1,000 years or so."

The closest known pass of such an object came in 1937, when the asteroid Hermes missed the Earth by only a half million miles.

Weather on Earth erodes evidence of past strikes, but a relatively recent impact is thought to have left Meteor Crater in Arizona, he said. This crater, three-quarters of a mile wide, is tens of thousands of years old.

Marsden said the first of the recently discovered objects, designated 1978 CA, has been classified as an Apollo asteroid. The 25 known bodies in this class are relatively large objects whose orbits pass through the Earth's orbit as they travel around the sun.

"But the second one, which we call 1978 DA, has an orbit close to that of an Apollo, but not quite," Marsden said.

Astronomers still are debating the nature of the Apollo objects. Many think they are the remains of dead comets, but others think they are denser rocks similar to thousands orbiting in a belt between Mars and Jupiter.

"It has been estimated that there are more than a thousand large Apollo objects, but we don't discover them until the Earth is in the right position and they come very near," Marsden said.

Neither of the new asteroids is big enough to see with the naked eye or with binoculars. But Marsden said amateurs having telescopes with 12-inch or larger lens may be able to spot 1978 DA after midnight in the south-southeast. The object will rise less than 50 degrees above the horizon and will be moving rapidly eastward.

Prison Riot Toll Mounts To 44

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Several hundred prisoners clashed with police at Argentina's largest prison today and authorities said 44 persons were killed and scores more injured. It was among the worst prison riots on record.

Villa Devoto prison, 10 miles from the center of Buenos Aires, after about 2½ hours. Both guards and inmates were reported among the casualties.

The federal penitentiary service said all the dead were nonpolitical prisoners killed by smoke inhalation or burns after rioters set fire to bedding, turning their cellblock into an inferno.

The announced death toll was one more than the 43 guards and inmates killed in rioting at New York's Attica prison in 1971.

The service said the inmates attacked guards during morning inspection, then blockaded the entrance to their cellblock with bedding when the attack failed. They then set fire to the bedding.

The Villa Devoto outbreak started at about 6:20 a.m. (7:20 a.m. CST). Area residents told reporters they heard shouting and explosions inside the high-walled facility and then saw smoke pour into the sky.

Police said they crushed the uprising at the prison, which houses male and female inmates.

The prison is meant for about 2,500 inmates, but local human rights groups claim the population has increased to between 4,000 and 5,000 because of political prisoners sent there since the military junta overthrew Isabel Peron in March 1976.

The human rights situation has caused the Carter administration to ban military aid to Argentina.

"There was pandemonium," said one resident who didn't want to be identified. "People were screaming inside and there were sounds like gunfire."

The independent news agency Noticias Argentinas said the rioting started in a wing housing nonpolitical prisoners. Federal police riot squads armed with automatic weapons and supported by helicopters cordoned off the prison.

Ambulances were seen going in and out of the prison, which houses male and female inmates.

Union Oil chairman Fred L. Hartley endorsed a provision in the Senate energy bill extending a $3 per barrel tax credit. He said such a measure offered the advantages of easy enforcement, rewarding success and making benefits available only after actual production.

Union Oil attempted shale oil production on its holdings in the Piceance Creek Basin in Grand Valley in the 1950s, but the work was halted because production costs were too high to compete with cheap and abundant gas and oil.

Federal energy czar James R. Schlesinger estimates shale oil production at present would cost about $19 per barrel.

Last fall, the federal government agreed to bear up to 70 percent of the cost of a $60.5 million, Occidental Oil Corp. project to convert shale underground into a form of crude oil which would then be pumped to the surface.

The Union Oil process, however, involves mining shale and heating it above ground, to about 900 degrees Fahrenheit to extract oil for boiler use in electricity generating plants.

Winds this morning generally swept the state at less than 10 mph, but gusts to above 30 mph in mountain passes of West Texas, the National Weather Service reported.

Monday's top reading was 69 degrees, a temperature so pleasant that west-southwesterly winds up to 25 mph scarcely seemed to matter. Forecasts for today called for winds ranging from 10-15 mph.

Lubbock's overnight low reading — like many others on the South Plains — reached the 30s. Most South Plains minimum temperatures reported by the National Weather Service during the 24-hour period ending at 8:45 a.m. today ranged from the 30 degree readings at Muleshoe Refuge and Silverton to 38 at Big Spring.

Hereford and Dimmitt reported 28 degrees, Floydada and Spur 29 and Muleshoe 26.

Sheriff Reveals New Document

The state alleges Mrs. Hamilton was killed during an attempted aggravated rape.

The trial, being conducted in the 99th District Courtroom here, was moved here on a change of venue.

In calling Blackmon as a witness, the defense was apparently trying to demonstrate to jurors that, although a confession by Hawkins has already been placed into evidence, investigators still feel they need additional information.

Storrs first hinted at recent questioning of the defendant while another defense witness, Amarillo Police Det. Bill Eaton, was on the stand.

"Is it or is it not common for a police officer to visit a defendant in jail at night for several hours in the middle of his trial?" Storrs asked.

Prosecutors immediately asked for a conference at the bench, and Storrs resumed the line of questioning when it broke up.

"Would you ever walk into a defendant's cell at night in the middle of his trial and talk to him for several hours without the knowledge of his attorneys?" Storrs continued.

"No, I have never done it," Eaton replied.

Hutchinson County Assistant Dist. Atty. Linda Walden asked Eaton if he would have done so if he had been asked to visit by a defendant, and Eaton said yes.

"Without the knowledge of his attorneys?" Storrs then asked.

"No," the detective answered.

The defense then called Blackmon. Busby asked the sheriff if he had spoken with Hawkins in jail Feb. 24-26 for four to six hours, March 5-6 and again for about three hours Sunday.

Blackmon indicated he specifically remembered the Sunday session and said he had spoken with Hawkins on several occasions.

"Sheriff, during some of these visits did you have a typed-up statement or confession you showed Sam?" Busby queried.

"Yes, you might call it a statement," Blackmon said.

Blackmon produced the five-page document and told Busby he thought he had shown it to Hawkins twice.

School Plan Defended

The problem with that statement is that the school board had not adopted a proposed plan until March 6, with amendments added only last Friday. And through the development period for the plan, school officials had been encouraging suggestions from the public.

Part of the conflict may depend on Woodward's use of the word "plan." School attorney Charles Cobb said that the information presented Feb. 16 represented "only the rudiments of the direction we were proposing to go. It wasn't a plan at all."

Added McKelvey, who attended the Amarillo meeting: "We didn't have a plan as such when we went up there. It was nothing like a final plan — only ideas and concepts."

"Some of the concepts we discussed have become parts of the plan. But it (the information presented Feb. 16) was nowhere near a final plan."

He said the meeting was held primarily for "clarification."

One thing that was discussed in Amarillo, McKelvey said, was "trying to get something done (on the plan) as early as possible." That is why Woodward set Monday to hear the board's final proposal, instead of waiting until after the original April 1 development date.

Waters was unable to attend the Amarillo Feb. 16 session for business reasons. Thus, he said, when Monday's session was set, Waters viewed it as a surprise.

In its statement today, the school system said:

"On Feb. 16, the attorneys for the Lubbock Independent School District and school administration presented to Judge Woodward and the Justice Department a preliminary draft of information relative to a possible desegregation plan. The concepts presented had been discussed by the board but not acted upon."

"This information pertained to the use of specific grades and possible closing of certain schools at the elementary level, the possible relocation of the proposed junior high school and the concept of a magnet school at the senior high school level."

"This information was given to Judge Woodward and the Justice Department pursuant to the court's request to be kept informed. The purpose was to determine whether or not these concepts were consistent with the court's thinking."

"The conference was held with the court, attorneys for both parties and representatives of the school board for the purpose of sharing and considering concepts and tools that might be used in implementing the court order. No action of the court was requested or received."

It was on Feb. 13, only three days before the Amarillo meeting, that the board issued a statement encouraging public input to be considered "before any plan is finalized."

Woodward has ordered the district to desegregate nine schools. The district's plan is still being studied by the judge.

Weapons Draw New Opponent

DENVER (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg, the former military analyst who released the Pentagon papers, has announced a nationwide campaign against nuclear weapons and urged Colorado residents to close the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant.

A nationwide demonstration has been scheduled for April 29 to demand an end to the manufacturing of nuclear weapons, especially the neutron bomb, in the United States, Ellsberg said Monday.

"This is a weapon to use against people who don't have nuclear weapons with which to respond," said Ellsberg. "These weapons must be stopped. This process must be stopped so humanity can survive."

The neutron bomb could produce twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear explosion.

About 25 spectators at the opening session of the trial were charged with a defense challenge.

Pale and slender on, Esmail is a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine group outlawed by the U.S. government.

If convicted, Esmail would be sentenced to life in prison.

Groups supporting Esmail are led by U.S. Congressmen Robert Kennedy and Edward Kennedy.

Among the supporters are U.S. Congressmen Ernest C. U.S. National Professors from Michigan, Robert Barr and Robert Kennedy.

The teachers' union is protesting the student and teacher trial.

Esmail and his wife, Antonia, are held in Israel's military prison. She is information for the trial was sentenced to 15 months in prison.

Esmail arrived in his city on Wednesday.

An Israeli official said Esmail's father until the trial.

Abuse Cited In Trial Of Student

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Michigan graduate student Sami Esmail's attorney charged at the start of his trial today that her client was physically abused and subjected to psychological pressure by Israeli authorities.

Attorney Felicia Langer told the three-judge panel that Esmail, 23, reported to the U.S. Embassy that after his arrest Dec. 22 at Tel Aviv's Ben-Gurion Airport, he was punched, spat upon, kept from sleeping and forced to stand in the cold dressed only in his underwear to make him confess.

The 23-year-old New Yorker of Palestinian descent has pleaded innocent to charges of membership in a Palestinian guerrilla group.

About 25 spectators packed into the small Tel Aviv district courtroom for the opening session which began with a defense challenge of Esmail's alleged confession.

Pale and slender after 12 weeks in prison, Esmail is charged with being a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a militant Palestinian group outlawed in Israel, and with receiving guerrilla training at a Popular Front camp in Libya in 1976.

If convicted, he could get 25 years in prison.

Groups supporting Esmail have sprung up in several U.S. cities. U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., and U.S. Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.Dak., have expressed concern to Israel that an American citizen is being prosecuted for something that is not illegal in the United States. Israel's tough anti-terror laws are designed to prevent trouble from militants who come here from abroad.

Among the spectators in court today were U.S. Consul James Kerr, Detroit lawyer Ernest Goodman representing the U.S. National Lawyers' Guild and two professors from the engineering department of Michigan State University, Robert Barr and Ruth Ann Osborn.

The teachers are to testify as character witnesses for Esmail who is a graduate student and teaching assistant in their department.

Esmail and Terry Fleener, 23, of San Antonio, are the only Americans being held in Israel on charges related to terrorism. Mrs. Esmail was convicted of gathering information for an Arab terrorist group, was sentenced to five years in prison and is now appealing.

Esmail arrived in Israel last December to see his dying father, a naturalized U.S. citizen who returned to Ramallah, in the occupied West Bank territory.

An Israeli police officer testified today that Esmail was not allowed to see his father until after he had signed a statement. Mrs. Langer claimed this was part of the "pressure and coercion" to make the young man confess.

Another trial session was scheduled for Wednesday.

Garcia Pledges Jobs Increase In Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — President-elect Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia has pledged to increase jobs and crack down on violence.

He won his four-year term in a runoff following widespread accusations of fraud in the March 5 nation-wide polling which gave none of the three candidates a clear majority.

"We propose to provide jobs for the greatest number of Guatemalans possible and we will combat in a drastic and permanent manner any type of violence... without any type of discrimination," Lucas Garcia, a moderate conservative due to replace President Kjell Eugenio Laugerud on July 1, told a rally of more than a thousand supporters Monday.

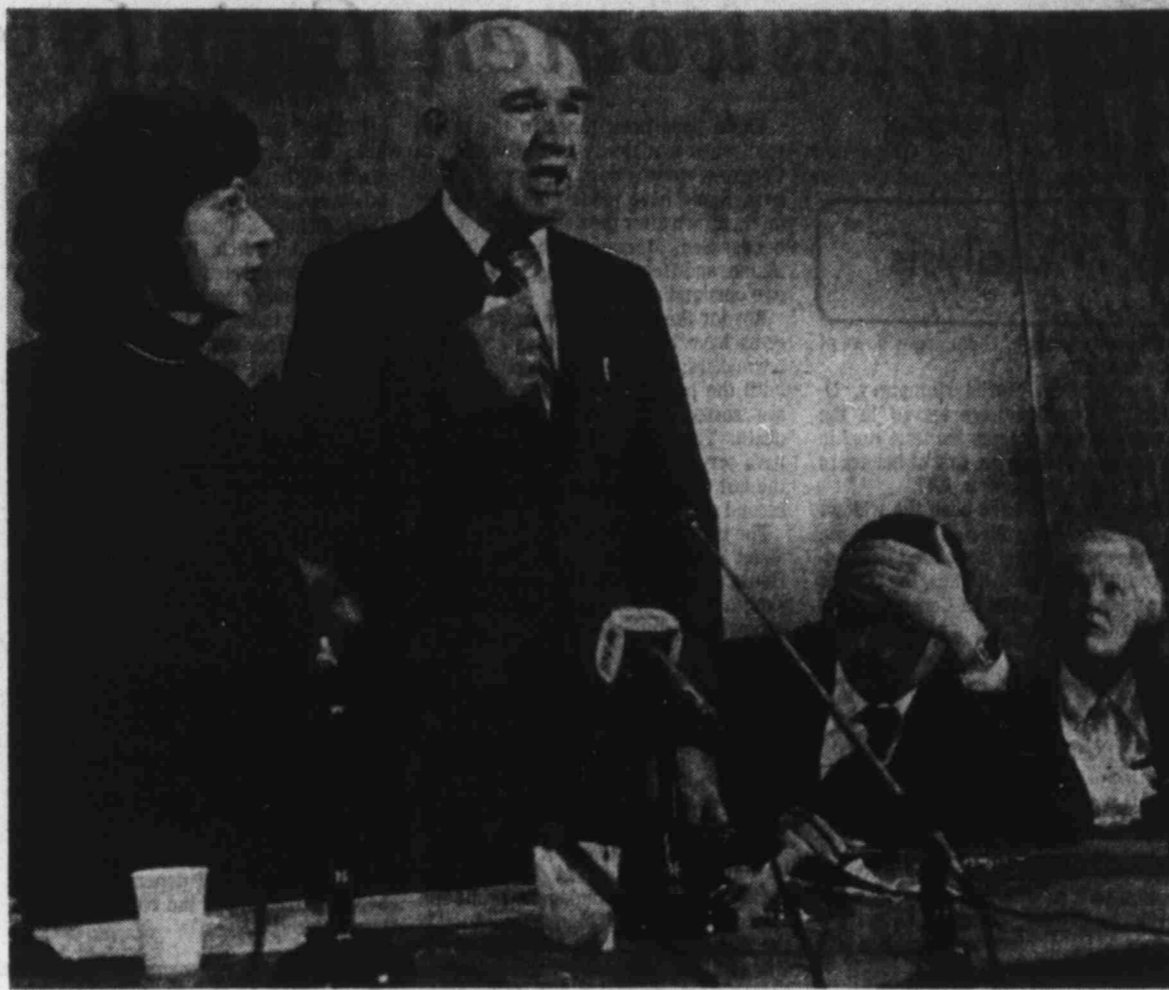

Lucas Garcia was confirmed 35-0 by the 61-seat unicameral legislature after legislators loyal to the two defeated candidates, a conservative and a Christian Democrat, walked out of the session in protest.

Lucas Garcia takes over an impoverished nation of six million persons, many illiterate and many without jobs.

The country has been plagued for a decade by violence between leftist guerrilla groups and their rightwing clandestine opponents the latter said to have official backing. Successive governments have been accused of human rights violations.

Born in a farming town in the northern Alta Verapaz province, Lucas Garcia is fluent in the native Kekchi Indian dialect. He relied heavily on this background in campaigning—bilingually in rural constituencies, where daily minimum wages are less than 50 cents and a third of the people speak little Spanish, as "the Indian Lucas."

Lucas Garcia was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1949 and became a general in 1973. His bearing is stiff and military. But he says he feels most at home in a straw peasant hat, the "petate."

DISSIDENT DENIES SOVIET CHARGE — Former Soviet Army Gen. Pyotr Grigorenko, second from left, denied Monday at a news conference in New York that he had undermined the prestige of the Soviet Union. # Russian Seeks Opportunity To Go Home

NEW YORK (AP) — General Pyotr Grigorenko envisions a court of law, in which he can protest his love for his country and win the right to return home. The Soviet dissident cannot face the fact that he has been severed from his friends, his passions and his homeland, perhaps forever.

"Who can deprive a person of his homeland, of his right to be buried in the land of his forefathers?" he said Monday.

"I do not recognize the current Soviet leadership of the USSR to have that right."

Grigorenko, 70, was in the United States recovering from a prostate operation last Friday when he heard the news: The Supreme Soviet had stripped him of his citizenship and banished him from that country.

Speaking through an interpreter, the former Red Army general said the charges — that he undermined the prestige of the Soviet Union — are "a falsehood. I can prove this is a falsehood."

"I demand the right for me to return to my homeland, in order that there, in an open court, I can prove my complete innocence," he said.

If he did return, Grigorenko most likely would not receive a warm welcome. He served in the army for 33 years, receiving seven medals and five decorations, among them the Order of Lenin, and later worked on collective farms and industry for 21 years.

But in the early 1960s, Grigorenko spoke out against the "personality cult" that had risen around Stalin. He became a well-known dissident, and befriended outcasts such as physicist Andrei Sakharov.

French Leftists Restore Unity To Seek Victory

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
PARIS (AP) — The Socialist-Communist alliance launched a desperate runoff campaign today after agreeing to support joint candidates.

It was a last-ditch effort to salvage victory in the final round of voting Sunday for the National Assembly and wrest power from the conservative-centrist majority that has been in office since 1958.

Restoration of leftist unity became necessary after the Socialists and Communists turned in a surprisingly weak performance in the first round Sunday, polling almost nine percentage points below the 54 percent predicted.

The agreement by Socialist party leader Francois Mitterrand, Communist Georges Marchais and Robert Fabre of the small Left Radicals was stitched together Monday night. It called for mutual withdrawals to ensure full support for the best-placed leftist candidates in the 423 races still to be decided in the runoff elections.

The three leaders urged all local party organizations to meet immediately to ensure "loyal cooperation" in backing the leading leftist in each district. There will be a new poster campaign naming the selected candidate, and all other leftist candidates were told to take part in the chosen man's campaign meetings.

The Communists abandoned demands they pressed for months, right up to Monday morning, for prior agreement on a radical revision of the joint leftist platform and a commitment on Communist cabinet posts.

They also agreed to shelve for the time being a discussion of major differences with the Socialists which split the alliance last September, notably over the extent of nationalization and def Only 68 seats were won in the first-round voting, and all but five went to government supporters. The Communists, Socialists and Left Radicals trailed the government forces in the popular vote also, 45.1 percent to 46.5 percent. Though 6.5 percent went to other leftist and ecologist candidates, the combined total was short of the 53 percent considered necessary because of gerrymandering to insure a majority in the assembly.

"We're beaten," Communist journalists conceded privately.

The first-round turnout was nearly 83 percent of the nation's 35.2 million voters, a record in national parliamentary balloting.

Jacques Chirac's conservative Gaullists led the voting with 6,451,454 votes, or 22.6 percent, followed closely by the Socialists with 6,450,134, or 22.5 percent. Then came President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's centrist Republicans with 6,122,080, or 21.5 percent, the Communists with 5,870,340, 20.5 percent; the Independents, 684,985, 2.4 percent; and the Left Radicals, 603,932, 2.1 percent.

Cyprus Issue Linked With Aid To Turkey

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Public denials aside, State Department officials say privately there is a link between Turkey's willingness to make concessions on Cyprus and United States' approval of a $1 billion military aid program for the Turks.

But, the officials claim, the link was forged by the Senate — not the Carter administration.

The need for the department's public denials arose last week when Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance answered a question about U.S.-Turkish relations posed by Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., during hearings by the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations.

"We are looking forward to see what will be put on the table between the two heads of government (of Greece and Turkey) very shortly with respect to Cyprus. And we will want to examine that in connection with our overall decision as to what we will be doing," Vance said.

Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit reacted angrily. He said the United States was trying to pressure Turkey on the Cyprus issue, which Turkey insists is unrelated to U.S.-Turkish defense relations. He hinted that Turkey, NATO's southeastern outpost, might look elsewhere for aid.

The reaction, said department sources who asked not to be identified, caught Vance by surprise.

So on Monday, department spokesman Hodding Carter III was instructed to tell reporters "there seems to have been an unfortunate misunderstanding." Carter said the administration's decision on the aid program would not be linked to the Cyprus question. That is the public stance which State Department officials contradict privately.

The issue is rooted in disruption of a U.S.-Turkish defense relationship in 1974 after a Greek-sponsored coup on Cyprus threatened to unite the island with Greece. The Turkish Cypriot minority denounced the move as unacceptable.

Some 40,000 Turkish troops invaded Cyprus, seizing about 40 percent of the island, embittering the Greeks who feel the Turks committed atrocities and expropriated property. Most of the troops remain and the island still is divided.

Congress, sensitive to the opinions of Greek Americans, reacted by prohibiting military grants to Turkey. The Turks, who responded by closing U.S. bases there, still are able to buy arms on credit.

Two years ago, the Ford administration signed a new defense agreement which would restore the bases and provide Turkey with $1 billion in arms grants and credits over five years. But both the Ford and Carter administrations have not pressed Congress for approval, fearing the agreement would be rejected.

Administration and Senate sources said Monday that there was little chance the agreement would be approved by the Senate unless Turkey makes some significant concessions on Cyprus.

In early April, the administration is expected to unveil its decision on whether to press for congressional approval this year. The pitch would be made to the House International Relations subcommittee on the Middle East. The group has indicated it favors resuming arms aid to Turkey.

Praised Policeman Admits To Thefts

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Folks in the tiny village of Inkberrow, near Stratford-Upon-Avon, had nothing but praise for their local policeman and the way he spent countless hours investigating crime.

But as it turned out, this was one official who played both cop and robber.

Williams, 39, was sentenced Monday to four years in jail after admitting to stealing more than $14,000 worth of jewelry, antiques, tableware and family heirlooms — mostly from the homes of wealthy people who had asked police to keep watch on their possessions while they were away on holiday.

In some of the cases, the judge said, it was Williams himself who conducted the police investigation into the theft.

Taxi Driver Sues To Keep Mustache

TOKYO, Japan (UPI) — A Japanese taxi driver has gone to court in a bid to keep both his job and his mustache.

Driver Yoshifusa Takeichi, in a suit filed Monday, charged that his employer, Eastern Airport Motors Co., had deprived him of lucrative assignments because he refused a company request to shave off his mustache.

The company contended that a driver with a mustache makes an "unpleasant impression" on the customer.

Congresswomen Gaining Power

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — There now are 19 women in Congress, and the news is that only three of them are widows of congressmen. Counting Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., 96 women have served in the House and Senate since Jeanette Rankin of Montana became the first of her sex to take a seat in Congress in 1917. Of the total, 38 have been the widows of men who were elected to Congress, and they were either appointed or elected to fill the vacancies. Thus, the current percentage of widows in Congress is far smaller than in the past.

Analysis

There have been times in the recent past when a majority of the women in Congress were widows of former members. Some have made political careers on their own after the deaths of their husbands: Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, and Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., are two outstanding examples. But for the most part, widows in Congress have been regarded as accidental lawmakers; often just caretakers of seats until the politics of the district or state are sorted out after an incumbent's death. Thirty-five of the women who have served in the House and Senate in the last 61 years did not come back for a second session. The big change appears to have started about 1960. Of the 18 women in the House and two in the Senate for the session that convened Jan. 3, 1961, 10 were widows of former members.

But that number included the redoubtable Mrs. Smith, who had long since shucked the image of riding anyone's coattails and Repr. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, Leonor Sullivan, D-Mo., and Margaret Stitt Church, R-Ill., who had already demonstrated several times that they could win elections on their own. None of those 20 women remain in Congress. The senior woman today is Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., who not only got to Congress in 1967 on her own but beat a former speaker, Joseph Martin, in the process. The widows now serving are Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Boggs. (Rep. Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn., whose husband won the nomination but died before the 1974 election that sent her to the House, is not counted in the group.) Lindy Boggs, with five years service, is the senior and is well on the way to erasing any remaining belief that widows serving in Congress are content merely to fill the seat and collect the salary. In a recent Redbook magazine survey of 107 members of Congress, Mrs. Boggs was second only to Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas, as the most effective woman legislator. Repr. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., followed in that rating. Margaret Chase Smith is the only woman to have served in both the House and Senate; one of only two to win election to the Senate on her own. But a look at the list of women now serving in the House makes it a good bet that she will not hold that distinction much longer.

Economist Defends Redlining

AUSTIN (AP) — Redlining, or the practice of not granting mortgage loans in certain neighborhoods, is a prudent banking practice, not discrimination, an economics professor testified recently. Lending institutions give more consideration to a home's age than any other factor in deciding whether to grant a loan, said Lewis Mandell, director of economics and finance at the University of Texas at San Antonio. "Older homes tend to deteriorate and are harder to turn over than newer institutions become as flexible in their residential loan rates as in commercial rates. "If a business goes to a commercial bank for a loan of say, $40,000, the rate that will be charged depends upon the bank's perception of the riskiness of the loan," he said. "In their minds (lending institutions), they are doing the job of protecting depositor money and making a profit for their shareholders," Mandell said, adding that redlining is legal in most of the United States. Discrimination based on a person's sex, marital status, race or national origin is illegal. Mandell proposed that banks and other neighborhoods are less likely to go downhill," he told a Senate subcommittee studying the practice of redlining.

Voting Set On Betting In Texas

WACO (AP) — The emotional issue of legalized horse race betting in Texas — the subject of three bitter past battles — goes to the starting gate again May 6 as a referendum in the Democratic and Republican primaries.

The Texas Democratic Executive Committee, presented with a petition signed by 96,000 supporters, gave its approval here Monday for the non-binding referendum on its party's ballot.

Texas Republicans have already authorized a betting referendum for their primary.

If results are favorable, supporters will present them to the 1979 Texas Legislature as ammunition in their fight for pari-mutuel wagering on horse races.

Racing supporters presented the executive committee's legal affairs subcommittee with the petition. By law a referendum has to be placed on the ballot if more than 74,000 thousand signatures are presented, according to Mrs. Susan Allen, subcommittee chairman.

The referendum will ask:

"Do you favor the proposition that the next session of the Texas Legislature should enact a law to permit the pari-mutuel wagering of horse races by local county option?"

State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest of Bryan said the executive committee's certification of the referendum cannot be considered a party endorsement because of the mandatory submission.

Tom Russell, executive secretary of the Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association, said legalized betting on horse racing over a five-year period would provide the state with $100 million in direct tax money and an additional $100 million in indirect taxes, such as on admissions, motels, and liquor.

This time, the horse race referendum includes a local option clause not included in three past referendums.

In 1974, the Democrats' referendum on legalized betting failed by two per cent, Russell said, but he predicted the 1978 issue will pass by 10 per cent.

Russell said a recent poll showed 67 percent of Texans interviewed favor pari-mutuel wagering on a local option basis.

A second non-binding referendum on whether the 1979 Legislature should authorize higher interest rates on loans under $5,000 was also certified, along with the state of statewide and multi-county candidates for the primary ballot.

Carrin Patman, a committee member from Ganado, presented the referendum on interest rates to try to curb so-called loan shark bills. Her proposal was accepted by voice vote without dissent.

Mrs. Patman opposes increased rates. She explained that a $300 loan now carries annual interest of about 32 percent, and a $1,000 loan, 19.7 per cent.

Since 1960, out-of-state lending companies have been after the legislature to increase loan rates, and the companies plan to do so in 1979.

In 1960, voters approved a constitutional amendment removing a 10 percent ceiling and allowing the legislature to set maximum interest rates on loans.

"If they (the lending companies) have such a good case for an increase, let the people decide on it," Mrs. Patman said. "This issue affects all voters of the state."

Young Farmers Plagued By Energy Costs

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Many young Texas farmers and ranchers are operating at a "very low profit margin" and will be driven out of business by any increases in agricultural energy costs, warns Texas A&M's dean of agriculture.

"Texas is extremely sensitive to energy costs," Harry Kunkel told the Texas House Subcommittee on Alternate Sources of Energy for Agriculture on Monday.

"In 1976, farmers spent $700 million for fuels. During that time net incomes were only $900 million. Many producers are operating at a very low profit margin," he added. "Any further effect in energy costs will surely put many of the young producers out of business."

The subcommittee is holding two days of hearings to review new developments in agricultural energy.

"In the past few years we saw the greatest infusion of youth into agriculture that we have ever seen," Kunkel told the committee. "Those caught in this problem of price and profit are likely to turn to other occupations because of disenchantment."

Disgruntled farmers have staged a nationwide farm strike, claiming low crop prices and increasing production costs are forcing them out of business.

Rep. Bill Keese of Somerville, chairman of the subcommittee, told the gathering of agricultural scientists that the subcommittee will make recommendations to the 1979 Texas Legislature.

"It's time we sought the information currently available and coordinate it with our existing knowledge. We hope to put agriculture at the forefront of the search," Keese said.

Kunkel said Texas produces 11 percent of the nation's cattle, 30-50 percent of the country's sorghum, 28-30 percent of the cotton, 20-22 percent of the rice and 5 percent of the wheat.

WAITING FOR DINNER — Detroit Zoo worker Sheryl Krause, 22, of Detroit, warmed a bottle of milk in the sink of the kitchen in the zoo hospital while a 1½-month camel waited for his dinner. The young camel was abandoned after its birth in the snow and cold. Now the young addition is being cared for in the zoo hospital until he can join the rest of the camel population on the outside. ## High Plains Water Board Approves Tax Rate Hike

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District board of directors Monday upped the district's tax rate from three cents per $100 property valuation to five cents — the mark it had been at until it was lowered last year.

The action changes the amount of taxes to be received between Aug. 31, 1978, and Dec. 31, 1978, from $101,246 to $168,744.

Taxes to be received by the district through August 31 will remain at the three-cent rate, totaling an expected $159,621.

District manager Wayne Wyatt, who recommended the tax increase, said a tax hike is essential for the district to efficiently serve its 15-county jurisdiction.

The two-cent tax raise was unanimously approved by the five-member board.

Wyatt estimated the rate change would cost a property owner with a $45,000 home just over $2 more per year — from $3.24 to $5.40.

He noted that the district lowered taxes last year from five cents to three cents because the agency had acquired a surplus in capital in excess of $200,000 and directors felt "it was not in the best interest of the taxpayers to maintain such a large surplus of money."

However, Wyatt said, if the tax rate had remained at three cents the district would have exhausted its funds, including the surplus, by June 1979, and would have had to borrow money until that November when tax receipts started coming in.

At the new rate, Wyatt said the surplus will still have dwindled to between $60-$70,000 by October.

In a 6-1 vote, the board also approved a six percent cost-of-living raise for the district's 12-man staff, which does not include a salary hike for Wyatt nor newly-hired public information director Dean Thompson.

Board member Ray Gerk of Hereford voted against the across-the-board salary raise.

The raise in wages for the 12 employees will cost the district an additional $9,726 in salaries this year. Employees had not received a raise since January 1977.

State Judge Delays Ruling On Motion

AMARILLO (AP) — State District Judge H. Bryan Poff says he'll rule on a change of venue motion after jury selection is completed in the felony theft trial of suspended Potter County Commissioner Bob Hicks.

Jury selection resumed today after no jurors were selected Monday. District Attorney Tom Curtis asked for the change of venue.

Hicks is charged with illegally using a county-owned air compressor, which was found on his property. He has been suspended from his job following his indictment last November.

Curtis, held in contempt of court by Poff last week after a heated exchange, claims Poff and publicity about the case create an environment favoring the defense.

Wyatt said. Merit raises were upcoming, he added.

The district's updated budget for this year calls for $420,130 in expenditures, compared to an estimated total of $350,000 in 1977.

The breakdown in expenses is: $223,000, staff salaries; $22,000 in consultant fees for former district manager Frank Ray-

Jury Trials Requested

BEEVILLE (AP) — Jury trials have been requested for most of 103 Iranian students arraigned Monday on charges of criminal trespass, according to a lawyer who represents 84 of the Bee County College students.

About 50 Iranian students enrolled at the Southeast Texas college demonstrated outside the county courthouse Monday while their fellow countrymen were arraigned.

The criminal trespass charges stemmed from arrests made Thursday after the Iranians refused to leave the college gymnasium. They had been called there by college President Grady Hogue, who complained that they were making unauthorized overseas telephone calls and writing bad checks.

The students then demanded to be allowed to form an Iranian club on campus and to conduct business in their native language. Hogue denied the request and the students refused to leave the building.

They were arrested by about 20 sheriff's deputies and state troopers.

All students had been released by Friday after a lawyer posted $28.50 bond for each student.

The students paraded and demonstrated briefly Friday at the college, renewing their demands for a club.

Hogue told the college's board of directors he would take steps to expell the students, and the board told him to do what was necessary to "get rid of the trouble-makers."

Bee County College has an enrollment of about 2,000, of which 250 are Iranians.

Locals Voice Lake Protest

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Disgruntled East Lubbock residents Thursday sent a sharp message to City Hall that they want the Yellowhouse Canyon Lake in their neighborhood completed soon.

About 100 residents met with planning director Jim Bertram and parks director John Alford to register strongly-worded complaints about what they perceive as city neglect of the southeast side 750-acre park project.

The two-hour meeting ended when the group agreed Bertram and Alford could do nothing but relay their message to the city council. But group spokesman Dr. Heenan Johnson said the concerned citizens will pressure the Parks Board to push for development of Lake 6, which threads through East Lubbock.

Dr. Johnson, who characterized the eastside residents as "abandoned, illegitimate children" of the city fathers, drew enthusiastic applause when he said, "These children over here are getting dissatisfied."

The meeting was organized to alert the city council to eastside residents' unanswered questions concerning development of the Canyon Lakes, which run from the city's northwest sector to the southeast, Dr. Johnson said.

"The city is in effect giving us sort of a runaround on this and they know it," he said. However, Dr. Johnson pledged, "We will take this further."

"We will go to the Parks Board," he promised. "If we get no satisfaction there, we will go to the city council. If we get no satisfaction there, we'll go to the federal government."

The angry residents' complaints centered on rumors circulated in their community that there is no money with which to complete development of Lake 6, which runs south from East Quirt Avenue. They also objected to having their end of the green-belt project completed after the other segments.

"Lake 6 has the distinction of being completed last—if ever it will be," Dr. Johnson said, quoting a saying that "in the West you get the best; in the East you get the least."

A slide presentation showing the contrast in development between brush-filled Lake 6 and Lake 1 in Northwest Lubbock aroused murmurs of complaint from the audience. In an accompanying oral explanation of the slide show, Dr. Johnson repeatedly asked Bertram and Alford when the eastside residents would have the same Canyon Lake park facilities present in other sectors.

Bertram and Alford responded by citing the progress already made in Lake 6 and explaining why the body of water has been drained.

The planning director explained that the lake must be allowed to dry in order for engineers to widen East Quirt Avenue to six lanes.

Concrete culverts must be added before the road expansion can begin over the lake area, he said. And, he added, the water must be drained and the lake bottom dry so that city crews can finish necessary earthwork.

The addition of concrete culverts and earthwork should be completed by the end of April, he said.

That is the target date for completion of road work around Lake 6, Bertram added. Installation of street lights along the roads will begin when funds are available in July, he said.

As for an East Lubbock resident's worry that Lake 6 will be polluted by runoff from the other, higher lakes, Bertram attempted to soothe it by saying that water in all the lakes is monitored weekly by the Water Resources Center at Texas Tech University.

Should unusual amounts of chemicals be discovered, he added, the source would be traced and pollution stopped.

Residents who complained of the wild grasses and scrubby trees lining Lake 6's banks while embankments on other lakes are cleared were answered by Alford. The parks director explained that a "natural state" will be encouraged for all lake banks.

No special grasses will be planted, he said, adding that "we would rather have (natural) grass so there would be no erosion." Lake 6 will be no exception, he said.

Alford explained the brush left on the bottom of Lake 6 was not removed in order to have adequate spawning grounds for fish.

"It's not in there because we didn't want to take it out," he said, adding that in other lakes the city purposely littered.

The American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation's charity of the year for 1978 is the Mental Health Association. There are those who might say that this is truly a most worthwhile cause for any organization that has to deal with bridge players! The Foundation enjoyed its finest year in 1977 when it contributed $375,000 to various causes.

If you would like to join in organized bridge's efforts to promote the betterment of its fellow man, play in tomorrow night's Continental Charity Game. Your local bridge club has details of the game nearest you.

Sitting East when this hand was dealt was the Foundation's treasurer, Lee Hazen of New York. At the time, he was a relative neophyte at the game, while the declarer was an experienced player whose skill Hazen respected. Hazen had to refuse a charitable act to thwart South's attempt to bring home his spade slam.

Against South's six spade contract West led the jack of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace of spades, noting the 3-0 split, and unblocked the ace of hearts. Then he led the ten of spades, and Hazen paused to take stock.

It seemed that declarer had made a silly play, conceding a trick to the jack of trumps when obviously there was no need to. Since declarer was not known as the soul of charity when it came to the play of the cards, why was he acting so munificently?

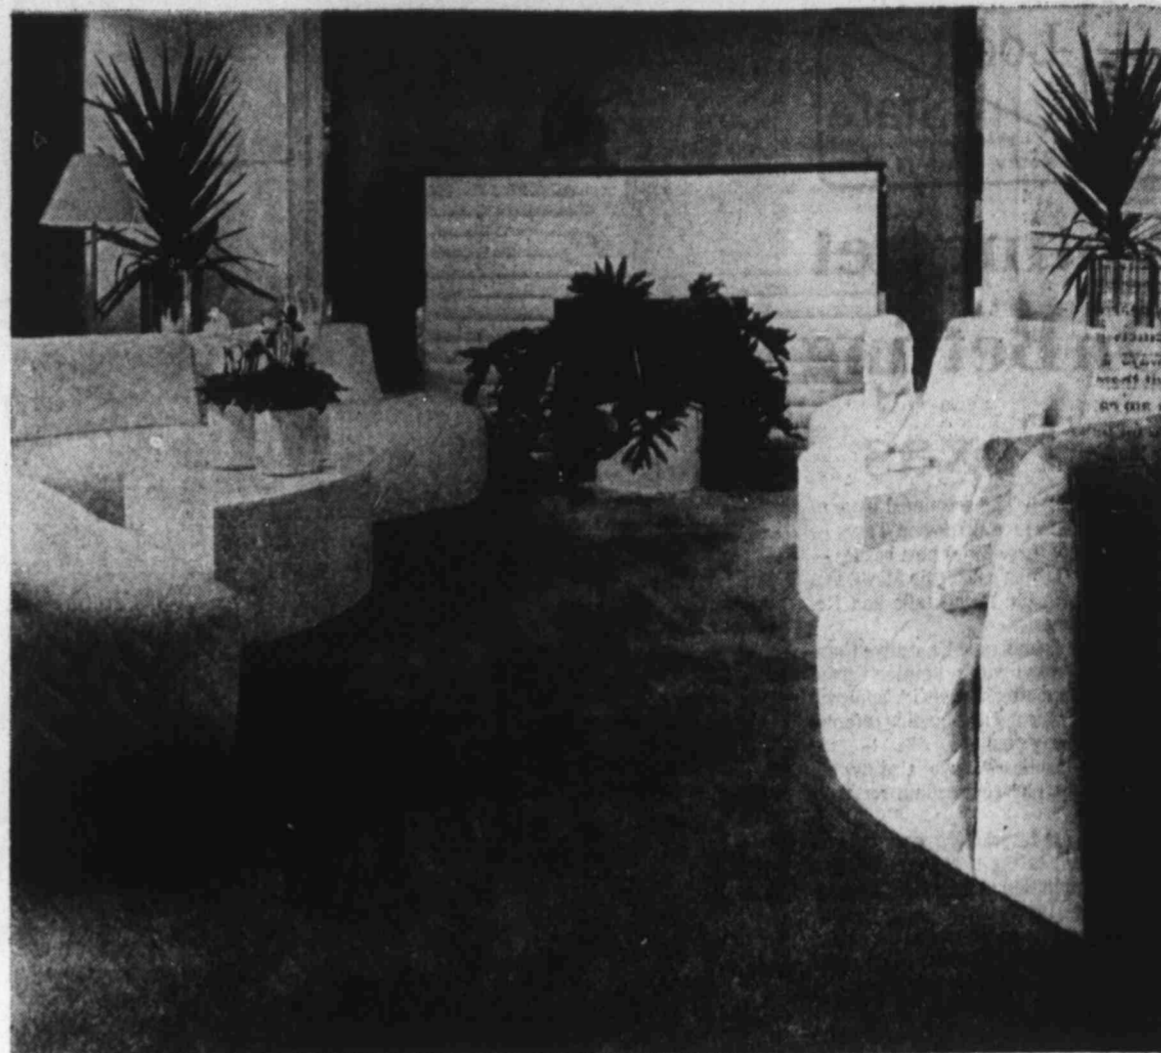

Hazen was not completely sure of the answer, but one thing he knew: If declarer was keen to lose a trump trick, it could not be right to oblige! So Hazen allowed declarer to win the trick.

Declarer followed with the ace and king of clubs, and again Hazen applied the same principle: If declarer left trumps in the game, it could not be right to ruff. He sluffed a diamond, and discarded again when declarer continued with the queen of clubs. Now there was no way for declarer to avoid losing two club tricks.

Observe if Hazen accepted declarer's largesse, the contract would have made. Declarer would have had an entry to the table to discard his losing clubs on the K-Q of hearts.

Casual-Look Fall Forecast

NEW YORK (UPI) — While most people are still in winter boots, the footwear industry is thinking of fall 1978.

The Footwear Council, a trade group, projects casual country looks for men, women and children. A spokeswoman says dress shoes, especially for women, will take a back seat to sporty, unisex styles.

The silhouettes to watch in women's dress shoes will be the "baby doll" look, worn with rolled down ankle socks, and closed back, open toe pumps, particularly in fabric for evening wear.

The council said the slip-on will remain the top dress shoe for men, and chocolate and wine, the leading fashion colors.

Loggins, was honored with a miscellaneous shower and tea Sunday in the home of Mrs. B.H. Piery. Mrs. Arthur Schmoekel and Mrs. William Hackivelder were cohostesses.

Special guests were Mrs. B.W. Loggins, mother of the future bridegroom and Mrs. John Loggins, grandmother of the future bridegroom.

The couple plans to be married April 8 in Christ the King Catholic Church.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have three adorable grandchildren ages 6, 8 and 9. I love them all dearly (and equally) but they are extremely jealous of each other, and there's always a fight for my attention when I visit them.

I am careful never to bring one a gift (even on birthdays) without bringing a gift for the other two. I am also very careful not to praise one too much in the presence of the others, and I never make comparisons.

However, the rivalry and jealousy persists. I'm sure other grannies have the same problem. Have you any suggestions?

TORN IN THREE

DEAR TORN: Sibling rivalry has been with us since Jacob and Esau (not to mention Cain and Abel), but you can minimize the competition by spending time with each child individually instead of trying to divide yourself into three parts, like Gaul.

DEAR ABBY: It's getting so I hate to go out with my husband. He's 32 and I'm 31, and all he wants to do is go to X-rated movies and look for girls to pick up on the way home. He says he gets real turned on thinking about being with me and another woman.

We never have actually picked up a girl, but after every movie we just drive around, wasting baby-sitter money, looking for one.

I hate to say no to him because that gets his "poor me" attitude going and then he is unbearable.

He is a college-educated man working in a respected field. Does he need help or do I?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: He definitely needs help. And if you go along with his kinky ideas, you do too.

...

DEAR ABBY: May I speak on behalf of a group of people who sometimes have difficult speaking for themselves? The group I'm speaking of (and for) is usually sensitive, shy, insecure and gentle. Their problem? They are QUIET. They simply find it difficult to speak up in a crowd or to make small talk.

I just returned from a class I joined as part of my continuing battle to overcome this problem. While in class, someone embarrassed me by saying, "Gee, you're quiet!" I am aware of that fact, and commenting on it publicly is just as rude as saying to someone, "Gee, you talk a lot!" Abby, please tell your readers that many quiet people have deeply rooted problems that they are trying hard to overcome. If people really want to help a quiet person, they should ask him a question, thus giving him a chance to talk. But never make an issue of his quietness.

SUFFERING (QUIETLY)

DEAR SUFFERING: Thanks for taking the time and trouble to speak out for the quiet ones.

...

CONFIDENTIAL TO TAMMY IN TORONTO: No matter what your past has been, you have a spotless future.

British Authors Write New Plant Books

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

It's hard to beat the British at gardening or writing about it.

Two of the best of the current crop of gardening books were published first in England: Huxley's House of Plants by Alyson and Anthony Huxley (Paddington Press $11.95) and Home Growing (St. Martin's Press $15.95).

Among the contributors to "Home Growing" is the managing director of one of Britain's oldest and most prestigious seedsmen. The book contains 800 color pictures and growing instructions for more than 100 common and unusual vegetables, fruits and herbs such as asparagus peas, Chinese gooseberries, Cape gooseberries and Good King Henry.

The English use Good King Henry leaves like spinach and call the stems poor man's asparagus. Square-podded asparagus peas are also said to taste like asparagus. They are eaten whole like Chinese snow peas. Chinese gooseberries are known in the United States as kiwi fruit. Cape gooseberries are tiny husk-to-matoes eaten raw as dessert, or used in preserves, chutney and curries.

The Huxley book covers decorating with plants and plant care. Advice about such things as terrariums, trellis room dividers and coping with air-conditioning and central heating is clear and helpful.

Among other new plant books, Sharon MacLachlan's Gardening With Kids (Rodale $7.95) is splendid, based on the author's experiences with her own two small children. The author understands the psychology as well as skills needed. Among other things, she writes about coping with the natural impatience of children and provides a few simple recipes for children to cook what they grow.

For neophytes, How to Grow Vegetables and Herbs from Seeds by Elvin McDonald (Mason-Charter $4.95) represents excellent value. The author is garden editor for one magazine, editorial director of another and author of more than 40 books about gardening indoors and out.

The Plant Book by Bill Henkin and Maria Vermiglio (Holt, Rinehart and Winston $11.95) is both beautiful and practical on the care, feeding, propagation, potting and pruning of indoor and outdoor plants. The authors even cite foot-candles needed for growing specific indoor plants under lights.

Windowill Ecology (Rodale $8.95) is a guide to indoor pest control with friendly insects. If you have to hold the bugs for a few days, author-entomologist William H. Jordan, Jr., advises storing them briefly in an icebox at 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, but removing them every day or so to warm up, exercise and eat.

Still with me? Biological pest control indoors is infinitely preferable to toxic products, and obligatory for food plants or plants or within the reach of children or pets who will taste anything they can put in their mouths.

Landscape You Can Eat (McKay $10.95) is an entertaining guide to tree fruits, berries and nuts. Author Allen A. Swenson is a syndicated gardening columnist, author of many gardening books and a regular on a nationally syndicated television show.

Gardens That Care for Themselves by Tam Mossman (Doubleday $12.95) are just what many of us would like. Mossman advises choosing plants for their ease of care as well as beauty. He deals only with ornamentals. Now if he can only accomplish the same thing with food plants...

The Green Thumb Garden Handbook by George (Doc) and Katy Abraham (Prentice-Hall $11.95) is particularly good for beginners. The authors are gardening columnists and radio and TV performers with hundreds of tips for growing edibles and ornamentals.

For armchair gardeners, The Power of Plants by Brendan Lehane (McGraw-Hill $39.95) is a gloriously illustrated encyclopedia about plants and the uses to which they have been put throughout history. Lesley Gordon covers much the same ground in Green Magic (Viking $14.95) but more briefly.

Florists often force plants to bloom out of season. In Flowers When You Want Them (Hawthorn $10.95), former greenhouse operator John James gives directions and estimates how long various blossoms can be expected to last.

Green House Grow How (Plants Alive Books, Seattle $19.95) is also by a professional, John H. Pierce, who has practiced and taught horticulture for more than 40 years. His fact-crammed reference book represents overkill for hobbyists but could save a lot of money and headaches for anyone planning to buy or build commercial facilities.

- 1 cup flour
  - 3/4 cup yellow cornmeal
  - 1/3 cup sugar
  - 1/4 tsp. salt
  - 1/2 tsp. baking soda
  - 1/3 cup shortening
  - 1 egg
  - 1 cup plain yogurt
  - 1/4 cup melted butter
- Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. In small bowl, beat egg lightly. Stir in yogurt and butter. With fork, add to dry mixture, stirring just until flour is moistened (batter will be lumpy). Spoon batter into greased 2 1/2 inch muffin cups or mini-muffin pans. Bake in 375 degree oven 18 to 20 minutes, or until browned (decrease baking time about 3 to 5 minutes for mini-muffins). Makes 1 dozen large or 2 dozen mini-muffins.

Foreign Textiles Hurting U.S. Industry

By JERRY MITCHELL

CRAMERTON, N.C. (UPI) — Imogene Phillips' 40-year career at Burlington Industries' Mayflower weaving plant, may end in a few weeks even though she had planned to work several more years before retiring.

She is a victim of the most serious problem affecting the country's textile industry — foreign imports.

Burlington, the nation's largest producer, warned in fullpage newspaper advertisements last spring that textile jobs were becoming "another endangered species" because of the flood of foreign imports.

The company closed seven plants last year, partly because of increased foreign competition. It announced in mid-January this year it would close the 750-employee Mayflower plant within the next two to three months because of diminished demand for lightweight apparel fabrics produced at the facility.

There had been signs since last fall that all was not well. But the announcement caught many employees by surprise.

"The market has been sluggish for several months," said Burlington spokesman Dick Byrd. "It was just a matter of deciding at what point we would have to bite the bullet and go ahead and phase it out."

Burlington has been the life blood of this community of 2,000. Its two plants provide 82 percent of the town's $188,000 in tax revenues.

"I believe this whole town will just about die," said Mrs. Phillipa. The seriousness of the import problem became evident a year ago when textile trade associations and labor unions — the bitterest of enemies over the years — joined to publish booklets detailing consequences of increased imports. "It is kind of awesome that we would get together with them (trade unions)," said James M. Donovan Jr. of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute (ATMI). "We are strange bedfellows united against a common problem."

Textile-apparel imports in 1976 totaled 5.1 billion square yards equivalent (SYE), an increase of 34 per cent over the previous year. ATMI estimated 1977 imports at 5.3 billion SYE.

Industry executives say that translates into 400,000 jobs if the imported products had been produced domestically.

The $4 billion in imports in 1977 resulted in a $3.2 billion textile trade deficit. It was a factor in the declining value of the dollar abroad. The leading exporters were Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan and Korea.

The majority of the nearly one million textile workers in the United States are concentrated in the two Carolinas and a downturn in the industry is reflected in the economic health of the region.

Some communities are just recovering from the 1974-75 recession that sent thousands of textile workers to the unemployment lines.

"This is an issue that poses the greatest potential danger to our industry if it isn't resolved equitably and soon," Burlington Chairman William A. Klopman said.

Agreement was reached in December on a four-year extension of the International Multifibers Arrangement limiting textile imports. But the domestic industry has taken a beating in recent years because the agreement limited growth in imports to 6 percent annually while the domestic market was growing at about 3 percent annually.

Charles Little, president of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association, said the industry is reluctant to invest large sums into capital projects until the import picture is clearer.

"We need to make massive capital expenditures for new equipment and facilities, but this is not economically feasible or prudent as long as we have growing imports from low-wage countries," Little said.

Some Mayflower employees have had to transfer four times during their careers because of plant closings. Ray Wiggins, 37, who has worked at the plant for 16 years, said he will now look for a job outside the industry.

"I'm not going back into textiles if I can avoid it," he said. "The way it is with imports, I don't think there is much of a future in textiles. As young as I am, I ought to be able to get into something else."

Food Plan Requirements Listed

The following information was prepared by Mildred Patterson, County Extension Agent and Billie Cowling, Extension Agent, Expanded Nutrition Program for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, A&M University.

In celebrating the sixth National Nutrition Month for the American Dietetic Association the Nutribird says "Eat a balanced diet every day."

To balance out meals, start with these minimum servings of food items from the four essential food groups everyday:

— Two or more 2 to 3 ounce servings of any meat or a meat alternate such as dried beans or peas, fish, chicken, eggs or peanut butter.

— Two servings or more of milk or milk products for adults; three servings or more for children and four servings or more for teenagers and pregnant women or women nursing a baby.

— Four servings of fruits and vegetables with at least one deep green or yellow and one high in vitamin C.

— Four servings of enriched or whole grain breads and cereals.

To round out meals, add more servings from the four food groups or other foods to meet your need for energy and for meals that satisfy.

The Daily Food Guide presenting the four food groups has been developed by nutrition committees of government agencies and others to help people select the best foods to meet recommended nutritional levels in order to maintain good health and strong bodies.

This Daily Food Guide provides a foundation for a day's meals and includes food choices which permit flexibility for seasonal, regional and budgetary considerations.

The protein, mineral and vitamin needs are substantially met by this Daily Food Plan; however, the calorie levels are approximately sufficient for the basic metabolism requirements for an adult. Therefore, the size of the portion of food eaten will obviously need to be modified for preschool and school children and for teenagers and persons in other walks of life according to their amount of activity and exercise each day; as well as to provide the correct amounts of the various nutrients according to the time period of life the person is experiencing.

In order to fully meet the energy needs, additional foods may be selected from more servings of foods from the Daily Food Guide; sweets and fats may be added to cause the meals to be more interesting and taste better. However, sweets and fats should be eaten only in amounts needed to take care of energy demands according to the exercise and activities of the individual.

Surgical Scrub Time Reduced

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Just how clean is clean?

Research done in a hospital here on surgical scrub techniques proved there was no significant difference between the conventional 10-minute scrub and a scrub of only five minutes to degerm hands.

The study was conducted in the interest of time saving and cost efficiency by the departments of Laboratories and Surgery at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center.

Two hundred surgeons, scrub nurses and operating room technicians scrubbed by standard techniques, using sterile, individually packaged, disposable scrub brushes impregnated with antiseptic solution. They scoured hands and arms 10 minutes as hospital procedure requires.

A second group of 200 followed the same routine but scrubbed only five minutes.

Skin cultures were then taken from the hands of all those in each group so that the remaining microorganisms could be counted.

The upshot: the 10-minute ritual has been laid to rest. Physicians preparing for surgery at LJI scrub five minutes, with sterility insured.

CBS Family Breaks Up

By JAY SHARBUTT
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On Sunday, the famed family of CBS' "All in the Family" is breaking up. Archie and Edith Bunker's daughter, Gloria, and her husband, Mike, are leaving home, ending part of an era.

The Stivics and their young son are moving to California. Mike, the house liberal in the working-class hostel of America's best-known bigot, has accepted a university's offer to teach.

In reality, Rob Reiner (Mike) has a new ABC series afoot, and so does Sally Struthers (Gloria), she for CBS.

It means the Bunkers, played by Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton, will return next fall without them, facing a ninth season in what some ways have dubbed "Part of the Family."

This Sunday's show, No. 183 in Norman Lear's hit series, was taped two Fridays ago in an atmosphere akin to a wake, the good kind. It was marked by laughter, sadness and one-take professionalism.

Lear, who is leaving TV, possibly for good, personally greeted the audience of nearly 300 souls who braved a driving rainstorm that night for the farewell taping in Stage Four at station KTTV here.

Most were show-biz folks, friends of the cast and staff. They and Lear howled when the production crew, usually a casually dressed lot, went on stage clad in tuxedos. It was their own "Family" salute.

Lear briefly discussed the series. He also read a letter from House Majority Whip John Brademas of Indiana, who praised the show and asked if Archie and Edith's chairs could go to the Smithsonian.

The sad-faced producer grinned, said sure, the chairs would be donated. Then he introduced the cast regulars, starting with Miss Struthers, "a glorious comedienne and actress."

She got a standing ovation. Lear raised his hands in mock dismay and said, "Oh, you can't do that every time. Save it." His order was ignored as Reiner, Miss Stapleton and O'Connor appeared.

At 8:37 p.m., after a false start, taping began.

Lear eased into a crowded control booth backstage, sat next to Brigit Jensen-Drake, a pleasant, white-haired woman who has worked on his "Family" ever since CBS introduced them on Jan. 12, 1971.

Alternately beaming and peering at the bank of TV monitors before him, Lear said little, lost in his own thoughts. After each scene, he went on stage, chatted a bit, then returned.

You wouldn't have guessed the last of the original "Family" was being recorded. The booth atmosphere was loose, relaxed. That is, until the show's closing scene of Archie and Edith.

The kids gone, they sat in their living room, Archie fighting tears, Edith softly weeping. They said nothing. The scene on the monitors slowly faded to black. The work was over at 9:13 p.m.

It was quiet in the booth and on stage. Then, a few sniffles were heard, then increasing applause. Lear leaped up, shook hands all around, and ran on stage, hugging each member of the cast.

Pictures were taken, speeches made, a silver platter presented to director Paul Bogart. People seemed reluctant to leave for the post-show bash at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

A rendition of "Auld Lang Syne" seemed imminent, likewise tears.

 By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Know when to turn off the sales pitch tomorrow and start doing a little horse-trading. If you don't you'll lose instead of profiting.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Once you make up your mind to do something, do it quickly. There should be no time tomorrow for wavering or procrastination.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Consider carefully before cooperating with anyone in a venture tomorrow. Lend your name or your skills only to those you know to be worthy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In social events tomorrow, you should hobnob with those who can help, rather than hinder you. You have a choice here. Use it wisely.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have a responsibility to be honest and candid with your loved ones, but exercise restraint with others who are only transients in your life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Cleverness has its place, but don't try to outmaneuver others in seeking to promote yourself tomorrow. Too much guile could easily boomerang.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Let your conscience be your guide in guarding your worldly goods tomorrow. Don't stoop to measures you would condemn in others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Avoid jousting with windmills in things you have no voice in to begin with. Tomorrow you can better further your own ends by accepting your role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your intentions may be honorable, but don't expect everyone to have the same attitude. Try to pay your fair share. Hope others follow suit.

Critic Finds Irish Play Universal
 By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — For an Irish play to be about a family is not unusual. What is unusual about "Da," which opened this weekend at the off-Broadway Hudson Guild Theater, is that it is far better — and more universal — than most.

In most Irish plays the family could only be Irish. There are feelings in "Da" that anyone in the audience can share.

The Hugh Leonard play is well acted by its eight-member cast and draws laughter and tears. Its wit is bright and unexpected; the play is more often deeply moving than merely sentimental.

The situation is that of a playwright named Charlie, 42, handsome, well-dressed, assured, acted by Brian Murray. Returning to his boyhood home from his father's funeral, he cannot get his parents, especially his father, out of his thoughts.

So his father, played by Barnard Hughes, appears and talks to him. And so do his late mother, Sylvia O'Brien; his friend, Paul Rudd; his employer, Lester Rawlins; and himself at 18, Richard Seer. Sometimes they act out Charlie's memories. Sometimes they comment, moving between past and present in a seamless flow.

Da, the father and central character, is optimistic, self-contented, not a deep thinker and given to remarks like, "If my heart hadn't given out night before last, I'd be alive today."

Charlie is exasperated by his Da, knowing his limitations. He is unable to understand how such a simple man should be so interesting and have such a grip on his mind that he cannot quit thinking about him.

Leonard's play manages also to plant his perennial Da in the minds of the audience.

Fourth Network Called Unlikely Threat

By The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Despite talk of a possible "fourth network," it's unlikely one would threaten CBS, NBC or ABC for years. And it would need much programming flexibility to catch on with stations.

So says A. R. Van Cantfort, the new president of the National Association of Television Program Executives, a major industry group of 1,030 station executives, producers and program syndicators.

"I don't say it couldn't happen," he said of a fourth network. "But at this time, I don't see any producer, organization, group or system that could be a serious threat to the existing three networks."

ers as the prelude to creation of a fourth network.

But Van Cantfort notes "there's big difference between 'Operation Prime Time' once every quarter and providing network services of 12 to 15 hours a day, seven days a week. There's a big gulf."

He was asked if a fourth network could take hold if enough stations feel the network wares they get are too weak too consistently.

"Well, they (a fourth network) are going to need an awful lot of flexibility," he replied.

By this, he said, stations fed programs by such a network must be able to put the shows anywhere in their local program schedules that they think will help meet or beat the competition.

"That's going to be one of the selling points for a new service," he said. "If it comes in an says, 'You've got to take this show on Friday night,' or whenever, it may not fit your needs."

"And you'll say, 'I'll pass on it.'"

He cited another obstacle: sponsors of a fourth-network show may want it aired nationally on a given night, causing a conflict with stations that prefer to show it on a different evening.

There'll be a rise in first-run, non-net-

City To Host Premedical Convention

For the first time, Lubbock will serve as the host city for the national convention of the premedical students' honor society, Thursday through Saturday.

Alpha Epsilon Delta selected Lubbock as the site for its 22nd biennial convention to honor the 40th anniversary of its Texas Gamma chapter at Texas Tech University. Delegates and faculty advisors from 32 chapters representing 12 states are expected to attend the meeting at the Texas Tech University Center.

Numerous general and business sessions are planned all three days, and speakers are scheduled to discuss topics relating to present and future aspects of medical education and the medical profession.

Keynote speaker for the gathering will be Kermit B. Knudson, M.D., associate dean of the College of Medicine at Texas A&M University and director of medical education at Scott and White Hospital in Temple. Dr. Knudson's address will begin at 2 p.m., Thursday in the UC Coronado Room.

A 40th anniversary luncheon at noon, Friday, in the UC Ballroom is scheduled to honor the Texas Gamma chapter at TTU.

Luncheon guest speakers include four Texas Gamma alumni from various Texas cities. They are Clarence S. Mast, M.D., interim associate dean, associate clinical professor and associate chairman of obstetrics and gynecology, Texas Tech University School of Medicine Regional Academic Health Center at Amarillo; J.M. Rankin, M.D., president, Lubbock-Crosby-Garza County Medical Society; Katherine Lynn Rodgers, M.D., chief of staff of Santa Rosa Hospital, San Antonio, and the first woman to hold that position; and Dwayne Fuller, M.D., Dallas ophthalmologist.

Final guest speaker at 1 p.m. Saturday will be Richard A. Lockwood, M.D., vice president for Health Sciences Center, Texas Tech University.

Ranger's Suit Settled With Movie Maker

AUSTIN (AP) — A tentative settlement has been reached in a $1,025,000 invasion of privacy suit filed by Texas Ranger Ramiro Martinez against Metro Golden Mayer Inc. and the National Broadcasting Co., the Austin American-Statesman said today.

Martinez was one of two Austin police officers who stormed the University of Texas tower and killed sniper Charles Whitman Aug. 1, 1966. The suit was filed in federal court in Laredo after NBC aired a made-for-television movie called "The Deadly Tower."

The American-Statesman quoted Martinez' lawyer, Donato Ramos of Laredo, as saying the negotiated settlement will be discussed Wednesday with U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Jr. in Laredo.

Martinez now is a Texas Ranger stationed in New Braunfels.

Originally filed as a breach of contract suit it was later amended as an invasion of privacy suit.

"He (Martinez) had an oral contract with MGM that they could use his name and he would assist with information only if the movie was based on fact, not fiction," Ramos said. "But his private life was disclosed and that was unauthorized."

Martinez told the American-Statesman after seeing the film that he thought it was "a bunch of bull."

Jet Engine Mechanics Share More Than Same Occupation

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

There is no communication gap at all if Sr. Airman Gary Rush wants to talk shop at home.

Mrs. Rush, who also answers to the name of Sr. Airman Marcie Booth, can toss back all the technical jargon he can dish out.

Like Rush, she is a jet engine mechanic with the 64th Maintenance Squadron at Reese Air Force Base.

She works with the T-37 "Tweet" engine and the "plooshes," small air carts which start engines for the T-38 Talon. His job is testing engines after they have been reinstalled in aircraft after maintenance.

"It saves a lot of paper work," he says of her continued use of her maiden name.

"It's me," the pretty blond adds, smiling shyly at her husband, resembling the avid women's libber not one whit.

"Some libbers go too far," she said, carefully closing the door on further discussion. She likes the name with which she was born and continued to use it for career purposes.

They met at Chanute AFB, Ill., where training weather dropped to 20 degrees below zero and protective clothing made the boy-girl differentiation a bit difficult.

However, he, from California, and she, from New York, were engaged when assigned to Reese. Three women made it through that particular training session at Chanute.

Their next assignment will be under the spouse segment of Air Force regulations. Both have orders for Luke AFB, Ariz., as their next assignment.

"They do not know what type of engine awaits them at Luke AFB. Both the F-4 Phantom and the F-15 Eagle are based there.

At Reese, she works on engines pulled from the craft.

"They have a pretty good idea what is wrong when they come in," she said. Her troubleshooting comes with the "plooshes" brought in "with no idea what went wrong."

The air carts, she explained, have to fire up and get going good, then the pilot can go through his own maneuvers in the cockpit and start his engines.

Troubleshooting is a big part of Rush's job. To qualify he had to undergo simulator training with a pilot controlling what malfunction occurs for him to identify.

Sitting in the cockpit on the flight line, he has to identify malfunctions before a check pilot takes the aircraft skyward to put it through its paces and return the craft to usable inventory on the base.

Reese was the second time around for Airman Booth whose two younger sisters were born here during her father's stint with the Air Force.

Now a commercial pilot, her father moved the family home from Germany back to New England "so it would look better on the record" after she decided to try the Air Force.

Rush, an Air Force brat, also decided to give the Air Force a trial before looking elsewhere.

SEC Reports Violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Dallas electronics company violated securities laws by not reporting $1.4 million in payments to a colonel at the South Korean embassy, the Securities and Exchange Commission says.

The SEC said in a complaint Monday that the violations, between August 1973 through December 1976, were by E-Systems Inc. and three of its vice presidents — William R. Harter, Robert H. Mitchell and Robert N. Smith.

Smith, a retired Air Force lieutenant general now living in the Philippines, was chief of staff of U.S. forces and chief of staff of the United Nations command in South Korea from May 1969 until October 1973.

The SEC does not allege that Smith engaged in improper actions while he was in the military.

The defendants had no immediate comment. They had agreed to a U.S. District Court order barring them from securities law violations. They did not admit or deny the complaint at that time.

The SEC said the defendants failed to disclose the payoff to a foreign official in reports filed with the SEC.

The complaint says Col. Lee Kyoo Hwan of South Korea arranged to get the U.S. Army to designate E-Systems as the only source of components for military radios the Koreans wanted to buy.

E-Systems got $34.5 million in revenue, the SEC said, with about $29.7 million coming from U.S. loans to Korea, another $2.6 million from grants to Korea and the rest from a Korean company.

Lee transferred $10,000 in $100 bills to defendant Smith at an E-Systems party, the complaint said. It did not say what the money was used for.

Britain Retracts Fare Opposition

LONDON (UPI) — New low-cost air fares between London and eight major U.S. cities will take effect March 18 following the withdrawal of British government opposition, airline officials said today.

New stand-by and budget fares will be sold between London and Boston, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles and San Francisco as well as New York.

Cheap fares to New York have been available since September when Freddie Laker's Skytrain forced British Airways, Pan American and TWA to introduce competitive prices. But the British government had opposed extending the cheaper fares to other U.S. cities.

The British position was challenged by President Carter's "open skies" policy which encouraged low fares for the benefit of the traveler.

The disagreement came to a head March 1 when Braniff was refused permission to start its service between Dallas-Fort Worth and London. The British government would not accept Braniff's proposed low fare and the high fare was not acceptable to the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board.

But airline officials said today that British government negotiators had withdrawn their objections to extending the cheap fares to other U.S. cities.

Examples of the proposed fares are Boston-London $143, Washington-London $162, Philadelphia or Chicago-London $151, Detroit-London $169, Los Angeles or San Francisco-London $227 and Dallas-Fort Worth-London approximately $180.

Fares in the opposite direction will be about $20 less because of the disparity between the dollar and the pound. All fares will be about $20 higher in the peak summer months.

The prices cover two kinds of ticket — stand-by and budget.

For a stand-by fare the passenger can only buy the ticket on the day of the flight and only when space is available.

The budget fare must be booked three weeks before the date of departure and the passenger can only specify the week of travel. The airline tells the passenger the specific day of the week he can fly 10 days in advance.

British Airways had asked the British government to oppose the low fares because the airline believed more time was needed to evaluate them, a British Airways spokesman said.

U.S. airlines believe the low fares will generate new business and not undercut existing business.

Even lower fares are possible on some routes. British Caledonian and Laker Thursday will challenge each other for the "spare" British airline route from London to Los Angeles, to be allotted by the British government.

Laker is bidding to extend his Skytrain service to the West Coast while British Caledonian has countered with a $158 stand-by fare.

Some Agencies Not Spending Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has a new economic problem: some agencies aren't spending enough.

By injecting less money into the economy, the government is dampening economic growth and frustrating employment goals, the Office of Management and Budget said Monday.

The reduced spending means the budget deficit in the financial year ending Sept. 30 will be $9 billion less than the $61.8 billion originally estimated. The unspent funds include about $1.5 billion for defense, and $1.6 billion for income security programs — Medicare, school lunches, Social Security and food stamps.

The OMB promised to study the problem for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 and forward the results to Congress.

Lake Protest

the bottom to build spawning groyneplaces.

Of the approximately $8.9 million spent to date on the lakes project, Alford said, 35 percent of the money has been spent or committed to Lake 6. That percentage is the highest in the fund breakdown, he added.

To Dr. Johnson's charge that the city dragged its feet in completing the project, Bertram answered that the city had to operate in stages delineated by the federal government, which helped finance the project.

And because the Canyon Lakes encompasses so much area, Alford said, the project was not completed as quickly as the building of the Memorial Civic Center or the Mahon Library. Funds for all three projects were approved by voters in 1970.

Bertram admitted to the crowd that "we probably made gross mistakes" in planning and executing the project. But, he said, "it's the first Canyon Lakes project I've ever been acquainted with."

Continental to Dallas/Ft. Worth or bus.

From as low as $15*

Going to Dallas/Ft. Worth? El Paso? You could take a bus, but it's a long trip that often doesn't sit right.

Or you could take a spacious Continental 727 Tri-Jet, with the kinds of features we're famous for. Like convenient overhead storage compartments for your carry-on luggage. Middle seats in Coach and Economy that fold down when unoccupied for more elbow room. And free stereo entertainment in all classes of service — every time you fly Continental.

But Continental is more than comfort. With our money-saving Economy airfares, you can often travel for less than the cost of a bus ride. For reservations and information on Continental's 727 service to Dallas/Ft. Worth and El Paso, call your travel agent, company travel department or Continental at 763-8031.

If you can't fly Continental, better catch the next bus.

Evel In Limbo

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I know that Evel Knievel signed a contract about a year ago, with World of Sports, to do commentary on various events and also to do one jump a year. I wonder what the status of this contract is, considering his recent jail term?
—Trish Jamison, Milwaukee, Wis.

A. A source at ABC tells us: "Of course, the contract had to be suspended based on his being incarcerated. He hasn't been paid anything. We'll review the matter when he's free. But let's face it, the guy is in limbo." Does that mean ABC might not want him? "For all we know, he might not want to do it," the spokesman said, praying slightly.

Q. Will you please tell me how many players with the name of Harris played in the NFL this past season and how many, if any, are related?
—Roy J. Gillow, Lake Park, Fla.

A. No less than 12 Harris started the 1977 pro football season, and 11 survived, the only one to be cut a free agent with Pittsburgh, defensive back Mike Harris. For those who want to keep score, the all-Harris team consists of: Franco (Pittsburgh), Cliff (Dallas), Bo (Cincinnati), Durrell and LeRoy (Miami), Ike (St. Louis), James (San Diego), Richard (Seattle), Paul (Tampa Bay), and Joe and Don (Washington).
Seven of them play defense. They are not related.

Q. Has any professional football game ever ended in a scoreless tie? If so, when and which teams played in them?
—Julie Johnston, Signal Mountain, Tenn.

A. Sixteen times in NFL history games have ended in a pointless tie, but none since 1943. In November of that year, the Giants and the Lions wound up with a blank scoreboard.

Q. What ever happened to the news that they thought Ray Guy might have been using helium-filled balls? I haven't heard anything about it for a long time.
—Bette Black, Rochester, Penn.

A. The so-called helium controversy turned out to be mostly hot air. It grew out of a sideline remark that, pardon the expression, ballooned. After Houston's Billy Johnson had been nailed in his tracks on a Ray Guy boomer. White Shoes returned to the Oiler bench and complained, "No ball can stay up THAT long." The Oilers slipped an Oakland football into their ball bag, checked the air when they returned home and found it wasn't helium. The punch line is that there is no rule against using helium, so long as the ball has the required pounds of pressure.

Later, in a trick camera sequence, NBC showed Paul Maguire, an ex-punter turned analyst, kicking a helium ball, which rose up, up and out of the stadium.

Q. I heard someone say on a talk show that ballet was more strenuous than football. I tend to laugh at such statements but I have heard them before and I am wondering if anyone has ever really tried to compare the two?
—Arthur Berger.

A. The argument started a few years ago when it became fashionable to say that Edward Villella, star of the New York City Ballet, was the best athlete in the country. Now Dr. James Nicholas, who operated on Joe Namath's knees, has developed a chart to judge the difficulty of various sports based on 13 neuromuscular and physical factors.
Believe it or not, ballet beats football by a point.

On AP's Final Poll

By The Associated Press
Kentucky and UCLA, who had to come from behind in the second half to win their first-round games in the NCAA playoffs, remain one-two in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll.
The Wildcats, who rallied to beat Florida State 85-76 on Saturday, received 29 of 43 first-place votes and a total of 828 points in the final poll announced Monday to retain the top spot which they have held for most of this season. Kentucky takes a 26-2 record into the Midwest Regional semifinals against Miami on Thursday.
UCLA got 11 first-place votes and 790 points after struggling to get past Kansas 83-76. The Bruins, also 26-2, have drawn Arkansas as their second-round opponent on Thursday.

NCAA's 1-A Plan Failing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A plan to segregate big-time college football conferences and independents from the game's lesser lights is failing. The Associated Press has learned, with potentially ludicrous results.

Today marks the end of the 60-day period of the NCAA's football-playing schools had for declaring a three-year commitment in divisions I-A or I-AA, which were created at the NCAA's convention in January.

A check by The AP discovered the five conferences and perhaps all 17 independents being urged to comprise the bulk of I-AA, the "minor league," are adamant in their decision to opt for big-time IA.

Designers of the restructuring plan hoped for roughly 80 members in I-A and 80 in I-AA. But now it appears I-AA will contain as few as 28 or 30 members — comprised mostly of the Big Sky, Yankee, Ohio Valley and Southwestern athletic conferences. And a bulky I-A will contain as many as 130.

A spokesman said the NCAA would have no announcement of the divisional breakdown for several days. And after the results are announced the schools will have another 30 days to change their minds.

But confusing Roman numerals aside, if they stick by their decisions several things are likely to happen:

- A relative handful of small football programs will begin reaping windfall television profits while another, larger group faces dwindling finances and uncertain futures.
- The 60-member College Football Association can be expected to discard its low profile. The CFA, chief spearcarrier for the big-time powers, may become more aggressive, launching renewed efforts to gain a measure of autonomy within the NCAA membership for the Notre Dames, Oklahomas, Penn States, etc.

The four-year, $118 million contract the NCAA signed with ABC-TV last spring ends at the heart of the issue.

The contract guaranteed 16 appearances each two years for a "tier group" of 57 schools — 17 independents who had not been on television the past three years, plus the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference, the Missouri Valley, Southern, Southland and Mid-America conferences.

Under the restructuring plan of the NCAA Council, these guaranteed appearances were transferred to I-AA, where the "tier group" would presumably locate. For I-A there is no guaranteed television. ABC is free to choose its games with only the continued stipulation that nobody can be on more than five times every two years.

Under the mathematical ratio used to figure the television guarantees, a division I-AA of around 28 members would be guaranteed about 10 regional appearances every two years, each with a payoff.

Three NIT Tilts Set

By The Associated Press
All-American Larry Bird leads Indiana State against Rutgers in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament tonight, and both coaches are looking forward to it.

"We feel that Larry is the most complete player in the country," says Indiana State Coach Bob King. "He's not just a scorer. He does it all."

"It should be a super game," says Rutgers Coach Tom Young. "Bird's appearance at the Athletic Center will surely create added excitement."

The 6-foot-9 Bird leads Indiana State, 23-8, with averages of 30 points and 11 rebounds per game. He's shooting 53 percent from the field, 80 percent from the free throw line. He also leads the team in assists with 122 and is second in steals with 28.

Rutgers, 22-6, has a 6-9 star of its own in James Bailey, who like Bird has one year of college eligibility left.

Bailey tops the Scarlet Knights with averages of 24 points and 9 rebounds per game and totals of 110 dunks, 64 blocked shots and 50 steals for the season.

The two will probably not go head-to-head very often, however, as Bird plays forward while Bailey is Rutgers' center.

Indiana State, which uses a one-guard offense, will have a size advantage with Bird, 6-11 DeCarsta Webster, 6-7 Harry Morgan and 6-8 Brad Miley. Rutgers has Bailey in the middle with 6-6 Hollis Copeland and 6-7 Abdel Anderson at the forwards.

Both clubs posted two-point victories in their NIT openers, Indiana State upsetting Illinois State 73-71 and Rutgers trimming Army 72-70.

The Indiana State-Rutgers game at Piscataway, N.J., is one of three NIT quarter-finals to be played tonight, along with 18th-ranked Detroit (25-3) at North Carolina State (19-9) and Georgetown, D.C. (22-6) at Dayton (19-9).

The other quarter-final will be played Wednesday night — Nebraska (22-7) at No. 17 Texas (22-5).

Dayton is counting heavily on its home-court advantage against Georgetown. The Flyers are 19-9 overall but 17-2 on their home court, where they beat Fairfield 108-93 in the NIT's first round.

Georgetown, which lost its last two regular-season games, edged Virginia 70-68 in overtime in its NIT opener.

Detroit, which beat Virginia Commonwealth 94-88 in its first-round game, brings a high-powered offense that is averaging 94.8 points per game against North Carolina State, which beat South Carolina 82-70.

"Our defense is going to have to be at least comparable to the South Carolina game," said Norm Sloan, coach of North Carolina State. "We are going to have to contain them inside and outside."

Chaparrals Nudge Jarvis In Ninth

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports

Darkness was rapidly closing in and the game rested in Glenn Wilken's hands. And the sophomore from Albuquerque didn't disappoint the Lubbock Christian College home throng Monday, as he beat out an infield nubber off the glove of the pitcher, giving the Chaparrals an 8-7, nine-inning victory over Jarvis Christian.

The teams played a tripleheader today, beginning at noon at Chaparral field. And until Wilken's break Monday, it appeared the teams might be ready to play all night.

Jarvis had scored twice to go in front 7-5 in the seventh, but with two outs in the bottom of the frame, Brady Brashear ripped a bases-loaded single up the middle to knot the game and send it into extra innings.

Reliever Bob McNicol picked up the win, hurling 3 1/3 innings, allowing four hits and only 1 earned run. In fact, Jarvis, now 4-6-1, managed only 1 earned run in the three-hour, five-minute contest.

LCC, now 6-9 and on a three-game winning streak, jumped in front in the second as Tim Leslie's double, three walks and Kenny Toney's sacrifice fly made it 2-0. After Jarvis scored a tainted run in the third, the Chaps came back for 2 more runs in the third on Mark Lisle's RBI single and an outfield error.

But Jarvis came with 4 unearned runs in the fourth with second baseman Anthony Fuller driving in 2 runs with a single. Andrea Wilson drove in a run with a single and Fuller eventually came around to score on a passed ball.

Two walks and two fielding errors on the same play allowed LCC to knot the game again in its half of the fifth, and it remained that way until the seventh. Roy Alexander opened with a single and, with two outs, Harlos Barrett singled and Fuller singled to right, the ball getting past Brashear, allowing both runners to score.

In the home seventh, Steve Brigante bunted his way on with one out, and Tommy Inman and Leslie walked to load the bases before Lisle was called out on strikes. But Brashear delivered his single up the middle to knot the game.

LCC had an opportunity in the sixth, but pinch runner Karl Mahan, who had stolen second and gone to third on a wild pitch, was out trying to steal home.

Brashear then lined to center and Gowdy's throw to the plate was in time to double up Inman. But Leslie and Lisle, two of the slower Chaparrals, worked the double steal. Wilken's one-hopper bounced off reliever Marion Alexander's glove, and by the time second baseman Fuller reached the ball and threw to first, Wilken was past the bag.

ANOTHER BIRD? — Lubbock Christian College pitcher Gary Swann, who's nickname is "Bird", gives an imitation of a more famous "Bird", Mark Frydric, Monday as he prepares to face a Jarvis Christian batter. Swann, however, failed to pick up his first win of the year, although LCC did win 8-7. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

The 28-year-old righthander, coming off rotator cuff shoulder surgery in 1976 and a knee operation last year, pitched two strong innings Monday as the Kansas City Royals edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in an 11-inning exhibition baseball game.

That was one inning less than he pitched all last season, when Busby made one lone appearance for Daytona Beach in the Florida State League and was tagged for 11 hits and 5 runs in three innings. Quite a comedown for the only pitcher in baseball history to throw a no-hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Now, Busby is trying to go from comedown to comeback, although it didn't seem that way when Cincinnati's Pete Rose rapped his first pitch for a single.

"I said to myself, 'Welcome back,'" Busby said with a smile.

But he went on to retire the next six batters, notching one strikeout.

"I felt pretty good, but I'm not back where I want to be," Busby said. "However, I do see an improvement each time I pitch. This is step 'A' and step 'B' is more consistency. I didn't know what to look for when I went out there. I was just trying to find the plate."

Pitching coach Galen Cisco was impressed.

"I liked the way he went back out in the second inning and threw the same way as he did in the first. He had good leverage on his breaking pitches and also on the fast ball. That was something he wasn't able to do last year."

Busby looked so good that he wanted to pitch a third inning.

"I said no," explained Manager Whitey Herzog. "Why force it? You never know if you're right or wrong, but I knew I couldn't take a chance. I would never have forgiven myself if something had happened to him."

Something happened to the New York Yankees after Dick Tidrow and Rich Gossage hurled eight hitless innings — four pieces — against Texas. The Rangers scored three runs in the ninth against Ken Clay on two infield hits, an error, two walks and a passed ball and defeated the Yanks 3-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Umberger, Paul Lindblad, Dave Tomlin and Len Barker.

Lee May and Carlos Lopez homered while Jim Palmer pitched three scoreless innings, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves. Palmer gave up a leadoff single, then retired nine batters in a row.

The National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers dropped their third game in a row, bowing to Minnesota 7-5 as Twins rookie Dan Graham homered and Dan Ford stole home.

"We have not played well defensively and we have not run the bases well, either," said LA Manager Tom Lasorda. "That's why we're here in spring training. We're just getting into shape."

Philadelphia's Bake McBride cracked his third spring homer, this one leading off the game against his former team as the Phillies blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 with five pitchers combining on a two-hitter.

McBride is hitting a cool .714 this spring and teammate Larry Bowa said that "if he stays healthy, Baka can win the batting championship. We should play him 140 games and give him enough rest for his knee. He might even hit 20 homers."

"If he gets 50 homers, I may drop him a notch in the batting order," cracked Manager Danny Ozark.

Elsewhere, home runs by Steve Dilard, Jason Thompson and Tim Corcoran powered the Detroit Tigers to a 9-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox and Joe Ferguson's two-run homer in the seventh inning — Houston's second and last hit — lifted the Astros over the Montreal Expos 2-1.

Lee Mazzilli's two-run homer in the ninth inning gave the New York Mets a 4-2 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates and the San Francisco Giants handed the winless Oakland A's their fifth consecutive setback 4-1 as right fielder Jack Clark delivered a home run and single and made four outstanding plays in the field.

Dickie Thon drove in three runs with a double and single as the California Angels downed the Chicago Cubs 10-3 and home runs by Lenn Sakata and Ray Fosse helped the Milwaukee Brewers beat the San Diego Padres 9-4.

The Seattle Mariners raked Cleveland's Rick Waits for seven runs in the first two innings and coasted to a 10-1 victory over the Indians while Al Woods had a home run and two singles as the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Chicago White Sox 4-3.

LCC Third In First District VIII Poll

Texas Wesleyan College, by virtue of winning three of its first four Texoma Conference games, had landed the No. 1 berth in the District VIII (NAIA) baseball poll.

The Rams are currently 11-8-1 and boast the only above-.500 mark of the seven reporting teams in the district.

Midwestern, which stands 6-6 and split four games with Lubbock Christian College in Lubbock last weekend, is ranked second.

Then comes the Chaparrals (5-9) in third, followed by the University of Dallas (3-4-1), Dallas Baptist (5-6), Jarvis Christian (4-5-1) and Austin College (2-5).

For the fourth straight year, the rankings will determine the District VIII Tournament field. Winners of the Texoma Conference, the Central Zone and South Zone get automatic berths in the field. The other three spots will go to the highest-ranking non-winners.

Then, the No. 1 and No. 2-rated teams will receive a first-round bye, with No. 3 meeting No. 6 and No. 4 taking on No. 5 in a sudden-death game. The winners there will then qualify for the double elimination tournament which will send the winner to the Area II Tournament.

The District VIII Tournament will again be at Arlington, Sunday May 7 through Wednesday May 10.

The Area II Tournament will be May 17-19, with Lubbock one of the possible sites. The National tournament is set for May 28-31 at St. Joseph, Mo.

Leslie, the only regular without a stolen base last year, now has three steals this season. Jarvis shortstop Roy Alexander attempts to make the tag. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

McTear Out Indefinitely LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sprinter Houston McTear, world indoor recorder setter in three events this winter, has a strained hamstring muscle that will keep him off the track for an indefinite time. The same kind of injury forced McTear out of the 1976 Olympics. He hurt the leg, and fell down twice, while running a 200-meter race for Cerritos College Friday against Mount San Antonio College. Indoor records set by McTear recently include: 60 yards, 6.11 seconds; 80 meters, 6.54; and 50 yards, 5.25.

Hogs Fifth NCAA's 1-A Plan Flop?

(From Page One) In the neighborhood of $450,000. Thus, Boise State of the Big Sky and Vermont of the Yankee — two examples of schools which never before even glimpsed a television check — could be banking hundreds of thousands of dollars. Another team with a 26-2 mark, DePaul, moved up one spot to third place in this week's poll. The Blue Demons beat Creighton 80-78 in their first-round NCAA tournament game and face Louisville on Friday.

Following Marquette, in eighth place with 342 points, are Louisville, 305, and Kansas, 234. The Second Ten consisted of San Francisco, New Mexico, Indiana, Utah, Florida State, North Carolina, Texas, Detroit, Miami and Pennsylvania. Newcomers to the Top 20 this week are Indiana, Miami and Penn, replacing Houston, Syracuse and Illinois State.

what it means to the overall well being of their institution. "There was very little discussion among the Missouri Valley as to what we would do," said Mickey Holmes, Missouri Valley commissioner. "It was very clear cut. "I think everyone feels that being relegated to the minor leagues would cause them to lose booster club revenue and allumni support. Also, most of the these (tier) schools are state supported and they could lose legislative funding, not only for the athletic departments, but the entire institution. Dick Oliver, commissioner of the Southland Conference, said there was virtually no debate among his organization. One Southland president, Jay Taylor of Louisiana Tech, summed up the feelings of many by saying, "We chose not to nibble at the carrot."

Other bonanzas await the small band in I-AA. A national championship tournament will kick another $750,000 or so into the television kitty, according to NCAA figures. ABC is under contract to telecast regionally at least two semifinal games and give nationwide exposure to the championship match. "If things keep taking shape like this, you could say we're pretty happy all right," said Andrew T. Mooradian, executive director of the Yankee Conference.

These big-time powers, the Nebraskas, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, etc., say they need a separate division to protect themselves on the convention floor from schools with different commitments and philosophies. They speak of a need to control their own destiny. Spokesmen for the "tier group" defend their position on many points, chiefly the "high visibility" of college football and

Carew, On .400: I Don't Know

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Special Correspondent

ORLANDO, Fla. — "If they would let me, I would hang a sign around my neck," said Rod Carew. "It would read, 'I don't know whether I can hit .400.' It would save us all a lot of trouble."

The flirtation with that magical but elusive plateau — last achieved by Boston's Ted Williams 25 years ago — has made Minnesota's punch-hitting first baseman the No. 1 individual attraction of baseball's spring training.

By the scores, newsmen, magazine editors, TV and radio commentators are flocking to the Twins' Tinker Field. All have one purpose: an interview with the man who batted .388 — a record 50 points higher than any other major league batter.

"They all want to know the same thing," said the sleek, 32-year-old Panamanian. "Do I think I can become the first man since Williams to bat .400? What's my secret? Do I have anything special going for me?"

The questions get old. I get tired of coming up with the same answers, which are not very spectacular. But I don't mind. I understand it's a price a guy has to pay, and I feel fortunate that I am the one who has to pay it."

Most decorated of the 700 or so players who paraded across the major league stage last season — Most Valuable Player in the American League, Player of the Year, Minnesota's personality of the year, winner of the Clemente, Griffith and other awards — Carew wears his success well.

"I've grown up in the last few years," he confessed. "I used to be very moody and introverted — a loner. I resented invasions of my privacy. I was suspicious of reporters. I felt they didn't always give you a fair shake."

"I've overcome that now. I've insulated myself — built a kind of shell around myself. I know who I am and what I am. I roll with the punch. I don't let anything bug me."

Few modern super stars in any sport have maintained a leveler head under such ego-inflating circumstances.

Carew has signed with the William Morris Agency, the high-powered talent agency which deals with movie celebrities, TV hotshots and past presidents, but has no desire to make a quick commercial killing.

"I told them to leave me alone during baseball season," he said. "I don't want to jump at everything — to do something just to be doing it. When I pull on this uniform, I want no outside distractions. I want to concentrate on baseball."

Another subject baseball's top hitter disdains is that of his $190,000 contract, which expires at the end of the 1978 season, leaving an option year before he can enter the free agent sweepstakes.

Why, with lesser players becoming instant millionaires, doesn't he demand renegotiation of his agreement?

"A contract is a contract," he snaps. "I have no axe to grind. I have been treated well."

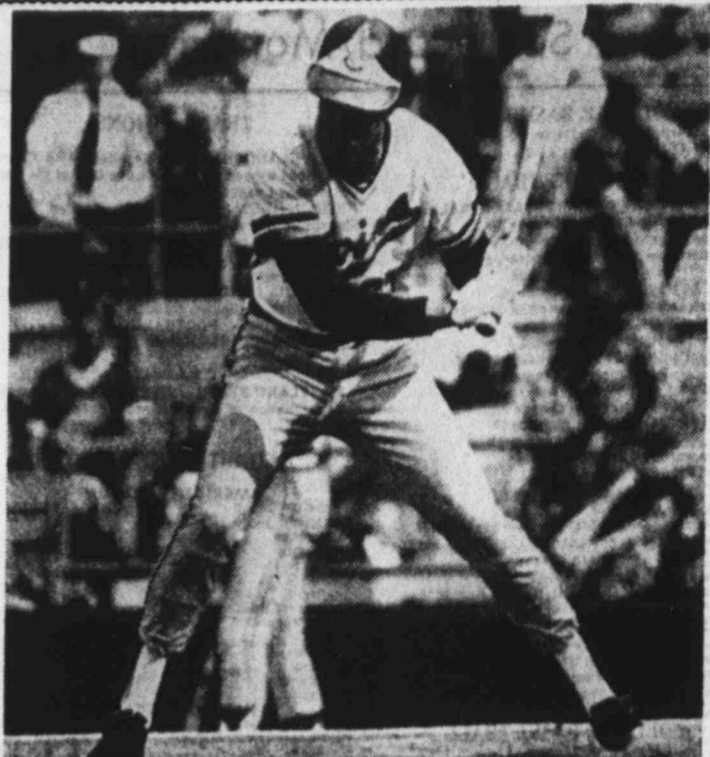

Carew played hide-and-seek with the .400 mark most of last season. His 239 base hits were the most in the majors since Bill Terry got 254 in 1930 when he batted .401 with the Giants. Rod was voted to the All-Star team for the 11th straight year.

The Twins' siege gun dismisses the suggestion that he possesses some miracle hitting formula.

"I am not the scientific hitter Williams was," he concedes. "I can't follow all those charts on how to hit inside and low outside pitches. I've always hit them well."

"As Williams insists, eyesight is very important. Too many hitters lose the ball and freeze when it gets to the plate. I can pick up the ball as it leaves the pitcher's hand and follow its movement all the way."

"So I'm never surprised. I think I ought to hit the ball every time I come to bat."

NO. 1 ATTRACTION — Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins is shown doing one of the things he does better than most, batting. Carew, who hit .388 last year, has become the No. 1 attraction in spring training. (AP Laserphoto)

Tech Hosts H-SU Today

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Hoping to maintain the momentum it established with two wins over Baylor last Saturday, Texas Tech hosted Hardin-Simmons in a doubleheader today at the Tech diamond, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The Raiders, 7-9 for the season and 3-3 in Southwest Conference action, suffered a 12-3 setback to Baylor last Friday but rallied with 4-0 and 5-1 wins in Saturday's doubleheader to knock the Bears out of the league lead.

ENMU Fems Upset AFA

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Special) — The Eastern New Mexico women's basketball team advanced to the national AIAW college cage tournament by upsetting the Air Force Academy 57-56 Monday during the finals of the seventh event.

The win boosted the ENMU season record to 17-6, while Air Force fell for only the second time this year.

With nine seconds remaining, ENMU's Marge Martinez hit the front end of a one-and-one situation to up the team's lead to 57-54. But AFC's Michele Johnson canned a 15-footer with two seconds left to cut the margin to 1 point.

Air Force was unable to force a turnover after the bucket.

Noreen Kennedy scored 15 points to lead ENMU. Patricia Swanky's 22 points paced the Air Force.

In the national meet at Florence, S.C., ENMU will meet High Point (N.C.) College during the initial round of the national tournament.

Prior to the start of the regional event, Eastern New Mexico had been seeded seventh, Air Force No. 1.

LCC Netters Win

Lubbock Christian College evened its tennis record at 1-1 with a 7-3 win over McMurry College Monday.

The Chaparrals won all four men's singles matches.

This weekend, the LCC netters will compete in a tournament at Searcy, Ark.

LCC 7, McMURRY 3
Women's singles—Poppy Blackwell, LCC, def. Tina Evans, 6-2, 2-6, 6-1; Kella Cruce, LCC, def. Tina Rodriguez, 6-2, 6-3; Cindy Green, MCM, def. Susan Boyles, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3

Western Texas Tackles Casper

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (Special)—Nolan Richardson got his first look Monday at Casper Junior College's players, and, yes, they are big.

Not only are the Wyoming players big, but they're rated No. 1 in the nation. And tonight, Richardson and his Western Texas College unit will take on Casper in the first round of the national junior college basketball tournament.

WTC and Casper take the court at 6 p.m. in the first round of the week-long tournament. And size is not the only thing that Richardson will have to worry about; there is the matter of scouting.

"They got to see us last week, when we played (and defeated) Navarro (81-79 in the state championship game)," Richardson remarked Monday. "But, we didn't get a chance to scout them. I saw their workout this (Monday) morning, but they seem to be a more physical, more powerful team."

"They're 6-10, 6-8, 6-7 across the front line, and not only are they big in height

"We really needed those wins," Tech coach Kal Segrist said. "We were 1-3, and we needed to win a series. It's good for our frame of mind, and it puts us right back in the conference race."

"We just played real good defense and got some good pitching performances. Our defense was excellent. We've only had two bad defensive games this year, and we need to continue to play well defensively."

Tech turned two double plays in each game Saturday and looked like a completely different team from the one that committed seven errors Friday. Raider pitchers, who had allowed 17 hits Friday, gave up just 11 in Saturday's two contests. The first game blanking was Baylor's first since the 1976 campaign.

Tech and Hardin-Simmons have played four games earlier this season, with the Cowboys winning three. The teams opened the campaign with doubleheaders on consecutive days, splitting the first and seeing H-SU sweep the second.

Hardin-Simmons is 9-5 for the season, after losing two games to Texas Lutheran last Saturday. The Cowboys played a single game with Abilene Christian Monday, winning 7-1.

Tech has also played Texas Lutheran this season, splitting a twin bill with the Seguin school March 1.

Following today's two games, the Red Raiders will travel to Fort Worth for a weekend conference series with TCU.

Tech and the Horned Frogs will play a single game Friday and a doubleheader Saturday at the TCU field.

Spring break will be the following week, and the Raiders have nine games scheduled during that period. They will play twin bills with Wichita State March 20, 21 and 22 at the Tech diamond and then host SMU in a three-game SWC set March 24 and 25.

Brownfield Divides Games With Lobos

BROWNFIELD (Special)—Levelland and Brownfield sprayed hits all over the park in the first game, but it was all Brownfield's show in the second game of the doubleheader.

Levelland won the first game 13-8, but the Cubs won the shortened (10-run rule) second game 14-4. Today, the Cubs will play Lubbock High, and Jesse Gonzales will be pitching.

A total of 29 hits came in the opening game, with nine of them going for extra bases. The only extra-base hit in the same game was a triple by Reid, who also was the losing pitcher for the Lobos.

Rialston, Hanna (5), and Harley, Teiler and Sales, WP—Hanna, LP—Teiler, 2B—Williams, LHS; Sales, Reid, BHS, 3B—Baty, Moore 2, LHS; Merrill, BHS, HB—Baty, Rialston, LHS.

SECOND GAME
Levelland 207 68 — 4-4-3
Brownfield 392 0 — 14-10-5
Moore, Martinez (2), Methvin (4), and Long, Reid and Sales, WP—Reid, LP—Moore, 3B—Reid, BHS.

TCU Splits

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Leftfielder Steve Houk had six hits in seven trips to the plate Monday to power Texas Christian University to an 11-5 win over Central Michigan in the second game of a split doubleheader.

In the opening game, Central Michigan scored 12 runs in the top of the seventh inning to wipe out a 6-5 TCU lead and gain a 17-5 victory.

Houk, who had a double and a triple to go with four singles, raised his batting average to .556. Designated hitter David Hovey belted a home run and a triple to aid TCU in the nightcap.

Greg Meyer, 1-1, took the second game win while John McLeod, 0-1, was tagged with the loss.

Duer Award

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas A&I junior lineman Wade Whitmer, a two-time academic All-American, was named Monday as the 1978 recipient of the NAAIA's 12th annual A.O. Duer Scholarship Award.

The award, a $300 scholarship and a trophy, is given annually to a varsity junior athlete who has excelled in scholarship. It will be presented Thursday.

Whitmer, the first honoree from a Texas college, has a 3.819 grade point average as a pre-med student at Texas A&I. A three-year letterman, he was a starter in the defensive line two years ago and started at offensive guard last year.

Aggies Sweep

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Two-run homers by Shelton McMath and Buster Turner Monday helped Texas A&M to a doubleheader sweep from St. Mary's 4-2 and 5-2.

St. Mary's led 2-0 on a two-run homer by Charlie Migel but the Aggies tied the game on Gary Bryant's single and went ahead on McMath's homer.

The winning pitcher was Jim McWilliam, 2-1, while Bob Wagner, 1-2, took the loss.

A&M is now 11-5 while St. Mary's fell to 6-7.

SFA Coach

NACOGDOCHES (AP) — Stephen F. Austin State is again searching for a new basketball coach after Henderson State Coach Don Dyer decided not to accept the job, say school officials.

Dyer had agreed verbally last week to replace retiring Marshall Brown, who had coached the Lumberjacks for 19 years.

But Dyer and school officials said Monday that both parties had agreed to dissolve the arrangement after Dyer and his family visited the school last Thursday and Friday.

"Verbally, I had accepted the job, prior to me and my wife and son visiting the campus," Dyer said Monday in Arkadelphia, Ark. "I asked them to hold up on a news release. But that release was sent out to several places before I had signed any contract."

SMU Gridders

DALLAS (UPI) — On a scale of one to ten, SMU Coach Ron Meyer puts this year's recruiting crop at a seven. And that's a lot higher on the chart than in recent years.

"I am very pleased with the way we did," Meyer said Monday, "particularly with the negative reaction we got late in the season. We had only 7,000 people for our Rice game and that got national publicity."

"Then we were blown out in our last two games against Texas Tech and Arkansas. And we just had a 4-7 record."

"But youngsters are encouraged about our progress under (quarterback) Mike Ford and they recognize the opportunity to play four years and make us a good football team."

Meyer's club is concluding the first half of spring training with a typical depth problem.

Local Teams

High school baseballers, given only two days of rest since last action, will return to the diamonds today.

And only Lubbock High will go into today's games with a winning streak going.

The Westerners, sporting a 6-1 record, will host Brownfield at Mackenzie Field, and Midland Lee will be playing Monterey at Lowrey Field.

Coronado will go on the road, challenging Midland High.

All teams will be playing single games after seeing action twice last Saturday.

Lubbock High won its doubleheader from El Paso Andrews here last Saturday. Coronado dropped a pair of games at Hobbs, and Monterey lost two games in the second day of the Midland Tournament of Champions.

The Plainsmen, who had beaten Midland Lee on Friday, dropped games to Midland High and to Duncanville Saturday to share second place in the tournament.

Coronado will enter today's game with a 2-5 record.

After splitting four games at Midland in the tournament, the Plainsmen are 2-2, the tournament being their first action of the season because of the weather.

NFL Rule Changes Will Aid Offense

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Defense may be the way you win games — but it's also a pretty good way to lose fans. So the National Football League plans to open up the offense a bit more in 1978.

The league's 28 owners were expected to vote today on a package of proposals to give quarterbacks more protection by slowing down the defensive charge and to give him better targets by limiting defensive tactics against his receivers.

To get these and other rule changes in the books, 21 owners have to approve. Commissioner Pete Rozelle repeatedly stressed at a late Monday news conference that the changes were only proposals — but it seemed unlikely they would be rejected. They were drawn up in 10 days of meetings by the Competition Committee — Cincinnati General Manager Paul Brown, Green Bay General Manager Coach Bart Starr, Cleveland GM Peter Hadzary, Dallas President-General Manager Tex Schramm and Miami Coach Don Shula.

Here, basically, are the proposed changes:

- Pass blockers (offensive linemen) may lock or flex their elbows and open or clench their hands when fending off defensive players. Previously, the locked elbow and open hand were prohibited.
- A defender may make one intentional contact with a potential receiver and it is limited to within five yards of the scrimmage line. Previously a defender could "chuck" the receiver as often as he wished within a three-yard zone and once again further downfield.
- A double touch will be allowed by offensive players. In the past, if a pass receiver tipped the ball, no other offensive player could touch it unless a defensive player touched it first.
- Intentional grounding by a quarterback trapped in his end zone, previously a penalty of half the distance to the goal line from the scrimmage line, is now a safety.
- A seventh field official, the side judge, will be added, improving the official's coverage of a so-called dead zone about 15 yards downfield. In a number of games in recent years tight ends and other receivers in this zone have been virtually mugged without officials' detection — among them Pittsburgh's Lynn Swann, New England's Russ Francis and Oakland's Dave Casper.
- Ball carriers may hurdle other players in an attempt to avoid being tackled.
- Records against common opponents will be relied upon more and earlier in any steps to break ties in the standings, getting away from confusing and sometimes unfair point differential procedures.

Schramm and Shula briefly demonstrated and explained some of the changes.

Loosening restrictions against pass blockers Schramm said, "legalizes some of the practices that have currently been used but have been very difficult to officiate," namely holding. It's still illegal for a blocker to grab a defender.

"Hopefully there'll be less grabbing if they can do this," Rozelle said, making a pushing motion with his hands open in front of him.

Then Schramm assumed the role of a ball carrier and Shula a defender to explain chucking, a defensive tactic used to throw receivers off stride as they come across the line of scrimmage.

"You can keep the hands on a receiver as long as you don't break contact and don't grab him," said Schramm. "You can ride him, in effect, but you can't give him one shot, pull back, then give him another."

Then, to illustrate, Schramm bent over, carrying an imaginary ball out of an imaginary backfield. Shula stepped up as though to give him a pop — and Schramm faked once and stepped past him.

"What the defender can do — Hey, you gave me a hell of a move there," the Dolphins head coach exclaimed.

The theory behind this Rozelle said, "Is, one, to help the passing game and, two, with more receivers being open, to permit the quarterback to unload faster and lessen quarterback injuries."

Schramm said the league prepared a film involving all quarterback-injury situations in 1977 — about 20 of them, some in which passers were only briefly sidelined and some in which they were kayoed for lengthy periods.

"We were unable to find any injuries that could be cured by rule changes," Schramm said. "They were all more-or-less freak-type injuries, a quarterback falling down and a lineman who was being blocked falling on to him."

GAMES NEEDED

Lubbock Christian High coach Gary Bowe is seeking a tournament for his boys' squad for Dec. 14-15. Bowe also needs games for Jan. 9 and Jan. 26 next year. Bowe or girls coach Dale Pectol can be reached at 792-3221.

Winston-Salem Tops Bethany Nazarene

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If you believe Carlos Terry — and it's hard not to — at least be intimidated by the 6-foot-5, 200-pounder — Winston-Salem, N.C., is just warming up.

"This game wasn't 50 per cent of how we can play," he noted after top-ranked Winston-Salem overcame a shaky first half to put away Bethany Nazarene of Oklahoma 77-60 in the opening round of the NAAIA basketball tournament Monday.

In first-round action this morning, Birmingham Southern, Ala., met LeMoyne Owen, Tenn., and Hampton Institute, Va., squared off against Central State, Ohio. Six more first-round games were on tap for tonight.

In games Monday, Mark Etzelmiller connected for two free throws with 14 seconds left to give Kearney State, Neb., a 70-69 upset victory over eighth-seeded Mercyhurst College, Pa.; Roland Martin flipped in 24 points to lead Missouri Southern past Mississippi Valley State, 78-59; Eddie Warren and Rolando Frazer paced Briar Cliff, Iowa, to a 115-78 rout of Maine-Portland-Gorham; Erskine edged Lake Superior State, 74-69; Wisconsin-Parkside beat Dowling 72-67 in overtime; Ouachita Baptist downed Eastern Montana, 76-67, and Nate Stokes connected for 20 points to boost Grand Canyon, Ariz., past Cumberland, Ky., 70-64.

Winston-Salem took advantage of Bethany's poor free throw shooting in the first half to take a 34-28 halftime lead. The Redskins from Bethany, Okla., fell to an 18-point deficit in the second half and never recovered.

Grand Canyon, the No. 2 seed in the tournament, got a scare when its shooting percentage fell to below 40 per cent from the field and Cumberland went ahead for the first time, 38-36, with 17:01 left in the game. Grand Canyon's Willie Polk then scored six unanswered points to give the Antelopes the lead for good.

Fourth-seeded Ouachita Baptist managed its 25th win against four losses for the year behind Donnie Williams' 20 points and Johnny Jenkins' 19. Ouachita held a five-point lead at intermission and never trailed in the second half.

In the closest game of the day Monday, Kearney State had to survive a second-half surge by Mercyhurst, as the Lakers came from five points back with just over a minute remaining to within one point 38 seconds later.

But the Antelopes from Kearney State held on, never falling behind Mercyhurst in the foul-plagued game. Of 53 fouls called in the game, Mercyhurst had 30.
