Redistricting On Agenda...

Special Session Set July 13

Austin (AP)--Gov. Bill Clements told Texas legislators Wednesday there would be a special session July 13 to reconsider their major failures of the regular session that ended June 1.

"The call will be limited to these subjects only," Clements said after listing five major issues on which compromise talks broke down in the final hours of the 140-day session.

The 30-day special session must complete its work by Aug. 11 in order to submit any proposed constitutional changes for the Nov. 7 general election, Clements said.

Clements, who said even before the regular session closed that he would call a special session in the summer, set this agenda for the summer session:

--Repeal of the state ad valorem tax.

--Creation of a Texas water trust fund.

--Congressional redistricting.

--Revision of the property tax code.

--Consideration of the medical practice act.

If a Legislature is unable to complete its business in a regular session, the governor has the power to call one or more 30-day sessions and specify the subjects to be debated.

"I have discussed the timing of the session and the issues to be considered with Lt. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton, and we are in agreement," Clements said in a prepared statement,

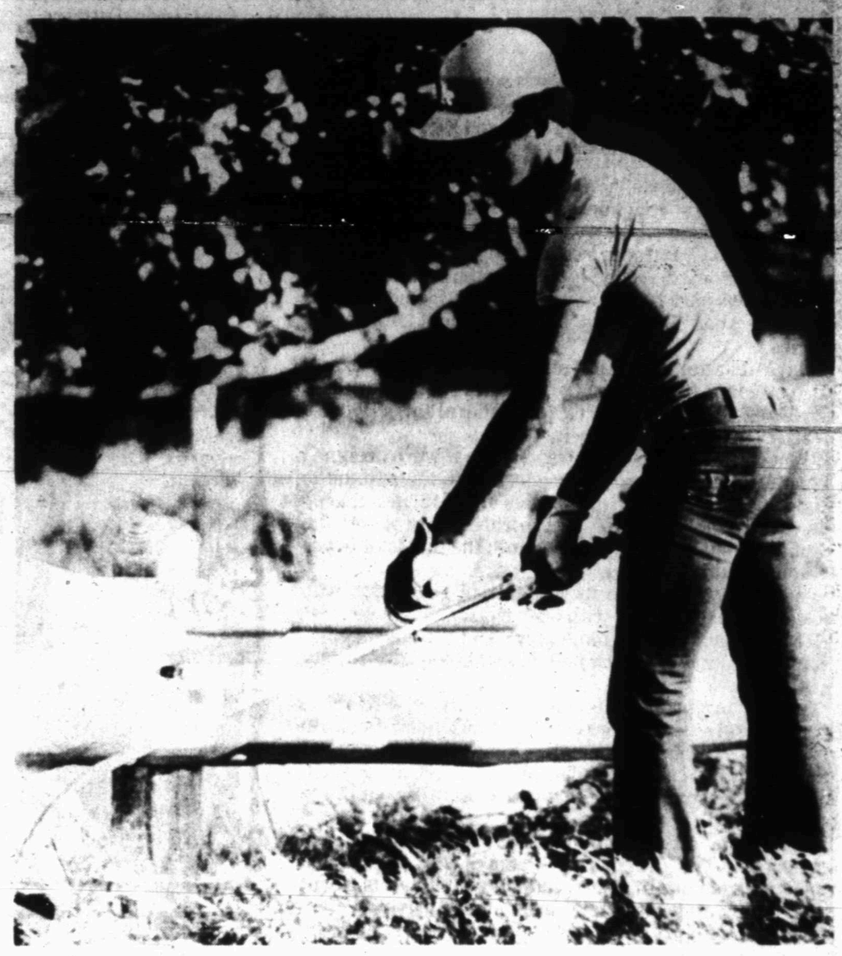

"The call will be limited to these subjects only. Since the frst two topics will require constitutional amendments which we want to submit to voters on the November general election ballot, early and prompt attention to these matters will be necessary."

A spokesman said Clements' call for the sepcial session did not necessarily exclude discussion of some new plan to provide construction funds for state colleges not in the University of Texas A & M systems.

"If they could work out some sort of procedure where there would be a definite repeal of the state ad valorem taxes included, the governor will consider that," said Jon Ford, the governor's press secretary.

Clements said he hoped the legislative committees could begin meeting immediately and "initiate discussions on all of these issues so that solutions can be worked out in so far as possible prior to July 13."

He said he was giving legislators more that a month's notice in order that they could have adequate time to plan their summer activities and in order "that the committees can resolve some differencs in advance."

For Tax Plan...

Democrats Seek Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are seeking support for a compromise proposal to implement the final installment of President Reagan's three-year tax-cut plan only if inflation is contained.

But the president's tax advisers, contending that they'll get the votes for their package anyway, are having no part of such a plan.

"We would not go for any" proposal that does not guarantee the third-year reduction, John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, told the House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday.

Such a provision, he added, would remove the certainty that Reagan insists must be provided for investors and businesses.

"There's a lot of agreement up here" for such a "trigger" on the third-year tax cut, Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, told Chapoton. "But it seems like you'd rather go for broke."

Chapoton rejected Pickle's assessment as the committee began writing its version of a tax-cut bill. No votes were taken, although some might occur by Friday on Reagan's plan for cutting business taxes by allowing faster deductions for buildings and machinery.

Chapoton spent most of Wednesday explaining Reagan's revised tax-cut plan, first to the Senate Finance Committee, which generally supports it, and then to Ways and Means, which does not.

The Finance Committee agreed that any reduction in taxes on capital gains, the profits from the sale of assets, should be retroactive to Wednesday. That idea, suggested by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was aimed at eliminating incentives for investors to delay their decisions until Oct. 1, when the bulk of the individual tax cuts would take effect.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the Ways and Means chairman, told Chapoton that Democrats who control his panel insist that more tax relief be directed toward the working poor. And he repeated the Democrats' position that a tax cut be for a maximum of two years.

Rep. Barber B. Conable of New York, senior GOP member on the committee, said the president and other Republicans have a program "to give the American people a real tax cut — not an illusory one." Conable said anything less than a three-year cut would not do that.

Delivery Of Fighters To Israel Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, stopping short of a definite ruling that Israel violated an agreement to use American-made arms for defense only, is suspending delivery of four F-16 fighters to Israel "for the time being." But for now, no other reprisals are being taken.

Officials at the White House and the State Department said the suspension, following the Israeli bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor Sunday, would have no immediate effect on large military shipments to Israel due to start next month.

Israel called Reagan's decision "unjust," expressed "deep regret and disappointment" and said its destruction of the nuclear facility was a wholly justifiable act of self-defense to prevent "an implacable enemy" from building atomic bombs.

Israel's friends on Capitol Hill took a similar line, while others said some action, even temporarily suspending shipments of just four planes, is necessary to drive home the point that agreements are meant to be kept.

The suspension was ordered Wednesday under provisions of the 1952 Mutual Defense Assistance Agreement, in which Israel pledged not to use military equipment provided by the United States "to undertake any act of aggression against any other state."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes indicated today that the decision on resuming the shipments to Israel would depend to some extent on the outcome of investigations in Congress.

"The decision yesterday applies to the F16s and decisions on future shipments will be made in light of the outcome of congressional studies and studies within the administration," he said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., criticized the action, saying that "after more thorough review, the administration will be compelled by the evidence to conclude that the mission was in fact an act of self-defense by Israel."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., called the suspension "the right decision under the circumstances."

"I agree with it and I support it," he said.

The chairmen of the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees said their panels will consider the issue soon. Senate hearings could open as early as next Wednesday.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate committee, said either Congress or the administration can act on the possible violation.

Mrs. Odom Dies; Rites Saturday

Mrs. Dewey A. Odom, 83, well-known civic and church worker in Snyder who also was active as a licensed mortician here for a number of years, died at 4:45 a. m. today in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Funeral service has been set for 10 a. m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. David Robertson, pastor, and the Rev. Woodrow Adcock and Dr. John English, former pastors here, will officiate. Burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mrs. Odom was active in The First United Methodist Church, where she had taught the Crusaders Sunday School Class for over 53 years.

She was married on Jan. 27, 1918, in Mansfield to Ralph Odom. He preceded her in death on April 3, 1960.

Mrs. Odom was associated with Odom Funeral Home here from 1927 to 1949. It was a forerunner of the present Bell-Seale Funeral Home. She was recently presented a 50-year service pin as a licensed mortician at the Texas Funeral Directors Convention.

At the time of her death, she was serving as president of the Altrurian Club in Snyder.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ann Davis of Snyder; a son, Holman Odom of Snyder; two sisters, Mrs. Drew Baum of Mineral Wells and Mrs. Joe Davis of Carbon; a brother, Gaither Bell of Snyder; three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Trustees of First United Methodist Church will serve as pallbearers.

Prince Charles of England and Lady Diane, his bride-to-be, are commanding more and more attention, and it will continue to grow until their upcoming wedding.

Royalty does not wield the power that it did in historical times, of course, but it still intrigues many people throughout the world. A real king, queen, prince or princess still is regarded as a special person, even if their splendor is grounded halfway in legend. The Queen of England technically has no role in the governing of the British Empire. But her influence remains significant. She is a personality behind whom the "subjects" may rally during times of strife and difficulty.

Winston Churchill was not only the guiding force of the stubborn British during World War II, but he also was clever enough to take advantage of the average Briton's allegiance to the crown as he rallied his countrymen to resist Germany's awesome air attacks.

There is no Churchill in England today, but the Queen and her family still command respect and they stand as a symbol of unity.

The lack of such a symbol commanding widespread allegiance may have been a handicap at times in this country, despite the fact that the Revolutionary Colonists were determined to form a nation without a crown. We are fortunate, of course, that they took the course that they did, but we must confess that for the Englishman, the symbol of the crown likely is a desirable factor.

In modern times, the "quality" of the royal family has been amazing, and Prince Charles appears to be a chip off the proverbial block. The process of selecting a spouse caught the imagination of his countrymen and even their distant cousins on this side of the Atlantic. And after viewing photographs of the "candidates" from whom he made his choice, it is our opinion that he was right on target.

It has been observed already that it probably will be many years before Charles ascends to the throne. His mother, the queen, stands a good chance of continuing her reign until Charles is at least in his mid fifties. So, when his time comes, he should be ready to continue the string with distinction.

Ask Us

Q.—While reading about some early-day major league baseball teams, I came across the name Connie Mack, who apparently was manager of an American League team in Philadelphia. Someone told me that was not his real name and that there was no American League team in Philadelphia. Was this whole thing fictitious?

A.—No. There was an American League team in Philadelphia once (the Athletics), but it moved. It is now the Oakland A's franchise after going to the West Coast via Kansas City. Connie Mack was indeed not only the manager but the owner. His real name was Cornelius McGillicuddy, which he shortened in a move applauded by headline writers for newspapers throughout the country.

Thursday update

Paper Clip Blamed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space officials blame a paper clip for one of the minor problems encountered during the first flight of the space shuttle Columbia in April.

Joseph E. Mechelay, mission evaluation manager, said Wednesday that an overlooked paper clip began floating around inside a power supply box, causing a short. When a circuit breaker failed to correct the problem, a switch was made to a backup supply.

Mechelay said the paper clip was one of 52 minor anomalies during the 54½-hour flight. He said all are so minor they would not affect the second launch now scheduled for Sept. 30.

"If we had to today, we could make up our minds on all of the tiny fixes and go fly," he said.

Bani-Sadr Loses

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has finally decided the power struggle between Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and the Islamic clerical faction, and Bani-Sadr has lost.

Khomeini, the undisputed leader of the revolutionary regime, fired Bani-Sadr Wednesday as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, the official news agency Pars reported.

A spokesman for Khomeini said the 47-year-old economist would continue as president. But he will be a powerless figurehead since his conservative foes in the Islamic Republican Party control the Majlis, the Iranian parliament, and the government.

Economic Sanctions

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq is expected to press for international economic sanctions against Israel as Arab League foreign ministers meet here today to discuss a united response to Israel's destruction of an Iraqi nuclear reactor.

Western and Third World diplomats in the Iraqi capital say the Baghdad regime will seek "practical" economic sanctions rather than military retaliation against Israel or an oil embargo against its allies.

The United States, which supplied the F-15 and F-16 fighters Israel used in Sunday's lightning raid, is likely to draw strong condemnation from the Arab foreign ministers.

Reprieve Granted

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee gave party chief Stanislaw Kania a reprieve Wednesday night, ducking a showdown vote on his refusal to crush the liberal movement and leaving him in control despite Soviet criticism.

The 140-member committee adjourned after a heated, two-day debate at which hardliner Tadeusz Grabski charged that the 11-man party Politburo, of which he is a member, "in its present composition and under the leadership of Kania is unable to lead the country out of the crisis."

High School Report Cards Are On Hand

Spring semester report cards for Snyder High School Students have arrived and are ready for distribution, it was announced this morning.

The grades are recorded by computer and the cards were not ready at the end of the school term. Students may pick up their report cards from 8 a. m. to noon or from 1 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. at the principal's office Friday, or Monday through Friday of next week.

Storms Put Little Into Area Lakes

Heavy thunderstorm activity last week failed to produce the the anticipated runoff into Colorado River Municipal water District Lakes.

However, both of the reservoirs did record small catches of water, increasing district supplies by some 12,000 acre feet.

Reports of intense rains on the watershed proved to be exaggerated, CRMWD officials said, and conditions of heavy precipitation were spotted.

Lake J. B. Thomas gained half a foot, or 1,725 acre feet, making its elevation 2233.40.

Lake E. V. Spence gained 10,350 acre feet, rising .89 foot to a new record elevation of 1880.05.

Lake Thomas now has 66,000 acre feet, or 32.35 percent of capacity, and Lake Spence has 282,000 acre feet, or 57.79 percent of capacity.

a belated awakening

Perhaps the knowledge that they were leaving office in a few weeks engendered the unusual frankness. Perhaps they figured there was nothing to lose in telling the truth. For whatever reason, reports produced by task forces commissioned by the Carter administration in the latter part of his term in office included some unusually sharp criticism of government regulatory policies.

A bit late, admittedly, but still fascinating. For example: Outgoing Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland released a report contending that federal farm policies helped to destroy the family farm.

"We found that even the programs that were designed to protect the farm sector accelerated and continue to reinforce trends that push families out of farming, keep new farmers out and concentrate control of the resources that produce our food into the hands of fewer persons," said Bergland.

That's not a surprise to students of regulation who look at the phenomenon with open eyes.

Regulation increases paperwork and the cost of compliance, making it harder for the small operator to stay in business.

Subsidy programs naturally favor those with more land to subsidize. Bergland's recommendations to restructure the farm program didn't go far enough, of course. You can move the bureaucrat out of the government, but you can't take the governmentality out of the bureaucrat.

Meanwhile, off in another corner of Washington, the staff of the U.S. Regulatory Council was releasing a report suggesting that coal industry complaints about overlapping and conflicting jurisdictions are mild compared to the reality of the horror. According to the council report:

"It is little wonder that it must seem impossible for coal operators to make their way through the system; some small operators simply don't make it."

Is it any wonder that the giant oil companies , who already have battalions of lawyers on the payroll and years of experience dealing with regulatory lunacy, are becoming an increasing factor in the coal industry? How widely will it be noted that this move has been facilitated by government regulations?

These and similar reports from the outgoing Carter crowd and now emerging to public view should provide a firm base for Reagan's people to move even more boldly. What is needed is not just a little modest snipping here and there, but wholesale elimination of regulations.

social security woes

What is President Reagan trying to do to your Social Security?

From the florid oratory of the Kennedys and Moynihans and from some Republicans, you could easily conclude that President Reagan is launching an inhuman war on old people.

The big lie is convincing. The president's most recent public approval rating declined from 73 percent to 66 percent. Approval among retirees declined a stunning 16 points!

So what's the real poop?

The U.S. Senate has voted 96 to 0 that President Reagan will not be allowed to discourage anyone from retiring at 62.

Obviously, Republicans as well as Democrats are willing to ignore economic realities in favor of some further political palliative.

Americans now on Social Security can lose their full benefits in only one way—bankruptcy of the system. That is what the Reagan administration is courageously trying to prevent.

Ironically, the president was prepared last March to leave Social Security untouched and seek other funding for it. It was members of Congress who began insisting on "bigger cuts in federal spending."

That is when the White House offered to consider the following: Leave everybody presently on Social Security alone. Let him or her continue to collect full benefits including inflation—prescribed increases.

However, in the future, anybody retiring early—at age 62—would receive reduced payments. Thus over five years to contribute $19 billion toward the solvency of the system.

But before the politically oriented senators dared head home for their spring holiday, they voted unanimously against this idea which, in fact, had been encouraged by members of Congress to "offer some suggestion" of their own.

They don't want that.

Every member of the Senate and the House has to know that Social Security recipients are about to drown in red ink. This must not be allowed. It will not be allowed. But Democrats particularly are determined that whatever belt-tightening is called for, the president's name must be on it!.

For the record here is as much as the president has proposed:

Full retirement benefits for 31 million Social Security recipients will continue.

Medicare will not be cut. Supplemental income for the blind, disabled and aged will not be cut.

Veterans' benefits will be increased.

Every American who cannot afford adequate food will continue to get food stamps.

In essence, the genuinely needy will be cared for.

It must be the less "genuine" who are doing all the hollering.

my turn

by lois gleason

I wasn't going to write this story so as not to embarrass anyone but we hadn't had a good animal story in so long, I finally had to. The lady involved grudgingly said I could use the story but not her name.

The lady's cat had some kittens but she didn't like sharing them with anyone so she kept finding new hiding places for her charges.

Having been evicted from the bookshelves, the cat then moved the little ones behind and inside the television. Apparently, the situation got too hot for them so the mother moved them behind the couch.

But the kittens started dying one by one, possibly because of the heat in the television.

Finally, there was only one little kitten left. It was still alive after a few days of being sick and as it was the last one, the mother was paying special attention to it.

The last hiding place the mother found was the best — no one could find the baby.

The next day, the lady got home from work and went to the washroom to take a load of clothes out of the washer. The mother cat jumped up on the washer and kept peering inside. She seemed rather agitated and kept walking back and forth and sticking her head in the washer.

The lady looked in also to see if she could figure out what was bothering the cat.

And that's where she found the kitten. It was definitely a very clean kitten, but it was also very dead.

The lady naturally felt terrible about the kitten but she was consoling herself that it would probably have died anyway. But her teen-age son didn't see it that way. He spent the afternoon telling the mother cat, "'Mom killed your kitten, I understand how you feel."

Of course no one else will let her forget she washed her cat. She's been recommended to several people as a cat cleaner and to a few more, as a cat killer.

She could have written the book, "1001 ways to kill a cat." But she didn't.

commentary

The special relationship that has existed between the United States and Japan since the end of World War II is suddenly under unprecedented strain.

The details are public knowledge. plenty of headline material having been provided by the rash of unforeseen and unfortunate incidents:

—The sinking of a Japanese freighter in a collision with a U.S. nuclear submarine.

—The cutting of Japanese fishing nets in the course of American naval exercises in the Sea of Japan.

—An act of political harikari in the resignation of the Japanese foreign minister to atone for the appearance of the word "alliance" in the communique concluding Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's visit to Washington.

—Revived controversy over U.S. nuclear weapons in Japan.

Add to these the long-running trade imbalance that in the issue of U.S. auto imports has achieved the status of a crisis, plus a politically sensitive military relationship in which U.S. forces provide Japan's first and virtually last lines of defense, and it might appear that we're concentrating on the wrong aspect of the situation. What we really ought to be doing, rather than viewing with alarm, is congratulating ourselves that the diplomats in Washington and Tokyo are still on speaking terms.

As a matter of fact, there is one very interested party who does believe we do not have the American-Japanese relationship in the proper perspective and backs up his argument with a number of points:

—Japan has made genuine efforts to accommodate American trade complaints, and furthermore the exchange isn't all that imbalanced with Japan, by far the leading customer for U.S. agricultural exports.

—Japan has also been the most accommodating U.S. ally on several sensitive international issues—Afghanistan, to name one—supporting the U.S. position at some economic cost to itself.

—As for defense, Americans may supply the forces but Japanese supply the essential foreward bases plus support funds on the order of $1 billion annually. Without the Japanese connection, the American frontline would be pushed back to Hawaii and Guam.

What Japanese spokesman argues this case? A particularly well-placed one—U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield, who if not precisely a Japanese spokesman is certainly a persuasive spokesman for Japan.

During the present troubled period, he has been repeating with even more emphasis than usual the convictions he has held and been expressing since long before his appointment to the Tokyo post. Mansfield is an old Far East hand, having served there with the Marines and, early in his distinguished 36-year congressional career, having served President Franklin D. Roosevelt on special missions to China.

So he knew the territory when he was called from brief congressional retirement in 1977 by President Carter, a move that was then regarded as smart politics and has since proved to be exceptionally smart diplomacy. The Japanese recognize and appreciate his expertise and honesty in representing not only the United States in Tokyo, but Japan in the power centers of Washington.

For Mansfield, any differences Americans and Japanese may have as nations are manageable and secondary to the interests they share in jointly maintaining peace and stability in the vast Pacific basin. Their relationship is not only specal, it is the most important in the world.

When he makes the case, it's difficult to argue with it. But even he omits one of the most important contributions to a properly positive perspective on Japanese-American relations in a period of unprecendented strain:

The presence of Mike Mansfield in Tokyo.

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rate watchers have been studying the gap in recent days, and now declare they've never seen anything to match it.

They suggest that if you want to guess where the economy is headed you too should view the Grand Canyon of the monetary world, the gap, or the difference between the inflation and interest rates.

Here is one measure of its vast breadth:

Inflation, averaged over the past 12 months or so, has been about 10 percent, but the current prime rate is around 20 percent. That makes the gap 10 points, versus a historical average of 3 points or so.

The gap is dramatized even more by comparing the prime interest rate with the 4.9 percent annual rate of consumer price inflation in April. That way, the gap comes to about 15 percentage points.

Compare inflation with new issues of "AAA" Bell Telephone bonds and you also come up with a big gap, in the single digits but still much, much larger than what might be expected in more normal times.

However measured, the gap is the "widest in memory," says Albert Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. "Something's got to give."

Which is to say, the gap is bound to grow narrower. But how? More inflation? Lower interest?

Fortunes are won and lost on such guesses, but Cox, for one, thinks interest rates will fall. And, in fact, there are indications the drop may have begun from the recent prime rate high of 20.5 percent.

"Interest rates are bound to give," he says, "and probably soon." He lists these reasons:

"Lower monetary growth is necessary and that prerequisite is likely to be met in the months ahead. Look also for the following relevant news items: a price freeze by OPEC, downward revisions of food price forecasts, a string of weak economic reports, and a tax cut compromise by the White House accompanied by lower prospective budget deficits."

And finally, "single-digit inflation is likely to be reported during most months of this year's second half."

Cox will get some arguments about his views which, of course, is par for the economics craft. There are some, for example, who feel the gap might be narrowed by higher prices, and they are prepared to defend their views. Inflation, they say, will again flow like the Colorado.

To The Daily News:

Shame on you do-gooders and liberals. For the past dozen years, you twisted the savings and loan company arms to make loans that no prudent banker would make.

Now the savings and loans are in trouble and the do-gooders and liberals are the ones that want the government to let them go bankrupt. There is no better place to use the oil windfall profit tax than to bail out the savings and loan companies.

Mr. and Mrs. O.H. Wilkinson will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on June 14 from 2-5 p.m. in the Blue Room of the Kermit State Bank in Kermit, Texas.

The event will be hosted by their children, grandchildren and friends, Russell, Betty, Wes and Lois Jean Heastand. All friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson were married on June 16, 1931, in Post and lived there before moving to Colorado City. They moved to Snyder afterwards where they lived for 10 years while Mr. Wilkinson farmed.

Presently, the Wilkinsons live in Kermit where Mr. Wilkinson is employed by the City of Kermit and Mrs. Wilkinson enjoys crochet, quilting and her eight grandchildren.

A plan was under way in New Orleans to rescue Napolen from the island of St. Helena and install him in the mayor's house in New Orleans. The expedition was to be led by Dominique You, former pirate and hero of the Battle of New Orleans, but Napoleon died before the mission was accomplished. The mayor's house still stands in New Orleans and is celebrated there as the "Napoleon House."

The 1932 Vanderbilt Cup was won by the team of P. Hal Sims, Willard Karn, Harold S. Vanderbilt and Waldemar von Zedtwitz.

Waldy, who is now 85 and won the event in 1930, is one of the four of five greatest players of all time. His eyes have made it impossible for him to play serious bridge now. His last great success came in 1970 when he won the world's mixed pair championship with Barbara Brier.

Here is the most important hand in the 1932 Vanderbilt. The other table had finished some time back and it was known to the other players and the press that the Sims team was 310 points behind coming to that board. Sims and Karn had picked up 100 points by beating a four-spade contract two tricks, but Vanderbilt and Zedtwitz had to bid and make a game to win the match. They did both.

West led the king of hearts and shifted to a low spade. A trump shift would have cooked Waldy's goose.

He played dummy's jack. East took his ace and led a trump. Waldy thought several minutes and finally won in his hand. He ruffed a heart, played dummy's ace of clubs, ruffed a club, ruffed another heart with dummy's king of trumps, ruffed another club back to his hand, cashed his last two trumps, entered dummy with the king of spades and made the final two tricks with dummy's remaining clubs.

BEAUTY DIGEST

Diane Robbens

Keep your incentive strong by choosing an exercise that's the opposite of your daily activities. Stuck behind a desk for hours? Pick something active and vigorous, such as running or racquetball. Are you busy chasing after toddlers? You need a calming routine, such as yoga or modern dance. If your job demands a lot of self-control — teaching, for example — try an exercise that releases pent-up emotions. How about karate? The point is that a change of pace will help you stick to your exercise plan.

Actress Monique Van Vooren told Beauty Digest some of her beauty secrets: "My eyes are my outstanding feature, so I rim the under part of the upper lid with a soft black pencil. My worst feature is my too-thin upper lip. With a soft auburn pencil, I trace my lip slightly above its normal shape."

Big Tourist Attraction...

Italy Has War Of Statues

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — After 2,500 years under the Ionian Sea, two bronze warriors have jumped into the spotlight, rivaling Florence's main tourist attractions and triggering a national controversy about what city should have the right to keep them.

"We had never seen tourists scuffling to see two statues," said a museum employee in Florence, where the statues are now being shown.

The bronzes, which some believe are the work of the 5th century B.C. Greek sculptor Phidias, went on display quietly in an obscure Florentine museum in January.

The lifesize figures, weighing 990 pounds each, are impressive works of craftsmanship and have been carefully restored. One, with a headband, stands mightily, with his left foot forward and his muscles tense. The other is more relaxed and has a pensive expression.

They are so perfectly preserved, visitors can see details such as the veins on the bodies, silverplated teeth and copper eyelashes.

"Their physical presence is so powerful that people reach out to touch them," said another museum official.

Italian newspapers say that Werner Fuchs, a prominent German archeologist and professor at the University of Munster, believes the bronzes are an early work of Phidias, regarded as one of the greatest Greek sculptors. None of Phidias' original work has been discovered, although there are many Roman copies of his statues.

The bronzes were the unusual catch of a Roman swimmer in the summer of 1972. Stefano Mariottini was skin-diving off the coast of Riace, a town in the southern Italian region of Calabria, when he spotted a darkened forearm sticking out of the bottom of the sea, 26 feet below the surface.

Experts soon found a second bronze lying nearby. The Riace townspeople, in a scene resembling a Fellini movie, tried to erect them immediately in the middle of the village square.

National laws controlling the discovery of art works dictated that the bronzes be restored, so the statues were moved to the National Museum of Reggio Calabria, Calabria's provincial capital, and from there to the National Center for Restoration in Florence.

The Ministry of Culture decided that the pair was to return to the National Museum in Reggio Calabria as soon as the seven-year restoration project was finished.

Soon after the work was completed, however, the Florence Archeological Museum got the ministry's permission to exhibit the bronzes for two weeks and they went on display without much fanfare in January.

Anonymity didn't last long. Italian President Sandro Pertini, on his way to another exhibit, dropped by to see the bronzes. Stunned by their beauty, he asked authorities to extend the exhibit to give more people a chance to see the masterpieces before they were returned to Calabria.

In the national tug-of-war over the possession of the bronzes, a new contender has sprung up: the town of Riace.

"The bronzes," the townspeople of Riace said, "must be returned home."

Gonzalez Nixes Pay Increase

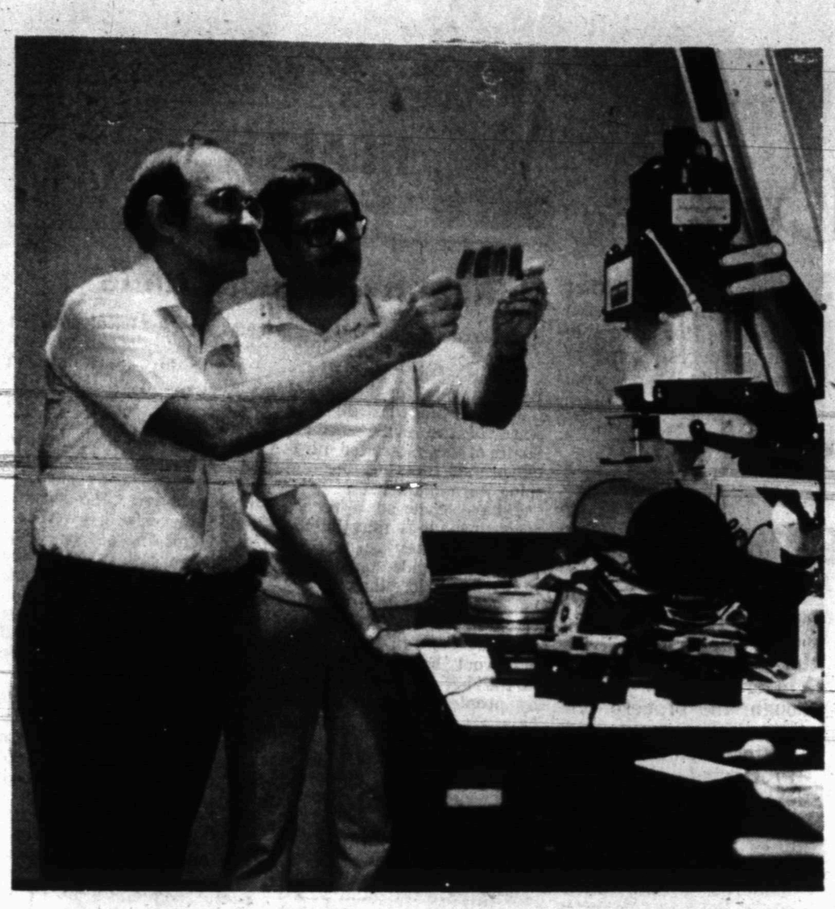

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, has issued a verbal blast at the decision by the House Armed Services Committee against giving a 5.3 percent pay raise on July 1 to members of the military.

The committee, acting on President Reagan's recommendation, has introduced legislation that would give men and women in the military a 14.3 percent raise on Oct. 1 rather than giving a 5.3 percent hike in July followed by a 9.1 percent raise in October.

"It is faulty reasoning to claim that a savings of $420 million for a 3-month period is such a tremendous help to the national deficit when this administration is doing nothing to reduce what has to be paid out in interest," Gonzalez said.

In his San Antonio district, the loss in expected additional pay for the three months would be approximately $6 million for the 41,350 active military personnel, Gonzalez said.

PICTURE PERFECT—Dr. Edward Barkowsky and Gerald Corkran, who will be teaching Fun with Photography in the Scurry County Museum, are shown in the darkroom where students will learn film processing and printing. Students in grades 4-6 interested in the course need to register as soon as possible so arrangements for supplies can be made before classes begin June 22.

Fun With Photography Class For Kollege Kids

Fun with photography will be offered by the Scurry County Museum's Kollege for Kids in classes meeting June 22-July 2.

A field trip to the Abilene Zoo on June 26 will be an added attraction of the photography course, planned for students in grades 4-6.

Because of the cost of supplies which must be ordered in advance for the course, it is requested that students planning to enroll call the museum office as quickly as possible to make arrangements for registration. A minimum enrollment of 13 will be required if the course is to be offered, with maximum enrollment set at 16.

Dr. Edward Barkowsky and Gerald Corkran, both members of the Western Texas College faculty, will be instructors for the course. They will be introducing the students to the basic principles of photography, including picture composition and lighting, and students will work in the darkroom to develop film and make prints.

Classes are to meet from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., Monday through Thursday, for the two-week period, with the Abilene trip the only Friday activity. Fees are $30 per person.

Persons wishing further information about the course are invited to contact either the instructors or the museum office.

Border Patrol

Arrests Twelve

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Twelve Mexicans farm workers awaited deportation hearings today after their arrest at a migrant labor camp near here.

Deputy Chief Patrol Agent William Dickman of the U.S. Border Patrol said Wednesday that a tip led to the arrests earlier in the day of the two women and 10 men, whose ages range from 18 to 48.

"Someone down there who was approached to hire these people for work said he didn't want to hire them because they didn't have documents, and that person contacted the state police," he said. "They were absolutely documentless."

Dickman said the Mexicans told authorities that after picking oranges in Florida since February, they had been brought to Western New York in the back of a camper truck.

"We know at least three were smuggled in by an organized smuggling ring through Eagle Pass, Texas," he said.

The agent added that the ailens had said that after paying between $350 and $650, they were smuggled to a "safe house" in Houston, before being transported to Florida.

After being charged with entering the country without an inspection, the 12 were placed in the Erie County Correctional Facility at Alden, in lieu of $1,500 bail each, pending a formal deportation hearing.

While it is not unusual for illegal aliens to be among migrant workers during the summer picking season, Dickman said the arrest of 12 at one time is "significant."

The British 8th Army under Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery launched an offensive on Oct. 24, 1942, against Axis forces at El Alamein. After a heavy preliminary bombardment along a six-mile front, the way was cleared through minefields and tank traps for an armored breakthrough that led to Tunisia and the clearing of Axis forces from all North Africa during World War II.

The secret to a real enchilada.
EL MONTERREY BRAND ENCHILADA SAUCE
NET WT. 4 OZ.
MAKES ONE QUART

FOR over forty-five years a popular Mexican Food Restaurant in Clovis, New Mexico has seasoned enchiladas and other Mexican food specialties with a unique blend of Southwest herbs and spices with outstanding success and acclaim. Now their secret is yours with El Monterrey Enchilada Sauce. El Monterrey will make your meal a sure winner. Try the recipe below, we think you'll agree enchiladas have never before tasted so good.

Real Enchiladas:
1. Soften tortillas by briefly dipping them in cooking oil heated to medium/high and lay them flat on a cookie sheet.
2. Cover the tortillas with El Monterrey Enchilada Sauce on both sides.
3. Spread 1 to 2 Tbl. of chopped onion, 1/4 cup grated cheese and 1/4 cup browned ground beef diagonally on each.
4. Roll the tortillas and cover with El Monterrey Enchilada Sauce; sprinkle with additional grated cheese and bake at 350-400 degrees for approximately 15-25 minutes until the cheese is melted inside the enchilada and out.

House Consideration Next...

Senate Okays Food Stamp Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's proposal to drop nearly 1 million persons from the food stamp program and reduce benefits for millions more has gone to the House after overwhelming Senate approval.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, said the Senate bill, similar to one pending in the House, "minimizes the impact of the president's budget cuts on the poor people of this country."

Dole, chairman of the Agriculture subcommittee on nutrition, said Wednesday's action also restores "an image of dignity and integrity to the food stamp program."

In other congressional business Wednesday:

—Budget Director David Stockman had an evening meeting with House Republican leaders to discuss how to keep the Democratic majority from unraveling the president's budget-cutting blueprint on the House floor.

Stockman said afterwards that some committees are not following the "letter or spirit" of the blueprint as they scramble to meet a Friday deadline to slash $35 billion from the budget for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

Republicans say they will try to convince conservative Democrats to join them on the floor to substitute the president's cuts for any deviations backed by Democratic leaders and approved by the Budget Committee.

—The president's tax advisers, saying they have the votes to enact his three-year tax-reduction plan, were having no part of proposed Democratic compromise to implement the final year's cuts only if inflation is contained.

—A report adopted by the House Government Operations Committee concluded that the administration, by adopting policies "suggestive of amnesty," has systematically gutted Energy Department efforts to prosecute major oil companies for up to $7 billion in alleged illegal overcharges when domestic prices were controlled.

—The Senate Banking Committeee voted to cut federal housing subsidies by more than $20 billion, give local officials more control over housing aid and raise rents for tenants in subsidized housing.

—The House Education and Labor Committee approved plans to cut $12 billion from child nutrition, Head Start, school aid, assistance to the handicapped and public employment programs. The cuts would eliminate the Youth Conservation Corps and student loans to families making more than $25,000 a year.

Chairman Carl Perkins, D-Ky., said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Rules Committee Chairman Richard Bolling, D-Mo. guaranteed him "that we will be allowed several votes on the House floor in order to reverse some of the worst cuts."

Fringe Benefit

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — One of the newest fringe benefits for employees is group auto insurance. The coverage developed by Provident Life, designed to save employees money, cannot be canceled.

Tampa Federal Savings and Loan Association, for example, pays 50 percent of the cost of its employees' auto-insurance premium. There is only one rate regardless of vehicle and driving record.

Officials Wonder How To Enforce Program

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Immigration officials say they wonder how they could enforce a proposed temporary "guest worker" program and still ensure that participants return to Mexico once their permits expire.

"We let someone in on a temporary basis and they want to stay. They see so many things are so much better here," said Larry Richardson, chief agent for the McAllen sector of the U.S. Border Patrol.

President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo talked about such a program this week as a means to relieve economic pressure many poor Mexican nationals feel to illegally enter the United States.

Richardson and other South Texas immigration officials said Wednesday they have not been consulted about the plan but feel it could work if implemented correctly.

"If they were selective with the people admitted, it's a feasible idea," said Robert Wooten, a 19-year Border Patrol veteran in Brownsville. "They should be screened to weed out those with a prior record who would be a poor risk."

"From what I have read about this, the program proposed by Gov. Bill Clements, they would be allowed to seek employment anywhere in the United States. This would create a problem," said Hal Bouldin, district director for the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Since 1979, Clements has backed a program to let Mexican citizens enter the country legally and find jobs anywhere for a limited time.

Bouldin questioned how American officials could keep track of each worker. Immigration agents say many foreigners are admitted temporarily but decide to stay illegally.

"It would be a physical impossibility to check every one of these people," said Wooten.

"I don't know what the immigration service would do if a lot of them were admitted and went to the East or Northeast, places that are not policed, per se, by the border patrol," Wooten said. "They'd have to make drastic changes in the immigration service."

Initial proposals seem to differ from the bracero program of the 1950s in which Mexican nationals contracted for work at specific agricultural jobs.

The bracero program has been criticized by Mexican-American civil rights groups as amounting to "legal slavery."

In terms of enforcement, though, the bracero program was easy to administer, Bouldin said.

Processing centers in Mexico gave bracero participants their documents and assignments, he said, and that aspect should be considered if the guest worker program ever is implemented.

"It would seem to me if they are not processed outside the United States, we would have to have large processing centers set up at the border," Bouldin said. "We do not have a facility to handle that now."

Employers who hire illegal aliens currently are not subject to penalty. Under a guest worker program, sanctions against employers who knowingly hire undocumented workers have been proposed.

Although many workers would enter the United States through South Texas, most probably would head north for construction and higher paying jobs, Richardson said.

Incentive Bill Is Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to give small, independent Texas natural gas producers more incentive to produce high-cost forms of natural gas has been introduced by Rep. Jack Fields, R-Humble.

Congress provided economic incentives through two pieces of legislation over the past three years.

But because of mechanical problems, Fields said, many high-cost natural gas producers are barred from either the credit of the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Tax Act or the special pricing standards of the Natural Gas Policy Act.

The strict filing requirements prevent producers from refiling for any special price following expiration of the tax credit, but the tax credit was linked to the price of oil at $32.50 per gallon and thus has expired. .

The Fields bill, similar to one introduced in the Senate by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, would correct an oversight by reverting to 1978 filing requirements.

Unhealthy 'miracle' diets

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please, please, for the sake of foolish people who are unaware of the evils to their health of these so-called miracle protein diets print something warning them.

I have enclosed a recent magazine ad. It may be the old liquid protein scam. Help people to understand they may not only lose their money but also their health.

DEAR READER — If I had my way most of these products would be outlawed. Some of the diet preparations used by people to reduce do not have the amount of essential amino acids that the label indicates. This was pointed out in an article in the Journal of American Dietetic Association (September 1980). The report dealt with analysis of predigested protein. The products analyzed had relatively low levels of essential amino acids, the ones you need for life that your body can't manufacture from other foods.

One of the ads you sent me was the usual misleading advertising that spoke of losing pounds, but didn't mention pounds of what. The large weight losses in those instances is usually from water loss, not loss of ugly body fat. Losing normal body water is dangerous to your health. Think of it as having a wilted body similar to a wilted plant.

Even strict diets of good quality protein that provide only 600 calories a day are not healthy. Good studies have shown that any weight losing program that induces a rapid loss of weight is usually not healthy.

The dangerous side of our national pastime of dieting is discussed in detail in The Health Letter number 16-2, Dangerous Dieting, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The dangers include death from chemical imbalances that cause fatal irregularities of the heart, loss of hair, loss of sexual capacity and many other problems. The sensible way to diet is with a well-balanced diet and exercise that results in losing about 500 calories a day. That provides for a loss of about one pound of body fat a week. You can lose weight with some fad diets but you take a terrible risk.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there such a thing as the opposite of anorexia nervosa? I am a normally active 22-year-old male. I'm 6 feet and weigh 175 pounds. I am constantly eating because I honestly feel I will lose weight if I don't. The fact that all this eating does not put any weight on me doesn't help either. Do I have a valid problem?

DEAR READER — Maybe. If you are not fat and are not adding weight with your present diet, it is clear that you are in caloric balance, meaning you are only eating as many calories as you use. That is fine.

Now, if you are really eating an enormous number of calories just to maintain your weight, you might need to think of why. If you are very active you could be using a lot of calories.

Two medical conditions that relate to consuming lots of calories and failing to gain weight, or actually losing weight, are diabetes and an overactive thyroid gland. In that case there are other symptoms as well. Diabetics, for example, drink lots of water.

However, if you are not gaining weight your eating is not a psychological problem, as anorexia nervosa is.

Power Failure Hits Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A faulty valve and a malfunction in a backup generator knocked out electrical service, police and emergency communications, traffic signals and air conditioners on a day when temperatures soared to 100 degrees, officials said.

The malfunctions at the city-owned electrical power plant created hardships and inconvenience but caused no injuries Wednesday afternoon, officials said.

Because Lubbock is served by two electric utility companies, the failure at the Lubbock Power & Light Co. plant knocked out power only to about half of the city.

City Manager Larry Cunningham said the blackout started when a valve on a boiler stuck allowing too much water into the boiler. The boiler automatically shut down and a second backup generator malfunctioned.

The power failed at 2:40 p.m. for all of the LP&L's 34,000 customers. Officials said power was restored to most customers by 5 p.m. and to the entire system by 8 p.m.

The blackout knocked out police radio communications for a short time and all the city's traffic control signals. But police said the failure came during a shift change and gave them the increase manpower to direct traffic at major intersections.

Dear Abby

Deaf Woman Dumbfounded By Con Man's Game

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last September a man came to my door and asked me if I had anything that needed to be fixed, so I gave him my hearing aid. He said he would bring it back in three days in perfect condition if I would give him $25, so I gave him the cash. Well, I never saw him or my hearing aid after that, and my hearing aid cost me $398 new! I don't know what company he was with or what his name was, as I forgot to ask him. I know it was dumb of me, but he had the nicest smile.

I would like to get my hearing aid back. Answer soon because my husband is sick of yelling at me.

DEAF AS HELL IN INDIANA

DEAR DEAF: With no name, no company, no receipt and no clue as to who the man was, you are out of luck. But your experience might serve to remind other trusting souls to check out such characters before handing over anything of value.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago, I met you and your husband at a dinner party in Tulsa. I was 47, weighed 205 and smoked two packs a day. When I asked if you objected if I smoked during dinner, you said, "You'll do us both a favor if you don't."

I want you to know that I have reformed, but it took some bad news to do it. Two and a half years ago, my doctor found some cancerous tissue on my tongue and he ordered me to quit smoking, lose weight and shape up. Today I'm down to 170, don't smoke and I'm in great shape. How did I do it? I took up running.

I've put together some suggestions for people who are considering running. You may want to pass them on to your readers:

1. Have a physical examination to see that everything is pumping all right.
2. Get a good pair of shoes. Otherwise, your feet will hate you. A common malady among runners is a black toe, which is caused by a blister developing beneath a toenail that rubs against a poorly fitting shoe.

Don't let a pair of cheap socks come between you and your shoes. Buy athletic socks with cushioned soles.

3. Start slowly and work your way up to longer distances.
4. Don't hop in the car and drive home immediately after completing your run. It's as important to warm down as it is to warm up. Walk around a while and do some leg-stretching exercises.

Most of all, don't get discouraged. Your muscles won't always hurt. Warm regards,

LINDSAY ALEXANDER

DEAR ABBY: You recently received a letter from a man who was troubled by being called "Reverend" (which also makes me cringe), and you indicated that his last name should be used with the title. That implied the addition of the last name would make everything fine. Ten lashes with an English grammar book!

Though it is the style among some Protestants to use the title as you say, the word is an adjective, not a noun. To say "Reverend Jones" is the equivalent of addressing a judge as "Honorable Smith." Either "Father" — if the man is a priest — or "Mister" — if a minister — is all that ought to be expected. I do not know what one should call the new Protestant Episcopal priestesses. How about "Mother"?

Legendary Texas Ranger Is Dead

DALLAS (AP) — Rufus Van Zandt figured he had been lucky in his life, fortunate to have dodged most of the bullets fired his way — luckier than the desperados who crossed his path.

He had been a Texas Ranger, a federal prohibition agent, a hunter and a soldier in two different armies.

Van Zandt once said he had been the target of so many bullets during his 50-year career that he felt lonely when he wasn't being shot at.

They buried the legendary Ranger today, more than 86 years after he was born in Huntland, Tenn. He died of a heart ailment Monday at Sam Rayburn Veteran's Hospital in Bonham.

Van Zandt killed his first man in Sonora, Mexico, when working as a cattle guard he caught a Mexican soldier cutting a steer from the herd.

"I had two choices then. Join the Mexican army or be arrested and shot," he said in a January 1980 interview with The Dallas Morning News.

He joined, but during his first battle he deserted on the colonel's horse, riding for 32 nights and hiding for 32 days until he returned to the United States.

In the years that followed, he lost count of the men he had killed and the men who had tried to kill him.

"My brother got to figuring it once, and when he reached 15, I told him to quit," he said.

"I came so close to being killed, it's not funny. I missed several times when I wished I hadn't. I've been in some very tight places when I wished I'd never been born," Van Zandt once said. "I've been very lucky. God has been good to me."

Van Zandt hired out as a horse breaker in Cheyenne, Wyo., and when World War I broke out, he enlisted.

He accompanied Gen. John J. Pershing in his 1916 expedition into Mexico in pursuit of Pancho Villa. In 1917, he was sent overseas, where he hit by shrapnel, shot by a machine gun and was gassed during the Champagne-Marne offensive in 1918.

When he returned to Texas he enlisted as one of 33 Texas Rangers. He patrolled a territory that covered 79 counties from San Antonio to El Paso.

Later he became a prohibition agent for the Justice Department, but said the government "had tamer ideas about shooting. We were told not to shoot unless shot at. I thought that was a little on the silly side."

During his stint as a federal agent, Van Zandt said, "I was getting shot at every day. If I was not getting shot at, I felt lonesome."

In March 1928, he began operating dude ranches that took big game hunting and fishing parties all over the world.

During World War II, he was a Special Services intelligence officer.

Witness Testifies In Trial

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Admitted con artist Ben Tabor testified Wednesday that he accepted $12,000 dollars to hire a hit man to kill a Baytown couple and began to fear for his own life because he never actually produced the killer.

Tabor, 45, said he "conned" convicted murderer Vernon McManus and his accused conspirator Vernon Olney out of the cash, then invented a fictitious hit man he called "Irv."

The bodies of Paul Cantrell, an electrical contractor, and his wife, Mary, were found in their Baytown home July 25, 1976. Their throats had been slashed.

Tabor's testimony came during Olney's second conspiracy trial. Olney's 1978 trial in Wichita Falls ended with a hung jury.

The slain couple's daughter, Paul Cantrell Derese, is serving a life sentence for her part in the murders and McManus was assessed the death penalty for killing Cantrell. Prosecutors contend there was a plot to murder the couple and split the insurance money.

Tabor told the jury that he was contacted by Olney and McManus in 1976.

"They wanted to know if I could find a hit man, a killer," he said.

Tabor said he told the men he had arranged for a man named "Irv" to carry out the killings "at the right time" and testified that McManus, in Olney's presence, gave him $6,000 in advance.

He said McManus later called him at his lake home near Austin and suggested that "Irv" could carry out the killings when the Cantrells came to Austin for a golf tournament.

A few days later, Tabor said, Olney called and asked that "Irv" not carry out the killings. However, Olney eventually contacted him again, said he was "back in all the way," and gave him the second $6,000, Tabor said.

Tabor said he began to fear for his life when the two men questioned the lack of action. Tabor testified he told the two that "Irv" had become ill after going to Ohio "for a job."

"I feared for my life because I felt they knew they had been conned," he said.

$7 Billion In Construction...

House Approves Military Bill

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost $7 billion in military construction — including more than $125 million for Texas — has been passed by the House and sent to the Senate for its approval.

The chief Texas beneficiaries would be Carswell Air Force Base, whose main project would be $32.7 million in air-launched cruise missile support facilities, and Fort Hood, which would get almost $16 million in classroom, shop and other facilities.

About $1 million for data processing facilities has been earmarked for each of several Air Force bases in Texas.

Congress, giving its stamp of approval to a plea from the Defense Department, earmarked more money in the past "to improve work places, quality of life facilities and living conditions for service personnel."

The measure was passed 311 to 36, with 20 of the 24 Texas congressmen among the majority. Rep. Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, was the only member of the delegation voting against it. Democratic Reps. Mickey Leland of Houston, Richard White of El Paso and Ralph Hall of Rockwall didn't vote.

Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, occupied the chair and moderated over the 5½-hour discussion that preceded the vote last Thursday.

The bill authorizes total construction of $6.98 billion, about $50 million less than the Department of Defense had requested.

The Armed Services Committee recommended the legislation, saying it had heard repeatedly that recruitment and retention problems "are related to compensation issues and living conditions."

The construction for the active forces cover 773 projects at 399 major military installations in the United States and overseas. Among them are 80 projects designed to improve workplaces, enhance housing conditions and provide for additional quality of life facilities for military personnel.

These projects include additional family housing units, shipyard modernization efforts, training barracks, maintenance facilities, utility improvements, enlisted personnel housing, and Guard and Reserve facilities.

California gets more than any other state, $332 million, with Texas seventh. Behind California are Washington with $225 million, Virginia with $208 million, Georgia with $160 million, Ohio with $130 million, Maryland with $130 million and then Texas.

House Tries To Prevent Rental Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two bills have been introduced in the House to try to cut into the growing number of rental housing units that are being converted to condominiums.

In the five years from 1977 to 1981, there were 9,500 units converted to condominiums in Dallas-Fort Worth and 24,000 in Houston, according to data submitted by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-New York, to accompany his legislation.

The largest totals were in New York-Long Island, where 103,000 units that were being rented have been turned into condos since 1977.

Among other cities listed were Atlanta 5,000, Chicago 69,000, Denver 14,800, Los Angeles 34,500, Miami-Fort Lauderdale 25,000, phoenix 4,700 and Washington 41,500.

"Most renters simply cannot afford to follow the trend," said Rosenthal, whose bill would place a 2-year moratorium on condominium conversions and would amend tax laws to slow down "excessive" speculation.

Woman Is Scratched By Zoo Wildcats

DALLAS (AP) — A woman who was "totally covinced she is a lion or tiger" was scratched when she climbed over the fence that separates spectators from the wildcat cages at the Dallas Zoo Thursday.

"She was very lucky," added Dallas police officer D.A. Zook.

The 34-year-old woman was arrested for investigation of lunacy and transported to Parkland Memorial Hospital.

She was released from police custody, however, after she signed herself into the psychiatric ward. No treatment was necessary for the abrasion, which either came from a spotted leopard or the chain-link fence, officers said.

Zoo Director Larry O. Calvin said the woman climbed over the fence about 12:30 p.m.

"She had taken her shoes off and pushed them through the fence, trying to attract the cats," he said.

"She was annoying and teasing the cats. It's a rare occurrence when somebody does that. It's dangerous. They're wild animals. They're unpredictable. You never know how they will respond, especially when around a stranger."

The woman's shoes were found in a cage with three spotted leopards, although the heel to one of the shoes was in an adjacent cage with the black leopards.

"The police came and tried to talk to her," said a zoo caretaker. "The way she put it, she wasn't afraid of them, and they wouldn't hurt her."

When officers asked her if she would like to see a psychiatrist, she said yes and told them she had been a psychiatric patient at the hospital before, Zook said.

QUILT DISPLAY—Two of the quilts to be shown in the Scurry County Museum quilt exhibit opening Sunday are displayed by Sharon Sutton, museum director. On her lap is a colorful Lone Star quilt loaned by Mrs. Hugh Taylor. She holds a Flower Basket quilt donated to the museum by the family of the late Mrs. Wade Winston.

Scurry Museum Quilt Show Set

The Scurry county Museum at Western Texas College will open a new quilt show with a reception from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Sunday.

Most of the quilts in the exhibit are antiques, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said. The exhibit will remain in place through July 31, sharing the spotlight with an exhibit of photographs titled "Niches" from the National Park Service. On June 21, the museum will open an exhibit of paintings by the Scurry County Artist-of-the Month for June.

An added attraction for this year's quilt show will be a demonstration workshop conducted by Frances Daniel from 1:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. on July 15.

She will be talking about "Quick Techniques for Making Quilts." there will be a registration fee of $2 per person for those attending, and light refreshments will be served.

"Our quilt show has been very popular in years past, and we are always delighted to have the opportunity to display quilts for the enjoyment of visitors from throughout this area," said Sharon Sutton, museum director.

"Anyone who would like more information about the workshop is invited to call the museum office for details."

The museum office may be contacted by calling 573-6107 or 573-8511, extension 210.

Judge Denies Injunction...

Baseball Season Could Be Disrupted

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"Play ball!" said U.S. District Judge Henry Werker.

But Werker's ruling, issued in New York, could cause the 1981 baseball season to end - or at least be disrupted - following tonight's games.

"Hopefully there might be some serious negotiations to avoid the strike," said Doug DeCinces, Baltimore Orioles third baseman and player representative for the American League. "There is always that possibility."

Negotiations between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee were scheduled to resume this morning in New York with the prospect of a shortened season in the balance.

Twice in the last 13 months, last-minute agreements have staved off a players' walkout. The National Labor Relations Board went to court last week, presenting its case for an unfair labor practice complaint and seeking an injunction.

In denying the injunction, which would have delayed a strike for a year, Werker said there was "no reasonable cause to believe an unfair labor practice has been committed" by the club owners. "The petition is therefore dismissed."

William Lubbers, general counsel to the NLRB, was expected to announce today whether he will recommend that the board appeal Werker's decision. Lubbers said Wednesday that the decision "will have to be studied closely" before the board decides whether to appeal the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second District in New York.

Lubbers said that if an appeal is taken, the board also may seek a stay pending appeal to delay the strike deadline.

The players had charged to the NLRB that the owners' refusal to release their clubs' financial records violated fair labor practice laws. But Werker, who held two days of hearings last week in Rochester, N.Y., ruled in favor of the club owners on every issue.

"It would seem less than forthright if I didn't tell you I am elated by the judge's decision," said Ray Grebey, the owners' chief negotiator. "We went in believing we were right, and when a federal court says you're right, it can't help but make you feel good."

Rose Ties Hit Record As Phillies Top Astros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Pete Rose tied Stan Musial for the all-time National League career hit record of 3,630, but if the major league baseball strike materializes it may be some time before he breaks the record.

A federal judge Wednesday dismissed a National Labor Relations Board charge of unfair labor practices against baseball's owners in negotiations with the Major League Players Association.

Unless the players and owners reach agreement on compensation for free agents, the players have indicated they'll strike by Friday.

Rose said he didn't want to get involved with the labor problems although he backed the players association.

"I'll be at the ball park at 8:05 Friday night hoping to get a hit off (Atlanta's) Gaylord Perry, or Saturday night against Phil Niekro," said the 40-year-old Rose, noting, "They're both older than me."

Rose singled in the first inning Thursday night during the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros for the record-tying hit, then he struck out three times against one of the game's best fastball pitchers, Nolan Ryan.

Rose was happy about his latest milestone and pleased with the Phillies' five-run eighth inning rally that produced the victory.

He admitted, however, that he was disappointed with himself.

"I thought I would get two or three hits after that first one," Rose said. "But if Ryan threw every pitch like he did tonight, I'd be going for my 1,000th hit instead of 3,631."

Ryan said he was pitching at his best, adding, "If he had got a hit, I would have tipped my hat to him."

Rose said he saw the ball well on the three strikeouts, but some of the pitches he just heard.

A crowd of 57,386 stood and cheered with every pitch to Rose, who received a standing ovation after his leadoff hit in the first.

His mother, Laverne Noeth was there from Florida. His son and daughter were there. Musial sat behind the Phillies' dugout. And Willie Mays, like Musial, a Hall of Famer, had come from Atlantic City, N.J., where he is a promotion man for a casino.

API Tourney Set For The Weekend

The annual API-SPE Golf Tournament will be held June 13 at Snyder Country Club. A dance and barbecue dinner are among the activities included.

Entry fee for the tournament is $15 and includes the barbecue, to be held following the single-day meet. A pre-tournament dance, featuring Sidney Porter and the Country Boys, will be held June 12 from 8:30-midnight and is $10 per person.

Rangers Keep Winning String

MILWAUKEE (AP) - It used to be said that the Texas Rangers had abundant talent, but two conspicuous weaknesses - July and August.

But while it is barely mid-June, the Rangers give every indication that they will be in the American League West race to stay.

They surged to within one game of first place Oakland Wednesday night by whipping the Milwaukee Brewers 12-5. Buddy Bell led the Rangers with a three-run homer and two-run single, while Jim Sundberg knocked in three runs with a homer and triple and Leon Roberts hit a bases-empty homer and RBI single.

It was the Rangers' fifth victory in their last six games and 14th in their last 19.

The Brewers, who have lost four games in a row, broke a drought which had seen them held to one run in 29 innings. But they fell behind 5-0 and did little against winning pitcher Doc Medich, 5-3, until the game was all but out of reach.

"The game tonight didn't bother me as much as one we lost in Boston and two we lost in Detroit on our last road trip," Brewer Manager Buck Rodgers said. "When you get smoked 12-5 it's not like one or two plays cost you the game."

The Rangers' surge is no accident. They lead the league in team batting, hits, doubles, fielding average and shutouts pitched and are second in runs scored.

SMU Cited For 29 Violations

DALLAS (AP) - Southern Methodist University's football program, hit with a costly two-year probation barring the Mustangs from post-season play and televised games this fall, will step lightly to avoid future tangles with recruitment regulations, school officials said.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced Wednesday that SMU has been cited for 29 recruiting violations - including four allegations that Head Football Coach Ron Meyer gave potential recruits the idea they would be able to scalp complimentary season tickets.

The other 25 violations, which SMU President L. Donald Shields said were of "a technical nature," mostly involved contact procedures during recruiting.

But Shields said SMU "respectfully disagrees" with the ticket allegation leveled by the NCAA infraction committee.

Henderson Makes Another Return

MIAMI (AP) - Linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson is about to bring his flamboyant and often-troubled act to one of the National Football League's most conservative operations.

Henderson, 28, whose career took a nosedive when he was cut by the Dallas Cowboys in 1979, said Wednesday he will sign a one-year, non-guaranteed contract with the Miami Dolphins.

The agreement, said the 6-2, 220-pound Henderson, includes a clause on his drug problem. The papers are in the mail, said Henderson, the Cowboys' first-round draft choice out of Langston College in 1975. He was a three-year starter with Dallas before Coach Tom Landry dropped him in 1979.

"There's a request that I be part of a program at least once or twice a week as needed," Henderson said. "It's part of something that will be very inspirational to me."

Henderson, who played in three Super Bowls in his first four NFL seasons, signed with San Francisco before the 1980 season, but was waived. He signed a one-year contract with no option with Houston and appeared in six games, then spent seven games on injured reserve.

After Houston released him, Henderson signed himself into a drug rehabilitation program, saying he had been using a quarter-ounce to half an ounce of cocaine daily, which had cost him much as $1,250 a day.

"I got involved in something I just couldn't handle," said the linebacker, adding that he used narcotics for 14 years but is now free of the cocaine dependency.

"But I'm a very happy person these days ... the temptations are not there."

Dolphins Coach Don Shula confirmed that Henderson had worked out at Miami's training camp two weeks ago, but said nothing was finalized yet.

"The whole key to Henderson is that he would have to come in and do a lot of things right and continue to do them right and show us that he is rehabilitated," Shula said.

"I would be willing to give him an opportunity to have another shot. The thing I admire about the guy is that he admitted the (drug) problem and then went out and did something about it."

Locals To Try For Track Tour

Thomas Selmon and Dale Jenkins, two former Snyder High School athletes, will be competing for spots on the Junior National Track Team in Tennessee this weekend.

The Junior National Team goes on tour in Russia and Europe.

The qualifying meet will be held Friday and Saturday in Knoxville.

Selmon was twice a state qualifier and Junior Olympics qualifier in the long jump at Snyder High School. He is currently a member of the Texas Tech track team. Selmon also participated in football and basketball at SHS.

Jenkins, who completed his senior high school year at Abilene Christian last year, was considered the top schoolboy pole vaulter in the state for two seasons. His best vault of 17-10½, occurring just two weeks after high school graduation, would have set a schoolboy national record.

Jenkins also participated in football at Snyder.

Coe Sets 800 Mark

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) - Britain's Sebastian Coe, showing a powerful finishing kick, set a world record with a time of 1:41.72 in the 800-meter run at an international meet.

Coe shaved more than a half second off the previous record of 1:42.33, which he set in Norway in July 1979.

Felony Charges Pending Here

Felony theft charges are pending against a 23 year-old man in connection with the theft of a leather chair from the back of Landes Furniture Store. Lt. Steve Warren took the man into custody at 810 33rd St. Wednesday afternoon. The chair is valued at $759.

Early this morning, city and county officers conducted a narcotics raid on a residence on the Lamesa Highway. Taken into custody and charged with possession of marijuana, less than two ounces, were a 29 year-old man and a 22 year-old woman.

Also this morning, officer Robert Harbin arrested two men at the Piggly Wiggly parking lot for possession of marijuana, less than two ounces and for public intoxication. Taken into custody at 1:35 a.m., were a 17 year-old and a 19 year-old.

Man Arrested

In the course of serving warrants Wednesday afternoon and evening, sheriff department officials took one man into custody for writing 13 bad checks. He had allegedly written seven earlier and was out on bond when the remaining checks came through.

10 Killed In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 10 people were killed Tuesday when police in a village in southern India opened fire on supporters of rival candidates for the village council, the United News of India said.

The news agency said the police in Andhra Pradesh state shot into the crowd to break it up. It said violence forced suspension of voting in three parts of the state.

A theft was reported to officer Buddy Kinney Wednesday at 8 a.m. at the 3-D Motel. Willie Grice said someone had taken a stereo valued at $162 and a camera valued at $182 from his motel room.

A hit and run that occurred Monday at the Athletic Center was reported to police Wednesday. Involved was a 1980 Ford, legally parked, owned by Charles Thornton of Rotan, and a vehicle which left the scene. Taking the report was officer Kerry Fritz.

Officer Fritz also worked a minor accident at 30th and College at 11:28 a.m. Involved in that was a 1977 GMC pickup driven by David Dean Babcock and a 1976 Buick driven by Sharon Sue Smith. The pickup had minor damage but the Buick was moderately damaged.

Officer Don Whittenburg checked on an attempted burglary at Brown & Gray Motors at 10:39 p.m. Someone had apparently been trying to steal a gas tank from one of the new cars on the lot.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Young

BRECKENRIDGE — Graveside services for Wanda Young, 72, of Paramount, Calif., are set for 4 p.m. today in Breckenridge Cemetery under the direction of Melton Funeral Home. She died at 11 a.m. Sunday in California.

The Rev. James Jackson of First Assembly of God Church in Snyder will officiate.

Born Wanda Illeane Beals Jan. 25, 1909, in Illinois, she graduated from Breckenridge High School in 1927 and from Baylor University. She married Maynard Young, who preceded her in death Nov. 27, 1975. A registered nurse, she had lived most of her life in Breckenridge and Graham before moving to California in 1975 from Fort Worth. She was a Methodist.

Iran Earthquake Kills 1,500

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A strong earthquake rocked southeastern Iran early Thursday and a spokesman for the governor's office in stricken Kerman Province said between 1,000 and 1,500 people were killed.

The spokesman said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut that 500 to 600 others were injured in Gol Bagh village, 43 miles southeast of Kerman, where "rescuers still are pulling victims from the massive rubble."

Earlier, reports of a strong earthquake in southeast Iran reached Tehran, the official Iranian news agency Pars confirmed, but there were no immediate accounts of the extent of the damage.

In Golden, Colo., spokesman Don Finley of the U.S. Geological Society said the quake had a Richter scale magnitude of 6.9 and was centered in the area of Kerman, the capital of the region of the same name and about 500 miles southeast of the Iranian capital of Tehran.

USGS geophysicist John Minsch in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake occured at 10:54 a.m. Iranian time, (3:24 a.m. EDT).

A quake measuring only 5.8 magnitude hit in the same general vicinity in 1977, killing about 580 people and injuring another 1,000. The USGS said it had no immediate reports on casualties and injuries in today's quake, but Minsch said an earthquake of 6.9 magnitude in that particular part of Iran was likely to be damaging.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 6 can cause severe damage. A 7 reading is a 'major' quake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was estimated to register 8.3 on the scale.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie laid the cornerstone of the permanent United Nations' headquarters in New York on Oct. 24, 1949.

Government Survey Says...

1981 Wheat Crop Will Be 'A Whopper'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp freeze in early May, hail, too much rain in places and drought in others have taken a bite from 1981 wheat harvest prospects. But the latest government surveys show the crop still will be a whopper.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday the winter wheat crop is expected to yield a record 2.01 billion bushels, up 6 percent from the 1980 harvest.

However, the department's Crop Reporting Board said the new estimate, based on surveys as of June 1, was down 3 percent from an indicated harvest of 2.08 billion bushels last month.

At 2.01 billion bushels, it would be the second straight record-breaking harvest, topping last year's standing record of 1.89 billion bushels.

Nationally, the 1981 average yield was estimated at 35.5 bushels an acre, based on June 1 indications, compared with 36 bushels indicated in May and last year's average of 36.8 bushels per harvested acre.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following year. It accounts for about three-fourths of the total U.S. wheat production, with spring-planted kinds making up the remainder.

Counting wheat planted this spring, department experts have tentatively forecast total 1981 wheat output at a possible record 2.7 billion bushels, compared with 2.4 billion last year.

However, the winter wheat harvest is barely under way and the spring crop is weeks away from harvest in Northern states.

Last fall, farmers boosted wheat plantings sharply to a record land area to take advantage of what appeared to be a seller's market — rising foreign demand and improved prices.

Although winter wheat is grown in most states, the Great Plains is the major area and Kansas is the leading producer. The 1981 Kansas crop was estimated at 329.4 million bushels, a 20 percent reduction from the May 1 estimate of 412.8 million bushels. Last year's Kansas harvest was 420 million bushels.

Describing last month's weather situation, the report said two storm systems during the first week of May dumped widespread rain across the Plains and the eastern United States.

"Cold air from Canada plunged southward after the severe weather and brought freezing temperatures to parts of the winter wheat area in Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska where some of the wheat was beginning to flower," the report said.

"The extent of freeze damage to wheat in Kansas is still uncertain; the effect was partially masked by cool, wet weather."

Nationally, farmers last fall boosted their national acreage sharply in response to rising demand and improved prices. The report said nearly 56.8 million acres are indicated for harvest this year, up 10 percent from 1980.

But that represented more than 1 million fewer acres for harvest than were indicated a month ago, reflecting wheat fields severely damaged by drought, hail and other causes. Kansas accounted for about 700,000 acres of the loss, the report said.

A new analysis by the Agriculture Department says prospects for the Soviet Union's 1981 grain crop "still appear relatively good" at this time but are likely to fall short of Moscow's production goal.

Wednesday's report said fair weather since the middle of May enabled "the rapid sowing of spring grains and accelerated the development of winter crops" that had been delayed earlier by a cold snap.

Thus, the report said, the department's estimate of total Soviet grain production this year remains unchanged from the May forecast of 210 million metric tons.

Although that would be a harvest substantially below Moscow's 1981 goal of 236 million tons, it would be a significant improvement from the low yields of the past two years. Soviet grain production tumbled to 179.2 million metric tons in 1979 and rose to only 189.2 million in 1980.

An embargo on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union was lifted on April 24, and in a meeting in London this week the United States cleared the way for expanded sales of wheat and corn this summer.

The embargo, imposed on Jan. 4, 1980, restricted the Soviets to 8 million metric tons of grain annually, an amount guaranteed by a long-term agreement which will expire this Sept. 30.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Under the London accord, the Soviets now can buy an additional 6 million tons — half wheat and half corn — for delivery through Sept. 30, if they choose. Further, officials said work will begin this summer on a new agreement to replace or extend the one now in place.
