Reagan settles for reduced MX plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will get fewer than half the MX nuclear weapons he wants and even those missiles will be tied to renewed U.S.-Soviet arms talks under a compromise approved by the House and supported reluctantly by the Reagan administration.

"The White House supported us only after they saw they couldn't win the whole thing," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chief architect of the plan, which won 229-199 House approval late Wednesday after seven hours of debate.

Minutes before Aspin's deal was approved, MX opponents failed by only six votes, 218-212, to kill the weapon Reagan has made the centerpiece of his record Pentagon buildup.

Reagan sought 40 MX weapons in the fiscal 1985 budget. But the vote by the Democrat-controlled House authorizes only 15 of the giant 10-warhead weapons, and then only if the Soviets don't return by next April 1 to the arms talks they walked out of last year.

That proviso is intended "as a carrot to the Soviets," Aspin explained. "If they're as afraid of the MX as they say, they can return to the talks and try to bargain it away."

Left untouched by the House decision was last year's congressional approval of the first 21 of the 100 MX weapons Reagan wants to build.

Assistant White House press secretary Kim Hoggard said after the vote, "We are pleased ... but there are more hurdles along the way."

Hoggard is right. The House vote was part of a $285 billion Pentagon authorization bill. If the Republican-controlled Senate later approves a different MX package, the differences will face a conference committee and more House and Senate votes. There will also be future votes on whether to appropriate the authorized money.

Still to come as the House continues voting on the defense bill are decisions on a number of other weapons, such as new nerve gases, space weapons and Pershing 2 nuclear missiles.

Reagan had pushed for the full MX package, but House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., bluntly told the president in a meeting hours before the vote that Aspin's package was the best Reagan would get.

The president telephoned some members of Congress and met personally with others seeking support for the weapon he and the Pentagon say is needed to replace the aging missiles in the land-based part of the U.S. nuclear force.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said earlier in the week that MX opponents would win, but conceded Wednesday that Reagan had changed some votes.

The president has proposed putting 100 of the weapons he calls "Peacekeeper" into existing Minuteman silos near Cheyenne, Wyo., starting in 1986.

During the seven hours and thousands of words of debate, MX opponents continually noted that the Pentagon wants the MX chiefly because the Minuteman is vulnerable to a Soviet first strike.

The SDN Column

by Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "No wonder unemployment is so high with so many folks on the government payroll."

Milton Ham recently wrote a letter to Congressman Charles Stenholm. In addition, the former Snyder mayor sent a satire relating to recent bureaucratic action which led to the closing of First National Bank. With a few minor revisions, here's the article:

"A man invested in 100 bulls for a group of ranchers. He woke up one morning and 20 of them were ill. He called his partners and told them that 20 of the bulls were sick, but he had checked with the vet and there was medicine available to save the remaining 80 bulls. His partners authorized him to spend the additional money to save the 80 bulls.

But, alas, the Regional Office of B.S. (Bull Saving) intervened on behalf of the Hoof and Mouth Disease Dept. of Washington, D.C. They (ROBS–Regional Office of B.S.) informed that the whole herd must be destroyed. They had received notice that other herds in the area had some incurable disease. Therefore, by reason, all herds were incurable and must be destroyed.

"But," cried the man. "I caught the disease in time to save 80 percent of the herd and my partners and I willingly chose to invest our money for that purpose."

"Neigh, neigh," cried the head honcho of the Regional Office of B.S. (remember this is an animal story about ranching.) "You don't understand the system. Remember, you had been entrusted wth 100 head and 20 of them got sick. Therefore, because you were unable to prevent the disease, you and your partners will take the loss of 100 bulls."

"But only 20 were ill," cried the man.

"What does that matter?" came the reply of the honcho in charge of the Regional Office of B.S. (ROBS). "We have determined that we will confiscate your herd and sell it as being contaminated."

"But it only has 20 percent contamination and I have already eliminated the bad bulls," cried the man.

"Nonetheless, you and your bull empire must be turned out to pasture and we're the Good Cowboys who can show you the gate," came the reply. "We've spent years in and around Washington–punching, prodding and hotshotting our way into various bull auctions and slaughters. And surely you know that we could care less about the fact that you have never lost any bulls prior to this time. The truth of the matter is, we are empowered with the authority to be perfect and we expect you to be perfect. So don't give us a cock-and-bull story concerning your request to save the beef because we ain't buying any baloney from anyone connected with bull ventures in West Texas.

As a matter of fact, we don't have to buy any beef from anybody. We can declare any herd contaminated, condemn that herd and have all the beef we want for free."

"But, what about the cost to the people owning the herd?"

"That's their problem," was reply. "We're in the liquidating business and are programmed to destroy herds, not help save them. So, ladies and gentlemen of the Regional Office of B.S. (ROBS), load your guns and prepare to fire into the remaining 80 head," barked the honcho in charge of the Regional Office of B.S. (ROBS).

"But what about the innocent ranchers between your line of fire and the 80 head?" cried the man.

"They should have never gotten into the bull venture in the first place," was the reply.

Where's the beef? It's all gone to Washington...and don't you forget it.

Bell seeks PUC rehearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell, unhappy with the $816.7 million rate hike approved by the Public Utility Commission, has asked the commission to reconsider the case.

The motion for rehearing, filed Wednesday, is the first step toward a possible court challenge of the order that adds 30 cents a month to home phone bills.

Bell can go to state court if PUC refuses to take another look at the case. Company spokesman Dale Johnson said no decision had been made on whether to take the case to court.

Bell documents filed at the commission Wednesday show that the $816.7 million hike approved May 1 will mean a 30-cent increase in monthly bills for basic residential service, and a 75-cent hike for basic business service.

Foreign ministers meeting

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Six Persian Gulf foreign ministers met in emergency session today to discuss a joint response to the repeated air attacks on Arab oil tankers in the region.

A Saudi tanker on Wednesday became the fifth Arab tanker attacked since April 25 as an offshoot of the Iran-Iraq war. The air raids have jeopardized Persian Gulf oil shipments, boosted the price of spot oil and forced an increase in shipping insurance premiums.

West Texans singing in rain

By the Associated Press

Residents were "grinning ear to ear" in drought-weary West Texas after a long-awaited rain, even though it bypassed some areas and only sprinkled on others.

Rain remained in the forecast for today, the National Weather Service said.

"We needed it bad," said Ray Hendryx of Alpine. "We only got .44, but everybody in Alpine is just grinning ear to ear. I've been to town three times today, and that's all anybody is talking about."

"There are some places that are getting some pretty good rains that need it badly," NWS meteorologist Ron McQueen in Lubbock said Wednesday. "But most of the Permian Basin and the South Plains still need it very badly. We sure need the rain and we're going to just hope we get it."

The National Weather Service office in Midland reported Wednesday evening that thunderstorms were dumping "heavy rain" on the Permian Basin and that flooding was expected. Officials in Midland and Odessa said no flooding was reported and that the rain was sporadic.

The rains had teased West Texas on Tuesday, when clouds opened, but the rain never reached the ground.

Big Bend and the Davis Mountains received two to three inches of rain, but the precipitation bypassed most of the rain, said National Weather Service spokesman J.C. Wells in Amarillo. He said the rest of West Texas got less than an inch.

Virtually all of West Texas has been declared a disaster area because of the drought which began in most areas last year. Weather forecasters had feared the worst, because the spring rains that water the area before the dry summer had failed to appear in April as usual.

So far, this year's rainfall is still far below average, and weather service officials said the land is now so dry that up to two inches of rain would be absorbed.

"But every little bit helps out there," said Buddy McIntyre, a weather service meterologist in Fort Worth. "We're looking at a continuing chance of rain across the state through (today)."

Because of a dwindling water supply, residents in the Central Texas community of Goldthwaite were asked to stop watering their lawns and gardens.

Diabetes, no erection

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — At 54 I had a heart attack that put me on the disability list. I'm also a diabetic on insulin, taking 75 units and 22 pills a day. My problem is I have trouble getting an erection. I'm only 57. I have the desire but lack it in other ways.

DEAR READER — Your medical problems are the most likely cause for your impotence. Diabetics may develop disease of the nerves that control the mechanics of an erection. When that happens the man still has the same level of male hormones and the same desire, but is unable to obtain or sustain an erection.

The change doesn't have to be complete. At first there may be some trouble and then it progresses to the point that an erection is no longer possible.

You need a complete examination, including a test that measures erectile response during your sleep. If the response is weak or nonexistent, then your doctor will know he's dealing with an underlying medical problem. You might want to see a urologist for your evaluation.

Circulatory problems can also cause impotence. If you can't adequately increase blood flow because of diseased arteries, that will limit or prevent an erection.

If your health permits and you have an erectile dysfunction because of your diabetes you could consider having a prosthesis inserted. These are either flexible rods made of silicone or inflatable cylinders that you can inflate and deflate at will.

You will have a more complete understanding of your problem after reading The Health Letter 18-6, Help for Impotence, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We're planning a vacation in Mexico this summer and most everyone we talk to says, "Don't drink the water." We've even heard that if one eats a salad that was washed with the water we could become extremely ill.

What exactly is in Mexican water that contaminates it? Are there any precautions we can take to insure a healthy vacation?

DEAR READER — Bacteria is found in many water sources in Mexico and some other countries. Unless it is bottled water, meaning a cap on the bottle, you should consider that all the water you drink in Mexico is contaminated.

You can treat it with Halazone tablets. Use two tablets per quart of water and let stand 30 minutes before using. Or you can use two drops of 4 percent to 6 percent chlorine laundry bleach in a quart of clear water. Use four drops for cloudy water. Let stand for 30 minutes before using.

You can usually use hot water, since the water heater will have killed the organisms in the water. Use hot water for brushing your teeth.

Remember, most cocktails don't contain enough alcohol to eliminate the organisms in the water. Beware of beverages containing ice.

No, don't eat salads. Eat only fruit you can peel yourself after washing. Drink bottled beverages. Eat well-cooked meats and vegetables. Avoid milk and dairy products.

A lot of the foods you see will be very tempting but can also contain bacteria. Check with your doctor before you go. He may want you to take some medicine either to help prevent diarrhea or to help in case you develop problems.

Perot:...

'Dumbest enter teacher's field'

HOUSTON (AP) — Someone on the elected state school board probably still thinks the world is flat, says the head of the state Select Committee on Education, which has called for an appointed board.

Continuing his campaign for an for an appointed "high-talent" nine-member school board, school reformer H. Ross Perot attacked the current elected 27-member board in a speech to the Houston Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday.

"This is the group that gave us textbooks that look like People magazine," Perot told about 380 members of the Houston Chamber of Commerce. "This is the group that allows teachers that are illiterate to get teaching certificates. And I'm sure that somewhere on that board there's someone who thinks the world is flat."

The Dallas computer magnate said the state school system needs a board that will be held more accountable.

"Just think for a minute what happens to a losing coach," he said. "We don't tolerate that. We do one of two things — we fire him or make him a principal."

Perot also called for an improved teacher certification system, saying one-fourth of college students scoring lowest on the Scholastic Aptitude Test are in teacher education programs.

"Bluntly put, the dumbest people in college today are studying to be teachers," he said.

The state sends teachers to Stanford and Harvard universities and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Perot said, but they can't receive certification to teach in Texas public schools because they never enrolled in college education programs.

Perot said school officials should select teachers on the basis of competency tests and academic performance and people should listen to the teacher in the state of Texas," Perot said. "We tell teachers what to do."

The $8.3 billion appropriated for the state school system makes education "the largest business in Texas," Perot said. He said it should be run like a business.

Perot said 30 percent of state taxes are earmarked for education and said taxpayers aren't getting their money's worth.

"Folks, you bought the ticket, you just never got to see the show," he said.

Perot said the state must "compete internationally" with other school systems.

"Our international competitors are dead serious about education," Perot said. "While the Russians are busy pushing their children into mathematics, we have math for the non-mathematician.

"Texas is in the 40s among the 50 states in education," Perot said.

Shoplifting is charged

Snyder police were called to investigate two shoplifting complaints Tuesday evening.

Employees of Furr's Supermarket filed the first report at 4:12 p.m.

A 14-year-old juvenile suspect, apparently trying to take a beef brisket from the store, was taken into custody and later turned over to county juvenile authorities.

Personnel with the TG&Y Store in the Varsity Square Shopping Center filed the second report at 7:57 p.m..

Police arrested a 32-year-old female suspect, allegedly attempting to steal baby shoes and jewelry from the store, on a misdemeanor theft charge. She was released after posting bond in municipal court.

City officers are also investigating a bicycle theft reported Tuesday evening.

Lou McMillan of 3798 Ave. U called police at 7 p.m. to report the theft of her son's 20-inch bicycle.

The bike is thought to have been taken from the residence around 4 p.m. Tuesday.

In other action, city officers jailed three suspects for public intoxication Tuesday night.

Berry's World

"I WANNA GO BACK TO CHINA!"

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

I know all of you can't be expected to remember every earth-shaking fact you hear, so I will refresh your memory. It was exactly one week ago today that I announced in this column that I broke down and bought my first pair of jeans, possibly making me the last woman in North America to cave in to fashion pressure.

Yesterday, a doctor in Switzerland, issued a statement saying, "Tight jeans can be hazardous to your health and result in a real pain in the seat." (And that's not to mention the pain in the assets of jean-makers everywhere.

I'm not surprised. If I watched "Wizard of Oz" out of season, the next day someone would discover that it causes blurred vision and lower-back pains.

My only amazement is how fast they got the research in gear. They must have telexed the column to Lucerne where a group of doctors said, "Bombeck just bought a pair of jeans. Get us 200 research mice, a treadmill, and 200 mice designer jeans with a quarter-inch waist, two inches in length, with room for a tail. We've got work to do."

It happens all the time. Everytime I take a new product or increase my consumption of a food or beverage, researchers discover it's bad for you.

It's like they don't want me to have a good time. Maybe if they would occasionally zero in on something I hated, I'd have more respect for their findings.

Like how come they never find a lethal agent in squash? I hate squash. And I've been waiting for years to have them declare pantyhose a life-threatening piece of apparel that causes disorientation and surliness. And you'd think they could give me a legitimate reason for not buying a bathing suit with legs up to the armpit, like mirror gross-out.

It's not like wearing jeans will shorten your life. It's just that if you wear them tight enough, it puts pressure on the cutaneous nerve, which runs from the lower spinal cord to the thigh, and leads to inflammation and extreme pain.

The doctor who conducted the research said one of his patients was a teenage girl who refused to take off her jeans for the treatment because she feared she wouldn't be able to put them on again.

Ridiculous? Who is to say? All I know is I can only assume Brooke Shields has a cutaneous nerve somewhere in her body and that her jeans are tight enough to bring about discomfort and inflammation.

I think I've been looking for that kind of pain all my life.

Palette Club sees unusual art technique

Snyder Palette Club met May 10 for a program presented by Leola Anderson, an artist from Colorado City. Ms. Anderson is currently completing her requirements for a masters degree in art from Texas Tech University.

She presented a fresh and unusual approach to the task of painting a picture.

Some of her innovative ideas were painting on paper instead of canvas, combining collage with painting by using colored tissue paper, gluing objects on instead of painting an image and using unusual and unrealistic color choices and combinations. She also suggested some unexpected sources for ideas of what to paint.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Here is a favorite hand of Edgar Kaplan and Norman Kay, who usually play as partners. They were opponents on this hand, since they were playing in an individual tournament. Edgar was South. Norman, sitting West, opened the queen of hearts. Edgar played dummy's ace, dropping East's king.

"At trick two, Edgar led the nine of clubs from dummy. He played the king and Norman had no choice but to play his ace. Norman led back the jack of spades and Edgar was back in dummy. He cashed dummy's two remaining high spades, led the seven of clubs and finessed with his club eight to come to the nine tricks he needed and a top score. He scored a diamond trick in the cool of the evening to make his top a little bigger.

"If Norman had held two clubs, it would have been automatic for him to hold up — that is, automatic for Norman, who may well be the best defensive player there is.

"Edgar Kaplan modestly claims that he made an incredibly clever play to make his contract since an expert like Norman would never have gone up with the ace of clubs unless it was a singleton. Norman, equally modest, not only admits that his own jack of spades lead was brilliant, but also concedes that Edgar evaluated West's expertise correctly.

"Incidentally, this column is being written just before I go off to play as a fifth member of a team made up of Edgar, Norman, Bill Root and Dick Pavlicek, who are the defending Vanderbilt Cup champions. Norman (the nicest bridge player) will let me play half of each match with Edgar. I thank him for this, as I did when we won the Reisinger in December. I had played then as if I were in my prime and not a sick old man with only miracles to keep me alive."

Suspect mistakenly released

DALLAS (AP) — A man, wanted for raping a child, burglary, drug possession and writing a hot check, was mistakenly released last week because Dallas County sheriff's officers delayed in checking his fingerprints.

Wilbert Norwood Starks, who had been sought for 18 months, should have been held on $100,200 bond after his arrest last week, but instead was released 20 minutes after being jailed on only $2,500 bond.

"We just plain dropped the ball on this one," said Maj. Bob Knowles, commander of jails for the sheriff's department.

Starks is now in custody after another arrest on Monday for burglarizing a home, but sheriff's department administrators say they are embarrassed by the mistake.

A jail employee, who asked to remain anonymous, told the dallas Morning News, in a story published Wednesday, that Starks' case is not unique.

Staffing shortages are delaying full fingerprint checks for up to 24 hours on almost every prisoner, the source said, and in many cases the prisoner has posted bond and been released by he time the prints are identified.

The incident began after the manager of a north Dallas motel reported that a man stole a color television set. The man arrested by police gave his name as Wallace Starks, a brother of Wilbert Starks who has no criminal record.

The man was booked into the Lew Sterrett Justice Center, where Dallas County Sheriff's Department officers and pretrial release personnel interviewed him, determined that Wallace Starks had a spotless record and let him leave within 20 minutes on $2,500 bond posted by the county under a special prerelease program.

Severed spine killed suspect

HOUSTON (AP) — A man killed in a fight with two police officers died of a severed spine, a medical examiner says, and a prosecutor says he hopes to have the case before a grand jury within weeks.

Robert Thomas Lott, who struggled with two policemen who found his father threatening him with a rifle, died when his neck was dislocated and his spinal cord cut, Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, medical examiner for Harris County, ruled Wednesday.

Jachimczyk ruled the death was a homicide. Don Smyth, who is in charge of the civil rights division of the Harris County District Attorney's office, said he hoped the charges could be presented to grand jurors within a month.

"Whether it was intentional homicide or not is up to the grand jury," Smyth said. "They will decide if there was criminal intent."

Jachimczyk ruled that a bruise on the 31-year-old Lott's heart also contributed to his death.

St. Francis Xavier, the Roman Catholic missionary pioneer in Asia, died near Canton in 1552.

Babysitter says...

D. Kennedy not alone when father was shot

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — It has become part of the Kennedy lore: the image of 12-year-old David Kennedy, alone in a Los Angeles hotel, mesmerized by the television set as it flashed the reports of his father's assassination.

The image has become even more entrenched since David Kennedy's death last month in a Florida hotel. It has been cited in several books and was mentioned in many of accounts of Kennedy's life that were published or broadcast after his death.

But is it accurate?

A woman who says she was babysitting for six of Sen. Robert Kennedy's children when the Democratic presidential contender was shot in 1968 says it isn't.

Diane Broughton said she decided to set the record straight after reading news reports indicating David Kennedy might have suffered all his life because of his solitude on learning of his father's violent death.

"It wasn't who David was with when he heard the news — it was the news he heard," Ms. Broughton said.

David Kennedy's body was found in his room at a Palm Beach, Fla., hotel April 25. Authorities there said Wednesday that his death was caused by a combination of cocaine, Demerol and a drug used to treat emotional disorders. Two men who worked as bellhops at his hotel were arrested on drug charges, and officials said the pair allegedly spoke with Kennedy about providing cocaine a few days before he died.

Ms. Broughton, now 40, said that on the night of the California primary in June 1968, she and a Kennedy family employee, Bob Galland, were in a Beverly Hills Hotel bungalow watching television with David while the five other children slept.

They were watching when TV newsmen started yelling that someone had been hurt, and they were still watching when the details became known.

"We sat there for a while. I sat next to David," Ms. Broughton recalled.

Shortly afterward, she said, Galland received a telephone call instructing him to take David to a room in the hotel's main wing.

It was in a hotel room that political historian Theodore White later said he found David watching television alone.

"Nonsense," Ms. Broughton said. She insisted that Galland, whom she described as a "camp counselor" hired to travel with the Kennedy children, would not have left David alone in the room — "that's what he was being paid for."

"He was very responsible," she said. "He must have been in the john or something. If they came in and found David was by himself at all, he must have just been gone for five minutes."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns envy on my part. "Sid" and I have been divorced for over 13 years. He hasn't remarried, but he has a married girlfriend (I'll call her Suzie)—her husband has been impotent for years. Well, Suzie knits, crochets and embroiders constantly. She has made dolls for my granddaughters, which does not bother me; however, of late she has been knitting socks, sweaters, afghans, etc., for my three grown sons. This I must admit causes me a great deal of anger and jealousy, because I have never had time to do any of those things. When I was married to Sid I always had to work because he was not a very good provider. Suzie has a husband to support her and apparently has nothing else to do with her time.

I have never met her personally because she keeps a low profile to protect her so-called marriage, but if I do, I may push her face in.

I'm 55 and still work daily as a secretary.

JEALOUS IN JERSEY

DEAR JEALOUS: Don't envy Suzie because you have to work and she doesn't. Too much leisure can be a burden, too, witness Suzie's frantic output of handiwork. A woman who sneaks around to see another man because her husband is impotent should be pitied—not envied. Poor Suzie. Don't push her face in. She has enough on her hands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man of 17. I've been seeing my best friend's mother more than I should. She's 34, divorced and very good-looking. We have become very close, and have made love several times.

She says she is pregnant, the baby is mine and she wants to keep it!

I am still in high school, have a part-time job and there's no way I can take care of her and a baby. I still live at home with my parents, and if they knew they would throw me out and disown me.

I can't tell my best friend I got his mom pregnant. She says I have to marry her. Who can I turn to, and what can I do?

IN THE WORST KIND OF MESS

DEAR IN: You must tell your parents at once. There are laws in many states that protect minors in situations such as this. There's no need to tell your best friend, but do tell your parents. They're your best friends when you find yourself in the "worst kind of mess."

DEAR ABBY: I asked my girlfriend to marry me and she said she really wanted to, but when she told her mother, her mother said, "But he's diabetic."

I'm 23 and my girlfriend will be 18 in December.

Sure, there can be complications, but there doesn't have to be. If I follow my diet and get the proper exercise and insulin doses, I'll be fine.

My girlfriend told me I would probably become sterile. Well, so what's wrong with adoption? Abby, I want to marry this young lady and she wants to marry me. I'm giving her some booklets I got from the local American Diabetes Association. Is there anything else I should do?

SWEET ON HER

DEAR SWEET: Yes. Give her a little more time to mature. She's still 17 and under her mother's protective wing.

Also, take her to your doctor and let the doctor answer any and all questions she may have. Also, see a genetic counselor; it's important for your girlfriend and her family to be assured by professionals that people with diabetes can live normal lives.

Study shows adults also hurt by divorce action

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, people between 18 and 23 whose parents have recently divorced suffer an emotional toll at least as great as that faced by young children whose parents split, a new study suggests.

When Penn State University sociologist Gunhild Hagestad interviewed college students whose parents had been divorced less than three years, "I found kids who felt that the bottom had fallen out of their lives.

"Many said 'I thought it was just me' who felt that way," Ms. Hagestad, who conducted the study with three researchers, said Wednesday.

Thirty-nine Penn State students — 18 men, 21 women — between 18 and 23 years old filled out questionaires and were queried at length on their responses.

Although the researchers are still analyzing the data, a paper on the preliminary findings, presented last month at the Eastern Psychological Association meeting in Baltimore, Md., called parental divorce "a critical event in the lives of young adults."

"Clearly, the impact divorce had on the emotional well-being of these young adults is at least comparable to that reported in studies with younger children," the paper said. "Its potential for creating disruption is much greater than suggested by previously held assumptions."

The study, citing previous research, said younger children often feel rejected and abandoned following parental divorce, often taking responsibility for the split.

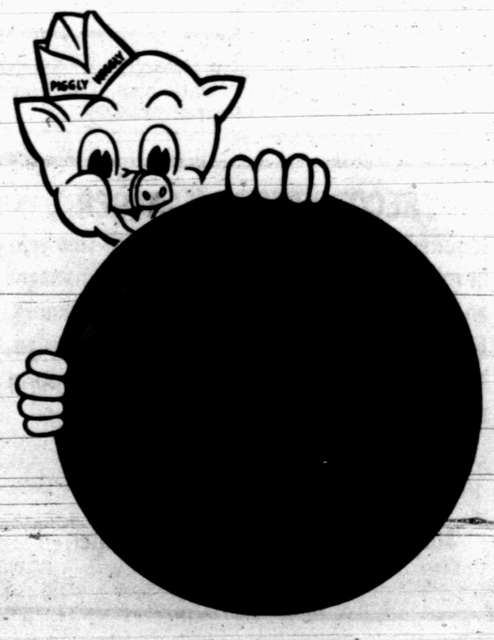

"The notion that children often experience self-blame and take responsibility for their parents' divorce relates to childrens' egocentric orientation. Young children have a tendancy to relate all events to their own behavior," the study said.

The college students didn't display the same type of guilt.

But the researchers said 59 percent of the respondents feared they would not have a true family after the divorce, while 87 percent worried about the future of at least one of their parents.

Fifty-one percent said they worried about losing touch with a parent, and many felt conflicting loyalties.

Children over 18 are better equipped than younger ones to empathize with what their parents are going through, said Ms. Hagestad, thus many "use language suggesting they are going through the divorce themselves. Sometimes they feel like they themselves are getting divorced."

Trio faces charges

DALLAS (AP) — Claims that a secret formula would enable water to replace petroleum as the world's primary energy source have resulted in the federal grand jury indictment of two Englishman and their Houston companion for fraud.

The men - Ronald Albert Lasteed and Raymond Samuel of England, and Joseph Shea Peeples of Houston - were named in an indictment May 10 for using deceptive methods to secure wealthy investors for their formula, the Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday.

U.S. Attorney James A. Rolfe said Lasteed may have told grandiose lies in attempting to con Dallas oilman Al G. Hill Jr. out of $10 million. Court records show that Hill's uncle, billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt, also was approached to invest.

Some people familiar with the case say they are convinced the formula works, but are unsure whether the fuel it produces is as cheap as the nickel a gallon that the federal government alleges one of the men claimed, the News reported.

Rolfe said Tuesfay that his case does not require a decision as to "whether it works or doesn't work."

'Taxi' star dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Andy Kaufman, the wacky comic whose antics propelled him from childhood plays and New York coffee houses to the Emmy Award-winning TV series "Taxi," has died of lung cancer at age 36.

Kaufman was perhaps best known for his portrayal of the zany immigrant auto mechanic in "Taxi," which ran on ABC four years until the 1981-82 season, then was picked up for one season by NBC.

Kaufman's varied schticks — Elvis Presley imitations, lip-synching to a record of "Pop Goes the Weasel," wrestling women — mystified many who watched him perform live and on television. Feminists found the wrestling offensive.

"He was an innovator. He broke new ground. He didn't try to confound people. He did art," said his publicist, Estelle Endler.

"When you think of what he put into 36 years, it was just incredible. He just never stopped. He was still a kid, still growing," she said.

Kaufman was admitted Tuesday to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center for lung cancer that was first detected about the time of his 36th birthday in January, said hospital spokeswoman Paula Corria. He died at 6:27 p.m. Wednesday.

THIRD GRADE PLAY--Marilyn Crownover's third grade class at West elementary presented a play, "Tillie the Tooth," on May 14-15. Students in Sharon's Crozier's class also participated. Mary Lou Scott, music director, wrote original songs for the children and assisted in play direction. Stage props were designed by Sammie Housden. Students participating were from left, front row: Janee Watson, Jenny Bowlin, Tracie McDowell, April Gonce, Mendy Miller, Desiree Loper, Misty Myers; middle row: Charles Richardson, Jimmy Gorman, Sammie Jaramillo, Darci Wemken, Makael Lewis, Mendy Joe Stewart; back row: Harley Harper, Phillip Becerra, Rayland Goswick, Jennifer Beard, Dewey Anderson, Dexter Robbins, Andy Weaver, Patrick Maloney. NURSING HOME WEEK — Snyder Mayor Rod Waller met with representatives of Snyder Nursing Center Monday to sign a proclamation desigating May 13-20 as Texas Nursing Home Week in Snyder. On hand for ceremonies were (from left) Nancy Harper, activity director for Snyder Nursing Center; Linda Reese, president of the Snyder Nursing Center Resident Council; Waller and Jerry Miller, administrator of Snyder Nursing Center. Houston must upgrade plan

HOUSTON (AP) — The city's water supply system is in danger of losing the state's seal of approval.

The state health department sent a letter to the City of Houston on May 9, warning that the city's water supply must be upgraded if it is to continue to meet state standards.

The letter cited deficiencies in storage and capacity and the need to repair some wells.

Houston received warnings about its water supply in April 1982 and again last February.

CAR OWNERS' MAJOR COSTS
Insurance takes a bigger bite

Most car owners cite fuel as their major expense. However, gas and oil prices have leveled off. Insurance costs have moved up to No. 1, with fuel coming in second.

Mondale warns Reagan to expect big surprise

By The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale is warning President Reagan to prepare for "the biggest surprise of his life" in the November election as the Democratic presidential candidates concentrate on California, New Jersey and the final round of primaries before the convention.

The candidates barely paused for Gary Hart to collect his twin wins this week in Nebraska and Oregon — trouncing Mondale and the Rev. Jesse Jackson by better than 2-1 in each state — while looking on to the June 5 primaries.

Hart resumes campaigning today with a foray into New Jersey, where 107 delegates are at stake in the primary less than three weeks away.

Jackson remained in California, then in Detroit Wednesday night on his way back to Washington. He appeared before a loyal union audience where he avoided mention of his Democratic challengers.

"When this campaign started, everybody said Mondale is nominated. I never believed that," Mondale said.

But, he added, "I don't believe in polls, but Mr. Reagan is in for the biggest surprise of his life."

Speaking to about 1,500 people at the Service Employees' International Union convention, Mondale said the Reagan administration has "done everything they can to undermine the legitimate rights of working people in this country."

Mondale made no mention of his losses — by identical 59 percent to 27 percent margins — in Nebraska and Oregon. But he was looking on to the next round.

"It's shoot out time at the OK corral, and I want your help," he said.

Jackson, in Sacramento, said Hart and Mondale would take the nation down the same path on defense policy as Reagan.

"Hart and Mondale, like Reagan, want to raise the military budget in peacetime. Do not be deceived by a hawk in sheep's clothing," Jackson told a rally at California State University.

"We do not need to raise the military budget in peacetime. We can cut the defense budget without cutting defense."

Mondale and Hart put aside their differences for a bit, jointly sending a letter to congressmen urging opposition to the MX missile authorization sought by Reagan.

"Our defense dollars should not be wasted on a weapons system which is not survivable, which is not a credible deterrent, and which will raise the risk of a pre-emptive Soviet attack in a time of crisis," their letter said.

Jackson also opposed the missile in a separate telegram to two legislators, calling the missile "dangerous."

Doctor says insurance needed for alcoholism

AUSTIN (AP) — Health insurance coverage for alcoholism is an idea that's long overdue, says the psychiatrist who treated former First Lady Betty Ford for alcoholism.

Such insurance coverage also would make it more likely that doctors would treat alcoholics for their drinking while also reducing the costs the disease inflicts on individuals, families, employers and society, Dr. Joseph A. Pursch said.

"Speaking as a physician, we always treat a human being who shows up in the hospital. If he happens to have alcoholism and we know he has no (insurance) coverage we just look for the organ in the body on which the alcohol right now is doing its damage. There is always something you can find," Pursch said.

"Alcoholism represents the nation's No. 1 health problem today, and yet only some 37 percent of all men and women in the United States who are employed are currently covered (for it) in the traditional health insurance," he added.

Pursch, former chief of the U.S. Navy's alcoholism rehabilitation program, testified Wednesday before a House subcommittee that is studying what kinds of health insurance coverage should be mandatory.

Insurance industry experts say adding alcoholism treatment to policies would significantly increase the costs of that coverage. Only a few states do so now, they say.

Pursch insisted there are many other reasons why alcoholism isn't covered, including "stigma, shame, fear and possible damage to one's career."

Pursch said many people who finally overcome psychological obstacles to seeking alcoholism treatment are again deterred when they learn that the care won't be paid for by their health insurance.

He said the additional costs brought on by alcoholism are enormous.

As an example, he cited the case of a California man who was treated more than 25 times for medical problems all related to alcoholism — chest and stomach pains, a liver disorder and injuries from an auto accident suffered while he was driving drunk — but never for alcoholism itself. The man's family also suffered a number of health problems related to his alcoholism.

Poland joins boycott

by The Associated Press

Poland's Olympic Committee voted today to join the Soviet-led boycott of the Los Angeles Olympic Games, becoming the 10th country to pull out of the games, the official Polish news agency PAP reported.

Meanwhile, a Soviet news agency charged today that extremists acting in concert with the White House planned to use hundreds of apartments from which terrorist groups could kill or kidnap Soviet athletes competing in the Los Angeles games.

The pullout by Poland left only Romania among Moscow's six European allies undecided about participation in the games. There were indications the maverick Communist country, the most independent of the Soviet-bloc nations, might go to Los Angeles.

Sources who attended the meeting of the 45-member Polish Olympic Committee said two athletes in attendance — Janusz Peciak and Irena Szewinska — voiced "regret" that Poland would not go to the Games.

The nation's Olympic Committee called the decision a "disappointment," and its communique was milder than others.

Committee chairman Marian Renke, speaking to Western reporters after what he called a "unanimous" vote, said he feared Polish athletes would defect if allowed to attend the Games.

Echoing Moscow, Renke accused Washington of fostering "... a campaign aimed at disturbing the Games, (and) activities aimed at attacking socialist sportsmen, Poles among them."

In the latest round of Soviet criticism about U.S. arrangements for the Olympics, the semi-official news agency Novosti said, "There are at least 100 avowedly terrorist organizations that were involved in the preparation of actions of physical extermination against Soviet athletes and their harassment and kidnapping during the Olympiad."

Novosti repeated the Soviet accusation that Washington had cooperated with the Ban the Soviets coalition that opposed Soviet participation in the Olympics and said the U.S. State Department had refused to control the activities of such groups during the 1984 Summer Games.

"Hundreds of secret apartments were being prepared all over Los Angeles that must have served as a basis for provocations against Soviet citizens," Novosti said.

The United States has repeatedly said that it offered the Soviet Union sufficient security guarantees at the Games and has pledged to obey all provisions of the charter.

O'Pry has resigned; replacement is sought

Leslie O'Pry, volleyball coach at Snyder High School, has submitted her resignation, said Athletic Director David Noble, who noted a search for her replacement has begun.

The resignation is pending board approval.

O'Pry took the vollevball position here in 1981 after Joyce Elrod had resigned.

Under O'Pry, Snyder had a 22-9 record in 1982 and a 21-12 mark in 1983.

Coach O'Pry stated, "I have been very proud to be a part of the Snyder school system but there comes a time when one must move on and I feel that the time for me is now."

She added, "I plan to continue coaching. I plan to stay involved with it."

O'Pry is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. She coached two years in Divine before coming to Snyder. In addition to coaching volleyball here, she was also assistant track coach and taught health and physical education.

Noble indicated that the search for a new volleyball coach was underway.

"I have contacted some people and they have given me some names and I have gotten in touch with those people. We will be interviewing some of them probably next week," said Noble.

Bicycling dominates sports injury list

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bicycling might not have the violent reputation of sports such as football or hockey, but bicycling injuries dominate all categories of sports and recreational injuries, according to a new government report.

A Consumer Product Safety Commission study of injuries treated at hospital emergency rooms in 1982 found more than half a million Americans suffered bicycling injuries.

That rate translates into 253 injuries per 100,000 Americans, ranking second only to stairs among all hazards faced by people in this country.

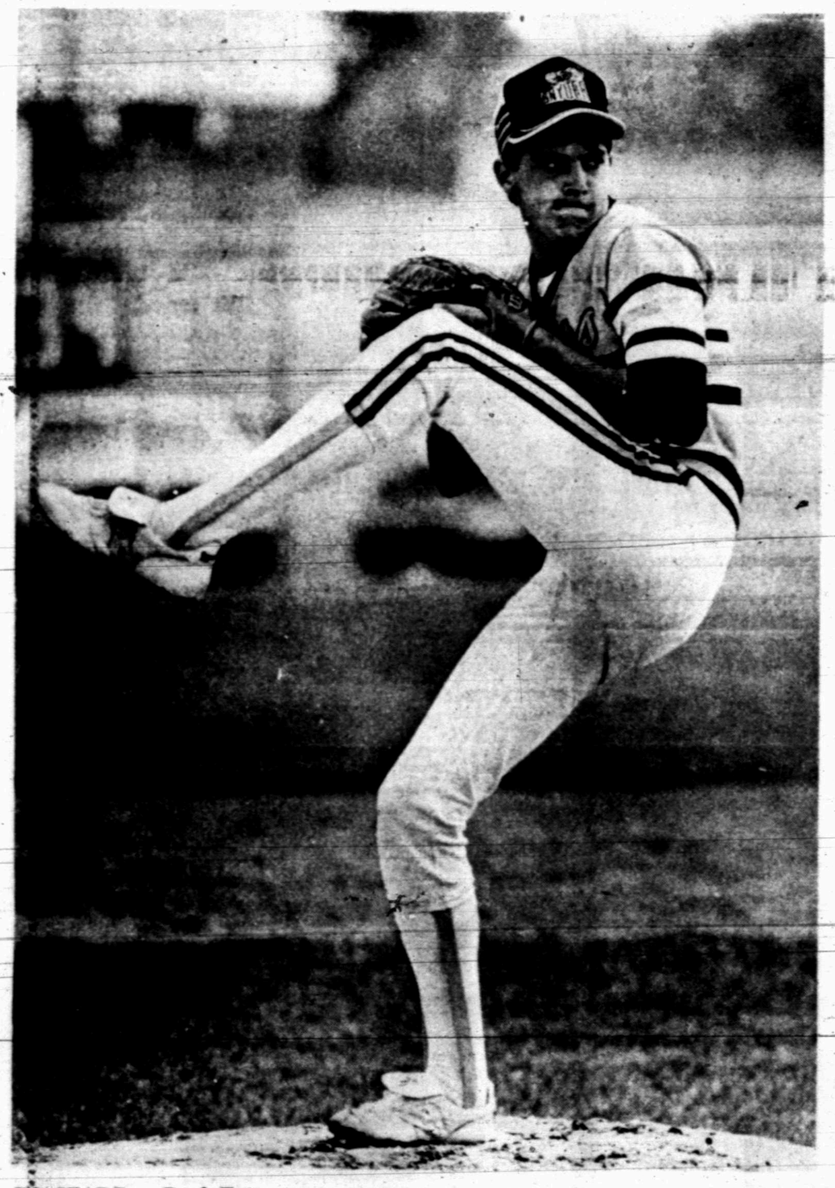

The study estimated that 573,662 bike-related injuries were treated in emergency rooms during the year, although the vast majority were treated and released.

Baseball came in second among sporting injuries with 507,794 reports, or a rate of 224 injuries per 100,000 people, followed by basketball at 202 and football at 191.

The sources of injury differed sharply by sex, with bicycles first for women at 154 injuries per 100,000 while for men football topped the list, injuring 357 per 100.000.

By age group, playground equipment was most hazardous to tots up to age 4, resulting in 373 injuries per 100,000, the report showed. Between ages 5 and 14 bicycles top the list at 1,018 injuries. With 604 injuries, basketball is the No. 1 hazard for those aged 15 to 24.

For Americans aged 25 to 64 baseball leads the injury list with 155 per 100,000, and those over 65 are most likely to be hurt while fishing, with an injury rate of 13 per 100,000.

TO START – Paul Tate, senior righthander, will get the start in Friday's Game Two of the Snyder-Canyon bi-district playoff series. Tate was the loser in Tuesday's first game, despite giving up only two earned runs in a 9-4 loss. Game Two is scheduled for 2 p.m. in Canyon. Game Three, if necessary, will follow. (SDN Staff Photo)

CANYON -- Snyder Coach Albert Lewis will juggle the batting order somewhat for Friday's playoff game, hoping to boost Tiger hitting.

Snyder goes into Game Two of the best-of-three bi-district playoff series trailing 1-0 after losing to the Canyon Eagles 9-4 on Tuesday. Friday's game is scheduled for 2 p.m. A third game will follow, if necessary.

"We've had an adversity (losing the first game) and we can overcome that. We realize they have a good team but they are not unbeatable. We're optimistic about our chances," said Lewis.

Centerfielder Chad Peterson will again lead off for the Tigers, but will be followed by third baseman Chris Sanders. Short stop Charles Bollinger will bat in the third spot, with right fielder Justin Webb at cleanup. Fifth with be first-sacker Norman Malone. Left fielder Bobby Velasquez will bat in the sixth spot, followed by designated hitter Jimmy Cain, catcher Eddie McClure and second baseman Jay Mayo.

The Tigers will go again with righthander Paul Tate on the mound. The senior gave up three runs - two earned - in Tuesday's game while handing out five hits and three walks. He struck out three batters. Tate has a season record of 7-2.

Coach Lewis indicated he would go with William Cotton (0-1) for short relief, if necessary. Bollinger, 8-2, is slated for the start in Game Three.

Astros 1, Pirates 0

by The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan pitched a five-hitter, retiring 19 in a row at one point, to lead Houston to a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh. Ryan, 4-2, struck out 11 and walked only two in outdueling Pirates left-hander John Candelaria, 3-4.

Phil Garner drove in the game's only run with a double in the sixth inning.

After Candelaria's single in the third, Ryan didn't allow another baserunner until Madlock singled with two out in the ninth.

Cowboys sign three; get Mansperger back

DALLAS (AP) - Dick Mansperger, player-personnel director for the Seattle Seahawks, has returned to the scouting department of the Dallas Cowboys, team officials announced Wednesday.

The National Football League team also announced the signings of three draft picks to a series of one-year contracts, team spokesman Greg Aiello said.

The Cowboys signed running back Norm Granger, a fifth-round draft pick from Iowa; linebacker Eugene Lockhart, a sixth-round draft pick from Houston; and guard John Hunt, a ninth-round draft pick from Florida.

Mansperger was with the Cowboys in 1965 and from 1967-74. He was the Cowboys' player-personnel director from 1972-74, when he joined the Seattle Seahawks.

Aiello said Mansperger's responsibilities will be determined later.

Mansperger played football at Arizona State under Dan Devine and was an assistant football coach at ASU, West Texas State, the University of Southern California at Los Angeles and Iowa.

He also was head coach for two years at California's Palo Verde Junior College.

When Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees hit safely in 56 straight games in 1941 he had 56 singles and also scored 56 runs.
