LEGION TO SAN ANTONIO IN 1928

MOODY CHEERED IN SPEECH FOR SO. TEXAS CITY

ALAMO TOWN WILL RAISE $100,000 FUND FOR BIG CONVENTION

(By Associated Press) PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 14.—San Antonio, Texas, was today selected as the 1928 meeting place of the American Legion's national convention.

Dan Moody, democratic candidate for governor of Texas, spoke for San Antonio. He received an ovation as he stepped on the platform. He pledged a fund of $100,000 for the entertainment of the delegates.

Kissed By Strange Man, Young School Teacher Is Flustered; 'Campus Rebels' Is Begun Today

CHAPTER I

The bathtub had fallen down exactly five times when the gray tweeds came to the rescue.

Judith was so busy soothing the enraged old lady in the seat behind, upon whose head the box already had descended twice, that she scarcely noticed the man who woefully stretched out a long arm and adjusted the baggage securely on the rack.

But when she turned away from the sputtering dame, she saw that her rescuer was tall and that the shoulders returned to her book. It was a dull gray volume, titled "The Comparative System of Grammar, as Used in American Universities." She apparently became interested in it and the injured old lady behind her, after darting one or two more hostile glances at the back of her neck, finally turned her attention to the landscape.

Judith smiled again and looked up at him, her wide gray eyes dancing, her lips parted for another sally. But the gray tweed shoulders straightened, and retreated down the aisle, their dignity somewhat impaired by the lurching of the train.

No one closed her mouth, stared at him, and allowed an impudent wrinkle to mar the perfect contour of a normally straight nose. Humph! she muttered the edge of her hair, which flamed a dark but brilliant red beneath her tints that shrugged her shoulders and returned to her book. It was a dull gray volume, titled "The Comparative System of Grammar, as Used in American Universities." She apparently became interested in it and the injured old lady behind her, after darting one or two more hostile glances at the back of her neck, finally turned her attention to the landscape.

The next station was a junction, which evidently had been accumulating college students for hours past, for when the Pennsylvanian drew up at the platform, an army of noisy young hooligans stormed the coaches, and Judith's car suddenly was full of bright eyes and rascally coats and blithe language with loud labels.

As the seats filled, Judith removed her coat from the vacant space beside her and laid it on the misbehaving youth slipped into the place. Judith glanced sideways at him, without turning her head, and met his eyes in a similar maneuver. "The youth laughed, and Judith, blushing faintly, smiled.

"This seat occupied?"

Judith shook her head. "No," she said demurely.

The youth pulled a ponderous pipe from a building pocket and stroked it thoughtfully. Then, glancing over his shoulder, "Wonder if I could sneak a few drags before the trainman comes through? They don't enforce the no-smoke rule very much, anyhow, on these college trains."

"Not much chance against it, I'm like this I guess," commented Judith. "Are all the trains like this one?"

"This' one's time compared with most of 'em," he answered dryly. "You ought to see one of the trains after a big game, when everybody's got a singin' in 'em. Victors celebratin' an' losers droakin' their sorrows. You a newcomer?" He inspected her more closely.

"Yes," said Judith. "I don't know anything about university life."

He stopped puffing at his pipe and regarded her in some surprise. "A freshman?"

FARMERS OUGHT TO SLASH CROP LEADERS CLAIM

FOUR MILLION BALES OF 1926 YIELD SHOULD BE RETIRED, SAID

(By Associated Press) MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 14.—A plan for meeting the cotton price emergency was adopted here early today by the conference of representatives from cotton growing states which then adjourned, leaving the execution of the program to advisory councils and general committees in each state.

The approved plan calls for the retirement of 4,000,000 bales of the current crop as the only practical means of handling this year's surplus. This withdrawal must be accompanied by a "reasonable reduction" in the crop for 1927, the conference declared.

Co-operation is urged. Governmental and private, were invited to use every legitimate means in co-operation with cotton producers to effect a reduction next year of 25 per cent in acreage planted to the staple.

The convention subscribed a fund of approximately $500,000 to pay the costs of preliminary work in setting the withdrawal movement into action and of organizing the credit resources for handling the surplus cotton.

Declining to take positive action toward legislative enactment to insure reduced production, the conference referred this matter to governors of states severally for their determination and possible recommendation to state-making bodies.

Outlining the organization of advisory councils and general committees in each state, which should be composed of representatives of states, the state banking associations and cooperative associations, the conference left to them the administration of relief plan.

Committee is Named

For complete execution of the plan an executive committee was named to follow up the recommendations for state organization and to bring proper influence to bear upon laggard states and committees.

The big fight of the conference sprung out of sentiment favoring a call on state legislatures for enactments which would require reduction in cotton planting acreage for 1927.

Court Resolution Lost

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 14 (AP)—The American Legion today defeated a resolution reaffirming its position in favor of the world court.

There was a short debate on the resolution, the burden of the opposition being that the world court matter was political and that the legion was non-political.

The convention also defeated a resolution urging congress to extend for one year from May, 1927, the law permitting foreign soldiers who served in the American forces in the world war to enter the United States as extra quota under the immigration law. The department of Italy advocated the resolution.

Organization of the national defense into a single department with secretaries of equal importance for land, sea and air forces, was recommended to the legion convention by its aeromantics committee.

Air Plans Charged

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14 (AP)—The committee on aeromantics of the American Legion after agreeing to recommend a unified air service today charged its mind and decided to have a further investigation of the subject.

Instead of recommending "the organization of the national defense into a single department with secretaries of equal importance for land, sea and air forces," the committee decided to "look with favor upon the proposition."

The committee also proposed the appointment of a committee of nine to study the question and report to the next convention.

Texan Foiled As He Attempts To Suicide

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 14 (AP)—Tying one end of a rope to the top rung of a freight car ladder near Grand Prairie, J. G. Hollingsworth of Childress, Tex., last night leaped off into space, according to the sheriff's office here. But his plans to "cut it all" were frustrated from two sources.

A few minutes before Hollingsworth had forcibly taken the rope from a truck driver who reported the matter to officers at Grand Prairie. They rushed to the scene and arrived just as a train crew of a Texas and Pacific train was cutting Hollingsworth down.

Hollingsworth was given treatment at a hospital here and is being held pending examination as to his mental-ity.

Marie Eats Buckwheats

(By Associated Press) LEVITTOWN, Pa., Oct. 14.—Buckwheat cakes with Vermont maple syrup and sausage were the American gustatory delights chosen by the Rumanian queen and her family for their second breakfast sea on their voyage to the United States. Marie also tasted American breakfast cereal for the first time.

The meal was prepared by Billy Linn, chief steward, who donned a kitchen apron and displaced the Leviathan's expert French and German chefs in response to Marie's request that she have a day of strictly American food.

The menu prepared for luncheon was chicken Maryland, with corn fritters, hot beaten biscuits and honey. This repast was to be served in the main dining room with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and her brother, Dr. Richard Billing, as guests of the queen.

ABILENE TRAIN FULLY MADE UP

Matadors Will Have Plenty of Lubbock Support In Clash With Simmons Friday

The special Tech train was assured this morning when Coach E. Y. Freeland chartered a special train to run to Abilene in the morning for the Simmons-Friday Tech football clash. The Tech authorities are very anxious that all who desire to make the trip secure their tickets today. Tickets can be secured either from the College or at the offices of the Avalanche-Journal.

Round trip fare for the game is $4.50. The train leaves Lubbock in the morning at 7 o'clock and will return Friday evening.

Matadors After Game

The Matadors are more anxious to win the Simmons game than they are the T. C. U. tilt at Fort Worth and Coach Freeland told the Journal today that he was more than delighted that a special train was being made up for the game tomorrow. "Give us the support and we'll do our best," the hardy grid mentor of the Tech squad said.

The bad weather of today makes the trip almost an impossibility in an auto so a larger crowd than anticipated is expected to ride the special train.

Thieves Steal Facts In McPherson Trial

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14 (AP)—For the third time important documents in the Alvin Karpis-McPherson case have been stolen. S. S. Hahn, attorney for Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sieff, star witness for the state in the preliminary hearing of Mrs. McPherson on criminal conspiracy charges, announced today that his office had been rifled and that documentary evidence in the case was missing.

Hahn declared that six photographs of Mrs. Wiseman and Mrs. McPherson, taken together after the two women had been made up to resemble each other, had disappeared together with several telephone receipts which the attorney intended using to prove, that the evangelist and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother, had had telephone conversations with Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator, while he was a fugitive from justice.

The hearing in municipal court was thrown into confusion five minutes after today's session started when Attorney W. L. Gilbert, counsel for the evangelist, exchanged blows with Hahn, the attorney for Mrs. Wiseman.

Blown 50 Feet, Man May Survive Hurts

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Blown fifty feet into the air when a boiler exploded on a drill rig at Stonewall late Wednesday, Andrew Couchfield, 25, may live despite shattered bones and severe burns hospital attendants said Thursday.

Eye witnesses said the man was thrown more than 50 feet high by the explosion, striking the ground with a thud about 10 feet from the base of the derrick.

BORGER MURDER ARREST COMING

Rangers On Way To Oil Field Town; Pothman Slaying Still A Mystery

(By Associated Press) AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 14.—Although no arrests had been made until today in the slaying of Clifford Pothman, 15, school girl who was shot to death by one of two bandits. These officers hinted that a suspect would be in jail before night. This was the information received in Amarillo today.

Rangers Are Coming

Borger is awaiting the arrival today of the Texas ranger company of four men, who have been ordered to the oil field town to enforce the law. It is believed the rangers will not confine their activities to the slaying, but will lead in a general cleaning up of the boom town, in which, it is charged, lawlessness and vice is rife.

Miss Pothman was killed when she, her sister and a young man were held up while riding into Borger in a motor car. She was shot while sitting in the car.

Is Second Shooting

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Fred Gibson, wife of an oil field worker, was held up and shot and wounded by a bandit near the same spot where Tuesday night's hold up took place.

Senate Probe Goes Back To Ill. Soon

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 14 (AP)—The senatorial investigating committee headed by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri will resume sessions here in a week next Monday morning to further up the loose ends of its previous inquiry into the Illinois primary, Hickman Yates, secretary announced here today.

Four Horsemen Needed Badly

Lubbock high school needs four horsemen—four boosters who will "ride through" with the football team and buy a blanket each at a cost of $9 per blanket.

Twenty-one of twenty-five needed grid blankets have been assured in the Avalanche-Journal's campaign and the following persons have promised to buy one blanket each:

Panhandle Construction Co.; Kenneth N. Clapp, Chas. L. Adams, Slaughter Motor Co., Harry Meyers, Memphis Price Co., the Avalanche-Journal, Dr. George G. Ingham, Sherrard Hardware Co., Myrick Hardware Co., Tech Cafe, Mrs. Merton J. Smith, D. N. Leaverton, Barber Brothers, Minter-Gamel, McWhorter-Roberts, Hogan and Patton, Conley's store, Lubbock Tailoring Co., W. J. Garrett, W. S. Powell. How about those other four? Mail or bring your check for $9 to the Blanket Editor, Avalanche-Journal.

Won't you be one of the "Four Horsemen" and bring or mail your check for $9 to the Avalanche-Journal blanket fund? Do it now!

Mail Bandits Slay Guard And Escape

NEWARK N. J., Oct. 14 (AP)—A payroll of $160,000 consigned to the Elizabeth Port Banking company and intended for the Singer Sewing Machine, was obtained in the Elizabeth mail robbery, according to reports reaching this city.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 14 (AP)—Bandits armed with sawed-off shotguns held up a mail truck under police escort in the business district this morning and killed one man and wounded two others.

The dead man is John King, an employee of the Elizabeth postoffice, who was in charge of the truck. John Quinn, also a postal employee, was wounded, and motorcycle Patrolman Christman, who was escorting the truck, was knocked from his machine when one of the bandits' cars collided with him. He was shot as he lay on the ground. The bandits got away. It is believed there were ten or more in the party. They occupied two automobiles. The contents of the loot is not yet known.

Amarillo Lads Held In Auto Theft Case

A Buick roadster recently stolen in Amarillo and captured at Midland, will today be returned to its owner, and two young Amarillo boys who gave their names at an Amarillo hearing, be bound to be locked in the Potter county jail to face a felony charge that can mean nothing short of a term in the state penitentiary Sheriff Johnston, while his prisoners were cared for at the Cross Bar hotel. Today they will continue their journey to the northern metropolis.

Mexico Cancels All Arms Import Permits

BROWNVILLE, Texas, Oct. 14 (AP)—Mexican customs officials today received instructions from Mexico City not to permit the importation of arms and ammunition of any kind or character. All permits are cancelled by the order.

Mexican consul A. C. Vasquez stated this morning he had received no instructions in connection with the order but believes it does not apply to sportsmen, who are now permitted to carry arms and ammunition into Mexico upon written permission of the president of the municipality at the port of entrance.

Journal News Reel

"Cut crop and acreage" south's leaders tell cotton farmer as Memphis session is ended. San Antonio chosen as 1928 convention place for American Legion. Arrest expected today in murder of Borger school girl, 15. Special train will leave tomorrow morning at seven o'clock, carrying Tech rosters to clash between Matadors and Simmons Cowboys. Chicago plans another cleanup drive on bear runners and gangsters. First fly in McPherson trial when lawyers disagree. Indiana klan probe practically ended and Stephenson returned to cell. Campus Rebels' Journal's new serial story, begins today. Queen Marie eats buckwheat cakes for breakfast aboard ocean liner. $160,000 payroll stolen by mail robbers in New Jersey.

Mrs. W. S. Douglas, State Chairman Of Art In Federated Clubs, Lectures In City Banquet Given In Her Honor

Mrs. W. S. Douglas, chairman of art in the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, talked on art and art appreciation before a group of Lubbock women Wednesday afternoon at the First Baptist church. She came here upon the invitation of the City Federation and was honor guest at a banquet at the Lubbock hotel at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Her lecture dealt principally with composition, colors, and subject matter and a harmonious relation of these three. She talked of painting and sculpturing and illustrated her remarks with prints of famous paintings of other works.

Almost Totally Deaf Mrs. Douglas became almost totally deaf a number of years ago and it was after that that she turned seriously to the study of art. She has made two trips to the old world and has viewed many of the more famous galleries of Europe. She advised the women to hang good paintings in their homes, saying they could never go wrong in the selection of prints of famous pictures.

She asked that they support the Texas artists and told of some of the more famous ones, showing a few prints of their works. The lecturer gave a brief resume of the history of art telling of the principal tendencies in many of the periods. Art is a universal language, she explained.

Mrs. W. B. Price, president of the Seventh District of Federated clubs, presided at the luncheon given in her honor. Mrs. Douglas was toasted by Mrs. Tom Stone, her former friend; Mrs. E. L. Robertson gave a toast to Mrs. Garland Woodward, president of the City Federation; Mrs. J. L. Cunningham made a talk on the club house, the objective of the federation, and Mrs. J. C. Granbery toasted Mrs. Price.

Thirty-eight attend banquet Flowers banking in color from yellow to deep red were used in making the banquet hall beautiful for the luncheon. These bouquets were later taken to the hospital and distributed among the sick there by the federation members.

Those who attended the banquet were Mesdames W. S. Douglas, W. B. Price, Garland Woodard, R. H. Martin, Eric Studebaker, J. E. Hamilton, R. I. Tubbs, J. H. Jenkins, J. S. Johnson, W. H. Meador, T. R. Prideaux, W. O. Stevens, H. A. Davidson, J. L. Cunningham, Allen T. Stewart, Henry Hawkins, W. W. Royalty, A. V. Weaver, C. S. Middleton, James Kimmel, J. P. Giles, R. G. Herce, W. F. Presbyterian Revival Will Close On Sunday

The revival which has been in progress at the First Presbyterian church during this week and last, conducted by Dr. Trigg Thomas, will close Sunday evening. It was announced today by the evangelist. Only two more evening services will be held as no services will be held on Saturday.

"The Three Appearings of Christ" is to be the sermon topic for this evening and the evangelist has announced that he will preach on "The Fellow Who Got Married and Other Excuses" tomorrow evening. He preached on "Repentance" last evening, with Mrs. Thomas singing "A Clean Heart" before the sermon. Three new members were received into the church.

"Repentance is more than conviction, sorrow and confession," said the evangelist last evening. "It is the response of the will to the call of God as pictured in the beautiful story of the Prodigal Son." "Thus it is the 'I will' of the soul in turning from sin unto God through Christ. It may mean sacrifice, but happiness and heaven demand it. 'Repent Ye and Live'."

The church officers and men of the congregation remain after each service for a brief prayer and fellowship meeting.

D. A. R. Meeting Is Postponed

The meeting of the Nancy Anderson chapter of the D. A. R., which was scheduled for Saturday afternoon, has been postponed in order that it may not conflict with the meeting of the federated clubs that afternoon.

Music Choral Society Will Not Meet Saturday

The meeting of the Music Club choral society has been postponed until the following Saturday afternoon in order that the meeting may not conflict with the Texas Day program to be given by the federated clubs on Saturday afternoon. The place and time of meeting will be announced later.

Nazarenes Need More Rooms to House Delegates

An appeal for more beds for delegates who will attend the annual assembly of the Hamlin District of the Church of the Nazarene is being made by Rev. S. L. Wood, pastor of the church, and members of his congregation. The assembly convenes October 29 and lasts until October 31 and the sessions are to be held in the First Presbyterian church. The delegates are to be given their meals at a building on Avenue J by members of the church. Reverend Wood said they are asking only that rooms be furnished for the preachers and visitors who will be are having a banquet at the church Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This banquet was postponed from last Friday evening.

Menu For Today

BREAKFAST—Sliced peaches, cream, this cream, broiled ham, croissant, potato, crisp grraham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of tomato soup, open egg and lettuce sandwiches, grape juice, sponge pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Veal stew with dumplings, baked macaroni and tomatoes, cabbage and beet salad, mold of peas with whipped cream, bran rolls, milk, coffee.

The veal stew is well flavored and made rich in mineral salts by the onion and carrots in it. Macaroni is served in place of potatoes with tomatoes making the dish of great value toward a balanced diet. The salad adds the necessary vitamins, and the dessert furnishes the sugar for quick energy and adds fat to a menu somewhat lacking in this nutrient.

Grape Juice Sponge Pudding One cup grape juice, juice 1 lemon, 3/4 cup sugar, few grains salt, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water, whites 2 eggs.

Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Bring grape juice and sugar to the boiling point, stirring to dissolve sugar. Remove from heat and add lemon juice and dissolved gelatine. Stir well and let mixture stand until beginning to thicken. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry with salt. Fold into jelly mixture and beat until stiff enough to hold its shape. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with boiled custard made with yolks of eggs. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

The Woman's Daily Editorial

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

LIFE'S REALITIES MAY BE GRIMY BUT NOT SO GRIM One time a business man born in a city, reared and trained in a city and indebted to the same city for his financial success, without word or warning to his astonished family, bought a farm in a beautiful valley and announced his intention of ending his days there.

That was some years ago. He is dead now, and I hope that in his peaceful valley he was able to carry out his theory of "squaring himself with life," as he called it. He explained it all one evening as we sat out under the stars.

"All my life," he said, "I have had a feeling that man was born to work with his hands. Not to hold a pen, or a telephone receiver, but a spade or a pick or a hammer or chisel."

"I decided that when my duty to

KIWANIANS HEAR M. H. DUNCAN

The Kiwanis club held its regular weekly luncheon at the new Lubbock hotel today, opening with an invocation by Rev. Trigg Thomas and the introduction of visiting Kiwanians and invited guests. The meeting was then called to order by President Garland Woodward. After a very interesting business session, in which some changes were discussed in the by-laws, the meeting was turned over to Kiwanian Allen T. Stewart. Kiwanian Oeville Thorp of Dallas was introduced and spoke briefly on the principles of Kiwanis and the great good to be accomplished by the whole-hearted co-operation of all members. M. H. Duncan was the principal speaker and spoke on the many public matters that should interest every citizen of Lubbock, giving a very interesting review of the great increases in the school enrollment the past twelve months, the affiliated credits now enjoyed by the Lubbock school and many interesting matters connected with the public school system of Lubbock. The Kiwanis club is planning an educational program together with other matters that will keep members busy for the next few months.

Legionnaires In Big Convention Puzzled Try To Establish The Identity Of A Buddy Past Is Blank To The Shell-Shocked Vet

(By Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 14.—Members of the American Legion were trying today to establish the identity of a homeless veteran who has carried a name not his own for three years. The veteran was here to undergo the scrutiny of other legionnaires in convention.

Major General Neville of the marine corps, San Francisco, has said that "Tarbot" undoubtedly saw service, probably with the marine brigade at Belleau wood.

Minus an Arm

Loss of one arm, and the right at that, isn't going to keep Harland Eastwood, student at Galileo high school, San Francisco, from playing football. Harland is a quarterback and is one of the most promising players on the squad. He played a year at Queen Anne high, Seattle, before coming to San Francisco. Galileo expects much of Eastwood this fall despite the big handicap the boy plays under.

Officers Arrest Mexican Here On Assault Charges

"Better watch that number—he is a bad actor," was the advice a bunch of Mexicans gave members of the sheriff's department when they went to arrest a Mexican cotton picker for an assault. The officers were not frightened, but the Mexicans were and it took quite a while to prove to them they were safe if they would tell where the man could be found.

At last they told the story and went with officers to his hiding place—a chicken house on a nearby farm. Deputy Roberts told the Mexican to come out, but he refused, so it was up to the officer to break the rope that held the door and pull him out.

He wasn't so bad after all, and now he is resting in the county hospital with an assault charge hanging over his head.

200—But Fast

Justin Dart tips the scales at an even 200, but with all that avoirdupois, he's one of the fastest players on the Northwestern university football squad. Justin, in fact, is so speedy he often drops back from his guard position and runs interference for Captain "Moon" Baker. The big fellow is a veritable stone wall on defense. There'll be little darting through Dart's territory by opposing teams this fall.

JOE PATE OF ATHLETICS HAD ODD RECORD IN 1926

Joe Pate, veteran hurler of the Athletics, had a most unusual record last season. Pate took part in 47 battles, yet only nine counted in the won and lost columns. Oddly enough, he was credited with a victory in every one of the nine, being the only gunner in the majors to have a perfect mark.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"I wish to the Lord we could move out of this dump," Cherry grumbled at breakfast the next morning. "It's the worst looking shack on Myrtle street and heaven knows that is no boulevard of palatial mansions."

"You're lucky to have a home at all, young lady." Her father looked at her severely over the top of his morning paper. "Me and your Ma slaved for ten years to get this place paid for, and we owe two years' taxes, as it is."

"Couldn't you put a mortgage on it to get money to paint it and buy some new furniture?" Cherry insisted, unabashed. "I nearly die of shame every time a new person calls and sees how we live. Muggy says Selma Pruitt was here with George last night. I know she just came posing her nose in to get something on us—to make fun of us to her friends."

"I been tiggerin' on paintin' it next spring or summer, if I have a slack spell," Jim Lane acknowledged reluctantly.

"The walls haven't had a new coat of paper since the flood," Cherry went on petulantly. "Just look at this dining room—aded old brown oilcloth paper, with that awful border of poisonous looking purple grapes spilling over a Paris green trellis. And a plate rail! Good heavens! Nobody has a plate rail any more. And those terrible souvenir plates from Chicago and Niagara Falls and the Dallas Fair—"

"This is your Ma's home, more'n yours, Cherry," her father reproved her sternly. "And if she thinks them plates is pretty, they're pretty, and that's all there is to it."

"And hantache cups and the cups with our names on them in gold letters and those hideous fruit and fish pictures, and that awful bowl of artificial fruit—good Lord, Daddy, how can I ask a man like Mr. Cluny to eat a meal in a room like this?"

"The further that old cradle-smoker stays away from me, and mink the better I'll like it," Mr. Lane retorted. "I've heard about enough of this nonsense about you marryin' that old grandpa, Cherry—"

"Hello, folks." Junior came noisily into the room, smoochin' his glass-lily pompadour. "Say, Dad, where do you think this angel child of yours was last night? He took his seat, jorking his head toward Cherry. "Fay and I saw her and Chris Wiley at Tony's speakeasy joint—" grown stood in the doorway. Both Cherry and Faith ran to her side each putting a supporting arm about her shoulders. Cherry managed to laugh shakily dashing at her tears with her hand.

"Just one of our usual breakfast rows, Muggy darling," she cried. "Junior was teasing me and Dad took his part. It's nothing serious, honest it isn't. Junior was just mistaken about something, weren't you Junior?" she appealed to the boy who had dropped his head sheepishly.

"Yeah," he muttered. "I—I was mistaken."

"And Muggy," Cherry cried excitedly, rubbing her lovely young cheek against her mother's. "Dad's going to paper the living room and the dining room. We'll all help, Dad. We—ess do it in a couple of nights. I'll pick out the paper today."

"I can't lay my hand on the money for the paper right now, I'm afraid," Jim Lane sank back into his chair, defeated, and reached for the sausages.

"I'll buy the paper," Cherry beamed on them all. "I saw the loveliest patterns at Robinson's—"

"Where's Joy?" Mrs. Lane, supported by her daughters, waddled slowly to a place at the table. "She'll be late for school. Bring me my fan, netlette wrapper, Faith. Oh dear! I feel so dizzy! I'll take just a mite of that sausage, Jim, and a couple of buckwheat cakes."

"Don't you think we can get the house fixed up by Friday, Dad?" Cherry slipped into her chair again, and leaped over to pat her father's cheek lovingly. "For—you know what?"

"Course he can," Mrs. Lane spoke for her husband. "I been tryin' to get him to fix up this place for a coon' age but nothin' I say makes any difference to him. Well, Joy I must say this is a fine time for you to stroll in for your breakfast! And a shoe lace draggin'! Faith, I wish you'd wash Joy's socks yourself. The laundry fades all the color out of 'em. My land! What are you all swelled up about?"

"Nothing!" Faith protested in a strangled voice, but she left her sausage untouched on her plate.

Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Babe Ruth is demanding $150,000 for covering right field next season but according to one of the owners of the Yankee club he won't get it.

The strong Lamesa Tomatoes will clash with the Sharon Tigers on the Lamesa lot. Lamesa held the Westerners in a sweat as the last week-end. It is expected that the Lamesa eleven will be strong contenders for the Class B conference division of the South Plains.

During Babe Ruth's baseball career he has clouted out a total of 356 home runs. This season was next best to his record breaker in 1923 when he hit out 59.

Considerable differences are shown in the 'pro' athletic salaries of America and England. The salary limit of the English professional is something like $40.00 a week; while in America if a 'pro' performer doesn't get $400.00 a week he turns up his nose when he accepts the check.

A complete 'shake-up' is being planned for the St. Louis Browns. Slender is to be traded, and next material to be bought. The Browns already have the third highest payroll in the American League—and were the cellar leaders of the league.

First 'pro' football game for the Panhandle will be Sunday afternoon in Amarillo when the Claude Independent football team clashes the Amarillo pro gridiron gang.

Clarendon College is getting ready for the record-breaking attendance when they meet with the McMurray Indians on the Clarendon homecoming event. The Indians are the favorites for the contest; but the Bulldogs have a scrappy club and will give the Indians a real tussle.

Are we going to Abilene? Sure do need lots of folks to ride on the special choo-choo for the Cowboy-Bullfighter clash. Phone me today before 6 p. m.—got to order the train out before night. Lets all go and help the Matadors.

It will not be any trouble to get the necessary amount to go for Ft. Worth—already got around 500 that have said they wanted to go. Tickets for that trip will be on sale Monday—$16.30 (if you want a sleeper) $12.50 if you want to stay awake.

The Matadors want this Simmons game so bad—they would rather beat the big Cowboy eleven than to defeat the Horned Frogs.

People from all parts of the South Plains are asking about the T. C. U.—Tech football Special train being promoted by the Avalanche-Journal next week-end there will be fully 200 that will accompany the Matadors to Fort Worth.

Amarillo is still wanting a chance to get even with Lubbock from the baseball season—they want to meet with a semi-pro football club from Lubbock.

Clovis will meet with the Westerners here Friday afternoon at 3:30 on the Tech gridiron—the Clovis bunch have a tough eleven for the local high school gridsters to handle—as the Clovis club has held the Eastern New Mexico championship for some few years.

By the way—how about that blanket for the Westerners? They have been ordered—but there are four of them yet to be bought—hurry up and send in your $2.00 to the Avalanche-Journal blanket fund.

$7,000 Loot From Irving Bank Job Being Sought After Robber Confesses

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Oct. 14.—Efforts to recover $7,000 loot taken by three men who held up the National Bank at Irving near here recently will be made this evening when one of the trio who confessed details of robbery yesterday will lead detectives to a spot in the Trinity river bottoms where he said they buried the money. The confession yesterday to Chief of Detectives Gunning was made, the man said, to save a relative whom officers are holding as a suspect and to aid detectives in capturing the other two named as accomplices.

Robber "Double Crossed"

The confessed robber said he had been "double crossed out of his share of the money by his two companions."

Following the confession held in connection with the robbery was released. Another man arrested here is still held for further investigation while a fourth man arrested in Oklahoma with a grey automobile is also being held.

SPEED LAWS

Thirty-five miles an hour may at one time have been the highest speed
at which a car might travel, but, say,
the motorists, that was years ago.

With the growing traffic problem,
many drivers are calling for more speed as the only solution.

Maryland has miles of good highways and has kept close tabs on automobile mishaps for the last two years. It was found that, in 1925,

Maryland had 242 accidents outside incorporated cities. Of these, 181 were on so-called state stretches of comparatively straight road. Recklessness and carelessness were blamed

for 241 smashups and 66 to excessive speed.

It would seem that even the straight road is no guarantee of safety. And while Maryland seeks the greater part of the accidents to recklessness, it is no secret that speed runs into the manufacture of that product.

Maryland drivers are in no more of a hurry than those driving on other "state" roads in the United States. Lifting the speed limit would be an evicture and an invitation to fools.

A WORRISOME ESTATE

Here's a white elephant of considerable proportions.

A woman in California, who abhors intoxicants in all forms—doesn't want to drink herself nor let anybody else
—has become custodian of an estate
of some 6,000 gallons of good wine.

She is supposed to hold this estate
for two minors, but she doesn't want them to learn to drink. There is no legal way to dispose of the beverage through sale, so she asks that the stuff be destroyed so that she may get it out of her life and out of others.

Whether the court will grant her request that the wine be poured out is a matter of conjecture, but it is hardly probable that such will be the case. To do so might be presuming upon the rights of the minors—whose views as to the drinking of wine are not made known—but not to do so would cause untold worry and anxiety for this poor California woman who cannot bear to have the stuff around.

And, what is worse, cannot get any consolation out of the fact that there are hosts of people throughout the country who would like to become custodian of this rare old estate.

MRS. WOODS' PEARLS

56 graduated rose pearls was lost in Texas Guinan's famous New York

late, but folks who can pay $2 for a ham sandwich on the spot and $15 for a glass of weak lemonade will struggle along somehow sans rose pearls!

Hal Cochran's Daily Poem

OL' PIPE
You're "rusty," old trusty with ashes galore. You're not just the same as when bought at the store.
You're stem is teeth-bitten;
you're knicked up a bit, but,
shucks, just the same, you always seem fit.
I've smoked you—les' see, now—
for lo' these long years, and yours
is the sort of a spirit that cheers.
I sometimes get low at the end of the day, but one puff at you and the blues drift away.
You send up in smoke all the sad side of things. It's cheerfulness plenty plenty your company brings.
I always can know that a dream's going to hatch through the fill to the brim and the touch of a match.
When down in the mouth and when up in the air, I turn unto you, 'cause it seems that you care.
I settle me back, start to puffing,
and then, the smoke floats away;
I'm a new man again.

IN NEW YORK SEE SAWING UP and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Underneath the appearance of rush and scurry, the city has a heart. Sounds like a cheap song, all about the big,
generous soul that the tinsel hides,
but it took a visiting correspondent
to dig down and lay it bare.

Read what he says of it:
A generous town. It gives more transportation for a nickel than is to be had anywhere else in the world, though there is said to be some question about who pays the losses incurred in the operation of the rapid transit system.

"Some harsh spoken persons say the taxpayers bear it in paying for political government that keeps in power by keeping fares down. I don't know. But it's generous government, costly perhaps, but good nevertheless."

"Hear Charley on the subject.
Charley chatted as he guarded a gate at the Metropolitan museum. In the heavy rains last summer Charley's district had turned out a hundred men in hip boots, on 15 minutes' notice to open a closed sewer. The district leader had sent word he wanted a hundred men in hip boots, and they came a-running, that's all."

"Why not?" said Charley. "He does anything we want. Kiddie falls down on a bad sidewalk, old lady holders. I call up Paddy Sidewalk fixed next day. Benches in the park in our district disappeared. No place for the old lady to sit down while the kiddie played. Called up Paddy.
No benches in the park." Paddy says: "The hell they ain't. They'll be here tomorrow," he says and they were. Came by the next load.

"Some big books thought they would build a chemical works in our district. Our district isn't Park avenue, but it's where we live. We went and got Paddy and let him smell."

"How does it smell, Paddy?"
Smells like hell," says Paddy. "How about it?" he says. "Leave it to me
he says. Chemical works torn down and some in five weeks."

"Two street car lines in our district. Every man that works on them born and raised in the district. Conductor gets out and helps the old lady. Knows 'em all. Garbage drivers all born and raised in the district. Sure. Paddy he cuts them from their jobs. He's district leader. Why wouldn't he do anything for Paddy?"
There now isn't that well said of us."

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

HOTELS SCRAMBLE FOR COOLIDGE WHEN WHITE HOUSE UNDERGOES REPAIRS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Though five months will elapse between now and next March, when the Coolidges expect to move out to permit repairs
on the White House, Washington hotel keepers already are pulling every imaginable string to get the presidential family as guests.

Reconditioning the executive mansion will be a six-month job, during about half of which the president and first lady will be away on their vacation. When they'll go has not yet been determined.

For the rest of the time, it has been intimated in official quarters,
the president plans to put up at one of the numerous hotels. He has decided which one, however, nobody knows.

Three months of presidential patronage obviously will be of incalculable value to the hotel which draws the prize. Not only will it jam the establishment during the three months,
but the publicity it will mean will be good for all time.

What the president pays for his accommodations, of course, is no consideration. Any hotel in Washington would entertain him like royalty
and pay him any price for the privilege, if it could get him that way.

All the cheaper hotels in the city have "presidential suites," but that doesn't necessarily imply that any presidents have been in them. In the cases of most of them, they haven't. The one that becomes the real thing will be at an enormous advantage over the others.

The understanding is that the Coolidges will not take a very large retinue into hotel life with them—probably only the president's valet, Mrs.
Coolidge's maid and, of course, their investigative staff of secret service and police guardians, who may be counted on to keep sharp eyes out in the lobby, to watch the presidential private elevator and to clutter the corridor outside the chief executive's suite whenever he's in it.

The president will transact business at the White House executive office, as usual, since that part of the building to which repair operations will not extend, can be kept open.

He simply will walk or motor from his hotel to his office in the morning and back again at night, like any other professional man. Ordinarily he'll walk probably, being a good pedestrian and inclined to complain that he doesn't get enough exercise.

The net result of the whole arrangement promises to be that the presidential pair will be seen, as human beings, rather more than is usual with a president and a "first lady."
They'll take their meals in their suite, unquestionably. They won't be able to sit around their hotel lobby, chatting like common folk, for that would draw a crowd immediately, and be unpleasant. They'll be guarded constantly and people will be shooed away from them. All that's inevitable.

Still, hotel life is bound to be some what more public than being shut up in the White House, and sometimes not getting out for two or three days.

The president may have thought of this, in electing to go to a hotel rather than to take a house. He could have had his choice of a dozen or more,
for nothing, if he'd chosen—the finest in Washington.

But President Coolidge has shown an inclination to humanize himself lately.
It's difficult thing for a president.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

INNOCENT IN LOOKS, DESTROYER IN REALITY

White Butterfly
BY AUSTIN H. CLARK
Smithsonian Institution

You have noticed this apparently innocent and harmless small white butterfly. It is one of commonest butterflies in the United States.
Innocent as it looks, it is one of our most pernicious insects, for the ravages of its caterpillars in our cabbage beds take an enormous toll
each year.

It is not a native butterfly but came from Europe. We do not know just how it was first captured near Quebec in 1760 and was probably brought over in that year or at the close of 1859. In the United States

it was first found at Norway, Me., in 1855.

It was again brought from Europe,
this time to New York, in 1869.
From Quebec and from New York
it gradually spread westward and southward. It first appeared at Washington in 1872. In 1874 it appeared at Charleston, S. C., where it seems to have been brought on a coasting vessel.

By 1881 it had covered the eastern United States as far as Gloucester and Fremont, Mo., Salina, Kas., and Eastport, Tex. Soon after it was at home practically everywhere.

Does it look murderous? It does not. Yet as it spread over the eastern United States, our native white, of much the same appearance but not destructive to our cabbages, disappeared before it and now is quite extinct over nearly all its former eastern range.

The invader as it spread killed out the native white. How? We do not know for sure, but probably by greatly increasing the number of parasites that feed upon them, both to the attacks of which the scarcer
one succumbed.

Helpful Health Hints

MOVIES DON'T INJURE EYES.
GREAT SPECIALISTS AGREE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene
the Health Magazine

With the gradual improvement in motion picture exhibition, audiences are likely to suffer but little from the eye fatigue that invariably accompanied any extended session at the movies a decade ago.

Recently, Drs. A. R. Irvine and
M. F. Weymann of Los Angeles tested the amount of fatigue and the ability to see after long exposures to motion pictures. It was found that motion pictures are evident after 45 minutes of reading current magazine than by viewing either magazine than by viewing either black and white or colored motion pictures for an hour and a half.

Persons are able to look at colored pictures with less fatigue than at black and white. On the other hand, those whose eyes became strained or who suffered fatigue from motion pictures were likely to suffer earlier with any other sort of work

given to their eyes.

In some instances, persons whose eyes became greatly fatigued after evading for 45 minutes showed a lessened amount of fatigue after seeing the moving pictures, the change in the type of attention or work being sufficient apparently to bring about some rest to the vision.

Agree on Effect
Great specialists in eye diseases
were agreed that the movies have no markedly injurious effect or either the accuracy of the vision or on the comfort of the eyes.

It is important, however, that pictures be viewed at a proper distance and with suitable intervals of dark

The fatigue of the eye concerns
not only the retina, or nervous mechanism of the eye, but also the muscles of accommodation, which are responsible for adjusting the eye to objects at varying distances or in different perspectives.

PRACTICAL HELP FOR FARMERS
Practical assistance to the cotton farmers in the Plains country who are in position to hold their cotton for a better price has been offered by the Plainsville Compress and Warehouse company. They are bonded under the laws of the state of Texas. Through the manager, J. W. Murchison, the company is offering free storage on cotton of farmers who wish to store
with them.

That's practical service. If the farmer can afford to hold his cotton and wants to do it his warehouse receipt is a negotiable instrument. In event the plan of southern bankers is consummated and a pool of money is made available for the use of farmers up to a given amount per bale can be borrowed on the receipt, the money to bear interest at the low rate of six per cent.

Mr. Murchison and his company are to be congratulated on the sincere effort to help relieve the farmer.—Plainville Herald.

It might behoove Lubbock citizens to do something to help the farmers of this section in a practical way instead of spending their time walling conditions which are not and could not be one-tenth as bad as they are pictured.

POTASH

Bigger than any announcement in the day's news concerning the future of west Texas is the government announcement of plans to explore for potash in Upton county on a tract now producing oil. The oil drills already have revealed the presence of this mineral. It remains only for the government to make a decision.

CAMPUS REBELS

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

Judith's lips curled and straightened again. "No. But I want to go to a girls' school, you see." If he had looked at her more closely he would have seen an amused twinkle in her eyes.

The mouse-colored one nodded sagely. "M-m-m. One of those high-finished models from a female academy. Well, you've got a lot to learn.

"But I'll give you a rule of three," he added. "Keep your eyes and ears open, keep your mouth shut, and don't drink any liquor until you've had it analyzed. Follow directions, and you may live to graduate."

He paused, and a shout went up from the coach behind. At sound of it he straightened up and smiled faintly—rather condescendingly, Judith thought.

"That smoking car," he remarked indulgently, "is full of Phi Gams and Phi Deltas, and they're shooting high-powered propaganda into all our best rush prospects. And not a Sigma Psi on board but me."

Judith's eyes followed him as he glanced at the small pin, heavy with rubies and diamonds, on his vest.

"Probably ought to crash the gate lock there," he confided, "and corner a mess of frosh for Sig Psi. But I don't feel equal to it. After three years that sort of think kinda palls on one, y'know. But then, I suppose you don't know. Probably didn't have national fraternities where you came from? What sorority are you aiming at?"

Judith hesitated a moment. "Why, I don't know. None, probably."

His spare eyebrows went up in mild surprise and he stared at her with a new interest. "How do you get that way? Do you know what life is like for a barb in Pendleton U? He surveyed Judith's trim chignon ankles and the choker of stone marten that she wore against her dove-colored suit.

"Tell you what I'll do," he went on. "I'll give your name to some friends of mine—Thetas and Kappas and a Gamma Delta. It's pretty late, but they're still making dates for rush week. Tell me about yourself so I can boost your stock. Make 'em think I've known you all my life."

Then, seeing that Judith was searching for a reply, he added, "Only fair to tell you something about myself first. I'm Will Wetherel, of the Sigma Psi house. Member Scabard and Blade, former editor 'Sugar and Spice,' charter member Carlyle Club and Talk Club and chief high moul of the Gerhart faction." His lips curved in a fatuous smile.

"That enough recommend?"

Judith's brows knitted. "Certainly," she said, "and it's good of you to be interested. But I really think I shan't have time for sororities. Thank you just as much."

Wetherel gazed at her solemnly. Then he pursed his lips in a soundless whistle. Judith looked out the window, and Wetherel filled his pipe again and thrust it between his teeth. A sound of shouting came from the rear coach. He rose lazily and stood looking down at her. "Guess I'll wander back and throw the fear of God into those Phi Gams," he remarked, and retreated, elegantly down the aisle.

Judith sat and frowned at the landscape whizzing by. To be taken for a freshman! Well—and she smiled at the thought—the day might come, of course, when she would look upon such a mistake as a compliment rather than a blow to her sophistication. But not yet. Not while her years were so few.

Again the impudent little wrinkle chased itself across her nose. She smiled once more at the recollection of something the youth calling himself Wetherel had said, permitted a vagrant thought of her knight of the band box to flit through her head and turned once more to her book at a forbidding paragraph beginning, "The advantages of the comparative system of grading in colleges where the honor system is employed have been questioned by several leading authorities."

The riotous train, it seemed, had not yet reached the height of its riotousness.

The next station produced a still larger and apparently younger crowd of students than the last. And these evidently had a "singing jag."

They burst into the train in full chorus, jamming the aisles and flapping crazy pennants, to the annoyance of mature passengers and the obvious disgust of those older students who were staring indifferently out of the windows.

The seat beside Judith was taken by a girl who dropped into it without so much as a glance to see who was beside her and began applying her lipstick with great concentration. She would not be distracted from her absorbing occupation until a cavalier of striped hatband and blotchy complexion approached, to hang over her.

"Great joint this school's getting to be," he remarked.

"Hear old Timothy Brown's heading the discipline committee. If so, Lord help the student body. He's a regular old woman. Never knew the delights of wine, woman and song himself, and doesn't mean to let anybody else know 'em."

"Yeah," the girl said, still pecking at her mouth with the corner of her handkerchief and staring into a looking glass in the top of her handbag. "Timothy's pretty sour."

"Do you hear Eric Waters is coming down? You know—the Princeton celebrity. They say his dad's sick of a scandalous cash on him at Princeton and has sent him down here on an allowance of a hundred and fifty a month."

The girl closed her bag and licked her lips carefully. "That's tough," she said. "Is he good looking?"

"Couldn't say," answered the blotchy youth. "The girls seem to think so, but I wouldn't be surprised if it was a case of money making the man. I imagine I could think most anybody was handsome if he had John D. Rockefeller's money."

The girl shrugged, and essayed a careful smile, as if she were afraid her heavily made up lips were going to crack. "I could myself," she agreed. "The sheiks of Pendleton will have their work cut out for them from now on, with Eric Waters providing the competition."

Their conversation drifted on. Judith had been reading one paragraph over and over while the chatter of the youthful pair invaded her left ear. She jerked angrily and concentrated on her book, and a tiny frown furrowed her brow.

The girl beside her glanced her way, and then, as if she had seen something unusual, began "taking Judith in." The blotchy youth, too, seemed to find the sight of the red-haired girl not uninviting, and permitted himself to stare and then to exchange a knowing look with his companion.

Judith, aware of their regard, shifted uncomfortably, and a slow wave of color suffused her pale cheeks. She closed her book with a snap, and the pair beside her, apparently conscious at last of their rudeness, turned their attention elsewhere. Judith heard vague snatches of their murmured talk—"majoring in English"—"made up six hours at summer school"—"hope Prof. Robby takes me in his medieval history course."

Judith was suddenly aware, of a tall, gray figure moving down the aisle. It was the gray tweeds, and she allowed herself this time a good look at her knight of the hat-box. His face, like the rest of his figure, was lean, and his clothes, while apparently new, gave the effect of looseness. He had a small mustache. Apparently, Judith thought, he was one of those men of whom tailors despaired of ever presenting a "snitty" appearance.

He passed Judith without a glance, his hunched face a trifle averted from her, and she experienced a little feeling of amusement, not unminged with a little pity for the man's obvious self-consciousness. As he went by Judith's eye caught the glint of a Phi Beta Kappa pin dangling from his vest, and she nodded her head sagely. Just as she thought—an instructor, very likely. Or maybe a professor, although he did look young for it.

"Almost in," said the blotchy young man, who was still half draped over the back of the seat. He began gathering his lady's scattered baggage.

Through the window pane, Judith could see that the train was sliding through the outskirts of a town. There were squallid gray houses on all sides, and crooked, muddy streets, with gas lamps just beginning to glimmer in the twilight. An involuntary shudder ran through her. She saw people detach themselves from their seats and begin to assemble their grips and suitcases. A confused murmur ran through the car.

"Pendleton Station!" yelled a brakeman, banging open a door, and there was a general scramble.

Judith assembled her belongings as stood back to

Cotton Markets

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14 (AP)—The cotton market opened easy in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables, early trading showing losses of 2 to 3 points. As there was no pressure from hedge selling and the domestic consumption for September was considered bullish, the market rallied. On the advance December was carried to 12.42, January to 12.45 and March to 12.50 or 7 points above the previous close.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Buying of investment shares on a fairly large scale enabled the stock market to extend its recovery at the opening of trading today. Rally responded to indications of continued large earnings and traffic with the southern carriers, which had recently been under pressure, making the best headway. Initial gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Coca Cola, Case Threshing Machine, Atlantic Coast Line and American Smelting.
With forced liquidation apparently complete and profession selling abandoned for the time being, more consideration was given to favorable underlying factors, these included announcement that the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads had placed large orders for rails, which reflected in higher prices for United States Steel and leading independents. Mercantile issues were helped by reports that reasonable weather was stimulating fall trade. General Motors recovered several points and American Roller Bearing, which reached a new high price above 72. Despite the latest report of an increase in crude production, oil shares took a pompant part in the early advance. Shell, Field Steel, Dupont and East Iron Pipe sold 2 to 3 points higher. Foreign exchange opened firm, with trade featured by rates of 50 cents or more for Norwegian kroner and Spanish pesetas.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT
CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Unexpected sharp upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool led to an early advance today at the market here. A rate scarcity of ocean vessels available for the grain trade was given as the chief influence abroad. Opening 3-8c to 1c higher, Chicago wheat values reacted a little, and then hardened again.

Corn and oats were easy, corn starting unchanged to 1c up, and later sagging all around. Provisions showed strength.

await her chance to get out of the mad press of noisy youth. The gray tweeds had disappeared and she saw not a trace of the house-colored Westcott. She was the only young woman in the coach who looked a square to engineer her handbox. She felt suddenly lonely.

The whooping, giggling throng filed out. Judith was instantly engulfed in a still larger and more clamorous throng, which milled about her with a confused thunder of noisy greetings. There was a strenuous backslapping on the part of the young men, and the girls greeted one another with shrill cries and kisses. For a moment she was swept by a wave of helpless consternation.

But relief came swiftly, though unexpectedly. A young man in a loose-fitting light top coat detached himself from the crowd and took swift strides toward her. A smile was playing about his lips, though Judith did not see it. Indeed, all she noticed was that the shoulders beneath the top coat seemed extraordinarily broad. A football hero, probably, was her thought.

The next moment the giant had stopped beside her and had snatched her suitcase and handbox. His freckles went around her and she felt herself being carried aloft.
Her mouth opened to voice a protest, but she was suddenly crushed against the topcoat and staring into a pair of strange green eyes. There was a merry light in the green eyes. They seemed to be laughing at her. She struggled feebly, and then the giant kissed her soundly on the mouth. Wandering off the mob, he half pulled, half pushed her toward the taxi stand. Judith was too dazed to speak. He opened the door of a cab, thrust her inside and then slammed it shut.

"What?" Judith began, but the rude young giant had turned away. She saw him toss a bill to the driver, heard him say, "The lady will give you directions."

Then he vanished in the crowd.

City Water Rates Here Are Revised

Water rates in Lubbock, which in the past few days have been up for a great deal of discussion, are now stabilized after two changes recently by the City Commission, and no further disadvantages to the populace is anticipated. It was said here Wednesday night. The new rates, set by the commission after the past month's bills were mailed out are being reduced as follows: All at the office to pay their bills and according to officials, are not higher, as some have charged, than they have always been.
In fact, the rates are lower, due to cancellation of the monthly sewer charge, officials say, but a big rearrangement has been made. A minimum charge for the first 3,000 gallons used has been set, and the sewer charge eliminated. Rates are graduated for all water consumption above

Chinese Protecting Foreigners, Report

PEKING, Oct. 13 (AP)—An authoritative dispatch received here today from Sainfu, capital of Shensi province, announced that through the food offices of Liu Chen-Hsu, military ruler of the province, all foreigners detained there have been brought safely out of the city except the Rev. C. J. Jensen and his wife and a number of Roman Catholic missionaries who elected to remain.
Half of the fifty foreigners released are Americans. The prisoners had been in a sad plight because of hardships endured. The American legation recently appealed to Liu to safeguard the lives of the Americans and he replied that he desired to do this but that Sainfu was occupied by "bandits."

WEST TEXAS IS AGAIN WINNER AT STATE FAIR

SEVEN COUNTIES PLACED AMONG FIRST ELEVEN WINNERS AT DALLAS

West Texas products have again been adjudged superior to products in other parts of the state, seven counties in west Texas having placed among the winners at the State Fair at Dallas, according to advices received here Wednesday night from Garret O. Reeves, who is in charge of Lubbock county's exhibit at the state exposition.

Garza county took first place in the state with a percentage of 906, with seven counties intervening between first place winner and Lubbock county, the latter having a percentage of 842. Lubbock was topped by Hale county by 10 1/2 points in the final awards.

Forty-one out of the 252 counties in the state offered exhibits at the exposition, with West Texas placing seven counties among the first eleven winners. Randall county's exhibit, under care of J. W. Jennings, former Lubbock man, took second place. The distinction won by Garza county comes after the exhibit had taken first at the Panhandle South Plains fair here, the West Texas Fair at Abilene. The exhibit was in charge of George Samson, secretary of the chamber of commerce at East, and was awarded 966 points.

Other counties exhibiting, other than the two high, and the order in which prizes were awarded were: Hartley, Harrison, Dallas, Hemphill, Eastland, Hale, Henderson, Smith, Lubbock, Lamar, Howard, Collin, Martin, Haskell, Bristow, Dawson, Brown, Hill, Anderson, Gregg, Wheeler, Rusk, Cass, Ellis, Angelina, Frank, Hunt, Kaufman, Floyd, Franklin, Terry, Fannin, Van Zandt, Shelby, Polk, Midland, Atascosa, Lamb and Colorado. Competition was close, especially among west Texas counties, as evidenced by the awards, there being only 62 1/2 points between first place and Lubbock county in eleventh.

Among leading individuals Lubbock county is holding her own in individual awards, though judging is yet incomplete, winning first on cranish pumpkin, and second on watermelon, pumpkin, carrots and barley. A feature of the exposition that is new and intended to encourage the "Live at Home" slogan is a big luncheon to be served Monday night at which only state-grown products will be served. Lubbock county will furnish all the Irish potatoes, and portions of the sweet potatoes, onions, radishes, tomatoes, carrots, beans, alfalfa, peaches, peapods, turnips, and various other products.

Judging is continuing in the various departments of individual awards, the awards stated, and will be completed shortly.

Large Companies Blocking Acreage For Clovis Tests

(Special to the Journal) CLOVIS, Oct. 14.—The chances for a thorough test of this immediate vicinity for gas and oil have been heightened here with the announcement that the Humble Oil company, one of the largest operators in the Southwest, has secured lease property and is preparing to drill a deep test 27 miles due east of this city.

All rigging and equipment is now being assembled on the site, and actual work will begin in the near future. In the meantime, other large companies are now engaged in drilling test wells or are already well under way with them. The Gulf company is blocking up quite a large tract about 35 miles to the northeast, while the Ohio Oil company has secured considerable lease property, and is preparing to set up a rig.

Actions of these larger companies in seeking to make thorough tests of this section indicate that they believe oil or gas is here in abundance, and the citizens here is deeply interested in the situation.

TEXAS TEST SUIT STARTED TODAY

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—The case of the Texas Alien land law forbidding the sale of state lands to aliens, in a suit involving lands in four Texas counties valued at approximately $20,000,000, was begun here Thursday in federal court.

The case is of the State of Texas vs. David Faskin et al. It is alleged that 226,000 acres of land in Martin, Andrews, Ector and Midland counties was sold in 1913 to Oscar W. Kerr, of Minneapolis, Minn., in consideration of $1,392,313.75. This land was, in turn, transferred to W. A. Koon, as trustee, who allegedly sold it to the Midland Land company, of which David Faskin is head, for a consideration of $1.

The state charges that the transaction was made in violation of the Texas alien land law, David Faskin being an alien. It demands forfeiture of the charter of the Midland Land company, and reversion of the title to the state.

Although the land was originally purchased 13 years ago for approximately one and a quarter million dollars, it is now said to be worth upward of $20,000,000.

HOWARD HEARS FROM GOVERNOR

County Attorney Elect Given District Post; Has Not Yet Accepted It

L. A. Howard, Democratic nominee for County Attorney of Lubbock county, who by this is County Attorney-elect, received official notice late Wednesday from the Governor's office that he had been appointed District Attorney of the 72nd Judicial District to succeed Walter C. Witheer, resigned.

He is yet undecided, however, as to whether or not he will accept the appointment, he told the Daily Journal today, and until further development, refused to make a statement in connection with the matter.

Mr. Witheer resigned recently following his confirmation by the State Senate after he had withdrawn a resignation submitted to take effect October 1. The withdrawal, he said, was brought about due to the opposition that offered to his confirmation.

As the time nears for the opening of the October term of district court here, a great deal of interest is being shown in the situation, and immediate action on the part of Mr. Howard is anticipated.

Threatened Raid By Monster Is Exciting

The trite old saying, used sometimes in connection with a man's meals that his eyes are larger than his stomach, might also well apply in a little instance that occurred Wednesday night when an S. O. S. call came to the Avalanche-Journal office for a reporter to "cover" a threatened raid of a Gila monster on the quiet city.

A "news-hound" rushed manly to the scene, only to discover that a baby water dog had been caught and imprisoned in a milk bottle near the canyon east of the city. Some disappointment ensued, but the incident is significant due to the heavy rains that have fallen over this section of the state. Sometimes it rains, and sometimes it pours, but this time it must have literally rained water dogs.

Catholics Renew Plea In Religious Warfare

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13 (AP)—Sixty prominent Catholic laymen have handed to the chamber of deputies a petition requesting amendment to the religious clauses of the Mexican constitution. The petition is identical with that presented to the chamber by the Catholic episcopate some time ago and was rejected because it was signed only by priests, who are not entitled under the law to address the congress.

Young Run-Aways Return Happily Home After Finding Tramping Is Not All It's "Cracked Up To Be"

The four runaways—three boys and a girl have been captured and told they are heading to the homes of their parents. They are being taken to their homes to be cared for by their parents. They avoided the whipping that is usually meted out to such offenders. They are now enjoying life as never before. They would "chiff" dwellers might have had a good time, but American boys and girls find "tramping" difficult. It is a life of joy by any means, but the young girl admits the journey was unpleasant.

The quartet left home Monday and since that time parents and officers have been wondering as to their whereabouts. They left no trail behind, probably because they did not know how, and got as far from home as a farm house south of St. Louis. The rough life beat them. They were hungry and had no food. They were tired and had no place to rest. They were cold and had no clothes. They were afraid and had no one to turn to. They were in a state of despair. They were in a state of despair.

They Come Home

No one mentioned home until they stepped down from the wagon. After the other, in silence they saw their faces toward Lubbock. Officers department found them at the south of Lubbock and they were happy when they were apprehended. The girl is 16 years of age and the three boys slightly younger.

Farmers Ought To Hold Crop, Urged

and thereafter, A. F. Laver of Kansas, chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the resolutions, led the successful movement to refer the matter to governors. The champion of the group favoring a statutory average reduction was A. G. Little of Littleville, Ark., who declared delegates had come to the conference with the expectation of obtaining such action. Four states voted for the legislative resolution sponsored by Mr. Little. They were Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. States which opposed the Little proposal and supported the committee plan as offered by Mr. Laver were Alabama, Georgia, Arizona, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina and Oklahoma. Fund Is Raised Backed by a fund of $5,000 which tude of the convention in its late continued sessions of yesterday and last night and promised active prosecution of the campaign for meeting the cotton market depression of this year and preventing a recurrence of the price slump in the staple. Mellon Praises South

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Solution of the cotton price problem is believed by Secretary Mellon to be assured in the aggressive attitude of southern business leaders. It was reiterated at the century today that there will be no difficulty as far as credit for the orderly marketing of the record crop is concerned. Federal Reserve Banks in the south were described as in excellent condition and the intermediate credit banks were reported ready to meet demands. Ware houses and other storage facilities and other requirements pertaining to marketing are the immediate demands, and in this respect the government's undertakings are much better than in 1921.

Chicago Plans A Drive On Thugs

(Continued from Page 1) at Weiss after the machine gun had opened fire from a window. This version found no corroboration in other testimonies. Squad Reorganized The order of Chief Collins, issued after a conference with Mayor Dever, virtually reorganized the detective force into a squad system. It placed at direct command of seven captains, who command the new gangsters' bureau, thirty high speed cars, manned by sixty squads or a total of 450 men with fifteen lieutenants. In addition, the captains will have use in emergency of 297 department fluffers, giving command over a shot gun and motor equipped force of 1,692 men—the army with which they are to carry on the city's offensive against gangsters into the strong holds of the law breakers. Orders were issued to arrest all known gangsters on sight and to kill any known gangster caught with a gun in his hand or in the act of committing a crime. Each captain was given a list of the leaders of the fourteen major gangs of Chicago. On this list were the names of 144 gang chiefs and their lieutenants. Turns To Judges Chief Collins also appealed to judges to close down on writs of habeas corpus. "Within the last year," he said in a letter to the chief justices of the superior, criminal and circuit courts, "482 writs have been served on me for the release of men arrested as suspects, in many cases within an hour after their arrest. I am not in any sense criticizing the courts, but in view of the present situation, we need more time to investigate the habits and modes of living of many men placed under arrest."

Local Man Goes To Smith Funeral

S. E. Cone, Lubbock grain man, and one of the stockholders in the San Augustine ranch near here, left at noon today for Sherman to attend the funeral of Cecil Smith, General Counsel for the Quah, Acme and Pacific railroad and part owner of the large ranch holdings who dropped dead suddenly in his office at Sherman Tuesday while talking with his office forces. Mr. Smith, one of the most widely known men in the Southwest, was the last of the four original owners of the ranch property here. He was born in Georgia in 1860, and moved to Grayson county when a young man, being admitted to the bar at the age of 21 years, one which time he has maintained the reputation as one of the most able lawyers in the state. In his capacity as General Counsel for the Q. A. & P., Mr. Smith has for some time sought approval for extension of the lines of the company to the south plains. He will be buried tomorrow at Sherman.

Slaton Rotarians Hold Program Here

Representatives of the Slaton Rotary club, newly organized unit of Rotary, were in charge of the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the civic body here Wednesday, and offered a program that was held by all present to be among the best that has ever been offered here. W. H. McKisgan, the mayor of Slaton was in charge of the program, and in a few brief remarks urged more inter-city co-operation, especially as this is applied to civic organizations, making a plea that the Lubbock and Plainview clubs take the lead in a big meeting in the near future of the Rotary clubs of the two above named clubs with Slaton, Post and Spur, the meeting to be held at some central point. R. A. Baldwin, former representative to the state legislature from this district, and one of the leaders in the Slaton club addressed the gathering on "The Seven Sins of Rotary," choosing to name these as Membership, Friendship, Fellowship, Citizenship, Statesmanship, Stewardship and Worship.

'Ma' Signs First Road Bond Return

AUSTIN, Oct. 14 (AP)—Governor Ferguson signed the first bond validation bill of the 56th passed by the called session of the legislature when she approved the bill validating a $500,000 county wide road bond issue for Tom Green county. The bill is an emergency measure and goes into effect at once.

15 Cent Cabbage Is One Man's Downfall

If you must steal, beware of cabbage, for a 15c cabbage will land you in jail as just as quick as a $50 suit of clothes, one Lubbock man knows this to be a fact. He has taken many other articles, too, clerks at the Piggy Wiggly store say, but they have never been able to catch him with the goods. Saturday two weeks ago he got something like $5 worth of groceries and made his escape, but when he "lifted" a 15c cabbage today he landed into the arms of the law. The boys saw him and followed him out of the store. He was "lifted, carried back and held until officers were notified, and when they came he was rushed off to jail. The man has lived here for a long time, and is well known. He holds a good position and has grown children, officers say. His mania for other people's goods, however, got the best of him, and he will now be given an opportunity to tell the judge why he took the cabbage.
