Rising Phone Use Points To Economic Growth

Doyle Gilbert, division traffic supervisor of General Telephone Co. of the Southwest, released information recently which points to the continued economic growth of Memphis.

Mr. Gilbert stated that toll volume traffic to and from Memphis is up above last year by at least 20 per cent.

"We had an average of over 1600 long distance calls during the week of Feb. 2 through 8," he said.

Normally, Gilbert explained toll volume traffic falls off during the first part of each year. However, in January and February of this year this trend was not seen.

Gilbert explained that heavy toll traffic to and from a town is a good indication of an increasing economy.

'Gay Nineties Revue' Is Slated For March 9-10

By VIRGINIA BROWDER

Two nights of variety entertainment billed as "The Fifty Nineties," will be staged by the Memphis Little Theatre with the cooperation of six other local women's clubs the evenings of March 9 and 10 in the new Community auditorium.

This revue of the gay and flamboyant 1890's, boasting an excellent cast of local talent, promises the spectators two hours of comedy, music, dancing, and refreshments on the "bill of fare."

Tickets for this extravaganza of color, pretty girls, and barber shop harmony go on sale next week with the Business and Professional Women handling the ticket sales. The price for tickets will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students with no reserved seats. So, get your tickets and come early to grab a vantage viewpoint.

Cold drinks under the auspices of the Atalantean Club will be on sale all evening, and sandwiches made and dispensed by the Woman's Culture Club, the Delphian Club, the Harmony Club, the Pathfinders Council, and the 1913 Study Club, at intermission.

The Little Theatre group will direct and produce the entertainment which, if all goes according to plan, promises to be even better than the "Womanless Wedding" or "The Law West of the Pecos."

The part of Diamond Lill will be played by Letha Springer, singing torchy songs that will put at your heart strings. Shyrie Patrick as the "Ragtime Kid" will rip off some lively tunes and the Gaiety Girls' Chorus will include Misses Suzanne Sexauer, Minka Sims, Janie Hutcherson, Rosemary Harrison, Elmonette Branigan, Carol Ann Voyles, Kay Lynn Martin, Ginger Greene and Lynn Foxhall.

Others in the company will be Noel Clifton dancing "the soft shoe" with a musical background by the "Barber Shoppers" namely Carl Yancey, Kenneth Chick, Shyrie Patrick and Bob Brown. Besides the aforementioned talented individuals, Mildred Stephens and Betty Smith in "Gay Nineties" costumes will greet the guests at the door and check their hats and coats.

Furthermore, one of the features of this vaudeville show will be the tear-jerking, heart-rendering "Meller Drammer" entitled "Egad, What a Cad!" Excluding their dramatic ability in the cast of characters will be Jean Clements as Constant Hope; Charlene Greene as Sadie Snooper; Johnny Harrell as Minley Rash, the sleuth; Joanne Crawford as Abigail Appleby; Phil Wooten as Bert-ram Olander, the ruthless villain; Katherine Jones as Mrs. Graystone; Dr. David Aronofsky as Mr. Graystone; and Carol Greene will be "cue card girl" to direct the hissing and booing. With such a cast the audience will sit spell bound to the bitter end of the dynamic performance.

By now, you readers must be convinced that such entertainment could be had no other place but in Memphis at the Community Center, March 9 and 10, at 8 o'clock.

Only 250 tickets will be sold for each night's performance. So, get yours early and avoid the rush!

Future Farmers Of America Week!

Texas Governor John Connally recently affixed his signature to an official memorandum in which he designated the week of Feb. 15-22, 1964, as Future Farmers of America Week in Texas.

This is an annual observance and with it comes the opportunity to examine the FFA program which has become so much a part of the high school scene in our area.

Governor Connally stated that Texas has over 900 FFA Chapter with over 39,000 active members and more than a quarter of a million former members. The program has been in existence 35 years. FFA is composed of boys who are studying vocational agriculture in the public schools in preparation for careers in farming, ranching, and related fields.

The basic requirement for membership in the FFA is that a boy must be a student of vocational agriculture in high school, although he is permitted to retain his membership for three years following graduation.

The necessity of "preparing young men for careers in agriculture" has been seen and felt throughout the history of mankind. Agriculture is the nation's largest single industry. It is basic to our continued economic and social stability. The production, processing, and distribution of agricultural products employs more than a third of America's working force; and farmers are a $14 billion-a-year customer of industry and labor—not counting the billions farmers spend for consumer goods.

Our great cities, our mighty industries, our business and professional accomplishments, our educational institutions, and our high living standards, are possible because of efficiency and productivity of the American farm.

This notion must have a constant supply of new farmers every year to replace those who die, retire, or otherwise leave the farm. These must be men with experience and training, for the successful farmer today is both a scientist and a businessman; mechanic and a laborer; at the same time capable of leadership in the affairs of the community. Generally, they must be men who have begun farming at an early age, so that by the time they are ready to marry and start a family they will be firmly established in a farming program that promises a good future.

Education in farming, as in all other phases of American life, seems to be the key to success. This education not only must be broad in scope, but specific in detail. A successful farmer must know how to repair his farm machinery, how to weld, be able to work with electrical equipment, and be adept at plumbing, carpentry, masonry, metal work and concrete work.

The major decision a student must make upon graduation is the choice of an occupation. This choice will determine the satisfaction one gets from work and the opportunities for promotion and advancement. In our present society, an individual will probably spend at least one-half of his waking hours working for a living. How well an individual likes his work will determine to a great extent the happiness and satisfaction he gets out of living.

From 1850 to 1930 there was a rapid increase in farm population in Texas, a small increase from 1930 to 1940, and since that time the farm population has declined. Based upon this trend, many express the opinion that farming is going out of business. Nothing could be further from the truth. During 1940 to 1960, just 20 years, the total farm income has increased some 500 per cent in dollar volume.

The strength of any education system must lie in its instructors or teachers. In Hall County, students have been fortunate to have capable instructors who work hard in, as well as out of the classrooms to bring the latest information and methods into their program.

The vocational agriculture program is rooted in rural areas of Texas. Only eight per cent (79) of the 984 white vocational agriculture teachers are in the 45 larger cities of Texas that have half of the 2.5 million scholastic population of the state. Seventy percent of the vocational agriculture teachers in Texas are located in schools in communities of 2,500 population or less.

Never before has our state and nation needed outstanding leaders so badly in order to maintain and perpetuate our democratic society. High school vo-ag teachers, through the organization of Future Farmers of America, are making a valuable contribution toward developing and training these needed leaders. Our systems of agriculture education are being copied by many backward nations of the world where the lack of food is a depressing problem.

We pay a tribute to the FFA during this, their 35th observance of FFA Week in Texas.

What Other Editors Say

Deserved Recognition

Future Farmers of America will be honored during the week of February 15 to 22, and so it should be. Preparing young people for a lifetime career in modern agriculture is a matter of top importance. On their shoulders will rest much of the responsibility for bringing forth the miracles of production that the future will require from America's farmland.

Throughout the United States farm boys between the ages of 14 and 21 belong to FFA benefit from a coordinated program of high school instruction in vocational agriculture combined with practical business and farming experience. FFA organizations have become focal points in working for improved agriculture, betterment of local communities, more satisfying farm home life, and more efficient farmer citizens. They deserve our heartfelt congratulations for a job well done. Turkey News.

Right To Work

Our neighbors in Oklahoma will vote in May on a state "right-to-work" law, and if it passes, it will become the 21st state in the union to have such a law.

The opposition to the right-to-work laws is bitter and fierce. In Oklahoma, opponents of the proposal have tried to keep it from coming to a vote and have waged successful delaying tactics. But the issue will be voted upon.

Since 1941 there have been 20 states to enact a "right-to-work" law which is in itself basically simple. All these laws say is that a worker in any job may hold that job without joining the union if he wishes.

In other words, it makes it unnecessary to hold union membership to hold down a job. By federal law, employers of a union shop can be required by law to withhold and collect union dues from an employee's wage and hand it over to the union. We have never seen where any such law can be constitutional, as it violates individual liberties.

The right-to-work laws do not prohibit union membership in any way and the unions are strong in the 20 states where there is such a law. But a man doesn't have to join a union to get and hold a job. We think this is basic to American freedom. Apparently people in at least 20 other states feel the same way.—Ochiltree County Herald.

Child's Environment

Clemo Clements in The Lewisville Leader: Columnist Ann Landers comes up with an answer to the question parents have been asking for generations. It stresses the importance of home environment.

The question is: "What makes some children turn out well and some badly; why do some youngsters grow up to be respectable, loving, well-adjusted adults while other seem to lose their way."

The answer came in this form (author unknown):

If a child lives criticism he learns to condemn.

If a child lives with hostility he learns to fight.

If a child lives with fear he learns to be apprehensive.

If a child lives with pity he learns to feel sorry for himself.

If a child lives with jealousy he learns to hate.

If a child lives with praise he learns to be appreciative.

If a child lives with acceptance he learns to love.

If a child lives with approval he learns to like himself.

If a child lives with fairness he learns justice.

If a child lives with honesty he learns what truth is.

If a child lives with friendliness he learns that the world is a nice place in which to live.

PATTERNS FOR PROGRESS

TOURISM

... its value to you

America is on the road... going places... seeing things. Texas had 9.6 million out-of-state visitors in 1963 who spent $471 million plus $25 million in direct state taxes. As an example in WTU territory, more than 100,000 last year visited Big Bend National Park (pictured above).

A mere eight tourist cars a day that stop in a community is the equivalent of an added $100,000 annual payroll. Travel and tourism in Texas will grow even faster because of vastly increasing tourist promotion on both the state and local level. This makes tourism of value to every community in the WTU service area, and one of our major economic factors.

Many communities are benefiting from tourism as one of the important PATTERNS FOR PROGRESS. These communities are:

1. Developing tourist attractions (even a rodeo or country fair is a "tourist attraction").
2. Building facilities to care for tourists and other travelers no matter where they are headed (Alpine's Ponderosa Restaurant, pictured left, is one of many such facilities).
3. Creating facilities for the growing number of business and family non-vacationing travelers who fill the highways day after day.

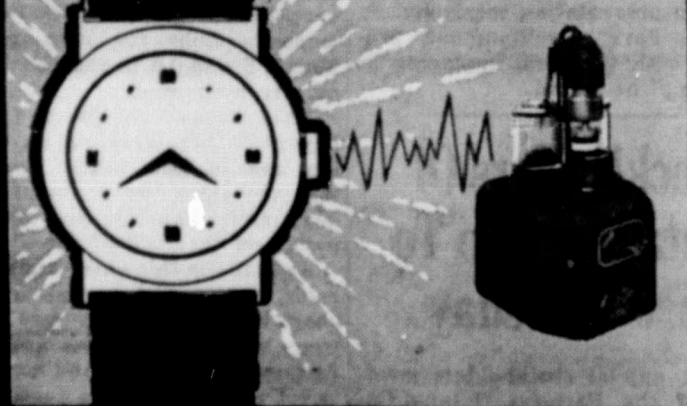

That is why we suggest that you evaluate the importance of tourism to you, and consider seriously how your community can benefit from it.

Jeannie Callahan Becomes Bride Of Donald Baker Feb. 14

Miss Jeannie Callahan, daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Callahan of Amarillo, became the bride of Donald Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Baker of Rogers, Ark., Friday evening, Feb. 14, in the Travis Baptist Church.

Rev. L. E. Barrett, pastor, read the double-ring ceremony before an archway covered with greenery and centered with a yellow bow and golden bells. Floor baskets of gold gladioli and branched candelabra holding yellow tapers flanked the arch.

Traditional wedding selections were presented by Mrs. L. E. Barrett at the organ.

Miss Donna Krews of Amarillo served as maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of moss green velvet fashioned with a scooped neckline and bell-shaped skirt.

Her hat was a velvet butterfly bow with matching nose veil and she carried a bouquet of bronze pom-poms.

Miss Shirley Callahan, sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. She was attired in a dress styled identical to that of the maid of honor in gold velvet, with matching hat. She, too, carried a bouquet of bronze pom-poms.

Glenn Callahan of Memphis served as best man and Doug Peters, also of Memphis, was groomsman. Tony Dromgold and Danny Peters served as ushers and candlelighters.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, O. S. Callahan, the bride wore a formal gown of chantilly lace over bridal satin. The basque bodice featured a scalloped sweetheart neckline and pedal point sleeves. Irrescent sequins accented the neckline and bouffant skirt, which was fashioned with scooped tiers extending into a chapel train. Her butterfly veil of illusion was attached to an open pillbox of chantilly lace studded with sequins, pearls and crystals.

Mrs. Bonnie Callahan, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of pale blue satin brocade with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Callahan.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. T. L. Waddell.

Woman's Forum Makes Plans For 'Nifty Nineties'; Elects Chairman

A goodly representation of the members of The Women's Forum met in a brief business session at The Memphis Country Club Sunday afternoon. In lieu of a regular chairman, Mrs. R. E. Roark, president of The Memphis Little Theatre, presided over the first portion of the meeting.

The main business under consideration at the time was the forthcoming "Nifty Nineties" show to be staged in the new Community Center March 9 and 10. However, Mrs. Bill Cosby, a delegate from The Atlatenean Club, had a very important message to make relative to the amount of the note tendered The Women's Forum by The First National Bank.

Thanks to the diligence of the several women's clubs of Memphis since September and some personal contributions from friends like the John Fowlers, Howard Finches, and Roy Guthrie, The Forum treasurer, Miss Helen Boswell was able to pay the Rose Construction Co. $3,808.00 in accumulated cash. Thus the amount of the loan necessary was $2,142 rather than the anticipated figure of $2,700.

Mrs. Nat Bradley, president of the Woman's Culture Club, announced that her club would hold a Game Night similar to the one recently enjoyed at the Memphis Country Club this coming Friday, Feb. 21, with prizes, refreshments and fun for all gamblers.

Before the meeting was adjourned Mrs. Carl Yancey, who had graciously consented to act as chairman of the Women's Forum, was formally elected by unanimous vote.

As to the production of "The Nifty Nineties," it was agreed that the entertainment would be planned and presented by the Little Theatre. The drinks concession will be handled by the Atlatenean Club and the tickets will be under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club. The sandwiches will be made and dispensed by the Woman's Culture Club, the Harmony Club, the 1913 Study Club and the Delphian Club.

Those present at the meeting were Mmes. W. F. McElreath, Nat Bradley, Cyril Keith, Bill Cosby, C. C. Hodges, Carl Yancey, R. E. Roark, J. W. Coppedge, Clifford Farmer, Miss Roselyn Williams and Virginia Browder.

Vandalism

(An Editorial)

By Kay Stinsman

A number of senseless attacks have been made on M. H. S. and other buildings of town. This vandalism is very juvenile and uncalled for. It brings a bad name to Memphis, the High School and especially to the teenagers. It is very sad for two or three immature teenagers to ruin the reputation of a whole student body.

I realize there is not much teenage entertainment in Memphis but this is certainly not a reason for a few to spend their time in destructive activity. Our parents and our town do not owe us entertainment.

If you are tired of doing nothing, go home and do something constructive. If these juveniles would just stop and realize how they are hurting themselves and their community by the damage of public property, maybe they would grow up and stop this nonsense.

Irene Foxhall, second place to Randy Jennings and Joe Edd Godfrey, third place to Fleta Coldiron.

The first graders in Mrs. Hicks' and Mrs. Newton's rooms enjoyed a delightful Valentine's party on Friday afternoon. Lovely refreshments of red punch and heart-shaped cookies were served to 56 pupils. An exchange of valentines marked a highlight of the day.

During the week the first graders made their valentine holders, heart-shaped valentine flowers, and large red hearts.

Junior High Enters Quail Cage Tournament

By Bill Pounds
 The Memphis Junior High Whirlwinds have not been idle during the basketball season.

The Whirlwinds have played Quail twice and Childress three times. The games have been divided equally between the seventh and eighth grade teams.

This is a part of the coaches' "building-up program" in the athletic field. The boys receive experience and learn sportsmanship at the same time.

The Junior High cagers entered the Quail Tournament this past week and made a fine showing, according to Coach Glasscock. The boys played Quail to a 15-point difference, which put them in the consolation bracket. Junior High then met Hedley and came out victorious, only to meet Wellington the following Saturday.

The Wellington Junior High outlasted the Whirlwind in a very close game.

The band is required to pay a $45 entrance fee and submit its contest music before February 24. Dr. Dean Killion will direct a band clinic here from 4 to 7 p. m. on February 24 for the benefit of the Cyclone Band. Dr. Killion is the band director for Texas Tech University.

The band will leave Friday morning and will spend the night in the homes of Lamesa band members and in the Western Motel. The pieces to be played will hope to do it again next year since First Suite in E Flat.

Friday night's basketball game with Lefors marked the last game of the home season for the basketball band.

"The band enjoyed being able to play at the Basketball Queen's Coronation, and we appreciate the cooperation of the coaches. We hope to do it again next year since it was a great privilege and honor," Tony Monginzo, student director of the band stated.

Each pupil made a valentine mail-box in which all their valentines were placed upon distribution. Mrs. Deaver stated that the children have been very excited about the valentines and their party, which they had Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Reba Stroeble's third grade has made pig-tailed valentine dolls for room decoration. In connection with another February holiday the class studied the life of Abraham Lincoln. In addition to these studies, the class has been reviewing Roman numerals and the regrouping process in subtraction.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

The Case of the Hungry Cows

When I first received word that a blizzard had begun in the Panhandle, I knew that human lives might be endangered and that thousands of cattle might be stranded in the driving, drifting snow. I telephoned my friend Major Gen. Sheldon Simpson in Amarillo and offered my help should the National Guard division he commands—the famous 36th Division—require the help of the U. S. Army or Air Force in alleviating distress. General Simpson said he would keep me advised of the situation. We both recognized that an air drop of cattle feed might be necessary before the storm abated.

Last Thursday night, General Simpson telephoned to inform me that Panhandle ranchers, particularly in Gray County, feared their herds would suffer heavy losses unless feed could be delivered to them. Blizzard-bound cattle had been without feed since the previous Monday, and General Simpson said losses would mount rapidly unless feed could be gotten to them within 36 hours. An "air drop" of feed—a "hay drop"—appeared necessary, he said. He suggested that cargo helicopters might be employed and said that men from the Panhandle units of the 36th Division stood ready to load the aircraft and mark drop zones.

I then conferred with Lieutenant General Carl H. Jark, the commanding general of the 4th Army at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio. General Jark well understands the problem that can develop on the plains when a heavy snow storm strikes, and he promised immediate assistance in planning and organizing a hay drop to the stranded cattle. The general assigned the job of working out the details to the 4th Army's young operations officer, Major Conrad K. Hausman. This was a job for the Army and the Army area command because the Defense Department has designated the Army as the "action agent" for coordinating the emergency assistance of all services when problems arise in the Continental United States.

Major Hausman obviously relishes such assignments—not only because they provide a means by which the Army can be of direct assistance to American citizens but also because planning and executing such operations provide good training for more warlike emergencies.

Working closely with General Jark, Major Hausman quickly determined that the Air National Guard in Texas was not equipped for such a task. The Texas ANG has fighter aircraft and a few reconnaissance helicopters but no cargo aircraft. Major Hausman contacted the 4th Air Force Reserve Region to determine the status of reserve air crews which might be coming on active duty for training or which might be on emergency call. He and General Jark had determined that the most suitable aircraft for the purpose were C-119s, the old flying boxcars, and such planes were stationed at Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, and Ellington Air Base, Houston. Major Hausman lined up crews for C-119s at Ellington AFB, the home base of the 924th Squadron of the 446th Troop Carrier Wing. They were alerted and Major Hausman messaged headquarters in Washington for the necessary high level approval. That was quick in coming, and at the Pentagon the people who knew of the plans for the operation dubbed it "The Case of the Hungry Cows."

Meanwhile, General Jark's staff members were in contact with General Simpson and with me, and with Major General Wright O. Monteith, the commanding general at Amarillo Air Force Base. All was in readiness for the planes to fly from Houston to Amarillo to begin loading hay—but as of Friday afternoon not enough hay had been rounded up. While waiting for the hay to be accumulated, General Simpson reported to me he was dispatching National Guardsmen in trucks to go to the ranches to see if they could push through to the pastures.

At noon Saturday, the four planes of the 924th Squadron reached Amarillo Air Force Base and hay was loaded. Through that afternoon and on into Sunday afternoon, the wonderful crewmen of the 924th flew sortie after sortie over five Panhandle counties, dropping more than 2,200 bales of hay to the cattle below. So hungry were the cattle that as the planes swung around for a second "pass" over the fields, the men aboard could see the cattle beginning to eat hay dropped to them moments before. General Simpson reported to me that the operation was highly successful. "The ranchers were 100 percent enthusiastic about it," he said. "It saved their necks." The good news that came this week was that the air drop helped reduce cattle losses far below the loss experienced in the 1957 blizzard.

To General Jark and Major Hausman, General Simpson, General Monteith, and their staffs—and to the flying crewmen of the 924th Squadron at Ellington—my heartiest congratulations and thanks for a job well done.

County's Motor Vehicle Inspections Lag Far Behind As Deadline Nears

Motor vehicle inspections are lagging far behind with less than 30 percent of the required vehicles inspected, according to Captain Alan Johnson, Motor Vehicle Inspection supervisor of this area and Texas Department of Public Safety.

With the deadline for obtaining inspection stickers drawing only 17 percent of the vehicles in Hall County have been inspected, the captain said. "If the inspection program continues, vehicle owners will have to wait in line in order to get their vehicles inspected by the April 15 deadline."

Over 5,000 official inspection stickers have been issued over the state and are ready for use. The inspection program is a link in a cycle of safety which is designed to prevent accidents and saving the link, prevent the accidents. The DPS supervisor said, "The worst traffic fatalities in history last year."

Count has already exceeded 100 lives lost, by far the greatest in history, and is expected to go some higher before the books are closed on the official 1963 traffic fatality count," he said. "Vehicle defects were involved in some of these fatal accidents; therefore, to eliminate this type of accident drivers need to see that their vehicles are safe to operate and keep them safe throughout the year."

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH Hall County Soil Conservation District News

New terracing techniques are being introduced to farmers in the Hall County Soil Conservation District. Many farmers who need to terrace their land due to erosion or water loss will be interested in some new terrace layout and construction methods offered by technicians of the Soil Conservation Service.

A system of terraces running parallel to each other is fast gaining popularity among farmers who have seen them in operation. While these parallel terraces are new to Hall County Soil Conservation District, they have been thoroughly tried and proven in other parts of the state.

Parallel terraces eliminate point rows. This is a big advantage to farmers who use 4-row equipment. Crop damage is greatly minimized when all turning is done on turn rows at the end of the field. In some cases, farmers have gone to the expense of eliminating some minor depressions by filling them in before the terraces are laid out. In some cases they have even gone to the expense to level land between parallel terraces. Often this expense is well justified. Leveling between terraces on land with 0.5 to 2.0 percent slopes greatly improves moisture distribution and penetration. More timely tillage practices are possible and crop growth is more uniform as a result of uniform field drying.

When leveling is too expensive, some improvement can be made by constructing the terraces from the bottom side. In this case the fill material for the terraces should be taken from a thin layer as much as one third to one half the distance down the slope. This will give some leveling of slopes between terraces.

Not all fields can be terraced parallel. Some fields have slopes that break in several directions, it can be readily seen that terraces could not be run parallel on these fields. Even so, there may be cases where a portion of the terraces could be made parallel and the rest of the field terraced with conventional terraces.

Each field needing terraces will need to be individually evaluated as to its suitability for parallel terraces. For more information on parallel terraces, farmers can contact the local office of the Soil Conservation Service.

Around and About

By HELEN COMBS

All will admit there is not a dull minute in Memphis since the Women's Clubs took on the project of raising $6,000 plus other amounts for various community affairs deemed necessary by the women to meet the growing needs of our community in 1964. Through the City Forum, the clubs are joining in a united front to accomplish various and numerous projects.

Coming social attractions (proceeds to go to the Community Building Fund) include a variety of entertainment for the family.

On Friday night of this week, the Woman's Culture Club is sponsoring game night at the Memphis Country Club. There will be an evening of games, refreshments and door prizes. If you enjoy playing games, be sure and attend this social. Tickets will be available at the door. The social begins at 7:30 p. m.

Then, Saturday night the Theatrical Club is presenting the three One-Act Play Festival at the High School Auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Memphis Little Theater. Included in the group of plays will be the one-act play the Memphis students will take to district competition later this spring. Reserve seat tickets are $1.00 and may be purchased from Emma Deaver, phone 259-2262. Tickets will also be on sale Saturday evening at the school. General admission is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students.

On March 9-10 a "Nifty Nineties" Show is being presented in the new City Auditorium under the sponsorship of the City Forum. The Memphis Little Theater is working up a program for the two-night performance that you will want to see. Tickets will go on sale soon under the direction of the Business and Professional Women's Club, who are in charge of this phase of the performance.

Memphis Federated Club Women have entered the Community Improvement Contest, which is being sponsored by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. Wilma Martin, who is serving as chairman of the project, has compiled a beautiful scrap book which is being sent to the state chairman this week. Wilma and members of her committee have done a lot of work in compiling information for the book.

Members of the 1913 Study Club entertained their husbands with Gentlemen's Evening Tuesday night at the Country Club and guest speaker was a delightful and entertaining former Memphisian, Mrs. J. W. Walker of Plainview, who one time taught in the Memphis Schools. In fact, she pointed out that among her students at that time were R. C. (Sug) Lemons and Frank Foxhall. Mrs. Walker showed colored slides and gave a most interesting account of a visit to Greece last March.

Remember the benefit show at the High School Auditorium on Monday night of next week for the Hall County Society of Crippled Children and Adults. The show is being presented by students of all the county schools. This is a show you will enjoy seeing as there will be a lot of talent. Prizes will be awarded in several divisions. The show is under the direction of Tops Gilreath, county superintendent and director of the Society for Crippled Children and Adults, assisted by Virginia Browder, who is an experienced director.

In our mail this week was a note from Lenora Greenhaw, who is enjoying a cruise in the Caribbean aboard the Franconia. Lenora writes: "After smooth sailing for three days from New York City, we arrived in Nassau on schedule. The ocean was beautiful and calm. This is my greatest traveling experience. The Franconia is a luxurious ship. As we passed the shores of Cuba (ten miles out) we were escorted by air cover, Coast Guard I suppose. Spent yesterday in Cartagena. Will arrive in Aruba this afternoon. Since it is a Dutch colony, we think it will be interesting. Love to everybody, Lenora Greenhaw."

Many Jane Thompson, who underwent eye surgery in Amarillo two weeks ago, returned home Saturday and is doing nicely. This is the second eye surgery for Mary Jane. But there is a happy element, for doctors tell her she will never have to undergo this type of surgery again on her eyes.

Kin Hubbard says: "The fellow that says, 'I may be wrong, but I don't believe there can be any such possibility.'"

Day Of Prayer—

Among those present was Reverend J. B. Thompson, pastor of The First Methodist Church.
