City school leadership reorganized

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A major shake-up in the Midland Independent School District power structure was announced this morning with Dr. James H. Mailey stepping down as superintendent and Dr. Joseph P. Baressi Jr., formerly deputy superintendent, moving up to the top post effective July 1.

Mailey will remain with MISD, according to a statement issued at a 9 a.m. press conference at the MISD Administration Building. He will be active in the area of plant development and planning for the next school year.

The reassignment was recommended by Mailey. Mailey and the school board began looking for a replacement more than two years ago due to Mailey's eventual retirement.

According to Parker Humes, school board president, Baressi was selected from 30 applicants as assistant superintendent, with responsibilities in the instructional area of the system. During the past year, Baressi was appointed MISD's deputy superintendent.

Mailey, who has been superintendent of MISD since 1968, said, "I feel very confident leaving the system in Dr. Baressi's hands due to his personality and his drive, his confidence and his being able to do the job."

"I'm delighted with the opportunity and extremely pleased to follow Dr. Mailey," Baressi said. "It will be an incredibly smooth transition due to the planning of the board."

Mailey's background should be of assistance to the board of trustees and to Dr. Baressi in the rapidly expanding MISD plant. Board members are anticipating a spring bond issue for three new elementary schools and additions to Midland Freshman School.

"We're grateful that Mailey took the lead in finding the best man for the job," Humes said. "It was through his efforts which led us to Dr. Baressi."

"This is just a normal transition," board member Ed Runyan said.

Ron Britton, a board member, said "We feel very pleased that Dr. Mailey did this in the manner he did to ensure this new transition."

Trustee Bill Jackson said, "It is great the way these people have worked together the last few years and will continue to work together."

Joyce Sherrod, another board member, said, "He (Baressi) showed his ability to lead and work with staff with teachers, with new programs — and to make everyone like him."

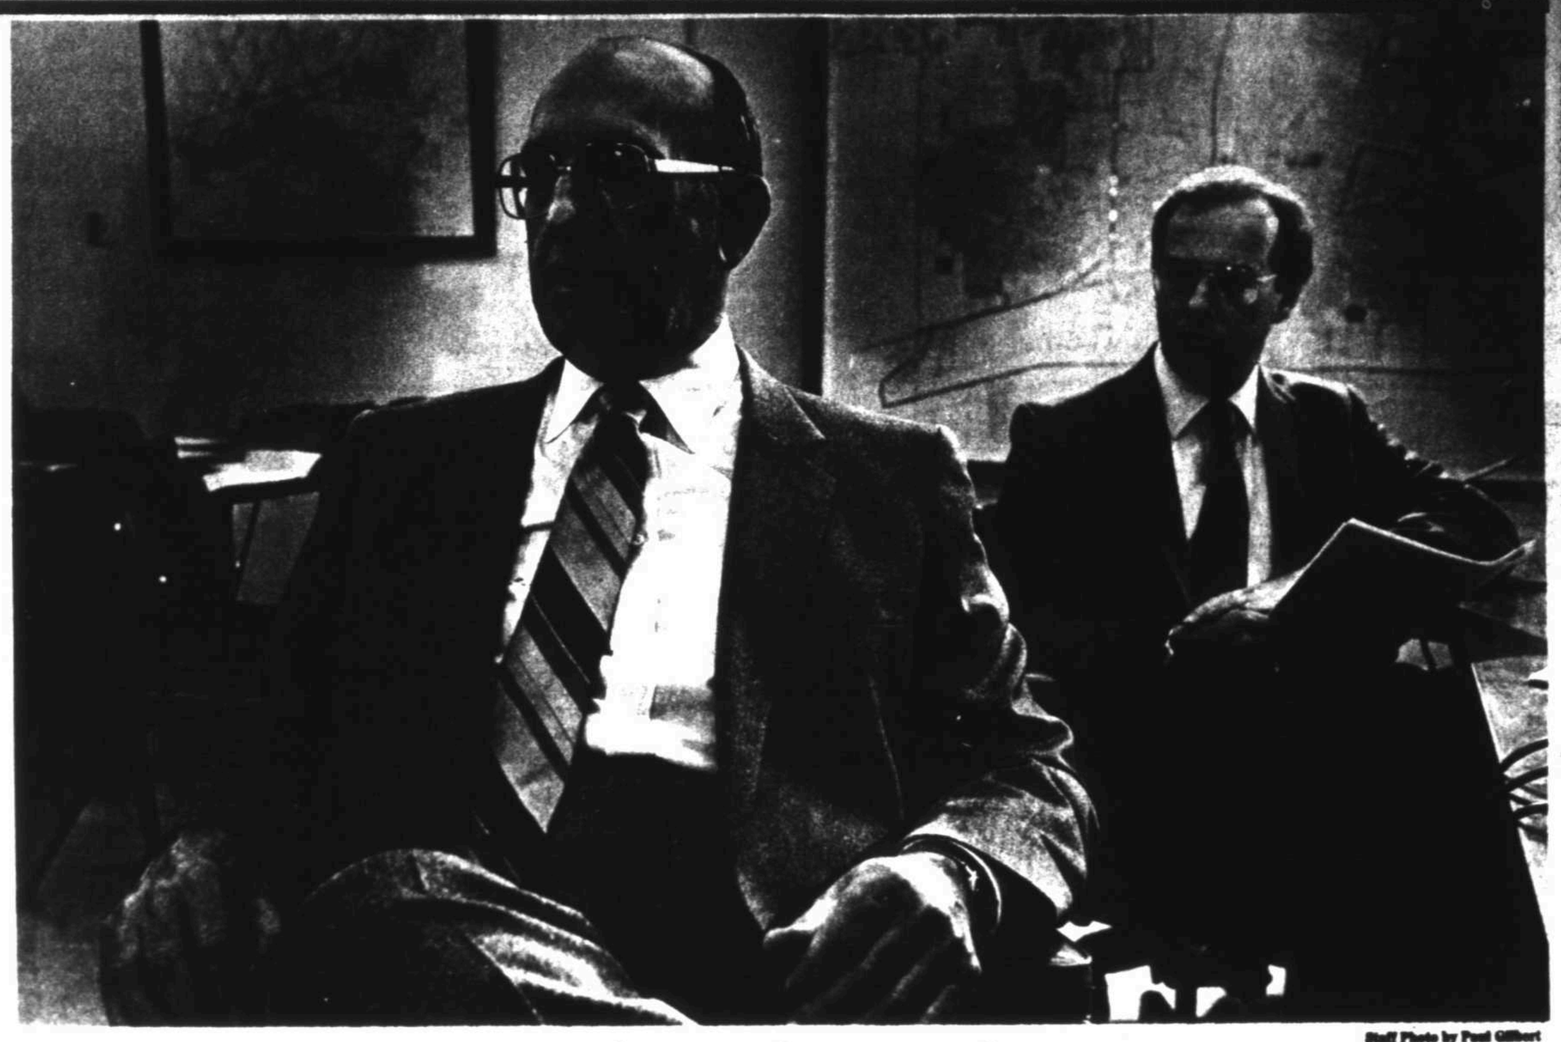

Baressi joined the MISD staff in 1980 as assistant superintendent for instructional services. Prior to that he was employed from 1977 to 1980 by the Seguin Independent School District as assistant superintendent for program and pupil services. He also was administrative assistant for the Texas Education Agency from 1975 to 1977. He also has served as a principal and classroom teacher.

He received his bachelor of science degree from Cornell University in 1965, his master of arts degree from Gannon College in Erie, Pa., in 1968, his Ph.D. in educational administration from The University of Texas at Austin in 1977.

He is a member of the American Association of School Administrators, Texas Association of School Administrators, Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, American Association of Supervisors and Curriculum Directors and the Permian Basin Association of Supervisors and Curriculum Directors.

Baressi's community involvement includes a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Cornell University Alumni Association, Rotary International, University of Texas Ex-Students Association, president of the Midland Chapter of the American Heart Association, board member of Midland Chapter of Junior Achievement and member of United Way Community Needs committee.

He and his wife, Joyce, have three children, Joseph, Laura and Aaron.

Personnel director hired

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County, which has been beset by a rising employee turnover rate and limited employee malaise, may have found an answer to personnel problems in the form of Jerrie Ann Westmoreland, the county's first full-time personnel director.

In a 3-2 vote, the Commissioners' Court on Monday hired Ms. Westmoreland, 32, at $24,000 a year and put her on the trail of her first assignment: studying Tax Collector-Assessor Frances Shuffield's apparently disgruntled employees who, according to Ms. Shuffield, are underpaid and overworked. Some are leaving the county's employ for higher wages.

Precinct 4 Commissioner Win Brown, who was the one-man committee to find a personnel director, told fellow commissioners and County Judge Bill Ahders that he had interviewed 14 or 15 applicants and "out of that I did have two very good people...and one is head and shoulders above the other." The candidate he didn't opt for holds the doctor's degree, but "he didn't get to first base," Brown said.

BROWN SAID that Ms. Westmoreland, who is a 1967 graduate of Midland's Robert E. Lee High School, holds a degree in psychology and, while personnel director for Odessa's Midway Manufacturing & Supply Co., managed to reduce the company's employee turnover from 30 percent to 4 percent. The company, which last year had about 225 employees, builds portable rotary drilling rigs.

"She knows the operation of the county and the services of the various departments," Brown said in selling the court on Ms. Westmoreland, who was not introduced to the five-member Commissioners' Court until after the split vote. "She is not going to try to tear each department up." Brown said that each of the county's 19 elected officials still would be autonomous, would have the first and final say-so in

Economic changes expected to lead Reagan's remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will tell Congress and the American people tonight that he will not seek higher taxes, but that the states will have to take over approximately 40 federal programs, well-placed sources say.

Reagan met with Republican congressional leaders at the White House this morning to begin rounding up the help that will be crucial to passing the program he will outline in his State of the Union speech.

The address, to a joint session of the House and Senate, and a nationwide television and radio audience, is to begin at 9 p.m. EST.

"When you turn on the TV, you'll get a heavy dose of budget economics and the president's hopes to legislatively implement his program; federalism initiatives, and a brief overview of foreign policy with some stern words toward intervention in the Western Hemisphere and stern words about Poland," said one White House official.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the president is weighing criticism "in straight-forward terms" of Soviet arms shipments to Cuba.

Speakes said that after the speech, Reagan will begin "a fairly extensive effort in order to educate business and specialized groups on the content" of the program. The president's plans, he said, will include trips around the country to discuss the impact of his proposals with state and local leaders.

At the heart of the president's budget deliberations were projections that without additional spending cuts or new taxes, the federal deficit would balloon to more than $100 billion in fiscal 1983, which begins next Oct. 1.

"We're balancing a sizable deficit on one side vs. tax increases on the other," said one White House official.

One plan to increase federal excise taxes on whiskey, wine, gasoline and tobacco products was said to have been calculated to raise enough money to hold the deficit to $80 billion.

Clayton won't seek elected position

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, who has been considered a likely candidate for governor, comptroller or land commissioner, said Monday he will not run for anything in 1982.

"If you think it wasn't a hard decision for me, you're out of your mind," Clayton told a Capitol news conference. "I love public life. I like a good, clean, hard-fought campaign."

Clayton, 53, said he had considered several statewide races "until about two months ago when I zeroed in on the land commissioner's race."

He said he had about a third of the $1 million needed to make the commissioner's race in the Democratic primary and even had a state headquarters in Austin.

Announced candidates for general land commissioner are Gary Mauro, former executive secretary of the Texas Democratic Party, and Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland.

Snelson said Clayton's decision to run "does change the picture significantly for the voters, because in a two-candidate primary, the contrast between the candidates is more evident and the issues more clearly defined."

Clayton said he changed his mind the past weekend because of "a unique business opportunity."

"My son (Tommy, 26) and I were able to consumate a business agreement just day before yesterday (Saturday) which will increase our farming operations by more than 50 percent. This is a big venture and it will be an enjoyable challenge for this Clayton family," he said.

He said two sections — 1,280 acres — leased when an adjacent landowner "went out of business" would be used for irrigated farming of corn and cotton, like the present Clayton acreage.

"Many have encouraged me to make a statewide race, and it will be strange not having an election to face for the first time in 20 years; however, I know my decision is right," said Clayton, who has served an unprecedented four terms as speaker.

"I know I could win the race, and could bring to the campaign issues to heighten the importance of the General Land office," he said.

" Let me dispel any thoughts, however, that you might have about me sitting on the sidelines. I will remain active politically at the local, state and national levels," he said. "Also to say that I will not offer myself as a candidate for some office in the future is premature. "

Clayton said he was leaving public office with mixed emotions, good and bad.

"I believe the accomplishments of the unique legislative coalition which I molded has been the core of may support and will mark an era of achievement unparalleled in Texas history," he said.

The bad emotions come from his indictment and trial in 1980 on FBI charges he took a $5,000 cash payoff from an undercover informant for help in getting group insurance for state employees.

Snelson's bid for land post to 'continue to move forward'

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland Sen. Pete Snelson says his effort to win the Democratic nomination for land commissioner "will continue to move forward" after Speaker Bill Clayton's announcement Monday that Clayton won't seek that post.

Snelson was asked if he will seek an endorsement from Clayton, and answered, "I'm going to seek an endorsement from everybody in the State of Texas."

Snelson said he was "a little surprised" at Clayton's announcement.

"I can appreciate the difficulty of someone making a decision after 20 years in the public service arena," he said. He added he didn't know of Clayton's decision in advance.

He also reported that he is "very optimistic" regarding his race against former Texas Democratic Party executive director Garry Mauro for the land commissioner nomination.

"We feel very good about the campaign," he said.

City to receive development funding

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

After playing tug-of-war with the federal government for seven months, the city of Midland appears to have come out victorious Monday after the mayor was advised the city would be receiving its $1.094 million from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The award, known as a Community Development Block Grant, marks the first time since 1977 that Midland could be using federal funds for upgrading streets in the south and east sides of the city and for rehabilitating houses belonging to citizens of lower incomes.

Mayor G. Thane Akins said Monday that he had telephoned the HUD office in Dallas and was informed that a letter had been mailed late last week to inform him the revisions in the Housing Assistance Plan had been approved. "That means we'll be getting the $1 million," he said.

However, a spokesman with the HUD office this morning refused to confirm or deny the mayor's report, saying he would wait until after the city receives the letter. He noted there are some points spelled out in the written communication, but he refused to elaborate.

The city's three-year Housing Assistance Plan had been the source of disagreement between the local and federal governmental bodies since July when HUD advised Midland that the plan needed to be changed to meet federal requirements. And if those changes weren't made, HUD threatened to reduce the grant to zero.

Both Akins and a HUD representative in Dallas noted that nothing was wrong with Midland's projected use of the CDBG money. But the three-year HAP must accompany all CDBG applications and must acquiesce to HUD's requirements.

The first skirmish arose over the issue of including construction of new housing units to meet the goals for Section 8 rental assistance in HAP. Last July, two Dallas HUD officials met with the City Council, mayor and staff members in Midland and explained what needed to be changed.

The city relented by its July 13 deadline and included 280 rental assistance units that would be built over a three-year period. That was broken down to 140 units for elderly and handicapped persons and the remaining for low-income families.

Then the problem arose of where those new housing units would be situated. Midland outlined the south and east sides of the city. HUD said that wasn't enough room, nor did those locations didn't meet the agency's neighborhood and site requirements.

Last November, a city official agreed the designated locations might not be enough for 280 units. Midland eventually was granted another extension to Dec. 1 to work out the problems.

That took until mid-December when Midland submitted a revised map, expanding the area for locating the low-income housing in Census Tract 13, which is along Holiday Hill Road and near Interstate 20. That area, noted the Director of Planning and Community Development Richard Hennessy, already was zoned for apartments.

Akins noted that approval of the 1981 grant would put Midland almost a year behind in putting the money to work. "We'll get in a crash mode and get to work."

That $1 million-plus also included a salary for a Community Development

County hires first personnel director

the hiring and firing of employees but could use Ms. Westmoreland as a consultant in employee evaluations and sizing up employee-employer relationships.

"She's really a standout," Brown said.

COMMISSIONERS Brown and C. DeWayne Davis and County Judge Bill Ahders voted for hiring Ms. Westmoreland. Commissioners Charlie Welch and Durward Wright dissented. Wright said he was "disappointed" that Ms. Westmoreland had not appeared before the court by the time the judge called for a vote Monday morning. "I was remiss (in not bringing her)," Brown said."

Welch, however, had more deep-seated reasons for voting against hiring a personnel director.

"I have nothing against this young lady," he said. "I am opposed to a director of personnel; it doesn't fit county government and I believe it's against the statutes." Welch suggested that each department head, including each elected official, has the right to hire or fire employees and that a personnel director thusly would be superfluous.

"The personnel director," Ahders told Welch, "is not going to hire (or fire) anybody."

Brown concurred. He implied that elected officials have control of their offices.

"They are elected officials, and they do have that prerogative of hiring, firing," he said.

THE PERSONNEL director did meet with the commissioners Monday afternoon after she was hired and told how she perceived her new role.

"I will tell them (department heads) what I think, zero in on what kind of skills they want (in their workers). I think that (hiring) should be their choice."

Later that afternoon and outside the presence of the commissioners, Ms. Westmoreland said she was able substantially to reduce Midway's employee attrition by implementing a salary schedule.

"They (Midway) just hired what they wanted." About 60 percent of the plant's workers are welders, she said. "They had no controlled situation at all."

She said her role with the county, which has about 300 employees and a $4.4 million annual payroll, will be in a support function.

"I'm not looking to take any of their (department heads') power. It (the personnel office) is a support function to make things run more smooth." The county has 20 officials, included 19 elected officials, and, altogether, about 25 department heads.

EARLIER in the meeting, Ms. Shuffield had complained about losing clerks from her 22-deputy staff. Annual base pay, not including fringe benefits, ranges from about $11,500 to $15,000 a year. Ms. Shuffield, who makes about $31,500 a year, said that the pay is not attractive enough to her employees.

"I'd like to be able to hang on to people and keep them," she said. "We know who's the most skilled." Ms. Shuffield now is losing three deputies.

The tax collector recommended that her lead clerks be granted monthly pay increases to range from $250 for her chief deputy to $175, $100 and $75 for her lead clerks.

However, the commissioners deferred any action on the proposed pay hikes, suggested that the tax collector and personnel director get together and work toward a solution, and said that a blanket pay raise in one department would incite employees in other departments to seek similar raises.

Word of any raise quickly would spread throughout the courthouse, the commissioners said.

"Just one walk to the (county employees') parking lot, and you would have a furor (over wages)," figured County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry.

Chamber event produces wit

STANTON — "Oh, me...," groaned Grant Mabry, as he rose to the podium before some 82 folks. "Another high-paying job."

He was pleasant about it.

Mabry surveyed his friends, gained hope and pleaded for aid. "Help us load up this wagon."

His new gratis "job" is president of the Martin County Chamber of Commcerce in 1982; the payoff, if any, will be in gratitude and progress. His wagon is the chamber. And the chamber's idea bank apparently needed replenishing, Mabry said Monday night at the annual chamber banquet in the Cap Rock Electric Co-operative Inc. Auditorium here. He succeeded Susan Hall as president of the 100-member chamber.

"Let's put those ideas in a wagon, and let's roll together," he exhorted the chamber boosters not long after Ms. Hall had admonished them to get involved in their chamber.

Mabry, the enterprising editor-publisher of the weekly Stanton Reporter newspaper and a protege of the night's guest speaker, Andrews humorist and newspaper publisher James Roberts, centered his brief comments around the old peddler's saw: "You can't sell from an empty wagon."

His idea is to fill the wagon in 1982. Ms. Hall, a Stanton florist, did her bit as chamber president last year. "She's laid some ground work that we need," Mabry said of the outgoing chamber chief.

"IT'S SOMETHING I will always treasure," Ms. Hall said of her presidency. If she treasured that role, she also decried the apathy among chamber members who failed to support their organization outside of the paying dues, which begin at $24 a year for an individual membership. She noted that only 20 of the 100 chamber members responded to a particular survey.

"I would like to believe more of you are interested in the chamber than that," she said. "I would like for Stanton to grow and prosper along with the Permian Basin. I want to be in the Prosperity Belt."

Stanton, an agriculture- and petroleum-based community of some 3,000 folks, is feeling the side-effects of the oil boom, noted Ms. Hall, who said that the citizenry here should toil together to make the town even more prosperous.

"I want only the best for myself and my children," she said. "I won't live anywhere else."

ROBERTS WOULD and does, however, though he's a staunch supporter of small communities and perhaps is the foreleader of community journalism in West Texas. Roberts, who owns a chain of weekly, semi-weekly and small daily newspapers in Texas, is editor of The Andrews County News.

In the Roberts tradition, he lit into his audience with his wry humor. "A&M is fast becoming the cultural center of Texas," he said of Aggie-Land, U.S.A., Texas A&M University. "It's because the freshmen are carrying so much culture in and the seniors are carrying so little culture out."

He drifted into oil and money matters in the post-1974 time frame when the price of oil shot sky high.

"We've made more millionaires in the last five years than we made in the previous 50 years," Roberts allowed, "and it's going to continue. Our oilfield contractors are loaded."

AFTER SEVERAL tales, Roberts hopped off of his humor and let Midland's ace Presbyterian, chamber leader and "strong windmillman," Bill Collyns, off with just a jab or two and then got serious about Small Town, U.S.A. "You've got to have a little meat with the fluff," he said.

Roberts expressed concern over a study which suggested that 285 of Texas towns below the 5,000-people mark will be extinct by 1990. And he surmised that the basic difference between the towns that will survive and prosper and those that won't is "caring."

"A bad bank can kill a town," he said. "A bad newspaper can kill a town. (But) a good bank and a good newspaper with an enlightened community can make miraculous things happen."

Roberts again emphasized the importance of caring and constructive criticism in molding and building a community. And he pointed to endeavors at the individual level: "As a man sows, so shall he reap."

UNDER THE AUSPICES of emcee Paige Eiland, the chamber event featured "outstanding" citizens in areas of manhood, womanhood, agriculture and agribusiness. Awards and their recipients were:

—Raymond T. Kingsfield Memorial Award: Recipient, 22-year-old Martin County farmer Kyle Cook. Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders, who presented the award, noted that Cook was "very deserving" of the honor, which commemorates Kingsfield, who farmed in the Tarzan-Walcott area.

—Outstanding Man of the Year: Recipient, Gene Byrd, a lineman for Texas Electric Service Co. "We didn't have a very hard time" selecting Stanton's No. 1 man of the year, said Kyle Kendall, who recognized Byrd.

—Agri-business Person of the Year: Recipient, Bill Stone, a Martin County farmer and auctioneer. County Agent Rick Vestal presented the award to Stone.

Spring afternoons may return

Afternoon temperatures reminiscent of spring once again will return to the Midland area through Wednesday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the high on Wednesday will be in the lower 70s. The mercury is expected to drop into the upper 30s tonight.

Winds will be from the south at 10-15 mph tonight, shifting southwesterly at 15-20 mph on Wednesday.

City to receive HUD funds

administrator, and Akins said the city will start looking for such a person soon. "It will take someone full-time to get all this done," he said, adding that it's almost time to start on the 1982 application.

But even while the City Council had acquiesced and included the 280 new housing units on its three-year plan, Akins was restrained on the actual outlook of obtaining that additional housing.

"It gets people's hopes up that we're going to do all these great things," he said. "But I've heard there is no money left for it (new construction program).

Most people I talk to in Washington and Dallas didn't give a lot of encouragement because of the federal cutbacks. I hesitate to say we're going to put in 280 new housing units. I'll be surprised if there'll be any of it."

The lion's share of the $1 million grant will go to a housing rehabilitation program with the remainder going for paving dirt roads and putting in curbs and gutters in the south and east areas. "That's where the need is," remarked the mayor.

Looking back over the seven months spent working on the application and its accompanying HAP, Akins remarked, "I got tired of it and the council got tired of it."

Burglaries reported to police

Two burglaries with losses totaling $33,500 were reported to police during the past 24 hours.

Walter E. Yarbrough 2513 Country Club Drive told officers he returned from a weekend trip Monday and found his back door had been kicked in and the house ransacked. Taken were guns, jewelry, credit cards, two stereos, a TV set and assorted other items worth in excess of $30,000.

In the second burglary complaint, a rifle, shotgun, stereo and camera equipment valued at $3,510 were reported taken from a storage shed at 1601 Idlewild Drive.

Senior citizens endorse Brown

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown has won the endorsement of a national senior citizens' group, and opponent Jim Hightower says Brown can have it.

The National Alliance of Senior Citizens, along with other senior citizens' groups, announced Monday its backing of Brown for re-election.

The NASC endorsement was made in a letter from its director, Curt Clinkscales, who called Brown "a front runner in the development of programs to help reach those older citizens in need of help in Texas."

Brown and Hightower are the only announced candidates for the Democratic nomination for agriculture commissioner.

Clinkscales is one of five members of the national board of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, a Virginia-based organization which pushes conservative candidates.

Watson has changed his looks, but not his style

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

His last Midland performance was a success. That was 18 months ago. Since that time Gene Watson has changed his looks, but not his style. He's still country.

His return engagement at the Midland Stardust will be Wednesday. When he was here in August 1980, the crowd that came to hear him was not the usual Stardust concert crowd. The ages among those there ranged from 18 to 60. Although many were clothed in the customary western garb, just as many were not. The only common factor among them seemed to be their desire to hear this particular performer.

They weren't disappointed. During his two sets, Watson sang all of his hits, including "Farewell Party," "Love in the Hot Afternoon," "Pick the Wildwood Flower," "The Old Man and His Horn" and his most recent hit at that time, "Raising Cain in Texas."

It was surprising to this reviewer to discover Watson has had no formal musical training because he uses his vocal range as normally only those who have had training do. Perhaps his vocal control can be attributed to his years of experience and the fact that he comes from a family of singers.

"They all sing, but they don't sing my kind of music," Watson said then. "They sing religious music. I've got two sisters that sing. And one, Lord, she can blow me away."

Watson, who grew up in Paris, has had several hits since his last performance here. According to Billboard's year-end 1980 survey, Watson was the No. 13 artist of the year in singles. Since 1981 he has been recording for MCA with his first single for MCA being the hit "Between This Time and The Next Time."

Watson has made special guest appearances on "Hee Haw," "Pop Goes Country," "Nashville on the Road," "That Nashville Music" and several syndicated television shows in Canada. He also has had a hit song "Any Way You Want Me" in the Clint Eastwood movie, "Any Which Way You Can."

And surely Wednesday night he will perform his latest hit — "Fourteen Carat Mind."

Water Board takes steps for assistance loans

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Development Board has taken preliminary steps for approval of draft rules regulating the use of $40 million appropriated by the Legislature for water assistance loans.

The board Thursday authorized the Texas Department of Water Resources staff to file the draft rules with the Secretary of State's Office to enable the board to act on the matter at its Feb. 16 meeting.

The rules govern the use of $40 million appropriated by the Legislature in the enabling legislation for the proposed water trust fund amendment. That amendment was voted down in November, but the budgeted funds were not affected by that decision.

Under the draft rules, the funds will finance a Water Loan Assistance Fund, under which the TWDB could grant loans for such projects as conservation or development of surface water and ground water, development of saline and brackish water resources, transportation of water to treatment or storage facilities, construction of treatment facilities or flood control.

Projects could qualify for loan assistance only if the governmental entity seeking the funds showed that a hardship or emergency existed.

Ronald J. Freeman, TWDB acting development fund manager, said the draft rules are similar to rules for the present Water Development Fund Program. However, that program is in danger of running out of funds because of the board's inability to sell bonds under current market conditions.

Major difference in the two loan programs involve the hardship provision and the eligibility of flood control programs for funding under the Water Loan Assistance Fund. Also, the board will not be allowing applicants to refinance previous loans by obtaining a second loan under the new fund.

Bell research one of the best

AP Laserphoto

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — At Bell Laboratories, there's something new every day -- quite literally. In its 57 years as the research arm of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., its scientists have produced more than 19,500 patents.

"We like to say we have received an average of one patent per working day since we began in 1925," said spokesman Bob Ford.

Inventions have gone far beyond the realm of the telephone: the invention of the transistor, the laser and the electrical digital computer, origination of sound motion pictures and development of radio altimeters.

Seven Bell Labs scientists have shared three Nobel prizes.

No surprise, then, that when U.S. District Judge Vincent Biunno approved AT&T's plan to settle a long-standing antitrust case he likened Ma Bell's research arm to the 15th century court of Lorenzo the Magnificent, which included Michelangelo and other Italian Renaissance geniuses.

It is that good.

IN BELL LABS, RESEARCHERS have developed devices to measure human hearing and speech waves, solar batteries, communications satellites, and countless innovations routinely used in radar, defense systems and computer language.

But those creations were just for starters. With AT&T's divestiture of 22 local operating telephone companies, the antitrust settlement will take the shackles off Bell Labs, allowing Ma Bell for the first time to profit from scientific discoveries in unregulated fields.

Since 1956, AT&T has been under court order not to dabble in fields like computers, information systems and cable television.

Bell Labs scientists liken the antitrust settlement to the unlocking of a door, a chance to broaden research horizons.

"We can follow anything," said Arno Penzias, a Nobel laureate who was promoted last month to vice president of research, where he heads a department that in the past half century has dabbled in virtually every conceivable field of science and communication.

"It's a responsibility ... A lot of people have put a lot of trust in us," adds Penzias, who shared the 1978 Nobel in physics for the discovery of background radiation left over from the "big bang" explosion thought to have formed the universe 18 billion years ago.

Arno Penzias, a Noble Prize-winning scientist recently promoted to vice president for research at Bell Laboratories, is among those who view the At&T anti-trust settlement as a boast to research.

Bell Labs, created through the merging of the research departments at AT&T and Western Electric Co., today has a budget of $1.6 billion and almost 25,000 employees (3,325 of whom have doctorate degrees) at major research facilities in Murray Hill, Whippany and Holmdel, N.J., and Naperville, Ill. In all, it has 17 facilities in nine states.

IT IS A PLACE WHERE thinking and learning are emphasized. Young scientists are actively recruited on college campuses, and employees are encouraged to further their studies, often on company time.

"There are a lot of reasons people like it here," Ford said. "Salary is one, the educational opportunity and the prestige. This is a very prestigious institution."

But another key may be that administrators at Bell Labs are scientists.

"The people who run this place are people with scientific credibility," said Charles Shank, head of the quantum physics and electronics research department at Bell Labs' Holmdel facility.

AT&T turning back on past to enter information age

NEW YORK (AP) — Since its creation in 1885, Ma Bell's symbol has been the telephone. But now American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is turning its back on the past — and, in some ways, the telephone, too.

AT&T, which for years has been the world's largest company, has positioned itself to enter the Information Age of talking computers and "electronic" newspapers as a smaller but unshackled competitor.

No longer content simply to provide the "rails" used to deliver services, Ma Bell is looking ahead to riding the rails into this new era with its own high-technology businesses.

It is an era in which people will use home computer terminals to send personal and business letters instead of writing longhand and using the mail. Instead of calling airlines by telephone to check flight schedules, travelers will be able to see the flight times — and perhaps even make reservations — at the touch of a computer keyboard in their home.

"WHAT WE see out there is a very large, growing market that is particularly well suited to our kind of business," says Charles Brown, chairman of AT&T. "We have the expertise and we have the people to do the job."

Ma Bell's transformation was begun earlier this month when AT&T announced it had agreed to settle a seven-year-old federal antitrust suit by spinning off 22 local telephone operating companies, which accounted for about two-thirds of its total assets.

The decision, if approved by the courts, will relieve AT&T of the segment of its business that required the most capital and labor. At the same time it will retain the most profitable and flexible of its operations.

Eighty percent of AT&T's slightly more than 1 million employees work for its local telephone companies, and Bell spokesmen have said the majority are expected to remain with the local exchange businesses.

In return for dropping its telephone monopoly, AT&T will be freed from a 1956 federal consent decree that had barred it from entering unregulated businesses, such as the fast-growing fields of data processing, cable television and electronic information systems.

MORRIS Tanenbaum, the company's executive vice president for planning, said in an interview that AT&T will form a separate subsidiary, popularly dubbed "Baby Bell", to offer new services.

"You can't dismiss any possibilities" for AT&T's expansion into the fast-changing world of computer technology, says Ulric Weil, who analyzes telecommunications companies for the investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co.

AT&T is well suited to make a big splash in new markets. Indeed, some critics of the antitrust settlement worry that AT&T could quickly overpower smaller companies in the communications industry and drive them to failure.

Three of Ma Bell's biggest advantages are the subsidiaries it will be allowed to keep: Bell Telephone Laboratories Inc., Western Electric Co. and AT&T's Long Lines Department.

With Bell Labs, AT&T has one of the largest and best research institutions in the world. Bell Labs produced the first transistor and has turned out more than 19,500 patents in its 57 years of operation.

Leonard Hyman, a telecommunications analyst at Merrill Lynch & Co., says that under the antitrust settlement with the U.S. Justice Department, AT&T will not have to make Bell Labs' patents available to everyone, as it has during its history as a regulated monopoly. And AT&T will be free to market whatever products its army of Bell Labs scientists can conjure up.

WESTERN Electric will manufacture the equipment AT&T sells and leases. And complementing its research and manufacturing capabilities is AT&T's far-flung network of long-distance telephone lines that can be used to transmit information between computer systems.

Pioneer oil program developer Gregory dies

FORT WORTH — Peter Paul Gregory, 77, who helped develop the present oil production proration program used throughout Texas, died in a Fort Worth hospital.

Gregory, a pioneer West Texas oil field engineer, was the man behind the innovative procedures that went into proration, according to a longtime friend, Bryant Williams, a San Angelo oil man.

The proration program was developed to prevent excess damage to an oil reservoir by over-production. It was first developed and utilized in the Yates Oil field near Iraan. Gregory headed the program's engineering committee, which included representatives from the major oil companies who had production in the area.

Gregory was a White Russian who escaped the Red Army by trekking out of Siberia and across Northern Manchuria into China when he was 17. He earned a petroleum engineering degree at the University of California after immigrating to the U.S. He worked for Humble Oil Co. at Iraan prior to starting work on the Yates Field proration program in 1929.

Williams, who also served on the engineering committee, said Gregory knew more about the Yates Field than any other man.

Gregory worked closely with all the Yates Field operators. He wanted to see the field managed as a unit, rather than through multi-owner operation with its inherent problems that could develop among the some 900 royalty interest owners and the approximately 200 working interest owners.

With Marathon as the primary operator, through unitization, each operator or royalty owner shares in the total production, rather than in a certain number of wells which they might own or operate.

This concept was dubbed "the ultimate in conservation," by Gregory. He had stated unitization would be "the crown in the long history of exemplary management of the reservoir."

Funeral services for Gregory were held last Thursday in Fort Worth.

Freon leak aboard carrier results in three sailor deaths

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two sailors on security patrol "keeled over" dead and a comrade who tried to help them also was killed when they came into contact with fumes from a Freon leak aboard a guided-missile cruiser, the Navy said.

Six other sailors aboard the USS Bainbridge who rushed in to help also were overcome but survived and were hospitalized, the Navy said. A seventh sailor was treated after being overcome while trying to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to one of the victims.

The deaths and injuries occurred Monday evening in the forward air-conditioning plant of the Bainbridge, the nation's first guided-missile frigate. The 565-foot-long, 20-year-old vessel was docked at the 32nd Street Naval Station here.

Former judge dies in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Former Kansas Supreme Court Judge John Fontron died Monday in an El Paso hospital from injuries suffered in a car accident last week, officials said.

Fontron, 78, was riding in a car when it went off the road and rolled over Tuesday morning on U.S. Interstate 10 between Deming and Las Cruces, N.M.

Fontron's wife, Dorothy, 72, was driving the car. She suffered minor injuries.

Last Mercury astronaut still at NASA to leave

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, last of the original seven Mercury astronauts still active with NASA, says he is being let go, but the space agency says it hasn't made a decision in the matter.

But even if he is asked to stay on as director of the space shuttle test program, Slayton said, "I honestly don't know if I would."

In a telephone interview Monday at the Houston Space Center, the former astronaut said he's "looking for another challenging job, hopefully in the aerospace industry."

At National Aeronautics and Space Administration headquarters here, a spokesman said officials still are considering whether to keep Slayton on.

Slayton said he didn't expect to be working for NASA for the third of four planned shuttle test flights, a seven-day manned flight scheduled for March 22.

He is one of about two dozen high-level specialists who retired from the space agency in 1980 only to be rehired as "re-employed annuitants" because of their expertise with the space shuttle, bedeviled at the time by technical and financial headaches.

All were hired for one-year tours, many of which were extended for various periods.

Slayton has had two extensions, with the latest set to expire March 31. Officials at the Houston Space Center said that in December they requested another extension for the former astronaut.

William O'Donnell, a NASA headquarters spokesman, said the request had been received but that no decision had been made. He said he expected the matter would be considered soon.

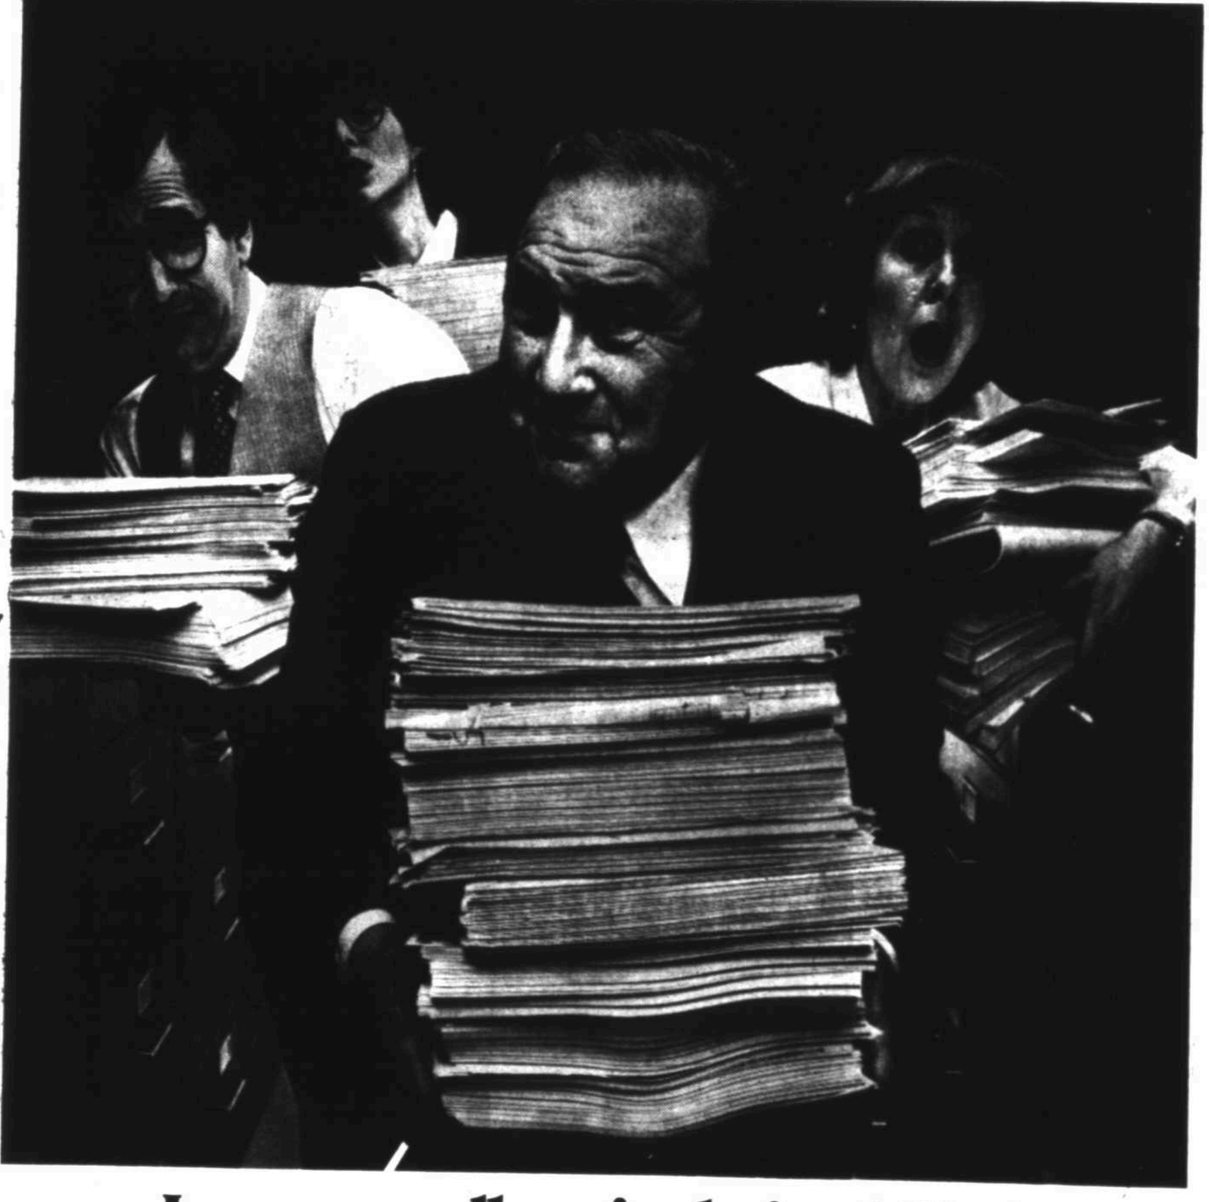

Slayton, 57, said he doesn't believe he's being forced out. "We were hired as short-termers, and it was inevitable termination would come," he said. "That time is here."

Even though the shuttle has completed only two of its four test flights, Slayton said he feels his job as head of the test program is essentially completed.

Commissioners debate varied issues

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners expressed concern Monday over policing the county's Exhibit Building, over adopting insurance coverage for employees in need of treatment for alcoholism and drug addiction, and decided not to badger the city of Midland over its waste water problems.

They dickered over all three and opted for the coverage, which will add $1 to each employee's monthly insurance premium, put off action on the exhibit building, and surmised that the city, for now, is in control of disposing of its effluent.

The county does not charge for use of its Exhibit Building, which is restricted for use by non-profit organizations and events, but does charge a $100 clean-up fee, which is refundable.

The court expressed concern over groups controlling themselves at functions where alcoholic beverages are allowed.

"I don't think we need any more regulations on liquor at the building," said County Attorney J. Scott Henderson. "We just need to enforce our laws."

Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis said he was concerned over people littering at functions, including the recent Midland County Livestock Association show.

"What bothers me was that the ground was littered," said Davis, who noted that he supports such agriculture-oriented functions. "I think the rules should apply to all."

On a related matter, Davis said he was disturbed over groups, such as families holding reunions, reserving the exhibit building a year in advance and, particularly, immediately after holding a reunion.

"That doesn't set well with me," he said. "I think I ought to have a shot at it."

Shortly afterward, Jaycee-ette Suzanne Strickling sought and got the building reserved for a Jaycee-Jaycee-ette Valentine's Party on Feb. 13.

"I don't think it will be that wild," she said of the event, which has been approved for consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Davis noted that the Jaycees are a "pretty well self-policing" organization, behave well and clean up afterward.

The commissioners also agreed to modify the county's Blue Cross-Blue Shield Insurance Co. policy by adding coverage for treatment of alocholic and drug-addicted employees.

The policy, which will cost each of the county's 300 employee about $1 a month in added premium costs, will pay from 80 to 100 percent of the cost for treatment at alcoholic treatment centers. Cost could be as high as $4,000 to $5,000 a month.

"It's supposed to be highly profitable," Commissioner Durward Wright said of the centers. "They're not for the winos off the street," he said. "That's what we have Johnson Center for."

Blue Cross-Blue Shield representative Don Crawford noted that there are six centers, including Starlite at Kerrville and Brookhaven Medical Center in Dallas, in the state and others are being built.

Wright, who voiced strong support for the plan, generally noted that the loss in man-hours dues to alcoholism is "tremendous."

"If they're that bad (in the county), we ought to get rid of them," said County Judge Bill Ahders, who noted that his court can commit people with severe drinking problems to Big Spring State Hospital's alcoholic treatment center for 30-, 60- and 90-day periods. "I do it every day," he said.

Davis seem to be perplexed as to why the county was considering the alcoholic treatment plan in the first place.

"I don't know why that person (with an alcohol or drug problem) would be on the county's payroll. Maybe I'm naive."

Wright, who said that the premium cost was "negligible," recommended adoption of the plan.

"We still feel like people should be responsible for their actions," Wright said.

Davis said he would not condone anyone coming to work intoxicated.

"We had one department totally shut down over this particular problem," said Commissioner Charlie Welch. He did not identify the department.

On another matter, the commissioners agreed that the city of Midland was trying to clean up its waste water and legally to dispose of effluent, which had been running down Midland Draw and seeping into the underground water sources, as well as running over dikes.

"It's still polluting the water like it always has," Welch said of the effluent.

Henderson said the city seems to be "acting in good faith...and is trying" to clean up the water and to dispose of it via irrigation on agricultural land.

"I don't feel like any purpose would be served by badgering them," Henderson said of the city officials and staff. "In the first place, they should be commended for their efforts."

Henderson credits the Commissioners' Court and the threat of a county vs. city lawsuit on property damages for goading the city into action on properly disposing of the effluent.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Infant botulsim not caused by formula

Dear Dr. Solomon: A close friend's infant has just been diagnosed as having infant botulism. Did she get this from her canned formula? — Mrs. R., Houston, Texas

Dear Mrs. R.: No, canned infant formulas do not contain C. botulinum, the spores causing botulism. The spores are found in house dust, soil, honey, syrups and probably a variety of foods eaten raw and cooked, including fresh vegetables. Most infants, older children, and adults regularly consume C. botulinum spores without ill effects, but for some reason, the intestinal tracts of some infants under one year of age are susceptible to infant botulism.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been on the Pill for a couple of years, and my obstetrician has now had me switch to a different one. She says the new one is safer. I had no complaints about the old Pill because it did the job. Do you see any sense in switching? — Meg, Lexington, Ky.

Dear Meg: If two medications are equally effective but one is safer than the other, it makes sense to use the safer one. This appears to describe new, low-dose oral contraceptives. As a result, women just beginning to use oral contraceptives are being started on the new formulations, and women who have been using them for some time are being switched to them.

Some studies have indicated that the risk of cardiovascular complications from use of oral contraceptives is related to the hormone content of the Pill. Therefore, the lower the dose, the safer you are.

This is particularly good news for some women over 30 years of age who are in good health, do not smoke, and have none of the risk factors for cardiovascular disease, such as obesity or high blood pressure, among others. Women who fall into this category may want to check with their obstetricians, because it's possible they may be able to continue using oral contraceptives until menopause.

Soldier dies in war game

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) — The Army is investigating a nighttime training accident in which gunfire killed one soldier and injured three others as a battalion fended off a simulated attack by pop-up targets.

Pvt. Robert G. Solonika, 20, was killed in the exercise about 7 p.m. Sunday at this sprawling desert base 40 miles northeast of Barstow.

"Preliminary investigation indicates the fatality was caused by small-arms fire," said Bob Hughes, a civilian base spokesman.

Solonika, of Salem, Ore., was assigned to Company B, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division (Mechanized) from Fort Riley, Kan. Hughes said the wounded soldiers were from the same company.

He identified them as Pvt. William J. Renkin, 18, of Meriden, Iowa; Pvt. William A. Shewbridge, 21, of Junction City, Kan.; and PFC Anthony I. Johnson, 20, of Dayton, Ohio. They were in good condition at the base's Weed Army Community Hospital, suffering wounds from small-arms bullet fragments.

Camp David's 11th hour

Secretary of State Haig's recent trip to the Middle East belatedly recognizes that time is running out for the Camp David process and efforts to break the long deadlock on Palestinian autonomy. After all but ignoring the matter last year, Haig promises to continue either personal attention or the dispatch of a high-ranking emissary to explore ways out of the present impasse.

That action should have been started sooner, when there remained more room for maneuvering. It's now the eleventh hour, and as the April 25 date for Israel's final withdrawal from the Sinai nears, the tension is greater and the future of the Camp David process is even more uncertain.

Although Israel's Menachem Begin still vows that Israel will adhere to its pledge to return the last of the Sinai to Egypt, once that final phase is completed Begin will have no political leverage on Cairo to win concessions in the West Bank talks. That situation may make the temptation to delay the timetable or even renege all the stronger. This prospect presents Egypt's President Mubarak with the quandary of either bending to Israel conditions and thereby jeopardizing his desire to win his way back into Arab good graces, or continuing to demand a settlement leading to Palestinian statehood and thereby risking complications in the Sinai.

Israel wants any self-rule agreement for the West Bank and Gaza Strip to limit Palestinian powers to local administrative matters so that nothing will be done to weaken Begin's hopes for eventual sovereignty over the areas. The Egyptians see autonomy as a stepping stone to Palestinian self-determination, either in a separate state or in confederation with Jordan. A central sticking point is Arab East Jerusalem, claimed by Israel as part of its capital. Cairo insists that East Jerusalem Arabs must be allowed to vote on any autonomy proposal; Israel adamantly refuses because it sees that as tantamount to abandoning its claims on a united city.

In trying to find a way around this impasse, Haig must convince Begin that Israel's well-being depends on broader regional stability and that his ambitions for the West Bank may well lead to greater dangers for everyone. The secretary needs to remind Mubarak of the risks of courting other Arabs by demanding conditions outside the Camp David agreements; they specify that Jerusalem's future is not to be negotiated until after the transitional autonomy arrangement is in place.

So far the Reagan administration's handling of foreign affairs has appeared to be somewhat erratic, marked by ad hoc decisions sometimes baffling to friends and foes alike. At this late hour, keeping the peace process going in the Mideast will demand the highest diplomatic skills. That the White House has shown a stern face to Begin's disruptive tactics strengthens its hand as an impartial mediator. How Haig will use that position remains to be seen, but the task is one of the most important challenges confronting the administration.

A matter of personality

Personalities have a lot to do with the workings of our federal government. When they clash, the results can be chaotic. When they mesh, they can create an atmosphere of harmony that leads to greater efficiency.

The National Security Council has given us some examples in recent years of the importance of people getting along with each other and being able to communicate in a friendly fashion.

Richard Allen, the security adviser who was forced to resign, did not get along with Secretary of State Haig, and vice versa. That was not the main reason for Mr. Allen's departure, but it surely contributed to his problems.

When William Clark was sent in to run for Allen, the most common comment about him was that although he was not an expert on security matters, he had a personality that was compatible with everybody with whom he had to work. That included not only Secretary Haig, but Defense Secretary Weinberger, presidential adviser Edwin Meese and, of course, the president himself. Compatibility was welcomed as a key qualification.

So while knowledge of a job is important, let us not knock the personality quotient.

CHARLEY REESE

Anglophile group seeks influence

A current ploy of anti-Semites is to accuse American Jews of dual loyalty and to claim that Israel manipulates U.S. foreign policy.

Charley Reese

Both are lies, but there is a group of Americans who do have dual loyalty and there is a foreign country which has manipulated American foreign policy shamelessly for most of this century. The Americans are Anglophiles and the country is Great Britain.

Great Britain, with the help of American Anglophiles, has suckered us into two wars to save its empire. It manipulated us in the Middle East and in Africa. The U.S. policy toward Zibabwe, for example, was written in London.

When you have some spare time, hunt up a copy of "Tragedy and Hope," by Dr. Carroll Quigley. The late historian was a bona fide Eastern liberal with impeccable Ivy League credentials. He was just more honest than most liberals.

He gives a detailed account of how the Anglophiles joined a secret British group and formed an axis which dominated the governments of both countries and still does.

Quigley writes in one passage, "On this basis...there grew up in the twentieth century a power structure between London and New York which penetrated deeply into university life, the press, and the practice of foreign policy. In England the center was the Round Table Group, while in the United States it was J.P. Morgan and Company or its local branches in Boston, Philadelphia, and Cleveland."

In another revealing passage, the historian writes:

"He (Jerome Greene) is also a symbol of the relationship between the financial circles of London and those of the eastern United States which reflects one of the most powerful influences in twentieth century American and world history. The two ends of this English-speaking axis have sometimes been called, perhaps facetiously, the English and American establishments. There is, however, a considerable degree of truth behind the joke, a truth which reflects a very real power structure. It is this power structure which the radical right in the United States has been attacking for years in the belief that they were attacking the communists.

"There does exist, and has existed for a generation, an international Anglophile network which operates, to some extent, in the way the radical right believes the communists act. In fact, this network which we may identify as the Round Table groups has no aversion to cooperating with the Communists, or any other groups, and frequently does so. I know of the operations of this network because I have studied it for twenty years and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960s, to examine its papers and secret records."

Dr. Quigley's book was published by MacMillan but oddly enough the publisher, without notifying Dr. Quigley, destroyed the plates of the book. Oddly enough, Dr. Quigley died shortly thereafter.

Fortunately, however, some rascal of a radical rightist had photocopied the entire book and it is still available in this pirate edition.

In all fairness, Dr. Quigley, a professor of history at Georgetown University, confirms the broad outline of the thesis of the John Birch Society. What he says, in 1200 erudite pages, is, "Yes, Virginia, there is a conspiracy of sorts."

"Tragedy and Hope" will provide you an amazing insight into what's been going on for most of this century. It's this same network, for example, which continues to con the American people into supporting a so-called Atlantic Alliance which is a joke. It also explains why, regardless of whom we elect president, we end up with the same foreign policy.

The current contradictions in the Reagan administration are the result of struggle now going on to surround Reagan with Anglophile advisors.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. actions could push Taiwan to Soviets

WASHINGTON — Whenever the United States considers a move that will weaken its ties to the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan, intelligence agencies are asked to predict what the Taiwanese reaction is likely to be. The recent decision against the sale of advanced fighter planes to Taiwan was no exception.

Jack Anderson

In all the sheaves of top-secret analyses, no suggestion is more bizarre than this one, which keeps bobbing up: A deteriorating relationship with the United States will compel Taiwan to seek closer ties with the Soviet Union.

In the hardball game of international power alignment, no possibility is too far-fetched, of course. Ideology often takes a back seat to cold reality, and "the enemy of my enemy is my friend." The mutual Soviet-Taiwanese enemy, of course, is the People's Republic of China.

Here's how the CIA and Pentagon experts weigh the idea of a Taipei-Moscow rapprochement, according to four secret intelligence studies shown to my associate, Dale Van Atta:

"For one thing, Taipei probably believes that the costs of maintaining and upgrading modern air and naval defense systems would be too heavy to bear for long without help," said one report. Without U.S. support, Taiwan may turn to Moscow.

"Taipei may presume that the Soviet Union would welcome such a role," the report continues. "Access to Taiwan's airfields and ports would provide a convenient way station on the long trek from Vladivostok to the Indian Ocean.

"A close relationship between Taiwan and the U.S.S.R. also would prevent both the PRC (mainland China) and Japan from acquiring Taiwan and would underscore Soviet status as a Pacific power while simultaneously offsetting Chinese, Japanese and U.S. influence in the region."

The report adds: "In Taiwan's view, a Soviet protector could fill the island's defense requirements. Taipei planners know that, of all (mainland China's) neighbors, the U.S.S.R. is the most ready and willing to undertake military action against Peking." All it would take, the analysis speculates, is a verbal assurance that if Peking invades Taiwan, the Russians would counter the move by an attack on China from Siberia.

On the debit side of the ledger, Taiwan recognizes that "such a relationship... would be fraught with risks and uncertainties." These dangers are spelled out in the secret studies:

— "Taipei would fear that Moscow could demand a high price for its protection in terms of military installations and perhaps trade arrangements disadvantageous to Taiwan."

— "Taipei would also have to evaluate the risk of becoming involved in a Sino-Soviet war. In such a conflict, a Soviet presence on Taiwan could be expected to invite, in the worst case, a devastating nuclear attack on the island from the mainland."

— On the other hand, the Taiwan government would have to weigh the chances of being rudely jilted if Moscow and Peking were suddenly to kiss and make up.

— As for the Soviets' willingness to strike a deal with Taiwan, the analysts warned that the Russians "probably would be reluctant to burn their bridges completely (with the mainland Chinese), while at the same time adding another irritant to U.S.-Soviet relations."

— And finally, "linking with the Soviets in any fashion would alienate Taipei from Washington and damage hopes for continuing close ties with the U.S."

Despite all these disadvantages, and Taiwanese insistence that they're not interested in a Soviet connection, the U.S. analysts don't rule it out completely if the United States continues to weaken its support for Taiwan.

But a Defense Intelligence Agency report suggests that all Taiwan is doing is a little horse-trading. The Taiwanese have engaged in "circumspect flirtation with Moscow... more in search of leverage in its relations with the U.S. than in preparation for taking out a Soviet option."

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES — The Agriculture Department is caught in the middle of a prestige play by two powerful senators, and as a result has no chief of congressional relations. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has recommended one man for the post, and Robert Dole, R-Kan., has recommended another. Neither has shown a willingness to back down, so the White House has left the post unfilled to avoid irritating either solon.

— Insiders privately concede that the fight for the Equal Rights Amendment is all but dead. Or, as one put it: "It will take a miracle for us to win. But some of us still believe in miracles."

— Every federal agency's budget officers have been sweating and suffering over the Reagan administration's cutbacks. But the Federal Aviation Administration's budget officers found a way to take some of the sting out of the dreary business. About 20 of them flew from all over the country to Atlantic City, where they checked into Bally's Park Place, a hotel-casino complex, for a two-and-a-half-day conference on the 1983-84 budget.

— On Jan. 17, the premiere of a documentary film on the Holocaust drew hundreds of celebrities to the Kennedy Center here, reminding the world of the Nazis' slaughter of 6 million Jews in World War II. Just a few blocks away, another group was saluting the Palestine Liberation Organization.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1982. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 26, 1942, the first U.S. Expeditionary Force arrived in Europe during World War II, putting ashore in Northern Ireland.

On this date:

In 1827, the South American country of Peru seceded from Colombia.

In 1837, Michigan joined the union as the 26th state.

In 1841, British sovereignty was proclaimed over Hong Kong.

In 1971, the Soviet Union announced that an unmanned spacecraft had made a soft landing on the planet Venus.

Ten years ago, North Vietnam denounced as unacceptable the peace proposal offered by President Nixon the night before.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan torn between go-slow advice and hawkish officials

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is torn on the Polish debt issue between go-slow advice from Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, two of his big three Cabineteers on one side, and far more hawkish officials on the other, led by United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Kirkpatrick, who considered leaving the administration because of her profound disagreement with the go-slow policy, has plenty of conservative Reaganite allies, particularly at second levels of the State and Defense Departments. The hawks believe the Soviet Union would be severely hurt if the U.S. foreclosed on the $28 billion of Polish debt to Western countries and banks: Foreclosure could affect Soviet credit standing throughout the West and would gravely aggravate Poland's economic crisis, forcing more Soviet aid.

But Haig and Regan have so far won the day. Haig worried about Western Europe's reaction to U.S.-led foreclosure or a refusal to "roll over" the huge debt with easier payments. Regan fears dislocations in the financial markets. The betting today is that Reagan, against his own ideological convictions, will stick with Haig and Regan despite costly political erosion on the right flank.

DOLE ON MILITARY BILL

Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and a wily leader of old-line Republican conservatives, has sent this private word to the Reagan White House: Don't count on me to support the big new military spending bill for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Dole's opposition, while not wholly unexpected, signals a possible revolt against Reagan's prime legislative priority when Congress reconvenes next week. Reagan has submitted to White House advisers on raising new taxes, on continuing nuclear talks with Moscow despite Poland and on continuing to bar tax exemptions for racially-discriminatory private and religious schools, but he is adamant on continuing the military buildup whatever the cost and whatever the budget deficit.

The private message from Dole warns that with the off-year election only nine months away, the pro-defense bloc on Capitol Hill will lose many of its 1981 allies, worried about soaring defense costs during another round of domestic budget-cutting.

BAKER'S WORRIES

Shortly before costly administration stumble-bumming on the torrid issue of religious school tax exemption, White House chief of staff James Baker confided this worry to a close friend: Some day I'm going to wake up and find the roof has blown off this place!

The cause of Baker's concern, he explained, is the scarcity of top-grade personnel surrounding the president in the White House and at second-levels throughout the government. He named no names, but his criticism seemed prescient when the roof blew off the White House in the tax-exemption fiasco.

Intimates say Baker has a generally low opinion of White House counselor Edwin Meese III's personal staff, which is viewed by objective critics as far less proficient than Baker's staff. Baker's worry failed to mention another major source of White House problems: The escalating battle between new right Reaganite Republicans and old-line conservatives who now fight for the president's soul in ways reminiscent of the Byzantine Empire.

JEWS VERSUS BEGIN

A hush-hush parley by the policy-making National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council in Houston Jan. 15-18 almost broke apart on the question of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

The feisty Israeli leader came under savage attack behind closed doors by moderates in the American-Jewish community. He was emotionally defended by hard-line backers. At one point, Zvi Harry Hurwitz, information counselor at the Israeli Embassy here and a guest at the Council's meeting, grabbed the microphone and shouted a warning that American Jews "must not let this dissent" get out into the public domain.

One result: The council agreed not to make statements on any issues where serious dissent exists. They include the Israeli raid against the Iraqi nuclear reactor, the annexation of the Golan Heights, and others — including Prime Minister Begin. "Consensus" was reached that there must be no Palestinian state; that Jerusalem in its entirety belongs under Israeli sovereignty, and that the U.S. must stick with the Camp David process with no new plans even if that fails.

SOVIET GOLD-SELLING

The immense sale of gold the last few weeks by the Soviet Union has convinced the Reagan administration that Moscow is holing up for a long siege of reduced East-West trade, which would cut into hard currency earnings for the Soviet Union and its satellites.

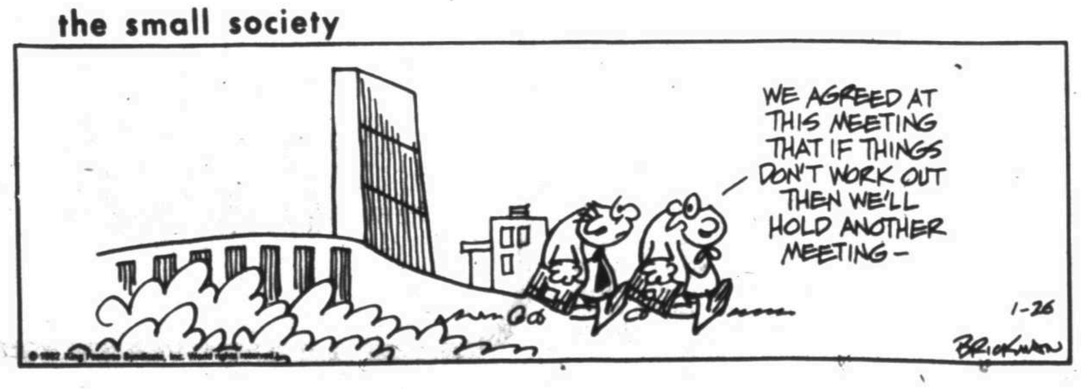

Intelligence sources here report a gross gold sale by the Russians of 250 million tons in 1981. Considering today's gold price of $375 an ounce — far below levels of last year — that adds up to a tidy sum.

The hard currency being paid for the Soviet gold has to be earmarked for cash-and-carry purchases of food, feed grains and industrial products, particularly for economically-prostrate and insolvent Poland. Looking into the future, the Kremlin appears gravely concerned that a cutback of Western credit could find its whole Eastern European empire looking to Moscow for help.

A footnote: Secret talks may soon take place between the U.S. and South Africa, the world's major source of gold, to find some way to reduce the price of the yellow metal, thus reducing the value of Soviet gold.

Court gives taxation power to Indians

By JIM MANN
(c) 1982, Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In a major economic triumph for American Indians, the Supreme Court decided Monday that Indian tribes have the power to impose severance taxes on oil, gas or other minerals that are produced on their reservations.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices upheld the authority of the tiny Jicarilla Apache tribe to tax major oil companies taking oil and gas from its reservation in northwestern New Mexico. The oil companies had claimed that only state and local governments could levy such a tax, and that the tax improperly interfered with interstate commerce.

The decision lets the Jicarilla tribe, which has approximately 2,200 members, collect from $1 million to $2 million a year in severance taxes. The money will be put into a permanent fund administered by the tribal government for the benefit of the Jicarilla.

"The power to tax is an essential attribute of Indian sovereignty, because it is a necessary instrument of self-goverment and territorial management," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote for the court majority. The dissenters were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John Paul Stevens and William H. Rehnquist.

The court emphasized that before imposing severance taxes, Indian tribes will have to get the approval of the Department of the Interior, as the Jicarilla tribe did before taxing the oil companies.

At the moment, few other tribes impose severance taxes, but the court's decision (Merrion vs. Jicarilla, 80-11) is likely to spur many of them to do so. These taxes could well become an important new source of revenue for the tribes, reducing their financial dependence on the federal government.

The effect on the price of oil and gas to consumers is not likely to be great, according to government officials. Production of oil and gas on Indian reservations adds up to less than one percent of total U.S. production.

"It's not significant for the consumer, but it's extremely significant for the Indian tribes," said Robert J. Nordhaus, the Albuquerque, N.Mex., attorney who represented the Indians before the Supreme Court.

The Jicarilla had leased some reservation lands for oil and gas production in 1953. Two decades later, the tribe began to try to tax the oil and gas produced on the reservation. The Department of Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs approved the tribe's severance taxes in 1976. Oil producers then went to court to challenge the tax.

In Monday's decision, Marshall concluded that an Indian tribe's power to impose severance taxes "derives from the tribe's general authority, as sovereign, to control economic activity within its jurisdiction." He said the oil firms benefit from "the advantages of a civilized society that are assured by the existence of tribal government."

Writing for the three dissenters, Stevens protested that the decision "distorts the very concept of tribal sovereignty."

"In becoming part of the United States, the tribes yielded their status as independent nations; Indians and non-Indians alike answered to the authority of a new nation, organized under a new Constitution based on democratic principles of representative government," Stevens said.

In 1980, Los Angeles's Department of Water and Power filed a friend-of-the-court brief in support of the oil companies in the Jicarilla case. The city said the case might affect efforts by the Navajo tribe to impose a $50-million-a-year tax on a coal-fired generating plant on Navajo land near Page, Ariz.

However, Frederick J. Martone, a Phoenix, Ariz., attorney representing the DWP and other tenants in the Navajo project, said Monday the Navajo tribe has recently agreed to honor earlier promises not to levy these taxes. A federal court test of the right of the Navajo to tax the generating plant was recenty dismissed as moot, he said.

The justices also decided unanimously Monday to broaden the right of the nation's lawyers to advertise their services.

In 1977, the high court struck down the traditional prohibitions by states and by local bar associations against lawyers' advertising, ruling that such bans violate the First Amendment. However, the 1977 decision left unclear how much leeway states and bar groups have in regulating legal advertisements.

On Monday, in a decision written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., the justices said states and bar associations may prohibit only advertising by lawyers that is inherently misleading or has proved in the past to be misleading. Otherwise, the ads cannot be barred, Powell said.

Hughes Tool Company reports record sales, earnings

HOUSTON (SWN) — Hughes Tool Company reported record sales and earnings for both the fourth quarter and year ended December 31, 1981.

For the 12 months, the Company reported net sales of $1,759,105,000 and net income of $255,208,000, compared with sales of $1,206,155,000 and income of $132,189,000 for the same period in 1980. Earnings per share for the year ended December 31 were $4.60, up from $2.63 in 1980.

For the three months ended December 31, 1981, net sales were $473,615,000 while net income was $72,611,000, compared with sales of $352,689,000 and income of $42,229,000 during the fourth quarter of 1980. Earnings per share for the three months were $1.31, compared with $0.79 for the same period a year ago.

James R. Lesch, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Hughes Tool, cited decontrol of domestic crude oil prices and the record levels of drilling activity in the United States as the major factors in the Company's performance during 1981.

Gross margin rate for 1981 was 38.3 percent, compared with 34.3 percent for 1980. Gross margin for the fourth quarter of 1981 was 40.8 percent compared with 34.9 percent for the same three months of 1980.

The effective tax rate for the year was 38.7 percent, compared to 37.4 percent 1980.

Fourth quarter foreign currency exchange losses were $10.9 million, slightly offset by a cumulative gain through the first three quarters of $658,000. This resulted in a year-end net currency loss of $10.3 million, attributable primarilyto an $8.9 million loss in Argentina, which discontinued its two-tier exchange rate protection system in December.

Roberts Oil accelerates lease acquisition

HOUSTON (SWN) — Roberts Oil and Gas, Inc.an independent oil and gas exploration, developement and production company, has accelerated its lease acquisition and production activities in Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma and Mississippi.

In the La Poudre South area of Weld County, Colorado, two wells recently completed in the Sussex formation are producing 48 and 40 barrels of oil per day and Roberts has a three percent interest in each. A third well, in which Roberts also has a three percent working interest, has been completed in the Sussex formation and is awaiting further testing. This will bring to six the total number of producing wells in which Roberts has a three percent interest. In the same area, a well completed in the Shannon formation currently is flowing at 40 barrels per day. Roberts has a 6.25 percent working interest in the well.

Roberts has purchased a 10 percent interest in 1850.84 net acres acquired from patrick Petroleum Corp. The acreage adjoins the La Poudre South area now being developed.

The company also is participating in two test wells being drilled, one on a 4,300 acre prospect in South Jayton Area, Noodle Creek Prospect in Kent and Stonewall counties, Texas and a second on 1,007 acres on the East Gilbert Ranch Prospect, Jefferson County, Texas.

In February, a test well will be drilled in the Piceance basin near Rangley, Co. Roberts has a 12.5 percent working interest in 3,630 acres situated in an active producing area with a current gas price of $5.15/MCF. Also in February, a well will be spudded in a 160-acre unit in the Greasy Creek field, Hughes County, Oklahoma, in which Roberts owns a 6.25 percent working interest.

The company is participating in five development wells being drilled on properties in Oklahoma acquired from Nicor Exploration. All these wells are being drilled offsetting current producing properties.

Roberts announced that it has acquired, in a checkerboard pattern, 36,488 acres in Elko County, Nevada, from the U.S. Department of the Interior. The company has applied for an additional 18,037 acres which will result in a total of 54,525 acres. Roberts will own a 50 percent working intrests in the acreage. Exxon owns offsetting checkerboard acreage.

Western Company earnings up in 1981

FORT WORTH (SWN) — The Western Company of North America has reported that 1981 earnings increased more than 98 percent over 1980, with revenues up more than 58 percent. John A. Fanning, President and Chief Executive Officer, said Western's net income amounted to $101,376,000, or $2.28 per share, on revenues of $725,691,000 during 1981. These results compare with net income of $50,967,000, or $1.21 per share, on sales of $457,512,000 during 1980.

Fanning also said that earnings and revenues for the 1981 fourth quarter exceeded the levels of any quarter in the Company's history. For that quarter, Western earned $27,482,000, or $.62 per share, on revenues of $194,846,000. These results compare with earnings of $16,082,000, or $.37 per share, on revenues of $134,651,000 for the last three months of 1980.

Per share data for 1980 was restated to reflect the two-for-one common stock split effected in June, 1981.

The weighted average number of common and common equivalent shares outstanding for 1981 was 44,550,000, compared with 42,180,000 for 1980, as adjusted.

Fanning noted that, "Each of the Company's operating segments, Western Petroleum Services and Western Oceanic, Inc., contributed outstanding performances to the 1981 results. In addition, both groups substantially expanded their revenue producing capacity throughout the year, which we expect to be reflected in increased profits to the Company in 1982 and beyond."

The Western Company provides well stimulation and cementing services to the domestic oil and gas industry and also provides offshore drilling services internationally.

Dr. John M. Malloy, professor of accounting, Texas Tech, will cover "Federal Oil and Gas Taxation" Feb. 5.

Registration fee is $525. For registration or further information, call 563-2311.

Seminar slated Friday

Political and economic dangers facing the independent oil and natural gas producing industry in 1982 will be the primary subject of a special seminar being conducted by the Independent Petroleum Association of America in Midland, Friday.

The two hour seminar, free and open to anyone with an interest in the petroleum industry, will be held at the Hilton Inn, Civic Room, starting at 9 a.m.

The seminars will focus on legislation adopted by the 97th Congress during 1981, but will then deal with pitfalls facing the industry this year, including the threatened repeal of the Windfall Profit Tax credits granted independent producers last year.

Other issues will include an impending battle on natural gas decontrol, and the overall political climate for 1982.

Sierra Club sues Interior over mineral leasing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Sierra Club and the North Cascades Conservation Council of Seattle have filed suit in federal court here against a federal decision to allow mining leases on five national recreation areas.

The suit, filed by Sierra Club legal counsel H. Anthony Ruckel of Denver, asks the court to vacate regulations issued by Interior Secretary James Watt last Dec. 21, which would allow exploration for gold, lead, zinc, uranium and other minerals on the national recreation areas.

Prior to the regulations, all or parts of the areas were open to exploitation of hydrocarbon or energy-related minerals, except uranium, under controlled circumstances.

According to the lawsuit, the new regulations would allow mining on "thousands of acres of some of the country's finest canyon lands, river valleys, and mountain environments."

At issue are the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area in Utah and Arizona, Lake Mead in Nevada, Whiskeytown National Recreation Area in northern California, and Ross Lake and Lake Chelan areas in Washington.

Ruckel argues in the suit that exploration on the lands would involve "construction of roads, destruction of natural vegetation and the natural contours of the land, accumulation of tailings, and noise and associated site development."

In addition, the suit contends the regulations infringe on the power of Congress, which has set forth mineral leasing rules; that federal officials did not give proper public notice and provide a chance for comment; and that an environmental impact statement should have been prepared.

Classmates carry the casket of slain Castleberry High School cheerleader Retha Stratton to a waiting hearse Monday. A friend and former classmate of the girl has been arrested and charged with her murder.

Miller's bond quadrupled out of fear

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Wesley Wayne Miller's bond on a murder charge was quadrupled — from $25,000 to $100,000 — partly out of fear for Miller's life, said the magistrate who raised the amount.

Justice of the Peace Morris Howeth said he hiked the bond Monday after receiving complaints from "angry and scared" residents and at least two anonymous threats on Miller's live.

Miller is charged with murder in the stabbing death of a classmate and former cheerleader, Retha Stratton.

Miller, 19, and Miss Stratton, 18, were seniors last year at Castleberry High School on the city's north side. Her partially clad body, with 38 stab wounds, was found by her roommate last Thursday.

POLICE SAID Miller also is a "strong suspect" in three recent sexual assaults in the area, including the rape of another former Castleberry cheerleader. No charges have been filed in those cases, however.

Howeth said he has "received some calls from people expressing concern about what would happen if he (Miller) got back on the streets. I got to looking at some of the cases ... in this court and I decided the bond in this case was too low in comparison."

Howeth said he also became concerned about Miller's safety after receiving the two anonymous telephone calls. One of the callers said, "If he (Miller) gets out, he's a dead man," the peace justice related.

"These people are angry and scared," Howeth said.

Miller was arrested at his suburban Saginaw home Saturday after neighbors told police they saw Miller's pickup near Miss Stratton's house about the time of the killing.

POLICE SAID MILLER had given them a statement, and investigators said they also recovered physical evidence linking Miller to the slaying.

Von Bulow stepson takes stand in injection trial

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The lawyer for socialite Claus von Bulow, who is on trial for allegedly trying to kill his wife with insulin injections, says he is trying to prove that crucial evidence was seized illegally.

Herald Fahringer, the defense lawyer, said in court Monday that the evidence, a black bag allegedly containing an insulin-tinged hypodermic and drugs, should not be allowed in the trial, which is expected to resume later this week.

Fahringer's request came Monday in a hearing in which von Bulow's stepson, Prince Alexander G. von Auersperg, took the stand.

Dressed in a brown plaid sportcoat, white shirt and dark tie, Von Auersperg was tense on the witness stand as von Bulow calmly faced his accuser, his fingers laced in front of his chest.

IT WAS THE prince, a Brown University student, who allegedly found the bag in the locked closet of his stepfather.

The prince was to take the stand again today.

Von Bulow is accused of trying to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow by dangerously lowering her blood-sugar level with insulin injections on Christmas visits to their Newport mansion in 1979 and 1980.

For the past year, Mrs. von Bulow has been in a coma in a New York City hospital. She is not expected to recover.

The defense contends she brought on the condition herself by ignoring medical advice to abstain from sweets and alcohol because she suffered low blood sugar.

Under questioning by Fahringer, von Auersperg said Monday that he, his sister and grandmother decided to take their suspicions about Mrs. von Bulow's illness to lawyer Richard Kuh, a former district attorney in New York City. Von Auersperg said he did not want to go directly to police for fear of embarrassing his family.

PRIVATE investigator Eddie Lambert testified Monday he went with von Auersperg to the family mansion, Clarendon Court, on Jan. 23, 1981, to look for the black bag. Kuh said he arranged for Lambert to go with von Auersperg to protect him if need be and to be a witness if anything was found in the mansion.

After finding a set of keys on von Bulow's desk, Lambert said von Auersperg opened the door and together they searched the walk-in closet. Lambert said he found a metal box under a bottom shelf and discovered the zippered black leather bag inside.

Opening it, Lambert said he found drugs and hypodermics, including a syringe that appeared to have been used and was encrusted with a gray substance at the tip.

Cauble attorneys may wrap up defense this afternoon

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for Rex Cauble say the millionaire will testify today in his defense against charges he financed and profited from an elaborate marijuana smuggling scheme nicknamed the "Cowboy Mafia."

"I would welcome the opportunity to testify," Cauble, 67, said Monday.

The rancher has said all along he wants to tell his version of events in 1977 and 1978 at prosecutors allege linked the rancher to an operation that used shrimp boats to smuggle 106 tons of marijuana from Colombia into Texas.

Defense lawyers opened their case Monday in the rancher's trial on federal racketeering, conspiracy and embezzlement charges. Court sources said they expect the defense to rest as early as this afternoon.

CONVICTED drug smuggler James Holland testified Monday that Cauble was not involved in the smuggling ring and that he would have known if Cauble was.

Holland also said he did not believe Cauble knew smugglers used his ranches to stash the marijuana.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Baugh questioned Holland about a statement the witness had given implicating Cauble in the smuggling operation.

Holland said he made the statement under duress immediately following his arrest in November of 1978.

"That was a lie. Today, I am not lying," Holland said.

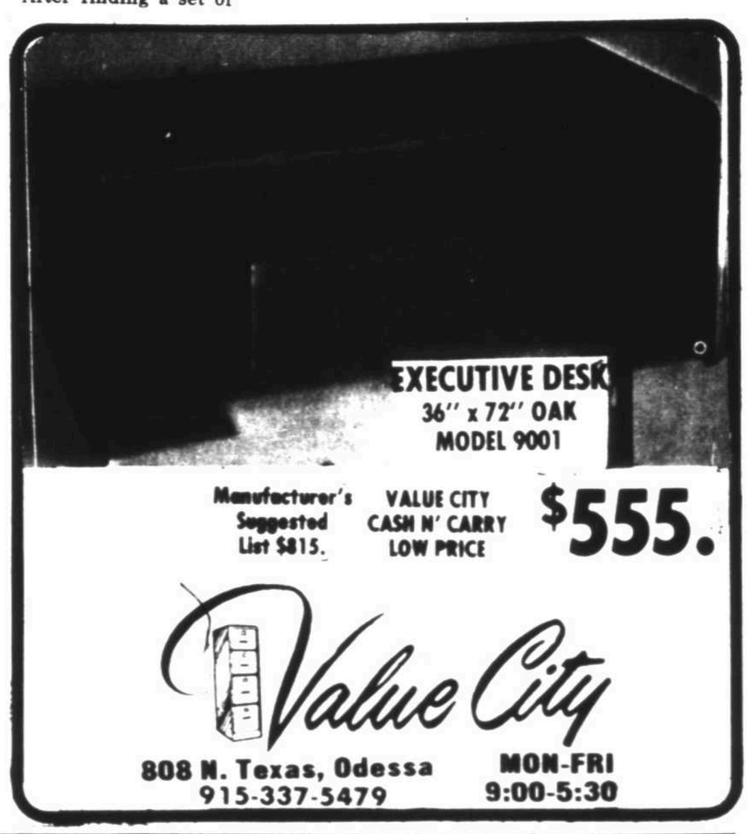

HE SAID Cauble's ranch foreman, Charles "Muscles" Foster arranged for trucks, drivers, offload sites and stash sites for at least four smuggling ventures.

Foster pleaded innocent by reason of insanity and was acquitted in 1980.

Prosecutors contend Foster financed several marijuana trips with money he received in loans arranged by Cauble. But Holland testified the ring was funded by smugglers and not by Foster or Cauble.

Holland said he declined "the same deal" to testify against Cauble that prosecutors offered convicted drug trafficker Raymond Eugene Hawkins.

Hawkins is the only witness who has testified that he knew of Cauble's involvement in the scheme.

Williams sentencing today

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered that U.S. Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey must be sentenced as scheduled on his Abscam bribery conviction, despite a plea for a delay so there can be an investigation of an informant.

Williams and co-defendant Alexander Feinberg were scheduled for sentencing this afternoon in U.S. District Court in Uniondale on Long Island.

William's lawyers asked U.S. District Judge George Pratt to delay sentencing to investigate published claims by Marie Weinberg, estranged wife of informer Melvin Weinberg, that Weinberg and his FBI supervisors committed misdeeds during the Abscam investigation.

Mrs. Weinberg said her husband committed perjury by lying about the receipt of cash and gifts from Abscam targets and middlemen.

Outlook is better for lupus victims

ATLANTA (AP — Lupus was once considered a fatal disease, but advances in diagnosis and treatment have almost doubled the life expectancy of its victims, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

"The reason lupus was fatal in four out of five cases was the difficulty in diagnosing the disease at an early stage — its symptoms imitated those of other diseases," says Dr. Frederick C. McDuffie of the foundation. "Now with better diagnostic techniques, treatment can be started at its most advantageous time."

DEAR ABBY

Contraception is partner's mutual responsibility

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a female student at Purdue. A male student and I have been having a discussion, and we can't agree on several points. May we have your opinion?

1. Should the male or female assume the responsibility of contraception in a relationship?

2. If the female assumes the responsibility but she becomes pregnant, either by accident or negligence, how much responsibility does the male then have?

3. If the girl becomes pregnant, who has the right to decide whether she should have an abortion? — NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: 1. The responsibility should be shared equally by both parties.

2. Regardless of the circumstances, the male shares equally in the responsibility.

3. The girl should consider the male's wishes, but if they can't agree, the final decision should be hers. It's her body.

DEAR ABBY: You told "Born in Illinois" that her children were "technically 100-percent American, but the percentage of Italian blood in the veins of her children is one-quarter."

Abby, for nearly 50 years I have tried to get people to see themselves as Americans, not hyphenates. There is no such thing as "Italian blood," one-quarter or otherwise. Blood has no Italianness or Irishness or Frenchness. Blood has only life, so let's begin to see people as people, four-quarters' worth all the time. — DR. JOSEPH V. ELLIS, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, TRENTON STATE COLLEGE, N.J.

DEAR DR. ELLIS: Most people are aware that there is no difference between the blood of an Italian and the blood of an Irishman, or any other human; it's just a figure of speech to denote what percentage of that person's heritage is Italian or Irish. However, your point is well taken, so let's not draw any blood over it.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Not Cheap But Fair," who didn't believe in tipping waitresses just because it was expected, has prompted me to say, "Bless your wonderful father, Abby, for tipping generously when times were tough."

As a grown-up daughter of a waitress, I can say that all those tips that people like your father gave my mother 20 years ago fed, clothed and housed three hungry children. Our father was rarely in the picture and we had no food stamps, no welfare — nothing but Mom, who worked as a waitress. She'd come home tired, with sore and aching feet, and prepare dinner with groceries bought with the tips she'd earned that day. On days when someone had been especially generous, we had something special like an ice-cream cone for dessert.

So thanks to all the generous tippers out there. There are still a lot of women who, as your late father said, "are working hard to make an honest living." — ONE OF THREE

CONFIDENTIAL TO A LOSER IN LAWTON, OKLA: If you think you're a loser, you are.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Vietnamese happy to be U.S. cop

WAILUKU, Hawaii (AP) — There's a new officer on the Maui police force who could surprise some people as he drives by in his patrol car.

He just might burst out laughing, because he's glad to be a cop, he's glad to be in America and he's glad to be free.

Had it not been for a tough family decision made six years ago many thousands of miles away, Hai McKinney most likely would be a soldier in the Vietnamese army today.

At the age of 16 in 1975, McKinney lived in Saigon with his family — his father, a martial-arts instructor; his mother; four sisters and five brothers.

"The communists were very close then. We knew that if I stayed I would have to go into the communist army," said McKinney, now 22 and a recent graduate of the Maui County Police Department recruit class.

"It was a very hard decision. We cried a lot, but my father decided that I should go to America and have a chance to live my life like a free human being," said McKinney.

And, to America he came, a frightened youth in the waves of refugees fleeing the communist takeover. He spent time in refugee camps in Guam and California.

He wrote to the Vietnamese-Indochina Refugee Office in Honolulu, seeking sponsorship and was invited by the organization's chairman, Dr. Wayne McKinny, to stay with the pediatrician and his family in Hawaii.

After a year living with the family, the McKinnys invited Hai to be adopted, and he changed his name to theirs, although he uses a slightly different spelling.

Although he spoke Vietnamese, French, and Cantonese, he spoke no English and had to struggle to finish high school. After high school, there was no doubt in McKinney's mind of what he wanted to do.

"Even when I was a little boy, I always dreamed about going to America and going through the police academy to get my degree and become a policeman in America, but not in Vietnam," he said.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Rx for clogged drains

DEAR HELOISE:
Will you please reprint the hint on keeping drains unclogged. I can't remember the process. — Inetta Thompson

Remember, preventive medicine is the best cure. Keep those drains free-flowing by pouring one cup of baking soda into the drain every week. Follow it by pouring in one cup of vinegar.

As the soda and vinegar foam up, flush the drain with about a quart of boiling water. That should do it!

Just make sure you've got metal strainers to catch any foods that might slip down those drains. — Heloise

TENDER VEGGIES

Dear Heloise: When cooking any raw vegetable, such as potatoes, carrots, etc., put a tablespoon of shortening, vegetable oil or butter into the water as you start cooking.

The vegetables cook more tender and flavorful. — J. Green

STEAMY VAPORIZER

Dear Heloise: I needed to use a vaporizer for my small baby but realized, after setting it up, it would not work because of the high mineral content of our tap water.

The directions called for baking soda to be added to the water. Having no baking soda, I substituted ordinary table salt.

Just a couple of pinches worked beautifully. Remember, though, a little dab'll do ya! — Debi Morgan

It will work but heed Debi's caution to use very little salt. — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: Mislaid your shoehorn? Try a handkerchief — not your finger.

Holding the handkerchief, drop a corner section of it into the heel of your shoe and the foot slips in without a problem. — Dr. William V. Simko, DPM

Thanks for the tip. — Heloise

COMBS AND BRUSHES

Dear Heloise: Instead of putting plants or flowers in a pretty figurine vase that sits on our bathroom vanity, we put our combs and brushes in it.

Pretty, yet neat. — Vickie Cowan

HAIRLINE CRACKS

Dear Heloise: To eliminate hairline cracks in plaster walls, do as my husband does.

Apply ordinary water-soluable white glue, running some into the cracks with your fingertips. It might be necessary to make several applications to completely fill the crack.

Allow each application to dry thoroughly before adding another.

Then paint over the cracks and they won't show. This works equally well with latex or oil-based paint. — Kathleen Milloway

ARTIST'S BRUSH

Dear Heloise: A piece of nylon net in the bottom of the jar of turpentine being used while painting is excellent for cleaning out brushes.

There's just enough roughness to help remove the paint without damaging the brush.

Just gently rub the brush back and forth across the netting. — Margaret Wasson

Hurray! Another use for nylon net! — Heloise

QUILT PATTERNS

Dear Heloise: The stiff plastic sheets that come in sliced bacon packages are pliable, durable and can be cut with scissors.

After washing well and allowing to dry, I use them to make permanent patterns for quilts and toys.

Many patterns are offered in magazines and books with instructions to draw onto one-inch graphs and cut out of paper or cardboard.

If you transfer it to the plastic sheet, you have a pattern piece that you can trace around, store easily and keep forever.

To label the pattern pieces, just put a strip of tape on the plastic for easier writing. — Bettie Howard

PLASTIC CONTAINERS

Dear Heloise: I have saved a mint buying sticky plastic containers in thrift shops.

I use a pressurized can of prewash spray stain remover to clean the containers, then follow with the usual washing in detergent, which makes them like new. All sticky film is removed.

I've been doing this with success for a long time. — Dorothy Johnstone

Thought of a thrifty way to stretch your budget? Share it by sending it to Heloise, P.O. Box 32000, San Antonio, TX 78216. She can't reply to your letter personally but will use the best money-saving tips received in her column.

Students may 'shake hands with future'

LUBBOCK — Gifted and talented students, ages 10-15, may apply for the second annual "Shake Hands with Your Future" program offered June 20-July 3 and July 11-24 at Texas Tech University.

Developed by Texas Tech's Division of Continuing Education and College of Education, the program allows students to study academic areas including mathematics, art, architecture, drama, music, law, engineering and computers. Each participant can select three subject areas in which to attend classes.

Instructors are primarily university faculty members who have demonstrated skill in working with this type of program and student.

Among the program's support groupsis the Department of Pediatrics in the School of Medicine in Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center. Edgar O. Ledbetter, M.D., department chairman, said the departmental faculty "delight in the interchange with young people.

"Rather than just one representative," he said, "our department will participate as a whole in the program this year.

"Students will be able to visit with faculty in many areas of pediatrics, including cardiology, endocrinology, neonatology and child abuse and neglect."

Ledbetter said he was a mentor last year "and the department displayed so much enthusiasm and interest that we are all involved this year."

Supervised at all times, students live in dormitories and participate in field trips to area sites, such as the Crosbyton Solar Power Project, Textile Research Center and The Museum of Texas Tech University. Workshops, cultural events and recreational activities also will be scheduled. Informal mentor sessions provide an opportunity for participants to meet and visit with Texas Tech leaders and policymakers.

Nominees should have at least two of the following characteristics: accelerated one or more grade levels above the average age/grade placement; current achievement test scores at least two grades higher than the student's present grade; demonstrated leadership ability; demonstrated unusual creative or productive thinking ability; measured above average intelligence, and exceptional skill in the visual or performing arts.

Nominations should include a student's school transcript, current standardized test scores and IQ score. The nominee's age, grade, birthdate, sex, home address, phone, school and parents' or guardians' names should also be included. A letter is required from the student describing his qualifications and reasons why the program will benefit him or her. The person making a nomination must provide a letter specifically naming the student's qualifications.

The $395 fee includes housing, meals, instruction and organized recreation. Some partial scholarships will be available, but students who want financial aid are encouraged to seek funding from local school districts, PTAs, civic organizations and church groups.

Dr. Susan H. Schafer, project director, said, "Comments from program faculty verify that 'Shake Hands with Your Future' is as exciting and challenging to faculty as it is to students."

TCU invites honor students to collegium

FORT WORTH — Texas Christian University is recruiting scholars the same as runnings backs this spring, and among the limited group invited to its first annual Honors Collegium Feb. 4-6 are six high school seniors from Midland.

Only students with SAT scores above 1100 (or ACT scores above 26) and strong rank in high school class are being invited. Dr. Henry Kelly, TCU Honors Program director, points out that "exchanging ideas and acquiring new understanding of problems confronting today's students are but part of this exploration of critical issues."

Activities will include a three-hour student/faculty collegium, a fireside chat with Dr. Michael McCracken, TCU dean of arts and sciences, and classroom experiences with Honors students and faculty.

Students invited from Midland are Jay K. Pendleton, Melinda S. Murphy, Jennifer Sarah Neisig, Shannon Delores Stone, George Dennis Hendon and John Marcus Cofer.

Located on a 243-acre campus in southwest Fort Worth, TCU has a full-time faculty numbering 350 and a student body of some 6,500 students from 48 states and numerous foreign countries. Bachelor's degrees are offered in more than 40 academic and professional fields, with master's degrees in 45 areas and Ph.D. in chemistry, English, psychology, history and physics in addition to theological graduate study in Brite Divinity School. TCU hosts active chapters of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, as well as many other honorary academic societies.

Nuclear plant safe after tube rupture

By RICH KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer

ONTARIO, N.Y. (AP) — Workers pumped water from icy Lake Ontario to the Ginna nuclear plant today to bring it to a "cold shutdown," while the owners declared the facility safe following a tube rupture that sent puffs of radioactive steam into the atmosphere.

Rochester Gas & Electric Co. officials said they hoped by midday to achieve a cold shutdown — a low-pressure, non-boiling status for the water in the reactor.

Nonessential employees, moved to an on-site training center Monday after at least one stainless steel tube carrying pressurized water to the plant's steam generator ruptured, were called back today to begin the cleanup.

"We are convinced the plant is safe," said RG&E vice president John Oberlies. "Things at the plant are progressing very well. We know it is stable."

A "site emergency" declared shortly after the tube ruptured at 9:25 a.m. Monday was downgraded to an "alert" 10 hours later. A "site emergency" is the second most serious of four nuclear emergency classifications; an "alert" is one step lower.

"Everything worked; that's the real story," said RG&E spokesman Frank H. Orienter. "All the systems operated the way they were supposed to. Nobody was hurt or killed."

Officials at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Washington described the incident as minor, although it was the first "site emergency" since the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg, Pa., in March 1979.

"It might be expensive for the operator to clean up, but in terms of public health consequences, it was not very serious," said Harold R. Denton, the agency's director of nuclear reactor regulation.

The 470-megawatt pressurized-water reactor, which opened in 1969, is on Lake Ontario about 16 miles northeast of Rochester. About 45,000 people live within 10 miles of the plant.

Technicians worked through the night to reduce the temperature and pressure in Ginna's primary cooling system.

The operating temperature, normally 603 degrees at 2,250 pounds per square inch pressure, was reduced to 349 degrees at 438 psi by 11 p.m. Monday, plant officials said.

When the pressure dropped to about 400 psi, technicians planned to switch from running water to a heat removal system, using condensers and heat exchangers. After switching to that system, it would take about 10 more hours to reach a cold shutdown of about 120 degrees, the company said.

At that temperature, workers would be able to enter the area where the rupture occurred, Orienter said.

Oberlies emphasized Monday's releases of radioactivity were minor, but noted that five workers had been exposed to trace levels of radiation. All went home after showering or wiping off with a cloth.

Radiation was released in a series of five-second puffs totaling three minutes within a one-hour period following the tube rupture, officials said. RG&E continued to check for radiation outside the plant, but Oberlies said late Monday: "We are convinced there are no health problems."

The maximum radiation detected was three millirems at the plant boundary, the utility said. Exposure to a chest X-ray is about 20 millirems, and a dose of 600,000 millirems is considered lethal.

Plant officials said the accident occurred when an undetermined number of three-quarter-inch tubes ruptured within one of the plant's two steam generators.

Pressurized water heated by the reactor moves through a network of the tubes to boil non-radioactive water in a secondary water system, producing steam that runs the plant's generating turbines.

The rupture allowed radioactive water from the reactor to mix with the water in the secondary system. The influx of water increased the pressure in the secondary system, triggering a valve that released radioactive steam to the atmosphere.

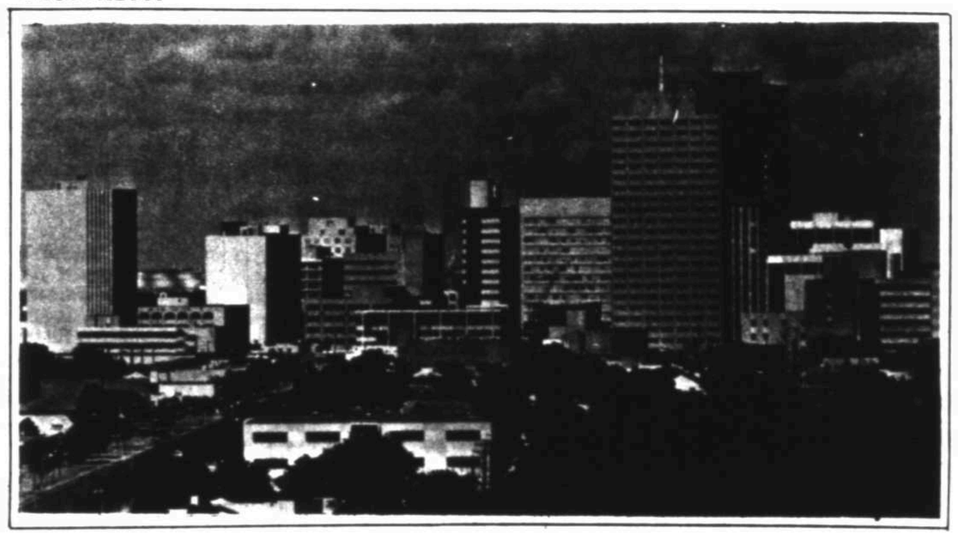

The rupture automatically triggered a reactor shutdown and the plant's automatic safety devices pumped more water into the primary cooling system, to assure that the radioactive core remained covered.

But too much water was injected and relief valves opened, spilling 11,000 gallons of radioactive water into a reactor sump, officials said.

1981 HIGHLIGHTS

Although Planning, Campaign, Communications, and Allocations describe the four function areas in which the United Way is involved, they do not entirely describe the scope of the organization's involvement in Midland.

Not included directly in the activities of any one of these divisions, for example, is the relationship in which United Way participates with new and developing organizations.

During 1981 United Way staff and volunteers worked with several new groups to determine what future opportunities might exist -- jointly or separately -- for them.

In establishing itself as an agency independent of Family Services, Big Brothers Big Sisters representatives met with United Way leaders to explore possible funding relationships between the two groups. As a result, United Way provided Big Brothers Big Sisters with a $15,000 special "Start up" grant and applied on the new group's behalf, for $10,000 in additional grants from foundations. These funds account for approximately 30 percent of Big Brothers Big Sisters proposed budget for 1982.

When the transient problem became an issue needing urgent attention last summer, United Way staff members met with representatives of the Midland Association of Churches, Human Relations Council, and other human service agencies to develop a "coordinated, cooperative emergency assistance program."

Following the development of a specific plan of operation and when a commitment of support from the Midland Association of Churches had been received, the United Way approved a grant of $2,000 for start up expenses which enabled the program to begin operation November 19, 1981.

During its beginning stages, MEAT (Midland Emergency Assistance for Transients) is evaluating its operation and making changes as warranted. United Way continues to be involved in that on-going assessment of the program.

Also during the year, staff members worked with the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children to help that group prepare its application for agency status.

United Way requires an agency to have been in operation for two years prior to seeking admission. During those two years, the agency must have developed accounting procedures and methods of operation in accordance with United Way standards, a process which means a working relationship between the agency and the United Way begins developing long before the agency attains member agency status.

As a result of working with the United Way, the Center for Battered Women applied and was accepted for funding in 1982. In addition, the United Way obtained foundation grants and capital improvement funds for the center.

Besides working with new and developing programs, United Way often cooperated with existing organizations. During the fall of 1981, United Way volunteers who work as communication media professionals presented a panel workshop open to representatives of all non-profit organizations. Volunteers and professional staff members of these organizations learned how best to work with radio, television, and newspaper to promote their activities. Public relations professionals discussed the role of advertising and other promotional tools in the non-profit sector.

By coordinating many programs which deal with poverty and the quality of life for all Midlanders, the United Way develops an overall perspective of community needs not available to many other groups. As a credit to its knowledge in the fields of voluntary action and community needs, during 1981 United Way was asked by other Midland groups to participate in their planning efforts.

Objectives for Midland worked with United Way in assessing needs for day care in southeast Midland, and is considering future plans for La Florecita in conjunction with the Objectives for Midland overall plan for that area.

When HUD funds became available for day care funding in southeast Midland, County officials sought recommendations from United Way of possible volunteers to participate in planning for day care needs to be included in the HUD project.

Experience during the past few years has indicated to the United Way and other community leaders that a need exists for leadership and coordination in the nonprofit human services field in Midland.

With the continuation of these efforts to keep pace with that need as well as with the addition of new programs such as health related agencies and community planning efforts, United Way of Midland expects to remain in the forefront of voluntary leadership in Midland.

Thanks to you, it works in Midland

President's Message

A growing city, growing needs, growing opportunities to help. Although this theme was used primarily in conjunction with the United Way fundraising campaign last year, in retrospect it describes our organization's activity throughout the year.

o

The fact that Midland is a dynamic, growing city is apparent to all of us. And as we began last year's work in the United Way, it soon became clear that such growth was creating unprecedented human service needs.

Due largely to internal reorganization in 1980, the United Way was prepared to meet these needs effectively. United Way Planning and Allocation volunteers responded by admitting our two new agencies -- Rape Crisis Center and Permian Basin Center for Battered Women -- as well as by working with existing agencies to develop new programs necessitated by the city's growth.

As examples, YMCA's are expanding their after-school programs and Casa de Amigos began a food-buying co-op for low income families.

None of these projects would have been possible without the dedicated work of hundreds of campaign volunteers who, once again, surpassed an ambitious goal. They and every person in Midland who contributed took advantage of a unique opportunity to help our neighbors in a direct and effective way.

Being in a position to take advantage of the opportunity to help provided by the United Way has meant a great deal to me, and I wish I could personally thank each of the hundreds of volunteers, officers, Board members, professional staff, agency volunteers and staff, and citizens of Midland for their co-operation and support.

Once again you have demonstrated the United Way does work in Midland, and I am proud -- as all of us should be -- to have been a part of that effort.

W.P Franklin
President

Campaign Chairman's Message

When the United Way Campaign for 1982 began taking shape early last spring, many of those involved in its planning saw a growing need for human services in Midland -- a need that in many cases seemed as if it would soon outdistance the growth our community was experiencing in other areas.

We saw, too, a way for Midlanders to put into action what we have been saying for years -- that we can put our money to better use than the federal government can.

We hoped Midlanders would recognize these problem areas and growing opportunities to help, and so we set an ambitious but attainable goal -- $1,350,000.

From every part of the city people responded to the needs that goal represented, affirming our theory that Midland could and should be a place any of us would like to call home -- not just a constantly expanding facade of steel and glass.

Contributors from all areas of employment supported the campaign in record numbers. Charitable foundations increased their giving by more than 58 percent. And corporate giving jumped to an unprecedented level.

But the ingredient that, as always, made this campaign a real success was the personal commitment and hard work of the hundreds of volunteers who continue to make the United Way of Midland our city's largest voluntary organization.

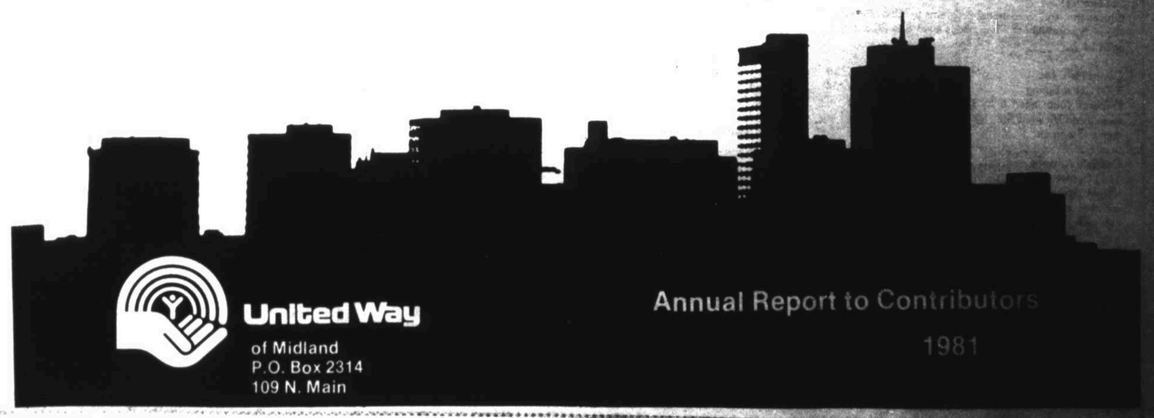

Those volunteers -- and every person in our city who contributed to the United Way -- helped prove that Midland has not grown too big to see those who may need extra help. And by contributing $1,407,895 -- 20 percent more than last year -- Midlanders have assured our city's human needs will be met for another year.

Thanks to the volunteers and to the generous support of the whole community, it does work in Midland -- the United Way.

Allocations Division

After a year-long process of studying programs and services provided by its participating agencies, United Way Allocations Division volunteers recommended total allocations for 1982 of $1,115,953, which represents a 16 percent increase over allocations for 1981.

The 1981 allocations process began in March when panel volunteers met for orientation. During April and May they visited the agencies assigned to their panels to observe facilities and programs.

Following these visits, a spring Program Report was compiled and made available to the agencies. Panel chairmen met with their respective agencies to review these reports, and at these meetings tentative budget requests for 1982 were discussed.

In early November, panel members met to review agency budget proposals for 1982. Immediately following the campaign, each agency presented a formal budget proposal to its panel, provided program information, and responded to panel members' questions concerning programs, revenue and expenditures.

Concluding the allocations process, the Allocations Cabinet reviewed the panels' reports and made its final recommendation to the Board of Directors.

In its final report to the Board, the Allocations Cabinet pointed out several requests it had made of agencies earlier during the year, and noted that action had been taken in each case to improve or clarify an area the panels had targeted for attention.

In addition, the Allocations Cabinet recommended, and the Board approved, the establishment of an $8,000 contingency fund designed to meet unbudgeted or emergency needs of participating agencies.

Such needs have been met in the past by transferring unbudgeted funds; however, allocations volunteers found it preferable to plan for these needs through the contingency fund.

Year-end surpluses in this fund will be transferred to United Way reserves.

Long Range Planning Committee

Long Range Planning for the United Way of Midland has been a vital tool in assessing our goals, programs, and structure and in determining our role and direction in the community.

As a result of a comprehensive and lengthy long range planning process in late 1980 and early 1981, action plans for 1981 were developed for each function area (Campaign, Communications, Allocations, Planning, Leadership Development, Board of Directors and Executive Committee). These action plans addressed Key Issue Areas as identified in the Long Range Planning Report: Agency Relations; Communications; Financial Management; Organizational Policies and Procedures; Personnel; and Priority Needs.

The Executive Committee functions as the Long Range Planning Committee and is charged with monitoring, evaluating and updating the Long Range Plan.

In January, 1982, with the evaluation of activities in 1981, the Long Range Plan will be updated by the committee to include action plans for 1982 as well as long range objectives up to 1985.

Margaret Purvis
Long Range Planning Chairman

Planning Division

In addition to its more visible activities of fund raising and allocation, the United Way of Midland fulfills the year-round roles of evaluating social needs and resources in the community and planning for activity and changes in human services through its Planning Division.

In its roles of evaluation of needs, services and resources and in response to recommendations by the Allocations Division, the Planning Division formed two ad hoc study committees. One group studied day care needs in Midland, while the other addressed the viability and advisability of continued funding of the Midland and Lee Youth Centers.

Among findings of the Day Care Study Committee was the recommendation that United Way day care agencies review their fee structures and try to find ways of generating more support by means other than United Way allocations.

An alternative funding relationship with the United Way suggested by the study was a purchase of service agreement with the three day care providers. Under the terms of such an arrangement, United Way would fund day care for a predetermined number of children, assuring that United Way funds were used in cases where the most need existed.

In 1981 the United Way allocated funds to day care programs operated by Community Day Nursery, La Florecita, and the Salvation Army. These agencies are licensed to provide day care for a total of more than 200 children.

Upon a recommendation of the Youth Center Study Committee, the United Way Board voted to discontinue funding to Midland and Lee Youth Centers over a two-year period.

The group's recommendation was based on their findings that the activities in which the centers are most heavily involved are more appropriately supported through funding generated directly by the centers.

Addressing the continued growth of the United Way, studies conducted by the division led to the Board's decision to admit two new United Way participating agencies -- the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children and the Midland Rape Crisis Center.

The third major project of the division was the formation of a community needs study committee, which has undertaken a community needs assessment which is to be completed this spring.

Results of this survey will better enable not only the United Way but other human service groups to develop activities designed to fulfill the most prevalent human service needs throughout the city.

Schatzie Tighe
Planning Chairman

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee recommends to the United Way Board of Directors fiscal policy, including methods of safeguarding the assets of the organization and an investment program bringing maximum return in interest on temporarily idle operating funds.

In addition to the implementation of improved general financial procedures in 1981, the committee established a Volunteer Audit Committee which functioned during the fundraising campaign to audit campaign proceeds on a daily basis. This committee, made up of loaned accountants from CPA firms and oil companies, assured the timely and accurate recording of pledges to the campaign.

The Finance Committee has undertaken an extensive study of the United Way's accounting, data processing system and has determined that an integrated data processing system for campaign management information and pledges receivable is needed. It is anticipated that this system will be installed and operable in 1982.

Communications Division

Understanding the changing needs and expectations of our rapidly growing city and translating those needs into opportunities for the United Way to more appropriately serve the community was a priority set by the Communications Division during 1981.

To gain a clearer picture of Midland's attitudes and opinions about human service needs and the function of the United Way, the Communications Division contracted for a market survey to be conducted early last summer.

Information gained from the survey will be used this year and in the future to help the United Way determine the kinds of programs and services the community prefers to support through United Way contributions.

Although most United Way communications are focused on the campaign effort, making communications a year-round activity was another priority of the division in 1981.

Different kinds of volunteer activity were spotlighted in newspaper feature articles during National Volunteer Week in April and at other times during the year, and local radio and television stations covered activities of United Way agencies throughout the year.

In preparation for the campaign, volunteers wrote and designed brochures, produced radio public service announcements, and photographed and programmed a synchronized slide-tape presentation.

Also through volunteer effort, a co-operative purchase of audio visual equipment was arranged, under which the United Way has priority use during campaign of the equipment, although it was purchased primarily by several private organizations.

This arrangement allows the United Way to produce a more professional, informative slide show while keeping the cost of equipment at a minimum.

Other communications volunteers helped participating agencies with public relations activities throughout the year, both on an individual basis and collectively.

Early in the fall, a panel of media representatives and public relations professionals discussed media relations with United Way agency staff members and volunteers as well as with representatives of other non-profit organizations who attended the workshop.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

The expert has taught himself to think differently from the average player. This hand from a team match illustrates how each type would tackle a diamond slam.

South's decision to go on to slam was dubious, although he was undoubtedly influenced by his partner's ill-considered jump raise in diamonds. South's concentration of strength in the diamond suit means that, despite its high point count, his hand was riddled with losers. Instead of launching into Blackwood, he might have been content with bidding five diamonds and leaving it up to his partner to decide on slam.

West led the jack of clubs at both tables. The average declarer won in hand, drew trumps, crossed to the king of spades and took the heart finesse. When that won, he continued with ace and another heart. Had hearts split 3-3, declarer would have been home. But the fates were unkind, and declarer still had to lose another heart for down one.

The expert declarer at the other table also won the club in hand. He realized immediately that he would have no chance for his contract if the heart finesse failed, and that he would have to lose one heart anyway. But with careful timing he might be able to avoid a second heart loser if the suit split 4-2. At trick two he led a low heart from his hand!

As the cards lie, this simple play rendered the defense helpless. East won the heart and returned a club, knocking out dummy's ace. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps and crossed to the king of spades. He took a successful heart finesse and cashed the ace of hearts. Had hearts split evenly, he would have drawn the last trump and claimed. But when West showed out and, fortunately, could not ruff, declarer was able to ruff his last heart in dummy, cross to his hand with a club ruff to draw the last trump and claim his slam.

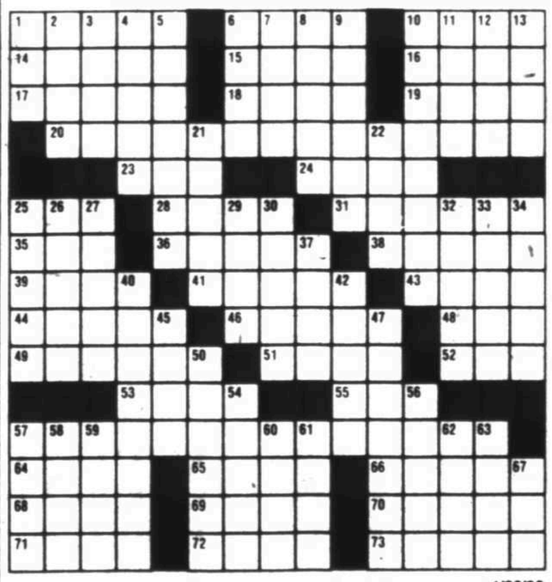

What if West ruffed the ace of hearts on the third round? Then declarer would have been down one no matter how he played the hand!

ACLU says El Salvadoran government guilty of severe human rights violations

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union charged today that El Salvador's government is guilty of severe human rights violations and urged President Reagan to withhold U.S. military aid to the Central American country.

In a letter to Reagan, the ACLU and the Americas Watch Committee, a human rights group, said the Salvadoran military-civilian junta "is directly responsible for the indiscrimate torture and murder of Salvadoran citizens by (its) forces or...is making no discernible effort to bring the armed forces under control."

The letter and a 273-page report on the Salvadoran human rights situation were released today in advance of a Jan. 28 deadline for the president to either certify that the junta "is making a concerted and significant effort to comply with internationally recognized human rights" or cut off U.S. aid.

Congress imposed that requirement last month in a foreign aid bill that also insisted that the Salvadoran government press ahead with economic and political reforms and conduct good-faith investigations into the killings of six Americans.

Despite the ACLU report and other recent allegations of abuses by Salvadoran forces, Reagan is expected to certify to Congress that the junta is meeting the human rights tests.

Administration officials have said they believe the Salvadoran government is making reasonable progress in curbing abuses by its security forces, particularly in the midst of a year-old civil war against leftist guerrillas.

However, the ACLU report contends that the Salvadoran army is using U.S. military aid and training to wage a war of terror against large segments of the population, particularly in rural areas where the guerrillas operate.

Security forces and government-backed paramilitary groups have rounded up thousands of political opponents who are then tortured and murdered, the report states.

The report cites research by the legal aid office of El Salvador's Roman Catholic Diocese which alleges that sometimes whole families, including children, are executed by government forces.

In addition, the government's counter-insurgency strategy "has led to the slaughter of livestock, the theft of food, the razing of villages, cropburning and direct assaults upon the civilian population," the report charged.

"Torture has been widely used prior to killings," it added. "Torture has been reported to occur in the central headquarters of the National Guard, the Treasury Police, and the National Police in San Salvador.

"The most frequent types of tortures reported are severe blows to all parts of the body, death threats, choking, electric shock to lips, mouth and genitals, hooding, drugging, submersion in water, cigarette burns and simulated executions."

Polish Parliament approves martial law

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish Parliament put its stamp of approval on martial law after Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski told it military control of industry will continue indefinitely but some civil liberties could be restored by the end of February.

"If no illegal actions develop, if unforeseen circumstances do not arise these restrictions will be lifted, or considerably reduced at any rate, by the end of next month," said the premier, military commander and Communist Party chief Monday in his first address to the Sejm, Poland's parliament, since he imposed martial law seven weeks ago to check the Solidarity reform movement.

But martial law will likely continue in industry, Jaruzelski continued, because it imposes discipline "both on those who are in charge of the economy and those who are engaged in production processes."

The Sejm in a resolution adopted after the premier's report said martial law "ought not to last longer than is necessary. The restrictions of civic freedoms and normal conditions of life arising from martial law ought to be gradually moderated," the government television service reported.

"At the same time the Sejm states with all force that the great deed of socialist renewal must be — and will be — continued," the resolution declared.

The resolution said the Sejm was in "full solidarity" with Jaruzelski's statement in his speech "that there can be no return to the erroneous methods and practices" of the government before August 1980, when years of corruption and mismanagements resulted in a nationwide demand for reform and the formation of the independent labor union Solidarity.

The resolution also endorsed Jaruzelski's statement that Poland's problems can only be solved by "national accord" and "not by force."

Jaruzelski in his speech said Solidarity would be allowed to resume operations after military rule is ended but only if it stayed out of politics.

"There is no reason why the trade union movement...shielded from a repetition of political manipulations of opponents of socialism, should not be able to resume its activities as soon as the situation in the country" returns to normal, he said without elaboration.

But he refused to set a target date for the lifting of martial law and rejected pressure from the United States and its allies, saying, "...above all, no external pressure whatsoever must decide it."

He attacked the U.S. sanctions against Poland, saying they "strike at the Polish nation, at every Pole," and their purpose is "to paralyze the Polish economy, to make it impossible to get out of the crisis."

Poland has never "bowed down before a foreign ultimatum" and refuses to be intimidated by the United States now, he declared.

Accusing America of hypocrisy, Jaruzelski said, "The government which has for years been torpedoing the imposition of sanctions on the great concentration camp which is the Republic of South Africa does not hesitate to impose sanctions on Poland."

He also brushed aside the American demand for the release of interned Solidarity members, saying: "The head of the Polish government did not demand the release from American prisons of the handcuffed air traffic controllers trade union leaders."

Jaruzelski denied reports of inhumane conditions in the internment camps and said a delegation from the International Red Cross "recently had a chance to see by themselves what is true."

"We do not have anything to hide here," he declared.

He said 4,549 people were still under detention, 1,750 others had been released, and "those internees who...will abandon their activity against the socialist state can return to their families, their jobs."

U.S. officials unsure about Soviet crates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials still are uncertain of the contents of about half a dozen crates detected by U.S. reconnaisance photography early this month in Cuba after they were unloaded from a Soviet cargo ship.

Specialists have surmised that the crates — which they say remain unopened after being moved from dockside to an air base — contain the fuselages of MiG-23 jet planes.

The specialists emphasized, however, that that is only an assumption.

Doctor speaks on disabilities

Dr. George Herman Cirkovic will speak on treating learning disabilites at the Midland Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (MACLD) at 7 p.m. Thursday at San Jacinto Junior High School, Community Lane and N St.

The purpose of the program is to inform parents about the type of services Dr. Cirkovic will provide in the area.

MACLD also offers a weekly coffee session at 10 a.m. every Thursday at the Achievement Center, 1906 W. Illinois Ave.

A Midland psychologist will be available at each of the sessions to answer any questions on coping with learning disabilities.

The ACLD is the only national organization devoted to defining and finding solutions for the broad spectrum of learning problems. Fifty state affiliates and more than 775 local chapters, consisting of 80,000 members, including parents, professionals and concerned citizens, make up the ACLD.

MHS can clinch outright title with win over Lee

Abilene Cooper, Abilene High need Rebel win to stay alive

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

It seems like everybody wants a piece of the action in the first-half race for the District 5-5A title, but one team wants to be greedy and take the whole thing. Completely understandable.

The Midland High Bulldogs are, at least for the moment, alone on top of the 5-5A standings and would like to keep it that way. Their only problem is three other teams are within striking distance and could force a three-way tie.

One of those teams is Midland Lee, the Bulldogs' natural rival and opponent in tonight's final game of the first-half season. It seems the Rebels, since they can't win it all themselves, want to be generous and share it between the Bulldogs, themselves and Abilene Cooper or Abilene High. Also completely understandable.

For the Bulldogs, who have already clinched at least a tie with a 5-1 record, to keep it all themselves, they have to get by the Rebels. If that should happen then there is nothing for the other three teams to do but start over and shoot for the second-half title and force a playoff at the end of the season.

The Rebels can force the three-way tie by beating Midland High. If that should happen then Abilene High or Abilene Cooper (both tied with Lee at 4-2) will also share in the crown depending on which team wins in their meeting tonight in Abilene.

THE BATTLE between MHS and Lee is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Chaparral Center and with the game being as important as it is, a packed house is expected. For the showdown, there will be no pre-game tickets sold. All tickets must be purchased at the door, $1 for students and $2 for adults. The game may also be heard locally on KBAT-FM radio.

Neither Lee's coach Paul Stueckler or Midland High's Jack Stephenson can see an easy ending to the battle. Both have a great deal of respect for each other and know that each will be fielding a tough team.

"Midland High has a very, very fine basketball team," said Stueckler. "They're versatile in scoring, have good backboard strength, are very well coached and have good team spirit."

"They've got good outside ability and we've got good outside ability," said Stephenson. "They're good inside and we're good inside. They're a good pressing team and we're a good pressing team. I think it will be an interesting ball game."

And with both coaches agreeing that the game will be evenly matched, or as odds-makers are fond of saying 'pickem,' it's hard to figure out where an advantage could lie.

Both teams are strong in the scoring department with several players capable of putting points on the scoreboard. The Bulldogs have postman Preston Robertson leading their attack with a 19.2 average while Lee has postman Andre Van Buren at 17.8. Lee guard Alvin Dunson has a slight edge over MHS forward Don Sharnowski in the No. 2 scorers department, 15.1 to 13.8, but that is offset by the No. 3 men, Bulldog forward Raymond Parker against Rebel guard Randy Pepper, 13.2 to 9.3

MHS postman Jim Gunnels has a slight edge over Lee guard Barry Blackwell at No. 4, 8.7 to 7.7 (both are also averaging well over these marks in district play) but the Rebels make up ground at No. 5 with postman Kenneth Brown scoring 7.1 per game to Bulldog guard Barr Bolger's 3.7. Lee also has Olen Smith with a 5.2 average and Steve Cherryhomes at 2.6. Doug Hixon, with an average of 2.2 and Scott Louderback at 2.5 should figure in the Bulldog scoring.

And even though, as both coaches would tell you if asked, statistics don't prove anything, they can tell you where to look to see a good portion of the scoring. In the case of Midland High, from just about anywhere. Ditto for Lee.

COACH STUECKLER sees the inside battle as a pivotal point in the ball game where the most frequent matchup should be Brown against Robertson.

"A large measure of the game will be determined on what kind of job Kenneth does on the backboard," said Stueckler. "I would assume Preston will be playing close to the basket. That's where he played the last time we played Midland High in the Tall City Tournament. We will also have to get the ball through their press, Midland High does have a very fine press."

"We know so much about each other that we know what each will do, they know what we're going to do," said Coach Stephenson. "You can throw away the records for this one, it's important to both teams."

Both coaches are looking forward to their teams meeting tonight and both are happy with the excitement about the game.

"I'm very pleased to have a chance to be playing for a piece of the crown in the final game of the first half," said Stueckler.

"It's going to be a fun game," said Stephenson. "I'm looking forward to it, especially since I found out how important the game would be. It's good for Midland basketball. If this doesn't create interest in basketball, then what will? It's good for the kids and that's what's important."

The last time the two teams met was on Nov. 28 in the championship game of the Tall City Tournament and it was a battle down to the wire with the Bulldogs pulling out a 63-60 victory.

That victory was the seventh consecutive over Lee for MHS and upped the Bulldogs' history against the Rebels to a 24-19 record. But a lot has happened since that time. The biggest difference is the vast improvement of both teams. Their offenses have gotten stronger and their defenses tougher. So forget about the last one and expect only one guarantee from this one, an exciting and hard-fought battle.

ELSEWHERE AROUND the 5-5A, Abilene Cooper and Abilene High will be out to eliminate each other from a shot at sharing the title. The winner needs a Midland Lee victory over Midland High for any first half honors.

Odessa Permian (3-3) and Odessa High (2-4) are out of the first half race, but each team is seeking to build momentum for the second half as well as enjoy the bragging rights from a victory tonight. There won't be to much bragging though because there is still another in-town game to play.

Big Spring (0-6) will be looking for its first victory of the 5-5A season against San Angelo (2-4). Both teams would like to return to their winning ways of the pre-district schedule.

Midland High opens second half with 61-55 win over Lee

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE

Midland High got off to a slow start in the first half of District 5-5A play, closing out that portion of the schedule in a distant fourth place with a 3-4 league record and 14-11 overall mark.

Monday night, 5-5A part two got underway and the Lady Bulldogs let it be known that they want to be a winner this time around by defeating cross-town rival Midland Lee at MHS gym, 61-55.

Not only did the win put the Bulldogs on the right track for the second-half race, it also snapped a four-game losing streak at the hands of the Rebels, all four by one point.

"I knew it would be a good ball game," said MHS coach Jane Young. "In the last four ball games we've played, Lee has beaten us out at the buzzer.

"I thought we took the ball game to them, penetrated well," said Young. "I thought our press was effective until we got into foul trouble and with a 10-point lead we went into a zone. It was an overall team effort."

"We tried everything we knew, but just couldn't stop them," said Lee's Shirley Stephenson.

Lee took a quick 4-0 lead before MHS could get its offense going to score the next three buckets for a 6-4 advantage and then went on to win the first quarter, 12-7.

The second quarter belonged to Lee as the Rebels knotted the score at 25-25 with 25 seconds remaining in the first half and added three more points to their total before the buzzer for a 28-25 score.

The Bulldogs came out of the locker-room and immediately took command of the game by ripping off the first four buckets of the third quarter to go up 33-28 and finished the frame by outscoring Lee 21-9 for a 46-37 lead.

With 3:55 remaining in the fourth quarter, MHS built up its biggest lead of the ball game, 56-41, and held on to post the six-point victory.

Coach Young credited the victory to team effort and added "Janice (Littlefield) played more aggressive tonight and Sheila (Christian) made a bunch of assists. Shelly (Parker) played an important role, Missy (Larremore) made a lot of steals and Vergie (Cooks) came off the bench and did a good job."

Young also liked the way the Lee girls played saying, "Yshun King played a very good game. She hit about everything she threw up. Shun Harris is such a good rebounder. She was getting position on us and putting it back up over us (on offensive rebounds)."

On the scoreboard, Littlefield scored 12 of her 19 points in the second half to place the Bulldogs while Parker added 10 and Larremore nine. For Lee, Harris also had 12 second-half points enroute to her game-high 21 while King added 12 and McGaha 10.

Both teams were playing without the services of one of their guards. The Bulldogs were missing Denette Parker because of illness while Lee was minus Lurdes Duran who suffered a sprained ankle earlier in the day.

In junior varsity action, Lee broke open a 45-45 tie in the final minute of play to take a 49-45 victory. Stacy Harmon and Faye Oudems led the Rebels in scoring with 11 and 10 points respectively while O.J. Johnson had 13 for the Bulldogs.

MHS won the sophomore battle by another close count, 45-44. Linda Cook and Martha Gomez had 13 points each for the Bulldogs and Lisa Fleetwood scored 11 for Lee.

In other District 5-5A action Monday night, San Angelo got 19 points from Jeanne Bryant and 13 from Regina Cole enroute to a 59-42 victory over Big Spring. The Lady Steers were paced by Elise Wheat with 17 pointds.

Abilene High squeaked by Abilene Cooper 57-55 with Trach Hubbard scoring 20 points for the Eagles and Carla Seldon 20 for the Cougars. Hubbard, who had been dismissed from the AHS squad following the MHS-AHS game at Chap Center two weeks ago, was reinstated Monday and only saw two minutes of action in the first half and played most of the second.

Odessa Permian posted a 60-39 victory over Odessa High Monday night with Jana Davis canning 24 points for the Panthers and Valetria Jernigan scoring 16 for the Bronchos.

Chaps hold on to defeat Clarendon

By TED BATTLES

It may be a trite, tired, overworked old script, but funny thing, no one seems to weary of it.

It's the one where Midland College leads big most of the way and then staggers down to the wire, seeming to be searching for a way to lose it when someone steps out of the phone booth to save the day.

This time it was Puntus Wilson breaking a tie with a 15-foot jumper with 35 seconds to go and 6-6 Chester Smith "sewing it up" with a pair of free throws 14 seconds from the end as Midland College held off Clarendon College, 90-88, at Chaparral Center Monday night.

SINCE THE Western Junior College Conference race resumed after the Christmas holidays, MC has won five straight with all the wins adhering to the same scenario, the big lead early in the second half and then the frantic scrambling finish to fend the wolf from the door.

"If they assure me they won't lose one of these, I'll go along with these finishes," Coach Jerry Stone grinned in relief after MC has raised its WJCC record to 8-1 and its season's mark to 17-5.

Jerome Crowe, the 6-4 freshman from South Garland offered the dangling carrot theory on the Chaparrals' nail-biting finishes. "We know how it's going to come out all along. We just like to make our opponents' suffer"...opponents, coach and fans.

With only a nine-player roster, Lance McCain, the veteran from Andrews, reluctantly concedes it could be a case of fatigue. "Before Christmas, I never got tired. I could go all night without a rest. I still can, but I'm just now getting back to where I was before the break."

WHILE MC was winning, so was Amarillo College, 77-70, over Howard at Big Spring as the Badgers went 20-0 for the season and 9-0 in WJCC. In other action, Odessa College beat NMJC, 92-78, and South Plains downed Western Texas College, 87-82.

MC led after a sizzling first half in which Clarendon hit 64 per cent and MC 63 per cent from the field, 51-40. The Chaps led throughout the second, quite comfortably most of the way, like 61-46, 66-54, 67-56 with 11:13 to go, but you could see the finish coming. With 7:40 left it was 76-67 and 76-71 at the 5:55 clocking. MC still led 86-79 with

Pierce paces Rice to victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice's Ricky Pierce, the nation's No. 2 scorer, was not perfect Monday night, but he still managed 27 points and helped the Owls to a tight 42-40 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Southern Methodist.

Pierce "only" hit 11 of 18 shots from the field and five of six free throws as the Owls stalled out the final 11:23 en route to the victory.

"We didn't go to the spread to stall the game," Rice coach Tommy Suitts said. "We just wanted to pull them out of their zone and then go on with the game."

Cougar's Lewis declared scholastically ineligible

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Carl Lewis is the first collegian to win a national title in a running and field event in the same year since Jesse Owens in 1936, but Lewis' athletic abilties do not include juggling.

Faced with the withering pace of travel demands, incessant interviews and keeping up with his degree requirements at the University of Houston, Lewis discovered last weekend he couldn't keep them all in the air.

Lewis was declared scholastically ineligible to compete for the Cougar track team one week after becoming the first athlete to jump 28 feet indoors with a world best long jump of 28-1 in the Olympic Invitational at East Rutherford, N.J.

But don't expect Lewis to stop jumping into space.

"The only thing that has changed is I won't be competing for the UH track team," Lewis said. "I'm still on the same schedule. This is just something that happened and that's about all I have to say about it."

After winning the 100 meters and long jump in the 1981 NCAA track and field championships, Lewis became the toast of the track and field world. The demands on his time caught up with him in one of his UH courses but he refuses to make excuses.

Lewis plans to remain at UH and compete for the Cougars two more years. By missing this season, Lewis will be a fifth year senior at UH in the 1984 Olympic year.

"We had about decided to red-shirt him anyway his senior year so he would be in school for the Olympics," UH track Coach Tom Tellez said. "It will work better this way. I've never seen a kid that didn't do better if he was in school and had a routine."

Lewis is almost as good at communicating as he is at running and leaping, Tellez said.

"Everybody wants to talk to Carl because there's aren't many athletes who have done what he's done," Tellez said. "Plus, he's likeable and handles himself real well in an interview. That makes it even worse. The requests for interviews haven't let up and they won't."

Bartosh sets up traffic control

Midland Lee fans are requested to enter from the Garfield Street entrance to Midland College and park in the east parking lot and Midland High fans are requested to enter from the Wadley Street entrance to MC and park in the West parking lot at Chaparral Center.

"If they do that," said Gil Bartosh, Midland Schools Athletic Director, "it would help our crowd control both before and after tonight's game. For the convenience of the fans we will sell Lee tickets at the East side entrance and Midland tickets at the West side entrance."

Bartosh said every indication was for a big crowd at tonight's intra-city 5-5A first half showdown match.

Irish upset Idaho in overtime, 50-48

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame has put together consecutive victories for the first time this season, and Coach Digger Phelps has never seen anything like it.

"I have never seen a group like this with just pure heart," Phelps said Monday night after the Irish eked out a 50-48 overtime victory over 11th-ranked Idaho.

Notre Dame went into a stall that held the Vandals to 10 points in the second half, and the two teams were tied 48-48 at the end of regulation.

The Irish held the ball for the first three minutes of the five-minute overtime period and took their first lead, 48-46, on a pair of free throws by freshman guard Ron Rowan, who led Notre Dame with 17 points.

Phelps said he told his players to keep cool after Idaho hit 14 of its first 15 shots to take an 18-point lead in the first half. "I told them they couldn't keep it going," Phelps said. "I think Idaho got too hot too quick."

The loss was the second straight for the Vandals, who won their first 16 games of the season.

"Needless to say we got a little tentative in the second half," said Idaho Coach Don Monson. "I knew we couldn't continue to shoot 82 percent from the floor."

The victory was only Notre Dame's fifth against 10 losses. Bill Varner added 11 points for the Irish, including a free throw that gave Notre Dame its 50th point. Brian Kellerman, who scored Idaho's only two points in overtime, topped the Vandals with 18.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 7 Kentucky defeated Louisiana State 76-65, and Georgetown clobbered 20th-ranked Villanova 72-56.

The Top Ten

Melvin Turpin had 20 points, including eight of Kentucky's first 10, and the Wildcats opened an early 10-2 lead en route to an easy victory over Louisiana State in the Southeastern Conference.

Dirk Minniefield added 17 points, and Derrick Hord had 16 for Kentucky, 13-3 and 6-2 in the SEC. Freshman Derrick Taylor had 27 points for the Tigers, 8-7 and 5-3 in the SEC.

The Second Ten

Georgetown rebounded from three consecutive losses behind Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, who went over the 2,000-point mark, and the Hoyas defeated Villanova in a Big East Confeyence game. Floyd scored 18 points, and teammate Eric Smith had 17.

Georgetown, 15-5 and 4-3 in the conference, outscored Villanova 16-6 in a streak that gave the Hoyas a 58-43 lead with seven minutes left. Villanova, 13-4 and 6-2 in the Big East, was led by Stewart Granger and freshman Ed Pinckney with 12 points apiece.

Unranked Teams

Dale Solomon hit a three-point play with 57 seconds left that put Virginia Tech up by seven, and the Hokies scored an 83-75 victory over St. Louis in the Metro Conference. Solomon had 16 points.

Bill Garnett scored 25 points and 7-foot center Chris Engler added 25 as Wyoming defeated Hawaii 87-61 and took over first place in the Western Athletic Conference.

Ricky Pierce scored 19 of his 27 points in the first half, and Rice held on to beat Southern Methodist 42-40 in the Southwest Conference. Kenneth Perkins' 24 points and nine rebounds led Lamar to a 91-77 victory over Texas-Arlington in the Southland Conference.

Greg Jones had 22 points to lead West Virginia to its 14th straight victory, 72-60, over Massachusetts in the Eastern Eight. Forward David Magley scored 26 points to lead Kansas to a 72-60 victory over Alcorn State in a non-conference game.

Williams leads Sonics to victory over New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Gus Williams, who will start at guard for the West in Sunday's National Basketball Association All-Star game, temporarily shook off the effects of illness to score 25 points as Seattle beat the New York Knicks 113-99 in the league's only game Monday night.

Williams was one of seven Seattle players in double figures Monday night, and the Sonics led by as many as 25 points twice in the third quarter after pulling away to a 13-point halftime lead.

Jack Sikma had 15, Lonnie Shelton 14, Bill Hanzlik, Danny Vranes and Wally Walker 12 each and Fred Brown 11 for Seattle.

Campy Russell had 19 and Michael Ray Richardson 15 for the Knicks, who lost for the eighth time in the last 10 games.

Bruins throw 55-shots at Flames' goaltender

By The Associated Press

It wouldn't be at all surprising if Rejean Lemelin's sleep was made uneasy by dreams of a blizzard of pucks, with the rubber discs coming at the Calgary Flames goaltender from every direction.

Lemelin was in goal Monday night when his team forged a 3-3 National Hockey League tie with Boston despite a 55-shot barrage by the Bruins, who were playing on their own ice.

The Flames took just 25 shots against Boston goalie Rogie Vachon, but Kevin Lavallee had given Calgary a 3-2 lead on its 18th shot of the game, earlier in the third period.

The Bruins broke on top with Crowder's first goal at 9:33 of the first period. But Charles Bourgeois tied it on a 50-footer between Vachon's pads at 17:01. Peter McNab got his 23rd goal of the season on a power play for Boston at 8:07 of the second period, but Lanny McDonald beat Vachon from the slot to tie it at 13:28.

North Stars 9, Maple Leafs 2

Bobby Smith scored three goals and assisted on two others to lead the Minnesota romp in Toronto. The North Stars scored three times in the first seven minutes and the issue never was in doubt.

Smith's hat trick gave him 30 goals for the season. Dino Ciccarelli, with his 37th and 38th goals of the season, Anders Hakansson, Neal Broten, Tom McCarthy and Brad Palmer also scored for the Novth Stars, and defenseman Craig Hartsburg assisted on the first four Minnesota goals.

Whalers 6, Black Hawks 6

Doug Sulliman scored his first NHL hat trick and Pierre Larouche added a power-play goal midway through the final period to lift the Whalers over the Black Hawks at Chicago Stadium.

It was seventh consecutive loss for the Black Hawks, who now have lost 18, won eight and tied two in their last 28 games.

Larouche's 18th goal of the season came 28 seconds after Chicago defenseman Doug Crossman was penalized for running down Hartford winger Don Nachbaur. After the ensuing faceoff, Larouche took a pass from Blaine Stoughton and beat Chicago goalie Warren Skorodenski, starting his first NHL game.

Chaps hold on for win

2:35 to go, but a basket and free throw by Tim Thomas narrowed it to 86-82 with 2:03.

McCain fouled out with 1:42 to go and 6-5 George Milhouse, who had a game-high 28, converted both shots. It was the first time in the second half that the Bulldogs had been at the line for a 1-and-1. MC had been shooting 1-and-1s from 7:11 on and missing, or there would have been nothing to worry about.

THOMAS TIED it at 86 with a minute left as the Bulldogs outjumped the leaden-legged Chaparrals for three shots from under the rim before they made the goal that tied the game at 86.

But, as always, the Chaps were equal to the challenge with Wilson, who shared honors with Smith at 22, scoring and then Smith adding the two free throws that nailed it down.

Assistant Coach Archie Myers gave Clarendon's passing game much of the credit for the Bulldogs' comeback. "It has been a long time since we have played a team that passed like that. They'd make the pass on the break for the basket and when the defensive man went with the ball, they'd move it right back to the man who had just made the pass and was open."

WILSON, SMITH and McCain were 17 of 22 from the field in the first half and Lance had three steals. McCain finished with 14 points for the night. Spud Webb wound up with 16 points and had seven first half assists. Crowe, who played a strong game under the boards, made 10 points, sinking five of seven from the field. For the night, Wilson finished 10 of 16, Smith 9 of 13 and McCain 7 of 13 in field goal attempts.

Led by Milhouse, the Bulldogs, now 3-4 in WJCC, had five players in double figures with Thomas sinking 13, 11 in the last half, Jerry Isler 12, Kenneth Morning, 10 and Bobby Denson 11.

For second year, Rogers tops list of music honorees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kenny Rogers emerged ahead of a roster of competitors including the late John Lennon and won big for the second year in a row at the American Music Awards.

Rogers, who last year took four awards, was voted best pop-rock male vocalist and his "Greatest Hits" LP received favorite album honors in both pop-rock and country categories during Monday night's live two-hour ABC telecast.

Lennon had been nominated as favorite male pop-rock vocalist and "Double Fantasy," the album he made with his wife Yoko Ono, was a favorite pop-rock album contender. Lennon was murdered outside his New York City apartment building in December 1980.

While not present at the Shrine Auditorium ceremonies, Rogers conveyed his gratitude for the three awards via live satellite transmission from Atlanta.

"I go to 13 awards show in a row, I win nothing. I leave town, I win two," he said after picking up his second award.

Rogers was not the only winner to say thanks from afar. The soft-rock group Air Supply, which took the favorite pop-rock group award, also rejoiced via a satellite transmission from its native Australia.

Air Supply also was featured in a tribute to Australian music stars that included performances by Olivia Newton-John and Rick Springfield.

The only multiple award winner to show up in person was Lionel Richie, whose duet with Diana Ross, "Endless Love," earned favorite single awards in both pop-rock and soul categories.

"I think I'm dreaming. This couldn't be happening," Richie said backstage. Earlier in the month, Richie got five Grammy nominations for his roles as producer, composer and singer on "Endless Love."

Miss Ross was not present, but "I hope she's jumping up and down," Richie said.

The American Music Awards are basically a popularity poll, with winners being determined by a survey of 30,000 persons chosen to reflect the geographic distribution, age, sex and ethnic origin of the U.S. record-buying public. Nominees are determined by the top performers in year-end charts of the record industry trade magazines Cash Box and Record World.

The awards go to the favorite male, female and group performers as well as favorite album and single in each of three categories — pop-rock, country and soul.

In addition, a panel of music industry figures each year chooses the recipient of a special award of merit for contributions to the musical entertainment of the public.

In what the show's producer, Dick Clark, described as a moment "you couldn't buy," this year's merit award winner — Stevie Wonder — sobbed as Richie, Ella Fitzgerald, Quincy Jones, Teena Marie, Ray Parker Jr. and show hosts Donna Summer, Glen Campbell and Sheena Easton gathered around a piano and sang Wonder's song "Isn't She Lovely" — with "she" changed to "he" in Wonder's honor.

Rosanne Cash has baby girl

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Rosanne Cash, whose hits include tales of heartache, has something to wail happily about now.

"She's a whopper — weighed 8 pounds and 11 ounces on arrival," singer-songwriter and happy papa Rodney Crowell said Monday after his wife gave birth to their second girl.

"We've been thinking all along that if the baby was a girl we would name her Chelsea — but at this time that's tentative."

Miss Cash, the daughter of Johnny Cash, is best known for her hit "Seven-Year Ache." Her latest single is "Blue Moon With Heartache."

LONDON (AP) — In the presence of the Spanish and Mexican ambassadors, opera tenor Placido Domingo brandished a sword like Manrico in "Il Trovatore" to slice a cake honoring the 10th anniversary of his debut at the Royal Opera House.

"I interpolate from 'di quella pira,'" said Domingo, referring to Manrico's fiery aria in the popular Verdi opera. "I take the sword and cut the cake."

Domingo

There was applause all around in the Royal Opera House bar Monday from guests paying homage to the 41-year-old Spanish tenor.

It was 10 years ago that Domingo came to London to sing Cavaradossi in Puccini's "Tosca." He currently is starring here in a John Schlesinger staging of Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffman."

With his wife, Marta, at his side, Domingo told the opera and record company elite: "I really am very deeply moved.... Most of the important work of my career has been in England, because of Covent Garden and recordings."

Spanish Ambassador Don Fernando Arias-Salgado and his wife, and Mexican Ambassador Jose Juan de Olloqui — Domingo was raised in Mexico — joined in applause when Royal Opera administrator Sir John Tooley presented the tenor an inaugural 1887 edition of "Illustrazione Italiana," a book devoted to Verdi's "Otello."

One of today's great performers of the role, Domingo also received a framed 1903 recording by the first Otello, Francesco Tamagno.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well, now there are at least two things Treasury Secretary Donald Regan doesn't like about Paul Volcker, the Federal Reserve Board chairman with the tight fists.

Regan said Monday that he had been quoted as saying Volcker is "obstinate, tryrannical and smokes cheap cigars."

17 former hostages gather on anniversary

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — One-third of the 52 former American hostages came back in the cold and snow to the spot where they first touched U.S. soil one year ago after their captivity in Iran.

Joseph Subic Jr., one of the 17 ex-captives to return, said the return trip Monday was a way of "closing the book" on the 444 days of captivity.

"You have to set some time and say everything is finished," said Subic, now a student at George Washington University. "You can only go so long with this ex-hostage thing."

Last year, the 26 miles of road between Stewart Airport and the military academy grounds here were festooned with yellow ribbons and huge signs of gratitude and welcome. Tens of thousands of people jammed the route.

On Monday's anniversary, it was "amazing to see a small but hardy group that remembers," said ex-hostage Barry Rosen of New York City.

About 500 bundled-up schoolchildren stood in the freezing hangar at Stewart as L. Bruce Laingen, the former U.S. charge d'affairs in Iran, dedicated a 2-by-3-foot bronze plaque that read:

"On Jan. 25, 1981, after being held hostage by Iran for 444 days, these 52 gallant men and women first set foot on American soil at Stewart Airport and were welcomed home by their grateful and joyful countrymen who have dedicated this tablet."

Laingen said he remembered last year's welcome as a "blizzard of yellow ribbons that seemed to be on every dog and horse along the way."

A few old and faded yellow ribbons still clung to trees along the way, and new ones were tied to fenceposts and parking meters in West Point. There were a few signs along the route, too, including a banner held by two women who saved it from last year's reception.

A year ago the Hotel Thayer, where the hostages were taken to rest fom their journey and get reacquainted with their families, was off limits to reporters and photographers. On Monday they packed the hotel lobby to talk with the ex-hostages.

Robert Ode, a consular official now retired in Arizona, said he had come "to renew acquaintances with some of my cellmates under more favorable conditions."

At a luncheon in the hotel the youngest hostage, former Marine guard Kevin Hermening, 22, made the keynote speech. He got a standing ovation after saying, "My colleagues and their families are proud to be Americans."

Recalling that after their return "a lot of comment came up as to why we were treated as heroes and yet the Vietnam veterans were not given that," Hermening said he and many other former hostages are now working to get more recognition for the veterans and the former prisoners of war.

A telegram was read from President Reagan, praising "the courage and strength of these 52 Americans and their families."

Then the 17, joined by Mrs. Moorhead Kennedy, representing her ex-hostage husband, and Richard Queen, a hostage freed earlier than the others because of medical problems, left West Point to make their way through wintry blasts to their homes across the country.

Another former Marine guard in Iran, Rodney Sickmann, said he wasn't disappointed that there were no crowds along the route and he wouldn't mind making the "family reunion" an annual event.

"We really were like a family over there," he said.

Division publisher named

NEW YORK — W. Boyd Griffin has been appointed publisher of Hearst Professional Books, it was announced today by John F. Vance, vice president and general manager of Hearst Books.

Griffin, 36, will report to Vance who said the establishment of this new division within Hearst Books "signals a fresh initiative to build upon present businesses."

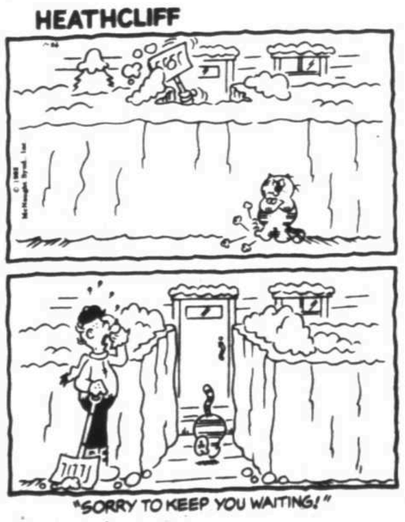

Among the publishing areas to be initially addressed are vocational education — especially in the automotive field; professional book publishing in pharmacy and other health-related fields; and other areas in which Hearst books now publishes.

Is It Worth It? Our Nurses Think So.

To tell a nurse that nursing is hard work is a waste of time. They know it because they do it. Yet it is the kind of hard work that carries with it its own kind of rewards and satisfaction. It's the kind of hard work that makes our nurses proud of their profession, and being a part of a medical facility that understands. But for all the hard work and satisfaction there must always be compensation in other areas.
Medical Center Hospital recognizes that financial and personal rewards must be involved, as well as professional, for a nurse to be fully satisfied. We have progressive facilities and the thinking to go with it. Come by and talk with us or give us a call...
